The Nihil obstat and Imprimatur are a declaration that a book or pamphlet is considered to be free from doctrinal or moral error. It is not implied that those who have granted the Nihil obstat and Imprimatur agree wtih the contents, opinions or statements expressed.

The introductions and notes of this Bible are, with some variations and revisions, a translation of those which appear in La Bible de Jérusalem, published by Les Editions du Cerf, Paris (revised edition 1973). The English text of the Bible itself, though translated from the ancient texts, owes a large debt to the work of the many scholars who collaborated to produce La Bible de Jérusalem, a debt which the publishers of this English Bible gratefully acknowledge.

GENERAL EDITOR'S FOREWORD

Since its publication in 1966 the Jerusalem Bible has become widely used for liturgical purposes, for study and for private reading. Credit both for the idea of the translation of the French Bible de Jérusalem and for the great labours involved in its execution belongs to Alexander Jones; it is sad that he did not live to see the full impact of his work. Both as an intelligible modern translation and as a well laid-out and easily manageable book, the Jerusalem Bible set a new standard for versions of the Bible. However, in 1973 a new edition of the Bible de Jérusalem was published, which incorporated progress in scholarship over the two decades since the preparation of its first edition. The introductions and notes were often widely changed to take account of linguistic, archaeological and theological advances, and the text itself in some instances reflected new understanding of the originals.

This 1973 revision was important enough to warrant a completely new edition of the English-language Jerusalem Bible. In this new edition the introductions and notes are drawn from that revision, with some additional changes especially in the introductions and notes to the New Testament to take into account further recent advances in scholarship. The biblical text of the first edition was occasionally criticised for following the French translation more closely than the originals. In this edition the translation has been made directly from the Hebrew, Greek or Aramaic. Only where the text admits of more than one interpretation has the option chosen by the Bible de Jérusalem been followed, unless permission to adopt another view was granted by the editors of that work. The character of the Jerusalem Bible as primarily a study Bible has been kept constantly in mind, and for that reason accuracy of translation has been a prime consideration. Paraphrase has been avoided more rigorously than in the first edition; care has been taken that in parallel passages (for example in the first three gospels) the similarities and differences should be mirrored exactly in the translation. Key terms in the originals, especially those theological key concepts on which there is a major theological note, have been rendered throughout (with very few exceptions) by the same English word, instead of by the variety of words used in the first edition. At the same time the widespread liturgical use of this version has been taken into account; while it is hoped that the translation is fresh and lively, care has been taken to reproduce the dignity of the originals by a certain measured phrasing and avoidance of the colloquial. Considerable efforts have also been made, though not at all costs, to soften or avoid the inbuilt preference of the English language, a preference now found so offensive by some people, for the masculine; the word of the Lord concerns women and men equally.

It has seemed wise to retain the spelling of the proper names traditional in English-speaking lands. Many names in biblical Hebrew have a meaning: for instance 'Adonijah' means 'My Lord is Yah' (Yahweh). Others are given a meaning by a more or less forced pun. Many of these meanings are given in the footnotes. In the rendering of Hebrew words in the footnotes, etc., a more modern system of transliteration is, however, used, thus enabling the reader to come closer to the original sounds. This is often important for onomatopoeia and to understand how textual corruption has occurred.

One acute difficulty was the choice of system when modern equivalents for weights and measures were required. In some English-speaking countries the metric system is rapidly gaining ground, while others, notably the United States, stick firmly to the imperial. Finally it seemed that both systems were needed.

For this edition the alphabetical table of major footnotes has been entirely remade in a way which will, it is hoped, make it more serviceable. Two indexes of proper names have been added, personal and geographical, giving the principal biblical passages in which they occur, as well as important footnotes. The maps have also been completely redesigned.

A list of the original collaborators in the 1966 edition may be found on page 2109. In many instances this translation has used their work widely, but they cannot be considered responsible for the resultant version. The initial draft of almost the whole of the Old Testament was prepared by Mr Alan Neame, and credit for the skilful translation must go to him. The publisher's editors, at first Mr W. H. Saumarez-Smith, and for the major part of the work the Revd Cecil Hargreaves, have done far more than their job; especially the latter has been an exciting partner to work with, whose patience, inventiveness and tact have alike been a joy. The linchpin at the publisher's office, who has co-ordinated all our efforts, has been Mr H. P. Jolowicz; his untiring and painstaking accuracy has ensured the consistency and regularity of this volume. The marginal references throughout the Bible have been reviewed by the Revd David Pope, working under difficult circumstances with impressive patience. A number of consultants who read drafts at an early stage of the work have asked that their names should not be mentioned; to them and even more to the consultants in all five continents who criticised the final drafts, and suggested many improvements, I am most grateful. The names of Professor Kenneth Grayston and Canon Douglas Webster, who worked through the whole Bible, must not go unmentioned. During the whole work my monastic brethren and my students of all ages have provided a constant check and incentive; their criticisms and suggestions have done much to improve both the dignity and the intelligibility of the work. The impatience of the young with obscurity or technicality has been a constant incentive to clarity of thought, while the love and reverence of seniors for the sacred text has helped to keep at bay anything outrageous or slipshod. Over the five years since he asked me to undertake the work, consultation with Père Benoît of the Ecole biblique in Jerusalem, whether in our series of letters or in our meetings at Ampleforth, Rome or Jerusalem, has been one of the pleasures of the project; while we have not always agreed, his openness and still youthful enthusiasm have invariably been a stimulus, and his concern to make this volume worthy of the Bible de Jérusalem an inspiration to the highest standards.

PREFACE

The Hebrew and Greek Bibles

The canon of the Hebrew Bible was fixed by the Palestinian Jews at the beginning of the Christian era and is still maintained by modern Jews. It contains only the Hebrew books, and therefore excludes the books written in Greek and the Greek supplements of Esther and Daniel. It is divided into three parts:

I The Law (the Pentateuch): Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers, Deuteronomy

II The Prophets:
a) the 'earlier Prophets': Joshua, Judges, Samuel (1 and 2), Kings (1 and 2)
b) the 'later Prophets': Isaiah, Jeremiah, Ezekiel; the 'Twelve Minor Prophets': Hosea, Joel, Amos, Obadiah, Jonah, Micah, Nahum, Habakkuk, Zephaniah, Haggai, Zechariah, Malachi

III The Writings (Hagiographa): Psalms, Job, Proverbs, Ruth, Song of Songs, Qoheleth (Ecclesiastes), Lamentations, Esther (the last five, read on Jewish feast days, are known as the 'five scrolls'), Daniel, Ezra-Nehemiah, Chronicles

The Hebrew Bible contains twenty-four books, the 'Twelve Minor Prophets' being regarded as one book.

The Greek Bible, the 'Septuagint', or 'LXX', so called because it was supposedly translated by seventy people, was for the use of Jews of the Diaspora. It includes in addition to the text of the Hebrew Bible:

I Judith, Tobit, 1 and 2 Maccabees, Wisdom, Sira (Ecclesiasticus), Baruch (Baruch Chapter 6 is printed under the separate heading of the 'Letter to Jeremiah'). In Daniel the following parts exist only in Greek: Dn 3:24–90; Dn 13 (Susanna); Dn 14 ('Bel and the Dragon'). These books, commonly referred to as deutero-canonical, are generally regarded as part of the Christian canon.

II Books which, although sometimes used by the Fathers and ancient ecclesiastical writers, have not been accepted into the Christian Canon. These 'apocryphal' works are:
Esdras I (in the LXX the canonical Ezra-Nehemiah is entitled Esdras II)
3 and 4 Maccabees
Odes
Psalms of Solomon
In the LXX, 1 and 2 Samuel and 1 and 2 Kings are entitled 'The Four Books of Kingdoms'.

The translation

The translation follows the original Hebrew, Aramaic and Greek texts. For the Old Testament the Massoretic Text is used, that is the text established in the eighth/ninth centuries AD by Jewish scholars who fixed its letters and vowel signs, the text reproduced by most manuscripts. Only when this text presents insuperable difficulties have emendations or the versions of other Hebrew manuscripts or the ancient versions (notably the LXX and Syriac) been used. In such cases the correction made to the Hebrew text, and if possible the sense of the Hebrew, have been given in the notes. For the deutero-canonical books and the New Testament the Greek text established in modern times by critical work on the principal manuscript witnesses to the tradition (also with the help of ancient versions) has been used. When the tradition offers several alternatives, important variants not used in this translation have been indicated in the notes.

Passages considered to be glosses have been put in brackets in the text. In the biblical text this is the only way in which brackets are used.

In this edition an attempt has been made to avoid translating a single term or expression of the original by a variety of renderings. Sometimes it has proved impossible to find a single English equivalent to render all the breadth of meaning and the overtones of a Hebrew or Greek original. Sometimes, also, too literal a translation would, in context, have meant a serious impoverishment of the sense of a phrase or expression. When it has been necessary to make a choice, fidelity to the text has been given preference over a literary quality which the original did not possess.

Verse-numbering

In the Old Testament the division into verses follows the Hebrew except in the few passages where the text is found only in the Septuagint; then the Septuagint numbering is given. Where the numbering of the Vulgate differs from this main verse-numbering, it is given in smaller type. A dot • indicates a verse beginning other than at the start of a line. Occasionally to a verse number is suffixed a letter (e.g. 8:2a; 8:3b; 8:4c) to distinguish earlier or later parts of a verse. In the notes these become $8:2^{a}$; $8:3^{b}$ etc.

Italics

Italics are used for two purposes: normally they indicate a quotation from another book of the Bible; in Esther and Daniel, however, they indicate passages of the Septuagint which do not exist in the Hebrew Bible. In some of the New Testament verses shown in italics (as being quotations from the Old Testament) the New Testament writers have given the Old Testament quotations in a wording different from that of the current text of the Old Testament. They were presumably using a different version, current in their own day.

Footnotes and Indexes

The footnotes of the previous edition of the Jerusalem Bible have been revised and brought up to date in the light of recent research.

The footnotes assume that the reader has already read the Introduction to the book (or group of books) concerned. Frequently the notes are interconnected, in which case the reader is referred to other passages where the note provides supplementary explanations or where a series of marginal references is given. In the case of parallel passages, footnotes are normally given only on the first occurrence of a passage (e.g. in the Synoptic Gospels footnotes explanatory of Mark and Luke are often to be found under the parallel passage in Matthew). A dot • is used in the footnotes to divide separate subjects within the same note. An alphabetical table of the major topics treated in the footnotes is given at the end of the volume. There is also a separate index of personal names, giving the principal biblical references, and, after the maps, a similar index of geographical names.

Marginal references

Where a group of cross-references occurs, the source (if any) of an italicised quotation in the text is always given first. References within the same book are given before those in other books of the Bible. The first reference of a group is set against the line to which the whole group applies. A small space separates references to different words in the same line; a larger space words in different lines. Where there is no room for a space a dot • is used to distinguish two groups.

Transcription of Hebrew

The usual conventions are followed, with these possible exceptions:

↗	passage later used or quoted at the given reference
▶	a triangle is occasionally used alongside a marginal reference: this signifies that the marginal reference relates not to the lines of text against which it appears, but to the lines at the foot of the preceding page where there was insufficient space for all references

THE PENTATEUCH

INTRODUCTION TO
THE PENTATEUCH

§1 Titles, divisions, contents

The first five books of the Bible together constitute a unit in themselves, and the group was known to the Jews as the torah, or the 'Law'. The earliest reliable witness to this title is to be found in the preface to the Book of Ecclesiasticus, and when the Christian era opened the term was already in common use, as in the New Testament, Mt 5:17; Lk 10:26; see Lk 24:44.

The need to have manageable copies of this vast collection of material dictated the division of its text into five scrolls of approximately equal length. Hence the name given to it among speakers of Greek: pentateuchos (biblos understood), the 'Book in Five Volumes', transcribed in Latin as Pentateuchus (sc. liber), whence English Pentateuch. Hebrew-speaking Jews, however, called it 'The Five Fifths of the Law'.

That this division into five books dates back to pre-Christian times is attested by the Septuagint. This Greek version of the Hebrew Old Testament designated the books according to their content, and the Church adopted its terminology. Thus the book which opens with the story of the beginning of the world is called Genesis; the second, which starts with the departure of Israel from Egypt, is named Exodus; Leviticus contains the law of the priests of the tribe of Levi; the first four chapters of Numbers deal with the census; Deuteronomy is so styled from the Septuagint rendering of Dt 17:18: 'the second law'. The Jews, however, used and still use the initial Hebrew word of each book—or its first important word—to indicate the whole.

Genesis falls into two unequal parts. Ch. 1–11 deal with primordial history; they introduce us to the story of salvation, the theme that runs through the whole Bible. They go back to the beginning of the world and survey the whole human race. They tell of the creation of the universe and humanity, of the Fall and its consequences, of the increasing human wickedness which earned the punishment of the Flood. The repopulation of the earth starts with Noah but our attention is directed ultimately to Abraham, father of the chosen people, by way of a series of narrowing genealogical tables. Ch. 12–50 deal with patriarchal history; they portray the great ancestors of Israel. Abraham is the man of faith; God rewards his obedience with a promise of posterity for himself and, for his descendants, possession of the Holy Land (12:1–25:18). Jacob is the man of guile who supplants his brother Esau, tricks his father Isaac into giving him his blessing and outwits his uncle, the unscrupulous Laban. But all his cunning would have been useless if God had not preferred him to Esau before his birth or renewed the promise and covenant granted to Abraham (25:19 to ch. 36). The career of Isaac, Abraham's son and Jacob's father, is described more in relation to these two than for its own sake; he is a relatively colourless figure. The twelve sons of Jacob represent the ancestors of the Twelve Tribes of Israel. The concluding chapters of Genesis (37–50, except 38 and 49) are entirely devoted to one of them: Joseph, the man of wisdom. The Joseph-cycle, in contrast to the foregoing stories, unfolds without visible intervention on the part of God and without any new revelation; it nonetheless has a lesson to teach, that the virtue of the wise is rewarded and that Providence turns human failings to good advantage.

Genesis is complete in itself, the history of the ancestors. The three books that follow have for their common framework the life of Moses. They recount the formation of the chosen people and show how its social and religious law was constituted.

Exodus is concerned with two main themes: the deliverance from Egypt, 1:1–15:21, and the Sinaitic covenant, 19:1–40:38. A secondary theme, the journey through the desert, connects the two, 15:22–18:27. Moses, having received the revelation of the name of Yahweh on the mountain of God, leads the liberated Israelites there. In a majestic theophany God concludes an alliance with the people and proclaims his laws. The covenant is broken almost as soon as made: the people adore the golden calf. But God forgives the sin and renews the covenant. There follows a list of ordinances controlling the practice of worship in desert conditions.

Leviticus, taken up almost entirely with legislation, breaks the thread of the narrative. Its contents are as follows: sacrificial ritual, ch. 1–7; ceremony of priestly investiture described in terms of the consecration of Aaron and his sons, ch. 8–10; ordinances relating to things clean and unclean, ch. 11–15, concluding with the ritual for the great Day of Expiation, ch. 16; the 'Holiness Code', ch. 17–26, a section which includes a liturgical calendar, ch. 23, and which closes with blessings and curses, ch. 26. By way of appendix, ch. 27 lays down the conditions for redeeming persons and animals and goods vowed to Yahweh.

Numbers resumes the account of the desert journey. A census of the people, ch. 1–4, and the offering of gifts on the occasion of the dedication of the dwelling, ch. 7, form a prelude to the departure from Sinai. The second Passover is celebrated and, leaving the holy mountain, ch. 9–10, the people reach Kadesh after various halts on the way. From here an unsuccessful attempt is made to infiltrate Canaan from the south, ch. 11–14. After a long stay at Kadesh, the people resume their journey, until they reach the Plains of Moab, opposite Jericho, ch. 20–25. The Midianites are defeated and the tribes of Gad and Reuben settle in Transjordan, ch. 31–32. Ch. 33 lists the encampments on the way from Egypt to Moab. Interspersed between these narrative sections are groups of laws either supplementing the Sinaitic code or preparing for the colonisation of Canaan: ch. 5–6; 8; 15–19; 26–30; 34–36.

Deuteronomy has a distinct structure of its own. It is a code of civil and religious laws, ch. 12–26:15, framed within a long discourse of Moses, ch. 5–11 and 26:16–28. All this material is itself preceded by a first Mosaic discourse, ch. 1–4, and followed by a third, ch. 29–30, followed in its turn by sections dealing with the last days of Moses: the commissioning of Joshua, the canticle and blessings of Moses, his death, ch. 31–34. The Deuteronomic code is a partial restatement of the laws promulgated in the desert. The discourses commemorate the great events of the Exodus, of Sinai and of the beginnings of the conquest, explaining the religious significance of these, emphasising the importance of the Law and exhorting the chosen people to be faithful to Yahweh.

At least from the beginning of the Christian era, Moses himself was credited with having composed this vast body of literature; nor did Jesus or his apostles question this, Jn 1:45; 5:45–47; Rm 10:5. Nevertheless, the most ancient traditions had never expressly claimed that Moses wrote the entire Pentateuch. Even when the Pentateuch itself uses the expression 'Moses wrote' (as it very rarely does), it is referring only to particular passages. And indeed, modern study of these books has revealed variations of style, and repetitions and contradictions in the narrative, which make it impossible to ascribe the whole work to a single author. At the end of the nineteenth century, after years of laborious effort, one hypothesis won general critical support, a result largely of the works of Graf and of Wellhausen. According to this theory, the Pentateuch is an amalgam of four documents issuing from different places and times but all much later than Moses. Initially there were, it was held, two narrative sources, the Yahwistic (J) which, from the story of creation onwards, uses the divine name 'Yahweh' revealed by God to Moses, and the Elohistic (E) which designates God by the common noun elohim. The Yahwistic source was committed to writing in Judah in the tenth century, the Elohistic in Israel a little later. After the fall of the Northern Kingdom these two documents were combined (JE). After the reign of Josiah, the Deuteronomic source (D) was added (JED); and after the Exile, the Priestly Code (P), principally containing laws but with some narrative material, was further added to the compilation to give it form and sinew (JEDP).

This classic 'documentary theory', bound up as it was with evolutionist notions about religious ideas in Israel, has often been called into question, some scholars still rejecting it out of hand, others accepting it only with sometimes very far-reaching modifications; no two authors agree altogether as to which texts should be assigned to which of the four 'documents'. All are agreed today, however, that verbal research will not alone suffice to explain how the Pentateuch was composed. To this must be added the study of the literary forms and of the oral and written traditions which preceded the editing of the sources. Each of them, even the most recent (P), contains very ancient elements. The discovery of dead literatures of the Middle East, and the progress by archaeologists and historians in reconstructing ancient civilisations adjacent to Israel, show that many of the laws and institutions in the Pentateuch had extra-biblical parallels far earlier than the dates attributed to the 'documents', and that many of the narratives presuppose conditions other, and more ancient, than those in which these 'documents' are likely to have been compiled. Different traditional material was preserved in different sanctuaries, or was handed down by popular storytellers. This was first organised into cycles, then written down, as events or individual genius determined. But these first versions were not the final ones: they were revised, added to, and combined with one another to form the Pentateuch as we have it. The written 'sources' of the Pentateuch are exceptional moments in a long development—points at which different traditional elements crystallised, though continuing to develop afterwards.

That there are various currents of tradition is attested by the duplicated passages ('doublets'), the repetitions and the discrepancies, which strike the reader from the opening pages of Genesis onwards: two stories about the creation, 1–2:4a and 2:4b–3:24, two genealogies of Cain/Kenan, 4:17 seq. and 5:12–17, two interwoven accounts of the Flood, ch. 6–8. In the stories of the patriarchs, there are two accounts of the covenant with Abraham, Gn 15 and 17; two dismissals of Hagar, 16 and 21; three versions of the misfortunes of a patriarch's wife in a foreign country, 12:10–20; 20; 26:1–11; two interwoven stories about Joseph and his brothers in the concluding chapters of Genesis. There are, furthermore, two accounts of the calling of Moses, Ex 3:1–4:17 and 6:2–7:7; two water miracles at Meribah, Ex 17:1–7 and Nb 20:1–13; two texts of the Decalogue, Ex 20:1–17 and Dt 5:6–21; four liturgical calendars, Ex 23:14–19; 34:18–23; Lv 23; Dt 16:1–16, and many other examples that could be quoted. Texts related by affinities of language, of style and of outlook set up parallel lines of force which may be detected throughout the Pentateuch; and these correspond to four strands of tradition.

From these text groups we can deduce and distinguish the various streams of tradition. The Yahwistic tradition, so named because it uses the divine name 'Yahweh' from the creation narrative onwards, is lively and vivid in style; pictorially and with real narrative talent, it gives its own profound answer to the most serious questions that human beings can raise; although God is described in human terms the author has a very elevated sense of the divine. As a prologue to the story of the ancestors of Israel, this tradition summarises the history of the human race from the creation of the first man and woman. The tradition originated in Judah and was probably committed to writing, for the main part, during the reign of Solomon. In those texts collectively attributed to it, a parallel strand can sometimes be discerned, with the same origin but reflecting concepts sometimes more archaic and sometimes quite different; this parallel tradition is designated by the initial J^1 (primitive Yahwistic), or L ('Lay' source), or N ('Nomadic' source). The distinction is drawn on good grounds, but it is hard to know whether this represents an independent strand of tradition, or merely elements which the Yahwist has inserted into his text while preserving their individual characteristics.

The Elohistic tradition (the most obvious characteristic of which is the use of the common noun elohim to designate God) is distinguished from the Yahwistic by a more sober, somewhat flat, style, a more exacting moral standard and an insistence on the distance separating human beings from God. It has no primordial history but starts from the time of Abraham. Probably more recent than the Yahwistic tradition, it is commonly associated with the tribes of the north. Some authors do not admit the existence of an independent Elohistic tradition and are content to account for the material in question as additions to, or revisions of, the Yahwistic text. However, differences in place of origin, and the persistence of parallels with, and divergences from, the Yahwistic tradition from the story of Abraham to the accounts of the death of Moses, suggest that there was a distinct and independent tradition and probably an independent written source.

One important fact must, however, be borne in mind. Despite the characteristics distinguishing them, the Yahwistic and Elohistic traditions substantially tell the same story: the two traditions thus have a common origin. The tribal groups of south and of north shared a common tradition marshalling the people's memories of their history: the succession of the three patriarchs, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, the exodus from Egypt linked to the theophany at Sinai, the making of the covenant at Sinai linked to the settlement of Transjordan—the final step before the conquest of the Promised Land. This common tradition had taken shape in oral, and possibly even in written form, during the period of the Judges, that is to say, when Israel was already beginning to exist as a nation.

The Yahwistic and Elohistic traditions contain only a very few legislative texts, the most considerable being the Code of the Covenant, to which we shall return later. The laws, however, constitute the principal part of the 'Priestly' tradition, which is particularly concerned with the organisation of the sanctuary, with sacrifices and festivals and with the person and functions of Aaron and his descendants. Besides legislative and institutional texts, it also contains narrative material which is deliberately elaborated when serving to express the legalistic or liturgical preoccupations proper to this tradition. To these preoccupations should be added a partiality for computations and genealogies. Its characteristic vocabulary and its generally abstract and redundant style make it easy to recognise. This is the tradition of the priests of the Temple of Jerusalem; it preserves ancient elements, but was codified only during the Exile and not imposed on the Pentateuch until after the return; several editorial layers can be detected. It is hard to tell whether this Priestly tradition ever existed as an independent work of literature, or whether, as seems more likely, one or more editors representative of this tradition added elements from it to traditions already existing, thus giving the Pentateuch its final form.

In the Book of Genesis, it is not difficult to recognise and follow the threads of the three traditions: Yahwistic, Elohistic, Priestly. After Genesis, the Priestly tradition is easy to pick out, especially at the end of Exodus, in the whole of Leviticus and in large sections of Numbers; but it is difficult to decide which part of the remainder belongs to the Yahwistic tradition and which to the Elohistic. After Numbers, and until the original concluding chapters of Deuteronomy, ch. 31 and 34, all three traditions disappear and are replaced by a single tradition: the Deuteronomic. This is characterised by a most distinctive style, ample and rhetorical, in which certain easily recognised formulae recur again and again and in which the same teaching is constantly reaffirmed: that of all the nations in the world, God has, out of pure love, chosen Israel to be his people, but this choice and the pact ratifying it are conditional on Israel's exclusive allegiance to this God and to the prescribed worship to be offered to him in one single sanctuary. Deuteronomy is the culmination of a tradition related to the Elohistic one and to the prophetic movement, and its influence is already discernible in relatively ancient texts. It may be that the nucleus of Deuteronomy represents northern custom as introduced into Judah by Levites after the fall of Samaria. The Code of Law, already perhaps framed in a discourse of Moses, was stored away in the Temple of Jerusalem. There it was rediscovered during the reign of Josiah and, when promulgated, contributed to the religious reforms of that time. It was re-edited at the beginning of the Exile.

Given these various bodies of tradition, the Pentateuch grew by a series of stages, but it is hard to give a firm date for any of them. The Yahwistic and Elohistic traditions were combined in Judah towards the end of the monarchical period, possibly during the reign of Hezekiah, when we know from Pr 25:1 that ancient literary works were being collected. Before the end of the Exile, Deuteronomy, regarded as a code of law laid down by Moses in Moab, was inserted between the end of Numbers and the accounts of the commissioning of Joshua and the death of Moses, Dt 31 and 34. Possibly the addition of the Priestly tradition or, alternatively, the intervention of the first Priestly editors, occurred shortly afterwards. Be that as it may, the 'Law of Moses' brought back from Babylon by Ezra seems to represent the whole Pentateuch already virtually in its final form.

The relationship between the Pentateuch and the biblical books which follow it, has given rise to contradictory hypotheses. For a long time now, some critics have postulated a 'Hexateuch', that is to say, a work in six books, supposedly containing also Joshua and the beginning of Judges. They detect the continuation of the three sources, J, E, P, in these books and, further, argue that the theme of the 'promise', recurring so often in the narratives of the Pentateuch, requires that similar narratives must have also shown how that promise was fulfilled: in the Conquest of the Promised Land. According to this theory, the Book of Joshua has been detached from its original context, to become the first of the historical books. More recent critics, however, now talk of a 'Tetrateuch', that is to say, a work in four books, not containing Deuteronomy. According to them, Deuteronomy was originally designed to be the introduction to an immense 'Deuteronomic history' running to the end of the Book of Kings. Deuteronomy was perhaps separated from its context when it was decided to gather everything concerning the person and activities of Moses into a single collection, our present Pentateuch. This second opinion is the one which, with reservations, we adopt in the Introduction to the historical books, and which serves as basis for some of the notes. Nonetheless, it is only a theory, as is its rival theory of a Hexateuch.

There is a great deal of uncertainty, therefore, about the way in which the Pentateuch was composed. The process itself lasted for at least six hundred years and reflects changes in the national and religious life of Israel, though the process seems to have been remarkably homogeneous. We have already said that the narrative traditions took shape during the period when the Israelites were becoming aware of themselves as a nation. The same may be said, more or less, about the legislative sections: these consist of civil and religious law, which developed as the community developed which it was meant to govern, but had origins as remote as those of the people themselves. There was a religious basis for this continuity: faith in Yahweh had cemented the unity of the nation, and that same faith united the varying strands of tradition. Now, the beginnings of Yahwistic religion were dominated by the personality of Moses. Moses initiated the people into that religion and he was their first law-giver. Earlier traditions that converge on him and memories of what happened under his leadership together went to make the national epic. The Mosaic religion set its enduring seal on the faith and practices of the nation; the Mosaic law remained its standard. The modifications required by changing conditions interpreted his mind and became invested with his authority. It does not particularly matter if we cannot attribute the writing of any specific text in the Pentateuch to him, since he is the central personality in it and Jewish tradition was fully justified in calling the Pentateuch the book of the Law of Moses.

From such traditions it would be unreasonable to expect the minute precision of a modern historian: they are not lifeless manuscripts but the living heritage of a nation whose spirit of unity they nourish and whose faith they sustain. But it would be equally unreasonable to refuse them any credence on the grounds that this precision is lacking.

The first eleven chapters of Genesis must be considered separately. They give a description in popular style of the origin of the human race; in a simple, pictorial way suited to the mentality of unsophisticated people, they declare the fundamental truths on which the plan of salvation rests. These truths are: the creation by God at the beginning of time, God's special intervention in the making of man and woman, the unity of the human race, the sin of our first parents, the fall from divine favour and the penalties which their descendants would inherit in consequence of sin. All these are truths which have their bearing on theological doctrine and which are guaranteed by the authority of Scripture; but they are also facts, although we cannot know their nature, as they are presented to us in a mythological form consistent with the mentality of their time and place of origin.

The story of the patriarchs is primarily a family history: a collection of memories handed down about Abraham, Isaac, Jacob and Joseph. It is also a popular history: it lingers over personal anecdotes and piquant details, making no attempt to situate its narratives in a wider historical context. Stories now attached to one great ancestor may well originally have been told of another, and other historical outlines blurred in the course of oral transmission. And lastly, it is history written from a religious standpoint: each turning-point of the story is signalised by a divine intervention, and the hand of Providence is seen in each event—a theological outlook which disregards the play of secondary causes. Moreover, the facts are introduced, explained and grouped together, to demonstrate a religious thesis: there is one God, he has trained one people and given this people one country; this God is Yahweh, this people is Israel and this country is the Holy Land. Nevertheless, the narratives are historical, in the sense that they relate, in their own way, to actual events, and that they give a faithful picture of the origin and migrations of the ancestors of Israel, of their geographical and racial background, of their moral and religious way of life. The old suspicious attitude towards these narratives has had to be abandoned under pressure of recent discoveries made by historians and archaeologists of the Near East.

The events described in Exodus and Numbers, and referred to in the first chapters of Deuteronomy, take up the story at a very much later period: they begin with the birth of Moses and end with his death. They cover the Exodus from Egypt, the halt at Sinai, the journey to Kadesh, the passage through Transjordan and the settlement on the Plains of Moab. If we deny the historicity of these facts and of the person of Moses, the subsequent history of Israel, its loyalty to Yahwism and its attachment to the Law, defy explanation. At the same time, we cannot but recognise that the importance of these recollections to the people's life, and the way these were echoed in their rituals, endowed the narratives with the proportions of a national epic (e.g. the crossing of the Sea of Reeds) and sometimes of a liturgy (e.g. the Passover). The historical reality behind the biblical figure of Moses remains shadowy. Israel, having become a people, thus enters world history and, although no ancient document mentions it at this point, except for one obscure allusion on the stele of Pharaoh Merneptah, what the Bible says about it is in broad agreement with what texts and archaeology tell us about invasions of Egypt by groups of Semites, about Egyptian administration in the Delta, and about political conditions in Transjordan.

The task of the modern historian is to test these biblical data against the facts of general history. With reservations dictated by the insufficiency of biblical indications and the uncertainty of extra-biblical chronology, we may say that Abraham was living in Canaan in about 1850 BC, that Joseph was active in Egypt and that other 'sons of Jacob' joined him there a little after 1700 BC, though it now seems certain that not all the Hebrew tribes went down to Egypt, see Introduction to Joshua. For the date of the Exodus, we cannot rely on the chronological information of 1 K 6:1 and Jg 11:26, which is secondary and produced by artificial computations. But the Bible does contain one decisive piece of information: according to the ancient text in Ex 1:1, the Hebrews worked on the construction of the store-cities of Pithom and Rameses. The Exodus, therefore, took place later than the accession of Rameses II, who founded the city of that name. Building on a grand scale began there at the very outset of his reign and it is probable that the departure of the group led by Moses occurred in the first half or about the middle of this long reign (1290–1224), that is to say, in about 1250 BC or a little before. This was, probably, only one of several groups of Hebrews who went up from Egypt to Canaan at about this time and later united into the 'twelve tribes'. Given the biblical tradition that the Israelites remained in the desert for a whole generation, their settlement of Transjordan should be dated to about 1225 BC. These dates are consistent with general historical information about the residence of the pharaohs of the XIXth Dynasty in the Nile Delta, the weakening of Egyptian control over Syria-Palestine at the end of the reign of Rameses II, and the troubled times throughout the Middle East at the end of the thirteenth century BC. They also agree with archaeological information on the beginnings of the Iron Age, which coincide with the Israelite settlement of Canaan.

§4 The Laws

In the Jewish Bible, the Pentateuch is called the Law, the torah, and indeed it embodies that whole complex of regulations governing the nation's moral, social and religious life. To the modern mind, the most remarkable feature of this legislation is its religious character. This quality is also to be found in certain other codes of the ancient East; but we nowhere find a body of law in which the sacred so pervades the profane: in Israel, the Law is dictated by God, it regulates people's duties towards God, its prescriptions are motivated by religious considerations. For the moral prescriptions that make up the Decalogue or for the ritual laws of Leviticus, this may seem natural enough; what is more significant is that civil and criminal laws should be mixed up with religious precepts in the same corpus and the whole set out as the charter of the covenant with Yahweh. Naturally enough, the promulgation of these laws is attached to the narratives of what happened in the desert where that covenant was struck.

Since laws are made only to be applied, these had to be adapted to changing conditions of place and time. This explains why, in the groups we are about to consider, we find ingredients of great antiquity side by side with formulations or provisions which reflect the preoccupations of a later age. Furthermore, in legislative matters, Israel was inevitably influenced by neighbouring cultures. Certain prescriptions in the Code of the Covenant and in the Deuteronomic Code have remarkable counterparts in the Mesopotamian Codes, in the Collection of Assyrian Laws and in the Hittite Code. The similarities are due not to direct borrowing, but either to the influence of foreign legal codes, or to customary law more or less common to the peoples of the ancient Middle East. Moreover, after the Exodus, Canaanite practice exerted a strong influence on the formulation of laws and on the pattern of ritual worship.

The Decalogue, or the 'Ten Words' inscribed on the tablets at Sinai, lays down the fundamental Law—which is at once moral and religious—of the covenant. It is recorded in two places, Ex 20:2–17 and Dt 5:6–18, with not inconsiderable textual differences; these two texts derive from a primitive, shorter form against the Mosaic origin of which there is no cogent argument.

The (Elohistic) Code of the Covenant, Ex 20:22–23:33 (or more precisely, Ex 20:24–23:9), though inserted between the Decalogue and the end of the Sinaitic covenant, reflects social conditions later than those of the period of Moses. It is the legal code of a community of shepherds and peasants, and the importance it attaches to work-animals, to the raising of crops and vines, and to houses, indicates that a settled, as opposed to nomadic, way of life has already been adopted for some time. Only then was it possible for Israel to know and practise the customary law, from which this code derives so much of its material, and which accounts for exact parallels found in the Mesopotamian Codes. The Code of the Covenant, however, is permeated with the spirit of Yahwism, frequently in reaction against Canaanite culture. It is a collection, unsystematically arranged, of precepts grouped together either by subject-matter or by phrasing, the latter being sometimes 'casuistic' or conditional, and sometimes 'apodeictic' or imperative. The collection originally had an independent existence. It certainly pre-dates Deuteronomy, since this book draws on it; it contains no reference to the institutions of the monarchy and may therefore date back to the period of the Judges. It had already been inserted into the accounts of Sinai before Deuteronomy was composed.

The Deuteronomic Code, Dt 12:1–26:15, forms the central part of the Book of Deuteronomy, the characteristics and literary history of which have been described above. It re-uses part of the laws of the Code of the Covenant, but adapts them to the changes in economic and social life; thus, for the remission of debts and the statute of slaves, compare Dt 15:1–11 with Ex 23:10–11; Dt 15:12–18 with Ex 21:2–11. Even so, from its very first precept, it is in conflict with the Code of the Covenant on one important point: the latter authorised the existence of a large number of sanctuaries, Ex 20:24, whereas Deuteronomy imposes the law that there shall be only one place of worship, Dt 12:2–12; and this centralisation in its turn imposes modifications on the ancient rules governing sacrifices, tithes and festivals. The Deuteronomic Code also contains regulations not to be found in the Code of the Covenant, some of them archaic, derived from unknown sources. But what is proper to itself, indicative of changing social conditions, is its concern for the protection of the weak, the constant insistence on God's rights over his country and over his people, and the hortatory tone pervading these legal prescriptions.

Although Leviticus was not given its final form until after the Exile, it contains elements of great antiquity: for example, the dietary laws, ch. 11, and the regulations governing ritual purity, ch. 13–15, while the late ceremonial for the Great Day of Expiation, ch. 16, preserves an ancient purification ritual, overlaid by a highly developed concept of sin. Ch. 17–26 form a unity commonly known as the Law of Holiness, which originally existed independently of the Pentateuch. This Law is a collection of various elements, some of which may go back to nomadic times, for instance ch. 18, some still pre-exilic, and some even later. The first collection was made in Jerusalem shortly before the Exile and may have been known to Ezekiel, who exhibits many points of contact in language and thought with the Law of Holiness. But it was published only during the Exile, being inserted in the Pentateuch later by Priestly editors who adapted it to the rest of the material which they had to hand.

The religion of the Old Testament, like that of the New, is a historical religion: it is based on a divine revelation made to definite individuals at definite times and in definite circumstances, on the intervention of God at specific moments in the development of humanity. The Pentateuch, tracing the history of God's relationship with the world, is the foundation stone of the Jewish religion; it became essentially the canonical book, the Law, of Judaism.

In the Pentateuch, the Israelite found the explanation of his destiny. Not only did he find, in the opening chapters of Genesis, an answer to questions shared with every human being: the meaning of the world and of life, the problem of suffering and death, but he also found an answer to his own particular question: How is it that Yahweh, the only God, is the God of Israel; that among all the nations of the earth Israel should be his people? Because Israel received the divine promise.

The Pentateuch is the book of promises: the promise made to Adam and Eve after their Fall (the 'Proto-evangel', or first good news of the salvation to come), the promise of a new order of things made to Noah after the Flood and, above all, the promise made to Abraham. The promise made to him is renewed to Isaac and Jacob and embraces all their descendants. The promise is immediately concerned with owning the country where the patriarchs lived, the Promised Land, but it implies more than this: it means that a special and unique relationship exists between Israel and the God of the Ancestors.

For Yahweh called Abraham, and in this call the choice of Israel was prefigured. By an act of free choice, by a loving plan conceived from the creation of the world and pursued despite all human infidelity, Yahweh made the descendants of Abraham into a nation, and made that nation his nation.

The choice and the promise were ratified by a covenant. If the Pentateuch is the book of promises, it is also the book of covenants. There is already a tacit covenant with Adam; there is an explicit covenant with Noah, with Abraham, and finally—through the mediation of Moses—with the whole nation. It is not a pact concluded between equals, since God has no need of pacts and the initiative lies wholly with him; nevertheless, he enters into it, in a certain sense binding himself by the promises which he makes. But in return he demands loyalty from his people; sin, for Israel, is rejection of this loyalty, since this breaks the bond created by God out of pure love.

God himself defines the terms of this fidelity by legislating for the nation which he has chosen. His Law instructs his people in their duties, regulates their behaviour in conformity to the divine will and, by safeguarding the covenant, paves the way for the fulfilment of the promises.

The Promise, the Choice, the Covenant, the Law—these are the golden threads, the warp and woof of the Pentateuch. They run throughout the rest of the Old Testament too. For the Pentateuch is not complete in itself: it tells of promise but not of fulfilment, since it ends before the entry into the Promised Land. It had to remain open-ended, since it was proffering both hope and constraint—hope in the promises, which the conquest of Canaan will apparently fulfil, Jos 23, but which the sins of the people will vitiate, and which the exiles in Babylon will once again call to mind; constraint, by virtue of an ever-exacting Law, set among the Israelites for all time as a witness against them, Dt 31:26.

This lasted until the coming of Christ, the goal in which this salvation-history culminates and by which its obscurities are dispelled. Paul explains the meaning of this, particularly in Ga 3:15–29. Christ concluded a new covenant, prefigured by the old ones, this time with Christians, made heirs of Abraham by faith. The function of the Law had been to safeguard the promises—like a tutor or nursemaid leading people to Christ, in whom the promises are now fulfilled.

The Christian is no longer under tutelage, but is freed from the observances of the Law, though not from its religious and moral teaching. For Christ did not come to do away with the Law, he came to bring it to perfection, Mt 5:17. The New Testament does not cancel the Old but extends it. Not only does the Church recognise that the realities of the New Law (the sacrifice of Christ, baptism, Easter) are prefigured in the great events of Patriarchal and Mosaic times and in the festivals and rituals of the desert (the sacrifice of Isaac, the crossing of the Sea of Reeds, the Passover), but Christian religion also requires the same fundamental attitude as that prescribed for the Israelites in the stories and laws of the Pentateuch. Furthermore, each individual soul on its journey to God must pass through those same stages of detachment, trial and purification, through which the chosen people had to pass; and hence, can derive instruction from the lessons experienced by them.

What method should we follow in reading the Pentateuch? Start by taking the narratives in the order in which they occur. Genesis, after contrasting the goodness of God the Creator with the ingratitude of sinful humanity, shows, in the stories of the patriarchs, what reward is accorded to faith. Exodus prefigures our own redemption. Numbers represents the time of trial, when God instructs and punishes his children. Leviticus can be read most profitably in conjunction with the concluding chapters of Ezekiel or after the books of Ezra and Nehemiah; it is true that the one sacrifice of Christ has abrogated the Temple ceremonial, but Leviticus also insists on purity and holiness in those who serve God—and this is a lesson for all times. Deuteronomy may profitably be read with Jeremiah, who of all the prophets is closest to this book in time as in spirit.

GENESIS

I: THE ORIGIN OF THE WORLD AND OF THE HUMAN RACE

A: THE CREATION AND THE FALL

The creation of the world [a] 2:4–25

1, 2 1 In the beginning God created heaven and earth. [b] ·Now the earth was a formless void, [c] there was darkness over the deep, with a divine wind [d] sweeping over the waters. Jb 38–39 Ps 8;104 Pr 8:22–31 ↗Jn 1:1–3 Col 1:15–17 Heb 1:2–3

3, 4 God said, 'Let there be light,' and there was light. ·God saw that light was good, Jn 8:12b• 2 Co 4:6

5 and God divided light from darkness. [e] ·God called light 'day', and darkness he called 'night'. Evening came and morning came: the first day.

6 God said, 'Let there be a vault [f] through the middle of the waters to divide the 7 waters in two.' And so it was. ·God made [g] the vault, and it divided the waters

8 under the vault from the waters above the vault. ·God called the vault 'heaven'. Evening came and morning came: the second day.

9 God said, 'Let the waters under heaven come together into a single mass, [h] and 7:11b Pr 8:28

10 let dry land appear.' And so it was. ·God called the dry land 'earth' and the mass of waters 'seas', and God saw that it was good.

11 God said, 'Let the earth produce vegetation: seed-bearing plants, and fruit trees on earth, bearing fruit with their seed inside, each corresponding to its own

12 species.' And so it was. ·The earth produced vegetation: the various kinds of seed-bearing plants and the fruit trees with seed inside, each corresponding to its 13 own species. God saw that it was good. ·Evening came and morning came: the third day.

1 a. This narrative, ascribed to the Priestly source, is less concrete and more theological than that which follows, 2:4b–25; it aims at a complete logical classification of beings whose creation is deliberately fitted into the framework of a week which closes with the Sabbath day of rest. These beings come into existence at God's command, in ascending order of dignity: man, God's image and creation's king, comes last. The text makes use of the primitive science of its day. It would be a mistake to seek points of agreement between this schematic presentation and the data of modern science. Using a scenario familiar in the polytheistic myths of the ancient near east, the narrative conveys a revelation of one, transcendent God, existing before the world which he created—a revelation valid for all time.

b. Alternatively, 'When God began creating heaven and earth, the earth being then a formless void, with darkness over the deep, and a divine wind sweeping over the waters, God said . . .' Both translations are grammatically possible; the one we retain here, with all the ancient versions, gives a more coherent rendering of the text. The narrative begins only at v. 2; v. 1 is a title, corresponding to the end of 2:4a. 'Heaven and earth' are the ordered universe, the result of the creation. The latter is expressed by the verb bara' which is reserved for the creative activity of God, as distinct from productive human activity. It would be wrong to read the metaphysical concept of 'creation from nothingness' into the text, for this was not to be formulated earlier than 2 M 7:28, although the text does affirm that the world did have a beginning: the creation was not an atemporal myth but an integral part of history, and its absolute beginning.

c. In Hebrew tohu and bohu, 'trackless waste and emptiness'. With the 'darkness over the deep', the 'wind' and the 'waters', these negative images formed the basis for the later concept of creation ex nihilo.

d. This is not a reference to the Spirit of God and his part in the creation. The creation was effected by the 'word' of God, vv. 3 seq. or by his 'act', vv. 7, 16, 25, 26.

e. Light was one of God's creations; darkness, being negative, was not. The creation of light is mentioned first, since the succession of days and nights is to be the frame in which the work of creation takes place.

f. For the ancient Semites the seeming vault of the sky (the 'firmament') was a solid dome holding the upper waters in check; the waters of the Flood poured down through apertures in it, 7:11.

g. To creation by word, 'God said', succeeds creation by act, 'God made' the firmament and the celestial bodies, v. 16, the animals on earth, v. 25, and man, v. 26. In this way the Priestly author integrates into his own more spiritual concept of the creation an ancient tradition parallel to that of the second account, 2:4b–25, in which God 'made' heaven, earth, man and animals.

Ezk 47:1 Jn 4:1a Rv 22:1–2

i. Their names are omitted deliberately: Sun and Moon, deified by all the neighbouring peoples, are here no more than lamps that light the earth and regulate the calendar.

j. 'creeping' or 'gliding', vv. 20–21, or 'moving', v. 28. Here, snakes, lizards, insects and small animals.

k. It is possible that this plural form implies a discussion between God and his heavenly court (the angels, see 3:5, 22); our text was thus understood by the Gk version of Ps 8:5 (quoted in Heb 2:7). Alternatively, the plural expresses the majesty and fullness of God's being; the common name for God in Hebrew is elohim, a plural form.

l. Collective noun, hence the plural 'be masters of'.

m. 'likeness' appears to weaken the force of 'image' by excluding the idea of equality. 'Image' is a concrete term implying a physical resemblance like that between Adam and his son, 5:3. This relationship with God marks off human beings from the animals; moreover, it involves a general similarity of nature: intellect, will, authority. It paves the way for a higher revelation: the human share in the divine nature by virtue of grace.

n. 'all the wild animals' Syr.; 'the whole earth' Hebr.

o. Description of a golden age when human beings and beasts were at peace with each other, having plants for their food. 9:3 marks the beginning of a new era.

2 a. The Sabbath (shabbat) is of divine institution: on that day God himself rested (shabat). The word shabbat, however, is avoided here since, according to the Priestly author, the Sabbath was not imposed until the giving of the law on Sinai, when it then became the sign of the covenant, Ex 31:12–17. Even at the creation, however, God set an example which must be followed, Ex 20:11; 31:17.

b. The Hebr. word means primarily 'lineage', hence the history of an ancestor and his line, see 6:9; 25:19; 37:2. By the use of the word here, the creation is meant to be taken out of the dimension of myth and made the first historical event. It was not, as had been the case in Sumer and Egypt, a series of heavenly events.

c. Section 2:4[b]–3:24 belongs to the Yahwistic source. It is not, as has often been said, a 'second creation narrative', followed by a 'narrative of the fall', but consists of two narratives put together and drawing on various traditions: an account of the creation of man, as distinct from the creation of the world, which is made complete only by the creation of woman and the appearance of the first human couple, 2:4[b]–8, 18–24; an account of the lost paradise, the fall and consequent punishment, beginning at 2:9–17 and continued in 3:1–24.

d. Man, 'adam, comes from the ground, 'adamah, see 3:19. This collective noun was to become the proper name of the first human being, Adam, 4:25; 5:1, 3.

e. The word is nephesh, meaning a being animated by the breath of life (manifested also by the 'spirit' ruah, 6:17f; Is 11:2c), see Ps 6:4c.

f. 'Garden' is translated 'paradise' in the Gk version and the translation has become traditional. 'Eden' is a geographical name but the place cannot be identified; it may originally have meant 'open wastes'. The Israelites, however, understood the word to mean 'enjoyment', deriving it from the Hebr. root 'dn. The distinction between Eden and the garden, made clear here and at v. 10, later becomes blurred: we read of the 'garden of Eden', v. 15; 3:23, 24. In Ezk 28:13 and 31:9, Eden is the 'garden of God', and in Is 51:3, Eden, the 'garden of Yahweh' is contrasted with the desert and the plain.

g. A symbol of immortality, see 3:22g. On the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, see v. 17j.

h. vv. 10–14 are a parenthesis, probably inserted by the Yahwist himself, relying on ancient geographical ideas about the configuration of the world. He intends not to identify the place of the garden of Eden but to show that the great rivers which form the vital arteries of the four regions of the world have their origin in paradise. It is no surprise that this geography is incoherent. The Tigris and Euphrates are well known, and their source is in the mountains of Armenia, but Pishon and Gihon are unknown. Havilah, according to 10:29, is a region of Arabia, and Cush elsewhere in the OT designates Ethiopia; but there is no certainty that the two names are here intended in their usual sense.

i. An aromatic gum.

j. This knowledge is a privilege which God reserves to himself and which man, by sinning, will usurp, 3:5, 22. Hence it does not mean omniscience, which fallen creatures do not possess; nor is it moral discrimination, for unfallen man already had it and God could not refuse it to a rational being. It is the power of deciding for himself what is good and what is evil and of acting accordingly, a claim to complete moral independence by which man refuses to recognise his status as a created being, see Is 5:20. The first sin was an attack on God's sovereignty, a sin of pride. This rebellion is described in concrete terms as the transgression of an express command of God for which the text uses the image of a forbidden fruit.

k. The same expression is used in laws and verdicts envisaging the death penalty. Eating the fruit did not entail instant death: Adam and Eve survived after doing so, and the condemnation at 3:16–19 speaks of death as only the end of a miserable life. Sin, symbolised by the eating of the fruit, deserves death: the text does not say more, see 3:3.

l. The account of the creation of woman seems to come from an independent tradition. In v. 16, 'man' means man and woman as in 3:24; and 3:1–3, which is the continuation of 2:17, assumes that the command has been given to the man and woman.

m. The flesh (basar) in its primary sense is the 'meat' or muscle of animals and man, 41:2–4; Ex 4:7; Jb 2:5; whence the whole body, Nb 8:7; 1 K 21:27; 2 K 6:30, and hence members of a family group, Gn 2:23; 29:14; 37:27, hence humanity at large or the aggregate of living beings ('all flesh', Gn 6:17, 19; Ps 136:25; Is 40:5–6). The soul, 2:7e; Ps 6:4b, or spirit, Gn 6:17f, animates the flesh, without any addition to it, by giving it life. Often, however, the 'flesh' stands for what is frail and perishable in humanity, 6:3; Ps 56:4; Is 40:6; Jr 17:5; and gradually a certain antithesis between these two aspects of human beings becomes apparent, Ps 78:39; Qo 12:7; Is 31:3; see also Ws 8:19; 9:15f. Hebr. has no word for 'body': the NT later supplies one by developing soma side by side with sarx, see Rm 7:5c, 24*l*.

n. Figurative expression of the close relationship between man and woman, v. 23, which brings them together in marriage, v. 24.

This one at last is bone of my bones and flesh of my flesh!
She is to be called Woman, [a]

o. In Hebrew a play on the words 'ishshah 'woman' and 'ish 'man'.

3 a. The snake here serves as disguise for a being hostile to God and an enemy of the human race; this being is identified with the Adversary or the Devil (Jb 1:6g) in the Book of Wisdom, in the NT and in all Christian tradition.

b. The arousal of lust, as first manifestation of disorder introduced into the harmony of creation.

c. The Hebrew text, by proclaiming that the offspring of the snake is henceforth at enmity with the woman's descendants, opposes the human race to the devil and his 'seed', his posterity, and hints at ultimate victory; it is the first glimmer of salvation, the proto-evangelium. The Gk version has a masculine pronoun ('he', not 'it' will bruise . . .), thus ascribing the victory not to the woman's descendants in general but to one of her sons in particular, and thus providing the basis for the messianic interpretation given by many of the Fathers. The Latin version has a feminine pronoun ('she' will bruise . . .) and since, in the messianic interpretation of our text, the Messiah and his mother appear together, the pronoun has been taken to refer to Mary.

d. The punishment is appropriate to the specific functions of each: the woman suffers as mother and wife, the man as bread-winner. The text does not imply that, without sin, woman would have given birth painlessly or that man would not have had to work with sweat on his brow, any more than that, before sin, snakes had feet, v. 14. Sin upsets the order willed by God: woman, instead of being man's associate and equal, 2:18–24, becomes his seductress, while he for his part reduces her to the role of child-bearer; man, instead of being God's gardener in Eden, has to struggle against a now hostile environment. But the greatest punishment is the loss of intimacy with God, v. 23. These penalties are hereditary. The doctrine of hereditary guilt is not clearly stated until Paul draws his comparison between the solidarity of all in the Saviour Christ and the solidarity of all in sinful Adam, Rm 5.

e. The name Eve, hawwah, is here explained by the root hayah 'to live'.

f. By constituting himself arbiter of what is good or evil, 2:17j, sinful man has usurped God's prerogative.

g. The tree of life comes from a tradition parallel to that of the tree of knowledge. Man is by nature mortal, see v. 19, but aspires to immortality which he will ultimately be granted. The paradise lost by human guilt is the image of the paradise to be recovered by God's grace.

h. Borrowed from Babylonian mythology, see Ex 25:18i.

4 a. This narrative presupposes a developed civilisation, an established form of worship, the existence of other people who might kill Cain, the existence of a clan that would rally to him. It may be that the narrative originally referred not to the children of the first man but to the eponymous ancestor of the Cainites (see Nb 24:21k). The Yahwistic tradition has moved the story back to the period of the beginning, thus giving it a universal significance: after the revolt against God we now have fratricidal strife; against these two evils is directed the double command that sums up the whole Law—the love of God and of neighbour, Mt 22:40.

b. Delight of the first woman who, though the slave of her husband, now finds herself mother of a male child. By a play on words the name Cain (qain) is here connected with the verb qanah, 'to acquire', 'get'.

c. The younger is preferred to the elder. This theme recurs frequently in Gn (Isaac to Ishmael, 21, Jacob to Esau, 25:23; 27, Rachel to Leah, 29:15–30, and also the children of these last) and throughout the OT, 1 S 16:12; 1 K 2:15. Such preference demonstrates the freedom of God's choice, his contempt for earthly standards of greatness, and his regard for the lowly.

d. Approximate translation of a corrupt text which seems to describe the temptation which threatens the ill-disposed.

e. 'Let us go out' versions; Hebr. omits.

f. The 'mark of Cain' is not a brand of shame but a protecting sign: it indicates that Cain is member of a clan that will exact blood for blood.

g. The name of this unidentified country recalls the description of Cain as a 'wanderer', nad, in the land of nod.

h. Fragment of Yahwistic genealogy. The same names, varying in form, occur in the Priestly genealogy of Seth between the names of Kenan and Lamech, 5:12–28. This list is somewhat inappropriately attached to Cain son of Adam, doomed to a wandering life, for in it Cain appears as the builder of the first city and ancestor of stock-breeders, musicians, smiths and possibly prostitutes, see v. 22i, who provide the amenities and pleasures of urban life. Such advances are ascribed by the Yahwist to the lineage of Cain the accursed.

i. 'the ancestor of all who work . . .' Targ., see vv. 20–21; 'the forger of all implements' Hebr. The three castes, stock-breeders, musicians and tinkers, are credited with three ancestors whose names are similar and suggest their descendants' occupations: Jabal (ybl 'to lead'), Jubal (yobel 'trumpet'), Tubal (name of a northern race, 10:2, inhabiting a region famous for its deposits of metal). Cain means 'smith' in other semitic languages. Naamah, 'pretty' or 'beloved' may be the ancestress of another 'profession' which the text forbears to mention.

j. This ferocious song, composed in honour of a desert paladin named Lamech, is recorded here as evidence of the increasing ferocity of Cain's descendants.

k. Fragment of another primitive genealogy.

l. The name Seth (Hebr. shet) is here explained by shat 'he has granted'.

m. 'This man was the first' Gk; 'It was then that people first' Hebr. • The Elohistic and Priestly traditions put the revelation of the divine name later, in the Mosaic period, Ex 3:14 (see Ex 3:13g); 6:2 seq.

5 a. This genealogy, from the Priestly tradition, follows on from 2:4[a]. Its purpose is to bridge the gap between Creation and Flood just as Shem's genealogy in 11:10–32 bridges the interval between the Flood and Abraham. Neither history nor chronology is to be looked for here. The names are the fossilised remains of ancient traditions; many of them are to be found also in the Yahwistic catalogue of Cain's descendants, 4:17 seq. In the Samaritan Pentateuch and in the Gk version the numerical data differ considerably from those of the Hebrew text. The earliest patriarchs are said to have enjoyed phenomenal length of life because it was believed that the human span progressively diminished as epoch followed epoch; ages not exceeding 200–600 are found between Noah and Abraham and no more than 100–200 for the Hebrew patriarchs; and this was proportionate to the increase of wickedness (see 6:3 in the Yahwistic tradition), since long life is a blessing from God, Pr 10:27, and is to be one of the privileges of the messianic era, Is 65:20.

b. Likeness to God is therefore a quality of human nature, which the first man passes on to his descendants.

c. 'Enoch lived' Gk-Luc.; Hebr. omits.

d. Enoch is distinguished from the other patriarchs in several ways: his life is shorter but his years number those of the days in a solar year, he therefore attains a perfect age; he 'walks with God' as Noah did, 6:9; like Elijah, 2 K 2:11 seq., he vanishes mysteriously, carried off by God. Enoch has a prominent place in subsequent Jewish tradition: he is held up as a model of piety, Si 44:16; 49:14, and certain apocryphal books bear his name, see Jude vv. 14–15.

e. The v. is a fragment of a Yahwistic tradition inserted in this Priestly context. The root nhm does not in fact explain the name noah; perhaps the passage originally referred to some other name like Menahem.

The corruption of humanity

Yahweh saw that human wickedness was great on earth and that his heart con- 5 trived nothing but wicked schemes all day long. ·Yahweh regretted having made 6 human beings on earth and was grieved at heart. [d] ·And Yahweh said, 'I shall rid 7 the surface of the earth of the human beings whom I created—human and animal, the creeping things and the birds of heaven—for I regret having made them.' ·But 8 Heb 11:7 Noah won Yahweh's favour.

This is the story of Noah: 9

Si 44:17 5:22 Noah was a good man, an upright man among his contemporaries, and he walked with God. ·Noah fathered three sons, Shem, Ham and Japheth. ·God saw 10, 11 that the earth was corrupt and full of lawlessness. ·God looked at the earth: it was 12 corrupt, for corrupt were the ways of all living things on earth.

Preparations for the flood

God said to Noah, 'I have decided that the end has come for all living things, for 13 the earth is full of lawlessness because of human beings. So I am now about to destroy them and the earth. ·Make yourself an ark [e] out of resinous wood. Make it 14 of reeds and caulk it with pitch inside and out. ·This is how to make it: the length of 15 the ark is to be three hundred cubits, its breadth fifty cubits, and its height thirty cubits. ·Make a roof to the ark, building it up to a cubit higher. Put the entrance in 16 the side of the ark, which is to be made with lower, second and third decks.

↗2 P 2:5 'For my part I am going to send the flood, the waters, on earth, to destroy all 17 living things having the breath of life [f] under heaven; everything on earth is to 9:9seq. perish. ·But with you I shall establish my covenant [g] and you will go aboard the 18 ark, yourself, your sons, your wife, and your sons' wives along with you. ·From all 19 living creatures, from all living things, you must take two of each kind aboard the ark, to save their lives with yours; they must be a male and a female. ·Of every 20 species of bird, of every kind of animal and of every kind of creature that creeps along the ground, two must go with you so that their lives may be saved. [h] ·For 21 your part, provide yourself with eatables of all kinds, and lay in a store of them, to serve as food for yourself and them.' ·Noah did this; exactly as God commanded 22 him, he did.

↗Ws 10:4 ↗2 P 2:5 7 Yahweh said to Noah, 'Go aboard the ark, you and all your household, for 1 you alone of your contemporaries do I see before me as an upright man. ·Of 2 Lv 11:1a every clean animal you must take seven pairs, a male and its female; of the unclean animals you must take one pair, a male and its female ·(and of the birds of heaven, 3 seven pairs, a male and its female), to preserve their species throughout the earth.
For in seven days' time I shall make it rain on earth for forty days and forty 4 nights, and I shall wipe every creature I have made off the face of the earth.'
Noah did exactly as Yahweh commanded him. 5

Noah was six hundred years old when the flood came, the waters over the earth. 6

7 Noah with his sons, his wife, and his sons' wives boarded the ark to escape the 8 waters of the flood. ·(Of the clean animals and the animals that are not clean, of 9 the birds and all that creeps along the ground, ·one pair boarded the ark with 10 Noah, one male and one female, as God had commanded Noah.)[a] ·Seven days later the waters of the flood appeared on earth.

11 In the six hundredth year of Noah's life, in the second month, and on the seventeenth day of the month, that very day all the springs of the great deep burst Is 24:18; 44:27 Ps 78:15;104 12 through, and the sluices of heaven opened.[b] ·And heavy rain fell on earth for forty days and forty nights.

13 That very day Noah and his sons Shem, Ham and Japheth boarded the ark, with 14 Noah's wife and the three wives of his sons, ·and with them every species of wild animal, every species of cattle, every species of creeping things that creep along the ground, every species of bird, everything that flies, everything with wings.
15 One pair of all that was alive and had the breath of life boarded the ark with 16 Noah, ·and those that went aboard were a male and female of all that was alive, as God had commanded him.

Then Yahweh shut him in.

The flood

17 The flood lasted forty days on earth. The waters swelled, lifting the ark until it 18 floated off the ground. ·The waters rose, swelling higher above the ground, and 19 the ark drifted away over the waters. ·The waters rose higher and higher above the ground until all the highest mountains under the whole of heaven were submerged.
20 The waters reached their peak fifteen cubits above the submerged mountains.
21 And all living things that stirred on earth perished; birds, cattle, wild animals, all 22 the creatures swarming over the earth, and all human beings. ·Everything with the 23 least breath of life in its nostrils, everything on dry land, died. ·Every living thing on the face of the earth was wiped out, people, animals, creeping things and birds;

6 a. An obscure passage (from the Yahwistic tradition). The author uses a popular story of a race of giants, in Hebr. nephilim, the Titans of eastern legend, born of the union between gods and mortals. The author does not present this episode as a myth nor, on the other hand, does he deliver judgement on its actual occurrence; he records the anecdote of a superhuman race simply to serve as an example of the increase in human wickedness which was to provoke the Flood. Later Judaism and almost all the earliest ecclesiastical writers identify the 'sons of God' with the fallen angels; but from the fourth century onwards, as the idea of angelic natures becomes less material, the Fathers commonly take the 'sons of God' to be Seth's descendants and the 'daughters of men' those of Cain.

b. According to the Yahwistic source this is the maximum henceforth allowed by God; for the Priestly tradition see 5:1a.

c. This section combines two narratives: one Yahwistic which is vivid and picturesque, 6:5–8; 7:1–5, 7–10 (edited), 12, 16[b], 17, 22–23; 8:2[b]–3[a], 6–12, 13[b], 20–22; the other Priestly which is more precise and sophisticated but also more prosaic, 6:9–22; 7:6–11, 13–16[a], 18–21, 24; 8:1–2[a], 3[b]–5, 13[a], 14–19; 9: 1–17. The final editor has left unchanged the two traditional accounts without attempting to smooth out their divergencies of detail. There are several Babylonian stories of the Flood which are in some respects remarkably similar to the biblical narrative. This last does not derive from them but draws on the same source, namely on the memory of one or more disastrous floods in the valley of the Euphrates and Tigris which tradition had enlarged to the dimensions of a worldwide catastrophe. But there is this fundamental difference: the author has used this tradition as a vehicle for teaching eternal truths—that God is just and merciful, that human beings are perverse, that God saves his faithful ones (see Heb 11:7). The Flood is a divine judgement which foreshadows that of the latter days, Mt 24:37 seq.; Lk 17:26 seq., just as Noah's salvation prefigures the saving waters of baptism, 1 P 3:20–21.

d. God's 'regret' is a human way of expressing the fact that tolerance of sin is incompatible with his sanctity (1 S 15:29 warns us that the phrase is not to be taken too literally); but in a far greater number of passages the expression means that God's anger has been appeased and his threat withdrawn, see Jr 26:3.

e. The English word 'ark' comes from the Latin translation arca ('box', 'chest'). • 'resinous wood', approximate translation. • 'reeds' (as in the basket of Ex 2:3) conj.; 'nests' (compartments?) Hebr.

f. The word ruah means primarily the air in motion, whether the breath of the wind, Ex 10:13; Jb 21:18, or breath of the nostrils, Gn 7:15, 22; hence the life force and the thoughts, feelings or passions to which it gives rise, Gn 41:8; 45:27; 1 S 1:15; 1 K 21:5. For human beings, it is a gift from God, 6:3; Nb 16:22; Jb 27:3; Ps 104:29; Qo 12:7; hence the power whereby God acts, whether in creation, Gn 1:2; Jb 33:4; Ps 104:29–30, or in human history, Ex 31:3, particularly through the agency of the prophets, Jg 3:10; Ezk 36:27f, and the Messiah, Is 11:2c; see Rm 1:9e.

g. Not an agreement between equals but God's gracious guarantee offered to his chosen ones. This covenant is to be followed by others: with Abraham, 15; 17; with the whole nation, Ex 19:3c; in anticipation of the 'new covenant' concluded in the fullness of time, Mt 26:28f; Heb 9:15i.

h. Human wickedness has affected the whole of creation, 6:13, and for better or worse the destiny of irrational creatures is now associated with human destiny. The thought is close to that of Paul, Rm 8:19–22.

7 a. An addition combining both narratives: with the Yahwistic tradition it distinguishes clean from unclean animals; with Priestly, it reckons one pair of each.

b. The waters from above and below burst the barriers set by God, 1:7; chaos returned. According to the Yahwistic narrative, torrential rain was the cause of the Flood, 7:4, 12.

they were wiped off the earth and only Noah was left, and those with him in the ark. ·The waters maintained their level on earth for a hundred and fifty days. 24

The flood subsides

8 But God had Noah in mind, and all the wild animals and all the cattle that 1 were with him in the ark. God sent a wind across the earth and the waters began to subside. ·The springs of the deep and the sluices of heaven were stopped 2 up and the heavy rain from heaven was held back. ·Little by little, the waters ebbed 3 from the earth. After a hundred and fifty days the waters fell, ·and in the seventh 4 month, on the seventeenth day of the month, the ark came to rest on the mountains of Ararat. ·The waters gradually fell until the tenth month when, on the first day of 5 the tenth month, the mountain tops appeared.

At the end of forty days Noah opened the window he had made in the ark ·and 6. 7 released a raven, which flew back and forth as it waited for the waters to dry up on earth. ·He then released a dove, to see whether the waters were receding from the 8 surface of the earth. ·But the dove, finding nowhere to perch, returned to him in 9 the ark, for there was water over the whole surface of the earth; putting out his hand he took hold of it and brought it back into the ark with him. ·After waiting 10 seven more days, he again released the dove from the ark. ·In the evening, the 11 dove came back to him and there in its beak was a freshly-picked olive leaf! So Noah realised that the waters were receding from the earth. ·After waiting seven 12 more days, he released the dove, and now it returned to him no more.

It was in the six hundred and first year of Noah's life, [a] in the first month and on 13 the first of the month, that the waters began drying out on earth. Noah lifted back the hatch of the ark and looked out. The surface of the ground was dry!

In the second month, on the twenty-seventh day of the month, the earth 14 was dry.

They disembark

Then God said to Noah, ·'Come out of the ark, you, your wife, your sons, and 15. 16 your sons' wives with you. ·Bring out all the animals with you, all living things, the 17 birds, the cattle and all the creeping things that creep along the ground, for them to 1:22 swarm on earth, for them to breed and multiply on earth.' ·So Noah came out with 18 his sons, his wife, and his sons' wives. ·And all the wild animals, all the cattle, all 19 the birds and all the creeping things that creep along the ground, came out of the ark, one species after another.

Then Noah built an altar to Yahweh and, choosing from all the clean animals 20 and all the clean birds he presented burnt offerings on the altar. ·Yahweh smelt the 21 pleasing smell [b] and said to himself, 'Never again will I curse the earth because of human beings, because their heart contrives evil from their infancy. [c] Never again will I strike down every living thing as I have done.

As long as earth endures: 22 seed-time and harvest,
cold and heat,
summer and winter,
day and night
will never cease.' [d]

The new world order

1:28 9 God blessed Noah and his sons and said to them, 'Breed, multiply and fill the 1 earth. ·Be the terror and the dread of all the animals on land and all the birds 2 of heaven, of everything that moves on land and all the fish of the sea; they are 1:29 placed in your hands. [a] ·Every living thing that moves will be yours to eat, no less 3
Dt 12:15seq. 1 Tm 4:3 than the foliage of the plants. I give you everything, ·with this exception: you must 4
Lv 1:5e not eat flesh with life, that is to say blood, in it. ·And I shall demand account of 5 your life-blood, too. I shall demand it of every animal, and of man. Of man as regards his fellow-man, I shall demand account for human life. Ex 20:13+

6 He who sheds the blood of man, by man shall his blood be shed,
for in the image of God 1:26m was man created. [b] 7 Be fruitful then and multiply, teem over the earth and subdue it!' [c]

8, 9 God spoke as follows to Noah and his sons, •'I am now establishing my covenant [d] 6:18g 10 with you and with your descendants to come, •and with every living creature that was with you: birds, cattle and every wild animal with you; everything that came 11 out of the ark, every living thing on earth. •And I shall maintain my covenant with you: that never again shall all living things be destroyed by the waters of a flood, nor shall there ever again be a flood to devastate the earth.' ↗Si 44:18 ↗Is 54:9–10 12 'And this', God said, 'is the sign of the covenant which I now make between 13 myself and you and every living creature with you for all ages to come: •I now set my bow in the clouds and it will be the sign of the covenant between me and the Si 43:11–12 Ezk 1:28
14 earth. •When I gather the clouds over the earth and the bow appears in the clouds, Rv 4:3 15 I shall recall the covenant between myself and you and every living creature, in a word all living things, and never again will the waters become a flood to destroy all 16 living things. •When the bow is in the clouds I shall see it and call to mind the eternal covenant between God and every living creature on earth, that is, all living things.'
17 'That', God told Noah, 'is the sign of the covenant I have established between myself and all living things on earth.'

C: FROM THE FLOOD TO ABRAHAM

Noah and his sons [e]

18 The sons of Noah who came out of the ark were Shem, Ham and Japheth—Ham
19 being the father of Canaan. •These three were Noah's sons, and from these the 10:6 whole earth was peopled.
20, 21 Noah, a tiller of the soil, was the first to plant the vine. •He drank some of the

b. An anthropomorphism destined to become part of the technical vocabulary of ritual, see Ex 29:18, 25; Lv 1:9, 13; Nb 28:2.

c. The heart is the inward part of a person as opposed to what is visible, and particularly the 'flesh', 2:21m. It is the seat of the faculties and personality, whence proceed thoughts and feelings, words, decisions and actions. God knows it to its depths, be appearances what they may, 1 S 16:7; Ps 17:3; 44:21; Jr 11:20. The heart is the centre of religious awareness and morality, Ps 51:10, 17; Jr 4: 4a; 31:31–33, 31*l*; Ezk 36:26. In the heart is where someone seeks God, Dt 4:29; Ps 105:3; 119:2, 10; listens to him, 1 K 3:9; Si 3:29; Ho 2:16; see Dt 30:14; serves him, 1 S 12:20, 24; praises him, Ps 111:1; loves him, Dt 6:5. The simple, upright, pure heart is the one admitting no reservations, no second thoughts, no hypocrisy in relation to God or human beings; see Ep 1:18r.

d. The laws of nature are permanently re-established. Aware of continuing human wickedness, God nevertheless preserves what he himself has made and, in spite of human sin, will lead it to the goal that he has determined.

9 a. In the beginning man was blessed and was consecrated lord of creation; he is now blessed and consecrated anew, but his rule is tranquil no longer. In this new age man will be at war with the beasts and with his fellows. The peace of Paradise will not return until 'the final days', Is 11:6e.

b. The blood of every creature belongs to God, see Lv 1:5e, but man's in particular because man was made to God's likeness. God will avenge human blood, see above, 4:10, and delegates this office to man himself to be exercised either through the state or, Nb 35:19c, through the individual 'avenger of blood'.

c. 'subdue' redu conj., see 1:28; Hebr. rebu multiply.

d. The covenant with Noah, the sign of which is the rainbow, involves the whole creation. The covenant with Abraham, the sign of which is circumcision, was to be limited to his descendants only, Gn 17. The covenant with Moses was to be confined to Israel alone and entailed corresponding obligations: fidelity to the Law, Ex 19:5; 24:7–8, and to Sabbath observance in particular, Ex 31:16–17.

e. The first two vv. are the Yahwistic introduction to the table of peoples in ch. 10 from the same source. The names and order of the sons of Noah: Shem, Ham and Japheth, are fixed by tradition, see 5:32; 6:10; 7:13; 10:1. The intrusive 'Ham, being the father of Canaan' in v. 18 prepares the way for the narrative in vv. 20–27.

Canaan,[f] saw his father naked and told his two brothers outside. ·Shem and 23
Japheth took a cloak and they both put it over their shoulders, and walking backwards, covered their father's nakedness; they kept their faces turned away, and they did not look at their father naked. ·When Noah awoke from his stupor he 24 learned what his youngest son had done to him, ·and said:[g] 25

Accursed be Canaan,
he shall be his brothers' meanest slave.

He added: 26

Blessed be Yahweh, God of Shem, let Canaan be his slave!
May God make space for Japheth,[h] 27 may he live in the tents of Shem, and let Canaan be his slave!

After the flood[i] Noah lived three hundred and fifty years. ·In all, Noah's life 28, 29 lasted nine hundred and fifty years; then he died.

The peopling of the earth[a]

1 Ch 1:5–23 10 These are the descendants of Noah's sons, Shem, Ham and Japheth, to 1 whom sons were born after the flood:

Japheth's sons: Gomer, Magog, the Medes, Javan, Tubal, Meshech, Tiras. 2 Gomer's sons: Ashkenaz, Riphath, Togarmah. ·Javan's sons: Elishah, Tarshish, 3, 4 the Kittim, the Dananites. ·From these came the dispersal to the islands of the 5 nations.[b]

These were Japheth's sons,[c] in their respective countries, each with its own language, by clan and nation.

Ham's sons: Cush, Mizraim, Put, Canaan. ·Cush's sons: Seba, Havilah, Sabtah, 6, 7
1 K 10:1a Raamah, Sabteca. Raamah's sons: Sheba, Dedan.

Cush fathered Nimrod[d] who was the first potentate on earth. ·He was a mighty 8, 9 hunter in the eyes of Yahweh, hence the saying, 'Like Nimrod, a mighty hunter in the eyes of Yahweh'. ·The mainstays of his empire were Babel, Erech and Accad,[e] 10 all of them in the land of Shinar.[f] ·From this country came Asshur, and he built 11 Nineveh, Rehoboth-Ir, Calah, ·and Resen between Nineveh and Calah (this being 12 the capital).[g]

Mizraim fathered the people of Lud, of Anam, Lehab, Naphtuh, ·Pathros, 13, 14
Casluh and Caphtor, from which the Philistines came.[h]

Canaan fathered Sidon, his first-born, then Heth, ·and the Jebusites, the 15, 16
Amorites, Girgashites, ·Hivites, Arkites, Sinites, ·Arvadites, Zemarites and 17, 18 Hamathites. Later, the Canaanite clans spread out. ·The Canaanite frontier 19 stretched from Sidon all the way to Gerar near Gaza, and all the way to Sodom, Gomorrah, Admah and Zeboiim near Lesha.

These were Ham's sons, by clans and languages, by countries and nations. 20

Shem too fathered sons, being ancestor of all the sons of Eber and Japheth's 21 elder brother.

Shem's sons: Elam, Asshur, Arpachshad, Lud, Aram. ·Aram's sons: Uz, Hul, 22, 23
Gether and Mash.

Arpachshad fathered Shelah, and Shelah fathered Eber. ·To Eber were born 24, 25 two sons: the first was called Peleg, because it was in his time that the earth was divided, and his brother was called Joktan. ·Joktan fathered Almodad, Sheleph, 26
Hazarmaveth, Jerah, ·Hadoram, Uzal, Diklah, ·Obal, Abima-El, Sheba, 27, 28
Ophir, Havilah, Jobab; all these were sons of Joktan. ·They occupied a stretch 29, 30 of country from Mesha all the way to Sephar, the eastern mountain range.

These were Shem's sons, by clans and languages, by countries and nations. 31

32 Such were the clans of Noah's descendants, listed by descent and nation. From them, other nations branched out on earth after the flood. 9:1

The tower of Babel [a]

1 11 The whole world spoke the same language, with the same vocabulary.
2 Now, as people moved eastwards they found a valley in the land of Shinar [b]
3 where they settled. ·They said to one another, 'Come, let us make bricks and bake them in the fire.' For stone they used bricks, and for mortar they used bitumen.
4 'Come,' they said, 'let us build ourselves a city and a tower with its top reaching heaven. [c] Let us make a name for ourselves, so that we do not get scattered all over the world.' Si 40:19

5 Now Yahweh came down to see the city and the tower that the people had built.
6 'So they are all a single people with a single language!' said Yahweh. 'This is only the start of their undertakings! Now nothing they plan to do will be beyond 7 them. ·Come, let us go down and confuse their language there, so that they cannot 8 understand one another.' ·Yahweh scattered them thence all over the world, and 9 they stopped building the city. ·That is why it was called Babel, since there Yahweh confused [d] the language of the whole world; and from there Yahweh scattered them all over the world. 3:22 Is 14:12seq. Jr 51:53 Jn 10:16; 11:52• Col 3:11

The patriarchs after the flood [e]

10 These are Shem's descendants: 1 Ch 1:17–27

f. Ham is not mentioned again and Canaan is the one to be cursed in vv. 25–27, so he was evidently the guilty party. His name stood alone in the original narrative set down by the Yahwist, as being the youngest of Noah's three sons, the order of whom, according to this tradition, was therefore Shem, Japheth, Canaan.

g. The blessings and curses of the patriarchs, see ch. 27 and 49, are effective words addressed to the first ancestor and worked out in his descendants. Canaan's race is to be subject to Shem, ancestor of Abraham and of the Israelites who are to enjoy Yahweh's special protection, and to Japheth whose descendants will expand at Shem's expense. The historical situation seems to have been that which obtained during the reign of Saul and the early reign of David, when the Israelites and Philistines dominated Canaan and when the Philistines had invaded part of Israel's territory.

h. The Hebrew plays on the words yaphet and yapht 'may he extend, enlarge'.

i. The Priestly source is now resumed.

10 a. This ch. draws up a Table of Peoples, in the form of a family tree. The principle behind the classification is not so much racial affinity as historical and geographical relationship. The sons of Japheth inhabit Asia Minor and the Mediterranean islands, the sons of Ham people the lands of the south, Egypt, Ethiopia and Arabia, to which is added Canaan in memory of the time when Egypt dominated that country. In the regions between these two groups live the sons of Shem: Elamites, Assyrians, Aramaeans and the ancestors of the Hebrews. The genealogical tree is Priestly with the exception of some Yahwistic elements (vv. 8–19, 21, 24–30) which somewhat modify the data. This table sums up such knowledge of the inhabited world as would be available in Israel in the eighth to seventh centuries BC, and asserts the unity of the human race which has split into various groups from a common stock. This dispersal is regarded, 10:32, as the result of the blessing mentioned in 9:1; the Yahwistic story of the Tower of Babel takes a less complacent view, 11:1–9; these are two complementary aspects of the one complex subject, namely of the history of a world in which both the power of God and human wickedness play their part.

b. The islands and seaboard of the Mediterranean.

c. These words, omitted by Hebr., are restored in accordance with vv. 20 and 31.

d. A character of popular story (v. 9 records a proverb) derived from a Mesopotamian hero of uncertain identity.

e. Accad: a town situated near the site of Babylon. The name is here used to indicate the southern region of Lower Mesopotamia as opposed to the land of Sumer which lies further south; more commonly it indicates the language and semitic population of the southern region as distinct from the Sumerians.

f. 'all of them' wekullanah conj.; Hebr. 'and Calneh', an unknown town.

g. If this gloss refers to Calah, it may date from the ninth century BC, when Calah (modern Nimrud) became the capital of Assyria. If it refers to Nineveh, it is later than Sennacherib, who established his capital there.

h. The text of the Hebr. places the people of Caphtor after the 'Philistines', i.e. 'the Philistines and Caphtorim'. But it was from Caphtor that the Philistines came originally, Jos 13:2b.

11 a. This Yahwistic narrative gives a different explanation of the diversity of peoples and tongues: sin occured and this was the punishment; it was a sin of overweening pride (v. 4) like that of our first parents, ch. 3. Unity will be restored only in Christ the Saviour, see the Pentecostal gift of tongues, Ac 2:5–12, and the gathering of all the nations in heaven, Rv 7:9–10.

b. Babylonia, see 10:10; Is 11:11; Dn 1:2.

c. Tradition has crystallised round the ruins of one of those high, stepped towers built in ancient Mesopotamia to symbolise the holy mountain and resting-place of the deity. The builders were apparently seeking a means of meeting their god. But the Yahwist sees their project as an act of insensate pride. The theme of the tower has been combined with that of the city, to be a condemnation of urban civilisation, see 4:17h.

d. 'Babel' is here explained by the root bll 'to confuse'; the name actually means 'gate of the god'.

e. vv. 10–27, 31–32 resume the Priestly tradition interrupted after 10:32 and are a continuation of the genealogy in ch. 5. The perspective narrows down to Abraham's direct ancestors.

16:1;17:19–21 no child.

II: THE STORY OF ABRAHAM

↗Ws 10:5
↗Ac 3:25
↗Heb 11:8seq.

The call of Abram [a]

12 Yahweh said to Abram, 'Leave your country, your kindred and your 1 father's house for a country which I shall show you; ·and I shall make you 2 a great nation, I shall bless you and make your name famous; you are to be a blessing!

↗Ac 7:35
↗Ga 3:8

I shall bless those who bless you, 3
and shall curse those who curse you, and all clans on earth will bless themselves by you.' [b]

So Abram went as Yahweh told him, and Lot went with him. Abram was 4 seventy-five years old when he left Haran. ·Abram took his wife Sarai, his nephew 5 Lot, all the possessions they had amassed and the people they had acquired in Haran. They set off for the land of Canaan, and arrived there.

33:18–20 Abram passed through the country as far as the holy place at Shechem, the Oak 6 of Moreh. The Canaanites were in the country at the time. ·Yahweh appeared to 7 13:15;15:18; Abram and said, 'I shall give this country to your progeny.' [c] And there, Abram
17:8;26:3seq. Ac 7:5 built an altar to Yahweh who had appeared to him. ·From there he moved on to 8

Ga 3:16 the mountainous district east of Bethel, where he pitched his tent, with Bethel to 23:1a the west and Ai to the east. There he built an altar to Yahweh and invoked the name of Yahweh. ·Then Abram made his way stage by stage to the Negeb. 9

=20;=26: 1–11

10 There was a famine in the country, and Abram went down to Egypt to stay there
11 for a time, since the famine in the country was severe. ·When he was about to enter Egypt, he said to his wife Sarai, 'Look, I know you are a beautiful woman.
12 When the Egyptians see you they will say, "That is his wife," and they will kill 13 me but leave you alive. ·Therefore please tell them you are my sister, [e] so that they may treat me well because of you and spare my life out of regard for you.' 14 When Abram arrived in Egypt the Egyptians did indeed see that the woman was 15 very beautiful. ·When Pharaoh's officials saw her they sang her praises to Pharaoh 16 and the woman was taken into Pharaoh's household. ·And Abram was very well treated because of her and received flocks, oxen, donkeys, men and women slaves, 17 she-donkeys and camels. ·But Yahweh inflicted severe plagues on Pharaoh and his 18 household because of Abram's wife Sarai. ·So Pharaoh summoned Abram and said, 'What is this you have done to me? Why did you not tell me she was your 19 wife? ·Why did you say, "She is my sister," so that I took her to be my wife? Now, 20 here is your wife. Take her and go!' ·And Pharaoh gave his people orders about him; they sent him on his way with his wife and all his possessions.

Abram and Lot separate

1 13 From Egypt Abram returned to the Negeb with his wife and all he pos-
2 sessed, and Lot with him. ·Abram was very rich in livestock, silver and gold.
3 By stages he went from the Negeb to Bethel, where he had first pitched his tent,
4 between Bethel and Ai, ·at the place where he had formerly erected the altar. 12:8
There Abram invoked the name of Yahweh.
5 Lot, who was travelling with Abram, had flocks and cattle of his own, and tents
6 too. ·The land was not sufficient to accommodate them both at once, for they had 7 too many possessions to be able to live together. ·Dispute broke out between the 36:7
herdsmen of Abram's livestock and those of Lot. (The Canaanites and Perizzites 8 were living in the country at the time.) ·Accordingly Abram said to Lot, 'We do not want discord between us or between my herdsmen and yours, for we are 9 kinsmen. ·Is not the whole land open before you? Go in the opposite direction to me: if you take the left, I will go right; if you take the right, I will go left.'

f. The story of the chosen race is about to begin and the genealogical table becomes more detailed with a view to introducing its two parents, Abram and Sarai, whose names were later changed to Abraham and Sarah, 17:5, 15; it also introduces Nahor, Rebekah's grandfather, 24:24, and Lot, ancestor of the Moabites and Ammonites, 19:30–38. vv. 28–30 are from the Yahwistic tradition.

g. '(he) made them leave' versions; '(they) went with them' Hebr.

h. First stage in the journey to the Promised Land. Ur is in Lower Mesopotamia. Haran lies to the north-west of Mesopotamia. The historicity of this first migration is disputed. It is, however, attested by ancient traditions, in 11:28 and 15:7, edited at a time when Ur had fallen into oblivion. It was nonetheless an important centre at the beginning of the second millennium BC and already had religious and commercial ties with Haran. Hence at least the possibility of this first migration must be admitted, though the mention of the Chaldaeans would be an explanatory detail added in the neo-Babylonian period.

i. Only 145 according to the Samaritan Pentateuch; this would mean that Abraham left Haran only after his father had died (see 11:26 and 12:4); see Ac 7:4.

12 a. Ch. 12–13 are a Yahwistic narrative with some Priestly or editorial additions. • As a result of God's call and promise of posterity Abraham cuts off all earthly ties and with his childless wife, 11:30, sets out for an unknown land. It is Abraham's first act of faith; it will be renewed when the promise is repeated, 15:5–6c, and be put to the test when God asks for the surrender of Isaac who was the fruit of that promise, ch. 22:1a. To Abraham's unquestioning act of faith the chosen people owes its existence and destiny, Heb 11:8–9. Not only Abraham's physical descendants but all who, in virtue of this same faith, become his children will have their share in that destiny, as Paul shows, Rm 4; Ga 3:7.

b. The formula is repeated (with the word 'clan' or 'nation') in 18:18; 22:18; 26:4; 28:14. Its precise meaning is: 'the clans will say to one another: May you be blessed as Abraham was' (see v. 2 and 48:20; Jr 4:2); but Si 44:21, the LXX translation and the NT take it to mean 'In you all nations will be blessed.'

c. The Holy Land is here made over to Abraham.

d. The purpose of this Yahwistic narrative (the same theme recurs in ch. 20, Elohistic, where Sarah figures again, and in 26:1–11, Yahwistic, where the story is told of Rebekah) is to commemorate the beauty of the ancestress of the race, the astuteness of its patriarch, the protection that God afforded them. The story reflects a stage of moral development when a lie was still considered lawful under certain circumstances and when the husband's life meant more than his wife's honour. God was bringing human beings to an appreciation of the moral law but this appreciation was gradual.

e. A custom prevalent in Upper Mesopotamia has been adduced in explanation of this. Among the Hurrian aristocracy of Haran (Abraham's 'native land') a husband might legally adopt his wife as his sister, and the latter then enjoyed greater protection and higher social status. Such seems to have been the case with Sarai, and Abram appears to have boasted about this to the Egyptians, who misunderstood what he meant, v. 19. The biblical author, relating the traditional story, evidently did not understand its true significance either.

Looking round, Lot saw all the Jordan plain,[a] irrigated everywhere—this was 10 before Yahweh destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah—like the garden of Yahweh or the land of Egypt, as far as Zoar.[b] ·So Lot chose all the Jordan plain for himself 11 and moved off eastwards. Thus they parted company: ·Abram settled in the land 12 of Canaan; Lot settled among the cities of the plain, pitching his tents on the outskirts of Sodom. ·Now the people of Sodom were vicious and great sinners 13 against Yahweh.[c]

Yahweh said to Abram after Lot had parted company from him, 'Look all round 14 12:7c from where you are, to north and south, to east and west, ·for all the land within 15 sight I shall give to you and your descendants for ever. ·I shall make your descen- 16 dants like the dust on the ground; when people succeed in counting the specks of dust on the ground, then they will be able to count your descendants too! ·On your 17 feet! Travel the length and breadth of the country, for I mean to give it to you.'

So Abram moved his tent and went to settle at the Oak[d] of Mamre, at Hebron, 18 and there he built an altar to Yahweh.

The campaign of the four great kings[a] king of Elam, and Tidal king of the Goiim, ·made war on Bera king of 2 Sodom, Birsha king of Gomorrah, Shinab king of Admah, Shemeber king of Zeboiim, and the king of Bela (that is, Zoar),[b] ·all the latter joined forces in the 3

Valley of Siddim (now the Salt Sea).[c] ·For twelve years they had been under the 4

Ex 17:8d Amalekites and also the Amorites who lived in Hazazon-Tamar. ·Then the kings 8 Dt 7:1a of Sodom, Gomorrah, Admah, Zeboiim and Bela (that is, Zoar) marched out and engaged them in the Valley of Siddim: ·Chedor-Laomer king of Elam, Tidal king 9 of the Goiim, Amraphel king of Shinar and Arioch king of Ellasar: four kings against five. ·Now there were many bitumen wells in the Valley of Siddim, and in 10 their flight the kings of Sodom and Gomorrah fell into them, while the rest fled into the hills. ·The conquerors seized all the possessions of Sodom and Gomorrah, 11 and all their provisions, and made off. ·They also took Lot (the nephew of Abram) 12 and his possessions and made off; he had been living at Sodom.

A survivor came to tell Abram; and Aner the Hebrew, who was living at the 13 13:18 Oak of the Amorite Mamre, the brother of Eshcol; these were allies of Abram.
When Abram heard that his kinsman had been taken captive, he mustered his 14 retainers born in his own household, numbering three hundred and eighteen, and gave chase as far as Dan. ·He and his retainers deployed against them under cover 15 of dark, defeated them and pursued them as far as Hobah, north of Damascus.
He recaptured all the goods as well as his kinsman Lot and his possessions, 16 together with the women and people.

Melchizedek

When Abram returned from defeating Chedor-Laomer and the kings who had 17 been on his side, the king of Sodom came to meet him in the Valley of Shaveh (that Ps 110:4 is, the Valley of the King).[f] ·Melchizedek king of Salem[g] brought bread and wine; 18
↗Heb 5–7 he was a priest of God Most High. ·He pronounced this blessing:[h] 19

13 a. lit. the 'circle', used here as a topographical name to indicate the sunken river valley reaching to the south of the Dead Sea; the Dead Sea is conceived as not yet existing at the time to which the story refers, see 14:3; 19:24 seq.

b. At the southern end of the Dead Sea, see 19:22.

c. In preparation for 18:20–21; 19:4–11, this is the introduction to a tradition about Lot, originating in Transjordan and centred on the story of Sodom and Gomorrah, ch. 18–19. Originally it was independent of the Abraham cycle. Lot chooses a life of ease and a region where immorality flourishes; for this he will be heavily punished, ch. 19. But Abraham's generosity in leaving his nephew the choice is to be rewarded by a renewal of the promise of 12:7.

d. 'at the Oak', Syr., see 18:1–4; Hebr. has plural, as too at 14:13.

14 a. This chapter does not belong to any of the three great sources of Genesis. Its importance is diversely assessed; some arguing for its antiquity on syntactical grounds and the authenticity of the names Arioch and Tidal; others regarding it as a late imitation of the antique, since the names of the four kings of the East cannot be identified with known personalities and it is historically impossible that Elam should ever have dominated the towns to the south of the Dead Sea or have led a coalition consisting of an Amorite king (Amraphel), a Hurrian king (Arioch) and a Hittite king (Tidal). According to the latter, the story is intended to site Abraham in world history and add military glory to his other impressive attributes.

b. For Sodom and Gomorrah, see ch. 19; for Admah and Zeboiim, Dt 29:22; Ho 11:8.

c. The author represents the Dead Sea as not yet in existence, see 13:10; or else the narrative reflects an awareness that the Valley of Siddim (the name is not met with elsewhere) occupied only what is now the southern part of the Dead Sea, a depression of relatively recent formation, see 19:25g.

d. 'the thirteenth year' versions; 'thirteen years' Hebr.

e. Rephaim, Zuzim (or Zamzumim), Emim, Horites: ancient legendary peoples of Transjordan, see Dt 2:10b and 2:12d; their towns lie at intervals along the highway that goes down towards the Red Sea.

f. Mentioned in 2 S 18:18; according to Josephus it lay within a quarter-mile of Jerusalem.

g. Ps 76:2, the whole subsequent Jewish tradition, and many of the Fathers identify Salem with Jerusalem. Its priest-king Melchizedek (the name is Canaanite, cf. Adoni-Zedek, king of Jerusalem, Jos 10:1) worships the Most High God, El-Elyon, a compound name, each element of which is attested as a name of gods in the Phoenician pantheon. Elyon is used in the Bible (especially Psalms) as a divine title. In this passage, v. 22, El-Elyon is identified with the true God of Abraham. Melchizedek makes a brief and mysterious appearance in the narrative as king of that Jerusalem where Yahweh will choose to dwell, as priest of the Most High before the levitical priesthood was established. Ps 110:4 represents him as a figure of David, who is himself a figure of the Messiah who is both king and priest; the application to Christ's priesthood is worked out in Heb 7. Patristic tradition has developed and enriched this allegorical interpretation: in the bread and wine offered to Abraham it sees an image of the Eucharist and even a foreshadowing of the Eucharistic sacrifice. • Here vv. 18–20 are additional and later than the rest of the ch., Melchizedek being shown with the characteristics of a post-exilic high priest, heir to the prerogatives of the monarch and head of the priesthood, to whom Abraham's descendants pay their tithes (tenth part).

h. A blessing is an effective, 9:25g, and irrevocable, 27:33d; 48:18d, word which, even when pronounced by a man, produces the effect which it expresses, since God confers the blessing, 1:27, 28; 12:2; 28:3–4; Ps 67:1; 128:5. But human beings too in turn bless God, praising his greatness and goodness even in the hope of seeing these confirmed and increasing, 24:48; Ex 18:10; Dt 8:10; 1 S 25:32, 39. Here both types of blessing are brought together. The Israelite liturgy contained both, Nb 6:22; Dt 27:14–26; Ps 103:1–2; 144:1; Dn 2:19–23; see Lk 1:68; 2 Co 1:3; Ep 1:3; 1 P 1:3.

i. Before 'God' we omit 'Yahweh' with Gk and Syr.

15 a. Yahwistic narrative in which perhaps are embedded the earliest recognisable elements of the Elohistic tradition. Abraham's faith is put to the test: there is delay in the fulfilment of the promises which are then renewed and sealed with a covenant. The promise of the country takes first place. To these promises made to the Patriarchs, in which God pledged his compassion and constancy, the NT was later to link the person and work of Jesus Christ, see Ac 2:39z; Rm 4:13f.

b. Text uncertain, v. 3[b], which is additional, gives the general sense. The first time Abram answers God, he does so to express his uncertainty.

Now, as the sun was on the point of setting, a trance fell on Abram, and a deep 12 dark dread [d] descended on him. ·Then Yahweh said to Abram, 'Know this for 13

When the sun had set and it was dark, there appeared a smoking firepot and a 17 flaming torch passing between the animals' pieces. [f] ·That day Yahweh made a 18 covenant with Abram in these terms:

children through her.' [b] And Abram took Sarai's advice.

Thus, after Abram had lived in the land of Canaan for ten years, Sarai took 3
Hagar her Egyptian slave-girl and gave her to Abram as his wife. ·He went to 4 Hagar and she conceived. And once she knew she had conceived, her mistress =21:10–19 counted for nothing in her eyes. ·Then Sarai said to Abram, 'This outrage done to 5 me is your fault! It was I who put my slave-girl into your arms but, now she knows that she has conceived, I count for nothing in her eyes. Yahweh judge between me and you!' ·'Very well,' Abram said to Sarai, 'your slave-girl is at your disposal. 6 Treat her as you think fit.' Sarai accordingly treated her so badly that she ran away from her.

Ex 15:22 The angel of Yahweh [c] found her by a spring in the desert, the spring on the road 7 to Shur. ·He said, 'Hagar, slave-girl of Sarai, where have you come from, and 8 where are you going?' 'I am running away from my mistress Sarai,' she replied.
The angel of Yahweh said to her, 'Go back to your mistress and submit to her.' 9
The angel of Yahweh further said to her, 'I shall make your descendants too 10 numerous to be counted.' ·Then the angel of Yahweh said to her: 11

Now, you have conceived and will bear a son, and you shall name him Ishmael,
for Yahweh has heard [d] your cries of distress.
A wild donkey of a man he will be, 12 his hand against every man, and every man's hand against him, 25:12–18 living his life in defiance of all his kinsmen. [e]

Hagar gave a name to Yahweh who had spoken to her, 'You are El Roi,' by 13

14 which she meant, 'Did I not go on seeing here, after him who sees me?'[f] ·This is why the well is called the well of Lahai Roi; it is between Kadesh and Bered. Ex 33:20i

The covenant and circumcision[a] =15

1 17 When Abram was ninety-nine years old Yahweh appeared to him and said, 9:9d
2 'I am El Shaddai.[b] Live in my presence, be perfect, ·and I shall grant a 5:22,24; 6:9
3 covenant between myself and you, and make you very numerous.' ·And Abram bowed to the ground.

4 God spoke to him as follows, ·'For my part, this is my covenant with you: you
5 will become the father of many nations. ·And you are no longer to be called Ne 9:7 ↗Rm 4:17
Abram; your name is to be Abraham,[c] for I am making you father of many nations.
6 I shall make you exceedingly fertile. I shall make you into nations, and your issue
7 will be kings. ·And I shall maintain my covenant between myself and you, and your descendants after you, generation after generation, as a covenant in perpetuity, to 8 be your God and the God of your descendants after you. ·And to you and to your descendants after you, I shall give the country where you are now immigrants, the 12:7c entire land of Canaan, to own in perpetuity. And I will be their God.'

9 God further said to Abraham, 'You for your part must keep my covenant, you
10 and your descendants after you, generation after generation. ·This is my covenant ↗Rm 4: 11–12 which you must keep between myself and you, and your descendants after you:

c. The faith of Abraham is an act of trust in a promise which, humanly speaking, could never be realised. God acknowledges that this act is worthy of reward (see Dt 24:13; Ps 106:31), accrediting it to Abraham's 'uprightness', namely to that sum of integrity and humble submission which makes someone pleasing to God. Paul uses this text to prove that uprightness depends on faith and not on the works of the Law; but since Abraham's faith was the mainspring of his conduct, the letter of James cites this same text when it condemns 'dead' faith, i.e. faith without the works that spring from it.

d. 'dark' is possibly a gloss intended to explain the rare word for 'darkness' in v. 17.

e. vv. 13–16 are an ancient addition to the Yahwistic narrative.

f. An ancient covenantal ritual (Jr 34:18): the contracting parties passed between the parts of the slaughtered animals and called down on themselves the fate of the victim, should they violate the agreement. The flame symbolises Yahweh (cf. the burning bush, Ex 3:2; the pillar of fire, Ex 13:21; the smoke of Sinai, Ex 19:18); he alone passes between the parts because his covenant is a unilateral pact, a divine initiative, see Gn 9:9d, a solemn promise sealed with an imprecatory oath (his moving between the parts of the animals).

16 a. Yahwistic narrative with some elements from the Priestly source (vv. 1[a], 3, 15–16).

b. According to Mesopotamian law a barren wife could present one of her female slaves to the husband and acknowledge the issue as her own. The same was to happen with Rachel, 30:1–6, and Leah, 30:9–13.

c. In the most ancient texts the angel of Yahweh, 22:11; Ex 3:2; Jg 2:1; etc. or the angel of God, Gn 21:17; 31:11; Ex 14:19, is not a created being distinct from God, Ex 23:20, but God himself in visible form. v. 13 identifies the angel with Yahweh. In other texts the angel of Yahweh is the one who executes God's avenging sentence, see Ex 12:23j; see also Tb 5:4b; Mt 1:20g; Ac 7:38k.

d. The word ishma'el means 'May God hear!' or 'God hears'.

e. Ishmael's descendants are Arabs of the desert who are as intractable and vagrant as these wild creatures, see Jb 39:5–8.

f. 'El roi means 'God of Vision'; the text of Hagar's words is certainly corrupt. Lahai roi may mean: the well 'of the Living One who sees me'. Isaac was to stay there, 24:62; 25:11.

17 a. Another covenant narrative, from the Priestly tradition. The covenant confirms the same promises as in the Yahwistic tradition of ch. 15 but this time imposes obligations of moral perfection, v. 1, a religious relationship with God, vv. 7, 19, and a positive prescription, circumcision. Compare, in the same source, the covenant with Noah, 9:9d.

b. An ancient divine name of the patriarchal period, 28:3; 35:11; 43:14; 48:3; 49:25, preserved mainly in the Priestly tradition, see Ex 6:3, rarely used outside the Pentateuch (except Job). The usual translation 'Almighty God' is inaccurate. The meaning is uncertain; 'God of the Mountain' from Accadian shadu has been suggested; but perhaps 'God of the open wastes' would be preferable, from Hebr. sadeh, and the secondary meaning of the Accadian word. It seems to have been a divine name brought from Upper Mesopotamia by the ancestors of the race.

c. For the ancients a name did not merely indicate but actually made a thing what it was, and a change of name meant a change of destiny, see v. 15 and 35:10. Abram and abraham, it seems, are in fact two dialectal forms of the same name, meaning 'he is great by reason of his father, he is of noble descent'. Here, however, abraham is interpreted on the strength of its assonance with ab hamon, 'father of a multitude'.

d. Circumcision was originally a rite initiatory to marriage and to the life of the clan, 34:14 seq.; Ex 4:24–26; Lv 19:23. Here it becomes a 'sign' which, like the rainbow of Gn 9:16–17, is to remind God of his covenant and human beings of the obligations deriving from belonging to the chosen people. Nevertheless, the legislative texts allude to this injunction only on two occasions, Ex 12:44; Lv 12:3; see also Jos 5:2–8. It is only at the Exile and after that it receives its full prominence, see 1 M 1:63; 2 M 6:10. Paul explains it as the 'seal of the uprightness of faith', Rm 4:11 On the 'circumcision of the heart', see Jr 4:4a.

bought from a foreigner not of your descent. ·Whether born within the household 13 or bought, they must be circumcised. My covenant must be marked in your flesh as a covenant in perpetuity. ·The uncircumcised male, whose foreskin has not been 14 circumcised—that person must be cut off from his people: he has broken my covenant.'

=18:9–15 Furthermore God said to Abraham, 'As regards your wife Sarai, you must not 15 call her Sarai, but Sarah.[e] ·I shall bless her and moreover give you a son by her. I 16 shall bless her and she will become nations: kings of peoples will issue from her.'
18:12;21:6,9 Jn 8:56s Abraham bowed to the ground, and he laughed,[f] thinking to himself, 'Is a child 17 to be born to a man one hundred years old. and will Sarah have a child at the age of ninety?' ·Abraham said to God, 'May Ishmael live in your presence! That will be 18 enough!' ·But God replied, 'Yes, your wife Sarah will bear you a son whom you 19 must name Isaac. And I shall maintain my covenant with him, a covenant in perpetuity, to be his God and the God of his descendants after him.[g] ·For Ishmael 20 too I grant you your request. I hereby bless him and will make him fruitful and 25:13–16 exceedingly numerous. He will be the father of twelve princes, and I shall make him into a great nation. ·But my covenant I shall maintain with Isaac, whom Sarah 21 18:14 will bear you at this time next year.' ·When he had finished speaking to Abraham, 22
God went up from him.

Then Abraham took his son Ishmael, all the slaves born in his household or 23 whom he had bought, in short all the males among the people of Abraham's household, and circumcised their foreskins that same day, as God had said to him.
Abraham was ninety-nine years old when his foreskin was circumcised. ·Ishmael 24, 25 his son was thirteen years old when his foreskin was circumcised. ·Abraham and 26 his son Ishmael were circumcised on the very same day, ·and all the men of his 27 household, those born in the household and those bought from foreigners, were circumcised with him.

The apparition at Mamre[a]

18 Yahweh appeared to him at the Oak of Mamre while he was sitting by the 1 entrance of the tent during the hottest part of the day. ·He looked up, and 2 ↗Heb 13:2 there he saw three men standing near him. As soon as he saw them he ran from the entrance of the tent to greet them, and bowed to the ground.[b] ·'My lord,' he said, 3
'if I find favour with you, please do not pass your servant by. ·Let me have a little 4 water brought, and you can wash your feet and have a rest under the tree. ·Let me 5 fetch a little bread and you can refresh yourselves before going further, now that you have come in your servant's direction.' They replied, 'Do as you say.'

Abraham hurried to the tent and said to Sarah, 'Quick, knead three measures of 6 best flour and make loaves.' ·Then, running to the herd, Abraham took a fine and 7 tender calf and gave it to the servant, who hurried to prepare it. ·Then taking 8 curds, milk and the calf which had been prepared, he laid all before them, and they ate while he remained standing near them under the tree.

=15:2–4 =17:15–21 •↗Rm 9:9 'Where is your wife Sarah?' they asked him. 'She is in the tent,' he replied. 9
Then his guest said, 'I shall come back to you next year, and then your wife Sarah 10 will have a son.' Sarah was listening at the entrance of the tent behind him. ·Now 11 Abraham and Sarah were old, well on in years, and Sarah had ceased to have her monthly periods. ·So Sarah laughed[c] to herself, thinking, 'Now that I am past the 12 age of childbearing, and my husband is an old man, is pleasure to come my way again?' ·But Yahweh asked Abraham, 'Why did Sarah laugh and say, "Am I really 13 Lk 1:37 going to have a child now that I am old?" ·Nothing is impossible for Yahweh. I 14 shall come back to you at the same time next year and Sarah will have a son.'
Sarah said, 'I did not laugh,' lying because she was afraid. But he replied, 'Oh yes, 15 you did.'

Ex 32:11e Jm 5:16 Abraham intercedes for Sodom

From there the men set out and arrived within sight of Sodom, with Abraham 16

17 accompanying them to speed them on their way. ·Now Yahweh had wondered, 18 'Shall I conceal from Abraham what I am going to do, ·as Abraham will become a great and powerful nation and that all nations on earth will bless themselves by 19 him? ·For I have singled him out to command his sons and his family after him to keep the way of Yahweh by doing what is upright and just, so that Yahweh can 20 carry out for Abraham what he has promised him.' ·Then Yahweh said, 'The 21 outcry against Sodom and Gomorrah is so great and their sin is so grave, ·that I shall go down and see whether or not their actions are at all [d] as the outcry reaching me would suggest. Then I shall know.'

Am 3:7
Jn 15:15
12:3b

22 While the men [e] left there and went to Sodom, Yahweh remained in Abraham's
23 presence. ·Abraham stepped forward and said, 'Will you really destroy the upright
24 with the guilty? ·Suppose there are fifty upright people in the city. Will you really 25 destroy it? Will you not spare the place for the sake of the fifty upright in it? [f] ·Do not think of doing such a thing: to put the upright to death with the guilty, so that upright and guilty fare alike! Is the judge of the whole world not to act justly?' [g]
26 Yahweh replied, 'If I find fifty upright people in the city of Sodom, I shall spare the whole place because of them.'

27 Abraham spoke up and said, 'It is presumptuous of me to speak to the Lord, I 28 who am dust and ashes: ·Suppose the fifty upright were five short? Would you destroy the whole city because of five?' 'No,' he replied, 'I will not destroy it if I 29 find forty-five there.' ·Abraham persisted and said, 'Suppose there are forty to be found there?' 'I will not do it,' he replied, 'for the sake of the forty.'

30 Abraham said, 'I hope the Lord will not be angry if I go on: Suppose there are only thirty to be found there?' 'I will not do it,' he replied, 'if I find thirty there.'
31 He said, 'It is presumptuous of me to speak to the Lord: Suppose there are only 32 twenty there?' 'I will not destroy it,' he replied, 'for the sake of the twenty.' ·He said, 'I trust my Lord will not be angry if I speak once more: perhaps there will only be ten.' 'I will not destroy it,' he replied, 'for the sake of the ten.'

Ezk 22:30

33 When he had finished talking to Abraham Yahweh went away, and Abraham returned home. [h]

e. Sarah and sarai are two forms of the same name, which means 'princess': Sarah is to be the mother of kings, v. 16.

f. Abraham's laughter is to be echoed by Sarah's, 18:12, and Ishmael's, 21:9 (see also 21:6); each is an allusion to the name Isaac, abbreviated form of yitzhq-el which means 'May God smile, be kind' or 'God has smiled, has been kind'. Abraham's laughter is a sign not so much of unbelief as of surprise at the extraordinary announcement; his mention of Ishmael, heir-presumptive to the Promise, is an implicit request for reassurance.

g. lit. 'to be his God and that of' with some Gk MSS; Hebr. omits.

18 a. In its definitive form this Yahwistic narrative recounts an apparition of Yahweh (vv. 1, 3, 10 seq. 13, 22) accompanied by two 'men' who, according to 19:1, are angels. As the variants of the Gk and Sam. show, the text is frequently uncertain in its choice of singular or plural. In the three men, whom Abraham addresses in the singular, many of the Fathers of the Church saw a foreshadowing of the mystery of the Trinity, a doctrine not revealed until the NT. The story prepares the way for that in ch. 19, the Yahwist having used and transformed an old legend about the destruction of Sodom in which three divine persons took part. This story formed the nucleus of a Lot cycle, later attached to the Abraham cycle.

b. Not a religious act of adoration but simply a mark of respect. At first, Abraham sees his guests as mere human beings and welcomes them warmly; their superhuman character is only gradually revealed, vv. 2, 9, 13, 14.

c. Allusion to the name Isaac, see 17:17f. Sarah does not yet know who her guest is; in v. 15 she guesses, and is frightened.

d. 'at all' kullah conj.; Hebr. kalah, 'destruction'.

e. i.e. the two 'men', as opposed to Yahweh who stays with Abraham. We shall be told later, 19:1, that they are angels. In the MT the scribes inverted the names of God and Abraham from motives of respect: a human being ought to remain in God's presence and not vice versa.

f. A perennial problem: must the good suffer along with, and because of, the wicked? The conviction of collective responsibility was so strong in ancient Israel that the question does not arise here as to whether the upright may be spared individually. God will, in fact, save Lot and his family, 19:15–16; but the principle of individual responsibility is not deduced until Dt 7:10; 24:16; Jr 31:29–30; Ezk 14:12 seq. and ch. 18, see notes. Abraham, therefore, supposing that all are to share a common destiny, asks that a few upright people may win pardon for the many wicked. Yahweh's answers attest the part the saints have to play in saving the world. But Abraham's bid for mercy does not venture below the number ten. According to Jr 5:1 and Ezk 22:30, God would pardon Jerusalem even if only one upright person could be found there. Finally, in Is 53 it is the suffering of the one servant that is to save the whole race, a prophecy which the NT sees as being fulfilled in Christ.

g. see Rm 3:6. It would be more unjust to condemn the innocent few than to spare the many guilty.

h. Abraham returns the following day to see what has happened, 19:27.

The destruction of Sodom [a]

19 When the two angels reached Sodom in the evening, Lot was sitting at the 1 gate of Sodom. As soon as Lot saw them, he stood up to greet them, and bowed to the ground. ·'My lords,' he said, 'please come down to your servant's 2 house to stay the night and wash your feet. Then you can make an early start on your journey.' 'No,' they said, 'we shall spend the night in the square.' ·But he 3 pressed them so much that they went home with him and entered his house. He prepared a meal for them, baking unleavened bread, and they had supper.

Jg 19:22–24 They had not gone to bed when the house was surrounded by the townspeople, 4 the men of Sodom both young and old, all the people without exception. ·Calling 5 out to Lot they said, 'Where are the men who came to you tonight? Send them out Lv 20:13 to us so that we can have intercourse with them.' [b]

Lot came out to them at the door and, having shut the door behind him, ·said, 6, 7
'Please, brothers, do not be wicked. ·Look, I have two daughters who are virgins. 8
I am ready to send them out to you, for you to treat as you please, [c] but do nothing to these men since they are now under the protection of my roof.' ·But they 9 retorted, 'Stand back! This fellow came here as a foreigner, and now he wants to play the judge. Now we shall treat you worse than them.' Then they forced Lot back and moved forward to break down the door. ·But the men reached out, 10 pulled Lot back into the house with them, and shut the door. ·And they dazzled 11 2 K 6:18 those who were at the door of the house, one and all, with a blinding light, so that they could not find the doorway.

The men said to Lot, 'Have you anyone else here? Your sons, [d] your daughters 12 and all your people in the city, take them away, ·for we are about to destroy this 13 place, since the outcry to Yahweh against those in it has grown so loud that Yahweh has sent us to destroy it.' ·So Lot went off and spoke to his future sons-in-law who 14 were to marry his daughters. 'On your feet!' he said, 'Leave this place, for Yahweh is about to destroy the city.' But his sons-in-law thought he was joking.

When dawn broke the angels urged Lot on, 'On your feet! Take your wife and 15 your two daughters who are here, or you will be swept away in the punishment of the city.' ·And as he hesitated, the men seized his hand and the hands of his wife 16 and his two daughters—Yahweh being merciful to him—and led him out and left him outside the city.

When they had brought him outside, he was told, 'Flee for your life. Do not look 17 Mt 24:15seq. behind you or stop anywhere on the plain. Flee to the hills or you will be swept away.' ·'Oh no, my lord!' Lot said to them, ·'You have already been very good to 18, 19 your servant and shown me even greater love by saving my life, but I cannot flee to the hills, or disaster will overtake me and I shall die. ·That town over there is near 20 enough to flee to, and is small. Let me flee there—after all it is only a small place—and so survive.' ·He replied, 'I grant you this favour too, and will not overthrow 21 the town you speak of. ·Hurry, flee to that one, for I cannot do anything until you 22 reach it.' That is why the town is named Zoar. [e]

The sun rose over the horizon just as Lot was entering Zoar. ·Then Yahweh 23, 24 rained down on Sodom and Gomorrah brimstone and fire of his own sending. [f]
He overthrew those cities and the whole plain, with all the people living in the 25
Ws 10:7 ↗Lk 17:32 cities and everything that grew there. [g] ·But Lot's wife looked back, and was turned 26
into a pillar of salt. [h]

18:16–33 Next morning, Abraham hurried to the place where he had stood before 27
Yahweh, ·and looking towards Sodom and Gomorrah and the whole area of the 28
Is 34:9–10 ↗Rv 14:10–11 plain, he saw the smoke rising from the ground like smoke from a furnace.

Thus it was that, when God destroyed the cities of the plain, he did not forget 29
Abraham and he rescued Lot from the midst of the overthrow, when he overthrew the cities where Lot was living. [i]

The origin of the Moabites and the Ammonites [j]

30 After leaving Zoar Lot settled in the hill country with his two daughters, for he dared not stay at Zoar. He lived in a cave, he and his two daughters.
31 The elder said to the younger, 'Our father is an old man, and there is no one 32 here to marry us in the normal way of the world. ·Come on, let us ply our father with wine and sleep with him. In this way we can preserve the race by our father.'
33 That night they made their father drunk, and the elder slept with her father 34 though he was unaware of her coming to bed or of her leaving. ·The next day the elder said to the younger, 'Last night, I was the one who slept with our father. Let us make him drunk again tonight, and you go and sleep with him. In this way we 35 can preserve the race by our father.' ·They made their father drunk that night too, and the younger went and slept with him, though he was unaware of her coming to 36 bed or of her leaving. ·Both Lot's daughters thus became pregnant by their father.
37 The elder gave birth to a son whom she named Moab; and he is the ancestor of the 38 Moabites of our own times. ·The younger also gave birth to a son whom she named Ben-Ammi; and he is the ancestor of the Bene-Ammon of our own times. [k]

Abraham at Gerar [a] =12:10–20; =26:1–11

1 20 Abraham left there for the region of the Negeb, and settled between 2 Kadesh and Shur. While staying in Gerar, ·Abraham said of his wife Sarah, 3 'She is my sister,' and Abimelech the king of Gerar had Sarah brought to him. ·But God visited Abimelech in a dream one night. 'You are to die,' he told him, 4 'because of the woman you have taken, for she is a married woman.' ·Abimelech, however, had not gone near her; so he said, 'Lord, would you kill someone even if 5 he is upright? [b] ·Did he not tell me himself, "She is my sister"? And she herself
6 said, "He is my brother." I did this with a clear conscience and clean hands.' ·'Yes, I know,' God replied in the dream, 'that you did this with a clear conscience and I myself prevented you from sinning against me. That was why I did not let you 7 touch her. ·Now send the man's wife back; for he is a prophet [c] and can intercede on your behalf for your life. But understand that if you do not send her back, this means death for you and all yours.'
8 Early next morning, Abimelech summoned his full court and told them the 9 whole story, at which the people were very much afraid. ·Then summoning

19 a. This narrative is connected with ch. 18; 18:16–32 leads up to it. The same atmosphere of mystery surrounds the principal figures; the two 'angels' of 19:1 are the 'men' who parted from Yahweh in 18:22 after the visit of the 'three men' to Abraham, 18:2, but in the rest of the chapter (except in v. 15) they are still called 'men'. At times they speak or are spoken to in the plural, at other times the singular is used because they are representatives of Yahweh who does not appear in person. The moral character of Israelite religion and the universal power of Yahweh are already asserted in this ancient text. The dreadful lesson was often recalled, see especially Dt 29:22; Ws 10:6–7; Is 1:9; 13:19; Jr 49:18; 50:40; Am 4:11; Mt 10:15; 11:23–24; Lk 17:28 seq.; 2 P 2:6; Jude 7.

b. The unnatural vice that takes its name from this incident was an abomination to the Israelites, Lv 18:22, and was punished with death, Lv 20:13; but it was rife among their neighbours, Lv 20:23; see Jg 19:22 seq.

c. At that period the honour of a woman was of less account, 12:13, see 12:10d, than the sacred duty of hospitality.

d. Before 'your sons' the Hebr. text actually inserts 'son-in-law', but this is probably a later addition suggested by v. 14.

e. The name Zoar is here related to mitze'ar 'a trifling thing'. The town lay to the south-east of the Dead Sea, 13:10; Dt 34:3; Is 15:5; Jr 48:34. In the Roman period another earthquake occurred and the town was flooded; it was rebuilt higher up the shore and inhabited until the Middle Ages.

f. Here a gloss adds 'from heaven'.

g. The text enables us to locate the catastrophe (an earthquake accompanied by an eruption of gas?) in the southern part of the Dead Sea. The subsidence of the southern half of the Dead Sea bed is known to be recent as geologists reckon, and the whole district is still geologically unstable. The doomed cities, besides Sodom and Gomorrah (Is 1:9, 10; Am 4:11), were Admah and Zeboiim (Gn 14; Dt 29:22; Ho 11:8).

h. A popular explanation of some oddly shaped boulder or column of rock-salt.

i. v. 29 is an editorial addition.

j. This appendix reproduces a Moabite and Ammonite tradition; these peoples may have prided themselves on having such antecedents. Like Tamar, Gn 38, Lot's daughters are not represented as shameless: their ruling motive is to perpetuate the race. v. 31 assumes that Lot and his daughters are the sole survivors of the catastrophe. The story of Sodom, destroyed because of the sins of its inhabitants, may originally have been a Transjordanian parallel to the story of the Flood.

k. Popular etymologies: moab is here explained from me 'ab, 'from a (my) father'; ben 'ammi, 'son of my kinsman', is associated with bene 'ammon, 'the sons of Ammon'.

20 a. An Elohistic doublet of 12:10–20, softened down by several indications of a more mature morality.

b. Text emended: before 'someone . . . upright', we omit 'nation', dittography.

c. In the wider sense: one of privileged standing before God and therefore inviolable, Ps 105:15, and a powerful intercessor, see Nb 11:2; 21:7; Dt 34:10.

Abraham, Abimelech said to him, 'What have you done to us? What wrong have I done you, for you to bring such guilt on me and on my kingdom? You had no right to treat me like this.' •Abimelech then said to Abraham, 'What possessed 10 you to do such a thing?' •'Because', Abraham replied, 'I thought there would be 11 12:13e no fear of God here and that I should be killed for the sake of my wife. •Anyway, 12 she really is my sister, my father's daughter though not my mother's, besides being my wife. •So when God made me wander far from my father's home I said to her, 13
"There is an act of love you can do me: everywhere we go, say of me that I am your brother." '

Abimelech took sheep, cattle, men and women slaves, and presented them to 14
Abraham, and gave him back his wife Sarah. •And Abimelech said, 'Look, my 15 land is open to you. Settle wherever you please.' •To Sarah he said, 'Look, I am 16 giving your brother a thousand pieces of silver. This will allay suspicions about you, as far as all the people round you are concerned; you have been completely vindicated.'[d] •Abraham then interceded with God, and God healed Abimelech, 17 his wife and his slave-girls, so that they could have children,[e] •for Yahweh had 18 made all the women of Abimelech's household barren on account of Sarah, Abraham's wife.

The birth of Isaac[a]

21 Yahweh treated Sarah as he had said, and did what he had promised her. 1
Sarah conceived and bore Abraham a son in his old age, at the time God 2 had promised. •Abraham named the son born to him Isaac, the son to whom Sarah 3 ↗Ac 7:8 had given birth. •Abraham circumcised his son Isaac when he was eight days old, 4
17:12 as God had commanded him. •Abraham was a hundred years old when his son 5
Isaac was born to him. •Sarah said: 6

God has given me cause to laugh!
17:17f All who hear about this will laugh with me![b]

She added: 7

Whoever would have told Abraham that Sarah would nurse children!
Yet I have borne a son in his old age.

=16 The dismissal of Hagar and Ishmael[c]

↗Ga 4:22–31 The child grew and was weaned, and Abraham gave a great banquet on the day 8
Isaac was weaned. •Now Sarah watched the son that Hagar the Egyptian had borne 9 to Abraham, playing[d] with her son Isaac. •'Drive away that slave-girl and her son,' 10 she said to Abraham, 'this slave-girl's son is not to share the inheritance with my son Isaac.' •This greatly distressed Abraham, because the slave girl's child too was 11 his son, •but God said to him, 'Do not distress yourself on account of the boy and 12 your slave-girl. Do whatever Sarah says, for Isaac is the one through whom your ↗Rm 9:7 name will be carried on. •But the slave-girl's son I shall also make into a great 13
↗Heb 11:18 nation, for he too is your child.' •Early next morning, Abraham took some bread 14 and a skin of water and, giving them to Hagar, put the child on her shoulder and sent her away.

1 K 19:3–4 She wandered off into the desert of Beersheba. •When the skin of water was 15 finished she abandoned the child under a bush. •Then she went and sat down at a 16 distance, about a bowshot away, thinking, 'I cannot bear to see the child die.'
Sitting at a distance, she began to sob.

16:7c God heard the boy crying, and the angel of God called to Hagar from heaven. 17
'What is wrong, Hagar?' he asked. 'Do not be afraid, for God has heard[e] the boy's cry in his plight. •Go and pick the boy up and hold him safe, for I shall make him 18 into a great nation.' •Then God opened Hagar's eyes and she saw a well, so she 19 went and filled the skin with water and gave the boy a drink.

20 God was with the boy. He grew up and made his home in the desert, and he 21 became an archer. •He made his home in the desert of Paran, and his mother got him a wife from Egypt.

Abraham and Abimelech at Beersheba [f] =26:15–33

22 About then, Abimelech and Phicol, the commander of his army, said to Abraham, 23 'Since God is with you in everything you do, •swear to me by God, here and now, that you will not act treacherously towards me or my kith and kin, but behave with the same faithful love to me and the land of which you are a guest as I have behaved 24 to you.' •'Yes,' Abraham replied, 'I swear it.'
25 Abraham then reproached Abimelech about a well that Abimelech's servants 26 had seized. •'I do not know who has done this,' Abimelech said. 'You yourself have never mentioned it to me and, for myself, I heard nothing of it till today.'
27 Abraham then took sheep and cattle and presented them to Abimelech, and the 28 two of them made a covenant. •Abraham put seven lambs of the flock on one side.
29 'Why have you put these seven lambs on one side?' Abimelech asked Abraham.
30 He replied, 'You must accept these seven lambs from me as evidence that I have 31 dug this well.' •This was why the place was called Beersheba: because there the two of them swore an oath.
32 After they had made a covenant at Beersheba, Abimelech and Phicol, the 33 commander of his army, left and went back to Philistine territory. •And Abraham planted a tamarisk at Beersheba and there he invoked the name of Yahweh. 4:26m

to you.'
3 Early next morning Abraham saddled his donkey and took with him two of his servants and his son Isaac. He chopped wood for the burnt offering and started on 4 his journey to the place which God had indicated to him. •On the third day 5 Abraham looked up and saw the place in the distance. •Then Abraham said to his servants, 'Stay here with the donkey. The boy and I are going over there; we shall worship and then come back to you.'

d. 'you . . . vindicated' trans. conj.; Hebr. uncertain. The gift of money was an act of reparation.

e. Abimelech and his harem had been struck with impotence and sterility. • v. 18 is a gloss.

21 a. At this point, the three traditions are fused together: vv. 1^a, 2^a, 7 follow on from 18:15 and are Yahwistic; vv. 2^b, 5 follow on from 17:21 and are Priestly; vv. 1^b, 6 are Elohistic.

b. The same play on the name Isaac, see 17:17f, but now the laughter expresses joy.

c. Were this narrative a continuation of ch. 16, we should have to conclude from 16:16 and 21:5 that by now Ishmael would be more than fifteen years old; but in fact this passage represents him as a child scarcely older than Isaac. This story is an Elohistic parallel to the Yahwistic narrative of ch. 16. Both are concerned with a well in the desert of Beersheba and explain the bonds of relationship between the Ishmaelites and the Israelites descended from Isaac, but the circumstances of Hagar's dismissal and the attitudes of all the persons involved are different.

d. Another allusion to the name Isaac, see 17:17f; the one verb means 'to laugh' and 'to play'. • 'with her son' Gk; Hebr. omits.

e. Allusion to the name Ishmael, see 16:11d.

f. Elohistic narrative (except v. 33), combining two explanations of the name Beersheba: 'the Well of the Oath' or 'the Well of the Seven (Sheep)'; see also 26:33. The mention of the Philistines in vv. 32, 34, is an anachronism, see Jos 13:2b.

22 a. The narrative is commonly credited to the Elohistic stream of tradition but includes Yahwistic elements: vv. 11, 14, 15, 18 and the name moriah in v. 2. Originally it may have been a foundation-story, illustrating the difference between an Israelite shrine, where human sacrifice did not take place, and Canaanite ones where it did. The story as it stands justifies the ritual prescription for the redemption of the first-born of Israel: like all 'first-fruits' these belong to God; they are not, however, to be sacrificed but bought back, 'redeemed', Ex 13:12. Lying behind the story, therefore, is the condemnation, so frequent in the prophets, of child-sacrifice, see Lv 18:21h. vv. 11 seq. add a more advanced spiritual lesson: the example of Abraham's faith, here at its climactic point. In the sacrifice of Isaac the Fathers of the Church saw a prefiguring of the Passion of Jesus, the only-begotten Son.

b. 2 Ch 3:1 identifies the land of Moriah with the hill on which the Temple was later built in Jerusalem. Subsequent tradition adopted this identification, but the text speaks of a 'land of Moriah', of which the name is otherwise unattested; the site of the sacrifice is unknown.

Jn 19:17 Abraham took the wood for the burnt offering, loaded it on Isaac, and carried in 6 his own hands the fire and the knife. Then the two of them set out together. •Isaac 7 spoke to his father Abraham. 'Father?' he said. 'Yes, my son,' he replied. 'Look,' he said, 'here are the fire and the wood, but where is the lamb for the burnt offering?' •Abraham replied, 'My son, God himself will provide the lamb for the 8 burnt offering.' And the two of them went on together.

When they arrived at the place which God had indicated to him, Abraham built 9 ↗Jm 2:21 an altar there, and arranged the wood. Then he bound his son and put him on the altar on top of the wood. •Abraham stretched out his hand and took the knife to 10 kill his son.

But the angel of Yahweh called to him from heaven. 'Abraham, Abraham!' he 11 said. 'Here I am,' he replied. •'Do not raise your hand against the boy,' the angel 12 said. 'Do not harm him, for now I know you fear God. You have not refused me Ex 20:20 your own beloved son.' •Then looking up, Abraham saw a ram caught by its horns 13

12:3b All nations on earth will bless themselves by your descendants, because you have 18 obeyed my command.'

Abraham went back to his servants, and together they set out for Beersheba, 19 and Abraham settled in Beersheba.

The descendants of Nahor [e]

It happened some time later that Abraham received word that Milcah, too, had 20 now borne sons to his brother Nahor: •Uz his first-born, Buz his brother, Kemuel 21 24:15;25:20; father of Aram, •Chesed, Hazo, Pildash, Jidlaph, Bethuel •(and Bethuel was the 22, 23 father of Rebekah). These were the eight children Milcah gave Nahor, Abraham's brother. •He had a concubine named Reumah, and she too had children: Tebah, 24 Gaham, Tahash and Maacah.
28:2

The tomb of the patriarchs [a]

23 The length of Sarah's life was a hundred and twenty-seven years. •She died 1, 2 at Kiriath-Arba—now Hebron—in the land of Canaan, and Abraham proceeded to mourn and bewail her.

33:19 Then rising from beside his dead, Abraham spoke to the Hittites, •'I am a 3, 4 2 S 24:18seq.
↗Heb 11:13 stranger resident here,' he said. 'Let me have a burial site of my own here, so that
↗1 P 2:11 I can remove my dead for burial.' •The Hittites replied to Abraham, •'Please listen 5, 6 to us, my lord, we regard you as a prince of God; bury your dead in the best of our tombs; not one of us would refuse you his tomb for you to bury your dead.'

At this, Abraham rose and bowed low to the local people, the Hittites, •and 7, 8 pleaded with them as follows, 'If you consent to my removing my dead for burial, you must agree to intercede for me with Ephron son of Zohar, •for him to let me 9 have the cave he owns at Machpelah, which is on the edge of his field. Let him sell it to me in your presence at its full price, for a burial site of my own.' •Now Ephron 10 was sitting among the Hittites, and Ephron the Hittite answered Abraham in the hearing of the Hittites, of all the inhabitants of his town. •'No, my lord, listen to 11 me,' he said. 'I give you the field and the cave in it; I make this gift in the presence of my kinsmen. Bury your dead.'

Abraham bowed low to the local people •and, in the hearing of the local people, 12, 13 replied to Ephron as follows, 'Be good enough to listen to me. I will pay the price of the field; accept it from me and I will bury my dead there.' •Ephron replied to 14

15 Abraham, •'Please listen to me, my lord. What is a plot of land for four hundred 16 shekels of silver between me and you? Bury your dead.' •Abraham agreed to Ephron's terms, and Abraham weighed out for Ephron the silver he had stipulated in the hearing of the Hittites, namely four hundred shekels of silver, according to the current commercial rate.
17 Thus Ephron's field at Machpelah, facing Mamre—the field and the cave in it 18 and all the trees anywhere within the boundaries of the field—passed •into Abraham's possession in the sight of the Hittites, of all the inhabitants of his town.
19 And after this, Abraham buried his wife Sarah in the cave of the field of 20 Machpelah, facing Mamre—now Hebron—in the land of Canaan. •And so the field and the cave in it passed from the Hittites into Abraham's possession as a burial site of his own.

The marriage of Isaac [a]

1 24 By now Abraham was an old man, well on in years, and Yahweh had 2 blessed Abraham in every way. •Abraham said to the senior servant in his 12:2–3
3 household, the steward of all his property, 'Place your hand under my thigh: [b] •I 47:29 am going to make you swear by Yahweh, God of heaven and God of earth, that you will not choose a wife for my son from the daughters of the Canaanites among Tb 4:12

5 my son Isaac.' •The servant asked him, 'What if the girl does not want to follow me to this country? Should I then take your son back to the country from which you 6 come?' •Abraham replied, 'On no account are you to take my son back there.
7 Yahweh, God of heaven and God of earth, [c] who took me from my father's home, and from the land of my kinsfolk, and who promised me on oath, "I shall give this 12:7c country to your descendants"—he will now send his angel ahead of you, so that 8 you can get a wife for my son from there. •If then the girl refuses to follow you, you 9 will be quit of this oath to me. Only do not take my son back there.' •And the servant placed his hand under the thigh of his master Abraham, and swore to him that he would do it.
10 The servant took ten of his master's camels and, carrying all kinds of gifts from 11 his master, set out for the city of Nahor in Aram Naharaim. [d] •In the evening, at the time when women come out to draw water, he made the camels kneel outside 12 the town near the well. •And he said, 'Yahweh, God of my master Abraham, give 29:2 seq.

of Bethuel son of Milcah, the wife of Abraham's brother Nahor—with a pitcher on

c. The end of the v. seems to have been retouched. We follow Gk, see v. 8; MT reads 'On Yahweh's mountain, he (Yahweh) appears', referring to the Temple, see v. 2b.

d. i.e. their towns, as the Gk understands; see 24:60.

e. Yahwistic list of Aramaean tribes, associated with the twelve 'sons' of Nahor, 11:29; see the twelve sons of Ishmael, 25:13, and of Jacob, 29:32–30:24; 35:22 seq. A different tradition is recorded in 10:23.

23 a. Yahwistic narrative (excluding v. 1), but making use of a document of greater antiquity. Abraham acquires proprietary rights in Canaan: the promise of the Land, 12:7; 13:15; 15:7, is beginning to come true. • On the Hittites, see Dt 7:1a.

24 a. In the Yahwistic tradition this narrative brought the story of Abraham to a close. vv. 1–9 presume that the patriarch is on his deathbed, see 47:29–31. The original narrative must have made mention of Abraham's death but this has been removed to make room for the inclusion of 25:1–6. A further change has been made: according to v. 48, Rebekah was the daughter of Nahor, Abraham's brother, and this agrees with 29:5; but according to another tradition she was the daughter of Bethuel, 25:20; 28:2, 5, son of Nahor, 22:22–23; hence Bethuel has been inserted at vv. 15, 24, 47, 50. Laban however acts as head of the family; he was Rebekah's brother, v. 29, and son of Nahor, 29:5.

b. The same gesture as in 47:29; contact with the genital organs is intended to make the oath inviolable. Tradition identifies the unnamed servant with Eliezer, see 15:2, but that text is corrupt.

c. 'and God of earth' Gk, see v. 3; Hebr. omits.

her shoulder. •The girl was very beautiful, and a virgin; no man had touched her. 16
She went down to the spring, filled her pitcher and came up again. •Running 17 towards her, the servant said, 'Please give me a sip of water from your pitcher.'
She replied, 'Drink, my lord,' and quickly lowered her pitcher on her arm and 18 gave him a drink. •When she had finished letting him drink, she said, 'I will draw 19 water for your camels, too, until they have had enough.' •She quickly emptied her 20 pitcher into the trough, and ran to the well again to draw, and drew for all the camels. •All the while, the man stood watching her, not daring to speak, wondering 21 whether Yahweh had made his journey successful or not.

When the camels had finished drinking, the man took a gold ring weighing half 22 a shekel, and put it through her nose,[e] and put two bracelets weighing ten gold shekels on her arms, •and said, 'Whose daughter are you? Please tell me. Is there 23 room at your father's house for us to spend the night?' •She replied, 'I am the 24 daughter of Bethuel, the son whom Milcah bore to Nahor.' •And she went on, 'We 25 have plenty of straw and fodder, and room to spend the night.' •Then the man 26 bowed down and worshipped Yahweh • saying, 'Blessed be Yahweh, God of my 27 master Abraham, for not withholding his faithful love[f] from my master. Yahweh has led me straight to the house of my master's brother.'

The girl ran to her mother's house to tell what had happened. •Now Rebekah 28, 29 had a brother called Laban, and Laban ran out to the man at the spring. •As soon 30 as he had seen the ring and the bracelets his sister was wearing, and had heard his sister Rebekah saying, 'This is what the man said to me,' he went to the man and found him still standing by his camels at the spring. •He said to him, 'Come in, 31 blessed of Yahweh, why stay out here when I have cleared the house and made room for the camels?' •The man went to the house, and Laban unloaded the 32 camels. He provided straw and fodder for the camels and water for him and his companions to wash their feet.

They offered him food, but he said, 'I will eat nothing before I have said what I 33 have to say.' Laban said, 'Speak.' •He said, 'I am Abraham's servant. •Yahweh 34, 35 has loaded my master with blessings, and Abraham is now very rich. He has given him flocks and herds, silver and gold, men and women slaves, camels and donkeys.
Sarah, my master's wife, bore my master a son in his old age,[g] and he has made 36 over all his property to him. •My master made me take this oath, "You are not to 37 choose a wife for my son from the daughters of the Canaanites in whose country I live. •Instead, you are to go to my father's home and to my own kinsfolk to choose 38 a wife for my son." •I said to my master, "Suppose the girl will not agree to come 39 with me?" •and his reply was, "Yahweh, in whose presence I have walked, will 40 send his angel with you and make your journey successful, for you to choose a wife for my son from my own kinsfolk, from my father's House. •Then you will be quit 41 of my curse: if you go to my family and they refuse you, you will be quit of my curse." •Arriving today at the spring I said, "Yahweh, God of my master Abraham, 42 please grant a successful outcome to the course I propose to take. •While I stand 43 by the spring, if a girl comes out to draw water and I say to her, 'Please give me a little water to drink from your pitcher,' •if she replies, "Drink by all means, and I 44 will draw water for your camels too," let her be the girl whom Yahweh has decreed for my master's son." •I was still saying this in my mind when Rebekah came out, 45 her pitcher on her shoulder. She came down to the spring and drew water. I said to her, "Please give me a drink." •Quickly she lowered her pitcher saying, "Drink, 46 and I will water your camels too." •I asked her, "Whose daughter are you?" She 47 replied, "I am the daughter of Bethuel, whom Milcah bore to Nahor." Then I put this ring through her nose and these bracelets on her arms. •I bowed down and 48 worshipped Yahweh, and I blessed Yahweh, God of my master Abraham, who had led me by a direct path to choose the daughter of my master's brother for his son. •Now tell me whether you are prepared to show constant and faithful love to 49 my master; if not, say so, and I shall know what to do.'

Laban and Bethuel replied, 'This is from Yahweh; it is not for us to say yes or no 50

51 to you. ·Rebekah is there before you. Take her and go; and let her become the 52 wife of your master's son, as Yahweh has decreed.' ·On hearing this, Abraham's 53 servant bowed to the ground before Yahweh. ·He brought out silver and gold ornaments and clothes which he gave to Rebekah; he also gave rich presents to her brother and to her mother.
54 They ate and drank, he and his companions, and spent the night there. Next 55 morning when they were up, he said, 'Let me go back to my master.' ·Rebekah's brother and mother replied, 'Let the girl stay with us for ten days or so; then she 56 can go.' ·But he replied, 'Do not delay me, since Yahweh has made my journey 57 successful; let me leave and go back to my master.' ·They replied, 'Let us call the 58 girl and find out what she has to say.' ·They called Rebekah and asked her, 'Will 59 you go with this man?' She replied, 'I will.' ·Accordingly they let their sister 60 Rebekah go, with her nurse, and Abraham's servant and his men. ·They blessed Rebekah and said to her:

Sister of ours, from you may there spring thousands and tens of thousands!
May your descendants gain possession 22:17d of the gates of their enemies!

61 And forthwith, Rebekah and her maids mounted the camels, and followed the man. The servant took Rebekah and departed.
62 Isaac meanwhile had come back from the well of Lahai Roi and was living in the 16:13–14
63 Negeb. ·While Isaac was out walking[h] towards evening in the fields, he looked up 64 and saw camels approaching. ·And Rebekah looked up and saw Isaac. She jumped 65 down from her camel, ·and asked the servant, 'Who is that man walking through the fields towards us?' The servant replied, 'That is my master.' So she took her 66 veil and covered herself up. ·The servant told Isaac the whole story.
67 Then Isaac took her into his tent.[i] He married Rebekah and made her his wife. And in his love for her, Isaac was consoled for the loss of his mother.

The descendants of Keturah[a]

‖1 Ch 1: 32–33

1, 2 25 Abraham married another wife whose name was Keturah; ·and she bore
3 him Zimram, Jokshan, Medan, Midian, Ishbak and Shuah. ·Jokshan was the father of Sheba and Dedan, and the descendants of Dedan were the Asshurites, 4 the Letushim and the Leummim. ·The descendants of Midian were Ephah, Epher, Hanoch, Abida and Eldaah. All these were sons of Keturah.
5, 6 Abraham left all his possessions to Isaac. ·To the sons of his concubines Abraham made grants during his lifetime, sending them away from his son Isaac eastward, to the Land of the East.

The death of Abraham

7, 8 The number of years Abraham lived was a hundred and seventy-five. ·When Abraham had breathed his last, dying at a happy ripe age, old and full of years, he 9 was gathered to his people. ·His sons Isaac and Ishmael buried him in the cave of 10 Machpelah facing Mamre, in the field of Ephron the Hittite son of Zohar. ·This was the field that Abraham had bought from the Hittites, and Abraham and his 23
11 wife Sarah were buried there. ·After Abraham's death, God blessed his son Isaac. Isaac settled near the well of Lahai Roi. 24:62

The descendants of Ishmael [b]

These are the descendants of Ishmael son of Abraham by Hagar, Sarah's Egyptian 12
|1 Ch 1: 29–31 slave-girl. ·These are the names of the sons of Ishmael by name and line: Ishmael's 13 first-born was Nebaioth; then Kedar, Adbeel, Mibsam, ·Mishma, Dumah, Massa, 14 Hadad, Tema, Jetur, Naphish and Kedemah. ·These are the sons of Ishmael, 15, 16 and these are their names, according to their settlements and encampments, twelve chiefs of as many tribes.

The number of years Ishmael lived was one hundred and thirty-seven. When he 17 breathed his last and died, he was gathered to his people.

He lived in the territory stretching from Havilah-by-Shur just outside Egypt on 18 16:12 the way to Assyria, and he held his own against all his kinsmen.

III: THE STORY OF ISAAC AND JACOB

The birth of Esau and Jacob [c]

This is the story of Isaac son of Abraham. 19

Abraham fathered Isaac. ·Isaac was forty years old when he married Rebekah 20 24:1a the daughter of Bethuel the Aramaean of Paddan-Aram, and sister of Laban the Aramaean. ·Isaac prayed to Yahweh on behalf of his wife, for she was barren. 21
Yahweh heard his prayer, and his wife Rebekah conceived. ·But the children 22 inside her struggled so much that she said, 'If this is the way of it, why go on living?' [d] So she went to consult Yahweh, [e] ·and Yahweh said to her: 23

There are two nations in your womb, your issue will be two rival peoples.
One nation will have the mastery of the other,
4:5c and the elder will serve the younger. [f]
Ml 1:2–5
↗Rm 9:12

When the time came for her confinement, there were indeed twins in her womb. 24
Ho 12:4 The first to be born was red, altogether like a hairy cloak; so they named him 25
Esau. ·Then his brother was born, with his hand grasping Esau's heel; so they 26 named him Jacob. [g] Isaac was sixty years old at the time of their birth. ·When the 27 boys grew up Esau became a skilled hunter, a man of the open country. Jacob on the other hand was a quiet man, staying at home among the tents. ·Isaac preferred 28
Esau, for he had a taste for wild game; but Rebekah preferred Jacob.

Esau gives up his birthright

Once, when Jacob was cooking a stew, Esau returned from the countryside 29 exhausted. ·Esau said to Jacob, 'Give me a mouthful of that red stuff there; I am 30 exhausted'—hence the name given to him, Edom. [h] ·Jacob said, 'First, give me 31
Dt 21:17 your birthright in exchange.' ·Esau said, 'Here I am, at death's door; what use is a 32 birthright to me?' ·Then Jacob said, 'First give me your oath'; he gave him his oath 33 and sold his birthright to Jacob. ·Then Jacob gave him some bread and lentil stew; 34 Heb 12:16 =12:10–20; =20 he ate, drank, got up and went away. That was all Esau cared about his birthright.

Isaac at Gerar [a]

26 There was a famine in the country—different from the previous famine 1 which took place in the time of Abraham—and Isaac went to Abimelech, the Philistine king at Gerar. ·Yahweh had appeared to him and said, 'Do not go 2 12:1 down to Egypt; stay in the country which I shall point out to you. ·Remain for the 3 present in that country; I shall be with you and bless you, for I shall give all these 12:3b,7+ 22:17–18 countries to you and your descendants in fulfilment of the oath I swore to your father Abraham. ·I shall make your descendants as numerous as the stars of 4 heaven, and I shall give them all these countries, and all nations on earth will bless

5 themselves by your descendants ·in return for Abraham's obedience; for he kept 6 my charge, my commandments, my statutes and my laws.' ·So Isaac stayed at Gerar.
7 When the people of the place asked him about his wife he replied, 'She is my sister,' for he was afraid to say, 'She is my wife,' thinking, 'The people of the place 8 will kill me because of Rebekah, since she is beautiful.' ·When he had been there some time, Abimelech the Philistine king happened to look out of the window and 9 saw Isaac fondling[b] his wife Rebekah. ·Abimelech summoned Isaac and said to him, 'Surely she must be your wife! How could you have said, "She is my sister"?'
10 Isaac replied, 'Because I thought I might be killed on her account.' ·Abimelech said, 'What a thing to do to us! One of the people might easily have slept with your 11 wife. We should have incurred guilt, thanks to you.' ·Then Abimelech issued this order to all the people: 'Whoever touches this man or his wife will be put to death.'
12 Isaac sowed his crops in that country, and that year he reaped a hundredfold.
13 Yahweh blessed him ·and the man became rich; he prospered more and more until 14 he was very rich indeed. ·He acquired flocks and herds and a large retinue. The Philistines began to envy him.

The wells between Gerar and Beersheba =21:25–31

15 The Philistines had blocked up all the wells dug by his father's servants—in the 16 days of his father Abraham—filling them in with earth. ·Then Abimelech said to Isaac, 'You must leave us, for you have become much more powerful than we are.'
17, 18 So Isaac left; he pitched camp in the Valley of Gerar and there he stayed. ·Isaac reopened the wells dug by the servants[c] of his father Abraham and blocked up by the Philistines after Abraham's death, and he gave them the same names as his father had given them.
19 But when Isaac's servants, digging in the valley, found a well of spring-water 20 there,[d] ·the herdsmen of Gerar disputed it with Isaac's herdsmen, saying, 'That water is ours!' So Isaac named the well Esek, because they had disputed with him.
21 They dug another well, and there was a dispute over that one too; so he named it 22 Sitnah. ·Then he left there, and dug another well, and since there was no dispute over this one, he named it Rehoboth, saying, 'Now Yahweh has made room for us to thrive in the country.'[e] 23, 24 From there he went up to Beersheba. ·Yahweh appeared to him the same night and said:

I am the God of your father Abraham.[f]

b. Ishmael's descendants, 17:20, are the North Arabian tribes.

c. Yahwistic narrative, apart from the Priestly chronological framework, vv. 19–20, 26[b].

d. 'living' Syr.; Hebr. omits.

e. On the methods of 'consulting Yahweh' see Ex 33:7e and 1 S 14:41r. Here it can only mean a visit to a holy place where Yahweh manifests his presence.

f. see note 4:5c. The struggle of the children in their mother's womb is an omen of the enmity between the two related peoples: the Edomites, descendants of Esau, and the Israelites, descendants of Jacob. The Edomites, Nb 20:22f, were subjugated by David, 2 S 8:13–14, and did not achieve complete liberation until the reign of Jehoram of Judah in mid-ninth century, 2 K 8:20–22.

g. Popular etymologies: Esau is red, 'admoni, his other name being Edom, v. 30; 36:1, 8; he is like a mantle of hair, se'ar, and is destined to dwell in the land of se'ir, Nb 24:18. According to this passage Jacob, ya'aqob, gets his name from gripping the heel ('aqeb) of his twin; but in 27:36 and Ho 12:4 the name means that the child has supplanted ('aqab) his brother. In fact, however, the probable meaning of the name (abbreviated from ya'aqob-el) is 'May Yahweh protect!'

h. Because he had eaten the stew which was of a red-brown colour ('adom)—another play on words.

26 a. Isaac scarcely appears except in his father's story, ch. 21: 22: 24: and in that of his sons, 25:19–28; 27; 28:1–9; 35:27–29. Only ch. 26, Yahwistic except for the Priestly vv. 34–35, treats of him directly, but the three episodes are all paralleled in the life of Abraham and are linked together by the figure of Abimelech king of Gerar, see 20:2, and the 'Philistines', see 21:22f. The first episode is parallel to 12:10–20 and ch. 20 (see notes). This last presentation is the most discreet.

b. Isaac (yitzhaq), fondles (metzaheq) Rebekah; another play on words as in 21:9, see 17:17; 18:12 seq.; 21:6.

c. 'dug by the servants' versions; 'which had been dug in the days' Hebr.

d. The Book of Genesis speaks of many wells dug by the patriarchs, who were pastoralists. It was near 'Jacob's well' at Shechem (which Gn does not mention) that Jesus spoke of the true living water to the Samaritan woman, Jn 4:1a.

e. 'esek means 'quarrel', sitnah 'accusation', rehobot 'room, space'.

f. Patriarchal religion was essentially that of the 'God of the father(s)', 28:13; 31:5; 32:10, until the revelation of the name Yahweh, Ex 3:13–15. It was a nomadic religion: this God was not the master of a specific territory, but revealed himself to the ancestor of a group which he would henceforth protect and guide, see as early as 12:1 and up to 46:3–4, and to whom he promised posterity and a country of their own, ch. 15.

Do not be afraid, for I am with you.
I shall bless you and multiply your offspring for my servant Abraham's sake.

4:26m There he built an altar and invoked the name of Yahweh. There he pitched his 25 tent, and there Isaac's servants sank a well.

The alliance with Abimelech

=21:22–33 Abimelech came from Gerar to see him, with Ahuzzath his adviser and Phicol the 26 commander of his army. ·Isaac said to them, 'Why do you come to me since you 27 hate me, and have made me leave you?' ·'It became clear to us that Yahweh was 28 with you,' they replied, 'and so we thought, "It is time to have a treaty sworn between us, between us and you." So let us make a covenant with you: ·that you 29 will not do us any harm, since we never molested you but were unfailingly kind to you and let you go away in peace. Henceforth, Yahweh's blessing on you!' ·He 30 then made them a feast and they ate and drank.

Early next morning, they exchanged oaths. Then Isaac bade them farewell and 31 they left him as friends. ·It happened, the same day, that Isaac's servants brought 32 him news about the well they had been digging. 'We have found water!' they said to him. ·So he called the well Sheba,[g] and hence the town is named Beersheba to 33 this day.

The Hittite wives of Esau

36:1–5 When Esau was forty years old he married Judith daughter of Beeri the Hittite, 34
24:3seq.; 28:1seq. and Basemath daughter of Elon the Hittite. ·These were a bitter disappointment 35 to Isaac and Rebekah.

Jacob obtains Isaac's blessing by fraud[a]

27 When Isaac had grown old, and his eyes were so weak that he could no 1 longer see, he summoned his elder son Esau. 'Son!' he said, and Esau replied, 'Here I am.' ·He then said, 'Look, I am old and do not know when I may 2 die. ·Now take your weapons, your quiver and bow; go out into the country and 3 hunt me some game. ·Make me the kind of appetising dish I like and bring it to me 4 Gn 49:1seq.,1a Dt 33:1seq.,1a to eat and I shall give you my special blessing before I die.'

Rebekah was listening while Isaac was talking to his son Esau. So when Esau 5 went into the country to hunt game for his father, ·Rebekah said to her son Jacob, 6 25:28 'I have just heard your father saying to your brother Esau, ·"Bring me some game 7 and make an appetising dish for me to eat and then I shall bless you in Yahweh's presence before I die." ·Now, son, listen to me and do as I tell you. ·Go to the 8, 9 flock and bring me back two good kids, so that I can make the kind of special dish your father likes. ·Then take it to your father for him to eat, so that he may bless 10 you before he dies.'

25:25 Jacob said to his mother Rebekah, 'Look, my brother Esau is hairy, while I am 11 smooth-skinned. ·If my father happens to touch me, he will see I am cheating him, 12 and I shall bring a curse down on myself instead of a blessing.' ·But his mother 13 replied, 'On me be the curse, my son! Just listen to me; go and fetch me the kids.'
So he went to fetch them and brought them to his mother, and she made the kind 14 of special dish his father liked. ·Rebekah took her elder son Esau's best clothes, 15 which she had at home, and dressed her younger son Jacob in them, covering his arms and the smooth part of his neck with the skins of the kids. 16
She then handed the special dish and the bread she had made to her son Jacob. 17

He went to his father and said, 'Father!' 'Yes?' he replied. 'Which of my sons are 18 you?' ·Jacob said to his father, 'I am Esau your first-born; I have done as you told 19 me. Please sit up and eat some of the game I have brought and then give me your soul's blessing.' ·Isaac said to his son, 'Son, how did you succeed so quickly?' He 20 replied, 'Because Yahweh your God made things go well for me.'[b] ·Isaac said to 21

Jacob, 'Come closer, son, so that I can feel you and be sure whether you really are 22 my son Esau or not.' ·Jacob went closer to his father Isaac, who felt him and said, 23 'The voice is Jacob's voice but the arms are the arms of Esau!' ·He did not recognise 24 him since his arms were hairy like his brother Esau's, and so he blessed him. ·He 25 said, 'Are you really my son Esau?' And he replied, 'I am.' ·Isaac said, 'Serve it to me, so that I can eat my son's game and give you my special blessing.' He served it 26 to him and he ate; he offered him wine, and he drank. ·His father Isaac said to 27 him, 'Come closer, and kiss me, son.' ·He went closer and kissed his father, who sniffed the smell of his clothes. Then he blessed him, saying: [c]

Ah, the smell of my son is like the smell of a fertile field 22:17–18 ↗Heb 11:20 which Yahweh has blessed.
28 May God give you dew from heaven,
and the richness of the earth,
abundance of grain and wine!
29 Let peoples serve you 25:23f and nations bow low before you!
Be master of your brothers;
let your mother's other sons bow low before you!
Accursed be whoever curses you and blessed be whoever blesses you!

30 As soon as Isaac had finished blessing Jacob, and just as Jacob was leaving his 31 father Isaac, his brother Esau returned from hunting. ·He too made an appetising dish and brought it to his father, 'Father, please eat some of your son's game and 32 then give me your special blessing.' ·His father Isaac asked, 'Who are you?' 'I am 33 your first-born son, Esau,' he replied. ·At this Isaac was seized with a violent trembling and said, 'Who was it, then, that went hunting and brought me the game? I finished eating it just before you came; I blessed him, and now blessed he 34 will remain!' [d] ·On hearing his father's words, Esau cried out loudly and bitterly 35 and said to his father, 'Father, bless me too!' ·But he replied, 'Your brother came 36 by fraud and took your blessing.' ·Esau said, 'His name should be Jacob right 25:26,29–34 Is 43:27 Jr 9:3 Ho 12:4
enough, for he has now supplanted me twice. First he took my birthright, and look, now he has gone and taken my blessing! [e] But', he added, 'have you not kept a 37 blessing for me?' ·Isaac replied to Esau, 'I have already made him your master; I have given him all his brothers as servants, I have given him grain and wine to 38 sustain him. So what can I do for you, son?' ·Esau said to his father, 'Can you bless only once, father? Father, bless me too.' Isaac remained silent, [f] and Esau began to 39 weep aloud. ·Then his father Isaac spoke again and said:

'Far from the richness of the earth and the dew of heaven above, your home will be.
40 By your sword you will live, and your brother will you serve. [g]

g. Read sheba (or shebu'a), 'oath', in accordance with Gk and context, instead of Hebr. shibe'a, 'seven'. see 21:22–30.

27 a. Yahwistic narrative in praise of Jacob's cunning but in its final form modified by a touch of blame for Rebekah's trick and of sympathy for Esau. The morality is immature but the lie reported here mysteriously serves God's purpose; the free divine choice preferred Jacob to Esau, 25:23; see Ml 1:2 seq.; Rm 9:12–13.

b. To bring God into the lie seems blasphemous to us but the oriental mentality saw no wrong in it, being used to ascribing every event to God, ignoring 'secondary causes'.

c. This blessing, promising to Jacob, the shepherd, rural prosperity, like that of Esau, vv. 39–40, affects not the patriarchs themselves but the peoples sprung from them.

d. Blessings and curses, once pronounced, were regarded as efficacious and irrevocable.

e. A play on the words bekorah (birthright) and berakah (blessing).

f. 'Isaac remained silent' Gk; Hebr. omits.

g. Esau (i.e. his descendants) is to dwell outside the fertile country of Palestine and to be subjected to Jacob (i.e. to his descendants, 2 S 8:13–14). His brother has all, v. 37, and the only blessing remaining to him is 'to live by his sword', a brigand's life of plunder.

But when you win your freedom, you will shake his yoke off your neck.' [h]

=27:46–28:5 Ob 10n

Esau hated Jacob because of the blessing his father had given him, and Esau said 41 to himself, 'The time to mourn for my father will soon be here. Then I shall kill my brother Jacob.' ·When the words of Esau, her elder son, were repeated to Re- 42 bekah, she sent for her younger son Jacob and said to him, 'Look, your brother ↗Ws 10:10 Esau means to take revenge and kill you. ·Now, son, listen to me; go at once and 43
24:29 take refuge with my brother Laban in Haran. ·Stay with him a while, until your 44 brother's fury cools, ·until your brother's anger is diverted from you and he forgets 45 what you have done to him. Then I shall send someone to bring you back. I do not want to lose you both on one day!' [i]

Isaac sends Jacob to Laban [j]

Rebekah said to Isaac, 'The Hittite women sicken me to death. If Jacob were to 46 marry a Hittite woman like these, one of the local women, what would there be left in life for me?'

28 So Isaac summoned Jacob and blessed him; and he gave him this order: 1
'You are not to marry any of the Canaanite women. ·Go off to Paddan- 2 Aram, the home of Bethuel your mother's father, and there choose a wife for 17:1b.4–5 yourself from the daughters of Laban your mother's brother. ·May El Shaddai 3 bless you; may he make you fruitful and make you multiply so that you become a group of nations. ·May he grant you the blessing of Abraham, you and your 4 descendants after you, so that one day you may own the country where you are now living as a stranger—which God gave to Abraham.' ·Then Isaac sent Jacob 5 away, and Jacob went to Paddan-Aram, to Laban son of Bethuel the Aramaean and brother of Rebekah the mother of Jacob and Esau.

Another marriage of Esau [a]

When Esau saw that Isaac had blessed Jacob and sent him to Paddan-Aram to 6 choose a wife there, and that in blessing him he had given him this order: 'You are not to choose a wife from the Canaanite women,' ·and that, in obedience to his 7 father and mother, Jacob had gone to Paddan-Aram, ·Esau then realised how 8 much his father Isaac disapproved of the Canaanite women. ·So Esau went to 9 25:12–13 Ishmael and chose for wife, in addition to the wives he had, Mahalath daughter of Abraham's son Ishmael and sister of Nebaioth.

↗Ws 10:10 Jacob's dream [b]

Jacob left Beersheba and set out for Haran. ·When he had reached a certain 10, 11 place, he stopped there for the night, since the sun had set. Taking one of the stones of that place, he made it his pillow and lay down where he was. ·He had a 12 dream: there was a ladder, planted on the ground with its top reaching to heaven; ↗Jn 1:51 and God's angels were going up and down on it. ·And there was Yahweh, standing 13 beside him and saying, 'I, Yahweh, am the God of Abraham your father, and the God of Isaac. The ground on which you are lying I shall give to you and your 12:2seq.;13:14seq.;15:5seq.;18:18;22:17seq.; 26:4 descendants. ·Your descendants will be as plentiful as the dust on the ground; you 14 ·12:3b will spread out to west and east, to north and south, and all clans on earth will bless themselves by you and your descendants. ·Be sure, I am with you; I shall keep you 15 safe wherever you go, and bring you back to this country, for I shall never desert you until I have done what I have promised you.' ·Then Jacob awoke from his 16
Ex 19:12e sleep and said, 'Truly, Yahweh is in this place and I did not know!' ·He was afraid 17 and said, 'How awe-inspiring this place is! This is nothing less than the abode of God, and this is the gate of heaven!' ·Early next morning, Jacob took the stone he 18
Ex 23:24k had used for his pillow, and set it up as a pillar, pouring oil over the top of it. [c]
35:6;48:3 Jg 1:23 He named the place Bethel, but before that the town had been called Luz. 19

Jacob then made this vow, 'If God remains with me and keeps me safe on this 20 journey I am making, if he gives me food to eat and clothes to wear, ·and if I come 21 home safe to my father's home, then Yahweh shall be my God. ·This stone I have 22 set up as a pillar is to be a house of God, and I shall faithfully pay you a tenth part of everything you give me.' Am 4:4

Jacob arrives at Laban's home [a]

1, 2 29 Continuing his journey, Jacob reached the Land of the Easterners. •And there, out in the open, he saw a well with three flocks of sheep lying beside it; this well was used for watering the flocks. Now the stone on the mouth of the 3 well was a large one, •and only when all the flocks had collected there, did they roll the stone off the mouth of the well and water the sheep; then they would replace 4 the stone over the mouth of the well. •Jacob said to the shepherds, 'Friends, where 5 are you from?' They replied, 'We are from Haran.' •He asked them, 'Do you know 6 Laban son of Nahor?' They replied, 'We do.' •Then he asked them, 'Is he well?' 7 'He is,' they replied, 'and here comes his daughter Rachel with the flock.' •Then he said, 'But it is still broad daylight, not the time to round up the animals. Why don't 8 you water the sheep and take them back to graze?' •To which, they replied, 'We can't, until all the shepherds have assembled to roll the stone off the mouth of the well; then we can water the sheep.' 24:11seq. Ex 2:16seq.

9 He was still talking to them, when Rachel arrived with her father's flock, for she 10 was a shepherdess. •As soon as Jacob saw Rachel, his uncle Laban's daughter, with his uncle Laban's flock, he went up and, rolling the stone off the mouth of the well, 11 watered his uncle Laban's sheep. •Jacob then kissed Rachel and burst into tears. 12 He told Rachel he was her father's kinsman and Rebekah's son, and she ran to tell 13 her father. •As soon as he heard her speak of his sister's son Jacob, Laban ran to greet him, embraced him, kissed him and took him to his house. Jacob told Laban 14 everything that had happened, [b] •and Laban said to him, 'You are indeed my bone and flesh!'

Jacob's two marriages [c]

15 After Jacob had been staying with him for a month, •Laban said to Jacob, 'Just because you are my kinsman, why should you work for me for nothing? Tell me 16 what wages you want.' •Now Laban had two daughters, the elder named Leah, 17 and the younger Rachel. •Leah had lovely eyes, but Rachel was shapely and 18 beautiful, •and Jacob had fallen in love with Rachel. So his answer was, 'I will work for you for seven years in exchange for your younger daughter Rachel.' 19 Laban replied, 'It is better for me to give her to you than to a stranger; stay with me.'

20 So Jacob worked for seven years for Rachel, and they seemed to him like a few 21 days because he loved her so much. •Then Jacob said to Laban, 'Give me my wife, 22 for my time is up and I should like to go to her.' •Laban gathered all the people of 23 the place together, and gave a banquet. •But when night came, he took his 24 daughter Leah and brought her to Jacob, and he slept with her. •(Laban gave his

h. This last sentence is in prose and may have been added after the Edomites had regained their independence, 2 K 8:20–22. The translation 'you win your freedom' is uncertain.

i. As one who had shed blood Esau would have been liable to blood-revenge, Nb 35:19c.

j. The equivalent of 27:41–45 in the Priestly tradition which, passing over the shocking story in ch. 27, gave a different reason for Jacob's departure for Mesopotamia. Note the identification of the 'Hittite women', v. 46, with the 'Canaanite women' of 28:1.

28 a. Continuation of the Priestly source.

b. This narrative is in part an Elohistic tradition: the dream of the ladder (more properly a staircase) leading to heaven, a Mesopotamian idea symbolised by stepped towers or ziggurats, vv. 12 and 17, Jacob's vow and the foundation of the shrine at Bethel, vv. 18, 20, 21[a], 22. With this is combined a Yahwistic tradition: an apparition of Yahweh who renews the promises made to Abraham and Isaac, and whom Jacob acknowledges as his God, vv. 13–16, 19, 21[b]. Both enhanced the prestige of the shrine at Bethel, 1 K 12:29–30e.

c. The stone marks the place of God's presence. It becomes a beth'el, an 'abode of God', and is anointed with oil as a formal act of worship. Practices of this kind were common in the Canaanite cult and in the semitic world in general but were subsequently condemned by the Law and the Prophets, see Ex 23:24. Even in this passage a more spiritual conception goes with the idea of a divine dwelling on earth; Bethel is the 'gate of heaven', God's true home, see 1 K 8:27.

29 a. Yahwistic narrative continuing ch. 28 and following on from 27:41–45.

b. i.e. what had happened between himself and Esau, ch. 27.

c. Yahwistic narrative and continuation of the preceding.

slave-girl Zilpah to his daughter Leah as her slave.) ·When morning came, it was 25 Leah![d] So Jacob said to Laban, 'What have you done to me? Did I not work for you for Rachel? Why then have you tricked me?' ·Laban replied, 'It is not the 26 custom in our place to marry off the younger before the elder. ·Finish this marriage 27 week[e] and I shall give you the other one too in return for your working for me for another seven years.'[f] ·Jacob agreed and, when he had finished the week, Laban 28 gave him his daughter Rachel as his wife. ·(Laban gave his slave-girl Bilhah to his 29 daughter Rachel as her slave.) ·So Jacob slept with Rachel too, and he loved 30 Rachel more than Leah. He worked for Laban for another seven years.

Jacob's children[g]

When Yahweh saw that Leah was unloved,[h] he opened her womb, while Rachel 31 remained barren. ·Leah conceived and gave birth to a son whom she named 32 Reuben, meaning 'Yahweh has seen my misery';[i] and she said, 'Now my husband will love me.' ·Conceiving again, she gave birth to a son and said, 'Yahweh heard 33 that I was unloved, and so he has given me this one too'; and she named him Simeon. ·Again she conceived and gave birth to a son, and said, 'This time my 34 husband will become attached to me, because I have borne him three sons.'
Accordingly, she named him Levi. ·Again she conceived and gave birth to a son, 35 and said, 'Now I shall praise Yahweh!' Accordingly, she named him Judah. Then she had no more children.

30 Rachel, seeing that she herself gave Jacob no children, became jealous of 1 her sister. And she said to Jacob, 'Give me children, or I shall die!' ·This 2 made Jacob angry with Rachel, and he retorted, 'Am I in the position of God, who 16:2b has denied you motherhood?' ·So she said, 'Here is my slave-girl, Bilhah. Sleep 3 with her and let her give birth on my knees; through her, then, I too shall have children!' ·So she gave him her slave-girl Bilhah as concubine. Jacob slept with 4 her, ·and Bilhah conceived and gave birth to a son by Jacob. ·Then Rachel said, 5, 6
'God has done me justice; yes, he has heard my prayer and given me a son.'
Accordingly she named him Dan. ·Again Rachel's slave-girl Bilhah conceived and 7 gave birth to a second son by Jacob. ·Then Rachel said, 'I have fought a fateful 8 battle with my sister, and I have won!' So she named him Naphtali.

Now Leah, seeing that she had ceased to bear children, took her slave-girl 9
Zilpah and gave her to Jacob as concubine. ·So Leah's slave-girl Zilpah gave birth 10 to a son by Jacob. ·Then Leah exclaimed, 'What good fortune!' So she named him 11
Gad. ·Leah's slave-girl Zilpah gave birth to a second son by Jacob. ·Then Leah 12, 13
Lk 1:48 said, 'What blessedness! Women will call me blessed!' So she named him Asher.

One day, at the time of the wheat harvest, Reuben found some mandrakes in the 14 field[a] and brought them to his mother Leah. Rachel said to Leah, 'Please give me some of your son's mandrakes.' ·Leah replied, 'Is it not enough to have taken my 15 husband, without your taking my son's mandrakes as well?' So Rachel said, 'Very well, he can sleep with you tonight in return for your son's mandrakes.' ·When 16 Jacob came back from the fields that night, Leah went out to meet him and said,
'You must come to me, for I have hired you at the price of my son's mandrakes.'
So he slept with her that night. ·God heard Leah, and she conceived and gave birth 17 to a fifth son by Jacob. ·Then Leah said, 'God has given me my reward for giving 18 my slave-girl to my husband.' So she named him Issachar. ·Again Leah conceived 19 and gave birth to a sixth son by Jacob, ·and said, 'God has given me a fine gift; now 20 my husband will bring me presents, for I have borne him six sons.' So she named him Zebulun. ·Later she gave birth to a daughter and named her Dinah. 21

Then God remembered Rachel; he heard her and opened her womb. ·She 22, 23
Lk 1:25,25p conceived and gave birth to a son, and said, 'God has taken away my disgrace!'
She named him Joseph, saying, 'May Yahweh add another son for me!' 24

How Jacob became rich

When Rachel had given birth to Joseph, Jacob said to Laban, 'Release me and let 25 me go home to my own country. •Give me my wives for whom I have worked for you, and my children, and let me go. You are well aware how long I have worked for you.' •Laban replied, 'If I have done what pleases you . . .[b] I have learnt by divination that Yahweh has blessed me because of you. •So name your wages,' he added, 'and I will pay.' •He replied, 'You know how hard I have worked for you, and how your stock has fared in my charge. •The little you had before I came has increased enormously, and Yahweh has blessed you wherever I have been. When am I to provide for my own household too?' •Laban said, 'How much am I to pay you?' Jacob replied, 'You need not pay me anything. I will change my mind and go on tending your flock, if you do this one thing for me.

'Go through your entire flock today[c] and remove every black animal[d] among the sheep, and every speckled or spotted one among the goats. These will be my wages, •and my uprightness will answer for me later: when you come to check my wages, every goat I have that is not speckled or spotted, and every sheep that is not black will count as stolen by me.' •Laban replied, 'Good, just as you say.' •That same day he removed the striped and speckled he-goats and all the spotted and speckled she-goats, every one that had white on it, and all the black sheep, and entrusted these to his sons. •Then he put a three days' journey between himself and Jacob, while Jacob grazed the rest of Laban's flock.

Jacob then got fresh shoots from poplar, almond and plane trees, and peeled them in white strips, laying bare the white part of the shoots. •He set up the shoots he had peeled in front of the animals, in the troughs, in the water-holes where the animals came to drink. Since they mated when they came to drink, •the goats thus mated in front of the shoots and so the goats produced striped, spotted and speckled young. •The ewes, on the other hand, Jacob kept apart and made these face whatever was striped or black in Laban's flock. Thus he built up droves of his own which he did not put with Laban's flocks. •Furthermore, whenever the sturdier animals were mating, Jacob put the shoots where the animals could see them, in the troughs, so that they would mate in front of the shoots. •But when the animals were feeble, he did not put them there; so Laban got the feeble, and Jacob the sturdy. •Thus the man grew extremely rich, and came to own large flocks, men and women slaves, camels and donkeys.

d. The success of Laban's stratagem is explained by the custom, which still exists, of keeping the bride veiled until the wedding night, see 24:65.

e. The wedding celebrations lasted for seven days, Jg 14; see Tb 8:20; 10:7.

f. Marriage with two sisters was not forbidden before the legislation of Lv 18:18.

g. This section (Yahwistic with Elohistic insertions) connects the tribes of Israel with the patriarchal line through Jacob's twelve children. This is the earliest form of the 'twelve-tribal system', which later went through various stages of development. Here, the figure of twelve is achieved by the inclusion of Dinah, who was later to be replaced by Benjamin, born in Canaan, 35:16 seq. Levi, which later became a priestly tribe, was replaced by dividing Joseph into Ephraim and Manasseh. The system, even in its most ancient form, cannot have been elaborated until after the settlement of Canaan. The 'twelve sons of Jacob', who for the most part have no role in the narratives of Gn and some of whom are not even mentioned again, are merely eponymous ancestors of tribes long in existence, see ch. 49.

h. The text reads 'hated', but here the word only means the less favoured wife in a polygamous household.

i. The rivalry between Leah and Rachel is used to explain the proper names: some of these popular etymologies are obscure. Ra'ah be'onyi 'he has seen my distress', Reuben; shama' 'he has heard', Simeon; yillaweh 'he will cling', Levi; 'odeh 'I shall praise', Judah; dananni 'he has done justice to me', Dan; niphtali 'I have fought', Naphtali; gad 'good luck', Gad; 'osheri 'my happiness' and 'ishsheruni 'they will count me happy', Asher; sakar 'he has hired' and sakar 'wages', Issachar; yizbeleni 'he will respect me', Zabulon; 'asaph 'he has taken away' and yoseph 'may he add', Joseph.

30 a. The Hebrew word for 'mandrake' or 'mandragora' is formed from the same root as 'love'; the ancients accounted it an aphrodisiac. Primitive tradition must have associated this fruit with Joseph's birth.

b. The phrase is broken off; 'hear me' or 'stay here' is to be understood.

c. The text of vv. 32–43 is difficult to interpret. The story is possibly composite of Yahwistic and Elohistic tradition and further obscured by glosses. The story, which can have taken shape only among a semi-nomadic people, is clearly ancient. In Eastern flocks the sheep are usually white, the goats black. For his wages Jacob asks the abnormal animals (black sheep and white-spotted goats); Laban agrees, shrewdly as he thinks. Jacob's plot is briefly this: 1 He sees to it that when the goats mate, vv. 37–39, they are in sight of white-striped rods; this affects the formation of the embryo. 2 At the same time he makes sure that the sheep are looking at the black goats in the flock, v. 40. 3 For this operation he selects the robust strains, leaving the weaker animals and their offspring to Laban. In this way Jacob takes his 'honourable' revenge.

d. Hebr. here adds 'speckled and spotted and every animal'; Gk omits.

Jacob's flight [a]

31 Jacob learned that Laban's sons were saying, 'Jacob has taken everything 1 that belonged to our father; it is at our father's expense that he has acquired all this wealth,' ·and Jacob also saw that Laban's manner towards him was not as it 2 had been in the past. ·Yahweh said to Jacob, 'Go back to the land of your 3 26:3;28:15 ancestors, where you were born, and I shall be with you.' ·So Jacob had Rachel 4 and Leah called to the fields where his flocks were, ·and he said to them, 'I can see 5 that your father's manner towards me is not as it was in the past, but the God of my father has been with me. ·You yourselves know that I have worked for your father 6 with all my might, ·and that your father has tricked me, changing my wages ten 7 times over, and yet God has not allowed him to harm me. ·Whenever he said, "The 8 spotted ones will be your wages," all the animals produced spotted young; whenever he said, "The striped ones will be your wages," all the animals produced striped young. ·Thus God has reclaimed your father's livestock and given it to me. 9 Once, when the animals were on heat, I suddenly saw in a dream that the he- 10 goats covering the females were striped or spotted or piebald. ·In the dream the 11 16:7c angel of God called to me, "Jacob!" I said, "Here I am." ·He said, "Now take 12 note: all the he-goats covering the females are striped or spotted or piebald—for I too have noted all the things that Laban has been doing to you, ·I am the God who 13 28:18–22 appeared to you at Bethel, [b] where you poured oil on a pillar and made a vow to me. On your feet, then, leave this country and return to the land of your birth." '

In answer Rachel and Leah said to him, 'Are we still likely to inherit anything 14 from our father's estate? ·Does he not think of us as outsiders now? For not only 15 has he sold us, but he has completely swallowed up the money he got for us. [c] ·All 16
the wealth that God has reclaimed from our father belonged to us and our children in any case. So do whatever God has told you.'

Forthwith, Jacob put his children and his wives on camels, ·and drove off all his 17, 18 livestock—with all the possessions he had acquired, the livestock belonging to him which he had acquired in Paddan-Aram [d]—to go to his father Isaac in Canaan.
Laban was away, shearing his sheep; Rachel in the meanwhile had appropriated 19
Jg 17:5 the household idols [e] belonging to her father, ·and Jacob had outwitted Laban the 20
1 S 19:13
2 K 23:24 Aramaean so that he would not be forewarned of his flight. ·Thus he got away with 21
Ho 3:4 all he had. He was soon across the River [f] and heading for Mount Gilead.

Laban pursues Jacob [g]

Three days later Laban was told that Jacob had fled. ·Taking his brothers with 22, 23 him, he pursued him for seven days and overtook him at Mount Gilead. ·But God 24 appeared to Laban the Aramaean in a dream that night and said to him, 'On no account say anything whatever [h] to Jacob.' ·Laban caught up with Jacob, who had 25 pitched his tent [i] in the hills; and Laban pitched camp on Mount Gilead.

Laban said to Jacob, 'What do you mean by outwitting me and then carrying off 26
my daughters like prisoners of war? ·Why did you flee in secret, stealing away 27 without letting me know, so that I could send you on your way rejoicing, with songs and the music of tambourines and harps? ·You did not even let me kiss my sons 28 and daughters. You have behaved like a fool. ·It is in my power to harm you, but 29 the God of your [j] father said to me last night, "On no account say anything whatever to Jacob." ·Now it may be you really went because you had such a 30 longing for your father's house, but why did you steal my gods?'

Jacob answered Laban, 'I was afraid, thinking you were going to snatch your 31 daughters from me. ·But whoever is found in possession of your gods shall not 32 remain alive. In the presence of our brothers, examine for yourself what I have, and take what is yours.' Now Jacob did not know that Rachel had appropriated them. ·Laban went into Jacob's tent, and then into Leah's tent and the tent of the 33 two slave-girls, but he found nothing. He came out of Leah's tent and went into 31:19 Rachel's. ·Now Rachel had taken the household idols and put them inside a camel 34 Lv 15:19–20 cushion, and was sitting on them. Laban went through everything in the tent but 35 found nothing. •Then Rachel said to her father, 'Do not look angry, my lord, because I cannot rise in your presence, for I am as women are from time to time.'

Laban searched but did not find the idols.
36 Then Jacob lost his temper and took Laban to task. And Jacob said to Laban, 'What is my offence, what is my crime, for you to have hounded me like this?
37 You have gone through all my belongings; have you found anything belonging to your household? Produce it here in the presence of my brothers and yours, and let 38 them decide between the two of us. •In all the twenty years I was under you, your ewes and your she-goats never miscarried, and I never ate rams from your flock.
39 Those mauled I never brought back to you, but bore the loss myself. You Ex 22:12 demanded compensation from me, whether the animal was stolen in daylight or at 40 night.[k] •In the daytime the heat devoured me, and frost at night; I never had a 41 good night's sleep. •It was like this for the twenty years I spent in your household.
Fourteen years I slaved for you for your two daughters, and six years for your 42 flock, since you changed my wages ten times over. •If the God of my father, the God of Abraham, the Kinsman of Isaac,[l] had not been with me, you would have sent me away empty-handed. But God saw my plight and my labours, and last 31:24,29 night he delivered judgement.'

A treaty between Jacob and Laban[m]

43 Laban replied to Jacob, 'These daughters are my daughters and these children are my children, this livestock is my livestock: everything you see belongs to me. But what can I do today about my daughters here or about the children they have 44 borne? •So come, let us make a pact, you and me . . . ,[n] and let that serve as a witness between us.'
45, 46 Jacob then took a stone and set it up as a memorial. •Jacob said to his kinsmen, 'Collect some stones,' and gathering some stones they made a cairn. They had a 47 meal there, on the cairn, and •Laban called it Jegar-Sahadutha while Jacob called 48 it Galeed.[o] •Laban said, 'May this cairn be a witness between us today.' That is Jos 24:27d 49 why he named it Galeed, •and also Mizpah, because he said, 'Let Yahweh act as 50 watchman between us when we are no longer in sight of each other. •If you ill-treat my daughters or marry other women besides my daughters, even though no one be 51 with us, remember: God is witness between us.' •Then Laban said to Jacob, 'Here 52 is this cairn I have thrown up between us, and here the pillar. •This cairn is a witness, and the pillar is a witness, that I am not to cross to your side of this cairn 53 and you are not to cross to my side of this cairn and pillar, with hostile intent. •May the God of Abraham and the god of Nahor judge between us.'[p] Then Jacob swore 31 a. Elohistic narrative with some Yahwistic remnants (vv. 1, 3, 21). It emphasises the fact that Jacob is in the right and enjoys divine protection; this did not appear from the narrative of ch. 30 which is secular in character.

b. 'who appeared to you' supplied from Gk.

c. In Upper Mesopotamia, it was considered miserly if a father-in-law did not return to his daughter a part of the sum paid over by the husband at the time of marriage, but Laban exploited Jacob's services for himself alone.

d. This insertion is a Priestly addition.

e. In Hebrew teraphim, small domestic idols. In Hurrian law, possession of these could, especially in exceptional cases, constitute a legal title to an estate.

f. The Euphrates.

g. Like the preceding narrative Elohistic (with the possible exception of some Yahwistic fragments, vv. 27, 31, 38–40?).

h. lit. 'neither good nor evil', nothing at all.

i. 'his tent' 'ohalo conj.; Hebr. 'ehaw, 'with his brothers'.

j. 'you', 'your': singular, Gk and Sam.; plural, Hebr.

k. According to Ex 22:12 the shepherd was to be exonerated if he could produce the remains of the animal alleged to have been killed by wild beasts, see Am 3:12.

l. A name for God that appears only here and in v. 53; Arabic and Palmyrene Aramaic justify this translation. Alternatively: 'The Awesome One of Isaac'.

m. Two traditions (Yahwistic and Elohistic) appear to have been combined here: 1 A formal pact regulating the frontier between Laban and Jacob, i.e. between Aram and Israel, v. 52, together with an explanation of the name Gilead = Galeed, 'cairn of witness'. 2 A private agreement concerning Laban's daughters, wives of Jacob, v. 50, together with an explanation of the name Mizpah, 'watch-post', see v. 49, where a stele (matzzebah) is erected. On the other hand it is possible that we have here not two traditions but simply explanations of each part of the traditional composite name Mizpah of Gilead, 'watch-post of Gilead'; the place is known from Jg 11:29 and lies south of the Jabbok in Transjordan. The text has been further obscured by glosses.

n. It is probable that some words of the text have been lost.

o. Yegar sahaduta is the exact Aramaic equivalent of gal'ed, 'cairn of witness'.

p. Here the text adds 'the god of their fathers', a gloss absent from the Gk and from some Hebr. MSS. • In ancient times the gods of each contracting party were invoked as witnesses to a treaty.

by the Kinsman of his father Isaac. •He offered a sacrifice on the mountain and 54 invited his kinsmen to the meal. They ate the meal, and passed the night on the mountain.

32 Early next morning, Laban kissed his grandchildren and daughters and 1 31:55 blessed them. Then Laban left to return home. •While Jacob was going on 2 32:1
his way, angels of God encountered him, •and on seeing them he said, 'This is 3 2 God's camp,' and he named the place Mahanaim. [a]

Jacob prepares for his meeting with Esau [b]

Jacob sent messengers ahead of him to his brother Esau in Seir, the open country 4 3 of Edom, •with these instructions, 'Say this to my lord Esau, "Here is the message 5 4 of your servant Jacob: I have been staying with Laban and have been delayed there until now, •and I own oxen, beasts of burden and flocks, and men and women 6 5 slaves. I send news of this to my lord in the hope of winning your favour." ' •The 7 6 messengers returned to Jacob and told him, 'We went to your brother Esau, and he is already on his way to meet you; there are four hundred men with him.'

Jacob was greatly afraid and distressed. He divided the people with him, and 8 7 the flocks and cattle, [c] into two camps, •thinking, 'If Esau comes to one of the 9 8 camps and attacks it, the remaining camp may be able to escape.' •Jacob said, 'God 10 9 31:3 of my father Abraham, and God of my father Isaac, Yahweh who told me, "Go back to your native land and I will be good to you," •I am unworthy of all the 11 10 faithful love and constancy you have shown your servant. I had only my staff when I crossed this Jordan, and now I have grown into two camps. •I implore you, save 12 11 me from my brother Esau's clutches, for I am afraid that he may come and attack 22:16–17; 28:14 me, mothers and children alike. •Yet it was you who said, "I shall be very good to 13 12 you, and make your descendants like the sand of the sea, which is too numerous to count." ' •Then Jacob passed that night there. 14 13

From what he had with him he chose a gift for his brother Esau: •two hundred 15 14
she-goats and twenty he-goats, two hundred ewes and twenty rams, •thirty camels 16 15 in milk with their calves, forty cows and ten bulls, twenty female donkeys and ten male. •He put them in the charge of his servants, in separate droves, and told his 17 16 servants, 'Go ahead of me, leaving a space between each drove and the next.' •He 18 17 gave the leading man this order: 'When my brother Esau meets you and asks,
"Whose man are you? Where are you going? Whose are those animals that you are driving?" •you will answer, "Your servant Jacob's. They are a gift sent to my lord 19 18 Esau. And Jacob himself is just behind us." ' •He gave the same order to the 20 19 second and the third, and to all who were following the droves. 'That is what you must say to Esau when you find him. •And you must add, "Your servant Jacob 21 20 himself is just behind us." ' For he thought, 'If I conciliate him by sending a gift in advance, perhaps he will be well inclined towards me when I face him.' •The gift 22 21 went ahead of him, but he himself spent that night in the camp.

Jacob wrestles with God [d]

That same night he got up and, taking his two wives, his two slave-girls and his 23 22 eleven children, crossed the ford of the Jabbok. •After he had taken them across 24 23
Ex 4:24–26 Ws 10:12 Ho 12:4–6 the stream, he sent all his possessions over too. •And Jacob was left alone. 25 24
Then someone [e] wrestled with him until daybreak •who, seeing that he could not 26 25 master him, struck him on the hip socket, and Jacob's hip was dislocated as he wrestled with him. •He said, 'Let me go, for day is breaking.' Jacob replied, 'I will 27 26 not let you go unless you bless me.' •The other said, 'What is your name?' 'Jacob,' 28 27 =35:10 he replied. •He said, 'No longer are you to be called Jacob, but Israel since you 29 28 have shown your strength [f] against God and men and have prevailed.' •Then Jacob 30 29 Jg 13:17seq. asked, 'Please tell me your name.' He replied, 'Why do you ask my name?' With that, he blessed him there.

Ex 33:20i Jacob named the place Peniel, 'Because I have seen God face to face,' he said, 31 30
'and have survived.' [g] •The sun rose as he passed Peniel, limping from his hip. 32 31

32 33 That is why to this day the Israelites do not eat the thigh sinew which is at the hip socket: [h] because he had struck Jacob at the hip socket on the thigh sinew.

The meeting with Esau [a]

1 33 Looking up, Jacob saw Esau coming and with him four hundred men. He then divided the children between Leah, Rachel and the two slave-girls.
2 He put the slave-girls and their children in front, with Leah and her children
3 following, and Rachel and Joseph behind. ·He himself went ahead of them and 4 bowed to the ground seven times, until he reached his brother. ·But Esau ran to meet him, took him in his arms, threw himself on his neck and wept as he kissed
5 him. ·Then looking up he saw the women and children. 'Who are these with you?' he asked. Jacob answered, 'The children whom God has bestowed on your ser-
6 vant.' ·The slave-girls then came up with their children, and they all bowed low.
7 Then Leah too came up with her children, and they all bowed low. Finally Rachel and Joseph came up and bowed low.
8 Esau asked, 'What was the purpose of that whole camp I just met?' [b] 'To win my 9 lord's favour,' he replied. ·'Brother, I have plenty,' Esau answered, 'keep what is 10 yours.' ·Jacob protested, 'No, if I have won your favour, please accept the gift I offer, for in fact I have come into your presence as into the presence of God, [c] since 11 you have received me kindly. ·So accept the gift I have brought for you, since God has been generous to me and I have all I need.' And he urged him, and Esau accepted.

Jacob parts company with Esau [d]

12, 13 Esau said, 'Let us break camp and move off; I shall go beside you.' ·But Jacob replied, 'As my lord knows, the children are weak, and the sheep and cows which have calved make it hard for me. If they are driven too hard, even for one day, the 14 whole drove will die. ·May it please my lord to go on ahead of his servant. For my part, I shall move at a slower pace, to suit the flock I am driving and the children,
15 until I join my lord in Seir.' ·Esau then said, 'At least let me leave you some of the people who are with me.' 'What for?' Jacob asked. 'Please indulge me, my lord!'
16, 17 So that day Esau turned back towards Seir, ·but Jacob made his way to Succoth, where he built himself a house and made shelters for his livestock; that is why the place was given the name of Succoth. [e]

Jacob arrives at Shechem [f]

18 Jacob arrived safely at the town of Shechem in Canaanite territory, on his return

32 a. Mahaneh 'camp' explains the name mahanaim. Here, in the dual form, it means 'two camps', to which allusion is made in vv. 8 and 11. • vv. 1–3 are Elohistic.

b. Jacob, having reached Esau's territory, takes the usual precautions of a caravan approaching hostile country. These precautions are described in two ways, one following the Yahwistic tradition, vv. 4–14[a], the other the Elohistic, vv. 14[b]–22. Both traditions agree on Jacob's meek demeanour before Esau, in accordance with 27:41–45 and with what has been said of the two brothers' characters in 25:27 and 27:40.

c. After 'cattle', Hebr. adds 'and the camels'; Gk omits.

d. This enigmatic story, probably Yahwistic, speaks of a physical struggle, a wrestling with God from which Jacob seems to emerge victor. Jacob recognises the supernatural character of his adversary and extorts a blessing from him. The text, however, avoids using the name of Yahweh and the unknown antagonist will not give his name. The author has made use of an old story as a means of explaining the name Peniel by peni'el ('face of God') and the origin of the name Israel. At the same time he gives the story a religious significance: the patriarch holds fast to God and forces from him a blessing; henceforth all who bear Israel's name will have a claim on God.

e. lit. 'a man'.

f. The meaning given by the versions to the verb sarah which is found only here and in Ho 12:5. The probable meaning of Israel is 'May God show his strength!', but it is here explained: 'He has shown his strength against God', a popular etymology. This change of name is also mentioned at 35:10, where it seems to be more primitive. It possibly indicates the fusion of two different tribal groups, that of 'Jacob' and that of 'Israel', see 33:20: 'El, God of Israel'.

g. To see God is death to a human being; to do so and survive is a sign of special favour, see Ex 33:20i.

h. There is no mention of this ancient food-law elsewhere in the Bible.

33 a. Narrative, for the most part Yahwistic, continuing that of 32:4–14[a].

b. Not the groups of 32:14[b]–22 (Elohistic tradition) but the first camp of 32:8; Jacob had despaired of it, 32:9, and is now only too glad to offer it as a gift.

c. Another allusion to the name 'Peniel', 'face of God', 32:31.

d. Jacob mistrusts Esau and, letting him go on ahead, takes another direction himself. Yahwistic tradition.

e. Probable location: Tell Akhsas in the Jordan Valley. The name means a shelter made of branches.

f. v. 18 is Priestly; vv. 19–20 are Elohistic.

from Paddan-Aram. He encamped opposite the town ·and for one hundred pieces 19 23 of silver he bought from the sons of Hamor father of Shechem the piece of land on Jos 24:32 which he had pitched his tent. ·There he erected an altar which he called 'El, God 20 of Israel'.

The rape of Dinah [a]

34 Dinah, who was Jacob's daughter by Leah, went out to visit some of the 1 women of that region. ·Shechem son of Hamor the Hivite, [b] headman of the 2 region, saw her, seized her and forced her to sleep with him. ·He was captivated by 3 Dinah daughter of Jacob; he fell in love with the girl and tried to win her heart.
Accordingly Shechem said to his father Hamor, 'Get me this girl; I want to marry 4 her.' ·Meanwhile, Jacob had heard how his daughter Dinah had been dishonoured, 5 but since his sons were out in the countryside with his livestock, Jacob said nothing until they came back.

A matrimonial alliance with the Shechemites

Hamor father of Shechem was visiting Jacob to discuss the matter with him, 6 when Jacob's sons returned from the countryside and heard the news; the men 7 were outraged and infuriated that Shechem had insulted Israel by sleeping with Jacob's daughter—a thing totally unacceptable. ·Hamor reasoned with them as 8 follows, 'My son Shechem's heart is set on your daughter. Please allow her to marry him. ·Intermarry with us; give us your daughters and take our daughters for 9 yourselves. ·We can live together, and the country will be open to you, for you to 10 live in, and move about in, and acquire holdings.' ·Then Shechem addressed the 11 girl's father and brothers, 'Grant me this favour, and I will give you whatever you Ex 22:15–16, 15d ask. ·Demand as high a bride-price from me as you please, and I will pay as much 12 as you ask. Only let me marry the girl.'

Jacob's sons gave Shechem and his father Hamor a crafty answer, speaking as 13 they did because he had dishonoured their sister Dinah. ·'We cannot do this,' they 14 said to them. 'To give our sister to an uncircumcised man would be a disgrace for 17:10d us. ·We can agree only on one condition: that you become like us by circumcising 15 all your males. ·Then we will give you our daughters, taking yours for ourselves; 16 and we will stay with you to make one nation. ·But if you will not agree to our 17 terms about being circumcised, we shall take our daughter and go.' ·Hamor and 18 Shechem son of Hamor were pleased with what they heard. ·The young man did 19 not hesitate about doing this, for he was deeply in love with Jacob's daughter.
Moreover he was the most respected member of his entire family.

Hamor and his son Shechem went to the gate of their town and spoke to their 20 fellow-townsmen as follows, ·'These men are friendly; let them settle in the region 21 and move about freely in it; there is plenty of room here for them; we shall marry their daughters and give our daughters to them. ·But these men will agree to settle 22 with us and become a single nation only on this condition: that all our males be circumcised like them. ·Will not the livestock they own, all their animals, become 23 ours? Then let us give our assent to this, so that they can settle with us.'
All the citizens of the town agreed to the proposal made by Hamor and his son 24
Shechem, and all the males were circumcised. [c]

The treacherous revenge of Simeon and Levi

49:5–6, 5c Now on the third day, when the men were still in pain, Jacob's two sons Simeon 25 and Levi, Dinah's brothers, each took his sword and advanced unopposed against the town and slaughtered all the males. ·They killed Hamor and his son Shechem 26 with the sword, removed Dinah from Shechem's house and came away. ·When 27 Jacob's other sons came on the slain, they pillaged the town in reprisal for the dishonouring of their sister. ·They seized their flocks, cattle, donkeys, everything 28 else in the town and in the countryside, ·and all their possessions. They took all 29 their children and wives captive and looted everything to be found in the houses.

30 Jacob said to Simeon and Levi, 'You have done me an ill turn by bringing me into bad odour with the people of the region, the Canaanites and the Perizzites. I 13:7 have few men, whereas they will unite against me to defeat me and destroy me and 31 my family.' •They retorted, 'Should our sister be treated like a whore?'

Jacob at Bethel [a]

1 35 God said to Jacob, 'Move on, go to Bethel and settle there. Make an altar there for the God who appeared to you when you were fleeing from your 28:10–22 brother Esau.'
2 Jacob said to his family and to all who were with him, 'Get rid of the foreign gods
3 you have with you; [b] cleanse yourselves, and change your clothes. [c] •We must move on and go to Bethel. There I shall make an altar for the God who heard me when I 4 was in distress, and gave me his help on the journey I made.' •They gave Jacob all the foreign gods in their possession, and the earrings that they were wearing. Jacob 5 buried them under the oak tree near Shechem. •They broke camp; a divine terror 12:6 struck the towns round about, and no one pursued the sons of Jacob. 34:30 6 When Jacob arrived at Luz in Canaan—that is, Bethel—and all the people with 28:19
7 him, •he built an altar there and named the place El-Bethel, [d] since it was there that 8 God had appeared [e] to him when he was fleeing from his brother. •Deborah, who had been Rebekah's nurse, died and was buried below Bethel, under the oak tree;
so they named it the Oak of Tears.
9 God again appeared to Jacob on his return from Paddan-Aram, and blessed 10 him. •God said to him, 'Your name is Jacob, but from now on you will be called 32:29 not Jacob but Israel.' Thus he came by the name Israel.
11 God said to him, 'I am El Shaddai. Be fruitful and multiply. A nation, indeed an 17:1b assembly of nations, will descend from you, and kings will issue from your loins.
12 The country which I gave to Abraham and Isaac, I now give to you; and this 12:7+
13 country I shall give to your descendants after you.' •Then God went up from him. [f]
14 Jacob raised a monument at the spot where he had spoken to him, a standing-15 stone, on which he made a libation and poured oil. •Jacob named the place Bethel where God had spoken to him.

The birth of Benjamin and the death of Rachel 16 They left Bethel, and while they were still some distance from Ephrath, Rachel 17 went into labour, and her pains were severe. •When her labour was at its hardest, 18 the midwife said to her, 'Do not worry, this is going to be another boy.' •At the moment when she breathed her last, for she was dying, she named him Ben-Oni.

19 His father, however, named him Benjamin. [g] •So Rachel died and was buried on 20 the road to Ephrath, now Bethlehem. •Jacob raised a monument on her grave, Mi 5:1a that same monument of Rachel's Tomb which is there today.

34 a. This chapter combines a domestic and a clan anecdote. In the first, Shechem seduces Dinah and then asks her in marriage; he accepts the required circumcision but is treacherously slain by Simeon and Levi. In the second, Hamor, father of Shechem, proposes a general matrimonial alliance with the sons of Jacob; this is accepted on condition that the sons of Hamor are circumcised; the agreement is broken by the sons of Jacob who sack the town and slaughter its inhabitants. Attribution, whether to Yahwistic or Elohistic source, is arbitrary. The story preserves the memory of an ill-fated attempt by certain Hebrew tribal groups to gain a foothold in the Shechem area in patriarchal times, see 49:5–7.

b. One of the ancient races of Canaan, 10:17.

c. At the end of the v., Hebr. repeats 'all the citizens', lit. 'all who go out through the gate of his city'; Gk omits.

35 a. This chapter tells of Jacob's journey from Shechem to Hebron, using this as a framework for traditions drawn from various sources.

b. This means more than discarding the domestic idols Rachel had carried off, 31:19, 34; as in Jos 24 (also at Shechem), it is an act of faith in the one God of Israel.

c. Purification preparatory to the Bethel pilgrimage; see Ex 19:10.

d. 'El-Bethel': God Bethel or God of Bethel, see 28:18c. The versions read 'Bethel'.

e. In Hebr. this verb is in the plural, possibly referring to the celestial beings of 28:12.

f. The text adds 'at the spot where he had spoken to him', dittography of following v.

g. Ben-Oni: 'son of my sorrow'. The father changes this name of ill omen to Benjamin: 'son of the right hand = son of happy omen'.

Reuben's incest

Israel left and pitched his tent beyond Migdal-Eder. ·While Israel was living in 21, 22 49:3–4 that district, Reuben went and slept with Bilhah his father's concubine, and Israel found out.

The twelve sons of Jacob [h]

29:31–30:24 The sons of Jacob were now twelve. ·The sons of Leah: Jacob's eldest son Reuben, 23 then Simeon, Levi, Judah, Issachar and Zebulun. ·The sons of Rachel: Joseph and 24
Benjamin. ·The sons of Bilhah, Rachel's slave-girl: Dan and Naphtali. 25
The sons of Zilpah, Leah's slave-girl: Gad and Asher. These were the sons born 26 to Jacob in Paddan-Aram.

The death of Isaac [i]

Jacob came home to his father Isaac at Mamre, at Kiriath-Arba—now Hebron— 27 where Abraham and Isaac had stayed. ·Isaac was one hundred and eighty years 28 old ·when he breathed his last. He died and was gathered to his people, an old man 29 who had enjoyed his full span of life. His sons Esau and Jacob buried him.

Esau's wives and children in Canaan [a]

26:34;28:9 36 These are the descendants of Esau, that is, Edom. ·Esau chose his wives 1, 2 from the women of Canaan: Adah daughter of Elon the Hittite, Oholibamah daughter of Anah, son of Zibeon the Horite, [b] ·Basemath daughter of Ishmael 3 and sister of Nebaioth. ·Adah bore Eliphaz to Esau, Basemath bore Reuel, 4 Oholibamah bore Jeush, Jalam and Korah. These were the sons of Esau born to 5 him in Canaan.

Esau's migration [c]

Esau took his wives, his sons and daughters, all the members of his household, his 6 livestock, all his cattle and all the goods he had acquired in Canaan and left for 32:4 Seir, [d] away from his brother Jacob. ·For they had acquired too much to live 7 13:5–9 together. The land in which they were at that time could not support them both because of their livestock. ·That is why Edom settled in the mountainous region of 8 Seir. Esau is Edom.

Esau's descendants in Seir

These are the descendants of Esau, ancestor of Edom, in the mountainous region 9 of Seir.

=36:15–19 1 Ch 1:35seq. These are the names of Esau's sons: Eliphaz son of Esau's wife Adah, and Reuel 10 son of Esau's wife Basemath.

The sons of Eliphaz were: Teman, Omar, Zepho, Gatam and Kenaz. ·Eliphaz 11, 12
Ex 17:8d son of Esau had Timna for concubine and she bore him Amalek. These were the sons of Esau's wife Adah.

These were the sons of Reuel: Nahath, Zerah, Shammah and Mizzah. These 13 were the sons of Esau's wife Basemath.

And these were the sons of Esau's wife Oholibamah daughter of Anah, son of 14
Zibeon: she bore him Jeush, Jalam and Korah.

The chieftains of Edom

=36:9–14 These are the chieftains of Esau. 15

The descendants of Eliphaz, Esau's eldest son: the chieftains of Teman, Omar, Zepho, Kenaz, [e] ·Gatam and Amalek. These are the chieftains of Eliphaz in Edom 16 and are descended from Adah.

The descendants of Esau's son Reuel: the chieftains of Nahath, Zerah, Shammah 17 and Mizzah. These are the chieftains of Reuel in Edom and are descended from Esau's wife Basemath.

18 The descendants of Esau's wife Oholibamah: the chieftains of Jeush, Jalam and Korah. These are the chieftains of Esau's wife Oholibamah daughter of Anah.

19 These were the sons of Esau—that is, Edom—and these are their chieftains.

The descendants of Seir the Horite[f]

20 These are the sons of Seir the Horite, natives of the country: Lotan, Shobal, 21 Zibeon, Anah, ·Dishon, Ezer and Dishan; these were the Horite chieftains de-22 scended from Seir, in Edom. ·The sons of Lotan were Hori and Hemam, and 23 Lotan's sister was Timna. ·These are the sons of Shobal: Alvan, Manahath, Ebal, 24 Shepho and Onam. ·These are the sons of Zibeon: Aiah, Anah—the Anah who found the hot springs in the desert while pasturing his father Zibeon's donkeys.
25 These are the children of Anah: Dishon, and Oholibamah daughter of Anah.
26, 27 These are the sons of Dishon: Hemdan, Eshban, Ithran and Cheran. ·These 28 are the sons of Ezer: Bilhan, Zaavan and Akan. ·These are the sons of Dishan: Uz and Aran.

29 These are the Horite chieftains: the chieftains of Lotan, Shobal, Zibeon, Anah, 30 Dishon, Ezer and Dishan. These are the chieftains of the Horites, by their clans,[g] in Seir.

The kings of Edom

‖1 Ch 1:43–50

31, 32 These are the kings who reigned in Edom before an Israelite king.[h] ·In Edom Nb 20:14
33 reigned Bela son of Beor; his city was called Dinhabah. ·Bela died and Jobab son 34 of Zerah, from Bozrah, succeeded. ·Jobab died and Husham from the land of the 35 Temanites succeeded. ·Husham died and Hadad son of Bedad succeeded; he 36 defeated the Midianites in Moab, and his city was called Avith. ·Hadad died and 37 Samlah of Masrekah succeeded. ·Samlah died and Shaul of Rehoboth-ha-Nahar
38, 39 succeeded. ·Shaul died and Baal-Hanan son of Achbor succeeded. ·Baal-Hanan died and Hadad[i] succeeded; his city was called Pau and his wife's name was Mehetabel daughter of Matred, from Mezahab.

More chieftains of Edom

‖1 Ch 1:51–54

40 These are the names of the chieftains of Esau—according to their clans and 41 localities: the chieftains of Timna, Alvah, Jetheth, ·Oholibamah, Elah, Pinon, 42, 43 Kenaz, Teman, Mibzar, ·Magdiel and Iram. These are the chieftains of Edom, as settled in the territory which they own. Esau was Edom's ancestor.

1 37 But Jacob settled in the land where his father had stayed, the land of Canaan.

h. The list comes from the Priestly source.

i. This closes the story of Isaac in the Priestly tradition which defers his death till now (see 27:1–2), identifies Mamre with Hebron, and does not mention the dispute with Esau, see 36:6 seq. and 27:46–28:2.

36 a. This is the last we shall hear of Esau. Ch. 36 is a collection of traditions (or documents) of Israelitic or Edomite origin; they deal with Esau's descendants, but there is no attempt to force them into agreement either among themselves or with what has been already said (see marginal references).

b. 'son of Zibeon the Horite', following versions and v. 20; 'daughter of Zibeon the Hivite' Hebr. • Similarly, we emend 'daughter' to 'son' at v. 14.

c. The Priestly tradition, which does not speak of the quarrel between Jacob and Esau, 35:27–29i, here explains their separation in the same way as it explained that of Abraham and Lot and almost in the same terms.

d. 'the land of Seir' Syr.; 'the land' Hebr.

e. Hebr. adds 'the chieftains of Korah', which presumably comes from v. 18; Sam. omits.

f. The Horites, Dt 2:12d, were the ancient inhabitants of Seir; Seir is here personified as their ancestor. The Horites were dispossessed by the Edomites, Dt 2:12, 22.

g. 'clans' Gk; 'chieftains' Hebr.

h. i.e. 'before an Israelite king reigned over Edom' rather than 'before any king reigned in Israel' (as the Gk understood it).

i. 'Hadad' 1 Ch 1:50 and versions; 'Hadar' Hebr.

IV: THE STORY OF JOSEPH[a]

Joseph and his brothers

This is the story of Joseph.[b] 2

Joseph was seventeen years old. As he was young, he was shepherding the flock with his brothers, with the sons of his father's wives, Bilhah and Zilpah; and Joseph brought his father bad reports about them.

Jacob loved Joseph more than all his other sons, for he was the son of his old age, 3 37:23,31–33 and he had a decorated tunic made for him. 4 But his brothers, seeing how much more his father loved him than all his other sons,[c] came to hate him so much that they could not say a civil word to him.

Now Joseph had a dream,[d] and he repeated it to his brothers, who then hated 5 him more than ever. 6 'Listen', he said, 'to the dream I had. 7 We were binding 6, 7 sheaves in the field, when my sheaf suddenly rose and stood upright, and then your sheaves gathered round and bowed to my sheaf.' 8 'So you want to be king over us,' 8 his brothers retorted, 'you want to lord it over us?' And they hated him even more, on account of his dreams and of what he said. 9 He had another dream which he 9 recounted to his brothers. 'Look, I have had another dream,' he said. 'There were the sun, the moon and eleven stars, bowing down to me.' 10 He told his father and 10 brothers, and his father scolded him. 'A fine dream to have!' he said to him. 'Are all of us then, myself, your mother[e] and your brothers, to come and bow to the Dn 7:28 Lk 2:19,51 ground before you?' 11 His brothers held it against him, but his father pondered the 11 matter.

Joseph sold by his brothers[f]

↗Ws 10:13 ↗Ac 7:9

His brothers went to pasture their father's flock at Shechem. 12 Then Israel said to 12, 13
Joseph, 'Your brothers are with the flock at Shechem, aren't they? Come, I am going to send you to them.' 'I am ready,' he replied. 13 He said to him, 'Go and see 14 how your brothers and the flock are doing, and bring me word.' He sent him from the valley of Hebron, and Joseph arrived at Shechem.

A man found him wandering in the countryside and asked him, 'What are you 15 looking for?' 16 'I am looking for my brothers,' he replied. 'Please tell me where they 16 are pasturing their flock.' 17 The man answered, 'They have moved on from here; 17 indeed I heard them say, "Let us go to Dothan." ' So Joseph went after his brothers and found them at Dothan.

They saw him in the distance, and before he reached them they made a plot to 18 kill him. 19 'Here comes that dreamer,' they said to one another. 20 'Come on, let 19, 20 us kill him now and throw him down one of the storage-wells; we can say that some wild animal has devoured him. Then we shall see what becomes of his dreams.'

But Reuben heard, and he saved him from their clutches. 'We must not take his 21 life,' he said. 22 'Shed no blood,' said Reuben to them, 'throw him down that well 22 out in the desert, but do not kill him yourselves'—intending to save him from them and to restore him to his father. 23 So, when Joseph reached his brothers, they pulled 23 off his tunic, the decorated tunic which he was wearing, 24 and catching hold of him, 24 threw him into the well. The well was empty, with no water in it. 25 They then sat 25 down to eat.

Looking up, they saw a group of Ishmaelites who were coming from Gilead, their camels laden with gum tragacanth, balsam and resin, which they were taking to Egypt. 26 Then Judah said to his brothers, 'What do we gain by killing our brother 26 and covering up his blood?[g] 27 Come, let us sell him to the Ishmaelites, then we shall 27 4:10 Jb 16:18 Is 26:21 Ezk 24:7 not have laid hands on him ourselves. After all, he is our brother, and our own flesh.' His brothers agreed.

Now some Midianite merchants were passing, and they pulled Joseph out of the 28 well. They sold Joseph to the Ishmaelites for twenty shekels of silver, and these men took Joseph to Egypt. 29 When Reuben went back to the well, there was no 29

30 sign of Joseph. Tearing his clothes, ·he went back to his brothers. 'The boy has gone,' he said. 'What am I going to do?'
31 They took Joseph's tunic and, slaughtering a goat, dipped the tunic in the blood.
32 Then they sent off the decorated tunic and had it taken to their father, with the message, 'This is what we have found. Do you recognise it as your son's tunic or 33 not?' ·He recognised it and cried, 'My son's tunic! A wild animal has devoured 34 him! Joseph has been torn to pieces!' ·Tearing his clothes and putting sackcloth 35 round his waist, Jacob mourned his son for many days. ·All his sons and daughters tried to comfort him, but he refused to be comforted. 'No,' he said, 'I will go down Jr 31:15 to Sheol in mourning and join my son.' Thus his father wept for him.
36 Meanwhile the Midianites had sold him in Egypt to Potiphar, one of Pharaoh's officials and commander of the guard.

The story of Judah and Tamar [a]

1 38 It happened at about that time that Judah left his brothers, to go down and 2 settle with a certain Adullamite called Hirah. ·There Judah saw the daugh-3 ter of a Canaanite called Shua. He made her his wife and slept with her. ·She 4 conceived and gave birth to a son whom she named Er. ·She conceived again and 5 gave birth to a son whom she named Onan. ·Yet again she gave birth to a son whom she named Shelah. She was at Chezib when she gave birth to him.
6, 7 Judah took a wife for his first-born Er, and her name was Tamar. ·But Er, 8 Judah's first-born, offended Yahweh, and Yahweh killed him. ·Then Judah said to Onan, 'Take your brother's wife, and do your duty as her brother-in-law, [b] to Dt 25:5 Rt 1:11,13 9 maintain your brother's line.' ·But Onan, knowing that the line would not count as Mt 22:24 his, spilt his seed on the ground every time he slept with his brother's wife, to avoid 10 providing offspring for his brother. ·What he did was offensive to Yahweh, [c] who 11 killed him too. ·Then Judah said to his daughter-in-law Tamar, 'Go home [d] as a widow to your father, until my son Shelah grows up,' for he was thinking, 'He must not die like his brothers.' So Tamar went home to her father.
12 A long time passed, and then Shua's daughter, the wife of Judah, died. After Judah had been comforted [e] he went up to Timnah for the shearing of his sheep, he 13 and his friend Hirah the Adullamite. ·When Tamar was told, 'Look, your father-14 in-law is going up to Timnah for the shearing of his sheep,' ·she changed out of her widow's clothes, wrapped a veil around her to disguise herself, and sat down at the 37 a. With the exception of ch. 38 and 49 the whole of this final section of Gn is a biography of Joseph. This narrative, unlike what has gone before, proceeds without any visible divine intervention or new revelation but is a sustained lesson nonetheless, explicitly stated in the concluding 50:20 (see earlier 45:5–8): Providence thwarts human plots and turns malice to advantage. Not only is Joseph rescued, but his brothers' crime becomes instrumental in God's plan: the arrival of Jacob's sons in Egypt is the first step in the making of a chosen people. This theme of salvation ('the survival of a numerous people', 50:20) runs through the whole of the Old Testament to be enriched in the New. Here, as later with the Exodus, we have a foreshadowing of the redemption. Not a few details in the narrative bear witness to familiarity with Egyptian affairs and customs as known to us from Egyptian sources; but the parallels to which a date can be assigned relate to the period when these traditions were edited and not to that of Jacob's migration to Egypt, which seems to have occurred in about the 17th century BC at the time of the Hyksos.

b. v. 2 belongs to a Priestly tradition parallel to the Yahwistic tradition of vv. 3–11.

c. 'his other sons' Gk, Sam.; 'his brothers' Hebr.

d. Dreams play a large part in Joseph's story, ch. 40–41; they are not divine apparitions as in 20:3; 28:12 seq.; 31:11, 24; 1 K 3:5; see Nb 12:6; Si 34:1a, but premonitions.

e. According to 35:19, Rachel was already dead. The narrative seems to be following another tradition which put Rachel's death and Benjamin's birth later, v. 3 and 43:29.

f. A combination of Elohistic and Yahwistic sources is discernible here. According to the former, the sons 'of Jacob' are for killing Joseph, but Reuben, hoping to rescue him later, persuades them to throw him into a storage-well instead; Midianite merchants who, unknown to the brothers are passing that way, extricate Joseph and take him to Egypt. According to the second, the sons 'of Israel' are for killing Joseph, but Judah suggests selling him to a party of Ishmaelites on their way to Egypt. On 'Jacob-Israel', see 32:29f.

g. Lest the victim's blood should cry to heaven. 4:10, the murderer covered it with earth, Jb 16:18f; Ezk 24:7.

38 a. Yahwistic tradition relating to the origin of the tribe of Judah. Judah dwells apart from his brothers and he associates with the Canaanites. From his union with his daughter-in-law Tamar come the clans of Perez and Zerah, Nb 26:20–21; 1 Ch 2:4 seq.; Perez is the ancestor of David, Rt 4:18 seq., and consequently of the Messiah, Mt 1:3; Lk 3:33. In this way we learn of the mixture of strains in Judah and of its singular destiny among the other tribes (Dt 33:7; Jg 1:3; and see all the history that follows).

b. According to 'levirate' law, see Dt 25:5a.

c. Yahweh condemns Onan for failing to put his duty to the family and nation before his own self-interest.

d. 'Go home', 'went home' conj.; 'stay', 'stayed' Hebr. with the same consonants.

e. i.e. 'when he had observed all mourning rites', see Jr 16:7.

entrance to Enaim, which is on the way to Timnah; for she saw that, although Shelah was grown up, she had not been given to him as his wife.[f]

Judah, seeing her, took her for a prostitute, since her face was veiled. ·Going up 15. 16 to her on the road, he said, 'Here, let me sleep with you.' He did not know that she was his daughter-in-law. 'What will you give me for sleeping with you?' she asked. 'I will send you a kid from the flock,' he said. 'Agreed, if you give me a pledge 17 until you send it,' she replied. ·'What pledge shall I give you?' he asked. 'Your seal 18 and cord and the staff you are holding,'[g] she replied. He gave them to her and slept with her, and she conceived by him. ·Then she got up and left him and, taking off 19 her veil, resumed her widow's weeds.

Judah sent the kid by his friend the Adullamite, to recover the pledge from the 20 woman. But he did not find her. ·He enquired from the men of the place, 'Where 21 is the prostitute[h] who was by the roadside at Enaim?' 'There has been no prostitute there,' they answered. ·So returning to Judah he said, 'I did not find her. What is 22 more, the men of the place told me there had been no prostitute there.' ·'Let her 23 keep the things,' Judah said, 'or we shall become a laughing-stock. At least I sent her this kid, even though you did not find her.'

About three months later, Judah was told, 'Your daughter-in-law has played the 24 harlot; furthermore, she is pregnant, as a result of her misconduct.' 'Bring her out,' Judah ordered, 'and let her be burnt alive!'[i] ·But as she was being led off, she sent 25 word to her father-in-law, 'It was the owner of these who made me pregnant. Please verify', she said, 'whose seal and cord and staff these are.' ·Judah recognised 26 them and said, 'She was right and I was wrong, since I did not give her to my son Shelah.' He had no further intercourse with her.

When the time for her confinement came, there were twins in her womb! 27
During the delivery, one of them put out a hand, and the midwife caught it and 28 tied a scarlet thread to it, indicating that this was the first to arrive. ·Whereupon, 29 he drew back his hand, and out came his brother. Then she said, 'What a breach Rt 4:12 Mt 1:3 Lk 3:33 you have opened for yourself!' So he was named Perez. ·Then his brother came 30 out with the scarlet thread on his hand, so he was named Zerah.[j]

Joseph's early days in Egypt[a]

39 Now Joseph had been taken down into Egypt. Potiphar the Egyptian, one 1 of Pharaoh's officials and commander of the guard, bought him from the ↗Ac 7:9 Ishmaelites who had taken him down there. ·Yahweh was with Joseph, and 2 everything he undertook was successful. He lodged in the house of his Egyptian master, ·and when his master saw how Yahweh was with him and how Yahweh 3 made everything he undertook successful, ·he was pleased with Joseph and made 4 him his personal attendant; and his master put him in charge of his household, entrusting him with all his possessions. ·And from the time he put him in charge of 5 his household and all his possessions, Yahweh blessed the Egyptian's household out of consideration for Joseph; Yahweh's blessing extended to all his possessions, both household and estate. ·So he left Joseph to handle all his possessions, and 6 with him there, concerned himself with nothing beyond the food he ate.

The attempt to seduce Joseph

Now Joseph was well built and handsome, ·and it happened some time later that 7 his master's wife cast her eyes on Joseph and said, 'Sleep with me.' ·But he refused. 8
'Look,' he said to his master's wife, 'with me here, my master does not concern himself with what happens in the house, having entrusted all his possessions to me. He himself wields no more authority in this house than I do. He has exempted 9 nothing from me except yourself, because you are his wife. How could I do anything so wicked, and sin against God?' ·Although she spoke to Joseph day after 10 day, he would not agree to sleep with her or be with her.

But one day when Joseph came into the house to do his work, and none of the 11 men of the household happened to be indoors, ·she caught hold of him by his tunic 12 and said, 'Sleep with me.' But he left the tunic in her hand, took to his heels and 13 got out. ·When she saw that he had left the tunic in her hands as he ran out, 14 she called her servants and said to them, 'Look at this! My husband brought in a 15 Hebrew to make a fool of me! He burst in on me, but I screamed, ·and when he heard me scream, he left his tunic beside me and ran out of the house.' 16, 17 She kept his tunic by her until his master came home. ·Then she told him the same tale, 'The Hebrew slave you brought to us burst in on me to make a fool of 18, 19 me. ·But when I screamed, he left his tunic beside me and ran away.' ·When his master heard his wife say, 'This was how your slave treated me,' he became furious.

20 Joseph's master had him arrested and committed to the gaol where the king's Ps 105:18seq.
prisoners were kept.

Joseph in gaol

21 And there in gaol he stayed. ·But Yahweh was with Joseph. He showed him 22 faithful love and made him popular with the chief gaoler. ·The chief gaoler put Joseph in charge of all the prisoners in the gaol, making him responsible for 23 everything done there. ·The chief gaoler did not bother about anything put in his charge, since Yahweh was with him, and Yahweh made everything he undertook successful.

Joseph interprets the dreams of Pharaoh's officials[a]

1 40 It happened some time later that the king of Egypt's cup-bearer and his 2 baker offended their master the king of Egypt. ·Pharaoh was angry with his 3 two officials, the chief cup-bearer and the chief baker, ·and put them in custody in the house of the commander of the guard, in the gaol where Joseph was a prisoner.
4 The commander of the guard assigned Joseph to them to attend to their wants, and they remained in custody for some time.
5 Now both of them had dreams on the same night, each with its own meaning for the cup-bearer and the baker of the king of Egypt, who were prisoners in the gaol.
6 When Joseph came to them in the morning, he saw that they looked gloomy,
7 and he asked the two officials who were in custody with him in his master's house, 8 'Why these sad looks today?' ·They replied, 'We have each had a dream, but there is no one to interpret it.'[b] 'Are not interpretations God's business?' Joseph asked 41:16 them. 'Tell me about them.'
9 So the chief cup-bearer described his dream to Joseph, telling him, 'In my dream
10 there was a vine in front of me. ·On the vine were three branches; no sooner had it 11 budded than it blossomed, and its clusters became ripe grapes. ·I had Pharaoh's cup in my hand; I picked the grapes and squeezed them into Pharaoh's cup, and 12 put the cup into Pharaoh's hand.' ·'This is what it means,' Joseph told him. 'The 13 three branches are three days. ·In another three days Pharaoh will lift up your head by restoring you to your position. Then you will hand Pharaoh his cup, as you did 14 before, when you were his cup-bearer. ·But be sure to remember me when things go well with you, and keep faith with me by kindly reminding Pharaoh about me, 15 to get me out of this house. ·I was kidnapped from the land of the Hebrews in the first place, and even here I have done nothing to warrant being put in the dungeon.'

f. Disguised as a harlot Tamar awaits Judah by the roadside. She is prompted not by wantonness but by the desire to bear a child of her dead husband's blood. Later, v. 26, Judah will approve her conduct and future generations will praise her, Rt 4:12.

g. The seal strung on a cord, and the staff, being intrinsically personal, serve to identify the owner.

h. Strictly, 'sacred prostitute', priestess of a pagan cult; it will be remembered that the background is Canaanite.

i. Tamar, widow of Er, is—by levirate law (see Dt 25:5a)—the betrothed of Shelah. Hence, though she lives with her father, she is under Judah's jurisdiction and it is Judah who pronounces sentence on her adultery, Lv 20:10; Dt 22:22; see Jn 8:5. At a later date, ordeal by fire was reserved for the daughters of priests, Lv 21:9.

j. Peretz means 'breach'. The name zerah probably alludes to the scarlet thread.

39 a. This narrative takes up the story from ch. 37 in the Yahwistic tradition. Elohistic ch. 40 tells the same tale somewhat differently. Both traditions have been unified by means of a few editorial adjustments, here the mention of Potiphar, commander of the guard, at v. 1; see 37:36; 40:3.

40 a. Elohistic narrative with a few modifications.

b. The Egyptians believed that dreams foreshadowed the future.

The chief baker, seeing that the interpretation had been favourable, said to 16
Joseph, 'I too had a dream; there were three wicker trays on my head. ·In the top 17 tray there were all kinds of pastries for Pharaoh, such as a baker might make, and the birds were eating them off the tray on my head.' ·Joseph replied as follows, 18
'This is what it means: the three trays are three days. ·In another three days 19
Pharaoh will lift up your head[c] by hanging you on a gallows, and the birds will eat the flesh off your bones.'

And so it happened; the third day was Pharaoh's birthday and he gave a banquet 20 for all his officials. Of his officials he lifted up the head of the chief cup-bearer and the chief baker, ·the chief cup-bearer by restoring him to his cup-bearing, so that 21 he again handed Pharaoh his cup; ·and by hanging the chief baker, as Joseph had 22 explained to them. ·But the chief cup-bearer did not remember Joseph; he had 23 forgotten him.

Pharaoh's dreams[a]

41 Two years later it happened that Pharaoh had a dream: there he was, 1 standing by the Nile, ·and there, coming up from the Nile, were seven cows, 2 sleek and fat, and they began to feed among the rushes. ·And then seven other 3 cows, wretched and lean, came up from the Nile, behind them; and these went over and stood beside the other cows on the bank of the Nile. ·The wretched and 4 lean cows ate the seven sleek and fat cows. Then Pharaoh woke up.

He fell asleep and dreamed a second time: there, growing on one stalk, 5 were seven ears of grain, full and ripe. ·And then sprouting up, behind them, 6 came seven ears of grain, meagre and scorched by the east wind. ·The scanty 7 ears of grain swallowed the seven full and ripe ears of grain. Then Pharaoh woke up; it had been a dream.

Ex 7:11,22; 8:1–3 In the morning Pharaoh, feeling disturbed, had all the magicians and wise men 8 of Egypt summoned to him. Pharaoh told them his dream, but there was no one to interpret it for Pharaoh.[b] ·Then the chief cup-bearer addressed Pharaoh, 'Today, 9
I recall having been at fault. ·When Pharaoh was angry with his servants, he put 10 myself and the chief baker in custody in the house of the commander of the guard.
We had a dream on the same night, he and I, and each man's dream had a 11 meaning for himself. ·There was a young Hebrew with us, one of the slaves 12 belonging to the commander of the guard. We told our dreams to him and he interpreted them for us, telling each of us what his dream meant. ·It turned out 13 exactly according to his interpretation: I was restored to my position, but the other man was hanged.'

Then Pharaoh had Joseph summoned, and they hurried him from the dungeon. 14
He shaved and changed his clothes, and presented himself before Pharaoh.
Pharaoh said to Joseph, 'I have had a dream, and there is no one to interpret it. 15
But I have heard it said of you that you can interpret a dream the instant you hear 40:8 it.' ·'Not I,' Joseph replied to Pharaoh, 'God will give Pharaoh a favourable 16 answer.'

So Pharaoh told Joseph, 'In my dream there I was, standing on the bank of the 17
Nile. ·And there were seven cows, fat and sleek, coming up out of the Nile, and 18 they began to feed among the rushes. ·And then seven other cows came up, behind 19 them, starved, very wretched and lean; I have never seen such poor cows in all Egypt. ·The lean and wretched cows ate up the first seven fat cows. ·But when they 20, 21 had eaten them up, it was impossible to tell they had eaten them, for they looked as wretched as ever. Then I woke up. ·And then again in my dream, there, growing 22 on one stalk, were seven ears of grain, beautifully ripe; ·but then sprouting up 23 behind them came seven ears of grain, withered, meagre and scorched by the east wind. ·Then the shrivelled ears of grain swallowed the seven ripe ears of grain. I 24 have told the magicians, but no one has given me the answer.'

Joseph said to Pharaoh, 'Pharaoh's dreams are one and the same: God has 25 revealed to Pharaoh what he is going to do. ·The seven fine cows are seven years 26

27 and the seven ripe ears of grain are seven years; it is one and the same dream. ·The seven gaunt and lean cows coming up behind them are seven years, as are the seven shrivelled[c] ears of grain scorched by the east wind: there will be seven 28 years of famine. ·It is as I have told Pharaoh: God has revealed to Pharaoh what he 29 is going to do. ·Seven years are coming, bringing great plenty to the whole of 30 Egypt, ·but seven years of famine will follow them, when all the plenty in Egypt
31 will be forgotten, and famine will exhaust the land. ·The famine that is to follow will be so very severe that no one will remember what plenty the country used to 32 enjoy. ·The reason why Pharaoh had the same dream twice is that the event is already determined by God, and God will shortly bring it about.
33 'Pharaoh should now find someone intelligent and wise to govern Egypt.
34 Pharaoh should take action and appoint supervisors for the country, and impose 35 a tax of one-fifth on Egypt during the seven years of plenty. ·They will collect all the food produced during these good years that are coming, and store the grain 36 under Pharaoh's authority, putting it in the towns and keeping it. ·This food will form a reserve for the country against the seven years of famine which are coming on Egypt, so that the country will not be destroyed by the famine.'

Joseph's promotion

37, 38 Pharaoh and all his ministers approved of what he had said. ·Then Pharaoh asked his ministers, 'Can we find anyone else endowed with the spirit of God, like him?' Dn 13:45 39 So Pharaoh said to Joseph, 'Since God has given you knowledge of all this, there 40 can be no one as intelligent and wise as you. ·You shall be my chancellor, and all Ac 7:10 my people shall respect your orders; only this throne shall set me above you.' Ps 105:21seq.
41 Pharaoh said to Joseph, 'I hereby make you governor of the whole of Egypt.'
42 Pharaoh took the ring from his hand and put it on Joseph's. He dressed him in 43 robes of fine linen and put a gold chain round his neck. ·He made him ride in the best chariot he had after his own, and they shouted 'Abrek!'[d] ahead of him. Thus he became governor of the whole of Egypt.
44 Pharaoh said to Joseph, 'Although I am Pharaoh, no one is to move hand or foot 45 without your permission throughout Egypt.' ·Pharaoh named Joseph Zaphenath-Paneah, and gave him Asenath daughter of Potiphera, priest of On,[e] to be his wife.
And Joseph began to journey all over Egypt.
46 Joseph was thirty years old when he entered the service of Pharaoh king of Egypt. After leaving Pharaoh's presence, Joseph travelled throughout the length 47 and breadth of Egypt. ·During the seven years of plenty, the soil yielded gener-48 ously. ·He collected all the food of the seven years while there was an abundance[f] in Egypt, and stored the food in the towns, placing in each the food from the 49 surrounding countryside. ·Joseph gathered in grain like the sand of the sea, in such quantity that he gave up keeping count, since it was past accounting.

Joseph's sons

50 Before the year of famine came, two sons were born to Joseph: Asenath daughter

c. An expression that usually has a favourable sense, see v. 13; 2 K 25:27; Jr 52:31. Here, however, there is a grim play on words: the head of the cup-bearer is to be 'lifted up': he will be pardoned, v. 13. The head of the baker will also be 'lifted up': he is to be hanged. A gloss here adds 'from you'. See also v. 20.

41 a. This narrative follows on the preceding and is from the same (Elohistic) source with which, however, especially from v. 33 onwards, it combines remnants of a parallel tradition ascribed to the Yahwistic source.

b. Egypt was the land of magicians and sages, Ex 7:11, 22; 1 K 5:10; Is 19:11–13, but the wisdom God gives his servants eclipses theirs. This theme recurs in the story of Moses, Ex 7–8; see, in a different setting, Dn 2.

c. 'shrivelled' versions; 'empty' Hebr.

d. The author imagines this investiture as conforming to what he has heard of Egyptian court-life: Joseph is made viceroy of Egypt: he is second only to the Pharaoh; his house is the centre of administration and he is keeper of the king's seal. The runners before his chariot-of-state cry Abrek, which suggests the Egyptian ib-r-q 'thy heart to thee', 'beware', 'make way'.

e. Egyptian names: zaphenat-paneah 'God says: he is living'; asenat 'belonging to the goddess Neit'; potiphera, the same name as the Potiphar of 37:36 = 'Gift of Ra' (the sun-god). Joseph's father-in-law is priest of On = Heliopolis, centre of Ra-worship; its priesthood played an important part in the politics of the country. Joseph had married into Egypt's most exclusive nobility. But these name-types are unattested earlier than the XXth and XXIst Dynasties, and are products of the author's erudition.

of Potiphera priest of On, bore him these. ·Joseph named the first-born Manasseh, 51
'Because', he said, 'God has made me completely forget my hardships and my father's House.' ·He named the second Ephraim, 'Because', he said, 'God has 52 made me fruitful in the country of my misfortune.'[g]

Ps 105:16 Then the seven years of plenty that there had been in Egypt came to an end, 53 ↗Ac 7:11 and the seven years of famine set in, as Joseph had predicted. There was famine 54 in every country, but throughout Egypt there was food. ·But when all Egypt too 55 began to feel the famine and the people appealed to Pharaoh for food, Pharaoh ↗Jn 2:5 told all the Egyptians, 'Go to Joseph and do whatever he tells you.'·There was 56 famine all over the world. Then Joseph opened all the granaries and rationed out grain to the Egyptians, as the famine grew even worse in Egypt. ·People came to 57 Egypt from all over the world to get supplies from Joseph, for the famine had grown severe throughout the world.

The first meeting between Joseph and his brothers[a]

↗Ac 7:12 42 Jacob, seeing that there were supplies to be had in Egypt, said to his sons, 1
'Why do you keep staring at one another? ·I hear', he said, 'that there are 2 supplies in Egypt. Go down and procure some for us there, so that we may survive and not die.' ·So ten of Joseph's brothers went down to procure grain in Egypt. 3
But Jacob did not send Joseph's brother Benjamin with his brothers. 'Nothing 4 must happen to him,' he thought.

Thus the sons of Israel were among the other people who came to get supplies, 5 there being famine in Canaan. ·It was Joseph, as the man in authority over the 6 country, who allocated the rations to the entire population. So Joseph's brothers went and bowed down before him, their faces touching the ground. ·As soon as 7 Joseph saw his brothers he recognised them. But he did not make himself known to them, and he spoke harshly to them. 'Where have you come from?' he asked.
'From Canaan to get food,' they replied.

Now when Joseph recognised his brothers, but they did not recognise him, 8 37:5–11 Joseph remembered the dreams he had had about them, and said to them, 'You 9 are spies. You have come to discover the country's weak points.' ·'No, my lord,' 10 they said, 'your servants have come to get food. ·We are all sons of the same man. 11
We are honest men, your servants are not spies.' ·'Oh no,' he replied, 'you have 12 come to discover the country's weak points.' ·'Your servants were twelve brothers,' 13 they said, 'sons of the same man in Canaan, but the youngest is at present with our father, and the other one is no more.' ·To which Joseph retorted, 'It is as I said, 14 you are spies. ·This is the test you are to undergo: as sure as Pharaoh lives you shall 15 not leave unless your youngest brother comes here. ·Send one of your number to 16 fetch your brother; you others will remain under arrest, so that your statements can be tested to see whether or not you are honest. If not, then as sure as Pharaoh lives you are spies.' ·Whereupon, he put them all into custody for three days. 17

On the third day Joseph said to them, 'Do this and you will live, for I am a man 18 who fears God. ·If you are honest men, let one of you brothers be detained where 19 you are imprisoned; the rest of you, go and take supplies home for your starving families. ·But you must bring your youngest brother back to me; in this way, what 20 you have said will be verified, and you will not have to die!' And this is what they 37:18–27 did. ·And they said to one another, 'Clearly, we are being punished for what we 21 did to our brother. We saw his deep misery when he pleaded with us, but we would not listen, and now this misery has come home to us.' ·Reuben retorted to them, 22 37:22 'Did I not tell you not to wrong the boy? But you would not listen. Now comes the accounting.' ·They did not know that Joseph understood, because there was an 23 43:30 interpreter between them. ·He turned away from them and wept.[b] When he was 24 able to speak to them again, he chose Simeon out of their number and had him bound while they looked on.

Jacob's sons return to Canaan

25 Joseph gave the order to fill their panniers with grain, to put back each man's money in his sack, and to give them provisions for the journey. This was done for 26, 27 them. ·Then they loaded their supplies on their donkeys and went away. ·But when they camped for the night, one of them opened his sack to give his donkey 28 some fodder and saw his money—there it was in the mouth of his sack. ·He said to his brothers, 'My money has been put back; here it is, in my sack!' Their hearts sank, and they looked at one another in panic, saying, 'What is this that God has done to us?'[c]

29 Returning to their father Jacob in Canaan, they gave him a full report of what 30 had happened to them, ·'The man who is lord of the country spoke harshly to us, 31 accusing us of spying on the country. ·We told him, "We are honest men, we are 32 not spies. ·We were twelve brothers, sons of the same father. One of us is no more, 33 and the youngest is at present with our father in Canaan." ·But the man who is lord of the country said to us, "This is how I shall know whether you are honest: leave one of your brothers with me. Take supplies for your starving families and be gone, 34 but bring me back your youngest brother and then I shall know that you are not spies but honest men. Then I shall give your brother back to you and you will be free to move about the country." '

35 As they emptied their sacks, each discovered his bag of money in his sack. On 36 seeing their bags of money they were afraid, and so was their father. ·Then their father Jacob said to them, 'You are robbing me of my children; Joseph is no more; Simeon is no more; and now you want to take Benjamin. I bear the brunt of all this!'

37 Then Reuben said to his father, 'You may put my two sons to death if I do not 38 bring him back to you. Put him in my care and I will bring him back to you.'[d] ·But he replied, 'My son is not going down with you, for now his brother is dead he is the only one left.[e] If any harm came to him on the journey you are undertaking, 42:4
you would send my white head down to Sheol with grief!' 37:35
Nb 16:33f

Jacob's sons leave again with Benjamin[a]

1, 2 43 But the famine in the country grew worse, ·and when they had finished eating the supplies which they had brought from Egypt their father said to 3 them, 'Go back and get us a little food.' ·'But', Judah replied, 'the man expressly warned us, "You will not be admitted to my presence unless your brother is with 4 you." ·If you are ready to send our brother with us, we will go down and get food 5 for you. ·But if you are not ready to send him, we will not go down, in view of the man's warning, "You will not be admitted to my presence unless your brother is 6 with you." ' ·Then Israel said, 'Why did you bring this misery on me by telling the 7 man you had another brother?' ·They replied, 'He kept questioning us about ourselves and our family, asking, "Is your father still alive?" and, "Have you another brother?" That is why we told him. How could we know he was going to 8 say, "Bring your brother down here"?' ·Judah then said to his father Israel, 'Send 42:37 the boy with me, and let us be off and go, if we are to survive and not die, we, you,

g. The name Manasseh, menashsheh in Hebr., is explained by nashshani 'he has made me forget', ephraim by hiphrani 'he has made me fruitful'.

42 a. This narrative is almost entirely Elohistic. But the Yahwistic tradition of ch. 43 also knew of a first meeting of Joseph and his brothers, and some small traces of it are to be found here (especially vv. 27–28 and 38).

b. An interest in human emotions is one of the characteristics of the closing chapters of Gn.

c. vv. 27–28 belong to the Yahwistic tradition which made the brothers discover their money at the first stopping-place and at the top of the sacks, see 43:21. According to the Elohistic tradition (see v. 35) they found it at the bottom of the sacks when they reached home. Both traditions agree that the discovery filled the brothers with awe, as at a mysterious and supernatural event.

d. In the Yahwistic tradition, see 43:8–9, Judah and not Reuben is surety for Benjamin's return. Similarly, it was Judah according to the Yahwistic tradition (37:26), and Reuben according to the Elohistic (37:22), who intervened on Joseph's behalf.

e. i.e. the only one of the two sons of the beloved Rachel.

43 a. Except for a few short glosses ch. 43 and 44 are entirely Yahwistic.

and our dependants. •I will go surety for him, and you can hold me responsible for 9 him. If I do not bring him back to you and produce him before you, let me bear the blame all my life. •Indeed, if we had not wasted so much time we should have been 10 there and back twice by now!'

Then their father Israel said to them, 'If it must be so, then do this: take some of 11 the country's best products in your baggage and take them to the man as a gift:
37:25 some balsam, some honey, gum tragacanth, resin, pistachio nuts and almonds.
Take double the amount of money with you and return the money put back in 12
the mouths of your sacks; it may have been a mistake. •Take your brother, and go 13 17:1b back to the man. •May El Shaddai move the man to be kind to you, and allow you 14 to bring back your other brother and Benjamin. As for me, if I must be bereaved, 42:24 bereaved I must be.'

The meeting with Joseph

The men took this gift; they took double the amount of money with them, and 15 Benjamin. They set off, went down to Egypt and presented themselves before Joseph. •When Joseph saw Benjamin with them he said to his chamberlain, 'Take 16 these men into the house. Slaughter a beast and prepare it, for these men are to eat with me at midday.' •The man did as Joseph had ordered, and took the men to 17 Joseph's house.

The men were afraid at being taken to Joseph's house and said, 'We are being 18 taken there because of the money replaced in our sacks the first time. They will set on us; they will fall on us and make slaves of us, and take our donkeys too.' •So 19 they went up to Joseph's chamberlain and spoke to him at the entrance to the 42:27–28 house. •'By your leave, sir,' they said, 'we came down once before to get supplies, 20 and when we reached camp and opened our sacks, there was each man's money 21 in the mouth of his sack, to the full. But we have brought it back with us, •and we 22 have brought more money with us for the supplies. We do not know who put our money in our sacks.' •'Set your minds at ease,' he replied, 'do not be afraid. Your 23 God and the God of your father put treasure in your sacks for you. I received your money.'[b] And he brought Simeon out to them.

The man then took the men into Joseph's house. He offered them water to wash 24 their feet, and gave their donkeys fodder. •They arranged their gift while they 25 waited for Joseph to come at midday, for they had heard they were to dine there.

When Joseph arrived at the house they offered him the gift they had with 26 them,[c] bowing low before him. •He greeted them pleasantly, asking, 'Is your 27 father well, the old man you told me of? Is he still alive?' •'Your servant our father 28 is well,' they replied, 'he is still alive,' and they bowed respectfully. •Looking 29 about, he saw his brother Benjamin, his mother's son. 'Is this your youngest brother', he asked, 'of whom you told me?' And he added, 'God be good to you, 42:24 my son.'[d] •Joseph hurried out; so strong was the affection he felt for his brother 30 that he wanted to cry. He went into his room and there he wept. •After washing his 31 face he returned and, controlling himself, gave the order: 'Serve the meal.' •He 32 was served separately; so were they, and so were the Egyptians who ate in his household, for the Egyptians could not take food with Hebrews; Egyptians have a horror of doing so. •They were placed facing him in order of seniority, from the 33 eldest to the youngest, and the men looked at one another in amazement. •He had 34 portions carried to them from his own dish, the portion for Benjamin being five times larger than any of the others. And they feasted with him and drank freely.

Joseph's cup in Benjamin's sack

44 Then Joseph instructed his chamberlain as follows: 'Fill these men's sacks 1 with as much food as they can carry, and put each man's money in the mouth of his sack. •And put my cup, the silver one, in the mouth of the youngest 2 one's sack as well as the money for his rations.' He did as Joseph had instructed.

At daybreak, the men were sent off with their donkeys. •They had gone only a 3, 4 little way from the city, when Joseph said to his chamberlain, 'Away now and follow those men. When you catch up with them, say to them, "Why have you 5 repaid good with evil? ·Is this not what my lord uses for drinking and also for reading omens? [a] What you have done is wrong." '

6, 7 So when he caught up with them he repeated these words. ·They asked him, 'What does my lord mean? Your servants would never think of doing such a thing.
8 Look, we brought you back the money we found in the mouths of our sacks, all the way from Canaan. Are we likely to have stolen silver or gold from your master's 9 house? ·Whichever of your servants is found to have it shall die, and the rest of us
10 shall be slaves of my lord.' ·'Very well, then, it shall be as you say,' he replied, 'the one on whom it is found shall become my slave, but the rest of you can go free.'
11 Each of them quickly lowered his sack to the ground, and each opened his own.
12 He searched, beginning with the eldest and ending with the youngest, and found 13 the cup in Benjamin's sack. ·Then they tore their clothes, and when each man had reloaded his donkey they returned to the city.
14 When Judah and his brothers arrived at Joseph's house he was still there, so they 15 fell on the ground in front of him. ·'What do you mean by doing this?' Joseph asked them. 'Did you not know that a man such as I am is a reader of omens?'
16 'What can we answer my lord?' Judah replied. 'What can we say? How can we clear ourselves? God himself has uncovered your servants' guilt. [b] Here we are then, my lord's slaves, we no less than the one in whose possession the cup was 17 found.' ·'I could not think of doing such a thing,' he replied. 'The man in whose possession the cup was found shall be my slave, but you can go back unhindered to your father.'

Judah intervenes

18 At this, Judah went up to him and said, 'May it please my lord, let your servant have a word privately with my lord. Do not be angry with your servant, for you are 19 like Pharaoh himself. ·My lord questioned his servants, "Have you father or 20 brother?" ·And we said to my lord, "We have an old father, and a younger brother born of his old age. His brother is dead, so he is the only one by that mother now
21 left, and his father loves him." ·Then you said to your servants, "Bring him down
22 to me, so that I can set eyes on him." [c] ·We replied to my lord, "The boy cannot 23 leave his father. If he leaves him, his father will die." ·But you said to your servants, "If your youngest brother does not come down with you, you will not be 24 admitted to my presence again." ·When we went back to your servant my father, 25 we repeated to him what my lord had said. ·So when our father said, "Go back and 26 get us a little food," ·we said, "We cannot go down. We shall go only if our youngest brother is with us for, unless our youngest brother is with us, we shall not 27 be admitted to the man's presence." ·So your servant our father said to us, "You
28 know that my wife bore me two children. ·When one of them left me, I supposed that he must have been torn to pieces, and I have never seen him since. 37:33
29 If you take this one from me too and any harm comes to him, you will send my 30 white head down to Sheol with grief." ·If I go to your servant my father now, and we do not have the boy with us, he will die as soon as he sees that the boy is not 31 with us, [d] for his heart is bound up with him; ·and your servants will have sent your 32 servant our father's white head down to Sheol with grief. ·Now your servant went

Joseph makes himself known [a]

45 Then Joseph could not control his feelings in front of all his retainers, and 1 he exclaimed, 'Let everyone leave me.' No one therefore was present with him while Joseph made himself known to his brothers, ·but he wept so loudly that 2 all the Egyptians heard, and the news reached Pharaoh's palace. [b]

↗Ac 7:13 Joseph said to his brothers, 'I am Joseph. Is my father really still alive?' His 3
50:15 brothers could not answer him, they were so dumbfounded at seeing him. [c] ·Then 4 Joseph said to his brothers, 'Come closer to me.' When they had come closer to him he said, 'I am your brother Joseph whom you sold into Egypt. ·But now, do 5

Ps 105:17 before you to preserve your lives. [d] ·For this is the second year there has been 6 famine in the country, and there are still five years to come without ploughing or harvest. ·God sent me before you to assure the survival of your race on earth and 7 to save your lives by a great deliverance. ·So it was not you who sent me here but 8 God, and he has set me up as a father [e] to Pharaoh, as lord of all his household and governor of the whole of Egypt.

'Return quickly to your father and tell him, "Your son Joseph says this: 'God 9 has made me lord of all Egypt. Come down to me without delay. ·You will live in 10

Ex 8:18;9:26 grandchildren, your flocks, your cattle and all your possessions. ·There I shall 11 provide for you—for there are five years of famine still to come—so that you, your household and all yours are not reduced to penury.' " ·You can see with your own 12 eyes, and my brother Benjamin can see too, that I am who I say I am. ·Give my 13 father a full report of all the honour I enjoy in Egypt, and of all you have seen; and quickly bring my father down here.'

Then throwing his arms round the neck of his brother Benjamin he wept; and 14
Benjamin wept on his shoulder. ·He kissed all his brothers, weeping on each one. 15
Only then were his brothers able to talk to him.

Pharaoh's invitation

News reached Pharaoh's palace that Joseph's brothers had come, and Pharaoh 16 was pleased to hear it, as were his servants. ·Pharaoh told Joseph, 'Say to your 17 brothers, "Do this: load your beasts and hurry away to Canaan. ·Fetch your father 18 and your families, and come back to me. I will give you the best territory in Egypt, where you will live off the fat of the land." ·And you, for your part, give them this 19 order: [g] "Do this: take waggons from Egypt, for your little ones and your wives.
Get your father and come. ·Never mind about your property, for the best of all 20
Egypt will be yours." '

The return to Canaan

Israel's sons did as they were told. Joseph gave them waggons as Pharaoh had 21 ordered, and he gave them provisions for the journey. ·To each and every one he 22 gave new clothes, and to Benjamin three hundred shekels of silver and five changes 43:11 of clothes. ·And to his father he sent ten donkeys laden with the best that Egypt 23 offered, and ten she-donkeys laden with grain, bread and food for his father's journey. ·And so he sent his brothers on their way. His final words to them were, 24
'And let there be no upsets [h] on the way!'

And so they left Egypt. When they reached their father Jacob in Canaan, ·they 25, 26 gave him this report, 'Joseph is still alive. He is at this moment governor of all Egypt!' But he was as one stunned, for he did not believe them. ·However, when 27

they told him all Joseph had said to them, and when he saw the waggons that 28 Joseph had sent to fetch him, the spirit of their father Jacob revived, •and Israel said, 'That is enough! My son Joseph is still alive. I must go and see him before I die.'

Jacob leaves for Egypt [a]

1 46 So Israel set out with all his possessions. Arriving at Beersheba, he offered
2 sacrifices to the God of his father Isaac. •God spoke to Israel in a vision [b] at 31:24
3 night, 'Jacob, Jacob,' he said. 'Here I am,' he replied. •'I am El, God of your 26:23–24 father,' he said. 'Do not be afraid of going down to Egypt, for I will make you into 4 a great nation there. •I shall go down to Egypt with you and I myself shall bring 5 you back again, and Joseph's hand will close your eyes.' •So Jacob left Beersheba. Israel's sons conveyed their father Jacob, their little children and their wives in the waggons Pharaoh had sent to fetch him.
6 Taking their livestock and all that they had acquired in Canaan, they arrived in 7 Egypt—Jacob and all his offspring. •With him to Egypt, he brought his sons and grandsons, his daughters and granddaughters—all his offspring.

Jacob's family [c] ‖Nb 26:5seq.

8 These were the names of the Israelites, Jacob and his descendants, who arrived in Egypt:
9 Reuben, Jacob's first-born, •and the sons of Reuben: Hanoch, Pallu, Hezron
10 and Carmi. •The sons of Simeon: Jemuel, Jamin, Ohad, Jachin, Zohar, and Shaul 11 the son of the Canaanite woman. •The sons of Levi: Gershon, Kohath and Merari.
12 The sons of Judah: Er, Onan, Shelah, Perez, and Zerah (Er and Onan had died in 38:3–10 13 Canaan), and Hezron and Hamul sons of Perez. •The sons of Issachar: Tola, 14 Puvah, Jashub and Shimron. •The sons of Zebulun: Sered, Elon and Jahleel.
15 These were the sons that Leah had born to Jacob in Paddan-Aram, besides his daughter Dinah; in all, his sons and daughters numbered thirty-three.
16, 17 The sons of Gad: Ziphion, Haggi, Shuni, Ezbon, Eri, Arodi and Areli. •The sons of Asher: Jimnah, Jishvah, Jishvi, Beriah, with their sister Serah; the sons of 18 Beriah: Heber and Malchiel. •These were the sons of Zilpah whom Laban gave to his daughter Leah; she bore these to Jacob—sixteen persons.
19, 20 The sons of Rachel wife of Jacob: Joseph and Benjamin. •Born to Joseph in Egypt were: Manasseh and Ephraim sons of Asenath, daughter of Potiphera priest 41:45
21 of On. •The sons of Benjamin: Bela, Becher, Ashbel, Gera, Naaman, Ehi, Rosh, 22 Muppim, Huppim and Ard. •These were the sons that Rachel bore to Jacob—fourteen persons in all.
23, 24 The sons of Dan: Hushim. •The sons of Naphtali: Jahzeel, Guni, Jezer and 25 Shillem. •These were the sons of Bilhah whom Laban gave to his daughter Rachel; she bore these to Jacob—seven persons in all.
26 Altogether, the members of Jacob's family who arrived with him in Egypt—his own issue, not counting the wives of Jacob's sons—numbered sixty-six all told.
27 With Joseph's sons born to him in Egypt—two persons—the members of Jacob's family who went to Egypt totalled seventy. [d]

Joseph welcomes them

Israel sent Judah ahead to Joseph, so that Judah might present himself[e] to Joseph 28 in Goshen. When they arrived in Goshen, ·Joseph had his chariot made ready and 29 45:15 went up to Goshen to meet his father Israel. As soon as he appeared he threw his arms round his neck and for a long time wept on his shoulder. ·Israel said to 30 Joseph, 'Now I can die, now that I have seen you in person and seen you still alive.'
45:16seq. Then Joseph said to his brothers and his father's family, 'I shall go back and 31 break the news to Pharaoh. I shall tell him, "My brothers and my father's family who were in Canaan have come to me. ·The men are shepherds and look after 32 livestock, and they have brought their flocks and cattle and all their possessions."
Thus, when Pharaoh summons you and asks, "What is your occupation?", ·you 33, 34 are to say, "Ever since our boyhood your servants have looked after livestock, we and our fathers before us," so that you can stay in the Goshen region—for the Egyptians have a horror of all shepherds.'[f]

Pharaoh grants an audience

47 So Joseph went and told Pharaoh, 'My father and brothers have arrived 1 from Canaan with their flocks and cattle and all their possessions. Here they are, in the region of Goshen.' ·He had taken five of his brothers, and he now 2 presented them to Pharaoh. ·Pharaoh asked his brothers, 'What is your occupa- 3 tion?' and they gave Pharaoh the answer, 'Your servants are shepherds, like our fathers before us.' ·They went on to tell Pharaoh, 'We have come to stay in this 4 country for the time being, since there is no pasturage for your servants' flocks, Canaan being stricken with famine. So now please allow your servants to settle in the region of Goshen.' ·Then Pharaoh said to Joseph, ·'They may stay in the region 5a, 6b of Goshen, and if you know of any capable men among them, put them in charge of my own livestock.'

Another version[a]

Jacob and his sons went to Egypt where Joseph was. Pharaoh king of Egypt heard 5b about this and said to Joseph, 'Your father and brothers have come to you.
The country of Egypt is open to you: settle your father and brothers in the best 6a region.'[b] ·Joseph brought his father and presented him to Pharaoh. Jacob paid his 7 respects to Pharaoh. ·Pharaoh asked Jacob, 'How many years have you lived?' 8 25:7;35:28; 47:48 Jacob said to Pharaoh, 'The years of my stay on earth add up to one hundred and 9 thirty years. Few and unhappy my years have been, falling short of my ancestors' years in their stay on earth.' ·Jacob then took leave of Pharaoh and withdrew from 10 his presence. ·Joseph then settled his father and brothers, giving them land hold- 11
Ex 1:11;12:37 ings in Egypt, in the best part of the country, the region of Rameses,[c] as Pharaoh had ordered.

Joseph provided his father, brothers and all his father's family with food, down 12 to the least of them.

Joseph's agrarian policy[d]

And on all the earth around there was now no food anywhere, for the famine had 13 grown very severe, and Egypt and Canaan were both weak with hunger. ·Joseph 14 accumulated all the money to be found in Egypt and Canaan, in exchange for the supplies being handed out, and put the money in Pharaoh's palace.

When all the money in Egypt and Canaan was exhausted, all the Egyptians came 15 to Joseph, pleading, 'Give us food, unless you want us to die before your eyes! For our money has come to an end.' ·Joseph replied, 'Hand over your livestock and I 16 will issue you food[c] in exchange for your livestock, if your money has come to an end.' ·So they brought their livestock to Joseph, and Joseph gave them food in 17 exchange for horses and livestock, whether sheep or cattle, and for donkeys. Thus he saw them through that year with food in exchange for all their livestock.

When that year was over, they came to him the next year, and said to him, 'We 18 cannot hide it from my lord: the truth is, our money has run out and the livestock is in my lord's possession. There is nothing left for my lord except our bodies and 19 our land. ·If we and our land are not to perish, take us and our land in exchange for food, and we with our land will become Pharaoh's serfs; only give us seed, so that we can survive and not die and the land not revert to desert!'

20 Thus Joseph acquired all the land in Egypt for Pharaoh, since one by one the Egyptians sold their fields, so hard pressed were they by the famine; and the whole 21 country passed into Pharaoh's possession, ·while the people he reduced to serf-22 dom[f] from one end of Egypt to the other. ·The only land he did not acquire belonged to the priests, for the priests received an allowance from Pharaoh and lived on the allowance that Pharaoh gave them. Hence they had no need to sell their land.
23 Then Joseph said to the people, 'This is how we stand: I have bought you out, 24 with your land, on Pharaoh's behalf. Here is seed for you to sow the land. ·But of the harvest you must give a fifth to Pharaoh. The other four-fifths you can have for sowing your fields, to provide food for yourselves and your households, and food 25 for your children.' ·'You have saved our lives!' they replied. 'If it please my lord, 26 we will become serfs to Pharaoh.' ·So Joseph made a law, still in force today, as regards the soil of Egypt, that one-fifth should go to Pharaoh. Only the land of the 41:34 priests did not go to Pharaoh.

Jacob's last wishes[g]

27 Thus Israel settled in Egypt, in the region of Goshen. They acquired property 28 there; they were fruitful and grew very numerous. ·Jacob lived seventeen years in 29 Egypt; thus Jacob's total age came to a hundred and forty-seven years. · When Israel's time to die drew near he sent for his son Joseph and said to him, 'If you =49:29–32; 50:6
really love me, place your hand under my thigh as pledge that you will act with 24:2b 30 faithful love towards me: do not bury me in Egypt! ·When I lie down with my ancestors, carry me out of Egypt and bury me in their tomb.' 'I shall do as you say,' 31 he replied. ·'Swear to me,' he insisted. So he swore to him, and Israel sank back on 1 K 1:47 ↗Heb 11:21
the pillow.[h]

Jacob adopts Joseph's two sons and blesses them[a]

1 48 Some time later, Joseph was informed, 'Your father has been taken ill.' So 2 he took with him his two sons Manasseh and Ephraim. ·When Jacob was told, 'Look, your son Joseph has come to you,' Israel, summoning his strength, sat 3 up in bed. ·'El Shaddai appeared to me at Luz in Canaan,' Jacob told Joseph, 'and 17:1b;35:6, 11–12;
4 he blessed me, ·saying to me, "I shall make you fruitful and numerous, and shall 28:13–14 make you into an assembly of peoples and give this country to your descendants 5 after you, to own in perpetuity." ·Now your two sons, born to you in Egypt before

c. Used here, the name is an anachronism: it was at a later period that 'Rameses' (Tanis or Qantir) got its name from Rameses II.

d. This Yahwistic section follows on ch. 41. The Israelites, accustomed to the idea of private property, were surprised by the Egyptian system: almost all the land was crown property. It may be that in the days of Solomon, when the lands of the crown were being enlarged, when taxes in kind were imposed and forced labour instituted, wise men at court regarded the Egyptian system as the ideal to be achieved and ascribed the distinction of having devised it to Joseph.

48 a. This chapter is an amalgam of several traditions: Yahwistic-Elohistic, vv. 1–2, 8–22; Priestly, vv. 3–7. These traditions use Jacob's dying bequest to show why it was that Manasseh and Ephraim, sons of Joseph, became fathers of tribes with the same status as that of Jacob's sons, why also their two tribes prospered and why Ephraim's outstripped Manasseh's.

I came to you in Egypt, shall be mine; Ephraim and Manasseh shall be as much mine as Reuben and Simeon. •But with regard to the children you have had since 6 them, they shall be yours, and they shall be known by their brothers' names for the purpose of their inheritance.
35:16–20 'When I was on my way from Paddan, to my sorrow death took your mother[b] 7 Rachel from me in Canaan, on the journey while only a short distance from Ephrath. I buried her there on the road to Ephrath—now Bethlehem.'
When Israel saw Joseph's two sons, he asked, 'Who are these?' •'They are my 8, 9 sons, whom God has given me here,' Joseph told his father. 'Then bring them to me', he said, 'so that I may bless them.' •Now, Israel's eyes were dim with age, and 10 he could not see. So Joseph made them come closer to him and he kissed and embraced them. •Then Israel said to Joseph, 'I did not think I should ever see you 11 again, and now God has let me see your children as well!' •Then Joseph took them 12 from his lap and bowed to the ground.[c]
Then Joseph took the two of them, Ephraim with his right hand so that he should 13 be on Israel's left, and Manasseh with his left hand, so that he should be on Israel's right, and brought them close to him. •But Israel held out his right hand and laid it 14 on the head of Ephraim, the younger, and his left on the head of Manasseh, crossing his hands—Manasseh was, in fact, the elder. •Then he blessed Joseph 15 saying:

May the God in whose presence my fathers Abraham and Isaac walked, 49:24seq. Ps 23:1;80: 2–3 •16:7c the God who has been my shepherd from my birth until this day, the Angel who has saved me from all harm, bless these boys, 16 so that my name may live on in them, and the names of my ancestors Abraham and Isaac,
and they grow into teeming multitudes on earth!

Joseph saw that his father was laying his right hand on the head of Ephraim, and 17 this he thought was wrong, so he took his father's hand and tried to shift it from the head of Ephraim to the head of Manasseh. •Joseph protested to his father, 'Not 18 like that, father! This one is the elder; put your right hand on his head.'[d] •But his 19 father refused. 'I know, my son, I know,' he said. 'He too shall become a people; Dt 33:17 he too will be great. But his younger brother will be greater, his offspring will be sufficient to constitute nations.'[e]
So he blessed them that day, saying: 20

12:3b By you[f] shall Israel bless itself, saying,
'God make you like Ephraim and Manasseh!'

putting Ephraim before Manasseh.
Then Israel said to Joseph, 'Now I am about to die. But God will be with you 21 and take you back to the land of your ancestors. •As for me, I give you a Shechem[g] 22 more than your brothers, the one I took from the Amorites with my sword and bow.'

c. The children were placed in Jacob's lap (lit. 'between the knees'), evidently part of an adoption-rite, see 30:3 and, on adoption, 16:2, 26, Joseph receives them back and prostrates himself to receive, with them, his father's blessing.

d. The gestures of blessing were considered as efficacious in themselves, the right hand conferring more than the left.

e. Ephraim did in fact become the most influential of the northern group of tribes and the nucleus of the future kingdom of Israel.

f. 'you' plural, Targ., Gk; singular, Hebr.

g. There is a play on the Hebrew word shekem which means 'shoulder' but is also the name of the town and district of Shechem which was to become the property of the sons of Joseph where Joseph himself was to be buried, Jos 24:32. Jacob apportions out the Holy Land just as a paterfamilias, or the presiding personage, assigns the portions in a sacrificial banquet, 1 S 1:4 seq., the shoulder being one of the choicest parts, 1 S 9:23–24. This is an isolated piece of tradition dealing with Jacob's apportionment of Canaan and an armed conquest of Shechem where, according to 33:19, Jacob had done no more than buy a field.

49 a. Traditionally known as the 'blessings of Jacob', these are more properly prophecies, see v. 1; in words which are themselves efficacious, the patriarch foretells the destiny of his sons, i.e., of the tribes bearing their names. Doubtless the prophecies allude to events of the patriarchal age (Reuben, Simeon, Levi) but they deal with a much later historical situation. The high honour assigned to Judah and the tribute paid to the House of Joseph (Ephraim and Manasseh) point to a period when those tribes together played a leading part in the life of the nation; in its final form the poem cannot be earlier than David's time, but many of its elements date from before the monarchy. The poem was inserted in Gn at a relatively late date; it is impossible to ascribe it to any of the three great 'sources' with any certainty. See the collective picture of the tribes in the (earlier) Song of Deborah, Jg 5, and in the (later) Blessings of Moses, Dt 33.

b. 'Ali 'to my sorrow' conj.; 'Hebr. 'alah, he has climbed'. Reuben, the first-born, forfeits the position of honour as a punishment for his incest. The tribe was still important in the days of the Song of Deborah, but in the Blessings of Moses its military strength is considered negligible, Dt 33:6.

c. The two are cursed for their treacherous attack on Shechem. Both tribes are to be scattered in Israel: Simeon very soon ceased to exist, being for the most part absorbed in Judah; Levi vanished as a secular tribe but Dt 33:8–11 makes much of its religious function of which nothing is said here.

d. 'in . . . plans' Vet. Lat., Gk; Hebr. corrupt.

e. To the prediction of Judah's primacy and power, vv. 8–9, is added a messianic prophecy, vv. 10–12. • In Dt 33:7 Judah lives apart from the others: by then the kingdom had split.

f. In Hebrew yodu, a play on 'Judah', see 29:35.

g. Text and meaning much disputed: 'tribute be brought him' conj., emendation of vowel sounds in MT '(until) Shiloh come'. The reference is to David as founder of an empire, but also as type of the Messiah.

h. lit. 'to whom the obedience', with Hebr.; the versions read 'the hope', thus making the messianic sense of the passage explicit.

i. 'sailor' conj.; Hebr. repeats 'on board'. Zebulun was to settle on the coast, near Phoenicia (Sidon).

Jacob's last moments and death[x]

Then he gave them these instructions, 'I am about to be gathered to my people. 29 23 Bury me with my ancestors, in the cave that is in the field of Ephron the Hittite, in the cave in the field at Machpelah, facing Mamre, in Canaan, which Abraham 30 bought[y] from Ephron the Hittite as a burial site of his own. ·There Abraham and 31 his wife Sarah were buried. There Isaac and his wife Rebekah were buried; and there I buried Leah—·the field and the cave in it which were bought from the 32 Hittites.'

33 When Jacob had finished giving his instructions to his sons, he drew his feet up 48:2 into the bed, and breathing his last was gathered to his people.

Jacob's funeral [a]

1 50 At this Joseph threw himself on his father's face, covering it with tears and 46:4
2 kisses. ·Then Joseph ordered the doctors in his service to embalm his father.
3 The doctors embalmed Israel, ·and it took them forty days, for embalming takes forty days to complete.
4 The Egyptians mourned him for seventy days. ·When the period of mourning for him was over, Joseph said to Pharaoh's household, 'If you have any affection 5 for me, see that this message reaches Pharaoh's ears, ·"My father put me under oath, saying: I am about to die. In the tomb which I dug for myself in Canaan, that is where you are to bury me. So may I have leave to go up and bury my father, and 6 then come back?" ' ·Pharaoh replied, 'Go up and bury your father, as he made you swear to do.'
7 Joseph went up to bury his father, and with him went all Pharaoh's officials, the 8 dignitaries of his palace and all the dignitaries of Egypt, ·as well as all Joseph's family, his brothers and his father's family. The only people they left behind in 9 Goshen were those unfit to travel, [b] and their flocks and cattle. ·Chariots and horsemen went up with him too; it was a very large retinue.
10 On arriving at Goren-ha-Atad, which is across the Jordan, they there held a long 1 S 31:13i and solemn lamentation, and Joseph observed seven days' mourning for his father.
11 When the Canaanites, the local inhabitants, witnessed the mourning at Goren-ha-Atad, they said, 'This is a solemn act of mourning by the Egyptians,' which is why the place was given the name Abel-Mizraim [c]—it is across the Jordan.
12, 13 His sons did what he had ordered them to do for him. ·His sons carried him to ↗Ac 7:16 Canaan and buried him in the cave in the field at Machpelah, facing Mamre, which Abraham had bought from Ephron the Hittite as a burial site of his own.
14 Then Joseph returned to Egypt with his brothers and all those who had come up with him to bury his father. [d]

From the death of Jacob to the death of Joseph

15 Seeing that their father was dead, Joseph's brothers said, 'What if Joseph intends 16 to treat us as enemies and pay us back for all the wrong we did him?' ·So they sent 17 this message to Joseph: 'Before your father died, he gave us this order: ·"You are to say to Joseph: Now please forgive the crime and faults of your brothers and all the wrong they did you." So now please forgive the crime of the servants of your 37 father's God.' Joseph wept at the message they sent to him.

j. Issachar, ensconced in the fertile plain of Esdraelon, grew soft and accepted the yoke of the Canaanites.

k. 'Dan will govern' dan yadin, play on words as in 30:6.

l. The venomous horned viper.

m. An invocation in the manner of the Psalms; it marks approximately the middle of the poem.

n. v. 19 is alliterative: gad gedud yegudennu . . . ya-gud. Gad, settled in Transjordan, had to defend itself from raiding nomads.

o. 'fawns' 'immere conj.; Hebr. 'imre, 'words'. The text is uncertain.

p. Trans. conj.; Hebr. obscure.

q. The translation of v. 24^{a-b} is based on Gk; Hebr. unintelligible. The 'Stone of Israel', equivalent to the 'Rock', a frequent title of Yahweh in the Psalms.

r. 'El Shaddai' versions; 'with Shaddai' Hebr.

s. The subterranean flood whose waters irrigate the earth, Dt 8:7.

t. 'blessings of the grain and flowers' conj.; 'the blessings of your father exceeded' Hebr. • 'eternal mountains' Gk and Dt 33:15; Hebr. confused.

u. 'dedicated' Hebr. nazir, see Nb 6.

v. This picture of a bellicose Benjamin is vindicated by the tribe's subsequent history, see Jg 3:15 seq.; 5:14; 19–20 and the career of Saul, 1 S.

w. 'each' several MSS and Gk; 'the man who' Hebr.

x. The end of Jacob's life according to the Priestly tradition.

y. After 'bought', Hebr. repeats 'the field', as also in 50:13.

50 a. This chapter mingles the Yahwistic, vv. 1–11 and 14, and Elohistic, vv. 15–26, traditions; there is also a trace, vv. 12–13, of the Priestly tradition.

b. The usual translation is 'the small children', but the Hebrew word here and in certain other places (43:8; 47:12; 50:8, 21) has a wider meaning: dependants, the very young and the very old.

c. Goren-ha-'atad means 'Threshing-floor of the Bramble'; 'abel-mitzrayim ('Meadow of Egypt') gives opportunity for a play on words ('abel 'meadow' and 'ebel 'mourning'). Neither locality is known. There are traces here of a tradition other than that relating to the family grave at Machpelah, namely that Jacob was buried in Transjordan.

d. At the end of the v., Hebr. adds 'after he had buried his father', a gloss omitted by Gk.

Then his brothers went to him themselves and, throwing themselves at his feet, 18
45:5 said, 'Take us as your slaves!' ·But Joseph replied, 'Do not be afraid; is it for me to 19
Rm 12:19 put myself in God's place? ·The evil you planned to do me has by God's design 20
Rm 8:28 Ph 1:12 been turned to good, to bring about the present result: the survival of a numerous people. ·So there is no need to be afraid; I shall provide for you and your 21 dependants.' In this way he reassured them by speaking affectionately to them.

So Joseph stayed in Egypt with his father's family; and Joseph lived a hundred 22 and ten years. ·Joseph saw the third generation of Ephraim's line, as also the 23
48:12 children of Machir son of Manasseh, who were born on Joseph's lap. ·At length 24
Ex 12:41 Joseph said to his brothers, 'I am about to die; but God will be sure to remember you kindly and take you out of this country to the country which he promised on oath to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob.' ·And Joseph put Israel's sons on oath, saying, 25
Ex 13:19 Jos 24:32 Heb 11:22 'When God remembers you with kindness, be sure to take my bones away from here.'

Joseph died at the age of a hundred and ten; he was embalmed and laid in a 26 coffin in Egypt.

EXODUS

I: THE LIBERATION FROM EGYPT

A: ISRAEL IN EGYPT [a]

The prosperity of the Hebrews in Egypt

1 These are the names of the Israelites who went with Jacob to Egypt, each of Gn 46:1–27
2, 3 them went with his family: ·Reuben, Simeon, Levi and Judah, ·Issachar, ↗Ac 7:14–17
4, 5 Zebulun and Benjamin, ·Dan and Naphtali, Gad and Asher. ·In all, the descen-
6 dants of Jacob numbered seventy persons. Joseph was in Egypt already. [b] ·Then ‖Gn 46:27
7 Joseph died, and his brothers, and all that generation. ·But the Israelites were Dt 10:22 ·Gn 50:26 fruitful and prolific; they became so numerous and powerful that eventually the Ps 105:24 ↗Ac 13:17 whole land was full of them.

The Hebrews oppressed

8 Then there came to power in Egypt a new king who had never heard of Joseph. ↗Ac 7:18–19
9 'Look,' he said to his people, 'the Israelites are now more numerous and stronger
10 than we are. ·We must take precautions to stop them from increasing any further, Ps 105:25 or if war should break out, they might join the ranks of our enemies. They might 11 take arms against us and then escape from the country.' ·Accordingly they put taskmasters over the Israelites to wear them down by forced labour. [c] In this way 12 they built the store-cities of Pithom and Rameses [d] for Pharaoh. [e] ·But the harder Gn 47:11 their lives were made, the more they increased and spread, until people came to 13 fear the Israelites. ·So the Egyptians gave them no mercy in the demands they 14 made, ·making their lives miserable with hard labour: with digging clay, making bricks, doing various kinds of field-work—all sorts of labour that they imposed on Dt 11:10 them without mercy. [f]
15 The king of Egypt then spoke to the Hebrew midwives, one of whom was called 16 Shiphrah, and the other Puah. ·'When you attend Hebrew women in childbirth,' 17 he said, 'look at the two stones. [g] If it is a boy, kill him; if a girl, let her live.' ·But

1 a. vv. 1–5 are from the Priestly source, the remainder of ch. 1 being ascribed to the Yahwistic (vv. 6–14) and Elohistic (vv. 15 seq.) traditions. The author does not describe the life of the Israelite communities in Egypt; he mentions only what is to his purpose. This purpose is to write a religious history: the increase in numbers of Jacob's descendants and the Egyptian persecution are recorded because they lead up to the account of the Exodus and the Sinaitic covenant. For the historical setting of these events, see Introduction to the Pentateuch §3.

b. The Gk reads 'seventy-five', see Gn 46:27d, and makes 'Joseph was in Egypt' the opening of the verse.

c. Egypt does not seem to have had a regular system of forced labour, though the manpower for major undertakings was provided in part by prisoners of war and by serfs attached to the royal domains, see for Israel, 2 S 12:31. The Israelites regarded being reduced to these inferior categories as an intolerable form of oppression. It is not surprising that they wanted to return to their free way of life in the desert; nor that the Egyptians took the suggestion as a form of slave-revolt.

d. Residence in the Delta of Pharaoh Rameses II; to be identified either with Tanis or with Qantir. The reference indicates Rameses II (1290–1224) as the oppressive Pharaoh and gives an approximate date for the Exodus.

e. The Egyptian is per-aa, 'the great House', conventional designation of the Palace or Court and, from the 18th dynasty onwards, of the king's own person. Here, 'Pharaoh' is used as a proper name.

f. The story of the oppression is continued at 5:6–23. In the following vv. (Elohistic), the measures taken for the destruction of the male children do not tally with the requirements of forced labour, but prepare the ground for the story of the birth of Moses.

g. The seat on which the woman was placed while in labour (or the sexual organs of the infant?); Syr. 'the two knees'; Gk interprets freely 'when they are about to give birth'.

the midwives were God-fearing women and did not obey the orders of the king of Egypt, but allowed the boys to live. ·So the king of Egypt summoned the midwives 18 and said to them, 'What do you mean by allowing the boys to live?' ·The midwives 19 said to Pharaoh, 'Hebrew women are not like Egyptian women, they are hardy and give birth before the midwife can get to them.' ·For this, God was good to the 20 midwives, and the people went on increasing and growing more powerful; ·and 21 since the midwives feared God, he gave them families of their own.

Pharaoh then gave all his people this command: 'Throw every new-born boy into 22
the river,[h] but let all the girls live.'

B: EARLY LIFE OF MOSES

The birth of Moses[a]

6:20 2 There was a man descended from Levi who had taken a woman of Levi as his 1 ↗Ac7:20seq. ↗Heb 11:23 wife. ·She conceived and gave birth to a son and, seeing what a fine child he 2 was, she kept him hidden for three months. ·When she could hide him no longer, 3 she got a papyrus basket for him; coating it with bitumen and pitch, she put the child inside and laid it among the reeds at the River's edge. ·His sister took up 4 position some distance away to see what would happen to him.

Now Pharaoh's daughter went down to bathe in the river, while her maids 5 walked along the riverside. Among the reeds she noticed the basket, and she sent her maid to fetch it. ·She opened it and saw the child: the baby was crying. Feeling 6 sorry for it, she said, 'This is one of the little Hebrews.' ·The child's sister then said 7 to Pharaoh's daughter, 'Shall I go and find you a nurse among the Hebrew women to nurse the child for you?' ·'Yes,' said Pharaoh's daughter, and the girl went and 8 called the child's own mother. ·Pharaoh's daughter said to her, 'Take this child 9 away and nurse it for me. I shall pay you myself for doing so.' So the woman took the child away and nursed it. ·When the child grew up, she brought him to 10 ↗Ac 7:21 Pharaoh's daughter who treated him like a son; she named him Moses 'because', she said, 'I drew him out of the water.'[b]

Moses escapes to Midian[c]

↗Heb11:24–27 Ac 7:23–29,29g It happened one day, when Moses was grown up,[d] that he went to see his kinsmen. 11
While he was watching their forced labour he also saw an Egyptian striking a Hebrew, one of his kinsmen. ·Looking this way and that and seeing no one in sight, 12
he killed the Egyptian and hid him in the sand. ·On the following day he came 13 back, and there were two Hebrews, fighting. He said to the man who was in the wrong, 'What do you mean by hitting your kinsman?' ·'And who appointed you', 14 ↗Ac 7:35 the man retorted, 'to be prince over us and judge? Do you intend to kill me as you killed the Egyptian?' Moses was frightened. 'Clearly that business has come to light,' he thought. ·When Pharaoh heard of the matter, he tried to put Moses to 15 ↗Ac 7:29 death, but Moses fled from Pharaoh. He went[e] into Midianite territory and sat down beside a well.

Now there was a priest of Midian[f] with seven daughters. They used to come to 16
Gn24:11seq.; 29:2seq. draw water and fill the troughs to water their father's flock. ·Some shepherds came 17 and drove them away, but Moses sprang to their help and watered their flock.
When they returned to their father Reuel,[g] he said to them, 'Why are you back so 18 early today?' ·'An Egyptian protected us from the shepherds,' they said, 'and he 19 even drew water for us and watered the flock.' ·'And where is he?' he asked his 20 daughters. 'Why did you leave the man there? Ask him to eat with us.' ·Moses 21 agreed to stay on there with the man, who gave him his daughter Zipporah in marriage. ·She gave birth to a son, whom he named Gershom[h] 'because', he said, 22 18:3 'I am an alien in a foreign land.'

C: THE CALL OF MOSES

God remembers Israel [i]

23 During this long period the king of Egypt died. The Israelites, groaning in their slavery, cried out for help and from the depths of their slavery their cry came up to 24 God. •God heard their groaning; God remembered his covenant with Abraham, 25 Isaac and Jacob. •God saw the Israelites and took note. . .

1 3 Moses was looking after the flock of his father-in-law Jethro, the priest of Midian; he led it to the far side of the desert and came to Horeb, [b] the mountain 2 of God. •The angel of Yahweh [c] appeared to him in a flame blazing from the middle of a bush. Moses looked; there was the bush blazing, but the bush was not being 3 burnt up. •Moses said, 'I must go across and see this strange sight, and why the 4 bush is not being burnt up.' •When Yahweh saw him going across to look, God called to him from the middle of the bush. 'Moses, Moses!' he said. 'Here I am,' he 5 answered. •'Come no nearer,' he said. 'Take off your sandals, for the place where 6 you are standing is holy ground. •I am the God of your ancestors,' he said, 'the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac and the God of Jacob.' At this Moses covered his face, for he was afraid to look at God. [d]

The mission of Moses

7 Yahweh then said, 'I have indeed seen the misery of my people in Egypt. I have heard them crying for help on account of their taskmasters. Yes, I am well aware 8 of their sufferings. •And I have come down to rescue them from the clutches of the Egyptians and bring them up out of that country, to a country rich and broad, to a country flowing with milk and honey, [e] to the home of the Canaanites, the Hittites, 9 the Amorites, the Perizzites, the Hivites and the Jebusites. •Yes indeed, the

Dt 7:1a

h. The word indicates the Nile, the great river of Egypt, but is also used of its main branches.

2 a. Attributed to the Yahwistic-Elohistic tradition, or else to the Elohistic alone.

b. Popular etymology of the name Moses (Hebr. mosheh) from the verb mashah 'to draw out'. But Pharaoh's daughter did not speak Hebrew. In point of fact, the name is Egyptian, known under its shortened form, moses, or under a complete form, e.g. Tutmoses, 'the god Tut is born'. • The story of Moses drawn from the waters invites comparison with infancy-legends about other famous personalities, notably Sargon of Agade king of Mesopotamia in the third millennium, whose mother entrusted him to the river in a basket of reeds.

c. vv. 11–22 (or, as some think, only 15–22) belong to the Yahwistic tradition. • Midian is usually sited in Arabia, to the south of Edom and to the east of the Gulf of Aqaba, and Arabic folklore has preserved the memory of a stay by Moses in this region. This localisation is late, however, and a number of texts show us the Midianites as long-distance nomads frequenting the highways of Palestine, Gn 37:28, 36, and of the Sinai peninsula, Nb 10:29–32, and making incursions into Moab, Gn 36:35, see also Nb 22:4, 7; 25:6, 18; 31:1–9; Jos 13:21. It was in Central Palestine that they were defeated by Gideon, Jg 6–8; see Is 9:3; 10:26. More precise indication of where their territory lay is given in 1 K 11:18, where a prince of Edom, fleeing to Egypt, crosses Midian and then Paran (the southern part of the Negeb, between Kadesh and Egypt). Thus Midian where God revealed himself to Moses is to be situated in the Sinai peninsula, to the east of the desert of Paran, and not in Arabia.

d. The text says nothing about Moses' education. 11:3 merely stating that he had become 'a man of great importance' and Ac 7:22 that he was 'taught all the wisdom of the Egyptians'. Josephus and Philo add legendary details.

e. 'He went' Gk, Syr.; 'he settled' Hebr.

f. see 18:1a.

g. The texts disagree over the name and person of Moses' father-in-law. Here we have Reuel, priest of Midian; in 3:1; 4:18; 18:1, he is called Jethro; Nb 10:29 speaks of Hobab son of Reuel the Midianite, and Jg 1:16; 4:11 of Hobab the Kenite. The mention of Reuel here may be set aside as secondary, and Nb 10:29 be taken as an attempt to reconcile the two traditions, a Kenite marriage and a Midianite marriage. The two traditions are in fact independent of each other and it is a mistake to try to harmonise them. The first, Yahwistic, and originating in Southern Palestine, reflects the existence of friendly relations between Judah and the Kenites, while preserving the memory of Moses' marriage to a foreigner. The second, Elohistic, and closely linked to the Exodus from Egypt, should be retained as historical.

h. Popular etymology, accounting only for the first syllable: ger, a resident alien.

i. Priestly tradition.

j. End of v. missing.

3 a. This first account (ch. 3–4) of the call of Moses combines Yahwistic, vv. 1–5, 16–20 (theophany and commissioning of Moses) and Elohistic elements, vv. 6, 9–15 (revelation of the divine name). A second, Priestly, account of the revelation of the divine name and commissioning of Moses, this time in Egypt, occurs in 6:2–13 and 6:28–7:7.

b. Horeb is the name for the Sinai Range in the historical context of the Deuteronomist and in the Deuteronomic editing of the Book of Kings. Here, it is a gloss, as in 17:6.

c. God manifesting himself in the world. see Gn 16:7c.

d. God's majesty is such that no creature can gaze on it and live.

e. Description of the Promised Land frequent in the Pentateuch.

Israelites' cry for help has reached me, and I have also seen the cruel way in which the Egyptians are oppressing them. •So now I am sending you to Pharaoh, for you 10 to bring my people the Israelites out of Egypt.'

Nb 12:3 Is 6:5 Jr 1:6 •1 S 14:10c ↗Ac 7:7

Moses said to God, 'Who am I to go to Pharaoh and bring the Israelites out of 11
Egypt?' •'I shall be with you,' God said, 'and this is the sign by which you will know 12 that I was the one who sent you. f After you have led the people out of Egypt, you will worship God on this mountain.'

The divine name revealed g

Jn 17:6,26 Is 42:8e ↗Jn 8:24g ↗Rv 1:4g

Moses then said to God, 'Look, if I go to the Israelites and say to them, "The God 13 of your ancestors has sent me to you," and they say to me, "What is his name?"
what am I to tell them?' •God said to Moses, 'I am he who is.' And he said, 'This is 14 what you are to say to the Israelites, "I am has sent me to you." ' •God further said 15 to Moses, 'You are to tell the Israelites, "Yahweh, the God of your ancestors, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac and the God of Jacob, has sent me to you."
This is my name for all time, and thus I am to be invoked for all generations to come.

Moses instructed for his mission

Dt 7:1a

'Go, gather the elders of Israel together and tell them, "Yahweh, the God of your 16 ancestors, has appeared to me—the God of Abraham, of Isaac and of Jacob—and has indeed visited h you and seen what is being done to you in Egypt, •and has said: 17
I shall bring you out of the misery of Egypt to the country of the Canaanites, the Hittites, the Amorites, the Perizzites, the Hivites and the Jebusites, to a country flowing with milk and honey." •They will listen to your words, and you and the 18 elders of Israel are to go to the king of Egypt and say to him, "Yahweh, the God of the Hebrews, has encountered us. So now please allow us to make a three-days' journey into the desert and sacrifice to Yahweh our God." •I am well aware that 19
the king of Egypt will not let you go unless he is compelled by a mighty hand; •he 20 will not let you go until I have stretched out my arm and struck Egypt with all the wonders I intend to work there.

The Egyptians to be plundered

11:2–3; 12:35–36 ↗Ws 10:17

'I shall ensure that the Egyptians are so much impressed with this people that when 21
you go, you will not go empty-handed. •Every woman will ask her neighbour and 22 the woman staying in her house for silver and golden jewellery, and clothing. In these you will dress your own sons and daughters, despoiling the Egyptians of them.'

Moses granted miraculous powers

Mt 13:57 7:8–12

4 Moses replied as follows, 'But suppose they will not believe me or listen to 1 my words, and say to me, "Yahweh has not appeared to you"?' •Yahweh 2 then said, 'What is that in your hand?' 'A staff,' he said. •'Throw it on the ground,' 3 said Yahweh. Moses threw it on the ground; the staff turned into a snake and Moses recoiled from it. •Yahweh then said to Moses, 'Reach out your hand and 4 catch it by the tail.' He reached out his hand, caught it, and in his hand it turned back into a staff. a •'Thus they may believe that Yahweh, the God of their ancestors, 5 the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac and the God of Jacob, has appeared to you.'

Lv 13:1a

Next, Yahweh said to him, 'Put your hand inside your tunic.' He put his hand 6 inside his tunic, then drew it out again: and his hand was diseased, white as snow.
Yahweh then said, 'Put your hand back inside your tunic.' He put his hand back 7 inside his tunic and when he drew it out, there it was restored, just like the rest of his flesh. •'Even so: should they not believe you nor be convinced by the first sign, 8 the second sign will convince them; •but should they not be convinced by either of 9
these two signs and refuse to listen to what you say, you are to take some water from the River and pour it on the ground, and the water you have taken from the River will turn to blood on the dry land.'

Aaron, the mouthpiece of Moses

11 you have spoken to your servant, for I am slow and hesitant of speech.' ·'Who Jr 1:6–10 gave a person a mouth?' Yahweh said to him. 'Who makes a person dumb or deaf, 12 gives sight or makes blind? Is it not I, Yahweh? ·Now go, I shall help you speak Dt 18:18
Mt 10:19–20 par.
and instruct you what to say.'
13, 14 'Please, my Lord,' Moses replied, 'send anyone you decide to send!' ·At this, Is 6:8
Yahweh's anger kindled against Moses, and he said to him, 'There is your brother Aaron the Levite, is there not? I know that he is a good speaker. Here he comes to 15 meet you. When he sees you, his heart will be full of joy. ·You will speak to him 7:1–2 and tell him what message to give. I shall help you speak, and him too, and instruct 16 you what to do. ·He will speak to the people in your place; he will be your 17 mouthpiece, and you will be as the god inspiring him. ·And take this staff in your hand; [b] with this you will perform the signs.'
Dt 18:18e

Moses leaves Midian and returns to Egypt

18 Moses went back to his father-in-law Jethro and said to him, 'Give me leave to 2:18g return to my kinsmen in Egypt and see if they are still alive.' And Jethro said to Moses, 'Go in peace.'
19 Yahweh said to Moses in Midian, 'Go, return to Egypt, for all those who wanted ↗Mt 2:20 20 to kill you are dead.' ·So Moses took his wife and his son [c] and, putting them on a donkey, started back for Egypt; and Moses took the staff of God in his hand. 4:17 21 Yahweh said to Moses, 'Think of the wonders I have given you power to perform, once you are back in Egypt! You are to perform them before Pharaoh, but I myself 22 shall make him obstinate, and he will not let the people go. ·You will then say to Rm 9:18
23 Pharaoh, "This is what Yahweh says: Israel is my first-born son. ·I told you: Let Dt 1:31;7:6b my son go and worship me; but since you refuse to let him go, well then! I shall put your first-born son to death." ' [d]

f. The 'sign' may be what is said in the second part of the v., or perhaps a sign of the type in 4:1–9 which has been omitted.

g. The Yahwistic tradition dates the worship of Yahweh from the origins of humanity, Gn 4:26, and uses this divine name throughout the history of the Patriarchs. According to the Elohistic tradition, to which this text belongs, the name of Yahweh was first revealed to Moses as the name of the God of the Ancestors. The Priestly tradition, 6:2–3, is in agreement with this, merely giving the added information that the name of the God of the Ancestors was El Shaddai; see Gn 17:1b. This narrative, one of the climactic moments of the OT, presents two difficulties: the first is philological—the etymology of the name Yahweh; the second is exegetical and theological—the meaning of the narrative as a whole and the significance of the revelation that it conveys. 1 The etymology: attempts have been made to explain the name yahweh by languages other than Hebrew or by various Hebrew roots. Clearly, however, it is part of the Hebr. verb 'to be' in an archaic form. Some see it as a causative form of the verb: 'he causes to be', 'he brings into existence'. But it is much more probably a form of the present indicative, meaning 'he is'. 2 The interpretation: the word is explained in v. 14, which is an ancient addition from the same tradition. The meaning of this explanation: 'ehyeh 'asher 'ehyeh, is disputed. Speaking of himself, God can only use the first person: 'I am'. The Hebr. can be translated literally: 'I am what I am', which would mean that God does not wish to reveal his name; but in fact here God is giving his name which, according to the Semitic way of thinking, ought in some degree to define him. But the Hebr. can also be translated literally as 'I am who am', and by the rules of Hebr. syntax, this corresponds to 'I am he who is', 'I am the one who exists'; and this is how the translators of the Septuagint understood it: ego eimi ho on. God is the only truly existent being. This means that he is transcendent and remains a mystery for man, and also that he acts in the history of his people and in human history, which he guides towards an end. In essence this passage contains the developments to be given by subsequent revelation, Rv 1:8: 'who was, who is and who is to come, the Almighty'.

h. When used of God, 'visit' implies an absolute right of scrutiny, judgement and punishment. His interventions in the destiny of individuals or peoples can bring well-being, 4:31; Gn 21:1; 50:24–25; Ps 65:9; 80:14; Ws 3:7–13; Jr 29:10; see Lk 1:68gg; or punishment, 1 S 15:2; Ws 14:11; 19:15; Jr 6:15; 23:24; Am 3:2.

4 a. v. 5, interrupting the story, is an addition.

b. Moses receives his staff back from God (hence its name 'staff of God', see v. 20); it is to be the instrument of wonders, 7:20[b]; 9:22 seq.; 10:13 seq., cf. the staff of Elisha, 2 K 4:29.

c. 'his son' conj., see 2:22; 4:25; 'his sons' Hebr.

d. vv. 21–23 are secondary and anticipate the plagues of Egypt: v. 21, the first nine plagues and the hardening of Pharaoh's heart, see 7:8a; and vv. 22–23, the tenth plague, see 11:1a.

Gn 32:25–33 The son of Moses circumcised [e]

On the journey, when he had halted for the night, Yahweh encountered him and 24
Jos 5:2–3.2b tried to kill him. ·Then Zipporah, taking up a flint, cut off her son's foreskin and 25 with it touched his feet and said, 'You are my blood-bridegroom!' ·So he let him 26
Gn 17:10d go. She said, 'Blood-bridegroom' then, with reference to the circumcision.

Moses meets Aaron

Yahweh said to Aaron, 'Go into the desert to meet Moses.' So he went, and met 27
3:1 him at the mountain of God and kissed him. ·Moses then told Aaron all that 28
3:16 Yahweh had said when sending him and all the signs he had ordered him to perform. ·Moses and Aaron then went and gathered all the elders of the Israelites 29 together, ·and Aaron repeated everything that Yahweh had said to Moses, and in 30 4:2–9 the sight of the people performed the signs. ·The people were convinced, and they 31
14:31
Jn 2:11 rejoiced[f] that Yahweh had visited the Israelites and seen their misery, and they bowed to the ground in worship.

The first audience with Pharaoh [a]

5 After this, Moses and Aaron went to Pharaoh and said to him, 'This is what 1 Yahweh, God of Israel, says, "Let my people go, so that they can hold a feast [b] in my honour in the desert." ' ·'Who is Yahweh,' Pharaoh replied, 'for me to obey 2 what he says and let Israel go? I know nothing of Yahweh, and I will not let Israel go.' ·'The God of the Hebrews has encountered us,' they replied. 'Give us leave to 3 make a three-days' journey into the desert and sacrifice to Yahweh our God, or he will strike us with a plague or with the sword.' ·The king of Egypt said to them, 4
'Moses and Aaron, what do you mean by distracting the people from their work?
Get back to your forced labour.' ·And Pharaoh said, 'Now that the people have 5 grown to such numbers in the country, what do you mean by interrupting their forced labour?'

Instructions to the taskmasters

That very day, Pharaoh gave the order to the people's taskmasters and their 6 scribes, ·'Do not go on providing the people with straw [c] for brickmaking as before; 7 let them go and gather straw for themselves. ·But you will exact the same quantity 8 of bricks from them as before, not reducing it at all, since they are lazy, and that is why their cry is, "Let us go and sacrifice to our God." ·Give these people more 9 work to do, and see they do it instead of listening to lying speeches.'

The people's taskmasters and scribes went out to speak to the people and said, 10
'Pharaoh says this, "I shall not provide you with any more straw. ·Go and collect 11 straw for yourselves where you can find it. But your output is not to be any less." '
So the people scattered all over Egypt to gather stubble for their straw. ·The 12, 13 taskmasters harassed them. 'You must complete your daily quota,' they said, 'just as when the straw was there.' ·And the Israelites' foremen whom Pharaoh's 14 taskmasters had put in charge of them, were flogged and asked, 'Why have you not fulfilled your quota of bricks made today as before?'

The Hebrew scribes complain

The Israelites' foremen went and appealed to Pharaoh. 'Why do you treat your 15 servants like this?' they said. ·'No straw is provided for your servants, yet still the 16 cry is, "Make bricks!" And now your servants are being flogged!. . .' [d] ·'You are 17 lazy, lazy,' he retorted. 'That is why you say, "Let us go and sacrifice to Yahweh."
Get back to your work at once. You will not be provided with straw; all the same, 18 you will deliver the quota of bricks.'

Recriminations of the people. Prayer of Moses

The Israelites' foremen saw they were in a difficult position on being told, 'You 19 20 will not reduce your daily production of bricks.' 21 As they left Pharaoh's presence, they met Moses and Aaron who were standing in their way. 21 'May Yahweh look down at you and judge!' they said to them. 'You have brought us into bad odour with Pharaoh and his officials; you have put a sword into their hand to kill us.'

22 Moses went back to Yahweh and said, 'Lord, why do you treat this people so 23 harshly? Why did you send me? 23 Ever since I came to Pharaoh and spoke to him in your name, he has ill-treated this people, and you have done nothing at all about rescuing your people.'

1 6 Yahweh then said to Moses, 'Now you will see what I am going to do to Pharaoh. A mighty hand will force him to let them go, a mighty hand will force him to expel them from his country.'

Another account of the call of Moses [a] =3:1–4:23

2, 3 God spoke to Moses and said to him, 'I am Yahweh. 3 To Abraham, Isaac and Jacob I appeared as El Shaddai, but I did not make my name Yahweh known to Gn 17:1b
4 them. 4 I also made my covenant with them to give them the land of Canaan, the Gn 17:7–8 5 country in which they were living as aliens. 5 Furthermore, I have heard the groaning of the Israelites, enslaved by the Egyptians, and have remembered my 6 covenant. 6 So say to the Israelites, "I am Yahweh. I shall free you from the forced labour of the Egyptians; I shall rescue you from their slavery and I shall redeem 7 you with outstretched arm [b] and mighty acts of judgement. 7 I shall take you as my Dt 7:6b people and I shall be your God. [c] And you will know that I am Yahweh your God, 8 who have freed you from the forced labour of the Egyptians. 8 Then I shall lead you into the country which I swore I would give to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and Gn 15;24:7 9 shall give it to you as your heritage, I, Yahweh." ' 9 And Moses repeated this to the Israelites, but they would not listen to Moses, so crushed was their spirit and so cruel their slavery.

10, 11 Yahweh then said to Moses, 11 'Go to Pharaoh, king of Egypt, and tell him to let 12 the Israelites leave his country.' 12 But Moses spoke out in Yahweh's presence and said, 'The Israelites have not listened to me, so why should Pharaoh take any 13 notice of a poor speaker like me?' [d] 13 Yahweh spoke to Moses and Aaron and sent 4:10 them to Pharaoh king of Egypt, [e] to lead the Israelites out of Egypt.

The genealogy of Moses and Aaron Nb 26:5–14

14 These were their heads of families:
The sons of Reuben, Israel's first-born: Hanoch, Pallu, Hezron and Carmi: these are the clans of Reuben.
15 The sons of Simeon: Jemuel, Jamin, Ohad, Jachin, Zohar, and Shaul son of the Canaanite woman: these are the clans of Simeon.
16 These were the names of the sons of Levi with their descendants: Gershon, Gn 46:11
Kohath and Merari. Levi lived for a hundred and thirty-seven years. Nb 3:17seq.

e. A narrative mysterious on account of its brevity and lack of context; Moses is not named, and it is not clear to whom the personal pronouns apply. It may be conjectured that Moses attracts God's anger for not being circumcised and that Zipporah appeases it by in fact circumcising her son but simulating a circumcision of Moses by touching the latter's genitals ('his feet', see Is 6:2; 7:20) with the child's foreskin. On circumcision, see Gn 17:10d.

f. 'rejoiced' Gk; 'understood' Hebr.

5 a. This ch. is for the most part Yahwistic.

b. The mention of worship in the desert, see already 3:18, comes as a refrain in the account of the first nine plagues, except for the third and sixth, see 7:16, 26; 8:4, 16, 23; 9:1, 13; 10:3, 24. This feast, it would seem, was in fact to be the Passover, see 12:1a.

c. Chopped straw was mixed with the clay to give cohesion to the unbaked brick.

d. End of v. obscure, perhaps: 'but your people are to blame'.

6 a. 6:2–7:7 is the Priestly narrative, parallel with ch. 3–4, of the call of Moses. The revelation of the divine name is situated in Egypt, and the name Yahweh replaces the name El Shaddai, used by the Patriarchs, see 3:13g. The people refuse to listen to Moses (v. 9, see 4:31). Aaron acts as interpreter to Pharaoh (7:1) and not, as in 4:10–16, to the people.

b. Expression equivalent to the 'mighty hand' of 6:1. The Deuteronomist later combines both expressions, see Dt 4:34; 5:15; 7:19; 26:8.

c. These co-ordinate terms expressing the new relationship between God and his people are the time-honoured expression for God's election and covenant, especially in Lv 26:12; Dt 26:17–19; 29:12, and often in Jr and Ezk.

d. lit. 'I (who am) of uncircumcised lips'.

e. Before 'to Pharaoh', Hebr. adds 'to the Israelites'; Gk omits.

The sons of Gershon: Libni and Shimei, with their clans. 17
The sons of Kohath: Amram, Izhar, Hebron and Uzziel. Kohath lived for a 18 hundred and thirty-three years.
The sons of Merari: Mahli and Mushi. These are the clans of Levi with their 19 descendants.
2:1–2 Amram married Jochebed, his aunt, who bore him Aaron and Moses. Amram 20
Nb 26:59 lived for a hundred and thirty-seven years.
The sons of Izhar were: Korah, Nepheg and Zichri. 21
And the sons of Uzziel: Mishael, Elzaphan and Sithri. 22
Aaron married Elisheba daughter of Amminadab and sister of Nahshon, and 23
she bore him Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar and Ithamar.
The sons of Korah: Assir, Elkanah and Abiasaph. These are the clans of the 24 Korahites.
Eleazar, son of Aaron, married one of Putiel's daughters who bore him 25
Nb 25:6–13 Phinehas.
These were the Levitical heads of families, according to clan.
It was to this Aaron and Moses that Yahweh said, 'Lead the Israelites out of 26
Egypt in their armies.' ·It was they who spoke to Pharaoh, king of Egypt, to lead 27
the Israelites out of Egypt—namely Moses and Aaron.

6:2–13 The narrative of Moses' call, continued

Now the day when Yahweh spoke to Moses in Egypt, ·Yahweh said to Moses, 28, 29
'Tell Pharaoh king of Egypt everything that I am going to say to you.' ·But Moses 30 said to Yahweh's face, 'I am a poor speaker, so why should Pharaoh take any notice of me?'
7 Yahweh then said to Moses, 'Look, I have made you as a god for Pharaoh, and 1
4:16 your brother Aaron is to be your prophet. ·You must say whatever I command 2 you, and your brother Aaron will repeat to Pharaoh that he is to let the Israelites 4:21 leave his country. ·But I myself shall make Pharaoh stubborn and shall perform 3
Ps 135:9 many a sign and wonder in Egypt. ·Since Pharaoh will not listen to you, I shall lay 4 my hand on Egypt and with great acts of judgement lead my armies, my people, the Israelites, out of Egypt. ·And the Egyptians will know that I am Yahweh when 5
I stretch out my hand against the Egyptians and lead the Israelites out of their country.'
Moses and Aaron did exactly as Yahweh had ordered. ·Moses was eighty years 6, 7 old and Aaron eighty-three, when they spoke to Pharaoh.

D: THE PLAGUES OF EGYPT[a]

Ps 78;105 Ws 11:14–20; 16:18 The staff turned into a snake

Yahweh said to Moses and Aaron, ·'If Pharaoh says to you, "Display some 8, 9 4:2seq. marvel," you must say to Aaron, "Take your staff and throw it down in front of Pharaoh, and let it turn into a serpent!" ' ·Moses and Aaron went to Pharaoh and 10 did as Yahweh had ordered. Aaron threw down his staff in front of Pharaoh and his officials, and it turned into a serpent. ·Then Pharaoh in his turn called for the 11 2 Tm 3:8 sages and sorcerers, and by their spells the magicians of Egypt did the same.
Each threw his staff down and these turned into serpents. But Aaron's staff 12 swallowed up theirs. ·Pharaoh, however, remained obstinate and, as Yahweh had 13 foretold, refused to listen to Moses and Aaron.

↗Ws 11:6–8 The first plague: the water turns to blood

Yahweh then said to Moses, 'Pharaoh is adamant. He refuses to let the people go. 14
Go to Pharaoh tomorrow morning as he makes his way to the water, confront him 15 on the river bank and in your hand take the staff that turned into a snake.

16 Say to him, "Yahweh, God of the Hebrews, sent me to say: Let my people go and 17 worship in the desert. Up till now, you have refused to listen. •This is what Yahweh says: You will know that I am Yahweh by this: with the staff that is in my hand ♭ I 18 shall strike the waters of the River and they will turn to blood. •The fish in the river Rv 11:6 will die, and the River will stink, and the Egyptians will not be able to drink the river water." ' 19 Yahweh said to Moses, 'Say to Aaron, "Take your staff and stretch out your hand over the waters of Egypt—over their rivers and canals, their marshland, and all their reservoirs—and they will turn to blood. There will be blood throughout 20 the whole of Egypt, even in sticks and stones." ' •Moses and Aaron did as Yahweh ordered. He raised his staff and struck the waters of the River, with Pharaoh and Ps 78:44; 105:29 his officials looking on, and all the water in the River turned to blood. ↗Rv 16:4–7; 8:8,11 21 The fish in the River died, and the River stank; and the Egyptians could no longer drink the River water. Throughout the whole of Egypt there was blood.
22 But by their spells the magicians of Egypt did the same; Pharaoh remained obstinate and, as Yahweh had foretold, refused to listen to Moses and Aaron.
23 Pharaoh turned away and went back into his palace, taking no notice even of this.
24 And the Egyptians all dug holes along the river-bank in search of drinking water, 25 since they could not drink the River water. •After Yahweh struck the River, seven days went by.

The second plague: the frogs

8:1 26 Then Yahweh said to Moses, 'Go to Pharaoh and say to him, "Yahweh says this:
2 27 Let my people go and worship me. •If you refuse to let them go, I shall strike your 3 28 whole territory with frogs. •The River will swarm with frogs; they will make their way into your palace, into your bedroom, onto your bed, into the houses of your 4 29 officials and subjects, into your ovens, into your kneading bowls. •The frogs will actually clamber onto you, onto your subjects and onto all your officials." ' 5 1 8 Yahweh then said to Moses, 'Say to Aaron, "Stretch out your hand with your staff, over the rivers, the canals and the marshland, and bring the frogs up over 6 2 the land of Egypt." ' •So Aaron stretched out his hand over the waters of Egypt, 7 3 and the frogs came up and covered the land of Egypt. •But by their spells the Ps 78:45; 105:30 magicians did the same, bringing frogs over the land of Egypt. ↗Rv 16:13 8 4 Pharaoh then summoned Moses and Aaron and said, 'Entreat Yahweh to take the frogs away from me and my subjects, and I promise to let the people go and 9 5 sacrifice to Yahweh.' •Moses said to Pharaoh, 'You are the one to gain by it: [a] when would you like me to pray for you, your officials and your subjects, so as to rid you 10 6 and your houses of the frogs so that they will be left only in the River?' •'Tomorrow,' he said. Moses said, 'It shall be as you say, so that you will know that there is 11 7 no one like Yahweh our God. •The frogs will leave you, your houses, your officials
12 8 and your subjects and will be left only in the River.' •Moses and Aaron left Pharaoh's presence, and Moses pleaded with Yahweh about the frogs which he 13 9 had inflicted on Pharaoh. •Yahweh did as Moses asked, and in house and courtyard

7 a. A time-honoured expression, which the text in fact applies only to the tenth plague; the first nine plagues are 'signs' or 'wonders', like the 'signs' and 'wonders' of Ex 4 passim; 7:9. As these wonders were designed to accredit Moses as regards the Israelites and Pharaoh, so the 'plagues' are designed to accredit Yahweh, that is to say, have his power recognised by Pharaoh. The first nine plagues differ from the tenth by form and vocabulary. The account ends with Pharaoh's absolute refusal, and Moses never sees him again, 10:28–29; there is now nothing for it but to flee. The story then continues with the pursuit of the fugitives and the miracle of the sea, ch. 14. The Exodus-flight tradition was originally independent of the tradition of the tenth plague, according to which the Israelites are expelled from Egypt, 12:31–33, see also 4:21; 6:1; 11:1. There were other traditions about these 'signs', see Ps 78:43–51; 105:27–36, to be further developed in Ws 11:14–20; 16:1–18:25. Like these other presentations, the account in Ex 7:14–10:29 is itself a literary composition. The third and sixth plagues belong to the Priestly tradition; distribution of the others between the Yahwistic and Elohistic traditions is problematic. It would be a mistake to try to explain these wonders in terms of astronomy or natural science, but the account as it stands draws on natural phenomena known in Egypt but unknown in Palestine (the reddened Nile, the frogs, the dust-laden desert wind), or known in Egypt and in Palestine (the locusts), or even known in Palestine but uncommon in Egypt (the hail). The main point of the story is to manifest Yahweh's omnipotence to the Israelites and to Pharaoh himself.

b. The hand of Moses, God's appointed agent.

8 a. lit. 'Glorify yourself about me'. Alternative trans. following Gk 'Let me know clearly'.

and field the frogs died. •They piled them up in heaps and the country stank. •But 10 14. 11 15 once Pharaoh saw that there had been a respite, he became obstinate and, as Yahweh had foretold, refused to listen to them.

The third plague: the mosquitoes

Yahweh then said to Moses, 'Say to Aaron, " Stretch out your staff and strike the 12 16 dust of the earth, and it will turn into mosquitoes throughout the whole of Egypt." ' [b]Aaron stretched out his hand, with his staff, and struck the dust of the earth, and 13 17
Ps 105:31 there were mosquitoes on man and beast; all the dust of the earth turned into mosquitoes throughout the whole of Egypt. •By their spells the magicians tried to 14 18 produce mosquitoes in the same way but failed, and there were mosquitoes on man Lk 11:20 and beast. •So the magicians said to Pharaoh, 'This is the finger of God.'[c] But 15 19
Pharaoh was obstinate and, as Yahweh had foretold, refused to listen to them.

The fourth plague: the horseflies

Yahweh then said to Moses, 'Get up early in the morning and confront Pharaoh as 16 20 he makes his way to the water. Say to him, "Yahweh says this: Let my people go Ps 78:45 and worship me. •But if you will not let my people go, I shall send horseflies on 17 21 you, on your officials, your subjects and your houses. The Egyptians' houses will swarm with horseflies, and so will the very ground they stand on. •But I shall 18 22
Gn 47:1seq. exempt the region of Goshen, where my people are living, that day; there will be no horseflies there, so that you will know that I am Yahweh, here in this country.
I shall make a distinction[d] between my people and your people. This sign will take 19 23 place tomorrow." ' •Yahweh did this, and great swarms of horseflies found their 20 24 way into Pharaoh's palace, into his officials' houses and all over Egypt; the country was ruined by the horseflies.

Pharaoh then summoned Moses and Aaron and said, 'Go and sacrifice to your 21 25
God, inside the country.' •'That would never do,' Moses said, 'since what we 22 26 sacrifice to Yahweh our God is outrageous to the Egyptians. If the Egyptians see us offering sacrifices which outrage them, won't they stone us?[e] •We shall make a 23 27 three-days' journey into the desert to sacrifice to Yahweh our God, as he has ordered us.' •Pharaoh said, 'I will let you go and sacrifice to Yahweh your God in 24 28 the desert, provided you do not go very far. Pray for me.' •'The moment I leave 25 29 you,' Moses said, 'I shall pray to Yahweh. Tomorrow morning the horseflies will leave Pharaoh, his officials and his subjects. But Pharaoh must stop trifling with us by not allowing the people to go and sacrifice to Yahweh.' •Moses then left 26 30 Pharaoh's presence and prayed to Yahweh, •and Yahweh did as Moses asked; the 27 31 horseflies left Pharaoh, his officials and his subjects; not one remained. •But 28 32
Pharaoh became obstinate this time too and did not let the people go.

The fifth plague: death of the Egyptians' livestock

9 Yahweh then said to Moses, 'Go to Pharaoh and say to him, "Yahweh, God of 1 the Hebrews, says this: Let my people go and worship me. •If you refuse to let 2 them go and detain them any longer, •look, the hand of Yahweh will strike your 3 Ps 78:48 livestock in the fields, horses, donkeys, camels, oxen and flocks with a deadly plague. •Yahweh will discriminate between the livestock of Israel and the livestock 4 of Egypt: nothing of what belongs to the Israelites will die. •Yahweh has fixed the 5 time. Tomorrow, he has said, Yahweh will do this in the country." ' •Next day 6 Yahweh did this: all the Egyptians' livestock died, but nothing of the livestock owned by the Israelites died. •Pharaoh had enquiries made, and found that of the 7 livestock owned by the Israelites not a single beast had died. But Pharaoh was obstinate and did not let the people go.

The sixth plague: the boils

Yahweh then said to Moses and Aaron, 'Take handfuls of soot from the kiln, and 8 before Pharaoh's eyes let Moses throw it in the air. •It will turn into fine dust over 9

the whole of Egypt and produce boils breaking into sores on man and beast 10 throughout the whole of Egypt.' •So they took soot from the kiln and stood in front of Pharaoh, and Moses threw it in the air, and on man and beast it brought out 11 boils breaking into sores. •And the magicians could not compete with Moses in the Rv 16:2 matter of the boils, for the magicians were covered with boils like all the other 12 Egyptians. •But Yahweh made Pharaoh stubborn and, as Yahweh had foretold to Moses, he did not listen to them.

The seventh plague: the hail

13 Yahweh then said to Moses, 'Get up early in the morning and confront Pharaoh.
Say to him, "Yahweh, God of the Hebrews, says this: Let my people go and 14 worship me. •For this time I am going to inflict all my plagues on you, on your officials and on your subjects,[a] so that you will know that there is no one like me in 15 the whole world. •Had I stretched out my hand to strike you and your subjects with 16 pestilence, you would have been swept from the earth. •But I have let you survive ↗Rm 9:17 for this reason: to display my power to you and to have my name talked of 17 throughout the world. •Since you take a high hand with my people, refusing to let 18 them go, •very well, at about this time tomorrow, I shall cause so severe a hail to 19 fall as was never known in Egypt from the day of its foundation until now. •So now send word to have your livestock and everything else you own in the fields put under cover. On man or beast, all that happen to be in the fields and are not brought indoors, the hail will fall and they will die." ' 20 Those of Pharaoh's officials who respected what Yahweh said, brought their 21 slaves and livestock indoors, •but those who did not take to heart what Yahweh said left their slaves and livestock in the fields.
22 Yahweh then said to Moses, 'Stretch out your hand towards heaven so that it hails throughout the whole of Egypt, on man and beast and on everything growing 23 anywhere in Egypt.' •Moses stretched out his staff towards heaven, and Yahweh thundered[b] and rained down hail. Lightning struck the earth and Yahweh rained Ps 78:47seq.; 105:32 24 down hail on Egypt. •And so there was hail, and lightning accompanied the hail, Rv 8:7; very severe, such as had never been known anywhere in Egypt since it first became ↗16:21 25 a nation. •All over Egypt the hail struck down everything in the fields, man and beast, and the hail beat down everything growing in the fields and shattered all the 26 trees in the fields. •The only place where there was no hail was in the Goshen Gn 47:1seq.
region, where the Israelites lived.
27 Pharaoh then sent for Moses and Aaron and said, 'This time, I have sinned.
28 Yahweh is in the right; I and my subjects are in the wrong. •Pray to Yahweh, for we cannot bear any more of this thunder and hail. I promise to let you go. You 29 need stay no longer.' •Moses said to him, 'The moment I leave the city I shall stretch out my hands to Yahweh. The thunder will stop, and there will be no more 30 hail, so that you may know that the earth belongs to Yahweh. •But as for you and Dt 10:14 Ps 24:1
your officials, I know very well that you still have no respect for Yahweh God.'

b. At beginning of v. we omit 'And they did the same', following Gk.

c. Or 'the finger of a god', a formula occurring in Egyptian magico-religious texts.

d. 'I shall make a distinction (a separation)' versions; 'I shall set redemption' Hebr.

e. The pastoral Israelites sacrificed animals from their flocks; Egyptian rites were very different: vegetable offerings, poultry, pieces of butcher's meat. Furthermore, the ram and he-goat were sacred animals for them.

9 a. lit. 'against your heart.'

b. lit. 'gave voices'. The 'voice of Yahweh' is thunder, see v. 29; 19:19; Jb 37:2; Ps 18:13; 29:3–9.

Moses left Pharaoh and went out of the city. He stretched out his hands to 33 Yahweh and the thunder and hail ceased and the rain stopped pouring down on the earth. ·When Pharaoh saw that rain and hail and thunder had stopped, he 34 relapsed into sin, ·and he and his officials became obstinate again. Pharaoh was 35 stubborn and, as Yahweh had foretold through Moses, refused to let the Israelites go.

Jl 2 The eighth plague: the locusts

10 Yahweh then said to Moses, 'Go to Pharaoh, for I have made him and his 1 officials stubborn, to display these signs of mine among them; ·so that you 2 12:26;13:8 Dt 4:9;6:7, 20–25 Jos 4:6seq., 21seq. ·8:6 can tell your sons and your grandsons how I made fools of the Egyptians and what signs I performed among them, so that you would know that I am Yahweh.' ·Moses 3 and Aaron then went to Pharaoh and said to him, 'Yahweh, God of the Hebrews, says this, "How much longer will you refuse to submit to me? Let my people go and worship me. ·Or, if you refuse to let my people go, tomorrow I shall send 4 locusts into your country. ·They will cover the surface of the soil so that the soil 5 cannot be seen. They will devour the remainder of what has escaped, of what you have been left after the hail; they will devour all your trees growing in the fields;
they will fill your houses, all your officials' houses and all the Egyptians' 6 houses—something your ancestors and your ancestors' ancestors have never seen from the day they first appeared on earth until now." ' Then he turned on his heel and left Pharaoh's presence. ·At which, Pharaoh's officials said to him, 'How much 7 longer are we to be tricked by this fellow? Let the people go and worship Yahweh their God. Do you not finally realise that Egypt is on the brink of ruin?'

So Moses and Aaron were brought back to Pharaoh who said to them, 'Go and 8 worship Yahweh your God. But who are to go?' ·Moses replied, 'We shall take our 9 young men and our old men, we shall take our sons and daughters, our flocks and our herds, since we are going to hold a feast in Yahweh's honour.' ·Pharaoh said, 10
'So I must let you go with your wives and children! May Yahweh preserve you!
Plainly, you are up to no good! ·Oh no! You men [a] may go and worship Yahweh, 11 since that was your original request.' With that, they were driven [b] from Pharaoh's presence.

Ps 78:46; 105:34 Yahweh then said to Moses, 'Stretch out your hand over Egypt for the locusts. 12
Let them invade Egypt and devour whatever is growing in the country, whatever the hail has left!' ·Moses stretched his staff over Egypt, and over the country 13 Yahweh sent an east wind which blew all that day and night. By morning, the east wind had brought the locusts.

↗Rv 9:3seq. The locusts invaded the whole of Egypt and settled all over Egypt, in great 14 swarms; never had there been so many locusts before, nor would there be again.
They covered the surface of the ground till the land was devastated. [c] They 15 devoured whatever was growing in the fields and all the fruit on the trees that the hail had left. No green was left on tree or plant in the fields anywhere in Egypt.

Pharaoh sent urgently for Moses and Aaron and said, 'I have sinned against 16
Yahweh your God and against you. ·Now forgive my sin, I implore you, just this 17 once, and entreat Yahweh your God to turn this deadly thing away from me.'
When Moses left Pharaoh's presence he prayed to Yahweh, ·and Yahweh 18, 19 changed the wind into a west wind, [d] very strong, which carried the locusts away and swept them into the Sea of Reeds. There was not one locust left in the whole of Egypt. ·But Yahweh made Pharaoh stubborn, and he did not let the Israelites go. 20

The ninth plague: the darkness

Yahweh then said to Moses, 'Stretch out your hand towards heaven, and let 21 ↗Ws 17:1–18:4 Ps 105:28 darkness, darkness so thick that it can be felt, cover Egypt.' ·So Moses stretched 22 out his hand towards heaven, and for three days there was thick darkness over the 23 whole of Egypt. ·No one could see anyone else or move about for three days, but ↗Rv 16:10▶ all the Israelites did have light where they were living.

24 Pharaoh summoned Moses and said, 'Go and worship Yahweh, but your flocks 25 and herds are to stay here. Your wives and children can go with you too.' · Moses said, 'But now you must give us sacrifices and burnt offerings to offer to Yahweh 26 our God. ·And our livestock will go with us too; not a hoof will be left behind; for we may need animals from these to worship Yahweh our God; for until we get there we ourselves cannot tell how we are to worship Yahweh.'
27, 28 But Yahweh made Pharaoh stubborn, and he refused to let them go. ·Pharaoh said to Moses, 'Out of my sight! Be sure you never see my face again, for the next 29 time you see my face you die!' ·Moses then said, 'You yourself have said it. I shall never see your face again.'

Announcement of the death of the first-born

13:11b

1 11 Yahweh then said to Moses, 'I shall inflict one more plague on Pharaoh and Egypt, after which he will let you go away. When he lets you go, he will 2 actually drive you out![a] ·Now instruct the people that every man is to ask his 3 neighbour, and every woman hers, for silver and golden jewellery.'[b] ·And Yahweh made the Egyptians impressed with the people, while Moses himself was 3:21 a man of great importance in Egypt in the opinion of Pharaoh's officials and the Ac 7:22 people.
4 Moses then said, 'Yahweh says this, "At midnight I shall pass through Egypt, 5 and all the first-born in Egypt will die, from the first-born of Pharaoh, heir to his throne, to the first-born of the slave-girl at the mill, and all the first-born of the 6 livestock.[c] ·And throughout Egypt there will be great wailing, such as never was 7 before, nor will be again. ·But against the Israelites, whether man or beast, never a dog shall bark, so that you may know that Yahweh discriminates between Egypt 8 and Israel. ·Then all these officials of yours will come down to me and, bowing low before me, say: Go away, you and all the people who follow you! After which, I shall go." ' And, hot with anger, he left Pharaoh's presence.
9 Yahweh then said to Moses, 'Pharaoh will not listen to you, so that more of my 10 wonders may be displayed in Egypt.' ·Moses and Aaron worked all these wonders[d] in Pharaoh's presence, but Yahweh made Pharaoh stubborn, and he did not let the Israelites leave his country.

10 a. Pharaoh is suspicious, and reluctant to give general permission, v. 9; he wants to keep the women and children as hostages.

b. 'they were driven', lit. 'they drove them' Gk, Sam.; 'he drove them' Hebr.

c. 'devastated' Gk; 'black with them' Hebr.

d. lit. 'sea wind' from the point of view of someone living in Palestine, where the sea lies on the west.

11 a. The last vv. of ch. 10 conclude the story of the nine plagues, belonging to the Exodus-flight tradition, see 7:8a. The story of the tenth plague, which begins here, presents the Exodus as an expulsion, see 12:31–33 and earlier 4:21; 6:1. These two concepts are irreconcilable if concerned with the same group, but may be based on fact, if originally relating to two different groups. The Exodus-flight tradition concerns the group led by Moses, who were pursued by the Egyptians and were favoured with the miracle of the sea. The Exodus-expulsion tradition would then apply to a related group, presumably driven out of Egypt some time earlier. The histories of these two groups may be followed through the duplicate accounts of the itineraries taken on the way out of Egypt, see 13:17e,f. The tradition concerning the group led by Moses, being the dominant one, has assimilated features from the expulsion tradition.

b. The despoiling of the Egyptians is a secondary theme, appearing earlier in 3:21 and later in 12:35–36. Its mention here excludes the possibility that the Egyptians had experienced the first nine plagues.

c. The first-born of the beasts are added here, borrowing from 12:12, because, like the human first-born, they are first-fruits dedicated to the godhead.

d. The first nine plagues. • vv. 9–10 are an editorial addition.

community of Israel and say, "On the tenth day of this month each man must take an animal from the flock for his family: one animal for each household. 4 If the

↗1 Co 5:7 15 "For seven days you must eat unleavened bread. On the first day you must clean the leaven out of your houses, for anyone who eats leavened bread from the first to the seventh day must be outlawed from Israel. 16 On the first day you must hold a sacred assembly, and on the seventh day a sacred assembly. On those days no work may be done; you will prepare only what each requires to eat. 17 You must keep the feast of Unleavened Bread because it was on that same day that I brought your armies out of Egypt. You will keep that day, generation after generation; this is a decree for all time. 18 In the first month, from the evening of the fourteenth day until the evening of the twenty-first day, you must eat unleavened bread. 19 For seven

Injunctions relating to the Passover

hyssop, [i] dip it in the blood that is in the basin, and with the blood from the basin

12 a. The long section on the Passover, 12:1–13:16, consists of an ancient source in the Yahwistic tradition, 12:21–23, 27b, 29–39; additions in the Deuteronomic style, 12:24–27a; 13:3–16 and perhaps 13:1–2; and additions of the Priestly editors, i.e. the ritual laws and the meaning of the Passover, 12:1–20, 28, 40–51. With these additions, compare the rituals in Lv 23:5–8; Nb 28:16–25; Dt 16:1–8. In point of fact, the feasts of Passover and Unleavened Bread were originally two separate festivals, the feast of Unleavened Bread being an agricultural festival which began to be celebrated only in Canaan and was not joined to the Passover until after Josiah's reforms. The Passover, of pre-Israelite origin, was an annual festival of nomadic shepherds for the well-being of their flocks. The beginning of the ancient narrative, v. 21, mentioning it without explanation, presupposes that it was already known, and it was in all likelihood the 'feast of Yahweh' which Moses was asking Pharaoh's permission to celebrate, see 5:1b. Hence, the connection between the Passover, the tenth plague and the departure from Egypt is only accidental: the departure took place at the same time as the feast. But this coincidence in time accounts for why the Deuteronomic additions, 12:24–27; 13:3–10, explain the feast of Passover (and Unleavened Bread) as commemorating the Exodus from Egypt (as Dt itself, 16:1–3). The Priestly tradition attaches the entire Passover ritual to the tenth plague and the departure from Egypt, 12:11b–14, 42. The connection is more ancient, however, for the Yahwistic account, 12:34, 39*l*, also relates the ancient Passover ritual of the Unleavened Bread to the departure from Egypt. Put into historical relationship with this decisive event in the calling of Israel, these rites acquired an entirely new religious significance: they recalled how God had saved his people, as the explanatory formula accompanying the rite makes clear, 12:26–27; 13:8. The Jewish Passover hence becomes an anticipation of the Christian Easter: the lamb of God, Christ, is sacrificed (the cross) and eaten (the Last Supper) within the framework of the Jewish Passover (Holy Week).

b. The first month of spring, corresponding to our March-April, called Abib in the ancient calendar, Dt 16:1, and Nisan in the post-exilic calendar of Babylonian origin.

d. To preclude profanation. The Gk adds, 'You are not to break any of its bones,' see v. 46.

e. Dressed as for a journey.

f. The etymology of the word translated 'Passover' (pesah) is unknown. 12:13, 23, 27 explain that Yahweh 'jumped over' or 'left out' or 'protected' the Israelites' houses, but this explanation is secondary.

g. Or, by emendation, 'and on you (will fall) no stroke of the Destroyer' (see v. 23).

h. 'Go' Gk; 'Draw' Hebr.

i. Aromatic plant used in various purificatory rites, Nb 19:6; Ps 51:7; Heb 9:19.

j. In the pre-Israelite Passover rite, the Destroyer was a demon threatening flock and family; the blood put on the doors of houses or, in more primitive times, of tents, was to give protection against his assaults.

k. This very exaggerated figure possibly represents a national census of Israel at the time the Yahwistic document was written.

l. These unleavened cakes were not the unleavened bread of the later ritual, but an element of the ancient Passover ritual as celebrated by nomads who habitually eat unleavened bread, see also Jos 5:11. The Yahwistic tradition interpreted this as a sign of the haste in which the Israelites left Egypt.

m. Sam. and Gk include the whole period of the Patriarchs' stay in Canaan in this figure.

years ended, all Yahweh's armies left Egypt. 42 The night when Yahweh kept vigil to bring them out of Egypt must be kept as a vigil in honour of Yahweh by all Israelites, for all generations.

Ordinances for the Passover

Yahweh said to Moses and Aaron, 'This is the ritual for the Passover: [a] no alien 43
Gn 17:10d may eat it, 44 but any slave bought for money may eat it, once you have circumcised him. 45, 46 No stranger and no hired servant may eat it. It must be eaten in one house Nb 9:12 ↗Jn 19:36 alone; you will not take any of the meat out of the house; nor may you break any of its bones.

'The whole community of Israel must keep it. 47, 48 Should a stranger residing with you [a] wish to keep the Passover in honour of Yahweh, all the males of his household must be circumcised: he will then be allowed to keep it and will count as a citizen of the country. But no uncircumcised person may eat it. 49 The same law will apply to the citizen and the stranger resident among you.' 50 The Israelites all did as Yahweh had ordered Moses and Aaron, 51 and that same day Yahweh brought the Israelites out of Egypt in their armies.

The first-born [a]

13:11b 13 Yahweh spoke to Moses and said, 1, 2 'Consecrate all the first-born to me, the first birth from every womb, among the Israelites. Whether man or beast, it is mine.'

12:1a The feast of Unleavened Bread

Moses said to the people, 'Remember this day, on which you came out of Egypt, 3 from the place of slave-labour, for by the strength of his hand Yahweh brought you out of it; no leavened bread may be eaten. 4 On this day, in the month of Abib, you Dt 7:1a are leaving, 5 and when Yahweh has brought you into the country of the Canaanites, the Hittites, the Amorites, the Hivites and the Jebusites, flowing with milk and honey, which he swore to your ancestors that he would give you, then you must 34:18 observe this rite in the same month. 6 For seven days you will eat unleavened bread, and on the seventh day there must be a feast in Yahweh's honour. 7 During these seven days unleavened bread may be eaten; no leavened bread may be seen among you, no leaven among you throughout your territory. 8 And on that day you will 12:26;10:2+ explain to your son, "This is because of what Yahweh did for me when I came out of Egypt." 9 This will serve as a sign on your hand would serve, or a reminder on your forehead, and in that way the law of Yahweh will be ever on your lips: for with a mighty hand Yahweh brought you out of Egypt. 10 You shall observe this law at its appointed time, year by year.

"By the strength of his hand Yahweh brought us out of Egypt, out of the place of

F: THE DEPARTURE FROM EGYPT[d]

The departure of the Israelites[e]

17 When Pharaoh had let the people go, God did not let them take the road to the Philistines' territory, although that was the shortest,[f] 'in case', God thought, 'the prospect of fighting makes the people change their minds and turn back to 18 Egypt.' ·Instead, God led the people a roundabout way through the desert of the 19 Sea of Reeds.[g] The Israelites left Egypt fully armed. ·Moses took with him the bones of Joseph, since Joseph had put the Israelites on solemn oath with the words, 'It is sure that God will visit you,' he had said, 'and when that day comes you must take my bones away from here with you.'

14:10–12 Nb 14:1seq. Gn 50:25 Jos 24:32

n. The victim, not the feast. vv. 43–50 lay down the conditions for non-Israelites who wish to join in the paschal meal, and explain how it is to be conducted. These instructions complete the Priestly ritual of vv. 3–11. In them the Israelite is considered to be the 'citizen of the country', i.e. the true inhabitant of Canaan.

o. Like the Athenian metoikos and the Roman incola, the foreigner who settles in Israel (the ger) had his own charter. The patriarchs themselves had been resident aliens in Canaan, Gn 23:4, as had the Israelites in Egypt, Ex 2:22; Gn 15:13. After the conquest of the Holy Land the roles were reversed: the Israelites became citizens and played the host to resident foreigners, Dt 10:19. These last were subject to the laws, Lv 17:15; 24:16–22, and bound to observance of the Sabbath, Ex 20:10; Dt 5:14. They were allowed to make offerings to Yahweh, Nb 15:15–16; they were also permitted to celebrate the Passover, Nb 9:14, provided they accepted circumcision, Ex 12:48. This laid the foundations of the proselytes' charter of the Greek period, already foreshadowed in Is 14:1. These 'strangers' were the 'economically weak' protected by the law, Lv 23:22; 25:35; Dt 24 passim; 26:12. This last text and Dt 12:12 compare them to the Levites who similarly had no heritage in Israel; in Jg 17:7 the Bethlehem Levite is called 'a stranger resident' in Judah; see Jg 19:1. In the Gk version, ger is translated as 'proselyte', see Mt 23:15.

13 a. The law of the first-born in 13:1–2, 11–16 is a Deuteronomic addition to the ancient narrative; it is appended not to the Passover but to the death of the Egyptians' first-born and, in the Code of the Covenant, 22:28–29, has nothing to do with the Passover.

b. see v. 1a. In the most ancient legal codes of Israel, 22:28–29; 34:19–20, the first-born male, either human or animal, is pronounced God's property. The first-born of beasts are offered in sacrifice, Dt 15:19–20, and a portion goes to the priests, Nb 18:15–18; the donkey is an exception: it is either redeemed or has its neck broken, v. 13; 34:20; and this applies to all unclean animals, Lv 27:26–27; Nb 18:15. The human first-born are always redeemed, v. 13; 34:19–20; Nb 3:46–47; see Gn 22. The texts of v. 14 seq.; Nb 3:13; 8:17 associate this special dedication to God with the deliverance from Egypt and with the tenth plague. In place of the first-born of Israel, spared on that occasion, the Levites are consecrated to God, Nb 3:12, 40–51; 8:16–18.

c. The donkey, being an unclean animal, could not be offered in sacrifice.

d. This, properly speaking, is the beginning of the Exodus, the journey of God's people through the desert to the Promised Land; the prophets were to look back on this time as the first days of God's marriage with his people, Jr 2:2; Ezk 16:8; Ho 2:16p; 11:1 seq. Throughout the Bible Yahweh remains 'He who brought his people out of Egypt', Jos 24:17; Ps 81:10; Am 2:10; 3:1; Mi 6:4. • The second part of Isaiah sees the return from Babylon as a second Exodus, Is 40:3e. Christian tradition has later seen the journey through the desert as a figure of the pilgrimage of the Church (or individual soul) towards Heaven.

e. The route taken by the Exodus and the precise stages of the journey are extremely difficult to determine. v. 17 notwithstanding, a certain number of names tend to indicate a northern route, that is to say, through 'the Philistines' territory' (which term, however, is an anachronism). There would seem to be traces of two literary traditions here, preserving the memory of two historic facts, the duplicate itineraries corresponding to the exodus of two distinct groups, see 7:8a; 16:1a.

f. The normal highway running parallel with the coast and going by way of Sileh (the modern el-Kantara); there are wells and military posts at intervals along its course. The fugitive group certainly did not take it. The group driven out of Egypt may have done so. On it, the three geographical names mentioned in 14:2 may most convincingly be sited, but the flight-Exodus, being the more important, has assimilated memories from the other tradition.

g. The words 'the Sea of Reeds', in Hebr. yam suph, are additional. The original text gave only a general indication: the Israelites took the desert route, to the east or south-east. The meaning and location of what is termed 'the Sea of Suph' are uncertain: it is not mentioned in the ch. 4 narrative, which only speaks of 'the sea'. The sole ancient text to mention the 'Sea of Suph' or 'Sea of Reeds' (translating the Egyptian term—see also the phrase in Nb 21:4), is 15:4, which is poetic.

h. In the Pentateuch we find the divine presence manifested in various ways: the pillar of cloud and the pillar of fire (Yahwistic tradition); the 'dark mist' and the cloud (Elohistic tradition); finally, coupled with the cloud, the 'glory' of Yahweh, 24:16f, a consuming fire which moves like Yahweh himself (Priestly tradition), see 19:16 seq., 16g. Mystical theology makes much of these ideas or images.

desert has closed in on them." ·I shall then make Pharaoh stubborn and he will set 4 out in pursuit of them; and I shall win glory for myself at the expense of Pharaoh and his whole army, and then the Egyptians will know that I am Yahweh.' And the Israelites did this.

The Egyptians pursue the Israelites

When Pharaoh king of Egypt was told that the people had fled, he and his officials 5 changed their attitude towards the people. 'What have we done,' they said, 'allowing Israel to leave our service?' ·So Pharaoh had his chariot harnessed and 6 set out with his troops, ·taking six hundred of the best chariots and all the other 7 chariots in Egypt, with officers in each. ·Yahweh made Pharaoh king of Egypt 8 stubborn, and he gave chase to the Israelites. The Israelites marched confidently away, ·but the Egyptians, all Pharaoh's horses, his chariots, his horsemen and his 9 army, gave chase and caught up with them where they lay encamped beside the sea near Pi-Hahiroth, facing Baal-Zephon. ·As Pharaoh approached, the Israelites 10 looked up—and there were the Egyptians in pursuit of them! The Israelites were 5:21;6.9 terrified and cried out to Yahweh for help. ·To Moses they said, 'Was it for lack of 11 16:2seq.;17:3; graves in Egypt, that you had to lead us out to die in the desert? What was the 15:24 point of bringing us out of Egypt? ·Did we not tell you as much in Egypt? Leave us 12
Nb 11:1,4; alone, we said, we would rather work for the Egyptians! We prefer to work for the 21:4–5 Egyptians than to die in the desert!' ·Moses said to the people, 'Do not be afraid! 13
Ps 78:40 Stand firm, and you will see what Yahweh will do to rescue you today: the 5:21;6:9 Egyptians you see today you will never see again. ·Yahweh will do the fighting for 14
Is 30:15 you; all you need to do is to keep calm.'

Ps 78;105; The miracle of the sea [a] 106;114
↗Ws 10:18seq. Yahweh then said to Moses, 'Why cry out to me? Tell the Israelites to march 15
↗1 Co 10:1–2 on. ·Your part is to raise your staff and stretch out your hand over the sea and 16 divide it, so that the Israelites can walk through the sea on dry ground, ·while 17
I, for my part, shall make the Egyptians so stubborn that they will follow them, and I shall win glory for myself at the expense of Pharaoh and all his army, chariots and horsemen. ·And when I have won glory for myself at the expense 18 of Pharaoh and his chariots and horsemen, the Egyptians will know that I am Yahweh.'

Gn 16:7c Then the angel of God, who preceded the army of Israel, changed station and 19 followed behind them. The pillar of cloud moved from their front and took position behind them. ·It came between the army of the Egyptians and the army of Israel. 20
The cloud was dark, and the night passed [b] without the one drawing any closer to the other the whole night long. ·Then Moses stretched out his hand over the sea, 21 and Yahweh drove the sea back with a strong easterly wind all night and made the 1 Co 10:1 sea into dry land. The waters were divided ·and the Israelites went on dry ground 22
Heb 11:29 right through the sea, with walls of water to right and left of them. ·The Egyptians 23 gave chase, and all Pharaoh's horses, chariots and horsemen went into the sea after Ps 77:16–18 them. ·In the morning watch, [c] Yahweh looked down on the army of the Egyptians 24 from the pillar of fire and cloud and threw the Egyptian army into confusion. ·He 25 so clogged [d] their chariot wheels that they drove on only with difficulty, which made the Egyptians say, 'Let us flee from Israel, for Yahweh is fighting on their side against the Egyptians!' ·Then Yahweh said to Moses, 'Stretch out your hand over 26 the sea and let the waters flow back on the Egyptians and on their chariots and their horsemen.' ·Moses stretched out his hand over the sea and, as day broke, the 27 sea returned to its bed. The fleeing Egyptians ran straight into it, and Yahweh Dt 11:4 overthrew the Egyptians in the middle of the sea. ·The returning waters washed 28 right over the chariots and horsemen of Pharaoh's entire army, which had followed the Israelites into the sea; not a single one of them was left. ·The Israelites, 29 however, had marched through the sea on dry ground, with walls of water to right and left of them. ·That day, Yahweh rescued Israel from the clutches of the 30

31 Egyptians, and Israel saw the Egyptians lying dead on the sea-shore. •When Israel saw the mighty deed that Yahweh had performed against the Egyptians, the people revered Yahweh and put their faith in Yahweh and in Moses, his servant. 4:31

Song of victory [a]

1 15 It was then that Moses and the Israelites sang this song in Yahweh's honour:

I shall sing to Yahweh, for he has covered himself in glory, horse and rider he has thrown into the sea.
2 Yah [b] is my strength and my song, [c] ‖Is 12:2

14 a. The narrative presents the miracle in two ways: 1 Moses waves his staff over the sea, which divides, forming two walls of water between which the Israelites pass on dry ground. Then, when the Egyptians have followed them in, the waters flow back and engulf them. This account is attributable to the Priestly or Elohistic traditions. 2 Moses encourages the pursued Israelites by assuring them that there is nothing that they need do. Yahweh then raises a wind, which dries up 'the sea', the Egyptians advance into it and are engulfed when the waters flow back. In this account, attributed to the Yahwist, Yahweh alone intervenes; there is nothing about the Israelites' crossing the sea, but only the miraculous destruction of the Egyptians. This account represents the primitive tradition. Only the destruction of the Egyptians is mentioned in the very old song, 15:21, elaborated in the poem of 15:1–18. It is impossible to determine the place where and the way in which this event occurred, but it struck the eyes of the witnesses as a startling intervention on the part of 'Yahweh the Warrior', 15:3, and became a fundamental article of Yahwistic faith, Dt 11:4; Jos 24:7 and see Dt 1:30; 6:21–22; 26:7–8. The miracle of the sea later found a parallel in another water-miracle, the crossing of the Jordan, Jos 3–4, the exodus from Egypt came to be thought of in the light of the entry into Canaan, and both ideas are intertwined in ch. 14.

b. 'the night passed' Gk; 'there was a cloud and darkness; and it lit up the night' Hebr.; 'the cloud was dark on one side and bright on the other' Symm. In Jos 24:7 Yahweh sets a thick mist between Israelites and Egyptians. Our translation is conjectural.

c. The last watch of the night, 2–6 am.

d. 'clogged' versions; 'took off' Hebr.

15 a. The victory chant of v. 21 has been expanded into a thanksgiving psalm; its starting point is the destruction of Pharaoh's army but it goes on to develop the theme of God's power and his care for his people: the wonders of the exodus, the conquest of Canaan, even the building of the Temple in Jerusalem.

b. Another form of the name 'Yahweh'.

c. 'my song' MSS; 'the song' Hebr.; 'protects me' (my protection) Gk.

II: THE JOURNEY THROUGH THE DESERT

↗1 Co 10:3–5
Marah [g]

Gn 16:7
Moses led Israel away from the Sea of Reeds, and they entered the desert of Shur. 22
They then travelled through the desert for three days without finding water. ·When 23
Nb 33:8 Rt 1:20
they reached Marah, they could not drink the Marah water because it was bitter; this is why the place was named Marah. [h] ·The people complained to Moses saying, 24 14:11+
'What are we to drink?' [i] ·Moses appealed to Yahweh for help, and Yahweh 25 showed him a piece of wood. When Moses threw it into the water, the water became sweet.

There he [j] laid down a statute and law for them

Then he said, ·'If you listen carefully to the voice of Yahweh your God and do 26 laws, I shall never inflict on you any of the diseases that I inflicted on the Egyptians, for I am Yahweh your Healer.'

So they came to Elim where there were twelve springs and seventy palm trees; 27 and there they pitched camp beside the water.

The manna and the quails [a]

16 Setting out from Elim, the whole community of Israelites entered the desert 1 of Sin, lying between Elim and Sinai—on the fifteenth day of the second month after they had left Egypt. ·And the whole community of Israelites began 2 14:11+ complaining about Moses and Aaron in the desert ·and said to them, 'Why did we 3 not die at Yahweh's hand in Egypt, where we used to sit round the flesh pots and could eat to our heart's content! As it is, you have led us into this desert to starve this entire assembly to death!'

Yahweh then said to Moses, 'Look, I shall rain down bread for you from the 4 heavens. Each day the people must go out and collect their ration for the day; I propose to test them in this way to see whether they will follow my law or not. ·On 5
Dt 8:2

the sixth day, however, when they prepare what they have brought in, this must be twice as much as they collect on ordinary days.'

6 Moses and Aaron then said to the whole community [b] of Israelites, 'This evening
7 you will know that it was Yahweh who brought you out of Egypt, ·and tomorrow Ps 81:10 morning you will see the glory of Yahweh, for Yahweh has heard your complaints 8 about him. What are we, that your complaint should be against us?' ·Moses then said, 'This evening Yahweh will give you meat to eat, and tomorrow morning bread to your heart's content, for Yahweh has heard your complaints about him.
What do we count for? Your complaints are not against us, but against Yahweh.' Lk 10.16
9 Moses then said to Aaron, 'Say to the whole community of Israelites, "Approach 10 Yahweh's presence, for he has heard your complaints." ' ·As Aaron was speaking to the whole community of Israelites, they turned towards the desert, and there 11 the glory of Yahweh appeared in the cloud. ·Yahweh then spoke to Moses and 12 said, ·'I have heard the Israelites' complaints. Speak to them as follows, "At twilight you will eat meat, and in the morning you will have bread to your heart's content, and then you will know that I am Yahweh your God." ' 13 That evening, quails flew in and covered the camp, and next morning there was Nb 11:31 14 a layer of dew all round the camp. ·When the layer of dew lifted, there on the surface of the desert was something fine and granular, [c] as fine as hoarfrost on the Nb 11:7-9 15 ground. ·As soon as the Israelites saw this, they said to one another, 'What is that?' [d] not knowing what it was. 'That', Moses told them, 'is the food which 1 Co 10:3 16 Yahweh has given you to eat. ·These are Yahweh's orders: Each of you must collect as much as he needs to eat—a homer per head for each person in his tent.' 17, 18 The Israelites did this. They collected it, some more, some less. ·When they measured out what they had collected by the homer, no one who had collected ↗2 Co 8:15 more had too much, no one who had collected less had too little. Each had collected as much as he needed to eat.
19, 20 Moses then said, 'No one may keep any of it for tomorrow.' ·But some of them took no notice of Moses and kept part of it for the following day, and it bred 21 maggots and smelt foul; and Moses was angry with them. ·Morning by morning Jn 6:27 they collected it, each man as much as he needed to eat, and once the sun grew hot, it melted away.
22 Now, on the sixth day they collected twice the amount of food: two homer per 23 person, and all the leaders of the community came and told Moses this. ·Moses replied, 'This is what Yahweh said, "Tomorrow is a day of complete rest, a Sabbath sacred to Yahweh. Bake what you want to bake, boil what you want to boil; put 24 aside what is left over, to be kept for tomorrow." ·So, as Moses ordered, they put it aside for the following day, and its smell was not foul nor were there maggots in 25 it. ·'Eat it today,' Moses said, 'for today is a Sabbath for Yahweh; you will find 26 none in the fields today. ·For six days you will collect it, but on the seventh day, the 27 Sabbath, there will be none.' ·On the seventh day some of the people went out to 16 a. This episode preserves a few Yahwistic elements in what is predominantly a Priestly narrative, see the strict regulations about collecting the manna, subordinated to the requirements of the Sabbath. • The manna and the quails, occurring in the same narrative, raise a problem. Manna is formed from the secretions of insects living on tamarisk trees, but only in Central Sinai; it is harvested in May–June. Quails, exhausted by their crossing of the Mediterranean when they migrate from Europe in about September, flying with the west wind, land in large numbers on the coast in the northern part of the peninsula, see Nb 11:31. The story may combine the memories of two separate groups leaving Egypt, see 7:8a; 11:1a, and following different routes, see 13:17f. These natural curiosities serve to illustrate God's special providence for his people..

you must stay in his place; on the seventh day no one may leave his home.' ·So on 30
the seventh day the people rested. [e]

Nb 11:7 The House of Israel named it 'manna'. It was like coriander seed; it was white 31 and its taste was like that of wafers made with honey.

Moses then said, 'These are Yahweh's orders: Fill a homer[f] with it and preserve 32 it for your descendants, so that they can see the bread on which I fed you in the desert when I brought you out of Egypt.' ·Moses then said to Aaron, 'Take a jar 33 and in it put a full homer of manna and store it in Yahweh's presence, to be kept for your descendants.' ·Accordingly, Aaron stored it in front of the Testimony,[g] to 34 be preserved, as Yahweh had ordered Moses.

Nb 21:5 Jos 5:10–12 The Israelites ate manna for forty years, up to the time they reached inhabited 35

‖Nb 20:1–13 The water from the rock [a]

Nb 33:12–14 17 The whole community of Israelites left the desert of Sin, travelling by stages 1 as Yahweh ordered. They pitched camp at Rephidim where there was no water for the people to drink. ·The people took issue with Moses for this and said, 2 14:11+;15:24 'Give us water to drink.' Moses replied, 'Why take issue with me? Why do you put Dt 6:16 Yahweh to the test?' ·But, tormented by thirst, the people complained to Moses. 3
'Why did you bring us out of Egypt,' they said, 'only to make us, our children and our livestock, die of thirst?' ·Moses appealed to Yahweh for help. 'How am I to 4
Nb 14:10 deal with this people?' he said. 'Any moment now they will stone me!' ·Yahweh 5 then said to Moses, 'Go on ahead of the people, taking some of the elders of Israel with you; in your hand take the staff with which you struck the River, and go. ·I 6
Nb 20:10+ Jn 7:38r 1 Co 10:4c shall be waiting for you there on the rock (at Horeb).[b] Strike the rock, and water will come out for the people to drink.' This was what Moses did, with the elders of Nb 20:24 Dt 6:16;9:22; 32:51;33:8 Ps 95:8;106:32 Israel looking on. ·He gave the place the names Massah and Meribah [c] because of 7
the Israelites' contentiousness and because they put Yahweh to the test by saying,
'Is Yahweh with us, or not?'

A battle against the Amalekites [d]

The Amalekites then came and attacked Israel at Rephidim. ·Moses said to 8, 9 Jos 1:1b Joshua, [e] 'Pick some men and tomorrow morning go out and engage Amalek. I, for Jos 8:18–19,18f my part, shall take my stand on the hilltop with the staff of God in my hand.'
Joshua did as Moses had told him and went out [f] to engage Amalek, while Moses, 10
24:14 Aaron and Hur went up to the top of the hill. ·As long as Moses kept his arms 11
Ps 44:4–7 raised, Israel had the advantage; when he let his arms fall, the advantage went to Amalek. ·But Moses' arms grew heavy, so they took a stone and put it under him 12 and on this he sat, with Aaron and Hur supporting his arms on each side.

Thus his arms remained unwavering till sunset, ·and Joshua defeated Amalek, 13 putting their people to the sword. ·Yahweh then said to Moses, 'Write this down in 14
Nb 24:20 Dt 25:17–19 1 S 15:3seq. a book to commemorate it, and repeat it over to Joshua, for I shall blot out all memory of Amalek under heaven.' ·Moses then built an altar and named it 15 Yahweh-Nissi [g] ·meaning, 'Lay hold of Yahweh's banner! Yahweh will be at war 16 with Amalek generation after generation.'

The meeting of Jethro and Moses [a]

2:18g 18 Jethro, priest of Midian, Moses' father-in-law, had heard all about what 1 God had done for Moses and for Israel his people: how Yahweh had brought Israel out of Egypt. ·Jethro, Moses' father-in-law, then took back Zip- 2 porah, Moses' wife, whom Moses had sent home,[b] ·with her two sons; one of them 3 2:22h was called Gershom because, he had said, 'I am an alien in a foreign land,' ·and the 4 other called Eliezer[c] because 'My father's God is my help and has delivered me from Pharaoh's sword.'

Then Jethro, Moses' father-in-law, with Moses' sons and wife, came to Moses in the desert where he was encamped, at the mountain of God. ·'Here is your father-in-law Jethro approaching', Moses was told,[d] 'with your wife and her two sons.' ·So Moses went out to greet his father-in-law, bowed low to him and kissed him; and when each had asked how the other was they went into the tent. ·Moses then told his father-in-law all about what Yahweh had done to Pharaoh and the Egyptians for Israel's sake, and about all the hardships that they had encountered on the way, and how Yahweh had rescued them. ·And Jethro was delighted at all Yahweh's goodness to Israel in having rescued them from the clutches of the Egyptians. ·'Blessed be Yahweh', Jethro exclaimed, 'for having rescued you from the clutches of the Egyptians and the clutches of Pharaoh, for having rescued the people from the grasp of the Egyptians! ·Now I know that Yahweh is greater than all other gods, . .'[e]

Jethro, Moses' father-in-law, then offered a burnt offering and other sacrifices to God; and Aaron and all the elders of Israel came and ate with Moses' father-in-law in the presence of God.[f]

On the following day, Moses took his seat to administer justice for the people, and the people were standing round him from morning till evening. ·Seeing all he did for the people, Moses' father-in-law said to him, 'Why do you do this for the people, why sit here alone with the people standing round you from morning till evening?' ·Moses replied to his father-in-law, 'Because the people come to me to consult God. ·When they have a problem they come to me, and I give a ruling between the one and the other and make God's statutes and laws known to them.' Moses' father-in-law then said to him, 'What you are doing is not right. ·You will only tire yourself out, and the people with you too, for the work is too heavy for you. You cannot do it all yourself. ·Now listen to the advice I am going to give you,

g. i.e. the tables of the Law, see 31:18, kept inside the ark, frequently called 'ark of the Testimony', see 25:22g. Its mention here is an anachronism on the part of the Priestly editor.

17 a. The same miracle is reported in Nb 20:1–13 (see Nb 20:1b), which sites it in the Kadesh area. Here it is placed at Rephidim, the last stop before Sinai. This is another instance of the theme of discontent in the desert, see 15:24i.

b. 'at Horeb', evidently a reader's gloss. In the opinion of certain rabbis the rock followed the Israelites in their wanderings, see 1 Co 10:4. For 'Rock' as a divine title, see Ps 18:2c.

c. Massah: trial; meribah: contention.

d. This ancient, probably Yahwistic, story represents a tradition of the southern tribes and has been attached by the editors to Rephidim, where the previous episode occurred. In fact, the Amalekites lived further north, in the Negeb and in the mountain country of Seir, Gn 14:7; Nb 13:29; Jg 1:16; 1 Ch 4:42 seq., which is presumably where Hormah was, Nb 14:39–45, see also Dt 25:17–19; 1 S 15. Amalek was said to be the grandson of Esau, Gn 36:12, 16, and was in fact a nation of great antiquity, Nb 24:20. In the time of the Judges the Amalekites were in alliance with Midianite bandits; they were still formidable in David's day. There is no further mention of them until 1 Ch 4:43 and Ps 83:7.

e. First mention of Joshua in the Pentateuch.

f. 'went out' Gk; Hebr. omits.

g. The name means 'Yahweh is my banner'; 'banner' restored in v. 16, where Hebr. reads 'throne'.

18 a. Elohistic narrative connected with that of Moses' stay in Midian, 2:11–4:31. Attempts have been made to give Yahwism a Midianite origin: Moses received the revelation of the divine name in Midian, 3:1; Jethro was 'priest of Midian', 18:1; he invoked the name of Yahweh, v. 10, offered sacrifices to him and presided over the subsequent meal, v. 12. But acknowledging Yahweh's greatness and power does not mean that Yahweh was his God, nor even that he was converted to Yahweh (contrast, for instance, the professions of faith of Pharaoh, 9:27, and Rahab, Jos 2:9–10) although tradition may have construed it so, v. 12. The 'mountain of God', v. 5, was not a Midianite sanctuary served by Jethro: he came there to meet Moses, later returning to his own country, v. 27. A Midianite origin for the name Yahweh is purely hypothetical, see 3:13g, but in any case, whether borrowed or not, the name Yahweh comes to express an entirely new religious reality.

b. Unique mention of the repudiation of Zipporah; a tradition independent of 4:19–20, 24–26.

c. Gershom: see 2:22. Eliezer: 'eli—my God—(is) 'ezer—help.

d. 'Here . . . was told' Gk, Syr.; 'He (Jethro) said . . . I am' Hebr.

e. The end of the v. 'because in the matter in which they treated them arrogantly' is probably incomplete or corrupt.

f. 'offered' versions; 'took' Hebr. • This v., apparently interpreting Jethro's declaration as a conversion (he offered sacrifices) and omitting any mention of Moses, is probably an addition.

g. A measure presupposing a numerous and already settled population, see v. 23, and attributing to Moses a decentralisation of judicial powers, which certainly occurred much later. Nonetheless, the fact that a measure of this sort was attributed to Jethro's intervention may witness to a Midianite influence on the early organisation of the people.

and God be with you! Your task is to represent the people to God, to lay their cases before God, 20 and to teach them the statutes and laws, and show them the way they ought to follow and how they ought to behave. 21 At the same time, from
Nb 11:16–17 the people at large choose capable and God-fearing men, men who are trustworthy and incorruptible, and put them in charge of them as heads of thousands, hundreds, fifties and tens, 22 and make them the people's permanent judges. They will refer all important matters to you, but all minor matters they will decide themselves, so making things easier for you by sharing the burden with you. 23 If you do this—and may God so command you—you will be able to stand the strain, and all these people will go home satisfied.'

24, 25 Moses took his father-in-law's advice and did just as he said. Moses chose capable men from all Israel and put them in charge of the people as heads of thousands, hundreds, fifties and tens. 26 These acted as the people's permanent judges. They referred hard cases to Moses but decided minor matters themselves.

Nb 10:30 27 Moses then set his father-in-law on his way, and he travelled back to his own country.

III: THE COVENANT AT SINAI [a]

Jr 31:31–34q

A: THE COVENANT AND THE DECALOGUE

The Israelites reach Sinai

Nb 33:15 1 Three months to the day after leaving Egypt, the Israelites reached the 2 desert of Sinai. Setting out from Rephidim, they reached the desert of Sinai and pitched camp in the desert; there, facing the mountain, [b] Israel pitched camp.

Yahweh promises the covenant [c]

3 Moses then went up to God, and Yahweh called to him from the mountain, saying,
Dt 4:34;29:2 4 'Say this to the House of Jacob! Tell the Israelites, "You have seen for yourselves Dt 32:11 Is 46:4;63:9 what I did to the Egyptians and how I carried you away on eagle's wings and brought you to me. 5 So now, if you are really prepared to obey me and keep my Dt 7:6b; 10:14–15 covenant, you, out of all peoples, shall be my personal possession, for the whole
1 P 2:9 Rv 5:10 world is mine. 6 For me you shall be a kingdom of priests, a holy nation." Those are the words you are to say to the Israelites.' 7 So Moses went and summoned the people's elders and acquainted them with everything that Yahweh had bidden him, Dt 5:27 Jos 24:16–24 8 and the people all replied with one accord, 'Whatever Yahweh has said, we will do.' Moses then reported to Yahweh what the people had said.

Preparing for the covenant

13:22h;24:16f Si 45:5 •14:31 9 Yahweh then said to Moses, 'Look, I shall come to you in a dense cloud so that the people will hear when I speak to you and believe you ever after.' Moses then told Yahweh what the people had said. [d]

10 Yahweh then said to Moses, 'Go to the people and tell them to sanctify themGn 35:2 Lv 11:25, 28,40 11 selves today and tomorrow. They must wash their clothes and be ready for the day after tomorrow; for the day after tomorrow, in the sight of all the people, Yahweh will descend on Mount Sinai. 12 You will mark out the limits of the mountain [e] and ↗Heb 12:20 say, "Take care not to go up the mountain or to touch the edge of it. Anyone who touches the mountain will be put to death. 13 No one may lay a hand on him: he must be stoned or shot by arrow; whether man or beast, he shall not live." When the ram's horn sounds a long blast, they must go up the mountain.'

14 So Moses came down from the mountain to the people; he made the people sanctify themselves and they washed their clothes. 15 He then said to the people, 'Be ready for the day after tomorrow; do not touch a woman.' [f]

The theophany on Sinai [g]

||Dt 4:10–12,5:2–5,23–31 Is 6:4h Mt 17:5par.

16 Now at daybreak two days later, there were peals of thunder and flashes of lightning, dense cloud on the mountain and a very loud trumpet blast; and, in the 17 camp, all the people trembled. ·Then Moses led the people out of the camp to meet 18 God; and they took their stand at the bottom of the mountain. ·Mount Sinai was entirely wrapped in smoke, because Yahweh had descended on it in the form of fire. The smoke rose like smoke from a furnace and the whole mountain shook 19 violently. ·Louder and louder grew the trumpeting. Moses spoke, and God an-20 swered him in the thunder. [h] ·Yahweh descended on Mount Sinai, on the top of the mountain, and Yahweh called Moses to the top of the mountain; and Moses went 21 up. ·Yahweh then said to Moses, [i] 'Go down and warn the people not to break 19:12; 33:20i
22 through to look at Yahweh, or many of them will perish. ·Even the priests, who do have access to Yahweh, must sanctify themselves, or Yahweh may burst out against 23 them.' ·Moses said to Yahweh, 'The people cannot come up Mount Sinai, since you yourself warned us to mark out the limits of the mountain and declare it
24 sacred.' ·Yahweh said, 'Away with you! Go down! Then come back bringing Aaron with you. But do not allow the priests and people to break through to come
25 up to Yahweh, or he may burst out against them.' ·So Moses went down to the people and spoke to them. . . [j]

19 a. This large section is mainly from the Priestly source: 19:1–2[a]; 24:15[b]–31:18[a]; 34:29 to the end of the book. Ch. 20:22–23:33 are to be excluded, since their content, the Book of the Covenant, was connected with Sinai at a later date. The remainder derives from ancient sources, where the distinction between Yahwistic and Elohistic is sometimes hard to make. In its final form, the Mosaic covenant seals God's choice of the nation and the promises made to it, 6:6–8, just as the covenant with Abraham, mentioned in 6:5, sealed the earlier promises, Gn 17. But the covenant with Abraham was made with a single individual (though also embracing his descendants) and imposed a single obligation, that of circumcision; by contrast the Sinaitic covenant was to bind the whole nation, which then received a Law: the Decalogue and the Book of the Covenant. This Law with its subsequent elaborations was to become the charter of Judaism, and Si 24:9–27 identifies it with divine wisdom. But the Law is also 'a witness against the nation', Dt 31:26, because breach of it nullifies the promises and invites God's condemnation. Paul will later interpret the role of the law as being at once instruction and deterrent, to prepare people for the coming of Christ who seals the new covenant, Rm 7; Ga 3.

b. The location of the mountain is problematic. Since the fourth century AD, Christian tradition has placed it in the southern part of the peninsula named after it, at Jebel Musa (2245 m). One theory now current argues from the volcanic characteristics in the description of the theophany, 19:16g, and the itinerary in Nb 33 (see Nb 33:1a) that Sinai should be located in Arabia, where volcanoes were still active in historic times. These arguments are not conclusive (see the notes indicated above), and other texts suggest a site nearer Egypt and south of Palestine. Consequently, another theory sites Sinai near Kadesh, on the strength of texts connecting Seir, Edom and Mount Paran with the theophany, Dt 33:2; Jg 5:4; Hab 3:3. Kadesh, however, is never associated with the desert of Sinai which certain texts explicitly place a long way from Kadesh, Nb 11–13; Dt 1:2, 19. The position in the southern part of the peninsula remains the most likely. Despite the lasting importance of the events and legislation connected with Sinai, 3:1–4:17; 18:19–40; Nb 1–10, the Israelites seem quickly to have forgotten exactly where it was. The episode of Elijah, 1 K 19, see Si 48:7, is an exception.

c. The covenant was to make Israel God's personal and sacred possession, Jr 2:3, a people consecrated, Dt 7:6; 26:19, or holy (the Hebr. word means both) as its God is holy, Lv 19:2, see Lv 11:44 seq.; 20:7, 26, and a nation of priests, see Is 61:6, because what is sacred is by that very fact related to ritual worship.

d. A repetition of the end of v. 8, added to make the transition to the following passage.

e. 'You will mark out the limits of the mountain' Sam.; 'set limits for the people' Hebr. • Transcendence and holiness are inseparable and holiness implies separation from the profane. Where God manifests his presence is forbidden ground, 3:5; 40:35; Gn 28:16–17; Lv 16:2; Nb 1:51; 18:22. For the same reason the ark must not be handled, 2 S 6:7. This idea of the sacred, though primitive, conveys a lesson of enduring worth: that the mystery of God's greatness is impenetrable and his majesty a thing of awe.

f. It is assumed that sexual relations make people unfit for sacred duties, see 1 S 21:5.

g. The Yahwistic, 19:18, Priestly, 24:15[b]–17 and Deuteronomic traditions, Dt 4:11[b]–12[a]; 5:23–24; 9:15, describe the theophany on Sinai in terms appropriate to a volcanic eruption. The Elohistic tradition describes it as a storm, 19:16, see v. 19. In both cases, the imagery is inspired by spectacular natural phenomena: a volcanic eruption such as the Israelites might have heard described by visitors from northern Arabia or might themselves have been able to observe at a distance in the days of Solomon (expedition to Ophir); a mountain storm such as they could see in Galilee or on Mount Hermon. It may well be that the first tradition is that of the Yahwist, a native of the south, and the second that of the Elohist, a native of the north. The imagery is used to express Yahweh's majesty and glory, see 24:16f, his transcendence and the religious awe that he inspires, see Jg 5:4 seq.; Ps 29; 68:8; 77:17–18; 97:3–5; Hab 3:3–15.

h. lit. 'in (or by) a voice'. The word always means thunder when used in the plural, see v. 16. In the singular, it can mean thunder too, but here it may mean the intelligible voice of God, who 'answered' Moses.

i. vv. 21–24 are additional, referring back to vv. 12–13. The mention of the priests is an anachronism; the priesthood had not yet been instituted.

j. The sentence is incomplete, the narrative being interrupted by the insertion of the Decalogue.

Dt 24:7

20 a. In the book as it stands the Decalogue is not linked to the narrative framework, 19:24–25 and 20:18–21. The Decalogue (or 'Ten Words', see 34:28; Dt 4:13; 10:4) has come down to us in two forms: the Elohistic recension here, and the somewhat different Deuteronomic recension in Dt 5:6–21. In its original form, which may go back to the time of Moses, it probably consisted of a sequence of ten short (see commandments 5, 6, 7 and 8), rhythmical formulae which were easy to learn by heart. The Decalogue was then handed down orally by the groups that had had the experience at Sinai and knew that it contained the 'words' spoken by God there. It was later inserted, with further elaborations, in the account of the theophany. The Elohistic tradition continues at 24:3, after the Book of the Covenant. The Decalogue covers the entire field of religious and moral life. Two systems for dividing the commandments have been proposed: (a) vv. 2–3, 4–6, 7, 8–11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17; and (b) vv. 3–6, 7, 8–11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17[a], 17[b]. The first is that of the Greek Fathers and is preserved in the Orthodox and Reformed Churches. The Catholic and Lutheran Churches have adopted the second, drawn up by St Augustine following Deuteronomy. The Decalogue is the core of the Mosaic Law and is still valid under the New Law; Christ appeals to the commandments, to which he adds the evangelical counsels, Mk 10:17–21, as the seal of perfection. Paul's attack on the Law, Rm and Ga, is not directed against these essential duties to God and neighbour.

b. Yahweh demands exclusive worship from Israel; the covenant is conditional on this. Denial of the existence of other gods was only to come later, see Dt 4:35j.

c. Prohibition against making cult-images of Yahweh (see the explanation given in Dt 4:15). This prohibition set Israel apart from all the other peoples surrounding it.

d. i.e. the gods of v. 3, of which v. 5 is the continuation.

e. Besides perjury, Mt 5:33, and false evidence, Ex 20:16; Dt 5:20, this can also include the use of the divine name in magic; Gk translates 'futilely'.

f. The biblical texts expressly connect the term 'Sabbath' with a root meaning 'to desist, to stop work', 16:29–30; 23:12; 34:21. The Sabbath is a weekly day of rest dedicated to Yahweh who rested on the seventh day of creation, v. 11, see Gn 2:2–3. But while it does homage to God, it also benefits human beings, 23:12; Dt 5:14. The Sabbath is of very ancient origin but its observance gained particular importance at the time of the Exile and became a distinctive mark of Judaism, Ne 13:15–22; 1 M 2:32–41. A certain legalism made its observance burdensome, Mt 12:1 seq. and par.; Lk 13:10 seq.; 14:1 seq.

g. vv. 18–21 follow on from 19:19 as part of the Elohistic description of the theophany as a storm, see 19:16g.

h. 'were terrified' Sam. and Gk, vowel rearrangement of MT 'saw'.

i. A distinction is drawn here between the terror inspired by the physical manifestations of God's greatness, especially by those natural phenomena accompanying a theophany, and that awe characteristic of absolute submission to the will of God, see Gn 22:12; Dt 6:2a.

j. The 'Book of the Covenant', 20:22–23:33, has been so named in modern times on account of 24:7 (although the text in question refers to the Decalogue). This collection of laws and customs was not promulgated at Sinai: its prescriptions presuppose an already settled and agricultural society. It dates from the early days of the colonisation of Canaan, before the monarchy. Applying the spirit of the Ten Commandments, it came to be regarded as the charter of the Sinaitic Covenant and hence was inserted here, after the Decalogue. Points of contact with the Code of Hammurabi, with the Hittite Code and with the Decree of Horemheb are not evidence of direct borrowing but point rather to a common source, namely to ancient customary law diversified according to local and racial requirements. The clauses of the Book of the Covenant may be grouped under three heads according to subject-matter: civil and penal laws, 21:1–22:20; regulation of ritual, 20:22–26; 22:28–31; 23:10–19; social morality, 22:21–27; 23:1–9. In literary form, the prescriptions fall into two categories: 'casuistic' or conditional, in the style of the Mesopotamian code.; and 'apodictic' or imperative, in the style of the Decalogue and certain Egyptian wisdom-texts.

k. Unlike Dt 12:5, etc., the Book of the Covenant allows a plurality of cult-places. Worship is lawful in any place in which Yahweh has manifested his presence, and of which, by revealing himself there, he has thus taken possession.

l. Apparently only a loincloth was worn when offering sacrifice, as among the Egyptians; hence the risk of indecency when mounting the altar-steps.

21 a. i.e. slave and also concubine, see following vv.

b. 'who intended her' Gk; 'who did not intend her for himself' Hebr.

c. His own daughters.

d. Accidents were attributed to God.

e. In a society where the state had not yet supplanted the individual avenger, the unintentional killer had to be protected from blood-vengeance, see Nb 35:19c; in the earliest days, the place of sanctuary was the sanctuary itself, 1 K 1:50; 2:28–34 (but the right of sanctuary did not obtain for premeditated murder, v. 14). This arrangement lay at the origin of the institution of cities of refuge, see Jos 20:1a.

the owner will repay ox for ox, and will keep the dead animal.

Theft of animals

2 S 12:6 Lk 19:8 'If anyone steals an ox or a sheep and slaughters or sells it, he will pay back five 37 22:1 beasts from the herd for the ox, and four animals from the flock for the sheep.'

22 'If a thief is caught breaking in and is struck a mortal blow, his blood may 1 2 not be avenged, •but if it happens after sunrise, his blood may be avenged. 2 3
He will make full restitution; if he has not the means, he will be sold to pay for what he has stolen. •If the stolen animal is found alive in his possession, be it ox, 3 4 donkey or animal from the flock, he will pay back double.

Offences requiring compensation

'If anyone puts his animals out to graze in a field or vineyard and lets them graze in 4 5 someone else's field, he will make restitution for the part of the field that has been grazed on the basis of its yield. But if he has let the whole field be grazed, he will make restitution[g] in proportion to the best crop of the field or vineyard.

'If a fire breaks out, setting light to thorn bushes and burning stacks, standing 5 6 corn or the field as a result, the person who started the fire will make full restitution.

Lk 5:21–26 'If anyone entrusts money or goods to someone else's keeping and these are 6 7 stolen from that person's house, the thief, if he can be discovered, will repay double. •Should the thief not be discovered, the owner of the house will come into 7 8

the presence of God, to declare that he has not laid hands on the other person's property.

9 8 'In every case of law-breaking involving an ox, donkey, animal from the flock, clothing or lost property of any sort, the ownership of which is disputed, both parties will lay their case before God. The party whom God pronounces guilty[b] will pay back double to the other.

10 9 'If anyone entrusts a donkey, ox, animal from the flock or any other animal to someone else's keeping, and it dies or breaks a limb or is carried off without anyone
11 10 seeing, •an oath by Yahweh will decide between the two parties whether the keeper has laid hands on the other's property or not. The owner will take what remains,[c]
12 11 the keeper will not have to make good the loss. •Only if the animal has been stolen
13 12 from him, will he make restitution to the owner. •If it has been savaged by a wild Gn 31:39 animal, he must bring the savaged remains of the animal as evidence, and will then not have to make restitution.

14 13 'If anyone borrows an animal from someone else, and it breaks a limb or dies in 15 14 the owner's absence, he will make full restitution. •But if the animal's owner has been present, he will not have to make good the loss. If the owner has hired it out, he will get the cost of its hire.

f. The Lex Talionis, see Lv 24:17–20; Dt 19:21, also to be found in the code of Hammurabi and the Assyrian laws, is social, not individual, in scope. By imposing a punishment equal to the damage caused, it aims at limiting excesses of vengeance, see Gn 4:23–24. The most obvious case is that of the execution of a murderer, Nb 35:31–34; see 21:12–17e; Lv 24:17. In fact, the application of the rule seems very early to have lost its primitive brutality. The obligations of the 'avenger of blood', go'el, Nb 35:19c, were progressively refined to the point where the essential functions were those of redemption, Rt 2:20i, and protection, Ps 19:14g; Is 41:14g, the principle still remaining in force, but under milder forms in practice, Ws 11:16*l*; Si 27:25–29; see also Ex 12:22. Forgiveness was enjoined within the Israelite nation, Lv 19:17–18; Si 10:6; 27:30–28:7, and Christ was to lay even stronger emphasis on the commandment to forgive, Mt 5:38–39p; 18:21–22k.

C: THE RATIFICATION OF THE COVENANT[a]

1 24 He then said to Moses, 'Come up to Yahweh, you and Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, and seventy of the elders of Israel and bow down at a distance.
2 Moses alone will approach Yahweh; the others will not approach, nor will the people come up with him.'
3 Moses went and told the people all Yahweh's words and all the laws,[b] and all the people answered with one voice, 'All the words Yahweh has spoken we will carry
4 out!' •Moses put all Yahweh's words into writing, and early next morning he built an altar at the foot of the mountain, with twelve standing-stones for the twelve 5 tribes of Israel. •Then he sent certain young Israelites to offer burnt offerings and 6 sacrifice bullocks to Yahweh as communion sacrifices. •Moses then took half the 7 blood and put it into basins, and the other half he sprinkled on the altar. •Then, taking the Book of the Covenant, he read it to the listening people, who then said, 8 'We shall do everything that Yahweh has said; we shall obey.' •Moses then took

b. 'do not acquit' Gk; 'for I shall not acquit' Hebr.
c. Or 'eye-witnesses'.
d. The four Pentateuchal traditions have each a calendar of the great religious feasts: 23:14–17 Elohistic; 34:18–23 Yahwistic; Dt 16:1–16 Deuteronomic; and Priestly tradition of Lv 23 with which the liturgical regulations of Nb 28–29 correspond. In the various texts appear further details of ritual, but the three principal feasts remain those laid down by Ex 23: 1 In spring, the feast of the Unleavened Bread. 2 The feast of Harvest, called 'feast of Weeks' in 34:22, held seven weeks, Dt 16:9, or fifty days, Lv 23:16, after the Passover (hence its Greek name 'Pentecost', Tb 2:1), marking the end of the wheat harvest; at a later date it also commemorated the giving of the Law on Sinai. 3 The feast of Ingathering of grapes and olives in the autumn, called the feast of Shelters (or Tabernacles), Lv 23:34; Dt 16:13, because during the week's festivities the people lived in huts made of branches in the manner of grape-gatherers in the vineyards; these shelters recalled the memory of Israel's encampments in the desert, Lv 23:43. Of these three feasts the most popular seems to have been Ingathering or Shelters, which is called simply 'the feast' in 1 K 8:2, 65; Ezk 45:25. These three agricultural feasts were celebrated only after the entry into Canaan. No precise date is given in the calendar of Ex 23 or Ex 34, because they are earlier than the centralisation of worship and were celebrated in local sanctuaries at dates appropriate to the state of agricultural activity in the region. Later, other feasts were added: the religious New Year, Lv 23:24; the Day of Expiation, Lv 16 and 23:27–32; and after the Exile: Purim, Est 9:24; Dedication, 1 M 4:59; the Day of Nicanor, 1 M 7:49.
e. Established in early times, this connection between the feast of Unleavened Bread and the exodus from Egypt, in the spring, made it easy for this feast to become linked with the Passover, see 12:1a.
f. Ex 34:25 says explicitly that this refers to the Passover, but in both cases the prescription is given after the religious calendar, vv. 14–17; 34:18–23, neither of which deals with the Passover. This latter was celebrated as a family festival until the Deuteronomic reforms, see Dt 16:5–6.
g. Canaanite custom known from the Ras Shamra texts.
h. This composite paragraph shows clear signs of Deuteronomic editing. It serves as conclusion to the Book of the Covenant, thus presenting it as a collection of laws given at Sinai in preparation for the colonisation of Canaan.
i. This angel appears to be distinguished from God himself, see Gn 16:7g, though he performs Yahweh's function. It is a guardian angel, Gn 24:7; Nb 20:16, such as figures later in the Book of Tobit, see Tb 5:4b.
j. 'do not defy him' Gk; 'do not make him bitter' Hebr. • The name expresses and represents the person himself.
k. In the Canaanite cult, stelae or standing-stones, Hebr. matztzebot, were symbols of the male divinity. The Law forbade their worship, see this passage and 34:13; Lv 26:1; Dt 7:5; 12:3; 16:22, so also did the prophets, Ho 3:4; 10:1; Mi 5:12. The religion of the patriarchs accepted them, see Gn 28:18, 22.
l. The explanation given here for the slowness of the conquest is the same as in Dt 7:22; other explanations were also given, see Jg 2:6f.
m. i.e. the Gulf of Aqaba—the Mediterranean—Sinai—the Euphrates: the ideal limits of the empire of David and Solomon, 1 K 5:1. For other descriptions of the Promised Land, see Nb 34:1a; Jg 20:1a.

24 a. This narrative combines two accounts of the covenant: 1 vv. 1–2, 9–11, the Yahwistic (?) tradition, in which the covenant is sealed by a meal. 2 vv. 3–8, the Elohistic tradition in which the essential element is the sprinkling of the blood over altar and people. A third (Yahwistic) account appears in ch. 34.
b. The 'words', alone mentioned in what follows, refer to the Decalogue, see 20:1 seq., called the 'Book of the Covenant' in 24:7. The 'laws' are an addition after the Book of the Covenant had been inserted, see 21:1.

Ps 50:5 Mt 26:28par. 1 Co 11:25 Heb 9:18seq. 1 P 1:2 the blood[c] and sprinkled it over the people, saying, 'This is the blood of the covenant which Yahweh has made with you, entailing all these stipulations.'

•33:20i Ezk 1:26 Rv 4:2–3 Moses, Aaron, Nadab, Abihu and seventy elders of Israel then went up, •and 9, 10 they saw the God of Israel beneath whose feet there was what looked like a sapphire pavement pure as the heavens themselves, •but he did no harm to the 11 Israelite notables; they actually gazed on God and then ate and drank.

Moses on the mountain[d]

31:18;32:15seq.; 34:1,4,28seq. Dt 4:13;5:22; 9:9,15;10:1–5 Yahweh said to Moses, 'Come up to me on the mountain. Stay there, and I will 12 give you the stone tablets—the law and the commandment—which I have written for their instruction.' •Moses made ready, with Joshua his assistant, and they went 13 up[e] the mountain of God. •He said to the elders, 'Wait here for us until we come 14 back to you. You have Aaron and Hur with you; if anyone has any matter to settle, let him go to them.' •Moses then went up the mountain. 15

19:3 Cloud covered the mountain. •The glory of Yahweh[f] rested on Mount Sinai and 16 the cloud covered it for six days. On the seventh day Yahweh called to Moses from inside the cloud. •To the watching Israelites, the glory of Yahweh looked like a 17 devouring fire on the mountain top. •Moses went right into the cloud and went on 18 up the mountain. Moses stayed on the mountain for forty days and forty nights.[g]

IV: INSTRUCTIONS ON THE BUILDING OF THE SANCTUARY AND ON ITS MINISTERS[a]

35:4–29 ### Contributions for the sanctuary

25 Yahweh spoke to Moses and said, •'Tell the Israelites to set aside a contri- 1, 2 bution for me; you will accept a contribution from everyone whose heart prompts him to give it. •And this is what you will accept from them: gold, silver 3 and bronze; •materials dyed violet-purple, red-purple and crimson, fine linen, 4 goats' hair; •rams' skins dyed red, fine leather,[h] acacia wood; •oil for the light, 5, 6 spices for the anointing oil and fragrant incense; •cornelian and other stones to be 7 set in the ephod and breastplate. •Make me[c] a sanctuary so that I can reside among 8 them.[d] •You will make it all according to the design for the Dwelling and the design 9 for its furnishings which I shall now show you.

c. Moses, being the mediator between God and the people, symbolically unites them by sprinkling the blood of the same victims first on the altar, which represents Yahweh, and then on the people. The covenant is thus ratified in blood, see Lv 1:5e, as the new covenant was to be ratified by the blood of Christ, Mt 26:28i; Heb 9:12–26, 15i.

d. vv. 12–15[a] and 18[b] seem to be of Elohistic origin; vv. 15[b]–18[a] (a parallel account) from the Priestly tradition.

e. 'they went up' Gk; 'and Moses went up' Hebr.

f. In the Priestly tradition, see 13:22h, the 'glory of Yahweh' is the manifestation of God's presence. It is a fire clearly distinguished (here and in 40:34–35) from the cloud that accompanies and surrounds it. The fire and the cloud are images borrowed from the great theophanies which occur with a thunderstorm for their setting, 19:16g, but they have a more profound significance: the brilliant light (which needs no storm for its appearance, 33:22, and which later leaves its glow on the face of Moses, 34:29) stands for God's unapproachable majesty. It fills the newly erected Tent, 40:34–35, and later takes possession of Solomon's Temple, 1 K 8:10–11. On the eve of the destruction of Jerusalem Ezekiel sees the glory leaving the city, Ezk 9:3; 10:4, 18–19; 11:22–23; later he sees it returning to the new Temple, Ezk 43:1 seq.; for Ezekiel the 'glory' assumes a shining, human form, Ezk 1:26–28. In other texts, and particularly in the Psalms, the glory of Yahweh simply expresses God's majesty and the honour due to him, often with eschatological overtones; or else it indicates God's miraculous power, 15:7, cf. the 'glory' of Jesus, Jn 2:11; 11:40.

g. Compare the forty days' journey of Elijah to Sinai, 1 K 19:8, and Christ's forty days in the desert, Mt 4:2 par.

25 a. In ch. 25–31 ('Priestly' tradition) there are elements of great antiquity like the ark and the tabernacle which, with the system of worship itself, certainly go back to the time of Moses; but with these are mixed others which reflect the development of worship in the course of the history of Israel. When the text gathers all together under the formula, 'God said to Moses', it is asserting the divine authority behind the religious institutions of Israel.

b. lit. 'tahash-skin', meaning uncertain.

c. 'Make me' Gk, Syr.; 'They will make me' Hebr. Following the versions, we also correct Hebr. singulars to plurals at vv. 9, 10 and 19.

d. God was worshipped in those places where he had specially manifested his presence by means of a theophany, Gn 12:7; 28:12–19; etc. Sinai, scene of the greatest theophany of all, is the 'mountain of God', 3:1; 1 K 19:8, his dwelling-place, Dt 33:2; Jg 5:4–5; Ps 68:8; Hab 3:3. The ark is the sign of his presence, 25:22; see 1 S 4:4; 2 S 6:2, and the Tent which houses the ark is Yahweh's Dwelling, Ex 25:9; 40:34; it accompanies the people on their journey, 2 S 7:6, until the Temple of Jerusalem becomes his House, 1 K 8:10.

e. The ark was a rectangular chest, carried on wooden poles. For its history, see especially Jos 3:3; 6:4 seq.; 1 S 4–6; 2 S 6; 1 K 8:1–9. It disappeared in the sack of Jerusalem (or perhaps during Manasseh's wicked reign) and was never remade, see Jr 3:16.

f. A cubit was approximately 1ft 6in. (46 cm). Further information about ancient weights and measures will be found in the Tables of measures and money.

g. 'Testimony': accepted translation of the word 'edut which, properly speaking, following other Middle Eastern parallels, means the stipulations in a treaty, imposed by an overlord on his vassal. Here, the 'Testimony' is the Decalogue, written on stone tablets sometimes called 'tablets of the Testimony', 31:18; 32:15; 34:29. Consequently, the ark is called the 'ark of the Testimony', 25:22; 26:33; 40:21.

h. Accepted translation of the word kapporet, from the root kaphar, 'to cover', but also 'to perform the expiation', 'to obliterate'. The kapporet is presented here and at 35:12 as being distinct from the ark. It figures, without the ark, in the post-exilic ritual for the Day of Expiation, Lv 16:15; and 1 Ch 28:11 calls the Holy of Holies the 'hall of the mercy-seat'. It seems that the mercy-seat and the winged creatures attached to it in the post-exilic Temple, were substituted for the ark and winged creatures of Solomon's Temple. The Priestly description has put them both together, see v. 21. Yahweh appears on the mercy-seat, and this is where he speaks to Moses, v 22; Lv 16:2; Nb 7:89.

i. The word corresponds to the Babylonian karibu, half-human, half-animal spirits guarding the gates of temples and palaces. In Biblical descriptions and Middle Eastern iconography, the great winged creatures were winged sphinxes. Winged creatures played no part in the cult in the desert, and do not seem to occur in the cult of Yahweh earlier than the stay of the ark at Shiloh, where Yahweh was entitled 'He who is enthroned on the great winged creatures', 1 S 4:4; 2 S 6:2; see 2 K 19:15; Ps 80:1; 99:1, and is said to 'ride on the winged creatures', 2 S 22:11; see Ps 18:10. In Solomon's Temple, they formed a frame for the ark and disappeared when the ark disappeared. In the post-exilic Temple, two little figures of winged creatures were attached to the mercy-seat, see preceding note. In Ezk 1 and 10, God's chariot is drawn by winged creatures.

j. lit. 'loaves of the face', i.e. Yahweh's personal loaves, on which see Lv 24:5–9; 1 S 21:5.

second branch, too, must carry three cups shaped like almond blossoms, each with its calyx and bud, and similarly for all six branches springing from the lamp-stand. The lamp-stand itself must carry four cups shaped like almond blossoms, each 34 with its calyx and bud: ·one calyx under the first two branches springing from the 35 lamp-stand, one calyx under the next pair of branches and one calyx under the last pair of branches—thus for all six branches springing from the lamp-stand. ·The 36
calyxes and the branches will be of a piece with the lamp-stand, and the whole made from a single piece of pure gold, beaten out. ·You will also make seven lamps 37 for it and mount the lamps in such a way that they light up the space in front of it. The snuffers and trays must be of pure gold. ·You will use a talent of pure gold for 38, 39 25:9+ ↗Heb 8:5 the lamp-stand and all its accessories; ·and see that you work to the design which 40 was shown you on the mountain.'

33:7–11; 36:8–19 Heb 9:11.24 The Dwelling. [a] Fabrics and hangings

26 'The Dwelling itself you will make with ten sheets of finely woven linen 1 dyed violet-purple, red-purple and crimson. You will have them embroidered with great winged creatures. ·The length of a single sheet is to be 2 twenty-eight cubits, its width four cubits. all the sheets to be of the same size. ·Five 3 of the sheets are to be joined to one another, and the other five sheets are to be joined to one another. ·You will make violet loops along the edge of the first sheet, 4 at the end of the set, and do the same along the edge of the last sheet in the other set. ·You will make fifty loops on the first sheet and fifty loops along the outer edge 5 of the sheet of the second set, the loops corresponding to one another. ·You will 6 also make fifty gold clasps, and join the sheets together with the clasps. [b] In this way the Dwelling will be a unified whole.

'You will make sheets of goats' hair to form a tent over the Dwelling; you will 7 make eleven of these. ·The length of a single sheet must be thirty cubits and its 8 width four cubits, the eleven sheets to be all of the same size. ·You will join five 9 sheets together into one set, and six sheets into another; the sixth you will fold double over the front of the tent. ·You will make fifty loops along the edge of the 10 first sheet, at the end of the first set, and fifty loops along the edge of the sheet of the second set. ·You will make fifty bronze clasps and insert the clasps into the 11 loops, to draw the tent together and to make it a unified whole.

'Of the extra part of the sheets that overlap, half is to hang down the back of the 12
Dwelling. ·The extra cubit on either side along the length of the tent sheets must 13 hang down the sides of the Dwelling on either side to cover it.

'And for the tent you will make a cover of rams' skins dyed red and a cover of 14 fine leather over that.

36:20–34 The framework

'For the Dwelling you will make vertical frames of acacia wood. ·Each frame must 15, 16 be ten cubits long and one and a half cubits wide. ·Each frame must have twin 17 tenons; [c] that is how all the frames for the Dwelling must be made. ·You will make 18 frames for the Dwelling: twenty frames for the south side, to the south, ·and make 19 forty silver sockets under the twenty frames, two sockets under one frame for its two tenons, two sockets under the next frame for its two tenons; ·and for the other 20 side of the Dwelling, the north side, twenty frames ·and forty silver sockets, two 21 sockets under one frame, two sockets under the next frame. ·For the back of the 22 Dwelling, on the west, you will make six frames, ·and make two frames for the 23 corners at the back of the Dwelling; ·these must be coupled together at the bottom, 24 and right [d] up to the top, to the level of the first ring; this for the two frames that must form the two corners. ·Thus there will be eight frames with their silver 25 sockets: sixteen sockets; two sockets under one frame and two sockets under the next frame.

'You will make crossbars of acacia wood: five for the frames of the first side of 26
the Dwelling, ·five crossbars for the frames of the opposite side of the Dwelling, 27 and five crossbars for the frames which form the back of the Dwelling, to the west.

28 The middle bar must join the frames from one end to the other, halfway up.
29 You will overlay the frames with gold, make gold rings for them, through which to 30 place the crossbars, and overlay the crossbars with gold. ·This is how you must erect the Dwelling, following the design shown you on the mountain. 25:40+

The curtain

36:35–38
Lv 16
↗Heb 6:19; 9:1–10,24; 10:19seq.
Mt 27:51v

31 'You will make a curtain of finely woven linen, dyed violet-purple, red-purple and 32 crimson, and embroidered with great winged creatures, ·and put it on four poles of acacia wood overlaid with gold, with golden hooks for them, set in four 33 sockets of silver. ·You will put the curtain below the clasps, so that inside behind the curtain, you can place the ark of the Testimony, and the curtain will mark the 34 division for you between the Holy Place and the Holy of Holies.[e] ·You will put 35 the mercy-seat on the ark of the Testimony in the Holy of Holies. ·You will place 25:21
the table outside the curtain, and the lamp-stand on the south side of the Dwelling, 36 opposite the table; you will put the table on the north side. ·For the entrance to the tent you will make a screen of finely woven linen embroidered with violet-purple, 37 red-purple and crimson, ·and for the screen you will make five poles of acacia wood and overlay them with gold, with golden hooks, and for them you will cast five sockets of bronze.'

The altar of burnt offerings

38:1–7
1 K 8:64s
Ezk 43:13–17

1 27 'You will make the altar[a] of acacia wood, five cubits long and five cubits
2 wide; the altar will be square and three cubits high. ·At its four corners you will make horns,[b] the horns must be of a piece with it, and you will overlay it with 3 bronze. ·And for it you will make pans for taking away the fatty ashes, and shovels, sprinkling basins, hooks and fire pans; you will make all the altar accessories of 4 bronze. ·You will also make a grating for it of bronze network, and on the four 5 corners of the grating you will make four bronze rings. ·You will put it below the 6 ledge of the altar, underneath, so that it comes halfway up the altar. ·You will make shafts for the altar, shafts of acacia wood and overlay them with bronze.
7 The shafts will be passed through the rings in such a way that the shafts are on 8 either side of the altar, for carrying it. ·You will make the altar hollow, out of boards; you will make it as you were shown on the mountain.

The court[c]

38:9–20
Ezk 40:17–49

9 'Then you will make the court of the Dwelling. On the south side, the curtaining of the court must be of finely woven linen, one hundred cubits long (for the first side), 10 its twenty poles and their twenty sockets being of bronze, and the poles'
11 hooks and rods of silver. ·So too for the north side, there must be a hundred cubits

26 a. 'Dwelling', mishkan, is the word proper to the Priestly tradition for the sanctuary in the desert: the word is normally used without further qualification, though 'Dwelling of the Testimony', see 25:16g, or 'Dwelling of the Tent of Meeting' is sometimes found. The Priestly tradition thus carries on the name given to this sanctuary in the ancient traditions, the 'Tent of Meeting', ohel mo'ed, and most frequently uses this. The description, though hard to grasp in detail, is of a collapsible sanctuary appropriate to tribal movements of the nomadic period. It is a retrojection of the plan of Solomon's Temple into the desert; but the hangings to cover the Dwelling preserve the memory of the Mosaic sanctuary, mentioned in the ancient traditions though never described, see 37:1–11; 38:8; Nb 11:16 seq., 12:4–10; Dt 13:14–15.

b. So two great hangings form a roof for the Dwelling; this covering has another of stronger material, vv. 7–13, and yet another, v. 14.

c. Each base must have had two mortises into which the tenons fitted at the foot of each frame.

d. lit. 'perfect' Hebr; 'staying so' Gk, Syr.

e. The curtain shut off the Holy of Holies, Yahweh's dwelling-place, from the worshippers. Only the high priest entered this sanctuary, and then only once a year on the Day of Expiation, Lv 16; see Heb 9:6–14. The same division between Holy Place and Holy of Holies existed in Solomon's Temple, 1 K 6:16 and the curtain was also to be found in Herod's Temple, Mt 27:51 par., seq.

27 a. The more important one, for the burnt offering, 1 K 8:64s, as opposed to the altar of incense, Ex 30:1–10.

b. The 'horns' jutted out from the four corners of the altar and were considered a particularly sacred part of it. Like the horns on the altar of incense, 30:10, they were smeared with the blood of sacrifice, 29:12. By laying hold of them, a criminal could put himself beyond the reach of punishment, 1 K 1:50; 2:28.

c. Consecrated space round the sanctuary. This text describes it as enclosed by wooden uprights and curtaining. It corresponds to the courts of the Temple of Jerusalem, 1 K 6:36; Ezk 40; Mt 21:12 par; Ac 21:27–30.

of curtaining, its twenty poles and their twenty sockets being of bronze, and the poles' hooks and rods of silver. ·Across the width of the court, on the west side, 12
there must be fifty cubits of curtaining, with its ten poles and their ten sockets. ·The 13 width of the court on the east side, facing the sunrise, must be fifty cubits, ·with 14 fifteen cubits of curtaining on one side of the entrance, with its three poles and their three sockets, ·and on the other side of the entrance, fifteen cubits of 15 curtaining, with its three poles and their three sockets; ·and for the gateway to the 16 court there must be a twenty-cubit screen of finely woven linen embroidered with violet-purple, red-purple and crimson, with its four poles and their four sockets. All the poles round the court must be connected by silver rods; their hooks must be 17 of silver and their sockets of bronze. ·The length of the court must be one hundred 18 cubits, its width fifty cubits [d] and its height five cubits. All the curtaining must be made of finely woven linen, and their sockets of bronze. ·All the accessories for 19 general use in the Dwelling, all its pegs and all the pegs of the court, must be of bronze.

The oil for the lamps

'You will order the Israelites to bring you pure pounded olive oil for the light, and 20
Lv 24:2–4 to keep a lamp burning all the time. ·Aaron and his sons will tend it in the Tent of 21 30:7–8 1 S 3:3 Meeting, outside the curtain hanging in front of the Testimony, from dusk to dawn, before Yahweh. This is a perpetual decree for all generations of Israelites.'

Lv 8–10 ### The priestly vestments

28 'From among the Israelites, summon your brother Aaron and his sons to be 1 priests in my service: Aaron and Aaron's sons Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar and Ithamar. ·For your brother Aaron you will make sacred vestments to give dignity 2 and magnificence. ·You will instruct all the skilled men, whom I have endowed 3 with skill, to make Aaron's vestments for his consecration to my priesthood. These are the vestments which they must make: a pectoral, an ephod, a robe, an 4 embroidered tunic, a turban and a belt. They must make sacred vestments for your brother Aaron and his sons, for them to be priests in my service. ·They will use 5 gold and violet material, red-purple and crimson, and finely woven linen.

39:2–7 ### The ephod [a]

'They will make the ephod of finely woven linen embroidered with gold, violet- 6 purple, red-purple and crimson. ·It will have two shoulder-straps joined to it; it 7 will be joined to them by its two edges. ·The waistband on the ephod to hold it in 8 position must be of the same workmanship and be of a piece with it: of gold, violet-purple, red-purple and crimson materials and finely woven linen. ·You will 9 then take two cornelians and engrave them with the names of the sons of Israel, six of their names on one stone, the remaining six names on the other, in the order 10 of their birth. ·By the stone-carver's art—seal engraving—you will engrave the two 11 stones with the names of the sons of Israel. You will have them mounted in gold settings ·and will put the two stones on the shoulder-straps of the ephod, to 12 30:16 Nb 31:54 commemorate the sons of Israel. In this way Aaron will bear their names on his two shoulders, before Yahweh, as a reminder. ·You will also make golden rosettes, 13 and two chains of pure gold twisted like cord, and will attach the cord-like chains 14 to the rosettes.

39:8–21 ### The breastplate of judgement

'You will make the breastplate of judgement of the same embroidered work as the 15
ephod; you will make it of gold, violet-purple, red-purple and crimson materials and finely woven linen. ·It must be square and doubled over, a span [b] in length and 16
39:10–13 Ezk 29:13 a span in width. ·In it you will set four rows of stones: [c] a sard, topaz and emerald 17
Rv 21:19seq. for the first row; ·for the second row, a garnet, sapphire and diamond; ·for the 18, 19 third row, a hyacinth, a ruby and an amethyst; ·and for the fourth row, a beryl, a 20 21 cornelian and a jasper. These must be mounted in gold settings. ·The stones will correspond to the names of the sons of Israel, twelve like their names, engraved 22 like seals, each with the name of one of the twelve tribes. ·For the breastplate you 23 will make chains of pure gold twisted like cords, · [d]and on the breastplate you will make two gold rings, putting the two rings on the two outside edges of the 24 breastplate ·and fastening the two gold cords to the two rings on the outside edges

25 of the breastplate. ·The other two ends of the cords you will fasten to the two 26 rosettes, putting these on the shoulder-straps of the ephod, on the front. ·You will also make two gold rings and put them on the two edges of the breastplate, on the 27 inner side, against the ephod; ·and you will make two gold rings and put them low down on the front of the two shoulder-pieces of the ephod, close to the join, above 28 the waistband of the ephod. ·The breastplate will be secured by a violet-purple cord passed through its rings and those of the ephod, so that the breastplate will sit 29 above the waistband and not come apart from the ephod. ·Thus Aaron will bear the names of the sons of Israel on the breastplate of judgement, on his heart, when 30 he enters the sanctuary, as a reminder, before Yahweh, always. ·To the breastplate of judgement you will add the urim and the thummim, and these will be on Aaron's 1 S 14:41r heart when he goes into Yahweh's presence, and Aaron will bear the Israelites' judgement [e] on his heart, in Yahweh's presence, always.

The robe

39:22–26

31, 32 'You will make the robe of the ephod entirely of violet-purple. ·In the centre it will have an opening for the head, the opening to have round it a border woven like the 33 neck of a coat of mail, so that it will not get torn. ·On its lower hem, you will make pomegranates of violet-purple, red-purple and crimson, and finely woven linen [f] all 34 round the hem, with golden bells between them all round: ·a golden bell and then Si 45:9 35 a pomegranate, alternately, all round the lower hem of the robe. ·Aaron must wear it when he officiates, and the tinkling will be heard when he goes into the sanctuary into Yahweh's presence, or leaves it, and so he will not incur death. [g]

The symbol of consecration

39:27–31

36 'You will make a flower of pure gold and on it, as you would engrave a seal, you 37 will engrave, "Consecrated to Yahweh". ·You will put it on a violet-purple cord; Zc 14:20 Jn 17:19 it will go on the turban; the front of the turban is the place where it must go.
38 This will go on Aaron's brow, and Aaron will thus take on himself the shortcomings in the holy things consecrated by the Israelites, in all their holy offerings. [h] 39 It will be on his brow permanently, to make them acceptable to Yahweh. ·The tunic you will weave of fine linen, and make a turban of fine linen, and an embroidered waistband.

The vestments of the priests

40 'For the sons of Aaron you will make tunics and waistbands. You will also make 41 them head-dresses to give dignity and magnificence. · [i] You will dress your brother

d. 'fifty cubits' (25 yd, 22.5 m) Sam.; 'fifty by fifty', Hebr. • 'All the curtaining' is supplied, following 38:16.

28 a. The Old Testament uses the name ephod (meaning uncertain) for three different objects: 1 The ephod which is an instrument of divination, used for consulting Yahweh, see 1 S 2:28*l*. 2 The ephod bad, 'linen loincloth', worn by sacred ministers, see 1 S 2:18e. 3 The ephod of the high priest, a kind of breastplate held in position by a belt and shoulder-straps. To this is attached the 'breastplate of judgement', vv. 15 seq., in which were the sacred lots, the urim and thummim, v. 30; Lv 8:7–8, see 1 S 14:41r. In this way the text connects the high priest's ephod with the prophetic ephod; but the relationship is artificial because the description given here of the high priest's vestments applies only to the post-exilic period, whereas there is no evidence for the use, after David's time, of the prophetic ephod with its sacred lots—see also Jg 8:27i.

b. About 9 in. (23 cm).

c. Hebr. adds two words giving no obvious sense, lit. 'of stone, a row'.

d. vv. 23–28 of the Hebr. have been abridged in the Gk and placed after v. 29.

e. The means of judging the Israelites, that is to say, by prophecy, see 28:6a.

f. 'and finely woven linen' Gk, Sam.; Hebr. omits.

g. Remains of a widespread primitive notion that the sound of bells drove off demons.

h. The high priest, being consecrated to God, expiated involuntary ritual shortcomings in his own person.

i. The v. anticipates 29:1 and extends to ordinary priests the anointing reserved to the high priest, 29:7 and Lv 8:12. It is a later addition.

Aaron and his sons in these; you will then anoint them, invest them[j] and consecrate them to serve me in the priesthood. ·You will also make them linen breeches[k] 42 20:26*l* reaching from waist to thigh, to cover their bare flesh. Aaron and his sons will wear 43 these when they go into the Tent of Meeting and when they approach the altar to serve in the sanctuary, as a precaution against incurring mortal guilt. This is a perpetual decree for Aaron and for his descendants after him.'

Lv 8
Heb 7:26–28
The consecration of Aaron and his sons. Preparations

29 'This is what you will do to them, to consecrate them to my priesthood. 1
Take one young bull and two rams without blemish; ·also unleavened 2
Lv 2:4 bread, unleavened cakes mixed with oil, and unleavened wafers spread with oil, made from fine wheat flour, ·and put these into a basket and present them in the 3 basket, at the same time as the bull and the two rams.

Their purification, clothing and anointing

‖40:12–15
Lv 8:2–13
↗Heb 10:22 'You will bring Aaron and his sons to the entrance of the Tent of Meeting and 4 bathe them.[a] ·You will then take the vestments and dress Aaron in the tunic, the 5 robe of the ephod, the ephod, and the breastplate, and tie the waistband of the 28:36seq.;39:30 ephod round his waist. ·Then you will place the turban on his head, and on it put 6
30:22–23,22*d* the symbol of holy consecration. ·You will then take the anointing oil and pour it 7 on his head and so anoint him.

'Next, you will bring his sons and dress them in tunics, ·and fasten waistbands 8, 9 round their waists[b] and put the head-dresses on their heads. By perpetual decree the priesthood will be theirs. Then you will invest Aaron and his sons.

The offerings

'You will bring the bull in front of the Tent of Meeting, and Aaron and his sons will 10
lay their hands on the bull's head.[c] ·You will then slaughter the bull before Yahweh 11
Lv 1:5e at the entrance to the Tent of Meeting. ·You will then take some of the bull's blood 12 Lv 4:7 and with your finger put it on the horns of the altar. Next, pour out the rest of the blood at the foot of the altar. ·And then take all the fat covering the 13 entrails, the fatty mass over the liver, the two kidneys with their covering fat, and burn them on the altar. ·But the young bull's flesh, its skin and its offal, you will 14
Lv 4:1a
↗Heb 13:11 burn outside the camp, for this is a sin offering.

'Next, you will take one of the rams, and Aaron and his sons will lay their hands 15 24:6 on the ram's head. ·You will then slaughter the ram, take its blood and pour it 16 against the altar, all round. ·Next, cut the ram into quarters, wash the entrails and 17 legs and put them on the quarters and head. ·Then burn the whole ram on the altar. 18
Lv 1:1b
Lv 1:9g This will be a burnt offering for Yahweh, a pleasing smell,[d] a food offering burnt for Yahweh.

'Next, you will take the other ram, and Aaron and his sons will lay their hands 19 on the ram's head. ·You will then slaughter the ram, take some of its blood and put 20 it on the lobe of Aaron's right ear,[e] on the lobes of his sons' right ears, the thumbs of their right hands, and the big toes of their right feet, and pour the rest of the blood against the altar, all round. ·[f]You will then take some of the blood on the 21 altar and some of the anointing oil, and sprinkle it on Aaron and his vestments and on his sons and on his sons' vestments: so that he and his vestments will be consecrated and his sons too, and his sons' vestments.

The investiture of the priests

'You will then take the fatty parts of the ram: the tail, the fat covering the entrails, 22
the fatty mass over the liver, the two kidneys with their covering fat and also the 29:2–3 right thigh—for this is a ram of investiture—·and a loaf of bread, a cake of bread 23 made with oil, and a wafer, from the basket of unleavened bread before Yahweh, and put it all on the palms of Aaron and his sons, and make the gesture of offering[g] 24 before Yahweh. ·Then you will take them back and burn them on the altar, on top 25 of the burnt offering, as a smell pleasing before Yahweh, a food offering burnt for Yahweh.

26 'You will then take the forequarters of the ram of Aaron's investiture and with it 27 make the gesture of offering before Yahweh; this will be your portion. •You will Lv 7:30seq.
consecrate the forequarters that have been thus offered, as also the thigh that is set aside—what has been offered and what has been set aside from the ram of 28 investiture of Aaron and his sons. •This, by perpetual decree, will be the portion that Aaron and his sons will receive from the Israelites, since it is the portion set aside, the portion set aside for Yahweh by the Israelites from their communion sacrifices: a portion set aside for Yahweh.

29 'Aaron's sacred vestments must pass to his sons after him, and they will wear
30 them for their anointing and investiture. •Whichever of the sons of Aaron succeeds him in the priesthood and enters the Tent of Meeting to serve in the sanctuary, will wear them for seven days.

The sacred meal

31, 32 'You will take the ram of investiture and cook its meat in a holy place. •Aaron and Lv 8:31 his sons will eat the meat of the ram and the bread which is in the basket, at the 33 entrance to the Tent of Meeting. •They will eat what was used in making expiation for them at their investiture and consecration. No unauthorised person may eat
34 these; they are holy things. •If any of the meat from the investiture sacrifice, or the bread, should be left till morning, you will burn what is left. It may not be eaten; it 35 is a holy thing. •This is what you will do for Aaron and his sons, implementing all the orders I have given you. You will take seven days over their investiture. Lv 8:33seq.

The consecration of the altar of burnt offerings

36 'On each of the days you will also offer a young bull as a sacrifice for sin, in Ezk 43:18–27 expiation. You will offer a sin sacrifice for the altar when you make expiation for 37 it; then you will consecrate it by anointing it. •For seven days you will make expiation for the altar, then you will consecrate it; it will then be especially holy, Lv 16:18–20 Nb 4:15,20 2 S 6:6–7 and whatever touches the altar will become holy.

The daily burnt offering ‖Lv 6:2–6 ‖Nb 28:3–8+

38 'This is what you must offer on the altar: two yearling male lambs each day in 39 perpetuity. •The first lamb you will offer at dawn, and the second at twilight, 40 and with the first lamb, one-tenth of a measure[h] of fine flour mixed with one- Ezk 46:13–15 quarter of a hin[i] of pounded olive oil and, for a libation, one-quarter of a hin of 41 wine. •The second lamb you will offer at twilight, and do it with a similar cereal offering and libation as at dawn, as a pleasing smell, as an offering burnt for 42 Yahweh, •a perpetual burnt offering for all your generations to come, at the entrance to the Tent of Meeting before Yahweh, where I shall meet you[j] and speak 25:22
to you.

43, 44 'There I shall meet the Israelites in the place consecrated by my glory. •I shall 24:16f; 40:34 consecrate the Tent of Meeting and the altar; I shall also consecrate Aaron and his 45 sons, to be priests in my service. •And I shall live with the Israelites and be their 25:8

j. lit. 'you will fill their hands'. Portions of the victim that the new priest was about to offer were placed in his hands, 29:9; 32:29; Lv 8:27–28; Jg 17:5, 12; 1 K 13:33.

k. For modesty's sake. For the same reason the Book of the Covenant forbade altars with steps, 20:26, though there was to be one in the Temple.

29 a. A complete bath, as opposed to the ablutions of 30:19–21, to confer the ritual purity required.

b. Here Hebr. repeats 'Aaron and his sons'; Gk omits.

c. To make the sacrifice their own.

d. An anthropomorphism expressing the satisfaction which God finds in the offering made to him, see below passim; Gn 8:21; Lv 1:9; Nb 28:2.

e. 'right ear' versions; 'ear' Hebr.

f. Later addition. Gk puts it before 20^b; Sam. after 28; Lv after Lv 8:29 (which corresponds to Ex 29:26).

g. This ritual of offering consisted in holding the object forward and then withdrawing it, symbolising its presentation to God before its reversion to the priest.

h. About 0.125 bushel (4.50 litres)

i. One-quarter of a hin, 0.4 UK gallons, 0.5 USA (1.87 litres).

j. 'you' (singular) Sam., Gk; 'you' (plural) Hebr.

God, ·and they will know that I am Yahweh their God, who brought them out of 46

The altar of incense

30 'You will make an altar on which to burn incense; [a] you will make it of acacia 1 wood, ·one cubit long, and one cubit wide—it must be square—and two 2 cubits high; its horns must be of a piece with it. ·You will overlay its top, its sides 3 all round and its horns with pure gold and make a gold moulding to go all round.
You will make two gold rings for it below the moulding on its two opposite sides, 4 to take the shafts used for carrying it. ·You will make the shafts of acacia wood and 5 overlay them with gold.

40:5 'You will put it in front of the curtain by the ark of Testimony, in front of the 6 mercy-seat which is on the Testimony, where I shall meet you. ·On it Aaron will 7 Lk 1:9f burn fragrant incense each morning; when he trims the lamps, he will burn incense on it; ·and when Aaron puts back the lamps at twilight, he will burn incense on it, 8 incense perpetually before Yahweh for all your generations to come. ·You will not 9 offer unauthorised incense, or burnt offering, or cereal offering on it, and you will not pour any libation over it. ·Once a year, Aaron will perform the rite of expiation 10 Heb 9:7–8,9d on the horns of the altar; once a year, on the Day of Expiation, with the blood of 29:36–37 the sacrifice for sin, he will make expiation for himself, for all your generations to come. It is especially holy for Yahweh.'

38:25–28
The poll tax

Nb 1 Yahweh then spoke to Moses and said, ·'When you count the Israelites by census, 11, 12 each one of them must pay Yahweh a ransom for his life, [b] to avoid any incidence 2 S 24 of plague among them while you are holding the census. ·Everyone subject to the 13 census will pay half a shekel, reckoning by the sanctuary shekel: twenty gerah to ↗Mt 17:24 the shekel. This half-shekel will be set aside for Yahweh. ·Everyone subject to the 14 census, that is to say of twenty years and over, will pay the sum set aside for Yahweh. ·The rich man must not give more, nor the poor man less, than half a 15 1 P 1:18–19 shekel when he pays the sum set aside for Yahweh in ransom for your lives. [c] ·You 16 will take the ransom money of the Israelites and apply it to the service of the Tent of Meeting, for it to be a reminder of the Israelites before Yahweh, as the ransom for your lives.'

38:8 1 K 7 23–28
The bronze basin

Yahweh then spoke to Moses and said, ·'You will also make a bronze basin on its 17, 18 bronze stand, for washing. You will put it between the Tent of Meeting and the altar and put water in it, ·in which Aaron and his sons will wash their hands and 19 feet. ·Whenever they are to enter the Tent of Meeting, they will wash, to avoid 20 incurring death; and whenever they approach the altar for their service, to burn an offering for Yahweh, ·they will wash their hands and feet, to avoid incurring death. 21
This is a perpetual decree for him and his descendants for all their generations to come.'

Lv 8:10seq.
The anointing oil [d]

Yahweh spoke further to Moses and said, ·'Take the finest spices: five hundred 22, 23 shekels of fresh myrrh, half as much (two hundred and fifty shekels) of fragrant cinnamon, two hundred and fifty shekels of scented reed, ·five hundred shekels 24 (reckoning by the sanctuary shekel) of cassia, and one hin of olive oil. ·You will 25 37:29 make this into a holy anointing oil, such a blend as the perfumer might make; this will be a holy anointing oil. ·With it you will anoint the Tent of Meeting and the 26 ark of the Testimony, ·the table and all its accessories, the lamp-stand and its 27 accessories, the altar of incense, ·the altar of burnt offerings and all its accessories, 28 29:37 and the basin with its stand, ·consecrating them, so that they will be especially holy 29
28:41;40:15 and whatever touches them will become holy. ·You will also anoint Aaron and his 30

31 sons and consecrate them to be priests in my service. •You will then speak to the Israelites and say, "This anointing oil will be holy for you [c] for all your generations 32 to come. •It must not be used for anointing the human body, nor may you make any of the same mixture. It is a holy thing; you will regard it as holy.
33 Anyone who makes up the same oil or uses it on an unauthorised person will be outlawed from his people." '

The incense 37:29

34 Yahweh then said to Moses, 'Take sweet spices: storax, onycha, galbanum, sweet 35 spices and pure frankincense in equal parts, •and compound an incense, such a 36 blend as the perfumer might make, salted, pure, and holy. •You will grind some of this up very fine and put it in front of the Testimony in the Tent of Meeting, where 25:22 37 I shall meet you. You will regard it as especially holy. •You may not make any incense of similar composition for your own use. You will regard it as holy, reserved for Yahweh. Anyone who makes up the same thing to use as perfume will be outlawed from his people.'

The craftsmen for the sanctuary 35:30–35

1, 2 31 Yahweh then spoke to Moses and said, •'Look, I have singled out Bezalel
3 son of Uri, son of Hur, of the tribe of Judah, •and have filled him with the 4 spirit of God [a] in wisdom, knowledge and skill in every kind of craft: •in designing 5 and carrying out work in gold and silver and bronze, •in cutting stones to be set, in 6 wood carving and in executing every kind of work. •And to help him I have given him Oholiab son of Ahisamach, of the tribe of Dan, and have endowed the hearts 7 of all the skilled men with the skill to make everything I have ordered you: •the Tent of Meeting; the ark of the Testimony; the mercy-seat above it; and all the 8 furniture of the tent; •the table and all its accessories; the pure lamp-stand and all 9 its equipment; the altar of incense; •the altar of burnt offerings and all its accessor-10 ies; the basin and its stand; •the liturgical vestments, the sacred vestments for 11 Aaron the priest, and the vestments for his sons, for their priestly functions; •the anointing oil and the fragrant incense for the sanctuary. They will do everything as I have ordered you.'

The Sabbath rest [b] 20:8–11,8f

12, 13 Yahweh then said to Moses, •'Speak to the Israelites and say, "You will keep my Sabbaths properly, for this is a sign between myself and you for all your generations Ezk 20:12 14 to come, so that you will know that it is I, Yahweh, who sanctify you. •You will keep the Sabbath, then; you will regard it as holy. Anyone who profanes it will be Nb 15:32–36 put to death; anyone who does any work on that day will be outlawed from his 15 people. •Work must be done for six days, but the seventh day will be a day of complete rest, consecrated to Yahweh. Anyone who works on the Sabbath day 16 will be put to death. •The Israelites will keep the Sabbath, observing the Sabbath

30 a. In Solomon's Temple it stood in front of the Holy of Holies, 1 K 6:20–21. Altars of this kind were common in the ancient East.

b. Here Hebr. adds 'while you are holding the census'; Gk omits.

c. Rich and poor are equal before God. • The 'sanctuary shekel' appears only in late texts, here, 38:24–26; Lv 5:15; 27:25; Nb 3:47; 18:16. It was perhaps the old shekel, worth one-fiftieth of a mina and weighing approximately 0.04 oz (1.13 grams), whereas the shekel in use had fallen to one-sixtieth of a mina, see Ezk 45:12. (For further information on ancient weights and measures, see Tables of measures and money.)

d. The directives for the use of the oil, like those for incense (vv. 34–35), are of late origin: all priests were to be anointed but no layman. According to the ancient historical texts, only the king was anointed, 1 S 10:1 seq.; 16:1 seq.; 1 K 1:39; 2 K 9:6; 11:12. This anointing made the king a sacred person: he was the 'anointed of Yahweh', 1 S 24:7; 26:9, 11, 23; 2 S 1:14, 16; 19:22, which is in Hebr. 'the Messiah', in Gk 'the Christ'. In the Psalms the title is often used of David and his dynasty and becomes the main title of the future King, the Messiah, of whom David was the prototype; the NT applies the title to Jesus the Christ. It does not seem that members of the priesthood were anointed before the Persian period. The ancient Priestly texts reserve it to the high priest, 29:7, 29; Lv 4:3, 5, 16; 8:12. It was later extended to all priests, here at v. 30; 28:41; 40:15; Lv 7:36; 10:7; Nb 3:3.

e. 'for you' Gk; 'for me' Hebr.

31 a. The spirit of God was regarded as the source of outstanding gifts, in this case of technical skill, considered as a sharing to some degree in the divine wisdom.

b. This section has no connection with the preceding but may have been inserted here to emphasise the part played by the Sabbath in official worship.

Gn 9:9d for all their generations to come: this is an eternal covenant. •Between myself and 17 =20:11 Gn 2:2–3 the Israelites, this is a sign for ever, for in six days Yahweh made heaven and earth, but on the seventh day he rested and drew breath." '

The tablets of the Law committed to Moses [c]

When he had finished speaking to Moses on Mount Sinai, he gave him the two 18

V: THE GOLDEN CALF AND THE RENEWAL OF THE COVENANT [a]

The golden calf [b]

24:18 Jr 31:32 ↗Ac 7:40–41 32 When the people saw that Moses was a long time before coming down the 1 mountain, they gathered round Aaron and said to him, 'Get to work, make us a god to go at our head; for that Moses, the man who brought us here from Egypt—we do not know what has become of him.' •Aaron replied, 'Strip off the 2 gold rings in the ears of your wives and your sons and daughters, and bring them to me.' •The people all stripped off the gold rings from their ears and brought them to 3
Aaron. •He received what they gave him, melted it down in a mould and with it 4 1 K 12:28 Ne 9:18 Ps 106:19seq. made the statue of a calf. 'Israel,' the people shouted, 'here is your God who brought you here from Egypt!' [c] •Observing this, Aaron built an altar before the 5 statue and made this proclamation, 'Tomorrow will be a feast in Yahweh's honour.'
↗1 Co 10:7 Early next morning they sacrificed burnt offerings and brought communion 6 sacrifices. The people then sat down to eat and drink, and afterwards got up to amuse themselves.

Moses forewarned by Yahweh

Yahweh then said to Moses, 'Go down at once, for your people whom you brought 7
Jr 31:32 here from Egypt have become corrupt. •They have quickly left the way which I 8 ordered them to follow. They have cast themselves a metal calf, worshipped it and offered sacrifice to it, shouting, "Israel, here is your God who brought you here from Egypt!" ' • [d] Yahweh then said to Moses, 'I know these people; I know how 9 33:3;34:9 Dt 9:13+ Gn 12:2 Nb 14:12 obstinate they are! •So leave me now, so that my anger can blaze at them and I can 10 put an end to them! I shall make a great nation out of you instead.'

Dt 9:26–29 Ps 106:23 The prayer of Moses [e]

Moses tried to pacify Yahweh his God. 'Yahweh,' he said, 'why should your anger 11 blaze at your people, whom you have brought out of Egypt by your great power Nb 14:13–16 Dt 9:28;32:27 Ezk 20:9,44 and mighty hand? •Why should the Egyptians say, "He brought them out with evil 12 intention, to slaughter them in the mountains and wipe them off the face of the earth?" Give up your burning wrath; relent over this disaster intended for your people. •Remember your servants Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, to whom you swore 13
Gn 15:5; 22:16–17+; 35:11–12 by your very self and made this promise: "I shall make your offspring as numerous as the stars of heaven, and this whole country of which I have spoken, I shall give to your descendants, and it will be their heritage for ever." ' •Yahweh then relented 14 over the disaster which he had intended to inflict on his people.

24:12+ Moses breaks the tablets of the Law

Moses turned and came down the mountain with the two tablets of the Testimony 15 in his hands, tablets inscribed on both sides, inscribed on the front and on the back.
31:18 The tablets were the work of God, and the writing on them was God's writing, 16 engraved on the tablets.

When Joshua heard the noise of the people shouting, he said to Moses, 'There is 17
the sound of battle in the camp!' •But he replied: 18

No song of victory is this sound, no lament for defeat this sound;
but answering choruses I hear!

19 And there, as he approached the camp, he saw the calf and the groups dancing.
Moses blazed with anger. He threw down the tablets he was holding, shattering 20 them at the foot of the mountain. •He seized the calf they had made and burned it, Dt 9:21 grinding it into powder which he scattered on the water, and made the Israelites 21 drink it.[f] •Moses then said to Aaron, 'What have these people done to you for you 22 to have brought so great a sin on them?' •Aaron replied, 'My lord should not be so 23 angry. You yourself know what a bad state these people are in! •They said to me,
"Make us a god to go at our head; for that Moses, the man who brought us here 24 from Egypt—we do not know what has become of him." •I then said to them, "Anyone with gold, strip it off!" They gave it to me. I threw it into the fire and out came this calf!'

The zeal of the Levites

25 When Moses saw that the people were out of hand—for Aaron had let them get 26 out of hand to the derision[g] of their enemies all round them—•Moses then stood at the gate of the camp and shouted, 'Who is for Yahweh? To me!' And all the Levites Dt 33:9 27 rallied round him. •He said to them, 'Yahweh, God of Israel, says this, "Buckle on your sword, each of you, and go up and down the camp from gate to gate, every 28 man of you slaughtering brother, friend and neighbour." ' •The Levites did as Mt 10:37 Lk 14:26
Moses said, and of the people about three thousand men perished that day.
29 'Today', Moses said, 'you have consecrated yourselves[h] to Yahweh, one at the cost of his son, another of his brother; and so he bestows a blessing on you today.' Nb 25:7–13 Dt 33:8–11

Moses prays again

30 On the following day Moses said to the people, 'You have committed a great sin.
But now I shall go up to Yahweh: perhaps I can secure expiation for your sin.'
31 Moses then went back to Yahweh and said, 'Oh, this people has committed a 32 great sin by making themselves a god of gold. •And yet, if it pleased you to forgive 33 their sin. . .! If not, please blot me out of the book you have written!'[i] •Yahweh Dn 12:1a Rm 9:3 Rv 20:12 said to Moses, 'Those who have sinned against me are the ones I shall blot out of 34 my book. •So now go and lead the people to the place I promised to you. My angel 23:20i 3:16h

c. This v. follows on from 24:12–15 and continues the ancient narratives interrupted by the lengthy Priestly interpolation. The tablets were inscribed with the Decalogue, called the Testimony, see 25:16g, which contained the stipulations of the covenant. Ancient Eastern treaties were similarly inscribed on tablets or on steles and preserved in a shrine.

32 a. From the literary critical point of view, ch. 32–34 combine Yahwistic and Elohistic traditions which it is almost impossible to distinguish in detail. They represent the Yahwistic covenant of ch. 34 as a renewal of the Elohistic covenant of ch. 24, the latter having been broken by Israel's rebellion: the adoration of the golden calf. This arrangement is perhaps artificial and the episode of the golden calf has been placed here to separate the two conventional narratives and make it possible to preserve both.

b. The golden 'calf', derisively so called, was in fact the statue of a young bull, a symbol of divinity in the ancient East. A group in competition with Moses' group, or a dissident faction of his group, had or wished to have the figure of a bull to symbolise the presence of its God, instead of the ark of the covenant. The God was still Yahweh however, v. 5, who had brought Israel out of Egypt, vv. 4 and 8. It has been argued that this episode is a retrojection of Jeroboam's golden calves into the desert period, though it seems more likely that Jeroboam was trying to revive an ancient tradition, see 1 K 12:28d.

c. The bull was not an image of Yahweh; like other Eastern parallels, it was the footstool of the unseen deity, as was the ark which it was intended to replace as guide, see v. 1.

d. v. 9 is absent from the Greek.

e. Moses is represented as the great mediator: at the time of the plagues, 5:22–23; 8:4; 9:28; 10:17; on behalf of his sister Miriam, Nb 12:13, and especially on behalf of the people on their journey through the desert, 5:22–23; 32:11–14, 30–32; Nb 11:2; 14:13–19; 16:22; 21:7; Dt 9:25–29. This function of his is recalled by Ps 99:6; 106:23; Si 45:3; Jr 15:1; see also 2 M 15:14e.

f. The water thus became the 'water of cursing', see Nb 5:11–31, but in this case was not administered as an ordeal, unlike the latter text, since the entire people is considered guilty. The primitive tradition probably attributed to God the punishment here inflicted by the Levites, see vv. 25 seq. Dt 9:21 reports the same event in a different way.

g. Hebr. word of uncertain meaning.

h. 'you have consecrated yourselves', lit. 'you have filled your hands', see 28:41j, Gk; 'consecrate yourselves!' Hebr.

i. The book recording human deeds and describing human fate, see Ps 69:28; 139:16.

will indeed go at your head but, on the day of punishment, I shall punish them for their sin.' ·And Yahweh punished the people for having made the calf, the one Aaron had made. 35

Nb 10:11–13 The Israelites ordered to depart [a]

33 Yahweh then said to Moses, 'Leave, move on from here, you and the people whom you have brought here from Egypt, to the country that I swore to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob that I would give to their descendants. ·I shall send an 2
23:20h Dt 7:1a angel in front of you and drive out the Canaanites, the Amorites, the Hittites, the Perizzites, the Hivites and the Jebusites. ·Move on towards a country flowing with 3 milk and honey, but I myself shall not be going with you or I might annihilate you on the way, for you are an obstinate people.' ·On hearing these stern words the 4 people went into mourning and no one wore his ornaments.

32:9+ Yahweh then said to Moses, 'Say to the Israelites, "You are an obstinate people. 5 If I were to go with you even for a moment, I should annihilate you. So now take off your ornaments, and then I shall decide how to deal with you!" ' ·So, from 6 Mount Horeb onwards, the Israelites stripped themselves of their ornaments. [b]

The Tent [c]

26:1a Moses used to take the Tent and pitch it [d] outside the camp, far away from the 7 camp. He called it the Tent of Meeting. Anyone who wanted to consult Yahweh [e] would go out to the Tent of Meeting, outside the camp. ·Whenever Moses went 8 out to the Tent, the people would all stand up and every man would stand at the door of his tent and watch Moses until he went into the Tent. ·And whenever 9 Moses went into the Tent, the pillar of cloud would come down and station itself at 34:34 the entrance to the Tent, while Yahweh spoke with Moses. ·The people could all 10 see the pillar of cloud stationed at the entrance to the Tent and the people would 33:20i Nb 12:8 Dt 34:10 Jn 15:15 Jos 1:1b all stand up and bow low, each at the door of his tent. ·Yahweh would talk to 11 Moses face to face, as a man talks to his friend, and afterwards he would come back to the camp, but the young man who was his servant, Joshua son of Nun, never left the inside of the Tent.

Moses prays

Moses said to Yahweh, 'Look, you say to me, "Make the people move on," but 12 you have not told me whom you are going to send with me, although you have said, 33:11+ "I know you by name and you enjoy my favour." ·If indeed I enjoy your favour, 13 please show me your ways, so that I understand you and continue to enjoy your favour; consider too that this nation is your people.' ·Yahweh then said, 'I myself 14
↗Heb 4:1 shall go with you and I shall give you rest.' [f] ·To which he said, 'If you do not come 15 yourself, do not make us move on from here, ·for how can it be known that I and 16
Dt 2:7 my people enjoy your favour, if not by your coming with us? By this we shall be marked out, I and your people, from all the peoples on the face of the earth.' Yahweh then said to Moses, 'Again I shall do what you have asked, because you 17 enjoy my favour and because I know you by name.'

33:11+ 1 K 19:9–18 Moses on the mountain

↗Jn 1:14–18,14n He then said, 'Please show me your glory.' [g] ·Yahweh said, 'I shall make all my 18, 19
34:6–7; 3:13g goodness pass before you, and before you I shall pronounce the name Yahweh; [h]
Rm 9:15 and I am gracious to those to whom I am gracious and I take pity on those on whom I take pity.' ·'But my face', he said, 'you cannot see, for no human being can see 20 19:21 Gn 32:31 me and survive.' [i] ·Then Yahweh said, 'Here is a place near me. You will stand on 21
Lv 16:2 Nb 4:20 the rock, ·and when my glory passes by, I shall put you in a cleft of the rock and 22
Dt 5:24 Jg 6:22–23 shield you with my hand until I have gone past. ·Then I shall take my hand away 23
Is 6:5 and you will see my back; but my face will not be seen.'

The covenant renewed. [a] The tablets of the Law 19;32:1a

34 Yahweh said to Moses, 'Cut two tablets of stone like the first ones and come up to me on the mountain,[b] and I will write on the tablets the words that were on the first tablets, which you broke. ·Be ready at dawn; at dawn come up Mount Sinai and wait for me there at the top of the mountain. ·No one may come 19:12seq.
up with you, no one may be seen anywhere on the mountain; the flocks and herds may not even graze in front of this mountain.' ·So he cut two tablets of stone like the first and, with the two tablets of stone in his hands, Moses went up Mount Sinai in the early morning as Yahweh had ordered. ·And Yahweh descended in a cloud and stood with him there and pronounced the name Yahweh.

God appears 33:18–23

Then Yahweh passed before him and called out,[c] 'Yahweh, Yahweh, God of 3:13g tenderness and compassion, slow to anger, rich in faithful love and constancy, 20:5–6 Nb 14:18 maintaining his faithful love to thousands, forgiving fault, crime and sin, yet Dt 5:9–10 Ps 86:15 letting nothing go unchecked, and punishing the parent's fault in the children and Jr 32:18 Jl 2:13 in the grandchildren to the third and fourth generation!' ·Moses immediately Jon 4:2 Na 1:3
bowed to the ground in worship, ·then he said, 'If indeed I do enjoy your favour, ↗Jn 1:14
please, my Lord, come with us, although they are an obstinate people; and forgive ·32:11–14 our faults and sins, and adopt us as your heritage.'

The covenant [d] 20:1a

He then said, 'Look, I am now making a covenant: I shall work such wonders at ↗Jn 1:17 the head of your whole people as have never been worked in any other country or nation, and all the people round you will see what Yahweh can do, for what I shall Dt 2:7 do through you will be awe-inspiring. ·Mark, then, what I command you today. I 23:20h am going to drive out the Amorites, the Canaanites, the Hittites, the Perizzites, Dt 7:1a
the Hivites and the Jebusites before you. ·Take care you make no pact with the 23:32–33 inhabitants of the country which you are about to enter, or they will prove a snare in your community. ·You will tear down their altars, smash their cultic stones and 23:24k Nb 33:52

33 a. Ch. 33 is a collection of elements having no further link between them than preoccupation over God's presence with his people.

b. vv. 1–6, in the Deuteronomic style, are not consistent: Yahweh orders the people to do what they have already done of their own accord.

c. This is one of the few ancient texts that mention the Tent: it is the place where Yahweh 'meets' Moses and the people, Nb 11:16 seq.; 12:4–10; see Ex 29:42–43; Lv 1:1.

d. lit. 'pitch it for him' or 'for it', the pronoun standing for either Moses or Yahweh or the ark (which is masculine in Hebrew and which may have been mentioned earlier in the narrative from which this passage was taken). It is probable that the Tent in the desert was the shrine of the ark and, according to v. 11, Joshua was attached to it.

e. i.e. to ask for divine response through the agency of Moses who conversed with God in the Tent, see above 18:15. In later times, Yahweh was 'consulted' through a man of God or through a prophet, 1 K 14:5; 22:5, 8; 2 K 3:11; 8:8; etc. or by using the sacred lots, see 1 S 2:28*l*; 14:41r.

f. A Deuteronomic theme, see Dt 12:10; 25:19; Jos 1:13; 22:4; 23:1; see also Ps 95:11, signifying the fulfilment of the promises.

g. see 24:16f.

h. God's uttering his own name to Moses is tantamount to a revelation of his true nature and identity, see 3:13–15,13g.

i. God's sanctity is so removed from human unworthiness, see Lv 17:1a, that anyone who looks on God, see Ex 19:21; Lv 16:2; Nb 4:20, see Nb 6:27b, or even hears his voice, Ex 20:19; Dt 5:24–26; 18:16 must perish. For this reason Moses, 3:6, Elijah, 1 K 19:13, and even the seraphim, Is 6:2, cover their faces in his presence. Anyone who remains alive after seeing God is overwhelmed with astonishment and gratitude, Gn 32:31; Dt 5:24, and with awe, Jg 6:22–23; 13:22; Is 6:5. It is a favour God rarely concedes, 24:10–11; he grants it to Moses his 'friend', 33:11; Nb 12:7–8; Dt 34:10, and to Elijah, 1 K 19:11 seq., both of whom were to be witnesses of the New Testament theophany, the transfiguration of Christ, Mt 17:3 par. In the New Testament the 'glory' of God, see 24:16f and 33:18, is manifested in Jesus, Jn 1:14i; 11:40; see 2 Co 4:4, 6, who alone has gazed on the Father, Jn 1:18; 6:46; 1 Jn 4:12. No human being can look on God's face except in heaven, Mt 5:8; 1 Co 13:12; 1 Jn 3:2.

c. Yahweh fulfils his promise, 33:19–23 and reveals his divine attributes, most particularly his faithful love.

d. The covenant consists of both promises and command and involves no antithesis between 'grace' and 'law'. vv. 14–26 are sometimes called the 'Ritual Decalogue' (though whether ten commandments are to be distinguished is disputed), or the Yahwistic Book of the Covenant. They lay down the necessary conditions of the covenant: prohibition of idolatry, observance of the Sabbath, as in the Decalogue of ch. 20. Besides these there are ritual ordinances: feasts, first-fruits, sacrifice.

↗Mt 17:2 When Moses came down from Mount Sinai with the two tablets of the Testimony 29 in his hands, as he was coming down the mountain, Moses did not know that the skin of his face was radiant because he had been talking to him. •And when Aaron 30 and all the Israelites saw Moses, the skin on his face was so radiant that they were afraid to go near him. •But Moses called to them, and Aaron and all the leaders of 31
the community rejoined him, and Moses talked to them, •after which all the 32 Israelites came closer, and he passed on to them all the orders that Yahweh had Jn 1:17 given to him on Mount Sinai. •Once Moses had finished speaking to them, he put 33 a veil over his face. •Whenever Moses went into Yahweh's presence to speak with 34 him, he took the veil off until he came out. And when he came out, he would tell the Israelites what orders he had been given, •and the Israelites would see Moses' 35 face radiant.[j] Then Moses would put the veil back over his face until he went in to speak to him next time.

25–31 ## VI: THE FURNISHING AND BUILDING OF THE SANCTUARY[a]

20:8f The Sabbath rest

Nb 15:32seq. 35 Moses assembled the whole community of Israelites and said, 'These are 1 the things Yahweh has ordered to be done: •Work must be done for six 2 days, but the seventh must be a holy day for you, a day of complete rest, in honour 3 of Yahweh. Anyone who does any work on that day will be put to death. •You will not light a fire on the Sabbath day in any of your homes.'

The materials are collected 25:1-7

4 Moses spoke to the whole community of Israelites. 'This', he said, 'is what Yahweh 5 has ordered: •Set aside a contribution for Yahweh out of your possessions. Everyone whose heart prompts him to do so should bring a contribution for Yahweh:
6 gold, silver and bronze; •materials dyed violet-purple, red-purple and crimson,
7 finely woven linen, goats' hair, •rams' skins dyed red, fine leather, acacia wood,
8 oil for the light, spices for the anointing oil and for the fragrant incense;
9, 10 cornelian and other stones to be set in the ephod and breastplate. •And all those of you who have the skill must come and make everything that Yahweh has 11 ordered: •the Dwelling, its tent and its covering, its clasps and its frames, its 12 crossbars, its pillars and its sockets; •the ark, its shafts and all its accessories, the 13 mercy-seat and the screening curtain; •the table, its shafts and all its accessories, 14 and the loaves of permanent offering; •the lamp-stand for the light, its accessories, 15 its lamps, and the oil for the light; •the altar of incense and its shafts, the anointing oil, the fragrant incense, and the screen for the entrance, for the entrance of the 16 tent; •the altar of burnt offerings and its bronze grating, its shafts, and all its 17 accessories; the basin and its stand; •the curtaining for the court, its poles, its 18 sockets, and the screen for the entrance to the court; •the pegs for the Dwelling 19 and the pegs for the court, and their cords; •the liturgical vestments for service in the sanctuary—the sacred vestments for Aaron the priest, and the vestments for his sons, for their priestly functions.' 20, 21 The whole community of Israelites then withdrew from Moses' presence. •And all those whose heart stirred them and all those whose spirit prompted them brought a contribution for Yahweh, for the work on the Tent of Meeting, for its 22 general service and for the sacred vestments. •Men and women, they came, all those whose heart prompted them, bringing brooches, rings, bracelets, necklaces, 23 golden objects of every kind—all those who had vowed gold to Yahweh, •while all those who happened to own violet-purple, red-purple or crimson materials, finely woven linen, goats' hair, rams' skins dyed red, or fine leather, brought that.
24 All those offering a contribution of silver or bronze brought their contribution for Yahweh and all who happened to own acacia wood, suitable for any of the work to 25 be done, brought that. •All the skilled women set their hands to spinning, and brought what they had spun: violet-purple, red-purple or crimson materials, and 26 fine linen, •while all those women whose heart stirred them by virtue of their skill, 27 spun goats' hair. •The leaders brought cornelians and other stones to be set in the 28 ephod and breastplate, •and the spices and oil for the light, for the anointing oil 29 and for the fragrant incense. •All those Israelites, men and women, whose heart prompted them to contribute to the entire work that Yahweh had ordered through Moses to be done, brought a contribution to Yahweh.

The craftsmen for the sanctuary 31:2-6

30 Moses then said to the Israelites, 'Look, Yahweh has singled out Bezalel son of 31 Uri, son of Hur, of the tribe of Judah, •and has filled him with the spirit of God in

j. Hebr. reads 'the skin of Moses' face'; Gk omits.

wisdom, knowledge and skill in every kind of craft: ·in designing and carrying out 32 work in gold and silver and bronze, ·in cutting stones to be set, in wood carving 33 and in executing every kind of work. ·And on him and on Oholiab son of Ahisa- 34 mach, of the tribe of Dan, he has bestowed the gift of teaching, ·and filled them 35 with the skill to carry out every kind of work, that of the engraver, that of the embroiderer, that of the needleworker in violet-purple, red-purple and crimson materials and fine linen, that of the weaver, and indeed that of every kind of craftsman and designer.'

36 'Bezalel, Oholiab and all the men whom Yahweh has endowed with the skill 1 and knowledge to know how to carry out all the work to be done on the sanctuary, will do exactly as Yahweh has ordered.'

A halt is called to the collection

Moses then summoned Bezalel, Oholiab and all the skilled men whose hearts 2 Yahweh had endowed with skill, all whose heart stirred them to come forward and do the work. ·From Moses they received everything that the Israelites had brought 3 as contributions for carrying out the work of building the sanctuary, and, as they went on bringing their offerings every morning, ·the skilled men who were doing 4 all the work for the sanctuary, all left their particular work ·and said to Moses, 5
'The people are bringing more than is needed for the work Yahweh has ordered to be done.' ·Moses then gave the order and proclamation was made throughout the 6 camp, 'No one, whether man or woman, must do anything more towards contributing for the sanctuary.' So the people were prevented from bringing any more, ·for 7 the material to hand was enough, and more than enough, to complete all the work.

26:1–11,14 The Dwelling [a]

All the most skilled of the men doing the work made the Dwelling. Moses [b] made it 8 with ten sheets of finely woven linen, dyed violet-purple, red-purple and crimson and embroidered with great winged creatures. ·The length of a single sheet was 9 twenty-eight cubits, its width four cubits, all the sheets being of the same size. ·He 10 joined five of the sheets to one another, and the other five sheets to one another.
He made violet loops along the edge of the first sheet, at the end of the set, and 11 did the same along the edge of the last sheet in the other set. ·He made fifty loops 12 on the first sheet and fifty loops along the outer edge of the sheet of the second set, the loops corresponding to one another. ·He made fifty gold clasps and joined the 13 sheets together with the clasps. In this way the Dwelling was a unified whole.

Next he made sheets of goats' hair for the tent over the Dwelling; he made 14 eleven of these. ·The length of a single sheet was thirty cubits and its width four 15 cubits; the eleven sheets were all of the same size. ·He joined five sheets together 16 into one set and six sheets into another. ·He made fifty loops along the edge of the 17 last sheet of the first set, and fifty loops along the edge of the sheet of the second set. ·He made fifty bronze clasps, to draw the tent together and make it a unified 18 whole. ·And for the tent he made a cover of rams' skins dyed red, and a cover of 19 fine leather over that.

26:15–29 The framework

For the Dwelling he made vertical frames of acacia wood. ·Each frame was ten 20, 21 cubits long and one and a half cubits wide. ·Each frame had twin tenons; this was 22 how he made all the frames for the Dwelling. ·He made frames for the Dwelling: 23 twenty frames for the south side, to the south, ·and made forty silver sockets under 24
the twenty frames, two sockets under one frame for its two tenons, two sockets under the next frame for its two tenons; ·and for the other side of the Dwelling, the 25 north side, twenty frames ·and forty silver sockets, two sockets under one frame, 26 two sockets under the next frame. ·For the back of the Dwelling, on the west, he 27 made six frames. ·He also made two frames for the corners at the back of the 28 Dwelling; ·these were coupled together at the bottom, staying so up to the top, to 29

the level of the first ring; this he did with the two frames forming the two corners.
30 Thus there were eight frames with their sixteen silver sockets; two sockets under 31 each frame. ·He made crossbars of acacia wood: five for the frames of the first side 32 of the Dwelling, ·five crossbars for the frames of the other side of the Dwelling and five crossbars for the frames which formed the back of the Dwelling, to the west.
33 He made the middle bar, to join the frames from one end to the other, halfway 34 up. ·He overlaid the frames with gold, made gold rings for them, through which to place the crossbars, and overlaid the crossbars with gold.

The curtain 26:31–32,36–37

35 He made a curtain of finely woven linen, dyed violet-purple, red-purple and 36 crimson and embroidered with great winged creatures, ·and for it he made four poles of acacia wood, overlaying them with gold, with golden hooks for them, for 37 which he cast four sockets of silver. ·For the entrance to the tent he made a screen 38 of finely woven linen embroidered with violet-purple, red-purple and crimson, ·as also the five columns for it and their hooks; he overlaid their capitals and rods with gold, but their five sockets were of bronze.

The ark 25:10–20

1 37 Bezalel made the ark of acacia wood, two and a half cubits long, one and a 2 half cubits wide and one and a half cubits high. ·He overlaid it, inside and 3 out, with pure gold, and made a gold moulding all round it. ·He cast four gold rings for it at its four supports: two rings on one side and two rings on the other.
4, 5 He also made shafts of acacia wood and overlaid them with gold, ·and passed the 6 shafts through the rings on the sides of the ark, by which to carry it. ·He also made a mercy-seat of pure gold, two and a half cubits long and one and a half cubits 7 wide, ·and modelled two great winged creatures of beaten gold, putting them at 8 the two ends of the mercy-seat, ·one winged creature at one end and the other winged creature at the other end, making the winged creatures of a piece with the 9 mercy-seat at either end. ·The winged creatures had their wings spread upwards, protecting the ark with their wings and facing each other, their faces being towards the mercy-seat.

The table for the loaves of permanent offering 25:23–29

10 He made the table of acacia wood, two cubits long, one cubit wide and one and a 11, 12 half cubits high, ·and made a gold moulding all round it. ·He fitted it with struts a 13 hand's breadth wide and made a gold moulding round the struts. ·He cast four gold 14 rings for it and fixed the rings at the four corners where the four legs were. ·The 15 rings lay close to the struts to hold the shafts for carrying the table. ·He made the shafts of acacia wood and overlaid them with gold; these were for carrying 16 the table. ·He made the accessories which were to go on the table: its dishes, cups, jars and libation bowls, of pure gold.

The lamp-stand 25:31–40

17 He also made the lamp-stand of pure gold, making the lamp-stand, base and stem, 18 of beaten gold, its cups, calyxes and bud being of a piece with it. ·Six branches sprang from its sides: three of the lamp-stand's branches from one side, three of 19 the lamp-stand's branches from the other. ·The first branch carried three cups shaped like almond blossoms, each with its calyx and bud; the second branch, too, carried three cups shaped like almond blossoms, each with its calyx and bud, and 20 similarly all six branches springing from the lamp-stand. ·The lamp-stand itself

36 a. In 36:8[b]–39:43 the Gk, which translates a text somewhat different from ours, also arranges it differently: 36:8; 39:1–3; 36:8–9, 35–38; 38:9–20, 21–23; 37:1–23; 36:34, 36, 38; 38:20; 38:1–7; 37:5; 38:8 and 40:30–32; 38:24–31; 39:32; 39:1; 39:33–43 (with internal inversions); 40:1–38. Information about ancient weights and measures will be found in the Tables of measures and money.

b. The singular here replaces the plural: the author has reproduced the orders given to Moses himself, with the necessary grammatical changes.

carried four cups shaped like almond blossoms, each with its calyx and bud: •one 21 calyx under the first two branches springing from the lamp-stand, one calyx under the next pair of branches and one calyx under the last pair of branches—thus for all six branches springing from the lamp-stand. •The calyxes and the branches were of 22 a piece with the lamp-stand, and the whole was made from a single piece of pure gold, beaten out. •He also made its seven lamps, its snuffers and trays of pure gold. 23
He made the lamp-stand and all its accessories from a talent of pure gold. 24

30:1–5 The altar of incense. The anointing oil and incense

He made the altar of incense of acacia wood, one cubit long, and one cubit wide— 25
it was square—and two cubits high, its horns were of a piece with it. •He overlaid 26 its top, its sides all round and its horns with pure gold and made a moulding to go all round. •He made two gold rings for it below the moulding on its two opposite 27 sides, to take the shafts used for carrying it. •He made the shafts of acacia wood 28 30:22–25,34–35 and overlaid them with gold. •He also made the holy anointing oil and the fragrant 29 incense, blending it as a perfumer would.

27:1–8 The altar of burnt offerings

38 He made the altar of burnt offerings of acacia wood, five cubits long and 1 five cubits wide; it was square and three cubits high. •At its four corners he 2 made horns, the horns being of a piece with it, and overlaid it with bronze. •He 3 made all the altar accessories: the ash pans, shovels, sprinkling basins, hooks and fire pans; he made all the altar accessories of bronze. •He also made a grating for 4 the altar of bronze network, below its ledge, underneath, coming halfway up. •He 5 cast four rings for the four corners of the bronze grating to take the shafts. •He 6 made the shafts of acacia wood and overlaid them with bronze. •He passed the 7 shafts through the rings on the sides of the altar for carrying it. He made the altar hollow, out of boards.

30:18 The bronze basin

He made the bronze basin and its bronze stand from the mirrors of the women who 8 1 S 2:22g served at the entrance to the Tent of Meeting. [a]

27:9–19 The court

He made the court. On the south side, on the south, the curtaining of the court was 9 of finely woven linen a hundred cubits long. •Its twenty poles and their sockets 10 being of bronze, and their hooks and rods of silver; •and on the north side, a 11 hundred cubits of curtaining, its twenty poles and their twenty sockets being of bronze, and their hooks and rods of silver. •On the west side there were 12 fifty cubits of curtaining, with its ten poles and their ten sockets, the poles' hooks and rods being of silver; •and on the east side on the east, there were 13 fifty cubits. •On the one side there were fifteen cubits of curtaining, with its 14 three poles and their three sockets, •and on the other side—either side of the 15 gateway to the court—there were fifteen cubits of curtaining with its three poles and their three sockets. •All the curtaining round the court was of finely woven 16 linen, •the sockets for the poles were of bronze, the poles' hooks and rods of silver, 17 their capitals were overlaid with silver and all the poles of the court had silver rods.
•The screen for the gateway to the court was of finely woven linen embroidered 18 with violet-purple, red-purple and crimson, twenty cubits long and five cubits high (all the way along) like the curtaining of the court, •its four poles and their four 19 sockets being of bronze, their hooks of silver, their capitals overlaid with silver, and their rods of silver. •All the pegs round the Dwelling and the court were of 20 bronze.

The amount of metal used [b]

These are the accounts for the Dwelling—the Dwelling of the Testimony—drawn 21 up by order of Moses, the work of Levites, produced by Ithamar son of Aaron, the priest.

22 Bezalel son of Uri, son of Hur, of the tribe of Judah, made everything that 35:30–35
23 Yahweh ordered Moses to make, ·his assistant being Oholiab son of Ahisamach, of the tribe of Dan, an engraver, embroiderer and needleworker in violet-purple, red-purple and crimson materials and fine linen.

24 The amount of gold used for the work, for the entire work for the sanctuary (the gold consecrated for the purpose) was twenty-nine talents and seven hundred and 25 thirty shekels, reckoned by the sanctuary shekel. ·The silver from the census of the Nb 1 community was one hundred talents and one thousand seven hundred and 26 seventy-five shekels, reckoned by the sanctuary shekel, ·one beqa per head, half a shekel reckoned by the sanctuary shekel, for everyone of twenty years and over Nb 1:45–46 included in the census, for six hundred and three thousand five hundred and fifty 27 persons. ·A hundred talents of silver were used for casting the sockets for the sanctuary and the sockets for the curtain: a hundred sockets from a hundred 28 talents, one talent per socket. ·From the one thousand seven hundred and seventy-five shekels he made the hooks for the poles, overlaid their capitals and 29 made the rods for them. ·The bronze consecrated for the purpose amounted to 30 seventy talents and two thousand four hundred shekels, ·and from it he made the sockets for the entrance of the Tent of Meeting, the bronze altar, its bronze grating 31 and all the altar accessories, ·the sockets all round the court, the sockets for the gateway to the court, all the pegs for the Dwelling and all the pegs round the court.

The vestments of the high priest

1 39 From the violet-purple, red-purple and crimson materials, they made the liturgical vestments for service in the sanctuary. They made the sacred vestments for Aaron, as Yahweh had ordered Moses.

The ephod 28:6–8

2 They made [a] the ephod of gold, of violet-purple, red-purple and crimson materials
3 and finely woven linen. ·They beat gold into thin plates and cut these into threads to work into the violet-purple, red-purple and crimson materials and the fine linen
4 by needlework. ·For the ephod they made shoulder-straps which were joined to it
5 at its two edges. ·The waistband on the ephod to hold it in position, was of a piece with it and of the same workmanship: of gold, violet-purple, red-purple and finely
6 woven linen, as Yahweh had ordered Moses. ·They worked the cornelians, mounted in gold setting, and engraved, like an engraved seal, with the names of 28:9–12
7 the sons of Israel, ·and put the stones on the shoulder-straps of the ephod, to commemorate the sons of Israel, as Yahweh had ordered Moses.

The breastplate of judgement 28:15–30

8 They made the breastplate of the same embroidered work as the ephod: of gold, 9 violet-purple, red-purple and crimson materials and finely woven linen. ·It was 10 square and doubled over, a span in length and a span in width. ·In it they set four 11 rows of stones: a sard, a topaz and an emerald, for the first row; ·for the second 12 row, a garnet, a sapphire and a diamond; ·for the third row, a hyacinth, a ruby and 13 an amethyst; ·and for the fourth row, a beryl, a cornelian and a jasper: mounted in 14 gold settings, ·the stones corresponding to the names of the sons of Israel, twelve like their names, engraved like seals, each with the name of one of the twelve
15, 16 tribes. ·For the breastplate they made chains of pure gold twisted like cords, and

38 a. The mirrors of antiquity were of polished bronze. What part these women played is not known. It may perhaps be a purified echo of 2 K 23:7. The v. served as a gloss on 1 S 2:22.
b. This passage is an editorial addition and assumes that the institution of the Levites, Nb 3, and the national census, Nb 1, have already taken place.

39 a. Here and in vv. 3, 7, 8 and 22, some of the verbs appearing in the singular in Hebr., have been changed to plural with Sam. and Syr.

they made two gold rosettes and two gold rings, putting the two rings on the two outside edges of the breastplate ·and fastening the two gold cords to the two rings 17 on the outside edges of the breastplate. ·The other two ends of the cords they 18 fastened to the two rosettes, putting these on the shoulder-straps of the ephod, on the front. ·They also made two gold rings and put them on the two outside edges of 19 the breastplate, on the inner side, against the ephod; ·and they made two more 20 gold rings and put them low down on the front of the two shoulder-straps of the ephod, close to the join, above the waistband of the ephod. ·They secured the 21 pectoral by a violet-purple cord passed through its rings and those of the ephod, so that the pectoral would sit above the waistband and not come apart from the ephod, as Yahweh had ordered Moses.

28:31–35 The robe

They made the robe of the ephod woven entirely of violet-purple. ·The opening 22, 23 in the centre of the robe was like the neck of a coat of mail; round the opening was a border, so that it would not get torn. ·On the lower hem of the robe, they made 24 pomegranates of violet-purple, red-purple and crimson and finely woven linen,[b] and made bells of pure gold, putting the bells between the pomegranates[c] all 25 round the lower hem of the robe: ·alternately, a bell and then a pomegranate, all 26 round the lower hem of the robe of office, as Yahweh had ordered Moses.

28:39–42 The vestments of the priests

They made the tunics of finely woven linen for Aaron and his sons, ·the turban of 27, 28 fine linen, the head-dresses of fine linen, the breeches of finely woven linen, ·the 29 waistbands of finely woven linen embroidered with violet-purple, red-purple and crimson, as Yahweh had ordered Moses.

28:36–37 They also made the flower—the symbol of holy consecration—of pure gold and 30 on it, like an engraved seal, they engraved, 'Consecrated to Yahweh'. ·They put it 31 on a violet-purple cord, to fasten it high up on the turban, as Yahweh had ordered Moses.

So all the work for the Dwelling, for the Tent of Meeting, was completed. They 32 had done everything exactly as Yahweh had ordered Moses.

The finished work presented to Moses

They then brought Moses the Dwelling, the Tent and all its accessories: its clasps, 33 frames, crossbars, poles and sockets; ·the cover of rams' skins dyed red, the cover 34 of fine leather and the screening curtain; ·the ark of the Testimony and its shafts, 35 and the mercy-seat; ·the table, all its accessories and the loaves of permanent 36 offering; ·the lamp-stand of pure gold, its lamps—the array of lamps—and all its 37 accessories, and the oil for the light; ·the golden altar, the anointing oil, the 38 fragrant incense and the screen for the entrance to the tent; ·the bronze altar and 39 its bronze grating, its shafts and all its accessories; the basin and its stand; ·the 40 curtaining for the court, its poles, its sockets, and the screen for the gateway to the court, its cords, its pegs and all the accessories for the service of the Dwelling, for the Tent of Meeting; ·the liturgical vestments for officiating in the sanctuary—the 41 sacred vestments for Aaron the priest, and the vestments for his sons—for the priestly functions. ·The Israelites had done all the work exactly as Yahweh had 42 ordered Moses.

Moses inspected all the work: they had indeed done it as Yahweh had ordered; 43 and Moses blessed them.

The sanctuary erected and consecrated

40 Yahweh then spoke to Moses and said, ·'On the first day of the first month, 1, 2 you will erect the Dwelling, the Tent of Meeting, ·and place the ark of the 3 Testimony in it and screen the ark with the curtain. ·You will then bring in the 4 table and arrange what has to be arranged on it. You will then bring in the lamp-

5 stand and set up its lamps. ·You will place the golden altar of incense in front of the ark of the Testimony, and place the screen at the entrance to the Dwelling.
6 You will place the altar of burnt offerings in front of the entrance to the Dwelling,
7 the Tent of Meeting, ·and you will place the basin between the Tent of Meeting
8 and the altar, and fill it with water. ·You will then set up the surrounding court and 9 hang the screen at the gateway of the court. ·Then, taking the anointing oil, you Lv 8:10 will anoint the Dwelling and everything inside, consecrating it and all its accessor-10 ies; it will then be holy. ·You will then anoint the altar of burnt offerings and all its accessories, consecrating the altar; the altar will then be especially holy.
11, 12 You will then anoint the basin and its stand, and consecrate it. ·You will then bring Aaron and his sons to the entrance of the Tent of Meeting, bathe them 29:4–8 13 thoroughly ·and then dress Aaron in the sacred vestments, and anoint and conse-
14 crate him, to serve me in the priesthood. ·You will then bring his sons, dress them 15 in tunics ·and anoint them as you anointed their father, to serve me in the priesthood. Their anointing will confer an everlasting priesthood on them for all their generations to come.'

The divine commands are carried out

16, 17 Moses did this; he did exactly as Yahweh had ordered him. ·On the first day of the 18 first month in the second year the Dwelling was erected. ·Moses erected the Dwelling. He fixed its sockets, set up its frames, put its crossbars in position and 19 set up its poles. ·He spread the tent over the Dwelling and the covering for the 20 tent over that, as Yahweh had ordered Moses. ·He took the Testimony and put it in the ark, positioned the shafts on the ark and put the mercy-seat on top of the 21 ark. ·He brought the ark into the Dwelling and put the screening curtain in place, 22 screening the ark of the Testimony, as Yahweh had ordered Moses. ·He put the table inside the Tent of Meeting, against the side of the Dwelling, on the north, 23 outside the curtain, ·and on it arranged the loaves before Yahweh, as Yahweh had 24 ordered Moses. ·He put the lamp-stand inside the Tent of Meeting, opposite the 25 table, on the south side of the Dwelling, ·and set up the lamps before Yahweh, as 26 Yahweh had ordered Moses. ·He put the golden altar inside the Tent of Meeting, 27 in front of the curtain, ·and on it burnt fragrant incense, as Yahweh had ordered 28, 29 Moses. ·He then put the screen at the entrance to the Dwelling. ·He put the altar of burnt offerings at the entrance to the Dwelling, to the Tent of Meeting, and on it offered the burnt offering and cereal offering, as Yahweh had ordered Moses.
30 He put the basin between the Tent of Meeting and the altar and put water in it for 31 the ablutions, ·where Moses, Aaron and his sons washed their hands and feet;
32 whenever they entered the Tent of Meeting or approached the altar they washed, 33 as Yahweh had ordered Moses. ·He then set up the court round the Dwelling and the altar and set up the screen at the gateway to the court. Thus Moses completed the work.

Yahweh takes possession of the sanctuary

34 The cloud then covered the Tent of Meeting and the glory of Yahweh filled the 35 Dwelling. ·Moses could not enter the Tent of Meeting, since the cloud stayed over 25:8d it and the glory of Yahweh filled the Dwelling. 1 K 8:10–11

The cloud guides the Israelites

‖Nb 9:15–23
36 At every stage of their journey, whenever the cloud rose from the Dwelling, the 13:21+, 22h
37 Israelites would resume their march. ·If the cloud did not rise, they would not Ps 78:14; 105:39 38 resume their march until the day it did rise. ·For Yahweh's cloud stayed over the Dwelling during the daytime and there was fire inside the cloud at night, for the whole House of Israel to see, at every stage of their journey.

LEVITICUS

I: THE RITUAL OF SACRIFICE[a]

The burnt offering[b]

Ex 25:22 1 Yahweh summoned Moses and, speaking to him from the Tent of Meeting, 1 said, •'Speak to the Israelites; say to them, "When any of you brings an offering 2 to Yahweh, he can offer an animal either from the herd or from the flock.

22:18–20 Ex 12:5 "If his offering is to be a burnt offering from the herd, he must offer an 3 unblemished male; he will offer it at the entrance to the Tent of Meeting, to make it acceptable to Yahweh. •He must lay his hand on the victim's head, and it will be 4 accepted as effectual for his expiation.[c] •He will then slaughter[d] the bull before 5 19:26 Ac 15:20 Yahweh, and the priests descended from Aaron will offer the blood.[e] They will pour it all around the altar which stands at the entrance to the Tent of Meeting.
He will then skin the victim and quarter it. •The priests descended from Aaron[f] 6, 7 will put a fire on the altar and arrange wood on the fire. •The priests descended 8 from Aaron will then arrange the quarters, the head and the fat on the wood on the fire on the altar. •He will wash the entrails and shins in water, and the priest will 9 Ex 29:18d burn it all on the altar as a burnt offering, food burnt[g] as a smell pleasing to Yahweh.

"If his offering is to be of an animal from the flock, of a lamb or a goat to be 10 offered as a burnt offering, he must offer an unblemished male. •He will slaughter 11 it on the north side of the altar, before Yahweh, and the priests descended from Aaron will pour the blood all around the altar. •He will then quarter it, and the 12 priest will arrange the quarters, the head and the fat on the wood on the fire on the altar. •He will wash the entrails and shins in water, and the priest will burn it all on 13
Ex 29:18d the altar as a burnt offering, food burnt as a smell pleasing to Yahweh.

Gn 15:10 "If his offering to Yahweh is to be a burnt offering of a bird, he must offer a 14 turtledove or a young pigeon. •The priest will offer it at the altar and wring off its 15 head, which he will burn on the altar; its blood must then be squeezed out on the side of the altar. •He will then remove the crop and the feathers and throw them on 16 4:12 1 K 13:5 the eastern side of the altar, where the fatty ashes are put. •He will then split it in 17 half with a wing on each side, but without separating the two parts. The priest will then burn it on the altar, on the wood which is on the fire, as a burnt offering, food burnt as a smell pleasing to Yahweh." '

The cereal offering[a]

6:7–11; 7:9–10 Nb 15:1–16 2 ' "If anyone offers Yahweh a cereal offering, his offering must consist of 1 wheaten flour on which he must pour wine and put incense. •He will bring it to 2
the priests descended from Aaron; he will take a handful of the wheaten flour, some of the oil and all the incense, and this the priest will burn on the altar as a memorial, as food burnt as a smell pleasing to Yahweh. •The remainder of the 3 cereal offering will revert to Aaron and his sons, an especially holy[b] portion of the food burnt for Yahweh.

"When you offer a cereal offering of dough baked in the oven, the wheaten flour 4 must be prepared either in the form of unleavened cakes mixed with oil, or in the form of unleavened wafers spread with oil.

5 "If your offering is a cereal offering cooked on the griddle, the wheaten flour
6 mixed with oil must contain no leaven. ·You will break it in pieces and pour oil over it. It is a cereal offering.

7 "If your offering is a cereal offering cooked in the pan, the wheaten flour must be prepared with oil.

8 "You will bring Yahweh the cereal offering thus prepared and present it to the 9 priest; he will take it to the altar. ·And from the cereal offering the priest will take the memorial and burn it on the altar, food burnt as a smell pleasing to Yahweh.
10 The remainder of the cereal offering will revert to Aaron and his descendants: it is especially holy since it is taken from the food burnt for Yahweh.

11 "None of the cereal offerings which you offer to Yahweh must be prepared with leaven, [e] for you must never include leaven or honey in food burnt for Yahweh. 6:9
12 You may offer them to Yahweh as an offering of first-fruits, but they will not make 13 a pleasing smell if they are burnt on the altar. ·You will put salt in every cereal Nb 18:19 Mk 9:49 offering that you offer, and you will not fail to put the salt of the covenant of your God [d] on your cereal offering; to every offering you will add an offering of salt to 14 your God. ·If you offer Yahweh a cereal offering of first-fruits, [e] you will offer it in Dt 26:1a
15 the form of roasted ears of wheat or of bread made from ground wheat. ·You will 16 add oil to it and put incense on it; it is a cereal offering; ·and from it the priest will burn the memorial with some bread and oil (and all the incense) as food burnt for Yahweh." '

1 a. The entire sacrificial ritual, Lv 1–7, is attached to the period in the desert and placed under the authority of Moses. In fact, however, apart from ancient regulations, it contains a number of later dispositions and attained its definitive form only after the return from the Exile. In its present form, Lv 1–7 represents the sacrificial code of the Second Temple. Very little is known about the sacrificial ritual of the Israelites during the nomadic period, the ancient texts giving information only about the Passover sacrifice, see Ex 12:1a, 23j, 39*l*.

b. Sacrifices in which the victim was entirely consumed. By laying his hands on the victim's head, v. 4, the offerer solemnly attested that the victim, then to be presented by the priest, was indeed his own sacrifice. The Pentateuchal narratives and ritual texts alike attribute this type of sacrifice to the period in the desert, Ex 18:12; Nb 7:12, and even to the Patriarchs, Gn 8:20; 22:9–10. In point of fact, the earliest historical evidence for these procedures dates from the time of the Judges, see Jg 6:26; 11:31; 13:15–20. This form of sacrifice seems to have been influenced by the ritual of the Canaanites (see 1 K 18, where the burnt offering made by the prophets of Baal is similar to that made by Elijah) and not to be earlier than the settlement of the tribes. In Lv 1, an expiatory value is attached to the burnt offering; in ancient times, it was more properly a thanksgiving sacrifice, see 1 S 6:14; 10:8; 2 S 6:17, or a sacrifice to obtain a favour from Yahweh, 1 S 7:9; 13:9; 1 K 3:4.

c. Expiation was the sacrifice by means of which someone who had offended Yahweh by breaking the covenant might be restored to favour. The animal offered in sacrifice (kipper) was regarded as a ransom (kopher), see Ex 30:12. In expiatory sacrifices, rituals with the blood played an essential part, 17:11, see 4:1a, 12c. Known to the Assyro-Babylonians and Canaanites, expiation was written into the very basis of the Israelite Law. In the NT, it appears no longer as a payment or substitution, but as the giving of God's life to give life to all people, Rm 3: 25–26.

d. Ezk 44:11 entrusts the slaughtering to the Levites. The priest's role began when the victim's blood came into contact with the altar. This was a general law in any kind of sacrifice: only the priest approached the altar, see Nb 18:7.

e. The blood was regarded as the seat of the life-principle, Gn 9:4; see Dt 12:16, 23; Ps 30:9; hence its expiatory value, see Lv 17:11, and its pre-eminent part in sacrificial and covenantal ritual, Ex 24:8. This was a feature peculiar to Israelite, as opposed to Canaanite, religion. According to ancient custom, therefore, the slaughter of any animal became a cultic act which had to be done on an altar, 1 S 14:32–35, and, according to Lv 17:3 seq., in the sanctuary, see Lv 17:4b.

f. Following the versions and see v. 8; 'The sons of Aaron the priest' Hebr.

g. Here the word is applied to burnt offerings, but it is also used for any portion burnt for Yahweh, whatever the nature of the sacrifice. The offering was not regarded as material food offered to God and shared with him, see Dt 18:1b, but was assimilated to the smoke of the burnt offering or of incense, ascending as 'a pleasing smell', see Ex 29:18d.

2 a. The cereal offering, with the first-fruits here assimilated to it, vv. 14–15, was an offering of agricultural produce, hence originating as the rite of a settled population, probably going back to the early days of the settlement of Canaan. The incense offering accompanying it and attested among neighbouring peoples, notably in Egypt, may have had a more ancient origin. The cereal offering is assimilated to a burnt offering by the burning of a handful of flour sprinkled with oil, as a 'smell pleasing' to Yahweh, see 1:9g; Ex 29:18. This kind of sacrifice was commonly offered to complement an animal sacrifice and was then accompanied by a libation of wine, see 23:13; Ex 29:40; Nb 15:3, 7.

b. A distinction was drawn between holy and especially holy offerings; the latter sanctified everything they touched, Ex 29:37.

c. The addition of leaven changed the natural character of the gift offered to God and to a certain degree profaned it. The prohibition may perhaps also be a reaction against Canaanite religious practices, see Am 4:5.

d. Salt was believed to have a purifying effect, 2 K 2:20; Ezk 16:4; see Mt 5:13. Among the Assyrians it was used in worship and among nomads at friendly or covenantal meals, hence the expression 'covenant of salt', Nb 18:19, to express the stability of the covenant between God and his people.

e. Under 'cereal offerings', vv. 12–16 classify the ancient practice of offering the first-fruits, see Dt 26:1a.

7:11–15;19:5–8; 22:21–25 1 Co 10:16

The communion sacrifice [a]

3 ' "If his sacrifice is a communion sacrifice, and if he offers an animal from the herd, be it male or female, whatever he offers before Yahweh must be unblemished. 1
·He will lay his hand on the victim's head and slaughter it at the entrance to 2 9:18–21 the Tent of Meeting. The priests descended from Aaron will then pour the blood all around the altar. ·He will offer part of the communion sacrifice as food burnt 3 for Yahweh: the fat covering the entrails, all the fat on the entrails, ·both kidneys, 4 the fat on them and on the loins, the mass of fat which he will remove from the liver and kidneys. ·The priests descended from Aaron will then burn this on the altar, in 5 addition to the burnt offering, on the wood of the fire, food burnt as a smell pleasing to Yahweh.

"If it is an animal from the flock which he offers as a communion sacrifice to 6 Yahweh, be the animal that he offers male or female, it must be unblemished.

"If he offers a sheep, he will offer it before Yahweh, ·he will lay his hand on the 7, 8 victim's head and slaughter it in front of the Tent of Meeting; the priests descended from Aaron will then pour its blood all around the altar. ·Of the communion 9 sacrifice he will offer the following as food burnt for Yahweh: the fat, all the tail taken off near the base of the spine, the fat covering the entrails, all the fat on the entrails, ·both kidneys, the fat on them and on the loins, the mass of fat which he 10 will remove from the liver and kidneys. ·The priest will then burn this on the altar 11 as food, [b] as food burnt for Yahweh.

"If his offering is a goat, he will offer it before Yahweh, ·he will lay his hand on 12, 13
the victim's head and slaughter it in front of the Tent of Meeting, and the descendants of Aaron will then pour its blood all around the altar. ·This is what he will 14
then offer of it as food burnt for Yahweh: the fat covering the entrails, all the fat on the entrails, ·both kidneys, the fat on them and on the loins, the mass of fat which 15 he will remove from the liver and kidneys. ·The priest will then burn these pieces 16 on the altar as food burnt as a smell pleasing to Yahweh.

"All the fat belongs to Yahweh. ·This is a perpetual law for all your descendants, 17 wherever you may live: that you will not eat either fat or blood." '

6:17–23

The sacrifice for sin: [a]

a: of the high priest

4 Yahweh spoke to Moses and said: 1
'Speak to the Israelites and say: 2

"If anyone sins inadvertently against any of Yahweh's commandments and does Ex 30:22d anything prohibited by them, ·if the one who sins is the anointed priest, thus 3 making the people guilty, [b] then for the sin which he has committed he must offer Yahweh a young bull, an unblemished animal from the herd, as a sacrifice for sin.
He will bring the bull before Yahweh at the entrance to the Tent of Meeting, will 4 lay his hand on its head and slaughter it before Yahweh. ·The anointed priest 5 will then take some of the bull's blood and carry it into the Tent of Meeting.
He will then dip his finger in the blood and sprinkle it seven times in front of the 6
Ex 26:33e sanctuary curtain, before Yahweh. ·The priest will then put some of the blood on 7
Ex 27:2b; 30:1–10,1a the horns of the altar of incense smoking before Yahweh in the Tent of Meeting, and will pour all the rest of the bull's blood at the foot of the altar of burnt offerings at the entrance to the Tent of Meeting.

"Of the bull offered as a sacrifice for sin, he will set aside all the fat: the fat 8 covering the entrails, all the fat on the entrails, ·both kidneys, the fat on them and 9 on the loins, the mass of fat which he will remove from the liver and kidneys—exactly as was done with the portion set aside in the communion sacrifice—and 10 the priest will burn these pieces on the altar of burnt offerings.

"The bull's skin and all its meat, its head, its shins, its entrails and its offal, ·the 11, 12
Heb 13:11 whole bull he will then have carried out of the camp to a clean place, the place where the fatty ashes are thrown, and will burn it on a wood fire; it must be burnt where the ashes are thrown. [c]

b: of the community of Israel

13 "If the whole community of Israel has sinned inadvertently and, without being aware of it has incurred guilt by doing something forbidden by Yahweh's com-
14 mandments, •once the sin of which it is guilty has been discovered, the community must offer a young bull, an unblemished animal from the herd, as a sacrifice for 15 sin, and bring it in front of the Tent of Meeting. •The elders of the community will then lay their hands on the bull's head before Yahweh, and the bull will be slaughtered before Yahweh. [d]

16 "The anointed priest will then take some of the bull's blood into the Tent of 17 Meeting. •He will then dip his finger in the blood and sprinkle it seven times in 18 front of the curtain, before Yahweh. •He will then put some of the blood on the horns of the altar standing before Yahweh inside the Tent of Meeting, and then pour all the rest of the blood at the foot of the altar of burnt offerings at the entrance to the Tent of Meeting.

19, 20 "He will then set aside all the fat from the animal and burn it on the altar. •He will then deal with the bull as he did with the bull in the sacrifice for sin. It will be dealt with in the same way; and once the priest has performed the rite of expiation for the people, they will be forgiven.

21 "He will then have the bull carried out of the camp and will burn it as he burned the first one. This is the sacrifice for the sin of the community.

c: of a leader of the community

22 "When a leader has sinned and inadvertently incurred guilt by doing something 23 forbidden by the commandments of Yahweh his God •(or if the sin which he has committed is drawn to his attention), he must bring a he-goat as his offering, an 24 unblemished male. •He will then lay his hand on the goat's head and slaughter it on the spot where the burnt offerings are slaughtered before Yahweh. This is a 1:11
25 sacrifice for sin; •the priest will take some of the victim's blood on his finger and put it on the horns of the altar of burnt offerings. [e] He will then pour the rest of its
26 blood at the foot of the altar of burnt offerings •and burn all the fat on the altar, as with the fat in the communion sacrifice. This is how the priest must perform the rite of expiation for him to free him from his sin, and he will be forgiven.

3 a. The sacrifice known as the 'communion sacrifice', in which the victim was shared between God and the offerer, is attested in Canaan, but the Israelite sacrifice differed from it by the antique ritual of the blood, see 1:5e. It was a sacred banquet: the most vital parts of the victim were offered to God; a choice portion fell to the priests, see 7:28 seq., and the rest was eaten by the faithful. In early times, this type of sacrifice was the most common and formed the central rite at festivals, being the most perfect way of expressing the communal life, covenantal bond and fellowship existing between the worshipper and his God.

b. The word 'food' here and in v. 16 has been replaced in the Gk by 'pleasing smell', see 1:9g, the better to safeguard God's entirely spiritual nature, see Dt 14; Ps 50:13.

4 a. The greater part of the sacrificial ritual is devoted to sacrifices of expiation. Two types are distinguished: sacrifice for sin and sacrifice of reparation, but it is difficult to tell in what the difference consists. The sacrifice for sin seems to have had a wider scope than the sacrifice of reparation which applies principally to misdeeds defrauding God or his priests or one's fellow. In fact, the two sacrifices are envisaged here for very similar situations, ch. 5, and confusion is compounded when specific laws, 14:10–32; Nb 6:9–12; 15:22–31, are adduced in comparison.

b. The high priest was God's representative before the nation, and he was also the representative of the nation before God; hence any fault of his involved the whole nation in guilt.

c. Since the sacrifice was offered to restore the covenant, the person or persons on whose behalf it was offered (here the high priest, at v. 21 the whole community) could not participate in eating the victim since he was not at peace with God. What therefore was not offered on the altar was burnt in its entirety outside the sanctuary. The mention of 'the camp' is a retrojection into the desert of this post-Exilic ritual.

d. The same rite is used for the high priest because he is the representative of the community.

e. Neither ruler nor commoner has the sacred quality of the high priest and of the community, Ezk 44:3; 45:7–12, and the blood of their representative victim is not allowed inside the holy Tent.

d: of a private individual

"If one of the country people sins inadvertently and incurs guilt by doing something 27 forbidden by Yahweh's commandments ·(or if the sin which he has committed is 28 drawn to his attention), he must bring a she-goat as his offering for the sin which he has committed, an unblemished female. ·He will then lay his hand on the victim's 29 head and slaughter it on the spot where the burnt offerings are slaughtered. ·The 30 priest will take some of its blood on his finger and put it on the horns of the altar of burnt offerings. He will then pour all the rest of the blood at the foot of the altar.
He will then remove all the fat, as the fat was removed for the communion 31 sacrifice, and the priest will burn it on the altar as a smell pleasing to Yahweh. This is how the priest must perform the rite of expiation for him, and he will be forgiven.

"If he wishes to bring a lamb as an offering for this kind of sacrifice, he must 32 bring an unblemished female. ·He will then lay his hand on the victim's head and 33 slaughter it as a sacrifice for sin on the spot where the burnt offerings are slaughtered. ·The priest will take some of the victim's blood on his finger and put it on the 34 horns of the altar of burnt offerings. He will then pour all the rest of the blood at the foot of the altar. ·He will then remove all the fat, as was done for the sheep in 35 the communion sacrifice, and the priest will burn it as food burnt for Yahweh. This is how the priest must perform for him the rite of expiation for the sin which he has committed, and he will be forgiven." '

Some cases of sacrifice for sin

5 ' "If someone sins in any of these following cases: [a] 1
"He should have come forward to give evidence when he heard the formal Dt 19:15–20 Pr 29:24 adjuration, [b] having seen the incident or known the facts; but he has not spoken out, and so bears the consequences of his guilt; 11–16 "or someone touches something unclean, whatever it may be—the dead body of 2 an unclean animal, wild or tame, or of one of the unclean reptiles—and without realising it becomes unclean, he becomes answerable for it; [c] "or he touches some human uncleanness, whatever it may be, contact with which 3 makes him unclean; he does not notice it, then, realising it later, he becomes answerable for it;
"or someone lets slip an oath to do something either evil or good, in any of those 4 matters on which someone may let slip an oath; he does not notice it, then, realising it later, he becomes answerable for it;
"if he is answerable in any of those cases, he will have to confess [d] the sin 5 committed. ·As a sacrifice of reparation for the sin committed, he will bring 6 Yahweh a female from the flock (sheep or goat) as a sacrifice for sin; and the priest will perform the rite of expiation for him to free him from his sin.

Sins of private individuals (continued)

"If he cannot afford an animal from the flock as a sacrifice of reparation for the sin 7 he has committed, he will bring Yahweh two turtledoves or two young pigeons—one as a sacrifice for sin and the other as a burnt offering. ·He will bring them to 8 the priest who will first offer the one intended for the sacrifice for sin. The priest will wring its neck but not remove the head. ·He will sprinkle the side of the altar 9 with the victim's blood, and then squeeze out the rest of the blood at the foot of the altar. This is a sacrifice for sin. ·He will then offer the other bird as a burnt offering 10 according to the ritual. This is how the priest must perform the rite of expiation for the person for the sin he has committed, and he will be forgiven.

"If he cannot afford two turtledoves or two young pigeons, he will bring a tenth 11 of an ephah of wheaten flour as an offering for the sin committed; he must not mix oil with it or put incense on it, since this is a sacrifice for sin. ·He will bring it to the 12 priest, who will take a handful of it as a memorial, and burn this on the altar in addition to the offerings of food burnt for Yahweh. This is a sacrifice for sin. ·This 13 is how the priest must perform the rite of expiation for the person for the sin he has committed in any of those cases,[e] and he will be forgiven. In this case, the priest has the same rights as for a cereal offering." '

The sacrifice of reparation[f] 7:1–6

14 Yahweh spoke to Moses and said:

15 'If someone is unfaithful and sins inadvertently by infringing Yahweh's sacred rights,[g] as a sacrifice of reparation he must bring Yahweh an unblemished ram Nb 5:5–8 from his flock, the value of which will be decided by you in silver shekels according 16 to the rate of the sanctuary-shekel.[h] ·He will make amends for what his sin subtracted from the sacred rights, adding one-fifth to the value, and give it to the priest. The priest will then perform the rite of expiation for him with the ram for 2 K 12:17 the sacrifice of reparation and he will be forgiven.

17 'If someone sins and without realising it does one of the things forbidden by Yahweh's commandments, he will answer for it and bear the consequences of his 18 guilt. ·As a sacrifice of reparation he must bring the priest an unblemished ram from his flock to the value which you decide, and the priest will perform the rite of expiation for him for the oversight unwittingly committed, and he will be forgiven.

Priesthood and sacrifice[a]

a: The burnt offering

8 1 6 Yahweh spoke to Moses and said:

9 2 'Give these orders to Aaron and his sons:

"This is the ritual for the burnt offering (that is, the burnt offering that stays on the altar brazier all night until morning and is consumed by the altar fire).[b]

5 a. The words 'in any of these (following) cases' appear after v. 4 in the original text but are inserted here for clarity's sake.

b. After summoning the witness the judge pronounced a conditional curse on him should he lie or prove evasive.

c. In view of the following paragraphs many correct to 'and, after being ignorant of it, discovers it and becomes guilty'.

d. A solemn, public act.

e. All the cases provided for in 4:22, 27.

f. When the rights of God or fellow-citizen, see 4:1a, had sustained damage which could be assessed in terms of money, a fine was added to the sacrifice, see 5:16, 24. 'Reparation money' and 'sin money', mentioned in 2 K 12:17, seem to refer to payments accompanying these sacrifices, which implies that these were already being made before the Exile, see also perhaps Ho 4:8. Information concerning ancient weights and measures will be found in the Tables of measures and money.

g. lit. 'holy things', i.e. offerings either freely made or laid down by law.

h. A heavier shekel than the one in common use, see Ex 30:15c.

i. Alternative translation: 'sacrifice of reparation which he ought to offer to Yahweh as such'.

6 a. Ch. 1–5 deal with sacrificial materials, ch. 6–7 with the duties and privileges of the sacrificing priest.

b. According to Ezk 46:13–15 the perpetual burnt offering entails only one daily sacrifice, in the morning; this coincides with the practice of the monarchical period: 2 K 16:15 speaks of the morning burnt offering as distinct from the evening cereal offering (see 1 K 18:29). According to Ex 29:38–42 and Nb 28:3–8 burnt offering is obligatory both morning and evening. In our passage the morning burnt offering is prescribed in v. 5 and an evening one is implied in the parenthesis of v. 2, though this is awkwardly phrased and apparently a later addition. The fire always burning on the altar symbolises the continuity of the cult; see the ever-burning lamp of Lv 24:2–4.

"The priest will put on his linen tunic and put his linen drawers on to cover 3 10 himself. He will then remove the fatty ashes of the burnt offering consumed by the altar fire and put them at the side of the altar. ·He will then take off his clothes, put 4 11 4:12c on others and carry the ashes to a clean place outside the camp.
2 M 1:18–36 "The fire on the altar that consumes the burnt offering must not be allowed to go 5 12 out. Every morning the priest will make it up with wood, arranging the burnt offering on it and burning the fat from the communion sacrifices. ·The fire must 6 13 always be burning on the altar; it must never go out.

b: The cereal offering

"This is the ritual for the cereal offering: 7 14
"One of the descendants of Aaron will bring it into Yahweh's presence in front of the altar, ·will take a handful of the wheaten flour (with the oil and all the 8 15 incense which have been added to it) and burn the memorial on the altar as a smell pleasing to Yahweh; ·and Aaron and his sons will eat the remainder in the form of 9 16 2:11 unleavened loaves. They will eat it inside the holy place, in the court of the Tent of Meeting. ·The portion I give them of the food burnt for me must not be baked with 10 17 leaven; it is especially holy, like the sacrifice for sin and the sacrifice of reparation.
All male descendants of Aaron are entitled to eat this portion of the food burnt 11 18 for Yahweh (this is a perpetual law for all your descendants) and anyone who touches it will become holy." '
Yahweh spoke to Moses and said: [c] 12 19 8–9 'This is the offering that Aaron and his sons must make to Yahweh on the day 13 20 they are anointed: one-tenth of an ephah of wheaten flour as a perpetual cereal offering, half in the morning and half in the evening. ·It will be prepared on the 14 21 griddle and mixed with oil; you will bring the paste as a cereal offering in several pieces, offering them as a smell pleasing to Yahweh. ·When one of his sons is 15 22 anointed priest to succeed him, he will do the same. This is a perpetual law.
'The entire cereal offering will be burnt for Yahweh. ·Every cereal offering 16 23 made by a priest will be a total sacrifice; none of it will be eaten.' [d]

c: The sacrifice for sin

Yahweh spoke to Moses and said, ·'Speak to Aaron and his sons and say: 17 24. 18 2
"This is the ritual for the sacrifice for sin:
"The victim must be slaughtered before Yahweh on the spot where the burnt offerings are slaughtered. It is especially holy. ·The priest who offers this sacrifice 19 26 will eat it. It will be eaten inside the holy place, in the court of the Tent of Meeting.
Everything touching the victim's meat will become holy, and if any of the blood 20 27 splashes on clothing, the stain will be washed off inside the holy place. ·The 21 28 earthenware vessel in which the meat is cooked must be broken; if a bronze vessel has been used for the cooking, it must be scrubbed and thoroughly rinsed with water. ·Any male who is a priest may eat the sacrifice. It is especially holy. [e] ·But no 22 29. 23 3 one may eat any of the victims offered for sin, the blood of which has been taken 4:5,16 into the Tent of Meeting to make expiation inside the sanctuary. These must be burnt." '

d: The sacrifice of reparation

7 ' "This is the ritual for the sacrifice of reparation: 1 31
"It is especially holy. ·The victim must be slaughtered where the burnt offerings 2 32 are slaughtered, and the priest will pour the blood all around the altar. ·He will 3 33 then offer all the fat: the tail, the fat covering the entrails, ·both kidneys, the fat on 4 34 them and on the loins, the mass of fat which he will remove from the liver and 35 5 kidneys. ·The priest will burn these pieces on the altar as food burnt for Yahweh.

36 6 This is a sacrifice of reparation. ·Every male who is a priest may eat it. It will be eaten inside the holy place; it is especially holy.

The rights of the priests

37 7 "As with the sacrifice for sin, so with the sacrifice of reparation—the ritual is the same for both. The offering with which the priest performs the rite of expiation will 38 8 revert to the priest. ·The hide of the victim presented by someone to the priest to 39 9 be offered as a burnt offering will revert to the priest. ·Every cereal offering baked 1 in the oven, every cereal offering cooked in the pan or on the griddle will revert to 2:4–7 40 10 the priest who offers it. ·Every cereal offering, mixed with oil or dry, will revert to 5:11–13 Nb 5:15 all the descendants of Aaron without distinction. Ezk 44:29

e: The communion sacrifice

(i) Sacrifice with praise [a]

7:1 11 "This is the ritual for the communion sacrifice to be offered to Yahweh: 22:29–30
2 12 "If this is offered as a sacrifice with praise, to the latter must be added an offering of unleavened cakes mixed with oil, unleavened wafers spread with oil,
3 13 and wheaten flour in the form of cakes mixed with oil. ·This offering, then, must be added to the cakes of leavened bread and to the communion sacrifice with
4 14 praise. ·One of the cakes of this offering must be presented as an offering to Yahweh; it will revert to the priest who pours out the blood of the communion
5 15 sacrifice. ·The meat of the victim will be eaten on the day the offering is made; nothing may be left until next morning.

(ii) Votive or voluntary sacrifices

6 16 "If the victim is offered as a votive or a voluntary sacrifice, it must be eaten on the 22:18–23
7 17 day it is offered, and the remainder may be eaten on the following day; ·but on the third day whatever is left of the meat of the victim must be burnt.

General rules

8 18 "If any of the meat of a victim offered as a communion sacrifice is eaten on the third day, the person who has offered it will not be acceptable and will receive no 19:7 credit for it. It will count as rotten meat, and the person who eats it will bear the consequences of the guilt.
9 19 "Meat that has touched anything unclean cannot be eaten; it must be burnt.
10 20 "Anyone clean may eat the meat, ·but anyone unclean who eats the meat of a 11–16 communion sacrifice offered to Yahweh will be outlawed from his people. [b] 11 21 Furthermore, if anyone touches anything unclean, human or animal, or any foul thing, and then eats the meat of a communion sacrifice offered to Yahweh, that individual will be outlawed from his people." '
13 23 Yahweh spoke to Moses and said, ·"Speak to the Israelites and say:
14 24 "You may not eat the fat of ox, sheep or goat. ·The fat of an animal that has died a natural death or been savaged by beasts may be used for any other purpose, but

c. vv. 12–16, missing from the Gk MS A, deal with the ceremony of investiture, see 8:26; 9:4, and interrupt the more general ritual instructions.

d. The priest could not both make and receive the offering: the idea is rather that of a debt to God than of participation in the divine life as in communion sacrifices, 3:1 seq.; 7:10 seq.; see also 7:28–34.

e. A private individual's sacrifice for sin could not be eaten by the offerer, since his guilt had not yet been expiated, see 4:12c; the priests, however, could eat it. The rule is the same for the sacrifice of reparation, 7:6, 8–10.

7 a. The communion sacrifice might be offered 'in praise', vv. 12–15, or in fulfilment of a vow or as a voluntary offering, vv. 16–17. It is difficult to determine the exact relationship between the three kinds. See Dt 12:6, 17; Jr 17:26; 33:11; Am 4:5.

b. For a desert nomad to be outlawed from his people was tantamount to a death sentence; here it is a religious condemnation as well: the guilty person loses all title to the divine promises made to Abraham's race.

you are not to eat it. ·Anyone who eats the fat of an animal offered as food burnt 25 15 for Yahweh will be outlawed from his people.
1:5e "Wherever you live, you will never eat blood, whether it be of bird or of beast. 26 16
Anyone who eats any blood will be outlawed from his people." ' 27 17

Dt 18:3 The priest's portion

Yahweh spoke to Moses and said, ·'Speak to the Israelites and say: 28 18, 29 19
"Anyone who offers Yahweh a communion sacrifice must bring him part of his sacrifice as an offering. ·He must bring the food to be burnt for Yahweh, that is to 30 20 say, the fat adhering to the forequarters, with his own hands. He will bring it, and Ex 29:24g also the forequarters, with which he will make the gesture of offering before Yahweh. ·The priest will then burn the fat on the altar, and the forequarters will 31 21 revert to Aaron and his descendants. ·You will set aside the right thigh from your 32 22 communion sacrifice and give it to the priest. ·The right thigh will be the portion of 33 23 the descendant of Aaron who offers the blood and fat of the communion sacrifice.
For I have deprived the Israelites of the forequarter offered and the thigh pre- 34 24 sented in their communion sacrifices, and given them to the priest Aaron and his descendants; this is a perpetual law for the Israelites." '

Conclusion

Such was the portion [c] of Aaron and his descendants in the food burnt for Yahweh, 35 25
the day he presented them to Yahweh for them to become his priests. ·This was 36 26 Ex 30:22d what Yahweh ordered the Israelites to give them on the day they were anointed: a perpetual law for all their descendants.
Such was the ritual for burnt offering, cereal offering, sacrifice for sin, sacrifice 37 27 of reparation, investiture sacrifice and communion sacrifice, ·which Yahweh laid 38 28 down for Moses on Mount Sinai, the day he ordered the Israelites to make their offerings to Yahweh in the desert of Sinai.

II: THE INVESTITURE OF THE PRIESTS

‖Ex 28:1–29:35; ‖39:1–32; ‖40:12–15 Consecration rites [a]

Ex 30:22d, 23–25 8 Yahweh spoke to Moses and said: 1
'Take Aaron and with him his sons, the vestments, the anointing oil, the 2 bull for the sacrifice for sin, the two rams and the basket of unleavened bread.
Then call the whole community together at the entrance to the Tent of Meeting.' 3
Moses did as Yahweh ordered; the community gathered at the entrance to the 4 Tent of Meeting, ·and Moses said to them, 'This is what Yahweh has ordered to be 5 done.'
He made Aaron and his sons come forward and washed them with water. 6
He then dressed him in the tunic, passed the waistband round his waist, vested 7
Ex 28:6a him in the robe and put the ephod on him. He then put the waistband of the ephod
Dt 33:8 round his waist, fastening it to him. ·He put the breastplate on him, and placed the 8
1 S 14:41r urim and thummim in it. ·He put the turban on his head, and on the front of the 9
Ezk 21:31 turban, the golden flower; this was the symbol of holy consecration, which Yahweh had prescribed to Moses.
Ex 30:22d Moses then took the anointing oil and anointed the Dwelling and everything 10 inside it, to consecrate them. ·He sprinkled the altar seven times and anointed the 11 altar and its accessories, the basin and its stand, to consecrate them. ·He then 12 poured some of the anointing oil on Aaron's head and anointed him to consecrate him.
Moses then made Aaron's sons come forward; he dressed them in tunics, passed 13
the waistbands round their waists and put on their head-dresses, as Yahweh had ordered him.

14 He then had the bull for the sacrifice for sin brought forward. Aaron and his sons 15 laid their hands on the victim's head ·and Moses slaughtered it. He then took the blood and with his finger put some of it on the horns on the corners of the altar to purify the altar. He then poured the rest of the blood at the foot of the altar, which 16 he consecrated by performing the rite of expiation over it. ·He then took all the fat covering the entrails, the mass of fat over the liver, both kidneys and their fat; and 17 he burnt this on the altar, ·but the bull's skin, its meat and its offal he burnt outside the camp, as Yahweh had ordered Moses.
18 He then had the ram for the burnt offering brought forward. Aaron and his sons 19 laid their hands on the ram's head ·and Moses slaughtered it. He poured its blood
20 all around the altar. ·He then quartered the ram and burned the head, the quarters
21 and the fat. ·He then washed the entrails and shins, and burnt the whole ram on the altar, as a burnt offering, offered to be a pleasing smell, as food burnt for Yahweh, as Yahweh had ordered Moses.
22 He then had the other ram brought forward, the ram for the investiture sacrifice.
23 Aaron and his sons laid their hands on its head ·and Moses slaughtered it. He took some of its blood and put it on the lobe of Aaron's right ear, on the thumb of his
24 right hand, and on the big toe of his right foot. ·He then made Aaron's sons come forward and he put some of the blood on the lobes of their right ears, on the thumbs of their right hands and on the big toes of their right feet. Next, Moses 25 poured the rest of the blood all around the altar. ·He then took the fat: the tail, all the fat covering the entrails, the mass of fat over the liver, both kidneys and their 26 fat, and the right thigh. ·From the basket of unleavened bread placed before Yahweh, he took an unleavened cake, a cake of bread made with oil, and a wafer;
27 he placed these on the fat and the right thigh, ·and put it all into Aaron's hands and Ex 28:41j
28 those of his sons, and made the gesture of offering before Yahweh. ·Moses then took them away from them and burned them on the altar, with the burnt offering. This was the investiture sacrifice,[b] offered to be a pleasing smell, as food burnt 29 for Yahweh. ·Moses then took the forequarter and made the gesture of offering before Yahweh. This was the portion of the ram of investiture that reverted to Moses, as Yahweh had ordered Moses.
30 Moses then took some of the anointing oil and some of the blood that was on the altar and sprinkled Aaron and his vestments, and his sons and their vestments, with it. In this way he consecrated Aaron and his vestments and his sons and their vestments.
31 Moses then said to Aaron and his sons, 'Cook the meat at the entrance to the Tent of Meeting, and eat it there, as also the bread of the investiture sacrifice still in the basket of the investiture offerings, as I ordered, when I said, "Aaron and his 32, 33 sons must eat it." ·What remains of the meat and bread you will burn. ·For seven days you will not leave the entrance to the Tent of Meeting, until the time of your 34 investiture is complete; for your investiture will require seven days. ·Yahweh has ordered us to do as we have done today to perform the rite of expiation for you;
35 hence, for seven days, day and night, you will remain at the entrance to the Tent of Meeting observing Yahweh's ritual; do this, and you will not incur death.[c] For this 36 was the order I received.' ·So Aaron and his sons did everything that Yahweh had ordered through Moses.

c. This allusion to the first investiture sacrifice introduces its full description in ch. 8–10.

8 a. The ritual for high-priestly investiture appears here as an account of the investiture of Aaron and his sons. It comprises the robing and anointing, vv. 7–13, followed by a sacrifice for sin, necessary for the consecration of the altar, vv. 14–17, then the burnt offering, vv. 18–21, and finally the investiture sacrifice, vv. 22–35. The priest assumes his office in ch. 9. The rite of anointing, originally a royal prerogative, was not transferred to the priesthood until the period of the Second Temple, see Ex 30:22d. In ancient times there had been no ordination properly speaking, the priest entering the realm of the sacred by virtue of his function.

b. 'investiture', lit. 'filling (of hands)', see v. 33; see Ex 28:41j.

c. Any infringement of the prescribed ritual was a grave fault, see 10:1 seq.

The priests assume their functions [a]

9 On the eighth day Moses summoned Aaron and his sons and the elders of 1
Israel; ·he said to Aaron, 'Take a calf to offer a sacrifice for sin, and a ram for 2 a burnt offering, both without blemish, and bring them before Yahweh. ·Then say 3 to the Israelites, "Take a goat to be offered as a sacrifice for sin, a calf and a lamb one year old (both without blemish) for a burnt offering, ·a bull and a ram for 4 communion sacrifices to be slaughtered before Yahweh, and a cereal offering mixed with oil. For Yahweh will appear to you today." '

They brought what Moses had ordered in front of the Tent of Meeting; then the 5 whole community approached and stood before Yahweh. ·Moses then said, 'This 6 Ex 24:16f is what Yahweh has ordered you to do, so that his glory may be visible to you.'
Heb 5:1-4;7:27 Moses then addressed Aaron, 'Go to the altar and offer your sacrifice for sin and 7 your burnt offering, and so perform the rite of expiation for yourself and your family. [b] Then present the people's offering and perform the rite of expiation for them, as Yahweh has ordered.'

Aaron went to the altar and slaughtered the calf as a sacrifice for his own sin. 8
Aaron's sons then presented the blood to him; he dipped his finger in it and put 9 some on the horns of the altar, and then poured the rest of the blood at the foot of the altar. ·The fat of the sacrifice for sin and the kidneys and the mass of fat over 10 the liver he burned on the altar, as Yahweh had ordered Moses, ·and the meat 11 and the skin he burned outside the camp.

He [c] then slaughtered the burnt offering; Aaron's sons then handed him the 12 blood, which he poured all around the altar. ·They then handed him the quartered 13 victim and the head, and he burned these on the altar. ·He then washed the entrails 14 and shins and burned them with the burnt offering on the altar.

He then presented the people's offering. He took the goat for the people's 15 sacrifice for sin, slaughtered it, and made a sacrifice for sin with it in the same way as with the first. ·He then had the burnt offering brought forward and proceeded 16 according to the ritual. ·He then had the cereal offering brought forward, took a 17 handful of it and burned it on the altar in addition to the morning burnt offering.

Then he slaughtered the bull and the ram as a communion sacrifice for the 18 people. Aaron's sons handed him the blood and he poured it all around the altar.
The fat of the bull and the ram, the tail, the covering fat, the kidneys, the mass of 19 fat over the liver, ·he placed [d] on the ribs and then burned on the altar. ·With the 20, 21 ribs and the right thigh Aaron made the gesture of offering as Yahweh had ordered Moses.

Aaron then raised his hands towards the people and blessed them. Having thus 22 performed the sacrifice for sin, the burnt offering and the communion sacrifice, he came down ·and entered the Tent of Meeting with Moses. Then they came out 23 together to bless the people and the glory of Yahweh appeared to the entire 1 K 18:20seq. people: ·a flame leapt out from Yahweh's presence and consumed the burnt 24
2 M 2:10 offering and fat on the altar. At this sight the entire people shouted for joy and fell on their faces.

Complementary legislation [a]

Nb 16:1-17:5 a: A lesson in exact observance

10 Aaron's sons Nadab and Abihu each took his censer, put fire in it and 1 incense on the fire, and presented unauthorised fire before Yahweh, which Nb 16:35 was not in accordance with his orders. [b] ·At this a flame leapt out from Yahweh's 2 2 K 1:10seq. presence and swallowed them up, and they perished before Yahweh. ·Moses then 3 said to Aaron, 'That is what Yahweh meant when he said:

> In those who are close to me I show my holiness, > and before all the people I show my glory.' [c]

Aaron remained silent.

b: Removal of bodies

4 Moses summoned Mishael and Elzaphan, sons of Aaron's uncle Uzziel, and said to them, 'Come here and take your brothers away from the sanctuary, out of the 5 camp.' ·They came and carried them away, still in their tunics, out of the camp, as Moses had said.

c: Rules for priestly mourning

6 Moses said to Aaron and his sons Eleazar and Ithamar, 'Do not disorder your hair or tear your clothes;[d] or you may incur death and his retribution may overtake the whole community. No, it is for the entire House of Israel to lament your brothers 7 who have been the victims of Yahweh's fire. ·To avoid incurring death, do not leave the entrance to the Tent of Meeting, for Yahweh's anointing oil is on you.'
And they did as Moses said.

d: Wine forbidden

8 Yahweh spoke to Aaron and said:
9 'When you come to the Tent of Meeting, you and your sons with you, you may not drink wine or any other fermented liquor, to avoid incurring death. This is a Ezk 44:21 10 perpetual law for all your descendants. ·And so shall it be also when you separate 11 the sacred from the profane, the unclean from the clean, ·and when you teach the Israelites any of the decrees that Yahweh has pronounced for them through Moses.'

e: The priests' portion in offerings

12 Moses said to Aaron and his surviving sons, Eleazar and Ithamar, 'Take the cereal offering left over from the food burnt for Yahweh. Eat the unleavened part of it 13 beside the altar, since it is especially holy. ·Eat it in the holy place, since it is the portion of the food burnt for Yahweh that is prescribed for you and your sons; this 6:9–10 is the order I have received.
14 'You, your sons and daughters with you, will eat in a clean place the forequarter 7:34 offered and the thigh presented, for these have been given to you and your children 15 as your due from the Israelites' communion sacrifices. ·The thigh presented and the forequarter offered, once the fat has been burnt, revert to you and your sons with you, after they have been presented before Yahweh with the gesture of offering, in virtue of a perpetual law as Yahweh has ordered.'

f: A special regulation concerning sacrifice for sin[e]

16 Moses then enquired carefully about the goat offered as a sacrifice for sin, and 9:15 found that they had burnt it. He was angry with Eleazar and Ithamar, Aaron's 17 surviving sons, and said, ·'Why did you not eat this victim for sin in the holy place, 6:19 since it is especially holy and was given to you to take away the community's guilt, 18 by performing the rite of expiation for them before Yahweh? ·Since its blood was

9 a. The priests inaugurate their priesthood by offering sacrifices on the altar, this being their essential function, see 1:5d, with the whole community participating. Although the purpose of this ch. is partly the same as that of ch. 1–7 (sacrificial ritual), the vocabulary is different and less developed, and the victims are not precisely those prescribed in ch. 4. The ch. apparently belongs to the earliest layer of Priestly writings and may perhaps be the continuation of Ex 40. As the glory of Yahweh takes possession of the sanctuary, Ex 40:34, similarly it appears to mark acceptance of the first sacrifices, Lv 9:23.

b. 'your family' Gk; 'the people' Hebr.

c. Aaron.

d. 'he placed' conj.; 'they placed' Hebr.

10 a. The purpose of the following anecdotes is to introduce various ritual regulations.

b. Perhaps because Nadab and Abihu are not priests, or because the fire is presented at an unauthorised time.

c. This couplet is found nowhere else in the Bible. Those who are 'close to' Yahweh (the priests) have a share in his 'holiness', see 19:2; his 'glory', see Ex 24:16f, is shown (by means of a punitive fire) to all the people.

d. Mourning ritual: but the priests must remain apart from the secular world and hence are subject to special rules, see also ch. 21.

e. This anecdote takes no account of the rules laid down in 4:13 seq. and 6:17–23; the excuse offered by Aaron and the assent given by Moses are difficult to understand. This paragraph and the others in this ch. are independent fragments artificially grouped together.

not taken inside the sanctuary, you should have eaten its meat there, as I ordered you.' ·Aaron said to Moses, 'Look, today they offered their sacrifice for sin and 19 their burnt offering before Yahweh, and these disasters have befallen me. If I had eaten the sin offering today, would this have met with Yahweh's approval?' ·And 20 when Moses heard this, he was satisfied.

Gn 7:2
‖Dt 14:3–21
↗Mt 15:10–20par.
↗Ac 10:9–16; 11:1–18

Clean and unclean animals[b]

a: On land

11 Yahweh spoke to Moses and Aaron and said to them, ·'Speak to the 1, 2 Israelites and say:

"Of all animals living on land these are the creatures you may eat:

"You may eat any animal that has a cloven hoof, divided into two parts, and that 3 is a ruminant. ·The following, which either chew the cud or have a cloven hoof, are 4 the ones that you may not eat: you will regard the camel as unclean, because though it is ruminant, it does not have a cloven hoof; ·you will regard the coney 5 as unclean, because though it is ruminant, it does not have a cloven hoof;
you will regard the hare as unclean, because though it is ruminant, it does not have 6 a cloven hoof; ·you will regard the pig as unclean, because though it has a cloven 7 hoof, divided into two parts, it is not a ruminant. ·You will not eat the meat of 8 these or touch their dead bodies; you will regard them as unclean.

b: In water

"Of all that lives in water, these you may eat: 9

"Anything that has fins and scales, and lives in the water, whether in sea or river, you may eat. ·But anything in sea or river that does not have fins and scales, of all 10 the small water-creatures and all the living things found there, you will regard as detestable. ·You will regard them as detestable; you must not eat their meat and 11 you will regard their carcases as detestable. ·Anything that lives in water, but not 12 having fins and scales, you will regard as detestable.

c: Birds

"Of the birds these are the ones that you will regard as detestable; they may not be 13 eaten, they are detestable for eating:

"The tawny vulture, the griffon, the osprey, ·the kite, the various kinds of 14 buzzard, ·all kinds of raven, ·the ostrich, the screech owl, the seagull, the various 15, 16 kinds of hawk, ·horned owl, night owl, cormorant, barn owl, ·ibis, pelican, white 17, 18 vulture, ·stork, the various kinds of heron, the hoopoe and the bat. 19

d: Winged insects

"All winged insects moving on four feet[c] you will regard as detestable for eating. 20
Of all these winged insects you may eat only the following: those with the sort of 21 legs[d] above their feet which enable them to leap over the ground. ·These are the 22 ones you may eat: the various kinds of migratory locust, the various kinds of solham locust, hargol locust and hagab locust. ·But all other winged insects on four 23 feet you will regard as detestable for eating.

Contact with unclean animals

"By the following you will be made unclean. Anyone who touches the carcase of 24 one will be unclean until evening. ·Anyone who picks up their carcases must wash 25 his clothing and will be unclean until evening. ·Animals that have hoofs, but not 26 cloven, and that are not ruminant, you will regard as unclean; anyone who touches them will be unclean. ·Those four-footed animals which walk on the flat of their 27 paws[e] you will regard as unclean; anyone who touches their carcases will be 28 unclean until evening, ·and anyone who picks up their carcases must wash his clothing and will be unclean until evening. You will regard them as unclean.

e: Small ground animals

29 "Of the small creatures which crawl along the ground, these are the ones which 30 you will regard as unclean: the mole, the rat, the various kinds of lizard: ·gecko, koah, letaah, chameleon and tinshamet.

Further rules on contact with things unclean

31 "Of all the small creatures, these are the animals which you must regard as disgusting. Anyone who touches them when they are dead will be unclean until evening.

32 "Any object on which one of these creatures falls when it is dead becomes unclean: wooden utensil, clothing, skin, sacking, any utensil whatever. It must be 33 immersed in water and will remain unclean until evening: then it will be clean. ·If the creature falls into an earthenware vessel, the vessel must be broken; whatever 34 the vessel contains is unclean. ·Any edible food will be unclean if the water touches it; any drinkable liquid will be unclean, no matter what its container.
35 Anything on which the carcase of such a creature may fall will be unclean: be it oven or stove, it must be destroyed; for they are unclean and you will regard them
36 as unclean ·(although springs, wells and stretches of water will remain clean);[f]
37 anyone who touches one of their carcases will be unclean. ·If one of their carcases 38 falls on any kind of seed, the seed will remain clean; ·but if the seed has been moistened and one of their carcases falls on it, you will regard it as unclean.

39 "If one of the animals that you use as food dies, anyone who touches the carcase 40 will be unclean until evening; ·anyone who eats any of the carcase must wash his clothing and will remain unclean until evening; anyone who picks up the carcase must wash his clothing and will remain unclean until evening.

The religious aspect

41 "Any creature that swarms on the ground is detestable for eating; it must not be 42 eaten. ·Anything that moves on its belly, anything that moves on four legs or more—in short all the creatures that swarm on the ground—you will not eat, since
43 they are detestable. ·Do not make yourselves detestable with all these swarming 44 creatures; do not defile yourselves with them, do not be defiled by them. ·For it is I, Yahweh, who am your God. You have been sanctified and have become holy 17:1a because I am holy: do not defile yourselves with all these creatures that swarm on 45 the ground. ·Yes, it is I, Yahweh, who brought you out of Egypt to be your God: you must therefore be holy because I am holy." ' 17:1a;19:2; 22:33+ ↗Mt 5:48 1 P 1:15–16 ↗1 J 3:3

11 a. The 'law of purity' ch. 11–16, complements the 'law of holiness' ch. 17–26, as the negative and positive aspects of the same divine demand. Behind these regulations lie religious taboos of great antiquity. That is 'clean' which is considered worthy to approach God, 'unclean' whatever makes a person unfit for ritual worship or whatever is in fact excluded from it. The clean animals are those that can be offered to God, Gn 7:2, the unclean animals those which neighbouring peoples regarded as sacred or which, since they were unpleasing to human beings, were thought displeasing to God, ch. 11. Other regulations deal with birth, ch. 12, sexual life, ch. 15, death, 21:1, 11; Nb 19:11–16; all these are the mysterious province of God, the master of life. A symptom of decay as in contagious skin-diseases, 13:1a, also induces impurity. The prophets, however, were to go further and insist on the cleansing of the heart, Is 1:16; Jr 33:8, see Ps 51:10, thus preparing the way for the teaching of Jesus, Mt 15:10–20 and par., who released his followers from ordinances of which only the formalities had been preserved, Mt 23:24–26 and par. The ancient legislation, however, established an ideal of moral purity, safeguarded by positive observances.

b. The classifications given here are empirical. They are based on practical characteristics rather than ultimate distinction, sheep or cattle being kept in mind as the prototype of what is a clean animal: the hare, for example, is classed with the ruminants because the movements of its jaw suggest rumination. The identification of some of the animals mentioned is uncertain.

c. Winged insects are called 'four-footed' to distinguish them from birds. The locust is not impure, v. 21.

d. 'with legs' versions; 'without legs' Hebr.

e. This means not only the animals that walk on the flat of the foot ('plantigrades') but all hoofless animals.

f. Water is in itself life-giving and purifying.

Conclusion

Such is the law concerning animals, birds, all living creatures that move in water 46 and all creatures that swarm on the ground. •Its purpose is to distinguish the clean 47 from the unclean, the creatures that may be eaten from those that may not be eaten.

Purification of a woman after childbirth [a]

12 Yahweh spoke to Moses and said, •'Speak to the Israelites and say: 1, 2
"If a woman becomes pregnant and gives birth to a boy, she will be unclean
15:19 for seven days as when in a state of pollution due to menstruation. •On the eighth 3
Gn 17:10d
↗Lk 1:59;2:21 day the child's foreskin must be circumcised, •and she will wait another thirty-three 4 days for her blood to be purified. She will not touch anything consecrated nor go to the sanctuary until the time of her purification is over.

"If she gives birth to a girl, she will be unclean for two weeks, as during her 5 monthly periods; and will wait another sixty-six days for her blood to be purified.

↗Lk 2:22–38 "When the period of her purification is over, for either boy or girl, she will bring 6 the priest at the entrance to the Tent of Meeting a lamb one year old for a burnt offering, and a young pigeon or turtledove as a sacrifice for sin. •The priest must 7 offer this before Yahweh, perform the rite of expiation for her, and she will be purified from her discharge of blood.

"Such is the law concerning a woman who gives birth to either a boy or a girl. •If 8 5:7–13 she cannot afford a lamb, she must take two turtledoves or two young pigeons, one for the burnt offering and the other for the sacrifice for sin. The priest will perform the rite of expiation for her and she will be purified." '

Nb 12:10–15
Dt 24:8–9 Human skin-diseases [a]

a: Swellings, scabs, discolorations

13 Yahweh said to Moses and Aaron, •'If a swelling or scab or spot appears on 1, 2 someone's skin, which could develop into a contagious skin-disease, that person must then be taken to the priest, either Aaron or one of his sons. •The priest 3 will examine the disease on the skin. If the hair on the diseased part has turned white, or if the disease bites into the skin, the skin-disease is contagious, and after examination the priest will declare the person unclean. •But if there is a white spot 4 on the skin without any visible depression of the skin or whitening of the hair, the priest will isolate the sick person for seven days. •On the seventh day he will 5 examine the person, and if he observes that the disease persists though without spreading over the skin, he will isolate the person for a further seven days •and 6 examine him again on the seventh. If he finds that the disease has faded and has not spread over the skin, the priest will declare the person clean. This was merely a scab. Once he has washed his clothing he will be clean.

'But if the scab spreads over the skin after the sick person has been examined by 7 the priest and declared clean, then he will let himself be examined again by the priest. •After examining him and certifying the spread of the scab over the skin, 8 the priest will declare him unclean: it is a contagious skin-disease.

b: Cases of dormant skin-disease [b]

'Someone who has a contagious skin-disease must be taken to the priest. •The 9, 10 priest will examine the sick person, and if he finds a whitish swelling with whitening of the hair and an ulcer forming on the skin, •this is a dormant skin-disease, and 11 the priest will declare the person unclean. He will not isolate him; he is obviously unclean. [c]

'But if the disease spreads all through the skin, if it covers the person entirely 12 from head to foot so far as the priest can see, •the priest will then examine the sick 13 person and, if he finds that the skin-disease covers his whole body, declare the sick person [d] clean. Since it has all become white, he is clean. •But as soon as an ulcer 14

15 appears on him, he will be unclean. •After examining the ulcer, the priest will 16 declare him unclean: the ulcer is unclean, it is contagious. •But if the ulcer becomes 17 white again, the sick person will go to the priest; •the priest will examine him and if he finds that the disease has turned white, he will declare the sick person clean: he is clean.

c: Ulcers

18, 19 'When an ulcer[e] appears on someone's skin, and then gets better, •and if then a white swelling or a reddish-white spot forms on the same place, the sick person will
20 show himself to the priest. •The priest will examine him, and if he finds a visible depression in the skin and a whitening of the hair, he will declare the person
21 unclean: this is a case of contagious skin-disease breaking out in an ulcer. •But if on examination the priest finds neither white hair nor depression of the skin, but a
22 fading of the affected part, he will isolate the sick person for seven days. •If the disease has then spread over the skin, he will declare the person unclean: this is a 23 case of contagious skin-disease. •But if the spot has stayed where it was and has not spread, it is the scar of the ulcer and the priest will declare the person clean.

d: Burns

24 'If someone has a burn on the skin and an abscess, a reddish-white or white spot,
25 forms on the burn, •the priest will then examine it. If he finds a whitening of the hair or a visible depression of the mark on the skin, a contagious disease has broken out in the burn. The priest will declare the sick person unclean: this is a contagious
26 skin-disease. •If on the other hand the priest on examination does not find white hair on the mark or depression of the skin, but a fading of the mark, the priest will 27 isolate the person for seven days. •He will examine the person on the seventh day and, if the disease has spread over the skin, he will declare the sick person unclean:
28 this is a case of contagious skin-disease. •If the mark has stayed where it was and has not spread over the skin, but has faded instead, it was only a swelling due to the burn. The priest will declare the person clean: it is merely a burn scar.

e: Diseases of the scalp and chin

29, 30 'If a man or a woman has a sore on the head or chin, •the priest will examine the sore; and if he finds a depression visible in the skin, with the hair on it yellow and thin, he will declare the sick person unclean: this is tinea,[f] that is to say, a
31 contagious skin-disease of the head or chin. •If on examining this case of tinea the priest finds no visible depression in the skin and no yellow hair,[g] he will isolate
32 the person so affected for seven days. •He will examine the infected part on the seventh day, and if he finds that the tinea has not spread, that the hair on it is not
33 yellow, and that there is no visible depression in the skin, •the sick person will shave his hair off, all except the part affected with tinea, and the priest will again
34 isolate him for seven days. •He will examine the infected part on the seventh day, and if he finds that it has not spread over the skin, and that there is no visible

12 a. Childbirth, like menstruation or seminal discharge, ch. 15, is regarded as a loss of vitality; this loss must be made good by ritual means: union with God, the source of life, is thus re-established.

13 a. The word traditionally translated as 'leprosy' included various serious or trivial skin-diseases, vv. 1–44, and even signs of decay in clothing, vv. 47–59, or on walls, 14:33–53. Diagnostic and precautionary measures were codified and their application entrusted to the priests. These practical measures were derived from primitive ideas and practice but in Israel were used to identify ritual uncleanness and so took on a religious significance. Restoration to the community was accompanied by a ritual like that of 'sacrifice for sin', 14:1–31, 49–53, the 'sin' being, in this case, an affront to the life-giving power of the God of Israel.

b. Here it is a question of distinguishing not real from apparent disease but contagious skin-diseases from others. Lv seems to regard only the ulcerous form as contagious.

c. No second examination is necessary. The Gk has the opposite 'will isolate him'.

d. lit. 'the disease'. When the symptoms spread over the surface it is a sign of recovery: the white scabs will drop off.

e. Alternative translations: 'boil', 'abscess'.

f. Or possibly eczema.

g. Hebr. 'dark hair', but see v. 32.

depression of the skin, the priest will declare the sick person clean. After washing his clothes the person will be clean. 35 But if after this purification the tinea does spread over the skin, 36 the priest will examine the person; if he finds that the tinea has indeed spread over the skin, the sick person is unclean, and there is no need to verify whether the hair is yellow. 37 Whereas if, so far as he can see, the tinea is arrested and dark hair is beginning to grow on it, the sick person is cured. He is clean, and the priest will declare him clean.

f: Rash

38 If spots break out on the skin of a man or woman, and if these spots are white, 39 the priest will examine them. If he finds that the spots are of a dull white, this is a rash that has broken out on the skin: the sick person is clean.

g: Loss of hair

40 If someone loses the hair of the scalp, this is baldness of the scalp but the person is clean. 41 If he loses hair off the front of the head, this is baldness of the forehead but the person is clean. 42 If, however, a reddish-white sore appears on scalp or forehead, a contagious skin-disease has broken out on the scalp or forehead. 43 The priest will examine it, and if he finds a reddish-white swelling on scalp or forehead, looking like a contagious skin-disease, 44 the person has such a disease: he is unclean. The priest will declare him unclean; he has a contagious skin-disease of the head.

The law governing cases of contagious skin-diseases

45 Anyone with a contagious skin-disease will wear torn clothing and disordered hair; and will cover the upper lip and shout, "Unclean, unclean." 46 As long as the disease lasts, such a person will be unclean and, being unclean, will live alone and live outside the camp.

Infections of clothing

47 When a piece of clothing is infected with mould, be it woollen or linen clothing, linen or woollen fabric or covering, or leather or anything made of leather, 48, 49 if the spot on the clothing, leather, fabric, covering or object made of leather is a greenish or reddish colour, it is a disease to be shown to the priest. 50 The priest will examine the infection and isolate the object for seven days. 51 If on the seventh day he observes that the infection has spread on the clothing, fabric, covering, leather or object made of leather, whatever it may be, this is a contagious disease and the object is unclean. 52 He will burn this clothing, fabric, linen or woollen covering or leather object whatever it may be, on which the infection has appeared; for this is a contagious disease which must be destroyed by fire.

53 But if on examination the priest finds that the infection has not spread on the clothing, fabric, covering, or leather object whatever it may be, 54 he will order the infected object to be washed and will isolate it again for a period of seven days. After the washing, he will examine the infection and if he finds that there is no change in its appearance, 55 even though it has not spread, the article is unclean. You will burn it; it is infected through and through.

56 But if on examination the priest finds that the infection has diminished after washing, he will tear it out of the clothing, leather, fabric or covering. 57 But if the infection reappears on the same clothing, fabric, covering or leather object whatever it may be, this means that the infection is active; you will burn whatever is infected. 58 The clothing, fabric, covering or leather object whatever it may be, from which the infection disappears after being washed, will be clean after it has been washed a second time.

59 Such is the law governing disease in a linen or woollen garment, a fabric or covering or leather object whatever it may be, when it is a question of declaring them clean or unclean.'

Purification from contagious skin-diseases [a]

14 Yahweh spoke to Moses and said:
'This is the law to be applied on the day of the purification of someone who ↗Mt 8:4par. ↗Lk 17:14 has suffered from a contagious skin-disease. Such a person will be taken to the priest, ·and the priest will go outside the camp. If he finds on examination that the person has recovered from the disease, ·he will order the following to be brought for his purification: two live birds that are clean, some cedar wood, scarlet material and hyssop. ·He will then order one of the birds to be slaughtered in an earthenware pot over running water. ·He will then take the live bird, the cedar wood, the Nb 19:6,18 Ps 51:7
scarlet material and the hyssop and dip all this (including the live bird) into the blood of the bird slaughtered over running water. ·He will then sprinkle the person to be purified of the skin-disease seven times, and having declared the person clean, will set the live bird free to fly off into the countryside. ·The person who is being purified will then wash all clothing, shave off all hair, and wash, and will then be clean. After this he will return to the camp, although he will remain outside his tent for seven days. ·On the seventh day he will shave off all his hair—head, beard and eyebrows; he will shave off all his hair. After washing his clothing and his body Nb 6:9 he will be clean.
'On the eighth day he will take two unblemished lambs, an unblemished ewe one year old, three-tenths [b] of wheaten flour mixed with oil for the cereal offering, and one log of oil. ·The priest who is performing the purification will place the person who is being purified, with all his offerings, at the entrance to the Tent of Meeting, before Yahweh. ·He will then take one of the lambs and offer it as a sacrifice of reparation, as also the log of oil. With these he will make the gesture of offering before Yahweh. ·He will then slaughter the lamb on that spot inside the holy place where the victims for the sacrifice for sin and for the burnt offering are slaughtered. This reparatory offering, like the sacrifice for sin, will revert to the priest: it is especially holy. ·The priest will then take some blood of this sacrifice and put it on the lobe of the right ear, the thumb of the right hand, and the big toe 8:23 of the right foot of the person who is being purified. ·He will then take the log of oil and pour a little into the hollow of his left hand. ·He will dip a finger of his right hand into the oil in the hollow of his left hand, and sprinkle the oil with his finger seven times before Yahweh. ·He will then take some of the oil left in the hollow of his hand and put it on the lobe of the right ear, the thumb of the right hand, and the big toe of the right foot of the person being purified, in addition to the blood of the sacrifice of reparation. ·The rest of the oil in the hollow of his hand he will put on the head of the person who is being purified. This is how the priest will perform the rite of expiation for such a person before Yahweh.
'The priest will then offer the sacrifice for sin, and perform the rite of expiation for uncleanness for the person who is being purified. After this, he will slaughter the burnt offering ·and offer this and the cereal offering on the altar. So, when the priest has performed the rite of expiation for him the person will be clean.
'If he is poor and cannot afford all this, he need take only one lamb, the one for 5:7–13;12:8
the sacrifice of reparation, and this will be presented with the gesture of offering to perform the rite of expiation for him. And for the cereal offering he will take only one-tenth of wheaten flour mixed with oil, and the log of oil, ·and two turtledoves or two young pigeons, whichever he can afford, one for a sacrifice for sin and the other for the burnt offering. ·He will bring these on the eighth day to the priest at the entrance to the Tent of Meeting before Yahweh, for his purification. ·The priest will take the lamb for the sacrifice of reparation and the log of oil, and present them before Yahweh with the gesture of offering. ·He will then slaughter

14 a. Ch. 14 combines two purification rites: vv. 2–9, an archaic rite somewhat like that of the red heifer, Nb 19:1a, and presupposing that the illness is caused by a demon which can be driven away by these means (see the goat for Azazel, Lv 16:10); and 10–32, a rite more in keeping with the rest of Lv, except for the anointings with oil, vv. 15–18, which have no parallel.
b. Three-tenths, i.e. of an ephah or about 0.375 bushel (13.5 litres).

the lamb for the sacrifice of reparation, take some of its blood and put it on the lobe of the right ear, the thumb of the right hand and the big toe of the right foot of the person who is being purified. ·He will pour the oil into the hollow of his left 26 hand, ·and with his finger sprinkle the oil in the hollow of his left hand seven times 27 before Yahweh. ·He will then put some of the oil on the lobe of the right ear, the 28 thumb of the right hand and the big toe of the right foot of the person who is being purified, as he did with the blood of the sacrifice of reparation. ·The remainder of 29
the oil in the hollow of his hand he will put on the head of the person who is being purified, thus performing the rite of expiation for him before Yahweh. ·Of the two 30 turtledoves or two young pigeons—whatever he has been able to afford—he will offer ·a sacrifice for sin with one, and with the other a burnt offering with a cereal 31 offering—whatever he has been able to afford. This is how the priest will perform before Yahweh the rite of expiation for the person who is being purified.

'Such is the law concerning someone with a contagious skin-disease who cannot 32 afford the means of purification.'

Similar infections of houses

Yahweh spoke to Moses and Aaron and said: 33

'When you reach Canaan, which I am giving you as your possession, if I infect a 34 house with a disease in the country which you are to possess, ·the owner will come 35 and inform the priest and say, "I have seen something like a skin-disease in the house." ·The priest will order the house to be emptied before he goes to examine 36
the infection, or everything in the house will become unclean; after which, the priest will go inside and examine the house; ·and if on examination he finds the 37 walls of the house pitted with reddish or greenish depressions which appear to be eating away the wall,[c] ·the priest will then go out of the house, to the door, and 38 shut it up for seven days. ·On the seventh day, the priest will come back and if on 39 examination he finds that the infection has spread over the walls of the house, ·he 40 will order the infected stones to be removed and thrown into some unclean place outside the town. ·He will then have all the inside of the house scraped, and the 41 plaster that comes off will be emptied in an unclean place outside the town. ·The 42 stones will then be replaced with new ones and the house given a new coat of plaster.

'If the infection spreads again after the stones have been removed and the house 43 scraped and replastered, ·the priest will come and examine it. If he finds that the 44 infection has spread, this means that there is a contagious disease in the house: it is unclean. ·It must be pulled down and the stones, woodwork and all the plaster be 45 taken to an unclean place outside the town.

'Anyone who enters the house while it is closed will be unclean until evening. 46
Anyone who sleeps there will wash his clothes. Anyone who eats there will wash 47 his clothes. ·But if the priest finds, when he comes to examine the infection, that it 48 has not spread in the house since it was plastered, he will declare the house clean, for the infection is cured.

'As a sacrifice for the defilement[d] of the house, he will take two birds, some 49
cedar wood, scarlet material and hyssop. ·He will slaughter one of the birds in an 50 earthenware pot over running water. ·He will then take the cedar wood, the 51
hyssop, the scarlet material and the live bird, dip them into the blood of the slaughtered bird and into the running water and sprinkle the house seven times; and after offering the sacrifice for the defilement of the house with the blood of 52
the bird, the running water, the live bird, the cedar wood, the hyssop and the scarlet material, ·he will set the live bird free to fly out of the town into the 53 countryside. Once the rite of expiation has been performed for the house in this way it will be clean.

'Such is the law governing all kinds of skin-disease and tinea, ·diseases of 54, 55 clothing and houses, ·swellings, scabs and spots. It defines the occasions when 56 things are unclean and when clean. ·Such is the law on skin-diseases.' 57

Sexual impurities [a]

a: Of men

15 Yahweh spoke to Moses and Aaron and said:
'Speak to the Israelites and say to them:
"When a man has a discharge from his body, that discharge is unclean. ·While the discharge continues, the nature of his uncleanness is as follows:
"Whether his body allows the discharge to flow or whether it retains it, he is unclean.
"Any bed the man lies on and anything he sits on will be unclean.
"Anyone who touches his bed must wash clothing and body and will be unclean until evening.
"Anyone who sits where the man has sat must wash clothing and body and will be unclean until evening.
"Anyone who touches the body of the man with the discharge must wash clothing and body and will be unclean until evening.
"If the man with the discharge spits on someone who is clean, that person must wash clothing and body and will be unclean until evening.
"Any saddle the man has ridden on will be unclean.
"All those who touch any object that has been under him will be unclean until evening.
"Anyone who picks up such an object must wash clothing and body and will be unclean until evening.
"All those whom the man with the discharge touches without having washed his hands must wash clothing and body and will be unclean until evening.
"The earthenware vessel he touches must be broken and any wooden utensil must be rinsed.
"Once the man with the discharge is cured, he will allow seven days for his purification. He will wash his clothes and wash his body in running water and he will be clean. ·On the eighth day he will take two turtledoves or two young pigeons and come before Yahweh at the entrance to the Tent of Meeting and give them to the priest. ·The priest will offer one of them as a sacrifice for sin and the other as a burnt offering. And in this way the priest will perform the rite of expiation for him before Yahweh for his discharge.
"When a man has a seminal discharge, he must wash his whole body with water and will be unclean until evening. ·Any clothing or leather touched by the seminal discharge must be washed and will be unclean until evening. ·When a woman has had intercourse with a man, both of them must wash and will be unclean until evening.

b: Of women

"Whenever a woman has a discharge and the discharge from her body is of blood, she will remain in a state of menstrual pollution for seven days.
"Anyone who touches her will be unclean until evening.
"Anything she lies on in this polluted state will be unclean; anything she sits on will be unclean.
"Anyone who touches her bed must wash clothing and body and will be unclean until evening.
"Anyone who touches anything she has sat on must wash clothing and body and

c. Left by the mildew staining and rotting the walls.
d. Here 'defilement' has no moral connotation: the impurity of the house is assimilated to that of someone freeing himself from sin by offering a sin sacrifice. The rite is the same as the archaic one for people suffering from skin-diseases, vv. 4–7.

15 a. The kinds of impurity here dealt with include not only contagious venereal disease but also normal seminal discharge and menstruation. Everything connected with conception and birth is sacred and mysterious, see 12:1a.

will be unclean until evening. •If there is anything on the bed or where she is sitting, 23 anyone who touches it will be unclean until evening.

"If a man goes so far as to sleep with her, he will contract her menstrual pollution 24 and will be unclean for seven days. Any bed he lies on will be unclean.

Mt 9:20par. "If a woman has a prolonged discharge of blood outside the period, or if the 25 period is prolonged, during the time this discharge lasts she will be in the same state of uncleanness as during her monthly periods. •Any bed she lies on during the 26 time this discharge lasts will be polluted in the same way as the bed she lies on during her monthly periods. Anything she sits on will be unclean as during her monthly periods. •Anyone who touches it will be unclean and must wash clothing 27 and body and will be unclean until evening.

"Once she is cured of her discharge, she will allow seven days to go by; after 28 that she will be clean. •On the eighth day she will take two turtledoves or two 29 young pigeons and bring them to the priest at the entrance to the Tent of Meeting.
The priest will offer one of them as a sacrifice for sin and the other as a burnt 30 offering. And in this way the priest will perform the rite of expiation for her before Yahweh for the discharge which made her unclean.

Conclusion

"Hence you will warn[b] the Israelites against contracting a state of uncleanness, 31 rather than incurring death by defiling my Dwelling which is among them.

"Such is the law governing a man with a discharge or who is made unclean by a 32 seminal discharge, •a woman in a state of pollution due to menstruation, a man or 33 a woman with a discharge, or a man who sleeps with a woman when she is unclean." '

The great Day of Expiation[a]

16 Yahweh spoke to Moses after the death of the two sons of Aaron who died 1 10:1seq. when offering unauthorised fire. •Yahweh spoke to Moses and said: 2
Ex 19:12e 'Tell Aaron your brother that he may not enter the sanctuary inside the curtain
Ex 25:17h in front of the mercy-seat on the ark whenever he chooses, in case he incurs death, for I appear in a cloud on the mercy-seat.

'This is how he must enter the sanctuary: with a young bull for a sacrifice for sin 3 and a ram for a burnt offering. •He will put on a tunic of consecrated linen, wear 4 linen drawers on his body, a linen waistband round his waist, and a linen turban on his head. These are the sacred vestments he will put on after washing himself.

'From the community of Israelites he will receive two he-goats for a sacrifice for 5 sin and a ram for a burnt offering. •After offering the bull as a sacrifice for his own 6 sin and performing the rite of expiation for himself and his family, •he will take the 7 two he-goats and place them before Yahweh at the entrance to the Tent of Meeting. •Aaron will then draw lots over the two goats, one lot to be for Yahweh 8 and the other lot for Azazel.[b] •Aaron will then take the goat on which the lot "For 9 Yahweh" has fallen, and offer it as a sacrifice for sin. •But the goat on which the lot 10
"For Azazel" has fallen, will be placed alive before Yahweh, for the rite of 16:22 expiation to be performed with it, and for it then to be sent to Azazel in the desert.

'Having offered the bull as a sacrifice for his own sin and performed the rite of 11 expiation for himself and for his family, and slaughtered the bull as a sacrifice for sin, •Aaron will then fill a censer with live coals from the altar before Yahweh, 12 take two handfuls of finely ground aromatic incense and bring this inside the curtain. •He will then put the incense on the fire before Yahweh, so that the cloud 13
Ex 25:17h of incense hides the mercy-seat which is on the Testimony and he does not incur
Ex 33:20c death. •He will then take some of the bull's blood and sprinkle it with his finger on 14 the eastern side of the mercy-seat. He will sprinkle some of the blood seven times with his finger in front of the mercy-seat.

'He will then slaughter the goat for the sacrifice for the sin of the people, and 15 take its blood inside the curtain, and with this blood do as he did with the blood of 16 the bull, sprinkling it on the mercy-seat and in front of it. ·This is how he must perform the rite of expiation for the sanctuary for the uncleanness of the Israelites, for their acts of rebellion and all their sins.

Ezk 45:18–20
Rm 3:25k

'And this is what he must do for the Tent of Meeting which remains with them, 17 surrounded by their uncleanness. ·No one must be inside the Tent of Meeting, from the moment he enters to make expiation in the sanctuary until the time he comes out.

Dt 4:7b
Is 6:5

'When he has made expiation for himself, for his family, and for the whole 18 community of Israel, ·he must come outside, go to the altar before Yahweh and perform the rite of expiation for it. He will take some of the bull's blood and some of the goat's blood and put it on the horns at the corners of the altar all around it, 19 ·and sprinkle some of the blood on it seven times with his finger, thus purifying it and setting it apart [c] from the uncleanness of the Israelites.

20 'Once expiation for the sanctuary, the Tent of Meeting and the altar is complete, 21 he will bring the goat which is still alive. ·Aaron will then lay both his hands on its head and over it confess all the guilt of the Israelites, all their acts of rebellion and all their sins. Having thus laid them on the goat's head, he will send it out into the 22 desert under the charge of a man waiting ready, ·and the goat will bear all their guilt away into some desolate place. [d]

Tb 8:3
Is 13:21; 34:11; 53:6,11
Lk 11:24
1 P 2:24

23 'When he has sent the goat into the desert, ·Aaron will go back into the Tent of Meeting and take off the linen vestments which he wore to enter the sanctuary and 24 leave them there. ·He will then wash his body inside the holy place, put on his vestments and come outside to offer his own and the people's burnt offering. He 25 will perform the rite of expiation for himself and for the people, ·and burn the fat of the sacrifice for sin on the altar.

26 'The man who led the goat away to Azazel will wash his clothes and body before
27 entering the camp. ·The bull and the goat offered as a sacrifice for sin, the blood of which was taken into the sanctuary for the rite of expiation, must be taken outside 28 the camp, where their skin, meat and offal are to be burnt. ·The man who burns them will wash his clothes and body before entering the camp.

Heb 13:11–12,12e

29 'This will be a perpetual law for you.

23:26–32

'On the tenth day of the seventh month you will fast and refrain from work, both 30 citizen and resident alien; ·for this is the day on which the rite of expiation will be performed for you to purify you, to purify you before Yahweh from all your sins.
31 It will be a sabbatical rest for you and you will fast. This is a perpetual law.

32 'The rite of expiation will be performed by the priest who has been anointed and installed to officiate in succession to his father. He will put on the linen vestments, 33 the sacred vestments, ·and perform the rite of expiation for the holy sanctuary, the Tent of Meeting and the altar, and will then perform the rite of expiation for the 34 priests and all the people of the community. ·This will be a perpetual law for you; once a year the rite of expiation will be made for the Israelites for all their sins.'

And as Yahweh ordered Moses, so it was done.

b. 'you will warn' hizhartem conj.; Hebr. hizzartem 'you will separate'.

16 a. This ch. concludes the list of impurities with the yearly ritual expiating them all. The editors have combined two rites of differing spirit and antiquity: an expiation sacrifice, vv. 6, 11–19, see ch. 4, and the rite of sending the he-goat to Azazel, vv. 8–10, 20–22, 26 (see following notes). The latter is of archaic type but, as with the double rite in ch. 14, has been integrated into prescriptions properly levitical. Far from being a sign of antiquity, the integration dates from a time when growing concern over ritual purity increased the possible occasions for impurity and sanctioned every kind of purificatory rite. The great festival of the Day of Expiation does not, in fact, seem to pre-date the Exile, since no ancient text alludes to it.

b. Azazel, as the Syr. version seems rightly to have understood, was the name of a demon, whom the ancient Hebrews and Canaanites believed to live in the desert, the barren region where God did not exert his life-giving activity; see v. 22, 22d, and 17:7c.

c. lit. 'sanctifying it'. see 17:1a.

d. The scapegoat was not sacrificed to Azazel but carried away the people's guilt to the demon's desolate haunts. The handing over of the animal and the rite of expiation were performed 'before Yahweh', v. 10, by the priest, v. 21; in this way an ancient popular custom was taken over, and purged of demonolatry.

IV: THE LAW OF HOLINESS [a]

Ex 20:24 Dt 12:4–28 Slaughtering and sacrifice

17 Yahweh spoke to Moses and said: 1
'Speak to Aaron and his sons and all the Israelites and say: 2
"This is the order that Yahweh has given:
"Any man of the House of Israel who slaughters a bull, lamb or goat, whether 3 inside the camp or outside it, ·without bringing it to the entrance to the Tent of 4 Meeting to make an offering of it to Yahweh in front of his Dwelling, that man will 1:5e be answerable for bloodshed; [b] he has shed blood, and that man will be outlawed from his people. ·The purpose of this is that the Israelites should instead bring 5 their sacrifices, which they would otherwise offer in the countryside, to Yahweh at the entrance to the Tent of Meeting, to the priest, and offer them as communion sacrifices to Yahweh; ·and the priest will sprinkle the blood on Yahweh's altar at 6 the entrance to the Tent of Meeting and will burn the fat as a smell pleasing to 16:8b Yahweh. ·No longer may they offer their sacrifices to the satyrs [c] in whose service 7
Is 13:9,21; 34:12–14 they used to prostitute themselves. [d] This is a perpetual law for them and for their descendants."
'You will also say to them, "Any member of the House of Israel or any resident 8 alien who offers a burnt offering or sacrifice ·without bringing it to the entrance to 9 the Tent of Meeting to offer it to Yahweh, will be outlawed from his people.
1:5e "If any member of the House of Israel or any resident alien consumes blood of 10 any kind, I shall set my face against that individual who consumes blood and shall outlaw him from his people. ·For the life of the creature is in the blood, and I have 11 ↗Heb 9:7, 21seq. given it to you for performing the rite of expiation on the altar for your lives, [e] for blood is what expiates for a life. ·That is why I told the Israelites: None of you will 12 consume blood, nor will any resident alien consume blood.
"Anyone, whether Israelite or resident alien, who hunts and catches game, 13
Dt 12:16 whether animal or bird, which it is lawful to eat, must pour out its blood and cover it with earth. ·For the life of every creature is its blood, and I have told the 14 Israelites: You will not consume the blood of any creature, for the life of every creature is its blood, and anyone who consumes it will be outlawed.
Ex 22:30 Dt 14:21 Ezk 4:14 "Anyone, citizen or alien, who eats an animal that has died a natural death or 15 been savaged, must wash clothing and body, and will be unclean until evening, but will then be clean. ·But anyone who does not wash clothing and body will bear the 16 consequences of his guilt." '

20:8–21 Sexual prohibitions [a]

18 Yahweh spoke to Moses and said: 1
'Speak to the Israelites and say: 2
Ezk 20:7–8 "I am Yahweh your God: [b] ·You must not behave as they do in Egypt where you 3 Ex 23:23–24 used to live; you must not behave as they do in Canaan where I am taking you, nor must you follow their laws. ·You must observe my customs and keep my laws, 4 following them.
Dt 4:1;5:29; 6:24;8:1 Ne 9:29 Ezk 20:11 ↗Rm 10:5 ↗Ga 3:12 "I, Yahweh, am your God: ·hence you will keep my laws and my customs. 5
Whoever complies with them will find life in them.
"I am Yahweh.
"None of you will approach a woman who is closely related to him, [c] to have 6 intercourse with her. I am Yahweh.
"You will not have intercourse with your father or your mother. She is your 7 mother—you will not have intercourse with her.
Dt 23:1;27:20 "You will not have intercourse with your father's wife; it is your father's sexual 8 prerogative.
Dt 27:22 "You will not have intercourse with your sister, whether she is your father's or 9 your mother's daughter. Whether she was born in the same house or elsewhere, you will not have intercourse with her.

10 "You will not have intercourse with your son's or your daughter's daughter; for their sexual privacy is your own.

11 "You will not have intercourse with [d] the daughter of your father's wife, born to your father. She is your sister; you will not have intercourse with her.

12 "You will not have intercourse with your father's sister; for she is your father's own flesh and blood.

13 "You will not have intercourse with your mother's sister; for she is your mother's own flesh and blood.

14 "You will not have intercourse with your father's brother; you will not approach his wife. She is your aunt.

15 "You will not have intercourse with your daughter-in-law. She is your son's wife; you will not have intercourse with her.

16 "You will not have intercourse with your brother's wife; it is your brother's sexual prerogative.

17 "You will not have intercourse with a woman and her daughter; nor will you take her son's or her daughter's daughter, to have intercourse with them. They are your own flesh and blood; [e] it would be incest. 20:14

18 "You will not take a woman and her sister into your harem at the same time, to have intercourse with the latter while the former is still alive. Gn 29:27f

19 "You will not approach and have intercourse with a woman who is in a state of menstrual pollution.

20 "Furthermore, you will not have intercourse with your fellow-citizen's wife; you would become unclean by doing so. [f] Ex 20:14

21 "You will not allow any of your children to be sacrificed to Molech, [g] thus profaning the name of your God. I am Yahweh. 20:2–5 Gn 22:1a Lv 19:12;22:32

22 "You will not have intercourse with a man as you would with a woman. This is a hateful thing. Gn 19:5b

17 a. Priestly in its present format, the basic elements of the 'law of holiness', ch. 17–26, seem to date from the end of the monarchical period and represent the usages of the Temple in Jerusalem. There are evident points of contact between it and the thought of Ezekiel, which also seems to be the product of a pre-exilic movement. Holiness is one of the essential attributes of the God of Israel, see 11:44–45; 19:2; 20:7, 26; 21:8; 22:32 seq. The original concept is one of separateness, of inaccessibility and of awe-inspiring transcendence, Ex 33:20i. This sanctity communicates itself to everything in God's vicinity and to anything consecrated to him: places, Ex 19:12e; seasons, Ex 16:23; Lv 23:4; the ark, 2 S 6:7f; people, Ex 19:3c, 6, the priests in particular, Lv 21:6; things, Ex 30:29; Nb 18:9, etc. Because holiness is thought of in relation to worship, it is connected with the idea of ritual purity: the 'law of holiness' is also a 'law of purity'. But the God of Israel makes moral demands and under this influence the primitive notion of holiness undergoes a transformation: avoidance of what was ritually impure becomes abstention from sin; ritual purity develops into purity of conscience, see Isaiah's inaugural vision, Is 6:3g. See notes to Lv 1:1 and 11:1.

b. see 1:5c. This passage retrojects the law of the unique sanctuary promulgated in Dt 12:1–12, into the desert period: sacrificial victims may be slaughtered only at the Tent of Meeting. It does not, however, envisage secular, as opposed to ritual, slaughtering, as does Dt 12:15–16. It preserves the memory of an ancient custom, 17:12; 19:26; 1 S 14:32 seq.; Ac 15:29.

c. The Hebr. word means 'goat'; here it indicates beings of animal form who were thought to haunt deserts and ruins, Is 13:21; 34:14. Azazel was thought to be one of them, 16:8b. Here and in 2 Ch. 11:15 the word is used contemptuously of false gods.

d. Classic image of religious faithlessness, see Ho 1–3, 1:2b.

e. Or 'by means of the life which is in it.' But see Dt 19:21.

18 a. After an introduction, vv. 1–5, the kernel of this ch., vv. 6–18, is a list forbidding sexual intercourse between closely related persons, thus defining the limits of the family. vv. 19–23 add various other prohibitions. vv. 24–30 form a concluding exhortation. The ch. is to some degree a literary unit. It is more akin to Dt than the rest of the 'Law of Holiness'.

b. This affirmation, whether in full or in its abridged form, 'I am Yahweh', recurs like a refrain throughout this and the following ch., giving a direction to the entire law of holiness: Yahweh is the God of Israel, whom he has brought out of Egypt, 19:36; 22:33; he is a holy God, 19:2; 20:26; 21:8, who makes his people holy, 20:8; 21:8, 15; 22:9, 32; see 20:7.

c. lit. 'of the flesh of his body'. To express relationship the Hebrews spoke of an identity of blood, flesh or even bone (Jg 9:2), an identity most perfectly achieved in the union of man and wife. For this reason the prohibitions that follow, whether concerned with blood-relationship or relationship by marriage (vv. 8, 14, 16), are all grouped under the prohibition against incest: flesh must not fertilise itself.

d. 'You will not expose' Gk; Hebr. omits.

e. lit. 'your flesh' Gk; 'his remainder' (?) Hebr.

f. Here adultery is condemned as an instance of ritual impurity.

g. lit. 'to be passed to Molech.' In Canaanite ritual, children were sacrificed by being 'made to pass' through fire, i.e. by burning; the practice was condemned by the Law, 20:2–5; Dt 12:31; 18:10. The rite found its way into Israel, notably at the burning-place in the valley of Ben-Hinnom ('Gehenna'), just outside Jerusalem, 2 K 16:3; 21:6; 23:10; Jr 7:31; 19:5 seq.; 32:35; Ezk 16:21. The origin of the word Molech is Phoenician and designated a certain type of sacrifice; Molech was divinised in Ugarit, where the name appears on a list of gods. In Israel, it was understood as a divine title and several texts mention sacrifices offered to the god Molech (i.e. melek, 'the king', vowels arranged as in boshet, 'shame').

"You will not have intercourse with any kind of animal; you would become unclean by doing so. Nor will a woman offer herself to an animal, to have intercourse with it. This would be a violation of nature. 23

"Do not make yourselves unclean by any of these practices, for it was by such things that the nations that I am driving out before you made themselves unclean. The country has become unclean; hence I am about to punish it for its guilt, and the country itself will vomit out its inhabitants. 24 25

"You, however, must keep my laws and customs and not do any of these hateful things: none of your citizens, none of your resident aliens. ·For all these hateful things were done by the people who lived in the country before you, and the country became unclean. ·If you make it unclean, will it not vomit you out as it vomited out the nations there before you? ·Yes, anyone who does any of these hateful things, whatever it may be, any person doing so, will be outlawed from his people; ·so keep my rules and do not observe any of the hateful laws which were in force before you came; then you will not be made unclean by them. I am Yahweh your God." ' 26 27 28 29 30

a: Religious offences

1 20 Yahweh spoke to Moses and said:
2 'Say to the Israelites:
"Anyone, be he Israelite or alien resident in Israel, who gives any of his children 3 to Molech, will be put to death. The people of the country must stone him, ·and I 18:21h shall set my face against that man and outlaw him from his people; for by giving a 4 child of his to Molech he has defiled my sanctuary and profaned my holy name. ·If the people of the country choose to close their eyes to the man's action when he 5 gives a child of his to Molech, and do not put him to death, ·I myself shall turn my face against that man and his clan. I shall outlaw them from their people, both him and all those after him who prostitute themselves by following Molech. 1 K 11:7

19 a. This ch. is a collection, without apparent order, of regulations concerning daily life, the only unifying feature being the repeated reference to Yahweh and his holiness. The links with the Decalogue are obvious.

b. lit. 'nothings', see 26:1; Is 2:8.

c. vv. 11–18 regulate social behaviour and are summed up in the commandment to love one's neighbour. Similar injunctions are found in all the legislative passages of the Pentateuch.

d. He cannot curse back. The Hebr. word also means 'deaf'.

e. Like God's uprightness, Ps 7:9, from which it is derived, human uprightness far exceeds the demands of civic or social good conduct. It entails complete conformity to the will of God, Gn 6:9; 7:1; Jb 12:4; Is 1:26; 3:10; 56:1; Dn 4:24; Ho 14:10. After the Exile it was to be defined as faithfulness to the Law, Ps 1:6; 119:7; Pr 11:5; 15:9; Ws 1:1. Its demands of perfection in everyday life, in relationship to God and human beings, were to grow increasingly specific and inward, a tendency carried still further by Jesus, Mt 3:15; 5:17h, 20; see also Rm 1:17j.

f. By a baseless capital charge.

g. Prohibition against magic, with its incongruous compounds.

h. Circumcision originally celebrated man's achievement of maturity, Gn 17:10d, and an uncircumcised man was unclean. The fruit of a young tree was by analogy 'uncircumcised', and therefore unclean until consecrated to God.

i. vv. 27–28 forbid mourning customs thought to be tainted with paganism, see also 21:5; Dt 14:1. Their practice is widely attested, however, Jb 1:20; Is 3:24; Jr 16:6; 41:5; 47:5; 48:37; Am 8:10, and the mention of these same customs in Ezk 7:18 shows that this prohibition notwithstanding, they persisted in use, possibly because they were considered to have a penitential and hence religious significance, see Is 22:12.

20 a. A fresh section dealing with penalties and therefore involving repetition of ordinances already recorded.

19:26.31 "If anyone has recourse to the spirits of the dead or to magicians, to prostitute 6 himself by following them, I shall set my face against him and outlaw him from his people.
11:44–45+; 17:1a "Sanctify yourselves and be holy, for I am Yahweh your God. 7

18 b: Offences against the family

"You will keep my laws and put them into practice, for it is I, Yahweh, who make 8 you holy. ·Hence: 9
"Anyone who curses father or mother will be put to death. Having cursed father or mother, the blood will be on that person's own head.
"The man who commits adultery with his neighbour's wife [b] will be put to death, 10
he and the woman.
"The man who has intercourse with his father's wife has infringed his father's 11 sexual prerogative. Both of them will be put to death; their blood will be on their own heads.
"The man who has intercourse with his daughter-in-law: both of them will be 12 put to death; they have violated nature, their blood will be on their own heads.
"The man who has intercourse with a man in the same way as with a woman: 13 they have done a hateful thing together; they will be put to death; their blood will be on their own heads.
18:17 "The man who marries a woman and her mother: this is incest. They will be 14 burnt alive, he and they; you will not tolerate incest.
"The man who has intercourse with an animal will be put to death; you will kill 15 the animal too.
"The woman who approaches any animal to have intercourse with it: you will 16 kill the woman and the animal. They will be put to death; their blood will be on their own heads.
"The man who marries his father's or his mother's daughter: if they have 17 intercourse together, this is an outrage. They will be executed in public, [c] for the man has had intercourse with his sister; he will bear [d] the consequences of his guilt.
"The man who has intercourse with a woman during her monthly periods and 18 exposes her nakedness: he has laid bare the source of her blood, and she has exposed the source of her blood, and both of them will be outlawed from their people.
"You will not have intercourse with your mother's sister or your father's sister. 19
Whoever does so, has had intercourse with a close relation; they will bear the consequences of their guilt.
"The man who has intercourse with the wife of his paternal uncle has infringed 20 his uncle's sexual prerogative; they will bear the consequences of their guilt and die childless.
↗Mt 14:4par. "The man who marries his brother's wife: this is pollution; he has infringed his 21 brother's sexual prerogative; they will die childless.

Concluding exhortation [e]

"You will keep all my laws, all my decisions, and put them into practice, so that the 22 country where I am taking you to live will not vomit you out. ·You will not follow 23 the laws of the nations whom I am driving out before you; they practised all these things, which is why I detested them. ·As I have already told you, you will take 24 possession of their soil, I myself shall give you possession of it, a country flowing with milk and honey.
"Since I, Yahweh your God, have set you apart from these peoples, ·you for 25 your part will make a distinction between clean animals and unclean ones and 11 between unclean birds and clean ones, and will not make yourselves detestable with any animal or bird or reptile, which I have set apart from you as unclean.
11:44–45+; 17:1a "Be consecrated to me, for I, Yahweh, am holy, and I shall set you apart from 26 all these peoples, for you to be mine.

27 "Any man or woman of yours who is a necromancer or magician will be put to death; they will be stoned to death; their blood will be on their own heads." ' 19:26,31;20:6

The holiness of the priesthood

a: The priests

1 21 Yahweh said to Moses:
'Speak to the priests descended from Aaron and say:
"None of them must make himself unclean by touching the corpse [a] of one of his 2 people, ·unless it be of one of his closest relations—father, mother, son, daughter, 3 brother, ·or virgin sister, since she being unmarried is still his close relation: [b] he 4 can make himself unclean for her; ·but for a close female relation who is married Ezk 44:25–27
he will not make himself unclean; he would profane himself. [c]
5 "They will not make tonsures on their heads, shave the edges of their beards, or 19:27–28 6 gash their bodies. ·They will be consecrated to their God and will not profane the name of their God. For their function is to offer the food burnt for Yahweh, the 1:9g food of their God, and so they must be holy.
7 "They will not marry a woman profaned by prostitution, or one divorced by her Ezk 44:22 husband, for the priest is consecrated to his God. [d] 8 "You will treat him as holy, for he offers the food of your God. For you, he will be a holy person, for I, Yahweh, who sanctify you am holy. 11:44–45+; 17:1a 9 "If a priest's daughter profanes herself by prostitution, she profanes her father and will be burnt alive.

b: The high priest

10 "The priest who is pre-eminent over his brothers, on whose head the anointing oil 8:7–12 has been poured, and who, robed in the sacred vestments, has received investiture, 11 will not disorder his hair or tear his clothes; ·he will not go near any corpse or 12 make himself unclean even for his father or mother. ·He will not leave the holy place in such a way as to profane the sanctuary of his God; for he bears the consecration of the anointing oil of his God. I am Yahweh.
13, 14 "He will marry a woman who is still a virgin. ·He will not marry a woman who has been widowed or divorced or profaned by prostitution, but will marry a virgin 15 from his own people: ·he must not make his own children profane, for I, Yahweh, have sanctified him." ' [e]

c: Impediments to the priesthood

16 Yahweh spoke to Moses and said:
17 'Speak to Aaron and say:
"None of your descendants, for all time, may come forward to offer the food of 18 his God if he has any infirmity, [f] ·for none may come forward if he has an infirmity, 19, 20 be he blind or lame, disfigured or deformed, ·or with an injured foot or arm, ·a hunchback, someone with rickets or ophthalmia or the scab or running sores, or a 21 eunuch. ·No descendant of the priest Aaron may come forward to offer the food burnt for Yahweh if he has any infirmity; if he has an infirmity, he will not come forward to offer the food of his God.

b. The first nine words are repeated in Hebr.: dittography.

c. The only case for which punishment is to be in public.

d. Gk and Sam. read the plural.

e. Similar phraseology as in the points mentioned in 18:24–30. v. 27 is a later addition.

21 a. Contact with the dead produces uncleanness, Nb 6:9; 19:11–13; 31:19, 24; see Hg 2:13. The same rule is given for priests in Ezk 44:25–27; it is more severe for the high priest, here at v. 11.

b. Marriage, by which woman becomes the 'flesh' of her husband, Gn 2:23, loosens ties of blood.

c. Meaning disputed. The text is probably corrupt. At the beginning, for ba'al 'husband', we read libe'ulat ba'al 'for a woman with a husband', contrasting with previous v.

d. Widows are not excluded, as they are in Ezk 44:22, which makes exception for the widow of a priest only, and is the same as for the high priest here, v. 14.

e. By becoming 'one flesh' with a woman who did not belong to the appropriate tribe, the high priest would profane the sanctuary and transmit profane blood to his descendants.

f. Because the priest was to approach God and share God's sanctity in a special way, a physical defect in him would be an affront to God who created the physical world without blemish.

"He may eat the food of his God, things especially holy and things holy, ·but he 22. 23 will not go near the curtain or approach the altar, since he has an infirmity and must not profane my holy things; for I, Yahweh, have sanctified them." '
And Moses promulgated this to Aaron, to his sons, and to all the Israelites. 24

Holiness in consuming sacred food

a: The priests

22 Yahweh spoke to Moses and said: 1
'Speak to Aaron and his sons. They must be consecrated[a] by the holy 2 offerings of the Israelites and must not profane my holy name; for my sake they must sanctify it; I am Yahweh. ·Say to them: 3
"Any one of your descendants, for all time, who in a state of uncleanness approaches the holy offerings consecrated to Yahweh by the Israelites, will be outlawed from my presence. I am Yahweh.
"Anyone of Aaron's line who is afflicted with a contagious skin-disease or a 4 discharge will not eat holy things until he is clean. Anyone who touches anything 13;15 made unclean by a dead body, or who has a seminal discharge, ·or who is made 5 unclean by touching any kind of reptile or any one who has contaminated him with his own uncleanness, be it what it may, ·in short, anyone who has had any such 6 contact will be unclean until evening, and must not eat holy things until he has washed his body. ·At sunset he will be clean and may then eat holy things, for these 7 are his food.
"He must not eat an animal that has died a natural death or been savaged; he 8 17:15 Ezk 4:14 would contract uncleanness from it. I am Yahweh.
"They must keep my rules and not burden themselves with sin. If they profane 9 them, they will incur death; I, Yahweh, have sanctified them.

b: Lay people[b]

"No lay person may eat anything holy; no guest or employee of a priest may eat 10 anything holy. ·But if the priest has acquired a slave by purchase, the slave may eat 11 it like anyone born in his household; they will share his food.
"If a priest's daughter marries a layman, she will have no share in the holy things 12 set aside, ·but if she is widowed or divorced and, being childless, has had to return 13 to her father's house as when she was young, she may share her father's food. No lay person may share it; · anyone who does eat a holy thing by inadvertence, will 14 restore it to the priest with one-fifth added.
5:14–16 "They may not profane the holy offerings which the Israelites have set aside for 15
Yahweh. ·By eating these, they would burden them with guilt requiring a sacrifice 16 of reparation; for I, Yahweh, have sanctified these offerings." '

c: Sacrificial animals

Yahweh spoke to Moses and said: 17
'Speak to Aaron, to his sons, and to all the Israelites and say: 18
"Any member of the House of Israel or any alien resident in Israel who brings an offering either in payment of a vow or as a voluntary gift, and offers it as a burnt 1:1b offering to Yahweh,[c] ·must, if he is to be acceptable, offer an unblemished male, 19 be it bull or sheep or goat. ·You will not offer anything with a blemish, for it would 20 not make you acceptable.
3:1a;7:11a "If anyone offers Yahweh a communion sacrifice, either to fulfil a vow or as a 21 1:3;3:1 voluntary offering, the animal, be it from the herd or flock, must be perfect, if he is to be acceptable; it must be unblemished. ·You will not offer Yahweh any animal 22 21:18–21 Ml 1:8 which is blind, lame, mutilated, ulcerous, scabby or covered in sores. No part of such an animal will be offered on the altar as food burnt for Yahweh. ·As a 23 voluntary offering, you may offer a bull or a lamb that is underdeveloped or deformed; but such will not be acceptable in payment of a vow. ·You will not offer 24

Yahweh an animal if its testicles have been bruised, crushed, torn or cut off. You 25 may not do that in your country, ·and you may not accept any such from the hands of a stranger, to be offered as food for your God. Their deformity is a blemish, and they would not make you acceptable." '
26 Yahweh spoke to Moses and said:
27 'A calf, lamb, or kid will stay with its dam for seven days after being born. From 28 the eighth day onwards, it will be acceptable as food burnt for Yahweh. ·But no animal, whether cow or ewe, will be slaughtered on the same day as its young. Ex 23:19 29, 30 'If you offer Yahweh a sacrifice with praise, do it in the acceptable manner; ·it 7:11a must be eaten the same day; you will leave nothing over till next morning. I am Yahweh.

d: Concluding exhortation 18:3–5

31, 32 'You will keep my commands and put them into practice. I am Yahweh. ·You will not profane my holy name—so that I may be honoured as holy among the Israelites, 11:44–45+; 17:1a 33 I, Yahweh, who make you holy, ·I who brought you out of Egypt, to be your God, 11:45;25:38,55; 26:13,45
I, Yahweh.'

The ritual for the annual feasts [a] Ex 23:14d

1 23 Yahweh spoke to Moses and said:
2 'Speak to the Israelites and say:
(The solemn festivals of Yahweh to which you will summon them are my sacred assemblies.)
"These are my solemn festivals:

a: The Sabbath Ex 20:8d

3 "You will work for six days, but the seventh will be a day of complete rest, a day for the sacred assembly on which you do no work at all. Wherever you live, this is a Sabbath for Yahweh.
4 "These are Yahweh's solemn festivals, the sacred assemblies to which you will summon the Israelites on the appointed day:

b: The Passover and the feast of Unleavened Bread [b] Ex 12:1a; 23:14d

5 "The fourteenth day of the first month, at twilight, is the Passover of Yahweh;
6 and the fifteenth day of the same month is the feast of Unleavened Bread for 7 Yahweh. For seven days you will eat unleavened bread. ·On the first day you will 8 hold a sacred assembly; you will do no heavy work. ·For seven days you will offer food burnt for Yahweh. On the seventh day there will be a sacred assembly; you will do no heavy work." '

c: The first sheaf [c] Dt 26:1a

9 Yahweh spoke to Moses and said:
10 'Speak to the Israelites and say:
"When you enter the country which I am giving you and reap the harvest there, 11 you will bring the priest the first sheaf of your harvest, ·and he will present it to 22 a. God's acceptance sanctifies the offerings which, in turn, sanctify those who eat them, who must be in a state of ritual purity.

b. The laity, that is, as distinguished from members of the priest's family which, according to ancient notions, also included his slaves.

c. According to the Law of Holiness, burnt offerings as well as communion sacrifices might be offered either in fulfilment of a vow or as voluntary offerings, see 7:11a.

23 a. The moral (ch. 18–20) and ritual (ch. 21–22) prerequisites for sacrifice are now (ch. 23) followed by a description of the liturgical cycle. On the various feasts see Ex 12:1a and Ex 23:14d.

b. The two festivals are linked together, occurring on consecutive dates, specified as in Nb 28:16–25. At first sight, they seem to be more closely linked in Dt 16:1–8, but the text is composite.

c. Between the feast of Unleavened Bread and the feast of Weeks, the Law of Holiness introduces an offering of the first sheaf (of the barley harvest) at the appropriate place in the agricultural cycle; this is a new formulation of the ancient offering of the first-fruits, Ex 23:19; 34:26.

Ex 29:24g Yahweh with the gesture of offering, for you to be acceptable. The priest will make this offering on the day after the Sabbath, 12 and on the same day as you make this offering, you will offer Yahweh an unblemished lamb one year old as a burnt
Nb 15:4 offering. 13 The cereal offering for that day will be two-tenths of wheaten flour mixed with oil, as food burnt as a smell pleasing to Yahweh. The libation will be a quarter
2:14 of a hin of wine. 14 You will eat no bread, roasted ears of wheat or fresh produce before this day, before making the offering to your God. This is a perpetual law for all your descendants, wherever you live.

Ex 23:14d d: The feast of Weeks

15 "From the day after the Sabbath, the day on which you bring the sheaf of offering, you will count seven full weeks. 16 You will count fifty days, to the day after the seventh Sabbath, and then you will offer Yahweh a new cereal offering. 17 You will bring bread from your homes to present with the gesture of offering—two loaves, made of two-tenths of wheaten flour baked with leaven; these are first-fruits for Yahweh. 18 In addition to the bread, you will offer seven unblemished lambs a year old, a young bull and two rams, as a burnt offering to Yahweh with a cereal offering and a libation, as food burnt as a smell pleasing to Yahweh. 19 You will also offer a goat as a sacrifice for sin, and two lambs a year old as communion sacrifice. 20 The priest will present them before Yahweh with the gesture of offering, in addition to the bread of the first-fruits. These, and the two lambs, are holy things for Yahweh, and will revert to the priest.

21 "On the same day, you will hold an assembly; for you this will be a sacred assembly; you will do no heavy work. This is a perpetual law for your descendants, wherever you live.

19:9–10 22 "When you reap the harvest in your country, you will not reap to the very edges of your field, nor will you gather the gleanings of the harvest. You will leave them Ex 12:48*o* Rt 2:2,2a for the poor and the stranger. I am Yahweh your God." '

Nb 29:1–6 e: The first day of the seventh month

23 Yahweh spoke to Moses and said:

24 'Speak to the Israelites and say:

Nb 10:10 "The first day of the seventh month[d] will be a day of rest for you, of remembrance and acclamation, a sacred assembly. 25 You will do no heavy work and you will offer food burnt for Yahweh." '

16;16:1a Nb 29:7–11 f: The Day of Expiation

26 Yahweh spoke to Moses and said:

27 'But the tenth day of this seventh month will be the Day of Expiation. You will hold a sacred assembly. You will fast and offer food burnt for Yahweh. 28 You will do no work that day, for it is the Day of Expiation, on which the rite of expiation will be performed for you before Yahweh your God. 29 Anyone who fails to fast that day will be outlawed from his people; 30 anyone who works that day I shall eliminate from his people. 31 No work will be done—this is a perpetual law for your descendants wherever you live. 32 It must be a day of complete rest for you. You will fast; on the evening of the ninth day of the month, from this evening till the following evening, you will rest completely.'

Ex 23:14d g: The feast of Shelters

33 Yahweh spoke to Moses and said:

34 'Speak to the Israelites and say:

"On the fifteenth day of this seventh month there will be the feast of Shelters for Yahweh, lasting for seven days. 35 The first day will be a day of sacred assembly; you will do no heavy work. 36 For seven days you will offer food burnt for Yahweh. On the eighth day you will hold a sacred assembly and you will offer food burnt for Yahweh. It is a day of solemn meeting; you will do no heavy work.

Conclusion

37 "These are Yahweh's solemn festivals to which you will summon the Israelites, the sacred assemblies for the purpose of offering food burnt for Yahweh, consisting of burnt offerings, cereal offerings, sacrifices and libations, each on its appropriate 38 day, ·besides Yahweh's Sabbaths, and your presents and all your votive and voluntary gifts that you make to Yahweh.

Recapitulation on the feast of Shelters [c]

39 "But on the fifteenth day of the seventh month, when you have gathered in the produce of the land, you will celebrate the feast of Yahweh for seven days. The 40 first and eighth days will be days of rest. ·On the first day you will take choice fruit, palm branches, boughs of leafy trees and flowering shrubs from the river bank, and 41 for seven days enjoy yourselves before Yahweh your God. ·You will celebrate a feast for Yahweh in this way for seven days every year. This is a perpetual law for your descendants.
42 "You will keep this feast in the seventh month. ·For seven days you will live in 43 shelters: all the citizens of Israel will live in shelters, ·so that your descendants may know that I made the Israelites live in shelters when I brought them out of Egypt, I, Yahweh your God." '
44 Moses then promulgated Yahweh's solemn festivals to the Israelites.

Complementary ritual prescriptions [a]

a: The perpetual flame

1 24 Yahweh spoke to Moses and said:
2 'Order the Israelites to bring you crushed-olive oil for the lamp-stand, and 6:5–6 3 keep a flame burning there continually. ·Aaron will keep it permanently in trim Ex 25:31–40; 27:20seq.
from evening to morning, outside the curtain of the Testimony in the Tent of 4 Meeting, before Yahweh. This is a perpetual decree for your descendants: ·Aaron will keep the lamps permanently trimmed on the pure [b] lamp-stand before Yahweh.

b: The loaves of permanent offering on the golden table Ex 25:23j

5 'You will take wheaten flour and with it bake twelve loaves, each of two-tenths of 6 an ephah. ·You will then place them in two rows of six on the pure table before 7 Yahweh ·and put pure incense on each row, to make it food offered as a memorial,
8 food burnt for Yahweh. ·Every Sabbath they will be arranged before Yahweh. The 9 Israelites will provide them as a permanent covenant. ·They will belong to Aaron and his sons, who will eat them inside the holy place since, for him, they are an especially holy part of the food burnt for Yahweh. This is a permanent law.'

A case of blasphemy. The law of retaliation

10 There was a man whose mother was an Israelite woman and whose father was an Egyptian. He came out of his house and, in the camp, surrounded by the Israelites, 11 he began to quarrel with a man who was an Israelite. ·Now the son of the Israelite woman blasphemed the Name and cursed it. He was then taken to Moses (his Ex 22:27

d. The first day of each (lunar) month was long kept as a feast by both Israelites and Canaanites (the New Moon, or Neomenia), 1 S 20:5, 24; Is 1:13; Am 8:5, and was still observed into NT times, see Nb 28:11–15; Ne 10:34; Ezk 46:6–7; Col 2:16. The rituals of Lv 23 and Nb 29:1–6 retain only the New Moon of the seventh month (i.e. of the year beginning in spring) which for a long time was the first month (of a year that began in autumn).

e. This passage is a post-exilic addition emphasising the joyful character of the feast, in the manner of Dt 16:13–16, linking it to memories of the journey through the desert, v. 43.

24 a. Apart from vv. 15–22, which belong to the Law of Holiness, ch. 24 is the product of later Priestly editing, laying down daily (vv. 2–4) or weekly (vv. 5–9) usages for the Temple in Jerusalem by reference to texts from the same editing in Ex 25. A story, vv. 10–14 and 25, in the style of 10:1–5; 16:20; Nb 15:22-36, forms a frame for what the Law of Holiness taught on the subjects of blasphemy and retaliation.

b. 'pure', i.e. ritually; or perhaps 'of pure gold'; same alternative for the 'table' of v. 6.

mother's name was Shelomith daughter of Dibri, of the tribe of Dan). ·He was 12 then put under guard until Yahweh's will should be made clear to them.
Yahweh spoke to Moses and said: 13
'Take the man who pronounced the curse outside the camp. All those who heard 14 him must then lay their hands on his head, and the whole community must then stone him. [c] ·Then say to the Israelites: 15
"Anyone who curses his God will bear the consequences of his sin, ·and anyone 16 who blasphemes the name of Yahweh will be put to death; the whole community will stone him; be he alien or native-born, if he blasphemes the Name, [d] he will be put to death.
Ex 21:12-20 "Anyone who strikes down any other human being, [e] will be put to death. 17
"Anyone who strikes down an animal will make restitution for it: a life for a life. 18
"Anyone who injures a neighbour shall receive the same in return, ·broken limb 19, 20 Ex 21:24seq., 24f for broken limb, eye for eye, tooth for tooth. As the injury inflicted, so will be the injury suffered. ·Whoever strikes down an animal will make restitution for it, and 21 whoever strikes down a human being will be put to death. ·The sentence you pass 22 will be the same, whether on native-born or on alien; for I am Yahweh your God." '
Moses having told the Israelites this, they took the man who had pronounced 23 the curse out of the camp and stoned him. And so the Israelites carried out Yahweh's order to Moses.

The holy years [a]

Ex 23:10-11 Dt 15:1-11 a: The sabbatical year

25 Yahweh spoke to Moses on Mount Sinai and said: 1
'Speak to the Israelites and say to them: 2
"When you enter the country which I am giving you, the land must keep a Sabbath's rest for Yahweh. ·For six years you will sow your field, for six years you 3 will prune your vineyard and gather its produce. ·But in the seventh year the land 4 will have a sabbatical rest, a Sabbath for Yahweh. You will neither sow your field, nor prune your vineyard, ·nor reap any grain which has grown of its own accord, 5 nor gather the grapes from your untrimmed vine. It will be a year of rest for the land. ·But what the land produces in its Sabbath will serve to feed you, your slave, 6 male or female, your employee and your guest residing with you; ·for your cattle 7 too, and the wild animals of your country, whatever it produces will serve as food.

b: The year of jubilee

"You will count seven weeks of years—seven times seven years, that is to say a 8 period of seven weeks of years, forty-nine years. ·And on the tenth day of the 9 seventh month you will sound the trumpet-call; on the Day of Expiation you will sound the trumpet throughout the land. ·You will declare this fiftieth year to be 10 Ex 21:2-11 Dt 15:12-18 Is 61:1-3 Jr 34:8-22 sacred and proclaim the liberation of all the country's inhabitants. You will keep this as a jubilee: each of you will return to his ancestral property, each to his own clan. ·This fiftieth year will be a jubilee year for you; in it you will not sow, you will 11 not harvest the grain that has come up on its own or in it gather grapes from your untrimmed vine. ·The jubilee will be a holy thing for you; during it you will eat 12 whatever the fields produce.
"In this year of jubilee, each of you will return to his ancestral property. ·If you 13, 14 buy land from, or sell land to, your fellow-countryman, neither of you may exploit the other. [b] ·In buying from your fellow-countryman, you will take account of the 15 number of years since the jubilee; the sale-price he fixes for you will depend on the number of productive years still to run. ·The greater the number of years, the 16 higher the price you will ask for it; the fewer the number of years, the greater the reduction; for what he is selling you is a certain number of harvests. ·So you will 17 not exploit one another, but fear your God, for I am Yahweh your God.

Divine guarantee for the sabbatical year

18 "Hence, you will put my laws and customs into practice; you will keep them and 19 put them into practice, and you will live securely in the country. ·The land will give its fruit, and you will eat your fill and live in security.
20 "In case you should ask: What shall we eat in this seventh year if we do not sow 21 or harvest our produce? ·I shall order my blessing to be on you in the sixth year, 22 which will yield you enough produce for three years.[c] ·You will have the old produce to eat while you are sowing in the eighth year, and even in the ninth year, you will be eating the old produce, while waiting for the harvest of that year.

Redemption of land[d]

23 "Land will not be sold absolutely, for the land belongs to me, and you are only 24 strangers and guests of mine. ·You will allow a right of redemption over all 25 ancestral property. ·If your brother becomes impoverished and sells off part of his ancestral property, his nearest male relative will come and exercise his family rights 26 over what his brother has sold. ·The man who has no one to exercise this right 27 may, once he has found the means to effect the redemption, ·calculate the number of years that the alienation would have lasted, repay to the purchaser the sum due 28 for the time still to run, and so recover his ancestral property. ·If he cannot find the sum in compensation, the property sold will remain in the possession of the purchaser until the jubilee year. In the jubilee year, the latter will vacate it and return to his own ancestral property.

1 Ch 29:15
Ps 24:1;39:12; 119:19
Jr 35:7
Rt 4:1–12
Jr 32:6–9

29 "If anyone sells a dwelling house inside a walled town, he will have the right of redemption until the expiry of the year following the sale. His right of redemption 30 is limited to the year; ·and if the redemption has not been effected by the end of the year, the house in the walled town will become the property of the purchaser 31 and his descendants in perpetuity; he need not vacate it at the jubilee.[e] ·But houses in villages not enclosed by walls will be considered as situated in the open country; they carry the right of redemption, and the purchaser will vacate them at the jubilee.
32 "As regards the towns of the Levites, town houses forming part of their ancestral 33 property will carry a perpetual right of redemption in their favour.[f] ·If a Levite is the one to be affected by the right of redemption, at the jubilee he will vacate the purchased property and return to his own home, to the town in which he has a title to property.[g] The houses in the Levites' towns represent their ancestral property ancestral property for ever.

c. The community, defiled by the curse, will be cleansed by the stoning of the guilty man; hands are imposed on him as on the sacrificial animal which is the community's substitute, 16:21.

d. 'the Name' Sam.; 'a name' Hebr.; 'the name of Yahweh' Gk.

e. Fatally, see Ex 21:12. These vv. reproduce the earlier injunctions of the Book of the Covenant but explicitly associate resident aliens with Israelites, vv. 16[b], 20[b]–22.

25 a. These laws assert God's absolute ownership of the Holy Land: even the soil will observe the Sabbath, see Ex 20:8f. The sabbatical year has already been mentioned in the Book of the Covenant, Ex 23:10–11; here the legislation is further defined, vv. 1–7. Its observance is attested after the Exile in Ne 10:32 and 1 M 6:49–53. To this legislation Dt 15:1–11 adds the cancellation of debts. There was also a liberation of Hebrew slaves in the seventh year of their service but not necessarily in a sabbatical year, Ex 21:2; Dt 15:12–18; in fact, however, it rarely took place, see Jr 34:8–16. To make it less burdensome, this liberation was enforced in jubilee years (vv. 8–17) which occurred every fifty years and were so called because announced by a trumpet, yobel (see also the allusion to the year of Liberation in Is 61:1–2). During this year the fields lay fallow and there was also a general enfranchisement of people and goods: everyone rejoined his own clan and everyone recovered his ancestral property, v. 10. These arrangements made for stability in a society based on the family and on family property. But in fact this was only a late attempt to make the sabbatical law more effective, and it does not seem that this particular law was ever observed.

b. This law ensures fair dealing in business; it also attacks the land monopolies denounced in Is 5:8 and Mi 2:2.

c. Three years, i.e. the sabbatical year, the jubilee year and also (since there was no autumn sowing in jubilee year) the following year.

d. This passage is an attempt to combine the jubilee law with the ancient institution of the go'el, the 'nearest male relative' of v. 25, see Nb 35:19c.

e. The jubilee law applied to town property only to a limited degree.

f. The sacred character of the Levitical towns was thus assured: only Levites could acquire permanent rights in them.

g. Text emended, Hebr. unintelligible. The case in question seems to be that of a Levite purchasing from another Levite, in which case the sale is regarded as valid. Alternatively, it may be a question of what happens when a Levite does not exercise the right of redemption.

h. This is an attempt to harmonise the jubilee law with the ancient law in the Book of the Covenant on the emancipation of slaves after six years' service, Ex 21:2–6. The new law is utopian: a slave bought at the beginning of a jubilee period was more than likely to die before being emancipated and in any case was too old to work as a free man; he was, however, to be given a less exacting status than that of slave, see vv. 45–46.

i. Between Israelite and foreigner the common slave law of antiquity was to hold; between Israelite and Israelite, beneficiaries of the divine covenant, another law was to obtain. The NT brings all nations into the covenant.

26 a. Like the Deuteronomic code, Dt 28, the Law of Holiness ends with blessings and curses. But the differences in vocabulary and content show that there is no literary relationship between the two texts. Ancient Middle Eastern treaties of alliance ('covenants') also ended with conditional blessings and imprecations.

b. lit. 'I shall break your staff of bread'. On this figure of speech for famine, see Ps 105:16.

c. Text has 'sanctuaries', a Phoenician plural for premises of importance; numerous MSS have singular.

22:33 Such were the decrees, customs and laws which Yahweh established between 46 himself and the Israelites on Mount Sinai through Moses.

APPENDIX

Tariffs and Valuations[a]

a: Persons

27 Yahweh spoke to Moses and said: 1
'Speak to the Israelites and say: 2

"If anyone vows the value of a person[b] to Yahweh and wishes to discharge the vow:

"a man between twenty and sixty years of age will be valued at fifty silver 3 shekels—the sanctuary shekel; 4 a woman will be valued at thirty shekels;

"between five and twenty years, a boy will be valued at twenty shekels, a girl at 5
ten shekels;

"between one month and five years, a boy will be valued at five silver shekels, a 6 girl at three silver shekels;

"at sixty years and over, a man will be valued at fifteen shekels and a woman at 7
ten shekels.

5:7,11 "If the person who made the vow cannot meet this valuation, he will present the 8 person concerned to the priest, and the priest will set a value proportionate to the resources of the person who made the vow.

b: Animals

"In the case of an animal suitable for offering to Yahweh, any such animal given to 9 Yahweh will be holy. 10 It cannot be exchanged or replaced, a good one instead of a bad one, or a bad one instead of a good one. If one animal is substituted for another, both of them will become holy. 11 In the case of an unclean animal unsuitable for offering to Yahweh, whatever it may be, it will be presented to the priest and he will set a value on it, in relation to its worth. His valuation will be decisive; 12 but if the person wishes to redeem it, he will add one-fifth to the valuation. 13 c: Houses

14 "If a man consecrates his house to Yahweh, the priest will set a value on it, in 15 relation to its worth. His valuation will be decisive. ·If the man who has vowed his house wishes to redeem it, he will add one-fifth to the valuation, and it will revert to him.

d: Fields

16 "If a man consecrates one of the fields of his ancestral property to Yahweh, its value will be calculated in terms of its yield,[c] at the rate of fifty silver shekels to one homer of barley.
17 "If he consecrates the field during the jubilee year, he will abide by this valua-
18 tion. ·But if he consecrates it after the jubilee, the priest will calculate the price in terms of the number of years still to run until the next jubilee and the valuation will be reduced accordingly.
19 "If he wishes to redeem the field, he will add one-fifth to the valuation, and the 20 field will revert to him. ·If he does not redeem it but sells it to someone else, the 21 right of redemption ceases; ·when the purchaser has to vacate it at the jubilee year,[d] it becomes consecrated to Yahweh, like a field vowed unconditionally; 27:28e ownership of it passes to the priest.
22 "If he consecrates to Yahweh a field which he has bought, but which is not 23 part of his ancestral property, ·the priest will calculate the valuation in terms of the number of years still to run before the jubilee year; and the man will pay this 24 sum the same day since it is consecrated to Yahweh. ·In the jubilee year the field will revert to the vendor, the man to whose ancestral property the land belongs.
25 All your valuations will be made in sanctuary shekels, at the rate of twenty gerah to the shekel. Ex 30:15c

Particular rules for the redemption

a: of the first-born

26 "The first-born of livestock is born to Yahweh; no one may consecrate it, whether Ex 13:11b
27 it be cattle or sheep, for it belongs to Yahweh anyway. ·But if it is an unclean animal, it may be redeemed at the valuation price with one-fifth added; if the animal is not redeemed, it will be sold at the valuation price.

b: of things vowed unconditionally[e]

28 "Nothing, however, that someone vows unconditionally to Yahweh may be redeemed, nothing he possesses, be it a human being or animal or field of his ancestral property. What is vowed unconditionally is especially holy and belongs 29 to Yahweh. ·A human being vowed unconditionally cannot be redeemed but will be put to death.

c: of tithes Dt 14:22d

30 "All tithes on land, levied on the produce of the soil or on the fruit of trees, belong
31 to Yahweh; they are consecrated to Yahweh. ·If anyone wishes to redeem part of his tithe, he will add one-fifth to its value.
32 "In all tithes on herds or flocks, the tenth animal of all that pass under the

d. Or 'because of them'.

27 a. This ch. is an addition. It lists rules for the discharge of vows, 7:16; 22:21; Nb 30:3–16; Dt 12:6–12; 23:19, 22–24. These regulations belonged to the post-exilic Temple and probably existed separately until attached to the legislation given on Sinai, vv. 1–2[a] and 34. Originally, a vow imposed a serious obligation, but this later became relaxed and it was ultimately conceded that it might be commuted by a money-payment, except in the case of things vowed unconditionally, vv. 28–29.

b. Persons might be vowed, see Jg 11:30–40; 13:3 seq.; 1 S 1:11.

c. Alternative translation 'in proportion to the seed (used) for it'.

d. The matter here and at v. 23 is dependent on ch. 25.

e. The Hebr. technical term, herem, see also v. 21 above, is borrowed from the vocabulary of the Holy War (Jos 6:17c) and here transferred to whatever is unconditionally vowed to God. According to v. 21; Nb 18:14; Ezk 44:29, the usufruct reverted to the priest. The word herem is also used of things forbidden by God, Dt 7:26.

herdsman's staff will be consecrated to Yahweh; ·there will be no examining 33 Ml 1:8 whether it is good or bad, and no substitution. If substitution takes place, the animal and its substitute will both become holy without possibility of redemption." '

26:46 Such were the orders which Yahweh gave Moses on Mount Sinai for the 34 Israelites.

NUMBERS

I: THE CENSUS [a]

26
2 S 24

1 Yahweh spoke to Moses, in the desert of Sinai, in the Tent of Meeting, on the first day of the second month, [b] in the second year after the exodus from Egypt, and said:

2 'Take a census of the whole community of Israelites by clans and families, taking 3 a count of the names of all the males, head by head. ·You and Aaron will register all those in Israel, twenty years of age and over, fit to bear arms, company by 4 company; ·you will have one man from each tribe, the head of his family, to help you.

The census officials

10:13–28

5 'These are the names of those who must help you:
For Reuben, Elizur son of Shedeur. 2:10;7:30; 10:18
6 For Simeon, Shelumiel son of Zurishaddai.
7 For Judah, Nahshon son of Amminadab. 2:3 Rt 4:20 Mt 1:4 Lk 3:32–33
8 For Issachar, Nethanel son of Zuar.
9 For Zebulun, Eliab son of Helon.
10 Of the sons of Joseph: for Ephraim, Elishama son of Ammihud; for Manasseh, Gamaliel son of Pedahzur.
11 For Benjamin, Abidan son of Gideoni.
12 For Dan, Ahiezer son of Ammishaddai.
13 For Asher, Pagiel son of Ochran.
14 For Gad, Eliasaph son of Reuel. 2:14;7:42
15 For Naphtali, Ahira son of Enan.'
16 These were men of repute in the community; they were the leaders of their ancestral tribes, the heads of Israel's thousands. [c] Ex 18:21,25
17, 18 Moses and Aaron took these men who had been named ·and on the first day of the second month they mustered the whole community. The Israelites established their pedigrees [d] by clans and families, and one by one the names of all men of 19 twenty years and over were recorded. ·As Yahweh had ordered, Moses registered them in the desert of Sinai.

The census

Rv 7:4–8

20 Once the pedigrees of the descendants of Reuben, Israel's first-born, had been established by clans and families, the names of all the males of twenty years and 21 over, fit to bear arms, were recorded one by one. ·The total of these for the tribe of Reuben was forty-six thousand five hundred.

1 a. This section (ch. 1–4), attributed to the Priestly tradition, presents Israel as a sacred community already fully formed and organised. The Levites are at the very heart of it: this appears from the place assigned to them in the camp, the nature of their functions and even from their numbers (interpreted in terms of the redemption of the first-born). The taking of a census was itself regarded as an act of religious significance, see 2 S 24. The MSS and versions do not always agree on the figures.

b. Hence one month after the erection of the Dwelling, Ex 40:17.

c. 'Thousand' is an ancient term equivalent to 'clan', 1 S 10:19, 21, seen from the military point of view.

d. A necessity under the old covenant because membership depended on physical descent from Abraham; hence the genealogies of 1 Ch 1–9; see also Ne 7:5, 61.

Once the pedigrees of Simeon's descendants had been established by clans and families, the names of all the males of twenty years and over, fit to bear arms, were recorded one by one. ·The total of these for the tribe of Simeon was fifty-nine thousand three hundred. 22 23

Once the pedigrees of Gad's descendants had been established by clans and families, the names of all the males of twenty years and over, fit to bear arms, were recorded one by one. ·The total of these for the tribe of Gad was forty-five thousand six hundred and fifty. 24 25

Once the pedigrees of Judah's descendants had been established by clans and families, the names of all the males of twenty years and over, fit to bear arms, were recorded one by one. ·The total of these for the tribe of Judah was seventy-four thousand six hundred. 26 27

Once the pedigrees of Issachar's descendants had been established by clans and families, the names of all the males of twenty years and over, fit to bear arms, were recorded one by one. ·The total of these for the tribe of Issachar was fifty-four thousand four hundred. 28 29

Once the pedigrees of Zebulun's descendants had been established by clans and families, the names of all the males of twenty years and over, fit to bear arms, were recorded one by one. ·The total of these for the tribe of Zebulun was fifty-seven thousand four hundred. 30 31

As regards the descendants of Joseph: once the pedigrees of Ephraim's descendants had been established by clans and families, the names of all the males of twenty years and over, fit to bear arms, were recorded one by one. ·The total of these for the tribe of Ephraim was forty thousand five hundred. 32 33

Once the pedigrees of Manasseh's descendants had been established by clans and families, the names of all the males of twenty years and over, fit to bear arms, were recorded one by one. ·The total of these for the tribe of Manasseh was thirty-two thousand two hundred. 34 35

Once the pedigrees of Benjamin's descendants had been established by clans and families, the names of all the males of twenty years and over, fit to bear arms, were recorded one by one. ·The total of these for the tribe of Benjamin was thirty-five thousand four hundred. 36 37

Once the pedigrees of Dan's descendants had been established by clans and families, the names of all the males of twenty years and over, fit to bear arms, were recorded one by one. ·The total of these for the tribe of Dan was sixty-two thousand seven hundred. 38 39

Once the pedigrees of Asher's descendants had been established by clans and families, the names of all the males of twenty years and over, fit to bear arms, were recorded one by one. ·The total of these for the tribe of Asher was forty-one thousand five hundred. 40 41

Once the pedigrees of Naphtali's descendants had been established by clans and families, the names of all the males of twenty years and over, fit to bear arms, were recorded one by one. ·The total of these for the tribe of Naphtali was fifty-three thousand four hundred. 42 43

Such were the men registered by Moses, Aaron and the leaders of Israel, of whom there were twelve, each representing his family. ·All the Israelites of twenty years and over, fit to bear arms, were counted by families. ·Altogether, the total came to six hundred and three thousand five hundred and fifty.[e] 44 45 46

54 The Israelites did exactly as Yahweh had ordered Moses. They did as he said.

Order of the tribes 10:11–28 their family emblems. They must pitch their tents round the Dwelling where the Testimony is, some distance away.

17 'Next, the Tent of Meeting will move, since the camp of the Levites is situated in 'The tribe of Naphtali. Leader of the Naphtalites: Ahira son of Enan. ·His 29, 30 company: fifty-three thousand four hundred men.

'The tribal forces in the camp of Dan number in all a hundred and fifty-seven 31 thousand six hundred. They will be the last to break camp.
'All under their appropriate standards.'
Such was the tally of the Israelites when the census was taken by families. The 32 1:46e full count of the entire camp, unit by unit, came to six hundred and three thousand five hundred and fifty. ·But, as Yahweh had ordered Moses, the Levites were not 33 included in the census of the Israelites.
The Israelites did exactly as Yahweh had ordered Moses. This was how they 34 pitched camp, grouped by standards. This was how they broke camp, each man in his own clan, each man with his own family.

The tribe of Levi

a: The priests

26:59–61 3 These were the descendants of Aaron and Moses, at the time when Yahweh 1 spoke to Moses on Mount Sinai.
Ex 6:23 These were the names of Aaron's sons: Nadab the eldest, then Abihu, Eleazar 2 and Ithamar. [a]
Ex 29;30:22d Lv 8–9 Such were the names of Aaron's sons, priests anointed and invested with the 3 powers of the priesthood. ·Nadab and Abihu died in Yahweh's presence, in the 4 Lv 10:1–7 desert of Sinai, when they offered unauthorised fire before Yahweh. They left no children and so it fell to Eleazar and Ithamar to exercise the priesthood under their father Aaron.

b: The Levites: their duties

Yahweh spoke to Moses and said: 5
'Muster the tribe of Levi and put it at the disposal of the priest Aaron: they must 6 be at his service. ·They will undertake the duties incumbent on him and the whole 7 community before the Tent of Meeting, in serving the Dwelling, ·and they will be 8 in charge of all the furnishings of the Tent of Meeting and undertake the duties incumbent on the Israelites in serving the Dwelling. ·You will present the Levites 9 8:14–19 Ezr 2:43d to Aaron and his sons as men dedicated; [b] they will be given to him by the Israelites. [c]
'You will register Aaron and his sons, who will carry out their priestly duty. But 10 1:51 any unauthorised person who comes near must be put to death.'

c: Their privileged status [d]

Yahweh spoke to Moses and said: 11
'Look, I myself have chosen the Levites from the Israelites instead of all the 12
Ex 13:11b first-born, those who emerge first from the womb in Israel; the Levites therefore belong to me. ·For every first-born belongs to me. On the day when I struck down 13 all the first-born in Egypt, I consecrated all the first-born in Israel, of both man and beast, to be my own. They are mine, Yahweh's.'

26:57–62 d: Census of the Levites

Yahweh spoke to Moses in the desert of Sinai and said: 14
'You must take a census of Levi's descendants by families and clans; all the 15 males of the age of one month and over will be counted.'
At Yahweh's word Moses took a census of them, as Yahweh had ordered. 16
Gn 46:11 Ex 6:16–19 These were the names of Levi's sons: Gershon, Kohath and Merari. 17
These were the names of Gershon's sons by their clans: Libni and Shimei; 18
Kohath's sons by their clans: Amram, Izhar, Hebron and Uzziel; ·Merari's sons by 19, 20 their clans: Mahli and Mushi. These were the clans of Levi, grouped by families.

21 From Gershon were descended the Libnite and Shimeite clans; these were the 22 Gershonite clans. ·Their full number, counting the males of one month and over,
23 came to seven thousand five hundred. ·The Gershonite clans pitched their camp 24 behind the Dwelling, on the west side. ·The leader of the House of Gershon was 25 Eliasaph son of Lael. ·As regards the Tent of Meeting, the Gershonites had charge of the Dwelling, the Tent and its covering, the screen for the entrance to the Tent Ex 26–27 26 of Meeting, ·the curtaining of the court, the screen for the entrance to the court surrounding the Dwelling and the altar, and the cords required in dealing with all this.
27 From Kohath were descended the Amramite, Izharite, Hebronite and Uzzielite 28 clans; these were the Kohathite clans. ·Their full number, counting the males of one month and over, came to eight thousand three hundred. They were in charge 29 of the sanctuary. ·The Kohathite clans pitched their camp on the south side of the 30 Dwelling. ·The leader of the house of the Kohathite clans was Elizaphan son of 31 Uzziel. ·They were in charge of the ark, the table, the lamp-stand, the altars, the Ex 25:10–40; 27:1–8; 30:1–10 sacred vessels used in the liturgy, and the curtain with all its fittings.
32 The chief of the Levite leaders was Eleazar, son of Aaron the priest. He supervised the people responsible for the sanctuary.
33 From Merari were descended the Mahlite and Mushite clans; these were the 34 Merarite clans. ·Their full number, counting the males of one month and over, 35 came to six thousand two hundred. ·The leader of the House of the Merarite clans was Zuriel, son of Abihail. They pitched their camp on the north side of the 36 Dwelling. ·The Merarites were in charge of the framework of the Dwelling, with Ex 26:15–30; 27:9–19 37 its crossbars, poles, sockets and all its accessories and fittings, ·and also the poles round the court, with their sockets, pegs and cords.
38 Finally, on the east side, in front of the Dwelling, in front of the Tent of Meeting, towards the east, was the camp of Moses and Aaron and his sons, who had charge of the sanctuary on behalf of the Israelites. Any unauthorised person coming near 1:51 was to be put to death.
39 The total number of male Levites of the age of one month and over, whom Moses counted by clans as Yahweh had ordered, came to twenty-two thousand.

e: The Levites and the ransoming of the first-born

40 Yahweh said to Moses:
'Take a census of all the first-born of the Israelites, all the males from the age of 41 one month and over; take a census of them by name. ·You will then present the Levites to me, Yahweh, instead of Israel, and similarly the Levites' cattle instead of the first-born cattle of the Israelites.' 3:12–13 Ex 13:11b 42 As Yahweh ordered, Moses took a census of all the first-born of the Israelites.
43 The total count, by name, of the first-born from the age of one month and over came to twenty-two thousand two hundred and seventy-three. [c] 44 Yahweh then spoke to Moses and said:
45 'Take the Levites instead of all the first-born of the Israelites, and the Levites' Ex 13:11b
46 cattle instead of their cattle; the Levites will be mine, Yahweh's. ·For the ransom of the two hundred and seventy-three first-born of the Israelites in excess of the 47 number of Levites, ·you will take five shekels for each, by the sanctuary shekel, at 48 twenty gerah to the shekel; ·you will then give this money to Aaron and his sons as Lv 5:15h the ransom for the extra number.'

3 a. Zadok and the priests of the Temple of Jerusalem were traced back to Eleazar, 1 Ch 5:30 seq.; 18:16; see 2 S 8:17. Abiathar, the other priest of David's time, was descended, through Ahimelech, from Ithamar, 1 Ch 24:3 seq., see 2 S 20:25.

b. The dedicated men are described as lesser ministers of the post-exilic Temple in Ezr 2:43d.

c. Gk, Sam. and 12 Hebr. MSS read 'they will be given to me.'

d. The Levites belong to Yahweh, like the first-born, whose place they take, Ex 13:11b. As in Ex 13:14, the institution is linked to the tenth plague of Egypt (Ex 11:4 seq.; 12:29 seq.) and the choice of the Levites is understood as a substitution for the first-born of Israel who were spared, see Nb 8:12.

e. The figure represented the number of Levites, v. 39, plus a remainder who were to be redeemed by a cash payment, see Lv 27:3–7, which practice later became the general rule.

Moses took the ransom money for the extra ones unransomed by the Levites; 49
he took the money for the first-born of the Israelites: one thousand three hundred 50 and sixty-five shekels, by the sanctuary shekel; ·and Moses then handed over their 51 ransom money to Aaron and his sons, at Yahweh's bidding, as Yahweh had ordered Moses.

The Levite clans

a: The Kohathites

4 Yahweh spoke to Moses and said: 1
'Take a census by clans and families of the Levites descended from Kohath: 2 all the men between thirty and fifty years of age and eligible for military service, 3 who will have their duties in the Tent of Meeting.
'These are the duties of the Kohathites: looking after those things that are 4 especially holy.
'When camp is broken, Aaron and his sons must come and take down the 5
Ex 26:31–37; 35:12;39:34 screening curtain, and cover the ark of the Testimony with it. ·Over this, they will 6 2 S 6:7f put a covering of fine leather, over which they will spread a cloth entirely of violet-purple. They will then fix the poles to the ark.
Ex 25:23j 'Over the offertory table they will spread a violet cloth, and on it put the dishes, 7 cups, bowls and libation jars; the bread of permanent offering will also be on it.
Over these they will spread a scarlet cloth and cover the whole with a covering of 8 fine leather. They will then fix the poles to the table.
'They will then take a violet cloth and cover the lamp-stand, its lamps, snuffers, 9 trays and all the oil jars used for it, ·and will lay it and all its accessories in a 10 covering of fine leather and put it on the litter.
Ex 30:1–6 'Over the golden altar[a] they will spread a violet cloth, and cover that with a 11 covering of fine leather. They will then fix the poles to it.
'They will then take all the other objects used in the service of the sanctuary, put 12 them in a violet cloth, with a covering of fine leather, and put it all on the litter.
'When they have removed the ashes from the altar,[b] they will spread a scarlet 13 cloth over it, ·and on this place all the objects used in the liturgy, the fire pans, 14 hooks, scoops, sprinkling basins and all the altar accessories. Over this they will spread a covering of fine leather. They will then fix the poles to it.
'Once Aaron and his sons have finished covering the holy things and all their 15 accessories at the breaking of camp, the Kohathites will come and carry them, but Lv 17:1a 2 S 6:7f without touching any of the holy things on pain of death. Such is the load for the Kohathites in the Tent of Meeting. ·But Eleazar, son of Aaron the priest, is 16
Ex 27:20; 30:34–38 responsible for looking after the oil for the light, the fragrant incense, the daily Ex 30:22–23 cereal offering and the anointing oil, and for supervising the entire Dwelling and everything in it, the holy things and their accessories.'
Yahweh spoke to Moses and said: 17
'You must not let the group of Kohathite clans be lost to the rest of the Levites. 18
But deal with them in this way, so that they may survive and not incur death by 19 approaching those things that are especially holy. Aaron and his sons will go in and assign to each of them his task and load, ·in such a way that they have no need to 20 incur the death penalty by going in and setting eyes on the holy things, even for an instant.'

b: The Gershonites

Yahweh spoke to Moses and said: 21
'Take a census of the Gershonites by families and clans, too: ·all the men 22, 23 between thirty and fifty years of age, eligible for military service, who will have their duties in the Tent of Meeting.
'These are the duties of the Gershonite clans, their functions and their loads. 24
They will carry the curtaining of the Dwelling, the Tent of Meeting with its 25 covering and the covering of fine leather that goes over it, the screen for the 26 entrance to the Tent of Meeting, ·the curtaining of the court, the screen for the entrance to the court surrounding the Dwelling and the altar, the cords, all the accessories for worship, and all the necessary equipment.

27 'They will be responsible for these things. ·All the duties of the Gershonites, their functions and their loads, will be carried out under the direction of Aaron and 28 his sons: you will see that they fulfil their charge. ·Such are the duties of the Gershonite clans in the Tent of Meeting. Their work will be supervised by Ithamar, son of Aaron the priest.

c: The Merarites

29, 30 'You will take a census of the Merarites by clans and families. ·You will take a census of all the men between thirty and fifty years of age, eligible for military service, who will have their duties in the Tent of Meeting.
31 'The load they carry and the duties incumbent on them in the Tent of Meeting will be as follows: the framework of the Dwelling, its cross-bars, poles and sockets, 32 ·the poles round the court with their sockets, pegs, cords and all their tackle. You will draw up a list of their names with the loads for which each is responsible.
33 'Such are the duties of the Merarite clans. All their duties in the Tent of Meeting will be supervised by Ithamar, son of Aaron the priest.'

Census of the Levites

34 Moses, Aaron and the leaders of the community took a census of the Kohathites 35 by clans and families: ·all the men between thirty and fifty years of age, eligible for 36 military service, for duties in the Tent of Meeting. ·The number of men counted in 37 their clans came to two thousand seven hundred and fifty. ·Such was the total number of men in the Kohathite clans who were eligible for duties in the Tent of Meeting and whom Moses and Aaron counted at Yahweh's bidding through Moses.
38, 39 A census was taken of the Gershonites by clans and families: ·all the men between thirty and fifty years of age, eligible for military service, for duties in the 40 Tent of Meeting. ·The number of men counted in their clans and families came to 41 two thousand six hundred and thirty. ·Such was the total number of men in the Gershonite clans who were eligible for duties in the Tent of Meeting, and whom Moses and Aaron counted at Yahweh's bidding.
42, 43 A census was taken of the Merarite clans by clans and families: ·all the men between thirty and fifty years of age, eligible for military service, for duties in the 44 Tent of Meeting. ·The number of men counted in their clans came to three 45 thousand two hundred. ·Such was the total number of men in the Merarite clans, whom Moses and Aaron counted at Yahweh's bidding through Moses.
46 The total number of Levites whom Moses, Aaron and the leaders of Israel 47 counted in their clans and families, ·all the men between thirty and fifty years of age, eligible for religious duties and for those of transporting the Tent of Meeting 48, 49 came to eight thousand five hundred and eighty. ·At Yahweh's bidding through Moses, a census was taken of them and each man was assigned his duty and load.
And so the census was conducted by Moses as Yahweh had ordered him.

b. The altar of burnt offerings.

II: VARIOUS LAWS[a]

Dt 23:10–15 Expulsion of the unclear

5 Yahweh spoke to Moses and said: 1
Lv 13:45–46; 15 'Order the Israelites to expel from the camp all those suffering from a contagious skin-disease or from a discharge, or who have become unclear by touching a 2
19:11–16 corpse. ·Whether man or woman, you will expel them; you will expel them from 3
1 Co 5:7–13 the camp, so that they do not pollute their encampments, in the heart of which I
2 Co 6:16–18 Rv 21:27;22:15 dwell.'[b]

The Israelites did so: they expelled them from the camp. The Israelites did as 4 Yahweh had told Moses.

Restitution

Yahweh spoke to Moses and said, ·'Speak to the Israelites: 5, 6
Lv 5:15–26 "If a man or woman commits any of the sins by which people break faith with Yahweh, that person incurs guilt.

"The person must confess the sin committed and restore in full the amount 7 owed, with one-fifth added. Payment is to be made to the person wronged.

"If, however, the latter has no relation to whom restitution can be made, the 8 restitution due to Yahweh reverts to the priest, apart from the ram of expiation with which the priest makes expiation for the guilty party. ·For of everything the 9 Israelites consecrate and bring to the priest he has a right to the portion set aside. Whatever anyone consecrates is that person's own; whatever is given to the priest 10 belongs to the priest." '

Cereal offering in cases of suspicion[c]

Yahweh spoke to Moses and said, ·'Speak to the Israelites and say: 11, 12

"If anyone has a wife who goes astray and is unfaithful to him, ·if some other 13 man sleeps with the woman without the husband's knowledge, and she secretly makes herself unclean, without any witness against her, and without anyone catching her in the act; ·if, then, a spirit of suspicion comes over the husband and 14 makes him suspicious of the wife who has disgraced herself, or again if this spirit of suspicion comes over him and makes him suspicious of his wife even when she is innocent, ·the man will bring his wife before the priest, and on her behalf make an 15
Lv 5:11 offering of one-tenth of an ephah of barley meal. He will not pour oil over it or put Lv 2:2 incense on it, because this is a cereal offering for a case of suspicion, a memorial offering to recall guilt to mind.

"The priest will then bring the woman forward and place her before Yahweh. 16
The priest will then take fresh water in an earthen jar, and on the water throw 17 dust that he has taken from the floor of the Dwelling. ·After he has placed the 18 woman before Yahweh, he will unbind her hair and put the commemorative cereal offering (that is, the cereal offering for a case of suspicion) into her hands. In his own hands the priest will hold the water of bitterness and cursing.

"The priest will then put the woman on oath. He will say to her: If it is not true 19 that a man has slept with you, that you have gone astray and made yourself unclean while under your husband's authority, may this water of bitterness and cursing do you no harm. ·But if it is true that you have gone astray while under your husband's 20 authority, that you have made yourself unclean and that a man other than your Rt 1:17f husband has slept with you . . . ·Here the priest will impose an imprecatory oath 21 on the woman. He will say to her: . . . May Yahweh make you the object of your people's execration and curses, by making your sexual organs shrivel and your belly swell! ·May this water of cursing entering your bowels, make your belly swell 22 and your sexual organs shrivel! To which the woman will reply: Amen! Amen!

"Having written these curses on a scroll and washed them off in the water of 23

24 bitterness, ·the priest will make the woman drink the water of bitterness and Ex 32:20f cursing; when the water of cursing enters into her, it will become bitter.
25 "The priest will then take the cereal offering for a case of suspicion from the woman's hands, and hold it up before Yahweh with a gesture of offering, and so 26 carry it up to the altar. ·He will take a handful of it as a memorial and burn it on the Lv 5:12 altar.
27 "After this, he will make the woman drink the water. ·After he has made her drink it, if it is true that she has made herself unclean and been unfaithful to her husband, the water of cursing then entering into her will indeed be bitter: her belly will swell and her sexual organs shrivel, and she will be an object of execration to 28 her people. ·But if she has not made herself unclean, but is clean, then she will go unscathed and will bear children.
29 "Such is the ritual in cases of suspicion, when a woman has gone astray and made 30 herself unclean while under her husband's authority, ·or when a spirit of suspicion has come over a man and made him suspicious of his wife. When a husband brings 31 such a woman before Yahweh, the priest will apply this ritual to her in full. ·The husband will be guiltless, but the woman will bear the consequences of her guilt." '

The nazirite [a] 1 S 1:11h Ac 18:18n

1, 2 6 Yahweh spoke to Moses and said, ·'Speak to the Israelites and say:
"If a man or a woman wishes to make a vow, the nazirite vow, to vow himself ↗Lk 1:15 3 to Yahweh, ·he will abstain from wine and fermented liquor, he will not drink Jg 13:5;16:17 vinegar derived from one or the other, he will not drink grape-juice or eat grapes, 4 be they fresh or dried. ·For the duration of his vow he will eat nothing that comes 5 from the vine, not even juice of unripe grapes or skins of grapes. ·As long as he is Jr 35:2–6 Am 2:12 bound by his vow, no razor will touch his head; until the time for which he has vowed himself to Yahweh is completed, he remains consecrated and will let his 6 hair grow freely. ·For the entire period of his vow to Yahweh, he will not go near a 7 corpse, ·he will not make himself unclean for his father or his mother, or his brother or his sister, should they die, since on his head he carries his vow to his 8 God. ·Throughout the whole of his vow he is a person consecrated to Yahweh. Lv 21:12 Ac 21:23–26
9 "If anyone suddenly dies near him, making his vowed hair unclean, he will shave 10 his head on the day he is purified, he will shave his head on the seventh day. ·On the eighth day, he will bring two turtledoves or two young pigeons to the priest, at 11 the entrance to the Tent of Meeting. ·The priest will offer one as a sacrifice for sin, and the other as a burnt offering and will then perform for the person the rite of expiation for the pollution which he has contracted from the corpse. He will 12 consecrate his head that same day; ·he will vow himself to Yahweh for the period of his nazirate, and will bring a male yearling lamb as a sacrifice of reparation. The Lv 14:21–31 time already spent will not count, since his hair had become unclean.
13 "This is the ritual for the nazirite on the day when his period of vow is completed.
14 He will be led to the entrance of the Tent of Meeting, ·bringing his offering to Yahweh: an unblemished male yearling lamb as a burnt offering, an unblemished yearling ewe lamb as a sacrifice for sin, an unblemished ram as a peace offering,

5 a. These laws from the Priestly tradition are additional material in the spirit of the Rules concerning the Clean and Unclean in Lv 11–16. They resemble the supplementary laws inserted in the Law of Holiness, as in Lv 20:22–25.

b. The Priestly editor imagines the Tent to be in the middle of the camp, 2:17, whereas ancient traditions sited it outside, see Ex 33:7.

c. The judgement of God, or trial by ordeal, was universally practised from ancient times up to the Middle Ages, to obtain a fair decision when evidence was lacking. Ordeal by water, in which the accused was thrown into the river, was known throughout the ancient Middle East, but ordeal by the 'waters of bitterness' has no known parallel. It must have been an ancient custom on which an Israelite ritual was superimposed: intervention of the priest, cereal offering, oath, etc.

6 a. For the period of his vow the nazirite, i.e. 'vowed' to God, undertook to leave his hair uncut, to take no strong drink, and to avoid contact with corpses. The hair was a sign of strength, and the first abstention signified that the nazirite allowed the divine power to act in him, thus symbolising his dedication to God. (In Gn 49:26 and Dt 33:16 Joseph is called a nazirite.) The second abstention showed that the nazirite refused a life of ease (see the Rechabites, Jr 35:5–8). The third showed that he belonged to God in a special way (see the priests in Lv 21:1–2, 10–11). See Am 2:11–12 and the examples of this temporary vow in Ac 18:18; 21:23–26. A child could be thus dedicated by his mother (without time-limit?): Samson, Jg 13:5–7, 14; 16:17; Samuel, 1 S 1:11 (no 'strong drink' clause); John the Baptist, Lk 1:15 ('hair' clause omitted).

and a basket of unleavened loaves made of fine flour mixed with oil, and of 15 unleavened wafers spread with oil, with the cereal offerings and libations appropriate to them. ·The priest, having brought all this before Yahweh, will offer the 16 nazirite's sin sacrifice and burnt offering. ·The latter will then offer the ram as a 17 communion sacrifice with the basket of unleavened bread, and the priest will offer the accompanying cereal offering and libation. ·The nazirite will then shave off his 18 vowed hair at the entrance to the Tent of Meeting and, taking the locks of his vowed head, he will put them in the fire of the communion sacrifice. ·The priest 19 will take the shoulder of the ram, as soon as it is cooked, with an unleavened cake from the basket, and an unleavened wafer, and put them into the hands of the nazirite once he has shaved off his hair. ·With these he will make the gesture of 20 offering before Yahweh; as it is a holy thing, it reverts to the priest, in addition to Lv 7:34;10:14 the forequarter that has been presented and the thigh that has been set aside. After this, the nazirite may drink wine.

"Such is the ritual for the nazirite. If, besides his hair, he has also vowed a 21 personal offering to Yahweh, he will (apart from anything else that his means allow) fulfil the vow that he has made, in addition to what the ritual prescribes for his hair." '

The form of blessing

Yahweh spoke to Moses and said, ·'Speak to Aaron and his sons and say: 22, 23
"This is how you must bless the Israelites. You will say:

Ex 23:20 Ps 121:7–8 May Yahweh bless you and keep you. 24
Jn 17:11–12 May Yahweh let his face shine on you and be gracious to you. 25
Ps 4:6;31:16 May Yahweh show you his face and bring you peace." 26
Ps 122:6seq. Jn 14:27
Dt 28:10 Si 50:20–21 This is how they must call down my name on the Israelites, and then I shall bless them.' [b] 27

III: OFFERINGS OF THE LEADERS AND CONSECRATION OF THE LEVITES [a]

Offering of wagons

Ex 40:17–33 7 On the day Moses finished erecting the Dwelling, he anointed and consecrated 1 it and all its furniture, as well as the altar and all its equipment. When he had Ex 40:9–15 anointed and consecrated it all, ·the leaders of Israel made an offering; they were 2 1:4 the heads of their families, the tribal leaders who had presided over the census. They brought their offering before Yahweh: six covered wagons and twelve oxen, 3 one wagon for every two leaders and one ox each. They brought them in front of the Dwelling. ·Yahweh spoke to Moses and said, ·'Accept these from them, and 4, 5 let them be set apart for the service of the Tent of Meeting. You will give them to the Levites, to each as his duties require.' ·Moses took the wagons and oxen, and 6 4:24–28 gave them to the Levites. ·To the Gershonites he gave two wagons and four oxen 7
4:29–33 for the duties they had to perform. ·To the Merarites he gave four wagons and 8 eight oxen for the duties they had to perform under the direction of Ithamar, son 4:2–15 of Aaron the priest. ·But to the Kohathites he gave none at all, because the sacred 9 charge entrusted to them had to be carried on their shoulders.

Dedication offering

Ezk 43:18–26 The leaders then made an offering for the dedication of the altar, on the day it was 10 anointed. They brought their offering before the altar, ·and Yahweh said to Moses, 11
'Each day one of the leaders must bring his offering for the dedication of the altar.'
2:3 On the first day an offering was brought by Nahshon son of Amminadab, of the 12 tribe of Judah. ·His offering consisted of: one silver bowl weighing a hundred and 13 thirty shekels, one silver sprinkling bowl weighing seventy shekels (sanctuary

shekels), both of them full of fine flour mixed with oil as a cereal offering, ·one golden bowl weighing ten shekels, full of incense, ·one young bull, one ram and one male yearling lamb as a burnt offering, ·one he-goat as a sacrifice for sin, and two bulls, five rams, five he-goats and five male yearling lambs as a communion sacrifice. Such was the offering of Nahshon son of Amminadab.

On the second day an offering was brought by Nethanel son of Zuar, leader of 2:5
Issachar. ·His offering consisted of: one silver bowl weighing a hundred and thirty shekels, one silver sprinkling bowl weighing seventy shekels (sanctuary shekels), both of them full of fine flour mixed with oil as a cereal offering, ·one golden bowl weighing ten shekels, full of incense, ·one young bull, one ram and one male 22, 23 yearling lamb as a burnt offering, ·one he-goat as a sacrifice for sin, ·and two bulls, five rams, five he-goats and five male yearling lambs as a communion sacrifice. Such was the offering of Nethanel son of Zuar.

On the third day an offering was brought by Eliab son of Helon, leader of the 2:7
Zebulunites. ·His offering consisted of: one silver bowl weighing a hundred and thirty shekels, one silver sprinkling bowl weighing seventy shekels (sanctuary shekels), both of them full of fine flour mixed with oil as a cereal offering, ·one golden bowl weighing ten shekels, full of incense, ·one young bull, one ram and one male yearling lamb as a burnt offering, ·one he-goat as a sacrifice for sin, and two bulls, five rams, five he-goats and five male yearling lambs as a communion sacrifice. Such was the offering of Eliab son of Helon.

On the fourth day an offering was brought by Elizur son of Shedeur, leader of 2:10 the Reubenites. ·His offering consisted of: one silver bowl weighing a hundred and thirty shekels, one silver sprinkling bowl weighing seventy shekels (sanctuary
shekels), both of them full of fine flour mixed with oil as a cereal offering, ·one golden bowl weighing ten shekels, full of incense, ·one young bull, one ram and one male yearling lamb as a burnt offering, , ·one he-goat as a sacrifice for sin,
and two bulls, five rams, five he-goats and five male yearling lambs as a communion sacrifice. Such was the offering of Elizur son of Shedeur.

On the fifth day an offering was brought by Shelumiel son of Zurishaddai, leader 2:12 of the Simeonites. ·His offering consisted of: one silver bowl weighing a hundred and thirty shekels, one silver sprinkling bowl weighing seventy shekels (sanctuary shekels), both of them full of fine flour mixed with oil as a cereal offering, ·one golden bowl weighing ten shekels, full of incense, ·one young bull, one ram and one male yearling lamb as a burnt offering, ·one he-goat as a sacrifice for sin,
and two bulls, five rams, five he-goats and five male yearling lambs as a communion sacrifice. Such was the offering of Shelumiel son of Zurishaddai.

On the sixth day an offering was brought by Eliasaph son of Reuel, leader of the 2:14
Gadites. ·His offering consisted of: one silver bowl weighing a hundred and thirty shekels, one silver sprinkling bowl weighing seventy shekels (sanctuary shekels), both of them full of fine flour mixed with oil as a cereal offering, ·one golden bowl weighing ten shekels, full of incense, ·one young bull, one ram and one male 46, 47 yearling lamb as a burnt offering, ·one he-goat as a sacrifice for sin, ·and two bulls, five rams, five he-goats and five male yearling lambs as a communion sacrifice. Such was the offering of Eliasaph son of Reuel.

On the seventh day an offering was brought by Elishama son of Ammihud, 2:18 leader of the Ephraimites. ·His offering consisted of: one silver bowl weighing a hundred and thirty shekels, one silver sprinkling bowl weighing seventy shekels (sanctuary shekels), both of them full of fine flour mixed with oil as a cereal 50, 51 offering, ·one golden bowl weighing ten shekels, full of incense, ·one young bull, one ram and one male yearling lamb as a burnt offering, ·one he-goat as a sacrifice for sin, ·and two bulls, five rams, five he-goats and five male yearling lambs as a communion sacrifice. Such was the offering of Elishama son of Ammihud.

b. Semitic way of expressing divine favour. The thrice-invoked divine name assures Israel of God's protective presence.

7 a. After the supplementary legislation of ch. 5–6 the Priestly narrative is resumed and continues until 10:28.

2:20 On the eighth day an offering was brought by Gamaliel son of Pedahzur, leader 54 of the Manassehites. ·His offering consisted of: one silver bowl weighing a hundred 55
and thirty shekels, one silver sprinkling bowl weighing seventy shekels (sanctuary
shekels), both of them full of fine flour mixed with oil as a cereal offering, ·one 56
golden bowl weighing ten shekels, full of incense, ·one young bull, one ram and 57
one male yearling lamb as a burnt offering, ·one he-goat as a sacrifice for sin, ·and 58, 59
two bulls, five rams, five he-goats and five male yearling lambs as a communion sacrifice. Such was the offering of Gamaliel son of Pedahzur.

2:22 On the ninth day an offering was brought by Abidan son of Gideoni, leader of 60 the Benjaminites. ·His offering consisted of: one silver bowl weighing a hundred 61 and thirty shekels, one sprinkling bowl weighing seventy shekels (sanctuary shekels), both of them full of fine flour mixed with oil as a cereal offering, ·one golden 62 bowl weighing ten shekels, full of incense, ·one young bull, one ram and one male 63
yearling lamb as a burnt offering, ·one he-goat as a sacrifice for sin, ·and two 64, 65
bulls, five rams, five he-goats and five male yearling lambs as a communion sacrifice. Such was the offering of Abidan son of Gideoni.

2:25 On the tenth day an offering was brought by Ahiezer son of Ammishaddai, 66 leader of the Danites. ·His offering consisted of: one silver bowl weighing a 67 hundred and thirty shekels, one silver sprinkling bowl weighing seventy shekels (sanctuary shekels), ·both of them full of fine flour mixed with oil as a cereal offering, ·one golden bowl weighing ten shekels, full of incense, ·one young bull, 68, 69
one ram and one male yearling lamb as a burnt offering, ·one he-goat as a sacrifice 70
for sin, ·and two bulls, five rams, five he-goats and five male yearling lambs as a 71 communion sacrifice. Such was the offering of Ahiezer son of Ammishaddai.

2:27 On the eleventh day an offering was brought by Pagiel son of Ochran, leader of 72 the Asherites. ·His offering consisted of: one silver bowl weighing a hundred and 73
thirty shekels, one silver sprinkling bowl weighing seventy shekels (sanctuary
shekels), both of them full of fine flour mixed with oil as a cereal offering, ·one 74
golden bowl weighing ten shekels, full of incense, ·one young bull, one ram and 75
one male yearling lamb as a burnt offering, ·one he-goat as a sacrifice for sin, ·and 76, 77
two bulls, five rams, five he-goats and five male yearling lambs as a communion sacrifice. Such was the offering of Pagiel son of Ochran.

2:29 On the twelfth day an offering was brought by Ahira son of Enan, leader of the 78
Naphtalites. ·His offering consisted of: one silver bowl weighing a hundred and 79
thirty shekels, one silver sprinkling bowl weighing seventy shekels (sanctuary
shekels), both of them full of fine flour mixed with oil as a cereal offering, ·one 80
golden bowl weighing ten shekels, full of incense, ·one young bull, one ram and 81
one male yearling lamb as a burnt offering, ·one he-goat as a sacrifice for sin, ·and 82, 83
two bulls, five rams, five he-goats and five male yearling lambs as a communion sacrifice. Such was the offering of Ahira son of Enan.

Such were the offerings made by the leaders of Israel for the dedication of the 84 altar on the day it was anointed: twelve silver bowls, twelve silver sprinkling bowls, and twelve golden bowls. ·Each silver bowl weighed a hundred and thirty shekels, 85 and each sprinkling bowl seventy, the silver of these objects weighing in all two thousand four hundred sanctuary shekels. ·The twelve golden bowls full of incense 86 each weighed ten shekels (sanctuary shekels), the gold of these bowls weighing in all a hundred and twenty shekels.

The sum total of animals for the burnt offering: twelve bulls, twelve rams, twelve 87 male yearling lambs, with their cereal offerings. For the sacrifice for sin, twelve he-goats. ·The sum total of animals for the communion sacrifice: twenty-four bulls, 88 sixty rams, sixty he-goats and sixty male yearling lambs.

Such were the offerings for the dedication of the altar, after it had been anointed.

Ex 33:9–11 When Moses went into the Tent of Meeting to speak with him, he heard the 89
Ex 25:17h voice speaking to him[b] from above the mercy-seat on the ark of the Testimony, from between the two great winged creatures. He then spoke to him.[c]

The lamps for the lamp-stand

8 Yahweh spoke to Moses and said:
'Speak to Aaron and say, "When you set up the lamps, the seven lamps must throw their light towards the front of the lamp-stand." ' Ex 25:31–40 Lv 24:2–4
Aaron did this. He set up the lamps to the front of the lamp-stand, as Yahweh had ordered Moses. ·This lamp-stand was worked in beaten gold, including its stem and its petals, which were also of beaten gold. This lamp-stand had been made according to the pattern Yahweh had shown to Moses.

The Levites are offered to Yahweh Lv 8

Yahweh spoke to Moses and said, ·"Separate the Levites from the Israelites and purify them. ·This is how you must purify them: you will sprinkle them with purifying water,[a] and they will shave their bodies all over and wash their clothes. 19:1–10 Lv 14:8–9
They will then be clean. ·They will then take a young bull, with the accompanying cereal offering of fine flour mixed with oil, and you will take a second young bull for a sacrifice for sin. ·You will then bring the Levites in front of the Tent of Meeting, and assemble the whole community of Israelites. ·Once you have brought the Levites before Yahweh, the Israelites will lay their hands on them. ·Aaron will then offer the Levites, making the gesture of offering before Yahweh on behalf of the Israelites, admitting them to Yahweh's service. Ezk 36:25 3:6–8
'The Levites will then lay their hands on the heads of the bulls, one of which you will offer as a sacrifice for sin, and the other as a burnt offering to Yahweh, to perform the rite of expiation for the Levites.[b] ·Having brought the Levites before Aaron and his sons, you will present them to Yahweh with the gesture of offering. Lv 1:4 Ex 29:24g
That is how you will set the Levites apart from the Israelites, for them to be mine.
The Levites will then begin their ministry in the Tent of Meeting.
'You will purify them and offer them with the gesture of offering ·because, of the Israelites, they have been dedicated to me in place of all those who first emerge from the womb, instead of the first-born; of all the Israelites, I have taken them for my own. ·For all the first-born of the Israelites, whether human or animal, do indeed belong to me: the day I struck down all the first-born in Egypt, I consecrated them to myself, ·and now, in place of all the first-born of the Israelites, I have taken the Levites. ·Of the Israelites, I give the Levites to Aaron and his sons, as dedicated men, to minister in the Tent of Meeting on behalf of the Israelites and perform the rite of expiation for them, so that no disaster befalls the Israelites when the Israelites come close to the sanctuary.' 3:12–13 Ex 13:11b
Moses, Aaron and the whole community of Israelites dealt with the Levites exactly as Yahweh had ordered Moses concerning them; this is what the Israelites did with them. ·The Levites purified themselves and washed their clothes, and Aaron presented them with the gesture of offering before Yahweh. He then performed the rite of expiation for them to purify them. ·The Levites were then allowed to perform their ministry in the Tent of Meeting in the presence of Aaron and his sons. As Yahweh had ordered Moses concerning the Levites, so it was done with them.

The duration of their ministry

Yahweh spoke to Moses and said:
'This concerns the Levites. From the age of twenty-five onwards, the Levite will exercise his ministry and do duty in the Tent of Meeting. ·After the age of fifty, he 4:3

IV: THE PASSOVER AND THE DEPARTURE

Ex 12:1a Date of the Passover [a]

9 Yahweh spoke to Moses, in the desert of Sinai, in the second year after the 1 exodus from Egypt, in the first month, and said:

Ex 12:6 'The Israelites must keep the Passover at its appointed time. ·The fourteenth 2, 3 day of this month, at twilight, is the time appointed for you to keep it. You will keep it with all the laws and customs proper to it.'

Moses told the Israelites to keep the Passover. ·They kept it, in the desert of 4, 5 Sinai, in the first month, on the fourteenth day of the month, at twilight. The Israelites did everything as Yahweh had ordered Moses.

Individual cases

5:2;19:11 It happened that some men had become unclean by touching a dead body; they 6 could not keep the Passover that day. They came the same day to Moses and Aaron, ·and said, 'We have become unclean by touching a dead body. Why should 7 we be excluded from bringing an offering to Yahweh at the proper time with the rest of the Israelites?' ·Moses replied, 'Wait here until I hear what order Yahweh 8 gives about you.'

Yahweh spoke to Moses and said, ·'Speak to the Israelites and say: 9, 10

"Any of you or your descendants who becomes unclean by touching a dead body, or is away on a long journey, can still keep a Passover for Yahweh. ·Such 11 2 Ch 30:2–3 persons will keep it in the second month, on the fourteenth day, at twilight. They will eat it with unleavened bread and bitter herbs; ·nothing of it must be left over 12 Ex 12:46+ until morning, nor will they break any of its bones. They will keep it, following the entire Passover ritual. ·But anyone who is clean, or who is not on a journey, but 13 fails to keep the Passover, such a person will be outlawed from his people. For not having brought the offering to Yahweh at its appointed time, the person will bear the consequences of the sin.

Ex 12:48*o* "A resident alien who keeps a Passover for Yahweh, will keep it in accordance 14 with the ritual and customs of the Passover. You will have one law for alien and citizen alike." '

Ex 13:22h; 40:34–38 The cloud

On the day the Dwelling was erected, the cloud covered the Dwelling, the Tent of 15 the Testimony. From nightfall until morning it remained over the Dwelling looking like fire. ·So the cloud covered it all the time, and at night it looked like 16 fire.

Whenever the cloud rose from the Tent, the Israelites broke camp, and wherever 17
the cloud halted, there the Israelites pitched camp. ·At Yahweh's order, the 18 Israelites set out and, at Yahweh's order, the Israelites pitched camp. They remained in camp for as long as the cloud rested on the Dwelling. ·If the cloud 19 stayed for many days on the Dwelling, the Israelites performed their duty to Yahweh [b] and did not set out. ·But if the cloud happened to stay for only a few days 20 on the Dwelling, just as they had pitched camp at Yahweh's order, at Yahweh's order they set out. ·If the cloud happened to remain only from evening to morning, 21 they set out when it lifted the next morning. Or, if it stayed for a whole day and night, they set out only when it lifted. ·Sometimes it stayed there for two days, a 22 month, or a longer time; however long the cloud rested on the Dwelling, the 23 Israelites remained in camp, and when it lifted they set out. •At Yahweh's order they pitched camp, and at Yahweh's order they set out. They performed their duty to Yahweh, as Yahweh had ordered through Moses.

The trumpets

Jl 2:1,15seq.
1 Co 15:52
1 Th 4:16seq.

1 10 Yahweh spoke to Moses and said:
2 'Make yourself two trumpets; make them of beaten silver, so that you can use them for summoning the community, and for sounding the order to break 2:1–34 3 camp. •Whenever they are sounded, the whole community must gather round you, 4 at the entrance to the Tent of Meeting. •But if only one trumpet is sounded, then only the leaders, the heads of Israel's thousands, must gather round you. 1:6 5 'When the trumpet blast is accompanied by a battle cry,[a] the encampments
6 pitched to the east will set out. •At the second blast accompanied by a battle cry, the encampments pitched to the south will set out.[b] For breaking camp, the 7 trumpet blast will be accompanied by a battle cry, •but for assembling the com-8 munity the trumpets will be sounded without battle cry. •The Aaronite priests will sound the trumpets; this is a perpetual decree for you and your descendants.
9 'When in your country you go to war against an enemy who is oppressing you, you will sound trumpets with a battle cry, and Yahweh your God will remember 10 you, and you will be delivered from your enemies. •At your festivals, solemnities and new-moon feasts, you will sound the trumpets over your burnt offerings and communion sacrifices, so that they recall you to the remembrance of your God. I am Yahweh your God.' Lv 17:1a

The order of march

11 [c]In the second year, in the second month, on the twentieth day of the month, the 12 cloud rose from where the Dwelling of the Testimony was, •and the Israelites set out, in marching order, from the desert of Sinai. The cloud came to rest in the 2:1–34 Ex 19:1a
desert of Paran.
13 These were the men who set out in the vanguard, at Yahweh's order through 14 Moses: •first went the standard of the camp of the Judahites and their units, with 15 Nahshon son of Amminadab commanding that company; •Nethanel son of Zuar 16 commanding the tribal company of the Issacharites; •and Eliab son of Helon commanding the tribal company of the Zebulunites.
17 The Dwelling was then dismantled and the Gershonites and Merarites set out, carrying the Dwelling.
18 Then came the standard of the camp of the Reubenites and their units, with 19 Elizur son of Shedeur commanding that company; •Shelumiel son of Zurishaddai 20 commanding the tribal company of the Simeonites; •and Eliasaph son of Reuel commanding the tribal company of the Gadites.
21 Then came the Kohathites carrying the sanctuary (the Dwelling was erected before they arrived).
22 Then came the standard of the camp of the Ephraimites and their units, with 9 a. The section 9:1–14 (still the Priestly tradition) does not fit into the chronological scheme of ch. 1 (whose starting-point is the second month, 1:1). It supplements the great Priestly rulings on the Passover, Ex 12, with a clause of considerable interest to the Jews of the Dispersion, who were obliged to come to Jerusalem to keep the Passover, Dt 16:2, but were rendered ritually unclean by the exigencies of the journey and consequently risked missing the Passover owing to the time required for purification.

b. Alternative translation 'obeyed Yahweh's instructions'.

10 a. The Hebr. word primarily means a sacred war cry, v. 9; 31:6, and see Jos 6:5, 20; Am 1:14; 2:2; Zp 1:16; etc., part of the ark ceremonial, 1 S 4:5, see 2 S 6:15, each stage of the journey being regarded as a march to battle. Acclamations were also in use on royal occasions, 23:21, see 1 K 1:34, 40, and at religious festivals, Nb 29:1; Lv 25:9; Ps 33:3a.

b. Gk and Vet. Lat. here add 'At the third blast of the trumpet accompanied by a battle cry, the camps on the west side will set out. At the fourth blast of the trumpet accompanied by a battle cry, the camps on the north side will set out.'

c. In Syr. Hex. and Sam. this v. is preceded by: 'Yahweh said to Moses, "You have stayed long enough at this mountain. Go, leave here and go to the hill country of the Amorites, to all those who dwell in the Plain, the uplands, the lowlands, the Negeb and the sea coast, of Canaan and the Lebanon as far as the great River, the River Euphrates. Look, I have put the country in front of you; go and take possession of the country which I swore to your fathers Abraham, Isaac and Jacob that I would give to their descendants after them."'

Elishama son of Ammihud commanding that company; ·Gamaliel son of Pedahzur 23 commanding the tribal company of the Manassehites; ·and Abidan son of Gideoni 24 commanding the tribal company of the Benjaminites.
Last of all, the rearguard of all the camps, came the standard of the camp of the 25
Danites and their units, with Ahiezer son of Ammishaddai commanding that company; ·Pagiel son of Ochran commanding the tribal company of the Asherites; 26 and Ahira son of Enan commanding the tribal company of the Naphtalites. 27
Such was the order of march for the Israelites, unit by unit. So they set out. 28

Moses' proposal to Hobab [d]

Ex 2:15–22 Moses said to Hobab son of Reuel the Midianite, his father-in-law, 'We are setting 29
Gn 12:2 out for the country of which Yahweh has said: I shall give it to you. Come with us, and we will treat you well, for Yahweh has promised good things for Israel.' ·'I will 30 not come with you,' he replied, 'but shall go to my own country and kin.' ·'Do not 31 leave us,' Moses said, 'for you know where we can camp in the desert, and so you will be our eyes. [e] ·If you come with us, we shall share with you whatever blessings 32 Yahweh gives us.'

The departure

They set out from Yahweh's mountain and travelled for three days, while the ark 33
Dt 1:33 of the covenant of Yahweh preceded them on the three-day journey, searching out a place for them to halt.
9:15–23 /In the daytime, Yahweh's cloud was over them, once they had broken camp. 34
Ex 40:34–38 Whenever the ark set out, Moses would say: 35

‖Ps 68:1
Is 33:3;42:13+ Rise, Yahweh, may your enemies be scattered and those who hate you flee at your approach!

And when it halted, he would say: 36

Come back, Yahweh,
to the countless thousands of Israel! [g]

V: THE HALTS IN THE DESERT

Taberah

Ex 14:11+ 11 Now the people began to complain, which was offensive to Yahweh's ears. 1 Dt 9:22 When Yahweh heard, his anger was aroused and the fire of Yahweh broke out among them; [a] it devoured one end of the camp. ·The people appealed to 2
Ex 32:11e Moses who interceded with Yahweh and the fire died down. ·So the place was 3 called Taberah, because the fire of Yahweh had broken out among them. [b]

‖Ex 16 Kibroth-ha-Taavah. [c] The people complain

The rabble who had joined the people were feeling the pangs of hunger, and the 4 Israelites began to weep again. 'Who will give us meat to eat?' they said. ·'Think of 5 the fish we used to eat free in Egypt, the cucumbers, melons, leeks, onions and garlic! ·But now we are withering away; there is nothing wherever we look except 6 this manna!'
Ex 16:14 The manna was like coriander seed and had the appearance of bdellium. ·The 7, 8 people went round gathering it, and ground it in a mill or crushed it with a pestle;
it was then cooked in a pot and made into pancakes. It tasted like cake made with oil. ·When the dew fell on the camp at night-time, the manna fell with it. 9

Ex 32:11e The prayer of Moses

Moses heard the people weeping, each family at the door of its tent. Yahweh's 10 anger was greatly aroused; Moses too found it disgraceful, ·and he said to Yahweh: 11

'Why do you treat your servant so badly? In what respect have I failed to win Ex 3:11;4:1; 5:22 12 your favour, for you to lay the burden of all these people on me? ·Was it I who conceived all these people, was I their father, for you to say to me, "Carry them in your arms, like a foster-father carrying an unweaned child, to the country which I 13 swore to give their fathers"? ·Where am I to find meat to give all these people, Mk 8:4par.
14 pestering me with their tears and saying, "Give us meat to eat"? ·I cannot carry all Ex 18:18 Dt 19:11
15 these people on my own; the weight is too much for me. ·If this is how you mean to 1 K 3:9; 19:4
treat me, please kill me outright! If only I could win your favour and be spared the sight of my misery!'

Yahweh replies

16 Yahweh said to Moses, 'Collect me seventy of the elders of Israel, men you know Ex 18:21–26 to be the people's elders and scribes. Bring them to the Tent of Meeting, and let Jos 1:10 17 them stand beside you there. ·I shall come down and talk to you there and shall 2 K 2:9
take some of the spirit which is on you and put it on them. Then they will bear the burden of the people with you, and you will no longer have to bear it on your own.
18 'And say to the people, "Purify yourselves for tomorrow and you will have meat Ex 19:10 to eat, since you have wept in Yahweh's hearing, saying: Who will give us meat to eat? How happy we were in Egypt! Very well, Yahweh will give you meat to eat.
19, 20 You will eat it not for one day, or two, or five, or ten or twenty, ·but for a whole month, until it comes out of your nostrils and sickens you, since you have rejected Yahweh who is among you, and have wept before him saying: Why did we ever leave Egypt?" '
21 Moses said, 'The people round me number six hundred thousand foot soldiers, 1:46e
22 and you say, "I shall give them meat to eat for a whole month"! ·If all the flocks Jn 6:7,9 and herds were slaughtered, would that be enough for them? If all the fish in the 23 seas were collected, would that be enough for them?' ·Yahweh said to Moses, 'Is the arm of Yahweh so short? You shall see whether the promise I have made to Is 50:2;59:1 Jr 32:17 Ezk 12:25;24:14 you comes true or not.'

The spirit given to the elders

24 Moses went out and told the people what Yahweh had said. Then he collected 25 seventy of the people's elders and stationed them round the Tent. ·Yahweh descended in the cloud. He spoke to him and took some of the spirit that was on 12:7+ 1 S 10:9–13; 19:20–24 2 K 2:9
him and put it on the seventy elders. When the spirit came on them they prophesied—but only once. [d]
26 Two men had stayed back in the camp; one was called Eldad and the other Medad. The spirit came down on them; though they had not gone to the Tent, their names were enrolled among the rest. These began to prophesy in the camp.
27 A young man ran to tell Moses this. 'Look,' he said, 'Eldad and Medad are 28 prophesying in the camp.' ·Joshua son of Nun, who had served Moses since he was Jos 1:1b
29 a boy, spoke up and said, 'My lord Moses, stop them!' ·Moses replied, 'Are you Mk 9:38seq.

d. The first of a number of narratives taken not from the Priestly source but from the Yahwistic (with Elohistic insertions). • Hobab, see Ex 2:18g, was a Kenite, Nb 24:21k, of a tribe we subsequently find in league with Judah and dominating the region of Hebron, Jos 14:14; Jg 1:16f.

e. The Bedouin still call a guide 'the eye of the caravan'.

f. In Gk, this v. comes after v. 36.

g. These warlike acclamations formed part of the ritual of the ark, see also 10:5a, which had a special role in battle, 1 S 4:3 seq.; 2 S 11:11. Elsewhere the exodus from Egypt and the journey through the desert are represented as military campaigns, which indeed to some extent they were.

11 a. God's anger, usually taking the form of a punishment, is one aspect of his absolute holiness, Lv 17:1a, of his 'jealousy', Dt 4:24f, which tolerates no resistance to his plan, and particularly no infidelity to the covenant, Nb 11:33; 12:9; Dt 1:34; 6:15; 9:8; 2 Ch 19:2; Is 5:25; Na 1:2; etc. Hence it also implies mercy, Ex 34:6c. Its total and definitive manifestation is reserved for 'the Day', Am 5:18m; Zp 1:15; see Dn 8:19; Mt 3:7; Rv 19:15m.

b. The name probably means 'pasture land' but the author derives it from a similar root meaning 'to burn'.

c. The narrative of 11:4–34 combines two traditions, one about the manna and quails, vv. 4–13, 18–24[a]; 31–34, and the other about the gift of the Spirit to the elders, vv. 14–17; 24[b]–30. Ex sites the incident of the manna and quails between the departure from Egypt and the arrival at Sinai, see Ex 16:1a. Here, it is put on the road to Kadesh, see 13:26. In both cases, elements from various traditions have been grouped together in an artificial geographical framework.

d. The prophetic gift was only temporary. Alternative translation 'and could not stop'.

The quails

Ex 16:12–13
A wind, sent by Yahweh, started blowing from the sea bringing quails which it deposited on the camp. They lay for a distance of a day's march either side of the camp, two cubits thick on the ground. ·The people were up all that day and night and all the next day collecting quails: the least gathered by anyone was ten homer; then they spread them out round the camp. ·The meat was still between their teeth, not even chewed, when Yahweh's anger was aroused by the people. Yahweh struck them with a very great plague. 31 32 33

Dt 9:22
The name given to this place was Kibroth-ha-Taavah, [c] because it was there that they buried the people who had indulged their greed. 34

From Kibroth-ha-Taavah the people set out for Hazeroth, and at Hazeroth they pitched camp. 35

Miriam and Aaron criticise Moses [a] too?' Yahweh heard this. ·Now Moses was extremely humble, the humblest man on earth. 3

God's answer

Suddenly Yahweh said to Moses, Aaron and Miriam, 'Come out, all three of you, to the Tent of Meeting.' They went, all three of them, ·and Yahweh descended in 4 5
Ex 13:22h
a pillar of cloud and stood at the entrance of the Tent. He called Aaron and Miriam and they both came forward. ·Yahweh said: 6

Ex 32:11e
The prayer of Aaron and Moses

Aaron said to Moses: 11

'Oh, my Lord, please do not punish us for the sin we have been foolish enough to commit. ·Do not let her be like some monster with its flesh half eaten away when 12 it leaves its mother's womb!'

Moses pleaded with Yahweh. 'O God,' he said, 'I beg you, please heal her!' 13

Yahweh then said to Moses, 'If her father had done no more than spit in her 14 face, would she not be unclean for seven days? Have her shut out of the camp for seven days, and then have her brought in again.' [g]

Miriam was shut out of the camp for seven days. The people did not set out until 15

she returned. ·Then the people moved on from Hazeroth and pitched camp in the desert of Paran.

The reconnaissance in Canaan [a] ‖Dt 1:20–29

13 Yahweh spoke to Moses and said, ·'Send out men, one from each tribe, to reconnoitre the land of Canaan which I am giving the Israelites. Each of them is to be a leading man of the tribe.'

At Yahweh's order, Moses sent them from the desert of Paran. All of them were leading men of Israel. ·These were their names: [b]

For the tribe of Reuben, Shammua son of Zaccur:
for the tribe of Simeon, Shaphat son of Hori;
for the tribe of Judah, Caleb son of Jephunneh; Jos 14:6–14,6b for the tribe of of Issachar, Igal son of Joseph;
for the tribe of Ephraim, Hoshea son of Nun;
for the tribe of Benjamin, Palti son of Raphu;
for the tribe of Zebulun, Gaddiel son of Sodi;
for the tribe of Joseph, for the tribe of Manasseh, Gaddi son of Susi;
for the tribe of Dan, Ammiel son of Gemalli;
for the tribe of Asher, Sethur son of Michael;
for the tribe of Naphtali, Nahbi son of Vophsi;
for the tribe of Gad, Geuel son of Machi.

Such were the names of the men whom Moses sent to reconnoitre the country. Moses then gave Hoshea son of Nun the name Joshua. [c] Jos 1:1b

Moses sent them to reconnoitre the land of Canaan, [d] 'Go up into the Negeb,' he said, 'then go up into the highlands. ·See what sort of country it is, and what sort of people the inhabitants are, whether they are strong or weak, few or many, ·what sort of land they live on, whether it is good or poor; what sort of towns they live in, whether they are open or fortified; ·what sort of land it is, fertile or barren, wooded or open. Be bold, and bring back some of the country's produce.'

It was the season for early grapes. ·They went up and reconnoitred the country from the desert of Zin to Rehob, the Pass of Hamath. [e] ·They went up by way of the Negeb as far as Hebron, where Ahiman, Sheshai and Talmai, the Anakim, Jos 15:13–14,13d lived. (Hebron was founded seven years before Tanis in Egypt.) ·Reaching the Vale of Eshcol, there they lopped off a vine branch with a cluster of grapes, which Dt 1:25 two of them carried away on a pole, as well as pomegranates and figs. ·This place was called the Vale of Eshcol after the cluster which the Israelites cut there. [f]

e. This may have been a real place-name, meaning 'the graves of the Taavah' (name of a tribe?), though it has not been identified. What is clear is that tradition took it to mean 'the graves of greed', as the content of the story would have it.

12 a. Apparently an Elohistic narrative but somewhat affected by the Priestly editing.

b. In the normal sense of Cush, she would have been an Ethiopian; but in Hab 3:7, Kushan is mentioned with Midian. Moses' Cushite marriage may be a variant of the tradition of his Midianite marriage, see Ex 2:18g, in which case the wife in question would be Zipporah.

c. 'Yahweh said. . . if there is a prophet among you' conj.; 'He said. . .if your prophet, Yahweh' Hebr.

d. Answer to the complaint of v. 2. With the prophetic gift, v. 6 (Miriam herself was a prophetess, Ex 15:20), God contrasts his familiarity with Moses, see Ex 33:11 and Ex 33:20i. By way of exception certain others were given a share in the divine spirit, 11:25. God certainly raised up prophets after Moses' death, Dt 18:15, 18e, but Moses was to remain the greatest of them all, Dt 34:10, until John the Baptist, the forerunner of the new covenant, Mt 11:9–11 par.

e. For 'form' Gk and Syr. read 'glory'.

f. Miriam was the only one to be punished, although Aaron admitted himself to be as guilty as she was, v. 11. Possibly Aaron as well was punished in the original form of the story, later modified by the Priestly tradition.

g. For 'brought in again', Gk reads 'purified'.

13 a. Ch. 13–14 are composite. The Priestly tradition is easy to distinguish: it consists of the list of the scouting party, vv. 1–6; the reconnaissance of the whole country, v. 21 (in contradistinction to vv. 18 and 22); vv. 25–26, 32–33; 14:1–3, 5–10 (addition of Joshua to Caleb, see v. 30) and 26–38. The remainder belongs to the ancient Yahwistic and Elohistic tradition. • Other passages dealing with the reconnaissance of Canaan by Caleb, 32:6–15; Dt 1:19–46; Jos 14:6–14 (see Jos 6:1a), are dependent on this one, which preserves the historical memory of the Calebite group's penetration of Palestine from the south without making the detour through Transjordan. On 14:39–45 see 14:39d.

b. This list should be compared with that of ch. 1, which also begins with Reuben, but the names are different—several of them being found among the contemporaries of David.

c. Meaning, 'Yahweh saves'.

d. Compare the exploratory expeditions sent out by Joshua, Jos 2:1, and by the Danites, Jg 18. See also 21:32; Jos 7:2; Jg 1:23.

e. The extreme north of the Promised Land, see note on ch. 34 and Jg 20:1. In fact the expedition got no further than the Hebron district, v. 22.

f. Eshcol ('cluster') is a valley near Hebron.

Dt 1:25seq. The expedition's report

After forty days they returned from reconnoitring the country. ·Making their way 25, 26 to Moses, Aaron and the whole community of Israel, in the desert of Paran, at Kadesh, [g] they made their report to them and the whole community, and displayed the country's produce.

This was the report they gave: 'We made our way into the country where you 27
Ex 3:8 sent us. It does indeed flow with milk and honey; here is what it produces. ·At the 28 same time, its inhabitants are a powerful people; the towns are fortified and very big; yes, and we saw the Anakim there. ·The Amalekites occupy the Negeb area, 29
the Hittites, Jebusites and Amorites the highlands, and the Canaanites the sea coast and the banks of the Jordan.'

Caleb called the people round Moses to silence and then said, 'We must march 30 in immediately and take it; we are certainly able to conquer it.' ·But the men who 31 had been with him said, 'We cannot attack these people; they are stronger than we are.' ·And they began disparaging the country they had reconnoitred to the 32 Israelites, saying, 'The country we have been to reconnoitre is a country that devours its inhabitants. All the people we saw there were of enormous size. ·We 33 Dt 1:28g saw giants there too (the Anakim, descended from the Giants). We felt like grasshoppers, and so we seemed to them.'

‖Dt 1:26–32 The rebellion of Israel

Ex 14:11+ 14 The whole community then cried out in dismay, and the people wept all that 1 night. ·All the Israelites muttered at Moses and Aaron, and the whole 2 community said to them, 'Would to God we had died in Egypt, or even that we had died in this desert! ·Why has Yahweh brought us to this country, for us to perish by 3 the sword and our wives and children to be seized as booty? Should we not do better to go back to Egypt?' ·And they said to one another, 'Let us appoint a leader 4 and go back to Egypt.'

At this, Moses and Aaron threw themselves on their faces in front of the whole 5 assembled community of Israelites, ·while Joshua son of Nun and Caleb son of 6 Jephunneh, two of the men who had reconnoitred the country, tore their clothes and addressed the whole community of Israelites as follows, 'The country we went 7 to reconnoitre is a good country, an excellent country. ·If Yahweh is pleased with 8 us, he will lead us into this country and give it to us. It is a country flowing with milk and honey. ·But do not rebel against Yahweh or be afraid of the people of the 9 country, for we shall gobble them up. Their protecting shade [e] has deserted them, while we have Yahweh on our side. Do not be afraid of them.'

Ex 32:7–14 Yahweh's anger. Moses intercedes

The whole community was talking of stoning them, when the glory of Yahweh 10 appeared to all the Israelites, inside the Tent of Meeting, ·and Yahweh said to 11
Moses:

'How much longer will these people treat me with contempt? How much longer Jn 12:37 will they refuse to trust me, in spite of all the signs I have displayed among them?
Ex 32:10 I shall strike them with pestilence and disown them. And of you I shall make a 12
Gn 12:2 new nation, greater and mightier than they are.'

Moses said to Yahweh: 13

'Suppose the Egyptians hear about this—for by your power you brought these people out of their country—·and tell the people living in this country. They have 14
Ex 33:14seq.; 34:9–10 9:15–23 Ex 13:21–22 heard that you, Yahweh, are with this people, and that you, Yahweh, show yourself to them face to face; that your cloud stands over them and that you go before them in a pillar of cloud by day and a pillar of fire by night. ·If you kill this 15 people now as though it were one man, then the nations who have heard about you will say, ·"Yahweh was not able to bring this people into the country which he had 16 sworn to give them, and so he has slaughtered them in the desert." ·No, my Lord! 17

Now is the time to assert your power as you promised when you said, earlier, ‖Ex 34:6–7,6+ 18 "Yahweh, slow to anger and rich in faithful love, forgiving faults and transgression, and yet letting nothing go unchecked, punishing the parents' guilt in the 19 children to the third and fourth generation." ·In your most faithful love, please forgive this people's guilt, as you have done from Egypt until now.'

Pardon and punishment ‖Dt 1:34–40

20, 21 Yahweh said, 'I forgive them as you ask. ·But—as I live, and as the glory of Ex 24:16f
22 Yahweh fills the whole world—·of all these people who have seen my glory and the Ps 57:5; 72:19 Is 6:3;11:9 Hab 3:3 ·↗Heb 3:16–19 signs that I worked in Egypt and in the desert, who have put me to the test ten 23 times already and not obeyed my voice, ·not one shall see the country which I promised to give their ancestors. Not one of those who have treated me contemp-
24 tuously will see it. ·However, since my servant Caleb is of another spirit and since he has obeyed me completely, I shall bring him into the country where he has been,
25 and his descendants will own it ·(the Amalekites and Canaanites occupy the plain). Tomorrow you will turn about and go back into the desert, in the direction of the Sea of Suph.'

26 Yahweh then spoke to Moses and Aaron [b] and said:

27 'How much longer am I to endure this perverse community muttering against 28 me? I have heard what the Israelites mutter against me. ·Say to them, "As I live, 29 Yahweh declares, I shall do to you what I have heard you saying. ·In this desert your dead bodies will fall, all you who were counted in the census, from the age of 1:18seq.
30 twenty years and over who have muttered against me. ·I swear none of you will enter the country where I swore most solemnly to settle you, except Caleb son of 31 Jephunneh, and Joshua son of Nun. ·Your children, who you said would be seized as booty, will be the ones whom I shall bring in so that they get to know the country
32, 33 you disdained, ·but, as for you, your dead bodies will fall in this desert ·and your children will be nomads in the desert for forty years, bearing the consequences of 34 your faithlessness, until the last one of you lies dead in the desert. ·For forty days you reconnoitred the country. Each day will count as a year: for forty years you will bear the consequences of your guilt and learn what it means to reject me." [c]
35 I, Yahweh, have spoken: this is how I swear to treat this entire perverse community united against me. In this desert, to the last man, they shall die.'

36 The men whom Moses had sent to reconnoitre the country and who on their return had incited the whole community of Israel to mutter about him by disparaging it,
37 ·these men who had disparaged the country were all struck dead before 38 Yahweh. ·Of the men who had gone to reconnoitre the country, only Joshua son of Nun and Caleb son of Jephunneh were left alive.

An abortive attempt by the Israelites [d] 20:12c Dt 1:41–45

39 When Moses told all the Israelites what had been said, the people set up a great 40 outcry. ·Early next morning they set out for the heights of the hill country saying, 'Look, we will set out for the place about which Yahweh said that we have certainly

g. Not a town or precise point, but a region: the principal oasis to the north of Sinai, 56 miles (90 km) southwest of Beersheba. The name is preserved by the spring of Ain Qadeis. Time out of mind, this oasis had been a staging-post for caravans.

14 a. Designation for the Canaanite gods, seen as combating the formidable heat of the sun. For 'protecting shade', Gk has '(favourable) season'.

b. vv. 26–38 are parallel with vv. 11–25 but the outlook of the Priestly tradition (compare its interest in the census) has influenced their editing.

c. Or possibly 'know my displeasure'.

d. A theological conclusion to this lengthy narrative: on the threshold of the Promised Land, Israel lacks faith and wants to return to Egypt; then, contrary to God's wishes, attacks, unaccompanied by the ark of Yahweh. This is an inversion of the themes of exodus and holy war: Israel was defeated and rejected in the desert; which explains why the long detour through Transjordan became necessary. The narrative is an attempt to reconcile a particular tradition relating to Caleb (penetration of Canaan from the south) with the tradition which had become common to all Israel (penetration from the east). It makes use of a different tradition relating to Hormah, see v. 45e.

e. Probably Tell el-Meshash, east of Beersheba, 47 miles (75 km) north of Kadesh, on the edge of the mountainous country. As the Israelites had reached 'the heights of the hill country', v. 44, they had gone beyond Hormah, on which they were now thrown back. They had, therefore, already conquered this town, see 21:1a.

sinned.' ·To which, Moses said, 'Why disobey Yahweh's order? No success will 41 come of doing so. ·Do not go, for Yahweh is not among you, and you will be 42 defeated by your enemies. ·For the Amalekites and the Canaanites are ahead of 43 you, and you will be put to the sword, since you have turned away from Yahweh, and Yahweh is not with you.' ·All the same, they presumptuously set off for the 44 10:35 heights of the hill country. Neither the ark of the covenant of Yahweh nor Moses Ex 17:8d left the camp. ·The Amalekites and Canaanites living in those highlands then came 45
Jg 1:17 down, defeated them and harried them all the way to Hormah. [e]

VI: LAWS GOVERNING SACRIFICES. POWERS OF PRIESTS AND LEVITES [a]

Ex 29:40seq. Lv 2:1–10; 23:18

Cereal offerings to accompany sacrifices

15 Yahweh spoke to Moses and said, ·'Speak to the Israelites and say: 1, 2
"When you have arrived in the country where you are to live and which I am giving to you, ·and you burn food as an offering to Yahweh either as a burnt 3 offering or as a sacrifice, whether in payment of a vow, or as a voluntary gift, or on the occasion of one of your solemn feasts, from your herds and flocks as a smell pleasing to Yahweh: ·the offerer will, as his personal gift to Yahweh, bring a cereal 4 offering of one-tenth of an ephah of fine flour mixed with one-quarter of a hin of oil. ·You will also make a libation of wine, one-quarter of a hin to each lamb, in 5 addition to the burnt offering or sacrifice. ·For a ram, you will make a cereal 6 offering of two-tenths of an ephah of fine flour mixed with one-third of a hin of oil, and a libation of one-third of a hin of wine as a smell pleasing to Yahweh. ·If you 7, 8 offer a bull as a burnt offering or sacrifice, in payment of a vow or as a communion sacrifice for Yahweh, ·in addition to the animal you will offer a cereal offering of 9 three-tenths of an ephah of fine flour mixed with half a hin of oil, ·and you will 10 offer a libation of half a hin of wine, as food burnt as a smell pleasing to Yahweh.
This will be done for every bull, every ram, every lamb or kid. ·Whatever the 11, 12 number of victims you intend to offer, you will do the same for each of them, however many there are.

"Every citizen of the country will act in this way whenever he offers food burnt 13
Ex 12:48o as a smell pleasing to Yahweh; ·and if an alien residing with you or with your 14 descendants intends to offer food burnt as a smell pleasing to Yahweh, he will do as you do. ·There will be one law for you, members of the community, and the 15 9:14;15:29seq. Lv 17:13;24:22 resident alien alike, a law binding your descendants for ever: before Yahweh you and the alien are no different.' ·One law, one statute, will apply for you and the 16 alien." '

Dt 26:1a,2

The first-fruits of bread

Yahweh spoke to Moses and said, ·'Speak to the Israelites and say: 17, 18
"When you have entered the country to which I am bringing you, ·you will set a 19 portion aside for Yahweh when you eat that country's bread. ·You will set one 20 cake aside as the first-fruits of your dough; you will set this offering aside like the one set aside from your threshing. ·For all future generations you will set a portion 21 of your dough aside for Yahweh.

Lv 4

Expiation for faults of inadvertence

"If through inadvertence you fail in any of these orders which Yahweh has given to 22 Moses ·(whatever orders Yahweh has given you or your descendants through 23 Moses, from the day when Yahweh gave his orders), ·this is what must be done: 24
"If it is an inadvertence on the part of the community, the community as a whole will offer a young bull as a burnt offering, as a smell pleasing to Yahweh, with the prescribed accompanying cereal offering and libation, and a he-goat as a sacrifice

25 for sin. •The priest will perform the rite of expiation for the entire community of Israelites, and they will be forgiven, since it was an inadvertence. Once they have brought their offering as food burnt for Yahweh, and have presented their sacrifice 26 for sin before Yahweh to make amends for their inadvertence, •the whole community of Israelites will be forgiven, as also the alien residing with them, since the entire people acted by inadvertence.
27 "If it is an individual who has sinned by inadvertence, he will offer a yearling kid
28 as a sacrifice for sin. •The priest will perform the rite of expiation before Yahweh for the person who has gone astray owing to this sin of inadvertence and, expiation 29 having been made for him, he will be forgiven; •whether he is an Israelite citizen or a resident alien, you will have one law for anyone who sins by inadvertence.
30 "But the individual who acts deliberately, be he citizen or alien, commits an 31 outrage against Yahweh, and such a man will be outlawed from his people. •Since he has treated Yahweh's word with contempt and has disobeyed his order, such a man will be outlawed absolutely and will bear the consequences of his guilt." '[b]

Sabbath-breaking

Ex 20:8f; 31:12–17; 35:1–3

32 While the Israelites were in the desert, a man was caught gathering wood on the 33 Sabbath day. •Those who caught him gathering wood brought him before Moses, 34 Aaron and the whole community. •He was kept in custody, because the penalty he Lv 24:12
35 should undergo had not yet been fixed. •Yahweh said to Moses, 'This man must be 36 put to death. The whole community will stone him outside the camp.' •The whole community took him outside the camp and stoned him till he was dead, as Yahweh had ordered Moses.

Tassels on clothes

Dt 22:12

37, 38 Yahweh spoke to Moses and said, •'Speak to the Israelites and tell them, for all generations to come, to put tassels on the hems of their clothes and work a violet Mt 9:20;23:5 39 thread into the tassel at the hem.[c] •You will thus have a tassel, and the sight of it will remind you of all Yahweh's orders and how you are to put them into practice, and not follow the dictates of your own heart and eyes, which have led you to be unfaithful.
40 'This will remind you of all my orders; put them into practice, and you will be 41 consecrated to your God. •I, Yahweh your God, have brought you out of Egypt, to be your God, I, Yahweh your God.'

The rebellion of Korah, Dathan and Abiram[a]

Lv 10:1–3
Ps 106:16–18
Si 45:18–20
Jude 11

1 16 Now Korah son of Izhar, son of Kohath the Levite, and the Reubenites 2 Dathan and Abiram sons of Eliab, and On son of Peleth were proud[b] •and rebelled against Moses with two hundred and fifty Israelites who were leaders of 3 the community, prominent at the solemn feasts, men of repute. •These banded together against Moses and Aaron and said to them, 'You take too much on yourselves! The whole community, all its members, are consecrated, and Yahweh Ex 19:3c, 6+ lives among them. Why set yourselves higher than Yahweh's community?' Is 61:6 4, 5 On hearing this, Moses threw himself on his face. •Then he said to Korah and all

15 a. Priestly tradition resumed. The essential part of this section describes the revolt(s) of Korah, Dathan and Abiram, emphasising the divine origin of authority in the community and the primacy of Aaron. To this some other laws and related episodes have been added.

b. An enactment of great importance which appears to make forgiveness impossible when the fault is deliberate (lit. 'with a high hand'). At this period, however, we must not look for an exact definition of 'deliberation'.

c. The tassel with a violet thread, playing an important part in religious costume, was to be a reminder of the sacred character of the community. Ancient reproductions of Palestinian costume show tassels hanging all round the hem (so also Dt 22:12), but in the Jewish period the tassels were almost always confined to its four corners. vv. 37–41 form the last part of the prayer known as the shema, Dt 6:4b.

16 a. Most critics agree that two parallel narratives are fused together in these chapters. The Yahwistic or Elohistic (vv. 1^b–2^a, 12–15, 25–34) is concerned with the political revolt of the Reubenites, Dathan and Abiram; the Priestly (vv. 1^a, 2^b–11, 16–24, 35) with the religious pretensions of the Kohathites at the Aaronites' expense.

b. Emended in accordance with Hex. and the meaning of the root yaqah in Arabic; 'took' Hebr.

tomorrow, and the one whom Yahweh chooses will be the consecrated man. Levites, you take too much on yourselves!'

Moses then said to Korah, 'Now listen, you Levites! ·Is it not enough for you 8, 9 3:45;8:14–19 that the God of Israel has singled you out of the community of Israel, and called you to be near him, to serve in Yahweh's Dwelling and to represent the community by officiating on its behalf? ·He has called you to be near him, you and all your 10 brother Levites with you, and now you want to be priests as well! ·For which 11 reason, you and all in your party have banded together against Yahweh himself: for what is Aaron, that you should mutter against him?'

Moses then summoned Dathan and Abiram sons of Eliab. They replied, 'We 12 will not come. ·Is it not enough for you to have brought us away from a country 13
Ex 3:8e flowing with milk and honey [e] to kill us in the desert, without your making yourself our absolute ruler? ·What is more, you have not brought us to a country flowing 14 with milk and honey and you have not given us fields and vineyards for our heritage. Do you think you can hoodwink these people? We will not come.' ·Moses 15 1 S 12:3–5 flew into a rage and said to Yahweh, 'Disregard their cereal offering! I have not taken so much as a donkey from them, nor have I wronged any of them.'

The punishment

Moses said to Korah, 'You and all your party, come before Yahweh tomorrow, 16 you and they, and Aaron too. ·Each will take his censer, put incense in it, and 17 bring his censer before Yahweh—two hundred and fifty censers. You and Aaron too will each bring his censer.' ·Each of them took his censer, put fire in it and 18 placed incense on it, and stood at the entrance to the Tent of Meeting with Moses and Aaron. ·Then, Korah having assembled the whole community to confront 19 them at the entrance to the Tent of Meeting, the glory of Yahweh appeared to the whole community.

Yahweh then spoke to Moses and Aaron. He said, ·'Get away from this com- 20, 21 munity; I am going to destroy them here and now.' ·They threw themselves on 22 27:16 their faces and cried out, 'O God, God of the spirits that gave life to every living Jb 12:10 thing, will you be angry with the whole community because one man has sinned?'
Rv 22:6 Yahweh then said to Moses, ·'Speak to the community and say, "Stand well clear 23, 24
Gn 18:16–33 of Korah's tent." ' [d].

Moses stood up and went to Dathan and Abiram; the elders of Israel followed 25 him. ·He spoke to the community and said, 'Stand away, I tell you, from the tents 26 of these sinners, and touch nothing that belongs to them, for fear that with all their sins you too will be swept away.' ·So they moved away from Korah's tent. 27

Dathan and Abiram had come out and were standing at their tent doors, with their wives, their sons and their little ones. ·Moses said, 'This is how you will know 28
Ex 3:12; that Yahweh himself has sent me to perform all these tasks and that I am not doing
4:30–31 them of my own accord. ·If these people die a natural death such as men commonly 29
Jn 2:11f die, then Yahweh has not sent me. ·But if Yahweh does something utterly new, if 30 the earth should open its mouth and swallow them and all their belongings, so that they go down alive to Sheol, then you will know that these men held Yahweh in contempt.'

The moment he finished saying all this, the ground split apart under their feet, 31 the earth opened its mouth and swallowed them, their families, all Korah's people 32 and all their property. [e]

Ps 55:15 They went down alive to Sheol [f] with all their belongings. The earth closed over 33 them and they disappeared in the middle of the community. ·At their cries, all the 34 Israelites round them took to their heels, saying, 'We do not want the earth to swallow us too!'

35 Fire then shot out from Yahweh and consumed the two hundred and fifty men offering incense. Lv 10:1-3

The censers

1, 2 16:36, 37 17 Yahweh then spoke to Moses and said, •'Tell Eleazar son of Aaron the priest to pick the censers out of the smouldering remains and scatter the fire
38 3 from them away from here, •for these sinful censers have become sanctified at the price of human lives.[a] Since they were brought before Yahweh and thus became consecrated, they must be hammered into sheets to cover the altar. They will be an object-lesson to the Israelites.' Lv 10:1-3
39 4 The priest Eleazar took the bronze censers which had been carried by the men
40 5 destroyed by the fire. They were hammered into sheets to cover the altar. •They are a reminder to the Israelites that no unauthorised person, no one not of Aaron's line, may approach and offer incense before Yahweh, on pain of suffering the fate of Korah and his party, as Yahweh had said through Moses. 1:51+

Aaron intercedes[b]

41 6 On the following day, the whole community of Israelites were muttering against Moses and Aaron and saying, 'You are responsible for killing Yahweh's people!'
42 7 Now, as the community was banding together against Moses and Aaron, they turned towards the Tent of Meeting, and there was the cloud covering it, and the 43 8 glory of Yahweh appeared. •Moses and Aaron then went to the front of the Tent of Meeting.
9, 10 44 45 Yahweh spoke to Moses and said, •'Get away from this community; I am going to destroy them here and now.' They threw themselves on their faces. 16:21 Ws 18:20-25
46 11 Moses then said to Aaron, 'Take a censer, put fire in it from the altar, place incense on it and hurry to the community to perform the rite of expiation for them:
47 12 for retribution has come from Yahweh, plague has broken out.' •Aaron took it as Moses said and ran into the middle of the community, but plague had already broken out among the people. He put in the incense and performed the rite of 48 13 expiation for the people. •Then he stood between the living and the dead, and the 49 14 plague stopped. •There were fourteen thousand seven hundred victims of the 50 15 plague, apart from those who died because of Korah. •Aaron then went back to Moses at the entrance to the Tent of Meeting; the plague had been halted.

Aaron's branch

16.17 17:1,2 Yahweh spoke to Moses and said, •'Tell the Israelites to give you a branch[c] for each of their families, one for each leader of each family: twelve branches. Write
3 18 the name of each on his branch; •and on the branch of Levi write Aaron's name,
4 19 since the head of the Levite families must have a branch too. •You will then put them inside the Tent of Meeting in front of the Testimony, where I make myself Ex 25:21-22
5 20 known to you. •The man whose branch sprouts will be the one I have chosen; this is how I shall put an end to the mutterings of the Israelites about you.'
6 21 Moses spoke to the Israelites, and all their leaders gave him one branch each,

c. Here the expression normally used of the Promised Land is uniquely applied to Egypt.

d. Hebr. adds 'Dathan and Abiram'; Gk omits.

e. The story of the revolt of Dathan and Abiram, earlier than the other (see 16:1a), takes no account of individual responsibility. The end of the v. was added when the two narratives were fused together.

f. A word of unknown origin, meaning the underworld. Dt 32:22; Is 14:9; etc., to which the dead 'go down'. Gn 37:35; 1 S 2:6; etc., and where the virtuous and wicked alike, 1 S 28:19g; Ps 89:48; Ezk 32:17–32, lead a colourless existence, Qo 9:10. God is not praised there, Ps 6:5; 88:4–5, 11–12; 115:17; Is 38:18, but the power of the living God, see Dt 5:26d, extends even into this desolate abode, 1 S 2:6; Ws 16:13; Am 9:2. The doctrine of rewards and punishments beyond the grave and of bodily resurrection, anticipated by the psalmists, Ps 16:10–11; 49:15, did not make a definite appearance until the OT period was drawing to its close, 2 M 12:38d; Ws 3–5 (where it is linked with a belief in immortality, see Ws 3:4c).

17 a. vv. 2–3 are emended in line with some of the versions; Hebr. divides differently. • The consecrated fire is scattered to avoid its being put to profane use, and the censers which it has touched have become consecrated by contact with it.

b. A supplementary passage illustrating the efficacy of Aaron's ritual expiation, see Lv 16. • At v. 9, Gk and Syr. have 'to Moses and Aaron'.

c. The Hebr. word matteh means both 'rod' and 'tribe'. The word 'branch' expresses the same symbolism: the branch of a family; see the 'shoot' of Is 11:1.

twelve branches in all for their families; Aaron's branch was among them. •Moses 22 7 placed them before Yahweh in the Tent of the Testimony. •On the following day 23 8 Moses went to the Tent of the Testimony and there, already sprouting, was Aaron's branch, representing the House of Levi; buds had formed, flowers had bloomed and almonds had already ripened. •Moses then brought out all the branches from 24 9 before Yahweh to all the Israelites; they examined them and each one took back his own branch.

Yahweh then said to Moses, 'Put Aaron's branch back in front of the Testimony, 25 10 where it will have its ritual place as a warning to the rebellious; thus you will rid me of their muttering for good, without their incurring death.' •Moses did as Yahweh 26 11 had ordered. That is what he did.

Expiation: the function of the priesthood

The Israelites then said to Moses, 'We are lost! We are dead men! We are all dead 27 12 men! •Anyone who approaches Yahweh's Dwelling with an offering will die. Are 28 13
we to be doomed to the last man?'[d]

18 Yahweh then said to Aaron: 1 ↗Heb 7:25–28 'You, your sons and your ancestor's[a] line with you will be answerable for offences against the sanctuary. You and your sons with you will be answerable for the offences of your priesthood. •You will admit your brothers of the branch of 2 Levi, your ancestor's tribe, to join you and serve you, yourself and your sons, before the Tent of the Testimony. •They must be at your service and the service of 3 the whole Tent. Provided they do not come near the sacred vessels or the altar, they will be in no more danger of death than you. •They must join you, they must 4 take charge of the Tent of Meeting for the entire ministry of the Tent, and no 3:10 unauthorised person will come near you. •You will take charge of the sanctuary 5 and charge of the altar, and retribution will never again befall the Israelites. •Of 6 the Israelites, I myself have chosen your brothers the Levites as a gift to you. As Ezr 2:43d men dedicated, they will belong to Yahweh, to serve at the Tent of Meeting. •You 7 and your sons will undertake the priestly duties in all that concerns the altar and all Ex 26:33 that lies behind the curtain.[b] You will perform the liturgy, the duties of which I 1:51+ entrust to your priesthood. But an unauthorised person approaching will incur death.'

Lv 6–7 Ezk 44:29–30 The priests' portion

Yahweh said to Aaron: 8

'I myself have put you in charge of everything set aside for me. Everything consecrated by the Israelites I give to you and your sons as your portion by perpetual decree. •Of the things especially holy, of the food offered, this is what 9 will revert to you: every offering that the Israelites give back to me,[c] whether it be a cereal offering, a sacrifice for sin or a sacrifice of reparation, is a thing especially holy and will revert to you and your sons. •You will eat the things especially holy. 10 Every male may eat them. You will regard them as sacred.

'To you will revert also whatever is set aside from the offerings of the Israelites, 11
Ex 29:24g whatever is held out with the gesture of offering; this I give to you and your sons and daughters, by perpetual decree. All members of your household may eat it unless they are unclean. •All the best of the oil, all the best of the new wine and 12 Dt 26:1a wheat, these first-fruits offered by them to Yahweh I give to you. •All the first 13 produce of the country brought by them to Yahweh will revert to you. All members of your household may eat it unless they are unclean. •Everything in Israel put 14
Lv 27:28 Ex 13:11b under the curse of destruction will revert to you. •Every first-born of all creatures 15 brought to Yahweh, be it man or beast, will revert to you, but you will have to redeem the first-born of man; you will also redeem the first-born of an unclean animal. •You will redeem it in the month in which it is born, valuing it at five 16 shekels, at the sanctuary shekel, which is twenty gerah. •But you will not redeem 17 the first-born of cow, sheep and goat. They are holy: you will sprinkle their blood

18 on the altar and burn the fat as food burnt to be a smell pleasing to Yahweh; ·the meat will revert to you, as will the forequarter that has been presented with the 19 gesture of offering, and the right thigh. ·Everything the Israelites set aside for Yahweh from the holy things, I give to you and your sons and daughters, by perpetual decree. This is a covenant of salt for ever before Yahweh, for you and Lv 2:13d your descendants too.'

The Levites' portion [d]

20 Yahweh said to Aaron:
'You will have no heritage in their country, you will not have a portion like them;
I shall be your portion and your heritage among the Israelites.
21 'Look, as heritage I give the Levites all the tithes collected in Israel, in return Dt 14:22d 22 for their services, for the ministry they render in the Tent of Meeting. ·The Israelites will no longer approach the Tent of Meeting, on pain of committing a Ex 19:12e 23 deadly sin. ·Levi will discharge the duties of the Tent of Meeting, and the Levites will bear the consequences of their own guilt. This is a perpetual decree binding all 24 your descendants: the Levites will have no heritage among the Israelites, ·for the tithe which the Israelites set aside for Yahweh is the heritage I have given the Levites. This is why I have told them that they will have no heritage among the Israelites.'

Tithes [e] Dt 14:22d

25, 26 Yahweh spoke to Moses and said, ·'Speak to the Levites and say:
"When from the Israelites you receive the tithe which I have given you from them as your heritage, you will set a portion of this aside for Yahweh: a tithe of the 27 tithe. ·It will take the place of the portion set aside that is due from you, like the 28 wheat from the threshing-floor and new wine from the press. ·Thus you too will set a portion aside for Yahweh out of all the tithes you receive from the Israelites. You 29 will give what you have set aside for Yahweh to the priest Aaron. ·Out of all the gifts you receive, you will set a portion aside for Yahweh. Out of all these things, you will set aside the best, the sacred portion." 30 'You will say to them,[f] "After you have set the best aside, the remainder will take the place, in the Levites' case, of the produce of the threshing-floor and 31 wine-press. ·You may consume this anywhere, you and the members of your 32 households; this is your recompense for serving in the Tent of Meeting, ·and you will not incur sin by doing so, once you have set aside the best; you will not be profaning the things consecrated by the Israelites and will not incur death." '

The ashes of the red heifer [a] 31:23 ↗Heb 9:13

lites, they are to bring you a red heifer without fault or blemish that has never

d. Sequel to 16:34 and linking it to what comes next. The distinction being made here is not between Aaronites and Levites but between Levites and laymen.

18 a. i.e. Levi. Here, the Levites (see 3:5–10) are associated with the Aaronites in their ministry of expiation for the people (see Lv 16:16), but only as servants.

b. The altar where the sacrifices were offered, and the Holy of Holies which only the high priest entered. The priests of the OT were primarily ministers of the altar.

c. The offerings were taken from what God had given in the first place, see 1 Ch 29:14, or were intended to make reparation for a wrong done to him, Lv 5:15 seq.

d. This Priestly legislation marks an intermediate stage between Dt 14:28–29; 26:12 (where the Levites share the tithe only once in three years) and Nb 35:1–8 (where they are endowed with land).

e. As the laity lived on the produce of the soil, so the Levites lived on the tithe, once 'the portion set aside for Yahweh' had been handed over to the priests.

f. i.e. to the Levites who, in v. 31, are addressed directly.

19 a. Ch. 19 forms a unit: the water for purification, vv. 17–22 prepared with the ashes of a red heifer slaughtered and burnt outside the camp (vv. 1–10), was used to remove the defilement incurred through contact with the dead, vv. 11–16. The rite is alluded to only once elsewhere, 31:23 (and see Heb. 9:13); it gave a legal status to an ancient, half-magical, custom by giving it the character of a sacrifice of expiation for sin, v. 17, and see vv. 4–5 with Lv 16:27; v. 8 with Lv 16:28. Certain other practices of this kind were taken over by the Mosaic Law, 5:17–28; Lv 14:2–7; 16:5–10; Dt 21:1–9. The heifer had to be red because everything red in the ancient Middle East had a prophylactic value: the colour evokes blood, the life-principle, and protects against death.

Dt 21:3 Lv 4:12c ↗Heb 13:11seq. Lv 4:5–6 Ex 12:22i Lv 14:4–6 Lv 11:25,40 Lv 4:11–12 ↗Heb 9:13 borne the yoke. 3 •You will give it to the priest Eleazar. It will then be taken outside the camp and slaughtered in his presence. 4 •The priest Eleazar will then take some of the victim's blood on his finger, and sprinkle this blood seven times towards the entrance to the Tent of Meeting. 5 •The heifer will then be burnt while he looks on; its hide, flesh, blood and offal will be burnt. 6 •The priest will then take some cedar wood, hyssop and scarlet material and throw them on the fire where the heifer is burning. 7 •He will then wash his clothes and bathe himself; after which he will go back to the camp, though he will remain unclean until evening. 8 •The man who has burnt the heifer will wash his clothes and bathe himself and will remain unclean until evening. 9 •The man who gathers up the ashes of the heifer must be ritually clean; he will deposit them outside the camp, in a clean place. They will be kept for the ritual use of the Israelite community for making water for purification; it is a sacrifice for sin. 10 •The man who has gathered up the ashes of the heifer will wash his clothes and remain unclean until evening. For the Israelites as for the resident alien, this will be a perpetual decree.

Lv 21:1 Hg 2:13

Cases of uncleanness [b]

11 'Anyone who touches the corpse of anyone whatever will be unclean for seven days. 12 •Such a person must be purified with these waters on the third and seventh day and will then be clean; otherwise he will not be clean. 13 •Anyone who touches the corpse of anyone who has died and is not purified, defiles Yahweh's Dwelling; such a person will be outlawed from Israel, since the water for purification has not been sprinkled over him; he is unclean, and his uncleanness remains in him.

14 'This is the law when someone dies in a tent. Anyone who goes into the tent, or anyone who is already in it, will be unclean for seven days, 15 •and every open vessel with no cover tied over it will also be unclean.

16 'Anyone in the open country who touches a murder victim, a corpse, human bones or a grave will be unclean for seven days.

The ritual of water for purification

17 'For someone thus unclean, some of the ashes of the victim burnt as a sacrifice for sin will be taken and spring water must be poured over them, in a vessel. 18 •Someone who is ritually clean will then take some hyssop and dip it in the water. He will then sprinkle the tent, all the vessels and people who were there, and similarly anyone who has touched human bones, a murder victim, a corpse or a grave. 19 •The clean one will sprinkle the unclean one on the third and the seventh day, and on the seventh day he will have purified him. The latter will then wash his clothes and bathe himself in water, and in the evening he will be clean. 20 •If anyone unclean fails to purify himself in this way, he will be outlawed from the community, for he would defile Yahweh's sanctuary. The water for purification has not been sprinkled over him; he is unclean.

21 'This will be a perpetual decree for them. The person who sprinkles the water for purification will wash his clothes, and anyone who touches the water for purification will be unclean until evening. 22 •Anything that an unclean person touches will be unclean, and anyone who touches it will be unclean until evening.'

The Waters of Meribah [b]

20 The Israelites, the whole community, arrived in the first month at the desert of Zin. The people settled at Kadesh. There Miriam died and was buried.

Ex 14:11+ 16:34;17:28

2 There was no water for the community, so they banded together against Moses and Aaron. 3 •The people laid the blame on Moses. 'We would rather have died', they said, 4 'as our brothers died before Yahweh! •Why have you brought Yahweh's

5 community into this desert, for us and our livestock to die here? •Why did you lead us out of Egypt, only to bring us to this wretched place? It is a place unfit for sowing, it has no figs, no vines, no pomegranates, and there is not even water to drink!'
6 Leaving the assembly, Moses and Aaron went to the entrance to the Tent of Meeting. They threw themselves on their faces, and the glory of Yahweh appeared 7, 8 to them. •Yahweh then spoke to Moses and said, •'Take the branch and call the 17:25 community together, you and your brother Aaron. Then, in full view of them, order this rock to release its water. You will release water from the rock for them and provide drink for the community and their livestock.' 9, 10 Moses took up the branch from before Yahweh, as he had directed him. •Moses keep to the high road; if I and my flocks drink any of your water, I am willing to refusal to grant Israel passage through his territory, Israel turned away.

b. The purity regulations of Lv 11–16 did not mention contact with the dead.

20 a. The narratives of which this section largely consists, derive basically from the great Yahwistic and Elohistic collections; they draw upon several traditions of varying outlook which they either place side by side or, in many cases, fuse together; it is difficult to distinguish these traditions precisely. The main theme is the steady advance of God's chosen people despite all opposition.

b. This section, from the Priestly source, is a doublet of the one in Ex 17:1–17 (see note), with a supplementary theme, the punishment of Moses and Aaron, Nb 20:12–13. Its siting at Kadesh is secondary, which place, see 13:26, cannot be the same as that described in v. 5; even so, the incident related here caused Kadesh to be called Meribah-Kadesh, see 27:14; etc.

c. What Moses and Aaron had done wrong remains a mystery. Possibly Moses showed a lack of faith in striking the rock twice, a detail not occurring in parallel Ex 17. Or possibly the Priestly editor was trying to explain why Moses and Aaron never entered the Promised Land: if so, it would account for his having placed this modified form of the story, v. 11, before the death of Aaron, vv. 22 seq.; he was later to refer to it before the death of Moses, Dt 32:51. According to Dt 1:37; 3:26; 4:21, Moses was punished on account of the people's refusal to invade Canaan from Kadesh, see Nb. 14.

d. The ancient sources are resumed at this point, following on from the departure from Kadesh, 14:25 and 14:39d. In this period, however, Kadesh was a long way from the Edomite frontier (v. 16 notwithstanding). The request was presumably presented while the Israelites were on the march, but the most ancient tradition gives no details about the itinerary taken.

e. Just before this verse Sam. and Syr. Hex. insert certain phrases taken from Dt 2:2–6 and 3:24–28.

33:38–39 Dt 10:6

The death of Aaron [f]

They set out from Kadesh, and the Israelites, the whole community, came to 22
Mount Hor. ·Yahweh spoke to Moses and Aaron at Mount Hor, on the frontier of 23
Edom, and said, ·'Aaron is to be gathered to his people; he will not enter the 24 country which I have given to the Israelites, since you both disobeyed my order at the Waters of Meribah. ·Take Aaron and his son Eleazar and bring them up Mount 25 Hor. ·Then take Aaron's robes off him and dress his son Eleazar in them. Aaron 26 will then be gathered to his people; that is where he will die.'

Moses did as Yahweh ordered. With the whole community watching, they went 27 up Mount Hor. ·Moses took Aaron's robes off him and dressed his son Eleazar in 28 them, and there Aaron died, on the mountain-top. Moses and Eleazar then came back down the mountain. ·The whole community saw that Aaron had died, and 29
Dt 34:8 for thirty days the whole House of Israel mourned for Aaron.

The capture of Hormah [a]

Jg 1:16 21 The king of Arad, [b] the Canaanite living in the Negeb, learned that Israel 1 was coming by way of Atharim. He attacked Israel and took some prisoners.
Israel then made this vow to Yahweh, 'If you deliver this people into my power, I 2
Jg 6:17c shall curse their towns with destruction.' ·Yahweh heard Israel's words and deliv- 3 ered the Canaanites into their power, and they destroyed them in accordance with their curse. Hence the place was given the name Hormah. [c]

The bronze serpent [d]

They left Mount Hor by the road to the Sea of Suph, [e] to skirt round Edom. On the 4
Ex 14:11+;22:27 way the people lost patience. ·They spoke against God and against Moses, 'Why 5 did you bring us out of Egypt to die in the desert? For there is neither food nor water here; we are sick of this meagre diet.'

Dt 8:15 ↗1 Co 10:9 At this, God sent fiery serpents [f] among the people; their bite brought death to 6 many in Israel. ·The people came and said to Moses, 'We have sinned by speaking 7 against Yahweh and against you. Intercede for us with Yahweh to save us from Ex 32:11e these serpents.' Moses interceded for the people, ·and Yahweh replied, 'Make a 8 fiery serpent and raise it as a standard. Anyone who is bitten and looks at it will

By stages to Transjordan [g]

The Israelites set out and camped at Oboth. ·Then they left Oboth and camped at 10. 11
Iye-Abarim, in the desert on the eastern border of Moab. ·They set out from there 12 and camped in the gorge of the Zered. ·They set out from there and camped on 13
the other side of the Arnon.

21:21m This gorge in the desert begins in the territory of the Amorites. For the Arnon is the frontier of Moab, between the Moabites and the Amorites. ·That is why it says 14 in the Book of the Wars of Yahweh: [h]

'. . .Waheb near Suphah and the gorges of the Arnon ·and the slope of the 15 ravine running down to the site of Ar and over against the frontier of Moab.'

And from there they went to Beer, [i] that being the well in connection with which 16
Jn 4:1a Yahweh had said to Moses, 'Call the people together and I will give them water.'
Then it was that Israel sang this song: 17

Spring up, well!
Sing out for the well,
sunk by the princes, 18
dug by the people's leaders with the sceptre, with their staves!

—and from the desert to Mattanah, [j] ·and from Mattanah to Nahaliel, and from 19 20 Nahaliel to Bamoth, ·and from Bamoth to the valley that opens into the country of Moab, towards the heights of Pisgah overlooking the desert. [k]

The conquest of Transjordan [l] ||Dt 2:26–36

21. 22 Israel sent messengers to say to Sihon king of the Amorites, [m] ·'I wish to pass Jg 11:19–20 through your country. We shall not stray into the fields or vineyards; we shall not 20:14–21 drink the water from the wells; we shall keep to the king's highway until we have passed through your territory.' 23 But Sihon would not give Israel leave to pass through his country. He assembled all his people, marched into the desert to meet Israel, and reached Jahaz, where he 24 gave battle to Israel. ·Israel defeated him by force of arms and conquered his country from the Arnon to the Jabbok, as far as the Ammonites, for Jazer [n] marked the Ammonite frontier.
25 Israel took all these towns. Israel occupied all the Amorite towns, Heshbon and 26 all its dependencies, ·Heshbon being the capital of Sihon king of the Amorites, who had made war on the first king [o] of Moab and captured all his territory as far as 27 the Arnon. ·Hence the poets say: [p]

Come to Heshbon!
Let the city of Sihon
be rebuilt on firm foundations!

28 For fire has burst from Heshbon, ||Jr 48:45–46
a flame from the city of Sihon, devouring Ar of Moab,
engulfing [q] the heights of the Arnon.
29 Oh, unhappy Moab!
People of Chemosh, you are lost!
He [r] has resigned his sons as fugitives, and his daughters as prisoners to Sihon king of the Amorites.

f. Priestly narrative. Mount Hor has not been identified. The detail 'on the frontier of Edom' reflects the exilic period when the Edomites, originally settled to the east of the Arabah, had extended westwards at the expense of Judah. see Dt 2:1b.

21 a. An ancient tradition but out of context here. Hormah, see 14:45e, was captured by the Simeonites entering Palestine from the south, Jg 1:16–17.16f. The defeat at Hormah, Nb 14:39d, occurred later.

b. The incident appears to be a gloss justified by the proximity of Arad to Hormah.

c. The author connects the name with a root meaning 'to curse with unconditional destruction for religious motives', thus hinting at the religious character of the conquest.

d. This story should be associated with the copper mines of the Arabah, where the metal was already being exploited in the 13th century BC. At Meneiyeh (now Timnah) a number of small copper snakes have been discovered, presumably used, like those of Moses, for warding off poisonous snakes. This mining area in the Arabah lies on the route from Kadesh to Aqaba, see v. 4e.

e. Towards the Gulf of Aqaba, see Dt 2:1; 1 K 9:26, not to be confused with the Suph of the Exodus (see Ex 13:18g). Settled occupation of Edom had not yet extended as far as the Gulf of Aqaba and the Israelites took the normal route allowing them to skirt round Edomite territory. This note is the only ancient information on the route taken by them.

f. 'fiery' translates saraph which is used in Is 30:6 for a winged serpent or dragon. The 'seraphs' of Is 6:2–6 comes from the same root.

g. This late passage is an attempt to fill the gaps in the ancient source material by using information in Nb 33 (see 33:1a) and Dt 2 to describe the itinerary. In it have been inserted two fragments of ancient Hebrew poetry, vv. 14–15 and 17–18.

h. A lost collection of ancient war songs, quoted only here.

i. This unique occurrence of Beer as a place-name is suspect, being perhaps taken from the song, v. 17. be'er means 'a well'.

j. The editor has misconstrued the closing words of the poem: 'and of the desert it (the well) is a gift (mattanah)', transforming the common noun into a place-name.

k. v.20 is overburdened and confused. In Hebr. 'the heights of Pisgah' are in apposition to 'the Plains of Moab'.

l. Continuation of the ancient source, interrupted after 20:22[a].

m. A small Canaanite kingdom established to the north of the Arnon, with Heshbon as its capital. Sihon had been victorious over the invading Moabites, vv. 28–29, see vv. 27 seq., 27p, but was in turn to be beaten by the Israelites.

n. 'Jazer' Gk; 'Az' Hebr.

o. Alternative trans. 'the previous king'.

p. The poem, of which v. 30 is crucial and also corrupt, can be understood in two ways. 1 It is an Amorite victory-song celebrating Sihon's defeat of Moab, inserted as a commentary on v. 26[b]; though this requires more radical emendation of v. 30, which would then mean that Heshbon had destroyed Moab. 2 It is an Israelite song, introduced by vv. 25–26, celebrating Israel's victory over Sihon, vv. 27[b] and 30 (emended), but mentioning Sihon's victory over Moab to enhance the triumph, vv. 28–29: Heshbon devoured the towns of Moab, but we, the Israelites, have destroyed Heshbon, v. 27 would then be an ironic invitation to come and rebuild it.

q. 'engulfing' bale'ah following Gk; Hebr. ba'ale 'the masters of'.

r. i.e. Chemosh.

Their posterity has been destroyed 30
from Heshbon all the way to Dibon, and we have lit a fire
all the way from Nophah to Medeba. [e]

Thus Israel occupied the Amorites' territory. ·Moses then sent men to recon- 31, 32 noitre Jazer, and Israel took it and its dependencies, evicting the Amorites who lived there.

‖Dt 3:1–7 They then turned and marched on Bashan. Og king of Bashan and all his people 33 marched to meet them and give battle at Edrei. [f] ·Yahweh said to Moses, 'Do not 34 be afraid of him, for I have put him, all his people and his country at your mercy.
Treat him as you treated Sihon king of the Amorites, who lived in Heshbon.' ·So 35 they pressed their attack against him, his sons and all his people until there was no one left alive. And they took possession of his country.

22 The Israelites then set out and pitched their camp in the Plains of Moab, 1 beyond the Jordan opposite Jericho. [a]

The king of Moab appeals to Balaam [b]

Balak son of Zippor saw all that Israel had done to the Amorites, ·and Moab was 2, 3 terrified of the people, because there were so many of them.

Moab was afraid of the Israelites; ·he said to the elders of Midian, 'This horde 4 will soon have cropped everything round us as closely as an ox crops grass in the countryside.'

Now Balak son of Zippor was king of Moab at the time. ·He sent messengers to 5 summon Balaam son of Beor, at Pethor on the River, in the territory of the Amawites, [c] saying, 'Look, a people coming from Egypt has overrun the whole countryside; they have halted at my very door. ·I beg you come and curse this 6 people for me, for they are stronger than I am. We may then be able to defeat them and drive them out of the country. For this I know: anyone you bless is blessed, anyone you curse is accursed.'

1 S 9:7d The elders of Moab and the elders of Midian set out, taking the fee for the 7 divination with them. They found Balaam and gave him Balak's message. ·He said 8 to them, 'Stay the night here, and I will answer as Yahweh directs me.' So the chiefs of Moab stayed with Balaam. ·God came to Balaam and said, 'Who are 9 these men staying with you?' ·Balaam said to God, 'Balak son of Zippor, king of 10 Moab, has sent me this message, ·"Look, a people coming from Egypt has overrun 11 the whole countryside. Come now and curse them for me; I may then be able to defeat them and drive them out." ' ·God said to Balaam, 'You are not to go with 12 them. You are not to curse the people, for they are blessed.' ·In the morning 13 Balaam got up and said to the chiefs sent by Balak, 'Go back to your country, for Yahweh will not let me go with you.' ·So the chiefs of Moab got up, went back to 14
Balak and said, 'Balaam refuses to come with us.'

And again Balak sent chiefs, more numerous and more renowned than the first. 15
They came to Balaam and said, 'A message from Balak son of Zippor, "Now do 16 not refuse to come to me. ·I will load you with honours and do whatever you say. I 17 beg you come and curse this people for me." ' ·In reply, Balaam said to Balak's 18 envoys, 'Even if Balak gave me his house full of silver and gold, I could not go against the order of Yahweh my God in anything, great or small. ·Now please stay 19 the night here yourselves, and I will learn what else Yahweh has to tell me.' ·God 20 came to Balaam during the night and said to him, 'Have not these men come to summon you? Get up, go with them, but do only what I tell you to do.' ·Balaam 21 got up and saddled his donkey [d] and set out with the chiefs of Moab.

Balaam's donkey

His going kindled Yahweh's anger, and the angel of Yahweh took his stand on the 22 road to bar his way. [e] He was riding his donkey and his two servants were with him.

23 Now the donkey saw the angel of Yahweh standing in the road with a drawn sword Jos 5:13 in his hand, and she turned off the road into the open country. Balaam then struck the donkey to turn her back onto the road.
24 The angel of Yahweh then went and stood on a narrow path among the vine-25 yards, with a wall to the right and a wall to the left. ·The donkey saw the angel of Yahweh and scraped against the wall, scraping Balaam's foot against it, so he struck her again.
26 The angel of Yahweh then moved and stood in a place so narrow that there was 27 no room to pass either to right or left. ·When the donkey saw the angel of Yahweh, she lay down under Balaam. Balaam flew into a rage and struck the donkey with his stick.
28 Yahweh then gave the donkey the power to talk, and she said to Balaam, 'What ↗2 P 2:16
29 harm have I done you, for you to strike me three times like this?' ·Balaam answered the donkey, 'Because you have been making a fool of me! If I had been carrying a 30 sword, I should have killed you by now.' ·The donkey said to Balaam, 'Am I not your donkey, and have I not been your mount all your life? Have I ever behaved like this with you before?' 'No,' he replied.
31 Yahweh then opened Balaam's eyes and he saw the angel of Yahweh standing in the road with a drawn sword in his hand; and he bowed his head and threw himself 32 on his face. ·And the angel of Yahweh said to him, 'Why did you strike your donkey three times like that? I myself had come to bar your way; while I am here 33 your road is blocked.[f] ·The donkey saw me and turned aside because of me three times. You are lucky she did turn aside, or I should have killed you by now, though 34 I would have spared her.' ·Balaam said to the angel of Yahweh, 'I have sinned.[g] I did not know you were standing in the road to stop me. But if what I am doing 35 displeases you, I will go home again.' ·The angel of Yahweh said to Balaam, 'Go with these men, but say only what I tell you to say.' So Balaam went on with the chiefs sent by Balak.

Balaam and Balak

36 Balak learned that Balaam was coming and went out to meet him, in the direction 37 of Ar in Moab,[h] at the Arnon frontier on the country's furthest boundary. ·Balak said to Balaam, 'Did I not send messengers to summon you? Why did you not come 38 to me? Did you think, perhaps, I could confer no honours on you?' ·Balaam said to Balak, 'I have come to you after all. I suppose you know I cannot say anything on my own? The words God puts into my mouth are what I shall say.' Jr 1:9 39, 40 Balaam set out with Balak. They came to Kiriath-Huzoth. ·Balak sacrificed oxen

s. 'their posterity' Gk; 'their lamp' Hebr. • 'and we . . . Medeba' conj.; Hebr. not clear.

t. The account of the war against Og serves both to round off the conquest and to justify the half-tribe of Manasseh's claim to Bashan, which the Israelites never owned in fact. Og was a figure of legend, see Dt 3:11.

22 a. lit. 'beyond the Jordan of Jericho', i.e. on a level with Jericho but on the other side of the Jordan from the point of view of someone living in Palestine.

b. The narratives forming a setting for Balaam's prophecies combine the Yahwistic and Elohistic traditions, the Elohistic being predominant; the prophecies themselves seem to be older. This long episode offers an unusual case of the prophetic function. Balaam is a soothsayer from the banks of the Euphrates who acknowledges Yahweh as his God, 22:18, etc., and blesses Israel, 23:11–12, 25–26; 24:10, see Mi 6:5. But later traditions regard Balaam as hostile, constrained by Almighty God to bless Israel against his will, Dt 23:5–6; Jos 24:9–10, see Ne 13:2, and leading Israel into idolatry at Peor, 23:28; 31:16. This later tradition is also found in the NT.

c. Pethor (on 'the River', i.e. Euphrates) and the land of Amaw (with Hebr., against 'Ammon' of Sam., Syr., Vulg.) are known from cuneiform texts.

d. Considered a princely mount in the second millennium BC, see Jg 5:10; 10:4; 12:14.

e. 'Yahweh' with Sam., and some Gk MSS; 'God' Hebr. The contradiction with v. 20 seems to point to a different tradition, see 22:2b; this narrative, being more vivid and popular in character than the foregoing, is attributed to the Yahwist; he endows animals with powers of speech, see Gn 3:1 seq.

f. lit. 'the road is overturned'. Others translate 'for this journey did not please me'.

g. Here in the sense of any action, deliberate or not, that goes against God's will.

h. The text reads 'ir mo'ab, 'a town of Moab', but it refers to Ar, a fortified town dominating the gorge of the Arnon, see 21:15. Balaam was, however, to utter his prophecies further north, near Mount Nebo, as he skirted the edge of the plateau overlooking the plain occupied by the Israelites. This was a long way north of the Arnon, marking the Moabite frontier, and in the former territory of Sihon, whom the Israelites had conquered. These narratives reflect a situation later than the conquest but earlier than the times of David, whem Moab had extended its frontiers northwards. At one point they even included Jericho, see Jg 3:12e, 13.

and sheep, and offered portions to Balaam and the chiefs who were with him.[i] Next morning Balak took Balaam and brought him up to Bamoth-Baal, from 41 where he could see the edge of the camp.[j]

23 Balaam said to Balak, 'Build me seven altars here and prepare me seven 1 bulls and seven rams.' ·Balak did as Balaam said and offered a burnt 2 offering[a] of one bull and one ram on each altar. ·Balaam then said to Balak, 'Stand 3 beside your burnt offerings while I go away. Perhaps Yahweh will come and meet me. If he does, I shall tell you whatever he reveals to me.' And he withdrew to a bare hill.

Balaam's prophecies

God came to meet Balaam, who said to him, 'I have prepared the seven altars and 4 offered a burnt offering of one bull and one ram on each altar.' ·Yahweh then put 5 a prophecy into his mouth and said to him, 'Go back to Balak, and that is what you must say to him.' ·So Balaam went back to him, and found him still standing beside 6 his burnt offering, with all the chiefs of Moab. ·He then declaimed his poem as 7 follows:[b]

Balak has brought me from Aram,
the king of Moab from the hills of Kedem:
'Come and curse Jacob for me,
come and denounce Israel!'
How shall I curse someone whom God has not cursed, 8 how denounce someone God has not denounced?
Yes, from the top of the crags I see him, 9
from the hills I descry him:
Dt 33:28 a people that dwells on its own,
not to be reckoned among other nations![c]
Gn 13:16;15:5+ Who can count the dust of Jacob? 10
Who can number the cloud of Israel?
May I die the death of the just,
and may my future be like theirs![d]

Balak said to Balaam, 'What have you done to me? I brought you to curse my 11 enemies, and you have heaped blessings on them!' ·Balaam replied, 'Am I to 12 depart from what Yahweh puts into my mouth?' ·Balak then said, 'Please come 13 somewhere else. From here you can see only the fringe of them, you cannot see them all. Curse them for me over there.' ·He led him to the Lookouts' Field on the 14 top of Pisgah. There he built seven altars and offered a burnt offering of one bull and one ram on each altar. ·Balaam said to Balak, 'Stand here beside your burnt 15 offerings while I wait[e] over there.' ·God came to meet Balaam; he put a prophecy 16 into his mouth and said to him, 'Go back to Balak, and that is what you must say to him.' ·So Balaam went to him and found him still standing beside his burnt offering 17 and all the chiefs of Moab with him. 'What did Yahweh say?' Balak said to him.
Balaam then declaimed his poem, as follows: 18

Stand up, Balak, and listen,

25 Balak said to Balaam, 'Very well! Do not curse them. But at least do not bless 26 them!' ·Balaam retorted to Balak, 'Did I not tell you? Whatever Yahweh says, I must do.'
27 Balak then said to Balaam, 'Come with me now and I shall take you somewhere 28 else. From there perhaps it will please God to curse them for me.' ·So Balak led 29 Balaam to the summit of Peor, overlooking the wastelands. ·Balaam then said to Balak, 'Build me seven altars here and prepare me seven bulls and seven rams.'
30 Balak did as Balaam said and offered a burnt offering of one bull and one ram on each altar.

b. lit. 'whose eye is perfect' shettam, following Gk; Hebr. shetum 'whose eye is closed'.

c. Alternative translation, 'He falls and his eyes are opened.'

d. Following Gk. The prophecy seems to be one of royal messianism; its immediate reference would seem to be either Saul who defeated the Amalekite king Agag, 1 S 15:8, or David who also fought against the Amalekites, 1 S 30. Hebr. is entirely different and may be translated: 'water will pour from his buckets, and his seed is in abundant waters.'

Balak flew into a rage with Balaam. He struck his hands together and said to 10
Balaam, 'I brought you to curse my enemies, and you have insisted on blessing them three times over! ·So now go home as fast as your legs can carry you. I pro- 11

Balaam retorted to Balak, 'Did I not tell the messengers you sent me, ·"Even if 12, 13 order and do anything of my own accord, whether for good or ill; whatever Yahweh says is what I shall say"? ·Now that I am going back to my own folk, let me warn 14 you what this people will do to your people, in days to come.' ·He then declaimed 15 his poem, as follows:

The prophecy of Balaam son of Beor,
the prophecy of the man with far-seeing eyes,
the prophecy of one who hears the words of God, 16
of one who knows the knowledge of the Most High.
He sees what Shaddai makes him see,

Balaam then looked at Amalek and declaimed his poem, as follows: 20

Ex 17:8d Amalek, the earliest of nations!
Ex 17:14 1 S 15:3 But his posterity will perish forever. [j]

He then looked at the Kenites and declaimed his poem, as follows: 21 your nest [k] perched high in the rock.

But the nest belongs to Beor; 22
how long will you be Asshur's captive? [l]

He then declaimed his poem, as follows: 23

10, 11 Yahweh then spoke and said, ·'The priest Phinehas son of Eleazar, son of Aaron has deflected my wrath from the Israelites, he being the only one of them to have the same zeal as I have; for which reason, I did not make an end of the Israelites in 12, 13 my zeal. ·For this reason I say: To him I grant my covenant of peace. ·To him and his descendants after him, this covenant will assure the priesthood for ever. In reward for his zeal for his God, he will have the right to perform the ritual of expiation for the Israelites.' [f]

15 The woman, the Midianite who was killed, was called Cozbi, daughter of Zur, chief of a clan, of a family, in Midian.

16, 17 Yahweh then spoke to Moses and said, ·'Harass the Midianites, strike them
18 down, ·for harassing you with their guile in the Peor affair and in the affair of their sister Cozbi, the daughter of a prince of Midian, the woman who was killed the day the plague came on account of the business of Peor.'

e. Israel. The remainder of the v. is uncertain and the text corrupt. For 'corpses', MT reads 'nations'.

f. In the ancient Middle East a star signified a god and, consequently, a deified king. See also Is 14:12. Here the word seems to refer to the Davidic dynasty from which the Messiah was to come.

g. For 'sceptre', Gk reads 'a man'; for 'brows' it has 'chiefs'. The same Hebr. word means 'sides' (of the head) and 'frontiers'.

h. Here referring to Bedouin tribes. The poem goes on to enumerate those of Israel's enemies who lived on the borders of Canaan.

i. 'enemies': transposed from v. 18 where Hebr. has it after 'Seir'. • 'Ar', see 22:36, in place of Hebr. 'town'.

j. 'will perish forever' Sam.; 'will be until ruin (?)' Hebr., as also in v. 24.

k. Play on words: qen, 'nest' and qyn, 'Kain' (the latter is here a textual restoration demanded by the rhythm). The Kenites were nomads (see 1 Ch 2:55 where they appear as closely related to the Rechabites) intimately associated with Midian (see Nb 10:29 and Jg 1:16). They were driven back by the Edomites (the Beor of v. 22 appears to be the Edomite king of Gn 36:32) but penetrated as far as Amalekite territory, Jg 1:16; 1 S 15:4–6, see 1 S 27:10; 30:29, and even as far as the Plain of Esdraelon, Jg 4:11, 17; 5:24. There is evidently a connection between Kain and Kenaz; Kenaz was father of Othniel who was brother (or nephew?) of 'Caleb the Kenizzite' (who, according to other passages was of the tribe of Judah), 32:12; Jos 14:6, 14; 15:17 Jg 1:13; 3:9–11; 1 Ch 4:13. In Gn 15:19 the Kenizzites are listed between Kenites and Kadmonites (the 'sons of the East' of Gn 29:1; Jg 6:3; etc.); in Gn 36:11–12 Kenaz is described as grandson of Esau and half-brother of Amalek—which suggests that they were neighbours rather than blood-relations.

l. Text very uncertain, emended from Gk. The mention of Asshur is surprising here and at v. 24; it cannot refer to Assyria, for then the prophecy would have to be very late (8th century BC); it may mean the tribe of Asshur mentioned in Gn 25:3; 2 S 2:9.

m. lit. (with slight emendation) 'people of the isles'. These 'peoples of the sea' (the term includes the Philistines) descended on Egypt and Palestine at the end of the 13th century BC.

n. Cyprus, and also the eastern Mediterranean seaboard. Eber: see Gn 10:21; 11:14, a people from whom Abraham was descended, Gn 11:26; the name 'Hebrew' being in some way connected with it (see 'Abram the Hebrew', Gn 14:13), whatever the real origin of the word may be.

25 a. The original story, vv. 1–5, assumes the same historical situation as the stories about Balaam, see 22:36h. The sanctuary of Baal-Peor, see 23:28, on the frontier between Israel and Moab, was frequented by both peoples, and the Moabite women seduced the Israelites into serving their gods (or god), see 31:16. vv. 6–18, linked to the same sanctuary by v. 18, are from the Priestly editor but make use of an ancient tradition about a Midianite woman. Possibly, nomadic Midianites who roved this whole area, see 22:4, 7, far away from their own territory, see Ex 2:11c, frequented this sanctuary too. The story gave rise to the account of the war against Midian, 31:1a. The Midianites who figured favourably in traditions concerning Moses, see Ex 2:18g, later became Israel's enemies, see Jg 7–9.

b. On Shittim or Abel-ha-Shittim see Jos 2:1b.

c. The sacred banquet accompanying communion sacrifices.

d. Referring forward to vv. 6–15.

e. lit. 'vaulted niche', possibly intended for ritual prostitution.

f. Alternative translation 'It is the reward for his jealous zeal for his God and for having made expiation.'

VIII: FURTHER LEGISLATION[a]

The census

26 After this plague, Yahweh spoke to Moses and to the priest Eleazar son of Aaron and said: 1

'Take a census of the whole community of Israelites, by families: all those of twenty years and over, fit to bear arms in Israel.' 2

So Moses and the priest Eleazar took a census of them on the Plains of Moab, near the Jordan by Jericho.[b] They counted ·(as Yahweh had ordered Moses and the Israelites after leaving Egypt) men of twenty years and over: 3 4

Gn 46:8–9 Reuben, the first-born of Israel. The sons of Reuben: for Hanoch, the Hanochite clan; for Pallu, the Palluite clan; ·for Hezron, the Hezronite clan; for Carmi, the Carmite clan. ·These were the Reubenite clans. They numbered forty-three thousand seven hundred and thirty men. 5 6 7

16:1–17:15 The sons of Pallu: Eliab. ·The sons of Eliab: Nemuel, Dathan and Abiram. These two, Dathan and Abiram, men of repute in the community, were the ones who revolted against Moses and Aaron; they belonged to Korah's group when it revolted against Yahweh. ·The earth opened its mouth and swallowed them (with Korah when that group perished), when fire consumed the two hundred and fifty men. They were a sign. ·Korah's sons, however, did not perish. 8. 9 10 11

Gn 46:10 The sons of Simeon by clans: for Nemuel, the Nemuelite clan; for Jamin, the Jaminite clan; for Jachin, the Jachinite clan; ·for Zerah, the Zerahite clan; for Shaul, the Shaulite clan. ·These were the Simeonite clans. They numbered twenty-two thousand two hundred men. 12 13 14

Gn 46:16 ·The sons of Gad by clans: for Zephon, the Zephonite clan; for Haggi, the Haggite clan; for Shuni, the Shunite clan; ·for Ozni, the Oznite clan; for Eri, the Erite clan; ·for Arod, the Arodite clan; for Areli, the Arelite clan. ·These were the clans of the sons of Gad. They numbered forty thousand five hundred men. 15 16 17. 18

Gn 46:12 The sons of Judah: Er and Onan. Er and Onan died in the land of Canaan. ·The other sons of Judah became clans: for Shelah, the Shelahite clan; for Perez, the Perezzite clan; for Zerah, the Zerahite clan. ·The sons of Perez were: for Hezron, the Hezronite clan; for Hamul, the Hamulite clan. ·These were the clans of Judah. They numbered seventy-six thousand five hundred men. 19. 20 21 22

Gn 46:13 Jg 10:1–2 The sons of Issachar by clans: for Tola, the Tolaite clan; for Puvah, the Puvahite clan; ·for Jashub, the Jashubite clan; for Shimron, the Shimronite clan.· These were the clans of Issachar. They numbered sixty-four thousand three hundred men. 23 24. 25

Gn 46:14 Jg 12:11–12 The sons of Zebulun by clans: for Sered, the Seredite clan; for Elon, the Elonite clan; for Jahleel, the Jahleelite clan. ·These were the clans of Zebulun. They numbered sixty thousand five hundred men. 26 27

Gn 46:20 The sons of Joseph by clans: Manasseh and Ephraim. 28

Jos 17:1 Jg 5:14 1 Ch 7:14–19 The sons of Manasseh: for Machir, the Machirite clan; Machir fathered Gilead: for Gilead, the Gileadite clan. ·These were the sons of Gilead: for Iezer, the Iezerite clan; for Helek, the Helekite clan; ·Asriel, the Asrielite clan; Shechem, the Shechemite clan; ·Shemida, the Shemidaite clan; Hepher, the Hepherite clan. Zelophehad son of Hepher had no sons, only daughters; the names of Zelophehad's daughters were Mahlah, Noah, Hoglah, Milcah and Tirzah. ·These were the clans of Manasseh. They numbered fifty-two thousand seven hundred men. 29 30 31 32 33 34

These were the sons of Ephraim by clans: for Shuthelah, the Shuthelahite clan; for Becher, the Becherite clan; for Tahan, the Tahanite clan. ·These were the sons of Shuthelah: for Eran, the Eranite clan. ·These were the clans of Ephraim. They numbered thirty-two thousand five hundred men. 35 36 37

These were the sons of Joseph by clans.

Gn 46:21 The sons of Benjamin by clans: for Bela, the Belaite clan; for Ashbel, the Ashbelite clan; for Ahiram, the Ahiramite clan; ·for Shephupham, the Shephuphamite clan; for Hupham, the Huphamite clan. ·Bela's sons were Ard and 38 39 40

41 Naaman; for Ard, the Ardite clan; for Naaman, the Naamanite clan. ·These were the sons of Benjamin by clans. They numbered forty-five thousand six hundred men.
42 These were the sons of Dan by clans: for Shuham, the Shuhamite clan. These Gn 46:23
43 were the sons of Dan by clans. ·All the Shuhamite clans numbered sixty-four thousand four hundred men.
44 The sons of Asher by clans: for Imnah, the Imnahite clan; for Ishvi, the Ishvihite Gn 46:17 45 clan; for Beriah, the Beriahite clan. ·For the sons of Beriah: for Heber, the 46 Heberite clan; for Malchiel, the Malchielite clan. ·The daughter of Asher was 47 called Serah. ·These were the clans of Asher. They numbered fifty-three thousand four hundred men.
48 The sons of Naphtali by clans: for Jahzeel, the Jahzeelite clan; for Guni, the Gn 46:24 49, 50 Gunite clan; ·for Jezer, the Jezerite clan; for Shillem, the Shillemite clan. ·These were the clans of Naphtali as divided into clans. The sons of Naphtali numbered forty-five thousand four hundred men.
51 Of the Israelites thus numbered, there were six hundred and one thousand seven 1:46e;2:32; 11:21 hundred and thirty men.
52, 53 Yahweh then spoke to Moses and said, ·'The country must be shared out among Jos 13seq.
54 these as a heritage, proportionately to the number of those inscribed. ·To the large in number you will give a large area of land, to the small in number a small area; to =33:54 55 each the heritage will be in proportion to the number registered. ·The sharing out of the country must, however, be done by lot. Each will receive a heritage 56 proportionate to the number of names in their patriarchal tribes; ·the heritage of each tribe will be shared out by lot, depending on its larger or smaller numbers.'

Census of the Levites

57 These, by clans, are the Levites that were registered: for Gershon, the Gershonite Gn 46:11 Ex 6:16–23 clan; for Kohath, the Kohathite clan; for Merari, the Merarite clan. 1 Ch 6:1–15 58 These are the Levite clans: the Libnite clan, the Hebronite clan, the Mahlite clan, the Mushite clan, the Korahite clan. [d] 59 Kohath fathered Amram. ·Amram's wife was called Jokebed daughter of Levi, Ex 6:20 born to him in Egypt. To Amram she bore Aaron, Moses and Miriam their sister.
60, 61 Aaron fathered Nadab and Abihu, Eleazar and Ithamar. ·Nadab and Abihu died 3:4 Lv 10:1–3 when they brought unauthorised fire before Yahweh.
62 Altogether twenty-three thousand males of one month and over were regis- 3:15,39 tered. They were not registered with the Israelites, since they were given no heritage with the Israelites. 18:20–24
63 Such were the men registered by Moses and the priest Eleazar who took a census 64 of the Israelites on the Plains of Moab near the Jordan by Jericho. ·Not one of them was among those whom Moses and the priest Aaron had registered when 65 they counted the Israelites in the desert of Sinai; ·for Yahweh had told them that 14:20–38 these were to die in the desert and that none of them would be left except Caleb son of Jephunneh and Joshua son of Nun.

The inheritance of daughters

1 27 There then came forward the daughters of Zelophehad son of Hepher, son 26:33 Jos 17:3–4 of Gilead, son of Machir, son of Manasseh; he belonged to the clans of Manasseh son of Joseph. His daughters' names were Mahlah, Noah, Hoglah, 26 a. These new and varied enactments are all of the Priestly tradition.

b. 'took a census of them' Targ., Syr.; 'spoke to them and said' Hebr. The census on the Plains of Moab corresponds to the one taken on leaving Sinai, ch. 1; it is more detailed and was used for drawing up the genealogy of Jacob in Gn 46 (Priestly). The order of the tribes is different in Gk, and agrees with that in Gn 46.

c. At this point, Gk inverts the order of the tribes, hence a discrepancy in the verse numbers.

d. vv. 57 and 58 give two different clan divisions of the Levites; the second is probably the earlier, preserving the memory of the original concentration of the Levites in the south (Hebron, Libnah). 1 Ch 6:1–15 attempts a reconciliation.

Milcah and Tirzah. •They appeared before Moses, the priest Eleazar, the leaders 2 and the whole community, at the entrance to the Tent of Meeting, and said, •'Our 3 father died in the desert. He was not a member of the party who banded together against Yahweh, Korah's party; it was for his own sin that he died without sons. [a] Why should our father's name be lost to his clan? Since he had no son, give us 4 some property like our father's kinsmen.'

Moses took their case before Yahweh, •and Yahweh spoke to Moses and said, 5, 6
'Zelophehad's daughters are right in what they say. You will indeed give them a 7 property to be their heritage among their father's kinsmen; see that their father's heritage is passed on to them. •Then speak to the Israelites and say, "If a man dies 8 without sons, his heritage will pass to his daughter. •If he has no daughter, the 9 heritage will go to his brothers. •If he has no brothers, his heritage will go to his 10 father's brothers. •If his father has no brothers, his heritage will go to the member 11 of his clan who is most nearly related; it will become his property. This will be a legal rule for the Israelites, as Yahweh has ordered Moses." '

‖Dt 31:1–8, 23;34:9

Joshua the head of the community

Yahweh said to Moses, 'Climb this mountain of the Abarim range, and look at the 12 country which I have given to the Israelites. •After you have seen it, you will be 13 20:12c gathered to your people, as Aaron your brother was. •For you both rebelled in the 14 desert of Zin when the community disputed with me and when I ordered you to assert my holiness before their eyes by means of the water.' (These were the Waters of Meribah of Kadesh, in the desert of Zin.)

16:22+ Moses then said to Yahweh, •'May it please Yahweh, God of the spirits that give 15, 16 life to all living creatures, to appoint a leader for this community, •to be at their 17 head in all their undertakings, a man who will lead them out and bring them in, [b] so Dt 34:9 Jos 1:1b Jg 3:10 1 K 22:17 Ezk 34:5 Mt 9:36 2 K 2:9,15 Jos 1:16–17 that Yahweh's community will not be like sheep without a shepherd.' •Yahweh 18 then said to Moses, 'Take Joshua son of Nun, a man in whom the spirit dwells, and lay your hand on him. •Bring him before the priest Eleazar and the whole com- 19 munity and give him your orders in their presence, •conferring some of your own 20 authority on him, so that the whole community of Israelites will obey him. •He will 21 present himself to the priest Eleazar who will consult Yahweh on his behalf by Dt 33:8 1 S 14:41r means of the rite of the urim; at his command, they will go out and, at his command, they will come in, he and all the Israelites with him, the whole community.'

Moses did as Yahweh had ordered. He took Joshua, brought him before the 22
Dt 34:9 priest Eleazar and the whole community, •laid his hands on him and gave him his 23 orders, as Yahweh had directed through Moses.

Regulations for sacrifices [a] burnt as a smell pleasing to me, at the proper time."

2 Moses spoke to the tribal leaders of the Israelites and said, 'This is what Yahweh has ordered:
3 "If a man makes a vow to Yahweh or a formal pledge under oath, he must not break his word: whatever he promises by word of mouth he must do.
4 "If a woman makes a vow to Yahweh or a formal pledge during her youth, while 5 she is still in her father's house, ·and if her father hears about this vow or pledge made by her and says nothing to her, her vow, whatever it may be, will be binding, 6 and the pledge she has taken, whatever it may be, will be binding. ·But if her father on the day he learns of it expresses his disapproval of it, then none of the vows or pledges she has taken will be binding. Yahweh will not hold her to it, since her father has expressed his disapproval.
7 "If, being bound by vows or by a pledge voiced without due reflection, she then Lv 5:4
8 marries, ·and if her husband hears of it but says nothing on the day he learns of it, 9 her vows will be binding and the pledges she has taken will be binding. ·But if on the day he learns of it he expresses his disapproval to her, this will annul the vow that she has made or the pledge that binds her, voiced without due reflection.
Yahweh will not hold her to it.
10 "The vow of a widow or a divorced woman and all pledges taken by her are binding on her.
11 "If she has made a vow or taken a pledge under oath while in her husband's 12 house, ·and if when the husband learns of it he says nothing to her and does not express disapproval to her, then the vow, whatever it is, will be binding, and the 13 pledge, whatever it is, will be binding. ·But if the husband when he hears of it annuls it on the day he learns of it, no undertaking of hers, be it vow or pledge, will be binding. Since the husband has annulled it, Yahweh will not hold her to it.
14 "Every vow or oath that is binding on the wife [a] may be endorsed or annulled by the husband.
15 "If by the following day the husband has said nothing to her, it means that he endorses her vow, whatever it may be, or her pledge, whatever it may be. He 16 endorses them if he says nothing on the day he learns of them. ·But if, having learnt of them, he annuls them later, he will bear the consequences for his wife's guilt." ' 17 Such were the laws which Yahweh prescribed to Moses, concerning the relationship between a man and his wife, and between a father and his daughter while still young and living in her father's home.

30 a. lit. 'that binds her to afflict her soul'. The expression commonly means 'to fast' but commentators are agreed that it has a wider sense here.

IX: BOOTY AND ITS ALLOCATION

Dt 20:1–20; 21:10–14
Jos 6:17c
1 S 15:1–33
Ex 2:15e

The holy war against Midian [a]

31 Yahweh spoke to Moses and said, 2 'Exact the full vengeance for the Israe- 1. 2 lites on the Midianites. Afterwards you will be gathered to your people.'
Moses said to the people, 'Some of you are to take up arms for Yahweh's 3 25:17–18 campaign against Midian, to carry out the vengeance of Yahweh on Midian. 4 You 4 will put a thousand men in the field from each of the tribes of Israel.'
1:16c In this way Israel's thousands provided twelve thousand men equipped for war, 5 one thousand from each tribe: 6 Moses put them in the field, one thousand from 6 25:6–13 each tribe, with Phinehas, son of the priest Eleazar, to go with them carrying the 10:9 sacred objects and the trumpets for the battle cry.
They made war on Midian, as Yahweh had ordered Moses, and put every male 7
Jos 13:21–22 to death. 8 What is more, they killed the kings of Midian, Evi, Rekem, Zur, Hur 8 and Reba, the five Midianite kings; they also put Balaam son of Beor to the sword.
The Israelites took the Midianite women and their little ones captive and carried 9 off all their cattle, all their flocks and all their goods as booty. 10 They set fire to the 10 towns where they lived and to all their encampments. 11 Then, taking all their booty, 11 everything they had captured, man and beast, 12 they brought the captives, spoil and 12 booty to Moses, the priest Eleazar and the whole community of Israelites at the camp on the Plains of Moab, near the Jordan by Jericho.

The slaughter of the women and purification of the booty

Moses, the priest Eleazar and all the leaders of the community went out of the 13 camp to meet them. 14 Moses was enraged with the officers of the army, the 14 commanders of the thousands and commanders of the hundreds, who had come back from this military expedition. 15 He said, 'Why have you spared the life of all 15 the women? 16 They were the very ones who, on Balaam's advice, caused the 16 25 Israelites to be unfaithful to Yahweh in the affair at Peor: hence the plague which ↗Rv 2:14j struck Yahweh's community. 17 So kill all the male children and kill all the women 17 who have ever slept with a man; 18 but spare the lives of the young girls who have 18 never slept with a man, and keep them for yourselves. 19 As for you, bivouac outside 19 the camp for seven days, everyone who has killed anyone or touched a corpse.
19:11–22 Purify yourselves and your prisoners on the third and seventh days, 20 and purify all 20 clothing, everything made of skin, everything woven of goats' hair and everything made of wood.'
The priest Eleazar said to the soldiers who had come back from the campaign, 21
'This is an article of the Law which Yahweh prescribed to Moses: 22 although gold, 22 silver, bronze, iron, tin and lead, 23 everything that can withstand fire can be cleaned 23 19:1–10 by being passed through fire, it must still be purified with water for purification.
Whatever cannot resist fire you must pass through water. [b]
'Wash your clothes on the seventh day and you will then be clean. You may then 24 re-enter the camp.'

The allocation of the booty

Yahweh spoke to Moses and said: 25
1 S 30:24 'With the priest Eleazar and the heads of families in the community, take a count 26 of the spoils and captives, man and beast. 27 You will then share out the spoil, half 27 and half, between those who fought the campaign and the rest of the community.
From the share of the combatants who took part in the campaign, you will set 28 aside one out of every five hundred persons, oxen, donkeys and sheep as Yahweh's portion. 29 You will take this from the half share coming to them and give it to the 29 priest Eleazar as the portion set aside for Yahweh. 30 From the half coming to the 30 Israelites, you will take one out of every fifty persons, oxen, donkeys, sheep, and all other animals, and give them to the Levites who are responsible for Yahweh's Dwelling.'

31, 32 Moses and the priest Eleazar did as Yahweh had ordered Moses. ·The spoils, the remainder of the booty captured by the soldiers, came to six hundred and 33 seventy-five thousand sheep and goats, ·seventy-two thousand head of cattle, 34, 35 sixty-one thousand donkeys, ·and in persons, women who had never slept with a 36 man, thirty-two thousand in all. ·Half was assigned to those who had taken part in the war, namely three hundred and thirty-seven thousand five hundred sheep and 37, 38 goats, ·of which Yahweh's portion was six hundred and seventy-five, thirty-six 39 thousand head of cattle, of which Yahweh's portion was seventy-two, ·thirty 40 thousand five hundred donkeys, of which Yahweh's portion was sixty-one, ·and 41 sixteen thousand persons, of which Yahweh's portion was thirty-two. ·Moses gave the priest Eleazar the portion set aside for Yahweh, as Yahweh had ordered Moses.

42 As for the half coming to the Israelites which Moses had separated from that of 43 the combatants, ·this half, the community's share, came to three hundred and 44 thirty-seven thousand five hundred sheep and goats, ·thirty-six thousand head of 45, 46 cattle, ·thirty thousand five hundred donkeys ·and sixteen thousand persons.
47 From this half, the Israelites' share, Moses took one out of every fifty, man and beast, and gave them to the Levites who were responsible for Yahweh's Dwelling, 18:26–32 as Yahweh had ordered Moses.

The offerings [c]

Jg 8:24–27

48 The officers of the thousands who had fought the campaign, the commanders of 49 the thousands and commanders of the hundreds, came to Moses ·and said, 'Your servants have numbered the soldiers under their command: none of our men is 50 missing. ·So, as an offering for Yahweh, we have brought what each of us has found in the way of gold ornaments, armlets and bracelets, rings, earrings and 51 breastplates, to make expiation for ourselves before Yahweh.' ·Moses and the 52 priest Eleazar accepted this gold from them, all this jewellery. ·This portion of gold Ex 30:11–16 given to Yahweh by the commanders of the thousands and commanders of the hundreds amounted to sixteen thousand seven hundred and fifty shekels.

53, 54 Each of the soldiers took his own booty. ·But Moses and the priest Eleazar, having accepted the gold from the commanders of the thousands and commanders of the hundreds, brought it into the Tent of Meeting, to be a reminder of the Israelites before Yahweh.

The allocation of Transjordan [a]

21:24seq., 31seq. ‖Dt 3:12–20; 33:6,20seq. Jos 1:12–18; 13:8–32

1 32 Now, the Reubenites and Gadites owned very large herds of cattle. Having seen that the territories of Jazer and Gilead formed an ideal region for 2 raising stock, ·the Gadites and Reubenites went to Moses, the priest Eleazar and 3 the leaders of the community, and said to them, ·'The territory of Ataroth, Dibon, 4 Jazer, Nimrah, Heshbon, Elealeh, Sebam, Nebo and Beon, ·which Yahweh has conquered before the advancing community of Israel, is ideal land for raising 31 a. Text of late composition (Priestly), logically following on from the incident at Peor and introducing regulations for the conduct of holy war, for the division of the booty and for the sharing out of the Holy Land.

b. Purification by fire was an ancient ritual to some degree tainted with paganism. On it, the text superimposes the ritual of water for purification, see 19:1a.

c. Like vv. 21–25 this passage appears to be an addition. Its theology is more developed: the war, holy as it is, involves contact with the profane, and expiation is required of the soldiers. This is the significance of the offering in v. 50. vv. 53–54 may be from another hand.

32 a. Deuteronomic in style and with signs of Priestly editing, this ch. draws on an ancient source, vv. 1–4, 16–19. The territory of Jazer, v. 1, lay to the north of the kingdom of Sihon. Ancient Gilead, mentioned here, lay between the territory of Jazer and the Jabbok; but as the Israelites penetrated further north, so the name Gilead came to extend as far as the River Jarmuk, Jos 13:10–12, and two halves of Gilead came to be spoken of, Dt 3:12–13; Jos 12:2, 5; 13:31. The northern half became the territory of the half-tribe of Manasseh, vv. 39–40. These vv., speaking of a conquest, are additional and relate to events later than the original colonisation: Manassehite groups emigrated from the west and carved out a new territory for themselves in the northern part of Transjordan, Jos 13:8 seq.; they formed the half-tribe of Manasseh mentioned in the addition to Nb 32:33. In contrast to this, the colonising activities of Reuben and Gad occurred peacefully.

stock, and your servants are cattle breeders. ·So', they said, 'if you approve, give 5 your servants this land for us to own; do not make us cross the Jordan.'

Moses said to the Gadites and Reubenites, 'Do you intend your brothers to go 6 into battle while you stay here? ·Why are you discouraging the Israelites from 7 crossing to the country which Yahweh has given them? ·Your fathers behaved in 8 the same way when I sent them to see the country from Kadesh-Barnea, ·for, 9 having gone as far as the Valley of Eshcol and seen the country, they discouraged the Israelites from entering the country which Yahweh had given them. ·Hence 10 Yahweh's anger was aroused that day and he swore this oath, ·"No man of twenty 11 years and over, who left Egypt, shall set eyes on the country which I promised on oath to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob . . . , for they have not followed me absolutely, except for Caleb son of Jephunneh the Kenizzite, and Joshua son of Nun: these 12 indeed have followed Yahweh absolutely." ·Yahweh's anger being aroused by 13 Israel, he made them wander in the desert for forty years, until the generation that offended Yahweh had all disappeared. ·And now you rise up in your father's place, 14 offshoot of sinful stock, to increase Yahweh's burning anger with Israel even more!
If you turn away from him, he will prolong the time spent in the desert, and you 15 will bring about this entire people's ruin.'

They came to Moses and said, 'We should like to build sheepfolds here for our 16 flocks and towns for our little ones. ·We ourselves will take up arms [b] and lead the 17 Israelites until we have brought them to the place appointed for them, while our little ones stay in the fortified towns to be safe from the local inhabitants. ·We will 18 not return to our homes until every one of the Israelites has taken possession of his heritage. ·For we shall have no heritage with them on the other bank of the Jordan 19 or beyond, since our heritage has fallen to us here, east of the Jordan.'

Moses said to them, 'If you do as you have said, if you are prepared to fight 20 before Yahweh, ·and if all those of you who bear arms cross the Jordan before 21 Yahweh, until he has driven all his enemies out before him, ·then, once the country 22 has become subject to Yahweh, you may go back, and will have discharged your obligation to Yahweh and Israel, and Yahweh will consider this territory yours.
Dt 28:45 But if you do not, you will sin against Yahweh, and be sure your sin will find you 23 out. ·Build towns, then, for your little ones and folds for your flocks; but do what 24 you have promised.'

The Gadites and Reubenites said to Moses, 'Your servants will do as my lord 25 directs. ·Our little ones, our wives, our flocks and all our livestock will stay in the 26 towns of Gilead, ·but your servants, each armed for war, will cross in Yahweh's 27 name and fight, as my lord says.'

So Moses gave orders about them to the priest Eleazar, Joshua son of Nun, and 28
the heads of families in the Israelite tribes. ·Moses said to them, 'If the Gadites 29 and Reubenites, all those under arms, cross the Jordan with you to fight in Yahweh's name, then, once the country has become subject to you, you will give them the territory of Gilead as theirs. ·But if they will not cross with you under 30 arms, they will receive their domains in Canaan with the rest of you.'

To this, the Gadites and Reubenites replied, 'What Yahweh has said to your 31 servants, we shall do. ·Under arms, we shall cross in Yahweh's name into Canaan, 32 so that ownership of our heritage on this side of the Jordan will be ours.' ·Moses 33 then gave them—the Gadites, the Reubenites and the half-tribe of Manasseh son of Joseph—the kingdom of Sihon king of the Amorites and the kingdom of Og king of Bashan, the country and the towns within its territory, and the country's frontier-towns.

The Gadites rebuilt Dibon, Ataroth, Aroer, ·Atroth-Shophan, Jazer, Jogbehah, 34, 35
Beth-Nimrah and Beth-Haran as fortified towns with folds for the flocks. 36

The Reubenites rebuilt Heshbon, Elealeh, Kiriathaim, ·Nebo and Baal-Meon 37, 38
(the names of which were altered), and Sibmah, giving new names to the towns which they rebuilt. [c]

The descendants of Machir son of Manasseh went to Gilead. They conquered it 39

40 and drove out the Amorites who were there. ·Moses gave Gilead to Machir son of 41 Manasseh, and he settled there. ·Jair son of Manasseh went and seized their Dt 3:14–15
42 encampments, renaming them the Encampments of Jair. ·Nobah went and seized Jg 10:4
Kenat with its dependent townships, and called it Nobah after himself.

The stages of the Exodus [a]

1 33 These were the stages of the journey made by the Israelites when they left 2 Egypt in their companies under the leadership of Moses and Aaron.
Moses recorded their starting-points in writing whenever they moved on at Yahweh's order. The stages, from one starting-point to another, were as follows:
3 They left Rameses in the first month. It was the fifteenth day of the first month, the day following the Passover, when the Israelites confidently set out, under the Ex 14:8

Yahweh had struck down, all the first-born; Yahweh had carried out his judgement

b. 'take up arms' Gk; 'we shall arm in haste' Hebr.

c. The towns attributed to Gad and Reuben extended beyond the territories of Jazer and ancient Gilead, see v. 1, as far as the Arnon, which was the frontier of Moab; that is to say, they covered the former kingdom of Sihon. Their geographical distribution does not indicate two territories, and the lists reflect an age when Gad and Reuben had come to be regarded as a single entity, see Jos 13:8.

33 a. This ch. belongs to a secondary layer of the Priestly editing. It makes use of geographical material in Ex, Nb and Dt, but more than half the names are new and come from other documents. The section of journey across Sinai to Ezion-Geber, vv. 16–35, uses a list of staging-posts in north-western Arabia, which has given grounds for locating Sinai in that region, see Ex 19:2b. vv. 41–49 use another 'itinerary' giving the most direct route from Kadesh to north of the Arnon. But this route cannot be reconciled with the information in ancient texts (detour through Ezion-Geber, and round Moab and Edom, etc.), see 14:25; 20:14–22; Dt 2:1–25.

Jos 2:1

Dt 7:1–6.16; 12:2–3 The allocation of Canaan. God's order

Yahweh spoke to Moses on the Plains of Moab, near the Jordan by Jericho, and 50 said:
'Speak to the Israelites and say: 51
"When you have crossed the Jordan into Canaan, ·you will drive out all the local 52
Lv 26:1 inhabitants before you. You will destroy all their painted images, you will destroy 1 S 9:12f all their metal statues and you will demolish all their high places. ·You will take 53 possession of the country and settle in it, for I have given you the country as your 26:54–56 property. ·You will share it out by lot among your clans. To a large clan you will 54 give a larger heritage, and to a smaller clan you will give a smaller heritage. Where the lot falls for each, that will be his. Your heritage will depend on the size of your tribe. ·If, however, you do not drive out the local inhabitants before you, the ones 55 you allow to remain will be thorns in your eyes and thistles in your sides and will harass you in the country where you are living, ·and I shall treat you as I intended 56 to treat them." '

Jos 14:19 Jg 20:1a Ezk 47:13–21 The boundaries of Canaan [a]

34 Yahweh spoke to Moses and said, ·'Give the Israelites this order. Say: 1, 2
"When you enter the country (Canaan), this will be the country which forms your heritage. This is Canaan as defined by its boundaries:
Jos 15:1–5 Ezk 47:15–20 "The southern part of your country will start from the desert of Zin, on the 3 borders of Edom. Your southern boundary will start on the east at the end of the Salt Sea. ·It will then turn south towards the Ascent of the Scorpions and go by Zin 4 to end in the south at Kadesh-Barnea. It will then run towards Hazar-Addar and pass through Azmon. ·From Azmon the boundary will turn towards the Torrent of 5 Egypt and end at the Sea.
"Your seaboard will be on the Great Sea; this will be your western boundary. 6
"Your northern boundary will be as follows: you will draw a line from the Great 7 Sea to Mount Hor, [b] ·then from Mount Hor you will draw a line to the Pass of 8
Hamath, and the boundary will end at Zedad. ·From there it will run on to Ziphron 9 and end at Hazar-Enan. This will be your northern boundary.
"You will then draw your eastern boundary from Hazar-Enan to Shepham. 10
The boundary will run down from Shepham towards Riblah on the east side of 11
Ain. Further down it will keep to the eastern shore of the Sea of Chinnereth. [c] ·The 12 frontier will then follow the Jordan and end at the Salt Sea.
"Such will be your country with the boundaries surrounding it." '
Moses then gave the Israelites this order: 13
'This is the country, where your heritages will be assigned by lot, and which Yahweh has ordered to be given to the nine tribes and the half-tribe, ·for the tribe 14 of the Reubenites with their families and the tribe of the Gadites with their families have already received their heritage; the half-tribe of Manasseh has also received its heritage. ·These two tribes and the half-tribe have received their heritage on 15 the other side of the Jordan by Jericho, to the east, towards the sunrise.'

The leaders in charge of the allocation

Yahweh spoke to Moses and said: 16
'Here are the names of the men who will divide the country up for you: the priest 17
Eleazar and Joshua son of Nun, ·and you will take one leader from each tribe to 18 divide the country up into heritages. ·Here are the names of these men: [d] 19

'For the tribe of Judah, Caleb son of Jephunneh;
20 'for the tribe of the Simeonites, Shemuel son of Ammihud;
21 'for the tribe of Benjamin, Elidad son of Chislon;
22 'for the tribe of the Danites, the leader Bukki son of Jogli;
23 'for the sons of Joseph: for the tribe of Manasseh, the leader Hanniel son of Ephod;
24 'for the tribe of the Ephraimites, the leader Kemuel son of Shiphtan;
25 'for the tribe of the Zebulunites, the leader Elizaphan son of Parnach;
26 'for the tribe of the Issacharites, the leader Paltiel son of Azzan;
27 'for the tribe of the Asherites, the leader Ahihud son of Shelomi;
28 'for the tribe of the Naphtalites, the leader Pedahel son of Ammihud.'
29 These were the men whom Yahweh ordered to divide Canaan into heritages for the Israelites.

The portion of the Levites[a]

18:20–24
Jos 20–21
Ezk 48:13

1 35 Yahweh spoke to Moses on the Plains of Moab, near the Jordan by Jericho,
and said:
2 'Order the Israelites, from the heritage they possess, to give the Levites towns in which to live and pasture land round the towns. You will give these to the Levites.
3 The towns must be their homes and the surrounding pasture land must be for their 4 cattle, their possessions and all their animals. ·The pasture land surrounding the towns which you give to the Levites will extend, from the walls of the towns, for a thousand cubits all round.
5 'Outside the town, measure two thousand cubits to the east, two thousand cubits to the south, two thousand cubits to the west and two thousand cubits to the north, 6 the town lying in the centre; such will be the pasture lands of these towns. ·The towns you give to the Levites will be six cities of refuge, ceded by you as sanctuary Dt 4:41–43 for those who commit manslaughter; and you will give forty-two towns in addition.
7 Altogether you will give the Levites forty-eight towns, with their pasture lands. 26:54
8 Of the towns which you give from the Israelites' possessions, you will give more from those who have more, and less from those who have less. Each will give some of his towns to the Levites, in proportion to the heritage he himself has received.'

15 and will give three towns in Canaan. ·These six towns will serve as refuge for the 34 a. With Ezk 47:13–21, this is the most detailed description of the frontiers of Canaan. They coincide with those of the Egyptian province of Canaan at the end of the 13th century BC, and it was from this administrative usage that the Israelites took both the name and concept. Canaan did not extend to the eastern side of the Jordan, vv. 13–15. Here the territory described is the Promised Land, see v. 2, which is defined elsewhere in different terms, see Ex 23:31m; Dt 1:7; Jg 20:1a; etc. After the Aramaean kingdoms had been set up, Canaan ceased to extend to the east of Phoenicia (Sidon), though it still stretched southwards as far as Gaza, Gn 10:19. Later, the name became confined to Phoenicia alone: Tyre and Sidon were the 'fortresses of Canaan', Is 23:1–14. 'Sidonian' became synonymous with 'Canaanite', Dt 3:9; Jg 18:7; etc. and see Mt 15:22 as against Mk 7:26.

b. Location unidentified. Here Mount Hor would appear to be the mountains in the northern part of the Lebanon; it is not the same as the site of Aaron's death, 33:38.

c. The Lake of Gennesareth. The 'Salt Sea' is the Dead Sea.

d. The names, with the exception of Joshua and Caleb, are new: the generation previously listed was destined to die without entering Canaan, see 14:23; 26:64–65. The partitioning of the country took place only after the conquest, Jos 14–19, but the editor invokes Mosaic authority for it.

35 a. Despite the regulation to the contrary in 18:20 seq., the Levites were to be given towns, among which were the six cities of refuge, see Jos 21:1a.

b. Apparently the Israelites did no more than consecrate already existing Canaanite towns to Yahwism. The right of sanctuary in shrines is a very widespread custom.

Israelites, for the foreigner and for the resident alien, where anyone who has accidentally killed someone can take sanctuary.

"But if he has struck the person with an iron object so as to cause death, he is a murderer. The murderer will be put to death. 16 ·If he has struck him with a stone meant for killing, and has killed him, he is a murderer. The murderer will be put to death. 17 ·Or if he has struck him with a wooden instrument meant for killing, and has killed him, he is a murderer. The murderer will be put to death. 18 ·The avenger of blood will put the murderer to death. Whenever he finds him, he will put him to death. 19 [c]

"If the killer has maliciously manhandled his victim, or thrown some lethal missile to strike him down, 20 ·or out of enmity dealt him the death-blow with his fist, 21 then he who struck the blow will be put to death; he is a murderer; the avenger of blood will put him to death whenever he finds him. 22 ·If, however, he has manhandled his victim by chance, without malice, or thrown some missile at him not meaning to hit him 23 ·or, without seeing him, dropped on him a stone meant for killing and so killed him, so long as he bore him no malice and wished him no harm, then the community will decide in accordance with these rules between the one who struck the blow and the avenger of blood, 24 ·and will save the killer from the clutches of the avenger of blood. They will send him back to the city of refuge where he had taken sanctuary, and there he will stay until the death of the high priest who has been anointed with the holy oil. 25 ·Should the killer leave the bounds of the city of refuge in which he has taken sanctuary 26 ·and the avenger of blood encounter him outside the bounds of his city of refuge, the avenger of blood may kill him without fear of reprisal; 27 ·since the killer should stay in his city of refuge until the death of the high priest; only after the death of the high priest is he free to go back to his own piece of property. 28 ·Such will be the legal rule for you and your descendants, wherever you may live. 29

"In any case of homicide, the evidence of witnesses will determine whether the killer must be put to death; but a single witness is not enough to sustain a capital charge. 30 ·You will not accept a ransom for the life of a murderer condemned to death; he must die. 31 ·Nor will you accept a ransom for anyone who, having taken sanctuary in his city or refuge, wishes to come back and live at home before the Gn 9:5–6 death of the high priest. 32 ·Do not profane the country you live in. Blood profanes the country and, for the country, the only expiation for the blood shed in it is the blood of the man who shed it. 33 ·So do not defile the country which you live in and Ex 25:8d where I live; for I, Yahweh, live among the Israelites." 34 '

A wife's inheritance [a]

36 Then the heads of families of the clan descended from Gilead, son of Machir, son of Manasseh, one of the clans descended from Joseph, came forward and, addressing Moses and the leaders, the Israelite heads of families, they said: 1 2

'Yahweh has ordered my lord to apportion the Israelites' heritages in the country by lot and my lord has been ordered by Yahweh to give the heritage of our brother 27:1–11 Zelophehad to his daughters. 3 ·Now, if they marry someone from another Israelite tribe, their heritage will be alienated from our ancestral heritage. The heritage of the tribe to which they will then belong will be increased, and the heritage allotted Lv 25:1a to us will be diminished. 4 ·And when the jubilee for the Israelites comes round, these women's heritage will become part of the heritage of the tribe to which they then belong, and be alienated from the heritage of our ancestral tribe.'

At Yahweh's bidding, Moses gave the Israelites this order. He said: 5

'What the Josephite tribe says is true. 6 ·This is Yahweh's ruling for Zelophehad's daughters: "They may marry whom they please, providing they marry into a clan of their father's tribe. 7 ·But the heritages of Israelites are not to be transferred from tribe to tribe; each Israelite will stick to the heritage of his own tribe. 8 ·Any daughter who owns a heritage in an Israelite tribe will marry into a clan of her own paternal tribe, so that the Israelites may each preserve the heritage of his father.

9 No heritage may be transferred from one tribe to another; each Israelite tribe will stick to its own heritage." '
10, 11 Zelophehad's daughters did as Yahweh had ordered Moses. •Mahlah, Tirzah, Hoglah, Milcah and Noah, daughters of Zelophehad, married the sons of their 12 father's brothers. •Since they married into clans descended from Manasseh son of Joseph, their heritage reverted to the tribe of their father's clan.

Conclusion

13 Such were the commandments and laws that Yahweh prescribed for the Israelites through Moses on the Plains of Moab near the Jordan by Jericho.

c. The system of private vengeance, surviving among some Arabs to today. The 'avenger of blood', or go'el, was the victim's nearest relative, Gn 4:15; 9:6; Dt 19:12; see 2 S 14:11. The go'el was also the official protector of his relations: he was especially bound to prevent the alienation of their landed property, Lv 25:23–25; Rt 4:3 seq. By extension, God was called the go'el of Israel, Ps 19:14; Is 41:14; Jr 50:34. The basic idea is that of protection.

36 a. An addition to the law of 27:1–11 and using the same specific case. But the rights of inheritance for daughters were limited by the obligation to marry within the tribe, to prevent any diminution of the tribal territory. • v. 4 is additional: it refers to the law of jubilee, concerned with land that was sold, not inherited.

DEUTERONOMY

I: INTRODUCTORY DISCOURSES

A: THE FIRST DISCOURSE OF MOSES

Time and place [a]

1 These are the words which Moses addressed to all Israel beyond the Jordan, in 1 the desert, in the Arabah facing Suph, between Paran and Tophel, Laban, Hazeroth and Dizahab. ·It is eleven days' journey from Horeb by way of Mount 2 Seir to Kadesh-Barnea. ·It was in the fortieth year, on the first day of the eleventh 3 month, that Moses told the Israelites everything that Yahweh had ordered him to tell them.

Nb 21:21–35 He had defeated Sihon king of the Amorites, who lived at Heshbon, and Og 4 king of Bashan, who lived at Ashtaroth and Edrei. ·There, in Moab beyond the 5 Jordan, Moses resolved to expound this Law. He said: [b]

The final instructions at Horeb

Ex 3:1b 'Yahweh our God said to us at Horeb, "You have stayed long enough at this 6
Nb 34:1a mountain. ·Move on, continue your journey, go to the highlands of the Amorites, 7 to all those who live in the Arabah, in the highlands, in the lowlands, in the Negeb and in the coastland; go into Canaan and to Lebanon as far as the great River Gn 12:7+;15; 26:2–5;28: 13–15+ Euphrates. ·Look, that is the country I have given you; go and take possession of 8
the country that Yahweh promised on oath to give to your ancestors, Abraham, ‖Ex 18:13–26 Nb 11:14 Isaac and Jacob, and to their descendants after them."

'At the same time, I told you, "I cannot be responsible for you by myself. 9
Gn 15:5;22:17 Yahweh your God has increased your numbers, until you are now as numerous as 10 the stars of heaven. ·And Yahweh your God is going to increase you a thousand 11 times more, and bless you as he has promised [c] you. ·So how can I cope by myself 12 with the bitter burden that you are, and with your bickering? ·From each of your 13
Nb 11:11–16 tribes pick wise, shrewd and experienced men for me to make your leaders." ·You 14 replied, "Your plan is good." ·So I took your tribal leaders, wise, experienced 15 men, and appointed them to lead you, as captains of thousands, hundreds, fifties, tens, and as scribes for your tribes. ·At that same time I told your judges, "You 16 17:8–13 must give your brothers a fair hearing and see justice done between one person
Lv 19:15 and his brother or the foreigner living with him. ·You must be impartial in 17 judgement and give an equal hearing to small and great alike. [d] Do not be afraid of any human person, for the verdict is God's. Should a case be too difficult, bring it for me to hear. ·And on that occasion I gave you instructions about everything you 18 were to do."

‖Nb 13:1–14:9 Kadesh: the Israelites lose faith

'So, as Yahweh our God had ordered, we left Horeb and made our way through 19 that vast and terrible desert, which you saw on the way to the Amorite highlands, and arrived at Kadesh-Barnea. ·I then said, "You have now reached the Amorite 20 highlands, which Yahweh our God has given us. ·Look, Yahweh your God has 21 given you this country. March in, take possession of it as Yahweh, the God of your 22 ancestors, has said; do not be afraid or discouraged."[e] ·Then you all came to me Jos 1:6,9 and said, "Let us send men ahead of us to explore the country; they shall report to 23 us which way we ought to take and what towns we shall come to."[f] ·This seemed good advice to me and I selected twelve men from among you, one from each tribe.

24 These men made towards the highlands and went up into them; they reached the 25 Valley of Eshcol and reconnoitred it. ·They collected some of the produce of the country and brought it down to us; and they made us this report, "Yahweh our 26 God has given us a fine country." ·You, however, refused to go up there and 27 rebelled against the voice of Yahweh your God. ·You muttered in your tents, saying, "Yahweh hates us, and that is why he has brought us out of Egypt, to put us 28 into the Amorites' power and so destroy us. ·What kind of place are we making for? Our brothers have discouraged us by saying that the people are stronger and taller than we are, the cities immense, with walls reaching to the sky. And we have seen Anakim there too."[g]

29, 30 'And I said to you, "Do not take fright, do not be afraid of them. ·Yahweh your God goes ahead of you and will be fighting on your side, just as you saw him act in 31 Egypt. ·You have seen him in the desert too: Yahweh your God continued to ↗ Ac 13:18 support you, as a man supports his son, all along the road you followed until you 7:6b;14:1; 32:6 32, 33 arrived here." ·But for all this, you put no faith in Yahweh your God, ·going ahead Ex 4:22 Ws 18:13 Is 63:16 Jr 31:9 Ho 11:1 Ml 2:10–11 of you on the journey to find you a camping ground, by night in the fire to light your path, and in the cloud by day.

Yahweh's instructions at Kadesh

·Nb 10:33 ·Ex 13:21seq. ·‖Nb 14:21–35

34, 35 'Yahweh heard what you were saying and in his anger swore this oath, ·"Not one of these people, this perverse generation, will see the fine country I swore to give 36 your ancestors, ·except Caleb son of Jephunneh. He will see it. To him and to his Nb 13:30; 14:6–9 children I shall give the land he has set foot on, for he has been perfectly obedient 37 to Yahweh." ·Yahweh was angry with me too, because of you. "You will not go in Nb 20:12c Dt 3:26;4:21; 34:4
38 either," he said. ·"Your assistant, Joshua son of Nun, will be the one to enter.
39 Encourage him, since he is to bring Israel into possession of the country. ·And your little ones too, who, you said, would be seized as booty, these children of yours who do not yet know good from evil, they will go in; I shall give it to them 40 and they will own it. ·But, as regards yourselves, turn round, go back into the Nb 14:25 desert, towards the Sea of Suph."

1 a. Following the title, v. 1[a], this paragraph gives additional indications of place and time, inserted by various hands with a view to linking Dt to the Book of Numbers.

b. The first discourse of Moses, 1:6–4:40, is a summary of Israelite history from the stay in Sinai to the arrival at Pisgah in sight of the River Jordan, followed by a re-statement of the covenant and the obligations that it imposes: the Exile is predicted as the punishment for infidelity, but conversion and subsequent return from exile are offered as a consoling possibility. This material belongs to the second edition of the book, made during the Babylonian Captivity. The discourse makes a partial use of the Yahwistic, and above all Elohistic, narratives of Ex and Nb, though selectively, and adapting them with a different aim in view: particular emphasis is placed on divine providence in having especially chosen Israel, the central theme being the gift of the Promised Land by Yahweh to his people. Ch. 1–3, which form a kind of prologue, containing historical elements (particularly 1:19 seq.) and giving particular emphasis to this theme, may be regarded as an introduction to the entire deuteronomic history, running through subsequent books until it ends, in the Books of Kings, with the account of how the Promised Land was eventually lost to Israel.

c. Theological correction to Nb 11:11–15 where Moses complains that the Israelites have grown too numerous. Here, the growth in numbers is interpreted as a sign of God's blessing.

d. 'must be impartial', lit. 'not raise your face', i.e. not show benevolence or, more particularly, favouritism in judgement, 16:19; Lv 19:15. Judges are to imitate the sovereign impartiality of God, 10:17f; Pr 24:23. This is also a recurrent theme with the prophets, Is 10:2; Jr 5:28; Ezk 22:12; Am 2:6; 5:7, 10; Mi 3:9, 11.

e. This assurance of victory is characteristic of the holy war and recurs frequently in Dt, see v. 29; 7:21; 20:1; 30:8.

f. In contrast to Nb 13:2, where Yahweh orders the despatching of the explorers, here the people suggest it. Their action is represented as a lack of faith, and conditions the rest of the story: the refusal to enter Canaan and the ensuing punishment. Dt makes this faithless incident the reason for Moses' later exclusion from the Promised Land, whereas Nb 20:12–13 attributes this to the incident at Meribah: so here too the theme of the Promised Land is emphasised.

g. The Anakim, as also Emim, Rephaim and Zamzummim (or Zuzim), 2:10–11, 20–21; see Gn 14:5, are legendary names for the aboriginal inhabitants of Palestine and Transjordan. These were identified with the fabulous Nephilim of Gn 6:4 or Giants of Nb 13:33, the raisers of megalithic monuments, see Dt 3:11. In the days of Joshua, the Anakim still constituted an aristocracy in the highlands of Hebron and in the coastal region, Jos 11:21 seq.; 14:12–15; 15:13–15; 21:11. The Rephaim persisted in the country known as Bashan, 3:13; Jos 12:4 seq.; 13:12, while in Judaea their memory was preserved in the Valley of the Rephaim, south-west of Jerusalem, Jos 15:8; 18:16; 2 S 5:18. David's soldiers finished off the last descendants of Rapha, their eponymous ancestor, 2 S 21:16–22; see 1 Ch 20:4–8. The word repha'im later became a synonym for the ghosts in Sheol, see Jb 25:5 seq.; Ps 88:10; Is 14:9; 26:14, 19.

‖Nb 14:39–45 'In reply, you then said to me, "We have sinned against Yahweh our God. We 41 shall go up and fight just as Yahweh our God has ordered us." And each one of you buckled on his arms and equipped himself to march up into the highlands. ·But 42 Yahweh said to me, "Tell them this: Do not go up and fight. I am not with you. Do not let yourselves be defeated by your enemies." ·So I told you, but you would not 43 listen, and you rebelled against the voice of Yahweh; presumptuously you marched into the highlands. ·The Amorites, who live in that country of hills, came swarming 44
Ps 118:12 out against you like bees, pursued you and beat you from Seir to Hormah. ·On 45 your return, you wept in Yahweh's presence, but he would not listen to your cries or pay attention. ·That was why you had to stay at Kadesh as long as you did.' 46

From Kadesh to the Arnon [a]

2 'We then turned round and made for the desert, in the direction of the Sea of 1
Suph, as Yahweh had ordered me. For many days we skirted Mount Seir. [b] ·Yahweh then said to me, ·"You have gone far enough round this mountain; now 2, 3
Nb 20:14–21 turn north. ·And give the people this order: You are about to pass through the 4 territory of your kinsmen, the sons of Esau who live in Seir. They are afraid of you, and you will be well protected. ·Do not provoke them, for I shall give you none of 5 their land, no, not so much as a foot's length of it. I have given the highlands of Seir Gn 36:8 to Esau as his domain. [c] ·Pay them in money for what food you eat; and pay them 6
Ex 33:14,16; 34:9–10 in money for the water you drink. ·Yahweh your God has blessed you in all you 7 Dt 8:2seq.,29:5 Ne 9:20–21 do; he has watched over your journeying through this vast desert. Yahweh your God has been with you these forty years and you have never been in want."

'So we passed beyond those relatives of ours, the children of Esau who live in 8
Seir, by the road through the Arabah, Elath and Ezion-Geber; then, changing
Nb 21:10–20 direction, we took the road towards the Plains of Moab. ·Yahweh then said to 9 me, "Do not attack Moab, do not provoke him to fight, for I shall give you none of his land, since I have given Ar to the children of Lot as their domain." ·(At one 10 1:28g time the Emim lived there, a great and numerous people, tall as the Anakim; and, like the Anakim, they were considered to be Rephaim, though the Moabites 11
call them, Emim. ·The Horites, [d] too, lived in Seir at one time; these, however, 12 were dispossessed and exterminated by the children of Esau who settled there in place of them, just as Israel has done in the country given to it by Yahweh as a heritage.) ·"On your way, then! Cross the Wadi Zered!" 13

'And so we crossed the Wadi Zered. ·From Kadesh-Barnea to the crossing of 14 the Wadi Zered our wanderings had taken thirty-eight years; as a result of which,
1:35 the entire generation of those of age to bear arms had been eliminated, as Yahweh
Nb 14:34 had sworn to them. ·Yahweh's hand had been against them, to eliminate them 15 completely from the camp.

'When death had carried off from the people those of age to bear arms, to the 16 last man, ·Yahweh said this to me, ·"You are now crossing Ar, the country of 17, 18
Gn 19:30–38 Moab, ·and soon you will encounter the children of Ammon. [e] Do not attack them, 19
do not provoke them, for I shall give you none of the land belonging to the children of Ammon as your domain. I have given it to the children of Lot as theirs." ·(This 20 used also to be considered as Rephaim territory; at one time the Rephaim lived there, though the Ammonites call them Zamzummim, ·a great and numerous 21 people, and tall like the Anakim. Yahweh exterminated them for the Ammonites who dispossessed them and settled there in place of them, ·just as he had done for 22 the children of Esau who live in Seir, so that they dispossessed the Horites and settled there instead of them and are still there now. ·It was the same with the 23 Jos 13:2b Avvites who occupied encampments as far as Gaza: the Caphtorim, coming from Caphtor, [f] exterminated them and settled there instead.) ·"On your way! Break 24 camp and cross the Wadi Arnon. See, I am putting Sihon the Amorite, king of Heshbon, at your mercy, and his country too. Set about the conquest; engage him in battle. ·Today and henceforth, I shall fill the peoples under all heaven with fear 25 and terror of you; whoever hears word of your approach will tremble and writhe in anguish because of you."

Conquest of the kingdom of Sihon [g]

‖Nb 21:21–25
Jg 11:19–22

26 'So, from the desert of Kedemoth [h] I sent envoys to Sihon king of Heshbon with 27 this peaceful message, •"I intend to cross your country. I shall go my way, straying 28 neither to right nor to left. •I shall eat and pay for the food you choose to sell me, 2:6 and I shall drink and pay for the water you let me have. I only want to march 29 through, •just as the children of Esau who live in Seir permitted, as well as the Nb 20:18,21
Moabites who live in Ar, until I cross the Jordan into the country that Yahweh our God is giving us."

30 'But Sihon king of Heshbon would not give us leave to pass through his territory;
Yahweh our God had made his spirit obstinate and his heart stubborn, to put him Ex 4:21 31 at your mercy, as he still is. •Yahweh said to me, "You see, I am starting to give 32 you Sihon and his country. Begin the conquest by seizing his country." •Sihon 33 marched out against us, he and all his people, to give battle at Jahaz. •And Yahweh our God handed him over to us: we defeated him and his sons and all his people.
34 We captured all his towns and laid all these towns under the curse of destruction: Jos 6:17b 35 men, women and children, we left no survivors •except the livestock which we took 36 as our booty, and the spoils of the captured towns. •From Aroer on the edge of the 2 S 24:5,5d
Arnon valley and from the town down in the valley, as far as Gilead, not one town 37 was beyond our reach; Yahweh our God delivered them all to us. •You did not, however, go near the country of the Ammonites, or the region of the River Jabbok, or the towns in the highlands, or anywhere forbidden us by Yahweh our God.'

Conquest of the kingdom of Og

‖Nb 21:33–35

1 3 'We then turned on Bashan and invaded that. And Og king of Bashan marched 2 out against us, he and all his people, to give battle at Edrei. •Yahweh said to me, "Do not be afraid of him, for I have put him at your mercy, him, all his people and his country. You will treat him as you treated Sihon king of the Amorites who 3 lived in Heshbon." •So, Yahweh our God put Og king of Bashan at our mercy too, 4 with all his people. We beat him so thoroughly that nobody was left. •That was when we captured all his towns; there was not a town of theirs we did not take:
5 sixty towns, the whole confederation of Argob, Og's kingdom in Bashan, •all of

2 a. As in the ancient source, Nb 14:25, the Sea of Suph is given as the primary direction, but Dt elaborates by indicating a route through the desert towards Moab and Ammon. At the time of writing, the Edomites were already installed on the west side of the Arabah and on the Gulf of Aqaba (the Sea of Suph); hence, an Edomite refusal of passage, Nb 20:14–21, was no longer applicable: Israel is to pass through the Edomite territory but take nothing on the way. Similarly, Israel will receive no territory belonging to Moab or Ammon, neither of which is mentioned in the primitive source. The Israelites did indeed make their way round Moab by way of the desert, but did not reach the territory of the Ammonites, see 2:19e. The theological theme of the gift of the Promised Land, 1:6–8; see 1:5b, is merged here with an ampler theme: that God himself endows the various nations with their homelands. Edom, Moab and Ammon, which are related to Israel, will keep their own patrimonies, see 2:5c, whereas Sihon is an Amorite and God will give his country to Israel, v. 24.

b. The name of Seir, very often occurring in parallel with that of Edom, see Gn 32:4; Nb 24:18; Jg 5:4, designates the territory of Esau/Edom, Gn 33:14; 36:8, which originally lay to the east of the Arabah. But here, as in Jos 11:17; 12:7, 'Mount Seir' is located near Kadesh, not very far from Hormah, see 1:44. This portrays the situation as it existed when this text was written: the Edomites had already crossed the Arabah, see Nb 20:22f. At the collapse of the Kingdom of Judah, they were to advance as far as Hebron and this whole region became known as Idumaea, see 1 M 5:3b; Mk 3:8.

c. The Edomites, descended from Abraham, Gn 36, and the Moabites and Ammonites, vv. 9 and 19, descended from Lot, Gn 19:30 seq., have (like the Israelites) been settled by God in territories formerly belonging to other races, the names of which are recorded in the additional vv., Dt 2:10–12, 20 seq.

d. The Horites here can hardly be identified with the Hurrians mentioned in cuneiform texts. The latter entered Palestine only c. 1500 BC, and then in very small numbers, being quickly assimilated. Proper names attest their presence in a few towns west of the Jordan, but never in Transjordan.The term Horite seems no more than a pseudo-ethnic name applied to the inhabitants of Edom-Seir, see Gn 36:20, and cognate with the word huru, one of the Egyptian names for Palestine during the period of Israelite colonisation.

e. The territory of the Ammonites lay to the north of that of Sihon, on the upper waters of the River Jabbok see 3:16; Nb 21:24. Despite the relationship between Israel and Ammon, on which this text insists, see v. 37, the two peoples were to be at war during the period of the Judges, Jg 10:7 seq., and particularly in the days of David, 2 S 10:6 seq.; 11. Later, the Ammonites were to expand at the expense of Gad, see Jr 49:1, and the primitive tradition enshrined in Dt is hostile to them, see Dt 23:4.

f. The Philistines, coming from Crete or from Asia Minor, see Jos 13:2b.

g. Here, Dt follows the primitive narrative for the historic conquest of the kingdom of Sihon, as also for the legendary story of Og.

h. Or 'from the eastern desert'.

them fortresses defended by high walls and fortified with gates and bars, not to mention the Perizzite [a] towns, which were very numerous. ·We laid them under the 6 curse of destruction as we had done with Sihon king of Heshbon, laying all these towns under the curse of destruction: men, women and children—·but we seized 7 the livestock and spoils of the towns as booty for ourselves.

Further instructions from Moses

'I then gave you this order: "Yahweh your God has given you this country to be 18 yours. Armed, every one of you fit to fight must go ahead of your brothers the Israelites. ·Only your wives, your children and your flocks (you have many flocks, 19
I know) must stay behind in the towns which I have given you, ·until Yahweh has 20
Ex 33:14f brought your brothers to rest as he has already brought you, and they too possess the territory which Yahweh your God is giving them on the other side of the Jordan; after that, you can go home, each to the domain I have given you." ·I then 21
Jos 1:1b gave Joshua this order, "You can see for yourself everything that Yahweh our God has done to these two kings; Yahweh will do the same to all the kingdoms through which you pass. ·Do not be afraid of them: Yahweh your God himself is fighting 22 for you."

'I then pleaded with Yahweh. ·"My Lord Yahweh," I said, "now that you have 23, 24

4 a. The slow elaboration of 'the laws and customs', v. 5, culminates in an all-embracing view of the Law, which eventually comes to dominate all Israelite religion. The primary sense of the word torah is 'instruction', 'direction given': in this is to be included all religious worship and all human conduct, inspired by a growing awareness of the covenant and of the God who has proposed and ratified it, Gn 15:1a. Gradually, divine revelation and the teaching handed down in ancient texts, as also those afforded by the prophets, come to animate the entire 'life' of the people, v. 1; 8:3b; 30:14c; Ps 19:7-14; 94:12; 119:1a; Si 1:26; 24:23; see also Ac 7:38*l*. Later still, Jesus will declare that he has come to 'fulfil' the Law and the prophets, Mt 5:17h; see Mt 22:34–40 seq.; and Paul will explain how 'the Law' has been replaced by faith in Christ, Rm 3:27p; 10:4.

b. Whereas the other Pentateuchal traditions emphasise the distance between God and the human race, see Ex 33:20i, Dt calls attention to God's loving intimacy with his people in whose midst he dwells, 12:5. This same outlook is found in the narrative of the dedication of the Temple, 1 K 8:10–29, and the idea recurs in Ezk 48:35. The NT gives it supreme expression, see Jn 1:14 m.

e. This homiletic passage justifies the prohibition of images on the grounds that during the theophany at Horeb, Yahweh allowed himself to be heard, but not to be seen. Yahweh did, however, allow certain privileged persons to see him, Moses, Ex 33:18–23, and the Elders, Ex 24:10–11.

B: THE SECOND DISCOURSE OF MOSES[l]

Time and place

This is the Law which Moses presented to the Israelites. •These are the stipulations, 44, 45
the laws and the customs which Moses gave the Israelites after they had left Egypt,

46 beyond the Jordan in the valley near Beth-Peor, in the country of Sihon the 2:26–3:17
Amorite king who had lived at Heshbon. Moses and the Israelites had defeated 47 him when they left Egypt, ·and had taken possession of his country, as well as that 48 of Og king of Bashan—two Amorite kings to the east beyond the Jordan, ·from Aroer on the edge of the Arnon Valley, all the way to Mount Sion (that is, 49 Hermon) —·and of the whole Arabah east of the Jordan as far as the Sea of the Arabah, at the foot of the slopes of Pisgah.

The Ten Commandments

1 5 Moses called all Israel together and said to them, 'Listen, Israel, to the laws 4:1,5,8; 12:1 and customs[a] that I proclaim to you today. Learn them and take care to observe them.
2, 3 'Yahweh our God made a covenant with us at Horeb. ·Yahweh made this 4:10–13,11c

I stood between you and Yahweh to let you know what Yahweh was saying, since you were afraid of the fire and had not gone up the mountain. He said:

bow down to these gods[b] or serve them. For I, Yahweh your God, am a jealous 4:24f; 7:9–10 God and I punish the parents' fault in the children, the grandchildren and the 10 great-grandchildren, among those who hate me; ·but I show faithful love to thousands, to those who love me and keep my commandments.
11 ' "You must not misuse the name of Yahweh your God, for Yahweh will not leave unpunished anyone who uses his name for what is false.
12 ' "Observe the Sabbath day and keep it holy, as Yahweh your God has com-
13, 14 manded you. ·Labour for six days, doing all your work, ·but the seventh day is a Sabbath for Yahweh your God. You must not do any work that day, neither you, nor your son, nor your daughter, nor your servants—male or female—nor your ox, nor your donkey, nor any of your animals, nor the foreigner who has made his Ex 12:48o 15 home with you; ·so that your servants, male and female, may rest, as you do.
Remember that you were once a slave in Egypt, and that Yahweh your God brought you out of there with mighty hand and outstretched arm; this is why Yahweh your God has commanded you to keep the Sabbath day.[c] 16 ' "Honour your father and your mother, as Yahweh your God has commanded Si 3:1–16 you, so that you may have long life and may prosper in the country which Yahweh your God is giving you.
17 ' "You must not kill.

f. God's 'jealousy' is the extravagance of his love; see 5:9; 6:15; 32:16, 21; etc.; Ex 20:5; 34:14; Nb 25:11; Ezk 8:3–5; 39:25; Zc 1:14; 2 Co 11:2. For the 'fire' see Ex 13:22; 24:17.

g. The 'remnant' of which Isaiah and the prophets speak, i.e. the sole survivors of the nation's trial.

h. In the prophetic books the phrase refers to the decisive establishment of God's kingdom, the age of the new covenant.

i. 'living' Gk. see 5:26; omitted by Hebr.

j. Explicit assertion of the non-existence of other gods, see Is 43:10–11; 44:6; 45:5. The Decalogue simply forbade the worship of foreign gods. These had long been regarded as inferior to Yahweh, impotent and contemptible. But now a new step has been reached: these gods do not exist.

k. This note on the cities of refuge, see Jos 20:1a, is an addition, and separates the two discourses of Moses.

l. After a brief indication of time and place, 4:44–49; see 1:4–5, begins the second discourse of Moses, 5:1–11:32, serving as introduction to the great Deuteronomic Code, 12:1–26:15, and then continuing from 26:16 to 28:68. Like the first discourse, it begins by summarising the past history of Israel, going back this time to the theophany at Horeb and to the Decalogue. It seems to have existed as a separate entity, in various forms, combined here, and to have been used for catechetic and cultic purposes before becoming the introduction to the Deuteronomic Code.

5 a. This, then, is a general announcement of the Deuteronomic Law, not merely of the 'Word', v. 5, of the Decalogue; see also 6:1.

b. see Ex 20:5d.

c. The explanatory reason for the Sabbath is not the same as that in Ex 20:11. Here it is linked to the liberation from slavery in Egypt, by which it acquires a dual aspect: it is a day of joy (compare similarly the feast of Weeks, 16:10–12) and it is a day when servants and foreign slaves are temporarily released from their drudgery (compare the same reason in legislation to protect the poor, 24:18, 22). These developments were added at a period when the sabbatical precept had acquired more importance.

' "You must not commit adultery. 18
' "You must not steal. 19
' "You must not give false evidence against your fellow. 20
' "You must not set your heart on your neighbour's spouse, you must not set 21 18 your heart on your neighbour's house, or field, or servant—man or woman—or ox, or donkey or any of your neighbour's possessions."

4:12–13 Ex 24:16f 'These were the words Yahweh spoke to you when you were all assembled on 22 19 the mountain. Thunderously, he spoke to you from the heart of the fire, in cloud and thick darkness. He added nothing, but wrote them on two tablets of stone which he gave to me.

Ex 20:18–21 Moses the mediator

'Now, having heard this voice coming out of the darkness, while the mountain was 23 20
all on fire, you came to me, all of you, heads of tribes and elders, ·and said, 24 21
"Yahweh our God has shown us his glory and his greatness, and we have heard his Ex 19:16g voice from the heart of the fire. Today we have seen that God can speak with a human being and that person still live. ·So why should we expose ourselves to 25 22 Ex 33:20i death again? For this great fire might devour us if we go on listening to the voice of Yahweh our God, and then we should die. ·For what creature of flesh could 26 23

Ex 19:8;24:3 we shall listen and put it into practice!"

'Yahweh heard what you were saying to me, and he then said to me, "I have 28 25 heard what these people are saying. Everything they have said is well said. ·If only 29 26 their heart were always so, set on fearing me and on keeping my commandments, so that they and their children might prosper for ever! ·Go and tell them to go back 30 27 to their tents. ·But you yourself stay here with me, and I shall tell you all the 31 28 commandments, the laws and the customs which you are to teach them and which they are to observe in the country which I am giving them as their possession."

d. To assert that God is 'living' is one of the primary formulae of faith in the true God, 6:4b, since it implies rejection of all the false gods, who are as lifeless as their own images, Jos 3:10; 1 S 17:26, 36; Ps 84:2; Is 37:4; Jr 10:8–10; Ho 2:1; see Mt 16:16; 26:23; Rm 9:26; 1 Th 1:9; 1 Tm 3:15.

e. After the historical survey comes the catechetic part: a succession of small homiletic developments, summing up the spirit of deuteronomic religion.

6 a. 'To fear Yahweh' is an expression typifying faithfulness to the covenant. Henceforth, the fear of Ex 20:20i at once combines love in response to God's love, 4:37, and absolute obedience to whatever God commands, 6:2–5; 10:12–15; see Gn 22:12. The religious and moral content of this fear grows more and more refined as the centuries pass, Jos 24:14; 1 K 18:3, 12; 2 K 4:1; Pr 1:7a; Is 11:2; Jr 32:39.

b. Another translation is sometimes suggested, 'It is Yahweh our God, Yahweh alone.' But the phrase is certainly a declaration of monotheism. It was later to be used as the opening words of the shema ('Hear'), a prayer central to Jewish piety.

Throughout Israelite history, this faith in a unique God grows more and more precise, under the impact of faith in the covenant and in God's particular choice of Israel, Gn 6:18; 12:1a; 15:1a; 21:1a. The existence of other gods was never explicitly affirmed in ancient times but more and more the affirmation of the living God, 5:26d, unique master of the world as of his people, Ex 3:16, 16h; 1 K 8:56–60; 18:21; 2 K 19:15–19; Si 1:8–9; Is 42:8e; Am 4:13; 5:8; Mi 1:11; Zc 14:9, is accompanied by a systematic denial of the existence of other (false) gods, Ws 13:10e; 14:12–14; Is 40:20m; 41:21i.

c. Loving God is not a matter of choice, it is a command. This love, echo of God's love for his people, 4:37; 7:8; 10:15, embraces the fear of God, the duty of service and the observance of precepts, here v. 13, 10:12–13; 11:1; see 30:2. Outside Dt there is no explicit command to love God but its equivalent is found in 2 K 23:25 and Ho 6:6. Though the command does not appear, the Psalms and the prophetic books, especially Hosea and Jeremiah, are full of the love of God. Jesus, quoting Dt 6:5, lays it down as the greatest commandment of all, Mt 22:37 par.; with it goes fear, the fear proper to an heir, not to a slave, 1 Jn 4:18.

7 a. Such a conventional list of six or seven pre-Israelite Palestinian peoples recurs, with slight variations, in 20:17 and in Gn 15:20; Ex 3:8, 17; 13:5; 23:23; 33:2; 34:11; Jos 3:10; 9:1; 11:3; 12:8; 24:11; Jg 3:5; 1 K 9:20; 2 Ch 8:7; Ezr 9:1; Ne 9:8. The Canaanites represent the original semitic population of Palestine. The Amorites are later semitic arrivals (end of 3rd millennium). The 'Yahwistic' tradition prefers the former name, the 'Elohistic' normally uses the latter; Jos 11:3 makes a geographical distinction between them, see Jos 9:10. The Hittites are a people of Asia Minor; the term is here used in a vague sense; it indicates a non-semitic people resident in Palestine, Gn 23. The Girgashites, Perizzites and Hivites are of least importance. The Jebusites are the ancient inhabitants of Jerusalem, 2 S 5:9f.

b. Declaring Israel's election, as in 14:2. To 'find himself a nation' God made use of wonders, 4:34; see 4:20; 26:7–8. vv. 7–8 of this chapter explain the reason for God's choice, namely, loyalty to the promises which, of his own loving will, he had made to the Fathers, see 4:37; 8:18; 9:5; 10:15. This choice, ratified by the covenant (v. 9; 5:2–3), makes Israel a dedicated people (v. 6; 26:19). The idea of election, strongly emphasised in Dt, pervades the OT. Israel is a nation set apart, Nb 23:9, God's people, Jg 5:13, consecrated, Ex 19:3c, 19:6, a covenanted race, Ex 19:1a, God's son, Dt 1:31, the nation of Immanuel, ('God-with-us'), Is 8:8,10. The election marks Israel off from the world but the prophets foretell the recognition of Israel's God by all nations and the universality of salvation, Is 45:14h; 49:6; Zc 14:16.

c. Or 'without looking for anyone else'. This v. emphasises individual responsibility, see 24:16, an advance on Ex 34:7, but Ezekiel will be more explicit still, Ezk 14:12d; 18.

d. This v. is parallel to Ex 23:29, just as v. 20 was parallel to Ex 23:28. Here we have the deuteronomic explanation for the slowness of the conquest, see 2:11–15; Ex 23:30*l*; Dt 9:3, however, emphasises the terrifying intervention of Yahweh as War-God.

8 a. Unlike the prophets, who regarded the years spent in the desert as a sort of golden age, see Ho 2:16p, Dt presents the forty years as an ordeal, see 4:34 above. The Priestly editor of Nb 14:26–35 goes further and represents it as a punishment.

b. Yahweh who can create anything by his word, gives life to Israel by means of the commandments (mitzwah) that issue (motza') from his mouth. On this text, cited in Mt 4:4 par., see Ne 9:29; Pr 9:1–5; Ws 16:26; Si 24:19–21; Am 8:11; Jn 6:30–36, 63, 63t.

Jos 3:3–4;6:8 7:22d 8:17+ Jg 7:2 that Yahweh your God himself will go ahead of you, destroying them like a devouring fire, and that he himself will subdue them before you so that you can dispossess and quickly make an end of them, as Yahweh has already said. 4 ·Do not think to yourself, once Yahweh your God has driven them before you, "Yahweh has brought me into possession of this country because I am upright," when 18:12 Yahweh is dispossessing these nations for you, because they do wrong. 5 ·You are not going into their country to take possession because of any right behaviour or uprightness on your part; rather, it is because of their wickedness that Yahweh is dispossessing these nations for you, and also to keep the pact which he swore to 8:17+ your ancestors, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. 6 ·Be clear about this: Yahweh is not Ep 2:7–9 Tt 3:5 giving you possession of this fine country because of any right conduct on your part: for you are an obstinate people.

'Remember; never forget how you provoked Yahweh your God in the desert. 7 From the very day that you left Egypt until you arrived here, you have been rebels against Yahweh. 8 ·At Horeb, you provoked Yahweh, and Yahweh was so angry with you that he was ready to destroy you. 9 ·I had gone up the mountain to receive the stone tablets, the tablets of the covenant that Yahweh was making with you. I stayed forty days and forty nights on the mountain, with nothing to eat or drink. Yahweh gave me the two stone tablets inscribed by the finger of God, exactly 10 5:2–22 corresponding to what Yahweh had said to you on the mountain, from the heart of the fire, on the day of the Assembly. [b] 11 ·After forty days and forty nights, having given me the two stone tablets, the tablets of the covenant, 12 ·Yahweh said to me, "Get up, go down quickly, for your people, whom you have brought out of Egypt, are corrupting one another. They have been quick to leave the way I marked out for them; they have cast themselves a metal idol." 13 ·Yahweh then said to me, "I 9:6;31:27 Ex 32:9d have seen this people, and what an obstinate people they are! 14 ·Leave me, I am 2 K 17:14 Jr 7:26;17:23; 19:15 going to destroy them and wipe out their name under heaven; and I shall make you into a mightier and more numerous nation than they are!"

Ba 2:30 'I went back down the mountain, which was blazing with fire, and in my hands 15 were the two tablets of the covenant. 16 ·When I looked, I saw that you had been sinning against Yahweh your God. You had cast yourselves a metal calf; you had been quick to leave the way marked out for you by Yahweh. 17 ·I seized the two tablets and with my two hands threw them down and broke them before your eyes. Then I fell prostrate before Yahweh; as before, I spent forty days and forty nights 18 with nothing to eat or drink, on account of all the sins which you had committed, by doing what was displeasing to Yahweh and thus arousing his anger. 19 ·For I was ↗Heb 12:21 afraid of this anger, of the fury which so roused Yahweh against you that he was ready to destroy you. And, once again, Yahweh heard my prayer. 20 ·Yahweh was enraged with Aaron and was ready to destroy him too; I also pleaded for Aaron on Ex 32:20 that occasion. 21 ·That work of sin, the calf you had made, I took and burned and broke to pieces; having ground it to the finest dust, I threw its dust into the stream that comes down from the mountain.

1:25–40 Ex 17:1–7 Nb 11:1–34; 13:25–14:38; 20:1–13 Israel sins again. A prayer of Moses

'At Taberah too and at Massah and Kibroth-ha-Taavah, you provoked Yahweh. 22 And when Yahweh, meaning you to leave Kadesh-Barnea, said, "Go up and take 23 possession of the country which I have given you," you rebelled against the command of Yahweh your God and would not believe him or listen to his voice. You have been rebels against Yahweh from the day he first knew you. [c] 24

‖Ex 32:11–14e, 'So I fell prostrate before Yahweh and lay there those forty days and forty nights, 25 Yahweh having said that he was going to destroy you. 26 ·And I pleaded with Yahweh. "My Lord Yahweh," I said, "do not destroy your people, your heritage whom in your greatness you have redeemed, whom you have brought out of Egypt with your mighty hand. 27 ·Remember your servants, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob;

28 take no notice of this people's stubbornness, their wickedness, and their sin, •so that, in the country from which you have brought us, it may not be said, 'Yahweh these are your people, your heritage, whom you yourself have brought out by your great power and your outstretched arm." '

The ark of the covenant; the choice of Levi Ex 34:1seq.,27

1 10 'Yahweh then said to me, "Cut two stone tablets like the first ones, and 2 come up to me on the mountain. Make an ark of wood; •on the tablets I 31:26 shall inscribe the words that were on the first tablets, which you broke; put them in tablets, as he had inscribed them before, with the Ten Words which Yahweh had said to you on the mountain, from the heart of the fire, on the day of the Assembly.

5 Yahweh then gave them to me. •I turned and came down from the mountain and put the tablets in the ark I had made, and there they stayed, as Yahweh had commanded me.
6 'The Israelites left the wells of the Bene-Jaakan for Moserah,[a] where Aaron Nb 33:31–38 died; he was buried there, and his son Eleazar succeeded him in the priesthood.
7 From there, they set out for Gudgodah, and from Gudgodah for Jotbathah, an 8 area rich in streams. •Yahweh then set apart the tribe of Levi[b] to carry the ark of Yahweh's covenant, to stand in the presence of Yahweh, to serve him and to bless 9 in his name, as they still do today. •This is why Levi has no share or heritage with Nb 18:20d his brothers: Yahweh is his heritage, as Yahweh your God then told him.
10 'And, as before, I stayed on the mountain for forty days and forty nights. And 11 again Yahweh heard my prayer and agreed not to destroy you. •And Yahweh said to me, "Be on your way at the head of this people, so that they can go and take possession of the country which I swore to their ancestors that I would give them."

9 a. This is the beginning of a new unit, ending at 10:11. Moses, speaking in the first person, retells the story of the golden calf, of the breaking and remaking of the tablets of the covenant and of his intercession. Stylistically, the section is reminiscent of ch. 1–3. The narrative runs parallel to Ex 32, with some variation. It is not by a single hand, being burdened with a succession of additions, e.g. 9:20, 22–24; 10:8–9; there are frequent repetitions.

b. On several occasions in Dt, the word qahal denotes the religious assembly of the people of God, especially on the day of the promulgation of the Law, 18:16; see 4:10; 23:2–9, a notion that develops gradually, 2 Ch 31:18f, until it becomes 'the Church' of the NT, Mt 16:18g; Ac 7:38.

c. 'he knew you' Gk, Sam.; 'I knew you' Hebr.

10 a. NB 33:38 gives Mount Hor as the place were Aaron died; perhaps Moserah is the same place—it is otherwise unidentified.

b. The addition of vv. 8–9 was made independently of the addition of vv. 6–7 and the choice of the tribe of Levi has no connection with the death of Aaron. According to Ex 32:25–29, the Levites were given a special position in compensation for the slaughter of their brothers after sacrificing to the golden calf, and this association of ideas accounts for their intrusion into the narrative here. According to Nb 1:50; 3:6–8, however, the Levites were set apart by God himself, being devoted to him as substitutes for the first-born of Israel, Nb 3:12; 8:16.

c. The final section of the discourse explains the demands made by the covenant with God, borrowing the phraseology of human treaties of alliance: hence, the opening declaration, 10:12 seq., the historical exposition, 11:2–7, the description of the country, 11:10–12, 24, and the blessings and curses, 11:16–17, 22–23, 26–29.

d. Hebr. idiom to express the superlative. The 'heaven of heavens' is the highest of heavens.

e. Circumcision signified membership of God's people, Gn 17:10d. But this membership brought spiritual obligations with it: 'circumcision of the heart', Gn 8:21c; Jr 4:4a.

II: THE DEUTERONOMIC CODE[a]

1 12 'Now, these are the laws and customs which you must keep in the country which Yahweh, God of your ancestors, is giving you as yours, and which you must observe every day that you live in that country.

The place of worship[b]

2 'You must completely destroy all the places where the nations you dispossess have 1 K 14:23 2 K 16:4; 17:10

your burnt offerings and your sacrifices, your tithes and offerings held high, your 14:22d votive offerings and your voluntary offerings, and the first-born of your herd and Lv 1:1b,3 7 flock; ·and that is where you must eat in the presence of Yahweh your God,

f. God bestows his favour with absolute freedom and impartiality. 1:17; see also 2 Ch 19:7; Jb 34:19; Ws 6:7–8. The NT later adopts the same expression. Ac 10:34; Rm 2:11; Ga 2:6; Ep 6:9; Col 3:25; Jm 2:1; 1 P 1:17.

11 a. Apparently, the discourse of Moses originally ended with 11:1–17, to which a new conclusion, vv. 18–25, was later added. vv. 26–32 link the discourse to the Deuteronomic Code, see 4:44*l*.

b. Probably an allusion to a waterwheel operated by the foot.

c. At vv. 14–15, the speaker changes abruptly from Moses to God himself, see 7:4; 17:3; 28:20.

d. v. 30 is a gloss, in which the words 'in the territory of the Canaanites who live in the Arabah, opposite Gilgal' locate activities at Gilgal near Jericho, Jos 4:19b, which in fact occur near Shechem, where the Oak of Moreh used to be, Gn 12:6.

12 a. This Code, ch. 12–26, assembles, in no apparent order, several collections of laws of diverse origin, some of which probably belonged to the Northern Kingdom, whence they seem to have been introduced into Judah after the destruction of Samaria. The body of law reflects the social and religious development of the people and was intended to replace the old Code of the Covenant. It represents, basically at least, the Law discovered in the Temple under Josiah, 2 K 22:8 seq.

b. This law, later to become fundamental for the religion of Israel, and motivated by the same preoccupations as those of the Prophets, aims at preserving the cult of Yahweh from contamination by Canaanite cults: hence the destruction of the high places of these cults and the choice of a unique sanctuary for the worship of Yahweh. The expression 'place which he will choose . . . there to set his name', vv. 5, 21, or 'as a home for his name', v. 11; see 14:23; 16:11, or 'there to have his name remembered', Ex 20:24, might as it stands mean any place where God had manifested himself and where, hence, worship had been approved by God himself, see Jr 7:12 for Shiloh, and this is how, for many centuries, the expression was understood, the cult of Yahweh being practised in a number of different sanctuaries see Jg 6:24, 28; 13:16; 1 K 3:4. In Dt the formula applies exclusively to Jerusalem. This law on the unique sanctuary was to be one of the principal points of Josiah's reform, 2 K 23.

rejoicing over your labours, you and your households, because Yahweh your God has blessed you. [c]

Jg 17:6+ 'You must not behave as we are behaving here today, each of you doing what he 8 himself sees fit, 9 since you have not yet come to the resting place and the heritage that Yahweh your God is going to give you. 10 You are about to cross the Jordan and live in the country given you by Yahweh your God as your heritage; he will grant you peace from all the enemies surrounding you, and you will live in safety.
To the place chosen by Yahweh your God as a home for his name, to that place 11 you must bring all the things that I am laying down for you: your burnt offerings and your sacrifices, your tithes and offerings held high, and all the best of your possessions dedicated by you to Yahweh. 12 That is where you will rejoice in the presence of Yahweh your God, you and your sons and daughters, your serving Nb 18:20–24 men and women, and the Levite living in your community since he has no share or heritage of his own among you.

Sacrificial regulations [d]

'Take care you do not offer your burnt offerings in all the sacred places you see; 13 only in the place that Yahweh chooses in one of your tribes may you offer your 14 burnt offerings and do all the things which I have commanded you.

'This notwithstanding, and whenever you wish, you may slaughter and eat meat 15 wherever you live—as much as the blessing of Yahweh affords you. Clean or unclean may eat it, as though it were gazelle or deer. [e] 16 You will not, however, eat the blood, but will pour that like water on the ground.

12:23 'You must not eat the tithe of your wheat, of your new wine or of your oil, or the 17
Lv 1:5e first-born of your herd or flock, or any of your votive offerings or voluntary 14:22d offerings, or your offerings held high to Yahweh, at home. 18 You must eat these in the presence of Yahweh your God in the place Yahweh your God chooses and there alone, you, your son and your daughter, your serving man and serving woman, and the Levite living in your community, expressing your joy in all your labours in the presence of Yahweh your God. 19 As long as you live on your soil, be careful not to neglect the Levite.

'When Yahweh your God enlarges your territory as he has promised you, and 20 you say, "I should like to eat meat," if you want to eat meat you may eat as much as you like. 21 If the place in which Yahweh your God chooses to set his name is too far away, you may slaughter any of your herd or flock that Yahweh has given you, as I have prescribed for you; you may eat as much of it as you please at home. 22 But you must eat it as you would gazelle or deer; clean and unclean may eat it together.

Lv 1:5e Take care, however, not to eat the blood, since blood is life, and you must not eat 23 the life with the meat. 24 You must not eat it, but must pour it like water on the ground. 25 You must not eat it—so that you, and your children after you, may prosper, doing what is right in Yahweh's eyes. 26 But the holy things of yours and the things which you have dedicated, you must go and take to the place chosen by Yahweh. 27 The burnt offerings of meat and blood must be presented on the altar of Yahweh your God; whereas, in your sacrifices, the blood must be poured on the altar of Yahweh your God; the meat you yourselves may eat. 28 Faithfully keep and obey all these orders which I am giving you, so that you and your children after you may prosper for ever, doing what is good and right in the eyes of Yahweh your God.

Against Canaanite cults

'When Yahweh your God has annihilated the nations confronting you, whom you 29 7:1–6 are going to dispossess, and when you have dispossessed them and made your home in their country, 30 beware of being entrapped into copying them, after they have been destroyed to make way for you, and do not enquire about their gods, saying, "How did these nations worship their gods? I am going to do the same too." 31 This is not the way to treat Yahweh your God. For in honour of their gods they have done everything detestable that Yahweh hates; yes, in honour of their gods, they even burn their own sons and daughters as sacrifices!' Lv 18:21h

32 1 13 'Whatever I am now commanding you, you must keep and observe, adding nothing to it, taking nothing away.

Against the enticements of idolatry 17:2–7;18:21f

1 2 'If a prophet or a dreamer of dreams arises among you, offering you some sign or Jr 23:11–14
2 3 wonder, ·and the sign or wonder comes about; and if he then says to you, "Let us 3 4 follow other gods (hitherto unknown to you) and serve them," ·you must not listen to that prophet's words or to that dreamer's dreams. Yahweh your God is testing you to know if you love Yahweh your God with all your heart and all your soul. 6:5 4 5 Yahweh your God is the one whom you must follow, him you must fear, his 6:13 commandments you must keep, his voice you must obey, him you must serve, to 5 6 him you must hold fast. ·That prophet or that dreamer of dreams must be put to 18:21f death, since he has preached apostasy from Yahweh your God who brought you out of Egypt and redeemed you from the place of slave-labour; and he would have diverted you from the way in which Yahweh your God has commanded you to walk. You must banish this evil from among you. ↗1 Co 5:13

6 7 'If your brother, the son of your father[a] or of your mother, or your son or daughter, or the spouse whom you embrace, or your most intimate friend, tries secretly to seduce you, saying, "Let us go and serve other gods," unknown to you 7 8 or your ancestors before you, ·gods of the peoples surrounding you, whether near 8 9 you or far away, anywhere throughout the world, ·you must not consent, you must not listen to him; you must show him no pity, you must not spare him or conceal his 9 10 guilt. ·No, you must kill him, your hand must strike the first blow in putting him to 10 11 death and the hands of the rest of the people following. ·You must stone him to death, since he has tried to divert you from Yahweh your God who brought you 11 12 out of Egypt, from the place of slave-labour. ·All Israel, hearing of this, will be afraid, and none of you will do such a wicked thing again.

12 13 'If you hear that in one of the towns which Yahweh your God has given you for 13 14 a home, ·there are men, scoundrels[b] from your own stock, who have led their fellow-citizens astray, saying, "Let us go and serve other gods," hitherto unknown 14 15 to you, ·it is your duty to look into the matter, examine it, and enquire most carefully. If it is proved and confirmed that such a hateful thing has taken place 15 16 among you, ·you must put the inhabitants of that town to the sword; you must lay 16 17 it under the curse of destruction—the town and everything in it.[c] ·You must pile Jos 6:17c up all its loot in the public square and burn the town and all its loot, offering it all to 17 18 Yahweh your God. It is to be a ruin for all time, and never rebuilt. ·From what is thus put under the curse of destruction you must keep nothing back, so that Yahweh may turn from the ferocity of his anger and show you mercy, and have pity on you and increase your numbers, as he swore he would to your ancestors, 18 19 on condition that you listen to the voice of Yahweh your God by keeping all his commandments which I am enjoining on you today, and by doing what is right in the eyes of Yahweh your God.'

c. The Deuteronomic Code frequently emphasises the joy of the ritual meal and of the liturgical feasts, see vv. 12, 18; 16:11, 14.

d. As a consequence of the legislation for a single sanctuary, a distinction is drawn between the slaughter and the sacrificial killing of animals; the first may be performed anywhere, the second only in the chosen sanctuary. Lv 17:3 seq. makes no such distinction, see Lv 17:4b; see also 1 S 14:32 seq.

e. Game incurred no interdict.

13 a. 'son of your father' Gk, Sam.; omitted by Hebr.

b. lit. 'sons of Belial'. Its probable meaning is 'useless', whence 'worthless', 'wicked'. Gradually 'Belial' came to be considered a proper name, related to the power of evil, see Ps 18:4 ('Beliar' in NT, 2 Co 6:15 and the apocryphal writings).

c. Following the shorter Gk text; Hebr. adds 'and its cattle, to the edge of the sword'.

Against an idolatrous practice

‖Lv 19:27–28 7:6b Ex 19:6+ 14 'You are children of Yahweh your God. You must not gash yourselves or 1 shave your foreheads for the dead.[a] ·For you are a people consecrated to 2 Yahweh your God, and Yahweh has chosen you to be his own people from all the peoples on the earth.

Lv 11:1b Clean and unclean animals

'You must not eat anything disgusting. ·These are the animals you may eat: ox, 3, 4 sheep, goat, ·deer, gazelle, roebuck, ibex, antelope, oryx, mountain sheep. ·You 5, 6 may eat any animal that has a divided and cloven hoof and that is a ruminant. ·Of 7 those, however, that are ruminants and of those that have a divided and cloven hoof you may not eat the following: the camel, the hare and the coney, which are ruminants but have no cloven hoof; you must class them as unclean. ·So also the 8 pig, which though it has a cloven hoof is not a ruminant; you must class it as unclean. You must neither eat the meat of such animals nor touch their dead bodies.

'Of whatever lives in water you may eat the following: you may eat anything that 9 has fins and scales. ·But you must not eat anything without fins and scales: you 10 must class it as unclean.

'You may eat all clean birds, ·but the following birds you must not eat: the tawny 11, 12
vulture, the griffon, the osprey, ·the kite and the several kinds of buzzard,[b] 13 all kinds of raven, ·the ostrich, the screech owl, the seagull, the several kinds of 14, 15 hawk, ·owl, barn owl, ibis, ·pelican. white vulture, cormorant, ·stork, the several 16–18 kinds of heron, hoopoe and bat. ·You are to class all winged insects as unclean and 19 must not eat them. ·You may eat any clean fowl. 20

Ex 22:30 Lv 17:15 'You must not eat any animal that has died a natural death. You may give it to a 21 resident foreigner to eat, or sell it to a foreigner. For you are a people consecrated to Yahweh your God.[c] ‖Ex 23:19g 'You must not boil a kid in its mother's milk.

The annual tithe[d]

'Every year, you must take a tithe of what your fields produce from what you have 22 sown ·and, in the presence of Yahweh your God, in the place where he chooses to 23 give his name a home, you must eat the tithe of your wheat, of your new wine and of your oil, and the first-born of your herd and flock; and by so doing, you will learn always to fear·Yahweh your God.

'If the road is too long for you, if you cannot bring your tithe because the place in 24 which Yahweh chooses to make a home for his name is too far away, when Yahweh your God has blessed you, ·you must convert it into money and, with the money 25 clasped in your hand, you must go to the place chosen by Yahweh your God; there you may spend the money on whatever you like, oxen, sheep, wine, fer- 26 mented liquor, anything you please. There you must eat in the presence of Yahweh your God and rejoice, you and your household. ·Do not neglect the Levite living 27 in your community, since he has no share or heritage of his own among you.

26:12 The third-year tithe

'At the end of every three years, you must take all the tithes of your harvests for 28
Nb 18:20d that year and collect them in your community. ·Then the Levite—since he has no 29 share or heritage of his own among you—the foreigner, the orphan and the widow living in your community, will come and eat all they want. And so Yahweh your God will bless you in all the labours that you undertake.'

Lv 25:1–7.1a The sabbatical year

15 'At the end of every seven years, you must grant remission. ·The nature of 1, 2 the remission is as follows: any creditor holding a personal pledge obtained from his fellow must release him from it; he must not exploit his fellow or his 3 brother[a] once the latter has appealed to Yahweh for remission. ·A foreigner you 4 may exploit, but you must remit whatever claim you have on your brother. ·There must, then, be no poor among you. For Yahweh will grant you his blessing in the 5 country which Yahweh your God is giving you to possess as your heritage, ·only if you pay careful attention to the voice of Yahweh your God, by keeping and 6 practising all these commandments which I am enjoining on you today. ·If Yahweh your God blesses you as he has promised, you will be creditors to many nations but 23:20–21 debtors to none; you will rule over many nations, and be ruled by none.

7 'Is there anyone poor among you, one of your brothers, in any town of yours in the country which Yahweh your God is giving you? Do not harden your heart or 8 close your hand against that poor brother of yours, ·but be open handed with him 1 Jn 3:17 9 and lend him enough for his needs. ·Do not allow this mean thought in your heart,
"The seventh year, the year of remission, is near," and scowl at your poor brother and give him nothing; he could appeal against you to Yahweh, and you would incur 10 guilt! ·When you give to him, you must give with an open heart; for this, Yahweh 11 your God will bless you in all your actions and in all your undertakings. ·Of course, there will never cease to be poor people in the country, and that is why I am giving Mt 26:11par.
you this command: Always be open handed with your brother, and with anyone in your country who is in need and poor.

Slaves

12 'If your fellow Hebrew, man or woman, sells himself to you, he can serve you for 13 six years. In the seventh year you must set him free, ·and in setting him free you Ex 21:2–4 Lv 25:13–17
14 must not let him go empty handed. ·By way of present, you will load his shoulders Jr 34:14 with things from your flock, from your threshing-floor and from your winepress; as 15 Yahweh your God has blessed you, so you must give to him. ·Remember that you 24:18 were once a slave in Egypt and that Yahweh your God redeemed you; that is why I am giving you this order today.
16 'But if he says to you, "I do not want to leave you," because he loves you and Ex 21:5–6 17 your household and is happy with you, ·you must take an awl and drive it through his ear into the door and he will be your servant for ever. You must do the same to a female slave.
18 'Do not think it hard on you to have to give him his freedom; he is worth twice what a paid servant would cost you, and has served you for six years. And Yahweh your God will bless you in everything you do.

The first-born

Ex 13:2.11b

19 'You must consecrate every first-born male from your herd and flock to Yahweh your God. You must not put the first-born of your herd to work, or shear the first-20 born of your flock. ·You must eat it, you and your household, each year, in the 21 presence of Yahweh your God, in the place which Yahweh chooses. ·If it has any defect, if it is lame or blind—any serious defect—you must not sacrifice it to 22 Yahweh your God. ·You will eat it at home, unclean and clean together,[b] as you Ex 12:15

14 a. Commonly interpreted as a prohibition of the cult of the dead, see Lv 19:27i. Possibly, however, the 'one who is dead' is the god Baal whose death was commemorated at the beginning of summer, see 26:14; 1 K 18:28, when the vegetation withered; see also Ezk 8:14.

b. Hebr. corrupt; identifications uncertain.

c. The moral, legal and cultic regulations of Lv 17:15; 18:26; 19:33–34; 24:22, see also Dt 5:14; Ex 12:49; 20:10 (on the Sabbath) all insist that the stranger or foreigner should be treated in the same way as the 'citizen'. Dt makes a distinction, based on Israel's privileged and holy role, see also 15:3; 23:21. Where Dt does not make this distinction, 24:14, 17 seq., it is reproducing older legislation. Dt nonetheless does assert God's love for the stranger and foreigner, 10:18.

d. Tithe is paid to the owner of the land: it is therefore due to Yahweh who owns the land of Israel. According to Dt the produce of the soil is tithed and the tithe taken to the Temple (12:6–7, 17–19; 14:22–27). Every third year, vv. 28–29, it becomes the property of the poor. According to Nb 18:21–32 the tithe is paid, as God's due, to the Levites; these make a tenth of it over to the priests. According to Lv 27:32–33 cattle are also tithed. 14:25 and Lv 27:31 envisage payment in money.

15 a. The debtor sometimes made a contractual agreement to hand over one of his children as a slave, or himself to work for his creditor, in case of non-repayment.

b. To make it clear that the meal is not a ritual one.

would gazelle or deer; ·only, you will not eat its blood, but pour that like water on 23
the ground.'

Ex 12:1a; 23:14d Lv 23:5–8 Nb 28 16–25

The feasts: Passover and Unleavened Bread [a]

16 'Observe the month of Abib and celebrate the Passover for Yahweh your 1 God, because it was in the month of Abib that Yahweh your God brought you out of Egypt by night. ·You must sacrifice a Passover from your flock or herd 2 for Yahweh your God in the place where Yahweh chooses to give his name a home.
You must not eat leavened bread with this; for seven days you must eat it with 3 unleavened bread—the bread of affliction—since you left Egypt in great haste; this is so that, as long as you live, you will remember the day you came out of Egypt.
For seven days no leaven must be found in any house throughout your territory, 4 nor must any of the meat that you sacrifice in the evening of the first day be kept overnight until the next day. ·You must sacrifice the Passover not in any of the 5 12:11 towns given you by Yahweh your God, ·but in the place where Yahweh your God 6 chooses to give his name a home; there you must sacrifice the Passover, in the evening at sunset, at the hour when you came out of Egypt. ·You will cook it and 7 eat it in the place chosen by Yahweh your God, and in the morning you must return and go to your tents. ·For six days you will eat unleavened bread; on the seventh 8 day there will be an assembly for Yahweh your God; and you must do no work.

Ex 23:14d Lv 23:15–21 Nb 28:26–31

Other feasts

'You must count seven weeks, counting these seven weeks from the time you begin 9 to put your sickle into the standing corn. ·You will then celebrate the feast of 10 Weeks for Yahweh your God with the gift of a voluntary offering proportionate to the degree in which Yahweh your God has blessed you. ·You must rejoice in the 11 presence of Yahweh your God, in the place where Yahweh your God chooses to give his name a home, you, your son and your daughter, your serving men and women, the Levite living in your community, the foreigner, the orphan and the widow living among you. ·Remember that you were once a slave in Egypt, and 12 carefully observe these laws.

Lv 23:33–43 Nb 29:12–29

'You must celebrate the feast of Shelters for seven days, at the time when you 13 gather in the produce of your threshing-floor and winepress. ·You must rejoice at 14 your feast, you, your son and your daughter, your serving men and women, the Levite, the foreigner, the orphan and the widow living in your community. ·For 15 seven days, you must celebrate the feast for Yahweh your God in the place chosen by Yahweh; for Yahweh your God will bless you in all your produce and in all your undertakings, so that you will have good reason to rejoice.

Tb 1:6 Lk 2:42

'Three times a year all your menfolk must appear before Yahweh your God in 16
the place chosen by him: at the feast of Unleavened Bread, at the feast of Weeks, at the feast of Shelters. No one must appear empty-handed before Yahweh, ·but 17 each must give what he can, in proportion to the blessing which Yahweh your God has bestowed on you.

Ex 23:1–3;6–8 2 Ch 19:5

Judges [b]

'You must appoint judges and scribes in each of the towns that Yahweh your God 18 is giving you, for all your tribes; these are to mete out proper justice to the people.
1:16–17 You must not pervert the law; you must be impartial; you will take no bribes, for a 19 bribe blinds the eyes of the wise and ruins the cause of the upright. ·Strict justice 20 must be your ideal, so that you may live long in possession of the country given you by Yahweh your God.

Abuses in worship

Ex 34:13e Ex 23:24k

'You must not plant a sacred pole of any wood whatsoever beside the altar which 21 you erect for Yahweh your God; ·nor will you set up a standing-stone, a thing 22 Yahweh your God would abhor.'

17 'To Yahweh your God you must sacrifice nothing from herd or flock that has any blemish or defect whatsoever, for Yahweh your God holds this detestable. Lv 22:20–25

'If there is anyone, man or woman, among you in any of the towns given you by Yahweh your God, who does what is wrong in the eyes of Yahweh your God by violating his covenant, ·who goes and serves other gods and worships them, or the sun or the moon or any of heaven's array—a thing I have forbidden—·and this person is denounced to you: if after careful enquiry it is found true and confirmed that this hateful thing has been done in Israel, ·you must take the man or woman guilty of this evil deed outside your city gates, and there you must stone that man or woman to death. ·A death sentence may be passed only on the word of two witnesses or three; and no one must be put to death on the word of one witness alone. ·The witnesses' hands must strike the first blow in putting the condemned to death, the rest of the people following. You must banish this evil from among you. 13;19:15–21 4:19 19:15+ Ac 7:58t ↗1 Co 5:13

Levitical judges 21:5

'If a case comes before you which is too difficult for you, a case of murder, conflicting claims, damage to property—any kind of dispute—in your towns, you must make your way to the place chosen by Yahweh your God, ·and approach the levitical priests and the judge then in office. They will hold an enquiry [a] and let you know their sentence. ·You must abide by the verdict which they give you in this place chosen by Yahweh, and you will take care to carry out all their instructions. You will abide by the decision which they give you and by the sentence which they pronounce, not deviating to right or to left from the verdict which they have given you. ·If anyone presumes to disobey either the priest who is there in the service of Yahweh your God, or the judge, that person must die. You must banish this evil from Israel. ·And when the people hear of this they will all be afraid and not act presumptuously any more.

Kings [b] 1 S 8:11–18

'If, having reached the country given by Yahweh your God and having taken possession of it and, while living there, you think, "I should like to appoint a king to rule me—like all the surrounding nations," ·the king whom you appoint to rule you must be chosen by Yahweh your God; the appointment of a king must be made from your own brothers; on no account must you appoint as king some foreigner who is not a brother of yours.

'He must not, however, acquire more and more horses, or send the people back to Egypt with a view to increasing his cavalry, since Yahweh has told you, "You must never go back that way again." [c] ·Nor must he keep on acquiring more and more wives, for that could lead his heart astray. Nor must he acquire vast quantities of silver and gold. [d] ·Once seated on his royal throne, and for his own use, he must write a copy of this Law on a scroll, at the dictation of the levitical priests. [e] ·It must never leave him, and he must read it every day of his life and learn to fear Yahweh his God by keeping all the words of this Law and observing these rules, 1 K 5:6;10:26–28 Jr 42:15–19 1 K 11:1

16 a. Composite text. vv. 1, 2, 4[b]–7, are about the Passover (in contrast to the ancient ritual, the victim may be selected from the cattle, v. 2, and may be 'cooked'—that is to say, boiled instead of roasted, v. 7); vv. 3, 4[a] and 8 are about the feast of Unleavened Bread (the description of the unleavened bread as 'the bread of affliction' is unparalleled elsewhere). The juxtaposition of these two feasts here is a literary device. The two feasts, celebrated at much the same time of year, together merged only after the times of Josiah. Dt's innovation was to make Passover, hitherto a family feast, into a pilgrimage to Jerusalem. The ritual according to which Josiah celebrated the Passover, followed the Dt rite. 2 K 23:21–23; see 2 Ch 35:7 seq. which mentions bullocks among the sacrificial victims.

b. Courts are to be set up in each town, vv. 18–20; cases beyond their competence are to be transferred to a supreme court, that of Jerusalem, from the sentences of which there is no appeal, 17:8–13. This reflects the judicial reforms of Jehoshaphat, 2 Ch 19:5–11.

17 a. 'They will hold an enquiry' Gk, Sam.; 'you will hold an enquiry' Hebr.

b. The king is not mentioned elsewhere in the Dt Code. This 'law for the king' is parallel to the one in 1 S 8:11–18 and shows little sympathy with monarchy. Both texts belong to the same current of anti-monarchical opinion, which can also be traced in Ho 7:3–7; 13:9–11 and in Ezk 34:1–10.

c. Not a verbatim quotation, but the thought is expressed in Nb 14:3 seq., see Ex 13:17 and 14:11 seq.

d. Apparently these vv. allude to Solomon, see 1 K 10:26 seq. and ch. 11.

e. Some render 'he will get the priests to write . . .'.

so that he will not think himself superior to his brothers, and not deviate from these commandments either to right or to left. So doing, long will he occupy his throne, he and his sons, in Israel.' 20

The levitical priesthood [a]

Nb 18 18 'The levitical priests, the whole tribe of Levi will be without share or heritage of their own in Israel; they will live on the foods offered [b] to 1
Ezk 44:28–29 Yahweh and on his heritage. ·Levi will have no heritage of his own among his brothers; Yahweh will be his heritage, as he has promised him. 2
Lv 6:7 Nb 18:8–24 'This is what is due to the priests from the people, from those who offer an ox or a sheep in sacrifice: the priest must be given the shoulder, the cheeks and the stomach. [c] ·You must give him the first-fruits of your wheat, of your new wine and 3 4 of your oil, as well as the first-fruits of your sheep-shearing. ·For Yahweh your God has chosen him from all your tribes to stand before Yahweh your God, to do 5
the duties of the sacred ministry, and to bless in Yahweh's name—him and his sons for all time.
2 K 23:9i 'If a Levite living in one of your towns anywhere in Israel decides to move to the place chosen by Yahweh, ·he shall minister there in the name of Yahweh his God 6 7 like all his fellow Levites who stand ministering there in the presence of Yahweh, eating equal shares with them—what he has from the sale of his patrimony notwithstanding. [d] 8

Prophets

'When you have entered the country given you by Yahweh your God, you must 9 not learn to imitate the detestable practices of the nations there already.
Lv 18:21+ There must never be anyone among you who makes his son or daughter pass 10 through the fire of sacrifice, who practises divination, who is soothsayer, augur or Lv 19:31+ sorcerer, ·weaver of spells, consulter of ghosts or mediums, or necromancer. 11
For anyone who does these things is detestable to Yahweh your God; it is because 12 of these detestable practices that Yahweh your God is driving out these nations before you.

'You must be faultless in your relationship with Yahweh your God. ·For these 13, 14
Is 2:6.6e nations whom you are going to dispossess have listened to soothsayers and mediums, but Yahweh your God does not permit you to do this. From among Nb 12:6c yourselves, from among your own brothers, ·Yahweh your God will raise up a 15
Mt 17:5 prophet like me; you will listen to him. ·This is exactly what you asked Yahweh 16 your God to do—at Horeb, on the day of the Assembly, when you said, "Never let me hear the voice of Yahweh my God or see this great fire again, or I shall die."
Then Yahweh said to me, ·"What they have said is well said. From their own 17, 18
Ex 4:12 ↗Jn 1:21t; 12:49–50 ↗Ac 3:22–23; 7:37 brothers I shall raise up a prophet like yourself; [e] ·I shall put my words into his 19 mouth and he will tell them everything I command him. Anyone who refuses to listen to my words, spoken by him in my name, will have to render an account to Ezk 3:19;33:9 13:1–6 Jr 14:14–16 me. ·But the prophet who presumes to say something in my name which I have not 20 commanded him to say, or who speaks in the name of other gods, that prophet must die."

'You may be privately wondering, "How are we to tell that a prophecy does not 21 come from Yahweh?" [f] ·When a prophet speaks in the name of Yahweh and the 22 1 K 22:28 Jr 28:9 Ezk 2:5;33:33 thing does not happen and the word is not fulfilled, then it has not been said by Yahweh. The prophet has spoken presumptuously. You have nothing to fear from him.'

Ex 21:13–14,e Nb 35:9–34,19c

Homicide and cities of refuge

19 'When Yahweh your God has annihilated the nations whose country Yahweh your God is going to give you, and you have dispossessed them and 1 are living in their towns and in their houses, ·you must set aside three towns, 2 centrally placed in the country which Yahweh your God is giving you for your own.

3 You will keep the approaches to them in good order, dividing the area of the country which Yahweh your God is giving you as your heritage, into three parts, so 4 that any killer can flee to these towns. ·Here is an example of how someone may save his life by fleeing to them.

'If anyone has struck his fellow accidentally, without any previous feud with him
5 (for example, he goes with his fellow into the forest to cut wood; his arm swings the axe to fell a tree; the head slips off the handle and strikes his companion dead),
6 that man may take refuge in one of these towns and save his life. ·It must not be allowed that the avenger of blood, in the heat of his anger, should pursue the killer Nb 35:19c and that the length of the road should help him to overtake and wound him fatally; for the man has not deserved to die, having had no previous feud with his victim.
7, 8 'Hence I am giving you this order: You must set aside three towns, ·and if 4:41–43
Yahweh your God enlarges your territory, as he swore to your ancestors that he would, and gives you the whole country which he promised to give to your 9 ancestors—·provided that you keep and observe all the commandments which I am enjoining on you today, loving Yahweh your God and always following his 10 ways—then, to those three towns you will add three more. ·In this way, innocent blood will not be shed in the country which Yahweh your God is going to give you as your heritage; otherwise you would incur blood-guilt.
11 'But if it happens that a man has a feud with his fellow and lies in wait for him and attacks him and fatally wounds him and he dies, and the man takes refuge in 12 one of these towns, ·the elders of his own town must send there and have him taken 13 and handed over to the avenger of blood, to be put to death.[a] ·You must show him 19:21 no pity. You must banish the shedding of innocent blood from Israel, and then you will prosper.

Boundaries 27:17

14 'You must not displace your neighbour's boundary mark, positioned by men of old in the heritage soon to be yours, in the country which Yahweh your God is about to give you.

Witnesses 17:2–7

15 'A single witness will not suffice to convict anyone of a crime or offence of any kind; whatever the misdemeanour, the evidence of two witnesses or three is ↗Mt 18:16 ↗Jn 8:16–17 ↗2 Co 13:1 ↗1 Tm 5:19 ↗Heb 10:28 required to sustain the charge.
16 'If someone gives false evidence against anyone, laying a charge of apostasy, 17 both parties to this dispute before Yahweh must appear before the priests and 18 judges then in office. ·The judges will make a careful enquiry, and if it turns out 19 that the witness is a liar and has made a false accusation against his brother, ·you must treat the witness as he would have treated his brother. You must banish this 20 evil from among you. ·The rest, hearing of this, will be afraid and never again do
21 such an evil thing among you. ·You must show no pity. 19:13

18 a. According to Dt, all the members of the tribe of Levi belong to the priesthood—hence the expression 'levitical priests', see 21:5; 24:8; 31:9; see also 17:9, 18—but they may exercise their priestly functions only in Jerusalem, vv. 6–7, where they draw their living from the altar, vv. 1–5. There being too many of them in point of fact for all of them to be employed in the Temple, many lived in the provinces where, like the stranger, the widow and the orphan, they were recommended to the charity of the Israelites, 12:18–19. a distinction between the priests and their servants the Levites does not, therefore, at this point yet exist, although anticipated by the actual distinction between those who serve the sanctuary and those other members of the tribe who are scattered about the country.

b. 'foods offered': in Hebr. 'ishshe; here and in 1 S 2:28, the word simply means foods offered to the deity (of which the priests receive part). In Lv and the 'Priestly' tradition, it is given a less material sense, by a fancied connection with the word 'esh, fire; hence 'sacrifice by fire', 'burnt offering', see Lv 1:9g.

c. Specifications to rule out abuses, as for instance those committed by the sons of Eli at Shiloh, 1 S 2:13.

d. Verse-ending obscure. Possibly a measure against a means-test: a Levite's portion from the Temple to be fair shares, regardless of what personal property he might own. In point of fact, the regulation granting equal rights to all Levites was never applied, see 2 K 23:9i.

e. Institution of the prophetic (as 17:14–20 is of the royal) office; it is ascribed by Moses to Yahweh at the time of the manifestation at Horeb, see Ex 20:19–21 and Dt 5:23–28. The Jewish expectation of a Messiah-Prophet, a second Moses, is based on this passage.

f. How to distinguish between true and false prophet was an urgent problem (1 K 22; Jr 28). Two criteria are offered: loyalty to the religion of Israel, see ch. 13, and fulfilment of the prediction, 18:22.

19 a. Yahwism admits consideration of intention in the penal code, see also Nb 35:20–23.

Ex 21:25f Limits of retaliation

'Life for life, eye for eye, tooth for tooth, hand for hand, foot for foot.' [b]

War and combatants

1:28–29 20 'When you go to war against your enemies and see horses and chariots and 1 an army greater than your own, you must not be afraid of them; Yahweh your God is with you, he who brought you out of Egypt. ·When you are about to 2 join battle, the priest must come forward and address the people. ·He must say to 3 1:21 them, "Listen, Israel: today you are about to join battle with your enemies. Do not be faint hearted. Let there be no fear or trembling or alarm as you face them.
Ex 33:14; 34:9–10 Yahweh your God is marching with you, to fight your enemies for you and make 4 you victorious."

'The scribes will then address the people, as follows: 5

↗1 M 3:56 "Has anyone built a new house and not yet dedicated it? Let him go home, in case he dies in battle and someone else performs the dedication.

"Has anyone planted a vineyard and not yet enjoyed its fruit? Let him go home, 6 in case he dies in battle and someone else enjoys its fruit.

24:5 "Has anyone contracted to marry a girl and not yet married her? Let him go 7 home, in case he dies in battle and someone else marries her."

'Finally, the scribes will say to the people: 8

Jg 7:3 "Is anyone frightened or faint hearted? Let him go home, in case he makes his brothers faint hearted too!"

'Then, when the scribes have finished speaking to the people, commanders will 9 be appointed to lead them.

7:1–5 Captured towns [a]

'When you advance on a town to attack it, first offer it peace-terms. ·If it accepts 10, 11
these and opens its gates to you, all the people inside will owe you forced labour and work for you. ·But if it refuses peace and gives battle, you must besiege it. 12 Yahweh your God having handed it over to you, you will put the whole male 13 population to the sword. ·But the women, children, livestock and whatever the 14 town contains by way of spoil, you may take for yourselves as booty. You will feed on the spoils of the enemies whom Yahweh your God has handed over to you.

'That is how you will treat towns far away and not belonging to the nations near 15
you. ·But as regards the towns of those peoples whom Yahweh your God is giving 16 you as your heritage, you must not spare the life of any living thing. ·Instead, you 17 must lay them under the curse of destruction: Hittites, Amorites, Canaanites, Perizzites, Hivites and Jebusites, as Yahweh your God has commanded, ·so that 18 they may not teach you to do all the detestable things which they do to honour their gods: in doing these, you would sin against Yahweh your God.

'If, when attacking a town, you have to besiege it for a long time before you 19 capture it, you must not destroy its trees by taking the axe to them: eat their fruit but do not cut them down. Is the tree in the fields human, that you should besiege it too? ·Any trees, however, which you know are not fruit trees, you may destroy 20 and cut down and use to build siege-works against the hostile town until it falls.'

The unidentified murderer

21 'If, in the country which Yahweh your God gives you as your possession, a 1 victim of murder is found lying in the open country and it is not known who has killed that person, ·your elders and scribes [a] must measure the distance between 2 the victim and the surrounding towns, ·and establish which town is the nearest to 3 the victim. The elders of that town must then take a heifer that has not yet been put Nb 19:2 to work or used as a draught animal under the yoke. ·The elders of that town must 4 bring the heifer down to a permanently flowing river, to a spot that has been neither ploughed nor sown, and there by the river they must break the heifer's neck. •The priests, the sons of Levi, will then step forward, these being the men whom Yahweh your God has chosen to serve him and to bless in Yahweh's name, and it being their business to settle all cases of dispute or of violence. •All the elders of the town nearest to the victim of murder must then wash their hands in the stream, over the slaughtered heifer.[b] •They must pronounce these words, "Our hands have not shed this blood and our eyes have seen nothing. •O Yahweh, forgive[c] your people Israel whom you have redeemed, and let no innocent blood be shed among your people Israel. May this bloodshed be forgiven them!" •You must banish all shedding of innocent blood from among you, if you mean to do what is right in the eyes of Yahweh.

17:8–12 Ps 26:6;73:13 Mt 27:24 19:13

Women taken in war

'When you go to war against your enemies and Yahweh your God delivers them into your power and you take prisoners, •and among the prisoners you see a beautiful woman, and you fall in love with her, and you take her to be your wife and bring her home; she must shave her head and cut her nails, •and take off her prisoner's garb; she must stay inside your house and mourn her father and mother for a full month. You may then go to her and be a husband to her, and she will be your wife. •Should she cease to please you, you will let her go where she wishes, not selling her for money: you must not make any profit out of her, since you have exploited her.

Birthright

'If a man has two wives, one loved and the other unloved, and the loved one and the unloved both bear him children, and if the first-born son is of the unloved wife, when the man comes to bequeath his goods to his sons, he may not treat the son of the wife whom he loves as the first-born, at the expense of the son of the wife whom he does not love, the true first-born. •As his first-born he must acknowledge the son of the wife whom he does not love, giving him a double share[d] of his estate; this son being the first-fruit of his vigour, the right of the first-born is his.

Gn 29:30–31 1 S 1:2,8

The rebellious son

'If a man has a stubborn and rebellious son who will not listen to the voice either of his father or of his mother and, even when they punish him, still will not pay attention to them, •his father and mother must take hold of him and bring him out to the elders of his town at the gate of that place. •To the elders of his town, they will say, "This son of ours is stubborn and rebellious and will not listen to us; he is a wastrel and a drunkard." •All his fellow-citizens must then stone him to death. You must banish this evil from among you. All Israel, hearing of this, will be afraid.

Pr 23:22;30:17

Various rulings

'If a man guilty of a capital offence is to be put to death, and you hang him from a tree, •his body must not remain on the tree overnight; you must bury him the same day, since anyone hanged is a curse of God, and you must not bring pollution on the soil which Yahweh your God is giving you as your heritage.'

Jn 19:31 Jos 8:29; 10:26–27 ↗Ga 3:13

b. The restatement of the law of retaliation is prompted by v. 19.

20 a. When Dt was promulgated under Josiah, the occasion no longer existed for applying these regulations: there were no Canaanites left to be put under the curse of destruction, see Jos 6:17c, and the Israelites were no longer laying siege to foreign towns. This revival of interest in the 'holy war' should perhaps be related to the national and military renaissance in the reign of Josiah.

21 a. 'scribes' Sam.; 'judges' Hebr.

b. The animal is bludgeoned to death in some deserted spot; there is no mention of the blood: not a sacrifice, therefore, but an old magical rite, comparable to those of Lv 14:2–9; 16:5–10, 21–22; Nb 19:2–10, which has been assimilated by Yahwism, see v. 8.

c. 'forgive', lit. 'cover'. Originally, 'to cover one's face' meant 'to be favourable to', see Gn 32:21. The word later acquired a technical sense designating both expiation and the expiatory rite, Ex 25:17h; Lv 1:4c; 16.

d. This arrangement in favour of the eldest son is paralleled in other oriental law-codes; see 2 K 2:9, where the expression is used metaphorically.

Ex 23:4–5
Mt 7:12
22 'If you see your brother's ox or one of his sheep straying, you must not 1 disregard it: you must take it back to your brother. •And if he is not close at 2 hand or you do not know who he is, you must take it home with you and keep it by you until your brother comes to look for it; you will then return it to him.
'You must do the same with his donkey, the same with his cloak, the same with 3 anything that your brother loses and that you find; you must not disregard it.
'If you see your brother's donkey or ox fall over on the road, you must not 4 disregard it, but must help your brother get it on its feet again. [a]
'A woman must not dress like a man, nor a man like a woman; [b] anyone who 5 does this is detestable to Yahweh your God.
'If, when out walking, you come across a bird's nest, in a tree or on the ground, 6 with chicks or eggs and the mother bird sitting on the chicks or the eggs, you must not take the mother as well as the chicks. •Let the mother go; the young you may 7 take for yourself. Thus will you have prosperity and long life.
'When you build a new house, you must give your roof a parapet; then your 8 house will not incur blood-vengeance, should anyone fall off the top.
Lv 19:19
'You must not sow any other crop in your vineyard, or the whole yield may 9 become forfeit, both the crop you have sown and the yield of your vines.
'You must not plough with ox and donkey together. 10
'You must not wear clothing woven part of wool, part of linen. [c] 11
Nb 15:38c
'You must make tassels for the four corners of the cloak in which you wrap 12 yourself.

A young wife's reputation

'If a man marries a woman, has sexual intercourse with her and then, turning 13 against her, •taxes her with misconduct and publicly defames her by saying, "I 14 married this woman and when I had sexual intercourse with her I did not find evidence of her virginity," •the girl's father and mother must take the evidence of 15 her virginity and produce it before the elders of the town, at the gate. •To the 16 elders, the girl's father will say, "I gave this man my daughter for a wife and he has turned against her, •and now he taxes her with misconduct, saying, I have found no 17 evidence of virginity in your daughter. Here is the evidence of my daughter's virginity!" •They must then display the cloth to the elders of the town. •The elders 18, 19 of the town in question will have the man arrested and flogged, and fine him a hundred silver shekels for publicly defaming a virgin of Israel, and give this money to the girl's father. She will remain his wife; as long as he lives, he may not divorce her.
'But if the accusation that the girl cannot show evidence of virginity is substan- 20
tiated, •she must be taken out, and at the door of her father's house her fellow- 21 citizens must stone her to death for having committed an infamy in Israel by bringing disgrace on her father's family. You must banish this evil from among you.

Adultery and fornication

Lv 20:10
'If a man is caught having sexual intercourse with another man's wife, both must be 22 put to death: the man who has slept with her and the woman herself. You must banish this evil from Israel.
'If a virgin is engaged to a man, and another man encounters her in the town and 23 has sexual intercourse with her, •you will take them both to the gate of the town in 24 question and stone them to death: the girl, for not having called for help in the town; the man, for having exploited his fellow-citizen's wife. You must banish this evil from among you. •But if the man ran into the betrothed girl in the open country 25 and slept with her, having taken her by force, her ravisher alone must die; •you 26 must do nothing to the girl, she has not committed a capital offence. The case is like that of a man who attacks and kills his fellow: •since he came across her in the 27 open country, the betrothed girl may have called out, without anyone's coming to her rescue.

28 'If a man meets a young virgin who is not betrothed and seizes her, sleeps with Ex 22:15–16
29 her and is caught in the act, ·her ravisher must give the girl's father fifty silver shekels; since he has exploited her, she must be his wife and, as long as he lives, he may not divorce her.'

30 1 23 'A man must not take his father's wife; he must not withdraw the skirt of his 27:20 Lv 18:8 father's cloak from her. [a]

Participation in public worship [b]

23.1 2 'A man whose testicles have been crushed or whose male member has been cut off Lv 21:17–23 Is 56:3–5
2 3 must not be admitted to the assembly of Yahweh. ·No half-breed [c] may be admitted to the assembly of Yahweh; not even his descendants to the tenth generation may
3 4 be admitted to the assembly of Yahweh. [d] ·No Ammonite or Moabite may be Rt 1:16e ↗Ne 13:1–3 admitted to the assembly of Yahweh; not even his descendants to the tenth Jdt 14:10 generation may be admitted to the assembly of Yahweh, and this is for all time;
4 5 since they did not come to meet you with food and drink when you were on your way out of Egypt, and even hired Balaam son of Beor to oppose you by cursing Nb 22:2b
5 6 you, from Pethor in Aram Naharaim. ·But Yahweh your God refused to listen to Balaam, and Yahweh your God turned the curse on you into a blessing, because 6 7 Yahweh your God loved you. ·Never, as long as you live, must you seek their welfare or their prosperity.
7 8 'You must not regard the Edomite as detestable, for he is your brother; you must 2:5 not regard the Egyptian as detestable, since you were once a foreigner in his Ex 2:22;12:48*o*
8 9 country. ·The third generation of children born to these may be admitted to the assembly of Yahweh. [e]

Hygiene in camp

Nb 5:1–4

9 10 'When you are in camp, at war with your enemies, you must avoid anything bad.
10 11 If any one of you is unclean by reason of a nocturnal emission, he must leave and Lv 15:16–17
11 12 not come back into camp, ·but towards evening wash himself, and return to camp at sunset.
13, 14 12, 13 'You must have a latrine outside the camp, and go out to this; ·you must have a trowel in your equipment and, when you squat outside, you must scrape a hole
14 15 with it, then turn round and cover up your excrement. ·For Yahweh your God goes about the inside of your camp to guard you and put your enemies at your mercy. Your camp must therefore be a holy place; Yahweh must not see anything indecent there or he will desert you.

Miscellaneous

15 16 'You must not allow a master to imprison a slave who has escaped from him and 16 17 come to you. ·Let him make his home with you and yours, wherever he pleases in whichever of your towns he prefers; you must not molest him.

22 a. What Ex 23:4–5 prescribed for 'enemies' (in context, opponents in a law-suit), Dt extends to all Israelites (the 'brothers').

b. Probably an allusion to immoral practices in Canaanite religions.

c. The prohibitions of vv. 10–11 are survivals of primitive taboos.

23 a. 'To spread the fold (of the cloak)' over a woman signifies marriage, Rt 3:9; Ezk 16:8. 'To withdraw the fold' signifies the opposite, namely, violation of a husband's rights.

b. Dt preserves and comments on certain old rules for deciding doubtful cases as regards participation in the assemblies of the Israelite community.

c. The only other occurrence of the word mamzer is in Zc 9:6 and its exact meaning is unknown. Jewish exegesis usually takes it to mean the descendants of marriages between Israelites and foreigners, and refers to Ne 13:23 (where, however, the word does not appear).

d. In contrast to 2:9, 19 which is exceptional, the traditional hostility towards Moab and Ammon reappears here. The explanatory reasons for v. 5 are both concerned with Moab, see 2:1a; Nb 22:2b, and are later in date.

e. This friendly attitude towards Edomites and Egyptians is surprising; it may perhaps be explained by the political relationships of the Northern Kingdom in the 8th century BC. The mention of Edomites as 'brothers' links the passage to others in which Edom and Israel are so called, Nb 20:14; Am 1:11; Ob vv. 10 and 12, even though Edom is blamed for having behaved badly.

'There must be no sacred prostitute among the women of Israel, and no sacred 18 17 prostitute among the men of Israel. ·You must not bring the wages of a prostitute 19 18 or the earnings of a 'dog'[f] to the house of Yahweh your God, whatever vow you may have made: both are detestable to Yahweh your God.

15:6 'You must not lend on interest to your brother, whether the loan be of money, 20 19
Ex 22:24
Lv 25:35–38 of food, or of anything else that may earn interest. ·You may demand interest on a 21 20 loan to a foreigner, but you must not demand interest from your brother; so that Yahweh your God may bless you in all your labours, in the country which you are about to enter and make your own.

Nb 30:2–3+ 'If you make a vow to Yahweh your God, you must not be slack about fulfilling 22 21
Qo 5:3–5
it: Yahweh your God will certainly hold you answerable for it and you will incur guilt. ·If, however, you make no vow, you do not incur guilt. ·Whatever passes 23.24 22. 23
your lips you must keep to, and the vow that you have made to Yahweh, your generous God, you must fulfil.

'If you go into your neighbour's vineyard, you may eat as many grapes as you 25 24
please, but you must not put any in your basket. ·If you go into your neighbour's 26 25 ↗Mt 12:1par. standing corn, you may pick ears by hand, but you must not put a sickle into your neighbour's corn.'

Divorce

24 'Suppose a man has taken a wife and consummated the marriage; but she 1 has not pleased him and he has found some impropriety of which to accuse ↗Mt 5:31;19:7 her; he has therefore made out a writ of divorce for her and handed it to her and then dismissed her from his house; ·she leaves his home and goes away to become 2 the wife of another man. ·Then suppose this second man who has married her 3 takes a dislike to her and makes out a writ of divorce for her and hands it to her and dismisses her from his house or if this other man who took her as his wife dies, ·her 4 first husband, who has repudiated her, may not take her back as his wife now that she has been made unclean in this way. For that is detestable in Yahweh's eyes and you must not bring guilt on the country which Yahweh your God is giving you as your heritage.

Protection of the individual

20:7 'If a man is newly married, he must not join the army, nor must he be pestered at 5 home; he must be left at home, free of all obligations for one year, to make his new wife happy.

'No one must take a mill or a millstone in pledge; that would be to take life itself 6 in pledge.

Ex 21:16 'If anyone is caught, having kidnapped one of his brother-Israelites, whether he 7 makes him his slave or sells him, that thief must die. You must banish this evil from among you.

Lv 13–14 'In a case of a virulent skin-disease, take care you faithfully observe and exactly 8 carry out everything that the levitical priests direct you to do. You must keep and Nb 12:10–15 observe everything that I have commanded them. ·Remember what Yahweh your 9
God did to Miriam when you were on your way out of Egypt.

'If you are making your brother a loan on pledge, you must not go into his house 10 and seize the pledge, whatever it may be. ·You must stay outside, and the man to 11 whom you are making the loan must bring the pledge out to you. ·And if the man 12

5 'If brothers live together and one of them dies childless, the dead man's wife must not marry a stranger outside the family. Her husband's brother must come to her
6 and, exercising his duty as brother, make her his wife, •and the first son she bears must assume the dead brother's name; by this means his name will not be obliter-
7 ated from Israel. •But if the man declines to take his brother's wife, she must go to the elders at the gate and say, "I have no brother-in-law willing to perpetuate his brother's name in Israel; he declines to exercise his duty as brother in my favour."
8 The elders of the town must summon the man and talk to him. If, on appearing 9 before them, he says, "I refuse to take her," •then the woman to whom he owes duty as brother must go up to him in the presence of the elders, take the sandal off his foot, spit in his face, and pronounce the following words, "This is what is done
10 to the man who refuses to restore his brother's house," •and his family must henceforth be known in Israel as House of the Unshod. [b]

Modesty in brawls

11 'If, when two men are fighting, the wife of one intervenes to protect her husband from the other's blows by reaching out and seizing the other by his private parts, 12 you must cut off her hand and show no pity.

f. Sacred prostitution was a feature of Canaanite religion, compare Baal of Peor, Nb 25, and had affected Israel, 1 K 14:24; 22:47; 2 K 23:7; Ho 4:14. 'Dog' is an opprobrious term for a male prostitute.

24 a. lit. 'you are not to go to bed in his pledge', since originally the pledge was the borrower's cloak. Ex 22:25 seq.

b. A text of great importance for the doctrine of individual responsibility. The principle is an innovation, see 5:9; Ex 34:7; Jos 7:24. It is applied in 2 K 14:6, affirmed in Jr 31:29–30 and developed in Ezk 14:12–20; 18:10–20.

c. 'foreigner and orphan' versions, Targ.; 'foreign orphan' Hebr.

25 a. From the Latin levir, brother-in-law, translating the Hebrew yabam. A widow who has no son is taken to wife by her brother-in-law; the eldest son of this marriage is reckoned the dead husband's, whose heir he becomes. This law (found also in Assyrian and Hittite legislation) had for its purpose the perpetuation of the family name and the stability of the family property. The story of Tamar, Gn 38, emphasises the first, the story of Ruth the second; in Rt 4 the privileges and duties of the levir are extended to the 'avenger', see Nb 35:19c. According to Dt the obligation applies only to brothers living together and is optional. The custom still obtained in later Judaism despite opposition from certain groups. The Sadducees used this law as an argument against the doctrine of the resurrection, see Mt 22:23 seq.

b. The gesture of renunciation, the removal of the sandal, is accompanied by a contemptuous action and an insulting nickname. It is not very clear what the legal consequences of renunciation were: probably the widow retained possession of her husband's property. The ritual does not have quite the same sense in Rt 4:8.

Ex 17:8–16.8d
'Remember how Amalek treated you when you were on your way out of Egypt. He met you on your way and, after you had gone by, he fell on you from the rear and cut off the stragglers; when you were faint and weary, he had no fear of God. When Yahweh your God has granted you peace from all the enemies surrounding you, in the country given you by Yahweh your God to own as your heritage, you must blot out the memory of Amalek under heaven. Do not forget.'

First-fruits[a]

26 'When you have entered the country which Yahweh your God is giving you as heritage, when you have taken possession of it and are living in it, ·you must set aside the first-fruits of all the produce of the soil raised by you in your country, given you by Yahweh your God. You must put these in a basket and go to the place where Yahweh your God chooses to give his name a home. ·You will go to the priest then in office and say to him, "Today I declare to Yahweh my God that I have reached the country which Yahweh swore to our ancestors that he would give us."

III: CONCLUDING DISCOURSE

A: END OF THE SECOND DISCOURSE [d]

Israel, the people of Yahweh [e]

16 'Yahweh your God commands you today to observe these laws and customs; you must keep and observe them with all your heart and with all your soul.
17 'Today you have obtained this declaration from Yahweh: that he will be your God, but only if you follow his ways, keep his statutes, his commandments, his 18 customs, and listen to his voice. ·And today Yahweh has obtained this declaration from you: that you will be his own people—as he has said—but only if you keep all 19 his commandments; ·then for praise and renown and honour, he will raise you higher than every other nation he has made, and you will be a people consecrated to Yahweh, as he has promised.'

The writing of the Law and religious ceremonies [a]

1 27 Moses and the elders of Israel gave the people this command: 'Keep all the
2 commandments which I am laying down for you today. ·After you have crossed the Jordan into the country which Yahweh your God is giving you, you
3 must set up tall stones, coat them with lime ·and on them write all the words of this Law, when you have crossed and entered the country which Yahweh your God is giving you, a country flowing with milk and honey, as Yahweh, God of your ancestors, has promised you. Jos 8:32
4 'When you have crossed the Jordan, you must erect these stones on Mount Jos 8:30–31
5 Ebal, [b] as I command you today, and coat them with lime. ·There, for Yahweh
6 your God, you must build an altar of stones, on which no iron has been used. ·You must build the altar of Yahweh your God of rough stones, and on this altar you 12:11
7 will present burnt offerings to Yahweh your God, ·and immolate communion Ex 20:25
8 sacrifices and eat them there, rejoicing in the presence of Yahweh your God. ·On these stones you must write all the words of this Law; cut them carefully.'
9 Moses and the levitical priests then said to all Israel: 'Be silent, Israel, and listen.
10 Today you have become a people for Yahweh your God. ·You must listen to the voice of Yahweh your God and observe the commandments and laws which I am laying down for you today.'

26 a. The first-born of man and beast belong to God, Ex 13:11b; similarly the first-fruits of the soil are consecrated to him, Ex 22:28; 23:19; 34:26; Lv 2:12, 14; 23:10–17; Dt 18:4. According to Nb 18:12 they revert to the priests, see Ezk 44:30. This offering of the fruits of the soil, which in the old religious calendar, see Ex 23:16, 19, was associated with the festivals of the grain- and grape-harvests, both of Canaanite origin, is linked here to an event in salvation-history: the entry into the Promised Land, vv. 1, 3, 9–10, thus also contributing to the central theme of Dt, the gift of the Land, see 1:5b.

b. The confession of faith in vv. 5–9 gives an outline of salvation-history centred on the deliverance from Egypt. The same elements are found in the 'confessions' of 6:20–23 and, with further developments, of Jos 24:1–13 and Ne 9:7–25. The insistence on the country flowing with milk and honey is appropriate to this confession, linked as it is to the offering of the first-fruits. Omission of any reference to the events at Sinai does not mean that this confession is the product of a tradition in which they did not figure. The text is not very old and references to the promulgation of the Law were not appropriate to its purpose.

c. The yield of the tithe, being consecrated to Yahweh, had to be kept free of all profanation: mourning rites, see Ho 9:4, or impurity, see also Hg 2:13. Offering to the dead may also refer to mourning rites, or to the idolatrous cult of a dying and reviving god (Baal-Adonis), see 14:1a.

d. The second discourse of Moses, see 4:44*l*, is resumed at this point and goes on until 28:68. It is interrupted by ch. 27, which is a later insertion. Ch. 28 is composite.

e. The foregoing Deuteronomic Code is the document of the covenant, set out as a contract: Yahweh will be the God of Israel, and Israel will be his people, on condition that the latter keeps the commandments. Blessings and curses, ch. 28, are the sanctions for observance of the contract.

27 a. This chapter consists of three dissimilar elements: vv. 1–8; 9–10; 11–26. vv. 9–10 are the continuation of 26:19. The other two sections are insertions. They do not lay down general laws, but prescribe cultic actions connected with the sanctuary at Shechem: they are ancient Shechemite traditions, suitably retouched. The author of Dt would never have ordered the construction of an altar on Mount Ebal (or Mount Gerizim), v. 4 seq., and the Law written on the stones, v. 8, must have been shorter than Dt, which was later written in a book, 31:24–26. The ceremonies of vv. 11–26 are foreign to the legislation about the unique sanctuary of Jerusalem, see note to v. 11.

b. 'Mount Gerizim' Sam., which is perhaps the original reading, altered later during the polemics against the Samaritans, whose place of worship was on Gerizim and may have conserved the old tradition. vv. 12–13, moreover, as also 11:29, place the blessings and cursings on Mount Gerizim.

That day Moses gave the people this order: [c] 11, 12
Jos 8:33–35 Lk 6:20–26 •"When you have crossed the Jordan, the following will stand on Mount Gerizim to bless the people: Simeon and Levi, Judah and Issachar, Joseph and Benjamin. 13 •And the following will stand on Mount Ebal for the curse: Reuben, Gad and Asher, Zebulun, Dan and Naphtali. 14 •The Levites will then speak, proclaiming loudly to all the Israelites:

Ex 20:4c "Accursed be anyone who makes a carved or cast idol, a thing detestable to Yahweh, a workman's artefact, and sets it up in secret." And the people are all to respond by saying, Amen. 15

Ex 21:17+ "Accursed be anyone who treats father or mother dishonourably." And the people must all say, Amen. 16

19:14 "Accursed be anyone who displaces a neighbour's boundary mark." And the people must all say, Amen. 17

Lv 19:14 "Accursed be anyone who leads the blind astray on the road." And the people must all say, Amen. 18

"Accursed be anyone who violates the rights of the foreigner, the orphan and the widow." And the people must all say, Amen. 19

23:1 "Accursed be anyone who has sexual intercourse with his father's wife and withdraws the skirt of his father's cloak from her." And the people must all say, Amen. 20

Ex 22:18+ Lv 18:23 "Accursed be anyone who has sexual intercourse with any kind of animal." And the people must all say, Amen. 21

Lv 18:9 "Accursed be anyone who has sexual intercourse with his sister, the daughter of his father or of his mother." And the people must all say, Amen. 22

Lv 18:8 "Accursed be anyone who has sexual intercourse with his mother-in-law." And the people must all say, Amen. 23

Ex 20:13+ "Accursed be anyone who secretly strikes down his neighbour." And the people must all say, Amen. 24

Ex 23:8c "Accursed be anyone who accepts a bribe to take an innocent life." And the people must all say, Amen. 25

↗Ga 3:10 "Accursed be anyone who does not make the words of this Law effective by putting them into practice." And the people must all say, Amen.' 26

Promised blessings [a]

28 'But if you faithfully obey the voice of Yahweh your God, by keeping and observing all his commandments, which I am laying down for you today, Yahweh your God will raise you higher than every other nation in the world, 2 •and all these blessings will befall and overtake you, for having obeyed the voice of Yahweh your God.

'From you Yahweh will make a people consecrated to himself, as he has sworn to you, if you keep the commandments of Yahweh your God and follow his ways. 9
Jr 14:9 Jn 13:34–35 The peoples of the world, seeing that you bear Yahweh's name, [b] will all be afraid of you. 10 •Yahweh will make you abound in possessions: in the offspring of your body, in the yield of your cattle and in the yield of your soil, in the country which he swore to your ancestors that he would give you. 11 •For you Yahweh will open his treasury of rain, the heavens, to give your country its rain at the right time, and to bless all your labours. You will make many nations your subjects, yet you will be subject to none. 12

Curses

15 'But if you do not obey the voice of Yahweh your God, and do not keep and Lv 26:14–39 Jr 26:4–6 all these curses will befall and overtake you.

your territory but not anoint yourself with the oil, since your olive trees will be cut

c. The section vv. 11–26 combines two ceremonies. 1 vv. 12–13: the tribes, divided into two groups, exchange blessings and curses. The original text has been cut short to make way for a different ceremony. 2 vv. 14–26: the Levites proclaim twelve curses, to which the entire people reply Amen. The first and last of these are manifestly deuteronomic; the other ten embody ancient prohibitions which have their parallels in the Code of the Covenant and in the ancient material of Lv 18.

28 a. This chapter is the continuation of 26:16–19; 27:9–10, in which the Deuteronomic Code has been set out like a formal treaty between Yahweh and Israel. This is supported by blessings and imprecations, in the manner of oriental treaties and offers striking parallels with Assyrian treaties of vassalage of the seventh century BC; but here, the style is deuteronomic again and exploits several themes found in the teachings of the Prophets.

b. lit. 'that Yahweh's name is pronounced over you': legal expression, signifying ownership, see 2 S 12:28; Is 4:1.

down. ·You will father sons and daughters but they will not belong to you, since 41 they will go into captivity. ·All your trees and the whole yield of your soil will be 42 the prey of insects.

'The foreigners living with you will rise higher and higher at your expense, while 43
you yourself sink lower and lower. ·You will be subject to them, not they to you; 44 they will be the ones at the head, and you the one at the tail.

'All these curses will befall you, pursue you and overtake you until you have 45 been destroyed, for not having obeyed the voice of Yahweh your God by keeping his commandments and laws which he has laid down for you. ·They will be a sign 46 and a wonder over you and your descendants for ever.

you will want to offer yourselves for sale to your enemies as serving men and women, but no one will buy you.'[c]

B: THE THIRD DISCOURSE

29.1 69 These are the words of the covenant which Yahweh ordered Moses to make with the Israelites in Moab, in addition to the covenant which he had made with them at Horeb.[d]

Historical introduction[a]

2 1 29 Moses called all Israel together and said to them:
'You have seen everything that Yahweh did before your eyes in Egypt, to 3 2 Pharaoh, to his servants and to his whole country—·the great ordeals which you
4 3 yourselves witnessed, those signs and the great wonders. ·But until today Yahweh has not given you a heart to understand, eyes to see, or ears to hear. 4:29;30:14 Is 29:10 Jr 5:21 Jn 12:37seq. ↗Rm 11:8 ·8:4 5 4 'I have been leading you for forty years in the desert, yet the clothes which you
6 5 have been wearing have not worn out, nor have the sandals on your feet. ·You have had no bread to eat, you have had no wine or fermented liquor to drink, so that you would learn that I, Yahweh, am your God.
7 6 'When you reached this place, Sihon king of Heshbon and Og king of Bashan 2:30–35; 3:1–13
8 7 came out to do battle against us; we defeated them. ·We conquered their country and gave it as heritage to Reuben, Gad and the half-tribe of Manasseh.
9 8 'Keep the words of this covenant, put them into practice, and you will thrive in everything you do.

The covenant in Moab

10 9 'All of you are standing here today in the presence of Yahweh your God: your 11 10 tribal leaders, your elders, your scribes, all the men of Israel, ·with your children and your wives (and the foreigner too who is in your camp, be he your wood-cutter Jos 9:21,27 12 11 or your water-carrier[b]), ·and you are about to pass into the covenant of Yahweh 13 12 your God, sworn with imprecation, which he has made with you today, ·and by which, today, he makes you a nation for himself and he himself becomes a God to you, as he has promised you, and as he swore to your ancestors Abraham, Isaac 14 13 and Jacob. ·Not only on your behalf am I today making this covenant and pro-15 14 nouncing this solemn curse, ·not only on behalf of those standing here with us in the presence of Yahweh our God today, but also on behalf of those not here with us today.[c]
16 15 'Yes, you know the people with whom we used to live in Egypt, and those through whose countries we have travelled—the nations through whom we have 17 16 passed. ·You have seen their abominations and their idols made of wood and stone, silver and gold, which were there.

c. The threat of disasters and of a second slavery recalls the favours commemorated in the introductory discourse: this balance suggests that the very power that saved may yet destroy.

d. This v. serves as title to a third discourse of Moses, ending at the end of ch. 30 rather than at 32:47 (as some scholars assert). Dt alone speaks of a covenant in Moab, complementary to that of Horeb where the Decalogue was given, 5:2–22. This historical fiction gives the new Code of 12:1–26:15 the authority of a treaty concluded with God and promulgated by Moses.

29 a. In ch. 29–30, we again find the elements of a treaty formula, see 10:12c; 28:1a. The discourse opens with a review of the events of the Exodus, vv. 1–7, see 1:4; 4:46–47; 8:2–4. Next follows the ratification of the treaty on behalf of the people, vv. 9–14, and after that a sermon, vv. 15–20, which seems to be resumed at 30:11–14. The blessings and imprecations normally associated with such treaties occur at 30:15–20. The section 29:21–30:10, consisting of miscellaneous elements, seems to be an insertion of the Dt school.

b. The lower orders, often of non-Israelite extraction, Jos 9:27.

c. Here more than anywhere else, Moses appears as mediator of the covenant, the central formula of which is given in v. 12, see 26:16e. vv. 13–14 extend the agreements to those absent, thus giving the covenant a permanent validity.

'Let there be no man or woman of you, no clan or tribe, whose heart turns away 17 18 from Yahweh your God today, to go and serve the gods of these nations. Among you let there be no root which bears poison or wormwood. ·If, after hearing this 18 19 imprecation, anyone, blessing himself, should say in his heart, "I shall do well enough if I follow the dictates of my heart; much water drives away thirst,"[d] Yahweh will not pardon him. The wrath and jealousy of Yahweh will blaze against 19 20 such a person; every curse written in this book will fall on him, and Yahweh will blot his name out under heaven. ·Yahweh will single him out of all the tribes of 20 21 Israel for misfortune, in accordance with all the curses of the covenant written in the book of this Law.

A threat of exile

'The future generation, that of your children coming after you, and the foreigner 21 22 arriving from some far-away land, on seeing the plagues and diseases inflicted on this country by Yahweh, will exclaim, ·"Sulphur! Salt!—The whole country is 22 23 burning! No one will sow, nothing grow, no vegetation spring ever again! Devas-Gn 19:25g Ho 11:8 tation like that of Sodom and Gomorrah, Admah and Zeboiim, devastated by 1 K 9:7seq. Yahweh in his furious wrath!" ·And all the nations will exclaim, "Why has Yahweh 23 24 Jr 22:8seq. treated this country like this? Why this great blaze of anger?"

'And people will say, "Because they deserted the covenant of Yahweh, God of 24 25 their ancestors, the covenant which he made with them when he brought them out of Egypt; ·because they went and served other gods and worshipped them, gods 25 26 hitherto unknown to them, gods that were no part of their heritage from him: ·this 26 27 is why Yahweh's anger has blazed against this country, afflicting it with all the curses written in this book. ·In anger, in fury, in fierce wrath, Yahweh has torn 27 28 them from their own country and flung them into another country, where they are today." ·Things hidden belong to Yahweh our God, but things revealed are ours 28 29 and our children's for ever, so that we can put all the words of this Law into practice.'

Lv 26:40–45 Return from exile and conversion

4:29–31;29:3 30 'And when all these words have come true for you—the blessing and the 1 curse, which I have offered you—if you meditate on them in your heart wherever among the nations Yahweh your God has driven you, ·if you return to 2 Yahweh your God, if with all your heart and with all your soul you obey his voice, you and your children, in everything that I am laying down for you today, ·then 3
Is 27:13;43:5–7 Jr 29:14;31:10 Ezk 34:13;36:24 Mi 2:12 Zc 8:7–8 Jn 11:52 ·↗Ne 1:9 Yahweh your God will bring back your captives, he will have pity on you and gather you back from all the peoples among whom Yahweh your God has scattered
you. ·Should you have been banished to the very sky's end, Yahweh your God will 4 gather you again even from there, will come there to reclaim you ·and bring you 5 back to the country which belonged to your ancestors, so that you may possess it in your turn, and be made prosperous there and more numerous than your ancestors.

10:16 Jr 4:4a 'Yahweh your God will circumcise your heart and the heart of your descendants, 6 so that you will love Yahweh your God with all your heart and soul, and so will live. ·Yahweh your God will make all these curses recoil on your foes and on your 7 enemies who have persecuted you. ·And once again you will obey the voice of 8 Yahweh your God and you will put all his commandments into practice, which I to take delight in the prosperity of your ancestors, ·if you obey the voice of Yahweh 10 your God, by keeping his commandments and decrees written in the book of this Law, and if you return to Yahweh your God with all your heart and soul.

the commandments of Yahweh your God, [b] which I am laying down for you today, if you love Yahweh your God and follow his ways, if you keep his commandments, his laws and his customs, you will live and grow numerous, and Yahweh your God 17 will bless you in the country which you are about to enter and make your own. ·But if your heart turns away, if you refuse to listen, if you let yourself be drawn into 18 worshipping other gods and serving them, ·I tell you today, you will most certainly perish; you will not live for long in the country which you are crossing the Jordan to 19 enter and possess. ·Today, I call heaven and earth to witness against you: I am 4:26;31:28 offering you life or death, blessing or curse. Choose life, then, so that you and your 20 descendants may live, ·in the love of Yahweh your God, obeying his voice, holding fast to him; for in this your life consists, and on this depends the length of time that you stay in the country which Yahweh swore to your ancestors Abraham, Isaac and Jacob that he would give them.'

IV: LAST ACTIONS AND DEATH OF MOSES [a]

The commissioning of Joshua

1, 2 31 [b]Moses went and spoke to all Israel as follows, ·"Today, I am one hundred and twenty years old, and can no longer act as leader. [c] Yahweh has told 3 me, "You shall not cross this Jordan." ·Yahweh your God himself will lead you across, he himself will destroy and dispossess these nations confronting you; Joshua 3:21–28 4 too will lead you across, as Yahweh has said. ·Yahweh will treat them as he has treated Sihon and Og the Amorite kings and their country—he destroyed them. Nb 21:24–35 5 Yahweh will put them at your mercy, and you will deal with them exactly as 6 prescribed by the commandments which I have laid down for you. ·Be strong, 1:29–30 stand firm, have no fear, do not be afraid of them, for Yahweh your God is going Jos 1:6,9 with you; he will not fail you or desert you.' Heb 13:5 7 Moses then summoned Joshua and, in the presence of all Israel, said to him, 'Be strong, stand firm; you will be the one to go with this people into the country which Yahweh has sworn to their ancestors that he would give them; you are to be the 8 one who puts them into possession of it. ·Yahweh himself will lead you; he will be with you; he will not fail you or desert you. Have no fear, do not be alarmed.'

d. Alternative translation: 'in such a way as to remove the irrigated soil with the dry'; presumably a proverb indicating total ruin. Gk translates 'so that the sinner be not destroyed with him who is without sin'.

30 a. A recurrent theme in wisdom literature is that wisdom, source of all happiness, is inaccessible, Jb 28; Qo 7:24; Si 1:6; Ba 3:15 (but contrast Pr 8:1 seq.). Nevertheless, God reveals it through the Law, Ps 119; Si 24:23–34.

b. 'If you obey the commandments of Yahweh your God' Gk; omitted by Hebr.

31 a. Ch. 31–34 form a general conclusion to the Pentateuch; they represent elements of differing age and origins, attached to the body of Dt at its final editing.

b. A composite chapter. vv. 1–8, typically deuteronomic in style, refer back to 3:23–29. vv. 9–13, 24–27 (doublet?) belong to the first edition of Dt. Here, the Law (the Dt Code) will stand as witness against Israel, v. 26, if the latter rebels against Yahweh. This paragraph is continued at 32:45–47. vv. 14–15, 23, investiture of Joshua by Yahweh (see v. 7), are of different and presumably Elohistic origin. vv. 16–22, deuteronomic, continued at 28–30, introduce the canticle of ch. 32 and represent it as the witness against Israel, vv. 19, 21. The insistence on the 'witnesses' to the covenant, i.e. the Law, the canticle, heaven and earth, v. 28, parallels the witnesses invoked in ancient treaties of alliance.

c. lit. 'go out and come back', see Nb 27:17b.

The ritual reading of the Law [d]

Moses committed this Law to writing and gave it to the priests, the sons of Levi, 9 who carried the ark of Yahweh's covenant, and to all the elders of Israel. ·And 10 Moses gave them this command, 'At the end of every seven years, at the time fixed for the year of remission, at the feast of Shelters, ·when all Israel assembles in the 11 presence of Yahweh your God in the place chosen by him, you must proclaim this Law in the hearing of all Israel. ·Call the people together, men, women, children, 12 and the foreigner residing with you, so that, hearing it, they may learn to fear Yahweh your God and keep and observe all the words of this Law. ·Their children, 13 who as yet do not know it, will hear it and learn to fear Yahweh your God, all the time you live in the country which you are crossing the Jordan to possess.'

Yahweh's instructions

Yahweh said to Moses, 'And now the time is near when you must die. Summon 14 Joshua and take your places at the Tent of Meeting, [e] so that I can give him his Ex 25:22 orders.' Moses and Joshua went and took their places at the Tent of Meeting, and Yahweh showed himself at the Tent in a pillar of cloud; the pillar of cloud 15 stood at the door of the Tent.

4:25–28
Ex 34:15–16,15f

Yahweh said to Moses, 'You will soon be sleeping with your ancestors, and this 16 people is about to play the harlot by following the gods of the foreigners of the country, among whom they are going to live. They will desert me and break my covenant, which I have made with them. ·That very day, my anger will blaze 17 against them; I shall desert them and hide my face from them. A host of disasters and misfortunes will overtake them to devour them, and when that day comes they will say, "If such disasters overtake me, surely Yahweh my God cannot be with me?" ·Yes indeed, I shall hide my face that day, on account of all the evil which 18 they will have done by turning to other gods.

The song of witness

'Now write down this song for you to use; teach it to the Israelites, put it into their 19 mouths, for it to be a witness on my behalf against the Israelites: ·against Israel, 20 whom I am bringing into the country which I swore to his ancestors that I would 32:15 give him, a country flowing with milk and honey: against Israel, who will eat to his heart's content and grow fat, and will then turn to other gods and serve them, despising me and breaking my covenant. ·When a host of disasters and misfortunes 21 overtakes him, this song, like a witness, will give evidence against him, since his descendants will not have forgotten it. Yes, even today, before I have brought him to the country which I have promised him on oath, I know what plans he has in mind.' ·So, that day, Moses wrote out this song and taught it to the Israelites. 22

To Joshua son of Nun, Yahweh gave this order, 'Be strong and stand firm, for 23 you are to be the one to bring the Israelites into the country which I have promised them on oath, and I myself shall be with you.'

The Law placed beside the ark [f]

27:1a When Moses had completely finished writing the words of this Law in a book, ·he 24, 25 gave this command to the Levites who carried the ark of Yahweh's covenant:
'Take the book of this Law and put it beside the ark of the covenant of Yahweh 26
Jn 12:47–48 your God. Let it lie there as evidence against you. ·For I know how rebellious and 27 stiff-necked you are. If today, while I am still alive and with you, you rebel against Yahweh, how much more will you rebel against him after my death!

Israel assembles to hear the song

'Gather all your tribal elders and scribes round me, so that I may be sure that they 28 4:26 hear these words, as I call heaven and earth to witness against them. ·For I know 29 that after my death you are certain to grow corrupt; you will leave the way which I have marked out for you; in the final days disaster will befall you for having done what is evil in Yahweh's eyes, for having provoked his anger by your behaviour.' 30 In the hearing of the whole assembly of Israel, Moses then recited the words of this song to the end:

THE SONG OF MOSES [a]

d. Treaties of alliance in the ancient Middle East make provision for their being read publicly. Dt fixes this reading to be held on the feast of Shelters, every sabbatical year. Later tradition, however, implicit in 2 Ch 15:10 and explicit in the Book of Jubilees and in the Qumran documents, links the memorial of the covenant to the feast of Weeks.

e. These two vv. mentioning the Tent and the theophany (each for the only time in Dt) are, with v. 23, fragments of some ancient tradition.

f. The Law mediated by Moses, 4:14d, is put beside the ark containing the Decalogue uttered by God himself.

32 a. The great canticle of Moses celebrates the unique power of the God of Israel, the one true God. After an introduction in the wisdom style, vv. 1–2, it proclaims the perfection of the works of God, vv. 3–7, his providence for Israel, vv. 8–14, to which it contrasts the people's rebelliousness, vv. 15–19, and the consequent judgement, vv. 19–25; God will not, however, abandon Israel to his enemies, vv. 26–35, and will intervene on behalf of his people, vv. 36–42; v. 43 is a doxology. The canticle existed independently, before being incorporated in Dt. It is difficult to date: certain archaic characteristics have suggested an early date to scholars, in which case the oppressors of Israel mentioned in it would be the Philistines (11th century). But similarities with the Psalms and Prophets, especially Deutero-Isaiah and Jeremiah, make a later date seem preferable, when the oppressors would therefore be the Babylonians (6th century BC).

b. Exordium addressed to the whole created world.

c. Following Gk and Sam.; Hebr. corrupt—lit. 'not sons of blemish'. Israel is of noble birth, being born of Yahweh; his degeneration is his own doing.

d. A summary of sacred history now begins. See the introductions to the discourses of Moses, also Ps 78, 105.

e. lit. 'the sons of God' (or 'of the gods') Gk; 'sons of Israel' Hebr.: The 'sons of God' (or 'of gods') are the angels, Jb 1:6f, members of the heavenly court, v. 43 and Ps 29:1; 82:1; 89:6, see Tb 5:4b; here the guardian angels of the nations, see Dn 10:13b. Yahweh, however, has reserved Israel, his chosen people, for himself, see Dt 7:6d. Here the Gk is followed; Hebr has 'the sons of Israel'.

36 (For Yahweh will see his people righted, he will take pity on his servants.)
37 'Where are their gods then?' he will ask,
'the rock where they sought refuge, and drank the wine of their libations?'

Let these arise and help you, let these be the shelter above you!
39 See now that I, I am he,
and beside me there is no other god.
It is I who deal death and life;
when I have struck, it is I who heal
(no one can rescue anyone from me).

40 Yes, I raise my hand to heaven, and I say, 'As surely as I live for ever,

I shall enforce justice,
I shall return vengeance to my foes,
I shall take vengeance on my foes.

m. Following Gk; Hebr. 'Nations, acclaim his people, since he avenges the blood of his servants; he makes vengeance recoil on his enemies, and his people will purify his country.' • On 'the sons of God', see v. 8e.

n. lit. 'perform the rite of expiation over', a phrase common in ritual texts, Ex 25:17h.

o. Here Gk inserts 31:22 and for 'song' reads 'Law'.

p. The continuation of 31:27. The 'words' are the words of the Law (v. 46 at end), not of the canticle. v. 48 follows on v. 44.

q. This paragraph, the inserted Blessings of Moses notwithstanding, is continued in 34:1, and is the work of the Priestly editor who gave the Pentateuch its final form by adding Dt to it. He repeats here what the same Priestly source had said in Nb 27:12–14.

33 a. This poem, attributed to Moses, is an addition to Dt, separating the prediction of the death of Moses from the account of his death. It is his testament, see the 'blessings' of Jacob, Gn 49. Set in the framework of a hymn, vv. 2–5; 26–29, it is a collection of sayings on individual tribes, which sayings presumably had a prior and independent existence. The poem reflects historical conditions difficult to date and perhaps not all applying at the same period. The sayings give the impression that the tribes are living in their allocated territories and that some of them already have a fairly long history (Reuben and Dan); Simeon is left out, perhaps because it has already been absorbed by Judah. The collection as it stands seems to be more recent than that of Gn 49. On the other hand, v. 7 might indicate a date earlier than the reign of David, unless it is a reference to the schism. In any case, the contrast between the short saying on Judah and the long blessing for Joseph shows that the author belonged to one of the central tribes (to the Kingdom of Israel, if it is a late compilation). More emphasis is placed on the aspect of 'blessing' than in Gn 49, and Moses is represented as a prophet, see 34:10.

b. A difficult verse, with an archaic vocabulary. The God of Sinai rose up like a star and accompanied his people.

c. lit. 'myriads', that is the clans mustered.

d. The 'ancestors' are the Patriarchs (the same archaic term is here used as in the expression 'gathered to one's people' in vv. like Gn 25:8. The 'holy ones' are Israel. The text of the v. is uncertain.

e. Evidently a gloss.

f. The heading of Reuben's blessing has dropped from the text. This tribe soon lost its importance. 'survive' is a correction; Hebr. could be rendered 'despite the small number of his warriors'.

g. 'To Levi, give' Gk omitted by Hebr. In contrast to the 'blessings' of Jacob, Gn 49:5–7, which are concerned with the fate of the secular tribe of Levi, dispersed at the same time as Simeon, the blessings of Moses are concerned with the priestly tribe of Levi, its origins as a separate group and its threefold function with regard to the divine prophecy, to teaching, and to serving the altar.

h. 'The Most High' conj.; Hebr. repeats 'near him' • 'hillsides', lit. 'shoulders', i.e. 'shoulder of a mountain'; the description of the territory of Benjamin in Jos 18 uses the expression five times in this sense.

THE HISTORICAL BOOKS

INTRODUCTION
TO THE BOOKS OF JOSHUA, JUDGES, RUTH
SAMUEL AND KINGS

§1 In the Hebrew Bible the Books of Joshua, Judges, Samuel and Kings are called the 'Early Prophets', the 'Later Prophets' being Isaiah, Jeremiah, Ezekiel and the twelve Minor Prophets. A tradition ascribing these books to 'prophets' was responsible for the use of this title: Joshua was credited with the book of that name, Samuel with the Books of Judges and Samuel, Jeremiah with the Books of Kings. Though we are accustomed to refer to these as 'historical' books, they are written from a religious standpoint and are concerned chiefly with the relationship between Israel and God, and Israel's obedience—above all its disobedience—to the word ministered through the prophets.

These books are related to those that follow, but they are also related to those that precede them. They take up the story where the Pentateuch leaves off: at the end of Deuteronomy, Moses names Joshua as his successor and dies; this is the starting-point of the Book of Joshua. A literary unity has even been claimed as existing between the two groups, and efforts have been made to establish the persistence of the pentateuchal 'documents' or 'sources' to the end of Joshua (thus constituting a 'Hexateuch') and even to the end of the Books of Kings. Efforts, however, to identify pentateuchal documents in Judges, Samuel and Kings, have not produced convincing results. They are more convincing as regards Joshua, where currents more or less closely related to, if not actually continuations of, Yahwistic and Elohistic sources can be detected. Even so, the influence of Deuteronomy and of deuteronomic teaching is much more in evidence, and supporters of the Hexateuch theory cannot but admit that Joshua has been subjected to deuteronomic editing. The influence of Deuteronomy is also clear in subsequent books, though in differing degrees: extensive in Judges, very limited in Samuel, dominant in Kings. On these grounds, the theory has been advanced that Deuteronomy once formed the opening section of a religious history on the grand scale, reaching to the end of Kings.

Deuteronomy having provided the historical basis for the doctrine of the election of Israel, and having outlined the theocratic constitution resulting from it, the Book of Joshua then proceeds to show how this chosen people established itself in its Promised Land; the Book of Judges recounts Israel's repeated defections and returns to grace; the two Books of Samuel deal first with the crisis that led to a monarchical régime and imperilled the theocratic ideal and then go on to show how this ideal achieved reality under David; the Books of Kings tell of the decline that set in during the reign of Solomon and how, notwithstanding the devotion of a few kings, Israel's obstinate infidelity brought down God's judgement on his people. The separation of Deuteronomy from this literary unit may have occurred when it was decided to assemble all the material relating to the person and work of Moses (see pp. 10–11).

This outline is acceptable but needs to be supplemented by two important considerations. First, the deuteronomic editor was using oral traditions and written documents. These varied in age and character; many were already grouped together and were only lightly retouched by the editor. This explains how it is that the books, or large sections of the books, preserve their individual character. Secondly, this deuteronomic editing was not a single process: each book shows traces of having passed through more than one process of editing. The Books of Kings, to take the clearest example, went through at least two editions: one just after the reform under Josiah, the other during the Exile. (For further details, see the notes on the individual books.)

In their final form, therefore, these books are the product of a school, of a number of devout men profoundly influenced by the outlook of Deuteronomy, men who meditated on the history of their nation and extracted a religious lesson from it. At the same time they hand on an account of the outstanding events in the history of Israel and traditions or texts that date back to the heroic age of the Conquest. From these books the believer will not only learn to see the hand of God in all world events, but in God's exacting love for his chosen people will recognise the slow preparation for the New Israel, the community of the faithful.

§2 The Book of Joshua

The Book of Joshua falls into three parts: 1 The conquest of the Promised Land, ch. 1–12. 2 The partition of the territory between the tribes, ch. 13–21. 3 The last days of Joshua, especially his last discourse and the assembly at Shechem, ch. 22–24. It is rightly conceded by Jewish tradition that the book was not written by Joshua. Various sources have been used. Part One consists of (ch. 2–9) a group of traditions, running parallel at times, connected with the Benjaminite shrine at Gilgal, and (ch. 10–11) two records of battles, Gibeon and Merom, associated respectively with the conquest of the south and north. The story of the Gibeonites, ch. 9, is dovetailed into 10:1–6, and so links up the two sections which, in all probability, were brought together at the beginning of the monarchical period.

The fact that the narratives of ch. 2–9 originate from Gilgal, a Benjaminite sanctuary, does not mean that the figure of Joshua, an Ephraimite, is a secondary addition, since the constituent elements of Ephraim and Benjamin entered Canaan together before establishing themselves in their respective territories. The etiological aspect of these narratives, that is to say, their aiming to provide, by reference to events in the past, explanation for facts and situations still observable at the time of the author, is obvious. This does indeed affect details of the narrative, but the historical basis of the events themselves, with the exception of the capture of Ai and possibly of Jericho, is largely confirmed by archaeology.

Part Two, totally different in nature, is a geographical treatise. Ch. 13 locates the tribes of Reuben and Gad and the half-tribe of Manasseh, already installed in Transjordan by Moses, according to Nb 32, see also Dt 3:12–17. Ch. 14–19 deal with the tribes to the west of the River Jordan and combine two types of document: a description, variably accurate, of tribal boundaries, basically dating from the pre-monarchical period, and lists, added later, of towns. The most detailed of these town-lists is the one for Judah, ch. 15, which, supplemented by some towns of Benjamin, ch. 18:25–28, divides the towns into twelve districts, reflecting the administrative divisions of the Kingdom of Judah probably under Jehoshaphat. Complementary to these, ch. 20 enumerates the 'cities of refuge', a list not earlier than the reign of Solomon; and ch. 21, describing the 'levitical cities', is a post-exilic addition embodying memories retained from the monarchy.

In Part Three, ch. 22, dealing with the return of the Transjordanian tribes and their building of an altar by the Jordan, bears signs of both deuteronomic and Priestly editing; it is based on an independent tradition of uncertain import and age. Ch. 24 preserves the ancient and authentic memory of an assembly held at Shechem and of the religious pact concluded there.

Minor changes apart, the following passages may be ascribed to the deuteronomic editor: 1 (almost entire); 8:30–35; 10:16–43; 11:10–20; 12; 22:1–8; 23; and the revision of 24. The fact that ch. 24, revised in the spirit of Deuteronomy, has been retained side by side with ch. 23, also inspired by Deuteronomy but the work of another hand, indicates that the book has in fact been edited twice.

In the Book of Joshua, the conquest of the entire Promised Land is represented as the result of collective tribal action under the leadership of Joshua. The narrative in Judges ch. 1 offers a different picture: there we see each tribe struggling for its own territory and often suffering reverses. This is a tradition originating in Judah, elements of which are reproduced in the geographical section of Joshua: Jos 13:1–6; 14:6–15; 15:13–19; 17:12–18. This picture of a piecemeal, incomplete conquest is much closer to historical reality, difficult as this is to reconstruct. The settlement of southern Palestine had its starting-point from Kadesh and the Negeb, principally by groups which became integrated into Judah only later and gradually: the Calebites, Kenizzites, etc. and the Simeonites. The settlement of central Palestine was the work of groups crossing the Jordan under the leadership of Joshua and consisting of elements of the tribes of Ephraim-Manasseh and Benjamin. The settlement of the north had a separate history: the tribes of Zebulun, Issachar, Asher and Naphtali established themselves there at some remote time and never went down to Egypt. At Shechem, these rallied to the Yahwistic faith which Joshua's contingent had brought with them; and they acquired their definitive territories by fighting the Canaanites who had enslaved them or were threatening to do so. In these various regions, settlement was achieved partly by force of arms, partly by peaceful infiltration and by alliances with the indigenous population of the country.

The part played by Joshua in the settlement in central Palestine, from the crossing of the Jordan to the assembly at Shechem, should be retained as historical. In view of the date suggested for the Exodus (p. 12), the following chronology may be put forward: c. 1250, entry of southern groups; from 1225, occupation of central Palestine by groups coming from across the Jordan; c. 1200, expansion of northern groups.

The Book of Joshua presents an idealised and simplified picture of a complex history, the details of which must remain hypothetical. It is idealised: the epic of the deliverance from Egypt has its continuation in the conquest during which God intervenes miraculously to help his people. It is simplified: all is centred round the heroic figure of Joshua: it is he who leads the House of Joseph to war, ch. 1–12, and to him is ascribed the assignment of tribal territories (though this was done neither by him, nor at any given moment), ch. 13–21. Joshua holds the centre of the stage throughout, and the book ends with his farewell and death, ch. 23; 24:29–31. The land of Canaan is the dominant theme of the whole book: the people that had found God in the desert now receives its own country at God's hand. Yahweh himself having fought for the Israelites, 23:3,10; 24:11–12, now gives them the country which he had promised to the Fathers, 23:5,14, as their heritage.

§3 Book of Judges

The Book of Judges is made up of three unequal parts: 1 Introduction, 1:1–2:5. 2 Body, 2:6–16:31. 3 Two appendices, the first dealing with the migration of the Danites and the founding of the sanctuary at Dan, ch. 17–18, the second with the war waged on the Benjaminites for their crime at Gibeah, ch. 19–21.

The present introduction to the book, 1:1–2:5, does not properly belong to it; as has already been said in the notice on the Book of Joshua, this is an alternative picture of the conquest and its results, as seen from a Judaean point of view. Its insertion has given rise to the repetition of information about the death and burial of Joshua, 2:6–10, already given in Jos 24:29–31.

The history of the judges occupies the central portion of the book, 2:6–16:31. Scholars commonly distinguish six 'major' judges: Othniel, Ehud, Barak (and Deborah), Gideon, Jephthah and Samson, whose deeds are told in considerable detail; and six 'minor' judges: Shamgar, 3:31, Tola and Jair, 10:1–15, Ibzan, Elon and Abdon, 12:8–15, who receive only brief mention. The text, however, makes no distinction on these grounds, and there is in fact a much more radical distinction to be drawn between the two groups, the indiscriminate use of the title 'Judge' being a result of the combination of disparate elements in the composition of the book. The 'major judges' are hero-liberators: their origins, personalities and deeds vary in many respects, but all have one common characteristic: they have received a special grace, a charism: they have been individually chosen by God for a mission of rescue. Initially, their histories were handed down by word of mouth, in variant forms, with varying accretions. They were eventually collected into a 'book of liberators', composed in the northern Kingdom in the earlier part of the monarchical period. This contained the story of Ehud; the story of Barak and Deborah, already perhaps contaminated by the narrative in Jos 11 about Jabin of Hazor; the story of Gideon/Jerubbaal, to which was attached the tale of the reign of Abimelech; the story of Jephthah and the story of Jephthah's daughter; and also incorporated two ancient poems, the Song of Deborah, Jg 5, which is parallel to the prose narrative, Jg 4, and Jotham's apologia, 9:7–15, against Abimelech's aspirations to sovereignty. In this book, the heroes of individual tribes were transformed into national figures leading the wars of Yahweh on behalf of all Israel. The 'minor judges', Tola, Jair, Ibzan, Elon, Abdon, come from a different tradition. To them no saving act is attributed; the only information given about them consists in their origin, family and place of burial, and that they are said to have 'judged' Israel for a precise, but variable, number of years. Consistently with the usage of the verb shaphat, 'to judge', in Western Semitic languages related to Hebrew, in Mari during the eighteenth century BC, and in Ugarit during the thirteenth century, through to the Phoenician and Punic texts of the Graeco-Roman period (the 'suffetes' of Carthage), these 'judges' not only meted out justice but also ruled. Their writ did not run beyond their own town or district. They represented a political institution midway between tribal and monarchical government.

The earliest deuteronomic editors were in possession of authentic information about these judges, but extended their power to cover all Israel and arranged them in chronological succession. They also assimilated to them the heroes of the 'book of liberators', who thus became 'judges of Israel'. Jephthah served as the link uniting the two groups: he had been a liberator, but he had also been a judge; the editors knew and gave, where he was concerned, the same sort of information, 11:1–2; 12:7, as for the 'minor judges', among whom his story is inserted. To these they also assimilated someone who originally had no connection with either of these groups: the extraordinary Danite hero, Samson, who had been neither liberator nor judge, but whose deeds of prowess against the Philistines had become a folk-tale in Judah, 13–16. To the growing list they added Othniel, 3:7–11, who rightly belongs to the period of the conquest, see Jos 15:16–19; Jg 1:12–15; and later Shamgar, Jg 3:31, who was not an Israelite at all, see Jg 5:6; and thus they obtained the figure of twelve, symbolic of all Israel.

These same deuteronomic editors gave the book its chronological framework. Retaining the authentic information on the 'minor judges', they punctuated the other stories with conventional figures, in which recur the numbers 40, the length of a generation, or its multiple 80, or its half 20. This was an attempt to arrive at a total which, combined with other information in the Bible, would add up to the 480 years which, according to deuteronomic historiography, had elapsed between the Exodus from Egypt and the building of the Temple, 1 K 6:1. Within this artificial chronological framework, the stories of the judges neatly fill the gap between the death of Joshua and the beginning of the ministry of Samuel. The deuteronomic editors' chief contribution, however, was to give the book its religious dimension. This is expressed in the general introduction, Jg 2:6–3:6, and in the special introduction to the story of Jephthah, 10:6–16, as also in the editorial phrases of which the story of Othniel almost entirely consists: a deuteronomic composition introducing the longer stories to come. In brief: the Israelites have been unfaithful to Yahweh, who hands them over to oppressors; the Israelites call on Yahweh, who then sends them a saviour, the judge. But the infidelities recur and the whole cycle starts again.

The deuteronomic Book of Judges evidently passed through at least two editions. The most obvious indications of this are: the two elements added in the introduction, 2:11–19 and 2:6–10 plus 2:20–3:6, and the two conclusions to the story of Samson, 15:20 and 16:30, which show that ch. 16 is an addition. At this stage the book had not yet acquired its appendices, 17–21, which do not relate the story of a judge but record events which took place before the inauguration of the monarchy; they were hence added to the end of the book after the return from exile. They reproduce ancient traditions and had a long literary and pre-literary history before being inserted here. Ch. 17–18 are based on a Danite tradition about the migration of the tribe and the founding of the sanctuary of Dan; but a hostile interpretation has been given to the story. Ch. 19–21 combine two traditions about the sanctuaries at Mizpah and Bethel, which again have been extended to all Israel; possibly of Benjaminite origin, these traditions were revised in Judah in a sense hostile to the sovereignty of Saul at Gibeah.

The book is virtually our only source of knowledge about the period of the judges, and it does not provide the material for constructing a continuous history of the period. As has already been said, the chronology which it gives is artificial, events are represented as consecutive when in fact they must often have been simultaneous, the oppressions, as also the liberations, never having affected more than a part of the territory at any one time. The period of the judges in fact lasted for only one and a half centuries.

The chief events, the memory of which has been preserved, can be assigned only approximate dates within this period. The victory of Taanach under Deborah and Barak, Jg 4–5, may have been won sometime during the middle years of the twelfth century; it preceded the Midianite invasion (Gideon) and the expansion of the Philistines beyond their original frontiers (Samson). The principal fact to emerge is that the antagonists of Israel during this troubled age were not only the Canaanites, the original owners of the country, for instance those living in the Plain of Jezreel defeated by Deborah and Barak, but also the neighbouring peoples, the Moabites (Ehud), the Ammonites (Jephthah), the Midianites (Gideon) and the Philistine newcomers (Samson). Against these threats each part of the nation defended its own territory. At times, however, neighbouring groups would make common cause, Jg 7:23; on the other hand, protests might be registered by some powerful tribe against its exclusion from a share in the plunder, Jg 8:1–3; 12:1–6. The Song of Deborah, ch. 5, indicts the tribes that refused to fight; strangely enough, Judah and Simeon are not even mentioned.

The territory of these two tribes lay to the south, cut off from the rest of Israel by Canaanite Gezer, by the Gibeonite towns and by Jerusalem, and their isolation favoured the stirrings of the future schism. Contrastingly, in the north the battle of Taanach had left the Israelites masters of the plain of Jezreel and thus brought about the alliance of the House of Joseph with the northern tribes. A common faith, however, held the various sections firmly together: all the judges were sincere worshippers of Yahweh and the shrine of the ark at Shiloh was a rallying point for the whole people.

For the Israelites, the lesson of this book was that oppression was the punishment for impiety and that victory was one of the consequences of returning to God. The author of Ecclesiasticus praises the judges for their constancy, Si 46:11–12, and the Letter to the Hebrews sees in their success the reward of faith; they belong to the 'cloud of witnesses' who encourage the Christian to renounce sin and to undergo his trials with fortitude, Heb 11:32–34; 12:1.

§4 Book of Ruth

The short Book of Ruth is placed after Judges in the Septuagint, Vulgate, and modern versions. In the Hebrew Bible it figures among the 'Writings' as one of the five megillot, or 'scrolls', read on the principal feasts, Ruth being used at Pentecost. Though linked by subject matter to the period of the judges, see Rt 1:1, the book escaped the deuteronomic revision running from Joshua to the end of Kings.

It tells the story of Ruth the Moabitess who, after the death of her husband, a man from Bethlehem who had emigrated to Moab, returns to Judah with her mother-in-law Naomi and marries Boaz, a relative of her husband, by application of the law of the levirate; of this marriage is born Obed, grandfather of David.

An addition, Rt 4:18–22, gives a genealogy of David, parallel to the one in 1 Ch 2:5–15.

The date of composition is much disputed and has been attributed to every period from David and Solomon to Nehemiah. Arguments for a late date, based on the book's position in the Hebrew canon, language, family customs, teaching, are not decisive and the book, concluding verses apart, could have been written during the monarchical period. It is an edifying tale, the principal aim of which is to show the reward to be reaped from putting one's trust in God, whose compassion extends even to a foreign woman, Rt 2:12. Faith in Providence and this sense of universalism are the abiding teaching of the story. The fact that Ruth was acknowledged as great-grandmother of David set particular value on the book, and Matthew includes her in the genealogy of Christ, Mt 1:5.

§5 Books of Samuel

In the Hebrew Bible, the Books of Samuel constitute one single work. The division into two books originates in the Greek translation which, moreover, grouped Samuel and Kings under the one title 'The Four Books of Kingdoms' (called in the Vulgate 'The Four Books of Kings'). The Hebrew Samuel is equivalent to the first two of these. It owes its name to its traditional attribution to the prophet Samuel.

The text is one of the worst preserved of the Old Testament. The Greek translation of the Septuagint gives a text which is frequently different, derived from a prototype, significant fragments of which have been recovered from the caves of Qumran. There evidently existed several Hebrew versions of the Books of Samuel.

There are five sections: 1 Samuel, 1 S 1–7. 2 Samuel and Saul, 1 S 8–15. 3 Saul and David, 1 S 16–2 S 1. 4 David, 2 S 2–20. 5 Appendices, 2 S 21–24.

The work combines or juxtaposes various sources and traditions relating to the beginnings of the monarchical period. There is the story of the ark and of its capture and retention by the Philistines, 1 S 4–6, in which Samuel does not appear and which is continued at 2 S 6. For setting, this has an account of Samuel's childhood, 1 S 1–3, and a narrative representing Samuel as the last of the judges and preparing the way for final liberation from the Philistine yoke, ch. 7. Samuel plays an essential part in the story of the institution of the monarchy, 1 S 8–12, in which two groups of traditions have long been distinguished: ch. 9; 10:1–16; 11 on the one hand and ch. 8; 10:17–24; 12 on the other. The first group has been called a 'monarchist' version of the events and the second an 'anti-monarchist' version, the second being later. In fact, both traditions are ancient, merely representing different attitudes; furthermore, the second group is not as 'anti-monarchist' as is claimed, since it is opposed only to a monarchy disrespectful of the rights of God. Saul's wars against the Philistines are recounted in ch. 13–14, with a first version of the rejection of Saul, ch. $13:7^{b}$–15^{a}; a second version of his rejection is given in ch. 15, in the context of a war against the Amalekites. This latter version prepares the way for the anointing of David by Samuel, ch. 16:1–13. On David's early days and his vexed relationship with Saul, parallel and apparently equally ancient traditions have been collected into 1 S 16:14–2 S 1, where doublets are frequent. The end of this story comes in 2 S 2–5: David's reign in Hebron, the Philistine war and the capture of Jerusalem assure the recognition of David as king of all Israel, 2 S 5:12. The story of the ark is continued in 2 S 6; the prophecy of Nathan, ch. 7, is ancient but has been reworked; ch. 8 is an editorial summary. 2 S 9 is the first chapter of a long story which ends only in 1 K 1–2: it is a history of David's family and the disputed succession, written by an eyewitness in the first half of the reign of Solomon. The account is interrupted by 2 S 21–24, a collection of short passages of varying origin dealing with the reign of David.

It is possible that other literary units, besides the lengthy history of 2 S 9–20, were formed some time in the first two centuries of the monarchy, namely, the earliest Samuel cycle and the two histories of Saul and David (1 S 17–2 S 1). It is further possible that these units had already been combined by about 700 BC, though the books did not reach definitive form until they were gathered into the great deuteronomic historical work a little before, or during, the Exile. Even so, the influence of Deuteronomy is less obvious here than in Judges and Kings. It is most noticeable in the earlier chapters (especially 1 S 7 and 12) and may possibly be traced in a re-handling of Nathan's prophecy, 2 S 7; but the narrative of 2 S 9–20 has remained almost untouched.

The Books of Samuel cover a period from the rise of the monarchy to the end of the reign of David. Philistine expansion (the battle of Aphek was fought about 1050) threatened the very existence of Israel and made monarchical government a necessity. Saul (c. 1030) first appears as one of the line of judges, but his recognition by all the tribes invests him with a wider and a lasting authority: monarchy has begun. The war of liberation begins and the Philistines are driven back to their own frontiers, 1 S 14; henceforth the engagements take place on the borders of Israelite territory, 1 S 17 (Valley of the Terebinth), 28 and 31 (Gilboa). The battle of Gilboa ends in disaster, and Saul dies on the field, c. 1010. National unity is once more in jeopardy: at Hebron the men of Judah proclaim David king; the northern tribes set up a rival, Ishbaal, son of Saul, who had taken refuge in Transjordan. The assassination of Ishbaal, however, clears the way for unity and the northern tribes acknowledge David's sovereignty.

The Second Book of Samuel mentions only briefly the political consequences of the reign of David which were nevertheless far reaching. The Philistines had been repelled for good, unification of the national territory was completed by the absorption of the Canaanite enclaves, in particular Jerusalem, which became the political and religious capital of the kingdom. The whole of Transjordan was reduced to submission, and David extended his authority to include the Aramaeans of southern Syria. This notwithstanding, when David died, c. 970, national unity had not in fact been achieved: Israel and Judah, the two sections of his kingdom, were frequently at loggerheads: the revolt of Absalom was backed by the men of the north and the slogan of Sheba the Benjaminite, 'To your tents, Israel!' was a signal for rebellion. The signs already pointed to the disruption of the kingdom.

The Books of Samuel have a religious lesson to teach: they reveal the conditions in which a kingdom of God on earth might be expected to function and what difficulties it would experience. The ideal was achieved only in the time of David: before him Saul's failure, after him the sins of his successors, thwarted it, calling down the judgement of God and procuring the ruin of the nation. The promises made to the House of David, from the prophecy of Nathan onwards, sustained and nourished the messianic hope. The New Testament refers three times to Nathan's prophecy, Ac 2:30; 2 Co 6:18; Heb 1:5. Jesus is presented as a descendant of David, and when the people salute him as 'Son of David' they are acknowledging him as Messiah. Between David and Christ the chosen Saviour, king of God's holy nation, persecuted by his own people, the Fathers see a significant likeness.

§6 Books of Kings

1 and 2 Kings, like 1 and 2 Samuel, were originally one book in the Hebrew Bible. They correspond to the last two books of Kingdoms in the Greek translation, and of Kings in the Vulgate.

They are a continuation of the Books of Samuel, and 1 K 1–2 are the concluding chapters of the lengthy document of 2 S 9–20. The long section on the reign of Solomon, 1 K 3–11, gives a detailed account of his excelling wisdom, his riches and the magnificence of his building, particularly of the Temple of Jerusalem. It was an age of splendour but not of conquest—the conquering spirit of the reign of David had disappeared, an age of conservatism, organisation and (most significantly) of exploitation. This last aggravated the existing hostility between north and south, and when Solomon died, in 931, the kingdom split in two: to the political secession of the northern tribes was added religious schism, 1 K 12–13. From 1 K 14 to 2 K 17 the history of the twin kingdoms of Israel and Judah is described in parallel; it is a history of fraternal strife but also of attacks from outside: Egypt attacks Judah, the Aramaeans attack the northern tribes. But the danger becomes more acute with the intervention of Assyrian armies in this part of the world—in the ninth century first and then, more decisively, in the eighth when Samaria falls to their onslaught in 721, Judah having already accepted vassalage. The story of Judah, the remainder of the kingdom, is continued in 2 K 18–25:21 until the destruction of Jerusalem in 587. The narrative is concerned mainly with two reigns, each marked by a national revival and a religious reform: the reign of Hezekiah, 2 K 18–20, and that of Josiah, 2 K 22–23. The major political events of this period are Sennacherib's invasion in 701 when Hezekiah was king and, under Josiah, the collapse of Assyria and the rise of the Chaldaean empire. Judah was forced to submit to the new master of the east but shortly afterwards rebelled. Punishment was swift: in 597 Nebuchadnezzar's armies captured Jerusalem and deported part of its population; ten years later, incipient revolt provoked Nebuchadnezzar to further action which ended in the destruction of Jerusalem and a second deportation, 587. Two brief appendices, 2 K 25:22–30, bring the Books of Kings to a close.

The books themselves explicitly mention three of their sources: a History of Solomon, the Annals of the Kings of Israel, the Annals of the Kings of Judah. But there were others: the concluding chapters of the great Davidic document, 1 K 1–2; a description of the Temple, 'Priestly' in origin, 1 K 6–7; and notably an account of Elijah written towards the end of the ninth century and an account of Elisha of a slightly later date both of which underlie the Elijah and Elisha cycles (respectively, 1 K 17–2 K 1 and 2 K 2–13). The narratives of the reign of Hezekiah in which Isaiah figures, 2 K 18:17–20:19, are derived from the prophet's disciples.

Where the use of sources has not interfered, events are narrated according to a uniform plan: each reign is treated separately and completely and each is introduced and concluded by a scarcely varying formula which always includes a verdict on the king's religious conduct. By reason of the 'original sin' of the northern Kingdom (the erection of the shrine at Bethel) all the kings of Israel are judged guilty; of the kings of Judah only eight are praised for their fidelity to Yahweh's commands and on six occasions this praise is qualified by the reservation 'the high places were not destroyed'. Only Hezekiah and Josiah win unstinted approval.

The criterion of these verdicts is clearly the law of Deuteronomy on the one, central sanctuary. Further, the discovery of Deuteronomy in the reign of Josiah, and the religious reform that this discovery inspired, mark the climax of this entire history, and the whole work is a demonstration of the fundamental teaching of Deuteronomy, repeated in 1 K 8 and 2 K 17, namely, that the nation will be blessed if it respects God's covenant, punished if it does not. The influence of Deuteronomy is also traceable in the literary style of the editor's enlargements of, or comments on, his sources.

It is not improbable that a first deuteronomic edition was made before the Exile and before the death of Josiah at Megiddo in 609, with the eulogy of Josiah in 2 K 23:25 (minus the concluding words) marking the end of the original work. A second edition, also deuteronomic, was compiled during the Exile—after 562 if we assign to it the present conclusion of the book (2 K 25:22–30), and a little earlier if we suppose that this second edition ended with the story of the second deportation (2 K 25:21 reads like a conclusion). Finally, certain additions were made to the work during or after the Exile.

The Books of Kings must be read as they were written: as a story of salvation. The ingratitude of the chosen people and the successive ruin of the two sections of the nation seem to thwart God's design. But a small body of faithful people remain who have not 'bowed the knee to Baal'; this remnant of Zion loyal to the covenant guarantees the future. That God's design cannot be frustrated is shown by the astonishing persistence of the Davidic dynasty to which the messianic promise had been made. The whole work ends, in its final form, with the favour shown to Jehoiachin, as though this were a dawning of redemption.

I: THE CONQUEST OF THE PROMISED LAND

A: THE PREPARATIONS

The summons to enter the Promised Land

Dt 34 1 When Moses, servant of Yahweh, was dead, [a] Yahweh spoke to Joshua son of 1
Nun, Moses' adjutant. [b] He said, 2 'Moses my servant is dead; go now and cross this Jordan, you and this whole people, into the country which I am giving to them Dt 11:24–25 (the Israelites). 3 Every place you tread with the soles of your feet I shall give you, Gn 15:18 Dt 1:7 as I declared to Moses that I would. 4 From the desert and the Lebanon, to the Great River, the Euphrates (the entire country of the Hittites), and as far as the Great Sea to westward, is to be your territory. [c] 5 As long as you live, no one will be

Support from the Transjordanian tribes

Dt 16:18 10, 11 Joshua then gave the people's officials [d] this instruction: 'Go through the camp and give the people this order, "Make provisions ready, for in three days' time you will cross this Jordan and go on to take possession of the land which Yahweh your

and the half-tribe of Manasseh, 13 'Remember the order given you by Moses, servant of Yahweh: Yahweh your God, in bringing you to rest, has given you the land where we are. 14 Your wives, your little ones and your cattle must stay in the country given you by Moses beyond the Jordan. But all you fighting men must cross in battle formation at the head of your brothers and help them, [e] 15 until Yahweh grants rest to your brothers and you alike, when they too have taken possession of the possession of the land which belongs to you and which Moses, servant of Yahweh, has given you on the eastern side of the Jordan.' 16 They answered Joshua, 'We will Moses in everything, and now we will obey you. Only may Yahweh your God be Joshua's spies at Jericho [a]

1 2 From Shittim,[b] Joshua son of Nun secretly sent two men to reconnoitre. He said, 'Go and explore the country and Jericho.' They left; they went into the 7:2 Nb 13 Jg 18:2

4 reconnoitre the whole country.' ·But the woman took the two men and hid them. Nb 13
'It is true,' she said, 'the men did come to me, but I did not know where they came 5 from. ·When the city gate was about to be closed at nightfall, the men went out and I cannot say where they have gone. Follow them quickly and you will overtake them.'
6 She had taken them up to the roof and hidden them under some stalks of flax
7 which she had laid out there. ·The men hurried in pursuit of them towards the Jordan, as far as the fords, and the gate was shut once the pursuers had gone through.

8 The two men had not yet settled down for the night when Rahab came up to them
9 on the roof. ·She said to them, 'I know that Yahweh has given you this country, that we are afraid of you and that everyone living in this country has been seized
10 with terror at your approach; ·for we have heard how Yahweh dried up the Sea of 9:9–10 Ex 14

1 a. The book is thus represented as the continuation of Dt and, adopting the style and outlook of Dt, draws on ancient traditions to describe the entry and settlement of the Promised Land, especially those concerning the tribes of Central Palestine.

b. 'adjutant', mesharet, is the title habitually given to Joshua, see Ex 24:13; 33:11; Nb 11:28. More honourable than 'ebed, servant (except in the expression 'servant of Yahweh'), this term is also used for royal officials, 1 Ch 27:1, or for liturgical functions. On Joshua's name, his part in the reconnaissance of the Promised Land, his loyalty, and his appointment as Moses' successor, see Ex 17:9; 24:13; 33:11; Nb 11:28; 13:8, 16; 14:5 seq., 30, 38; 27:15–23; Dt 3:21, 28; 31:7–8, 14, 23; 34:9. In Gk and Vulg., he is called 'son of Naue', the result of a mistake in the earliest Septuagint MSS which read NAYH (Naue) instead of NAYN (Naun).

c. The boundaries assigned to the country destined for conquest (see Gn 15:18; Dt 1:7; 11:24, see Jg 20:1a) are the ideal frontiers of the Promised Land; they go far beyond those of the country partitioned in ch. 13–19. 'The entire country of the Hittites', omitted by Gk, is probably a Priestly gloss.

d. The recruiting sergeants or administrative officers, see Dt 20:5, 8. The term is also used for legal officials, recorders or judges' assistants, see Dt 16:18; 1 Ch 23:4.

e. According to Jos, and unlike Jg, the conquest is represented as the achievement of the whole nation, and not as the result of individual tribal efforts on isolated fronts.

2 a. Ch. 2–9 are a collection of traditions emanating from the Benjaminite shrine of Gilgal, 4:19b. • The story of the conquest of Jericho combines two traditions: 1 The sending of the spies and the story of Rahab, ch. 2, with its conclusion, 6:22–25. 2 The composite story of the crossing of the Jordan and the capture of Jericho, ch. 3–4 and 6. This miraculous story seems to have been substituted for a military action originally completing the story of Rahab and referred to in 24:11.

b. Shittim ('the Acacias') indicates that part of the plain just to the north east of the Dead Sea, Nb 25:1; 33:49.

c. The text credits Rahab with a profession of faith in the manner of Dt, see Dt 4:39. Rahab was saved by her faith, Heb 11:31, and justified by her works, Jm 2:25. In Hebr. her name is not the same as that of Rahab the mythical monster, Jb 7:12f;9:13; symbolising Egypt in Ps 87:4.

we shall fulfil the oath which you have made us swear: ·when we invade the 18 country, you must tie this scarlet cord to the window from which you let us down, and collect your father, mother, brothers and entire family inside your house. ·If 19 2 S 1:16b anyone goes out of the doors of your house into the street, his blood will be on his own head and we shall not be to blame; but the blood of all staying inside the house with you will be on our heads if a hand is laid on any of them. ·But if you divulge 20 our mission in the meanwhile, we shall be free of the oath which you have made us swear.' ·She replied, 'Let it be as you say.' She let them go, and they left. She then 21 tied the scarlet cord to the window. [d]

The spies return

They left and made for the hills. They stayed there for three days, until their 22 pursuers had gone home, having scoured the countryside without finding them.
The two men then came down again from the hills, crossed over and, going to 23
Joshua son of Nun, told him everything that had happened to them. ·To Joshua 24 6:2;8:7; 10:8 they said, 'Yahweh has put the whole country at our mercy, and its inhabitants are 5:1 all panic-stricken at our approach.'

B: THE CROSSING OF THE JORDAN [a]

Before the crossing

3 Early in the morning, Joshua struck camp and set out from Shittim with all the 1 Israelites. They went as far as the Jordan and there they camped before they 1:10d crossed. ·Three days later, the officials went through the camp ·and gave the 2, 3 people these instructions, 'When you see the ark of the covenant of Yahweh your 8:33 God being carried by the levitical priests, you will leave your position and follow it, so that you may know which way to take, since you have never gone this way before. 4b Between you and the ark, however, keep a distance of about two thousand cubits: [b] 4a
Ex 19:10,15 do not go near it.' ·Joshua said to the people, 'Sanctify yourselves, since tomorrow 5 Yahweh will work wonders among you.' ·Joshua then said to the priests, 'Take up 6 the ark of the covenant and cross at the head of the people.' They took up the ark of the covenant and moved to the head of the people.

Final instructions

Yahweh said to Joshua, 'This very day, I shall begin to make you great in the eyes 7 1:5;17 of all Israel so that they will know that, as I was with Moses, so I shall be with you.
Now, give this order to the priests carrying the ark of the covenant, "When you 8 have reached the brink of the waters of the Jordan, you must halt in the Jordan itself." ' ·To the Israelites, Joshua then said, 'Come closer and hear the words of 9
Ex 34:9–10 Yahweh your God.' ·Joshua said, 'By this, you are to know that the living God is 10
Dt 7:1a with you and without a doubt will expel the Canaanites, the Hittites, the Hivites, Perizzites, Girgashites, Amorites and Jebusites before you. ·Look, the ark of the 11 covenant of the Lord of the whole earth is about to move into the Jordan at your 4:2 head. ·Now choose twelve men from the tribes of Israel, one man from each tribe. 12
As soon as the priests carrying the ark of Yahweh, Lord of the whole earth, have 13 set the soles of their feet in the waters of the Jordan, the waters of the Jordan will Ps 114:3 be cut off, the upper waters flowing down will stop as a single mass.'

Crossing the Jordan

Accordingly, when the people left their tents to cross the Jordan, the priests carried 14
the ark of the covenant ahead of the people. ·As soon as the bearers of the ark 15 reached the Jordan and the feet of the priests carrying the ark touched the waters—
Ex 14:21 the Jordan is in spate throughout the harvest season [c]—·the upper waters stood still 16 and formed a single mass over a great distance, at Adam, the town near Zarethan, while those flowing down to the Sea of the Arabah, the Salt Sea, were completely 17 separated. [d] The people crossed opposite Jericho. ·The priests carrying the ark of the covenant of Yahweh stood firm on dry ground in mid-Jordan, while all Israel Ex 14:22 2 K 2:8 crossed on dry ground, until the whole nation had completed its crossing of the Jordan.

The twelve memorial stones

1 4 When the whole nation had finished crossing the Jordan, Yahweh spoke to 2 Joshua and said, ·'Choose twelve men from the people, one man from each 3 tribe, and give them this order, ·"Here, from mid-Jordan, from the place where the priests' feet were standing, take twelve stones; carry them with you and set 4 them down in the camp where you pass the night." ' ·Joshua called the twelve men
5 whom he had selected from the Israelites, one man from each tribe, ·and Joshua said to them, 'Go on ahead of the ark of Yahweh your God into mid-Jordan, and each of you take one stone on his shoulder, corresponding to the number of the 6 tribes of Israel, ·to make this a sign among you; and when, in the future, your =4:21-24
7 children ask you, "What do these stones mean for you?" ·you will then tell them, Ex 12:26 Dt 6:20
"The waters of the Jordan separated before the ark of the covenant of Yahweh; when it crossed the Jordan, the waters of the river separated. These stones are an 8 everlasting reminder of this to the Israelites." ' ·The Israelites did as Joshua ordered; they took twelve stones from mid-Jordan corresponding to the number of the tribes of Israel, as Yahweh had told Joshua; they carried them over to the camp 9 and set them down there. ·Joshua then erected twelve stones in mid-Jordan, on the spot where the feet of the priests carrying the ark of the covenant had stood;
and they are still there today. [a]

The crossing ends

10 The priests carrying the ark stood still in mid-Jordan, until everything had been done that Yahweh had ordered Joshua to tell the people (in accordance with everything that Moses had ordered Joshua); and the people hurried across.
11 When the people had finished crossing, the ark of Yahweh then crossed, with the 12 priests, to the head of the people. ·The sons of Reuben, the sons of Gad and the half-tribe of Manasseh crossed in battle formation at the head of the Israelites, as 13 Moses had told them. ·Some forty thousand warriors in arms, they crossed in 14 Yahweh's presence, ready for battle, towards the plain of Jericho. ·That day, Yahweh made Joshua great in the eyes of all Israel, who respected him as they had 15, 16 respected Moses, as long as he lived. ·Yahweh said to Joshua, ·'Order the priests 17 carrying the ark of the Testimony to come up out of the Jordan.' ·And Joshua gave 18 the order to the priests, 'Come up, out of the Jordan!' ·Now, when the priests carrying the ark of the covenant of Yahweh came up out of mid-Jordan, no sooner

d. vv. 17–21, would be more in place before v. 15; and there is no further mention of the scarlet cord.

3 a. There is a deliberate parallelism between the narrative of the crossing of the Jordan and entry into Canaan, 3:1–5:12, and the narrative of the Exodus from Egypt; the editor himself calls attention to it, 3:7; 4:14,23: Yahweh halts the Jordan just as he dried up the Sea of Reeds (3:7–4:18; Ex 14:5–31); the ark of Yahweh leads the Israelites as did the pillar of cloud or of fire (3:6–17; 4:10–11; Ex 13:21–22; 14:19–20); Joshua plays the part that Moses played in the Exodus (Jos 3:7; 4:14); and just as the adults of the Exodus period were circumcised, so in their turn are their desert-born children (Jos 5:2–9); the manna that had served Israel in the desert, Ex 16, ceases as soon as the Israelites enter Canaan, Jos 5:12, and the Passover is celebrated in Gilgal after the second 'crossing', Jos 5:10, as it had been celebrated in Egypt before the first, Ex 12:1–28; 13:3–10. This parallelism between the events at the beginning and end of the Exodus produces at the departure from Egypt a water miracle analogous to the water miracle at the crossing of the Jordan, see Ex 14:15a. As the Passion and Resurrection of Christ spiritually renew the events of the Exodus, see 1 Co 10:1, so Joshua, who gave the events of the Exodus their physical fulfilment, was regarded by some Fathers as an ante-type of Jesus, who has the same name.

b. A Sabbath day's journey, about ½m (about 1 km). v. 4[a] is an addition modifying vv. 3–4[b] and reflecting a scruple inspired by Yahweh's awesome presence resting on the ark, 2 S 6:7f.

c. This spate occurs in March and April when the snows of Hermon melt; this is harvest time in the lower Jordan valley.

d. According to an Arab historian, something similar happened in AD 1267: landslides blocked the valley in this very area, Adama-Damieh, and the Jordan ceased to flow for ten hours.

4 a. The narrative combines two distinct elements: 1 An explanation of the stone circle which used to stand at Gilgal, 4:19c, brought into relationship with the crossing of the twelve tribes. 2 An explanation of the stones visible in the bed of the Jordan, brought into relationship with the crossing of the ark, 4:9.

had the soles of the priests' feet touched solid ground, than the waters of the Jordan returned to their bed and ran on, in spate as before.

Arrival at Gilgal [b]

It was the tenth day of the first month when the people came up from the Jordan 19 and made their camp at Gilgal, on the eastern border of Jericho. ·As regards those 20 twelve stones, which they had taken from the Jordan, Joshua set them up at Gilgal.
=4:6–7 He then said to the Israelites, 'When, in the future, your children ask their fathers, 21
"What are these stones?" ·you will explain to your children, "Israel crossed this 22
Jordan dry-shod. ·For Yahweh your God dried up the waters of the Jordan in front 23 of you until you had crossed, just as Yahweh your God did to the Sea of Reeds, Ex 14:21 which he dried up before us until we had crossed it; ·so that all the peoples of the 24
Ex 14:31 earth may know how mighty the hand of Yahweh is, and always stand in awe of Yahweh your God." '

Terror of the peoples west of the Jordan

5 When all the kings of the Amorites living to westward across the Jordan, and 1 all the kings of the Canaanites living on the seaboard, heard that Yahweh had dried up the waters of the Jordan before the Israelites until they had crossed, [a] their 2:11 hearts failed and they lost all courage to resist the Israelites.

Circumcision of the Hebrews at Gilgal

Gn 17:10d At this time Yahweh said to Joshua, 'Make flint knives and circumcise the Israelites 2 again (a second time). [b] ·Joshua made flint knives and circumcised the Israelites on 3 the Hill of Foreskins.

The reason why Joshua circumcised them was this. All the males of the people 4 who had come out of Egypt of age to bear arms had died in the desert on their journey after leaving Egypt. ·Now, all the people who came out had been circum- 5 cised; but none of those born in the desert, during the journey, after leaving Egypt, Nb 14:20–38 had been circumcised; ·for the Israelites walked the desert for forty years, until the 6 whole nation had died out, that is, the men who had come out of Egypt of age to bear arms; they had not obeyed the voice of Yahweh, and Yahweh had sworn to them never to let them see the land which he had sworn to their ancestors that he Ex 3:8 would give us, a land flowing with milk and honey. ·But in place of these he set 7 their sons, and these were the ones whom Joshua circumcised: they were uncircumcised because they had not been circumcised during the journey. ·When the 8 circumcising of the whole nation was finished, they stayed resting in the camp till they were well again. ·Yahweh then said to Joshua, 'Today I have taken the shame 9 of Egypt away from you.' Hence, the place has been called Gilgal ever since. [c]

Celebration of the Passover

The Israelites pitched their camp at Gilgal and kept the Passover there on the 10 fourteenth day of the month, at evening, in the plain of Jericho. ·On the very next 11 day after the Passover, they ate what the land produced, unleavened bread and Ex 16:1a roasted ears of corn. ·The manna stopped the day after they had eaten the produce 12 of the land. The Israelites from that year onwards ate the produce of Canaan and had no more manna. [d]

C: THE CONQUEST OF JERICHO

Prelude: a theophany [e]

Now when Joshua was near Jericho, he looked up and saw a man standing in front 13
Nb 22:23 of him, grasping a naked sword. Joshua walked towards him and said to him, 'Are 1 Ch 21:16 you on our side or on that of our enemies?' ·He replied, 'On neither side. I have 14 come now as the captain of the army of Yahweh.' Joshua fell on his face to the ground, worshipping him, and said, 'What has my Lord to say to his servant?'

15 The captain of the army of Yahweh answered Joshua, 'Take your sandals off your feet, for the place where you are standing is holy.' And Joshua did so.

Ex 23:20
Dn 12:1
Rv 19:11–16
Ex 3:5; 19:12e

Capture of Jericho [a]

1 6 Now, Jericho had shut and barricaded its gates (against the Israelites): no one
2 came out and no one went in. •Yahweh then said to Joshua, 'Look, I am
3 putting Jericho, its picked troops and its king, at your mercy. •All you warriors must march round the city (go right round the city once, doing the same on six
4 successive days. •Seven priests must carry seven ram's-horn trumpets in front of the ark. On the seventh day, you will go seven times round the city and the priests
5 will blow their trumpets). •When the ram's horn sounds (when you hear the sound of the trumpet), the entire people must utter a mighty war cry [b] and the city wall will collapse then and there; the people will then go into the assault, each man straight ahead.'
6 Joshua son of Nun summoned the priests and said to them, 'Take up the ark of the covenant, and let seven priests carry seven ram's-horn trumpets ahead of the 7 ark of Yahweh.' •To the people he then said, 'Forward! March round the city, and 8 let the vanguard march ahead of the ark of Yahweh!' •(Everything was done as Joshua had given orders to the people.) Seven priests, carrying seven ram's-horn trumpets ahead of Yahweh, moved forward blowing their trumpets; the ark of the 9 covenant of Yahweh came behind them, •the vanguard marched ahead of the priests, who blew their trumpets, the rearguard followed behind the ark; the men marched, the trumpets sounded.
10 Joshua had given the people the following orders, 'Do not raise a war cry, do not let your voice be heard (not a word must pass your lips), until the day when I say, "Raise the war cry." That is when you must raise the war cry.'
11 He made the ark go round the city (going round it once), then they went back to 12 camp, where they spent the night. •Joshua got up early, and the priests took up the 13 ark of Yahweh. •Carrying the seven ram's-horn trumpets, the seven priests walked ahead of the ark of Yahweh, blowing their trumpets as they went, while the vanguard marched ahead of them and the rearguard behind the ark of Yahweh, and the march went on to the sound of the trumpet.
14 They marched once round the city (on the second day) and went back to camp;
15 and so on for six days. •On the seventh day, they got up at dawn and marched (in

b. The word gilgal means 'ring' (of stones); it was used as a proper name for several places see Dt 11:30; 2 K 2:1. Joshua's Gilgal lies between the Jordan and Jericho, 'on the eastern border (of the territory) of Jericho', but its precise position is unknown. This ancient centre of worship became the principal sanctuary of Benjamin; to it was attached the memory of the circumcision and first Passover in Canaan, 5:9–10, and the solemn promise made to the Gibeonites, 9:15. This first camp west of Jordan remained the headquarters of the campaign, 10:6; 14:6. Gilgal was still an important centre of political and religious life in the days of Saul, see 1 S 11:15. The prophets preached against the cult practised there, Ho 4:15; 9:15; 12:12; Am 4:4; 5:5.

5 a. 'they had' qere, MSS, versions; 'we had' ketib.

b. 'a second time', gloss on 'again'.

c. Play on words between gilgal and galloti, 'I have taken away'. • The 'shame' consists in being uncircumcised, as the author supposes the Egyptians to have been.

d. The eating of unleavened bread and roasted corn (marking the arrival of Israel in an agricultural country) took on a religious character because of the Passover and hence required circumcision. The ceasing of the manna indicated that the desert period was over.

e. vv. 13–15 are the remains of a lost tradition: this theophany consisted of a revelation and instructions to Joshua, v. 14; these doubtless concerned the conquest, conceived of as Yahweh's personal undertaking. There is perhaps a relationship between this and the similarly isolated passage of Jg 2:1–5. There is certainly a further parallel with the Exodus; the scene recalls the Burning Bush and the commissioning of Moses.

6 a. The basis of this narrative is a tradition attaching to the sanctuary at Gilgal, by which the ruined walls of Jericho were explained as resulting from the first act of Yahweh's war in Canaan, vv. 2–10, 15–16, 20–21; the ark is the sign of Yahweh's presence and he alone is responsible for what happens. The narrative, originally belonging to the type of the holy war of conquest, has been transformed into a religious narrative by a series of additions emphasising the part played by the priests. The Hebr. text is markedly longer than that of LXX, the latter omitting the repetitions (in brackets in our text). The narrative, even in its primitive form, is not historical in the accepted modern sense, although this does not preclude the possibility of Jericho's really having been captured by the Israelites (see 2:1a and 24:11). Archaeology admittedly offers no evidence for the destruction of Jericho at the end of the thirteenth century BC, but this is in no way conclusive, since the strata of this period have perhaps been lost owing to erosion of the site.

b. On this sacred war cry, see Nb 10:5a.

the same manner) round the city seven times. (This was the only day when they marched round the city seven times.) ·At the seventh time, the priests blew their 16 trumpets and Joshua said to the people, 'Raise the war cry, for Yahweh has given you the city!

Jericho placed under the curse of destruction [c]

Lv 27:28–29 'The city and everyone in it must be devoted to Yahweh under the curse of 17 destruction; the life of Rahab the prostitute alone must be spared, with all those 2:1–21 with her in her house, since she hid the messengers we sent. ·But beware of the 18 curse of destruction, yourselves, for fear that, moved by greed, you take something lying under the curse; that would put the camp of Israel under the same curse and 7:1–26 bring disaster on it. [d] ·All the silver and all the gold, everything made of bronze or 19 iron, will be consecrated to Yahweh and put in his treasury.'

The people raised the war cry, the trumpets sounded. When the people heard 20 ↗Heb 11:30 the sound of the trumpet, they raised a mighty war cry and the wall collapsed then and there. At once the people stormed the city, each man going straight forward; and they captured the city. ·They enforced the curse of destruction on everyone in 21 the city: men and women, young and old, including the oxen, the sheep and the donkeys, slaughtering them all.

2:1–21 Rahab's house preserved [e]

Joshua said to the two men who had reconnoitred the country, 'Go into the 22
prostitute's house, and bring the woman out with all who belong to her, as you swore to her that you would.' ·The young men who had been spies went and 23 brought Rahab out, with her father and mother and brothers and all who belonged to her. They brought out all her clansmen too, and put them in a place of safety outside the camp of Israel.

Nb 31:22 They burned the city and everything inside it, except the silver, the gold and the 24 things of bronze and iron; these they put into the treasury of Yahweh's house. ·But 25
Rahab the prostitute, her father's family and all who belonged to her, these Joshua spared. She is still living in Israel even today, for having hidden the messengers whom Joshua sent to reconnoitre Jericho.

A curse on anyone who rebuilds Jericho

At that time Joshua made them take this oath before Yahweh: 26

> Accursed before Yahweh be the man who rises up > and rebuilds this city (Jericho)!
> ↗1 K 16:34 On his first-born will he lay its foundations, > on his youngest son set up its gates!

1:5+ So Yahweh was with Joshua, whose fame spread throughout the country. 27

Violation of the curse of destruction [a]

7 But the Israelites were unfaithful to the curse of destruction. Achan son of 1
Carmi, son of Zabdi, son of Zerah, of the tribe of Judah, took something that fell under the curse of destruction, and the anger of Yahweh was aroused against the Israelites.

The sacrilege punished by a repulse at Ai

2:1 Now Joshua sent men from Jericho to Ai [b] (which is near Beth-Aven), to the east 2 of Bethel, having said to them, 'Go up and reconnoitre the country.' They went up and reconnoitred Ai. ·Coming back to Joshua, they said, 'There is no need for the 3 whole people to go up; let some two or three thousand go and attack Ai. Spare the whole people such an effort; there are only a few of them!'

Jg 20:20–21 Of the people, some three thousand marched up, but these broke before the 4 people of Ai, •who killed some thirty-six of them and pursued them from the town gate as far as Shebarim, and on the slope cut them to pieces. The hearts of the people melted away and turned to water. Jg 20:26

Joshua's prayer [c]

Joshua then tore his clothes and prostrated himself before the ark of Yahweh till nightfall; the elders of Israel did the same, and all poured dust on their heads.
And Joshua said, 'Alas, Lord Yahweh, why did you bother to bring this nation across the Jordan, if only to put us at the mercy of the Amorites and destroy us? If only we could have settled down on the other side of the Jordan! •Forgive me, Lord, but what can I say, now that Israel has turned tail on the enemy? •The Canaanites, all the inhabitants of the land, will hear of it; they will unite against us to wipe our name from the earth. And what will you do about your great Name then?' Ex 32: 11–14

Yahweh's answer

Yahweh said to Joshua, 'Stand up! Why are you lying prostrate like this? •Israel has sinned; they have violated the covenant which I imposed on them. They have gone so far as to take what was under the curse of destruction, they have even stolen it; they have actually hidden it; they have put it in their baggage. •That is why the Israelites cannot stand up to their foes, why they have turned tail on their enemies: because they have come under the curse of destruction themselves. Unless you get rid of the object among you which has been put under the curse of destruction, I shall be with you no longer.' [d]

'Get up, sanctify the people and say, "Sanctify yourselves for tomorrow, since Yahweh, the God of Israel, declares: The curse of destruction has now fallen on you, Israel; you will not be able to stand up to your enemies, until you have rid yourselves of that object which has been put under the curse of destruction. Tomorrow morning, therefore, you will come forward tribe by tribe, and then the tribe which Yahweh selects by lot will come forward clan by clan, and the clan which Yahweh selects by lot will come forward family by family, and the family which Yahweh selects by lot will come forward man by man. [e] •And the man indicated by lot as regards the object which has been put under the curse of destruction will be delivered to the flames, he and all his possessions, for having violated the covenant with Yahweh and for having committed an infamy in Israel." ' 1 S 14:40–42

c. The 'curse of destruction', herem in Hebr., makes over all that is captured to God; hence men and animals are killed and booty given to the sanctuary. The curse of destruction is a religious act, a rule for holy war, and may depend either on a divine command. Dt 7:1–2; 20:13seq.; 1 S 15:3, or on a vow made to assure victory. Nb 21:2. Failure to observe it is sacrilege and its punishment is severe, Jos. 7. see 1 S 15:16–23, though the regulation is sometimes qualified, 8:26–27; Nb 31:15–23; Dt 2:34–35; 3:6–7; 20:13–14. The conception of God as a merciful father will later correct this primitive interpretation of his absolute dominion, see Ws 1:13 and especially the NT Mt 5:44–45.

d. 'moved by greed' Gk, see 7:21 and Dt 7:25; 'you be put under the curse of destruction yourselves' Hebr.

e. End of the story of Rahab and the spies, ch. 2, a folk-memory preserved by the survival of a clan of Rahab, v. 25.

7 a. The episode of Achan was originally independent of the capture of Jericho and the capture of Ai; Achan is a Judaean, and the plain of Achor is in Judah, far away from Ai and Jericho. This is an independent tradition, probably originating in Benjamin, since it is hostile to Judah.

b. Ai (name meaning 'the ruin') is the modern et-Tell (same meaning in Arabic). The site was in ruins long before the time of Joshua and the narrative has little historical basis. It is analogous to the narrative of the capture of Gibeah, Jg 20, and used perhaps to be told at Bethel, thus counterbalancing the memory of the Benjaminite defeat at Gibeah with the story of a heroic achievement attributed to the time of the conquest • 'which is near Beth-Aven', gloss introducing the nickname 'house of vanity' later applied to Bethel, Ho 4:15, see Am 5:5.

c. The prayer is reminiscent of the prayer of Moses in similar circumstances, Ex 32:11; Nb 14:13–16; Dt 9:26, though with significant differences: notably the fact that Yahweh had offered to give Moses another nation (Dt 9:13–14), and that Moses was refusing the offer and interceding for Israel, whereas here Joshua gives way in discouragement and Yahweh comforts and encourages him; see 1 K 19:4–8; Jr 15:10, 19–21.

d. The violation of the curse of destruction is a sacrilege, 6:17c, and the whole community is contaminated by the presence of the booty that has been pilfered. The community can be released from the effects of the curse of destruction only when these have been executed on the guilty individual.

e. see Saul designated king by lot, 1 S 10:20–21, and Jonathan found guilty, 1 S 14:40–42. Explicitly in the latter case and probably in others, identification was effected by the sacred lots, used for consulting God, see 1 S 2:28*l*; 14:41r; see also Jon 1:7.

The culprit discovered and punished

Joshua got up early; he made Israel come forward tribe by tribe, and the lot 16 indicated the tribe of Judah. ·He summoned the clans of Judah, and the lot 17 indicated the clan of Zerah. He summoned the clan[f] of Zerah, family by family, and the lot indicated Zabdi. ·Joshua then summoned the family of Zabdi, man by 18 man, and the lot indicated Achan son of Carmi, son of Zabdi, son of Zerah, of the tribe of Judah.

Joshua then said to Achan, 'My son, give glory to Yahweh, God of Israel, and 19 confess; tell me what you have done and hide nothing from me.' ·Achan replied to 20 Joshua, 'Yes, I am the man who has sinned against Yahweh, God of Israel, and this is what I have done. ·In the loot, I saw a fine robe from Shinar[g] and two 21 hundred shekels of silver and an ingot of gold weighing fifty shekels, I set my heart on them and I took them. They are hidden in the ground inside my tent, with the silver underneath.'

Joshua sent messengers; they ran to the tent, and the robe was indeed hidden in 22
the tent, with the silver underneath. ·They took the things out of the tent and, 23 bringing them to Joshua and all the Israelites, laid them out before Yahweh.

Joshua then took Achan son of Zerah and led him up to the Vale of Achor, with 24 the silver and the robe and the ingot of gold, his sons, his daughters, his oxen, his donkeys, his sheep, his goats, his tent and all his belongings. All Israel went with him.

Joshua said, 'Why have you brought misfortune on us? Today may Yahweh 25 bring misfortune on you!' And all Israel stoned him to death (and they burned them and threw stones at them).[h]

Over him, they raised a great mound of stones,[i] which is still there today. 26 Yahweh then relented from his fierce anger. That was why the place was called the Vale of Achor,[j] as it still is today.

D: THE CAPTURE OF AI

The command given to Joshua

8 Yahweh then said to Joshua, 'Be fearless and undaunted. Take all your fighting 1 Jg 20:28 men with you. Up! March against Ai. Look, I have put the king of Ai, his people, his town and his territory at your mercy. ·You must treat Ai and its king as 2 you treated Jericho and its king. The only booty you will take are the spoils and the cattle. Take up a concealed position by the town, to the rear of it.'

Jg 20:29–48 Joshua's stratagem

Joshua set out to march against Ai with all the fighting men. Joshua chose thirty 3 thousand of the bravest and sent them out under cover of dark, ·having given them 4 these orders, 'Pay attention! You must take up a concealed position by the town, at the rear, not very far from the town, and be sure you all keep alert! ·I, and the 5 whole people with me, shall advance on the town, and when the people of Ai[a] come out to engage us as they did the first time, we shall run away from them.
They will then give chase, and we shall draw them away from the town, since they 6 will think, "They are running away from us as they did the first time."[b] ·You will 7 then burst out of your concealed position and seize the town; Yahweh your God will put it at your mercy. ·When you have captured the town, set fire to it, in 8 obedience to Yahweh's command. Well then, these are my orders.'

Joshua sent them off, and they made their way to the place of ambush and took 9 up position between Bethel and Ai, to the west of Ai. Joshua spent the night with the people, ·then, getting up early next morning, reviewed the people and, 10 with the elders of Israel, marched on Ai at their head. ·All the warriors marching 11 with him advanced on the front of the town and pitched camp north of Ai, with the 12 valley between them and the town. ·Joshua took about five thousand men[c] and 13 concealed these between Bethel and Ai, to the west of the town. ·The people pitched the main camp to the north of the town and set up its ambush to the west of the town. Joshua went that night into the middle of the plain.

The capture of Ai

14 The king of Ai had seen this; the people of the town got up early and hurried out, so that he and all his people could engage Israel in battle on the slope[d] facing the Arabah; but he did not know that an ambush had been laid for him to the rear of 15 the town. ·Joshua and all Israel pretended to be beaten by them and took to their 16 heels along the road to the desert. ·All the people in the town joined in the pursuit 17 and, in pursuing Joshua, were drawn away from the town. ·Not a man was left in Ai (nor in Bethel),[e] who had not gone in pursuit of Israel; and in pursuing Israel they left the town undefended.

18 Yahweh then said to Joshua, 'Point the sabre in your hand at Ai; for I am about 8:26 to put the town at your mercy.' Joshua pointed the sabre in his hand[f] towards the Ex 17:8–15 19 town. ·No sooner had he stretched out his hand than the men in ambush burst from 2 K 13:14–19 their position, ran forward, entered the town, captured it and quickly set it on fire.

20 When the men of Ai looked back, they saw smoke rising from the town into the sky. None of them had the courage to run in any direction, for the people fleeing 21 towards the desert turned back on their pursuers. ·For, once Joshua and all Israel saw that the town had been seized by the men in ambush, and that smoke was rising 22 from the town, they turned about and attacked the men of Ai. ·The others came out from the town to engage them too, and the men of Ai were thus surrounded by Israelites, some on this side and some on that. The Israelites struck them down 23 until not one was left alive and none to flee; ·but the king of Ai was taken alive, 24 and brought to Joshua. ·When Israel had finished killing all the inhabitants of Ai in the open ground, and in the desert where they had pursued them, and when every single one had fallen to the sword, all Israel returned to Ai and slaughtered its 25 remaining population. ·The number of those who fell that day, men and women together, was twelve thousand, all people of Ai.

The curse of destruction; the destruction of the town

26 Joshua did not draw back the hand with which he had pointed the sabre until he 27 had subjected all the inhabitants of Ai to the curse of destruction. ·For booty, Israel took only the cattle and the spoils of this town, in accordance with the order 28 that Yahweh had given to Joshua. ·Joshua then burned Ai, making it a ruin for 29 evermore, a desolate place even today. ·He hanged the king of Ai from a tree[g] till evening; but at sunset Joshua ordered his body to be taken down from the tree. It was then thrown down at the entrance to the town gate and on top of it was raised 10:27 a great mound of stones, which is still there today. Dt 21:22–23

The geographical name has modified the spelling of the name Achan: Achar in Gk of this ch., and in Hebr. of 1 Ch 2:7.

8 a. 'the people of Ai' Gk; 'they' Hebr.

b. At the end of the v., Hebr. adds 'and we shall run away from them' dittography of v. 5.

c. A figure more credible than the 30 000 of v. 3.

d. 'slope' morad conj.; see 7:5; Hebr. mo'ed 'meeting-place'.

e. 'nor in Bethel' gloss omitted in Gk.

f. Not a mere signal but a gesture effective in itself like that of Moses in Ex 17:9, 11.

g. This ignominious treatment sometimes following the execution of an enemy, see 10:26–27, was also practised by other peoples, see 1 S 31:10. According to the law of Dt 21:22–23, however, the corpses of those executed had to be taken down before nightfall, hence Jn 19:31.

E: SACRIFICE AND READING OF THE LAW ON MOUNT EBAL [h]

The altar of undressed stones

Joshua then built an altar to Yahweh, God of Israel, on Mount Ebal, •as Moses, 30, 31 servant of Yahweh, had ordered the Israelites, as is written in the law of Moses: an Ex 20:25 Dt 27:5–7 altar of undressed stones, on which no iron has been used. On this they presented burnt offerings to Yahweh and communion sacrifices as well.

The reading of the Law

Dt 27:2–4,8 There, Joshua wrote on the stones a copy of the Law of Moses, which Moses had 32
Dt 27:9–26 written in the presence of the Israelites. •All Israel, with their elders, their officials 33
Dt 3:3 and their judges, stood on either side of the ark, facing the levitical priests who were carrying the ark of the covenant of Yahweh, foreigners with the native-born, Dt 11:29 half of them on the upper slopes of Mount Gerizim, and half of them on the upper slopes of Mount Ebal, [i] as Moses, servant of Yahweh, had originally ordered for Dt 31:10–12 the blessing of the people of Israel. •After this, Joshua read all the words of the 34 Law—the blessing and the cursing—exactly as it stands written in the Book of the Law. •Of every word laid down by Moses, not one was left unread by Joshua 35 in the presence of the whole assembly of Israel, including the women and children, and the foreigners living with them.

F: THE TREATY BETWEEN ISRAEL AND THE GIBEONITES

A coalition against Israel

9 Hearing these things, all the kings on this side of the Jordan, in the highlands 1
Jg 1–9 and in the lowlands, all along the coast of the Great Sea towards the Lebanon, Dt 7:1a Hittites, Amorites, Canaanites, Perizzites, Hivites and Jebusites, with one consent formed a fighting alliance against Joshua and Israel. 2

The ruse of the Gibeonites [a]

When the inhabitants of Gibeon learned how Joshua had treated Jericho and Ai, 3 for their part, •they had recourse to a ruse. They provided themselves with 4 supplies, [b] and loaded their donkeys with old sacks and with old wineskins which had burst and been sewn up again. •They put on patched old sandals and worn-out 5 clothes. The only bread they took with them to eat was dried up and crumbling.

They came to Joshua in the camp at Gilgal, and to him and the men of Israel 6 they said, 'We come from a distant country, so make a treaty with us.' •The 7 Israelites answered these Hivites, 'For all we know, you may live right among us.
How then could we make a treaty with you?' •They said to Joshua, 'We are your 8 servants.' 'But who are you?' Joshua asked them, 'and where do you come from?'
They said, 'Your servants have come from a country very far away, because of the 9 2:10 fame of Yahweh your God; for we have heard of him and of all that he did in Egypt, •and of all that he did to the two Amorite kings who used to live on the 10 other side of the Jordan: Sihon king of Heshbon, and Og king of Bashan, who used to live at Ashtaroth. •Because of which, our elders and all the people of our country 11 said to us, "Take provisions with you for the journey; go and meet them and say to them: We are your servants; so make a treaty with us." •Here is our bread; it was 12 warm when we took it from home to provide for our journey the day we set out to come to you, and now, you can see, it is dried up and crumbling. •These 13 wineskins were new when we filled them; you can see, they have burst; and these clothes and sandals of ours are worn out from travelling such a long way.'

The leaders [c] sampled some of the food they offered, but they did not ask 14
Yahweh's orders. •Joshua made peace with them, and struck a treaty with them 15 guaranteeing their lives, and the leaders of the community [d] ratified it by oath.

Now it so happened that three days after the treaty had been made, it became 16

17 known that they were a neighbouring people, living in Israel's region. ·The Israelites set out from camp, arriving in their towns three days later. Their towns were 18 Gibeon, Chephirah, Beeroth and Kiriath-Jearim. ·The Israelites did not attack them, since the leaders of the community had sworn to them by Yahweh, God of Israel, but the whole community muttered against the leaders.

The Gibeonites' place in the community

19 The leaders, however, all said to the whole community, 'Since we have sworn an 20 oath to them by Yahweh, God of Israel, we cannot touch them now. ·This is what we shall do with them: let them live,[e] rather than bring retribution down on 21 ourselves on account of the oath which we have sworn to them.' ·And the leaders went on, 'Let them live, but let them be wood-cutters and water-carriers for the Dt 29:10 22 whole community.' Thus spoke the leaders. ·Joshua sent for the Gibeonites and asked them, 'Why did you deceive us by saying, "We live very far away," when in 23 fact you live right among us? ·From now on, you are accursed and will for ever be 24 serfs, as wood-cutters and water-carriers in the house of my God.'[f] ·Their answer to Joshua was, 'We did it because your servants had been rightly told that Yahweh your God had ordered his servant Moses to give you the whole of this country and destroy all its inhabitants before you; also because, as you advanced on us, we 25 feared very greatly for our lives. That was why we did this. ·Now, as you see, we 26 are at your mercy; do to us whatever you think good and right.' ·What he did with them was this: he saved them from the hand of the Israelites, who did not kill 27 them.[g] ·But that very day Joshua made them wood-cutters and water-carriers for the community and for the altar of Yahweh, at the place which he would eventually choose; and so they are today.

G: COALITION OF FIVE AMORITE KINGS CONQUEST OF SOUTHERN PALESTINE[a] Jg 1:1–8

Five kings make war on Gibeon

1 10 Now, it happened that Adoni-Zedek king of Jerusalem, learned that Joshua had conquered Ai and put the town under the curse of destruction, treating

h. vv. 30-35, interrupting the narrative of the conquest (in 9:6 Joshua is still at the camp at Gilgal), come from an editor inspired by Dt 11, 27 and 31. They possibly replace a mention of the sanctuary at Bethel, which might be expected here, since it is so close to Ai; but anything apparently legitimising a sanctuary which was later condemned has been expunged.

i. The incident takes place west of Shechem, which is overlooked on the north by Ebal, on the south by Gerizim. Later, possibly in the time of Nehemiah, the schismatic Samaritan temple was built on Gerizim; it was desecrated by Antiochus Epiphanes, 2 M 6:2; see 5:23.

9 a. The whole of this narrative bears clear marks of Deuteronomic editing though based on ancient traditions. Although these cannot be isolated, they are evidently Benjaminite in origin. • The 'Gibeonites' live not only in Gibeon (el-Jib, north west of Jerusalem) but also in the three neighbouring towns named in v. 17. They constitute a non-Canaanite enclave, see v. 7; 11:19, hence their isolation and their wish for an alliance with the Israelites. The existence of an ancient treaty of alliance between Gibeon and Israel is attested by the reparation made by David to the Gibeonites, 2 S 21. But the way the fact is presented here betrays a theological preoccupation, such a treaty being apparently a contravention of the rules governing the holy war, see 6:17c. These rules, however, did not apply to populations living outside Canaan, hence the amusing tale of the Gibeonites' ruse; the oath of friendship with them, once having been sworn, could not be revoked.

b. 'provided themselves with supplies' wayyitztayadu conj.; see vv. 11–12; Hebr. wayyitztayaru unintelligible.

c. 'leaders' Gk; 'men' Hebr. By agreeing to share the Gibeonites' provisions, the Israelite leaders automatically struck an alliance with them, Gn 31:46 seq.

d. The 'community' is a technical term meaning the Israelites when assembled for public worship or for transacting business of public importance, see ch. 22 (esp. v. 12); Jg 20:1; 1 K 12:20.

e. 'let them live', verb in the singular. Presumably the discourse to the 'whole assembly' is interrupted by a sentence addressed to Joshua in particular.

f. The Gibeonites attached to a sanctuary, possibly the high place at Gibeon, 1 K 3:4, are not the same people as the Temple slaves, Ezr 2:43,55, whose institution Ezra ascribes to David. They were reduced to an inferior place in society, see Dt 29:10, at their own request, v. 11, and not in the first instance as a punishment.

g. The violation of this treaty by Saul was expiated in the reign of David, 2 S 21:1–14.

10 a. Ch. 10 and 11 are different in literary form from the preceding ch.: the conquest of the whole south, and after this of the whole north, of the Promised Land, effected by all the united tribes under Joshua's leadership, is described as the result of two expeditions against the allied Canaanite kings. This is at variance with other passages of this book, 13:1–6; 14:6–13; 15:13–19; 17:12,16, and also with the outline at the beginning of Judges, Jg 1, in which the conquest is seen to be slow and incomplete, with each tribe acting for itself. This latter presentation is closer to the historical fact, but the Book of Joshua, to give an overall picture of the conquest, associates with Joshua events with which he had nothing to do, or which took place after his time.

Ai and its king as he had already treated Jericho and its king; and also that the inhabitants of Gibeon had made peace with Israel and were living with them.
There was consternation at this, since Gibeon was as important a town as any of 2
the royal towns themselves (it was larger than Ai), while all its citizens were Jg 1:5 fighting men. ·Consequently, Adoni-Zedek king of Jerusalem sent word to Hoham 3 king of Hebron, Piram king of Jarmuth, Japhia king of Lachish, and Debir king of Eglon, ·'Join me up here and help me to conquer Gibeon, since it has made peace 4 with Joshua and the Israelites.' ·The five Amorite kings joined forces and went up 5 there, that is, the king of Jerusalem, the king of Hebron, the king of Jarmuth, the king of Lachish and the king of Eglon, they and all their armies; laying siege to Gibeon, they attacked it.

9:3–14 Joshua comes to the rescue of Gibeon

The men of Gibeon sent word to Joshua in the camp at Gilgal, 'Do not desert your 6 servants; come up here quickly to save us and help us, since all the Amorite kings living in the highlands have allied themselves against us.' ·Joshua came up from 7 Gilgal, he, all the fighting men and all the bravest of his army. ·Yahweh said to 8
Joshua, 'Do not be afraid of these people; I have put them at your mercy; not one of them will put up any resistance.' ·Having marched from Gilgal throughout the 9 night, Joshua caught them unawares.

Si 46:4–6 Aid from on high

Yahweh threw them into disorder at the sight of Israel, defeating them completely 10
Is 28:21 at Gibeon; furthermore, he pursued them by way of the Descent of Beth-Horon and harassed them as far as Azekah (and as far as Makkedah). ·And as they fled 11
Ex 9:18–26 from Israel down the Descent of Beth-Horon, [b] Yahweh hurled huge hailstones
Jb 38:22–23
Is 28:17; 30:30 from heaven on them all the way to Azekah, and they died. More of them died under the hailstones than under the swords of the Israelites. ·Joshua then spoke to 12 Yahweh, the day Yahweh delivered the Amorites to the Israelites. In the presence of Israel, Joshua said:

> Sun, stand still over Gibeon,
> and, moon, you too, over the Vale of Aijalon!

Hab 3:11–12 And the sun stood still, and the moon halted, until the people had taken 13 vengeance on their enemies.
Is this not written in the Book of the Just? [c] The sun stood still in the middle of 2 K 20:10–11 the sky and delayed its setting for almost a whole day. ·There was never a day like 14 that before or since, when Yahweh obeyed the voice of a man—for Yahweh was
Ex 14:14
Dt 1:30;3:22 fighting for Israel. ·Joshua, and all Israel with him, then went back to the camp at 15 Gilgal.

The five kings in the cave at Makkedah [d]

As regards the five kings, these had fled and hidden in the cave of Makkedah, 16 and news of this was brought to Joshua. 'The five kings have been found hiding 17 in the cave at Makkedah.' ·Joshua said, 'Roll great stones over the mouth of the 18 cave and post men there to keep guard. ·You yourselves, do not stay there doing 19 nothing; pursue the enemy, cut off their line of retreat and do not let them enter their towns, for Yahweh your God has put them at your mercy.'
When Joshua and the Israelites had finished inflicting a very great defeat on 20 them, to the point of destroying them, those who had escaped alive took refuge in their fortresses. ·The people came back to Joshua's camp at Makkedah; they were 21 all safe and sound, and no one dared to attempt anything [e] against the Israelites.
Joshua then said, 'Clear the mouth of the cave and bring the five kings out to 22 me.' ·They did so, and brought the five kings out of the cave to take them to him: 23
the king of Jerusalem, the king of Hebron, the king of Jarmuth, the king of Lachish and the king of Eglon. ·When these kings had been brought out, Joshua assembled 24

all the men of Israel and said to the chiefs of the warriors who had fought with him, 'Come forward and put your feet on the necks of these kings!' They came forward Ps 110:1 25 and put their feet on their necks. ·'Be fearless and undaunted,' Joshua went on, 'be strong and stand firm, for this is how Yahweh will deal with all the enemies you
26 fight.' ·With this, Joshua struck and killed them and had them hanged on five trees; they hung there till evening.
27 At the hour of sunset, on Joshua's orders, they were taken down from the trees 8:29g and thrown into the cave where they had been hiding. Great stones were laid over the mouth of the cave, and these are still there to this very day.

The conquest of the southern towns of Canaan[f]

28 The same day Joshua captured Makkedah, putting it and its king to the sword; he delivered them over to the curse of destruction, with every living creature there, and let no one escape, and he treated the king of Makkedah as he had treated the king of Jericho.
29 Joshua, and all Israel with him, went on from Makkedah to Libnah and attacked 30 it ·and Yahweh put this, too, and its king at Israel's mercy; and Israel put every living creature there to the sword, and left none alive, and treated its king like the king of Jericho.
31 Joshua, and all Israel with him, went on from Libnah to Lachish and besieged it 32 and attacked it. ·Yahweh put Lachish at Israel's mercy, and Israel took it on the second day and put it and every living creature in it to the sword, as they had 33 treated Libnah. ·Horam king of Gezer then marched up to help Lachish, but Jg 1:29f Joshua beat him and his people until not one was left alive.
34 Joshua, and all Israel with him, went on from Lachish to Eglon. They besieged Jg 1:10–15
35 it and attacked it. ·The same day they took it and put it to the sword. That day he 14:12seq.; 15:13–14 delivered over to the curse of destruction every living creature there, treating it as he had treated Lachish.
36 Joshua, and all Israel with him, went on up from Eglon to Hebron. They 37 attacked it, ·took it and put it to the sword, with its king, its dependencies and every living creature in it. As he had treated Eglon, so here, he left no one alive. He delivered it over to the curse of destruction, with every living creature in it.
38, 39 Joshua, and all Israel with him, then turned back on Debir and attacked it. ·He 15:15seq.
took it and its king and all the places belonging to it; they put them to the sword, and every living creature there they delivered over to the curse of destruction. He left no one alive. As he had treated Hebron, as he had treated Libnah and its king, so he treated Debir and its king.

The southern conquests recapitulated

40 Thus Joshua subjugated the whole country: the highlands, the Negeb, the lowlands Jg 1:9 and watered foothills, and all their kings. He left not one survivor and put every living thing under the curse of destruction, as Yahweh, God of Israel, had com- 6:17c 41 manded. ·Joshua conquered them from Kadesh-Barnea to Gaza, and the whole Dt 7:1–2 42 region of Goshen as far as Gibeon. ·All these kings and their territory Joshua captured in a single campaign, because Yahweh, God of Israel, fought for Israel.
43 And then Joshua, and all Israel with him, went back to the camp at Gilgal.

b. On the normal invasion route, see Saul's pursuit of the Philistines, 1 S 14:23 (Gk), 31; see also the Syrian invasion, 1 M 3:16,24.

c. An ancient collection of poems now lost; it is quoted again in 2 S 1:18; 1 K 8:12. The rhythmical couplet, inexplicable either in terms of astronomy or of astral cults, is a poetic image, comparable to Ex 14 (song of Moses) and Jg 5 (song of Deborah, see especially v. 20); for the supernatural help given to Israel by Yahweh, see v. 11. It is, however, taken literally by the editor, who uses it to emphasise the greatness of Joshua, see v. 14.

d. This story belongs to an independent tradition, distinct from that of the battle of Gibeon, where the mention of Makkedah in v. 10 is an editorial addition. The site is unknown. According to 15:41, Makkedah was in the area of Eglon and Lachish, and far away from Gibeon.

e. lit. 'not a man ('ish instead of le'ish Hebr.) dared sharpen his tongue'.

f. Note the formal presentation of this material, see 10:1a. The conquest of Hebron and Debir cannot be credited to Joshua, see 15:13–17; Jg 1:10–15; while Libnah, Lachish and Eglon did not become Israelite until much later.

H: THE CONQUEST OF THE NORTH [a]

11 When Jabin king of Hazor [b] heard about this, he sent word to Jobab king of 1 Merom, [c] to the king of Shimron, to the king of Achshaph ·and to the kings 2 in the northern highlands, in the plain south of Chinneroth, and those in the lowlands and on the slopes of Dor to the west. ·To eastward and to westward lived 3 Dt 7:1a the Canaanites: in the highlands, the Amorites, Hittites, Perizzites and Jebusites; the Hivites, at the foot of Hermon in the area of Mizpah. ·They set out with all 4 their troops, a people as numerous as the sands of the sea, with a huge number of horses and chariots.

The victory at Merom

These kings, having all agreed on a meeting place, came and set up camp together 5 at the Waters of Merom, [d] to fight Israel. ·Yahweh then said to Joshua, 'Do not be 6 afraid of them, for by this time tomorrow I shall hand them all over, cut to pieces, to Israel; you will hamstring their horses and burn their chariots.' ·With all his 7 17:16 warriors Joshua caught them unawares near the Waters of Merom and fell on them. ·Yahweh put them at Israel's mercy and they defeated them and pursued 8 them as far as Sidon the Great, and as far as Misrephoth to the west, [e] and as far as the Vale of Mizpah to the east; they harried them until not one of them was left alive. ·Joshua treated them as Yahweh had told him; he hamstrung their horses 9 and burned their chariots.

The capture of Hazor and of the other northern towns [f]

Joshua then turned back and captured Hazor, putting its king to the sword. Hazor 10 in olden days was the capital of all these kingdoms. ·In compliance with the curse 11 of destruction, they put every living creature there to the sword. Not a living soul was left, and Hazor was burnt to the ground.

All these royal cities and all their kings Joshua put to the sword in compliance 12 with the curse of destruction, as Moses, servant of Yahweh, had ordered.

Yet of all these towns standing on their mounds, Israel burned none, apart from 13
Hazor, burnt by Joshua. ·All the spoils of these towns, including the livestock, the 14 Israelites took as booty for themselves. But they put all the human beings to the sword till they had destroyed them completely; they did not leave a living soul.

The orders of Moses carried out by Joshua

What Yahweh had ordered his servant Moses, Moses in turn had ordered Joshua, 15 and Joshua carried it out, leaving nothing undone of what Yahweh had ordered Moses. ·In consequence, Joshua captured this entire country: the highlands, the 16 whole Negeb and the whole of Goshen, the lowlands, the Arabah, the highlands and lowlands of Israel.

From Mount Halak, which rises towards Seir, to Baal-Gad in the Vale of 17
Lebanon at the foot of Mount Hermon, he captured all their kings, struck them down and put them to death. ·For many a day Joshua made war on all these kings; 18 9:3a no city had made peace with the Israelites except the Hivites who lived at Gibeon; 19
Ex 4:21 all the rest had been captured in battle. ·For Yahweh had decided to harden the 20 hearts of these men, so that they would engage Israel in battle and thus come under the curse of destruction and so receive no quarter but be exterminated, as Yahweh had ordered Moses. [g]

15:13–14 Dt 1:28g Jg 1:10–15+ Extermination of the Anakim [h]

Joshua then went and wiped out the Anakim of the highlands, of Hebron, of 21 Debir, of Anab, of all the highlands of Judah and of all the highlands of Israel; he delivered them and their towns over to the curse of destruction. ·No Anakim were 22 left in the territory of the Israelites, except at Gaza, Gath and Ashdod.

23 Joshua captured the entire country, just as Yahweh had told Moses, and he gave it as heritage to Israel, to be shared out between their tribes.
And the country had rest from warfare. Jg 3:11+

I: RECAPITULATION[a]

The kings conquered east of the Jordan

1 12 The kings of the country, whom the Israelites conquered and whose territory they took, on the further, eastern side of the Jordan, from the Wadi Dt 2:26–3:17
Arnon to Mount Hermon, with the entire Arabah to the east, were as follows:
2 Sihon king of the Amorites, who lived at Heshbon, ruled from Aroer which is on Dt 2:36 the edge of the Arnon Valley, including the bottom of the valley, half Gilead and 3 as far as the Jabbok, the river forming the frontier with the Ammonites; ·the eastern Arabah up to the Sea of Chinneroth, and as far as the Sea of the Arabah, or Salt Sea, on the eastern side, in the direction of Beth-Jeshimoth, and, in the south, the watered foothills of Mount Pisgah.
4 Og[b] king of Bashan, one of the last of the Rephaim, who lived at Ashtaroth and Dt 1:28g
5 Edrei, ·ruled over Mount Hermon and Salecah, the whole of Bashan to the frontier of the Geshurites and Maacathites, and half Gilead to the frontier of Sihon king of Nb 21:21–35 Heshbon.
6 Moses, servant of Yahweh, and the Israelites conquered these, and Moses, servant of Yahweh, conferred their territory on the Reubenites, the Gadites and Nb 32
the half-tribe of Manasseh.

The kings conquered west of the Jordan[c]

7 The kings of the country whom Joshua and the Israelites conquered on the nearer, western side of the Jordan, from Baal-Gad in the Vale of Lebanon to Mount Halak rising towards Seir, and whose heritage Joshua distributed to the tribes of Israel, dividing it up between them, were as follows:
8 In the highlands and the lowlands, in the Arabah and in the watered foothills, in the desert and in the Negeb, belonging to the Hittites, the Amorites, the Canaan- Dt 7:1a ites, the Perizzites, the Hivites and the Jebusites:

9	the king of Jericho,	one;
	the king of Ai near Bethel,	one;
10	the king of Jerusalem,	one;
	the king of Hebron,	one;
11	the king of Jarmuth,	one;
	the king of Lachish,	one;
12	the king of Eglon,	one;

11 a. Ch. 11, relating the conquest of the north, is constructed in an exactly similar way to ch. 10, round a historical nucleus, which in this case is the victory at the Waters of Merom.

b. To the south west of Lake Huleh, see 1 K 9:15; 2 K 15:29; Jr 49:28seq. Excavations of the mound of Hazor, the largest in all Palestine, see v. 10, confirm that this very large town was completely destroyed by fire at the end of the Late Bronze Age, to which the Israelite invasion is generally dated. This Jabin of Hazor has been inopportunely introduced into the narrative of Jg 4.

c. 'Merom' Gk; 'Madon' Hebr.

d. i.e., the source of Merom's water-supply, probably to be located at Tell el-Khureibah, 9 miles (15 km) to the west of Hazor on a plateau where chariots could manoeuvre. • The explanation of the Israelite victory, despite the Canaanites' military superiority (see 17:16—the Israelites had no chariotry before the reign of Solomon, 1 K 9:19; 10:26seq.), is perhaps to be sought in vv. 6–7,9, where what is represented as the result of the victory should probably be regarded as its cause.

e. 'to the west' miyyam conj.; Hebr. mayim waters.

f. This is an incident in the settlement of the northern tribes, who had a history different from that of the House of Joseph.

g. see Dt 7:2seq. and 20:16–18 where reasons for this massacre are given: the conquest is a holy war, the land of Yahweh must be purified of its gentile inhabitants, Israel is holy and therefore a people apart, Dt 7:6b, it must use no half-measures or its faith will be compromised. This did not in fact happen; see notes on Jos 10 and Jg 1. The reason for failure (the sins of Israel) and why God allowed it (to test his people) are explained in Jg 2:11–3:4 (see Jg 2:11h).

h. On the Anakim, see Dt 1:28g. This editorial note does not square with the conquest of Hebron by Caleb, 15:13–14; see 10:28seq.

12 a. The whole of ch. 12 is the work of the deuteronomic editor. In vv. 1–6, he uses material given in Dt 2–3; in vv. 7–24, he compiles a list of conquered kings, based on the conquest narratives of Jos 1–10, adding a few other names of towns taken from an administrative list, possibly from the time of Solomon.

b. 'Og' Gk; 'The territory of Og' Hebr.

c. The divergences in the Gk of vv. 18,19,20 and 23 are probably only the result of a misunderstanding of the Hebr. text, followed here with minor corrections.

II: DISTRIBUTION OF THE COUNTRY AMONG THE TRIBES

Lands remaining unconquered[a]

13 Now Joshua had grown old and advanced in years. Yahweh said to him, 1
'You are now old and advanced in years, yet there is still a great deal of territory left to be taken possession of. ·This is all the territory left: 2
'All the districts of the Philistines[b] and the whole country of the Geshurites; from the Shihor, facing Egypt, to the frontier of Ekron in the north, is reckoned as 3 Jg 3:3 Canaanite territory. The five rulers of the Philistines have their seats at Gaza, Ashdod, Ashkelon, Gath and Ekron, respectively; the Avvites are in ·the south. 4
The entire territory of the Canaanites, and Mearah[c] which belongs to the Sidonians, as far as Aphekah and as far as the frontier of the Amorites; ·and then the 5 country of the Gebalites with the entire Lebanon eastwards from Baal-Gad at the foot of Mount Hermon to the Pass of Hamath.
'All who live in the highlands from the Lebanon to Misrephoth in the west—all 6 23:5 the Sidonians—I myself shall dispossess before the Israelites. All you have to do is to distribute the territory as a heritage for the Israelites as I have ordered you.
The time has come to divide this territory as a heritage between the nine tribes and 7
the half-tribe of Manasseh: from the Jordan as far as the Great Sea in the west, you must give it them; the Great Sea will be their limit.'[d]

Nb 32
Dt 3:12–17

A: DESCRIPTION OF THE TRANSJORDANIAN TRIBES[e]

A general survey

As regards the other half-tribe of Manasseh,[f] this and the Reubenites and Gadites 8 had already received their heritage, given them by Moses on the further, eastern side of the Jordan, the one which Moses, servant of Yahweh, had already given 9 them: ·The country onwards from Aroer on the edge of the Arnon Valley, with the town in the bottom of the valley and the entire tableland from Medeba to 10 Dibon; ·all the towns of Sihon king of the Amorites, who had reigned in Heshbon, 11 to the frontier of the Ammonites; ·then Gilead and the territory of the Geshurites and Maacathites with the whole Hermon range and the whole of Bashan as far as 12 Salecah; ·and in Bashan, the whole kingdom of Og, who had reigned in Ashtaroth 12:4 and Edrei, and was the last of the survivors of the Rephaim. Moses had conquered 13 and dispossessed these two kings. ·The Israelites did not, however, dispossess either the Geshurites or the Maacathites, hence Geshur and Maacah survive inside Israel even today.

14 To the tribe of Levi alone no heritage was given; Yahweh, God of Israel, was his 13:33 heritage,[g] as he had told him. Nb 18:20
Dt 18:2

The tribe of Reuben

Gn 49:3–4
Dt 33:6

15, 16 Moses had given the tribe of the sons of Reuben a share by clans. ·Thus, their territory was the entire tableland from Aroer on the edge of the Arnon Valley, 17 with the town in the bottom of the valley, as far as Medeba, ·Heshbon with all the 18 towns on the tableland: Dibon, Bamoth-Baal, Beth-Baal-Meon, ·Jahaz, Kede-19 moth, Mephaath, ·Kiriathaim, Sibmah and, in the highlands of the Arabah, 20 Zereth-Shahar; ·Beth-Peor, the watered foothills of Mount Pisgah, Beth-ha-Jeshi-21 moth, ·all the towns on the tableland and the entire kingdom of Sihon king of the Amorites, who had reigned in Heshbon; he had been defeated by Moses, and with him the princes of Midian, Evi, Rekem, Zur, Hur and Reba, vassals of Sihon, Ex 2:11c formerly living in the country. Nb 22:2b;31:8

22 As regards Balaam son of Beor, the soothsayer, the Israelites had put him to the sword with those whom they had killed.

23 The boundary of the Reubenites was the Jordan and its territory.

Such was the heritage of the sons of Reuben, by clans, with the towns and villages belonging to them.

The tribe of Gad

Gn 49:19
Dt 33:20–21

24, 25 Moses had given the tribe of Gad, the sons of Gad, a share by clans. ·Their territory was Jazer, all the towns of Gilead, half the country of the Ammonites as far as 26 Aroer facing Rabbah, ·and from Heshbon to Ramath-Mizpeh and Betonim; from 27 Mahanaim as far as the territory of Lo-Debar, ·and in the valley: Beth-Haram,

d. 'Merom' conj., see 11:1; 'Madon' Hebr.; missing in Gk.

e. 'Galilee' Gk; 'Gilgal' Hebr.

13 a. These places never became part of Israel although included in the ideal plan of the Holy Land (1:4) and in the outline of Nb 34:1–12; to the south, the territory of the Philistines and Geshurites, see 1 S 27:8, and also the Avvites, see Dt 2:23; to the north, the territory of the Sidonians, i.e. Phoenicia. The section 13:1–7 is editorial and introduces the geographical document.

b. According to Dt 2:23; Jr 47:4seq.; Am 9:7, the Philistines came originally from Caphtor, which is more probably Crete than Asia Minor. But, in any case, this had been only a stage in their migration, and their origins remain obscure. They formed part of the great movement of the 'Peoples of the Sea', which was turned back at the very gates of Egypt by Rameses III, at the beginning of the twelfth century BC.

After their defeat, the Philistines settled in the coastal plain of Palestine (which perpetuates their name). Their mention in Gn 21:32–34; 26:1–8 and Ex 13:17 is an anachronism by anticipation. v. 4 lists their five districts, see Jg 3:3; Jl 4:4. They were not Semites and did not practise circumcision. Bitter enemies of the Israelites in the days of the Judges and of Saul, they were driven back by David but remained entrenched along the coast.

c. Text corrupt. One would expect: 'from (such-and-such a place)'. All the proposed emendations are equally tentative.

d. 'from the Jordan . . . limit' Gk; missing in Hebr.

e. The constituent elements of this section come from Nb 32 and Dt 3:12–17, place-names are added but no description is given of the tribal territories, as it later is for the tribes in Canaan. The Israelites themselves were not sure of the topography of these tribes, and Reuben and Gad are generally treated as a unity, 1:12; Nb 32:1seq.; Dt 3:12. It was not long before the two tribes shrank under pressure from Ammonite and Moabite expansion, see for Reuben Gn 49:3–4; Dt 33:6, and for Gad Gn 49:19. The origins of the half-tribe of Manasseh are obscure; it seems that its settlement in northern Gilead did not date from this first period, see Nb 32:1a.

f. 'As regards the other half-tribe of Manasseh', restored from Gk.

g. 'Yahweh was' Gk; 'the burnt offerings for Yahweh were' Hebr.

Beth-Nimrah, Succoth, and Zaphon—the rest of the kingdom of Sihon king of Heshbon—the Jordan and the territory running to the tip of the Sea of Chinneroth, on the further, eastern side of the Jordan.

Such was the heritage of the sons of Gad, by clans, with their towns and villages belonging to them. 28

The half-tribe of Manasseh

Moses had given the half-tribe of Manasseh[h] a share by clans. ·Their territory, 29, 30 starting from Mahanaim, was the whole of Bashan, the entire kingdom of Og king of Bashan, all the Encampments of Jair in Bashan: sixty towns. ·Half of Gilead, 31 with Ashtaroth, and Edrei, the royal cities of Og in Bashan, were allotted to the sons of Machir son of Manasseh, to half of the sons of Machir, by clans.

This was what Moses had conferred in heritage on the Plains of Moab on the 32 further, eastern side of the Jordan opposite Jericho. ·To the tribe of Levi, however, 33 13:14 Moses gave no heritage; Yahweh, God of Israel, was his heritage, as he told him.

B: DESCRIPTION OF THE THREE LARGE TRIBES TO THE WEST OF THE JORDAN[a]

Introduction

14 This was what the Israelites received as their heritage in Canaan, which was 1 given them as their heritage by the priest, Eleazar, and by Joshua son of Nun, with the heads of families of the tribes of Israel. ·They received their heritage 2 by lot, as Yahweh had ordered through Moses, as regards the nine tribes and the half-tribe. ·For Moses himself had given the two-and-a-half tribes their heritage on 3
the further side of the Jordan, although to the Levites he had given no heritage with them. ·Since the sons of Joseph formed two tribes, Manasseh and Ephraim, 4 21 no share in the country was given to the Levites, apart from some towns to live in,
Nb 35:1–8 with their pasture lands for their livestock and their possessions. ·The Israelites did 5
Nb 34 as Yahweh had ordered Moses, and shared out the country.

Caleb's share[b]

Some sons of Judah came to Joshua at Gilgal, and Caleb son of Jephunneh the 6
Nb 13–14 Kenizzite said to him, 'You know what Yahweh said to Moses, man of God, at Kadesh-Barnea concerning you and me. ·I was forty years old when Moses, servant 7 of Yahweh, sent me from Kadesh-Barnea to reconnoitre this country, and I made him a completely honest report. ·The brothers, however, who had gone up with 8 me discouraged the people, whereas I myself scrupulously obeyed Yahweh my God. ·That day Moses swore this oath, "Be sure of this, that the country your 9 foot has trodden will be a heritage for you and your children for ever, since you have scrupulously obeyed Yahweh my God." ·From then till now, Yahweh has 10
Nb 14:38 kept me alive in observance of his promise. It is forty-five years since Yahweh said this to Moses—Israel was then going through the desert—and now I am eighty-five Si 46:9–10 years old. ·Today I am still as strong as the day when Moses sent me out on that 11
Nb 14:24 errand; for fighting, for going and coming, I am as strong now as then. ·It is time 12 you gave me the highlands, of which Yahweh spoke to me that day. You heard that Dt 1:28g day that there were Anakim and large, fortified towns there; but if Yahweh is with me, I shall drive them out, as Yahweh has said.'

15:13–19 Joshua blessed Caleb son of Jephunneh and gave him Hebron as heritage. 13
Jg 1:10–15 And hence Hebron down to the present day has remained the heritage of Caleb 14 son of Jephunneh the Kenizzite, since he had scrupulously obeyed Yahweh, God of Israel. ·Hebron in olden days was called Kiriath-Arba.[c] Arba had been the 15 15:14 greatest of the Anakim.
11:24 And the country had rest from warfare.

The tribe of Judah [a]

Gn 49:8–12
Dt 33:7

15 The portion falling to the tribe of the sons of Judah, by clans, was near the frontier of Edom, from the desert of Zin southwards to Kadesh in the Nb 34:3–5 south. [b] ·Their southern frontier began at the tip of the Salt Sea, at the southerly bay; ·it proceeded south of the Ascent of Scorpions, crossed Zin and came up to Jg 1:36+ Kadesh-Barnea from the south; past Hezron, it went on to Addar and turned towards Karka; ·the frontier then went on to Azmon, came out at the Torrent of Egypt and reached as far as the sea. This is to be your southern frontier.

The eastern frontier was the Salt Sea as far as the mouth of the Jordan.

The northern boundary began at the bay at the mouth of the Jordan. The boundary went up to Beth-Hoglah, passed north of Beth-ha-Arabah and went on to the Stone of Bohan son of Reuben. ·The boundary then went on to Debir from the Vale of Achor and turned north towards the stone circle opposite the Ascent of Adummim, which is south of the Torrent; the boundary went on to the Waters of En-Shemesh and came out at En-Rogel. ·It then went back up the Valley of Hinnom, coming from the south to the flank of the Jebusite [c]—that is, Jerusalem—and climbed to the crest of the mountain barring the Valley of Hinnom to the west, at the northern end of the Valley of the Rephaim. ·From the mountain top, the boundary curved round to the spring of the Waters of Nephtoah, went on to the towns of Mount Ephron and then turned towards Baalah—that is, Kiriath-Jearim.
From Baalah, the boundary curved westwards to the highlands of Seir, skirted the northern slope of Mount Jearim—that is, Chesalon—went down to Beth-Shemesh and through Timnah, ·came out on the northern flank of Ekron, turned towards Shikkeron and, passing through the highlands of Baalah, came out at Jabneel, and reached as far as the sea.

The western boundary was the Great Sea itself. Such was the frontier surrounding the sons of Judah, by clans.

The Calebites occupy the territory of Hebron [d]

14:6b
‖Jg 1:10–15

Caleb son of Jephunneh was given a share within that of the sons of Judah, in accordance with Yahweh's order to Joshua: Kiriath-Arba, the town of the father of Anak—that is, Hebron. ·Caleb drove out the three sons of Anak: Sheshai, Ahiman and Talmai, descended from Anak. ·From there he marched on the inhabitants of Debir; Debir in olden days was called Kiriath-Sepher. ·Caleb then said, 'To the man who attacks and takes Kiriath-Sepher, I shall give my daughter Achsah as wife.' ·The man who captured it was Othniel son of Kenaz, brother of Caleb, who gave him his daughter Achsah as wife. ·When she arrived, he urged her [e] to ask her father for arable land, but when she alighted from the donkey and

h. After 'Manasseh', a gloss adds: 'and this was for the half-tribe of the sons of Manasseh'; missing in Gk.

14 a. The long section 14:1–19:49 combines several documents: a pre-monarchical description of tribal boundaries and also lists of towns, especially detailed in the cases of Judah (Simeon) and Benjamin, which reflect the situation in the days of the monarchy. These documents, combined and glossed (see particularly 15:13–19; 16:10; 17:11–13, which are texts parallel to Jg 1) have been used to give a picture of the occupation under Joshua. In point of fact, the different groups established themselves in their respective territories either by peaceful infiltration or by conquest, only gradually gaining absolute possession.

b. Caleb was a Kenizzite, vv. 6 and 14, therefore not an Israelite, see Nb 24:21k. His clan, originally coming from southern Palestine, was related to the Edomites, see Gn 36:11; it became associated with Israel and in particular with Judah when the Israelites halted temporarily at Kadesh, Nb 13–14. It occupied the Hebron district, here and 15:13–19; Jg 1:10–16, near which lies the 'Negeb of Caleb', 1 S 30:14. The Calebites were eventually assimilated to Judah, see the genealogies in 15:13d and in 1 Ch 2:18seq., 42seq.; 4:11seq.

c. Kiriath-Arba, see Gn 23:2; 35:27; Jg 1:10, means 'town of the four': either referring to the four quarters of the town, or to the four clans living in it, Anak, eponymous ancestor of the Anakim, and his three sons, see 15:14; Dt 2:10. Here, Arba has become a personal name.

15 a. The southern and eastern limits of Judah are in fact those of Canaan itself; the northern frontier, plotted in most detail, was the frontier of Judah in the time of David. It takes into account the peculiar situation of Jerusalem and the permanent enclaves of Canaanites. Its prolongation to the sea is theoretical.

b. 'from the desert' Gk; 'the desert' Hebr. • 'to Kadesh in the south' Gk; 'to the southern tip' Hebr.

c. The 'flank' or 'shoulder' of the Jebusite, see 18:16, is the slope of the hill on which ancient Jerusalem stood, see 2 S 5:9seq.

d. vv. 13–19 recur almost identically in Jg 1:10–15 where, however, the capture of Hebron is attributed to Judah. Othniel, v. 17, will reappear as one of the 'Judges' of Israel, Jg 3:7–11.

e. 'he urged her' conj., see Jg 1:14; 'she urged him' Hebr.

Caleb asked her, 'What is the matter?' ·she said to him, 'Grant me a blessing! As 19 the land you have given me is the Negeb, give me springs of water too!' So Caleb gave her what she wanted, the upper springs and the lower springs.
Such was the heritage of the tribe of the sons of Judah, by clans. 20

Names of places owned by Judah [f]

Towns at the extremity of the tribe of the sons of Judah, near the frontier of Edom 21 in the Negeb:
Kabzeel, Arad, Jagur, ·Kinah, Dimon, Aroer, ·Kedesh, Hazor-Ithnan, ·Ziph, 22, 23, 24

and Timnah: ten towns with their villages.
Halhul, Beth-Zur, Gedor, ·Maarath, Beth-Anoth and Eltekon: six towns with 58, 59
their villages.
Tekoa, Ephrathah, now Bethlehem, Peor, Etam, Kulon, Tatam, Sores, Carem, Gallim, Bether and Manach: eleven towns with their villages. [j]
Kiriath-Baal, that is Kiriath-Jearim, and Rabbah: two towns with their villages. 60
In the desert: 61
Beth-Arabah, Middin, Secacah, ·Nibshan, Salt Town and En-Gedi: six towns 62 with their villages.
The Jebusites, however, who lived in Jerusalem, the sons of Judah were unable 63 to dispossess, and the Jebusites still live in Jerusalem today, side by side with the Jg 1:8,21 2 S 5:6–9,9f sons of Judah.

The tribe of Ephraim

Gn 49:22–26 Dt 33:13–17 16 The portion of the sons of Joseph started on the east at the Jordan opposite 1 Jericho (the Waters of Jericho) through the desert rising from Jericho into the highlands of Bethel; [a] ·from Bethel it went to Luz, and on towards the frontier 2 of the Archites at Ataroth; ·then passed downwards and westwards to the frontier 3 of the Japhletites as far as the border of Lower Beth-Horon and on to Gezer, and reached as far as the sea.
Such was the heritage of the sons of Joseph, Manasseh and Ephraim. 4
As regards the territory of the sons of Ephraim, by clans, the frontier of their 5 heritage ran from Ataroth-Arach [b] to Upper Beth-Horon; ·the frontier then 6 reached as far as the sea . . . the Michmethath[c] in the north, and the frontier 7 turned east to Tanaath-Shiloh which it crossed in an easterly direction to Janoah;

it ran down to Ataroth and Naarah, touched Jericho and ended at the Jordan.
8 From Tappuah, the frontier ran westwards to the Torrent of Kanah and reached as far as the sea.
9 Such was the heritage of the tribe of the sons of Ephraim, by clans, •apart from the towns reserved for the sons of Ephraim inside the heritage of the sons of 17:9 10 Manasseh, all these towns and their villages. •The Canaanites living in Gezer were Jg 1:29*f* not driven out; they have remained in Ephraim to the present day but are obliged to do forced labour.

The tribe of Manasseh[a] Gn 49:22–26
Dt 33:13–17

1 17 The portion of the tribe of Manasseh, who was in fact Joseph's first-born—went to Machir, Manasseh's first-born, father of Gilead, for he was a 2 warrior; he had Gilead and Bashan. •The other sons of Manasseh had theirs, by clans: for the sons of Abiezer, for the sons of Helek, for the sons of Asriel, for the sons of Shechem, for the sons of Hepher, and for the sons of Shemida: these were 3 the male children of Manasseh son of Joseph, by clans. •Zelophehad son of Nb 27:1–11 Hepher, son of Gilead, son of Machir, son of Manasseh, had no sons but only daughters, whose names were these: Mahlah, Noah, Hoglah, Milcah and Tirzah.[b] 4 These approached the priest Eleazar, Joshua son of Nun and the leaders, and said, 'Yahweh ordered Moses to give us a heritage among our brothers.' In compliance with Yahweh's order, therefore, they were given a heritage among 5 their father's brothers. •In this way ten portions fell to Manasseh, apart from 6 Gilead and Bashan lying on the further side of the Jordan, •since Manasseh's daughters received a heritage as well as his sons. Gilead itself belonged to Manasseh's other sons.
7 On the side of Asher, the frontier of Manasseh was the Michmethath, which is opposite Shechem, and thence continued to the right to Jashib, which is at the 8 spring[c] of Tappuah. •The territory of Tappuah belonged to Manasseh, but Tap-9 puah on Manasseh's border belonged to the sons of Ephraim. •The boundary went down to the Torrent of Kanah; south of the Torrent were the towns of Ephraim, excluding those owned by Ephraim[d] among the towns of Manasseh; the boundary of Manasseh was north of the Torrent and reached as far as the sea.
10 The south belonged to Ephraim and the north to Manasseh and reached as far as 11 the sea; they touched Asher to the north and Issachar to the east. •With Issachar and Asher, Manasseh shared Beth-Shean and its dependent towns, Ibleam and its Jg 1:27–28

f. The text is not very well preserved. Some of the names of towns have been emended in the light of the Gk or of other biblical texts, and of modern place-names.

g. 'and its dependencies' benoteha conj.; bitzyotyah Hebr., unintelligible.

h. The last name is doubtful and the total number of towns comes to fifteen. Some propose to emend, following Gk, to read: 'Gederah and its enclosures', but the entire list in Gk is rather different. Hebr. might be explained as understanding dependence on some town (perhaps Tappua), or possibly the two last names were alternatives for the same place.

i. In fact, Ekron remained a Philistine town probably until the time of David, and from Ahaz (736–716) until the Persian period. see Am 1:8; Zc 9:5–7.

j. From 'Tekoa' to the end of the v. is restored from the Gk, missing from Hebr.

16 a. Text corrupt, translation approximate.

b. 'Ataroth-Arach', i.e. Ataroth of the Archites, conj. following Gk and v. 2; 'Ataroth-Addar' Hebr.; as also in 18:13.

c. The 'Michmethath' seems to have been a topographical feature, possibly a very narrow defile, or the rift of the Wadi Beidan, not far from Nablus-Shechem. see 17:7. Before 'Michmethath', some words have dropped out of the text.

17 a. The half-tribe of Manasseh (for the other half-tribe, see 13:29seq.) which settled west of the Jordan, suffered from the expansion of Ephraim, see 16:9; 17:8–9. The shift in balance is reflected in the story of Ephraim's being given the place of his elder brother, Manasseh, Gn 48:14seq.

b. The names of Zelophehad's daughters, the great-granddaughters of Machir son of Manasseh, are those of places situated north of Shechem. This location for a part of the clan of Machir is supported by a story attributed in Nb 27 and 36 to the time of Moses, laying down inheritance rights for daughters.

c. 'Jashib, which is on the spring' Gk; 'the inhabitants (yoshebe) of the spring' Hebr.

d. 'excluding those owned by Ephraim' added in the light of 16:9 for the sake of the sense.

dependent towns, the inhabitants of Dor and of its dependent towns, [e] the inhabitants of Taanach and Megiddo and of their dependent towns: the Three of the Slopes. 12 But because the sons of Manasseh could not take possession of these 1 K 9:20–21 towns, the Canaanites managed to live on in that territory. 13 When, however, the 9:27 Israelites became stronger, they subjected the Canaanites to forced labour, though they never dispossessed them.

Land reclamation by the sons of Joseph [f]

14 The sons of Joseph spoke as follows to Joshua, 'Why have you given me only one share, only one portion, as heritage, when I am a numerous people, since Yahweh has so blessed me?' 15 Joshua replied, 'If your people are so many, go up to the wooded area and clear space for yourselves in the area belonging to the Perizzites and Rephaim, since the highlands of Ephraim are too small for you.' 16 The sons of Jg 1:19 Joseph replied, 'The highlands are not enough for us, and what is more, all the Canaanites living on the land of the plain have iron chariots, so do those in Beth-Shean and its dependent towns, and those in the plain of Jezreel.' 17 Joshua said to the House of Joseph, to Ephraim and to Manasseh, 'You are a numerous people and your strength is great; you will not only have one share, 18 but a mountain will be yours as well; even if it is a forest, you can clear it and its territories will be yours. And you will dispossess the Canaanites, although they have iron chariots and although they are strong.'

C: DESCRIPTION OF THE SEVEN OTHER TRIBES

The land survey for these seven tribes

Ex 33:7e 18 1 The whole community of the Israelites assembled at Shiloh, [g] and the Tent of Meeting was set up there; the whole country had been subdued for them.
2 But among the Israelites there were still seven tribes left who had not received their heritage. 3 Joshua then said to the Israelites, 'How much more time are you going to waste before you go and take possession of the country which Yahweh, God of your ancestors, has given to you? 4 Choose three men from each tribe for me to send all over the country so that they can make a survey with a view to their inheritances and then come back to me. 5 They will divide the country into seven portions. Judah will remain in his territory in the south, and those of the House of Joseph will remain in their territory in the north. 6 You must survey the country in seven sections and bring your findings to me here, so that I can cast lots for you here, in the presence of Yahweh our God. 7 The Levites, however, will have no portion with the rest of you; the priesthood of Yahweh will be their heritage. As regards Gad and Reuben and the half-tribe of Manasseh, they have received their heritage on the further, eastern side of the Jordan, the one given them by Moses, servant of Yahweh.'

8 The men stood up and set off. To those who were to survey the country Joshua gave this order, 'Start out, then, go all over the country, survey it, and then come back to me; and I shall cast lots for you here, in the presence of Yahweh, at Shiloh.' 9 The men left, went all over the country and surveyed it by towns, in seven sections, writing down their findings in a book, and then went back to Joshua in the camp at Shiloh.

10 Joshua cast lots for them in Yahweh's presence at Shiloh, and there Joshua divided the country between the Israelites, share by share.

Dt 33:12 The tribe of Benjamin

11 A portion fell first to the tribe of the sons of Benjamin, by clans: the territory of their portion lay between the sons of Judah and the sons of Joseph. 12 Their northern frontier began at the Jordan, went up the flank of Jericho to the north, climbed westwards through the highlands and came out at the desert of Beth-Aven.

13 Thence, the frontier went on to Luz, on the southern flank of Luz—now Bethel—and then down to Ataroth-Arach, on the mountain south of Lower Beth-Horon.
14 At this westerly point, the frontier curved round and turned south, from the mountain facing Beth-Horon from the south and came out at Kiriath-Baal, now Kiriath-Jearim, a town of the sons of Judah. That was the western side.
15 This was the south side: from the tip of Kiriath-Jearim, the frontier went to 16 Gasin[b] and came out near the spring of the Waters of Nephtoah, ·it then went down to the edge of the mountain facing the Valley of Hinnom, in the Valley of the 15:8c Rephaim to the north; it then went down into the Valley of Hinnom, past the 17a southerly flank of the Jebusite, and went down to En-Rogel. ·It then curved northwards, coming out at En-Shemesh, and came out at the stone circle opposite 17b the Ascent of Adummim, ·then went down to the Stone of Bohan son of Reuben.
18 It then went on to Cheteph on the flank of Beth-ha-Arabah[c] northwards, and 19 went down into the Arabah; ·the frontier then passed round the northern flank of Beth-Hoglah, and the frontier came out at the northern bay of the Salt Sea, at the 20 southern end of the Jordan. Such was the southern frontier. ·The Jordan itself formed the frontier on the east.

Such was the heritage of the sons of Benjamin as defined by their frontier, by clans.

The towns of Benjamin

21 The towns of the tribe of the sons of Benjamin, by clans, were:
22, 23 Jericho, Beth-Hoglah, Emek-Keziz; ·Beth-Arabah, Zemaraim, Bethel; Avvim, 24 Parah, Ophrah; ·Chephar-Ammoni, Ophni, Geba: twelve towns and their villages.
25–27 Gibeon, Ramah, Beeroth; ·Mizpeh, Chephirah, Mozah; ·Rekem, Irpeel, Tara-28 lah; ·Zela-ha-Eleph, the Jebusite—that is, Jerusalem—Gibeah and Kiriath: fourteen towns with their villages.

Such was the heritage of the sons of Benjamin, by clans.

The tribe of Simeon[a]

Gn 49:5–7
1 Ch 4:28–33

1 19 The second lot to come out was for Simeon, for the tribe of the sons of Simeon, by clans; their heritage was within the heritage of the sons of 2 Judah. ·As heritage, they received:
3, 4 Beersheba, Shema, Moladah, ·Hazar-Shual, Balah, Ezem, Eltolad, Bethul, 5, 6 Hormah, ·Ziklag, Beth-ha-Marcaboth, Hazar-Susa, ·Beth-Lebaoth and Sharuhen: thirteen towns and their villages.
7, 8 Ain, Rimmon,[b] Ether and Ashan: four towns and their villages, ·with all the villages situated near these towns as far as Baalath-Beer and Ramah of the Negeb.
9 Such was the heritage of the tribe of the sons of Simeon, by clans. ·The heritage of the sons of Simeon was taken out of the portion of the sons of Judah, because the share of the sons of Judah was too large for them; hence, the sons of Simeon received their heritage within the heritage of the sons of Judah.

e. Hebr. adds: 'the inhabitants of En-Dor and of its dependent towns'; probably a dittography, missing in Gk.

f. This passage juxtaposes two versions of the same tradition; the more ancient is that of vv. 16–18, which recalls how the House of Joseph cleared and reclaimed the afforested highlands of Ephraim; the second, vv. 14–15, possibly alludes to the settlement in Gilead of part of the tribe of Manasseh. see Nb 32:1a.

18 a. The distribution of territories to the seven remaining tribes is set in an editorial frame, 18:1–10 and 19:51, which sites this event at Shiloh where, we are given to understand, the Tent of Meeting had been set up; Shiloh later became one of the principal sanctuaries of Israel. see 21:2; 22:9.12, and was the sanctuary of the ark in the time of the Judges, 1 S 1:3d.

b. 'Gasin' Gk; 'to the west' Hebr., makes no sense. see 15:9.

c. 'Beth-ha-Arabah' Gk; 'opposite the Arabah' Hebr.

19 a. The once powerful tribe of Simeon, Gn 34:25seq.; 49:5, is not even mentioned in the later blessings of Dt 33. The tribe had been absorbed by Judah, which explains why there is no description of its territory here. Furthermore, the list of Simeonite towns, here and in 1 Ch 4:28–33, parallels the second part of the list of villages of Judah in the Negeb, Jos 15:26b–32.

b. Some propose that En-Rimmon be read, here (following part of the Gk) and at 15:32; 1 Ch 4:32, see also Ne 11:29. But here and in the text of 1 Ch, this emendation gives a false total of towns.

Gn 49:13 Dt 33:18–19 Jg 1:30

The tribe of Zebulun

The third lot fell to the sons of Zebulun, by clans; the territory of their heritage 10 stretched as far as Sadud; [c] ·their frontier climbed westwards to Maraalah, touching 11 Dabbesheth and the torrent facing Jokneam. ·From Sadud, the frontier turned 12 east, towards the rising sun, as far as the frontier of Chisloth-Tabor; it came out at Dobrath and went up to Japhia. ·Thence, it went east, towards the sunrise, to 13
Gath-Hepher and Ittah-Kazin, came out at Rimmon and turned towards Neah. [d]
The northern frontier turned towards Hannathon and came to an end in the 14 Valley of Iphtah-El; ·with Kattath, Nahalal, Shimron, Iralah and Bethlehem: [e] 15 twelve towns with their villages.

Such was the heritage of the sons of Zebulun, by clans: these towns with their 16 villages.

Gn 49:14–15 Dt 33:18–19

The tribe of Issachar

The fourth lot came out for Issachar, for the sons of Issachar, by clans. ·Their 17, 18 territory stretched towards Jezreel and included Chesulloth, Shunem, Hapharaim, Shion, Anaharath, ·Dobrath, [f] Kishion, Ebez, ·Remeth, En-Gannim, 19–21
En-Haddah and Beth-Pazzez. ·Their frontier touched Tabor, Shahazimah and 22 Beth-Shemesh, and the frontier came to an end at the Jordan: sixteen towns with their villages.

Such was the heritage of the tribe of the sons of Issachar, by clans: the towns and 23
their villages.

Gn 49:20 Dt 33:24–25 Jg 1:31–32

The tribe of Asher

The fifth lot came out for the tribe of the sons of Asher, by clans. ·Their territory 24, 25 included Helkath, Hali, Beten, Achshaph, ·Alammelech, Amad and Mishal. 26
On the west, it touched Carmel and the course of the Libnath. On the side of the 27 rising sun, it went as far as Beth-Dagon, touched Zebulun, the Valley of Iphtah-El on the north side, Beth-ha-Emek and Neiel, coming out with Cabul on the left, with Abdon, [g] Rehob, Hammon and Kanah as far as Sidon the Great. The frontier 28 then turned towards Ramah, as far as the fortress-town of Tyre; ·the frontier then 29 went to Hosah and reached as far as the sea at Mahalab and Achzib, [h] with Acco, [i] Aphek and Rehob: twenty-two towns with their villages. 30

Such was the heritage of the tribe of the sons of Asher, by clans; these towns and 31
their villages.

Gn 49:21 Dt 33:23 Jg 1:33

The tribe of Naphtali

To the sons of Naphtali fell the sixth portion, to the sons of Naphtali, by clans. 32
Their frontier went from Heleph and the Oak of Zanaannim, with Adami-ha- 33
Negeb and Jabneel, as far as Lakkum, and ended at the Jordan. ·The westward 34 boundary ran to Aznoth-Tabor and thence came out at Hukkok, marching with Zebulun in the south, Asher in the west and the Jordan in the east. [j] ·The fortified 35 towns were Ziddim, Zer, Hammath, Rakkath, Chinnereth, ·Adamah, Ramah, 36
Hazor, ·Kedesh, Edrei, En-Hazor, ·Jiron, Migdal-El, Horem, Beth-Anath and 37, 38
Beth-Shemesh: nineteen towns and their villages.

Such was the heritage of the sons of Naphtali, by clans: the towns and their 39 villages.

Gn 49:16–17 Dt 33:22

The tribe of Dan [k]

To the tribe of the sons of Dan, by clans, fell the seventh portion. ·The territory 40, 41 of their heritage comprised: Zorah, Eshtaol, Ir-Shemesh, ·Shaalbim, Aijalon, 42
Silatha, [l] ·Elon, Timnah, Ekron, ·Eltekeh, Gibbethon, ·Baalath, Azor, [m] Bene- 43–45
Berak and Gath-Rimmon; ·and, by the sea, Jerakon [n] with the territory facing 46 Jaffa.

Jg 1:34–35:18 The territory of the sons of Dan eluded them, however, and the sons of Dan 47

consequently went up and attacked Leshem, captured it and put it to the sword. Having gained possession of it, they settled there and called Leshem, Dan, after Dan their ancestor.

48 Such was the heritage of the tribe of the sons of Dan, by clans: these towns and their villages.

49 Having finished dividing the country, frontier by frontier, the Israelites gave 50 Joshua son of Nun a heritage among themselves; •at Yahweh's command, they gave him the town which he had asked for, Timnath-Serah in the highlands of Ephraim; he rebuilt the town and settled there. o 24:30 Jg 2:9

51 Such are the heritages which the priest Eleazar, Joshua son of Nun, and the heads of each family apportioned by lot between the tribes of Israel at Shiloh, in Yahweh's presence, at the door of the Tent of Meeting; and thus the apportioning of the country was completed.

D: PRIVILEGED TOWNS

The cities of refuge a

Ex 21:13e Nb 35:9–34 Dt 19:1–13

1, 2 20 Yahweh said to Joshua, •'Speak to the Israelites and say to them, "Choose
3 yourselves the cities of refuge of which I spoke to you through Moses, •to which anyone who has accidentally (unintentionally) killed someone else may flee,
4 and which will serve you as refuge from the avenger of blood. •(The killer must flee to one of these towns. He will stop at the entrance to the town gate and explain his case to the town elders. These will admit him to their town and assign him a
5 place to live among them. •If the avenger of blood pursues him, they must not hand the killer over to him, since he has killed his fellow unintentionally and was not
6 motivated by long-standing hatred for him. •He must stay in this town) until he is brought to trial before the community (until the death of the high priest then in office. Only then may the killer go back to his own town and to his own house in the town from which he has fled)." ' Nb 35:19c

7 For this purpose they designated Kedesh in Galilee, in the highlands of Naphtali, Shechem in the highlands of Ephraim, and Kiriath-Arba—now Hebron—in the 8 highlands of Judah. •On the other, eastern, side of the Jordan opposite Jericho, in the desert of the tableland, they chose Bezer of the tribe of Reuben, Ramoth in Dt 4:43 9 Gilead of the tribe of Gad, and Golan in Bashan of the tribe of Manasseh. •Such were the towns designated for all the Israelites and for foreigners living among them, so that anyone who had accidentally killed someone could flee there and might escape the hand of the avenger of blood, until brought to trial before the community.

k. The towns attributed to the tribe of Dan are situated to the west of the territory of Benjamin, between Ephraim and Judah, and for the most part in Canaanite territory. The Danites were not in fact able to settle in this territory; they were expelled by Amorite pressure, according to Jg 1:34–35, and later by the Philistines: see Jg 13–16. Their migration to the north, recalled here, v. 47, is related in Jg 18.

o. The distribution of the territory ends with an editorial note on the share awarded personally to Joshua; the note is based on the information about his tomb. 24:30= Jg 2:9.

20 a. Ch. 20–21 complement the account of the territorial distribution. Ch. 20 is presented as the application of the law of asylum of Ex 21:13e. The figure of six towns, though without their names, had already been given in Nb 35:9seq. Dt 4:41–43 designated the three Transjordanian cities of refuge by name. Dt 19 ordains that three other towns shall be chosen, once Canaan has been conquered. This is what is done here, where the six towns are named. In fact, however, the institution of cities of refuge was probably not earlier than the reign of Solomon. The passages in brackets, missing from Gk, are sometimes taken word for word from Nb 35 and Dt 19.

Nb 35:1–8

The levitical cities [a]

21 The heads of families of the Levites then came to the priest, Eleazar, Joshua 1 son of Nun and the heads of families of the tribes of Israel—·they were then 2 at Shiloh in Canaan. They said to them, 'Through Moses, Yahweh ordered us to be given towns to live in, with their pasture lands for our livestock.' ·In compliance 3 with Yahweh's order, the Israelites consequently and from their own heritage gave the Levites the following towns with their pasture lands:

Lots were cast for the clans of the Kohathites: to those Levites who were sons of 4
Aaron the priest, fell thirteen towns from the tribes of Judah, Simeon and Benjamin; ·to the other sons of Kohath, by clans, [b] ·fell ten towns from the tribes of 5, 6 Ephraim, Dan, and the half-tribe of Manasseh. To the sons of Gershon, by clans, fell thirteen towns from the tribes of Issachar, Asher, Naphtali and the half-tribe of Manasseh in Bashan. ·To the sons of Merari, by clans, fell twelve towns from 7
the tribes of Reuben, Gad and Zebulun.

The Israelites assigned these towns and their pasture lands to the Levites by lot, 8 as Yahweh had ordered through Moses.

The portion of the Kohathites

From the tribe of Judah and the tribe of Simeon, they gave the towns named 9 below. [c] ·The first portion was for the sons of Aaron, belonging to the clans of the 10
Kohathites, to the sons of Levi, since the first lot was theirs. ·They gave them 11
Kiriath-Arba, Anak's father's town—now Hebron—in the highlands of Judah, with its surrounding pasture lands. ·The fields and villages of this town, however, 12 14:13–14 they gave to Caleb son of Jephunneh as his property. ·To the sons of Aaron the 13 priest they gave Hebron, a city of refuge for those who had killed, with its pasture lands, as well as Libnah with its pasture lands, ·Jattir with its pasture lands, 14 Eshtemoa with its pasture lands, ·Holon with its pasture lands, Debir with its 15 pasture lands, ·Ashan [d] with its pasture lands, Juttah with its pasture lands, and 16 Beth-Shemesh with its pasture lands: nine towns taken from these two tribes; and, from the tribe of Benjamin, Gibeon with its pasture lands, Geba with its 17 pasture lands, ·Anathoth with its pasture lands and Almon with its pasture lands: 18 four towns.

Total number of towns for the priests, the sons of Aaron: thirteen towns with 19 their pasture lands.

As regards the clans of the sons of Kohath, those Levites still left of the sons of 20
Kohath, the towns of their lot were taken from the tribe of Ephraim. ·They were 21 given Shechem, a city of refuge for those who had killed, with its pasture lands, in the highlands of Ephraim, as well as Gezer with its pasture lands, ·Kibzaim with its 22 pasture lands, and Beth-Horon with its pasture lands: four towns; ·from the tribe 23 of Dan, Elteke with its pasture lands, Gibbethon with its pasture lands, Aijalon with its pasture lands and Gath-Rimmon with its pasture lands: four towns; 24 and, from the half-tribe of Manasseh, Taanach with its pasture lands and Jibleam [e] 25 with its pasture lands: two towns.

In all: ten towns with their pasture lands for the remaining clans of the sons of 26 Kohath.

The portion of the sons of Gershon

To the sons of Gershon, of the levitical clans, were given: from the half-tribe of 27 Manasseh, Golan in Bashan, a city of refuge for those who had killed, with its pasture lands, and Ashtaroth [f] with its pasture lands—two towns; ·from the tribe of 28
Issachar, Kishion with its pasture lands, Dobrath with its pasture lands, Jarmuth with its pasture lands and En-Gannim with its pasture lands—four towns; 29 from the tribe of Asher, Mishal with its pasture lands, Abdon with its pasture 30 lands, ·Helkath with its pasture lands and Rehob with its pasture lands—four 31 towns; ·and, from the tribe of Naphtali, Kedesh in Galilee, a city of refuge for 32

those who had killed, with its pasture lands, Hammoth-Dor with its pasture lands and Kartan with its pasture lands—three towns.

33 Total number of towns of the Gershonites, by clans: thirteen towns with their pasture lands.

The portion of the sons of Merari

34 To the clans of the sons of Merari, the remainder of the Levites, fell: from the tribe of Zebulun, Jokneam with its pasture lands, Kartah with its pasture lands, 35 Rimmon[g] with its pasture lands and Nahalal with its pasture lands—four towns;
36 on the other side of the Jordan opposite Jericho, from the tribe of Reuben, Bezer in the desert, on the tableland, a city of refuge for those who had killed, with its 37 pasture lands, Jahaz with its pasture lands, ·Kedemoth with its pasture lands and 38 Mephaath with its pasture lands—four towns;[h] ·and, from the tribe of Gad, Ramoth in Gilead, a city of refuge for those who had killed, with its pasture lands, 39 Mahanaim with its pasture lands, ·Heshbon with its pasture lands and Jazer with its pasture lands—four towns.[i]

40 Total number of towns forming the lot of the sons of Merari by clans, of the remaining levitical clans: twelve towns.

41 The total number of towns for the Levites in Israelite territory was forty-eight 42 towns with their pasture lands. ·These towns consisted in each case of the town itself and the pasture land round it. This was the case with all the towns.

End of the distribution

43 This was how Yahweh gave the Israelites the entire country which he had sworn to 44 give to their ancestors. They took possession of it and settled in it. ·Yahweh granted them tranquillity on all their frontiers just as he had sworn to their ancestors and, of all their enemies, not one succeeded in resisting them. Yahweh
45 put all their enemies at their mercy. ·Of all the promises that Yahweh had made to the House of Israel, not one failed; all were fulfilled. 23:14 Is 55:11

III: THE CLOSE OF JOSHUA'S CAREER

A: THE RETURN OF THE EASTERN TRIBES THE QUESTION OF THEIR ALTAR[a]

The Transjordanian tribes are sent home

1 22 Joshua then summoned the Reubenites, the Gadites and the half-tribe of 1:12–18; 13:8–32
2 Manasseh ·and said to them, 'You have observed everything that Moses, Nb 32 servant of Yahweh, ordered you, and whenever I have given you an order you have 3 listened to me. ·You have not deserted your brothers, from long ago until today,

21 a. Levi is not an independent political unit and is awarded no territory, 13:14,33; 14:3–4; 18:7, but the Levites are allowed residence in certain towns and rights over the adjacent pastures, see Nb 35:1–8. This ch., one of the latest to be written, is a utopian systematisation of a state of affairs possibly dateable to the reign of Solomon when all the towns named were effectively under Israelite control. The list is perhaps governed by the division of the Levites after the founding of the Temple in Jerusalem; it includes the six cities of refuge, although these were designated for an entirely different purpose.

b. 'by their clans' conj.; see v. 7; 'of the clans of the tribe' Hebr.; as also in v. 6.

c. End of v. uncertain.

d. 'Ashan' Gk MSS, see 1 Ch 6:44; 'Ain' ('the spring') Hebr.

e. 'Jibleam' conj., see 17:11; Hebr. repeats 'Gath-Rimmon'.

f. 'Ashtaroth' Syr., see 1 Ch 4:32; 6:62; be'eshterah Hebr.

g. 'Rimmon' conj. following 19:13; 1 Ch 6:26; 'Dimnah' Hebr.

h. vv. 36–37, missing from MT, are included here with corrections from the Gk and 1 Ch 6:62–63.

i. 'four towns' Syr.; 'total of towns, four' Hebr.

22 a. Ch. 22 is composite: vv. 1–6 are deuteronomist and correspond to 1:12–18; vv. 7–9 add the half-tribe of Manasseh, which did not originally figure in the story; vv. 10–34 show signs of Priestly editing. The narrative does, however, draw on an ancient tradition, and perhaps preserves the memory of cultic rivalry between the sanctuary of Shiloh, see vv. 9 and 12, with its priesthood, see vv. 13seq., 30seq., and the Transjordanian tribes, who were perhaps regarded as living outside the Promised Land, which stopped at the Jordan.

keeping the observance of the commandment of Yahweh your God. ·Now that 4 Yahweh your God has granted your brothers the rest that he promised them, go back to your tents, to the country belonging to you which Moses, servant of Yahweh, gave you on the other side of the Jordan. ·But take great care to practise 5 the commandments and the Law which Moses, servant of Yahweh, has given you:
Dt 6:5c to love Yahweh your God, always to follow his paths, to keep his commandments, to be loyal to him and to serve him with all your heart and with all your soul.'
Joshua blessed them and sent them away, and they went home to their tents. 6
To one half of the tribe of Manasseh, Moses had given a territory in Bashan; to 7 the other half, Joshua gave another among their brothers on the west bank of the Jordan. As Joshua sent them home to their tents, he blessed them ·and said to 8 them, 'You are going back to your tents with great wealth, with a great deal of livestock, with silver and gold, bronze and iron and great quantities of clothing; share the spoils of your enemies with your brothers.'

An altar is built beside the Jordan

The Reubenites, the Gadites and the half-tribe of Manasseh returned home, 9 leaving the Israelites at Shiloh in Canaan, and made for Gilead, the territory which belonged to them as a result of Yahweh's order given through Moses. ·When they 10 came to the stone circle by the Jordan, in Canaanite territory, the Reubenites, the Gadites and the half-tribe of Manasseh built an altar there beside the Jordan, a large, imposing altar.
This came to the ears of the Israelites. 'Look,' the word went round, 'the 11 Reubenites, the Gadites and the half-tribe of Manasseh have built this altar on the Canaanite side, near the stone circle by the Jordan, on the Israelites' bank.'
At this news, the whole community of the Israelites mustered at Shiloh, to march 12 against them and make war on them.

Reproaches addressed to the eastern tribes

Ex 6:25
Nb 25:7,11seq. The Israelites sent the priest Phinehas son of Eleazar to the Reubenites, the 13
Gadites and the half-tribe of Manasseh, in Gilead, ·and with him ten leading men, 14 one man from a leading family from each of the tribes of Israel, each of them being head of his family in the clans of Israel. ·Having reached the Reubenites, the 15 Gadites and the half-tribe of Manasseh in Gilead, they said this:
'The whole community of Israel says as follows, "What do you mean by this 16 infidelity, [b] which you have committed against the God of Israel by now repudiating your allegiance to Yahweh, and by building yourselves an altar with the intention now of rebelling against Yahweh?
Nb 25:3–5
Dt 4:3 "Was the crime which we committed at Peor so slight—although we have not 17 managed to purify ourselves from that even now, in spite of the plague which has ravaged the community of Yahweh—·that you must now repudiate your allegiance 18 to Yahweh? For since you are in rebellion against him today, tomorrow his anger will be aroused against the whole community of Israel.
"Is the country in which you have settled unclean? Then cross over into the 19 country where Yahweh has settled, there where Yahweh's Dwelling now stands, and settle among us. But do not rebel against Yahweh or involve us in your 7 rebellion by building a rival altar to the altar of Yahweh our God. ·When Achan 20 son of Zerah was unfaithful to the curse of destruction, did not the retribution come down on the whole community of Israel, although he was only one man? Did he not have to die for his crime?' "

The Transjordanian tribes justify their action

The Reubenites, the Gadites and the half-tribe of Manasseh spoke in their turn 21 and answered the heads of the clans of Israel:
Dt 10:17 'The God of gods, [c] Yahweh, the God of gods, Yahweh well knows, and let 22
Israel know it too: if there has been rebellion or infidelity to Yahweh on our part,

23 may he refuse to save us today! ·And if we have built ourselves an altar with the intention of repudiating our allegiance to Yahweh and of presenting burnt offering Lv 1–3 and oblation or of offering communion sacrifices on it, may Yahweh himself call us 24 to account for it! ·The truth is, we have done this as a precaution: in the future, your descendants might say to ours, "What connection do you have with Yahweh, 25 God of Israel? ·Has not Yahweh set the frontier of the Jordan between us and you, you Reubenites and Gadites? You have no share in Yahweh." Thus, your descendants would be the cause of stopping ours from fearing Yahweh.
26 'So we said to each other, "Let us build this altar, not for burnt offerings or other 27 sacrifices ·but as a witness between us and you and between our descendants after us, attesting that we too have the right to worship Yahweh, in his presence, with our burnt offerings, our victims and our communion sacrifices. And so, in the future your descendants will not be able to say to ours: You have no share in 28 Yahweh." ·And we furthermore said, "If ever it were to happen that they did say this either to us or to our descendants in the future, we should reply: Look at this structure, Yahweh's altar, made by our ancestors not for burnt offerings or other 29 sacrifices but as a witness between us and you." ·Far be it from us to rebel against Yahweh or now to repudiate our allegiance to Yahweh by building an altar for burnt offerings or oblations or sacrifices, in rivalry with the altar of Yahweh our God that stands before his Dwelling!'

Peace restored

30 When the priest Phinehas, the leaders of the community and the heads of the clans of Israel who were with him, heard the words spoken by the Gadites, the Reuben-
31 ites and the Manassehites, they approved of them. ·The priest Phinehas son of Eleazar then said to the Reubenites, the Gadites and the Manassehites, 'Today, we can see that Yahweh is among us, since you have not been unfaithful to Yahweh in this matter; this means that you have spared the Israelites from Yahweh's avenging hand.'
32 The priest Phinehas son of Eleazar and the leaders left the Reubenites and the Gadites and went back from Gilead to Canaan and the Israelites, to whom they 33 reported the answer. ·The Israelites were pleased to hear this; the Israelites gave thanks to God and spoke no more of marching against them to make war on them
34 and to ravage the country inhabited by the Reubenites and the Gadites. ·The Reubenites and the Gadites called the altar . . . ,[d] 'Because', they said, 'it will be a witness between us that Yahweh is God.' 24:27d Gn 31:48,52

B: LAST DISCOURSE OF JOSHUA[a]

Joshua sums up his work

1 2 23 Now long after Yahweh had given Israel rest from all the enemies surrounding them—Joshua was old now, far advanced in years—·Joshua summoned all Israel, their elders, leaders, judges and officials, and said to them, 'I 13:1;14:10; 24:29
3 myself am old, far advanced in years; ·you for your part have witnessed all that Yahweh your God has done to all these nations for your sake; Yahweh your God
4 himself has fought for you. ·Look, these nations still remaining, and all the nations which I have exterminated from the Jordan all the way to the Great Sea in the 13:6

b. The action of the Reubenites and Gadites is condemned, here and at v. 19, as a violation of the law of the one, central sanctuary, Dt 12:5, laid down long after this incident.

c. The formula does not imply any polytheism on the part of the Israelites but is a literary archaism derived from Gn 33:20; 46:3; Nb 16:22; see also Dt 10:17; Ps 50:1; Dn 11:36.

d. The name has disappeared from the text; the word 'witness' must have been part of it; see the explanation of the name Gilead in Gn 31:47–48.

23 a. Farewell discourse, the proper conclusion to which appears in Jg 2:6–9; compare the last discourse of Moses, Dt 31, but also the farewells of Samuel, 1 S 12, the testament of David, 1 K 2:1–9, and the last words of Mattathias, 1 M 2:49–68. In the first deuteronomic edition of the book, this ch. presumably served as conclusion, before the addition of ch. 24.

C: THE GREAT ASSEMBLY AT SHECHEM [a]

24 Joshua gathered all the tribes of Israel together at Shechem; [b] he then 1 summoned all the elders of Israel, its leaders, judges and officials, and they presented themselves in God's presence. •Joshua then said to all the people: 2

'Yahweh, the God of Israel, says this, "From time immemorial, your ancestors, Gn 11:27–32 Terah, father of Abraham and Nahor, lived beyond the River, and served other Gn 12–24; 35:2–4 gods. •I then brought your ancestor Abraham from beyond the River and led him 3 through the length and breadth of Canaan. I increased his descendants and I gave Gn 25:19–26; 27;36:1–8 him Isaac. •To Isaac I gave Jacob and Esau. To Esau I gave possession of the 4
Gn 46:1–7 mountainous country of Seir. Jacob and his sons went down into Egypt. •I then 5
Ex 3–15 sent Moses and Aaron, and plagued Egypt with the wonders that I worked [c] there; finally I brought you out. •I brought your ancestors out of Egypt, and you came to 6 the Sea; the Egyptians pursued your ancestors with chariots and horsemen, to the Sea of Reeds. •They then called to Yahweh, and he spread a thick fog between you 7 and the Egyptians, and made the sea go back on them and cover them. You saw with your own eyes what I did in Egypt. Then, for a long while, you lived in the desert. •I then brought you into the country of the Amorites, who used to live on 8
Nb 21:21–35 Dt 2:26–3:11 the further side of the Jordan; they made war on you and I put them at your mercy;
after which, you took possession of their country, since I destroyed them before Nb 22–24 you. •Next, Balak son of Zippor, king of Moab, rose to make war on Israel, and 9 sent for Balaam son of Beor to come and curse you. •But I would not listen to 10 Balaam; instead, he had to bless you, and I saved you from his power.

"You then crossed the Jordan and came to Jericho, but the inhabitants of Jericho 11 made war on you: Amorites, Perizzites, Canaanites, Hittites, Girgashites, Hivites Dt 7:1a 12 and Jebusites, and I put them all at your mercy. •I sent hornets ahead of you, which Dt 7:20 drove out the two Amorite kings before you; this was not the work of your sword 13 or of your bow. •And now I have given you a country for which you have not toiled, Dt 6:10–13 towns you have not built, although you live in them, vineyards and olive groves you have not planted, although you eat their fruit."

Israel chooses Yahweh

14 'So now, fear Yahweh and serve him truly and sincerely; banish the gods whom Gn 35:2 15 your ancestors served beyond the River and in Egypt, and serve Yahweh. •But if Ezk 20:7
serving Yahweh seems a bad thing to you, today you must make up your minds whom you do mean to serve, whether the gods whom your ancestors served beyond the River, or the gods of the Amorites in whose country you are now living. As regards my family and me, we shall serve Yahweh.'
16 The people replied, 'Far be it from us to desert Yahweh and to serve other gods!
17 Yahweh our God was the one who brought us and our ancestors here from Egypt, Ex 13:3
from the place of slave-labour, who worked those great wonders before our eyes Dt 5:6
and who kept us safe all along the way we travelled and among all the peoples 18 through whom we passed. •And Yahweh has driven all the nations out for us, including the Amorites who used to live in the country. We too shall serve Yahweh, for he is our God.'
19 Joshua then said to the people, 'You will not be able to serve Yahweh, since he is a holy God, he is a jealous God who will not tolerate either your misdeeds or Lv 17:1a 20 your sins. •If you desert Yahweh and serve the foreigners' gods, he will turn and Dt 4:24;6:15 maltreat you anew and, in spite of having been good to you in the past, will destroy 21 you.' •The people replied to Joshua, 'No! Yahweh is the one we mean to serve.'
22 Joshua then said to the people, 'You are witnesses to yourselves that you have 23 chosen Yahweh, to serve him.' They replied, 'Witnesses we are!' •'Then banish the foreign gods which you have with you and give your allegiance to Yahweh, God of 24 Israel!' •The people replied to Joshua, 'Yahweh our God is the one whom we shall serve; his voice we shall obey!'

The covenant at Shechem

25 That day Joshua made a covenant for the people; he laid down a statute and Ex 15:25
26 ordinance for them at Shechem. •Joshua wrote these words in the Book of the Law of God. He then took a large stone and set it up there, under the oak tree in Gn 12:6; 35:4 Dt 11:30 27 Yahweh's sanctuary. •Joshua then said to all the people, 'Look, this stone will be a Jg 9:6 Jg 2:6
witness to us, since it has heard all the words that Yahweh has spoken to us: it will 28 be a witness against you,[d] in case you should deny your God.' •Joshua then dismissed the people, every one to his own heritage. Jg 2:6

b. 'all the nations which I have exterminated' is accidentally misplaced in Hebr. after 'the Jordan'. • 'all the way to the Great Sea' Gk; 'and the Great Sea' Hebr.

c. 'thorns' Gk, see Nb 33:55; Hebr. unintelligible.

24 a. Part One (vv. 2–13): Joshua asks his hearers to recognise God's interventions on behalf of Israel, see the profession of faith in Dt 6:21–24 and 26:5–9. Part Two (vv. 14–24): all declare for Yahweh and renounce gentile gods. Part Three (vv. 25–28): the covenant is adopted and its statutes committed to writing. This ch. was added either during or after the Exile, but the tradition which it preserves is an ancient one. The religion of Yahweh, introduced into Canaan by the group led by Joshua, is proposed by him to other groups who have not yet heard of it. They have not been to Egypt and have not benefited from the marvels of the Exodus and of the revelation in Sinai; these groups, nonetheless, are not Canaanites and share a common origin with Joshua's group: the people concerned are the tribes of the north who, by this pact, accept the religion of Yahweh and thus become part of the people of God.

b. For a similar event, see 8:30–35. Shechem with its central position was suitable for tribal gatherings, see also 1 K 12; and its history made it the ideal place for making this religious pact: Abraham had built an altar there, Gn 12:6–7, Jacob had bought land there, Gn 33:18–20, and there had buried the idols brought from Mesopotamia, Gn 35:2–4.

c. 'the wonders that I worked' Gk MSS, Syr.; 'what I worked' Hebr.

d. Just like the heap of stones, Gn 31:48,52, the altar, Jos 22:26seq., and the stele, Is 19:19–20, set up as 'witnesses'.

D: TWO ADDITIONS

‖Jg 2:6–10 The death of Joshua [e]

After this, Joshua son of Nun, servant of Yahweh,[f] died; he was a hundred and ten 29 years old. ·He was buried on the estate which he had received as his heritage, at 30
Timnath-Serah which lies in the highlands of Ephraim, north of Mount Gaash.[g]
Israel served Yahweh throughout the lifetime of Joshua and throughout the life- 31 time of those elders who outlived Joshua and had known all the deeds which Yahweh had done for the sake of Israel.

The bones of Joseph. The death of Eleazar [h]

Gn 50:24–25 Ex 13:19 Gn 33:18–20 As regards the bones of Joseph, which the Israelites had brought from Egypt, these 32 were buried at Shechem in the plot of ground which Jacob had bought for a hundred pieces of silver from the sons of Hamor father of Shechem, and which had become[i] the heritage of the sons of Joseph. ·Eleazar son of Aaron then died and 33 was buried at Gibeah, the town of his son Phinehas, which had been given to him in the highlands of Ephraim.[j]

e. vv. 28–31 are almost exactly repeated at the beginning of the second introduction to Judges, 2:6–10, showing how the two books have been edited together.

f. This same title was given to Moses, 1:1; Ex 14:31; see Dt 34:5, and later to David, Ps 18: preface; Ps 89:3,20, presages of the 'servant of Yahweh', Is 42:1a.

g. LXX adds: 'There (in Timnath-Serah) they laid with him, in the tomb where they had buried him, the flint knives with which he had circumcised the Israelites at Galgala when he had led them out of Egypt as the Lord ordered him; and they are still there today.' Even today, a great number of prehistoric worked flints are to be found round the village now standing on the site of Timnath-Serath.

h. Joshua and Eleazar die where Moses and Aaron should have died—in the Promised Land. Even the bones of Joseph are brought back to the country originally given to the Patriarchs. Thus, with the Book of Joshua, the return from Egypt is completed.

i. 'which had become' versions; 'they (the bones) had become' Hebr.

j. LXX adds: 'The Israelites then went away, each to his house and each to his town. The Israelites worshipped Astarte and Ashtaroth and the gods of the nations round them. Hence, the Lord put them into the power of Eglon, king of Moab, who oppressed them for eighteen years.' See Jg 3:14.

THE BOOK OF

JUDGES

I: FIRST INTRODUCTION[a]

SUMMARY OF THE SETTLEMENT IN CANAAN

The settlement of Judah, Simeon, Caleb and the Kenites

1 Now after Joshua's death, the Israelites consulted Yahweh, asking, 'Which of us is to march on the Canaanites first, to make war on them?' ·And Yahweh replied, 'Judah is to march on them first; I am delivering the country into his hands.' ·Judah then said to his brother Simeon,[b] 'March with me into the territory allotted to me; we shall make war on the Canaanites, and then I in my turn shall march into your territory with you.' And Simeon marched with him. ·So Judah marched on them, and Yahweh delivered the Canaanites and Perizzites into their hands, and they defeated them at Bezek—ten thousand of them![c] ·At Bezek they came upon Adoni-Bezek; they joined battle with him and defeated the Canaanites and Perizzites. ·Adoni-Bezek took to flight, but they chased and captured him and cut off his thumbs and big toes. ·Adoni-Bezek said, 'Seventy kings with their thumbs and big toes cut off used to pick up the crumbs under my table. As I did, God does to me.' He was taken to Jerusalem, and there he died. ·(The sons of Judah attacked Jerusalem and took it: they put its people to the sword and set fire to the city.)

After this the sons of Judah went down to make war on the Canaanites who were living in the highlands, the Negeb and the lowlands.[d] ·Judah next marched on the Canaanites living in Hebron—the name of Hebron in olden days was Kiriath-Arba—and beat Sheshai, Ahiman and Talmai. ·From there, he marched on the inhabitants of Debir—the name of Debir in olden days was Kiriath-Sepher. Caleb said, 'To the man who conquers and captures Kiriath-Sepher, I shall give my daughter Achsah as wife.' ·The man who captured it was Othniel son of Kenaz, younger brother of Caleb, who gave him his daughter Achsah as wife. When she arrived, he urged her[e] to ask her father for arable land, but when she

Jos 10:36–39; 11:21–22
Jos 14:6b
3:9–10

1 a. Jg 1 assembles material giving a very different picture of the conquest from that in Jos 1–12: the conquest is the result of individual tribal action and far from complete. As far as the settlement of the south is concerned, this account is much nearer to historical reality than the schematised version in Jos 10. In Jg, we have Yahwistic traditions, which emphasise the part played by Judah, see vv. 9 and 17; these were removed in the first editing of Jos, as consistent neither with its plan nor with its theological intentions. Some were restored in a further editing of Jos, see 14:6–15; 15:13–19. The Deuteronomic editor of Jg recovered these traditions but, to avoid conflict with Jos, dated these events to a time after Joshua's death, v. 1.

b. These are the two tribes of the south. see v. 17seq., which seem to have entered Canaan without making the detour through Transjordan. They had a long-established history, independent of that of the other tribes, see ch. 5; Nb 14:39; 21:1.

c. It seems that there is some confusion between this Adoni-Bezek king of Bezek, and Adoni-Zedek king of Jerusalem, see Jos 10:1–3, whence the mention of that city, v. 7, and the later gloss of v. 8 which contradicts v. 21 (and see 2 S 5:6seq.). The victory at Bezek raises a problem, the only known town of this name lying between Shechem and Beth-Shean in the region then occupied by the Perizzites, but a long way from the territory of Judah and Simeon. It is perhaps a memory preserved from the patriarchal age, when Simeon lived in central Palestine.

d. Editorial introduction to the rest of the narrative, ascribing conquests to Judah which were in fact achieved by groups only later assimilated to Judah: Caleb (conquest of Hebron, v. 20, see Jos 14:6seq.), Othniel (capture of Debir, v. 13, see Jos 15:15–17), the Kenites (occupation of the Negeb of Arad, v. 16) and Simeon (capture of Hormah, v. 17).

e. 'he (Othniel) urged her' Gk; 'she urged him' Hebr.

alighted from the donkey and Caleb asked her, 'What is the matter?' ·she said to 15 him, 'Grant me a blessing! As the land you have given me is the Negeb, give me springs of water, too!' So Caleb gave her what she wanted: the upper springs and the lower springs.

Ex 2:16f
Nb 10:29–32;
24:21k
The sons of Hobab the Kenite, father-in-law of Moses,[f] marched up with the 16 sons of Judah from the City of Palm Trees into the desert of Judah lying in the Negeb of Arad, where they went and settled among the people.

Nb 21:1–3
Judah then set out with his brother Simeon. They beat the Canaanites who lived 17 in Zephath and delivered it over to the curse of destruction; hence the town was given the name of Hormah. ·Judah then captured Gaza and its territory, Ashkelon 18 and its territory, Ekron and its territory.[g] ·And Yahweh was with Judah, who 19b
Jos 17:16,18
made himself master of the highlands; ·he could not, however, dispossess the 19a inhabitants of the plain, since they had iron chariots.

Dt 1:28g
As Moses had directed, Hebron was given to Caleb, and he drove the three sons 20 of Anak out of it. ·As regards the Jebusites living in Jerusalem, the sons of 21 Benjamin did not dispossess them, and the Jebusites have been living in Jerusalem with the sons of Benjamin ever since.[h]

The capture of Bethel[i]

Similarly, the House of Joseph marched on Bethel, and Yahweh was with them. 22
Gn 28:18
Jos 7:2b
Jos 18:13
The House of Joseph made a reconnaissance of Bethel. (In olden days, the name 23 of the town was Luz.) ·The scouts saw a man coming out of the town and said to 24 him, 'Show us how to get into the town and we shall show you faithful love.' ·And 25 when he had shown them a way into the town, they put the town to the sword but
Jos 6:23
let the man and his whole clan go. ·The man went off to the country of the Hittites 26 and built a town which he called Luz; and that has been its name ever since.

The northern tribes

Jos 17:11–13
Manasseh did not dispossess Beth-Shean and its dependencies, nor Taanach and 27 its dependencies, nor the inhabitants of Dor and its dependencies, nor the inhabitants of Ibleam and its dependencies, nor the inhabitants of Megiddo and its dependencies; in those parts the Canaanites held their ground. ·But when the 28
Jos 16:10
Israelites became stronger, they subjected the Canaanites to forced labour, although they did not dispossess them.[k] ·Nor did Ephraim dispossess the Canaan- 29 ites living in Gezer;[l] thus, the Canaanites went on living in Gezer with him.
Jos 19:10–16
Zebulun did not dispossess the inhabitants of Kitron or of Nahalol. The Canaanites 30
Jos 19:24–31
lived on with Zebulun but were subjected to forced labour. ·Asher did not dispos- 31 sess the inhabitants of Acco, nor those of Sidon, of Mahalab,[m] of Achzib, of Helbah, of Aphek or of Rehob. ·So the Asherites lived among the Canaanite 32
Jos 19:32–39
inhabitants of the country, not having dispossessed them. ·Naphtali did not dispos- 33 sess the inhabitants of Beth-Shemesh or of Beth-Anath; they settled among the Canaanite inhabitants of the country, but the inhabitants of Beth-Shemesh and of Beth-Anath were subjected to forced labour for them. ·The Amorites drove the 34
17:1b
Jos 19:47
Danites back into the highlands and would not let them come down into the plain.
The Amorites held their ground at Har-Heres and Shaalbim, but when the hand 35 of the House of Joseph grew heavier, they were subjected to forced labour.

The Angel of Yahweh tells Israel of disasters to come[a]

2 The Angel of Yahweh[b] went up from Gilgal to Bethel[c] and said, 'I have 1 brought you out of Egypt and led you into this country, which I promised on oath to your ancestors. I said, "I shall never break my covenant with you. ·You for 2 your part must make no covenant with the inhabitants of this country; you will destroy their altars." But you have not listened to my voice. What is the reason for this? ·Very well, I now say this, "I am not going to drive these nations out before 3
Dt 7:1–5

you. They will become your oppressors,[d] and their gods will be a snare for you." '
4 When the angel of Yahweh had spoken these words to all the Israelites, the people
5 began to wail at the top of their voices. ·And they called the name of the place
Bochim,[e] and offered sacrifices to Yahweh there. 20:26

II: SECOND INTRODUCTION

GENERAL REFLECTIONS ON THE PERIOD OF THE JUDGES[f]

6 Joshua having dismissed the people, the Israelites then went away, each one to his ‖Jos 24:28
7 own heritage, to occupy the country. ·The people served Yahweh throughout the ‖Jos 24:31 lifetime of Joshua and throughout the lifetime of those elders who outlived Joshua and had known all the great deeds which Yahweh had done for the sake of Israel.
8 Joshua son of Nun, servant of Yahweh, was a hundred and ten years old when he ‖Jos 24:29–30 9 died. ·He was buried on the estate which he had received as his heritage at 10 Timnath-Heres in the highlands of Ephraim, north of Mount Gaash. ·And when Jos 19:50 that whole generation had been gathered to its ancestors, another generation followed it which knew neither Yahweh nor the deeds which he had done for the sake of Israel.[g]

Religious interpretation of the period of the Judges[h]

11, 12 The Israelites then did what is evil in Yahweh's eyes and served the Baals. ·They deserted Yahweh, God of their ancestors, who had brought them out of Egypt, and they followed other gods, from those of the surrounding peoples. They bowed 13 down to these; they provoked Yahweh; ·they deserted Yahweh to serve Baal and 14 Astartes.[i] ·Then Yahweh's anger grew hot against Israel. He handed them over to pillagers who plundered them; he delivered them to the enemies surrounding 15 them, and they were no longer able to resist their enemies. ·Whenever they

f. 'The sons of Hobab the Kenite' versions, see 4:11; 'the sons of a Kenite' Hebr.

g. Judah did not conquer these towns in Philistia, either at the time of the settlement or later, and this v. is in contradiction with v. 19[b]. LXX overcomes the difficulty by inserting a negative: 'Judah did not conquer . . .'. Hebr. possibly reflects and amplifies David's victories over the Philistines, 2 S 5:17–25; 8:1.

h. Jerusalem was certainly reckoned as a Benjaminite town, Jos 18:28, but was not in fact conquered until it was taken by David, 2 S 5:6–9. The passage was interpolated in Jos 15:63, with the substitution of Judah for Benjamin.

i. The capture of Bethel owing to the treachery of one of its inhabitants does not figure in the account of the conquest in Jos.

j. In contrast with the triumphs ascribed to Judah in the first part of the ch., the second part is devoted to the checks sustained by the northern tribes.

k. These towns were not actually conquered until the early days of the monarchy, 1 K 9:15–22.

l. On the Jerusalem–Jaffa road, dominating the Philistine plain. The southern tribes were thus almost completely cut off from the northern ones.

m. 'Mahalab' following Jos 19:29; 'Ahlab' Hebr.; 'Helbah' is presumably a doublet.

n. 'Edomites' Gk; 'Amorites' Hebr. The v. is a gloss.

2 a. The deuteronomic editor, having added ch. 1 to the book, now gives a theological explanation for the partial failure of the conquest, referring back to Jos 23:12–13. He attaches this teaching to the explanation of a place-name in the region of Bethel, vv. 4–5.

b. God himself in visible form, see Gn 16:7c; cf. the apparition to Joshua near Gilgal, Jos 5:13–15. On Gilgal, see Jos 4:19b.

c. 'Bethel' Gk; 'Bochim' Hebr.

d. 'oppressors' versions; 'on your flanks' Hebr.

e. 'Bochim': 'the Weepers', unidentified place; see perhaps the 'Oak of Tears', near Bethel, Gn 35:8.

f. The introduction to the accounts of the Judges, 2:6–3:6, is constructed round 2:11–19, which, in the first edition of the book, immediately preceded 3:7seq. vv. 6–10 form the link with Jos, the concluding vv. of which they repeat (as Ezr 1:1–3 repeat 2 Ch 36:22–23). vv. 2:20–3:6 have been added to explain the persistence of foreign nations in Israelite territory.

g. This v. does not occur in the parallel passage of Jos 24. The death of Joshua and of the generation of the conquest leaves the way free for Israel to lapse into infidelity.

h. Here, the first deuteronomic editor of the book states the theme to be restated in the history of each of the major Judges (see 3:7c), 3:7–9,12–15; 4:1seq.; 6:10; 10:6seq.; etc.: Israel deserts Yahweh for Baal, Yahweh hands Israel over to oppressors, Israel cries to Yahweh, Yahweh sends Israel a saviour; and the cycle begins again. This theological view of history, based on the assumption that the judges succeeded one another in the chronological order given in the book and that each acted for the whole nation, hardly corresponds to historical fact, the book being a compilation of originally independent accounts of local heroes, to whom an arbitrary relationship in time has been ascribed.

i. In the Bible the phrase 'Baal and Astarte' or, in the plural, 'the Baals and Astartes' is the common expression for the Canaanite divinities. Baal, 'the Lord', is the divine male principle, often regarded as owner of the soil. Astarte, the Assyrian Ishtar, is the goddess of love and fecundity. The name Asherah, another female divinity of the same type, see Ex 34:13e, is sometimes used instead, Jg 3:7; 2 K 23:4.

Dt 28:15–46 mounted an expedition, Yahweh's hand was there to foil them, as Yahweh had told them and as Yahweh had sworn to them, so that they were in dire distress.

Yahweh then appointed them judges,[j] who rescued them from the hands of their 16 8:27 plunderers. ·But even to their judges they refused to listen. They prostituted 17 themselves[k] to other gods and bowed down before these. Very quickly they left the path which their ancestors had trodden in obedience to the orders of Yahweh; they did not follow their example. ·When Yahweh appointed judges for them, 18
Yahweh was with the judge and rescued them from the hands of their enemies as long as the judge lived, since Yahweh relented at their groans under their persecutors and oppressors. ·But once the judge was dead, they relapsed into even 19 worse corruption than their ancestors. They followed other gods; they served them and bowed before them and would not give up the practices and stubborn ways of their ancestors at all.

Why foreign nations survived in Canaan[l]

Yahweh's anger then blazed out against Israel, and he said, 'Since this people has 20 broken the covenant which I laid down for their ancestors, since they have not 2:3 listened to my voice, ·in future I shall not drive before them any one of those 21 nations which Joshua left when he died, ·in order, by means of them, to put Israel 22 to the test, to see whether or not they would tread the paths of Yahweh as once Jos 13:1 their ancestors had trodden them.' ·Hence, Yahweh allowed these nations to 23 remain; he did not hurry to drive them out, and did not deliver them into the hands of Joshua.

3 These are the nations which Yahweh allowed to remain, by their means to put 1 all those Israelites to the test who had not experienced any of the Canaanite wars ·(this was only to instruct the Israelites' descendants, to teach them the art of 2 1:27–35 war, those at least who had not experienced it previously): ·the five chiefs of the 3
‖Jos 13:2–6 Philistines, all the Canaanites, the Sidonians, and the Hittites[a] who lived in the range of the Lebanon, from the uplands of Baal-Hermon to the Pass of Hamath.
They were used to put Israel to the test and see if they would keep the orders 4 which Yahweh had given their ancestors through Moses. ·The Israelites lived 5 Dt 7:1a among the Canaanites, Hittites and Amorites, the Perizzites, Hivites and Jebusites; ·they married their daughters, they gave their own sons to their daughters 6 and they served their gods.

III: HISTORY OF THE JUDGES[b]

A: OTHNIEL[c]

2:13i The Israelites did what is evil in Yahweh's eyes. They forgot Yahweh their God 7 and served Baals and Asherahs. ·Then Yahweh's anger blazed out against Israel: 8 he handed them over to Cushan-Rishathaim king of Edom,[d] and the Israelites were enslaved to Cushan-Rishathaim for eight years.

The Israelites then cried to Yahweh and Yahweh raised for the Israelites a 9 1:13 deliverer who rescued them, Othniel son of Kenaz, Caleb's younger brother.
Jos 15:17
•6:34; 11:29; 14:6 The spirit of Yahweh was on him; he became judge in Israel and set out for war. 10
1 S 10:6; 16:13 Yahweh delivered Cushan-Rishathaim king of Edom into his hands, and he Is 11:2c triumphed over Cushan-Rishathaim. ·The country then had peace for forty years. 11
•3:30;5:31; 8:28
Jos 11:23; 14:15 Othniel son of Kenaz then died.

B: EHUD[e]

Again the Israelites began doing what is evil in Yahweh's eyes, and Yahweh 12 strengthened Eglon king of Moab against Israel, since they were doing what is evil

13 in Yahweh's eyes. ·Eglon in conjunction with the sons of Ammon and Amalek 14 marched on Israel, beat them and captured the City of Palm Trees. ·The Israelites were enslaved to Eglon king of Moab for eighteen years.
15 The Israelites then cried to Yahweh, and Yahweh raised a deliverer for them, Ehud son of Gera, a Benjaminite; he was left-handed. The Israelites appointed 16 him to take their tribute to Eglon king of Moab. ·Ehud made himself a short sword—it was double-edged and a foot and a half long—and strapped it under his 17 clothes on his right thigh. ·He presented the tribute to Eglon king of Moab. This 18 Eglon was a very fat man. ·Having presented the tribute, Ehud sent away the men
19 who had been carrying it; ·but he himself, on reaching the Idols which are near Jos 4:19b Gilgal,[f] went back and said, 'I have a secret message for you, O king.' The king 20 commanded silence, and all his attendants withdrew. ·Ehud went up to him; he was sitting in his private room upstairs, where it was cool. Ehud said to him, 'I have a message from God for you, O king.' The latter immediately rose from his seat.
21 Then Ehud, reaching with his left hand, drew the dagger he was carrying on his 22 right thigh and thrust it into the king's belly. ·The hilt too went in after the blade, and the fat closed over the blade, since Ehud did not pull the dagger out of his belly 23 again.[g] ·Ehud went out through the privies, having shut and bolted the doors of the upstairs room behind him.
24 When he had gone, the servants came back and looked; the doors of the upstairs room were bolted. They thought, 'He is probably covering his feet[h] in the inner 25 part of the cool room.' ·They waited until they became embarrassed, but still he did not open the doors of the upstairs room. Eventually, they took the key and opened the door; and there lay their master, dead, on the ground.
26 Meanwhile, Ehud had got away, passed the Idols and made good his escape to 27 safety in Seirah. ·Once there, he sounded the horn in the highlands of Ephraim,

k. Customary figure of speech for idol-worship, see Lv 17:7; Dt 31:16; Is 1:21; Ezk 16:16; Ho 1:2.

l. According to 2:11–15; see also 2:3, the foreign nations were left as a punishment for the infidelities of Israel. Here, however, their presence is explained as a way of putting Israel's fidelity to the test, vv. 22–23; 3:1,4. The gloss, 3:2, offers another explanation: to maintain the warrior spirit. Other reasons are given in Ex 23:29 and Dt 7:22: to prevent the country from being overrun with wild animals; and in Ws 12:3–22: to allow the former inhabitants time to repent.

3 a. 'Hittites', following Jos 11:3 and 2 S 24:6; 'Hivites' Hebr.

b. It is customary to call those judges 'major', whose history is related in some detail: Othniel, Ehud, Deborah (and Barak), Gideon, Jephthah, Samson; and those judges 'minor' who receive only a brief mention: Shamgar, Tola, Jair, Ibzan, Elon, Abdon. The distinction is not made in the text but it approximately corresponds to two different types of person presented in it. The first are raised up by God to deliver the people from oppression; they are charismatic leaders and saviours. The second also clearly fulfil a function, but it is not so easy to say exactly what it is. They 'judge', and this includes administering justice but goes beyond it. The same verb, though rarely in Hebrew, in other western-semitic languages often means 'to govern', 'judge' then being synonymous with 'king'. With the 'Judge' (shophet) may be compared the 'Suffetes' of Tyre and Carthage. The precision of the figures given for the time while each was in power suggests a good historical source, but the extension of their authority to the whole nation, and their chronological succession, seem to be of secondary construction. The author of Jg extends the function to those liberating heroes whose stories he has collected. And he represents them too as having 'judged' Israel, and their succession, filled out by the 'minor' judges to correspond to the number of the twelve tribes, is used by him to fill the time-gap between the death of Joshua and the accession of Saul. In fact, the authority of the judges extended over a town and its surrounding district, representing a stage intermediate between tribal government and monarchy.

c. This brief account is puzzling. Othniel is certainly the same man as the conqueror of Debir, at the time of the settlement. The oppressor is Cushan-Rishathaim king of Aram-Naharaim according to the Hebr., that is to say, of Upper Mesopotamia. Presented thus, the episode is improbable. More probably, the name Aram is an early misreading for Edom, to which Naharaim has been added later under the influence of Gn. An Edomite attempt to gain a footing in southern Palestine would not be surprising. The whole passage is by the deuteronomic editor, who seems to have used an ancient tradition current in the south to give Judah, having absorbed the Calebites, a place in his gallery of judges.

d. 'Edom' conj.; 'Aram' Hebr. (as also in v. 10), suppressing 'Naharaim'. • The king's name means 'Cushan-of-double-wickedness'; an ancient name perhaps, derisively modified.

e. The story postulates that the Moabites have crossed the River Arnon, occupied the 'Plains of Moab' and crossed the Jordan: their king resides at Jericho (the 'City of Palm Trees'). They are thus in the territory of Benjamin. Their expansion presumably corresponds to the weakening of the tribe of Reuben, at the beginning of the period of the judges. Interference by the Deuteronomic editor is minimal here: vv. 12,15[a] and 30. He uses a story perhaps formerly told at Gilgal, v. 19, in which Ehud the Benjaminite's ruse was related with satisfaction and no moral scruples. The extension of the action to the whole of Israel, vv. 27–29, is secondary, but possibly earlier than the deuteronomist's use of the story.

f. These stone idols (pesilim), well known to local tradition, occur as landmarks, here and at v. 26. We do not know what they were, but the stones set up by Joshua, Jos 4:19–20, would hardly have acquired so disrespectful a name.

g. Following Gk, Hebr. adds 'and took out the parshedonah', or 'and he went out through the parshedonah', an unknown word. This is perhaps a doublet of the beginning of the next v. 'he went out through the privies' where 'privies' seems the most plausible translation, see v. 24, for a word which is used nowhere else.

h. Euphemism: to relieve nature.

and the Israelites came down from the hills with him at their head. ·And he said to 28 them, 'Follow me, because Yahweh has delivered your enemy Moab into your hands.' So they followed him, seized the fords of the Jordan against Moab and allowed no one to cross. ·On that occasion they beat the Moabites, some ten 29 thousand men, all tough and seasoned fighters, and not one escaped. ·That day 30 3:11+ Moab was humbled under the hand of Israel, and the country had peace for eighty years.

C: SHAMGAR [i]

5:6
2 S 23:11–12 After him came Shamgar son of Anath. He routed six hundred of the Philistines 31 with an ox-goad; he too was a deliverer of Israel.

D: DEBORAH AND BARAK [a]

Israel oppressed by the Canaanites

4 Once Ehud was dead, the Israelites again began doing what is evil in Yahweh's 1
Jos 11:1b eyes, ·and Yahweh handed them over to Jabin king of Canaan, who reigned 2 1 S 12:9 at Hazor. The commander of his army was Sisera, who lived in Haroshet-ha-Goiim.

The Israelites then cried to Yahweh; for Jabin had nine hundred iron chariots 3 and had cruelly oppressed the Israelites for twenty years.

Deborah

Deborah, a prophetess, [b] wife of Lappidoth, was judging Israel at the time. ·She 4, 5 used to sit under Deborah's Palm [c] between Ramah and Bethel in the highlands of ↗Heb 11:32 Ephraim, and the Israelites would come to her for justice. ·She sent for Barak son 6 of Abinoam from Kedesh in Naphtali, and said to him, 'Has not Yahweh, God of Israel, commanded, "Go! March to Mount Tabor and with you take ten thousand of the sons of Naphtali and the sons of Zebulun. ·I shall entice Sisera, the 7 ↗Ps 83:9 commander of Jabin's army, to encounter you at the Torrent of Kishon with his chariots and troops; and I shall put him into your power"? ' ·Barak replied, 'If you 8 4:14 come with me, I shall go; if you will not come, I shall not go, for I do not know how Gn 16:7c to choose the day when the angel of Yahweh will grant me success.' [d] ·'I shall go 9 with you then,' she said, 'but, the way you are going about it, the glory will not be yours; for Yahweh will deliver Sisera into the hands of a woman.' Deborah then stood up and went with Barak to Kedesh. ·Barak summoned Zebulun and 10 Naphtali. Ten thousand men marched behind him, and Deborah went with him.

Nb 24:21k Heber the Kenite [e]

Heber the Kenite had parted company with the tribe of Kain and with the 11 1:16f sons of Hobab, father-in-law of Moses; he had pitched his tent near the Oak of Zaanannim, not far from Kedesh.

Defeat of Sisera

Sisera was informed that Barak son of Abinoam had encamped on Mount Tabor. 12
Sisera summoned all his chariots—nine hundred iron chariots—and all the troops 13
5:19 he had, from Harosheth-ha-Goiim to the Torrent of Kishon. ·Deborah said to 14 4:8;5:21 Barak, 'Up! For today is the day when Yahweh has put Sisera into your power. Is Dt 9:3 not Yahweh marching at your head?' And Barak charged down from Mount Tabor
2 S 5:24
Ps 68:7 with ten thousand men behind him. ·At Barak's advance, Yahweh struck terror 15
Is 52:12
•Ex 14:24 into Sisera, all his chariots and his entire army. [f] Sisera leapt down from his chariot and fled on foot. ·Barak pursued the chariots and the army as far as Harosheth- 16 ha-Goiim. Sisera's whole army fell by the edge of the sword; not one man was spared.

Death of Sisera

17 Sisera meanwhile fled on foot towards the tent of Jael, the wife of Heber the Kenite. For there was peace between Jabin king of Hazor and the family of Heber 18 the Kenite. ·Jael came out to meet Sisera and said to him, 'Stay here, my lord, with me; do not be afraid!' He stayed with her in her tent, and she covered him with a 19 rug. ·He said to her, 'Please give me a little water to drink, for I am thirsty.' She opened the skin of milk,[g] gave him some to drink and covered him up again.
20 Then he said to her, 'Stand at the tent door, and if anyone comes and questions
21 you—if he asks, "Is there a man here?" say, "No." ' ·But Jael the wife of Heber took a tent-peg and picked up a mallet; she crept up softly to him and drove the peg into his temple right through to the ground. He was lying fast asleep, worn out;
22 and so he died. ·And now Barak came up in pursuit of Sisera, Jael went out to meet him and said, 'Come in, and I will show you the man you are looking for.' He went into her tent; and there was Sisera dead, with the tent-peg through his temple.

Jdt 13:8

Israel delivered

23, 24 Thus God that day humbled Jabin king of Canaan before the Israelites. ·And the Israelites bore down more and more heavily on that king of Canaan, Jabin, until he was utterly destroyed.

THE SONG OF DEBORAH AND BARAK[a]

1 5 They sang a song that day, Deborah and Barak son of Abinoam, and the words were:

2 That the warriors in Israel unbound their hair,[b] that the people came forward with a will, bless Yahweh!

3 Listen, you kings! Give ear, you princes! — Ps 2:10
From me, from me comes a song for Yahweh.
I shall glorify Yahweh, God of Israel. — Dt 32:3

4 Yahweh, when you set out from Seir, — Dt 33:2
when you marched from the field of Edom, — Ps 68:7–8
the earth shook, — Ex 19:16g Hab 3:3f

i. This v. is an addition, see 4:1 Shamgar does not seem to be an Israelite: his name is foreign and he is apparently a native of Beth-Anath in Galilee, which was still Canaanite, 1:33. His insertion in the list of Judges is probably due to a misunderstanding of 5:6.

4 a. The story of Deborah and Barak is given first in a prose narrative, ch.4, then in a poem, ch.5. According to the prose narrative in its original form, the tribes of Zebulun and Naphtali win a decisive victory over Sisera of Harosheth-ha-Goiim, north-west of the Plain of Jezreel. To this, there is the secondary addition of Jabin king of Hazor, previously conquered by Joshua, Jos 11:10–15: he is mentioned in the prose narrative but not in the poem. The victory, certainly historical, broke down the barrier separating the northern tribes from those in central Palestine. It probably occurred in the middle of the 12th century BC.

b. A prophetess like Miriam, Ex 15:20, and Huldah. 2 K 22:14, Deborah dispenses justice in Yahweh's name.

c. 'palm' tamar conj.; Hebr. tomer.

d. 'for I do not know . . . success' Gk; omitted by Hebr. Barak wants to be able to consult Yahweh (see Ex 33:7c) through Deborah during the campaign.

e. This v., interrupting the story, introduces the episode of Jael, v. 17, originally perhaps independent.

f. After 'army', Hebr. adds 'by the edge of the sword', see v. 16.

g. i.e. leben, the sour milk of the nomad.

5 a. The song of Deborah is one of the oldest pieces of poetry in the Bible, and was composed shortly after the events that it describes. It is a victory-song, set in the framework of a hymn. It celebrates an action of the holy war in which Yahweh fights against his people's enemies, vv. 20–21,23, who are also his enemies, v. 31. The song extols the tribes who responded to Deborah's summons, and blames those that did not come to fight. The ten groups named here cannot be made to correspond with the tribes in the conventional list which was standardised later. Machir, however, is named instead of Manasseh, v. 14; Gilead stands for Gad, v. 17; Meroz, v. 23, does not appear in any tribal list and is a town in Naphtali. Four out of the ten did not rally to the call. Judah and Simeon are not mentioned, either because of their isolation in the south or because they had not yet joined the Israelite confederation.

b. A rite of war, see Dt 32:42. Combatants in a holy war are consecrated to God like nazirites; see Jg 13:5; 16:17.

E: GIDEON AND ABIMELECH [a]

1: THE CALL OF GIDEON

Israel oppressed by the Midianites

6 The Israelites did what is evil in Yahweh's eyes, and for seven years Yahweh 1
Ex 2:11c handed them over to Midian; •and Midian bore down heavily on Israel. To 2
1 S 13:6 escape from the Midianites the Israelites used the mountain clefts and the caves
Heb 11:38 and shelters. •Whenever Israel sowed seed the Midianites would march up with 3 Amalek and the sons of the East. [b] They would march on Israel.
Lv 26:16 They would pitch camp on their territory and destroy the produce of the country as 4
Dt 28:31seq. far as Gaza. They left Israel nothing to live on, not a sheep or an ox or a donkey, •for they came up as thick as locusts with their cattle and their tents; they and their 5 camels were innumerable, they invaded the country to pillage it. •Thus, Midian 6 brought Israel to great distress, and the Israelites cried to Yahweh.

A message from a prophet [c]

When the Israelites cried to Yahweh because of Midian, •Yahweh sent a prophet 7, 8 to the Israelites. He said to them, 'This is what Yahweh, God of Israel, says, "It was I who brought you out of Egypt, and led you out of the place of slave-labour.
I rescued you from the power of the Egyptians and from the power of all who 9 oppressed you. I drove them out before you and gave their country to you. •And I 10 said to you: I am Yahweh your God. You are not to fear the gods of the Amorites in whose country you are now living. But you have not listened to my voice." '

The Angel of Yahweh appears to Gideon [d]

if Yahweh is with us, why is all this happening to us? And where are all his miracles which our ancestors used to tell us about when they said, "Did not Yahweh bring us out of Egypt?" But now Yahweh has deserted us; he has abandoned us to Midian.'
Ex 3:10–12 At this, Yahweh turned to him and said, 'Go in this strength of yours, and you 14 will rescue Israel from the power of Midian. Am I not sending you myself?'
Gideon replied, 'Forgive me, my lord, but how can I deliver Israel? My clan is the 15 weakest in Manasseh and I am the least important of my father's family.'
Yahweh replied, 'I shall be with you and you will crush Midian as though it were 16 stay until you come back.'

Gideon went away, he prepared a young goat and from an ephah of flour he 19 made unleavened cakes. He put the meat into a basket and the broth into a pot, then brought it all to him under the terebinth. As he approached, •the Angel of 20

Gideon against Baal[g]

25 Now that night, Yahweh said to Gideon, 'Take your father's bull, the seven-year-old bull,[h] and pull down the altar to Baal belonging to your father and cut down Ex 34:13e 26 the sacred pole beside it. ·Then, on top of this strong-point, build a proper altar to Yahweh your God. Then take the bull and burn it as a burnt offering on the wood 27 of the sacred pole which you have cut down.' ·Gideon then took ten of his servants and did as Yahweh had ordered him. But, being too frightened of his family and of 28 the townspeople to do it in daylight, he did it at night. ·Next morning, when the townspeople got up, they found that the altar to Baal had been destroyed, the sacred pole standing beside it had been cut down and the bull had been sacrificed 29 as a burnt offering on the newly built altar. ·'Who has done this?' they asked one another. They searched, made enquiries and declared, 'Gideon son of Joash has 30 done it.' ·The townspeople then said to Joash, 'Bring out your son; he must die for having destroyed Baal's altar and cut down the sacred pole which stood beside it.'
31 To the people all crowding round him, Joash replied, 'Is it your job to plead for Baal? Is it your job to champion his cause? (Anyone who pleads for Baal must be 1 K 18:27 Dt 17:2–5 put to death before dawn.) If he is a god, let him plead for himself, now that 32 Gideon has destroyed his altar.' ·That day, Gideon was given the name Jerubbaal,[i] because, they said, 'Baal must plead against him, because he has destroyed his altar!'

The call to arms

33 All Midian and Amalek and the sons of the East joined forces and, having crossed 34 the Jordan, pitched camp in the plain of Jezreel. ·And the spirit of Yahweh clothed 3:10+
Gideon around; he sounded the horn and Abiezer rallied behind him.
35 He sent messengers throughout Manasseh, and Manasseh too rallied behind him; 3:27;7:23seq.

u. The end of the v. is probably corrupt and overloaded. Hebr. 'a coloured stuff, two embroideries for the neck of the booty'.

v. 'who love you' Gk, Lat.; 'who love him' Hebr.

6 a. The long story of Gideon comprehends several traditions native to the tribe of Manasseh. The deuteronomic editor found them much as they are now, but made a few alterations. Some of the traditions are about Gideon's military exploits against the Midianites, whether in Israelite territory, or on the other side of the Jordan. Others are cultic stories: the legitimisation of an altar at Ophrah, the destruction of an altar to Baal, the sign of the fleece. These narratives throw valuable light on the religious crisis caused by the adoption of an agricultural way of life and the influence of the cult of Baal, and on the political crisis culminating in the offer of the throne to Gideon and the unfortunate experiment with Abimelech.

b. The Midianites were a nomadic people living in north-western Sinai, see Ex 2:11c. The Amalekites were mainly settled in southern Palestine, but the name here may apply vaguely to nomadic groups. The 'sons of the East' were desert tribes living to the east of the Jordan. • This narrative contains the first historical reference to the intensive raising of camels and to their use in tribal warfare.

c. First appearance of a prophet in Israelite history. The passage is the work of the deuteronomic editor.

d. This passage combines an account of the calling of Gideon, continued at vv. 36–40, and an account of the founding of a sanctuary, in the manner of those in Genesis, with a theophany, message of salvation and inauguration of the cult. The Angel of Yahweh, v. 11, is simply called Yahweh in vv. 14,16 and 23. In v. 22, Gideon identifies Yahweh with his Angel, see Gn 16:7c.

e. A sacred tree, see 4:5,11; 9:37; Jos 24:26. The location of this particular Ophrah is unknown.

f. The meal prepared by Gideon for the Angel of Yahweh—whether it has a sacrificial character or not—is turned into a burnt offering by the divine fire, compare Manoah's sacrifice, 13:15–20. The rock is thus consecrated and Gideon builds an altar on it, v. 24.

g. This second cultic narrative, apparently referring to the same sanctuary as the foregoing, is substantially different: here, the cult of Baal is violently replaced by that of Yahweh.

h. Hebr. reads 'your father's bull and a second seven-year-old bull', and at vv. 26,28: 'the second bull'; but only one sacrifice takes place. Possibly 'and a seven-year-old bull' is a description, mistakenly read as referring to a second victim: hence the present disorder in the text.

i. The etymology explaining Gideon's second name, see 7:1, etc., is of the popular kind. The name in fact has the opposite sense 'May Baal strive for', i.e. defend (the one who bears the name). A Yahwistic shrine replaces the Canaanite one.

he sent messengers to Asher, Zebulun and Naphtali, and they marched out to meet him.

The sign of the fleece [j]

6:17 Gideon said to God, 'If it is really you delivering Israel by means of me, as you 36 have said, ·look, I am going to put a woollen fleece on the threshing-floor; if there 37 is dew only on the fleece and all the ground stays dry, then I shall know that you will deliver Israel by means of me, as you have said.' ·And so it happened. Early 38 next morning, Gideon got up, squeezed the fleece and wrung enough dew out of the fleece to fill a cup. ·Gideon then said to God, 'Do not be angry with me if I 39 speak just once more. Allow me to make the fleece-test just once more: let the fleece alone be dry and there be dew all over the ground!' ·And God did so that 40 night. The fleece alone stayed dry, and there was dew all over the ground.

2: GIDEON'S CAMPAIGN TO THE WEST OF THE JORDAN

1 S 14:6
1 Co 1:25seq.

Yahweh reduces the numbers of Gideon's army [a]

7 Jerubbaal (that is, Gideon) got up very early, as did all the people who were 1 with him; he pitched camp at En-Harod; [b] the camp of Midian was north of his, under the Hill of Moreh in the valley. ·Yahweh then said to Gideon, 'There are 2
Dt 8:17+
Is 10:13
too many people with you for me to put Midian into their power; Israel might claim the credit for themselves at my expense: they might say, "My own hand has rescued me." ·So now make this proclamation to the people, "Anyone trembling with fear 3
Dt 20:8
1 M 3:56
is to go back and watch from Mount Gilboa." [c] Twenty-two thousand of the people went back, and ten thousand remained.

Yahweh said to Gideon, 'There are still too many people. Take them down to 4 the waterside and I shall sort them out for you there. If I say of someone, "He is to go with you," that man is to go with you. And if I say of anyone, "He is not to go with you," that man is not to go.' ·So Gideon took the people down to the 5 waterside, and Yahweh said to him, 'All those who lap the water with their tongues, as a dog laps, put these on one side. And all those who kneel down to drink, put these on the other side.' [d] ·The number of those who lapped with their 6 hands to their mouth [e] was three hundred; all the rest of the people had knelt to drink. ·Yahweh then said to Gideon, 'With the three hundred who lapped the 7 water, I shall rescue you and put Midian into your power. Let the people as a whole disperse to their homes.' ·So they took the people's provisions and their horns, 8 and then Gideon sent all the Israelites back to their tents, keeping only the three hundred. The camp of Midian was below his in the valley.

An omen of victory

Now it happened, that same night, that Yahweh said to him, 'Get up and go down 9 to the camp. I am putting it into your power. ·If, however, you are nervous about 10 going down, go down to the camp with your servant Purah; ·listen to what they are 11 saying, and that will encourage you to go down to the camp.' So, with his servant Purah, he went down to the edge of the outposts of the camp.

Midian, Amalek and all the sons of the East were deployed in the valley as thick 12
6:5

Jr 46:23
Jl 1:6seq.
as locusts; their camels were as innumerable as the sand on the seashore. ·Gideon 13 got there just as a man was telling his comrade a dream; he was saying, 'This was the dream I had: a cake made of barley bread came rolling into the camp of Midian;
it came to a tent, struck against it [f] and turned it upside down.' ·His comrade 14 replied, 'This can only be the sword of Gideon son of Joash the Israelite. God has put Midian and the whole camp into his power.' ·When Gideon heard the dream 15 thus told and interpreted, he bowed in reverence; he then went back to the camp of Israel and said, 'On your feet, for Yahweh has put the camp of Midian into your power!'

The surprise attack

16 Gideon then divided his three hundred men into three groups. To each he gave a 17 horn and an empty pitcher, with a torch inside each pitcher. ·He said to them,
'Watch me, and do as I do. When I reach the edge of the camp, whatever I do, you 18 must do also. ·I shall blow my horn, and so will all those who are with me; you too will then blow your horns all round the camp and shout, "For Yahweh and for Gideon!" '
19 Gideon and his hundred companions reached the edge of the camp at the beginning of the middle watch, when the new sentries had just been posted; they 20 blew their horns and smashed the pitchers in their hands. ·The three groups blew their horns and smashed their pitchers; with their left hands they grasped the torches, with their right hands the horns for blowing them; and they shouted, 'The 21 sword for Yahweh and for Gideon!' ·And they stood still, spaced out round the camp. The whole camp was thrown into confusion and the Midianites fled, 22 shouting. ·While the three hundred blew their horns, Yahweh made each man 1 S 14:20 turn his sword against his comrade[g] throughout the entire camp. They all fled as far as Beth-ha-Shittah in the direction of Zarethan,[h] as far as the bank of Abel-Meholah opposite Tabbath.

The pursuit

23 The men of Israel mustered from Naphtali, Asher and all Manasseh, and pursued 6:35
24 Midian. ·Gideon sent messengers throughout the highlands of Ephraim to say, 'Come down to meet Midian, seize the water-points ahead of them as far as Beth-Barah and the Jordan.' All the men of Ephraim mustered and seized the water-25 points as far as Beth-Barah and the Jordan. ·They captured the two Midianite Jn 1:28
chieftains, Oreb and Zeeb;[i] they killed Oreb at Oreb's Rock and Zeeb at Zeeb's Ps 83:11 Is 10:26 Winepress. They pursued Midian; and they brought the heads of Oreb and Zeeb to Gideon on the other side of the Jordan.

The Ephraimites take offence[a] 12:1–6

1 Now the men of Ephraim said to Gideon, 'What do you mean by treating us like this, not summoning us when you went to fight Midian?' And they re- 6:35;7:24 2 proached him bitterly. ·He replied, 'What have I achieved, compared with you? Is 3 not the gleaning of Ephraim's grapes better than the vintage of Abiezer? ·God delivered Oreb and Zeeb, the chieftains of Midian, into your power. What was I able to do, in comparison with what you have done?' At these words, their anger with him died down.

j. This is the sign asked for by Gideon in v. 17; cf. Ex 4:1–7, where two signs authenticate the mission of Moses.

7 a. Victory over the Midianites was not to be attributable to the military strength of Israel: it was a holy war, in which God was the giver of victory.

b. Harod means 'trembling', see v. 3.

c. 'watch from Mount Gilboa' conj.: 'is to escape (?) from Mount Gilead' Hebr.

d. 'put these on the other side' versions; omitted in Hebr.

e. The phrase, possibly misplaced, would come better at the end of the v.

f. The Hebr. here adds 'and it fell', omitted by Gk, and also (at end of v.) 'and the tent lay flat'. The tent symbolises the nomad; the barley cake the agricultural Israelites. Hence the reply in v. 14, the dream being recognised as a divine revelation, cf. Gn 20:3.

g. Another characteristic of the holy war: the Israelites do not have to fight, God sows panic in the enemy ranks, cf. Ex 14:14; Jos 6:20.

h. 'Zarethan', following 1 K 4:12; 'Zerera' Hebr. The Midianites flee towards one of the fords of the Jordan.

i. Oreb 'the raven', see Is 10:26. Zeeb 'the wolf'. This incident, mentioned again 8:3, comes from an independent, probably Ephraimite, tradition, attached to two place-names.

8 a. Ephraim here appears in a subordinate role to Manasseh, see 7:24,25, but the Ephraimites do not care to play second fiddle. Ultimately, Ephraim will become much more powerful than Manasseh, hence Jacob's preferential treatment of the former in Gn 48:17.

3: GIDEON'S CAMPAIGN IN TRANSJORDAN. HIS END

Gideon pursues the enemy beyond the Jordan [b]

Gideon reached the Jordan and crossed it, but he and his three hundred companions were exhausted with the pursuit. 4 ·So he said to the men of Succoth, 'Please 5 give my followers some loaves of bread, since they are exhausted, and I am pursuing Zebah and Zalmunna the kings of Midian.' [c] ·The headmen of Succoth 6 replied, 'Are the hands of Zebah and Zalmunna already in your grasp, that we should give bread to your army?' ·'Very well,' retorted Gideon, 'when Yahweh 7 has put Zebah and Zalmunna into my power, I shall tear your flesh off with desert-thorn and thistles.' ·From there he went up to Penuel and asked the men of 8
Penuel the same thing; they replied as those of Succoth had done. ·And to those of 9 Penuel he made a similar retort, 'When I return victorious, I shall destroy this tower.'

The defeat of Zebah and Zalmunna

Zebah and Zalmunna were in Karkor with their army, about fifteen thousand men, 10 all that was left of the entire army of the sons of the East. Of men bearing arms, a hundred and twenty thousand had fallen. ·Gideon approached them by the tent- 11 dwellers' route, east of Nobah and Jogbehah, and attacked the army when it thought itself in safety. ·Zebah and Zalmunna fled. He pursued them; he took the 12 two kings of Midian prisoner—Zebah and Zalmunna—and the whole army he routed in panic.

Gideon's acts of vengeance

After the battle Gideon came back by the Ascent of Heres. [d] ·He caught a young 13, 14 man, one of the people of Succoth, and questioned him, and the latter wrote down the names of the headmen and elders of Succoth for him—seventy-seven men.
Gideon son of Joash then went to the people of Succoth and said, 'Here you 15 see Zebah and Zalmunna, about whom you taunted me and said, "Are the hands of Zebah and Zalmunna already in your grasp, that we should give bread to your exhausted troops?" ' ·He then seized the elders of the town and, taking 16 desert-thorn and thistles, tore the men of Succoth to pieces. [e] ·He destroyed the 17 tower of Penuel and slaughtered the townsmen. ·He then said to Zebah and 18 Zalmunna, 'The men you killed at Tabor [f]—what were they like?' They replied,
'They looked like you. Every one of them carried himself like the son of a king.'
Gideon replied, 'They were my brothers, the sons of my own mother; as Yahweh 19 lives, if you had spared their lives I would not kill you.' ·To Jether his eldest son he 20 said, 'Stand up and kill them!' But the boy did not draw his sword; he dared not; he 9:54 was still only a lad. ·Zebah and Zalmunna then said, 'Stand up yourself, and strike 21
Ps 83:11 us down; for as a man is, so is his strength.' Then Gideon stood up and killed Zebah and Zalmunna; and he took the crescents from round their camels' necks.

Latter days of Gideon

The men of Israel said to Gideon, 'Rule over us, you, your son and your grandson, 22 since you have rescued us from the power of Midian.' ·But Gideon replied, 'I will 23 1 S 8:7 not rule you, neither will my son. Yahweh shall rule you.' [g] ·Gideon went on, 24
Ex 32 however, 'Let me make you one request. Each of you give me one ring out of his Nb 31:28seq., 50seq. booty'—for the vanquished had had gold rings, being Ishmaelites. ·'We shall give 25 2 S 8:11–12 them gladly,' they replied. So he spread out his cloak, and on it each of them threw a ring from his booty. [h] ·The weight of the gold rings which he had asked for 26 amounted to seventeen hundred shekels of gold, besides the crescents and the earrings and purple garments worn by the kings of Midian, and besides the collars Ex 28:6–35,6a round their camels' necks. ·From this Gideon made an ephod [i] and set it up in his 27 town, in Ophrah. All Israel, following his example, prostituted themselves to it, and it was a snare for Gideon and his family. ▶17–18 1 K 12:26–32

28 Thus Midian was humbled before the Israelites. He did not raise his head again, 29 and the country had peace for forty years, as long as Gideon lived. ·So Jerubbaal 3:11+ 30 son of Joash went to live at home. ·Gideon had seventy sons begotten by him, for 31 he had many wives. ·His concubine, who lived in Shechem, also bore him a son, to 32 whom he gave the name Abimelech. ·Gideon son of Joash died after a happy old 9 age and was buried in the tomb of Joash his father, at Ophrah of Abiezer.[j]

Israel relapses into idolatry

33 After Gideon's death, the people of Israel again began to prostitute themselves to 34 the Baals, taking Baal-Berith[k] for their god. ·The Israelites no longer remembered Yahweh their God, who had rescued them from all the enemies round them.
35 And to the family of Jerubbaal—Gideon—they showed no faithful gratitude for all 9:16
the good which it had done for Israel.

4: THE REIGN OF ABIMELECH[a]

1 9 Abimelech son of Jerubbaal confronted his mother's brothers at Shechem and, to them and to the whole clan of his maternal grandfather's family, he said, 2 'Please put this question to the leading men of Shechem: Which is better for you:
to be ruled by seventy people—all Jerubbaal's sons—or to be ruled by one?
3 Remember too that I am your own flesh and bone.' ·His mother's brothers said all this on his behalf to all the leading men of Shechem, and their feelings swayed them 4 to follow Abimelech, since they argued, 'He is our brother.' ·So they gave him seventy shekels of silver from the temple of Baal-Berith, and with this Abimelech 8:33k 5 paid violent adventurers to follow him. ·He then went to his father's house at Ophrah and put his brothers, Jerubbaal's seventy sons, to death on one and the 11:1–3 2 K 10:1–17 same stone. Jotham, however, Jerubbaal's youngest son, escaped by going into 6 hiding. ·All the leading men of Shechem and all Beth-Millo then met and proclaimed Abimelech king at the oak of the cultic stone at Shechem.[b] Jos 24:26+

b. This campaign is represented as the sequel to that of 7:1–22; see 8:4, but comes originally from an independent tradition, probably about another Midianite raid. It is in any case quite distinct from the incident in 7:25, where the Midianite 'chieftains' have different names from the Midianite 'kings', v. 5. Geographical details about Succoth, Penuel and Transjordan, indicate a Transjordanian tradition.

c. Zebah, 'victim' and Zalmunna, 'wandering shade', are apparently invented names.

d. 'by the Ascent' Gk; 'from above' (?) Hebr.

e. 'tore to pieces' versions and v. 7; 'taught (them) a lesson' Hebr.

f. 'what were (they) like' Vulg.; 'where were (they)' Hebr. We know nothing else about this battle of Tabor. Gideon informs the kings that they have killed his brothers, and hence justifies his actions as avenger of blood, see Nb 35:19c.

g. vv. 22–23 interrupt the narrative, but it is conceivable that the people in the Shechem area offered Gideon the crown after his victory; the offer, however, was certainly made by all Israel. Gideon's refusal perhaps only reflects the deuteronomist's own prejudice, in the anti-monarchical vein of 9:7–15 and 1 S 8:12, since the sons of Gideon-Jerubbaal ruled Shechem, Jg 9:2.

h. 'he spread out' Gk; plural, Hebr.

i. This is not a loincloth-ephod but a cultic object used for divination, see 1 S 2:28*l*. Gideon evidently intended it for the worship of Yahweh, but the deuteronomic editor condemns it, as he later condemns Micah's ephod, Jg 17:3seq.

j. vv. 30–32 are stylistically similar to the notices on the 'minor' judges, see 10:1–5; 12:8–15, and perhaps come from the same terse register, serving as nucleus for the traditional stories about the hero Gideon; v. 29, which reverts to the use of the name Jerubbaal, might be better placed after 6:25–32.

k. Baal-Berith or El-Berith was the god of oaths and contracts, venerated by the mercantile Canaanites at Shechem, 9:46. Shechem being the place where the Israelites had concluded a covenant with Yahweh, Jos 24, syncretism was practically inevitable.

9 a. This story is preserved here since Abimelech was the son of Gideon-Jerubbaal, though in point of fact it is neither the story of a judge nor the history of Israel: Abimelech was the son of a Shechemite woman, he was made king by the Canaanites of Shechem as the result of intrigue and a show of force on his part, he had mercenary troops of a sort, and his only exploits were the massacre of his brothers, his struggle with the rebels of Shechem and his assault on the Israelite town of Thebez, where he was ignominiously killed. The narrative is undoubtedly historical and throws light on conditions of that period: Israel and Canaan were living as good neighbours and the political situation reflected by this form of government shows the same general conditions still prevailing as are revealed in the Tell el-Amarna letters for this region in the 14th century BC. Abimelech's failure served the deuteronomic editor's contention that there could be no other king in Israel but one chosen by Yahweh.

b. Beth-Millo is probably another name for the 'Migdal-Shechem' of vv. 46 and 49. • 'The cultic stone' hammatztzebah conj.; Hebr. mutztzab 'set up'.

Jotham's diatribe [c]

News of this was brought to Jotham. He went and stood on the top of Mount 7
Jos 8:33i Gerizim and shouted at the top of his voice:

Hear me, leaders of Shechem,
so that God may also hear you!

2 K 14:9 One day the trees went out 8 to anoint a king to rule them.
They said to the olive tree, 'Be our king!'

The olive tree replied, 9
Lv 2
1 S 10:1;16:13 'Must I forgo my oil
Ps 104:15 which gives honour to gods and men, to stand and sway over the trees?'

Then the trees said to the fig tree, 10
'You come and be our king!'

The fig tree replied, 11
'Must I forgo my sweetness, forgo my excellent fruit,
to go and sway over the trees?'

Then the trees said to the vine, 12
'You come and be our king!'

The vine replied, 13
Ps 104:15 'Must I forgo my wine
Pr 31:6 which cheers gods and men,
Qo 9:7 to go and sway over the trees?'
Si 31:27–28

Then the trees all said to the thorn bush, 14
'You come and be our king!'

And the thorn bush replied to the trees, 15
'If you are anointing me in good faith to be your king, come and shelter in my shade.
But, if not, fire will come out of the thorn bush and devour the cedars of Lebanon.'

[d]"Now then, if you have acted in sincerity and good faith in making Abimelech 16 king, if you have dealt honourably with Jerubbaal and his family, and have treated him as his actions deserved, ·my father having fought for you, risked his life and 17 rescued you from the power of Midian, ·and you today having risen up against my 18 father's family, murdered his sons—seventy of them on one and the same stone—and appointed Abimelech, his slave-girl's son, to rule the leading men of Shechem, because he is your brother!—·if, I say, you have acted in sincerity and good faith 19 towards Jerubbaal and his family, then may Abimelech be your joy and may you 9:49 be his! ·If not, may fire come out of Abimelech and devour the leading men of 20 Shechem and Beth-Millo, and fire come out of the leading men of Shechem and Beth-Millo to devour Abimelech!'

Jotham then took to his heels; he fled and made his way to Beer; and there he 21 stayed, to be out of his brother Abimelech's reach.

Shechem revolts against Abimelech

1 S 16:14e Abimelech ruled Israel for three years.[e] ·God then sent a spirit of discord 22, 23
1 K 22:23 between Abimelech and the leaders of Shechem, and the leaders of Shechem betrayed Abimelech. ·And this was so that the crime committed against Jerub- 24 baal's seventy sons should be avenged,[f] and their blood recoil on their brother

Abimelech who had murdered them, and on those leaders of Shechem who had helped him to murder his brothers.

25 The leaders of Shechem put men to ambush him on the mountain tops, and these 26 robbed anyone travelling their way. Abimelech was told of this. ·Gaal son of Obed,[g] with his brothers, happened to pass through Shechem and win the confi-
27 dence of the leaders of Shechem. ·These went out into the countryside to harvest their vineyards; they trod the grapes and made merry and went into the temple of 28 their god. They ate and drank there[h] and cursed Abimelech. ·Gaal son of Obed said, 'Who is Abimelech, and what is Shechem, for us to be his slaves? Should not Jerubbaal's son and his lieutenant, Zebul, be serving[i] the men of Hamor, father of Gn 34
29 Shechem? Why should we be his slaves? ·Who will put this people under my command, so that I can expel Abimelech? I should say to him,[j] "Reinforce your 30 army and come out!" ' ·Zebul the governor of the town was told what Gaal son of 31 Obed had said, and he was furious. ·He sent messengers secretly to Abimelech to say, 'Look! Gaal son of Obed has come to Shechem with his brothers, and they are 32 stirring up the town against you.[k] ·So, move under cover of dark, you and the men 33 you have with you, and take up concealed positions in the countryside; ·then in the morning at sunrise, break cover and rush on the town. When Gaal and his 34 supporters come out to meet you, treat them as occasion offers.' ·So Abimelech set off under cover of dark with all his own supporters and took up concealed
35 positions over against Shechem, in four groups. ·As Gaal son of Obed was coming out and pausing at the entrance of the town gate, Abimelech and his supporters
36 rose from their ambush. ·Gaal saw these men and said to Zebul, 'Look, there are men coming down from the tops of the mountains!' Zebul answered, 'You mistake
37 the shadow of the mountains for men.' ·But Gaal insisted, 'Look, there are men coming down from the Navel of the Earth and another group is coming from the 38 direction of the Diviners' Oak.'[l] ·Zebul then said, 'Where are your mouthings now about "Who is Abimelech, for us to be his slaves?" Are not these the men 39 you made light of? Sally out, then, and fight him.' ·Gaal sallied out at the head of 40 the leaders of Shechem and engaged Abimelech. ·Abimelech drove Gaal off, who turned tail, many of his men falling dead before they could reach the gate.
41 Abimelech then stayed at Aruma, and Zebul expelled Gaal and his brothers and prevented them from living in Shechem.

Destruction of the town and citadel of Shechem[m]

42 Next day, when the people went out into the countryside, Abimelech was told of 43 this. ·He took his men, divided them into three groups and lay in wait in the fields. When he saw the people leaving the town, he bore down on them and slaughtered 44 them. ·While Abimelech and his group rushed forward and took position at the entrance to the town gate, the two other groups fell on everyone in the fields and 45 slaughtered them. ·All that day Abimelech attacked the town. He stormed it and

c. This is the earliest example in the Bible of a fable using plants or animals to point a human moral, see 2 S 12:1–4; 2 K 14:9; Ezk 17:3–10 and several in Pr. As a literary form, it is universal (Mesopotamia, Egypt, Greece, etc.). The one here may have existed independently before being used to illustrate the story of Jerubbaal and Abimelech.

d. vv. 16–20 apply the fable to the situation produced by Abimelech's reign, and conclude with an appeal to 'good faith', in one long turgid sentence, of which any outdoor orator might be proud.

e. Editorial note. Abimelech did not rule Israel.

f. 'so that (the crime) should be avenged', lit. 'to make (the crime) rebound on' Gk; 'so that (the crime) should come' Hebr.

g. 'son of Obed' Vulg.; 'son of a slave' ('ebed) Hebr.; as in following vv. He was a Canaanite allied to the Shechemites, or perhaps a Shechemite himself, v. 28. He roused the Shechemites against Abimelech, who did not reside in the town, being represented there by Zebul.

h. A religious festival at the end of harvest.

i. 'Should not . . . be serving' conj.; 'serve!' (pl) Hebr.

j. 'I should say to him' Gk; Hebr. 'he said to Abimelech'.

k. 'stirring up' me'irim conj.; Hebr. tzarim 'besieging'.

l. The 'Navel of the Earth', possibly the holy mountain, Mt Gerizim; the same title is apparently applied to Jerusalem in Ezk 38:12. The 'Diviners' Oak' is presumably the same as the 'Oak of Moreh' (i.e. 'oak of the instructor' or 'of the diviner'), Gn 12:6; Dt 11:30.

m. It is possible that Migdal-Shechem (the 'Tower of Shechem') is a place different from Shechem. Or perhaps two different traditions are put side by side, vv. 41–45, 46–49, describing the destruction of the town; or perhaps v. 45 is an anticipation and vv. 46–49 take up a detail of the siege. Migdal-Shechem and the temple of El-Berith will be the fortified temple found in the excavations.

slaughtered the people inside, razed the town and sowed it with salt. [n] ·On hearing 46 this, all the leading men inside Migdal-Shechem took refuge in the crypt [o] of the 8:33;9:4 temple of El-Berith. ·As soon as Abimelech heard that the leading men inside 47
Migdal-Shechem had all gathered there, ·he went up Mount Zalmon with all his 48 men. Then taking an axe in his hands, he cut off the branch of a tree, picked it up and put it on his shoulder, and said to the men with him, 'Hurry and do what you have seen me do.' ·Each of his men similarly cut off a branch; then, following 49 9:20 Abimelech, they piled the branches over the crypt and set it on fire over those who were inside; so that all the people in Migdal-Shechem died too, about a thousand men and women.

Siege of Thebez and death of Abimelech

Abimelech then marched on Thebez, [p] besieged it and captured it. ·In the middle 50, 51 of the town there was a fortified tower in which all the men and women and all the leading men of the town took refuge. They locked the door behind them and climbed up to the roof of the tower. ·Abimelech reached the tower and attacked it. 52
As he was approaching the door of the tower to set it on fire, ·a woman threw down 53 a millstone on his head and cracked his skull. ·He instantly called his young 54 1 S 31:4 armour-bearer and said, 'Draw your sword and kill me, so that it will not be said of me that "A woman killed him". ' His armour-bearer ran him through, and he died.
When the men of Israel saw that Abimelech was dead, they dispersed to their 55 homes.

Thus God made to recoil on Abimelech the evil he had done his father by 56 murdering his seventy brothers, ·and all the evil that the men of Shechem had done 57 9:20 God made recoil on their heads too. And so the curse of Jotham son of Jerubbaal came true for them.

JEPHTHAH AND THE 'MINOR' JUDGES [a]

H: JEPHTHAH [d]

Oppression by the Ammonites

2:13i The Israelites again began doing what is evil in Yahweh's eyes. They served Baal 6 and Astarte, and the gods of Aram and Sidon, the gods of Moab and those of the Ammonites and Philistines. They deserted Yahweh and served him no more.
Yahweh's anger then grew hot against Israel and he gave them over into the power 7 of the Philistines and the power of the Ammonites, ·who from that year onwards 8
Nb 21:21–35 crushed and oppressed the Israelites for eighteen years—all those Israelites living on the other side of the Jordan in Amorite territory, in Gilead.

9 Furthermore, the Ammonites would cross the Jordan and also make war on Judah, 10 Benjamin and the House of Ephraim, so that Israel was in distress. •The Israelites then cried to Yahweh and said, 'We have sinned against you, because we have 11 turned from Yahweh our God to serve Baals.' •And Yahweh said to the Israelites, 12 'When Egyptians and Amorites, Ammonites and Philistines, •when the Sidonians, Amalek and Midian [e] oppressed you and you cried to me, did I not rescue you from 13 their power? •But it is you who have forsaken me and served other gods; and so I 14 shall rescue you no more. •Go and cry to the gods whom you have chosen. Let Jr 11:12 15 them rescue you in your time of trouble.' •The Israelites replied to Yahweh, 'We have sinned. Treat us as you see fit, but please rescue us today.'
16 They got rid of their foreign gods and served Yahweh, who could bear Israel's suffering no longer.
17 The Ammonites gathered and pitched camp in Gilead. The Israelites rallied and 18 pitched camp at Mizpah. •The people, the chieftains of Gilead, then said to one Gn 31:49 another, 'Who will volunteer to attack the Ammonites? He shall be chief of all who live in Gilead!'

Jephthah lays down his terms

1 11 Jephthah the Gileadite was a valiant warrior. He was a prostitute's son.
2 Gilead [a] was Jephthah's father, •but Gilead's wife also bore him sons, and the sons of this wife, when they grew up, drove Jephthah away, saying, 'No share Gn 21:10 3 of the paternal heritage for you, since you are a son of another woman.' •Jephthah fled far from his brothers and settled in the territory of Tob. Jephthah enlisted a group of adventurers who used to go raiding with him. [b] 4, 5 It was some time after this that the Ammonites made war on Israel. •And when the Ammonites had attacked Israel, the elders of Gilead went to fetch Jephthah 6 from the territory of Tob. •'Come', they said, 'and be our commander, so that we 7 can fight the Ammonites.' •Jephthah replied to the elders of Gilead, 'Didn't you hate me and drive me out of my father's house? Why come to me now, when you 8 are in trouble?' •The elders of Gilead said to Jephthah, 'That is why we are turning to you now. Come with us; fight the Ammonites and be our chief, chief of all the 9 people living in Gilead.' •Jephthah then said to the elders of Gilead, 'If you bring me home to fight the Ammonites and Yahweh defeats them for me, I am to be 10 your chief?' [c] •And the elders of Gilead then said to Jephthah, 'Yahweh be witness 11 between us, if we do not do as you have said!' •So Jephthah set off with the elders

n. Symbolic gesture to assure the barrenness of the soil. Excavations at Shechem reveal a destruction of the town in the course of the 12th century BC.

o. 'crypt' or perhaps 'tower'. The temple served as fortress and refuge.

p. Modern Tubas, about 10 miles (16 km) north of Shechem.

10 a. On the 'minor' Judges, see 3:7b.

b. It has been suggested that this minor judge was invented on the basis of the clan of Jair, living in northern Gilead, Nb 32:41, but there is no reason why there should not have been a person of this name who actually was a 'judge'. The mention of the 'Encampments of Jair' is presumably an addition, derived from Nb 32:41.

c. '(thirty) towns' versions; Hebr. repeats 'young donkeys'; play on words: 'air, 'young donkey', 'ir, 'town' and jair.

d. Jephthah was a 'minor' judge, like those preceding and following him, and the same sort of information is given about him as about them: on his family, 11:1–2, on the length of his tenure of office and on his burial-place, 12:7. Since there was a story of rescue to be told about him, however, he joined the ranks of the 'major' judges, compare Gideon and the note to 8:32. • The introduction to this story, 10:6–18, has been much expanded by the deuteronomic editor, on the same lines as 2:6–19. The account of the war of liberation against the Ammonites, 11:1–11,29,32–33, has been overloaded with the pseudo-historical addition of Jephthah's message to the king of the Ammonites, 11:12–28, and by the story of Jephthah's vow, 11:19–31,34–40; to which add the conflict between Ephraim and Gilead, 12:1–6.

e. 'Midian' Gk; 'Maon' Hebr.

11 a. Gilead is clearly a geographical name in 10:18 and 11:8—the territory occupied by the Gadites, see Nb 32:1a. The name is used here as a personal name, as in the genealogies, see Nb 26:29.

b. Cf. Abimelech, 9:4, and David, 1 S 22:1–2; 25:13. For 'enlist', see note to 9:4.

c. This concrete example possibly shows one of the ways in which a 'judge' of Israel was chosen: Jephthah had saved the people and had charismatic qualities as well, 11:29. These two characteristics are also found in one of the traditions about how Saul was elected as king, 1 S 11. The title of king does not occur here, but royal power is certainly what Jephthah demands and gets. Contrast with this Gideon's refusal, and Abimelech's ill-fated acceptance of it. The story of Jephthah shows that the distinction between 'major' and 'minor' judges is not absolute, and that the institution of judges anticipated that of the monarchy.

of Gilead. The people put him at their head as chief and commander; and Jephthah repeated all his conditions at Mizpah in Yahweh's presence. [d]

Jephthah negotiates with the Ammonites [e]

Dt 2:19seq..27 Jephthah sent messengers to the king of the Ammonites to say to him, 'What do 12 you have against us, for you to come and make war on my country?' ·The king of 13
the Ammonites replied to Jephthah's messengers, 'The reason is that when Israel came up from Egypt, they seized my country from the Arnon to the Jabbok and to the Jordan; so now restore it to me peacefully.' ·Jephthah sent messengers back to 14 the king of the Ammonites ·with this answer, 'Jephthah says this, "Israel seized 15 neither the country of Moab nor the country of the Ammonites. ·When Israel came 16 out of Egypt, they marched through the desert as far as the Sea of Reeds and,
Nb 20:14–21 having reached Kadesh, ·Israel then sent messengers to the king of Edom to say: 17
Please let me pass through your country, but the king of Edom would not listen.
They sent similarly to the king of Moab, but he refused, and Israel remained at Kadesh; ·later, moving on through the desert and skirting the countries of Edom 18 and Moab until arriving to the east of Moabite territory, the people camped on the other side of the Arnon but did not enter Moabite territory, the Arnon being the Nb 21:21–31 Moabite frontier. ·Israel then sent messengers to Sihon, king of the Amorites, 19
Dt 2:26–37 ruling in Heshbon. Israel's message was: Please let me pass through your country to my destination. ·But Sihon would not let[f] Israel pass through his territory; he 20 mustered his whole army; they encamped at Jahaz, and he then joined battle with Israel. ·Yahweh, God of Israel, delivered Sihon and his whole army into the power 21 of Israel, who defeated them; as the result of which, Israel took possession of the entire territory of the Amorites living in that region. ·Israel took possession of 22 all the Amorite territory from the Arnon to the Jabbok and from the desert to the Jordan. ·And now that Yahweh, God of Israel, has dispossessed the 23 Amorites before his people Israel, do you think you can dispossess us? ·Will you 24 not keep as your possession whatever Chemosh, your god, has given you? And, just the same, we shall keep as ours whatever Yahweh our God has given us, to Nb 22–24 inherit from those who were before us! ·Are you a better man than Balak son of 25 Jos 24:9–10 Zippor, king of Moab? Did he pick a quarrel with Israel? Did he make war on them? ·When Israel settled in Heshbon and its dependencies, and in Aroer and its 26 dependencies, or in any of the towns on the banks of the Arnon (three hundred years ago), why did you not recover them then? ·I for my part have done you no 27 Gn 18:25 harm, but you are wronging me by making war on me. Let Yahweh the Judge give judgement today between the Israelites and the king of the Ammonites." ' ·But 28 the king of the Ammonites took no notice of the message that Jephthah sent him.

Jephthah's vow and his victory [g]

3:10+ The spirit of Yahweh was on Jephthah, who crossed Gilead and Manasseh, crossed 29 by way of Mizpah in Gilead, and from Mizpah in Gilead crossed into Ammonite Nb 30:2–17+ territory. ·And Jephthah made a vow to Yahweh, 'If you deliver the Ammonites 30 into my grasp, ·the first thing to come out of the doors of my house to meet me 31 when I return in triumph from fighting the Ammonites shall belong to Yahweh, Gn 22:1–19 and I shall sacrifice it as a burnt offering.' ·Jephthah crossed into Ammonite 32
2 K 3:27
Mi 6:7 territory to attack them, and Yahweh delivered them into his grasp. ·He beat them 33 from Aroer to the border of Minnith (twenty towns) and to Abel-Keramim. It was a very severe defeat, and the Ammonites were humbled by the Israelites.

1 S 18:6–7 As Jephthah returned to his house at Mizpah, his daughter came out to meet 34 him, dancing to the sound of tambourines. She was his only child; apart from her, he had neither son nor daughter. ·When he saw her, he tore his clothes and 35 exclaimed, 'Oh my daughter, what misery you have brought upon me! You have joined those who bring misery into my life! I have made a promise before Yahweh Nb 30:3 which I cannot retract.' ·She replied, 'Father, you have made a promise to Yahweh; 36 treat me as the promise that you have made requires, since Yahweh has granted

37 you vengeance on your enemies the Ammonites.' •She then said to her father, 'Grant me this! Let me be free for two months. I shall go and wander in the 38 mountains, and with my companions bewail my virginity.' [h] •He replied, 'Go,' and let her go away for two months. So she went away with her companions and 39 bewailed her virginity in the mountains. •When the two months were over she went back to her father, and he treated her as the vow that he had uttered bound him.
40 She had remained a virgin. And hence, the custom in Israel •for the daughters of Israel to leave home year by year and lament [i] over the daughter of Jephthah the 2 Ch 35:25
Gileadite for four days every year.

War between Ephraim and Gilead. [d] The death of Jephthah

1 12 The men of Ephraim mobilised; they crossed the Jordan near Zaphon 8:1–3 and said to Jephthah, 'Why did you go and make war on the Ammonites without asking us to go with you? We shall burn down your house over your head!'
2 Jephthah replied, 'My people and I were in serious conflict with the Ammonites. I 3 summoned you, but you did not come to rescue me from them. •When I saw that no one [b] was coming to rescue me, I took my life in my hands and marched against the Ammonites, and Yahweh handed them over to me. So why advance on me 4 today to make war on me?' •Jephthah then mustered all the men of Gilead and made war on Ephraim, and the men of Gilead defeated Ephraim—since the latter used to say, 'You are only fugitives from Ephraim, you Gileadites in the heart of 5 Ephraim and Manasseh.' •Gilead then cut Ephraim off from the fords of the 3:28;7:24
Jordan, and whenever Ephraimite fugitives said, 'Let me cross,' the men of Gilead 6 would ask, 'Are you an Ephraimite?' If he said, 'No,' •they then said, 'Very well, say Shibboleth.' If anyone said, "Sibboleth", because he could not pronounce it, [c] Mt 26:73 then they would seize him and kill him by the fords of the Jordan.
Forty-two thousand Ephraimites fell on this occasion.
7 Jephthah judged Israel for six years. Jephthah the Gileadite then died and was buried in his town, in Gilead. [d]

I: IBZAN

8, 9 After him, Ibzan of Bethlehem [e] was judge in Israel. •He had thirty sons and thirty daughters. He gave his daughters in marriage outside his clan and brought in thirty brides from outside for his sons. He was judge in Israel for seven years.
10 Ibzan then died and was buried in Bethlehem.

J: ELON

11 After him, Elon of Zebulun was judge in Israel. He was judge in Israel for ten Gn 46:14 Nb 26:26 12 years. •Elon of Zebulun then died and was buried at Aijalon in the territory of Zebulun.

d. Evidently there was a sanctuary at Mizpah where Yahweh was invoked as witness of oaths.

e. This historical survey is a secondary composition based on Nb 20–21 and Dt 2 and confusing the Ammonites with the Moabites. The territory taken by Israel, vv. 13 and 26, had in fact belonged to the Moabites; Chemosh, v. 24, was the principal god of the Moabites; the Ammonites' god was Milcom.

f. 'would not let' versions, see Nb 20:21; 'had no confidence' Hebr.

g. The story of Jephthah's vow, vv. 30–31,34–40, was intended to explain an annual festival celebrated in Gilead, v. 40, the real significance of which was unknown. In plain terms, Jephthah immolates his daughter, v. 39, rather than break the vow that he has made, v. 31. Human sacrifice was always regarded with abhorrence in Israel, see as early as Gn 22, but this story is told without any expression of blame, the emphasis apparently falling on the importance of fulfilling a vow once made.

h. 'I shall go and wander' versions; 'I shall go down' Hebr. To be childless was considered a misfortune and, for a woman, a disgrace.

i. 'lament' Gk; 'sing' Hebr.

12 a. The episode is parallel to that in 8:1–3 but is independent. Ephraim, struggling for supremacy, is alarmed at the wide powers granted to Jephthah.

b. 'no one was coming' versions; 'you were not coming' Hebr.

c. This difference in pronunciation indicates the dialectical variations in Hebrew, most of which were eliminated in the final editing of the Bible. The word shibbolet means 'ear of wheat'.

d. 'in his town, in Gilead' Gk; 'in the towns of Gilead' Hebr.

e. It is not clear whether this is Bethlehem of Judah, or Bethlehem of Zebulun, Jos 19:15, near Nazareth.

K: ABDON

10:4 After him, Abdon son of Hillel of Pirathon was judge in Israel. 13. 14
·He had forty sons and thirty grandsons who rode seventy young donkeys. He was judge in Israel for eight years. 15
·Abdon son of Hillel of Pirathon then died and was buried at Pirathon in the territory of Ephraim, in the Amalekite highlands.[f]

Samson's birth foretold

Jos 13:2b 13 Again the Israelites began doing what is evil in Yahweh's eyes, and Yahweh delivered them into the power of the Philistines for forty years. 1

Jos 15:33 There was a man of Zorah of the tribe of Dan,[b] called Manoah. His wife was 2
Gn 11:30;18: 1–15 barren; she had borne no children. 3
·The Angel of Yahweh[c] appeared to this
1 S 1 woman and said to her, 'You are barren and have had no child, but you are going Lk 1:5–25 to conceive and give birth to a son.[d] 4
·From now on, take great care. Drink no wine or fermented liquor, and eat nothing unclean. 5
·For you are going to conceive and give birth to a son. No razor is to touch his head, for the boy is to be God's nazirite from his mother's womb; and he will start rescuing Israel from the power of the Philistines.'[e] 6
·The woman then went and told her husband, 'A man of God has just come to me, who looked like the Angel of God, so majestic was he. I did not ask him where he came from, and he did not tell me his name. 7
·But he said to me, "You are going to conceive and will give birth to a son. From now on, drink no wine or fermented liquor, and eat nothing unclean. For the boy is to be God's Nb 6:1a nazirite from his mother's womb to his dying day." '
1 S 1:11h

The Angel appears a second time

Manoah then pleaded with Yahweh and said, 'I beg you, Lord, let the man of God 8 that you sent come to us again and instruct us what to do about the child when he is born.' 9 ·Yahweh heard Manoah's prayer, and the Angel of Yahweh visited the woman again while she was sitting in a field and when her husband Manoah was not with her. 10
·The woman quickly ran and told her husband, 'Look,' she said, 'the man who came to me the other day has appeared to me again.' 11
·Manoah got up, followed his wife, came to the man and said to him, 'Are you the man who spoke to this woman?' He replied, 'I am.' 12
·Manoah then said, 'When your words come true, what will be the boy's way of life?' 13
·The Angel of Yahweh replied to Manoah, 'From everything that I forbade this woman, let her abstain. 14
·Let her swallow nothing that comes from the vine, let her drink no wine or fermented liquor, let her eat nothing unclean and let her obey all the orders that I have given her.'[f] Manoah then said to the Angel of Yahweh, 'Allow us to detain you while we 15 prepare a kid for you'— 16b
·for Manoah did not know that this was the Angel of Yahweh. 16a
·The Angel of Yahweh said to Manoah, 'Even if you did detain me, I should not eat your food; but if you wish to prepare a burnt offering, offer it to Gn 32:30 Yahweh.'
Ex 3:13g,14+ ·Manoah then said to the Angel of Yahweh, 'What is your name, so that 17
Rv 19:12 we may honour you when your words come true?' 18
·The Angel of Yahweh replied, 'Why ask my name? It is a name of wonder.'[g] 19 ·Manoah then took the kid and the oblation and offered it on the rock as a burnt offering to Yahweh the Wonder-
Lv 9:24 worker. Manoah and his wife looked on. 20
Ezk 1:28 ·Now, as the flame rose heavenwards from the altar, the Angel of Yahweh ascended in this flame[h] before the eyes of Rv 1:17 Manoah and his wife, and they fell face downwards on the ground. 21
·After this, the Angel of Yahweh did not appear any more to Manoah and his wife, but Manoah understood that this had been the Angel of Yahweh.[i] 22
·And Manoah said to his Ex 33:20i wife, 'We are certain to die, because we have seen God.' 23
·His wife replied, 'If Yahweh had meant to kill us, he would not have accepted a burnt offering and oblation from us, he would not have let us see all this and, at the same time, have ↗Heb 11:32 told us such things.'
·The woman gave birth to a son and called him Samson. The 24

25 child grew, and Yahweh blessed him; •and the spirit of Yahweh began to stir him in the Camp of Dan, between Zorah and Eshtaol. Lk 1:80;2:40,52 •3:10+ •18:12 Jos 19:41

Samson marries

1 14 Samson went down to Timnah, and at Timnah he noticed a woman, a 2 Philistine girl. •He went home again and told his father and mother this. 'At Timnah', he said, 'I noticed a woman, a Philistine girl. So now get her for me, to be 3 my wife.' •His father and mother said to him, 'Is there no woman among your brothers' daughters or in our entire nation, for you to go and take a wife among these uncircumcised Philistines?' But Samson said to his father, 'Get that one for 4 me; she is the one I am fond of.' •His father and mother did not know that all this came from Yahweh, who was seeking grounds for a quarrel with the Philistines, since at this time the Philistines dominated Israel. [a]

Gn 38:12 Jos 15:10;19:43 Gn 34:4 Gn 24:3–4; 28:1–2

5 Samson went down to Timnah [b] and, as he reached the vineyards of Timnah, he 6 saw a young lion coming roaring towards him. •The spirit of Yahweh seized on him and he tore the lion to pieces with his bare hands as though it were a kid; but he did 7 not tell his father or mother what he had done. •He went down and talked to the 8 woman, and he became fond of her. •Not long after this, Samson went back to marry her. He went out of his way to look at the carcase of the lion, and there was 9 a swarm of bees in the lion's body, and honey. •He took up some honey in his hand and ate it as he went along. On returning to his father and mother, he gave some to them, which they ate too, but he did not tell them that he had taken it from the 10 lion's carcase. •His father then went down to the woman, and Samson made a feast 11 there, as is the custom for young men. •And when the Philistines saw him, they chose thirty companions to stay with him. [c]

Samson's riddle

12 Samson then said to them, 'Let me ask you a riddle. If you can give me the answer during the seven days of feasting, [d] I shall give you thirty pieces of fine linen and 13 thirty festal robes. •But if you cannot tell me the answer, then you in your turn must give me thirty pieces of fine linen and thirty festal robes.' 'Ask your riddle,' 14 they replied, 'we are listening.' •So he said to them:

f. Pirathon was south west of Shechem, in the highlands of Ephraim, called here, for some reason unknown, 'the Amalekite highlands'.

13 a. The story of Samson is different in type from the others in the book, telling, from birth to death, the life of a local hero. Samson is as strong as a giant and as feeble as a child, he seduces women and is deceived by them, he plays a series of tricks on the Philistines but does not deliver the country from them. It has the wry quality of folk-tales in which an oppressor is worsted and can be mocked, though he has to be endured. As against this popular and profane element, Samson has been consecrated to God from his mother's womb, and his 'nazirate' is the source of his strength. This charismatic quality rated him a place among the judges. The narrative consists of a collection of anecdotes: birth of Samson, 13:2–25; marriage and riddle, 14:1–20; Samson and the Philistines, 15:1–8,9–19, and first conclusion, v. 20; Samson at Gaza, 16:1–3; Samson and Delilah, 16:4–21; captivity and death of Samson, 16:22–30, and second conclusion, v. 31.

b. The tribe of Dan originally received a territory containing the places mentioned here: Zorah, Eshtaol, Timnah, see Jos 19:40k; the tribe later emigrated to the north, Jg 17–18. The stories of Samson apparently relate to times later than this migration, in which the Philistines play no part. Clans who did not migrate lived with the Canaanites under Philistine domination.

c. see 2:1; 6:11 and Gn 16:7c. In 13:22 the Angel is identified with Yahweh, as in 6:22–23.

d. 'you are going to conceive . . . a son', probably a doublet of v. 5[a].

e. The prophecy justifies Samson's inclusion with the judges, while conceding that victory over the Philistines will not be achieved by him: this will be the work of Saul and David.

f. Like Jeremiah, Jr 1:5, and the servant, Is 49:1, Samson is consecrated to God from his mother's womb. She must herself observe the rules of the nazirate which will later bind her son.

g. The Angel, like the mysterious being at the Jabbok, Gn 32:30, again evades the question.

h. 'in this flame' Gk MSS; 'in the altar flame' Hebr.

i. Like Abraham for his three visitors, Gn 18, Manoah intends to discharge the duties of hospitality. On the angel's order, the meal is transformed into a burnt offering in the course of which Yahweh reveals himself; compare Gideon's sacrifice, 6:19–22.

14 a. The Deuteronomic editor attempts to reconcile Samson's marriage with his role as adversary of the Philistines. The Philistines had spread inland from the coast and were infiltrating the highlands; they would soon be threatening to dominate the whole of Israel.

b. Hebr. adds 'with his father and mother', probably an addition, see v. 6.

c. Samson contracts the type of marriage in which the husband does not set up house with his wife but pays her occasional visits, bringing presents, see 15:1. This form of marriage is known to ancient oriental law, and also among the Arabs. Samson does not take his bridegroom's escort with him, as custom would require; this is provided by the bride's clan. The figure of thirty is unusually large: perhaps the Philistines wanted to honour him or were frightened of him.

d. Cf. Gn 29:27: the marriage, however, was consummated on the first night, Gn 29:23. • Hebr. adds here 'and if you find'; omitted by some versions.

Out of the eater came what is eaten,
and out of the strong came what is sweet.'

But three days went by and they could not solve the riddle.
16:5–21 On the fourth day[e] they said to Samson's wife, 'Cajole your husband into 15 explaining the riddle to us, or we shall burn you and your father's family to death.
Did you invite us here to rob us?' ·Samson's wife then went to him in tears and 16 said, 'You only hate me, you do not love me. You have asked my fellow countrymen a riddle and told not even me the answer.' He said to her, 'I have not told even my father or mother; why should I tell you?' ·She wept on his neck for the seven 17
Lk 11:8 days that their feasting lasted. She was so persistent that on the seventh day he told her the answer, and she told her fellow-countrymen.
So on the seventh day, before he went into the bedroom,[f] the men of the town 18 said to him:

What is sweeter than honey,
and what stronger than a lion?

He retorted:

If you had not ploughed with my heifer,
you would never have solved my riddle.

Then the spirit of Yahweh seized on him. He went down to Ashkelon, killed 19 thirty men there, took what they wore and gave the festal robes to those who had answered the riddle, then burning with rage returned to his father's house.
Samson's wife was then given to the companion who had acted as his best man. 20

Samson burns the Philistines' harvest

15 Not long after this, at the time of the wheat harvest, Samson visited his wife, 1 with a kid; he said, 'I wish to go to my wife in her room.' But her father would not let him enter. ·'I felt sure', he said, 'that you had taken a real dislike to 2 her, so I gave her to your companion. But would not her younger sister suit you better? Have her instead.' ·But Samson answered them, 'I can get my revenge on 3 the Philistines now only by doing them some damage.' ·So Samson went off and 4 caught three hundred foxes, then took torches and, turning the foxes tail to tail, put a torch between each pair of tails. ·He lit the torches and set the foxes free in 5 the Philistines' cornfields. In this way he burned both sheaves and standing corn, and the vines and olive trees as well.
The Philistines asked, 'Who has done this?' and received the answer, 'Samson, 6 who married the Timnite's daughter; his father-in-law took the wife back again and gave her to his companion instead.' The Philistines then went and burned the woman and her father's family[g] to death. ·Samson said to them, 'If that is how you 7 behave, I swear I will not rest till I have had my revenge on you.' ·And he fell on 8 them systematically and caused great havoc. Then he went down to the cave in the Rock of Etham and lived there.

The donkey's jawbone

2 S 23:11 The Philistines came up and encamped in Judah and made a foray against Lehi. 9
The men of Judah said to them, 'Why are you attacking us?' They replied, 'We 10 have come to seize Samson and to treat him as he has treated us.' ·Three thousand 11 men of Judah then went down to the cave of the Rock of Etham and said to him, 'Don't you know that the Philistines have us in their power? Now what have you done to us?' He replied, 'I have treated them only as they treated me.' ·They then 12 said, 'We have come down to take you, to hand you over to the Philistines.' He said, 'Swear to me not to kill me yourselves.' ·They replied, 'No; we only want to 13 bind you and hand you over to them; we certainly do not want to kill you.' They then bound him with two new ropes and brought him up from the Rock.

14 As he was approaching Lehi, and the Philistines came running towards him with triumphant shouts, the spirit of Yahweh was on him; the ropes on his arms became 15 like burnt strands of flax and the cords round his hands came untied. •Coming across the fresh jawbone of a donkey, he reached out and snatched it up; and with 16 it he slaughtered a thousand men. •And Samson said:

With the jawbone of a donkey I have laid them in heaps,[b] with the jawbone of a donkey I have felled a thousand men.

17 And with that he hurled the jawbone away; and that is why the place was called 18 Ramath-Lehi.[c] •And as he was very thirsty, he called on Yahweh and said, 'You yourself have worked this great deliverance by the hand of your servant; and now 19 must I die of thirst and fall into the hands of the uncircumcised?' •Then God opened a hollow in the ground, the hollow there is at Lehi, and water gushed out of it. Samson drank; his vigour returned and he revived. And therefore this spring 20 was called En-ha-Kore;[d] it is still at Lehi today. •Samson was judge in Israel in the 16:31 days of the Philistines for twenty years.

The gates of Gaza

1 16 Samson then went to Gaza and, seeing a prostitute there, went in to her.
2 The men of Gaza being told, 'Samson has arrived,' surrounded the place and kept watch for him the whole night at the town gate. All that night they were going to make no move, thinking, 'Let us wait until daybreak, and then kill him.'
3 Till midnight, however, Samson stayed in bed, and then at midnight he got up, seized the doors of the town gate and the two posts as well; he tore them up, bar and all, hoisted them on to his shoulders and carried them to the top of the hill overlooking Hebron.[a]

Samson is betrayed by Delilah[b]

4 After this, he fell in love with a woman in the Vale of Sorek; she was called Delilah.
5 The Philistine chiefs visited her and said, 'Cajole him and find out where his great 14:15–18 strength comes from, and how we can master him, so that we can bind him and subdue him. In return we shall each give you eleven hundred silver shekels.'
6 Delilah said to Samson, 'Please tell me where your great strength comes from,
7 and what would be needed to bind and subdue you.' •Samson replied, 'If I were bound with seven new bowstrings which had not yet been dried, I should lose my 8 strength and become like any other man.' •The Philistine chiefs brought Delilah seven new bowstrings which had not yet been dried and she took them and bound 9 him with them. •She had men concealed in her room, and she shouted, 'The Philistines are on you, Samson!' Then he snapped the bowstrings as a strand of tow snaps at a touch of the fire. So the secret of his strength remained unknown.
10 Delilah then said to Samson, 'You have been laughing at me and telling me lies.
11 But now please tell me what would be needed to bind you.' •He replied, 'If I were bound tightly with new ropes which have never been used, I should lose 12 my strength and become like any other man.' •Delilah then took new ropes and bound him with them, and she shouted, 'The Philistines are on you, Samson!'

e. 'fourth day' versions; 'seventh day' Hebr., but see v. 17.

f. 'into the bedroom' hahadrah conj., see 15:1; Hebr. haharsah unintelligible.

15 a. 'her father's family' MSS, versions, see 14:15; 'her father' Hebr.

b. 'laid them in heaps' hamor hamarti conj.; Hebr. hamor hamoratayim unintelligible. There is a play on words here between hamor 'donkey' and hamar 'to heap' or 'mass'.

c. lit. 'the height of the jawbone'.

d. That is, 'the spring of the Partridge'. The Hebr. word for 'partridge' means the 'caller'. The topographical name is accounted for by Samson's having called to God, v. 18. The previous story similarly accounts for the name Ramath-Lehi.

16 a. Hebron is about 40 miles (64 km) from Gaza. This exploit of the Danite Hercules perhaps accounted for a place-name near Hebron, at the beginning of the track leading down to Gaza.

b. Women have led Samson into all his adventures, and from these he has escaped, thanks to his strength given by God to his nazir. Delilah, the last of them, destroys him by making him break his nazir's vow.

She had men concealed in her room, but he snapped the ropes round his arms like thread.

Delilah then said to Samson, 'Up to now you have been laughing at me and 13 telling me lies. Tell me what would be needed to bind you.' He replied, 'If you wove the seven locks of my hair into the warp of a cloth and beat them together tight with the reed, I should lose my strength and become like any other man.'
She lulled him to sleep, then wove the seven locks of his hair into the warp, beat 14 them together tight with the reed and shouted, 'The Philistines are on you, Samson!' He woke from his sleep and pulled out both reed and warp. [c] So the secret of his strength remained unknown.

Delilah said to him, 'How can you say that you love me, when your heart is not 15 with me? Three times now you have laughed at me and have not told me where your great strength comes from.' •And day after day she pestered him with her 16 talk, nagging him till he grew sick to death of it. •At last he confided everything to 17 her; he said to her, 'A razor has never touched my head, because I have been God's nazirite from my mother's womb. If my head were shorn, then my power would leave me and I should lose my strength and become like any other man.'
Delilah then realized that he had really confided in her; she sent for the Philistine 18 princes with the message, 'Come just once more: he has confided everything to me.' And the Philistine chiefs came to her with the money in their hands. •She 19 lulled Samson to sleep in her lap, summoned a man and had him shear off the seven locks from his head. Thus for the first time she got control over him, and his strength left him. •She cried, 'The Philistines are on you, Samson!' He awoke from 20 sleep, thinking, 'I shall break free as I have done time after time and shake myself 1 S 16:14c clear.' But he did not know that Yahweh had left him. •The Philistines seized him, 21 put out his eyes and took him down to Gaza. They fettered him with a double chain of bronze and he spent his time turning the mill in the prison.

But his hair began to grow again when it had been cut off. 22

Samson's revenge and death

The Philistine chiefs assembled to offer a great sacrifice to Dagon their god. [d] And 23 amid their festivities they said:

> Into our hands our god has delivered
> Samson our enemy.

And as soon as the people saw their god, they acclaimed him, shouting his praises: 24

> Into our hands our god has delivered
> Samson [e] our enemy, > the man who laid our country waste > and killed so many of us.

And as their hearts were full of joy, they shouted, 'Summon Samson out to amuse 25 us.' So Samson was summoned from prison, and he performed feats in front of them; then he was put to stand between the pillars. •Samson then said to the boy 26 who was leading him by the hand, 'Lead me where I can touch the pillars supporting the building, so that I can lean against them.' •Now the building was crowded with 27 men and women. All the Philistine chiefs were there, while about three thousand men and women were watching Samson's feats from the terrace.
Samson called on Yahweh and cried out, 'Lord Yahweh, I beg you, remember 28 me; give me strength again this once, O God, and let me be revenged on the Philistines at one blow for my two eyes.' •And Samson took hold of the two central 29 pillars supporting the building, and braced himself with his right arm round one and his left round the other; •and he shouted, 'Let me die with the Philistines!' He 30 then heaved with all his might, and the building fell on the chiefs and on all the people there. Those whom he brought to their death by his death outnumbered

31 those whom he had done to death during his life.[f] ·His brothers and the whole of his father's family came down and carried him away. They took him back and buried him between Zorah and Eshtaol in the tomb of Manoah his father. He had judged Israel for twenty years.[g] 15:20

IV: APPENDICES[a]

A: THE SANCTUARY OF MICAH AND THE SANCTUARY OF DAN[b]

Micah's domestic shrine

1, 2 17 In the highlands of Ephraim there was a man called Micayehu.[c] ·He said to his mother, 'The eleven hundred silver shekels which were taken from you and concerning which you uttered a curse, having said in my hearing . . .[d] Look, I have got that silver. I was the one who took it.' His mother said, 'May Yahweh 3 bless my boy!' ·He gave the eleven hundred shekels back to his mother, who said,
'I have indeed vowed to give this silver to Yahweh for my son, to have a statue carved and an idol cast in metal, but now I should like to give it back to you.' He, however, returned the money to his mother.
4 His mother then took two hundred silver shekels and gave them to the metal-worker. With them, he carved a statue (and cast an idol in metal)[e] which was put in 5 Micayehu's house. ·This man Micah owned a shrine; he made an ephod and some 6 domestic images, and installed one of his sons to be his priest.[f] ·In those days there Gn 31:19e was no king in Israel, and everyone did as he saw fit. 1 S 2:28*l*
·1 S 7:1
·18:1;19:1;
21:25
7 There was a young man of Bethlehem in Judah,[g] of the clan of Judah, who was ·Dt 12:8
8 a Levite and resided there as a stranger. ·This man left the town of Bethlehem in Ex 12:48*o* Judah to settle wherever he could find a home. On his travels he came to the 9 highlands of Ephraim and to Micah's house. ·Micah asked him, 'Where do you come from?' The other replied, 'I am a Levite from Bethlehem in Judah. I am 10 travelling, and am going to settle wherever I can find a home.' ·Micah said to him,
'Stay here with me; be my father and priest and I shall give you ten silver shekels a

c. vv. 13–14 have been completed, following Gk; a phrase is missing from Hebr. The loom is a horizontal one. The warp of the material being woven is stretched between uprights driven into the ground. After each transverse movement of the shuttle, the woof is beaten in with the reed.

d. Dagon was originally the major god of the region of the Middle-Euphrates. His cult spread into Syria and Palestine, see the place-name Beth-Dagon, Jos 15:41; 19:27. He was adopted by the Philistines, who seem very quickly to have forgotten their own ancestral religion. Dagon reappears in the story of the ark, 1 S 5:2seq.

e. Added for the sake of the rhythm and to correspond with v. 23; omitted by Hebr.

f. Samson's end is truly heroic: he gives his life by using his God-given strength, for the last time, against the enemies of his people.

g. Second Deuteronomic conclusion, in the style of the notices on the 'minor' judges.

17 a. The two narratives, 17–18 and 19–21, of differing origins, have been added here since they relate to events previous to the monarchy. Though in themselves very old, they were probably added to Jg in post-exilic times.

b. The main subject of 17–18 is the founding of the sanctuary at Dan and the origin of its priesthood. The tradition is certainly Danite in origin, though presented in an unfavourable light: the idol of the sanctuary is obtained by a double theft; the priesthood derives from a foot-loose Levite who deserts his first employer for the prospect of gain. Conceivably, this unfavourable construction was put about by the ministers of the royal sanctuary at Dan founded by Jeroboam, who installed priests of another line, 1 K 12:28–31. The royal prerogative in matters religious is referred to approvingly in 17:6; 18:1—a notion very alien to the Dt school of thought. This story is linked to that of the Danite migration, see 18:1a.

c. 'Micayehu' means 'Who is like Yahweh?' and is elsewhere abbreviated to 'Micah'.

d. The words of a curse, being charged with power, are not repeated, and their effect is counteracted by the subsequent blessing, and perhaps by the consecration of some of the silver. vv. 2–3, translated as they stand, are obscure.

e. Very possibly there was only one idol, see 18:20,30,31, carved out of wood and plated with silver, and the distinction in 18:17,18 is merely editorial, one or the other having been added under the influence of Dt 27:15. This is the only reasonably certain example of a cult-statue of Yahweh, the oft-repeated prohibition in the Decalogue, see Ex 20:4, notwithstanding. It is not condemned, and nor are the ephod and smaller cultic statues (teraphim), v. 5, although these later became suspect to official Yahwism.

f. i.e. according to the ancient custom authorising the head of clans and families to exercise the functions of priest themselves and to appoint their own priests. The rest of the narrative will, however, show that the superior rights of the Levites were admitted nonetheless.

g. Unless Levite is taken here to designate function and not membership of the priestly tribe (which is contradicted in 18:30), the young man could not be both a Levite and a member of the clan of Judah. He could, however, live in Bethlehem as a 'resident stranger', see Ex 12:48*o*.

year, and clothing and food.'[h] ·The Levite agreed to remain in the man's house, 11 and the young man became like one of his sons to him. ·Micah installed the Levite; 12 the young man became Micah's priest and stayed in his house. ·And 13 Micah said, 'Now I know that Yahweh will treat me well, since I have this Levite as priest.'

1:34;5:17 Jos 19:40k The Danites in search of a territory[a]

17:6+ 18 In those days there was no king in Israel. 1
Now in those days the tribe of Dan was in search of a territory to live in, for Jos 19:47 until then no territory had fallen to them among the tribes of Israel. ·From their 2 13:2b clan the Danites sent five brave men[b] from Zorah and Eshtaol to reconnoitre the country and explore it. They said to them, 'Go and explore the country.' The five men came to the highlands of Ephraim, as far as Micah's house, and spent the night there. ·When they were near Micah's house, they recognised the voice of the young 3 Levite and, going nearer, said to him, 'Who brought you here? What are you doing here? What is keeping you here?' ·He replied, 'Micah has made certain arrange- 4 ments with me. He pays me a wage and I act as his priest.' ·They replied, 'Then 5 Dt 33:8 consult God, so that we may know whether the journey we are on will lead to success.' ·The priest replied, 'Go in peace; Yahweh is watching over 6 your journey.'

The five men then left and, arriving at Laish, saw that the people living there had 7 an untroubled existence, according to the customs of the Sidonians, peaceful and trusting, that there was no lack or shortage of any sort in the territory, that they were a long way away from the Sidonians and that they had no contact with the Aramaeans.[c]

They then went back to their brothers at Zorah and Eshtaol and, when the latter 8 asked them, 'What have you to report?' ·they said, 'Up! we must go against them, 9 since we have looked at the country and it is excellent, though you take no action!
Waste no time in setting out and taking possession of the country. ·When you get 10 there, you will find a trusting people. The country is wide, and God has put it at your mercy. It is a place where there is no lack of anything on earth.'

The migration of the Danites

13:2;18:2 From these places, consequently, from the clan of Danites at Zorah and Eshtaol, 11 six hundred men set out equipped for war. ·They went up and camped at Kiriath- 12 13:25 Jearim in Judah; and for this reason the place is still called the Camp of Dan today.
It lies to the west of Kiriath-Jearim. ·From there they entered the highlands of 13
Ephraim and came to Micah's house.

The five men who had been to reconnoitre the country[d] then spoke to their 14 brothers. 'Do you know', they said, 'that in these houses there is an ephod, some domestic images, a carved statue and an idol cast in metal? So now work out what you have got to do!'

So, turning off the road, they went to the young Levite's dwelling, to Micah's 15 house, and greeted him peacefully. ·While the six hundred men of the Danites,[e] 16 equipped for war, stood at the threshold of the gate, ·the five who had been to 17 reconnoitre the country went on into the house and took the carved statue, the ephod, the domestic images and the idol cast in metal; meanwhile the priest remained at the threshold of the gate with the six hundred men equipped for war.
These men, having entered Micah's house, took the carved statue, the ephod, the 18 domestic images and the idol cast in metal. The priest, however, said, 'What are you doing?' ·'Be quiet,' they replied. 'Put your hand over your mouth and come 19 with us, and become our father and priest. Are you better off as domestic priest to one man, or as priest to a tribe and clan in Israel?' ·The priest was delighted; he 20 took the ephod, the domestic images and the carved statue, and went off among the people.

Resuming their original line of march, they set off, having put the women, 21

22 children, livestock and baggage out in front. ·They had gone some distance from Micah's house, when the people living in the houses near Micah's house raised the 23 alarm and set off in pursuit of the Danites. ·As they shouted after the Danites, the Gn 31:22seq.
latter, turning about, said to Micah, 'What is the matter with you, that you are 24 shouting like this?' ·He replied, 'You have taken away my god, which I have had made, and the priest as well. You are going away, and what have I got left? And 25 now you ask me, "What is the matter?" ' ·The Danites said, 'Let us hear no more from you, or quick-tempered men may set about you, and this might cost you your 26 life and the lives of your family!' ·So the Danites went on their way; and Micah, seeing that they were the stronger, turned and went home.

Capture of Laish. Foundation of Dan and the sanctuary there

27 So, having taken the god made by Micah, and the priest who had been his, the Danites marched on Laish, on a peaceful and trusting people. They put it to the 28 sword and they burned down the town. ·There was no one to come to the rescue, since it was a long way from Sidon and had no contact with the Aramaeans. It lay in the valley running towards Beth-Rehob. They rebuilt the town and settled in it 29 and called it Dan, from the name of Dan their ancestor who had been born to Jos 19:47
30 Israel; originally, however, the town had been called Laish. ·The Danites erected the carved statue for themselves. Jonathan son of Gershom, son of Moses, and his Ex 2:22;18:3
sons after him were priests for the tribe of Dan till the day when the inhabitants of 2 K 15:29 31 the country were carried away into exile.[f] ·The carved statue made by Micah they installed for their own use, and there it stayed as long as the house of God remained at Shiloh.[g]

B: THE CRIME AT GIBEAH AND THE WAR AGAINST BENJAMIN[a]

The Levite of Ephraim and his concubine

1 19 In those days, when there was no king in Israel, there was a man, a Levite, 17:6+ whose home was deep in the highlands of Ephraim. He took as concubine a 2 woman from Bethlehem in Judah. ·In a fit of anger[b] his concubine left him and went back to her father's house at Bethlehem in Judah, and she stayed there for 3 some time—four months. ·Her husband then set out after her, to appeal to her affections and fetch her back; he had his servant and two donkeys with him. As he

h. Hebr. adds 'the Levite went', doublet of opening words of v. 11.

18 a. The Danites who lived for some time in the region of Zorah and Eshtaol, see 13:2b, could not hold their ground there, see Jos 19:40k, and were expelled by the Amorites, according to Jg 1:34–35. Their migration northwards was preceded by a reconnaissance, reminiscent of that conducted by Caleb from Kadesh, Nb 13. The date is uncertain. Absence of any mention of the Philistines, here and in 1:34–35, suggests the very beginning of the period of the Judges; furthermore, Dan's positioning beside Asher in the song of Deborah, 5:17, suggests that Dan was already settled in the north. This argument, however, is not certain, and the ease with which the migration took place would seem more probable after the victory of Deborah and Barak than before it. We have here a further example of individual tribal action, see ch.1, and a proof that tribes continued to move about after the death of Joshua; see the half-tribe of Manasseh, Nb 32:1a.

b. Hebr. adds 'from their borders, some men', omitted by Gk.

c. 'there was no . . . the territory' minimal emendation to a doubtful text. • 'the Aramaeans' Gk; 'the man' Hebr.; as in v. 28.

d. Hebr. adds 'Laish', gloss absent in Gk.

e. 'of the Danites', accidentally misplaced at the end of the v. in Hebr. The following passage seems from its repetitions to be a conflation of two sources: one tells of the visit of the five explorers to the young Levite, while the six hundred Danites carry off the statue, v. 18[a]; according to the other, the former explorers are the ones who steal the statue, while the priest, standing at the door with the main body of men, protests, vv. 16–17,18[b].

f. This v. is an addition. To a doublet in v. 31[a], it adds a note on the priesthood of this first Danite sanctuary. That its first ministrant was of levitical descent is very likely, although it shocked the copyists, who added an n above the line, thus transforming the name Moses (mosheh) into Manasseh (manasheh). The exile mentioned here is the deportation following Tiglath-Pileser's campaign of 734.

g. The end of the v., in contradiction with v. 30, is another addition and takes as point of reference the closing of the sanctuary at Shiloh, after the capture of the ark in the days of Samuel, 1 S 4.

19 a. A post-exilic editor has combined two traditions here, as clearly appears in ch.20–21: one of them belongs to the sanctuary at Mizpah, the other to that at Bethel. This explains the two accounts of the defeat of Benjamin and the fall of Gibeah (see, for example, 20:30–32 and 36[b]–44), and the two means adopted for assuring the survival of the tribe of Benjamin, 21:1–12,15–23.

b. 'in a fit of anger' versions; 'she was unfaithful to him' Hebr., but see v. 3.

was arriving at the house of the girl's father, the father saw him and came happily to meet him. ·His father-in-law, the girl's father, kept him there; and he stayed 4 with him for three days; they ate and drank and spent the nights there. ·On the 5 fourth day they got up early, and the Levite was preparing to leave when the girl's father said to his son-in-law, 'Have something to eat to gather strength; you can leave later.' ·So they sat down and began eating and drinking, the two of them 6 together; then the girl's father said to the young man, 'Please agree to spend tonight here too and enjoy yourself.' ·And when the man got up to leave, the 7 father-in-law pressed him again, and he spent another night there. ·On the fifth 8 day, the Levite got up early to leave, but the girl's father said to him, 'Please gather strength first!' So they stayed on[c] until the sun began to go down, and the two men had a meal together. ·The husband was getting up to leave with his concubine and 9 his servant when his father-in-law, the girl's father, said, 'Look, day is fading into evening. Please spend the night here. Look, the day is nearly over. Spend the night here and enjoy yourself. Then, early tomorrow, you can leave on your journey and go back home.' ·But the man, refusing to stay the night, got up and went on his 10 Jos 15:8; 18:16,28 2 S 5:9f 1 Ch 11:4–5 way, until he arrived within sight of Jebus[d]—that is, Jerusalem. He had with him two donkeys saddled, his concubine and his servant.[e]

Gn 19:1–11 Ho 9:9;10:9 The crime of the men of Gibeah[f]

By the time they were near Jebus, the light was going fast. The servant said to his 11 master, 'Come on, please, let us turn off into this Jebusite town and spend the night there.' ·His master replied, 'We shall not turn off into a town of foreigners, of 12 people who are not Israelites; we shall go on to Gibeah.' ·He then said to his 13 servant, 'Come on, we shall try to reach one or other of those places, either Gibeah or Ramah, and spend the night there.' ·So they kept going and went on with their 14 journey. As they approached Gibeah in Benjamin, the sun was setting. ·So they 15 turned that way to spend the night in Gibeah. Once inside, the Levite sat down in the town square, but no one offered to take them in for the night.

Eventually, an old man came along at nightfall from his work in the fields. He 16 too was from the highlands of Ephraim, although he was living in Gibeah; the people of the place, however, were Benjaminites. ·Looking up, he saw the traveller 17 in the town square. 'Where are you going?' said the old man, 'And where have you come from?' ·'We are on our way', the other replied, 'from Bethlehem in Judah to 18 a place deep in the highlands of Ephraim. That is where I come from. I have been to Bethlehem in Judah and now I am going home,[g] but no one has offered to take me into his house, ·although we have straw and provender for our donkeys, and I 19 also have bread and wine for myself, and this maidservant and the young man who is travelling with your servant; we are short of nothing.' ·'Welcome,' 20 said the old man. 'I shall see that you have all you want. You cannot spend the night in the square.' ·So he took him into his house and gave the donkeys proven- 21
der. The travellers washed their feet, then ate and drank.

Gn 19:4seq. While they were enjoying themselves, some townsmen, scoundrels, came crowd- 22 ing round the house; they battered on the door and said to the old man, master of the house, 'Send out the man who went into your house, we should like to have intercourse with him!' ·The master of the house went out to them and said, 'No, 23 brothers, please, do not be so wicked. Since this man is now under my roof, do not commit such an infamy.[h] ·Here is my daughter; she is a virgin;[i] I shall bring her 24 out to you. Ill-treat her, do what you please with her, but do not commit such an infamy against this man.' ·But the men would not listen to him. So the Levite took 25 hold of his concubine and brought her out to them. They had intercourse with her and ill-treated her all night till morning; when dawn was breaking they let her go.

At daybreak the girl came and fell on the threshold of her husband's host, and 26
she stayed there until it was light. ·In the morning her husband got up and, opening 27 the door of the house, was going out to continue his journey when he saw the woman, his concubine, lying at the door of the house with her hands on the 28 threshold. •'Get up,' he said, 'we must leave!' There was no answer. He then 29 loaded her on his donkey and began the journey home. •Having reached his house, he took his knife, took hold of his concubine and cut her, limb by limb, into twelve 1 S 11:7 30 pieces; he then sent her throughout the territory of Israel.[j] •He gave instructions to his messengers, 'This is what you are to say to all the Israelites, "Has anything like this been done since the day when the Israelites came out of Egypt until today?

Take this to heart, discuss it; then give your verdict." '[k] And all who saw it declared, 'Never has such a thing been done or been seen since the Israelites came out of Egypt until today.'

The Israelites vow to avenge the crime at Gibeah

1 20 The Israelites then all turned out and, as one man, the entire community from Dan to Beersheba,[a] including Gilead, assembled in Yahweh's pres-2 ence at Mizpah. •The leaders of the entire people, of all the tribes of Israel, were present at this assembly of God's people, four hundred thousand trained infantry.[b] 20:17 3 The Benjaminites heard that the Israelites had gone up to Mizpah. The Israelites 4 then said, 'Tell us how this crime was committed.' •The Levite, husband of 5 the murdered woman, spoke in reply and said, •'The men of Gibeah ganged up against me and, during the night, surrounded the house where I was lodging. They 6 intended to murder me. They raped my concubine to death. •I then took my concubine, cut her up and sent her throughout the entire territory of the heritage of Israel, since these men had committed a shameful act, an infamy, in Israel.
7 Now, all you Israelites, discuss the matter and give your decision here and now.'
8 The whole people stood up as one man and said, 'None of us will go home, none
9 of us will go back to his house! •And this is what we are now going to do to Gibeah.
10 We shall draw lots[c] •and, throughout the tribes of Israel, select ten men out of a hundred, a hundred out of a thousand and a thousand out of ten thousand to collect food for the people, so that, on their arrival, the latter may treat Gibeah[d] in 11 Benjamin as this infamy perpetrated in Israel deserves.' •Thus, as one man, all the men of Israel mustered against the town.

Obduracy of the Benjaminites

12 The tribes of Israel sent messengers throughout the tribe[e] of Benjamin to say, 13 'What is this crime which has been committed in your territory? •Now, give up these men, these scoundrels, living in Gibeah, so that we can put them to death Dt 17:12

c. 'they stayed on' conj.; 'stay!' (plural) Hebr.

d. This name for Jerusalem is found only here, vv. 10–11, and in 1 Ch 11:4seq. It is derived from the name of its inhabitants at the time of the conquest—the Jebusites—but the city was in fact always called Jerusalem.

e. 'and his servant' versions; 'with him' repeated in Hebr.

f. At Gibeah in Benjamin, the only person prepared to take the Levite in is another Ephraimite, v. 16, and he is willing to fulfil the duties of hospitality to the point of heroism, v. 24. The Benjaminites of the town fall gravely short in this respect, v. 15 and their later behaviour is monstrous. The story serves as cloak for denigrating Saul (Judaean in inspiration?), Gibeah having been his capital. The whole narrative, in its present form, is reminiscent of the story of Lot, Gn 19:1–11.

g. 'going home' emended in line with v. 29; 'going to the house of Yahweh' Hebr.

h. The Hebr. term, translated as 'infamy', is applied to grave transgressions of the divine Law, above all moral transgressions which, in reaction to the licentiousness of Canaanite cults, are regarded as peculiarly reprehensible. Here, whatever crime was intended, it was compounded by the breach of the sacred laws of hospitality.

i. Hebr. adds 'and his (the Levite's) concubine'.

j. The grim appeal for vengeance is addressed to all Israel, see 20:1,2,10. This might be taken to stress the solidarity of the tribes when faced with a gross breach of the religious law; their common reaction, however, would appear to be unique, and it is more likely that the scope of the original story has been extended from a more limited encounter between Ephraim and Benjamin. Hence it should probably be regarded as one further episode in Ephraim's struggle for tribal supremacy, see 8:1a; 12:1.

k. 'He gave instructions . . . to say' restored following some Gk MSS; missing from Hebr., which only has 'Take this to heart . . . then give your verdict' retained at the end of v.

20 a. Stereotyped formula, used outside the Pentateuch, to indicate the northern and southern extremities of the territory occupied by Israel, see 1 S 3:20; 2 S 3:10; 1 K 5:5. Here, as an exception, the territory of Gilead is mentioned too, for the sake of the story told in 21:8–12. Other stereotyped definitions of the territory: from north to south, 'from the Pass of Hamath to the Torrent of Egypt (or of the Arabah)', 1 K 8.65; 2 K 14:25; and from south to north, 'from the Torrent of Egypt to the Great River (the Euphrates)', Gn 15:18; 2 K 24:7; see Nb 34:1a.

b. This figure, like those in the description of the battles, see vv. 15,21, is obviously exaggerated.

c. 'We shall draw lots' Gk; 'against it, by lot' Hebr.

d. 'Gibeah' versions; 'Geba' Hebr.

e. 'tribe' versions; 'tribes' Hebr.

and wipe out this evil from Israel.' The Benjaminites, however, would not listen to their brother Israelites.

The first engagements[f]

The Benjaminites left their towns and mustered at Gibeah to fight the Israelites. 14
At the time, a count was made of the Benjaminites from the various towns: there 15 were twenty-six thousand swordsmen; and the count excluded the inhabitants of Gibeah.[g] ·In this great army there were seven hundred first-rate left-handers, 16 every man of whom could sling a stone at a hair and not miss it.

A count was also held of the men of Israel, excluding Benjamin: there were four 17 hundred thousand men, all experienced swordsmen. ·They moved off, up to 18 20:27 Ex 33:7e 1:2 Bethel, to consult God. The Israelites put the question, 'Which of us is to go first into battle against the Benjaminites?' And Yahweh replied, 'Judah is to go first.'

In the morning, the Israelites moved off and pitched their camp over against 19
Jos 7:4,5 Gibeah. ·The men of Israel advanced to do battle with Benjamin; they drew up 20 their battle line in front of Gibeah. ·But the Benjaminites sallied out from Gibeah 21 and that day massacred twenty-two thousand Israelites. ·[h] The Israelites went and 23 wept before Yahweh until evening; they then consulted Yahweh; they asked, 'Shall we join battle again with the sons of our brother Benjamin?' Yahweh replied, 'March against him!' ·The army of the men of Israel then took fresh heart 22 and again drew up their battle line in the same place as the day before. ·This second 24 day, the Israelites advanced against the Benjaminites, ·and, this second day, 25
Benjamin sallied out from Gibeah to meet them and massacred another eighteen thousand Israelites, all experienced swordsmen.

Jos 7:6–9; 8:1 Then all the Israelites and the whole people went off to Bethel; they wept and 26
sat in Yahweh's presence; they fasted all day till the evening and presented burnt offerings and communion sacrifices before Yahweh. ·The Israelites then consulted 27
Nb 25:7–13 Yahweh. In those days, the ark of the covenant of God was there, ·and Phinehas 28 son of Eleazer, son of Aaron was its minister at the time. They said, 'Ought I to go into battle against the sons of my brother Benjamin again, or should I stop?' Yahweh replied, 'March! For tomorrow I shall deliver him into your hands.'[i]

Defeat of Benjamin[j]

Jos 8:4–9 Israel then positioned troops in ambush all round Gibeah. ·On the third day the 29, 30 Israelites marched against the Benjaminites and, as before, drew up their line in Jos 8:6.16 front of Gibeah. ·The Benjaminites sallied out to engage the people and let 31 themselves be drawn away from the town. As before, they began by killing those of the people who were on the roads, one of which runs up to Bethel, and the other to Gibeah[k] through open country: some thirty men of Israel. ·The Benjaminites 32 thought, 'We have beaten them, as we did the first time,' but the Israelites had decided, 'We shall run away and draw them away from the town along the roads.'

All the Israelites then retreated and re-formed at Baal-Tamar, while the Israelite 33 troops in ambush surged from their positions to the west of Gibeah.[l] ·Ten thousand 34 picked men, chosen from the whole of Israel, launched their attack on Gibeah. The battle was fierce; and the others knew nothing of the disaster impending. Yahweh defeated Benjamin before Israel and that day the Israelites killed twenty- 35 five thousand one hundred men of Benjamin, all of them trained swordsmen.

The Benjaminites saw that they were beaten.[m] The Israelites had given ground 36 to Benjamin, since they were relying on the ambush which they had positioned close to Gibeah. ·The troops in ambush threw themselves against Gibeah at top 37
Jos 8:19 speed; fanning out, they put the whole town to the sword. ·Now it had been 38 agreed between the Israelites and those of the ambush[n] that the latter should raise a smoke signal from the town, ·whereupon the Israelites in the thick of the battle 39 would turn about.[o] Benjamin began by killing some of the Israelites, about thirty men, and thought, 'We have certainly beaten them, as we did in the first battle.'
Jos 8:20 But the signal, a column of smoke, began to rise from the town, and the Benjamin- 40 ites looking back saw the whole town going up in flames to the sky.

41 The Israelites then turned about, and the Benjaminites were seized with terror, for they saw that disaster had struck them.
42 They broke before the Israelite onslaught and made for the desert, but the fighters pressed them hard, while the others coming out of the town[p] took and Jos 8:21–22 43 slaughtered them from the rear. ·They hemmed in the Benjaminites, pursued them
44 relentlessly,[q] crushing them opposite Gibeah on the east. ·Of Benjamin, eighteen 45 thousand men fell, all of them brave men. ·They then turned tail and fled into the desert, towards the Rock of Rimmon. Five thousand of them were picked off on the roads, and the rest were relentlessly pursued as far as Gideon,[r] two thousand 46 of them being killed. ·The total number of Benjaminites who fell that day was 47 twenty-five thousand swordsmen, all of them brave men. ·Six hundred men, however, turned tail and escaped into the desert, to the Rock of Rimmon, and there they stayed for four months.
48 The men of Israel then went back to the Benjaminites, and put them to the sword—people,[s] livestock and everything else that came their way in the town.
And they fired all the towns involved.

Remorse of the Israelites[a]

1 21 The men of Israel had sworn this oath at Mizpah, 'None of us is to give his 2 daughter in marriage to Benjamin.' ·The people went to Bethel and stayed there until evening, sitting before God and raising their voices, made a great 3 lament, ·and exclaiming, 'Yahweh, God of Israel, why has this happened in Israel
4 that a tribe should be missing from Israel today?[b] ·The next day the people got up early and built an altar there; they presented burnt offerings and communion 5 sacrifices. ·The Israelites then said, 'Out of all the tribes of Israel, who has not come to Yahweh, to the assembly?'—for they had sworn a solemn oath that anyone who did not come to Yahweh at Mizpah would certainly die.
6 Now the Israelites felt sorry about Benjamin their brother. 'Today', they said, 7 'a tribe has been amputated from Israel. ·What shall we do to provide wives for those who are left, since we have sworn by Yahweh not to give them any of our own daughters in marriage?'

The girls of Jabesh given to the Benjaminites

8 They then asked, 'Out of the tribes of Israel, who is it that has not come to Yahweh

f. The account of the battle of Gibeah is similar both in incident and in style to the account of the capture of Ai, Jos 7–8. Rather than allow an editorial influence of Jos on Jg, it is better to hold that the fictitious account of the latter has been modelled on this historic victory.

g. Hebr. adds 'seven hundred picked men', doublet of v. 16[a].

h. vv. 22 and 23 have been interchanged for the sake of the sense; in point of fact, the vv. belong to two distinct traditions.

i. The first two attempts had also been made on Yahweh's orders, vv. 18,23, but God promises victory only at the third consultation. In the parallel story, Jos 7, the initial failure is attributed to a violation of the curse of destruction. No reason, however, is given here.

j. The remainder of the ch. consists of the traditions of Mizpah and Bethel clumsily combined: hence the incoherence of the text.

k. The skirmish took place between Bethel, where the Israelites had their base, and Gibeah, where the Benjaminites had theirs.

l. 'to the west of Gibeah' versions; 'from the Plain of Geba' Hebr.

m. The sentence is concluded in v. 45; the intermediate vv. 36[b]–44 do not, however, come from a single source.

n. After 'ambush', Hebr. adds 'increases'; omitted by Gk.

o. 'would turn about' conj.; 'turned about' Hebr., but see v. 41.

p. 'town' Gk; 'towns' Hebr. 'took . . . them from the rear' battawek conj.; Hebr. betoko 'in the middle of it'. The Benjaminites were caught between the main body of troops and the ambush contingent, see for the same operation, Jos 8:21–22.

q. 'pursued them relentlessly' conj.; 'had them pursued' Hebr. • 'Geba' conj.; 'Gibeah' Hebr.

r. A place unknown. The primitive text had perhaps Geba or Gabaon.

s. the 'men' metim conj.; Hebr. metom (the city) as a whole.

21 a. This ch. juxtaposes two traditions, linked together by the concluding words of v. 14. The first possibly derives from the sanctuary at Mizpah, and the second from the one at Bethel, but the post-exilic editor has worked on them so much that it is hard to be sure. The Jabesh-Gilead incident is intended to explain the links subsisting between that town and Benjamin in the days of Saul, see 1 S 11:1; 30:11–13. The story of the rape of the daughters of Shiloh is built on a cultic memory of an ancient grape-harvest festival, attended by girls who wanted to find a husband.

b. Inter-tribal conflicts do not weaken the sense of solidarity binding the people of Israel together, and the post-exilic editor emphasises this by frequently speaking of the 'community'.

at Mizpah?' It was discovered that no one from Jabesh in Gilead had come to the camp for the assembly; ·for, a count having been made of the people, none of the 9 inhabitants of Jabesh in Gilead was present. ·The community then despatched 10
Nb 31:5–6 twelve thousand of their bravest men there, with these orders: 'Go and slaughter all the inhabitants of Jabesh in Gilead, including the women and children. ·This is 11 what you are to do. All males and all those women who have ever slept with a man, Nb 31:17–18 Jos 6:17c you will put under the curse of destruction, but the lives of the virgins you will spare.' And this they did. [c] ·Among the inhabitants of Jabesh in Gilead they found 12 four hundred young virgins who had never slept with a man, and brought them to the camp (to Shiloh in the territory of Canaan).

The whole community then sent messengers to offer peace to the Benjaminites 13 who were at the Rock of Rimmon. ·Benjamin then came home: they were given 14 those of the women of Jabesh in Gilead whose lives had been spared, but there were not enough for all.

The rape of the daughters of Shiloh

The people felt sorry about Benjamin, Yahweh having made a breach in the tribes 15 of Israel. ·And the elders of the community said, 'What shall we do to provide 16 wives for the survivors, since the women of Benjamin have been wiped out?' They went on, 'How can we preserve a remnant [d] for Benjamin so that a tribe may 17 not be lost to Israel?' ·We cannot give them our own daughters in marriage'—for 18 the Israelites had taken an oath, 'Accursed be the man who gives a wife to Benjamin!'

1 S 1:3d 'However,' they said, 'there is the feast of Yahweh, held every year at Shiloh.' [e] 19
(The town lies north of Bethel, east of the highway that runs from Bethel up to Shechem, and south of Lebonah.) ·So they told the Benjaminites to do as follows, 20
Ex 15:20+ 'Put yourselves in ambush in the vineyards. ·Keep watch: when the girls of Shiloh 21 come out in groups to dance, you then come out of the vineyards, each of you seize a wife from the girls of Shiloh and make for Benjaminite territory. ·If their fathers 22 or brothers come and complain to us, we shall say, "Let us have them, since we could not take wives for everyone in the battle; and you could not give them to them, or you would then have been guilty." ' [f]

The Benjaminites did this and, from the dancers whom they caught, took as 23 many wives as there were men and then, setting off, went back to their heritage, rebuilt the towns and settled down in them.

The Israelites then dispersed, each man to rejoin his tribe and clan, each leaving 24 that place for his own heritage.

17:6+ In those days there was no king in Israel, and everyone did as he saw fit. [g] 25

c. 'but the lives . . . they did' versions; Hebr. omits.

d. lit. 'cause those who have escaped to remain' following some Gk; 'the heritage of those who have escaped' Hebr.

e. Canaanite festival, see 9:27, later identified with the Harvest Festival, Ex 23:16, or the feast of Shelters, Dt 16:13.

f. The text of this v. is obscure, but apparently alludes to the Jabesh-Gilead incident and the oath at Mizpah: perhaps an editorial insertion.

g. The narrative in 19:1–21:25 is introduced and concluded by the same comment as at 17:6 and 18:1. Here, it may be an editorial insertion, or a comment by the priests of the official sanctuary at Bethel, who take a point of view similar to the priests of the royal sanctuary at Dan in the previous story, see 17:1b.

RUTH

I: RUTH AND NAOMI

1 In the days when the Judges were governing, a famine occurred in the country and a certain man from Bethlehem of Judah went—he, his wife and his two 2 sons—to live in the Plains of Moab. ·The man was called Elimelech, his wife
Naomi and his two sons Mahlon and Chilion; [a] they were Ephrathites from Bethle- 1 S 17:12 1 Ch 4:4
3 hem of Judah. Going to the Plains of Moab, they settled there. ·Elimelech, Mi 5:1
4 Naomi's husband, died, and she and her two sons were left. ·These married Moabite women: one was called Orpah and the other Ruth. They lived there for 5 about ten years. ·Mahlon and Chilion then both died too, and Naomi was thus 6 bereft of her two sons and her husband. ·She then decided to come back from the Plains of Moab with her daughters-in-law, having heard in the Plains of Moab that 7 God had visited [b] his people and given them food. ·So, with her daughters-in-law, she left the place where she was living and they took the road back to Judah.
8 Naomi said to her two daughters-in-law, 'Go back, each of you to your mother's 9 house. ·May Yahweh show you faithful love, as you have done to those who have died and to me. Yahweh grant that you may each find happiness with a husband!'
10 She then kissed them, but they began weeping loudly, ·and said, 'No, we shall go 11 back with you to your people.' ·'Go home, daughters,' Naomi replied. 'Why come with me? Have I any more sons in my womb to make husbands for you? [c] Gn 38:8–11 Dt 25:5–10 12 Go home, daughters, go, for I am now too old to marry again. Even if I said, "I still have a hope: I shall take a husband this very night and shall bear more sons," 13 would you be prepared to wait for them until they were grown up? Would you refuse to marry for their sake? No, daughters, I am bitterly sorry for your sakes 14 that the hand of Yahweh should have been raised against me.' ·They started weeping loudly all over again; Orpah then kissed her mother-in-law and went back to her people. [d] But Ruth stayed with her.
15 Naomi then said, 'Look, your sister-in-law has gone back to her people and to her god. Go home, too; follow your sister-in-law.' 16 But Ruth said, 'Do not press me to leave you and to stop going with you, for wherever you go, I shall go, wherever you live, I shall live.

Your people will be my people, and your God will be my God. [e]

2 S 15:21 2 K 2:2–4

Dt 23:2–9

1 a. The names may be fictitious and chosen for their meaning: the two sons, who die young, are Mahlon ('sickness') and Chilion ('pining away'); Orpah means 'she who turns away' (1:14), Ruth 'the beloved', Naomi 'my sweetness', Elimelech 'my God is king'.

b. lit. 'visited', see Ex 3:16h. The 'visitation' is here an act of divine favour, not of judgement.

c. In accordance with the law of the levirate, Dt 26:5–10a.

d. 'and went back to her people' Gk; omitted in Hebr.

e. Whereas Orpah returns to Moab and its god Chemosh, Ruth, on entering Yahweh's territory and joining his people, will have no other God but him. The Moabites, however, were not allowed to take part in Yahweh's 'assemblies', Dt 23:4.

Where you die, I shall die 17 and there I shall be buried.
Let Yahweh bring unnameable ills on me and worse ills, too,[f]
if anything but death should part me from you!'

Seeing that Ruth was determined to go with her, Naomi said no more. 18
The two of them went on until they came to Bethlehem. Their arrival set the 19 whole town astir, and the women said, 'Can this be Naomi?' ·To this she replied, 20
Ex 15:23 'Do not call me Naomi, call me Mara,[g] for Shaddai has made my lot bitter.

Jb 1:21 I departed full, 21
and Yahweh has brought me home empty.
Why, then, call me Naomi, since Yahweh has pronounced against me and Shaddai has made me wretched?'

This was how Naomi came home with her daughter-in-law, Ruth the Moabitess, 22 on returning from the Plains of Moab. They arrived in Bethlehem at the beginning of the barley harvest.

II: RUTH IN THE FIELDS OF BOAZ

2 Naomi had a kinsman on her husband's side, well-to-do and of Elimelech's 1 clan. His name was Boaz.
Lv 19:9–10; 23:32 Dt 24:19–22 Ruth the Moabitess said to Naomi, 'Let me go into the fields and glean ears of 2 corn[a] in the footsteps of some man who will look on me with favour.' She replied,
'Go, daughter.' ·So she set out and went to glean in the fields behind the reapers. 3 Chance led her to a plot of land belonging to Boaz of Elimelech's clan. ·Boaz, as it 4 happened, had just come from Bethlehem. 'Yahweh be with you!' he said to the Ps 129:7–8 reapers. 'Yahweh bless you!' they replied. ·Boaz said to a servant of his who was in 5 charge of the reapers, 'To whom does this young woman belong?'[b] ·And the 6 servant in charge of the reapers replied, 'The girl is the Moabitess, the one who came back with Naomi from the Plains of Moab. ·She said, "Please let me glean 7 and pick up what falls from the sheaves behind the reapers." Thus she came, and here she stayed, with hardly a rest from morning until now.'[c] Boaz said to Ruth, 'Listen to me, daughter. You must not go gleaning in any 8 other field. You must not go away from here. Stay close to my work-women.
Keep your eyes on whatever part of the field they are reaping and follow behind. 9
I have forbidden my men to molest you. And if you are thirsty, go to the pitchers and drink what the servants have drawn.' ·Ruth fell on her face, prostrated herself 10 and said, 'How have I attracted your favour, for you to notice me, who am only a foreigner?' ·Boaz replied, 'I have been told all about the way you have behaved to 11 your mother-in-law since your husband's death, and how you left your own father and mother and the land where you were born to come to a people of whom you previously knew nothing. ·May Yahweh repay you for what you have done, and 12 Ps 17:8;91:1,4 may you be richly rewarded by Yahweh, the God of Israel, under whose wings you have come for refuge!' ·She said, 'My lord, I hope you will always look on me with 13 favour! You have comforted and encouraged me, though I am not even the equal of one of your work-women.'
When it was time to eat, Boaz said to her, 'Come and eat some of this bread and 14 dip your piece in the vinegar.'[d] Ruth sat down beside the reapers and Boaz made a heap[e] of roasted grain for her; she ate till her hunger was satisfied, and she had some left over. ·When she had got up to glean, Boaz gave orders to his work- 15 people, 'Let her glean among the sheaves themselves.[f] Do not molest her. ·And 16 be sure you pull a few ears of corn out of the bundles and drop them. Let her glean 17 them, and do not scold her.'[g] ·So she gleaned in the field till evening. Then she beat out what she had gleaned and it came to about a bushel of barley.

18 Taking it with her, she went back to the town. Her mother-in-law saw what she had gleaned. Ruth also took out what she had kept after eating all she wanted, and 19 gave that to her. ·Her mother-in-law said, 'Where have you been gleaning today?
Where have you been working? Blessed be the man who took notice of you!'[h]
Ruth told her mother-in-law in whose field she had been working. 'The name of 20 the man with whom I have been working today', she said, 'is Boaz.' ·Naomi said to her daughter-in-law, 'May he be blessed by Yahweh who does not withhold his faithful love from living or dead! This man', Naomi added, 'is a close relation of 2:1 21 ours. He is one of those who have the right of redemption over us.'[i] ·Ruth the Moabitess said to her mother-in-law, 'He also said, "Stay with my work-people 22 until they have finished my whole harvest." ' ·Naomi said to Ruth, her daughter-in-law, 'It is better for you, daughter, to go with his work-women than to go to 23 some other field where you might be ill-treated.' ·So she stayed with Boaz's workwomen, and gleaned until the barley and wheat harvests were finished. And she went on living with her mother-in-law.[j]

III: BOAZ SLEEPS

1 3 Her mother-in-law Naomi then said, 'Daughter, is it not my duty to see you 2 happily settled? ·And Boaz, the man with whose work-women you were, is he not our kinsman? Tonight he will be winnowing the barley on the threshing-floor.
3 So wash and perfume yourself, put on your cloak and go down to the threshing-4 floor. Don't let him recognise you while he is still eating and drinking. ·But when he lies down, take note where he lies, then go and turn back the covering at his feet 5 and lie down yourself. He will tell you what to do.' ·Ruth said, 'I shall do everything you tell me.'
6 So she went down to the threshing-floor and did everything her mother-in-law 7 had told her. ·When Boaz had finished eating and drinking, he went off happily and lay down beside the pile of barley. Ruth then quietly went, turned back the 8 covering at his feet and lay down. ·In the middle of the night, he woke up with a 9 shock and looked about him; and there lying at his feet was a woman. ·'Who are you?' he said; and she replied, 'I am your servant Ruth. Spread the skirt of your 10 cloak over your servant for you have the right of redemption over me.'[a] ·'May Yahweh bless you, daughter,' he said, 'for this second act of faithful love[b] of yours is greater than the first, since you have not run after young men, poor or rich.

f. Formula of imprecatory oath, see 1 S 3:17; 14:44; 20:13; 25:22; 2 S 3:9,35; 19:14; 1 K 2:23; 2 K 6:31. Ruth would have named the disasters invoked but the narrator uses a vague formula since the mere naming was considered dangerous.

g. Mara, 'the bitter one', or, amending to mari, 'my bitterness', balancing Naomi, 'my sweetness'.

2 a. According to the Law the poor had this right, but its exercise depended on the goodwill of the owner of the property.

b. In the east every woman 'belongs' to someone, father, husband, brother or master.

c. Following Gk; end of v. corrupt.

d. In fact, a mixture of water, wine, vinegar and some sort of fermented liquor; on this account forbidden to the Nazirites, Nb 6:3.

e. 'made a heap for her' Gk; 'offered her' Hebr.

f. The Law allowed the poor to glean anything that fell from the sheaves as the harvesters carried them away, Lv 19:19; 23:22; Dt 24:19, but to be allowed to glean while the sheaves were still in place was an unusual favour.

g. These repeated instructions show that, despite the legality of gleaning, harvesters were often harsh with those who tried to glean.

h. Naomi is taken aback at the amount of barley brought home by Ruth; such a quantity (some 40 litres) could be only the product of someone's generosity.

i. lit. 'he is one of our go'elim', see Nb 35:19c. Here, the duty of Elimelech's or Mahlon's closest relative combines two different customs: 1 The go'el's duty was to prevent the alienation of the family's land, see Lv 25:23–25; Jr 32:6–9, hence he has to redeem Ruth's field. 2 The custom of the levirate, see Dt 25:5–10a, which required that a widow should be married by the brother or nearest male relative of her late husband, thus to raise posthumous descendants for him. Boaz, however, is not the nearest male relative, see 3:12.

j. In the versions, this sentence forms the beginning of ch. 3.

3 a. By this gesture Ruth asks Boaz, her go'el, to marry her, see Dt 23:1; 27:20; Ezk 16:8.

b. Ruth has not only stayed with her mother-in-law, 2:11, but is also willing to perpetuate the family by agreeing to marry Boaz.

Don't be afraid, daughter, I shall do everything you ask, since the people at the 11
2:11 gate of my town all know that you are a woman of great worth. ·But, though it is 12
2:20 true that I have the right of redemption over you, you have a kinsman closer than myself. ·Stay here for tonight and, in the morning, if he wishes to exercise his right 13 over you, very well, let him redeem you. But if he does not wish to do so, then as Yahweh lives, I shall redeem you. Lie here till morning.' ·So she lay at his feet till 14 morning, but got up before the hour when one man can recognise another; and he thought,[c] 'It must not be known that this woman came to the threshing-floor.'
He then said, 'Let me have the cloak you are wearing, hold it out!' She held it out 15 while he put six measures of barley into it and then loaded it on to her; and off she went to the town.

When Ruth got home, her mother-in-law asked her, 'How did things go with 16 you, daughter?' She then told her everything that the man had done for her. ·'He 17 gave me these six measures of barley and said, "You must not go home empty-handed to your mother-in-law." ' ·Naomi said, 'Do nothing, daughter, until you 18 see how things have gone; I am sure he will not rest until he has settled the matter this very day.'

IV: BOAZ MARRIES RUTH

4 Boaz, meanwhile, had gone up to the gate and sat down, and the relative of 1 whom he had spoken then came by. Boaz said to him, 'Here my friend, come and sit down'; the man came and sat down. ·Boaz then picked out ten of the 2 town's elders and said, 'Sit down here'; they sat down. ·Boaz then said to the man 3 who had the right of redemption, 'Naomi, who has come back from the Plains of Moab, is selling the piece of land that belonged to our brother, Elimelech. ·I 4 Lv 25:25 thought I should tell you about this and say, "Acquire it in the presence of the men who are sitting here and in the presence of the elders of my people. If you want to use your right of redemption, redeem it; if you do not, tell me so that I know, for I am the only person to redeem it besides yourself, and I myself come after you." ' Dt 25:5–10 The man said, 'I am willing to redeem it.' ·Boaz then said, 'The day you acquire 5 the field from Naomi, you also acquire Ruth the Moabitess, the wife of the man who has died, to perpetuate the dead man's name in his inheritance.' ·The man 6 with the right of redemption then said, 'I cannot use my right of redemption without jeopardising my own inheritance. Since I cannot use my right of redemption, exercise the right yourself.'[a]

Now, in former times, it was the custom in Israel to confirm a transaction in 7 Dt 25:9–10 matters of redemption or inheritance by one of the parties taking off his sandal and Ps 60:8;108:9 giving it to the other. This was how agreements were ratified in Israel. ·So, when 8 the man with the right of redemption said to Boaz, 'Acquire it for yourself,' he took off his sandal.[b]

Boaz then said to the elders and all the people there, 'Today you are witnesses 9 that from Naomi I acquire everything that used to belong to Elimelech, and everything that used to belong to Mahlon and Chilion ·and that I am also acquiring 10 Ruth the Moabitess, Mahlon's widow, to be my wife, to perpetuate the dead man's name in his inheritance, so that the dead man's name will not be lost among his brothers and at the gate of his town. Today you are witnesses to this.'
All the people at the gate said, 'We are witnesses'; and the elders said, 'May 11
Gn 35:23–26 Yahweh make the woman about to enter your family like Rachel and Leah who together built up the House of Israel.

Grow mighty in Ephrathah,
Gn 35:19–20 be renowned in Bethlehem!

And through the children Yahweh will give you by this young woman, may your 12
Gn 38 family be like the family of Perez,[c] whom Tamar bore to Judah.'

13 So Boaz took Ruth and she became his wife. And when they came together, ▶1 Ch 2:5,9–12, 19,50seq.
14 Yahweh made her conceive and she bore a son. ·And the women said to Naomi, 'Blessed be Yahweh who has not left you today without anyone to redeem you. Lk 1:58
15 May his name be praised in Israel! ·The child will be a comfort to you and the prop of your old age, for he has been born to the daughter-in-law who loves you and is 16 more to you than seven sons.' ·And Naomi, taking the child, held him to her 1 S 1:8 Gn 30:3 breast; [d] and she it was who looked after him.
17 And the women of the neighbourhood gave him a name. 'A son', they said, 'has been born to Naomi,' and they called him Obed. [e] This was the father of Jesse, the father of David.

THE GENEALOGY OF DAVID [f]

‖1 Ch 2:5–15 ↗Mt 1:3–6 ↗Lk 3:31–33

18, 19 These are the descendants of Perez. Perez fathered Hezron, ·Hezron fathered
20 Ram, Ram fathered Amminadab, ·Amminadab fathered Nahshon, Nahshon 21, 22 fathered Salmon, ·Salmon fathered Boaz, Boaz fathered Obed, ·Obed fathered Jesse, and Jesse fathered David.

c. 'he' conj.; 'she' Hebr.

4 a. To the purchase of the land, to which the man as go'el agrees, Boaz links the levirate marriage with Ruth. The child of such a marriage would be legal heir to Mahlon and Elimelech, and the land in question would revert to him. The first go'el is afraid of losing by the transaction, and renounces his rights in favour of Boaz.

b. The custom mentioned in Dt 25:9–10 has a different significance. There it is the woman herself who shows her contempt for the man who is unwilling to marry her on behalf of his dead brother, her husband. Here the gesture merely validates a contract of exchange. To put one's foot on a field, or to throw a sandal on to it, is to take possession of it, Ps 60:8; 108:9. The sandal thus becomes the symbol of the right of ownership. By taking it off and handing it to the purchaser, the owner transfers this right to him.

c. Ancestor of Boaz see vv. 18–22.

d. An adoption ritual, see Gn 48:5, also used by other peoples in the ancient Near East.

e. Obed = servant (i.e. of Yahweh).

f. This second genealogy cannot be the work of the author of Ruth. Contrary to the whole point of the story, Boaz is named as the father of Obed, Elimelech's name disappears, and Ruth's piety no longer has the same meaning; the law of the levirate and the filial piety implicit in this are lost to view. But a different, universalist theme emerges: the foreigner, Ruth, is the ancestress of David, and hence of Christ, as the gospel was later to emphasise.

THE BOOKS OF SAMUEL
THE FIRST BOOK OF SAMUEL

Si 46:13–20

I: SAMUEL

A: THE CHILDHOOD OF SAMUEL [a]

The pilgrimage to Shiloh

1 There was a man of Ramathaim, [b] a Zuphite from the highlands of Ephraim 1 1 Ch 6 19–23 whose name was Elkanah son of Jeroham, son of Elihu, son of Tohu, son of Zuph, an Ephraimite. ·He had two wives, one called Hannah, the other Peninnah; 2
Ex 23:14d Peninnah had children but Hannah had none. ·Every year this man used to go up 3
Lv 23:39
Jg 21:19 from his town to worship, and to sacrifice to Yahweh Sabaoth [c] at Shiloh. [d] (The two sons of Eli, Hophni and Phinehas, were there as priests of Yahweh.) Dt 12:18 One day Elkanah offered a sacrifice. Now he used to give portions to Peninnah 4 and to all her sons and daughters; ·to Hannah, however, he would give only one 5 portion: for, although [e] he loved Hannah more, Yahweh had made her barren.
Gn 16:4–5 Furthermore, her rival would taunt and provoke her, because Yahweh had made 6 her womb barren. ·And this went on year after year; every time they went up to 7 the temple of Yahweh [f] she used to taunt her. On that day she wept and would not eat anything; ·so her husband Elkanah said, 'Hannah, why are you crying? Why 8 Rt 4:15 are you not eating anything? Why are you so sad? Am I not more to you than ten sons?'

Prayer of Hannah

When they had finished eating in the room, Hannah got up and stood before 9 Yahweh. [g] Eli the priest was sitting on his seat by the doorpost of the temple of Yahweh. ·In the bitterness of her soul she prayed to Yahweh with many tears, 10 and she made this vow, 'Yahweh Sabaoth! Should you condescend to notice the 11 ↗Lk 1:48 humiliation of your servant and keep her in mind instead of disregarding your Nb 6:1a servant, and give her a boy, I will give him to Yahweh for the whole of his life and Jg 13:5; 16:17 no razor shall ever touch his head.' [h]

While she went on praying to Yahweh, Eli was watching her mouth, ·for Hannah 12, 13 was speaking under her breath; her lips were moving but her voice could not be heard, and Eli thought that she was drunk. [i] ·Eli said, 'How much longer are you 14 going to stay drunk? Get rid of your wine.' ·'No, my lord,' Hannah replied, 'I am 15 a woman in great trouble; I have not been drinking wine or strong drink—I am pouring out my soul before Yahweh. ·Do not take your servant for a worthless 16 woman; all this time I have been speaking from the depth of my grief and my resentment.' ·Eli then replied, 'Go in peace, and may the God of Israel grant what 17 you have asked of him.' ·To which she said, 'May your servant find favour in your 18 sight.' With that, the woman went away; she began eating and was dejected no longer.

Birth and consecration of Samuel

19 They got up early in the morning and, after worshipping Yahweh, set out and went home to Ramah. Elkanah lay with his wife Hannah, and Yahweh remembered her.
20 Hannah conceived and, in due course, gave birth to a son, whom she named 21 Samuel, 'since', she said, 'I asked Yahweh for him.'[j] ·Elkanah, the husband, went up with all his family to offer the annual sacrifice to Yahweh and to fulfil his vow.
22 However, Hannah did not go up, having said to her husband, 'Not before the child has been weaned.[k] Then I shall bring him and present him before Yahweh 23 and he will stay there for ever.' ·Elkanah her husband then said to her, 'Do what you think fit; wait until you have weaned him. May Yahweh bring about what he has said.'[l] So the woman stayed behind and nursed her child until she weaned him.
24 When she had weaned him, she took him up with her, as well as a three-year-old bull,[m] an ephah of flour and a skin of wine, and took him into the temple of 25 Yahweh at Shiloh; the child was very young. ·They sacrificed the bull and led the 26 child to Eli. ·She said, 'If you please, my lord! As you live, my lord, I am the 27 woman who stood beside you here, praying to Yahweh. ·This is the child for which 28 I was praying, and Yahweh has granted me what I asked of him. ·Now I make him over to Yahweh for the whole of his life. He is made over to Yahweh.' They then worshipped Yahweh there.

Song of Hannah[a]

Ps 2:18
↗Lk 1:45–55

1 2 Hannah then prayed as follows:

My heart exults in Yahweh,
in my God is my strength lifted up,
my mouth derides my foes,
for I rejoice in your deliverance.

Is 61:10
Lk 1:47

2 There is no Holy One like Yahweh, (indeed, there is none but you) no Rock like our God.

Lv 17:1a
Ps 18:2c

1 a. Ch. 1–3 represent a literary unit already complete (except for 2:27–36 which is an addition) before insertion in 1 S, recording a three-part tradition of the sanctuary at Shiloh: 1 Birth and admittance of Samuel to the sanctuary of Shiloh. 2 The sons of Eli. 3 Yahweh reveals himself to Samuel. Parts 1 and 3 are linked by the person of Samuel; parts 2 and 3, by the misdeeds of Eli's sons and their ensuing punishment. The narrative is ancient, with a good historical basis.

b. Also called Ramah.

c. The interpretation 'Yahweh of hosts, armies, the battle-lines, etc.' (be these the armies of Israel, or the armies of heaven, stars, angels and cosmic forces at large) is not certain. The title appears here for the first time and is connected with the cult at Shiloh; the expression 'Yahweh Sabaoth, whose throne is on the winged creatures' occurs for the first time at 4:4, in connection with the moving of the ark from Shiloh. The title remained associated with the ritual of the ark and passed into usage in Jerusalem, once the ark had been installed there, 2 S 6:2.18; 7:8.27. It occurs in the Ps and was adopted by the major prophets (excluding Ezekiel) and by the post-exilic prophets (particularly Zechariah).

d. Now Seilun, about twelve miles (19 km) south of Nablus. This was the home of the ark in the period of the Judges, possibly even in the time of Joshua, see Jos 18:1a; its sanctuary there was destroyed, see Ps 78:60; Jr 7:12; 26:6.9, probably by the Philistines after the defeat recorded in 1 S 4. The yearly pilgrimage was that of the feast of Shelters.

e. 'although he' Gk; Hebr. uncertain.

f. In the desert the shrine of the ark was a tent, but at Shiloh a stone building, see 1:9; 3:2.3.15.

g. Following Gk; 'after she had eaten at Shiloh and after they had drunk' Hebr.

h. Like Isaac, Samson and John the Baptist, Samuel is a son granted by God to a hitherto childless woman. His mother dedicates the unborn child to God as a minister in the sanctuary. The uncut hair is, like Samson's, a sign of this dedication. But it is not explicitly said that Samuel is to be a nazirite, see Nb 6:1a, as is said of Samson, Jg 13:5.

i. People usually prayed aloud. Feastdays were sometimes an occasion for heavy drinking, Is 22:13; Am 2:8. Hence Eli's contemptuous attitude.

j. A derivation from the root sha'al (to ask) would give sha'ul 'Saul'. Biblical etymology is often, as here, content with a certain similarity of sound. The actual derivation of 'Samuel' is from Shem-El, 'the name of God' or '(God's) name is El'.

k. Children were weaned late.

l. 'what you have said' versions and 4 Q, which may seem preferable.

m. 'a three-year-old bull' Gk, Syr.; 'three bulls' Hebr.; but see v. 25.

2 a. This poem has been called the prototype of the Magnificat; but the tone of the Magnificat is far more personal. It is placed here by the compiler of the book on the strength of its reference to the childless woman, v. 5. It glorifies Yahweh for his triumphal vindication of his faithful followers and, if an integral work, would appear from its reference to the Davidic king in v. 10 to have been composed under the monarchy. It expresses the theology of the 'poor of Yahweh', see Zp 2:3d.

Elkanah then went home to Ramah, but the child stayed in Yahweh's service, in 11
the presence of Eli the priest.

The sons of Eli

Now the sons of Eli were scoundrels; they cared nothing for Yahweh •nor for what 12, 13
Dt 18:3 was due to the priests from the people. [d] Whenever anyone offered a sacrifice, the priest's servant would come with a three-pronged fork in his hand while the meat was being cooked; •he would thrust this into cauldron or pan, or dish or pot, and 14 the priest claimed for his own whatever the fork brought up. That was how they Lv 7:29–36 behaved with all the Israelites who came there to Shiloh. •The priest's servant 15 would even come up before the fat had been burnt and say to the person who was making the sacrifice, 'Give the priest some meat for him to roast. He will not accept Lv 3:3–5 boiled meat from you, only raw.' •Then, if the person replied, 'Let the fat be burnt 16 first, and then take for yourself whatever you choose,' he would retort, 'No! You must give it to me now or I shall take it by force.' •The young men's sin was very 17 great in Yahweh's eyes, because they treated with contempt the offering made to Yahweh.

Samuel at Shiloh

Samuel was in Yahweh's service, a child wearing a linen loincloth. [e] •His mother 18, 19 used to make him a little coat which she brought him each year when she came up with her husband to offer the yearly sacrifice. •Eli would bless Elkanah and his 20 wife and say, 'May Yahweh grant you an heir by this woman in exchange for the one which she has made over to Yahweh,' and they would go home. [f] •Yahweh 21 visited Hannah; she conceived and gave birth to three sons and two daughters.

Meanwhile, the child Samuel grew up in Yahweh's presence.

More about the sons of Eli

22 Although very old, Eli heard about everything that his sons were doing to all 23,24 Israel,[g] ·and said, 'Why are you behaving as all the people say you are?[h] ·No, my 25 sons, what I hear reported by the people of Yahweh is not good. ·If one person sins against another, God will be the arbiter, but if he sins against Yahweh, who will intercede for him?' But they did not listen to their father's words, for Yahweh was bent on killing them.[i]

26 Meanwhile, the child Samuel went on growing in stature and in favour both with Yahweh and with people. Si 46:13 ↗Lk 2:52

Punishment foretold[j] 3:11–14

27 A man of God came to Eli and said to him, 'This is what Yahweh says, "Did I not reveal myself to your father's[k] family when they were in Egypt as slaves in 28 Pharaoh's household? ·Did I not single him out of all the tribes of Israel to be my priest, to go up to my altar, to burn the offering, to carry the ephod[l] in my presence; and did I not grant all the burnt offerings made by the Israelites to your father's 29 family? ·Why do you trample on the offering and on the sacrifice which I have ordered for my Dwelling, and honour your sons more than me, by growing fat on 30 the best of the offerings of Israel, my people?[m] ·Whereas—this is what Yahweh, God of Israel, declares—I had promised that your family and your father's family would walk in my presence for ever,[n] now, however—this is what Yahweh declares—nothing of the sort! Those who honour me I honour in my turn, and those 2 S 22:26 Ps 18:25
31 who despise me will be an object of contempt. ·Be sure, the days are coming when I shall cut off your strength and the strength of your father's family, so that no one 1 K 2:27
32 in your family will live to old age. ·Beside the Dwelling, you will see all the benefits
33 that I shall confer on Israel, but no one in your family will ever live to old age. ·I shall keep one of you at my altar for his eyes to go blind and his soul to wither, but the bulk of your family will die by the sword.[o] 22:18–19

34 ' "What happens to your two sons Hophni and Phinehas will be a sign for you: 14:10c
35 on the same day both will die. ·I shall raise myself a faithful priest, who will do as 4:11 I intend and as I desire. I shall build him an enduring House and he will walk in the 36 presence of my Anointed for ever. ·The members of your House who survive will 9:26n come and beg him on their knees for a silver coin and a loaf of bread and say: Please give me some priestly work, so that I can have a scrap of bread to eat." '

g. Hebr. adds 'and how they slept with the women who served at the entrance to the Tent of Meeting', a gloss suggested by Ex 38:8, and missing in Gk.

h. Hebr. adds 'these wicked things', gloss.

i. As elsewhere in the Bible, Ex 4:21; Jos 11:20; Is 6:9–10; etc., the 'hardening' of the sinner is attributed to Yahweh as its ultimate cause. But this form of expression in no way denies man's free will.

j. The episode is a later insertion; it makes the briefer passage of 3:11–14 unnecessary. The death of Hophni and Phinehas, 4:11, is to be merely an omen, v. 34, of the coming misfortunes foretold in v. 33: the massacre of the priests of Nob, Eli's descendants, 22:18–19 (with the exception of Abiathar 22:22–23, later deposed by Solomon, 1 K 2:27), and (in v. 35) the substitution of Zadok's family which, from the time of Solomon onwards, will enjoy royal favour, i.e. of 'Yahweh's anointed'; but v. 36 does not tally with the situation described in 2 K 23:9 and the passage therefore pre-dates the reign of Josiah.

k. Levi.

l. Not a vestment worn, like the ephod of v. 18, but something that is 'carried' or 'fetched', 14:3; 23:6; 30:7, and holds the sacred lots by which Yahweh is consulted, 14:18seq.; 23:9seq.; 30:7–8; see 14:41r. It first appears in the period of the Judges, Jg 17:5; 18:14seq. (Gideon's ephod, Jg 8:26seq., is censured as an idolatrous object), but it is not mentioned in post-Davidic narratives (one allusion in Ho 3:4).

m. Text and meaning uncertain, as v. 32.

n. i.e. would serve him faithfully and enjoy his favour.

God calls Samuel [a]

3 Now, the boy Samuel was serving Yahweh in the presence of Eli; in those days 1 it was rare for Yahweh to speak; visions were uncommon. ·One day, it hap- 2 pened that Eli was lying down in his room. His eyes were beginning to grow dim;
Ex 27:20seq. Lv 24:3 he could no longer see. ·The lamp of God had not yet gone out, and Samuel was 3 lying in Yahweh's sanctuary, where the ark of God was, [b] ·when Yahweh called, 4
'Samuel! Samuel!' He answered, 'Here I am,' ·and, running to Eli, he said, 'Here 5
I am, as you called me.' Eli said, 'I did not call. Go back and lie down.' So he went Ex:25:22 and lay down. ·And again Yahweh called, 'Samuel! Samuel!' He got up and went 6 to Eli and said, 'Here I am, as you called me.' He replied, 'I did not call, my son; go back and lie down.' ·As yet, Samuel had no knowledge of Yahweh and the word 7 of Yahweh had not yet been revealed to him. ·Again Yahweh called, the third 8 time. He got up and went to Eli and said, 'Here I am, as you called me.' Eli then understood that Yahweh was calling the child, ·and he said to Samuel, 'Go and lie 9 down, and if someone calls say, "Speak, Yahweh; for your servant is listening." '
So Samuel went and lay down in his place.

Yahweh then came and stood by, calling as he had done before, 'Samuel! 10
Samuel!' Samuel answered, 'Speak, Yahweh; for your servant is listening.'
Yahweh then said to Samuel, 'I am going to do something in Israel which will 11
2:27–36 make the ears of all who hear of it ring. ·I shall carry out that day against Eli 12 everything that I have said about his family, from beginning to end. [c] ·You are to 13 tell him [d] that I condemn his family for ever, since he is aware that his sons have been cursing God and yet has not corrected them. ·Therefore—I swear it to the 14 family of Eli—no sacrifice or offering shall ever expiate the guilt of Eli's family.'

Samuel lay where he was until morning and then opened the doors of Yahweh's 15 temple. Samuel was afraid to tell Eli about the vision, ·but Eli called Samuel and 16 said, 'Samuel, my son.' 'Here I am,' he replied. ·Eli asked, 'What message did he 17 Rt 1:17f give you? Please do not hide it from me. May God bring unnameable ills on you and worse ones, too, if you hide from me anything of what he said to you.'
Samuel then told him everything, hiding nothing from him. Eli said, 'He is 18
Jb 1:21 Yahweh; let him do what he thinks good.'

2:21 Gn 39:2 Samuel grew up. Yahweh was with him and did not let a single word fall to the 19
Jg 20:1a ground of all that he had told him. ·All Israel knew, from Dan to Beersheba, that 20
Samuel was attested as a prophet of Yahweh. ·Yahweh continued to manifest 21 himself at Shiloh, revealing himself to Samuel there,

4 and, for all Israel, the word of Samuel was as the word of Yahweh; [a] since Eli 1 was very old and his sons persisted in their wicked behaviour towards Yahweh. [b]

B: THE ARK IN PHILISTINE HANDS [c]

Defeat of the Israelites and capture of the ark

It happened at that time that the Philistines mustered to make war on Israel [d] and Israel went out to meet them in war, pitching camp near Ebenezer while the 29:1 Jos 13:2b Philistines pitched camp at Aphek. [e] ·The Philistines drew up their battle-line 2 against Israel, the fighting was fierce, and Israel was beaten by the Philistines:
about four thousand men in their ranks were killed on the field of battle. [f] ·When 3 the troops returned to camp, the elders of Israel said, 'Why has Yahweh caused us to be beaten by the Philistines today? Let us fetch the ark of our God [g] from Shiloh
Nb 10:35seq. 2 S 11:11 so that, when it goes with us, it may save us from the clutches of our enemies.' [h]
So the troops sent to Shiloh and brought away the ark of Yahweh Sabaoth 4 enthroned on the winged creatures; [i] the two sons of Eli, Hophni and Phinehas, came with the ark. ·When the ark of Yahweh arrived in the camp, all Israel raised 5 a great war cry [j] so that the earth resounded. ·When the Philistines heard the noise 6 of the war cry, they said, 'What can this great war cry in the Hebrew camp mean?'

7 And they realised that the ark of Yahweh had come into the camp. •At this, the Philistines were afraid; for they said, 'God has come into the camp. Disaster!' they 8 said. 'For nothing like this has ever happened before. • Disaster! Who will rescue us from the clutches of this mighty God? This was the God who struck down Egypt 9 with every kind of misfortune in the desert. •But take courage and be men, Philistines, or you will become slaves to the Hebrews as they have been slaves to 10 you. Be men and fight.' •So the Philistines gave battle and Israel was defeated, each man fleeing to his tent. The slaughter was very great: on the Israelite side, 11 thirty thousand foot soldiers fell. •The ark of God was captured too, and Hophni Ps 78:61k •2:34 and Phinehas the two sons of Eli died.

Death of Eli

12 A Benjaminite ran from the battle-line and reached Shiloh the same day, his 13 clothes torn and dust on his head. •When he arrived, Eli was sitting on his seat beside the gate watching the road, [k] for his heart was trembling for the ark of God.
The man came into the town and told the news, whereupon cries of anguish filled 14 the town. •Eli heard the sound and asked, 'What does this uproar mean?' The man 15 hurried on and told Eli. •Eli was ninety-eight years old; his gaze was fixed; he was 16 blind. •The man said to Eli, 'I have come from the camp. [l] I escaped from the 17 battle-line today.' 'My son,' said Eli, 'what happened?' •The messenger replied, 'Israel has fled before the Philistines; the army has been utterly routed. What is worse, your two sons are dead and the ark of God has been captured.' 18 When he mentioned the ark of God, Eli fell backwards off his seat by the gate and broke his neck and died, for he was old and heavy. He had been judge of Israel for forty years. [m]

Death of the wife of Phinehas

19 Now his daughter-in-law, the wife of Phinehas, was with child and near her time.
When she heard the news that the ark of God had been captured and that her Gn 35:16seq.
father-in-law and husband were dead she crouched down and gave birth, for 20 her labour pains had come on. •When she was at the point of death, the women at her side said, 'Do not be afraid; you have given birth to a son.' But she did not 21 answer and took no notice. •She named the child Ichabod, saying, 'The glory has gone from Israel,' [n] alluding to the capture of the ark of God and to her father-in-22 law and husband. •She said, 'The glory has gone from Israel, because the ark of God has been captured.'

3 a. Initial revelation, consecrating Samuel as prophet, v. 20. It is not a dream; the voice awakens Samuel. Nor is it a 'vision' except in the wide sense, since Samuel hears but does not see Yahweh.

b. Above this ark is where Yahweh manifests his presence and issues his commands, see Ex 25:22; Is 6.

c. Probably added after 2:27–36 had been inserted.

d. 'You are to tell him' conj.; 'I have told him' Hebr. • 'Elohim following Gk; Hebr. lahem 'to them'.

4 a. 'as the word of Yahweh' conj.; Hebr. has 'in the word of Yahweh' at end of previous v.

b. 'Eli . . . Yahweh' Gk; omitted by Hebr.

c. This episode, 4:1–7, has only superficial connections with the preceding: the mention of Shiloh and of Eli and his sons. Samuel no longer figures. The ark (see Ex 25:10e and 2 S 6:7f) is now the main theme. In content, flavour and geographical setting, it is related to the story of Samson, Jg 13–16. At first an independent unit, it has been used to introduce the royalist account of the institution of the monarchy, ch. 9–11, which is followed by the resumption of the Philistine wars, ch. 13–14. For the continuation of the history of the ark, see 2 S 6, then 1 K 8:1–11.

d. 'It happened . . . Israel' Gk; omitted by Hebr.

e. A little to the north of Philistine territory.

f. 'were killed' versions; '(the Philistines) killed' Hebr.

g. The phrase in the Hebr. is overloaded: 'the ark of the covenant of Yahweh' (or 'of God'); so also in vv. 4–5.

h. The ark is the sign of Yahweh's presence, v. 7, but this same v. indicates that the ark accompanied the army only on exceptional occasions, see Jos 6:6; 2 S 11:11.

i. First instance of this title, connected with the sanctuary of Shiloh, see 1:3d. The winged creatures are the sphinxes (supporting divinities) flanking the thrones of gods and kings in ancient Syria. At Shiloh, as in the Temple at Jerusalem, 1 K 8:6, the winged creatures and the ark formed the 'throne' for the invisible presence of Yahweh.

j. This sacred war cry is part of the ark ritual, see Nb 10:5a.

k. Following Gk; Hebr. uncertain.

l. 'from the camp' Gk; 'from the lines' Hebr., influenced by the end of the v.

m. Eli was not, strictly speaking, one of the judges of Israel, see Jg 3:7b. • 'forty years': round number for a 'generation'.

n. 'Ei-kabod: 'Where is the glory?'—the glory of Yahweh enthroned on the ark.

The ark brings disaster to the Philistines[a]

5 When the Philistines had captured the ark of God, they took it from Ebenezer 1 to Ashdod.[b] ·Taking the ark of God, the Philistines put it in the temple of 2
Jg 16:23d Dagon, setting it down beside Dagon.[c] ·When the people of Ashdod got up the 3
Is 45:5seq.; 20seq. following morning and went to the temple of Dagon,[d] there lay Dagon face down on the ground before the ark of Yahweh. They picked Dagon up and put him back in his place. ·But when they got up on the following morning, there lay Dagon face 4 down on the ground before the ark of Yahweh, and Dagon's head and two hands lay severed on the threshold; only the trunk of Dagon was left in its place.[e] This is why the priests of Dagon and the people frequenting Dagon's temple never 5
step on Dagon's threshold in Ashdod, even today.[f] Ps 78:66 Yahweh oppressed the people of Ashdod; he ravaged them and afflicted them 6 with tumours—Ashdod and its territory.[g] When the people of Ashdod saw what was happening they said, ·'The ark of the God of Israel must not stay here with us, 7
Jos 13:2b for he is oppressing us and our god Dagon.' ·So they summoned all the Philistine 8 chiefs to them, and said, 'What shall we do with the ark of the God of Israel?' They decided, 'The ark of the God of Israel shall be taken away to Gath.' So they took the ark of the God of Israel to Gath. ·But after they had taken it there, Yahweh 9 oppressed that town and a great panic broke out; afflicting the people of the town from highest to lowest, he brought them out in tumours too. They then sent the ark of God to Ekron, but when it came to Ekron the Ekronites 10 shouted, 'They have brought me the ark of the God of Israel to kill me and my people!' ·They summoned all the Philistine chiefs and said, 'Send the ark of the 11
God of Israel away; let it go back to where it belongs and not kill me and my people'—for there was mortal panic throughout the town; God was oppressing them. ·The people who did not die were afflicted with tumours, and the wailing 12 from the town rose to the sky.

Return of the ark

6 The ark of Yahweh was in Philistine territory for seven months. ·The Philistines 1, 2 then called for their priests and diviners and asked, 'What shall we do with the ark of Yahweh? Tell us how to send it back to where it belongs.' ·They replied, 'If 3 you send the ark of the God of Israel away, you must certainly not send it away without a gift; you must pay him a guilt offering. You will then recover and will realise why he continually oppressed you.' ·They then asked, 'What guilt offering 4 ought we to pay him?' They replied, 'Corresponding to the number of Philistine chiefs: five golden tumours and five golden rats,[a] since the same plague afflicted your chiefs as the rest of you. ·So make models of your tumours and models of 5
Jos 7:19 Jn 9:24 your rats ravaging the territory, and pay honour to the God of Israel.[b] Then perhaps he will stop oppressing you, your gods and your country. ·Why should you 6 be as stubborn as Egypt and Pharaoh were? After he had brought disasters on them, did they not let the people leave? ·Now, then, take and fit out a new cart, 7
Nb 19:2 Dt 21:3 and two milch cows that have never borne the yoke.[c] Then harness the cows to the 2 K 2:20 cart and take their calves back to the byre.[d] ·Then take the ark of Yahweh, place it 8 on the cart, and put the golden objects which you are paying him as guilt offering in a box beside it; and then send it off on its own. ·Watch it; if it goes up the road to its 9 own territory, towards Beth-Shemesh, then he was responsible for this great harm to us; but if not, we shall know that it was not his hand that struck us, and that this has happened to us by chance.'[e]

The people did this. They took two milch cows and harnessed them to the cart, 10 shutting their calves in the byre. ·They then put the ark of Yahweh on the cart, 11 with the box and the golden rats and the models of their tumours.

The cows made straight for Beth-Shemesh, keeping to the one road, lowing as 12 they went and turning neither to right nor to left. The Philistine chiefs followed them as far as the boundaries of Beth-Shemesh.

The ark at Beth-Shemesh

13 The people of Beth-Shemesh were reaping the wheat harvest in the plain when 14 they looked up and saw the ark and went joyfully to meet it.[f] ·When the cart came to the field of Joshua of Beth-Shemesh, it stopped. There was a large stone[g] there, and they cut up the wood of the cart and offered the cows as a burnt offering to 15 Yahweh. ·The Levites had taken down[h] the ark of Yahweh and the box with it containing the golden objects and put these on the large stone. That day the people of Beth-Shemesh presented burnt offerings and made sacrifices to Yahweh.
16 The five chiefs of the Philistines, having witnessed this, went back to Ekron the same day.
17 The golden tumours paid by the Philistines as a guilt offering to Yahweh were as follows: one for Ashdod, one for Gaza, one for Ashkelon, one for Gath, one for 18 Ekron; ·and golden rats to the number of all the Philistine towns, those of the five chiefs, and from fortified towns down to open villages: still to this day the large stone[i] in the field of Joshua of Beth-Shemesh, on which they put the ark of 19 Yahweh, is a witness. ·Of the people of Beth-Shemesh the sons of Jeconiah had not rejoiced when they saw the ark of Yahweh, and Yahweh struck down seventy[j] of them. The people mourned because Yahweh had struck them so fiercely.[k]

The ark at Kiriath-Jearim

20 The people of Beth-Shemesh then said, 'Who can stand his ground before Yahweh, Ps 76:7
21 this holy God? To whom shall he go, so that we are rid of him?' ·So they sent Mi 3:2
messengers to the inhabitants of Kiriath-Jearim,[l] to say, 'The Philistines have sent back the ark of Yahweh; come down and take it up to your town.'

1 7 The men of Kiriath-Jearim came and, taking up the ark of Yahweh, brought it to the house of Abinadab on the hill, and consecrated his son Eleazar[a] to guard 2 S 6:2–4 the ark of Yahweh.

Samuel, judge and liberator[b]

2 From the day when the ark was installed at Kiriath-Jearim, a long time went by—3 twenty years—and the whole House of Israel longed for Yahweh. ·Samuel then Jg 6:6–10; 10:10–16 spoke as follows to the whole House of Israel, 'If you are returning to Yahweh with 5 a. The Philistines and their god Dagon, see Jg 16:23d, are now to feel the redoubtable effects of the holiness of the ark where Yahweh is present, 1 S 6:7c.

b. One of the five Philistine towns, as also Gath, v. 8, and Ekron, v. 10; see 6:17; Jos 13:2b.

c. As a trophy captured from the defeated god.

d. 'went to the temple of Dagon' Gk; omitted by Hebr.

e. 'the trunk of Dagon' versions; 'Dagon' Hebr.

f. It was, in fact, an ancient and widespread custom to avoid stepping on the doorstep, considered to be the abode of spirits.

g. The 'tumours' were probably haemorrhoids, which is well in keeping with the rather wry humour of the story.

6 a. If the 'tumours' were the symptoms of bubonic plague, the rats here mentioned for the first time could be the carriers of the plague (on the assumption that their part in carrying disease was known at that time). But v. 5 implies an invasion of field rats. Ch. 6 mentions two scourges: the tumours which the people suffer, and rats ravaging the countryside. Or perhaps two traditions are combined.

b. i.e. 'acknowledge that you have wronged him'; see Jos 7:19.

c. New cart and unworked beasts since they are to be used for a sacred task, see Nb 19:2; Dt 21:3–5; 2 K 2:20.

d. Though separated from their calves, the cows go forward, v. 12—striking evidence that God is leading them, v. 9; cf. 1 K 18 where Elijah deliberately makes the miracle more difficult.

e. Throughout the narrative the pronouns could refer either to God or to the ark (masculine in Hebr.). But the meaning is the same, since no distinction is made between God and the ark which is the sign of his presence.

f. 'to meet it' Gk; 'to see' Hebr.

g. Any large stone could serve as an altar, 14:33.

h. v. 15[a] which interrupts the narrative has been inserted by a scrupulous editor, shocked that profane hands should touch the ark.

i. 'the large stone is a witness', corr. following Targ.; 'as far as the large meadow' Hebr.

j. Following Gk, Hebr. adds a gloss: 'fifty thousand men'.

k. The Israelites in their turn discover how terrible the ark can be for those who do not revere it, see 2 S 6:6–7, 7f.

l. A Gibeonite town, Jos 9:17, where the ark would be on neutral ground, between Philistines and Israelites.

7 a. Though not a Levite, see Jg 17:4seq.

b. This ch. is not the continuation of the narrative of the ark, 4:1–6: Here the story returns to Samuel; it is generally considered to be the preface to the 'anti-monarchist' version of the foundation of the monarchy, found in 8; 10:17–24; 12. More correctly, it is a tradition peculiar to Mizpah, explaining the name Ebenezer by a divine intervention in response to a penitential liturgy. Samuel acts as intercessor, like Moses, Ex 32:11e; see Jr 15:1, and as judge, also like Moses, Ex 18:13seq. According to vv. 15–17, Samuel and his succeeding sons, 8:1–3, were the last of the 'minor' judges, Jg 10:1–5; 12:8–15. vv. 13–14 transform him into a 'major' judge, a liberator, but this is not in accord with 9:16; 10:5; 13–14, the liberation of the territory being attempted by Saul and achieved by David.

all your heart, banish the foreign gods and Astartes which you now have, and set Dt 6:13 your heart on Yahweh and serve him alone; and he will deliver you from the power
Jg 2:13i of the Philistines.' ·And the Israelites banished the Baals and Astartes and served 4 Yahweh alone.

Samuel then said, 'Muster all Israel at Mizpah[c] and I shall plead with Yahweh 5 for you.' ·So they mustered at Mizpah and drew water and poured it out before 6 Yahweh. They fasted that day and declared, 'We have sinned against Yahweh.'
And Samuel was judge over the Israelites at Mizpah.

10:17 When the Philistines heard that the Israelites had mustered at Mizpah, the 7
Jg 20:1 Philistine chiefs marched on Israel; and when the Israelites heard this, they were Ex 17:6–13 afraid of the Philistines. ·They said to Samuel, 'Do not stop calling on Yahweh our 8
Si 46:16–18 God to rescue us from the power of the Philistines.' ·Samuel took a sucking lamb 9 and presented it as a burnt offering to Yahweh, and he called on Yahweh on behalf of Israel and Yahweh heard him. ·While Samuel was in the act of presenting burnt 10 offering, the Philistines joined battle with Israel, but that day Yahweh thundered violently over the Philistines, threw them into panic and Israel defeated them.
The men of Israel sallied out from Mizpah in pursuit of the Philistines and beat 11 them all the way to below Beth-Car.[d] ·Samuel then took a stone and erected it 12 between Mizpah and the Tooth, and gave it the name Ebenezer, saying, 'Yahweh helped us as far as this.'[e]

Jg 3:30; 8:28;11:33 So the Philistines were humbled and no longer came into Israelite territory; 13
Yahweh oppressed the Philistines throughout the life of Samuel. ·The towns which 14 the Philistines had taken from Israel were given back to Israel, from Ekron all the way to Gath, and Israel freed their territory from the power of the Philistines.
There was peace, too, between Israel and the Amorites.

Jg 12:7,9,11, 14;16:31 Samuel was judge over Israel throughout his life. ·Each year he went on circuit 15, 16 through Bethel and Gilgal and Mizpah and judged Israel in all these places. ·He 17 would then return to Ramah, since his home was there; there too he judged Israel.
And there he built an altar to Yahweh.

II: SAMUEL AND SAUL

A: THE INSTITUTION OF THE MONARCHY[a]

The people ask for a king[b]

8 When Samuel grew old, he appointed his sons as judges[c] of Israel. ·His eldest 1, 2 son was called Joel and his second one, Abijah; they were judges at Beersheba.
His sons did not follow his example but, seduced by the love of money, took bribes 3 and gave biased verdicts. ·The elders of Israel all assembled, went back to Samuel 4 at Ramah, and said, ·'Look, you are old, and your sons are not following your 5 Dt 17:14 ↗Ac 13:21 example. So give us a king to judge us, like the other nations.'[d] ·Samuel thought 6 that it was wrong of them to say, 'Let us have a king to judge us,' so he prayed to Yahweh. ·But Yahweh said to Samuel, 'Obey the voice of the people in all that 7 12:12 Jg 8:22–23 they say to you: it is not you they have rejected ·but me, not wishing me to reign 8 over them any more. They are now doing to you exactly what they have done to me Jg 10:13 1 K 9:9 since the day I brought them out of Egypt until now, deserting me and serving other gods. ·So, do what they ask; only, you must give them a solemn warning, and 9 must tell them what the king who is to reign over them will do.'

Disadvantages of a monarchy

Everything that Yahweh had said, Samuel then repeated to the people who were 10
Dt 17:14–20 1 K 12 asking him for a king. ·He said, 'This is what the king who is to reign over you will 11 do.[e] He will take your sons and direct them to his chariotry and cavalry, and they 1 K 1:5 will run in front of his chariot. ·He will use them as leaders of a thousand and 12 leaders of fifty; he will make them plough his fields and gather in his harvest and ▶2 K 15:1 13 make his weapons of war and the gear for his chariots. ·He will take your daughters

14 as perfumers, cooks and bakers. ·He will take the best of your fields, your vineyards 1 K 21:1–24
15 and your olive groves and give them to his officials. ·He will tithe your crops and 16 vineyards to provide for his courtiers and his officials. ·He will take the best of your servants, men and women, of your oxen[f] and your donkeys, and make them 17 work for him. ·He will tithe your flocks, and you yourselves will become his slaves.
18 ·When that day comes, you will cry aloud because of the king you have chosen for 1 K 12:4 Pr 1:25–33 Mi 3:4 yourselves, but on that day Yahweh will not hear you.'
19 The people, however, refused to listen to Samuel. They said, 'No! We are 20 determined to have a king, ·so that we can be like the other nations, with our own 21 king to rule us and lead us and fight our battles.' ·Samuel listened to all that the 22 people had to say and repeated it in Yahweh's ear. ·Yahweh then said to Samuel,
'Do as they ask and give them a king.' Samuel then said to the Israelites, 'Go home, each of you, to his own town.'[g]

Saul and his father's donkeys[a]

1 9 Among the men of Benjamin was a man called Kish son of Abiel, son of Zeror, 1 Ch 8:33 2 son of Becorath, son of Aphiah; a Benjaminite and a person of rank. ·He had a son called Saul,[b] a handsome man in the prime of life. Of all the Israelites there 10:23;16:12 was no one more handsome than he; he stood head and shoulders taller than anyone else.
3 Now since the donkeys belonging to Kish, Saul's father, had strayed, Kish said to his son Saul, 'My son, take one of the servants with you and be off; go and look 4 for the donkeys.' ·They went through the highlands of Ephraim, they went through the territory of Shalishah, and did not find them; they went through the territory of Shaalim but they were not there; they went through the territory of Benjamin and 5 did not find them. ·When they reached the territory of Zuph, Saul said to the servant who was with him, 'Come on, let us go back or my father will stop worrying 6 over the donkeys and start being anxious about us.' ·The servant, however, replied,
'Look, there is a man of God in this town,[c] a man who is held in honour; everything Dt 33:1 Jg 13:6 1 K 13:1

c. Mizpah was a sanctuary where ancient Israel held its general assemblies, v. 6; 10:17–24, see Jg 20:1,3; 21:1,5,8, not to be confused with the Mizpah of 1 K 15:22 and Jr 40:13, identified as Tell en-Nasbah, where there was no significant Israelite settlement until after Solomonic times. Mizpah is a common place-name, meaning 'Look-out', and it is tempting to identify the Mizpah of the times of the judges and of Samuel with the heights of Nebi-Samwil, a perfect observation post, to the north of Jerusalem, which would also be the high place of Gibeah—'the principal high place' in the days of Solomon, 1 K 3:4.

d. Site unknown; some emend to 'Beth-Horon'.

e. i.e. 'stone of help'. The Ebenezer of 4:1 is situated elsewhere.

8 a. A turning point of Israel's political and religious history. The sanctuary of the ark of Shiloh has been destroyed and unity is menaced as the Philistine threat increases. A section of the people (repeating the offer made to Gideon, Jg 8:22seq., and cf. the attempt made by Abimelech, Jg 9:1seq.) asks for a king 'such as other nations have', but others hold the opposite view that Yahweh, Israel's only lord, should be left to provide leaders as circumstances required, as he did in the days of the judges. These two schools of thought find expression in juxtaposed accounts of the institution of the monarchy. But it is incorrect to talk of an 'anti-monarchist version' 8; 10:17–24; 12, and of a 'monarchist version' 9:1–10:16. These differing traditions, deriving from different sanctuaries, agree on the historic and religious role of Samuel. His importance was to have established a monarchy which respected the rights of God over the people. After the set-back with the reign of Saul, this was actually achieved under David, whose personality was such that he could reconcile the religious and profane aspects of the Israelite throne, and combine the qualities of political leader with the duties incumbent on Yahweh's Anointed. This ideal balance was never again achieved by his successors, hence David became the type of the Future King by whose means God would save his people, the Anointed of the Lord, the Messiah.

b. This account derives from the sanctuary at Ramah. Samuel opposes the popular demand for a king such as other nations have, see v. 5d, but is not opposed to a monarchy in which Yahweh's prerogatives will be acknowledged.

c. see ch. 7:2b.

d. Israel forgets that it is not like other nations: by following their example and by rejecting its true king, Yahweh, see v. 7 and 12:12, it plays false to its own peculiar vocation.

e. The 'royal rights' have generally been considered to reflect abuses of royal power under Solomon and his successors. But recently discovered texts show that this sort of thing went on in Canaanite kingdoms pre-dating Israel.

f. 'oxen' Gk; 'young people' Hebr.

g. The last sentence of the v. is an editorial insertion to prepare for the anointing of Saul, 9:1–10:16.

9 a. The narrative 9:1–10:16 has no connection with what has gone before. It derives from Ramah and relates that Saul was anointed as a young man and that the anointing remained a secret, as with David, 16. Saul is the central figure of the story and Samuel is represented, not as a judge, but as a prophet whom Saul accidentally meets. The monarchy is intended by Yahweh, and Saul is chosen by him. Saul certainly was anointed, as 24:7,11; 26:9,11,16,23; 2 S 1 14–15 bear witness, and very probably by Samuel, though in what circumstances we do not know.

b. i.e. 'asked for' (from God).

c. Ramah, Samuel's town, 7:17.

he says comes true. Let us go there, then; perhaps he will be able to show us the way that we should take.' •Saul said to his servant, 'But if we do go, what can we 7
Nb 22:7 2 K 5:15 take to the man? The food in our sacks is finished, and we have no present to offer the man of God. What else have we got?' [d] •The servant spoke up again and said to 8 Saul, 'Look, I happen to have a quarter of a silver shekel; I shall give that to the man of God, for him to tell us which way to go.' •Saul then said to his servant, 10
'Well said! Come on, let us go.' And they went off to the town where the man of God was.

Saul meets Samuel

Gn 24:11 Ex 2:16 As they were going up the slope to the town they came across some girls going out 11 to draw water, and said to them, 'Is the seer [e] there?' •In Israel, in olden days, when 9 anyone used to go to consult God, he would say, 'Come on, let us go to the seer,' Si 46:15 for a man who is now called a 'prophet' used to be called a 'seer' in olden days.
The girls replied, 'He is. He arrived a moment or two ahead of you. You had better 12 hurry: he has just come to town because the people are having a sacrifice today on the high place. [f] •You can catch him as soon as you go into the town, before he goes 13 up to the high place for the meal. The people will not eat until he comes, since he Lv 3:1a must bless the sacrifice; after that, the guests will start eating. [g] If you go up now, you will find him straight away.'

So they went up to the town and, as they were going through the gate, [h] Samuel 14 came out towards them on his way to the high place. •Now, Yahweh had given 15
Ac 9:10–16 Samuel a revelation the day before Saul came, saying, •'About this time tomorrow, 16
I shall send you a man from the territory of Benjamin; you are to anoint him as Ex 3:7.10 prince of my people Israel, and he will save my people from the power of the Philistines; for I have seen the misery [i] of my people and their cries of anguish have come to me.' •When Samuel saw Saul, Yahweh told him, 'That is the man of whom 17 16:12 Jn 1:33 I said to you, "He is to govern my people." ' •Saul accosted Samuel in the gateway 18 and said, 'Tell me, please, where the seer's house is.' •Samuel replied to Saul, 'I 19 am the seer. Go up ahead of me to the high place. You must eat with me today.
Tomorrow, when I let you go, I shall tell you whatever is on your mind.
As regards your donkeys, however, which strayed three days ago, do not worry 20 about them; they have been found. And for whom is the whole wealth of Israel destined, if not for you and for all the members of your father's family?' [j] •To this, 21
Saul replied, 'Am I not a Benjaminite, from the smallest [k] of the tribes of Israel?
And is not my family the least of all the families of the tribe of Benjamin? Why are you saying a thing like this to me?'

Samuel then took Saul and his servant and brought them into the hall and gave 22 them a place at the head of the guests, of whom there were about thirty. •Samuel 23 then said to the cook, 'Serve the portion which I gave you and told you to put on one side.' •The cook then picked up the leg and the tail and put it in front of Saul, 24 saying, 'This is for you. This is what was left. Make a good meal . . .' That day, Saul ate with Samuel. [l]

They came down from the high place into the town. A bed was made for Saul on 25
the roof and he lay down there. [m]

Consecration of Saul [n]

At dawn, Samuel called to Saul on the roof, 'Get up, and I shall send you on your 26 way.' Saul got up, and Samuel and he went outside together. •They had walked as 27 far as the end of the town when Samuel said to Saul, 'Tell the servant to go on ahead of us, [o] but you stand still for a moment, so that I can make known to you the word of God.'

10 Samuel took a phial of oil and poured it on Saul's head; he then kissed him 1 9:16–17 and said, 'Has not Yahweh anointed you as leader of his people Israel? You are the man who is to govern Yahweh's people and save them from the power of 14:10c the enemies surrounding them. The sign for you that Yahweh has anointed you as prince of his heritage [a] is this: ·after leaving me today, you will meet two men near Dt 7:6b;32:9

the tomb of Rachel, on the frontier of Benjamin . . .[b] and they will say to you,
"The donkeys which you went looking for have been found, and your father has lost interest in the matter of the donkeys and is worrying about you and wondering, What am I to do about my son?" ·Going on from there, you will come to the Oak of Tabor, where you will meet three men going up to God at Bethel; one will be carrying three kids, one three loaves of bread and the third a skin of wine. ·They will greet you and give you two loaves of bread which you must accept from them.
After this, you will come to Gibeah of God [c] (where the Philistine garrison [d] is) and, 13:3
when you are just outside the town, you will meet a group of prophets coming down from the high place, headed by lyre, tambourine, pipe and harp; they will be in a state of ecstasy. [e] ·The spirit of Yahweh will then seize on you, and you will go Jg 3:10+ into ecstasy with them, and be changed into another man. ·When these signs have occurred, act as occasion serves, for God is with you. ·You will then go down, Gn 39:2 ahead of me, to Gilgal,[f] and I shall join you there to make burnt offerings and to Lv 1:1b;3:1a offer communion sacrifices. You must wait seven days for me to come to you, and I shall then reveal to you what you must do.'

Return of Saul

As soon as he had turned his back to leave Samuel, God changed his heart. And all these signs occurred that very day . . . ·From there,[g] they came to Gibeah: and there was a group of prophets coming to meet him! The spirit of God seized on him 19:20–24 and he fell into ecstasy with them. ·Seeing him prophesying with the prophets, all the people who had known him previously said to one another, 'What has come over the son of Kish? Is Saul one of the prophets too?' ·And one of the local people retorted, 'But who is their father?'[h] Hence the origin of the proverb: Is Saul one of the prophets too?
When he came out of his ecstasy, he went into Gibeah.[i] ·Saul's uncle asked him and his servant, 'Where have you been?' 'Looking for the donkeys,' he replied,
'and when we could not find them anywhere, we went to Samuel.' ·Saul's uncle said, 'Tell me please what Samuel said to you.' ·Saul said to his uncle, 'He merely told us that the donkeys were already found,' but did not mention anything that Samuel had said about the kingship.

d. People did not consult a prophet without giving him a present, Nb 22:7; 1 K 14:3; 2 K 4:42; 5:15; 8:8, see Ezk 13:19; Am 7:12; Mi 3:11.

e. A rare word for prophet, used in ancient prose narrative. Hence the explanatory gloss of v. 9, which is to be read after v. 11.

f. The 'high place' was a shrine set on a hilltop near a town. In these originally Canaanite sanctuaries, the Israelites substituted Yahweh for Baal, Jg 6:25seq., and the high places were for many years tolerated by official Yahwism, 1 K 3:4seq., until their prohibition by the law imposing a single sanctuary. Dt 12:2b.

g. The sacred meal was an essential part of the communion sacrifice, see Lv 3:1a.

h. 'the gate' conj.; see v. 18; 'the town' Hebr.

i. 'misery' Gk; omitted by Hebr.

j. Saul's royal destiny is foretold for the first time.

k. 'the smallest' versions; 'one of the smallest' Hebr. 'of the tribe (of Benjamin)' versions; 'of the tribes' Hebr.

l. Hebr. uncertain: 'because for the time appointed for you saying: I have invited the people'.

m. 'A bed . . . lay down there' Gk and Vet. Lat.; 'he had a talk with Samuel on the roof, and went to bed' Hebr.

n. The kings of Israel were anointed by a man of God, either priest or prophet, see 16:13; 1 K 1:39; 2 K 9:6; 11:12. The rite gave them a sacred character, making them Yahweh's vassals. The king was 'Yahweh's Anointed', see 2:35; 24:7,11; 26:9,16, and see Ex 30:22d.

o. After 'ahead of us', Hebr. has 'and he went past', omitted by Gk.

10 a. Following Gk; Hebr. omits all but the first sentence.

b. The word omitted is incomprehensible in Hebr. The frontier was the one between Benjamin and Ephraim; Saul is on his way from there. Ancient tradition (and see Jr 31:15) located Rachel's tomb there; later it was said to be near Bethlehem where it is still shown, see the gloss of Gn 35:19.

c. Another name for Gibeah, Saul's home, vv. 10seq.; 11:4; 15:34.

d. Others translate 'post' or 'stele'. • The parenthesis is a gloss in preparation for 13:3.

e. These 'prophets' lived in groups; they made use of music and gesticulation to stimulate an ecstasy which communicated itself to others, 19:20–24; 1 K 22:10seq. They have been compared with the dervishes of today. Israel's neighbours (compare the prophets of Baal, 1 K 18:25–29) were familiar with this lower form of religious life, which was long tolerated in the cult of Yahweh, 1 K 18:4. The 'prophets' reappear, with diminished frenzy, in Elisha's company, 2 K 2:3c. The great prophets of Israel are of a different calibre, see Introduction to the Prophets §2.

f. Near Jericho, see Jos 4:19b; v. 8 is an insertion preparing for 13:8–15, a passage from a different source.

g. The original narrative must have described the fulfilment of the first two signs.

h. They are surprised that someone of Saul's standing should mix with these enthusiasts, no doubt of lowly origin.

i. 'Gibeah' Gk; 'the high place' Hebr.

Saul is designated king by lot[j]

7:5c Samuel summoned the people to Yahweh at Mizpah ·and said to the Israelites, 17, 18
Jg 6:8–9 'Yahweh, God of Israel, says this, "I brought Israel out of Egypt and delivered you Ex 20:2 Lv 25:38 from the power of the Egyptians and of all the kingdoms that were oppressing you." ·But today you have rejected your God, him who saves you from all your 19 difficulties and troubles; and you have said, "No, you must set a king over us." Very well, take your positions before Yahweh, tribe by tribe and clan by clan.'

Jos 7:16–18 Samuel then made all the tribes of Israel come forward, and the lot indicated the 20 tribe of Benjamin. ·He then made the tribe of Benjamin come forward clan by 21 clan, and the lot indicated the clan of Matri; he then made the clan of Matri come forward one by one,[k] and the lot indicated Saul son of Kish, but when they looked for him, he was not to be found.

Again they consulted Yahweh, 'Has the man come here?'[l] Yahweh replied, 22
'There he is, hiding among the baggage.' ·So they ran and fetched him out and, as 23 9:2 he stood among the people, he was head and shoulders taller than any of them.
Samuel then said to all the people, 'You have seen the man whom Yahweh has 24 chosen, and that among the whole people he has no equal.' And all the people
1 K 1:39 2 K 11–12 acclaimed him, shouting, 'Long live the king!'

8:11–18 Dt 17:18–20 Jos 24:26–28 Samuel then explained the king's constitutional position[m] to the people and 25 inscribed this in a book which he placed before Yahweh. Samuel then sent all the people away, everyone back to his home. ·Saul too went home to Gibeah and with 26 him went those strong men[n] whose hearts God had touched. ·But there were some 27 11:12–14 scoundrels who said, 'How can this fellow save us?' These treated him with contempt and offered him no present.

Victory over the Ammonites[a]

11 About a month later,[b] Nahash the Ammonite marched up and laid siege to 1
Jabesh in Gilead. All the men of Jabesh said to Nahash, 'Make a treaty with us and we will be your subjects.' ·Nahash the Ammonite replied, 'I shall make a 2 treaty with you only on this condition, that I put out all your right eyes, and I will make it a taunt to the whole of Israel.' ·The elders of Jabesh said to him, 'Give us 3 seven days' grace while we send messengers throughout the territory of Israel, and if no one comes to our help, we will come out to you.'[c] ·The messengers came to 4 Gibeah of Saul, and reported this to the people, and all the people wept aloud.

Now Saul was just then coming in from the fields behind his oxen, and he said, 5
'What is wrong? Why are the people weeping?' They explained to him what the 10:10 Jg 3:10+ Jg 19:29 men of Jabesh had said. ·And the spirit of Yahweh seized on Saul when he heard 6 these words, and he fell into a fury. ·He took a yoke of oxen, cut them into pieces 7 and sent these by messengers throughout the territory of Israel with these words, 'Anyone who will not march with Saul will have the same done to his oxen!' At 14:15 Gn 35:5 this, a panic from Yahweh[d] swept on the people and they marched out as one man.
Saul inspected them at Bezek; there were three hundred thousand of Israel and 8 thirty thousand of Judah.[e] ·Then he said to the messengers who had come, 'This is 9 what you are to say to the people of Jabesh in Gilead, "Tomorrow, by the time that the sun is hot, help will reach you." ' The messengers went and reported this to the people of Jabesh who were overjoyed; ·they said to Nahash,[f] 'Tomorrow we shall 10 come out to you and you can do whatever you like to us.'

The next day, Saul disposed the army in three companies, which burst into the 11
Ex 14:24 middle of the camp during the dawn watch and slaughtered the Ammonites until high noon. The survivors were so scattered that no two of them were left together.

Saul is proclaimed king[g]

10:27 The people then said to Samuel, 'Who said, "Must we have Saul reigning over us?" 12
Hand the men over, for us to put them to death.' ·'No one must be put to death 13

14 today,' Saul said, 'for today Yahweh has intervened to rescue Israel.' ·Samuel then 2 S 19:23 said to the people, 'Let us now go to Gilgal and reaffirm the monarchy there.' 15 The people then all went to Gilgal. And there, at Gilgal, they proclaimed Saul Jos 4:19b king before Yahweh; they offered communion sacrifices before Yahweh, and there Lv 3:1a Saul and all the people of Israel gave themselves over to great rejoicing.

Samuel gives way to Saul [a] Jos 24:1–28

1 12 Samuel said to all Israel, 'I have faithfully done all that you asked of me,
2 and have appointed you a king. ·In future, the king will lead you. As for Nb 27 16:17 me, I am old and grey, and in any case you have my sons. I have been your leader 3 ever since I was young until today. ·Here I am. Bear witness against me before Yahweh and before his anointed. Whose ox have I taken? Whose donkey have I 8:11–17 taken? Have I wronged or oppressed anyone? Have I taken a consideration from Nb 16:15 4 anyone for looking the other way? If so, I will make amends.' ·They said, 'You Si 46:19 5 have neither wronged nor oppressed us nor accepted anything from anyone.' ·He said to them, 'Yahweh is your witness and his anointed is witness today that you have found nothing in my hands?' They replied, 'He is witness.'
6 Samuel then said to the people, [b] 'Yahweh is witness, [c] he who raised up Moses 7 and Aaron and who brought your ancestors out of Egypt. ·So now, stay where you are, while I plead with you before Yahweh and remind you [d] of all the saving acts 8 which he has done for you and for your ancestors. ·After Jacob had arrived in Egypt, the Egyptians oppressed them, [e] and your ancestors cried to Yahweh.
Yahweh then sent Moses and Aaron, who brought your ancestors out of Egypt and 9 gave them a settled home here. ·They then forgot Yahweh their God and he sold Mi 6:4
them into the power of Sisera, general of the army of Hazor, and also into the Jg 4–5; 10 power of the Philistines and of the king of Moab, who made war on them. ·They Jg 13–16 cried to Yahweh, "We have sinned," they said, "for we have deserted Yahweh Jg 3:12–30 and served the Baals and the Astartes. Rescue us now from the power of our 11 enemies, and we will serve you." ·Yahweh then sent Jerubbaal, Barak, [f] Jephthah, Jg 4–5;6–8; and Samuel. He rescued you from the power of the enemies surrounding you, and 11–12 you lived in security.
12 'But when you saw Nahash, king of the Ammonites, marching on you, you said 11:1seq.
to me, "No, we must have a king to rule us"—although Yahweh your God is your 8:7 13 king. ·So, here is the king whom you have chosen: Yahweh has appointed you a 14 king. [g] ·If you fear and serve Yahweh and obey his voice and do not rebel against

j. Tradition deriving from the sanctuary at Mizpah, see 7:5c, parallel to the one about the anointing, 9:26–10:16. For the drawing of lots, see Jos 7:14–18.

k. 'he made the clan of Matri come forward one by one' Gk; omitted by Hebr.

l. 'Has the man come here?' Gk; 'Has a man come here?' Hebr.

m. see 8:11–13, though here it means a written constitution or contract governing relations between sovereign and subjects, see 2 K 11:17.

n. 'strong' Gk; Hebr. uncertain.

11 a. A tradition deriving from Gilgal and independent of the foregoing: there is no indication of Saul's having already been anointed, or acclaimed king by the people. The narrative is reminiscent of those of the 'major' judges, the difference being that, after the victory, Saul is not recognised as judge but is proclaimed as king, a new and serious departure.

b. 'About a month later' versions, introducing 11:1; 'and he kept rather quiet' Hebr., completing 10:27.

c. The people of Jabesh give a deliberately ambiguous reply; 'come out' can mean either 'to surrender' or 'to attack', as also v. 10.

d. After 'with Saul', Hebr. adds 'and Samuel', a gloss in the spirit of ch. 7.

e. The large numbers and the distinction between Israel and Judah betray a late hand.

f. 'to Nahash' added for the sense.

g. v. 15 originally followed v. 11; Saul was acclaimed king on the day after the victory. But according to the parallel narrative, Saul had already been proclaimed at Mizpah, 10:24. vv. 12–14 harmonise the two narratives; Saul was not acknowledged by all, see 10:27, and his investiture had to be 'renewed', Hosea, hostile to monarchical government, seems to condemn the proclamation as sinful, Ho 8:4; 9:15.

12 a. With Samuel's 'farewell discourse', cf. those of Moses, Dt 29–30, and of Joshua, Jos 23. At the beginning of each new stage in history—the conquest, the judges, the monarchy—the leading personality of the previous period recalls God's great achievements in the past and promises his help for the future on condition that the people remain faithful. For Moses and for Joshua these farewells are linked to a renewal of the covenant, Dt 31; Jos 24, and this is also implicit here, vv. 7–15. The place is probably Gilgal, as in 11:15.

b. A short discourse in the Dt manner.

c. 'is witness' Gk; omitted by Hebr.

d. 'and remind you' Gk; omitted by Hebr.

e. 'the Egyptians oppressed them' Gk; omitted by Hebr.

f. 'Barak' Gk; 'Bedan' Hebr. Samuel is ranked with the judges, see ch. 7.

g. Hebr. adds 'for whom you have asked'; omitted in Gk.

B: THE BEGINNING OF SAUL'S REIGN

Revolt against the Philistines [a]

13 Saul was . . . years old when he became king, and reigned over Israel for 1
. . . years. [b] •Saul selected three thousand men of Israel; two thousand of 2
them were with Saul at Michmash and in the highlands of Bethel, and one thousand with Jonathan at Geba [c] of Benjamin; the rest of the people Saul sent home, everyone to his tent. [d]

10:5;14:1–15 Jonathan killed the Philistine governor stationed at Gibeah [e] and the Philistines 3 were informed that the Hebrews had risen in revolt. Saul had the trumpet sounded throughout the country, •and all Israel heard the news, 'Saul has killed the Philis- 4 tine governor, and now Israel has antagonised the Philistines.' So all the people rallied behind Saul at Gilgal. •The Philistines mustered to make war on Israel, 5 three thousand [f] chariots, six thousand horse and a force as numerous as the sand on the seashore. They came up and pitched camp at Michmash, to the east of Jos 7:2b Beth-Aven. [g] •When the Israelites saw that their plight was desperate, being so 6 14:11 hard pressed, the people hid in caves, in holes, [h] in crevices, in vaults, in wells. Some also crossed the Jordan fords [i] into the territory of Gad and Gilead. 7

15 Samuel breaks with Saul [j]

Saul was still at Gilgal and all the people who followed him were trembling. •He 8 10:8 waited for seven days, the period fixed by Samuel, but Samuel did not come to Gilgal, and the army, deserting Saul, began dispersing. •Saul then said, 'Bring me 9 the burnt offering and the communion sacrifices.' And he presented the burnt offering. •Just as he had finished presenting the burnt offering, Samuel arrived, 10 and Saul went out to meet and greet him. •Samuel said, 'What have you been 11 doing?' Saul replied, 'I saw the army deserting me and dispersing, and you had not come at the time fixed, while the Philistines were mustering at Michmash. •So I 12 thought: Now the Philistines are going to fall on me at Gilgal and I have not implored the favour of Yahweh. So I felt obliged to make the burnt offering myself.' •Samuel said to Saul, 'You have acted like a fool. You have not obeyed 13 the order which Yahweh your God gave you. Otherwise, Yahweh would have confirmed your sovereignty over Israel for ever. [k] •But now your sovereignty will 14 not last; Yahweh has discovered a man after his own heart and designated him as ↗Ac 13:22 leader of his people,[l] since you have not carried out what Yahweh ordered you.' 15 Samuel then got up and left Gilgal to continue his journey.

Those people remaining followed Saul as he went to join the warriors, and went from Gilgal to Geba of Benjamin. Saul reviewed the force that was with him; there were about six hundred men.[m]

Preparations for battle[n]

16 Saul, his son Jonathan, and the force that was with them took up their quarters in 17 Geba of Benjamin while the Philistines camped at Michmash.[o] ·The raiding company sallied out of the Philistine camp in three groups: one group made for Ophrah
18 in the territory of Shual; ·one group made for Beth-Horon; and one group made for the high ground overlooking the Valley of the Hyenas, in the direction of the desert.[p]

19 There was not a single blacksmith throughout the territory of Israel, the Philistines' reasoning being, 'We do not want the Hebrews making swords or spears.'
20 Hence, the Israelites were all in the habit of going down individually to the 21 Philistines to sharpen their ploughshares, axes, mattocks and scythes. ·The price was two-thirds of a shekel for ploughshares and axes, and one-third for sharpening
22 mattocks and straightening goads.[q] ·So it was that on the day of the battle, no one in the army with Saul and Jonathan was equipped with either sword or spear; only Saul and his son Jonathan were so equipped.

23 A Philistine unit set out for the Pass of Michmash.

Jonathan attacks the outpost

1 14 One day, Jonathan son of Saul said to his armour-bearer, 'Come on, let us
2 go across to the Philistine outpost over on the other side.' But he did not inform his father. ·Saul was on the outskirts of Geba, sitting under the pomegranate tree that stands near the threshing-floor;[a] the force with him numbered
3 about six hundred men. ·Ahijah son of Ahitub, brother of Ichabod, son of Phine- 4:21

h. 'and against your king' Gk; 'and against your ancestors' Hebr. .

i. A season when it never rains in Palestine.

13 a. Ch. 13–14 are presented as an account of the reign of Saul, with introduction, 13:1, and conclusion, 14:47–52. But they recount only the assassination of the Philistine governor, the reactions of the Philistines and the battle of Michmash which only lasted one day. The reign of Saul is further described in ch. 15–31. Ch. 13 is composite, vv. 16–18 and 23 belong to the primitive account which is continued in ch. 14. vv. 7b–15 are of later origin. There will be no further allusion to this first rejection of Saul, apparently an anticipation of ch. 15.

b. Hebr. reads 'Saul was one year old when he became king, and he reigned over Israel for two years,' which is absurd. Saul's age at his accession either was not known or has accidentally fallen out of the text. The length of his reign was possibly reduced for theological reasons, compare Ishbaal, another bad king, 2 S 2:10.

c. 'Geba' conj., see v. 15; 'Gibeah' Hebr. The confusion between Geba and Gibeah in Hebr. and versions creates difficulties throughout ch. 13–14. The choices made here are based on parallel texts and geographical considerations. • Jonathan was Saul's son, see v. 16 and the rest of the narrative.

d. Remnant of an independent tradition.

j. The tragedy of King Saul: though he is Yahweh's chosen one and the saviour of his people, ch. 11 and 14, Yahweh casts him off, ch. 13 and 15. The Bible, from the preference shown to Jacob rather than to Esau, Gn 25:23, see Rm 9:13, from the election of Israel, Dt 7:6; Am 3:2, to the calling of the apostles, of Paul and of all Christians, teaches the free bestowal of God's choice. But it teaches also that continuance in God's favour depends on the faithfulness of the one chosen: Saul betrayed his choice.

k. It is not easy to see what Saul's fault was: he waited seven days, as instructed. That he himself should offer sacrifice would not be opposed to ancient custom, see 14:32–35. The reason for his rejection is put more clearly in ch. 15.

is a rocky spur on one side and a rocky spur on the other; one is called Bozez, the other Seneh. ·The first spur stands to the north facing Michmash, the other to the south facing Geba. ·Jonathan said to his armour-bearer, 'Come on, let us go across to these uncircumcised people's outpost; perhaps Yahweh will do something for us, for Yahweh is free to grant deliverance through a few men, just as much as through many.' ·His armour-bearer replied, 'Do exactly as you think. I am with you; our hearts are as one.'[b] ·Jonathan then said, 'Look, we will go across to these people and let ourselves be seen. ·If they say, "Do not move until we come to you," we shall stay where we are and not go up to them. ·But if they say, "Come up to us," we shall go up, for that will be the sign[c] for us that Yahweh has given them into our power.'

When the two of them let themselves be seen by the Philistine outpost, the Philistines said, 'Look, the Hebrews are coming out of the holes where they have been hiding.' ·The men of the outpost then hailed Jonathan and his armour-bearer. 'Come up to us,' they said, 'we have something to tell you.' Jonathan then said to his armour-bearer, 'Follow me up; Yahweh has given them into the power of Israel.' ·Jonathan clambered up on hands and feet, with his armour-bearer behind him; the Philistines fell at Jonathan's onslaught, and his armour-bearer, coming behind, finished them off. ·This first killing made by Jonathan and his armour-bearer accounted for about twenty men . . .[d]

There was panic in the camp, in the field and throughout the army; outpost and raiding company too were panic-stricken; the earth quaked: it was a panic from Yahweh. ·Saul's look-out men in Geba[e] of Benjamin could see the camp scattering in all directions. ·Saul then said to the force that was with him, 'Call the roll and see who has left us.' So they called the roll, and Jonathan and his armour-bearer were missing.

2:28*l*; 14:3

Saul then said to Ahijah, 'Bring the ephod,' since he was the man who carried the ephod in Israel.[f] ·But while Saul was speaking to the priest, the turmoil in the Philistine camp grew worse and worse; and Saul said to the priest, 'Withdraw your hand.'[g] ·Saul and the whole force with him then formed up and advanced to where the fighting was going on: and there they all were, drawing their swords on one another in wild confusion. ·Those Hebrews who had earlier taken service with the Philistines and had accompanied them into camp, now defected[h] to the Israelites who were with Saul and Jonathan. ·Similarly, all those Israelites who had been hiding in the highlands of Ephraim, hearing that the Philistines were on the run, chased after them and joined in the fight. ·That day Yahweh gave Israel the victory.

Jonathan violates Saul's prohibition[i]

The fighting reached the other side of Beth-Horon.[j] ·As the men of Israel were hard-pressed that day, Saul pronounced this imprecation over the people, 'A curse on anyone who eats food before evening, before I have taken revenge on my enemies!' So none of the people so much as tasted food.[k]

Now there was a honeycomb out in the open.[l] ·The people came to the honeycomb, the honey was dripping out, but no one put a hand to his mouth, the people being in awe of the oath. ·Jonathan, however, not having heard his father bind the people with the oath, reached with the end of the stick which he was carrying, thrust it into the honeycomb and put it to his mouth; whereupon his eyes grew brighter. ·One of the people then spoke up. 'Your father', he said, 'has bound the people with this oath: "A curse on anyone who eats anything today." '[m] 'My father has brought trouble on the country,' Jonathan replied. 'See how much brighter my eyes are for having eaten this mouthful of honey. ·By the same token, if the people had been allowed to eat some of the booty which they had captured from the enemy today, would not the defeat of the Philistines have been all the greater?'

The people commit a ritual fault

31 That day the Philistines were beaten from Michmash all the way to Aijalon,[n] until Jos 10:10–12 32 the people were utterly exhausted. ·The people flung themselves on the booty and, taking sheep, bullocks and calves, slaughtered them there on the ground and ate 33 them with the blood. ·Saul was informed, 'The people are sinning against Yahweh Lv 1:5e by eating with the blood!' He said, 'You have not kept faith! Roll me a large stone 34 here!'[o] ·Saul then said, 'Scatter among the people and say, "Everyone is to bring his bullock or his sheep to me here." You will slaughter them here and eat, and not sin against Yahweh by eating with the blood.' Each individual brought what he happened to have that night,[p] and they all slaughtered in the same place.
35 Saul built an altar to Yahweh; it was the first altar he had built to Yahweh. Jg 6:24

Jonathan's guilt is discovered, but he is saved by the people

36 Saul said, 'Let us go down under cover of dark and plunder the Philistines until dawn; we shall not leave one of them alive.' 'Do whatever you think right,' they 37 replied. But the priest said, 'Let us approach God here.'[q] ·Saul consulted God, 'Shall I go down and pursue the Philistines? Will you hand them over to Israel?'
38 But he gave him no reply that day. ·Saul then said, 'Come forward, all you leaders 28:6
39 of the people; consider carefully where today's sin may lie; ·for as Yahweh lives who gives victory to Israel, even if the sin lies with Jonathan my son, he shall be put 40 to death.' But not one out of all the people answered. ·He then said to all Israel, 'Stand on one side, and I and Jonathan my son will stand on the other.' And the 41 people replied to Saul, 'Do as you think right.' ·Saul then said, 'Yahweh, God of Israel, why did you not answer your servant today? Yahweh, God of Israel, if the fault lies with me or with my son Jonathan, give urim: if the fault lies with your people Israel, give thummim.'[r] Jonathan and Saul were indicated and the people 42 went free. ·Saul said, 'Cast the lot between me and my son Jonathan,' and Jonathan was indicated.
43 'I only tasted a mouthful of honey off the end of the stick which I was carrying.
44 But I am ready to die.' ·Saul said, 'May God bring unnameable ills on me, and Rt 1:17f 45 worse ones too, if you do not die, Jonathan!' ·But the people said to Saul, 'Must Jonathan die after winning this great victory for Israel? We will never allow that!
As Yahweh lives, not one hair of his head shall fall to the ground, for his deeds today have been done with the help of God.' And so the people ransomed[s] Jonathan and he was not put to death.

q. To consult him by means of the ephod, as in v. 18 above, see 30:8.

r. The v., restored following the versions (Hebr. is corrupt and jumps from first to third 'Israel'), shows how the ephod was used for divination: it held two lots (small sticks, or dice?) called urim and thummim (the meaning of the words is uncertain), their import being determined according to convention. The one drawn out gave the divine answer—a simple 'yes' or 'no', see 23:10–12. The process was frequently a long one. The care of the sacred lots was reserved to the levitical priests, Nb 27:21; Dt 33:8. After the reign of David the practice was discontinued and never resumed, see Ezr 2:63 = Ne 7:65. But the name was still used for part of the high priest's vestment, see Ex 28:30; Lv 8:8, and Ex 28:6a.

s. Like some victim dedicated to Yahweh, Ex 13:13–15; 34:20; Lv 27:27.

Saul decided not to pursue the Philistines, and the Philistines retired to their own territory. 46

Summary of Saul's reign [i]

Saul consolidated his rule over Israel and made war on all his enemies on all fronts: 47
2 S 8:2seq.; 10:6seq. on Moab, the Ammonites, Edom, the king of Zobah and the Philistines; whichever way he turned, he was victorious. [u] ·He did great deeds of valour; he defeated the 48
15 Amalekites and delivered Israel from those who used to pillage him.

Saul's sons were: Jonathan, Ishvi [v] and Malchishua. The names of his two 49
18:17seq., 20seq. daughters were: the elder, Merab, and the younger, Michal. ·The name of Saul's 50 wife was Ahinoam daughter of Ahimaaz. The name of his army commander was 9:1 Abner son of Ner, Saul's uncle. ·Kish father of Saul, and Ner father of Abner were 51
the sons of Abiel.

There was fierce warfare with the Philistines throughout Saul's life. Any strong 52 or valiant man who caught Saul's eye, he recruited into his service. [w]

Holy war against the Amalekites [a]

15 Samuel said to Saul, 'I am the man whom Yahweh sent to anoint you as 1 king of his people Israel, so now listen to the words of Yahweh. ·This is 2 Ex 17:8–16 Dt 25:17–19 what Yahweh Sabaoth says, "I intend to punish what Amalek did to Israel—laying a trap for him on the way as he was coming up from Egypt. ·Now, go and crush 3 Jos 6:17c Amalek; put him under the curse of destruction with all that he possesses. Do not spare him, but kill man and woman, babe and suckling, ox and sheep, camel and donkey." '

Saul summoned the people and reviewed them at Telaim: two hundred thousand 4 foot soldiers (and ten thousand men of Judah). ·Saul advanced on the town of 5
Ex 17:8d Nb 10:29d Amalek and lay in ambush in the river bed. ·Saul said to the Kenites, 'Go away, 6 leave your homes among the Amalekites, in case I destroy you with them—you acted with faithful love towards all the Israelites when they were coming up from Egypt.' So the Kenites moved away from the Amalekites.

Saul then crushed the Amalekites, beginning at Havilah in the direction of Shur, 7 which is to the east of Egypt. ·He took Agag king of the Amalekites alive and, 8 executing the curse of destruction, put all the people to the sword. ·But Saul and 9 the army spared Agag with the best of the sheep and cattle, the fatlings and lambs and all that was good. They did not want to consign these to the curse of destruction; they consigned only what was poor and worthless. [b]

Saul is rejected by Yahweh

Gn 6:7 The word of Yahweh came to Samuel, ·'I regret having made Saul king, since he 10, 11 has broken his allegiance to me and not carried out my orders.' Samuel was appalled and cried to Yahweh all night long.

In the morning, Samuel set off to find Saul. Samuel was told, 'Saul has been to 12 Carmel, [c] to raise himself a monument there, but now has turned about, moved on and gone down to Gilgal.' ·When Samuel reached Saul, Saul said, 'May you be 13 blessed by Yahweh! I have carried out Yahweh's orders.' ·Samuel replied, 'Then 14 what is this bleating of sheep in my ears and the lowing of cattle that I hear?'
Saul said, 'They have been brought from Amalek, the people having spared the 15 best of the sheep and cattle to sacrifice them to Yahweh, your God; the rest we have consigned to the curse of destruction.'

Samuel then said to Saul, 'Stop! Let me tell you what Yahweh said to me last 16 night.' He said, 'Go on.' ·Samuel said, 'Small as you may be in your own eyes, are 17 you not the leader of the tribes of Israel? Yahweh has anointed you as king of Israel. ·When Yahweh sent you on a mission he said to you, "Go and put those 18 sinners, the Amalekites, under the curse of destruction and make war on them until they are exterminated." ·Why then did you not obey Yahweh's voice? Why 19 did you fall on the booty and do what is wrong in Yahweh's eyes?' ·Saul replied to 20

Samuel, 'But I did obey Yahweh's voice. I went on the mission which Yahweh gave me; I brought back Agag king of the Amalekites; I put Amalek under the curse of 21 destruction; ·and from the booty the people have taken the best sheep and cattle of what was under the curse of destruction only to sacrifice them to Yahweh your 22 God in Gilgal.' ·To which, Samuel said: [d]

Is Yahweh pleased by burnt offerings and sacrifices — Am 5:21–25,21n or by obedience to Yahweh's voice? — Ho 6:6
Truly, obedience is better than sacrifice, submissiveness than the fat of rams.
23 Rebellion is a sin of sorcery, presumption a crime of idolatry! [e]

'Since you have rejected Yahweh's word, he has rejected you as king.'

Saul asks in vain for pardon

24 Saul then said to Samuel, 'I have sinned, having broken Yahweh's order and your instructions because I was afraid of the people and yielded to their demands.
25 Now, please forgive my sin and come back with me, so that I can worship Yahweh.'
26 ·Samuel said to Saul, 'I will not come back with you, since you have — 1 K 11:11 27 rejected Yahweh's word and Yahweh has rejected you as king of Israel.' ·As 28 Samuel turned away to leave, Saul caught at the hem of his cloak and it tore, ·and — 1 K 11:30seq. Jr 18:1a Samuel said to him, 'Today Yahweh has torn the kingdom of Israel from you and 29 given it to a neighbour of yours who is better than you.' ·(The Glory of Israel, however, does not lie or go back on his word, not being human and liable to go — 15:11 Nb 23:19 30 back on his word.) [f] ·'I have sinned,' Saul said, 'but please still show me respect in front of my people's elders and in front of Israel, and come back with me, so that I 31 can worship Yahweh your God.' [g] ·Samuel followed Saul back and Saul worshipped Yahweh.

Death of Agag and departure of Samuel

32 Samuel then said, 'Bring me Agag king of the Amalekites!' Agag came towards 33 him unsteadily saying, 'Truly death is bitter!' [h] ·Samuel said:

As your sword has left women childless,
so will your mother be left childless among women!

Samuel then butchered [i] Agag before Yahweh at Gilgal.

t. A summary like that of 7:13–15 (Samuel) and 2 S 8 (David); see also 2 S 3:2–5; 5:13–16; 20:23–26.

u. 'was victorious', versions; Hebr. 'did evil'.

v. i.e. 'the man of Yahweh'. The same person is called Ishbaal, 'the man of the Master', in 1 Ch 8:33, and Ish-bosheth, 'the man of shame', in the Hebr. of 2 S 2:8, etc. where 'shame' is substituted for 'Baal', the name of the Canaanite god.

w. The beginnings of a professional army as distinct from the national mass levy.

15 a. Ch. 15 makes no mention of Saul's first rejection, 13:8–15. Though condemning Saul personally, it does not condemn the monarchical system as such. It does, however, emphasise the opposition, inherent in the Israelite monarchy, between profane politics and the demands of Yahweh, as exemplified in the struggle between King and Prophet (Saul and Samuel, Ahab and Elijah, Hezekiah and Isaiah, Zedekiah and Jeremiah).

b. 'poor and worthless' versions; Hebr. uncertain. • Saul and the people have failed to implement the curse of destruction, which should have fallen on all living things; even though their motive is not to deprive Yahweh of the best of the booty but to sacrifice it to him, v. 15. Saul acts in good faith, and in this lies his tragedy: his sin consists in choosing his individual way of honouring God, with a view to his own popularity. He seeks to compromise between Yahweh who has chosen him, and the people who have acknowledged him as king; he has not declared himself for Yahweh alone.

c. A town to the south of Hebron, see 25:2seq., modern Kermel, lying on Saul's way back from the Negeb to Gilgal.

d. Samuel does not condemn sacrificial practice as a whole, but obedience of the heart is what pleases God, not mere external ritual. To practise the latter against God's will is to do homage to something that is not God, to be guilty of apostasy and idolatry, here connected with magic and the teraphim, idols by which houses and property were guarded, Gn 31:19,30seq.; 1 S 19:13.

e. 'a crime' Symm.; 'futility' Hebr.

f. Gloss quoting Nb 23:19.

g. There are no witnesses to the interview, and Saul's rejection does not immediately become effective (because the king has confessed his fault?). Samuel agrees to support Saul's authority by accompanying him to the sanctuary.

h. 'unsteadily', text and meaning uncertain. 'truly death is bitter', Gk; 'the bitterness of death is over', Hebr. (Agag thinking he has escaped death).

i. 'butchered' or 'cut to pieces': Samuel executes the curse of destruction himself.

Samuel left for Ramah, and Saul went up home to Gibeah of Saul. ·Samuel did 34. 35 not see Saul again till his dying day.[j] Samuel indeed mourned over Saul, but Yahweh regretted having made Saul king of Israel.

III: SAUL AND DAVID

A: DAVID AT COURT

David is anointed[a]

16 Yahweh said to Samuel, 'How much longer do you mean to go on mourning 1 over Saul, now that I myself have rejected him as ruler of Israel? Fill your Rt 4:17–22 Is 11:1 horn with oil and go. I am sending you to Jesse of Bethlehem, for I have found myself a king from among his sons.' ·Samuel replied, 'How can I go? When Saul 2 hears of it he will kill me.' Yahweh then said, 'Take a heifer with you and say, "I have come to sacrifice to Yahweh." ·Invite Jesse to the sacrifice, and I shall reveal 3 to you what you must do; and you will anoint for me the one I indicate to you.'

Samuel did what Yahweh ordered and went to Bethlehem. The elders of the 4 town came trembling to meet him and asked, 'Seer, is your coming favourable for us,' ·'Yes,' he replied. 'I have come to sacrifice to Yahweh. Purify yourselves and 5 come with me to the sacrifice.' He purified Jesse and his sons and invited them to the sacrifice.

When they arrived, he looked at Eliab and thought, 'This must be Yahweh's 6 9:2;10:23seq. anointed now before him,' ·but Yahweh said to Samuel, 'Take no notice of his 7 Jb 10:4 Ps 147:10seq. Pr 15:11 Is 55:8–9 Jr 11:20+ appearance or his height, for I have rejected him; God does not see[b] as human beings see; they look at appearances but Yahweh looks at the heart.' ·Jesse then 8 called Abinadab and presented him to Samuel, who said, 'Yahweh has not chosen this one either.' ·Jesse then presented Shammah, but Samuel said, 'Yahweh has 9 not chosen this one either.' ·Jesse thus presented seven of his sons to Samuel, but 10
Samuel said to Jesse, 'Yahweh has not chosen these.' ·He then asked Jesse, 'Are 11 these all the sons you have?' Jesse replied, 'There is still one left, the youngest; he is looking after the sheep.' Samuel then said to Jesse, 'Send for him, for we shall Gn 39:6 2 S 14:25seq. not sit down to eat until he arrives.' ·Jesse had him sent for; he had ruddy cheeks, 12 with fine eyes and an attractive appearance. Yahweh said, 'Get up and anoint him:
he is the one!' ·At this, Samuel took the horn of oil and anointed him, surrounded 13 10:6 Jg 3:10+ by his brothers; and the spirit of Yahweh seized on David[c] from that day onwards.
Samuel, for his part, set off and went to Ramah.

David enters Saul's service[d]

Now the spirit of Yahweh had withdrawn from Saul, and an evil spirit from 14
Yahweh[e] afflicted him with terrors. ·Saul's servants said to him, 'An evil spirit 15 from God is undoubtedly the cause of your terrors. ·Let our lord give the order, 16 and your servants who wait on you will look for a skilled harpist; when the evil spirit from God comes over you, he will play and it will do you good.'[f] ·Saul said to 17 his attendants, 'Find me, please, a man who plays well, and bring him to me.'
One of the servants then spoke up and said, 'I have seen one of the sons of Jesse 18
the Bethlehemite: he is a skilled player, a brave man and a fighter, well spoken, good-looking and Yahweh is with him.' ·So Saul sent messengers to Jesse with the 19 order, 'Send me your son David (who is with the sheep).' ·Jesse took five[g] loaves, 20 a skin of wine and a kid, and sent them to Saul by his son David. ·David went to 21 Saul and entered his service; Saul became very fond of him and David became his armour-bearer. ·Saul then sent a message to Jesse, 'Let David stay in my service, 22 since he has won my favour.' ·And whenever the spirit from God came over Saul, 23
David would take a harp and play; Saul would then be soothed; it would do him good, and the evil spirit would leave him.

Goliath challenges the Israelite army

17 The Philistines mustered their troops for war; they assembled at Socoh in Judah and pitched camp between Socoh and Azekah, in Ephes-Dammim.
Saul and the Israelites also mustered, pitching camp in the Valley of the Terebinth, and drew up their battle-line opposite the Philistines. ·The Philistines occupied the high ground on one side and the Israelites occupied the high ground on the other side, with the valley between them.
A champion stepped out from the Philistine ranks; his name was Goliath, [a] from 2 S 21:19 Gath; he was six cubits and one span tall. ·On his head was a bronze helmet and he wore a breastplate of scale-armour; the breastplate weighed five thousand shekels of bronze. ·He had bronze greaves on his legs and a bronze scimitar slung across his shoulders. ·The shaft of his spear was like a weaver's beam, and the head of his spear weighed six hundred shekels of iron. A shield-bearer walked in front of him.
Taking position in front of the Israelite lines, he shouted, 'Why have you come out to range yourselves for battle? Am I not a Philistine and are you not Saul's lackeys? Choose [b] a man and let him come down to me. ·If he can fight it out with me and kill me, we will be your servants; but if I can beat him and kill him, you become our servants and serve us.' ·The Philistine then said, 'I challenge the ranks of Israel today. Give me a man and we will fight it out!' ·When Saul and all Israel heard what the Philistine said, they were dismayed and terrified.

David arrives in the camp

David was the son of an Ephrathite from Bethlehem of Judah whose name was 16:10seq.
Rt 1:2a
Jesse; Jesse had eight sons and, by Saul's time, he was old and well on in years. [c] Jesse's eldest three sons followed Saul to the war. The names of the three sons who went to the war were: the eldest Eliab, the second Abinadab and the third Shammah. ·David was the youngest; the eldest three followed Saul. ·David alternated between serving Saul and looking after his father's sheep at Bethlehem. [d] Morning and evening, the Philistine advanced, presenting himself thus for forty days. ·Jesse said to his son David, 'Take your brothers this ephah of roasted grain and these ten loaves, and hurry to the camp, to your brothers. ·And take these ten cheeses to their commanding officer; find out how your brothers are and bring some token back from them; ·they are with Saul and all the men of Israel in the Valley of the Terebinth, fighting the Philistines.'
David got up early in the morning and, leaving the sheep with someone to guard them, took up his load and went off as Jesse had ordered; he reached the

j. Though see 19:22–24 which records a different tradition.

16 a. The episode appears to derive from the prophetic tradition and remains unrelated to the subsequent history in which David is anointed at Hebron by the men of Judah, 2 S 2:4, and then by the elders of Israel, 2 S 5:3, without any further mention of the present anointing of which, according to 1 S 17:28, and despite 1 S 16:13, Eliab knows nothing. As ch. 9 for Saul, so this narrative serves as introduction to the story of the 'rise' of David.

b. Following Gk; Hebr. omits.

c. Without exterior manifestation and in immediate association with the anointing, 'the spirit of God', here, is the grace imparted to a consecrated person.

d. David's early association with Saul is recounted in two traditions. According to one, David is summoned to court as a minstrel and becomes Saul's armour-bearer, 16:14–23, in which capacity he accompanies the king in his war against the Philistines, 17:1–11, and distinguishes himself in single combat, 17:32–53 (fusion of both traditions). According to the second, David is a young shepherd unknown to Saul; he visits his soldier brothers at the very moment the Philistine champion is gibing at the Israelites, 17:12–30 (v. 31 is a link-verse and the first tradition is then resumed, 17:32–53). Saul then summons the young hero and enlists him in his service, 17:55–18:5.

e. The spirit of Yahweh, see Jg 3:10, leaves Saul, 15:23, and he is 'possessed' by an evil spirit, which is said to come from Yahweh and will be called the 'evil spirit of God', vv. 15,16, see 18:10; 19:9, because the Israelite attributed everything to God as first cause (see the spirit of discord, Jg 9:23, the spirit of lies, 1 K 22:19–23, the spirit of giddiness, Is 19:14, the spirit of lethargy, Is 29:10). Aware of having been rejected by God and deserted by Samuel, the excitable king suffers attacks of madness, 18:10seq.; 19:9seq.

f. The ancients commonly used music either to stimulate the good spirit, see 10:5, or to expel the evil spirit.

g. 'five' hamishah conj.; Hebr. hamor 'donkey'.

17 a. 2 S 21:19 assigns the defeat of Goliath to one of David's warriors—the more ancient tradition, as it seems. The original tradition behind ch. 17 spoke only of David's victory over an unnamed opponent, 'the Philistine'. Goliath's name has been added in vv. 4 and 23. • 'ranks' Gk; 'camps' Hebr.

b. 'Choose' Gk; Hebr. uncertain.

c. 'in years' bashshanim versions; Hebr. ba'anashim 'among men'. The old Gk version omits vv. 12–31, belonging to the tradition according to which David is still unknown to Saul, see 16:14d.

d. Editorial gloss inserted to harmonise the two traditions.

encampment just as the troops were leaving to take up battle stations and shouting the war cry. ·Israel and the Philistines drew up their lines facing one another. 21, 22 ·David left his bundle in charge of the baggage guard and, running to the battle-line, went and asked his brothers how they were.

17:8–10 While he was talking to them, the champion (Goliath, the Philistine from Gath) 23 came up from the Philistine ranks and made his usual speech, which David heard.
As soon as the Israelites saw this man, they all ran away from him and were 24 terrified. ·The Israelites said, 'You saw that man who just came up? He comes to 25 challenge Israel. The king will lavish riches on the man who kills him, he will give him his daughter in marriage and exempt his father's family from all taxes in Israel.'
David asked the men who were standing near him, 'What would be the reward 26
Jos 5:9c for killing this Philistine and saving Israel from disgrace? Who is this uncircumcised
Jg 14:3;15:18 Philistine, to challenge the armies of the living God?' ·The people told him what 27
2 K 19:4,16 they had been saying, 'That would be the reward for killing him,' they said. ·His 28
Is 37:4, 17 eldest brother Eliab heard David talking to the men and grew angry with him.
'Why have you come down here?' he said. 'Whom have you left in charge of those few sheep in the desert? I know how impudent and artful you are; you have come to watch the battle!' ·David retorted, 'What have I done? May I not even speak?' 29
And he turned away from him to someone else and asked the same question, to 30 which the people replied as before. ·David's words were noted, however, and 31 reported to Saul, who sent for him.

David volunteers to accept the challenge

David said to Saul, 'Let no one be discouraged on his account; [e] your servant will 32 go and fight this Philistine.' ·Saul said to David, 'You cannot go and fight the 33 Philistine; you are only a boy and he has been a warrior since his youth.'
David said to Saul, 'Your servant used to look after the sheep for his father and 34 whenever a lion or a bear came and took a sheep from the flock, ·I used to follow it 35 up, lay into it and snatch the sheep out of its jaws. If it turned on me, I would seize it by the beard and batter it to death. ·Your servant has killed both lion and bear, 36 and this uncircumcised Philistine will end up like one of them for having challenged Lv 26:8 the armies of the living God.' ·'Yahweh,' David went on, 'who delivered me from 37
Dt 30:3–4 the claws of lion and bear, will deliver me from the clutches of this Philistine.'
Ps 18:17 Then Saul said to David, 'Go, and Yahweh be with you!'
Pr 28:1
Saul dressed David in his own armour; he put a bronze helmet on his head, 38 dressed him in a breastplate ·and buckled his own sword over David's armour. 39 David tried to walk but, not being used to them, said to Saul, 'I cannot walk in these; I am not used to them.' So they took them off again. [f]

David and Goliath [g]

He took his stick in his hand, selected five smooth stones from the river bed and 40 put them in his shepherd's bag, in his pouch; then, sling in hand, he walked towards the Philistine. ·The Philistine, preceded by his shield-bearer, came nearer and 41 nearer to David. ·When the Philistine looked David up and down, what he saw 42 16:12 filled him with scorn, because David was only a lad, with ruddy cheeks and an attractive appearance. ·The Philistine said to David, 'Am I a dog for you to come 43 after me with sticks?' And the Philistine cursed David by his gods. ·The Philistine 44 said to David, 'Come over here and I will give your flesh to the birds of the air and the wild beasts!' ·David retorted to the Philistine, 'You come to me with sword, 45 spear and scimitar, but I come to you in the name of Yahweh Sabaoth, God of the armies of Israel, whom you have challenged. ·Today, Yahweh will deliver you into 46 my hand; I shall kill you, I shall cut off your head; today, I shall give your corpse and the corpses [h] of the Philistine army to the birds of the air and the wild beasts, so Jos 4:24 that the whole world may know that there is a God in Israel, ·and this whole 47
14:6 assembly know that Yahweh does not give victory by means of sword and spear—
2 K 19:34seq. for Yahweh is lord of the battle and he will deliver you into our power.'
Ho 1:7

48 No sooner had the Philistine started forward to confront David than David 49 darted out of the lines and ran to meet the Philistine. ·Putting his hand in his bag, he took out a stone, slung it and struck the Philistine on the forehead; the stone 50 penetrated his forehead and he fell face downwards on the ground. ·Thus David triumphed over the Philistine with a sling and a stone; he hit the Philistine and 51 killed him, though he had no sword in his hand. ·David ran and stood over the Philistine, seized his sword, pulled it from the scabbard, despatched him and cut off his head.
52 When the Philistines saw that their champion was dead, they fled. ·The men of Israel and of Judah started forward, shouting their war cry, and pursued the Philistines as far as the approaches of Gath and the gates of Ekron. The Philistine 53 dead lay all along the road from Shaaraim as far as Gath[f] and Ekron. ·Turning back from their ferocious pursuit of the Philistines, the Israelites plundered their 54 camp. ·And David took the Philistine's head and brought it to Jerusalem; his 17:57;21:10 weapons, however, he put in his own tent.[j]

David the conqueror of Goliath is presented to Saul[k]

55 When Saul saw David going to engage the Philistine he said to Abner, the army commander, 'Abner, whose son is that boy?' 'On your life, O king,' Abner replied, 56 'I do not know.' ·The king said, 'Find out whose son the lad is.'
57 When David came back after killing the Philistine, Abner took him and brought 58 him before Saul with the Philistine's head in his hand. ·Saul asked him, 'Whose son are you, young man?' David replied, 'The son of your servant Jesse of Bethlehem.'
1 18 When David had finished talking to Saul, Jonathan felt an instant affection 19:1–7;20;
2 for David; Jonathan loved him like his very self;[a] ·Saul engaged him that 23:16–18
3 very day and would not let him go home to his father. ·Jonathan made a pact with 2 S 1:26 4 David, since he loved him like his very self; ·Jonathan took off the cloak which he was wearing and gave it to David, and his armour too, even including his sword, 5 his bow and his belt.[b] ·Wherever David was sent on a mission by Saul, he was successful, and Saul put him in command of the fighting men; all the people respected him and so did Saul's staff.

Saul starts being jealous[c]

6 On their return, when David was coming back from killing the Philistine, the women came out of all the towns of Israel singing and dancing to meet King Saul, Ex 5:20seq.
7 with tambourines, sistrums and cries of joy; ·and as they danced the women sang: Jg 5;11:34

> Saul has killed his thousands, 21:12;29:5
> and David his tens of thousands.

8 Saul was very angry; the incident displeased him. 'They have given David the tens of thousands,' he said, 'but me only the thousands; what more can he have, 9 except the throne?' ·And Saul watched David jealously from that day onwards.
10 The following day, an evil spirit from God seized on Saul and he fell into a frenzy 16:14e;

e. Resumption of the first tradition (v. 32 follows on from v. 11). The traditions are then fused.

f. Following the Gk; Hebr. has 'David buckled on' and 'David took them off', but see v. 38.

g. A single combat between two champions, to put an end to the war and to decide the fate of the two peoples, see vv. 8–10; see 2 S 2:12–17; 21:15–22; 23:20–21; compare the single combats in the Iliad.

h. 'your corpse and the corpses' Gk; 'the corpse' Hebr.

i. 'Gath' Gk; 'valley' Hebr.

j. i.e. kept for himself. The v. is an addition: Jerusalem was captured somewhat later, 2 S 5:6–9, and David had no tent of his own.

k. Same tradition as 17:12–30. David is still unknown to Saul. This is at variance with 16:14–23, and 17:55–18:5 is therefore omitted, like 17:12–31, from the ancient Greek version.

18 a. The friendship of David and Jonathan is an attractive feature of the subsequent bitter episodes; it lasts till Jonathan's death.

b. The accoutrement is part of the man, see 24:5–6; Rt 3:9; 2 K 2:13; Jonathan's gesture thus expresses his devotion for David, v. 1.

c. The text of this chapter is overloaded: v. 6 is unnecessary, as also vv. 10–11 (first attempt on David's life), vv. 17–19 (thwarted marriage with Merab), v. 30 (David's triumph, repeating vv. 14–16). The ancient Greek version omits these doublets.

while he was indoors. David played the harp as on other occasions; Saul had a spear in his hand. ·Saul brandished the spear; he said, 'I will pin David to the wall!' 11
David evaded him twice. [d]

Saul feared David, since Yahweh was with him and had withdrawn from Saul. 12
So Saul removed him from his presence and appointed him commander of a 13 thousand; he led the people on campaign. ·In all his expeditions, David was 14
Gn 39:2 successful and Yahweh was with him. ·And Saul, seeing how very successful he 15 was, was afraid of him. ·All Israel and Judah loved David, however, since he was 16 2 S 5:2 their leader on campaign.

David's marriage [e]

17:25 Saul said to David, 'This is my elder daughter Merab; I shall give her to you in 17 marriage; but you must serve me bravely and fight Yahweh's wars.' Saul thought, 'Better than strike the blow myself, let the Philistines do it!' ·David replied to Saul, 18 2 S 7:18 'Who am I and what is my lineage [f]—and my father's family—in Israel, for me to become the king's son-in-law?' ·When the time came for Merab daughter of Saul 19 2 S 21:8 to be given to David, she was given to Adriel of Meholah instead.

Now Michal daughter of Saul fell in love with David. When Saul heard this he 20 was pleased. ·He thought, 'Yes, I shall give her to him; she can be the snare for 21 him, so that the Philistines will get him.' (On two occasions, [g] Saul told David, 'Today, you shall be my son-in-law.') ·Saul gave instructions to his servants, 'Have 22 a private word with David and say, "Look, the king is fond of you and all his servants love you—why not be the king's son-in-law?" ' ·Saul's servants repeated 23 these words in David's ear, to which David replied, 'Do you think that becoming the king's son-in-law is a trivial matter; I have neither wealth nor position.' ·Saul's 24 servants then reported back, 'This is what David said.' ·Saul replied, 'Tell David 25 17:26+ this, "The king desires no bride-price [h] except one hundred Philistine foreskins, [i] in vengeance on the king's enemies." ' Saul was counting on getting David killed by the Philistines.

When his servants repeated this to David, David thought it would be a fine thing 26 to be the king's son-in-law. And no time was lost ·before David got up to go, he 27 and his men, and killed two hundred of the Philistines. David brought their foreskins back and counted them out before the king, so that he could be the king's son-in-law. Saul then gave him his daughter Michal in marriage.

Saul could not but see that Yahweh was with David, and that the whole House 28 of Israel [j] loved him; ·Saul became more afraid of David than ever, and became his 29 inveterate enemy. ·The Philistine chiefs kept mounting their campaigns but, when- 30 ever they did so, David proved more successful than any of Saul's staff; consequently he gained great renown.

20 Jonathan intercedes for David [a]

19 Saul let his son Jonathan and all his servants know of his intention to kill 1
David. But Jonathan, Saul's son, held David in great affection; ·and Jona- 2 than warned David, 'My father Saul is looking for a way to kill you, so be on your guard tomorrow morning; go into hiding, stay out of sight. ·I shall go out and keep 3 my father company in the countryside where you will be, and shall talk to my father about you; I shall see what the situation is and then tell you.'

Jonathan spoke highly of David to Saul his father and said, 'The king should not 4 harm his servant David; far from harming you, what he has done has been greatly to your advantage. ·He took his life in his hands, he killed the Philistine, and 5 Yahweh brought about a great victory for all Israel. You saw for yourself. How pleased you were! Why then sin against innocent blood by killing David for no reason?' ·Saul was impressed by Jonathan's words. Saul swore, 'As Yahweh lives, 6
I will not kill him.' ·Jonathan called David and told him all this. Jonathan then 7 brought him to Saul, and David remained in attendance as before.

B: THE FLIGHT OF DAVID

Saul's attempt on David's life

=18:10–11

8 War broke out again and David sallied out to fight the Philistines; he inflicted a 9 great defeat on them and they fled before him. •An evil spirit from Yahweh came 16:14a over Saul while he was sitting in his house with his spear in his hand; David was 10 playing the harp. •Saul tried to pin David to the wall with his spear, but he avoided Saul's thrust and the spear stuck in the wall. David fled and made good his escape.

David is saved by Michal

11 That same night [b] •Saul sent agents to watch David's house, intending to kill him in Ps 59 the morning. But Michal, David's wife, warned him, 'If you do not escape tonight, 12 you will be a dead man tomorrow!' •Michal then let David down through the window, and he made off, took to flight and so escaped.
13 Michal then took a domestic image, laid it on the bed, put a tress of goats' hair at 15:22d
14 the head of the bed and put a cover over it. •When Saul sent the agents to arrest
15 David, she said, 'He is ill.' •Saul sent the agents back to see David, with the words, 16 'Bring him to me on his bed, for me to kill him!' •So in the agents went, and there 17 in bed was the image, with the tress of goats' hair on its head! •Saul then said to Michal, 'Why have you deceived me like this and let my enemy go, and so make his escape?' Michal replied to Saul, 'He said, "Let me go, or I shall kill you!" '

Saul and David at Ramah with Samuel [c]

18 David, having fled and made his escape, went to Samuel at Ramah and told him exactly how Saul had treated him; he and Samuel went and lived in the huts. [d] 19, 20 Word was brought to Saul, 'David is in the huts at Ramah.' •Saul accordingly sent 2 K 1:9–14 agents to capture David; when they [e] saw the community of prophets prophesying, 10:5e and Samuel there as their leader, the spirit of God came over Saul's 21 agents, and they too fell into frenzy. •When Saul was told of this, he sent other agents, and they too fell into frenzy; Saul then sent a third group of agents, and they fell into frenzy too.
22 He then went to Ramah himself and, arriving at the large storage-well at Seku, asked, 'Where are Samuel and David?' And someone said, 'Why, they are in the 23 huts at Ramah!' •Making his way from there to the huts at Ramah, the spirit of God came over him too, and he went along in a frenzy until he arrived at the huts 24 at Ramah. •He too stripped off his clothes and he too fell into a frenzy in Samuel's presence, then collapsed naked on the ground for the rest of that day and all night.
Hence the saying: Is Saul one of the prophets too? 10:10–12

d. vv. 10–11, belonging to the same tradition as 16:14–23, anticipate the episode of 19:8–10 and here interrupt the narrative.

e. vv. 17–19 are ill-matched with what follows; with the exception of the gloss in v. 21 there is no allusion in vv. 20–27 to any previous broken engagement, and vv. 20–27 develop the ideas of vv. 17–19 concerning Michal.

f. 'my lineage' hayyi conj.; Hebr. hayyay 'my life'.

g. As prospective husband first of Merab, then of Michal. The sentence is a gloss, see note e above.

h. Hebr. mohar, the sum paid by the bridegroom to the father of his future bride.

i. To assist reckoning of the enemy dead some part of their bodies was sometimes cut off. The foreskins prove that those killed are uncircumcised, i.e. are Philistine.

j. 'whole . . . Israel' Gk; 'Michal daughter of Saul' Hebr.

19 a. This episode does not square with the narrative of ch. 20 where Jonathan as yet knows nothing, v. 2, of his father's vicious intentions. These are two different traditions about Jonathan's intervention on behalf of David.

b. David's wedding night; the narrative is connected with 18:27 rather than with what immediately precedes.

c. Independent and probably late narrative. According to 15:35, Saul and Samuel were never to meet again. The passage is a doublet of 10:10–12.

d. The place where the prophets lived, 2 K 6:1seq., at Ramah, or nearby. Or perhaps a place-name for Ramah, 'at Navith' or 'Naioth'.

e. 'they', versions; 'he', Hebr.

19:1-7,11-17 Jonathan helps David to escape [a]

20 Fleeing from the huts at Ramah, [b] David went and confronted Jonathan, 1
'What have I done, what is my guilt, how have I wronged your father, for him to want to take my life?' ·He replied, 'You must not think that! You are not 2 going to die. My father, you see, does nothing, important or unimportant, without confiding in me, so why should my father hide this from me? It is not true.' ·In 3 reply, David swore, 'Your father knows very well that I enjoy your favour, and thinks, "Jonathan must not know about this or he will be upset." But, as Yahweh lives and as you yourself live, there is only a step between me and death.'

At which, Jonathan said to David, 'Whatever you think best, I will certainly do 4 for you.' ·David replied, 'Look, tomorrow is New Moon [c] and I ought to sit at table 5 with the king, but you must let me go and hide in the countryside until the evening. [d]
If your father notices my absence, you must say, "David insistently asked me for 6 permission to hurry over to Bethlehem, his home town, because they are holding the annual sacrifice there for the whole clan." ·If he says, "Very well," your 7 servant is safe, but if he flies into a rage, you may be sure that he has some evil plan. ·Show your servant faithful love, since you have bound your servant to you 8 by a pact in Yahweh's name. But if I am guilty, then kill me yourself—why take me to your father?' ·Jonathan replied, 'Perish the thought! If I knew for sure that my 9 father was determined to do you a mischief, would I not have told you?' ·David 10 then said to Jonathan, 'Who will let me know if your father gives you a harsh answer?' [e]

Jonathan then said to David, 'Come on, let us go out into the country,' and the 11 pair of them went out into the country. ·Jonathan then said to David, 'By Yahweh, 12 God of Israel! I shall sound my father this time tomorrow; if all is well for David Rt 1:17f and I do not then send and inform you, ·may Yahweh bring unnameable ills to 13 Jonathan and worse ones too! If my father intends to do you a mischief, [f] I shall tell you so and let you get away, so that you can be safe. And may Yahweh be with you as he used to be with my father! ·If I am still alive, show your servant faithful love; 14 if I die, ·never withdraw your faithful love from my family. When Yahweh has 15 exterminated every enemy of David's from the face of the earth, ·do not let 16 2 S 9:21:7 Jonathan's name be exterminated with Saul's family, or may Yahweh call David to account!' [g] ·Jonathan then renewed his oath [h] to David, since he loved him like his 17 very soul.

Jonathan then said to David, 'Tomorrow is New Moon; your absence will be 18 noticed, since your place will be empty. ·The day after tomorrow your absence will 19 be very marked, and you must go to the place where you hid on the day of the deed, [i] and stay beside that mound. ·For my part, the day after tomorrow I shall 20 shoot three arrows in that direction, as though at a target. ·I shall then send a 21 servant to go and find the arrows. If I say to him, "The arrows are this side of you, get them," come out, since all will be well for you and nothing the matter, as sure as Yahweh lives. ·But if I say to him, "The arrows are ahead of you," then be off, 22 for Yahweh himself will be sending you away. ·And as regards the agreement we 23 made, you and I, why, Yahweh is witness [j] between us for ever.'

So David hid in the country; New Moon came and the king sat down to his meal. 24
He sat in his usual place with his back to the wall, Jonathan sat facing him [k] and 25
Abner sat next to Saul; but David's place was empty. ·Saul said nothing that day, 26 thinking, 'It is sheer chance; he is unclean.' [l] ·On the day after New Moon, the 27 second day, David's place was still empty. ·Saul said to his son Jonathan, 'Why did 28 not the son of Jesse come to the meal either yesterday or today?' ·Jonathan 29 answered Saul, 'David insistently asked me for permission to go to Bethlehem.
"Please let me go," he said, "for we are holding the clan sacrifice in the town and my brothers have ordered me to attend. So now, if I enjoy your favour, let me get away and see my brothers." That is why he has not come to the king's table.'

Saul flew into a rage with Jonathan and said, 'Son of a rebellious slut! Don't I 30 know that you side with the son of Jesse to your own shame and your mother's 31 dishonour? ·As long as the son of Jesse lives on earth, neither you nor your royal rights are secure. Now have him fetched and brought to me; he deserves to die.

32 Jonathan retorted to his father Saul, 'Why should he die? What has he done?'
33 But Saul brandished his spear at him to strike him, and Jonathan realised that his 34 father was determined that David should die. ·Hot with anger, Jonathan got up from the table and ate nothing on the second day of the month, being upset about David [m]—and because his father had insulted him.
35 Next morning, Jonathan went out into the country at the time agreed with 36 David, taking a young servant with him. ·He said to his servant, 'Run and find the arrows which I am going to shoot,' and the servant ran while Jonathan shot an 37 arrow ahead of him. ·When the servant reached the spot to which Jonathan had shot the arrow, Jonathan shouted after him, 'Is not the arrow ahead of you?' 20:22 38 Again Jonathan shouted after the servant, 'Quick! Hurry, do not stand around.' 39 Jonathan's servant picked up the arrow and brought it back [n] to his master. ·The servant suspected nothing; only Jonathan and David knew what was meant.
40 Jonathan then gave his weapons to his servant and said, 'Go and carry them to 41 the town.' ·As soon as the servant had gone, David stood up beside the mound, threw himself to the ground, prostrating himself three times. They then embraced 42 each other, both weeping copiously. [o] ·Jonathan then said to David, 'Go in peace.
And as regards the oath that both of us have sworn by the name of Yahweh, may Yahweh be witness between you and me, between your descendants and mine for 2 S 9:1;21:7
ever.' [p]

1 21 David then got up and left, and Jonathan went back to the town.

David and the priest at Nob

21:1 2 David then went to Nob, [a] to Ahimelech the priest. [b] Ahimelech came out trembling
2 3 to meet David and said, 'Why are you alone? Why is nobody with you?' ·David replied to Ahimelech the priest, 'The king has given me an order and said to me,
"Do not let anyone know anything about the mission on which I am sending you, or about the order which I have given you." I have arranged to meet the guards [c] at 3 4 such and such a place. ·Meanwhile, if you have five loaves of bread to hand, give 4 5 them to me, or whatever there is.' ·The priest replied to David, 'I have no ordinary bread to hand; there are only consecrated loaves of permanent offering [d]—pro- Ex 25:30 profane journey, they are certainly clean today as far as their things are 20 a. Narrative from a tradition different from 19:1–7 and parallel with 19:11–17. In one case it is Saul's daughter, in the other his son, who saves David.

↗Mt 12:3–4

b. Editorial link; in the narrative that follows David has not yet left Saul.

c. A festival held at the beginning of each lunar month, celebrated with sacrifices and feasting, Nb 10:10; 28:11seq.; Is 1:13–14; Ho 2:13; Am 8:5.

d. Omitting 'of the third day' with the Gk.

e. The question presupposes that a meeting would be dangerous. The answer is given in v. 18seq.; vv. 11–17 are an addition anticipating the passing of Saul's authority to David.

f. 'to do' conj.; Hebr. omits.

g. vv. 14–16 restored following Gk.

h. 'renewed his oath' Gk; 'made (David) swear in return' Hebr. End of v. follows Gk, Hebr. being overloaded.

i. What 'deed' is not clear, whether the spear-throwing incident, 18:10–11, or some other adventure not preserved: perhaps merely an editorial reference to 19:1–7. • The text of vv. 19–20 being uncertain, we emend in the light of Gk and v. 18.

j. 'witness' Gk; Hebr. omits, as also in v. 42.

k. 'sat facing him' Gk; 'got up' Hebr.

l. According to Lv 15:16; Dt 23:11, an involuntary pollution makes a man unclean till evening. At the end of v., Hebr. repeats 'since he is unclean', dittography.

m. Omitted by Gk; probably a gloss inspired by v. 3. The end of the v. refers to v. 30.

n. 'brought it back' Gk; 'came' Hebr.

o. 'mound' regeb conj.; Hebr. negeb 'south'. • 'copiously' Gk; Hebr. uncertain.

p. vv. 40–42 have been added: there is no point in the arrow stratagem unless David and Jonathan cannot meet.

21 a. On the eastern slope of Mt Scopus, east of Jerusalem, then still in Canaanite hands; a traveller from Benjamin to Judah had to pass by that way. The episode prepares for 22:9–23.

b. A descendant of Eli, 22:9, and the same person as Ahijah, 14:3. The priests of Shiloh had taken refuge at Nob after the disaster of ch. 4.

c. 'have arranged to meet' Gk; 'have told' Hebr.

d. The 'loaves of permanent offering'. This was reserved for the priests, Lv 24:5–9. Exception to this law was admitted in the time of David, but ritual purity was essential.

concerned.'[e] ·The priest then gave him what had been consecrated, for the only 7 6 bread there were the loaves of permanent offering, which is taken out of Lv 24:8 Yahweh's presence, to be replaced by warm bread on the day when it is removed.
Now one of Saul's servants happened to be there that day, detained in Yahweh's 8 7 22:9seq. Ps 52 presence; his name was Doeg the Edomite and he was the strongest of Saul's shepherds.
David then said to Ahimelech, 'Have you no spear or sword here to hand? I did 9 8 not bring either my sword or my weapons with me, because the king's business was 17:51,54 urgent.' ·The priest replied, 'The sword of Goliath the Philistine whom you killed 10 9 in the Valley of the Terebinth is here, wrapped in a piece of clothing behind the ephod;[f] if you care to take it, do so, for that is the only one here.' David said,
'There is nothing like that one; give it to me.'

27 David with the Philistines[g]

David journeyed on and that day fled out of Saul's reach, going to Achish king of 11 10
Ps 34;56 Gath. ·Achish's servants said to him, 'Is not this David, the king of the country? 12 11
Was it not of him that they sang as they danced:

18:7;29:5
Saul has killed his thousands,
and David his tens of thousands?'

David pondered on these words and became very frightened of Achish king of 13 12
Gath. ·When their eyes were on him, he played the madman and, when they held 14 13 him, he feigned lunacy. He drummed his feet[h] on the doors of the gate and let his spittle run down his beard.
Achish said to his servants, 'You can see that this man is mad. Why bring him to 15 14 me? ·Have I not enough madmen, without your bringing me this one to weary me 16 15 with his antics? Is he to join my household?'

C: DAVID THE OUTLAW

Ps 142 22 David left there and took refuge in the Cave of Adullam;[a] his brothers and 1 his father's whole family heard this and joined him there. ·All those in 2 distress, all those in debt, all those who had a grievance, gathered round him and he became their leader. There were about four hundred men with him.
From there David went to Mizpah in Moab and said to the king of Moab, 'Allow 3 my father and mother to stay with you[b] until I know what God intends to do for me.' ·He left them[c] with the king of Moab and there they stayed all the time that 4
David was in the stronghold.
The prophet Gad[d], however, said to David, 'Do not stay in the stronghold; leave 5 and make your way into the territory of Judah.' David then left and went to the forest of Hereth.

Massacre of the priests of Nob

When Saul heard that David and the men with him had been discovered, Saul was 6 at Gibeah, seated under the tamarisk on the high place, spear in hand, with all his staff standing round him. ·'Listen, Benjaminites!' said Saul to them, 'Is the son of 7 8:14 Jesse going to give you all fields and vineyards and make all of you commanders of thousands and commanders of hundreds ·that you all conspire against me? No one 8 warned me when my son made a pact with the son of Jesse; none of you felt sorry[e] for me or warned me when my son incited my servant to become my enemy, as he is now.'
21:2-10 Then, up spoke Doeg the Edomite, who was in command of Saul's staff, 'I saw 9 the son of Jesse coming to Nob, to Ahimelech son of Ahitub. ·That man consulted 10 Yahweh on his behalf, gave him provisions and also the sword of Goliath the 11 Philistine.' ·The king then sent for the priest Ahimelech son of Ahitub and his whole family, the priests of Nob; they all came to the king.

12, 13 Saul said, 'Now listen, son of Ahitub!' He replied, 'Here I am, my lord.' ·'Why have you conspired against me,' said Saul, 'you and the son of Jesse, giving him bread and a sword and consulting God on his behalf, for him to rebel against me as 14 is now the case?' ·Ahimelech replied to the king, 'Of all those in your service, who is more loyal than David son-in-law to the king, captain[f] of your bodyguard, 15 honoured in your household? ·Was today the first time I ever consulted God on his behalf? Indeed it was not! The king has no grounds for bringing any charge against his servant or against his whole family, for your servant knew nothing whatever 16 about all this.' ·The king retorted, 'You must die, Ahimelech, you and your whole family.'
17 The king said to the scouts who were standing round him, 'Forward! and put the 2:31–33 priests of Yahweh to death, for they too are on David's side, they knew that he was escaping, yet did not warn me of it.' The king's professional soldiers, however, 18 would not lift a hand to strike the priests of Yahweh. ·The king then said to Doeg, 'Forward, you! Fall on the priests!' Doeg the Edomite stepped forward and fell on the priests, himself that day killing eighty-five men who wore the linen ephod. 2:18e
19 Nob, the town of the priests, Saul put to the sword: men and women, children and infants, cattle, donkeys and sheep.
20 One son of Ahimelech son of Ahitub alone escaped. His name was Abiathar, 21 and he fled away to join David. ·When Abiathar told David that Saul had slaugh-
22 tered the priests of Yahweh, ·David said to Abiathar, 'I knew, that day when Doeg the Edomite was there, that he would be sure to inform Saul. I am responsible[g] for 23 the death of all your kinsmen. ·Stay with me, do not be afraid, for he who seeks your life seeks mine; you will be safe with me.'[h]

David at Keilah

1 23 News was then brought to David, 'The Philistines are besieging Keilah and 2 plundering the threshing-floors'. ·David consulted Yahweh, 'Shall I go and fight these Philistines?' Yahweh replied to David, 'Go and fight the Philistines
3 and save Keilah.' ·But David's men said to him, 'We are already afraid here in 4 Judah; how much more, then, if we go to Keilah to fight the Philistine troops!' ·So David consulted Yahweh again and Yahweh replied, 'Be on your way; go down to 5 Keilah, since I shall give the Philistines into your power.' ·So David and his men went to Keilah and fought the Philistines and carried off their cattle and inflicted 6 a great defeat on them. Thus David saved the inhabitants of Keilah. ·When Abiathar son of Ahimelech took refuge with David, he went down to Keilah with 22:20–23
the ephod in his hand.[a] 2:28*l*
7 When word was brought to Saul that David had gone to Keilah he said, 'God has delivered him[b] into my power: he has trapped himself by going into a town with 8 gates and bars.' ·Saul called all the people to arms, to go down to Keilah and 9 besiege David and his men. ·David, however, was aware that Saul was plotting evil
10 against him, and said to Abiathar the priest, 'Bring the ephod.' ·David said, 2:28*l*

e. Difficult v. We interpret thus: although the journey had no religious purpose, David and his companions behaved as on a military expedition for which continence was a religious obligation; their 'things' (euphemism) were ritually pure, see Dt 23:11.

f. The ephod of Nob reappears at 23:6,9 and determines David's decisions from 23:10. This was the oracular ephod and, if the same sort of object as the one mentioned in Jg 8:27, must have been quite large. Goliath's sword was kept behind the ephod as a trophy.

g. Independent tradition of David's flight; it anticipates the narrative of ch. 27 and humorously emphasises David's artfulness.

h. 'drummed' versions; 'scribbled' Hebr.

22 a. The caves of the desert of Judah have always provided refuge for outlaws. Adullam was a town in the Shephelah, or 'lowlands'.

b. 'stay' conj.; 'go out' Hebr. • David puts his parents out of reach of Saul's vengeance; he had family ties with Moab, according to Rt 1:4seq.; 4:17–21; see Mt 1:5–6.

c. 'left' versions; 'led' Hebr.

d. He was to remain David's 'seer', 2 S 24:11seq.

e. 'felt sorry' Gk; 'was sick' Hebr. • 'enemy' Gk; 'spy' Hebr.

f. 'captain' sar following Gk; Hebr. sār 'distant'.

g. 'am responsible for' Gk; 'have turned' Hebr.

h. Abiathar was to remain David's priest until the king's death. He was dismissed by Solomon, 1 K 2:26–27.

23 a. Following Gk; the Hebr. word order is confused.

b. 'delivered' Gk; 'rejected' Hebr.

'Yahweh, God of Israel, your servant has heard that Saul is preparing to come to Keilah and destroy the town because of me. • [c] Will Saul come down as your servant 11 has heard? Yahweh, God of Israel, I beg you, let your servant know.' Yahweh replied, 'He will come down.' •David then went on to ask, 'Will the notables of 12 Keilah hand me and my men over to Saul?' Yahweh replied, 'They will hand you over.' [d] •At this, David made off with his men, about six hundred in number; they 13 left Keilah and went where they could. When Saul was told that David had escaped from Keilah, he abandoned the expedition.

David stayed in the desert, in the strongholds; he stayed in the mountains, in the 14 desert of Ziph; [e] Saul kept looking for him day after day, but God did not deliver him into his power.

David at Horesh. Visit from Jonathan [f]

David was aware that Saul had mounted an expedition to take his life. David was 15 then at Horesh in the desert of Ziph. •Jonathan son of Saul set off and went to 16
David at Horesh and encouraged him in the name of God. •'Do not be afraid,' he 17 said, 'for my father Saul's hand will not reach you. You are to reign over Israel, and I shall be second to you. Saul my father is himself aware of this.' •And 18 the two made a pact before Yahweh. David stayed at Horesh and Jonathan went home.

David has a narrow escape from Saul

Ps 54 Some men from Ziph then went up to Saul at Gibeah and said, 'Look, David is 19 hiding among us in the strongholds at Horesh, on the Hill of Hachilah to the south of the wastelands. •Now whenever you wish to go down, my lord king, do so; we 20 shall make it our task to hand him over to the king.' •Saul replied, 'May you be 21 blessed by Yahweh for sympathising with me. •Go and make doubly sure, find out 22 exactly what place he frequents, [g] for I have been told that he is very cunning. Take careful note of all the hiding places where he lurks, and come back to me 23 when you are certain. I shall then come with you and, if he is in the country, I shall track him down through every clan in Judah!'

Setting off they went to Ziph ahead of Saul. Meanwhile, David and his men 24 were in the desert of Maon, in the plain to the south of the wastelands. •When Saul 25 and his men set out in search, David was told and went down to the gorge [h] running through the desert of Maon. •Saul and his men [i] proceeded along one side of the 26 mountain, David and his men along the other. David was hurrying to escape from Saul, while Saul and his men were trying to cross over to David and his men's side, to capture them, •when a messenger came to Saul and said, 'Come at once, the 27 Philistines have invaded the country.' •So Saul broke off his pursuit of David and 28 went to oppose the Philistines. That is why the place is called the Gorge of Separations.

=26 David spares Saul

24 From there David went up and installed himself in the strongholds of En- 1 Gedi. [a] •Once Saul was back from pursuing the Philistines, he was told, 2
'David is now in the desert of En-Gedi.' •Saul thereupon took three thousand men 3 selected from all Israel and went in search of David and his men east of the Rocks of the Mountain Goats. •He came to the sheepfolds [b] along the route, where there 4 was a cave, and went in to cover his feet. [c] Now David and his men were sitting in the recesses of the cave; •David's men said to him, 'Today is the day of which 5
Yahweh said to you, "I shall deliver your enemy into your power; do what you like with him." ' David got up and, unobserved, cut off the border of Saul's cloak.
Afterwards David reproached himself for having cut off the border of Saul's 6 26:9:31:4 2 S 1:14 cloak. [d] •He said to his men, 'Yahweh preserve me from doing such a thing to my 7 lord [e] as to raise my hand against him, since he is Yahweh's anointed.'
By these words David restrained his men and would not let them attack Saul. 8 9 Saul then left the cave and went on his way. After this, David too left the cave and called after Saul, 'My lord king!' Saul looked behind him and David, bowing 10 to the ground, prostrated himself. ·David then said to Saul, 'Why do you listen to 11 people who say, "David intends your ruin"? ·This very day you have seen for yourself how Yahweh put you in my power in the cave and how, refusing[f] to kill you, I spared you saying, "I will not raise my hand against my lord, since he is 24:7e 12 Yahweh's anointed." ·Look, father, look at the border of your cloak in my hand.

Since, although I cut the border off your cloak, I did not kill you, surely you realise that I intend neither mischief nor crime. I have not wronged you, and yet you hunt 13 me down to take my life. ·May Yahweh be judge between me and you, and may 14 Yahweh avenge me on you; but I shall never lay a hand on you! ·(As the old proverb says: Wickedness comes out of wicked people, but I shall never lay a hand 15 on you!)[g] ·On whose trail is the king of Israel campaigning? Whom are you 16 pursuing? On the trail of a dead dog, of a flea! ·May Yahweh be the judge and 2 S 9:8;16:9 decide between me and you; may he examine and defend my cause and give judgement for me by rescuing me from your clutches!'
17 When David had finished saying this to Saul, Saul said, 'Is that your voice, my 18 son David?' And Saul began to weep aloud. ·'You are upright and I am not,' he said to David, 'since you have behaved well to me, whereas I have behaved badly 19 to you. ·And today you have shown how well you have behaved to me, since 20 Yahweh had put me in your power but you did not kill me. ·When a man comes on his enemy, does he let him go unmolested? May Yahweh reward you for the good 21 you have done me today! ·Now I know that you will indeed reign and that the 22 sovereignty in Israel will pass into your hands. ·Now swear to me by Yahweh that you will not suppress my descendants once I am gone, or blot my name out of my 23 family.' ·This David swore to Saul,[h] and Saul went home while David and his men went back to the stronghold.

Death of Samuel. Story of Nabal and Abigail =28:3

1 25 Samuel died and all Israel assembled to mourn for him. They buried him at his home in Ramah.
David then set off and went down to the desert of Maon.[a] 2 Now, there was a man in Maon whose business was at Carmel; the man was very 15:12 rich: he owned three thousand sheep and a thousand goats. He was then at Carmel, 3 having his sheep shorn. ·The man's name was Nabal and his wife's Abigail. She was a woman of intelligence and beauty, but the man was miserly and churlish. He was a Calebite.
4, 5 When David heard in the desert that Nabal was at his sheepshearing, ·he sent ten men off, having said to them,[b] 'Go up to Carmel, visit Nabal and greet him

c. Here Hebr. has 'Will the notables of Keilah hand me over to him?' omitted by Gk but repeated in v. 12.

d. David has liberated the people of Keilah, but he makes them pay for it: he and his followers live at their expense, see 25:4–8b. But Keilah betrays him and appeals to the established authority: see 23:19–20; 24:2; 26:1.

e. To the south of Hebron. The v. links the Keilah episode, vv. 1–13, with that of Ziph, vv. 19–27.

f. vv. 15–18 are part of the traditions relating to David's friendship with Jonathan, see especially 20:11–17. Here the prophecy of David's accession is explicit, and Jonathan is content with second place, v. 17. It does not mean, however, that the two friends were actually plotting against Saul (see 20:30; 22:8). The stories are told in the light of subsequent events.

g. 'make sure' with some MSS; 'prepare' Hebr. • 'frequents' conj. after Gk; Hebr. uncertain.

h. Saul and his party are on one side of the gorge, David and his on the other. Saul's aim is to cross this difficult obstacle and trap David, but before he can do this, he is obliged to deal with a sudden Philistine invasion elsewhere. For similar situations, see 26:13,22; 2 S 16:13.

i. 'and his men' Gk; omitted by Hebr. • 'were trying to cross'. Gk; 'had surrounded' Hebr.

24 a. The 'Spring of the Kid'; near the shore of the Dead Sea in the same latitude as Ziph.

b. Drystone enclosures to house flocks at night.

c. Euphemism for 'relieve nature'.

d. David feels remorse (see 2 S 24:10), since the garment is, as it were, the man himself, see 18:4, and to touch it is to lay hands on the person.

e. Hebr. adds 'Yahweh's anointed', probably a gloss.

f. 'refusing' Gk; 'he said' Hebr.

g. Proverb inserted by a glossator; contact with the wicked brings misfortune.

h. vv. 21–23[a], foretelling David's sovereignty, are an addition similar to those of 20:12–17; 41–42; 23:15–18.

25 a. 'Maon' Gk-Luc.; 'Paran' Hebr.

b. The shearing is a festive occasion, 2 S 13:23seq. on which the rich sheep-owner should display his generosity. David takes advantage of this to demand the sum that nomads levy on neighbouring villages in return for the 'protection' they afford by abstaining from pillage and by restraining marauders, v. 16. This is called the 'law of brotherhood'.

from me. ·And this is what you are to say to my brother,[c] "Peace to you, peace to 6 your family, peace to all that is yours! ·I hear that you now have the shearers; your 7 shepherds were with us recently: we did not molest them, nor did they lose anything all the while they were at Carmel. ·Ask your young men and they will tell 8
you. I hope that you will give the men a welcome, coming as we do on a festival.
Whatever you have to hand please give to your servants and to your son David." '

David's men went and said all this to Nabal for David, and waited. ·Nabal 9, 10 retorted to the men in David's service, 'Who is David? Who is the son of Jesse?
There are many servants nowadays who run away from their masters. Am I to take 11 my bread and my wine[d] and the meat that I have slaughtered for my shearers and give it to men who come from I know not where?' ·David's men turned on their 12 heels and went back, and on their arrival told him exactly what had been said.
David then said to his men, 'Every man buckle on his sword!' And they buckled on 13 their swords, and David buckled on his too; about four hundred followed David while two hundred stayed with the baggage.

Now one of the young men told Abigail, Nabal's wife. He said, 'David sent 14 messengers from the desert to greet our master, but he flared up at them. ·Now, 15 these men were very good to us; they did not molest us and we lost nothing all the time we had anything to do with them while we were out in the country. ·Night and 16 day, they were like a rampart to us, all the time we were with them, minding the sheep. ·So now make up your mind what you should do, for the ruin of our master 17 and his whole family is a certainty, and he is such a brute that no one can say a word to him.'

Abigail hastily took two hundred loaves, two skins of wine, five sheep ready 18 prepared, five measures of roasted grain, a hundred bunches of raisins and two hundred cakes of figs and loaded them on donkeys. ·She said to her servants, 'Go 19 on ahead, I shall follow you'—but she did not tell her husband Nabal.

As she was riding her donkey down behind a fold in the mountain, David and his 20 men happened to be coming down in her direction; and she met them. ·Now, 21 David had decided, 'It was a waste of time my guarding all this man's property in the desert so that he lost nothing at all! He has repaid me bad for good. ·May God 22 Rt 1:17f bring unnameable ills on David[e] and worse ones, too, if by morning I leave a single manjack[f] alive of all who belong to him!' ·As soon as Abigail saw David, she 23 quickly dismounted from the donkey and, falling on her face in front of David, prostrated herself on the ground. ·She fell at his feet and said, 'Let me take the 24 blame, my lord. Let your servant speak in your ear; listen to what your servant has to say! ·My lord, please pay no attention to this brute Nabal for his nature is like 25 his name; "Brute"[g] is his name and brutal he is. But I, your servant, did not see the men whom my lord sent. ·And now, my lord, as Yahweh lives and as your soul 26 lives, by Yahweh who kept you from the crime of bloodshed and from taking vengeance with your own hand, may your enemies and all those ill-disposed towards you become like Nabal.[h] ·As for the present which your servant has 27 brought my lord, I should like this to be given to the men in your service. ·Please 28 forgive your servant for any offence I have given you, for Yahweh will certainly assure you of a lasting dynasty, since you are fighting Yahweh's battles and no fault has been found in you throughout your life. ·Should anyone set out to hunt you 29 Ps 69:28 Is 4:3 Dn 12:1 Rv 3:5 down and try to kill you, your life will be kept close in the wallet of life[i] with Yahweh your God, while your enemies' lives he will fling out of the pouch of the sling. ·Once Yahweh has done for you all the good things which he has said he will 30 do for you, and made you ruler of Israel, ·you must have no anxiety, my lord, no 31 remorse, over having wantonly shed blood, over having taken a revenge. When Yahweh has done well by you, then remember your servant.'

David said to Abigail, 'Blessed be Yahweh, God of Israel, who sent you to meet 32 me today! ·Blessed be your wisdom and blessed you yourself for today having 33 restrained me from the crime of bloodshed and from exacting revenge! ·But as 34 Yahweh, God of Israel, lives, who prevented me from harming you, had you not hurried out to meet me, I swear Nabal would not have had a single manjack left 35 alive by morning!' •David then accepted what she had brought him and said, 'Go home in peace; yes, I have listened to you and have pardoned you.'

36 Abigail returned to Nabal. He was holding a feast, a princely feast, in his house;
Nabal was in high spirits, and as he was very drunk she told him nothing at all till it 37 was daylight. •In the morning, when Nabal's wine had left him and his wife told him everything that had happened, his heart died within him and he became like a 38 stone. •About ten days later Yahweh struck Nabal, and he died.
39 When David heard that Nabal was dead, he said, 'Blessed be Yahweh for having defended my cause over the insult which I received from Nabal, and for having restrained his servant from doing wrong! Yahweh has made Nabal's wickedness rebound on his own head!'
40 David then sent Abigail an offer of marriage. When the men in David's service came to Abigail at Carmel, they said, 'David has sent us to take you to him, to be 41 his wife.' •She stood up, then prostrated herself on the ground. 'Consider your 42 servant a slave', she said, 'to wash the feet of my lord's servants.' •Quickly Abigail stood up again and mounted a donkey; followed by five of her servant-girls, she followed David's messengers and became his wife.
43 David had also married Ahinoam of Jezreel and he kept them both as wives.
44 Saul had given his daughter Michal, David's wife, to Palti son of Laish, from 18:30 19:10seq. 2 S 3:13seq.
Gallim.

David spares Saul [a] =24

1 26 Some men from Ziph went to Saul at Gibeah and said, 'Look, David is 23:19seq.
2 hiding on the Hill of Hachilah on the edge of the wastelands!' •So Saul set off and went down to the desert of Ziph, accompanied by three thousand picked 3 men of Israel, to search for David in the desert of Ziph. •Saul pitched camp on the Hill of Hachilah, which is on the edge of the wastelands near the road. David was then living in the desert and saw that Saul had come after him into the desert.
4 Accordingly, David sent out spies and learned that Saul had indeed arrived.
5 Setting off, David went to the place where Saul had pitched camp. He saw the place where Saul and Abner son of Ner, commander of his army, had bedded down. Saul had bedded down inside the camp with the troops bivouacking round him.
6 Speaking to Ahimelech the Hittite and Abishai son of Zeruiah and brother of 1 Ch 2:16
Joab, David said, 'Who will come down with me to the camp, to Saul?' Abishai 7 answered, 'I will go down with you.' •So in the dark David and Abishai made their way towards the force, where they found Saul lying asleep inside the camp, his spear stuck in the ground beside his head, with Abner and the troops lying round him.
8 Abishai then said to David, 'Today God has put your enemy in your power; so now let me pin him to the ground with his own spear. Just one stroke! I shall not 18:11;19:10 9 need to strike him twice.' •David said to Abishai, 'Do not kill him, for who could 10 raise his hand against Yahweh's anointed and go unpunished? •As Yahweh lives,' 9:26n;24:7; 31:4
David said, 'Yahweh himself will strike him down: either the day will come for him 2 S 1:16 11 to die, or he will go into battle and perish then. •Yahweh forbid that I should raise my hand against Yahweh's anointed! But now let us take the spear beside his head and the pitcher of water, and let us go away.'

26 a. The narrative of ch. 26 is very like that of ch. 24. We have here either two similar events to which oral, and then written, tradition has given the same contours; or else (more probably) a doublet, i.e. two parallel narratives illustrating David's magnanimity and his respect for the sacred character of the king, 'Yahweh's anointed', see 9:26n.

made off. No one saw, no one knew, no one woke up; they were all asleep, because Gn 2:21;15:12 a torpor from Yahweh had fallen on them.

David crossed to the other side[b] and halted on the top of the mountain a long 13 way off; there was a wide space between them. ·David then called out to the troops 14 and to Abner son of Ner, 'Abner, why don't you answer?' Abner replied, 'Who is that calling?'[c] ·David said to Abner, 'Are you not a man? Who is your equal in 15 Israel? Why, then, did you not guard the king your lord? One of the people came to kill the king your lord. ·What you did was not well done. As Yahweh lives, you 16 all deserve to die since you did not guard your lord, Yahweh's anointed. Look where the king's spear is now, and the pitcher of water which was beside his head!'

Recognising David's voice, Saul said, 'Is that your voice, my son David?' David 17 replied, 'It is my voice, my lord king. ·Why is my lord pursuing his servant?' he 18 said. 'What have I done? What crime have I committed? ·May my lord king now 19 listen to his servant's words: if Yahweh has incited you against me, may he be appeased with an offering; but if human beings have done it, may they be accursed Dt 7:6b before Yahweh, since they have as effectively banished me today from sharing in Yahweh's heritage as if they had said, "Go and serve other gods!"[d] ·So I pray now 20 that my blood shall not be shed on soil remote from Yahweh's presence,[e] when the king of Israel has mounted an expedition to take my life,[f] as one might hunt a partridge in the mountains!'

Saul replied, 'I have done wrong! Come back, my son David; I shall never harm 21 you again, since today you have shown respect for my life. Yes, I have behaved like a fool, I have been profoundly in the wrong.' ·In reply, David said, 'Here is 22 the king's spear. Let one of the men come across and get it. ·May Yahweh reward 23 Ps 7:8; 18:20 each as each has been upright and loyal. Today Yahweh put you in my power but I would not raise my hand against Yahweh's anointed. ·As today I set great value 24 by your life, so may Yahweh set great value by my life and deliver me from every tribulation!'

Saul then said, 'May you be blessed, my son David! In what you undertake, you 25 24:21 will certainly succeed.' David then went on his way and Saul returned home.

D: DAVID AMONG THE PHILISTINES

David takes refuge at Gath

27 'One of these days,' David thought, 'I shall perish at the hand of Saul. The 1 best thing that I can do is to get away[a] into the country of the Philistines;[b] then Saul will give up tracking me through the length and breadth of Israel and I shall be safe from him.' ·So David set off and went over, he and his six hundred 2 21:11-16 men, to Achish son of Maoch, king of Gath. ·He settled at Gath with Achish, he 3 and his men, each with his family and David with his two wives, Ahinoam of Jezreel and Abigail widow of Nabal of Carmel. ·When news reached Saul that 4
David had fled to Gath, he stopped searching for him.

David as vassal of the Philistines

David said to Achish, 'If I have won your favour, let me be given a place in one of 5 the outlying towns, where I can live. Why should your servant live in the royal city with you?' ·That very day Achish gave him Ziklag;[c] and this is why Ziklag has been 6 29:3 the property of the kings of Judah[d] to the present day. ·The time that David stayed 7 in Philistine territory amounted to a year and four months.

15 David and his men went out on raids against the Geshurites, Girzites and 8
Ex 17:8d
Jos 13:2 Amalekites, for these are the tribes inhabiting the region which, from Telam,[e] goes in the direction of Shur, as far as Egypt. ·David laid the countryside waste 9 and left neither man nor woman alive; he carried off the sheep and cattle, the donkeys, camels and clothing, and then came back again to Achish. ·Achish would 10 ask, 'Where did you go raiding today?' David would reply, 'Against the Negeb of 11 Judah,' or 'the Negeb of Jerahmeel,' or 'the Negeb of the Kenites.'[f] •David spared neither man nor woman to bring back alive to Gath, 'in case', as he thought, 'they inform on us and say, "David did such and such." ' This was the way David 12 conducted his raids all the time he stayed in Philistine territory. •Achish trusted David. 'He has made himself detested by his own people Israel,' he thought, 'and so will be my servant for ever.'

The Philistines go to war with Israel

1 28 It then happened that the Philistines mustered their forces for war, to fight
Israel, and Achish said to David, 'It is understood that you and your men go 2 into battle with me.' •David said to Achish, 'In that case, you will soon see what your servant can do.'[a] Achish replied to David, 'Right, I shall appoint you as my permanent bodyguard.'

Saul and the witch of En-Dor

3 Now Samuel was dead, and all Israel had mourned him and buried him at Ramah, =25:1 his own town. Saul had expelled the necromancers and wizards from the country.[b] 4 Meanwhile the Philistines had mustered and had come and pitched camp at 5 Shunem.[c] Saul mustered all Israel and they encamped at Gilboa. •When Saul saw
6 the Philistine camp, he was afraid and his heart trembled violently. •Saul consulted 14:41r Yahweh, but Yahweh gave him no answer, either by dream, divination or prophet. Ex 33:7e 7 Saul then said to his servants, 'Find a necromancer for me, so that I can go and consult her.' His servants replied, 'There is a necromancer at En-Dor.'
8 And so Saul, disguising himself and changing his clothes, set out accompanied 1 K 14:2
by two men; their visit to the woman took place at night. 'Disclose the future to 9 me', he said, 'by means of a ghost. Conjure up the one I shall name to you.' •The woman replied, 'Look, you know what Saul has done, how he has outlawed necromancers and wizards from the country; why are you setting a trap for my life, 10 then, to have me killed?' •But Saul swore to her by Yahweh, 'As Yahweh lives,' he 11 said, 'no blame shall attach to you for this business.' •The woman asked, 'Whom shall I conjure up for you?' He replied, 'Conjure up Samuel.' Si 46:20 12 The woman then saw Samuel and, giving a great cry, she said to Saul, 'Why have 13 you deceived me? You are Saul!'[d] •The king said, 'Do not be afraid! What do you

b. To the other side of the valley.

c. 'calling?' Gk; 'calling the king?' Hebr.

d. Yahweh and his 'heritage', the country of Israel, were so intimately linked that it was thought impossible to worship Yahweh in another country where alien gods held sway, Ps 137:4. Thus Naaman takes soil to Damascus from Israel, 2 K 5:17. To condemn David to exile is to force him to abandon Yahweh.

e. In the desert, the domain of evil spirits, Lv 16:10; Is 13:21; 34:13–14. David already feels remote from Yahweh's protective presence.

f. 'my life' Gk; 'a flea' Hebr., influenced by 24:15.

27 a. Following Gk; Hebr. 'I shall certainly escape'.

b. A sure way of eluding Saul but a seeming desertion to the enemy, putting David in a false position from which circumstances, ch. 29, and his own cunning, vv. 8–12, extricate him.

c. On the borders of Philistia, to the north east of Beersheba. Achish assigns the town to David whose followers he relies on to police the neighbouring desert country.

d. That is, it became the king's private domain.

e. 'from Telam' some Gk MSS; 'from of old' Hebr.

f. The Negeb is the sparsely populated, mainly pastoral district lying to the south of Palestine. It belongs to the tribe of Judah and its allies, such as the Kenites, see also 30:14. David represents his raids as made against these; in fact they are made against the marauders from the desert and they reconcile him with his own countrymen who regarded him as a traitor, see v. 12 and David's conciliatory gesture to the elders of Judah, 30:26–31.

28 a. An ambiguous answer which Achish takes for a promise of valour in war. David is hoping that circumstances will excuse him from fighting against Israel, as in fact they did, Ch 29.

b. Necromancy was practised in Israel, 2 K 21:6; Is 8:19, though forbidden by the Law, Lv 19:31; 20:6,27; Dt 18:11. Saul himself is said to have banished practitioners of the black arts, v. 9, and although this has not been mentioned elsewhere, it may be implied in the last part of 14:47. The narrator seems to share the popular belief in ghosts (though he regards it unlawful to consult them); the Fathers and commentators, however, seek an explanation of the incident itself: divine power, demonic activity, the woman's trickery. Doubtless, as in other seances, credulity and trickery were at work; but the incident is presented as a genuine recalling of Samuel's spirit (hence the woman's fear) to foretell the future; see 1 Ch. 10:13 (LXX) and Si 46:20. A simpler approach would be to think that the narrator has chosen this set-piece to illustrate (not for the first time) the rejection of Saul and his replacement by David, the theme running through all these stories, see v. 17 with 15:28 and the reference to Amalek in v. 18, as also 13:13–14; 16:1; 23:17; 24:21; 25:30.

c. In the plain of Jezreel. South of Shunem the Gilboa range borders this plain. En-Dor lies at the foot of Tabor and north of Shunem; to reach it, therefore, Saul had to pass round the Philistine encampment.

d. The woman knows of the relations between Samuel and Saul; that the dead prophet appears, she concludes, means that her client is the king of Israel.

see?' The woman replied to Saul, 'I see a ghost[f] rising from the earth.'[f] •'What is 14 he like?' he asked. She replied, 'It is an old man coming up; he is wrapped in a cloak.' Saul then knew that it was Samuel and, bowing to the ground, prostrated himself.
15:27-28 Samuel said to Saul, 'Why have you disturbed my rest by conjuring me up?' Saul 15 replied, 'I am in great distress; the Philistines are waging war on me, and God has abandoned me and no longer answers me either by prophet or by dream; and so I have summoned you to tell me what I ought to do.' •Samuel said, 'Why consult 16 me, when Yahweh has abandoned you and has become your enemy? •Yahweh has 17 treated you as he foretold through me; he has snatched the sovereignty from your hand and given it to your neighbour, David, •because you disobeyed Yahweh's 18 voice and did not execute his fierce anger against Amalek. That is why Yahweh is treating you like this today. •What is more, Yahweh will deliver Israel and you 19 too, into the power of the Philistines. Tomorrow you and your sons will be with 31:2-6 me;[g] and Yahweh will hand over the army of Israel into the power of the Philistines.'
Immediately Saul fell full length on the ground. He was terrified by what Samuel 20 had said and was also weak from having eaten nothing all that day and night. •The 21 woman went to Saul and, seeing his terror, said, 'Look, your servant has obeyed your order; I have taken my life in my hands and obeyed the command which you gave me. •Now please, you in your turn listen to what your servant has to say. Let 22 me offer you a piece of bread. Eat something and get some strength for your journey.' •But he refused. 'I will not eat,' he said. His servants however pressed 23 him, and so did the woman. Allowing himself to be persuaded by them, he got up from the ground and sat on the bed. •The woman owned a fattened calf which she 24 quickly slaughtered, and she took some flour and kneaded it and with it baked some unleavened cakes •which she served to Saul and his servants; they ate, and 25 then set off and left the same night.

4:1 David is sent away by the Philistine leaders[a]

29 The Philistines mustered all their forces at Aphek while the Israelites 1 pitched camp near the spring in Jezreel. •The Philistine commanders 2 marched past with their hundreds and their thousands, and David and his men brought up the rear with Achish. •The Philistine chiefs asked, 'What are these 3 Hebrews doing?' Achish replied to them, 'Why, this is David the servant of Saul, king of Israel, who has been with me for the last year or two.[b] I have had no fault to find with him from the day he gave himself up to me until the present time.' •But 4 the Philistine chiefs were angry with him. 'Send the man back,' they said, 'make 14:21 him go back to the place which you assigned to him. He cannot go into battle with us, in case he turns on us once battle is joined. Would there be a better way for the man to regain his master's favour than with the heads of these men here? •Is not 5 this the David of whom they sang as they danced:

18:7;21:12 Saul has killed his thousands,
and David his tens of thousands'?

So Achish called David and said, 'As Yahweh lives, you are loyal, and I am quite 6 content with all your doings in our campaigning together, since I have found no fault with you from the day you came to me until the present time. But you are not acceptable to the chiefs. •So go home, in peace, rather than antagonise them.' 7
'But what have I done,' David asked Achish,[c] 'what fault have you had to find 8 with your servant from the day I entered your service to the present time, for me not to be allowed to go and fight the enemies of my lord the king?' •In reply, 9 2 S 14:17,20; 19:28 Achish said to David, 'In my opinion, it is true, you are as good as an angel of God;
but the Philistine chiefs have said, "He must not go into battle with us." •So get up 10 early tomorrow morning, with your master's servants who came with you, and go to the place which I assigned to you. Do not harbour resentment, since personally

I have no fault to find with you. [d] Get up early tomorrow morning and, as soon as it is light, be off.'

11 So David and his men got up early to leave at dawn and go back to Philistine territory. And the Philistines marched on Jezreel.

Reprisals against the Amalekites

1 30 Now by the time David and his men reached Ziklag three days later, the Amalekites had raided the Negeb and Ziklag; they had sacked Ziklag and
2 burnt it down. •They had taken the women prisoner, and everyone [a] who was there, both small and great. They had not killed anyone, but had carried them off
3 and gone away. •When David and his men arrived, they found the town burnt
4 down and their wives and sons and daughters taken captive. •Then David and the 5 people with him wept aloud till they were too weak to weep any more. •David's two wives had been captured: Ahinoam of Jezreel and Abigail widow of Nabal of 27:3
Carmel.

6 David was in great trouble, since the people were talking of stoning him; the people all felt very bitter, each man for his own sons and daughters. But David 7 took courage from Yahweh his God. •To the priest Abiathar son of Ahimelech, 8 David said, 'Bring me the ephod.' Abiathar brought the ephod to David. •David 2:28*l* then consulted Yahweh, 'Shall I go in pursuit of these raiders? Will I overtake them?' The answer was, 'Go in pursuit; you will certainly overtake them and rescue 9 the captives.' •David accordingly set off with the six hundred men who were with 10 him and reached the torrent of Besor. [b] •David then continued the pursuit with four hundred men, two hundred staying behind who were too exhausted to cross the torrent of Besor.

11 Out in the country they found an Egyptian and brought him to David. They 12 gave him some bread to eat and some water to drink; •they also gave him a piece of fig cake and two bunches of raisins; he ate these and his spirits revived—he had 13 had nothing to eat or drink for three days and three nights. •David then said to him, 'Whose man are you and where do you come from?' He replied, 'I am a young Egyptian, the slave of an Amalekite; my master abandoned me because I fell sick
14 three days ago. •We raided the Negeb of the Cherethites, [c] and the Negeb of Judah, 27:10
15 and the Negeb of Caleb too, and we burnt Ziklag down.' •David said, 'Will you guide me to these raiders?' He replied, 'Swear to me by God not to kill me or hand me over to my master, and I will guide you to these raiders.'

16 He guided him to them, and there they were, scattered over the whole countryside, eating, drinking and celebrating, on account of the enormous booty which they had brought back from the territory of the Philistines and the territory of 17 Judah. •David slaughtered them from dawn until the evening of the following day. No one escaped, except four hundred young men who mounted camels and fled.
18 He rescued everything that the Amalekites had taken—David also rescued his 19 two wives. •Nothing of theirs was lost, whether small or great, from the booty or sons and daughters [d]—everything that had been taken from them; David recovered 20 everything. •They captured the flocks and herds as well and drove them in front of him. 'This is David's booty,' they shouted.

with David began saying, 'Since they did not go with us, we shall not give them any of the booty which we have rescued, except that each of them can have his wife and children. Let them take them away and be off.' ·But David said, 'Do not behave 23

Battle of Mount Gilboa and death of Saul [a]

2 S 1:1–16 ‖1 Ch 10:1–12 31 The Philistines gave battle to Israel, and the Israelites, fleeing from the 1
Philistines, fell and were slaughtered on Mount Gilboa. ·The Philistines 2 14:49 bore down on Saul and his sons, and they killed Jonathan, Abinadab and Mal-chishua, Saul's sons. ·The fighting grew fiercer round Saul; the archers came upon 3 him, and he was severely wounded [b] ·by the archers. Saul then said to his armour- 4 Jg 9:54 bearer, 'Draw your sword and run me through with it; I do not want these 17:26 uncircumcised men to come and make fun of me.' [c] But his armour-bearer was very 9:26n;26:9 much afraid and would not do it. So Saul took his own sword and fell on it. ·His 5 2 M 14:41–42 armour-bearer, seeing that Saul was dead, fell on his sword too and died with him.
Thus died Saul, his three sons and his armour-bearer, [d] together on the same day. 6
When the Israelites who were on the other side of the Jordan saw that the 7 Israelites had been routed and that Saul and his sons were dead, they abandoned their towns and fled. The Philistines then came and occupied them.

When the Philistines came on the following day to strip the dead, they found 8 him of his armour, had these carried [e] round the territory of the Philistines to temple of Astarte; and his body they fastened to the walls of Beth-Shean.

2 S 2:4–7 When the inhabitants of Jabesh in Gilead [f] heard what the Philistines had done 11 to Saul, ·the warriors all set out and, having marched all night, took the bodies of 12

Saul and his sons off the walls of Beth-Shean; they brought them[g] to Jabesh and 13 burned them there.[h] ·They then took their bones and buried them under the tamarisk of Jabesh, and fasted for seven days.[i] Gn 50:10

THE SECOND BOOK OF SAMUEL

David learns of Saul's death [a]

1 S 30; 31:1–13 / 1 S 4:12–17

1 Saul was dead and David, returning after his victory over the Amalekites, had 1 been at Ziklag for two days. ·On the third day, a man arrived from Saul's camp 2 with his clothes torn and earth on his head. When he came to David, he fell to the ground and prostrated himself. ·David asked him, 'Where have you come from?' 3
'I have escaped from the Israelite camp,' he said. ·David said, 'What has hap- 4 pened? Tell me.' He replied, 'The people fled from the battle, and many of them have fallen and are dead. Saul and his son Jonathan are dead too.'

Then David asked the young man who brought the news, 'How do you know 5 that Saul and his son Jonathan are dead?' ·The young man replied, 'I happened to 6 be on Mount Gilboa, and there was Saul, leaning on his spear, with the chariots and the cavalry bearing down on him. ·Glancing behind him and seeing me, he 7 shouted to me. I replied, "Here I am!" ·He said, "Who are you?" I replied, "I am 8 an Amalekite." ·He then said, "Come here and kill me. My head is swimming, 9 although I still have all my strength." ·So I went over to him and killed him, 10 2 K 11:12 because I knew that once he fell he could not survive. I then took the crown which he had on his head and the bracelet on his arm, and have brought them here to my lord.'

David then took hold of his clothes and tore them, and all the men with him did 11
1 S 31:13i the same. ·They mourned and wept and fasted until the evening for Saul and his 12 son Jonathan, for the people of Yahweh and for the House of Israel, because they had fallen by the sword.

David said to the young man who had brought the news, 'Where are you from?' 13
He replied, 'I am the son of a resident foreigner, an Amalekite.' ·David said, 'How 14
1 S 26:9 was it that you were not afraid to lift your hand to destroy Yahweh's anointed?' ·Then David called one of the young men. 'Come here,' he said, 'strike 15 Lv 20:9 Jos 2:19 him down.' The man struck him and he died. ·David said, 'Your blood be on your 16 own head. [b] You convicted yourself out of your own mouth by saying, "I killed Yahweh's anointed." '

David's elegy over Saul and Jonathan [c]

David sang the following lament over Saul and his son Jonathan ·(it is for teaching 17, 18 Jos 10:13c archery to the children of Judah; it is written in the Book of the Just): [d]

Does the splendour of Israel 19 lie dead on your heights?
↗1 M 9:21 How did the heroes fall?

↗Mi 1:10 Do not speak of it in Gath, 20
Jg 16:23–24 1 S 31:9 nor broadcast it in the streets of Ashkelon, for fear the daughters of the Philistines rejoice,
for fear the daughters of the uncircumcised gloat.

You mountains of Gilboa, 21
Gn 27:28 Dt 33:13 no dew, no rain fall on you, O treacherous fields [e]
where the heroes' shield lies dishonoured!

Is 21:5 Not greased with oil, the shield of Saul, but with the blood of wounded men, the fat of warriors! 22

The bow of Jonathan never turned back, the sword of Saul never came home unsated! 1 S 14:47

23 Saul and Jonathan, beloved and handsome, were divided neither in life, nor in death.
Swifter than eagles were they,
stronger than lions.

24 O daughters of Israel, weep for Saul who gave you scarlet and fine linen[f] to wear, Jg 5:30 who pinned golden jewellery on your dresses!

25 How did the heroes fall
in the thick of the battle?

Jonathan, by your dying I too am stricken,[g]
26 I am desolate for you, Jonathan my brother.
Very dear you were to me,
your love more wonderful to me 1 S 18:1a+ than the love of a woman.

27 How did the heroes fall
and the weapons of war succumb!

I: DAVID

A: DAVID KING OF JUDAH

David consecrated king at Hebron

1 2 After this David consulted Yahweh, asking, 'Shall I go up to one of the towns 1 S 2:28*l* of Judah?' Yahweh replied, 'Go up!' 'Which one shall I go to?' David asked.
2 'To Hebron,' was the reply.[a] •So David went up, with his two wives Ahinoam of

1 a. A second tradition concerning Saul's death. The narrative, following immediately on 1 S 30, is itself composite. According to one form of the tradition, a soldier brings news of the death of Saul and Jonathan, and David laments with his followers, vv. 1–4 and 11–12. In the other form, a young Amalekite boasts of having killed Saul and brings the royal insignia, expecting a reward; David orders his execution, vv. 5–10 and 13–16.

1 S 14:49v Abner imposes Ishbaal as king of Israel

Abner son of Ner, Saul's army commander, had taken Ishbaal[f] son of Saul and 8 brought him over to Mahanaim.[g] •He had made him king of Gilead, of the 9 Asherites,[h] of Jezreel, of Ephraim, of Benjamin and indeed of all Israel. •Ishbaal 10 son of Saul was forty years old when he became king of Israel, and he reigned for =5:5 two years. Only the House of Judah supported David. •The length of David's reign 11 over Judah in Hebron was seven years and six months.[i]

War between Israel and Judah. The battle of Gibeon

Abner son of Ner, with the retainers of Ishbaal son of Saul, marched out from 12
Mahanaim to Gibeon. •Joab son of Zeruiah, with David's retainers, also took the 13 field, encountering them at the pool of Gibeon.[j] There they halted, one party on one side of the pool, and the other opposite.

Abner then said to Joab, 'Let the men come forward and fight it out between 14 us!'[k] Joab replied, 'Let them come forward.' •So they came forward and were 15 numbered off, twelve from Benjamin for Ishbaal son of Saul, and twelve of David's retainers. •Each caught his opponent by the head and drove his sword into his side; 16 and thus they all fell together. Hence the place was called the Field of Sides;[l] it is at Gibeon.

That day a very fierce battle took place, and Abner and the men of Israel were 17 beaten by David's retainers. •The three sons of Zeruiah were there, Joab, Abishai, 18 and Asahel. Now Asahel could run like a wild gazelle. •Asahel chased Abner, not 19 swerving to the right or left from pursuing him. •Abner turned and said, 'Asahel, is 20 that you?' He replied, 'It is.' •Abner said, 'Turn to your right or your left, catch 21 one of the men and take his spoil!' But Asahel would not break off the pursuit.
3:27 Again Abner spoke to Asahel, 'Stop following me, unless you want me to strike 22 you to the ground; and then how could I look your brother Joab in the face?'[m] •But 23 he refused to be diverted, so Abner struck him in the belly with the butt[n] of his spear so that the shaft came out through his back; and he fell at his feet and died on the spot. On coming to the place where Asahel had fallen and died, everyone halted.

Joab and Abishai took up the pursuit of Abner and at sunset reached the Hill of 24
Ammah, which is to the east of Giah on the road through the desert of Gibeon.[o]
The Benjaminites gathered in close formation behind Abner and halted on the 25 top of a hill. •Abner called out to Joab, 'Is the sword to go on devouring for ever? 26 Surely you see that this can only end in bitterness? How long will it be before you order those people to stop pursuing their brothers?' •Joab replied, 'As Yahweh[p] 27 lives, if you had not spoken, these men would not have given up the pursuit of their brothers until morning.'[q] •Joab then sounded the trumpet and all the troops halted; 28 they pursued Israel no further and fought no more.

All that night Abner and his men made their way through the Arabah;[r] they 29 crossed the Jordan and, marching throughout the morning, came to Mahanaim.
Joab, having stopped pursuing Abner, mustered the whole contingent; David's 30 retainers had lost nineteen men in addition to Asahel, •but had killed three 31 hundred and sixty of Benjamin, Abner's men. •They took up Asahel and buried 32 him in his father's tomb, which is at Bethlehem. Joab and his men then marched throughout the night, reaching Hebron at daybreak.

3 So the war dragged on between the House of Saul and the House of David, but 1
David grew steadily stronger and the House of Saul steadily weaker.

5:13–16 The sons born to David at Hebron
‖1 Ch 3:1–4

The sons born to David at Hebron were: his first-born Amnon, by Ahinoam of 2
Jezreel; •his second Chileab, by Abigail widow of Nabal of Carmel; the third 3 4 Absalom son of Maacah, daughter of Talmai king of Geshur;[a] 5 •the fourth Adonijah son of Haggith; the fifth Shephatiah son of Abital; •the sixth Ithream, by David's wife, Eglah. These were born to David at Hebron.

The rift between Abner and Ishbaal

6 This is what took place during the war between the House of Saul and the House of 7 David. Abner took complete control in the House of Saul. •Now, there was a concubine of Saul's called Rizpah daughter of Aiah, and Abner took her.[b] Ishbaal 21:8–10
8 said to Abner, 'Why have you slept with my father's concubine?' •At these words of Ishbaal, Abner flew into a rage. 'Am I a dog's head?'[c] he shouted. 'Here am I, full of faithful love towards the House of Saul your father, his brothers and his friends, not leaving you to the hands of David, and now you find fault with me over 9 a woman! •May God bring unnameable ills on Abner, and worse ones, too, if I do Rt 1:17f
10 not bring about what Yahweh has sworn to David: •to take the sovereignty from 3:18;5:2 1 S 25:30 the House of Saul, and establish David's throne over Israel as well as Judah, from 11 Dan to Beersheba!'[d] •Ishbaal dared not say a single word to Abner in reply, as he was afraid of him.

Abner negotiates with David

12 Abner sent messengers on his own behalf to say to David, '. . .[e] and furthermore, come to an agreement with me and I will give you my support to win all Israel over 13 to you.' •'Very well,' David said, 'I will come to an agreement with you. I impose one condition however; you will not be admitted to my presence unless you bring 14 me Michal, Saul's daughter, when you come to see me.' •David then sent messen- 1 S 18:20–27
15 gers to say to Ishbaal son of Saul, 'Give me back my wife Michal, whom I acquired for a hundred foreskins of the Philistines.' •So Ishbaal sent for her to be taken from 16 her husband Paltiel son of Laish. •Her husband set off with her and followed her, 1 S 25:44 weeping as he went, as far as Bahurim; but Abner said to him, 'Go back!' and he went.
17 [f]Now Abner conferred with the elders of Israel. 'For a long time now,' he said,
18 'you have wanted David as your king. •Now you must take action, since Yahweh has said of David, "By the hand of my servant David I shall deliver[g] my people 3:10d 19 Israel from the clutches of the Philistines and all their enemies." ' •Abner also spoke to the men of Benjamin and then went to Hebron to tell David everything that had been agreed by Israel and the House of Benjamin.
20 Abner, accompanied by twenty men, came to David at Hebron, and David held 21 a feast for Abner and the men who were with him. •Abner then said to David, 'I must get up and go. I am going to rally all Israel to my lord the king, so that they will make an alliance with you, and you will reign over all that you desire.' So David allowed Abner to go, and he went unmolested.

The murder of Abner

David's retainers were just then coming back with Joab from a raid, bringing a great quantity of booty with them. Abner was no longer with David at Hebron, since David had allowed him to go, and he had gone unmolested. 23 When Joab and the whole company with him had arrived, Joab was told, 'Abner son of Ner has been to the king, and the king has allowed Abner to go away unmolested.' Joab then went to the king and said, 'What have you done? Abner comes to you and you let him go away and now he has gone—why? 25 You know Abner son of Ner! He came to trick you, to discover your every move, to find out what you are doing.'

Joab left David's presence and sent messengers after Abner and these, unknown to David, brought him back from the storage-well at Sirah. 27 When Abner reached Hebron, Joab took him aside in the town-gate, as if to have a quiet word with him, 2:22–23 and there struck him a mortal blow in the belly to avenge the blood of his brother Asahel. 28 Afterwards, when David heard of this, he said, 'I and my kingdom are for ever innocent before Yahweh of the blood of Abner son of Ner; 29 may it fall on the head of Joab and on all his family! May the House of Joab never be free of men afflicted with haemorrhage or a virulent skin-disease, whose strength is in the distaff, who fall by the sword, who lack food.' 30 (Joab and his brother Abishai had 2:22–23 murdered Abner because he killed their brother Asahel at the battle of Gibeon.)

David then said to Joab and the whole company with him, 'Tear your clothes, put on sackcloth, and mourn over Abner,' and King David walked behind the bier. They buried Abner at Hebron, and the king wept aloud on his grave, and the people all wept too. 33 The king made this lament over Abner:

> Should Abner have died as a brute dies?
> Your hands were not tied, your feet not chained; 34
> you fell as a man falls at the hands of criminals. [h]

And all the people wept for him louder than ever.

The people then all tried to persuade David to have some food while it was still Rt 1:17f daylight, but David swore this oath, 'May God bring unnameable ills on me, and 1 S 31:13 worse ills, too, if I taste bread or anything whatever until the sun is down!' 36 All the people took note of this and it pleased them; indeed, everything the king did pleased the people. 37 That day, all the people and all Israel understood that the king had had no part in the murder of Abner son of Ner.

The king said to his retainers, 'Do you not realise that a prince, a great man, has fallen in Israel today? 39 I, though anointed king, [i] am weak at present, and these Ps 28:4 Is 3:11 men, the sons of Zeruiah, are too strong for me. May Yahweh repay the criminal as his crime deserves!'

The murder of Ishbaal

4 When Saul's son heard that Abner had died at Hebron, his heart failed him, and all Israel was alarmed. 2 Now, Saul's son had two freebooting chieftains; one was called Baanah, the other Rechab. They were the sons of Rimmon of Jos 18:25 Beeroth, and Benjaminites—for Beeroth is regarded as belonging to Benjamin. The people of Beeroth had taken refuge in Gittaim, where they have remained to Ex 12:48o this day as resident foreigners.

4 [a] Jonathan son of Saul had a son with crippled feet. He was five years old when 1 S 31 the news about Saul and Jonathan came from Jezreel. His nurse picked him up and fled but, as she hurried away, he fell and was lamed. His name was Meribbaal. [b]

The sons of Rimmon of Beeroth, Rechab and Baanah, set out; they came to Ishbaal's house at the hottest part of the day when he was taking his midday rest. The woman who kept the door had been cleaning wheat and had drowsed off to sleep. 7 Rechab and his brother Baanah stole past her [c] and entered the house, where he was lying on his bed in his bedroom. They struck him and killed him, then cut off his head and, taking the head with them, travelled all night by way of 8 the Arabah.[d] ·They brought Ishbaal's head to David at Hebron. 'Here', they said to the king, 'is the head of Ishbaal son of Saul, your enemy, who meant to take your life. Yahweh has avenged my lord the king today on Saul and on his offspring.'

9 But David answered Rechab and his brother Baanah, the sons of Rimmon, by 10 saying, 'As Yahweh lives, who has rescued me from every danger, ·when someone told me, "Saul is dead!" supposing himself to be bringing me good news, I seized 1:1–16 and put him to death at Ziklag, and that was how I rewarded him for his news!
11 How much more when bandits have killed an upright man in his house, and on his bed! Am I not to demand an account of his blood from you, and rid the earth of 12 you?'[e] ·David then gave an order to the men, who put them to death, cut off their Dt 21:22–23
1 S 31:10
hands and feet, and hung them up beside the pool of Hebron. Ishbaal's head they took and buried in Abner's grave at Hebron.

B: DAVID KING OF JUDAH AND OF ISRAEL

David is anointed king of Israel ‖1 Ch 11:1–3

1 5 All the tribes of Israel then came to David at Hebron and said, 'Look, we are 2 your own flesh and bone. ·In days past when Saul was our king, it was you who Dt 17:15 led Israel on its campaigns, and to you it was that Yahweh promised, "You are to 1 S 18:16 3 shepherd my people Israel and be leader of Israel." ' ·So all the elders of Israel 3:10d came to the king at Hebron, and King David made a pact with them in Yahweh's presence at Hebron, and they anointed David as king of Israel.
4 David was thirty years old when he became king, and he reigned for forty years.
5 In Hebron he reigned over Judah[a] for seven years and six months; then he reigned =2:11
‖1 Ch 3:4
in Jerusalem over all Israel and Judah for thirty-three years.

The capture of Jerusalem[b] ‖1 Ch 11:4–9

6 The king and his men then marched on Jerusalem, on the Jebusites living in the territory. These said to David, 'You will not get in here. The blind and the lame 7 will hold you off.'[c] (That is to say: David will never get in here.) ·But David 8 captured the citadel of Zion, that is, the City of David. ·That day, David said, 'Whoever gets up the tunnel and kills a Jebusite . . .'[d] As for the blind and the lame, David hated them with his whole being.[e] (Hence the saying: the blind and Lv 21:18
Mt 21:14–15

h. Though not shackled in any way, Abner died unresisting. This would have proved him unmanly, were it not that he had been killed by treachery.

i. Meaning uncertain. David excuses himself for his inability to proceed against the assassins: it is too soon after his accession and he commits their punishment to God. In the end he bequeaths this task to Solomon, 1 K 2:5–6, see 31–34.

4 a. A piece of information alien to the context. Its purpose is possibly to remind the reader that, Ishbaal excepted, Saul's only heir was a cripple.

b. 'Meribbaal' here and subsequently, as in 1 Ch 8:34; 9:40. To avoid mention of the Canaanite Baal, the Hebr. of 2 S altered the name to 'Mephibosheth' (meaning uncertain 'he who diffuses (?) shame'). Similarly, Ishbosheth was read for Ishbaal, 2:8g, and Jerubbesheth for Jerubbaal, 11:21.

c. The v. is translated according to the Gk. The Hebr., apparently corrupt, represents another tradition, lit. 'They entered the heart of the house, taking wheat, and struck him in the belly; Rechab and his brother ran off.' Perhaps a corrupt doublet of v. 7.

d. The Jordan valley, see 2:29.

e. David's indignation is sincere. Nevertheless, Ishbaal's death, following that of Abner, assures him the throne of Israel, 5:1–3.

5 a. David, already anointed king by the Judaeans, 2:4, is now acknowledged by the Israelites. The two groups, however, remain distinct (David is king 'of all Israel and Judah'), and internal tension troubles the dual monarchy until the schism provoked by the imprudent policies of Jeroboam I in about 931 BC, see 1 K 12.

b. This took place after the victories over the Philistines described in vv. 17–25.

c. They consider the position impregnable: cripples could defend it.

d. 'get up' conj.; 'attack' or 'reach' Hebr. • The sentence should end: 'will receive such and such a reward'. But the text is uncertain. • The 'conduit' (if this is what the word means) is the tunnel bored through the hill of ancient Jerusalem as a way down to the spring of Gihon (1 K 1:33seq.) without having to leave the city. Resolute men could climb up it into the town. The text of 1 Ch 11:6 is easier 'The first man to kill a Jebusite will be made army commander and prince.' Joab was the first man to go up.

e. These words are alien to the context and are absent from 1 Ch 11:4–8.

the City of David.[f] David then built a wall round it, from the Millo inwards.[g]
Gn 39:2 1 S 1:3c David grew stronger and stronger, and Yahweh, God of Sabaoth, was with him. 10 •1 K 5:15 ‖1 Ch 14:1–2 Hiram king of Tyre sent envoys to David, with cedar wood, carpenters and 11 stone-cutters, who built David a palace. •David then knew that Yahweh had 12 confirmed him as king of Israel and, for the sake of his people Israel, had extended his sovereignty.

3:2–5 ‖1 Ch 14:3–7 The sons born to David in Jerusalem

After coming from Hebron, David took other concubines and wives in Jerusalem, 13
‖1 Ch 3:5–8 and sons and daughters were born to him. •These are the names of those born to 14 him in Jerusalem: Shammua, Shobab, Nathan, Solomon, •Ibhar, Elishua, Nepheg, 15 Japhia, •Elishama, Eliada, Eliphelet. 16

‖1 Ch 14:8–16 Victory over the Philistines[h]

When the Philistines heard that David had been anointed as king of Israel, they all 17 went up to seek him out. On hearing this, David went down to the stronghold.[i]
When the Philistines arrived, they deployed in the Valley of the Rephaim.[j] 18
David consulted Yahweh and asked, 'Shall I attack the Philistines? Will you 19 deliver them into my power?' Yahweh replied to David, 'Attack! I shall certainly deliver the Philistines into your power.' •Accordingly, David went to Baal-Perazim 20 and there David defeated them. He said, 'Yahweh has made a breach in my enemies for me, as though they had been breached by a flood.' This is why the place was given the name Baal-Perazim.[k] •They had left their gods behind them 21
there, and David and his men carried them off.

Again the Philistines invaded and deployed in the Valley of the Rephaim. 22
1 S 2:28*l* David consulted Yahweh, who replied, 'Do not attack them from the front; go 23 round to their rear and engage them opposite the balsam trees. •When you hear 24
Gn 3:8 2 K 7:6 Ps 84:6 the sound of footsteps[l] in the tops of the balsam trees, advance, for that will be Yahweh going out ahead of you to defeat the Philistine army.' •David did as 25
Yahweh had ordered and beat the Philistines from Gibeon to the Pass of Gezer.[m]

1 Ch 13 Ps 132:6–10, 13–14 The ark in Jerusalem[a]

6 David again mustered all the picked troops of Israel, thirty thousand men. 1
Jos 15:9–60 Setting off with the whole force then with him, David went to Baalah[b] of 2
Ex 25:10*d* 1 S 4:3–4 1 S 6:7 Judah, from there to bring up the ark of God, who bears the title 'Yahweh Sabaoth, enthroned on the winged creatures'. •They transported the ark of God on a new 3 cart and brought it out of Abinadab's house which is on the hill. Uzzah and Ahio, the sons of Abinadab, drove the cart, •Uzzah walked[c] alongside the ark of God 4 and Ahio went in front. •David and the whole House of Israel danced before 5 Ps 68:24seq.; 150:3,5 Yahweh with all their might, singing[d] to the accompaniment of harps, lyres, tambourines, sistrums and cymbals. •When they came to Nacon's threshing-floor, 6 Uzzah reached his hand out to[e] the ark of God and steadied it, as the oxen were making it tilt. •This roused Yahweh's anger against Uzzah, and for this crime[f] God 7 struck him down on the spot, and there he died beside the ark of God. •David 8 resented Yahweh's having broken out against Uzzah, and the place was given the name Perez-Uzzah,[g] which it still has today.

That day David felt afraid of Yahweh. 'How can the ark of Yahweh come to be 9 with me?' he said. •So David decided not to take the ark of Yahweh with him into 10 the city of David but diverted it to the house of Obed-Edom of Gath. •The ark of 11 Yahweh remained in the house of Obed-Edom of Gath for three months, and Yahweh blessed Obed-Edom and his whole family.

‖1 Ch 15 King David was informed that Yahweh had blessed Obed-Edom's family and 12 everything belonging to him on account of the ark of God. David accordingly went and, amid great rejoicing, brought the ark of God up from Obed-Edom's house to the City of David. •When the bearers of the ark of Yahweh had gone six paces, he 13 1 K 18:26 sacrificed an ox and a fat sheep. •And David danced whirling round before Yahweh 14 with all his might, wearing a linen loincloth. [h] •Thus with war cries and blasts on the horn, David and the entire House of Israel brought up the ark of Yahweh. •Now as the ark of Yahweh entered the City of David, Michal daughter of Saul was watching from the window and when she saw King David leaping and whirling round before Yahweh, the sight of him filled her with contempt. •They brought the ark of Yahweh in and put it in position, inside the tent which David had erected for it; and David presented burnt offerings and communion sacrifices in Yahweh's presence. •And when David had finished presenting burnt offerings, he blessed the people in the name of Yahweh Sabaoth. •To all the people, to the whole multitude of Israelites, men and women, he then distributed to each a loaf of bread, a portion of dates [i] and a raisin cake. Then the people all went back to their homes.

1 S 2:18e

‖1 Ch 16:1–3
Lv 1:1b;3:1a

As David was coming back to bless his household, Michal daughter of Saul came out to meet him. 'Much honour the king of Israel has won today,' she said, 'making an exhibition of himself under the eyes of his servant-maids, making an exhibition of himself like a buffoon!' [j] •David replied to Michal, 'I was dancing for Yahweh, not for them. As Yahweh lives, [k] who chose me in preference to your father and his whole family to make me leader of Israel, Yahweh's people, I shall dance before Yahweh and •lower myself even further than that. In your eyes I may be base, but by the maids you speak of, by them, I shall be held in honour!' [l] •And to the day of her death, Michal, daughter of Saul, had no children.

20:3

f. David's choice is explained by Jerusalem's central position between the northern and southern tribes. The city's name is attested as early as 2000 BC. The old Jebusite town (Dt 7:1a) stood on Mount Ophel between the Tyropoeon Valley and the Valley of the Kidron. It was overlooked on the north by the high ground of Mount Zion where David later built an altar, 24:16seq., and Solomon the Temple, 1 K 6; Solomon's palaces, 1 K 7:1–12 were built south of the Temple. Only much later did the city spread over the large hill to the west, the northern wall of which had twice to be pushed further north, 2 K 14:13a. The water system, v. 8d, was improved, particularly by Hezekiah, 2 K 20:20k. In 587 BC, Nebuchadnezzar destroyed the city, 2 K 25, but the rebuilding of the Temple was completed in 515, Ezr 6:15, and of the walls in 445, Ne 2–6. Antiochus Epiphanes built the citadel of the Acra opposite the Temple, 1 M 1:33*o*, and the Hasmonaeans turned it into a palace. Herod, however, set up his official residence more to the west. Herod also made the ancient citadel of the Temple, Ne 7:2, into a huge fortress, the Antonia, and rebuilt the Temple, Jn 2:20. The city was ultimately destroyed by Titus in AD 70; see Lk 21:20. Mentioned for the first time in the Bible together with its priest-king Melchizedek, Gn 14:18g, and destined to be, under David, the political and religious capital of Israel, Jerusalem (or Zion) came to personify the chosen people, Is 62; Ezk 23. It is the home of Yahweh, Ps 76:2b, and of his Anointed, Ps 2 and 110, the future meeting place of all the nations, Is 2:1–5; 60. With the vision of the new Jerusalem, Is 54:11, the Bible closes, Rv 21seq.

g. 'a wall' in some texts accidentally transposed to v. 11, 'stone cutters for the walls'. • On the 'Millo', see 1 K 9:15. The wall in question probably followed the line of the Tyropoeon.

h. David, while king of Judah at Hebron, was still nominally a vassal of the Philistines, 1 S 27:5–6. Now his growing power challenges their own supremacy.

i. To Adullam perhaps, 1 S 22:1–5. Jerusalem was evidently not yet captured, see v. 5:6b.

j. Sunken plain to the southwest of Jerusalem, Jos 15:8; 18:16; see Dt 2:10.

k. peretz means 'breach', see Gn 38:29.

l. The advancing footsteps of Yahweh.

m. 'Gibeon' 1 Ch 14:16 and Gk; 'Geba' Hebr. • Gezer is just within Philistine territory; the enemy is forced back to his own country.

6 a. This narrative takes up the story of the ark where a previous narrator left it, 1 S 7:1. By receiving the ark where Yahweh manifests his presence, Ex 25:8d; Dt 4:7b, Jerusalem is no longer the political capital only, but the religious centre, the holy city of Israel.

b. 'Baalah', see Ch; Hebr. mibba'ale 'some of the citizens'. • The old name of Kiriath-Jearim, Jos 15:9, see Jos 15:60; 18:14.

c. 'Uzzah walked' conj.; Hebr. has dittography of v. 3, 'a new cart . . . hill'.

d. 'with all their might, singing' Gk, 1 Ch 13:8; Hebr. meaning uncertain.

e. 'his hand out to' 1 Ch 13:9; omitted by Hebr.

f. Meaning very uncertain, but see 1 Ch 13:10 'because he had laid his hand on the ark'. The ark was terrible to its foes, 1 S 5, or to those who treated it with disrespect, 1 S 6:19. Our text goes further; the ark where Yahweh sits enthroned is sacred and may not be handled. Behind this primitive conception of the sacred (see Lv 17:1a) lies an acute sense of God's terrible majesty, see Ex 33:20i. The Priestly code provides for this instinct: even the Levites may not approach the ark without mortal peril until it has been covered by the priests, Nb 4:5,15,20. Nor do they touch it, but carry it on shafts, Ex 25:14.

g. 'Uzzah's Breach', see 5:20. Popular etymology: Yahweh has brought destruction (lit. 'broken through') on Uzzah.

h. A priestly garment; David has just offered sacrifice and is about to give a blessing, v. 18.

i. Sense conjectural. Alternative translation: 'a portion of meat'.

j. By wearing nothing but a loincloth, see Ex 20:26; 28:42–43.

k. Following Gk-Luc.; Hebr. jumps from the first to the second 'Yahweh'.

l. 'In your eyes' Gk; 'in my eyes' Hebr. • The whole episode brings out the depth and simplicity of David's religious faith.

Nathan's prophecy [a]

David's wars [a] ‖1 Ch 18:1–13

8 After this, David defeated the Philistines and subdued them. From the grip of the Philistines he wrested . . .[b] ·He also defeated the Moabites and, making them lie on the ground, measured them off by the line; he measured out two lines to be put to death and one full line to have their lives spared. The Moabites became David's subjects and paid him tribute.

David defeated Hadadezer son of Rehob, king of Zobah, when the latter mounted an expedition to extend his power over the River.[c] ·David captured one thousand seven hundred charioteers and twenty thousand foot soldiers from him; David hamstrung all the chariot teams, keeping only a hundred of them.[d] ·The Aramaeans of Damascus came to the help of Hadadezer king of Zobah, but David killed twenty-two thousand of the Aramaeans. ·David then imposed governors on Aram of Damascus, and the Aramaeans became David's subjects and paid him tribute. Wherever David went, Yahweh gave him victory. ·David took the golden shields carried by Hadadezer's guards and brought them to Jerusalem. ·From Betah and Berothai, towns belonging to Hadadezer, King David captured a great quantity of bronze.

Hadoram brought with him objects made of silver, gold and bronze, ·which King David also consecrated to Yahweh, as he had already consecrated the silver and gold taken from all the nations which he had subjugated—·from Aram, Moab, the Ammonites, the Philistines and Amalek; and from the spoil of Hadadezer son of Rehob, king of Zobah.

7 a. This ch. is constructed on the range of meanings attaching to the Hebr. word for 'house': palace, v. 1, temple, v. 5, dynasty, v. 12, family or lineage, v. 18, and more particularly on the antithesis: David is not to build a house (a temple) for God, v. 5; God is to build a House (a dynasty) for him, v. 11. The substance of the prophecy is the perpetuity of the Davidic dynasty in Israel, vv. 12–16. David himself thus understood it, vv. 19,25,27,29, see 23:5; so also Ps 89:29–37; 132:11–12. The prophecy, therefore, stretches beyond Solomon, David's immediate successor, to whom it is applied by v. 13 and by 1 K 5:19; 8:16–19 and 1 Ch 17:11–14; 22:10; 28:6. There is an interplay of light and shade in the prophecy, however, and it allows us a glimpse of one privileged descendant who is to enjoy God's special favour. It is the first in the series of prophecies relating to the Davidic Messiah, Is 7:14f; Mi 4:14h; Hg 2:23p. Ac 2:30 applies the text to Jesus.

b. 'judges' 1 Ch 17:6; 'tribes' Hebr.

c. vv. 6–7 seem to be the earliest expression of a current of opinion hostile to the Temple, more overtly stated in 1 K 8:27; Is 66:1–2; Ac 7:48. Nathan is himself a supporter of the ancient tradition represented by the ark, and is opposed to the innovation of a temple on Canaanite lines. The problem is ultimately solved by instal''ng the ark in the Temple built by Solomon, 1 K 8:1,10–12.

d. v. 13, with its clear reference to Solomon, is commonly thought to be an addition; in which case, the prophecy would presumably date from the reign of David. If, however, the v. is original, the prophecy should be dated to the reign of Solomon. There is no reason for supposing it to be more recent.

e. A formula of adoption, as in Ps 2:7; 110:3d (Gk), but also the earliest expression of Davidic messianism: each king of the Davidic dynasty will be an (imperfect) type, see the end of the v., and Ps 89:30–33, of the ideal king to come. In applying this text to the Messiah, 1 Ch 17:13 suppresses the second part of the v.

f. 'before me' Gk and some MSS; 'before you' Hebr.

g. A prayer of praise and thanksgiving for the promise of vv. 8–16.

h. In the tent where the ark was.

j. Translation uncertain.

k. To avoid giving the impression that these gods actually existed, the scribal tradition modified the Hebr. text (here restored in accordance with 1 Ch 17:21 and versions) by relating everything to Yahweh ('God' instead of 'a god') and Israel ('your people whom you have redeemed from Egypt' instead of 'his people').

8 a. Summary of the campaigns of David's reign. The Ammonite war is not mentioned because it is to be described, ch. 10–12, in connection with the story of Bathsheba.

b. Two unintelligible words. The customary translation 'control of the capital' is without basis; a place-name or geographical area would be more appropriate. 1 Ch 18:1 reads: 'Gath and its dependent towns'.

c. Meaning uncertain; interpretation adopted: Hadadezer, head of the small kingdom of Zobah in Anti-Lebanon and overlord of the neighbouring Aramaean principalities, was trying to extend his sphere of influence to the Euphrates (the River); David took advantage of this situation to attack him in the rear. But possibly we have here another account of the campaign of ch. 10.

C: DAVID'S FAMILY AND THE INTRIGUES OVER THE SUCCESSION[a]

1: MERIBBAAL

David's kindness to Jonathan's son

21:1–14
1 S 18:1–4+;
20:15seq.,4–2
·16:1–4;
19:27–31
4:4
9 David asked, 'Is there anyone belonging to Saul's family left, to whom I might 1 show faithful love for Jonathan's sake?' ·Now Saul's family had a servant 2 whose name was Ziba. When he had been summoned to David, the king said, 'Are you Ziba?' 'At your service,' he replied. ·The king said, 'Is there no one left, 3 belonging to Saul's family, for me to treat with God's own faithful love?' Ziba said to the king, 'There is still one of Jonathan's sons. He has crippled feet.' ·The king 4 17:27
asked 'Where is he?' Ziba replied, 'He is living in the household of Machir son of Ammiel, at Lo-Debar.' ·So King David sent for him to be fetched from the house 5 of Machir son of Ammiel at Lo-Debar.

On entering David's presence, Meribbaal[b] son of Jonathan, son of Saul, fell on 6 his face and prostrated himself. David said, 'Meribbaal!' He replied, 'Here I am, at your service.' ·David then said, 'Do not be afraid; I will indeed treat you with 7 faithful love for your father Jonathan's sake. I shall restore all your grandfather Saul's estates to you, and you will always eat at my table.' ·Meribbaal prostrated 8 himself and said, 'Who is your servant, for you to show favour to a dead dog like me?'

The king then summoned Saul's servant Ziba and said, 'Everything belonging to 9
Saul and his family, I give to your master's son. ·You must work the land for him, 10 you and your sons and your slaves; you must harvest the produce to provide food 1 Ch 8–34seq.
for your master's family[c] to eat. But Meribbaal, your master's son, will always take his own meals at my table.' Now, Ziba had fifteen sons and twenty slaves. ·Ziba 11 said to the king, 'Your servant will do everything my lord the king has ordered his servant.'

So Meribbaal ate at David's table like one of the king's sons. ·Meribbaal had a 12 16:1–4;19:25–31;21:7
young son whose name was Micha. All the people living in Ziba's household entered Meribbaal's service. ·Meribbaal lived in Jerusalem, since he always ate at 13 the king's table. He was crippled in both feet.

2: THE AMMONITE WAR—BIRTH OF SOLOMON

||1 Ch 19:1–5
David's ambassadors are insulted

10 After this, when the king of the Ammonites died and his son Hanun 1 succeeded him, ·David thought, 'I shall show Hanun son of Nahash the 2 same faithful love as his father showed me.' And David sent his representatives to offer him condolences over his father. But, when David's representatives reached 3:24–25
the Ammonites' country, ·the Ammonite princes said to Hanun their master, 'Do 3

you really think David means to honour your father when he sends you messengers ▶1 S 21:12 with sympathy? On the contrary, the reason why David has sent his representatives 4 to you is to explore the city,[a] to reconnoitre and so overthrow it.' •Whereupon Hanun seized David's representatives, shaved off half their beards, cut their Is 20:4 5 clothes off halfway up, at their buttocks, and sent them away. •When David was told, he sent someone to meet them, since the men were overcome with shame.
'Stay in Jericho', the king said, 'until your beards have grown again, and come back then.'

The first Ammonite campaign ‖1 Ch 19:6–15

6 When the Ammonites realised that they had antagonised David, they sent agents to hire twenty thousand foot soldiers from the Aramaeans of Beth-Rehob and the 8:3
Aramaeans of Zobah,[b] one thousand men from the king of Maacah and twelve 7 thousand men from the prince of Tob. •When David heard this, he sent Joab with 8 the whole army, the champions.[c] •The Ammonites marched out and drew up their 21:15–22; 23:8–39 line of battle at the city gate, while the Aramaeans of Zobah and of Rehob and the 9 men of Tob and Maacah kept their distance in the open country. •Joab, seeing that he had to fight on two fronts, to his front and to his rear, chose the best of Israel's 10 picked men and drew them up in line facing the Aramaeans. •He entrusted the rest of the army to his brother Abishai, and drew them up in line facing the Ammonites.
11 'If the Aramaeans prove too strong for me,' he said, 'you must come to my help; if 12 the Ammonites prove too strong for you, I shall come to yours. •Be brave! Let us acquit ourselves like men for the sake of our people and for the cities of our God.
13 And let Yahweh do as he thinks right!' •Joab and the force with him joined battle 14 with the Aramaeans, who fled at his onslaught. •When the Ammonites saw that the Aramaeans had fled, they too fled from Abishai and withdrew into the city.
Hence, Joab broke off his campaign against the Ammonites and returned to Jerusalem.

Victory over the Aramaeans[d] 8:3–8 1 Ch 19:16–19

15 The Aramaeans, realising that Israel had got the better of them, concentrated their 16 forces. •Hadadezer sent messengers and mobilised the Aramaeans living on the other side of the river; and these arrived at Helam, with Shobach the commander 17 of Hadadezer's army, at their head. •David, being informed of this, mustered all Israel, crossed the Jordan and arrived at Helam. The Aramaeans drew up in line 18 facing David and engaged him. •But the Aramaeans fled from Israel, and David killed seven hundred of their chariot teams and forty thousand men;[e] he also cut

h. The Arabah, the valley running south from the Dead Sea.

i. Here the text adds 'on the whole of Edom he imposed governors', but 1 Ch 18:13 omits the addition.

j. The genealogy of Abiathar is restored in accordance with 1 S 22:20. Hebr. has: 'Zadok son of Ahitub and Ahimelech son of Abiathar' probably intending to give Zadok a lineage to which he had no claim, see also 1 Ch 5:34; 6:37–38. But Zadok was a 'new' man and later supplanted Abiathar, 1 K 2:26–27,35, thus fulfilling the prophecy against the descendants of Eli, 1 S 2:30–36; his family enjoyed a monopoly of the priesthood in Jerusalem until the Exile.

k. The name seems original in this ancient list, but reappears as Shiya or Shuwa in 20:25; Shisha, 1 K 4:3; Shusha, 1 Ch 18:16. Since his father's name is not given, he was probably a foreigner. Perhaps the variant forms are corruptions of his Egyptian title 'scribe'.

l. 'in command of', restored following 1 Ch 18:17 and versions; Hebr. omits. • Foreign mercenaries from Philistia who constituted David's bodyguard, 15:18; 20:7,23; 1 K 1:38,44.

m. An odd statement, probably meaning that David's sons assisted or deputised for him in those priestly functions lawfully exercised by the king, see 6:13–20.

9 a. Ch. 9–20, which are continued in 1 K 1–2, are derived from an ancient and well-informed narrative which the author of Samuel uses almost unchanged. Nathan's prophecy, ch. 7, was perhaps the preface to it. The narrative told how David's crown eventually passed to Solomon, despite the fact that Meribbaal, Saul's grandson, was still alive, ch. 9, despite Sheba's hostility, ch. 20, and notwithstanding the tragic history of the royal family: David's adultery and the birth of Solomon, ch. 10–12, the murder of Amnon, ch. 13, Absalom's revolt, ch. 15–18, and Adonijah's intrigues, 1 K 1–2.

‖1 Ch 20:1 The second Ammonite campaign. David's sin [a]

10:7 11 At the turn of the year, [b] at the time when kings go campaigning, David sent Joab and with him his guards and all Israel. They massacred the Ammonites and laid siege to Rabbah-of-the-Ammonites. David, however, remained in Jerusalem. 1

It happened towards evening when David had got up from resting and was strolling on the palace roof, that from the roof he saw a woman bathing; the woman was very beautiful. ·David made enquiries about this woman and was told, 'Why, that is Bathsheba daughter of Eliam and wife of Uriah the Hittite.' [c] ·David then sent messengers to fetch her. She came to him, and he lay with her, just after she 2 3 4

Lv 15:19 had purified herself from her period. She then went home again. ·The woman conceived and sent word to David, 'I am pregnant.' 5

David then sent word to Joab, 'Send me Uriah the Hittite,' whereupon Joab sent Uriah to David. ·When Uriah reached him, David asked how Joab was and how the army was and how the war was going. ·David then said to Uriah, 'Go down to your house and wash your feet.' Uriah left the palace and was followed by a present from the king's table. ·Uriah, however, slept at the palace gate with all his master's bodyguard and did not go down to his house. 6 7 8 9

This was reported to David; 'Uriah', they said 'has not gone down to his house.' So David asked Uriah, 'Haven't you just arrived from the journey? Why didn't 10

1 S 4:3seq. you go down to your house?' ·To which Uriah replied, 'The ark, Israel and Judah are lodged in huts; my master Joab and my lord's guards are camping in the open. Am I to go to my house, then, and eat and drink and sleep with my wife? [d] As Yahweh lives, and as you yourself live, I shall do no such thing!' ·David then said to Uriah, 'Stay on here today; tomorrow I shall send you off.' So Uriah stayed that day in Jerusalem. ·The next day, David invited him to eat and drink in his presence and made him drunk. In the evening, Uriah went out and bedded down with his master's bodyguard, but did not go down to his house. 11 12 13

Next morning David wrote a letter to Joab and sent it by Uriah. ·In the letter he wrote, 'Put Uriah out in front where the fighting is fiercest and then fall back, so that he gets wounded and killed.' ·Joab, then besieging the city, stationed Uriah at a point where he knew that there would be tough fighters. ·The people of the city sallied out and engaged Joab; there were casualties in the army, among David's guards, and Uriah the Hittite was killed as well. 14, 15 16 17

Joab sent David a full account of the battle. ·To the messenger he gave this order: 'When you have finished telling the king all about the battle, ·if the king's anger is aroused and he says, "Why did you go near the town to give battle? Didn't 18, 19 20

Jg 9:50–54 you know that they would shoot from the ramparts? ·Who killed Abimelech son of Jerubbaal? [e] Wasn't it a woman who dropped a millstone on him from the ramparts, causing his death at Thebez? Why did you go near the ramparts?" you are to say, "Your servant Uriah the Hittite is dead too." ' 21

So the messenger set off and, on his arrival, told David everything that Joab had instructed him to say. David flew into a rage with Joab and said to the messenger, 'Why did you go near the ramparts? Who killed Abimelech son of Jerubbaal? Wasn't it a woman who dropped a millstone on him from the ramparts, causing his death at Thebez? Why did you go near the ramparts?' [f] ·The messenger replied to David, 'Their men had won an initial advantage and then came out to engage us in the open. We then drove them back into the gateway, ·but the archers shot at your retainers from the ramparts; some of the king's retainers lost their lives, and your servant Uriah the Hittite is dead too.' 22 23 24

David then said to the messenger, 'Say this to Joab, "Do not take the matter to 25 heart; the sword devours now one and now another. Attack the town in greater 26 force and destroy it." That will encourage him.' ·When Uriah's wife heard that her 27 husband Uriah was dead, she mourned for her husband. ·When the period of mourning was over, David sent to have her brought to his house; she became his wife and bore him a son. But what David had done displeased Yahweh.

David is rebuked by Nathan. His repentance [a]

1 12 Yahweh sent the prophet Nathan to David. He came to him and said: 14:4–17

In the same town were two men,
one rich, the other poor.
2 The rich man had flocks and herds
in great abundance;
3 the poor man had nothing but a ewe lamb,
only a single little one which he had bought.
He fostered it and it grew up with him and his children, eating his bread, drinking from his cup, sleeping in his arms; it was like a daughter to him.
4 When a traveller came to stay, the rich man would not take anything from his own flock or herd to provide for the wayfarer who had come to him.
Instead, he stole the poor man's lamb and prepared that for his guest.

5 David flew into a great rage with the man. 'As Yahweh lives,' he said to Nathan 6 'the man who did this deserves to die. ·For doing such a thing and for having shown no pity, he shall make fourfold restitution for the lamb.' Ex 21:37 Lk 19:8 7 Nathan then said to David, 'You are the man! Yahweh, God of Israel, says this, 8 "I anointed you king of Israel, I saved you from Saul's clutches, ·I gave you your master's household and your master's wives into your arms, I gave you the House 3:7b of Israel and the House of Judah; and, if this is still too little, I shall give you other 9 things as well. ·Why did you show contempt for Yahweh, [b] by doing what displeases him? You put Uriah the Hittite to the sword, you took his wife to be your wife, 10 causing his death by the sword of the Ammonites. ·For this, your household will never be free of the sword, [c] since you showed contempt for me and took the wife of Uriah the Hittite, to make her your wife."
11 'Yahweh says this, "Out of your own household I shall raise misfortune for you.
Before your very eyes I shall take your wives and give them to your neighbour, 16:22 12 who will lie with your wives in broad daylight. ·You have worked in secret, but I shall work this for all Israel to see, in broad daylight." ' 13 David said to Nathan, 'I have sinned against Yahweh.' Nathan then said to 14 David, 'Yahweh, for his part, forgives your sin; you are not to die. ·But, since you 15 have outraged Yahweh [d] by doing this, the child born to you will die.' ·And Nathan went home.

Both traditions, however, are of equal antiquity and display the same religious sentiment: David's crime is condemned, but his repentance wins forgiveness.

Death of Bathsheba's child. Birth of Solomon

Yahweh struck the child which Uriah's wife had borne to David and it fell gravely 21:10 1 K 21–27 ill. •David pleaded with Yahweh for the child; he kept a strict fast and went home 16 and spent the night lying on the ground, covered with sacking. •The officials of his 17 household stood round him, intending to get him off the ground, but he refused, nor would he take food with them. •On the seventh day the child died. David's 18 retinue were afraid to tell him that the child was dead. 'Even when the child was alive', they thought, 'we reasoned with him and he would not listen to us. How can we tell him that the child is dead? He will do something desperate.' •David, 19 however, noticed that his retinue were whispering among themselves, and realised that the child was dead. 'Is the child dead?' he asked the officers. They replied, 'He is dead.'

David got off the ground, bathed and anointed himself and put on fresh clothes. 20
Then he went into Yahweh's sanctuary and prostrated himself. On returning to his house, he asked to be served with food and ate it. •His retinue said, 'Why are you 21 acting like this? When the child was alive, you fasted and wept; now that the child is dead, you get up and take food!'[e] •'When the child was alive', he replied, 'I 22 fasted and wept because I kept thinking, "Who knows? Perhaps Yahweh will take pity on me and the child will live." •But now that he is dead, why should I fast? Can 23
Jb 7:9e I bring him back again? I shall go to him[f] but he cannot come back to me.'

David consoled his wife Bathsheba. He went to her and slept with her. She 24 conceived[g] and gave birth to a son, whom she called Solomon. Yahweh loved him and made this known by means of the prophet Nathan, who named him Jedidiah, 25
as Yahweh had instructed.[h]

‖1 Ch 20:1b–3 Capture of Rabbah

Joab assaulted Rabbah-of-the-Ammonites and captured the royal town. •He then 26, 27 sent messengers to tell David, 'I have assaulted Rabbah and captured the water supply.[i] •So now muster the rest of the army, lay siege to the town and take it, or I 28 will take it and the town will be called after me!' •So David mustered the whole 29 army and marched on Rabbah; he assaulted the town and captured it. •He took the 30 crown off Milcom's[j] head; it weighed one talent of gold, and in it was set a precious stone which went on David's head instead. He carried off great quantities of booty ‖Ex 1:13–14 1 Ch 20:3 from the town.' •And he expelled its inhabitants, setting them to work with saws, 31 iron picks and iron axes, employing them at brickmaking. He treated all the Ammonite towns in the same way. David and the whole army returned to Jerusalem.

3: ABSALOM[a]

Amnon violates his sister Tamar

3:2–3 13 After this, the following events took place. Absalom son of David had a 1 beautiful sister whose name was Tamar; Amnon son of David fell in love with her. •Amnon was so obsessed with his sister Tamar that it made him ill, since 2
she was a virgin and Amnon thought it impossible to do anything with her. •But 3 Amnon had a friend called Jonadab son of Shimeah, David's brother, and Jonadab was a very shrewd man. •'Son of the king,' he said, 'tell me why, morning after 4 morning, you look so worn? Won't you tell me?' Amnon replied, 'I am in love with Tamar, my brother Absalom's sister.' •Then Jonadab said, 'Take to your bed, 5 pretend to be ill and, when your father comes to visit you, say, "Please let my sister Tamar come and give me something to eat; let her prepare the food where I can see. What she gives me I shall eat." ' •So Amnon lay down and pretended to be ill. 6
The king then came to visit him and Amnon said to the king, 'Please let my sister Tamar come and make a cake or two where I can watch. What she gives me, I shall eat.' •David then sent word to Tamar at the palace, 'Go to your brother Amnon's house and prepare some food for him.' •Tamar went to the house of her brother Amnon who was lying there in bed. She took dough and kneaded it, and she made some cakes while he watched, and baked the cakes. •She then took the pan and dished them up in front of him, but he refused to eat. Amnon said, 'Let everyone leave me!' So everyone withdrew. •Amnon then said to Tamar, 'Bring the food to the inner room, so that I can eat what you give me.' So Tamar took the cakes which she had made and brought them to her brother Amnon in the inner room. •And as she was offering the food to him, he caught hold of her and said, 'Come to bed with me, sister!' •She replied, 'No, brother! Do not force me! This is no way to behave in Israel. Do not do anything so disgraceful! •Wherever should I go? I should be marked with this shame, while you would become disgraced in Israel. Why not go and speak to the king? He will not refuse to give me to you.'[b] •But he would not listen to her; he overpowered her and raped her.

Gn 34:7 Dt 22:21 Jg 20:6,10 Jr 29:23

Amnon was then seized with extreme hatred for her; the hatred he now felt for her was greater than his earlier love. 'Get up and go!' he said. •She said, 'No, brother! To send me away would be worse than the other wrong you have done me!'[c] But he would not listen to her. •He called his personal servant. 'Rid me of this woman!' he said. 'Throw her out and bolt the door behind her!' •(She was wearing a magnificent dress, for this was what the king's unmarried daughters wore in days gone by.) So the servant put her out and bolted the door behind her.

Gn 37:3

Tamar put dust on her head, tore the magnificent dress which she was wearing, laid her hand on her head, and went away, crying aloud as she went.[d]

Her brother Absalom said to her, 'Has Amnon your brother been with you? Sister, be quiet; he is your brother; do not take the matter to heart!' Tamar, however, went back to her brother Absalom's house inconsolable.

When King David heard the whole story, he was very angry; but he had no wish to harm his son Amnon, whom he loved because he was his first-born.[e] •Absalom, however, would not so much as speak to Amnon,[f] since he hated Amnon for having raped his sister Tamar.

Absalom kills Amnon and flees

Two years later, when Absalom had the sheep-shearers at Baal-Hazor, which is near Ephraim, he invited all the king's sons. •Absalom went to the king and said, 'Now sir, your servant has the sheep-shearers. Will the king and his retinue be pleased to come with your servant?' •'No, my son,' the king replied, 'we must not all come and be a burden to you.' And though Absalom was insistent, he would not go but dismissed him. •Absalom persisted, 'Then at least let my brother Amnon come with us.' The king said, 'Why should he go with you?' •On Absalom's insistence, however, he let Amnon and all the king's sons to go with him.

order? Use your strength and show your mettle!' ·Absalom's servants treated 29 Amnon as Absalom had ordered. The king's sons all leapt to their feet, mounted their mules and fled.

While they were on the road, word reached David, 'Absalom has killed all the 30 1:11 king's sons; not one of them is left.' ·The king stood up, tore his clothes and threw 31 himself on the ground. All his officers tore their clothes too. ·Jonadab son of 32 Shimeah, David's brother, then spoke up and said, 'Do not let my lord take to heart the report that all the young men, the king's sons, have been killed, since only Amnon is dead: for Absalom has been promising himself to do this since the day when Amnon raped his sister Tamar. ·So my lord the king must not imagine 33 that all the king's sons are dead; only Amnon is dead ·and Absalom has fled.' 34

The man on sentry duty looked up and saw a large troop coming along the road from Bahurim. [h] The sentry came to tell the king, 'I have seen some people coming down the Bahurim road on the mountainside.' ·Jonadab then said to the king, 35
'These are the king's sons arriving: what your servant said is exactly what happened.' ·He had scarcely finished speaking when the king's sons arrived and wept 36 3:3 aloud; the king and all his retinue wept aloud too. ·Absalom had gone to Talmai 37 son of Ammihud, king of Geshur. The king mourned for his son every day.

Joab negotiates Absalom's return

When Absalom had gone to Geshur, he stayed there for three years. ·Once the 38, 39 king was consoled over Amnon's death, his anger against Absalom subsided. [i]

14 Now, Joab son of Zeruiah observed that the king was [a] favourably inclined 1 to Absalom. ·Joab therefore sent to Tekoa [b] for a wise woman. 'Pretend to 2 be in mourning,' he said. 'Dress yourself in mourning, do not perfume yourself; act like a woman who has long been mourning for the dead. ·Then go to the king 3 12:1seq. and say this to him.' And Joab put the words into her mouth which she was to say. [c]
1 K 3:16seq. 2 K 8:3seq. So the woman of Tekoa went to the king and, falling on her face to the ground, 4
2 K 6:26seq. prostrated herself. 'Help, my lord king!' [d] she said. ·The king said, 'What is the 5
matter?'

'As you see,' she replied, 'I am a widow; my husband is dead. ·Your servant had 6
two sons and out in the fields, where there was no one to intervene, they had a quarrel. And one of them struck the other one and killed him. ·And now the whole 7
Nb 35:19c clan has risen against your servant. "Give up the man who killed his brother," they say, "so that we can put him to death, to atone for the life of the brother whom he has murdered; and thus we shall destroy the heir as well." By this means, they will extinguish the ember still left to me, leaving my husband neither name nor survivor on the face of the earth.' ·Then the king said to the woman, 'Go home; I myself 8 shall give orders about your case.' ·The woman of Tekoa said to the king, 'My lord 9 king! May the guilt be on me and on my family; the king and his throne are innocent of it.' ·'Bring me the man who threatened you,' the king replied, 'and he shall 10 never hurt you again.' ·She then said, 'Let the king be pleased to pronounce the 11
Nb 35:19c name of Yahweh your God, so that the avenger of blood may not do greater harm and destroy my son.' 'As Yahweh lives,' he said, 'not one of your son's hairs shall fall to the ground!'

Then the woman said, 'Permit your servant to say something else to my lord the 12 king.' 'Go on,' he said. ·The woman said, 'Why then has the king, who by giving 13 this verdict has condemned himself, conceived the idea, against God's people's Jb 7:9;14:7-12 Ps 88:5,10 interests, of not bringing home the son whom he has banished? ·We are all mortal; 14 we are like water spilt on the ground, which cannot be gathered up again, nor does God raise up a corpse; let the king therefore make [e] plans for his banished son not to remain far away from him in exile. [f]

[g]'Now, the reason why I came to speak about this to my lord the king is that I 15 was being intimidated, and your servant thought, "I shall speak to the king;
perhaps the king will do what his servant asks. ·Surely the king will consent to save 16 his servant from the clutches of the man who is trying to cut both me and my son off

17 from God's heritage. •Let a word from my lord the king, restore the peace!" your servant thought, "for my lord the king is like the Angel of God[h] in understanding good and evil."[i] May Yahweh your God be with you!' 19:28 1 S 29:9

18 Replying to the woman, the king said, 'Now do not evade the question which I am going to ask you.' The woman said, 'Let my lord the king ask his question.'
19 'Is not Joab's hand behind you in all this?' the king asked. The woman replied, 'As you live, my lord king, I cannot escape what my lord the king says, either to right or to left. Yes, it was your servant Joab who gave me my orders; he put all 20 these words into your servant's mouth. •Your servant Joab did this to approach the matter indirectly, but my lord has the wisdom of the Angel of God; he knows everything that happens on earth!'

21 The king then said to Joab, 'Very well, the suit is granted. Go and bring the 22 young man Absalom back.' •Joab fell on his face to the ground, prostrated himself and blessed the king. 'My lord king,' Joab said, 'today your servant knows that he has won your favour, since the king has done what his servant asked.'
23 Joab then set off, went to Geshur, and brought Absalom back to Jerusalem.
24 The king, however, said, 'Let him retire to his own house; he is not to appear in my presence.' So Absalom retired to his own house and was not received by the king.

Some details about Absalom[j]

25 In all Israel there was no one more praised for his beauty than Absalom; from the 26 sole of his foot to the crown of his head, he could not be faulted. •When he cut his hair—he shaved it once a year because his hair got too heavy—he would weigh the 27 hair: two hundred shekels, king's weight. •To Absalom were born three sons and one daughter called Tamar; she was a beautiful woman. 18:18

Absalom obtains his pardon

28 Absalom lived in Jerusalem for two years without being received by the king.
29 Absalom then summoned Joab, intending to send him to the king, but Joab would not come to him. He sent for him a second time, but still he would not come.
30 At this, Absalom said to his retainers, 'Look, Joab's field is next to mine and he has barley in it; go and set it on fire.' Absalom's retainers set fire to the field. Jg 15:4–5
31 Joab then stirred himself, went to Absalom in his house and asked, 'Why have 32 your retainers set my field on fire?' •Absalom replied to Joab, 'Look, I sent word to you: Come here, so that I can send you to the king to say, "Why come back from Geshur? Better for me to have been there still!" Now I want to be received by the 33 king, and if I am guilty, let him put me to death!' •Joab went to the king and told him this. He then summoned Absalom, who prostrated himself with his face to the ground before the king. And the king kissed Absalom.

Absalom's intrigues tribunal, Absalom would call out to him and ask, 'Which town are you from?' If he answered, 'Your servant is from one of the tribes of Israel,'[a] ·then Absalom would 3 say, 'Look, your case is sound and just, but not one of the king's deputies will listen to you.' ·Absalom would say, 'Oh, who will appoint me judge in the land? Then 4 anyone with a lawsuit or a plea could come to me and I should see he had justice!' And whenever anyone came up to him to prostrate himself, he would stretch out 5 his hand, draw him to him and kiss him. ·Absalom acted like this with every 6 Israelite who appealed to the king's tribunal, and so Absalom won the Israelites' hearts.

Absalom's rebellion

When four[b] years had gone by, Absalom said to the king, 'Allow me to go to 7
Hebron[c] and fulfil the vow which I have made to Yahweh; ·for, when I was in 8 13:37 Geshur, in Aram, your servant made this vow, "If Yahweh brings me back to Jerusalem, I shall pay my devotions to Yahweh in Hebron." '[d] ·The king said to 9 him, 'Go in peace.' So he set off and went to Hebron.

Absalom sent couriers throughout the tribes of Israel to say, 'When you hear the 10 trumpet sound, you are to say, "Absalom is king at Hebron!" ' ·With Absalom 11 went two hundred men from Jerusalem; they had been invited and had gone in all 16:23 innocence, unaware of what was going on. ·Absalom sent for[e] Ahithophel the 12
Gilonite, David's counsellor, from Giloh his town, and had him with him while offering the sacrifices. The conspiracy grew in strength, since Absalom's supporters grew in number.

David's flight

Ps 3 A messenger came and told David, 'The men of Israel have shifted their allegiance 13 to Absalom.' ·David said to all his retinue then with him in Jerusalem, 'Up, let us 14 flee, or we shall not escape from Absalom! Leave as quickly as you can, in case he mounts a sudden attack, overcomes us and puts the city to the sword.'[f] ·The king's 15 retinue replied, 'Whatever my lord the king decides, we are at your service.'
16:21–22; 20:3 The king set out on foot with his whole household, leaving ten concubines to look 16 after the palace. ·The king set out on foot with everyone following, and they halted 17 8:18 at the last house. ·All his officers stood[g] at his side. All the Cherethites and all the 18
Pelethites, with Ittai and all the six hundred Gittites who had come in his retinue from Gath, marched past the king. ·The king said to Ittai the Gittite, 'You, why 19 are you coming with us? Go back and stay with the king, for you are a foreigner, indeed an exile from your homeland. ·You arrived only yesterday; should I take 20 you wandering with us today, when I do not know myself where I am going? Go back, take your fellow countrymen with you, and may Yahweh show[h] you mercy and faithful love!' ·Ittai replied to the king, 'As Yahweh lives, and as my lord the 21 king lives, wherever my lord the king may be, for death or life, your servant will be there too.' ·David then said to Ittai, 'Go ahead, march past!' And Ittai of Gath 22 marched past with all his men and with all his children too.[i] ·The entire population 23 was weeping aloud as the king stood in the bed of the Kidron and everyone marched past him, making for the desert.

The ark is left in Jerusalem

Zadok was there too, and all the Levites with him, carrying the ark of God. They 24 set the ark of God down beside Abiathar until everyone had finished marching out of the town. ·The king then said to Zadok, 'Take the ark of God back into the city. 25 Should I win Yahweh's favour, he will bring me back and allow me to see it and its 16:10 tent once more. ·But should he say, "You displease me," here I am: let him treat 26 me as he sees fit.' ·The king said to Zadok the priest, 'Look, you and Abiathar go 27 back[j] quietly into the city, with your two sons, your own son Ahimaaz and Jonathan son of Abiathar. ·You see, I shall wait in the passes of the desert plain 28

29 until word comes from you bringing me news.' ·So Zadok and Abiathar took the ark of God back to Jerusalem and stayed there.

Hushai is briefed to work for David

30 David then made his way up the Mount of Olives, weeping as he went, his head covered and his feet bare. [k] And all the people with him had their heads covered 31 and made their way up, weeping as they went. ·David was then informed [l] that Ahithophel was among the conspirators with Absalom. David said, 'I beg you, 16:23; 17:14, 23
Yahweh, turn Ahithophel's advice to folly.'
32 As David reached the summit, where God is worshipped, [m] he saw Hushai the Archite, his friend, coming to meet him with his tunic torn and with earth on his 33, 34 head. ·David said, 'If you go along with me, you will be a burden to me. ·But if you go back to the city and say to Absalom, "I am at your service, my lord [n] king; once I was in your father's service, but now I shall serve you," you will be able to thwart 35 Ahithophel's advice for me. ·Surely the priests Zadok and Abiathar will be with you? Anything you hear from the palace you must report to the priests Zadok and 36 Abiathar. ·You see, their two sons are there with them, Zadok's son Ahimaaz, and Abiathar's son Jonathan; through these, you will send me word of everything 37 you hear.' ·Hushai, David's friend, entered the city just as Absalom was reaching Jerusalem.

David and Ziba

1 16 When David had passed a little beyond the summit, Meribbaal's retainer, 4:4;9:1–13
Ziba, met him with a pair of donkeys, saddled and laden with two hundred loaves of bread, a hundred bunches of raisins, a hundred of the season's fruits, and 2 a skin of wine. ·The king said to Ziba, 'What are you going to do with that?' 'The donkeys', Ziba replied, 'are for the king's family to ride, the bread and the fruit for the soldiers to eat, the wine is for drinking by those who get exhausted in the 3 desert.' ·The king asked 'And where is your master's son?' Ziba replied to the king, 'Why, he has stayed in Jerusalem because, he says, "Today, the House of 4 Israel will give me back my father's kingdom." ' ·Then the king said to Ziba, 'Everything owned by Meribbaal is yours.' Ziba said, 'I prostrate myself! May I be 19:25–31 worthy of your favour, my lord king!'

Shimei curses David

5 As David was reaching Bahurim, out came a man of the same clan as Saul's family. 3:16
His name was Shimei son of Gera and, as he came, he uttered curse after curse
6 and threw stones at David and at all King David's retinue, even though the whole
7 army and all the champions formed an escort round the king on either side. ·The words of his curse were these, 'Off with you, off with you, man of blood, scoundrel!
8 Yahweh has paid you back for all the spilt blood of the House of Saul [o] whose sovereignty you have usurped; and Yahweh has transferred the sovereign power to Absalom your son. Now your wickedness has overtaken you, man of blood that

15:25–26 to him, "Curse David!" what right has anyone to say, "Why have you done so?" ' ·David said to Abishai and all his retinue, 'Why, the son sprung from 11

Hushai ingratiates himself with Absalom

Absalom entered Jerusalem with all the men of Israel; with him was Ahithophel. 15
15:32–37 When Hushai the Archite, David's friend, reached Absalom, Hushai said to 16 Absalom, 'Long live the king! Long live the king!' ·Absalom said to Hushai, 'Is 17 this your faithful love for your friend? Why didn't you go away with your friend?'
Hushai replied to Absalom, 'No, the man whom Yahweh and this people and all 18
the men of Israel have chosen, he is the man for me, and with him will I stay!
Besides, whom should I serve, if not his son? As I served your father, so shall I 19 serve you.'

Absalom and David's concubines

Absalom said to Ahithophel, 'Think carefully. What shall we do?' ·Ahithophel 20, 21 15:16 replied to Absalom, 'Go to your father's concubines whom he left to look after the palace; then all Israel will hear that you have thoroughly antagonised your father, and the resolution of all your supporters will be strengthened.'[e] ·So a tent was 22 12:11–12 pitched for Absalom on the flat roof and, with all Israel watching, Absalom went to his father's concubines. ·At the time, whatever advice Ahithophel gave was 23 treated like a decision obtained from God; as by David, so by Absalom, was all Ahithophel's advice regarded.

Hushai thwarts Ahithophel's plans

17 Ahithophel said to Absalom, 'Let me choose twelve thousand men and set 1 off this very night in pursuit of David. ·I shall fall on him while he is tired 2 and dispirited; I shall strike terror into him, and all the people who are with him will run away. I shall kill only the king, ·and I shall then bring all the people back to 3 you, like a bride returning to her husband. You seek the life of one individual only;[a] the people as a whole will have peace.' ·The suggestion seemed a good one 4 to Absalom and all the elders of Israel.

Then Absalom said, 'Now call Hushai the Archite, for us to hear what he too has 5 to say.' ·When Hushai had come to Absalom, Absalom said, 'This is what 6 Ahithophel says. Are we to do as he suggests? If not, suggest something yourself.'
Hushai said to Absalom, 'On this occasion the advice given by Ahithophel is not 7 good. ·You know', Hushai went on, 'that your father and his men are great fighters 8 and that they are now as angry as a wild bear robbed of her cubs. Your father is a man of war: he will not let the army rest during the night. ·At this moment he is 9 concealed in some hollow or other place. If at the outset there are casualties among our troops, word will go round that the army supporting Absalom has met with disaster. ·And then even the valiant, the truly lion-hearted, will be demoralised; 10 for all Israel knows that your father is a champion and that the men with him are valiant. ·For my part, I offer this advice: Summon all Israel, from Dan to Beer- 11 sheba, to rally to you, as numerous as the sand on the seashore, and you take the field in person with them.[b] ·We shall reach him wherever he is to be found; we 12 shall fall on him as the dew falls on the ground, and not leave him or any one of the 13 men with him. •Should he retire into a town, all Israel will bring[c] ropes to that town, and we shall drag it into the river-bed until not a pebble of it is to be found.' 14 Then Absalom and all the people of Israel said, 'Hushai the Arkite's advice is better than Ahithophel's,' Yahweh having resolved to thwart Ahithophel's shrewd 15:31 advice and so bring disaster on Absalom.

15 Hushai then told the priests Zadok and Abiathar, 'Ahithophel gave such and 16 such advice to Absalom and the elders of Israel, but I advised so and so. •Send with 15:27–28 all speed to David and say, "Do not camp in the desert passes tonight, but get through them as fast as you can, or the king and his whole army may be annihilated." '

David is warned and crosses the Jordan

17 Jonathan and Ahimaaz were posted at the Fuller's Spring; a servant-girl was to go 15:27 and warn them and they in turn were to warn King David, since they could not give 1 K 1:9 18 themselves away by coming into the city themselves. •A young man saw them nonetheless and told Absalom. The pair of them, however, made off quickly, reaching the house of a man in Bahurim. In his courtyard was a storage-well and 19 they got down into it. •The woman took a piece of canvas and, spreading it over Jos 2:4seq., 15seq.
the mouth of the storage-well, scattered crushed grain on it so that nothing showed.
20 When Absalom's servants reached the woman at the house, they said, 'Where are Ahimaaz and Jonathan?' The woman said, 'They have gone further on, towards the water.'[d] They searched but, having found nothing, went back to Jerusalem.
21 When they had gone, the men climbed out of the storage-well and went to warn
King David. 'Set out!' they told David. 'Cross the water quickly, for Ahithophel 22 has given such and such advice against you!' •So David and all the troops with him set off and crossed the Jordan. By dawn no one was left, all had crossed the Jordan.
23 When Ahithophel saw that his advice had not been followed, he saddled his 15:31 donkey and set off and went home to his own town. Then, having set his house in order, he hanged himself.[e] He was buried in his father's tomb.

Absalom crosses the Jordan. David at Mahanaim

24 David had reached Mahanaim by the time that Absalom crossed the Jordan with 25 all the men of Israel. •Absalom had put Amasa in command of the army in place of 19:14; 20:4–13
Joab. This Amasa was the son of a man called Ithra the Ishmaelite,[f] who had 1 K 2:5b 26 married Abigail, daughter of Jesse and sister of Zeruiah, mother of Joab. •Israel and Absalom pitched their camp in the territory of Gilead.
27 When David reached Mahanaim, Shobi son of Nahash from Rabbah-of-the- 10:2
Ammonites, Machir son of Ammiel from Lo-Debar, and Barzillai the Gileadite 9:4; 19:32
28 from Rogelim •brought bedding,[g] rugs, bowls and crockery; and wheat, barley, 29 meal, roasted grain, beans, lentils,[h] •honey, curds and cows' cheese and sheep's cheese, which they presented to David and the people with him for them to eat.

Defeat of Absalom's party

18 David reviewed the troops who were with him and appointed commanders 1
Jg 7:16 of thousands and commanders of hundreds to lead them. ·David divided 2 1 S 11:11 the army into three groups,[a] one under the command of Joab, another under the command of Abishai son of Zeruiah and brother of Joab, and the third under the command of Ittai the Gittite. David then said to the troops, 'I shall take the field in 21:17 person with you.' ·But the troops replied, 'You are not to take the field. No one 3 will bother about us if we run away, they will not even bother about us if half of us are killed, but you are ten thousand times more valuable. So it is better if you stay inside the town, in case we need reinforcements.' ·David said, 'I will do what you 4 think best.' And the king stood beside the gate as the troops marched out by their hundreds and their thousands. ·The king gave orders to Joab, Abishai and Ittai, 5 18:12 'For my sake, treat young Absalom gently!' And the troops all heard the king give all the commanders these orders about Absalom. ·So the troops marched out into 6 the open to engage Israel, and the battle took place in the Forest of Ephraim.[b] There, the army of Israel was beaten by David's retainers; it was a great defeat that 7 day, with twenty thousand casualties. ·The fighting spread throughout the region 8 and that day the forest claimed more victims than the sword.

Death of Absalom

Absalom happened to run into some of David's guards. Absalom was riding his 9 mule and the mule passed under the thick branches of a great oak. Absalom's head got caught in the oak and he was left hanging[c] between heaven and earth, while the mule he was riding went on. ·Someone saw this and reported to Joab, 'I have 10 just seen Absalom hanging from an oak.' ·Joab said to the man who had informed 11 him, 'If you saw him, why did you not strike him to the ground then and there? I, would have made it my business to give you ten silver shekels and a belt!' ·The man 12 replied to Joab, 'Even if I could feel the weight of a thousand silver shekels in my hand, I would not lift my hand against the king's son. In our own hearing, the king 18:5 gave you and Abishai and Ittai these orders, "For my sake,[d] spare young Absalom." ·Even if I had deceived myself, nothing stays hidden from the king and you 13 would have dissociated yourself from me.' ·Joab then said, 'I cannot waste time 14 arguing with you!' And, taking three darts[e] in his hand, he planted them in Absalom's heart, while he was still alive, deep in the oak-tree. ·Ten soldiers, Joab's 15 1 S 14:13 armour-bearers, then came in close, struck Absalom and killed him.

Joab then had the trumpet sounded, and the troops left off pursuing Israel, since 16
Joab held the troops back. ·They took Absalom, flung him into a deep pit in the 17
Jos 7:26; 8:29;10:27 forest and raised a huge cairn over him. All the Israelites had fled, dispersing to their homes.

Now, during his lifetime, Absalom had made and erected a pillar to himself, 18 14:27 which is in the Valley of the King. 'I have no son', he said, 'to preserve the memory
Gn 14:17 of my name.' He gave his own name to the pillar, and today it is still called Absalom's Monument.[f]

The news is brought to David

Ahimaaz son of Zadok said, 'Let me run and tell the king the good news that 19
Yahweh has vindicated his cause by ridding him of his enemies.' ·But Joab said, 20
'Today you would be no bearer of good news, some other day you may be; but today you would not be bringing good news, since the king's son is dead.' ·Joab 21 then said to the Cushite,[g] 'Go and tell the king what you have seen.' The Cushite prostrated himself to Joab and ran off. ·But Ahimaaz son of Zadok persisted. 22
'Come what may,' he said to Joab, 'please let me run after the Cushite.' 'My son,' Joab said, 'why run? You will get no reward for your news.'[h] ·But he replied, 23
'Come what may, let me run!' and Joab said 'Run, then!' So Ahimaaz ran off along the road through the Plain, outrunning the Cushite.

24 David was sitting between the two gates. The sentry, having gone up to the roof 25 of the gate, looked out from the ramparts and saw a man running alone. •The sentry called down to the king and told him. The king said, 'If he is alone, he is 26 bringing good news.'[i] •As the man drew steadily nearer, the lookout man saw another man running, and the sentry above the gate[j] shouted, 'Here comes another 27 man, running alone!' David said, 'He too is a bearer of good news.' •The sentry 2 K 9:20 said, 'I recognise the way the first man runs; Ahimaaz son of Zadok runs like that.'
'He is a good man', said the king, 'and comes with good news.' 1 K 1:42 28 Ahimaaz went up to[k] the king. 'All hail!' he said, prostrating himself on the ground before the king. 'Blessed be Yahweh your God', he said, 'who has handed 29 over the men who rebelled against my lord the king!' •'Is all well with young Absalom?' the king asked. Ahimaaz replied, 'I saw a great commotion when Joab, 30 the king's servant, sent your servant off, but I do not know what it was.'[l] •The king said, 'Go and stand over there.' He stood to one side and waited.
31 Then the Cushite arrived. 'Good news for my lord the king!' the Cushite shouted. 'Today Yahweh has vindicated your cause, by ridding you of all who had 32 risen up against you.' •'Is all well with young Absalom?' the king asked the Cushite.
'May the enemies of my lord the king', the Cushite answered, 'and all who rise up to harm you, share the fate of that young man!'

David mourns for Absalom

33 1 19 The king shuddered. He went up to the room over the gate and burst into tears; and, as he wept,[a] he kept saying, 'Oh, my son Absalom! My son! My son Absalom! If only I had died instead of you! Oh, Absalom my son, my son!'
19.1 2 Word was brought to Joab, 'The king is weeping and mourning for Absalom.'
2 3 And for the entire army that day, victory was turned to mourning, the troops
3 4 having learnt that the king was grieving for his son. •And that day the troops came furtively back into town, like troops creeping shamefacedly away when deserting 4 5 in battle. •The king had covered his face and kept crying aloud, 'My son Absalom! 15:30
Oh, Absalom my son, my son!'
5 6 Joab went inside to the king and said, 'Today you have made all your servants feel ashamed—today, when they have saved your life, the lives of your sons and daughters, the lives of your wives and the lives of your concubines!—because you 6 7 love those who hate you and hate those who love you. •Today you have made it plain that commanders and soldiers mean nothing to you—for today I can see that 7 8 you would be content if we were all dead, provided that Absalom was alive! •Now get up, come out and reassure your soldiers; for if you do not come out, I swear by Yahweh, not one man will stay with you tonight; and this will be a worse misfortune 8 9 for you than anything that has happened to you from your youth until now!' •The king got up and took his seat at the gate. An announcement was made to the whole army: 'The king is sitting at the gate.' And the whole army assembled in front of the king.

Preparations for David's return had to flee the country to escape from Absalom; ·and now Absalom, whom we had 11 10 anointed to reign over us, has died in battle. Why does no one suggest that the king should be brought back?'

What was being said throughout Israel reached the king. [b] ·King David then sent 12a word to the priests Zadok and Abiathar, 'Say to the elders of Judah, [c] "Why should 12b. 11 you be the last to bring the king home? ·You are my brothers, you are my 13 12 own flesh and bone: why should you be the last to bring the king back?"
And say to Amasa, [d] "Are you not my own flesh and bone? May God bring 14 13 Rt 1:17+ unnameable ills on me and worse ills, too, if you do not become my permanent army commander instead of Joab!" ' ·Thus he rallied the hearts of the men of 15 14 Judah to a man and, as a result, they sent word to the king, 'Come back, you and all who serve you.'

Episodes connected with David's return: Shimei

So the king started home and reached the Jordan. Judah, coming to meet the king 16 15
16:5–13 to escort him across the Jordan, had arrived at Gilgal. ·Shimei son of Gera, the 17 16
Benjaminite of Bahurim, hurried down with the men of Judah to meet King David.
16:1–4; 19:25–31 With him were a thousand men from Benjamin. Ziba, servant of the House of 18 17 Saul, with his fifteen sons and twenty servants, arrived at the Jordan before the king ·and worked manfully [e] ferrying the king's family across and doing whatever 19 18 he required.

While the king was crossing the Jordan, Shimei son of Gera fell at the king's feet and said to the king, 'I hope my lord does not regard me as guilty of a crime! 20 19 Forget about the wrong your servant did on the day my lord the king left Jerusalem.
Let my lord not hold my guilt against me. ·For your servant is aware of having 21 20 sinned, and that is why I have come today—the first member of the whole House of Joseph [f] to come down to meet my lord the king.'

At this, Abishai son of Zeruiah spoke up and said, 'Does Shimei not deserve 22 21 death for having cursed Yahweh's anointed?' ·To which David replied, 'What 23 22 16:9–10 concern is my business to you, sons of Zeruiah, that you should oppose my wishes
1 S 11:13 today? Could anyone be put to death in Israel today? Today I know for sure that I am king of Israel?' ·'Your life is spared,' the king said. And the king gave him his 24 23 oath. [g]

9:2–13; 16:1–4 Meribbaal

Dt 21:12 Meribbaal son of Saul also went down to meet the king. He had not cared for his 25 24 feet or hands, [h] he had not trimmed his moustache or washed his clothes from the day of the king's departure till the day of his peaceful return.

When he arrived from Jerusalem [i] to greet the king, the king asked him, 'Why 26 25 did you not come with me, Meribbaal?' ·'My lord king,' he replied, 'my retainer 27 26 deceived me. Your servant said to him, "Saddle the donkey [j] for me to ride, so that I can go with the king," your servant being lame. ·He has slandered your servant 28 27 to my lord the king. My lord the king, however, is like the Angel of God, so do as you think right. ·My father's entire family deserved no better than death from my 29 28 9:10 lord the king, and yet you admitted your servant to the ranks of those who eat at your table. What right have I to make any further appeal to the king?' ·The king 30 29 said, 'You need say no more. I rule that you and Ziba divide the property between you.' ·'Let him take it all,' Meribbaal said to the king, 'since my lord the king has 31 30 come back home in peace!'

Barzillai

Barzillai the Gileadite had come down from Rogelim and accompanied the king 32 31 towards the Jordan, intending to take leave of him at the Jordan. ·Barzillai was a 33 32 man of great age; he was eighty years old. He had kept the king in provisions 17:27–29 during his stay at Mahanaim, being a very wealthy man. ·'Come with me', the king 34 33 said to Barzillai, 'and I will provide for you at my side in Jerusalem.' ·Barzillai 35 34 replied to the king, 'How many years have I left to live, for me to go up to 35 36 Jerusalem with the king? ·I am now eighty years old; can I tell the good from the bad? Has your servant any taste for his food and drink? Can I still hear the voices of men and women singers? Why should your servant be a further burden to my 36 37 lord the king?[k] ·Your servant will go a little way across the Jordan with the king; 37 38 but why should the king reward me so generously for that? ·Please allow your servant to go home again, so that I can die in my own town near the grave of my father and mother. But here is your servant Chimham;[l] let him go with my lord the 38 39 king; treat him as you think right.' ·The king said, 'Let Chimham come along with me then; I shall do whatever you wish for him, and anything you request I shall do 39 40 for your sake.' ·The people then all crossed the Jordan, and the king, having crossed, kissed Barzillai and blessed him, and the latter went home.

Judah and Israel dispute over the king

40 41 The king went on to Gilgal and Chimham went with him. All the people of Judah 41 42 accompanied[m] the king, and also half the people of Israel. ·All the men of Israel then came to the king. 'Why', they asked the king, 'have our brothers, the men of Judah, carried you off and brought the king and his family across the Jordan, and 42 43 all David's men with him?' ·All the men of Judah retorted to the men of Israel, 'Because the king is more closely related to us. Why do you take offence at this?
Have we been eating at the king's expense? Have we taken any position for 43 44 ourselves?'[n] ·The men of Israel replied to the men of Judah, 'We have ten shares 1 K 11:31 in the king and, what is more, we are your elder brothers,[o] so why have you slighted us? Were we not the first to suggest bringing back our king?' The men of Judah's words were even more intemperate than those of the men of Israel.

Sheba's revolt[a]

1 20 Now there happened to be a scoundrel there called Sheba son of Bichri, a Benjaminite, who sounded the trumpet and shouted:

> We have no share in David, 1 K 12:16
> we have no heritage in the son of Jesse.
> Every man to his tents, O Israel!

2 At this all the men of Israel deserted David and followed Sheba son of Bichri.
But the men of Judah stuck close to their king, from the Jordan all the way to Jerusalem.

3 David returned to his palace in Jerusalem. The king took the ten concubines, 15:16; 16: 20–22 whom he had left to look after the palace, and put them under guard. He provided for their upkeep but never went near them again; they were shut away until the day they died, widows, as it were, of a living man.

Assassination of Amasa

4 The king said to Amasa, 'Summon me the men of Judah and be here yourself 19:14 5 within three days.' ·Amasa went off to summon Judah, but he took longer than the 6 time fixed by David. ·David then said to Abishai, 'Sheba son of Bichri is now in a well, brother?' and, with his right hand, took Amasa by the beard to kiss him. Amasa paid no attention to the sword, which Joab had now picked up, and Joab 10 struck him with it in the belly, spilling his entrails all over the ground. He did not 1 K 2:5 need to strike a second blow; and Amasa died, while Joab and Abishai hurried on in pursuit of Sheba son of Bichri.

One of Joab's men stood on guard beside Amasa, shouting, 'Whoever is on 11
Joab's side, whoever is for David, follow Joab!' ·Amasa meanwhile lay wallowing 12 in his blood in the middle of the road. Seeing that everyone was stopping, the man dragged Amasa off the road into the field and threw a cloak over him, having realised that everyone passing would stop. ·Once Amasa had been taken[e] off the 13 road, the men all carried on, following Joab[f] in pursuit of Sheba son of Bichri.

End of the revolt

Sheba crossed all the tribes of Israel as far as Abel Beth-Maacah,[g] and the Bichrites 14
all . . .[h] They formed up and followed him.[i] ·Laying siege to him in Abel Beth- 15 Maacah, they threw up a ramp against the outer wall of the town, while the whole army accompanying Joab undermined the wall to bring it down. A 16 quick-witted woman shouted from the town, 'Listen! ·Listen! Say to Joab, "Come 17 here, I want to speak to you." ' He came forward, and the woman said, 'Are you Joab?' 'I am', he replied. She said, 'Listen to what your servant says.' 'I am listening,' he replied. ·She then spoke as follows, 'In olden days people used to 18 say, "Abel and Dan are where you should enquire ·whether a tradition established 19 by the faithful of Israel has finally died out."[j] And yet you are trying to destroy a town, a metropolis of Israel. Why do you want to devour Yahweh's heritage?' 'The last thing I want to do', said Joab, 'is either to devour or to destroy. ·This is 20, 21 not the issue; a man from the highlands of Ephraim, called Sheba son of Bichri, has revolted against the king, against David. Hand that one man over and I will raise the siege of the town.' 'Very well,' the woman said to Joab, 'his head will be thrown over the wall to you.' ·The woman went and spoke to all the people as her 22 wisdom dictated. They cut off the head of Sheba son of Bichri and threw it down to Joab. He had the trumpet sounded and they withdrew from the town and all went home, while Joab himself went back to the king in Jerusalem.

II: SUPPLEMENTS[a]

The great famine and the execution of Saul's descendants[b]

21 In the days of David there was a famine which lasted for three years on end. 1
David consulted Yahweh,[c] and Yahweh said, 'Saul and his family have Jos 9:3–27 incurred blood-guilt, by putting the Gibeonites to death.' ·Then the king sum- 2 moned the Gibeonites and said—now, the Gibeonites were not Israelites, but were a remnant of the Amorites, to whom the Israelites had bound themselves by oath;

Saul, however, in his zeal for the Israelites and for Judah, had done his best to 3 exterminate them[d]—hence David said to the Gibeonites, •'What can I do for you?
How can I make amends, so that you will call a blessing[e] down on Yahweh's 4 heritage?' •The Gibeonites replied, 'Our quarrel with Saul and his family cannot be settled for silver or gold, nor by putting to death one man in Israel.' David said, 5 'Say what you want and I will do it for you.' •Then they replied to the king, 'The man who decimated us and planned to annihilate us, so that we should not exist 6 anywhere in Israelite territory—•we want seven of his descendants handed over to us; and we shall dismember them before Yahweh at Gibeon on Yahweh's hill.'[f] 'I 7 shall hand them over,' said the king. •The king, however, spared Meribbaal son of 1 S 20:15 seq.,42
Jonathan, son of Saul, on account of the oath by Yahweh binding them together, 8 binding David and Jonathan son of Saul. •The king took the two sons born to Saul by Rizpah daughter of Aiah: Armoni and Meribbaal; and the five sons borne by 3:7 9 Merab[g] daughter of Saul to Adriel son of Barzillai, of Meholah. •He handed these 1 S 18:19 over to the Gibeonites who dismembered them before Yahweh on the hill. The seven of them perished together; they were put to death in the first days of the harvest, at the beginning of the barley harvest.

10 Rizpah daughter of Aiah, wearing sacking[h] and spreading some out for herself 3:31;12:16 on the rock, from the beginning of the barley harvest until the rain[i] fell on them from heaven, kept the birds of the sky away from them in the daytime, and the wild 11 animals away at night. •David was told of what Saul's concubine, Rizpah daughter of Aiah, had done.

12 David went and recovered the bones of Saul and his son Jonathan from the notables of Jabesh in Gilead. The latter had stolen them from the square in Beth- 1 S 31:10–13
Shean, where the Philistines had hung them, when the Philistines had defeated 13 Saul at Gilboa. •David fetched the bones of Saul and his son Jonathan. The bones 14 of the men who had been dismembered were collected •and these, with[j] the bones of Saul and his son Jonathan, were buried in the territory of Benjamin, at Zela, in the tomb of Saul's father, Kish. The king's orders were carried out to the letter and after that, God took pity on the country.

Various exploits against the Philistines[k]

15 Once again the Philistines made war on Israel. David went down with his retainers; 16 they fought the Philistines and David began to tire. •There was a champion,[l] one of the sons of Rapha. His spear weighed three hundred shekels of bronze; he was Dt 1:28g 21 a. Ch. 21–24 interrupt the long story of David's family and of the royal succession, which is resumed in 1 K: 1. They embody six appendices arranged in pairs: the two narratives of 21:1–14 (three years' famine) and ch. 24 (three days' pestilence); two series of military exploits: 21:15–22 (the four Philistine giants) and 23:8–39 (David's warriors); two poetic passages: ch. 22 (canticle of David) and 23:1–7 (last words of David).

b. This narrative is detached from its context and the events are probably to be placed before 9:1. v. 7 must be a subsequent gloss.

k. These episodes of the Philistine wars would be better placed after 5:17–25, at the beginning of David's reign. They were single combats, see 1 S 17:40g, between Philistine champions and David or one of his champions, see also 2 S 23:20–21. In the first episode, vv. 15[b]–17, David is saved, despite the rules governing single combat, by the intervention of Abishai; his men consequently make him promise not to expose himself in single combat again, v. 17.

retainers.

A hymn of victory [a]

22 David addressed the words of this song to Yahweh, when Yahweh had 1 delivered him from the clutches of all his enemies and from the clutches of Saul. ·He said: 2

‖Ps 18 Yahweh is my rock and my fortress, my deliverer is my God. 3
I take refuge in him, my rock,
1 S 2:2 my shield, my saving strength,
1 S 2:1 my stronghold, my place of refuge.

My Saviour, you have saved me from violence;
I call to Yahweh, who is worthy of praise, 4
and I am saved from my foes.

With Death's breakers closing in on me, 5 23:6 Belial's torrents ready to swallow me, Sheol's snares on every side of me, 6
Death's traps lying ahead of me,

I called to Yahweh in my anguish, 7
I cried for help to my God, from his Temple he heard my voice,
my cry came to his ears!

Ex 19:16g Then the earth quaked and rocked, 8
the heavens' foundations shuddered, they quaked at his blazing anger.
Smoke rose from his nostrils, 9
from his mouth devouring fire, (coals were kindled at it).

Ps 144:5 He parted the heavens and came down, 10
a storm-cloud underneath his feet;
Ex 25:18i riding one of the winged creatures, he flew, 11 soaring on the wings of the wind.

He wrapped himself in darkness, 12
his pavilion dark waters and dense cloud.
A brightness lit up before him, 13
hail and blazing fire.

Yahweh thundered from the heavens, 14

the Most High made his voice heard.
15 He shot his arrows and scattered them, his lightning flashed [b] and routed them. Ps 144:6

16 The very springs of ocean were exposed,
the world's foundations were laid bare,
at the roaring of Yahweh,
at the blast of breath from his nostrils!

17 He reached down from on high, snatched me up, pulled me from the watery depths, Ps 144:7 18 rescued me from my mighty foe, from my enemies who were stronger than I.

19 They assailed me on my day of disaster,
but Yahweh was there to support me, 20 he freed me, set me at large,
he rescued me, because he loves me.

21 Yahweh rewards me for my uprightness, as my hands are pure so he repays me, 22 since I have kept the ways of Yahweh, and not fallen away from my God.

23 His judgements are all before me,
his statutes I have not put away from me;
24 I am blameless before him,
I keep myself clear of evil.

25 Hence Yahweh repaid me for acting uprightly because he could see I was pure.
26 Faithful you are to the faithful, blameless with the blameless,

27 sincere to the sincere but cunning to the crafty, 28 you save a people that is humble and humiliate those with haughty looks.

29 Yahweh, you yourself are my lamp,
my God lights up my darkness;
30 with you I storm the rampart with my God I can scale any wall. [c]

31 This God, his way is blameless;
the word of Yahweh is refined in the furnace, for he alone is the shield of all who take refuge in him.

32 For who is God but Yahweh, who is a rock but our God:
33 this God who girds me with strength,
who makes my way free from blame,

34 who makes me as swift as a deer and sets me firmly on the heights,

23 These are the last words of David: 1

Nb 24:3seq., 15seq. Thus speaks David son of Jesse, thus speaks the man raised to eminence,
the anointed of the God of Jacob,
the singer of the songs of Israel:

Is 59:21 Jr 1:9 The spirit of Yahweh speaks through me, 2
his word is on my tongue;
the God of Jacob has spoken,[b] 3
the Rock of Israel has said to me:

He whose rule is upright on earth, Ps 72:1–6 who rules in the fear of God, 4 is like the morning light at sunrise (on a cloudless morning) making the grass of the earth sparkle after rain. [c]

he has made an eternal covenant with me, 7:11–16

does he not bring to fruition my every victory and desire?

6 But men of Belial he rejects like thorns, Dt 13:14b and then only to burn them to nothing! [e]

David's champions [f] 1 Ch 11:11–47; 27:2–15

8 These are the names of David's champions: Ishbaal the Hachmonite leader of the Three; [g] it was he who brandished his spear over eight hundred men whom he had
9 killed at one time. ·Next, there was Eleazar son of Dodo, the Ahohite, one of the three champions. He was with David at Pas-Dammim when the Philistines [h] mus- 1 S 17:1

11 rallied behind him, although only to plunder. ·Next, there was Shamma son of Elah, the Hararite. The Philistines had mustered at Lehi. There was a field full of 12 lentils there; the people fled from the Philistines, ·but he took his stand in the middle of the field, held it, and cut down the Philistines; and Yahweh brought about a great victory.

16 Bethlehem!' ·At this, the three champions, forcing their way through the Philistine camp, drew water from the well that stands by the gate of Bethlehem and, taking it away, presented it to David. He, however, would not drink any of it, but poured it
17 out as a libation to Yahweh. ·'Yahweh preserve me', he said, 'from doing such a thing! This is the blood of men who went at risk of their lives.' That was why he would not drink. Such were the deeds of these three champions.

‖1 Ch 21:1–5 The census [a]

24 Again, Yahweh's anger was aroused against Israel, and he incited David 1 against them. 'Go,' he said, 'take a census of Israel and Judah.' [b] ·The king 2 said to Joab and the senior army officers [c] who were with him, 'Now, go through all the tribes of Israel from Dan to Beersheba, and take a census of the people; I wish to know the size of the population.' ·Joab said to the king, 'May Yahweh your God 3 multiply the people a hundred times—however many there are—while my lord the king still has eyes to see it, but why should my lord the king be set on this?'
The king nonetheless enforced his order on Joab and the senior officers, and Joab 4 and the senior officers left the king's presence, to take a census of the people of Israel.

They crossed the Jordan and made a start with Aroer and the town in the middle of the valley,[d] then moved on to the Gadites and to Jazer. ·They then went to Gilead and the territory of the Hittites, to Kadesh; they then went to Dan and from Dan cut across to Sidon.[e] ·They then went to the fortress of Tyre and to all the towns of the Hittites and Canaanites ending up in the Negeb of Judah at Beersheba.
Having travelled throughout the country, after nine months and twenty days they returned to Jerusalem.
Joab gave the king the census results for the people; Israel had eight hundred thousand fighting men who could wield a sword, and Judah five hundred thousand.[f]

The pestilence. God's forgiveness

‖Ch 21:7–17

But afterwards David's heart misgave him for having taken a census of the people. 1 S 24:6
David then said to Yahweh, 'I have committed a grave sin by doing this. But now, Yahweh, I beg you to forgive your servant for this fault, for I have acted very foolishly.' ·When, however, David got up next morning, the following message had come from Yahweh to the prophet Gad, David's seer, ·'Go and say to David, 1 S 22:5
"Yahweh says this: I offer you three things; choose which one of them I am to inflict on you." ' ·So Gad went to David and said, 'Which do you prefer: to have three years of famine befall your country; to flee for three months before a pursuing 21:1, 15–17 army;[g] or to have three days of epidemic in your country? Now think, and decide how I am to answer him who sends me.' ·David said to Gad, 'I am very apprehensive . . . Better to fall into Yahweh's hands, since his mercies are great, than to fall into the hands of men!' ·So David chose the epidemic.
It was the time of the wheat harvest. So Yahweh unleashed an epidemic on Israel from that morning until the time determined; plague ravaged the people[h] and, of the people from Dan to Beersheba, seventy thousand died. ·But when the angel Ex 12:23j stretched his hand towards Jerusalem to destroy it, Yahweh felt sorry about the 2 K 19:35 calamity and said to the angel who was destroying the people, 'Enough now! Hold your hand!' The angel of Yahweh was standing by the threshing-floor of Araunah the Jebusite.[i] ·When David saw the angel who was ravaging the people, he said to Yahweh, 'I was the one who sinned. I was the one who acted wrongly. But these, the flock, what have they done? Let your hand lie heavy on me and on my family!'

The building of an altar

‖1 Ch 21:18–28

Gad went to David that day and said, 'Go up and raise an altar to Yahweh on the threshing-floor of Araunah the Jebusite.' ·So, at Gad's bidding, David went up, as

k. 'Thirty' conj.; 'Three' Hebr., as also in v. 22.

l. 'hero' Gk; 'son of a hero' qere; 'son of a living man' ketib. • 'formidable' trans. approx.; Gk reads 'the two sons of Ariel'.

m. 'of great stature' 1 Ch 11:23; 'of (good) looks' Hebr.

n. Possibly information similar to the preceding was originally given about Asahel before the list of the Thirty, which begins with Elhanan. This small group of picked warriors is mentioned only here and presumably consisted of the cream of those who had shared David's adventurous life. The Thirty was possibly constituted as a regular unit during David's stay at Ziklag, see 2:3; 1 S 27:6–28:2; 29:4; 30:1–24.

o. An editorial calculation which seems to include the Thirty (vv. 24b–39) plus Joab (mentioned in v. 37) plus Abishai, Benaiah, Asahel (vv. 18–24a), plus the Three (vv. 8–12).

24 a. The whole ch. forms a pendant to 21:1–14; see 21:1a.

b. The carrying out of what seems to be a divine command comes to be seen by David as a 'sin', v. 10, and is punished by pestilence, vv. 15seq. In ancient Israel everything that happened was attributed to God as first cause. In those days a census was considered impious, because it infringed the prerogatives of God who keeps the register of those who are to live and die, Ex 32:32–33, but compare Ex 30:12.

c. 'officers', see v. 4, 'officer' Hebr.

d. 'made . . . town' Gk; 'bivouacked at Aroer, to the south of the town' Hebr. Aroer, on the River Arnon, marked the southern boundary of Israelite territory in Transjordan, Dt 2:36; Jos 13:9,16. To the west of the Jordan, the boundaries were Dan to the north, Beersheba to the south, vv. 2,6,7,15. Thus the whole territory of Israel was covered. But the text adds Tyre and Sidon and, it seems, Hittite Kadesh, far to the north on the Orontes, which can be justified only by involving Nb 34:7–9; Ezk 47:15–17 and the conquests of David 2 S 8:3–12.

e. 'the territory of the Hittites, to Kadesh', Gk. Luc.; Hebr. corrupt. • 'and from Dan cut across' after the Gk; Hebr. corrupt.

f. Like many similar figures in the OT these are clearly too high. 1 Ch 21:5 makes them higher still. Israel and Judah were counted separately, see 5:5a.

g. 'three years' Gk, Vet. Lat.; 'seven years' Hebr. • 'enemy' conj.; 'enemies' Hebr., but with sing. verb.

h. Following Gk; Hebr. omits 'So David . . . wheat harvest' and 'plague ravaged the people'.

i. The narrative probably fuses two traditions: according to one, Yahweh halts the plague at the gates of Jerusalem out of love for the city, v. 16, and David offers a sacrifice of thanksgiving 'as Yahweh had ordered', v. 19. According to the other, the city is saved by David's prayer and the building of an altar, vv. 17,21,25.

Yahweh had ordered. ·When Araunah looked up and saw the king and his retinue 20 advancing towards him—Araunah was threshing the wheat[j]—Araunah came forward and prostrated himself on the ground at the king's feet. ·'Why has my lord 21 the king come to his servant?' Araunah asked. David replied, 'To buy the threshing-floor from you, to build an altar to Yahweh, so that the plague may be lifted from the people.' ·Araunah said to David, 'Let my lord the king take it and 22 make what offerings he thinks fit. Here are the oxen for the burnt offering, the 1 S 6:14 threshing-sleds[k] and the oxen's yokes for the wood. ·My lord the king's servant[l] 23 1 K 19:21 will give the king everything. And', Araunah said to the king, 'may Yahweh your God accept what you offer!'

'No,' said the king to Araunah, 'I shall give you a price for it; I will not offer 24 Yahweh my God burnt offerings which have cost me nothing.' David bought the threshing-floor and the oxen for fifty shekels of silver.[m] ·David built an altar to 25 21:14 Yahweh and offered burnt offerings and communion sacrifices. Yahweh then took pity on the country and the plague was lifted from Israel.

j. This detail, omitted by Hebr., is restored from 1 Ch 21:20.

k. A board with stones set in the underside, still used in Palestine for threshing.

l. 'My lord the king's servant' conj.; 'Araunah the king' Hebr.

m. Six hundred shekels in gold (15lb, 6.8 kg), according to 1 Ch 21:25. Araunah's threshing-floor lay outside the Davidic and Jebusite city, on the hill dominating it to the north, and was later to be the site of Solomon's Temple, see 5:9f.

THE BOOKS OF THE KINGS
THE FIRST BOOK OF THE KINGS

I: THE DAVIDIC SUCCESSION[a]

Last days of David and activities of Adonijah

1 1 King David was now a very old man, and though wrapped in bedclothes he 2 could not keep warm. ·So his servants said to him, 'Let us find a young girl for my lord the king, to wait on the king and look after him; she will lie close beside 3 you and this will keep my lord the king warm.' ·Having searched for a beautiful girl throughout the territory of Israel, they found Abishag of Shunem and brought her 4 to the king. ·The girl was very beautiful. She looked after the king and waited on 5 him but the king did not have intercourse with her. ·Now Adonijah son of Haggith 2 S 3:4 was growing pretentious and saying, 'I shall be king!' Accordingly, he procured a 6 chariot and team with fifty guards to run ahead of him. ·Never once in his life had 2 S 15:1
his father crossed him by saying, 'Why are you behaving like that?' He was very 7 handsome too; his mother had given birth to him after Absalom. ·He conferred with Joab son of Zeruiah and with the priest Abiathar,[b] who both rallied to 8 Adonijah's cause; ·but neither Zadok the priest, nor Benaiah son of Jehoiada, nor the prophet Nathan, nor Shimei and Rei,[c] nor David's champions, supported Adonijah.
9 One day when Adonijah was sacrificing sheep, oxen and fattened calves at the Sliding Stone which is beside the Fuller's Spring, he invited all his brothers, the 10 royal princes, and all the men of Judah in the king's service; ·but he did not invite the prophet Nathan, or Benaiah, or the champions, or his brother Solomon.

The intrigues of Nathan and Bathsheba

11 Nathan then said to Bathsheba, Solomon's mother, 'Have you not heard that, 2 S 12:24 12 unknown to our lord David, Adonijah son of Haggith has become king? ·Well, this is my advice to you if you want to save your own life and the life of your son 13 Solomon. ·Go straight in to King David and say, "My lord king, did you not make your servant this promise on oath:[d] Your son Solomon is to be king after me; he is the one who is to sit on my throne? How is it, then, that Adonijah is king?" 14 And while you are still there talking to the king, I shall come in after you and confirm what you say.'
15 So Bathsheba went to the king in his room (he was very old and Abishag of

b. Joab, David's nephew and companion of his early days, still commander-in-chief, 2 S 19:14; Abiathar sole survivor of the priests of Nob. 1 S 22:20, and still loyal to David.
c. The factions of Solomon and Adonijah were opposed on personal grounds. Zadok and Abiathar were rivals; Benaiah, captain of the guard, was jealous of Joab, commander-in-chief; Nathan had been God's mouthpiece for David, especially at the time of Solomon's birth, 2 S 12:24–25.
d. This oath has not hitherto been mentioned in the history of David.

Shunem was in attendance on him). ·She knelt, prostrated herself before the king, 16 and the king said, 'What do you want?' ·'My lord,' she replied, 'you swore to your 17 servant by Yahweh your God, "Your son Solomon is to be king after me; he is the one who is to sit on my throne." ·And now here is Adonijah king, and you, my 18 lord king, knowing nothing about it! ·He has sacrificed quantities of oxen, fattened 19 calves and sheep, and invited all the royal princes, the priest Abiathar, and Joab the army commander; but he has not invited your servant Solomon. ·Yet you are 20 the man, my lord king, to whom all Israel looks, to tell them who is to succeed my lord the king. ' ·And when my lord the king falls asleep with his ancestors, Solomon 21 and I shall be made to suffer for this.'

She was still speaking to the king when the prophet Nathan came in. ·The king 22, 23 was told, 'The prophet Nathan is here'; and he came into the king's presence and prostrated himself on his face before the king. ·'My lord king,' said Nathan, 'is 24 this, then, your decree, "Adonijah is to be king after me; he is the one who is to sit on my throne"? ·For he has gone down today and sacrificed quantities of oxen, 25 fattened calves and sheep, and invited all the royal princes, the army commanders, and the priest Abiathar; and they are there now, eating and drinking in his presence and shouting, "Long live King Adonijah!" ·He has not, however, invited me your 26 servant, Zadok the priest, Benaiah son of Jehoiada, or your servant Solomon.
Can it be that this is done with my lord the king's approval and that you have not 27 told those loyal to you who is to succeed to the throne of my lord the king?'

Solomon is consecrated king on David's nomination

King David then spoke. 'Call Bathsheba to me,' he said. And she came into the 28 king's presence and stood before him. ·Then the king swore this oath, 'As Yahweh 29 lives, who has delivered me from all adversity, ·just as I swore to you by Yahweh, 30 God of Israel, that your son Solomon should be king after me and take my place on my throne, so I shall bring it about this very day.' ·Bathsheba knelt down, pros- 31 trated herself on her face before the king and said, 'May my lord King David live forever!' ·Then King David said, 'Summon Zadok the priest, the prophet Nathan 32 1 K 11:11–20 and Benaiah son of Jehoiada.' So they came into the king's presence. ·'Take the 33 royal guard with you,' said the king, 'mount my son Solomon on my own mule and escort him down to Gihon. ·There Zadok the priest and the prophet Nathan are to 34 1 S 9:26n anoint him king of Israel; then sound the trumpet and shout, "Long live King Solomon!" ·Then you are to escort him back, and he is then to assume my throne 35 and be king in place of me, for he is the man whom I have appointed as ruler of Israel and of Judah.' ·Benaiah son of Jehoiada answered the king. 'Amen!' he said. 36
'And may Yahweh, God of my lord the king, confirm it! ·As Yahweh 37 has been with my lord the king, so may he be with Solomon and make his throne even greater than the throne of my lord King David!'

2 S 8:18i Zadok the priest, the prophet Nathan, Benaiah son of Jehoiada, and the Chere- 38 thites and Pelethites then went down; they mounted Solomon on King David's mule and escorted him to Gihon. ·Zadok the priest took the horn of oil from the 39
Ex 30:22d Tent and anointed Solomon. They sounded the trumpet and all the people shouted, 1 S 10:1; 16:1,13 'Long live King Solomon!' ·The people all escorted him back, with pipes playing 40 and loud rejoicing and shouts to split the earth.

Adonijah is afraid

Adonijah and his guests, who had by then finished their meal, all heard the noise. 41 Joab too heard the sound of the trumpet and said, 'What is that noise of uproar in the city?' ·While he was still speaking, Jonathan son of Abiathar the priest arrived. 42 2 S 18:27 'Come in,' Adonijah said, 'you are an honest man, so you must be bringing good news.' ·'The truth is,' Jonathan answered, 'our lord King David has made Solomon 43 king. ·With him, the king sent Zadok the priest, the prophet Nathan, Benaiah son 44 of Jehoiada and the Cherethites and Pelethites; they mounted him on the king's mule, ·and Zadok the priest and the prophet Nathan have anointed him king at 45

Gihon; and they have gone back again with shouts of joy and the city is now in an 46 uproar; that was the noise you heard. •What is more, Solomon is seated on the 47 royal throne. •And further, the king's officers have been to congratulate our lord King David with the words, "May your God make the name of Solomon more glorious than yours, and his throne more exalted than your own!" And the king 48 bowed down on his bed, •and then said, "Blessed be Yahweh, God of Israel, for setting one of my own sons[f] on the throne while I am still alive to see it!" ' 49 At this, all Adonijah's guests, taking fright, got up and made off in their several 50 directions. •Adonijah, in terror of Solomon, got up and ran off to cling to the horns 2:28 Ex 21:13–14; 27:2b 51 of the altar. •Solomon was told, 'You should know that Adonijah is terrified of King Solomon and is now clinging to the horns of the altar, saying, "Let King Solomon first swear to me that he will not have his servant executed." ' 52 'Should he bear himself honourably,' Solomon answered, 'not one hair of his shall 53 fall to the ground; but if he proves difficult, he shall die.' •King Solomon then sent for him to be brought down from the altar; he came and threw himself prostrate before King Solomon; Solomon said to him, 'Go to your house.'

David's testament. His death[a]

1, 2 2 As David's life drew to its close he laid this charge on his son Solomon, •'I am Jos 23:14
3 going the way of all the earth. Be strong and show yourself a man. •Observe Dt 17:18–20 the injunctions of Yahweh your God, following his ways and keeping his laws, his commandments, his ordinances and his decrees, as stands written in the Law of 4 Moses, so that you may be successful in everything you do and undertake, •and Dt 29:8
that Yahweh may fulfil the promise which he made me, "If your sons are careful 2 S 7:11–16 how they behave, and walk loyally before me with all their heart and soul, you will never want for a man on the throne of Israel."
5 'You know too what Joab son of Zeruiah did to me, and what he did to the two commanders of the army of Israel, Abner son of Ner and Amasa son of Jether; 2 S 3:27; 20:10
how he murdered them, shedding the blood of war in time of peace and staining
6 the belt round my waist and the sandals on my feet with the blood of war.[b] •You
7 will be wise not to let his grey head go down to Sheol in peace. •As regards the sons Nb 16:33f of Barzillai of Gilead, treat them with faithful love, let them be among those who eat at your table, for they were as kind to me when I was fleeing from your brother 2 S 17:27seq.; 19:32seq.
8 Absalom. •You also have with you Shimei son of Gera, the Benjaminite from •2 S 16:5seq.
Bahurim. He called down a terrible curse on me the day I left for Mahanaim, but he came down to meet me at the Jordan and I swore to him by Yahweh that I would 2 S 19:19seq.
9 not put him to death.[c] •But you,[d] you must not let him go unpunished; you are a wise man and will know how to deal with him, to bring his grey head down to Sheol in blood.'
10 So David fell asleep with his ancestors and was buried in the City of David. 2 S 5:9f
11 David was king of Israel for a period of forty years: he reigned at Hebron for seven ‖1 Ch 29:26–27 years, and in Jerusalem for thirty-three.

The death of Adonijah

12 Solomon then sat on the throne of David, and his sovereignty was securely established.

e. The order of succession was not yet legally fixed by statute. Saul and David had been the choice of God and of the people. Primogeniture did not of itself confer sufficient title and the king himself was expected to choose between his sons. David not only chooses Solomon but actually transfers the royal authority by the ritual he prescribes. vv. 33–35.

f. 'of my own sons' Gk; Hebr. omits.

2 a. This 'testament' by which Solomon is appointed to execute vengeance on David's personal enemies reflects the ideas of this period of the OT on blood-revenge and the lasting efficacy of the curse, see v. 8. vv. 3–4 are an addition, in the deuteronomic style, to the original narrative.

b. End of the verse corrected according to the versions; Hebr. corrupt. • Thus by his treachery Joab brought the king's peacetime administration into disrepute and laying David open to the charge of complicity, 2 S 16:7, and made him and his descendants liable to blood-vengeance until the real culprit had been killed.

c. Shimei's curse will lie heavy on David's descendants since a curse, like a blessing, retains its efficacy. Only by being turned against its originator can it be undone, vv. 44–45. David's oath has prevented him from doing this, but Solomon is free.

d. 'But you' Vulg.; 'Now' Hebr.

Adonijah son of Haggith went to Bathsheba mother of Solomon. 'Do you bring 13 peace?' she asked. He replied, 'Yes, peace.' ·Then he said, 'I have something to 14 say to you.' 'Say on,' she replied. ·'You know', he said, 'that the kingdom should 15
Gn 4:5c have come to me, [e] and that all Israel expected me to be king; but the crown eluded me and fell to my brother, since it came to him from Yahweh. ·Now I have one 16 request to make you; do not refuse me.' 'Go on,' she said. ·He went on, 'Please 17 ask King Solomon—for he will not refuse you—to give me Abishag of Shunem in marriage.' ·'Very well,' Bathsheba replied, 'I shall speak to the king about you.' 18
So Bathsheba went to King Solomon to speak to him about Adonijah; the king 19 got up to meet her and bowed before her; he then sat down on his throne; a seat was brought for the king's mother, and she sat down on his right. ·She said, 'I have 20 one small request to make you; do not refuse me.' 'Mother,' the king replied,
'make your request, for I shall not refuse you.' ·'Let Abishag of Shunem', she said, 21
'be given in marriage to your brother Adonijah.' ·King Solomon replied to his 22 mother, 'And why do you request Abishag of Shunem for Adonijah? You might as well request the kingdom for him, [f] since he is my elder brother and Abiathar the priest and Joab son of Zeruiah are on his side.' ·And King Solomon swore by 23 Rt 1:17f Yahweh: 'May God bring unnameable ills on me, and worse ills, too,' he said, 'if Adonijah does not pay for these words of his with his life! ·As Yahweh lives who 24 has set me securely on the throne of my father David, and who, as he promised,
2 S 7:11–16 has given [g] him a dynasty, Adonijah shall be put to death this very day.'
And King Solomon commissioned Benaiah son of Jehoiada to strike him down, 25 and that was how he died.

The fate of Abiathar and Joab

1 S 22:20–23h Jr 1:1 As for Abiathar the priest, the king said to him, 'Go to Anathoth [h] to your estate. 26
You deserve to die, but I am not going to put you to death now, since you carried the ark of Yahweh in the presence of my father David and shared all my father's hardships.' ·Solomon deprived Abiathar of the priesthood of Yahweh, thus fulfil- 27 1 S 2:30–36 ling the prophecy which Yahweh had uttered against the House of Eli at Shiloh.
When the news reached Joab—for Joab had lent his support to Adonijah, 28 though he had not supported Absalom—he fled to the Tent of Yahweh and clung 1:50 Ex 27:2b to the horns of the altar. ·King Solomon was told, 'Joab has fled to the Tent of 29 Yahweh; he is there beside the altar.' On this, Solomon sent [i] word to Joab, 'What reason did you have for fleeing to the altar?' Joab replied, 'I was afraid of you and fled to Yahweh.' Solomon then sent Benaiah son of Jehoiada. 'Go', he said, 'and strike him down.' ·Accordingly Benaiah went to the Tent of Yahweh. 'By order of 30 Ex 21:14 the king,' he said, 'come out!' 'No,' he said, 'I will die here.' [j] So Benaiah brought word back to the king, 'This is what Joab said, and the answer he gave me.' ·'Do as 31 he says,' the king replied. 'Strike him down and bury him, and so rid me and my 2:5b family today of the innocent blood which Joab has shed. ·Yahweh will bring his 32 blood down on his own head, because he struck down two more upright and better men than he, and, without my father David's knowledge, put to the sword Abner son of Ner, commander of the army of Israel, and Amasa son of Jether, commander of the army of Judah. ·May their blood come down on the head of Joab and his 33 descendants for ever, but may David, his descendants, his dynasty, his throne, have peace for ever from Yahweh.' ·Whereupon Benaiah son of Jehoiada went 34 out, struck Joab down and put him to death; he was buried at his home in the desert. ·In his place as head of the army the king appointed Benaiah son of 35
Jehoiada and, in place of Abiathar, the priest Zadok.

The disobedience and death of Shimei [k]

The king had Shimei summoned to him. 'Build yourself a house in Jerusalem,' he 36 told him. 'You are to live there; do not leave it to go anywhere at all. ·The day you 37 go out and cross the ravine of the Kidron, be sure you will certainly die. Your blood will be on your own head.' ·'That is a fair demand,' Shimei replied to the 38 king, 'your servant will do as my lord the king orders.' And for a long time Shimei lived in Jerusalem.

39 But when three years had gone by, it happened that two of Shimei's slaves ran away to Achish son of Maacah, king of Gath; Shimei was told, 'Your slaves are in 1 S 21:11; 27:2seq.
40 Gath.' ·On this, Shimei got up and saddled his donkey and went to Akish at Gath to find his slaves. He went off and brought his slaves back from Gath.
41 Solomon was informed that Shimei had left Jerusalem for Gath and come back again.
42 The king had Shimei summoned to him. 'Did I not make you swear by Yahweh,' he said, 'and did I not warn you, "The day you leave to go anywhere at all, be sure 43 you will certainly die"? To which you replied, "That is a fair demand." ·Why did 44 you not keep the oath to Yahweh and the order which I imposed on you?' ·The king then said to Shimei, 'You know well all the evil you did to my father David.
45 Yahweh is about to bring your wickedness down on your own head. ·But may King Solomon be blessed,[l] and may the throne of David be kept secure before Yahweh 46 for ever!' ·The king gave orders to Benaiah son of Jehoiada; he went out and struck Shimei down; and that was how he died. And now the kingdom was securely in Solomon's hands.

II: SOLOMON IN ALL HIS GLORY

A: SOLOMON THE SAGE

Introduction

1 3 Solomon became the son-in-law of Pharaoh[a] king of Egypt; he married Phar- 7:8; 9:16seq.,24; 2 S 5:9f aoh's daughter, and took her to the City of David until he could complete the building of his palace, the Temple of Yahweh and the ramparts of Jerusalem.
2 The people, however, were still sacrificing on the high places, because at that time 1 S 9:12f
3 a dwelling-place for the name of Yahweh had not yet been built. ·Solomon loved Yahweh: he followed the precepts of his father David, except that he offered sacrifice and incense on the high places.

Solomon's dream at Gibeon

‖2 Ch 1:3–12; Ws 8:19–9:12; Si 47:14

4 The king went to Gibeon to sacrifice there, since that was the principal high place—
5 Solomon presented a thousand burnt offerings on that altar. ·At Gibeon Yahweh appeared to Solomon in a dream[b] during the night. God said, 'Ask what you would 6 like me to give you.' ·Solomon replied, 'You showed most faithful love to your servant David, my father, when he lived his life before you in faithfulness and uprightness and integrity of heart; you have continued this most faithful love to 7 him by allowing a son of his to sit on his throne today. ·Now, Yahweh my God, you have made your servant king in succession to David my father. But I am a very 8 young man, unskilled in leadership. ·And here is your servant, surrounded with your people whom you have chosen, a people so numerous that its number cannot 4:20

g. 'given him' conj.; 'given me' Hebr.

h. Levitical town near Jerusalem.

i. Hebr. jumps from this 'Solomon sent' to the second 'sent' later in the v.; Gk preserves the full text.

j. Benaiah tries to adopt the procedure of Ex 21:14, which is precisely Joab's case, 'If a man kills his neighbour treacherously, you are to take him even from my altar and put him to death.' Joab, however, is determined that Solomon shall incur the odium of profanation.

k. On pain of death, Solomon orders Shimei to take up residence in Jerusalem and binds him with an oath. Having broken his oath, Shimei is 'justly' executed. But Solomon reveals, v. 44, that the real reason is the curse he once pronounced against David.

l. As in v. 33, Solomon immediately adds a blessing so that his curse may not recoil on himself.

3 a. Probably Psusennis, last king of the 21st Dynasty. • The 'City of David': the part of Jerusalem that had been the old Jebusite town, see 2 S 5:9f.

b. Before the prophetic period, dreams were one of God's main channels of communication with humanity, see Gn 20:3; 28; 31:11, 24; 37:5d; Nb 12:6.

Pr 2:6–9 be counted or reckoned. ·So give your servant a heart to understand[c] how to 9 govern your people, how to discern between good and evil, for how could one otherwise govern such a great people as yours?' ·It pleased Yahweh that Solomon 10 should have asked for this. ·'Since you have asked for this,' God said, 'and not 11 asked for long life for yourself or riches or the lives of your enemies but have asked for a discerning judgement for yourself, ·here and now I do what you ask. I give 12 Qo 1:16 Si 47:14 you a heart wise and shrewd as no one has had before and no one will have after Mt 6:33 you. ·What you have not asked I shall give you too: such riches and glory as no 13
Qo 2:4–10 Dt 5:33 other king can match.[d] ·And I shall give you a long life, if you follow my ways, 14
Pr 3:1–2 keeping my laws and commandments, as your father David followed them.'
Then Solomon woke up; it had been a dream. He returned to Jerusalem and stood 15 Lv 1:1b; 3:1a before the ark of the covenant of Yahweh; he presented burnt offerings and communion sacrifices and held a banquet for all those in his service.

The judgement of Solomon

Later two prostitutes came to the king and stood before him. ·'If it please you, 16, 17 my lord,' one of the women said, 'this woman and I live in the same house, and while she was in the house I gave birth to a child. ·Now it happened on the third 18 day after my delivery that this woman also gave birth to a child. We were alone together; there was no one else in the house with us; just the two of us in the house.
Now one night this woman's son died; she overlaid him. ·And in the middle of the 19, 20 night she got up and took my son from beside me while your servant was asleep;
she took him in her arms and put her own dead son in mine. ·When I got up[e] to 21 suckle my child, there he was, dead. But in the morning I looked at him carefully, and he was not the child I had borne at all.' ·Then the other woman spoke. 'That is 22 not true! My son is the live one, yours is the dead one'; and the first retorted, 'That is not true! Your son is the dead one, mine is the live one.' And so they wrangled before the king. ·'This one says,' the king observed, ' "My son is the one who is 23 alive; your son is dead," while the other says, "That is not true! Your son is the dead one, mine is the live one." ·Bring me a sword,' said the king; and a sword was 24 brought into the king's presence. ·'Cut the living child in two,' the king said, 'and 25 give half to one, half to the other.' ·At this the woman who was the mother of the 26 living child addressed the king, for she felt acutely for her son. 'I beg you, my lord,' she said, 'let them give her the live child; on no account let them kill him!' But the other said, 'He shall belong to neither of us. Cut him in half!' ·Then the king gave 27 his decision. 'Give the live child to the first woman,' he said, 'and do not kill him.
She is his mother.' ·All Israel came to hear of the judgement which the king had 28 pronounced and held the king in awe, recognising that he possessed divine wisdom for dispensing justice.[f]

Solomon's high officials

4 King Solomon was king of all Israel, ·and these were his high officials:[a] 1, 2
Azariah son of Zadok, priest;
Elihaph and Ahijah sons of Shisha, secretaries; 3
Jehoshaphat son of Ahilud, herald.
(Benaiah son of Jehoiada, commander of the army. 4 Zadok and Abiathar, priests);[b]
4:7seq. Azariah son of Nathan, chief administrator; 5
Zabud son of Nathan, Friend of the King;[c]
Ahishar, master of the palace; 6
Eliab son of Joab, commander of the army;[d]
5:27 Adoram son of Abda, in charge of forced labour.

Solomon's administrators

Solomon had twelve administrators[e] for all Israel who saw to the provisioning of 7 the king and his household; each had to provide for one month in the year.

8 These are their names:[f]
Son of Hur, in the mountain country of Ephraim.
9 Son of Deker, in Makaz, Shaalbim, Beth-Shemesh, Aijalon, Beth-Hanan.
10 Son of Hesed, in Arubboth; his district was Socoh and the whole territory of Hepher.
11 Son of Abinadab, all the Slopes of Dor. Tabaath Solomon's daughter was his wife.
12 Baana son of Ahilud, in Taanach and Megiddo as far as the other side of Jokmeam, and all Beth-Shean below Jezreel, from Beth-Shean as far as Abel-Meholah by Zarethan.[g]
13 Son of Geber, in Ramoth-Gilead: his district was the Encampments of Jair son of Manasseh, which are in Gilead; he had the region of Argob, which is in Bashan: sixty fortified towns, walled and with bolts of bronze.
14 Ahinadab son of Iddo, in Mahanaim.
15 Ahimaaz in Naphtali; he too married a daughter of Solomon, Basemath.
16 Baana son of Hushai, in Asher and in the highlands.[h]
17 Jehoshaphat son of Paruah, in Issachar.
18 Shimei son of Ela, in Benjamin.
19 Geber son of Uri, in the territory of Gad, the territory of Sihon king of the Amorites and of Og king of Bashan.
In addition, there was one administrator in the country.[i]

4:27 7 5 [a]These administrators provided the food for Solomon and for all those who were admitted by him to the royal table,[b] each for the period of a month; they 28 8 ensured that nothing was wanting. ·They also provided the barley and straw for the horses and draught animals, where required, each according to the quota 22 2 demanded of him. ·The daily provisions for Solomon were: thirty measures of fine
23 3 flour and sixty measures of meal, ·ten fattened oxen, twenty free-grazing oxen, one 24 4 hundred sheep, besides deer and gazelles, roebucks and fattened poultry. ·For he was master of all Transeuphrates[c]—of all the kings of Transeuphrates from Tiph-25 5 sah to Gaza—and he enjoyed peace on all his frontiers. ·Judah and Israel lived in security, everyone under his vine and his fig tree, from Dan to Beersheba, Si 47:13 throughout the lifetime of Solomon.

26 20 4 Judah and Israel were numerous, as numerous as the sand on the sea-shore;
they ate and drank and were happy. Qo 3:12–13

c. Solomon asks for practical wisdom, not in his own interest but in that of the nation. see 5:13g; Ex 31:3a.

d. Hebr. adds 'all your life' influenced by v. 14; Gk omits.

e. Hebr. adds 'in the morning' influenced by what follows.

f. Throughout the ancient East, the first of all royal qualities was fair government. For Israel, see Ps 72:1–2; Pr 16:12; 25:5; 29:14; Is 9:6. Solomon asked for this quality, v. 9, God granted it, vv. 11–12, and the story in vv. 16–28 shows it in action.

4 a. The herald (lit. 'remembrancer') was head of the diplomatic service and intermediary between king and people. The master of the palace was the prime minister, the 'vizir' of oriental courts. The title 'Friend of the King' was one of honour rather than of jurisdiction. The priest, chief representative of the priestly class, ranked with the royal officials. Solomon retained David's recorder and appointed the sons of his priest and his secretary, 2 S 8:16seq.; 20:23seq. • The names Elihaph and Adoram are emendations; Hebr. 'Elihoreph' and 'Adoniram'.

b. Gloss, the second part of which contradicts v. 2 and 2:26seq.

c. Before 'Friend of the King', we omit 'priest' with some Gk MSS and Vet. Lat.

d. The name and title of the commander-in-chief are missing in Hebr. and are restored from Gk.

e. The office was created by Solomon; it concerned the raising of the labour force and the application of taxes to public works. The 12 districts fall into three groups; first, the territory of Ephraim and Manasseh, sons of Joseph, v. 8, with the conquered or recaptured Canaanite towns, vv. 9–12, and the annexed districts of Transjordan, vv. 13–14; second, the northern tribes, vv. 15–17; third, Benjamin, v. 18, and Gad, v. 19. There was a special arrangement for Judah, v. 19 and note.

f. This document from the state archives was damaged at the edges; this explains why, for the first administrators, only their fathers' names are preserved. The place-names Makaz and Aijalon, v. 9, are emendations. (In v. 11 'Tabaath' follows Gk; Hebr. reads 'Tapath'.)

g. Our translation corrects the confused geographical order.

h. lit. 'ascents' ma'alot following Gk; 'to Baaloth' Hebr., the hilly country between Acre and Tyre.

i. 'Gad' Gk; 'Gilead' Hebr. • 'The country' without specification, is the royal territory of Judah as opposed to the provinces of Israel. Judah, therefore, had a special administration, emphasising the dual nature of Solomon's kingdom.

5 a. The translation follows the order of the Gk which gives the list of administrators in logical order. The Hebr. order has been upset by glosses; v. 4 dates, at the earliest, from the Exile; the remainder, up to the end of the paragraph, is late and missing from Gk.

b. Not only the royal family and its dependants, but all the servants, officials, regular troops.

c. Official title for the area between the Euphrates and the Mediterranean during the Persian period, when this verse was added.

5 Solomon was overlord of all the kingdoms from the River[d] to the territory of the Philistines and the Egyptian border. They brought tribute and served him

B: SOLOMON THE BUILDER

Preparations for building the Temple

Hiram king of Tyre sent an embassy to Solomon, having learnt that he had been anointed king in succession to his father and because Hiram had always been a
2 S 5:11
||2 Ch 2:2–3 friend of David. ·And Solomon sent this message to Hiram, ·'You are aware that my father David was unable to build a temple for the name of Yahweh his God, on account of the wars waged on him from every side, until Yahweh put his enemies under the soles of his feet. ·But now Yahweh my God has given me peace on every side: not one enemy, no calamities. ·I propose, then, to build a temple for the name of Yahweh my God, in accordance with what Yahweh told my father David,
2 S 7:12–13 "Your son whom I shall place on your throne to succeed you will be the man to build a temple for my name." ·So now have cedars of Lebanon cut down for me; my servants will work with your servants, and I shall pay for the hire of your servants at whatever rate you fix. As you know, we have no one as skilled in felling
||2 Ch 2:10–11 trees as the Sidonians.'[i] ·When Hiram heard what Solomon had said, he was delighted. 'Now blessed be Yahweh,' he said, 'who has given David a wise son to rule over this great people!' ·And Hiram sent word to Solomon, 'I have received
||2 Ch 2:15 your message. For my part, I shall supply you with all you require in the way of cedar wood and juniper. ·Your servants will bring these down from Lebanon to the sea, and I shall have them towed by sea to any place you name; I shall discharge them there, and you will take them over. For your part, you will see to the provisioning of my household as I desire.' ·So Hiram provided Solomon with all
||2 Ch 2:9 the cedar wood and juniper he wanted ·while Solomon gave Hiram twenty thousand kor of wheat to feed his household, and twenty thousand kor[j] of pure oil. Solomon gave Hiram this every year. ·Yahweh gave Solomon wisdom as he had promised him; good relations persisted between Solomon and Hiram, and the two of them concluded a treaty.

The Temple building

||2 Ch 3:1–7

6 In the four hundred and eightieth year after the Israelites came out of Egypt,[a] in the fourth year of Solomon's reign over Israel, in the month of Ziv, which is 2 the second month, he began building the Temple of Yahweh. ·The temple[b] which King Solomon built for Yahweh was sixty cubits long, twenty cubits wide and 3 twenty-five high.[c] ·The portico in front of the Hekal of the Temple was twenty cubits long across the width of the Temple and ten cubits wide along the length of 4 the Temple. ·He made windows for the Temple with frames and latticework.[d]
5 He also built an annex against the Temple wall,[e] right round the Hekal and Debir.
6 He built lateral storeys all round; ·the lowest lateral storey[f] was five cubits wide, the middle one six cubits, and the third seven cubits, for he had made the outside of the Temple wall correspondingly stepped back all round, so that the annex was 7 not attached to the Temple walls. ·(The building of the Temple was done with quarry-dressed stone; no sound of hammer or pick or any iron tool was to be heard 8 in the Temple while it was being built.) ·The entrance to the lowest storey was at the right-hand corner of the Temple; access to the middle storey was by a spiral 9 staircase, and so from the middle storey to the third. ·Having finished building the 10 Temple, he roofed the Temple with a coffered ceiling[g] of cedar wood. ·Round the outside of the Temple he then built the annex which was five cubits high and was 11 joined to the Temple by cedar-wood beams. ·And the word of Yahweh came to 12 Solomon, ·'With regard to this temple which you are now building, if you follow 2 S 7:11–16 my statutes and obey my ordinances and faithfully follow my commandments, I 13 shall fulfil the promise which I made about you to your father David. ·And I shall make my home among the Israelites and never forsake Israel my people.'
14 Solomon finished building the Temple.

Interior furnishings. The Holy of Holies

||2 Ch 3:8–9

15 He lined the inside of the Temple walls with panels of cedar wood—panelling them on the inside from the floor of the Temple to the beams of the ceiling—and laid the 16 floor of the Temple with juniper planks. ·The twenty cubits measured from the end of the Temple he built of cedar planks from the floor to the beams, and this 17 part was reserved[h] as the Debir, the Holy of Holies. ·The Temple measured forty Ex 26:33e 18 cubits—the Hekal—in front of the Debir.[i] ·There was cedar wood round the inside of the Temple, ornamentally carved with gourds and rosettes; all was cedar wood, 19 with no stone showing. ·In the inner part of the Temple he designed a Debir, to 20 contain the ark of the covenant of Yahweh. ·The Debir was twenty cubits long, twenty cubits wide, and twenty high, and he overlaid it on the inside with pure

6 a. According to a chronological system by which the tabernacle, Solomon's Temple, and the post-exilic Temple, were reckoned equidistant in time. In fact the date was about 960 BC.

b. The Temple was an oblong building consisting of three successive compartments: the Portico or ulam; the great Chamber for worship or hekal, later called the Holy (Place); and the Sanctuary or debir, i.e. back room, later called the Holy of Holies, i.e. Holiest (Place), containing the ark of the covenant, 6:19. The difference in height between the hekal and the debir (6:2,10), indicates that the floor of the debir was raised to form a kind of rostrum for the ark. The debir was presumably separated from the hekal by a partition. Three outer walls of the Temple sustained a low three-storey building (6:10). Compare the description of the tabernacle in the desert, Ex 26–36, and that of the future Temple in Ezk 40–42.

c. 'twenty-five' Gk; 'thirty' Hebr. Information concerning ancient weights and measures will be found in the Tables of measures and money.

Ex 25:18i
||2 Ch 3:10–13

The great winged creatures

In the Debir he made two great winged creatures of wild-olive wood[m] . . .It was 23 ten cubits high. •One winged creature's wing was five cubits long and the other 24 wing five cubits: ten cubits from wing tip to wing tip. •The other winged creature 25 also measured ten cubits; both had the same measurements and the same shape.
The height of one was the same as the other's. •He placed them in the middle of 26, 27
the inner chamber; their wings were spread out so that the wing of one touched one of the walls and the wing of the other touched the other wall, while their wings met in the middle of the chamber wing to wing. •And he overlaid them with gold. 28
All round the Temple walls he carved figures of winged creatures, palm trees and 29 rosettes, both inside and outside.[n] •He overlaid the floor of the Temple with gold, 30 both inside and outside.

The doors.[o] The court

He made the door of the Debir with uprights of wild-olive wood, and door jambs 31 with five indented sections, •and the two leaves of wild-olive wood. He carved 32 figures of great winged creatures, palm trees and rosettes which he overlaid with gold, and he gilded winged creatures and palm trees. •Similarly, he made uprights 33 of wild-olive wood for the door of the Hekal, and door jambs with four indented sections, •and the two leaves of juniper: one leaf had two ribs binding it, and the 34 other had two ribs binding it. •He carved winged creatures, palm trees and rosettes, 35 which he overlaid with gold laid evenly over the carvings.

He built the wall of the inner court[p] in three courses of dressed stone and one 36 course of cedar beams.[q]

The date

In the fourth year, in the month of Ziv, the foundations of the Temple were laid; 37 in the eleventh year, in the month of Bul—that is, the eighth month—the Temple 38 was completed exactly as it had been planned and designed. Solomon took seven years to build it.

Solomon's palace[a]

7 As regards his palace, Solomon spent thirteen years on it before the building 1 was completed. •He built the House of the Forest of Lebanon,[b] a hundred 2 cubits long, fifty cubits wide, and thirty cubits high, on four rows of cedar-wood pillars, •with lengths of cedar wood laid horizontally on the pillars. The upper part 3 was panelled with cedar right down to the tie-beams on forty-five pillars, fifteen in each row.[c] •There were three rows of window-frames, with the windows corres- 4 ponding to one another at three levels. •All the doorways and windows were 5 rectangular, with the windows corresponding to one another at three levels. •He 6 also made the Colonnade, fifty cubits long and thirty cubits broad, with a cornice in front.[d] •He also made the Hall of the Throne where he used to dispense justice, 7 that is, the Hall of Justice; it was panelled in cedar from floor to beams.[e] •His own 8 living quarters, in the other court and inwards from the Hall, were of the same 3:1a construction. And there was a house similar to this Hall for Pharaoh's daughter whom he had taken in marriage.

All these buildings were of special stones cut to measure, trimmed on the inner 9 and outer sides with the saw, from the foundations to the coping[f]—•the founda- 10 tions were of special stones, huge stones, of ten and eight cubits, •and, above 11 these, special stones, cut to measure, and cedar wood—•and, on the outside, the 12
||2 Ch 4:9 great court had three courses of dressed stone round it and one course of cedar beams; so also had the inner court of the Temple of Yahweh and the vestibule of the Temple.

Hiram, the bronzeworker

‖2 Ch 2:12–14

13, 14 King Solomon sent for Hiram of Tyre; •he was the son of a widow of the tribe of Naphtali, but his father had been a Tyrian, a bronzeworker. He was a highly intelligent craftsman, skilled in all types of bronzework. He came to King Solomon Ex 35:30–35 and did all this work for him.

The bronze pillars

‖2 Ch 3:15–17

15 He cast the two bronze pillars;[g] the height of one pillar was eighteen cubits, and a cord twelve cubits long gave the measurement of its girth; so also was the second
16 pillar. •He made two capitals of cast bronze for the tops of the pillars; the height
17 of one capital was five cubits, and the height of the other five cubits.•[h] He made two sets of filigree to cover the moulding of the two capitals surmounting the 18 pillars, one filigree for one capital and one filigree for the other. •He also made 19b pomegranates: two rows of them round each filigree, •four hundred in all, 20 applied on the raised moulding behind the filigree; there were two hundred 19a pomegranates round one capital and the same round the other capital. •The 21 capitals surrounding the pillars were lily-shaped. •He erected the pillars in front of the portico of the Temple, he erected the right-hand pillar and named it Jachin; he 22 erected the left-hand pillar and named it Boaz.[i] •[j] Thus, the work on the pillars was completed.

The bronze Sea

‖2 Ch 4:2–5

23 He made the Sea[k] of cast metal, ten cubits from rim to rim, circular in shape and five cubits high; a cord thirty cubits long gave the measurement of its girth.
24 Under its rim and completely encircling it were gourds surrounding the Sea; over a length of thirty[l] cubits the gourds were in two rows, of one and the same casting 25 with the rest. •It rested on twelve oxen, three facing north, three facing west, three facing south, three facing east; on these, their hindquarters all turned inwards, 26 stood the Sea. •It was a hand's breadth in thickness, and its rim was shaped like the rim of a cup—lily-shaped. It could hold two thousand measures.[l]

The wheeled stands and the bronze basins[m]

27 He made the ten bronze stands; each stand was four cubits long, four cubits wide, 28 and three high. •They were designed as follows; they had an undercarriage and 29 crosspieces to the undercarriage. •On the crosspieces of the undercarriage were lions and bulls and winged creatures, and on top of the undercarriage was a 30 support; under the lions and oxen there were scrolls in the style of. . .•Each stand had four bronze wheels with bronze axles; its four feet had shoulderings under the 31 basin, and the shoulderings were cast. . .•Its mouth measured one and a half cubits

j. The altar of incense, see Ex 30:1a.

k. The Hebr. has some extra words at the beginning of v. 21 but the sense is uncertain.

l. Hebr. adds 'and he plated the whole altar of the Debir with gold'; Gk omits.

m. One or two words have dropped out of the text.

n. Here, as in v. 30, 'inside' (conj., Hebr. uncertain) means the Debir, or inner Temple, v. 27; 'outside' means the Hekal. The two vv. are additions.

o. The description is hard to understand. The text seems to have been corrected and the meaning of several technical terms is uncertain.

p. The Temple court itself as distinct from the great court, 7:12, surrounding Temple and palace.

q. The beams performed a stabilising function. The superstructure was probably made of brick.

b. A great pillared hall; the columns were of cedar. It served as a guard-room, see 10:17, 21, and as an ante-chamber for audience with the king. It had a vestibule, v. 6, and communicated with the royal apartments, v. 8 and with the throne room, v. 7.

c. Inconsistency here. Possibly the numbers should be transposed to v. 4, but the sense of vv. 4–5 is itself in doubt.

d. 'cornice' conj. End of v. doubtful.

e. 'to beams' Syr.; Hebr. repeats 'floor'.

f. The text adds 'and on the outside as far as the great court', corrupted doublet of the end of v. 12.

g. These two columns stood in front of the porch of the Temple, one on each side of the entrance.

h. The text of vv. 17–20 is disordered and in places corrupt. Restoration conjectural.

i. The two names are obscure, possibly meaning 'it is firm' and 'it is strong'.

j. At the beginning of v., Hebr. repeats v. 19[a].

k. A supply of water for sacred uses.

l. 'thirty' conj.; 'ten' Hebr.

m. Text corrupt and intepretation difficult. (The words at the end of vv. 29, 30, 36 are unintelligible.) The stands were quadrangular and surmounted by a rounded support to hold the bowl. The original word for 'measures' is bat: a bat was 45 litres (10 gallons UK, 12 gallons USA).

from where the shoulderings met to the top; its mouth was round like a stand for a vessel, and on the mouth there were engravings too; the crosspieces, however, were rectangular and not round. ·The four wheels were under the crosspieces. The 32 axles of the wheels were inside the stands: the height of the wheels was one and a half cubits. ·The wheels were designed like chariot wheels: their axles, felloes, 33 spokes and naves had all been cast. ·There were four shoulderings at the four 34 corners of each stand: the stand and the shoulderings were all of a piece. ·At the 35 top of the stand there was a support, circular in shape and half a cubit high; and on top of the stand there were lugs. The crosspieces were of a piece with the stand.
On the bands he engraved winged creatures and lions and palm leaves. . . and 36 scrolls right round. ·He made the ten stands like this: the same casting and the 37 same measurements for all.

‖2 Ch 4:6 He made ten bronze basins; each basin held forty measures and each basin 38 measured four cubits, one basin to each of the ten stands. ·He arranged the stands, 39 five on the right-hand side of the Temple, five on the left-hand side of the Temple;
‖2 Ch 4:10 the Sea he placed on the right-hand side of the Temple, to the south east.

‖2 Ch 4:11–18 The utensils. Summary

Hiram made the ash containers,[n] the scoops and the sprinkling bowls. He finished 40 all the work that he did for King Solomon on the Temple of Yahweh:

Two pillars; the two mouldings of the capitals surrounding the pillars; the two 41 sets of filigree to cover the two mouldings of the capitals surmounting the pillars;
the four hundred pomegranates for the two sets of filigree—two rows of pomegran- 42
ates for each set of filigree;[o]

the ten stands and the ten basins on the stands; 43

the one Sea and the twelve oxen beneath the Sea; 44

the ash containers, the scoops, and sprinkling bowls. 45

All these objects made by Hiram for King Solomon for the Temple of Yahweh were of burnished bronze. ·He made them by the process of sand casting,[p] in the 46 plain of the Jordan between Succoth and Zarethan. ··[q] There were so many of 47 them, that the weight of the bronze was never calculated.

Solomon made all the objects designed for the Temple of Yahweh: the golden 48

the incense ladles and the pans, of real gold; the door panels—for the inner shrine—that is, the Holy of Holies—and for the Hekal, of gold[s].

‖2 Ch 5:1 Thus all the work done by King Solomon for the Temple of Yahweh was 51

n. 'ash containers' some MSS, GK; 'basins' Hebr.

o. Hebr. has a doublet of v. 41 here, beginning 'to cover the two mouldings'.

p. 'He' Gk; 'the king' Hebr. • Succoth and Zarethan on the east bank of the Jordan are possibly modern Tell Akhsas and Tell es-Saidiyah.

q. Hebr. adds 'Solomon put all the objects', doublet of v. 48.

r. The altar of incense, see 6:20–21. • Emended following Gk and in line with v. 47 Hebr.; 'Solomon made all the objects' Hebr.

s. The end of the verse is redundant in Hebr.

8 a. Hebr. adds 'all the tribal chiefs and all the heads of families of the Israelites before King Solomon', omitted by some Gk MSS.

b. Ethanim was the month of the Canaanite calendar corresponding to the 7th month of the later Israelite one, as the gloss explains. The (pre-eminent) feast, mentioned here, was the feast of Shelters, see Ex 23:14d.

c. At the beginning, Hebr. reads 'all the elders of Israel came', omitted by Gk.

d. At the beginning, Hebr. reads, 'They transported the ark of Yahweh', and at the end, 'the priests and Levites transported them', omitted by some Gk MSS. This tent was the one erected by David to shelter the ark, 1:39; 2 S 7:8. A glossator calls it 'the Tent of Meeting', like the desert tent constructed by Moses, Ex 25, of which no more is heard once the Israelites had crossed the Jordan Jos 3–4.

e. 'all Israel with him' Gk; 'the whole community of Israel assembled near him' Hebr.

f. Transposition required by the sense; some Gk MSS omit.

g. 'the tablets of the covenant' Gk; Hebr. omits.

h. The cloud, see Ex 13:21–22h; 19:16g, was the visible manifestation of the presence of Yahweh who now took possession of his sanctuary.

i. This ancient poem, certainly authentic, occurs in the ancient Gk versions after 8:53 and with an extra line, 'Yahweh has set the sun firm in the heavens.' Though master of the universe and wrapped in mystery, Yahweh now has a dwelling-place on earth in the midst of his people Israel. Hence the peculiar significance of the Temple in Israelite religious thought. This longer form must be original; it is preserved, says the Gk, in the Book of Song (or Jasher).

j. 'The Name' of Yahweh dwells in the Temple in which Yahweh himself cannot be confined, see the insertion of v. 27, which excludes the naïve interpretation that God himself resides in the Temple. Nonetheless, a name is a person's true expression and representative, and where 'the Name of Yahweh' is, God is present in a very special way, though not in any exclusive sense.

k. The author here develops, in the manner of Dt, ideas contained in the discourse of vv. 15–21. He begins with the principle of mutual fidelity, v. 23; God's kindness to his people flows from the covenant concluded on Mt Sinai, but is conditional upon their faithfulness; in this it contained the whole theology of the OT. Then follow two particular applications: Yahweh has kept his promise concerning the Temple, v. 24; may he also keep it as regards the perpetuity of the dynasty, v. 25.

Dt 4:39;7:9 God of Israel, there is no god like you in heaven above or on earth beneath, as loyal to the covenant and faithful in love to your servants as long as they walk wholeheartedly in your way. ·You have kept the promise you made to your 24 servant, my father David, as you promised him you would. Today you have carried 2 S 7:11-16 it out by your power. ·And now, Yahweh, God of Israel, keep the promise which 25 you made to your servant David when you said, "You will never lack for a man to sit before me on the throne of Israel, provided that your sons are careful how they behave, walking before me as you yourself have done." ·So now, God of Israel, let 26

Forced labour for Solomon's building programme

This is an account of the forced labour levied by King Solomon for building the 15
Temple of Yahweh, his own palace, the Millo [y] and the fortifications of Jerusalem, Hazor, Megiddo, Gezer ·(Pharaoh king of Egypt mounted an expedition, captured 16 Gezer, burnt it down and massacred the Canaanites living there; he then gave the town as a dowry to his daughter, Solomon's wife, ·and Solomon rebuilt 17 Gezer), Lower Beth-Horon, ·Baalath, Tamar in the desert, inside the country, 18 all Solomon's storage towns owned by Solomon, all the towns for his chariots 19 and horses, [z] and whatever Solomon was pleased to build in Jerusalem, in the 2 Ch 8:7–10 Lebanon and in all the countries under his rule. ·All those who survived of the 20
Dt 7:1a Amorite, Hittite, Perizzite, Hivite and Jebusite peoples, who were not Israelites—their descendants still remaining in the country on whom the Israelites had not 21 Dt 7:2; 20:16 been able to enforce the curse of destruction—these Solomon levied as forced labourers, as is still the case today. ·Solomon did not, however, impose forced 22 labour on the Israelites; [a] for they were soldiers: his officials, his administrators, his officers and his chariot and cavalry commanders. ·There were five hundred and 23

fifty officials in charge of the foremen over Solomon's work, who supervised the people employed on the work.

24 After Pharaoh's daughter had moved from the City of David up to the palace which he had built for her, he then built the Millo. ‖2 Ch 8:11

5 Solomon was, the palace which he had built, ·the food at his table, the accommodation for his officials, the organisation of his staff and the way they were dressed, his cupbearers, and the burnt offerings which he presented in the Temple of 6 Yahweh, it left her breathless, ·and she said to the king, 'The report I heard in my

10 a. The kingdom of Sheba was the south-west portion of the Arabian peninsula, but this queen is more probably the ruler of one of the Sheban colonies in north Arabia. The reason for the visit could have been to establish trade relationships. Solomon, dominating Transjordan and holding Ezion-Geber, controlled the caravan route from north Arabia to Syria and Egypt. Sheba is several times mentioned with Dedan, another Arab people, Gn 10:7; 25:3; Ezk 38:13, which is considered one of the great caravan tribes, Ezk 27:20seq.; Jb 6:19; Jr 6:20; Jl 4:8. she expressed a wish for, besides those presents which he gave her with a munificence worthy of King Solomon. After which, she went home to her own country, she and her servants.

‖2 Ch 9:13–24 Solomon's wealth

The weight of gold received annually by Solomon amounted to six hundred and 14 sixty-six talents of gold, ·besides what tolls and foreign trade, [e] as well as every- 15 thing the Arab kings and the provincial governors brought in. ·King Solomon 16 of the seat; two lions stood beside the arms, ·and twelve lions stood on each side of 20 the six steps. Nothing like it has ever been made in any other kingdom.

All King Solomon's drinking vessels were of gold, and all the plate in the House 21
Si 47:18 of the Forest of Lebanon was of pure gold; silver was little thought of in Solomon's days, ·since the king had a fleet of Tarshish [f] at sea with Hiram's fleet, and once 22 ivory, apes and baboons. ·For riches and for wisdom, King Solomon surpassed all 23

D: HIS DECLINE

Solomon's wives

Dt 17:17 Si 47:19 11 King Solomon loved many foreign women: not only Pharaoh's daughter but 1
Moabites, Edomites, Sidonians and Hittites, ·from those peoples of whom 2 Yahweh had said to the Israelites, 'You are not to go among them nor they among Ex 34:16 Dt 7:3–4 you, or they will be sure to sway your hearts to their own gods.' But Solomon was deeply attached to them. ·He had seven hundred wives of royal rank and three 3 2 Ch 11:23–12:1 hundred concubines. [a] ·When Solomon grew old his wives swayed his heart to other 4 gods; and his heart was not wholly with Yahweh his God as his father David's had Jg 2:13j been. ·Solomon became a follower of Astarte, the goddess of the Sidonians, and 5 of Milcom, the Ammonite abomination. ·He did what was displeasing to Yahweh, 6 and was not a wholehearted follower of Yahweh, as his father David had been.

7 Then it was that Solomon built a high place for Chemosh, the abomination of Moab, on the mountain to the east of Jerusalem, and to Milcom, the abomination 8 of the Ammonites.[b] ·He did the same for all his foreign wives, who offered incense and sacrifice to their gods.
9 Yahweh was angry with Solomon because his heart had turned away from 10 Yahweh, God of Israel, who had twice appeared to him ·and had forbidden him to 11 follow other gods; but he did not carry out Yahweh's order. ·Yahweh therefore said to Solomon, 'Since you have behaved like this and have not kept my covenant or the laws which I laid down for you, I shall tear the kingdom away from you and 12 give it to one of your servants. ·For your father David's sake, however, I shall not 13 do this during your lifetime, but shall tear it out of your son's hands. ·Even so, I shall not tear the whole kingdom from him. For the sake of my servant David, and for the sake of Jerusalem which I have chosen, I shall leave your son one tribe.'[c]

Solomon's foreign enemies

14 Yahweh raised an enemy against Solomon, Hadad the Edomite, of the kingly stock
15 of Edom. ·After David had crushed Edom, Joab the army commander had gone to 2 S 8:13–14 16 bury the dead and had slaughtered the entire male population of Edom ·(Joab stayed there with all Israel for six months until he had exterminated the entire male 17 population of Edom), ·but Hadad with a number of Edomites in his father's service 18 had fled to Egypt. Hadad had been only a boy at the time. ·They set out from Midian, and on reaching Paran, took a number of men from Paran with them and went on to Egypt, to Pharaoh the king of Egypt, who provided him with a house, 19 undertook to maintain him, and assigned him an estate. ·Hadad became a great favourite of Pharaoh who gave him his own wife's sister in marriage, the sister of 20 the Great Lady[d] Tahpenes. ·The sister of Tahpenes bore him his son Genubath whom Tahpenes brought up[e] in Pharaoh's palace, Genubath living in Pharaoh's 21 palace with Pharaoh's own children. ·But when news reached Hadad in Egypt that David had fallen asleep with his ancestors and that Joab the army commander was dead, he said to Pharaoh, 'Give me leave to go that I may return to my 22 own country.' ·'What do you lack here with me,' Pharaoh said, 'for you to want to go back to your country?' 'Nothing,' he replied, 'but please let me go.'
25b Hence the harm which Hadad caused: he loathed Israel and ruled Edom.
23 God raised a second enemy against Solomon, Rezon son of Eliada. He had fled 24 from his master, Hadadezer king of Zobah. ·A number of men having rallied to 2 S 8:3; 10:16seq.
him, he became leader of a marauding band (which was then massacred by David).
25a Rezon captured Damascus and settled there and became king of Damascus. ·He was hostile to Israel as long as Solomon lived.[f]

The revolt of Jeroboam

26 Jeroboam was the son of Nebat, an Ephraimite from Zeredah; the name of his

f. Identification with Tartessos, a Phoenician colony in Spain, is unlikely. The word may only mean 'foundry' or 'refinery', and Tarshish ships would therefore be those used for transporting metal or ore, see 22:49, hence very large and strong, see Ps 48:7; Is 23:1, 14; 60:9; Ezk 27:25.

g. 'from Muzur and Cilicia' mimmutzur umiqqoweh conj.; Hebr. mimmitzrayim umiqweh 'from Egypt and ?'.

h. vv. 28–29 perhaps indicate trade in two directions: Solomon's courtiers supplied to Egypt horses imported from Asia Minor, and to the 'Hittite kings' in northern Syria and the 'Aramaean kings' in southern Syria chariots imported from Egypt.

b. 'Milcom' Gk; 'Molech' Hebr. Milcom was national god of the Ammonites, 2 S 12:30 (Gk); Jr 49:1, 3, Chemosh that of the Moabites, Nb 21:29; Jr 48:46.

c. Solomon's foreign marriages were contracted for political ends and the non-Yahwist shrines were intended for his wives and for traders. Such contacts, however, jeopardised the purity of the religion of Yahweh, and the author interprets the situation in the spirit and language of Dt: God punishes this form of impiety by raising up enemies abroad, vv. 14seq., and at home, vv. 26seq.

9:15 2 S 5:9f Solomon was building the Millo and closing the breach in the City of David his father. ·Now this Jeroboam was a man of great energy; Solomon, noticing how the 28 young man set about his work, put him in charge of all the forced labour of the House of Joseph. ·One day when Jeroboam had gone out of Jerusalem, the 29
1 S 1:3 prophet Ahijah of Shiloh accosted him on the road. Ahijah was wearing a new cloak; the two of them were in the open country by themselves. ·Ahijah took the 30 new cloak which he was wearing and tore it into twelve strips,[g] ·saying to Jero- 31 boam: 'Take ten strips for yourself, for Yahweh, God of Israel, says this, "I am going to tear the kingdom from Solomon's hand and give ten tribes to you. ·He will 32 keep one tribe for the sake of my servant David and for the sake of Jerusalem, the city which I have chosen out of all the tribes of Israel; ·for he has forsaken me to 33 worship Astarte the goddess of the Sidonians, Chemosh the god of Moab, Milcom the god of the Ammonites; he has not followed my ways[h] by doing what I regard as right, or by keeping my laws and ordinances as his father David did. ·But it is not 34 from his hands that I will take the kingdom, since I have made him a prince for as long as he lives, for the sake of my servant David who kept my commandments and laws. ·I shall, however, take the kingdom from the hand of his son, and I shall give 35 it to you, that is, the ten tribes. ·I shall give one tribe to his son, so that my servant 36

2 K 8:19 have chosen as a dwelling-place for my name. ·You nonetheless I shall appoint 37 to rule over as much as you wish, and you will be king of Israel. ·If you listen to 38 all my orders and follow my ways, by doing what I regard as right and by keeping my laws and commandments as my servant David did, then I shall be with you and shall build you as enduring a dynasty as the one which I built for David. I shall give Israel to you, ·and I shall humble the descendants of David, but not 39 for ever." '

14:25 Solomon tried to kill Jeroboam but he made off and fled to Egypt, to Shishak 40 king of Egypt, and he remained in Egypt until Solomon's death.

‖2 Ch 9:29–31 The end of the reign of Solomon

The rest of the history of Solomon, his entire career, his wisdom, is this not 41 recorded in the Book of the Annals of Solomon?[j] ·Solomon's reign in Jerusalem 42 over all Israel lasted forty years. ·When Solomon fell asleep with his ancestors, he 43 was buried in the City of David his father; his son Rehoboam succeeded him.

III: THE POLITICAL AND RELIGIOUS SCHISM

‖2 Ch 10 The assembly at Shechem

12 Rehoboam then went to Shechem, all Israel having come to Shechem to 1 proclaim him king. · [a](As soon as Jeroboam son of Nebat heard the news— 2 he was still in Egypt, where he had taken refuge from King Solomon—he returned from Egypt. ·They now sent for him, and Jeroboam and the whole assembly of 3 Israel[b] came.) And they spoke as follows to Rehoboam, ·'Your father laid a cruel 4 yoke on us; if you will lighten your father's cruel slavery, that heavy yoke which he imposed on us, we are willing to serve you.' ·He said to them, 'Go away for three 5 days and then come back to me.' And the people went away.

King Rehoboam then consulted the elders who had been in attendance on his 6 father Solomon while he was alive, and said, 'How do you advise me to answer this people?' ·They replied, 'If you become the servant of this people today, and submit 7 to them and give them a fair reply, then they will remain your servants for ever.' But he rejected the advice given him by the elders and consulted the young men in 8 attendance on him, who had grown up with him. ·He said, 'How do you advise us 9 to answer these people who have been saying, "Lighten the yoke which your father 10 imposed on us!"? ' ·The young men who had grown up with him replied, 'This is the way to answer these people who have been saying, "Your father made our yoke heavy, you must lighten it for us!" This is the right thing to say to them, "My 11 little finger is thicker than my father's loins. ·Although my father laid a heavy yoke on you, I shall make it heavier still. My father controlled you with the whip, but I shall apply a spiked lash!" '

12 On the third day Jeroboam and all the people came to Rehoboam in obedience
13 to the king's instruction: 'Come back to me in three days' time.' ·And the king 14 gave the people a harsh answer, rejecting the advice given him by the elders ·and speaking to them as the young men had recommended, 'My father made your yoke heavy, I shall make it heavier still! My father controlled you with the whip, but I shall apply a spiked lash!'

15 Thus the king refused to listen to the people, and this was brought about by Yahweh to fulfil the promise which he had made through Ahijah of Shiloh to 11:29–39 16 Jeroboam son of Nebat. ·When all Israel saw that the king refused to listen to them, the people answered the king thus:

What share have we in David? 2 S 20:1
—No heritage in the son of Jesse!
Away to your tents, Israel!
Now look after your own House, David!

17 So Israel went home again. ·Rehoboam, however, reigned over those Israelites 18 who lived in the towns of Judah. ·When King Rehoboam sent Adoram, who was in 4:6;5:27 charge of forced labour, all Israel stoned him to death, while King Rehoboam 19 managed to mount his chariot and escape to Jerusalem. ·And Israel has remained Si 47:12 in rebellion against the House of David from that day to this.

The political schism

20 When all Israel heard that Jeroboam had returned, they summoned him to the assembly and made him king of all Israel; no one remained loyal to the House of David, except the tribe of Judah.

21 When Rehoboam reached Jerusalem he mustered the whole House of Judah ‖2 Ch 11:1–4 and the tribe of Benjamin, a hundred and eighty thousand picked warriors, to fight the House of Israel and win back the kingdom for Rehoboam son of Solomon.
22, 23 But the word of Yahweh came to Shemaiah, man of God, ·'Say this to Rehoboam son of Solomon, king of Judah, to the whole House of Judah, to Benjamin and to 24 the rest of the people, ·"Yahweh says this: Do not go and make war on your brothers, the Israelites; let everyone go home, for this is my doing." ' They obeyed the command of Yahweh and turned back in accordance with his word.

25 Jeroboam fortified Shechem in the mountain country of Ephraim and made that his residence. Then, leaving there, he fortified Penuel.

The religious schism

26 Jeroboam thought to himself, 'As things are, the kingdom will revert to the House
27 of David. ·If this people continues to go up to the Temple of Yahweh in Jerusalem to offer sacrifices, the people's heart will turn back again to their lord, Rehoboam

g. The symbolic gestures of the prophets not only are meaningful but also have a real effect, see Jr 18:1a. The ten pieces assigned to Jeroboam are the ten northern tribes (see 2 S 19:44); the two pieces left for Solomon's successor represent only one tribe, Judah, which had absorbed Simeon, Jos 19:1.

h. Verbs in singular, with versions.

i. Symbolising an enduring dynasty.

j. This book, now lost, seems to have been one of the ancient sources of ch. 3–11.

12 a. vv. 2–3[a], in brackets, are a gloss taken from 2 Ch 10:2–3, missing in Gk. They contradict v. 20, which is missing from 2 Ch 10. The mention of Jeroboam in v. 12 is also probably a gloss. In the original account, he was probably not present at Shechem but was later recalled by the insurgents (v. 20). • 'he returned from' versions; 'he stayed in' Hebr.

b. Here, as in the ancient historical texts, 'all Israel' means the northern tribes as distinct from Judah. In Jerusalem the people of Judah recognise Rehoboam. In Shechem the Israelites, whose interests Solomon had subordinated to those of Judah, demand a charter. The crisis had long threatened.

king of Judah, and they will put me to death.'[c] ·So the king thought this over and 28 then made two golden calves;[d] he said to the people, 'You have been going up to Ex 32:4 Ho 13:2 Jerusalem long enough. Here is your God, Israel, who brought you out of Egypt!'
He set one up at Bethel,[e] ·and the people went in procession in front of the other 29, 30 one all the way to Dan. In Israel this gave rise to sin, for the people went to Bethel to worship the one, and all the way to Dan to worship the other. ·He set up 31 shrines on the high places and appointed priests from ordinary families, who were not of levitical descent. ·Jeroboam also instituted a feast in the eighth month, 32 8:65 on the fifteenth of the month, like the feast kept in Judah, when he offered sacrifices on the altar.[f] This he did at Bethel, offering sacrifices to the calves which he had made and, at Bethel, installing the priests of the high places which he had set up. ·On the fifteenth of the eighth month, the month which he had chosen 33 deliberately, he offered sacrifices on the altar which he had made at Bethel; he instituted a feast for the Israelites and himself went up to the altar to burn the sacrifice.

The condemnation of the altar in Bethel

13 There came to Bethel at Yahweh's command a man of God from Judah, 1 just as Jeroboam was standing by the altar to offer the sacrifice, ·and at 2 Yahweh's command this man denounced the altar. 'Altar, altar,' he said, 'Yahweh
2 K 23:15–16 says this, "A son is to be born to the House of David, Josiah by name, and on you he will slaughter the priests of the high places who have offered sacrifice on you, and on you he will burn human bones." '[a] ·At the same time he gave a sign. 'This 3 is the sign', he said, 'that Yahweh has spoken, "This altar will burst apart and the ashes which are on it will be spilt." ' ·When the king heard how the man of God 4 denounced the altar of Bethel, he stretched out his hand from the altar, saying,
'Seize him!' But the hand he stretched out against the man withered, and he could not draw it back, ·and the altar burst apart and the ashes from the altar were spilt, 5 in accordance with the sign given by the man of God at Yahweh's command. ·The 6 king said to the man of God, 'I beg you to placate Yahweh your God,[b] and so restore me the use of my hand.' The man of God placated Yahweh; the king's hand was restored as it had been before. ·The king then said to the man of God, 'Come 7 1 S 9:7d home with me and refresh yourself, and I shall give you a present,' ·but the man of 8
Nb 22:18 God replied to the king, 'Were you to give me half your palace, I would not go with you. I will eat and drink nothing here, ·for I have had Yahweh's order, "You are to 9 eat or drink nothing, nor to return by the way you came." ' ·And he left by another 10 road and did not return by the way he had come to Bethel.

The man of God and the prophet[c]

Now there was an old prophet living in Bethel, and his sons came to tell him all that 11 the man of God had done in Bethel that day; and the words which he had said to the king, they told these to their father too. ·'Which road did he take?' their father 12 asked. His sons showed him[d] the road which the man of God who came from Judah had taken. ·'Saddle the donkey for me.' he said to his sons; they saddled the 13 donkey for him and he mounted. ·He followed the man of God and found him 14 sitting under a terebinth. 'Are you the man of God', he said, 'who came from Judah?' 'I am,' he replied. ·'Come home with me,' he said, 'and take some food.' 15
'I cannot go back with you,' he answered, 'or eat or drink anything here,[e] ·for I 16, 17 have received Yahweh's order, "You are to eat or drink nothing there, nor to return by the way you came." ' ·'I too am a prophet like you,' the other replied 18
'and an angel told me this by Yahweh's command, "Bring him back with you to your house to eat and drink." ' He was lying to him.[f] ·The man of God went back 19 with him; he ate and drank at his house.
20:36o As they were sitting at table a word of Yahweh came to the prophet who had 20 brought him back, ·and he addressed the man of God who came from Judah. 21
'Yahweh says this,' he said. ' "Since you have defied Yahweh's command and not 22 obeyed the orders which Yahweh your God gave you, ·but have come back and eaten and drunk where he forbade you to eat and drink, your corpse will never 23 reach the tomb of your ancestors." ' ·After he had eaten and drunk, the prophet 24 saddled the donkey for him, and he turned about and went away.[g] ·A lion met him on the road and killed him; his corpse lay stretched out on the road; the donkey 25 stood there beside it; the lion stood by the corpse too. ·People going by saw the corpse lying on the road and the lion standing by the corpse, and went and spoke 26 about it in the town where the old prophet lived. ·When the prophet who had made the man turn back heard about it, he said, 'That is the man of God who defied Yahweh's command! Yahweh has handed him over to the lion, which has mauled 27 and killed him, just as Yahweh had foretold it would.' ·He said to his sons, 28 'Saddle the donkey for me,' and they saddled it. ·He set off and found the man's corpse lying on the road with the donkey and the lion standing beside 29 the corpse; the lion had neither eaten the corpse nor mauled the donkey. ·The prophet lifted the corpse of the man of God and put it on the donkey and brought 30 it back to the town where he lived to hold mourning for him and bury him. ·He laid the corpse in his own tomb, and they raised the mourning cry for him, 'Alas, my Jr 22:18 31 brother!' ·After burying him, the prophet said to his sons, 'When I die, bury me in 32 the same tomb as the man of God, lay my bones beside his. ·For the word he 2 K 23:17–18 uttered at Yahweh's command against the altar of Bethel and against all the shrines of the high places in the towns of Samaria will certainly come true.' 33 Jeroboam did not give up his wicked ways after this incident, but went on appointing priests for the high places from the common people. He consecrated as 34 priests of the high places any who wished to be. ·Such conduct made the House of Jeroboam a sinful House, and caused its ruin and extinction from the face of the earth.

IV: THE TWO KINGDOMS UNTIL ELIJAH

Continuation of the reign of Jeroboam I (931–910)

1, 2 14 At that time Abijah, Jeroboam's son, fell sick, ·and Jeroboam said to his wife, 'Come, please disguise yourself so that no one will recognise you as Jeroboam's wife, and go to Shiloh; the prophet Ahijah is there, the man who said 11:29–39
3 I was to be king of this people. ·Go to him, and take ten loaves and some savoury 1 S 9:7d
4 food and a jar of honey; he will tell you what will happen to the child.' ·Jeroboam's
5 wife did this: she set out, went to Shiloh and came to Ahijah's house. ·Now Ahijah could not see, his eyes were fixed with age, but Yahweh had told him, 'Jeroboam's wife is now on her way to ask you for a prophecy about her son, as he is sick. You will tell her such and such. When she comes, she will pretend to be some other 6 woman.' ·So when Ahijah heard her footsteps at the door, he called, 'Come in,

c. Hebr. adds 'They will return to Rehoboam, king of Judah', doublet; Gk omits.

d. Jeroboam had a political end in view, not a change of religion. As against the ark of the covenant in Jerusalem, symbolising Yahweh's presence there, he set up young bulls symbolising the foot-rest of Yahweh the Invisible. He acted within an ancient tradition, also to be detected in the episode of the 'golden calf', Ex 32. Both stories have been slanted by controversialists. By choosing the same symbol as that of Baal, however, Jeroboam opened the way for serious abuses, see Ho 13:2. This was 'the sin of Jeroboam', occurring as a damning refrain throughout the Deuteronomic historian's judgements on the kings of Israel.

e. The Hebr. continues 'and he put the other at Dan, this gave rise to sin', an addition which splits the phrase. ·Dan, near the source of the Jordan, and Bethel, on the road to Jerusalem, delimited the new kingdom. These places were already hallowed shrines. Gn 12:8; Jg 17–18.

f. The new temple of Bethel, like Solomon's Temple, was dedicated on the feast of Shelters.

13 a. 'he will burn' versions; 'will be burnt' Hebr. This forecast, the precision of which is foreign to the prophetic style, has been added to the original saying which was v. 3 only.

b. The Hebr. adds 'and pray for me' absent from versions.

c. The 'prophet', nabi, at this period, is of a lower grade than the true 'man of God'. Compare Elijah and Elisha with the 'prophetic brotherhood', 2 K 2; etc., see Am 7:14.

d. 'showed him' versions; 'saw' Hebr.

e. Hebr. is somewhat redundant.

f. To test him. What follows, written in a markedly popular style, teaches this lesson: God's orders must be obeyed absolutely; the man of God had no right to question the order which he had originally received, even at the bidding of an angel. see Ga 1:8.

g. 'turned about and went away' versions; Hebr. uncertain.

wife of Jeroboam; why pretend to be someone else? I have bad news for you. ·Go 7 and tell Jeroboam, "Yahweh, God of Israel, says this: I raised you from the people and made you leader of my people Israel; ·I tore the kingdom from the House of 8 David and gave it to you. But you have not been like my servant David who kept my commandments and followed me with all his heart, doing only what I regard as right; ·you have done more evil than all your predecessors, you have gone and 9 Ex 20:3–5 made yourself other gods, idols of cast metal,[a] provoking my anger, and you have turned your back on me. ·For this I shall bring disaster on the House of Jeroboam, 10 1 S 25:22 I shall wipe out every manjack[b] of the family of Jeroboam, fettered or free[c] in Israel, I shall sweep away the House of Jeroboam as a man sweeps dung away till 15:27–30; 16:4; 21:24 none is left. ·Those of Jeroboam's family who die in the city, the dogs will eat; and 11 those who die in the open country, the birds of the air will eat,[d] for Yahweh has spoken." ·Now get up and go home; at the moment your feet enter the town, the 12 child will die. ·All Israel will mourn for him, and bury him; and he alone of 13 Jeroboam's family will have a proper burial, for in him alone of the House of Jeroboam can Yahweh, God of Israel, find anything good. ·Yahweh will set a king 14 over Israel, who will put an end to the House of Jeroboam.[e] ·Yahweh will make 15 Israel shake[f], till it quivers like a reed in the water; he will uproot Israel from this prosperous land which he gave to their ancestors and scatter them beyond the River for provoking Yahweh to anger by making their sacred poles. ·He will 16 abandon Israel for the sins which Jeroboam has committed and made Israel commit.' ·Jeroboam's wife rose and left. She arrived at Tirzah,[g] and when she 17 crossed the threshold of the palace, the child was already dead. ·They buried him, 18 and all Israel mourned for him, just as Yahweh had foretold through his servant Ahijah the prophet.

2 Ch 13:2–20 The rest of the history of Jeroboam, what wars he waged, how he governed, this 19 is recorded in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Israel. ·Jeroboam's reign 20 lasted twenty-two years. Then he fell asleep with his ancestors; his son Nadab succeeded him.

The reign of Rehoboam (931–913)

‖2 Ch 12:13–14 In Judah, Rehoboam son of Solomon became king; he was forty-one years old 21 when he came to the throne and he reigned for seventeen years in Jerusalem, the city which Yahweh had chosen out of all the tribes of Israel, to give his name a home there. His mother's name was Naamah, the Ammonite. ·He[h] did what is 22 displeasing to Yahweh, arousing his resentment more than his ancestors by all the Ex 23:24k; 34:13e sins which they had committed; ·they had built themselves high places, and had set 23
Dt 12:2b up pillars and sacred poles on every high hill and under every spreading tree.
1 S 9:12f There were even male sacred prostitutes in the country. He copied all the shameful 24
Dt 23:19f practices of the nations whom Yahweh had dispossessed for the Israelites.

‖2 Ch 12:2,9–11 And so it happened that in the fifth year of King Rehoboam, Shishak[i] king of 25
Egypt advanced on Jerusalem ·and carried off all the treasures of the Temple of 26
Yahweh and the treasures of the royal palace; he took everything away, including 10:16 all the golden shields which Solomon had made. ·To replace those King Rehoboam 27 made bronze shields, entrusting them to the commanders of the guard[j] who guarded the king's palace gate. ·Whenever the king went to the Temple of Yahweh, 28 the guards would carry them, returning them to the guardroom afterwards.

The rest of the history of Rehoboam, his entire career, is this not recorded in the 29
Book of the Annals of the Kings of Judah? ·Warfare between Rehoboam and 30 ‖2 Ch 12:16 Jeroboam went on throughout the period. ·When Rehoboam fell asleep with his 31 ancestors, he was buried in the City of David; his son Abijam succeeded him.[k]

The reign of Abijam in Judah (913–911)

‖2 Ch 13:1–2a 15 In the eighteenth year of King Jeroboam son of Nebat, Abijam became king 1 of Judah ·and reigned for three years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was 2 ‖2 Ch 11:20 Maacah descendant[a] of Absalom. ·In everything he followed the sinful example of 3 disobeyed whatever he commanded him (except in the matter of Uriah the Hittite).

The reign of Asa in Judah (911–870)

9, 10 In the twentieth year of Jeroboam king of Israel, Asa became king of Judah ·and ‖2 Ch 14:1–3 reigned for forty-one years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Maacah descen-11 dant of Absalom. ·Asa did what Yahweh regards as right, as his ancestor David 12 had done. ·He drove the male prostitutes out of the country and got rid of all the ‖2 Ch 15:16–18
13 idols which his ancestors had made. ·He even deprived his grandmother Maacah Dt 23:19f of the dignity of Great Lady[c] for having made an obscenity[d] for Asherah; Asa cut 11:19d 14 down her obscenity and burnt it in the ravine of the Kidron. ·Though the high places were not abolished, Asa's heart was loyal to Yahweh throughout his life.
15 He deposited his father's and his own dedicated gifts of silver, gold and sacred vessels in the Temple of Yahweh.
16 Asa and Baasha king of Israel were at war with each other throughout their ‖2 Ch 16:1–6
17 reigns. ·Baasha king of Israel marched on Judah and fortified Ramah to blockade 18 Asa king of Judah. ·Asa then took all the remaining silver and gold left in the treasuries of the Temple of Yahweh and the royal palace. Entrusting this to his servants, King Asa sent them with the following message to Ben-Hadad[e] son of 19 Tabrimmon, son of Hezion, the king of Aram who lived in Damascus, ·'Let us make an alliance between myself and yourself, between my father and your father!
Look, I have sent you a gift of silver and gold. Come, break off your alliance with 20 Baasha king of Israel, which will make him withdraw from me.' ·Ben-Hadad listened favourably to King Asa, and sent the generals of his armies to attack the towns of Israel; he ravaged Ijon, Dan, Abel-Beth-Maacah, all Chinneroth,[f] and 21 the whole territory of Naphtali. ·When Baasha heard this he gave up fortifying 22 Ramah and retired[g] to Tirzah. ·King Asa then summoned all Judah, no one was exempt; they took away the stones and timber with which Baasha had been fortifying Ramah, and King Asa used them to fortify Geba of Benjamin and Mizpah.

succeeded him.

The reign of Nadab in Israel (910–909)

Nadab son of Jeroboam became king of Israel in the second year of Asa king of 25
Judah, and he reigned over Israel for two years. ·He did what is displeasing to 26
Yahweh; he copied his father's example and the sin into which he had led Israel.
Baasha son of Ahijah, of the House of Issachar, plotted against him and murdered 27 him at Gibbethon, a Philistine town which Nadab and all Israel were besieging. ·Baasha killed Nadab and succeeded him in the third year of Asa king of 28 Judah. ·No sooner was he king than he butchered the entire House of Jeroboam, 29 14:10–11 not sparing a soul, and put an end to it, just as Yahweh had foretold through his servant Ahijah of Shiloh, ·because of the sins which he had committed and into 30 which he had led Israel, and because he had provoked the anger of Yahweh, God
of Israel.

The rest of the history of Nadab, his entire career, is this not recorded in ·the 31, 32
Book of the Annals of the Kings of Israel? [i]

The reign of Baasha in Israel (909–886)

In the third year of Asa king of Judah, Baasha son of Ahijah became king of Israel [j] 33 at Tirzah for twenty-four years. ·He did what is displeasing to Yahweh; he copied 34 the example of Jeroboam and the sin into which he had led Israel.

14:7–11 16 The word of Yahweh came to Jehu son of Hanani against Baasha: ·'I raised 1, 2 you from the dust and made you leader of my people Israel, but you have followed Jeroboam's example and led my people Israel into sins which provoke my anger. ·Now I shall sweep away Baasha and his House; I shall make your House 3 14:11 like the House of Jeroboam son of Nebat. ·Those of Baasha's family who die in the 4 city, the dogs will eat; and those who die in the open country, the birds of the air will eat.'

The rest of the history of Baasha, his career, his valour, is this not recorded in 5 the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Israel? ·When Baasha fell asleep with his 6 ancestors, he was buried in Tirzah; his son Elah succeeded him.

Furthermore, the word of Yahweh was delivered through the prophet Jehu son 7 of Hanani against Baasha and his House, first because of the many ways in which he had displeased Yahweh, provoking him to anger by his actions and becoming like the House of Jeroboam; secondly because he had destroyed that House. [a]

The reign of Elah in Israel (886–885)

In the twenty-sixth year of Asa king of Judah, Elah son of Baasha became king of 8
Israel at Tirzah, for two years. ·Zimri, one of his officers, captain of half his 9 Is 5:11 chariotry, plotted against him. While he was at Tirzah, drinking himself senseless in the house of Arza who was master of the palace in Tirzah, ·Zimri came in, struck 10 him down and killed him in the twenty-seventh year of Asa king of Judah, and succeeded him. ·On his accession, as soon as he was seated on the throne, he 11 1 S 25:22 butchered Baasha's entire family, not leaving him one manjack of them alive, neither relative nor friend. ·Zimri destroyed the whole House of Baasha, in 12 16:1–4 accordance with the word which Yahweh had spoken against Baasha through the prophet Jehu, ·because of all the sins of Baasha and his son Elah into which they 13 had led Israel, provoking the anger of Yahweh, God of Israel, with their worthless idols.

The history of Elah, his entire career, is this not recorded in the Book of the 14
Annals of the Kings of Israel?

The reign of Zimri in Israel (885)

In the twenty-seventh year of Asa king of Judah, Zimri became king for seven 15 days, at Tirzah. The people were then encamped in front of Gibbethon, a Philistine 16 town. ·When news reached the camp of how Zimri had not only plotted against but actually killed the king, all Israel proclaimed the army commander Omri as king of 17 Israel in the camp that very day. ·Omri, and all Israel with him, raised the siege of 18 Gibbethon and laid siege to Tirzah. ·When Zimri saw that the town had been captured, he went into the keep of the royal palace, burned the palace over his 19 own head, and died. ·This was because of the sin which he had committed in doing what is displeasing to Yahweh, by copying the example of Jeroboam and the sin into which he had led Israel.

20 The rest of the history of Zimri and of his conspiracy, is this not recorded in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Israel?
21 The people of Israel then split into two factions: one half following Tibni son of 22 Ginath to make him king, the other half following Omri. ·But the faction of Omri proved stronger than that of Tibni son of Ginath; thus Tibni lost his life and Omri became king.

The reign of Omri in Israel (885–874) [b]

23 In the thirty-first year of Asa king of Judah, Omri became king of Israel and 24 reigned for twelve years. He reigned for six years at Tirzah. ·Then for two talents of silver he bought the hill of Samaria from Shemer and on it built a town which he 25 named Samaria after Shemer who had owned the hill. ·Omri did what is displeasing 26 to Yahweh, and was worse than all his predecessors. ·In every way he copied the example of Jeroboam son of Nebat and the sins into which he had led Israel, provoking the anger of Yahweh, God of Israel, with their worthless idols.
27 The rest of the history of Omri, his career, his valour, is this not recorded in the 28 Book of the Annals of the Kings of Israel? ·When Omri fell asleep with his ancestors, he was buried in Samaria; his son Ahab succeeded him.

Introduction to the reign of Ahab (874–853)

29 Ahab son of Omri became king of Israel in the thirty-eighth year of Asa king of 30 Judah, and reigned over Israel for twenty-two years in Samaria. ·Ahab son of Omri did what is displeasing to Yahweh, and was worse than all his predecessors.
31 The least that he did was to follow the sinful example of Jeroboam son of Nebat:
he married Jezebel daughter of Ethbaal, king of the Sidonians, [c] and then pro-32 ceeded to serve Baal and worship him. ·He erected an altar to him in the temple of 33 Baal which he built in Samaria. ·Ahab also put up a sacred pole and committed Ex 34:13e other crimes as well, provoking the anger of Yahweh, God of Israel, more than all 34 the kings of Israel his predecessors. ·It was in his time that Hiel of Bethel rebuilt Jericho. Laying its foundations cost him his eldest son Abiram and erecting its Lv 18:21h gates cost him his youngest son Segub, [d] just as Yahweh had foretold through Jos 6:26 Joshua son of Nun.

i. v. 32, doublet of v. 16, is omitted by Gk.
j. 'Israel' Gk; 'all Israel' Hebr.

16 a. After 'Hanani', Hebr. adds 'the prophet'; Gk omits. The whole v. is an addition repeating vv. 1–4 and offering a second reason for Baasha's punishment, and not consistent with the spirit of the book.

b. Omri was without doubt a great ruler, but the Books of Kings, concerned with the kingdom of Israel exclusively from the religious point of view, mention only the founding of Samaria which was to remain the capital until the kingdom finally collapsed.

c. Ethbaal (Ittobaal in Gk) was a priest of Astarte who seized power in Tyre at the same time as Omri in Israel; the two usurpers came to terms and sealed their alliance by a family marriage. The effects on the religion of Israel of this association with the Phoenicians were to be increasingly felt throughout Ahab's reign.

d. Possibly his two sons were slaughtered as a foundation sacrifice.

V: THE ELIJAH CYCLE

A: THE GREAT DROUGHT

Elijah foretells the drought

↗Jm 5:17
↗Rv 11:6
17 Elijah the Tishbite, of Tishbe in Gilead,[a] said to Ahab, 'By the life of 1 Yahweh, God of Israel, whom I serve, there will be neither dew nor rain these coming years unless I give the word.'

In the ravine of the Cherith

The word of Yahweh came to him, ·'Go away from here, go east and hide by the 2, 3 torrent of Cherith, east of the Jordan. ·You can drink from the stream, and I have 4 ordered the ravens to bring you food there.' ·So he set out and did as Yahweh had 5 said; he went and stayed by the torrent of Cherith, east of the Jordan. ·The ravens 6 Ex 16:8,12 brought him bread in the morning and meat in the evening,[b] and he quenched his thirst at the stream.

2 K 4:1–7 At Zarephath. The miracle of the flour and the oil

But after a while the stream dried up, for the country had had no rain. ·And then 7, 8 ↗Lk 4:25–26 the word of Yahweh came to him, ·'Up and go to Zarephath in Sidonia, and stay 9 there. I have ordered a widow there to give you food.' ·So he went off to Sidon. 10
And when he reached the city gate, there was a widow gathering sticks. Addressing her he said, 'Please bring a little water in a pitcher for me to drink.' ·She was on her 11 way to fetch it when he called after her. 'Please', he said, 'bring me a scrap of bread in your hand.' ·'As Yahweh your God lives,' she replied, 'I have no baked bread, 12 but only a handful of meal in a jar and a little oil in a jug; I am just gathering a stick or two to go and prepare this for myself and my son to eat, and then we shall die.'
But Elijah said to her, 'Do not be afraid, go and do as you have said; but first 13 make a little scone of it for me and bring it to me, and then make some for yourself and for your son. ·For Yahweh, God of Israel, says this: 14

> Jar of meal shall not be spent, > jug of oil shall not be emptied, > before the day when Yahweh sends > rain on the face of the earth.'

The woman went and did as Elijah told her and they ate the food, she, himself 15 and her son.[c] ·The jar of meal was not spent nor the jug of oil emptied, just as 16
Yahweh had foretold through Elijah.

2 K 4:18–37
Lk 7:11–17
The widow's son raised to life

It happened after this that the son of the mistress of the house fell sick; his illness 17 was so severe that in the end he expired. ·And the woman said to Elijah, 'What 18 quarrel have you with me, man of God? Have you come here to bring my sins home to me and to kill my son?'[d] ·'Give me your son,' he said and, taking him 19 from her lap, he carried him to the upper room where he was staying and laid him on his bed. ·He cried out to Yahweh, 'Yahweh my God, do you mean to bring grief 20
2 K 4:33–36
Ac 20:10 even to the widow who is looking after me by killing her son?' ·He stretched 21 himself on the child three times and cried out to Yahweh, 'Yahweh my God, may the soul of this child, I beg you, come into him again!' ·Yahweh heard Elijah's 22 prayer and the child's soul came back into his body and he revived. ·Elijah took 23 the child, brought him down from the upper room into the house, and gave him to Heb 11:35 his mother. 'Look,' Elijah said, 'your son is alive.' ·And the woman replied, 'Now 24
I know you are a man of God and the word of Yahweh in your mouth is truth itself.'

Elijah and Obadiah

18 A long time went by, and the word of Yahweh came to Elijah in the third year, 'Go, present yourself to Ahab, and I will send rain on the country.'
So Elijah set off to present himself to Ahab.
As the famine was particularly severe in Samaria, ·Ahab summoned Obadiah, the master of the palace—Obadiah held Yahweh in great reverence: ·when Jezebel 4:2a was butchering the prophets of Yahweh, Obadiah took a hundred of them and hid them, fifty at a time, in a cave, and kept them provided with food and water[a]—·and Ahab said to Obadiah, 'Come along, we must scour the country,[b] all the springs and all the ravines in the hope of finding grass to keep horses and mules alive, or we shall have to slaughter some of our stock.' ·They divided the country for the purpose of their survey; Ahab went one way by himself and Obadiah went another way by himself. ·While Obadiah was on his way, whom should he meet but Elijah. Recognising him he fell on his face and said, 'So it is you, my lord Elijah!' ·'Yes,' he replied, 'go and tell your master, "Elijah is here." ' ·But Obadiah said, 'What sin I have committed, for you to put your servant into Ahab's power and cause my death? ·As Yahweh your God lives, there is no nation or kingdom where my master has not sent in search of you; and when they said, "He is not there," he made the kingdom or nation swear an oath that they did not know where you were. ·And now you say to me, "Go and tell your master: Elijah is here." ·But as soon as I leave you, the spirit of Yahweh will carry you away and I shall not know where;[c] I shall go and tell Ahab; he will not be able to find you, and then he will kill me. Yet from his youth your servant has revered Yahweh. ·Has no one told my lord what I did when Jezebel butchered the prophets of Yahweh, how I hid a hundred of them in a cave, fifty at a time, and kept them provided with food and water? ·And now you say to me, "Go and tell your master: Elijah is here." Why, he will kill me!' ·Elijah replied, 'As Yahweh Sabaoth lives, 1 S 1:3c whom I serve, I shall present myself to him today!'

Elijah and Ahab

Obadiah went to find Ahab and tell him the news, and Ahab then went to find Elijah. ·When he saw Elijah, Ahab said, 'So there you are, you scourge of Israel!'
'Not I,' he replied, 'I am not the scourge of Israel, you and your family are; because you have deserted Yahweh[d] and followed Baal. ·Now give orders for all Israel to Jg 2:13i gather round me on Mount Carmel, and also the four hundred prophets of Baal[e] who eat at Jezebel's table.'

The sacrifice on Carmel

Ahab called all Israel together and assembled the prophets on Mount Carmel.
Elijah stepped out in front of all the people. 'How long', he said, 'do you mean to hobble first on one leg[f] then on the other? If Yahweh is God, follow him; if Baal, follow him.' But the people had nothing to say. ·Elijah then said to them, 'I, I 19:10,14

The document dealing with the history of Elijah, of which use is made henceforth, see p. 282, probably recounted the earlier life of the prophet, but the author takes it from the point where it fits into his own narrative: the drought is presented as a punishment for the introduction of the cult of Baal, 16:32–33.

c. 'and her son' Gk, see vv. 12–13; 'and her household, for a long while' Hebr.

d. The woman attributes her misfortune to Elijah's visit: a man of God is like a hostile witness; at his presence secret or unconscious sins are brought to light and draw down retribution.

18 a. The parenthesis prepares for v. 13. On these 'prophets' see 1 S 10:5,: they play a prominent part in the Elisha cycle.

b. Following Gk; 'Come into the country' Hebr.

c. These sudden disappearances seem to have been a feature of the story of Elijah, 2 K 2:16, until the last disappearance of all, 2 K 2:11 seq. The spirit of Yahweh is an external force transporting the prophet from place to place, see Ezk 3:12; 8:3; 11:1; 43:5; Ac 8:39.

d. 'Yahweh' Gk; 'the commandments of Yahweh' Hebr.

e. A gloss adds 'and the four hundred prophets of Asherah', who are not mentioned again. There were many such 'prophets' among the peoples contiguous to Israel, Jr 27:9seq.; they formed large groups, like the prophets of Yahweh, 1 K 18:4. Here they are the devotees of the Tyrian Baal, invited into Israel and maintained by Jezebel.

f. The meaning of the last word is uncertain but the translation (see Gk) accords with the performance in v. 26: the Israelites dance in honour both of Yahweh and of Baal.

alone, am left as a prophet of Yahweh, while the prophets of Baal are four hundred and fifty. ·Let two bulls be given us; let them choose one for themselves, dismem- 23 ber it but not set fire to it. I in my turn shall prepare the other bull,[g] but not set fire to it. ·You must call on the name of your god, and I shall call on the name of 24 Yahweh; the god who answers with fire, is God indeed.'[h] The people all answered, 'Agreed!' ·Elijah then said to the prophets of Baal, 'Choose one bull and begin, 25 for there are more of you. Call on the name of your god but light no fire.' ·They 26 took the bull[i] and prepared it, and from morning to midday they called on the name of Baal. 'O Baal, answer us!' they cried, but there was no voice, no answer, as they performed their hobbling dance round the altar which they had made.
Midday came, and Elijah mocked them. 'Call louder,' he said, 'for he is a god: 27 he is preoccupied or he is busy, or he has gone on a journey; perhaps he is Dt 14:1a asleep and needs to be woken up!' ·So they shouted louder and gashed them- 28

Then Elijah said to all the people, 'Come over to me,' and all the people came 30 over to him. He repaired Yahweh's altar which had been torn down. ·Elijah took 31 twelve stones, corresponding to the number of tribes of the sons of Jacob, to whom Gn 32:29 the word of Yahweh had come, 'Israel is to be your name,' ·and built an altar in the 32 name of Yahweh.[k] Round the altar he dug a trench of a size to hold two measures of seed. ·He then arranged the wood, dismembered the bull, and laid it on the 33 wood. ·Then he said, 'Fill four jars with water and pour it on the burnt offering and 34 on the wood.' They did this.[l] He said, 'Do it a second time;' they did it a second time. He said, 'Do it a third time;' they did it a third time. ·The water flowed round 35 the altar until even the trench itself was full of water.[m] ·At the time when the 36 offering is presented, Elijah the prophet stepped forward. 'Yahweh, God of Abraham, Isaac and Israel,' he said, 'let them know today that you are God in Israel, and that I am your servant, that I have done all these things at your command. ·Answer me, Yahweh, answer me, so that this people may know that 37 you, Yahweh, are God and are winning back their hearts.'[n]

Lv 9:24 Then Yahweh's fire fell and consumed the burnt offering and the wood[o] and 38
Nb 11:1; 16:35
Jg 6:21 licked up the water in the trench. ·When all the people saw this they fell on their 39 faces. 'Yahweh is God,' they cried, 'Yahweh is God!' ·Elijah said, 'Seize the 40 prophets of Baal: do not let one of them escape.' They seized them, and Elijah took them down to the Kishon, and there he slaughtered them.[p]

The drought ends

Elijah said to Ahab, 'Go back now, eat and drink;[q] for I hear the approaching 41
↗Jm 5:18 sound of rain.' ·While Ahab went back to eat and drink, Elijah climbed to the top 42 of Carmel and bowed down to the ground, putting his face between his knees.
'Now go up', he told his servant, 'and look out to sea.' He went up and looked. 43
'There is nothing at all,' he said. Seven times Elijah told him to go back. ·The 44 seventh time, the servant said, 'Now there is a cloud, small as a man's hand, rising from the sea.' Elijah said, 'Go and say to Ahab, "Harness the chariot and go down before the rain stops you." ' ·And with that the sky grew dark with cloud and 45 storm, and rain fell in torrents. Ahab mounted his chariot and made for Jezreel.[r]
2 K 3:15
Ezk 1:3b But the hand of Yahweh had come on Elijah and, hitching up his clothes, he ran 46 ahead of Ahab all the way to Jezreel.

B: ELIJAH AT HOREB

The journey to Horeb

19 When Ahab told Jezebel everything that Elijah had done, and how he had 1 put all the prophets to the sword, ·Jezebel sent a messenger to Elijah to say, 2

'May the gods bring unnameable ills on me and worse ills too, if by this time Rt 1:17f time and touched him and said, 'Get up and eat, or the journey will be too long for 8 you.' ·So he got up and ate and drank, and strengthened by that food he walked for forty days and forty nights until he reached Horeb, God's mountain. [b] Ex 24:18 jealous zeal for Yahweh Sabaoth, because the Israelites have abandoned your covenant, have torn down your altars and put your prophets to the sword. I am the 18 to death by Elisha. ·But I shall spare seven thousand in Israel; all the knees that Is 4:3c have not bent before Baal, all the mouths that have not kissed him.' ↗Rm 11:4–5

g. Hebr. adds 'and lay it on the wood'.

h. It is not merely a matter of deciding whether Yahweh or Baal is lord of the mountain or which is the stronger, but simply which is God. Elijah's own statement, his prayer, v. 37, and the people's acclamation, v. 39, make this clear: monotheism itself is at stake.

i. Hebr. adds 'provided for them'.

j. The mention of the evening sacrifice, Ex 29:39; Nb 28:4; 2 K 16:15, is merely an indication of the time of day.

k. vv. 31–32[a] appear to be a gloss.

l. 'they did this' Gk; Hebr. omits.

m. This is not rain-making magic but a way of enhancing the fire miracle.

n. The miracle will demonstrate: 1 To the prophets of Baal and to Jezebel's entourage of foreigners ('let them know', v. 36) that there is no place for them in Israel where Yahweh is God; and 2 To the Israelites ('this people', v. 37) that Yahweh is the only God, the God who wins back wayward hearts.

o. Hebr. adds 'stones and soil', a gloss.

p. In this war between Yahweh and Baal those who serve Baal suffer the fate of the conquered in the warfare of the times.

q. A fast has been observed to prepare for the sacrifice and to bring rain.

r. Serving more or less as an alternative capital for the kings of Israel, 21:1; 2 K 8:29; 9:30seq.

19 a. 'He was afraid' versions; 'He saw' Hebr.

b. see Ex 19:1a. Zealous to maintain the covenant and restore the ancient faith, Elijah visits the place where the true God revealed himself, Ex 3 and 33:18–34:9, and where the covenant had been concluded, Ex 19; 24; 34:10–28. He sees his own task as that of continuing the work of Moses. Moses and Elijah have in common a theophany at Horeb; both also witness the NT theophany, Christ's transfiguration, Mt 17:1–9 and par.

c. The 'cleft in the rock' where Moses crouched when God appeared, Ex 33:22.

d. vv. 9[b]–10 are a doublet of vv. 13–14.

e. The storm, earthquake and lightning, which in Ex 19 manifested God's presence, are here only the heralds of his coming. The whispering murmur signifies that he converses intimately with his prophets; it does not mean that God's dealings are gentle—this common interpretation is refuted by the terrible commission of vv. 15–17.

f. This task was in fact later performed by Elisha.

g. Anointing, Ex 30:22d, was reserved for kings, 1 S 9:26n; parallelism explains the use of the word here.

The call of Elisha [h]

Leaving there, he came on Elisha son of Shaphat as he was ploughing behind 19 twelve yoke of oxen, he himself being with the twelfth. Elijah passed near to him
2 K 2:13 and threw his cloak over him. [i] ·Elisha left his oxen and ran after Elijah. 'Let me 20
Lk 9:61 kiss my father and mother, then I will follow you,' he said. Elijah answered, 'Go, go back; for have I done anything to you?' ·Elisha turned away, took a yoke of 21 oxen and slaughtered them. He used the oxen's tackle for cooking the meat, which 2 K 3:11 he gave the people to eat. He then rose and, following Elijah, became his servant.

C: THE ARAMAEAN WARS

The siege of Samaria

20 Ben-Hadad king of Aram [a] mustered his whole army—thirty-two kings [b] 1 were with him, and horses and chariots—and marched on Samaria, to besiege it and take it by assault. ·He sent messengers into the city to Ahab king of 2 Israel to tell him, 'Ben-Hadad says this, ·"Your silver and gold are mine. Your 3 wives and children remain yours." ' [c] ·The king of Israel replied, 'As you com- 4 mand, my lord king. [d] Myself and all I have are yours.'

The messengers came again; this time they said, 'Ben-Hadad says this, "I have 5 already sent you an order to hand over your silver and your gold, your wives and your children; ·but I swear, this time tomorrow, I shall send my servants to ransack 6 your house and your servants' houses and lay hands on everything that they value [e] and take it away." '

The king of Israel summoned all the elders of the country and said, 'You can see 7 clearly how this man intends to ruin us. He has already demanded my wives and my children, although I have not refused him my silver and gold.' [f] ·All the elders 8 and all the people said, 'Take no notice. Do not consent.' ·So he gave this answer 9 to Ben-Hadad's messengers, 'Say to my lord the king, "All you first required of your servant I will do, but this I cannot do." ' And the messengers went back with the answer.

Rt 1:17f Ben-Hadad then sent him the following message, 'May the gods bring unname- 10 able ills on me and worse ills too, if there is enough dust in Samaria for each of my followers to have a handful!' ·But the king of Israel returned this answer, 'Say: the 11 man who puts on his armour is not the one to boast, but the man who takes it off.'
When Ben-Hadad heard this message—he was under the awnings drinking with 12 the kings—he gave orders to his servants, 'Take up position!' And they took up their positions against the city.

Victory for Israel

A prophet then arrived, looking for Ahab king of Israel. 'Yahweh says this,' he 13 said. "You have seen this huge army? This very day I shall deliver it into your hands, and you will know that I am Yahweh." ' ·'By whose means?' Ahab asked. 14
The prophet replied, 'Yahweh says this, "By means of the guards of the district governors." ' 'Who will co-ordinate the attack?' Ahab asked. 'You will,' the prophet replied. [g]

So Ahab inspected the guards of the district governors: there were two hundred 15 and thirty-two. After these he reviewed the army, all the Israelites: there were seven thousand. ·They made a sortie at midday, when Ben-Hadad was drinking 16 himself senseless under the awnings, he and the thirty-two kings who were allies.
The guards of the district governors led the sortie. A report was made to Ben- 17
Hadad: 'Some men have come out of Samaria.' ·He said, 'If they have come out 18 for peace, take them alive; if they have come out for war, take them alive too.' ·So 19 they made a sortie from the city, the district governors' guards and behind them the army, ·and each struck down his man. Aram took to flight and Israel pursued; 20 21 Ben-Hadad king of Aram escaped on horseback. •The king of Israel then advanced, capturing[h] horses and chariots and inflicting a great defeat on Aram.

Respite

22 The prophet then went to the king of Israel and said, 'Now is the time to be resolute and think carefully about what you should do, for at the turn of the year the king of Aram will march against you.'[i]

23 The servants of the king of Aram said to him, 'Their gods are gods of the mountains; that is why they have proved stronger than we are. But if we fight them
24 on level ground, we shall certainly beat them. •This is what you must do: remove all these kings from their commands and appoint professional soldiers in their 25 place. •You, for your part, must recruit an army as large as the one which deserted you, with as many horses and as many chariots; then if we fight them on level ground, we shall certainly beat them.' He listened to their advice and acted accordingly.

The victory of Aphek

26 At the turn of the year, Ben-Hadad mustered the Aramaeans and marched on 27 Aphek to fight Israel. •The Israelites were already mobilised and provisioned, and marched out to meet them. Encamped opposite them, the Israelites looked like two herds of goats, whereas the Aramaeans filled the countryside.

28 The man of God[j] then went to the king of Israel and said, 'Yahweh says this, "Since Aram has said that Yahweh is a god of the mountains and not a god of the plains, I shall put the whole of this huge army into your power, and you will know
29 that I am Yahweh." ' •For seven days they were encamped opposite each other. On the seventh day battle was joined and the Israelites slaughtered the Aramaeans, 30 a hundred thousand foot soldiers[k] in one day. •The rest fled to Aphek, into the citadel, but the city walls collapsed on twenty-seven thousand of the survivors.

Now Ben-Hadad had fled and taken refuge in an inner room inside the citadel.
31 'Look,' his servants said to him, 'we have heard that the kings of Israel are faithful and kind kings. Let us put sackcloth round our waists and cords round our heads[l]
32 and go out to the king of Israel; perhaps he will spare your life.' •So they wrapped sackcloth round their waists and put cords round their heads and went to the king of Israel, and said, 'Your servant Ben-Hadad says, "Spare my life." '
33 'So he is still alive?' he replied. 'He is my brother.'[m] The men took this for a good omen and quickly seized on his words. 'Yes,' they said, 'Ben-Hadad is your brother.' Ahab said, 'Go and fetch him.' Then Ben-Hadad came out to him and 34 Ahab made him get up into his chariot. •Ben-Hadad said, 'I shall restore the towns which my father took from your father and you may set up a trading quarter for yourself in Damascus as my father did in Samaria.' 'With a treaty,' Ahab said,[n] 'I shall set you free.' Granting him a treaty, Ahab let him go.

h. vv. 19–21 come from the Elisha cycle.

i. The cloak symbolises the person and rights of its owner. That of Elijah has, moreover, miraculous properties, 2 K 2:8. Elijah thus acquires an authority over Elisha which the latter cannot resist. By destroying plough and oxen Elisha formally renounces his old way of life.

20 a. Ben-Hadad II, ruler of the Aramaean kingdom of Damascus, successor to Ben-Hadad I, 15:18e.

b. Princely vassals of Ben-Hadad, see v. 24.

c. To 'children' Hebr. adds 'handsome', omitted by Gk. • 'yours' conj.;

d. Ahab speaks as though vanquished and already a vassal. The siege had been preceded by Israelite reverses (the text only alludes to these, v. 34).

e. 'they value' versions; 'you value' Hebr.

f. In Gk (see note c above), Ahab says, 'I have not demurred over the treasure, but now he wants my wives and children too!'

g. God is consulted about military strategy, see 22:5seq; Jg 1:1seq.; 20:18; see Ex 33:7e, 1 S 14:18.

h. 'capturing' Gk; 'destroying' Hebr.

i. The spring equinox, see 2 S 11:1.

j. The prophet of vv. 13 and 22. • 'you' (plural) Hebr.; 'you' (sing.) Gk.

k. These figures, see v. 15, are suspect; this is popular history.

l. Signifying mourning and repentance.

m. Vassal kings referred to themselves as 'servants' of their suzerain, kings of equal standing were 'brothers'. Ben-Hadad now admits defeat but Ahab declines his homage, and the envoys, hearing the word 'brother', deduce that their master is now safe.

n. 'Ahab said' is added for clarity.

A prophet condemns Ahab's policy

2 K 2:3c At Yahweh's command a member of the brotherhood of prophets said to a 35 companion of his, 'Strike me,' but the man refused to strike him. ·So he said to 36 13:20–25 him, 'Since you have disobeyed Yahweh's order, the very moment you leave me a lion will kill you.' And no sooner had he left him than he met a lion, which killed him.[o] ·The prophet then went to find another man and said, 'Strike me,' and the 37 2 S 12:1–12; 14:1–20 man struck him and wounded him.[p] ·The prophet then went and stood waiting for 38 the king on the road, disguising himself with a bandage over his eyes. ·As the king 39 passed, he called out to him, 'Your servant was making his way to where the fight was thickest when someone left the fighting to bring a man to me, and said, "Guard this man; if he is found missing, your life will pay for his, or else you will have to pay one talent of silver." ·But your servant was busy with one thing and another, 40 the man disappeared.' The king of Israel said, 'That is your sentence then. You have pronounced it yourself.' ·At this the man quickly pulled off the bandage over 41 his eyes, and the king of Israel recognised him as one of the prophets.[q] ·He said to 42 the king, 'Yahweh says this, "Since you have let the man escape who was under my Jos 6:17c curse of destruction, your life will pay for his, your people for his people." ' ·And 43 the king of Israel went home, gloomy and out of temper, back to Samaria.

Is 5:8–10,8c

D: NABOTH'S VINEYARD

Naboth refuses to hand over his vineyard

21 This is what happened next: Naboth of Jezreel had a vineyard close by the 1 palace of Ahab[a] king of Samaria, ·and Ahab said to Naboth, 'Give me your 2 vineyard to be my vegetable garden, since it adjoins my palace; I will give you a better vineyard for it or, if you prefer, I will give you its value in money.'
Nb 36:7 Ezk 46:18 Naboth, however, said to Ahab, 'Yahweh forbid that I should give you my 3 ancestral heritage!'

Ahab and Jezebel

Ahab went home gloomy and out of temper at the words of Naboth of Jezreel, 'I 4 21:3 will not give you my heritage from my ancestors.' He lay down on his bed and turned his face away and refused to eat. ·His wife Jezebel came to him. 'Why are 5 you so dispirited,' she said, 'that you refuse to eat?' ·He said, 'I have been talking 6 to Naboth of Jezreel I said, "Give me your vineyard either for money or, if you prefer, for another vineyard in exchange." But he said, "I will not give you my vineyard." ' ·Then his wife Jezebel said, 'Some king of Israel you make! Get up, 7 eat and take heart; I myself shall get you the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite.'

Naboth is murdered

So she wrote a letter in Ahab's name and sealed it with his seal, sending the letter 8 to the elders and notables[b] of the city where Naboth lived. ·In the letter, she wrote, 9
'Proclaim a fast, and put Naboth in a prominent place among the people.[c]
There confront him with a couple of scoundrels[d] who will accuse him as follows, 10 Ex 22:27 Lv 24:14 "You have cursed God and the king." Then take him outside and stone him to death.'[e]

The men of Naboth's city, the elders and notables living in his city, did what 11
Jezebel ordered, as was written in the letter which she had sent him. ·They 12 proclaimed a fast and put Naboth in a prominent place among the people. ·The 13 two scoundrels then came and confronted him, and the scoundrels then publicly accused Naboth as follows, 'Naboth has cursed God and the king.' He was then taken outside the city and stoned to death. ·They then sent word to Jezebel, 14
'Naboth has been stoned to death.' ·When Jezebel heard that Naboth had been 15 stoned to death, she said to Ahab, 'Get up! Take possession of the vineyard which Naboth of Jezreel refused to sell you, for Naboth is no longer alive, he is dead.'

16 When Ahab heard that Naboth was dead, he got up to go down to the vineyard of Naboth of Jezreel and take possession of it.

Elijah pronounces God's sentence [f] 2 S 12

17, 18 Then the word of Yahweh came to Elijah the Tishbite, ·'Up! Go down to meet Ahab king of Israel, in Samaria. You will find him in Naboth's vineyard; he has 19 gone down to take possession of it. ·You are to say this to him, "Yahweh says this:
You have committed murder and now you usurp as well. For this [g]—and Yahweh says this— in the place where the dogs licked the blood of Naboth, the dogs will 2 K 9:25–26 Ps 63:23m 20 lick your blood too." ' ·Ahab said to Elijah, 'So you have caught me, O my enemy!' Elijah answered, 'I have caught you! For your double dealing, and since 21 you have done what is displeasing to Yahweh, ·I shall now bring disaster down on you; I shall sweep away your descendants and wipe out every manjack of the 14:10–11; 16:3–4 22 House of Ahab, fettered or free in Israel. ·I shall treat your House as I treated the House of Jeroboam son of Nebat and of Baasha son of Ahijah, for provoking my 23 anger and leading Israel into sin. ·(Against Jezebel too Yahweh spoke these words, 2 K 9:10 24 "The dogs will eat Jezebel in the Field [h] of Jezreel.") ·Those of Ahab's family who die in the city, the dogs will eat; and those who die in the open country, the birds of the air will eat.'
25 [i]And indeed there never was anyone like Ahab for double dealing and for doing 16:30–34
26 what is displeasing to Yahweh, urged on by Jezebel his wife. ·He behaved in the 11:4 Gn 3:12 most abominable way, adhering to idols, just as the Amorites had, whom Yahweh had dispossessed for the Israelites.

Ahab repents

27 When Ahab heard these words, he tore his garments and put sackcloth next to his 28 skin and fasted; he slept in the sackcloth; he walked with slow steps. ·Then the 29 word of Yahweh came to Elijah the Tishbite, ·'Have you seen how Ahab has humbled himself before me? Since he has humbled himself before me, I shall not 2 S 12:13–15 bring the disaster in his days; I shall bring the disaster down on his House in his 2 K 9–10 son's days.'

E: ANOTHER WAR WITH ARAM

Ahab plans a campaign against Ramoth in Gilead

1 22 There was a lull of three years, with no fighting between Aram and Israel. ‖2 Ch 18:2–3 2 Then, in the third year, Jehoshaphat king of Judah paid a visit to the king
3 of Israel. [a] ·The king of Israel said to his officers, 'You are aware that Ramoth in

o. Similar story, in the same popular style as the one in 13:24seq.; any disobedience to the word of God or of a man of God, even for good motives, will be punished; a notion reflecting the mentality of ancient prophetic communities but surpassed by the major prophets.

p. The wound was to help the prophet to pose as a combatant, v. 39.

q. The prophets possibly had a distinguishing tattoo or incision on their foreheads, or shaved their heads, see 2 K 2:23.

21 a. His palace in Jezreel, 18:45, not the one in Samaria, 2 K 9:25–26. Hence the explanatory Hebr. gloss to 'vineyard': 'which was in Jezreel'.

b. Hebr. adds 'of the city'.

c. In times of disaster, public fasting and public prayer were proclaimed. Jg 20:26; Jl 1:14; 2:15 to placate God and to discover the fault which had provoked his anger. There must have been some widespread calamity (drought? famine?) to give Jezebel an opportunity for her plot.

d. For a capital conviction, two witnesses were required, Nb 35:30; Dt 17:6; see Mt 26:60seq. Hebr. cautiously substitutes 'blessed' for 'cursed' as in v. 13, so also Jb 1:5, 11; 2:5, 9.

e. Apparently the possessions of those condemned to death reverted to the king.

f. Note the similarity with the episode of Nathan and David in 2 S 12; on each occasion Yahweh defends the helpless against the powerful and there is the same reprieve for the repentant offender who is punished only through his son. But there are differences too: David's dynasty retains the divine promise, whereas Ahab's is 'swept away'. Nathan remains David's prophet and blesses Solomon, but Elijah is Ahab's 'enemy'.

g. 'For this' Gk; Hebr. repeats 'You are to say this to him'.

h. 'in the field' MSS, versions; 'below the rampart' Hebr.

i. vv. 25–26 are the remarks of an editor unconvinced of the sincerity of Ahab's repentance, vv. 27–29.

22 a. The two kingdoms had drawn closer together: Jehoshaphat's son Jehoram had married Athaliah, Ahab's sister or daughter, 2 K 8:18.

Gilead belongs to us? And yet we do nothing to wrest it away from the king of Aram.'[b] •He said to Jehoshaphat, 'Will you come with me to attack Ramoth in 4 2 K 3:7 Gilead?' Jehoshaphat replied to the king of Israel, 'I will be as you, my men with yours, my horses with yours.'

‖2 Ch 18:4–11 The spurious prophets predict success

20:13–14,14g Jehoshaphat, however, said to the king of Israel, 'First, please enquire what the 5 word of Yahweh is.' •The king of Israel then called the prophets together, about 6 four hundred of them.[c] 'Should I go and attack Ramoth in Gilead,' he asked, 'or should I hold back?' 'Go ahead,' they replied, 'for Yahweh has already given it to 2 K 3:11 the king.' •Jehoshaphat, however, said, 'Is there no other prophet of Yahweh here, 7 so that we can enquire through him?' •The king of Israel said to Jehosha- 8 phat, 'There is one more man through whom we can consult Yahweh, but I hate him because he never has a favourable prophecy for me, only unfavourable ones;
he is Micaiah son of Imlah.'[d] 'I hope the king's words are unjustified,' said Jehoshaphat. •The king of Israel then summoned a court official and said, 'Bring 9 Micaiah son of Imlah immediately.'

The king of Israel and Jehoshaphat king of Judah were sitting each on his throne, 10 wearing their robes, in an open space just outside the gate of Samaria, with all the prophets in a state of ecstasy before them. •Zedekiah son of Kenaanah, who had 11 made himself some iron horns,[e] said, 'Yahweh says, "With horns like these you will gore the Aramaeans till you make an end of them." ' •And all the prophets 12 cried ecstatically in the same vein, saying, 'March on Ramoth in Gilead! Success is sure, for Yahweh has already given it to the king!'

‖2 Ch 18:12–27 The prophet Micaiah predicts defeat

The messenger who had gone to summon Micaiah said to him, 'Look here, what 13 the prophets are saying is uniformly favourable to the king. I hope you will say the same as they do and speak favourably.' •Micaiah said, 'As Yahweh lives, I shall 14 speak as Yahweh tells me!' •When he came to the king, the king said, 'Micaiah, 15 should we go and attack Ramoth in Gilead, or should we hold back?' He replied, 'Go ahead! Success is sure, for Yahweh has already given it to the king!'[f] •The king 16 then said, 'How often must I put you on oath to tell me nothing but the truth in the name of Yahweh?' •Then he spoke out: 17

Na 3:18 I saw all Israel scattered on the mountains
Nb 27:17+ like sheep without a shepherd.
And Yahweh said, 'These have no master,
22:35–36 let them all go safely home!'

At this the king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, 'Did I not tell you that he never 18 gives me favourable prophecies, but only unfavourable ones?' •Micaiah went on, 19 Jb 1:6;2:1 Is 6:1 'Now listen to the word of Yahweh. I saw Yahweh seated on his throne with the whole array of heaven[g] standing by him, on his right and on his left. •Yahweh said, 20
"Who will entice Ahab into marching to his death at Ramoth in Gilead?" At which some answered one way, and some another. •A spirit[h] then came forward and 21 stood before Yahweh and said, "I will entice him." •"How?" Yahweh asked. He 22 replied, "I shall go and be a deceptive spirit in the mouths of all his prophets." Yahweh said, "You will succeed in enticing him. Go and do it." •And now, you 23 see, Yahweh has put a deceptive spirit into the mouths of all your prophets here, for in fact Yahweh has pronounced disaster on you.'

Zedekiah son of Chenaanah then came up, struck Micaiah on the cheek and 24 said, 'Which way did Yahweh's spirit leave me, to speak to you?' •'That is what 25 you will find out,' Micaiah retorted, 'the day you go from room to room, trying to hide.' •The king of Israel said, 'Seize Micaiah and hand him over to Amon, 26 governor of the city, and Joash, the king's son, •and say, "These are the king's 27 orders: Put this man in prison and feed him on nothing but bread and water until I

28 am safely home." '[i] •Micaiah said, 'If you ever do get home safely, Yahweh has not spoken through me.'[j]

Ahab falls at Ramoth in Gilead

||2 Ch 18:28–34

29 The king of Israel and Jehoshaphat king of Judah marched on Ramoth in Gilead.
30 The king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, 'I shall disguise myself[k] to go into battle, but you put on your robes.' So the king of Israel disguised himself and went into 31 battle. •Now, the king of Aram had given his chariot commanders[l] the following 32 order, 'Do not attack anyone of whatever rank, except the king of Israel.' •So, when the chariot commanders saw Jehoshaphat, they thought, 'That is obviously the king of Israel,' and surrounded him to attack. But when Jehoshaphat shouted 33 his war cry •the chariot commanders, realising that he was not the king of Israel, broke off their pursuit.
34 Someone, however, drawing his bow without any special aim, shot the king of Israel between the joints of his armour. 'Turn about!' said the king to his chario-35 teer. 'Get me out of the fighting;[m] I am collapsing.' •But the battle grew fiercer as the day went on and the king had to be held upright in his chariot facing the Aramaeans, the blood from the wound running into the bottom of the chariot, 36 until in the evening he died. •At sundown a shout ran through the ranks, 'Every 22:17
37 man back to his town, every man back to his country! •The king is dead.'[n] He was 38 taken to Samaria and in Samaria the king was buried. •They washed the chariot[o] at the Pool of Samaria; the dogs licked up the blood, and the prostitutes washed in it, in accordance with the word which Yahweh had spoken.

F: AFTER THE DEATH OF AHAB

The end of the reign of Ahab

39 The rest of the history of Ahab, his entire career, the ivory house he erected, all Am 3:15 the towns he built, is this not recorded in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of 40 Israel? •When Ahab fell asleep with his ancestors, his son Ahaziah succeeded him.

The reign of Jehoshaphat in Judah (870–848)

||2 Ch 20:31–21:1

41 Jehoshaphat son of Asa became king of Judah in the fourth year of Ahab king of 42 Israel. •Jehoshaphat was thirty-five years old when he came to the throne, and he reigned for twenty-five years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Azubah daugh-43 ter of Shilhi. •In every way he followed the example of his father Asa undeviatingly, 44 doing what is pleasing to Yahweh. •The high places, however, were not abolished;
45 the people still offered sacrifice and incense on the high places. •Jehosha-phat was at peace with the king of Israel.
46 The rest of the history of Jehoshaphat, the valour he showed, the wars he waged, 47 is this not recorded in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Judah? •The few

b. Probably still Ben-Hadad II, see 20:1. The town, captured by the Aramaeans during or before the reign of David, had not been handed back after the treaty of Aphek, 20:34. see also 2 K 8:28.

c. These 'prophets' were in the king's service and were not pure Yahwists, unlike the prophets slain or persecuted by Jezebel, 18:4, 13; 19:1–4. Hence Jehoshaphat's question, v. 7.

d. Not the Micaiah ('Micah') numbered among the twelve 'minor prophets' who lived 150 years later.

e. This Zedekiah, otherwise unknown, is apparently the spokesman for the troop of ecstatics. His mime, see 11:30g and Jr 18:1a is intended to symbolise and even effect the triumph of Ahab. The horns symbolise strength, Dt 33:17.

f. Micaiah takes up the exact words of the false prophets; but he is ridiculing the king, and the king knows.

g. Celestial spirits forming Yahweh's court.

h. Personification of the spirit of prophecy, which the divine intention will transform into a spirit of deceit, v. 22.

i. Or 'victorious', see 8:9; 2 S 19:25–31; Jr 43:12.

j. Hebr. adds 'And he said, "Listen, peoples all", the opening words of the Book of Micah (Mi 1:2), inserted by a glossator who confused this Micaiah with the canonical prophet.

k. 'I shall disguise myself' versions; 'Disguise yourself' Hebr. in contradiction to what follows.

l. Hebr. adds 'thirty-two', a gloss inspired by 20:1, 16, but missing in 2 Ch. 18:30.

m. 'the fighting' Gk; 'the camp' Hebr.

n. 'The king is dead' Gk; 'And the king died' Hebr.

o. 'They washed' Gk; 'He washed' Hebr. The verse is a gloss referring back to 21:19, though in fact Naboth had been killed at Jezreel, and Yahweh had reserved Ahab's punishment for his son.

15:12 Dt 23:19f male sacred prostitutes left over from the days of his father Asa, he expelled from the country. ·At the time, Edom[p] had no king, and King ·Jehoshaphat[q] built 48, 49 ships of Tarshish to go to Ophir for gold, but they never made the voyage since the 9:26–28;10:22 ships were wrecked at Ezion-Geber. ·Ahaziah son of Ahab then proposed to 50
Jehoshaphat, 'Let my men go to sea with yours.' But Jehoshaphat would not agree.
When Jehoshaphat fell asleep with his ancestors he was buried[r] in the City of his 51 ancestor, David; his son Jehoram succeeded him.

King Ahaziah of Israel (853–852) and the prophet Elijah

Ahaziah son of Ahab became king of Israel in Samaria in the seventeenth year of 52
Jehoshaphat king of Judah, and reigned over Israel for two years. ·He did what is 53 displeasing to Yahweh, by following the example of his father and mother, and of Jeroboam son of Nebat who had led Israel into sin. ·He served Baal and wor- 54 shipped him, and provoked the anger of Yahweh God of Israel just as his father had done.

THE SECOND BOOK OF THE KINGS[a]

3:4–27 1 After Ahab's death Moab rebelled against Israel. 1 Ahaziah had fallen from the balcony of his upper room in Samaria, and was 2 lying ill; so he sent messengers, saying to them, 'Go and consult Baal-Zebub[b] god of Ekron and ask whether I shall recover from my illness.' ·But the angel of 3 Yahweh said to Elijah the Tishbite, 'Up! Go and intercept the king of Samaria's messengers. Say to them, "Is there no God in Israel, for you to go and consult Baal-Zebub god of Ekron? ·Yahweh says this: You will never leave the bed you 4 have got into; you are certainly going to die." ' And Elijah set out.
The messengers returned to the king, who said, 'Why have you come back?' ·'A 5, 6 man came to meet us,' they answered. 'He said, "Go back to the king who sent you and tell him: Yahweh says this: Is there no God in Israel, for you to go and consult Baal-Zebub god of Ekron? For this, you will never leave the bed you have got into;
you are certainly going to die." '
He said, 'This man who met you and said all this, what was he like?' ·'A man 7, 8
Zc 13:4+ wearing a hair cloak', they answered, 'and a leather loincloth.'[c] 'It was Elijah the Tishbite,' he said.
He then sent a captain of fifty soldiers with his fifty men to Elijah, whom they 9 found sitting on top of a hill; the captain went up to him and said, 'Man of God, the king says, "Come down." ' ·Elijah answered the captain, 'If I am a man of God, 10 Lk 9:54–55 may fire fall from heaven and destroy both you and your fifty men.' And fire fell from heaven and destroyed him and his fifty men. ·The king sent a second captain 11 of fifty to him, again with fifty men, and he too went up[d] and said, 'Man of God, this is the king's order, "Come down at once." ' ·Elijah answered them, 'If I am a 12
Jb 1:16i man of God, may fire fall from heaven and destroy both you and your fifty men.'
And lightning fell from heaven and destroyed him and his fifty men. ·The king then 13 sent a third captain of fifty to him, with another fifty men. The third captain of fifty came up to Elijah, fell on his knees before him and pleaded with him. 'Man of God,' he said, 'may my life and the lives of these fifty servants of yours count for something in your eyes. ·Fire has fallen from heaven and destroyed two captains of 14 fifties and their companies, but this time may my life count for something in your eyes!' ·The angel of Yahweh said to Elijah, 'Go down with him; do not be afraid of 15 him.' He rose and accompanied him down to the king, ·and said to him, 'Yahweh 16 says this, "Since you sent messengers to consult Baal-Zebub god of Ekron,[e] you will never leave the bed you have got into; you are certainly going to die." '[f]

17 And, in accordance with the word of Yahweh which Elijah had uttered, he died.
Since he had no son, his brother[g] Jehoram succeeded him, in the second year of 18 Jehoram son of Jehoshaphat, king of Judah.[h] •The rest of the history of Ahaziah, and his career, is this not recorded in the Book of the Annals of the Kings of Israel?

VI: THE ELISHA CYCLE

A: ITS OPENING

Elijah is taken up to heaven and Elisha succeeds him[a]

1 2 This is what happened when Yahweh took Elijah up to heaven in the whirl-
2 wind: Elijah and Elisha set out from Gilgal,[b] •and Elijah said to Elisha, 'You stay here, for Yahweh is only sending me to Bethel.' But Elisha replied, 'As Yahweh lives and as you yourself live, I will not leave you!' and they went down to 3 Bethel. •The brotherhood of prophets[c] living at Bethel came out to meet Elisha and said, 'Do you know that Yahweh will carry your lord and master away today?'
4 'Yes, I know,' he said, 'be quiet.' •Elijah said, 'Elisha, you stay here, Yahweh is only sending me to Jericho.' But he replied, 'As Yahweh lives and as you yourself 5 live, I will not leave you!' and they went on to Jericho. •The brotherhood of prophets living at Jericho went up to Elisha and said, 'Do you know that Yahweh will carry your lord and master away today?' 'Yes, I know,' he said, 'be quiet.' 6 Elijah said, 'Elisha, you stay here, Yahweh is only sending me to the Jordan.' But he replied, 'As Yahweh lives and as you yourself live, I will not leave you!' And they went on together.
7 Fifty of the brotherhood of prophets followed them, halting some distance away
8 as the two of them stood beside the Jordan. •Elijah took his cloak, rolled it up and 1 K 19:9i struck the water; and the water divided to left and right, and the two of them Ex 14:16,22 9 crossed over dry-shod. •When they had crossed, Elijah said to Elisha, 'Make your request. What can I do for you before I am snatched away from you?' Elisha 10 answered, 'Let me inherit a double share of your spirit.'[d] •'Your request is difficult,' Elijah said. 'If you see me while I am being snatched away from you, it will 11 be as you ask; if not, it will not be so.' •Now as they walked on, talking as they went, a chariot of fire appeared and horses of fire coming between the two of them; 6:16-17 12 and Elijah went up to heaven in the whirlwind. •Elisha saw it, and shouted, 'My Gn 5:24d father! My father! Chariot of Israel and its chargers!' Then he lost sight of him, and Si 48:9,12 13 taking hold of his own clothes he tore them in half. •He picked up Elijah's cloak •Ac 1:9–10m which had fallen, and went back and stood on the bank of the Jordan.
14 He took Elijah's cloak[e] and struck the water. 'Where is Yahweh, the God of

p. Text uncertain and interpretation disputed.

q. 'Jehoshaphat' detached from v. 49. Edom had asserted its independence in the later days of Solomon, 11:17seq., but by the time of Jehoshaphat had evidently been resubjected to the influence of the Davidic kings: hence Jehoshaphat's free access to the port of Ezion-Geber and his maritime projects, v. 49.

r. Hebr. adds 'with his ancestors'.

1 a. The division of Kings into two volumes is artificial; the earliest Hebr. Bible made no division.

b. Baal-Zebub 'Baal of Flies'; mocking pun on the god's real name which was Baal-Zebul 'Baal the Prince', Mt 10:25.

c. Elijah wore a loincloth and a flowing cloak, see 2:8, 13; 1 K 18:46.. So, too, certain other prophets. Zc 13:4, and John the Baptist, 'the second Elijah', Mt 3:4 par.

d. 'went up' Gk-Luc.; 'replied' Hebr.

e. Hebr. repeats the question of vv. 3 and 6.

f. vv. 9–16 are apparently an addition traceable back to disciples of Elisha, compare 2:23–24, the intention being to inculcate the respect and obedience due to God's representatives; other moral considerations are ignored.

g. 'his brother' versions; omitted by Hebr.

h. The date does not agree with 3:1 and is taken from a different system of reckoning.

2 a. This fine passage properly belongs to the Elisha cycle to which it acts as introduction.

b. This Gilgal, to the north of Bethel, is not the Gilgal of Jos 4:19b.

c. lit. 'the sons of the prophets'; these prophets formed compact groups and lived in community. Elisha, unlike the lone prophet Elijah, was closely associated with them.

d. The elder son inherited a double portion of his father's goods, Dt 21:17. Elisha wants to be acknowledged as Elijah's principal spiritual heir—an ambitious request since the prophetic spirit is not inherited, but is a gift of God; God, however, indicates that the request is granted by allowing Elisha to see what is hidden from human eyes, see v. 12 and 6:17; the 'brotherhood of the prophets' will see only the physical framework of the mystery.

e. After 'Elijah's cloak' Hebr. adds 'which had fallen from him' repeating v. 13. • After 'God of Elijah' Hebr. adds 'he too', a gloss referring back to 'he struck' v. 8.

Elijah?' he cried. As he struck the water it divided to right and left, and Elisha crossed over. ·The brotherhood of prophets[f] saw him in the distance, and said, 15
'The spirit of Elijah has come to rest on Elisha'; they went to meet him and bowed to the ground before him. ·'Look,' they said, 'your servants have fifty strong men 16 with them, let them go and look for your master; the Spirit of Yahweh may have 1 K 18:12c taken him up and thrown him down on a mountain or into a valley.' 'Send no one,' he replied. ·But they so shamed him with their insistence that he consented. So 17
Dt 34:6 Ml 3:23–24,24k they sent fifty men who searched for three days without finding him. ·They then 18 came back to Elisha who had stayed in Jericho; he said, 'Didn't I tell you not to go?'[g]

Two miracles of Elisha[h]

The people of the city said to Elisha, 'The city is pleasant to live in, as my lord 19 indeed can see, but the water is foul and the country suffers from miscarriages.'
'Bring me a new bowl,' he said, 'and put some salt in it.' They brought it to him. 20
Then he went to the source of the water, threw salt into it and said, 'Yahweh says 21
Ex 15:25seq. this, "I make this water wholesome: neither death nor miscarriage shall come from it any more." ' ·And the water became wholesome, as it is today, exactly as Elisha 22 had said it would.

From there he went up to Bethel, and while he was on the road, some small 23 boys came out of the town and jeered at him. 'Hurry up, baldy!' they shouted.
'Come on up, baldy!' ·He turned round and looked at them; and he cursed them 24 in the name of Yahweh. And two bears came out of the forest and savaged forty-two of the boys. ·From there he went on to Mount Carmel and then returned to 25 Samaria.

B: THE MOABITE WAR

Introduction to the reign of Jehoram in Israel (852–841)

3 Jehoram son of Ahab became king of Israel in Samaria in the eighteenth year 1 of Jehoshaphat king of Judah, and reigned for twelve years.[a] ·He did what is 2 displeasing to Yahweh, though not like his father and mother, for he did away with the pillar to Baal which his father had made. ·Nonetheless, he continued to practise 3 the sins into which Jeroboam son of Nebat had led Israel and did not give them up.

The expedition of Israel and Judah against Moab

Mesha king of Moab[b] was a sheep-breeder and used to pay the king of Israel a 4 hundred thousand lambs and a hundred thousand rams with their wool in tribute.
But when Ahab died, the king of Moab rebelled against the king of Israel. 5 1 K 22 At once King Jehoram left Samaria and mustered all Israel. ·After this he sent 6, 7 word to the king of Judah,[c] 'The king of Moab has rebelled against me. Will you 1 K 22:4 go to war with me against Moab?' 'I will,' he replied. 'I will be as you, my men with yours, my horses with yours,' ·and added, 'Which way are we to attack?' 'Through 8
the desert of Edom,' the other answered.

So they set out, the king of Israel, the king of Judah and the king of Edom.[d] 9
They carried out a flanking movement for seven days, until there was no water left for the troops or for the beasts of their baggage train. ·'Alas!' the king of Israel 10 exclaimed, 'Yahweh has summoned us three kings, only to put us into the power of 1 K 22:7 Moab.' ·But the king of Judah said, 'Is there no prophet of Yahweh here for us to 11 consult Yahweh through him?' One of the king of Israel's servants answered, 1 K 19:21 'Elisha son of Shaphat is here, who used to pour water on the hands of Elijah.'
'The word of Yahweh is with him,' the king of Judah said. So the king of Israel, the 12 king of Judah and the king of Edom went to consult him. ·But Elisha said to the 13 king of Israel, 'What business have you with me? Go to your father's and your mother's prophets.' 'No,' the king of Israel answered, 'Yahweh is the one who has summoned us three kings, only to put us into the power of Moab.' Elisha replied, 14 'By the life of Yahweh Sabaoth whom I serve, if I did not respect the king of Judah, 1 K 18:15

15 I would take no notice of you, nor so much as look at you. ·Now bring me someone 1 S 10:6
who can play the lyre.'[e] And as the musician played, the hand of Yahweh came on 1 K 18:46+ 16, 17 him ·and he said, 'Yahweh says this, "Dig in this valley ditch after ditch," ·for Yahweh says, "You will see no wind, you will see no rain, but this valley will become full of water, and you and your troops[f] and your baggage animals will 18 drink." ·But this is only a trifle in Yahweh's eyes, for he will put Moab itself into 19 your power. ·You will storm every fortified town,[g] fell every productive tree, block Dt 20:19 20 every water-hole, ruin all the best fields with stones.' ·Next morning at the time when the oblation was being offered, water came from the direction of Edom, and the whole terrain was flooded.

21 When the Moabites learned that the kings were advancing to fight them, all those of an age to bear arms were mobilised; they took up position on the frontier.
22 In the morning when they got up, the sun was shining on the water; and in the 23 distance the Moabites saw the water as red as blood.[h] ·'This is blood!' they said. 'The kings must have fought among themselves and killed one another. So now for 24 the booty, Moab!' ·But when they reached the Israelite camp, the Israelites launched their attack and the Moabites fled before them, and as they advanced[i]
25 they cut the Moabites to pieces. ·They laid the towns in ruins, and each man threw a stone into all the best fields to fill them up, and they blocked every water-hole and felled every productive tree. In the end, there was only Kir-Hareseth[j] left,
26 which the slingers surrounded and bombarded. ·When the king of Moab saw that the battle had turned against him, he mustered seven hundred swordsmen in the hope of breaking a way out and going to the king of Aram,[k] but he failed.
27 Then he took his eldest son who was to succeed him and offered him as a sacrifice Jg 11:29g,31+ Mi 6:7+ on the city wall. Alarmed at this,[l] the Israelites withdrew and retired to their own territory.

C: SOME MIRACLES OF ELISHA

The widow's oil

1 K 17:8–15

1 4 The wife of a member of the prophetic brotherhood appealed to Elisha. 'Your servant my husband is dead,' she said, 'and you know how your servant revered Yahweh. A creditor has now come to take my two children and make them his Mt 18:25

f. Hebr. adds 'who are at Jericho': gloss.

g. The fruitless search merely establishes the fact that Elijah is no longer in this world; what has become of him is a mystery on which Elisha is not prepared to elaborate. The text does not say that Elijah did not die, though this conclusion was in fact drawn. • On the 'second coming' of Elijah, see Ml 3:23–24,24k.

h. Narratives in the same vein as those of ch. 4. Elisha possesses a divine power to save or to destroy; those who recognise his mission benefit from it but those who mock the man of God come to grief.

3 a. This figure derives from some secondary chronological scheme. According to the most reliable dating, Jehoram of Israel probably reigned for only eight years.

b. The Mesha stone discovered at Dibon mentions the fact that Moab had been subject to Israel under Omri and Ahab, and it records the war of liberation, but it passes over the inglorious episode narrated here.

c. Here and in vv. 11, 12, 14 Hebr. gives the name of the king of Judah as Jehoshaphat; but the chronological data show that the war did not take place until the reign of his son, Jehoram of Judah. The name Jehoshaphat seems to have been added to the original text because of that king's piety and of the similar part he plays in 1 K 22: here, too, a king of Judah, as opposed to a king of Israel, appears as a devoted Yahwist, vv. 11, 13–14.

d. The king of Israel needs the co-operation of Judah and of the latter's vassal, Edom, to attack Moab from the south by passing round the Dead Sea through Edomite territory.

e. Music helps to stimulate ecstasy.

f. 'troops' Gk-Luc.; 'flocks' Hebr.

g. Hebr. adds 'and every choice town' Gk omits.

h. A tint due, probably, to the sands of the Wadi el-Hesa. There is a play on the words 'adom 'red', dam, 'blood' and the name Edom.

i. 'and as they advanced' Gk; Hebr. uncertain.

j. conj.; Hebr. reads 'all that remained of Kir-Hareseth was its stones'. Kir-Hareseth was the capital of Moab, Is 16:7, 11; Jr 48:31, 36; on the site of modern Kerak.

k. 'Aram' conj.; 'Edom' Hebr.

l. Trans. conj. The king of Moab sacrificed his son in a desperate attempt to placate his god Chemosh. Performed on the ramparts, the sacrifice provoked panic among the besiegers, who seem to have expected Chemosh to intervene.

slaves.' •Elisha said, 'What can I do for you? Tell me, what have you got in the 2 house?' 'Your servant has nothing in the house,' she replied, 'except a flask of oil.'
Then he said, 'Go outside and borrow jars from all your neighbours, empty jars 3 and not too few. •When you come back, shut the door on yourself and your sons, 4 and pour the oil into all these jars, putting each aside when it is full.' •So she left 5 him; and she shut the door on herself and her sons; they passed her the jars and she went on pouring. •When the jars were full, she said to her son, 'Pass me another 6 jar.' 'There are no more,' he replied. Then the oil stopped flowing. •She went and 7 told the man of God, [a] who said, 'Go and sell the oil and redeem your pledge; you and your children can live on the remainder.'

The woman of Shunem and her son

1 K 1:3 One day as Elisha was on his way to Shunem, a woman of rank who lived there 8 pressed him to stay and eat there. After this he always broke his journey for a meal when he passed that way. •She said to her husband, 'Look, I am sure the man who 9 is constantly passing our way must be a holy man of God. •Let us build him a small 10 walled room, and put him a bed in it, and a table and chair and lamp; whenever he comes to us he can rest there.' •One day when he came, he retired to the upper 11 room and lay down. •He said to his servant Gehazi, 'Call our Shunammite.' He 12 called her and when she appeared, Elisha said, •'Tell her this: "Look, you have 13 gone to all this trouble for us, what can we do for you? Is there anything you would like said for you to the king or to the commander of the army?" ' But she replied, 'I live with my own people about me.' [b] •'What can I do for you then?' he asked. 14
Gehazi replied, 'Well, she has no son and her husband is old.' •Elisha said, 'Call 15 her.' The servant called her and she stood at the door. •'This time next 16 Gn 18:10 year', he said, 'you will hold a son in your arms.' But she said, 'No, my lord, [c] do not deceive your servant.' •But the woman did conceive, and she gave birth to a 17 son at the time [d] that Elisha had said she would.

The child grew up; one day he went to his father who was with the reapers, 18
1 K 17:17–24 and exclaimed to his father, 'Oh, my head! My head!' The father told a servant to 19 carry him to his mother. •He lifted him up and took him to his mother, and the boy 20 lay on her lap until midday, when he died. •She went upstairs, laid him on the bed 21 of the man of God, shut the door on him and went out. [e] •She called her husband 22 and said, 'Send me one of the servants with a donkey. I must hurry to the man of God and back.' •'Why go to him today?' he asked. 'It is not New Moon or 23
Sabbath.' [f] But she replied, 'Never mind.' •She had the donkey saddled and said to 24 her servant, 'Lead on, go! Do not draw rein until I give the order.' •She set off 25 and made her way to the man of God at Mount Carmel. When the man of God saw her in the distance, he said to his servant Gehazi, 'Look, here comes our Shunammite! •Now run and meet her and ask her, "Are you well? Is your husband well? 26 Your child well?" ' 'Yes,' she replied. •When she came to the man of God there on 27 the mountain, she took hold of his feet. Gehazi stepped forward to push her away, but the man of God said, 'Leave her; there is bitterness in her soul and Yahweh has hidden it from me, he has not told me.' •She said, 'Did I ask my lord for a son? Did 28
I not say: Don't deceive me?'

Elisha said to Gehazi, 'Hitch up your clothes, take my staff in your hand and go. 29
Lk 10:4 If you meet anyone, do not greet him; if anyone greets you, do not answer him. [g]
You are to stretch out my staff [h] over the child.' •But the child's mother said, 'As 30 Yahweh lives and as you yourself live, I will not leave you.' Then he stood up and followed her. •Gehazi had gone ahead of them and had stretched out the staff over 31 the child, but there was no sound or response. He went back to meet Elisha and told him. 'The child has not woken up,' he said. •Elisha then went to the house, 32 and there on his bed lay the child, dead. •He went in and shut the door on the two 33 1 K 17:21 of them and prayed to Yahweh. •Then he climbed on to the bed and stretched 34 himself on top of the child, putting his mouth on his mouth, his eyes to his eyes, and his hands on his hands, and as he lowered himself on to him, the child's flesh 35 grew warm. ·Then he got up and walked to and fro inside the house, and then climbed on to the bed again and lowered himself on to the child seven times in all;

36 then the child sneezed[i] and opened his eyes. ·He then summoned Gehazi. 'Call our Shunammite,' he said. He called her. When she came to him, he said, 'Pick up 37 your son.' ·She went in and, falling at his feet, prostrated herself on the floor and then picked up her son and went out.

The poisoned soup

38 Elisha went back to Gilgal while there was famine in the country. As the brother- 2:1
hood of prophets were sitting with him, he said to his servant, 'Put the large pot on 39 the fire and cook some soup for the brotherhood.' ·One of them went into the fields to gather herbs and came on some wild vine, off which he gathered enough gourds[j] to fill his lap. On his return, he cut them up into the pot of soup; they did
40 not know what they were. ·They then poured the soup out for the men to eat, but they had no sooner tasted the soup than they cried, 'Man of God, there is death in 41 the pot!' And they could not eat it. ·'Bring some meal then,' Elisha said. This he threw into the pot, and said, 'Pour out, for the company to eat!' And there was nothing harmful in the pot.

The multiplication of loaves

Mt 14:13–21,13c; 15:32–38+

42 A man came from Baal-Shalishah, bringing the man of God bread from the first-fruits, twenty barley loaves and fresh grain still in the husk.[k] 'Give it to the 43 company to eat,' Elisha said. ·But his servant replied, 'How can I serve this to a hundred men?' 'Give it to the company to eat,' he insisted, 'for Yahweh says this,
44 "They will eat and have some left over." ' ·He served them; they ate and had some left over, as Yahweh had said.

Naaman is healed

1 5 Naaman, army commander to the king of Aram, was a man who enjoyed his master's respect and favour, since through him Yahweh had granted victory to
2 the Aramaeans.[a] ·But the man suffered from a virulent skin-disease.[b] Now, on one of their raids into Israelite territory, the Aramaeans had carried off a little girl,
3 who became a servant of Naaman's wife. ·She said to her mistress, 'If only my master would approach the prophet of Samaria! He would cure him of his skin-
4 disease.' ·Naaman went and told his master. 'This and this', he reported, 'is what
5 the girl from Israel has said.' ·'Go by all means,' said the king of Aram, 'I shall send a letter to the king of Israel.' So Naaman left, taking with him ten talents of 6 silver, six thousand shekels of gold and ten festal robes. ·He presented the letter to the king of Israel. It read, 'With this letter, I am sending my servant Naaman to 7 you for you to cure him of his skin-disease.' ·When the king of Israel read the letter, he tore his clothes. 'Am I a god to give death and life,' he said, 'for him to Gn 30:2 1 S 2:6+

4 a. Normal title for Elisha in stories emanating from the brotherhood of prophets, see ch. 4 passim, 7:17.

b. Elisha offers to approach the king on her behalf. The woman proudly replies that the protection of her own clan is enough for her.

c. 'my lord' Gk; 'my lord man of God' Hebr.

d. 'At the time' conj.; Hebr. repeats 'this time next year' from v. 16.

e. Her faith in Elisha is absolute: he has obtained a son for her, he can restore him; meanwhile, no one must know of the death, v. 23, which she conceals.

f. It was evidently the custom on feastdays to visit people with a reputation for holiness.

g. 'Do not greet him'; sign that the mission is urgent.

h. The staff of Elisha (like that of Moses, Ex 4:17) was apparently credited with magical powers, but the sequel shows that nothing could be done without the prophet's prayer and presence.

i. Following the order of the Gk and Vet. Lat. Hebr. reads 'seven times' after 'child sneezed'. God breathed the breath of life into Adam's nostrils, Gn 2:7, and it is through the nostrils that man breathes, Is 2:22. The sneeze shows that life has returned.

j. Very bitter and violently purgative.

k. Trans. conj. Some emend: 'in his scrip'.

5 a. Yahweh, God of all nations, guides the destiny of Aram as he guides that of Israel; the doctrine of this chapter is that of 1 K 18.

b. Before 'suffered from a virulent skin-disease', Hebr. reads 'was a brave man and'; Gk-Luc. omits. His skin disease, like that of Gehazi, v. 27, is perhaps no more than some lesser skin-disease since it does not preclude social contacts, see Lv 13:1a.

send a man to me and ask me to cure him of his skin-disease? Listen to this and take note of it and see how he intends to pick a quarrel with me.'

When Elisha [c] heard that the king of Israel had torn his clothes, he sent word to 8 the king, 'Why have you torn your clothes? Let him come to me, and he will find there is a prophet in Israel.' •So Naaman came with his team and chariot and drew 9 up at the door of Elisha's house. •And Elisha sent him a messenger to say, 'Go and 10 Jn 9:7 bathe seven times in the Jordan, and your flesh will become clean once more.'
But Naaman was indignant and went off, saying, 'Here was I, thinking he would be 11 sure to come out to me, and stand there, and call on the name of Yahweh his God, and wave his hand over the spot and cure the part that was diseased.
Surely, Abana and Parpar, the rivers of Damascus, are better than any water in 12 Israel? Could I not bathe in them and become clean?' And he turned round and went off in a rage. •But his servants approached him and said, 'Father, if the 13 prophet had asked you to do something difficult, would you not have done it? All the more reason, then, when he says to you, "Bathe, and you will become clean." ' Mt 3:13–15par. ↗Lk 4:27 So he went down and immersed himself seven times in the Jordan, as Elisha had 14 told him to do. And his flesh became clean once more like the flesh of a little child.

Returning to Elisha with his whole escort, he went in and, presenting himself, 15 said, 'Now I know that there is no God anywhere on earth except in Israel. [d] Now, please, accept a present from your servant.' •But Elisha replied, 'As Yahweh lives, 16 whom I serve, I will accept nothing.' Naaman pressed him to accept, but he refused. •Then Naaman said, 'Since your answer is "No," allow your servant to be 17 given as much earth as two mules may carry, since your servant will no longer make burnt offerings or sacrifice to any god except Yahweh. •Only—and may Yahweh 18 forgive your servant for this—when my master goes to the temple of Rimmon to worship there, he leans on my arm, and I bow down in the temple of Rimmon when he does; [e] may Yahweh forgive your servant for doing this!' •'Go in peace,' [f] Elisha 19 replied.

Naaman had gone a small distance, when Gehazi, Elisha's servant, said to 20 himself, 'My master has let this Aramaean Naaman off lightly, by not accepting what he offered. As Yahweh lives, I will run after him and get something out of him.' •So Gehazi set off in pursuit of Naaman. When Naaman saw him running 21 after him, he jumped down from his chariot to meet him. 'Is all well?' he asked.
'All is well,' he said. 'My master has sent me to say, "This very moment two young 22 men of the prophetic brotherhood have arrived from the highlands of Ephraim. Be kind enough to give them a talent of silver and two festal robes." '•'Please 23 accept two talents,' Naaman replied, and pressed him, tying up the two talents of silver in two bags with the two festal robes and consigning them to two of his servants who carried them ahead of Gehazi. •When he reached Ophel, [g] he took 24 these from them and put them away in the house. He then dismissed the men, who went away.

He, for his part, went and presented himself to his master. Elisha said, 'Gehazi, 25 where have you been?' 'Your servant has not been anywhere,' he replied. •But 26 Elisha said to him, 'Was not my heart present there when someone left his chariot to meet you? Now you have taken the money, you can buy gardens with it, and olive groves, sheep and oxen, male and female slaves. •But Naaman's disease of 27 the skin will cling to you and your descendants for ever.' And Gehazi left his

The axe lost and found

6 The brotherhood of prophets said to Elisha, 'Look, the place [a] where we are 1 living with you is too small for us. •Let us go to the Jordan, then, and each of us 2 cut a beam there, and we will make our living quarters there.' He replied, 'Go.'
'Be good enough to go with your servants,' one of them said. 'I will go,' he replied, 3 and went with them. On reaching the Jordan they began cutting down timber. 4
But, as one of them was felling his beam, the iron axehead fell into the water. 5

6 'Alas, my lord,' he exclaimed, 'and it was a borrowed one too!' ·'Where did it fall?'
the man of God asked; and he showed him the spot. Then, cutting a stick, Elisha 7 threw it in at that point and made the iron axehead float. ·'Lift it out,' he said; and the man stretched out his hand and took it.

D: THE ARAMAEAN WARS

Elisha captures an armed band of Aramaeans

8 The king of Aram was at war with Israel. He conferred with his officers and said, 9 'You must attack[b] at such and such a place.' ·Elisha, however, sent word to the king of Israel, 'Be on your guard about such and such a place, because the 10 Aramaeans are going to attack it.'[c] ·The king of Israel accordingly sent men to the place which Elisha had named. And he kept warning the king, and the king stayed on the alert; and this happened more than once or twice.
11 The king of Aram grew very much disturbed over this. He summoned his officers, and said, 'Tell me which of you is betraying us[d] to the king of Israel.'
12 'No one, my lord king,' one of his officers replied. 'It is Elisha, the prophet in Israel. The words you utter in your bedchamber, he reveals to the king of Israel.'
13 'Go and find out where he is,' the king said, 'so that I can send people to capture 14 him.' Word was brought to him, 'He is now in Dothan.' ·So he sent horses and chariots there, and a large force; and these, arriving during the night, surrounded the town.
15 Next day, Elisha got up early[e] and went out; and there surrounding the town was an armed force with horses and chariots. 'Oh, my lord,' his servant said, 'what 16 are we to do?' ·'Do not be afraid,' he replied, 'for there are more on our side than 17 on theirs.' ·And Elisha prayed. 'Yahweh,' he said, 'open his eyes and make him see.' Yahweh opened the servant's eyes, and he saw the mountain covered in fiery 2:10–12;7:6 Ps 68:17j horses and chariots surrounding Elisha.
18 As the Aramaeans came down towards him, Elisha prayed to Yahweh, 'I beg you to strike these people sun-blind.' And, at Elisha's word, he struck them sun- Gn 19:11 19 blind.[f] ·Then Elisha said to them, 'This is not the road, nor is this the town. Follow me; I shall lead you to the man you are looking for.' But he led them to Samaria.
20 As they entered Samaria, Elisha said, 'Yahweh, open these people's eyes, and let them see.' Yahweh opened their eyes and they saw; they were inside Samaria.
21 When the king of Israel saw them, he said to Elisha, 'Shall I kill them, father?'[g]
22 'Do not kill them,' he replied. 'Do you kill your own prisoners with sword and bow?[h] Offer them food and water, so that they can eat and drink, and then 23 let them go back to their master.' ·So the king provided a great feast for them;

c. Gk reads 'Elisha' instead of Hebr. 'Elisha man of God' here and v. 20, or merely 'man of God, vv. 14–15; 6:9–10; 7:2:17. We follow Gk since the longer narratives about Elisha seem in their earliest form to have called him by his name unadorned. The anecdotes collected by the prophetic brotherhood on the other hand referred to him as 'the man of God', see 4:7, which title seems to have been added in other passages.

d. Although Yahweh is the only true God, his territorial relationship to Israel is uppermost in Naaman's mind. Hence Naaman takes soil from Samaria to raise an altar to Yahweh in Damascus. For the same mentality as regards territorial gods, see the panic of the allies at the human sacrifice offered by the king of Moab to Chemosh, 3:24–27.

e. 'when he does' Gk and Vulg.; 'when I bow down in the temple of Rimmon' Hebr., doublet. • Rimmon: another name for Hadad, the storm-god and territorial god of Damascus.

f. Elisha excuses this outward gesture of idolatry.

g. There was also an Ophel in Jerusalem. In both cases, it was the fortified eminence on which stood the royal palace. The word means 'excrescence'.

h. The end of the v. is uncertain, and is here reconstructed from the Gk.

6 a. Probably Gilgal where Elisha sometimes lived with the prophets, 4:38.

b. 'You are to attack' tinhatu conj.; Hebr. tahanoti unintelligible.

c. 'about' ba'abur conj.; Hebr. me'abor '(beware of) going to'. • 'attack' conj., see v. 8; Hebr. unintelligible.

d. 'betraying us' Gk; Hebr. uncertain

e. 'Next day (Elisha got up)' mimmohorat conj.; see rest of the v.; Hebr. mesharet 'the servant (of the man of God got up)'.

f. Not to blind them totally but to daze them, compare Gn 19:11, whereas to the servant, v. 17, God had revealed what was invisible to normal sight.

g. Term of address showing the king's respect for the prophet, see 8:9; 13:14.

h. Unless a curse of destruction had been pronounced by Yahweh, and apart from individual cases, it was not Israelite custom to kill prisoners of war, see 1 K 20:31.

and when they had eaten and drunk, he sent them off and they went back to their master. Aramaean raiding parties never invaded the territory of Israel again.

Samaria besieged; the famine

It happened after this that Ben-Hadad king of Aram,[i] mustering his whole army, 24 marched on and laid siege to Samaria. ·In Samaria there was great famine, and so 25 strict was the siege that the head of a donkey sold for eighty shekels of silver, and one quarter-kab of wild onions[j] for five shekels of silver.

Now as the king was passing along the city wall, a woman shouted, 'Help, my 26 lord king!' ·'If Yahweh does not help you,' he retorted, 'where can I find help for 27 you? From the threshing-floor? From the winepress?' ·Then the king asked, 'What 28 Dt 28:53–57 is the matter?' 'This woman here', she answered, 'said to me, "Give up your son; we will eat him today, and eat my son tomorrow." ·So we cooked my son and ate 29 him. Next day, I said to her, "Give up your son for us to eat." But she has hidden 1 K 20:31;21:27 her son.' ·On hearing the woman's words, the king tore his clothes; the king was 30 walking on the wall, and the people saw that underneath he was wearing sackcloth Rt 1:17f next his body. ·'May God bring unnameable ills on me, and worse ills, too,' he 31 said, 'if the head of Elisha son of Shaphat remains on his shoulders today!'[k]

Elisha foretells imminent relief

Elisha was sitting in his house, and the elders were sitting with him. The king sent 32 a messenger ahead but, before the man arrived, Elisha had said to the elders, 'Do you see how this son of a murderer has given orders to cut off my head? Look, when the messenger comes, shut the door; hold the door against him. Isn't that the sound of his master's step behind him?' ·He was still actually speaking, when the 33 king[l] arrived and said, 'This misery plainly comes from Yahweh. Why should I still trust in Yahweh?'

7 'Listen to the word of Yahweh,' Elisha said. 'Yahweh says this, "By this time 1 tomorrow a measure of finest flour will sell for one shekel, and two measures of barley for one shekel, at the gate of Samaria." ' ·The equerry on whose arm the 2
Gn 7:11;8:2 Is 24:18 Ml 3:10 king was leaning retorted to Elisha, 'Even if Yahweh made windows in the sky, could this word come true?' 'You will see it with your own eyes,' Elisha replied,
7:17 'though you will eat none of it.'

19:35–36 The Aramaean camp is found abandoned

Lv 13:46 Now at the entrance to the gate—for they were afflicted with virulent skin-dis- 3 ease—there were four men and they debated among themselves, 'Why sit here waiting for death? ·If we decide to go into the city, what with the famine in it, we 4 shall die there; if we stay where we are, we shall die just the same. Come on, let us go over to the Aramaean camp; if they spare our lives, we live; if they kill us, well, then we die.' ·So at dusk they set out and made for the Aramaean camp, but when 5 they reached the confines of the camp there was not a soul there. ·For Yahweh had 6
