2.14: On the ground of 1.20, Daniel and his friends were counted among the court's wise men. In what follows, Daniel represents the ideal sage. 18–19: This is a mystery, but through prayer even mysteries may be revealed by God's wisdom (v. 30).

for wisdom and power are his.

24 Therefore Daniel went to Arioch, whom the king had appointed to destroy the wise men of Babylon, and said to him, "Do not destroy the wise men of Babylon; bring me in before the king, and I will give the king the interpretation."

25 Then Arioch quickly brought Daniel before the king and said to him: "I have found among the exiles from Judah a man who can tell the king the interpretation." 26 The king said to Daniel, whose name was Belteshazzar, "Are you able to tell me the dream that I have seen and its interpretation?" 27 Daniel answered the king, "No wise men, enchanters, magicians, or diviners can show to the king the mystery that the king is asking, 28 but there is a God in heaven who reveals mysteries, and he has disclosed to King Nebuchadnezzar what will happen at the end of days. Your dream and the visions of your head as you lay in bed were these: 29 To you, O king, as you lay in bed, came thoughts of what would be hereafter, and the revealer of mysteries disclosed to you what is to be. 30 But as for me, this mystery has not been revealed to me because of any wisdom that I have more than any other living being, but in order that the interpretation may be known to the king and that you may understand the thoughts of your mind.

31 "You were looking, O king, and lo! there was a great statue. This statue was huge, its brilliance extraordinary; it was standing before you, and its appearance was frightening. 32 The head of that statue was of fine gold, its chest and arms of silver, its middle and thighs of bronze, 33 its legs of iron, its feet partly of iron and partly of clay. 34 As you looked on, a stone was cut out, not by human hands, and it struck the statue on its feet of iron and clay and broke them in pieces. 35 Then the iron, the clay, the bronze, the silver, and the gold, were all broken in pieces and became like the chaff of the summer threshing floors; and the wind carried them away, so that not a trace of them could be found. But the stone that struck the statue became a great mountain and filled the whole earth.

36 "This was the dream; now we will tell the king its interpretation. 37 You, O king, the king of kings—to whom the God of heaven has given the kingdom, the power, the might, and the glory, 38 into whose hand he has given human beings, wherever they live, the wild animals of the field, and the birds of the air, and whom he has established as ruler over them all—you are the head of gold. 39 After you shall arise another kingdom inferior to yours, and yet a third kingdom of bronze, which shall rule over the whole earth. 40 And there shall be a fourth kingdom, strong as iron; just as iron crushes and smashes everything,[c] it shall crush and shatter all these. 41 As you

It shall crush all these kingdoms and bring them to an end, and it shall stand forever; 45just as you saw that a stone was cut from the mountain not by hands, and that it crushed the iron, the bronze, the clay, the silver, and the gold. The great God has informed the king what shall be hereafter. The dream is certain, and its interpretation trustworthy."

46 Then King Nebuchadnezzar fell on his face, worshiped Daniel, and commanded that a grain offering and incense be offered to him. 47The king said to Daniel, "Truly, your God is God of gods and Lord of kings and a revealer of mysteries, for you have been able to reveal this mystery!" 48Then the king promoted Daniel, gave him many great gifts, and made him ruler over the whole province of Babylon and chief prefect over all the wise men of Babylon. 49Daniel made a request of the king, and he appointed Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego over the affairs of the province of Babylon. But Daniel remained at the king's court.

3 King Nebuchadnezzar made a golden statue whose height was sixty cubits and whose width was six cubits; he set it up on the plain of Dura in the province of Babylon. 2Then King Nebuchadnezzar sent for the satraps, the prefects, and the governors, the counselors, the treasurers, the justices, the magistrates, and all the officials of the provinces, to assemble and come to the dedication of the statue that King Nebuchadnezzar had set up. 3So the satraps, the prefects, and the governors, the counselors, the treasurers, the justices, the magistrates, and all the officials of the provinces, assembled for the dedication of the statue that King Nebuchadnezzar had set up. When they were standing before the statue that Nebuchadnezzar had set up, 4the herald proclaimed aloud, "You are commanded, O peoples, nations, and languages, 5that when you hear the sound of the horn, pipe, lyre, trigon, harp, drum, and entire musical ensemble, you are to fall down and worship the golden statue that King Nebuchadnezzar has set up. 6Whoever does not fall down and worship shall immediately be thrown into a furnace of blazing fire." 7Therefore, as soon as all the peoples heard the sound of the horn, pipe, lyre, trigon, harp, drum, and entire musical ensemble, all the peoples, nations, and languages fell down and worshiped the golden statue that King Nebuchadnezzar had set up.

8 Accordingly, at this time certain Chaldeans came forward and denounced the Jews. 9They said to King Nebuchadnezzar, "O king, live forever! 10You, O king, have made a decree, that everyone who hears the sound of the horn, pipe, lyre, trigon, harp, drum, and entire

These pay no heed to you, O king. They do not serve your gods and they do not worship the golden statue that you have set up."

13 Then Nebuchadnezzar in furious rage commanded that Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego be brought in; so they brought those men before the king. 14 Nebuchadnezzar said to them, "Is it true, O Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, that you do not serve my gods and you do not worship the golden statue that I have set up? 15 Now if you are ready when you hear the sound of the horn, pipe, lyre, trigon, harp, drum, and entire musical ensemble to fall down and worship the statue that I have made, well and good.[e] But if you do not worship, you shall immediately be thrown into a furnace of blazing fire, and who is the god that will deliver you out of my hands?"

16 Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego answered the king, "O Nebuchadnezzar, we have no need to present a defense to you in this matter. 17 If our God whom we serve is able to deliver us from the furnace of blazing fire and out of your hand, O king, let him deliver us.[f] 18 But if not, be it known to you, O king, that we will not serve your gods and we will not worship the golden statue that you have set up."

19 Then Nebuchadnezzar was so filled with rage against Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego that his face was distorted. He ordered the furnace heated up seven times more than was customary, 20 and ordered some of the strongest guards in his army to bind Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego and to throw them into the furnace of blazing fire. 21 So the men were bound, still wearing their tunics,[g] their trousers,[g] their hats, and their other garments, and they were thrown into the furnace of blazing fire. 22 Because the king's command was urgent and the furnace was so overheated, the raging flames killed the men who lifted Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego. 23 But the three men, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, fell down, bound, into the furnace of blazing fire.

24 Then King Nebuchadnezzar was astonished and rose up quickly. He said to his counselors, "Was it not three men that we threw bound into the fire?" They answered the king, "True, O king." 25 He replied, "But I see four men unbound, walking in the middle of the fire, and they are not hurt; and the fourth has the appearance of a god."[h] 26 Nebuchadnezzar then approached the door of the furnace of blazing fire and said, "Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, servants of the Most High God, come out! Come here!" So Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego came out from the fire. 27 And the satraps, the prefects, the governors, and the king's counselors gathered together and saw that the fire had not had any power over the bodies of those men; the hair of their heads was not singed, their tunics[g] were not harmed, and not even the smell of fire came from them. 28 Nebuchadnezzar said, "Blessed be the God of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-

His kingdom is an everlasting kingdom,

4[j] I, Nebuchadnezzar, was living at ease in my home and prospering in my palace. 5I saw a dream that frightened me; my fantasies in bed and the visions of my head terrified me. 6So I made a decree that all the wise men of Babylon should be brought before me, in order that they might tell me the interpretation of the dream. 7Then the magicians, the enchanters, the Chaldeans, and the diviners came in, and I told them the dream, but they could not tell me its interpretation. 8At last Daniel came in before me—he who was named Belteshazzar after the name of my god, and who is endowed with a spirit of the holy gods[k]—and I told him the dream: 9"O Belteshazzar, chief of the magicians, I know that you are endowed with a spirit of the holy gods[k] and that no mystery is too difficult for you. Hear[l] the dream that I saw; tell me its interpretation.

12 Its foliage was beautiful,
its fruit abundant,
and it provided food for all.
The animals of the field found shade under it,
the birds of the air nested in its branches,
and from it all living beings were fed.

'Cut down the tree and chop off its branches,
strip off its foliage and scatter its fruit.
Let the animals flee from beneath it and the birds from its branches.

18 "This is the dream that I, King Nebuchadnezzar, saw. Now you, Belteshazzar, declare the interpretation, since all the wise men of my kingdom are unable to tell me the interpretation. You are able, however, for you are endowed with a spirit of the holy gods."[n]

19 Then Daniel, who was called Belteshazzar, was severely distressed for a while. His thoughts terrified him. The king said, "Belteshazzar, do not let the dream or the interpretation terrify you." Belteshazzar answered, "My lord, may the dream be for those who hate you, and its interpretation for your enemies! 20 The tree that you saw, which grew great and strong, so that its top reached to heaven and was visible to the end of the whole earth, 21 whose foliage was beautiful and its fruit abundant, and which provided food for all, under which animals of the field lived, and in whose branches the birds of the air had nests— 22 it is you, O king! You have grown great and strong. Your greatness has increased and reaches to heaven, and your sovereignty to the ends of the earth. 23 And whereas the king saw a holy watcher coming down from heaven and saying, 'Cut down the tree and destroy it, but leave its stump and roots in the ground, with a band of iron and bronze, in the grass of the field; and let him be bathed with the dew of heaven, and let his lot be with the animals of the field, until seven times pass over him'— 24 this is the interpretation, O king, and it is a decree of the Most High that has come upon my lord the king: 25 You shall be driven away from human society, and your dwelling shall be with the wild animals. You shall be made to eat grass like oxen, you shall be bathed with the dew of heaven, and seven times shall pass over you, until you have learned that the Most High has sovereignty over the kingdom of mortals, and gives it to whom he will. 26 As it was commanded to leave the stump and roots of the tree, your kingdom shall be re-established for you from the time that you learn that Heaven is sovereign. 27 Therefore, O king, may my counsel be acceptable to you: atone for[o] your sins with righteousness, and your iniquities with beings, as a kind of heavenly council, execute the sentence given by God (v. 17). 16: The seven times means a conventional number of years. 19: Distressed, i.e. embarrassed and perplexed, so he uses a stereotyped formula of aversion. 22: The tree is you, for a tree not uncommonly symbolized a man (Pss 1.3; 37.35; Jer 17.8).

mercy to the oppressed, so that your prosperity may be prolonged."

28 All this came upon King Nebuchadnezzar. 29 At the end of twelve months he was walking on the roof of the royal palace of Babylon, 30 and the king said, "Is this not magnificent Babylon, which I have built as a royal capital by my mighty power and for my glorious majesty?" 31 While the words were still in the king's mouth, a voice came from heaven: "O King Nebuchadnezzar, to you it is declared: The kingdom has departed from you! 32 You shall be driven away from human society, and your dwelling shall be with the animals of the field. You shall be made to eat grass like oxen, and seven times shall pass over you, until you have learned that the Most High has sovereignty over the kingdom of mortals and gives it to whom he will." 33 Immediately the sentence was fulfilled against Nebuchadnezzar. He was driven away from human society, ate grass like oxen, and his body was bathed with the dew of heaven, until his hair grew as long as eagles' feathers and his nails became like birds' claws.

34 When that period was over, I, Nebuchadnezzar, lifted my eyes to heaven, and my reason returned to me.

I blessed the Most High,
and praised and honored the one who lives forever.
For his sovereignty is an everlasting sovereignty,
and his kingdom endures from generation to generation.
35 All the inhabitants of the earth are accounted as nothing, and he does what he wills with the host of heaven and the inhabitants of the earth.
There is no one who can stay his hand or say to him, "What are you doing?"

36 At that time my reason returned to me; and my majesty and splendor were restored to me for the glory of my kingdom. My counselors and my lords sought me out, I was re-established over my kingdom, and still more greatness was added to me. 37 Now I, Nebuchadnezzar, praise and extol and honor the King of heaven, for all his works are truth,

and his ways are justice;
and he is able to bring low those who walk in pride.

5 King Belshazzar made a great festival for a thousand of his lords, and he was drinking wine in the presence of the thousand.

2 Under the influence of the wine, Belshazzar commanded that they bring in the vessels of gold and silver that his father Nebuchadnezzar had taken out of the temple in Jerusalem, so that the king and his lords, his wives, and his concubines might drink from them. 3 So they brought in the vessels of gold and silver[p] that had been taken out of the temple, the house of God in Jerusalem, and the king and his lords, his wives, and his concubines drank from them. 4 They drank the wine and praised the gods of gold and silver, bronze, iron, wood, and stone.

hand appeared and began writing on the plaster of the wall of the royal palace, next to the lampstand. The king was watching the hand as it wrote. 6Then the king's face turned pale, and his thoughts terrified him. His limbs gave way, and his knees knocked together. 7The king cried aloud to bring in the enchanters, the Chaldeans, and the diviners; and the king said to the wise men of Babylon, "Whoever can read this writing and tell me its interpretation shall be clothed in purple, have a chain of gold around his neck, and rank third in the kingdom." 8Then all the king's wise men came in, but they could not read the writing or tell the king the interpretation. 9Then King Belshazzar became greatly terrified and his face turned pale, and his lords were perplexed.

10 The queen, when she heard the discussion of the king and his lords, came into the banqueting hall. The queen said, "O king, live forever! Do not let your thoughts terrify you or your face grow pale. 11There is a man in your kingdom who is endowed with a spirit of the holy gods.[q] In the days of your father he was found to have enlightenment, understanding, and wisdom like the wisdom of the gods. Your father, King Nebuchadnezzar, made him chief of the magicians, enchanters, Chaldeans, and diviners,[r] 12because an excellent spirit, knowledge, and understanding to interpret dreams, explain riddles, and solve problems were found in this Daniel, whom the king named Belteshazzar. Now let Daniel be called, and he will give the interpretation."

13 Then Daniel was brought in before the king. The king said to Daniel, "So you are Daniel, one of the exiles of Judah, whom my father the king brought from Judah? 14I have heard of you that a spirit of the gods[s] is in you, and that enlightenment, understanding, and excellent wisdom are found in you. 15Now the wise men, the enchanters, have been brought in before me to read this writing and tell me its interpretation, but they were not able to give the interpretation of the matter. 16But I have heard that you can give interpretations and solve problems. Now if you are able to read the writing and tell me its interpretation, you shall be clothed in purple, have a chain of gold around your neck, and rank third in the kingdom."

17 Then Daniel answered in the presence of the king, "Let your gifts be for yourself, or give your rewards to someone else! Nevertheless I will read the writing to the king and let him know the interpretation. 18O king, the Most High God gave your father Nebuchadnezzar kingship, greatness, glory, and majesty. 19And because of the greatness that he gave him, all peoples, nations, and languages trembled and feared before him. He killed those he wanted to kill, kept alive those he wanted to keep alive, honored those he wanted to honor, and degraded those he wanted to degrade. 20But when his heart was lifted up and his spirit was hardened so that he acted proudly, he was deposed from his kingly throne, and his glory was stripped from him. 21He was driven from human society, and his mind was made like that of an animal. His dwelling was with the wild asses, he was fed grass like oxen, and his body was bathed with the dew of heaven, until he learned that the Most High God has sovereignty over the kingdom of mortals, and sets over it whomever he will. 22And you, Belshazzar his son, have not humbled your heart, even though you knew all this! 23You have exalted yourself against the Lord of heaven! The vessels of his temple have been brought in before you, and you and your lords, your wives and your concubines have been drinking wine from them. You have praised the gods of silver and gold, of bronze, iron, wood, and stone, which do not see or hear or know; but the God in whose power is your very breath, and to whom belong all your ways, you have not honored.

24 "So from his presence the hand was sent and this writing was inscribed. 25And this is the writing that was inscribed: MENE, MENE, TEKEL, and PARSIN. 26This is the interpretation of the matter: MENE, God has numbered the days of[t] your kingdom and brought it to an end; 27TEKEL, you have been weighed on the scales and found wanting; 28PERES,[u] your kingdom is divided and given to the Medes and Persians."

29 Then Belshazzar gave the command, and Daniel was clothed in purple, a chain of gold was put around his neck, and a proclamation was made concerning him that he should rank third in the kingdom.

30 That very night Belshazzar, the Chaldean king, was killed. 31[v]And Darius the Mede received the kingdom, being about sixty-two years old.

6 It pleased Darius to set over the kingdom one hundred twenty satraps, stationed throughout the whole kingdom, 2and over them three presidents, including Daniel; to these the satraps gave account, so that the king might suffer no loss. 3Soon Daniel distinguished himself above all the other presidents and satraps because an excellent spirit was in him, and the king planned to appoint him over the whole kingdom. 4So the presidents and the satraps tried to find grounds for complaint against Daniel in connection with the kingdom. But they could find no grounds for complaint or any corruption, because he was faithful, and no negligence or corruption could be found in him. 5The men said, "We shall not find any ground for complaint against this Daniel unless we find it in connection with the law of his God."

6 So the presidents and satraps conspired and came to the king and said to him, "O King Darius, live forever! 7All the presidents of the kingdom, the prefects and the satraps, the counselors and the governors are agreed that the king should establish an ordinance and enforce an interdict, that whoever prays to anyone, divine or human, for thirty days, except to you, O king, shall be thrown into a den of lions. 8Now, O king, establish the interdict and sign the document, so that it cannot be changed, according to the law of the Medes and the Persians, which cannot be revoked." 9Therefore King Darius signed the document and interdict.

So the meaning may be that Evil-merodach, who succeeded Nebuchadnezzar, weighs a mina, his successor Neriglissar also a mina, his successor Labashi-Marduk only a shekel, Nabonidus and Belshazzar half a mina each, but that now by the judgment of numbering, weighing, and dividing the Neo-Babylonian kingdom is to be conquered by the Medo-Persians. 31: No such person as Darius the Mede is known to history, but there were three Persian kings named Darius. 6.2–5: Each satrap had a military chief and a civil secretary, these being the three presidents. The king, however, planned to appoint Daniel as grand vizier. From this pinnacle jealous officials seek to topple him, using his religion as their lever. 7: Their request is that for a month the king should be treated as divine. From vv. 17, 23, 24 it appears that the den was thought of as a pit. 8: For the unchangeableness of Medo-Persian law see Esth 1.19; 8.8.

6.10: Daniel had a roof-chamber with windows allowing him to face Jerusalem in to go to his house, which had windows in its upper room open toward Jerusalem, and to get down on his knees three times a day to pray to his God and praise him, just as he had done previously. 11 The conspirators came and found Daniel praying and seeking mercy before his God. 12 Then they approached the king and said concerning the interdict, "O king! Did you not sign an interdict, that anyone who prays to anyone, divine or human, within thirty days except to you, O king, shall be thrown into a den of lions?" The king answered, "The thing stands fast, according to the law of the Medes and Persians, which cannot be revoked." 13 Then they responded to the king, "Daniel, one of the exiles from Judah, pays no attention to you, O king, or to the interdict you have signed, but he is saying his prayers three times a day."

14 When the king heard the charge, he was very much distressed. He was determined to save Daniel, and until the sun went down he made every effort to rescue him. 15 Then the conspirators came to the king and said to him, "Know, O king, that it is a law of the Medes and Persians that no interdict or ordinance that the king establishes can be changed."

16 Then the king gave the command, and Daniel was brought and thrown into the den of lions. The king said to Daniel, "May your God, whom you faithfully serve, deliver you!" 17 A stone was brought and laid on the mouth of the den, and the king sealed it with his own signet and with the signet of his lords, so that nothing might be changed concerning Daniel. 18 Then the king went to his palace and spent the night fasting; no food was brought to him, and sleep fled from him.

19 Then, at break of day, the king got up and hurried to the den of lions. 20 When he came near the den where Daniel was, he cried out anxiously to Daniel, "O Daniel, servant of the living God, has your God whom you faithfully serve been able to deliver you from the lions?" 21 Daniel then said to the king, "O king, live forever! 22 My God sent his angel and shut the lions' mouths so that they would not hurt me, because I was found blameless before him; and also before you, O king, I have done no wrong." 23 Then the king was exceedingly glad and commanded that Daniel be taken up out of the den. So Daniel was taken up out of the den, and no kind of harm was found on him, because he had trusted in his God. 24 The king gave a command, and those who had accused Daniel were brought and thrown into the den of lions—they, their children, and their wives. Before they reached the bottom of the den the lions overpowered them and broke all their bones in pieces.

25 Then King Darius wrote to all peoples and nations of every language throughout the whole world: "May you have abundant prosperity! 26 I make a decree, that in all my royal dominion people should tremble and fear before the God of Daniel:

For he is the living God, enduring forever.
His kingdom shall never be destroyed,
  and his dominion has no end.
27 He delivers and rescues, he works signs and wonders in heaven and on earth;
for he has saved Daniel from the power of the lions."

28 So this Daniel prospered during the reign of Darius and the reign of Cyrus the Persian.

7 In the first year of King Belshazzar of Babylon, Daniel had a dream and visions of his head as he lay in bed. Then he wrote down the dream:[w] 2I,[x] Daniel, saw in my vision by night the four winds of heaven stirring up the great sea, 3and four great beasts came up out of the sea, different from one another. 4The first was like a lion and had eagles' wings. Then, as I watched, its wings were plucked off, and it was lifted up from the ground and made to stand on two feet like a human being; and a human mind was given to it. 5Another beast appeared, a second one, that looked like a bear. It was raised up on one side, had three tusks[y] in its mouth among its teeth and was told, "Arise, devour many bodies!" 6After this, as I watched, another appeared, like a leopard. The beast had four wings of a bird on its back and four heads; and dominion was given to it. 7After this I saw in the visions by night a fourth beast, terrifying and dreadful and exceedingly strong. It had great iron teeth and was devouring, breaking in pieces, and stamping what was left with its feet. It was different from all the beasts that preceded it, and it had ten horns. 8I was considering the horns, when another horn appeared, a little one coming up among them; to make room for it, three of the earlier horns were plucked up by the roots. There were eyes like human eyes in this horn, and a mouth speaking arrogantly.

9 As I watched,

thrones were set in place,
and an Ancient One[z] took his throne,
his clothing was white as snow,
and the hair of his head like pure wool;
his throne was fiery flames,
and its wheels were burning fire.
10 A stream of fire issued and flowed out from his presence.
A thousand thousands served him,
and ten thousand times ten thousand stood attending him.
The court sat in judgment,
and the books were opened.

11I watched then because of the noise of the arrogant words that the horn was speaking. And as I watched, the beast was put to death, and its body destroyed and given over to be burned with fire. 12As for the rest of the beasts, their dominion was taken away, but their lives were prolonged for a season and a time. 13As I watched in the night visions,

I saw one like a human being[a] coming with the clouds of heaven.
And he came to the Ancient One[b] and was presented before him.

7.1–28: The vision of the four beasts. A vision of the passing of kingdoms to make way for the kingdom of God. 1: The first year, i.e. 554 B.C., when he began to act as viceroy for his father. 2: The great sea is a traditional symbol of chaos, often associated with dragons and monsters (Isa 51.9–10; Isa 27.1; Job 26.12; Rev 13.1). In accord with the view that there were four kingdoms (see ch 2), four winds appropriately introduce the beasts symbolizing these kingdoms.

7.4–8: The winged lion represents the Babylonian empire, the bear the Medes, the four-headed winged leopard the Persians, the dragon-like beast the Greeks, whose ten horns represent the ten rulers who succeeded Alexander. The little horn (compare 8.9) is Antiochus Epiphanes, who gained his throne by uprooting others.

7.9–14: The divine judgment. God, the Ancient One, appears on his fiery throne surrounded by his court (1 Kings 22.19); the record books are examined and judgment is given. 11–12: The Greek empire is singled out for destruction. 13–14: God will then give the one like a human being a universal and everlasting dominion. This figure represents the faithful Jews, and should probably be identified as the archangel Michael (see 10.13, 21; 12.1), although he was traditionally identified as the messiah.

14 To him was given dominion and glory and kingship, that all peoples, nations, and languages should serve him.
His dominion is an everlasting dominion that shall not pass away, and his kingship is one that shall never be destroyed.

15 As for me, Daniel, my spirit was troubled within me,[c] and the visions of my head terrified me. 16 I approached one of the attendants to ask him the truth concerning all this. So he said that he would disclose to me the interpretation of the matter: 17 "As for these four great beasts, four kings shall arise out of the earth. 18 But the holy ones of the Most High shall receive the kingdom and possess the kingdom forever—forever and ever."

19 Then I desired to know the truth concerning the fourth beast, which was different from all the rest, exceedingly terrifying, with its teeth of iron and claws of bronze, and which devoured and broke in pieces, and stamped what was left with its feet; 20 and concerning the ten horns that were on its head, and concerning the other horn, which came up and to make room for which three of them fell out—the horn that had eyes and a mouth that spoke arrogantly, and that seemed greater than the others. 21 As I looked, this horn made war with the holy ones and was prevailing over them, 22 until the Ancient One[d] came; then judgment was given for the holy ones of the Most High, and the time arrived when the holy ones gained possession of the kingdom.

23 This is what he said: "As for the fourth beast, there shall be a fourth kingdom on earth
that shall be different from all the other kingdoms;
it shall devour the whole earth,
and trample it down, and break it to pieces.

24 As for the ten horns,
out of this kingdom ten kings shall arise,
and another shall arise after them.
This one shall be different from the former ones,
and shall put down three kings.

25 He shall speak words against the Most High, shall wear out the holy ones of the Most High,
and shall attempt to change the sacred seasons and the law;
and they shall be given into his power
for a time, two times,[e] and half a time.

26 Then the court shall sit in judgment,
and his dominion shall be taken away,
to be consumed and totally destroyed.

27 The kingship and dominion and the greatness of the kingdoms under the whole heaven shall be given to the people of the holy ones of the Most High;
their kingdom shall be an everlasting kingdom,
and all dominions shall serve and obey them."

me, and my face turned pale; but I kept the matter in my mind.

8 In the third year of the reign of King Belshazzar a vision appeared to me, Daniel, after the one that had appeared to me at first. 2In the vision I was looking and saw myself in Susa the capital, in the province of Elam,[f] and I was by the river Ulai.[g] 3I looked up and saw a ram standing beside the river.[h] It had two horns. Both horns were long, but one was longer than the other, and the longer one came up second. 4I saw the ram charging westward and northward and southward. All beasts were powerless to withstand it, and no one could rescue from its power; it did as it pleased and became strong.

5 As I was watching, a male goat appeared from the west, coming across the face of the whole earth without touching the ground. The goat had a horn[i] between its eyes. 6It came toward the ram with the two horns that I had seen standing beside the river,[h] and it ran at it with savage force. 7I saw it approaching the ram. It was enraged against it and struck the ram, breaking its two horns. The ram did not have power to withstand it; it threw the ram down to the ground and trampled upon it, and there was no one who could rescue the ram from its power. 8Then the male goat grew exceedingly great; but at the height of its power, the great horn was broken, and in its place there came up four prominent horns toward the four winds of heaven.

9 Out of one of them came another[j] horn, a little one, which grew exceedingly great toward the south, toward the east, and toward the beautiful land. 10It grew as high as the host of heaven. It threw down to the earth some of the host and some of the stars, and trampled on them. 11Even against the prince of the host it acted arrogantly; it took the regular burnt offering away from him and overthrew the place of his sanctuary. 12Because of wickedness, the host was given over to it together with the regular burnt offering;[k] it cast truth to the ground, and kept prospering in what it did. 13Then I heard a holy one speaking, and another holy one said to the one that spoke, "For how long is this vision concerning the regular burnt offering, the transgression that makes desolate, and the giving over of the sanctuary and host to be trampled?"[k] 14And he answered him,[l] "For two thousand three hundred evenings and mornings; then the sanctuary shall be restored to its rightful state."

15 When I, Daniel, had seen the vision, I tried to understand it. Then someone appeared standing before me, having the appearance of a man, 16and I heard a human voice by the Ulai, calling, "Gabriel, help this man understand the vision." 17So he came near where I stood; and when he came, I became frightened

8.1–27: The vision of the ram and the male goat. 1–2: The vision is dated two years later than the previous one (7.1), placing the seer in Susa, the winter capital of the Persian kings. 18 As he was speaking to me, I fell into a trance, face to the ground; then he touched me and set me on my feet. 19He said, "Listen, and I will tell you what will take place later in the period of wrath; for it refers to the appointed time of the end. 20As for the ram that you saw with the two horns, these are the kings of Media and Persia. 21The male goat[n] is the king of Greece, and the great horn between its eyes is the first king. 22As for the horn that was broken, in place of which four others arose, four kingdoms shall arise from his[o] nation, but not with his power.

23 At the end of their rule,
when the transgressions have reached their full measure,
a king of bold countenance shall arise,

He shall destroy the powerful and the people of the holy ones.
25 By his cunning
he shall make deceit prosper under his hand,

Without warning he shall destroy many and shall even rise up against the Prince of princes.
But he shall be broken, and not by human hands.

26The vision of the evenings and the mornings that has been told is true. As for you, seal up the vision, for it refers to many days from now."

27 So I, Daniel, was overcome and lay sick for some days; then I arose and went about the king's business. But I was dismayed by the vision and did not understand it.

9 In the first year of Darius son of Ahasuerus, by birth a Mede, who became king over the realm of the Chaldeans— 2in the first year of his reign, I, Daniel, perceived in the books the number of years that, according to the word of the LORD to the prophet Jeremiah, must be fulfilled for the devastation of Jerusalem, namely, seventy years.

3 Then I turned to the Lord God, to seek an answer by prayer and supplication with fasting and sackcloth and ashes. 4I prayed to the LORD my God and made confession, saying,

"Ah, Lord, great and awesome God, keeping covenant and steadfast love with those who love you and keep your commandments, 5we have sinned and done wrong, acted wickedly and rebelled, turning aside from your commandments and ordinances. 6We have not listened to your servants the prophets, who spoke in your name to our kings, our princes, and our ancestors, and to all the people of the land.

away, in all the lands to which you have driven them, because of the treachery that they have committed against you. 8Open shame, O LORD, falls on us, our kings, our officials, and our ancestors, because we have sinned against you. 9To the Lord our God belong mercy and forgiveness, for we have rebelled against him, 10and have not obeyed the voice of the LORD our God by following his laws, which he set before us by his servants the prophets.

11 "All Israel has transgressed your law and turned aside, refusing to obey your voice. So the curse and the oath written in the law of Moses, the servant of God, have been poured out upon us, because we have sinned against you. 12He has confirmed his words, which he spoke against us and against our rulers, by bringing upon us a calamity so great that what has been done against Jerusalem has never before been done under the whole heaven. 13Just as it is written in the law of Moses, all this calamity has come upon us. We did not entreat the favor of the LORD our God, turning from our iniquities and reflecting on his[q] fidelity. 14So the LORD kept watch over this calamity until he brought it upon us. Indeed, the LORD our God is right in all that he has done; for we have disobeyed his voice.

15 "And now, O Lord our God, who brought your people out of the land of Egypt with a mighty hand and made your name renowned even to this day—we have sinned, we have done wickedly. 16O Lord, in view of all your righteous acts, let your anger and wrath, we pray, turn away from your city Jerusalem, your holy mountain; because of our sins and the iniquities of our ancestors, Jerusalem and your people have become a disgrace among all our neighbors. 17Now therefore, O our God, listen to the prayer of your servant and to his supplication, and for your own sake, Lord,[r] let your face shine upon your desolated sanctuary. 18Incline your ear, O my God, and hear. Open your eyes and look at our desolation and the city that bears your name. We do not present our supplication before you on the ground of our righteousness, but on the ground of your great mercies. 19O Lord, hear; O Lord, forgive; O Lord, listen and act and do not delay! For your own sake, O my God, because your city and your people bear your name!"

20 While I was speaking, and was praying and confessing my sin and the sin of my people Israel, and presenting my supplication before the LORD my God on behalf of the holy mountain of my God— 21while I was speaking in prayer, the man Gabriel, whom I had seen before in a vision, came to me in swift flight at the time of the evening sacrifice. 22He came[s] and said to me, "Daniel, I have now come out to give you wisdom and understanding. 23At the beginning of your supplications a word went out, and I have come to declare it, for you are greatly beloved. So consider the word and understand the vision:

24 "Seventy weeks are decreed for your people and your holy city: to finish the transgression, to put an end to sin, and to atone for iniquity, to bring in everlasting righteousness, to seal both vision and prophet, and to anoint a most holy place.[t] 25Know therefore and understand: from the time that the word went out to restore and rebuild Jerusalem until the time of an anointed prince, there shall be seven weeks; and for sixty-two weeks it shall be built again with streets

10 In the third year of King Cyrus of Persia a word was revealed to Daniel, who was named Belteshazzar. The word was true, and it concerned a great conflict. He understood the word, having received understanding in the vision.

2 At that time I, Daniel, had been mourning for three weeks. 3 I had eaten no rich food, no meat or wine had entered my mouth, and I had not anointed myself at all, for the full three weeks. 4 On the twenty-fourth day of the first month, as I was standing on the bank of the great river (that is, the Tigris), 5 I looked up and saw a man clothed in linen, with a belt of gold from Uphaz around his waist. 6 His body was like beryl, his face like lightning, his eyes like flaming torches, his arms and legs like the gleam of burnished bronze, and the sound of his words like the roar of a multitude. 7 I, Daniel, alone saw the vision; the people who were with me did not see the vision, though a great trembling fell upon them, and they fled and hid themselves. 8 So I was left alone to see this great vision. My strength left me, and my complexion grew deathly pale, and I retained no strength. 9 Then I heard the sound of his words; and when I heard the sound of his words, I fell into a trance, face to the ground.

10 But then a hand touched me and roused me to my hands and knees. 11 He said to me, "Daniel, greatly beloved, pay attention to the words that I am going to speak to you. Stand on your feet, for I have now been sent to you." So while he was speaking this word to me, I stood up trembling. 12 He said to me, "Do not fear, Daniel, for from the first day that you set your mind to gain understanding and to humble yourself before your God, your words have been heard, and I have come because of your words. 13 But the prince of the kingdom of Persia opposed me twenty-one days. So Michael, one of the chief princes, came to help me, and I left him there with the prince of the kingdom of Persia,[w] 14 and have come to help you understand what is to happen to your people at the end of days. For there is a further vision for those days."

For I am shaking,[x] no strength remains in me, and no breath is left in me."

18 Again one in human form touched me and strengthened me. 19He said, "Do not fear, greatly beloved, you are safe. Be strong and courageous!" When he spoke to me, I was strengthened and said, "Let my lord speak, for you have strengthened me." 20Then he said, "Do you know why I have come to you? Now I must return to fight against the prince of Persia, and when I am through with him, the prince of Greece will come. 21But I am to tell you what is inscribed in the book of truth. There is no one with me who contends against these princes except Michael, your 11 prince. 1As for me, in the first year of Darius the Mede, I stood up to support and strengthen him.

2 "Now I will announce the truth to you. Three more kings shall arise in Persia. The fourth shall be far richer than all of them, and when he has become strong through his riches, he shall stir up all against the kingdom of Greece. 3Then a warrior king shall arise, who shall rule with great dominion and take action as he pleases. 4And while still rising in power, his kingdom shall be broken and divided toward the four winds of heaven, but not to his posterity, nor according to the dominion with which he ruled; for his kingdom shall be uprooted and go to others besides these.

5 "Then the king of the south shall grow strong, but one of his officers shall grow stronger than he and shall rule a realm greater than his own realm. 6After some years they shall make an alliance, and the daughter of the king of the south shall come to the king of the north to ratify the agreement. But she shall not retain her power, and his offspring shall not endure. She shall be given up, she and her attendants and her child and the one who supported her.

"In those times 7a branch from her roots shall rise up in his place. He shall come against the army and enter the fortress of the king of the north, and he shall take action against them and prevail. 8Even their gods, with their idols and with their precious vessels of silver and gold, he shall carry off to Egypt as spoils of war. For some years he shall refrain from attacking the king of the north; 9then the latter shall invade the realm of the king of the south, but will return to his own land.

The lawless among your own people shall lift themselves up in order to fulfill the vision, but they shall fail. 15Then the king of the north shall come and throw up siegeworks, and take a well-fortified city. And the forces of the south shall not stand, not even his picked troops, for there shall be no strength to resist. 16But he who comes against him shall take the actions he pleases, and no one shall withstand him. He shall take a position in the beautiful land, and all of it shall be in his power. 17He shall set his mind to come with the strength of his whole kingdom, and he shall bring terms of peace[z] and perform them. He shall devise plans against strongholds, but only for a time. 25He shall stir up his power and determination against the king of the south with a great army, and the king of the south shall wage war with a much greater and stronger army. But he shall not succeed, for plots shall be devised against him 26by those who eat of the royal rations. They shall break him, his army shall be swept away, and many shall fall slain. 27The two kings, their minds bent on evil, shall sit at one table and exchange lies. # Hosea

The book of Hosea stands first in that part of the Latter Prophets called the Book of the Twelve, also known as the Minor Prophets because of the brevity of the books in comparison with Isaiah, Jeremiah, and Ezekiel (see Introduction to the Old Testament, p. xxxi OT). By the second century B.C. these twelve constituted a unit (see Sir 49.10). See xxi.

Hosea's ministry to the northern kingdom followed closely upon that of Amos (see Introduction to Amos). While Amos had spoken as a southerner to a prosperous Israel enjoying an era of peace, Hosea spoke as a native to his own people who were suffering from war with Assyria and in virtual anarchy. Four Israelite kings had been assassinated within fourteen years after the death of Jeroboam II. After the Assyrian conquest of 733–732, which resulted in the fall of Damascus, Samaria itself soon fell to the Assyrians (721).

Not all aspects of Hosea's life are clear. It can best be reconstructed, however, from the first three chapters by observing that Hosea deals with Gomer as the LORD deals with Israel; the prophet's personal life is an embodiment of God's redeeming love. Accordingly the sensitive prophet, obedient to his call to take "a wife of whoredom," married the prostitute Gomer. She bore three children, of whom Hosea was presumably not the father (2.4–5), and then left him. But Hosea brought her back publicly (3.1–5) and took her again to himself.

Hosea's ministry dramatizes his message. Although the book is divided into two uneven parts (chs 1–3; 4–14) and presents serious textual difficulties, it is thoroughly unified by the dominant theme of divine compassion and the love that will not let Israel go. At the heart of Hosea's preaching is a gospel of redeeming love.

1 The word of the LORD that came to Hosea son of Beeri, in the days of Kings Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah of Judah, and in the days of King Jeroboam son of Joash of Israel.

2 When the LORD first spoke through Hosea, the LORD said to Hosea, "Go, take for yourself a wife of whoredom and have children of whoredom, for the land commits great whoredom by forsaking the LORD." 3So he went and took Gomer daughter of Diblaim, and she conceived and bore him a son.

4 And the LORD said to him, "Name him Jezreel;[a] for in a little while I will punish the house of Jehu for the blood of Jezreel, and I will put an end to the kingdom of the house of Israel. 5On that day I will break the bow of Israel in the valley of Jezreel."

6 She conceived again and bore a daughter. Then the LORD said to him, "Name her Lo-ruhamah,[b] for I will no longer have pity on the house of Israel or forgive them. 7But I will have pity on the house of Judah, and I will save them by the LORD their God; I will not save them by bow, or by sword, or by war, or by horses, or by horsemen."

8 When she had weaned Lo-ruhamah, she conceived and bore a son. 9Then the LORD said, "Name him Lo-ammi,[c] for you are not my people and I am not your God."[d]

10[e] Yet the number of the people of Israel shall be like the sand of the sea, which can be neither measured nor numbered; and in the place where it was said to them, "You are not my people," it shall be said to them, "Children of the living God." 11The people of Judah and the people of Israel shall be gathered together, and they shall appoint for themselves one head; and they shall take possession of[f] the land, for great shall be the day of Jezreel.

1.1: Superscription. The conviction that the word of the LORD comes to a prophet (Joel 1.1; Mic 1.1; Zeph 1.1; Hag 1.1; Zech 1.1) is fundamental to Hebrew prophecy; it asserts that the prophet's inspiration and authority are not self-generated, but come from God, whose will is disclosed through the prophet (Ezek 2.3–5; 3.10–11; Am 3.7; Zech 1.6), whose personal agent the prophet is (Ex 4.15–16; Isa 6.8), and whom alone the prophet must obey (1 Kings ch 13; Am 7.14–17; Acts 4.18–20). Hosea means "salvation" or "deliverance." Kings . . . of Judah, see Isa 1.1 n., and Mic 1.1 n. Hosea prophesied not only during the reign of Jeroboam II (786–746 B.C.; see Introduction to Amos), but also after his death.

1.2–9: Hosea marries the prostitute Gomer and gives her children prophetically significant names (Isa 7.3; 8.3) at the LORD's command. 2: For the land . . . expresses the essence of Israel's sin and its need of redemption. 4–5: Jezreel, meaning "God sows," points backward to the sin of the house of Jehu (1 Kings 19.15–17; 2 Kings chs 9–10) and forward to Israel's restoration (Hos 2.21–23). Jeroboam II belonged to the dynasty of Jehu.

1.6: Because of Israel's sin the LORD will no longer have pity, and the name of the second child (Hebrew Lo-ruhamah, see note b) will be a living reminder of this. 7: This verse, which exempts Judah, is a later addition. 8–9: The name of the third child (Hebrew Lo-ammi, see note c) signifies the breaking of the covenant relationship between the LORD and Israel (Ex 6.7; 19.5; compare Isa 40.1; Jer 31.31–34).

1.10–2.1: Israel's punishment is not final; afterwards it shall be like the sand of the sea (compare Gen 22.17) and again be God's children (compare Rom 9.25–26). Though these words may have been uttered at a different time, the thought is genuinely Hosean (see 14.4–7).

2.2–13: Israel will suffer public shame and personal privation like a harlot, be-that she put away her whoring from her face, and her adultery from between her breasts,

3 or I will strip her naked and expose her as in the day she was born,
and make her like a wilderness,
and turn her into a parched land,
and kill her with thirst.
4 Upon her children also I will have no pity,
because they are children of whoredom.
5 For their mother has played the whore;
she who conceived them has acted shamefully.
For she said, "I will go after my lovers;
they give me my bread and my water,
my wool and my flax, my oil and my drink."
6 Therefore I will hedge up her[1]
way with thorns;
and I will build a wall against her,
so that she cannot find her paths.
7 She shall pursue her lovers,
but not overtake them;
and she shall seek them,
but shall not find them.
Then she shall say, "I will go and return to my first husband, for it was better with me then than now."
8 She did not know that it was I who gave her the grain, the wine, and the oil, and who lavished upon her silver and gold that they used for Baal.
9 Therefore I will take back
my grain in its time,
and my wine in its season;
and I will take away my wool and my flax, which were to cover her nakedness.
10 Now I will uncover her shame
in the sight of her lovers, and no one shall rescue her out of my hand.
11 I will put an end to all her mirth,
her festivals, her new moons,
her sabbaths,
and all her appointed festivals.
12 I will lay waste her vines and her fig trees,
of which she said,
"These are my pay,
which my lovers have given me."
I will make them a forest, and the wild animals shall devour them.
13 I will punish her for the festival days of the Baals, when she offered incense to them
and decked herself with her ring and jewelry,
and went after her lovers,
and forgot me, says the LORD.

14 Therefore, I will now allure her,
and bring her into the wilderness,
and speak tenderly to her.

In a like manner the LORD will restore Israel. 1: Just as the LORD loves the people of Israel, though they turn to other gods; these words disclose the central message of this book: divine love necessitates both Israel's temporary chastisement and its ultimate redemption. Raisin cakes were used in pagan festivals (Isa 16.7; Jer 7.18). 2: Shekel, about eleven grams; homer, about six and one-half bushels. From whom Hosea bought her is not indicated. True redemption is costly (Ps 49.7–8; 1 Cor 6.19–20; 7.23; Gal 4.4–5); Hosea redeemed his wife by love and for a price. 4: During the period of corrective punishment Israel will be deprived of civil and ceremonial institutions. Pillar, Gen 31.45. Ephod, see Judg 8.24–28 n.; 1 Sam 2.18 n. Teraphim, household gods (Gen 31.19). 5: The phrase and David their king is probably a later Judean addition.

4.1–14.9: Because of constant rebellion, the judgment of the LORD is upon Israel; yet it will eventually be restored. These themes are elaborated in a series of discourses written after the death of Jeroboam II. The lack of clear order may in part reflect the style of the prophet and may in part be due to later editorial rearrangement.

4.1–8.14: All Israel has forgotten the LORD and has sought help from other gods and other nations. 4.1–3: The LORD has an indictment against Israel because they love neither God nor their fellow Israelites (Mic 6.2). Faithfulness, loyalty (steadfast love), and knowledge of God are major theological terms in Hosea (2.19–20; 4.6; 5.4, 7; 6.3, 6; 10.12; 11.3–4, 12b; 12.6). 4–6: The controversy is first of all with the priest and prophet; for, having rejected the knowledge and teaching of God, they have destroyed the people.

4.7–14: Sin has infected them all, like people, like priest. 13: A reference to high-place sanctuaries and their sacred trees (Jer 2.20). 14: Temple prostitutes, see Gen 38.15 n.; Deut 23.17 n. 15: Beth-aven is Bethel (Am 5.5).

for the men themselves go aside with whores,
and sacrifice with temple prostitutes;
thus a people without understanding comes to ruin.

15 Though you play the whore, O Israel,
do not let Judah become guilty.
Do not enter into Gilgal, or go up to Beth-aven, and do not swear, "As the LORD lives."
16 Like a stubborn heifer, Israel is stubborn;
can the LORD now feed them
like a lamb in a broad pasture?

17 Ephraim is joined to idols—
let him alone.
18 When their drinking is ended, they indulge in sexual orgies;
they love lewdness more than their glory.[w] 19 A wind has wrapped them[x] in its wings,
and they shall be ashamed
because of their altars.[y]

5 Hear this, O priests!
Give heed, O house of Israel!
Listen, O house of the king!
For the judgment pertains to
you;
for you have been a snare at Mizpah,
and a net spread upon Tabor, 2 and a pit dug deep in Shittim;[z]
but I will punish all of them.

3 I know Ephraim, and Israel is not hidden from
me;
for now, O Ephraim, you have played the whore;
Israel is defiled.
4 Their deeds do not permit them to return to their God.
For the spirit of whoredom is within them,
and they do not know the LORD.

5 Israel's pride testifies against him;
Ephraim[a] stumbles in his guilt;
Judah also stumbles with them.
6 With their flocks and herds they shall go to seek the LORD,
but they will not find him;
he has withdrawn from them.
7 They have dealt faithlessly with
the LORD;
for they have borne illegitimate children.
Now the new moon shall devour them along with their fields.

8 Blow the horn in Gibeah,
the trumpet in Ramah.
Sound the alarm at Beth-aven;
look behind you, Benjamin!
9 Ephraim shall become a desolation
in the day of punishment;
among the tribes of Israel
I declare what is sure.
10 The princes of Judah have become like those who remove the landmark;
on them I will pour out
my wrath like water.
11 Ephraim is oppressed, crushed in judgment,

13 When Ephraim saw his sickness,
and Judah his wound,
then Ephraim went to Assyria,
and sent to the great king.[c]
But he is not able to cure you or heal your wound.
14 For I will be like a lion to Ephraim,
and like a young lion to the house of Judah.
I myself will tear and go away;
I will carry off, and no one shall rescue.
15 I will return again to my place until they acknowledge their guilt and seek my face.
In their distress they will beg
my favor:

6 "Come, let us return to the LORD;
for it is he who has torn, and he will heal us;
he has struck down, and he will bind us up.
2 After two days he will revive us;
on the third day he will raise us up,
that we may live before him.
3 Let us know, let us press on to know the LORD;
his appearing is as sure as the dawn;
he will come to us like the showers,
like the spring rains that water
the earth."
4 What shall I do with you,
O Ephraim?
What shall I do with you,
O Judah?
Your love is like a morning cloud,
like the dew that goes away early.
5 Therefore I have hewn them by
the prophets,
I have killed them by the words
of my mouth,
and my[d] judgment goes forth as the light.
6 For I desire steadfast love and not sacrifice,
the knowledge of God rather than burnt offerings.

7 But at[e] Adam they transgressed
the covenant;
there they dealt faithlessly
with me.
8 Gilead is a city of evildoers,
tracked with blood.
9 As robbers lie in wait[f] for someone,
so the priests are banded together;[g]
they murder on the road to Shechem,
they commit a monstrous crime.
10 In the house of Israel I have seen a horrible thing;
Ephraim's whoredom is there,
Israel is defiled.

11 For you also, O Judah, a harvest is appointed.

When I would restore the fortunes

7 [1]when I would heal Israel,
the corruption of Ephraim is revealed,
and the wicked deeds of Samaria;
for they deal falsely,
the thief breaks in,
and the bandits raid outside.
2 But they do not consider that I remember all their wickedness.
Now their deeds surround them,
they are before my face.
3 By their wickedness they make the king glad,
and the officials by their treachery.
4 They are all adulterers;
they are like a heated oven,
whose baker does not need to stir the fire,
from the kneading of the dough until it is leavened.
5 On the day of our king the officials became sick with the heat of wine;
he stretched out his hand with mockers.
6 For they are kindled[h] like an oven, their heart burns within them;
all night their anger smolders;
in the morning it blazes like a flaming fire.
7 All of them are hot as an oven,
and they devour their rulers.
All their kings have fallen;
none of them calls upon me.

8 Ephraim mixes himself with the peoples;
Ephraim is a cake not turned.
9 Foreigners devour his strength,

gray hairs are sprinkled upon him,

10 Israel's pride testifies against[i] him;

11 Ephraim has become like a dove,

13 Woe to them, for they have strayed from me!
Destruction to them, for they have rebelled against me!
I would redeem them,

14 They do not cry to me from the heart,

9 For they have gone up to Assyria,

Ephraim has bargained

10 Though they bargain with
the nations,
I will now gather them up.
They shall soon writhe

Shall I redeem them from Death?
O Death, where are[o] your plagues?
O Sheol, where is[o] your destruction?
Compassion is hidden from my eyes.

15 Although he may flourish among rushes,[p]
the east wind shall come, a blast from the LORD, rising from the wilderness;
and his fountain shall dry up, his spring shall be parched.
It shall strip his treasury of every precious thing.
16[q] Samaria shall bear her guilt,
because she has rebelled against her God;
they shall fall by the sword,
their little ones shall be dashed in pieces,
and their pregnant women ripped open.

for you have stumbled because of your iniquity.
2 Take words with you and return to the LORD;

"Take away all guilt;
accept that which is good,
and we will offer
the fruit[r] of our lips.
3 Assyria shall not save us;
we will not ride upon horses;
we will say no more, 'Our God,'
to the work of our hands.
In you the orphan finds mercy."

4 I will heal their disloyalty;
I will love them freely,
for my anger has turned from them.

he shall strike root like the forests of Lebanon.[s] 6 His shoots shall spread out;
his beauty shall be like the olive tree,
and his fragrance like that of Lebanon.
7 They shall again live beneath my[t] shadow,
they shall flourish as a garden;[u]
they shall blossom like the vine, their fragrance shall be like the wine of Lebanon.

8 O Ephraim, what have I[v] to do with idols?
It is I who answer and look after you.[w]
I am like an evergreen cypress;
your faithfulness[x] comes from me.
9 Those who are wise understand these things;
those who are discerning know them.
For the ways of the LORD are right,

Joel

Of Joel himself nothing is known except that he was the son of Pethuel (1.1). Like Obadiah, even his name ("the LORD is God") is not unique, for he shares it with a dozen other Old Testament figures. From his book it appears that he lived in Judah during the Persian period of Jewish history (539–331 B.C.). He was not only well acquainted with the temple at Jerusalem, but was so much interested in its priesthood and services that, like Haggai and Zechariah, he can be considered a "cultic prophet," that is, a prophet who could exercise his ministry within the life of the temple, even using liturgical forms, and whose message may have been transmitted through priestly circles. As such, Joel helps to mark a notable change in Old Testament prophecy. Taking the characteristic forms of classical prophecy, he expands their apocalyptic and liturgical dimensions.

The dates of Joel's ministry cannot be determined with precision. The majority of historical references in his book, the absence of any mention of the Assyrians or Babylonians, and the heavy borrowing from earlier prophets point to the period from about 400 to 350 B.C.

Joel viewed a locust plague that ravished the country as God's judgment on the people and called them to repentance (1.2–2.27). Using this catastrophe as a dire warning, Joel went on to depict the advent of the day of the LORD and its final judgments and blessings (2.28–3.21).

1 The word of the LORD that came to Joel son of Pethuel:

2 Hear this, O elders,
give ear, all inhabitants of the land!
Has such a thing happened in your days,
or in the days of your ancestors?
3 Tell your children of it,
and let your children tell their children,
and their children another generation.

4 What the cutting locust left,
the swarming locust has eaten.
What the swarming locust left,
the hopping locust has eaten,
and what the hopping locust left,
the destroying locust has eaten.

5 Wake up, you drunkards, and weep;
and wail, all you wine-drinkers,
over the sweet wine,
for it is cut off from your mouth.
6 For a nation has invaded my land, powerful and innumerable;
its teeth are lions' teeth,
and it has the fangs of a lioness.
7 It has laid waste my vines,
and splintered my fig trees;
it has stripped off their bark and thrown it down;
their branches have turned white.

8 Lament like a virgin dressed in sackcloth for the husband of her youth.
9 The grain offering and the drink offering are cut off from the house of the LORD.
The priests mourn,
the ministers of the LORD.
10 The fields are devastated,
the ground mourns;
for the grain is destroyed,
the wine dries up,
the oil fails.

11 Be dismayed, you farmers,
wail, you vinedressers,
over the wheat and the barley;
for the crops of the field are ruined.
12 The vine withers,
the fig tree droops.
Pomegranate, palm, and apple—
all the trees of the field are dried up;
surely, joy withers away
among the people.

13 Put on sackcloth and lament, you priests;
wail, you ministers of the altar.
Come, pass the night in sackcloth,
you ministers of my God!
Grain offering and drink offering are withheld from the house of your God.

14 Sanctify a fast,
call a solemn assembly.
Gather the elders
and all the inhabitants of the land to the house of the LORD your God,
and cry out to the LORD.

15 Alas for the day!
For the day of the LORD is near,
and as destruction from the Almighty[a] it comes.

1.1–2.27: The locust plague.

1.1: Superscription. The word of the LORD . . ., see Hos 1.1 n. Pethuel does not occur elsewhere. 2–7: The land is devastated by a swarm of locusts, described as a nation with lions' teeth (v. 6; compare 2.4–9; Rev 9.7–8).

1.8–14: The whole community is called upon to lament and return to the LORD. 13–14: Ministers of the altar of burnt offering, who serve in the inner court (see Ezek 43.18–27). A fast, 2 Kings 18.6; Jer 36.6; Jon 3.5.

1.15–20: The lament. 15: This calamitous day portends the final day of the LORD which 16 Is not the food cut off before our eyes,

joy and gladness
from the house of our God?

17 The seed shrivels under the clods,[b]
the storehouses are desolate;
the granaries are ruined
because the grain has failed.
18 How the animals groan!
The herds of cattle wander about because there is no pasture for them;
even the flocks of sheep are dazed.[c]

19 To you, O LORD, I cry.
For fire has devoured
the pastures of the wilderness,
and flames have burned
all the trees of the field.
20 Even the wild animals cry to you because the watercourses are dried up, and fire has devoured
the pastures of the wilderness.

2 Blow the trumpet in Zion;
sound the alarm on my holy mountain!
Let all the inhabitants of the land tremble, for the day of the LORD is coming, it is near—2 a day of darkness and gloom,
a day of clouds and thick darkness!
Like blackness spread upon the mountains
a great and powerful army comes;
their like has never been from of old,
nor will be again after them
in ages to come.

3 Fire devours in front of them,
and behind them a flame burns.
Before them the land is like the garden of Eden,
but after them a desolate wilderness,
and nothing escapes them.

4 They have the appearance of horses,
and like war-horses they charge.
5 As with the rumbling of chariots,
they leap on the tops of the mountains,
like the crackling of a flame of fire devouring the stubble, like a powerful army drawn up for battle.

6 Before them peoples are in anguish,
all faces grow pale.[b]
7 Like warriors they charge, like soldiers they scale the wall.
Each keeps to its own course,
they do not swerve from[d] their paths.
8 They do not jostle one another,
each keeps to its own track;
they burst through the weapons and are not halted.
9 They leap upon the city,
they run upon the walls;
they climb up into the houses,
they enter through the windows like a thief.

10 The earth quakes before them,
the heavens tremble.

Amos

During the long and peaceful reign of Jeroboam II (786–746 B.C.) Israel attained a height of territorial expansion and national prosperity never again reached. The military security and economic affluence which characterized this age were taken by many Israelites as signs of the LORD's special favor that they felt they deserved because of their extravagant support of the official shrines.

Into this scene stepped the prophet Amos, probably sometime during the decade 760–750 B.C. A native of the small Judean village of Tekoa, Amos was called by God from a shepherd's task (7.14–15) to the difficult mission of preaching harsh words in a smooth season. He denounced Israel, as well as its neighbors, for reliance upon military might, and for grave injustice in social dealings, abhorrent immorality, and shallow, meaningless piety. Amos's forceful, uncompromising preaching brought him into conflict with the religious authorities of his day. His personal confrontation with the priest Amaziah (7.10–17) remains one of the unforgettable scenes in Hebrew prophecy.

Expelled from the royal sanctuary at Bethel and commanded not to prophesy there again, Amos perhaps returned to Judah and wrote down the essence of his public preaching in substantially its present form. The book falls into three parts: chs 1–2, oracles against Israel's neighbors; chs 3–6, indictment of Israel itself for sin and injustice; and chs 7–9, visions of Israel's coming doom. Amos became the first in a brilliant succession of prophets whose words, now preserved in written form, have left their indelible stamp on later thought about God and human history.

1 The words of Amos, who was among the shepherds of Tekoa, which he saw concerning Israel in the days of King Uzziah of Judah and in the days of King Jeroboam son of Joash of Israel, two years[a] before the earthquake.
2 And he said:
The LORD roars from Zion, and utters his voice from Jerusalem;
the pastures of the shepherds wither,
and the top of Carmel dries up.

3 Thus says the LORD:
For three transgressions of Damascus,
and for four, I will not revoke the punishment;[b]
because they have threshed Gilead with threshing sledges of iron.
4 So I will send a fire on the house of Hazael, and it shall devour the strongholds of Ben-hadad.
5 I will break the gate bars of Damascus, and cut off the inhabitants from the Valley of Aven,
and the one who holds the scepter from Beth-eden;
and the people of Aram shall go into exile to Kir,
says the LORD.

6 Thus says the LORD:
For three transgressions of Gaza,
and for four, I will not revoke the punishment;[b]
because they carried into exile entire communities, to hand them over to Edom.
7 So I will send a fire on the wall of Gaza,
fire that shall devour its strongholds.
8 I will cut off the inhabitants from Ashdod,
and the one who holds the scepter from Ashkelon;
I will turn my hand against Ekron, and the remnant of the Philistines shall perish,
says the Lord GOD.

9 Thus says the LORD:
For three transgressions of Tyre,
and for four, I will not revoke the punishment;[b]
because they delivered entire communities over to Edom, and did not remember the covenant of kinship.
10 So I will send a fire on the wall of Tyre,
fire that shall devour its strongholds.

1.1: Superscription. He saw, see Nah 1.1 n. King Uzziah reigned over the southern kingdom from 783 to 742 B.C. The earthquake, mentioned again in Zech 14.5, cannot be precisely dated.

1.2–2.16: Indictment of neighboring peoples, Israel, and Judah. Amos applies the same demanding standards to Israel's neighbors and to Israel. 1.2: This verse occurs in similar form in Joel 3.16 (compare Jer 25.30). Some scholars consider it an editorial addition. It sounds the solemn theme of the whole section. 3, 6, 9, etc.: Thus says the LORD and the conclusion says the LORD (Hebrew, "the oracle of Yahweh") are standard formulas identifying prophetic oracles. The expression for three transgressions . . . and for four indicates "more than enough" (Job 33.14; Prov 30.18). Here transgression means rebellion. 3–5: Against Damascus (compare Isa 17.1–3; Jer 49.23–27; Zech 9.1–4). Damascus was the capital of Syria (Aram); Hazael and Ben-hadad III were rulers (2 Kings 13.3); and Kir is called the place of Syrian origins (Am 9.7) and exile (2 Kings 16.9). The Valley of Aven, perhaps to be read "the Valley of On," may be between the Lebanon and Anti-Lebanon ranges. Beth-eden is the Bit-idini of the Assyrian records, by the Euphrates. The Syrian conquest of Gilead, 2 Kings 10.32–33.

1.6–8: Against Philistia. Four Philistine cities are condemned because of their slave traffic with Edom (2 Chr 21.16–17; Joel 3.4–8; Zeph 2.4–7). 9–10: Against Tyre (see Joel 3.4–8). Covenant of kinship, compare 1 Kings 9.13.

11 Thus says the LORD:
For three transgressions of Edom,

because he pursued his brother with the sword and cast off all pity;
he maintained his anger perpetually,[d]
and kept his wrath[e] forever.
12 So I will send a fire on Teman,

13 Thus says the LORD:
For three transgressions of the Ammonites,
and for four, I will not revoke the punishment;[c]
because they have ripped open pregnant women in Gilead in order to enlarge their territory.
14 So I will kindle a fire against the wall of Rabbah,
fire that shall devour its strongholds,
with shouting on the day of battle,
with a storm on the day of the whirlwind; 15 then their king shall go into exile,
he and his officials together,
says the LORD.

2 Thus says the LORD:
For three transgressions of Moab,
and for four, I will not revoke the punishment;[c]
because he burned to lime
the bones of the king of Edom.
2 So I will send a fire on Moab,
and it shall devour the strongholds of Kerioth,
and Moab shall die amid uproar,
amid shouting and the sound of the trumpet;
3 I will cut off the ruler from its midst,
and will kill all its officials with him,
says the LORD.

4 Thus says the LORD:
For three transgressions of Judah,
and for four, I will not revoke the punishment;[c]
because they have rejected the law of the LORD, and have not kept his statutes,
but they have been led astray by the same lies after which their ancestors walked.
5 So I will send a fire on Judah, and it shall devour the strongholds of Jerusalem.

1.11–12: Against Edom. This oracle, recalling later oracles against Edom (see Introduction to Obadiah), is regarded by many as secondary. Brother, that is, Judah, Mal 1.2. 13–15: Against the Ammonites (Zeph 2.8–11), who are to be punished because of inhuman atrocities against Israelites in Transjordan in Gilead.

2.1–3: Against Moab, Israel's ancient enemy to the south-east of the Jordan (Isa 15.1–16.14). Burned to lime, perhaps involving a desecration (compare 2 Kings 23.16–20; Isa 33.12). 4–5: Against Judah. In part because of its language, many consider this oracle a later addition, but it is consistent with Amos's view that all nations stand accountable before God.

2.6–16: Against Israel. Using the same literary form, Amos shows that Israel and her neighbors are judged by the same standards.

and push the afflicted out of the way;
father and son go in to the same girl,
so that my holy name is profaned;
8 they lay themselves down beside every altar on garments taken in pledge;
and in the house of their God they drink wine bought with fines they imposed.

9 Yet I destroyed the Amorite before them, whose height was like the height of cedars,
and who was as strong as oaks;
I destroyed his fruit above,
and his roots beneath.
10 Also I brought you up out of the land of Egypt,
and led you forty years in the wilderness,
to possess the land of the Amorite.
11 And I raised up some of your children to be prophets and some of your youths to be nazirites.[f]
Is it not indeed so, O people of Israel?
says the LORD.

12 But you made the nazirites[f] drink wine, and commanded the prophets, saying, "You shall not prophesy."

13 So, I will press you down in your place, just as a cart presses down when it is full of sheaves.[g] 14 Flight shall perish from the swift,
and the strong shall not retain their strength,
nor shall the mighty save their lives;
15 those who handle the bow shall not stand,
and those who are swift of foot shall not save themselves,
nor shall those who ride horses save their lives;
16 and those who are stout of heart among the mighty shall flee away naked in that day,
says the LORD.

3 Hear this word that the LORD has spoken against you, O people of Israel, against the whole family that I brought up out of the land of Egypt:
2 You only have I known of all the families of the earth;
therefore I will punish you for all your iniquities.

3 Do two walk together

4 Does a lion roar in the forest,

3.1–6.14: Israel's sinfulness and God's punishment. Three sections, each with the same opening exhortation (3.1; 4.1; 5.1).

3.1–15: The privileges of election create a greater responsibility (Lk 12.48b). Because Israel had been favored above all the families of the earth (Ex 19.4–6; Deut 7.6), the neighboring nations are assembled to witness her chastisement. 3–8: The call to prophesy cannot be resisted. 6: Israel's God is operative in history, sending calamity (disaster) as corrective discipline (Job 2.10; Isa 45.7).

6 Is a trumpet blown in a city,
and the people are not afraid?
Does disaster befall a city,
unless the LORD has done it?
7 Surely the Lord GOD does
nothing,
without revealing his secret
to his servants the prophets.
8 The lion has roared;
who will not fear?
The Lord GOD has spoken;
who can but prophesy?

10 They do not know how to do right, says the LORD, those who store up violence and robbery in their strongholds.
11 Therefore thus says the Lord GOD:
An adversary shall surround
the land,
and strip you of your defense;
and your strongholds shall be plundered.

12 Thus says the LORD: As the shepherd rescues from the mouth of the lion two legs, or a piece of an ear, so shall the people of Israel who live in Samaria be rescued, with the corner of a couch and part[i] of a bed.

3.7: The Old Testament concept of revelation is grounded in the conviction that the God who is sovereign over creation and history discloses a transcendent purpose to his servants the prophets (2.11; Gen 18.17–19; Ex 4.15–16; Jer 7.25; Dan 9.10; Lk 1.70). 12: Although a few may be rescued from the catastrophe (5.3), the burden of Amos's message is the thoroughness of the divine punishment (9.1). 15: Houses of ivory, see 1 Kings 22.39 n.

4.1–13: Israel's luxurious excesses and vain piety. Israel has not heeded the LORD's repeated warnings. 1–3: The wealthy and greedy women of Samaria, being as guilty as their husbands, will also be punished (compare Isa 3.16–26). Cows of Bashan, Ps 22.12. 4–5: Israel's love of manifold public rites at the chief sanctuaries is satirized.

4.6–12: Having ignored the LORD's repeated warnings through nature and history, Israel must now prepare to meet its God, who

each one straight ahead;
and you shall be flung out into Harmon,[k]
says the LORD.

4 Come to Bethel—and transgress;
to Gilgal—and multiply transgression;
bring your sacrifices every morning,
your tithes every three days;
5 bring a thank offering of leavened bread,
and proclaim freewill offerings, publish them;
for so you love to do, O people of Israel!
says the Lord GOD.

6 I gave you cleanness of teeth in all your cities,
and lack of bread in all your places,
yet you did not return to me,
says the LORD.

7 And I also withheld the rain from you when there were still three months to the harvest;
I would send rain on one city,
and send no rain on another city;
one field would be rained upon,
and the field on which it did not rain withered;
8 so two or three towns wandered to one town to drink water, and were not satisfied;
yet you did not return to me,
says the LORD.

9 I struck you with blight and mildew;
I laid waste[l] your gardens and your vineyards;
the locust devoured your fig trees and your olive trees;
yet you did not return to me,
says the LORD.

10 I sent among you a pestilence after the manner of Egypt;
I killed your young men with the sword;
I carried away your horses;[m]
and I made the stench of your camp go up into your nostrils;
yet you did not return to me,
says the LORD.

11 I overthrew some of you,
as when God overthrew Sodom and Gomorrah,
and you were like a brand snatched from the fire;
yet you did not return to me,
says the LORD.

12 Therefore thus I will do to you, O Israel;
because I will do this to you,
prepare to meet your God, O Israel!

13 For lo, the one who forms the mountains, creates the wind, reveals his thoughts to mortals,
makes the morning darkness,
and treads on the heights of the earth—
the LORD, the God of hosts, is his name!

is characterized by patient love and inexorable justice. 6: Cleanness of teeth, i.e. a famine. 13: This doxology, like those in 5.8–9 and 9.5–6, with which it shares the refrain the LORD . . . is his name, may be a later addition.

5.1–6.14: The horror and finality of Israel's deserved punishment. 5.1–3: A lament for the fallen and forsaken nation. Marched out a thousand, a reference to military forces.

2 Fallen, no more to rise, is maiden Israel;
forsaken on her land,
with no one to raise her up.

3 For thus says the Lord GOD:
The city that marched out a thousand shall have a hundred left,
and that which marched out a hundred shall have ten left.[n]

4 For thus says the LORD to the house of Israel:
Seek me and live;
5 but do not seek Bethel,
and do not enter into Gilgal or cross over to Beer-sheba;
for Gilgal shall surely go into exile,
and Bethel shall come to nothing.

6 Seek the LORD and live, or he will break out against the house of Joseph like fire, and it will devour Bethel, with no one to quench it.
7 Ah, you that turn justice to wormwood, and bring righteousness to
the ground!

8 The one who made the Pleiades and Orion,
and turns deep darkness into
the morning,
and darkens the day into night,
who calls for the waters of the sea,
and pours them out on the surface of the earth,
the LORD is his name,
9 who makes destruction flash out against the strong,
so that destruction comes upon the fortress.

10 They hate the one who reproves
in the gate, and they abhor the one who speaks the truth.
11 Therefore because you trample on the poor and take from them levies of grain,
you have built houses of
hewn stone,
but you shall not live in them;
you have planted pleasant
vineyards,
but you shall not drink
their wine.
12 For I know how many are your transgressions,
and how great are your sins—you who afflict the righteous, who take a bribe,
and push aside the needy in the gate.
13 Therefore the prudent will keep silent in such a time;
for it is an evil time.

14 Seek good and not evil,
that you may live;
and so the LORD, the God of hosts, will be with you,
just as you have said.
15 Hate evil and love good,
and establish justice in the gate;
it may be that the LORD, the God of hosts,
will be gracious to the remnant of Joseph.

16 Therefore thus says the LORD, the God of hosts, the Lord:
In all the squares there shall be wailing;
and in all the streets they shall say, "Alas! alas!"
They shall call the farmers to mourning,

of the LORD!
Why do you want the day of
the LORD?
It is darkness, not light;
19 as if someone fled from a lion,
and was met by a bear;
or went into the house and rested
a hand against the wall,
and was bitten by a snake.
20 Is not the day of the LORD darkness, not light, and gloom with no brightness
in it?

21 I hate, I despise your festivals, and I take no delight in your solemn assemblies.
22 Even though you offer me your burnt offerings and grain offerings,
I will not accept them;
and the offerings of well-being of your fatted animals
I will not look upon.
23 Take away from me the noise of your songs;
I will not listen to the melody
of your harps.
24 But let justice roll down like waters,
and righteousness like an ever-flowing stream.

25 Did you bring to me sacrifices and offerings the forty years in the wilderness, O house of Israel? 26 You shall take up Sakkuth your king, and Kaiwan your star-god, your images,[o] which you made for yourselves; 27 therefore I will take you into exile beyond Damascus, says the LORD, whose name is the God of hosts.

nations,
to whom the house of Israel evil day,

and bring near a reign of violence?

Israelites piously expected to be vindicated against their enemies, will be darkness and gloom (Am 8.9–14; see Zeph 1.14–18 n.). Amos's profound reinterpretation of this popular concept is among his most significant contributions.

5.21–27: The LORD delights not in an abundance of festivals and sacrifices but in justice and righteousness. Verse 24 expresses the heart of Amos's preaching. 25: In the desert Israel had a pure, direct relation with God which rendered sacrifices unnecessary (Jer 2.2–3; Hos 2.14–20; 9.10). 26: Sakkuth and Kaiwan designate known Assyrian deities (Acts 7.42–43).

6.1–7: The Israelites, who feel themselves secure in their false confidence and lie upon beds of ivory in luxurious self-indulgence, will be the first of those whom God will send into exile. 2: Compare Isa 10.9–11; 2 Chr

7 Therefore they shall now be the

and the revelry of the loungers

8 The Lord GOD has sworn by himself (says the LORD, the God of hosts):
I abhor the pride of Jacob and hate his strongholds;
and I will deliver up the city
and all that is in it.

9 If ten people remain in one house, they shall die. 10And if a relative, one who burns the dead,[s] shall take up the body to bring it out of the house, and shall say to someone in the innermost parts of the house, "Is anyone else with you?" the answer will come, "No." Then the relative[t] shall say, "Hush! We must not mention the name of the LORD."

11 See, the LORD commands, and the great house shall be shattered to bits,
and the little house to pieces.
12 Do horses run on rocks?
Does one plow the sea with

But you have turned justice who say, "Have we not by our own strength taken Karnaim[w] for ourselves?"

14 Indeed, I am raising up against you a nation,
O house of Israel, says the LORD, the God of hosts, and they shall oppress you from Lebo-hamath to the Wadi Arabah.

7 This is what the Lord GOD showed me: he was forming locusts at the time the latter growth began to sprout (it was the latter growth after the king's mowings). 2When they had finished eating the grass of the land, I said,
"O Lord GOD, forgive, I beg you!
How can Jacob stand?
He is so small!"
3 The LORD relented concerning
this;
"It shall not be," said the LORD.

4 This is what the Lord GOD showed me: the Lord GOD was calling for a shower of fire,[x] and it devoured the great deep and was eating up the land. 5Then I said,
"O Lord GOD, cease, I beg you!
How can Jacob stand?
He is so small!"
6 The LORD relented concerning
this;

7 This is what he showed me: the Lord was standing beside a wall built with a plumb line, with a plumb line in his hand. 8And the LORD said to me, "Amos, what do you see?" And I said, "A plumb line." Then the Lord said,

"See, I am setting a plumb line in the midst of my people Israel;
I will never again pass them by;
9 the high places of Isaac shall be made desolate,
and the sanctuaries of Israel shall be laid waste,
and I will rise against the house of Jeroboam with the sword."

10 Then Amaziah, the priest of Bethel, sent to King Jeroboam of Israel, saying, "Amos has conspired against you in the very center of the house of Israel; the land is not able to bear all his words. 11For thus Amos has said,

'Jeroboam shall die by the sword, and Israel must go into exile away from his land.' "

12And Amaziah said to Amos, "O seer, go, flee away to the land of Judah, earn your bread there, and prophesy there; 13but never again prophesy at Bethel, for it is the king's sanctuary, and it is a temple of the kingdom."

14 Then Amos answered Amaziah, "I am[y] no prophet, nor a prophet's son; but I am[y] a herdsman, and a dresser of sycamore trees, 15and the LORD took me from following the flock, and the LORD said to me, 'Go, prophesy to my people Israel.'

16 "Now therefore hear the word of
the LORD.
You say, 'Do not prophesy against Israel,
and do not preach against the house of Isaac.'
17 Therefore thus says the LORD:
'Your wife shall become a prostitute in the city, and your sons and your daughters shall fall by the sword,
and your land shall be parceled out by line;
you yourself shall die in an unclean land,
and Israel shall surely go into exile away from its land.' "

7 The LORD has sworn by the pride
of Jacob:
Surely I will never forget any of their deeds.
8 Shall not the land tremble on this account,
and everyone mourn who lives
in it,
and all of it rise like the Nile,
and be tossed about and sink again, like the Nile of Egypt?

9 On that day, says the Lord GOD,
I will make the sun go down
at noon,
and darken the earth in broad daylight.
10 I will turn your feasts into mourning,
and all your songs into lamentation;
I will bring sackcloth on all loins,
and baldness on every head;
I will make it like the mourning
for an only son, and the end of it like a bitter day.

11 The time is surely coming, says
the Lord GOD,
when I will send a famine on
the land;
not a famine of bread, or a thirst
for water, but of hearing the words of
the LORD.
12 They shall wander from sea to sea,
and from north to east;
they shall run to and fro, seeking the word of the LORD,
but they shall not find it.

13 In that day the beautiful young women and the young men

4 And though they go into captivity in front of their enemies, there I will command the sword, and it shall kill them;
and I will fix my eyes on them for harm and not for good.

5 The Lord, God of hosts,
he who touches the earth and it melts,
and all who live in it mourn,
and all of it rises like the Nile,
and sinks again, like the Nile of Egypt;
6 who builds his upper chambers in the heavens,
and founds his vault upon the earth;
who calls for the waters of the sea,
and pours them out upon the surface of the earth—
the Lord is his name.

7 Are you not like the Ethiopians[e] to me,
O people of Israel? says the Lord.
Did I not bring Israel up from the land of Egypt, and the Philistines from Caphtor and the Arameans from Kir?
8 The eyes of the Lord God are upon the sinful kingdom, and I will destroy it from the face of the earth —except that I will not utterly destroy the house of Jacob,
says the Lord.

9 For lo, I will command,

as one shakes with a sieve,
but no pebble shall fall to the ground.
10 All the sinners of my people shall die by the sword,

9.11–15: Prophecies of the restoration of the Davidic dynasty (vv. 11–12) and the glorious age to come (vv. 13–15). This section, so affirmative in its emphasis, is generally considered a later addition. It expands, however, genuine elements in Amos's own thought (compare 3.12; 5.3, 4, 6, 11–15) and also evidences a basic connection: the full prophetic word contains both judgment and salvation (see Introduction to Micah). 11–12: Note the use of this passage by James at the meeting of the apostles and the elders of the church at Jerusalem in Acts 15.16–17. 13: See Joel 3.18–21 n. Shall overtake, Lev 26.5.

13 The time is surely coming, says the LORD,
when the one who plows shall overtake the one who reaps,
and the treader of grapes the one who sows the seed;
the mountains shall drip sweet wine,
and all the hills shall flow with it.
14 I will restore the fortunes of my people Israel,
and they shall rebuild the ruined cities and inhabit them;
they shall plant vineyards and drink their wine,
and they shall make gardens and eat their fruit.
15 I will plant them upon their land,
and they shall never again be plucked up out of the land that I have given them, says the LORD your God.

Obadiah

Nothing is known of the person of the prophet Obadiah; even his name is not distinctive (see v. 1 n.). The problems of date and composition of his brief work, the shortest book in the Old Testament, are not easily solved. Some of the oracles in the book were spoken, or written, soon after Jerusalem fell to the Babylonians in 587 (586) B.C. Obadiah may not himself have written all of the present book, but may have drawn upon collections of sayings transmitted orally among prophetic circles. This could account for the similarity between vv. 1–9 and Jer 49.7–22. But the work is dominated by the theme of justice and judgment, and may well be the product of one voice.

Verses 1–14 indict the Edomites for outrageous and hostile actions when their Israelite kinfolk were in peril. Starting from these recent events in the experience of his people, Obadiah, like Joel (see Introduction to Joel), moves on to portray their future consummation. Verses 15–18 announce the day of the LORD's recompense upon the nations for their shameful behavior. A final section (vv. 19–21) proclaims the return of Israel's exiles to the Promised Land, their dominion over Edom, and the LORD's universal sovereignty.

Pillage and slaughter will repay Edom's cruelty

1 The vision of Obadiah.

Thus says the Lord GOD concerning Edom:
We have heard a report from
the LORD,
and a messenger has been sent
among the nations:
"Rise up! Let us rise against it for battle!"
2 I will surely make you least
among the nations;
you shall be utterly despised.
3 Your proud heart has deceived
you,
you that live in the clefts of the rock,[a] whose dwelling is in the heights.
You say in your heart,
"Who will bring me down to the ground?"
4 Though you soar aloft like the eagle,
though your nest is set among
the stars,
from there I will bring you down,
says the LORD.

5 If thieves came to you,
if plunderers by night
—how you have been destroyed!—
would they not steal only what they wanted?
If grape-gatherers came to you,
would they not leave gleanings?
6 How Esau has been pillaged, his treasures searched out!
7 All your allies have deceived you,
they have driven you to the border;
your confederates have prevailed
against you;
those who ate[b] your bread have set a trap for you—
there is no understanding of it.
8 On that day, says the LORD,
I will destroy the wise out of Edom,
and understanding out of Mount Esau.
9 Your warriors shall be shattered,
O Teman,
so that everyone from Mount Esau will be cut off.
10 For the slaughter and violence done to your brother Jacob, shame shall cover you,
and you shall be cut off forever.
11 On the day that you stood aside, on the day that strangers carried off his wealth,
and foreigners entered his gates and cast lots for Jerusalem,
you too were like one of them.
12 But you should not have gloated[c] over[d] your brother
on the day of his misfortune;
you should not have rejoiced over the people of Judah
on the day of their ruin;
you should not have boasted

Jonah

The book of Jonah is unique among the prophetic books. It contains no collection of oracles in verse against Israel and foreign nations, but presents a prose narrative about the prophet himself. Instead of portraying a prophet who is an obedient servant of the LORD, calling his people to repentance, it features a recalcitrant prophet who flees from his mission and sulks when his hearers repent.

The book is a didactic narrative that has taken older material from the realm of popular legend and put it to new, more consequential use. Its two parts, chs 1–2 and 3–4, are now united by having in common a central character (Jonah), a similar plot (the ironical conversion of the heathen), and an identical theme (the breadth of God's saving love).

The principal figure of this artful story is an obscure Galilean prophet from Gath-hepher who counseled Jeroboam II (786–746 B.C.) in a successful conflict with the Syrians (2 Kings 14.25) and with whom some of the earlier traditional material was probably associated. Its author, however, probably lived in the post-exilic period because he shows the influence of Jeremiah and Second Isaiah, and opposes the type of a narrow sectarianism and exclusivism. Although the linguistic evidence is indecisive, a date sometime in the fifth or fourth century B.C. seems indicated.

With skill and finesse this little book calls Israel to repentance and reminds it of its mission to preach to all the nations the wideness of God's mercy and forgiveness (Gen 12.1–3; Isa 42.6–7; 49.6). In spirit, therefore, the book remains truly prophetic and justifies its place in the Book of the Twelve Prophets.

1 Now the word of the LORD came to Jonah son of Amittai, saying, 2"Go at once to Nineveh, that great city, and cry out against it; for their wickedness has come up before me." 3But Jonah set out to flee to Tarshish from the presence of the LORD. He went down to Joppa and found a ship going to Tarshish; so he paid his fare and went on board, to go with them to Tarshish, away from the presence of the LORD.

4 But the LORD hurled a great wind upon the sea, and such a mighty storm came upon the sea that the ship threatened to break up. 5Then the mariners were afraid, and each cried to his god. They threw the cargo that was in the ship into the sea, to lighten it for them. Jonah, meanwhile, had gone down into the hold of the ship and had lain down, and was fast asleep. 6The captain came and said to him, "What are you doing sound asleep? Get up, call on your god! Perhaps the god will spare us a thought so that we do not perish."

7 The sailors[a] said to one another, "Come, let us cast lots, so that we may know on whose account this calamity has come upon us." So they cast lots, and the lot fell on Jonah. 8Then they said to him, "Tell us why this calamity has come upon us. What is your occupation? Where do you come from? What is your country? And of what people are you?" 9"I am a Hebrew," he replied. "I worship the LORD, the God of heaven, who made the sea and the dry land." 10Then the men were even more afraid, and said to him, "What is this that you have done!" For the men knew that he was fleeing from the presence of the LORD, because he had told them so.

11 Then they said to him, "What shall we do to you, that the sea may quiet down for us?" For the sea was growing more and more tempestuous. 12He said to them, "Pick me up and throw me into the sea; then the sea will quiet down for you; for I know it is because of me that this great storm has come upon you." 13Nevertheless the men rowed hard to bring the ship back to land, but they could not, for the sea grew more and more stormy against them. 14Then they cried out to the LORD, "Please, O LORD, we pray, do not let us perish on account of this man's life. Do not make us guilty of innocent blood; for you, O LORD, have done as it pleased you." 15So they picked Jonah up and threw him into the sea; and the sea ceased from its raging. 16Then the men feared the LORD even more, and they offered a sacrifice to the LORD and made vows.

17[b] But the LORD provided a large fish to swallow up Jonah; and Jonah was in the belly of the fish three days and three nights.

2 Then Jonah prayed to the LORD his God from the belly of the fish, 2saying,

"I called to the LORD out of my distress,
and he answered me;

The word Jonah means "dove." 2: For the wickedness of the Assyrian capital, Nineveh, see Nah ch 3. 3: Tarshish, probably in southern Spain (Isa 23.1–12; Ezek 27.12, 25), represents the farthest point to which Jonah could sail.

1.4–16: The LORD procures Jonah's recall. God causes a great tempest; for the LORD, the God of heaven, rules the sea and the dry land (Pss 65.5–7; 107.23–32; 139.7–12; Mk 4.35–41; Acts ch 27). 16: Jonah becomes a missionary of his God in spite of himself.

10 Then the LORD spoke to the fish, and it spewed Jonah out upon the dry land.

3 The word of the LORD came to Jonah a second time, saying, 2 "Get up, go to Nineveh, that great city, and proclaim to it the message that I tell you." 3 So Jonah set out and went to Nineveh, according to the word of the LORD. Now Nineveh was an exceedingly large city, a three days' walk across. 4 Jonah began to go into the city, going a day's walk. And he cried out, "Forty days more, and Nineveh shall be overthrown!" 5 And the people of Nineveh believed God; they proclaimed a fast, and everyone, great and small, put on sackcloth.

6 When the news reached the king of Nineveh, he rose from his throne, removed his robe, covered himself with sackcloth, and sat in ashes. 7 Then he had a proclamation made in Nineveh: "By the decree of the king and his nobles: No human being or animal, no herd or flock, shall taste anything. They shall not feed, nor shall they drink water. 8 Human beings and animals shall be covered with sackcloth, and they shall cry mightily to God. All shall turn from their evil ways and from the violence that is in their hands. 9 Who knows? God may relent and change his mind; he may turn from his fierce anger, so that we do not perish."

10 When God saw what they did, how they turned from their evil ways, God changed his mind about the calamity that he had said he would bring upon them; and he did not do it.

4 But this was very displeasing to Jonah, and he became angry. 2 He prayed to the LORD and said, "O LORD! Is not this what I said while I was still in my own country? That is why I fled to deliverance (v. 9). 2: Pss 18.6; 120.1. Sheol, or Pit (v. 6), is the region of darkness and death (Ps 88.3–12). 3a: Ps 88.6. 3b: Ps 42.7. 6: Land, of the departed, Sheol.

3.1–4.11: Jonah's second call to preach to Nineveh, although reluctantly and grudgingly obeyed, results in the wholesale conversion of the heathen city. 3: Exceedingly large city; excavations have revealed a city about three miles in length and somewhat less than one and one-half miles wide. The message of the story, not the size of the city, is of primary import. 5–10: Again Jonah is a successful missionary in spite of himself.

3.6: Sackcloth and ashes, traditional signs of mourning and repentance (2 Sam 3.31; Job 42.6; Dan 9.3; Mt 11.21). 7–9: The reaction of the king of Nineveh is modelled on Jer 18.8–9. He sets a better example than Jonah (4.1). 10: Repentance and deliverance are themes dominating the story of Jonah and its use in the New Testament (Mt 12.38–41; Lk 11.29–32).

4.1–4: Jonah is not only disobedient but

Tarshish at the beginning; for I knew that you are a gracious God and merciful, slow to anger, and abounding in steadfast love, and ready to relent from punishing. 3And now, O LORD, please take my life from me, for it is better for me to die than to live." 4And the LORD said, "Is it right for you to be angry?" 5Then Jonah went out of the city and sat down east of the city, and made a booth for himself there. He sat under it in the shade, waiting to see what would become of the city.

6 The LORD God appointed a bush,[d] and made it come up over Jonah, to give shade over his head, to save him from his discomfort; so Jonah was very happy about the bush. 7But when dawn came up the next day, God appointed a worm that attacked the bush, so that it withered. 8When the sun rose, God prepared a sultry east wind, and the sun beat down on the head of Jonah so that he was faint and asked that he might die. He said, "It is better for me to die than to live."

9 But God said to Jonah, "Is it right for you to be angry about the bush?" And he said, "Yes, angry enough to die." 10Then the LORD said, "You are concerned about the bush, for which you did not labor and which you did not grow; it came into being in a night and perished in a night. 11And should I not be concerned about Nineveh, that great city, in which there are more than a hundred and twenty thousand persons who do not know their right hand from their left, and also many animals?"

bigoted; the reason for his flight was that he did not want to see the Assyrians spared by a gracious God (compare Ex 34.6–7). Literary artistry is apparent in the death wish and question of the Lord in vv. 3–4 and 9. 11: God has concern for every creature in the universe, even animals. The divine love extends beyond any covenant.

Micah

The superscription to this book indicates that Micah was a younger contemporary of Isaiah. The characteristics of the era in which Micah spoke were similar, therefore, to those seen in the ministries of Hosea and Isaiah. The prosperous half-century of peace enjoyed by the northern kingdom of Israel was ended by the death of Jeroboam II and the westward advance of the Assyrians. In 731 B.C. the fall of Damascus marked the end of Syria's freedom; a brief decade later brought the same fate to Israel and its capital at Samaria. Although the kingdom of Judah was spared at that time from the Assyrian yoke, the anti-Assyrian policies of Hezekiah brought Sennacherib of Assyria to Judah in 701 B.C., and Judah was left a weak vassal state.

But unlike Isaiah, Micah was neither of noble descent nor a native of the capital city. He came, rather, from the common people, being a citizen of the small village of Moresheth in the Judean foothills southwest of Jerusalem. Therefore Micah looked upon the corruptions and pretensions of the capital through different eyes. Perhaps it was this difference that accounts for Micah's prophecy of the fall of Jerusalem (3.9–12), a major note distinguishing him from his contemporaries and for which he was long remembered (Jer 26.18).

Micah stands solidly with Amos, Hosea, and Isaiah as a fierce champion of pure worship of the LORD and of social justice, and he shares with them both the word of judgment against God's own people (1.2–3.12; 6.1–7.7) and the promise of divine forgiveness and hope in a future restoration. The latter theme of the prophet comes to us in an expanded and edited post-exilic form in 4.1–5.15. The picture of the restored Jerusalem in 7.8–20 comes from the post-exilic period.

1 The word of the LORD that came to Micah of Moresheth in the days of Kings Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah of Judah, which he saw concerning Samaria and Jerusalem.

2 Hear, you peoples, all of you;
listen, O earth, and all that is in it;
and let the Lord GOD be a witness against you,
the Lord from his holy temple.
3 For lo, the LORD is coming out of his place, and will come down and tread upon the high places of the earth.
4 Then the mountains will melt under him and the valleys will burst open,
like wax near the fire,
like waters poured down a steep place.
5 All this is for the transgression of Jacob and for the sins of the house of Israel.
What is the transgression of Jacob?
Is it not Samaria?
And what is the high place[a] of Judah?
Is it not Jerusalem?
6 Therefore I will make Samaria a heap in the open country,
a place for planting vineyards.
I will pour down her stones into the valley,
and uncover her foundations.
7 All her images shall be beaten to pieces,
all her wages shall be burned with fire,
and all her idols I will lay waste;
for as the wages of a prostitute she gathered them,
and as the wages of a prostitute they shall again be used.

8 For this I will lament and wail;
I will go barefoot and naked;
I will make lamentation like the jackals,
and mourning like the ostriches.
9 For her wound[b] is incurable.
It has come to Judah;
it has reached to the gate of my people,

4 Then they will cry to the LORD,
but he will not answer them;
he will hide his face from them at that time,
because they have acted wickedly.

5 Thus says the LORD concerning
the prophets
who lead my people astray, who cry "Peace"
when they have something to eat, but declare war against those who put nothing into their mouths.
6 Therefore it shall be night to you,
without vision,
and darkness to you, without revelation.
The sun shall go down upon
the prophets,
and the day shall be black over them;
7 the seers shall be disgraced,
and the diviners put to shame;
they shall all cover their lips,
for there is no answer from God.
8 But as for me, I am filled with power,
with the spirit of the LORD,
and with justice and might,
to declare to Jacob his transgression
and to Israel his sin.

of Jacob
and chiefs of the house of Israel, who abhor justice

2.12–13: This picture of the restored remnant of all Israel, which presupposes the capture of the country and its destruction, was probably contributed by an exilic or post-exilic editor.

3.5–8: The mercenary prophets and seers, who prostitute their solemn office, shall be cut off from God, the source of true revelation and well-being. 7: Seers, see 1 Sam 9.9. Shall . . . cover their lips, as a sign of mourning (Lev 13.45; Ezek 27.17, 22). 8: In contrast with the false officials, Micah's call has imbued him with power, justice, and might, because it filled him with the spirit of the LORD (Isa 11.2; 61.1; Ezek 2.2).

3.9–12: The first section reaches its climax with Micah's bold assertion that, because of corruption which permeates all of its rulers, Jerusalem and the temple itself shall be destroyed. 9: This recalls Am 5.6–7. 10: Compare Hab 2.12. 12: This was quoted at the trial of Jeremiah (Jer 26.18).

and pervert all equity, 10 who build Zion with blood and Jerusalem with wrong!
11 Its rulers give judgment for a bribe,
its priests teach for a price,
its prophets give oracles for money;
yet they lean upon the LORD and say,
"Surely the LORD is with us!
No harm shall come upon us."
12 Therefore because of you
Zion shall be plowed as a field;
Jerusalem shall become a heap of ruins,
and the mountain of the house a wooded height.

4 In days to come the mountain of the LORD's house shall be established as the highest of the mountains, and shall be raised up above the hills.
Peoples shall stream to it,
2 and many nations shall come and say:
"Come, let us go up to the mountain of the LORD,
to the house of the God of Jacob;
that he may teach us his ways
and that we may walk in his paths."
For out of Zion shall go forth instruction, and the word of the LORD from Jerusalem.
3 He shall judge between many peoples,
and shall arbitrate between strong nations far away;
they shall beat their swords into plowshares,
and their spears into pruning hooks;
nation shall not lift up sword against nation,
neither shall they learn war any more;
4 but they shall all sit under their own vines and under their own fig trees,
and no one shall make them afraid;
for the mouth of the LORD of hosts has spoken.

5 For all the peoples walk,
each in the name of its god, but we will walk in the name of the LORD our God
forever and ever.

6 In that day, says the LORD,
I will assemble the lame
and gather those who have been driven away,
and those whom I have afflicted.
7 The lame I will make the remnant,
and those who were cast off, a strong nation;
and the LORD will reign over them in Mount Zion
now and forevermore.

8 And you, O tower of the flock,
hill of daughter Zion,
to you it shall come,
the former dominion shall come,

4.1–5.15: Prophecies of Israel's glorious future and the restoration of the Davidic kingdom constitute the second major section of the book. Though many scholars date the origin of these prophecies in the post-exilic period, they are quite possibly based on genuine oracles from Micah, edited in their present form after the Exile. 4.1–5: The exaltation of Jerusalem as a center of worship by the nations; the new age of peace. Verses 1–3 are duplicated in Isa 2.2–4. Here, as sometimes elsewhere in the prophetic books, the author of a passage may be unknown, as with Isa chs 40–66. 1: The mountain of the LORD's house, Mount Zion. Highest of the mountains, compare Ezek 40.2. 4: Compare Zech 3.10. 5: Compare Isa 2.5.

4.6–8: The LORD's gracious exaltation of the lame and rejected, for whom he will restore his kingdom (Isa 40.9–11; Ezek 34.11–16; 37.24–28; Zeph 3.19; Jn 10.7–16).

9 Now why do you cry aloud?
Is there no king in you?
Has your counselor perished, that pangs have seized you like a woman in labor?
10 Writhe and groan,[k] O daughter Zion,
like a woman in labor;
for now you shall go forth from the city
and camp in the open country;
you shall go to Babylon.
There you shall be rescued,
there the LORD will redeem you from the hands of your enemies.

11 Now many nations are assembled against you, saying, "Let her be profaned, and let our eyes gaze upon Zion."
12 But they do not know
the thoughts of the LORD;
they do not understand his plan,
that he has gathered them as sheaves to the threshing floor.
13 Arise and thresh, O daughter Zion,
for I will make your horn iron and your hoofs bronze;
you shall beat in pieces many peoples, and shall[l] devote their gain to
the LORD,
their wealth to the Lord of the whole earth.

siege is laid against us;
with a rod they strike the ruler
of Israel

2[o] But you, O Bethlehem of Ephrathah, who are one of the little clans
of Judah,
from you shall come forth for me
one who is to rule in Israel, whose origin is from of old,
from ancient days.
3 Therefore he shall give them up until the time when she who is in labor has brought forth;
then the rest of his kindred shall return to the people of Israel.
4 And he shall stand and feed his flock in the strength of
the LORD,
in the majesty of the name of the LORD his God.
And they shall live secure, for now he shall be great to the ends of the earth;
5 and he shall be the one of peace.

Nahum

As is typical of Hebrew prophecy, Nahum's words were prompted by the dramatic events of international history. The proud Assyrian empire, whose power had for centuries been felt and feared from Mesopotamia to the Mediterranean, crumbled quickly after the death of Asshurbanipal (about 630 B.C.). Under the combined assaults of the vigorous Medes from north of Persia and the Chaldeans from southern Babylonia, the ancient capital city of Asshur fell in 614 B.C. When the renowned Nineveh was destroyed in 612, Assyrian domination of the Near East was ended.

The fervent reaction to the overthrow of Assyria, expressed by the peoples long subjected to its yoke, is nowhere more clearly seen than in the book of Nahum. The core of the book is a superb, vivid poem extolling Nineveh's destruction, which Nahum felt to be inevitable. The prophet spells out the reason for the Assyrian downfall in unequivocal terms: it is the LORD's judgment upon an unscrupulous, defiant nation.

This basic theme makes clear that Nahum's thought is passionately partisan. It asserts boldly that the LORD is the avenger of cruelty and immorality. But it fails, perhaps only because of a resolute singleness of purpose, to indicate the consequences of this divine justice for Israel itself.

The date of Nahum's triumphal ode lies close to the event it foretells, probably between 626 and 612 B.C. Its author is identified only by his name; even the location of Elkosh (1.1) is uncertain.

1 An oracle concerning Nineveh. The book of the vision of Nahum of Elkosh.

2 A jealous and avenging God is the LORD,
the LORD is avenging and wrathful;
the LORD takes vengeance on his adversaries and rages against his enemies.
3 The LORD is slow to anger but great in power,
and the LORD will by no means clear the guilty.

His way is in whirlwind and storm,
and the clouds are the dust of his feet.
4 He rebukes the sea and makes it dry,
and he dries up all the rivers;
Bashan and Carmel wither,
and the bloom of Lebanon fades.
5 The mountains quake before him,
and the hills melt;
the earth heaves before him,
the world and all who live in it.

6 Who can stand before his indignation?
Who can endure the heat of his anger?
His wrath is poured out like fire,
and by him the rocks are broken in pieces.
7 The LORD is good,
a stronghold in a day of trouble;
he protects those who take refuge in him,
8 even in a rushing flood.
He will make a full end of his adversaries,[a]
and will pursue his enemies into darkness.
9 Why do you plot against the LORD?
He will make an end;
no adversary will rise up twice.
10 Like thorns they are entangled,
like drunkards they are drunk;
they are consumed like dry straw.
11 From you one has gone out who plots evil against the LORD, one who counsels wickedness.

12 Thus says the LORD,
"Though they are at full strength and many,[b]
they will be cut off and pass away.
Though I have afflicted you,
I will afflict you no more.
13 And now I will break off his yoke from you and snap the bonds that bind you."

14 The LORD has commanded concerning you:
"Your name shall be perpetuated no longer;

1.1: Title. Oracle, literally "burden," is a technical term describing the prophetic word (Isa 13.1; Jer 23.33–40 n.; Hab 1.1; Zech 9.1; Mal 1.1). The prophet "saw" this word (Am 1.1; Mic 1.1; Hab 1.1) as a vision (Ob 1). Elkosh may be a village in Galilee, known to Jerome as Elkesi, but more probably was located in SW Judah.

1.2–14: The coming of the avenging LORD. An incomplete acrostic psalm, probably inserted either by Nahum or an editor to introduce the prophet's own poem on Nineveh's fall (mainly 1.15–3.19). # Habakkuk

In the present book of Habakkuk at least three distinct literary forms can be recognized. The section 1.2–2.5 is constructed as a dialogue between the prophet and God; the next section (2.6–20), consisting of five woes against a wicked nation, is cast in classical prophetic style; and ch 3 is a lengthy poem, similar in structure to the Psalms and in its final form obviously meant for liturgical use. Moreover, various historical allusions discernible in the three sections point to different periods. These materials, therefore, may not originally have been a unit. But they are connected by the common theme of theodicy (justification of the ways of God) and now appear as the work of a Hebrew prophet who lived during the height of Babylonian power, most likely in the decade 608–598 B.C.

Although a certain Habakkuk appears in the apocryphal story of Bel and the Dragon, nothing is known about the life of the Old Testament prophet, not even his father's name. His thought, however, is laid bare by the searching questions he asks.

The author is confronting honestly the profoundly disturbing problem of why a just God is "silent when the wicked swallow those more righteous than they" (1.13). To this perennial question the prophet receives an answer that is eternally valid: God is still sovereign, and in God's own way and at the proper time will deal with the wicked; "but the righteous shall live by their faith" (2.4).

The prophet's complaint

1 The oracle that the prophet Habakkuk saw.

2 O LORD, how long shall I cry for help,
and you will not listen?
Or cry to you "Violence!"
and you will not save?
3 Why do you make me see wrongdoing
and look at trouble?
Destruction and violence are before me;
strife and contention arise.
4 So the law becomes slack and justice never prevails.
The wicked surround the righteous—
therefore judgment comes forth perverted.

5 Look at the nations, and see!
Be astonished! Be astounded!
For a work is being done in your days that you would not believe if you were told.
6 For I am rousing the Chaldeans, that fierce and impetuous nation, who march through the breadth of
the earth
to seize dwellings not their own.
7 Dread and fearsome are they;
their justice and dignity proceed
from themselves.
8 Their horses are swifter than leopards,
more menacing than wolves
at dusk;
their horses charge.
Their horsemen come from far away;
they fly like an eagle swift to devour.
9 They all come for violence,
with faces pressing[a] forward;
they gather captives like sand.
10 At kings they scoff,
and of rulers they make sport.
They laugh at every fortress,
and heap up earth to take it.
11 Then they sweep by like the wind;
they transgress and become guilty;
their own might is their god!

12 Are you not from of old,
O LORD my God, my Holy One?
You[b] shall not die.
O LORD, you have marked them
for judgment;
and you, O Rock, have established them for punishment.
13 Your eyes are too pure to behold evil,

1.2–2.5: A dialogue in two cycles (1.2–11; 1.12–2.5), between the prophet and God, raising the question of the LORD's just government of the world.

1.2–11: The first cycle. 2–4: Habakkuk protests that God neither hears nor acts (compare Ps 22.1–2) and thereby negates law and justice. This section may originally have been concerned with unrighteous members of the Israelite community; in its present context it is directed against the Chaldeans (vv. 6–11, 15–17). 2: Ps 13.1–2; Jer 14.9; Rev 6.9–10. 3: Jer 20.8, 10. 4: Ps 119.126; Isa 59.12–14; Jer 12.1–4.

1.5–11: The LORD replies that the Chaldeans, wicked as they are, are the instrument of God's own choosing (Isa 10.5–27; 41.2–3; 42.24; 44.28; 45.1–6; Jer 5.14–19; 27.6–7; ch 51). 5: Quoted in Acts 13.41. 6: The Chaldeans, or neo-Babylonians, ruled the ancient Near East from 612 to 539 B.C. (see Introduction to Nahum). 7–11: This tyrannical nation administers a justice all its own and worships its own might.

1.12–2.5: The second cycle. Habakkuk asks how long the Holy One will look on while the faithless persecute those more righteous than they; he then takes his stand to receive the LORD's answer. 12: Rock, a metaphor frequently applied to God (Deut 32.4, 18, 30, 31; 2 Sam 23.3; Pss 18.2, 31; 92.15; 95.1; Isa 30.29; and elsewhere). 13: The heart of Habakkuk's problem (see Ps 5.4–6).

why do you look on the 14 You have made people like the 15 The enemy[c] brings all of them up with a hook;

he drags them out with his net,
he gathers them in his seine;
so he rejoices and exults.
16 Therefore he sacrifices to his net and makes offerings to his seine;
for by them his portion is lavish,
and his food is rich.
17 Is he then to keep on emptying his net,
and destroying nations without mercy?

2 I will stand at my watchpost, and station myself on the rampart;
I will keep watch to see what he will say to me,
and what he[d] will answer

2 Then the LORD answered me and said:
Write the vision;
make it plain on tablets,
so that a runner may read it.
3 For there is still a vision for the appointed time;
it speaks of the end, and does not lie.
If it seems to tarry, wait for it;
it will surely come, it will not delay.
4 Look at the proud!
Their spirit is not right in them,
but the righteous live by their faith.[e] 5 Moreover, wealth[f] is treacherous;
the arrogant do not endure.
They open their throats wide
as Sheol;
like Death they never have enough.
They gather all nations for themselves,
and collect all peoples as their own.

6 Shall not everyone taunt such people and, with mocking riddles, say about them,
"Alas for you who heap up what is not your own!"
How long will you load yourselves with goods taken in pledge?
7 Will not your own creditors
suddenly rise,
and those who make you tremble wake up?
Then you will be booty for
them.

2.1: The watchpost indicates both the prophet's eager desire for, and confidence in, the LORD's reply (Pss 5.3; 130.5–6; Isa 21.8; Hos 9.8). 2–5: The LORD responds with the assurance that although the prophet may not see its final issue, the divine justice is inexorable and will come in due time; in the meanwhile the righteous must live faithfully. 2: The LORD's answer is to be as plain as a highway sign (Isa 8.1; Rev 1.19). 3: Num 23.19; Dan 8.19; 2 Pet 3.8–10; Heb 10.37. 4: The heart of the matter is that the righteous who are faithful to God have power to live but the proud (i.e. unrighteous) do not endure. Here the contrast is primarily between Israelites and Chaldeans; but the verse has, properly, received wider application (Rom 1.17; Gal 3.11; Heb 10.38–39).

2.6–20: The five woes. These are directed against a nation that plunders peoples, obtains gain by violence, builds towns with blood, shamelessly degrades its neighbors, and trusts in idols. Applied originally to the Assyrians, Babylonians, or Macedonians, the woes

10 You have devised shame for your house by cutting off many peoples;
you have forfeited your life.
11 The very stones will cry out from the wall,
and the plaster[g] will respond from the woodwork.

12 "Alas for you who build a town by bloodshed, and found a city on iniquity!"
13 Is it not from the LORD of hosts that peoples labor only to feed the flames, and nations weary themselves for nothing?
14 But the earth will be filled with the knowledge of the glory of the LORD,
as the waters cover the sea.

15 "Alas for you who make your neighbors drink, pouring out your wrath[h] until they are drunk,
in order to gaze on their nakedness!"
16 You will be sated with contempt instead of glory.
Drink, you yourself, and stagger![i]
The cup in the LORD's right hand will come around to you, and shame will come upon your glory!
17 For the violence done to Lebanon will overwhelm you;
the destruction of the animals will terrify you—[j]
because of human bloodshed and violence to the earth, to cities and all who live in them.

18 What use is an idol
once its maker has shaped it—a cast image, a teacher of lies?
For its maker trusts in what has been made,
though the product is only an idol that cannot speak!
19 Alas for you who say to the wood, "Wake up!"
to silent stone, "Rouse yourself!"
Can it teach?
See, it is gold and silver plated,
and there is no breath in it at all.

20 But the LORD is in his holy temple;
let all the earth keep silence before him!

Zephaniah

The superscription to Zephaniah's book traces his ancestry back to Hezekiah and dates his ministry in the reign of Josiah (640–609 B.C.). Since the name Hezekiah is uncommon in the Old Testament, here it perhaps refers to the famous Judean king (715–687 B.C.), who was favorably influenced by the preaching of Isaiah and Micah. Zephaniah's intimate knowledge of Jerusalem and its court circles, his failure to denounce the king personally, and the absence of any concern with the poor of the land, may support the inference that he was of royal descent.

His condemnation of the corrupt practices and religious perversions (1.4–6, 8, 9, 12; 3.1–3, 7), officially legislated against by Deuteronomy, suggests that Zephaniah prophesied before Josiah's reforms of 621 B.C. (2 Kings ch 23). The allusion to imminent threat from the north (see 1.10 n.), perhaps the barbaric Scythian hordes, further suggests the decade about 630 for Zephaniah's public ministry.

The book can be divided into three sections: Chapters 1.2–2.3 proclaim doom on Judah for its religious syncretism, in the form of the destructive day of the LORD, which is "near and hastening fast." Chapter 2 (vv. 4–15) extends the divine judgment to other nations (especially Israel's ancient enemies), which are also guilty; however, a humble seeking after righteousness may mitigate the wrath of that day. Chapter 3, after condemning Jerusalem (vv. 1–7), promises comfort and consolation to those who wait patiently for the LORD and serve God "with one accord." The inhabitants of Jerusalem shall rejoice that the LORD their King is in their midst to save them and gather them home (3.20).

1 The word of the LORD that came to Zephaniah son of Cushi son of Gedaliah son of Amariah son of Hezekiah, in the days of King Josiah son of Amon of Judah.

2 I will utterly sweep away everything from the face of the earth, says
the LORD.
3 I will sweep away humans and animals;
I will sweep away the birds of the air
and the fish of the sea.
I will make the wicked stumble.[a]
I will cut off humanity
from the face of the earth, says
the LORD.
4 I will stretch out my hand against Judah,
and against all the inhabitants of Jerusalem;
and I will cut off from this place
every remnant of Baal
and the name of the idolatrous priests;[b]
5 those who bow down on the roofs to the host of the heavens;
those who bow down and swear
to the LORD,
but also swear by Milcom;[c] 6 those who have turned back from following the LORD, who have not sought the LORD
or inquired of him.
7 Be silent before the Lord GOD!
For the day of the LORD is at hand;
the LORD has prepared a sacrifice,
he has consecrated his guests.
8 And on the day of the LORD's
sacrifice
I will punish the officials and the king's sons
and all who dress themselves in foreign attire.
9 On that day I will punish all who leap over the threshold, who fill their master's house with violence and fraud.

10 On that day, says the LORD,
a cry will be heard from the Fish Gate,
a wail from the Second Quarter,
a loud crash from the hills.
11 The inhabitants of the Mortar wail,
for all the traders have perished;
all who weigh out silver are

1.2–6: The threat of universal destruction caused by Judah's religious syncretism. Zephaniah vigorously condemns the adulteration of the pure worship of the LORD with elements of Canaanite (Baal), Ammonite (Milcom), and Assyrian (host of the heavens) religions. 2–3: Humans, humanity, and earth are alliterative in Hebrew, as in Gen ch 2 (see Gen 2.7 n.), suggesting the negation of creation. Says the LORD, see Am 1.3 n.

1.7–9: Court officials and royal family will be punished on the day of the LORD's sacrifice. 7: Prepared a sacrifice, i.e. a slaughter of sinners. 9: Leap over the threshold, a pagan religious practice (1 Sam 5.5 n.).

1.10–13: Merchants and traders will be cut off and the religiously indifferent will be desolate on that day. 10: The enemy will approach Jerusalem from the north, first through the Fish Gate (Neh 3.1–6; 12.39; compare Jer 1.13–16). Second Quarter, a section of Jerusalem (2 Kings 22.14). 11: Traders, literally, "people of Canaan." 12: Rest complacently (literally "thicken," note d) on their dregs, a figure drawn from wine-making to portray indolence. If the wine is not stirred up while it is fermenting, it becomes thick and lacks strength (see also Jer 48.11).

Though they build houses,
they shall not inhabit them;

because they have sinned against
the LORD,
their blood shall be poured out like dust,
and their flesh like dung.
18 Neither their silver nor their gold will be able to save them on the day of the LORD's wrath;
in the fire of his passion
the whole earth shall be consumed;
for a full, a terrible end he will make of all the inhabitants of the earth.

2 Gather together, gather,

they have done violence to the law.
5 The LORD within it is righteous;
he does no wrong.
Every morning he renders his judgment,
each dawn without fail;
but the unjust knows no shame.

6 I have cut off nations;
their battlements are in ruins;
I have laid waste their streets
so that no one walks in them;
their cities have been made desolate, without people, without inhabitants.
7 I said, "Surely the city[k] will fear me,
it will accept correction;
it will not lose sight[l]
of all that I have brought upon it."
But they were the more eager to make all their deeds corrupt.

8 Therefore wait for me, says
the LORD,
for the day when I arise as a witness.
For my decision is to gather
nations,
to assemble kingdoms,
to pour out upon them my indignation,
all the heat of my anger;
for in the fire of my passion
all the earth shall be consumed.

9 At that time I will change the speech of the peoples
to a pure speech,
that all of them may call on the name of the LORD and serve him with one accord.
10 From beyond the rivers of Ethiopia[m]
my suppliants, my scattered ones,
shall bring my offering.

11 On that day you shall not be put to shame
because of all the deeds by which you have rebelled against me;
for then I will remove from your midst
your proudly exultant ones, and you shall no longer be haughty
in my holy mountain.
12 For I will leave in the midst of you
a people humble and lowly.
They shall seek refuge in the name
of the LORD—
13 the remnant of Israel;
they shall do no wrong
and utter no lies,
nor shall a deceitful tongue
be found in their mouths.
Then they will pasture and lie down,
and no one shall make them afraid.

14 Sing aloud, O daughter Zion; shout, O Israel!
Rejoice and exult with all your heart,
O daughter Jerusalem!
15 The LORD has taken away the judgments against you,

Jerusalem:
Do not fear, O Zion;
do not let your hands grow weak.
17 The LORD, your God, is in
your midst,
a warrior who gives victory;
he will rejoice over you with gladness,
he will renew you[n] in his love;

I will remove disaster from you,[p]

20 At that time I will bring you home,
at the time when I gather you;

40.2; 41.10. 17: Ex 15.3; Isa 12.2; 62.5. 19–20: The major elements of post-exilic eschatology are found here: destruction of the enemy (Ob 15, 16; Mic 5.9; Zech 12.9), ingathering of the exiles (Mic 4.6–7; Zech 10.8–12), and return to the Holy Land (Isa 62.1–5; Zech 8.7–8). By making Israel renowned (literally "a name") and praised among all the peoples of the earth, the LORD fulfills the longstanding promise to the patriarchs (Gen 12.2–3).

Haggai

When Cyrus conquered Babylon, he not only published a decree (538 B.C.) allowing the captive Jews to return to Palestine but also encouraged them to rebuild the temple at Jerusalem (Ezra 1.1–4). It is possible that under Sheshbazzar's leadership rebuilding was immediately attempted. By 520 B.C., however, no significant progress was evident. A successful effort was then begun, and the new temple was completed in the spring of 515 B.C.

Assisted by Zechariah (see Introduction to Zechariah), the man principally responsible for this major accomplishment was the prophet Haggai. In five addresses, dating from the sixth through the ninth months of 520 B.C., Haggai exhorted Zerubbabel the governor and Joshua the high priest, the joint leaders of the Judean community, to assume official leadership in the reconstruction of the temple, and urged the priests to purify the cultic worship. These twin projects were, first of all, urgent practical steps toward unifying the disrupted religious life of the community. But Haggai saw them also as necessary preparations for the messianic age. Upon the completion of these enterprises, the wonderful era foreseen by earlier prophets would come; for God would bless this people with fruitfulness and prosperity, overthrow the Gentiles, and establish Zerubbabel as the messianic king on the throne of David.

1 In the second year of King Darius, in the sixth month, on the first day of the month, the word of the LORD came by the prophet Haggai to Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, governor of Judah, and to Joshua son of Jehozadak, the high priest: 2Thus says the LORD of hosts: These people say the time has not yet come to rebuild the LORD's house. 3Then the word of the LORD came by the prophet Haggai, saying: 4Is it a time for you yourselves to live in your paneled houses, while this house lies in ruins? 5Now therefore thus says the LORD of hosts: Consider how you have fared. 6You have sown much, and harvested little; you eat, but you never have enough; you drink, but you never have your fill; you clothe yourselves, but no one is warm; and you that earn wages earn wages to put them into a bag with holes.

7 Thus says the LORD of hosts: Consider how you have fared. 8Go up to the hills and bring wood and build the house, so that I may take pleasure in it and be honored, says the LORD. 9You have looked for much, and, lo, it came to little; and when you brought it home, I blew it away. Why? says the LORD of hosts. Because my house lies in ruins, while all of you hurry off to your own houses. 10Therefore the heavens above you have withheld the dew, and the earth has withheld its produce. 11And I have called for a drought on the land and the hills, on the grain, the new wine, the oil, on what the soil produces, on human beings and animals, and on all their labors.

12 Then Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, and Joshua son of Jehozadak, the high priest, with all the remnant of the people, obeyed the voice of the LORD their God, and the words of the prophet Haggai, as the LORD their God had sent him; and the people feared the LORD. 13Then Haggai, the messenger of the LORD, spoke to the people with the LORD's message, saying, I am with you, says the LORD. 14And the LORD stirred up the spirit of Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, governor of Judah, and the spirit of Joshua son of Jehozadak, the high priest, and the spirit of all the remnant of the people; and they came and worked on the house of the LORD of hosts, their God, 15on the twenty-fourth day of the month, in the sixth month.

2 In the second year of King Darius, 1in the seventh month, on the twenty-first day of the month, the word of the LORD came by the prophet Haggai, saying: 2Speak now to Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, governor of Judah, and to Joshua son of Jehozadak, the high priest, and to the remnant of the people, and say, 3Who is left among you that saw this house in its former glory? How does it look to you now? Is it not in your sight as nothing? 4Yet now take courage, O Zerubbabel, says the LORD; take courage, O Joshua, son of Jehozadak, the high priest; take courage, all you people of the land, says the LORD; work, for I am with you, says the LORD of hosts, 5according to the promise that I made you when you came out of Egypt. My spirit abides among you; do not fear. 6For thus says the LORD of hosts: Once again, in a little while, I will shake the heavens and the earth and the sea and the dry land; 7and I will shake all the nations, so that the treasure of all nations shall come, and I will fill this house with splendor, says the LORD of hosts. 8The silver is mine, and the gold is mine, says the LORD of hosts. 9The latter splendor of this house shall be greater than the former, says the LORD of hosts; and in this place I will give prosperity, says the LORD of hosts.

1.1–15a: Because the people have neglected the temple, God has punished them. 1: Darius was king of the Persian empire from 521 to 485 B.C. In the second year . . . in the sixth month, mid-August to mid-September 520 B.C. Haggai means "festal." Zerubbabel, the grandson of Jehoiachin (2 Kings 24.8–17; 1 Chr 3.17), was a royal descent from David; as the Persian-appointed governor of Judah, he shared authority with Joshua, the high priest, who also had come from Babylon. 4: The temple had been plundered and burned in 587 B.C. (2 Kings 25.8–17). 5–11: The poor conditions in Judah were God's punishment for the neglect of the Temple. 15a: It is best to regard this as the date for the oracle in 2.15–19, which originally may have stood at this point.

1.15b–2.9: The new temple to be more splendid than the old. 2.1: The seventh month, mid-September to mid-October. 3: A few of the people then present may have seen Solomon's temple before its destruction. 5: Haggai sees God's spirit standing in Israel's midst and is reminded of the Exodus (Ex 13.21–22; 14.19–20). 6: Referred to and par-

10 On the twenty-fourth day of the ninth month, in the second year of Darius, the word of the LORD came by the prophet Haggai, saying: 11Thus says the LORD of hosts: Ask the priests for a ruling: 12If one carries consecrated meat in the fold of one's garment, and with the fold touches bread, or stew, or wine, or oil, or any kind of food, does it become holy? The priests answered, "No." 13Then Haggai said, "If one who is unclean by contact with a dead body touches any of these, does it become unclean?" The priests answered, "Yes, it becomes unclean." 14Haggai then said, So is it with this people, and with this nation before me, says the LORD; and so with every work of their hands; and what they offer there is unclean. 15But now, consider what will come to pass from this day on. Before a stone was placed upon a stone in the LORD's temple, 16how did you fare?[a] When one came to a heap of twenty measures, there were but ten; when one came to the wine vat to draw fifty measures, there were but twenty. 17I struck you and all the products of your toil with blight and mildew and hail; yet you did not return to me, says the LORD. 18Consider from this day on, from the twenty-fourth day of the ninth month. Since the day that the foundation of the LORD's temple was laid, consider: 19Is there any seed left in the barn? Do the vine, the fig tree, the pomegranate, and the olive tree still yield nothing? From this day on I will bless you.

20 The word of the LORD came a second time to Haggai on the twenty-fourth day of the month: 21Speak to Zerubbabel, governor of Judah, saying, I am about to shake the heavens and the earth, 22and to overthrow the throne of kingdoms; I am about to destroy the strength of the kingdoms of the nations, and overthrow the chariots and their riders; and the horses and their riders shall fall, every one by the sword of a comrade. 23On that day, says the LORD of hosts, I will take you, O Zerubbabel my servant, son of Shealtiel, says the LORD, and make you like a signet ring; for I have chosen you, says the LORD of hosts.

Zechariah

Zechariah, whose prophecies date from 520 to 518 B.C. and are found in chapters 1–8, was contemporary with Haggai (Ezra 5.1; 6.14). He shared Haggai's zeal for a rebuilt temple, a purified community, and the coming of the messianic age (see Introduction to Haggai). Like Haggai also, Zechariah forms a link between earlier prophecy (especially Ezekiel) and mature apocalyptic thought (Dan chs 7–12). But Zechariah differs from his contemporary in the form and presentation of his message, employing the literary style of night visions and dialogues between God, seer, and interpreting angel. With him, therefore, both the form and imagery of Jewish apocalyptic thought are significantly developed.

Chapters 9–14, which nowhere claim to be from Zechariah, portray nothing of the early Persian period but speak rather of the Greeks (9.13). Instead of Joshua and Zerubbabel, unnamed shepherds lead the community. Instead of peace and rebuilding, there are expectations of universal warfare and the siege of Jerusalem. Style, vocabulary, and theological ideas differentiate these chapters from Zechariah's work. Although they may contain some earlier bits, they were written during the Greek period, principally in the fourth and third centuries B.C., by unknown authors. Since the eschatological and messianic themes found in the first section are here further elaborated, the authors are spiritual disciples of Zechariah. The pictures of the messianic Prince of Peace and the Good Shepherd smitten for the flock are used in the New Testament in order to describe the person and work of Jesus Christ.

1 In the eighth month, in the second year of Darius, the word of the LORD came to the prophet Zechariah son of Berechiah son of Iddo, saying: 2The LORD was very angry with your ancestors. 3Therefore say to them, Thus says the LORD of hosts: Return to me, says the LORD of hosts, and I will return to you, says the LORD of hosts. 4Do not be like your ancestors, to whom the former prophets proclaimed, "Thus says the LORD of hosts, Return from your evil ways and from your evil deeds." But they did not hear or heed me, says the LORD. 5Your ancestors, where are they? And the prophets, do they live forever? 6But my words and my statutes, which I commanded my servants the prophets, did they not overtake your ancestors? So they repented and said, "The LORD of hosts has dealt with us according to our ways and deeds, just as he planned to do."

7 On the twenty-fourth day of the eleventh month, the month of Shebat, in the second year of Darius, the word of the LORD came to the prophet Zechariah son of Berechiah son of Iddo; and Zechariah[a] said, 8In the night I saw a man riding on a red horse! He was standing among the myrtle trees in the glen; and behind him were red, sorrel, and white horses. 9Then I said, "What are these, my lord?" The angel who talked with me said to me, "I will show you what they are." 10So the man who was standing among the myrtle trees answered, "They are those whom the LORD has sent to patrol the earth." 11Then they spoke to the angel of the LORD who was standing among the myrtle trees, "We have patrolled the earth, and lo, the whole earth remains at peace." 12Then the angel of the LORD said, "O LORD of hosts, how long will you withhold mercy from Jerusalem and the cities of Judah, with which you have been angry these seventy years?" 13Then the LORD replied with gracious and comforting words to the angel who talked with me. 14So the angel who talked with me said to me, Proclaim this message: Thus says the LORD of hosts; I am very jealous for Jerusalem and for Zion. 15And I am extremely angry with the nations that are at ease; for while I was only a little angry, they made the disaster worse. 16Therefore, thus says the LORD, I have returned to Jerusalem with compassion; my house shall be built in it, says the LORD of hosts, and the measuring line shall be stretched out over Jerusalem. 17Proclaim further: Thus says the LORD of hosts: My cities shall again overflow with prosperity; the LORD will again comfort Zion and again choose Jerusalem.

18[b] And I looked up and saw four horns. 19I asked the angel who talked

1.1–6: Introduction: a call to repentance. 1: The first of three dates (see also 1.7; 7.1): mid-October to mid-November 520 B.C. Zechariah, meaning "The LORD is renowned," was the son of the priest Iddo (Ezra 5.1; 6.14; Neh 12.16). The presence of the phrase son of Berechiah is due probably to a scribal confusion with the son of Jeberechiah in Isa 8.2, with whom Zechariah the son of Jehoiada (2 Chr 24.20–22) is also confused in Mt 23.35. Zechariah had prophetic and priestly interests (see Introduction to Joel). 4: The prophets had continually invited repentance (Isa 1.16–20; 30.15; 55.6–9; Jer 3.12, 22; 4.3–4; Hos 10.12; 14.1–7; Am 5.4, 6, 14). 6: Both law (statutes) and prophecy (words) continue to be valid. So they repented . . ., perhaps an editorial addition (contrast 7.11).

1.8–17: The first vision: divine horsemen patrolling the earth. 9: My lord, i.e. the angel. 10: Job 1.6–7; 2.1–2. 11: Remains at peace, the catastrophic Day of Judgment has not yet appeared (compare v. 15; Hag 2.6). 12: The seventy years refer without precision to the period from 587 to 519 B.C. (Jer 25.11; 29.10). 15: Ps 123.4; Am 6.1. 17: 8.3; Isa 44.26; 51.3; 54.8–10; Jer 31.38–39.

1.18–21: The second vision: four horns and four smiths. The four horns symbolize the powerful nations of the world (compare Ps 75.4, 5; Dan 7.19–27) which the blacksmiths with me, "What are these?" And he answered me, "These are the horns that have scattered Judah, Israel, and Jerusalem." 20Then the LORD showed me four blacksmiths. 21And I asked, "What are they coming to do?" He answered, "These are the horns that scattered Judah, so that no head could be raised; but these have come to terrify them, to strike down the horns of the nations that lifted up their horns against the land of Judah to scatter its people."[c]

2[d] I looked up and saw a man with a measuring line in his hand. 2Then I asked, "Where are you going?" He answered me, "To measure Jerusalem, to see what is its width and what is its length." 3Then the angel who talked with me came forward, and another angel came forward to meet him, 4and said to him, "Run, say to that young man: Jerusalem shall be inhabited like villages without walls, because of the multitude of people and animals in it. 5For I will be a wall of fire all around it, says the LORD, and I will be the glory within it."

6 Up, up! Flee from the land of the north, says the LORD; for I have spread you abroad like the four winds of heaven, says the LORD. 7Up! Escape to Zion, you that live with daughter Babylon. 8For thus said the LORD of hosts (after his glory[e] sent me) regarding the nations that plundered you: Truly, one who touches you touches the apple of my eye.[f] 9See now, I am going to raise[g] my hand against them, and they shall become plunder for their own slaves. Then you will know that the LORD of hosts has sent me. 10Sing and rejoice, O daughter Zion! For lo, I will come and dwell in your midst, says the LORD. 11Many nations shall join themselves to the LORD on that day, and shall be my people; and I will dwell in your midst. And you shall know that the LORD of hosts has sent me to you. 12The LORD will inherit Judah as his portion in the holy land, and will again choose Jerusalem.

13 Be silent, all people, before the LORD; for he has roused himself from his holy dwelling.

3 Then he showed me the high priest Joshua standing before the angel of the LORD, and Satan[h] standing at his right hand to accuse him. 2And the LORD said to Satan,[h] "The LORD rebuke you, O Satan![h] The LORD who has chosen Jerusalem rebuke you! Is not this man a brand plucked from the fire?" 3Now Joshua was dressed with filthy clothes as he stood before the angel. 4The angel said to those who were standing before him, "Take off his filthy clothes." And to him he said, "See, I have taken your guilt away from you, and I will clothe you with festal apparel." 5And I said, "Let them put a clean turban on his

2.1–5: The third vision: a man going to measure Jerusalem. 1: Measuring line, see Ezek 40.3–4; Rev 11.1; 21.15–17. This measurement, as in Ezek 41.13, is part of the restoration, but the presence of the LORD, as at the Exodus, is what will afford true protection. 5: God is Jerusalem's guard and glory (Isa 4.5 n.; Ezek 43.2–5).

2.6–13: An appeal to the exiles. 6: Babylonia is the land of the north (6.6, 8; Jer 3.18; 46.20; compare Jer 51.45–49). 8: Apple of my eye indicates special favor and affection (Deut 32.10; see Ps 17.8 n.). 10: Isa 54.1–3; 65.18–19; Zeph 3.14; Ezek 43.6–9. 11: 8.20–23. Jerusalem will be the religious center of the world. 12: This is the only Old Testament reference to Palestine as the holy land. The concept reappears in the Apocrypha (Wisdom of Solomon 12.3; 2 Macc 1.7). 13: Hab 2.20; Zeph 1.7.

3.1–10: The fourth vision: Joshua and Satan. 1: Joshua, see Hag 1.1 n. In the Old Testament Satan (literally, "the Adversary") is not the incarnation of evil but a functionary of the heavenly court who accuses mortals of wrong (1 Chr 21.1; see Job 1.6–8 n.). God then acquits ("justifies") or condemns the defendant. 3–4: Filthy clothes represent the sin of both priest and people. 5: The clean turban (Ex 28.4) and apparel (Lev 8.1–9) symbolize ritual purity, in preparation for the advent of the Messiah. 7: Access, to the heavenly courts; head." So they put a clean turban on his head and clothed him with the apparel; and the angel of the LORD was standing by.

6 Then the angel of the LORD assured Joshua, saying 7"Thus says the LORD of hosts: If you will walk in my ways and keep my requirements, then you shall rule my house and have charge of my courts, and I will give you the right of access among those who are standing here. 8Now listen, Joshua, high priest, you and your colleagues who sit before you! For they are an omen of things to come: I am going to bring my servant the Branch. 9For on the stone that I have set before Joshua, on a single stone with seven facets, I will engrave its inscription, says the LORD of hosts, and I will remove the guilt of this land in a single day. 10On that day, says the LORD of hosts, you shall invite each other to come under your vine and fig tree."

4 The angel who talked with me came again, and wakened me, as one is wakened from sleep. 2He said to me, "What do you see?" And I said, "I see a lampstand all of gold, with a bowl on the top of it; there are seven lamps on it, with seven lips on each of the lamps that are on the top of it. 3And by it there are two olive trees, one on the right of the bowl and the other on its left." 4I said to the angel who talked with me, "What are these, my lord?" 5Then the angel who talked with me answered me, "Do you not know what these are?" I said, "No, my lord." 6He said to me, "This is the word of the LORD to Zerubbabel: Not by might, nor by power, but by my spirit, says the LORD of hosts. 7What are you, O great mountain? Before Zerubbabel you shall become a plain; and he shall bring out the top stone amid shouts of 'Grace, grace to it!' "

8 Moreover the word of the LORD came to me, saying, 9"The hands of Zerubbabel have laid the foundation of this house; his hands shall also complete it. Then you will know that the LORD of hosts has sent me to you. 10For whoever has despised the day of small things shall rejoice, and shall see the plummet in the hand of Zerubbabel.

"These seven are the eyes of the LORD, which range through the whole earth." 11Then I said to him, "What are these two olive trees on the right and the left of the lampstand?" 12And a second time I said to him, "What are these two branches of the olive trees, which pour out the oil[i] through the two golden pipes?" 13He said to me, "Do you not know what these are?" I said, "No, my lord." 14Then he said, "These are the two anointed ones who stand by the Lord of the whole earth."

5 Again I looked up and saw a flying scroll. 2And he said to me, "What do you see?" I answered, "I see a flying scroll; its length is twenty cubits, and its width ten cubits." 3Then he said to me, "This is the curse that goes out over the face of the whole land; for everyone who

Joshua will present Jerusalem's prayers to heaven. 8: The Branch, a Davidic figure who is to usher in the messianic age (compare Ps 132.17; Isa 4.2; 11.1; Jer 23.5; 33.15), here refers to Zerubbabel (see 6.9–15 n.). 9: Stone may symbolize Joshua's high-priesthood (Ex 28.9–12; see Zech 6.9–15 n.). 10: Mic 4.4.

4.1–14: The fifth vision: a golden lampstand and two olive trees. This vision emphasizes the important positions held by Joshua and Zerubbabel (v. 14) in the restored Jewish community. 2: Contrast Ex 25.31–40. The stand with seven lamps signifies God's presence in the whole earth (v. 10b; compare Rev 5.6).

4.3, 11–14: Rev 11.4. The two olive trees may provide oil for the lamps (v. 12), or merely flank them. 6–10a: Through God's spirit, Zerubbabel will complete the temple. 12: Perhaps a gloss; no pipes have been previously mentioned. 14: Anointed, literally, "sons of oil," is not the usual designation for "messiah."

5.1–4: The sixth vision: a flying scroll. 1: The scroll represents the word of God materialized (Ezek 2.9–3.3; Rev 10.8–11; see Jer 36.1–3). 2: A cubit, about eighteen inches. 3: The curse is to purify both civil and cultic life (compare Deut 27.14–26).

steals shall be cut off according to the writing on one side, and everyone who swears falsely[j] shall be cut off according to the writing on the other side. 4I have sent it out, says the LORD of hosts, and it shall enter the house of the thief, and the house of anyone who swears falsely by my name; and it shall abide in that house and consume it, both timber and stones."

5 Then the angel who talked with me came forward and said to me, "Look up and see what this is that is coming out." 6I said, "What is it?" He said, "This is a basket[k] coming out." And he said, "This is their iniquity[l] in all the land." 7Then a leaden cover was lifted, and there was a woman sitting in the basket![k] 8And he said, "This is Wickedness." So he thrust her back into the basket,[k] and pressed the leaden weight down on its mouth. 9Then I looked up and saw two women coming forward. The wind was in their wings; they had wings like the wings of a stork, and they lifted up the basket[k] between earth and sky. 10Then I said to the angel who talked with me, "Where are they taking the basket?"[k] 11He said to me, "To the land of Shinar, to build a house for it; and when this is prepared, they will set the basket[k] down there on its base."

6 And again I looked up and saw four chariots coming out from between two mountains—mountains of bronze. 2The first chariot had red horses, the second chariot black horses, 3the third chariot white horses, and the fourth chariot dappled gray[m] horses. 4Then I said to the angel who talked with me, "What are these, my lord?" 5The angel answered me, "These are the four winds[n] of heaven going out, after presenting themselves before the Lord of all the earth. 6The chariot with the black horses goes toward the north country, the white ones go toward the west country,[o] and the dappled ones go toward the south country." 7When the steeds came out, they were impatient to get off and patrol the earth. And he said, "Go, patrol the earth." So they patrolled the earth. 8Then he cried out to me, "Lo, those who go toward the north country have set my spirit at rest in the north country."

9 The word of the LORD came to me: 10Collect silver and gold[p] from the exiles—from Heldai, Tobijah, and Jedaiah—who have arrived from Babylon; and go the same day to the house of Josiah son of Zephaniah. 11Take the silver and gold and make a crown,[q] and set it on the head of the high priest Joshua son of Jehozadak; 12say to him: Thus says the LORD of hosts: Here is a man whose name is Branch: for he shall branch out in his place, and he shall build the temple of the LORD. 13It is he that shall build the temple of the LORD; he shall bear royal honor, and shall sit upon his throne and rule. There shall be a priest by his throne, with peaceful understanding between the two of them. 14And the crown[r] shall be in the care of Heldai,[s]

5.5–11: The seventh vision: a woman in a basket. Judah will be purified by sending its sin, personified as a woman in a basket (literally, "ephah"), to Babylon, where the basket will be worshiped. 6: Basket, here a container with the capacity of an ephah, about six gallons. 11: Shinar, Babylonia (Gen 10.10; 11.2, 9; Dan 1.2). House here means temple. On its base, as though the basket were an image.

6.1–8: The eighth vision: four chariots. Although details are not clear, this vision probably refers to the inauguration of the messianic age with its judgment upon all the earth. 1–3: See Rev 6.2–8. 8: North country, Babylonia, see 2.6 n.

6.9–15: The crowning of the messianic leader. This section abounds with difficulties. Originally it probably directed the crowning of Zerubbabel as messianic king, but was revised to refer to Joshua. 11: Zerubbabel should be read for, or perhaps along with, Joshua. 12: Branch is a messianic designa-

Tobijah, Jedaiah, and Josiah[t] son of Zephaniah, as a memorial in the temple of the LORD.

15 Those who are far off shall come and help to build the temple of the LORD; and you shall know that the LORD of hosts has sent me to you. This will happen if you diligently obey the voice of the LORD your God.

7 In the fourth year of King Darius, the word of the LORD came to Zechariah on the fourth day of the ninth month, which is Chislev. 2Now the people of Bethel had sent Sharezer and Regem-melech and their men, to entreat the favor of the LORD, 3and to ask the priests of the house of the LORD of hosts and the prophets, "Should I mourn and practice abstinence in the fifth month, as I have done for so many years?" 4Then the word of the LORD of hosts came to me: 5Say to all the people of the land and the priests: When you fasted and lamented in the fifth month and in the seventh, for these seventy years, was it for me that you fasted? 6And when you eat and when you drink, do you not eat and drink only for yourselves? 7Were not these the words that the LORD proclaimed by the former prophets, when Jerusalem was inhabited and in prosperity, along with the towns around it, and when the Negeb and the Shephelah were inhabited?

8 The word of the LORD came to Zechariah, saying: 9Thus says the LORD of hosts: Render true judgments, show kindness and mercy to one another; 10do not oppress the widow, the orphan, the alien, or the poor; and do not devise evil in your hearts against one another. 11But they refused to listen, and turned a stubborn shoulder, and stopped their ears in order not to hear. 12They made their hearts adamant in order not to hear the law and the words that the LORD of hosts had sent by his spirit through the former prophets. Therefore great wrath came from the LORD of hosts. 13Just as, when I[u] called, they would not hear, so, when they called, I would not hear, says the LORD of hosts, 14and I scattered them with a whirlwind among all the nations that they had not known. Thus the land they left was desolate, so that no one went to and fro, and a pleasant land was made desolate.

8 The word of the LORD of hosts came to me, saying: 2Thus says the LORD of hosts: I am jealous for Zion with great jealousy, and I am jealous for her with great wrath. 3Thus says the LORD: I will return to Zion, and will dwell in the midst of Jerusalem; Jerusalem shall be called the faithful city, and the mountain of the LORD of hosts shall be called the holy mountain. 4Thus says the LORD of hosts: Old men and old women shall again sit in the streets of Jerusalem, each with staff in hand because of their great age. 5And the streets of the city shall be full of boys and girls playing in its streets. 6Thus says the LORD of hosts: Even though it seems impossible to the remnant of this people in these days, should it also seem impossible to me, tion (see 3.8 n.; Hag 2.20–23). 15: The new age will see the return of the exiles, conversion of the Gentiles, and completion of the temple (8.20–23; Ob 19–21; Mic 2.12; 4.1–5, 6–8; Zeph 3.9–10, 20; Mal 1.11). This verse is probably an addition.

7.1–14: An answer to an inquiry about fasting. 1: Mid-November to mid-December 518 B.C. 5: The temple at Jerusalem was burned in the fifth month and Gedaliah the governor was murdered in the seventh (2 Kings 25.8–9, 25). These seventy years, see 1.12 n. 9–10: This is the essence of prophetic moral teaching (Isa 1.16–17; 55.6–9; 58.6–12; Jer 7.5–7; Am 5.14–15, 21–24; Mic 6.8). 12: Neh 9.3; Jer 5.3; 7.25–26; 11.10; Dan 9.11–14. 13: Isa 1.15; Jer 7.13–15.

8.1–23: The LORD will return to Zion and do good to Jerusalem and Judah. Ten sections introduced by the words, Thus says the LORD of hosts (except in v. 3 where the words "of hosts" are not present). All of them deal with the messianic era. 2: Joel 2.18 n. 3: Isa 1.26; 11.9; 62.11–12; Jer 31.23. 4–5: Isa 65.19–20. 7: East country and west country, i.e. from all the lands of the dispersion. 8: The says the LORD of hosts? 7Thus says the LORD of hosts: I will save my people from the east country and from the west country; 8and I will bring them to live in Jerusalem. They shall be my people and I will be their God, in faithfulness and in righteousness.

9 Thus says the LORD of hosts: Let your hands be strong—you that have recently been hearing these words from the mouths of the prophets who were present when the foundation was laid for the rebuilding of the temple, the house of the LORD of hosts. 10For before those days there were no wages for people or for animals, nor was there any safety from the foe for those who went out or came in, and I set them all against one other. 11But now I will not deal with the remnant of this people as in the former days, says the LORD of hosts. 12For there shall be a sowing of peace; the vine shall yield its fruit, the ground shall give its produce, and the skies shall give their dew; and I will cause the remnant of this people to possess all these things. 13Just as you have been a cursing among the nations, O house of Judah and house of Israel, so I will save you and you shall be a blessing. Do not be afraid, but let your hands be strong.

14 For thus says the LORD of hosts: Just as I purposed to bring disaster upon you, when your ancestors provoked me to wrath, and I did not relent, says the LORD of hosts, 15so again I have purposed in these days to do good to Jerusalem and to the house of Judah; do not be afraid. 16These are the things that you shall do: Speak the truth to one another, render in your gates judgments that are true and make for peace, 17do not devise evil in your hearts against one another, and love no false oath; for all these are things that I hate, says the LORD.

18 The word of the LORD of hosts came to me, saying: 19Thus says the LORD of hosts: The fast of the fourth month, and the fast of the fifth, and the fast of the seventh, and the fast of the tenth, shall be seasons of joy and gladness, and cheerful festivals for the house of Judah: therefore love truth and peace.

20 Thus says the LORD of hosts: Peoples shall yet come, the inhabitants of many cities; 21the inhabitants of one city shall go to another, saying, "Come, let us go to entreat the favor of the LORD, and to seek the LORD of hosts; I myself am going." 22Many peoples and strong nations shall come to seek the LORD of hosts in Jerusalem, and to entreat the favor of the LORD. 23Thus says the LORD of hosts: In those days ten men from nations of every language shall take hold of a Jew, grasping his garment and saying, "Let us go with you, for we have heard that God is with you."

and the war-horse from Jerusalem;
and the battle bow shall be cut off,
and he shall command peace to the nations;
his dominion shall be from sea to sea,

I will set your prisoners free from the waterless pit.

O prisoners of hope;
today I declare that I will restore to you double.

I have made Ephraim its arrow.
I will arouse your sons, O Zion, against your sons, O Greece,

for the glorious trees are ruined!
Wail, oaks of Bashan,
for the thick forest has been felled!
3 Listen, the wail of the shepherds,
for their glory is despoiled!
Listen, the roar of the lions,
for the thickets of the Jordan are destroyed!

4 Thus said the LORD my God: Be a shepherd of the flock doomed to slaughter. 5 Those who buy them kill them and go unpunished; and those who sell them say, "Blessed be the LORD, for I have become rich"; and their own shepherds have no pity on them. 6 For I will no longer have pity on the inhabitants of the earth, says the LORD. I will cause them, every one, to fall each into the hand of a neighbor, and each into the hand of the king; and they shall devastate the earth, and I will deliver no one from their hand.

7 So, on behalf of the sheep merchants, I became the shepherd of the flock doomed to slaughter. I took two staffs; one I named Favor, the other I named Unity, and I tended the sheep. 8 In one month I disposed of the three shepherds, for I had become impatient with them, and they also detested me. 9 So I said, "I will not be your shepherd. What is to die, let it die; what is to be destroyed, let it be destroyed; and let those that are left devour the flesh of one another!" 10 I took my staff Favor and broke it, annulling the covenant that I had made with all the peoples. 11 So it was annulled on that day, and the sheep merchants, who were watching me, knew that it was the word of the LORD. 12 I then said to them, "If it seems right to you, give me my wages; but if not, keep them." So they weighed out as my wages thirty shekels of silver. 13 Then the LORD said to me, "Throw it into the treasury"[e]—this lordly price at which I was valued by them. So I took the thirty shekels of silver and threw them into the treasury[e] in the house of the LORD. 14 Then I broke my second staff Unity, annulling the family ties between Judah and Israel.

The word of the LORD concerning Israel: Thus says the LORD, who stretched out the heavens and founded the earth and formed the human spirit within: 2See, I am about to make Jerusalem a cup of reeling for all the surrounding peoples; it will be against Judah also in the siege against Jerusalem. 3On that day I will make Jerusalem a heavy stone for all the peoples; all who lift it shall grievously hurt themselves. And all the nations of the earth shall come together against it. 4On that day, says the LORD, I will strike every horse with panic, and its rider with madness. But on the house of Judah I will keep a watchful eye, when I strike every horse of the peoples with blindness. 5Then the clans of Judah shall say to themselves, "The inhabitants of Jerusalem have strength through the LORD of hosts, their God."

6 On that day I will make the clans of Judah like a blazing pot on a pile of wood, like a flaming torch among sheaves; and they shall devour to the right and to the left all the surrounding peoples, while Jerusalem shall again be inhabited in its place, in Jerusalem.

7 And the LORD will give victory to the tents of Judah first, that the glory of the house of David and the glory of the inhabitants of Jerusalem may not be exalted over that of Judah. 8On that day the LORD will shield the inhabitants of Jerusalem so that the feeblest among them on that day shall be like David, and the house of David shall be like God, like the angel of the LORD, at their head. 9And on that day I will seek to destroy all the nations that come against Jerusalem.

10 And I will pour out a spirit of compassion and supplication on the house of David and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, so that, when they look on the one[h] whom they have pierced, they shall mourn for him, as one mourns for an only child, and weep bitterly over him, as one weeps over a firstborn. 11On that day the mourning in Jerusalem will be as great as the mourning for Hadad-rimmon in the plain of Megiddo. 12The land shall mourn, each family by itself; the family of the house of David by itself, and their wives by themselves; the family of the house of Nathan by itself, and their wives by themselves; 13the family of the house of Levi by itself, and their wives by themselves; the family of the Shimeites by itself, and their wives by them-

13 On that day a fountain shall be opened for the house of David and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, to cleanse them from sin and impurity.

8 In the whole land, says the LORD,
two-thirds shall be cut off and perish,
and one-third shall be left alive.
9 And I will put this third into the fire,
refine them as one refines silver,
and test them as gold is tested.
They will call on my name,
and I will answer them.
I will say, "They are my people";
and they will say, "The LORD is our God."

14 See, a day is coming for the LORD, when the plunder taken from you will be divided in your midst. 2For I will gather all the nations against Jerusalem to battle, and the city shall be taken and the houses looted and the women raped; half the city shall go into exile, but the rest of the people shall not be cut off from the city. 3Then the LORD will go forth and fight against those nations as when he fights on a day of battle. 4On that day his feet shall stand on the Mount of Olives, which lies before Jerusalem on the east; and the Mount of Olives shall be split in two from east to west by a very wide valley; so that one half of the Mount shall withdraw northward, and the other half southward. 5And you shall flee by the valley of the LORD's mountain,[k] for the valley between the mountains shall reach to Azal;[l] and you shall flee as you fled from the earthquake

Malachi

Nothing is known about the person of Malachi. Even his name, which means "My messenger," may be only an appellation, based on 3.1 (compare 2.7). The book, however, presents a substantial amount of information about its author's viewpoints. Living probably in the period 500–450 B.C., this prophetic voice was devoted to the temple and held a high view of the priesthood and its responsibilities. He speaks frequently of the covenant (2.4, 5, 8, 10, 14; 3.1) and shows great respect for the priestly "instruction" (torah, 2.6–9). Instead of adopting the oracular style normally used by earlier prophets, Malachi employs a distinctive question-and-answer method of stating his argument. Nevertheless, his emphases upon sin, judgment, and repentance and upon the advent of the day of the LORD (3.1–5, 7; 4.1–3, 6) mark him as a prophet, and he may best be understood as a "cultic prophet" (see Introduction to Joel).

One central theme dominates Malachi's thought: fidelity to the LORD's covenant and its teachings. From this standpoint he both condemns the priests for corrupting worship and misleading the people (1.6–2.9; 3.3–4) and charges his brethren to remain faithful to their wives from the community of covenant and thus have "godly offspring" (2.13–16). In exhorting Israel to faithfulness, Malachi gives also striking descriptions of the worship of the LORD by the Gentiles (1.11, 14b), the ideal priest (2.5–7), and the blessing of obedience (3.10–12, 16–17; 4.2–3). He asserts, further, that all members of the community are begotten by the same God (2.10) and adds to the concept of the day of the LORD (Zeph 1.14–18) the figure of the appointed forerunner (3.1–4; compare 4.5–6). The messenger who "prepares the way" (3.1) and the sending of Elijah (4.5) suggested to New Testament writers (Mt 11.7–15; Lk 1.16–17) a connection with the coming of the Messiah.

Corruption of the priesthood

1 An oracle. The word of the LORD to Israel by Malachi.[a]

2 I have loved you, says the LORD. But you say, "How have you loved us?" Is not Esau Jacob's brother? says the LORD. Yet I have loved Jacob 3but I have hated Esau; I have made his hill country a desolation and his heritage a desert for jackals. 4If Edom says, "We are shattered but we will rebuild the ruins," the LORD of hosts says: They may build, but I will tear down, until they are called the wicked country, the people with whom the LORD is angry forever. 5Your own eyes shall see this, and you shall say, "Great is the LORD beyond the borders of Israel!"

6 A son honors his father, and servants their master. If then I am a father, where is the honor due me? And if I am a master, where is the respect due me? says the LORD of hosts to you, O priests, who despise my name. You say, "How have we despised your name?" 7By offering polluted food on my altar. And you say, "How have we polluted it?"[b] By thinking that the LORD's table may be despised. 8When you offer blind animals in sacrifice, is that not wrong? And when you offer those that are lame or sick, is that not wrong? Try presenting that to your governor; will he be pleased with you or show you favor? says the LORD of hosts. 9And now implore the favor of God, that he may be gracious to us. The fault is yours. Will he show favor to any of you? says the LORD of hosts. 10Oh, that someone among you would shut the temple[c] doors, so that you would not kindle fire on my altar in vain! I have no pleasure in you, says the LORD of hosts, and I will not accept an offering from your hands. 11For from the rising of the sun to its setting my name is great among the nations, and in every place incense is offered to my name, and a pure offering; for my name is great among the nations, says the LORD of hosts. 12But you profane it when you say that the Lord's table is polluted, and the food for it[d] may be despised. 13"What a weariness this is," you say, and you sniff at me,[e] says the LORD of hosts. You bring what has been taken by violence or is lame or sick, and this you bring as your offering! Shall I accept that from your hand? says the LORD. 14Cursed be the cheat who has a male in the flock and vows to give it, and yet sacrifices to the Lord what is blemished; for I am a great King, says the LORD of hosts, and my name is reverenced among the nations.

2 And now, O priests, this command is for you. 2If you will not listen, if you will not lay it to heart to give glory to my name, says the LORD of hosts, then I will send the curse on you and I will curse your blessings; indeed I have already cursed them,[f] because you do not lay it to heart. 3I will rebuke your offspring, and spread dung on your faces, the dung of your offerings, and I will put you out of my presence.[g]

Levi may hold, says the LORD of hosts. 5My covenant with him was a covenant of life and well-being, which I gave him; this called for reverence, and he revered me and stood in awe of my name. 6True instruction was in his mouth, and no wrong was found on his lips. He walked with me in integrity and uprightness, and he turned many from iniquity. 7For the lips of a priest should guard knowledge, and people should seek instruction from his mouth, for he is the messenger of the LORD of hosts. 8But you have turned aside from the way; you have caused many to stumble by your instruction; you have corrupted the covenant of Levi, says the LORD of hosts, 9and so I make you despised and abased before all the people, inasmuch as you have not kept my ways but have shown partiality in your instruction.

10 Have we not all one father? Has not one God created us? Why then are we faithless to one another, profaning the covenant of our ancestors? 11Judah has been faithless, and abomination has been committed in Israel and in Jerusalem; for Judah has profaned the sanctuary of the LORD, which he loves, and has married the daughter of a foreign god. 12May the LORD cut off from the tents of Jacob anyone who does this—any to witness[h] or answer, or to bring an offering to the LORD of hosts.

13 And this you do as well: You cover the LORD's altar with tears, with weeping and groaning because he no longer regards the offering or accepts it with favor at your hand. 14You ask, "Why does he not?" Because the LORD was a witness between you and the wife of your youth, to whom you have been faithless, though she is your companion and your wife by covenant. 15Did not one God make her?[i] Both flesh and spirit are his.[j] And what does the one God[k] desire? Godly offspring. So look to yourselves, and do not let anyone be faithless to the wife of his youth. 16For I hate[l] divorce, says the LORD, the God of Israel, and covering one's garment with violence, says the LORD of hosts. So take heed to yourselves and do not be faithless.

17 You have wearied the LORD with your words. Yet you say, "How have we wearied him?" By saying, "All who do evil are good in the sight of the LORD, and he delights in them." Or by asking, "Where is the God of justice?"

3 See, I am sending my messenger to prepare the way before me, and the Lord whom you seek will suddenly come to his temple. The messenger of the covenant in whom you delight—indeed, he is coming, says the LORD of hosts. 2But who can endure the day of his coming, and who can stand when he appears?

For he is like a refiner's fire and like fullers' soap; 3he will sit as a refiner and purifier of silver, and he will purify the descendants of Levi and refine them like gold and silver, until they present offerings to the LORD in righteousness.[m] 4Then the offering of Judah and

Jerusalem will be pleasing to the LORD as in the days of old and as in former years.

5 Then I will draw near to you for judgment; I will be swift to bear witness against the sorcerers, against the adulterers, against those who swear falsely, against those who oppress the hired workers in their wages, the widow and the orphan, against those who thrust aside the alien, and do not fear me, says the LORD of hosts.

6 For I the LORD do not change; therefore you, O children of Jacob, have not perished. 7Ever since the days of your ancestors you have turned aside from my statutes and have not kept them. Return to me, and I will return to you, says the LORD of hosts. But you say, "How shall we return?"

8 Will anyone rob God? Yet you are robbing me! But you say, "How are we robbing you?" In your tithes and offerings! 9You are cursed with a curse, for you are robbing me—the whole nation of you! 10Bring the full tithe into the storehouse, so that there may be food in my house, and thus put me to the test, says the LORD of hosts; see if I will not open the windows of heaven for you and pour down for you an overflowing blessing. 11I will rebuke the locust[n] for you, so that it will not destroy the produce of your soil; and your vine in the field shall not be barren, says the LORD of hosts. 12Then all nations will count you happy, for you will be a land of delight, says the LORD of hosts.

13 You have spoken harsh words against me, says the LORD. Yet you say, "How have we spoken against you?" 14You have said, "It is vain to serve God. What do we profit by keeping his command or by going about as mourners before the LORD of hosts? 15Now we count the arrogant happy; evildoers not only prosper, but when they put God to the test they escape."

16 Then those who revered the LORD spoke with one another. The LORD took note and listened, and a book of remembrance was written before him of those who revered the LORD and thought on his name. 17They shall be mine, says the LORD of hosts, my special possession on the day when I act, and I will spare them as parents spare their children who serve them. 18Then once more you shall see the difference between the righteous and the wicked, between one who serves God and one who does not serve him.

4[o] See, the day is coming, burning like an oven, when all the arrogant and all evildoers will be stubble; the day that comes shall burn them up, says the LORD of hosts, so that it will leave them neither root nor branch. 2But for you who revere my name the sun of righteousness shall rise, with healing in its wings. You shall go out leaping like calves from the stall. 3And you shall tread down the wicked, for they will be ashes under the soles of your feet, on the day when I act, says the LORD of hosts.

NOTES

THE NEW COVENANT COMMONLY CALLED THE NEW TESTAMENT OF OUR LORD AND SAVIOR JESUS CHRIST

New Revised Standard Version

Introduction to the New Testament

The New Testament comprises the twenty-seven books that constitute the second of the two portions into which the Bible is naturally divided. A more appropriate word than "testament" to designate the character of these books is "covenant." This is the word that the Bible uses in referring to the relationship that God established with his people. In a sublime passage written more than five hundred years before Christ, the prophet Jeremiah predicted that the covenant relation of God with his people, instituted through Moses on Mount Sinai, would give place in the future to a more inward and personal one (Jer 31. 31–34). In accord with this prophecy the Apostle Paul regarded the Christian dispensation as based on a new covenant, which he contrasted with the old covenant enshrined in the books of Moses (2 Cor 3.6–15). Another early Christian writer, doubtless thinking of the words of Jesus when he instituted the Last Supper (Mt 26.28; Mk 14.24; 1 Cor 11.25), declared that by his sacrificial death Christ became the mediator of a new covenant (Heb 9.15–20; compare 10.16). It is quite understandable, therefore, that the two collections of documents that belong respectively to the two dispensations of God's dealings with his people have been brought together in one volume as "The Holy Bible, containing the Old and New Testaments."

Unlike the books of the Old Testament, which originated during a period extending over many centuries, the books of the New Testament were written within a period of somewhat less than one hundred years. These books fall into four different literary forms. Four of them are "Gospels" because they tell the "gospel" (a word derived from the Anglo-Saxon gōd-spell, meaning "good tidings") of Jesus Christ, that is, his birth, baptism, ministry of teaching and healing, death, and resurrection. Church history is represented in the Acts of the Apostles, which is an account of the spread of the Christian faith during the first thirty or so years after the death and resurrection of Jesus Christ. Twenty-one of the books of the New Testament are in the form of letters. The last book of the New Testament is an apocalypse (see pp. 362–363 NT), that is, a revelation (Greek apokalypsis) or disclosure of God's will for the future.

Jesus himself left no literary remains; information regarding his words and works comes from his immediate followers (the apostles) and their disciples. At first this information was circulated orally. As far as we know today, the first attempt to produce a written Gospel was made by John Mark, who according to tradition was a disciple of the Apostle Peter. This Gospel, along with a collection of sayings of Jesus and several other special sources, formed the basis of the Gospels attributed to Matthew and Luke. The reasons for regarding the Gospel of Mark as one of the sources of Matthew and Luke include the following facts. (1) Apart from details Mark contains very little that is not in Matthew or in Luke. (2) When Mark and Matthew differ as to sequence of matter, Luke agrees with Mark, and when Mark and Luke differ as to sequence, Matthew agrees with Mark. (3) Matthew and Luke never agree as to sequence against Mark.

Because these three Gospels have so much in common, they are generally called the Synoptic Gospels (from the Greek word synoptikos, viewing together).

In contrast to the Synoptics, which narrate mainly Jesus' public teaching and ministry to the crowds in Galilee, the Gospel according to John contains information regarding Jesus' early Judean ministry as well as extensive discourses to the disciples concerning the union of the Christian with Christ (chs 14–17). John presents no parables in the Synoptic sense, and he frequently weaves the words of Jesus so closely with his own interpretation of them that it is difficult to find the break between the two. (For further information concerning the genre of the gospels, see pp. viii–x NT.)

The letters in the New Testament were written by various teachers in the primitive church to congregations and to individuals in order to provide further instruction in the Christian faith and to correct certain abuses and disorders that had arisen. The letter-form happily combines the advantages inherent in both conversation and treatise. By their nature letters permit the writer to communicate with the recipients in a personal and indeed affectionate manner; at the same time, they also allow the writer to treat abstract subjects with accuracy and fullness.

The New Testament letters fall into two main groups, those attributed to Paul and those attributed to other writers. Within each group the present sequence seems to have been determined in accordance with the length of the letters, the longest standing first. The present titles of the letters were not part of the original documents, and would not have been needed until the individual letters had been gathered into a collection. (For further information on ancient letter-writing, see pp. 204–205 NT.)

The language in which the books of the New Testament were written was the koine or common Greek of the time. This form of Greek, which lacks many of the subtle refinements of classical Greek of an earlier period, was known and used by most of the peoples of the Roman Empire to whom the first Christian missionaries carried the gospel. Noticeably different grades of koine Greek are found in the several New Testament documents. The most highly literary as regards sentence structure and vocabulary are the Letter to the Hebrews and the two books written by Luke (the Gospel and the Acts). Those that are the furthest removed from classical Greek standards and closest to colloquial Greek are the Gospel of Mark and the book of Revelation. Furthermore, since all the authors represented in the New Testament appear to have been either Jews or Jewish proselytes before becoming Christians, it is natural that their use of koine Greek was colored by their familiarity with the special characteristics of the Greek translation of the Hebrew Old Testament (the Septuagint). Here and there the Gospels and the first half of Acts preserve in Greek certain turns of expression that reflect an underlying Aramaic idiom, which was the mother tongue of Jesus and his disciples. Aramaic is a Semitic language related to Hebrew.

The original manuscripts of the several books of the New Testament have long since disappeared. Three sources of information exist today for our knowledge of the text of the New Testament. They are Greek manuscripts, early translations into other languages (primarily Syriac, Latin, and Coptic), and quotations from the New Testament made by early ecclesiastical writers. The total number of Greek manuscripts of all or part of the New Testament is close to five thousand. Not quite one-half of this number are manuscripts that contain only the four Gospels. There are fifty-nine manuscripts that contain all twenty-seven books of the New Testament. Of the five thousand, the most important are, in general, the oldest; more than three hundred, written on papyrus or parchment, date from the second to the eighth century. In evaluating the significance of this rich store of manuscripts, it should be recalled that the writings of many ancient classical authors have survived in only a few copies (or even in only one), and that not infrequently these copies date from the late Middle Ages, separated from the time of the composition of the originals by more than a thousand years.

Before the invention of printing with movable type (about A.D. 1450–1456) all literary works had to be copied by hand. Owing to the rapid expansion of the early church and the growing demand for additional copies of the Christian Scriptures, sometimes speed in the preparation of manuscripts seemed to be of greater importance than strict accuracy of detail. Consequently unintentional errors, inevitable in all transcription, were multiplied in what was copied. At other times alterations were deliberately made; for example, scribes would occasionally improve the grammar and style, correct real or imagined errors in history and geography, adjust quotations from the Old Testament in accordance with current copies of the Greek Septuagint translation, and harmonize differing accounts in the Synoptic Gospels. Thus, not only inadvertence but also well-intentioned efforts resulted in the creation of thousands of divergencies among the manuscripts of the New Testament. It should be added, however, that the great majority of these variant readings involve inconsequential details, such as alternative spellings, differing order of words, and interchange of synonyms. Among the relatively few variants that involve the essential meaning of the text, modern scholars are usually able to determine with more or less probability what the original text was. In deciding among the variant readings scholars usually give preference to those that are preserved in the older manuscripts, as well as those supported by witnesses that are widely separated geographically. Preference is also often given to the shorter reading, for scribes were much more prone to make additions than deliberately to omit. Another scribal tendency was the harmonization of divergent accounts. In general, the reading is preferred that best explains the rise of the other reading(s). (For examples of various kinds of additions to the text, see Mt 6.13 note j; 23.13 note q; Mk 9.43 note u; 16.8 note r; Lk 17.35 note l; 24.12 note b; Jn 5.3 note i; 8.11 note k; Acts 8.36 note n.)

As long as copies of the books of the New Testament were written on scrolls, practical difficulties of length prevented the collection of many of the books of the New Testament into one scroll. Early in the second century, however, the adoption by many Christians of the codex or leaf-form of manuscript permitted the gathering, for example, of all of the Gospels or all of Paul's letters into one volume. This process of assembling various books in a single codex was accompanied by the development of the idea of the canon of the New Testament.

The word "canon" is a Greek word borrowed from a Semitic root, meaning a stalk or a reed, which could be used for measuring. By extension the word came to denote a rule, norm, or list (of books). Why, how, and when the present books of the New Testament were finally gathered into one collection are questions difficult to answer because of the lack of explicit information. It is possible, however, to reconstruct some of the influences that must have contributed to the emergence of the canon of the New Testament.

The Bible of the earliest Christians was the Old Testament (2 Tim 3.15–17). Of equal authority to these writings were the remembered words of Jesus (Acts 20.35; 1 Cor 7.10, 12; 9.14; 1 Tim 5.18). Parallel with the oral circulation of Jesus' teaching were apostolic interpretations of his person and significance for the life of the church. It is natural that when the gospels and the apostolic letters were written, incorporating these two kinds of authoritative materials, they would be treasured, circulated, and read in services of worship (Col 4.16; 1 Thess 5.27; Rev 1.3).

At first a local church would have only a few apostolic letters and perhaps one or two gospels. During the course of the second century most churches came to acknowledge a canon that included the present four Gospels, the Acts, thirteen letters of Paul, 1 Peter, and 1 John. Seven books still lacked general recognition: Hebrews, James, 2 Peter, 2 and 3 John, Jude, and Revelation. On the other hand, certain writings, such as the Letter of Barnabas or the Shepherd of Hermas, were accepted as Scripture by several ecclesiastical writers, though rejected by the majority. During the third century there was a sifting of the disputed books; certain of them came to be acknowledged as canonical and others were rejected as apocryphal. The fourth century was marked by authoritative pronouncements first by bishops of provincial churches and later by synods or councils. St. Athanasius in his Festal Letter for A.D. 367 was the first to name the twenty-seven books of the New Testament as exclusively canonical. Not all Christian communities, however, were willing at first to follow the Athanasian list. In the East, for example, the Armenian Church accepted the Third Letter of Paul to the Corinthians, and in the West many Latin manuscripts contained the spurious Letter to the Laodiceans. (Strangely enough, this brief letter follows Galatians in all eighteen German Bibles printed prior to Luther's translation of the Greek New Testament.)

Various external circumstances assisted in the process of canonization of the New Testament books. The emergence of heretical sects with their own sacred books made it imperative for the church to determine the limits of the canon. Likewise, when Christians were persecuted for their faith it became a matter of the utmost importance to know which books could be renounced and which were essential to the faith.

The tests of canonicity that were most frequently applied seem to have been apostolic authorship, or at least apostolic content, and general harmony with the Old Testament and the rest of the New Testament. Prior, however, to the issuing of pronouncements by church councils was the intuitive insight of individual Christians who had discerned the inherent significance of the canonical books. In the most basic sense neither individuals nor councils created the canon, but only came to recognize and acknowledge the self-authenticating quality of these writings, which imposed themselves as canonical upon the church. # The Narrative Books—Gospels and Acts

THE GOSPELS

1. Their Literary Genre

What is a gospel? To what literary genre do the four gospels of the New Testament belong? Of course there are differences among the four, particularly between the three Synoptic Gospels on the one hand and the Gospel according to John on the other, but to what type of ancient literature would a second-century librarian in Alexandria have assigned a gospel if a manuscript copy had been presented to a library?

Scholars have given various answers to such questions, depending upon the kinds and styles of contemporary Jewish and Hellenistic literature with which the gospels are compared. Some have pointed out similarities between the Christian gospels and Graeco-Roman biographies, such as those that report the lives of Epictetus, Apollonius, and Socrates. Seeking to refine still further the broad category of biography, other scholars have argued that the gospels belong to a certain species of biography called aretalogy. An aretalogy, as defined by the dictionary, is "a narrative of the miraculous deeds of a god or hero." According to this understanding, the gospels are held to advance Jesus as a wonder-working divine man. It must be acknowledged, however, that since we have no complete text surviving from the past that is specifically labeled aretalogy, to attempt to clarify the gospels by grouping them with a type of writing that has no known surviving examples is far from illuminating.

Still others have regarded the Synoptic Gospels as examples of ancient laudatory (or encomium) biography, of which many examples survive, such as Xenophon's Agesilaus, Isocrates' Evagoras, Tacitus' Agricola, and Lucian's Life of Demonax. The purpose of this kind of literature is to praise the greatness and merit of the person who is the subject of the document.

Scholars who do not wish to go so far afield to seek for examples have preferred to look to a Jewish milieu for clues to the genre of the canonical gospels. Certainly some of the gospel pericopes—the individual incidents of which the gospels are composed—bear a closer stylistic resemblance to the rabbinic stories preserved in ancient Jewish sources than to any other body of literature. Furthermore, the all-inclusive role of Moses as he is presented in the book of Exodus, culminating as the mediator of the covenant, or as he is presented in Philo's Life of Moses, obviously presents certain similarities with the life of Jesus. Still others have found an Old Testament model in the cycle of Elisha stories.

It must, however, be concluded that none of these proposed models—nor even a combination of models, such as aretalogical biography—provides a suitable literary category for classifying the gospel genre. The canonical gospels are not romances or folk-tales; they purport to retell actual events. They are not biographies; they concentrate on the public career of Jesus with little or no attention given to his environment, training, and development of character. They are not simply memoirs of a teacher, philosopher, or wise man; the ministry of Jesus embraced not merely word and example but action. And as regards this action, the gospels do not give a neutral account of what happened; rather they tell of the work of God in the career of Jesus, and they present their story as an offer of salvation for all who will believe. In short, the gospels represent a genre all their own because they present the tradition of Jesus from the viewpoint of faith in him as redeemer. Hence it was the intention of the four evangelists that their gospels be understood not only as narrative, but at the same time and especially as proclamation.

2. The Origin of the Gospels

The gospels, like the other New Testament books and most of the rest of the Bible, are the literary productions of a believing community. They are not telling a story for its entertainment value, though they will use literary techniques such as suspense, metaphor, characterization, and so on. Nor are they simply stenographic reports of words and deeds. They are written with the aim of changing the reader or of building up the community's faith. The story they have to tell is intended to make a difference in the reader's life.

That story, most scholars now agree, was put together over a period of several decades and in several stages. (1) During the time of oral transmission, the teachings of Jesus, and individual stories about him, were communicated among his followers by word of mouth. Of these stories, the most lengthy and important would have been the so-called "Passion Narratives" or accounts covering the week or so leading up to his death, and the subsequent accounts of his resurrection; there would have been other stories as well, such as those of healings and confrontations with the authorities. It was also during this time that some of the materials were re-told in Greek, the common language outside of Palestine, instead of the Aramaic that Jesus and his first followers spoke. (2) Subsequently written collections were assembled, consisting of selections of these teachings and stories. Included among such accounts would have been a complete Passion Narrative, or a collection of short sayings, or some parables. (3) Finally, the four evangelists collected these materials, both oral and written, and combined them into the gospels that we have today.

The literary relationship among the first three gospels—Matthew, Mark, and Luke—is also of interest. These three are called the "Synoptic Gospels" because they "view together" (synoptikos in Greek) the events of Jesus' life. Many of the sayings, parables, and incidents appear in more than one gospel, often in similar or virtually identical words. Among various explanations for this, the most widely held view holds (a) that Matthew and Luke depended on Mark for the general outline and many of the incidents of Jesus' ministry; (b) that they also had a separate list of sayings of Jesus, which scholars have called "Q" (for the German Quelle, "source"); and (c) that they each had additional materials (for instance, the story of the wise men from the East in Matthew ch 2, or the parable of the Good Samaritan in Luke ch 10). It is generally agreed that John derives largely from a different tradition, since most of the incidents and their treatment in his gospel differ from those in the Synoptics.

Each of the four gospel writers had his own point of view and special reading public, and these would have guided the selection, arrangement, and synthesis of the many units handed down concerning the life, deeds, sayings, death, and resurrection of Jesus the Messiah. Yet all four gospels show the same basic intention: they are addressed to readers in order to minister to their faith. In fact, two of the gospels contain expressions of their author's intentions. The prologue of Luke's gospel states that it was written so that Theophilus would "know the truth concerning the things about which you have been instructed" (Luke 1.4). A similar expression of intention stands near the close of the Fourth Gospel: These things "are written so that you may come to believe that Jesus is the Messiah, the Son of God, and that through believing you may have life in his name" (John 20.31).

Thus, even if in literary form or shape the gospels are not in all respects a novelty, the distinctive purpose of the four authors accounts for the special nature of their literary work. They were not memorializing the deeds and words of a revered but deceased master; they were explaining the universal significance of the life and death of someone whom they proclaimed to be still alive and knowable. In a word, they were evangelizing—and consequently, for good reason, they came to be known in the church as the four Evangelists.

THE ACTS OF THE APOSTLES

Inasmuch as the book of Acts forms the second part of a two-volume work, of which the Gospel according to Luke is the first part, it is natural to look for literary correspondences between the two. Apparently the authors of Matthew, Mark, and John saw no need for a second volume, one that contained an account of the growth of the church in order to complement their gospel. Luke-Acts reflects the conviction that both the story of Jesus and the story of the apostolic church are incomplete without the other as complement.

The thread of the narrative in the Gospel according to Luke runs from the birth of John the Baptist, soon followed by the birth of Jesus, through the events of the latter's ministry of healing and teaching to the climax of his arrest, trial, crucifixion. The gospel narrative concludes with the resurrection and ascension of the Lord. It is at this point that the book of Acts picks up the narrative by recounting in greater detail the ascension of Jesus, with the subsequent coming of the Holy Spirit upon the waiting church. There follows an account of the planting and extension of the church by the establishment of radiating centers at certain salient points throughout a significant part of the Roman Empire, beginning at Jerusalem and ending at Rome. Thus it was not the purpose of the writer to produce full-scale biographies of Peter or Paul or other apostles; these characters are described only insofar as necessary in showing how the church was formed, how it broadened to receive Gentiles, and how it extended from Jerusalem to Rome. So, too, it was evidently not Luke's aim to write all that he knew of the history of any local church, at Jerusalem or Antioch or Philippi, but only to show how the witnessing of Christian messengers resulted in the establishment of such societies, and how they aided in fulfilling the task laid upon them to be witnesses "in Jerusalem, in all Judea and Samaria, and to the ends of the earth" (Acts 1.8).

Thus Luke's historical art and technique produced two volumes that present a unified narrative because the major human characters—John the Baptist, Jesus, the apostles, and Paul—share in a mission that expresses a single controlling purpose: fulfilling the purpose of God. Since God's purpose repeatedly encounters rejection, the narrative is loaded with tension. When the book of Acts is compared with other ancient historical narratives (or even with historical novels), Luke's masterful command of the "dramatic episode style" is obvious. His artistic technique holds the reader's attention, focused on the sequence of individual events, some of which involved threats and dangers plotted against the messengers of the gospel. As a result the narrative throbs with life, and the reader is enabled to discern a unified action with a specific goal—the proclamation of the gospel to Jew and Gentile alike. (See also the Introduction to the Acts of the Apostles, p. 160 NT.)

The Gospel According to # Matthew

The Gospel according to Matthew is a manual of Christian teaching in which Jesus Christ, Lord of the new-yet-old community, the church, is described particularly as the fulfiller and the fulfillment of God's will disclosed in the Old Testament. Jesus is set forth as Israel's royal Messiah (1.1; 19.28) in whom God's purpose culminates and by whose words and life his followers, the true Israel (25.34), may gain divine forgiveness and fellowship.

The accounts of Jesus' deeds and words, drawn from Christian sources both oral and written, are arranged in a generally biographical order: chs 1–2, Birth of Jesus; 3.1–12, Activity of John the Baptist; 3.13–4.11, Baptism and temptation of Jesus; 4.12–18.35, Jesus' preaching and teaching in Galilee; chs 19–20, Journey to Jerusalem; chs 21–27, The last week, concluding with Jesus' crucifixion and burial; ch 28, The resurrection; Jesus' commission to his disciples.

Within this natural framework the accounts of what Jesus said or did are grouped by common subject matter. The five discourses of Jesus, a noteworthy feature of this Gospel (see 7.28 n.), are Matthew's collections of teachings on specific themes: chs 5–7, The Sermon on the Mount; ch 10, Instructions for missionary disciples; ch 13, The parables of the kingdom of Heaven; ch 18, On sincere discipleship; chs 24–25, On the end of the present age. The author seems to have deliberately built his gospel around these five great discourses as though his object was especially to show the fullness of Jesus' teaching.

Much of the material peculiar to this Gospel is concerned with the Jews or with the fulfillment of Old Testament prophecies. All of the Gospels mention Jesus' Davidic lineage, but Matthew emphasizes this relationship by referring to it much more often than does any of the other Evangelists. In addition to what he has in common with one or more of the other Gospels, he includes also the testimony of the two blind men (9.27), the multitude (12.23), the Canaanite woman (15.22), the crowds at the triumphant entry into Jerusalem (21.9), and the children in the temple (21.15). In short, the special aim of Matthew is to show that Jesus is the legitimate heir to the royal house of David.

In this connection the author's frequent appeal to the fulfillment of prophecy is a noteworthy feature of this Gospel. All four evangelists cite Old Testament prophecies that they regard as having been fulfilled in the person and work of Jesus, but Matthew includes nine additional such prophetic proof-texts, all of which are characterized by a certain verbal literalism that would make special appeal to readers having a Jewish background (1.22–23; 2.15; 2.17–18; 2.23; 4.14–16; 8.17; 12.17–21; 13.35; 21.4–5; 27.9–10).

This Gospel is anonymous. The unknown Christian teacher who prepared it during the last third of the first century may have used as one of his sources a collection of Jesus' sayings that the apostle Matthew, according to second-century writers, is said to have drawn up. In time a title containing Matthew's name, and signifying apostolic authority, came to identify the whole.

For the literary genre of the gospels, see pp. viii–x NT.

1 An account of the genealogy[a] of Jesus the Messiah,[b] the son of David, the son of Abraham.

2 Abraham was the father of Isaac, and Isaac the father of Jacob, and Jacob
the father of Judah and his brothers, 3and Judah the father of Perez and Zerah by Tamar, and Perez the father of Hezron, and Hezron the father of Aram, 4and Aram the father of Aminadab, and Aminadab the father of Nahshon, and Nahshon the father of Salmon, 5and Salmon the father of Boaz by Rahab, and Boaz the father of Obed by Ruth, and Obed the father of Jesse, 6and Jesse the father of King David.

And David was the father of Solomon by the wife of Uriah, 7and Solomon the father of Rehoboam, and Rehoboam the father of Abijah, and Abijah the father of Asaph,[c] 8and Asaph[c] the father of Jehoshaphat, and Jehoshaphat the father of Joram, and Joram the father of Uzziah, 9and Uzziah the father of Jotham, and Jotham the father of Ahaz, and Ahaz the father of Hezekiah, 10and Hezekiah the father of Manasseh, and Manasseh the father of Amos,[d] and Amos[d] the father of Josiah, 11and Josiah the father of Jech-oniah and his brothers, at the time of the deportation to Babylon.

12 And after the deportation to Babylon: Jechoniah was the father of Salathiel, and Salathiel the father of Zerubbabel, 13and Zerubbabel the father of Abiud, and Abiud the father of Eliakim, and Eliakim the father of Azor, 14and Azor the father of Zadok, and Zadok the father of Achim, and Achim the father of Eliud, 15and Eliud the father of Eleazar, and Eleazar the father of Matthan, and Mat-than the father of Jacob, 16and Jacob the father of Joseph the husband of Mary, of whom Jesus was born, who is called the Messiah.[e]

17 So all the generations from Abraham to David are fourteen generations;
and from David to the deportation to Babylon, fourteen generations; and from the deportation to Babylon to the Messiah,[e] fourteen generations.

18 Now the birth of Jesus the Messiah[b] took place in this way. When his mother Mary had been engaged to Joseph, but before they lived together, she was found to be with child from the Holy Spirit. 19Her husband Joseph, being a righteous man and unwilling to expose her to public disgrace, planned to dismiss her quietly. 20But just when he had resolved to do this, an angel of the Lord appeared to him in a dream and said, "Joseph, son of David, do not be afraid to take Mary as your wife, for the child conceived in her is from the Holy Spirit. 21She will bear a son, and you are to name him Jesus, for he will save his people from their sins." 22All this took place to fulfill what had been spoken by the Lord through the prophet:

23 "Look, the virgin shall conceive and bear a son,

2 In the time of King Herod, after Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judea, wise men[g] from the East came to Jerusalem, 2 asking, "Where is the child who has been born king of the Jews? For we observed his star at its rising,[h] and have come to pay him homage." 3 When King Herod heard this, he was frightened, and all Jerusalem with him; 4 and calling together all the chief priests and scribes of the people, he inquired of them where the Messiah[i] was to be born. 5 They told him, "In Bethlehem of Judea; for so it has been written by the prophet:

6 'And you, Bethlehem, in the land
of Judah,
are by no means least among the rulers of Judah;
for from you shall come a ruler who is to shepherd[j] my people Israel.' "

7 Then Herod secretly called for the wise men[g] and learned from them the exact time when the star had appeared. 8 Then he sent them to Bethlehem, saying, "Go and search diligently for the child; and when you have found him, bring me word so that I may also go and pay him homage." 9 When they had heard the king, they set out; and there, ahead of them, went the star that they had seen at its rising,[h] until it stopped over the place where the child was. 10 When they saw that the star had stopped,[k] they were overwhelmed with joy. 11 On entering the house, they saw the child with Mary his mother; and they knelt down and paid him homage. Then, opening their treasure chests, they offered him gifts of gold, frankincense, and myrrh. 12 And having been warned in a dream not to return to Herod, they left for their own country by another road.

13 Now after they had left, an angel of the Lord appeared to Joseph in a dream and said, "Get up, take the child and his mother, and flee to Egypt, and remain there until I tell you; for Herod is about to search for the child, to destroy him." 14 Then Joseph[l] got up, took the child and his mother by night, and went to Egypt, 15 and remained there until the death of Herod. This was to fulfill what had been spoken by the Lord through the prophet, "Out of Egypt I have called my son."

16 When Herod saw that he had been tricked by the wise men,[g] he was infuriated, and he sent and killed all the children in and around Bethlehem who were two years old or under, according to the time that he had learned from the wise men.[g] 17 Then was fulfilled what had been spoken through the prophet Jeremiah:

18 "A voice was heard in Ramah, wailing and loud lamentation,
Rachel weeping for her children;
she refused to be consoled,
because they are no more."

19 When Herod died, an angel of the Lord suddenly appeared in a dream to Joseph in Egypt and said, 20 "Get up, take

And after being warned in a dream, he went away to the district of Galilee. 23There he made his home in a town called Nazareth, so that what had been spoken through the prophets might be fulfilled, "He will be called a Nazorean."

3 In those days John the Baptist appeared in the wilderness of Judea, proclaiming, 2"Repent, for the kingdom of heaven has come near."[n] 3This is the one of whom the prophet Isaiah spoke when he said,

"The voice of one crying out in the wilderness:
'Prepare the way of the Lord,
make his paths straight.' "

4Now John wore clothing of camel's hair with a leather belt around his waist, and his food was locusts and wild honey. 5Then the people of Jerusalem and all Judea were going out to him, and all the region along the Jordan, 6and they were baptized by him in the river Jordan, confessing their sins.

7 But when he saw many Pharisees and Sadducees coming for baptism, he said to them, "You brood of vipers! Who warned you to flee from the wrath to come? 8Bear fruit worthy of repentance. 9Do not presume to say to yourselves, 'We have Abraham as our ancestor'; for I tell you, God is able from these stones to raise up children to Abraham. 10Even now the ax is lying at the root of the trees; every tree therefore that does not bear good fruit is cut down and thrown into the fire.

11 "I baptize you with[o] water for repentance, but one who is more powerful than I is coming after me; I am not worthy to carry his sandals. He will baptize you with[o] the Holy Spirit and fire. 12His winnowing fork is in his hand, and he will clear his threshing floor and will gather his wheat into the granary; but the chaff he will burn with unquenchable fire."

Archelaus, who was almost as cruel as his father Herod, reigned from 4 B.C. to A.D. 6 and was replaced by a Roman procurator. 2.23: There is a similarity in sound and possibly in meaning between the Aramaic word for Nazareth and the Hebrew word translated branch (Isa 11.1). Nazareth was situated in a secluded valley in lower Galilee, a little north of the Esdraelon plain.

3.1–12: Activity of John the Baptist (Mk 1.1–8; Lk 3.1–18; Jn 1.6–8, 19–28). 1: John resembled the Old Testament prophets (compare v. 4 with 2 Kings 1.8; Zech 13.4). Christian faith understood him to fulfill Isa 40.3; Mal 3.1; 4.5 (see 3.3; 17.10–12). His influence outside Christianity is attested by Acts 18.25; 19.1–7. Those days, namely, when Jesus began his public life. The wilderness of Judea lay east and southeast of Jerusalem. 2: Repent, literally "return," meant to come back to the way of life charted by the covenant between God and Israel (Ex 19.3–6; 24.3–8; Jer 31.31–34). The kingdom, see 4.17 n. 3: Isa 40.3. 6: See Mk 1.4 n.

3.7: Pharisees and Sadducees formed two major divisions among the Jews (for differences between them, see 22.23 n. and Acts 23.6–10). A third Jewish sect in Palestine was the Essenes (see Josephus, *B.J.*II.viii.2–13); their beliefs and practices are reflected in the Dead Sea Scrolls found at Qumran. The wrath to come, God's judgment (1 Thess 1.10). 8–10: See Lk 3.7–9 n.; Jn 8.33. 11–12: See Lk 12.49 n.; Acts 2.17–21; 19.1–7; 18.24–26.

3.13–17: Jesus' baptism (Mk 1.9–11; Lk 3.21–22; Jn 1.31–34). 13–15: Jesus recognized John's authority and identified himself with those who responded in faith to John's call. 16–17: A description of the surge of certainty and self-understanding that came to Jesus at his baptism. The language, akin to Old Testament speech, portrays a spiritual experience which words cannot adequately describe. My Son, the Beloved, see Mk 1.11 n.

him. 14John would have prevented him, saying, "I need to be baptized by you, and do you come to me?" 15But Jesus answered him, "Let it be so now; for it is proper for us in this way to fulfill all righteousness." Then he consented. 16And when Jesus had been baptized, just as he came up from the water, suddenly the heavens were opened to him and he saw the Spirit of God descending like a dove and alighting on him. 17And a voice from heaven said, "This is my Son, the Beloved,[p] with whom I am well pleased."

4 Then Jesus was led up by the Spirit into the wilderness to be tempted by the devil. 2He fasted forty days and forty nights, and afterwards he was famished. 3The tempter came and said to him, "If you are the Son of God, command these stones to become loaves of bread." 4But he answered, "It is written,

'One does not live by bread alone, but by every word that comes from the mouth of God.' "

5 Then the devil took him to the holy city and placed him on the pinnacle of the temple, 6saying to him, "If you are the Son of God, throw yourself down; for it is written,

'He will command his angels concerning you,'
and 'On their hands they will bear you up,
so that you will not dash your
foot against a stone.' "

7Jesus said to him, "Again it is written, 'Do not put the Lord your God to the test.' "

8 Again, the devil took him to a very high mountain and showed him all the kingdoms of the world and their splendor; 9and he said to him, "All these I will give you, if you will fall down and worship me." 10Jesus said to him, "Away with you, Satan! for it is written,

'Worship the Lord your God,
and serve only him.' "

11Then the devil left him, and suddenly angels came and waited on him.

12 Now when Jesus[q] heard that John had been arrested, he withdrew to Galilee. 13He left Nazareth and made his home in Capernaum by the sea, in the territory of Zebulun and Naphtali, 14so that what had been spoken through the prophet Isaiah might be fulfilled:

15 "Land of Zebulun, land of Naphtali,
on the road by the sea, across the Jordan, Galilee of the Gentiles—16 the people who sat in darkness have seen a great light, and for those who sat in the region and shadow of death light has dawned."

17From that time Jesus began to proclaim, "Repent, for the kingdom of heaven has come near."[r]

sense of mission to be influenced by concern for his safety or for merely practical interests. 1: The devil, tempter (v. 3), and Satan (v. 10) are names for evil conceived as a personal will actively hostile to God (see Lk 13.11, 16 n.). 2: Forty, compare Ex 34.28; 1 Kings 19.8. 3: If you are the Son of God; but see the declaration in 3.17. 4: Deut 8.3.

In asserting that God's kingdom has come near Jesus meant that all God's past dealings with his creation were coming to climax and fruition. Jesus taught both the present reality of God's rule (Lk 10.18; 11.20; 17.21) and its future realization (Mt 6.10). See Mk 1.15 n.

18 As he walked by the Sea of Galilee, he saw two brothers, Simon, who is called Peter, and Andrew his brother, casting a net into the sea—for they were fishermen. 19 And he said to them, "Follow me, and I will make you fish for people." 20 Immediately they left their nets and followed him. 21 As he went from there, he saw two other brothers, James son of Zebedee and his brother John, in the boat with their father Zebedee, mending their nets, and he called them. 22 Immediately they left the boat and their father, and followed him.

23 Jesus[s] went throughout Galilee, teaching in their synagogues and proclaiming the good news[t] of the kingdom and curing every disease and every sickness among the people. 24 So his fame spread throughout all Syria, and they brought to him all the sick, those who were afflicted with various diseases and pains, demoniacs, epileptics, and paralytics, and he cured them. 25 And great crowds followed him from Galilee, the Decapolis, Jerusalem, Judea, and from beyond the Jordan.

5 When Jesus[u] saw the crowds, he went up the mountain; and after he sat down, his disciples came to him. 2 Then he began to speak, and taught them, saying:

3 "Blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.

4 "Blessed are those who mourn, for they will be comforted.

5 "Blessed are the meek, for they will inherit the earth.

6 "Blessed are those who hunger and thirst for righteousness, for they will be filled.

7 "Blessed are the merciful, for they will receive mercy.

8 "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they will see God.

9 "Blessed are the peacemakers, for they will be called children of God.

10 "Blessed are those who are persecuted for righteousness' sake, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.

11 "Blessed are you when people revile you and persecute you and utter all kinds of evil against you falsely[v] on my account. 12 Rejoice and be glad, for your reward is great in heaven, for in the same way they persecuted the prophets who were before you.

17 "Do not think that I have come to abolish the law or the prophets; I have come not to abolish but to fulfill. 18For truly I tell you, until heaven and earth pass away, not one letter,[w] not one stroke of a letter, will pass from the law until all is accomplished. 19Therefore, whoever breaks[x] one of the least of these commandments, and teaches others to do the same, will be called least in the kingdom of heaven; but whoever does them and teaches them will be called great in the kingdom of heaven. 20For I tell you, unless your righteousness exceeds that of the scribes and Pharisees, you will never enter the kingdom of heaven.

21 "You have heard that it was said to those of ancient times, 'You shall not murder'; and 'whoever murders shall be liable to judgment.' 22But I say to you that if you are angry with a brother or sister,[y] you will be liable to judgment; and if you insult[z] a brother or sister,[a] you will be liable to the council; and if you say, 'You fool,' you will be liable to the hell[b] of fire. 23So when you are offering your gift at the altar, if you remember that your brother or sister[c] has something against you, 24leave your gift there before the altar and go; first be reconciled to your brother or sister,[c] and then come and offer your gift. 25Come to terms quickly with your accuser while you are on the way to court[d] with him, or your accuser may hand you over to the judge, and the judge to the guard, and you will be thrown into prison. 26Truly I tell you, you will never get out until you have paid the last penny.

5.17–20: The relation of Jesus' message to the Jewish law was a great concern to followers with a Jewish background. 17: The prophets in the Hebrew Scriptures comprise the books of Joshua, Judges, Samuel, Kings, Isaiah, Jeremiah, Ezekiel, and the twelve minor prophets (see Lk 24.27 n., 44 n.). Many Jews esteemed the prophets less than the law; hence the word or here. 18: Mk 13.31; Lk 16.17. 19: Breaks, or "sets aside." Teaches, Jas 3.1. 20: Righteousness, one's acceptance of God's requirements and one's being accepted by God (Lk 18.10–14).

38 "You have heard that it was said, 'An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth.' [39]But I say to you, Do not resist an evildoer. But if anyone strikes you on the right cheek, turn the other also; [40]and if anyone wants to sue you and take your coat, give your cloak as well; [41]and if anyone forces you to go one mile, go also the second mile. [42]Give to everyone who begs from you, and do not refuse anyone who wants to borrow from you.

43 "You have heard that it was said, 'You shall love your neighbor and hate your enemy.' [44]But I say to you, Love your enemies and pray for those who persecute you, [45]so that you may be children of your Father in heaven; for he makes his sun rise on the evil and on the good, and sends rain on the righteous and on the unrighteous. [46]For if you love those who love you, what reward do you have? Do not even the tax collectors do the same? 6.9–13: The Lord's Prayer (compare Lk 11.2–4) falls into two parts: after the opening invocation, there are three petitions concerning God's glory, followed by those concerning our needs. The phrase, on earth as it is in heaven (v. 10), belongs to each of the first three petitions. On the basis of David's prayer (1 Chr 29.11–13) the early church added an appropriate concluding doxology (see note j). 9: Isa 63.16; 64.8. 12: As we also, i.e.

Our Father in heaven, hallowed be your name.
10 Your kingdom come.
Your will be done,
on earth as it is in heaven.
11 Give us this day our daily bread.[h]
12 And forgive us our debts, as we also have forgiven
our debtors.
13 And do not bring us to the time of trial,[i] but rescue us from the evil one.[j]

14 For if you forgive others their trespasses, your heavenly Father will also forgive you; 15 but if you do not forgive others, neither will your Father forgive your trespasses.

16 "And whenever you fast, do not look dismal, like the hypocrites, for they disfigure their faces so as to show others that they are fasting. Truly I tell you, they have received their reward. 17 But when you fast, put oil on your head and wash your face, 18 so that your fasting may be seen not by others but by your Father who is in secret; and your Father who sees in secret will reward you.[k]

19 "Do not store up for yourselves treasures on earth, where moth and rust[l] consume and where thieves break in and steal; 20 but store up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust[l] consumes and where thieves do not break in and steal. 21 For where your treasure is, there your heart will be also.

22 "The eye is the lamp of the body. So, if your eye is healthy, your whole body will be full of light; 23 but if your eye is unhealthy, your whole body will be full of darkness. If then the light in you is darkness, how great is the darkness!

24 "No one can serve two masters; for a slave will either hate the one and love the other, or be devoted to the one and despise the other. You cannot serve God and wealth.[m]

25 "Therefore I tell you, do not worry about your life, what you will eat or what you will drink,[n] or about your body, what you will wear. Is not life more than food, and the body more than clothing? 26 Look at the birds of the air; they neither sow nor reap nor gather into barns, and yet your heavenly Father feeds them. Are you not of more value than they? 27 And can any of you by worrying add a single hour to your span of life?[o] 28 And why do you worry about clothing? Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow; they neither toil nor spin, 29 yet I tell you, even Solomon in all his glory was not clothed like one of these. 30 But if God so clothes the grass of the field, which is alive today and tomorrow is thrown into the oven, will he not much more clothe you—you of little faith? 31 Therefore do not worry, saying, 'What will we eat?' or 'What will we drink?' or 'What will we wear?' 32 For it is the Gentiles who strive for all these things; and indeed your heavenly Father knows that you need all these things. 33 But strive first for the kingdom of God[p] and his[q] righteousness, and all these things will be given to you as well.

8 When Jesus[u] had come down from the mountain, great crowds followed him; 2and there was a leper[v] who came to him and knelt before him, saying, "Lord, if you choose, you can make me clean." 3He stretched out his hand and touched him, saying, "I do choose. Be made clean!" Immediately his leprosy[v] was cleansed. 4Then Jesus said to him, "See that you say nothing to anyone; but go, show yourself to the priest, and offer the gift that Moses commanded, as a testimony to them."

5 When he entered Capernaum, a centurion came to him, appealing to him 6and saying, "Lord, my servant is lying at home paralyzed, in terrible distress." 7And he said to him, "I will come and cure him." 8The centurion answered, "Lord, I am not worthy to have you come under my roof; but only speak the word, and my servant will be healed. 9For I also am a man under authority, with soldiers under me; and I say to one, 'Go,' and he goes, and to another, 'Come,' and he comes, and to my slave, 'Do this,' and the slave does it." 10When Jesus heard him, he was amazed and said to those who followed him, "Truly I tell you, in no one[w] in Israel have I found such faith. 11I tell you, many will come from east and west and will eat with Abraham and Isaac and Jacob in the kingdom of heaven, 12while the heirs of the kingdom will be thrown into the outer darkness, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth." 13And to the centurion Jesus said, "Go; let it be done for you according to your faith." And the servant was healed in that hour.

14 When Jesus entered Peter's house, he saw his mother-in-law lying in bed with a fever; 15he touched her hand, and the fever left her, and she got up and began to serve him. 16That evening they brought to him many who were possessed with demons; and he cast out the spirits with a word, and cured all who were sick. 17This was to fulfill what had been spoken through the prophet Isaiah, "He took our infirmities and bore our diseases."

18 Now when Jesus saw great crowds around him, he gave orders to go over to the other side. 19A scribe then approached and said, "Teacher, I will follow you wherever you go." 20And Jesus said to him, "Foxes have holes, and birds of the air have nests; but the Son of Man has nowhere to lay his head." 21Another of his disciples said to him, "Lord, first let me go and bury my father." 22But

Jesus said to him, "Follow me, and let the dead bury their own dead."

23 And when he got into the boat, his disciples followed him. 24 A windstorm arose on the sea, so great that the boat was being swamped by the waves; but he was asleep. 25 And they went and woke him up, saying, "Lord, save us! We are perishing!" 26 And he said to them, "Why are you afraid, you of little faith?" Then he got up and rebuked the winds and the sea; and there was a dead calm. 27 They were amazed, saying, "What sort of man is this, that even the winds and the sea obey him?"

28 When he came to the other side, to the country of the Gadarenes,[x] two demoniacs coming out of the tombs met him. They were so fierce that no one could pass that way. 29 Suddenly they shouted, "What have you to do with us, Son of God? Have you come here to torment us before the time?" 30 Now a large herd of swine was feeding at some distance from them. 31 The demons begged him, "If you cast us out, send us into the herd of swine." 32 And he said to them, "Go!" So they came out and entered the swine; and suddenly, the whole herd rushed down the steep bank into the sea and perished in the water. 33 The swineherds ran off, and on going into the town, they told the whole story about what had happened to the demoniacs. 34 Then the whole town came out to meet Jesus; and when they saw him, they begged him to leave their neighborhood.

9 1 And after getting into a boat he crossed the sea and came to his own town.

2 And just then some people were carrying a paralyzed man lying on a bed. When Jesus saw their faith, he said to the paralytic, "Take heart, son; your sins are forgiven." 3 Then some of the scribes said to themselves, "This man is blaspheming." 4 But Jesus, perceiving their thoughts, said, "Why do you think evil in your hearts? 5 For which is easier, to say, 'Your sins are forgiven,' or to say, 'Stand up and walk'? 6 But so that you may know that the Son of Man has authority on earth to forgive sins"—he then said to the paralytic—"Stand up, take your bed and go to your home." 7 And he stood up and went to his home. 8 When the crowds saw it, they were filled with awe, and they glorified God, who had given such authority to human beings.

9 As Jesus was walking along, he saw a man called Matthew sitting at the tax booth; and he said to him, "Follow me." And he got up and followed him.

10 And as he sat at dinner[y] in the house, many tax collectors and sinners came and were sitting[z] with him and his disciples. 11 When the Pharisees saw this, they said to his disciples, "Why does your teacher eat with tax collectors and sinners?" 12 But when he heard this, he said, "Those who are well have no need of a physician, but those who are sick. 13 Go and learn what this means, 'I desire mercy, not sacrifice.' For I have come to call not the righteous but sinners."

14 Then the disciples of John came to him, saying, "Why do we and the Pharisees fast often,[a] but your disciples do not fast?" [15]And Jesus said to them, "The wedding guests cannot mourn as long as the bridegroom is with them, can they? The days will come when the bridegroom is taken away from them, and then they will fast. [16]No one sews a piece of unshrunk cloth on an old cloak, for the patch pulls away from the cloak, and a worse tear is made. [17]Neither is new wine put into old wineskins; otherwise, the skins burst, and the wine is spilled, and the skins are destroyed; but new wine is put into fresh wineskins, and so both are preserved."

18 While he was saying these things to them, suddenly a leader of the synagogue[b] came in and knelt before him, saying, "My daughter has just died; but come and lay your hand on her, and she will live." [19]And Jesus got up and followed him, with his disciples. [20]Then suddenly a woman who had been suffering from hemorrhages for twelve years came up behind him and touched the fringe of his cloak, [21]for she said to herself, "If I only touch his cloak, I will be made well." [22]Jesus turned, and seeing her he said, "Take heart, daughter; your faith has made you well." And instantly the woman was made well. [23]When Jesus came to the leader's house and saw the flute players and the crowd making a commotion, [24]he said, "Go away; for the girl is not dead but sleeping." And they laughed at him. [25]But when the crowd had been put outside, he went in and took her by the hand, and the girl got up. [26]And the report of this spread throughout that district.

27 As Jesus went on from there, two blind men followed him, crying loudly, "Have mercy on us, Son of David!" [28]When he entered the house, the blind men came to him; and Jesus said to them, "Do you believe that I am able to do this?" They said to him, "Yes, Lord." [29]Then he touched their eyes and said, "According to your faith let it be done to you." [30]And their eyes were opened. Then Jesus sternly ordered them, "See that no one knows of this." [31]But they went away and spread the news about him throughout that district.

32 After they had gone away, a demoniac who was mute was brought to him. [33]And when the demon had been cast out, the one who had been mute spoke; and the crowds were amazed and said, "Never has anything like this been seen in Israel." [34]But the Pharisees said, "By the ruler of the demons he casts out the demons."[c]

35 Then Jesus went about all the cities and villages, teaching in their synagogues, and proclaiming the good news of the kingdom, and curing every disease and every sickness. [36]When he saw the crowds, he had compassion for them, because they were harassed and helpless, like sheep without a shepherd. [37]Then he said to his disciples, "The harvest is plentiful, but the laborers are few; [38]therefore ask the Lord of the harvest to send out laborers into his harvest."

authority over unclean spirits, to cast them out, and to cure every disease and every sickness. 2These are the names of the twelve apostles: first, Simon, also known as Peter, and his brother Andrew; James son of Zebedee, and his brother John; 3Philip and Bartholomew; Thomas and Matthew the tax collector; James son of Alphaeus, and Thaddaeus;[e] 4Simon the Cananaean, and Judas Iscariot, the one who betrayed him.

5 These twelve Jesus sent out with the following instructions: "Go nowhere among the Gentiles, and enter no town of the Samaritans, 6but go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel. 7As you go, proclaim the good news, 'The kingdom of heaven has come near.'[f] 8Cure the sick, raise the dead, cleanse the lepers,[g] cast out demons. You received without payment; give without payment. 9Take no gold, or silver, or copper in your belts, 10no bag for your journey, or two tunics, or sandals, or a staff; for laborers deserve their food. 11Whatever town or village you enter, find out who in it is worthy, and stay there until you leave. 12As you enter the house, greet it. 13If the house is worthy, let your peace come upon it; but if it is not worthy, let your peace return to you. 14If anyone will not welcome you or listen to your words, shake off the dust from your feet as you leave that house or town. 15Truly I tell you, it will be more tolerable for the land of Sodom and Gomorrah on the day of judgment than for that town.

16 "See, I am sending you out like sheep into the midst of wolves; so be wise as serpents and innocent as doves. 17Beware of them, for they will hand you over to councils and flog you in their synagogues; 18and you will be dragged before governors and kings because of me, as a testimony to them and the Gentiles. 19When they hand you over, do not worry about how you are to speak or what you are to say; for what you are to say will be given to you at that time; 20for it is not you who speak, but the Spirit of your Father speaking through you. 21Brother will betray brother to death, and a father his child, and children will rise against parents and have them put to death; 22and you will be hated by all because of my name. But the one who endures to the end will be saved. 23When they persecute you in one town, flee to the next; for truly I tell you, you will not have gone through all the towns of Israel before the Son of Man comes.

11Truly I tell you, among those born of women no one has arisen greater than John the Baptist; yet the least in the kingdom of heaven is greater than he. 12From the days of John the Baptist until now the kingdom of heaven has suffered violence,[n] and the violent take it by force. 13For all the prophets and the law prophesied until John came; 14and if you are willing to accept it, he is Elijah who is to come. 15Let anyone with ears[o] listen!

20 Then he began to reproach the cities in which most of his deeds of power had been done, because they did not repent. 21"Woe to you, Chorazin! Woe to you, Bethsaida! For if the deeds of power done in you had been done in Tyre and Sidon, they would have repented long ago in sackcloth and ashes. 22But I tell you, on the day of judgment it will be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon than for you. 23And you, Capernaum, Jesus seems not to have expected the literal return of Elijah (17.10–13; Mk 9.9–13).

11.18: See Lk 7.33 n. 19: That is, divine wisdom is proved right by its results. 21: Chorazin, two and a half miles north of Capernaum, on the coast of the Sea of Galilee. Bethsaida, near the northern extremity of the Sea of Galilee. Tyre and Sidon, Phoenician cities on the coast of the Mediterranean Sea. 23: Isa 14.13, 15. 25–30: Lk 10.21–22.

11.25: 9.13; 10.42; see 16.17 n; Lk 10.21–22; 24.16. 27: Jesus claimed a special relation to God which he could share with others (Jn

"Look, your disciples are doing what is not lawful to do on the sabbath." 3He said to them, "Have you not read what David did when he and his companions were hungry? 4He entered the house of God and ate the bread of the Presence, which it was not lawful for him or his companions to eat, but only for the priests. 5Or have you not read in the law that on the sabbath the priests in the temple break the sabbath and yet are guiltless? 6I tell you, something greater than the temple is here. 7But if you had known what this means, 'I desire mercy and not sacrifice,' you would not have condemned the guiltless. 8For the Son of Man is lord of the sabbath."

9 He left that place and entered their synagogue; 10a man was there with a withered hand, and they asked him, "Is it lawful to cure on the sabbath?" so that they might accuse him. 11He said to them, "Suppose one of you has only one sheep and it falls into a pit on the sabbath; will you not lay hold of it and lift it out? 12How much more valuable is a human being than a sheep! So it is lawful to do good on the sabbath." 13Then he said to the man, "Stretch out your hand." He stretched it out, and it was restored, as sound as the other. 14But the Pharisees went out and conspired against him, how to destroy him.

15 When Jesus became aware of this, he departed. Many crowds[s] followed him, and he cured all of them, 16and he ordered them not to make him known. 17This was to fulfill what had been spoken through the prophet Isaiah:

18 "Here is my servant, whom I have chosen,
my beloved, with whom my soul is well pleased.
I will put my Spirit upon him,
and he will proclaim justice to the Gentiles.
19 He will not wrangle or cry aloud,
nor will anyone hear his voice in the streets.
20 He will not break a bruised reed or quench a smoldering wick until he brings justice to victory.
21 And in his name the Gentiles will hope."

22 Then they brought to him a demoniac who was blind and mute; and he cured him, so that the one who had been mute could speak and see. 23All the crowds were amazed and said, "Can this be the Son of David?" 24But when the Pharisees heard it, they said, "It is only by Beelzebul, the ruler of the demons, that this fellow casts out the demons."

They were a symbol of communion with God. 5: Num 28.9–10. 6: Since no penalty was exacted from those who set aside provisions of the Law for the sake of some human need or some more significant service to God, Jesus' disciples eat because of their need and serve him who is greater than the institutions of the Law (see vv. 41–42). 7: Hos 6.6; Mt 9.13. 8: Jesus claims, by virtue of his mission as the Messiah, authority over another's obedience to God (11.27; Jn 5.1–18). 11–12: The rabbis agreed with the principle of attending to accidental injury and danger on the sabbath, but they thought that chronic conditions should wait (Lk 13.14). For Jesus it was important to restore a person to useful life. 12: 10.31.

The biblical writers speak either of curing the victim or casting out the demon (v. 24; 9.32–33; Lk 11.14–15). 23: Son of David, a title of the Messiah (21.9). 24: The issue is how to account for Jesus' manifest power. The Pharisees attribute it to evil forces hostile to humankind (see Lk 7.33 n.). Beelzebul, see 25 He knew what they were thinking and said to them, "Every kingdom divided against itself is laid waste, and no city or house divided against itself will stand. 26 If Satan casts out Satan, he is divided against himself; how then will his kingdom stand? 27 If I cast out demons by Beelzebul, by whom do your own exorcists[t] cast them out? Therefore they will be your judges. 28 But if it is by the Spirit of God that I cast out demons, then the kingdom of God has come to you. 29 Or how can one enter a strong man's house and plunder his property, without first tying up the strong man? Then indeed the house can be plundered. 30 Whoever is not with me is against me, and whoever does not gather with me scatters. 31 Therefore I tell you, people will be forgiven for every sin and blasphemy, but blasphemy against the Spirit will not be forgiven. 32 Whoever speaks a word against the Son of Man will be forgiven, but whoever speaks against the Holy Spirit will not be forgiven, either in this age or in the age to come.

33 "Either make the tree good, and its fruit good; or make the tree bad, and its fruit bad; for the tree is known by its fruit. 34 You brood of vipers! How can you speak good things, when you are evil? For out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaks. 35 The good person brings good things out of a good treasure, and the evil person brings evil things out of an evil treasure. 36 I tell you, on the day of judgment you will have to give an account for every careless word you utter; 37 for by your words you will be justified, and by your words you will be condemned."

38 Then some of the scribes and Pharisees said to him, "Teacher, we wish to see a sign from you." 39 But he answered them, "An evil and adulterous generation asks for a sign, but no sign will be given to it except the sign of the prophet Jonah. 40 For just as Jonah was three days and three nights in the belly of the sea monster, so for three days and three nights the Son of Man will be in the heart of the earth. 41 The people of Nineveh will rise up at the judgment with this generation and condemn it, because they repented at the proclamation of Jonah, and see, something greater than Jonah is here! 42 The queen of the South will rise up at the judgment with this generation and condemn it, because she came from the ends of the earth to listen to the wisdom of Solomon, and see, something greater than Solomon is here!

were standing outside, wanting to speak to him. 47Someone told him, "Look, your mother and your brothers are standing outside, wanting to speak to you."[u] 48But to the one who had told him this, Jesus[v] replied, "Who is my mother, and who are my brothers?" 49And pointing to his disciples, he said, "Here are my mother and my brothers! 50For whoever does the will of my Father in heaven is my brother and sister and mother."

13 That same day Jesus went out of the house and sat beside the sea. 2Such great crowds gathered around him that he got into a boat and sat there, while the whole crowd stood on the beach. 3And he told them many things in parables, saying: "Listen! A sower went out to sow. 4And as he sowed, some seeds fell on the path, and the birds came and ate them up. 5Other seeds fell on rocky ground, where they did not have much soil, and they sprang up quickly, since they had no depth of soil. 6But when the sun rose, they were scorched; and since they had no root, they withered away. 7Other seeds fell among thorns, and the thorns grew up and choked them. 8Other seeds fell on good soil and brought forth grain, some a hundredfold, some sixty, some thirty. 9Let anyone with ears[w] listen!"

10 Then the disciples came and asked him, "Why do you speak to them in parables?" 11He answered, "To you it has been given to know the secrets[x] of the kingdom of heaven, but to them it has not been given. 12For to those who have, more will be given, and they will have an abundance; but from those who have nothing, even what they have will be taken away. 13The reason I speak to them in parables is that 'seeing they do not perceive, and hearing they do not listen, nor do they understand.' 14With them indeed is fulfilled the prophecy of Isaiah that says:

'You will indeed listen, but never understand,
and you will indeed look, but never perceive.
15 For this people's heart has grown dull,
and their ears are hard of hearing,
and they have shut their eyes;
so that they might not look with their eyes,
and listen with their ears,
and understand with their heart and turn—
and I would heal them.'

16But blessed are your eyes, for they see, and your ears, for they hear. 17Truly I tell you, many prophets and righteous people longed to see what you see, but did not see it, and to hear what you hear, but did not hear it.

12.46–50: Jesus' true family (Mk 3.31–35; Lk 8.19–21).

13.1–52: Teaching in parables (Mk 4.1–34; Lk 8.4–18; 13.18–21). 1: The sea, of Galilee. 3: Parables are stories describing situations in everyday life which, as Jesus used them, convey a spiritual meaning. In general the teaching of each parable relates to a single point, and apart from this the details may, or may not, have a particular meaning. Jesus used this method of teaching because: (a) it gave vivid, memorable expression to his teachings; (b) it led those who heard to reflect on his words and bear responsibility for their decision to accept or oppose his claim; (c) it probably reduced specific grounds for contention by hostile listeners. 3b–8: The sower, explained in vv. 18–23 (see Mk 4.1–9). 11: The disciples heard and accepted the message about God's kingdom and by their faith had access to deeper understanding (see Mk 4.11 n.). 12: 25.29; Mk 4.24–25; Lk 8.18; 19.26. 13: The parables do not obscure truth but present it; the hearers receive the message through their physical senses but do not comprehend (see 11.25 n.). 14–15: Isa 6.9–10; Mk 8.18; see Acts 28.26 n. 16–17: See Lk 10.23–24 n. 17: See . . . hear, Jesus' message about God's kingdom.

18 "Hear then the parable of the sower. 19 When anyone hears the word of the kingdom and does not understand it, the evil one comes and snatches away what is sown in the heart; this is what was sown on the path. 20 As for what was sown on rocky ground, this is the one who hears the word and immediately receives it with joy; 21 yet such a person has no root, but endures only for a while, and when trouble or persecution arises on account of the word, that person immediately falls away.[y] 22 As for what was sown among thorns, this is the one who hears the word, but the cares of the world and the lure of wealth choke the word, and it yields nothing. 23 But as for what was sown on good soil, this is the one who hears the word and understands it, who indeed bears fruit and yields, in one case a hundredfold, in another sixty, and in another thirty."

24 He put before them another parable: "The kingdom of heaven may be compared to someone who sowed good seed in his field; 25 but while everybody was asleep, an enemy came and sowed weeds among the wheat, and then went away. 26 So when the plants came up and bore grain, then the weeds appeared as well. 27 And the slaves of the householder came and said to him, 'Master, did you not sow good seed in your field? Where, then, did these weeds come from?' 28 He answered, 'An enemy has done this.' The slaves said to him, 'Then do you want us to go and gather them?' 29 But he replied, 'No; for in gathering the weeds you would uproot the wheat along with them. 30 Let both of them grow together until the harvest; and at harvest time I will tell the reapers, Collect the weeds first and bind them in bundles to be burned, but gather the wheat into my barn.' "

31 He put before them another parable: "The kingdom of heaven is like a mustard seed that someone took and sowed in his field; 32 it is the smallest of all the seeds, but when it has grown it is the greatest of shrubs and becomes a tree, so that the birds of the air come and make nests in its branches."

33 He told them another parable: "The kingdom of heaven is like yeast that a woman took and mixed in with[z] three measures of flour until all of it was leavened."

34 Jesus told the crowds all these things in parables; without a parable he told them nothing. 35 This was to fulfill what had been spoken through the prophet:[a]

"I will open my mouth to speak in parables;
I will proclaim what has been hidden from the foundation of the world."[b]

36 Then he left the crowds and went into the house. And his disciples approached him, saying, "Explain to us the parable of the weeds of the field." 37 He answered, "The one who sows the good seed is the Son of Man; 38 the field is the world, and the good seed are the children of the kingdom; the weeds are the children of the evil one, 39 and the enemy who sowed them is the devil; the harvest is the end of the age, and the reapers are angels. 40 Just as the weeds are collected and burned up with fire, so will it be at the end of the age. 41 The Son of Man will send his angels, and they will collect out

The angels will come out and separate the evil from the righteous 50and throw them into the furnace of fire, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

51 "Have you understood all this?" They answered, "Yes." 52And he said to them, "Therefore every scribe who has been trained for the kingdom of heaven is like the master of a household who brings out of his treasure what is new and what is old." 53When Jesus had finished these parables, he left that place.

Is not his mother called Mary? And are not his brothers James and Joseph and Simon and Judas? 56And are not all his sisters with us? Where then did this man get all this?" 57And they took offense at him. But Jesus said to them, "Prophets are not without honor except in their own country and in their own house." 58And he did not do many deeds of power there, because of their unbelief.

14 At that time Herod the ruler[e] heard reports about Jesus; 2and he said to his servants, "This is John the Baptist; he has been raised from the dead, and for this reason these powers are at work in him." 3For Herod had arrested John, bound him, and put him in prison on account of Herodias, his brother Philip's wife,[f] 4because John had been telling him, "It is not lawful for you to have her." 5Though Herod[g] wanted to put him to death, he feared the crowd, because they regarded him as a prophet. 6But when Herod's birthday came, the daughter of Herodias danced before the company, and she pleased Herod 7so much that he promised on oath to grant her whatever she might ask. 8Prompted by her mother, she said, "Give me the head of John the Baptist here on a platter." 9The king was grieved, yet out of regard for his oaths and for the guests, he commanded it to be given; 10he sent and had John beheaded in the prison. 11 The head was brought on a platter and given to the girl, who brought it to her mother. 12 His disciples came and took the body and buried it; then they went and told Jesus.

13 Now when Jesus heard this, he withdrew from there in a boat to a deserted place by himself. But when the crowds heard it, they followed him on foot from the towns. 14 When he went ashore, he saw a great crowd; and he had compassion for them and cured their sick. 15 When it was evening, the disciples came to him and said, "This is a deserted place, and the hour is now late; send the crowds away so that they may go into the villages and buy food for themselves." 16 Jesus said to them, "They need not go away; you give them something to eat." 17 They replied, "We have nothing here but five loaves and two fish." 18 And he said, "Bring them here to me." 19 Then he ordered the crowds to sit down on the grass. Taking the five loaves and the two fish, he looked up to heaven, and blessed and broke the loaves, and gave them to the disciples, and the disciples gave them to the crowds. 20 And all ate and were filled; and they took up what was left over of the broken pieces, twelve baskets full. 21 And those who ate were about five thousand men, besides women and children.

22 Immediately he made the disciples get into the boat and go on ahead to the other side, while he dismissed the crowds. 23 And after he had dismissed the crowds, he went up the mountain by himself to pray. When evening came, he was there alone, 24 but by this time the boat, battered by the waves, was far from the land,[h] for the wind was against them. 25 And early in the morning he came walking toward them on the sea. 26 But when the disciples saw him walking on the sea, they were terrified, saying, "It is a ghost!" And they cried out in fear. 27 But immediately Jesus spoke to them and said, "Take heart, it is I; do not be afraid."

28 Peter answered him, "Lord, if it is you, command me to come to you on the water." 29 He said, "Come." So Peter got out of the boat, started walking on the water, and came toward Jesus. 30 But when he noticed the strong wind,[i] he became frightened, and beginning to sink, he cried out, "Lord, save me!" 31 Jesus immediately reached out his hand and caught him, saying to him, "You of little faith, why did you doubt?" 32 When they got into the boat, the wind ceased. 33 And those in the boat worshiped him, saying, "Truly you are the Son of God."

34 When they had crossed over, they came to land at Gennesaret. 35 After the people of that place recognized him, they sent word throughout the region and brought all who were sick to him, 36 and begged him that they might touch even the fringe of his cloak; and all who touched it were healed.

15 Then Pharisees and scribes came to Jesus from Jerusalem and said, 2 "Why do your disciples break the tradition of the elders? For they do not wash their hands before they eat." 3 He answered them, "And why do you break the commandment of God for the sake of your tradition? 4For God said,[j] 'Honor your father and your mother,' and, 'Whoever speaks evil of father or mother must surely die.' 5But you say that whoever tells father or mother, 'Whatever support you might have had from me is given to God,'[k] then that person need not honor the father.[l] 6So, for the sake of your tradition, you make void the word[m] of God. 7You hypocrites! Isaiah prophesied rightly about you when he said:

8 'This people honors me with their lips,
but their hearts are far from me;
9 in vain do they worship me, teaching human precepts as doctrines.' "

10 Then he called the crowd to him and said to them, "Listen and understand: 11it is not what goes into the mouth that defiles a person, but it is what comes out of the mouth that defiles." 12Then the disciples approached and said to him, "Do you know that the Pharisees took offense when they heard what you said?" 13He answered, "Every plant that my heavenly Father has not planted will be uprooted. 14Let them alone; they are blind guides of the blind.[n] And if one blind person guides another, both will fall into a pit." 15But Peter said to him, "Explain this parable to us." 16Then he said, "Are you also still without understanding? 17Do you not see that whatever goes into the mouth enters the stomach, and goes out into the sewer? 18But what comes out of the mouth proceeds from the heart, and this is what defiles. 19For out of the heart come evil intentions, murder, adultery, fornication, theft, false witness, slander. 20These are what defile a person, but to eat with unwashed hands does not defile."

21 Jesus left that place and went away to the district of Tyre and Sidon. 22Just then a Canaanite woman from that region came out and started shouting, "Have mercy on me, Lord, Son of David; my daughter is tormented by a demon." 23But he did not answer her at all. And his disciples came and urged him, saying, "Send her away, for she keeps shouting after us." 24He answered, "I was sent only to the lost sheep of the house of Israel." 25But she came and knelt before him, saying, "Lord, help me." 26He answered, "It is not fair to take the children's food and throw it to the dogs." 27She said, "Yes, Lord, yet even the dogs eat the crumbs that fall from their masters' table." 28Then Jesus answered her, "Woman, great is your faith! Let it be done for you as you wish." And her daughter was healed instantly.

29 After Jesus had left that place, he passed along the Sea of Galilee, and he went up the mountain, where he sat down. 30Great crowds came to him, bringing with them the lame, the maimed, the blind, the mute, and many others. They put them at his feet, and he cured them, 31so that the crowd was amazed when they saw the mute speaking, the maimed whole, the lame walking, and the blind seeing. And they praised the God of Israel.

32 Then Jesus called his disciples to him and said, "I have compassion for the crowd, because they have been with me now for three days and have nothing to eat; and I do not want to send them away hungry, for they might faint on the way." 33The disciples said to him, "Where are we to get enough bread in the desert to feed so great a crowd?" 34Jesus asked them, "How many loaves have you?" They said, "Seven, and a few small fish." 35Then ordering the crowd to sit down on the ground, 36he took the seven loaves and the fish; and after giving thanks he broke them and gave them to the disciples, and the disciples gave them to the crowds. 37And all of them ate and were filled; and they took up the broken pieces left over, seven baskets full. 38Those who had eaten were four thousand men, besides women and children. 39After sending away the crowds, he got into the boat and went to the region of Magadan.[o]

16 The Pharisees and Sadducees came, and to test Jesus[p] they asked him to show them a sign from heaven. 2He answered them, "When it is evening, you say, 'It will be fair weather, for the sky is red.' 3And in the morning, 'It will be stormy today, for the sky is red and threatening.' You know how to interpret the appearance of the sky, but you cannot interpret the signs of the times.[q] 4An evil and adulterous generation asks for a sign, but no sign will be given to it except the sign of Jonah." Then he left them and went away.

5 When the disciples reached the other side, they had forgotten to bring any bread. 6Jesus said to them, "Watch out, and beware of the yeast of the Pharisees and Sadducees." 7They said to one another, "It is because we have brought no bread." 8And becoming aware of it, Jesus said, "You of little faith, why are you talking about having no bread? 9Do you still not perceive? Do you not remember the five loaves for the five thousand, and how many baskets you gathered? 10Or the seven loaves for the four thousand, and how many baskets you gathered? 11How could you fail to perceive that I was not speaking about bread? Beware of the yeast of the Pharisees and Sadducees!" 12Then they understood that he had not told them to beware of the yeast of bread, but of the teaching of the Pharisees and Sadducees.

13 Now when Jesus came into the district of Caesarea Philippi, he asked his disciples, "Who do people say that the Son of Man is?" 14And they said, "Some say John the Baptist, but others Elijah, and still others Jeremiah or one of the 16.13–23: Peter's confession (Mk 8.27–33; Lk 9.18–22). 13: See Mk 8.27 n. Son of Man here is equivalent to "I." 14: Elijah, believed by Jews to be a forerunner of the Messiah. 16: Peter asserts that Jesus is the Messiah, not merely one of the prophets (v. 14). He identifies Jesus with the figure of Mal 3.1–4 (compare Mk 1.2; Mt 1.16; Jn 1.49; 11.27). 17: Simon was Peter's personal name. Flesh and blood, human beings (1 Cor 15.50; Gal 1.16; Eph 6.12). Revealed, understanding spiritual realities involves God's disclosure (see 11.25 n.; Lk 24.16; 1 Cor 1.18–25; 2.6–16). 18: The Greek text involves a play on two words, "Petros" ("Peter") and "petra" ("rock"). Palestinian Aramaic, which Jesus usually spoke, used the same word for both proper name and common noun: "You are 'Kepha' [Cephas; compare 1 Cor 15.5; Gal 2.9], and on this 'kepha' [rock] I will build . . ." For the view that all the apostles also form the foun-

prophets." 15He said to them, "But who do you say that I am?" 16Simon Peter answered, "You are the Messiah,[r] the Son of the living God." 17And Jesus answered him, "Blessed are you, Simon son of Jonah! For flesh and blood has not revealed this to you, but my Father in heaven. 18And I tell you, you are Peter,[s] and on this rock[t] I will build my church, and the gates of Hades will not prevail against it. 19I will give you the keys of the kingdom of heaven, and whatever you bind on earth will be bound in heaven, and whatever you loose on earth will be loosed in heaven." 20Then he sternly ordered the disciples not to tell anyone that he was[u] the Messiah.[r]

21 From that time on, Jesus began to show his disciples that he must go to Jerusalem and undergo great suffering at the hands of the elders and chief priests and scribes, and be killed, and on the third day be raised. 22And Peter took him aside and began to rebuke him, saying, "God forbid it, Lord! This must never happen to you." 23But he turned and said to Peter, "Get behind me, Satan! You are a stumbling block to me; for you are setting your mind not on divine things but on human things."

24 Then Jesus told his disciples, "If any want to become my followers, let them deny themselves and take up their cross and follow me. 25For those who want to save their life will lose it, and those who lose their life for my sake will find it. 26For what will it profit them if they gain the whole world but forfeit their life? Or what will they give in return for their life?

27 "For the Son of Man is to come with his angels in the glory of his Father, and then he will repay everyone for what has been done. 28Truly I tell you, there are some standing here who will not taste death before they see the Son of Man coming in his kingdom."

17 Six days later, Jesus took with him Peter and James and his brother John and led them up a high mountain, by themselves. 2And he was transfigured before them, and his face shone like the sun, and his clothes became dazzling white. 3Suddenly there appeared to them Moses and Elijah, talking with him. 4Then Peter said to Jesus, "Lord, it is good for us to be here; if you wish, I[v] will make three dwellings[w] here, one for you, one for Moses, and one for Elijah." 5While he was still speaking, suddenly a bright cloud overshadowed them, and from the cloud a voice said, "This is my Son, the Beloved;[x] with him I am well pleased; listen to him!" 6When the disciples heard this, they fell to the ground and were overcome by fear. 7But Jesus came and touched them, saying, "Get up and do not be afraid." 8And when they looked up, they saw no one except Jesus himself alone.

9 As they were coming down the mountain, Jesus ordered them, "Tell no one about the vision until after the Son of Man has been raised from the dead."

10 And the disciples asked him, "Why, then, do the scribes say that Elijah must come first?" 11 He replied, "Elijah is indeed coming and will restore all things; 12 but I tell you that Elijah has already come, and they did not recognize him, but they did to him whatever they pleased. So also the Son of Man is about to suffer at their hands." 13 Then the disciples understood that he was speaking to them about John the Baptist.

14 When they came to the crowd, a man came to him, knelt before him, 15 and said, "Lord, have mercy on my son, for he is an epileptic and he suffers terribly; he often falls into the fire and often into the water. 16 And I brought him to your disciples, but they could not cure him." 17 Jesus answered, "You faithless and perverse generation, how much longer must I be with you? How much longer must I put up with you? Bring him here to me." 18 And Jesus rebuked the demon,[y] and it[z] came out of him, and the boy was cured instantly. 19 Then the disciples came to Jesus privately and said, "Why could we not cast it out?" 20 He said to them, "Because of your little faith. For truly I tell you, if you have faith the size of a[a] mustard seed, you will say to this mountain, 'Move from here to there,' and it will move; and nothing will be impossible for you."[b]

22 As they were gathering[c] in Galilee, Jesus said to them, "The Son of Man is going to be betrayed into human hands, 23 and they will kill him, and on the third day he will be raised." And they were greatly distressed.

24 When they reached Capernaum, the collectors of the temple tax[d] came to Peter and said, "Does your teacher not pay the temple tax?"[d] 25 He said, "Yes, he does." And when he came home, Jesus spoke of it first, asking, "What do you think, Simon? From whom do kings of the earth take toll or tribute? From their children or from others?" 26 When Peter[e] said, "From others," Jesus said to him, "Then the children are free. 27 However, so that we do not give offense to them, go to the sea and cast a hook; take the first fish that comes up; and when you open its mouth, you will find a coin;[f] take that and give it to them for you and me."

18 At that time the disciples came to Jesus and asked, "Who is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven?" 2 He called a child, whom he put among them, 3 and said, "Truly I tell you, unless you change and become like children, you will never enter the kingdom of heaven. 4 Whoever becomes humble like this child is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven. 5 Whoever welcomes one such child in my name welcomes me.

10 "Take care that you do not despise one of these little ones; for, I tell you, in heaven their angels continually see the face of my Father in heaven.[h] 12What do you think? If a shepherd has a hundred sheep, and one of them has gone astray, does he not leave the ninety-nine on the mountains and go in search of the one that went astray? 13And if he finds it, truly I tell you, he rejoices over it more than over the ninety-nine that never went astray. 14So it is not the will of your[i] Father in heaven that one of these little ones should be lost.

15 "If another member of the church[j] sins against you,[k] go and point out the fault when the two of you are alone. If the member listens to you, you have regained that one.[l] 16But if you are not listened to, take one or two others along with you, so that every word may be confirmed by the evidence of two or three witnesses. 17If the member refuses to listen to them, tell it to the church; and if the offender refuses to listen even to the church, let such a one be to you as a Gentile and a tax collector. 18Truly I tell you, whatever you bind on earth will be bound in heaven, and whatever you loose on earth will be loosed in heaven. 19Again, truly I tell you, if two of you agree on earth about anything you ask, it will be done for you by my Father in heaven. 20For where two or three are gathered in my name, I am there among them."

21 Then Peter came and said to him, "Lord, if another member of the church[m] sins against me, how often should I forgive? As many as seven times?" 22Jesus said to him, "Not seven times, but, I tell you, seventy-seven[n] times.

[31]When his fellow slaves saw what had happened, they were greatly distressed, and they went and reported to their lord all that had taken place. [32]Then his lord summoned him and said to him, 'You wicked slave! I forgave you all that debt because you pleaded with me. [33]Should you not have had mercy on your fellow slave, as I had mercy on you?' [34]And in anger his lord handed him over to be tortured until he would pay his entire debt. [35]So my heavenly Father will also do to every one of you, if you do not forgive your brother or sister[q] from your heart."

19 When Jesus had finished saying these things, he left Galilee and went to the region of Judea beyond the Jordan. [2]Large crowds followed him, and he cured them there.

3 Some Pharisees came to him, and to test him they asked, "Is it lawful for a man to divorce his wife for any cause?" [4]He answered, "Have you not read that the one who made them at the beginning 'made them male and female,' [5]and said, 'For this reason a man shall leave his father and mother and be joined to his wife, and the two shall become one flesh'? [6]So they are no longer two, but one flesh. Therefore what God has joined together, let no one separate." [7]They said to him, "Why then did Moses command us to give a certificate of dismissal and to divorce her?" [8]He said to them, "It was because you were so hard-hearted that Moses allowed you to divorce your wives, but from the beginning it was not so. [9]And I say to you, whoever divorces his wife, except for unchastity, and marries another commits adultery."[r]

10 His disciples said to him, "If such is the case of a man with his wife, it is better not to marry." [11]But he said to them, "Not everyone can accept this teaching, but only those to whom it is given. [12]For there are eunuchs who have been so from birth, and there are eunuchs who have been made eunuchs by others, and there are eunuchs who have made themselves eunuchs for the sake of the kingdom of heaven. Let anyone accept this who can."

13 Then little children were being brought to him in order that he might lay his hands on them and pray. The disciples spoke sternly to those who brought them; [14]but Jesus said, "Let the little children come to me, and do not stop them; for it is to such as these that the kingdom of heaven belongs." [15]And he laid his hands on them and went on his way.

16 Then someone came to him and said, "Teacher, what good deed must I do to have eternal life?" [17]And he said to him, "Why do you ask me about what is good? There is only one who is good. If you wish to enter into life, keep the com-

23 Then Jesus said to his disciples, "Truly I tell you, it will be hard for a rich person to enter the kingdom of heaven. 24Again I tell you, it is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for someone who is rich to enter the kingdom of God." 25When the disciples heard this, they were greatly astounded and said, "Then who can be saved?" 26But Jesus looked at them and said, "For mortals it is impossible, but for God all things are possible."

27 Then Peter said in reply, "Look, we have left everything and followed you. What then will we have?" 28Jesus said to them, "Truly I tell you, at the renewal of all things, when the Son of Man is seated on the throne of his glory, you who have followed me will also sit on twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel. 29And everyone who has left houses or brothers or sisters or father or mother or children or fields, for my name's sake, will receive a hundredfold,[u] and will inherit eternal life. 30But many who are first will be last, and the last will be first.

Neither wealth, poverty, nor formal piety was so important as sharing in the working out of God's life-giving design for all people (5.23–24, 43–48; 6.33). [13]But he replied to one of them, 'Friend, I am doing you no wrong; did you not agree with me for the usual daily wage?[w] [14]Take what belongs to you and go; I choose to give to this last the same as I give to you. [15]Am I not allowed to do what I choose with what belongs to me? Or are you envious because I am generous?'[x] [16]So the last will be first, and the first will be last."[y]

17 While Jesus was going up to Jerusalem, he took the twelve disciples aside by themselves, and said to them on the way, [18]"See, we are going up to Jerusalem, and the Son of Man will be handed over to the chief priests and scribes, and they will condemn him to death; [19]then they will hand him over to the Gentiles to be mocked and flogged and crucified; and on the third day he will be raised."

20 Then the mother of the sons of Zebedee came to him with her sons, and kneeling before him, she asked a favor of him. [21]And he said to her, "What do you want?" She said to him, "Declare that these two sons of mine will sit, one at your right hand and one at your left, in your kingdom." [22]But Jesus answered, "You do not know what you are asking. Are you able to drink the cup that I am about to drink?"[z] They said to him, "We are able." [23]He said to them, "You will indeed drink my cup, but to sit at my right hand and at my left, this is not mine to grant, but it is for those for whom it has been prepared by my Father."

24 When the ten heard it, they were angry with the two brothers. [25]But Jesus called them to him and said, "You know that the rulers of the Gentiles lord it over them, and their great ones are tyrants over them. [26]It will not be so among you; but whoever wishes to be great among you must be your servant, [27]and whoever wishes to be first among you must be your slave; [28]just as the Son of Man came not to be served but to serve, and to give his life a ransom for many."

29 As they were leaving Jericho, a large crowd followed him. [30]There were two blind men sitting by the roadside. When they heard that Jesus was passing by, they shouted, "Lord,[a] have mercy on us, Son of David!" [31]The crowd sternly ordered them to be quiet; but they shouted even more loudly, "Have mercy on us, Lord, Son of David!" [32]Jesus stood still and called them, saying, "What do you want me to do for you?" [33]They said to him, "Lord, let our eyes be opened." [34]Moved with compas-

21 When they had come near Jerusalem and had reached Bethphage, at the Mount of Olives, Jesus sent two disciples, 2saying to them, "Go into the village ahead of you, and immediately you will find a donkey tied, and a colt with her; untie them and bring them to me. 3If anyone says anything to you, just say this, 'The Lord needs them.' And he will send them immediately.[b]" 4This took place to fulfill what had been spoken through the prophet, saying,

5 "Tell the daughter of Zion, Look, your king is coming to you,
humble, and mounted on a donkey,
and on a colt, the foal of a donkey."

6The disciples went and did as Jesus had directed them; 7they brought the donkey and the colt, and put their cloaks on them, and he sat on them. 8A very large crowd[c] spread their cloaks on the road, and others cut branches from the trees and spread them on the road. 9The crowds that went ahead of him and that followed were shouting,

"Hosanna to the Son of David!
Blessed is the one who comes in the name of the Lord!
Hosanna in the highest heaven!"

10When he entered Jerusalem, the whole city was in turmoil, asking, "Who is this?" 11The crowds were saying, "This is the prophet Jesus from Nazareth in Galilee."

12 Then Jesus entered the temple[d] and drove out all who were selling and buying in the temple, and he overturned the tables of the money changers and the seats of those who sold doves. 13He said to them, "It is written,

'My house shall be called a house of prayer';
but you are making it a den of robbers."

14 The blind and the lame came to him in the temple, and he cured them. 15But when the chief priests and the scribes saw the amazing things that he did, and heard[e] the children crying out in the temple, "Hosanna to the Son of David," they became angry 16and said to him, "Do you hear what these are saying?" Jesus said to them, "Yes; have you never read,

'Out of the mouths of infants and nursing babies

17He left them, went out of the city to Bethany, and spent the night there.

18 In the morning, when he returned to the city, he was hungry. 19And seeing a fig tree by the side of the road, he went to it and found nothing at all on it but leaves. Then he said to it, "May no fruit

And the fig tree withered at once. 20 When the disciples saw it, they were amazed, saying, "How did the fig tree wither at once?" 21 Jesus answered them, "Truly I tell you, if you have faith and do not doubt, not only will you do what has been done to the fig tree, but even if you say to this mountain, 'Be lifted up and thrown into the sea,' it will be done. 22 Whatever you ask for in prayer with faith, you will receive."

23 When he entered the temple, the chief priests and the elders of the people came to him as he was teaching, and said, "By what authority are you doing these things, and who gave you this authority?" 24 Jesus said to them, "I will also ask you one question; if you tell me the answer, then I will also tell you by what authority I do these things. 25 Did the baptism of John come from heaven, or was it of human origin?" And they argued with one another, "If we say, 'From heaven,' he will say to us, 'Why then did you not believe him?' 26 But if we say, 'Of human origin,' we are afraid of the crowd; for all regard John as a prophet." 27 So they answered Jesus, "We do not know." And he said to them, "Neither will I tell you by what authority I am doing these things.

28 "What do you think? A man had two sons; he went to the first and said, 'Son, go and work in the vineyard today.' 29 He answered, 'I will not'; but later he changed his mind and went. 30 The father[f] went to the second and said the same; and he answered, 'I go, sir'; but he did not go. 31 Which of the two did the will of his father?" They said, "The first." Jesus said to them, "Truly I tell you, the tax collectors and the prostitutes are going into the kingdom of God ahead of you. 32 For John came to you in the way of righteousness and you did not believe him, but the tax collectors and the prostitutes believed him; and even after you saw it, you did not change your minds and believe him.

33 "Listen to another parable. There was a landowner who planted a vineyard, put a fence around it, dug a wine press in it, and built a watchtower. Then he leased it to tenants and went to another country. 34 When the harvest time had come, he sent his slaves to the tenants to collect his produce. 35 But the tenants seized his slaves and beat one, killed another, and stoned another. 36 Again he sent other slaves, more than the first; and they treated them in the same way. 37 Finally he sent his son to them, saying, 'They will respect my son.' 38 But when the tenants saw the son, they said to themselves, 'This is the heir; come, let us kill him and get his inheritance.' 39 So they seized him, threw him out of the vineyard, and killed him. 40 Now when the owner of the vineyard comes, what will he do to those tenants?" 41 They said to him, "He will put those wretches to a miserable death, and lease the vineyard to other tenants who will give him the produce at the harvest time."

45 When the chief priests and the Pharisees heard his parables, they realized that he was speaking about them. 46They wanted to arrest him, but they feared the crowds, because they regarded him as a prophet.

22 Once more Jesus spoke to them in parables, saying: 2"The kingdom of heaven may be compared to a king who gave a wedding banquet for his son. 3He sent his slaves to call those who had been invited to the wedding banquet, but they would not come. 4Again he sent other slaves, saying, 'Tell those who have been invited: Look, I have prepared my dinner, my oxen and my fat calves have been slaughtered, and everything is ready; come to the wedding banquet.' 5But they made light of it and went away, one to his farm, another to his business, 6while the rest seized his slaves, mistreated them, and killed them. 7The king was enraged. He sent his troops, destroyed those murderers, and burned their city. 8Then he said to his slaves, 'The wedding is ready, but those invited were not worthy. 9Go therefore into the main streets, and invite everyone you find to the wedding banquet.' 10Those slaves went out into the streets and gathered all whom they found, both good and bad; so the wedding hall was filled with guests.

11 "But when the king came in to see the guests, he noticed a man there who was not wearing a wedding robe, 12and he said to him, 'Friend, how did you get in here without a wedding robe?' And he was speechless. 13Then the king said to the attendants, 'Bind him hand and foot, and throw him into the outer darkness, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.' 14For many are called, but few are chosen."

15 Then the Pharisees went and plotted to entrap him in what he said. 16So they sent their disciples to him, along with the Herodians, saying, "Teacher, we know that you are sincere, and teach the way of God in accordance with truth, and show deference to no one; for you do not regard people with partiality. 17Tell us, then, what you think. Is it lawful to pay taxes to the emperor, or not?" 18But Jesus, aware of their malice, said, "Why are you putting me to the test, you hypocrites? 19Show me the coin used for the tax." And they brought him a denarius. 20Then he said to them, "Whose head is this, and whose title?" 21They answered, "The emperor's." Then he said to them, "Give therefore to the emperor the things that are the emperor's, and to God the things that are God's." 22When they heard this, they were amazed; and they left him and went away.

widow, and raise up children for his brother.' 25Now there were seven brothers among us; the first married, and died childless, leaving the widow to his brother. 26The second did the same, so also the third, down to the seventh. 27Last of all, the woman herself died. 28In the resurrection, then, whose wife of the seven will she be? For all of them had married her."

29 Jesus answered them, "You are wrong, because you know neither the scriptures nor the power of God. 30For in the resurrection they neither marry nor are given in marriage, but are like angels[k] in heaven. 31And as for the resurrection of the dead, have you not read what was said to you by God, 32'I am the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob'? He is God not of the dead, but of the living." 33And when the crowd heard it, they were astounded at his teaching.

34 When the Pharisees heard that he had silenced the Sadducees, they gathered together, 35and one of them, a lawyer, asked him a question to test him. 36"Teacher, which commandment in the law is the greatest?" 37He said to him, " 'You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, and with all your soul, and with all your mind.' 38This is the greatest and first commandment. 39And a second is like it: 'You shall love your neighbor as yourself.' 40On these two commandments hang all the law and the prophets."

41 Now while the Pharisees were gathered together, Jesus asked them this question: 42"What do you think of the Messiah?[l] Whose son is he?" They said to him, "The son of David." 43He said to them, "How is it then that David by the Spirit[m] calls him Lord, saying,

44 'The Lord said to my Lord,
"Sit at my right hand,
until I put your enemies under
your feet" '?

45If David thus calls him Lord, how can he be his son?" 46No one was able to give him an answer, nor from that day did anyone dare to ask him any more questions.

23 Then Jesus said to the crowds and to his disciples, 2"The scribes and the Pharisees sit on Moses' seat; 3therefore, do whatever they teach you and follow it; but do not do as they do, for they do not practice what they teach. 4They tie up heavy burdens, hard to bear,[n] and lay them on the shoulders of others; but they themselves are unwilling to lift a finger to move them. 5They do all their deeds to be seen by others; for they make their phylacteries broad and their fringes long. 6They love to have the place of honor at banquets and the best seats in the synagogues, 7and to be greeted with respect in the marketplaces, and to have people call them rabbi. 8But you are not to be called rabbi, for you have one teacher, and you are all students.[o] 9And call no one your father on earth, for

23.34–36: Lk 11.49–51. 34: See Lk 11.49 n.; Mt 10.17, 23; 2 Chr 36.15–16. Prophets, sages, and scribes are terms of Jewish origin applied here to Christian missionaries. 35: Gen 4.8; Heb 11.4; 2 Chr 24.20–22; Zech 1.1. The identifying words son of Barachiah (not in Lk 11.51) probably were mistakenly added to the text of Matthew at an early date because of confusion over which Zechariah was meant. The meaning of the sentence is to indicate the sweep of time from the first to the last victim of murder mentioned in the Old Testament (2 Chronicles stands last in the order of books in the Hebrew Bible).

23.37–39: Lament over Jerusalem (Lk 13.34–35). 37: The words how often suggest repeated efforts, made perhaps during an earlier Judean ministry (see Lk 4.44 n.). 38: Your house, the city itself. 1 Kings 9.7; Jer 12.7; 22.5. 39: 21.9; Ps 118.26.

24.1–3: Destruction of the temple foretold (Mk 13.1–2; Lk 21.5–7). 1: These verses, together with the discourse that follows, seem to merge teachings about an immediate destruction of Jerusalem with details associated in Scripture with the end of human history. These teachings were set down by the Evangelist in the light of events between A.D. 30 and 70. It is difficult to be certain what the original form of Jesus' words was. 3: Lk 17.20–21; Mt 13.39, 40, 49; 16.27.

24.4–51: On the end of the age (Mk 13.3–37; Lk 21.8–36). 5: 1 Jn 2.18. 6–7: Rev 6.3–8, 12–17. 8: The birth pangs signal the imminence of the new age, which was announced at the beginning of Jesus' public ministry as come near (4.17), but is to be realized only after a period of witness to Jesus' message (v. 14). Verses 5–14 seem to include a larger community of followers than the

15 "So when you see the desolating sacrilege standing in the holy place, as was spoken of by the prophet Daniel (let the reader understand), 16then those in Judea must flee to the mountains; 17the one on the housetop must not go down to take what is in the house; 18the one in the field must not turn back to get a coat.
19Woe to those who are pregnant and to those who are nursing infants in those days! 20Pray that your flight may not be in winter or on a sabbath. 21For at that time there will be great suffering, such as has not been from the beginning of the world until now, no, and never will be.
22And if those days had not been cut short, no one would be saved; but for the sake of the elect those days will be cut short. 23Then if anyone says to you,
'Look! Here is the Messiah!'[z] or 'There he is!'—do not believe it. 24For false messiahs[a] and false prophets will appear and produce great signs and omens, to lead astray, if possible, even the elect.
25Take note, I have told you beforehand.
26So, if they say to you, 'Look! He is in the wilderness,' do not go out. If they say, 'Look! He is in the inner rooms,' do not believe it. 27For as the lightning comes from the east and flashes as far as the west, so will be the coming of the Son of Man. 28Wherever the corpse is,
there the vultures will gather.

29 "Immediately after the suffering of those days
the sun will be darkened,
and the moon will not give its light;
the stars will fall from heaven,
and the powers of heaven will be shaken.
30Then the sign of the Son of Man will appear in heaven, and then all the tribes of the earth will mourn, and they will see 'the Son of Man coming on the clouds of heaven' with power and great glory.
31And he will send out his angels with a loud trumpet call, and they will gather his elect from the four winds, from one end of heaven to the other.

32 "From the fig tree learn its lesson:
as soon as its branch becomes tender and puts forth its leaves, you know that summer is near. 33So also, when you see all these things, you know that he[b] is near, at the very gates. 34Truly I tell you, this generation will not pass away until all these things have taken place. 35Heaven and earth will pass away, but my words will not pass away.

36 "But about that day and hour no one knows, neither the angels of heaven, nor the Son,[c] but only the Father. 37For as the days of Noah were, so will be the coming of the Son of Man. 38For as in those days before the flood they were eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage, until the day Noah entered the ark, 39and they knew nothing until the flood came and swept them all away, so too will be the coming of the Son of Man. 40Then two will be in the field; one will be taken and one will be left. 41Two women will be grinding meal together; one will be taken and one will be left. 42Keep awake therefore, for you do not know on what day[d] your Lord is coming. 43But understand this: if the owner of the house had known in what part of the night the thief was coming, he would have stayed awake and would not have let his house be broken into. 44Therefore you also must be ready, for the Son of Man is coming at an unexpected hour.

45 "Who then is the faithful and wise slave, whom his master has put in charge of his household, to give the other slaves[e] their allowance of food at the proper time? 46Blessed is that slave whom his master will find at work when he arrives. 47Truly I tell you, he will put that one in charge of all his possessions. 48But if that wicked slave says to himself, 'My master is delayed,' 49and he begins to beat his fellow slaves, and eats and drinks with drunkards, 50the master of that slave will come on a day when he does not expect him and at an hour that he does not know. 51He will cut him in pieces[f] and put him with the hypocrites, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

25 "Then the kingdom of heaven will be like this. Ten bridesmaids[g] took their lamps and went to meet the bridegroom.[h] 2Five of them were foolish, and five were wise. 3When the foolish took their lamps, they took no oil with them; 4but the wise took flasks of oil with their lamps. 5As the bridegroom was delayed, all of them became drowsy and slept. 6But at midnight there was a shout, 'Look! Here is the bridegroom! Come out to meet him.' 7Then all those bridesmaids[g] got up and trimmed their lamps. 8The foolish said to the wise, 'Give us some of your oil, for our lamps are going out.' 9But the wise replied, 'No! there will not be enough for you and for us; you had better go to the dealers and buy some for yourselves.' 10And while they went to buy it, the bridegroom came, and those who were ready went with him into the wedding banquet; and the door was shut. 11Later the other bridesmaids[g] came also, saying, 'Lord, lord, open to us.' 12But he replied, 'Truly I tell you, I do not know you.' 13Keep awake therefore, for you know neither the day nor the hour.[i]

14 "For it is as if a man, going on a journey, summoned his slaves and entrusted his property to them; 15to one he gave five talents,[j] to another two, to another one, to each according to his ability. Then he went away. 16The one who had received the five talents went off at once and traded with them, and made five more talents. 17In the same way, the one who had the two talents made two more talents. 18But the one who had received the one talent went off and dug a hole in the ground and hid his master's money. 19After a long time the master of those slaves came and settled accounts with them. 20Then the one who had received the five talents came forward, bringing five more talents, saying, 'Master, you handed over to me five talents; see, I have made five more talents.' 21His master said to him, 'Well done, good and trustworthy slave; you have been trustworthy in a few things, I will put you in charge of many things; enter into the joy of your master.' 22And the one with the two talents also came forward, saying, 'Master, you handed over to me two talents; see, I have made two more talents.' 23His master said to him, 'Well done, good and trustworthy slave;

you have been trustworthy in a few things, I will put you in charge of many things; enter into the joy of your master.' 24Then the one who had received the one talent also came forward, saying, 'Master, I knew that you were a harsh man, reaping where you did not sow, and gathering where you did not scatter seed; 25so I was afraid, and I went and hid your talent in the ground. Here you have what is yours.' 26But his master replied, 'You wicked and lazy slave! You knew, did you, that I reap where I did not sow, and gather where I did not scatter? 27Then you ought to have invested my money with the bankers, and on my return I would have received what was my own with interest. 28So take the talent from him, and give it to the one with the ten talents. 29For to all those who have, more will be given, and they will have an abundance; but from those who have nothing, even what they have will be taken away. 30As for this worthless slave, throw him into the outer darkness, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.'

31 "When the Son of Man comes in his glory, and all the angels with him, then he will sit on the throne of his glory. 32All the nations will be gathered before him, and he will separate people one from another as a shepherd separates the sheep from the goats, 33and he will put the sheep at his right hand and the goats at the left. 34Then the king will say to those at his right hand, 'Come, you that are blessed by my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world; 35for I was hungry and you gave me food, I was thirsty and you gave me something to drink, I was a stranger and you welcomed me, 36I was naked and you gave me clothing, I was sick and you took care of me, I was in prison and you visited me.' 37Then the righteous will answer him, 'Lord, when was it that we saw you hungry and gave you food, or thirsty and gave you something to drink? 38And when was it that we saw you a stranger and welcomed you, or naked and gave you clothing? 39And when was it that we saw you sick or in prison and visited you?' 40And the king will answer them, 'Truly I tell you, just as you did it to one of the least of these who are members of my family,[k] you did it to me.' 41Then he will say to those at his left hand, 'You that are accursed, depart from me into the eternal fire prepared for the devil and his angels; 42for I was hungry and you gave me no food, I was thirsty and you gave me nothing to drink, 43I was a stranger and you did not welcome me, naked and you did not give me clothing, sick and in prison and you did not visit me.' 44Then they also will answer, 'Lord, when was it that we saw you hungry or thirsty or a stranger or naked or sick or in prison, and did not take care of you?' 45Then he will answer them, 'Truly I tell you, just as you did not do it to one of the least of these, you did not do it to me.' 46And these will go away into eternal punishment, but the righteous into eternal life."

26 When Jesus had finished saying all these things, he said to his disciples, 2"You know that after two days the Passover is coming, and the Son of Man will be handed over to be crucified."

6 Now while Jesus was at Bethany in the house of Simon the leper,[l] 7a woman came to him with an alabaster jar of very costly ointment, and she poured it on his head as he sat at the table. 8But when the disciples saw it, they were angry and said, "Why this waste? 9For this ointment could have been sold for a large sum, and the money given to the poor." 10But Jesus, aware of this, said to them, "Why do you trouble the woman? She has performed a good service for me. 11For you always have the poor with you, but you will not always have me. 12By pouring this ointment on my body she has prepared me for burial. 13Truly I tell you, wherever this good news[m] is proclaimed in the whole world, what she has done will be told in remembrance of her."

14 Then one of the twelve, who was called Judas Iscariot, went to the chief priests 15and said, "What will you give me if I betray him to you?" They paid him thirty pieces of silver. 16And from that moment he began to look for an opportunity to betray him.

17 On the first day of Unleavened Bread the disciples came to Jesus, saying, "Where do you want us to make the preparations for you to eat the Passover?" 18He said, "Go into the city to a certain man, and say to him, 'The Teacher says, My time is near; I will keep the Passover at your house with my disciples.' " 19So the disciples did as Jesus had directed them, and they prepared the Passover meal.

20 When it was evening, he took his place with the twelve;[n] 21and while they were eating, he said, "Truly I tell you, one of you will betray me." 22And they became greatly distressed and began to say to him one after another, "Surely not I, Lord?" 23He answered, "The one who has dipped his hand into the bowl with me will betray me. 24The Son of Man goes as it is written of him, but woe to that one by whom the Son of Man is betrayed! It would have been better for that one not to have been born." 25Judas, who betrayed him, said, "Surely not I, Rabbi?" He replied, "You have said so."

26 While they were eating, Jesus took a loaf of bread, and after blessing it he broke it, gave it to the disciples, and said, "Take, eat; this is my body." 27Then he took a cup, and after giving thanks he gave it to them, saying, "Drink from it,

30 When they had sung the hymn, they went out to the Mount of Olives.

31 Then Jesus said to them, "You will all become deserters because of me this night; for it is written,

'I will strike the shepherd, and the sheep of the flock will be scattered.'

32But after I am raised up, I will go ahead of you to Galilee." 33Peter said to him, "Though all become deserters because of you, I will never desert you." 34Jesus said to him, "Truly I tell you, this very night, before the cock crows, you will deny me three times." 35Peter said to him, "Even though I must die with you, I will not deny you." And so said all the disciples.

36 Then Jesus went with them to a place called Gethsemane; and he said to his disciples, "Sit here while I go over there and pray." 37He took with him Peter and the two sons of Zebedee, and began to be grieved and agitated. 38Then he said to them, "I am deeply grieved, even to death; remain here, and stay awake with me." 39And going a little farther, he threw himself on the ground and prayed, "My Father, if it is possible, let this cup pass from me; yet not what I want but what you want." 40Then he came to the disciples and found them sleeping; and he said to Peter, "So, could you not stay awake with me one hour? 41Stay awake and pray that you may not come into the time of trial;[p] the spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak." 42Again he went away for the second time and prayed, "My Father, if this cannot pass unless I drink it, your will be done." 43Again he came and found them sleeping, for their eyes were heavy. 44So leaving them again, he went away and prayed for the third time, saying the same words. 45Then he came to the disciples and said to them, "Are you still sleeping and taking your rest? See, the hour is at hand, and the Son of Man is betrayed into the hands of sinners. 46Get up, let us be going. See, my betrayer is at hand."

47 While he was still speaking, Judas, one of the twelve, arrived; with him was a large crowd with swords and clubs, from the chief priests and the elders of the people. 48Now the betrayer had given them a sign, saying, "The one I will kiss is the man; arrest him." 49At once he came up to Jesus and said, "Greetings, Rabbi!" and kissed him. 50Jesus said to him, "Friend, do what you are here to do." Then they came and laid hands on Jesus and arrested him. 51Suddenly, one of those with Jesus put his hand on his sword, drew it, and struck the slave of the high priest, cutting off his ear. 52Then Jesus said to him, "Put your sword back into its place; for all who take the sword will perish by the sword. 53Do you think that I cannot appeal to my Father, and he will at once send me more than twelve legions of angels? 54 But how then would the scriptures be fulfilled, which say it must happen in this way?" 55 At that hour Jesus said to the crowds, "Have you come out with swords and clubs to arrest me as though I were a bandit? Day after day I sat in the temple teaching, and you did not arrest me. 56 But all this has taken place, so that the scriptures of the prophets may be fulfilled." Then all the disciples deserted him and fled.

57 Those who had arrested Jesus took him to Caiaphas the high priest, in whose house the scribes and the elders had gathered. 58 But Peter was following him at a distance, as far as the courtyard of the high priest; and going inside, he sat with the guards in order to see how this would end. 59 Now the chief priests and the whole council were looking for false testimony against Jesus so that they might put him to death, 60 but they found none, though many false witnesses came forward. At last two came forward 61 and said, "This fellow said, 'I am able to destroy the temple of God and to build it in three days.' " 62 The high priest stood up and said, "Have you no answer? What is it that they testify against you?" 63 But Jesus was silent. Then the high priest said to him, "I put you under oath before the living God, tell us if you are the Messiah,[q] the Son of God." 64 Jesus said to him, "You have said so. But I tell you,

From now on you will see the Son of Man

Power
and coming on the clouds of heaven."

65 Then the high priest tore his clothes and said, "He has blasphemed! Why do we still need witnesses? You have now heard his blasphemy. 66 What is your verdict?" They answered, "He deserves death." 67 Then they spat in his face and struck him; and some slapped him, 68 saying, "Prophesy to us, you Messiah![q] Who is it that struck you?"

69 Now Peter was sitting outside in the courtyard. A servant-girl came to him and said, "You also were with Jesus the Galilean." 70 But he denied it before all of them, saying, "I do not know what you are talking about." 71 When he went out to the porch, another servant-girl saw him, and she said to the bystanders, "This man was with Jesus of Nazareth."[r] 72 Again he denied it with an oath, "I do not know the man." 73 After a little while the bystanders came up and said to Peter, "Certainly you are also one of them, for your accent betrays you." 74 Then he began to curse, and he swore an oath, "I do not know the man!" At that moment the cock crowed. 75 Then Peter remembered what Jesus had said: "Before the cock crows, you will deny me three times." And he went out and wept bitterly.

27 When morning came, all the chief priests and the elders of the people conferred together against Jesus in order to bring about his death. 2 They bound him, led him away, and handed him over to Pilate the governor.

3 When Judas, his betrayer, saw that Jesus[s] was condemned, he repented and brought back the thirty pieces of silver to the chief priests and the elders. 4 He said,

"I have sinned by betraying innocent[t] blood." But they said, "What is that to us? See to it yourself." 5Throwing down the pieces of silver in the temple, he departed; and he went and hanged himself. 6But the chief priests, taking the pieces of silver, said, "It is not lawful to put them into the treasury, since they are blood money." 7After conferring together, they used them to buy the potter's field as a place to bury foreigners. 8For this reason that field has been called the Field of Blood to this day. 9Then was fulfilled what had been spoken through the prophet Jeremiah,[u] "And they took[v] the thirty pieces of silver, the price of the one on whom a price had been set,[w] on whom some of the people of Israel had set a price, 10and they gave[x] them for the potter's field, as the Lord commanded me."

11 Now Jesus stood before the governor; and the governor asked him, "Are you the King of the Jews?" Jesus said, "You say so." 12But when he was accused by the chief priests and elders, he did not answer. 13Then Pilate said to him, "Do you not hear how many accusations they make against you?" 14But he gave him no answer, not even to a single charge, so that the governor was greatly amazed.

15 Now at the festival the governor was accustomed to release a prisoner for the crowd, anyone whom they wanted. 16At that time they had a notorious prisoner, called Jesus[y] Barabbas. 17So after they had gathered, Pilate said to them, "Whom do you want me to release for you, Jesus[y] Barabbas or Jesus who is called the Messiah?"[z] 18For he realized that it was out of jealousy that they had handed him over. 19While he was sitting on the judgment seat, his wife sent word to him, "Have nothing to do with that innocent man, for today I have suffered a great deal because of a dream about him." 20Now the chief priests and the elders persuaded the crowds to ask for Barabbas and to have Jesus killed. 21The governor again said to them, "Which of the two do you want me to release for you?" And they said, "Barabbas." 22Pilate said to them, "Then what should I do with Jesus who is called the Messiah?"[z] All of them said, "Let him be crucified!" 23Then he asked, "Why, what evil has he done?" But they shouted all the more, "Let him be crucified!"

24 So when Pilate saw that he could do nothing, but rather that a riot was beginning, he took some water and washed his hands before the crowd, saying, "I am innocent of this man's blood;[a] see to it yourselves." 25Then the people as a whole answered, "His blood be on us and on our children!" 26So he released Barabbas for them; and after flogging Jesus, he handed him over to be crucified.

27 Then the soldiers of the governor took Jesus into the governor's headquarters,[b] and they gathered the whole cohort around him. 28They stripped him and put a scarlet robe on him, 29and after twisting some thorns into a crown, they put it on his head. They put a reed in his right hand and knelt before him and mocked him, saying, "Hail, King of the Jews!" 30They spat on him, and took the

32 As they went out, they came upon a man from Cyrene named Simon; they compelled this man to carry his cross. 33 And when they came to a place called Golgotha (which means Place of a Skull), 34 they offered him wine to drink, mixed with gall; but when he tasted it, he would not drink it. 35 And when they had crucified him, they divided his clothes among themselves by casting lots;[c] 36 then they sat down there and kept watch over him. 37 Over his head they put the charge against him, which read, "This is Jesus, the King of the Jews."

38 Then two bandits were crucified with him, one on his right and one on his left. 39 Those who passed by derided[d] him, shaking their heads 40 and saying, "You who would destroy the temple and build it in three days, save yourself! If you are the Son of God, come down from the cross." 41 In the same way the chief priests also, along with the scribes and elders, were mocking him, saying, 42 "He saved others; he cannot save himself.[e] He is the King of Israel; let him come down from the cross now, and we will believe in him. 43 He trusts in God; let God deliver him now, if he wants to; for he said, 'I am God's Son.'" 44 The bandits who were crucified with him also taunted him in the same way.

45 From noon on, darkness came over the whole land[f] until three in the afternoon. 46 And about three o'clock Jesus cried with a loud voice, "Eli, Eli, lema sabachthani?" that is, "My God, my God, why have you forsaken me?" 47 When some of the bystanders heard it, they said, "This man is calling for Elijah." 48 At once one of them ran and got a sponge, filled it with sour wine, put it on a stick, and gave it to him to drink. 49 But the others said, "Wait, let us see whether Elijah will come to save him."[g] 50 Then Jesus cried again with a loud voice and breathed his last.[h] 51 At that moment the curtain of the temple was torn in two, from top to bottom. The earth shook, and the rocks were split. 52 The tombs also were opened, and many bodies of the saints who had fallen asleep were raised. 53 After his resurrection they came out of the tombs and entered the holy city and appeared to many. 54 Now when the centurion and those with him, who were keeping watch over Jesus, saw the earthquake and what took place, they were terrified and said, "Truly this man was God's Son!"[i]

55 Many women were also there, looking on from a distance; they had followed Jesus from Galilee and had provided for him. 56 Among them were Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James and Joseph, and the mother of the sons of Zebedee.

57 When it was evening, there came a rich man from Arimathea, named Joseph, who was also a disciple of Jesus. 58He went to Pilate and asked for the body of Jesus; then Pilate ordered it to be given to him. 59So Joseph took the body and wrapped it in a clean linen cloth 60and laid it in his own new tomb, which he had hewn in the rock. He then rolled a great stone to the door of the tomb and went away. 61Mary Magdalene and the other Mary were there, sitting opposite the tomb.

62 The next day, that is, after the day of Preparation, the chief priests and the Pharisees gathered before Pilate 63and said, "Sir, we remember what that impostor said while he was still alive, 'After three days I will rise again.' 64Therefore command the tomb to be made secure until the third day; otherwise his disciples may go and steal him away, and tell the people, 'He has been raised from the dead,' and the last deception would be worse than the first." 65Pilate said to them, "You have a guard[j] of soldiers; go, make it as secure as you can."[k] 66So they went with the guard and made the tomb secure by sealing the stone.

28 After the sabbath, as the first day of the week was dawning, Mary Magdalene and the other Mary went to see the tomb. 2And suddenly there was a great earthquake; for an angel of the Lord, descending from heaven, came and rolled back the stone and sat on it. 3His appearance was like lightning, and his clothing white as snow. 4For fear of him the guards shook and became like dead men. 5But the angel said to the women, "Do not be afraid; I know that you are looking for Jesus who was crucified. 6He is not here; for he has been raised, as he said. Come, see the place where he[l] lay. 7Then go quickly and tell his disciples, 'He has been raised from the dead,[m] and indeed he is going ahead of you to Galilee; there you will see him.' This is my message for you." 8So they left the tomb quickly with fear and great joy, and ran to tell his disciples. 9Suddenly Jesus met them and said, "Greetings!" And they came to him, took hold of his feet, and worshiped him. 10Then Jesus said to them, "Do not be afraid; go and tell my brothers to go to Galilee; there they will see me."

11 While they were going, some of the guard went into the city and told the chief priests everything that had happened. 12After the priests[n] had assembled with the elders, they devised a plan to give a large sum of money to the soldiers, 13telling them, "You must say, 'His disciples came by night and stole him away while we were asleep.' 14If this comes to the governor's ears, we will satisfy him and keep you out of trouble." 15So they took the money and did as they were directed. And this story is still told among the Jews to this day.

16 Now the eleven disciples went to Galilee, to the mountain to which Jesus

The Gospel According to # Mark

The Gospel according to Mark is generally recognized as the earliest attempt to reduce the apostolic tradition concerning Jesus the Messiah to written form (see pp. ix–x NT). The Evangelist presents Jesus as the Son of God (1.1, 11; 5.7; 9.7; 14.61–62; 15.39) whose ministry was characterized by a succession of mighty works that, to those who had eyes to see, were signs of the presence of God's power and kingdom.

This Gospel, the shortest of the four, is largely a collection of narratives that depict Jesus as being almost constantly active; a favorite word in Mark is the Greek word meaning immediately or at once or then, which occurs about forty times in sixteen chapters. On the other hand, Mark records fewer words of Jesus than does any of the other Gospels; it contains one collection of sayings in the form of a discourse (ch 13) and a few parables (e.g. ch 4).

The main divisions are the following: 1.1–13, Opening events of Jesus' public life (John the Baptist; baptism and temptation of Jesus); 1.14–9.50, Jesus' preaching, teaching, and healing ministry in Galilee; ch 10, Journey to Jerusalem; chs 11–15, The last week, concluding with Jesus' crucifixion and burial; 16.1–8, The resurrection.

The style of the Marcan narrative is vivid and concrete, with an obvious concern for detail. The Evangelist notes, for example, the stunned reaction of the crowds (1.27f.; 2.12) and the fear and amazement of the disciples (9.6; 10.24, 32), as well as the pity, anger mingled with grief, and godly sorrow (or exasperation) experienced by Jesus (1.41; 3.5; 8.12).

In the earliest Greek manuscripts and versions (Latin, Syriac, Coptic, Armenian) the author's account breaks off suddenly with the words "for they were afraid" (16.8). Later manuscripts provide as a more suitable close for the book either a shorter or a longer ending, or sometimes both (see note r at 16.8). Whether Mark was prevented by death from completing his Gospel, or whether the original copy was accidentally mutilated, losing a portion at the close, no one can say.

Mark's ordering of the story of Jesus, beginning with the preaching of John the Baptist, preserves to some extent the form of the first Christian missionary message. The early disciples reinforced their claim that Jesus was the divinely appointed Messiah (8.29) by retelling significant moments from his days in Galilee and the last week of his life (compare Peter's account in Acts 10.34–43).

Although the Gospel is anonymous, an ancient tradition may well be correct in ascribing it to John Mark (mentioned in Acts 12.12; 15.37), who is said to have composed it at Rome as a summary of Peter's preaching (compare 1 Pet 5.13). The presence in this Gospel of several Latinisms, as well as Aramaic words and phrases (3.17; 5.41; 7.34; 14.36; 15.34) that are translated into Greek, points to a Gentile circle of readers living perhaps in Italy.

The date of writing, though uncertain, was probably prior to the fall of Jerusalem in A.D. 70. The persecution of Christians by Nero following the disastrous fire that destroyed half the city of Rome during the summer of A.D. 64 may account for the addition of the phrase "with persecutions" in 10.30 (a phrase not found in the Matthean and Lucan parallels).

For the literary genre of the gospels, see pp. viii–x NT.

1 The beginning of the good news[a] of Jesus Christ, the Son of God.[b]
2 As it is written in the prophet Isaiah,[c]
"See, I am sending my messenger ahead of you,[d]
who will prepare your way;
3 the voice of one crying out in the wilderness:
'Prepare the way of the Lord,
make his paths straight,' "
4 John the baptizer appeared[e] in the wilderness, proclaiming a baptism of repentance for the forgiveness of sins. 5 And people from the whole Judean countryside and all the people of Jerusalem were going out to him, and were baptized by him in the river Jordan, confessing their sins. 6 Now John was clothed with camel's hair, with a leather belt around his waist, and he ate locusts and wild honey. 7 He proclaimed, "The one who is more powerful than I is coming after me; I am not worthy to stoop down and untie the thong of his sandals. 8 I have baptized you with[f] water; but he will baptize you with[f] the Holy Spirit."

9 In those days Jesus came from Nazareth of Galilee and was baptized by John in the Jordan. 10 And just as he was coming up out of the water, he saw the heavens torn apart and the Spirit descending like a dove on him. 11 And a voice came from heaven, "You are my Son, the Beloved;[g] with you I am well pleased."

12 And the Spirit immediately drove him out into the wilderness. 13 He was in the wilderness forty days, tempted by Satan; and he was with the wild beasts; and the angels waited on him.

14 Now after John was arrested, Jesus came to Galilee, proclaiming the good news[a] of God, 15 and saying, "The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God has come near;[i] repent, and believe in the good news."[a]

16 As Jesus passed along the Sea of Galilee, he saw Simon and his brother Andrew casting a net into the sea—for they were fishermen. 17 And Jesus said to them, "Follow me and I will make you fish for people." 18 And immediately they left their nets and followed him. 19 As he went a little farther, he saw James son of Zebedee and his brother John, who were in their boat mending the nets. 20 Immediately he called them; and they left their father Zebedee in the boat with the hired men, and followed him.

21 They went to Capernaum; and when the sabbath came, he entered the synagogue and taught. 22They were astounded at his teaching, for he taught them as one having authority, and not as the scribes. 23Just then there was in their synagogue a man with an unclean spirit, 24and he cried out, "What have you to do with us, Jesus of Nazareth? Have you come to destroy us? I know who you are, the Holy One of God." 25But Jesus rebuked him, saying, "Be silent, and come out of him!" 26And the unclean spirit, convulsing him and crying with a loud voice, came out of him. 27They were all amazed, and they kept on asking one another, "What is this? A new teaching—with authority! He[j] commands even the unclean spirits, and they obey him." 28At once his fame began to spread throughout the surrounding region of Galilee.

29 As soon as they[k] left the synagogue, they entered the house of Simon and Andrew, with James and John. 30Now Simon's mother-in-law was in bed with a fever, and they told him about her at once. 31He came and took her by the hand and lifted her up. Then the fever left her, and she began to serve them.

32 That evening, at sundown, they brought to him all who were sick or possessed with demons. 33And the whole city was gathered around the door. 34And he cured many who were sick with various diseases, and cast out many demons; and he would not permit the demons to speak, because they knew him.

35 In the morning, while it was still very dark, he got up and went out to a deserted place, and there he prayed. 36And Simon and his companions hunted for him. 37When they found him, they said to him, "Everyone is searching for you." 38He answered, "Let us go on to the neighboring towns, so that I may proclaim the message there also; for that is what I came out to do." 39And he went throughout Galilee, proclaiming the message in their synagogues and casting out demons.

40 A leper[l] came to him begging him, and kneeling[m] he said to him, "If you choose, you can make me clean." 41Moved with pity,[n] Jesus[o] stretched out his hand and touched him, and said to him, "I do choose. Be made clean!" 42Immediately the leprosy[l] left him, and he was made clean. 43After sternly warning him he sent him away at once, 44saying to him, "See that you say nothing to anyone; but go, show yourself to the priest, and offer for your cleansing what Moses commanded, as a testimony to them." 45But he went out and began to proclaim it freely, and to spread the word, so that Jesus[o] could no longer go into a town openly, but stayed out in the country; and people came to him from every quarter.

2 When he returned to Capernaum after some days, it was reported that he was at home. 2So many gathered around that there was no longer room for them, not even in front of the door; and he was speaking the word to them.

He apparently feared that rumors of miracles would gather the curious and foster cries for help only in physical terms, thus hindering his message (v. 45).

2.1–12: Healing a paralytic (Mt 9.1–8; Lk 5.17–26). 2: The word was everything he had to say to people about God's purposes. 4: Dwelling houses in Palestine usually had a flight of stone steps built on the outside and leading to the roof, which was flat and made probably of sticks and packed earth. 7: The Jewish leaders sense in Jesus' words (v. 5) either some claim of his own or the assertion of a way of forgiveness different from that

3 Then some people[p] came, bringing to him a paralyzed man, carried by four of them. 4 And when they could not bring him to Jesus because of the crowd, they removed the roof above him; and after having dug through it, they let down the mat on which the paralytic lay. 5 When Jesus saw their faith, he said to the paralytic, "Son, your sins are forgiven." 6 Now some of the scribes were sitting there, questioning in their hearts, 7 "Why does this fellow speak in this way? It is blasphemy! Who can forgive sins but God alone?" 8 At once Jesus perceived in his spirit that they were discussing these questions among themselves; and he said to them, "Why do you raise such questions in your hearts? 9 Which is easier, to say to the paralytic, 'Your sins are forgiven,' or to say, 'Stand up and take your mat and walk'? 10 But so that you may know that the Son of Man has authority on earth to forgive sins"—he said to the paralytic— 11 "I say to you, stand up, take your mat and go to your home." 12 And he stood up, and immediately took the mat and went out before all of them; so that they were all amazed and glorified God, saying, "We have never seen anything like this!"

13 Jesus[q] went out again beside the sea; the whole crowd gathered around him, and he taught them. 14 As he was walking along, he saw Levi son of Alphaeus sitting at the tax booth, and he said to him, "Follow me." And he got up and followed him.

15 And as he sat at dinner[r] in Levi's[s] house, many tax collectors and sinners were also sitting[t] with Jesus and his disciples—for there were many who followed him. 16 When the scribes of[u] the Pharisees saw that he was eating with sinners and tax collectors, they said to his disciples, "Why does he eat[v] with tax collectors and sinners?" 17 When Jesus heard this, he said to them, "Those who are well have no need of a physician, but those who are sick; I have come to call not the righteous but sinners."

18 Now John's disciples and the Pharisees were fasting; and people[p] came and said to him, "Why do John's disciples and the disciples of the Pharisees fast, but your disciples do not fast?" 19 Jesus said to them, "The wedding guests cannot fast while the bridegroom is with them, can they? As long as they have the bridegroom with them, they cannot fast. 20 The days will come when the bridegroom is taken away from them, and then they will fast on that day.

taught by the scribes. 10: Son of Man, a title which Jesus used of himself, probably seemed to his listeners to carry either of two meanings: (a) that Jesus called himself a typical human being in accordance with the common meaning of son of (see Mt 5.45 n.); or (b) that Jesus (contrary to the humble conditions of his daily life) linked himself to the prophesied figure of Dan 7.13–14 who was popularly regarded as the coming Messiah (see Acts 7.56 n.). Jesus nowhere fully discloses his own understanding of the term (but see 8.32 n.). However, each meaning by itself, as well as both together (see Mt 25.29 n.), could have appealed to him. It was also characteristic of him to speak in such a way as to oblige his hearers to determine their own personal attitudes toward him as part of the process of understanding his words (see Mt 13.3 n.).

23 One sabbath he was going through the grainfields; and as they made their way his disciples began to pluck heads of grain. 24The Pharisees said to him, "Look, why are they doing what is not lawful on the sabbath?" 25And he said to them, "Have you never read what David did when he and his companions were hungry and in need of food? 26He entered the house of God, when Abiathar was high priest, and ate the bread of the Presence, which it is not lawful for any but the priests to eat, and he gave some to his companions." 27Then he said to them, "The sabbath was made for humankind, and not humankind for the sabbath; 28so the Son of Man is lord even of the sabbath."

3 Again he entered the synagogue, and a man was there who had a withered hand. 2They watched him to see whether he would cure him on the sabbath, so that they might accuse him. 3And he said to the man who had the withered hand, "Come forward." 4Then he said to them, "Is it lawful to do good or to do harm on the sabbath, to save life or to kill?" But they were silent. 5He looked around at them with anger; he was grieved at their hardness of heart and said to the man, "Stretch out your hand." He stretched it out, and his hand was restored. 6The Pharisees went out and immediately conspired with the Herodians against him, how to destroy him.

7 Jesus departed with his disciples to the sea, and a great multitude from Galilee followed him; 8hearing all that he was doing, they came to him in great numbers from Judea, Jerusalem, Idumea, beyond the Jordan, and the region around Tyre and Sidon. 9He told his disciples to have a boat ready for him because of the crowd, so that they would not crush him; 10for he had cured many, so that all who had diseases pressed upon him to touch him. 11Whenever the unclean spirits saw him, they fell down before him and shouted, "You are the Son of God!" 12But he sternly ordered them not to make him known.

13 He went up the mountain and called to him those whom he wanted, and they came to him. 14And he appointed twelve, whom he also named apostles,[x] to be with him, and to be sent out to proclaim the message, 15and to have authority to cast out demons. 16So he appointed the twelve:[y] Simon (to whom he gave the name Peter); 17James son of Zebedee and John the brother of James (to whom he gave the name Boanerges, that is, Sons of Thunder); 18and Andrew, and Philip, and Bartholomew, and Matthew, and Thomas, and James son of Al-

Nothing definite is known about them, but probably their interests were secular. The Pharisees sought allies wherever they might be found (12.13).

Spiritual strength came through the community he established (see 6.7–13 n.). 13: Lk 6.12. 18: This Alphaeus was apparently not identical with Levi's father (2.14). Simon the Cananaean belonged to a Jewish patriotic group also called Zealots (Lk 6.15; Acts 1.13).

phaeus, and Thaddaeus, and Simon the Cananaean, [19] and Judas Iscariot, who betrayed him.

Then he went home; [20] and the crowd came together again, so that they could not even eat. [21] When his family heard it, they went out to restrain him, for people were saying, "He has gone out of his mind." [22] And the scribes who came down from Jerusalem said, "He has Beelzebul, and by the ruler of the demons he casts out demons." [23] And he called them to him, and spoke to them in parables, "How can Satan cast out Satan? [24] If a kingdom is divided against itself, that kingdom cannot stand. [25] And if a house is divided against itself, that house will not be able to stand. [26] And if Satan has risen up against himself and is divided, he cannot stand, but his end has come. [27] But no one can enter a strong man's house and plunder his property without first tying up the strong man; then indeed the house can be plundered.

28 "Truly I tell you, people will be forgiven for their sins and whatever blasphemies they utter; [29] but whoever blasphemes against the Holy Spirit can never have forgiveness, but is guilty of an eternal sin"— [30] for they had said, "He has an unclean spirit."

31 Then his mother and his brothers came; and standing outside, they sent to him and called him. [32] A crowd was sitting around him; and they said to him, "Your mother and your brothers and sisters[z] are outside, asking for you." [33] And he replied, "Who are my mother and my brothers?" [34] And looking at those who sat around him, he said, "Here are my mother and my brothers! [35] Whoever does the will of God is my brother and sister and mother."

4 Again he began to teach beside the sea. Such a very large crowd gathered around him that he got into a boat on the sea and sat there, while the whole crowd was beside the sea on the land. [2] He began to teach them many things in parables, and in his teaching he said to them: [3] "Listen! A sower went out to sow. [4] And as he sowed, some seed fell on the path, and the birds came and ate it up. [5] Other seed fell on rocky ground, where it did not have much soil, and it sprang up quickly, since it had no depth of soil. [6] And when the sun rose, it was scorched; and since it had no root, it withered away. [7] Other seed fell among thorns, and the thorns grew up and choked it, and it yielded no grain. [8] Other seed fell into good soil and brought forth grain, growing up and increasing and yielding thirty and sixty and a hundredfold." [9] And he said, "Let anyone with ears to hear listen!"

10 When he was alone, those who were around him along with the twelve asked him about the parables. [11] And he said to them, "To you has been given the secret[a] of the kingdom of God, but for those outside, everything comes in parables; [12] in order that 'they may indeed look, but not perceive,

and may indeed listen, but not understand;
so that they may not turn again and be forgiven.' "

4.13–20: See Mt 13.18–23 n. 21: A bushel,

13 And he said to them, "Do you not understand this parable? Then how will you understand all the parables? 14 The sower sows the word. 15 These are the ones on the path where the word is sown: when they hear, Satan immediately comes and takes away the word that is sown in them. 16 And these are the ones sown on rocky ground: when they hear the word, they immediately receive it with joy. 17 But they have no root, and endure only for a while; then, when trouble or persecution arises on account of the word, immediately they fall away.[b] 18 And others are those sown among the thorns: these are the ones who hear the word, 19 but the cares of the world, and the lure of wealth, and the desire for other things come in and choke the word, and it yields nothing. 20 And these are the ones sown on the good soil: they hear the word and accept it and bear fruit, thirty and sixty and a hundredfold."

21 He said to them, "Is a lamp brought in to be put under the bushel basket, or under the bed, and not on the lampstand? 22 For there is nothing hidden, except to be disclosed; nor is anything secret, except to come to light. 23 Let anyone with ears to hear listen!" 24 And he said to them, "Pay attention to what you hear; the measure you give will be the measure you get, and still more will be given you. 25 For to those who have, more will be given; and from those who have nothing, even what they have will be taken away."

26 He also said, "The kingdom of God is as if someone would scatter seed on the ground, 27 and would sleep and rise night and day, and the seed would sprout and grow, he does not know how. 28 The earth produces of itself, first the stalk, then the head, then the full grain in the head. 29 But when the grain is ripe, at once he goes in with his sickle, because the harvest has come."

30 He also said, "With what can we compare the kingdom of God, or what parable will we use for it? 31 It is like a mustard seed, which, when sown upon the ground, is the smallest of all the seeds on earth; 32 yet when it is sown it grows up and becomes the greatest of all shrubs, and puts forth large branches, so that the birds of the air can make nests in its shade."

33 With many such parables he spoke the word to them, as they were able to hear it; 34 he did not speak to them except in parables, but he explained everything in private to his disciples.

35 On that day, when evening had come, he said to them, "Let us go across to the other side." 36 And leaving the crowd behind, they took him with them in the boat, just as he was. Other boats were with him. 37 A great windstorm arose, and the waves beat into the boat, so that the boat was already being swamped. 38 But he was in the stern, asleep on the cushion; and they woke him up and said to him, "Teacher, do you not care that we are perishing?" 39 He woke up and rebuked the wind, and said to the sea, "Peace! Be still!" Then the wind ceased, and there was a dead calm. 40 He said to them, "Why are you afraid? Have you still no faith?" 41 And they were filled with great awe and said to one another, "Who then is this, that even the wind and the sea obey him?"

5 They came to the other side of the sea, to the country of the Gerasenes.[c] 2And when he had stepped out of the boat, immediately a man out of the tombs with an unclean spirit met him. 3He lived among the tombs; and no one could restrain him any more, even with a chain; 4for he had often been restrained with shackles and chains, but the chains he wrenched apart, and the shackles he broke in pieces; and no one had the strength to subdue him. 5Night and day among the tombs and on the mountains he was always howling and bruising himself with stones. 6When he saw Jesus from a distance, he ran and bowed down before him; 7and he shouted at the top of his voice, "What have you to do with me, Jesus, Son of the Most High God? I adjure you by God, do not torment me." 8For he had said to him, "Come out of the man, you unclean spirit!" 9Then Jesus[d] asked him, "What is your name?" He replied, "My name is Legion; for we are many." 10He begged him earnestly not to send them out of the country. 11Now there on the hillside a great herd of swine was feeding; 12and the unclean spirits[e] begged him, "Send us into the swine; let us enter them." 13So he gave them permission. And the unclean spirits came out and entered the swine; and the herd, numbering about two thousand, rushed down the steep bank into the sea, and were drowned in the sea.

14 The swineherds ran off and told it in the city and in the country. Then people came to see what it was that had happened. 15They came to Jesus and saw the demoniac sitting there, clothed and in his right mind, the very man who had had the legion; and they were afraid. 16Those who had seen what had happened to the demoniac and to the swine reported it. 17Then they began to beg Jesus[f] to leave their neighborhood. 18As he was getting into the boat, the man who had been possessed by demons begged him that he might be with him. 19But Jesus[d] refused, and said to him, "Go home to your friends, and tell them how much the Lord has done for you, and what mercy he has shown you." 20And he went away and began to proclaim in the Decapolis how much Jesus had done for him; and everyone was amazed.

21 When Jesus had crossed again in the boat[g] to the other side, a great crowd gathered around him; and he was by the sea. 22Then one of the leaders of the synagogue named Jairus came and, when he saw him, fell at his feet 23and begged him repeatedly, "My little daughter is at the point of death. Come and lay your hands on her, so that she may be made well, and live." 24So he went with him.

And a large crowd followed him and pressed in on him. 25Now there was a woman who had been suffering from hemorrhages for twelve years. 26She had endured much under many physicians, and had spent all that she had; and she was no better, but rather grew worse. 27She had heard about Jesus, and came up behind him in the crowd and touched his cloak, 28for she said, "If I but touch his clothes, I will be made well." 29Immedi-

ately her hemorrhage stopped; and she felt in her body that she was healed of her disease. 30 Immediately aware that power had gone forth from him, Jesus turned about in the crowd and said, "Who touched my clothes?" 31 And his disciples said to him, "You see the crowd pressing in on you; how can you say, 'Who touched me?' " 32 He looked all around to see who had done it. 33 But the woman, knowing what had happened to her, came in fear and trembling, fell down before him, and told him the whole truth. 34 He said to her, "Daughter, your faith has made you well; go in peace, and be healed of your disease."

35 While he was still speaking, some people came from the leader's house to say, "Your daughter is dead. Why trouble the teacher any further?" 36 But overhearing[h] what they said, Jesus said to the leader of the synagogue, "Do not fear, only believe." 37 He allowed no one to follow him except Peter, James, and John, the brother of James. 38 When they came to the house of the leader of the synagogue, he saw a commotion, people weeping and wailing loudly. 39 When he had entered, he said to them, "Why do you make a commotion and weep? The child is not dead but sleeping." 40 And they laughed at him. Then he put them all outside, and took the child's father and mother and those who were with him, and went in where the child was. 41 He took her by the hand and said to her, "Talitha cum," which means, "Little girl, get up!" 42 And immediately the girl got up and began to walk about (she was twelve years of age). At this they were overcome with amazement. 43 He strictly ordered them that no one should know this, and told them to give her something to eat.

6 He left that place and came to his hometown, and his disciples followed him. 2 On the sabbath he began to teach in the synagogue, and many who heard him were astounded. They said, "Where did this man get all this? What is this wisdom that has been given to him? What deeds of power are being done by his hands! 3 Is not this the carpenter, the son of Mary[i] and brother of James and Joses and Judas and Simon, and are not his sisters here with us?" And they took offense[j] at him. 4 Then Jesus said to them, "Prophets are not without honor, except in their hometown, and among their own kin, and in their own house." 5 And he could do no deed of power there, except that he laid his hands on a few sick people and cured them. 6 And he was amazed at their unbelief.

Then he went about among the villages teaching. 7 He called the twelve and began to send them out two by two, and gave them authority over the unclean spirits. 8 He ordered them to take nothing for their journey except a staff; no bread, no bag, no money in their belts; 9 but to wear sandals and not to put on two tunics. 10 He said to them, "Wherever you enter a house, stay there until you leave the place. 11 If any place will not welcome you and they refuse to hear you, as you leave, shake off the dust that is on your feet as a testimony against them." 12 So they went out and proclaimed that all should repent. 13 They cast out many demons, and anointed with oil many who were sick and cured them.

name had become known. Some were[l] saying, "John the baptizer has been raised from the dead; and for this reason these powers are at work in him." [15]But others said, "It is Elijah." And others said, "It is a prophet, like one of the prophets of old." [16]But when Herod heard of it, he said, "John, whom I beheaded, has been raised."

17 For Herod himself had sent men who arrested John, bound him, and put him in prison on account of Herodias, his brother Philip's wife, because Herod[m] had married her. [18]For John had been telling Herod, "It is not lawful for you to have your brother's wife." [19]And Herodias had a grudge against him, and wanted to kill him. But she could not, [20]for Herod feared John, knowing that he was a righteous and holy man, and he protected him. When he heard him, he was greatly perplexed;[n] and yet he liked to listen to him. [21]But an opportunity came when Herod on his birthday gave a banquet for his courtiers and officers and for the leaders of Galilee. [22]When his daughter Herodias[o] came in and danced, she pleased Herod and his guests; and the king said to the girl, "Ask me for whatever you wish, and I will give it." [23]And he solemnly swore to her, "Whatever you ask me, I will give you, even half of my kingdom." [24]She went out and said to her mother, "What should I ask for?" She replied, "The head of John the baptizer." [25]Immediately she rushed back to the king and requested, "I want you to give me at once the head of John the Baptist on a platter." [26]The king was deeply grieved; yet out of regard for his oaths and for the guests, he did not want to refuse her. [27]Immediately the king sent a soldier of the guard with orders to bring John's[p] head. He went and beheaded him in the prison, [28]brought his head on a platter, and gave it to the girl. Then the girl gave it to her mother. [29]When his disciples heard about it, they came and took his body, and laid it in a tomb.

30 The apostles gathered around Jesus, and told him all that they had done and taught. [31]He said to them, "Come away to a deserted place all by yourselves and rest a while." For many were coming and going, and they had no leisure even to eat. [32]And they went away in the boat to a deserted place by themselves. [33]Now many saw them going and recognized them, and they hurried there on foot from all the towns and arrived ahead of them. [34]As he went ashore, he saw a great crowd; and he had compassion for them, because they were like sheep without a shepherd; and he began to teach them many things. [35]When it grew late, his disciples came to him and said, "This is a deserted place, and the hour is now very late; [36]send them away so that they may go into the surrounding country and villages and buy something for themselves to eat." [37]But he answered them, "You give them something to eat." They said to him, "Are we to go and buy two hundred denarii[q] worth of bread, and give it to them to eat?" [38]And he said to them, "How many loaves have you? Go and see." When they had found out, they said, "Five, and two fish." [39]Then he ordered them to get all the people to sit down in groups on the green grass. [40]So they sat down in groups of hundreds and of fifties. [41]Taking the five loaves and the two fish, he looked up to heaven, and blessed and broke the loaves, and gave them to his disciples to set before the people; and he divided the two fish among them all. 42And all ate and were filled; 43and they took up twelve baskets full of broken pieces and of the fish. 44Those who had eaten the loaves numbered five thousand men.

45 Immediately he made his disciples get into the boat and go on ahead to the other side, to Bethsaida, while he dismissed the crowd. 46After saying farewell to them, he went up on the mountain to pray.

47 When evening came, the boat was out on the sea, and he was alone on the land. 48When he saw that they were straining at the oars against an adverse wind, he came towards them early in the morning, walking on the sea. He intended to pass them by. 49But when they saw him walking on the sea, they thought it was a ghost and cried out; 50for they all saw him and were terrified. But immediately he spoke to them and said, "Take heart, it is I; do not be afraid." 51Then he got into the boat with them and the wind ceased. And they were utterly astounded, 52for they did not understand about the loaves, but their hearts were hardened.

53 When they had crossed over, they came to land at Gennesaret and moored the boat. 54When they got out of the boat, people at once recognized him, 55and rushed about that whole region and began to bring the sick on mats to wherever they heard he was. 56And wherever he went, into villages or cities or farms, they laid the sick in the marketplaces, and begged him that they might touch even the fringe of his cloak; and all who touched it were healed.

7 Now when the Pharisees and some of the scribes who had come from Jerusalem gathered around him, 2they noticed that some of his disciples were eating with defiled hands, that is, without washing them. 3(For the Pharisees, and all the Jews, do not eat unless they thoroughly wash their hands,[r] thus observing the tradition of the elders; 4and they do not eat anything from the market unless they wash it;[s] and there are also many other traditions that they observe, the washing of cups, pots, and bronze kettles.[t]) 5So the Pharisees and the scribes asked him, "Why do your disciples not live[u] according to the tradition of the elders, but eat with defiled hands?" 6He said to them, "Isaiah prophesied rightly about you hypocrites, as it is written,

8 You abandon the commandment of God and hold to human tradition."

9 Then he said to them, "You have a fine way of rejecting the commandment of God in order to keep your tradition! 10 For Moses said, 'Honor your father and your mother'; and, 'Whoever speaks evil of father or mother must surely die.' 11 But you say that if anyone tells father or mother, 'Whatever support you might have had from me is Corban' (that is, an offering to God[v])— 12 then you no longer permit doing anything for a father or mother, 13 thus making void the word of God through your tradition that you have handed on. And you do many things like this."

14 Then he called the crowd again and said to them, "Listen to me, all of you, and understand: 15 there is nothing outside a person that by going in can defile, but the things that come out are what defile."[w]

17 When he had left the crowd and entered the house, his disciples asked him about the parable. 18 He said to them, "Then do you also fail to understand? Do you not see that whatever goes into a person from outside cannot defile, 19 since it enters, not the heart but the stomach, and goes out into the sewer?" (Thus he declared all foods clean.) 20 And he said, "It is what comes out of a person that defiles. 21 For it is from within, from the human heart, that evil intentions come: fornication, theft, murder, 22 adultery, avarice, wickedness, deceit, licentiousness, envy, slander, pride, folly. 23 All these evil things come from within, and they defile a person."

24 From there he set out and went away to the region of Tyre.[x] He entered a house and did not want anyone to know he was there. Yet he could not escape notice, 25 but a woman whose little daughter had an unclean spirit immediately heard about him, and she came and bowed down at his feet. 26 Now the woman was a Gentile, of Syrophoenician origin. She begged him to cast the demon out of her daughter. 27 He said to her, "Let the children be fed first, for it is not fair to take the children's food and throw it to the dogs." 28 But she answered him, "Sir,[y] even the dogs under the table eat the children's crumbs." 29 Then he said to her, "For saying that, you may go—the demon has left your daughter." 30 So she went home, found the child lying on the bed, and the demon gone.

31 Then he returned from the region of Tyre, and went by way of Sidon towards the Sea of Galilee, in the region of the Decapolis. 32 They brought to him a deaf man who had an impediment in his speech; and they begged him to lay his hand on him. 33 He took him aside in private, away from the crowd, and put his fingers into his ears, and he spat and touched his tongue. 34 Then looking up to heaven, he sighed and said to him, "Ephphatha," that is, "Be opened." 35 And immediately his ears were opened, his tongue was released, and he spoke plainly. 36 Then Jesus[z] ordered them to tell no one; but the more he ordered them, the more zealously they proclaimed it. 37 They were astounded beyond measure, saying, "He has done everything well; he even makes the deaf to hear and the mute to speak."

8 In those days when there was again a great crowd without anything to eat, he called his disciples and said to them, 2"I have compassion for the crowd, because they have been with me now for three days and have nothing to eat. 3If I send them away hungry to their homes, they will faint on the way—and some of them have come from a great distance." 4His disciples replied, "How can one feed these people with bread here in the desert?" 5He asked them, "How many loaves do you have?" They said, "Seven." 6Then he ordered the crowd to sit down on the ground; and he took the seven loaves, and after giving thanks he broke them and gave them to his disciples to distribute; and they distributed them to the crowd. 7They had also a few small fish; and after blessing them, he ordered that these too should be distributed. 8They ate and were filled; and they took up the broken pieces left over, seven baskets full. 9Now there were about four thousand people. And he sent them away. 10And immediately he got into the boat with his disciples and went to the district of Dalmanutha.[a]

11 The Pharisees came and began to argue with him, asking him for a sign from heaven, to test him. 12And he sighed deeply in his spirit and said, "Why does this generation ask for a sign? Truly I tell you, no sign will be given to this generation." 13And he left them, and getting into the boat again, he went across to the other side.

14 Now the disciples[b] had forgotten to bring any bread; and they had only one loaf with them in the boat. 15And he cautioned them, saying, "Watch out—beware of the yeast of the Pharisees and the yeast of Herod."[c] 16They said to one another, "It is because we have no bread." 17And becoming aware of it, Jesus said to them, "Why are you talking about having no bread? Do you still not perceive or understand? Are your hearts hardened? 18Do you have eyes, and fail to see? Do you have ears, and fail to hear? And do you not remember? 19When I broke the five loaves for the five thousand, how many baskets full of broken pieces did you collect?" They said to him, "Twelve." 20"And the seven for the four thousand, how many baskets full of broken pieces did you collect?" And they said to him, "Seven." 21Then he said to them, "Do you not yet understand?"

22 They came to Bethsaida. Some people[d] brought a blind man to him and begged him to touch him. 23He took the blind man by the hand and led him out of the village; and when he had put saliva on his eyes and laid his hands on him, he asked him, "Can you see anything?" 24And the man[e] looked up and said, "I can see people, but they look like trees, walking." 25Then Jesus[e] laid his hands on his eyes again; and he looked intently and his sight was restored, and he saw everything clearly. 26Then he sent him away to his home, saying, "Do not even go into the village."[f]

Peter answered him, "You are the Messiah."[g] 30And he sternly ordered them not to tell anyone about him.

31 Then he began to teach them that the Son of Man must undergo great suffering, and be rejected by the elders, the chief priests, and the scribes, and be killed, and after three days rise again. 32He said all this quite openly. And Peter took him aside and began to rebuke him. 33But turning and looking at his disciples, he rebuked Peter and said, "Get behind me, Satan! For you are setting your mind not on divine things but on human things."

34 He called the crowd with his disciples, and said to them, "If any want to become my followers, let them deny themselves and take up their cross and follow me. 35For those who want to save their life will lose it, and those who lose their life for my sake, and for the sake of the gospel,[h] will save it. 36For what will it profit them to gain the whole world and forfeit their life? 37Indeed, what can they give in return for their life? 38Those who are ashamed of me and of my words[i] in this adulterous and sinful generation, of them the Son of Man will also be ashamed when he comes in the glory of his Father with the holy angels."

mountain, he ordered them to tell no one about what they had seen, until after the Son of Man had risen from the dead. 10 So they kept the matter to themselves, questioning what this rising from the dead could mean. 11 Then they asked him, "Why do the scribes say that Elijah must come first?" 12 He said to them, "Elijah is indeed coming first to restore all things. How then is it written about the Son of Man, that he is to go through many sufferings and be treated with contempt? 13 But I tell you that Elijah has come, and they did to him whatever they pleased, as it is written about him."

14 When they came to the disciples, they saw a great crowd around them, and some scribes arguing with them. 15 When the whole crowd saw him, they were immediately overcome with awe, and they ran forward to greet him. 16 He asked them, "What are you arguing about with them?" 17 Someone from the crowd answered him, "Teacher, I brought you my son; he has a spirit that makes him unable to speak; 18 and whenever it seizes him, it dashes him down; and he foams and grinds his teeth and becomes rigid; and I asked your disciples to cast it out, but they could not do so." 19 He answered them, "You faithless generation, how much longer must I be among you? How much longer must I put up with you? Bring him to me." 20 And they brought the boy[n] to him. When the spirit saw him, immediately it convulsed the boy,[n] and he fell on the ground and rolled about, foaming at the mouth. 21 Jesus[o] asked the father, "How long has this been happening to him?" And he said, "From childhood. 22 It has often cast him into the fire and into the water, to destroy him; but if you are able to do anything, have pity on us and help us." 23 Jesus said to him, "If you are able!—All things can be done for the one who believes." 24 Immediately the father of the child cried out,[p] "I believe; help my unbelief!" 25 When Jesus saw that a crowd came running together, he rebuked the unclean spirit, saying to it, "You spirit that keeps this boy from speaking and hearing, I command you, come out of him, and never enter him again!" 26 After crying out and convulsing him terribly, it came out, and the boy was like a corpse, so that most of them said, "He is dead." 27 But Jesus took him by the hand and lifted him up, and he was able to stand. 28 When he had entered the house, his disciples asked him privately, "Why could we not cast it out?" 29 He said to them, "This kind can come out only through prayer."[q]

30 They went on from there and passed through Galilee. He did not want anyone to know it; 31 for he was teaching his disciples, saying to them, "The Son of Man is to be betrayed into human hands, and they will kill him, and three days after being killed, he will rise again." 32 But they did not understand what he was saying and were afraid to ask him.

10 Then in the house the disciples asked him again about this matter. 11He said to them, "Whoever divorces his wife and marries another commits adultery against her; 12and if she divorces her husband and marries another, she commits adultery."

13 People were bringing little children to him in order that he might touch them; and the disciples spoke sternly to them. 14But when Jesus saw this, he was indignant and said to them, "Let the little children come to me; do not stop them; for it is to such as these that the kingdom of God belongs. 15Truly I tell you, whoever does not receive the kingdom of God as a little child will never enter it." 16And he took them up in his arms, laid his hands on them, and blessed them.

17 As he was setting out on a journey, a man ran up and knelt before him, and asked him, "Good Teacher, what must I do to inherit eternal life?" 18Jesus said to him, "Why do you call me good? No one is good but God alone. 19You know the commandments: 'You shall not murder; You shall not commit adultery; You shall not steal; You shall not bear false witness; You shall not defraud; Honor your father and mother.' " 20He said to him, "Teacher, I have kept all these since my youth." 21Jesus, looking at him, loved him and said, "You lack one thing; go, sell what you own, and give the money[z] to the poor, and you will have treasure in heaven; then come, follow me." 22When he heard this, he was shocked and went away grieving, for he had many possessions.

23 Then Jesus looked around and said to his disciples, "How hard it will be for those who have wealth to enter the kingdom of God!" 24And the disciples were perplexed at these words. But Jesus said to them again, "Children, how hard it is[a] to enter the kingdom of God! 25It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for someone who is rich to enter the kingdom of God." 26They were greatly astounded and said to one another,[b] "Then who can be saved?" 27Jesus looked at them and said, "For mortals it is impossible, but not for God; for God all things are possible."

28 Peter began to say to him, "Look, we have left everything and followed you." 29Jesus said, "Truly I tell you, there is no one who has left house or brothers or sisters or mother or father or children or fields, for my sake and for the sake of the good news,[c] 30who will not receive a hundredfold now in this age—houses, brothers and sisters, mothers and children, and fields, with persecutions—and in the age to come eternal life. 31But many who are first will be last, and the last will be first."

32 They were on the road, going up to Jerusalem, and Jesus was walking ahead of them; they were amazed, and those who followed were afraid. He took the twelve aside again and began to tell them what was to happen to him, 33saying, "See, we are going up to Jerusalem, and the Son of Man will be handed over to the chief priests and the scribes, and they will condemn him to death; then they will hand him over to the Gentiles; 34they will mock him, and spit upon him, and flog him, and kill him; and after three days he will rise again."

35 James and John, the sons of Zebedee, came forward to him and said to him, "Teacher, we want you to do for us whatever we ask of you." 36And he said to them, "What is it you want me to do for you?" 37And they said to him, "Grant us to sit, one at your right hand and one at your left, in your glory." 38But Jesus said to them, "You do not know what you are asking. Are you able to drink the cup that I drink, or be baptized with the baptism that I am baptized with?" 39They replied, "We are able." Then Jesus said to them, "The cup that I drink you will drink; and with the baptism with which I am baptized, you will be baptized; 40but to sit at my right hand or at my left is not mine to grant, but it is for those for whom it has been prepared."

41 When the ten heard this, they began to be angry with James and John. 42So Jesus called them and said to them, "You know that among the Gentiles those whom they recognize as their rulers lord it over them, and their great ones are tyrants over them. 43But it is not so among you; but whoever wishes to become great among you must be your servant, 44and whoever wishes to be first among you must be slave of all. 45For the Son of Man came not to be served but to serve, and to give his life a ransom for many."

46 They came to Jericho. As he and his disciples and a large crowd were leaving Jericho, Bartimaeus son of Timaeus, a blind beggar, was sitting by the roadside. 47When he heard that it was Jesus of Nazareth, he began to shout out and say, "Jesus, Son of David, have mercy on me!" 48Many sternly ordered him to be quiet, but he cried out even more loudly, "Son of David, have mercy on me!" 49Jesus stood still and said, "Call him here." And they called the blind man, saying to him, "Take heart; get up, he is calling you." 50So throwing off his cloak, he sprang up and came to Jesus. 51Then Jesus said to him, "What do you want me to do for you?" The blind man said to him, "My teacher,[d] let me see again." 52Jesus said to him, "Go; your faith has made you well." Immediately he regained his sight and followed him on the way.

11 When they were approaching Jerusalem, at Bethphage and Bethany, near the Mount of Olives, he sent two of his disciples 2and said to them, "Go into the village ahead of you, and immediately as you enter it, you will find tied there a colt that has never been ridden; untie it and bring it. 3If anyone says to you, 'Why are you doing this?' just say this, 'The Lord needs it and will send it back here immediately.' " 4They went away and found a colt tied near a door, outside in the street. As they were untying it, 5some of the bystanders said to them, "What are you doing, untying the colt?" 6They told them what Jesus had said; and they allowed them to take it. 7Then they brought the colt to Jesus and threw their cloaks on it; and he sat on it. 8Many people spread their cloaks on the road, and others spread leafy branches that they had cut in the fields. 9Then those who went ahead and those who followed were shouting,

"Hosanna!
Blessed is the one who comes in the name of the Lord!
10 Blessed is the coming kingdom of our ancestor David!
Hosanna in the highest heaven!"

11 Then he entered Jerusalem and went into the temple; and when he had looked around at everything, as it was already late, he went out to Bethany with the twelve.

12 On the following day, when they came from Bethany, he was hungry. 13Seeing in the distance a fig tree in leaf, he went to see whether perhaps he would find anything on it. When he came to it, he found nothing but leaves, for it was not the season for figs. 14He said to it, "May no one ever eat fruit from you again." And his disciples heard it.

15 Then they came to Jerusalem. And he entered the temple and began to drive out those who were selling and those who were buying in the temple, and he overturned the tables of the money changers and the seats of those who sold doves; 16and he would not allow anyone to carry anything through the temple. 17He was teaching and saying, "Is it not written,

'My house shall be called a house of prayer for all the nations'?
But you have made it a den
of robbers."

18And when the chief priests and the scribes heard it, they kept looking for a way to kill him; for they were afraid of him, because the whole crowd was spellbound by his teaching. 19And when evening came, Jesus and his disciples[e] went out of the city.

20 In the morning as they passed by, they saw the fig tree withered away to its roots. 21Then Peter remembered and said to him, "Rabbi, look! The fig tree that you cursed has withered." 22Jesus answered them, "Have[f] faith in God. 23Truly I tell you, if you say to this mountain, 'Be taken up and thrown into the sea,' and if you do not doubt in your heart, but believe that what you say will come to pass, it will be done for you. 24So I tell you, whatever you ask for in prayer, believe that you have received[g] it, and it will be yours.

anyone; so that your Father in heaven may also forgive you your trespasses."[h]

27 Again they came to Jerusalem. As he was walking in the temple, the chief priests, the scribes, and the elders came to him [28]and said, "By what authority are you doing these things? Who gave you this authority to do them?" [29]Jesus said to them, "I will ask you one question; answer me, and I will tell you by what authority I do these things. [30]Did the baptism of John come from heaven, or was it of human origin? Answer me." [31]They argued with one another, "If we say, 'From heaven,' he will say, 'Why then did you not believe him?' [32]But shall we say, 'Of human origin'?"—they were afraid of the crowd, for all regarded John as truly a prophet. [33]So they answered Jesus, "We do not know." And Jesus said to them, "Neither will I tell you by what authority I am doing these things."

12 Then he began to speak to them in parables. "A man planted a vineyard, put a fence around it, dug a pit for the wine press, and built a watchtower; then he leased it to tenants and went to another country. [2]When the season came, he sent a slave to the tenants to collect from them his share of the produce of the vineyard. [3]But they seized him, and beat him, and sent him away empty-handed. [4]And again he sent another slave to them; this one they beat over the head and insulted. [5]Then he sent another, and that one they killed. And so it was with many others; some they beat, and others they killed. [6]He had still one other, a beloved son. Finally he sent him to them, saying, 'They will respect my son.' [7]But those tenants said to one another, 'This is the heir; come, let us kill him, and the inheritance will be ours.' [8]So they seized him, killed him, and threw him out of the vineyard. [9]What then will the owner of the vineyard do? He will come and destroy the tenants and give the vineyard to others. [10]Have you not read this scripture:

'The stone that the builders rejected
has become the cornerstone;[i] [11] this was the Lord's doing, and it is amazing in our eyes'?"

12 When they realized that he had told this parable against them, they wanted to arrest him, but they feared the crowd. So they left him and went away.

13 Then they sent to him some Pharisees and some Herodians to trap him in what he said. [14]And they came and said to him, "Teacher, we know that you are sincere, and show deference to no one; for you do not regard people with partiality, but teach the way of God in accordance with truth. Is it lawful to pay taxes to the emperor, or not? [15]Should we pay them, or should we not?" But knowing their hypocrisy, he said to them, "Why are you putting me to the test? Bring me a denarius and let me see it." [16]And they brought one. Then he said to them, "Whose head is this, and whose title?" They answered, "The emperor's." [17]Jesus said to them, "Give to the emperor the things that are the emperor's, and to God the things that are God's." And they were utterly amazed at him.

18 Some Sadducees, who say there is no resurrection, came to him and asked him a question, saying, [19]"Teacher, Moses wrote for us that if a man's brother dies, leaving a wife but no child, the Last of all the woman herself died. 23In the resurrection[k] whose wife will she be? For the seven had married her."

24 Jesus said to them, "Is not this the reason you are wrong, that you know neither the scriptures nor the power of God? 25For when they rise from the dead, they neither marry nor are given in marriage, but are like angels in heaven. 26And as for the dead being raised, have you not read in the book of Moses, in the story about the bush, how God said to him, 'I am the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob'? 27He is God not of the dead, but of the living; you are quite wrong."

28 One of the scribes came near and heard them disputing with one another, and seeing that he answered them well, he asked him, "Which commandment is the first of all?" 29Jesus answered, "The first is, 'Hear, O Israel: the Lord our God, the Lord is one; 30you shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, and with all your soul, and with all your mind, and with all your strength.' 31The second is this, 'You shall love your neighbor as yourself.' There is no other commandment greater than these." 32Then the scribe said to him, "You are right, Teacher; you have truly said that 'he is one, and besides him there is no other'; 33and 'to love him with all the heart, and with all the understanding, and with all the strength,' and 'to love one's neighbor as oneself,'—this is much more important than all whole burnt offerings and sacrifices." 34When Jesus saw that he answered wisely, he said to him, "You are not far from the kingdom of God." After that no one dared to ask him any question.

35 While Jesus was teaching in the temple, he said, "How can the scribes say that the Messiah[l] is the son of David? 36David himself, by the Holy Spirit, declared,

'The Lord said to my Lord,
"Sit at my right hand,
until I put your enemies under
your feet." '

37David himself calls him Lord; so how can he be his son?" And the large crowd was listening to him with delight.

38 As he taught, he said, "Beware of the scribes, who like to walk around in long robes, and to be greeted with respect in the marketplaces, 39and to have the best seats in the synagogues and places of honor at banquets! 40They devour widows' houses and for the sake of appearance say long prayers. They will receive the greater condemnation."

41 He sat down opposite the treasury, and watched the crowd putting money into the treasury. Many rich people put in large sums. 42A poor widow came and put in two small copper coins, which are worth a penny. 43Then he called his disciples and said to them, "Truly I tell you, this poor widow has put in more than all

3 When he was sitting on the Mount of Olives opposite the temple, Peter, James, John, and Andrew asked him privately, 4"Tell us, when will this be, and what will be the sign that all these things are about to be accomplished?" 5Then Jesus began to say to them, "Beware that no one leads you astray. 6Many will come in my name and say, 'I am he!'[m] and they will lead many astray. 7When you hear of wars and rumors of wars, do not be alarmed; this must take place, but the end is still to come. 8For nation will rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom; there will be earthquakes in various places; there will be famines. This is but the beginning of the birth pangs.

9 "As for yourselves, beware; for they will hand you over to councils; and you will be beaten in synagogues; and you will stand before governors and kings because of me, as a testimony to them. 10And the good news[n] must first be proclaimed to all nations. 11When they bring you to trial and hand you over, do not worry beforehand about what you are to say; but say whatever is given you at that time, for it is not you who speak, but the Holy Spirit. 12Brother will betray brother to death, and a father his child, and children will rise against parents and have them put to death; 13and you will be hated by all because of my name. Here is the Messiah!'[o] or 'Look! There he is!'—do not believe it. 22False messiahs[p] and false prophets will appear and produce signs and omens, to lead astray, if possible, the elect. 23But be alert; I have already told you everything.

24 "But in those days, after that suffering,

the sun will be darkened,

And they scolded her. 6But Jesus said, "Let her alone; why do you trouble her? She has performed a good service for me. 7For you always have the poor with you, and you can show kindness to them whenever you wish; but you will not always have me. 8She has done what she could; she has anointed my body beforehand for its burial. 9Truly I tell you, wherever the good news[v] is proclaimed in the whole world, what she has done will be told in remembrance of her."

10 Then Judas Iscariot, who was one of the twelve, went to the chief priests in order to betray him to them. 11When they heard it, they were greatly pleased, and promised to give him money. So he began to look for an opportunity to betray him.

12 On the first day of Unleavened Bread, when the Passover lamb is sacrificed, his disciples said to him, "Where do you want us to go and make the preparations for you to eat the Passover?" 13So he sent two of his disciples, saying to them, "Go into the city, and a man

Make preparations for us there." 16So the disciples set out and went to the city, and found everything as he had told them; and they prepared the Passover meal.

17 When it was evening, he came with the twelve. 18And when they had taken their places and were eating, Jesus said, "Truly I tell you, one of you will betray me, one who is eating with me." 19They began to be distressed and to say to him one after another, "Surely, not I?" 20He said to them, "It is one of the twelve, one who is dipping bread[w] into the bowl[x] with me. 21For the Son of Man goes as it is written of him, but woe to that one by whom the Son of Man is betrayed! It would have been better for that one not to have been born."

22 While they were eating, he took a loaf of bread, and after blessing it he broke it, gave it to them, and said, "Take; this is my body." 23Then he took a cup, and after giving thanks he gave it to them, and all of them drank from it. 24He said to them, "This is my blood of the[y] covenant, which is poured out for many. 25Truly I tell you, I will never again drink of the fruit of the vine until that day when I drink it new in the kingdom of God."

26 When they had sung the hymn, they went out to the Mount of Olives. 27And Jesus said to them, "You will all become deserters; for it is written,

'I will strike the shepherd,
and the sheep will be scattered.'

28But after I am raised up, I will go before you to Galilee." 29Peter said to him, "Even though all become deserters, I will not." 30Jesus said to him, "Truly I tell you, this day, this very night, before the cock crows twice, you will deny me three times." 31But he said vehemently, "Even though I must die with you, I will not deny you." And all of them said the same.

32 They went to a place called Gethsemane; and he said to his disciples, "Sit here while I pray." 33He took with him Peter and James and John, and began to be distressed and agitated. 34And he said to them, "I am deeply grieved, even to death; remain here, and keep awake." 35And going a little farther, he threw himself on the ground and prayed that, if it were possible, the hour might pass from him. 36He said, "Abba,[z] Father, for you all things are possible; remove this cup from me; yet, not what I want, but what you want." 37He came and found them sleeping; and he said to Peter, "Simon, are you asleep? Could you not keep awake one hour? 38Keep awake and pray that you may not come into the time of trial;[a] the spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak." 39And again he went away and prayed, saying the same words. 40And once more he came and found them sleeping, for their eyes were very heavy; and they did not know what to say to him. 41 He came a third time and said to them, "Are you still sleeping and taking your rest? Enough! The hour has come; the Son of Man is betrayed into the hands of sinners. 42 Get up, let us be going. See, my betrayer is at hand."

43 Immediately, while he was still speaking, Judas, one of the twelve, arrived; and with him there was a crowd with swords and clubs, from the chief priests, the scribes, and the elders. 44 Now the betrayer had given them a sign, saying, "The one I will kiss is the man; arrest him and lead him away under guard." 45 So when he came, he went up to him at once and said, "Rabbi!" and kissed him. 46 Then they laid hands on him and arrested him. 47 But one of those who stood near drew his sword and struck the slave of the high priest, cutting off his ear. 48 Then Jesus said to them, "Have you come out with swords and clubs to arrest me as though I were a bandit? 49 Day after day I was with you in the temple teaching, and you did not arrest me. But let the scriptures be fulfilled." 50 All of them deserted him and fled.

51 A certain young man was following him, wearing nothing but a linen cloth. They caught hold of him, 52 but he left the linen cloth and ran off naked.

53 They took Jesus to the high priest; and all the chief priests, the elders, and the scribes were assembled. 54 Peter had followed him at a distance, right into the courtyard of the high priest; and he was sitting with the guards, warming himself at the fire. 55 Now the chief priests and the whole council were looking for testimony against Jesus to put him to death; but they found none. 56 For many gave false testimony against him, and their testimony did not agree. 57 Some stood up and gave false testimony against him, saying, 58 "We heard him say, 'I will destroy this temple that is made with hands, and in three days I will build another, not made with hands.' " 59 But even on this point their testimony did not agree. 60 Then the high priest stood up before them and asked Jesus, "Have you no answer? What is it that they testify against you?" 61 But he was silent and did not answer. Again the high priest asked him, "Are you the Messiah, [b] the Son of the Blessed One?" 62 Jesus said, "I am; and

63 Then the high priest tore his clothes and said, "Why do we still need witnesses? 64 You have heard his blasphemy! What is your decision?" All of them condemned him as deserving death. 65 Some began to spit on him, to blindfold him, and to strike him, saying to him, "Prophesy!" The guards also took him over and beat him.

66 While Peter was below in the courtyard, one of the servant-girls of the high priest came by. 67 When she saw Peter warming himself, she stared at him and said, "You also were with Jesus, the man from Nazareth." 68But he denied it, saying, "I do not know or understand what you are talking about." And he went out into the forecourt.[c] Then the cock crowed.[d] 69And the servant-girl, on seeing him, began again to say to the bystanders, "This man is one of them." 70But again he denied it. Then after a little while the bystanders again said to Peter, "Certainly you are one of them; for you are a Galilean." 71But he began to curse, and he swore an oath, "I do not know this man you are talking about." 72At that moment the cock crowed for the second time. Then Peter remembered that Jesus had said to him, "Before the cock crows twice, you will deny me three times." And he broke down and wept.

15 As soon as it was morning, the chief priests held a consultation with the elders and scribes and the whole council. They bound Jesus, led him away, and handed him over to Pilate. 2Pilate asked him, "Are you the King of the Jews?" He answered him, "You say so." 3Then the chief priests accused him of many things. 4Pilate asked him again, "Have you no answer? See how many charges they bring against you." 5But Jesus made no further reply, so that Pilate was amazed.

6 Now at the festival he used to release a prisoner for them, anyone for whom they asked. 7Now a man called Barabbas was in prison with the rebels who had committed murder during the insurrection. 8So the crowd came and began to ask Pilate to do for them according to his custom. 9Then he answered them, "Do you want me to release for you the King of the Jews?" 10For he realized that it was out of jealousy that the chief priests had handed him over. 11But the chief priests stirred up the crowd to have him release Barabbas for them instead. 12Pilate spoke to them again, "Then what do you wish me to do[e] with the man you call[f] the King of the Jews?" 13They shouted back, "Crucify him!" 14Pilate asked them, "Why, what evil has he done?" But they shouted all the more, "Crucify him!" 15So Pilate, wishing to satisfy the crowd, released Barabbas for them; and after flogging Jesus, he handed him over to be crucified.

16 Then the soldiers led him into the courtyard of the palace (that is, the governor's headquarters[g]); and they called together the whole cohort. 17And they clothed him in a purple cloak; and after twisting some thorns into a crown, they put it on him. 18And they began saluting him, "Hail, King of the Jews!" 19They struck his head with a reed, spat upon him, and knelt down in homage to him. 20After mocking him, they stripped him of the purple cloak and put his own clothes on him. Then they led him out to crucify him.

21 They compelled a passer-by, who was coming in from the country, to carry his cross; it was Simon of Cyrene, the 25 It was nine o'clock in the morning when they crucified him. 26The inscription of the charge against him read, "The King of the Jews." 27And with him they crucified two bandits, one on his right and one on his left.[i] 29Those who passed by derided[j] him, shaking their heads and saying, "Aha! You who would destroy the temple and build it in three days, 30save yourself, and come down from the cross!" 31In the same way the chief priests, along with the scribes, were also mocking him among themselves and saying, "He saved others; he cannot save himself. 32Let the Messiah,[k] the King of Israel, come down from the cross now, so that we may see and believe." Those who were crucified with him also taunted him.

24.1–11; Jn 20.1–10). 1: Lk 23.56; Jn 19.39. Sabbath ended at sundown on Saturday. The women came to complete the rites of burial. 3–4: The disk-shaped stone rolled edgeways in a gutter to close the opening of the tomb. 5: The main chamber of a tomb was normally furnished with niches to receive the bodies. The young man's clothes indicate him to be a heavenly messenger. 7: 14.28; Jn 21.1–23; Mt 28.7. 8: For they were afraid. The Greek expression is unusual in style and abrupt in effect, especially if, as is possible, it originally ended the Gospel. In contrast with Mt 28.8–10, where fear is part of an emotional state that includes joy (v. 8) and is controlled by worship (v. 9) and acceptance of mission (v. 10), fear here (probably in the sense of overwhelming awe) is the pervasive consequence of amazement (v. 5) and of trembling and astonishment (v. 8) that resulted in flight and silence (v. 8). On the silence of the women compare Mt 28.8 n.; Lk 24.9–11, 22–24, and vv. 9–10 below.

16.9–20: The traditional close of the Gospel of Mark. Nothing is certainly known either about how this Gospel originally ended or about the origin of vv. 9–20, which, because of the textual evidence as well as stylistic differences from the rest of the Gospel, cannot have been part of the original text of Mark. Certain important witnesses to the text, including some ancient ones, end the Gospel with v. 8. Though it is possible that the compiler of the Gospel intended this abrupt ending, one can find hints that he intended to describe events after the resurrection: for example, Mk 14.28 looks forward to an account of at least one experience of the disciples with Jesus in Galilee after the resurrection, while the friendly reference to Peter (16.7) may anticipate the recounting of the otherwise unrecorded moment of reconciliation between Peter and his Lord (compare Lk 24.34; 1 Cor 15.5). If accounts such as these were originally part of Mark's Gospel, the loss of them took place very shortly after the Gospel was written, under circumstances beyond present knowledge. Many witnesses, some ancient, end the Gospel with vv. 9–20, thus showing that from early Christian times these verses have been accepted traditionally and generally as part of the canonical Gospel of Mark. A variety of other manuscripts conclude the Gospel with the shorter ending, either alone or followed by verses 9–20, thus indicating that different attempts were made to provide a suitable ending for the Gospel. The longer ending may have been compiled early in the second century as a didactic summary of grounds for belief in Jesus' resurrection, being appended to the Gospel by the middle of the second century. On the Christian belief in continuing unrecorded memories about Jesus in the first century see Lk

Mary Magdalene, from whom he had cast out seven demons. [10]She went out and told those who had been with him, while they were mourning and weeping. [11]But when they heard that he was alive and had been seen by her, they would not believe it.

12 After this he appeared in another form to two of them, as they were walking into the country. [13]And they went back and told the rest, but they did not believe them.

14 Later he appeared to the eleven themselves as they were sitting at the table; and he upbraided them for their lack of faith and stubbornness, because they had not believed those who saw him after he had risen.[t] [15]And he said to them, "Go into all the world and proclaim the good news[u] to the whole creation. [16]The one who believes and is baptized will be saved; but the one who does not believe will be condemned. [17]And these signs will accompany those who believe: by using my name they will cast out demons; they will speak in new tongues; [18]they will pick up snakes in their hands,[v] and if they drink any deadly thing, it will not hurt them; they will lay their hands on the sick, and they will recover."

19 So then the Lord Jesus, after he had spoken to them, was taken up into heaven and sat down at the right hand of God. [20]And they went out and proclaimed the good news everywhere, while the Lord worked with them and confirmed the message by the signs that accompanied it.[w]]]

Therefore reveal your righteousness now"—thus they spoke to Christ. And Christ replied to them, "The term of years of Satan's power has been fulfilled, but other terrible things draw near. And for those who have sinned I was handed over to death, that they may return to the truth and sin no more, that they may inherit the spiritual and imperishable glory of righteousness that is in heaven."*

Luke

The Gospel according to Luke sets forth the words and works of Jesus as the divine-human Savior, whose compassion and tenderness extended to all who were needy. The universal mission of Jesus is emphasized (a) by tracing his genealogy back to Adam (3.38; contrast Mt 1.1–2); (b) by including references that commend members of a despised race, the Samaritans (10.30–37; 17.11–19; see Acts 8.5 n.); (c) by indicating that women have a new place of importance among the followers of Jesus (7.36–50; 8.3; 10.38–42); and (d) by promising that Gentiles would have an opportunity to accept the gospel (2.32; 3.6; 24.27; compare 15.4 n.).

In addition to presenting the story of Jesus' work in Galilee and his last week at Jerusalem, Luke includes more episodes of Jesus' final journey to Jerusalem than do any of the other Evangelists. This special section (9.51–18.14) also preserves many of the most beloved of Jesus' parables—such as the Good Samaritan (10.25–37), the Prodigal Son (15.11–32), the Unjust Judge (18.1–8), and the Pharisee and the Tax Collector (18.9–14).

It is obvious from a number of features that the Evangelist envisages a Gentile rather than a Jewish reading public. Thus, he makes comparatively few quotations from the Old Testament, which would have been a strange and almost unknown book to most non-Jews. For the same reason Luke seldom appeals to the argument from prophecy. Furthermore, instead of using the Jewish word "rabbi," Luke is the only New Testament author who employs the classical Greek equivalent, a word meaning master (5.5; 8.24, 45; 9.33, 49; 17.13).

The major divisions are: chs 1–2, Births of John and Jesus; the boy Jesus in the temple; 3.1–22, Activity of John the Baptist; baptism of Jesus; 3.23–38, Genealogy of Jesus; 4.1–13, Temptation of Jesus; 4.14–9.50, Jesus' activity, chiefly in Galilee; 9.51–19.27, Journey to Jerusalem; 19.28–23.56, The last week, concluding with Jesus' crucifixion and burial; ch 24, The resurrection; commissioning the disciples.

Although the Gospel is anonymous and the evidence pertaining to its author is inconclusive, many considerations support the early Christian tradition that the author was the physician Luke, a Gentile convert and friend of the apostle Paul (Col 4.14; compare 2 Tim 4.11; Philem 24). The Gospel appears to have been written, perhaps at Antioch, during the last third of the first century, though the precise date is unknown. Luke, who was not an eyewitness of the life of Jesus, tells us that he used great care in collecting information for his book (1.1–4). He dedicated the book, along with the Acts of the Apostles (1.1), to a certain Theophilus, who was probably a Roman of high rank.

Finally, mention must be made of the high quality of Luke's literary style (see also Introduction to the Acts of the Apostles). Of all four Evangelists, he is preeminently a person of broad culture, capable of adapting his Greek diction to different occasions, writing sometimes formal, classical prose, sometimes a racy narrative style in the vernacular of his own day, and sometimes a Semitic "Bible Greek" in which the Septuagint was written. As a gifted literary artist he produced what has justly been described as "the most beautiful book in the world."

For the literary genre of the gospels, see pp. viii–x NT.

1 Since many have undertaken to set down an orderly account of the events that have been fulfilled among us, 2just as they were handed on to us by those who from the beginning were eyewitnesses and servants of the word, 3I too decided, after investigating everything carefully from the very first,[a] to write an orderly account for you, most excellent Theophilus, 4so that you may know the truth concerning the things about which you have been instructed.

5 In the days of King Herod of Judea, there was a priest named Zechariah, who belonged to the priestly order of Abijah. His wife was a descendant of Aaron, and her name was Elizabeth. 6Both of them were righteous before God, living blamelessly according to all the commandments and regulations of the Lord. 7But they had no children, because Elizabeth was barren, and both were getting on in years.

8 Once when he was serving as priest before God and his section was on duty, 9he was chosen by lot, according to the custom of the priesthood, to enter the sanctuary of the Lord and offer incense. 10Now at the time of the incense offering, the whole assembly of the people was praying outside. 11Then there appeared to him an angel of the Lord, standing at the right side of the altar of incense. 12When Zechariah saw him, he was terrified; and fear overwhelmed him. 13But the angel said to him, "Do not be afraid, Zechariah, for your prayer has been heard. Your wife Elizabeth will bear you a son, and you will name him John. 14You will have joy and gladness, and many will rejoice at his birth, 15for he will be great in the sight of the Lord. He must never drink wine or strong drink; even before his birth he will be filled with the Holy Spirit. 16He will turn many of the people of Israel to the Lord their God. 17With the spirit and power of Elijah he will go before him, to turn the hearts of parents to their children, and the disobedient to the wisdom of the righteous, to make ready a people prepared for the Lord." 18Zechariah said to the angel, "How will I know that this is so? For I am an old man, and my wife is getting on in years." 19The angel replied, "I am Gabriel. I stand in the presence of God, and I have been sent to speak to you and to bring you this good news. 20But now, because you did not believe my words, which will be fulfilled in their time, you will become mute, unable to speak, until the day these things occur."

21 Meanwhile the people were waiting for Zechariah, and wondered at his delay in the sanctuary. 22When he did come out, he could not speak to them, and they realized that he had seen a vision in the sanctuary. He kept motioning to them and remained unable to speak. 23When his time of service was ended, he went to his home.

24 After those days his wife Elizabeth conceived, and for five months she remained in seclusion. She said, 25"This is what the Lord has done for me when he looked favorably on me and took away the disgrace I have endured among my people."

26 In the sixth month the angel Gabriel was sent by God to a town in Galilee called Nazareth, 27 to a virgin engaged to a man whose name was Joseph, of the house of David. The virgin's name was Mary. 28 And he came to her and said, "Greetings, favored one! The Lord is with you."[b] 29 But she was much perplexed by his words and pondered what sort of greeting this might be. 30 The angel said to her, "Do not be afraid, Mary, for you have found favor with God. 31 And now, you will conceive in your womb and bear a son, and you will name him Jesus. 32 He will be great, and will be called the Son of the Most High, and the Lord God will give to him the throne of his ancestor David. 33 He will reign over the house of Jacob forever, and of his kingdom there will be no end." 34 Mary said to the angel, "How can this be, since I am a virgin?"[c] 35 The angel said to her, "The Holy Spirit will come upon you, and the power of the Most High will overshadow you; therefore the child to be born[d] will be holy; he will be called Son of God. 36 And now, your relative Elizabeth in her old age has also conceived a son; and this is the sixth month for her who was said to be barren. 37 For nothing will be impossible with God." 38 Then Mary said, "Here am I, the servant of the Lord; let it be with me according to your word." Then the angel departed from her.

39 In those days Mary set out and went with haste to a Judean town in the hill country, 40 where she entered the house of Zechariah and greeted Elizabeth. 41 When Elizabeth heard Mary's greeting, the child leaped in her womb. And Elizabeth was filled with the Holy Spirit 42 and exclaimed with a loud cry, "Blessed are you among women, and blessed is the fruit of your womb. 43 And why has this happened to me, that the mother of my Lord comes to me? 44 For as soon as I heard the sound of your greeting, the child in my womb leaped for joy. 45 And blessed is she who believed that there would be[e] a fulfillment of what was spoken to her by the Lord."

46 And Mary[f] said,

"My soul magnifies the Lord,
47 and my spirit rejoices in God my Savior,
48 for he has looked with favor on the lowliness of his servant.
Surely, from now on all generations will call me blessed;
49 for the Mighty One has done great things for me,
and holy is his name.
50 His mercy is for those who fear him from generation to generation.
51 He has shown strength with his arm;
he has scattered the proud in the thoughts of their hearts.
52 He has brought down the powerful from their thrones,
and lifted up the lowly;
53 he has filled the hungry with good things,
and sent the rich away empty.
54 He has helped his servant Israel,
in remembrance of his mercy, 55 according to the promise he made to our ancestors, to Abraham and to his descendants forever."

56 And Mary remained with her about three months and then returned to her home.

57 Now the time came for Elizabeth to give birth, and she bore a son. 58 Her neighbors and relatives heard that the Lord had shown his great mercy to her, and they rejoiced with her.

59 On the eighth day they came to circumcise the child, and they were going to name him Zechariah after his father. 60 But his mother said, "No; he is to be called John." 61 They said to her, "None of your relatives has this name." 62 Then they began motioning to his father to find out what name he wanted to give him. 63 He asked for a writing tablet and wrote, "His name is John." And all of them were amazed. 64 Immediately his mouth was opened and his tongue freed, and he began to speak, praising God. 65 Fear came over all their neighbors, and all these things were talked about throughout the entire hill country of Judea. 66 All who heard them pondered them and said, "What then will this child become?" For, indeed, the hand of the Lord was with him.

67 Then his father Zechariah was filled with the Holy Spirit and spoke this prophecy:

68 "Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, for he has looked favorably on his people and redeemed them.
69 He has raised up a mighty savior[g] for us in the house of his servant David, 70 as he spoke through the mouth of his holy prophets from of old,
71 that we would be saved from our enemies and from the hand of all who hate us.
72 Thus he has shown the mercy promised to our ancestors,
and has remembered his holy covenant, 73 the oath that he swore to our ancestor Abraham, to grant us 74 that we, being rescued from the hands of our enemies, might serve him without fear, 75 in holiness and righteousness before him all our days.
76 And you, child, will be called the prophet of the Most High;
for you will go before the Lord to prepare his ways, 77 to give knowledge of salvation to his people
by the forgiveness of their sins.
78 By the tender mercy of our God, the dawn from on high will break upon[h] us, 79 to give light to those who sit in darkness and in the shadow of death,
to guide our feet into the way of peace."

80 The child grew and became strong in spirit, and he was in the wilderness until the day he appeared publicly to Israel.

world should be registered. 2This was the first registration and was taken while Quirinius was governor of Syria. 3All went to their own towns to be registered. 4Joseph also went from the town of Nazareth in Galilee to Judea, to the city of David called Bethlehem, because he was descended from the house and family of David. 5He went to be registered with Mary, to whom he was engaged and who was expecting a child. 6While they were there, the time came for her to deliver her child. 7And she gave birth to her firstborn son and wrapped him in bands of cloth, and laid him in a manger, because there was no place for them in the inn.

8 In that region there were shepherds living in the fields, keeping watch over their flock by night. 9Then an angel of the Lord stood before them, and the glory of the Lord shone around them, and they were terrified. 10But the angel said to them, "Do not be afraid; for see—I am bringing you good news of great joy for all the people: 11to you is born this day in the city of David a Savior, who is the Messiah,[i] the Lord. 12This will be a sign for you: you will find a child wrapped in bands of cloth and lying in a manger." 13And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host,[j] praising God and saying,

14 "Glory to God in the highest heaven, and on earth peace among those whom he favors!"[k]

15 When the angels had left them and gone into heaven, the shepherds said to one another, "Let us go now to Bethlehem and see this thing that has taken place, which the Lord has made known to us." 16So they went with haste and found Mary and Joseph, and the child lying in the manger. 17When they saw this, they made known what had been told them about this child; 18and all who heard it were amazed at what the shepherds told them. 19But Mary treasured all these words and pondered them in her heart. 20The shepherds returned, glorifying and praising God for all they had heard and seen, as it had been told them.

21 After eight days had passed, it was time to circumcise the child; and he was called Jesus, the name given by the angel before he was conceived in the womb.

22 When the time came for their purification according to the law of Moses, they brought him up to Jerusalem to present him to the Lord 23(as it is written in the law of the Lord, "Every firstborn male shall be designated as holy to the Lord"), 24and they offered a sacrifice according to what is stated in the law of the Lord, "a pair of turtledoves or two young pigeons."

whose name was Simeon;[l] this man was righteous and devout, looking forward to the consolation of Israel, and the Holy Spirit rested on him. 26It had been revealed to him by the Holy Spirit that he would not see death before he had seen the Lord's Messiah.[m] 27Guided by the Spirit, Simeon[n] came into the temple; and when the parents brought in the child Jesus, to do for him what was customary under the law, 28Simeon[o] took him in his arms and praised God, saying,

29 "Master, now you are dismissing your servant[p] in peace,
according to your word;
30 for my eyes have seen your salvation, 31 which you have prepared in the presence of all peoples, 32 a light for revelation to the

and for glory to your people Israel."

33 And the child's father and mother were amazed at what was being said about him. 34Then Simeon[l] blessed them and said to his mother Mary, "This child is destined for the falling and the rising of many in Israel, and to be a sign that will be opposed 35so that the inner thoughts of many will be revealed—and a sword will pierce your own soul too."

36 There was also a prophet, Anna[q] the daughter of Phanuel, of the tribe of Asher. She was of a great age, having lived with her husband seven years after her marriage, 37then as a widow to the age of eighty-four. She never left the temple but worshiped there with fasting and prayer night and day. 38At that moment she came, and began to praise God and to speak about the child[r] to all who were looking for the redemption of Jerusalem.

39 When they had finished everything required by the law of the Lord, they returned to Galilee, to their own town of Nazareth. 40The child grew and became strong, filled with wisdom; and the favor of God was upon him.

41 Now every year his parents went to Jerusalem for the festival of the Passover. 42And when he was twelve years old, they went up as usual for the festival. 43When the festival was ended and they started to return, the boy Jesus stayed behind in Jerusalem, but his parents did not know it. 44Assuming that he was in the group of travelers, they went a day's journey. Then they started to look for him among their relatives and friends. 45When they did not find him, they returned to Jerusalem to search for him. 46After three days they found him in the temple, sitting among the teachers, listening to them and asking them questions. 47And all who heard him were amazed at his understanding and his answers. 48When his parents[s] saw him they were astonished; and his mother said to him, "Child, why have you treated us like this? Look, your father and I have been searching for you in great anxiety." 49He said to them, "Why were you searching for me? Did you not know that I must be in my Father's house?"[t] 50But they did not understand what he said to them. 51Then he went down with them and came to Nazareth, and was obedient to them. His mother treasured all these things in her heart.

52 And Jesus increased in wisdom and in years,[u] and in divine and human favor.

3 In the fifteenth year of the reign of Emperor Tiberius, when Pontius Pilate was governor of Judea, and Herod was ruler[v] of Galilee, and his brother Philip ruler[v] of the region of Ituraea and Trachonitis, and Lysanias ruler[v] of Abilene, 2during the high priesthood of Annas and Caiaphas, the word of God came to John son of Zechariah in the wilderness. 3He went into all the region around the Jordan, proclaiming a baptism of repentance for the forgiveness of sins, 4as it is written in the book of the words of the prophet Isaiah,

"The voice of one crying out in the wilderness:
'Prepare the way of the Lord,
make his paths straight.
5 Every valley shall be filled,
and every mountain and hill shall be made low,
and the crooked shall be made straight,
and the rough ways made smooth;
6 and all flesh shall see the salvation of God.' "

7 John said to the crowds that came out to be baptized by him, "You brood of vipers! Who warned you to flee from the wrath to come? 8Bear fruits worthy of repentance. Do not begin to say to yourselves, 'We have Abraham as our ancestor'; for I tell you, God is able from these stones to raise up children to Abraham. 9Even now the ax is lying at the root of the trees; every tree therefore that does not bear good fruit is cut down and thrown into the fire."

10 And the crowds asked him, "What then should we do?" 11In reply he said to them, "Whoever has two coats must share with anyone who has none; and whoever has food must do likewise." 12Even tax collectors came to be baptized, and they asked him, "Teacher, what should we do?" 13He said to them, "Collect no more than the amount prescribed for you." 14Soldiers also asked him, "And we, what should we do?" He said to them, "Do not extort money from anyone by threats or false accusation, and be satisfied with your wages."

15 As the people were filled with expectation, and all were questioning in their hearts concerning John, whether he might be the Messiah,[w] 16John answered all of them by saying, "I baptize you with water; but one who is more powerful than I is coming; I am not worthy to untie the thong of his sandals. He will baptize you with[x] the Holy Spirit and fire. 17His winnowing fork is in his hand, to clear his threshing floor and to gather the wheat into his granary; but the chaff he will burn with unquenchable fire."

18 So, with many other exhortations, he proclaimed the good news to the people. 19But Herod the ruler,[v] who had been rebuked by him because of Herodias, his brother's wife, and because of all the evil things that Herod had done,

21 Now when all the people were baptized, and when Jesus also had been baptized and was praying, the heaven was opened, [22]and the Holy Spirit descended upon him in bodily form like a dove. And a voice came from heaven, "You are my Son, the Beloved;[y] with you I am well pleased."[z]

23 Jesus was about thirty years old when he began his work. He was the son (as was thought) of Joseph son of Heli, [24]son of Matthat, son of Levi, son of Melchi, son of Jannai, son of Joseph, [25]son of Mattathias, son of Amos, son of Nahum, son of Esli, son of Naggai, [26]son of Maath, son of Mattathias, son of Semein, son of Josech, son of Joda, [27]son of Joanan, son of Rhesa, son of Zerubbabel, son of Shealtiel,[a] son of Neri, [28]son of Melchi, son of Addi, son of Cosam, son of Elmadam, son of Er, [29]son of Joshua, son of Eliezer, son of Jorim, son of Matthat, son of Levi, [30]son of Simeon, son of Judah, son of Joseph, son of Jonam, son of Eliakim, [31]son of Melea, son of Menna, son of Mattatha, son of Nathan, son of David, [32]son of Jesse, son of Obed, son of Boaz, son of Sala,[b] son of Nahshon, [33]son of Amminadab, son of Admin, son of Arni,[c] son of Hezron son of Perez, son of Judah, [34]son of Jacob, son of Isaac, son of Abraham, son of Terah, son of Nahor, [35]son of Serug, son of Reu, son of Peleg, son of Eber, son of Shelah, [36]son of Cainan, son of Arphaxad, son of Shem, son of Noah, son of Lamech, [37]son of Methuselah, son of Enoch, son of Jared, son of Mahalalel, son of Cainan, [38]son of Enos, son of Seth, son of Adam, son of God.

4 Jesus, full of the Holy Spirit, returned from the Jordan and was led by the Spirit in the wilderness, [2]where for forty days he was tempted by the devil. He ate nothing at all during those days, and when they were over, he was famished. [3]The devil said to him, "If you are the Son of God, command this stone to become a loaf of bread." [4]Jesus answered him, "It is written, 'One does not live by bread alone.' "

5 Then the devil[d] led him up and showed him in an instant all the kingdoms of the world. [6]And the devil[d] said to him, "To you I will give their glory and all this authority; for it has been given over to me, and I give it to anyone I please. [7]If you, then, will worship me, it will all be yours." [8]Jesus answered him, "It is written,

and serve only him.' "

"preached the gospel," refers to the message of forgiveness (v. 3) and the advent of a new relationship between individuals and God (vv. 15–17). 19–20: Mt 14.3–4; Mk 6.17–18.

3.21–22: Jesus' baptism (Mt 3.13–17; Mk 1.9–11; Jn 1.29–34). See Mt 3.16–17 n. 21: Prayer was part of many recorded momentous events in Jesus' life (e.g. Mk 1.35; Lk 5.16; 6.12; 9.18, 28; 11.1; 22.41–46). 22: Beloved, see Mk 1.11 n.; Ps 2.7; Isa 42.1; Lk 9.35.

4.1–13: Jesus' temptation (Mt 4.1–11; Mk 1.12–13). The order of temptations differs from Matthew's but the testing remains the same. 1: Full of the Holy Spirit is a Christian phrase (Acts 2.4; 6.3, 5; 7.55; 11.24); the work of Jesus and the church begins as God acts through individuals. 2: Deut 9.9; 1 Kings 19.8; see Mt 4.2 n. 3–4: See Mt 4.3–4 n.; Deut 8.3. 5–8: Deut 6.13; 1 Jn 5.19.

9 Then the devil[e] took him to Jerusalem, and placed him on the pinnacle of the temple, saying to him, "If you are the Son of God, throw yourself down from here, 10 for it is written,

'He will command his angels
concerning you,
to protect you,'

11 and

'On their hands they will bear
you up,
so that you will not dash your
foot against a stone.' "

12 Jesus answered him, "It is said, 'Do not put the Lord your God to the test.' " 13 When the devil had finished every test, he departed from him until an opportune time.

14 Then Jesus, filled with the power of the Spirit, returned to Galilee, and a report about him spread through all the surrounding country. 15 He began to teach in their synagogues and was praised by everyone.

16 When he came to Nazareth, where he had been brought up, he went to the synagogue on the sabbath day, as was his custom. He stood up to read, 17 and the scroll of the prophet Isaiah was given to him. He unrolled the scroll and found the place where it was written:

18 "The Spirit of the Lord is upon
me,
because he has anointed me
to bring good news to the poor.
He has sent me to proclaim release to the captives
and recovery of sight to the blind,
to let the oppressed go free, 19 to proclaim the year of the Lord's favor."

20 And he rolled up the scroll, gave it back to the attendant, and sat down. The eyes of all in the synagogue were fixed on him. 21 Then he began to say to them, "Today this scripture has been fulfilled in your hearing." 22 All spoke well of him and were amazed at the gracious words that came from his mouth. They said, "Is not this Joseph's son?" 23 He said to them, "Doubtless you will quote to me this proverb, 'Doctor, cure yourself!' And you will say, 'Do here also in your hometown the things that we have heard you did at Capernaum.' " 24 And he said, "Truly I tell you, no prophet is accepted in the prophet's hometown. 25 But the truth is, there were many widows in Israel in the time of Elijah, when the heaven was shut up three years and six months, and there was a severe famine over all the land; 26 yet Elijah was sent to none of them except to a widow at Zarephath in Sidon. 27 There were also many lepers[f] in Israel in the time of the prophet Elisha, and none of them was cleansed except Naaman the Syrian." 28 When they heard this, all in the synagogue were filled with rage. 29 They got up, drove him out of the town, and led him to the brow of the hill on which their town was built, so that they might hurl him off the cliff. 30 But he passed through the midst of them and went on his way.

Details of synagogue worship are mentioned here and in vv. 17, 20 (compare Acts 13.15). 17: The scroll of Isaiah was given to Jesus by the chazzan or attendant of the synagogue (v. 20). 18–19: Isa 61.1, 2; 58.6; see Mt 3.1 n.; Lk 13.11, 16 n. 20: Having read while standing, Jesus sat down according to custom to preach the sermon. 21: Fulfilled, see Mt 11.4–6 n. 23: The popular reaction became increasingly hostile as the magnitude of Jesus' message sank home. 24–27: According to the Old Testament, foreigners sometimes the sabbath. 32They were astounded at his teaching, because he spoke with authority. 33In the synagogue there was a man who had the spirit of an unclean demon, and he cried out with a loud voice, 34"Let us alone! What have you to do with us, Jesus of Nazareth? Have you come to destroy us? I know who you are, the Holy One of God." 35But Jesus rebuked him, saying, "Be silent, and come out of him!" When the demon had thrown him down before them, he came out of him without having done him any harm. 36They were all amazed and kept saying to one another, "What kind of utterance is this? For with authority and power he commands the unclean spirits, and out they come!" 37And a report about him began to reach every place in the region.

38 After leaving the synagogue he entered Simon's house. Now Simon's mother-in-law was suffering from a high fever, and they asked him about her. 39Then he stood over her and rebuked the fever, and it left her. Immediately she got up and began to serve them.

40 As the sun was setting, all those who had any who were sick with various kinds of diseases brought them to him; and he laid his hands on each of them and cured them. 41Demons also came out of many, shouting, "You are the Son of God!" But he rebuked them and would not allow them to speak, because they knew that he was the Messiah.[g]

42 At daybreak he departed and went into a deserted place. And the crowds were looking for him; and when they reached him, they wanted to prevent him from leaving them. 43But he said to them, "I must proclaim the good news of the kingdom of God to the other cities also; for I was sent for this purpose." 44So he continued proclaiming the message in the synagogues of Judea.[h]

5 Once while Jesus[i] was standing beside the lake of Gennesaret, and the crowd was pressing in on him to hear the word of God, 2he saw two boats there at the shore of the lake; the fishermen had gone out of them and were washing their nets. 3He got into one of the boats, the one belonging to Simon, and asked him to put out a little way from the shore. Then he sat down and taught the crowds from the boat. 4When he had finished speaking, he said to Simon, "Put out into the deep water and let down your nets for a catch." 5Simon answered, "Master, we have worked all night long but have caught nothing. Yet if you say so, I will let down the nets." 6When they had done this, they caught so many fish that their nets were beginning to break. 7So they signaled their partners in the other boat to come and help them. And they came and filled both boats, so that they began to sink. 8But when Simon Peter saw it, knew God's help when Israel did not (1 Kings 17.1, 8–16; 18.1; 2 Kings 5.1–14). 30: It is not known that he ever visited Nazareth again.

4.31–37: The synagogue at Capernaum (Mt 7.28–29; Mk 1.21–28). 32: Teaching here means the substance of what Jesus taught. 33: See Mk 1.23 n. Demons were thought of in Jesus' day as non-material existences of a personal sort, hostile to human welfare and rebellious against God. The gospels reflect widespread dread of demons and a general sense of helplessness before demonic activity. Jesus is portrayed here and elsewhere (compare 11.20–22) as one who can deliver from demonic oppression and from Satan himself, evil's supreme embodiment (see Mt 4.24 n.; 12.22 n.; Lk 7.33 n.; 13.16 n.).

4.38–44: Healing and preaching (Mt 8.14–17; Mk 1.29–39). 40: Each of them, Jesus gives attention to individuals, illustrating vv. 18–19. 41: Demons, see v. 33 n. 44: This is the only express mention outside the Fourth Gospel of Jesus' early Judean ministry (but compare the implications of Mt 23.37 and Lk 13.34). The original text, however, is uncertain, for Galilee appears in some ancient witnesses here as well as in the parallel accounts (Mt 4.23; Mk 1.39).

he fell down at Jesus' knees, saying, "Go away from me, Lord, for I am a sinful man!" 9For he and all who were with him were amazed at the catch of fish that they had taken; 10and so also were James and John, sons of Zebedee, who were partners with Simon. Then Jesus said to Simon, "Do not be afraid; from now on you will be catching people." 11When they had brought their boats to shore, they left everything and followed him.

12 Once, when he was in one of the cities, there was a man covered with leprosy.[j] When he saw Jesus, he bowed with his face to the ground and begged him, "Lord, if you choose, you can make me clean." 13Then Jesus[k] stretched out his hand, touched him, and said, "I do choose. Be made clean." Immediately the leprosy[j] left him. 14And he ordered him to tell no one. "Go," he said, "and show yourself to the priest, and, as Moses commanded, make an offering for your cleansing, for a testimony to them." 15But now more than ever the word about Jesus[l] spread abroad; many crowds would gather to hear him and to be cured of their diseases. 16But he would withdraw to deserted places and pray.

17 One day, while he was teaching, Pharisees and teachers of the law were sitting near by (they had come from every village of Galilee and Judea and from Jerusalem); and the power of the Lord was with him to heal.[m] 18Just then some men came, carrying a paralyzed man on a bed. They were trying to bring him in and lay him before Jesus;[l] 19but finding no way to bring him in because of the crowd, they went up on the roof and let him down with his bed through the tiles into the middle of the crowd[n] in front of Jesus. 20When he saw their faith, he said, "Friend,[o] your sins are forgiven you." 21Then the scribes and the Pharisees began to question, "Who is this who is speaking blasphemies? Who can forgive sins but God alone?" 22When Jesus perceived their questionings, he answered them, "Why do you raise such questions in your hearts? 23Which is easier, to say, 'Your sins are forgiven you,' or to say, 'Stand up and walk'? 24But so that you may know that the Son of Man has authority on earth to forgive sins"—he said to the one who was paralyzed—"I say to you, stand up and take your bed and go to your home." 25Immediately he stood up before them, took what he had been lying on, and went to his home, glorifying God. 26Amazement seized all of them, and they glorified God and were filled with awe, saying, "We have seen strange things today."

27 After this he went out and saw a tax collector named Levi, sitting at the tax booth; and he said to him, "Follow me." 28And he got up, left everything, and followed him.

29 Then Levi gave a great banquet for him in his house; and there was a large crowd of tax collectors and others sitting at the table[p] with them. 30The Pharisees and their scribes were complaining to his disciples, saying, "Why do you eat and drink with tax collectors and sinners?" 31Jesus answered, "Those who are well have no need of a physician, but those who are sick; 32I have come to call not the righteous but sinners to repentance."

33 Then they said to him, "John's disciples, like the disciples of the Pharisees,

6 One sabbath[r] while Jesus[s] was going through the grainfields, his disciples plucked some heads of grain, rubbed them in their hands, and ate them. 2But some of the Pharisees said, "Why are you doing what is not lawful[t] on the sabbath?" 3Jesus answered, "Have you not read what David did when he and his companions were hungry? 4He entered the house of God and took and ate the bread of the Presence, which it is not lawful for any but the priests to eat, and gave some to his companions?" 5Then he said to them, "The Son of Man is lord of the sabbath."

6 On another sabbath he entered the synagogue and taught, and there was a man there whose right hand was withered. 7The scribes and the Pharisees watched him to see whether he would cure on the sabbath, so that they might find an accusation against him. 8Even though he knew what they were thinking, he said to the man who had the withered hand, "Come and stand here." He got up and stood there. 9Then Jesus said to them, "I ask you, is it lawful to do good or to do harm on the sabbath, to save life or to destroy it?" 10After looking around at all of them, he said to him, "Stretch out your hand." He did so, and his hand was restored. 11But they were filled with fury and discussed with one another what they might do to Jesus.

12 Now during those days he went out to the mountain to pray; and he spent the night in prayer to God. 13And when day came, he called his disciples and chose twelve of them, whom he also named apostles: 14Simon, whom he named Peter, and his brother Andrew, and James, and John, and Philip, and Bartholomew, 15and Matthew, and Thomas, and James son of Alphaeus, and Simon, who was called the Zealot, 16and Judas son of James, and Judas Iscariot, who became a traitor.

6.12–16: Choosing the Twelve (Mt 10.1–4; Mk 3.13–19). 12: See 3.21 n. 13: The disciples were a larger group of followers from whom Jesus chose twelve for close companionship (Acts 1.21–22). Apostle means "appointed representative" and was not always limited to the Twelve (Rom 16.7; Acts 14.14).

6.17–49: The Sermon on the Plain. Luke gives here a number of Jesus' sayings found in the Sermon on the Mount (Mt chs 5–7). He has fewer teachings than appear there; he gives others found elsewhere in Matthew. Verses 24–26 are without parallel. The "sermons" in the gospels were formed from collections of memorized words of Jesus to instruct Christian converts (compare Jn 20.30–31; 21.25).

6.17–19: Mt 4.24–25; 12.15–21; Mk 3.7–12. 17: The setting for the discourse in vv. 20–49 (compare Mt 5.1–2). Each gospel distin-

stood on a level place, with a great crowd of his disciples and a great multitude of people from all Judea, Jerusalem, and the coast of Tyre and Sidon. 18 They had come to hear him and to be healed of their diseases; and those who were troubled with unclean spirits were cured. 19 And all in the crowd were trying to touch him, for power came out from him and healed all of them.

20 Then he looked up at his disciples and said:

"Blessed are you who are poor,
for yours is the kingdom of God.

21 "Blessed are you who are hungry now,
for you will be filled.

"Blessed are you who weep now,
for you will laugh.

22 "Blessed are you when people hate you, and when they exclude you, revile you, and defame you[u] on account of the Son of Man. 23 Rejoice in that day and leap for joy, for surely your reward is great in heaven; for that is what their ancestors did to the prophets.

24 "But woe to you who are rich,
for you have received your consolation.

25 "Woe to you who are full now,
for you will be hungry.

"Woe to you who are laughing now,
for you will mourn and weep.

26 "Woe to you when all speak well of you, for that is what their ancestors did to the false prophets.

27 "But I say to you that listen, Love your enemies, do good to those who hate you, 28 bless those who curse you, pray for those who abuse you. 29 If anyone strikes you on the cheek, offer the other also; and from anyone who takes away your coat do not withhold even your shirt. 30 Give to everyone who begs from you; and if anyone takes away your goods, do not ask for them again. 31 Do to others as you would have them do to you.

32 "If you love those who love you, what credit is that to you? For even sinners love those who love them. 33 If you do good to those who do good to you, what credit is that to you? For even sinners do the same. 34 If you lend to those from whom you hope to receive, what credit is that to you? Even sinners lend to sinners, to receive as much again. 35 But love your enemies, do good, and lend, expecting nothing in return.[v] Your reward will be great, and you will be children of the Most High; for he is kind to the ungrateful and the wicked. 36 Be merciful, just as your Father is merciful.

37 "Do not judge, and you will not be judged; do not condemn, and you will not be condemned. Forgive, and you will be forgiven; 38 give, and it will be given to you. A good measure, pressed down, shaken together, running over, will be put into your lap; for the measure you give will be the measure you get back."

39 He also told them a parable: "Can a blind person guide a blind person? Will not both fall into a pit? 40 A disciple is not above the teacher, but everyone who is fully qualified will be like the teacher. 41 Why do you see the speck in your neighbor's[w] eye, but do not notice the

You hypocrite, first take the log out of your own eye, and then you will see clearly to take the speck out of your neighbor's[y] eye.

46 "Why do you call me 'Lord, Lord,' and do not do what I tell you? 47I will show you what someone is like who comes to me, hears my words, and acts on them. 48That one is like a man building a house, who dug deeply and laid the foundation on rock; when a flood arose, the river burst against that house but could not shake it, because it had been well built.[z] 49But the one who hears and does not act is like a man who built a house on the ground without a foundation. When the river burst against it, immediately it fell, and great was the ruin of that house."

7 After Jesus[a] had finished all his sayings in the hearing of the people, he entered Capernaum. 2A centurion there had a slave whom he valued highly, and who was ill and close to death. 3When he heard about Jesus, he sent some Jewish elders to him, asking him to come and heal his slave. 4When they came to Jesus, they appealed to him earnestly, saying, "He is worthy of having you do this for him, 5for he loves our people, and it is he who built our synagogue for us." 6And Jesus went with them, but when he was not far from the house, the centurion sent friends to say to him, "Lord, do not trouble yourself, for I am not worthy to have you come under my roof; 7therefore I did not presume to come to you. But only speak the word, and let my servant be healed. 8For I also am a man set under authority, with soldiers under me; and I say to one, 'Go,' and he goes, and to another, 'Come,' and he comes, and to my slave, 'Do this,' and the slave does it." 9When Jesus heard this he was amazed at him, and turning to the crowd that followed him, he said, "I tell you, not even in Israel have I found such faith." 10When those who had been sent returned to the house, they found the slave in good health.

11 Soon afterwards[b] he went to a town called Nain, and his disciples and a large crowd went with him. 12As he approached the gate of the town, a man who had died was being carried out. He was his mother's only son, and she was a widow; and with her was a large crowd from the town. 13When the Lord saw her, he had compassion for her and said to her, "Do not weep." 14Then he came forward and touched the bier, and the bearers stood still. And he said, "Young man, I say to you, rise!" 15The dead man sat up and began to speak, and Jesus[c] gave him to his mother. 16 Fear seized all of them; and they glorified God, saying, "A great prophet has risen among us!" and "God has looked favorably on his people!" 17 This word about him spread throughout Judea and all the surrounding country.

In this case the funeral procession was passing through the gate of the town. The large crowd is evidence of deep sympathy for the loss of her only son. 13: Lord is used frequently in Luke as a title for Jesus. 16: Fear, see 1.65 n.

18 The disciples of John reported all these things to him. So John summoned two of his disciples 19 and sent them to the Lord to ask, "Are you the one who is to come, or are we to wait for another?" 20 When the men had come to him, they said, "John the Baptist has sent us to you to ask, 'Are you the one who is to come, or are we to wait for another?' " 21 Jesus[d] had just then cured many people of diseases, plagues, and evil spirits, and had given sight to many who were blind. 22 And he answered them, "Go and tell John what you have seen and heard: the blind receive their sight, the lame walk, the lepers[e] are cleansed, the deaf hear, the dead are raised, the poor have good news brought to them. 23 And blessed is anyone who takes no offense at me."

24 When John's messengers had gone, Jesus[c] began to speak to the crowds about John:[f] "What did you go out into the wilderness to look at? A reed shaken by the wind? 25 What then did you go out to see? Someone[g] dressed in soft robes? Look, those who put on fine clothing and live in luxury are in royal palaces. 26 What then did you go out to see? A prophet? Yes, I tell you, and more than a prophet. 27 This is the one about whom it is written,

'See, I am sending my messenger
ahead of you,
who will prepare your way
before you.'

28 I tell you, among those born of women no one is greater than John; yet the least in the kingdom of God is greater than he." 29 (And all the people who heard this, including the tax collectors, acknowledged the justice of God,[h] because they had been baptized with John's baptism. 30 But by refusing to be baptized by him, the Pharisees and the lawyers rejected God's purpose for themselves.)

31 "To what then will I compare the people of this generation, and what are they like? 32 They are like children sitting in the marketplace and calling to one another,

'We played the flute for you, and you did not dance;
we wailed, and you did not weep.'

33 For John the Baptist has come eating no bread and drinking no wine, and you say, 'He has a demon'; 34 the Son of Man has come eating and drinking, and you say, 'Look, a glutton and a drunkard, a friend of tax collectors and sinners!' 35 Nevertheless, wisdom is vindicated by all her children."

36 One of the Pharisees asked Jesus[f] to eat with him, and he went into the Pharisee's house and took his place at the table. 37 And a woman in the city, who was a sinner, having learned that he was eating in the Pharisee's house, brought an alabaster jar of ointment. 38 She stood behind him at his feet, weeping, and be-

Then she continued kissing his feet and anointing them with the ointment. 39 Now when the Pharisee who had invited him saw it, he said to himself, "If this man were a prophet, he would have known who and what kind of woman this is who is touching him—that she is a sinner." 40 Jesus spoke up and said to him, "Simon, I have something to say to you." "Teacher," he replied, "speak." 41 "A certain creditor had two debtors; one owed five hundred denarii,[i] and the other fifty. 42 When they could not pay, he canceled the debts for both of them. Now which of them will love him more?" 43 Simon answered, "I suppose the one for whom he canceled the greater debt." And Jesus[j] said to him, "You have judged rightly." 44 Then turning toward the woman, he said to Simon, "Do you see this woman? I entered your house; you gave me no water for my feet, but she has bathed my feet with her tears and dried them with her hair. 45 You gave me no kiss, but from the time I came in she has not stopped kissing my feet. 46 You did not anoint my head with oil, but she has anointed my feet with ointment. 47 Therefore, I tell you, her sins, which were many, have been forgiven; hence she has shown great love. But the one to whom little is forgiven, loves little." 48 Then he said to her, "Your sins are forgiven." 49 But those who were at the table with him began to say among themselves, "Who is this who even forgives sins?" 50 And he said to the woman, "Your faith has saved you; go in peace."

8 Soon afterwards he went on through cities and villages, proclaiming and bringing the good news of the kingdom of God. The twelve were with him, 2 as well as some women who had been cured of evil spirits and infirmities: Mary, called Magdalene, from whom seven demons had gone out, 3 and Joanna, the wife of Herod's steward Chuza, and Susanna, and many others, who provided for them[k] out of their resources.

4 When a great crowd gathered and people from town after town came to him, he said in a parable: 5 "A sower went out to sow his seed; and as he sowed, some fell on the path and was trampled on, and the birds of the air ate it up. 6 Some fell on the rock; and as it grew up, it withered for lack of moisture. 7 Some fell among thorns, and the thorns grew with it and choked it. 8 Some fell into good soil, and when it grew, it produced a hundredfold." As he said this, he called out, "Let anyone with ears to hear listen!"

9 Then his disciples asked him what this parable meant. 10 He said, "To you it has been given to know the secrets[l] of the kingdom of God; but to others I speak[m] in parables, so that open to intrusion of this sort (Mk 1.33; 2.2). The woman may have intended to anoint Jesus' head, a sign of regard (v. 46) as well as of personal grooming (Mt 6.17), but was overcome by a sense of humility and gratitude for his message (5.32). 38: Jesus was reclining at the table and his feet were stretched out on the couch behind him; hence the woman could easily approach and anoint his feet. 39: Jesus does not share the Pharisee's concern (compare Mk 1.41 with Mk 7.3–4). 41: Denarius, see 10.35 note r. 42: Mt 18.25. 44–46: Jesus notes contrasts in responses to himself. 47: The conclusion: the woman knows the meaning of forgiveness, the host does not. Hence she has shown great love, her great love proves that her many sins have been forgiven. 48: Mt 9.2; Mk 2.5; 11.23 n., 24 n.; Lk 5.20.

11 "Now the parable is this: The seed is the word of God. 12 The ones on the path are those who have heard; then the devil comes and takes away the word from their hearts, so that they may not believe and be saved. 13 The ones on the rock are those who, when they hear the word, receive it with joy. But these have no root; they believe only for a while and in a time of testing fall away. 14 As for what fell among the thorns, these are the ones who hear; but as they go on their way, they are choked by the cares and riches and pleasures of life, and their fruit does not mature. 15 But as for that in the good soil, these are the ones who, when they hear the word, hold it fast in an honest and good heart, and bear fruit with patient endurance.

16 "No one after lighting a lamp hides it under a jar, or puts it under a bed, but puts it on a lampstand, so that those who enter may see the light. 17 For nothing is hidden that will not be disclosed, nor is anything secret that will not become known and come to light. 18 Then pay attention to how you listen; for to those who have, more will be given; and from those who do not have, even what they seem to have will be taken away."

19 Then his mother and his brothers came to him, but they could not reach him because of the crowd. 20 And he was told, "Your mother and your brothers are standing outside, wanting to see you." 21 But he said to them, "My mother and my brothers are those who hear the word of God and do it."

22 One day he got into a boat with his disciples, and he said to them, "Let us go across to the other side of the lake." So they put out, 23 and while they were sailing he fell asleep. A windstorm swept down on the lake, and the boat was filling with water, and they were in danger. 24 They went to him and woke him up, shouting, "Master, Master, we are perishing!" And he woke up and rebuked the wind and the raging waves; they ceased, and there was a calm. 25 He said to them, "Where is your faith?" They were afraid and amazed, and said to one another, "Who then is this, that he commands even the winds and the water, and they obey him?"

26 Then they arrived at the country of the Gerasenes,[n] which is opposite Galilee. 27 As he stepped out on land, a man of the city who had demons met him. For a long time he had worn[o] no clothes, and he did not live in a house but in the tombs. 28 When he saw Jesus, he fell down before him and shouted at the top of his voice, "What have you to do with me, Jesus, Son of the Most High God? I beg you, do not torment me"— 29 for Jesus[p] had commanded the unclean spirit to come out of the man. (For many times it had seized him; he was kept under guard and bound with chains and shackles, but he would break the bonds and be driven by the demon into the wilds.) 30Jesus then asked him, "What is your name?" He said, "Legion"; for many demons had entered him. 31They begged him not to order them to go back into the abyss.

32 Now there on the hillside a large herd of swine was feeding; and the demons[q] begged Jesus[r] to let them enter these. So he gave them permission. 33Then the demons came out of the man and entered the swine, and the herd rushed down the steep bank into the lake and was drowned.

34 When the swineherds saw what had happened, they ran off and told it in the city and in the country. 35Then people came out to see what had happened, and when they came to Jesus, they found the man from whom the demons had gone sitting at the feet of Jesus, clothed and in his right mind. And they were afraid. 36Those who had seen it told them how the one who had been possessed by demons had been healed. 37Then all the people of the surrounding country of the Gerasenes[s] asked Jesus[r] to leave them; for they were seized with great fear. So he got into the boat and returned. 38The man from whom the demons had gone begged that he might be with him; but Jesus[t] sent him away, saying, 39"Return to your home, and declare how much God has done for you." So he went away, proclaiming throughout the city how much Jesus had done for him.

40 Now when Jesus returned, the crowd welcomed him, for they were all waiting for him. 41Just then there came a man named Jairus, a leader of the synagogue. He fell at Jesus' feet and begged him to come to his house, 42for he had an only daughter, about twelve years old, who was dying.

As he went, the crowds pressed in on him. 43Now there was a woman who had been suffering from hemorrhages for twelve years; and though she had spent all she had on physicians,[u] no one could cure her. 44She came up behind him and touched the fringe of his clothes, and immediately her hemorrhage stopped. 45Then Jesus asked, "Who touched me?" When all denied it, Peter[v] said, "Master, the crowds surround you and press in on you." 46But Jesus said, "Someone touched me; for I noticed that power had gone out from me." 47When the woman saw that she could not remain hidden, she came trembling; and falling down before him, she declared in the presence of all the people why she had touched him, and how she had been immediately healed. 48He said to her, "Daughter, your faith has made you well; go in peace."

49 While he was still speaking, someone came from the leader's house to say, "Your daughter is dead; do not trouble the teacher any longer." 50When Jesus heard this, he replied, "Do not fear. Only believe, and she will be saved." 51When he came to the house, he did not allow anyone to enter with him, except Peter, John, and James, and the child's father and mother. 52They were all weeping and wailing for her; but he said, "Do not weep; for she is not dead but sleeping." 53And they laughed at him, knowing that she was dead. 54But he took her by the hand and called out, "Child, get up!" 55Her spirit returned, and she got up at once. Then he directed them to give her something to eat. 56Her parents were astounded; but he ordered them to tell no one what had happened.

9 Then Jesus[w] called the twelve together and gave them power and authority over all demons and to cure diseases, 2and he sent them out to proclaim the kingdom of God and to heal. 3He said to them, "Take nothing for your journey, no staff, nor bag, nor bread, nor money—not even an extra tunic. 4Whatever house you enter, stay there, and leave from there. 5Wherever they do not welcome you, as you are leaving that town shake the dust off your feet as a testimony against them." 6They departed and went through the villages, bringing the good news and curing diseases everywhere.

7 Now Herod the ruler[x] heard about all that had taken place, and he was perplexed, because it was said by some that John had been raised from the dead, 8by some that Elijah had appeared, and by others that one of the ancient prophets had arisen. 9Herod said, "John I beheaded; but who is this about whom I hear such things?" And he tried to see him.

10 On their return the apostles told Jesus[y] all they had done. He took them with him and withdrew privately to a city called Bethsaida. 11When the crowds found out about it, they followed him; and he welcomed them, and spoke to them about the kingdom of God, and healed those who needed to be cured.

12 The day was drawing to a close, and the twelve came to him and said, "Send the crowd away, so that they may go into the surrounding villages and countryside, to lodge and get provisions; for we are here in a deserted place." 13But he said to them, "You give them something to eat." They said, "We have no more than five loaves and two fish—unless we are to go and buy food for all these people." 14For there were about five thousand men. And he said to his disciples, "Make them sit down in groups of about fifty each." 15They did so and made them all sit down. 16And taking the five loaves and the two fish, he looked up to heaven, and blessed and broke them, and gave them to the disciples to set before the crowd. 17And all ate and were filled. What was left over was gathered up, twelve baskets of broken pieces.

18 Once when Jesus[w] was praying alone, with only the disciples near him, he asked them, "Who do the crowds say that I am?" 19They answered, "John the Baptist; but others, Elijah; and still others, that one of the ancient prophets has arisen." 20He said to them, "But who do you say that I am?" Peter answered, "The Messiah[z] of God."

21 He sternly ordered and commanded them not to tell anyone, 22saying, "The Son of Man must undergo great suffering, and be rejected by the elders, chief priests, and scribes, and be killed, and on the third day be raised."

23 Then he said to them all, "If any want to become my followers, let them deny themselves and take up their cross daily and follow me. 24For those who want to save their life will lose it, and those who lose their life for my sake will save it. 25 What does it profit them if they gain the whole world, but lose or forfeit themselves? 26 Those who are ashamed of me and of my words, of them the Son of Man will be ashamed when he comes in his glory and the glory of the Father and of the holy angels. 27 But truly I tell you, there are some standing here who will not taste death before they see the kingdom of God."

28 Now about eight days after these sayings Jesus[a] took with him Peter and John and James, and went up on the mountain to pray. 29 And while he was praying, the appearance of his face changed, and his clothes became dazzling white. 30 Suddenly they saw two men, Moses and Elijah, talking to him. 31 They appeared in glory and were speaking of his departure, which he was about to accomplish at Jerusalem. 32 Now Peter and his companions were weighed down with sleep; but since they had stayed awake,[b] they saw his glory and the two men who stood with him. 33 Just as they were leaving him, Peter said to Jesus, "Master, it is good for us to be here; let us make three dwellings,[c] one for you, one for Moses, and one for Elijah"—not knowing what he said. 34 While he was saying this, a cloud came and overshadowed them; and they were terrified as they entered the cloud. 35 Then from the cloud came a voice that said, "This is my Son, my Chosen;[d] listen to him!" 36 When the voice had spoken, Jesus was found alone. And they kept silent and in those days told no one any of the things they had seen.

37 On the next day, when they had come down from the mountain, a great crowd met him. 38 Just then a man from the crowd shouted, "Teacher, I beg you to look at my son; he is my only child. 39 Suddenly a spirit seizes him, and all at once he[e] shrieks. It convulses him until he foams at the mouth; it mauls him and will scarcely leave him. 40 I begged your disciples to cast it out, but they could not." 41 Jesus answered, "You faithless and perverse generation, how much longer must I be with you and bear with you? Bring your son here." 42 While he was coming, the demon dashed him to the ground in convulsions. But Jesus rebuked the unclean spirit, healed the boy, and gave him back to his father. 43 And all were astounded at the greatness of God.

While everyone was amazed at all that he was doing, he said to his disciples, 44 "Let these words sink into your ears: The Son of Man is going to be betrayed into human hands." 45 But they did not understand this saying; its meaning was concealed from them, so that they could not perceive it. And they were afraid to ask him about this saying.

46 An argument arose among them as to which one of them was the greatest. 47 But Jesus, aware of their inner thoughts, took a little child and put it by his side, 48 and said to them, "Whoever welcomes this child in my name welcomes me, and whoever welcomes me welcomes the one who sent me; for the least among all of you is the greatest."

9.28–36: The transfiguration (Mt 17.1–8; Mk 9.2–8). This event began as prayer (v. 29; see 3.21 n.) and grew into an intense religious experience, the exact nature of which is uncertain (Mt 17.9 uses the word vision). The aura of unnatural brilliance is associated with mystical experiences elsewhere (Ex 34.29–35; Acts 9.3). 31: Departure, death. 32: Apparently the experience took place at night. 35: Chosen has about the same meaning as beloved in the parallel passages (see Mk 1.11 n.; Lk 3.22; Jn 12.28–30).

9.37–43a: Epileptic child healed (Mt 17.14–21; Mk 9.14–29). See notes on the parallel passages. 43: Acts 2.22.

9.43b–45: The Passion foretold again (Mt 17.22–23; Mk 9.30–32); compare 9.22; 18.31–33. 44: 9.22; 18.31–34; 17.25. 45: The comment is based on the point of view that (a) the Messiah's death was not part of the disciples' Jewish faith, and (b) spiritual truth must be revealed (see 24.16 n.; Mt 16.17 n.; 1 Cor 2.14).

49 John answered, "Master, we saw someone casting out demons in your name, and we tried to stop him, because he does not follow with us." 50 But Jesus said to him, "Do not stop him; for whoever is not against you is for you."

51 When the days drew near for him to be taken up, he set his face to go to Jerusalem. 52 And he sent messengers ahead of him. On their way they entered a village of the Samaritans to make ready for him; 53 but they did not receive him, because his face was set toward Jerusalem. 54 When his disciples James and John saw it, they said, "Lord, do you want us to command fire to come down from heaven and consume them?"[f] 55 But he turned and rebuked them. 56 Then[g] they went on to another village.

57 As they were going along the road, someone said to him, "I will follow you wherever you go." 58 And Jesus said to him, "Foxes have holes, and birds of the air have nests; but the Son of Man has nowhere to lay his head." 59 To another he said, "Follow me." But he said, "Lord, first let me go and bury my father." 60 But Jesus[h] said to him, "Let the dead bury their own dead; but as for you, go and proclaim the kingdom of God." 61 Another said, "I will follow you, Lord; but let me first say farewell to those at my home." 62 Jesus said to him, "No one who puts a hand to the plow and looks back is fit for the kingdom of God."

10 After this the Lord appointed seventy[i] others and sent them on ahead of him in pairs to every town and place where he himself intended to go. 2 He said to them, "The harvest is plentiful, but the laborers are few; therefore ask the Lord of the harvest to send out laborers into his harvest. 3 Go on your way. See, I am sending you out like lambs into the midst of wolves. 4 Carry no purse, no bag, no sandals; and greet no one on the road. 5 Whatever house you enter, first say, 'Peace to this house!' 6 And if anyone is there who shares in peace, your peace will rest on that person; but if not, it will return to you. 7 Remain in the same house, eating and drinking whatever they provide, for the laborer deserves to be paid. Do not move about from house to house. 8 Whenever you enter a town and its people welcome you, eat what is set before you; 9 cure the sick who are there, and say to them, 'The kingdom of God has come near to you.'[j] 10 But whenever you enter a town and they do not welcome you, go out into its streets and say, 11 'Even the dust of your town that clings to our feet, we wipe off in protest against you. Yet know this: the kingdom of God has come near.'[k] 12 I tell you, on that day it will be more tolerable for Sodom than for that town.

will you be exalted to heaven?
No, you will be brought down

16 "Whoever listens to you listens to me, and whoever rejects you rejects me, and whoever rejects me rejects the one who sent me."

17 The seventy[l] returned with joy, saying, "Lord, in your name even the demons submit to us!" 18He said to them, "I watched Satan fall from heaven like a flash of lightning. 19See, I have given you authority to tread on snakes and scorpions, and over all the power of the enemy; and nothing will hurt you. 20Nevertheless, do not rejoice at this, that the spirits submit to you, but rejoice that your names are written in heaven."

21 At that same hour Jesus[m] rejoiced in the Holy Spirit[n] and said, "I thank[o] you, Father, Lord of heaven and earth, because you have hidden these things from the wise and the intelligent and have revealed them to infants; yes, Father, for such was your gracious will.[p] 22All things have been handed over to me by my Father; and no one knows who the Son is except the Father, or who the Father is except the Son and anyone to whom the Son chooses to reveal him."

23 Then turning to the disciples, Jesus[m] said to them privately, "Blessed are the eyes that see what you see! 24For I tell you that many prophets and kings desired to see what you see, but did not see it, and to hear what you hear, but did not hear it."

25 Just then a lawyer stood up to test Jesus.[q] "Teacher," he said, "what must I do to inherit eternal life?" 26He said to him, "What is written in the law? What do you read there?" 27He answered, "You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, and with all your soul, and with all your strength, and with all your mind; and your neighbor as yourself." 28And he said to him, "You have given the right answer; do this, and you will live."

29 But wanting to justify himself, he asked Jesus, "And who is my neighbor?" 30Jesus replied, "A man was going down from Jerusalem to Jericho, and fell into the hands of robbers, who stripped him, beat him, and went away, leaving him half dead. 31Now by chance a priest was going down that road; and when he saw him, he passed by on the other side. 32So likewise a Levite, when he came to the place and saw him, passed by on the other side. 33But a Samaritan while traveling came near him; and when he saw him, he was moved with pity. 34He went to him and bandaged his wounds, having poured oil and wine on them. Then he put him on his own animal, brought him to an inn, and took care of him. 35The next day he took out two denarii,[r] gave them to the innkeeper, and said, 'Take care of him; and when I come back, I will repay you whatever more you spend.' 36Which of these three, do you think, was a neighbor to the man who fell into the hands of the robbers?" 37He said, "The one who showed him mercy." Jesus said to him, "Go and do likewise."

38 Now as they went on their way, he entered a certain village, where a woman named Martha welcomed him into her home. 39She had a sister named Mary, who sat at the Lord's feet and listened to what he was saying. 40But Martha was distracted by her many tasks; so she came to him and asked, "Lord, do you not care that my sister has left me to do all the work by myself? Tell her then to help me." 41But the Lord answered her, "Martha, Martha, you are worried and distracted by many things; 42there is need of only one thing.[s] Mary has chosen the better part, which will not be taken away from her."

11 He was praying in a certain place, and after he had finished, one of his disciples said to him, "Lord, teach us to pray, as John taught his disciples." 2He said to them, "When you pray, say:

Father,[t] hallowed be your name.
Your kingdom come.[u]
3 Give us each day our daily bread.[v]
4 And forgive us our sins,
for we ourselves forgive everyone indebted to us.
And do not bring us to the time of trial."[w]

5 And he said to them, "Suppose one of you has a friend, and you go to him at midnight and say to him, 'Friend, lend me three loaves of bread; 6for a friend of mine has arrived, and I have nothing to set before him.' 7And he answers from within, 'Do not bother me; the door has already been locked, and my children are with me in bed; I cannot get up and give you anything.' 8I tell you, even though he will not get up and give him anything because he is his friend, at least because of his persistence he will get up and give him whatever he needs.

14 Now he was casting out a demon that was mute; when the demon had gone out, the one who had been mute spoke, and the crowds were amazed. 15 But some of them said, "He casts out demons by Beelzebul, the ruler of the demons." 16 Others, to test him, kept demanding from him a sign from heaven. 17 But he knew what they were thinking and said to them, "Every kingdom divided against itself becomes a desert, and house falls on house. 18 If Satan also is divided against himself, how will his kingdom stand? —for you say that I cast out the demons by Beelzebul. 19 Now if I cast out the demons by Beelzebul, by whom do your exorcists[z] cast them out? Therefore they will be your judges. 20 But if it is by the finger of God that I cast out the demons, then the kingdom of God has come to you. 21 When a strong man, fully armed, guards his castle, his property is safe. 22 But when one stronger than he attacks him and overpowers him, he takes away his armor in which he trusted and divides his plunder. 23 Whoever is not with me is against me, and whoever does not gather with me scatters.

27 While he was saying this, a woman in the crowd raised her voice and said to him, "Blessed is the womb that bore you and the breasts that nursed you!" 28 But he said, "Blessed rather are those who hear the word of God and obey it!"

29 When the crowds were increasing, he began to say, "This generation is an evil generation; it asks for a sign, but no sign will be given to it except the sign of Jonah. 30 For just as Jonah became a sign to the people of Nineveh, so the Son of Man will be to this generation. 31 The queen of the South will rise at the judgment with the people of this generation and condemn them, because she came from the ends of the earth to listen to the wisdom of Solomon, and see, something greater than Solomon is here! 32 The people of Nineveh will rise up at the judgment with this generation and condemn it, because they repented at the proclamation of Jonah, and see, something greater than Jonah is here!

37 While he was speaking, a Pharisee invited him to dine with him; so he went in and took his place at the table. 38 The Pharisee was amazed to see that he did not first wash before dinner. 39 Then the Lord said to him, "Now you Pharisees clean the outside of the cup and of the dish, but inside you are full of greed and wickedness. 40 You fools! Did not the one who made the outside make the inside also? 41 So give for alms those things that are within; and see, everything will be clean for you.

42 "But woe to you Pharisees! For you tithe mint and rue and herbs of all kinds, and neglect justice and the love of God; it is these you ought to have practiced, without neglecting the others. 43 Woe to you Pharisees! For you love to have the seat of honor in the synagogues and to be greeted with respect in the marketplaces. 44 Woe to you! For you are like unmarked graves, and people walk over them without realizing it."

45 One of the lawyers answered him, "Teacher, when you say these things, you insult us too." 46 And he said, "Woe also to you lawyers! For you load people with burdens hard to bear, and you yourselves do not lift a finger to ease them. 47 Woe to you! For you build the tombs of the prophets whom your ancestors killed. 48 So you are witnesses and approve of the deeds of your ancestors; for they killed them, and you build their tombs. 49 Therefore also the Wisdom of God said, 'I will send them prophets and apostles, some of whom they will kill and persecute,' 50 so that this generation may be charged with the blood of all the prophets shed since the foundation of the world, 51 from the blood of Abel to the blood of Zechariah, who perished between the altar and the sanctuary. Yes, I tell you, it will be charged against this generation. 52 Woe to you lawyers! For you have taken away the key of knowledge; you did not enter yourselves, and you hindered those who were entering."

53 When he went outside, the scribes and the Pharisees began to be very hostile toward him and to cross-examine him about many things, 54 lying in wait for him, to catch him in something he might say.

12 Meanwhile, when the crowd gathered by the thousands, so that they trampled on one another, he began to speak first to his disciples, "Beware of the yeast of the Pharisees, that is, their hypocrisy. 2 Nothing is covered up that will not be uncovered, and nothing secret that will not become known. 3 Therefore whatever you have said in the dark will be heard in the light, and what you have whispered behind closed doors will be proclaimed from the housetops.

those who kill the body, and after that can do nothing more. 5But I will warn you whom to fear: fear him who, after he has killed, has authority[b] to cast into hell.[c] Yes, I tell you, fear him! 6Are not five sparrows sold for two pennies? Yet not one of them is forgotten in God's sight. 7But even the hairs of your head are all counted. Do not be afraid; you are of more value than many sparrows.

8 "And I tell you, everyone who acknowledges me before others, the Son of Man also will acknowledge before the angels of God; 9but whoever denies me before others will be denied before the angels of God. 10And everyone who speaks a word against the Son of Man will be forgiven; but whoever blasphemes against the Holy Spirit will not be forgiven. 11When they bring you before the synagogues, the rulers, and the authorities, do not worry about how[d] you are to defend yourselves or what you are to say; 12for the Holy Spirit will teach you at that very hour what you ought to say."

13 Someone in the crowd said to him, "Teacher, tell my brother to divide the family inheritance with me." 14But he said to him, "Friend, who set me to be a judge or arbitrator over you?" 15And he said to them, "Take care! Be on your guard against all kinds of greed; for one's life does not consist in the abundance of possessions." 16Then he told them a parable: "The land of a rich man produced abundantly. 17And he thought to himself, 'What should I do, for I have no place to store my crops?' 18Then he said, 'I will do this: I will pull down my barns and build larger ones, and there I will store all my grain and my goods. 19And I will say to my soul, Soul, you have ample goods laid up for many years; relax, eat, drink, be merry.' 20But God said to him, 'You fool! This very night your life is being demanded of you. And the things you have prepared, whose will they be?' 21So it is with those who store up treasures for themselves but are not rich toward God."

22 He said to his disciples, "Therefore I tell you, do not worry about your life, what you will eat, or about your body, what you will wear. 23For life is more than food, and the body more than clothing. 24Consider the ravens: they neither sow nor reap, they have neither storehouse nor barn, and yet God feeds them. Of how much more value are you than the birds! 25And can any of you by worrying add a single hour to your span of life?[e] 26If then you are not able to do so small a thing as that, why do you worry about the rest? 27Consider the lilies, how they grow: they neither toil nor spin;[f] yet I tell you, even Solomon in all his glory was not clothed like one of these. 28But if God so clothes the grass of the field, which is alive today and tomorrow is thrown into the oven, how much more will he clothe you—you of little faith! 29And do not keep striving for what you are to eat and what you are to drink, and do not keep worrying. 30For it is the nations of the world that strive after all these things, and your Father knows that you need them. 31Instead, strive for his[g] kingdom, and these things will be given to you as well.

32 "Do not be afraid, little flock, for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom. 33Sell your possessions, and give alms. Make purses for yourselves that do not wear out, an unfailing treasure in heaven, where no thief comes near and no moth destroys. 34For 35 "Be dressed for action and have your lamps lit; 36 be like those who are waiting for their master to return from the wedding banquet, so that they may open the door for him as soon as he comes and knocks. 37 Blessed are those slaves whom the master finds alert when he comes; truly I tell you, he will fasten his belt and have them sit down to eat, and he will come and serve them. 38 If he comes during the middle of the night, or near dawn, and finds them so, blessed are those slaves.

39 "But know this: if the owner of the house had known at what hour the thief was coming, he[h] would not have let his house be broken into. 40 You also must be ready, for the Son of Man is coming at an unexpected hour."

41 Peter said, "Lord, are you telling this parable for us or for everyone?" 42 And the Lord said, "Who then is the faithful and prudent manager whom his master will put in charge of his slaves, to give them their allowance of food at the proper time? 43 Blessed is that slave whom his master will find at work when he arrives. 44 Truly I tell you, he will put that one in charge of all his possessions. 45 But if that slave says to himself, 'My master is delayed in coming,' and if he begins to beat the other slaves, men and women, and to eat and drink and get drunk, 46 the master of that slave will come on a day when he does not expect him and at an hour that he does not know, and will cut him in pieces,[i] and put him with the unfaithful. 47 That slave who knew what his master wanted, but did not prepare himself or do what was wanted, will receive a severe beating. 48 But the one who did not know and did what deserved a beating will receive a light beating. From everyone to whom much has been given, much will be required; and from the one to whom much has been entrusted, even more will be demanded.

57 "And why do you not judge for yourselves what is right? 58Thus, when you go with your accuser before a magistrate, on the way make an effort to settle the case,[j] or you may be dragged before the judge, and the judge hand you over to the officer, and the officer throw you in prison. 59I tell you, you will never get out until you have paid the very last

13 At that very time there were some present who told him about the Galileans whose blood Pilate had mingled with their sacrifices. 2He asked them, "Do you think that because these Galileans suffered in this way they were worse sinners than all other Galileans?
3No, I tell you; but unless you repent, you will all perish as they did. 4Or those eighteen who were killed when the tower of Siloam fell on them—do you think that they were worse offenders than all the others living in Jerusalem? 5No, I tell you; but unless you repent, you will all perish just as they did."

6 Then he told this parable: "A man had a fig tree planted in his vineyard; and he came looking for fruit on it and found none. 7So he said to the gardener, 'See here! For three years I have come looking for fruit on this fig tree, and still I find none. Cut it down! Why should it be wasting the soil?' 8He replied, 'Sir, let it alone for one more year, until I dig around it and put manure on it. 9If it bears fruit next year, well and good; but if not, you can cut it down.' "

10 Now he was teaching in one of the synagogues on the sabbath. 11And just then there appeared a woman with a spirit that had crippled her for eighteen years. She was bent over and was quite unable to stand up straight. 12When Jesus saw her, he called her over and said,
"Woman, you are set free from your ailment." 13When he laid his hands on her, immediately she stood up straight and began praising God. 14But the leader of the synagogue, indignant because Jesus had cured on the sabbath, kept saying to the crowd, "There are six days on which work ought to be done; come on those days and be cured, and not on the sabbath day." 15But the Lord answered him and said, "You hypocrites! Does not each of you on the sabbath untie his ox or his donkey from the manger, and lead it away to give it water? 16And ought not this woman, a daughter of Abraham whom Satan bound for eighteen long years, be set free from this bondage on the sabbath day?" 17When he said this, all his opponents were put to shame; and the entire crowd was rejoicing at all the wonderful things that he was doing.

18 He said therefore, "What is the kingdom of God like? And to what should I compare it? 19It is like a mustard

According to common Jewish belief, painful experiences were signs of God's judgment (Jn 9.2–3). Jesus does not argue here (as in Mt 5.45) for a disconnection between natural and moral good and evil. Here suffering represents God's judgment and is a call to repentance lest spiritual catastrophe overtake his hearers. 4: Siloam, a section of Jerusalem.

They are in conflict with God's purpose of salvation in his covenant with Abraham, and are the concern of his saving activity (4.18; Mt 8.14–17).

seed that someone took and sowed in the garden; it grew and became a tree, and the birds of the air made nests in its branches."

20 And again he said, "To what should I compare the kingdom of God? 21 It is like yeast that a woman took and mixed in with[k] three measures of flour until all of it was leavened."

22 Jesus[l] went through one town and village after another, teaching as he made his way to Jerusalem. 23 Someone asked him, "Lord, will only a few be saved?" He said to them, 24 "Strive to enter through the narrow door; for many, I tell you, will try to enter and will not be able. 25 When once the owner of the house has got up and shut the door, and you begin to stand outside and to knock at the door, saying, 'Lord, open to us,' then in reply he will say to you, 'I do not know where you come from.' 26 Then you will begin to say, 'We ate and drank with you, and you taught in our streets.' 27 But he will say, 'I do not know where you come from; go away from me, all you evildoers!' 28 There will be weeping and gnashing of teeth when you see Abraham and Isaac and Jacob and all the prophets in the kingdom of God, and you yourselves thrown out. 29 Then people will come from east and west, from north and south, and will eat in the kingdom of God. 30 Indeed, some are last who will be first, and some are first who will be last."

31 At that very hour some Pharisees came and said to him, "Get away from here, for Herod wants to kill you." 32 He said to them, "Go and tell that fox for me,[m] 'Listen, I am casting out demons and performing cures today and tomorrow, and on the third day I finish my work. 33 Yet today, tomorrow, and the next day I must be on my way, because it is impossible for a prophet to be killed outside of Jerusalem.' 34 Jerusalem, Jerusalem, the city that kills the prophets and stones those who are sent to it! How often have I desired to gather your children together as a hen gathers her brood under her wings, and you were not willing! 35 See, your house is left to you. And I tell you, you will not see me until the time comes when[n] you say, 'Blessed is the one who comes in the name of the Lord.' "

14 On one occasion when Jesus[o] was going to the house of a leader of the Pharisees to eat a meal on the sabbath, they were watching him closely. 2 Just then, in front of him, there was a man who had dropsy. 3 And Jesus asked the lawyers and Pharisees, "Is it lawful to cure people on the sabbath, or not?" 4 But they were silent. So Jesus[o] took him and healed him, and sent him away. 5 Then he said to them, "If one of you has a child[p] or an ox that has fallen into a well, will you not immediately pull it out on a sabbath day?" 6 And they could not reply to this.

someone more distinguished than you has been invited by your host; [9]and the host who invited both of you may come and say to you, 'Give this person your place,' and then in disgrace you would start to take the lowest place. [10]But when you are invited, go and sit down at the lowest place, so that when your host comes, he may say to you, 'Friend, move up higher'; then you will be honored in the presence of all who sit at the table with you. [11]For all who exalt themselves will be humbled, and those who humble themselves will be exalted."

12 He said also to the one who had invited him, "When you give a luncheon or a dinner, do not invite your friends or your brothers or your relatives or rich neighbors, in case they may invite you in return, and you would be repaid. [13]But when you give a banquet, invite the poor, the crippled, the lame, and the blind. [14]And you will be blessed, because they cannot repay you, for you will be repaid at the resurrection of the righteous."

15 One of the dinner guests, on hearing this, said to him, "Blessed is anyone who will eat bread in the kingdom of God!" [16]Then Jesus[q] said to him, "Someone gave a great dinner and invited many. [17]At the time for the dinner he sent his slave to say to those who had been invited, 'Come; for everything is ready now.' [18]But they all alike began to make excuses. The first said to him, 'I have bought a piece of land, and I must go out and see it; please accept my regrets.' [19]Another said, 'I have bought five yoke of oxen, and I am going to try them out; please accept my regrets.' [20]Another said, 'I have just been married, and therefore I cannot come.' [21]So the slave returned and reported this to his master. Then the owner of the house became angry and said to his slave, 'Go out at once into the streets and lanes of the town and bring in the poor, the crippled, the blind, and the lame.' [22]And the slave said, 'Sir, what you ordered has been done, and there is still room.' [23]Then the master said to the slave, 'Go out into the roads and lanes, and compel people to come in, so that my house may be filled. [24]For I tell you,[r] none of those who were invited will taste my dinner.' "

25 Now large crowds were traveling with him; and he turned and said to them, [26]"Whoever comes to me and does not hate father and mother, wife and children, brothers and sisters, yes, and even life itself, cannot be my disciple. [27]Whoever does not carry the cross and follow me cannot be my disciple. [28]For which of you, intending to build a tower, does not first sit down and estimate the cost, to see whether he has enough to complete it? [29]Otherwise, when he has laid a foundation and is not able to finish, all who see it will begin to ridicule him, [30]saying, 'This fellow began to build and was not able to finish.' [31]Or what king, going out to wage war against another king, will not sit down first and consider whether he is able with ten thousand to oppose the one who comes against him with twenty thousand? [32]If he cannot, then, while the other is still far away, he sends a delegation and asks for the terms of peace. [33]So therefore, none of you can become my disciple if you do not give up all your possessions.

manure pile; they throw it away. Let anyone with ears to hear listen!"

15 Now all the tax collectors and sinners were coming near to listen to him. 2And the Pharisees and the scribes were grumbling and saying, "This fellow welcomes sinners and eats with them."

3 So he told them this parable: 4"Which one of you, having a hundred sheep and losing one of them, does not leave the ninety-nine in the wilderness and go after the one that is lost until he finds it? 5When he has found it, he lays it on his shoulders and rejoices. 6And when he comes home, he calls together his friends and neighbors, saying to them, 'Rejoice with me, for I have found my sheep that was lost.' 7Just so, I tell you, there will be more joy in heaven over one sinner who repents than over ninety-nine righteous persons who need no repentance.

8 "Or what woman having ten silver coins,[t] if she loses one of them, does not light a lamp, sweep the house, and search carefully until she finds it? 9When she has found it, she calls together her friends and neighbors, saying, 'Rejoice with me, for I have found the coin that I had lost.' 10Just so, I tell you, there is joy in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner who repents."

11 Then Jesus[u] said, "There was a man who had two sons. 12The younger of them said to his father, 'Father, give me the share of the property that will belong to me.' So he divided his property between them. 13A few days later the younger son gathered all he had and traveled to a distant country, and there he squandered his property in dissolute living. 14When he had spent everything, a severe famine took place throughout that country, and he began to be in need. 15So he went and hired himself out to one of the citizens of that country, who sent him to his fields to feed the pigs. 16He would gladly have filled himself with[v] the pods that the pigs were eating; and no one gave him anything. 17But when he came to himself he said, 'How many of my father's hired hands have bread enough and to spare, but here I am dying of hunger! 18I will get up and go to my father, and I will say to him, "Father, I have sinned against heaven and before you; 19I am no longer worthy to be called your son; treat me like one of your hired hands." ' 20So he set off and went to his father. But while he was still far off, his father saw him and was filled with compassion; he ran and put his arms around him and kissed him. 21Then the son said to him, 'Father, I have sinned against heaven and before you; I am no longer worthy to be called your son.'[w] 22But the father said to his slaves, 'Quickly, bring out a robe—the best one—and put it on him; put a ring on his finger and sandals on his feet. 23And get the fatted calf and kill it, and let us eat and celebrate; 24for this son of mine was dead and is alive again; he was lost and is found!' And they began to celebrate.

25 "Now his elder son was in the field; and when he came and approached the house, he heard music and dancing. 26He called one of the slaves and asked

15.1–32: Parables about the lost. 3–7: The lost sheep. Mt 18.12–14. The parable illustrates God's concern for those who lack ability to find him; he seeks them. 4: The phrase until he finds it is in harmony with Luke's universalism (see Introduction and contrast "if" in Mt 18.13).

15.8–10: The lost coin. This parable intensifies the picture of human helplessness and divine concern. The coin was approximately equivalent to the denarius (see note t).

Gen 41.42; Zech 3.4. 24: 1 Tim 5.6; Eph 2.1; Lk 9.60.

what was going on. 27He replied, 'Your brother has come, and your father has killed the fatted calf, because he has got him back safe and sound.' 28Then he became angry and refused to go in. His father came out and began to plead with him. 29But he answered his father, 'Listen! For all these years I have been working like a slave for you, and I have never disobeyed your command; yet you have never given me even a young goat so that I might celebrate with my friends. 30But when this son of yours came back, who has devoured your property with prostitutes, you killed the fatted calf for him!' 31Then the father[x] said to him, 'Son, you are always with me, and all that is mine is yours. 32But we had to celebrate and rejoice, because this brother of yours was dead and has come to life; he was lost and has been found.' "

16 Then Jesus[x] said to the disciples, "There was a rich man who had a manager, and charges were brought to him that this man was squandering his property. 2So he summoned him and said to him, 'What is this that I hear about you? Give me an accounting of your management, because you cannot be my manager any longer.' 3Then the manager said to himself, 'What will I do, now that my master is taking the position away from me? I am not strong enough to dig, and I am ashamed to beg. 4I have decided what to do so that, when I am dismissed as manager, people may welcome me into their homes.' 5So, summoning his master's debtors one by one, he asked the first, 'How much do you owe my master?' 6He answered, 'A hundred jugs of olive oil.' He said to him, 'Take your bill, sit down quickly, and make it fifty.' 7Then he asked another, 'And how much do you owe?' He replied, 'A hundred containers of wheat.' He said to him, 'Take your bill and make it eighty.' 8And his master commended the dishonest manager because he had acted shrewdly; for the children of this age are more shrewd in dealing with their own generation than are the children of light. 9And I tell you, make friends for yourselves by means of dishonest wealth[y] so that when it is gone, they may welcome you into the eternal homes.[z]

10 "Whoever is faithful in a very little is faithful also in much; and whoever is dishonest in a very little is dishonest also in much. 11If then you have not been faithful with the dishonest wealth,[y] who will entrust to you the true riches? 12And if you have not been faithful with what belongs to another, who will give you what is your own? 13No slave can serve two masters; for a slave will either hate the one and love the other, or be devoted to the one and despise the other. You cannot serve God and wealth."[y]

14 The Pharisees, who were lovers of money, heard all this, and they ridiculed him. 15So he said to them, "You are those who justify yourselves in the sight of others; but God knows your hearts; for what is prized by human beings is an abomination in the sight of God.

19 "There was a rich man who was dressed in purple and fine linen and who feasted sumptuously every day. 20 And at his gate lay a poor man named Lazarus, covered with sores, 21 who longed to satisfy his hunger with what fell from the rich man's table; even the dogs would come and lick his sores. 22 The poor man died and was carried away by the angels to be with Abraham.[b] The rich man also died and was buried. 23 In Hades, where he was being tormented, he looked up and saw Abraham far away with Lazarus by his side.[c] 24 He called out, 'Father Abraham, have mercy on me, and send Lazarus to dip the tip of his finger in water and cool my tongue; for I am in agony in these flames.' 25 But Abraham said, 'Child, remember that during your lifetime you received your good things, and Lazarus in like manner evil things; but now he is comforted here, and you are in agony. 26 Besides all this, between you and us a great chasm has been fixed, so that those who might want to pass from here to you cannot do so, and no one can cross from there to us.' 27 He said, 'Then, father, I beg you to send him to my father's house— 28 for I have five brothers—that he may warn them, so that they will not also come into this place of torment.' 29 Abraham replied, 'They have Moses and the prophets; they should listen to them.' 30 He said, 'No, father Abraham; but if someone goes to them from the dead, they will repent.' 31 He said to him, 'If they do not listen to Moses and the prophets, neither will they be convinced even if someone rises from the dead.' "

17 Jesus[d] said to his disciples, "Occasions for stumbling are bound to come, but woe to anyone by whom they come! 2 It would be better for you if a millstone were hung around your neck and you were thrown into the sea than for you to cause one of these little ones to stumble. 3 Be on your guard! If another disciple[e] sins, you must rebuke the offender, and if there is repentance, you must forgive. 4 And if the same person sins against you seven times a day, and turns back to you seven times and says, 'I repent,' you must forgive."

5 The apostles said to the Lord, "Increase our faith!" 6 The Lord replied, "If you had faith the size of a[f] mustard seed, you could say to this mulberry tree, 'Be uprooted and planted in the sea,' and it would obey you.

16.19–31: The rich man and Lazarus. It is not known whether Jesus alluded here to a contemporary incident. The main point (vv. 27–31) is that the Old Testament speaks an urgent and sufficient call to repentance (v. 17). As a whole the story seems to illustrate vv. 10–15. Jesus draws details from contemporary ways of expressing Jewish faith, including items not found in the Old Testament. 19: The rich man, though unnamed, is commonly called "Dives" (Latin for "rich man"). Purple was a rich cloth dyed with the liquid obtained from a species of shellfish. 20: The person named here is not to be identified with the Lazarus of Jn 11.1–44; 12.1, 9. 21–22: The moral quality of Lazarus is passed over to illustrate the fatal deficiency in the life of the other and the impossibility of changing his condemnation. 22: See 23.42 n. 29: Jn 5.45–47; Acts 15.21. 30: 3.8; 19.9.

commanded? 10So you also, when you have done all that you were ordered to do, say, 'We are worthless slaves; we have done only what we ought to have done!' "

11 On the way to Jerusalem Jesus[g] was going through the region between Samaria and Galilee. 12As he entered a village, ten lepers[h] approached him. Keeping their distance, 13they called out, saying, "Jesus, Master, have mercy on us!" 14When he saw them, he said to them, "Go and show yourselves to the priests." And as they went, they were made clean. 15Then one of them, when he saw that he was healed, turned back, praising God with a loud voice. 16He prostrated himself at Jesus'[i] feet and thanked him. And he was a Samaritan. 17Then Jesus asked, "Were not ten made clean? But the other nine, where are they? 18Was none of them found to return and give praise to God except this foreigner?" 19Then he said to him, "Get up and go on your way; your faith has made you well."

20 Once Jesus[g] was asked by the Pharisees when the kingdom of God was coming, and he answered, "The kingdom of God is not coming with things that can be observed; 21nor will they say, 'Look, here it is!' or 'There it is!' For, in fact, the kingdom of God is among[j] you."

22 Then he said to the disciples, "The days are coming when you will long to see one of the days of the Son of Man, and you will not see it. 23They will say to you, 'Look there!' or 'Look here!' Do not go, do not set off in pursuit. 24For as the lightning flashes and lights up the sky from one side to the other, so will the Son of Man be in his day.[k] 25But first he must endure much suffering and be rejected by this generation. 26Just as it was in the days of Noah, so too it will be in the days of the Son of Man. 27They were eating and drinking, and marrying and being given in marriage, until the day Noah entered the ark, and the flood came and destroyed all of them. 28Likewise, just as it was in the days of Lot: they were eating and drinking, buying and selling, planting and building, 29but on the day that Lot left Sodom, it rained fire and sulfur from heaven and destroyed all of them 30—it will be like that on the day that the Son of Man is revealed. 31On that day, anyone on the housetop who has belongings in the house must not come down to take them away; and likewise anyone in the field must not turn back. 32Remember Lot's wife. 33Those who try to make their life secure will lose it, but those who lose their life will keep it. 34I tell you, on that night there will be two in one bed; one will be taken and the other left. 35There will be two women grinding meal together; one will be taken and the other left."[l] 37Then they asked him, "Where, Lord?" He said to them,

Jesus' answer is a significant appeal to faith. The questioners wish to know where the Messiah and his people will be located. Instead of answering them directly, Jesus warns: As surely as vultures find the carcass, so surely will divine judgment come; therefore always be ready!

"Where the corpse is, there the vultures will gather."

18 Then Jesus[m] told them a parable about their need to pray always and not to lose heart. 2He said, "In a certain city there was a judge who neither feared God nor had respect for people. 3In that city there was a widow who kept coming to him and saying, 'Grant me justice against my opponent.' 4For a while he refused; but later he said to himself, 'Though I have no fear of God and no respect for anyone, 5yet because this widow keeps bothering me, I will grant her justice, so that she may not wear me out by continually coming.' "[n] 6And the Lord said, "Listen to what the unjust judge says. 7And will not God grant justice to his chosen ones who cry to him day and night? Will he delay long in helping them? 8I tell you, he will quickly grant justice to them. And yet, when the Son of Man comes, will he find faith on earth?"

9 He also told this parable to some who trusted in themselves that they were righteous and regarded others with contempt: 10"Two men went up to the temple to pray, one a Pharisee and the other a tax collector. 11The Pharisee, standing by himself, was praying thus, 'God, I thank you that I am not like other people: thieves, rogues, adulterers, or even like this tax collector. 12I fast twice a week; I give a tenth of all my income.' 13But the tax collector, standing far off, would not even look up to heaven, but was beating his breast and saying, 'God, be merciful to me, a sinner!' 14I tell you, this man went down to his home justified rather than the other; for all who exalt themselves will be humbled, but all who humble themselves will be exalted."

15 People were bringing even infants to him that he might touch them; and when the disciples saw it, they sternly ordered them not to do it. 16But Jesus called for them and said, "Let the little children come to me, and do not stop them; for it is to such as these that the kingdom of God belongs. 17Truly I tell you, whoever does not receive the kingdom of God as a little child will never enter it."

18 A certain ruler asked him, "Good Teacher, what must I do to inherit eternal life?" 19Jesus said to him, "Why do you call me good? No one is good but God alone. 20You know the commandments: 'You shall not commit adultery; You shall not murder; You shall not steal; You shall not bear false witness; Honor your father and mother.' " 21He replied, "I have kept all these since my youth." 22When Jesus heard this, he said to him, "There is still one thing lacking. Sell all that you own and distribute the money[o] to the poor, and you will have treasure in heaven; then come, follow me." 23But when he heard this, he became sad; for he was very rich. 24Jesus looked at him and said, "How hard it is for those who have wealth to enter the kingdom of God! 25Indeed, it is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for someone who is rich to enter the kingdom of God."

26 Those who heard it said, "Then who can be saved?" 27He replied, "What is impossible for mortals is possible for God."

28 Then Peter said, "Look, we have left our homes and followed you." 29And he said to them, "Truly I tell you, there is no one who has left house or wife or brothers or parents or children, for the sake of the kingdom of God, 30who will not get back very much more in this age, and in the age to come eternal life."

31 Then he took the twelve aside and said to them, "See, we are going up to Jerusalem, and everything that is written about the Son of Man by the prophets will be accomplished. 32For he will be handed over to the Gentiles; and he will be mocked and insulted and spat upon. 33After they have flogged him, they will kill him, and on the third day he will rise again." 34But they understood nothing about all these things; in fact, what he said was hidden from them, and they did not grasp what was said.

35 As he approached Jericho, a blind man was sitting by the roadside begging. 36When he heard a crowd going by, he asked what was happening. 37They told him, "Jesus of Nazareth[p] is passing by." 38Then he shouted, "Jesus, Son of David, have mercy on me!" 39Those who were in front sternly ordered him to be quiet; but he shouted even more loudly, "Son of David, have mercy on me!" 40Jesus stood still and ordered the man to be brought to him; and when he came near, he asked him, 41"What do you want me to do for you?" He said, "Lord, let me see again." 42Jesus said to him, "Receive your sight; your faith has saved you." 43Immediately he regained his sight and followed him, glorifying God; and all the people, when they saw it, praised God.

19 He entered Jericho and was passing through it. 2A man was there named Zacchaeus; he was a chief tax collector and was rich. 3He was trying to see who Jesus was, but on account of the crowd he could not, because he was short in stature. 4So he ran ahead and climbed a sycamore tree to see him, because he was going to pass that way. 5When Jesus came to the place, he looked up and said to him, "Zacchaeus, hurry and come down; for I must stay at your house today." 6So he hurried down and was happy to welcome him. 7All who saw it began to grumble and said, "He has gone to be the guest of one who is a sinner." 8Zacchaeus stood there and said to the Lord, "Look, half of my possessions, Lord, I will give to the poor; and if I have defrauded anyone of anything, I will pay back four times as much." 9Then Jesus said to him, "Today salvation has come to this house, because he too is a son of Abraham. 10For the Son of Man came to seek out and to save the lost."

11 As they were listening to this, he went on to tell a parable, because he was near Jerusalem, and because they supposed that the kingdom of God was to appear immediately. 12 So he said, "A nobleman went to a distant country to get royal power for himself and then return. 13 He summoned ten of his slaves, and gave them ten pounds,[q] and said to them, 'Do business with these until I come back.' 14 But the citizens of his country hated him and sent a delegation after him, saying, 'We do not want this man to rule over us.' 15 When he returned, having received royal power, he ordered these slaves, to whom he had given the money, to be summoned so that he might find out what they had gained by trading. 16 The first came forward and said, 'Lord, your pound has made ten more pounds.' 17 He said to him, 'Well done, good slave! Because you have been trustworthy in a very small thing, take charge of ten cities.' 18 Then the second came, saying, 'Lord, your pound has made five pounds.' 19 He said to him, 'And you, rule over five cities.' 20 Then the other came, saying, 'Lord, here is your pound. I wrapped it up in a piece of cloth, 21 for I was afraid of you, because you are a harsh man; you take what you did not deposit, and reap what you did not sow.' 22 He said to him, 'I will judge you by your own words, you wicked slave! You knew, did you, that I was a harsh man, taking what I did not deposit and reaping what I did not sow? 23 Why then did you not put my money into the bank? Then when I returned, I could have collected it with interest.' 24 He said to the bystanders, 'Take the pound from him and give it to the one who has ten pounds.' 25 (And they said to him, 'Lord, he has ten pounds!') 26 'I tell you, to all those who have, more will be given; but from those who have nothing, even what they have will be taken away. 27 But as for these enemies of mine who did not want me to be king over them—bring them here and slaughter them in my presence.' "

28 After he had said this, he went on ahead, going up to Jerusalem.

29 When he had come near Bethphage and Bethany, at the place called the Mount of Olives, he sent two of the disciples, 30 saying, "Go into the village ahead of you, and as you enter it you will find tied there a colt that has never been ridden. Untie it and bring it here. 31 If anyone asks you, 'Why are you untying it?' just say this, 'The Lord needs it.' " 32 So those who were sent departed and found it as he had told them. 33 As they were untying the colt, its owners asked them, "Why are you untying the colt?" 34 They said, "The Lord needs it." 35 Then they brought it to Jesus; and after throwing their cloaks on the colt, they set Jesus on it. 36 As he rode along, people kept spreading their cloaks on the road. 37 As he was now approaching the path down from the Mount of Olives, the whole multitude of the disciples began to praise God joyfully with a loud voice for all the deeds of power that they had seen, 38 saying,

"Blessed is the king

and glory in the highest

39 Some of the Pharisees in the crowd said to him, "Teacher, order your disciples to stop." 40 He answered, "I tell you, if these were silent, the stones would shout out."

41 As he came near and saw the city, he wept over it, 42 saying, "If you, even you, had only recognized on this day the things that make for peace! But now they are hidden from your eyes. 43 Indeed, the days will come upon you, when your enemies will set up ramparts around you and surround you, and hem you in on every side. 44 They will crush you to the ground, you and your children within you, and they will not leave within you one stone upon another; because you did not recognize the time of your visitation from God."[r]

45 Then he entered the temple and began to drive out those who were selling things there; 46 and he said, "It is written,

'My house shall be a house
of prayer';
but you have made it a den
of robbers."

47 Every day he was teaching in the temple. The chief priests, the scribes, and the leaders of the people kept looking for a way to kill him; 48 but they did not find anything they could do, for all the people were spellbound by what they heard.

20 One day, as he was teaching the people in the temple and telling the good news, the chief priests and the scribes came with the elders 2 and said to him, "Tell us, by what authority are you doing these things? Who is it who gave you this authority?" 3 He answered them, "I will also ask you a question, and you tell me: 4 Did the baptism of John come from heaven, or was it of human origin?" 5 They discussed it with one another, saying, "If we say, 'From heaven,' he will say, 'Why did you not believe him?' 6 But if we say, 'Of human origin,' all the people will stone us; for they are convinced that John was a prophet." 7 So they answered that they did not know where it came from. 8 Then Jesus said to them, "Neither will I tell you by what authority I am doing these things."

9 He began to tell the people this parable: "A man planted a vineyard, and leased it to tenants, and went to another country for a long time. 10 When the season came, he sent a slave to the tenants in order that they might give him his share of the produce of the vineyard; but the tenants beat him and sent him away empty-handed. 11 Next he sent another slave; that one also they beat and insulted and sent away empty-handed. 12 And he sent still a third; this one also they wounded and threw out. 13 Then the owner of the vineyard said, 'What shall I do? I will send my beloved son; perhaps they will respect him.' 14 But when the tenants saw him, they discussed it among themselves and said, 'This is the heir; let us kill him so that the inheritance may be ours.' 15 So they threw him out of the vineyard and killed him. What then will the owner of the vineyard do to them? 16 He will come and destroy those tenants and give the vineyard to others." When they heard this, they said, "Heaven forbid!" 17 But he looked at them and said, "What then does this text mean:

rejected
has become the cornerstone'?[s]
18 Everyone who falls on that stone will be broken to pieces; and it will crush anyone on whom it falls." 19 When the scribes and chief priests realized that he had told this parable against them, they wanted to lay hands on him at that very hour, but they feared the people.

20 So they watched him and sent spies who pretended to be honest, in order to trap him by what he said, so as to hand him over to the jurisdiction and authority of the governor. 21 So they asked him, "Teacher, we know that you are right in what you say and teach, and you show deference to no one, but teach the way of God in accordance with truth. 22 Is it lawful for us to pay taxes to the emperor, or not?" 23 But he perceived their craftiness and said to them, 24 "Show me a denarius. Whose head and whose title does it bear?" They said, "The emperor's." 25 He said to them, "Then give to the emperor the things that are the emperor's, and to God the things that are God's." 26 And they were not able in the presence of the people to trap him by what he said; and being amazed by his answer, they became silent.

27 Some Sadducees, those who say there is no resurrection, came to him 28 and asked him a question, "Teacher, Moses wrote for us that if a man's brother dies, leaving a wife but no children, the man[t] shall marry the widow and raise up children for his brother. 29 Now there were seven brothers; the first married, and died childless; 30 then the second 31 and the third married her, and so in the same way all seven died childless. 32 Finally the woman also died. 33 In the resurrection, therefore, whose wife will the woman be? For the seven had married her."

34 Jesus said to them, "Those who belong to this age marry and are given in marriage; 35 but those who are considered worthy of a place in that age and in the resurrection from the dead neither marry nor are given in marriage. 36 Indeed they cannot die anymore, because they are like angels and are children of God, being children of the resurrection. 37 And the fact that the dead are raised Moses himself showed, in the story about the bush, where he speaks of the Lord as the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. 38 Now he is God not of the dead, but of the living; for to him all of them are alive." 39 Then some of the scribes answered, "Teacher, you have spoken well." 40 For they no longer dared to ask him another question.

41 Then he said to them, "How can they say that the Messiah[u] is David's son? 42 For David himself says in the book of Psalms,

'The Lord said to my Lord,
"Sit at my right hand,
43 until I make your enemies your
footstool." '

25 "There will be signs in the sun, the moon, and the stars, and on the earth distress among nations confused by the roaring of the sea and the waves. 26 People will faint from fear and foreboding of what is coming upon the world, for the powers of the heavens will be shaken. 27 Then they will see 'the Son of Man coming in a cloud' with power and great glory. 28 Now when these things begin to take place, stand up and raise your heads, because your redemption is drawing near."

29 Then he told them a parable: "Look at the fig tree and all the trees; 30 as soon as they sprout leaves you can see for yourselves and know that summer is already near. 31 So also, when you see these things taking place, you know that the kingdom of God is near. 32 Truly I tell you, this generation will not pass away until all things have taken place. 33 Heaven and earth will pass away, but my words will not pass away.

37 Every day he was teaching in the temple, and at night he would go out and spend the night on the Mount of Olives, as it was called. 38 And all the people would get up early in the morning to listen to him in the temple.

22 Now the festival of Unleavened Bread, which is called the Passover, was near. 2 The chief priests and the scribes were looking for a way to put Jesus[a] to death, for they were afraid of the people.

3 Then Satan entered into Judas called Iscariot, who was one of the twelve; 4 he went away and conferred with the chief priests and officers of the temple police about how he might betray him to them. 5 They were greatly pleased and agreed to give him money. 6 So he consented and began to look for an opportunity to betray him to them when no crowd was present.

7 Then came the day of Unleavened Bread, on which the Passover lamb had to be sacrificed. 8 So Jesus[b] sent Peter and John, saying, "Go and prepare the Passover meal for us that we may eat it." 9 They asked him, "Where do you want us to make preparations for it?" 10 "Listen," he said to them, "when you have entered the city, a man carrying a jar of water will meet you; follow him into the house he enters 11 and say to the owner of the house, 'The teacher asks you, "Where is the guest room, where I may eat the Passover with my disciples?"' 12 He will show you a large room upstairs, already furnished. found everything as he had told them; and they prepared the Passover meal.

14 When the hour came, he took his place at the table, and the apostles with him. 15He said to them, "I have eagerly desired to eat this Passover with you before I suffer; 16for I tell you, I will not eat it[c] until it is fulfilled in the kingdom of God." 17Then he took a cup, and after giving thanks he said, "Take this and divide it among yourselves; 18for I tell you that from now on I will not drink of the fruit of the vine until the kingdom of God comes." 19Then he took a loaf of bread, and when he had given thanks, he broke it and gave it to them, saying, "This is my body, which is given for you. Do this in remembrance of me." 20And he did the same with the cup after supper, saying, "This cup that is poured out for you is the new covenant in my blood.[d] 21But see, the one who betrays me is with me, and his hand is on the table. 22For the Son of Man is going as it has been determined, but woe to that one by whom he is betrayed!" 23Then they began to ask one another which one of them it could be who would do this.

24 A dispute also arose among them as to which one of them was to be regarded as the greatest. 25But he said to them, "The kings of the Gentiles lord it over them; and those in authority over them are called benefactors. 26But not so with you; rather the greatest among you must become like the youngest, and the leader like one who serves. 27For who is greater, the one who is at the table or the one who serves? Luke's order of events may be related to this fact, or to variations among early Christians in the way they observed the Lord's supper. Jesus transformed a Jewish devotional meal into a continuing expression of association with himself in death and victory. 19: 1 Cor 11.23–26. 21: Ps 41.9; Jn 13.21–30.

37 For I tell you, this scripture must be fulfilled in me, 'And he was counted among the lawless'; and indeed what is written about me is being fulfilled." 38 They said, "Lord, look, here are two swords." He replied, "It is enough."

39 He came out and went, as was his custom, to the Mount of Olives; and the disciples followed him. 40 When he reached the place, he said to them, "Pray that you may not come into the time of trial."[g] 41 Then he withdrew from them about a stone's throw, knelt down, and prayed, 42 "Father, if you are willing, remove this cup from me; yet, not my will but yours be done." ‖ 43 Then an angel from heaven appeared to him and gave him strength. 44 In his anguish he prayed more earnestly, and his sweat became like great drops of blood falling down on the ground.‖[h] 45 When he got up from prayer, he came to the disciples and found them sleeping because of grief, 46 and he said to them, "Why are you sleeping? Get up and pray that you may not come into the time of trial."[g]

47 While he was still speaking, suddenly a crowd came, and the one called Judas, one of the twelve, was leading them. He approached Jesus to kiss him; 48 but Jesus said to him, "Judas, is it with a kiss that you are betraying the Son of Man?" 49 When those who were around him saw what was coming, they asked, "Lord, should we strike with the sword?" 50 Then one of them struck the slave of the high priest and cut off his right ear. 51 But Jesus said, "No more of this!" And he touched his ear and healed him. 52 Then Jesus said to the chief priests, the officers of the temple police, and the elders who had come for him, "Have you come out with swords and clubs as if I were a bandit? 53 When I was with you day after day in the temple, you did not lay hands on me. But this is your hour, and the power of darkness!"

54 Then they seized him and led him away, bringing him into the high priest's house. But Peter was following at a distance. 55 When they had kindled a fire in the middle of the courtyard and sat down together, Peter sat among them. 56 Then a servant-girl, seeing him in the firelight, stared at him and said, "This man also was with him." 57 But he denied it, saying, "Woman, I do not know him." 58 A little later someone else, on seeing him, said, "You also are one of them." But Peter said, "Man, I am not!" 59 Then about an hour later still another kept insisting, "Surely this man also was with him; for he is a Galilean." 60 But Peter said, "Man, I do not know what you are talking about!" At that moment, while he was still speaking, the cock crowed. 61 The Lord turned and looked at Peter. Then Peter remembered the word of the Lord, how he had said to him, "Before the cock crows today, you will deny me three times." 62 And he went out and wept bitterly.

63 Now the men who were holding Jesus began to mock him and beat him; 64 they also blindfolded him and kept asking him, "Prophesy! Who is it that struck you?" [65]They kept heaping many other insults on him.

66 When day came, the assembly of the elders of the people, both chief priests and scribes, gathered together, and they brought him to their council. [67]They said, "If you are the Messiah,[i] tell us." He replied, "If I tell you, you will not believe; [68]and if I question you, you will not answer. [69]But from now on the Son of Man will be seated at the right hand of the power of God." [70]All of them asked, "Are you, then, the Son of God?" He said to them, "You say that I am." [71]Then they said, "What further testimony do we need? We have heard it ourselves from his own lips!"

23 Then the assembly rose as a body and brought Jesus[j] before Pilate. [2]They began to accuse him, saying, "We found this man perverting our nation, forbidding us to pay taxes to the emperor, and saying that he himself is the Messiah, a king."[k] [3]Then Pilate asked him, "Are you the king of the Jews?" He answered, "You say so." [4]Then Pilate said to the chief priests and the crowds, "I find no basis for an accusation against this man." [5]But they were insistent and said, "He stirs up the people by teaching throughout all Judea, from Galilee where he began even to this place."

6 When Pilate heard this, he asked whether the man was a Galilean. [7]And when he learned that he was under Herod's jurisdiction, he sent him off to Herod, who was himself in Jerusalem at that time. [8]When Herod saw Jesus, he was very glad, for he had been wanting to see him for a long time, because he had heard about him and was hoping to see him perform some sign. [9]He questioned him at some length, but Jesus[l] gave him no answer. [10]The chief priests and the scribes stood by, vehemently accusing him. [11]Even Herod with his soldiers treated him with contempt and mocked him; then he put an elegant robe on him, and sent him back to Pilate. [12]That same day Herod and Pilate became friends with each other; before this they had been enemies.

13 Pilate then called together the chief priests, the leaders, and the people, [14]and said to them, "You brought me this man as one who was perverting the people; and here I have examined him in your presence and have not found this man guilty of any of your charges against him. [15]Neither has Herod, for he sent him back to us. Indeed, he has done nothing to deserve death. [16]I will therefore have him flogged and release him."[m]

18 Then they all shouted out together, "Away with this fellow! Release Barabbas for us!" [19](This was a man who had been put in prison for an insurrection that had taken place in the city, and for murder.) [20]Pilate, wanting to release Jesus, addressed them again; [21]but they kept shouting, "Crucify, crucify him!" [22]A third time he said to them, "Why, what evil has he done? I have found in him no ground for the sentence of death; I will therefore have him flogged and then release him." [23]But they kept urgently demanding with loud shouts that he should be crucified; and their voices prevailed. [24]So Pilate gave his verdict that their demand should be granted. 26 As they led him away, they seized a man, Simon of Cyrene, who was coming from the country, and they laid the cross on him, and made him carry it behind Jesus. 27 A great number of the people followed him, and among them were women who were beating their breasts and wailing for him. 28 But Jesus turned to them and said, "Daughters of Jerusalem, do not weep for me, but weep for yourselves and for your children. 29 For the days are surely coming when they will say, 'Blessed are the barren, and the wombs that never bore, and the breasts that never nursed.' 30 Then they will begin to say to the mountains, 'Fall on us'; and to the hills, 'Cover us.' 31 For if they do this when the wood is green, what will happen when it is dry?"

women who had followed him from Galilee, stood at a distance, watching these things.

50 Now there was a good and righteous man named Joseph, who, though a member of the council, 51 had not agreed to their plan and action. He came from the Jewish town of Arimathea, and he was waiting expectantly for the kingdom of God. 52 This man went to Pilate and asked for the body of Jesus. 53 Then he took it down, wrapped it in a linen cloth, and laid it in a rock-hewn tomb where no one had ever been laid. 54 It was the day of Preparation, and the sabbath was beginning. [w] 55 The women who had come with him from Galilee followed, and they saw the tomb and how his body was laid. 56 Then they returned, and prepared spices and ointments.

On the sabbath they rested according to the commandment.

24 But on the first day of the week, at early dawn, they came to the tomb, taking the spices that they had prepared. 2 They found the stone rolled away from the tomb, 3 but when they went in, they did not find the body. [x] 4 While they were perplexed about this, suddenly two men in dazzling clothes stood beside them. 5 The women [y] were terrified and bowed their faces to the ground, but the men [z] said to them, "Why do you look for the living among the dead? He is not here, but has risen. [a] 6 Remember how he told you, while he was still in Galilee, 7 that the Son of Man must be handed over to sinners, and be crucified, and on the third day rise again." 8 Then they remembered his words, 9 and returning from the tomb, they told all this to the eleven and to all the rest. 10 Now it was Mary Magdalene, Joanna, Mary the mother of James, and the other women with them who told this to the apostles. 11 But these words seemed to them an idle tale, and they did not believe them. 12 But Peter got up and ran to the tomb; stooping and looking in, he saw the linen cloths by themselves; then he went home, amazed at what had happened. [b]

13 Now on that same day two of them were going to a village called Emmaus, about seven miles [c] from Jerusalem, 14 and talking with each other about all these things that had happened. 15 While they were talking and discussing, Jesus himself came near and went with them, 16 but their eyes were kept from recognizing him. 17 And he said to them, "What are you discussing with each other while you walk along?" They stood still, looking sad. [d] 18 Then one of them, whose name was Cleopas, answered him, "Are you the only stranger in Jerusalem who does not know the things that have taken place there in these days?" 19 He asked them, "What things?" They replied, "The things about Jesus of Nazareth, [e] who was a prophet mighty in deed and word before God and all the people, 20 and how our chief priests and leaders handed him over to be condemned to death and crucified him. 21 But we had hoped that he was the one to redeem Israel.[f] Yes, and besides all this, it is now the third day since these things took place. 22 Moreover, some women of our group astounded us. They were at the tomb early this morning. 23 and when they did not find his body there, they came back and told us that they had indeed seen a vision of angels who said that he was alive. 24 Some of those who were with us went to the tomb and found it just as the women had said; but they did not see him." 25 Then he said to them, "Oh, how foolish you are, and how slow of heart to believe all that the prophets have declared! 26 Was it not necessary that the Messiah[g] should suffer these things and then enter into his glory?" 27 Then beginning with Moses and all the prophets, he interpreted to them the things about himself in all the scriptures.

28 As they came near the village to which they were going, he walked ahead as if he were going on. 29 But they urged him strongly, saying, "Stay with us, because it is almost evening and the day is now nearly over." So he went in to stay with them. 30 When he was at the table with them, he took bread, blessed and broke it, and gave it to them. 31 Then their eyes were opened, and they recognized him; and he vanished from their sight. 32 They said to each other, "Were not our hearts burning within us[h] while he was talking to us on the road, while he was opening the scriptures to us?" 33 That same hour they got up and returned to Jerusalem; and they found the eleven and their companions gathered together. 34 They were saying, "The Lord has risen indeed, and he has appeared to Simon!" 35 Then they told what had happened on the road, and how he had been made known to them in the breaking of the bread.

36 While they were talking about this, Jesus himself stood among them and said to them, "Peace be with you."[i] 37 They were startled and terrified, and thought that they were seeing a ghost. 38 He said to them, "Why are you frightened, and why do doubts arise in your hearts? 39 Look at my hands and my feet; see that it is I myself. Touch me and see; for a ghost does not have flesh and bones as you see that I have." 40 And when he had said this, he showed them his hands and his feet.[j] 41 While in their joy they were disbelieving and still wondering, he said to them, "Have you anything here to eat?" 42 They gave him a piece of broiled fish, 43 and he took it and ate in their presence.

44 Then he said to them, "These are my words that I spoke to you while I was still with you—that everything written about me in the law of Moses, the prophets, and the psalms must be fulfilled." 45 Then he opened their minds to understand the scriptures, 46 and he said to

The Gospel According to John

The fourth Gospel explains the mystery of the person of Jesus. Like others among his contemporaries, yet also unlike them, he stands above them in unique, solitary grandeur. Whence this uniqueness? The Evangelist takes us behind the scenes of Jesus' ministry, giving us a glimpse into his eternal origin and divine nature. He was unique because "he was in the beginning with God," active in creation, the source of light and life (1.2–4). Hence, when he became incarnate in human flesh, he made known the eternal God, whom "no one has ever seen" (1.14, 18).

As do the other Evangelists, the author records real events, but he goes beyond them in interpreting these events. He uses symbolically a number of terms drawn from common experience—bread, water, light, life, word, shepherd, door, way—to make the significance of Christ both clear and gripping. After a magnificent prologue (1.1–18) he sets forth Jesus Christ as the object of faith (1.19–4.54), depicts Christ's conflict with unbelievers (chs 5–12), his fellowship with believers (chs 13–17), his death and resurrection (chs 18–20), and concludes with an epilogue (ch 21). A large part of the Gospel consists of discourses of Jesus. These discourses are not individual sayings (as in the Synoptic Gospels), nor even collections of sayings (as in the Sermon on the Mount, Matthew 5–7); they develop a particular theme. Furthermore, it is characteristic of the Johannine discourses that Jesus is interrupted by questions or objections from the hearers—something that never happens in the other Gospels.

The first half of the fourth Gospel contains accounts of seven miracles of Jesus, though the author knows that Jesus had performed many others as well (20.30). John's word for these wondrous deeds is "signs," because they are here regarded as symbols of Jesus' teaching or as a revelation of his glory (2.11). Their purpose is to evoke faith on the part of those who witness them (2.23), beginning with the disciples (2.11).

The conflict between Jesus and the Pharisees reported in the Synoptic Gospels is given marked attention in John (for example, 8.31–59; 10.19–39), and the expression "the Jews" (which should not be understood as a condemnation of Jews in particular or in general) virtually becomes a technical term for those who reject Jesus. These features no doubt reflect the heightened antagonism that developed in the latter part of the first century between church and synagogue, with mutual recrimination arising.

While the Synoptic Gospels preserve the sayings of Jesus in words closer to their original form, the fourth Evangelist employs more freely his own modes of thought and language in reporting and interpreting the teaching of Jesus. The fact, however, that this Gospel was soon placed side by side with the Synoptics indicates that the early church realized that Jesus' promise, as reported by John (14.26), had been fulfilled, "The Holy Spirit . . . will teach you everything, and remind you of all that I have said to you."

Who wrote this Gospel? Tradition says it was the apostle John. Many scholars, however, think that it was composed by a disciple of John who recorded his preaching as Mark did that of Peter. In any case, when the Gospel was published near the close of the first century, the church accepted it as authentic and apostolic testimony to Jesus (21.24), written that readers might "come to believe that Jesus is the Messiah, the Son of God," and thus "have life in his name" (20.31). (For the literary genre of the gospels, see pp. viii–x NT.)

1 In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. 2He was in the beginning with God. 3All things came into being through him, and without him not one thing came into being. What has come into being 4in him was life,[a] and the life was the light of all people. 5The light shines in the darkness, and the darkness did not overcome it.

6 There was a man sent from God, whose name was John. 7He came as a witness to testify to the light, so that all might believe through him. 8He himself was not the light, but he came to testify to the light. 9The true light, which enlightens everyone, was coming into the world.[b]

10 He was in the world, and the world came into being through him; yet the world did not know him. 11He came to what was his own,[c] and his own people did not accept him. 12But to all who received him, who believed in his name, he gave power to become children of God, 13who were born, not of blood or of the will of the flesh or of the will of man, but of God.

14 And the Word became flesh and lived among us, and we have seen his glory, the glory as of a father's only son,[d] full of grace and truth. 15(John testified to him and cried out, "This was he of whom I said, 'He who comes after me ranks ahead of me because he was before me.' ") 16From his fullness we have all received, grace upon grace. 17The law indeed was given through Moses; grace and truth came through Jesus Christ. 18No one has ever seen God. It is God the only Son,[e] who is close to the Father's heart,[f] who has made him known.

19 This is the testimony given by John when the Jews sent priests and Levites from Jerusalem to ask him, "Who are you?" 20He confessed and did not deny it, but confessed, "I am not the Messiah."[g] 21And they asked him, "What then? Are you Elijah?" He said, "I am not." "Are you the prophet?" He answered, "No." 22Then they said to him, "Who are you? Let us have an answer for those who sent us. What do you say about yourself?" 23He said,

"I am the voice of one crying out in the wilderness,
'Make straight the way of
the Lord,' "

1.1–18: The Prologue. 1–2: The Word (Greek "logos") of God is more than speech; it is God in action, creating (Gen 1.3; Ps 33.6), revealing (Am 3.7–8), redeeming (Ps 107.19–20). Jesus is this Word (v. 14). He was eternal (in the beginning; compare Gen 1.1); personal (with God); divine (was God). Was, not "became" (contrast v. 14). 3: He was sole agent of creation (Gen 1.1; Prov 8.27–30; Col 1.16–17; Heb 1.2). 4: Apart from him both physical (Col 1.17) and spiritual life would recede into nothingness (5.39–40; 8.12). 5: Darkness is total evil in conflict with God; it cannot overcome.

1.6–8: John (the Baptist), climaxing the Old Testament prophets, was sent (commissioned by God, Mal 3.1) to point to Jesus (vv. 19–34). 9: True light is real, underived light, contrasted not with false light, but with those such as John, who was but a lamp (5.35). 11: His own people, the Jews.

1.14–17: God's glory dwelt ("tabernacled") in the flesh (human nature) of Jesus, as did his grace (redeeming love) and truth (faithfulness to his promises). These are available to all, exhaustless (grace upon grace), a fulfillment of the law of Moses. 18: Close to the Father's heart, complete communion (vv. 1–2). On seeing and knowing God, see 14.9.

1.19–34: The testimony of John. 19: Jews, the religious authorities. 21: Elijah (2 Kings 2.11) was expected to return to prepare the Messiah's way (Mal 4.5). John is unconscious of this role, but Jesus later ascribed it to him (see Mt 11.14 n.; Mk 9.13 n.). The prophet was likewise an expected Messianic forerunner (6.14; 7.40; see Deut 18.15). 23: As a voice John fulfills a prophetic role

24 Now they had been sent from the Pharisees. 25 They asked him, "Why then are you baptizing if you are neither the Messiah,[h] nor Elijah, nor the prophet?" 26 John answered them, "I baptize with water. Among you stands one whom you do not know, 27 the one who is coming after me; I am not worthy to untie the thong of his sandal." 28 This took place in Bethany across the Jordan where John was baptizing.

29 The next day he saw Jesus coming toward him and declared, "Here is the Lamb of God who takes away the sin of the world! 30 This is he of whom I said, 'After me comes a man who ranks ahead of me because he was before me.' 31 I myself did not know him; but I came baptizing with water for this reason, that he might be revealed to Israel." 32 And John testified, "I saw the Spirit descending from heaven like a dove, and it remained on him. 33 I myself did not know him, but the one who sent me to baptize with water said to me, 'He on whom you see the Spirit descend and remain is the one who baptizes with the Holy Spirit.' 34 And I myself have seen and have testified that this is the Son of God."[i]

35 The next day John again was standing with two of his disciples, 36 and as he watched Jesus walk by, he exclaimed, "Look, here is the Lamb of God!" 37 The two disciples heard him say this, and they followed Jesus. 38 When Jesus turned and saw them following, he said to them, "What are you looking for?" They said to him, "Rabbi" (which translated means Teacher), "where are you staying?" 39 He said to them, "Come and see." They came and saw where he was staying, and they remained with him that day. It was about four o'clock in the afternoon. 40 One of the two who heard John speak and followed him was Andrew, Simon Peter's brother. 41 He first found his brother Simon and said to him, "We have found the Messiah" (which is translated Anointed[j]). 42 He brought Simon[k] to Jesus, who looked at him and said, "You are Simon son of John. You are to be called Cephas" (which is translated Peter[l]).

43 The next day Jesus decided to go to Galilee. He found Philip and said to him, "Follow me." 44 Now Philip was from Bethsaida, the city of Andrew and Peter. 45 Philip found Nathanael and said to him, "We have found him about whom Moses in the law and also the prophets wrote, Jesus son of Joseph from Nazareth." 46 Nathanael said to him, "Can anything good come out of Nazareth?" Philip said to him, "Come and see." 47 When Jesus saw Nathanael coming toward him, he said of him, "Here is truly an Israelite in whom there is no deceit!" 48 Nathanael asked him, "Where did you get to know me?" Jesus answered, "I saw you under the fig tree before Philip called you." 49 Nathanael replied, "Rabbi, you are the Son of God! You are the King of Israel!" 50 Jesus answered, "Do you believe because I told you that I saw you under the fig tree? You will see greater things than these." 51And he said to him, "Very truly, I tell you,[m] you will see heaven opened and the angels of God ascending and descending upon the Son of Man."

2 On the third day there was a wedding in Cana of Galilee, and the mother of Jesus was there. 2Jesus and his disciples had also been invited to the wedding. 3When the wine gave out, the mother of Jesus said to him, "They have no wine." 4And Jesus said to her, "Woman, what concern is that to you and to me? My hour has not yet come." 5His mother said to the servants, "Do whatever he tells you." 6Now standing there were six stone water jars for the Jewish rites of purification, each holding twenty or thirty gallons. 7Jesus said to them, "Fill the jars with water." And they filled them up to the brim. 8He said to them, "Now draw some out, and take it to the chief steward." So they took it. 9When the steward tasted the water that had become wine, and did not know where it came from (though the servants who had drawn the water knew), the steward called the bridegroom 10and said to him, "Everyone serves the good wine first, and then the inferior wine after the guests have become drunk. But you have kept the good wine until now." 11Jesus did this, the first of his signs, in Cana of Galilee, and revealed his glory; and his disciples believed in him.

13 The Passover of the Jews was near, and Jesus went up to Jerusalem. 14In the temple he found people selling cattle, sheep, and doves, and the money changers seated at their tables. 15Making a whip of cords, he drove all of them out of the temple, both the sheep and the cattle. He also poured out the coins of the money changers and overturned their tables. 16He told those who were selling the doves, "Take these things out of here! Stop making my Father's house a marketplace!" 17His disciples remembered that it was written, "Zeal for your house will consume me." 18The Jews then said to him, "What sign can you show us for doing this?" 19Jesus answered them, "Destroy this temple, and in three days I will raise it up." 20The Jews then said, "This temple has been under construction for forty-six years, and will you raise it up in three days?" 21But he was speaking of the temple of his body. 22After he was raised from the dead, his disciples remembered that he had said this; and they believed the scripture and the word that Jesus had spoken.

3 Now there was a Pharisee named Nicodemus, a leader of the Jews. [2]He came to Jesus[n] by night and said to him, "Rabbi, we know that you are a teacher who has come from God; for no one can do these signs that you do apart from the presence of God." [3]Jesus answered him, "Very truly, I tell you, no one can see the kingdom of God without being born from above."[o] [4]Nicodemus said to him, "How can anyone be born after having grown old? Can one enter a second time into the mother's womb and be born?" [5]Jesus answered, "Very truly, I tell you, no one can enter the kingdom of God without being born of water and Spirit. [6]What is born of the flesh is flesh, and what is born of the Spirit is spirit.[p] [7]Do not be astonished that I said to you, 'You[q] must be born from above.'[r] [8]The wind[p] blows where it chooses, and you hear the sound of it, but you do not know where it comes from or where it goes. So it is with everyone who is born of the Spirit." [9]Nicodemus said to him, "How can these things be?" [10]Jesus answered him, "Are you a teacher of Israel, and yet you do not understand these things?

11 "Very truly, I tell you, we speak of what we know and testify to what we have seen; yet you[s] do not receive our testimony. [12]If I have told you about earthly things and you do not believe, how can you believe if I tell you about heavenly things? [13]No one has ascended into heaven except the one who descended from heaven, the Son of Man.[t] [14]And just as Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, so must the Son of Man be lifted up, [15]that whoever believes in him may have eternal life.[u]

16 "For God so loved the world that he gave his only Son, so that everyone who believes in him may not perish but may have eternal life.

17 "Indeed, God did not send the Son into the world to condemn the world, but in order that the world might be saved through him. [18]Those who believe in him are not condemned; but those who do not believe are condemned already, because they have not believed in the name of the only Son of God. [19]And this is the judgment, that the light has come into the world, and people loved darkness rather than light because their deeds were evil. [20]For all who do evil hate the light and do not come to the light, so that their deeds may not be exposed. [21]But those who do what is true come to the light, so that it may be clearly seen that their deeds have been done in God."[u]

22 After this Jesus and his disciples went into the Judean countryside, and he spent some time there with them and baptized. [23]John also was baptizing at Aenon near Salim because water was abundant there; and people kept coming and were being baptized [24]—John, of course, had not yet been thrown into prison.

25 Now a discussion about purification arose between John's disciples and a Jew.[v] [26]They came to John and said to him, "Rabbi, the one who was with you across the Jordan, to whom you testified, here he is baptizing, and all are going to him." [27]John answered, "No one can receive anything except what has been given from heaven. [28]You yourselves are my witnesses that I said, 'I am not the Messiah,[w] but I have been sent ahead of him.' [29]He who has the bride is the bridegroom. The friend of the bridegroom, who stands and hears him, rejoices greatly at the bridegroom's voice. For this reason my joy has been fulfilled. [30]He must increase, but I must decrease."[x]

4 Now when Jesus[z] learned that the Pharisees had heard, "Jesus is making and baptizing more disciples than John" [2]—although it was not Jesus himself but his disciples who baptized— [3]he left Judea and started back to Galilee. [4]But he had to go through Samaria. [5]So he came to a Samaritan city called Sychar, near the plot of ground that Jacob had given to his son Joseph. [6]Jacob's well was there, and Jesus, tired out by his journey, was sitting by the well. It was about noon.

7 A Samaritan woman came to draw water, and Jesus said to her, "Give me a drink." [8](His disciples had gone to the city to buy food.) [9]The Samaritan woman said to him, "How is it that you, a Jew, ask a drink of me, a woman of Samaria?" (Jews do not share things in common with Samaritans.)[a] [10]Jesus answered her, "If you knew the gift of God, and who it is that is saying to you, 'Give me a drink,' you would have asked him, and he would have given you living water." [11]The woman said to him, "Sir, you have no bucket, and the well is deep. Where do you get that living water? [12]Are you greater than our ancestor Jacob, who gave us the well, and with his sons and his flocks drank from it?" [13]Jesus said to her, "Everyone who drinks of this water will be thirsty again, [14]but those who drink of the water that I will give them will never be thirsty. The water that I will give will become in them a spring of water gushing up to eternal life." [15]The woman said to him, "Sir, give me this water, so that I may 16 Jesus said to her, "Go, call your husband, and come back." 17The woman answered him, "I have no husband." Jesus said to her, "You are right in saying, 'I have no husband'; 18for you have had five husbands, and the one you have now is not your husband. What you have said is true!" 19The woman said to him, "Sir, I see that you are a prophet. 20Our ancestors worshiped on this mountain, but you[b] say that the place where people must worship is in Jerusalem." 21Jesus said to her, "Woman, believe me, the hour is coming when you will worship the Father neither on this mountain nor in Jerusalem. 22You worship what you do not know; we worship what we know, for salvation is from the Jews. 23But the hour is coming, and is now here, when the true worshipers will worship the Father in spirit and truth, for the Father seeks such as these to worship him. 24God is spirit, and those who worship him must worship in spirit and truth." 25The woman said to him, "I know that Messiah is coming" (who is called Christ). "When he comes, he will proclaim all things to us." 26Jesus said to her, "I am he,[c] the one who is speaking to you."

27 Just then his disciples came. They were astonished that he was speaking with a woman, but no one said, "What do you want?" or, "Why are you speaking with her?" 28Then the woman left her water jar and went back to the city. She said to the people, 29"Come and see a man who told me everything I have ever done! He cannot be the Messiah,[d] can he?" 30They left the city and were on their way to him.

31 Meanwhile the disciples were urging him, "Rabbi, eat something." 32But he said to them, "I have food to eat that you do not know about." 33So the disciples said to one another, "Surely no one has brought him something to eat?" 34Jesus said to them, "My food is to do the will of him who sent me and to complete his work. 35Do you not say, 'Four months more, then comes the harvest'? But I tell you, look around you, and see how the fields are ripe for harvesting. 36The reaper is already receiving[e] wages and is gathering fruit for eternal life, so that sower and reaper may rejoice together. 37For here the saying holds true, 'One sows and another reaps.' 38I sent you to reap that for which you did not labor. Others have labored, and you have entered into their labor."

39 Many Samaritans from that city believed in him because of the woman's testimony, "He told me everything I have ever done." 40So when the Samaritans came to him, they asked him to stay with them; and he stayed there two days. 41And many more believed because of his word. 42They said to the woman, "It is no longer because of what you said that we believe, for we have heard for ourselves, and we know that this is truly the Savior of the world."

try). 45 When he came to Galilee, the Galileans welcomed him, since they had seen all that he had done in Jerusalem at the festival; for they too had gone to the festival.

46 Then he came again to Cana in Galilee where he had changed the water into wine. Now there was a royal official whose son lay ill in Capernaum. 47 When he heard that Jesus had come from Judea to Galilee, he went and begged him to come down and heal his son, for he was at the point of death. 48 Then Jesus said to him, "Unless you[f] see signs and wonders you will not believe." 49 The official said to him, "Sir, come down before my little boy dies." 50 Jesus said to him, "Go; your son will live." The man believed the word that Jesus spoke to him and started on his way. 51 As he was going down, his slaves met him and told him that his child was alive. 52 So he asked them the hour when he began to recover, and they said to him, "Yesterday at one in the afternoon the fever left him." 53 The father realized that this was the hour when Jesus had said to him, "Your son will live." So he himself believed, along with his whole household. 54 Now this was the second sign that Jesus did after coming from Judea to Galilee.

5 After this there was a festival of the Jews, and Jesus went up to Jerusalem.

2 Now in Jerusalem by the Sheep Gate there is a pool, called in Hebrew[g] Beth-zatha,[h] which has five porticoes. 3 In these lay many invalids—blind, lame, and paralyzed.[i] 5 One man was there who had been ill for thirty-eight years. 6 When Jesus saw him lying there and knew that he had been there a long time, he said to him, "Do you want to be made well?" 7 The sick man answered him, "Sir, I have no one to put me into the pool when the water is stirred up; and while I am making my way, someone else steps down ahead of me." 8 Jesus said to him, "Stand up, take your mat and walk." 9 At once the man was made well, and he took up his mat and began to walk.

Now that day was a sabbath. 10 So the Jews said to the man who had been cured, "It is the sabbath; it is not lawful for you to carry your mat." 11 But he answered them, "The man who made me well said to me, 'Take up your mat and walk.'" 12 They asked him, "Who is the man who said to you, 'Take it up and walk'?" 13 Now the man who had been healed did not know who it was, for Jesus had disappeared in[j] the crowd that was there. 14 Later Jesus found him in the temple and said to him, "See, you have been made well! Do not sin any more, so that nothing worse happens to you." 15 The man went away and told the Jews that it was Jesus who had made him well.

16 Therefore the Jews started persecuting Jesus, because he was doing such things on the sabbath. 17 But Jesus answered them, "My Father is still working, and I also am working." 18 For this reason the Jews were seeking all the more to kill him, because he was not only breaking the sabbath, but was also calling God his own Father, thereby making himself equal to God.

19 Jesus said to them, "Very truly, I tell you, the Son can do nothing on his own, but only what he sees the Father doing; for whatever the Father[k] does, the Son does likewise. 20 The Father loves the Son and shows him all that he himself is doing; and he will show him greater works than these, so that you will be astonished. 21 Indeed, just as the Father raises the dead and gives them life, so also the Son gives life to whomever he wishes. 22 The Father judges no one but has given all judgment to the Son, 23 so that all may honor the Son just as they honor the Father. Anyone who does not honor the Son does not honor the Father who sent him. 24 Very truly, I tell you, anyone who hears my word and believes him who sent me has eternal life, and does not come under judgment, but has passed from death to life.

25 "Very truly, I tell you, the hour is coming, and is now here, when the dead will hear the voice of the Son of God, and those who hear will live. 26 For just as the Father has life in himself, so he has granted the Son also to have life in himself; 27 and he has given him authority to execute judgment, because he is the Son of Man. 28 Do not be astonished at this; for the hour is coming when all who are in their graves will hear his voice 29 and will come out—those who have done good, to the resurrection of life, and those who have done evil, to the resurrection of condemnation.

30 "I can do nothing on my own. As I hear, I judge; and my judgment is just, because I seek to do not my own will but the will of him who sent me.

31 "If I testify about myself, my testimony is not true. 32 There is another who testifies on my behalf, and I know that his testimony to me is true. 33 You sent messengers to John, and he testified to the truth. 34 Not that I accept such human testimony, but I say these things so that you may be saved. 35 He was a burning and shining lamp, and you were willing to rejoice for a while in his light. 36 But I have a testimony greater than John's.
The works that the Father has given me to complete, the very works that I am doing, testify on my behalf that the Father has sent me. 37 And the Father who sent me has himself testified on my behalf. You have never heard his voice or seen his form, 38 and you do not have his word abiding in you, because you do not believe him whom he has sent.

6 After this Jesus went to the other side of the Sea of Galilee, also called the Sea of Tiberias.[m] 2A large crowd kept following him, because they saw the signs that he was doing for the sick. 3Jesus went up the mountain and sat down there with his disciples. 4Now the Passover, the festival of the Jews, was near. 5When he looked up and saw a large crowd coming toward him, Jesus said to Philip, "Where are we to buy bread for these people to eat?" 6He said this to test him, for he himself knew what he was going to do. 7Philip answered him, "Six months' wages[n] would not buy enough bread for each of them to get a little." 8One of his disciples, Andrew, Simon Peter's brother, said to him, 9"There is a boy here who has five barley loaves and two fish. But what are they among so many people?" 10Jesus said, "Make the people sit down." Now there was a great deal of grass in the place; so they[o] sat down, about five thousand in all. 11Then Jesus took the loaves, and when he had given thanks, he distributed them to those who were seated; so also the fish, as much as they wanted. 12When they were satisfied, he told his disciples, "Gather up the fragments left over, so that nothing may be lost." 13So they gathered them up, and from the fragments of the five barley loaves, left by those who had eaten, they filled twelve baskets. 14When the people saw the sign that he had done, they began to say, "This is indeed the prophet who is to come into the world."

15 When Jesus realized that they were about to come and take him by force to make him king, he withdrew again to the mountain by himself.

16 When evening came, his disciples went down to the sea, 17got into a boat, and started across the sea to Capernaum. It was now dark, and Jesus had not yet come to them. 18The sea became rough because a strong wind was blowing. 19When they had rowed about three or four miles,[p] they saw Jesus walking on the sea and coming near the boat, and they were terrified. 20But he said to them, "It is I;[q] do not be afraid." 21Then they wanted to take him into the boat, and immediately the boat reached the land toward which they were going.

22 The next day the crowd that had stayed on the other side of the sea saw that there had been only one boat there.

They also saw that Jesus had not got into the boat with his disciples, but that his disciples had gone away alone. 23Then some boats from Tiberias came near the place where they had eaten the bread after the Lord had given thanks.[r] 24So when the crowd saw that neither Jesus nor his disciples were there, they themselves got into the boats and went to Capernaum looking for Jesus.

25 When they found him on the other side of the sea, they said to him, "Rabbi, when did you come here?" 26Jesus answered them, "Very truly, I tell you, you are looking for me, not because you saw signs, but because you ate your fill of the loaves. 27Do not work for the food that perishes, but for the food that endures for eternal life, which the Son of Man will give you. For it is on him that God the Father has set his seal." 28Then they said to him, "What must we do to perform the works of God?" 29Jesus answered them, "This is the work of God, that you believe in him whom he has sent." 30So they said to him, "What sign are you going to give us then, so that we may see it and believe you? What work are you performing? 31Our ancestors ate the manna in the wilderness; as it is written, 'He gave them bread from heaven to eat.' " 32Then Jesus said to them, "Very truly, I tell you, it was not Moses who gave you the bread from heaven, but it is my Father who gives you the true bread from heaven. 33For the bread of God is that which[s] comes down from heaven and gives life to the world." 34They said to him, "Sir, give us this bread always."

35 Jesus said to them, "I am the bread of life. Whoever comes to me will never be hungry, and whoever believes in me will never be thirsty. 36But I said to you that you have seen me and yet do not believe. 37Everything that the Father gives me will come to me, and anyone who comes to me I will never drive away; 38for I have come down from heaven, not to do my own will, but the will of him who sent me. 39And this is the will of him who sent me, that I should lose nothing of all that he has given me, but raise it up on the last day. 40This is indeed the will of my Father, that all who see the Son and believe in him may have eternal life; and I will raise them up on the last day."

41 Then the Jews began to complain about him because he said, "I am the bread that came down from heaven." 42They were saying, "Is not this Jesus, the son of Joseph, whose father and mother we know? How can he now say, 'I have come down from heaven'?" 43Jesus answered them, "Do not complain among yourselves. 44No one can come to me unless drawn by the Father who sent me; and I will raise that person up on the last day. 45It is written in the prophets, 'And they shall all be taught by God.' Everyone who has heard and learned from the Father comes to me. 46Not that anyone has seen the Father except the one who is from God; he has seen the Father. 47Very truly, I tell you, whoever believes has eternal life. 48I am the bread of life. 49 Your ancestors ate the manna in the wilderness, and they died. 50 This is the bread that comes down from heaven, so that one may eat of it and not die. 51 I am the living bread that came down from heaven. Whoever eats of this bread will live forever; and the bread that I will give for the life of the world is my flesh."

52 The Jews then disputed among themselves, saying, "How can this man give us his flesh to eat?" 53 So Jesus said to them, "Very truly, I tell you, unless you eat the flesh of the Son of Man and drink his blood, you have no life in you. 54 Those who eat my flesh and drink my blood have eternal life, and I will raise them up on the last day; 55 for my flesh is true food and my blood is true drink. 56 Those who eat my flesh and drink my blood abide in me, and I in them. 57 Just as the living Father sent me, and I live because of the Father, so whoever eats me will live because of me. 58 This is the bread that came down from heaven, not like that which your ancestors ate, and they died. But the one who eats this bread will live forever." 59 He said these things while he was teaching in the synagogue at Capernaum.

60 When many of his disciples heard it, they said, "This teaching is difficult; who can accept it?" 61 But Jesus, being aware that his disciples were complaining about it, said to them, "Does this offend you? 62 Then what if you were to see the Son of Man ascending to where he was before? 63 It is the spirit that gives life; the flesh is useless. The words that I have spoken to you are spirit and life. 64 But among you there are some who do not believe." For Jesus knew from the first who were the ones that did not believe, and who was the one that would betray him. 65 And he said, "For this reason I have told you that no one can come to me unless it is granted by the Father."

66 Because of this many of his disciples turned back and no longer went about with him. 67 So Jesus asked the twelve, "Do you also wish to go away?" 68 Simon Peter answered him, "Lord, to whom can we go? You have the words of eternal life. 69 We have come to believe and know that you are the Holy One of God."[t] 70 Jesus answered them, "Did I not choose you, the twelve? Yet one of you is a devil." 71 He was speaking of Judas son of Simon Iscariot,[u] for he, though one of the twelve, was going to betray him.

7 After this Jesus went about in Galilee. He did not wish[v] to go about in Judea because the Jews were looking for an opportunity to kill him. 2 Now the Jewish festival of Booths[w] was near. 3 So his brothers said to him, "Leave here and

6.51–58: In these verses the Fourth Evangelist (who does not include an account of the institution of the Lord's Supper) presents teachings that have unmistakable eucharistic echoes. 51: The living bread . . . is my flesh, the One who became flesh (assumed complete human nature, 1.14) offered himself to God in death, thus releasing his life for the life of the world. 53: The separation of the blood from the flesh emphasizes the reality of Jesus' death. 54: To eat and drink is to believe (v. 47), to appropriate, assimilate, and abide in Christ (v. 56). 58: Since Christ is bread . . . from heaven (compare vv. 32–35), to eat him is to live forever.

6.60: This teaching is difficult means it is offensive but not obscure. 62–63: The ascension by which Jesus will be taken away as regards the flesh, will indicate that he has been speaking of spiritual realities and not the actual eating of his flesh. 64–65: These truths can be discerned only by faith, which is God's gift, not a human achievement (Eph 2.8).

6.66–71: To receive God's gift of faith is to know God in Christ; to refuse it is to become an ally of the devil. Faith and unbelief mark the great divisions among even the disciples. 71: Iscariot, identifies Judas as a man from Kerioth, a town in southern Judea.

go to Judea so that your disciples also may see the works you are doing; 4 for no one who wants[x] to be widely known acts in secret. If you do these things, show yourself to the world." 5 (For not even his brothers believed in him.) 6 Jesus said to them, "My time has not yet come, but your time is always here. 7 The world cannot hate you, but it hates me because I testify against it that its works are evil. 8 Go to the festival yourselves. I am not[y] going to this festival, for my time has not yet fully come." 9 After saying this, he remained in Galilee.

10 But after his brothers had gone to the festival, then he also went, not publicly but as it were[z] in secret. 11 The Jews were looking for him at the festival and saying, "Where is he?" 12 And there was considerable complaining about him among the crowds. While some were saying, "He is a good man," others were saying, "No, he is deceiving the crowd." 13 Yet no one would speak openly about him for fear of the Jews.

14 About the middle of the festival Jesus went up into the temple and began to teach. 15 The Jews were astonished at it, saying, "How does this man have such learning,[a] when he has never been taught?" 16 Then Jesus answered them, "My teaching is not mine but his who sent me. 17 Anyone who resolves to do the will of God will know whether the teaching is from God or whether I am speaking on my own. 18 Those who speak on their own seek their own glory; but the one who seeks the glory of him who sent him is true, and there is nothing false in him.

19 "Did not Moses give you the law? Yet none of you keeps the law. Why are you looking for an opportunity to kill me?" 20 The crowd answered, "You have a demon! Who is trying to kill you?" 21 Jesus answered them, "I performed one work, and all of you are astonished. 22 Moses gave you circumcision (it is, of course, not from Moses, but from the patriarchs), and you circumcise a man on the sabbath. 23 If a man receives circumcision on the sabbath in order that the law of Moses may not be broken, are you angry with me because I healed a man's whole body on the sabbath? 24 Do not judge by appearances, but judge with right judgment."

25 Now some of the people of Jerusalem were saying, "Is not this the man whom they are trying to kill? 26 And here he is, speaking openly, but they say nothing to him! Can it be that the authorities really know that this is the Messiah?[b] 27 Yet we know where this man is from; but when the Messiah[b] comes, no one will know where he is from." 28 Then Jesus cried out as he was teaching in the temple, "You know me, and you know where I am from. I have not come on my own. But the one who sent me is true, and you do not know him. 29 I know him, because I am from him, and 23.39–43; Deut 16.13–15). 3–5: Jesus' brothers challenge him to declare himself to the world of pilgrims at the feast; his claims (chs 5 and 6) must be verified at Jerusalem. 6–8: Jesus' time, or hour (v. 30; see 2.4 n.; 8.20; 12.23; 17.1), was the time for his self-manifestation on the cross. 10: Compare Jesus' secret journey with the public one in 12.12–15, and the reasons for both in v. 8 and 12.23.

7.11–13: Subdued debate (complaining) over Jesus' character is prompted by fear of the Jews (see 5.16 n.). 15: Wherein lay the authority of Jesus' teaching (Mk 1.22) without the accreditation of official rabbinic study? 16–18: Jesus' teaching came from God, not from himself, a fact that can be recognized by anyone who wills to obey God's will.

7.19–24: The law of Moses condemns their desire to kill Jesus for healing on the sabbath (5.18), for it enjoins circumcision even when the eighth day falls on a sabbath (Lev 12.3). If circumcision, why not healings?

7.25–31: Possibility of Jesus' messiahship is denied because his origin is known, whereas it was believed that the Messiah's origin would be mysterious. Jesus' human origin is apparent, but not his true origin in God, by whom he was sent and whose authority he bears.

he sent me." [30]Then they tried to arrest him, but no one laid hands on him, because his hour had not yet come. [31]Yet many in the crowd believed in him and were saying, "When the Messiah[c] comes, will he do more signs than this man has done?"[d]

32 The Pharisees heard the crowd muttering such things about him, and the chief priests and Pharisees sent temple police to arrest him. [33]Jesus then said, "I will be with you a little while longer, and then I am going to him who sent me. [34]You will search for me, but you will not find me; and where I am, you cannot come." [35]The Jews said to one another, "Where does this man intend to go that we will not find him? Does he intend to go to the Dispersion among the Greeks and teach the Greeks? [36]What does he mean by saying, 'You will search for me and you will not find me' and 'Where I am, you cannot come'?"

37 On the last day of the festival, the great day, while Jesus was standing there, he cried out, "Let anyone who is thirsty come to me, [38]and let the one who believes in me drink. As[e] the scripture has said, 'Out of the believer's heart[f] shall flow rivers of living water.' " [39]Now he said this about the Spirit, which believers in him were to receive; for as yet there was no Spirit,[g] because Jesus was not yet glorified.

40 When they heard these words, some in the crowd said, "This is really the prophet." [41]Others said, "This is the Messiah."[c] But some asked, "Surely the Messiah[c] does not come from Galilee, does he? [42]Has not the scripture said that the Messiah[c] is descended from David and comes from Bethlehem, the village where David lived?" [43]So there was a division in the crowd because of him. [44]Some of them wanted to arrest him, but no one laid hands on him.

45 Then the temple police went back to the chief priests and Pharisees, who asked them, "Why did you not arrest him?" [46]The police answered, "Never has anyone spoken like this!" [47]Then the Pharisees replied, "Surely you have not been deceived too, have you? [48]Has any one of the authorities or of the Pharisees believed in him? [49]But this crowd, which does not know the law—they are accursed." [50]Nicodemus, who had gone to Jesus[h] before, and who was one of them, asked, [51]"Our law does not judge people without first giving them a hearing to find out what they are doing, does it?" [52]They replied, "Surely you are not also from Galilee, are you? Search and you will see that no prophet is to arise from Galilee."

7.32–36: The chief priests (Sadducees) and Pharisees, inveterate enemies, unite in sending temple police to arrest Jesus. This leads Jesus to speak of his death (I am going to him who sent me). Later the Jews will seek deliverance in the Messiah, but will not find him, for he will have ascended to where they cannot come because they are unbelievers (contrast 8.21 with 12.26; 17.24). They miss the point, thinking that he is going to the Jews dispersed among the Greeks (Gentiles).

7.37–39: For seven days water was carried in a golden pitcher from the Pool of Siloam to the temple as a reminder of the water from the rock in the desert (Num 20.2–13), and as a symbol of hope for the coming Messianic deliverance (Isa 12.3). Jesus is the true water of life, who turns the symbol into reality (Isa 44.3; 55.1). Believers become channels of life to others, through Christ's Spirit given at Pentecost after he was glorified (crucified, risen, ascended). The gift of the Spirit is a mark of the Messianic age (Joel 2.28–29; Acts 2.14–21).

8 [[53]Then each of them went home,
[1]while Jesus went to the Mount of Olives. [2]Early in the morning he came again to the temple. All the people came to him and he sat down and began to teach them. [3]The scribes and the Pharisees brought a woman who had been caught in adultery; and making her stand before all of them, [4]they said to him,
"Teacher, this woman was caught in the very act of committing adultery. [5]Now in the law Moses commanded us to stone such women. Now what do you say?"
[6]They said this to test him, so that they might have some charge to bring against him. Jesus bent down and wrote with his finger on the ground. [7]When they kept on questioning him, he straightened up and said to them, "Let anyone among you who is without sin be the first to throw a stone at her." [8]And once again
he bent down and wrote on the ground.[i] [9]When they heard it, they went away,
one by one, beginning with the elders;
and Jesus was left alone with the woman standing before him. [10]Jesus straightened up and said to her, "Woman, where are they? Has no one condemned you?"
[11]She said, "No one, sir."[j] And Jesus said, "Neither do I condemn you. Go your way, and from now on do not sin again."]][k]

12 Again Jesus spoke to them, saying,
"I am the light of the world. Whoever follows me will never walk in darkness but will have the light of life." [13]Then the Pharisees said to him, "You are testifying on your own behalf; your testimony is not valid." [14]Jesus answered, "Even if I testify on my own behalf, my testimony is valid because I know where I have come from and where I am going, but you do not know where I come from or where I am going. [15]You judge by human standards;[l] I judge no one. [16]Yet even if I do judge, my judgment is valid; for it is not I alone who judge, but I and the Father[m] who sent me. [17]In your law it is written that the testimony of two witnesses is valid. [18]I testify on my own behalf, and the Father who sent me testifies on my behalf." [19]Then they said to him, "Where is your Father?" Jesus answered, "You know neither me nor my Father. If you knew me, you would know my Father also." [20]He spoke these words while he was teaching in the treasury of the temple, but no one arrested him, because his hour had not yet come.

21 Again he said to them, "I am going away, and you will search for me, but you will die in your sin. Where I am going, you cannot come." 22Then the Jews said, "Is he going to kill himself? Is that what he means by saying, 'Where I am going, you cannot come'?" 23He said to them, "You are from below, I am from above; you are of this world, I am not of this world. 24I told you that you would die in your sins, for you will die in your sins unless you believe that I am he."[n] 25They said to him, "Who are you?" Jesus said to them, "Why do I speak to you at all?[o] 26I have much to say about you and much to condemn; but the one who sent me is true, and I declare to the world what I have heard from him." 27They did not understand that he was speaking to them about the Father. 28So Jesus said, "When you have lifted up the Son of Man, then you will realize that I am he,[n] and that I do nothing on my own, but I speak these things as the Father instructed me. 29And the one who sent me is with me; he has not left me alone, for I always do what is pleasing to him." 30As he was saying these things, many believed in him.

31 Then Jesus said to the Jews who had believed in him, "If you continue in my word, you are truly my disciples; 32and you will know the truth, and the truth will make you free." 33They answered him, "We are descendants of Abraham and have never been slaves to anyone. What do you mean by saying, 'You will be made free'?"

34 Jesus answered them, "Very truly, I tell you, everyone who commits sin is a slave to sin. 35The slave does not have a permanent place in the household; the son has a place there forever. 36So if the Son makes you free, you will be free indeed. 37I know that you are descendants of Abraham; yet you look for an opportunity to kill me, because there is no place in you for my word. 38I declare what I have seen in the Father's presence; as for you, you should do what you have heard from the Father."[p]

39 They answered him, "Abraham is our father." Jesus said to them, "If you were Abraham's children, you would be doing[q] what Abraham did, 40but now you are trying to kill me, a man who has told you the truth that I heard from God. This is not what Abraham did. 41You are indeed doing what your father does." They said to him, "We are not illegitimate children; we have one father, God himself." 42Jesus said to them, "If God were your Father, you would love me, for I came from God and now I am here. I did not come on my own, but he sent me. 43Why do you not understand what I say? It is because you cannot accept my word. 44You are from your father the devil, and you choose to do your father's desires. He was a murderer from the beginning and does not stand in the truth, because there is no truth in him. When he lies, he speaks according to his own nature, for he is a liar and the father of lies. 45But because I tell the truth, you do not believe me. 46Which of you convicts me of sin? not right in saying that you are a Samaritan and have a demon?" 49Jesus answered, "I do not have a demon; but I honor my Father, and you dishonor me. 50Yet I do not seek my own glory; there is one who seeks it and he is the judge. 51Very truly, I tell you, whoever keeps my word will never see death." 52The Jews said to him, "Now we know that you have a demon. Abraham died, and so did the prophets; yet you say, 'Whoever keeps my word will never taste death.' 53Are you greater than our father Abraham, who died? The prophets also died. Who do you claim to be?" 54Jesus answered, "If I glorify myself, my glory is nothing. It is my Father who glorifies me, he of whom you say, 'He is our God,' 55though you do not know him. But I know him; if I would say that I do not know him, I would be a liar like you. But I do know him and I keep his word. 56Your ancestor Abraham rejoiced that he would see my day; he saw it and was glad." 57Then the Jews said to him, "You are not yet fifty years old, and have you seen Abraham?"[r] 58Jesus said to them, "Very truly, I tell you, before Abraham was, I am." 59So they picked up stones to throw at him, but Jesus hid himself and went out of the temple.

9 As he walked along, he saw a man blind from birth. 2His disciples asked him, "Rabbi, who sinned, this man or his parents, that he was born blind?" 3Jesus answered, "Neither this man nor his parents sinned; he was born blind so that God's works might be revealed in him. 4We[s] must work the works of him who sent me[t] while it is day; night is coming when no one can work. 5As long as I am in the world, I am the light of the world." 6When he had said this, he spat on the ground and made mud with the saliva and spread the mud on the man's eyes, 7saying to him, "Go, wash in the pool of Siloam" (which means Sent). Then he went and washed and came back able to see. 8The neighbors and those who had seen him before as a beggar began to ask, "Is this not the man who used to sit and beg?" 9Some were saying, "It is he." Others were saying, "No, but it is someone like him." He kept saying, "I am the man." 10But they kept asking him, "Then how were your eyes opened?" 11He answered, "The man called Jesus made mud, spread it on my eyes, and said to me, 'Go to Siloam and wash.' Then I went and washed and received my sight." 12They said to him, "Where is he?" He said, "I do not know."

13 They brought to the Pharisees the man who had formerly been blind. 14Now it was a sabbath day when Jesus made the mud and opened his eyes. 15Then the Pharisees also began to ask him how he had received his sight. He said to them, "He put mud on my eyes. Then I washed, and now I see." 16Some of the Pharisees said, "This man is not from God, for he does not observe the sabbath." But others said, "How can a man who is a sinner perform such signs?" And they were divided. 17So they said again to the blind man, "What do you say about him? It was your eyes he opened." He said, "He is a prophet."

who had received his sight [19]and asked them, "Is this your son, who you say was born blind? How then does he now see?" [20]His parents answered, "We know that this is our son, and that he was born blind; [21]but we do not know how it is that now he sees, nor do we know who opened his eyes. Ask him; he is of age. He will speak for himself." [22]His parents said this because they were afraid of the Jews; for the Jews had already agreed that anyone who confessed Jesus[u] to be the Messiah[v] would be put out of the synagogue. [23]Therefore his parents said, "He is of age; ask him."

24 So for the second time they called the man who had been blind, and they said to him, "Give glory to God! We know that this man is a sinner." [25]He answered, "I do not know whether he is a sinner. One thing I do know, that though I was blind, now I see." [26]They said to him, "What did he do to you? How did he open your eyes?" [27]He answered them, "I have told you already, and you would not listen. Why do you want to hear it again? Do you also want to become his disciples?" [28]Then they reviled him, saying, "You are his disciple, but we are disciples of Moses. [29]We know that God has spoken to Moses, but as for this man, we do not know where he comes from." [30]The man answered, "Here is an astonishing thing! You do not know where he comes from, and yet he opened my eyes. [31]We know that God does not listen to sinners, but he does listen to one who worships him and obeys his will. [32]Never since the world began has it been heard that anyone opened the eyes of a person born blind. [33]If this man were not from God, he could do nothing." [34]They answered him, "You were born entirely in sins, and are you trying to teach us?" And they drove him out.

35 Jesus heard that they had driven him out, and when he found him, he said, "Do you believe in the Son of Man?"[w] [36]He answered, "And who is he, sir?[x] Tell me, so that I may believe in him." [37]Jesus said to him, "You have seen him, and the one speaking with you is he." [38]He said, "Lord,[x] I believe." And he worshiped him. [39]Jesus said, "I came into this world for judgment so that those who do not see may see, and those who do see may become blind." [40]Some of the Pharisees near him heard this and said to him, "Surely we are not blind, are we?" [41]Jesus said to them, "If you were blind, you would not have sin. But now that you say, 'We see,' your sin remains.

sheep follow him because they know his voice. 5They will not follow a stranger, but they will run from him because they do not know the voice of strangers." 6Jesus used this figure of speech with them, but they did not understand what he was saying to them.

7 So again Jesus said to them, "Very truly, I tell you, I am the gate for the sheep. 8All who came before me are thieves and bandits; but the sheep did not listen to them. 9I am the gate. Whoever enters by me will be saved, and will come in and go out and find pasture. 10The thief comes only to steal and kill and destroy. I came that they may have life, and have it abundantly.

11 "I am the good shepherd. The good shepherd lays down his life for the sheep. 12The hired hand, who is not the shepherd and does not own the sheep, sees the wolf coming and leaves the sheep and runs away—and the wolf snatches them and scatters them. 13The hired hand runs away because a hired hand does not care for the sheep. 14I am the good shepherd. I know my own and my own know me, 15just as the Father knows me and I know the Father. And I lay down my life for the sheep. 16I have other sheep that do not belong to this fold. I must bring them also, and they will listen to my voice. So there will be one flock, one shepherd. 17For this reason the Father loves me, because I lay down my life in order to take it up again. 18No one takes[y] it from me, but I lay it down of my own accord. I have power to lay it down, and I have power to take it up again. I have received this command from my Father."

19 Again the Jews were divided because of these words. 20Many of them were saying, "He has a demon and is out of his mind. Why listen to him?" 21Others were saying, "These are not the words of one who has a demon. Can a demon open the eyes of the blind?"

22 At that time the festival of the Dedication took place in Jerusalem. It was winter, 23and Jesus was walking in the temple, in the portico of Solomon. 24So the Jews gathered around him and said to him, "How long will you keep us in suspense? If you are the Messiah,[z] tell us plainly." 25Jesus answered, "I have told you, and you do not believe. The works that I do in my Father's name testify to me; 26but you do not believe, because you do not belong to my sheep. 27My sheep hear my voice. I know them, and they follow me. 28I give them eternal life, and they will never perish. No one will snatch them out of my hand. 29What my Father has given me is greater than all else, and no one can snatch it out of the Father's hand.[a] 30The Father and I are one."

31 The Jews took up stones again to stone him. 32Jesus replied, "I have shown you many good works from the Father. For which of these are you going to stone me?" 33The Jews answered, "It is not for a good work that we are going to stone you, but for blasphemy, because you, though only a human being, are making yourself God." 34Jesus answered, "Is it

40 He went away again across the Jordan to the place where John had been baptizing earlier, and he remained there. 41Many came to him, and they were saying, "John performed no sign, but everything that John said about this man was true." 42And many believed in him there.

11 Now a certain man was ill, Lazarus of Bethany, the village of Mary and her sister Martha. 2Mary was the one who anointed the Lord with perfume and wiped his feet with her hair; her brother Lazarus was ill. 3So the sisters sent a message to Jesus,[d] "Lord, he whom you love is ill." 4But when Jesus heard it, he said, "This illness does not lead to death; rather it is for God's glory, so that the Son of God may be glorified through it." 5Accordingly, though Jesus loved Martha and her sister and Lazarus, 6after having heard that Lazarus[e] was ill, he stayed two days longer in the place where he was.

7 Then after this he said to the disciples, "Let us go to Judea again." 8The disciples said to him, "Rabbi, the Jews were just now trying to stone you, and are you going there again?" 9Jesus answered, "Are there not twelve hours of daylight? Those who walk during the day do not stumble, because they see the light of this world. 10But those who walk at night stumble, because the light is not in them." 11After saying this, he told them, "Our friend Lazarus has fallen asleep, but I am going there to awaken him." 12The disciples said to him, "Lord, if he has fallen asleep, he will be all right." 13Jesus, however, had been speaking about his death, but they thought that he was referring merely to sleep. 14Then Jesus told them plainly, "Lazarus is dead. 15For your sake I am glad I was not there, so that you may believe. But let us go to him." 16Thomas, who was called the Twin,[f] said to his fellow disciples, "Let us also go, that we may die with him."

17 When Jesus arrived, he found that Lazarus[e] had already been in the tomb four days. 18Now Bethany was near Jerusalem, some two miles[g] away, 19and many of the Jews had come to Martha and Mary to console them about their brother. 20When Martha heard that Jesus was coming, she went and met him, while Mary stayed at home. 21Martha said to Jesus, "Lord, if you had been here, my brother would not have died. 22But even now I know that God will give you whatever you ask of him." 23Jesus said to her, "Your brother will rise again." [24]Martha said to him, "I know that he will rise again in the resurrection on the last day." [25]Jesus said to her, "I am the resurrection and the life.[h] Those who believe in me, even though they die, will live, [26]and everyone who lives and believes in me will never die. Do you believe this?" [27]She said to him, "Yes, Lord, I believe that you are the Messiah,[i] the Son of God, the one coming into the world."

28 When she had said this, she went back and called her sister Mary, and told her privately, "The Teacher is here and is calling for you." [29]And when she heard it, she got up quickly and went to him. [30]Now Jesus had not yet come to the village, but was still at the place where Martha had met him. [31]The Jews who were with her in the house, consoling her, saw Mary get up quickly and go out. They followed her because they thought that she was going to the tomb to weep there. [32]When Mary came where Jesus was and saw him, she knelt at his feet and said to him, "Lord, if you had been here, my brother would not have died." [33]When Jesus saw her weeping, and the Jews who came with her also weeping, he was greatly disturbed in spirit and deeply moved. [34]He said, "Where have you laid him?" They said to him, "Lord, come and see." [35]Jesus began to weep. [36]So the Jews said, "See how he loved him!" [37]But some of them said, "Could not he who opened the eyes of the blind man have kept this man from dying?"

38 Then Jesus, again greatly disturbed, came to the tomb. It was a cave, and a stone was lying against it. [39]Jesus said, "Take away the stone." Martha, the sister of the dead man, said to him, "Lord, already there is a stench because he has been dead four days." [40]Jesus said to her, "Did I not tell you that if you believed, you would see the glory of God?" [41]So they took away the stone. And Jesus looked upward and said, "Father, I thank you for having heard me. [42]I knew that you always hear me, but I have said this for the sake of the crowd standing here, so that they may believe that you sent me." [43]When he had said this, he cried with a loud voice, "Lazarus, come out!" [44]The dead man came out, his hands and feet bound with strips of cloth, and his face wrapped in a cloth. Jesus said to them, "Unbind him, and let him go."

45 Many of the Jews therefore, who had come with Mary and had seen what Jesus did, believed in him. [46]But some of them went to the Pharisees and told them what he had done. [47]So the chief priests and the Pharisees called a meeting of the council, and said, "What are we to do? This man is performing many signs. [48]If we let him go on like this, everyone will believe in him, and the Romans will come and destroy both our holy place[j] and our nation." [49]But one of them, Caiaphas, who was high priest that year, said to them, "You know nothing at all! [50]You do not understand that it is better for you to have one man die for the people than to have the whole nation de-faint hope, even now. 24: Belief in the resurrection on the last day was widespread among pious Jews in Jesus' day.

11.25–26: Jesus is not only the agent of final resurrection, but gives eternal life now (Rom 6.4–5; Col 2.12; 3.1). The body dies, but the person will never die. 27: Martha rests her perplexity on the mystery of Jesus' person as the Messiah. 32: See v. 21. 33: Moved, stirred with indignation, probably at the power of death (12.27). 34: Laid, buried. 35: Jesus' humanity was real.

11.46: Some . . . went to the Pharisees, this is a crucial turning point in Jesus' ministry. 47: Council, the Sanhedrin, the official Jewish court, made up of seventy priests, scribes, and elders, presided over by the high priest. 49–53: An unconscious prophecy with deep stroyed." [51]He did not say this on his own, but being high priest that year he prophesied that Jesus was about to die for the nation, [52]and not for the nation only, but to gather into one the dispersed children of God. [53]So from that day on they planned to put him to death.

54 Jesus therefore no longer walked about openly among the Jews, but went from there to a town called Ephraim in the region near the wilderness; and he remained there with the disciples.

55 Now the Passover of the Jews was near, and many went up from the country to Jerusalem before the Passover to purify themselves. [56]They were looking for Jesus and were asking one another as they stood in the temple, "What do you think? Surely he will not come to the festival, will he?" [57]Now the chief priests and the Pharisees had given orders that anyone who knew where Jesus[k] was should let them know, so that they might arrest him.

12 Six days before the Passover Jesus came to Bethany, the home of Lazarus, whom he had raised from the dead. [2]There they gave a dinner for him. Martha served, and Lazarus was one of those at the table with him. [3]Mary took a pound of costly perfume made of pure nard, anointed Jesus' feet, and wiped them[l] with her hair. The house was filled with the fragrance of the perfume. [4]But Judas Iscariot, one of his disciples (the one who was about to betray him), said, [5]"Why was this perfume not sold for three hundred denarii[m] and the money given to the poor?" [6](He said this not because he cared about the poor, but because he was a thief; he kept the common purse and used to steal what was put into it.) [7]Jesus said, "Leave her alone. She bought it[n] so that she might keep it for the day of my burial. [8]You always have the poor with you, but you do not always have me."

9 When the great crowd of the Jews learned that he was there, they came not only because of Jesus but also to see Lazarus, whom he had raised from the dead. [10]So the chief priests planned to put Lazarus to death as well, [11]since it was on account of him that many of the Jews were deserting and were believing in Jesus.

12 The next day the great crowd that had come to the festival heard that Jesus was coming to Jerusalem. [13]So they took branches of palm trees and went out to meet him, shouting,

"Hosanna!
Blessed is the one who comes in
the name of the Lord—
the King of Israel!"

[14]Jesus found a young donkey and sat on it; as it is written:

[15] "Do not be afraid, daughter of Zion.
Look, your king is coming,
sitting on a donkey's colt!"

[16]His disciples did not understand these things at first; but when Jesus was glorified, then they remembered that these things had been written of him and had been done to him. [17]So the crowd that had been with him when he called Lazarus out of the tomb and raised him from the dead continued to testify.[o] 18It was also because they heard that he had performed this sign that the crowd went to meet him. 19The Pharisees then said to one another, "You see, you can do nothing. Look, the world has gone after him!"

20 Now among those who went up to worship at the festival were some Greeks. 21They came to Philip, who was from Bethsaida in Galilee, and said to him, "Sir, we wish to see Jesus." 22Philip went and told Andrew; then Andrew and Philip went and told Jesus. 23Jesus answered them, "The hour has come for the Son of Man to be glorified. 24Very truly, I tell you, unless a grain of wheat falls into the earth and dies, it remains just a single grain; but if it dies, it bears much fruit. 25Those who love their life lose it, and those who hate their life in this world will keep it for eternal life. 26Whoever serves me must follow me, and where I am, there will my servant be also. Whoever serves me, the Father will honor.

27 "Now my soul is troubled. And what should I say—'Father, save me from this hour'? No, it is for this reason that I have come to this hour. 28Father, glorify your name." Then a voice came from heaven, "I have glorified it, and I will glorify it again." 29The crowd standing there heard it and said that it was thunder. Others said, "An angel has spoken to him." 30Jesus answered, "This voice has come for your sake, not for mine. 31Now is the judgment of this world; now the ruler of this world will be driven out. 32And I, when I am lifted up from the earth, will draw all people[p] to myself." 33He said this to indicate the kind of death he was to die. 34The crowd answered him, "We have heard from the law that the Messiah[q] remains forever. How can you say that the Son of Man must be lifted up? Who is this Son of Man?" 35Jesus said to them, "The light is with you for a little longer. Walk while you have the light, so that the darkness may not overtake you. If you walk in the darkness, you do not know where you are going. 36While you have the light, believe in the light, so that you may become children of light."

After Jesus had said this, he departed and hid from them. 37Although he had performed so many signs in their presence, they did not believe in him. 38This was to fulfill the word spoken by the prophet Isaiah:

"Lord, who has believed our message,
and to whom has the arm of the Lord been revealed?"

39And so they could not believe, because Isaiah also said,

40 "He has blinded their eyes and hardened their heart, so that they might not look with their eyes,
and understand with their heart and turn—
and I would heal them."

ry and spoke about him. 42Nevertheless many, even of the authorities, believed in him. But because of the Pharisees they did not confess it, for fear that they would be put out of the synagogue; 43for they loved human glory more than the glory that comes from God.

44 Then Jesus cried aloud: "Whoever believes in me believes not in me but in him who sent me. 45And whoever sees me sees him who sent me. 46I have come as light into the world, so that everyone who believes in me should not remain in the darkness. 47I do not judge anyone who hears my words and does not keep them, for I came not to judge the world, but to save the world. 48The one who rejects me and does not receive my word has a judge; on the last day the word that I have spoken will serve as judge, 49for I have not spoken on my own, but the Father who sent me has himself given me a commandment about what to say and what to speak. 50And I know that his commandment is eternal life. What I speak, therefore, I speak just as the Father has told me."

13 Now before the festival of the Passover, Jesus knew that his hour had come to depart from this world and go to the Father. Having loved his own who were in the world, he loved them to the end. 2The devil had already put it into the heart of Judas son of Simon Iscariot to betray him. And during supper 3Jesus, knowing that the Father had given all things into his hands, and that he had come from God and was going to God, 4got up from the table,[s] took off his outer robe, and tied a towel around himself. 5Then he poured water into a basin and began to wash the disciples' feet and to wipe them with the towel that was tied around him. 6He came to Simon Peter, who said to him, "Lord, are you going to wash my feet?" 7Jesus answered, "You do not know now what I am doing, but later you will understand." 8Peter said to him, "You will never wash my feet." Jesus answered, "Unless I wash you, you have no share with me." 9Simon Peter said to him, "Lord, not my feet only but also my hands and my head!" 10Jesus said to him, "One who has bathed does not need to wash, except for the feet,[t] but is entirely clean. And you[u] are clean, though not all of you." 11For he knew who was to betray him; for this reason he said, "Not all of you are clean."

12 After he had washed their feet, had put on his robe, and had returned to the table, he said to them, "Do you know what I have done to you? 13You call me Teacher and Lord—and you are right, for that is what I am. 14So if I, your Lord and Teacher, have washed your feet, you also ought to wash one another's feet. 15For I have set you an example, that you also should do as I have done to you. 16Very truly, I tell you, servants[v] are not greater than their master, nor are messengers greater than the one who sent them. 17If you know these things, you are blessed if you do them. 18I am not speaking of all of you; I know whom I have chosen. But it is to fulfill the scripture, 'The one who ate my bread[w] has lifted his heel against me.' 19I tell you this now, before it occurs, so that when it does occur, you may believe that I am he.[x] 20Very truly, I tell you, whoever receives one whom I send receives me; and whoever receives me receives him who sent me."

21 After saying this Jesus was troubled in spirit, and declared, "Very truly, I tell you, one of you will betray me." 22The disciples looked at one another, uncertain of whom he was speaking. 23One of his disciples—the one whom Jesus loved—was reclining next to him; 24Simon Peter therefore motioned to him to ask Jesus of whom he was speaking. 25So while reclining next to Jesus, he asked him, "Lord, who is it?" 26Jesus answered, "It is the one to whom I give this piece of bread when I have dipped it in the dish."[y] So when he had dipped the piece of bread, he gave it to Judas son of Simon Iscariot.[z] 27After he received the piece of bread,[a] Satan entered into him. Jesus said to him, "Do quickly what you are going to do." 28Now no one at the table knew why he said this to him. 29Some thought that, because Judas had the common purse, Jesus was telling him, "Buy what we need for the festival"; or, that he should give something to the poor. 30So, after receiving the piece of bread, he immediately went out. And it was night.

31 When he had gone out, Jesus said, "Now the Son of Man has been glorified, and God has been glorified in him. 32If God has been glorified in him,[b] God will also glorify him in himself and will glorify him at once. 33Little children, I am with you only a little longer. You will look for me; and as I said to the Jews so now I say to you, 'Where I am going, you cannot come.' 34I give you a new commandment, that you love one another. Just as I have loved you, you also should love one another. 35By this everyone will know that you are my disciples, if you have love for one another."

36 Simon Peter said to him, "Lord, where are you going?" Jesus answered, "Where I am going, you cannot follow me now; but you will follow afterward." 37Peter said to him, "Lord, why can I not follow you now? I will lay down my life for you." 38Jesus answered, "Will you lay down your life for me? Very truly, I tell you, before the cock crows, you will have denied me three times.

14 "Do not let your hearts be troubled. Believe[c] in God, believe also in me. 2In my Father's house there are many dwelling places. If it were not so, would I have told you that I go to prepare a place for you?[d] 3And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again and will take you to myself, so that where I am, there you may be also. 4And you know the way to the place where I am going."[e] 5Thomas said to him, "Lord, we do not know where you are going. How can we know the way?" 6Jesus said to him, "I am the way, and the truth, and the life. No one comes to the Father except through me. 7If you know

13.21–30: The betrayer must be dissuaded, or dismissed. Jesus honors him by seating him next to himself, handing him a piece of bread (Ruth 2.14), concealing his treachery from all but the beloved disciple.

13.31–35: The death that Judas has gone to arrange will glorify (reveal the essence of) both Father and Son as holy love. The disciples are now the organ of this love. 33: Little children, an expression of endearment found only here in the Gospels; see also 1 Jn 2.1, 12, 28; 3.7, 18; 4.4; 5.21. 36–38: Peter is not yet ready to follow Jesus to death; afterward, according to tradition, he was martyred.

14.1–31: The believers' relation to the glorified Christ; no separation, but deepened fellowship. 1: Belief in God has new meaning in Jesus. 2–3: For him to go, through death and resurrection, to his Father's house (with dwelling places for all) was to prepare a place of permanent fellowship with him (13.33, 36). 4–7: Access to God is solely through Jesus (Mt 11.27; Jn 1.18; 6.46; Acts 4.12).

8 Philip said to him, "Lord, show us the Father, and we will be satisfied." 9Jesus said to him, "Have I been with you all this time, Philip, and you still do not know me? Whoever has seen me has seen the Father. How can you say, 'Show us the Father'? 10Do you not believe that I am in the Father and the Father is in me? The words that I say to you I do not speak on my own; but the Father who dwells in me does his works. 11Believe me that I am in the Father and the Father is in me; but if you do not, then believe me because of the works themselves. 12Very truly, I tell you, the one who believes in me will also do the works that I do and, in fact, will do greater works than these, because I am going to the Father. 13I will do whatever you ask in my name, so that the Father may be glorified in the Son. 14If in my name you ask me[g] for anything, I will do it.

15 "If you love me, you will keep[h] my commandments. 16And I will ask the Father, and he will give you another Advocate,[i] to be with you forever. 17This is the Spirit of truth, whom the world cannot receive, because it neither sees him nor knows him. You know him, because he abides with you, and he will be in[j] you.

18 "I will not leave you orphaned; I am coming to you. 19In a little while the world will no longer see me, but you will see me; because I live, you also will live. 20On that day you will know that I am in my Father, and you in me, and I in you. 21They who have my commandments and keep them are those who love me; and those who love me will be loved by my Father, and I will love them and reveal myself to them." 22Judas (not Iscariot) said to him, "Lord, how is it that you will reveal yourself to us, and not to the world?" 23Jesus answered him, "Those who love me will keep my word, and my Father will love them, and we will come to them and make our home with them. 24Whoever does not love me does not keep my words; and the word that you hear is not mine, but is from the Father who sent me.

25 "I have said these things to you while I am still with you. 26But the Advocate,[i] the Holy Spirit, whom the Father will send in my name, will teach you everything, and remind you of all that I have said to you. 27Peace I leave with you; my peace I give to you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled, and do not let them be afraid. 28You heard me say to you, 'I am going away, and I am coming to you.' If you loved me, you would rejoice that I am going to the Father, because the Father is greater than I. 29And now I have told you this before it occurs, so that when it does occur, you may believe. 30I will no longer talk much with you, for the ruler of this world is coming. He has no power over me; 31but I do as the Father has commanded me, so that the world may know that I love the Father. Rise, let us be on our way.

14.8–11: Knowledge of God is solely through the person, words, and works of Jesus. 12–17: Greater works (of a more exalted nature because redemption is achieved) will be done by the believers through prayer (vv. 13, 15), obedience (v. 15), and the Holy Spirit (Advocate, vv. 16, 17).

14.18–20: The Spirit imparts Christ's life (Acts 2.33) and unites the believer to God. 21–24: Fellowship with Christ is dependent on love which issues in obedience.

prunes[k] to make it bear more fruit. 3 You have already been cleansed[k] by the word that I have spoken to you. 4 Abide in me as I abide in you. Just as the branch cannot bear fruit by itself unless it abides in the vine, neither can you unless you abide in me. 5 I am the vine, you are the branches. Those who abide in me and I in them bear much fruit, because apart from me you can do nothing. 6 Whoever does not abide in me is thrown away like a branch and withers; such branches are gathered, thrown into the fire, and burned. 7 If you abide in me, and my words abide in you, ask for whatever you wish, and it will be done for you. 8 My Father is glorified by this, that you bear much fruit and become[l] my disciples. 9 As the Father has loved me, so I have loved you; abide in my love. 10 If you keep my commandments, you will abide in my love, just as I have kept my Father's commandments and abide in his love. 11 I have said these things to you so that my joy may be in you, and that your joy may be complete.

12 "This is my commandment, that you love one another as I have loved you. 13 No one has greater love than this, to lay down one's life for one's friends. 14 You are my friends if you do what I command you. 15 I do not call you servants[m] any longer, because the servant[n] does not know what the master is doing; but I have called you friends, because I have made known to you everything that I have heard from my Father. 16 You did not choose me but I chose you. And I appointed you to go and bear fruit, fruit that will last, so that the Father will give you whatever you ask him in my name. 17 I am giving you these commands so that you may love one another.

18 "If the world hates you, be aware that it hated me before it hated you. 19 If you belonged to the world,[o] the world would love you as its own. Because you do not belong to the world, but I have chosen you out of the world—therefore the world hates you. 20 Remember the word that I said to you, 'Servants[p] are not greater than their master.' If they persecuted me, they will persecute you; if they kept my word, they will keep yours also. 21 But they will do all these things to you on account of my name, because they do not know him who sent me. 22 If I had not come and spoken to them, they would not have sin; but now they have no excuse for their sin. 23 Whoever hates me hates my Father also. 24 If I had not done among them the works that no one else did, they would not have sin. But now they have seen and hated both me and my Father. 25 It was to fulfill the word that is written in their law, 'They hated me without a cause.'

26 "When the Advocate[q] comes, whom I will send to you from the Father, the Spirit of truth who comes from the Father, he will testify on my behalf. 27 You also are to testify because you have been with me from the beginning.

believer's life. Three dimensions are set forth: (a) 1–11: The believer's relation to Christ—abide. As the true vine Jesus was the true Israel, fulfilling the vocation in which the old Israel had failed (Isa 5.1–7; Jer 2.21; Ezek 19.10–14). The fruit bearing (Gal 5.22–23) of the new Israel (the church) springs from union (actual incorporation) with him (v. 5), through prayer (v. 7), and loving obedience (vv. 9, 10), issuing in joy (v. 11).

15.12–17: (b) The relation of believers to one another—love. The measure is determined by Jesus' death (v. 13). Fellowship with Jesus (vv. 14, 15), fruit bearing, and prayer (v. 16), are all dependent on obeying his commands to love (v. 17).

15.18–27: (c) The believer's relation to the world—to be separate from it (the world hates the church because it hates Christ who has judged it, vv. 18–25; Ps 35.19; 69.4), and to testify on . . . behalf of Christ in the power of the Holy Spirit (vv. 26–27; Acts 1.21–22; 5.32).

deed, an hour is coming when those who kill you will think that by doing so they are offering worship to God. 3And they will do this because they have not known the Father or me. 4But I have said these things to you so that when their hour comes you may remember that I told you about them.

"I did not say these things to you from the beginning, because I was with you. 5But now I am going to him who sent me; yet none of you asks me, 'Where are you going?' 6But because I have said these things to you, sorrow has filled your hearts. 7Nevertheless I tell you the truth: it is to your advantage that I go away, for if I do not go away, the Advocate[r] will not come to you; but if I go, I will send him to you. 8And when he comes, he will prove the world wrong about[s] sin and righteousness and judgment: 9about sin, because they do not believe in me; 10about righteousness, because I am going to the Father and you will see me no longer; 11about judgment, because the ruler of this world has been condemned.

12 "I still have many things to say to you, but you cannot bear them now. 13When the Spirit of truth comes, he will guide you into all the truth; for he will not speak on his own, but will speak whatever he hears, and he will declare to you the things that are to come. 14He will glorify me, because he will take what is mine and declare it to you. 15All that the Father has is mine. For this reason I said that he will take what is mine and declare it to you.

16 "A little while, and you will no longer see me, and again a little while, and you will see me." 17Then some of his disciples said to one another, "What does he mean by saying to us, 'A little while, and you will no longer see me, and again a little while, and you will see me'; and 'Because I am going to the Father'?" 18They said, "What does he mean by this 'a little while'? We do not know what he is talking about." 19Jesus knew that they wanted to ask him, so he said to them, "Are you discussing among yourselves what I meant when I said, 'A little while, and you will no longer see me, and again a little while, and you will see me'? 20Very truly, I tell you, you will weep and mourn, but the world will rejoice; you will have pain, but your pain will turn into joy. 21When a woman is in labor, she has pain, because her hour has come. But when her child is born, she no longer remembers the anguish because of the joy of having brought a human being into the world. 22So you have pain now; but I will see you again, and your hearts will rejoice, and no one will take your joy from you. 23On that day you will ask nothing of me.[t] Very truly, I tell you, if you ask anything of the Father in my name, he will give it to you.[u] 24Until now you have not asked for anything in my name. Ask and you will receive, so that your joy may be complete.

16.1–33: The Christian's relation to the world. 1–4a: Forewarning of conflict. It is to be expected that the world, even the religious world, will persecute the followers of Christ (vv. 2–3; Acts 22.3–5; 26.9–11).

16.4b–11: The work of the Advocate (Holy Spirit) through the church. Sorrow at Jesus' departure is transformed by the truth that his death and resurrection make possible the Spirit's work (vv. 6–7). The Spirit will prove the world wrong about sin (unbelief in Jesus, v. 9), about righteousness (revealed in the cross, v. 10), about judgment (triumph over evil, v. 11); see also 12.31; 14.30; 1 Cor 2.8; Col 2.15.

16.12–15: The guidance of the Spirit into the full truth about the historic Jesus (will glorify, will reveal the essential nature of).

16.16–24: Temporary pain over Jesus' death yields to joy over his resurrection and abiding presence (vv. 20–22). This is sustained by prayer in Jesus' name (nature, all that the cross and resurrection reveal him to be, vv. 23–24).

16.25–33: The pledge of triumph. Jesus' going to the Father (v. 28) makes plain all his figures, but will tell you plainly of the Father. 26On that day you will ask in my name. I do not say to you that I will ask the Father on your behalf; 27for the Father himself loves you, because you have loved me and have believed that I came from God.[v] 28I came from the Father and have come into the world; again, I am leaving the world and am going to the Father."

29 His disciples said, "Yes, now you are speaking plainly, not in any figure of speech! 30Now we know that you know all things, and do not need to have anyone question you; by this we believe that you came from God." 31Jesus answered them, "Do you now believe? 32The hour is coming, indeed it has come, when you will be scattered, each one to his home, and you will leave me alone. Yet I am not alone because the Father is with me. 33I have said this to you, so that in me you may have peace. In the world you face persecution. But take courage; I have conquered the world!"

17 After Jesus had spoken these words, he looked up to heaven and said, "Father, the hour has come; glorify your Son so that the Son may glorify you, 2since you have given him authority over all people,[w] to give eternal life to all whom you have given him. 3And this is eternal life, that they may know you, the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom you have sent. 4I glorified you on earth by finishing the work that you gave me to do. 5So now, Father, glorify me in your own presence with the glory that I had in your presence before the world existed.

6 "I have made your name known to those whom you gave me from the world. They were yours, and you gave them to me, and they have kept your word. 7Now they know that everything you have given me is from you; 8for the words that you gave to me I have given to them, and they have received them and know in truth that I came from you; and they have believed that you sent me. 9I am asking on their behalf; I am not asking on behalf of the world, but on behalf of those whom you gave me, because they are yours. 10All mine are yours, and yours are mine; and I have been glorified in them. 11And now I am no longer in the world, but they are in the world, and I am coming to you. Holy Father, protect them in your name that you have given me, so that they may be one, as we are one. 12While I was with them, I protected them in your name that[x] you have given me. I guarded them, and not one of them was lost except the one destined to be lost,[y] so that the scripture might be fulfilled. 13But now I am coming to you, and I speak these things in the world so that they may have my joy made complete in themselves.[z] 14I have given them your word, and the world has hated them because they do not belong to the world, just as I do not belong to the world. 15I am not asking you to take them out of the world, but I ask you to protect them from the evil one.[a] 16They do not belong to the world, just as I do not belong to the world. 17Sanctify them in the truth; your word is truth. 18As you have sent me into the world, so I have sent them into the world. 19And for their sakes I sanctify myself, so that they also may be sanctified in truth.

20 "I ask not only on behalf of these, but also on behalf of those who will believe in me through their word, 21that they may all be one. As you, Father, are in me and I am in you, may they also be in us,[b] so that the world may believe that you have sent me. 22The glory that you have given me I have given them, so that they may be one, as we are one, 23I in them and you in me, that they may become completely one, so that the world may know that you have sent me and have loved them even as you have loved me. 24Father, I desire that those also, whom you have given me, may be with me where I am, to see my glory, which you have given me because you loved me before the foundation of the world.

25 "Righteous Father, the world does not know you, but I know you; and these know that you have sent me. 26I made your name known to them, and I will make it known, so that the love with which you have loved me may be in them, and I in them."

18 After Jesus had spoken these words, he went out with his disciples across the Kidron valley to a place where there was a garden, which he and his disciples entered. 2Now Judas, who betrayed him, also knew the place, because Jesus often met there with his disciples. 3So Judas brought a detachment of soldiers together with police from the chief priests and the Pharisees, and they came there with lanterns and torches and weapons. 4Then Jesus, knowing all that was to happen to him, came forward and asked them, "Whom are you looking for?" 5They answered, "Jesus of Nazareth."[c] Jesus replied, "I am he."[d] Judas, who betrayed him, was standing with them. 6When Jesus[e] said to them, "I am he,"[d] they stepped back and fell to the ground. 7Again he asked them, "Whom are you looking for?" And they said, "Jesus of Nazareth."[c] 8Jesus answered, "I told you that I am he.[d] So if you are looking for me, let these men go." 9This was to fulfill the word that he had spoken, "I did not lose a single one of those whom you gave me." 10Then Simon Peter, who had a sword, drew it, struck the high priest's slave, and cut off his right ear. The slave's name was Malchus. 11Jesus said to Peter, "Put your sword back into its sheath. Am I not to drink the cup that the Father has given me?"

12 So the soldiers, their officer, and the Jewish police arrested Jesus and bound him. 13First they took him to Annas, who was the father-in-law of Caiaphas, the high priest that year. 14Caiaphas was the one who had advised the Jews that it was better to have one person die for the people.

15 Simon Peter and another disciple followed Jesus. Since that disciple was known to the high priest, he went with Jesus into the courtyard of the high priest, 16but Peter was standing outside at the gate. So the other disciple, who was known to the high priest, went out, spoke to the woman who guarded the gate, and brought Peter in. 17The woman said to Peter, "You are not also one of this man's disciples, are you?" He said, "I am not." 18Now the slaves and the police had made a charcoal fire because it was cold, and they were standing around it and warming themselves. Peter also was standing with them and warming himself.

19 Then the high priest questioned Jesus about his disciples and about his teaching. 20 Jesus answered, "I have spoken openly to the world; I have always taught in synagogues and in the temple, where all the Jews come together. I have said nothing in secret. 21 Why do you ask me? Ask those who heard what I said to them; they know what I said." 22 When he had said this, one of the police standing nearby struck Jesus on the face, saying, "Is that how you answer the high priest?" 23 Jesus answered, "If I have spoken wrongly, testify to the wrong. But if I have spoken rightly, why do you strike me?" 24 Then Annas sent him bound to Caiaphas the high priest.

25 Now Simon Peter was standing and warming himself. They asked him, "You are not also one of his disciples, are you?" He denied it and said, "I am not." 26 One of the slaves of the high priest, a relative of the man whose ear Peter had cut off, asked, "Did I not see you in the garden with him?" 27 Again Peter denied it, and at that moment the cock crowed.

28 Then they took Jesus from Caiaphas to Pilate's headquarters.[f] It was early in the morning. They themselves did not enter the headquarters,[f] so as to avoid ritual defilement and to be able to eat the Passover. 29 So Pilate went out to them and said, "What accusation do you bring against this man?" 30 They answered, "If this man were not a criminal, we would not have handed him over to you." 31 Pilate said to them, "Take him yourselves and judge him according to your law." The Jews replied, "We are not permitted to put anyone to death." 32 (This was to fulfill what Jesus had said when he indicated the kind of death he was to die.)

33 Then Pilate entered the headquarters[f] again, summoned Jesus, and asked him, "Are you the King of the Jews?" 34 Jesus answered, "Do you ask this on your own, or did others tell you about me?" 35 Pilate replied, "I am not a Jew, am I? Your own nation and the chief priests have handed you over to me. What have you done?" 36 Jesus answered, "My kingdom is not from this world. If my kingdom were from this world, my followers would be fighting to keep me from being handed over to the Jews. But as it is, my kingdom is not from here." 37 Pilate asked him, "So you are a king?" Jesus answered, "You say that I am a king. For this I was born, and for this I came into the world, to testify to the truth. Everyone who belongs to the truth listens to my voice." 38 Pilate asked him, "What is truth?"

After he had said this, he went out to the Jews again and told them, "I find no case against him. 39 But you have a custom that I release someone for you at the Passover. Do you want me to release for you the King of the Jews?" 40 They shouted in reply, "Not this man, but Barabbas!" Now Barabbas was a bandit.

19 Then Pilate took Jesus and had him flogged. 2 And the soldiers wove a crown of thorns and put it on his head, and they dressed him in a purple robe. 3 They kept coming up to him, saying, "Hail, King of the Jews!" and striking him on the face. 4 Pilate went out again and said to them, "Look, I am bringing him out to you to let you know that I find no case against him." 5So Jesus came out, wearing the crown of thorns and the purple robe. Pilate said to them, "Here is the man!" 6When the chief priests and the police saw him, they shouted, "Crucify him! Crucify him!" Pilate said to them, "Take him yourselves and crucify him; I find no case against him." 7The Jews answered him, "We have a law, and according to that law he ought to die because he has claimed to be the Son of God."

8 Now when Pilate heard this, he was more afraid than ever. 9He entered his headquarters[g] again and asked Jesus, "Where are you from?" But Jesus gave him no answer. 10Pilate therefore said to him, "Do you refuse to speak to me? Do you not know that I have power to release you, and power to crucify you?" 11Jesus answered him, "You would have no power over me unless it had been given you from above; therefore the one who handed me over to you is guilty of a greater sin." 12From then on Pilate tried to release him, but the Jews cried out, "If you release this man, you are no friend of the emperor. Everyone who claims to be a king sets himself against the emperor."

13 When Pilate heard these words, he brought Jesus outside and sat[h] on the judge's bench at a place called The Stone Pavement, or in Hebrew[i] Gabbatha. 14Now it was the day of Preparation for the Passover; and it was about noon. He said to the Jews, "Here is your King!" 15They cried out, "Away with him! Away with him! Crucify him!" Pilate asked them, "Shall I crucify your King?" The chief priests answered, "We have no king but the emperor." 16Then he handed him over to them to be crucified.

So they took Jesus; 17and carrying the cross by himself, he went out to what is called The Place of the Skull, which in Hebrew[i] is called Golgotha. 18There they crucified him, and with him two others, one on either side, with Jesus between them. 19Pilate also had an inscription written and put on the cross. It read, "Jesus of Nazareth,[j] the King of the Jews." 20Many of the Jews read this inscription, because the place where Jesus was crucified was near the city; and it was written in Hebrew,[i] in Latin, and in Greek. 21Then the chief priests of the Jews said to Pilate, "Do not write, 'The King of the Jews,' but, 'This man said, I am King of the Jews.'" 22Pilate answered, "What I have written I have written." 23When the soldiers had crucified Jesus, they took his clothes and divided them into four parts, one for each soldier. They also took his tunic; now the tunic was seamless, woven in one piece from the top. 24So they said to one another, "Let us not tear it, but cast lots for it to see who will get it." This was to fulfill what the scripture says,

"They divided my clothes among themselves,
and for my clothing they cast lots."

25And that is what the soldiers did.

Meanwhile, standing near the cross of Jesus were his mother, and his mother's sister, Mary the wife of Clopas, and Mary Magdalene. 26When Jesus saw his mother and the disciple whom he loved standing beside her, he said to his mother, "Woman, here is your son." 27Then he said to the disciple, "Here is your mother." And from that hour the disciple took her into his own home.

28 After this, when Jesus knew that all was now finished, he said (in order to fulfill the scripture), "I am thirsty." 29 A jar full of sour wine was standing there. So they put a sponge full of the wine on a branch of hyssop and held it to his mouth. 30 When Jesus had received the wine, he said, "It is finished." Then he bowed his head and gave up his spirit.

31 Since it was the day of Preparation, the Jews did not want the bodies left on the cross during the sabbath, especially because that sabbath was a day of great solemnity. So they asked Pilate to have the legs of the crucified men broken and the bodies removed. 32 Then the soldiers came and broke the legs of the first and of the other who had been crucified with him. 33 But when they came to Jesus and saw that he was already dead, they did not break his legs. 34 Instead, one of the soldiers pierced his side with a spear, and at once blood and water came out. 35 (He who saw this has testified so that you also may believe. His testimony is true, and he knows[k] that he tells the truth.) 36 These things occurred so that the scripture might be fulfilled, "None of his bones shall be broken." 37 And again another passage of scripture says, "They will look on the one whom they have pierced."

38 After these things, Joseph of Arimathea, who was a disciple of Jesus, though a secret one because of his fear of the Jews, asked Pilate to let him take away the body of Jesus. Pilate gave him permission; so he came and removed his body. 39 Nicodemus, who had at first come to Jesus by night, also came, bringing a mixture of myrrh and aloes, weighing about a hundred pounds. 40 They took the body of Jesus and wrapped it with the spices in linen cloths, according to the burial custom of the Jews. 41 Now there was a garden in the place where he was crucified, and in the garden there was a new tomb in which no one had ever been laid. 42 And so, because it was the Jewish day of Preparation, and the tomb was nearby, they laid Jesus there.

20 Early on the first day of the week, while it was still dark, Mary Magdalene came to the tomb and saw that the stone had been removed from the tomb. 2 So she ran and went to Simon Peter and the other disciple, the one whom Jesus loved, and said to them, "They have taken the Lord out of the tomb, and we do not know where they have laid him." 3 Then Peter and the other disciple set out and went toward the tomb. 4 The two were running together, but the other disciple outran Peter and reached the tomb first. 5 He bent down to look in and saw the linen wrappings lying there, but he did not go in. 6 Then Simon Peter came, following him, and went into the tomb. He saw the linen wrappings lying there, 7 and the cloth that had been on Jesus' head, not lying with the linen wrappings but rolled up in a place by itself. 8 Then the other disciple, who reached the tomb first, also went in, and he saw and believed; 9for as yet they did not understand the scripture, that he must rise from the dead. 10Then the disciples returned to their homes.

11 But Mary stood weeping outside the tomb. As she wept, she bent over to look[l] into the tomb; 12and she saw two angels in white, sitting where the body of Jesus had been lying, one at the head and the other at the feet. 13They said to her, "Woman, why are you weeping?" She said to them, "They have taken away my Lord, and I do not know where they have laid him." 14When she had said this, she turned around and saw Jesus standing there, but she did not know that it was Jesus. 15Jesus said to her, "Woman, why are you weeping? Whom are you looking for?" Supposing him to be the gardener, she said to him, "Sir, if you have carried him away, tell me where you have laid him, and I will take him away." 16Jesus said to her, "Mary!" She turned and said to him in Hebrew,[m] "Rabbouni!" (which means Teacher). 17Jesus said to her, "Do not hold on to me, because I have not yet ascended to the Father. But go to my brothers and say to them, 'I am ascending to my Father and your Father, to my God and your God.'" 18Mary Magdalene went and announced to the disciples, "I have seen the Lord"; and she told them that he had said these things to her.

19 When it was evening on that day, the first day of the week, and the doors of the house where the disciples had met were locked for fear of the Jews, Jesus came and stood among them and said, "Peace be with you." 20After he said this, he showed them his hands and his side. Then the disciples rejoiced when they saw the Lord. 21Jesus said to them again, "Peace be with you. As the Father has sent me, so I send you." 22When he had said this, he breathed on them and said to them, "Receive the Holy Spirit. 23If you forgive the sins of any, they are forgiven them; if you retain the sins of any, they are retained."

24 But Thomas (who was called the Twin[n]), one of the twelve, was not with them when Jesus came. 25So the other disciples told him, "We have seen the Lord." But he said to them, "Unless I see the mark of the nails in his hands, and put my finger in the mark of the nails and my hand in his side, I will not believe."

26 A week later his disciples were again in the house, and Thomas was with them. Although the doors were shut, Jesus came and stood among them and said, "Peace be with you." 27Then he said to Thomas, "Put your finger here and see my hands. Reach out your hand and put it in my side. Do not doubt but believe." 28Thomas answered him, "My Lord and my God!" 29Jesus said to him, "Have you believed because you have seen me? Blessed are those who have not seen and yet have come to believe."

30 Now Jesus did many other signs in the presence of his disciples, which are not written in this book. 31But these are written so that you may come to believe[o] that Jesus is the Messiah,[p] the Son of God, and that through believing you may have life in his name.

21 After these things Jesus showed himself again to the disciples by the Sea of Tiberias; and he showed himself in this way. 2Gathered there together were Simon Peter, Thomas called the Twin,[q] Nathanael of Cana in Galilee, the sons of Zebedee, and two others of his disciples. 3Simon Peter said to them, "I am going fishing." They said to him, "We will go with you." They went out and got into the boat, but that night they caught nothing.

4 Just after daybreak, Jesus stood on the beach; but the disciples did not know that it was Jesus. 5Jesus said to them, "Children, you have no fish, have you?" They answered him, "No." 6He said to them, "Cast the net to the right side of the boat, and you will find some." So they cast it, and now they were not able to haul it in because there were so many fish. 7That disciple whom Jesus loved said to Peter, "It is the Lord!" When Simon Peter heard that it was the Lord, he put on some clothes, for he was naked, and jumped into the sea. 8But the other disciples came in the boat, dragging the net full of fish, for they were not far from the land, only about a hundred yards[r] off.

9 When they had gone ashore, they saw a charcoal fire there, with fish on it, and bread. 10Jesus said to them, "Bring some of the fish that you have just caught." 11So Simon Peter went aboard and hauled the net ashore, full of large fish, a hundred fifty-three of them; and though there were so many, the net was not torn. 12Jesus said to them, "Come and have breakfast." Now none of the disciples dared to ask him, "Who are you?" because they knew it was the Lord. 13Jesus came and took the bread and gave it to them, and did the same with the fish. 14This was now the third time that Jesus appeared to the disciples after he was raised from the dead.

15 When they had finished breakfast, Jesus said to Simon Peter, "Simon son of John, do you love me more than these?" He said to him, "Yes, Lord; you know that I love you." Jesus said to him, "Feed my lambs." 16A second time he said to him, "Simon son of John, do you love me?" He said to him, "Yes, Lord; you know that I love you." Jesus said to him, "Tend my sheep." 17He said to him the third time, "Simon son of John, do you love me?" Peter felt hurt because he said to him the third time, "Do you love me?" And he said to him, "Lord, you know everything; you know that I love you." Jesus said to him, "Feed my sheep. 18Very truly, I tell you, when you were younger, you used to fasten your own belt and to go wherever you wished. But when you grow old, you will stretch out your hands, and someone else will fasten a belt around you and take you where you do not wish to go." 19(He said this to indicate the kind of death by which he would glorify God.) After this he said to him, "Follow me."

20 Peter turned and saw the disciple whom Jesus loved following them; he was the one who had reclined next to Jesus at the supper and had said, "Lord,

Yet Jesus did not say to him that he would not die, but, "If it is my will that he remain until I come, what is that to you?"[t]

The Acts
of the Apostles

The book of Acts continues the narrative of the Gospel according to Luke by tracing the story of the Christian movement from the resurrection of Jesus to the time when the apostle Paul was in Rome, proclaiming the gospel "with all boldness and without hindrance" (28.31). Most of the first half of Acts is occupied with the Jerusalem church, its leaders and relationships, while the latter half is dominated by Paul and his three missionary journeys, climaxed by his arrest and voyage to Rome. The progress of the narrative is mainly geographical: from Jerusalem the word spreads to Samaria (8.5), the seacoast (8.40), Damascus (9.10), Antioch (where the disciples were first called "Christians"; 11.26), Asia Minor (13.13), Europe (16.11), and finally Rome itself.

Like the four Gospels, Acts is an anonymous book. The tradition attributing the third Gospel and Acts to Luke, the companion for a time of Paul (Col 4.14; compare 2 Tim 4.11; Philem 24), begins in the latter part of the second century and remains constant thereafter.

About one-fifth of the book of Acts comprises the report of speeches and missionary discourses; of the latter there are six to Jewish audiences (2.14–39; 3.12–26; 4.9–12; 5.29–32; 10.34–43; 13.16–41), two to Gentiles (14.15–17; 17.22–31). The archaic flavor and Semitic idiom of the speeches to the Jews testify to Luke's skill in conveying a variety of emphases and nuances appropriate to the several speakers and circumstances.

Four portions in the latter part of the book suddenly fall into the first person plural (16.10–17; 20.5–15; 21.1–18; 27.1–28.16). It is possible that these "we-passages" —all of which begin or end with a sea voyage—come from a travel diary that Luke, as Paul's companion on these occasions, had drawn up at the time. It is also possible that they, like the contents of the letter of Claudius Lysias to Felix (23.26), are Luke's own free composition, drawn up in the manner similar to that of other ancient historians, who shaped speeches by prominent persons to illustrate the meaning of historical events. (See also the article on "Narrative Books," pp. viii–x NT.)

The date of the composition of Acts is disputed. Because there is no mention of the outcome of Paul's arrest (the apostle is awaiting trial at the close of the book), some have thought that the book was published prior to Paul's martyrdom under Nero, about A.D. 65–67. On the other hand, internal qualities that hint at the author's considerable degree of historical maturity in assessing the significance of the first thirty years of the church's history suggests a later date, perhaps in the 80s. Luke's purpose in writing was to awaken faith by showing the triumphant progress of the Good News and to defend Christians against the charge that they were destructive of Jewish institutions and a troublesome element in the empire. None of the judges and other authorities who hear Paul and other Christians find them guilty of anything wrong.

Another of the author's special interests, controlling the selection and presentation of details, was to show the activity of the Holy Spirit in the founding and development of the church. In fact, the book might appropriately be entitled "The Acts of the Holy Spirit," for the dominating theme is the power of the Spirit manifested in and through the members of the early church. But Luke had also an interest in history for its own sake and in the men and women of the story, in the details of lodging, entertainment, and travel, and all that constitutes local color. As a result his work entertains and pleases the reader while dealing with the spread of Christianity in selected portions of the Mediterranean world. From every point of view, the New Testament would be infinitely poorer without this first book of church history.

1 In the first book, Theophilus, I wrote about all that Jesus did and taught from the beginning 2until the day when he was taken up to heaven, after giving instructions through the Holy Spirit to the apostles whom he had chosen. 3After his suffering he presented himself alive to them by many convincing proofs, appearing to them during forty days and speaking about the kingdom of God. 4While staying[a] with them, he ordered them not to leave Jerusalem, but to wait there for the promise of the Father. "This," he said, "is what you have heard from me; 5for John baptized with water, but you will be baptized with[b] the Holy Spirit not many days from now."

6 So when they had come together, they asked him, "Lord, is this the time when you will restore the kingdom to Israel?" 7He replied, "It is not for you to know the times or periods that the Father has set by his own authority. 8But you will receive power when the Holy Spirit has come upon you; and you will be my witnesses in Jerusalem, in all Judea and Samaria, and to the ends of the earth." 9When he had said this, as they were watching, he was lifted up, and a cloud took him out of their sight. 10While he was going and they were gazing up toward heaven, suddenly two men in white robes stood by them. 11They said, "Men of Galilee, why do you stand looking up toward heaven? This Jesus, who has been taken up from you into heaven, will come in the same way as you saw him go into heaven."

12 Then they returned to Jerusalem from the mount called Olivet, which is near Jerusalem, a sabbath day's journey away. 13When they had entered the city, they went to the room upstairs where they were staying, Peter, and John, and James, and Andrew, Philip and Thomas, Bartholomew and Matthew, James son of Alphaeus, and Simon the Zealot, and Judas son of[c] James. 14All these were constantly devoting themselves to prayer, together with certain women, including Mary the mother of Jesus, as well as his brothers.

15 In those days Peter stood up among the believers[d] (together the crowd numbered about one hundred twenty persons) and said, 16"Friends,[e] the scripture had to be fulfilled, which the Holy Spirit through David foretold concerning Judas, who became a guide for those who arrested Jesus— 17for he was numbered among us and was allotted his share in this ministry." 18(Now this man acquired a field with the reward of his wickedness; and falling headlong,[f] he burst open in the middle and all his bowels gushed out. 19This became known to all the residents of Jerusalem, so that the field was called in their language Hakeldama, that is, Field of 21So one of the men who have accompanied us during all the time that the Lord Jesus went in and out among us, 22beginning from the baptism of John until the day when he was taken up from us—one of these must become a witness with us to his resurrection." 23So they proposed two, Joseph called Barsabbas, who was also known as Justus, and Matthias. 24Then they prayed and said, "Lord, you know everyone's heart. Show us which one of these two you have chosen 25to take the place[g] in this ministry and apostleship from which Judas turned aside to go to his own place." 26And they cast lots for them, and the lot fell on Matthias; and he was added to the eleven apostles.

2 When the day of Pentecost had come, they were all together in one place. 2And suddenly from heaven there came a sound like the rush of a violent wind, and it filled the entire house where they were sitting. 3Divided tongues, as of fire, appeared among them, and a tongue rested on each of them. 4All of them were filled with the Holy Spirit and began to speak in other languages, as the Spirit gave them ability.

5 Now there were devout Jews from every nation under heaven living in Jerusalem. 6And at this sound the crowd gathered and was bewildered, because each one heard them speaking in the native language of each. 7Amazed and astonished, they asked, "Are not all these who are speaking Galileans? 8And how is it that we hear, each of us, in our own native language? 9Parthians, Medes, Elamites, and residents of Mesopotamia, Judea and Cappadocia, Pontus and Asia, 10Phrygia and Pamphylia, Egypt and the parts of Libya belonging to Cyrene, and visitors from Rome, both Jews and proselytes, 11Cretans and Arabs—in our own languages we hear them speaking about God's deeds of power." 12All were amazed and perplexed, saying to one another, "What does this mean?" 13But others sneered and said, "They are filled with new wine."

14 But Peter, standing with the eleven, raised his voice and addressed them, "Men of Judea and all who live in Jerusalem, let this be known to you, and listen to what I say. 15Indeed, these are not drunk, as you suppose, for it is only nine o'clock in the morning. 16No, this is what was spoken through the prophet Joel:

22 "You that are Israelites,[h] listen to what I have to say: Jesus of Nazareth,[i] a man attested to you by God with deeds of power, wonders, and signs that God did through him among you, as you yourselves know— 23this man, handed over to you according to the definite plan and foreknowledge of God, you crucified and killed by the hands of those outside the law. 24But God raised him up, having freed him from death,[j] because it was impossible for him to be held in its power. 25For David says concerning him,

'I saw the Lord always before me,
for he is at my right hand so that I will not be shaken; 26 therefore my heart was glad, and my tongue rejoiced;
moreover my flesh will live
in hope.
27 For you will not abandon my soul

or let your Holy One experience

28 You have made known to me the

29 "Fellow Israelites,[k] I may say to you confidently of our ancestor David that he both died and was buried, and his tomb is with us to this day. 30Since he was a prophet, he knew that God had sworn with an oath to him that he would put one of his descendants on his throne. 31Foreseeing this, David[l] spoke of the resurrection of the Messiah,[m] saying,

'He was not abandoned to Hades, nor did his flesh experience corruption.'

32This Jesus God raised up, and of that all of us are witnesses. 33Being therefore exalted at[n] the right hand of God, and having received from the Father the promise of the Holy Spirit, he has poured out this that you both see and hear. 34For David did not ascend into the heavens, but he himself says,

'The Lord said to my Lord,
"Sit at my right hand,
35 until I make your enemies your
footstool."'

36Therefore let the entire house of Israel know with certainty that God has made him both Lord and Messiah,[o] this Jesus whom you crucified."

37 Now when they heard this, they were cut to the heart and said to Peter and to the other apostles, "Brothers,[k] what should we do?" 38Peter said to them, "Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ so that your sins may be forgiven; and you will receive the gift of the Holy Spirit. 39For the promise is for you, for your children, and for all who are far away, everyone whom the Lord our God calls to him."

40 And he testified with many other arguments and exhorted them, saying, "Save yourselves from this corrupt generation." 41 So those who welcomed his message were baptized, and that day about three thousand persons were added. 42 They devoted themselves to the apostles' teaching and fellowship, to the breaking of bread and the prayers.

43 Awe came upon everyone, because many wonders and signs were being done by the apostles. 44 All who believed were together and had all things in common; 45 they would sell their possessions and goods and distribute the proceeds[p] to all, as any had need. 46 Day by day, as they spent much time together in the temple, they broke bread at home[q] and ate their food with glad and generous[r] hearts, 47 praising God and having the goodwill of all the people. And day by day the Lord added to their number those who were being saved.

3 One day Peter and John were going up to the temple at the hour of prayer, at three o'clock in the afternoon. 2 And a man lame from birth was being carried in. People would lay him daily at the gate of the temple called the Beautiful Gate so that he could ask for alms from those entering the temple. 3 When he saw Peter and John about to go into the temple, he asked them for alms. 4 Peter looked intently at him, as did John, and said, "Look at us." 5 And he fixed his attention on them, expecting to receive something from them. 6 But Peter said, "I have no silver or gold, but what I have I give you; in the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth,[s] stand up and walk." 7 And he took him by the right hand and raised him up; and immediately his feet and ankles were made strong. 8 Jumping up, he stood and began to walk, and he entered the temple with them, walking and leaping and praising God. 9 All the people saw him walking and praising God, 10 and they recognized him as the one who used to sit and ask for alms at the Beautiful Gate of the temple; and they were filled with wonder and amazement at what had happened to him.

11 While he clung to Peter and John, all the people ran together to them in the portico called Solomon's Portico, utterly astonished. 12 When Peter saw it, he addressed the people, "You Israelites,[t] why do you wonder at this, or why do you stare at us, as though by our own power or piety we had made him walk? 13 The God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob, the God of our ancestors has glorified his servant[u] Jesus, whom you handed over and rejected in the presence of Pilate, though he had decided to release him. 14 But you rejected the Holy and Righteous One and asked to have a murderer given to you, 15 and you killed the Author of life, whom God raised from the dead. 17 "And now, friends,[w] I know that you acted in ignorance, as did also your rulers. 18 In this way God fulfilled what he had foretold through all the prophets, that his Messiah[x] would suffer. 19 Repent therefore, and turn to God so that your sins may be wiped out, 20 so that times of refreshing may come from the presence of the Lord, and that he may send the Messiah[y] appointed for you, that is, Jesus, 21 who must remain in heaven until the time of universal restoration that God announced long ago through his holy prophets. 22 Moses said, 'The Lord your God will raise up for you from your own people[w] a prophet like me. You must listen to whatever he tells you. 23 And it will be that everyone who does not listen to that prophet will be utterly rooted out of the people.' 24 And all the prophets, as many as have spoken, from Samuel and those after him, also predicted these days. 25 You are the descendants of the prophets and of the covenant that God gave to your ancestors, saying to Abraham, 'And in your descendants all the families of the earth shall be blessed.' 26 When God raised up his servant,[z] he sent him first to you, to bless you by turning each of you from your wicked ways."

4 While Peter and John[a] were speaking to the people, the priests, the captain of the temple, and the Sadducees came to them, 2 much annoyed because they were teaching the people and proclaiming that in Jesus there is the resurrection of the dead. 3 So they arrested them and put them in custody until the next day, for it was already evening. 4 But many of those who heard the word believed; and they numbered about five thousand.

5 The next day their rulers, elders, and scribes assembled in Jerusalem, 6 with Annas the high priest, Caiaphas, John,[b] and Alexander, and all who were of the high-priestly family. 7 When they had made the prisoners[c] stand in their midst, they inquired, "By what power or by what name did you do this?" 8 Then Peter, filled with the Holy Spirit, said to them, "Rulers of the people and elders, 9 if we are questioned today because of a good deed done to someone who was sick and are asked how this man has been healed, 10 let it be known to all of you, and to all the people of Israel, that this man is standing before you in good health by the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth,[d] whom you crucified, whom God raised from the dead. 11 This Jesus[e] is you, the builders;

it has become the cornerstone.'[f]

The priests in control of the temple were usually Sadducees, who denied the resurrection of the dead (23.6–8). 5–6: Perhaps the rulers are priests; with the elders and scribes they made up the Sanhedrin, or council, of which the high priest was head (see Jn 11.47 n.). Annas held this office A.D. 6–14, and Caiaphas was his son-in-law (Jn 18.13); John may be Jonathan, who succeeded Caiaphas. 11: The stone which was rejected (Ps 118.22) is also identified with Jesus in Mk 12.10; 1 Pet 2.7. Essenes (see Mt 3.7 n.) and Christians used this and other Old Testament "stone" passages in teaching. 13: Like Jesus (Jn 7.15), the apostles were considered uneducated because they were amazed and recognized them as companions of Jesus. 14When they saw the man who had been cured standing beside them, they had nothing to say in opposition. 15So they ordered them to leave the council while they discussed the matter with one another. 16They said, "What will we do with them? For it is obvious to all who live in Jerusalem that a notable sign has been done through them; we cannot deny it. 17But to keep it from spreading further among the people, let us warn them to speak no more to anyone in this name." 18So they called them and ordered them not to speak or teach at all in the name of Jesus. 19But Peter and John answered them, "Whether it is right in God's sight to listen to you rather than to God, you must judge; 20for we cannot keep from speaking about what we have seen and heard." 21After threatening them again, they let them go, finding no way to punish them because of the people, for all of them praised God for what had happened. 22For the man on whom this sign of healing had been performed was more than forty years old.

23 After they were released, they went to their friends[g] and reported what the chief priests and the elders had said to them. 24When they heard it, they raised their voices together to God and said, "Sovereign Lord, who made the heaven and the earth, the sea, and everything in them, 25it is you who said by the Holy Spirit through our ancestor David, your servant:[h]

'Why did the Gentiles rage,
and the peoples imagine vain things?
26 The kings of the earth took their stand,
and the rulers have gathered together against the Lord and against his Messiah.'[i]

27For in this city, in fact, both Herod and Pontius Pilate, with the Gentiles and the peoples of Israel, gathered together against your holy servant[h] Jesus, whom you anointed, 28to do whatever your hand and your plan had predestined to take place. 29And now, Lord, look at their threats, and grant to your servants[j] to speak your word with all boldness, 30while you stretch out your hand to heal, and signs and wonders are performed through the name of your holy servant[h] Jesus." 31When they had prayed, the place in which they were gathered together was shaken; and they were all filled with the Holy Spirit and spoke the word of God with boldness.

32 Now the whole group of those who believed were of one heart and soul, and no one claimed private ownership of any possessions, but everything they owned was held in common. 33With great power the apostles gave their testimony to the resurrection of the Lord Jesus, and great grace was upon them all. 34There was not a needy person among them, for as many as owned lands or houses sold them and brought the proceeds of what was sold. 35They laid it at the apostles' feet, and it was distributed to each as any had need. 36There was a Levite, a native of Cyprus, Joseph, to whom the apostles gave the name Barnabas (which means "son of encouragement"). 37He sold a field that belonged to him, then brought the money, and laid it at the apostles' feet.

5 But a man named Ananias, with the consent of his wife Sapphira, sold a piece of property; 2with his wife's knowledge, he kept back some of the lacked rabbinical training. 25–26: Ps 2.1–2. 27: Servant, see 3.13 n. 29: Look at their threats, a prayer to be shielded from harm.

4.32–5.11: The sharing of goods. Christians took care of their needy (Rom 12.8; 1 Cor 13.3; Heb 13.16), but it was only in Jerusalem that this type of communal living (similar to that of the Essenes) was practiced for a time.

proceeds, and brought only a part and laid it at the apostles' feet. 3"Ananias," Peter asked, "why has Satan filled your heart to lie to the Holy Spirit and to keep back part of the proceeds of the land? 4While it remained unsold, did it not remain your own? And after it was sold, were not the proceeds at your disposal? How is it that you have contrived this deed in your heart? You did not lie to us[k] but to God!" 5Now when Ananias heard these words, he fell down and died. And great fear seized all who heard of it. 6The young men came and wrapped up his body,[l] then carried him out and buried him.

7 After an interval of about three hours his wife came in, not knowing what had happened. 8Peter said to her, "Tell me whether you and your husband sold the land for such and such a price." And she said, "Yes, that was the price." 9Then Peter said to her, "How is it that you have agreed together to put the Spirit of the Lord to the test? Look, the feet of those who have buried your husband are at the door, and they will carry you out." 10Immediately she fell down at his feet and died. When the young men came in they found her dead, so they carried her out and buried her beside her husband. 11And great fear seized the whole church and all who heard of these things.

12 Now many signs and wonders were done among the people through the apostles. And they were all together in Solomon's Portico. 13None of the rest dared to join them, but the people held them in high esteem. 14Yet more than ever believers were added to the Lord, great numbers of both men and women, 15so that they even carried out the sick into the streets, and laid them on cots and mats, in order that Peter's shadow might fall on some of them as he came by. 16A great number of people would also gather from the towns around Jerusalem, bringing the sick and those tormented by unclean spirits, and they were all cured.

17 Then the high priest took action; he and all who were with him (that is, the sect of the Sadducees), being filled with jealousy, 18arrested the apostles and put them in the public prison. 19But during the night an angel of the Lord opened the prison doors, brought them out, and said, 20"Go, stand in the temple and tell the people the whole message about this life." 21When they heard this, they entered the temple at daybreak and went on with their teaching.

When the high priest and those with him arrived, they called together the council and the whole body of the elders of Israel, and sent to the prison to have them brought. 22But when the temple police went there, they did not find them in the prison; so they returned and reported, 23"We found the prison securely locked and the guards standing at the doors, but when we opened them, we found no one inside." 24Now when the captain of the temple and the chief priests heard these words, they were perplexed about them, wondering what might be going on. 25Then someone arrived and announced, "Look, the men whom you put in prison are standing in the temple and teaching the people!" 26Then the captain went with the temple police and brought them, but without violence, for they were afraid of being stoned by the people.

27 When they had brought them, they had them stand before the council. The high priest questioned them, 28saying, "We gave you strict orders not to teach in this name,[m] yet here you have filled Jerusalem with your teaching and you are determined to bring this man's blood on us." 29 But Peter and the apostles answered, "We must obey God rather than any human authority.[n] 30 The God of our ancestors raised up Jesus, whom you had killed by hanging him on a tree. 31 God exalted him at his right hand as Leader and Savior that he might give repentance to Israel and forgiveness of sins. 32 And we are witnesses to these things, and so is the Holy Spirit whom God has given to those who obey him."

33 When they heard this, they were enraged and wanted to kill them. 34 But a Pharisee in the council named Gamaliel, a teacher of the law, respected by all the people, stood up and ordered the men to be put outside for a short time. 35 Then he said to them, "Fellow Israelites,[o] consider carefully what you propose to do to these men. 36 For some time ago Theudas rose up, claiming to be somebody, and a number of men, about four hundred, joined him; but he was killed, and all who followed him were dispersed and disappeared. 37 After him Judas the Galilean rose up at the time of the census and got people to follow him; he also perished, and all who followed him were scattered. 38 So in the present case, I tell you, keep away from these men and let them alone; because if this plan or this undertaking is of human origin, it will fail; 39 but if it is of God, you will not be able to overthrow them—in that case you may even be found fighting against God!"

They were convinced by him, 40 and when they had called in the apostles, they had them flogged. Then they ordered them not to speak in the name of Jesus, and let them go. 41 As they left the council, they rejoiced that they were considered worthy to suffer dishonor for the sake of the name. 42 And every day in the temple and at home[p] they did not cease to teach and proclaim Jesus as the Messiah.[q]

6 Now during those days, when the disciples were increasing in number, the Hellenists complained against the Hebrews because their widows were being neglected in the daily distribution of food. 2 And the twelve called together the whole community of the disciples and said, "It is not right that we should neglect the word of God in order to wait on tables.[r] 3 Therefore, friends,[s] select from among yourselves seven men of good standing, full of the Spirit and of wisdom, whom we may appoint to this task, 4 while we, for our part, will devote ourselves to prayer and to serving the word." 5 What they said pleased the whole community, and they chose Stephen, a man full of faith and the Holy Spirit, together with Philip, Prochorus, Nicanor, Timon, Parmenas, and Nicolaus, a proselyte of Antioch. 6 They had these men stand before the apostles, who prayed and laid their hands on them.

7 The word of God continued to spread; the number of the disciples increased greatly in Jerusalem, and a great many of the priests became obedient to the faith.

8 Stephen, full of grace and power, did great wonders and signs among the people. 9Then some of those who belonged to the synagogue of the Freedmen (as it was called), Cyrenians, Alexandrians, and others of those from Cilicia and Asia, stood up and argued with Stephen. 10But they could not withstand the wisdom and the Spirit[t] with which he spoke. 11Then they secretly instigated some men to say, "We have heard him speak blasphemous words against Moses and God." 12They stirred up the people as well as the elders and the scribes; then they suddenly confronted him, seized him, and brought him before the council. 13They set up false witnesses who said, "This man never stops saying things against this holy place and the law; 14for we have heard him say that this Jesus of Nazareth[u] will destroy this place and will change the customs that Moses handed on to us." 15And all who sat in the council looked intently at him, and they saw that his face was like the face of an angel.

7 Then the high priest asked him, "Are these things so?" 2And Stephen replied:

"Brothers[v] and fathers, listen to me. The God of glory appeared to our ancestor Abraham when he was in Mesopotamia, before he lived in Haran, 3and said to him, 'Leave your country and your relatives and go to the land that I will show you.' 4Then he left the country of the Chaldeans and settled in Haran. After his father died, God had him move from there to this country in which you are now living. 5He did not give him any of it as a heritage, not even a foot's length, but promised to give it to him as his possession and to his descendants after him, even though he had no child. 6And God spoke in these terms, that his descendants would be resident aliens in a country belonging to others, who would enslave them and mistreat them during four hundred years. 7'But I will judge the nation that they serve,' said God, 'and after that they shall come out and worship me in this place.' 8Then he gave him the covenant of circumcision. And so Abraham[w] became the father of Isaac and circumcised him on the eighth day; and Isaac became the father of Jacob, and Jacob of the twelve patriarchs.

9 "The patriarchs, jealous of Joseph, sold him into Egypt; but God was with him, 10and rescued him from all his afflictions, and enabled him to win favor and to show wisdom when he stood before Pharaoh, king of Egypt, who appointed him ruler over Egypt and over all his household. 11Now there came a famine throughout Egypt and Canaan, and great suffering, and our ancestors could find no food. 12But when Jacob heard that there was grain in Egypt, he sent our ancestors there on their first vis-

He himself died there as well as our ancestors, 16 and their bodies[x] were brought back to Shechem and laid in the tomb that Abraham had bought for a sum of silver from the sons of Hamor in Shechem.

17 "But as the time drew near for the fulfillment of the promise that God had made to Abraham, our people in Egypt increased and multiplied 18 until another king who had not known Joseph ruled over Egypt. 19 He dealt craftily with our race and forced our ancestors to abandon their infants so that they would die. 20 At this time Moses was born, and he was beautiful before God. For three months he was brought up in his father's house; 21 and when he was abandoned, Pharaoh's daughter adopted him and brought him up as her own son. 22 So Moses was instructed in all the wisdom of the Egyptians and was powerful in his words and deeds.

23 "When he was forty years old, it came into his heart to visit his relatives, the Israelites.[y] 24 When he saw one of them being wronged, he defended the oppressed man and avenged him by striking down the Egyptian. 25 He supposed that his kinsfolk would understand that God through him was rescuing them, but they did not understand. 26 The next day he came to some of them as they were quarreling and tried to reconcile them, saying, 'Men, you are brothers; why do you wrong each other?' 27 But the man who was wronging his neighbor pushed Moses[z] aside, saying, 'Who made you a ruler and a judge over us? 28 Do you want to kill me as you killed the Egyptian yesterday?' 29 When he heard this, Moses fled and became a resident alien in the land of Midian. There he became the father of two sons.

30 "Now when forty years had passed, an angel appeared to him in the wilderness of Mount Sinai, in the flame of a burning bush. 31 When Moses saw it, he was amazed at the sight; and as he approached to look, there came the voice of the Lord: 32 'I am the God of your ancestors, the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.' Moses began to tremble and did not dare to look. 33 Then the Lord said to him, 'Take off the sandals from your feet, for the place where you are standing is holy ground. 34 I have surely seen the mistreatment of my people who are in Egypt and have heard their groaning, and I have come down to rescue them. Come now, I will send you to Egypt.'

35 "It was this Moses whom they rejected when they said, 'Who made you a ruler and a judge?' and whom God now sent as both ruler and liberator through the angel who appeared to him in the bush. 36 He led them out, having performed wonders and signs in Egypt, at the Red Sea, and in the wilderness for forty years. 37 This is the Moses who said to the Israelites, 'God will raise up a prophet for you from your own people[a] as he raised me up.' 38 He is the one who was in the congregation in the wilderness with the angel who spoke to him at Mount Sinai, and with our ancestors; and he received living oracles to give to us. 39 Our ancestors were unwilling to obey him; instead, they pushed him aside, and in their hearts they turned back to Egypt, 40 saying to Aaron, 'Make gods for us who will lead the way for us; as for this Moses who led us out from the land of Egypt, we do not know what has happened to him.' 41 At that time they made a calf, offered a sacrifice to the idol, and reveled in the works of their hands. 42 But God turned away from them and handed them over to worship the host of heaven, as it is written in the book of the prophets:

'Did you offer to me slain victims and sacrifices
forty years in the wilderness,
O house of Israel?
43 No; you took along the tent
of Moloch,
and the star of your god Rephan,
the images that you made
to worship;
so I will remove you beyond Babylon.'

44 "Our ancestors had the tent of testimony in the wilderness, as God[b] directed when he spoke to Moses, ordering him to make it according to the pattern he had seen. 45 Our ancestors in turn brought it in with Joshua when they dispossessed the nations that God drove out before our ancestors. And it was there until the time of David, 46 who found favor with God and asked that he might find a dwelling place for the house of Jacob.[c] 47 But it was Solomon who built a house for him. 48 Yet the Most High does not dwell in houses made with human hands;[d] as the prophet says,

49 'Heaven is my throne,
and the earth is my footstool.
What kind of house will you build for me, says the Lord,
or what is the place of my rest?
50 Did not my hand make all these things?'

51 "You stiff-necked people, uncircumcised in heart and ears, you are forever opposing the Holy Spirit, just as your ancestors used to do. 52 Which of the prophets did your ancestors not persecute? They killed those who foretold the coming of the Righteous One, and now you have become his betrayers and murderers. 53 You are the ones that received the law as ordained by angels, and yet you have not kept it."

54 When they heard these things, they became enraged and ground their teeth at Stephen.[e] 55 But filled with the Holy Spirit, he gazed into heaven and saw the glory of God and Jesus standing at the right hand of God. 56 "Look," he said, "I see the heavens opened and the Son of Man standing at the right hand of God!" 57 But they covered their ears, and with a loud shout all rushed together against him. 58 Then they dragged him out of the city and began to stone him; and the witnesses laid their coats at the feet of a young man named Saul. 59 While they were stoning Stephen, he prayed, "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit." 60 Then he knelt down and cried out in a loud voice, "Lord, do not hold this sin against them." When he had said this, he died.[f]

That day a severe persecution began against the church in Jerusalem, and all except the apostles were scattered throughout the countryside of Judea and Samaria. 2Devout men buried Stephen and made loud lamentation over him. 3But Saul was ravaging the church by entering house after house; dragging off both men and women, he committed them to prison.

4 Now those who were scattered went from place to place, proclaiming the word. 5Philip went down to the city[g] of Samaria and proclaimed the Messiah[h] to them. 6The crowds with one accord listened eagerly to what was said by Philip, hearing and seeing the signs that he did, 7for unclean spirits, crying with loud shrieks, came out of many who were possessed; and many others who were paralyzed or lame were cured. 8So there was great joy in that city.

9 Now a certain man named Simon had previously practiced magic in the city and amazed the people of Samaria, saying that he was someone great. 10All of them, from the least to the greatest, listened to him eagerly, saying, "This man is the power of God that is called Great." 11And they listened eagerly to him because for a long time he had amazed them with his magic. 12But when they believed Philip, who was proclaiming the good news about the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized, both men and women. 13Even Simon himself believed. After being baptized, he stayed constantly with Philip and was amazed when he saw the signs and great miracles that took place.

14 Now when the apostles at Jerusalem heard that Samaria had accepted the word of God, they sent Peter and John to them. 15The two went down and prayed for them that they might receive the Holy Spirit 16(for as yet the Spirit had not come[i] upon any of them; they had only been baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus). 17Then Peter and John[j] laid their hands on them, and they received the Holy Spirit. 18Now when Simon saw that the Spirit was given through the laying on of the apostles' hands, he offered them money, 19saying, "Give me also this power so that anyone on whom I lay my hands may receive the Holy Spirit." 20But Peter said to him, "May your silver perish with you, because you thought you could obtain God's gift with money! 21You have no part or share in this, for your heart is not right before God. 22Repent therefore of this wickedness of yours, and pray to the Lord that, if possible, the intent of your heart may be forgiven you. 23For I see that you are in the gall of bitterness and the chains of wickedness." 24Simon answered, "Pray for me to the Lord, that nothing of what you[k] have said may happen to me."

25 Now after Peter and John[l] had testified and spoken the word of the Lord, they returned to Jerusalem, proclaiming the good news to many villages of the Samaritans.

26 Then an angel of the Lord said to Philip, "Get up and go toward the south[m] to the road that goes down from Jerusalem to Gaza." (This is a wilderness

8.1b–40: Spread of the gospel to Samaria and the seacoast. Christianity now first reaches non-Jewish regions. 3: Saul was ravaging the church, Gal 1.13. 5: Philip, not the apostle, but one of the seven mentioned in 6.5. He now became an evangelist (21.8). Samaria was inhabited by mixed remnants of the northern tribes who worshiped the Lord God and used the Pentateuch. Jews despised them. In one tradition the disciples are forbidden to visit their towns (Mt 10.5), but according to others Jesus was friendly to Samaritans (Lk 10.30–37; 17.11–19; Jn 4.4–42).

8.14–17: In Acts believers usually receive the Holy Spirit at baptism (2.38; 19.5–6), or before baptism (10.44). Here the Samaritans received the Holy Spirit (v. 17) some time subsequent to baptism, and only after the apostles' visit. 17: Laid . . . hands, see 1 Tim 4.14 n. 18: The term "simony" (buying church offices) is derived from this account.

road.) 27So he got up and went. Now there was an Ethiopian eunuch, a court official of the Candace, queen of the Ethiopians, in charge of her entire treasury. He had come to Jerusalem to worship 28and was returning home; seated in his chariot, he was reading the prophet Isaiah. 29Then the Spirit said to Philip, "Go over to this chariot and join it." 30So Philip ran up to it and heard him reading the prophet Isaiah. He asked, "Do you understand what you are reading?" 31He replied, "How can I, unless someone guides me?" And he invited Philip to get in and sit beside him. 32Now the passage of the scripture that he was reading was this:

"Like a sheep he was led to the slaughter, and like a lamb silent before its shearer,
so he does not open his mouth.
33 In his humiliation justice was denied him.
Who can describe his generation?
For his life is taken away from the earth."

34The eunuch asked Philip, "About whom, may I ask you, does the prophet say this, about himself or about someone else?" 35Then Philip began to speak, and starting with this scripture, he proclaimed to him the good news about Jesus. 36As they were going along the road, they came to some water; and the eunuch said, "Look, here is water! What is to prevent me from being baptized?"[n] 38He commanded the chariot to stop, and both of them, Philip and the eunuch, went down into the water, and Philip[o] baptized him. 39When they came up out of the water, the Spirit of the Lord snatched Philip away; the eunuch saw him no more, and went on his way rejoicing. 40But Philip found himself at Azotus, and as he was passing through the region, he proclaimed the good news to all the towns until he came to Caesarea.

9 Meanwhile Saul, still breathing threats and murder against the disciples of the Lord, went to the high priest 2and asked him for letters to the synagogues at Damascus, so that if he found any who belonged to the Way, men or women, he might bring them bound to Jerusalem. 3Now as he was going along and approaching Damascus, suddenly a light from heaven flashed around him. 4He fell to the ground and heard a voice saying to him, "Saul, Saul, why do you persecute me?" 5He asked, "Who are you, Lord?" The reply came, "I am Jesus, whom you are persecuting. 6But get up and enter the city, and you will be told what you are to do." 7The men who were traveling with him stood speechless because they heard the voice but saw no one. 8Saul got up from the ground, and though his eyes were open, he could see nothing; so they led him by the hand and brought him into Damascus. 9For three days he was without sight, and neither ate nor drank.

Those who belonged to it at Damascus were probably from Jerusalem; the empire granted the Jews the right to extradite offenders. 3: The glory of God (or Christ) is often described as light (2 Cor 3.18; 4.6). 4–5: In persecuting the disciples, he persecuted Jesus (Mt 10.40; 25.40). 7: The Greek suggests that his companions heard the sound of the voice but not the words spoken (see Jn 12.29).

10 Now there was a disciple in Damascus named Ananias. The Lord said to him in a vision, "Ananias." He answered, "Here I am, Lord." 11 The Lord said to him, "Get up and go to the street called Straight, and at the house of Judas look for a man of Tarsus named Saul. At this moment he is praying, 12 and he has seen in a vision[p] a man named Ananias come in and lay his hands on him so that he might regain his sight." 13 But Ananias answered, "Lord, I have heard from many about this man, how much evil he has done to your saints in Jerusalem; 14 and here he has authority from the chief priests to bind all who invoke your name." 15 But the Lord said to him, "Go, for he is an instrument whom I have chosen to bring my name before Gentiles and kings and before the people of Israel; 16 I myself will show him how much he must suffer for the sake of my name." 17 So Ananias went and entered the house. He laid his hands on Saul[q] and said, "Brother Saul, the Lord Jesus, who appeared to you on your way here, has sent me so that you may regain your sight and be filled with the Holy Spirit." 18 And immediately something like scales fell from his eyes, and his sight was restored. Then he got up and was baptized, 19 and after taking some food, he regained his strength.

For several days he was with the disciples in Damascus, 20 and immediately he began to proclaim Jesus in the synagogues, saying, "He is the Son of God." 21 All who heard him were amazed and said, "Is not this the man who made havoc in Jerusalem among those who invoked this name? And has he not come here for the purpose of bringing them bound before the chief priests?" 22 Saul became increasingly more powerful and confounded the Jews who lived in Damascus by proving that Jesus[r] was the Messiah.[s]

23 After some time had passed, the Jews plotted to kill him, 24 but their plot became known to Saul. They were watching the gates day and night so that they might kill him; 25 but his disciples took him by night and let him down through an opening in the wall,[t] lowering him in a basket.

26 When he had come to Jerusalem, he attempted to join the disciples; and they were all afraid of him, for they did not believe that he was a disciple. 27 But Barnabas took him, brought him to the apostles, and described for them how on the road he had seen the Lord, who had spoken to him, and how in Damascus he had spoken boldly in the name of Jesus. 28 So he went in and out among them in Jerusalem, speaking boldly in the name of the Lord. 29 He spoke and argued with the Hellenists; but they were attempting to kill him. 30 When the believers[u] learned of it, they brought him down to Caesarea and sent him off to Tarsus.

31 Meanwhile the church throughout Judea, Galilee, and Samaria had peace and was built up. Living in the fear of the Lord and in the comfort of the Holy Spirit, it increased in numbers.

32 Now as Peter went here and there among all the believers,[v] he came down also to the saints living in Lydda. 33 There he found a man named Aeneas, who had been bedridden for eight years, for he was paralyzed. 34Peter said to him, "Aeneas, Jesus Christ heals you; get up and make your bed!" And immediately he got up. 35And all the residents of Lydda and Sharon saw him and turned to the Lord.

36 Now in Joppa there was a disciple whose name was Tabitha, which in Greek is Dorcas.[w] She was devoted to good works and acts of charity. 37At that time she became ill and died. When they had washed her, they laid her in a room upstairs. 38Since Lydda was near Joppa, the disciples, who heard that Peter was there, sent two men to him with the request, "Please come to us without delay." 39So Peter got up and went with them; and when he arrived, they took him to the room upstairs. All the widows stood beside him, weeping and showing tunics and other clothing that Dorcas had made while she was with them. 40Peter put all of them outside, and then he knelt down and prayed. He turned to the body and said, "Tabitha, get up." Then she opened her eyes, and seeing Peter, she sat up. 41He gave her his hand and helped her up. Then calling the saints and widows, he showed her to be alive. 42This became known throughout Joppa, and many believed in the Lord. 43Meanwhile he stayed in Joppa for some time with a certain Simon, a tanner.

10 In Caesarea there was a man named Cornelius, a centurion of the Italian Cohort, as it was called. 2He was a devout man who feared God with all his household; he gave alms generously to the people and prayed constantly to God. 3One afternoon at about three o'clock he had a vision in which he clearly saw an angel of God coming in and saying to him, "Cornelius." 4He stared at him in terror and said, "What is it, Lord?" He answered, "Your prayers and your alms have ascended as a memorial before God. 5Now send men to Joppa for a certain Simon who is called Peter; 6he is lodging with Simon, a tanner, whose house is by the seaside." 7When the angel who spoke to him had left, he called two of his slaves and a devout soldier from the ranks of those who served him, 8and after telling them everything, he sent them to Joppa.

9 About noon the next day, as they were on their journey and approaching the city, Peter went up on the roof to pray. 10He became hungry and wanted something to eat; and while it was being prepared, he fell into a trance. 11He saw the heaven opened and something like a large sheet coming down, being lowered to the ground by its four corners. 12In it were all kinds of four-footed creatures and reptiles and birds of the air. 13Then he heard a voice saying, "Get up, Peter; kill and eat." 14But Peter said, "By no means, Lord; for I have never eaten anything that is profane or unclean." 15The voice said to him again, a second time, "What God has made clean, you must not call profane." 16This happened three times, and the thing was suddenly taken up to heaven.

good works; see 1 Tim 5.3–16 n. 43: A tanner was practically an outcast; Jewish law regarded the work as defiling, since it required working with animal carcasses, which were ritually unclean. That Peter stayed with Simon shows that he had begun to disregard Jewish practices.

17 Now while Peter was greatly puzzled about what to make of the vision that he had seen, suddenly the men sent by Cornelius appeared. They were asking for Simon's house and were standing by the gate. 18 They called out to ask whether Simon, who was called Peter, was staying there. 19 While Peter was still thinking about the vision, the Spirit said to him, "Look, three[x] men are searching for you. 20 Now get up, go down, and go with them without hesitation; for I have sent them." 21 So Peter went down to the men and said, "I am the one you are looking for; what is the reason for your coming?" 22 They answered, "Cornelius, a centurion, an upright and God-fearing man, who is well spoken of by the whole Jewish nation, was directed by a holy angel to send for you to come to his house and to hear what you have to say." 23 So Peter[y] invited them in and gave them lodging.

The next day he got up and went with them, and some of the believers[z] from Joppa accompanied him. 24 The following day they came to Caesarea. Cornelius was expecting them and had called together his relatives and close friends. 25 On Peter's arrival Cornelius met him, and falling at his feet, worshiped him. 26 But Peter made him get up, saying, "Stand up; I am only a mortal." 27 And as he talked with him, he went in and found that many had assembled; 28 and he said to them, "You yourselves know that it is unlawful for a Jew to associate with or to visit a Gentile; but God has shown me that I should not call anyone profane or unclean. 29 So when I was sent for, I came without objection. Now may I ask why you sent for me?"

30 Cornelius replied, "Four days ago at this very hour, at three o'clock, I was praying in my house when suddenly a man in dazzling clothes stood before me. 31 He said, 'Cornelius, your prayer has been heard and your alms have been remembered before God. 32 Send therefore to Joppa and ask for Simon, who is called Peter; he is staying in the home of Simon, a tanner, by the sea.' 33 Therefore I sent for you immediately, and you have been kind enough to come. So now all of us are here in the presence of God to listen to all that the Lord has commanded you to say."

34 Then Peter began to speak to them: "I truly understand that God shows no partiality, 35 but in every nation anyone who fears him and does what is right is acceptable to him. 36 You know the message he sent to the people of Israel, preaching peace by Jesus Christ—he is Lord of all. 37 That message spread throughout Judea, beginning in Galilee after the baptism that John announced: 38 how God anointed Jesus of Nazareth with the Holy Spirit and with power; how he went about doing good and healing all who were oppressed by the devil, for God was with him. 39 We are witnesses to all that he did both in Judea and in Jerusalem. They put him to death by hanging him on a tree; 40 but God raised him on the third day and allowed him to appear, 41 not to all the people but to us who were chosen by God as witnesses, and who ate and drank with him after he rose from the dead. 42 He commanded us to preach to the people and to testify that he is the one ordained by God as judge of the living and the dead. 43 All the prophets testify about him that everyone who believes in him receives forgiveness of sins through his name."

44 While Peter was still speaking, the Holy Spirit fell upon all who heard the word. 45The circumcised believers who had come with Peter were astounded that the gift of the Holy Spirit had been poured out even on the Gentiles, 46for they heard them speaking in tongues and extolling God. Then Peter said, 47"Can anyone withhold the water for baptizing these people who have received the Holy Spirit just as we have?" 48So he ordered them to be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ. Then they invited him to stay for several days.

11 Now the apostles and the believers[a] who were in Judea heard that the Gentiles had also accepted the word of God. 2So when Peter went up to Jerusalem, the circumcised believers[b] criticized him, 3saying, "Why did you go to uncircumcised men and eat with them?" 4Then Peter began to explain it to them, step by step, saying, 5"I was in the city of Joppa praying, and in a trance I saw a vision. There was something like a large sheet coming down from heaven, being lowered by its four corners; and it came close to me. 6As I looked at it closely I saw four-footed animals, beasts of prey, reptiles, and birds of the air. 7I also heard a voice saying to me, 'Get up, Peter; kill and eat.' 8But I replied, 'By no means, Lord; for nothing profane or unclean has ever entered my mouth.' 9But a second time the voice answered from heaven, 'What God has made clean, you must not call profane.' 10This happened three times; then everything was pulled up again to heaven. 11At that very moment three men, sent to me from Caesarea, arrived at the house where we were. 12The Spirit told me to go with them and not to make a distinction between them and us.[c] These six brothers also accompanied me, and we entered the man's house. 13He told us how he had seen the angel standing in his house and saying, 'Send to Joppa and bring Simon, who is called Peter; 14he will give you a message by which you and your entire household will be saved.' 15And as I began to speak, the Holy Spirit fell upon them just as it had upon us at the beginning. 16And I remembered the word of the Lord, how he had said, 'John baptized with water, but you will be baptized with the Holy Spirit.' 17If then God gave them the same gift that he gave us when we believed in the Lord Jesus Christ, who was I that I could hinder God?" 18When they heard this, they were silenced. And they praised God, saying, "Then God has given even to the Gentiles the repentance that leads to life."

19 Now those who were scattered because of the persecution that took place over Stephen traveled as far as Phoenicia, Cyprus, and Antioch, and they spoke the word to no one except Jews. 20But among them were some men of Cyprus and Cyrene who, on coming to Antioch, spoke to the Hellenists[d] also, proclaiming the Lord Jesus. 21The hand of the Lord was with them, and a great number became believers and turned to the Lord. 22News of this came to the ears of the church in Jerusalem, and they sent Barnabas to Antioch. 23When he came and saw the grace of God, he rejoiced, and he exhorted them all to remain faithful to the Lord with steadfast devotion; 24for

he was a good man, full of the Holy Spirit and of faith. And a great many people were brought to the Lord. 25Then Barnabas went to Tarsus to look for Saul, 26and when he had found him, he brought him to Antioch. So it was that for an entire year they met with[e] the church and taught a great many people. and it was in Antioch that the disciples were first called "Christians."

27 At that time prophets came down from Jerusalem to Antioch. 28One of them named Agabus stood up and predicted by the Spirit that there would be a severe famine over all the world; and this took place during the reign of Claudius. 29The disciples determined that according to their ability, each would send relief to the believers[f] living in Judea; 30this they did, sending it to the elders by Barnabas and Saul.

12 About that time King Herod laid violent hands upon some who belonged to the church. 2He had James, the brother of John, killed with the sword. 3After he saw that it pleased the Jews, he proceeded to arrest Peter also. (This was during the festival of Unleavened Bread.) 4When he had seized him, he put him in prison and handed him over to four squads of soldiers to guard him, intending to bring him out to the people after the Passover. 5While Peter was kept in prison, the church prayed fervently to God for him.

6 The very night before Herod was going to bring him out, Peter, bound with two chains, was sleeping between two soldiers, while guards in front of the door were keeping watch over the prison. 7Suddenly an angel of the Lord appeared and a light shone in the cell. He tapped Peter on the side and woke him, saying, "Get up quickly." And the chains fell off his wrists. 8The angel said to him, "Fasten your belt and put on your sandals." He did so. Then he said to him, "Wrap your cloak around you and follow me." 9Peter[g] went out and followed him; he did not realize that what was happening with the angel's help was real; he thought he was seeing a vision. 10After they had passed the first and the second guard, they came before the iron gate leading into the city. It opened for them of its own accord, and they went outside and walked along a lane, when suddenly the angel left him. 11Then Peter came to himself and said, "Now I am sure that the Lord has sent his angel and rescued me from the hands of Herod and from all that the Jewish people were expecting."

12 As soon as he realized this, he went to the house of Mary, the mother of John whose other name was Mark, where many had gathered and were praying. 13When he knocked at the outer gate, a maid named Rhoda came to answer. 14On recognizing Peter's voice, she was so overjoyed that, instead of opening the gate, she ran in and announced that Peter was standing at the gate. 15They said to her, "You are out of your mind!" But she insisted that it was so. They said, "It is his angel." 16Meanwhile Peter continued knocking; and when they opened the gate, they saw him and were amazed. 17He motioned to them with his hand to be silent, and described for them how the Lord had brought him out of the prison. And he added, "Tell this to James and to the believers."[h] Then he left and went to another place.

18 When morning came, there was no small commotion among the soldiers over what had become of Peter. 19When Herod had searched for him and could not find him, he examined the guards and ordered them to be put to death. Then he went down from Judea to Caesarea and stayed there.

20 Now Herod[i] was angry with the people of Tyre and Sidon. So they came to him in a body; and after winning over Blastus, the king's chamberlain, they asked for a reconciliation, because their country depended on the king's country for food. 21On an appointed day Herod put on his royal robes, took his seat on the platform, and delivered a public address to them. 22The people kept shouting, "The voice of a god, and not of a mortal!" 23And immediately, because he had not given the glory to God, an angel of the Lord struck him down, and he was eaten by worms and died.

24 But the word of God continued to advance and gain adherents. 25Then after completing their mission Barnabas and Saul returned to[j] Jerusalem and brought with them John, whose other name was Mark.

13 Now in the church at Antioch there were prophets and teachers: Barnabas, Simeon who was called Niger, Lucius of Cyrene, Manaen a member of the court of Herod the ruler,[k] and Saul. 2While they were worshiping the Lord and fasting, the Holy Spirit said, "Set apart for me Barnabas and Saul for the work to which I have called them." 3Then after fasting and praying they laid their hands on them and sent them off.

4 So, being sent out by the Holy Spirit, they went down to Seleucia; and from there they sailed to Cyprus. 5When they arrived at Salamis, they proclaimed the word of God in the synagogues of the Jews. And they had John also to assist them. 6When they had gone through the whole island as far as Paphos, they met a certain magician, a Jewish false prophet, named Bar-Jesus. 7He was with the proconsul, Sergius Paulus, an intelligent man, who summoned Barnabas and Saul and wanted to hear the word of God. 8But the magician Elymas (for that is the translation of his name) opposed them and tried to turn the proconsul away from the faith. 9But Saul, also known as Paul, filled with the Holy Spirit, looked

[11]And now listen—the hand of the Lord is against you, and you will be blind for a while, unable to see the sun." Immediately mist and darkness came over him, and he went about groping for someone to lead him by the hand. [12]When the proconsul saw what had happened, he believed, for he was astonished at the teaching about the Lord.

13 Then Paul and his companions set sail from Paphos and came to Perga in Pamphylia. John, however, left them and returned to Jerusalem; [14]but they went on from Perga and came to Antioch in Pisidia. And on the sabbath day they went into the synagogue and sat down. [15]After the reading of the law and the prophets, the officials of the synagogue sent them a message, saying, "Brothers, if you have any word of exhortation for the people, give it." [16]So Paul stood up and with a gesture began to speak:

"You Israelites,[l] and others who fear God, listen. [17]The God of this people Israel chose our ancestors and made the people great during their stay in the land of Egypt, and with uplifted arm he led them out of it. [18]For about forty years he put up with[m] them in the wilderness. [19]After he had destroyed seven nations in the land of Canaan, he gave them their land as an inheritance [20]for about four hundred fifty years. After that he gave them judges until the time of the prophet Samuel. [21]Then they asked for a king; and God gave them Saul son of Kish, a man of the tribe of Benjamin, who reigned for forty years. [22]When he had removed him, he made David their king. In his testimony about him he said, 'I have found David, son of Jesse, to be a man after my heart, who will carry out all my wishes.' [23]Of this man's posterity God has brought to Israel a Savior, Jesus, as he promised; [24]before his coming John had already proclaimed a baptism of repentance to all the people of Israel. [25]And as John was finishing his work, he said, 'What do you suppose that I am? I am not he. No, but one is coming after me; I am not worthy to untie the thong of the sandals[n] on his feet.'

26 "My brothers, you descendants of Abraham's family, and others who fear God, to us[o] the message of this salvation has been sent. [27]Because the residents of Jerusalem and their leaders did not recognize him or understand the words of the prophets that are read every sabbath, they fulfilled those words by condemning him. [28]Even though they found no cause for a sentence of death, they asked Pilate to have him killed. [29]When they had carried out everything that was written about him, they took him down from the tree and laid him in a tomb. [30]But God raised him from the dead; [31]and for many days he appeared to those who came up with him from Galilee to Jerusalem, and they are now his witnesses to the people. [32]And we bring you the good news that what God promised to our ancestors [33]he has fulfilled for us, their children, by raising Jesus; as also it is written in the second psalm,

today I have begotten you.'

34 As to his raising him from the dead, no more to return to corruption, he has spoken in this way,

'I will give you the holy promises made to David.'

35 Therefore he has also said in another psalm,

'You will not let your Holy One experience corruption.'

36 For David, after he had served the purpose of God in his own generation, died,[p] was laid beside his ancestors, and experienced corruption; 37 but he whom God raised up experienced no corruption. 38 Let it be known to you therefore, my brothers, that through this man forgiveness of sins is proclaimed to you; 39 by this Jesus[q] everyone who believes is set free from all those sins[r] from which you could not be freed by the law of Moses. 40 Beware, therefore, that what the prophets said does not happen to you:

41 'Look, you scoffers!
Be amazed and perish,
for in your days I am doing a work,
a work that you will never believe, even if someone tells you.' "

42 As Paul and Barnabas[s] were going out, the people urged them to speak about these things again the next sabbath. 43 When the meeting of the synagogue broke up, many Jews and devout converts to Judaism followed Paul and Barnabas, who spoke to them and urged them to continue in the grace of God.

44 The next sabbath almost the whole city gathered to hear the word of the Lord.[t] 45 But when the Jews saw the crowds, they were filled with jealousy; and blaspheming, they contradicted what was spoken by Paul. 46 Then both Paul and Barnabas spoke out boldly, saying, "It was necessary that the word of God should be spoken first to you. Since you reject it and judge yourselves to be unworthy of eternal life, we are now turning to the Gentiles. 47 For so the Lord has commanded us, saying,

'I have set you to be a light for the Gentiles,
so that you may bring salvation to the ends of the earth.' "

48 When the Gentiles heard this, they were glad and praised the word of the Lord; and as many as had been destined for eternal life became believers. 49 Thus the word of the Lord spread throughout the region. 50 But the Jews incited the devout women of high standing and the leading men of the city, and stirred up persecution against Paul and Barnabas, and drove them out of their region. 51 So they shook the dust off their feet in protest against them, and went to Iconium. 52 And the disciples were filled with joy and with the Holy Spirit.

14 The same thing occurred in Iconium, where Paul and Barnabas[s] went into the Jewish synagogue and spoke in such a way that a great number of both Jews and Greeks became believers. 2 But the unbelieving Jews stirred up the Gentiles and poisoned their minds against the brothers. 3 So they remained for a long time, speaking boldly for the Lord, who testified to the word of his grace by granting signs and wonders to be done through them. 4 But the residents of the city were divided; some sided with the Jews, and some with the apostles. 5 And when an attempt was made by both Gentiles and Jews, with their rulers, to mistreat them and to stone them, [6]the apostles[u] learned of it and fled to Lystra and Derbe, cities of Lycaonia, and to the surrounding country; [7]and there they continued proclaiming the good news.

8 In Lystra there was a man sitting who could not use his feet and had never walked, for he had been crippled from birth. [9]He listened to Paul as he was speaking. And Paul, looking at him intently and seeing that he had faith to be healed, [10]said in a loud voice, "Stand upright on your feet." And the man[v] sprang up and began to walk. [11]When the crowds saw what Paul had done, they shouted in the Lycaonian language, "The gods have come down to us in human form!" [12]Barnabas they called Zeus, and Paul they called Hermes, because he was the chief speaker. [13]The priest of Zeus, whose temple was just outside the city,[w] brought oxen and garlands to the gates; he and the crowds wanted to offer sacrifice. [14]When the apostles Barnabas and Paul heard of it, they tore their clothes and rushed out into the crowd, shouting, [15]"Friends,[x] why are you doing this? We are mortals just like you, and we bring you good news, that you should turn from these worthless things to the living God, who made the heaven and the earth and the sea and all that is in them. [16]In past generations he allowed all the nations to follow their own ways; [17]yet he has not left himself without a witness in doing good—giving you rains from heaven and fruitful seasons, and filling you with food and your hearts with joy." [18]Even with these words, they scarcely restrained the crowds from offering sacrifice to them.

19 But Jews came there from Antioch and Iconium and won over the crowds. Then they stoned Paul and dragged him out of the city, supposing that he was dead. [20]But when the disciples surrounded him, he got up and went into the city. The next day he went on with Barnabas to Derbe.

21 After they had proclaimed the good news to that city and had made many disciples, they returned to Lystra, then on to Iconium and Antioch. [22]There they strengthened the souls of the disciples and encouraged them to continue in the faith, saying, "It is through many persecutions that we must enter the kingdom of God." [23]And after they had appointed elders for them in each church, with prayer and fasting they entrusted them to the Lord in whom they had come to believe.

24 Then they passed through Pisidia and came to Pamphylia. [25]When they had spoken the word in Perga, they went down to Attalia. [26]From there they sailed back to Antioch, where they had been commended to the grace of God for the work[y] that they had completed. [27]When they arrived, they called the church together and related all that God had done with them, and how he had opened a door of faith for the Gentiles. [28]And they stayed there with the disciples for some time.

circumcised according to the custom of Moses, you cannot be saved." 2And after Paul and Barnabas had no small dissension and debate with them, Paul and Barnabas and some of the others were appointed to go up to Jerusalem to discuss this question with the apostles and the elders. 3So they were sent on their way by the church, and as they passed through both Phoenicia and Samaria, they reported the conversion of the Gentiles, and brought great joy to all the believers.[z] 4When they came to Jerusalem, they were welcomed by the church and the apostles and the elders, and they reported all that God had done with them. 5But some believers who belonged to the sect of the Pharisees stood up and said, "It is necessary for them to be circumcised and ordered to keep the law of Moses."

6 The apostles and the elders met together to consider this matter. 7After there had been much debate, Peter stood up and said to them, "My brothers,[a] you know that in the early days God made a choice among you, that I should be the one through whom the Gentiles would hear the message of the good news and become believers. 8And God, who knows the human heart, testified to them by giving them the Holy Spirit, just as he did to us; 9and in cleansing their hearts by faith he has made no distinction between them and us. 10Now therefore why are you putting God to the test by placing on the neck of the disciples a yoke that neither our ancestors nor we have been able to bear? 11On the contrary, we believe that we will be saved through the grace of the Lord Jesus, just as they will."

12 The whole assembly kept silence, and listened to Barnabas and Paul as they told of all the signs and wonders that God had done through them among the Gentiles. 13After they finished speaking, James replied, "My brothers,[a] listen to me. 14Simeon has related how God first looked favorably on the Gentiles, to take from among them a people for his name. 15This agrees with the words of the prophets, as it is written,

16 'After this I will return, and I will rebuild the dwelling of David, which has fallen;
from its ruins I will rebuild it,
and I will set it up,
17 so that all other peoples may seek the Lord—
even all the Gentiles over whom my name has been called.
Thus says the Lord, who has been making these things
18known from long ago.'[b]

19Therefore I have reached the decision that we should not trouble those Gentiles who are turning to God, 20but we should write to them to abstain only from things polluted by idols and from fornication and from whatever has been strangled[c] and from blood. 21For in every city, for generations past, Moses has had those who proclaim him, for he has been read aloud every sabbath in the synagogues."

decided to choose men from among their members[d] and to send them to Antioch with Paul and Barnabas. They sent Judas called Barsabbas, and Silas, leaders among the brothers, 23 with the following letter: "The brothers, both the apostles and the elders, to the believers[e] of Gentile origin in Antioch and Syria and Cilicia, greetings. 24 Since we have heard that certain persons who have gone out from us, though with no instructions from us, have said things to disturb you and have unsettled your minds,[f] 25 we have decided unanimously to choose representatives[g] and send them to you, along with our beloved Barnabas and Paul, 26 who have risked their lives for the sake of our Lord Jesus Christ. 27 We have therefore sent Judas and Silas, who themselves will tell you the same things by word of mouth. 28 For it has seemed good to the Holy Spirit and to us to impose on you no further burden than these essentials: 29 that you abstain from what has been sacrificed to idols and from blood and from what is strangled[h] and from fornication. If you keep yourselves from these, you will do well. Farewell."

30 So they were sent off and went down to Antioch. When they gathered the congregation together, they delivered the letter. 31 When its members[i] read it, they rejoiced at the exhortation. 32 Judas and Silas, who were themselves prophets, said much to encourage and strengthen the believers.[e] 33 After they had been there for some time, they were sent off in peace by the believers[e] to those who had sent them.[j] 35 But Paul and Barnabas remained in Antioch, and there, with many others, they taught and proclaimed the word of the Lord.

36 After some days Paul said to Barnabas, "Come, let us return and visit the believers[e] in every city where we proclaimed the word of the Lord and see how they are doing." 37 Barnabas wanted to take with them John called Mark. 38 But Paul decided not to take with them one who had deserted them in Pamphylia and had not accompanied them in the work. 39 The disagreement became so sharp that they parted company; Barnabas took Mark with him and sailed away to Cyprus. 40 But Paul chose Silas and set out, the believers[e] commending him to the grace of the Lord. 41 He went through Syria and Cilicia, strengthening the churches.

16 Paul[k] went on also to Derbe and to Lystra, where there was a disciple named Timothy, the son of a Jewish woman who was a believer; but his father was a Greek. 2 He was well spoken of by the believers[e] in Lystra and Iconium. 3 Paul wanted Timothy to accompany him; and he took him and had him circumcised because of the Jews who were in those places, for they all knew that his father was a Greek. 4 As they went from town to town, they delivered to them for observance the decisions that had been reached by the apostles and elders who were in Jerusalem. 5 So the churches were strengthened in the faith and increased in numbers daily.

11 We set sail from Troas and took a straight course to Samothrace, the following day to Neapolis, 12and from there to Philippi, which is a leading city of the district[l] of Macedonia and a Roman colony. We remained in this city for some days. 13On the sabbath day we went outside the gate by the river, where we supposed there was a place of prayer; and we sat down and spoke to the women who had gathered there. 14A certain woman named Lydia, a worshiper of God, was listening to us; she was from the city of Thyatira and a dealer in purple cloth. The Lord opened her heart to listen eagerly to what was said by Paul. 15When she and her household were baptized, she urged us, saying, "If you have judged me to be faithful to the Lord, come and stay at my home." And she prevailed upon us.

16 One day, as we were going to the place of prayer, we met a slave-girl who had a spirit of divination and brought her owners a great deal of money by fortunetelling. 17While she followed Paul and us, she would cry out, "These men are slaves of the Most High God, who proclaim to you[m] a way of salvation." 18She kept doing this for many days. But Paul, very much annoyed, turned and said to the spirit, "I order you in the name of Jesus Christ to come out of her." And it came out that very hour.

19 But when her owners saw that their hope of making money was gone, they seized Paul and Silas and dragged them into the marketplace before the authorities. 20When they had brought them before the magistrates, they said, "These men are disturbing our city; they are Jews 21and are advocating customs that are not lawful for us as Romans to adopt or observe." 22The crowd joined in attacking them, and the magistrates had them stripped of their clothing and ordered them to be beaten with rods. 23After they had given them a severe flogging, they threw them into prison and ordered the jailer to keep them securely. 24Following these instructions, he put them in the innermost cell and fastened their feet in the stocks.

25 About midnight Paul and Silas were praying and singing hymns to God, and the prisoners were listening to them. 26Suddenly there was an earthquake, so violent that the foundations of the prison were shaken; and immediately all the doors were opened and everyone's

35 When morning came, the magistrates sent the police, saying, "Let those men go." 36And the jailer reported the message to Paul, saying, "The magistrates sent word to let you go; therefore come out now and go in peace." 37But Paul replied, "They have beaten us in public, uncondemned, men who are Roman citizens, and have thrown us into prison; and now are they going to discharge us in secret? Certainly not! Let them come and take us out themselves." 38The police reported these words to the magistrates, and they were afraid when they heard that they were Roman citizens; 39so they came and apologized to them. And they took them out and asked them to leave the city. 40After leaving the prison they went to Lydia's home; and when they had seen and encouraged the brothers and sisters[p] there, they departed.

17 After Paul and Silas[q] had passed through Amphipolis and Apollonia, they came to Thessalonica, where there was a synagogue of the Jews. 2And Paul went in, as was his custom, and on three sabbath days argued with them from the scriptures, 3explaining and proving that it was necessary for the Messiah[r] to suffer and to rise from the dead, and saying, "This is the Messiah,[r] Jesus whom I am proclaiming to you." 4Some of them were persuaded and joined Paul and Silas, as did a great many of the devout Greeks and not a few of the leading women. 5But the Jews became jealous, and with the help of some ruffians in the marketplaces they formed a mob and set the city in an uproar. While they were searching for Paul and Silas to bring them out to the assembly, they attacked Jason's house. 6When they could not find them, they dragged Jason and some believers[p] before the city authorities,[s] shouting, "These people who have been turning the world upside down have come here also, 7and Jason has entertained them as guests. They are all acting contrary to the decrees of the emperor, saying that there is another king named Jesus." 8The people and the city officials were disturbed when they heard this, 9and after they had taken bail from Jason and the others, they let them go.

10 That very night the believers[p] sent Paul and Silas off to Beroea; and when they arrived, they went to the Jewish synagogue. 11These Jews were more receptive than those in Thessalonica, for they welcomed the message very eagerly and examined the scriptures every day to see whether these things were so.

12 Many of them therefore believed, including not a few Greek women and men of high standing. 13 But when the Jews of Thessalonica learned that the word of God had been proclaimed by Paul in Beroea as well, they came there too, to stir up and incite the crowds. 14 Then the believers[t] immediately sent Paul away to the coast, but Silas and Timothy remained behind. 15 Those who conducted Paul brought him as far as Athens; and after receiving instructions to have Silas and Timothy join him as soon as possible, they left him.

16 While Paul was waiting for them in Athens, he was deeply distressed to see that the city was full of idols. 17 So he argued in the synagogue with the Jews and the devout persons, and also in the marketplace[u] every day with those who happened to be there. 18 Also some Epicurean and Stoic philosophers debated with him. Some said, "What does this babbler want to say?" Others said, "He seems to be a proclaimer of foreign divinities." (This was because he was telling the good news about Jesus and the resurrection.) 19 So they took him and brought him to the Areopagus and asked him, "May we know what this new teaching is that you are presenting? 20 It sounds rather strange to us, so we would like to know what it means." 21 Now all the Athenians and the foreigners living there would spend their time in nothing but telling or hearing something new.

22 Then Paul stood in front of the Areopagus and said, "Athenians, I see how extremely religious you are in every way. 23 For as I went through the city and looked carefully at the objects of your worship, I found among them an altar with the inscription, 'To an unknown god.' What therefore you worship as unknown, this I proclaim to you. 24 The God who made the world and everything in it, he who is Lord of heaven and earth, does not live in shrines made by human hands, 25 nor is he served by human hands, as though he needed anything, since he himself gives to all mortals life and breath and all things. 26 From one ancestor[v] he made all nations to inhabit the whole earth, and he allotted the times of their existence and the boundaries of the places where they would live, 27 so that they would search for God[w] and perhaps grope for him and find him—though indeed he is not far from each one of us. 28 For 'In him we live and move and have our being'; as even some of your own poets have said,

'For we too are his offspring.'

29 Since we are God's offspring, we ought not to think that the deity is like gold, or silver, or stone, an image formed by the art and imagination of mortals. 30 While God has overlooked the times of human ignorance, now he commands all people everywhere to repent, 31 because he has fixed a day on which he will have the world judged in righteousness by a man whom he has appointed, and of this he has given assurance to all by raising him from the dead."

18 After this Paul[x] left Athens and went to Corinth. 2 There he found a Jew named Aquila, a native of Pontus, who had recently come from Italy with his wife Priscilla, because Claudius had ordered all Jews to leave Rome. Paul[y] went to see them, 3 and, because he was of the same trade, he stayed with them, and they worked together—by trade they were tentmakers. 4 Every sabbath he would argue in the synagogue and would try to convince Jews and Greeks.

5 When Silas and Timothy arrived from Macedonia, Paul was occupied with proclaiming the word,[z] testifying to the Jews that the Messiah[a] was Jesus. 6 When they opposed and reviled him, in protest he shook the dust from his clothes[b] and said to them, "Your blood be on your own heads! I am innocent. From now on I will go to the Gentiles." 7 Then he left the synagogue[c] and went to the house of a man named Titius[d] Justus, a worshiper of God; his house was next door to the synagogue. 8 Crispus, the official of the synagogue, became a believer in the Lord, together with all his household; and many of the Corinthians who heard Paul became believers and were baptized. 9 One night the Lord said to Paul in a vision, "Do not be afraid, but speak and do not be silent; 10 for I am with you, and no one will lay a hand on you to harm you, for there are many in this city who are my people." 11 He stayed there a year and six months, teaching the word of God among them.

12 But when Gallio was proconsul of Achaia, the Jews made a united attack on Paul and brought him before the tribunal. 13 They said, "This man is persuading people to worship God in ways that are contrary to the law." 14 Just as Paul was about to speak, Gallio said to the Jews, "If it were a matter of crime or serious villainy, I would be justified in accepting the complaint of you Jews; 15 but since it is a matter of questions about words and names and your own law, see to it yourselves; I do not wish to be a judge of these matters." 16 And he dismissed them from the tribunal. 17 Then all of them[e] seized Sosthenes, the official of the synagogue, and beat him in front of the tribunal. But Gallio paid no attention to any of these things.

18 After staying there for a considerable time, Paul said farewell to the believers[f] and sailed for Syria, accompanied by Priscilla and Aquila. At Cenchreae he had his hair cut, for he was under a vow. 19 When they reached Ephesus, he left them there, but first he himself went into the synagogue and had a discussion with the Jews. 20 When they asked him to stay longer, he declined;

21 but on taking leave of them, he said, "I[g] will return to you, if God wills." Then he set sail from Ephesus.

22 When he had landed at Caesarea, he went up to Jerusalem[h] and greeted the church, and then went down to Antioch. 23 After spending some time there he departed and went from place to place through the region of Galatia[i] and Phrygia, strengthening all the disciples.

24 Now there came to Ephesus a Jew named Apollos, a native of Alexandria. He was an eloquent man, well-versed in the scriptures. 25 He had been instructed in the Way of the Lord; and he spoke with burning enthusiasm and taught accurately the things concerning Jesus, though he knew only the baptism of John. 26 He began to speak boldly in the synagogue; but when Priscilla and Aquila heard him, they took him aside and explained the Way of God to him more accurately. 27 And when he wished to cross over to Achaia, the believers[j] encouraged him and wrote to the disciples to welcome him. On his arrival he greatly helped those who through grace had become believers, 28 for he powerfully refuted the Jews in public, showing by the scriptures that the Messiah[k] is Jesus.

19 While Apollos was in Corinth, Paul passed through the interior regions and came to Ephesus, where he found some disciples. 2 He said to them, "Did you receive the Holy Spirit when you became believers?" They replied, "No, we have not even heard that there is a Holy Spirit." 3 Then he said, "Into what then were you baptized?" They answered, "Into John's baptism." 4 Paul said, "John baptized with the baptism of repentance, telling the people to believe in the one who was to come after him, that is, in Jesus." 5 On hearing this, they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus. 6 When Paul had laid his hands on them, the Holy Spirit came upon them, and they spoke in tongues and prophesied— 7 altogether there were about twelve of them.

8 He entered the synagogue and for three months spoke out boldly, and argued persuasively about the kingdom of God. 9 When some stubbornly refused to believe and spoke evil of the Way before the congregation, he left them, taking the disciples with him, and argued daily in the lecture hall of Tyrannus.[l] 10 This continued for two years, so that all the residents of Asia, both Jews and Greeks, heard the word of the Lord.

11 God did extraordinary miracles through Paul, 12 so that when the handkerchiefs or aprons that had touched his skin were brought to the sick, their diseases left them, and the evil spirits came out of them. 13 Then some itinerant Jewish exorcists tried to use the name of the Lord Jesus over those who had evil spirits, saying, "I adjure you by the Jesus whom Paul proclaims." 14 Seven sons of a Jewish high priest named Sceva were doing this. 15 But the evil spirit said to them in reply, "Jesus I know, and Paul I know; but who are you?" 16 Then the man with the evil spirit leaped on them, mastered them all, and so overpowered them that they fled out of the house naked and wounded. 17 When this became known to all residents of Ephesus, both Jews and Greeks, everyone was awestruck; and the name of the Lord Jesus was praised. 18 Also many of those who became believers confessed and disclosed their practices. 19 A number of those who practiced magic collected their books and burned them publicly; when the value of these books[m] was calculated, it was found to come to fifty thousand silver coins. 20 So the word of the Lord grew mightily and prevailed.

21 Now after these things had been accomplished, Paul resolved in the Spirit to go through Macedonia and Achaia, and then to go on to Jerusalem. He said, "After I have gone there, I must also see Rome." 22 So he sent two of his helpers, Timothy and Erastus, to Macedonia, while he himself stayed for some time longer in Asia.

23 About that time no little disturbance broke out concerning the Way. 24 A man named Demetrius, a silversmith who made silver shrines of Artemis, brought no little business to the artisans. 25 These he gathered together, with the workers of the same trade, and said, "Men, you know that we get our wealth from this business. 26 You also see and hear that not only in Ephesus but in almost the whole of Asia this Paul has persuaded and drawn away a considerable number of people by saying that gods made with hands are not gods. 27 And there is danger not only that this trade of ours may come into disrepute but also that the temple of the great goddess Artemis will be scorned, and she will be deprived of her majesty that brought all Asia and the world to worship her."

28 When they heard this, they were enraged and shouted, "Great is Artemis of the Ephesians!" 29 The city was filled with the confusion; and people[n] rushed together to the theater, dragging with them Gaius and Aristarchus, Macedonians who were Paul's travel companions. 30 Paul wished to go into the crowd, but the disciples would not let him; 31 even some officials of the province of Asia,[o] who were friendly to him, sent him a message urging him not to venture into the theater. 32 Meanwhile, some were shouting one thing, some another; for the assembly was in confusion, and most of them did not know why they had come together. 33 Some of the crowd gave instructions to Alexander, whom the Jews had pushed forward. And Alexander motioned for silence and tried to make a defense before the people. 34 But when they recognized that he was a Jew, for about two hours all of them shouted in unison, "Great is Artemis of the Ephesians!" 35 But when the town clerk had quieted the crowd, he said, "Citizens of Ephesus, who is there that does not know that the city of the Ephesians is the temple keeper of the great Artemis and of the statue that fell from heaven?[p] 36 Since these things cannot be denied, you ought to be quiet and do nothing

20 After the uproar had ceased, Paul sent for the disciples; and after encouraging them and saying farewell, he left for Macedonia. 2 When he had gone through those regions and had given the believers[s] much encouragement, he came to Greece, 3 where he stayed for three months. He was about to set sail for Syria when a plot was made against him by the Jews, and so he decided to return through Macedonia. 4 He was accompanied by Sopater son of Pyrrhus from Beroea, by Aristarchus and Secundus from Thessalonica, by Gaius from Derbe, and by Timothy, as well as by Tychicus and Trophimus from Asia. 5 They went ahead and were waiting for us in Troas; 6 but we sailed from Philippi after the days of Unleavened Bread, and in five days we joined them in Troas, where we stayed for seven days.

7 On the first day of the week, when we met to break bread, Paul was holding a discussion with them; since he intended to leave the next day, he continued speaking until midnight. 8 There were many lamps in the room upstairs where we were meeting. 9 A young man named Eutychus, who was sitting in the window, began to sink off into a deep sleep while Paul talked still longer. Overcome by sleep, he fell to the ground three floors below and was picked up dead. 10 But Paul went down, and bending over him took him in his arms, and said, "Do not be alarmed, for his life is in him." 11 Then Paul went upstairs, and after he had broken bread and eaten, he continued to converse with them until dawn; then he left. 12 Meanwhile they had taken the boy away alive and were not a little comforted.

13 We went ahead to the ship and set sail for Assos, intending to take Paul on board there; for he had made this arrangement, intending to go by land himself. 14 When he met us in Assos, we took him on board and went to Mitylene. 15 We sailed from there, and on the following day we arrived opposite Chios. The next day we touched at Samos, and[t] the day after that we came to Miletus. 16 For Paul had decided to sail past Ephesus, so that he might not have to spend time in Asia; he was eager to be in Jerusalem, if possible, on the day of Pentecost.

17 From Miletus he sent a message to Ephesus, asking the elders of the church to meet him. 18 When they came to him, he said to them:

Lord with all humility and with tears, enduring the trials that came to me through the plots of the Jews. 20 I did not shrink from doing anything helpful, proclaiming the message to you and teaching you publicly and from house to house, 21 as I testified to both Jews and Greeks about repentance toward God and faith toward our Lord Jesus. 22 And now, as a captive to the Spirit,[u] I am on my way to Jerusalem, not knowing what will happen to me there, 23 except that the Holy Spirit testifies to me in every city that imprisonment and persecutions are waiting for me. 24 But I do not count my life of any value to myself, if only I may finish my course and the ministry that I received from the Lord Jesus, to testify to the good news of God's grace.

25 "And now I know that none of you, among whom I have gone about proclaiming the kingdom, will ever see my face again. 26 Therefore I declare to you this day that I am not responsible for the blood of any of you, 27 for I did not shrink from declaring to you the whole purpose of God. 28 Keep watch over yourselves and over all the flock, of which the Holy Spirit has made you overseers, to shepherd the church of God[v] that he obtained with the blood of his own Son.[w] 29 I know that after I have gone, savage wolves will come in among you, not sparing the flock. 30 Some even from your own group will come distorting the truth in order to entice the disciples to follow them. 31 Therefore be alert, remembering that for three years I did not cease night or day to warn everyone with tears. 32 And now I commend you to God and to the message of his grace, a message that is able to build you up and to give you the inheritance among all who are sanctified. 33 I coveted no one's silver or gold or clothing. 34 You know for yourselves that I worked with my own hands to support myself and my companions. 35 In all this I have given you an example that by such work we must support the weak, remembering the words of the Lord Jesus, for he himself said, 'It is more blessed to give than to receive.' "

36 When he had finished speaking, he knelt down with them all and prayed. 37 There was much weeping among them all; they embraced Paul and kissed him, 38 grieving especially because of what he had said, that they would not see him again. Then they brought him to the ship.

21 When we had parted from them and set sail, we came by a straight course to Cos, and the next day to Rhodes, and from there to Patara.[x] 2 When we found a ship bound for Phoenicia, we went on board and set sail. 3 We came in sight of Cyprus; and leaving it on our left, we sailed to Syria and landed at Tyre, because the ship was to unload its cargo there. 4 We looked up the disciples and stayed there for seven days. Through the Spirit they told Paul not to go on to Jerusalem. 5 When our days there were ended, we left and proceeded on our journey; and all of them, with wives and children, escorted us outside the city. There we knelt down on the beach and prayed 6 and said farewell to one another. Then we went on board the ship, and they returned home.

7 When we had finished[y] the voyage from Tyre, we arrived at Ptolemais; and we greeted the believers[z] and stayed with them for one day. 8 The next day we left and came to Caesarea; and we went into the house of Philip the evangelist, one of the seven, and stayed with him.

9 He had four unmarried daughters[a] who had the gift of prophecy. 10 While we were staying there for several days, a prophet named Agabus came down from Judea. 11 He came to us and took Paul's belt, bound his own feet and hands with it, and said, "Thus says the Holy Spirit, 'This is the way the Jews in Jerusalem will bind the man who owns this belt and will hand him over to the Gentiles.'" 12 When we heard this, we and the people there urged him not to go up to Jerusalem. 13 Then Paul answered, "What are you doing, weeping and breaking my heart? For I am ready not only to be bound but even to die in Jerusalem for the name of the Lord Jesus." 14 Since he would not be persuaded, we remained silent except to say, "The Lord's will be done."

15 After these days we got ready and started to go up to Jerusalem. 16 Some of the disciples from Caesarea also came along and brought us to the house of Mnason of Cyprus, an early disciple, with whom we were to stay.

17 When we arrived in Jerusalem, the brothers welcomed us warmly. 18 The next day Paul went with us to visit James; and all the elders were present. 19 After greeting them, he related one by one the things that God had done among the Gentiles through his ministry. 20 When they heard it, they praised God. Then they said to him, "You see, brother, how many thousands of believers there are among the Jews, and they are all zealous for the law. 21 They have been told about you that you teach all the Jews living among the Gentiles to forsake Moses, and that you tell them not to circumcise their children or observe the customs. 22 What then is to be done? They will certainly hear that you have come. 23 So do what we tell you. We have four men who are under a vow. 24 Join these men, go through the rite of purification with them, and pay for the shaving of their heads. Thus all will know that there is nothing in what they have been told about you, but that you yourself observe and guard the law. 25 But as for the Gentiles who have become believers, we have sent a letter with our judgment that they should abstain from what has been sacrificed to idols and from blood and from what is strangled[b] and from fornication." 26 Then Paul took the men, and the next day, having purified himself, he entered the temple with them, making public the completion of the days of purification when the sacrifice would be made for each of them.

27 When the seven days were almost completed, the Jews from Asia, who had seen him in the temple, stirred up the whole crowd. They seized him, 28 shouting, "Fellow Israelites, help! This is the man who is teaching everyone everywhere against our people, our law, and this place; more than that, he has actually brought Greeks into the temple and has defiled this holy place." 29 For they had previously seen Trophimus the Ephesian with him in the city, and they supposed that Paul had brought him into the temple. 30 Then all the city was aroused, and the people rushed together. They seized Paul and dragged him out of the temple, and immediately the doors were shut.

word came to the tribune of the cohort that all Jerusalem was in an uproar. 32 Im-

When they saw the tribune and the soldiers, they stopped beating Paul. 33 Then the tribune came, arrested him, and ordered him to be bound with two chains; he inquired who he was and what he had done. 34 Some in the crowd shouted one thing, some another; and as he could not learn the facts because of the uproar, he ordered him to be brought into the barracks. 35 When Paul[c] came to the steps, the violence of the mob was so great that he had to be carried by the soldiers. 36 The crowd that followed kept shouting, "Away with him!"

37 Just as Paul was about to be brought into the barracks, he said to the tribune, "May I say something to you?" The tribune[d] replied, "Do you know Greek? 38 Then you are not the Egyptian who recently stirred up a revolt and led the four thousand assassins out into the wilderness?" 39 Paul replied, "I am a Jew, from Tarsus in Cilicia, a citizen of an important city; I beg you, let me speak to the people." 40 When he had given him permission, Paul stood on the steps and motioned to the people for silence; and when there was a great hush, he addressed them in the Hebrew[e] language, saying:

22 "Brothers and fathers, listen to the defense that I now make before you."

2 When they heard him addressing them in Hebrew,[e] they became even more quiet. Then he said:

3 "I am a Jew, born in Tarsus in Cilicia, but brought up in this city at the feet of Gamaliel, educated strictly according to our ancestral law, being zealous for God, just as all of you are today. 4 I persecuted this Way up to the point of death by binding both men and women and putting them in prison, 5 as the high priest and the whole council of elders can testify about me. From them I also received letters to the brothers in Damascus, and I went there in order to bind those who were there and to bring them back to Jerusalem for punishment.

6 "While I was on my way and approaching Damascus, about noon a great light from heaven suddenly shone about me. 7 I fell to the ground and heard a voice saying to me, 'Saul, Saul, why are you persecuting me?' 8 I answered, 'Who are you, Lord?' Then he said to me, 'I am Jesus of Nazareth[f] whom you are persecuting.' 9 Now those who were with me saw the light but did not hear the voice of the one who was speaking to me. 10 I asked, 'What am I to do, Lord?' The Lord said to me, 'Get up and go to Damascus; there you will be told everything that has been assigned to you to do.' 11 Since I could not see because of the brightness of that light, those who were with me took my hand and led me to Damascus.

12 "A certain Ananias, who was a devout man according to the law and well spoken of by all the Jews living there, 13 came to me; and standing beside me, he said, 'Brother Saul, regain your sight!' In that very hour I regained my sight and saw him. 14 Then he said, 'The God of our ancestors has chosen you to know his will, to see the Righteous One and to hear his own voice; 15 for you will be his witness to all the world of what you have seen and heard. 16 And now why do you delay? 17 "After I had returned to Jerusalem and while I was praying in the temple, I fell into a trance 18and saw Jesus[g] saying to me, 'Hurry and get out of Jerusalem quickly, because they will not accept your testimony about me.' 19And I said, 'Lord, they themselves know that in every synagogue I imprisoned and beat those who believed in you. 20And while the blood of your witness Stephen was shed, I myself was standing by, approving and keeping the coats of those who killed him.' 21Then he said to me, 'Go, for I will send you far away to the Gentiles.' "

22 Up to this point they listened to him, but then they shouted, "Away with such a fellow from the earth! For he should not be allowed to live." 23And while they were shouting, throwing off their cloaks, and tossing dust into the air, 24the tribune directed that he was to be brought into the barracks, and ordered him to be examined by flogging, to find out the reason for this outcry against him. 25But when they had tied him up with thongs,[h] Paul said to the centurion who was standing by, "Is it legal for you to flog a Roman citizen who is uncondemned?" 26When the centurion heard that, he went to the tribune and said to him, "What are you about to do? This man is a Roman citizen." 27The tribune came and asked Paul,[g] "Tell me, are you a Roman citizen?" And he said, "Yes." 28The tribune answered, "It cost me a large sum of money to get my citizenship." Paul said, "But I was born a citizen." 29Immediately those who were about to examine him drew back from him; and the tribune also was afraid, for he realized that Paul was a Roman citizen and that he had bound him.

30 Since he wanted to find out what Paul[i] was being accused of by the Jews, the next day he released him and ordered the chief priests and the entire council to meet. He brought Paul down and had him stand before them.

23 While Paul was looking intently at the council he said, "Brothers,[j] up to this day I have lived my life with a clear conscience before God." 2Then the high priest Ananias ordered those standing near him to strike him on the mouth. 3At this Paul said to him, "God will strike you, you whitewashed wall! Are you sitting there to judge me according to the law, and yet in violation of the law you order me to be struck?" 4Those standing nearby said, "Do you dare to insult God's high priest?" 5And Paul said, "I did not realize, brothers, that he was high priest; for it is written, 'You shall not speak evil of a leader of your people.' "

6 When Paul noticed that some were Sadducees and others were Pharisees, he called out in the council, "Brothers, I am a Pharisee, a son of Pharisees. I am on trial concerning the hope of the resurrection[k] of the dead." 7When he said this, a dissension began between the Pharisees and the Sadducees, and the assembly was divided. 8(The Sadducees say that there is no resurrection, or angel, or spirit; but the Pharisees acknowledge all three.) 9Then a great clamor arose, and certain scribes of the Pharisees' group stood up and contended, "We find nothing wrong with this man. What if a spirit or an angel has spoken to him?" 10 When the dissension became violent, the tribune, fearing that they would tear Paul to pieces, ordered the soldiers to go down, take him by force, and bring him into the barracks.

11 That night the Lord stood near him and said, "Keep up your courage! For just as you have testified for me in Jerusalem, so you must bear witness also in Rome."

12 In the morning the Jews joined in a conspiracy and bound themselves by an oath neither to eat nor drink until they had killed Paul. 13 There were more than forty who joined in this conspiracy. 14 They went to the chief priests and elders and said, "We have strictly bound ourselves by an oath to taste no food until we have killed Paul. 15 Now then, you and the council must notify the tribune to bring him down to you, on the pretext that you want to make a more thorough examination of his case. And we are ready to do away with him before he arrives."

16 Now the son of Paul's sister heard about the ambush; so he went and gained entrance to the barracks and told Paul. 17 Paul called one of the centurions and said, "Take this young man to the tribune, for he has something to report to him." 18 So he took him, brought him to the tribune, and said, "The prisoner Paul called me and asked me to bring this young man to you; he has something to tell you." 19 The tribune took him by the hand, drew him aside privately, and asked, "What is it that you have to report to me?" 20 He answered, "The Jews have agreed to ask you to bring Paul down to the council tomorrow, as though they were going to inquire more thoroughly into his case. 21 But do not be persuaded by them, for more than forty of their men are lying in ambush for him. They have bound themselves by an oath neither to eat nor drink until they kill him. They are ready now and are waiting for your consent." 22 So the tribune dismissed the young man, ordering him, "Tell no one that you have informed me of this."

23 Then he summoned two of the centurions and said, "Get ready to leave by nine o'clock tonight for Caesarea with two hundred soldiers, seventy horsemen, and two hundred spearmen. 24 Also provide mounts for Paul to ride, and take him safely to Felix the governor." 25 He wrote a letter to this effect:

26 "Claudius Lysias to his Excellency the governor Felix, greetings. 27 This man was seized by the Jews and was about to be killed by them, but when I had learned that he was a Roman citizen, I came with the guard and rescued him. 28 Since I wanted to know the charge for which they accused him, I had him brought to their council. 29 I found that he was accused concerning questions of their law, but was charged with nothing deserving death or imprisonment. 30 When I was informed that there would be a plot against the man, I sent him to you at once, ordering his accusers also to state before you what they have against him.[1]"

31 So the soldiers, according to their instructions, took Paul and brought him during the night to Antipatris. 32 The next day they let the horsemen go on with him, while they returned to the barracks. 33 When they came to Caesarea and delivered the letter to the governor, they presented Paul also before him. 34 On reading the letter, he asked what province he belonged to, and when he learned that he was from Cilicia, 35 he said, "I will

24 Five days later the high priest Ananias came down with some elders and an attorney, a certain Tertullus, and they reported their case against Paul to the governor. 2When Paul[n] had been summoned, Tertullus began to accuse him, saying:

"Your Excellency,[o] because of you we have long enjoyed peace, and reforms have been made for this people because of your foresight. 3We welcome this in every way and everywhere with utmost gratitude. 4But, to detain you no further, I beg you to hear us briefly with your customary graciousness. 5We have, in fact, found this man a pestilent fellow, an agitator among all the Jews throughout the world, and a ringleader of the sect of the Nazarenes.[p] 6He even tried to profane the temple, and so we seized him.[q] 8By examining him yourself you will be able to learn from him concerning everything of which we accuse him."

9 The Jews also joined in the charge by asserting that all this was true.

10 When the governor motioned to him to speak, Paul replied:

"I cheerfully make my defense, knowing that for many years you have been a judge over this nation. 11As you can find out, it is not more than twelve days since I went up to worship in Jerusalem. 12They did not find me disputing with anyone in the temple or stirring up a crowd either in the synagogues or throughout the city. 13Neither can they prove to you the charge that they now bring against me. 14But this I admit to you, that according to the Way, which they call a sect, I worship the God of our ancestors, believing everything laid down according to the law or written in the prophets. 15I have a hope in God—a hope that they themselves also accept—that there will be a resurrection of both[r] the righteous and the unrighteous. 16Therefore I do my best always to have a clear conscience toward God and all people. 17Now after some years I came to bring alms to my nation and to offer sacrifices. 18While I was doing this, they found me in the temple, completing the rite of purification, without any crowd or disturbance. 19But there were some Jews from Asia—they ought to be here before you to make an accusation, if they have anything against me. 20Or let these men here tell what crime they had found when I stood before the council, 21unless it was this one sentence that I called out while standing before them, 'It is about the resurrection of the dead that I am on trial before you today.' "

22 But Felix, who was rather well informed about the Way, adjourned the hearing with the comment, "When Lysias the tribune comes down, I will decide your case." 23Then he ordered the centurion to keep him in custody, but to let him have some liberty and not to prevent any of his friends from taking care of his needs.

24 Some days later when Felix came with his wife Drusilla, who was Jewish, he sent for Paul and heard him speak concerning faith in Christ Jesus. 25And as he discussed justice, self-control, and the coming judgment, Felix became frightened and said, "Go away for the present; when I have an opportunity, I will send for you." 26At the same time he hoped that money would be given him by Paul, and for that reason he used to send for him very often and converse with him.

27 After two years had passed, Felix was succeeded by Porcius Festus; and since he wanted to grant the Jews a favor, Felix left Paul in prison.

25 Three days after Festus had arrived in the province, he went up from Caesarea to Jerusalem 2where the chief priests and the leaders of the Jews gave him a report against Paul. They appealed to him 3and requested, as a favor to them against Paul,[s] to have him transferred to Jerusalem. They were, in fact, planning an ambush to kill him along the way. 4Festus replied that Paul was being kept at Caesarea, and that he himself intended to go there shortly. 5"So," he said, "let those of you who have the authority come down with me, and if there is anything wrong about the man, let them accuse him."

6 After he had stayed among them not more than eight or ten days, he went down to Caesarea; the next day he took his seat on the tribunal and ordered Paul to be brought. 7When he arrived, the Jews who had gone down from Jerusalem surrounded him, bringing many serious charges against him, which they could not prove. 8Paul said in his defense, "I have in no way committed an offense against the law of the Jews, or against the temple, or against the emperor." 9But Festus, wishing to do the Jews a favor, asked Paul, "Do you wish to go up to Jerusalem and be tried there before me on these charges?" 10Paul said, "I am appealing to the emperor's tribunal; this is where I should be tried. I have done no wrong to the Jews, as you very well know. 11Now if I am in the wrong and have committed something for which I deserve to die, I am not trying to escape death; but if there is nothing to their charges against me, no one can turn me over to them. I appeal to the emperor." 12Then Festus, after he had conferred with his council, replied, "You have appealed to the emperor; to the emperor you will go."

13 After several days had passed, King Agrippa and Bernice arrived at Caesarea to welcome Festus. 14Since they were staying there several days, Festus laid Paul's case before the king, saying, "There is a man here who was left in prison by Felix. 15When I was in Jerusalem, the chief priests and the elders of the Jews informed me about him and asked for a sentence against him. 16I told them that it was not the custom of the Romans to hand over anyone before the accused had met the accusers face to face and had been given an opportunity to make a defense against the charge. 17So when they met here, I lost no time, but on the next day took my seat on the tribunal and ordered the man to be brought. 18When the accusers stood up, they did not charge him with any of the crimes[t] that I was expecting. 19Instead they had certain points of disagreement with him about their own religion and about a certain Jesus, who had died, but whom Paul asserted to be alive. 20Since I was at a loss how to investigate these questions, I asked whether he wished to go to Jerusalem and be tried there on

23 So on the next day Agrippa and Bernice came with great pomp, and they entered the audience hall with the military tribunes and the prominent men of the city. Then Festus gave the order and Paul was brought in. 24 And Festus said, "King Agrippa and all here present with us, you see this man about whom the whole Jewish community petitioned me, both in Jerusalem and here, shouting that he ought not to live any longer. 25 But I found that he had done nothing deserving death; and when he appealed to his Imperial Majesty, I decided to send him. 26 But I have nothing definite to write to our sovereign about him. Therefore I have brought him before all of you, and especially before you, King Agrippa, so that, after we have examined him, I may have something to write— 27 for it seems to me unreasonable to send a prisoner without indicating the charges against him."

26 Agrippa said to Paul, "You have permission to speak for yourself." Then Paul stretched out his hand and began to defend himself:

2 "I consider myself fortunate that it is before you, King Agrippa, I am to make my defense today against all the accusations of the Jews, 3 because you are especially familiar with all the customs and controversies of the Jews; therefore I beg of you to listen to me patiently.

4 "All the Jews know my way of life from my youth, a life spent from the beginning among my own people and in Jerusalem. 5 They have known for a long time, if they are willing to testify, that I have belonged to the strictest sect of our religion and lived as a Pharisee. 6 And now I stand here on trial on account of my hope in the promise made by God to our ancestors, 7 a promise that our twelve tribes hope to attain, as they earnestly worship day and night. It is for this hope, your Excellency,[v] that I am accused by Jews! 8 Why is it thought incredible by any of you that God raises the dead?

9 "Indeed, I myself was convinced that I ought to do many things against the name of Jesus of Nazareth.[w] 10 And that is what I did in Jerusalem; with authority received from the chief priests, I not only locked up many of the saints in prison, but I also cast my vote against them when they were being condemned to death. 11 By punishing them often in all the synagogues I tried to force them to blaspheme; and since I was so furiously enraged at them, I pursued them even to foreign cities.

12 "With this in mind, I was traveling to Damascus with the authority and commission of the chief priests, 13 when at midday along the road, your Excellency,[v] I saw a light from heaven, brighter than the sun, shining around me and my companions. 14 When we had all fallen to the ground, I heard a voice saying to me in the Hebrew[x] language, 'Saul, Saul, why are you persecuting me? It hurts you to kick against the goads.' 15 I asked, 'Who are you, Lord?' The Lord answered, 'I am Jesus whom you are persecuting. 16 But get up and stand on your feet; for I have appeared to you for this purpose, to appoint you to serve and testify to the things in which you have seen me[y] and to those in which I will appear to you. 17I will rescue you from your people and from the Gentiles—to whom I am sending you 18to open their eyes so that they may turn from darkness to light and from the power of Satan to God, so that they may receive forgiveness of sins and a place among those who are sanctified by faith in me.'

19 "After that, King Agrippa, I was not disobedient to the heavenly vision, 20but declared first to those in Damascus, then in Jerusalem and throughout the countryside of Judea, and also to the Gentiles, that they should repent and turn to God and do deeds consistent with repentance. 21For this reason the Jews seized me in the temple and tried to kill me. 22To this day I have had help from God, and so I stand here, testifying to both small and great, saying nothing but what the prophets and Moses said would take place: 23that the Messiah[z] must suffer, and that, by being the first to rise from the dead, he would proclaim light both to our people and to the Gentiles."

24 While he was making this defense, Festus exclaimed, "You are out of your mind, Paul! Too much learning is driving you insane!" 25But Paul said, "I am not out of my mind, most excellent Festus, but I am speaking the sober truth. 26Indeed the king knows about these things, and to him I speak freely; for I am certain that none of these things has escaped his notice, for this was not done in a corner. 27King Agrippa, do you believe the prophets? I know that you believe." 28Agrippa said to Paul, "Are you so quickly persuading me to become a Christian?"[a] 29Paul replied, "Whether quickly or not, I pray to God that not only you but also all who are listening to me today might become such as I am—except for these chains."

30 Then the king got up, and with him the governor and Bernice and those who had been seated with them; 31and as they were leaving, they said to one another, "This man is doing nothing to deserve death or imprisonment." 32Agrippa said to Festus, "This man could have been set free if he had not appealed to the emperor."

27 When it was decided that we were to sail for Italy, they transferred Paul and some other prisoners to a centurion of the Augustan Cohort, named Julius. 2Embarking on a ship of Adramyttium that was about to set sail to the ports along the coast of Asia, we put to sea, accompanied by Aristarchus, a Macedonian from Thessalonica. 3The next day we put in at Sidon; and Julius treated Paul kindly, and allowed him to go to his friends to be cared for. 4Putting out to sea from there, we sailed under the lee of Cyprus, because the winds were against us. 5After we had sailed across the sea that is off Cilicia and Pamphylia, we came to Myra in Lycia. 6There the centurion found an Alexandrian ship bound for Italy and put us on board. 7We sailed slowly for a number of days and arrived with difficulty off Cnidus, and as the wind was against us, we sailed under the lee of Crete off Salmone. 8 Sailing past it with difficulty, we came to a place called Fair Havens, near the city of Lasea.

9 Since much time had been lost and sailing was now dangerous, because even the Fast had already gone by, Paul advised them, 10 saying, "Sirs, I can see that the voyage will be with danger and much heavy loss, not only of the cargo and the ship, but also of our lives." 11 But the centurion paid more attention to the pilot and to the owner of the ship than to what Paul said. 12 Since the harbor was not suitable for spending the winter, the majority was in favor of putting to sea from there, on the chance that somehow they could reach Phoenix, where they could spend the winter. It was a harbor of Crete, facing southwest and northwest.

13 When a moderate south wind began to blow, they thought they could achieve their purpose; so they weighed anchor and began to sail past Crete, close to the shore. 14 But soon a violent wind, called the northeaster, rushed down from Crete. [b] 15 Since the ship was caught and could not be turned head-on into the wind, we gave way to it and were driven. 16 By running under the lee of a small island called Cauda [c] we were scarcely able to get the ship's boat under control. 17 After hoisting it up they took measures [d] to undergird the ship; then, fearing that they would run on the Syrtis, they lowered the sea anchor and so were driven. 18 We were being pounded by the storm so violently that on the next day they began to throw the cargo overboard, 19 and on the third day with their own hands they threw the ship's tackle overboard. 20 When neither sun nor stars appeared for many days, and no small tempest raged, all hope of our being saved was at last abandoned.

21 Since they had been without food for a long time, Paul then stood up among them and said, "Men, you should have listened to me and not have set sail from Crete and thereby avoided this damage and loss. 22 I urge you now to keep up your courage, for there will be no loss of life among you, but only of the ship. 23 For last night there stood by me an angel of the God to whom I belong and whom I worship, 24 and he said, 'Do not be afraid, Paul; you must stand before the emperor; and indeed, God has granted safety to all those who are sailing with you.' 25 So keep up your courage, men, for I have faith in God that it will be exactly as I have been told. 26 But we will have to run aground on some island."

27 When the fourteenth night had come, as we were drifting across the sea of Adria, about midnight the sailors suspected that they were nearing land. 28 So they took soundings and found twenty fathoms; a little farther on they took soundings again and found fifteen fathoms. 29 Fearing that we might run on the rocks, they let down four anchors from the stern and prayed for day to come. 30 But when the sailors tried to escape from the ship and had lowered the boat into the sea, on the pretext of putting out anchors from the bow, 31 Paul said to the centurion and the soldiers, "Unless these men stay in the ship, you cannot be saved." 32 Then the soldiers cut away the ropes of the boat and set it adrift.

33 Just before daybreak, Paul urged all of them to take some food, saying, "Today is the fourteenth day that you have been in suspense and remaining without food, having eaten nothing. 34 Therefore I urge you to take some food, for it will help you survive; for none of you will lose a hair from your heads." 35 After he had said this, he took bread; and giving thanks to God in the presence of all, he broke it and began to eat. 36 Then all of them were encouraged and took food for themselves. 37 (We were in all two hundred seventy-six [e] persons in the ship.) 38 After they had satisfied their hunger, they lightened the ship by throwing the wheat into the sea.

39 In the morning they did not recognize the land, but they noticed a bay with a beach, on which they planned to run the ship ashore, if they could. 40 So they cast off the anchors and left them in the sea. At the same time they loosened the ropes that tied the steering-oars; then hoisting the foresail to the wind, they made for the beach. 41But striking a reef,[f] they ran the ship aground; the bow stuck and remained immovable, but the stern was being broken up by the force of the waves. 42The soldiers' plan was to kill the prisoners, so that none might swim away and escape; 43but the centurion, wishing to save Paul, kept them from carrying out their plan. He ordered those who could swim to jump overboard first and make for the land, 44and the rest to follow, some on planks and others on pieces of the ship. And so it was that all were brought safely to land.

28 After we had reached safety, we then learned that the island was called Malta. 2The natives showed us unusual kindness. Since it had begun to rain and was cold, they kindled a fire and welcomed all of us around it. 3Paul had gathered a bundle of brushwood and was putting it on the fire, when a viper, driven out by the heat, fastened itself on his hand. 4When the natives saw the creature hanging from his hand, they said to one another, "This man must be a murderer; though he has escaped from the sea, justice has not allowed him to live." 5He, however, shook off the creature into the fire and suffered no harm. 6They were expecting him to swell up or drop dead, but after they had waited a long time and saw that nothing unusual had happened to him, they changed their minds and began to say that he was a god.

7 Now in the neighborhood of that place were lands belonging to the leading man of the island, named Publius, who received us and entertained us hospitably for three days. 8It so happened that the father of Publius lay sick in bed with fever and dysentery. Paul visited him and cured him by praying and putting his hands on him. 9After this happened, the rest of the people on the island who had diseases also came and were cured. 10They bestowed many honors on us, and when we were about to sail, they put on board all the provisions we needed.

11 Three months later we set sail on a ship that had wintered at the island, an Alexandrian ship with the Twin Brothers as its figurehead. 12We put in at Syracuse and stayed there for three days; 13then we weighed anchor and came to Rhegium. After one day there a south wind sprang up, and on the second day we came to Puteoli. 14There we found believers[g] and were invited to stay with them for seven days. And so we came to Rome. 15The believers[g] from there, when they heard of us, came as far as the Forum of Appius and Three Taverns to meet us. On seeing them, Paul thanked God and took courage.

16 When we came into Rome, Paul was allowed to live by himself, with the soldier who was guarding him.

17 Three days later he called together the local leaders of the Jews. When they had assembled, he said to them, "Brothers, though I had done nothing against our people or the customs of our ancestors, yet I was arrested in Jerusalem and handed over to the Romans. 18When they had examined me, the Romans[h] wanted to release me, because there was no reason for the death penalty in my case. 19But when the Jews objected, I was compelled to appeal to the emperor—even though I had no charge to bring against my nation. 20For this reason therefore I have asked to see you and speak with you,[i] since it is for the sake of the hope of Israel that I am bound with this chain." 21They replied, "We have received no letters from Judea about you, and none of the brothers coming here has reported or spoken anything evil about you. 22But we would like to hear from you what you think, for with regard to this sect we know that everywhere it is spoken against."

23 After they had set a day to meet with him, they came to him at his lodgings in great numbers. From morning until evening he explained the matter to them, testifying to the kingdom of God and trying to convince them about Jesus both from the law of Moses and from the prophets. 24Some were convinced by what he had said, while others refused to believe. 25So they disagreed with each other; and as they were leaving, Paul made one further statement: "The Holy Spirit was right in saying to your ancestors through the prophet Isaiah,

26 'Go to this people and say,
You will indeed listen, but never understand,
and you will indeed look, but never perceive.
27 For this people's heart has grown dull,
and their ears are hard of hearing,
and they have shut their eyes;
so that they might not look with their eyes,
and listen with their ears,
and understand with their heart and turn—
and I would heal them.'

28Let it be known to you then that this salvation of God has been sent to the Gentiles; they will listen."[j]

Rejected by the Jews, he again turns to the Gentiles (see 13.46 n.). 20: The chain may be actual or a metaphor of his restriction. 23: The prophets, see Mt 5.17 n. 26: Christians often used Isa 6.9–10 to explain the Jews' rejection of the gospel (see Mt 13.14–15 n.; Jn 12.40; compare the ideas of Rom chs 9–11).

28.30–31: Conclusion. Though under house arrest (v. 16) Paul preached without hindrance for two whole years. Thus the author concludes his narrative of the spread of the gospel from Jerusalem (1.8) to Rome, the capital of the empire.

Letters/Epistles in the New Testament

CLASSIFICATION OF NEW TESTAMENT LETTERS

The predominant literary form in the New Testament is the letter form. Of the twenty-seven documents comprising the New Testament, seven-ninths of them have the format of a letter or epistle. Of these twenty-one, fourteen have been traditionally attributed to Paul, and the other seven to a variety of authors. In the case of the Pauline letters, the titles now given to them involve the names of the recipients (To the Romans, To the Galatians, To Philemon, etc.), whereas in the case of the others, called the General or Catholic Letters, the titles (except "To the Hebrews") identify the author (Letter of James, Letter of Jude, etc.). These titles, it goes without saying, were added by scribes and editors after the several letters had been collected into a corpus.

In almost all the complete manuscripts of the Greek New Testament the General Letters follow Acts and precede the Pauline Letters, whereas in many Latin manuscripts, the Pauline Letters often precede the General Letters. This latter sequence is followed in English Bibles. The Pauline Letters are in two series, those addressed to churches and those addressed to individuals. The present order of the General Letters and of each series of the Pauline Letters is in terms of their length, going from the longer to the shorter letters.

The letters included in the New Testament (with the exception of those included in Acts 15.23–29; 23.26–30, and the letters to the seven churches of Asia in chapters 2 and 3 of the Book of Revelation) are in general longer than other ancient letters. The letters attributed to Paul (with the exception of Hebrews) average about 1300 words each; Romans has 7101, Titus (the second shortest) 658, Philemon 335. Only 2 and 3 John are shorter than this, with 245 and 219 words respectively. The author of the anonymous Letter to the Hebrews concludes by saying, "I have written to you briefly" (13.22); since this letter contains 4951 words, we must perhaps understand the word "briefly" by considering the extent of the subject and its ramifications.

In comparison with the New Testament letters the following statistics are of interest. Thousands of private letters on papyrus have been unearthed, chiefly in Egypt; these average (according to one scholar's calculations) eighty-seven words in length — the shortest has eighteen words, the longest two hundred and nine. The literary collections of epistles from antiquity (for the distinction between letters and epistles, see p. 206 NT) have a much greater average length; the 796 genuine letters and epistles of Cicero the Roman orator average 295 words each (the shortest has 22 words, the longest 2530), and the 124 epistles of the Stoic philosopher Seneca average 995 words (from 149 to 4134 words).

MANNER OF WRITING LETTERS

In antiquity, just as today, people sometimes wrote letters personally, and sometimes they dictated to a scribe or amanuensis. In the latter case, one might dictate word by word, with the amanuensis writing each out verbatim. Or one might dictate more rapidly with the message being taken down stenographically. In this case the material would, of course, need to be transcribed again. Besides dictating word by word, there was also the practice of giving the amanuensis exact instructions about the content of the letter and leaving the choice of wording to the amanuensis.

In the case of the Letter to the Romans, we know that Paul dictated it to a certain Tertius, who added his own greeting among those that Paul was sending (Rom 16.22). In three other letters the apostle mentions explicitly that he has written the final greeting with his own hand, presumably as a guarantee of genuineness (1 Cor 16.21; Col 4.18; and especially 2 Thess 3.17). Near the close of his Letter to the Galatians Paul says to his readers, "See what large letters I make when I am writing in my own hand!" (6.11). Since the subject changes at this point, it is probable that here he has taken over the stylus from the amanuensis. In Philemon (v. 19) Paul writes a personal I O U that is apparently different from the script in the rest of the letter. From these data we may conclude that Paul's usual practice was to dictate the bulk of a given letter to a scribe and often to add notes in his own handwriting, perhaps also correcting what the scribe had written.

How far the New Testament contains letters for which a secretary had some responsibility for the language and style continues to be debated. It is possible that this is how we should understand the comment made near the close of 1 Peter: "Through Silvanus, whom I consider a faithful brother, I have written this short letter to encourage you" (5.12). In the case of several other letters (both Pauline and General) it is now thought that a friend and follower of the apostle drew up the document in the name of the apostle, perhaps actually after the death of the putative author. (See the Introductions to Ephesians, 1 Timothy, and 2 Peter.)

In light of such practices in antiquity, several consequences appear to be more or less probable. For one thing, a discontinuity in thought or expression may be the result of resuming the dictation after a break of some hours (or even on a subsequent day), and in a different mood from that reflected at the outset of the letter. Thus, for example, we can explain the change of tone between the close of ch 2 and what follows 3.1 of Paul's Letter to the Philippians. Furthermore, if a secretary took part in the composition of a letter, and not simply its transcription, then the vocabulary and style are not decisive criteria for settling its authenticity. Finally, the similarity between Ephesians and Colossians could be accounted for on the assumption that Paul had kept a copy of the earlier one, which he read before dictating the other. (We know that Cicero made a practice of keeping copies of the letters that he had sent.) It is also possible that these two letters were written by others, or another, with access to Paul's writings (see the Introduction to Ephesians and Colossians).

FORM OF ANCIENT LETTERS

The form of an ancient Greco-Roman letter was conspicuously different from the modern letter. At its beginning one finds the sender's name, followed by that of the recipient, and a short salutation. The message in the body of the letter was often introduced by an appeal to the gods in terms of gratitude and thanksgiving or of a prayer for the welfare of the recipient. At the end of the letter came the conveyance of greetings.

The apostle Paul's letters, while they fall within the category of such Hellenistic letters, show some development of the letter pattern based on the apostle's creativity. Identifications of the writer (co-workers are sometimes named) and of the addressees are followed by expanded descriptions of both parties in terms of their standing in relation to God through Christ. Specifically, the stereotyped Hellenistic "Greetings!" (Greek chairein) is replaced by "Grace (Greek charis) to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ," where the reference to peace (compare Hebrew shalom) may echo the close of the old priestly blessing of Num 6.24–26. The Pauline letters and those influenced by them generally expand the element of thanksgiving for the addressees (for example, 1 Cor 1.4–9; Eph 1.15–23; Phil 1.3–11; 2 Thess 1.3–12; 1 Tim 1.3–7); in Galatians, however, Paul replaces the thanksgiving with a rebuke, "I am astonished . . ." (1.6–9). The body of Pauline letters is usually divided into two parts, one doctrinal in content, and the other hortatory, giving instructions for Christian conduct. The conclusion of his letters often contains personal news and a final greeting. This is never the ordinary Greek "Farewell" (erroso, as in Acts 15.29), but a characteristic blessing, "The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you" (Rom 16.20; 1 Cor 16.23; 2 Cor 13.13 (expanded); Gal 6.18; Phil 4.23; 1 Thess 5.28; Philem 25).

DISTINCTION BETWEEN LETTERS AND EPISTLES

In modern usage a distinction is often made between the terms "letter" and "epistle." Letters, as Adolf Deissmann repeatedly emphasized, are generally private missives and deal with circumstances of the passing moment. Confidential and personal in nature, they are intended only for the person or persons to whom they are addressed. Epistles, on the other hand, are on a more sophisticated level of literary effort, and are written with the intention of being both public and more or less permanent. In brief, the letter is, so to speak, a slice of life, while the epistle is a product of literary art. Now the examples in the New Testament combine features of both the letter and the epistle. The Letters of Paul are all real letters, arising out of real situations in his life or the lives of those to whom he writes. At the same time, they are quasi-official letters from an apostle rather than merely private letters, and their style is more formal than the ephemeral letters preserved among the Greek papyri.

Some of the other letters in the New Testament are more akin to the form and style of a theological treatise (such as the Letter to the Hebrews) or an edifying homily (1 Peter and 1 John). Even these, however, were not originally directed to the whole of Christendom, but were intended for particular—even if loosely defined—destinations, and were written in order to deal with urgent difficulties experienced by the recipients, such as persecution, heresy, and religious or moral laxity. Thus, the letters of the New Testament incorporate elements of the on-going life of the churches, such as liturgical materials, moral guidelines, and religious instruction applicable to many believers besides the immediate recipients of the document. Furthermore, it should be noted that the literary form of a letter/epistle combines the advantages of a conversation and a treatise; in such a format it is possible to communicate truth, not only abstractly, but in close relation to the personal circumstances of the recipients.

DISPATCH OF LETTERS

In antiquity there was no organized postal service available to the general populace. The system of letter carriers (cursus publicus) created by the Emperor Augustus was restricted to the dispatch of government communiqués from Rome to officials in the provinces. Private individuals, therefore, had to make their own arrangements for the carrying and delivery of letters. Wealthy families would keep a certain number of slaves to serve as couriers—grammatophoroi ("letter carriers") as they were called in Greek, or tabellarii ("tablet men" from the wooden tablets, tabellae)

in Latin. Families and friends living near one another would pool their couriers in order to increase the opportunities to get off or receive a letter. But there were never enough carriers to meet the needs, and delays were inevitable. The opposite side of the coin was the need to dash off some lines at breakneck speed in order to take advantage of an available courier.

The actual transmission of private letters was in practice exposed to many uncertainties, delays, and, at times, almost insuperable difficulties. Travel whether by land or by sea could be hazardous. In all the countries referred to in the New Testament (except Egypt) the terrain is mountainous. One could travel on land, of course, only by daylight. The rigors of winter prevented travel by sea as well as by land. There was also the ever-present possibility of being waylaid by bandits or by pirates. Then too, illness or accident might incapacitate the one carrying the letter. In view of such eventualities, for really important letters it was advisable to send duplicate copies through two different messengers. In any case, a letter carrier had to be physically fit as well as loyal and intelligent. It is not surprising to find in antiquity repeated reference to letters written but never received. Others were lost for months, or even years, before finally being delivered. For example, through a series of mishaps a letter written by Augustine of Hippo in North Africa to Jerome in Bethlehem took nine years for delivery!

In the case of several letters in the New Testament internal evidence allows us to infer who it was that served as letter carrier. Obviously the apostle Paul utilized Onesimus, the converted runaway slave, to deliver the letter to his master Philemon. Titus and an unidentified believer "who is famous among all the churches for his proclaiming the good news," carried what we know as Paul's Second Letter to the Corinthians (2 Cor 8.16–18). Tychicus carried the Letter to the Ephesians (Eph 6.21) and the Letter to the Colossians (Col 4.7–8), while Phoebe, whom Paul commends to the Christians at Rome (Rom 16.1–2), probably carried his Letter to the Romans. Epaphroditus, sent by the church at Philippi with a gift to Paul (Phil 4.18), would have carried back with him the apostle's letter of thanks to that congregation (Phil 2.25–28). Three of the converts at Corinth (Stephanas, Fortunatus, and Achaicus) probably brought Paul the letter that is referred to in 1 Cor 7.1, as well as carrying back Paul's reply (1 Cor 16.15–18).

CONCLUSION

The letters in the New Testament are real letters, and the issues they deal with belong to a particular period in the history of the church. At the same time, the treatment of the several problems that elicited a response on the part of Paul, Peter, John, and other leaders in the early church often involved an exposition of fundamental teachings of the Christian faith. Thus it comes about that these letters—having been recopied and circulated to other congregations, and finally collected together—eventually became, and have justly remained, among the primary documents of the Christian religion (on canonization, see p. v NT). Like the genre of gospels, the New Testament letters represent something startlingly new and original in the literature of their time. Both literary epistles, such as those of Cicero or Seneca, and the incidental papyrus letters preserved in the dry climate of Egypt are well known, but never before had the world ever seen anything quite like these rather lengthy letters/epistles, almost wholly concerned not just with personal details but with matters of Christian doctrine and conduct. Even the preliminary greeting and the concluding farewell are new and distinctively Christian formulae. If we ask what it was that provided the new dynamic behind the writing of these apostolic letters, the answer must certainly include reference to the several writers' loyal commitment to one whom they called "the Lord Jesus Christ."

The Letter of Paul to the Romans

This letter, the first of Paul's letters in the canonical collection, is also the longest, the weightiest, and subsequently the most influential of all his correspondence. Written at the height of the apostle's career (between A.D. 54 and 58), it conveys the full richness of his experience of Christ as well as the full maturity of his thought.

The gospel as God's power for salvation to all who believe is the theme of Romans (see 1.16–17 n.). It is expressed especially in terms of God's saving righteousness, or justification by faith (see 3.24 n.), and with a universal concern for both Jew and Gentile (note the frequent use of "all" and "every," 1.16; 3.9, 19, 23–24; 4.11, 16; 5.12, 18). Reconciliation (5.10–11), forgiveness (4.6–8), life in Christ (chs 5–8), the Spirit and our adoption by God—all these intertwine with justification (8.5–30). There is also development of God's plan of salvation, from Adam through Abraham and Moses to Christ (chs 4–5) and the future fulfillment (8.18–25). Israel and the church, comprising the community of those who hear the proclamation about Christ and believe, are discussed in chs 9–11.

For several years—years of intense missionary activity in the northeastern Mediterranean area—Paul had been engaged in collecting contributions in his predominantly Gentile churches of Greece and Asia Minor for the needy Jerusalem church. It was his hope that these gifts would allay certain suspicions about him and his work and bring the two wings of the church, Jewish Christian and Gentile, closer together. The collection was now complete, and Paul, apparently in Corinth (15.25–27; compare 1 Cor 16.3–5 and Acts 20.2–3), was awaiting an opportunity to go to Jerusalem with it. He intended afterwards to carry the gospel to Spain (15.28) and, on his way, to stop at Rome, where the church had already been established by others. He therefore writes to the Christians at Rome to announce this intention and to explain his understanding of the gospel (1.10–15), perhaps also with a view to securing the support of believers there for his work farther to the west.

Because the text of Romans has existed from antiquity in several forms (see 15–16 n.; 16.25–27 n.), some have suggested that Paul, while writing to Rome, might also have sent a copy to Ephesus, for 16.1–16 reads like a letter of recommendation for Phoebe; or that he left a copy in Corinth (for the "strong" and the "weak" of 14.1–15.13 may reflect 1 Cor 8.9–13; 10.23–11.1). Others propose that Paul is writing with one eye on the situation in Jerusalem, where the collection is to be presented.

After the customary salutation and thanksgiving, Paul describes the world's need of redemption (1.18–3.20). He then discusses God's saving act in Christ: its nature (3.21–4.25) and the new life that it has made available (5.1–8.39). After a section dealing with the role of the Jewish nation in God's plan (chs 9–11), the letter closes with ethical teaching and some personal remarks (chs 12–16).

1 Paul, a servant[a] of Jesus Christ, called to be an apostle, set apart for the gospel of God, 2which he promised beforehand through his prophets in the holy scriptures, 3the gospel concerning his Son, who was descended from David according to the flesh 4and was declared to be Son of God with power according to the spirit[b] of holiness by resurrection from the dead, Jesus Christ our Lord, 5through whom we have received grace and apostleship to bring about the obedience of faith among all the Gentiles for the sake of his name, 6including yourselves who are called to belong to Jesus Christ,

7 To all God's beloved in Rome, who are called to be saints:

Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

8 First, I thank my God through Jesus Christ for all of you, because your faith is proclaimed throughout the world.
9For God, whom I serve with my spirit by announcing the gospel[c] of his Son, is my witness that without ceasing I remember you always in my prayers, 10asking that by God's will I may somehow at last succeed in coming to you.
11For I am longing to see you so that I may share with you some spiritual gift to strengthen you— 12or rather so that we may be mutually encouraged by each other's faith, both yours and mine. 13I want you to know, brothers and sisters,[d]
that I have often intended to come to you (but thus far have been prevented), in order that I may reap some harvest among you as I have among the rest of the Gentiles. 14I am a debtor both to Greeks and to barbarians, both to the wise and to the foolish 15—hence my eagerness to proclaim the gospel to you also who are in Rome.

16 For I am not ashamed of the gospel; it is the power of God for salvation to everyone who has faith, to the Jew first and also to the Greek. 17For in it the righteousness of God is revealed through faith for faith; as it is written, "The one who is righteous will live by faith."[e]

18 For the wrath of God is revealed from heaven against all ungodliness and wickedness of those who by their wickedness suppress the truth. 19For what can be known about God is plain to them, because God has shown it to them.
20Ever since the creation of the world his eternal power and divine nature, invisible though they are, have been understood and seen through the things he has made. So they are without excuse; 21for though they knew God, they did not honor him as God or give thanks to him,
but they became futile in their thinking,

1.1–7: Salutation. Ancient Greek letters customarily began with the names of the sender and of the recipient and a short greeting (compare Acts 23.26). Paul expands this form to express his Christian faith as well. 3–4: God's Son, who came into the world physically descended from David, was manifested and installed in his true status at the resurrection. The spirit of holiness, the Holy Spirit. 7: Saints, "holy ones," who belong to God, consecrated to God's service. Grace . . . and peace, conventional Greek and Hebrew greetings, now expressing gifts received in Christ (5.1–2).

1.8–15: Thanksgiving. After the salutation in ancient letters there usually came a short prayer of thanksgiving or of petition for those addressed. This element also Paul expands in a characteristically Christian way, reflecting his plans and mutual hopes (vv. 10–15).

1.16–17: The theme of the letter. In Christ God has acted powerfully to save Jew and Gentile, offering righteousness and life, to be received in faith. 17: The righteousness of God originates in the divine nature (3.5) acting to effect pardon or acceptance with God, a relationship that is not a human achievement but God's gift. Through faith for faith, faith is the sole condition of salvation. The one who . . . will live, Hab 2.4 in a Greek form allowing also the translation in the note; compare Gal 3.11; Phil 3.9; Heb 10.38.

1.18–32: God's judgment upon sin. 18: Wrath, see Col 3.6 n. 19: What can be known, i.e. apart from God's revelation to Israel and

and their senseless minds were darkened. 22Claiming to be wise, they became fools; 23and they exchanged the glory of the immortal God for images resembling a mortal human being or birds or four-footed animals or reptiles.

24 Therefore God gave them up in the lusts of their hearts to impurity, to the degrading of their bodies among themselves, 25because they exchanged the truth about God for a lie and worshiped and served the creature rather than the Creator, who is blessed forever! Amen.

26 For this reason God gave them up to degrading passions. Their women exchanged natural intercourse for unnatural, 27and in the same way also the men, giving up natural intercourse with women, were consumed with passion for one another. Men committed shameless acts with men and received in their own persons the due penalty for their error.

28 And since they did not see fit to acknowledge God, God gave them up to a debased mind and to things that should not be done. 29They were filled with every kind of wickedness, evil, covetousness, malice. Full of envy, murder, strife, deceit, craftiness, they are gossips, 30slanderers, God-haters,[f] insolent, haughty, boastful, inventors of evil, rebellious toward parents, 31foolish, faithless, heartless, ruthless. 32They know God's decree, that those who practice such things deserve to die—yet they not only do them but even applaud others who practice them.

2 Therefore you have no excuse, whoever you are, when you judge others; for in passing judgment on another you condemn yourself, because you, the judge, are doing the very same things. 2You say,[g] "We know that God's judgment on those who do such things is in accordance with truth." 3Do you imagine, whoever you are, that when you judge those who do such things and yet do them yourself, you will escape the judgment of God? 4Or do you despise the riches of his kindness and forbearance and patience? Do you not realize that God's kindness is meant to lead you to repentance? 5But by your hard and impenitent heart you are storing up wrath for yourself on the day of wrath, when God's righteous judgment will be revealed. 6For he will repay according to each one's deeds: 7to those who by patiently doing good seek for glory and honor and immortality, he will give eternal life; 8while for those who are self-seeking and who obey not the truth but wickedness, there will be wrath and fury. 9There will be anguish and distress for everyone who does evil, the Jew first and also the Greek, 10but glory and honor and peace for everyone who does good, the Jew first and also the Greek. 11For God shows no partiality.

12 All who have sinned apart from the law will also perish apart from the law, and all who have sinned under the law will be judged by the law. 13For it is not the hearers of the law who are righteous in God's sight, but the doers of the law who will be justified. 14When Gentiles, who do not possess the law, do instinctively what the law requires, these, though not having the law, are a law to themselves. 15They show that what the law requires is written on their

in Christ. 20–21: People have denied the knowledge about God available in the created world.

1.24, 26, 28: God gave them up, because in turning from God they violated their true nature, becoming involved in terrible and destructive perversions; God has let the process of death work itself out. 26–27: See 1 Cor 6.9 n. 29–31: Gal 5.19–21.

2.1–11: Jews are under judgment, as well as Gentiles (1.18–32). 5: The day of wrath, God's condemnation of sin, already manifest (1.18), will be consummated in the final judgment. 9–10: The Jew first (compare 1.16), because privileges granted to the covenant people (3.1–8) increase responsibility (1.16; Am 3.2; Lk 12.48).

2.12–29: Basis for judgment: law of Moses for the Jew; law of conscience for the Gentile. 14–15: Paul recognizes (despite 1.18–

hearts, to which their own conscience also bears witness; and their conflicting thoughts will accuse or perhaps excuse them [16]on the day when, according to my gospel, God, through Jesus Christ, will judge the secret thoughts of all.

17 But if you call yourself a Jew and rely on the law and boast of your relation to God [18]and know his will and determine what is best because you are instructed in the law, [19]and if you are sure that you are a guide to the blind, a light to those who are in darkness, [20]a corrector of the foolish, a teacher of children, having in the law the embodiment of knowledge and truth, [21]you, then, that teach others, will you not teach yourself? While you preach against stealing, do you steal? [22]You that forbid adultery, do you commit adultery? You that abhor idols, do you rob temples? [23]You that boast in the law, do you dishonor God by breaking the law? [24]For, as it is written, "The name of God is blasphemed among the Gentiles because of you."

25 Circumcision indeed is of value if you obey the law; but if you break the law, your circumcision has become uncircumcision. [26]So, if those who are uncircumcised keep the requirements of the law, will not their uncircumcision be regarded as circumcision? [27]Then those who are physically uncircumcised but keep the law will condemn you that have the written code and circumcision but break the law. [28]For a person is not a Jew who is one outwardly, nor is true circumcision something external and physical. [29]Rather, a person is a Jew who is one inwardly, and real circumcision is a matter of the heart—it is spiritual and not literal. Such a person receives praise not from others but from God.

3 Then what advantage has the Jew? Or what is the value of circumcision? [2]Much, in every way. For in the first place the Jews[h] were entrusted with the oracles of God. [3]What if some were unfaithful? Will their faithlessness nullify the faithfulness of God? [4]By no means! Although everyone is a liar, let God be proved true, as it is written,

"So that you may be justified in your words,
and prevail in your judging."[i]

[5]But if our injustice serves to confirm the justice of God, what should we say? That God is unjust to inflict wrath on us? (I speak in a human way.) [6]By no means! For then how could God judge the world? [7]But if through my falsehood God's truthfulness abounds to his glory, why am I still being condemned as a sinner? [8]And why not say (as some people slander us by saying that we say), "Let us do evil so that good may come"? Their condemnation is deserved!

9 What then? Are we any better off?[j] No, not at all; for we have already charged that all, both Jews and Greeks, are under the power of sin, [10]as it is written:

h Gk they i Gk when you are being judged
j Or at any disadvantage?

32) that there are morally sensitive and responsible Gentiles, however short they may fall of God's righteous demands.

2.17–24: Many Jews, though possessing God's written law, fall short of even ordinary morality. 23: Do you . . . the law?, may also be translated, "You dishonor God by breaking the law." 24: Isa 52.5.

2.25: Circumcision has become uncircumcision, in the sense that the Jewish violator of the law stands before God precisely where the Gentile violator stands (Jer 9.25–26). 28: Mt 3.9; Jn 8.39; Gal 6.15. 29: Circumcision . . . of the heart, Deut 10.16; Jer 4.4; 9.26; Ezek 44.9.

3.1–8: The advantage of the Jews as the covenant people cannot be denied. To them were given the oracles, i.e. the Scriptures, and particularly the promises they contain. God's faithfulness in making the promises is not invalidated by the failure of the Jews to keep their part of the covenant; nor can that failure be excused on the plea that, because of it, God's faithfulness and truthfulness will shine the more brightly when God acts for good (Paul will discuss this problem more fully in chs 9–11). 4: Ps 51.4. 5: Justice of God, same phrase as in 1.17, "righteousness of God."

3.9–20: All are guilty. Jew and Greek, despite the former's advantages, stand on the same ground, under the power of sin. 10–18: Pss

"There is no one who is righteous,
not even one;
11 there is no one who has understanding,
there is no one who seeks God.
12 All have turned aside, together they have become worthless;
there is no one who shows kindness,
there is not even one."
13 "Their throats are opened graves;
they use their tongues to deceive."
"The venom of vipers is under their lips."
14 "Their mouths are full of cursing and bitterness."
15 "Their feet are swift to shed blood;
16 ruin and misery are in their paths,
17 and the way of peace they have not known."
18 "There is no fear of God before their eyes."

19 Now we know that whatever the law says, it speaks to those who are under the law, so that every mouth may be silenced, and the whole world may be held accountable to God. 20For "no human being will be justified in his sight" by deeds prescribed by the law, for through the law comes the knowledge of sin.

21 But now, apart from law, the righteousness of God has been disclosed, and is attested by the law and the prophets, 22the righteousness of God through faith in Jesus Christ[k] for all who believe. For there is no distinction, 23since all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God; 24they are now justified by his grace as a gift, through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus, 25whom God put forward as a sacrifice of atonement[l] by his blood, effective through faith. He did this to show his righteousness, because in his divine forbearance he had passed over the sins previously committed; 26it was to prove at the present time that he himself is righteous and that he justifies the one who has faith in Jesus.[m]

27 Then what becomes of boasting? It is excluded. By what law? By that of works? No, but by the law of faith. 28For we hold that a person is justified by faith apart from works prescribed by the law. 29Or is God the God of Jews only? Is he not the God of Gentiles also? Yes, of Gentiles also, 30since God is one; and he will justify the circumcised on the 14.1–2; 53.1–2; 5.9; 140.3; 10.7; Isa 59.7–8; Ps 36.1. The law succeeds only in making people aware of their condition. That indeed was God's purpose in giving it (7.7; see Gal 3.19–29 n.).

3.21–26: The true righteousness, now revealed in Christ, rests not upon obedience to law, but on faith in God's act of redemption . . . in Christ Jesus. 21: The law and the prophets, the Hebrew Scriptures. 22: Faith in Jesus Christ; the alternate rendering faith of Jesus Christ (also at 3.26; Gal 2.16, 20; 3.22; Phil 3.9) assumes Christ's faithful obedience unto death (Rom 5.18–21; Phil 2.8) or in becoming incarnate (Phil 2.6–8), or the entire ministry of Jesus, possibly involving an interchange of faith with all who believe in God (4.24) and Christ (Gal 2.16). 24: Justified, same term as 1.17; 3.5, 21, 25, 26, "righteousness," "justice." Redemption means a ransoming or "buying back" (as of a slave or captive), and therefore emancipation or deliverance. Slaves of sin are set free through God's act in Christ (Eph 1.7; Col 1.14; Heb 9.15). 25: Sacrifice of atonement by his blood, a reference to the death of Christ as a sacrifice for sin (1 Jn 2.2; Ex 25.22; Lev 16.12–15), demonstrating the seriousness with which God regards sin (despite divine forbearance); it reveals how God's love (5.8) effects forgiveness. 26: Faith, see 3.22 n.

3.27–31: Boasting is excluded. One's works or deeds might be ground for boasting, but if salvation is by faith, pride is excluded. 27: Law, here "principle," as at 7.21–23 n. 30: Since God is one (Deut 6.4), Jews and Gentiles will be treated on the same basis, faith.

ground of faith and the uncircumcised through that same faith. 31Do we then overthrow the law by this faith? By no means! On the contrary, we uphold the law.

4 What then are we to say was gained by[n] Abraham, our ancestor according to the flesh? 2For if Abraham was justified by works, he has something to boast about, but not before God. 3For what does the scripture say? "Abraham believed God, and it was reckoned to him as righteousness." 4Now to one who works, wages are not reckoned as a gift but as something due. 5But to one who without works trusts him who justifies the ungodly, such faith is reckoned as righteousness. 6So also David speaks of the blessedness of those to whom God reckons righteousness apart from works:

7 "Blessed are those whose iniquities are forgiven,
and whose sins are covered;
8 blessed is the one against whom the Lord will not reckon sin."

9 Is this blessedness, then, pronounced only on the circumcised, or also on the uncircumcised? We say, "Faith was reckoned to Abraham as righteousness." 10How then was it reckoned to him? Was it before or after he had been circumcised? It was not after, but before he was circumcised. 11He received the sign of circumcision as a seal of the righteousness that he had by faith while he was still uncircumcised. The purpose was to make him the ancestor of all who believe without being circumcised and who thus have righteousness reckoned to them, 12and likewise the ancestor of the circumcised who are not only circumcised but who also follow the example of the faith that our ancestor Abraham had before he was circumcised.

13 For the promise that he would inherit the world did not come to Abraham or to his descendants through the law but through the righteousness of faith. 14If it is the adherents of the law who are to be the heirs, faith is null and the promise is void. 15For the law brings wrath; but where there is no law, neither is there violation.

16 For this reason it depends on faith, in order that the promise may rest on grace and be guaranteed to all his descendants, not only to the adherents of the law but also to those who share the faith of Abraham (for he is the father of all of us, 17as it is written, "I have made you the father of many nations")—in the presence of the God in whom he believed, who gives life to the dead and calls into existence the things that do not exist. 18Hoping against hope, he believed that he would become "the father of many nations," according to what was said, "So numerous shall your descendants be." 19He did not weaken in faith when he considered his own body, which was already[o] as good as dead (for he was about a hundred years old), or when he considered the barrenness of Sarah's womb. 20No distrust made him

4.1–8: Abraham justified by faith, not by works. 2: But not before God; Abraham may have had grounds for glorying, but, Paul adds, not in God's sight. 3: According to Paul's understanding of Gen 15.6, Abraham's faith in God was credited to him as righteousness. The commercial term reckoned reminds Paul of Ps 32.2 (v. 8). 6–8: God's blessing belongs not to those who perfectly obey the law (as though that were possible), but to those who in faith accept God's free gift of forgiveness (Ps 32.1–2).

4.9–12: This justification of Abraham occurred before he was circumcised (Gen 17.24), and therefore cannot have been dependent upon circumcision; it depended only upon faith (15.6). 11: Gen 17.10. 12: Follow the example, i.e. rely only on faith, as Abraham did.

4.13–25: The true descendants of Abraham are those who have faith in Christ, whether Jews or Gentiles. To them the benefits promised to Abraham belong (Gen 17.4–6; 22.17–18; Gal 3.29). 17: Gen 17.5. 18: Gen 15.5. 19: Gen 17.17; 18.11; Heb 11.11–12 (Sarah also). 22–23: See v. 3.

waver concerning the promise of God, but he grew strong in his faith as he gave glory to God, [21]being fully convinced that God was able to do what he had promised. [22]Therefore his faith[p] "was reckoned to him as righteousness." [23]Now the words, "it was reckoned to him," were written not for his sake alone, [24]but for ours also. It will be reckoned to us who believe in him who raised Jesus our Lord from the dead, [25]who was handed over to death for our trespasses and was raised for our justification.

5 Therefore, since we are justified by faith, we[q] have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ, [2]through whom we have obtained access[r] to this grace in which we stand; and we[s] boast in our hope of sharing the glory of God. [3]And not only that, but we[s] also boast in our sufferings, knowing that suffering produces endurance, [4]and endurance produces character, and character produces hope, [5]and hope does not disappoint us, because God's love has been poured into our hearts through the Holy Spirit that has been given to us.

6 For while we were still weak, at the right time Christ died for the ungodly. [7]Indeed, rarely will anyone die for a righteous person—though perhaps for a good person someone might actually dare to die. [8]But God proves his love for us in that while we still were sinners Christ died for us. [9]Much more surely then, now that we have been justified by his blood, will we be saved through him from the wrath of God.[t] [10]For if while we were enemies, we were reconciled to God through the death of his Son, much more surely, having been reconciled, will we be saved by his life. [11]But more than that, we even boast in God through our Lord Jesus Christ, through whom we have now received reconciliation.

12 Therefore, just as sin came into the world through one man, and death came through sin, and so death spread to all because all have sinned— [13]sin was indeed in the world before the law, but sin is not reckoned when there is no law. [14]Yet death exercised dominion from Adam to Moses, even over those whose sins were not like the transgression of Adam, who is a type of the one who was to come.

15 But the free gift is not like the trespass. For if the many died through the one man's trespass, much more surely have the grace of God and the free gift in the grace of the one man, Jesus Christ, abounded for the many. [16]And the free gift is not like the effect of the one man's sin. For the judgment following one trespass brought condemnation, but the free gift following many trespasses brings justification. [17]If, because of the one man's trespass, death exercised dominion through that one, much more surely will those who receive the abundance of grace and the free gift of righteousness exercise dominion in life through the one man, Jesus Christ.

18 Therefore just as one man's trespass led to condemnation for all, so one

5.1–11: Consequences of justification. 1–5: When we rely utterly upon God's grace and not at all upon ourselves, we have peace, i.e. reconciliation (5.10), with God, and other blessings. Hope of . . . the glory of God, though we had fallen short of the glorious destiny God intended for us (3.23), we now find ourselves confidently expecting it.

5.6–11: Christ in death has borne the consequences of our sin and thus has reconciled us to God. Paul never speaks of God's being reconciled to us; it is we who were estranged. 9–10: Being now . . . justified and reconciled by Christ's blood (death), we will . . . be saved in the final judgment by (through) Christ's cross and resurrection (4.24, 25), including participation in his present life as the risen Lord. 11: Now, under the gospel (3.21).

5.12–21: Adam and Christ; analogy and contrast. Sin and death for all followed upon Adam's disobedience (Gen 2.17; 3.17–19). 13–16: 1 Cor 15.21–23, 45–49.

5.18: Justification and life for all followed upon Christ's perfect obedience. 20: Law . . .

man's act of righteousness leads to justification and life for all. 19For just as by the one man's disobedience the many were made sinners, so by the one man's obedience the many will be made righteous. 20But law came in, with the result that the trespass multiplied; but where sin increased, grace abounded all the more, 21so that, just as sin exercised dominion in death, so grace might also exercise dominion through justification[u] leading to eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord.

6 What then are we to say? Should we continue in sin in order that grace may abound? 2By no means! How can we who died to sin go on living in it? 3Do you not know that all of us who have been baptized into Christ Jesus were baptized into his death? 4Therefore we have been buried with him by baptism into death, so that, just as Christ was raised from the dead by the glory of the Father, so we too might walk in newness of life.

5 For if we have been united with him in a death like his, we will certainly be united with him in a resurrection like his. 6We know that our old self was crucified with him so that the body of sin might be destroyed, and we might no longer be enslaved to sin. 7For whoever has died is freed from sin. 8But if we have died with Christ, we believe that we will also live with him. 9We know that Christ, being raised from the dead, will never die again; death no longer has dominion over him. 10The death he died, he died to sin, once for all; but the life he lives, he lives to God. 11So you also must consider yourselves dead to sin and alive to God in Christ Jesus.

12 Therefore, do not let sin exercise dominion in your mortal bodies, to make you obey their passions. 13No longer present your members to sin as instruments[v] of wickedness, but present yourselves to God as those who have been brought from death to life, and present your members to God as instruments[v] of righteousness. 14For sin will have no dominion over you, since you are not under law but under grace.

15 What then? Should we sin because we are not under law but under grace? By no means! 16Do you not know that if you present yourselves to anyone as obedient slaves, you are slaves of the one whom you obey, either of sin, which leads to death, or of obedience, which leads to righteousness? 17But thanks be to God that you, having once been slaves of sin, have become obedient from the heart to the form of teaching to which you were entrusted, 18and that you, having been set free from sin, have become slaves of righteousness. 19I am speaking in human terms because of your natural limitations.[w] For just as you once presented your members as slaves to impurity and to greater and greater iniquity, so now present your members as slaves to righteousness for sanctification.

6.1–14: Dying and rising with Christ. Paul's insistence that salvation is entirely a gracious and undeserved gift of God may seem to have laid him open to the charge of encouraging sin. This charge Paul vigorously rejects. When Christians are baptized, they are united with Christ. They share in Christ's death and in the newness of life (v. 4) which his resurrection has made possible for us. But this death is a death . . . to sin, and the new life is life . . . to God (v. 10). How can we who died to sin go on living in it? (v. 2).

6.6: The body of sin, not the physical body as such, but the sinful self. 13: Your members, all the faculties and functions of the person.

6.15–23: The two slaveries. In rejecting again the same charge (see v. 1 n.), Paul draws an analogy from slavery. Sinners are sin's slaves; but if they become God's slaves, how can they any longer obey their former master? 19: Sanctification, the result of righteousness/justification (v. 22) and ongoing process of living this out in consecration to God and holiness (see 1.7 saints; 1 Thess 4.3– 8).

were free in regard to righteousness. 21So what advantage did you then get from the things of which you now are ashamed? The end of those things is death. 22But now that you have been freed from sin and enslaved to God, the advantage you get is sanctification. The end is eternal life. 23For the wages of sin is death, but the free gift of God is eternal life in Christ Jesus our Lord.

7 Do you not know, brothers and sisters[x]—for I am speaking to those who know the law—that the law is binding on a person only during that person's lifetime? 2Thus a married woman is bound by the law to her husband as long as he lives; but if her husband dies, she is discharged from the law concerning the husband. 3Accordingly, she will be called an adulteress if she lives with another man while her husband is alive. But if her husband dies, she is free from that law, and if she marries another man, she is not an adulteress.

4 In the same way, my friends,[x] you have died to the law through the body of Christ, so that you may belong to another, to him who has been raised from the dead in order that we may bear fruit for God. 5While we were living in the flesh, our sinful passions, aroused by the law, were at work in our members to bear fruit for death. 6But now we are discharged from the law, dead to that which held us captive, so that we are slaves not under the old written code but in the new life of the Spirit.

7 What then should we say? That the law is sin? By no means! Yet, if it had not been for the law, I would not have known sin. I would not have known what it is to covet if the law had not said, "You shall not covet." 8But sin, seizing an opportunity in the commandment, produced in me all kinds of covetousness. Apart from the law sin lies dead. 9I was once alive apart from the law, but when the commandment came, sin revived 10and I died, and the very commandment that promised life proved to be death to me. 11For sin, seizing an opportunity in the commandment, deceived me and through it killed me. 12So the law is holy, and the commandment is holy and just and good.

13 Did what is good, then, bring death to me? By no means! It was sin, working death in me through what is good, in order that sin might be shown to be sin, and through the commandment might become sinful beyond measure.

14 For we know that the law is spiritual; but I am of the flesh, sold into slavery under sin.[y] 15I do not understand my own actions. For I do not do what I want, but I do the very thing I hate. 16Now if I do what I do not want, I agree

7.1–6: An analogy from marriage. Christians who have died to sin are no more bound to it than is a woman to her deceased husband. 1–2: Law generally, but specifically Num 5.20, 24; 30.10–14. 4–6: The law of Moses, as in 2.12–27; 3.19–21, 28–31; 4.13–16.

7.7–13: The law and sin. I, me: Variously referred to Paul (before or after faith), Adam, the Jewish people, the carefree childhood of a Jewish boy, or all humanity, vv. 7–13 represent a dramatic device by Paul to look with Christian eyes on the law and the human situation. 7: Though the law is holy . . . and good (v. 12), it not only makes one conscious of sin (see Gal 3.19 n.), but also incites to sin (e.g. covetousness; compare Ex 20.17; Deut 5.21). 9: A Jewish boy was not held responsible for his actions until after the age of twelve when he became "Barmitzvah" (Son of the Commandment). 10: Lev 18.5. 13: The real enemy is sin, which uses even what is good (the law) to make persons more sinful than they would otherwise be.

7.14–23: The inner conflict. Sin is personified as an evil power that enters one's life and brings the true self into slavery to its rule.

7.14: The law is spiritual, divine in origin and nature, and holy (v. 12). I am of the flesh, referring not merely to our physical nature, but to our whole self, ruled by sin and selfishness (I, me), though the inmost self (v. 22) or mind (vv. 23, 25) rejoices in God's law. 17: In emphasizing sin's power, Paul seems to deny one's responsibility for sin (compare v. 20), but other passages prevent inferring that he

that the law is good. 17But in fact it is no longer I that do it, but sin that dwells within me. 18For I know that nothing good dwells within me, that is, in my flesh. I can will what is right, but I cannot do it. 19For I do not do the good I want, but the evil I do not want is what I do. 20Now if I do what I do not want, it is no longer I that do it, but sin that dwells within me.

21 So I find it to be a law that when I want to do what is good, evil lies close at hand. 22For I delight in the law of God in my inmost self, 23but I see in my members another law at war with the law of my mind, making me captive to the law of sin that dwells in my members. 24Wretched man that I am! Who will rescue me from this body of death? 25Thanks be to God through Jesus Christ our Lord!

So then, with my mind I am a slave to the law of God, but with my flesh I am a slave to the law of sin.

8 There is therefore now no condemnation for those who are in Christ Jesus. 2For the law of the Spirit[z] of life in Christ Jesus has set you[a] free from the law of sin and of death. 3For God has done what the law, weakened by the flesh, could not do: by sending his own Son in the likeness of sinful flesh, and to deal with sin,[b] he condemned sin in the flesh, 4so that the just requirement of the law might be fulfilled in us, who walk not according to the flesh but according to the Spirit.[z] 5For those who live according to the flesh set their minds on the things of the flesh, but those who live according to the Spirit[z] set their minds on the things of the Spirit.[z] 6To set the mind on the flesh is death, but to set the mind on the Spirit[z] is life and peace. 7For this reason the mind that is set on the flesh is hostile to God; it does not submit to God's law—indeed it cannot, 8and those who are in the flesh cannot please God.

9 But you are not in the flesh; you are in the Spirit,[z] since the Spirit of God dwells in you. Anyone who does not have the Spirit of Christ does not belong to him. 10But if Christ is in you, though the body is dead because of sin, the Spirit[z] is life because of righteousness. 11If the Spirit of him who raised Jesus from the dead dwells in you, he who raised Christ[c] from the dead will give life to your mortal bodies also through[d] his Spirit that dwells in you.

12 So then, brothers and sisters,[e] we means this (e.g. Rom 1.31–2.5; 5.12, 14). 21–23: Law, here "principle" or "pattern," as at 3.27.

7.24–25: Despair and release. Threatened by utter defeat in the struggle with our enemy entrenched in our own lives, we cast ourselves upon God's mercy in Christ; only then do we find freedom from both the guilt and the power of sin. 24: This body of death, i.e. the body, which is the instrument of sin, is under the dominion of death.

8.1–4: God's saving act. 1: Condemnation means judgment, doom, and death (2 Cor 3.7, 9), but not for those in Christ, because God has sentenced sin to death (condemned sin, v. 3). 2: The life-giving Spirit is the divine principle (law) in the new order which God has created through Christ. To be in Christ is to belong to this new order and thus to have the Spirit (v. 9), who is the actual presence of God in our midst and in our hearts. 3: Sin offering (in footnote), Lev 6.25; 14.19. 4: Only through the power of the Spirit can we hope for the righteousness which the law requires but cannot enable us in our weakness to attain.

8.5–11: Life in the flesh and in the Spirit. 5: To live according to the flesh (see 7.14 n.) is to be dominated by selfish passions; to live according to (or in, v. 9) the Spirit is to belong to the new community of faith where God dwells as the Spirit.

8.9–10: Note the interchangeable use of the Spirit, the Spirit of God, and the Spirit of Christ, and the interrelation with Christ. 10: Gal 2.20; Eph 3.17. 11: Jn 5.21.

8.12–17: The Spirit and adoption. The Spirit does not make slaves of us, but children are debtors, not to the flesh, to live according to the flesh— 13for if you live according to the flesh, you will die; but if by the Spirit you put to death the deeds of the body, you will live. 14For all who are led by the Spirit of God are children of God. 15For you did not receive a spirit of slavery to fall back into fear, but you have received a spirit of adoption. When we cry, "Abba![f] Father!" 16it is that very Spirit bearing witness[g] with our spirit that we are children of God, 17and if children, then heirs, heirs of God and joint heirs with Christ—if, in fact, we suffer with him so that we may also be glorified with him.

18 I consider that the sufferings of this present time are not worth comparing with the glory about to be revealed to us. 19For the creation waits with eager longing for the revealing of the children of God; 20for the creation was subjected to futility, not of its own will but by the will of the one who subjected it, in hope 21that the creation itself will be set free from its bondage to decay and will obtain the freedom of the glory of the children of God. 22We know that the whole creation has been groaning in labor pains until now; 23and not only the creation, but we ourselves, who have the first fruits of the Spirit, groan inwardly while we wait for adoption, the redemption of our bodies. 24For in[h] hope we were saved. Now hope that is seen is not hope. For who hopes[i] for what is seen? 25But if we hope for what we do not see, we wait for it with patience.

26 Likewise the Spirit helps us in our weakness; for we do not know how to pray as we ought, but that very Spirit intercedes[j] with sighs too deep for words. 27And God,[k] who searches the heart, knows what is the mind of the Spirit, because the Spirit[l] intercedes for the saints according to the will of God.[m]

28 We know that all things work together for good[n] for those who love God, who are called according to his purpose. 29For those whom he foreknew he also predestined to be conformed to the image of his Son, in order that he might be the firstborn within a large family.[o] 30And those whom he predestined he also called; and those whom he called he also justified; and those whom he justified he also glorified.

of God. 15: Abba, the Aramaic word meaning "Father," which Jesus used in his own prayers (Mk 14.36) and which passed into the prayer life of the early church. 16–17: The fact that the Spirit prompts this ecstatic prayer proves our adoption (Gal 4.5–7).

8.18–25: The hope of fulfillment. 18: The Christian life involves sufferings (especially in Paul's mission work), but the apostle rejoices in the sure hope of glory (5.2). 20: The one who subjected creation: God (Gen 3.17). 21: When human beings (in Christ) are finally restored to their true destiny, nature will also share in this release from bondage to decay and in the freedom of glory. 22–23: Nature is thought of as sharing in the stress, anxiety, and pain which we ourselves feel as we wait for the promised redemption. The first fruits of the Spirit, the Spirit, already received, is an advanced installment of the full adoption we are yet to receive. Our bodies, as often in Paul, our "selves," expressed bodily (2 Cor 5.2–4). 24–25: 1 Cor 2.9; 2 Cor 5.7; Heb 11.1.

8.26–30: Human weakness is sustained by the Spirit's intercession and by the knowledge of God's loving purpose. 28: His purpose, or plan of salvation, is set forth in vv. 29–30. 29: To be conformed to . . . his Son is to share the resurrection life of Christ, to be a "joint heir" (compare v. 17), to be glorified (v. 30).

8.31–39: Our confidence in God. 31: Ps 118.6. 32: 4.25; 5.8; Jn 3.16. 35: To be a Christian in the first century was both difficult and dangerous (compare 2 Cor 11.23–27). 36: Ps 44.22. 38: Neither death, nor life, i.e. whether we live or die (14.8) we shall not be separated. Angels . . . rulers . . . powers, supernatural beings, whether evil or good, and of various ranks (see Eph 6.12 n.). 39: Height

31 What then are we to say about these things? If God is for us, who is against us? 32He who did not withhold his own Son, but gave him up for all of us, will he not with him also give us everything else? 33Who will bring any charge against God's elect? It is God who justifies. 34Who is to condemn? It is Christ Jesus, who died, yes, who was raised, who is at the right hand of God, who indeed intercedes for us.[p] 35Who will separate us from the love of Christ? Will hardship, or distress, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or peril, or sword? 36As it is written,

"For your sake we are being killed
all day long;
we are accounted as sheep to be slaughtered."

37No, in all these things we are more than conquerors through him who loved us. 38For I am convinced that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor rulers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor powers, 39nor height, nor depth, nor anything else in all creation, will be able to separate us from the love of God in Christ Jesus our Lord.

9 I am speaking the truth in Christ—I am not lying; my conscience confirms it by the Holy Spirit— 2I have great sorrow and unceasing anguish in my heart. 3For I could wish that I myself were accursed and cut off from Christ for the sake of my own people,[q] my kindred according to the flesh. 4They are Israelites, and to them belong the adoption, the glory, the covenants, the giving of the law, the worship, and the promises; 5to them belong the patriarchs, and from them, according to the flesh, comes the Messiah,[r] who is over all, God blessed forever.[s] Amen.

6 It is not as though the word of God had failed. For not all Israelites truly belong to Israel, 7and not all of Abraham's children are his true descendants; but "It is through Isaac that descendants shall be named for you." 8This means that it is not the children of the flesh who are the children of God, but the children of the promise are counted as descendants. 9For this is what the promise said, "About this time I will return and Sarah shall have a son." 10Nor is that all; something similar happened to Rebecca when she had conceived children by one husband, our ancestor Isaac. 11Even before they had been born or had done anything good or bad (so that God's purpose of election might continue, 12not by works but by his call) she was told, "The elder shall serve the younger." 13As it is written,

"I have loved Jacob, but I have hated Esau."

14 What then are we to say? Is there injustice on God's part? By no means! 15For he says to Moses,

"I will have mercy on whom I have mercy,
and I will have compassion on whom I have compassion."

16So it depends not on human will or exertion, but on God who shows mercy. 17For the scripture says to Pharaoh, "I have raised you up for the very purpose

p Or Is it Christ Jesus . . . for us? q Gk my brothers r Or the Christ s Or Messiah, who is God over all, blessed forever; or Messiah. May he who is God over all be blessed forever and depth, compare Ps 139.8; perhaps astrological, the highest point to which the stars rise and the abyss out of which they were thought to ascend; i.e. no such power can separate us from Christ or defeat God's purpose for us.

9.1–5: The problem of Israel's unbelief. 3: Ex 32.32. 4: Adoption, i.e. as God's children (Ex 4.22; Jer 31.9). Glory, God's presence (Ex 16.10; 24.16). Covenants, plural because several existed with humanity and with Israel (Gen 6.18; 9.9; 15.8; 17.2, 7, 9; Ex 2.24). Giving of the law, Ex 20.1–17; Deut 5.1–21. Worship, in tabernacle and temple. 5: Messiah . . . God: Whether Christ is called God here depends on the punctuation inserted (see footnote).

9.6–13: God's promise to Israel has not failed, because the promise was not made to all of Abraham's physical descendants, but to those whom God chose, i.e. Sarah, not Hagar (Gal 4.21–31); Isaac, not Ishmael; Jacob, not Esau. 7: Gen 21.12. 9: Gen 18.10. 10–12: Gen 25.21, 23. 13: Mal 1.2–3.

9.14–29: God's right to choose. 15: Ex 33.19. 17: Ex 9.16. 19–21: Isa 29.16; 45.9;

of showing my power in you, so that my name may be proclaimed in all the earth." [18]So then he has mercy on whomever he chooses, and he hardens the heart of whomever he chooses.

19 You will say to me then, "Why then does he still find fault? For who can resist his will?" [20]But who indeed are you, a human being, to argue with God? Will what is molded say to the one who molds it, "Why have you made me like this?" [21]Has the potter no right over the clay, to make out of the same lump one object for special use and another for ordinary use? [22]What if God, desiring to show his wrath and to make known his power, has endured with much patience the objects of wrath that are made for destruction; [23]and what if he has done so in order to make known the riches of his glory for the objects of mercy, which he has prepared beforehand for glory— [24]including us whom he has called, not from the Jews only but also from the Gentiles? [25]As indeed he says in Hosea,

"Those who were not my people I will call 'my people,' and her who was not beloved I will call 'beloved.' "

[26] "And in the very place where it was said to them, 'You are not my people,' there they shall be called children of the living God."

27 And Isaiah cries out concerning Israel, "Though the number of the children of Israel were like the sand of the sea, only a remnant of them will be saved; [28]for the Lord will execute his sentence on the earth quickly and decisively."[t] [29]And as Isaiah predicted,

"If the Lord of hosts had not left survivors[u] to us,
we would have fared like Sodom
and been made like Gomorrah."

30 What then are we to say? Gentiles, who did not strive for righteousness, have attained it, that is, righteousness through faith; [31]but Israel, who did strive for the righteousness that is based on the law, did not succeed in fulfilling that law. [32]Why not? Because they did not strive for it on the basis of faith, but as if it were based on works. They have stumbled over the stumbling stone, [33]as it is written,

"See, I am laying in Zion a stone that will make people stumble, a rock that will make them fall,
and whoever believes in him[v]
will not be put to shame."

10 Brothers and sisters,[w] my heart's desire and prayer to God for them is that they may be saved. [2]I can testify that they have a zeal for God, but it is not enlightened. [3]For, being ignorant of the righteousness that comes from God, and seeking to establish their own, they have not submitted to God's righteousness. [4]For Christ is the end of the law so that there may be righteousness for everyone who believes.

64.8; Jer 18.6. 19: As at 6.1, 7.7, and elsewhere, an objection, to which Paul responds.

9.24: God's choice or election is not limited to the Jews (compare 3.29). 25–26: The passage in Hosea (Hos 2.23; 1.10) refers to God's reclaiming of Israel after the nation had forsaken God and lost covenant status; Paul (as also 1 Pet 2.10) applies the promise to the Gentiles. 27–29: God's promises never included all Israelites (Isa 10.22; 1.9). Sodom and Gomorrah, Gen 19.24–25.

9.30–10.13: True righteousness is by faith. 9.30: 3.22; 10.6, 20; Gal 2.16; 3.24; Phil 3.9; Heb 11.7. 32b–33: The stone (in Isa 8.14–15, God, a rock over which Israel stumbles; in Isa 28.16, a symbol of salvation) is christologically interpreted (compare Mt 21.42). Belief or trust in it (Christ) brings salvation (10.10–11). 10.4: The end of the law, its termination (Gal 3.23–26; 4.2–6) and/or its goal (3.31; 9.30–32, strive toward).

10.5: Lev 18.5; Gal 3.12. One must actually

"the person who does these things will live by them." 6But the righteousness that comes from faith says, "Do not say in your heart, 'Who will ascend into heaven?' " (that is, to bring Christ down) 7"or 'Who will descend into the abyss?' " (that is, to bring Christ up from the dead). 8But what does it say?

"The word is near you,
on your lips and in your heart"

(that is, the word of faith that we proclaim); 9because[x] if you confess with your lips that Jesus is Lord and believe in your heart that God raised him from the dead, you will be saved. 10For one believes with the heart and so is justified, and one confesses with the mouth and so is saved. 11The scripture says, "No one who believes in him will be put to shame." 12For there is no distinction between Jew and Greek; the same Lord is Lord of all and is generous to all who call on him. 13For, "Everyone who calls on the name of the Lord shall be saved."

14 But how are they to call on one in whom they have not believed? And how are they to believe in one of whom they have never heard? And how are they to hear without someone to proclaim him? 15And how are they to proclaim him unless they are sent? As it is written, "How beautiful are the feet of those who bring good news!" 16But not all have obeyed the good news;[y] for Isaiah says, "Lord, who has believed our message?" 17So faith comes from what is heard, and what is heard comes through the word of Christ.[z]

18 But I ask, have they not heard? Indeed they have; for "Their voice has gone out to all

the earth,
and their words to the ends of the world."

19Again I ask, did Israel not understand? First Moses says,

"I will make you jealous of those who are not a nation;
with a foolish nation I will make you angry."

20Then Isaiah is so bold as to say,

"I have been found by those who did not seek me;
I have shown myself to those who did not ask for me."

21But of Israel he says, "All day long I have held out my hands to a disobedient and contrary people."

11 I ask, then, has God rejected his people? By no means! I myself am an Israelite, a descendant of Abraham, a member of the tribe of Benjamin. 2God has not rejected his people whom he foreknew. Do you not know what the scripture says of Elijah, how he pleads with God against Israel? 3"Lord, they have killed your prophets, they have demolished your altars; I alone am left, and they are seeking my life." 4But what is the divine reply to him? "I have kept for myself seven thousand who have not bowed the knee to Baal." 5So too at the present time there is a remnant, chosen by grace. 6But if it is by grace, it is no longer on the basis of works, otherwise grace would no longer be grace.[a] practice the law if one is to find life through it; this Paul has already shown to be impossible (3.9–20). But one has only to accept the free gift of the salvation in Christ (vv. 6–9; compare Deut 30.11–14). 10: Justified, same term as righteousness (9.30; 10.3–6). Both faith and confession of Jesus are essential for justification and salvation. 11: Isa 28.16. 13: Joel 2.32. The early Christians often applied to Jesus Old Testament references to the Lord, which in their original context refer to God.

10.14–21: Israel responsible for its failure. 14–18: The nation cannot claim that it has not had the opportunity of hearing the gospel. 15: Isa 52.7. 16: Isa 53.1.

10.18: Ps 19.4. 19–21: Nor can Israel claim that it has not understood the gospel; even Gentiles have been able to understand it. 19: Deut 32.21. 20–21: Isa 65.1–2.

11.1–16: Israel's rejection not final. 1–6: As in Elijah's time (1 Kings 19.10, 18), there is a remnant of the faithful. Paul as a Jew is no more alone than Elijah was.

7 What then? Israel failed to obtain what it was seeking. The elect obtained it, but the rest were hardened, 8as it is written,

"God gave them a sluggish spirit, eyes that would not see and ears that would not hear, down to this very day."

9And David says,

"Let their table become a snare
and a trap,
a stumbling block and a retribution for them;
10 let their eyes be darkened so that they cannot see,
and keep their backs forever
bent."

11 So I ask, have they stumbled so as to fall? By no means! But through their stumbling[b] salvation has come to the Gentiles, so as to make Israel[c] jealous. 12Now if their stumbling[b] means riches for the world, and if their defeat means riches for Gentiles, how much more will their full inclusion mean!

13 Now I am speaking to you Gentiles. Inasmuch then as I am an apostle to the Gentiles, I glorify my ministry 14in order to make my own people[d] jealous, and thus save some of them. 15For if their rejection is the reconciliation of the world, what will their acceptance be but life from the dead! 16If the part of the dough offered as first fruits is holy, then the whole batch is holy; and if the root is holy, then the branches also are holy.

17 But if some of the branches were broken off, and you, a wild olive shoot, were grafted in their place to share the rich root[e] of the olive tree, 18do not boast over the branches. If you do boast, remember that it is not you that support the root, but the root that supports you. 19You will say, "Branches were broken off so that I might be grafted in." 20That is true. They were broken off because of their unbelief, but you stand only through faith. So do not become proud, but stand in awe. 21For if God did not spare the natural branches, perhaps he will not spare you.[f] 22Note then the kindness and the severity of God: severity toward those who have fallen, but God's kindness toward you, provided you continue in his kindness; otherwise you also will be cut off. 23And even those of Israel,[g] if they do not persist in unbelief, will be grafted in, for God has the power to graft them in again. 24For if you have been cut from what is by nature a wild olive tree and grafted, contrary to nature, into a cultivated olive tree, how much more will these natural branches be grafted back into their own olive tree.

25 So that you may not claim to be wiser than you are, brothers and sisters,[h] I want you to understand this mystery: a hardening has come upon part of Israel,

11.7–12: The resistance to the gospel on the part of many Jews is providential; God has hardened their hearts for a loving purpose, namely, that the Gentiles might have an opportunity to hear and receive the gospel. 8: Isa 29.10. 9: Ps 69.22–23.

11.13–16: The reconciliation of Gentiles will have the effect of making Israelites jealous and thus of drawing some of them to Christ. 16: The dough (Num 15.18–21 Septuagint) likely stands for a converted remnant of Jewish Christians; the root (Jer 11.16–17), Israel's ancestors (v. 28), through whom all Israel has been consecrated.

11.17–24: The metaphor of the olive tree. The tree, including root and branches, is Israel. The branches broken off are the unbelieving Jews; the branches grafted in are Gentiles who believe in Christ. 20–22: Having been made a part of the tree only because of faith (not merit or works), Gentile believers have no reason for pride, else God who has grafted them into the tree may later cut them off. 24: The restoration of Israel will be easier for God than the call of the Gentiles.

11.25–36: All Israel will be saved. 25–26: A mystery, a truth once hidden, but now revealed by God. The full number of the Gentiles may mean the elect from among the Gentiles; and all Israel may mean all the elect (Gentiles and Jews), the elect of Israel as a people, or Israel as a whole, but not every Israelite. 26–27: Isa 59.20–21; 27.9. 28–32: Although some Jews may be temporarily ene-

until the full number of the Gentiles has come in. 26 And so all Israel will be saved;
as it is written,
"Out of Zion will come the Deliverer;
he will banish ungodliness from Jacob." 27 "And this is my covenant with them,
when I take away their sins."
28 As regards the gospel they are enemies of God[i] for your sake; but as regards election they are beloved, for the sake of their ancestors; 29 for the gifts and the calling of God are irrevocable. 30 Just as you were once disobedient to God but have now received mercy because of their disobedience, 31 so they have now been disobedient in order that, by the mercy shown to you, they too may now[j] receive mercy. 32 For God has imprisoned all in disobedience so that he may be merciful to all.

33 O the depth of the riches and wisdom and knowledge of God! How un-searchable are his judgments and how inscrutable his ways!
34 "For who has known the mind of
the Lord?
Or who has been his counselor?"
35 "Or who has given a gift to him, to receive a gift in return?"
36 For from him and through him and to him are all things. To him be the glory forever. Amen.

12 I appeal to you therefore, brothers and sisters,[k] by the mercies of God, to present your bodies as a living sacrifice, holy and acceptable to God, which is your spiritual[l] worship. 2 Do not be conformed to this world,[m] but be transformed by the renewing of your minds, so that you may discern what is the will of God—what is good and acceptable and perfect.[n]

3 For by the grace given to me I say to everyone among you not to think of yourself more highly than you ought to think, but to think with sober judgment, each according to the measure of faith that God has assigned. 4 For as in one body we have many members, and not all the members have the same function, 5 so we, who are many, are one body in Christ, and individually we are members
one of another. 6 We have gifts that differ according to the grace given to us:
prophecy, in proportion to faith; 7 ministry, in ministering; the teacher, in teaching; 8 the exhorter, in exhortation; the giver, in generosity; the leader, in diligence; the compassionate, in cheerfulness.

9 Let love be genuine; hate what is evil, hold fast to what is good; 10 love one another with mutual affection; outdo one another in showing honor. 11 Do not lag in zeal, be ardent in spirit, serve the Lord.[o] 12 Rejoice in hope, be patient in suffering, persevere in prayer. 13 Contribute to the needs of the saints; extend hospitality to strangers.

14 Bless those who persecute you;

bless and do not curse them. 15Rejoice with those who rejoice, weep with those who weep. 16Live in harmony with one another; do not be haughty, but associate with the lowly;[p] do not claim to be wiser than you are. 17Do not repay anyone evil for evil, but take thought for what is noble in the sight of all. 18If it is possible, so far as it depends on you, live peaceably with all. 19Beloved, never avenge yourselves, but leave room for the wrath of God;[q] for it is written, "Vengeance is mine, I will repay, says the Lord." 20No, "if your enemies are hungry, feed them; if they are thirsty, give them something to drink; for by doing this you will heap burning coals on their heads." 21Do not be overcome by evil, but overcome evil with good.

13 Let every person be subject to the governing authorities; for there is no authority except from God, and those authorities that exist have been instituted by God. 2Therefore whoever resists authority resists what God has appointed, and those who resist will incur judgment. 3For rulers are not a terror to good conduct, but to bad. Do you wish to have no fear of the authority? Then do what is good, and you will receive its approval; 4for it is God's servant for your good. But if you do what is wrong, you should be afraid, for the authority[r] does not bear the sword in vain! It is the servant of God to execute wrath on the wrongdoer. 5Therefore one must be subject, not only because of wrath but also because of conscience. 6For the same reason you also pay taxes, for the authorities are God's servants, busy with this very thing. 7Pay to all what is due them—taxes to whom taxes are due, revenue to whom revenue is due, respect to whom respect is due, honor to whom honor is due.

8 Owe no one anything, except to love one another; for the one who loves another has fulfilled the law. 9The commandments, "You shall not commit adultery; You shall not murder; You shall not steal; You shall not covet"; and any other commandment, are summed up in this word, "Love your neighbor as yourself." 10Love does no wrong to a neighbor; therefore, love is the fulfilling of the law.

11 Besides this, you know what time it is, how it is now the moment for you to wake from sleep. For salvation is nearer to us now than when we became believers; 12the night is far gone, the day is near. Let us then lay aside the works of darkness and put on the armor of light; 13let us live honorably as in the day, not in reveling and drunkenness, not in debauchery and licentiousness, not in quarreling and jealousy. 14Instead, put on the Lord Jesus Christ, and make no provision for the flesh, to gratify its desires.

14 Welcome those who are weak in faith,[s] but not for the purpose of quarreling over opinions. 2Some believe prerogative, not ours (Deut 32.35). We are to pursue good in the face of evil (v. 21). 20: To heap burning coals . . . makes enemies feel ashamed (Prov 25.21–22) and perhaps repentant.

13.1–7: The Christian and the state. Though the Christian has no right to punish (12.19–21), the state does have that right and the Christian must respect it. Paul's confidence that the Roman state (under Nero!) is, on the whole, just and beneficent reflects Jewish teaching (Wis 6.1–3) and is matched in 1 Pet 2.13–17; 3.13.

13.8–10: Love fulfills the law. 8a: Pay every debt; do not stand under any obligation except the obligation to love. 8b: Mk 12.31; Jas 2.8. 9: Ex 20.13–17; Deut 5.17–21 (in the order of the Septuagint).

13.11–14: The imminence of Christ's second coming makes it the more urgent that Christians live honorably. 14: To put on the Lord Jesus Christ is to enter fully into the new order of existence which God has created through Christ (see 6.1–14 n.).

14.1–23: Love respects the scruples of others. Some (Jewish) Christians had scruples about eating meat (v. 2), drinking wine (v. 21), and not observing the sabbath (vv. 5–6). Paul regards these scruples as unnecessary (v. 14; compare Mt 15.11) and designates in eating anything, while the weak eat only vegetables. 3Those who eat must not despise those who abstain, and those who abstain must not pass judgment on those who eat; for God has welcomed them. 4Who are you to pass judgment on servants of another? It is before their own lord that they stand or fall. And they will be upheld, for the Lord[t] is able to make them stand.

5 Some judge one day to be better than another, while others judge all days to be alike. Let all be fully convinced in their own minds. 6Those who observe the day, observe it in honor of the Lord. Also those who eat, eat in honor of the Lord, since they give thanks to God; while those who abstain, abstain in honor of the Lord and give thanks to God.

7 We do not live to ourselves, and we do not die to ourselves. 8If we live, we live to the Lord, and if we die, we die to the Lord; so then, whether we live or whether we die, we are the Lord's. 9For to this end Christ died and lived again, so that he might be Lord of both the dead and the living.

10 Why do you pass judgment on your brother or sister?[u] Or you, why do you despise your brother or sister?[u] For we will all stand before the judgment seat of God.[v] 11For it is written,

"As I live, says the Lord, every knee shall bow to me, and every tongue shall give praise to[w] God."

12So then, each of us will be accountable to God.[x]

13 Let us therefore no longer pass judgment on one another, but resolve instead never to put a stumbling block or hindrance in the way of another.[y] 14I know and am persuaded in the Lord Jesus that nothing is unclean in itself; but it is unclean for anyone who thinks it unclean. 15If your brother or sister[u] is being injured by what you eat, you are no longer walking in love. Do not let what you eat cause the ruin of one for whom Christ died. 16So do not let your good be spoken of as evil. 17For the kingdom of God is not food and drink but righteousness and peace and joy in the Holy Spirit. 18The one who thus serves Christ is acceptable to God and has human approval. 19Let us then pursue what makes for peace and for mutual upbuilding. 20Do not, for the sake of food, destroy the work of God. Everything is indeed clean, but it is wrong for you to make others fall by what you eat; 21it is good not to eat meat or drink wine or do anything that makes your brother or sister[u] stumble.[z] 22The faith that you have, have as your own conviction before God. Blessed are those who have no reason to condemn themselves because of what they approve. 23But those who have doubts are condemned if they eat, because they do not act from faith;[a] for whatever does not proceed from faith[a] is sin.[b]

15 We who are strong ought to put up with the failings of the weak, and not to please ourselves. 2Each of us must please our neighbor for the good purpose of building up the neighbor.

3For Christ did not please himself; but, as it is written, "The insults of those who insult you have fallen on me." 4For whatever was written in former days was written for our instruction, so that by steadfastness and by the encouragement of the scriptures we might have hope. 5May the God of steadfastness and encouragement grant you to live in harmony with one another, in accordance with Christ Jesus, 6so that together you may with one voice glorify the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.

7 Welcome one another, therefore, just as Christ has welcomed you, for the glory of God. 8For I tell you that Christ has become a servant of the circumcised on behalf of the truth of God in order that he might confirm the promises given to the patriarchs, 9and in order that the Gentiles might glorify God for his mercy. As it is written,

"Therefore I will confess[c] you among the Gentiles, and sing praises to your name";

10and again he says,

"Rejoice, O Gentiles, with his people";

11and again,

"Praise the Lord, all you Gentiles, and let all the peoples
praise him";

12and again Isaiah says,

"The root of Jesse shall come,
the one who rises to rule
the Gentiles;
in him the Gentiles shall hope."

13May the God of hope fill you with all joy and peace in believing, so that you may abound in hope by the power of the Holy Spirit.

14 I myself feel confident about you, my brothers and sisters,[d] that you yourselves are full of goodness, filled with all knowledge, and able to instruct one another. 15Nevertheless on some points I have written to you rather boldly by way of reminder, because of the grace given me by God 16to be a minister of Christ Jesus to the Gentiles in the priestly service of the gospel of God, so that the offering of the Gentiles may be acceptable, sanctified by the Holy Spirit. 17In Christ Jesus, then, I have reason to boast of my work for God. 18For I will not venture to speak of anything except what Christ has accomplished[e] through me to win obedience from the Gentiles, by word and deed, 19by the power of signs and wonders, by the power of the Spirit of God,[f] so that from Jerusalem and as far around as Illyricum I have fully proclaimed the good news[g] of Christ. 20Thus I make it my ambition to proclaim the good news,[g] not where Christ has already been named, so that I do not build on someone else's foundation, 21but as it is written,

"Those who have never been told of him shall see,
and those who have never heard of him shall understand."

22 This is the reason that I have so often been hindered from coming to you. 23But now, with no further place for me in these regions, I desire, as I have for many years, to come to you 24when I go to Spain. For I do hope to see you

The First Letter of Paul to the Corinthians

This is one of the most valuable of Paul's letters, not only for the light it throws upon the character and mind of the apostle (e.g. 2.16; ch 4) and for its vigorous presentation of the gospel (1.18–31, "Christ crucified"; 15.1–11, the "good news" of Christ's death and resurrection), but also for the vivid pictures it brings us of the actual life and problems of a particular local church at the middle of the first century.

The church at Corinth was situated near the center of the Roman province of Achaia in one of the most important cities of Greece. Paul had himself brought the Christian message to Corinth and it was through his work that the church had been established there (Acts 18.1–11). One gathers from the two letters to the Corinthians in the New Testament canon that Paul's subsequent relations with this church were disturbed from time to time by doubts and suspicions on both sides, but that, in spite of even a "painful visit" to Corinth, he rejoiced at his confidence in this richly gifted community (2 Cor 2.1; 7.16). It is clear that he is writing this letter from Ephesus (16.8; compare Acts 19.1–40), just across the Aegean Sea from Corinth. The allusion to the "collection for the saints" (16.1; compare 2 Cor 9.1–2) shows that the letter must be dated earlier than Romans, but hardly more than two or three years earlier (see Introduction to Romans).

After the usual epistolary address (1.1–9), Paul lays the groundwork in "the message of the cross" (1.17–25) for dealing with divisions and disorders in the Corinthian community (1.10–6.20). Then a series of questions, posed by the Corinthians, is discussed, concerning marriage and other aspects of status in society (ch 7); practices in a pagan environment (8–11.1); propriety and principles in communal life, especially worship, in a group with many different spiritual gifts (11.2–14); the resurrection of Christ and of Christians (ch 15); and specific plans for the Corinthians and Paul (ch 16).

The letter is thus concerned directly or indirectly with doctrinal and ethical problems that were disturbing the Corinthian church. In settling these local problems Paul has bequeathed to the Church universal some of the most exalted chapters in his correspondence, such as the hymn on Christian love (ch 13) and the teaching on Christ's cross (ch 1) and resurrection (ch 15).

1 Paul, called to be an apostle of Christ Jesus by the will of God, and our brother Sosthenes,

2 To the church of God that is in Corinth, to those who are sanctified in Christ Jesus, called to be saints, together with all those who in every place call on the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, both their Lord[a] and ours:

3 Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

4 I give thanks to my[b] God always for you because of the grace of God that has been given you in Christ Jesus, 5for in every way you have been enriched in him, in speech and knowledge of every kind— 6just as the testimony of[c] Christ has been strengthened among you— 7so that you are not lacking in any spiritual gift as you wait for the revealing of our Lord Jesus Christ. 8He will also strengthen you to the end, so that you may be blameless on the day of our Lord Jesus Christ. 9God is faithful; by him you were called into the fellowship of his Son, Jesus Christ our Lord.

10 Now I appeal to you, brothers and sisters,[d] by the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that all of you be in agreement and that there be no divisions among you, but that you be united in the same mind and the same purpose. 11For it has been reported to me by Chloe's people that there are quarrels among you, my brothers and sisters.[e] 12What I mean is that each of you says, "I belong to Paul," or "I belong to Apollos," or "I belong to Cephas," or "I belong to Christ." 13Has Christ been divided? Was Paul crucified for you? Or were you baptized in the name of Paul? 14I thank God[f] that I baptized none of you except Crispus and Gaius, 15so that no one can say that you were baptized in my name. 16(I did baptize also the household of Stephanas; beyond that, I do not know whether I baptized anyone else.) 17For Christ did not send me to baptize but to proclaim the gospel, and not with eloquent wisdom, so that the cross of Christ might not be emptied of its power.

18 For the message about the cross is foolishness to those who are perishing, but to us who are being saved it is the power of God. 19For it is written,

"I will destroy the wisdom of the wise,
and the discernment of the discerning I will thwart."

20Where is the one who is wise? Where is the scribe? Where is the debater of this age? Has not God made foolish the wisdom of the world? 21For since, in the wisdom of God, the world did not know God through wisdom, God decided, through the foolishness of our proclamation, to save those who believe. 22For Jews demand signs and Greeks desire wisdom, 23but we proclaim Christ crucified, a stumbling block to Jews and foolishness to Gentiles, 24but to those who are the called, both Jews and Greeks, Christ the power of God and the wisdom of God. 25For God's foolishness is wiser than human wisdom, and God's weakness is stronger than human strength.

26 Consider your own call, brothers and sisters:[g] not many of you were wise by human standards,[h] not many were powerful, not many were of noble birth. 27But God chose what is foolish in the world to shame the wise; God chose what is weak in the world to shame the strong; 28God chose what is low and despised in the world, things that are not, to reduce to nothing things that are, 29so that no one[i] might boast in the presence of God. 30He is the source of your life in Christ Jesus, who became for us wisdom from God, and righteousness and sanctification and redemption, 31in order that, as it is written, "Let the one who boasts, boast in[j] the Lord."

2 When I came to you, brothers and sisters,[g] I did not come proclaiming the mystery[k] of God to you in lofty words or wisdom. 2For I decided to know nothing among you except Jesus Christ, and him crucified. 3And I came to you in weakness and in fear and in much trembling. 4My speech and my proclamation were not with plausible words of wisdom,[l] but with a demonstration of the Spirit and of power, 5so that your faith might rest not on human wisdom but on the power of God.

6 Yet among the mature we do speak wisdom, though it is not a wisdom of this age or of the rulers of this age, who are doomed to perish. 7But we speak God's wisdom, secret and hidden, which God decreed before the ages for our glory. 8None of the rulers of this age understood this; for if they had, they would not have crucified the Lord of glory. 9But, as it is written,

"What no eye has seen, nor ear heard,
nor the human heart conceived, what God has prepared for those who love him"—

10these things God has revealed to us through the Spirit; for the Spirit searches everything, even the depths of God. 11For what human being knows what is truly human except the human spirit that is within? So also no one comprehends what is truly God's except the Spirit of God. 12Now we have received not the spirit of the world, but the Spirit that is from God, so that we may understand the gifts bestowed on us by God. 13And we speak of these things in words not taught by human wisdom but taught by the Spirit, interpreting spiritual things to those who are spiritual.[m]

14 Those who are unspiritual[n] do not receive the gifts of God's Spirit, for they are foolishness to them, and they are unable to understand them because they are spiritually discerned. 15Those who are spiritual discern all things, and they are themselves subject to no one else's scrutiny.

16 "For who has known the mind
of the Lord
so as to instruct him?"

But we have the mind of Christ.

3 And so, brothers and sisters,[o] I could not speak to you as spiritual people, but rather as people of the flesh, as infants in Christ. 2I fed you with milk, not solid food, for you were not ready for solid food. Even now you are still not ready, 3for you are still of the flesh. For as long as there is jealousy and quarreling among you, are you not of the flesh, and behaving according to human inclinations? 4For when one says, "I belong to Paul," and another, "I belong to Apollos," are you not merely human?

5 What then is Apollos? What is Paul? Servants through whom you came to believe, as the Lord assigned to each. 6I planted, Apollos watered, but God gave the growth. 7So neither the one who plants nor the one who waters is anything, but only God who gives the growth. 8The one who plants and the one who waters have a common purpose, and each will receive wages according to the labor of each. 9For we are God's servants, working together; you are God's field, God's building.

10 According to the grace of God given to me, like a skilled master builder I laid a foundation, and someone else is building on it. Each builder must choose with care how to build on it. 11For no one can lay any foundation other than the one that has been laid; that foundation is Jesus Christ. 12Now if anyone builds on the foundation with gold, silver, precious stones, wood, hay, straw— 13the work of each builder will become visible, for the Day will disclose it, because it will be revealed with fire, and the fire will test what sort of work each has done. 14If what has been built on the foundation survives, the builder will receive a reward. 15If the work is burned up, the builder will suffer loss; the builder will be saved, but only as through fire.

16 Do you not know that you are God's temple and that God's Spirit dwells in you?[p] 17If anyone destroys God's temple, God will destroy that person. For God's temple is holy, and you are that temple.

18 Do not deceive yourselves. If you think that you are wise in this age, you should become fools so that you may become wise. 19For the wisdom of this world is foolishness with God. For it is written,

"He catches the wise in their craftiness,"

20and again,

"The Lord knows the thoughts of
the wise,
that they are futile."

Perhaps Paul means that the spiritual are not to be judged by the unspiritual (4.3–4). 16: Those with the Spirit have the mind of Christ, and no one is in a position to instruct Christ. The Lord (Isa 40.13 Gk, referring to God) is here applied to Christ.

3.1–9: Dissension over leaders. Paul has apparently been criticized at Corinth for preaching too simple a gospel (2.1–2). He explains that, though he has wisdom to impart (2.6), he could impart it only to spiritual people, the mature (2.6); but the Corinthians are infants and do not qualify. They lack the real community to which God's servants like Apollos and Paul each contribute, as Corinthian party slogans show (1.12–13; 3.4).

3.10–23: Teachers and church under God. 10–15: Paul turns to the work of missionary preachers who edify the church; at the Judgment Day (v. 13) God will test what each has built. 16–17: Since the community (you, plural) is a temple where God is present (6.19), those who divide and destroy it will suffer condemnation.

3.18–20: Most divisive and harmful is the "wisdom" that finds its center in "this age" (2.6) and not in God's wisdom, Christ and the cross (1.18–25). Paul refutes such pretensions by quoting Job 5.13 and Ps 94.11. 21–23: You do not belong to any human leader; all of these leaders belong to you, the community as a whole, as indeed does everything else. But this is true only because you belong to Christ and thus to God.

21 So let no one boast about human leaders. For all things are yours, 22 whether Paul or Apollos or Cephas or the world or life or death or the present or the future—all belong to you, 23 and you belong to Christ, and Christ belongs to God.

4 Think of us in this way, as servants of Christ and stewards of God's mysteries. 2 Moreover, it is required of stewards that they be found trustworthy. 3 But with me it is a very small thing that I should be judged by you or by any human court. I do not even judge myself. 4 I am not aware of anything against myself, but I am not thereby acquitted. It is the Lord who judges me. 5 Therefore do not pronounce judgment before the time, before the Lord comes, who will bring to light the things now hidden in darkness and will disclose the purposes of the heart. Then each one will receive commendation from God.

6 I have applied all this to Apollos and myself for your benefit, brothers and sisters,[q] so that you may learn through us the meaning of the saying, "Nothing beyond what is written," so that none of you will be puffed up in favor of one against another. 7 For who sees anything different in you?[r] What do you have that you did not receive? And if you received it, why do you boast as if it were not a gift?

8 Already you have all you want! Already you have become rich! Quite apart from us you have become kings! Indeed, I wish that you had become kings, so that we might be kings with you! 9 For I think that God has exhibited us apostles as last of all, as though sentenced to death, because we have become a spectacle to the world, to angels and to mortals. 10 We are fools for the sake of Christ, but you are wise in Christ. We are weak, but you are strong. You are held in honor, but we in disrepute. 11 To the present hour we are hungry and thirsty, we are poorly clothed and beaten and homeless, 12 and we grow weary from the work of our own hands. When reviled, we bless; when persecuted, we endure; 13 when slandered, we speak kindly. We have become like the rubbish of the world, the dregs of all things, to this very day.

14 I am not writing this to make you ashamed, but to admonish you as my beloved children. 15 For though you might have ten thousand guardians in Christ, you do not have many fathers. Indeed, in Christ Jesus I became your father through the gospel. 16 I appeal to you, then, be imitators of me. 17 For this reason I sent[s] you Timothy, who is my beloved and faithful child in the Lord, to remind you of my ways in Christ Jesus, as I teach them everywhere in every church. 18 But some of you, thinking that I am not coming to you, have become arrogant. 19 But I will come to you soon, if the Lord wills, and I will find out not the talk of these arrogant people but their power. 20 For the kingdom of God depends not on talk but on power. 21 What would you prefer? Am I to come to you with a stick, or with love in a spirit of gentleness?

4.1–13: Applications. 1–7: The teachers themselves, as servants of Christ, are answerable only to the Lord. 4–5: Since only the Lord knows the heart, both boasting and blaming are ruled out.

5 It is actually reported that there is sexual immorality among you, and of a kind that is not found even among pagans; for a man is living with his father's wife. 2 And you are arrogant! Should you not rather have mourned, so that he who has done this would have been removed from among you?

3 For though absent in body, I am present in spirit; and as if present I have already pronounced judgment 4 in the name of the Lord Jesus on the man who has done such a thing.[t] When you are assembled, and my spirit is present with the power of our Lord Jesus, 5 you are to hand this man over to Satan for the destruction of the flesh, so that his spirit may be saved in the day of the Lord.[u]

6 Your boasting is not a good thing. Do you not know that a little yeast leavens the whole batch of dough? 7 Clean out the old yeast so that you may be a new batch, as you really are unleavened. For our paschal lamb, Christ, has been sacrificed. 8 Therefore, let us celebrate the festival, not with the old yeast, the yeast of malice and evil, but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth.

9 I wrote to you in my letter not to associate with sexually immoral persons— 10 not at all meaning the immoral of this world, or the greedy and robbers, or idolaters, since you would then need to go out of the world. 11 But now I am writing to you not to associate with anyone who bears the name of brother or sister[v] who is sexually immoral or greedy, or is an idolater, reviler, drunkard, or robber. Do not even eat with such a one. 12 For what have I to do with judging those outside? Is it not those who are inside that you are to judge? 13 God will judge those outside. "Drive out the wicked person from among you."

6 When any of you has a grievance against another, do you dare to take it to court before the unrighteous, instead of taking it before the saints? 2 Do you not know that the saints will judge the world? And if the world is to be judged by you, are you incompetent to try trivial cases? 3 Do you not know that we are to judge angels—to say nothing of ordinary matters? 4 If you have ordinary cases, then, do you appoint as judges those who have no standing in the church? 5 I say this to your shame. Can it be that there is no one among you wise enough to decide between one believer[v] and another, 6 but a believer[v] goes to court against a believer[v]—and before unbelievers at that?

Chs 5–6: Disorders in Corinth.

5.1–13: A case for church discipline. 1: Reported, possibly by Chloe's people (1.11). Both Roman and Jewish law (Deut 22.30; 27.20; Lev 18.7–8) forbade marriage between a man and his stepmother. 2: Paul is as much shocked by the complacency of the congregation in tolerating this sin as by the sin itself. 5: Membership in the church protects one from Satan's destructive power; this man does not deserve such protection. Once excluded, he will be subject to disease and death (the destruction of the flesh), but there is hope that his spirit may be saved in the final judgment (see 1 Tim 1.20 n.). 7: Yeast . . . unleavened, Ex 12.15. Paschal lamb, Ex 12.3–8, 21; Mk 14.12; Lk 22.7. 8: Our new life is ethically a continuing festival, with bread unleavened by malice and evil.

5.9: An earlier letter, which has been lost (unless possibly a fragment of it is now found in 2 Cor 6.14–7.1). 11: Immoral people are bound to be met with in public social life, but they must not be tolerated as brothers or sisters (compare Deut 17.2–7).

6.1–8: Lawsuits in pagan courts. Christians ought to settle their differences outside of Roman courts, for they will participate with Christ in the final, eschatological judgment of pagan magistrates; how absurd then that they should now abide by the judgments of outsiders! 1: Unrighteous, unbelievers (v. 6). 2: Will judge, compare Mt 19.28. 7–8: A rebuke to both sides of every lawsuit.

7 In fact, to have lawsuits at all with one another is already a defeat for you. Why not rather be wronged? Why not rather be defrauded? 8But you yourselves wrong and defraud—and believers[w] at that.

9 Do you not know that wrongdoers will not inherit the kingdom of God? Do not be deceived! Fornicators, idolaters, adulterers, male prostitutes, sodomites, 10thieves, the greedy, drunkards, revilers, robbers—none of these will inherit the kingdom of God. 11And this is what some of you used to be. But you were washed, you were sanctified, you were justified in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ and in the Spirit of our God.

12 "All things are lawful for me," but not all things are beneficial. "All things are lawful for me," but I will not be dominated by anything. 13"Food is meant for the stomach and the stomach for food,"[x] and God will destroy both one and the other. The body is meant not for fornication but for the Lord, and the Lord for the body. 14And God raised the Lord and will also raise us by his power. 15Do you not know that your bodies are members of Christ? Should I therefore take the members of Christ and make them members of a prostitute? Never! 16Do you not know that whoever is united to a prostitute becomes one body with her? For it is said, "The two shall be one flesh." 17But anyone united to the Lord becomes one spirit with him. 18Shun fornication! Every sin that a person commits is outside the body; but the fornicator sins against the body itself. 19Or do you not know that your body is a temple[y] of the Holy Spirit within you, which you have from God, and that you are not your own? 20For you were bought with a price; therefore glorify God in your body.

7 Now concerning the matters about which you wrote: "It is well for a man not to touch a woman." 2But because of cases of sexual immorality, each man should have his own wife and each woman her own husband. 3The husband should give to his wife her conjugal rights, and likewise the wife to her husband. 4For the wife does not have authority over her own body, but the husband does; likewise the husband does not have authority over his own body, but the wife does. 5Do not deprive one another except perhaps by agreement for a set time, to devote yourselves to prayer, and then come together again, so that Satan may not tempt you because of your lack of self-control. 6This I say by way of concession, not of command. 7I wish that all were as I myself am. But each has a particular gift from God, one having one kind and another a different kind.

Chs 7–14, 16: Discussion of questions from the Corinthians.

7.1–16: Directions about marriage. 1: The phrase Now concerning introduces the first of a series of questions raised in Corinth (7.25; 8.1; 12.1; 16.1, 12; see 15.1). "It . . . woman," a quotation from the Corinthians (cf. 6.12–13 n.), favoring asceticism. Paul's reasons for favoring celibacy (v. 8) are given in vv. 26, 32–34. 3–4: Equality of conjugal rights between husband and wife and the need for mutual consideration.

7.8: As I am: Paul was therefore single or unmarried as I am. 9But if they are not practicing self-control, they should marry. For it is better to marry than to be aflame with passion.

10 To the married I give this command—not I but the Lord—that the wife should not separate from her husband 11(but if she does separate, let her remain unmarried or else be reconciled to her husband), and that the husband should not divorce his wife.

12 To the rest I say—I and not the Lord—that if any believer[z] has a wife who is an unbeliever, and she consents to live with him, he should not divorce her. 13And if any woman has a husband who is an unbeliever, and he consents to live with her, she should not divorce him. 14For the unbelieving husband is made holy through his wife, and the unbelieving wife is made holy through her husband. Otherwise, your children would be unclean, but as it is, they are holy. 15But if the unbelieving partner separates, let it be so; in such a case the brother or sister is not bound. It is to peace that God has called you.[a] 16Wife, for all you know, you might save your husband. Husband, for all you know, you might save your wife.

17 However that may be, let each of you lead the life that the Lord has assigned, to which God called you. This is my rule in all the churches. 18Was anyone at the time of his call already circumcised? Let him not seek to remove the marks of circumcision. Was anyone at the time of his call uncircumcised? Let him not seek circumcision. 19Circumcision is nothing, and uncircumcision is nothing; but obeying the commandments of God is everything. 20Let each of you remain in the condition in which you were called.

21 Were you a slave when called? Do not be concerned about it. Even if you can gain your freedom, make use of your present condition now more than ever.[b] 22For whoever was called in the Lord as a slave is a freed person belonging to the Lord, just as whoever was free when called is a slave of Christ. 23You were bought with a price; do not become slaves of human masters. 24In whatever condition you were called, brothers and sisters,[c] there remain with God.

25 Now concerning virgins, I have no command of the Lord, but I give my opinion as one who by the Lord's mercy is trustworthy. 26I think that, in view of the impending[d] crisis, it is well for you to remain as you are. 27Are you bound to a wife? Do not seek to be free. Are you free from a wife? Do not seek a wife. 28But if you marry, you do not sin, and if a virgin marries, she does not sin. Yet those who marry will experience distress in this life,[e] and I would spare you that. 29I mean, brothers and sisters,[c] the appointed time has grown short; from now on, let even those who have wives be as though they had none, 30and those who mourn as though they were not mourning, and those who rejoice as though a widower. 10–11: Not I but the Lord, a possible reference to the teaching of Jesus found in Mk 10.2–9.

7.12: I and not the Lord, Paul can cite no remembered saying of Jesus as authority for what he now writes. 14: Is made holy, is brought in some sense within the sphere of salvation. They are holy, i.e. regarded as Christian children. 15: The brother or sister, the Christian partner.

7.17–40: Eschatology and changes in social and marital status.

7.17–24: Because the end of the world is fast approaching (vv. 26, 29–31), it is better for everyone to remain as is and not try to change his or her outward situation. But believers are free from bondage to "this world" and its environment.

7.25–35: Paul repeats his counsel about marriage, justifying his caution with a reference to the shortness of the time and the desirability of not being involved in the distracting obligations of family life. 25: Virgins: This group, about which the Corinthians had asked (see 7.1 n.), may refer to unmarried but engaged couples or possibly to a couple married but ascetically committed not to have sexual relations; see vv. 28, 34, 36–38.

they were not rejoicing, and those who buy as though they had no possessions, 31 and those who deal with the world as though they had no dealings with it. For the present form of this world is passing away.

32 I want you to be free from anxieties. The unmarried man is anxious about the affairs of the Lord, how to please the Lord; 33 but the married man is anxious about the affairs of the world, how to please his wife, 34 and his interests are divided. And the unmarried woman and the virgin are anxious about the affairs of the Lord, so that they may be holy in body and spirit; but the married woman is anxious about the affairs of the world, how to please her husband. 35 I say this for your own benefit, not to put any restraint upon you, but to promote good order and unhindered devotion to the Lord.

36 If anyone thinks that he is not behaving properly toward his fiancée,[f] if his passions are strong, and so it has to be, let him marry as he wishes; it is no sin. Let them marry. 37 But if someone stands firm in his resolve, being under no necessity but having his own desire under control, and has determined in his own mind to keep her as his fiancée,[f] he will do well. 38 So then, he who marries his fiancée[f] does well; and he who refrains from marriage will do better.

39 A wife is bound as long as her husband lives. But if the husband dies,[g] she is free to marry anyone she wishes, only in the Lord. 40 But in my judgment she is more blessed if she remains as she is. And I think that I too have the Spirit of God.

8 Now concerning food sacrificed to idols: we know that "all of us possess knowledge." Knowledge puffs up, but love builds up. 2 Anyone who claims to know something does not yet have the necessary knowledge; 3 but anyone who loves God is known by him.

4 Hence, as to the eating of food offered to idols, we know that "no idol in the world really exists," and that "there is no God but one." 5 Indeed, even though there may be so-called gods in heaven or on earth—as in fact there are many gods and many lords— 6 yet for us there is one God, the Father, from whom are all things and for whom we exist, and one Lord, Jesus Christ, through whom are all things and through whom we exist.

7 It is not everyone, however, who has this knowledge. Since some have become so accustomed to idols until now, they still think of the food they eat as food offered to an idol; and their conscience, being weak, is defiled. 8 "Food will not bring us close to God."[h] We are no worse off if we do not eat, and no better off if we do. 9 But take care that this liberty of yours does not somehow become a stumbling block to the weak.

h The quotation may extend to the end of the verse

7.36–38: The translation above assumes an engaged couple; see v. 9. Others, less likely, have interpreted he, his, and him as referring to a father and his daughter (note f Gk virgin), or a master and his slave, and her suitor; the father "gives her in marriage," v. 38. A third possibility is a couple pledged to virginity in a "spiritual marriage," who now wish to enter into normal conjugal relationships (vv. 3–5). Paul's preference, in any case, is consistent with vv. 7–8, 24, 26–28.

8.1–13: May a Christian eat food consecrated to an idol? Another question from Corinth (7.1 n.). Much of the meat sold in the market places had come from animals sacrificed in pagan temples. Some Christians, weak believers (v. 11), had scruples about eating such meat (Rom ch 14). Others, however, felt superior to such scruples and contemptuous toward those troubled by them. Their views are quoted in vv. 1, 4, and 8. These superior people with their "knowledge" Paul rebukes. His principles are love for others that builds up community (v. 1) and renunciation of one's rights for the sake of others (v. 13). 2–3: The true blessedness consists, not in knowing, but in being known by God, and it is in love that one is thus known.

8.6: Basic Old Testament (Deut 6.4) and early Christian confessions (Phil 2.11) are expanded (see Mal 2.10; Rom 11.36) and combined to speak of God and Christ, each with 10For if others see you, who possess knowledge, eating in the temple of an idol, might they not, since their conscience is weak, be encouraged to the point of eating food sacrificed to idols? 11So by your knowledge those weak believers for whom Christ died are destroyed.[i] 12But when you thus sin against members of your family,[j] and wound their conscience when it is weak, you sin against Christ. 13Therefore, if food is a cause of their falling,[k] I will never eat meat, so that I may not cause one of them[l] to fall.

9 Am I not free? Am I not an apostle? Have I not seen Jesus our Lord? Are you not my work in the Lord? 2If I am not an apostle to others, at least I am to you; for you are the seal of my apostleship in the Lord.

3 This is my defense to those who would examine me. 4Do we not have the right to our food and drink? 5Do we not have the right to be accompanied by a believing wife,[m] as do the other apostles and the brothers of the Lord and Cephas? 6Or is it only Barnabas and I who have no right to refrain from working for a living? 7Who at any time pays the expenses for doing military service? Who plants a vineyard and does not eat any of its fruit? Or who tends a flock and does not get any of its milk?

8 Do I say this on human authority? Does not the law also say the same? 9For it is written in the law of Moses, "You shall not muzzle an ox while it is treading out the grain." Is it for oxen that God is concerned? 10Or does he not speak entirely for our sake? It was indeed written for our sake, for whoever plows should plow in hope and whoever threshes should thresh in hope of a share in the crop. 11If we have sown spiritual good among you, is it too much if we reap your material benefits? 12If others share this rightful claim on you, do not we still more?

Nevertheless, we have not made use of this right, but we endure anything rather than put an obstacle in the way of the gospel of Christ. 13Do you not know that those who are employed in the temple service get their food from the temple, and those who serve at the altar share in what is sacrificed on the altar? 14In the same way, the Lord commanded that those who proclaim the gospel should get their living by the gospel.

15 But I have made no use of any of these rights, nor am I writing this so that they may be applied in my case. Indeed, I would rather die than that — no one will deprive me of my ground for boasting! 16If I proclaim the gospel, this gives me no ground for boasting, for an obligation is laid on me, and woe to me if I do not proclaim the gospel! 17For if I do this of my own will, I have a reward; but if not regard to creation (see 10.26). 10: Social clubs and guilds held banquets in pagan temples; since no real acknowledgment or worship of the idol was involved for Christians, many of them felt that there was no objection to attending. But Paul warns of the influence by example upon a brother or sister for whom such indulgence would be a violation of conscience and therefore destructive.

9.1–14: Paul's rights as an apostle. Paul himself practiced the principle of self-denial (v. 12b) that he has just been preaching (8.13). For the good of the church, he has refrained from asserting his rights as an apostle (vv. 15, 18; 1 Thess 2.7). 1: Free, a theme developed in 9.19–27; an apostle, developed in 9.1–8; see 15.8–9; Gal 1.1, 11–12; Acts 9.3–6, 17. 2: The Corinthian church is itself proof of the effectiveness and authenticity of Paul's apostleship. 4: That is, at the expense of the church.

9.5: Brothers of the Lord, see Mt 13.55. For Peter's wife, compare Mk 1.30. 6: See 4.12 n. 9: The ox has a right to eat the grain (Deut 25.4). 13: Lev 7.28–36, as also in pagan cult. 14: Lk 10.7; compare 1 Tim 5.18.

9.15–27: Paul is free to waive his apostolic rights. 15–18: He deserves no credit for preaching the gospel — this he cannot help — but he does take pride in doing it without compensation; and the ground of this pride he will not give up. See 2 Cor 11.7–12.

of my own will, I am entrusted with a commission. 18 What then is my reward? Just this: that in my proclamation I may make the gospel free of charge, so as not to make full use of my rights in the gospel.

19 For though I am free with respect to all, I have made myself a slave to all, so that I might win more of them. 20 To the Jews I became as a Jew, in order to win Jews. To those under the law I became as one under the law (though I myself am not under the law) so that I might win those under the law. 21 To those outside the law I became as one outside the law (though I am not free from God's law but am under Christ's law) so that I might win those outside the law. 22 To the weak I became weak, so that I might win the weak. I have become all things to all people, that I might by all means save some. 23 I do it all for the sake of the gospel, so that I may share in its blessings.

24 Do you not know that in a race the runners all compete, but only one receives the prize? Run in such a way that you may win it. 25 Athletes exercise self-control in all things; they do it to receive a perishable wreath, but we an imperishable one. 26 So I do not run aimlessly, nor do I box as though beating the air; 27 but I punish my body and enslave it, so that after proclaiming to others I myself should not be disqualified.

10 I do not want you to be unaware, brothers and sisters,[n] that our ancestors were all under the cloud, and all passed through the sea, 2 and all were baptized into Moses in the cloud and in the sea, 3 and all ate the same spiritual food, 4 and all drank the same spiritual drink. For they drank from the spiritual rock that followed them, and the rock was Christ. 5 Nevertheless, God was not pleased with most of them, and they were struck down in the wilderness.

6 Now these things occurred as examples for us, so that we might not desire evil as they did. 7 Do not become idolaters as some of them did; as it is written, "The people sat down to eat and drink, and they rose up to play." 8 We must not indulge in sexual immorality as some of them did, and twenty-three thousand fell in a single day. 9 We must not put Christ[o] to the test, as some of them did, and were destroyed by serpents. 10 And do not complain as some of them did, and were destroyed by the destroyer. 11 These things happened to them to serve as an example, and they were written down to instruct us, on whom the ends of the ages have come. 12 So if you think you are standing, watch out that you do not fall. 13 No testing has overtaken you that is not common to everyone. God is faithful, and he will not let you be tested beyond your strength, but with the testing he will also provide the way out so that you may be able to endure it.

14 Therefore, my dear friends,[p] flee from the worship of idols. 15 I speak as to

9.19–23: Paul returns to the general topic of ch 8; the Christian is free except from the obligation to love; therefore free to serve. If taken in context vv. 20–22 will not be misunderstood: here are consideration and tact, not cowardice and compromise. 24–27: Athletic metaphors on the importance of self-discipline out of consideration for others.

10.1–13: A warning against overconfidence. Baptism and partaking the Lord's supper do not guarantee salvation, any more than corresponding acts sufficed for the ancient Hebrews. 2: Cloud, sea, Ex 13.21; 14.22. 3–4: Ex 16.4–35; 17.6; Num 20.7–11. A later legend told of the rock following the people in the desert. Paul sees the rock as a symbol of Christ, perhaps as the work of the preexistent Christ. 5: Num 14.29–30. 7: Ex 32.4, 6. 8: Num 25.1–9. 9: Num 21.5–6. 10: Num 16.13–14, 41–49.

10.14–22: Application: sacrifices to idols, again. The scriptural examples cited in vv. 1–13 move Paul to warn against participation in pagan worship. To eat at a friend's table, or even at a banquet in a temple, food consecrated to an idol is one thing; taking part sensible people; judge for yourselves what I say. 16The cup of blessing that we bless, is it not a sharing in the blood of Christ? The bread that we break, is it not a sharing in the body of Christ? 17Because there is one bread, we who are many are one body, for we all partake of the one bread. 18Consider the people of Israel;[q] are not those who eat the sacrifices partners in the altar? 19What do I imply then? That food sacrificed to idols is anything, or that an idol is anything? 20No, I imply that what pagans sacrifice, they sacrifice to demons and not to God. I do not want you to be partners with demons. 21You cannot drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of demons. You cannot partake of the table of the Lord and the table of demons. 22Or are we provoking the Lord to jealousy? Are we stronger than he?

23 "All things are lawful," but not all things are beneficial. "All things are lawful," but not all things build up. 24Do not seek your own advantage, but that of the other. 25Eat whatever is sold in the meat market without raising any question on the ground of conscience, 26for "the earth and its fullness are the Lord's." 27If an unbeliever invites you to a meal and you are disposed to go, eat whatever is set before you without raising any question on the ground of conscience. 28But if someone says to you, "This has been offered in sacrifice," then do not eat it, out of consideration for the one who informed you, and for the sake of conscience— 29I mean the other's conscience, not your own. For why should my liberty be subject to the judgment of someone else's conscience? 30If I partake with thankfulness, why should I be denounced because of that for which I give thanks?

31 So, whether you eat or drink, or whatever you do, do everything for the glory of God. 32Give no offense to Jews or to Greeks or to the church of God, 33just as I try to please everyone in everything I do, not seeking my own advantage, but that of many, so that they may be saved. 11 1Be imitators of me, as I am of Christ.

2 I commend you because you remember me in everything and maintain the traditions just as I handed them on to you. 3But I want you to understand that Christ is the head of every man, and the husband[r] is the head of his wife,[s] and God is the head of Christ. 4Any man who prays or prophesies with something on his head disgraces his head, 5but any woman who prays or prophesies with her head unveiled disgraces her head—it is one and the same thing as having her in a pagan religious rite (comparable to the Lord's supper in the church, vv. 16–17) is quite another. 19–20: Idols have no real existence; but demons stand behind them (Deut 32.17) and use them to destroy those who worship them. 21: 2 Cor 6.15–16.

10.23–11.1: Principles: our freedom and responsibility for others. Chapter 8 sides with those willing to eat food that had been offered to an idol but advised restraint in this right out of conscience' sake for weaker Christians. In 10.1–22 Paul uses a sacramental argument based on the Old Testament to conclude, with the "weak" (8.7, 10; 9.22), against participation in such eating and drinking. Paul resolves the matter by affirming Christian freedom (10.25–27, 29b–30), yet with consideration for others (vv. 24, 28–29a), all to God's glory (v. 31), as Paul himself does (10.33–11.1).

head shaved. 6For if a woman will not veil herself, then she should cut off her hair; but if it is disgraceful for a woman to have her hair cut off or to be shaved, she should wear a veil. 7For a man ought not to have his head veiled, since he is the image and reflection[t] of God; but woman is the reflection[t] of man. 8Indeed, man was not made from woman, but woman from man. 9Neither was man created for the sake of woman, but woman for the sake of man. 10For this reason a woman ought to have a symbol of[u] authority on her head,[v] because of the angels. 11Nevertheless, in the Lord woman is not independent of man or man independent of woman. 12For just as woman came from man, so man comes through woman; but all things come from God. 13Judge for yourselves: is it proper for a woman to pray to God with her head unveiled? 14Does not nature itself teach you that if a man wears long hair, it is degrading to him, 15but if a woman has long hair, it is her glory? For her hair is given to her for a covering. 16But if anyone is disposed to be contentious—we have no such custom, nor do the churches of God.

17 Now in the following instructions I do not commend you, because when you come together it is not for the better but for the worse. 18For, to begin with, when you come together as a church, I hear that there are divisions among you; and to some extent I believe it. 19Indeed, there have to be factions among you, for only so will it become clear who among you are genuine. 20When you come together, it is not really to eat the Lord's supper. 21For when the time comes to eat, each of you goes ahead with your own supper, and one goes hungry and another becomes drunk. 22What! Do you not have homes to eat and drink in? Or do you show contempt for the church of God and humiliate those who have nothing? What should I say to you? Should I commend you? In this matter I do not commend you!

23 For I received from the Lord what I also handed on to you, that the Lord Jesus on the night when he was betrayed took a loaf of bread, 24and when he had given thanks, he broke it and said, "This is my body that is for[w] you. Do this in remembrance of me." 25In the same way he took the cup also, after supper, saying, "This cup is the new covenant in my blood. Do this, as often as you drink it, in remembrance of me." 26For as often as you eat this bread and drink the cup, you proclaim the Lord's death until he comes.

27 Whoever, therefore, eats the bread or drinks the cup of the Lord in an unworthy manner will be answerable for the body and blood of the Lord. 28Examine yourselves, and only then eat of the

Or the angels are cosmic, demonic powers against whom protection is needed. 11.17–34: Directions in the face of abuses at the Lord's supper. 18–19: Factions, cliques, perhaps corresponding to social classes (compare also 1.11–12). 20–21: The Lord's supper (see 10.3–5, 11–12, 16–17) took place in connection with a common meal, which came to be known as the agape, or love feast (Jude 12); see vv. 24–25, bread, supper, cup. 23: Received . . . handed on, technical terms for transmitting an oral tradition.

bread and drink of the cup. 29 For all who eat and drink[x] without discerning the body,[y] eat and drink judgment against themselves. 30 For this reason many of you are weak and ill, and some have died.[z] 31 But if we judged ourselves, we would not be judged. 32 But when we are judged by the Lord, we are disciplined[a] so that we may not be condemned along with the world.

33 So then, my brothers and sisters,[b] when you come together to eat, wait for one another. 34 If you are hungry, eat at home, so that when you come together, it will not be for your condemnation. About the other things I will give instructions when I come.

12 Now concerning spiritual gifts,[c] brothers and sisters,[b] I do not want you to be uninformed. 2 You know that when you were pagans, you were enticed and led astray to idols that could not speak. 3 Therefore I want you to understand that no one speaking by the Spirit of God ever says "Let Jesus be cursed!" and no one can say "Jesus is Lord" except by the Holy Spirit.

4 Now there are varieties of gifts, but the same Spirit; 5 and there are varieties of services, but the same Lord; 6 and there are varieties of activities, but it is the same God who activates all of them in everyone. 7 To each is given the manifestation of the Spirit for the common good. 8 To one is given through the Spirit the utterance of wisdom, and to another the utterance of knowledge according to the same Spirit, 9 to another faith by the same Spirit, to another gifts of healing by the one Spirit, 10 to another the working of miracles, to another prophecy, to another the discernment of spirits, to another various kinds of tongues, to another the interpretation of tongues. 11 All these are activated by one and the same Spirit, who allots to each one individually just as the Spirit chooses.

12 For just as the body is one and has many members, and all the members of the body, though many, are one body, so it is with Christ. 13 For in the one Spirit we were all baptized into one body—Jews or Greeks, slaves or free—and we were all made to drink of one Spirit.

14 Indeed, the body does not consist of one member but of many. 15 If the foot would say, "Because I am not a hand, I do not belong to the body," that would not make it any less a part of the body. 16 And if the ear would say, "Because I am not an eye, I do not belong to the body," that would not make it any less a part of the body. 17 If the whole body were an eye, where would the hearing be? If the whole body were hearing, where would the sense of smell be? 18But as it is, God arranged the members in the body, each one of them, as he chose. 19If all were a single member, where would the body be? 20As it is, there are many members, yet one body. 21The eye cannot say to the hand, "I have no need of you," nor again the head to the feet, "I have no need of you." 22On the contrary, the members of the body that seem to be weaker are indispensable, 23and those members of the body that we think less honorable we clothe with greater honor, and our less respectable members are treated with greater respect; 24whereas our more respectable members do not need this. But God has so arranged the body, giving the greater honor to the inferior member, 25that there may be no dissension within the body, but the members may have the same care for one another. 26If one member suffers, all suffer together with it; if one member is honored, all rejoice together with it.

27 Now you are the body of Christ and individually members of it. 28And God has appointed in the church first apostles, second prophets, third teachers; then deeds of power, then gifts of healing, forms of assistance, forms of leadership, various kinds of tongues. 29Are all apostles? Are all prophets? Are all teachers? Do all work miracles? 30Do all possess gifts of healing? Do all speak in tongues? Do all interpret? 31But strive for the greater gifts. And I will show you a still more excellent way.

13 If I speak in the tongues of mortals and of angels, but do not have love, I am a noisy gong or a clanging cymbal. 2And if I have prophetic powers, and understand all mysteries and all knowledge, and if I have all faith, so as to remove mountains, but do not have love, I am nothing. 3If I give away all my possessions, and if I hand over my body so that I may boast,[d] but do not have love, I gain nothing.

4 Love is patient; love is kind; love is not envious or boastful or arrogant 5or rude. It does not insist on its own way; it is not irritable or resentful; 6it does not rejoice in wrongdoing, but rejoices in the truth. 7It bears all things, believes all things, hopes all things, endures all things.

8 Love never ends. But as for prophecies, they will come to an end; as for tongues, they will cease; as for knowledge, it will come to an end. 9For we know only in part, and we prophesy only in part; 10but when the complete comes, the partial will come to an end. 11When I was a child, I spoke like a child, I thought like a child, I reasoned like a child; when I became an adult, I put an end to childish ways. 12For now we see in a mirror, dimly,[e] but then we will see

12.27–30: For the one church (you in Corinth and those elsewhere) God provides varied leadership. Apostles (4.9; 9.5), prophets (14.3), and teachers are preeminent. Among other functions and gifts, assistance and leadership suggest "helpful deeds" and "guidance"; only later were they linked to "deacons" and "bishops" (Phil 1.1). 31: For all spiritual gifts love provides a better way (ch 13; see 14.1).

13.1–13: Love, the greatest gift and way. This lyric chapter, powerful by itself, is even more meaningful in its context. Paul is still discussing spiritual gifts (12.1–11); the great gift of the Spirit is not tongues or even prophecy, but love. This love is not love in an ordinary or general sense, but the love for others which is known within the church (8.1), inspired ultimately by the love of God in Christ for us through the Holy Spirit (Rom 5.5). 1: Gong . . . cymbal, as in noisy accompaniments of pagan worship (12.2). 2: Faith, see 12.9 n.; Mt 17.20. 3: Boast, or glory, as at 9.15 and 2 Cor 1.14; note d suggests voluntary self-immolation, martyrdom, or branding as a slave.

13.4–7: The reverse of the proud, contemptuous, divisive spirit manifested in the behavior of some at Corinth.

13.8–13: Knowledge and ability to express it (whether in prophecies or tongues) are too faulty for one to take pride in them. 12: A mirror, a polished metal surface, not yielding face to face. Now I know only in part; then I will know fully, even as I have been fully known. 13 And now faith, hope, and love abide, these three; and the greatest of these is love.

14 Pursue love and strive for the spiritual gifts, and especially that you may prophesy. 2 For those who speak in a tongue do not speak to other people but to God; for nobody understands them, since they are speaking mysteries in the Spirit. 3 On the other hand, those who prophesy speak to other people for their upbuilding and encouragement and consolation. 4 Those who speak in a tongue build up themselves, but those who prophesy build up the church. 5 Now I would like all of you to speak in tongues, but even more to prophesy. One who prophesies is greater than one who speaks in tongues, unless someone interprets, so that the church may be built up.

6 Now, brothers and sisters,[f] if I come to you speaking in tongues, how will I benefit you unless I speak to you in some revelation or knowledge or prophecy or teaching? 7 It is the same way with lifeless instruments that produce sound, such as the flute or the harp. If they do not give distinct notes, how will anyone know what is being played? 8 And if the bugle gives an indistinct sound, who will get ready for battle? 9 So with yourselves; if in a tongue you utter speech that is not intelligible, how will anyone know what is being said? For you will be speaking into the air. 10 There are doubtless many different kinds of sounds in the world, and nothing is without sound. 11 If then I do not know the meaning of a sound, I will be a foreigner to the speaker and the speaker a foreigner to me. 12 So with yourselves; since you are eager for spiritual gifts, strive to excel in them for building up the church.

13 Therefore, one who speaks in a tongue should pray for the power to interpret. 14 For if I pray in a tongue, my spirit prays but my mind is unproductive. 15 What should I do then? I will pray with the spirit, but I will pray with the mind also; I will sing praise with the spirit, but I will sing praise with the mind also. 16 Otherwise, if you say a blessing with the spirit, how can anyone in the position of an outsider say the "Amen" to your thanksgiving, since the outsider does not know what you are saying? 17 For you may give thanks well enough, but the other person is not built up. 18 I thank God that I speak in tongues more than all of you; 19 nevertheless, in church I would rather speak five words with my mind, in order to instruct others also, than ten thousand words in a tongue.

20 Brothers and sisters,[f] do not be children in your thinking; rather, be infants in evil, but in thinking be adults. 21 In the law it is written,

"By people of strange tongues and by the lips of foreigners
I will speak to this people;
yet even then they will not listen to me,"

says the Lord. 22 Tongues, then, are a sign not for believers but for unbelievers, while prophecy is not for unbelievers but for believers. 23 If, therefore, the whole church comes together and all speak in tongues, and outsiders or unbelievers enter, will they not say that you are out of your mind? 24 But if all prophesy, an unbeliever or outsider who enters is rea clear image. 13: Love is greatest because it endures when faith becomes sight (v. 12) and hope is fulfilled, with God who is love (1 Jn 4.8–10). The triad appears elsewhere in Paul's letters (Rom 5.1–5; Gal 5.5–6; Col 1.4–5; 1 Thess 1.3; 5.8).

14.1–40: Among gifts, prophecy outranks tongues (vv. 1, 5, 39). Besides love (v. 1), Paul stresses order (vv. 33, 40) and building up the community (vv. 3, 5, 12, 17, 26) when members come together. On prophecy and speaking in tongues, see 12.10 n.

14.16: Say the "Amen," Neh 8.6; 1 Chr 16.36. 18: For other evidence that Paul himself had ecstatic experiences, see 2 Cor 12.1–4. 21: Law, the Old Testament (Isa 28.11–12). 25: The secrets . . . are disclosed, compare 4.5; Jn 4.16–19. God . . . among you, Isa 45.14; Zech proved by all and called to account by all. 25After the secrets of the unbeliever's heart are disclosed, that person will bow down before God and worship him, declaring, "God is really among you."

26 What should be done then, my friends?[g] When you come together, each one has a hymn, a lesson, a revelation, a tongue, or an interpretation. Let all things be done for building up. 27If anyone speaks in a tongue, let there be only two or at most three, and each in turn; and let one interpret. 28But if there is no one to interpret, let them be silent in church and speak to themselves and to God. 29Let two or three prophets speak, and let the others weigh what is said. 30If a revelation is made to someone else sitting nearby, let the first person be silent. 31For you can all prophesy one by one, so that all may learn and all be encouraged. 32And the spirits of prophets are subject to the prophets, 33for God is a God not of disorder but of peace.

(As in all the churches of the saints, 34women should be silent in the churches. For they are not permitted to speak, but should be subordinate, as the law also says. 35If there is anything they desire to know, let them ask their husbands at home. For it is shameful for a woman to speak in church.[h] 36Or did the word of God originate with you? Or are you the only ones it has reached?)

37 Anyone who claims to be a prophet, or to have spiritual powers, must acknowledge that what I am writing to you is a command of the Lord. 38Anyone who does not recognize this is not to be recognized. 39So, my friends,[i] be eager to prophesy, and do not forbid speaking in tongues; 40but all things should be done decently and in order.

15 Now I would remind you, brothers and sisters,[g] of the good news[j] that I proclaimed to you, which you in turn received, in which also you stand, 2through which also you are being saved, if you hold firmly to the message that I proclaimed to you—unless you have come to believe in vain.

3 For I handed on to you as of first importance what I in turn had received: that Christ died for our sins in accordance with the scriptures, 4and that he was buried, and that he was raised on the third day in accordance with the scriptures, 5and that he appeared to Cephas, then to the twelve. 6Then he appeared to more than five hundred brothers and sisters[g] at one time, most of whom are still alive, though some have died.[k] 7Then he appeared to James, then to all the apostles. 8Last of all, as to one untimely born, he appeared also to me. 9For I am the least of the apostles, unfit to be called an apostle, because I persecuted the church

14.33b–36: Since 11.5 reports that women had a role in worship at Corinth, some refer women here only to those married (see v. 35), or distinguish a house church in ch 11 from the total community in Corinth (v. 26), or take these culturally conditioned verses as an editorial insertion; see 1 Tim 2.11–12.

15.1–58: The resurrection.

15.1–11: The gospel of Christ's death and resurrection. 1: Now I would remind you, not necessarily a question from Corinth (see 7.1 n.), but Paul has heard that some "spiritual persons" there deny "resurrection" (15.12) of the body (v. 35, on grounds in Greek philosophy of an "immortal soul") or in the future (vv. 23, 49, 51–52, on the grounds that Christians are already raised, 4.8; 2 Tim 2.17b–18). As a basis for our resurrection Paul reiterates that of Christ.

15.3: Handed on . . . received, see 11.23 n. Scriptures, Isa 53.5–12. 4: Scriptures, Hos 6.2; Ps 16.10 (compare Acts 2.31). 7: James, "the Lord's brother" of Gal 1.19. 8: One untimely born, the meaning is obscure; Paul perhaps is referring to the separation in time between his own experience and those of the others. For other accounts of Paul's encounter with the risen Christ, see 9.1; Gal 1.16; Acts 9.3–6.

of God. [10]But by the grace of God I am what I am, and his grace toward me has not been in vain. On the contrary, I worked harder than any of them—though it was not I, but the grace of God that is with me. [11]Whether then it was I or they, so we proclaim and so you have come to believe.

12 Now if Christ is proclaimed as raised from the dead, how can some of you say there is no resurrection of the dead? [13]If there is no resurrection of the dead, then Christ has not been raised; [14]and if Christ has not been raised, then our proclamation has been in vain and your faith has been in vain. [15]We are even found to be misrepresenting God, because we testified of God that he raised Christ—whom he did not raise if it is true that the dead are not raised. [16]For if the dead are not raised, then Christ has not been raised. [17]If Christ has not been raised, your faith is futile and you are still in your sins. [18]Then those also who have died[l] in Christ have perished. [19]If for this life only we have hoped in Christ, we are of all people most to be pitied.

20 But in fact Christ has been raised from the dead, the first fruits of those who have died.[l] [21]For since death came through a human being, the resurrection of the dead has also come through a human being; [22]for as all die in Adam, so all will be made alive in Christ. [23]But each in his own order: Christ the first fruits, then at his coming those who belong to Christ. [24]Then comes the end,[m] when he hands over the kingdom to God the Father, after he has destroyed every ruler and every authority and power. [25]For he must reign until he has put all his enemies under his feet. [26]The last enemy to be destroyed is death. [27]For "God[n] has put all things in subjection under his feet." But when it says, "All things are put in subjection," it is plain that this does not include the one who put all things in subjection under him. [28]When all things are subjected to him, then the Son himself will also be subjected to the one who put all things in subjection under him, so that God may be all in all.

29 Otherwise, what will those people do who receive baptism on behalf of the dead? If the dead are not raised at all, why are people baptized on their behalf?

30 And why are we putting ourselves in danger every hour? [31]I die every day! That is as certain, brothers and sisters,[o] as my boasting of you—a boast that I make in Christ Jesus our Lord. [32]If with merely human hopes I fought with wild animals at Ephesus, what would I have gained by it? If the dead are not raised,

"Let us eat and drink,
for tomorrow we die."

[33]Do not be deceived:

"Bad company ruins good morals."

[34]Come to a sober and right mind, and sin no more; for some people have no knowledge of God. I say this to your shame.

35 But someone will ask, "How are the dead raised? With what kind of body

15.29: A practice otherwise unknown. Presumably Christians accepted baptism on behalf of loved ones who had died without being baptized, in order that the latter might share in the final resurrection. Without advocating this practice, Paul makes it a point in his argument. 31: I die, i.e. I risk death, every day. 32: One cannot say with assurance whether the fighting with wild animals is to be taken literally or is merely a strong metaphor (compare 4.9). In any case, Paul had bitter and dangerous enemies. The quotation is from Isa 22.13. 33: Paul quotes a Greek proverb (from the Attic poet Menander), warning the Corinthians not to associate with those who deny the resurrection.

15.35–58: The nature of the resurrection. 35–44: Greeks had no trouble in conceiving of the immortality of the soul, but the idea of the raised body was difficult. Paul's point is that there are many kinds of "bodies";

do they come?" 36 Fool! What you sow does not come to life unless it dies. 37 And as for what you sow, you do not sow the body that is to be, but a bare seed, perhaps of wheat or of some other grain. 38 But God gives it a body as he has chosen, and to each kind of seed its own body. 39 Not all flesh is alike, but there is one flesh for human beings, another for animals, another for birds, and another for fish. 40 There are both heavenly bodies and earthly bodies, but the glory of the heavenly is one thing, and that of the earthly is another. 41 There is one glory of the sun, and another glory of the moon, and another glory of the stars; indeed, star differs from star in glory.

42 So it is with the resurrection of the dead. What is sown is perishable, what is raised is imperishable. 43 It is sown in dishonor, it is raised in glory. It is sown in weakness, it is raised in power. 44 It is sown a physical body, it is raised a spiritual body. If there is a physical body, there is also a spiritual body. 45 Thus it is written, "The first man, Adam, became a living being"; the last Adam became a life-giving spirit. 46 But it is not the spiritual that is first, but the physical, and then the spiritual. 47 The first man was from the earth, a man of dust; the second man is[p] from heaven. 48 As was the man of dust, so are those who are of the dust; and as is the man of heaven, so are those who are of heaven. 49 Just as we have borne the image of the man of dust, we will[q] also bear the image of the man of heaven.

50 What I am saying, brothers and sisters,[r] is this: flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God, nor does the perishable inherit the imperishable. 51 Listen, I will tell you a mystery! We will not all die,[s] but we will all be changed, 52 in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trumpet. For the trumpet will sound, and the dead will be raised imperishable, and we will be changed. 53 For this perishable body must put on imperishability, and this mortal body must put on immortality. 54 When this perishable body puts on imperishability, and this mortal body puts on immortality, then the saying that is written will be fulfilled:

"Death has been swallowed up in victory."

55 "Where, O death, is your victory?
Where, O death, is your sting?"

56 The sting of death is sin, and the power of sin is the law. 57 But thanks be to God, who gives us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ.

58 Therefore, my beloved,[t] be steadfast, immovable, always excelling in the work of the Lord, because you know that in the Lord your labor is not in vain.

16 Now concerning the collection for the saints: you should follow the directions I gave to the churches of Galatia. 2 On the first day of every week, each of you is to put aside and save whatever extra you earn, so that collections need not be taken when I come. 3 And when I arrive, I will send any whom you approve with letters to take your gift to Jerusalem. 4 If it seems advisable that I should go also, they will accompany me.

5 I will visit you after passing through Macedonia—for I intend to pass through Macedonia— 6 and perhaps I will stay with you or even spend the winter, so that you may send me on my way, wherever I go. 7 I do not want to see you now just in passing, for I hope to spend some

So give recognition to such persons.

The Second Letter of Paul to the Corinthians

Relations between Paul and the Corinthian church had deteriorated during the period after 1 Corinthians was written. The visit announced at 1 Cor 16.5–7 did not come off as planned, and the Corinthians felt that Paul had vacillated in his plans (2 Cor 1.15–23). Much of 2 Corinthians therefore deals with a crisis in confidence between apostle and community (1.12–7.16; 1.1–11 provides the usual Pauline introduction to a letter). Having made a "painful visit" to the church there (2.1), the apostle delayed from making another visit (12.14; 13.1) because he had reason to believe that it too would be painful. Instead, he had written a severe letter (possibly lost) "out of much distress and anguish of heart and with many tears" (2.4) and sent it to Corinth, presumably by Titus, one of his fellow-workers. So anxious was he about the effects of this letter that he found it impossible to wait for Titus' return. He left Ephesus, hoping to meet Titus in Troas. Disappointed there, he went on to Macedonia (2.12–13), where Titus rejoined him, bringing a most reassuring report on the attitude of the Corinthian church toward him (7.13–16). In relief and gratitude, Paul wrote the letter before us, or at least much of it on this occasion.

Chapters 8 and 9 go on to speak at length about the collection for the church at Jerusalem (8.1–9.15), which was now almost complete.

Chapters 10 to 13 constitute a vigorous defense of Paul and his work and are written in a tone so different from that of chapters 1 to 9 that many scholars believe they are a fragment of a letter written to Corinth at some other time. Possibly chs 10–13 are the "severe letter" mentioned above.

Because so much of 2 Corinthians is a response to the words and feelings of others (often opponents), which are not recorded in the letter, it is sometimes difficult to follow the apostle's argument. Its pages preserve much, however, that illuminates Paul's own life, ministry, and the concern that he felt for the churches he had established (4.5; 5.20; 6.1–10; 11.22–33; 12.2–10).

Paul's thanksgiving after affliction

1 Paul, an apostle of Christ Jesus by the will of God, and Timothy our brother,

To the church of God that is in Corinth, including all the saints throughout Achaia:

2 Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

3 Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of mercies and the God of all consolation, 4who consoles us in all our affliction, so that we may be able to console those who are in any affliction with the consolation with which we ourselves are consoled by God. 5For just as the sufferings of Christ are abundant for us, so also our consolation is abundant through Christ. 6If we are being afflicted, it is for your consolation and salvation; if we are being consoled, it is for your consolation, which you experience when you patiently endure the same sufferings that we are also suffering. 7Our hope for you is unshaken; for we know that as you share in our sufferings, so also you share in our consolation.

8 We do not want you to be unaware, brothers and sisters,[a] of the affliction we experienced in Asia; for we were so utterly, unbearably crushed that we despaired of life itself. 9Indeed, we felt that we had received the sentence of death so that we would rely not on ourselves but on God who raises the dead. 10He who rescued us from so deadly a peril will continue to rescue us; on him we have set our hope that he will rescue us again, 11as you also join in helping us by your prayers, so that many will give thanks on our[b] behalf for the blessing granted us through the prayers of many.

12 Indeed, this is our boast, the testimony of our conscience: we have behaved in the world with frankness[c] and godly sincerity, not by earthly wisdom but by the grace of God—and all the more toward you. 13For we write you nothing other than what you can read and also understand; I hope you will understand until the end— 14as you have already understood us in part—that on the day of the Lord Jesus we are your boast even as you are our boast.

15 Since I was sure of this, I wanted to come to you first, so that you might have a double favor;[d] 16I wanted to visit you on my way to Macedonia, and to come back to you from Macedonia and have you send me on to Judea. 17Was I vacillating when I wanted to do this? Do I make my plans according to ordinary human standards,[e] ready to say "Yes, yes" and "No, no" at the same time? 18As surely as God is faithful, our word to you has not been "Yes and No." 19For the Son of God, Jesus Christ, whom we proclaimed among you, Silvanus and Timothy and I, was not "Yes and No"; but in him it is always "Yes." 20For in him every one of God's promises is a "Yes." For this reason it is through him that we say the "Amen," to the glory of God. 21But

1.1–11: Salutation and thanksgiving, see Rom 1.1–7 n. and 1.8–15 n. The thanksgiving (vv. 3–11) reflects the relief which Paul felt as a result of the news that Titus brought him (see Introduction). 1: Timothy, see Introduction to 2 Timothy. Achaia, the Roman province in which Corinth was located. 2: Grace . . . peace, see Rom 1.7 n.; 2 Thess 1.2 n.

1.8–10: It is not known what this terrible trial was; some identify it with the experience mentioned in 1 Cor 15.32; see also 2 Cor 4.11; 11.23. 8: Asia, a Roman province in western Asia Minor.

1.12–7.16: Paul's apostolic ministry and the crisis with Corinth.

1.12–2.13: Recent relations with the church. See Introduction. 12–14: Appeal for a full and fair hearing, even if, while writing in the first person (we, I), Paul "boasts." Our boast, a key theme in 2 Cor, along with "confidence" (3.4; 8.22; 10.2 boldness; see 1.15 sure). Compare Rom 1.29–31.

1.15: See 1 Cor 16.5–7. 16: Paul wanted to go to both Macedonia and Corinth in order (among other reasons) to receive their contributions to the collection, which he would then take to Judea. 17–20: His critics accused it is God who establishes us with you in Christ and has anointed us, 22by putting his seal on us and giving us his Spirit in our hearts as a first installment.

23 But I call on God as witness against me: it was to spare you that I did not come again to Corinth. 24I do not mean to imply that we lord it over your faith; rather, we are workers with you for your joy, because you stand firm in the faith.

2 1So I made up my mind not to make you another painful visit. 2For if I cause you pain, who is there to make me glad but the one whom I have pained? 3And I wrote as I did, so that when I came, I might not suffer pain from those who should have made me rejoice; for I am confident about all of you, that my joy would be the joy of all of you. 4For I wrote you out of much distress and anguish of heart and with many tears, not to cause you pain, but to let you know the abundant love that I have for you.

5 But if anyone has caused pain, he has caused it not to me, but to some extent—not to exaggerate it—to all of you. 6This punishment by the majority is enough for such a person; 7so now instead you should forgive and console him, so that he may not be overwhelmed by excessive sorrow. 8So I urge you to reaffirm your love for him. 9I wrote for this reason: to test you and to know whether you are obedient in everything. 10Anyone whom you forgive, I also forgive. What I have forgiven, if I have forgiven anything, has been for your sake in the presence of Christ. 11And we do this so that we may not be outwitted by Satan; for we are not ignorant of his designs.

12 When I came to Troas to proclaim the good news of Christ, a door was opened for me in the Lord; 13but my mind could not rest because I did not find my brother Titus there. So I said farewell to them and went on to Macedonia.

14 But thanks be to God, who in Christ always leads us in triumphal procession, and through us spreads in every place the fragrance that comes from knowing him. 15For we are the aroma of Christ to God among those who are being saved and among those who are perishing; 16to the one a fragrance from death to death, to the other a fragrance from life to life. Who is sufficient for these things? 17For we are not peddlers of God's word like so many;[f] but in Christ we speak as persons of sincerity, as persons sent from God and standing in his presence.

3 Are we beginning to commend ourselves again? Surely we do not need, as some do, letters of recommendation to you or from you, do we? 2You yourselves are our letter, written on our[g] hearts, to be known and read by all; 3and him of being vacillating. 22: The Spirit, already given, is an advance installment of what is in store for Christians (5.5; Eph 1.13); God will finish what has been begun (Rom 8.16–17, 23; Eph 1.14; Phil 1.6).

2.1: Another painful visit, assuming between the plans announced in 1 Cor 16.5–7 and the writing of 2 Cor or any part of it a visit where Paul was wronged by someone in Corinth and not supported by the community there (see 2.5–11; 7.8–12), a visit not recorded in Acts but hinted at in 2 Cor 12.14; 13.1. 3–4: Many identify the tearful but severe letter referred to with chs 10–13 (see Introduction); but 2.5 suggests that an individual caused the pain, whereas chs 10–13 deal with problems caused by false apostles (11.5, 13). Some therefore have identified what Paul wrote . . . out of much distress with 1 Cor, especially ch 5. Or the severe letter may simply be lost.

2.12–13: A door was opened, there was a good opportunity for preaching Christ. Titus, like Timothy, was one of Paul's helpers (see Introduction to Titus).

2.14–3.6: Our ministry, as persons sent from God (2.17; 3.5). 14: A reference to the triumphal processions of conquerors returning to their capitals. The fragrance is the odor of incense in connection with such processions or with sacrifice (Col 2.15). It is knowledge of God in Christ (see 4.6). 16: The decisiveness of one's acceptance or rejection of the gospel. 17: Peddlers, a reference presumably to the "false apostles" of 11.4, 13.

3.1: Apparently Paul had been accused of commending himself. 3: The church at Cor-

you show that you are a letter of Christ, prepared by us, written not with ink but with the Spirit of the living God, not on tablets of stone but on tablets of human hearts.

4 Such is the confidence that we have through Christ toward God. 5Not that we are competent of ourselves to claim anything as coming from us; our competence is from God, 6who has made us competent to be ministers of a new covenant, not of letter but of spirit; for the letter kills, but the Spirit gives life.

7 Now if the ministry of death, chiseled in letters on stone tablets,[h] came in glory so that the people of Israel could not gaze at Moses' face because of the glory of his face, a glory now set aside, 8how much more will the ministry of the Spirit come in glory? 9For if there was glory in the ministry of condemnation, much more does the ministry of justification abound in glory! 10Indeed, what once had glory has lost its glory because of the greater glory; 11for if what was set aside came through glory, much more has the permanent come in glory!

12 Since, then, we have such a hope, we act with great boldness, 13not like Moses, who put a veil over his face to keep the people of Israel from gazing at the end of the glory that[i] was being set aside. 14But their minds were hardened. Indeed, to this very day, when they hear the reading of the old covenant, that same veil is still there, since only in Christ is it set aside. 15Indeed, to this very day whenever Moses is read, a veil lies over their minds; 16but when one turns to the Lord, the veil is removed. 17Now the Lord is the Spirit, and where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is freedom. 18And all of us, with unveiled faces, seeing the glory of the Lord as though reflected in a mirror, are being transformed into the same image from one degree of glory to another; for this comes from the Lord, the Spirit.

4 Therefore, since it is by God's mercy that we are engaged in this ministry, we do not lose heart. 2We have renounced the shameful things that one hides; we refuse to practice cunning or to falsify God's word; but by the open statement of the truth we commend ourselves to the conscience of everyone in the sight of God. 3And even if our gospel is veiled, it is veiled to those who are perishing. 4In their case the god of this world has blinded the minds of the unbelievers, to keep them from seeing the light of the gospel of the glory of Christ, who is the image of God. 5For we do not proclaim ourselves; we proclaim Jesus Christ as Lord and ourselves as your slaves for Jesus' sake. 6For it is the God

inth (Paul's letter of recommendation) was the work of God; Paul was only the instrument (v. 5). Tablets of stone, like the letter (v. 6), suggest the covenant with Moses (Ex 24.12); Christ has instituted a new covenant. 6: Kills, produces not life but despair and death. For Paul's view of the purpose and effect of the law, see Gal 3.19–29 n. and Rom 7.7–13 n.

3.7–18: The ministry of the new covenant (see 1 Cor 11.25 n.). The contrast announced in v. 6 is developed on the basis of Ex 34.29–35. 7: Ministry of death, existence under the Mosaic law. 13: Paul interprets Moses' veil as his effort to hide from the people how temporary the old covenant was to be. 14: The old covenant, the books of the law.

3.15–17: In Christ one sees the transiency of the old and knows the freedom and glory of the new. Paul here seems to identify the Spirit, known within the church, with the risen Lord Jesus, but since v. 16 is a quotation of Ex 34.34, the reference may be to Moses and God. 17: Lord, God (v. 3); others see a reference to Christ (Rom 8.9–10). 18: All of us who are being saved (2.15), not just Paul and colleagues. Unveiled faces, in contrast to v. 15. Seeing . . . reflected in a mirror: combines two suggested senses of a single Greek phrase, "beholding" and "reflecting." Transformed, Rom 12.2; see Rom 8.17, 29. Image, of God, that is, Christ, 4.4. Lord, see v. 17.

4.1–18: True treasure, mortal ministers. 1: Such a ministry (3.6), from God, brings confidence; see 1.12–14 n. 2: Probably an oblique reference to the methods of the "false apostles" (see 2.17 n.). 3–4: Paul has apparently been accused of not making the gospel clear. 3: Veiled, 3.15, 18; 2.15. 4: God of this world, Satan or Beliar (6.15). 6: Gen 1.3, applied to our new creation (5.17).

who said, "Let light shine out of darkness," who has shone in our hearts to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ.

7 But we have this treasure in clay jars, so that it may be made clear that this extraordinary power belongs to God and does not come from us. 8We are afflicted in every way, but not crushed; perplexed, but not driven to despair; 9persecuted, but not forsaken; struck down, but not destroyed; 10always carrying in the body the death of Jesus, so that the life of Jesus may also be made visible in our bodies. 11For while we live, we are always being given up to death for Jesus' sake, so that the life of Jesus may be made visible in our mortal flesh. 12So death is at work in us, but life in you.

13 But just as we have the same spirit of faith that is in accordance with scripture—"I believed, and so I spoke"—we also believe, and so we speak, 14because we know that the one who raised the Lord Jesus will raise us also with Jesus, and will bring us with you into his presence. 15Yes, everything is for your sake, so that grace, as it extends to more and more people, may increase thanksgiving, to the glory of God.

16 So we do not lose heart. Even though our outer nature is wasting away, our inner nature is being renewed day by day. 17For this slight momentary affliction is preparing us for an eternal weight of glory beyond all measure, 18because we look not at what can be seen but at what cannot be seen; for what can be seen is temporary, but what cannot be seen is eternal.

5 For we know that if the earthly tent we live in is destroyed, we have a building from God, a house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens. 2For in this tent we groan, longing to be clothed with our heavenly dwelling— 3if indeed, when we have taken it off[j] we will not be found naked. 4For while we are still in this tent, we groan under our burden, because we wish not to be unclothed but to be further clothed, so that what is mortal may be swallowed up by life. 5He who has prepared us for this very thing is God, who has given us the Spirit as a guarantee.

6 So we are always confident; even though we know that while we are at home in the body we are away from the Lord— 7for we walk by faith, not by sight. 8Yes, we do have confidence, and we would rather be away from the body and at home with the Lord. 9So whether we are at home or away, we make it our aim to please him. 10For all of us must appear before the judgment seat of Christ, so that each may receive recompense for what has been done in the body, whether good or evil.

11 Therefore, knowing the fear of the Lord, we try to persuade others; but we ourselves are well known to God, and I hope that we are also well known to your consciences. 12We are not commending ourselves to you again, but giving you an

4.7: Clay jars, a reference to the weakness of the body (Gen 2.7) and indeed to all human limitations. 10–11: In his sufferings and perils Paul shares in Jesus' death; but it is given to him also to share in the life of the risen, victorious Christ. 12: The apostle "dies" (i.e. suffers) that the Corinthians and others may know the life in Christ (v. 15).

4.13: A reference to the faith of the psalmist in the midst of troubles (Ps 116.10); belief leads to confession of faith. 15: As the gospel of God's grace (6.1) advances, more and more people respond in faith with thankfulness. 16: See 3.18. 17: Paul considers all of his sufferings as a slight momentary affliction.

5.1–10: Confidence in facing death. Continuing to think of his sufferings and constant peril, Paul uses the figures of a tent and a building from God in speaking of death and resurrection. This building is the "spiritual body" of 1 Cor 15.44–50. 3: Naked, Paul hopes that the Lord will come and that he will receive his new body before he has had to put off the old one. 4: 1 Cor 15.51–54. Burden, of afflictions (1.6; 4.8, 17). 5: See 1.22 n.

5.6–8: Believers are never away from the Lord in the absolute sense; but as long as they are in the body, they are to a degree separated from him (1 Cor 13.12).

5.11–6.13: Further defense of his minis-

opportunity to boast about us, so that you may be able to answer those who boast in outward appearance and not in the heart. 13For if we are beside ourselves, it is for God; if we are in our right mind, it is for you. 14For the love of Christ urges us on, because we are convinced that one has died for all; therefore all have died. 15And he died for all, so that those who live might live no longer for themselves, but for him who died and was raised for them.

16 From now on, therefore, we regard no one from a human point of view;[k] even though we once knew Christ from a human point of view,[k] we know him no longer in that way. 17So if anyone is in Christ, there is a new creation: everything old has passed away; see, everything has become new! 18All this is from God, who reconciled us to himself through Christ, and has given us the ministry of reconciliation; 19that is, in Christ God was reconciling the world to himself,[l] not counting their trespasses against them, and entrusting the message of reconciliation to us. 20So we are ambassadors for Christ, since God is making his appeal through us; we entreat you on behalf of Christ, be reconciled to God. 21For our sake he made him to be sin who knew no sin, so that in him we might become the righteousness of God.

6 As we work together with him,[m] we urge you also not to accept the grace of God in vain. 2For he says,

"At an acceptable time I have listened to you,
and on a day of salvation I have helped you."

See, now is the acceptable time; see, now is the day of salvation! 3We are putting no obstacle in anyone's way, so that no fault may be found with our ministry, 4but as servants of God we have commended ourselves in every way: through great endurance, in afflictions, hardships, calamities, 5beatings, imprisonments, riots, labors, sleepless nights, hunger; 6by purity, knowledge, patience, kindness, holiness of spirit, genuine love, 7truthful speech, and the power of God; with the weapons of righteousness for the right hand and for the left; 8in honor and dishonor, in ill repute and good repute. We are treated as impostors, and yet are true; 9as unknown, and yet are well known; as dying, and see—we are alive; as punished, and yet not killed; 10as sorrowful, yet always rejoicing; as poor, yet making many rich; as having nothing, and yet possessing everything.

11 We have spoken frankly to you Corinthians; our heart is wide open to you. 12There is no restriction in our affections, but only in yours. 13In return—I speak as to children—open wide your hearts also.

try of reconciliation. 5.13: Beside ourselves, in contrast to in our right mind, refers to a charge by opponents against Paul, perhaps of religious ecstasy (12.1–7). 14: The love of Christ, Christ's love for us, as seen in his cross. All have died, to "die" in this sense is to live no longer for oneself but for Christ (v. 15).

5.16–17: Once Paul from a human point of view, by worldly standards, thought of Christ as rightly put to death; now he knows the crucified Christ as risen Lord, head of a new creation into which the believer as a new creature is incorporated. 18: Reconciled, Rom 5.10; Col 1.20; Heb 1.3. 20: Be reconciled, accept God's forgiveness in Christ. 21: Paul does not say "made him a sinner"; the sinless Christ bore the burden of our sin that we might be acquitted (Gal 3.13). Sin may mean sin offering (see Rom 8.3 n.; Isa 53.10). Righteousness of God, Rom 1.17 n. As at Rom 5.10–11, reference to reconciliation intertwines with justification.

6.1–2: Quoting Isa 49.8 Paul urges his readers to respond faithfully to God's grace in Christ. Now, at this moment, before the Lord returns. 4–5: 11.23–29. 6–7: See Gal 5.22–23. 10: Rich, with spiritual gifts.

6.11: I have been frank with you, Corinthians, for you are in my heart. 12: Any restraint upon our relations has been owing to you, not to me; see 1.12–14.

14 Do not be mismatched with unbelievers. For what partnership is there between righteousness and lawlessness? Or what fellowship is there between light and darkness? 15 What agreement does Christ have with Beliar? Or what does a believer share with an unbeliever? 16 What agreement has the temple of God with idols? For we[n] are the temple of the living God; as God said,

"I will live in them and walk
among them,
and I will be their God,
and they shall be my people.
17 Therefore come out from them,
and be separate from them, says
the Lord,
and touch nothing unclean;
then I will welcome you, 18 and I will be your father, and you shall be my sons and daughters,
says the Lord Almighty."

7 Since we have these promises, beloved, let us cleanse ourselves from every defilement of body and of spirit, making holiness perfect in the fear of God.

2 Make room in your hearts[o] for us; we have wronged no one, we have corrupted no one, we have taken advantage of no one. 3 I do not say this to condemn you, for I said before that you are in our hearts, to die together and to live together. 4 I often boast about you; I have great pride in you; I am filled with consolation; I am overjoyed in all our affliction.

5 For even when we came into Macedonia, our bodies had no rest, but we were afflicted in every way—disputes without and fears within. 6 But God, who consoles the downcast, consoled us by the arrival of Titus, 7 and not only by his coming, but also by the consolation with which he was consoled about you, as he told us of your longing, your mourning, your zeal for me, so that I rejoiced still more. 8 For even if I made you sorry with my letter, I do not regret it (though I did regret it, for I see that I grieved you with that letter, though only briefly). 9 Now I rejoice, not because you were grieved, but because your grief led to repentance; for you felt a godly grief, so that you were not harmed in any way by us. 10 For godly grief produces a repentance that leads to salvation and brings no regret, but worldly grief produces death. 11 For see what earnestness this godly grief has produced in you, what eagerness to clear yourselves, what indignation, what alarm, what longing, what zeal, what punishment! At every point you have proved yourselves guiltless in the matter. 12 So although I wrote to you, it was not on account of the one who did the wrong, nor on account of the one who was wronged, but in order that your zeal for us might be made known to you before God. 13 In this we find comfort.

In addition to our own consolation,

6.14–7.1: A parenthesis on relations with unbelievers. This passage represents an abrupt change of subject and an interruption, since 7.2 seems to follow directly upon 6.13. It has been suggested that a fragment of some other letter to Corinth (possibly that mentioned in 1 Cor 5.9–11) was inserted here when the letters of Paul were first collected and published. But the verses do continue the urgent appeal of 6.1 with an exhortation to holiness (7.1). 6.15: Beliar, an evil spirit in the intertestamental literature; under, or identified with, Satan. 16: 1 Cor 3.16–17 n. 16–18: A number of Old Testament passages are rather loosely quoted to urge separateness from the pagan world: Lev 26.12; Ezek 37.27; Isa 52.11; 2 Sam 7.14. 7.1: Making holiness perfect, completely dedicated to God.

7.2–16: Paul's joy at the restoration of good relations. 2–4: After the "parenthesis" of 6.14–7.1 this statement follows naturally upon 6.13. 4: Boast, see 1.12–14 n.

7.5–16: See Introduction and 2.13. 5: Bodies, a way of referring to his suffering and anxiety; see 2.13 mind. 6–7: Consolation, 1.3–11. 8: 2.3–4 n. 11: Punishment, a penalty of some kind imposed by the community on an unnamed opponent of the apostle (2.5–9). 12: The one who was wronged, probably Paul himself.

we rejoiced still more at the joy of Titus, because his mind has been set at rest by all of you. 14For if I have been somewhat boastful about you to him, I was not disgraced; but just as everything we said to you was true, so our boasting to Titus has proved true as well. 15And his heart goes out all the more to you, as he remembers the obedience of all of you, and how you welcomed him with fear and trembling. 16I rejoice, because I have complete confidence in you.

8 We want you to know, brothers and sisters,[p] about the grace of God that has been granted to the churches of Macedonia; 2for during a severe ordeal of affliction, their abundant joy and their extreme poverty have overflowed in a wealth of generosity on their part. 3For, as I can testify, they voluntarily gave according to their means, and even beyond their means, 4begging us earnestly for the privilege[q] of sharing in this ministry to the saints— 5and this, not merely as we expected; they gave themselves first to the Lord and, by the will of God, to us, 6so that we might urge Titus that, as he had already made a beginning, so he should also complete this generous undertaking[r] among you. 7Now as you excel in everything—in faith, in speech, in knowledge, in utmost eagerness, and in our love for you[s]—so we want you to excel also in this generous undertaking.[r]

8 I do not say this as a command, but I am testing the genuineness of your love against the earnestness of others. 9For you know the generous act[t] of our Lord Jesus Christ, that though he was rich, yet for your sakes he became poor, so that by his poverty you might become rich. 10And in this matter I am giving my advice: it is appropriate for you who began last year not only to do something but even to desire to do something— 11now finish doing it, so that your eagerness may be matched by completing it according to your means. 12For if the eagerness is there, the gift is acceptable according to what one has—not according to what one does not have. 13I do not mean that there should be relief for others and pressure on you, but it is a question of a fair balance between 14your present abundance and their need, so that their abundance may be for your need, in order that there may be a fair balance. 15As it is written,

> "The one who had much did not > have too much,
> and the one who had little did > not have too little."

16 But thanks be to God who put in the heart of Titus the same eagerness for you that I myself have. 17For he not only accepted our appeal, but since he is more eager than ever, he is going to you of his own accord. 18With him we are sending the brother who is famous among all the churches for his proclaiming the good news;[u] 19and not only that, but he has

8.1–9.15: The collection for the relief of the Jerusalem church (Gal 2.1–10; 1 Cor 16.1–4; Rom 15.25–27). These chapters have sometimes been taken as a separate stewardship appeal or even as two administrative letters, ch 8 to Corinth, ch 9 to Achaia (9.2; 1.1 n.).

8.1: Churches of Macedonia, in a province to the north where Philippi and Thessalonica were located (Acts 16.9–10, 12, 17). are cited as examples of generosity; see 9.2, however.

8.6: Titus, see 1.12–13 n.; 8.16–17. 9: Though he was rich, a reference to Christ's pre-existence. 10: The raising of funds at Corinth had perhaps been interrupted by the rift between Paul and the church, a rift now healed. 13–14: A fair balance or equality is stressed. 14: Your abundance suggests that the Corinthian church was in better economic condition than some of Paul's other churches (compare the Macedonians' extreme poverty, 8.1–2). 15: Ex 16.18.

8.16–9.5: Administrative arrangements for the collection. 18: The brother, like our brother in v. 22, is unidentified. One gathers from v. 23 that two men had been appointed by the churches to assist Paul in the collection and, no doubt at Paul's insistence, to "audit" the accounts (vv. 20–21).

also been appointed by the churches to travel with us while we are administering this generous undertaking[v] for the glory of the Lord himself[w] and to show our goodwill. 20We intend that no one should blame us about this generous gift that we are administering, 21for we intend to do what is right not only in the Lord's sight but also in the sight of others. 22And with them we are sending our brother whom we have often tested and found eager in many matters, but who is now more eager than ever because of his great confidence in you. 23As for Titus, he is my partner and co-worker in your service; as for our brothers, they are messengers[x] of the churches, the glory of Christ. 24Therefore openly before the churches, show them the proof of your love and of our reason for boasting about you.

9 Now it is not necessary for me to write you about the ministry to the saints, 2for I know your eagerness, which is the subject of my boasting about you to the people of Macedonia, saying that Achaia has been ready since last year; and your zeal has stirred up most of them. 3But I am sending the brothers in order that our boasting about you may not prove to have been empty in this case, so that you may be ready, as I said you would be; 4otherwise, if some Macedonians come with me and find that you are not ready, we would be humiliated—to say nothing of you—in this undertaking.[y] 5So I thought it necessary to urge the brothers to go on ahead to you, and arrange in advance for this bountiful gift that you have promised, so that it may be ready as a voluntary gift and not as an extortion.

6 The point is this: the one who sows sparingly will also reap sparingly, and the one who sows bountifully will also reap bountifully. 7Each of you must give as you have made up your mind, not reluctantly or under compulsion, for God loves a cheerful giver. 8And God is able to provide you with every blessing in abundance, so that by always having enough of everything, you may share abundantly in every good work. 9As it is written,

"He scatters abroad, he gives to the poor;
his righteousness[z] endures forever."

10He who supplies seed to the sower and bread for food will supply and multiply your seed for sowing and increase the harvest of your righteousness.[z] 11You will be enriched in every way for your great generosity, which will produce thanksgiving to God through us; 12for the rendering of this ministry not only supplies the needs of the saints but also overflows with many thanksgivings to God. 13Through the testing of this ministry you glorify God by your obedience to the confession of the gospel of Christ and by the generosity of your sharing with them and with all others, 14while they long for you and pray for you because of the surpassing grace of God that he has given you. 15Thanks be to God for his indescribable gift!

10 I myself, Paul, appeal to you by the meekness and gentleness of Christ—I who am humble when face to face with you, but bold toward you

Chs 10–13: Vindicating Paul's authority. On the problem which the abrupt change of tone in these chapters presents, see Introduction. Some identify 10.1–13.10 with the "painful" letter referred to in 2.3–9; 7.8–12. This identification is uncertain, but one can see grounds for holding that these chapters when I am away!— 2I ask that when I am present I need not show boldness by daring to oppose those who think we are acting according to human standards. 3Indeed, we live as human beings,[b] but we do not wage war according to human standards;[a] 4for the weapons of our warfare are not merely human,[c] but they have divine power to destroy strongholds. We destroy arguments 5and every proud obstacle raised up against the knowledge of God, and we take every thought captive to obey Christ. 6We are ready to punish every disobedience when your obedience is complete.

7 Look at what is before your eyes. If you are confident that you belong to Christ, remind yourself of this, that just as you belong to Christ, so also do we. 8Now, even if I boast a little too much of our authority, which the Lord gave for building you up and not for tearing you down, I will not be ashamed of it. 9I do not want to seem as though I am trying to frighten you with my letters. 10For they say, "His letters are weighty and strong, but his bodily presence is weak, and his speech contemptible." 11Let such people understand that what we say by letter when absent, we will also do when present.

12 We do not dare to classify or compare ourselves with some of those who commend themselves. But when they measure themselves by one another, and compare themselves with one another, they do not show good sense. 13We, however, will not boast beyond limits, but will keep within the field that God has assigned to us, to reach out even as far as you. 14For we were not overstepping our limits when we reached you; we were the first to come all the way to you with the good news[d] of Christ. 15We do not boast beyond limits, that is, in the labors of others; but our hope is that, as your faith increases, our sphere of action among you may be greatly enlarged, 16so that we may proclaim the good news[d] in lands beyond you, without boasting of work already done in someone else's sphere of action. 17"Let the one who boasts, boast in the Lord." 18For it is not those who commend themselves that are approved, but those whom the Lord commends.

11 I wish you would bear with me in a little foolishness. Do bear with me! 2I feel a divine jealousy for you, for I promised you in marriage to one husband, to present you as a chaste virgin to Christ. 3But I am afraid that as the serpent deceived Eve by its cunning, your thoughts will be led astray from a sincere and pure[e] devotion to Christ. 4For if someone comes and proclaims another were not originally a part of the same letter as chs 1–9.

10.1–18: An appeal for true apostleship, Paul's, in contrast to the "super-apostles" (11.5, 12–15; 12.11–12). 1: I who am humble, Paul is ironically quoting his opponents, as he often does in these last four chapters. On the paradox of meekness and gentleness with boldness in Paul and Christ, compare that of weakness and power in Christ and the true apostle (13.3–4). 6: The "disobedient" (11.4) ones will be punished when the church as a whole returns to its loyalty and obedience to Paul, as he is sure it will eventually do.

10.7–12: The critics are probably members of the Corinthian church as well as "false apostles" from outside. They have apparently accused him of weakness and empty boasting (1.12–14 n.). 10: 2.3. 13–14: Paul is not doing more than God commissioned him to do when he exercises his authority as an apostle in the church at Corinth. 15–16: A hint perhaps that his opponents were exploiting the labors of others, intruding where others had built; for Paul's missionary policy, compare Rom 15.20. On Paul's hopes of working west of Achaia, see Acts 19.21; Rom 1.11–15; 15.23–28. 17: See 1 Cor 1.31 n.

11.1–15: Paul's reply to opponents. Because those who are "super-apostles" (11.5; 12.1) in their own estimation have intruded and preach a different gospel and another Jesus and threaten to lead astray the Corinthians, Paul adopts their method of boasting (11.13) to meet this menace, but in the Lord and not beyond limits (10.13, 15, 17). 2: Hos 2.19–20;

Jesus than the one we proclaimed, or if you receive a different spirit from the one you received, or a different gospel from the one you accepted, you submit to it readily enough. 5I think that I am not in the least inferior to these super-apostles. 6I may be untrained in speech, but not in knowledge; certainly in every way and in all things we have made this evident to you.

7 Did I commit a sin by humbling myself so that you might be exalted, because I proclaimed God's good news[f] to you free of charge? 8I robbed other churches by accepting support from them in order to serve you. 9And when I was with you and was in need, I did not burden anyone, for my needs were supplied by the friends[g] who came from Macedonia. So I refrained and will continue to refrain from burdening you in any way. 10As the truth of Christ is in me, this boast of mine will not be silenced in the regions of Achaia. 11And why? Because I do not love you? God knows I do!

12 And what I do I will also continue to do, in order to deny an opportunity to those who want an opportunity to be recognized as our equals in what they boast about. 13For such boasters are false apostles, deceitful workers, disguising themselves as apostles of Christ. 14And no wonder! Even Satan disguises himself as an angel of light. 15So it is not strange if his ministers also disguise themselves as ministers of righteousness. Their end will match their deeds.

16 I repeat, let no one think that I am a fool; but if you do, then accept me as a fool, so that I too may boast a little. 17What I am saying in regard to this boastful confidence, I am saying not with the Lord's authority, but as a fool; 18since many boast according to human standards,[h] I will also boast. 19For you gladly put up with fools, being wise yourselves! 20For you put up with it when someone makes slaves of you, or preys upon you, or takes advantage of you, or puts on airs, or gives you a slap in the face. 21To my shame, I must say, we were too weak for that!

But whatever anyone dares to boast of—I am speaking as a fool—I also dare to boast of that. 22Are they Hebrews? So am I. Are they Israelites? So am I. Are they descendants of Abraham? So am I. 23Are they ministers of Christ? I am talking like a madman—I am a better one: with far greater labors, far more imprisonments, with countless floggings, and often near death. 24Five times I have re-

Eph 5.26–27. 3: Gen 3.4. 5–6: That Paul as a speaker was being compared to others to his disadvantage appears also in 10.10 and, less clearly, in 1 Cor 2.1–5.

11.7–11: Even Paul's honorable and generous determination (so as not to be a financial burden) to work with his own hands (1 Cor 4.12; 1 Thess 2.9) had been perversely twisted into a charge against him, probably that manual labor degrades one. On the matter of Paul's support, see Acts 18.1–4; 2 Thess 3.7–9; 1 Cor 9.3–7; and especially Phil 4.10–20. Why he accepted aid of this kind only from the Philippian church in Macedonia we are not told. 8: I robbed, a natural exaggeration (compare v. 9). Those disguising themselves as apostles of Christ (v. 13) are in reality ministers of Satan; they have not manifested the same disinterestedness as Paul and are seeking to force him through their criticisms to surrender a practice which embarrasses them. 10: Achaia, see 1.1 n. 13–15: Paul's judgment of the false apostles.

11.16–33: Paul's boasting. Paul indulges in the "little foolishness" spoken of in v. 1. He knows it is foolish to boast, and perhaps even wrong (12.1), but accepts the challenge (v. 18) of some at Corinth who have forced him to assert his claims (12.11). Some verses are written in irony (19, 20–21).

11.22: Apparently even Paul's Judaism (Rom 9.1–3; 11.1; Gal 1.13–14; Phil 3.4–6; compare Acts 22.3; 26.4–6) was called into question by the self-assertions of the "super-apostles." 23–27: Very little is known about these hardships; the book of Acts refers to only a few of them. See also 2 Cor 4.8–9; 6.4–5; and 1 Cor 4.9–13 on the lifestyle of true apostles. 24: Forty lashes, a Jewish punishment; only thirty-nine were administered lest by a miscount the number exceed the maximum prescribed in Deut 25.3.

ceived from the Jews the forty lashes minus one. 25 Three times I was beaten with rods. Once I received a stoning. Three times I was shipwrecked; for a night and a day I was adrift at sea; 26 on frequent journeys, in danger from rivers, danger from bandits, danger from my own people, danger from Gentiles, danger in the city, danger in the wilderness, danger at sea, danger from false brothers and sisters;[i] 27 in toil and hardship, through many a sleepless night, hungry and thirsty, often without food, cold and naked. 28 And, besides other things, I am under daily pressure because of my anxiety for all the churches. 29 Who is weak, and I am not weak? Who is made to stumble, and I am not indignant?

30 If I must boast, I will boast of the things that show my weakness. 31 The God and Father of the Lord Jesus (blessed be he forever!) knows that I do not lie. 32 In Damascus, the governor[j] under King Aretas guarded the city of Damascus in order to[k] seize me, 33 but I was let down in a basket through a window in the wall,[l] and escaped from his hands.

12 It is necessary to boast; nothing is to be gained by it, but I will go on to visions and revelations of the Lord. 2 I know a person in Christ who fourteen years ago was caught up to the third heaven—whether in the body or out of the body I do not know; God knows. 3 And I know that such a person—whether in the body or out of the body I do not know; God knows— 4 was caught up into Paradise and heard things that are not to be told, that no mortal is permitted to repeat. 5 On behalf of such a one I will boast, but on my own behalf I will not boast, except of my weaknesses. 6 But if I wish to boast, I will not be a fool, for I will be speaking the truth. But I refrain from it, so that no one may think better of me than what is seen in me or heard from me, 7 even considering the exceptional character of the revelations. Therefore, to keep[m] me from being too elated, a thorn was given me in the flesh, a messenger of Satan to torment me, to keep me from being too elated.[n] 8 Three times I appealed to the Lord about this, that it would leave me, 9 but he said to me, "My grace is sufficient for you, for power[o] is made perfect in weakness." So, I will boast all the more gladly of my weaknesses, so that the power of Christ may dwell in me. 10 Therefore I am content with weaknesses, insults, hardships, persecutions, and calamities for the sake of Christ; for whenever I am weak, then I am strong.

11 I have been a fool! You forced me to it. Indeed you should have been the ones commending me, for I am not at all inferior to these super-apostles, even though I am nothing. 12 The signs of a true apostle were performed among you with utmost patience, signs and wonders

11.25: Beaten with rods, a Roman punishment (Acts 16.22–23). Stoning, Acts 14.19. 32–33: This item would seem logically to belong after v. 27; perhaps it is an afterthought (see also Acts 9.23–25). Aretas IV was king of Nabataea, southeast of Palestine. Apparently Damascus was under his jurisdiction at the time of Paul's escape.

12.1–13: Further boastings: strength in weakness, a theme begun at 11.30. Though Paul speaks of revelations (vv. 1, 7), he refers specifically to only one of them. 2: I know a person, an oblique reference to himself (see v. 7). The third heaven, the highest ecstasy. Nothing is otherwise known of this experience unless it is that referred to in Gal 1.16 and 1 Cor 15.8; but this is not probable. 4: Things that are not to be told, because they are too sacred.

12.5: Paul deserves no credit for these revelations; therefore he will not speak of them as though they were his own. 7–9: Some have thought that the thorn . . . in the flesh was illness or a physical disability; others have suggested that it was a specific opponent or the opposition of his fellow Jews. No firm decision is possible. 12: A reference to apostolic miracles (Rom 15.19; Gal 3.5). 13: See 11.7–11 n. Forgive me this wrong, for the irony compare 11.21a.

and mighty works. 13How have you been worse off than the other churches, except that I myself did not burden you? Forgive me this wrong!

14 Here I am, ready to come to you this third time. And I will not be a burden, because I do not want what is yours but you; for children ought not to lay up for their parents, but parents for their children. 15I will most gladly spend and be spent for you. If I love you more, am I to be loved less? 16Let it be assumed that I did not burden you. Nevertheless (you say) since I was crafty, I took you in by deceit. 17Did I take advantage of you through any of those whom I sent to you? 18I urged Titus to go, and sent the brother with him. Titus did not take advantage of you, did he? Did we not conduct ourselves with the same spirit? Did we not take the same steps?

19 Have you been thinking all along that we have been defending ourselves before you? We are speaking in Christ before God. Everything we do, beloved, is for the sake of building you up. 20For I fear that when I come, I may find you not as I wish, and that you may find me not as you wish; I fear that there may perhaps be quarreling, jealousy, anger, selfishness, slander, gossip, conceit, and disorder. 21I fear that when I come again, my God may humble me before you, and that I may have to mourn over many who previously sinned and have not repented of the impurity, sexual immorality, and licentiousness that they have practiced.

13 This is the third time I am coming to you. "Any charge must be sustained by the evidence of two or three witnesses." 2I warned those who sinned previously and all the others, and I warn them now while absent, as I did when present on my second visit, that if I come again, I will not be lenient— 3since you desire proof that Christ is speaking in me. He is not weak in dealing with you, but is powerful in you. 4For he was crucified in weakness, but lives by the power of God. For we are weak in him,[p] but in dealing with you we will live with him by the power of God.

5 Examine yourselves to see whether you are living in the faith. Test yourselves. Do you not realize that Jesus Christ is in you?—unless, indeed, you fail to meet the test! 6I hope you will find out that we have not failed. 7But we pray to God that you may not do anything wrong—not that we may appear to have met the test, but that you may do what is right, though we may seem to have failed. 8For we cannot do anything against the truth, but only for the truth. 9For we rejoice when we are weak and you are strong. This is what we pray for, that you may become perfect. 10So I write these things while I am away from you, so that when I come, I may not have to be severe in using the authority that the Lord has given me for building up and not for tearing down.

12.14–13.10: Paul plans to visit Corinth again. This third visit cannot be identified with assurance. Some suppose it to be the visit referred to in retrospect in 2.1; others, that it is the visit in prospect when chs 1–9 were written.

12.14–18: Once again (see 11.7–11) Paul discusses financial support. 17–18: Is this the sending of Titus and the brother mentioned in 8.16–19? If so, chs 10–13 cannot have been written earlier than chs 1–9, unless ch 8 be regarded as a separate note about the collection written earlier still. See Introduction and 8.1–9.15 n.; 10–13 n.

12.19–13.10: A call for self-examination (13.5) and amendment before Paul comes. For his readers' sake, as well as for his own, the apostle wants the coming visit to be happy and mutually rewarding. If chs 10–13 are the "painful" letter referred to in 2.3–4, we know from chs 1–9 that Paul's hopes were fulfilled.

13.1: Witnesses, Deut 19.15. 2–4: Paul will vigorously assert his apostolic authority in dealing with wrongdoing at Corinth, but it will be Christ's authority. 5–9: Paul hopes that he will not need to exert his authority, but that the church will discipline itself. 10: See 12.19.

13.11–14: Conclusion. 12: The liturgical kiss, see Rom 16.16 n. 13: The fullest of Paul's benedictions at the end of his letters (for the Trinitarian form, compare 1 Cor 12.4–6). The order is significant; the grace of Christ expresses and leads one toward the love of God, and the love of God when actualized through the Spirit, produces communion with God and with one another.

The Letter of Paul to the Galatians

Often called the Magna Charta of Christian liberty, the Letter to the Galatians deals with the question whether Gentiles must become Jews before they can become Christians. Certain Judaizing teachers had infiltrated the churches of Galatia in central Asia Minor, which Paul had previously founded (Acts 16.6), declaring that in addition to having faith in Jesus Christ a Christian was obligated to keep the Mosaic law. Paul insists, on the contrary, that a person becomes right with God only by faith in Christ and not by the performance of good works, ritual observances, and the like (2.16; 3.24–25; 5.1; 6.12–15).

So serious was the crisis in Galatia that Paul dispenses with his customary expression of thanksgiving and commendation, and plunges directly into a vigorous defense of his apostolic authority and the validity of his teaching (1.1–2.21). His gospel must be asserted against certain people . . . from James in Jerusalem (2.12) and even against Cephas (Peter, see 2.14). The central part of the letter is an exposition of the doctrine of justification by faith alone (3.1–4.31). Lest some should imagine that this doctrine leads to a life of indifference to the moral code, Paul concludes with certain practical applications of his teaching (5.1–6.18). Some think these ethical admonitions were necessitated not by the Judaizing teachers but a second group of opponents, more gnosticizing in nature, who abused Christian freedom.

The importance of this brief letter is hard to overestimate. Written perhaps about A.D. 55 or slightly earlier during Paul's third missionary journey, it gives many autobiographical details of the apostle's earlier life and evangelistic activity. Here are set forth, with impassioned eloquence, the true function of the Mosaic law and its relation to God's grace manifested in Christ. The declaration of the principles reiterated in these six chapters made Christianity a world religion instead of a Jewish sect.

1 Paul an apostle—sent neither by human commission nor from human authorities, but through Jesus Christ and God the Father, who raised him from the dead— 2and all the members of God's family[a] who are with me,

To the churches of Galatia:

3 Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ. 4who gave himself for our sins to set us free from the present evil age, according to the will of our God and Father, 5to whom be the glory forever and ever. Amen.

6 I am astonished that you are so quickly deserting the one who called you in the grace of Christ and are turning to a different gospel— 7not that there is another gospel, but there are some who are confusing you and want to pervert the gospel of Christ. 8But even if we or an angel[b] from heaven should proclaim to you a gospel contrary to what we proclaimed to you, let that one be accursed! 9As we have said before, so now I repeat, if anyone proclaims to you a gospel contrary to what you received, let that one be accursed!

10 Am I now seeking human approval, or God's approval? Or am I trying to please people? If I were still pleasing people, I would not be a servant[c] of Christ.

11 For I want you to know, brothers and sisters,[d] that the gospel that was proclaimed by me is not of human origin; 12for I did not receive it from a human source, nor was I taught it, but I received it through a revelation of Jesus Christ.

13 You have heard, no doubt, of my earlier life in Judaism. I was violently persecuting the church of God and was trying to destroy it. 14I advanced in Judaism beyond many among my people of the same age, for I was far more zealous for the traditions of my ancestors. 15But when God, who had set me apart before I was born and called me through his grace, was pleased 16to reveal his Son to me,[e] so that I might proclaim him among the Gentiles, I did not confer with

1.1–5: The Salutation (see Rom 1.1–7 n.) emphasizes both Paul's divinely given authority as an apostle and in his gospel the atoning death of Jesus Christ, who gave himself for our sins (Mk 10.45; 1 Tim 2.6). 2: Galatia, probably the area in north central Asia Minor around Ancyra (modern Ankara, Turkey), not the Roman province southward; see Acts 16.6; 18.23. 3: Grace and peace, see Rom 1.7 n. and 2 Thess 1.2 n. 4: The present evil age (see 2 Cor 4.4) is in contrast to the coming age to be inaugurated at the return of Christ. Our deliverance through Christ's self-giving rests upon the will of God.

1.6–10: The Galatian apostasy from the true gospel. Instead of the customary thanksgiving (Rom 1.8–15 n.) Paul launches into the issue: deserting . . . Christ for what is not the "good news." 6: The one who called you, God, through Christ (see 1.15). 8–9: A solemn anathema; Rom 9.3; 1 Cor 12.3, "(ac)cursed." 10: Paul denies an opponent's charge that he conciliates people to win converts; see 1 Thess 2.4.

1.11–2.21: Defense of Paul's gospel and apostolic authority. In a first-person-singular narrative (I, me) Paul sets forth his call from God to proclaim Christ among the Gentiles (1.15–16) and his experiences as an apostle (1.1, 17; 2.8). Then (2.15–21) in propositional and personal terms he outlines his gospel of justification by faith.

1.11–24: Paul's vindication of his apostleship. 11: Despite his severity, Paul addresses the Galatians as brothers and sisters. A message merely of human origin would be no gospel of Christ (v. 7) or revelation (v. 12). 12: Through a revelation, at the time of Paul's conversion (Acts 9.3–6).

1.13: I was . . . persecuting, compare Acts 8.3; 9.21; 22.4. The church is the people of God, called into fellowship with the Lord through the redemptive work of Jesus Christ. The word may refer to the total number of believers throughout the world, to those in a particular region (1.2), or to those in one locality, whether gathered for worship and instruction, engaged in mission, or scattered by persecution. 14: Phil 3.4–6; Acts 22.3. 15–17: Paul's conversion and commission as an apostle were due to the sovereign plan of God, not to human teachers (1.1). 16: To me, but also through Paul (note e) as a missionary. 17: Arabia, that is, the Nabataean kingdom, of which the capital was Petra. Damascus, Acts 9.19–25; 2 Cor 11.32–33.

any human being, [17]nor did I go up to Jerusalem to those who were already apostles before me, but I went away at once into Arabia, and afterwards I returned to Damascus.

18 Then after three years I did go up to Jerusalem to visit Cephas and stayed with him fifteen days; [19]but I did not see any other apostle except James the Lord's brother. [20]In what I am writing to you, before God, I do not lie! [21]Then I went into the regions of Syria and Cilicia, [22]and I was still unknown by sight to the churches of Judea that are in Christ; [23]they only heard it said, "The one who formerly was persecuting us is now proclaiming the faith he once tried to destroy." [24]And they glorified God because of me.

2 Then after fourteen years I went up again to Jerusalem with Barnabas, taking Titus along with me. [2]I went up in response to a revelation. Then I laid before them (though only in a private meeting with the acknowledged leaders) the gospel that I proclaim among the Gentiles, in order to make sure that I was not running, or had not run, in vain. [3]But even Titus, who was with me, was not compelled to be circumcised, though he was a Greek. [4]But because of false believers[f] secretly brought in, who slipped in to spy on the freedom we have in Christ Jesus, so that they might enslave us— [5]we did not submit to them even for a moment, so that the truth of the gospel might always remain with you. [6]And from those who were supposed to be acknowledged leaders (what they actually were makes no difference to me; God shows no partiality)—those leaders contributed nothing to me. [7]On the contrary, when they saw that I had been entrusted with the gospel for the uncircumcised, just as Peter had been entrusted with the gospel for the circumcised [8](for he who worked through Peter making him an apostle to the circumcised also worked through me in sending me to the Gentiles), [9]and when James and Cephas and John, who were acknowledged pillars, recognized the grace that had been given to me, they gave to Barnabas and me the right hand of fellowship, agreeing that we should go to the Gentiles and they to the circumcised. [10]They asked only one thing, that we remember the poor, which was actually what I was[g] eager to do.

11 But when Cephas came to Antioch, I opposed him to his face, because he stood self-condemned; [12]for until certain people came from James, he used to eat with the Gentiles. But after they came, he drew back and kept himself separate for fear of the circumcision fac-

2.1–10: Paul's apostleship recognized in Jerusalem. This visit is probably the one mentioned in Acts 15.2. 1: Barnabas, see Acts 11.22 n., 25; 13.1–3; 15.2; 1 Cor 9.6. Titus, one of Paul's most trusted helpers (2 Cor 7.6; 8.6, 16–17). 2–3: Although the Judaizers had apparently demanded that Titus, a Greek, should be circumcised, the apostles at Jerusalem, by not enforcing that demand, approved of Paul's work among the Gentiles (v. 9; see Acts 16.1–5 n.). On Titus, see Introduction to Titus. 4: False believers (literally "brothers," note f). The New Testament never combines "false" with the root "believe" or "have faith"; though the word "brothers [and sisters]" regularly in Acts denotes Christians, Paul uses "false brothers" only here and at 2 Cor 11.26, of opponents (cf. 11.3). On their identity here, see Acts 15.1, 5. 10: The poor, Jerusalem Christians or a group within the Palestinian church, Rom 15.26; on the collection for them, see Acts 11.29–30; 24.17; 1 Cor 16.1–3; 2 Cor 8.1–15.

tion. 13And the other Jews joined him in this hypocrisy, so that even Barnabas was led astray by their hypocrisy. 14But when I saw that they were not acting consistently with the truth of the gospel, I said to Cephas before them all, "If you, though a Jew, live like a Gentile and not like a Jew, how can you compel the Gentiles to live like Jews?"[h]

15 We ourselves are Jews by birth and not Gentile sinners; 16yet we know that a person is justified[i] not by the works of the law but through faith in Jesus Christ.[j] And we have come to believe in Christ Jesus, so that we might be justified by faith in Christ,[k] and not by doing the works of the law, because no one will be justified by the works of the law. 17But if, in our effort to be justified in Christ, we ourselves have been found to be sinners, is Christ then a servant of sin? Certainly not! 18But if I build up again the very things that I once tore down, then I demonstrate that I am a transgressor. 19For through the law I died to the law, so that I might live to God. I have been crucified with Christ; 20and it is no longer I who live, but it is Christ who lives in me. And the life I now live in the flesh I live by faith in the Son of God,[l] who loved me and gave himself for me. 21I do not nullify the grace of God; for if justification[m] comes through the law, then Christ died for nothing.

3 You foolish Galatians! Who has bewitched you? It was before your eyes that Jesus Christ was publicly exhibited as crucified! 2The only thing I want to learn from you is this: Did you receive the Spirit by doing the works of the law or by believing what you heard? 3Are you so foolish? Having started with the Spirit, are you now ending with the flesh? 4Did you experience so much for nothing?—if it really was for nothing. 5Well then, does God[n] supply you with the Spirit and work miracles among you by your doing the works of the law, or by your believing what you heard?

6 Just as Abraham "believed God, and it was reckoned to him as righteousness," 7so, you see, those who believe are the descendants of Abraham. 8And the scripture, foreseeing that God would justify the Gentiles by faith, declared the gospel beforehand to Abraham, saying, "All the Gentiles shall be blessed in you." 9For this reason, those who believe are blessed with Abraham who believed.

10 For all who rely on the works of the law are under a curse; for it is written, "Cursed is everyone who does not ob-

2.15–21: A statement of principle on the fundamental difference between the law and the gospel. These verses could be taken in quotation marks as a continuation of what Paul said to Cephas at Antioch (note h), but they function in the letter as a propositional statement on what is at issue, using we in vv. 15–17 and concluding with a declaration of Paul's own living faith. 16: Faith in Jesus Christ, see notes j and k and Rom 3.22 n. Here Christ is the object of faith, in whom we have come to believe. 20: Paul's union with Christ does not destroy his own personality, but sustains and molds his Christian life (compare Jesus' reference to the vine and the branches, Jn 15.1–5). Faith, see v. 16.

3.1–4.31: Evidence confirming Paul's gospel and its freedom. For the truth of the gospel (2.5, 14), that justification/righteousness comes by faith and not by law (2.16, 21), a series of proofs are presented.

3.1–5: An appeal to experience, the Galatians' receipt of the Spirit, to prove that justification is by faith, not works. The sequence is hearing and believing the gospel, receiving the Spirit, and hence experiencing divine wondrous deeds. 5: Miracles, wrought among (lit. "in") the Galatians, attest the truth of the gospel (on apostolic miracles, compare Rom 15.19; 1 Cor 12.10; 2 Cor 12.12).

3.6–14: An appeal to Abraham's experience in scripture. 6–7: Abraham is typical of all those who believe (Gen 15.6; Rom 4.3, 16). 8: Gen 12.3; compare 18.18; Acts 3.25. 10: Deut 27.26. 11: Hab 2.4 Gk. 12: Lev 18.5; Rom 10.5. 13: The tree in Deut 21.23 is referred to Jesus' cross.

serve and obey all the things written in the book of the law." 11 Now it is evident that no one is justified before God by the law; for "The one who is righteous will live by faith."[o] 12 But the law does not rest on faith; on the contrary, "Whoever does the works of the law[p] will live by them." 13 Christ redeemed us from the curse of the law by becoming a curse for us—for it is written, "Cursed is everyone who hangs on a tree"— 14 in order that in Christ Jesus the blessing of Abraham might come to the Gentiles, so that we might receive the promise of the Spirit through faith.

15 Brothers and sisters,[q] I give an example from daily life: once a person's will[r] has been ratified, no one adds to it or annuls it. 16 Now the promises were made to Abraham and to his offspring;[s] it does not say, "And to offsprings,"[t] as of many; but it says, "And to your offspring,"[s] that is, to one person, who is Christ. 17 My point is this: the law, which came four hundred thirty years later, does not annul a covenant previously ratified by God, so as to nullify the promise. 18 For if the inheritance comes from the law, it no longer comes from the promise; but God granted it to Abraham through the promise.

19 Why then the law? It was added because of transgressions, until the offspring[s] would come to whom the promise had been made; and it was ordained through angels by a mediator. 20 Now a mediator involves more than one party; but God is one.

21 Is the law then opposed to the promises of God? Certainly not! For if a law had been given that could make alive, then righteousness would indeed come through the law. 22 But the scripture has imprisoned all things under the power of sin, so that what was promised through faith in Jesus Christ[u] might be given to those who believe.

23 Now before faith came, we were imprisoned and guarded under the law until faith would be revealed. 24 Therefore the law was our disciplinarian until Christ came, so that we might be justified by faith. 25 But now that faith has come, we are no longer subject to a disciplinarian, 26 for in Christ Jesus you are all children of God through faith. 27 As many of you as were baptized into Christ have clothed yourselves with Christ. 28 There is no longer Jew or Greek, there is no longer slave or free, there is no longer male and female; for all of you are one in Christ Jesus. 29 And if you belong to Christ, then you are Abraham's offspring,[s] heirs according to the promise.

3.15–18: An example from the covenant with Abraham: God gives our inheritance by promise, not law. 15: The same Greek word means last will or testament and covenant (note r). 16: Offspring, the word used in Gen 12.7 and 22.17–18 is literally "seed," a collective singular. 17: The faith-principle is older and more fundamental than the Mosaic law. Paul follows the chronology found in some manuscripts of the Septuagint of Ex 12.40, according to which the 430 years included the sojourn of Israel's forebears in Canaan and in Egypt; on the other hand the Hebrew text of Ex 12.40 refers the 430 years solely to the sojourn in Egypt (see also Acts 7.6 n.).

3.19–25: The true purpose of the Mosaic law. Though the law could not make people righteous (v. 21), it revealed God's will so that they might recognize their transgressions (vv. 19 and 22; Rom 3.20; 7.7). It is like a disciplinarian (see 1 Cor 4.15 n.) who has temporary charge of a child (vv. 24–25). It was not even given by God directly, but (according to later Jewish belief) through angels (v. 19; Deut 33.2, Septuagint; see Acts 7.38, 53 n.; Heb 2.2) and a mediator, Moses (see Lev 26.46).

3.19: Because of, or even to produce, transgressions. 22: Faith in Jesus Christ, see Rom 3.22 n. 23: Faith, the era of Christ, Christianity.

3.26–29: An appeal to baptismal equality. In the imagery and implications about those baptized into (Rom 6.3–11) and clothed . . . with Christ (Rom 13.14; Col 3.10), Paul is here interested especially in Jew and Greek all being one in Christ and thus Abraham's offspring (spiritual kinship), so fulfilling God's promise (3.6–7, 16 n., 17 n.).

Enslavement under the law

4 My point is this: heirs, as long as they are minors, are no better than slaves, though they are the owners of all the property; 2but they remain under guardians and trustees until the date set by the father. 3So with us; while we were minors, we were enslaved to the elemental spirits[v] of the world. 4But when the fullness of time had come, God sent his Son, born of a woman, born under the law, 5in order to redeem those who were under the law, so that we might receive adoption as children. 6And because you are children, God has sent the Spirit of his Son into our[w] hearts, crying, "Abba![x] Father!" 7So you are no longer a slave but a child, and if a child then also an heir, through God.[y]

8 Formerly, when you did not know God, you were enslaved to beings that by nature are not gods. 9Now, however, that you have come to know God, or rather to be known by God, how can you turn back again to the weak and beggarly elemental spirits?[z] How can you want to be enslaved to them again? 10You are observing special days, and months, and seasons, and years. 11I am afraid that my work for you may have been wasted.

12 Friends,[a] I beg you, become as I am, for I also have become as you are. You have done me no wrong. 13You know that it was because of a physical infirmity that I first announced the gospel to you; 14though my condition put you to the test, you did not scorn or despise me, but welcomed me as an angel of God, as Christ Jesus. 15What has become of the goodwill you felt? For I testify that, had it been possible, you would have torn out your eyes and given them to me. 16Have I now become your enemy by telling you the truth? 17They make much of you, but for no good purpose; they want to exclude you, so that you may make much of them. 18It is good to be made much of for a good purpose at all times, and not only when I am present with you. 19My little children, for whom I am again in the pain of childbirth until Christ is formed in you, 20I wish I were present with you now and could change my tone, for I am perplexed about you.

21 Tell me, you who desire to be subject to the law, will you not listen to the law? 22For it is written that Abraham had two sons, one by a slave woman and the other by a free woman. 23One, the child of the slave, was born according to the flesh; the other, the child of the free woman, was born through the promise. 24Now this is an allegory: these women are two covenants. One woman, in fact,

4.12–20: An appeal to the Galatians in their relationship to Paul. While Paul reproves the Galatians for their spiritual immaturity, the apostle points to past examples of fervent friendship. 13: First, either "formerly" on his prior visit, or on the first of two visits (Acts 16.6; 18.23). 13–14: On his first visit through the region of Galatia (Acts 16.6) an illness (was it eye trouble? see v. 15) detained Paul; though he was a care to the Galatians, they treated him with special consideration. 17: They, the Judaizing teachers. 19: My little children, Paul addresses the Galatians as their father in Jesus Christ (1 Cor 4.15).

4.21–5.1: A final proof, the allegory about Hagar and Sarah, showing that those who rely upon the law instead of having faith in God's promise are to be excluded from the inheritance. 22: Gen 16.15; 21.2, 9. 25: Jerusalem was stressed by Paul's opponents (2.12). 26: The heavenly Jerusalem (see Ezek 40; Zech 2.6–9; Rev 21.2), not that in Palestine, is our mother.

is Hagar, from Mount Sinai, bearing children for slavery. 25Now Hagar is Mount Sinai in Arabia[b] and corresponds to the present Jerusalem, for she is in slavery with her children. 26But the other woman corresponds to the Jerusalem above; she is free, and she is our mother. 27For it is written,

"Rejoice, you childless one, you who bear no children, burst into song and shout, you
who endure no birth pangs;
for the children of the desolate woman are more numerous than the children of the one who is married."

28Now you,[c] my friends,[d] are children of the promise, like Isaac. 29But just as at that time the child who was born according to the flesh persecuted the child who was born according to the Spirit, so it is now also. 30But what does the scripture say? "Drive out the slave and her child; for the child of the slave will not share the inheritance with the child of the free woman." 31So then, friends,[d] we are children, not of the slave but of the free woman. 1For freedom Christ has set us free. Stand firm, therefore, and do not submit again to a yoke of slavery.

2 Listen! I, Paul, am telling you that if you let yourselves be circumcised, Christ will be of no benefit to you. 3Once again I testify to every man who lets himself be circumcised that he is obliged to obey the entire law. 4You who want to be justified by the law have cut yourselves off from Christ; you have fallen away from grace. 5For through the Spirit, by faith, we eagerly wait for the hope of righteousness. 6For in Christ Jesus neither circumcision nor uncircumcision counts for anything; the only thing that counts is faith working[e] through love.

7 You were running well; who prevented you from obeying the truth? 8Such persuasion does not come from the one who calls you. 9A little yeast leavens the whole batch of dough. 10I am confident about you in the Lord that you will not think otherwise. But whoever it is that is confusing you will pay the penalty. 11But my friends,[d] why am I still being persecuted if I am still preaching circumcision? In that case the offense of the cross has been removed. 12I wish those who unsettle you would castrate themselves!

13 For you were called to freedom, brothers and sisters;[d] only do not use your freedom as an opportunity for self-indulgence,[f] but through love become slaves to one another. 14For the whole law is summed up in a single commandment, "You shall love your neighbor as yourself." 15If, however, you bite and

5.2–26: The nature of Christian liberty. 2–12: To seek justification by legal works is futile; Christ and the Mosaic law of circumcision are mutually exclusive. Faith alone justifies, but the faith that justifies is not alone—it produces good works through love (v. 6). 3: See 3.10–12.

5.6: The ethical result of the gospel is one's faith expressing itself in loving deeds. If made effective (note e) is read, the sense may be "coming to effective expression in love" or "made effective by God's love." 11: Still preaching circumcision, as Paul might have if once a missionary for Judaism; or a charge based on 1 Cor 9.20 or on the case of Timothy reported in Acts 16.1–3. 12: A bitterly satirical wish; see Phil 3.2. 13–26: Though free from the law, Christians must not abuse their liberty. Paul's emphasis on ethical responsibility may be intended to answer those concerned about libertine opponents (see Introduction), though his letters regularly include moral imperatives (Rom 12.1ff.).

devour one another, take care that you are not consumed by one another.

16 Live by the Spirit, I say, and do not gratify the desires of the flesh. 17For what the flesh desires is opposed to the Spirit, and what the Spirit desires is opposed to the flesh; for these are opposed to each other, to prevent you from doing what you want. 18But if you are led by the Spirit, you are not subject to the law. 19Now the works of the flesh are obvious: fornication, impurity, licentiousness, 20idolatry, sorcery, enmities, strife, jealousy, anger, quarrels, dissensions, factions, 21envy,[g] drunkenness, carousing, and things like these. I am warning you, as I warned you before: those who do such things will not inherit the kingdom of God.

22 By contrast, the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, generosity, faithfulness, 23gentleness, and self-control. There is no law against such things. 24And those who belong to Christ Jesus have crucified the flesh with its passions and desires. 25If we live by the Spirit, let us also be guided by the Spirit. 26Let us not become conceited, competing against one another, envying one another.

6 My friends,[h] if anyone is detected in a transgression, you who have received the Spirit should restore such a one in a spirit of gentleness. Take care that you yourselves are not tempted. 2Bear one another's burdens, and in this way you will fulfill[i] the law of Christ. 3For if those who are nothing think they are something, they deceive themselves. 4All must test their own work; then that work, rather than their neighbor's work, will become a cause for pride. 5For all must carry their own loads.

6 Those who are taught the word must share in all good things with their teacher.

7 Do not be deceived; God is not mocked, for you reap whatever you sow. 8If you sow to your own flesh, you will reap corruption from the flesh; but if you sow to the Spirit, you will reap eternal life from the Spirit. 9So let us not grow weary in doing what is right, for we will reap at harvest time, if we do not give up. 10So then, whenever we have an opportunity, let us work for the good of all, and especially for those of the family of faith.

11 See what large letters I make when I am writing in my own hand! 12It is those who want to make a good showing in the flesh that try to compel you to be circumcised—only that they may not be persecuted for the cross of Christ. 13Even the circumcised do not themselves obey the law, but they want you to be circumcised so that they may boast about your flesh. 14May I never boast of anything except the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, by which[j] the world has been crucified to me, and I to the world. 15For[k] neither circumcision nor uncircumcision is anything; but a new creation is everything! 16As for those who will follow this rule—peace be upon them, and mercy, and upon the Israel of God.

The Letter of Paul to the Ephesians

In powerful, poetic language, which was probably drawn in part from Christian hymns and liturgies, the Letter to the Ephesians celebrates the life of the church, a unique community established by God through the work of Jesus Christ, who is its head, and also the head of the whole creation. The church was established by God's eternal purpose, and in it believers already live in a union with God through Christ and the Holy Spirit that anticipates the full union in the life to come.

Reconciliation to God through the death of Christ has broken the power of evil and specifically the long-standing separation between Jews and non-Jews. Paul's own dignity and vocation as apostle are emphasized; his apostleship includes both his mission to the Gentiles and his stewardship of the mystery of the gospel, which could not be known until its revelation through Jesus Christ. The concluding ethical exhortation stresses unity in the church, love as an imitation of God, and separation from impurity. Advice to family groups follows the tradition of the time in emphasizing the authority of the father. The well-known concluding passage about putting on the armor of God pictures the life of faith as a conflict with evil, a theme that also appears earlier in the letter.

Some early manuscripts of this letter and some commentators in the early church make no reference to Ephesus in 1.1 (see note a), nor does the author deal with the problems of a particular congregation. Hence Ephesians is widely regarded as a "circular letter" that was not written specifically for Ephesus, but was distributed to several churches in Asia Minor. Through the years it has been assumed that Ephesians was written by the apostle Paul, late in his career and from prison, probably in Rome. There are, however, important contrasts between Ephesians and the letters that we can confidently ascribe to Paul. Many of the words in Ephesians do not appear elsewhere in the apostle's correspondence, and some important terms have a different meaning here from their meaning in letters that are surely Paul's. The style, also, with its loose collection of phrases and clauses in long sentences (many of which have been divided in the NRSV), is not characteristic of Paul's letters. Many scholars hold that these differences simply express changes in Paul's thought and style. Many other scholars, however, hold that Ephesians was written by a follower of Paul who had at hand a collection of Paul's letters, and who interpreted the mind of Paul to the church of a slightly later day. That would explain the many parallels to Paul's other letters that are woven into the text, a striking feature of this letter. Parts of Ephesians are strongly parallel to Colossians, which also may or may not have been written by Paul (see the Introduction to Colossians). If Paul was the author of both letters, they were written at nearly the same time; if Ephesians comes from a disciple of Paul, Colossians was an important source.

1 Paul, an apostle of Christ Jesus by the will of God,

To the saints who are in Ephesus and are faithful[a] in Christ Jesus:

2 Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

3 Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who has blessed us in Christ with every spiritual blessing in the heavenly places, 4just as he chose us in Christ[b] before the foundation of the world to be holy and blameless before him in love. 5He destined us for adoption as his children through Jesus Christ, according to the good pleasure of his will, 6to the praise of his glorious grace that he freely bestowed on us in the Beloved. 7In him we have redemption through his blood, the forgiveness of our trespasses, according to the riches of his grace 8that he lavished on us. With all wisdom and insight 9he has made known to us the mystery of his will, according to his good pleasure that he set forth in Christ, 10as a plan for the fullness of time, to gather up all things in him, things in heaven and things on earth. 11In Christ we have also obtained an inheritance,[c] having been destined according to the purpose of him who accomplishes all things according to his counsel and will, 12so that we, who were the first to set our hope on Christ, might live for the praise of his glory. 13In him you also, when you had heard the word of truth, the gospel of your salvation, and had believed in him, were marked with the seal of the promised Holy Spirit; 14this[d] is the pledge of our inheritance toward redemption as God's own people, to the praise of his glory.

15 I have heard of your faith in the Lord Jesus and your love[e] toward all the saints, and for this reason 16I do not cease to give thanks for you as I remember you in my prayers. 17I pray that the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of glory, may give you a spirit of wisdom and revelation as you come to know him, 18so that, with the eyes of your heart enlightened, you may know what is the hope to which he has called you, what are the riches of his glorious inheritance among the saints, 19and what is the immeasurable greatness of his power for us who believe, according to the working of his great power. 20God[f] put this power to work in Christ when he raised him from the dead and seated him at his right hand in the heavenly places, 21far above all rule and authority and power and dominion, and above every name that is named, not only in this age but also in the age to come. 22And he has put all things under his feet and has made him the head over all things for the church, 23which is his body, the fullness of him who fills all in all.

2 You were dead through the trespasses and sins 2in which you once lived, following the course of this world, following the ruler of the power of the air, the spirit that is now at work among those who are disobedient. 3All of us once lived among them in the passions of our flesh, following the desires of flesh and senses, and we were by nature children of wrath, like everyone else. 4But God, who is rich in mercy, out of the great love with which he loved us 5even when we were dead through our trespasses, made us alive together with Christ[g]—by grace you have been saved— 6and raised us up with him and seated us with him in the heavenly places in Christ Jesus, 7so that in the ages to come he might show the immeasurable riches of his grace in kindness toward us in Christ Jesus. 8For by grace you have been saved through faith, and this is not your own doing; it is the gift of God— 9not the result of works, so that no one may boast. 10For we are what he has made us, created in Christ Jesus for good works, which God prepared beforehand to be our way of life.

11 So then, remember that at one time you Gentiles by birth,[h] called "the uncircumcision" by those who are called "the circumcision"—a physical circumcision made in the flesh by human hands— 12remember that you were at that time without Christ, being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers to the covenants of promise, having no hope and without God in the world. 13But now in Christ Jesus you who once were far off have been brought near by the blood of Christ. 14For he is our peace; in his flesh he has made both groups into one and has broken down the dividing wall, that is, the hostility between us. 15He has abolished the law with its commandments and ordinances, that he might create in himself one new humanity in place of the two, thus making peace, 16and might reconcile both groups to God in one body[i] through the cross, thus putting to death that hostility through it.[j] 17So he came and proclaimed peace to you who were far off and peace to those who were near; 18for through him both of us have access in one Spirit to the Father. 19So then you are no longer strangers and aliens, but you are citizens with the saints and also members of the household of God, 20built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, with Christ Jesus himself as the cornerstone.[k] 21In him the whole structure is joined together and grows into a holy temple in the Lord; 22in whom you also are built together spiritually[l] into a dwelling place for God.

3 This is the reason that I Paul am a prisoner for[m] Christ Jesus for the sake of you Gentiles— 2for surely you have already heard of the commission of God's grace that was given me for you,

3 and how the mystery was made known to me by revelation, as I wrote above in a few words, 4 a reading of which will enable you to perceive my understanding of the mystery of Christ. 5 In former generations this mystery[n] was not made known to humankind, as it has now been revealed to his holy apostles and prophets by the Spirit: 6 that is, the Gentiles have become fellow heirs, members of the same body, and sharers in the promise in Christ Jesus through the gospel.

7 Of this gospel I have become a servant according to the gift of God's grace that was given me by the working of his power. 8 Although I am the very least of all the saints, this grace was given to me to bring to the Gentiles the news of the boundless riches of Christ, 9 and to make everyone see[o] what is the plan of the mystery hidden for ages in[p] God who created all things; 10 so that through the church the wisdom of God in its rich variety might now be made known to the rulers and authorities in the heavenly places. 11 This was in accordance with the eternal purpose that he has carried out in Christ Jesus our Lord, 12 in whom we have access to God in boldness and confidence through faith in him.[q] 13 I pray therefore that you[r] may not lose heart over my sufferings for you; they are your glory.

14 For this reason I bow my knees before the Father,[s] 15 from whom every family[t] in heaven and on earth takes its name. 16 I pray that, according to the riches of his glory, he may grant that you may be strengthened in your inner being with power through his Spirit, 17 and that Christ may dwell in your hearts through faith, as you are being rooted and grounded in love. 18 I pray that you may have the power to comprehend, with all the saints, what is the breadth and length and height and depth, 19 and to know the love of Christ that surpasses knowledge, so that you may be filled with all the fullness of God.

20 Now to him who by the power at work within us is able to accomplish abundantly far more than all we can ask or imagine, 21 to him be glory in the church and in Christ Jesus to all generations, forever and ever. Amen.

4 I therefore, the prisoner in the Lord, beg you to lead a life worthy of the calling to which you have been called, 2 with all humility and gentleness, with patience, bearing with one another in love, 3 making every effort to maintain the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace. 4 There is one body and one Spirit, just as you were called to the one hope of your calling, 5 one Lord, one faith, one baptism, 6 one God and Father of all,

who is above all and through all and in all.

7 But each of us was given grace according to the measure of Christ's gift. 8Therefore it is said,

"When he ascended on high he made captivity itself
a captive;
he gave gifts to his people."

9(When it says, "He ascended," what does it mean but that he had also descended[u] into the lower parts of the earth? 10He who descended is the same one who ascended far above all the heavens, so that he might fill all things.) 11The gifts he gave were that some would be apostles, some prophets, some evangelists, some pastors and teachers, 12to equip the saints for the work of ministry, for building up the body of Christ, 13until all of us come to the unity of the faith and of the knowledge of the Son of God, to maturity, to the measure of the full stature of Christ. 14We must no longer be children, tossed to and fro and blown about by every wind of doctrine, by people's trickery, by their craftiness in deceitful scheming. 15But speaking the truth in love, we must grow up in every way into him who is the head, into Christ, 16from whom the whole body, joined and knit together by every ligament with which it is equipped, as each part is working properly, promotes the body's growth in building itself up in love.

17 Now this I affirm and insist on in the Lord: you must no longer live as the Gentiles live, in the futility of their minds. 18They are darkened in their understanding, alienated from the life of God because of their ignorance and hardness of heart. 19They have lost all sensitivity and have abandoned themselves to licentiousness, greedy to practice every kind of impurity. 20That is not the way you learned Christ! 21For surely you have heard about him and were taught in him, as truth is in Jesus. 22You were taught to put away your former way of life, your old self, corrupt and deluded by its lusts, 23and to be renewed in the spirit of your minds, 24and to clothe yourselves with the new self, created according to the likeness of God in true righteousness and holiness.

25 So then, putting away falsehood, let all of us speak the truth to our neighbors, for we are members of one another. 26Be angry but do not sin; do not let the sun go down on your anger, 27and do not make room for the devil. 28Thieves must give up stealing; rather let them labor and work honestly with their own hands, so as to have something to share with the needy. 29Let no evil talk come out of your mouths, but only what is useful for building up,[v] as there is need, so that your words may give grace to those who hear. 30And do not grieve the Holy Spirit of God, with which you were marked with a seal for the day of redemption. 31Put away from you all bitterness and wrath and anger and wrangling and slander, together with all malice, 32and be kind to one another, tenderhearted, forgiving one another, as God in Christ has forgiven you.[w]

5 1Therefore be imitators of God, as beloved children, 2and live in love, as Christ loved us[x] and gave himself up for us, a fragrant offering and sacrifice to God.

3 But fornication and impurity of any kind, or greed, must not even be mentioned among you, as is proper among saints. 4Entirely out of place is obscene, silly, and vulgar talk; but instead, let there be thanksgiving. 5Be sure of this, that no fornicator or impure person, or one who is greedy (that is, an idolater), has any inheritance in the kingdom of Christ and of God.

6 Let no one deceive you with empty words, for because of these things the wrath of God comes on those who are disobedient. 7Therefore do not be associated with them. 8For once you were darkness, but now in the Lord you are light. Live as children of light— 9for the fruit of the light is found in all that is good and right and true. 10Try to find out what is pleasing to the Lord. 11Take no part in the unfruitful works of darkness, but instead expose them. 12For it is shameful even to mention what such people do secretly; 13but everything exposed by the light becomes visible, 14for everything that becomes visible is light. Therefore it says,

"Sleeper, awake!
Rise from the dead,
and Christ will shine on you."

15 Be careful then how you live, not as unwise people but as wise, 16making the most of the time, because the days are evil. 17So do not be foolish, but understand what the will of the Lord is. 18Do not get drunk with wine, for that is debauchery; but be filled with the Spirit, 19as you sing psalms and hymns and spiritual songs among yourselves, singing and making melody to the Lord in your hearts, 20giving thanks to God the Father at all times and for everything in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ.

21 Be subject to one another out of reverence for Christ.

22 Wives, be subject to your husbands as you are to the Lord. 23For the husband is the head of the wife just as Christ is the head of the church, the body of which he is the Savior. 24Just as the church is subject to Christ, so also wives ought to be, in everything, to their husbands.

25 Husbands, love your wives, just as Christ loved the church and gave himself up for her, 26in order to make her holy by cleansing her with the washing of water by the word, 27so as to present the church to himself in splendor, without a spot or wrinkle or anything of the kind—yes, so that she may be holy and without blemish. 28In the same way, husbands should love their wives as they do their own bodies. He who loves his wife loves himself. 29For no one ever hates his own body, but he nourishes and tenderly cares for it, just as Christ does for the church, 30because we are members of his body.[y] 31"For this reason a man will leave his father and mother and be joined to his wife, and the two will become one flesh." 32This is a great mystery, and I am applying it to Christ and the church. 33 Each of you, however, should love his wife as himself, and a wife should respect her husband.

6 Children, obey your parents in the Lord,[z] for this is right. 2 "Honor your father and mother"—this is the first commandment with a promise: 3 "so that it may be well with you and you may live long on the earth."

4 And, fathers, do not provoke your children to anger, but bring them up in the discipline and instruction of the Lord.

5 Slaves, obey your earthly masters with fear and trembling, in singleness of heart, as you obey Christ; 6 not only while being watched, and in order to please them, but as slaves of Christ, doing the will of God from the heart. 7 Render service with enthusiasm, as to the Lord and not to men and women, 8 knowing that whatever good we do, we will receive the same again from the Lord, whether we are slaves or free.

9 And, masters, do the same to them. Stop threatening them, for you know that both of you have the same Master in heaven, and with him there is no partiality.

10 Finally, be strong in the Lord and in the strength of his power. 11 Put on the whole armor of God, so that you may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil. 12 For our[a] struggle is not against enemies of blood and flesh, but against the rulers, against the authorities, against the cosmic powers of this present darkness, against the spiritual forces of evil in the heavenly places. 13 Therefore take up the whole armor of God, so that you may be able to withstand on that evil day, and having done everything, to stand firm. 14 Stand therefore, and fasten the belt of truth around your waist, and put on the breastplate of righteousness. 15 As shoes for your feet put on whatever will make you ready to proclaim the gospel of peace. 16 With all of these,[b] take the shield of faith, with which you will be able to quench all the flaming arrows of the evil one. 17 Take the helmet of salvation, and the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God.

18 Pray in the Spirit at all times in every prayer and supplication. To that end keep alert and always persevere in supplication for all the saints. 19 Pray also for me, so that when I speak, a message may be given to me to make known with boldness the mystery of the gospel,[c] 20 for which I am an ambassador in chains. Pray that I may declare it boldly, as I must speak.

21 So that you also may know how I am and what I am doing, Tychicus will tell you everything. He is a dear brother and a faithful minister in the Lord. 22 I am sending him to you for this very purpose, to let you know how we are, and to encourage your hearts.

23 Peace be to the whole community,[d] and love with faith, from God the Father and the Lord Jesus Christ. 24 Grace be with all who have an undying love for our Lord Jesus Christ.[e]

The Letter of Paul to the Philippians

Philippi was a city of Macedonia, a stop on one of the main roads between East and West in the Roman Empire. The Christian community in Philippi was the first church established by Paul on European soil (Acts 16.11–13). Paul seems to have had a close and happy relationship with this church in the years that followed (4.15–16).

From the beginning of Paul's work in Philippi there had been opposition (1 Thess 2.2; Acts 16.19–40), and evidently opposition to the church was very active at the time Paul wrote the Letter to the Philippians, for a main theme of this letter is persistence in faith in the face of opposition and even the threat of death. Paul offers himself as an example of steadfast courage and of joy in the midst of harsh circumstances and possible death; he turns attention away from preoccupation with one's own fate toward the proclamation of the gospel, which is the task to be accomplished in the face of suffering, and toward the joy, which is real even in such difficult times, while one follows the "mind" of Christ (1.12–25; 2.1–5; 3.8–16; 4.11–13).

At the center of this theme is the moving and powerful hymn-like passage that celebrates the story of Christ's self-emptying even to death, for which Christ was awarded by God the name "Lord," which is above every name (2.6–11). The hymn was probably quoted and adapted by Paul from earlier tradition. Through the years and today, the theme of self-emptying, or "kenosis," has been a key concept according to which Christians have reflected about the meaning of Christ.

Except that Paul was in prison at the time of writing and awaiting trial (1.12–26), it is impossible to speak confidently of the time and place of the writing of this letter. Because of references to the imperial guard or praetorium (1.13) and to the emperor's household (4.22) and also because the situation reflected in the letter bears some resemblance to that described at the very end of the book of Acts, many scholars put its composition during the period of Paul's imprisonment at Rome (about A.D. 61–63); but the indications are by no means conclusive, and it is perhaps more probable that the letter was written from Caesarea or Ephesus at an earlier stage in Paul's career. The terms referring to the emperor's establishment were used also for government functions in other parts of the empire than Rome.

The immediate occasion of Paul's writing was the return to Philippi of Epaphroditus (2.25–30), who had been sent by the Philippian church with gifts for Paul (4.18), and who had been seriously ill while staying with Paul. The apostle took this opportunity to thank them for their gifts, and to set their difficulties in a wider framework by describing his own situation and the relation of both his and their situations to the reality of Christ.

The letter follows the usual pattern of Paul's letters in a general way. But some abrupt changes of topic (especially between 3.1 and 3.2), in addition to the fact that an early Christian writer (Polycarp, Philippians 2.3), speaks of "letters" of Paul to the Philippians, has led some scholars to conclude that our present Philippians is composed of parts of two or three letters that Paul wrote to Philippi. Many others, however, find that Philippians is a coherent whole as it stands.

1 Paul and Timothy, servants[a] of Christ Jesus,

To all the saints in Christ Jesus who are in Philippi, with the bishops[b] and deacons:[c]

2 Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

3 I thank my God every time I remember you, 4constantly praying with joy in every one of my prayers for all of you, 5because of your sharing in the gospel from the first day until now. 6I am confident of this, that the one who began a good work among you will bring it to completion by the day of Jesus Christ. 7It is right for me to think this way about all of you, because you hold me in your heart,[d] for all of you share in God's grace[e] with me, both in my imprisonment and in the defense and confirmation of the gospel. 8For God is my witness, how I long for all of you with the compassion of Christ Jesus. 9And this is my prayer, that your love may overflow more and more with knowledge and full insight 10to help you to determine what is best, so that in the day of Christ you may be pure and blameless, 11having produced the harvest of righteousness that comes through Jesus Christ for the glory and praise of God.

12 I want you to know, beloved,[f] that what has happened to me has actually helped to spread the gospel, 13so that it has become known throughout the whole imperial guard[g] and to everyone else that my imprisonment is for Christ; 14and most of the brothers and sisters,[f] having been made confident in the Lord by my imprisonment, dare to speak the word[h] with greater boldness and without fear.

15 Some proclaim Christ from envy and rivalry, but others from goodwill. 16These proclaim Christ out of love, knowing that I have been put here for the defense of the gospel; 17the others proclaim Christ out of selfish ambition, not sincerely but intending to increase my suffering in my imprisonment. 18What does it matter? Just this, that Christ is proclaimed in every way, whether out of false motives or true; and in that I rejoice.

Yes, and I will continue to rejoice, 19for I know that through your prayers and the help of the Spirit of Jesus Christ this will turn out for my deliverance. 20It is my eager expectation and hope that I will not be put to shame in any way, but that by my speaking with all boldness, Christ will be exalted now as always in my body, whether by life or by death. 21For to me, living is Christ and dying is gain. 22If I am to live in the flesh, that means fruitful labor for me; and I do not know which I prefer. 23I am hard pressed between the two: my desire is to depart and be with Christ, for that is far better; 24but to remain in the flesh is more necessary for you. 25Since I am convinced of

1.12–30: Paul's present circumstances. 12: See v. 7. 13: Paul is under military guard; and now all the members of the local headquarters (compare note g) know why he is there, and so have heard at least the name of Christ.

1.15–18: That some of Paul's fellow-Christians regarded him with suspicion and ill-will appears in Galatians and in 1 and 2 Corinthians (especially 2 Cor chs 10–13). 21–24: His life is not his own but belongs utterly to Christ; therefore to depart and be with Christ is gain; but this would mean loss to his churches.

1.25–26: It is not known whether Paul's expectation was fulfilled or not. 28–30: The evidence consists in the church's brave, united witness to Christ even at the cost of struggle and suffering.

this, I know that I will remain and continue with all of you for your progress and joy in faith, 26so that I may share abundantly in your boasting in Christ Jesus when I come to you again.

27 Only, live your life in a manner worthy of the gospel of Christ, so that, whether I come and see you or am absent and hear about you, I will know that you are standing firm in one spirit, striving side by side with one mind for the faith of the gospel, 28and are in no way intimidated by your opponents. For them this is evidence of their destruction, but of your salvation. And this is God's doing. 29For he has graciously granted you the privilege not only of believing in Christ, but of suffering for him as well— 30since you are having the same struggle that you saw I had and now hear that I still have.

2 If then there is any encouragement in Christ, any consolation from love, any sharing in the Spirit, any compassion and sympathy, 2make my joy complete: be of the same mind, having the same love, being in full accord and of one mind. 3Do nothing from selfish ambition or conceit, but in humility regard others as better than yourselves. 4Let each of you look not to your own interests, but to the interests of others. 5Let the same mind be in you that was[i] in Christ Jesus,

6 who, though he was in the form of God,
did not regard equality with God
as something to be exploited, 7 but emptied himself,
taking the form of a slave,
being born in human likeness.
And being found in human form,
8 he humbled himself and became obedient to the point of death—
even death on a cross.

9 Therefore God also highly exalted him
and gave him the name
that is above every name, 10 so that at the name of Jesus
every knee should bend,
in heaven and on earth and under the earth, 11 and every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father.

12 Therefore, my beloved, just as you have always obeyed me, not only in my presence, but much more now in my absence, work out your own salvation with fear and trembling; 13for it is God who is at work in you, enabling you both to will and to work for his good pleasure.

14 Do all things without murmuring and arguing, 15so that you may be blameless and innocent, children of God without blemish in the midst of a crooked and perverse generation, in which you shine like stars in the world. 16It is by your holding fast to the word of life that I can boast on the day of Christ that I did not run in vain or labor in vain. 17But even if I am being poured out as a libation over the sacrifice and the offering of your faith, I am glad and rejoice with all of you— 18and in the same way you also must be glad and rejoice with me.

19 I hope in the Lord Jesus to send Timothy to you soon, so that I may be cheered by news of you. 20I have no one like him who will be genuinely concerned for your welfare. 21All of them are seeking their own interests, not those of Jesus Christ. 22But Timothy's[j] worth you know, how like a son with a father he has served with me in the work of the gospel. 23I hope therefore to send him as soon as I see how things go with me; 24and I trust in the Lord that I will also come soon.

25 Still, I think it necessary to send to you Epaphroditus—my brother and co-worker and fellow soldier, your messenger[k] and minister to my need; 26for he has been longing for[l] all of you, and has been distressed because you heard that he was ill. 27He was indeed so ill that he nearly died. But God had mercy on him, and not only on him but on me also, so that I would not have one sorrow after another. 28I am the more eager to send him, therefore, in order that you may rejoice at seeing him again, and that I may be less anxious. 29Welcome him then in the Lord with all joy, and honor such people, 30because he came close to death for the work of Christ,[m] risking his life to make up for those services that you could not give me.

3 Finally, my brothers and sisters,[n]
rejoice[o] in the Lord.

To write the same things to you is not troublesome to me, and for you it is a safeguard.

2 Beware of the dogs, beware of the evil workers, beware of those who mutilate the flesh![p] 3For it is we who are the circumcision, who worship in the Spirit of God[q] and boast in Christ Jesus and have no confidence in the flesh— 4even though I, too, have reason for confidence in the flesh.

If anyone else has reason to be confident in the flesh, I have more: 5circumcised on the eighth day, a member of the people of Israel, of the tribe of Benjamin, a Hebrew born of Hebrews; as to the law, a Pharisee; 6as to zeal, a persecutor of the church; as to righteousness under the law, blameless.

7 Yet whatever gains I had, these I have come to regard as loss because of Christ. 8More than that, I regard everything as loss because of the surpassing value of knowing Christ Jesus my Lord.
For his sake I have suffered the loss of all things, and I regard them as rubbish, in order that I may gain Christ 9and be found in him, not having a righteousness of my own that comes from the law, but one that comes through faith in Christ,[r]
the righteousness from God based on faith. 10I want to know Christ[s] and the power of his resurrection and the sharing of his sufferings by becoming like him in his death, [11] if somehow I may attain the resurrection from the dead.

12 Not that I have already obtained this or have already reached the goal;[t] but I press on to make it my own, because Christ Jesus has made me his own. [13] Beloved,[u] I do not consider that I have made it my own;[v] but this one thing I do: forgetting what lies behind and straining forward to what lies ahead, [14] I press on toward the goal for the prize of the heavenly[w] call of God in Christ Jesus. [15] Let those of us then who are mature be of the same mind; and if you think differently about anything, this too God will reveal to you. [16] Only let us hold fast to what we have attained.

17 Brothers and sisters,[u] join in imitating me, and observe those who live according to the example you have in us. [18] For many live as enemies of the cross of Christ; I have often told you of them, and now I tell you even with tears. [19] Their end is destruction; their god is the belly; and their glory is in their shame; their minds are set on earthly things. [20] But our citizenship[x] is in heaven, and it is from there that we are expecting a Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ. [21] He will transform the body of our humiliation[y] that it may be conformed to the body of his glory,[z] by the power that also enables him to make all things subject to himself.

4 [1] Therefore, my brothers and sisters,[a] whom I love and long for, my joy and crown, stand firm in the Lord in this way, my beloved.

2 I urge Euodia and I urge Syntyche to be of the same mind in the Lord. [3] Yes, and I ask you also, my loyal companion,[b] help these women, for they have struggled beside me in the work of the gospel, together with Clement and the rest of my co-workers, whose names are in the book of life.

4 Rejoice[c] in the Lord always; again I will say, Rejoice.[c] [5] Let your gentleness be known to everyone. The Lord is near. [6] Do not worry about anything, but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known to God. [7] And the peace of God, which surpasses all understanding, will guard your hearts and your minds in Christ Jesus.

8 Finally, beloved,[d] whatever is true, whatever is honorable, whatever is just, whatever is pure, whatever is pleasing, whatever is commendable, if there is any excellence and if there is anything worthy of praise, think about[e] these things. [9] Keep on doing the things that you have learned and received and heard and seen in me, and the God of peace will be with you.

10 I rejoice[f] in the Lord greatly that now at last you have revived your concern for me; indeed, you were concerned for me, but had no opportunity to show it.[g] [11] Not that I am referring to being in need; for I have learned to be content with whatever I have. [12] I know what it

The Letter of Paul to the Colossians

Colossae was a town of Phrygia in Asia Minor, not far from Ephesus. The church in Colossae had been founded, not by Paul, but probably by Epaphras (1.7; 4.12). The letter is confident that the believers are basically faithful to Paul's message. But right faith is threatened by the wrong teaching of persons who are not clearly identified. Our only clue to their teaching is the letter itself. It opposes certain ascetic practices ("Do not handle, do not taste," 2.21; "severe treatment of the body," 2.23) and some ritual practices that may have come from the Jewish tradition (dietary regulations and "festivals, new moons, and sabbaths," 2.16), as well as "philosophy and empty deceit" (2.8), which seems to mean esoteric teaching, and which included relying on the "elemental spirits of the universe" (2.8, 20). A combination of Jewish ritual practices and gnostic or theosophical speculation seems to have been what threatened the church at Colossae. Such syncretism or mixing of religious traditions was common at the time. Colossians opposes such teachings because they distribute the powers on which human beings depend among a variety of sources.

Against any such division of loyalty, the letter presents a strong and poetic image of the sole lordship of Christ, both throughout the whole cosmos and in the church. Christ is the unified and unifying power on which alone they are to depend. There is no stronger affirmation of the lordship of Christ in the New Testament.

The letter follows the pattern of most Pauline letters: introduction (1.1–11); moving directly into the basic statement (1.12–2.23), which opens with the powerful celebration of the cosmic and ecclesiastical Christ, and closes by arguing from Christ's lordship against the practices that were to be rejected in Colossae; practical application (3.1–4.6), which stresses being risen with Christ, and includes specific, somewhat patriarchal, directives about household and religious practices; and conclusion (4.7–18).

Colossians is closely related to the letters to Philemon and to Ephesians; the latter has drawn from it (see Introductions to Philemon and Ephesians).

The language of Colossians is similar to that of letters that are certainly Paul's, but many terms that are central to Paul elsewhere do not appear, and Paul's usual argumentative presentation of his thought is replaced by a more liturgical, celebrative style. The greatest contrast with letters that are surely Paul's is the emphasis on the transformation of the present by faith, instead of the usual Pauline tension between the partly-fulfilled present and the future that is hoped for. Scholars are divided about how to interpret these differences. Some hold that they are strong enough to conclude that Colossians was not written by Paul, as it claims, but by a disciple of Paul shortly after his time, to give Paul's authority to the continuing tradition of his teaching. Others think that the letter was written by Paul, while in prison (4.4, 18), presumably at Rome; the particular situation and, perhaps, changes in Paul's thinking, account for the contrasts.

1 Paul, an apostle of Christ Jesus by the will of God, and Timothy our brother,

2 To the saints and faithful brothers and sisters[a] in Christ in Colossae:

Grace to you and peace from God our Father.

3 In our prayers for you we always thank God, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, 4for we have heard of your faith in Christ Jesus and of the love that you have for all the saints, 5because of the hope laid up for you in heaven. You have heard of this hope before in the word of the truth, the gospel 6that has come to you. Just as it is bearing fruit and growing in the whole world, so it has been bearing fruit among yourselves from the day you heard it and truly comprehended the grace of God. 7This you learned from Epaphras, our beloved fellow servant.[b] He is a faithful minister of Christ on your[c] behalf, 8and he has made known to us your love in the Spirit.

9 For this reason, since the day we heard it, we have not ceased praying for you and asking that you may be filled with the knowledge of God's[d] will in all spiritual wisdom and understanding, 10so that you may lead lives worthy of the Lord, fully pleasing to him, as you bear fruit in every good work and as you grow in the knowledge of God. 11May you be made strong with all the strength that comes from his glorious power, and may you be prepared to endure everything with patience, while joyfully 12giving thanks to the Father, who has enabled[e] you[f] to share in the inheritance of the saints in the light. 13He has rescued us from the power of darkness and transferred us into the kingdom of his beloved Son, 14in whom we have redemption, the forgiveness of sins.[g]

15 He is the image of the invisible God, the firstborn of all creation; 16for in[h] him all things in heaven and on earth were created, things visible and invisible, whether thrones or dominions or rulers or powers—all things have been created through him and for him. 17He himself is before all things, and in[h] him all things hold together. 18He is the head of the body, the church; he is the beginning, the firstborn from the dead, so that he might come to have first place in everything. 19For in him all the fullness of God was pleased to dwell, 20and through him God was pleased to reconcile to himself all things, whether on earth or in heaven, by making peace through the blood of his cross.

21 And you who were once estranged and hostile in mind, doing evil deeds, 22he has now reconciled[i] in his fleshly body[j] through death, so as to present you holy and blameless and irreproachable before him— [23]provided that you continue securely established and steadfast in the faith, without shifting from the hope promised by the gospel that you heard, which has been proclaimed to every creature under heaven. I, Paul, became a servant of this gospel.

24 I am now rejoicing in my sufferings for your sake, and in my flesh I am completing what is lacking in Christ's afflictions for the sake of his body, that is, the church. [25]I became its servant according to God's commission that was given to me for you, to make the word of God fully known, [26]the mystery that has been hidden throughout the ages and generations but has now been revealed to his saints. [27]To them God chose to make known how great among the Gentiles are the riches of the glory of this mystery, which is Christ in you, the hope of glory. [28]It is he whom we proclaim, warning everyone and teaching everyone in all wisdom, so that we may present everyone mature in Christ. [29]For this I toil and struggle with all the energy that he powerfully inspires within me.

2 For I want you to know how much I am struggling for you, and for those in Laodicea, and for all who have not seen me face to face. [2]I want their hearts to be encouraged and united in love, so that they may have all the riches of assured understanding and have the knowledge of God's mystery, that is, Christ himself,[k] [3]in whom are hidden all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge. [4]I am saying this so that no one may deceive you with plausible arguments. [5]For though I am absent in body, yet I am with you in spirit, and I rejoice to see your morale and the firmness of your faith in Christ.

6 As you therefore have received Christ Jesus the Lord, continue to live your lives[l] in him, [7]rooted and built up in him and established in the faith, just as you were taught, abounding in thanksgiving.

8 See to it that no one takes you captive through philosophy and empty deceit, according to human tradition, according to the elemental spirits of the universe,[m] and not according to Christ. [9]For in him the whole fullness of deity dwells bodily, [10]and you have come to fullness in him, who is the head of every ruler and authority. [11]In him also you were circumcised with a spiritual circumcision,[n] by putting off the body of the flesh in the circumcision of Christ; [12]when you were buried with him in baptism, you were also raised with him through faith in the power of God, who raised him from the dead. [13]And when you were dead in trespasses and the uncircumcision of your flesh, God[o] made you[p] alive together with him, when he forgave us all our trespasses, [14]erasing the record that stood against us with its legal demands. He set this aside, nailing it to the cross. [15]He disarmed[q] the rulers and authorities and made a public example of them, triumphing over them in it.

16 Therefore do not let anyone condemn you in matters of food and drink or of observing festivals, new moons, or sabbaths. 17These are only a shadow of what is to come, but the substance belongs to Christ. 18Do not let anyone disqualify you, insisting on self-abasement and worship of angels, dwelling[r] on visions,[s] puffed up without cause by a human way of thinking,[t] 19and not holding fast to the head, from whom the whole body, nourished and held together by its ligaments and sinews, grows with a growth that is from God.

20 If with Christ you died to the elemental spirits of the universe,[u] why do you live as if you still belonged to the world? Why do you submit to regulations, 21"Do not handle, Do not taste, Do not touch"? 22All these regulations refer to things that perish with use; they are simply human commands and teachings. 23These have indeed an appearance of wisdom in promoting self-imposed piety, humility, and severe treatment of the body, but they are of no value in checking self-indulgence.[v]

3 So if you have been raised with Christ, seek the things that are above, where Christ is, seated at the right hand of God. 2Set your minds on things that are above, not on things that are on earth, 3for you have died, and your life is hidden with Christ in God. 4When Christ who is your[w] life is revealed, then you also will be revealed with him in glory.

5 Put to death, therefore, whatever in you is earthly: fornication, impurity, passion, evil desire, and greed (which is idolatry). 6On account of these the wrath of God is coming on those who are disobedient.[x] 7These are the ways you also once followed, when you were living that life.[y] 8But now you must get rid of all such things—anger, wrath, malice, slander, and abusive[z] language from your mouth. 9Do not lie to one another, seeing that you have stripped off the old self with its practices 10and have clothed yourselves with the new self, which is being renewed in knowledge according to the image of its creator. 11In that renewal[a] there is no longer Greek and Jew, circumcised and uncircumcised, barbarian, Scythian, slave and free; but Christ is all and in all!

12 As God's chosen ones, holy and beloved, clothe yourselves with compassion, kindness, humility, meekness, and patience. 13Bear with one another and, if anyone has a complaint against another, forgive each other; just as the Lord[b] has forgiven you, so you also must forgive. 14Above all, clothe yourselves with love, which binds everything together in perfect harmony. 15And let the peace of Christ rule in your hearts, to which indeed you were called in the one body. And be thankful. 16Let the word of

The First Letter of Paul to the Thessalonians

Thessalonica was the capital of the Roman province of Macedonia, important for its location on both sea and land routes of travel. Paul founded the church in Thessalonica shortly after he left Philippi (2.1–2; Acts 17.1–8). Although Acts tells us that his initial contact in Thessalonica was with the synagogue, 1 Thessalonians is addressed to Gentile believers (1.9).

The letter reflects the life of a congregation that was devoted to its faith and strongly aware of its separation from the society in which its members had until recently found their standards and values. At the same time it was also a community that was threatened by social pressures and at times outright persecution to turn back to the life from which they had come.

Paul wrote to encourage the church, stressing that opposition is simply something to be expected (3.3), and expressing appreciation for their steadfastness (1.6; 3.6–10); but he also wrote to defend himself against accusations about his character and motives (2.1–12). He forcefully asserts his straightforwardness (2.3–6) as well as his affectionate caring for them like a nurse or a parent (2.7, 11). Paul skillfully links his situation to theirs by telling of his sending Timothy to them and of his own response to Timothy's encouraging report (3.1–10). This is followed by ethical admonitions that emphasize holiness or belonging to God, as well as the need to act in such a way as to make an acceptable impression on outsiders (4.1–12).

A further main theme of 1 Thessalonians is a response to questions about eschatology that were troubling the church, that is, questions about the end. Some of the Thessalonians were perplexed by the deaths of believers, and wondered whether those who had died would be excluded from the life of the resurrection. Paul replies with an apocalyptic narrative, a story of the events of the end-time, which makes clear that it would not be an advantage to be still living when Christ returns; all believers "will be with the Lord forever" (4.13–18). This section shows that both Paul and his readers expected the end very soon. But Paul follows with another statement, also expressed in traditional apocalyptic language, which emphasizes that one cannot predict the time of the end (5.1–11). These apocalyptic sections are to be compared with Paul's most extensive statement about hope for the end, 1 Corinthians 15.

In one passage the difficulties of the Thessalonian church are compared to those of the churches of Judea (2.13–16). This passage, so critical of the Jews, is held by many scholars to be a later addition to the letter, not only because the anti-Jewish language is not like what Paul writes elsewhere, but especially because the passage introduces an atypical second thanksgiving into the pattern of the letter.

Although Paul had sent Timothy to Thessalonica from Athens (3.1–2), he was probably in Corinth when he wrote 1 Thessalonians, perhaps in the early 50s. This letter is probably the earliest of Paul's extant correspondence and therefore the earliest of all New Testament writings.

1 Paul, Silvanus, and Timothy,
To the church of the Thessalonians
in God the Father and the Lord Jesus Christ:
Grace to you and peace.

2 We always give thanks to God for all of you and mention you in our prayers, constantly 3remembering before our God and Father your work of faith and labor of love and steadfastness of hope in our Lord Jesus Christ. 4For we know, brothers and sisters[a] beloved by God, that he has chosen you, 5because our message of the gospel came to you not in word only, but also in power and in the Holy Spirit and with full conviction; just as you know what kind of persons we proved to be among you for your sake. 6And you became imitators of us and of the Lord, for in spite of persecution you received the word with joy inspired by the Holy Spirit, 7so that you became an example to all the believers in Macedonia and in Achaia. 8For the word of the Lord has sounded forth from you not only in Macedonia and Achaia, but in every place your faith in God has become known, so that we have no need to speak about it. 9For the people of those regions[b] report about us what kind of welcome we had among you, and how you turned to God from idols, to serve a living and true God, 10and to wait for his Son from heaven, whom he raised from the dead—Jesus, who rescues us from the wrath that is coming.

2 You yourselves know, brothers and sisters,[a] that our coming to you was not in vain, 2but though we had already suffered and been shamefully mistreated at Philippi, as you know, we had courage in our God to declare to you the gospel of God in spite of great opposition. 3For our appeal does not spring from deceit or impure motives or trickery, 4but just as we have been approved by God to be entrusted with the message of the gospel, even so we speak, not to please mortals,
but to please God who tests our hearts.
5As you know and as God is our witness,
we never came with words of flattery or with a pretext for greed; 6nor did we seek praise from mortals, whether from you or from others, 7though we might have made demands as apostles of Christ. But we were gentle[c] among you, like a nurse tenderly caring for her own children. 8So deeply do we care for you that we are determined to share with you not only the gospel of God but also our own selves, because you have become very dear to us.

9 You remember our labor and toil, brothers and sisters;[a] we worked night and day, so that we might not burden any of you while we proclaimed to you the gospel of God. 10You are witnesses, and God also, how pure, upright, and blameless our conduct was toward you believers. 11As you know, we dealt with each one of you like a father with his children, 12 urging and encouraging you and pleading that you lead a life worthy of God, who calls you into his own kingdom and glory.

13 We also constantly give thanks to God for this, that when you received the word of God that you heard from us, you accepted it not as a human word but as what it really is, God's word, which is also at work in you believers. 14 For you, brothers and sisters,[d] became imitators of the churches of God in Christ Jesus that are in Judea, for you suffered the same things from your own compatriots as they did from the Jews, 15 who killed both the Lord Jesus and the prophets,[e] and drove us out; they displease God and oppose everyone 16 by hindering us from speaking to the Gentiles so that they may be saved. Thus they have constantly been filling up the measure of their sins; but God's wrath has overtaken them at last.[f]

17 As for us, brothers and sisters,[d] when, for a short time, we were made orphans by being separated from you—in person, not in heart—we longed with great eagerness to see you face to face. 18 For we wanted to come to you—certainly I, Paul, wanted to again and again—but Satan blocked our way. 19 For what is our hope or joy or crown of boasting before our Lord Jesus at his coming? Is it not you? 20 Yes, you are our glory and joy!

3 Therefore when we could bear it no longer, we decided to be left alone in Athens; 2 and we sent Timothy, our brother and co-worker for God in proclaiming[g] the gospel of Christ, to strengthen and encourage you for the sake of your faith, 3 so that no one would be shaken by these persecutions. Indeed, you yourselves know that this is what we are destined for. 4 In fact, when we were with you, we told you beforehand that we were to suffer persecution; so it turned out, as you know. 5 For this reason, when I could bear it no longer, I sent to find out about your faith; I was afraid that somehow the tempter had tempted you and that our labor had been in vain.

6 But Timothy has just now come to us from you, and has brought us the good news of your faith and love. He has told us also that you always remember us kindly and long to see us—just as we long to see you. 7 For this reason, brothers and sisters,[d] during all our distress and persecution we have been encouraged about you through your faith. 8 For we now live, if you continue to stand firm in the Lord. 9 How can we thank God enough for you in return for all the joy that we feel before our God because of you? 10 Night and day we pray most earnestly that we may see you face to face and restore whatever is lacking in your faith.

11 Now may our God and Father himself and our Lord Jesus direct our way to you. 12 And may the Lord make you increase and abound in love for one another and for all, just as we abound in love for you. 13 And may he so strengthen your hearts in holiness that you may be blameless before our God and Father at the coming of our Lord Jesus with all his saints.

church. 14–16: The severe language reflects the strenuous struggle between Paul and the Jews (Acts 14.2, 5, 19; 17.5, 13; 21.21; 25.2, 7). It is possible that 2.13–16 was added later to the letter (see Introduction).

2.17–3.13: Paul's affection for the Thessalonians. 2.18: Behind obstacles Paul recognizes the activity of Satan, the adversary of God's kingly rule (see Mt 4.1 n.; Rom 16.20; 2 Cor 11.14; 1 Tim 1.20).

3.3: Persecutions are normal, not exceptional. 5: Tempter, see 2.18 n.

3.6: Timothy has . . . come, see Introduction. 7: Distress and persecution, Acts 18.6, 12. 10: The prayer was answered some years later (Acts 20.1–2). 13: The heart is not the organ of feeling as in modern speech, but the controlling center of personality. Saints, all who belong to God.

4 Finally, brothers and sisters,[h] we ask and urge you in the Lord Jesus that, as you learned from us how you ought to live and to please God (as, in fact, you are doing), you should do so more and more. 2For you know what instructions we gave you through the Lord Jesus. 3For this is the will of God, your sanctification: that you abstain from fornication; 4that each one of you know how to control your own body[i] in holiness and honor, 5not with lustful passion, like the Gentiles who do not know God; 6that no one wrong or exploit a brother or sister[j] in this matter, because the Lord is an avenger in all these things, just as we have already told you beforehand and solemnly warned you. 7For God did not call us to impurity but in holiness. 8Therefore whoever rejects this rejects not human authority but God, who also gives his Holy Spirit to you.

9 Now concerning love of the brothers and sisters,[h] you do not need to have anyone write to you, for you yourselves have been taught by God to love one another; 10and indeed you do love all the brothers and sisters[h] throughout Macedonia. But we urge you, beloved,[h] to do so more and more, 11to aspire to live quietly, to mind your own affairs, and to work with your hands, as we directed you, 12so that you may behave properly toward outsiders and be dependent on no one.

13 But we do not want you to be uninformed, brothers and sisters,[h] about those who have died,[k] so that you may not grieve as others do who have no hope. 14For since we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so, through Jesus, God will bring with him those who have died.[k] 15For this we declare to you by the word of the Lord, that we who are alive, who are left until the coming of the Lord, will by no means precede those who have died.[k] 16For the Lord himself, with a cry of command, with the archangel's call and with the sound of God's trumpet, will descend from heaven, and the dead in Christ will rise first. 17Then we who are alive, who are left, will be caught up in the clouds together with them to meet the Lord in the air; and so we will be with the Lord forever. 18Therefore encourage one another with these words.

5 Now concerning the times and the seasons, brothers and sisters,[h] you do not need to have anything written to you. 2For you yourselves know very well that the day of the Lord will come like a thief in the night. 3When they say, "There is peace and security," then sudden destruction will come upon them, as labor pains come upon a pregnant woman, and there will be no escape! 4But you, beloved,[h] are not in darkness, for that day to surprise you like a thief; 5for you are all children of light and children of the day; we are not of the night or of darkness. 6So then let us not fall asleep as others do, but let us keep awake and be

The Second Letter of Paul to the Thessalonians

Second Thessalonians deals with issues that are also central in 1 Thessalonians: how to understand the fulfillment of God's promises in the return of Christ, and how to act in the meantime. It appears to be a letter that Paul wrote shortly after 1 Thessalonians, to correct the impression that "the day of the Lord is already here" (2.2); the Greek of this verse can also be rendered, "the day of the Lord is impending." First Thessalonians assumes that Christ's coming again is near (1 Thess 4.13–18), but also emphasizes that the appearance of Christ will be a surprise; we cannot know the time (1 Thess 5.1–11). The thrust of 2 Thessalonians is in the opposite direction—if we cannot know the exact time, nonetheless we can know that the day of the Lord will not come at once; a dire struggle with evil must take place first, and even this is to be delayed for a time. The details of this apocalyptic story were known to those who received the letter. Thus, the "rebellion" and "the lawless one" (2.3–4, 8) and the "mystery of lawlessness" (2.7), as well as "what is now restraining [the lawless one]" (2.6) and "the one who restrains it" (2.7), are references to things that the recipients of the letter already know (2.6), though these terms are not clear to us. But it is clear that knowing about the delayed struggle with lawlessness assured one that the end was not to come just yet. The message of 2 Thessalonians prepares the church for a period of continued life in this world.

The implication for daily life was very clear: it is important to continue the pursuits of daily life in a regular and orderly way, especially the life of work, as Paul himself had worked when he was among them (3.6–13). "Anyone unwilling to work should not eat" (3.10) has been cited as a maxim of the orderly life ever since. This theme also appears in 1 Thessalonians; the emphasis on it is even stronger in the second letter.

Most scholars have explained the contrast between the two Thessalonian letters by placing the second letter shortly after the first, perhaps even before Paul had heard how the church responded to his first letter. When he learned how disruptive the expectation of the imminent end was, he wrote, using the theme of apocalyptic signs (see 2.3–4n.), to explain that the end was not to come for a time, and to reinforce his teaching about the proper conduct of life.

Other scholars find it difficult to think that Paul would shift the emphasis of his apocalyptic teaching so abruptly, and such scholars also stress stylistic features of the letter that point to a different author: the letter contains two thanksgivings (1.3–4; 2.13–15); only 1 Thessalonians among Paul's letters has this feature, and some scholars hold that the second one is a later addition (see the Introduction to 1 Thessalonians), and the second letter draws from the first in a way that seems more likely to come from a later writer than from Paul himself. This interpretation sees the letter as pseudonymous, written in Paul's name to clarify a dispute about eschatology among the followers of Paul at a somewhat later date. (See the Introduction to 2 Peter on pseudonymous authorship.)

1 Paul, Silvanus, and Timothy,
To the church of the Thessalonians
in God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ:

2 Grace to you and peace from God
our[a] Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

3 We must always give thanks to God for you, brothers and sisters,[b] as is right, because your faith is growing abundantly, and the love of everyone of you for one another is increasing. 4Therefore we ourselves boast of you among the churches of God for your steadfastness and faith during all your persecutions and the afflictions that you are enduring.

5 This is evidence of the righteous judgment of God, and is intended to make you worthy of the kingdom of God, for which you are also suffering.
6For it is indeed just of God to repay with affliction those who afflict you, 7and to give relief to the afflicted as well as to us, when the Lord Jesus is revealed from heaven with his mighty angels 8in flaming fire, inflicting vengeance on those who do not know God and on those who do not obey the gospel of our Lord Jesus.
9These will suffer the punishment of eternal destruction, separated from the presence of the Lord and from the glory of his might, 10when he comes to be glorified by his saints and to be marveled at on that day among all who have believed, because our testimony to you was believed. 11To this end we always pray for you, asking that our God will make you worthy of his call and will fulfill by his power every good resolve and work of faith, 12so that the name of our Lord Jesus may be glorified in you, and you in him, according to the grace of our God and the Lord Jesus Christ.

2 As to the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ and our being gathered together to him, we beg you, brothers and sisters,[b] 2not to be quickly shaken in mind or alarmed, either by spirit or by word or by letter, as though from us, to the effect that the day of the Lord is already here. 3Let no one deceive you in any way; for that day will not come unless the rebellion comes first and the lawless one[c] is revealed, the one destined for destruction.[d] 4He opposes and exalts himself above every so-called god or object of worship, so that he takes his seat in the temple of God, declaring himself to be God. 5Do you not remember that I told you these things when I was still with you? 6And you know what is now restraining him, so that he may be revealed when his time comes. 7For the mystery of lawlessness is already at work, but only until the one who now

1.3–4: Thanksgiving, see Rom 1.8–15 n.

1.5–12: The judgment of God. Reference to afflictions (v. 4) leads to a digression of remarkable intensity. 8: Vengeance, the word is not used in the sense of revenge, but of just recompense.

1.9: Eternal destruction, not annihilation, but endless ruin in separation from Christ. 10: That day, see 2 Tim 1.12 n. Glorified by his saints, what Christ has done for his people will be seen to redound to his glory. 12: The name, the character and fame (Phil 2.9).

2.1–12: The day of the Lord. The rebellion . . . and the lawless one will precede the second coming of Christ. 2: The new teaching originated in or was supported by the utterances of an ecstatic individual, or perhaps in a letter purporting to come from Paul. 3–4: The day of the Lord (2 Pet 3.10) will be preceded by persecutions, false prophets, and a "desolating sacrilege" (Dan 9.20–27; 11.31; 12.11; Mt ch 24; Mk ch 13; Lk 21.5–36). 6–8: The lawless one has not yet come because something (v. 7, someone) is restraining him. Paul assumes that his readers understand this reference, but we do not. There are three main conjectures, none of which is entirely satisfactory: (a) The Roman empire and emperor; (b) A supernatural power; (c) Satan himself. 7: The mystery of lawlessness, the counterfeit and opponent of the mystery of restrains it is removed. 8And then the lawless one will be revealed, whom the Lord Jesus[e] will destroy[f] with the breath of his mouth, annihilating him by the manifestation of his coming. 9The coming of the lawless one is apparent in the working of Satan, who uses all power, signs, lying wonders, 10and every kind of wicked deception for those who are perishing, because they refused to love the truth and so be saved. 11For this reason God sends them a powerful delusion, leading them to believe what is false, 12so that all who have not believed the truth but took pleasure in unrighteousness will be condemned.

13 But we must always give thanks to God for you, brothers and sisters[g] beloved by the Lord, because God chose you as the first fruits[h] for salvation through sanctification by the Spirit and through belief in the truth. 14For this purpose he called you through our proclamation of the good news,[i] so that you may obtain the glory of our Lord Jesus Christ. 15So then, brothers and sisters,[g] stand firm and hold fast to the traditions that you were taught by us, either by word of mouth or by our letter.

16 Now may our Lord Jesus Christ himself and God our Father, who loved us and through grace gave us eternal comfort and good hope, 17comfort your hearts and strengthen them in every good work and word.

3 Finally, brothers and sisters,[g] pray for us, so that the word of the Lord may spread rapidly and be glorified everywhere, just as it is among you, 2and that we may be rescued from wicked and evil people; for not all have faith. 3But the Lord is faithful; he will strengthen you and guard you from the evil one.[j] 4And we have confidence in the Lord concerning you, that you are doing and will go on doing the things that we command. 5May the Lord direct your hearts to the love of God and to the steadfastness of Christ.

6 Now we command you, beloved,[g] in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, to keep away from believers who are[k] living in idleness and not according to the tradition that they[l] received from us. 7For you yourselves know how you ought to imitate us; we were not idle when we were with you, 8and we did not eat anyone's bread without paying for it; but with toil and labor we worked night and day, so that we might not burden any of you. 9This was not because we do not have that right, but in order to give you an example to imitate. 10For even when we were with you, we gave you this command: Anyone unwilling to work should not eat. 11For we hear that some of you are living in idleness, mere busybodies, not doing any work. 12Now such persons we command and exhort in the Lord Jesus Christ to do their work quietly and to earn their own living. 13Brothers and sisters,[m] do not be weary in doing what is right.

14 Take note of those who do not obey what we say in this letter; have

The First Letter of Paul to Timothy

The two letters to Timothy and the one to Titus, commonly called the Pastorals, are similar in character and in the problems they raise concerning authorship. It is difficult to ascribe them in their present form to the apostle Paul. The vocabulary and style of these letters differ widely from the acknowledged letters of Paul; some of his leading theological themes are entirely absent (e.g. the union of the believer with Christ, the power and witness of the Spirit, freedom from the law), and some of the expressions bear a different meaning from that in his customary usage (e.g. "the faith" as a synonym for the Christian religion rather than the believer's relationship to Christ).

A few scholars, attempting to maintain Pauline authorship, account for the differences by assuming changes in his environment as well as modifications of his vocabulary, style, and thought. But in view of the widespread custom in antiquity of pseudonymous authorship (that is, the use of a respected name to give authority to a writing actually written by someone else), it is easier to assume that a loyal disciple of Paul composed these letters. The purpose was to present Paul's teaching as it was then understood in the church, using it as a bulwark against wrong teaching and practice. Some scholars believe that fragments of letters written by Paul are incorporated into these three letters, while others hold that the personal greetings are simply a framework that the author used to give Paul's authority to the teachings of the letters. (On pseudonymous authorship see the Introduction to 2 Peter).

The First Letter to Timothy has a double purpose: to provide guidance in the problems of church administration, and to oppose false teaching of a speculative and moralistic type. Thus, it offers suggestions for the regulation of worship (2.1–15), lays down the qualifications of "bishops" (3.1–7) and "deacons" (3.8–13) (neither bishop nor deacon was yet defined as they later came to be, and the letter does not clearly describe their functions), while it also gives instructions as to the attitude of church leaders toward an asceticism that devalued the creation (4.1–10) and toward individual members (5.1–22), particularly widows (5.3–16), elders or presbyters (5.17–20), and slaves (6.1–2). It also warns strongly against teachers who lack understanding, wander into vain discussions, and end by making shipwreck of their faith (1.3–7, 19–20; 6.3–10). The author is especially sharp in reproving those who seek to make profit out of religion (6.3–10). The letter attacks an asceticism that was related to gnosticism, namely the attitude of one who claims to possess true knowledge (gnosis) and is therefore superior to the claims of the body, renouncing marriage and abstaining from certain foods (4.3). Speculative mythology is also denounced as "profane myths" (4.7) and "what is falsely called knowledge" (6.20).

For information concerning the person called Timothy, see the Introduction to 2 Timothy.

1 Paul, an apostle of Christ Jesus by the command of God our Savior and of Christ Jesus our hope,

2 To Timothy, my loyal child in the faith:

Grace, mercy, and peace from God the Father and Christ Jesus our Lord.

3 I urge you, as I did when I was on my way to Macedonia, to remain in Ephesus so that you may instruct certain people not to teach any different doctrine, 4and not to occupy themselves with myths and endless genealogies that promote speculations rather than the divine training[a] that is known by faith. 5But the aim of such instruction is love that comes from a pure heart, a good conscience, and sincere faith. 6Some people have deviated from these and turned to meaningless talk, 7desiring to be teachers of the law, without understanding either what they are saying or the things about which they make assertions.

8 Now we know that the law is good, if one uses it legitimately. 9This means understanding that the law is laid down not for the innocent but for the lawless and disobedient, for the godless and sinful, for the unholy and profane, for those who kill their father or mother, for murderers, 10fornicators, sodomites, slave traders, liars, perjurers, and whatever else is contrary to the sound teaching 11that conforms to the glorious gospel of the blessed God, which he entrusted to me.

12 I am grateful to Christ Jesus our Lord, who has strengthened me, because he judged me faithful and appointed me to his service, 13even though I was formerly a blasphemer, a persecutor, and a man of violence. But I received mercy because I had acted ignorantly in unbelief, 14and the grace of our Lord overflowed for me with the faith and love that are in Christ Jesus. 15The saying is sure and worthy of full acceptance, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners—of whom I am the foremost. 16But for that very reason I received mercy, so that in me, as the foremost, Jesus Christ might display the utmost patience, making me an example to those who would come to believe in him for eternal life. 17To the King of the ages, immortal, invisible, the only God, be honor and glory forever and ever.[b] Amen.

18 I am giving you these instructions, Timothy, my child, in accordance with the prophecies made earlier about you, so that by following them you may fight the good fight, 19having faith and a good conscience. By rejecting conscience, certain persons have suffered shipwreck in the faith; 20among them are Hymenaeus and Alexander, whom I have turned over to Satan, so that they may learn not to blaspheme.

2 First of all, then, I urge that supplications, prayers, intercessions, and

1.12–14: The Lord displayed his grace in making an apostle out of Saul the persecutor (Acts 9.4; 1 Cor 15.9; Gal 1.13; Phil 3.6). 15: The saying is sure, a formula characteristic of the letters to Timothy and Titus (3.1; 4.9; 2 Tim 2.11; Titus 3.8). 17: This is the language of Jewish congregational prayer and praise. 20: Hymenaeus, 2 Tim 2.17. Alexander, perhaps the same as Alexander the coppersmith, 2 Tim 4.14. Satan was regarded as the source of suffering and disease as well as moral evil (Lk 13.16; 2 Cor 12.7). Under the power of Satan, the sufferer may be moved to repentance (see 1 Cor 5.5 n.).

2.1–15: The regulation of worship. 2:

thanksgivings be made for everyone, 2for kings and all who are in high positions, so that we may lead a quiet and peaceable life in all godliness and dignity. 3This is right and is acceptable in the sight of God our Savior, 4who desires everyone to be saved and to come to the knowledge of the truth. 5For

there is one God;
there is also one mediator

—this was attested at the right time. 7For this I was appointed a herald and an apostle (I am telling the truth,[c] I am not lying), a teacher of the Gentiles in faith and truth.

8 I desire, then, that in every place the men should pray, lifting up holy hands without anger or argument; 9also that the women should dress themselves modestly and decently in suitable clothing, not with their hair braided, or with gold, pearls, or expensive clothes, 10but with good works, as is proper for women who profess reverence for God. 11Let a woman[d] learn in silence with full submission. 12I permit no woman[d] to teach or to have authority over a man;[e] she is to keep silent. 13For Adam was formed first, then Eve; 14and Adam was not deceived, but the woman was deceived and became a transgressor. 15Yet she will be saved through childbearing, provided they continue in faith and love and holiness, with modesty.

3 The saying is sure:[f] whoever aspires to the office of bishop[g] desires a noble task. 2Now a bishop[h] must be above reproach, married only once,[i] temperate, sensible, respectable, hospitable, an apt teacher, 3not a drunkard, not violent but gentle, not quarrelsome, and not a lover of money. 4He must manage his own household well, keeping his children submissive and respectful in every way— 5for if someone does not know how to manage his own household, how can he take care of God's church? 6He must not be a recent convert, or he may be puffed up with conceit and fall into the condemnation of the devil. 7Moreover, he must be well thought of by outsiders, so that he may not fall into disgrace and the snare of the devil.

8 Deacons likewise must be serious, not double-tongued, not indulging in much wine, not greedy for money; 9they must hold fast to the mystery of the faith with a clear conscience. 10And let them first be tested; then, if they prove themselves blameless, let them serve as deacons. 11Women[j] likewise must be serious, not slanderers, but temperate, faithful in all things. 12Let deacons be married only once,[k] and let them manage their children and their households well; 13for those who serve well as deacons gain a good standing for themselves and great boldness in the faith that is in Christ Jesus.

14 I hope to come to you soon, but I am writing these instructions to you so that, 15if I am delayed, you may know how one ought to behave in the household of God, which is the church of the living God, the pillar and bulwark of the truth. 16Without any doubt, the mystery of our religion is great:

He[l] was revealed in flesh, vindicated[m] in spirit,[n]
seen by angels,
proclaimed among Gentiles, believed in throughout the world,
taken up in glory.

4 Now the Spirit expressly says that in later[o] times some will renounce the faith by paying attention to deceitful spirits and teachings of demons, 2through the hypocrisy of liars whose consciences are seared with a hot iron.
3They forbid marriage and demand abstinence from foods, which God created to be received with thanksgiving by those who believe and know the truth.
4For everything created by God is good,
and nothing is to be rejected, provided it is received with thanksgiving; 5for it is sanctified by God's word and by prayer.

6 If you put these instructions before the brothers and sisters,[p] you will be a good servant[q] of Christ Jesus, nourished on the words of the faith and of the sound teaching that you have followed. 7Have nothing to do with profane myths and old wives' tales. Train yourself in godliness, 8for, while physical training is of some value, godliness is valuable in every way, holding promise for both the present life and the life to come. 9The saying is sure and worthy of full acceptance. 10For to this end we toil and struggle,[r] because we have our hope set on the living God, who is the Savior of all people, especially of those who believe.

11 These are the things you must insist on and teach. 12Let no one despise your youth, but set the believers an example in speech and conduct, in love, in faith, in purity. 13Until I arrive, give attention to the public reading of scripture,[s] to exhorting, to teaching. 14Do not neglect the gift that is in you, which was given to you through prophecy with the laying on of hands by the council of elders.[t] 15Put these things into practice, devote yourself to them, so that all may see your progress. 16Pay close attention to yourself and to your teaching; continue in these things, for in doing this you will save both yourself and your hearers.

5 Do not speak harshly to an older

in the work of the deacons (Rom 16.1). 14–16: Practical problems in perspective; administration is not a necessary evil but a spiritual task in the household of God (1 Cor 12.28). 16: Christ is the content of the mystery. ther, to younger men as brothers, [2]to older women as mothers, to younger women as sisters—with absolute purity.

3 Honor widows who are really widows. [4]If a widow has children or grandchildren, they should first learn their religious duty to their own family and make some repayment to their parents; for this is pleasing in God's sight. [5]The real widow, left alone, has set her hope on God and continues in supplications and prayers night and day; [6]but the widow[v] who lives for pleasure is dead even while she lives. [7]Give these commands as well, so that they may be above reproach. [8]And whoever does not provide for relatives, and especially for family members, has denied the faith and is worse than an unbeliever.

9 Let a widow be put on the list if she is not less than sixty years old and has been married only once;[w] [10]she must be well attested for her good works, as one who has brought up children, shown hospitality, washed the saints' feet, helped the afflicted, and devoted herself to doing good in every way. [11]But refuse to put younger widows on the list; for when their sensual desires alienate them from Christ, they want to marry, [12]and so they incur condemnation for having violated their first pledge. [13]Besides that, they learn to be idle, gadding about from house to house; and they are not merely idle, but also gossips and busybodies, saying what they should not say. [14]So I would have younger widows marry, bear children, and manage their households, so as to give the adversary no occasion to revile us. [15]For some have already turned away to follow Satan. [16]If any believing woman[x] has relatives who are really widows, let her assist them; let the church not be burdened, so that it can assist those who are real widows.

17 Let the elders who rule well be considered worthy of double honor,[y] especially those who labor in preaching and teaching; [18]for the scripture says, "You shall not muzzle an ox while it is treading out the grain," and, "The laborer deserves to be paid." [19]Never accept any accusation against an elder except on the evidence of two or three witnesses. [20]As for those who persist in sin, rebuke them in the presence of all, so that the rest also may stand in fear. [21]In the presence of God and of Christ Jesus and of the elect angels, I warn you to keep these instructions without prejudice, doing nothing on the basis of partiality. [22]Do not ordain[z] anyone hastily, and do not participate in the sins of others; keep yourself pure.

23 No longer drink only water, but take a little wine for the sake of your stomach and your frequent ailments.

24 The sins of some people are conspicuous and precede them to judgment, while the sins of others follow them there. [25]So also good works are conspicuous; and even when they are not, they cannot remain hidden.

6 Let all who are under the yoke of slavery regard their masters as worthy of all honor, so that the name of God and the teaching may not be blasphemed. 2Those who have believing masters must not be disrespectful to them on the ground that they are members of the church;[a] rather they must serve them all the more, since those who benefit by their service are believers and beloved.[b]

Teach and urge these duties. 3Whoever teaches otherwise and does not agree with the sound words of our Lord Jesus Christ and the teaching that is in accordance with godliness, 4is conceited, understanding nothing, and has a morbid craving for controversy and for disputes about words. From these come envy, dissension, slander, base suspicions, 5and wrangling among those who are depraved in mind and bereft of the truth, imagining that godliness is a means of gain.[c] 6Of course, there is great gain in godliness combined with contentment; 7for we brought nothing into the world, so that[d] we can take nothing out of it; 8but if we have food and clothing, we will be content with these. 9But those who want to be rich fall into temptation and are trapped by many senseless and harmful desires that plunge people into ruin and destruction. 10For the love of money is a root of all kinds of evil, and in their eagerness to be rich some have wandered away from the faith and pierced themselves with many pains.

11 But as for you, man of God, shun all this; pursue righteousness, godliness, faith, love, endurance, gentleness. 12Fight the good fight of the faith; take hold of the eternal life, to which you were called and for which you made[e] the good confession in the presence of many witnesses. 13In the presence of God, who gives life to all things, and of Christ Jesus, who in his testimony before Pontius Pilate made the good confession, I charge you 14to keep the commandment without spot or blame until the manifestation of our Lord Jesus Christ, 15which he will bring about at the right time—he who is the blessed and only Sovereign, the King of kings and Lord of lords. 16It is he alone who has immortality and dwells in unapproachable light, whom no one has ever seen or can see; to him be honor and eternal dominion. Amen.

17 As for those who in the present age are rich, command them not to be haughty, or to set their hopes on the uncertainty of riches, but rather on God who richly provides us with everything for our enjoyment. 18They are to do good, to be rich in good works, generous, and ready to share, 19thus storing up for themselves the treasure of a good foundation for the future, so that they may take hold of the life that really is life.

20 Timothy, guard what has been entrusted to you. Avoid the profane chatter and contradictions of what is falsely called knowledge; 21by professing it some have missed the mark as regards the faith.

Grace be with you.[f]

The Second Letter of Paul to Timothy

From the Book of Acts we learn that Timothy was from Lystra in Asia Minor, and was the son of a Greek father and a Jewish mother who had become a Christian (Acts 16.1), and in Acts Timothy is mentioned as a companion of Paul in his travels. According to 2 Tim 1.5; 3.15, Timothy had known the Hebrew Scriptures from his childhood, and through his mother's and grandmother's influence he had become a Christian before Paul's arrival. In several of Paul's letters Timothy is mentioned as a trusted companion and fellow worker (Rom 16.21; 1 Cor 4.17, etc.) or he is joined with Paul in the greeting of the letter (2 Cor 1.1; Phil 1.1, etc.).

Second Timothy is the most personal of the Pastoral Letters; most of it is directed specifically to Timothy. By contrast, most of Titus and 1 Timothy consist of general teaching for the congregation. This letter, however, presents Paul speaking directly to Timothy, and thus of all the Pastorals it has the best claim to direct Pauline authorship or to having within it substantial fragments that Paul had written to Timothy. It must be recognized, furthermore, that in this period the form of the personal letter (along with more general forms of instruction) was used pseudonymously to give teaching that could be applied beyond the situation of a particular recipient. If it was written in the generation after Paul, it presents in Paul's name a set of instructions for church leaders. The personal cast of the letter may thus reflect either direct or indirect authorship by Paul, but in either case it is a presentation of Paul's teaching to the churches. See the Introduction to 1 Timothy for further discussion of date and authorship.

Second Timothy is an earnest pastoral letter from a veteran missionary to a younger colleague. Like the other Pastorals, it presents a teaching suitable for continuing life in the world, though it does refer to the "last days" (3.1). It pictures Timothy as responsible for a group of churches and for preserving them from destructive influences from without and from dissidents within. Endurance is a prime quality for such a leader. Timothy is urged to rekindle the gift of God within him (1.3–7); he is not to be ashamed of witnessing to the Lord (1.8–18); and is to take his share of suffering as a good soldier of Jesus Christ (2.1–13). As he encounters false teachers with their "profane chatter," he must endeavor to be a sound worker, handling the word rightly (2.14–19), and to purify himself from what is ignoble, to be a vessel fit for the Master's use (2.20–26). In this he can be helped by the example of Paul (3.10–17), who is now at the end of his career and awaits the crown of righteousness. The farewell words (4.6–8) are a moving testimony of Christian fortitude and hope in the face of certain martyrdom.

1 Paul, an apostle of Christ Jesus by the will of God, for the sake of the promise of life that is in Christ Jesus,

2 To Timothy, my beloved child:

Grace, mercy, and peace from God the Father and Christ Jesus our Lord.

3 I am grateful to God—whom I worship with a clear conscience, as my ancestors did—when I remember you constantly in my prayers night and day. 4Recalling your tears, I long to see you so that I may be filled with joy. 5I am reminded of your sincere faith, a faith that lived first in your grandmother Lois and your mother Eunice and now, I am sure, lives in you. 6For this reason I remind you to rekindle the gift of God that is within you through the laying on of my hands; 7for God did not give us a spirit of cowardice, but rather a spirit of power and of love and of self-discipline.

8 Do not be ashamed, then, of the testimony about our Lord or of me his prisoner, but join with me in suffering for the gospel, relying on the power of God, 9who saved us and called us with a holy calling, not according to our works but according to his own purpose and grace. This grace was given to us in Christ Jesus before the ages began, 10but it has now been revealed through the appearing of our Savior Christ Jesus, who abolished death and brought life and immortality to light through the gospel. 11For this gospel I was appointed a herald and an apostle and a teacher,[a] 12and for this reason I suffer as I do. But I am not ashamed, for I know the one in whom I have put my trust, and I am sure that he is able to guard until that day what I have entrusted to him.[b] 13Hold to the standard of sound teaching that you have heard from me, in the faith and love that are in Christ Jesus. 14Guard the good treasure entrusted to you, with the help of the Holy Spirit living in us.

15 You are aware that all who are in Asia have turned away from me, including Phygelus and Hermogenes. 16May the Lord grant mercy to the household of Onesiphorus, because he often refreshed me and was not ashamed of my chain; 17when he arrived in Rome, he eagerly[c] searched for me and found me 18—may the Lord grant that he will find mercy from the Lord on that day! And you know very well how much service he rendered in Ephesus.

2 You then, my child, be strong in the grace that is in Christ Jesus; 2and what you have heard from me through many witnesses entrust to faithful people who will be able to teach others as well. 3Share in suffering like a good soldier of Christ Jesus. 4No one serving in the army gets entangled in everyday affairs; the soldier's aim is to please the enlisting officer. 5And in the case of an athlete, no one is crowned without competing according to the rules. 6It is the farmer who does the work who ought to have the first share of the crops. 7Think over what I say, for the Lord will give you understanding in all things.

8 Remember Jesus Christ, raised from the dead, a descendant of David—that is my gospel, 9for which I suffer hardship, even to the point of being chained like a criminal. But the word of God is not chained. 10Therefore I endure everything for the sake of the elect, so that they may also obtain the salvation that is in Christ Jesus, with eternal glory.

11The saying is sure:

If we have died with him, we will also live with him; 12 if we endure, we will also reign
with him;
if we deny him, he will also deny us;
13 if we are faithless, he remains faithful—
for he cannot deny himself.

14 Remind them of this, and warn them before God[d] that they are to avoid wrangling over words, which does no good but only ruins those who are listening. 15Do your best to present yourself to God as one approved by him, a worker who has no need to be ashamed, rightly explaining the word of truth. 16Avoid profane chatter, for it will lead people into more and more impiety, 17and their talk will spread like gangrene. Among them are Hymenaeus and Philetus, 18who have swerved from the truth by claiming that the resurrection has already taken place. They are upsetting the faith of some. 19But God's firm foundation stands, bearing this inscription: "The Lord knows those who are his," and, "Let everyone who calls on the name of the Lord turn away from wickedness."

20 In a large house there are utensils not only of gold and silver but also of wood and clay, some for special use, some for ordinary. 21All who cleanse themselves of the things I have mentioned[e] will become special utensils, dedicated and useful to the owner of the house, ready for every good work. 22Shun youthful passions and pursue righteousness, faith, love, and peace, along with those who call on the Lord from a pure heart. 23Have nothing to do with stupid and senseless controversies; you know that they breed quarrels. 24And the Lord's servant[f] must not be quarrelsome but kindly to everyone, an apt teacher, patient, 25correcting opponents with gentleness. God may perhaps grant that they will repent and come to know the truth, 26and that they may escape from the snare of the devil, having been held captive by him to do his will.[g]

3 You must understand this, that in the last days distressing times will come. 2For people will be lovers of themselves, lovers of money, boasters, arrogant, abusive, disobedient to their parents, ungrateful, unholy, 3inhuman, implacable, slanderers, profligates, brutes, haters of good, 4treacherous, reckless, swollen with conceit, lovers of pleasure rather than lovers of God, 5holding to the outward form of godli-

ness but denying its power. Avoid them! 6For among them are those who make their way into households and captivate silly women, overwhelmed by their sins and swayed by all kinds of desires, 7who are always being instructed and can never arrive at a knowledge of the truth. 8As Jannes and Jambres opposed Moses, so these people, of corrupt mind and counterfeit faith, also oppose the truth. 9But they will not make much progress, because, as in the case of those two men,[h] their folly will become plain to everyone.

10 Now you have observed my teaching, my conduct, my aim in life, my faith, my patience, my love, my steadfastness, 11my persecutions, and my suffering the things that happened to me in Antioch, Iconium, and Lystra. What persecutions I endured! Yet the Lord rescued me from all of them. 12Indeed, all who want to live a godly life in Christ Jesus will be persecuted. 13But wicked people and impostors will go from bad to worse, deceiving others and being deceived. 14But as for you, continue in what you have learned and firmly believed, knowing from whom you learned it, 15and how from childhood you have known the sacred writings that are able to instruct you for salvation through faith in Christ Jesus. 16All scripture is inspired by God and is[i] useful for teaching, for reproof, for correction, and for training in righteousness, 17so that everyone who belongs to God may be proficient, equipped for every good work.

4 In the presence of God and of Christ Jesus, who is to judge the living and the dead, and in view of his appearing and his kingdom, I solemnly urge you: 2proclaim the message; be persistent whether the time is favorable or unfavorable; convince, rebuke, and encourage, with the utmost patience in teaching. 3For the time is coming when people will not put up with sound doctrine, but having itching ears, they will accumulate for themselves teachers to suit their own desires, 4and will turn away from listening to the truth and wander away to myths. 5As for you, always be sober, endure suffering, do the work of an evangelist, carry out your ministry fully.

6 As for me, I am already being poured out as a libation, and the time of my departure has come. 7I have fought the good fight, I have finished the race, I have kept the faith. 8From now on there is reserved for me the crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, will give me on that day, and not only to me but also to all who have longed for his appearing.

9 Do your best to come to me soon, 10for Demas, in love with this present world, has deserted me and gone to Thessalonica; Crescens has gone to Galatia,[j] Titus to Dalmatia. 11Only Luke is with me. Get Mark and bring him with you, for he is useful in my ministry. 12I have sent Tychicus to Ephesus. 13When you come, bring the cloak that I left with Carpus at Troas, also the books, and above all the parchments. 14Alexander the coppersmith did me great harm; the Lord will pay him back for his deeds.

The Letter of Paul to # Titus

Although he is not mentioned in the Acts of the Apostles, Titus appears as an important companion of Paul in Galatians and in 2 Corinthians. In Gal 2.1–3 we learn that Titus accompanied Paul on the visit to Jerusalem when Paul's apostleship was recognized by the Jerusalem leaders (see also Acts 15.2, "some of the others" went with Paul and Barnabas). Titus was the focus of a vigorous debate about circumcision (since as a non-Jew he had not been circumcised), and Paul resisted all efforts made in demanding that he be circumcised.

After Paul had established the church in Corinth, and while he was absent, he twice sent Titus there in his effort to reestablish his leadership of that church. Titus's mission was important in effecting a reconciliation between Paul and the church in Corinth (2 Cor 7.6–7, 13–14; 8.6, 16–17; see the Introduction to 2 Corinthians). If Paul and Titus traveled to Crete as the letter to Titus presupposes, this may have been as part of the visit to Greece mentioned in Acts 20.3, or at a later time if Paul was released from the Roman imprisonment with which Acts 28 closes. The author of 2 Timothy mentions (4.10) that Titus had gone to Dalmatia, a region on the eastern side of the Adriatic Sea. In the present letter, Paul wrote to Titus giving directions for the administration of the new churches of Crete. If the author of Titus was writing in Paul's name, he drew upon the association of Paul and Titus to frame a series of directions for missionary supervision of new churches. (On date and authorship, see the Introduction to 1 Timothy).

The teaching of this letter is strongly parallel to that of 1 Timothy, and like that letter, it is principally made up of general teaching rather than being directed to an individual person. The Letter to Titus has three main topics, corresponding to its chapter divisions. The first (ch 1) sets forth what is required of church leaders ("elders" or "bishops") in the face of various false teachers and local shortcomings. As in both 1 and 2 Timothy, wrong teaching is seen to result in immoral behavior. The second division suggests the proper approach to different groups in the church: older men (2.1–2), older women (2.3–5), younger men (2.6–8), and slaves (2.9–10); the emphasis on the submissiveness of women and slaves is in accord with the patriarchal tradition of the time. This section concludes with a summary of what is expected of believers in view of God's grace (2.11–15). The third division (ch 3) unfolds this ethical program in terms that presuppose the continuing life of the church in the world and the responsibility of believers to be good citizens, admonishing the readers to avoid hatred and wrangling and to manifest the meekness, gentleness, obedience, and courtesy made possible by God's mercy in Christ.

1 Paul, a servant[a] of God and an apostle of Jesus Christ, for the sake of the faith of God's elect and the knowledge of the truth that is in accordance with godliness, 2in the hope of eternal life that God, who never lies, promised before the ages began— 3in due time he revealed his word through the proclamation with which I have been entrusted by the command of God our Savior,

4 To Titus, my loyal child in the faith we share:

Grace[b] and peace from God the Father and Christ Jesus our Savior.

5 I left you behind in Crete for this reason, so that you should put in order what remained to be done, and should appoint elders in every town, as I directed you: 6someone who is blameless, married only once,[c] whose children are believers, not accused of debauchery and not rebellious. 7For a bishop,[d] as God's steward, must be blameless; he must not be arrogant or quick-tempered or addicted to wine or violent or greedy for gain; 8but he must be hospitable, a lover of goodness, prudent, upright, devout, and self-controlled. 9He must have a firm grasp of the word that is trustworthy in accordance with the teaching, so that he may be able both to preach with sound doctrine and to refute those who contradict it.

10 There are also many rebellious people, idle talkers and deceivers, especially those of the circumcision; 11they must be silenced, since they are upsetting whole families by teaching for sordid gain what it is not right to teach. 12It was one of them, their very own prophet, who said,

"Cretans are always liars, vicious brutes, lazy gluttons."

13That testimony is true. For this reason rebuke them sharply, so that they may become sound in the faith, 14not paying attention to Jewish myths or to commandments of those who reject the truth. 15To the pure all things are pure, but to the corrupt and unbelieving nothing is pure. Their very minds and consciences are corrupted. 16They profess to know God, but they deny him by their actions. They are detestable, disobedient, unfit for any good work.

2 But as for you, teach what is consistent with sound doctrine. 2Tell the older men to be temperate, serious, prudent, and sound in faith, in love, and in endurance.

3 Likewise, tell the older women to be reverent in behavior, not to be slanderers or slaves to drink; they are to teach what is good, 4so that they may encourage the young women to love their husbands, to love their children, 5to be self-controlled, chaste, good managers of the household, kind, being submissive to their husbands, so that the word of God may not be discredited.

6 Likewise, urge the younger men to be self-controlled. 7Show yourself in all respects a model of good works, and in your teaching show integrity, gravity, [8]and sound speech that cannot be censured; then any opponent will be put to shame, having nothing evil to say of us.

9 Tell slaves to be submissive to their masters and to give satisfaction in every respect; they are not to talk back, [10]not to pilfer, but to show complete and perfect fidelity, so that in everything they may be an ornament to the doctrine of God our Savior.

11 For the grace of God has appeared, bringing salvation to all,[e] [12]training us to renounce impiety and worldly passions, and in the present age to live lives that are self-controlled, upright, and godly, [13]while we wait for the blessed hope and the manifestation of the glory of our great God and Savior,[f] Jesus Christ. [14]He it is who gave himself for us that he might redeem us from all iniquity and purify for himself a people of his own who are zealous for good deeds.

15 Declare these things; exhort and reprove with all authority.[g] Let no one look down on you.

3 Remind them to be subject to rulers and authorities, to be obedient, to be ready for every good work, [2]to speak evil of no one, to avoid quarreling, to be gentle, and to show every courtesy to everyone. [3]For we ourselves were once foolish, disobedient, led astray, slaves to various passions and pleasures, passing our days in malice and envy, despicable, hating one another. [4]But when the goodness and loving kindness of God our Savior appeared, [5]he saved us, not because of any works of righteousness that we had done, but according to his mercy, through the water[h] of rebirth and renewal by the Holy Spirit. [6]This Spirit he poured out on us richly through Jesus Christ our Savior, [7]so that, having been justified by his grace, we might become heirs according to the hope of eternal life. [8]The saying is sure.

I desire that you insist on these things, so that those who have come to believe in God may be careful to devote themselves to good works; these things are excellent and profitable to everyone. [9]But avoid stupid controversies, genealogies, dissensions, and quarrels about the law, for they are unprofitable and worthless. [10]After a first and second admonition, have nothing more to do with anyone who causes divisions, [11]since you know that such a person is perverted and sinful, being self-condemned.

12 When I send Artemas to you, or Tychicus, do your best to come to me at Nicopolis, for I have decided to spend the winter there. [13]Make every effort to send Zenas the lawyer and Apollos on their way, and see that they lack nothing. [14]And let people learn to devote themselves to good works in order to meet urgent needs, so that they may not be unproductive.

15 All who are with me send greetings to you. Greet those who love us in the faith.

Grace be with all of you.[i]

The Letter of Paul to # Philemon

The Letter to Philemon was to be delivered by Onesimus (v. 10), a slave who had emancipated himself and whom Paul was sending back to his master, as the law required. Although the letter has this specific purpose, it is not a private letter, for others are addressed as well as Philemon, including the whole church that meets in his house (v. 2). Paul sets the personal message and the question of how to treat the returning slave in the context of the life of the church, and thereby indirectly points to his own authority as apostle (v. 8) and as the one to whom Philemon owed his conversion to Christian faith (v. 19).

Why Onesimus had left is not stated. A slave who had deserted could be severely punished and even put to death. Evidently Onesimus had made his way to Paul, and had become a Christian while with him (v. 16). He had become very "useful" to Paul (v. 11), who suggests that he will now be the same to Philemon (in Greek Onesimus means "useful"); that is, Onesimus has changed and should return to a changed situation.

Paul does not address the general question of slavery as a social institution, nor does he discuss whether or not Onesimus should be set free. He expects Onesimus to be received back with forgiveness into the household of Philemon and at the same time to be received into the community of the church as a full and equal member (a "brother," v. 16). Elsewhere he speaks of slaves and free as one in Christ (Gal 3.28; Col 3.11).

The Letter to Philemon illustrates in a very concrete way how Paul applied his grasp of love or agape to the problem between Philemon and Onesimus. Paul's authority stands in the background, and he undertakes to be responsible for whatever Onesimus may owe (vv. 18–19). Yet Paul does not want to appeal to his own authority; he wants the decision to be Philemon's own choice. But Paul expects that the relation between master and slave will be set in the context of the church and transformed by the love that is active there.

Onesimus is identified elsewhere as coming from Colossae (Col 4.9), as is Archippus who is mentioned in the opening greeting of this letter (v. 2; Col 4.17). Hence Philemon and the church in his house were in Colossae. Since most of those who are greeted at the end of the letter are also mentioned in the close of Colossians, it is probable that the two letters were written at nearly the same time, if Paul was the author of Colossians, or that the author of Colossians had Philemon at hand, if Paul was not the author (see Introduction to Colossians).

Paul wrote from prison (vv. 1, 9), perhaps in Rome or Caesarea. But many scholars today think that Ephesus is the most likely to be the place where Paul wrote Philemon.

1 Paul, a prisoner of Christ Jesus, and Timothy our brother, [a]

To Philemon our dear friend and co-worker, 2to Apphia our sister, [b] to Archippus our fellow soldier, and to the church in your house:

3 Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

4 When I remember you [c] in my prayers, I always thank my God 5because I hear of your love for all the saints and your faith toward the Lord Jesus. 6I pray that the sharing of your faith may become effective when you perceive all the good that we [d] may do for Christ. 7I have indeed received much joy and encouragement from your love, because the hearts of the saints have been refreshed through you, my brother.

8 For this reason, though I am bold enough in Christ to command you to do your duty, 9yet I would rather appeal to you on the basis of love—and I, Paul, do this as an old man, and now also as a prisoner of Christ Jesus. [e] 10I am appealing to you for my child, Onesimus, whose father I have become during my imprisonment. 11Formerly he was useless to you, but now he is indeed useful [f] both to you and to me. 12I am sending him, that is, my own heart, back to you. 13I wanted to keep him with me, so that he might be of service to me in your place during my imprisonment for the gospel; 14but I preferred to do nothing without your consent, in order that your good deed might be voluntary and not something forced. 15Perhaps this is the reason he was separated from you for a while, so that you might have him back forever, 16no longer as a slave but more than a slave, a beloved brother—especially to me but how much more to you, both in the flesh and in the Lord.

17 So if you consider me your partner, welcome him as you would welcome me. 18If he has wronged you in any way, or owes you anything, charge that to my account. 19I, Paul, am writing this with my own hand: I will repay it. I say nothing about your owing me even your own self. 20Yes, brother, let me have this benefit from you in the Lord! Refresh my heart in Christ. 21Confident of your obedience, I am writing to you, knowing that you will do even more than I say.

22 One thing more—prepare a guest room for me, for I am hoping through your prayers to be restored to you.

23 Epaphras, my fellow prisoner in Christ Jesus, sends greetings to you, [g] 24and so do Mark, Aristarchus, Demas, and Luke, my fellow workers.

25 The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirit. [h]

The Letter to the Hebrews

This anonymous treatise combines a theological argument for the finality of salvation, achieved by Christ, with repeated exhortations, directed to those whose faith and practice are weakening, not to abandon that salvation (2.1; 10.32–36; 13.22). With a careful and closely-knit discussion, the unknown author moves with confidence step by step through an elaborate analysis. Three main points are emphasized; (a) The superiority of Jesus Christ to the prophets (1.1–3), to the angels (1.5–2.18), and to Moses himself (3.1–6); (b) The superiority of Christ's priesthood to the levitical priesthood (4.14–7.28); and (c) The superiority of Christ's sacrifice, offered in the heavenly sanctuary, to the many animal sacrifices offered on earth by the levitical priests (8.1–10.39).

Some scholars conclude that the author's argument for the superiority of Christ's sacrifice over those offered by the levitical priests indicates that the recipients were in danger of adopting or returning to Jewish ritual practices, and that therefore the letter must have been composed before the destruction of the Jerusalem temple in A.D. 70 had brought sacrificial ritual to an end. Although this conclusion cannot be definitively ruled out, it is not demanded, for both Jewish and Christian authors write about temple sacrifice after the cultus had ceased. In any case, Hebrews is not referring to the Jerusalem cultus, since the argument in the treatise is developed from references to the tent shrine of Exodus.

By mid-second century Alexandrian exegetes had placed Hebrews among the letters of Paul, though they recognized that it was so different in language and style from the Pauline correspondence that some special account of its authorship was required. Thus Clement thought that Luke had translated a Pauline letter written in Hebrew (though the presence of plays on words in Greek shows that it is not a translation), and Origen held that it was written by an unknown disciple of Paul's. In any case, 2.3–4 suggests that the author comes from a generation after that of the apostles.

The addressees had formerly been subject to persecution, imprisonment, and loss of property as a result of their faith. Having met all those trials with joy, they must continue in faith and good works until the coming of the Lord (10.32–39). This exhortation is followed by an encomium on faith that traces the faithful endurance of all the great heroes of the Hebrew Scriptures, who have their hopes fulfilled in the people redeemed by Christ's sacrifice (11.1–40). Jesus' own life is an example of faithful endurance that Christians should imitate (12.1–11).

The Letter to the Hebrews concludes with an exhortation to remember the exemplary lives of past leaders of the community (13.7) and to submit to its present leaders, who are responsible for the souls of those entrusted to them (13.17). An epistolary closing, modelled on the style of the Pauline letters (travel plans, benediction, appeal and greetings, farewell) ends the treatise (13.20–25). Although the author speaks of the work as a discourse or "word of exhortation" (5.11; 6.1; 13.22), this ending led to the common designation of Hebrews as a "letter."

1 Long ago God spoke to our ancestors in many and various ways by the prophets, 2but in these last days he has spoken to us by a Son,[a] whom he appointed heir of all things, through whom he also created the worlds. 3He is the reflection of God's glory and the exact imprint of God's very being, and he sustains[b] all things by his powerful word. When he had made purification for sins, he sat down at the right hand of the Majesty on high, 4having become as much superior to angels as the name he has inherited is more excellent than theirs.

5 For to which of the angels did God ever say,

"You are my Son;
today I have begotten you"?

Or again,

"I will be his Father,
and he will be my Son"?

6And again, when he brings the firstborn into the world, he says,

"Let all God's angels worship him."

7Of the angels he says,

"He makes his angels winds, and his servants flames of fire."

8But of the Son he says,

"Your throne, O God, is[c] forever and ever,
and the righteous scepter is the scepter of your[d] kingdom.
9 You have loved righteousness and hated wickedness;
therefore God, your God, has anointed you with the oil of gladness beyond your companions."

10And,

"In the beginning, Lord, you founded the earth,
and the heavens are the work of your hands; 11 they will perish, but you remain;
they will all wear out like clothing;
12 like a cloak you will roll them up,
and like clothing[e] they will be changed.
But you are the same,
and your years will never end."

13But to which of the angels has he ever said,

"Sit at my right hand
until I make your enemies a footstool for your feet"?

14Are not all angels[f] spirits in the divine service, sent to serve for the sake of those who are to inherit salvation?

2 Therefore we must pay greater attention to what we have heard, so that we do not drift away from it. 2For if the message declared through angels was valid, and every transgression or disobedience received a just penalty, 3how can we escape if we neglect so great a salvation? It was declared at first through the Lord, and it was attested to us by those who heard him, 4while God added his testimony by signs and wonders and

1.1–4: The prologue, a stately declaration of the author's theme, namely the finality of salvation in Christ. Note the contrasts between long ago and in these last days, to our ancestors and to us, by the prophets and by a Son; yet it is the same God who spoke then and speaks now. God's Son, who is the exact counterpart of the Father (v. 3), not only had part in the creation (Jn 1.1–3), but continues to sustain all things (Col 1.15–17). Having accomplished his priestly work of purification for sins (v. 3), he was enthroned in divine splendor. Christ's sonship and priesthood are the basis of salvation.

1.5–2.18: The superiority of Christ to angels.

1.5–13: Seven quotations from the Old Testament. 5: Ps 2.7 and 2 Sam 7.14. 6: Deut 32.43 Septuagint, compare Ps 97.7. 7: Ps 104.4. 8–9: Ps 45.6–7. 10–12: Ps 102.25–27. 13: Ps 110.1. 14: Unlike the divine Son, angels are spirits, who are sent to serve.

various miracles, and by gifts of the Holy Spirit, distributed according to his will.

5 Now God[g] did not subject the coming world, about which we are speaking, to angels. 6 But someone has testified somewhere,

"What are human beings that you are mindful of them,[h] or mortals, that you care for them?[i] 7 You have made them for a little while lower[j] than the angels;
you have crowned them with glory and honor,[k]
8 subjecting all things under their feet."

Now in subjecting all things to them, God[g] left nothing outside their control. As it is, we do not yet see everything in subjection to them, 9 but we do see Jesus, who for a little while was made lower[l] than the angels, now crowned with glory and honor because of the suffering of death, so that by the grace of God[m] he might taste death for everyone.

10 It was fitting that God,[g] for whom and through whom all things exist, in bringing many children to glory, should make the pioneer of their salvation perfect through sufferings. 11 For the one who sanctifies and those who are sanctified all have one Father.[n] For this reason Jesus[g] is not ashamed to call them brothers and sisters,[o] 12 saying,

"I will proclaim your name to my brothers and sisters,[o]
in the midst of the congregation I will praise you."

13 And again,

"I will put my trust in him."

And again,

"Here am I and the children whom God has given me."

14 Since, therefore, the children share flesh and blood, he himself likewise shared the same things, so that through death he might destroy the one who has the power of death, that is, the devil, 15 and free those who all their lives were held in slavery by the fear of death. 16 For it is clear that he did not come to help angels, but the descendants of Abraham. 17 Therefore he had to become like his brothers and sisters[o] in every respect, so that he might be a merciful and faithful high priest in the service of God, to make a sacrifice of atonement for the sins of the people. 18 Because he himself was tested by what he suffered, he is able to help those who are being tested.

2.5–18: The humiliation and exaltation of Jesus. Though Jesus, in his humiliation, was for a little while . . . lower than the angels (v. 9), his suffering was temporary and enabled him to be a merciful and faithful high priest (v. 17). 6–8: Quoted from Ps 8.4–6; for a little while (v. 7) agrees with the Septuagint, not the Hebrew. 9: Jesus' exaltation is the consequence of his humiliation (12.2; Phil 2.6–11). Taste death, a biblical expression for its bitterness (Isa 51.17; Jer 49.18; Mt 16.28).

2.10–18: The high destiny of humankind described in Ps 8, is to be attained through the work of Christ. 10: It was fitting, it was in accord with God's gracious plan of salvation. The expression, "to make perfect," is characteristic of this letter (5.9; 7.19, 28; 9.9; 10.1, 14; 11.40; 12.23) and means "to make complete, to bring to maturity." Christ as pioneer goes before and points out the way to his followers (12.2); the same Greek word is translated "Author" (Acts 3.15) and "Leader" (Acts 5.31). 11: The one who sanctifies, Jesus Christ; those who are sanctified, see 10.10 n. One Father, God. 12: Ps 22.22. 13: Isa 8.17–18. 14–15: The eternal Son became a human being in order to overcome the devil and to free humanity from death (Rom 6.23). 17: As high priest the Son is both sympathetic (merciful; compare 5.2–3) and trustworthy (faithful; compare 3.2, 6), to make a sacrifice of atonement continually for sins that bring death and the fear of it to God's people (vv. 14–15). 18: At Gethsemane, and elsewhere, Jesus was tested by death on the cross (5.7–8); therefore he can help those who are being tested by apostasy.

3 Therefore, brothers and sisters,[p] holy partners in a heavenly calling, consider that Jesus, the apostle and high priest of our confession, 2was faithful to the one who appointed him, just as Moses also "was faithful in all[q] God's[r] house." 3Yet Jesus[s] is worthy of more glory than Moses, just as the builder of a house has more honor than the house itself. 4(For every house is built by someone, but the builder of all things is God.) 5Now Moses was faithful in all God's[r] house as a servant, to testify to the things that would be spoken later. 6Christ, however, was faithful over God's[r] house as a son, and we are his house if we hold firm[t] the confidence and the pride that belong to hope.

7 Therefore, as the Holy Spirit says,
"Today, if you hear his voice,
8 do not harden your hearts as in the rebellion,
as on the day of testing in the wilderness, 9 where your ancestors put me to the test,
though they had seen my works 10for forty years.
Therefore I was angry with that generation,
and I said, 'They always go astray in their hearts,
and they have not known my ways.'
11 As in my anger I swore,
'They will not enter my rest.' "

12Take care, brothers and sisters,[p] that none of you may have an evil, unbelieving heart that turns away from the living God. 13But exhort one another every day, as long as it is called "today," so that none of you may be hardened by the deceitfulness of sin. 14For we have become partners of Christ, if only we hold our first confidence firm to the end. 15As it is said,

"Today, if you hear his voice,
do not harden your hearts as in the rebellion."

16Now who were they who heard and yet were rebellious? Was it not all those who left Egypt under the leadership of Moses? 17But with whom was he angry forty years? Was it not those who sinned, whose bodies fell in the wilderness? 18And to whom did he swear that they would not enter his rest, if not to those who were disobedient? 19So we see that they were unable to enter because of unbelief.

4 Therefore, while the promise of entering his rest is still open, let us take care that none of you should seem to have failed to reach it. 2For indeed the good news came to us just as to them; but the message they heard did not benefit them, because they were not united by

3.1–6: Christ is superior to Moses. 1: Holy partners, the readers are addressed in terms that remind them of their position and responsibility in sharing in a heavenly calling, as distinguished from the calling of Israel to an earthly Canaan. As apostle, Jesus is God's envoy to humankind; as high priest, he is their representative before God. 2: The author first refers to what Jesus and Moses have in common, namely faithfulness to their respective tasks. 3–5: As to position, Jesus (a son) is superior to Moses (a servant in God's house; Num 12.7). 6: We are his house, the community of faithful believers.

3.7–4.13: Warning and exhortation, based on the fate of Israel in the wilderness (Ps 95.7–11).

3.8: Rebellion and testing are translations of the Hebrew names Meribah and Massah in Ps 95.8 (Ex 17.1–7; Num 20.1–13; Deut 33.8). 11: My rest, the peaceful settlement of the promised land of Canaan (4.1–4). 12: Jer 17.5–6. 13: The deceitfulness of sin, disobedience (Num 14.1–4, 34, 41), leading to apostasy (v. 12). 16–18: A series of questions (based on Num 14.1–35) suggests the lessons to be drawn from the failure of the wilderness generation.

4.1–13: The rest that God promised. 1: God's promise, which must be fulfilled, remains for faithful Christians to inherit (v. 6). 2: Those who listened, Num 13.30–14.10. 3: Ps 95.11. 4: Gen 2.2. 5: Ps 95.11. 6: See v. 1 n. 7–8: The possession of Canaan under Joshua faith with those who listened.[u] 3For we who have believed enter that rest, just as God[v] has said,

"As in my anger I swore,
'They shall not enter my rest,' "

though his works were finished at the foundation of the world. 4For in one place it speaks about the seventh day as follows, "And God rested on the seventh day from all his works." 5And again in this place it says, "They shall not enter my rest." 6Since therefore it remains open for some to enter it, and those who formerly received the good news failed to enter because of disobedience, 7again he sets a certain day—"today"—saying through David much later, in the words already quoted,

"Today, if you hear his voice,
do not harden your hearts."

8For if Joshua had given them rest, God[v] would not speak later about another day. 9So then, a sabbath rest still remains for the people of God; 10for those who enter God's rest also cease from their labors as God did from his. 11Let us therefore make every effort to enter that rest, so that no one may fall through such disobedience as theirs.

12 Indeed, the word of God is living and active, sharper than any two-edged sword, piercing until it divides soul from spirit, joints from marrow; it is able to judge the thoughts and intentions of the heart. 13And before him no creature is hidden, but all are naked and laid bare to the eyes of the one to whom we must render an account.

14 Since, then, we have a great high priest who has passed through the heavens, Jesus, the Son of God, let us hold fast to our confession. 15For we do not have a high priest who is unable to sympathize with our weaknesses, but we have one who in every respect has been tested[w] as we are, yet without sin. 16Let us therefore approach the throne of grace with boldness, so that we may receive mercy and find grace to help in time of need.

5 Every high priest chosen from among mortals is put in charge of things pertaining to God on their behalf, to offer gifts and sacrifices for sins. 2He is able to deal gently with the ignorant and wayward, since he himself is subject to weakness; 3and because of this he must offer sacrifice for his own sins as well as for those of the people. 4And one does not presume to take this honor, but takes it only when called by God, just as Aaron was.

5 So also Christ did not glorify himself in becoming a high priest, but was appointed by the one who said to him,

"You are my Son,
today I have begotten you";

6as he says also in another place,

"You are a priest forever,
according to the order of Melchizedek."

7 In the days of his flesh, Jesus[v] offered up prayers and supplications, with loud cries and tears, to the one who was

4.14–5.14: The theme of Jesus our high priest is resumed (compare 2.17–18); he has the two qualifications of a priest, divine appointment (5.4) and the ability to sympathize with our weaknesses (4.15).

4.15–16: Because Christ experienced real, human testing, he is able to sympathize with our weaknesses. 16: At God's throne of grace humans receive mercy for past sins and find grace for present and future need.

5.1: Gifts and sacrifices, grain and animal sacrifices. 2: The Old Testament provides no atoning sacrifice for deliberate and defiant sins (see Num 15.30 n.; Deut 17.12), but only for "unwitting" offenses committed by the ignorant and wayward (Lev ch 4). 4: Aaron, Ex 28.1. 5: Ps 2.7; Lk 3.22 note z. 6: The order of Melchizedek, according to the rank which Melchizedek held (Ps 110.4; see 7.1–10 n.).

11 About this[x] we have much to say that is hard to explain, since you have become dull in understanding. 12 For though by this time you ought to be teachers, you need someone to teach you again the basic elements of the oracles of God. You need milk, not solid food; 13 for everyone who lives on milk, being still an infant, is unskilled in the word of righteousness. 14 But solid food is for the mature, for those whose faculties have been trained by practice to distinguish good from evil.

6 Therefore let us go on toward perfection,[y] leaving behind the basic teaching about Christ, and not laying again the foundation: repentance from dead works and faith toward God, 2 instruction about baptisms, laying on of hands, resurrection of the dead, and eternal judgment. 3 And we will do[z] this, if God permits. 4 For it is impossible to restore again to repentance those who have once been enlightened, and have tasted the heavenly gift, and have shared in the Holy Spirit, 5 and have tasted the goodness of the word of God and the powers of the age to come, 6 and then have fallen away, since on their own they are crucifying again the Son of God and are holding him up to contempt. 7 Ground that drinks up the rain falling on it repeatedly, and that produces a crop useful to those for whom it is cultivated, receives a blessing from God. 8 But if it produces thorns and thistles, it is worthless and on the verge of being cursed; its end is to be burned over.

9 Even though we speak in this way, beloved, we are confident of better things in your case, things that belong to salvation. 10 For God is not unjust; he will not overlook your work and the love that you showed for his sake[a] in serving the saints, as you still do. 11 And we want each one of you to show the same diligence so as to realize the full assurance of hope to the very end, 12 so that you may not become sluggish, but imitators of those who through faith and patience inherit the promises.

13 When God made a promise to Abraham, because he had no one greater by whom to swear, he swore by himself, 14 saying, "I will surely bless you and multiply you." 15 And thus Abraham,[b] having patiently endured, obtained the promise. 16 Human beings, of course, swear by someone greater than themselves, and an oath given as confirmation puts an end to all dispute. 17 In the same way, when God desired to show even more clearly to the heirs of the promise the unchangeable character of his purpose, he guaranteed it by an oath, 18 so that through two unchangeable things, semane (Mk 14.32–42) was heard in the sense that he learned obedience by submitting to the divine will, which involved death. 9: Made perfect, Jesus completed his divinely appointed discipline for priesthood (see 2.10 n.). Eternal salvation, not merely temporary deliverance, such as the levitical law provided (9.12). 10: Melchizedek, see 7.1–10 n. 11–14: The author deplores the spiritual immaturity of the readers. 12–14: Milk stands for rudimentary teachings; solid food, more advanced teaching (1 Cor 3.1–2).

6.1–20: Exhortation and declaration of purpose. Despite misgivings as to the capacity of the readers (5.11–14), and taking basic Christian teaching for granted (6.1–3), the author is resolved to proceed to more advanced subjects. Though it would be useless to address those who have apostatized from the faith (vv. 4–6), who are like worthless ground (vv. 7–8), this gloomy picture does not represent the condition of the readers (vv. 9–12), who are addressed for the first and only time as beloved (v. 9).

6.13–20: The certainty of God's promises. To encourage patient waiting (v. 12) the author mentions the example of Abraham (v. 15). 13–14: Gen 22.16–17. 18: Two un-

in which it is impossible that God would prove false, we who have taken refuge might be strongly encouraged to seize the hope set before us. [19]We have this hope, a sure and steadfast anchor of the soul, a hope that enters the inner shrine behind the curtain, [20]where Jesus, a forerunner on our behalf, has entered, having become a high priest forever according to the order of Melchizedek.

7 This "King Melchizedek of Salem, priest of the Most High God, met Abraham as he was returning from defeating the kings and blessed him"; [2]and to him Abraham apportioned "one-tenth of everything." His name, in the first place, means "king of righteousness"; next he is also king of Salem, that is, "king of peace." [3]Without father, without mother, without genealogy, having neither beginning of days nor end of life, but resembling the Son of God, he remains a priest forever.

4 See how great he is! Even[c] Abraham the patriarch gave him a tenth of the spoils. [5]And those descendants of Levi who receive the priestly office have a commandment in the law to collect tithes[d] from the people, that is, from their kindred,[e] though these also are descended from Abraham. [6]But this man, who does not belong to their ancestry, collected tithes[d] from Abraham and blessed him who had received the promises. [7]It is beyond dispute that the inferior is blessed by the superior. [8]In the one case, tithes are received by those who are mortal; in the other, by one of whom it is testified that he lives. [9]One might even say that Levi himself, who receives tithes, paid tithes through Abraham, [10]for he was still in the loins of his ancestor when Melchizedek met him.

11 Now if perfection had been attainable through the levitical priesthood—for the people received the law under this priesthood—what further need would there have been to speak of another priest arising according to the order of Melchizedek, rather than one according to the order of Aaron? [12]For when there is a change in the priesthood, there is necessarily a change in the law as well. [13]Now the one of whom these things are spoken belonged to another tribe, from which no one has ever served at the altar. [14]For it is evident that our Lord was descended from Judah, and in connection with that tribe Moses said nothing about priests.

15 It is even more obvious when another priest arises, resembling Melchizedek, [16]one who has become a priest, not through a legal requirement concerning physical descent, but through the power of an indestructible life. [17]For it is attested of him,

"You are a priest forever,
according to the order of Melchizedek."

[18]There is, on the one hand, the abrogation of an earlier commandment because it was weak and ineffectual [19](for the law made nothing perfect); there is, on the other hand, the introduction of a better hope, through which we approach God.

changeable things, God's promise and God's oath. 19: The inner shrine, the Holy of Holies (9.3) of the tabernacle, behind the curtain or veil (Ex 26.31–35), restricted to the high priest alone (Lev 16.2). 20: As forerunner, however, Jesus secures our unhindered access to God. Melchizedek, here the author picks up the argument of 5.10.

7.1–28: The priesthood of Melchizedek and the levitical priesthood compared. 1–10: From Gen 14.17–20 the author deduces that the mysterious priest-king, Melchizedek, was greater than either Abraham or his descendent, Levi. 3: Without father, without mother, Melchizedek's ancestors, birth, and death are not recorded in Scripture. 8: Those who are mortal, the levitical priests. One who lives, Melchizedek, whose death is not recorded.

7.11–25: The levitical priesthood is inadequate, because it is provisional and temporary (vv. 11–14). On the other hand, a priest . . . resembling Melchizedek is eternal (Ps 110.4), and the office is neither inherited nor transmitted (vv. 15–19). (Among the Essene community at Qumran, Melchizedek was regarded as an angelic, heavenly figure and judge, who rescues the righteous.) Unlike the levitical priests, Jesus was appointed with a divine oath (Ps 110.4); furthermore, being immortal

20 This was confirmed with an oath;
for others who became priests took their office without an oath, 21 but this one became a priest with an oath, because of the one who said to him,

"The Lord has sworn and will not change his mind,
'You are a priest forever' "—

22 accordingly Jesus has also become the guarantee of a better covenant.

23 Furthermore, the former priests were many in number, because they were prevented by death from continuing in office; 24 but he holds his priesthood permanently, because he continues forever. 25 Consequently he is able for all time to save[f] those who approach God through him, since he always lives to make intercession for them.

26 For it was fitting that we should have such a high priest, holy, blameless, undefiled, separated from sinners, and exalted above the heavens. 27 Unlike the others[g] high priests, he has no need to offer sacrifices day after day, first for his own sins, and then for those of the people; this he did once for all when he offered himself. 28 For the law appoints as high priests those who are subject to weakness, but the word of the oath, which came later than the law, appoints
a Son who has been made perfect forever.

8 Now the main point in what we are saying is this: we have such a high priest, one who is seated at the right hand of the throne of the Majesty in the heavens, 2 a minister in the sanctuary and the true tent[h] that the Lord, and not any mortal, has set up. 3 For every high priest is appointed to offer gifts and sacrifices;
hence it is necessary for this priest also to have something to offer. 4 Now if he were on earth, he would not be a priest at all, since there are priests who offer gifts according to the law. 5 They offer worship in a sanctuary that is a sketch and shadow of the heavenly one; for Moses, when he was about to erect the tent,[h] was warned, "See that you make everything according to the pattern that was shown you on the mountain." 6 But Jesus[i] has now obtained a more excellent ministry, and to that degree he is the mediator of a better covenant, which has been enacted through better promises.
7 For if that first covenant had been faultless, there would have been no need to look for a second one.

8 God[j] finds fault with them when he says:

"The days are surely coming, says
the Lord,
when I will establish a new covenant with the house
of Israel
and with the house of Judah; 9 not like the covenant that I made with their ancestors, on the day when I took them by the hand to lead them out of the land of Egypt;
for they did not continue in my covenant,
and so I had no concern for them, says the Lord.
10 This is the covenant that I will make with the house
of Israel
after those days, says the Lord:
I will put my laws in their minds,
and write them on their hearts,
and I will be their God,
and they shall be my people.
11 And they shall not teach one another

for they shall all know me,

12 For I will be merciful toward their

and I will remember their sins

13 In speaking of "a new covenant," he has made the first one obsolete. And what is obsolete and growing old will soon disappear.

9 Now even the first covenant had regulations for worship and an earthly sanctuary. 2 For a tent[k] was constructed, the first one, in which were the lampstand, the table, and the bread of the Presence;[l] this is called the Holy Place. 3 Behind the second curtain was a tent[k] called the Holy of Holies. 4 In it stood the golden altar of incense and the ark of the covenant overlaid on all sides with gold, in which there were a golden urn holding the manna, and Aaron's rod that budded, and the tablets of the covenant; 5 above it were the cherubim of glory overshadowing the mercy seat.[m] Of these things we cannot speak now in detail.

6 Such preparations having been made, the priests go continually into the first tent[k] to carry out their ritual duties; 7 but only the high priest goes into the second, and he but once a year, and not without taking the blood that he offers for himself and for the sins committed unintentionally by the people. 8 By this the Holy Spirit indicates that the way into the sanctuary has not yet been disclosed as long as the first tent[k] is still standing. 9 This is a symbol[n] of the present time, during which gifts and sacrifices are offered that cannot perfect the conscience of the worshiper, 10 but deal only with food and drink and various baptisms, regulations for the body imposed until the time comes to set things right.

11 But when Christ came as a high priest of the good things that have come,[o] then through the greater and perfect[p] tent[k] (not made with hands, that is, not of this creation), 12 he entered once for all into the Holy Place, not with the blood of goats and calves, but with his own blood, thus obtaining eternal redemption. 13 For if the blood of goats and bulls, with the sprinkling of the ashes of a heifer, sanctifies those who have been defiled so that their flesh is purified, 14 how much more will the blood of Christ, who through the eternal Spirit[q] offered himself without blemish to God, purify our[r] conscience from dead works to worship the living God!

15 For this reason he is the mediator of a new covenant, so that those who are called may receive the promised eternal of perfection. 13: Jeremiah shows that the old covenant would not endure forever (Jer 31.31–32).

9.11–10.18: Characteristics of the sacrifice of Christ. The offering of the blood of Christ is incomparably superior to sacrifices of the blood of goats and bulls (9.13–14), because (a) it is the life (Lev 17.11) of a person, the Christ, not of irrational beasts (10.4); (b) Christ was both priest and sacrificial victim (9.12); (c) the offering was made once for all (9.12, 25–26; 10.11–12); (d) it was made in the heavenly sanctuary (9.24); (e) it was a voluntary act (10.9; compare Jn 10.17–18), accomplished through the eternal Spirit (9.14); and therefore (f) the efficacy of his sacrifice remains for all time (10.14).

9.13: Lev 16.6, 16; Num 19.9, 17–18. 14: The eternal Spirit, probably Christ's spirit of self-offering. 15: Christ's death redeemed also inheritance, because a death has occurred that redeems them from the transgressions under the first covenant.[s] 16Where a will[s] is involved, the death of the one who made it must be established. 17For a will[s] takes effect only at death, since it is not in force as long as the one who made it is alive. 18Hence not even the first covenant was inaugurated without blood. 19For when every commandment had been told to all the people by Moses in accordance with the law, he took the blood of calves and goats,[t] with water and scarlet wool and hyssop, and sprinkled both the scroll itself and all the people, 20saying, "This is the blood of the covenant that God has ordained for you." 21And in the same way he sprinkled with the blood both the tent[u] and all the vessels used in worship. 22Indeed, under the law almost everything is purified with blood, and without the shedding of blood there is no forgiveness of sins.

23 Thus it was necessary for the sketches of the heavenly things to be purified with these rites, but the heavenly things themselves need better sacrifices than these. 24For Christ did not enter a sanctuary made by human hands, a mere copy of the true one, but he entered into heaven itself, now to appear in the presence of God on our behalf. 25Nor was it to offer himself again and again, as the high priest enters the Holy Place year after year with blood that is not his own; 26for then he would have had to suffer again and again since the foundation of the world. But as it is, he has appeared once for all at the end of the age to remove sin by the sacrifice of himself. 27And just as it is appointed for mortals to die once, and after that the judgment, 28so Christ, having been offered once to bear the sins of many, will appear a second time, not to deal with sin, but to save those who are eagerly waiting for him.

10 Since the law has only a shadow of the good things to come and not the true form of these realities, it[v] can never, by the same sacrifices that are continually offered year after year, make perfect those who approach. 2Otherwise, would they not have ceased being offered, since the worshipers, cleansed once for all, would no longer have any consciousness of sin? 3But in these sacrifices there is a reminder of sin year after year. 4For it is impossible for the blood of bulls and goats to take away sins. 5Consequently, when Christ[w] came into the world, he said,

"Sacrifices and offerings you have not desired,
but a body you have prepared for me;
6 in burnt offerings and sin offerings you have taken no pleasure.
7 Then I said, 'See, God, I have come to do your will, O God'
(in the scroll of the book[x] it is written of me)."

8When he said above, "You have neither desired nor taken pleasure in sacrifices and offerings and burnt offerings and sin offerings" (these are offered according to the law), 9then he added, "See, I have come to do your will." He abolishes the first in order to establish the second. 10And it is by God's will[y] that we have been sanctified through the offering of the body of Jesus Christ once for all.

11 And every priest stands day after day at his service, offering again and again the same sacrifices that can never take away sins. 12 But when Christ[z] had offered for all time a single sacrifice for sins, "he sat down at the right hand of God," 13 and since then has been waiting "until his enemies would be made a footstool for his feet." 14 For by a single offering he has perfected for all time those who are sanctified. 15 And the Holy Spirit also testifies to us, for after saying,

16 "This is the covenant that I will make with them
after those days, says the Lord:
I will put my laws in their hearts,
and I will write them on their minds,"

17 he also adds,

"I will remember[a] their sins and their lawless deeds no more."

18 Where there is forgiveness of these, there is no longer any offering for sin.

19 Therefore, my friends,[b] since we have confidence to enter the sanctuary by the blood of Jesus, 20 by the new and living way that he opened for us through the curtain (that is, through his flesh), 21 and since we have a great priest over the house of God, 22 let us approach with a true heart in full assurance of faith, with our hearts sprinkled clean from an evil conscience and our bodies washed with pure water. 23 Let us hold fast to the confession of our hope without wavering, for he who has promised is faithful. 24 And let us consider how to provoke one another to love and good deeds, 25 not neglecting to meet together, as is the habit of some, but encouraging one another, and all the more as you see the Day approaching.

26 For if we willfully persist in sin after having received the knowledge of the truth, there no longer remains a sacrifice for sins, 27 but a fearful prospect of judgment, and a fury of fire that will consume the adversaries. 28 Anyone who has violated the law of Moses dies without mercy "on the testimony of two or three witnesses." 29 How much worse punishment do you think will be deserved by those who have spurned the Son of God, profaned the blood of the covenant by which they were sanctified, and outraged the Spirit of grace? 30 For we know the one who said, "Vengeance is mine, I will repay." And again, "The Lord will judge his people." 31 It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God.

32 But recall those earlier days when, after you had been enlightened, you endured a hard struggle with sufferings, 33 sometimes being publicly exposed to abuse and persecution, and sometimes being partners with those so treated. 34 For you had compassion for those who were in prison, and you cheerfully accepted the plundering of your possessions, knowing that you yourselves possessed something better and more lasting. 35 Do not, therefore, abandon that confidence of yours; it brings a great reward. 36 For you need endurance, so that when you have done the will of God, you may receive what was promised. 37 For yet

"in a very little while,
the one who is coming will come and will not delay;
38 but my righteous one will live
by faith.
My soul takes no pleasure in anyone who shrinks back."

39 But we are not among those who shrink back and so are lost, but among those who have faith and so are saved.

of things not seen. 2Indeed, by faith[c] our ancestors received approval. 3By faith we understand that the worlds were prepared by the word of God, so that what is seen was made from things that are not visible.[d]

4 By faith Abel offered to God a more acceptable[e] sacrifice than Cain's. Through this he received approval as righteous, God himself giving approval to his gifts; he died, but through his faith[f] he still speaks. 5By faith Enoch was taken so that he did not experience death; and "he was not found, because God had taken him." For it was attested before he was taken away that "he had pleased God." 6And without faith it is impossible to please God, for whoever would approach him must believe that he exists and that he rewards those who seek him. 7By faith Noah, warned by God about events as yet unseen, respected the warning and built an ark to save his household; by this he condemned the world and became an heir to the righteousness that is in accordance with faith.

8 By faith Abraham obeyed when he was called to set out for a place that he was to receive as an inheritance; and he set out, not knowing where he was going. 9By faith he stayed for a time in the land he had been promised, as in a foreign land, living in tents, as did Isaac and Jacob, who were heirs with him of the same promise. 10For he looked forward to the city that has foundations, whose architect and builder is God. 11By faith he[g] received power of procreation, even though he was too old—and Sarah herself was barren—because he considered him faithful who had promised.[g] 12Therefore from one person, and this one as good as dead, descendants were born, "as many as the stars of heaven and as the innumerable grains of sand by the seashore."

13 All of these died in faith without having received the promises, but from a distance they saw and greeted them. They confessed that they were strangers and foreigners on the earth, 14for people who speak in this way make it clear that they are seeking a homeland. 15If they had been thinking of the land that they had left behind, they would have had opportunity to return. 16But as it is, they desire a better country, that is, a heavenly one. Therefore God is not ashamed to be called their God; indeed, he has prepared a city for them.

17 By faith Abraham, when put to the test, offered up Isaac. He who had received the promises was ready to offer up his only son, 18of whom he had been told, "It is through Isaac that descendants shall be named for you." 19He considered the fact that God is able even to raise someone from the dead—and figuratively speaking, he did receive him back. 20By faith Isaac invoked blessings for the future on Jacob and Esau. 21By faith Jacob, when dying, blessed each of the sons of Joseph, "bowing in worship over the top of his staff." 22By faith Joseph, at the end of his life, made mention of the exodus of the Israelites and gave instructions about his burial.[h]

tiful; and they were not afraid of the king's edict.[i] 24By faith Moses, when he was grown up, refused to be called a son of Pharaoh's daughter, 25choosing rather to share ill-treatment with the people of God than to enjoy the fleeting pleasures of sin. 26He considered abuse suffered for the Christ[j] to be greater wealth than the treasures of Egypt, for he was looking ahead to the reward. 27By faith he left Egypt, unafraid of the king's anger; for he persevered as though[k] he saw him who is invisible. 28By faith he kept the Passover and the sprinkling of blood, so that the destroyer of the firstborn would not touch the firstborn of Israel.[l]

29 By faith the people passed through the Red Sea as if it were dry land, but when the Egyptians attempted to do so they were drowned. 30By faith the walls of Jericho fell after they had been encircled for seven days. 31By faith Rahab the prostitute did not perish with those who were disobedient,[m] because she had received the spies in peace.

32 And what more should I say? For time would fail me to tell of Gideon, Barak, Samson, Jephthah, of David and Samuel and the prophets— 33who through faith conquered kingdoms, administered justice, obtained promises, shut the mouths of lions, 34quenched raging fire, escaped the edge of the sword, won strength out of weakness, became mighty in war, put foreign armies to flight. 35Women received their dead by resurrection. Others were tortured, refusing to accept release, in order to obtain a better resurrection. 36Others suffered mocking and flogging, and even chains and imprisonment. 37They were stoned to death, they were sawn in two,[n] they were killed by the sword; they went about in skins of sheep and goats, destitute, persecuted, tormented— 38of whom the world was not worthy. They wandered in deserts and mountains, and in caves and holes in the ground.

39 Yet all these, though they were commended for their faith, did not receive what was promised, 40since God had provided something better so that they would not, apart from us, be made perfect.

12 Therefore, since we are surrounded by so great a cloud of witnesses, let us also lay aside every weight and the sin that clings so closely,[o] and let us run with perseverance the race that is set before us, 2looking to Jesus the pioneer and perfecter of our faith, who for the sake of[p] the joy that was set before him endured the cross, disregarding its shame, and has taken his seat at the right hand of the throne of God.

3 Consider him who endured such hostility against himself from sinners,[q] so that you may not grow weary or lose heart. 4In your struggle against sin you have not yet resisted to the point of shedding your blood. 5And you have forgotten the exhortation that addresses you as children—

"My child, do not regard lightly
the discipline of the Lord, or lose heart when you are punished by him;
6 for the Lord disciplines those whom he loves,
and chastises every child whom he accepts."

7Endure trials for the sake of discipline. God is treating you as children; for what child is there whom a parent does not discipline? 8If you do not have that discipline in which all children share, then you are illegitimate and not his children. 9Moreover, we had human parents to discipline us, and we respected them. Should we not be even more willing to be subject to the Father of spirits and live? 10For they disciplined us for a short time as seemed best to them, but he disciplines us for our good, in order that we may share his holiness. 11Now, discipline always seems painful rather than pleasant at the time, but later it yields the peaceful fruit of righteousness to those who have been trained by it.

12 Therefore lift your drooping hands and strengthen your weak knees, 13and make straight paths for your feet, so that what is lame may not be put out of joint, but rather be healed.

14 Pursue peace with everyone, and the holiness without which no one will see the Lord. 15See to it that no one fails to obtain the grace of God; that no root of bitterness springs up and causes trouble, and through it many become defiled. 16See to it that no one becomes like Esau, an immoral and godless person, who sold his birthright for a single meal. 17You know that later, when he wanted to inherit the blessing, he was rejected, for he found no chance to repent,[r] even though he sought the blessing[s] with tears.

18 You have not come to something[t] that can be touched, a blazing fire, and darkness, and gloom, and a tempest, 19and the sound of a trumpet, and a voice whose words made the hearers beg that not another word be spoken to them. 20(For they could not endure the order that was given, "If even an animal touches the mountain, it shall be stoned to death." 21Indeed, so terrifying was the sight that Moses said, "I tremble with fear.") 22But you have come to Mount Zion and to the city of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem, and to innumerable angels in festal gathering, 23and to the assembly[u] of the firstborn who are enrolled in heaven, and to God the judge of all, and to the spirits of the righteous made perfect, 24and to Jesus, the mediator of a new covenant, and to the sprinkled blood that speaks a better word than the blood of Abel.

25 See that you do not refuse the one who is speaking; for if they did not escape when they refused the one who warned them on earth, how much less will we escape if we reject the one who warns from heaven! 26At that time his voice shook the earth; but now he has promised, "Yet once more I will shake not only the earth but also the heaven." 27This phrase, "Yet once more," indicates the removal of what is shaken—

that is, created things—so that what cannot be shaken may remain. 28Therefore, since we are receiving a kingdom that cannot be shaken, let us give thanks, by which we offer to God an acceptable worship with reverence and awe; 29for indeed our God is a consuming fire.

13 Let mutual love continue. 2Do not neglect to show hospitality to strangers, for by doing that some have entertained angels without knowing it. 3Remember those who are in prison, as though you were in prison with them; those who are being tortured, as though you yourselves were being tortured.[v] 4Let marriage be held in honor by all, and let the marriage bed be kept undefiled; for God will judge fornicators and adulterers. 5Keep your lives free from the love of money, and be content with what you have; for he has said, "I will never leave you or forsake you." 6So we can say with confidence,

"The Lord is my helper;
I will not be afraid.
What can anyone do to me?"

7 Remember your leaders, those who spoke the word of God to you; consider the outcome of their way of life, and imitate their faith. 8Jesus Christ is the same yesterday and today and forever. 9Do not be carried away by all kinds of strange teachings; for it is well for the heart to be strengthened by grace, not by regulations about food,[w] which have not benefited those who observe them. 10We have an altar from which those who officiate in the tent[x] have no right to eat. 11For the bodies of those animals whose blood is brought into the sanctuary by the high priest as a sacrifice for sin are burned outside the camp. 12Therefore Jesus also suffered outside the city gate in order to sanctify the people by his own blood. 13Let us then go to him outside the camp and bear the abuse he endured. 14For here we have no lasting city, but we are looking for the city that is to come. 15Through him, then, let us continually offer a sacrifice of praise to God, that is, the fruit of lips that confess his name. 16Do not neglect to do good and to share what you have, for such sacrifices are pleasing to God.

17 Obey your leaders and submit to them, for they are keeping watch over your souls and will give an account. Let them do this with joy and not with sighing—for that would be harmful to you.

18 Pray for us; we are sure that we have a clear conscience, desiring to act honorably in all things. 19I urge you all the more to do this, so that I may be restored to you very soon.

20 Now may the God of peace, who brought back from the dead our Lord Jesus, the great shepherd of the sheep, by the blood of the eternal covenant, 21make you complete in everything good so that you may do his will, working among us[y] that which is pleasing in his sight, through Jesus Christ, to whom be the glory forever and ever. Amen.

22 I appeal to you, brothers and sisters,[z] bear with my word of exhortation, for I have written to you briefly. 23I want you to know that our brother Timothy has been set free; and if he comes in time, he will be with me when I see you. 24Greet all your leaders and all the saints. # The Letter of James

Although it begins with an epistolatory greeting (1.1), James lacks other formal characteristics of a letter. The central section (2.1–3.12) contains three diatribe-style discussions (2.1–13, on partiality; 2.14–26, on faith and works; 3.1–12, on speech). This central section can also be seen as describing relationships within a community that is to embody the love-command. Smaller sections of wisdom sayings linked by catchword, and even single proverbs, surround the central section. James concludes with admonitions addressed to the community. The members are to await the coming of the Lord with patience (5.7–11), not to swear oaths (5.12; compare Mt 5.34–37), but to pray together (5.13). Elders of the community are to pray over the sick and to anoint them, for such prayer brings healing and forgiveness of sin (5.14–15). Sins within the community are to be dealt with by mutual confession, exhortation, and pastoral efforts to recall the sinner (5.16–19). Although Jesus is mentioned only twice (1.1; 2.1) and much of the exhortation can be paralleled in Jewish wisdom traditions, such directives in the conclusion of the letter suggest that James addresses a structured Christian community.

Like other wisdom materials, James speaks of tensions between rich and poor. The common social practice of favoring the wealthy and pushing aside the poor must be rejected (2.1–5). Christians have experienced some form of abuse by wealthy non-Christians (2.6–7). Wealthy merchants are warned against confidence that the future is assured (4.13–17). Those who gained their wealth by withholding just wages from workers will be condemned (5.1–6). Many of the sayings in James seem to echo sayings of Jesus in the synoptic tradition, though without directly invoking Jesus' authority. The mention, however, of "James" in the greeting (1.1) may place this teaching under the authority of James, the brother of the Lord (Gal 1.19; see Acts 12.17; 1 Cor 15.7; Gal 2.9).

The figure of James emerges in another early Christian context, which seems to be echoed in the letter, namely the dispute over "faith and works" (Jas 2.14–26; contrast Gal 2.1–14). James is not defending salvation through Christ against the Pauline understanding of "works" as the efforts of non-Jewish Christians to conform to Jewish rites of circumcision, kosher food laws, and religious feasts. Paul would certainly agree that Christian life should be expressed by deeds of charity (see Gal 5.6, "faith working through love"). Both Paul and James hold that love of one's neighbor fulfills the law (2.8; Gal 5.14). James appears to be opposed to a distorted and sloganizing Paulinism, which influenced Christians to neglect their obligations to aid their poverty-stricken and suffering brothers and sisters (2.15–17).

Although this elegantly composed treatise does not appear to have come from the James whom Paul met in Jerusalem, the author may have deliberately put this Christian wisdom-sermon under the patronage of that revered figure. Not only can James reformulate the wisdom teaching of Jesus, but James also has the authority to counter the false slogans about "faith and works" attributed to Paul.

1 James, a servant[a] of God and of the Lord Jesus Christ,
To the twelve tribes in the Dispersion:
Greetings.

2 My brothers and sisters,[b] whenever you face trials of any kind, consider it nothing but joy, 3because you know that the testing of your faith produces endurance; 4and let endurance have its full effect, so that you may be mature and complete, lacking in nothing.

5 If any of you is lacking in wisdom, ask God, who gives to all generously and ungrudgingly, and it will be given you. 6But ask in faith, never doubting, for the one who doubts is like a wave of the sea, driven and tossed by the wind; 7, 8for the doubter, being double-minded and unstable in every way, must not expect to receive anything from the Lord.

9 Let the believer[c] who is lowly boast in being raised up, 10and the rich in being brought low, because the rich will disappear like a flower in the field. 11For the sun rises with its scorching heat and withers the field; its flower falls, and its beauty perishes. It is the same way with the rich; in the midst of a busy life, they will wither away.

12 Blessed is anyone who endures temptation. Such a one has stood the test and will receive the crown of life that the Lord[d] has promised to those who love him. 13No one, when tempted, should say, "I am being tempted by God"; for God cannot be tempted by evil and he himself tempts no one. 14But one is tempted by one's own desire, being lured and enticed by it; 15then, when that desire has conceived, it gives birth to sin, and that sin, when it is fully grown, gives birth to death. 16Do not be deceived, my beloved.[e]

17 Every generous act of giving, with every perfect gift, is from above, coming down from the Father of lights, with whom there is no variation or shadow due to change.[f] 18In fulfillment of his own purpose he gave us birth by the word of truth, so that we would become a kind of first fruits of his creatures.

19 You must understand this, my beloved:[e] let everyone be quick to listen, slow to speak, slow to anger; 20for your anger does not produce God's righteousness. 21Therefore rid yourselves of all sordidness and rank growth of wickedness, and welcome with meekness the implanted word that has the power to save your souls.

22 But be doers of the word, and not merely hearers who deceive themselves. 23For if any are hearers of the word and not doers, they are like those who look at themselves[g] in a mirror; 24for they look at themselves and, on going away, immediately forget what they were like. 25But those who look into the perfect law, the law of liberty, and persevere, being not hearers who forget but doers who act—they will be blessed in their doing.

26 If any think they are religious, and do not bridle their tongues but deceive their hearts, their religion is worthless. 27 Religion that is pure and undefiled before God, the Father, is this: to care for orphans and widows in their distress, and to keep oneself unstained by the world.

2 My brothers and sisters,[h] do you with your acts of favoritism really believe in our glorious Lord Jesus Christ?[i] 2 For if a person with gold rings and in fine clothes comes into your assembly, and if a poor person in dirty clothes also comes in, 3 and if you take notice of the one wearing the fine clothes and say, "Have a seat here, please," while to the one who is poor you say, "Stand there," or, "Sit at my feet,"[j] 4 have you not made distinctions among yourselves, and become judges with evil thoughts? 5 Listen, my beloved brothers and sisters.[k] Has not God chosen the poor in the world to be rich in faith and to be heirs of the kingdom that he has promised to those who love him? 6 But you have dishonored the poor. Is it not the rich who oppress you? Is it not they who drag you into court? 7 Is it not they who blaspheme the excellent name that was invoked over you?

8 You do well if you really fulfill the royal law according to the scripture, "You shall love your neighbor as yourself." 9 But if you show partiality, you commit sin and are convicted by the law as transgressors. 10 For whoever keeps the whole law but fails in one point has become accountable for all of it. 11 For the one who said, "You shall not commit adultery," also said, "You shall not murder." Now if you do not commit adultery but if you murder, you have become a transgressor of the law. 12 So speak and so act as those who are to be judged by the law of liberty. 13 For judgment will be without mercy to anyone who has shown no mercy; mercy triumphs over judgment.

14 What good is it, my brothers and sisters,[k] if you say you have faith but do not have works? Can faith save you? 15 If a brother or sister is naked and lacks daily food, 16 and one of you says to them, "Go in peace; keep warm and eat your fill," and yet you do not supply their bodily needs, what is the good of that? 17 So faith by itself, if it has no works, is dead.

18 But someone will say, "You have faith and I have works." Show me your faith apart from your works, and I by my works will show you my faith. 19 You believe that God is one; you do well. Even the demons believe—and shudder. 20 Do you want to be shown, you senseless person, that faith apart from works is barren? 21 Was not our ancestor Abraham justified by works when he offered his son Isaac on the altar? 22 You see that faith was active along with his works, and faith was brought to completion by the works. 23 Thus the scripture was fulfilled that says, "Abraham believed God, and it was reckoned to him as righteousness," and he was called the friend of God. 24 You see that a person is justified by works and not by faith alone. 25 Likewise, was not Rahab the prostitute also justified by works when she welcomed the messengers and sent them out by another road? 26 For just as the body without the spirit is dead, so faith without works is also dead.

3 Not many of you should become teachers, my brothers and sisters,[l] for you know that we who teach will be judged with greater strictness. 2 For all of us make many mistakes. Anyone who makes no mistakes in speaking is perfect, able to keep the whole body in check with a bridle. 3 If we put bits into the mouths of horses to make them obey us, we guide their whole bodies. 4 Or look at ships: though they are so large that it takes strong winds to drive them, yet they are guided by a very small rudder wherever the will of the pilot directs. 5 So also the tongue is a small member, yet it boasts of great exploits.

How great a forest is set ablaze by a small fire! 6 And the tongue is a fire. The tongue is placed among our members as a world of iniquity; it stains the whole body, sets on fire the cycle of nature,[m] and is itself set on fire by hell.[n] 7 For every species of beast and bird, of reptile and sea creature, can be tamed and has been tamed by the human species, 8 but no one can tame the tongue—a restless evil, full of deadly poison. 9 With it we bless the Lord and Father, and with it we curse those who are made in the likeness of God. 10 From the same mouth come blessing and cursing. My brothers and sisters,[o] this ought not to be so. 11 Does a spring pour forth from the same opening both fresh and brackish water? 12 Can a fig tree, my brothers and sisters,[p] yield olives, or a grapevine figs? No more can salt water yield fresh.

13 Who is wise and understanding among you? Show by your good life that your works are done with gentleness born of wisdom. 14 But if you have bitter envy and selfish ambition in your hearts, do not be boastful and false to the truth. 15 Such wisdom does not come down from above, but is earthly, unspiritual, devilish. 16 For where there is envy and selfish ambition, there will also be disorder and wickedness of every kind. 17 But the wisdom from above is first pure, then peaceable, gentle, willing to yield, full of mercy and good fruits, without a trace of partiality or hypocrisy. 18 And a harvest of righteousness is sown in peace for[q] those who make peace.

4 Those conflicts and disputes among you, where do they come from? Do they not come from your cravings that are at war within you? 2 You want something and do not have it; so you commit murder. And you covet[r] something and cannot obtain it; so you engage in disputes and conflicts. You do not have, because you do not ask. 3 You ask and do not receive, because you ask wrongly, in order to spend what you get on your pleasures. 4 Adulterers! Do you not know that friendship with the world is enmity with God? Therefore whoever wishes to be a friend of the world becomes an enemy of God. [5]Or do you suppose that it is for nothing that the scripture says, "God[s] yearns jealously for the spirit that he has made to dwell in us"? [6]But he gives all the more grace; therefore it says,

"God opposes the proud,
but gives grace to the humble."

[7]Submit yourselves therefore to God. Resist the devil, and he will flee from you. [8]Draw near to God, and he will draw near to you. Cleanse your hands, you sinners, and purify your hearts, you double-minded. [9]Lament and mourn and weep. Let your laughter be turned into mourning and your joy into dejection. [10]Humble yourselves before the Lord, and he will exalt you.

11 Do not speak evil against one another, brothers and sisters.[t] Whoever speaks evil against another or judges another, speaks evil against the law and judges the law; but if you judge the law, you are not a doer of the law but a judge. [12]There is one lawgiver and judge who is able to save and to destroy. So who, then, are you to judge your neighbor?

13 Come now, you who say, "Today or tomorrow we will go to such and such a town and spend a year there, doing business and making money." [14]Yet you do not even know what tomorrow will bring. What is your life? For you are a mist that appears for a little while and then vanishes. [15]Instead you ought to say, "If the Lord wishes, we will live and do this or that." [16]As it is, you boast in your arrogance; all such boasting is evil. [17]Anyone, then, who knows the right thing to do and fails to do it, commits sin.

5 Come now, you rich people, weep and wail for the miseries that are coming to you. [2]Your riches have rotted, and your clothes are moth-eaten. [3]Your gold and silver have rusted, and their rust will be evidence against you, and it will eat your flesh like fire. You have laid up treasure[u] for the last days. [4]Listen! The wages of the laborers who mowed your fields, which you kept back by fraud, cry out, and the cries of the harvesters have reached the ears of the Lord of hosts. [5]You have lived on the earth in luxury and in pleasure; you have fattened your hearts in a day of slaughter. [6]You have condemned and murdered the righteous one, who does not resist you.

7 Be patient, therefore, beloved,[t] until the coming of the Lord. The farmer waits for the precious crop from the earth, being patient with it until it receives the early and the late rains. [8]You also must be patient. Strengthen your hearts, for the coming of the Lord is near.[v] [9]Beloved,[w] do not grumble against one another, so that you may not be judged. See, the Judge is standing at the doors! [10]As an example of suffering and patience, beloved,[t] take the prophets who spoke in the name of the Lord. [11]Indeed we call blessed those who showed endurance. You have heard of the endurance of Job, and you have seen the purpose of the Lord, how the Lord is compassionate and merciful.

12 Above all, my beloved,[t] do not swear, either by heaven or by earth or by any other oath, but let your "Yes" be yes and your "No" be no, so that you may not fall under condemnation.

13 Are any among you suffering? They should pray. Are any cheerful? They should sing songs of praise. 14 Are any among you sick? They should call for the elders of the church and have them pray over them, anointing them with oil in the name of the Lord. 15 The prayer of faith will save the sick, and the Lord will raise them up; and anyone who has committed sins will be forgiven. 16 Therefore confess your sins to one another, and pray for one another, so that you may be healed. The prayer of the righteous is powerful and effective. 17 Elijah was a human being like us, and he prayed fervently that it might not rain, and for three years and six months it did not rain on the earth. 18 Then he prayed again, and the heaven gave rain and the earth yielded its harvest.

19 My brothers and sisters,[x] if anyone among you wanders from the truth and is brought back by another, 20 you should know that whoever brings back a sinner from wandering will save the sinner's[y] soul from death and will cover a multitude of sins.

The First Letter of # Peter

The First Letter of Peter is a pastoral exhortation from an elder in Rome (5.1; "Babylon" [5.13] was a common code-name for Rome in Jewish and Christian apocalyptic; see Rev 17.5–6). It was written to those having oversight of churches in Asia Minor (1.1; 5.2–3). The opening greeting claims Peter as author (1.1), while the epistolatory conclusion refers to Silvanus (5.12; associated with Paul's mission in 1 Thess 1.1). Some scholars hold that Peter had Silvanus dispatch this exhortation before his own martyrdom in Rome (ca. A.D. 64). Others find such an early date improbable.

The sociological setting of the communities assumes that their members are Gentiles, resident aliens and household slaves in rural Asia Minor. Outsiders recognize the Christian "name" as offensive (4.14, 16), and Christians must expect to endure persecution as well as milder forms of social ostracism and "name-calling" as a result of that identification. Christianity is not struggling to define itself in relationship to Jewish traditions. The letter assumes that the church is the true heir of the covenant (2.4–10). Christians must show by their lives that they reject the religious and moral ethos of a pagan culture to which they no longer belong (4.1–6).

The most vulnerable Christians, slaves of abusive masters and wives of non-believing husbands, are told to suffer abuse, to accept the authority of their husbands, to do what is right, not to be afraid (2.18–3.6). Such behavior may convert the persecutor. If it does not, it follows the pattern of Christ's own suffering and will also be rewarded. This characterization hardly fits the Petrine mission of Galatians and Acts, but is characteristic of Asia Minor at the end of the first century.

In order to encourage Christians who are suffering because their faith has called them to break with the social fabric of their community, the author reminds them that though they are "aliens" in this world, they belong to a new commonwealth, which is God's own household (1.2–5). Just as God chose Jesus to be the cornerstone of the new temple (2.6–7), so Christians are a "new race" (2.9), living stones of the spiritual house of God (2.5). God is not indifferent to their suffering. Jesus trusted God while being persecuted, bearing humanity's sins so that believers can now live in holiness (2.22–24). Therefore Christians are to continue their lives of mutual love and service, confident that God's judgment is at hand (4.7–11). They should not be surprised when they are tested by persecution (4.12). The devil tries to use suffering to destroy faith (4.8–9). By reminding the readers of Jesus' suffering and the suffering of countless fellow Christians throughout the world, the author assures them that they are not isolated in the struggle.

First Peter follows the typical pattern of a Pauline letter: greeting (1.1–2); thanksgiving (1.3–9); body of the letter, consisting of theological reflection on Christian identity (1.10–2.10), followed by exhortation (2.11–5.11); closing (5.12–14).

1 Peter, an apostle of Jesus Christ.
To the exiles of the Dispersion in Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia, 2who have been chosen and destined by God the Father and sanctified by the Spirit to be obedient to Jesus Christ and to be sprinkled with his blood:

May grace and peace be yours in abundance.

3 Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ! By his great mercy he has given us a new birth into a living hope through the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead, 4and into an inheritance that is imperishable, undefiled, and unfading, kept in heaven for you, 5who are being protected by the power of God through faith for a salvation ready to be revealed in the last time. 6In this you rejoice,[a] even if now for a little while you have had to suffer various trials, 7so that the genuineness of your faith—being more precious than gold that, though perishable, is tested by fire—may be found to result in praise and glory and honor when Jesus Christ is revealed. 8Although you have not seen[b] him, you love him; and even though you do not see him now, you believe in him and rejoice with an indescribable and glorious joy, 9for you are receiving the outcome of your faith, the salvation of your souls.

10 Concerning this salvation, the prophets who prophesied of the grace that was to be yours made careful search and inquiry, 11inquiring about the person or time that the Spirit of Christ within them indicated when it testified in advance to the sufferings destined for Christ and the subsequent glory. 12It was revealed to them that they were serving not themselves but you, in regard to the things that have now been announced to you through those who brought you good news by the Holy Spirit sent from heaven—things into which angels long to look!

13 Therefore prepare your minds for action;[c] discipline yourselves; set all your hope on the grace that Jesus Christ will bring you when he is revealed. 14Like obedient children, do not be conformed to the desires that you formerly had in ignorance. 15Instead, as he who called you is holy, be holy yourselves in all your conduct; 16for it is written, "You shall be holy, for I am holy."

17 If you invoke as Father the one who judges all people impartially according to their deeds, live in reverent fear during the time of your exile. 18You know that you were ransomed from the futile ways inherited from your ancestors, not with perishable things like silver or gold, 19but with the precious blood of Christ, like that of a lamb without defect or blemish. 20He was destined before the foundation of the world, but was revealed at the end of the ages for your sake. 21Through him you have come to trust in God, who raised him from the dead and gave him glory, so that your faith and hope are set on God.

22 Now that you have purified your souls by your obedience to the truth[d] so that you have genuine mutual love, love one another deeply[e] from the heart.[f] 23You have been born anew, not of perishable but of imperishable seed, through the living and enduring word of God.[g] 24For

"See, I am laying in Zion a stone,
a cornerstone chosen and precious;

7To you then who believe, he is precious; but for those who do not believe,

13 For the Lord's sake accept the authority of every human institution,[l] whether of the emperor as supreme, 14 or of governors, as sent by him to punish those who do wrong and to praise those who do right. 15 For it is God's will that by doing right you should silence the ignorance of the foolish. 16 As servants[m] of God, live as free people, yet do not use your freedom as a pretext for evil. 17 Honor everyone. Love the family of believers.[n] Fear God. Honor the emperor.

18 Slaves, accept the authority of your masters with all deference, not only those who are kind and gentle but also those who are harsh. 19 For it is a credit to you if, being aware of God, you endure pain while suffering unjustly. 20 If you endure when you are beaten for doing wrong, what credit is that? But if you endure when you do right and suffer for it, you have God's approval. 21 For to this you have been called, because Christ also suffered for you, leaving you an example, so that you should follow in his steps.

22 "He committed no sin, and no deceit was found in his mouth."

23 When he was abused, he did not return abuse; when he suffered, he did not threaten; but he entrusted himself to the one who judges justly. 24 He himself bore our sins in his body on the cross,[o] so that, free from sins, we might live for righteousness; by his wounds[p] you have been healed. 25 For you were going astray like sheep, but now you have returned to the shepherd and guardian of your souls.

3 Wives, in the same way, accept the authority of your husbands, so that, even if some of them do not obey the word, they may be won over without a word by their wives' conduct, 2 when they see the purity and reverence of your lives. 3 Do not adorn yourselves outwardly by braiding your hair, and by wearing gold ornaments or fine clothing; 4 rather, let your adornment be the inner self with the lasting beauty of a gentle and quiet spirit, which is very precious in God's sight. 5 It was in this way long ago that the holy women who hoped in God used to adorn themselves by accepting the authority of their husbands. 6 Thus Sarah obeyed Abraham and called him lord. You have become her daughters as long as you do what is good and never let fears alarm you.

7 Husbands, in the same way, show consideration for your wives in your life together, paying honor to the woman as the weaker sex,[q] since they too are also heirs of the gracious gift of life—so that nothing may hinder your prayers.

8 Finally, all of you, have unity of spirit, sympathy, love for one another, a tender heart, and a humble mind. 9 Do not repay evil for evil or abuse for abuse; but, on the contrary, repay with a blessing. It is for this that you were called—that you might inherit a blessing. 10 For 12 For the eyes of the Lord are on the righteous, and his ears are open to their prayer.

But the face of the Lord is against those who do evil."

13 Now who will harm you if you are eager to do what is good? 14But even if you do suffer for doing what is right, you are blessed. Do not fear what they fear,[r] and do not be intimidated, 15but in your hearts sanctify Christ as Lord. Always be ready to make your defense to anyone who demands from you an accounting for the hope that is in you; 16yet do it with gentleness and reverence.[s] Keep your conscience clear, so that, when you are maligned, those who abuse you for your good conduct in Christ may be put to shame. 17For it is better to suffer for doing good, if suffering should be God's will, than to suffer for doing evil. 18For Christ also suffered[t] for sins once for all, the righteous for the unrighteous, in order to bring you[u] to God. He was put to death in the flesh, but made alive in the spirit, 19in which also he went and made a proclamation to the spirits in prison, 20who in former times did not obey, when God waited patiently in the days of Noah, during the building of the ark, in which a few, that is, eight persons, were saved through water. 21And baptism, which this prefigured, now saves you—not as a removal of dirt from the body, but as an appeal to God for[v] a good conscience, through the resurrection of Jesus Christ, 22who has gone into heaven and is at the right hand of God, with angels, authorities, and powers made subject to him.

4 Since therefore Christ suffered in the flesh,[w] arm yourselves also with the same intention (for whoever has suffered in the flesh has finished with sin), 2so as to live for the rest of your earthly life[x] no longer by human desires but by the will of God. 3You have already spent enough time in doing what the Gentiles like to do, living in licentiousness, passions, drunkenness, revels, carousing, and lawless idolatry. 4They are surprised that you no longer join them in the same excesses of dissipation, and so they blaspheme.[y] 5But they will have to give an accounting to him who stands ready to judge the living and the dead. 6For this is the reason the gospel was proclaimed even to the dead, so that, though they had been judged in the flesh as everyone is judged, they might live in the spirit as God does.

plaining. 10 Like good stewards of the manifold grace of God, serve one another with whatever gift each of you has received. 11 Whoever speaks must do so as one speaking the very words of God; whoever serves must do so with the strength that God supplies, so that God may be glorified in all things through Jesus Christ. To him belong the glory and the power forever and ever. Amen.

12 Beloved, do not be surprised at the fiery ordeal that is taking place among you to test you, as though something strange were happening to you. 13 But rejoice insofar as you are sharing Christ's sufferings, so that you may also be glad and shout for joy when his glory is revealed. 14 If you are reviled for the name of Christ, you are blessed, because the spirit of glory,[a] which is the Spirit of God, is resting on you.[b] 15 But let none of you suffer as a murderer, a thief, a criminal, or even as a mischief maker. 16 Yet if any of you suffers as a Christian, do not consider it a disgrace, but glorify God because you bear this name. 17 For the time has come for judgment to begin with the household of God; if it begins with us, what will be the end for those who do not obey the gospel of God? 18 And "If it is hard for the righteous to be saved,

what will become of the ungodly and the sinners?"

19 Therefore, let those suffering in accordance with God's will entrust themselves to a faithful Creator, while continuing to do good.

Good stewards of God's grace

5 Now as an elder myself and a witness of the sufferings of Christ, as well as one who shares in the glory to be revealed, I exhort the elders among you 2 to tend the flock of God that is in your charge, exercising the oversight,[c] not under compulsion but willingly, as God would have you do it[d]—not for sordid gain but eagerly. 3 Do not lord it over those in your charge, but be examples to the flock. 4 And when the chief shepherd appears, you will win the crown of glory that never fades away. 5 In the same way, you who are younger must accept the authority of the elders.[e] And all of you must clothe yourselves with humility in your dealings with one another, for

"God opposes the proud,
but gives grace to the humble."

6 Humble yourselves therefore under the mighty hand of God, so that he may exalt you in due time. 7 Cast all your anxiety on him, because he cares for you. 8 Discipline yourselves, keep alert.[f] Like a roaring lion your adversary the devil prowls around, looking for someone to devour. 9 Resist him, steadfast in your faith, for you know that your brothers and sisters[g] in all the world are undergoing the same kinds of suffering. 10 And after you have suffered for a little while, the God of all grace, who has called you to his eternal glory in Christ, will himself restore, support, strengthen, and estab-

The Second Letter of # Peter

The Second Letter of Peter presents itself as the work of Simeon Peter (1.1; Simeon is Semitic orthography; see Acts 15.14 n.), whose death was predicted by Jesus (1.14). The author has witnessed the transfiguration, which is evidence that Jesus' promise to return in glory is no mere fable, as some allege (1.16). At the same time, identification with Peter, or even a disciple of Peter (like the author of 1 Peter), appears unlikely. Although the author claims to have written a previous letter (3.1), 2 Peter does not reflect the social setting of 1 Peter or its imagery for the new covenant community. Despite the author's claim to fellowship with Paul (3.15), the reference to misinterpretation of Paul's letters suggests that they have already been collected and are treated as "scriptures" in some churches (3.16)—clearly not the case during the lifetime of the apostles.

The author refers to "your apostles" as those who have transmitted the teaching of the prophets and the Lord, which the readers must take care to remember correctly (3.2). The reference to the transfiguration in 1.17–18 assumes an audience familiar with some form of the synoptic gospel tradition. In addition, 2 Peter has apparently incorporated sections of Jude (compare 2.1–8 with Jude 4–16), and uses the Stoic philosophical concept of the return of all things to fire at the end of the world (3.10). Thus, 2 Peter appears to have been composed late in the first century or early in the second century A.D. In this view, it is intended to meet the challenge of persons who are distorting the true apostolic tradition by denying that the world will be brought to an end by divine judgment (2.1–3; 3.3–4).

It should be borne in mind that in antiquity pseudonymous authorship was a widely accepted literary convention. Therefore the use of an apostle's name in reasserting his teaching was not regarded as dishonest but was merely a way of reminding the church of what it had received from God through that apostle.

From 1.12–14 it appears that the letter is cast as the "last testament" of the apostle. Like other testaments, the author seeks to preserve a legacy of correct teaching (1.15) against the turmoil created by false teachers in coming generations (3.3–4). These teachers are already active in the church. Since denunciations of the moral character of opponents were common in ancient polemic, the author's descriptions of the heretics' moral turpitude (2.2–14) should not be taken as evidence for their teaching. It does provide an opportunity to warn that divine judgment, which requires a high standard of ethical conduct (1.3–11; 2.11–21), will condemn such persons. The point of contention is clearly belief in the coming of judgment itself (3.10–12). The opposition may have argued that the failure of Christ to return (3.4), as well as the philosophical doctrine of the eternity of the world, disproves traditional belief in the parousia.

Second Peter embodies a sustained refutation of all such claims, drawing upon evidence of divine judgment in the Hebrew Scriptures, the testimony of the prophets, the transfiguration of Jesus witnessed by Peter himself, and even Paul's own writings. The author also advances logical arguments against their view; these arguments seek to show that the doctrine of the parousia is no myth or fable. Stoic cosmology taught that the universe would return to the fiery matter from which it emerged. As for the alleged delay of the parousia, the opponents fail to recognize that God's time is different from that of humans (3.8). Furthermore, God delays the judgment out of patience so that people may have opportunity to repent (3.9).

1 Simeon[a] Peter, a servant[b] and apostle of Jesus Christ,

To those who have received a faith as precious as ours through the righteousness of our God and Savior Jesus Christ:[c]

2 May grace and peace be yours in abundance in the knowledge of God and of Jesus our Lord.

3 His divine power has given us everything needed for life and godliness, through the knowledge of him who called us by[d] his own glory and goodness. 4Thus he has given us, through these things, his precious and very great promises, so that through them you may escape from the corruption that is in the world because of lust, and may become participants of the divine nature. 5For this very reason, you must make every effort to support your faith with goodness, and goodness with knowledge, 6and knowledge with self-control, and self-control with endurance, and endurance with godliness, 7and godliness with mutual[e] affection, and mutual[e] affection with love. 8For if these things are yours and are increasing among you, they keep you from being ineffective and unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ. 9For anyone who lacks these things is nearsighted and blind, and is forgetful of the cleansing of past sins. 10Therefore, brothers and sisters,[f] be all the more eager to confirm your call and election, for if you do this, you will never stumble. 11For in this way, entry into the eternal kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ will be richly provided for you.

12 Therefore I intend to keep on reminding you of these things, though you know them already and are established in the truth that has come to you. 13I think it right, as long as I am in this body,[g] to refresh your memory, 14since I know that my death[h] will come soon, as indeed our Lord Jesus Christ has made clear to me. 15And I will make every effort so that after my departure you may be able at any time to recall these things.

16 For we did not follow cleverly devised myths when we made known to you the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but we had been eyewitnesses of his majesty. 17For he received honor and glory from God the Father when that voice was conveyed to him by the Majestic Glory, saying, "This is my Son, my Beloved,[i] with whom I am well pleased." 18We ourselves heard this voice come from heaven, while we were with him on the holy mountain.

19 So we have the prophetic message more fully confirmed. You will do well to be attentive to this as to a lamp shining in a dark place, until the day dawns and the morning star rises in your hearts. 20First of all you must understand this, that no prophecy of scripture is a matter of one's own interpretation, 21because no prophecy ever came by human will, but men and women moved by the Holy Spirit spoke from God.[j]

2 But false prophets also arose among the people, just as there will be false teachers among you, who will secretly bring in destructive opinions. They will even deny the Master who bought them—bringing swift destruction on themselves. 2Even so, many will follow their licentious ways, and because of these teachers[k] the way of truth will be maligned. 3And in their greed they will exploit you with deceptive words. Their condemnation, pronounced against them long ago, has not been idle, and their destruction is not asleep.

4 For if God did not spare the angels when they sinned, but cast them into hell[l] and committed them to chains[m] of deepest darkness to be kept until the judgment; 5and if he did not spare the ancient world, even though he saved Noah, a herald of righteousness, with seven others, when he brought a flood on a world of the ungodly; 6and if by turning the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah to ashes he condemned them to extinction[n] and made them an example of what is coming to the ungodly;[o] 7and if he rescued Lot, a righteous man greatly distressed by the licentiousness of the lawless 8(for that righteous man, living among them day after day, was tormented in his righteous soul by their lawless deeds that he saw and heard), 9then the Lord knows how to rescue the godly from trial, and to keep the unrighteous under punishment until the day of judgment 10—especially those who indulge their flesh in depraved lust, and who despise authority.

Bold and willful, they are not afraid to slander the glorious ones,[p] 11whereas angels, though greater in might and power, do not bring against them a slanderous judgment from the Lord.[q] 12These people, however, are like irrational animals, mere creatures of instinct, born to be caught and killed. They slander what they do not understand, and when those creatures are destroyed,[r] they also will be destroyed, 13suffering[s] the penalty for doing wrong. They count it a pleasure to revel in the daytime. They are blots and blemishes, reveling in their dissipation[t] while they feast with you. 14They have eyes full of adultery, insatiable for sin. They entice unsteady souls. They have hearts trained in greed. Accursed children! 15They have left the straight road and have gone astray, following the road of Balaam son of Bosor,[u] who loved the wages of doing wrong, 16but was rebuked for his own transgression; a speechless donkey spoke with a human voice and restrained the prophet's madness.

17 These are waterless springs and mists driven by a storm; for them the deepest darkness has been reserved. 18For they speak bombastic nonsense, and with licentious desires of the flesh they entice people who have just[v] escaped from those who live in error. 19They promise them freedom, but they themselves are slaves of corruption; for people are slaves to whatever masters them. 20For if, after they have escaped the defilements of the world through the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, they are again entangled in them and overpowered, the last state has become worse for them than the first. 21For it would have been better for them never to have known the way of righteousness than, after knowing it, to turn back from the holy commandment that was passed on to them. 22It has happened to them according to the true proverb,

"The dog turns back to its own vomit,"

and,

"The sow is washed only to wallow in the mud."

3 This is now, beloved, the second letter I am writing to you; in them I am trying to arouse your sincere intention by reminding you 2that you should remember the words spoken in the past by the holy prophets, and the commandment of the Lord and Savior spoken through your apostles. 3First of all you must understand this, that in the last days scoffers will come, scoffing and indulging their own lusts 4and saying, "Where is the promise of his coming? For ever since our ancestors died,[w] all things continue as they were from the beginning of creation!" 5They deliberately ignore this fact, that by the word of God heavens existed long ago and an earth was formed out of water and by means of water, 6through which the world of that time was deluged with water and perished. 7But by the same word the present heavens and earth have been reserved for fire, being kept until the day of judgment and destruction of the godless.

8 But do not ignore this one fact, beloved, that with the Lord one day is like a thousand years, and a thousand years are like one day. 9The Lord is not slow about his promise, as some think of slowness, but is patient with you,[x] not wanting any to perish, but all to come to repentance. 10But the day of the Lord will come like a thief, and then the heavens will pass away with a loud noise, and the elements will be dissolved with fire, and the earth and everything that is done on it will be disclosed.[y]

11 Since all these things are to be dissolved in this way, what sort of persons ought you to be in leading lives of holiness and godliness, 12waiting for and hastening[z] the coming of the day of God, because of which the heavens will be set ablaze and dissolved, and the elements will melt with fire? 13But, in accordance with his promise, we wait for new heavens and a new earth, where righteousness is at home.

14 Therefore, beloved, while you are waiting for these things, strive to be found by him at peace, without spot or

3.1–18: The day of the Lord. Scoffers ridicule the hope of Christ's second coming. Delay is no proof that he will not come, for God does not measure time as mortals do. The delay shows God's patience and desire that sinners should repent. Because the day of the Lord will come as promised, Christians should await it in holiness and godliness. 3: The coming of scoffers is a sign of the last days (see 2 Tim 3.1 n.). 4: Ever since our ancestors died expresses the viewpoint of a later generation. The scoffers apparently argued that the universe is immutable, and therefore there would be no end. 5: God's word is not just chatter; it is creative, and by it the world was brought into being (Gen 1.6–10). 6–7: So far from being immutable the world has already been destroyed once, by the deluge (2.5; Gen 7.11), and, so the author affirms, it will be destroyed again, by fire.

3.8: God's measure of time is cited from Ps 90.4. 10: Day of the Lord, see Am 5.18–20 n.; Joel 2.28–32 n. Like a thief, Mt 24.43; Lk 12.39. 12: In apocalyptic writings fire plays a prominent role in the destruction of the world. 13–14: Freely quoted from Isa 65.17; 66.22. In Isaiah and Rev ch 21 the thought is not the destruction but the renewal and transformation of the universe. 14: By him, i.e. Christ. 15–16: The author knows several letters of Paul and equates them with the other scriptures, which confirm the tradition that Christians must lead blameless lives while awaiting Christ's coming.

blemish; [15]and regard the patience of our Lord as salvation. So also our beloved brother Paul wrote to you according to the wisdom given him, [16]speaking of this as he does in all his letters. There are some things in them hard to understand, which the ignorant and unstable twist to their own destruction, as they do the other scriptures. [17]You therefore, beloved, since you are forewarned, beware that you are not carried away with the error of the lawless and lose your own stability. [18]But grow in the grace and knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. To him be the glory both now and to the day of eternity. Amen.[a]

The First Letter of John

Although traditionally called a letter, 1 John is a treatise or sermon from an unknown teacher in the Johannine tradition to those in the community ("my little children," 2.1; "beloved," 2.7). Two letters from the same author indicate that the writer is an elder (2 Jn 1; 3 Jn 1) with authority in other Johannine communities. Travelling emissaries from the elder apparently maintained contact with a number of communities in the region (3 Jn 10). Consequently, the claim that 1 John represents the tradition that has been passed on by the official witnesses ("we" in 1.1–4) is made in the context of a network of Johannine churches.

By the end of the second century A.D., 1 John was commonly thought to have been written by the author of the Fourth Gospel, and 2 and 3 John by another member of the Johannine circle (see Eusebius, Hist. III. 39.4 for the distinction between John, the disciple, and John, the elder). The three letters, however, reflect a common community setting that is quite different from that which is implied by the gospel. In the gospel the Johannine community is a minority that had been excluded from the Jewish synagogue and still faces hostility from persons with ties to the synagogue (Jn 9.22; 12.42–43; 16.1–4a). The point of conflict lay in the Johannine claim that Jesus is the preexistent, divine Son of God, the only revelation of the Father (Jn 5.18; 8.23–30, 38, 52–59). First John is not concerned with the relationship of Christian faith to Jewish traditions but with the proper testimony about Jesus embodied in the Christian tradition itself (1.1–4). Its emphasis falls upon the physical reality of Jesus' coming in the flesh (1.1–3; 4.2). The author does not oppose Jewish claims to interpret the tradition of Moses, as the gospel does, but opposes the teaching of former members of the Johannine fellowship who have broken away (2.19; 4.1; 2 Jn 7).

Both the author and these secessionist teachers clearly appeal to a common Johannine tradition. The elder knows that people could easily be misled by the false teachers. The Holy Spirit, which members of the community have received, will confirm that the writer's teaching reflects the true gospel (2.20, 27; 4.13). The dissident teachers apparently emphasize the divine Jesus of the Gospel and deny the significance of Jesus' human reality and death on the cross as sacrifice for sin (1.7; 2.2; 3.16; 4.10; 5.6). The author challenges their claims to sinlessness by insisting that sinlessness is a gift that Christians receive from God through Christ (2.1–2). Persons who have violated the fundamental commandment of the Johannine tradition, the mutual love among Christians (Jn 13.35; 15.12), are not sinless (2.3–9; 3.22–23; 4.21; 5.2–3). Their apostasy and false teaching is a deadly sin (idolatry), which separates them from the communal prayer for forgiveness (5.15–17, 21) and makes them agents of the demonic attack on the faithful, which apocalyptic traditions had prophesied for the end-time (2.18, 22; 3.4–5; 4.1–5).

Claims to perfectionism, denial of the significance of Jesus' coming in the flesh, rejection of the saving power of Jesus' death, and schismatic preaching among established Christian communities are all features of second-century gnostic teaching. Since 1 John does not provide evidence of the peculiar teaching of the secessionist opponents, one cannot identify them with any known gnostic group. The conflict may have arisen over the true meaning of the Johannine Gospel prior to the emergence of well-defined gnostic groups. As part of the Christian canon, 1 John rejects any gnosticizing interpretation of the Fourth Gospel.

1 We declare to you what was from the beginning, what we have heard, what we have seen with our eyes, what we have looked at and touched with our hands, concerning the word of life— 2this life was revealed, and we have seen it and testify to it, and declare to you the eternal life that was with the Father and was revealed to us— 3we declare to you what we have seen and heard so that you also may have fellowship with us; and truly our fellowship is with the Father and with his Son Jesus Christ. 4We are writing these things so that our[a] joy may be complete.

5 This is the message we have heard from him and proclaim to you, that God is light and in him there is no darkness at all. 6If we say that we have fellowship with him while we are walking in darkness, we lie and do not do what is true; 7but if we walk in the light as he himself is in the light, we have fellowship with one another, and the blood of Jesus his Son cleanses us from all sin. 8If we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us. 9If we confess our sins, he who is faithful and just will forgive us our sins and cleanse us from all unrighteousness. 10If we say that we have not sinned, we make him a liar, and his word is not in us.

2 My little children, I am writing these things to you so that you may not sin. But if anyone does sin, we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous; 2and he is the atoning sacrifice for our sins, and not for ours only but also for the sins of the whole world.

3 Now by this we may be sure that we know him, if we obey his commandments. 4Whoever says, "I have come to know him," but does not obey his commandments, is a liar, and in such a person the truth does not exist; 5but whoever obeys his word, truly in this person the love of God has reached perfection. By this we may be sure that we are in him: 6whoever says, "I abide in him," ought to walk just as he walked.

7 Beloved, I am writing you no new commandment, but an old commandment that you have had from the beginning; the old commandment is the word that you have heard. 8Yet I am writing you a new commandment that is true in him and in you, because[b] the darkness is passing away and the true light is already shining. 9Whoever says, "I am in the light," while hating a brother or sister,[c] is still in the darkness. 10Whoever loves a brother or sister[d] lives in the light, and in such a person[e] there is no cause for stumbling. 11But whoever hates another believer[f] is in the darkness, walks in the 12 I am writing to you, little children, because your sins are forgiven on account of his name.

13 I am writing to you, fathers,
because you know him who is from the beginning.
I am writing to you, young people,
because you have conquered the evil one.
14 I write to you, children, because you know the Father.
I write to you, fathers,
because you know him who is from the beginning.
I write to you, young people, because you are strong and the word of God abides in you,
and you have overcome the evil one.

15 Do not love the world or the things in the world. The love of the Father is not in those who love the world; 16 for all that is in the world—the desire of the flesh, the desire of the eyes, the pride in riches—comes not from the Father but from the world. 17 And the world and its desire[g] are passing away, but those who do the will of God live forever.

18 Children, it is the last hour! As you have heard that antichrist is coming, so now many antichrists have come. From this we know that it is the last hour. 19 They went out from us, but they did not belong to us; for if they had belonged to us, they would have remained with us. But by going out they made it plain that none of them belongs to us. 20 But you have been anointed by the Holy One, and all of you have knowledge.[h] 21 I write to you, not because you do not know the truth, but because you know it, and you know that no lie comes from the truth. 22 Who is the liar but the one who denies that Jesus is the Christ?[i] This is the antichrist, the one who denies the Father and the Son. 23 No one who denies the Son has the Father; everyone who confesses the Son has the Father also. 24 Let what you heard from the beginning abide in you. If what you heard from the beginning abides in you, then you will abide in the Son and in the Father. 25 And this is what he has promised us,[j] eternal life.

26 I write these things to you concerning those who would deceive you. 27 As for you, the anointing that you received from him abides in you, and so you do not need anyone to teach you. But as his anointing teaches you about all things, and is true and is not a lie, and just as it has taught you, abide in him.[k]

28 And now, little children, abide in him, so that when he is revealed we may have confidence and not be put to shame before him at his coming.

29 If you know that he is righteous, you may be sure that everyone who does

2.12–14: True relationship to God in Christ. 12: Little children, the whole Christian group (2.1, 18, 28). 14: Fathers, the aged. Young people, youth. The terms could refer to leaders and younger members of the community.

2.15–17: True appraisal of the world. 15: The world, all that is alienated from God (Jas 1.27). 16: Desire of the flesh, unlawful physical gratification; desire of the eyes, sinful delights of mind or emotions; pride in riches, empty trust in possessions.

2.18–29: Loyalty to the true faith. 18: Antichrist, an expression coined by Johannine Christians meaning "opponent of Christ"; in this case, false teachers (4.3). 19: They left the Christian fellowship because they were not really Christians. 20–21: Christians have received the enlightening grace of the Holy Spirit, and therefore can discern the truth (v. 27; 1 Cor 2.15–16). 22–23: The dissidents denied the human reality of Jesus (2 Jn 7). 27: Jn 14.26. 28: 4.17. 29: 3.7–10; 4.7.

3 right has been born of him. [1]See what love the Father has given us, that we should be called children of God; and that is what we are. The reason the world does not know us is that it did not know him. [2]Beloved, we are God's children now; what we will be has not yet been revealed. What we do know is this: when he[l] is revealed, we will be like him, for we will see him as he is. [3]And all who have this hope in him purify themselves, just as he is pure.

4 Everyone who commits sin is guilty of lawlessness; sin is lawlessness. [5]You know that he was revealed to take away sins, and in him there is no sin. [6]No one who abides in him sins; no one who sins has either seen him or known him. [7]Little children, let no one deceive you. Everyone who does what is right is righteous, just as he is righteous. [8]Everyone who commits sin is a child of the devil; for the devil has been sinning from the beginning. The Son of God was revealed for this purpose, to destroy the works of the devil. [9]Those who have been born of God do not sin, because God's seed abides in them;[m] they cannot sin, because they have been born of God. [10]The children of God and the children of the devil are revealed in this way: all who do not do what is right are not from God, nor are those who do not love their brothers and sisters.[n]

11 For this is the message you have heard from the beginning, that we should love one another. [12]We must not be like Cain who was from the evil one and murdered his brother. And why did he murder him? Because his own deeds were evil and his brother's righteous. [13]Do not be astonished, brothers and sisters,[o] that the world hates you. [14]We know that we have passed from death to life because we love one another. Whoever does not love abides in death. [15]All who hate a brother or sister[n] are murderers, and you know that murderers do not have eternal life abiding in them. [16]We know love by this, that he laid down his life for us—and we ought to lay down our lives for one another. [17]How does God's love abide in anyone who has the world's goods and sees a brother or sister[p] in need and yet refuses help?

18 Little children, let us love, not in word or speech, but in truth and action. [19]And by this we will know that we are from the truth and will reassure our hearts before him [20]whenever our hearts condemn us; for God is greater than our hearts, and he knows everything. [21]Beloved, if our hearts do not condemn us, we have boldness before God; [22]and we receive from him whatever we ask, because we obey his commandments and do what pleases him.

23 And this is his commandment, that we should believe in the name of his Son Jesus Christ and love one another, just as he has commanded us. [24]All who obey his commandments abide in him,

3.1–10: Filial relation expressed in right conduct. 1–2: God's love in making us children (Jn 1.12) progressively produces resemblance to God, here and hereafter. 3: Hope of complete moral likeness to Christ motivates purity of life (Mt 5.8). 5: Jn 1.29. 6: Sins, habitually and constantly (3 Jn 11). 8: Jn 8.44; Acts 13.10; Heb 2.14. 9: 5.18.

3.11–18: Love for one another. 11–12: Abel's righteous deeds stirred Cain's hatred (Gen 4.8; Heb 11.4; Jude 11). 13: The world likewise hates the church (Jn 15.18–19). 14–15: Hatred of fellow Christians is equivalent to murder (compare Mt 5.21–22). 16–17: Jesus, in contrast to taking life, laid down his life (Jn 15.13). He is our pattern. To lay down our lives may take the form of daily sacrifice for others in need. 18: Word, intention without action; speech, hypocrisy, not truth (Jas 1.22).

3.19–24: The Christian's assurance. 19: This, the love described in v. 18. 20: God, who knows everything, judges us by the abiding relation of love to others, rather than by our passing moods (Jn 21.17). 21–22: Boldness in prayer results from obedience to God, and strengthens assurance (5.14). 23–24: Belief in the name of Jesus Christ, Jesus bears God's name; belief makes people children of God (Jn 17.11, 12). Love (Jn 13.34; 15.17) is evidence of God's Spirit and presence (4.12–13).

and he abides in them. And by this we know that he abides in us, by the Spirit that he has given us.

4 Beloved, do not believe every spirit, but test the spirits to see whether they are from God; for many false prophets have gone out into the world. 2By this you know the Spirit of God: every spirit that confesses that Jesus Christ has come in the flesh is from God, 3and every spirit that does not confess Jesus[q] is not from God. And this is the spirit of the antichrist, of which you have heard that it is coming; and now it is already in the world. 4Little children, you are from God, and have conquered them; for the one who is in you is greater than the one who is in the world. 5They are from the world; therefore what they say is from the world, and the world listens to them. 6We are from God. Whoever knows God listens to us, and whoever is not from God does not listen to us. From this we know the spirit of truth and the spirit of error.

7 Beloved, let us love one another, because love is from God; everyone who loves is born of God and knows God. 8Whoever does not love does not know God, for God is love. 9God's love was revealed among us in this way: God sent his only Son into the world so that we might live through him. 10In this is love, not that we loved God but that he loved us and sent his Son to be the atoning sacrifice for our sins. 11Beloved, since God loved us so much, we also ought to love one another. 12No one has ever seen God; if we love one another, God lives in us, and his love is perfected in us.

13 By this we know that we abide in him and he in us, because he has given us of his Spirit. 14And we have seen and do testify that the Father has sent his Son as the Savior of the world. 15God abides in those who confess that Jesus is the Son of God, and they abide in God. 16So we have known and believe the love that God has for us.

God is love, and those who abide in love abide in God, and God abides in them. 17Love has been perfected among us in this: that we may have boldness on the day of judgment, because as he is, so are we in this world. 18There is no fear in love, but perfect love casts out fear; for fear has to do with punishment, and whoever fears has not reached perfection in love. 19We love[r] because he first loved us. 20Those who say, "I love God," and hate their brothers or sisters,[s] are liars; for those who do not love a brother or sister[t] whom they have seen, cannot love God whom they have not seen. 21The commandment we have from him is this: those who love God must love their brothers and sisters[s] also.

5 Everyone who believes that Jesus is the Christ[u] has been born of God, and everyone who loves the parent loves the child. 2By this we know that we love the children of God, when we love God and obey his commandments. 3For the love of God is this, that we obey his commands. And his command-

4.1–6: Discernment of truth and error. 1–2: Note the contrast between spirits (supernatural powers claimed by false prophets) and the Holy Spirit (Jn 16.13–15), which inspires the true confession about Christ (compare 1 Cor 12.1–3). 3: 2 Jn 7. 4: The one who is in the world, the devil (3.10; Jn 8.44; 12.31). 5: They, the false prophets. 6: We, the Christian teachers. Whoever knows God discriminates between truth and error (Jn 5.37–38; 8.47; 10.4–5).

4.7–21: The blessedness of love. 7–10: That God is love is seen in sending his Son as the atoning sacrifice for our sins (2.2). 11–12: To love one another is the only authentication that we know God, whom no one has ever seen (Jn 1.18). 13–18: The Holy Spirit testifies that Jesus, God's Son, has revealed his Father as love. When his love is perfected (matured) in us, fear of judgment is allayed (2.28; 3.21). 19–21: Love originates in God. Failure to love is visible evidence of a breach with the unseen God, and a violation of his commandment.

5.1–12: Victorious faith issuing in eternal life. 1: Jn 8.42. 3: Love of God involves obedience to his will. Not burdensome, Mt 11.30;

ments are not burdensome, [4]for whatever is born of God conquers the world. And this is the victory that conquers the world, our faith. [5]Who is it that conquers the world but the one who believes that Jesus is the Son of God?

6 This is the one who came by water and blood, Jesus Christ, not with the water only but with the water and the blood. And the Spirit is the one that testifies, for the Spirit is the truth. [7]There are three that testify:[v] [8]the Spirit and the water and the blood, and these three agree. [9]If we receive human testimony, the testimony of God is greater; for this is the testimony of God that he has testified to his Son. [10]Those who believe in the Son of God have the testimony in their hearts. Those who do not believe in God[w] have made him a liar by not believing in the testimony that God has given concerning his Son. [11]And this is the testimony: God gave us eternal life, and this life is in his Son. [12]Whoever has the Son has life; whoever does not have the Son of God does not have life.

13 I write these things to you who believe in the name of the Son of God, so that you may know that you have eternal life.

14 And this is the boldness we have in him, that if we ask anything according to his will, he hears us. [15]And if we know that he hears us in whatever we ask, we know that we have obtained the requests made of him. [16]If you see your brother or sister[x] committing what is not a mortal sin, you will ask, and God[y] will give life to such a one—to those whose sin is not mortal. There is sin that is mortal; I do not say that you should pray about that. [17]All wrongdoing is sin, but there is sin that is not mortal.

18 We know that those who are born of God do not sin, but the one who was born of God protects them, and the evil one does not touch them. [19]We know that we are God's children, and that the whole world lies under the power of the evil one. [20]And we know that the Son of God has come and has given us understanding so that we may know him who is true;[z] and we are in him who is true, in his Son Jesus Christ. He is the true God and eternal life.

21 Little children, keep yourselves from idols.[a]

The Second Letter of John

Language, literary style, and ideas, along with early church tradition, make it highly probable that this letter came from the same pen that produced 1 John. A copy of 1 John may have accompanied this letter, which instructs its addressees not to associate with the dissidents (vv. 9–11). The tone of the admonitions indicates that the author was well known to the readers and was one whose spiritual authority they acknowledged. Unlike 1 John, which appears to have been addressed to several churches, this letter was written to one specific church ("the elect lady," v. 1), probably one of the churches in Asia Minor.

The letter yields no definite evidence regarding date. The kinship of situation and ideas with those reflected in 1 John suggests a date near the end of the first century (see Introduction to 1 John).

The author alludes to the main teaching of 1 John (vv. 5–7), and adds a command not to show hospitality to false teachers. Anyone who does so is guilty of participation in their evil teaching (vv. 7–11).

1 The elder to the elect lady and her children, whom I love in the truth, and not only I but also all who know the truth, 2 because of the truth that abides in us and will be with us forever:

3 Grace, mercy, and peace will be with us from God the Father and from[a] Jesus Christ, the Father's Son, in truth and love.

4 I was overjoyed to find some of your children walking in the truth, just as we have been commanded by the Father. 5 But now, dear lady, I ask you, not as though I were writing you a new commandment, but one we have had from the beginning, let us love one another. 6 And this is love, that we walk according to his commandments; this is the commandment just as you have heard it from the beginning—you must walk in it.

7 Many deceivers have gone out into the world, those who do not confess that Jesus Christ has come in the flesh; any such person is the deceiver and the antichrist! 8 Be on your guard, so that you do not lose what we[b] have worked for, but may receive a full reward. 9 Everyone who does not abide in the teaching of Christ, but goes beyond it, does not have God; whoever abides in the teaching has both the Father and the Son. 10 Do not receive into the house or welcome anyone who comes to you and does not bring this teaching; 11 for to welcome is to participate in the evil deeds of such a person.

12 Although I have much to write to you, I would rather not use paper and ink; instead I hope to come to you and talk with you face to face, so that our joy may be complete.

13 The children of your elect sister send you their greetings.[c]

1: Elect lady, probably refers to a local church, the members of which are called her children. 2: The truth about Jesus, in contrast to false teaching (v. 7). 4: Some, not all; heresy has crept in. 5–6: 1 Jn 2.7; 5.3; Jn 13.34. 7: Deceivers, who taught that the Christ was not indissolubly united with the man Jesus (1 Jn 2.22), or that Jesus' body was not a real body of flesh and blood (1 Jn 4.2–3). 8: Full reward, eternal life (Jn 20.31; 1 Jn 2.25; 5.11–12). 9: Goes beyond, i.e. beyond the tradition about Jesus (1 Jn 1.1–4) and Jesus' own commandment of love (1 Jn 3.23; see 1 Jn 2.22–23 n.). 10–11: Hospitality to false teachers incurs responsibility for their evil deeds (compare Titus 3.10; Rev 2.2). 13: Elect sister, sister church (see v. 1 n.).

The Third Letter of John

Of the three Johannine letters, this one alone is written to an individual. It reflects a period in the church's life when organization was loose and churches were bound together by letters from those in authority and by personal visits of their representatives and traveling missionaries. In the unknown church to which this letter was directed, a certain Diotrephes, who liked "to put himself first" (v. 9), had challenged the spiritual authority of "the elder," refusing to receive messengers from him and expelling "from the church" those who showed them hospitality (v. 10). The elder, therefore, writes to a respected and influential member of the church named Gaius (v. 1), who has cordially welcomed the messengers and provided for their further needs (vv. 5–6). He encourages Gaius to continue this practice, indicating that he will deal with Diotrephes on a subsequent visit (v. 10). Verse 11 echoes the exhortation of 1 Jn 2.6; 3.6, 10; 4.7. Hospitality is an application of the love-command (vv. 5–6). Verse 12 serves as a letter of recommendation for Demetrius, probably a missionary about to visit the area.

The authorship and date parallel those of 1 and 2 John (see Introductions to 1 and 2 John).

1 The elder to the beloved Gaius, whom I love in truth.

2 Beloved, I pray that all may go well with you and that you may be in good health, just as it is well with your soul.
3 I was overjoyed when some of the friends[a] arrived and testified to your faithfulness to the truth, namely how you walk in the truth. 4 I have no greater joy than this, to hear that my children are walking in the truth.

5 Beloved, you do faithfully whatever you do for the friends,[a] even though they are strangers to you; 6 they have testified to your love before the church. You will do well to send them on in a manner worthy of God; 7 for they began their journey for the sake of Christ,[b] accepting no support from non-believers.[c] 8 Therefore we ought to support such people, so that we may become coworkers with the truth.

9 I have written something to the church; but Diotrephes, who likes to put himself first, does not acknowledge our authority. 10 So if I come, I will call attention to what he is doing in spreading false charges against us. And not content with those charges, he refuses to welcome the friends,[a] and even prevents those who want to do so and expels them from the church.

11 Beloved, do not imitate what is evil but imitate what is good. Whoever does good is from God; whoever does evil has not seen God. 12 Everyone has testified favorably about Demetrius, and so has the truth itself. We also testify for him,[d] and you know that our testimony is true.

13 I have much to write to you, but I would rather not write with pen and ink; 14 instead I hope to see you soon, and we will talk together face to face.

15 Peace to you. The friends send you their greetings. Greet the friends there, each by name.

1: Gaius, see Introduction. 3: Your faithfulness to the truth, behavior contrasting with that of Diotrephes (vv. 9–10) in receiving emissaries from the elder. 5–8: Commendation for, and encouragement to continue, rendering assistance to traveling missionaries, who were dependent on the church rather than on non-believers. Such support is true participation in spreading the gospel (contrast 2 Jn 10–11). 9–10: Written something, probably a letter of apostolic counsel no longer extant. Diotrephes, see Introduction. Personal ambition rejects authority. Friends, emissaries of the elder (contrast 1 Jn 2.19). 11: 1 Jn 3.6–10. 12: Demetrius, perhaps the bearer of this letter. # The Letter of
Jude

Jude is a brief tract cast as a general letter that warns Christians against persons who cause divisions in the Christian community (vv. 4, 12, 19). The traditional identification of Jude with Judas, a brother of Jesus (Mt 13.55; Mk 6.3), is unlikely. The author is contending for the faith that had been "once for all entrusted to the saints" (v. 3). Readers are reminded that the apostles had predicted the coming of such false Christians in the last days (v. 18). Jude clearly originated in the post-apostolic age.

The readers should not be deceived by such false Christians. Their licentious way of life (vv. 4, 6–8, 12–13, 16) and divisiveness show that they are without the Holy Spirit and the love of God that leads to eternal life (vv. 19–21). Christians, however, should seek to rescue those who are weak, and even show mercy to persons whose evil lives they reject (vv. 22–23).

The central argument (vv. 5–16) includes examples of divine judgment that are drawn from both Hebrew Scriptures and Jewish apocalyptic. The latter provides accounts of the fate of the angels who fell from heaven and the prophecies of judgment associated with Enoch (vv. 6–15), as well as a tradition that the archangel Michael and the devil struggled over the body of Moses (v. 9). The author's exhortation is so general that the letter may not be directed against a particular group or crisis within the community. Perhaps the author composed this warning against the deceit of ungodly Christians in order to remind the readers that they must never relax their efforts to achieve holiness. The brief but trenchant letter concludes with a beautiful and moving doxology (vv. 24–25).

1 Jude,[a] a servant[b] of Jesus Christ and brother of James,
To those who are called, who are beloved[c] in[d] God the Father and kept safe for[d] Jesus Christ:
2 May mercy, peace, and love be yours in abundance.

3 Beloved, while eagerly preparing to write to you about the salvation we share, I find it necessary to write and appeal to you to contend for the faith that was once for all entrusted to the saints. 4For certain intruders have stolen in among you, people who long ago were designated for this condemnation as ungodly, who pervert the grace of our God into licentiousness and deny our only Master and Lord, Jesus Christ.[e]

5 Now I desire to remind you, though you are fully informed, that the Lord, who once for all saved[f] a people out of the land of Egypt, afterward destroyed those who did not believe. 6And the angels who did not keep their own position, but left their proper dwelling, he has kept in eternal chains in deepest darkness for the judgment of the great day. 7Likewise, Sodom and Gomorrah and the surrounding cities, which, in the same manner as they, indulged in sexual immorality and pursued unnatural lust,[g] serve as an example by undergoing a punishment of eternal fire.

8 Yet in the same way these dreamers also defile the flesh, reject authority, and slander the glorious ones.[h] 9But when the archangel Michael contended with the devil and disputed about the body of Moses, he did not dare to bring a condemnation of slander[i] against him, but said, "The Lord rebuke you!" 10But these people slander whatever they do not understand, and they are destroyed by those things that, like irrational animals, they know by instinct. 11Woe to them! For they go the way of Cain, and abandon themselves to Balaam's error for the sake of gain, and perish in Korah's rebellion. 12These are blemishes[j] on your love-feasts, while they feast with you without fear, feeding themselves.[k] They are waterless clouds carried along by the winds; autumn trees without fruit, twice dead, uprooted; 13wild waves of the sea, casting up the foam of their own shame; wandering stars, for whom the deepest darkness has been reserved forever.

14 It was also about these that Enoch, in the seventh generation from Adam,

1–2: Salutation, see 1 Pet 1.1–2; Rom 1.1–7 n. 1: God has called (Rom 1.6–7; 8.28) the Christians, shown them his love, and keeps them for the coming of Jesus Christ (1 Thess 5.23).

3–4: Occasion of the letter. The emergence of false teachers has stimulated the author to warn readers against those who pervert the gospel and deny Christ. 3: The faith, a synonym for the gospel. The saints, see Rom 1.7 n.

5–16: False teachers. 5–7: The Israelites in the wilderness (1 Cor 10.1–11; Heb 3.7–19), the rebellious angels (Gen 6.4; the legend of the fallen angels appears in 1 Enoch 6–8), and Sodom and Gomorrah (Gen ch 19) are illustrations of how God judges the disobedient. 8: In spite of warnings, the heretics defy authority, revile angels (apparently those angels who are God's servants), and live licentiously.

9–10: The author refers to a Jewish tradition according to which Michael, though provoked to anger by Satan (who had charged that Moses, being a murderer, was not worthy of burial), refrained from bringing a condemnation of slander. The heretics, however, slander spiritual truths they do not comprehend (1 Cor 2.7–16) and will perish because they follow animal passions. 11: The way of Cain, Gen 4.9; Heb 11.4; 1 Jn 3.12. Balaam, Num chs 22–24; Rev 2.14. Korah, Num ch 16. 12: Apparently the heretics are within the fellowship, even attending the love-feasts (see 1 Cor 11.20–21 n., and 2 Pet 2.13 note t), and hence were the more dangerous. 14: See . . . , quoted from the book of 1 Enoch, 1.9.

prophesied, saying, "See, the Lord is coming[l] with ten thousands of his holy ones, 15to execute judgment on all, and to convict everyone of all the deeds of ungodliness that they have committed in such an ungodly way, and of all the harsh things that ungodly sinners have spoken against him." 16These are grumblers and malcontents; they indulge their own lusts; they are bombastic in speech, flattering people to their own advantage.

17 But you, beloved, must remember the predictions of the apostles of our Lord Jesus Christ; 18for they said to you, "In the last time there will be scoffers, indulging their own ungodly lusts." 19It is these worldly people, devoid of the Spirit, who are causing divisions. 20But you, beloved, build yourselves up on your most holy faith; pray in the Holy Spirit; 21keep yourselves in the love of God; look forward to the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ that leads to[m] eternal life. 22And have mercy on some who are wavering; 23save others by snatching them out of the fire; and have mercy on still others with fear, hating even the tunic defiled by their bodies.[n]

24 Now to him who is able to keep you from falling, and to make you stand without blemish in the presence of his glory with rejoicing, 25to the only God our Savior, through Jesus Christ our Lord, be glory, majesty, power, and authority, before all time and now and forever. Amen.

Apocalyptic Literature

Apocalyptic literature is a class of Jewish and Christian writings that first appeared about 250 B.C. and continued well into the opening centuries A.D. It frequently reflects a negative view of this world and expresses the hope for salvation in new creation or in another life. It served to comfort and encourage the faithful in difficult times.

Examples of apocalyptic literature are the following. In the Old Testament the second half of the book of Daniel (chs 7–12) has long been recognized as apocalyptic in genre. Other Old Testament writings also contain passages that resemble the eschatological symbolism of the apocalypses: e.g. Isaiah chs 24–27 ("the apocalypse of Isaiah"), a very late addition to the Isaianic collection; Ezekiel chs 38–39, depicting the final victory over eschatological enemies by God's people; Joel ch 2 and Zechariah chs 9–14. In the New Testament the leading example of apocalyptic genre is the book of Revelation; apocalyptic materials are present also in Mark ch 13 and its parallels in Matthew ch 24 and Luke ch 12. Among the books of the Apocrypha the work traditionally known as 2 Esdras contains as its central portion (chs 3–14) the "Ezra-Apocalypse." This section, which is believed to have been written in Hebrew by a Palestinian Jew at the close of the first century A.D., presents seven visions granted to Ezra in order to answer his questions about the disproportionate sufferings of Zion. Other examples of Jewish apocalyptic literature include 1 Enoch, 2 Enoch, Jubilees, and the Apocalypses of Abraham, of Baruch, and of Elijah. Among Christian apocryphal literature are the Apocalypses of Peter, of Paul, and the Shepherd of Hermas.

The word "apocalypse" is derived from the Greek word apokalypsis, meaning "disclosure," "unveiling," or "revelation." Apocalyptic revelations are of two kinds: (1) symbolic visions (e.g. Daniel 7–12; Revelation) and (2) otherworldly journeys (parts of 1 Enoch; 2 Enoch; 3 Baruch). In both kinds, there is a heavenly mediator (usually an angel, but sometimes Christ in the Christian apocalypses) who explains what the visionary sees. The otherworldly journeys have a stronger interest in cosmological matters than the visions do. All the apocalypses in the Bible and Apocrypha include symbolic visions. The symbolism is colorful. Gentile nations and institutions are represented as wild beasts, sometimes of composite make-up; for example, a leopard, with feet like a bear's, and a mouth like a lion's mouth (Rev 13.2). There is also sometimes an interest in numerology, whether in terms of cryptic reference to a person (as the number of the beast, 666, in Rev 13.18) or the duration of persecutions (a time, times, and half a time = three-and-a-half years) in Daniel (7.2–5) and Revelation (12.14).

The apocalyptic author often makes use of two literary devices that, though not confined to apocalyptic writings, are characteristic of many such writings. The first is that of secret books in which the seer is bidden to conceal these mysteries until the time of the End when they will be revealed to "the wise" as a sign that the End is soon at hand. In 2 Esdras, for example, Ezra is bidden to "keep the seventy [books] that were written last, in order to give them to the wise among your people. For in them is the spring of understanding, the fountain of wisdom, and the river of knowledge" (14.46f.; compare Dan 12.4, 9). It is noteworthy that the author of the New Testament Apocalypse is commanded not to seal up "the words of the prophecy of this book, for the time is near" (Rev 22.10). The second device is that of pseudonymity, whereby the author writes in the name of some honored person of antiquity, such as Enoch, Abraham, Moses, or Ezra. The intention is not to deceive but rather to strengthen the conviction that the apocalyptist is the transmitter of a long and authoritative tradition. The same device is followed in 2 Esdras and apocryphal Christian apocalypses, such as those of Peter and Paul, but not in the book of Revelation, where the writer uses his own name.

The content of the revelations invariably involves eschatology, that is, predictions about the final outcome of human affairs. To a degree, the eschatology resembles that of the prophets: apocalypses often predict the restoration of Israel as a messianic kingdom on earth. The eschatological kingdom plays an important part in the biblical apocalypses of Daniel and Revelation and in 2 Esdras. Apocalyptic eschatology is distinguished from prophecy, however, by the expectation of a judgment of the dead and of reward or punishment in a future life.

Apocalypticism is also characterized by dualism. There are two opposing personified forces in the universe, one good and the other evil. Yahweh is, of course, the supreme God. In Jewish apocalypticism the archangel Michael often functions as God's agent. Opposed to him is Belial, or Satan. The opposition of these supernatural figures is most clearly drawn in certain treatises among the Dead Sea Scrolls.

Dualism also modifies the eschatology of the apocalypses. There are two distinct and separate ages, the present age and the age to come. The second is not a natural development of the first, but is a new creation. At present, human history is under the domination of the power of evil; consequently it is evil and corrupt. God, however, has set a limit to the era of wickedness and will intervene at the appointed time to execute judgment.

Other features frequently found in apocalypses include the representation of present troubles as "birth-pangs" heralding the End (Mt 24.8; Mk 13.8). Sometimes this End is described in terms of political action and military struggle (the battle of "Armageddon"). At other times the conflict assumes cosmic proportions involving mysterious and awesome happenings on earth and in the heavens: earthquakes, famine, fearful celestial portents, and destruction by fire (Joel 2.30–32; Mt 24.29–31; Mk 13.24–26; Lk 21.25–27; Rev 6.12–17). In the final battle the powers of evil, together with the evil nations they represent, will be utterly destroyed (Rev 19.11–21). Then a new divine order will be established, when the End will be as the Beginning, and Paradise will be restored.

The relevance of apocalypticism has been variously estimated. On the one hand, to some it may seem to be hopelessly pessimistic. On the other hand, it has had a strong appeal as an uncomplicated explanation of the struggle between good and evil. In any case, one cannot deny that books such as Daniel and Revelation have sustained and strengthened believers, whether Jewish or Christian, amid experiences of trials and persecutions. The apocalyptists believed in God, and they, like the prophets, had faith in the divine control of history. That control, they were assured, was certain to be vindicated and displayed in the final climax of history, which was regarded solely and uniquely as the act of God.

The Revelation
to John

The book of Revelation, or Apocalypse, is a fitting close to the Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments, for its final chapters depict the consummation toward which the whole biblical message of redemption is focused. It may be described as an inspired picture-book that, by an accumulation of magnificent poetic imagery, makes a powerful appeal to the reader's imagination. Many of the details of its pictures are intended to contribute to the total impression, and are not to be isolated and interpreted with wooden literalism.

Through the centuries the Apocalypse has been the object of widely divergent systems of interpretation. It can be best understood when one takes into account the following considerations. (1) This book comprises the substance of real visions that repeat with kaleidoscopic variety certain great principles of God's just and merciful government of the whole creation. By centering attention on these principles, the church in all ages has been encouraged and sustained despite the fiercest antagonisms of both human and demonic foes. (2) The book is written in apocalyptic style, a recognized literary genre (see pp. 362–363 NT). It contains other elements as well, such as the seven letters in chs 2 and 3 and the several prophetic utterances scattered here and there throughout its pages, but its difficulty will be found to arise largely from our unfamiliarity with apocalyptic writings. (3) As an apocalypse, the message of the book is couched in symbolism, involving numbers, strange beasts, and other typical apocalyptic features. Throughout one must recognize that the author's descriptions are descriptions of the symbols, not of the reality conveyed by the symbol. (4) Although the key for understanding some of the symbols has been lost, in other cases a comparison with the prophetic symbolism of the Old Testament sheds light on the intended meaning. This is understandable in view of the author's frequent allusion to the Greek Septuagint translation of the Hebrew Scriptures; of the 404 verses in Revelation, some 275 include one or more allusions to passages in the Old Testament. (5) The structure of the book involves a series of parallel and yet ever-progressing sections; these bring before the reader, over and over again, but in climacteric form, the struggle of the church, and its victory over the world in the providence of God Almighty. There are probably seven of these sections, though only five are clearly marked. The plan of the whole is, then, something like the following: Prologue, 1.1–8; seven parallel sections divided at 3.22; 8.1; 11.19; 14.20; 16.21; and 19.21; Epilogue, 22.6–21.

Although parts of the book (e.g. ch 11) may have been reduced to writing before the fall of Jerusalem in A.D. 70, it is probable that the author, whose name is John (1.1, 4, 9; 22.8), put the book in its present form toward the close of the reign of the Emperor Domitian (A.D. 81–96). It was then that Domitian began to demand that his subjects address him as "Lord and God" and worship his image. For refusing to do so, many Christians were put to death (6.9; 13.15); others, like John (1.9), were exiled, and all were threatened. One reason for the author's couching his teaching in mysterious figures and extraordinary metaphors was to prevent the imperial police from recognizing that this book is a trumpet call to the persecuted, assuring them that, despite the worst that the Roman Empire could do, God reigns supreme, and Christ, who died and is alive forevermore (1.18), has the power to overcome all evil. And therefore John closes his book with the prayer, "Come, Lord Jesus!" (22.20).

1 The revelation of Jesus Christ, which God gave him to show his servants[a] what must soon take place; he made[b] it known by sending his angel to his servant[c] John, 2who testified to the word of God and to the testimony of Jesus Christ, even to all that he saw.

3 Blessed is the one who reads aloud the words of the prophecy, and blessed are those who hear and who keep what is written in it; for the time is near.

4 John to the seven churches that are in Asia:

Grace to you and peace from him who is and who was and who is to come, and from the seven spirits who are before his throne, 5and from Jesus Christ, the faithful witness, the firstborn of the dead, and the ruler of the kings of the earth.

To him who loves us and freed[d] us from our sins by his blood, 6and made[b] us to be a kingdom, priests serving[e] his God and Father, to him be glory and dominion forever and ever. Amen.

7 Look! He is coming with the clouds;
every eye will see him,
even those who pierced him;
and on his account all the tribes of the earth will wail.
So it is to be. Amen.

8 "I am the Alpha and the Omega," says the Lord God, who is and who was and who is to come, the Almighty.

9 I, John, your brother who share with you in Jesus the persecution and the kingdom and the patient endurance, was on the island called Patmos because of the word of God and the testimony of Jesus.[f] 10I was in the spirit[g] on the Lord's day, and I heard behind me a loud voice like a trumpet 11saying, "Write in a book what you see and send it to the seven churches, to Ephesus, to Smyrna, to Pergamum, to Thyatira, to Sardis, to Philadelphia, and to Laodicea."

12 Then I turned to see whose voice it was that spoke to me, and on turning I saw seven golden lampstands, 13and in the midst of the lampstands I saw one like the Son of Man, clothed with a long robe and with a golden sash across his chest. 14His head and his hair were white as white wool, white as snow; his eyes were like a flame of fire, 15his feet were like burnished bronze, refined as in a furnace, and his voice was like the sound of many waters. 16In his right hand he held seven stars, and from his mouth came a

1.1–3: The prologue. This revelation came from God through Jesus Christ and was communicated to John by an angel (referred to again in 22.16). 3: Blessed is . . ., the first of seven beatitudes in Revelation (compare 14.13; 16.15; 19.9; 20.6; 22.7, 14) is pronounced upon the reader of this prophetic book in services of worship and upon the listening worshipers who heed its message. The solemn words, the time is near, provide a motive for obedience.

1.4–8: Introductory salutation to seven representative churches in the Roman province of Asia (in western Asia Minor). Seven suggests the idea of completeness and totality. 4: Grace . . . and peace, see 2 Thess 1.2 n. The seven spirits are either angelic beings or, more likely, a symbolic reference to the manifold energies of the Spirit of God (Isa 11.2). 5: Faithful witness, Jesus testifies to the truth (Jn 18.37). He loves continually; he freed us once for all by his death as a sacrifice (Rom 6.10; Heb 7.27). 8: Alpha and Omega, the first and last letters of the Greek alphabet (like our "A to Z"); hence, the beginning and end of all things (Isa 44.6).

1.9–20: Preparatory vision on Patmos, a rocky island, about ten by five miles, in the Aegean, where John had been exiled (see Introduction). 10: In the spirit, in a state of prophetic illumination. Lord's day, Sunday.

1.12–16: In the midst of the churches (see v. 20) stands the exalted Christ, whose royalty, eternity, wisdom, and immutability are suggested by means of symbols; the effect is that of terrifying majesty (compare v. 17 with Isa 6.5). Son of Man, see Mk 2.10 n. Sound of many waters, Ezekiel also makes a similar comparison with the voice of the Almighty (Ezek 1.24; 43.2). Two-edged sword, the word of God (Heb 4.12). 18: Hades, used here with its synonym death, is the abode of the dead;

sharp, two-edged sword, and his face was like the sun shining with full force.

17 When I saw him, I fell at his feet as though dead. But he placed his right hand on me, saying, "Do not be afraid; I am the first and the last, 18and the living one. I was dead, and see, I am alive forever and ever; and I have the keys of Death and of Hades. 19Now write what you have seen, what is, and what is to take place after this. 20As for the mystery of the seven stars that you saw in my right hand, and the seven golden lampstands: the seven stars are the angels of the seven churches, and the seven lampstands are the seven churches.

2 "To the angel of the church in Ephesus write: These are the words of him who holds the seven stars in his right hand, who walks among the seven golden lampstands:

2 "I know your works, your toil and your patient endurance. I know that you cannot tolerate evildoers; you have tested those who claim to be apostles but are not, and have found them to be false. 3I also know that you are enduring patiently and bearing up for the sake of my name, and that you have not grown weary. 4But I have this against you, that you have abandoned the love you had at first. 5Remember then from what you have fallen; repent, and do the works you did at first. If not, I will come to you and remove your lampstand from its place, unless you repent. 6Yet this is to your credit: you hate the works of the Nicolaitans, which I also hate. 7Let anyone who has an ear listen to what the Spirit is saying to the churches. To everyone who conquers, I will give permission to eat from the tree of life that is in the paradise of God.

8 "And to the angel of the church in Smyrna write: These are the words of the first and the last, who was dead and came to life:

9 "I know your affliction and your poverty, even though you are rich. I know the slander on the part of those who say that they are Jews and are not, but are a synagogue of Satan. 10Do not fear what you are about to suffer. Beware, the devil is about to throw some of you into prison so that you may be tested, and for ten days you will have affliction. Be faithful until death, and I will give you the crown of life. 11Let anyone who has an ear listen to what the Spirit is saying to the churches. Whoever conquers will not be harmed by the second death.

12 "And to the angel of the church in Pergamum write: These are the words of him who has the sharp two-edged sword:

Christ has the keys to release those confined within its gates (Mt 16.18; Jn 5.25–29). 20: Mystery, truth formerly hidden, but now to be revealed. Angels are assigned to the seven churches, as also to nations (Dan 10.13; 12.1) and individuals (Mt 18.10).

2.1–3.22: The letters to the seven churches, each containing an address, a descriptive phrase referring to the risen Lord, a commendation or condemnation of the church addressed, an admonition, and a concluding promise and exhortation to the faithful.

2.1–7: The first letter is appropriately sent to Ephesus, the most important city of proconsular Asia; Paul labored here in the 60s for two years and three months (Acts 19.8–10). 1: Christ walks among his churches (1.20). 2: Evildoers, compare the warning to the Ephesian elders in Acts 20.29–30. 6: To hate evil is the counterpart of the love of the good (Isa 61.8; Zech 8.17). The Nicolaitans (probably not connected with the Nicolaus of Acts 6.5) taught that Christians were free to eat food offered to idols and to practice immorality in the name of religion (v. 14). 7: What the Spirit is saying, speaking through Christ to John. Conquers, a military term, suggesting continuous vigilance. Tree of life, Gen 2.9.

2.8–11: The second letter, sent to Smyrna, commends the church for its perseverance amid affliction and poverty. 8: Isa 44.6. 9: Rich, in spiritual things. 10: Ten days, not a lengthy period (Dan 1.12). Crown of life, supreme blessedness. 11: The second death, the final condemnation of sinners (20.14; Mt 10.28).

where Satan's throne is. Yet you are holding fast to my name, and you did not deny your faith in me[h] even in the days of Antipas my witness, my faithful one, who was killed among you, where Satan lives. 14 But I have a few things against you: you have some there who hold to the teaching of Balaam, who taught Balak to put a stumbling block before the people of Israel, so that they would eat food sacrificed to idols and practice fornication. 15 So you also have some who hold to the teaching of the Nicolaitans. 16 Repent then. If not, I will come to you soon and make war against them with the sword of my mouth. 17 Let anyone who has an ear listen to what the Spirit is saying to the churches. To everyone who conquers I will give some of the hidden manna, and I will give a white stone, and on the white stone is written a new name that no one knows except the one who receives it.

18 "And to the angel of the church in Thyatira write: These are the words of the Son of God, who has eyes like a flame of fire, and whose feet are like burnished bronze:

19 "I know your works—your love, faith, service, and patient endurance. I know that your last works are greater than the first. 20 But I have this against you: you tolerate that woman Jezebel, who calls herself a prophet and is teaching and beguiling my servants[i] to practice fornication and to eat food sacrificed to idols. 21 I gave her time to repent, but she refuses to repent of her fornication. 22 Beware, I am throwing her on a bed, and those who commit adultery with her I am throwing into great distress, unless they repent of her doings; 23 and I will strike her children dead. And all the churches will know that I am the one who searches minds and hearts, and I will give to each of you as your works deserve. 24 But to the rest of you in Thyatira, who do not hold this teaching, who have not learned what some call 'the deep things of Satan,' to you I say, I do not lay on you any other burden; 25 only hold fast to what you have until I come. 26 To everyone who conquers and continues to do my works to the end,

I will give authority over
the nations;
27 to rule[j] them with an iron rod,
as when clay pots are shattered—

28 even as I also received authority from my Father. To the one who conquers I will also give the morning star. 29 Let anyone who has an ear listen to what the Spirit is saying to the churches.

3 "And to the angel of the church in Sardis write: These are the words of him who has the seven spirits of God and the seven stars:

"I know your works; you have a name of being alive, but you are dead. 2 Wake up, and strengthen what remains and is on the point of death, for I have not found your works perfect in the sight of

2.12–17: The third letter is sent to Pergamum, a noted center of idolatrous worship. 12: Sharp two-edged sword, 1.16. 14–15: See v. 6; Num 25.1–2; 31.16. 17: Manna . . . name, Ex 16.33–34; Ps 78.24; Isa 62.2. White, the color symbolizing victory and joy.

If you do not wake up, I will come like a thief, and you will not know at what hour I will come to you. 4Yet you have still a few persons in Sardis who have not soiled their clothes; they will walk with me, dressed in white, for they are worthy. 5If you conquer, you will be clothed like them in white robes, and I will not blot your name out of the book of life; I will confess your name before my Father and before his angels. 6Let anyone who has an ear listen to what the Spirit is saying to the churches.

I know that you have but little power, and yet you have kept my word and have not denied my name. 9I will make those of the synagogue of Satan who say that they are Jews and are not, but are lying—I will make them come and bow down before your feet, and they will learn that I have loved you. 10Because you have kept my word of patient endurance, I will keep you from the hour of trial that is coming on the whole world to test the inhabitants of the earth. 11I am coming soon; hold fast to what you have, so that no one may seize your crown. 12If you conquer, I will make you a pillar in the temple of my God; you will never go out of it. I will write on you the name of my God, and the name of the city of my God, the new Jerusalem that comes down from my God out of heaven, and my own new name. 13Let anyone who has an ear listen to what the Spirit is saying to the churches.

14 "And to the angel of the church in Laodicea write: The words of the Amen, the faithful and true witness, the origin[k] of God's creation:

15 "I know your works; you are neither cold nor hot. I wish that you were either cold or hot. 16So, because you are lukewarm, and neither cold nor hot, I am about to spit you out of my mouth. 17For you say, 'I am rich, I have prospered, and I need nothing.' You do not realize that you are wretched, pitiable, poor, blind, and naked. 18Therefore I counsel you to buy from me gold refined by fire so that you may be rich; and white robes to clothe you and to keep the shame of your nakedness from being seen; and salve to anoint your eyes so that you may see. 19I reprove and discipline those whom I love. 4 After this I looked, and there in heaven a door stood open! And the first voice, which I had heard speaking to me like a trumpet, said, "Come up here, and I will show you what must take place after this." 2At once I was in the spirit,[l] and there in heaven stood a throne, with one seated on the throne! 3And the one seated there looks like jasper and carnelian, and around the throne is a rainbow that looks like an emerald. 4Around the throne are twenty-four thrones, and seated on the thrones are twenty-four elders, dressed in white robes, with golden crowns on their heads. 5Coming from the throne are flashes of lightning, and rumblings and peals of thunder, and in front of the throne burn seven flaming torches, which are the seven spirits of God; 6and in front of the throne there is something like a sea of glass, like crystal.

Around the throne, and on each side of the throne, are four living creatures, full of eyes in front and behind: 7the first living creature like a lion, the second living creature like an ox, the third living creature with a face like a human face, and the fourth living creature like a flying eagle. 8And the four living creatures, each of them with six wings, are full of eyes all around and inside. Day and night without ceasing they sing,

"Holy, holy, holy,
the Lord God the Almighty, who was and is and is to come."

9And whenever the living creatures give glory and honor and thanks to the one who is seated on the throne, who lives forever and ever, 10the twenty-four elders fall before the one who is seated on the throne and worship the one who lives forever and ever; they cast their crowns before the throne, singing,

11 "You are worthy, our Lord and God,
to receive glory and honor
and power,
for you created all things,
and by your will they existed
and were created."

5 Then I saw in the right hand of the one seated on the throne a scroll written on the inside and on the back, sealed[m] with seven seals; 2and I saw a mighty angel proclaiming with a loud voice, "Who is worthy to open the scroll and break its seals?" 3And no one in heaven or on earth or under the earth was able to open the scroll or to look into it. 4And I began to weep bitterly because no one was found worthy to open the scroll or to look into it. 5Then one of the elders the coming age (compare Mt 26.29). 21: A place with me, a promise of reigning with Christ in glory (22.5; Lk 22.30).

4.1–5.14: Vision of the glory of God and of the Lamb.

Holy, holy, holy,* Isa 6.2–3. 10: Cast their crowns, acknowledging that all power comes from God. 11: They existed in God's mind from all eternity.

said to me, "Do not weep. See, the Lion of the tribe of Judah, the Root of David, has conquered, so that he can open the scroll and its seven seals."

6 Then I saw between the throne and the four living creatures and among the elders a Lamb standing as if it had been slaughtered, having seven horns and seven eyes, which are the seven spirits of God sent out into all the earth. 7He went and took the scroll from the right hand of the one who was seated on the throne. 8When he had taken the scroll, the four living creatures and the twenty-four elders fell before the Lamb, each holding a harp and golden bowls full of incense, which are the prayers of the saints. 9They sing a new song:

"You are worthy to take the scroll and to open its seals, for you were slaughtered and by your blood you ransomed for God saints from[n] every tribe and language and people
and nation;
10 you have made them to be a kingdom and priests
serving[o] our God,
and they will reign on earth."

11 Then I looked, and I heard the voice of many angels surrounding the throne and the living creatures and the elders; they numbered myriads of myriads and thousands of thousands, 12singing with full voice,

"Worthy is the Lamb that was slaughtered
to receive power and wealth and wisdom and might and honor and glory and blessing!"

13Then I heard every creature in heaven and on earth and under the earth and in the sea, and all that is in them, singing,

"To the one seated on the throne and to the Lamb
be blessing and honor and glory and might forever and ever!"

14And the four living creatures said, "Amen!" And the elders fell down and worshiped.

6 Then I saw the Lamb open one of the seven seals, and I heard one of the four living creatures call out, as with a voice of thunder, "Come!"[p] 2I looked, and there was a white horse! Its rider had a bow; a crown was given to him, and he came out conquering and to conquer.

3 When he opened the second seal, I heard the second living creature call out, "Come!"[p] 4And out came[q] another horse, bright red; its rider was permitted to take peace from the earth, so that people would slaughter one another; and he was given a great sword.

carry out God's plan, only the Messianic king can do so; for his titles (Lion . . . Root), compare Gen 49.9–10; Isa 11.1, 10.

5.6–9: The Lamb . . . slaughtered, refers to Christ's sacrificial death, by which God's purposes contained in the scroll are accomplished (Isa 53.7; Jn 1.29, 36; 1 Pet 1.19). Seven horns . . . seven eyes, plentitude of power and insight. Seven spirits, 1.4. 8: The prayers of the saints on earth are joined with the worship rendered to the Lamb by heavenly creatures. 9–10: A new song, because Christ has inaugurated a new era (14.3). The Lamb is adored in terms similar to the adoration rendered to God (4.11). A kingdom and priests, the vocation promised to Israel (Ex 19.6; Isa 61.6) is extended to the church (1 Pet 2.9). 11–12: The sevenfold praise of myriads in heaven honoring the sacrificial Lamb. 13: Universal praise to the Creator and to the Redeemer as equal in majesty.

6.1–17: The opening of the first six seals of the scroll, and the pictorial enactment of what is written therein. 1–8: Come! addressed successively to each of the four riders (Zech 6.1–3) who accomplish God's purposes. 2: The white horse symbolizes a conquering power that none can resist (in 19.11–13 the reference is to Christ). 4: The red horse symbolizes war and bloodshed. 5: The black horse symbolizes famine, which follows upon war. 8: The pale green horse symbolizes pestilence and death. A fourth part indicates wide but not total devastation. Pestilence, Ex 9.3;

heard the third living creature call out, "Come!"[r] I looked, and there was a black horse! Its rider held a pair of scales in his hand, [6]and I heard what seemed to be a voice in the midst of the four living creatures saying, "A quart of wheat for a day's pay,[s] and three quarts of barley for a day's pay,[s] but do not damage the olive oil and the wine!"

7 When he opened the fourth seal, I heard the voice of the fourth living creature call out, "Come!"[r] [8]I looked and there was a pale green horse! Its rider's name was Death, and Hades followed with him; they were given authority over a fourth of the earth, to kill with sword, famine, and pestilence, and by the wild animals of the earth.

9 When he opened the fifth seal, I saw under the altar the souls of those who had been slaughtered for the word of God and for the testimony they had given; [10]they cried out with a loud voice, "Sovereign Lord, holy and true, how long will it be before you judge and avenge our blood on the inhabitants of the earth?" [11]They were each given a white robe and told to rest a little longer, until the number would be complete both of their fellow servants[t] and of their brothers and sisters,[u] who were soon to be killed as they themselves had been killed.

12 When he opened the sixth seal, I looked, and there came a great earthquake; the sun became black as sackcloth, the full moon became like blood, [13]and the stars of the sky fell to the earth as the fig tree drops its winter fruit when shaken by a gale. [14]The sky vanished like a scroll rolling itself up, and every mountain and island was removed from its place. [15]Then the kings of the earth and the magnates and the generals and the rich and the powerful, and everyone, slave and free, hid in the caves and among the rocks of the mountains, [16]calling to the mountains and rocks, "Fall on us and hide us from the face of the one seated on the throne and from the wrath of the Lamb; [17]for the great day of their wrath has come, and who is able to stand?"

7 After this I saw four angels standing at the four corners of the earth, holding back the four winds of the earth so that no wind could blow on earth or sea or against any tree. [2]I saw another angel ascending from the rising of the sun, having the seal of the living God, and he called with a loud voice to the four angels who had been given power to damage earth and sea, [3]saying, "Do not damage the earth or the sea or the trees, until we have marked the servants[t] of our God with a seal on their foreheads."

4 And I heard the number of those who were sealed, one hundred forty-four thousand, sealed out of every tribe of the people of Israel:

5 From the tribe of Judah twelve thousand sealed, from the tribe of Reuben twelve thousand,
from the tribe of Gad twelve thousand,

6.9–17: The fifth and sixth seals describe the prayers of the martyrs in heaven (vv. 9–11) and their effects on earth (vv. 12–17). 9: The souls of the martyrs are said to be under the altar because they had been martyred for the sake of Christ (Mt 24.9; Phil 2.17; 2 Tim 4.6). 10: How long? is a cry for divine vindication. Avenge our blood, vengeance belongs to God (Rom 12.19). 11: White robe, see 2.17 n. and 7.9 n. 12–14: The great earthquake and cosmic catastrophes are not to be understood literally, but represent social upheavals and divine judgment on the Day of the Lord (Isa 34.4; Joel 2.30–31; Am 8.9). 15–17: All classes of society seek to escape from God (Isa 2.10).

7.1–17: An interlude between the sixth and seventh seals: two visions (vv. 1–8 and vv. 9–17) which provide assurance that God's people are secure from the plagues and judgments. 3: The seal (Ezek 9.4–6) marks those under God's protection; they are preserved through, not from, tribulations (1 Cor 10.13). 4: The explicit number (144,000) symbolizes completeness; not one of the redeemed is missing.

9 After this I looked, and there was a great multitude that no one could count, from every nation, from all tribes and peoples and languages, standing before the throne and before the Lamb, robed in white, with palm branches in their hands. 10They cried out in a loud voice, saying,

"Salvation belongs to our God who is seated on the throne, and to the Lamb!"

11And all the angels stood around the throne and around the elders and the four living creatures, and they fell on their faces before the throne and worshiped God, 12singing,

"Amen! Blessing and glory and wisdom
and thanksgiving and honor and power and might be to our God forever and ever!
Amen."

13 Then one of the elders addressed me, saying, "Who are these, robed in white, and where have they come from?" 14I said to him, "Sir, you are the one that knows." Then he said to me, "These are they who have come out of the great ordeal; they have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb.

15 For this reason they are before the throne of God,
and worship him day and night
within his temple,
and the one who is seated on the throne will shelter
them.
16 They will hunger no more, and thirst no more;
the sun will not strike them,
nor any scorching heat;
17 for the Lamb at the center of the throne will be their shepherd,
and he will guide them to springs of the water of life, and God will wipe away every tear from their eyes."

8 When the Lamb opened the seventh seal, there was silence in heaven for about half an hour. 2And I saw the seven angels who stand before God, and seven trumpets were given to them.

3 Another angel with a golden censer came and stood at the altar; he was given a great quantity of incense to offer with the prayers of all the saints on the golden altar that is before the throne. 4And the smoke of the incense, with the prayers of the saints, rose before God from the hand of the angel. 5Then the angel took the censer and filled it with fire from the altar and threw it on the earth; and there were peals of thunder, rumblings, flashes of lightning, and an earthquake.

seven trumpets made ready to blow them.

7 The first angel blew his trumpet, and there came hail and fire, mixed with blood, and they were hurled to the earth; and a third of the earth was burned up, and a third of the trees were burned up and all green grass was burned up.

8 The second angel blew his trumpet, and something like a great mountain, burning with fire, was thrown into the sea. 9A third of the sea became blood, a third of the living creatures in the sea died, and a third of the ships were destroyed.

10 The third angel blew his trumpet, and a great star fell from heaven, blazing like a torch, and it fell on a third of the rivers and on the springs of water. 11The name of the star is Wormwood. A third of the waters became wormwood, and many died from the water, because it was made bitter.

12 The fourth angel blew his trumpet, and a third of the sun was struck, and a third of the moon, and a third of the stars, so that a third of their light was darkened; a third of the day was kept from shining, and likewise the night.

13 Then I looked, and I heard an eagle crying with a loud voice as it flew in midheaven, "Woe, woe, woe to the inhabitants of the earth, at the blasts of the other trumpets that the three angels are about to blow!"

9 And the fifth angel blew his trumpet, and I saw a star that had fallen from heaven to earth, and he was given the key to the shaft of the bottomless pit; 2he opened the shaft of the bottomless pit, and from the shaft rose smoke like the smoke of a great furnace, and the sun and the air were darkened with the smoke from the shaft. 3Then from the smoke came locusts on the earth, and they were given authority like the authority of scorpions of the earth. 4They were told not to damage the grass of the earth or any green growth or any tree, but only those people who do not have the seal of God on their foreheads. 5They were allowed to torture them for five months, but not to kill them, and their torture was like the torture of a scorpion when it stings someone. 6And in those days people will seek death but will not find it; they will long to die, but death will flee from them.

7 In appearance the locusts were like horses equipped for battle. On their heads were what looked like crowns of gold; their faces were like human faces, 8their hair like women's hair, and their teeth like lions' teeth; 9they had scales like iron breastplates, and the noise of their wings was like the noise of many chariots with horses rushing into battle. 10They have tails like scorpions, with stingers, and in their tails is their power to harm people for five months. 11They have as king over them the angel of the bottomless pit; his name in Hebrew is Abaddon,[v] and in Greek he is called Apollyon.[w]

12 The first woe has passed. There are still two woes to come.

v That is, Destruction w That is, Destroyer

8.6–9.21: The first six trumpets introduce new convulsions of nature, in judgment upon the wicked (compare the plagues of Egypt, Ex 9.23, 25; 7.17–21; 10.21–23). These calamities are not consecutive nor are they to be taken literally.

8.11: Wormwood, a bitter drug symbolizing divine chastisements (Jer 9.15; 23.15). 13: An eagle announces impending judgment. Woe . . ., thrice repeated because the last three plagues are especially grievous.

9.1–12: The plague of demonic locusts, which combine the terrors of evil spirits and of invading horsemen (probably Parthians). 1: A star . . . fallen from heaven, one of the fallen angels, perhaps Satan himself (v. 11; Lk 10.18). 3: Locusts, Ex 10.12–15. 4: God's servants are not to be harmed (7.3). 5: Five months, the period from May to September, the life-cycle of a plague of locusts. 6: Will seek death, in utter despair because of the torments.

9.7–10: John apparently would have the reader understand the locusts to be of considerable size. 11: The name Abaddon, which means "Destruction," denotes the depths of Sheol (Job 26.6; see Prov 15.11 n.).

13 Then the sixth angel blew his trumpet, and I heard a voice from the four[x] horns of the golden altar before God, 14 saying to the sixth angel who had the trumpet, "Release the four angels who are bound at the great river Euphrates." 15 So the four angels were released, who had been held ready for the hour, the day, the month, and the year, to kill a third of humankind. 16 The number of the troops of cavalry was two hundred million; I heard their number. 17 And this was how I saw the horses in my vision: the riders wore breastplates the color of fire and of sapphire[y] and of sulfur; the heads of the horses were like lions' heads, and fire and smoke and sulfur came out of their mouths. 18 By these three plagues a third of humankind was killed, by the fire and smoke and sulfur coming out of their mouths. 19 For the power of the horses is in their mouths and in their tails; their tails are like serpents, having heads; and with them they inflict harm.

20 The rest of humankind, who were not killed by these plagues, did not repent of the works of their hands or give up worshiping demons and idols of gold and silver and bronze and stone and wood, which cannot see or hear or walk. 21 And they did not repent of their murders or their sorceries or their fornication or their thefts.

10 And I saw another mighty angel coming down from heaven, wrapped in a cloud, with a rainbow over his head; his face was like the sun, and his legs like pillars of fire. 2 He held a little scroll open in his hand. Setting his right foot on the sea and his left foot on the land, 3 he gave a great shout, like a lion roaring. And when he shouted, the seven thunders sounded. 4 And when the seven thunders had sounded, I was about to write, but I heard a voice from heaven saying, "Seal up what the seven thunders have said, and do not write it down." 5 Then the angel whom I saw standing on the sea and the land raised his right hand to heaven

6 and swore by him who lives

who created heaven and what is in it, the earth and what is in it, and the sea and what is in it: "There will be no more delay, 7 but in the days when the seventh angel is to blow his trumpet, the mystery of God will be fulfilled, as he announced to his servants[z] the prophets."

8 Then the voice that I had heard from heaven spoke to me again, saying, "Go, take the scroll that is open in the hand of the angel who is standing on the sea and on the land." 9 So I went to the angel and told him to give me the little scroll; and he said to me, "Take it, and eat; it will be bitter to your stomach, but sweet as honey in your mouth." 10 So I took the little scroll from the hand of the angel and ate it; it was sweet as honey in my mouth, but when I had eaten it, my stomach was made bitter.

11 Then they said to me, "You must prophesy again about many peoples and nations and languages and kings."

11 Then I was given a measuring rod like a staff, and I was told, "Come and measure the temple of God and the altar and those who worship there, 2 but do not measure the court outside the temple; leave that out, for it is given over to the nations, and they will trample over the holy city for forty-two

4 These are the two olive trees and the two lampstands that stand before the Lord of the earth. 5And if anyone wants to harm them, fire pours from their mouth and consumes their foes; anyone who wants to harm them must be killed in this manner. 6They have authority to shut the sky, so that no rain may fall during the days of their prophesying, and they have authority over the waters to turn them into blood, and to strike the earth with every kind of plague, as often as they desire.

7 When they have finished their testimony, the beast that comes up from the bottomless pit will make war on them and conquer them and kill them, 8and their dead bodies will lie in the street of the great city that is prophetically[a] called Sodom and Egypt, where also their Lord was crucified. 9For three and a half days members of the peoples and tribes and languages and nations will gaze at their dead bodies and refuse to let them be placed in a tomb; 10and the inhabitants of the earth will gloat over them and celebrate and exchange presents, because these two prophets had been a torment to the inhabitants of the earth.

11 But after the three and a half days, the breath[b] of life from God entered them, and they stood on their feet, and those who saw them were terrified. 12Then they[c] heard a loud voice from heaven saying to them, "Come up here!" And they went up to heaven in a cloud while their enemies watched them. 13At that moment there was a great earthquake, and a tenth of the city fell; seven thousand people were killed in the earthquake, and the rest were terrified and gave glory to the God of heaven.

19 Then God's temple in heaven was opened, and the ark of his covenant was seen within his temple; and there were flashes of lightning, rumblings, peals of thunder, an earthquake, and heavy hail.

12 A great portent appeared in heaven: a woman clothed with the sun, with the moon under her feet, and on her head a crown of twelve stars. 2She was pregnant and was crying out in birth pangs, in the agony of giving birth. 3Then another portent appeared in heaven: a great red dragon, with seven heads and ten horns, and seven diadems on his heads. 4His tail swept down a third of the stars of heaven and threw them to the earth. Then the dragon stood before the woman who was about to bear a child, so that he might devour her child as soon as it was born. 5And she gave birth to a son, a male child, who is to rule[f] all the nations with a rod of iron. But her child was snatched away and taken to God and to his throne; 6and the woman fled into the wilderness, where she has a place prepared by God, so that there she can be nourished for one thousand two hundred sixty days.

7 And war broke out in heaven; Michael and his angels fought against the dragon. The dragon and his angels fought back, 8but they were defeated, and there was no longer any place for them in heaven. 9The great dragon was thrown down, that ancient serpent, who is called the Devil and Satan, the deceiver of the whole world—he was thrown down to the earth, and his angels were thrown down with him.

10 Then I heard a loud voice in heaven, proclaiming,

12.1–17: The vision of the woman, the child, and the dragon portrays the conflict between Christ and Satan. 1: The woman appears to be the heavenly representative of God's people, first as Israel (from whom Jesus the Messiah was born, v. 5), then as the Christian Church (which is persecuted by the dragon, v. 13). 3: Dragon, identified in v.9 as the Devil or Satan. His enormous size and power are suggested in v. 4. 5: Ps 2.9 identifies the child to be the Davidic Messiah. 6: The church is sustained by God.

12.7: Michael, an archangel and the champion of Israel (Dan 10.13, 21; 12.1; Jude 9). The dragon and his angels, see Eph 6.12 n. 9: Lk 10.18. 10: The accuser, Job 1.9–11. 11: They have conquered, through both divine and human effort. 12: Rejoice, Ps 96.11; Isa 49.13. 16:

its mouth and swallowed the river that the dragon had poured from his mouth. [17]Then the dragon was angry with the woman, and went off to make war on the rest of her children, those who keep the commandments of God and hold the testimony of Jesus.

18 Then the dragon[j] took his stand on the sand of the seashore.

13 [1]And I saw a beast rising out of the sea, having ten horns and seven heads; and on its horns were ten diadems, and on its heads were blasphemous names. [2]And the beast that I saw was like a leopard, its feet were like a bear's, and its mouth was like a lion's mouth. And the dragon gave it his power and his throne and great authority. [3]One of its heads seemed to have received a death-blow, but its mortal wound[k] had been healed. In amazement the whole earth followed the beast. [4]They worshiped the dragon, for he had given his authority to the beast, and they worshiped the beast, saying, "Who is like the beast, and who can fight against it?"

5 The beast was given a mouth uttering haughty and blasphemous words, and it was allowed to exercise authority for forty-two months. [6]It opened its mouth to utter blasphemies against God, blaspheming his name and his dwelling, that is, those who dwell in heaven. [7]Also it was allowed to make war on the saints and to conquer them.[l] It was given authority over every tribe and people and language and nation, [8]and all the inhabitants of the earth will worship it, everyone whose name has not been written from the foundation of the world in the book of life of the Lamb that was slaughtered.[m]

9 Let anyone who has an ear listen:
[10] If you are to be taken captive,
into captivity you go;
if you kill with the sword,
with the sword you must be killed.

Here is a call for the endurance and faith of the saints.

11 Then I saw another beast that rose out of the earth; it had two horns like a lamb and it spoke like a dragon. [12]It exercises all the authority of the first beast on its behalf, and it makes the earth and its inhabitants worship the first beast, whose mortal wound[n] had been healed. [13]It performs great signs, even making fire come down from heaven to earth in the sight of all; [14]and by the signs that it is allowed to perform on behalf of the beast, it deceives the inhabitants of earth, telling them to make an image for the beast that had been wounded by the sword[o] and yet lived; [15]and it was allowed to give breath[p] to the image of the beast so that the image of the beast could even speak and cause those who would not worship the image of the beast to be killed. [16]Also it causes all, both small and great, both rich and poor, both free and slave, to be marked on the right hand or the forehead, [17]so that no one can buy or sell who does not have the mark, that is, the name of the beast or the number of its name. [18]This calls for wisdom: let anyone with understanding calculate the Aid comes from an unexpected quarter.

13.1–18: The two beasts. 1–10: The beast from the sea combines the powers of the four beasts of Dan ch 7 and represents the Roman empire, incited by the dragon (v. 2) to persecute the saints (v. 7). 5: The sovereignty of God, even amid persecution, is implied by the use of passive verbs here and in vv. 7, 10, 14, 15 (compare 6.4; see 17.17 n.). Forty-two months, see 11.2 n. 8: Book of life, see 3.5 n. 10: Jer 15.2; Mt 26.52.

13.11–18: The beast from the earth, called the false prophet (19.20), enforces Emperor worship (v. 12), and produces great signs (v. 13) to deceive the people (v. 14; compare Deut 13.1–5; Mt 24.24; 2 Thess 2.9). 16–17: Marked in imitation of the sealing of God's servants (7.2–4), resulting in economic boycott against the Christians. 18: Since Hebrew and Greek letters have numerical equivalents, the number of the beast (666) is the sum of the separate letters of his name. Of countless ex-number of the beast, for it is the number of a person. Its number is six hundred sixty-six.[q]

14 Then I looked, and there was the Lamb, standing on Mount Zion! And with him were one hundred forty-four thousand who had his name and his Father's name written on their foreheads. 2 And I heard a voice from heaven like the sound of many waters and like the sound of loud thunder; the voice I heard was like the sound of harpists playing on their harps, 3 and they sing a new song before the throne and before the four living creatures and before the elders. No one could learn that song except the one hundred forty-four thousand who have been redeemed from the earth. 4 It is these who have not defiled themselves with women, for they are virgins; these follow the Lamb wherever he goes. They have been redeemed from humankind as first fruits for God and the Lamb, 5 and in their mouth no lie was found; they are blameless.

6 Then I saw another angel flying in midheaven, with an eternal gospel to proclaim to those who live[r] on the earth—to every nation and tribe and language and people. 7 He said in a loud voice, "Fear God and give him glory, for the hour of his judgment has come; and worship him who made heaven and earth, the sea and the springs of water."

8 Then another angel, a second, followed, saying, "Fallen, fallen is Babylon the great! She has made all nations drink of the wine of the wrath of her fornication."

9 Then another angel, a third, followed them, crying with a loud voice, "Those who worship the beast and its image, and receive a mark on their foreheads or on their hands, 10 they will also drink the wine of God's wrath, poured unmixed into the cup of his anger, and they will be tormented with fire and sulfur in the presence of the holy angels and in the presence of the Lamb. 11 And the smoke of their torment goes up forever and ever. There is no rest day or night for those who worship the beast and its image and for anyone who receives the mark of its name."

12 Here is a call for the endurance of the saints, those who keep the commandments of God and hold fast to the faith of[s] Jesus.

13 And I heard a voice from heaven saying, "Write this: Blessed are the dead who from now on die in the Lord." "Yes," says the Spirit, "they will rest from their labors, for their deeds follow them."

14 Then I looked, and there was a white cloud, and seated on the cloud was one like the Son of Man, with a golden crown on his head, and a sharp sickle in his hand! 15 Another angel came out of the temple, calling with a loud voice to the one who sat on the cloud, "Use your sickle and reap, for the hour to reap has planations, the most probable is Neron Caesar (in Hebrew letters), which, if spelled without the final n, also accounts for the variant reading, 616 (see note q).

14.1–20: An interlude of three visions intended to reassure the church amid trials and persecutions. 1–5: The Lamb and those redeemed from the earth; as in 7.4, the one hundred forty-four thousand is a symbolic expression for the whole number of the faithful. 1: Mount Zion, that is, the heavenly Zion (Heb 12.22). Written on their foreheads, 7.3; 22.4. 3: They, the one hundred forty-four thousand. New song, compare 5.8–10. 4: They are virgins, that is, chaste, in contrast to the devotees of the pagan cults (2.20–22). First fruits, Ex 23.19; Jas 1.18. 6–13: Three angels announce the coming judgment. 6: God's eternal purpose is soon to be fulfilled (10.7). 7: Fear God, 15.4; Jer 10.7; Acts 5.11. The hour of his judgment, Acts 10.42; 17.31; 24.25. 8: An anticipation of ch 18. 10: Wine of God's wrath, Jer 25.15–16; 51.7. Unmixed, not diluted. Wine was often mixed with water before being drunk. Tormented with fire, in Gehenna (see 19.20 n.; 20.10). 11: Smoke, 18.9, 18–19.3.

14.13: Blessed, see 1.3 n. Their deeds, the fruits of Christian character (Gal 5.22–23). 14–20: The final judgment of God (Joel 3.13), involving the ingathering of the saints by one like the Son of Man (vv. 14–16) and the assem-come, because the harvest of the earth is fully ripe." 16So the one who sat on the cloud swung his sickle over the earth, and the earth was reaped.

17 Then another angel came out of the temple in heaven, and he too had a sharp sickle. 18Then another angel came out from the altar, the angel who has authority over fire, and he called with a loud voice to him who had the sharp sickle, "Use your sharp sickle and gather the clusters of the vine of the earth, for its grapes are ripe." 19So the angel swung his sickle over the earth and gathered the vintage of the earth, and he threw it into the great wine press of the wrath of God. 20And the wine press was trodden outside the city, and blood flowed from the wine press, as high as a horse's bridle, for a distance of about two hundred miles.[t]

15 Then I saw another portent in heaven, great and amazing: seven angels with seven plagues, which are the last, for with them the wrath of God is ended.

2 And I saw what appeared to be a sea of glass mixed with fire, and those who had conquered the beast and its image and the number of its name, standing beside the sea of glass with harps of God in their hands. 3And they sing the song of Moses, the servant[u] of God, and the song of the Lamb:

"Great and amazing are your deeds,
Lord God the Almighty!
Just and true are your ways,
King of the nations![v]
4 Lord, who will not fear and glorify your name?
For you alone are holy.
All nations will come
and worship before you,
for your judgments have been revealed."

5 After this I looked, and the temple of the tent[w] of witness in heaven was opened, 6and out of the temple came the seven angels with the seven plagues, robed in pure bright linen,[x] with golden sashes across their chests. 7Then one of the four living creatures gave the seven angels seven golden bowls full of the wrath of God, who lives forever and ever; 8and the temple was filled with smoke from the glory of God and from his power, and no one could enter the temple until the seven plagues of the seven angels were ended.

16 Then I heard a loud voice from the temple telling the seven angels, "Go and pour out on the earth the seven bowls of the wrath of God."

2 So the first angel went and poured his bowl on the earth, and a foul and painful sore came on those who had the mark of the beast and who worshiped its image.

3 The second angel poured his bowl into the sea, and it became like the blood of a corpse, and every living thing in the sea died.

4 The third angel poured his bowl into the rivers and the springs of water, and they became blood. 5And I heard the angel of the waters say,

The descriptive details are not to be understood literally, but as contributing to the general effect of intense calamity and terror. 2: Ex 9.10–11; Deut 28.35. 3–4: Ex 7.17–21. 5: The angel that has control of the waters.

for you have judged these things;
6 because they shed the blood of saints and prophets,
you have given them blood to drink.
It is what they deserve!"
7 And I heard the altar respond,
"Yes, O Lord God, the Almighty, your judgments are true and just!"

8 The fourth angel poured his bowl on the sun, and it was allowed to scorch people with fire; 9 they were scorched by the fierce heat, but they cursed the name of God, who had authority over these plagues, and they did not repent and give him glory.

10 The fifth angel poured his bowl on the throne of the beast, and its kingdom was plunged into darkness; people gnawed their tongues in agony, 11 and cursed the God of heaven because of their pains and sores, and they did not repent of their deeds.

12 The sixth angel poured his bowl on the great river Euphrates, and its water was dried up in order to prepare the way for the kings from the east. 13 And I saw three foul spirits like frogs coming from the mouth of the dragon, from the mouth of the beast, and from the mouth of the false prophet. 14 These are demonic spirits, performing signs, who go abroad to the kings of the whole world, to assemble them for battle on the great day of God the Almighty. 15 ("See, I am coming like a thief! Blessed is the one who stays awake and is clothed,[y] not going about naked and exposed to shame.") 16 And they assembled them at the place that in Hebrew is called Harmagedon.

17 The seventh angel poured his bowl into the air, and a loud voice came out of the temple, from the throne, saying, "It is done!" 18 And there came flashes of lightning, rumblings, peals of thunder, and a violent earthquake, such as had not occurred since people were upon the earth, so violent was that earthquake. 19 The great city was split into three parts, and the cities of the nations fell. God remembered great Babylon and gave her the wine-cup of the fury of his wrath. 20 And every island fled away, and no mountains were to be found; 21 and huge hailstones, each weighing about a hundred pounds,[z] dropped from heaven on people, until they cursed God for the plague of the hail, so fearful was that plague.

17 Then one of the seven angels who had the seven bowls came and said to me, "Come, I will show you the judgment of the great whore who is seated on many waters, 2 with whom the kings of the earth have committed fornication, and with the wine of whose fornication the inhabitants of the earth have become drunk." 3 So he carried me away in the spirit[a] into a wilderness, and I saw a woman sitting on a scarlet beast that was full of blasphemous names, and it had seven heads and ten horns. 4 The woman was clothed in purple and scarlet, and adorned with gold and jewels and pearls, holding in her hand a golden cup full of abominations and the impurities of her fornication; 5 and on her forehead was written a name, a mystery: "Babylon the great, mother of whores and of earth's abominations." 6 And I saw that the woman was drunk with the blood of the saints and the blood of the witnesses to Jesus.

When I saw her, I was greatly amazed. 7But the angel said to me, "Why are you so amazed? I will tell you the mystery of the woman, and of the beast with seven heads and ten horns that carries her. 8The beast that you saw was, and is not, and is about to ascend from the bottomless pit and go to destruction. And the inhabitants of the earth, whose names have not been written in the book of life from the foundation of the world, will be amazed when they see the beast, because it was and is not and is to come.

9 "This calls for a mind that has wisdom: the seven heads are seven mountains on which the woman is seated; also, they are seven kings, 10of whom five have fallen, one is living, and the other has not yet come; and when he comes, he must remain only a little while. 11As for the beast that was and is not, it is an eighth but it belongs to the seven, and it goes to destruction. 12And the ten horns that you saw are ten kings who have not yet received a kingdom, but they are to receive authority as kings for one hour, together with the beast. 13These are united in yielding their power and authority to the beast; 14they will make war on the Lamb, and the Lamb will conquer them, for he is Lord of lords and King of kings, and those with him are called and chosen and faithful."

15 And he said to me, "The waters that you saw, where the whore is seated, are peoples and multitudes and nations and languages. 16And the ten horns that you saw, they and the beast will hate the whore; they will make her desolate and naked; they will devour her flesh and burn her up with fire. 17For God has put it into their hearts to carry out his purpose by agreeing to give their kingdom to the beast, until the words of God will be fulfilled. 18The woman you saw is the great city that rules over the kings of the earth."

18 After this I saw another angel coming down from heaven, having great authority; and the earth was made bright with his splendor. 2He called out with a mighty voice,

"Fallen, fallen is Babylon the great!
It has become a dwelling place of demons,
a haunt of every foul spirit,
a haunt of every foul bird,
a haunt of every foul and hateful beast.[b] 3 For all the nations have drunk[c] of the wine of the wrath of her fornication, and the kings of the earth have committed fornication with her,
and the merchants of the earth have grown rich from the power[d] of her luxury."

4 Then I heard another voice from heaven saying,

"Come out of her, my people,
so that you do not take part in her sins,
and so that you do not share in her plagues;
5 for her sins are heaped high as heaven,
and God has remembered her iniquities.

Since in her heart she says,
'I rule as a queen;
I am no widow,
and I will never see grief,' 8 therefore her plagues will come in a single day—pestilence and mourning and famine—and she will be burned with fire;
for mighty is the Lord God who judges her."

9 And the kings of the earth, who committed fornication and lived in luxury with her, will weep and wail over her when they see the smoke of her burning; 10they will stand far off, in fear of her torment, and say,

"Alas, alas, the great city,
Babylon, the mighty city!
For in one hour your judgment has come."

11 And the merchants of the earth weep and mourn for her, since no one buys their cargo anymore, 12cargo of gold, silver, jewels and pearls, fine linen, purple, silk and scarlet, all kinds of scented wood, all articles of ivory, all articles of costly wood, bronze, iron, and marble, 13cinnamon, spice, incense, myrrh, frankincense, wine, olive oil, choice flour and wheat, cattle and sheep, horses and chariots, slaves—and human lives.[e]

16 "Alas, alas, the great city,
clothed in fine linen,
in purple and scarlet,
adorned with gold,
with jewels, and with pearls!
17 For in one hour all this wealth has been laid waste!"

And all shipmasters and seafarers, sailors and all whose trade is on the sea, stood far off 18and cried out as they saw the smoke of her burning,

"What city was like the great city?"

19And they threw dust on their heads, as they wept and mourned, crying out,

"Alas, alas, the great city,
where all who had ships at sea grew rich by her wealth!
For in one hour she has been laid waste."

20 Rejoice over her, O heaven, you saints and apostles and prophets! For God has given judgment for you against her.

21 Then a mighty angel took up a stone like a great millstone and threw it into the sea, saying,

"With such violence Babylon the great city will be thrown down,
and will be found no more;

19 After this I heard what seemed to be the loud voice of a great multitude in heaven, saying,

he has judged the great whore

4 And the twenty-four elders and the four living creatures fell down and worshiped God who is seated on the throne, saying,
"Amen. Hallelujah!"
5 And from the throne came a voice saying,
"Praise our God,
all you his servants,[g]
and all who fear him, small and great."
6 Then I heard what seemed to be the voice of a great multitude, like the sound of many waters and like the sound of mighty thunderpeals, crying out, "Hallelujah!

the Almighty reigns.
7 Let us rejoice and exult
and give him the glory,

17 Then I saw an angel standing in the sun, and with a loud voice he called to all the birds that fly in midheaven, "Come, gather for the great supper of God, 18to eat the flesh of kings, the flesh of captains, the flesh of the mighty, the flesh of horses and their riders—flesh of all, both free and slave, both small and great." 19Then I saw the beast and the kings of the earth with their armies gathered to make war against the rider on the horse and against his army. 20And the beast was captured, and with it the false prophet who had performed in its presence the signs by which he deceived those who had received the mark of the beast and those who worshiped its image. These two were thrown alive into the lake of fire that burns with sulfur. 21And the rest were killed by the sword of the rider on the horse, the sword that came from his mouth; and all the birds were gorged with their flesh.

20 Then I saw an angel coming down from heaven, holding in his hand the key to the bottomless pit and a great chain. 2He seized the dragon, that ancient serpent, who is the Devil and Satan, and bound him for a thousand years, 3and threw him into the pit, and locked and sealed it over him, so that he would deceive the nations no more, until the thousand years were ended. After that he must be let out for a little while.

4 Then I saw thrones, and those seated on them were given authority to judge. I also saw the souls of those who had been beheaded for their testimony to Jesus[n] and for the word of God. They had not worshiped the beast or its image and had not received its mark on their foreheads or their hands. They came to life and reigned with Christ a thousand years. 5(The rest of the dead did not come to life until the thousand years were ended.) This is the first resurrection. 6Blessed and holy are those who share in the first resurrection. Over these the second death has no power, but they will be priests of God and of Christ, and they will reign with him a thousand years.

7 When the thousand years are ended, Satan will be released from his prison 8and will come out to deceive the nations at the four corners of the earth, Gog and Magog, in order to gather them for battle; they are as numerous as the sands of the sea. 9They marched up over the breadth of the earth and surrounded the camp of the saints and the beloved city.

And fire came down from heaven[o] and consumed them. 10 And the devil who had deceived them was thrown into the lake of fire and sulfur, where the beast and the false prophet were, and they will be tormented day and night forever and ever.

11 Then I saw a great white throne and the one who sat on it; the earth and the heaven fled from his presence, and no place was found for them. 12 And I saw the dead, great and small, standing before the throne, and books were opened. Also another book was opened, the book of life. And the dead were judged according to their works, as recorded in the books. 13 And the sea gave up the dead that were in it, Death and Hades gave up the dead that were in them, and all were judged according to what they had done. 14 Then Death and Hades were thrown into the lake of fire. This is the second death, the lake of fire; 15 and anyone whose name was not found written in the book of life was thrown into the lake of fire.

21 Then I saw a new heaven and a new earth; for the first heaven and the first earth had passed away, and the sea was no more. 2 And I saw the holy city, the new Jerusalem, coming down out of heaven from God, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband. 3 And I heard a loud voice from the throne saying,

5 And the one who was seated on the throne said, "See, I am making all things new." Also he said, "Write this, for these words are trustworthy and true." 6 Then he said to me, "It is done! I am the Alpha and the Omega, the beginning and the end. To the thirsty I will give water as a gift from the spring of the water of life. 7 Those who conquer will inherit these things, and I will be their God and they will be my children. 8 But as for the cowardly, the faithless,[t] the polluted, the murderers, the fornicators, the sorcerers, the idolaters, and all liars, their place will be in the lake that burns with fire and sulfur, which is the second death."

Lamb." [10]And in the spirit[u] he carried me away to a great, high mountain and showed me the holy city Jerusalem coming down out of heaven from God. [11]It has the glory of God and a radiance like a very rare jewel, like jasper, clear as crystal. [12]It has a great, high wall with twelve gates, and at the gates twelve angels, and on the gates are inscribed the names of the twelve tribes of the Israelites; [13]on the east three gates, on the north three gates, on the south three gates, and on the west three gates. [14]And the wall of the city has twelve foundations, and on them are the twelve names of the twelve apostles of the Lamb.

15 The angel[v] who talked to me had a measuring rod of gold to measure the city and its gates and walls. [16]The city lies foursquare, its length the same as its width; and he measured the city with his rod, fifteen hundred miles;[w] its length and width and height are equal. [17]He also measured its wall, one hundred forty-four cubits[x] by human measurement, which the angel was using. [18]The wall is built of jasper, while the city is pure gold, clear as glass. [19]The foundations of the wall of the city are adorned with every jewel; the first was jasper, the second sapphire, the third agate, the fourth emerald, [20]the fifth onyx, the sixth carnelian, the seventh chrysolite, the eighth beryl, the ninth topaz, the tenth chrysoprase, the eleventh jacinth, the twelfth amethyst. [21]And the twelve gates are twelve pearls, each of the gates is a single pearl, and the street of the city is pure gold, transparent as glass.

22 I saw no temple in the city, for its temple is the Lord God the Almighty and the Lamb. [23]And the city has no need of sun or moon to shine on it, for the glory of God is its light, and its lamp is the Lamb. [24]The nations will walk by its light, and the kings of the earth will bring their glory into it. [25]Its gates will never be shut by day—and there will be no night there. [26]People will bring into it the glory and the honor of the nations. [27]But nothing unclean will enter it, nor anyone who practices abomination or falsehood, but only those who are written in the Lamb's book of life.

22 Then the angel[y] showed me the river of the water of life, bright as crystal, flowing from the throne of God and of the Lamb [2]through the middle of the street of the city. On either side of the river is the tree of life[z] with its twelve kinds of fruit, producing its fruit each month; and the leaves of the tree are for the healing of the nations. [3]Nothing accursed will be found there any more. But the throne of God and of the Lamb will be in it, and his servants[a] will worship him; [4]they will see his face, and his name will be on their foreheads. [5]And there will be no more night; they need no light of lamp or sun, for the Lord God will be

Modern Approaches to Biblical Study

Opening the Old Testament can be at first quite disconcerting to the average reader. If Moses wrote the Pentateuch (the Torah, see p. xxxv OT), he would appear to have done it in a very sporadic fashion, with laws and narrative put together in a puzzling mixture. And how was the book of Jeremiah assembled, with its personal sayings, the biography (Jer chs 37–45), and prose discourses? So many of the prophetical books have the character of pieces in an anthology, to which no indication of the date or life-setting have been provided. More basically, are we to think of the Old Testament as a literary work? In its final form it is literature, but how was it put together, especially since oral tradition (the prophets were preachers) must have played a role? These questions can also be addressed to the New Testament. How did the synoptic Gospels come to be written? What was the role of the early Christian community in the formation of the oral and written traditions about Jesus? It is problems such as these that gave rise to the scientific approach to the Bible in modern times—an approach that is manifested in the introductions and annotations of the present edition of the Bible.

I. LITERARY CRITICISM

During the nineteenth and twentieth centuries scholars attempted to answer these questions by the method of literary criticism. This approach aimed primarily at questions of authorship (did John write the Gospel attributed to him?), and the formation of the written documents (how were the J, E, P, and D documents (see pp. xxxv–xxxvi OT) put together to form the Pentateuch?). This method achieved many good results. For example, we can now better grasp the message of Isa 40–55 when we read these chapters in the light of the exilic period rather than as coming from the Isaiah of 700 B.C. It must be acknowledged, however, that new insights from archaeology and history have revealed definite limitations of this method. Among other things, it failed to take seriously the oral traditions that lay behind the final written form of a biblical book, and it did not adequately examine questions of the origin or life-setting of the individual units within a book. This task was taken over by the method called "form criticism."

II. FORM CRITICISM

The method of form criticism was first used by German scholars (Hermann Gunkel for the Old Testament; Martin Dibelius for the New Testament), who employed the term Formegeschichte (lit. "form history"). It was recognized that within the Bible certain definite literary genres or forms could be identified. Gunkel analyzed the Psalter into Hymns, Laments, Thanksgiving Songs, Liturgies, etc. The analysis rested upon a study of literary style, which was correlated with the life-setting (Sitz im Leben) of the individual Psalm. Often similar genres in the literature of Israel's neighbors, especially Egypt and Mesopotamia, served to suggest or confirm such analysis, which eventually was applied to all parts of the Bible.

The existence of various literary genres in the Bible had always been admitted, but they had not been studied in and for themselves or used as tools in the analysis of biblical literature. In a sense, they were taken for granted, just as we take for granted the several genres in our own literatures. Any newspaper presents its readers with many and various literary genres: advertisements, obituary notices, editorials, letters to the editor, human interest stories, the comics, etc. In all these cases fixed written forms can be recognized. Each has its own specific characteristics: certain expressions or formulae and perhaps even a given structure. Modern readers are oblivious to all these details. They are so attuned to the literary expressions of their own culture that they automatically "shift gears" as they move from one genre to another. But it is a different experience when they expose themselves to a literature as ancient and varied as the Bible.

The difference between the peoples of the ancient Semitic world, its way of thinking, and our own style, quickly dawns upon us. It would not do to exaggerate these differences, but the fact remains that the mode of expression of the people of biblical times is a challenge to our understanding. Thus, their way of writing history does not conform to ours, as we quickly learn from the story of David's rise in 1 Sam 16—2 Sam 5, or from the "throne succession" narrative in 2 Sam 9ff. Our task is to ascertain and respect the various literary types, whether historical, epic, saga, or legend, that occur in the Bible; otherwise we will fail to comprehend the literary riches preserved in the various parts of Scripture.

In contrast to an earlier generation of Bible readers, we are very much aware of the role played by oral tradition in the gradual formation of the Scriptures. Many of the biblical books have a long pre-history of oral transmission. The ancients retained in their memories far more than they wrote. Thus we read of Jeremiah being commissioned by the Lord to write "all the words that I have spoken to you . . . from the days of Josiah until today" (36.2). It would appear that it was only after a twenty-year period of preaching that Jeremiah resorted to writing. In his case, and in that of other prophets as well, it is easy to imagine that many of their listeners remembered certain sayings and even put them in writing. We know that Isaiah had a group of disciples (Isa 8.16). The wisdom-sayings were cultivated at the Jerusalem court (Prov 25.1), as was the case in Egypt. But many of these sayings doubtless were first coined among the common people. Similarly, the laws circulated by oral tradition before they became fixed in writing. They were proclaimed at the great feasts, such as that of the covenant renewal, and only later reduced to the codes we find in the Bible (Covenant [see Ex 20.22–23.33n.], Priestly, and Deuteronomic Codes). The stories of the Judges (Jephthah, Samson, Deborah, and others) circulated by word of mouth among the people concerned (in Transjordan and in Judah) before they were incorporated into a book such as Judges. The Gospels too have been analyzed in the light of the several units that went into their composition: the sayings of Jesus, the miracle stories, the Passion narratives, etc. Scholars came to recognize that some of these had their life-setting in the primitive Church. Such literary units reflect concerns that became particularly acute in the history of the community—such as the attitude to the synagogue, the delay of the parousia (=second coming), etc.—and the gospel material was shaped to meet the needs of the growing Church. Thus, several parables reflect their new life-setting (see p. 400); they shift the emphasis which Jesus would have placed on the coming of the kingdom to the second coming of Christ (e.g., the parable of the ten bridesmaids, Mt 25.1–13).

The life-setting of any piece of literature is a particularly important element. To a given life-setting there corresponds a certain range of literary genres. Thus, Israelite liturgy is the general life-setting within which the Psalms were composed and utilized. It was in the temple and in association with various feasts that the Songs of Praise, Thanksgivings, Laments, etc., were used. And we are better able to understand the structures and motifs of a given genre if we can locate it within its proper life-setting. In everyday life we understand the life-setting implicit in a wedding invitation, in an obituary notice, etc. In a similar vein, we must be sensitive to the life-setting of a given prophetic oracle, or a given wisdom saying. It is also important to recognize that the life-setting changes as a biblical tradition is handed down within a community. This fact is especially important for understanding the Gospels. Thus, one may distinguish between the historical life-setting in Jesus' own experience, into which one of his sayings may fit (Mk 2.27, "the sabbath was made for humankind, and not humankind for the sabbath"), from the life-setting in the Christian community that applied one of the Lord's sayings to a particular situation in the life of the Church (Mt 28.19–20, "Go therefore and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit, and teaching them . . ."). Furthermore, as will be indicated in the following section dealing with redaction criticism, there is a third life-setting—the place of, and emphasis given to, a particular section within a Gospel. Thus, one can see the different ways in which the tradition concerning John the Baptist is used in the Gospels of Matthew and Mark. Each evangelist has his own way of emphasizing the traditions about Jesus, and gives these a specific life-setting within his own Gospel.

III. REDACTION CRITICISM

The intensely analytical method of form criticism called forth another approach, synthetic in character. This is the method of "redaction criticism" (Redaktionsgeschichte, lit. "redaction history"), which studies the document in its final form from the theological point of view of the author who arranged, modified, and edited the traditional material that formed the raw material out of which the work was created. Such an editor may even have created new forms to express new meanings appropriate to new contexts. The method of redaction criticism is most clearly illustrated by the differences among the Synoptic Gospels, which show that Matthew's viewpoint goes beyond Mark's, and that Luke's is different from either—despite the similarities among them all that warrant for them the term "synoptic." Now there is another life-setting to take into consideration: the life-setting of the Gospel itself—how a given form is used in a Gospel.

A similar synthetic approach is applicable to the Old Testament. It is not enough to recognize a unit or given literary genre. One must also consider its function within the larger work of which it forms a part. Thus, the various episodes in the book of Judges have been brought together to contribute to a higher unity, the theme of which is clearly enunciated in ch 2 of that book: the cycle of apostasy, enslavement, repentance, and deliverance (Judg 2.16–20). As the author of this passage clearly implies, readers should understand from history that Israel was prosperous and free only when it was loyal to God. Indeed, the book of Judges itself is a part of a larger composition: Joshua, Judges, 1–2 Samuel, 1–2 Kings. This corpus has been given the name "Deuteronomistic History," because it interprets the history of Israel from Joshua to the Exile in the light of the teaching of the book of Deuteronomy (see "The Historical Books," pp. 267–269 OT). It is interesting, furthermore, to compare the treatment given to a particular unit by the Deuteronomistic historians with that accorded by the Chronicler in that historical narrative. In 2 Sam 24.1, the bare fact is recorded that "the anger of the Lord was kindled against Israel, and he incited David against them. . . ." And David is condemned for taking a census on this occasion. But in 1 Chr 21.1 we read, "Satan stood up against Israel, and incited David to count the people of Israel." The point of view of the redactor has shaped the text—hence the name, redaction criticism.

IV. TRANSMISSION (OR TRADITION) HISTORY

Another term that is frequently used in this kind of study of the biblical text is "transmission history" (Überlieferungsgeschichte; also called "tradition history," Traditionsgeschichte). This means the recognition of the growth and gradual formation of the stories that have been handed down—from simple forms in the beginning, to large complexes that can be recognized in the books as we now have them. Thus, the manner in which the Yahwist writer in the J document has put together the material belonging to pre-history (Gen 2–11), and has also worked out the sequence of the patriarchal narratives (e.g., that of Abraham), can come alive by the study of the history of the transmission of a unit. And very often this kind of analysis lends itself to conclusions about the history of Israel and its beliefs, enabling us to date certain ideas and movements as very old or as relatively late.

V. OTHER WAYS OF READING THE TEXT

The above methods of approaching the biblical text can be summarized under the term historical methodology, or historical criticism. The purpose is to span the years and get into the meaning of the text as it came to be written. But there are other ways of reading the text that have surfaced in the history of exegesis. The typological reading sought to find correspondences between persons (Adam and Christ; see Rom 5.14–21), or events (Exodus and return from Babylon; see Isa 43. 16–19). Allegory sought for hidden meanings behind the obvious sense of the text (Noah's ark and baptism; see 1 Pet 3.20–21). These time-honored methods still survive.

In recent times other ways of reading the text have been proposed and they deserve to be noticed here. For example, why should one not read the Pentateuch as a whole, and not merely as the product of four primary documents? What meaning does one derive from such an approach to the Torah? What was the "canonical shape" given to the book of Isaiah by joining together its three major parts (1–39; 40–55; 56–66)? What difference does it make that the original Luke/Acts (one work) was separated into two books in different places in the New Testament? This kind of "holistic" approach yields a different perspective for interpretation. In a similar way the addition of the New Testament to the Old creates a broader context of interpretation for the Christian; at the same time the Christian should be aware that the Old Testament can complete or correct a Christian understanding of the Bible (e.g., an exaggerated personal eschatology.)

Furthermore, modern literary critics have chided biblical scholars for composing commentaries that concentrate on the genesis of a biblical book. Why not approach the interpretation of such a work from the point of view of its final form, not its hypothetical pre-history? Repetitions can be deliberate and meaningful, and not just signs of separate documents (e.g., J or E in the Pentateuch) in a work. Modern tastes are beginning to make allowances for the different emphases in the styles of ancient writings.

The development of philosophical hermeneutics has also added further dimensions to biblical interpretation. No interpretation (of any text) takes place without presuppositions, of which we are often unaware. Historical methodology, too, has to make allowances for this. Contextual interpretation, i.e., interpretation from the situation in which either the reader or the writer begins, is inevitable. Hence many approaches have been recognized: liberationist, feminist, etc. Sophisticated methods of literary criticism have also been developed: structuralism, deconstruction, reader-response theory, etc. Perhaps the most practical rule for a Bible reader is to strive to become aware of his or her initial presuppositions in reading the Scriptures (and to recognize these also in the explanations offered by various interpreters). The long history of biblical interpretation teaches us valuable lessons about our own biases in reading a text.

VI. SUMMARY

Current biblical scholarship employs all the methods that we have briefly described. It is concerned to determine the given literary genre of a biblical book or most often a given section of it (form criticism). Further, it may be possible to discover how this genre was handed down (transmission history), and came to be incorporated by a collector or editor (redaction criticism) into a continuous narrative, and ultimately became part of a written document (literary criticism). The methods do not exclude one another; in fact, they are mutually complementary. But they are not merely methods; they are not intellectual exercises for an élite. Every perceptive reader of the Bible can profit from the several approaches. We shall try to illustrate the advantages in the case of the Decalogue.

The literary genre of the Decalogue can be described as apodictic law. As opposed to casuistic law (or "case law"), which stipulates a course of action in given circumstances, the apodictic law is a forceful command or prohibition. (Apodictic means "clear" or "incontrovertible" and denotes foundational law from which there is generally no appeal.) There are several such laws in the Old Testament (for example, Ex 23.1–9; Lev 18.6–23). A motive clause may be appended to a law, as in the case of the sabbath law and honoring one's parents. Unfortunately, there is as yet no way of tracing the history of the development of the Decalogue, even though we can make many worthwhile observations about it. As is well known, there is more than one version of it: Ex 20.1–17, and Deut 5.6–22. A comparison of the two passages reveals something of the transmission history.

In general, the Decalogue in Deuteronomy is couched in language that is characteristic of this book: "as the Lord your God commanded you" (5.12–16; compare 4.5; 5.32); "that it may go well with you in the land that the Lord your God is giving you" (5.16, 29; 6.18). The familiar sabbath law is strengthened in Deuteronomy ("observe") as against Exodus ("remember"). A more striking difference is the motive clause: creation in six days and rest on the seventh (Ex 20.11), in contrast to the Exodus from Egypt (Deut 5.15). Originally, one may presume, there was no motive given; in the course of time, two different motives were offered.

The treatment of the second commandment is particularly interesting. The prohibition of a graven image (Ex 20.4; Deut 5.8) referred originally to an image of the Lord (see Ex 34.17). But both versions of the Decalogue, by adding the phrase "the likeness of anything . . . ," refer the prohibition to images of other gods—presumably at a time when this was the great temptation. The continuation, "you shall not bow down to them or serve them" refers now to the "other gods," and thus the second commandment stands in the shadow of the first; the prohibition of images (of the Lord) and of foreign gods is viewed as one and the same. The "false witness" in Ex 20.16 and Deut 5.20 calls for comment. In the Deuteronomy passage "false witness" is, more literally, "vain witness" (empty, and eventually, deceitful). One may reasonably surmise that the form in Exodus is the original. It is found frequently outside the Decalogue (for example, Ps 27.12; Prov 6.19 "lying witness"), whereas "vain witness" is found only in the Deuteronomic version of the Decalogue.

We may conclude, then, that the form of the Decalogue has had a complicated transmission history. What is suggested by the fact that it is found in two different books? The form in Exodus has the flavor of the editing given to the Deuteronomistic history (Joshua to Kings): Egypt is "the house of slavery" (Ex 20.2); reverence for "the name of the LORD your God" (Ex 20.7). The import of such touches is to include the Decalogue within the sweep of Israel's salvation history as it is presented here. In Deuteronomy the role of the Decalogue is slightly different—it has become the sovereign will of God, mediated through Moses in a farewell speech. It is followed by the Deuteronomic code (Deut chs 12–26), which serves as a commentary on, or interpretation of, this Decalogue. But this life-setting of the Decalogue within the framework of the book of Deuteronomy is not necessarily the life-setting which the Decalogue had in the life of Israel. Here we are on somewhat uncertain ground. But it seems safe to say that one life-setting for the Decalogue has been the cult, perhaps at the covenant renewal ceremony, or the Feast of Tabernacles.

We have discussed the Decalogue merely as an example of how literary analysis of a biblical text can proceed. Basically the same approach can be used throughout the Old and New Testaments. And readers will find Bible reading more challenging, as well as more informative, if they study the text along these lines. They will understand how truly the Old Testament is a precipitate, as it were, from the life of Israel, the People of God. Similarly, the role of the Church in the formation of the New Testament, especially the Gospels, will stand out. We have not mentioned the Pauline Epistles, but readers will not fail to be impressed with the manner in which the "good news" is mediated by Paul, in contrast to the way in which it is presented in the four Gospels. In short, there is no book, or part of a book, in the Bible that does not have a literary form and a history behind its incorporation and transmission within the Scriptures. If we pay attention to this aspect of biblical literature, we shall be well on our way to understanding it.

I. POETRY IN THE BIBLE

Hebrew poetry has had a long and varied history, extending from the beginnings of Israel's life up to modern times. The earliest phases are represented by the poetical parts of the Old Testament (Hebrew Scriptures). These are, in relation to the total extent of the Old Testament, quite substantial: Psalms, Proverbs, Song of Solomon, Lamentations, almost the whole of Job, much of the prophetic literature, and many passages in the narrative literature (e.g., Gen ch 49; Ex 15.1–18; Deut chs 32 and 33; Judg 5.2–31). In all, this amounts to about one third of the Old Testament; but it is presumably only a fraction of the entire body of Hebrew poetry produced during the Old Testament period. The Hebrew poetic tradition is continued in the Apocrypha (Wisdom of Solomon, Sirach, and several passages in other books, e.g., Judith), and in parts of the Pseudepigrapha and of the literature of the Qumran sect (the Dead Sea Scrolls). In the New Testament much of the teaching of Jesus is expressed in poetic form (see "Literary Forms in the Gospels," §2); and there are passages of poetry in Lk chs 1–2 and in several other books, notably Revelation.

It is significant that the Hebrew poetic form is clear even when the poems have been transmitted in Greek. In translating from one language to another there is the double problem of reproducing both the spirit and the form of the original.

For technical reasons, and because of the dissimilarity between poetic structure in different languages, it may be difficult to reproduce the form satisfactorily. In order to preserve and communicate the spirit, it is often necessary in translation to adopt a different poetic form, or even to translate into rhythmical prose. The many attempts which have been made to render the Iliad and the Odyssey into English verse and prose show how formidable the undertaking can be. In some ways the translation of ancient Hebrew poetry presents a less intractable problem, because its formal characteristics are in the main simple and flexible. Increased knowledge of ancient Near Eastern literature, particularly the poetic texts from Ugarit in northern Syria, has enlarged our understanding of Hebrew poetry by providing parallels to its forms and techniques. Ps 29 is an excellent example of a Hebrew poem that reflects the structural characteristics and poetic techniques known to us from the Ugaritic texts. It has been suggested that it is an Israelite adaptation of a Canaanite hymn to Baal.

II. THE FORMS OF HEBREW POETRY

Although there are gaps in our knowledge of the forms of ancient Hebrew poetry, and important points are still open to dispute, its general structure is sufficiently clear. Three main formal characteristics have been attributed to it: §1. Parallelism; §2. Meter; §3. Strophic Arrangement.

1. Parallelism

This feature (sometimes referred to also as "thought rhyme") is a balance not only of form but also of the thought between successive members in a poem. The terminology applied to these members varies considerably, but in this article the poetic unit printed as a line in the New Revised Standard Version will be called a "stich" (Gr. stichos, "line"), and combinations of two and three of these units will be termed "distichs" and "tristichs" respectively. A distich is composed of two lines, and a tristich is composed of three. The following from Ps 19.1 is a distich, or couplet, in which such a balance of thought and form is evident:

The heavens are telling the glory of God;
and the firmament proclaims his handiwork.

As an example of a tristich we may take Ps 100.1:

Make a joyful noise to the LORD, all the earth.
Worship the LORD with gladness;
come into his presence with singing.

Parallelism is more than mere repetition of words or ideas in successive lines. The second line is a specification, often an intensification, of the first. It can be said to serve, sometimes with a third line, to complement the thought of the first line.

Parallelism appears in four main forms: (a) Synonymous, (b) Antithetic, (c) Formal, (d) Climactic; and it may be (e) Internal or External, and (f) Complete or Incomplete.

(a) In Synonymous Parallelism the same thought is expressed in successive stichs; for example,

The ox knows its owner,
and the donkey its master's crib . . . (Isa 1.3a)

and

But let justice roll down like waters,
and righteousness like an ever flowing stream.
(Am 5.24)

In these distichs, the second stich simply repeats the sense of the first in slightly different terms. Sometimes, however, the second stich gives more precise expression to the sense of the first, as in Ps 34.13:

Keep your tongue from evil,
and your lips from speaking deceit.

(b) In Antithetic Parallelism the thought expressed in the second stich is in contrast to that in the first; for example, for the LORD watches over the way of the righteous,

but the way of the wicked will perish.
(Ps 1.6)

and

A wise child makes a glad father,
but a foolish child is a mother's grief.
(Prov 10.1)

This type of parallelism is particularly characteristic of the Wisdom Literature. It also occurs frequently in the sayings of Jesus; for example,

A good tree cannot bear bad fruit,
nor can a bad tree bear good fruit. (Mt 7.18)

and

Those who find their life will lose it, and those who lose their life for my sake
will find it. (Mt 10.39)

(c) Formal Parallelism, also called Synthetic Parallelism, contains neither reptition in different terms nor contrasted assertions. In it the thought of the first stich is carried further and completed in the second; for example,

> The LORD looks down from heaven on humankind > to see if there are any who are wise, > who seek after God. (Ps 14.2)

Here there is a formal balance of clause with clause, but no such correspondence in content as we find in Synonymous and Antithetic Parallelism. The balance is emphasized by two factors: the clearly marked caesura or break between the stichs, and the correspondence in rhythm or meter (see below §2).

(d) In Climactic Parallelism the characteristics of Synonymous and Formal Parallelism are combined. The second stich echoes or repeats part of the first and also adds to it an element which carries forward or completes the sense; for example,

> Ascribe to the LORD, O heavenly beings, > ascribe to the LORD glory and strength. (Ps 29.1)

and

> Pray to your Father who is in secret;
> and your Father who sees in secret will reward you. (Mt 6.6b)

(e) All the examples quoted above are instances of Internal Parallelism, in which the balance of form and thought is between the individual stichs within a distich or tristich. In External Parallelism there is balance not only within but between distichs. So in Isa 1.27–28:

> Zion shall be redeemed by justice,
> and those in her who repent, by righteousness.
> But rebels and sinners shall be destroyed together,
> and those who forsake the LORD shall be consumed.

There is here Internal Synonymous Parallelism within each of the two distichs and External Antithetic Parallelism between the distichs. Compare Isa 1.10:

> Hear the word of the LORD,
> you rulers of Sodom!
> Listen to the teaching of our God,
> you people of Gomorrah!

By contrast, here each distich has Internal Formal Parallelism, and there is External Parallelism between the distichs. External Parallelism gives scope for still more elaborate patterns, as in Ps 30.8–10:

> To you, O LORD, I cried;
> and to the LORD I made supplication;
> "What profit is there in my death,
> if I go down to the Pit?
> Will the dust praise you?
> Will it tell of your faithfulness?
> Hear, O LORD, and be gracious to me!
> O LORD, be my helper!"

The first, third, and fourth distichs have Internal Synonymous Parallelism, but the second has Internal Formal Parallelism. There is External Synonymous Parallelism between the first and fourth distichs and between the second and third, giving the pattern a, b, b, a (chiasmus). The juxtaposition of the second and third distichs serves to emphasize the thought which they both express.

(f) Complete Parallelism occurs when each term in the first stich is matched by a corresponding term in the second, as in the following example from Psalm 146.2:

> I-will-praise the-LORD as-long-as-I-live;
> I-will-sing-praises to-my-God all-my-life-long.

(The hyphens link words that together represent a single term in the Hebrew.) In Incomplete Parallelism one or more terms in the first stich have no counterpart in the second, as in the following:

> Our-inheritance has-been-turned-over to-strangers,
> our-homes to-aliens. (Lam 5.2)

Here there is nothing in the second stich to correspond to "has-been-turned-over" in the first. Incomplete Parallelism may occur without compensation, as in the example just given, or with compensation, as in Lam 5.11:

> Women are-raped in-Zion, > virgins in-the-towns-of Judah.

In this verse the second stich contains no counterpart to "are-raped" in the first, but the two terms "in-the-towns-of" and "Judah" in the second stich correspond to the one term "in-Zion" in the first.

These varied forms of parallelism provide almost innumerable possibilities of changing poetic patterns. One feature, however, remains constant. In a distich or tristich each stich is separated from what follows or precedes by an emphatic rhythmic break (a caesura); there may be a completion of the sense in what follows, but there is always a marked pause. The feature known as enjambement (running over without rhetorical pause from one line to another so that closely related words fall in different lines) is foreign to Hebrew poetry.

Even a superficial study of the poetic parts of the Bible makes it abundantly clear that parallelism is a formal characteristic of Hebrew poetry; and this is further borne out by the fact that the same feature also appears in other ancient Near Eastern literatures. There is, unfortunately, less clarity about the second formal characteristic, namely meter.

2. Meter

It is reasonable to suppose that parallelism is complemented by metrical or rhythmical patterns and that each stich is composed of a number of metrical units. But the evidence about the nature of the patterns of meter from ancient Near Eastern parallels and from writers such as Josephus, Origen, and Jerome is inadequate. Of the varied theories that have been advanced in modern times, the one that commands the widest agreement is that the meter is determined in terms of accented syllables and that the number of unaccented syllables is of no significance. This means that as a rule each word counts as one unit; but where a word has a secondary accent in addition to the main one, it counts as two units, and where a word loses its accent because of its close connection with the following word, it does not count as a unit. The metrical value of a stich is indicated by the number of stressed syllables that it contains. By far the most frequent metrical pattern is 3 + 3, that is, a distich with three stressed syllables in each stich. This is the characteristic meter of Hebrew proverbs; it abounds in the Wisdom Literature, but it is also very frequent in some parts of the prophetical books and in the Psalms. The following example is from Wisdom Literature:

A-mórtal, bórn of-wóman,
  féw-of dáys and-full-of-tróuble,
comes úp like-a-flówer, and-wíthers, flées like-a-shádow and does-not-lást. (Job 14.1–2)

The shorter 2+ 2 meter is well adapted to the expression of intense emotion and urgency; for example,

Céase to-do-évil,
  léarn to-do-góod;
séek jústice,
  réscue the-oppréssed,
    defénd the-orphan,
      pléad for-the-wídow. (Isa. 1.16d-17)

The unequal metrical pattern 3 + 2 is known as the Qinah ("lament") meter, because it is the prevailing meter used in the book of Lamentations and occurs frequently in laments, though it is not confined to this type of composition. The unfulfilled expectation of a third beat in the second stich creates a peculiarly haunting effect. So in the two following passages:

Fállen, no-móre to-ríse,
  is-maíden Ísrael. (Am 5.2a)

Give-éar-to my-wórds, O-LÓRD;
  give héed-to my-síghing.
Lísten to-the-sóund-of my-crý,
  my-Kíng and-my-Gód . . .
    (Ps 5.1–2b)

Other metrical patterns that occur less frequently are 4 + 4, 2+ 2 + 2, 3+ 3 + 3. The last of these is memorably illustrated in a familiar psalm:

Líft-up your-héads, O-gátes!
  and-be-lífted-up, O-áncient dóors!
  that-the-Kíng-of glóry may-cóme-in.
Whó-is the-Kíng-of glóry?
  The-LÓRD, stróng and-míghty,
  the-LÓRD, míghty in-báttle. (Ps 24.7–8)

A Hebrew poem is not necessarily composed in a single meter throughout. Indeed, the variation of meter can be most effective. A good instance of this is Ps 46, in which 4 + 4 meter predominates (verses 1–2, 4–6, 8–10), with 3 + 3 distichs rounding off each section (verses 3, 7, 11), so that the metrical pattern suggests that the poem is constructed in three stanzas.

3. Strophic Arrangement

Ps 46 is by no means the only poem in the Old Testament in which a recurring refrain appears to indicate a grouping of distichs or tristichs into larger patterns resembling stanzas. For instance, in Pss 42 and 43 (which form one psalm), the following refrain occurs at 42.5, 11, and 43.5:

Why are you cast down, O my soul,
  and why are you disquieted within me?
Hope in God; for I shall again praise him,
  my help and my God.

Again in Isa 9.8–10.4 and 5.25–30, which are probably parts of a single poem, the following refrain appears to mark off recognizable stanzas:

For all this his anger has not turned away;
  his hand is stretched out still.
    (9.12b, 17c, 21b; 10.4b; 5.25c)

Ps 107.1–32 contains the double refrain,

Then they cried to the LORD in their trouble,
and he delivered them from their distress; . . .
Let them thank the LORD for his steadfast love,
for his wonderful works to humankind.

at verses 6, 8, 13, 15, 19, 21, 28, 31; but it does not mark off regular strophes.

Strophic arrangement is the least convincing of the formal characteristics attributed to Hebrew poetry. Some Hebrew poems do indeed fall into recognizable sections; but, with the exception of poems of a special type (see below, III.§1), these sections are not strictly regular. Moreover, the term "strophe" is inappropriate, since it implies the recurrence of regular metrical patterns in a fixed number of poetic lines. All the indications are that such rigid structures were alien to ancient Hebrew poetry, which in meter and in the grouping of distichs and tristichs was as flexible as it manifestly was in the use of parallelism.

III. THE TECHNIQUES OF HEBREW POETRY

In addition to the structural forms of Hebrew poetry, certain technical devices were used to secure particular effects. These are: §1 Acrostic Patterns; §2 Alliteration; §3 Assonance; §4 Onomatopoeia; §5 Paranomasia.

1. Acrostic Patterns

The sole instances of deliberately contrived sequences of lines (see above, II. §3) are acrostic poems. Acrostic patterns occur in varying degrees of complexity. In Ps 34.1–21 the successive verses begin with the letters of the Hebrew alphabet in the appropriate order (verse 22 is outside the pattern). Pss 9 and 10 form a single poem with an imperfectly preserved acrostic pattern in which pairs of verses begin with successive letters of the Hebrew alphabet. Varied acrostic patterns appear in Lam chs 1, 2, 3, and 4: in chs 1, 2, and 3 the distichs are grouped in threes (in ch 3 all the distichs in a given group begin with the same letter; in chs 1 and 2 only the first distich in each group) and in ch 4 the grouping is in pairs. The most elaborate acrostic poem in the Bible is Ps 119, in which there are twenty-two sections (corresponding to the successive letters of the alphabet) each consisting of eight distichs, and every distich in a given section begins with the same letter.

Various reasons have been suggested for the adoption of this somewhat exacting technical pattern: to serve as a mnemonic device; to exploit the supposed magical power of an alphabetic acrostic; or to express completeness of grief, aspiration, penitence, hope, or devotion. The last of these would be particularly appropriate to Ps 119 and the acrostics in the book of Lamentations.

2. Alliteration

Effect is sometimes gained by the juxtaposition of words or syllables that begin with the same consonant; for example, in Ps 122.6–7, where sh and l recur:

shaʿălu shĕlom Yĕrushalayim
yishlayu ʾohăbhayikh
yĕhi shalom bĕḥelekh
shalwah bĕʾarmĕnothayikh.

Similarly, in Ps 93.4 the occurrence of doubled consonants and particularly of m, brings out effectively the menacing reverberation of the flood waters:

miqqoloth mayim rabbim
ʾaddir mimmishbĕre yam
ʾaddir bammarom Yahweh.

3. Assonance

There is no systematic use of rhyme in ancient Hebrew poetry; but the recurrence of the same vowel sound is often deliberately contrived. Where this occurs in suffixes such as -enu ("our," "us") and -ehu ("it"), something approximating to rhyme appears. Thus in Ps 90.17 we find

wihi noʿam ʾădhonay ʾĕlohenu ʿalenu umaʿăseh yadhenu konĕnah ʿalenu
umaʿăseh yadhenu konĕnehu.

In Isa 53.4–5 the echoing suffixes -enu ("our") and -hu ("him") produce a wailing effect and also, together with the emphatic repetition of the pronoun huʾ ("he") and the final lanu ("for us"), bring out the contrast between the Servant and those for whom he suffered.

4. Onomatopoeia

The use of words that sound like what they describe has already been illustrated from Ps 93.4 (see above, III.§2). Similarly, in Isa 17. 12–13 a combination of doubled consonants and long vowels expresses the surge and thunder of the waves, to which the tumultuous onslaught of the nations is compared. Then, with a change of figure, there follows a description of the repulse and scattering of the nations like chaff or dust before a storm wind:

hōy hămōn ʿammīm rabbīm
kahămōth yammīm yehĕmāyūn

ūshe'ōn lĕ 'ummīm
kishĕ 'ōn mayīm kabbīrīm yishshā'ūn lĕ 'ummīm kishĕ 'ōn mayīm rabbīm yishshā'ūn wĕghā'ar bō wĕnās mimmerḥāq
wĕruddaph kemōṣ hārīm liphĕnē rūāḥ ūkhĕghalgal liphnē sūphāh.

Another outstanding example of onomatopoeia is the description in the Song of Deborah of the thudding hoofs of galloping horses:

'az ḥalĕmu 'iqqĕbhe sus
middahăroth dahăroth 'abbiraw (Judg 5.22)

5. Paranomasia

A pointed play on words occurs more frequently in the Bible than is evident from an English rendering. In predicting national disaster Amos makes an effective play on the name "Gilgal" and the verb galah ("go into exile"):

ki haggilgal galoh yighleh.

Again, when Amos sees a basket of "summer fruit" (qayiṣ) it is a token that the 'end' (qeṣ) is coming on Israel (Am 8.12). Isaiah says that God looked for 'justice' (mishpaṭ) and 'righteousness' (ṣĕdhaqah) but found only 'bloodshed' (mispaḥ) and the 'cry' (ṣĕ'aqah) of the oppressed (Isa 5.7b). In Jer 31.16–19 the words "come back," "bring back," "turned away" all come from the same verb (shubh). It is probably impossible to reproduce in translation this sustained play on similar and contrasted meanings.

IV. CONCLUSION

The supreme quality of ancient Hebrew poetry is seen in the concentrated expression, within a limited compass, of experience, emotion, and aspiration. This is seen in ancient war songs and dirges, the love poems in the Song of Songs, many of the hymns, laments, and thanksgivings in the Psalter, and in the terse oracles of Amos and of Isaiah of Jerusalem. Apart from Job and (probably) Isa 40–55, there is no sustained poetic composition of any great length in the Old Testament, and nothing that is epic in character. Although the tradition of the Psalmists is continued in the later period, e.g., in the poems in Lk 1–2 and (with significant differences) the Qumran Hymns of Thanksgiving, it is on the whole the didactic and reflective notes that tend to predominate, as in Sirach and the Wisdom of Solomon. In the sayings of Jesus the form and spirit of classical prophecy and of Wisdom are fused in a new and creative manifestation of the Hebrew poetic genius.

Literary Forms in the Gospels

An analysis of the teaching of Jesus reported in the four Gospels reveals a variety of literary forms. Sometimes he conveyed his teaching by means of parables; at other times he used proverbs and plays on words (puns). Many passages in the Gospels are arranged in strophic, or poetic, form, and frequently one is struck by the vigorous, picturesque language by which the teaching is conveyed. Examples within each of these categories, considered in reverse order, include the following.

1. Picturesque Speech

Like other persons of the Near East, Jesus made use of striking contrasts and vivid metaphors. Using exaggerated and colorful expressions, he frequently drew attention to the ridiculous and the illogical behavior of the self-righteous. For example instead of saying in prosaic and commonplace terms that some people are inconsistent when judging others and themselves, Jesus put it thus:

> Why do you see the speck in your neighbor's eye, but do not notice the log in your own eye? . . . You hypocrite, first take the log out of your own eye, and then you will see clearly to take the speck out of your neighbor's eye (Mt 7.3,5).

By taking into account the presence of picturesque expression in the Gospels the reader can sometimes avoid misinterpreting the meaning. For example, the hard saying preserved in the third Gospel, "Whoever comes to me and does not hate father and mother, wife and children, brothers and sisters, yes, and even life itself, cannot be my disciple" (Lk 14.26), must be understood in the light of the frequent use of overstatement as characteristic of the speech of Near Easterners. It is obvious that Jesus, so far from intending to increase the sum total of hatred in the world, states a principle in a startling, hyperbolic manner, and leaves it to his hearers to discover whatever qualifications are necessary in the light of his other pronouncements. The saying means that in order to be a follower of Jesus one must be prepared to choose between natural affection and loyalty to the Master. The same idea is expressed in Matthew's less rigorous version of Jesus' saying: "Whoever loves father or mother more than me is not worthy of me; and whoever loves son or daughter more than me is not worthy of me" (Mt 10.37).

One should, of course, be alert to the danger of diluting Jesus' teaching by finding overstatement in passages where it is not present. For example, Jesus' command to the rich man who inquired what he should do to inherit eternal life, "Sell all that you own and distribute the money to the poor, and you will have treasure in heaven; then come, follow me" (Lk 18.22), should not be discounted as exaggerated hyperbole, meaning merely, "Sell ten percent of what you own. . . ." The context makes it absolutely clear that the questioner as well as the disciples understood Jesus' words in their literal sense.

2. Poetic, Rhythmical Parallelism

Hebrew poetry, illustrated in the Old Testament Psalter, is characterized by parallelism of members. Sometimes the parallelism is synonymous and sometimes antithetic (see pp. 394–395).

In view of the frequency of Jesus' quotations from and allusions to the Psalms, it is not surprising that we find much of his teaching cast into the mold of Semitic poetry. Synonymous parallelism appears in the saying recorded in Lk 6.27–28:

> Love your enemies,
> do good to those who hate you,
> bless those who curse you,
> pray for those who abuse you.

Antithetic parallelism is illustrated by Mt 7.17–18:

> Every good tree bears good fruit,
> but the bad tree bears bad fruit.
> A good tree cannot bear bad fruit,
> nor can a bad tree bear good fruit.

Besides these two basic types of parallelism, several other kinds have been identified. What is called step parallelism, for example, occurs when the second line takes up a thought contained in the first line and, repeating it, makes it, as it were, a step toward the development of a further thought, which is the climax of the whole. An example of step parallelism is found in Lk 9.48 (the italics indicate the repeated member which serves as a step, and the vertical line stands before the climax):

> Whoever welcomes this child in my name > welcomes me,
> and whoever welcomes me |welcomes the one > who sent me.

For other passages that exhibit an elaborate rhythmical pattern, see Mt 6.19–21; 23.16–22; Mk 2.21–22; 9.43–48; Lk 11.31–32; 17.26–30.

3. Plays on Words

The Old Testament contains not a few instances of plays on words (for examples see p. 397 and the notes on Gen 11.9; Jer 1.11–12; Am 8.1–2). The text of the Gospels, which has been transmitted to us in Greek, contains more than one instance where the original Aramaic of Jesus' mother tongue probably involved a word-play. It is understandable that very few such puns in Aramaic could be reproduced in Greek. In one case, however, it happens that the Greek word pneuma, just as the Aramaic rūhâ, means both "wind" and "spirit." In Jn 3.8 Jesus is quoted as saying to Nicodemus, "The pneuma blows where it wills, and you hear the sound of it, but you do not know whence it comes or whither it goes; so it is with everyone who is born of the pneuma."

One of the most noteworthy of Jesus' sayings about the church involves a play on words. According to Mt 16.13ff. at Caesarea Philippi, in response to Jesus' question to his disciples who they thought he was, Simon Peter confessed, "You are the Messiah, the Son of the living God." After declaring that Peter had spoken this by divine revelation, Jesus retorted, "And I tell you, you are Peter [Greek Petros], and on this rock [Greek petra] I will build my church." In Jesus' mother tongue the play is even closer, for in Aramaic the word kēphâ serves as a proper name (Cephas) and also means "a rock, a stone." Jesus' statement therefore would have been, "And I tell you, you are Kēphâ, and on this kēphâ I will build my church" (there remains a difference in gender, for the common noun is feminine and the proper name is, of course, masculine; compare French pierre (f.), "a stone," and Pierre (m.), "Peter").

Another passage which probably involved a pun is Mt 23.24, where the Greek text is unable to reproduce the jingle that is present in what is presumed to be the original Aramaic. In his condemnation of the inconsistency of certain scribes and Pharisees, Jesus reproached them for "straining out a gnat and swallowing a camel." Since in Aramaic the word for "gnat" or "louse" is qalmâ and the word for "camel" is gamlâ, the pun provides added piquancy to the picturesque speech used by Jesus: he is describing a punctilious Pharisee who, in view of Lev 11.41ff., which forbids the eating of what swarms or crawls on the earth, is careful to strain out a qalmâ that may have fallen into his food or wine, but is quite unconcerned over gulping down a whole gamlâ!

4. Proverbs

Every language has pithy sayings or maxims that express a truth crisply and forcefully. Because proverbs frequently express only one side of a truth, it happens that mutually contradictory proverbs may circulate, each of which is true when applied to the appropriate life-setting. The common saying, "Penny wise, pound foolish," correctly describes one who is scrupulous about small transactions, but is extravagant in great ones. On the other hand, the proverb, "Take care of the pennies, and the dollars will take care of themselves," is also true. More than once the Bible presents two proverbs that, though contradictory, are both true when applied to appropriate circumstances. In Prov 26.4 the writer cautions his reader, "Do not answer fools according to their folly, or you will be a fool yourself"; in the very next verse, however, he advises, "Answer fools according to their folly, or they will be wise in their own eyes." It is left to the reader to know when it is appropriate to heed one or the other of these two antithetical proverbs.

It is not surprising that Jesus sometimes cast his teaching in the form of proverbs. Since, however, these brief, salty sayings stress one side of a truth, they should not be exalted as maxims of inflexible conduct. On the contrary, one categorical statement must be interpreted in the light of another that may counsel the opposite of the first. For example, Jesus' command, "Do not judge, so that you may be not judged" (Mt 7.1), has sometimes been taken as a blanket prohibition against making judgments concerning right and wrong, good and evil. In the same context, however, the evangelist includes another of Jesus' pithy sayings, one which presupposes the necessity of forming judgments: "Do not give what is holy to dogs; and do not throw your pearls before swine" (Mt 7.6). To obey this command against desecrating what is holy, one obviously must judge who is doggish and who is swinish. Spiritual prudence will know when it is appropriate to follow one precept and when it is appropriate to follow the other.

Similarly Jesus' proverb-like prohibiton, "Do not resist an evildoer" (Mt 5.39), is not to be taken to mean that his disciples are never to resist evil in any kind of way. In the light of Jesus' other teachings as well as his use of force to drive out the money-changers from the temple precincts (Mk 12.15), it is clear that the principle that he inculcates in this crisp maxim is nonretaliation for a malicious wrong inflicted by a personal enemy.

5. Parables

In all the teaching of Jesus there is no feature more striking than the parables. Although other religious teachers had made use of parabolic stories (see Judg 9.7–15; 2 Sam 12.1–6), in quantity and in excellence his parables are acknowledged to be outstanding. About sixty examples, from what was probably a larger number, have been preserved in the synoptic Gospels; these comprise more than one third of Jesus' recorded words. The fourth Gospel nowhere uses the word "parable," but it contains several parabolic sayings in the form of allegories (for example, Jn 10.1–18; 15.1–11).

The old definition of a parable as "an earthly story with a heavenly meaning" contains a certain amount of truth, but one must beware against seeking an elaborate allegorical meaning for every detail in a parable. That is, many details in Jesus' parables are present in order to make the story "live," and were not included primarily to instruct or edify the hearer. Defined more precisely, in Jesus' teaching a parable is a comparison drawn from nature or common experience in life and designed to illustrate some moral or religious truth, on the assumption that what is valid in one sphere is valid also in the other. The distinctions between parable and simile and metaphor are not easily defined. Often there is scarcely any difference, for all of them involve an aspect of comparison, but generally the metaphor and simile are short while the parable is more extended. "You are the salt of the earth" (Mt 5.13) is a metaphor; "Be wise as serpents" (Mt 10.16) is a simile; but "The kingdom of heaven is like yeast that a woman took and mixed in with three measures of flour until all of it was leavened" (Mt 13.33) is a parable.

The proper method of interpreting Jesus' parables is to make a thorough inquiry into the "life-setting" in his ministry when the parable was first uttered, and to seek out the chief point that, in that setting, it was intended to teach. In other words, To whom did Jesus speak the parable? and, Why did he speak it? Usually the details in a parable provide nothing more than the necessary background in order to make the story realistic, and are not to be assigned, point by point, special meanings in the manner of an allegory.

An analysis of Jesus' parables reveals that most of them are intended either (a) to portray a type of human character or disposition for warning or example, or (b) to reveal a principle of God's government of the world and humankind. In other words, Jesus' parables usually teach a certain kind of conduct that his hearers are to emulate or avoid (matters of ethics), or they disclose something of the character of God and his dealings with humankind (matters of theology). Examples of the former class of parables include The Two Builders (Mt 7.24–27), The Two Sons (Mt 21.28–32), The Pharisee and the Tax Collector (Lk 18.9–14), and The Good Samaritan (Lk 10.30–37); examples of the latter include the several parables concerning the Kingdom of Heaven (Mt ch 13; 20.1–15), The Seed Growing Secretly (Mk 4.26–29), The Great Supper (Lk 14.16–24), and The Lost Coin (Lk 15.8–10). Most parables of Jesus have two levels of meaning. One is the story itself, which usually reflects some aspect of daily life in the Near East. The other, deeper level of meaning (which may be paradoxical or surprising), is an open-ended invitation awaiting the hearer's response. In this respect the parable is not effective until the challenge inherent in the parable is freely accepted and acted upon.

Finally, it should be observed that when Christian teachers and evangelists retold Jesus' parables in the early church, they occasionally introduced small changes so as to apply the stories to new situations or to bring out the application more vividly. An example of the latter is the slight modification in the order of the wording in Matthew and Luke's retelling of the parable of The Wicked Tenants. According to Mk 12.8, when the owner of the vineyard sent his son to the tenants to get some of the fruit, they "killed him, and threw him out of the vineyard." Matthew and Luke, however, finding in the parable a parallel to what happened to Jesus when he was crucified outside the city walls, altered the sequence of the clauses so as to read, "they threw him out of the vineyard, and killed him" (Mt 21.39; Lk 20.15).

There was also a tendency to turn parables that Jesus addressed to the crowd, or to opponents, into parables for the disciples. For example, according to Luke (15.4–10) Jesus told the parable of the Lost Sheep as an answer to criticisms leveled against him by Pharisees and scribes (15.2). When Matthew recounts the same parable (18.12–14), however, it is no longer addressed to Jesus' opponents; it has now become part of Jesus' instruction to his disciples (18.1), that is, to the church, on the subject of how Christians are to relate to other Christians (see also 18.15–17).

In other cases the parables of Jesus were remembered long after the circumstances that gave rise to them had been forgotten. More than once, therefore, we find that the Evangelists, impressed by the sublimity of Jesus' teaching, recount his parables without mentioning the specific situation in which they were first narrated.

English Versions of the Bible

Prior to the sixteenth century, translations of the Bible into English were made from the Latin Vulgate instead of from the Hebrew or Greek, and were recorded only in manuscript copies.

To the Anglo-Saxon period belong the paraphrases of the Biblical narrative put into verse by Caedmon, herdsman for the abbey at Whitby (about A.D. 670); a version of the Psalms attributed to Aldhelm, bishop of Sherborne (640–709); a translation of the Gospel of John by the Venerable Bede (d. 735); portions of Exodus and the Acts of the Apostles, and some of the Psalms, by King Alfred (849–901); and a translation of the Heptateuch (Genesis through Judges) by Aelfric, abbot of Eynsham (955–1020). Four complete manuscripts and five fragmentary manuscripts remain of the Anglo-Saxon Gospels; these date from the eleventh to the thirteenth centuries. The famous Lindisfarne Gospels and the Rushworth Gospels are Latin manuscripts written toward the close of the seventh century, with interlinear Anglo-Saxon glosses (translations) inserted three centuries later. There were many Anglo-Saxon Psalters, with the Latin text and an interlinear Anglo-Saxon gloss.

To the Middle English period (1150–1500) belong the Ormulum, a metrical paraphrase of the Gospels, with interspersed moralizations; the Psalter of Richard Rolle (d. 1349), a prose version with commentary; and a prose version of the Psalms that has been attributed to William of Shoreham (about 1270–1350).

The first English versions of the entire Bible were the two associated with the work of John Wyclif, made by translation from the Latin Vulgate between 1380 and 1397. They were copied by hand, and there remain some one hundred and eighty manuscripts, mostly of the second version.

We do not know what part of the work upon the first version was done by Wyclif himself. But that is of no consequence; he inspired it all, including the making of the second version after his death in 1384. Both versions were made by scholars who were his immediate associates. Nicholas Hereford was largely responsible for the first version, which was completed before Wyclif's death. John Purvey, Wyclif's secretary, was responsible for the second version, which was completed by 1397.

The first version of the Wyclif Bible was a careful literal translation of the Latin Vulgate, with the English words following the order of the Latin words as closely as possible. Purvey gives a striking example of the mischief that may thus be wrought. In 1 Sam 2.10 the Latin has Dominum formidabunt adversarii eius, which the first version renders, "The Lord shulen drede the adversaries of hym." This follows the Latin word order, but ignores the Latin inflections which show that "adversaries" is the subject of the verb, that the verb for "shall dread" is plural, and that "the Lord" is its object. Purvey changes the translation to read, "Adversaries of the Lord shulen drede hym."

In the "General Prologue" to the second version Purvey states that it is best "to translate after the sentence and not only after the words, so that the sentence be as open, or opener, in English as Latin"—that is, so that the meaning be as clear, or clearer.

The sixteenth century brought the Bible in English to the common people as a printed book. Beginning with the first of Tyndale's translations in 1526, there appeared in rapid succession eight English versions of the Bible, culminating in the King James Version published in 1611.

The first English version of the Scriptures to be made by direct translation from the Hebrew and Greek was the work of William Tyndale. His New Testament, 1526, was followed by his translation of the Pentateuch in 1530 and of Jonah in 1531. In 1534 he issued a revision of his translation of the New Testament, and in 1535 The New Testament yet once again corrected by William Tyndale. These became the basis of all later revisions and the main source of the authorized versions of the New Testament in English.

Tyndale was bitterly opposed. He was accused of perverting the meaning of the Scriptures, and his New Testaments were ordered to be burned as "untrue translations," intended "for the advancement and setting forth of Luther's abominable heresies." He was finally betrayed into the hands of his enemies, and in October 1536 was executed and burned at the stake.

In 1535 appeared an English translation of the Bible by Miles Coverdale. This was the first complete Bible to be printed in English. It was not a direct translation from the original languages, but was based upon two Latin versions and upon the translations by Tyndale into English, and by Luther and Zwingli into German.

In 1537 a folio volume was published entitled The Bible, which is all the Holy Scriptures, in which are contayned the Olde and Newe Testaments, truely and purely translated into Englysh, by Thomas Matthew. "Thomas Matthew" was a pseudonym adopted by John Rogers, a friend of Tyndale, who took Tyndale's manuscript translations of the books of the Old Testament from Joshua to Second Chronicles, together with Tyndale's printed translations of the Pentateuch and the New Testament, and published them in this one volume, which he completed by adding Coverdale's version of the rest of the Old Testament and the Apocrypha.

In 1539 Richard Taverner, a layman and a lawyer, clerk of the signet to the king, published a revision of Matthew's Bible, one edition of which was issued in parts in order that people who could not afford to purchase the whole Bible might buy one or more parts. He was a good Greek scholar, and made some changes in the translation of the New Testament that have been kept in later versions.

Meanwhile at Paris, in early 1538, Miles Coverdale had begun a new revision of Matthew's Bible, for which he had been commissioned by Sir Thomas Cromwell, Secretary to King Henry VIII, and Vicar General. The Great Bible, as this was called, was published at London in April 1539. It was the first authorized English version, and a copy was ordered to be placed in every church. Until very recently, the Psalms in the Book of Common Prayer were from Coverdale's translation.

Under Queen Mary the printing of the English Bible ceased and its use in the churches was forbidden. Many English citizens sought refuge on the Continent, and a group of these at Geneva undertook the revision of the English Bible. The Geneva version appeared in 1560. It was set in Roman type instead of the old blackface, and it was a book easy to handle, instead of an unwieldy folio. It was the first English version to use numbered verses, each set off as a separate paragraph.

The Geneva Bible was never authorized, but it became at once the people's book, the household Bible of the English-speaking nations, and it held this place for three-quarters of a century. It was the Bible used by Shakespeare and John Bunyan, and it was the Bible of the Puritans who settled New England. Between 1560 and 1644 at least one hundred and forty editions of the Geneva Bible or New Testament were printed, and it lasted longer in competition with the King James Version than any other English version. This was the version of the Bible brought to America by the Pilgrims in 1620.

Queen Elizabeth renewed the injunction that a copy of "the whole Bible of the largest volume in English" be replaced in every church, and encouraged its reading. Because not enough copies of the Great Bible were available, Archbishop Parker proposed that the bishops themselves make a new revision of the English Bible. The resulting version, known as the Bishops' Bible, was published in 1568. It was authorized by Convocation, and its possession enjoined upon the churches. In 1572 another edition was published, with considerable revision of the New Testament. This revised edition, reprinted in 1602, became the basis of the revision under King James.

In 1582 an English translation of the New Testament was published at Rheims, made from the Latin by Roman Catholic scholars led by Gregory Martin, who had been trained at Oxford University. A similar translation was made of the Old Testament, but not published until 1609. The distinctive characteristic of the Rhemish version of the New Testament is the closeness with which it adheres to the Latin.

On February 10, 1604, after a conference "for hearing and for the determining things pretended to be amiss in the church," King James I ordained: "That a translation be made of the whole Bible, as consonant as can be to the original Hebrew and Greek; and this to be set out and printed without any marginal notes, and only to be used in all churches of England in time of divine service." He appointed fifty-four men as translators, forty-eight of whom are named in the records that have come down to us. They worked in six companies, to each of which was assigned a section of the Bible. Two companies met at Oxford, two at Cambridge, and two at Westminster.

It was provided that each company would consider the work of each other company, and that differences would be resolved by correspondence if possible, and if not, be referred to the general meeting at the end. This was a meeting at London of a committee of six, made up of two representatives from the companies at each of the three centers, which devoted nine months to bringing together and finally editing the work. It was then seen through the press by Dr. Thomas Bilson, bishop of Winchester, and Dr. Myles Smith, of Oxford University; and Smith wrote an extended and informative preface, entitled "The Translators to the Reader." This version of the Bible, with a dedication to King James, was published in 1611.

It is a strange fact that no evidence has yet been found that the King James Version was ever authorized in the sense of being publicly sanctioned by Convocation or by Parliament. But it did not need that. Bishop Westcott, writing in the nineteenth century, said: "From the middle of the seventeenth century, the King's Bible has been the acknowledged Bible of the English-speaking nations throughout the world simply because it is the best. A revision which embodied the ripe fruits of nearly a century of labour, and appealed to the religious instinct of a great Christian people, gained by its own internal character a vital authority which could never have been secured by any edict of sovereign rulers."

An outstanding merit of the King James Version is the music of its cadences. The translators were experienced in the public reading of the Scriptures and in the conduct of public worship. Their choice of the final wording of a passage was often determined by a marvelously sure instinct for what would sound well when read aloud. Take as an example the successive translations of Prov 3.17, part of a discourse in praise of wisdom, where Coverdale, the Great Bible, and the Bishops' Bible agree in reading: "Her wayes are pleasant wayes and all her paths are peaceable."

The Geneva Bible has: "Her wayes are wayes of pleasure and all her paths prosperitie."

The King James Version gives to the verse a perfect melody: "Her wayes are wayes of pleasantnesse, and all her pathes are peace."

The English Bible owes more to William Tyndale than to any other man, not only because he was the first to translate the Bible from the original Hebrew and Greek, but because the basic structure of his translation has endured through all subsequent changes. It has been estimated that about sixty per cent of the text of the English Bible achieved its final literary form before the King James Version appeared, and that in the King James Version at least one-third of the New Testament is worded exactly as in Tyndale's New Testament, while the sentences of the remaining two-thirds follow the general pattern of the underlying structure of Tyndale's New Testament.

For two and a half centuries the King James Version maintained its place as the Authorized Version of the English-speaking peoples, without any serious consideration of its revision. But in the 1850's a movement toward revision began to gather strength, and in 1870 the Convocation of the Province of Canterbury appointed a Committee to undertake it. The Revised Version of the New Testament was published in 1881, of the Old Testament in 1885, and of the Apocrypha in 1895. The American Standard Version, a variant edition containing the renderings preferred by the American scholars who had cooperated in the work of revision, was published in 1901.

In 1928 the copyright of the American Standard Version was acquired by the International Council of Religious Education, and thus passed into the ownership of the churches of the United States and Canada that were associated in this Council through their boards of education and publication. The Council appointed a committee of scholars to have charge of the text of the American Standard Version and to undertake inquiry as to whether further revision was necessary. After more than two years of study and experimental work, this committee decided that there was need for a thorough revision of the version of 1901, which would stay as close to the Tyndale-King James tradition as it could in the light of present knowledge of the Hebrew and Greek texts and their meaning on the one hand, and present usage of English on the other.

In 1937 the revision was authorized by vote of the Council, which directed that the resulting version should "embody the best results of modern scholarship as to the meaning of the Scriptures, and express this meaning in English diction which is designed for use in public and private worship and preserves those qualities which have given to the King James Version a supreme place in English literature."

The Revised Standard Version of the New Testament was published in 1946, of the Old Testament in 1952, and of the Apocrypha in 1957. The publication of the Revised Standard Version of the Bible was authorized in 1951 by vote of the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U.S.A.

The revised versions of 1881–1901 made permanent advances in their recognition of the principle that Hebrew poetry is to be translated as poetry, in characteristic parallelism, and in their giving due weight to the text of the ancient Greek manuscripts of the New Testament that had been discovered since 1611.

But the Revised New Testament of 1881, said Charles H. Spurgeon, the great London preacher, was "strong in Greek, weak in English." The revisers were literalists, especially in the New Testament. Their ideal of translation was a meticulous word-for-word reproduction of the Greek text in English words, using the same English word for a given Greek word whenever possible, leaving no Greek word without translation into a correspondent English word, following the order of the Greek words rather than the order natural to English, and attempting to translate the tenses and the definite article with a precision alien to English idioms. The result is that the Revised Version and the American Standard Version are distinctly "translation English."

The problem of the archaic language of the King James Version was ineffectively handled by the revisers, who changed some of the misleading words but actually increased the use of other archaic terms, such as aforetime, haply, holden, howbeit, would fain, must needs, peradventure. Where the King James Version reads, "this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you" (1 Thess 5.18), the 1881–1901 revisers changed it to "this is the will of God in Christ Jesus to youward" (so also in Rom 8.18, Gal 5.10, Col 1.25). A full account of archaic words and obsolete meanings in the King James Version and the revised versions of 1881–1901 is given in The Bible Word Book, by Ronald Bridges and Luther A. Weigle.

It is one of the ironies of history that the King James Version remained unrevised for two hundred and sixty years, then was revised with the utmost care, but that almost immediately there began a period that was marked by discovery after discovery, widening our knowledge of the Bible text and its early history, and testing the results at which the scholars of 1881 had arrived by evidence with which they were totally unacquainted.

The Revised Standard Version took full account of the new knowledge of the history, geography, religions, and cultures of Bible lands, and of the rich new resources for understanding the vocabulary, grammar, and idioms of the Biblical and related languages. It also broke away from the literalism and mechanical exactitude of the revisions of 1881–1901, and returned to the basic structure and more natural cadence of the Tyndale-King James tradition.

Paraphrases and new translations, usually of the New Testament, have appeared from time to time, such as those by Henry Hammond, 1653; Richard Baxter, 1685; Daniel Mace, 1729; Edward Harwood, 1768; Andrews Norton, 1855; Leicester Sawyer, 1858. A group of scholars produced The Twentieth Century New Testament, 1898–1901; thereafter have come new translations by R.F. Weymouth, 1903; James Moffatt, 1913; Edgar J. Goodspeed, 1923; J.B. Phillips, 1947–1958 (2nd. ed. 1972); Charles Kingsley Williams, 1952; Hugh J. Schonfield, 1955 (2nd. ed. 1985); William F. Beck, 1963; William Barclay, 1968, 1969; Richmond Lattimore, 1982; and Heinz W. Cassirer, 1989.

Moffatt's translation of the Old Testament appeared in 1924, and a rendering of the Old Testament by J. M. Powis Smith and other scholars was published (1927) with the Goodspeed New Testament as The Bible: An American Translation. After Beck's death in 1966 several other Lutheran scholars finished his partially complete rendering of the Old Testament, and both parts of the Bible were issued in 1976. It is a dignified and contemporary rendering in mid-American English.

After the publication of the Revised Standard Version in 1952, the second half of the twentieth century saw the publication of many translations and revisions of the English Bible. In fact, between 1952 and 1990, when the New Revised Standard Version was published, no fewer than twenty-six different renderings of the complete English Bible were issued, with twenty-five additional translations and revisions of the New Testament. Among these the following Jewish, Protestant, and Catholic translations are of special note.

In 1955 the Jewish Publication Society, whose first translation of the Hebrew Scriptures had appeared in 1917, initiated a new translation of the Scriptures in English. The first part, published in 1962, was entitled The Torah, The Five Books of Moses. This was followed by The Prophets (Nevi'im) in 1978, and The Writings (Kethuvim) in 1982. These three volumes, with revisions, were brought together in 1985 under the title Tanakh, A New Translation of the Holy Scriptures According to the Traditional Hebrew Text. The rendering is supplied with useful footnotes of three kinds: textual, translational, and explanatory. The version is notable for its perceptive handling of the Hebrew vocabulary and syntax in contemporary English.

In the year that the RSV New Testament was published (1946), British Protestant Churches embarked on a totally new translation of the Scriptures, The New English Bible. Prior to its completion in 1970 a first edition of the New Testament appeared in 1961. At that time, C. H. Dodd, director of the enterprise and chairman of the New Testament translation panel, stated that this was "not another revision of an old version, but a genuinely new translation of the original, which should be frankly contemporary in vocabulary, idiom, style and rhythm—not to supersede the Authorized Version, but as a second version alongside it." The rendering is free and vigorous, tending at places to be periphrastic. Here and there the translators have rearranged the sequence of verses and sections of the text.

The first English Bible made from the original Hebrew and Greek languages that received Roman Catholic approval was The Revised Standard Version Catholic Edition, of which the New Testament was published in 1965 and the complete Bible in 1966. In it the Deuterocanonical Books, which comprise what others call the Apocrypha (but without 1 Esdras, 2 Esdras, and the Prayer of Manasseh), were placed among the Old Testament books in accord with Catholic usage. It was prepared by the Catholic Biblical Association of Great Britain with the consent of the Revised Standard Version Bible Committee and the Division of Christian Education of the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U.S.A. There are no changes in the Old Testament text; the sixty-seven changes in the New Testament, made for liturgical and theological reasons, are carefully noted in an appendix. A significant further advance toward a Common Bible was achieved with the publication of the RSV without any changes whatever in the Oxford Annotated Bible with the Apocrypha (1966), to which Richard Cardinal Cushing of Boston granted the imprimatur.

The first English translation of the Bible made from the original languages by Catholic scholars was The Jerusalem Bible, published in 1966. With close comparison with the Hebrew and Greek, it is based on the French translation made under the direction of l'École Biblique of Jerusalem by a committee of scholars headed by Père Roland de Vaux, O.P., and popularly known as La Bible de Jérusalem. The English translation was made by a British Committee headed by Alexander Jones, L.S.S., of Christ's College, Liverpool. The translation is well done and has been warmly received. At the same time it must be acknowledged that occasionally the French idiom intrudes. "Yahweh" is used instead of the surrogate, the LORD. The volume is provided with useful introductions and notes, and "thee," "thou," and "thine" disappear from the text.

The New American Bible, published September 30, 1970 (St. Jerome's Day in the ecclesiastical calendar), carries on its title page the statement that it is "translated from the original languages with critical use of all the ancient sources," that the translation is by members of the Catholic Biblical Association of America, and that it is sponsored by the Bishops' Committee of the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine. The version is the final outcome of a movement that began in response to the encyclical letter of Pope Pius XII, issued September 30, 1943, and urging translation of the Scriptures from the original languages. The work of translation was begun in 1944, and the first volume, Genesis to Ruth, was published on September 30, 1952. Later volumes appeared in due time, copyrighted by the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine. A few years before the end of the work, four Protestant scholars were added to the Committee. The completed work represents capable and dedicated scholarship and renders the Scriptures in modern American idiom.

Persons who have only a limited facility in the English language—such as immigrants, or children, or those with little education—find the traditional language of the King James Bible forbidding if not sometimes incomprehensible. It was chiefly for such readers that in 1966 the American Bible Society issued "Good News for Modern Man," a translation of the New Testament made by Robert G. Bratcher. Known as Today's English Version, the rendering uses simplified syntax and a limited vocabulary. The Old Testament (1976), prepared by a committee, was subsequently followed by a rendering of the Deuterocanonicals/Apocrypha (1979). The translators employ contemporary American English (although a British-Usage edition has also appeared) and adopt the translational practice of producing "dynamic equivalence," as opposed to "formal equivalence."

The popularity of the Good News Bible spurred the preparation of another modern-speech Bible. This is the New International Version, sponsored by the New York Bible Society (subsequently known as the New York International Bible Society). The New Testament was published in 1973 and the complete Bible in 1978. Less colloquial than Today's English Version, and more literal than the New English Bible, the version was prepared by twenty teams of translators in the USA, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, and Great Britain. It had the largest first printing ever for an English Bible.

Unlike the other versions mentioned here, the Living Bible (1971), prepared by Kenneth N. Taylor, is professedly a paraphrase of the Scriptures: "A restatement of the author's thought, using different words than he did." Its chatty style made it the best-selling book in 1972.

The latter part of the twentieth century saw the publication of a number of revisions of earlier translations. The New American Standard Version (1970), prepared by a group of anonymous scholars sponsored by the Lockman Foundation of California, is ostensibly the American Standard Version of 1901 purged of some of the archaisms taken over from the Revised Version of 1881–1884. A number of verses resting on doubtful manuscript authority have been reintroduced into the text from the margin. It remains a severely literalistic rendering.

The New King James Bible (1982) is the work of an international group of some 130 scholars, editors, and religious leaders who have sought to produce an English Bible that retains as much of the classic King James Version as possible, while at the same time bringing its English up-to-date. Changes have been introduced in word order, grammar, vocabulary, and spelling. It retains the practice of printing the numbered verses as separate units, rather than arranging the text in paragraphs. The chief deficiency of the New Testament results from the decision to follow the Greek text known as the Textus Receptus, despite the many scribal errors that this text embodies. A totally new feature, never used in the King James Bible or in English Bibles in general, is the capitalization of pronouns referring to the Deity. This introduces into English something that is foreign to the Hebrew and Greek originals.

The first stage of producing a revision of the New American Bible (mentioned above) was finished in 1986 when the second edition of the New Testament was issued. This is a totally new translation, done with Protestant cooperation. No longer is the First Epistle of John printed in strophic format similar to blank verse, and the reader will notice changes throughout made in the rendering, including an attempt to compensate in part for the masculine bias of the English language.

In 1973 a new edition of La Bible de Jérusalem was published, which incorporated the progress in scholarship over the two decades since the preparation of its first edition in 1955. The French revision was deemed important enough to warrant a completely new edition of the English-language Jerusalem Bible. This edition, entitled The New Jerusalem Bible (1985), was prepared under the supervision of Henry Wansbrough of Ampleforth Abbey, York. The translation of the biblical text was made directly from the Hebrew, Greek, or Aramaic, and paraphrase was avoided more rigorously than in the first edition. "Considerable efforts have been made, though not at all costs, to soften or avoid the inbuilt preferences of the English language . . . for the masculine [gender]." As in the earlier edition, extensive introductions and explanatory notes are provided throughout the volume.

In the early 1980s work began on a revision of the New English Bible, under the chairmanship of W. D. McHardy, and in 1989 the work of the revision panels was published under the title, The Revised English Bible. It is somewhat less idiosyncratic in the Old Testament than its predecessor. The revisers sought to insure that the style of English used is fluent and of appropriate dignity for liturgical use. In passages that address God the "you"-form replaces the traditional "thou"-form. Steps were taken in preferring more inclusive gender reference in place of male-oriented language "where that was possible without compromising scholarly integrity of English style" (Preface).

The ecumenicity of our times is in various degrees represented in these newer translations, but perhaps most of all in the New Revised Standard Version. The committee that produced the Revised Standard Version is a continuing committee, holding meetings at regular intervals and having charge of the RSV text. In 1959 a few changes were authorized for subsequent printings of the Revised Standard Version, growing out of a study of suggestions sent to the committee by various readers. Meanwhile the committee became both international and ecumenical, with the appointment of Catholic and Protestant members from Great Britain, Canada, and the United States. Since 1946 an American Jewish scholar had been a member of the Old Testament section. More recently an Eastern Orthodox scholar was added to the committee.

In 1974 the Division of Christian Education of the National Council of Churches of Christ in the U.S.A. directed that the Standard Bible Committee undertake a revision of the RSV Bible, with the Apocrypha. Four mandates were given to the committee, namely, that necessary changes be made (1) in paragraph structure and punctuation; (2) in the elimination of archaisms while retaining the flavor of the Tyndale-King James Bible tradition; (3) in attaining a greater degree of accuracy, clarity, and euphony; and (4) in eliminating masculine-oriented language relating to people, so far as this could be done without distorting passages that reflect the historical situation of ancient patriarchal culture. Within the constraints set by the original text and the mandates given by the Division, the committee followed the maxim, "As literal as possible, as free as necessary." As a consequence, the New Revised Standard Version (1990) remains essentially a literal translation. Paraphrastic renderings were adopted only sparingly, and then chiefly to compensate for a deficiency in the English language—the lack of a common gender third person singular pronoun. The results may now be assessed in the present translation, which, unlike other English Bibles, contains all of the books that are regarded as authoritative by Protestant, Roman Catholic, and Eastern Orthodox churches.

I. GEOGRAPHY

1. Lands of the Bible

Physical geography is concerned with the land's feature, its climate, and ecology, whereas historical geography considers their influence on the people who inhabited the land. Physical and historical geography are complementary disciplines that furnish the background for biblical geography. The study of biblical geography gives rise to two immediate problems: the appropriate name of the biblical lands and their boundaries. Modern names and boundaries only add to the confusion; names change and boundaries fluctuate over time. Broadly speaking, modern Israel, Jordan, Lebanon, and Syria constitute the Lands of the Bible. In addition to the Holy Land, two other names used to describe this geographical unit are Canaan and Palestine. Canaan, a term used somewhat loosely, is the common name in the Hebrew Bible for the Promised Land; it designates especially Phoenicia proper.

By an irony of history the name Palestine is derived from one of the Sea Peoples, the Philistines, who were Israel's archenemies. The Greek historian Herodotus first used the designation Palestine in the fifth century B.C., and the Romans later adopted it. Since Palestine is a broader term than Land of Israel (the modern Israeli designation), biblical scholars use Palestine as an inclusive geographical name, not as a modern political title. Palestine, consisting of Cisjordan on the west side of the Jordan River and Transjordan on the east, is a land bridge connecting Egypt to the south and Mesopotamia to the north. With the Amanus and Taurus mountains as its northern border, the desert to the south and east, and the Mediterranean Sea ("the Great Sea" in the Bible) as its western border, Palestine (Canaan) is a relatively small geographical unit, about 350 miles long and 60 miles wide. In terms of the traditional formula "from Dan to Beer-sheba," Palestine is only 150 miles long. (For these and other geographical details, consult the set of maps at the end of the volume.)

2. Geographical features of Palestine

Palestine may be divided into five main geographical regions, extending from north to south: the coastal plain, the central hills, the Rift Valley, the plateau of Jordan, and the deserts. These strips, varying in topography, have several subdivisions, which may be described as follows, though the Bible does not delineate boundaries clearly.

The coastal plain stretches about 125 miles from Lebanon to Gaza. The most important of the international highways, the Via Maris ("Way of the Sea"), runs the length of the Mediterranean coast. The Mount Carmel ridge, which rises above the harbor of modern Haifa, divides the coastal plain into a northern and southern region. Acco, about fourteen miles north of Haifa, was one of the important harbor cities in antiquity. The coastal plain widens at the plain of Sharon, lying between Mount Carmel on the north and the Yarkon River on the south. Sharon is still forested and rich in agriculture. Dor and Joppa (modern Jaffa) are the chief harbors of Sharon.

The Philistines occupied the southern part of the fertile coastal plain, notable for barley and wheat. The city-states of Ashdod, Ashkelon, Gaza, Gath, and Ekron constitute the Philistine pentapolis. Ashdod is a half-mile inland from the Mediterranean coast. Ashkelon, the only Philistine city located on the seacoast, was the main Philistine harbor. Modern Gaza marks the site of the ancient city. Gath is unidentified, and Ekron is ten miles inland from Ashdod.

The Negeb (Hebrew for "dry"), a barren steppe, forms the southern border of Palestine. In modern terminology the Negeb extends to the Sinai peninsula. The Bible sometimes uses "Negeb" to refer to the south, designating the area around Beer-sheba (see Gen 20.1). In biblical times this dry, hot region had little economic significance. The Via Maris, connecting Egypt with Mesopotamia and Anatolia, passses through the Negeb. The two principal sites in the Negeb are Beer-sheba and Kadesh-barnea. Beer-sheba is the capital of the northern Negeb. Fifty miles south of Beer-sheba is Kadesh-barnea, where the Israelites encamped in the wilderness.

3. The Central Hills

The western highlands extend about 188 miles from northern Galilee to the Sinai. A great valley running from west to east divides Galilee into Upper and Lower Galilee. This region is rarely mentioned in the Old Testament; the New Testament relates that Jesus spent much of his early ministry in Lower Galilee. Both Jews and Christians relocated in Upper and Lower Galilee after A.D. 135 when this region flourished. The rolling country of Galilee, with the mountains of Upper Galilee rising more than 3,000 feet, was fertile and prosperous.

The central hills also include the plain of Megiddo, the valley of Jezreel, Mount Ephraim (at the center of the hill country), and the hill country of Judah. Between the hills of Galilee and Samaria is the plain of Jezreel (Esdraelon is its Greek name), which is also rich in agriculture. This important plain connects the Mediterranean coast with the Jordan Valley. Jezreel and Esdraelon are often identified; but, in fact, they are two distinct lowlands. The Jezreel Valley was the scene of several well-known battles in biblical history. The principal fortified cities on the west side of the Jezreel Valley are Jokneam, Megiddo, Taanach, and Ibleam. Megiddo is strategically located in the international route between Egypt and Mesopotamia.

Ephraim is a land of mountains and fertile valleys. Grapevines and olives are still cultivated on the slopes of the hills, while wheat and barley are planted in the valleys. The capital city of Samaria, situated 300 feet above the valley, is strategically located on the trade routes converging from all directions. Other cities in the Ephraim region are Shechem and Tirzah, both former capitals of the Northern Kingdom of Israel. Shechem controlled the pass between Mount Gerizim and Mount Ebal.

No sharp demarcation exists between the hill country of Ephraim and the hill country of Judah. The Southern Kingdom of Judah was more defensible than the Nothern Kingdom of Samaria because it was more isolated, but it lacks the physical attractiveness of the north. The hill country of Judah reaches altitudes of 3,345 feet. Jerusalem is located in the midst of the Judean hills, on the edge of the desert. Surrounded by the Kidron and Hinnom Valleys, Jerusalem stands 2,600 feet above sea level. Hebron and Bethlehem, well-known towns in biblical times, are situated in the hill country of Judah.

The Shephelah (Hebrew for "lowlands") separates the coastal plain from the central hills. Grains and vines flourish in the Shephelah. Situated between Philistia and the hill country of Judah, the Shephelah was protected by fortresses and served as the buffer between the Philistines and the Israelites. Among the fortress cities was Lachish, one of the most prominent cities in Judah, second only to Jerusalem.

4. The Rift Valley

This geological fault, called the Ghor in Arabic, is about ten miles wide; it is a unique feature of Palestine's physical geography. Between Mount Hermon in the north and Elath (Eilat) in the south this depression extends about 260 miles. The Jordan, the longest river in Palestine, follows the Rift Valley. If the Jordan River ran in a straight line between the Sea of Galilee and the Dead Sea, the distance covered would be 65 miles; in fact, the Jordan meanders more than twice that distance.

The Sea of Galilee (biblical Chinnereth), also known as the Lake of Tiberias, is a freshwater lake at the northern end of the Jordan Valley. Measuring thirteen miles long and eight miles wide, it is 700 feet below the level of the Mediterranean Sea. The Sea of Galilee is well known for plentiful fish and sudden storms. Though barely mentioned in the Old Testament, the Sea of Galilee was prominent in the early ministry of Jesus. The Gospels refer to Capernaum, Tiberias, and other towns in the vicinity of the Sea of Galilee.

The Jordan River flows into the Dead Sea, the surface of which, at 1300 feet below sea level, is the lowest spot of land on earth. Forty-eight miles long and ten miles wide, it lies between the hills of Moab on the east and the Judean hills on the west. There is no outlet from this body of water; instead, the inflow is balanced by evaporation. Since the mineral content of water is left behind when the water evaporates, the Dead Sea has a high mineral content. For this reason it is also known in the Bible as the Salt Sea. (Another name for it is Sea of the Plain.) Its high salt deposits and other chemicals in this lake preclude plant and animal life. Jericho, located seven miles northwest of the Dead Sea, is thought to be the oldest city of Palestine.

The term Arabah, connoting aridity, is sometimes used in the Bible with reference to the entire Rift Valley, extending from the Sea of Galilee to the Gulf of Aqabah at the Red Sea. Arabah may also be used, as in modern terminology, to designate simply the area from the Dead Sea to the Red Sea, a distance of about a hundred miles. The Arabah is noted for its copper mines.

5. The Plateau of Jordan

This zone is located east of the Jordan (Transjordan); it is the modern Hashemite Kingdom of Jordan. The King's Highway, running the length of Transjordan from Damascus to the Gulf of Aqabah, was a major international route in antiquity. Eastern tributaries emptying into the Jordan River or the Dead Sea have formed natural boundaries separating nations and peoples in the course of history. The principal rivers of Transjordan are the Yarmuk (not mentioned in the Bible), the Jabbok (modern Nahr es-Zerqa), the Arnon (Wadi el-Mojib), and the Brook Zered (Wadi el-Hesa).

Bashan is a fertile plateau northeast of the Jordan River. It is located north of Gilead and divided from it by the Yarmuk River. It is rich pasture land; wheat and barley are grown there; basalt is also found in Bashan. The hills of Gilead are located between Bashan to the north and Moab to the south. The Jabbok River divides Gilead into a northern and southern section. Gilead is a delightful region, abounding with forests, vines, olives, and grains.

Ammon is situated south of Gilead between the Jabbok and Arnon Rivers. The principal town of this region in Old Testament times was Rabbath-Ammon; in the third century B.C. it was renamed Philadelphia; today it is Amman, the capital of the modern kingdom of Jordan.

Moab is a small plateau located between Ammon and Edom. Moab's northern border is the Arnon, and the Wadi Zered is its southern boundary. Moab's economy depended on the wheat and barley crop, as well as on sheep and goats. Before entering the land of Canaan the Israelites camped in the plains of Moab. Among the principal towns in Moab are Medeba (modern Madeba) in the north, and Dibon (modern Dhiban) in the south.

Edom or Mount Seir (the Old Testament connects the two) is located south of the Dead Sea on both sides of the Wadi Arabah. The Brook Zered serves as the frontier between Moab and Edom. Edom extended to the Gulf of Aqabah. Important trade routes passed through Edom. This rugged, mountainous region (with some peaks over 5,000 feet) is notable for agriculture, commerce, and copper mines. Bozrah (modern Buseirah) was the principal city of northern Edom. After the Nabateans settled in Edom in the sixth century B.C., Petra, a city carved from sandstone, became the capital of the Nabatean kingdom. Ezion-geber and Elath were both situated in Edom, at the head of the Gulf of Aqabah, but their precise locations are disputed.

The deserts of Syria and Arabia constitute the final geographic zone of Palestine. Today most of this region lies in Saudi Arabia, as well as in eastern Jordan and Syria.

6. Climate and Rainfall

Palestine's location between the sea and the desert has a marked influence on the climate and rainfall of the country. There are great fluctuations in climate within small areas of Palestine. The climate is subtropical, with only two seasons: summer and winter. Between May and October the weather is warm, and there is almost no rainfall. Between October and April the weather is both cool and wet (see Deut 11.14). The early rains ("former rains"), coming in mid-October, soften the ground preparatory to plowing for the winter crop. The spring rains ("latter rains") occur usually in March and April when summer crops are planted. The amount of rainfall varies throughout the country: the annual rainfall at the Dead Sea is four inches; the annual rainfall in Jerusalem is about twenty-five inches. In addition to rainfall, dew is indispensable for watering the crops in the hot, dry months. Wadis (water beds that are usually dry except in the rainy season), springs, and cisterns also provide needed water.

The basis of the economy of Palestine, as in many neighboring countries, was agriculture. The Bible specifies the products of agriculture in Palestine: "a land of wheat and barley, of vines and fig trees and pomegranates, a land of olive trees and honey" (Deut 8.8).

7. Neighboring Peoples

Egypt and Mesopotamia were the two great empires in biblical times; they were also great rivals. Egypt (misraim in Hebrew), one of the great civilizations of antiquity, is located in the northeast corner of Africa, along the course of the Lower Nile River. Surrounded for the most part by desert, Egypt is bordered on the east by the Red Sea, and by Libya on the west. Lower Egypt comprises the Nile Delta, whereas Upper Egypt constitutes the remainder of the country south of Cairo. Egypt's route to Palestine passed through the Sinai wilderness, along the Mediterranean coast, and into the hill country. The peninsula of Sinai is triangular in shape, and lies between the Gulf of Suez and the Gulf of Aqabah. Mount Sinai (Horeb) is traditionally located at the southern end of the Sinai peninsula.

Egyptian involvement with Palestine began at some time in the Old Kingdom (approximately 2686–2181 B.C.); there is much evidence of connections in the Early Bronze Age (approximately 3300–2000 B.C.). Abundant biblical references document the interrelationship of Egypt and Palestine. This relationship was ambivalent, sometimes amicable, sometimes hostile. For the most part, Egypt's influence on Palestine was more indirect than direct.

Mesopotamia (the biblical name is Aram-naharayim, designating roughly "the land between the rivers"), constitutes the area of the Upper and Middle Euphrates and the Tigris Rivers. Ancient Mesopotamia was approximately coterminous with modern Iraq. The northern region of Mesopotamia was Assyria; the southern sector was Babylonia.

Assyria, situated in the Upper Mesopotamian plain (northern Iraq), was a mighty empire bent on territorial expansion. The beginnings of Assyria date from the second millennium B.C., but the empire enjoyed its greatest prominence in the Neo-Assyrian period (911–609 B.C.) when it controlled both provinces and vassal states, including, for a time, Egypt. Among the principal cities of Assyria were Asshur, the first capital of the Assyrian empire, situated on the west bank of the Tigris; Calah (Nimrud), on the east bank of the Tigris; and Nineveh, the last capital of the Assyrian empire, located on the east bank of the Tigris, opposite modern Mosul in northern Iraq.

Babylonia in southern Iraq may designate both the region and its capital city. The Bible often refers to the region of southern Mesopotamia as Chaldea. The Neo-Babylonian empire (626–539 B.C.) is synonymous with Chaldea. The city of Babylon, which gave its name to the whole region, is located on the Euphrates River, about fifty miles south of modern Baghdad.

8. Phoenicia, Philistia, Aram, and Hittites

Occupying the land along the coast of the East Mediterranean, ancient Phoenicia was coextensive with modern Lebanon and the northern part of Palestine. The Greeks used the title "Phoenicia" to denote ancient Canaan. Among the Phoenician city-states were Tyre, Sidon, Arvad, and Byblos. For the most part, Phoenicia and Israel enjoyed a cordial and close relationship; the Phoenicians, for example, supplied both artisans and materials for the building of Solomon's temple. The economic base of Phoenicia was maritime trade.

Sometime after 1150 B.C., the Philistines settled on the southwest coast of Palestine, between Joppa and Gaza. They and the Israelites clashed constantly because both were bent on expansion of their territory.

Aram, a collection of city-states to the northeast of Israel, was also in constant conflict with its neighbors. Aram is usually equated with Aram-Damascus, the capital of modern Syria, located about sixty miles east of the East Mediterranean. Especially prominent from the tenth to the eighth century B.C., Damascus was an ancient and prosperous city, well located on the major trade routes.

The Hittites, an Indo-European people, established their kingdom during the second millennium B.C. in the central Anatolia plain. The Old Testament contains several references to the Hittites.

II. HISTORY

9. Nature of Biblical History

The Bible is not a textbook of ancient history. The biblical authors intended to tell the story of Israel, not to present a history of Israel in the modern sense. Writing from a theological perspective, these authors provided a religious interpretation of God's role in the events that shaped their destiny.

The historicity of the Pentateuch (see pp. xxxv–xxxvi OT) is a troublesome question. The literary tradition behind the patriarchal narratives and the other events related in the early books of the Bible is a complex subject. This is not to disparage the biblical accounts; it is rather to understand the nature of the biblical record. The Bible is not an eyewitness account of the early events of Israel's history. The sources for these events were compiled at a much later date than the events they describe. During generations of oral circulation the stories underwent considerable development. It is the function of scholars to reconstruct the history from available archaeological and literary evidence.

Old Testament history begins with Abraham, yet the period in which the patriarchs lived cannot be dated with certainty. Even the exodus from Egypt, the central event in Old Testament history, is surrounded with several difficulties of detail. The earliest reference to Israel appears on the Merneptah stele, dating from about 1207 B.C. This, then, marks the beginning of the actual history of Israel, so far as non-biblical sources are concerned.

10. The Patriarchal Period

A long period of oral transmission lies behind the episodes of the patriarchal period as related in Genesis. Conjecturally, this period may be dated to the first third of the second millennium (2000–1700 B.C.), inasmuch as the culture and customs reflected in the biblical story appear to match that epoch in ancient Near Eastern history.

Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, and Joseph stand at the center of the patriarchal narratives in Genesis. Despite the traditional term "patriarch," the spouses of the patriarchs also play a role in the Genesis narratives. The inclusive term "ancestors" then is more accurate than "patriarchs." The central theme of Genesis is God's promise to Abraham (Gen 12.3), meaning that God chose one people (Israel) through whom all others would be affected. Abraham and his wife Sarah migrated from Haran (in Turkey) to Canaan so as to fulfill the divine plan.

11. Exodus, Election, Covenant

These three events are the heart of the Old Testament; they are also the subject of the book of Exodus, which elaborates the meaning of these events in the life of Israel. Many details surrounding the exodus event are lacking, and consequently are disputed; for example the following: the name of the pharaoh of the exodus, the route of the exodus, the precise location of Sinai, and the origin of the personal name of Israel's God.

The Hebrews were slaves in Egypt, but they escaped under the leadership of Moses, who is the central figure in Israel's history from Exodus to Deuteronomy. Legendary elements surround the biblical account of Moses, but few would question his influence upon Israelite traditions.

12. The Israelite Settlement

According to the biblical account, the Israelites crossed into Canaan (Palestine) from Transjordan. The results of excavation and survey point to Iron Age I (1200–900 B.C.) as the period of the Israelite settlement in Canaan. The books of Joshua and Judges are the principal biblical sources for the settlement, although they furnish somewhat contradictory accounts. Describing the conquest very much as if it were a blitzkrieg, the book of Joshua gives the impression that the conquest was relatively rapid and definitive. On the contrary, other sources show that the Israelite settlement was a lengthy and complicated process. The book of Joshua, reflecting a variety of sources, was compiled and composed much later than the events described. With respect to at least three sites—Ai, Jericho, and Gibeon—archaeological evidence does not bear out the book of Joshua's account of a decisive assault. These cities appear to have been unoccupied at the time of the conquest (settlement). As Judges relates, the infiltration of Israelites into Canaan was gradual; it was brought to completion only with David and Solomon.

Israel's emergence in Canaan has been the object of intense archaeological investigation in recent times. Much more is known about settlement patterns in Canaan as a result of recent excavations and extensive site-surveys. Although consensus among scholars is still lacking, three models of settlement have been proposed: a decisive military assault (the traditional theory), a social movement from within (peasant revolt theory), and a process of peaceful infiltration. The most plausible explanation may be the last, as elaborated by the archaeologist I. Finkelstein on the basis of excavation and survey: namely, that Israel developed from pastoralist elements already residing in Canaan who settled in the hill country sometime around 1200 B.C.

The beginning of the Iron Age dates from 1200 B.C. when changes began to appear in architecture, weapons, and agriculture. This coincided with the period of the judges (Hebrew: shophetim; from about 1200 to 1050 B.C.). The judges were charismatic military leaders who delivered Israel from crises caused by the onslaughts of neighboring peoples, including the Philistines. Without a strong central government, the tribes were only loosely confederated. Such a situation led inevitably to anarchy, as the book of Judges attests: "In those days there was no king in Israel; all the people did what was right in their own eyes" (Judg 21.25).

The book of Judges, encompassing the period between Joshua and Samuel, is a valuable historical source for this barbarous period, even though Judges is a religious rather than an historical document. It is not easy to distinguish Canaanite and Israelite religious practices during this chaotic period when the neighboring peoples probably shared a common material culture.

13. The United Monarchy

With respect to the historicity of the Israelite monarchy from about 1020 B.C. onward, scholars are on firmer ground. Starting in this period, the biblical record and the archaeological evidence can be correlated with more assurance. Extrabiblical sources, including increased epigraphic remains, are available to clarify the biblical narrative.

Confronted with the anarchy of the period of judges, Israel had to take steps to establish a strong central rule if it was to survive the Philistine threat. The dominant figure at that time in Israel's history was Samuel. The two books of Samuel are a valuable historical resource, even though their narratives are more composite than continuous, and discrepancies appear in the accounts. The people (though not all) demanded that they be "like other nations" (1 Sam 8.20), that is, that they establish kingship, a new type of leadership. But kingship occasioned a serious theological crisis. Would it not compromise the positioin of the LORD, who was the sole king of Israel? The practical consideration of survival outweighed theology, and so the monarchy was established at a critical period in Israelite history. Kingship in Israel had to be different from that of Mesopotamia and Egypt, however, where the king was considered divine.

Saul became Israel's first king about 1020 B.C., and his major challenge was to contain the Philistines who were threatening Israel's existence. Little is known about the Philistines because documentary evidence is lacking; Philistine written texts are practically unknown to scholars. The Philistines, one of the Sea Peoples, had migrated from the Aegean area and settled in southern Palestine after 1150 B.C., following their defeat at the hands of the Egyptians under Rameses III. Conflict between Israel and Philistia persisted until David's defeat of the Philistines, though it continued less intensely until the time of Hezekiah in the latter part of the eighth century B.C.

Saul's story dominates 1 Samuel (chs 13–31). More a warrior than a king, he had some military successes, but ultimately was unable to prevail over the Philistines, who drove him to suicide on Mount Gilboa. Saul was basically a good person, who was thrust into a role for which he was unprepared. Saul's life, especially his ultimate defeat by the Philistines, is full of pathos.

Saul and his successor David (1000–961 B.C.) are a study in contrasts. Saul was no match for David, with whom he had an ambivalent relationship. Saul, jealous of David, even tried to kill him. David's story is told principally in 2 Samuel, especially in the Succession Narrative (2 Sam chs 9--20; 1 Kings chs 1–2). This court history of David addresses the question of his successor to the throne. The disarming candor of the narrative, including the court intrigues, allows the reader to see the human side of David, who was one of Israel's greatest heroes.

As military leader and statesman, David united both Judah and Israel into one kingdom, and was victorious over the Philistines. He also expanded his empire to encompass territory from Eziongeber to Homs (in modern Syria), and from the Mediterranean to the Euphrates. For seven years David ruled over Judah from Hebron. After capturing Jerusalem from the Jebusites, David showed his diplomatic genius by establishing it as the capital of the kingdom. Jerusalem was ideally located for this purpose—on neutral territory and thereby acceptable to both the Northern Kingdom of Israel and the Southern Kingdom of Judah. From that time on, Jerusalem (specifically, the lower eastern ridge) was known as the City of David (Zion). By transferring the Ark of the Covenant to Jerusalem David made his city the religious center of the kingdom, in addition to its being the political capital. David ruled over the United Kingdom of Israel for thirty-three years.

David had planned to build the temple in Jerusalem, but was dissuaded by the prophet Nathan. David's son and successor, Solomon, built the temple and the other royal buildings just north of the original City of David. Nathan is best known for the dynastic oracle (2 Sam ch 7; see also Ps 89), describing the promissory covenant between the God of Israel and the Davidic dynasty.

The contents of 1 and 2 Kings, which are theological narratives, deal with Solomon and his achievements (1 Kings chs 1–11), the kingdoms of Israel and Judah (1 Kings ch 12 to 2 Kings ch 17), and the lone-surviving kingdom of Judah (2 Kings chs 18–25). The kings are judged on the basis of the Deuteronomic principle of purity of the Yahwist cult in Jerusalem. These narratives are ambivalent toward Solomon, a political rather than a military leader. He is praised for consolidating the kingdom by the establishment of administrative districts. Solomon also interjected himself onto the international scene by trade and commerce. He is also distinguished for his elaborate building projects, especially the splendid Jerusalem temple and adjacent palace complex. Solomon is also justly famous for the "Solomonic gates" built to fortify Hazor, Megiddo, and Gezer (1 Kings 9.15).

To finance his lavish building program, Solomon imposed heavy taxes and had recourse to forced labor, thereby alienating his subjects, especially those of the Northern Kingdom. At the same time, he fostered syncretism by introducing foreign religious practices. The United Kingdom of Israel was at the pinnacle of its wealth and power during Solomon's reign, but it was short-lived. The kingdom, united for seventy years, fell apart at Solomon's death in 922 B.C.

14. The Divided Kingdom

Egypt was in constant conflict with both the Northern and Southern Kingdoms; at the same time, internecine warfare persisted until the Northern Kingdom fell in 722/721 B.C. The Northern Kingdom (Israel) was larger and stronger than the Southern Kingdom (Judah), but the latter enjoyed more stability. Rehoboam (922–915 B.C.), Solomon's successor, could have deterred Israel from seceding, but his arrogance prevented him from conciliating the Northern Kingdom. Jeroboam I (922–901 B.C.), the first king of the North, set up royal sanctuaries at Dan (in the north) and Bethel (in the south) to discourage his subjects from worshipping at Jerusalem. He adorned these royal temples with golden bulls, probably to serve as pedestals upon which the invisible Yahweh was enthroned. Jeroboam's purpose probably was not idolatrous; nevertheless, he incurred the condemnation of the Jerusalem-based Deuteronomic historian (1 Kings ch 12). He established his first capital at Shechem, subsequently transferring it to Tirzah.

The next memorable ruler of the Northern Kingdom was Omri (876–869 B.C.), sometimes referred to as "David of the North"; he established a prestigious dynasty, and also expanded the kingdom. He set up his new capital at the strategic site of Samaria, which had been previously occupied by the Shomron family. Omri achieved stability for Israel through collaboration with Judah and a marriage alliance with Phoenicia. He arranged a political marriage between Jezebel, daughter of Ethbaal of Tyre, and his son Ahab (869–850 B.C.). The triple alliance of Israel, Judah, and Phoenicia was intended to hold Aram-Damascus in check. Israel's prosperity achieved under Omri continued through Ahab's reign.

Ahab was a great builder, as attested by the magnificent buildings at Samaria. Much of his reign was absorbed with successful wars against Aram-Damascus. Then in 853 B.C. Israel and Aram joined forces against Assyria at Qarqar on the Orontes. Ahab is reputed to have put two thousand chariots and ten thousand foot soldiers in battle against the armies of Shalmaneser III of Assyria. Ahab was killed subsequently in a campaign against the Arameans at Ramoth-gilead (in modern Jordan, though its location is disputed).

The biblical story focuses on the hostile encounter of Ahab and Jezebel with the prophet Elijah. Jezebel was as zealous for her Phoenician god Baal as Elijah ("Yahweh is my God") was for the God of Israel. But Elijah, an eerie, solitary figure, would tolerate no rival to Yahweh. By defeating the Baal prophets in a dramatic contest on Mount Carmel, Elijah proved that "the LORD indeed is God" (1 Kings 18.39).

During this period the Kingdom of Judah, overshadowed by the Northern Kingdom, was little more than a vassal state of Israel, partly due to its geographical isolation. King Jehoshaphat of Judah reigned twenty-five years (873–849 B.C.). Jehoram (Joram; 849–843 B.C.), his son and successor, maintained a close alliance with Israel during his reign. Ahaziah, the son of Jehoram and Athaliah, was king of Judah in 842 B.C. Athaliah (842–837 B.C.), the daughter of Ahab and Jezebel, usurped the throne and ruled in Judah upon the death of Ahaziah. She met her inglorious end by murder. Jehoash (Joash; 837–800 B.C.), the youngest son of Ahaziah, having escaped Athaliah's purge of the royal family, acceded to the Davidic throne.

15. Dynasty of Jehu (842–746 B.C.)

Jehu (842–815 B.C.), son of Jehoshaphat, established a dynasty that ruled Israel more than ninety years. Having usurped the throne, Jehu conducted a bloody crusade against the worship of Baal, resulting in the massacre of the whole house of Ahab, including the queen mother Jezebel. He put an end to the worship of the Tyrian Baal, destroying the Baal temple in Samaria. The prophet Elisha, among others, supported Jehu's rebellion. Jehu became a vassal to the Assyrian king Shalmaneser III (858–824 B.C.), paying tribute to win Assyrian favor against the Arameans, but he was not entirely successful. The Arameans continued to menace Israel for another half century. Jehu's submission to Shalmaneser III is memorialized on the famous Black Obelisk (discovered in Nimrud, and now in the British Museum). Jehoash (Joash; 802–786 B.C.) of Israel destroyed portions of the Jerusalem wall, and raided the palace treasures as well.

The greatest king of the Jehu dynasty was Jeroboam II (786–746 B.C.), who ruled when the Northern Kingdom was at the height of prosperity. Through territorial expansion Jeroboam II came close to restoring the boundaries of the Davidic empire. Many eighth-century Israelites acquired their wealth through exploitation and oppression of the poor. The prophets Amos and Hosea inveighed uncompromisingly against rampant social injustice, moral turpitude, and religious abuses. Amos aimed his attack against "the winter house as well as the summer house" and "the houses of ivory" (Am 3.15) of the affluent. Hosea indicted the Israelites for their practice of gross rites associated with fertility cults. The conduct of eighth-century Israel was a total contradiction of the covenant ideal.

In the same era Judah also was enjoying prosperity and stability under King Uzziah (Azariah; 783–742 B.C.), partly because Israel and Judah were at peace with each other. Internationally it was an ideal time for the Northern and Southern Kingdoms because Aram (Syria) and Assyria, absorbed in their own internal problems, were not serious threats. Uzziah fortified Jerusalem and strengthened the city walls. He also expanded the territory of Judah to the west, north, and east. His career was cut short when leprosy forced him to relinquish the throne to Jotham, who acted as regent. In 742 B.C., the year Uzziah died, Isaiah was called to be a prophet (Isa 6.1).

The international picture changed for the worse when Tiglath-pileser III (745–727 B.C.), also known as Pul (2 Kings 15.19), became king of Assyria. As founder of the Neo-Assyrian empire, this imperialist was devoted to the conquest of the west, including Syria, Israel, Philistia, Judah, and Transjordan. Forming a coalition against Assyrian advances, King Pekah of Israel and King Rezin of Damascus tried unsuccessfully to force Judah to join. Ahaz (735–715 B.C.), king of Judah at this time, ignored the advice of Isaiah to place absolute trust in Yahweh, and instead appealed to Tiglath-pileser III for help. He paid the price by becoming an Assyrian vassal. The upshot was that Assyria devastated Damascus in 733 B.C., made Galilee and Gilead Assyrian provinces, and reduced Israel to the status of vassal of Assyria.

The Assyrian siege of Samaria under Shalmaneser V began in 724 B.C., and the Northern Kingdom fell to Sargon II in 722/721 B.C. In accordance with Assyrian policy, inhabitants of Samaria were deported, and captives from elsewhere were relocated there. After the fall of Samaria a number of refugees from the Northern Kingdom migrated south and settled in Judah, including Jerusalem. The increase in population of Jerusalem accounts for the expansion of Jerusalem westward at that time. Samaria became an Assyrian province, known as Samarina.

16. The Age of Hezekiah (715–687 B.C.)

Hezekiah, son and successor of the weak Ahaz, was a vigorous leader. Like Ahaz, Hezekiah continued as a vassal of Assyria. Judah, for the most part, enjoyed great prosperity during the reign of Hezekiah. He may be best known for instituting cultic reforms: he abolished local shrines ("high places") and purified the Jerusalem temple, henceforth the exclusive center of worship. Isaiah, prominent during the reign of Hezekiah, exerted some influence on the king.

When Sargon II died in 705 B.C., Hezekiah revolted against Assyrian rule. In anticipation of an Assyrian military response, Hezekiah cut a 1,750-foot tunnel through solid rock to conduct the waters of the exposed Gihon spring to the pool of Siloam within the walls of Jerusalem. In 701 B.C. Sennacherib (704–681 B.C.), the new Assyrian king, invaded Philistia and Judah, suppressing the revolt of the west. He conquered forty-six cities surrounding Jerusalem, including Lachish. The wall reliefs in Sennacherib's palace at Nineveh (now in the British Museum) furnish an unusually vivid pictorial account of his siege and capture of Lachish. Jerusalem was spared when Hezekiah capitulated to Sennacherib by paying a heavy tribute. According to Sennacherib's description of the siege of Jerusalem, he shut up Hezekiah in Jerusalem "like a bird in a cage."

Manasseh (687–642 B.C.), Hezekiah's successor,

undid during his long reign the cultic reforms implemented by his father, and reintroduced idolatrous worship. Judah's vassaldom to Assyria continued through the reign of Manasseh. Assyria attained the zenith of its power during this era.

Like Hezekiah, Josiah (639–609 B.C.) inaugurated a sweeping religious reform, emphasizing the centralization of public worship in Jerusalem and the elimination of idolatory. This religious reform did not prove to be as effective as anticipated. Jeremiah, whose prophetic career extended roughly from 626 to 580 B.C., was disappointed in the reform, perhaps because it had more form than substance.

Josiah, sometimes compared with David, succeeded in expanding the territory of Judah, including, it would seem, much of the former Northern Kingdom of Israel. As the Assyrian empire was beginning to wane as the result of overextension, the Medes and the Babylonians emerged. In 612 B.C. Nineveh, the Assyrian capital, fell to the Babylonians (see Nahum). Josiah died in 609 B.C. at the age of thirty-nine, killed at the Megiddo pass (2 Chron 35.22–24), apparently attempting to prevent Egypt from bolstering the declining Assyrian empire in its struggle with Babylon.

During the last two decades of its history the Kingdom of Judah was caught in a power struggle between imperial Egypt and Babylonia, each striving to fill the power vacuum left by Assyria. The last three kings of Judah—Jehoiakim (609–598 B.C.), Jehoiachin (three months), and Zedekiah (597–587 B.C.)—were undistinguished. During Jehoiakim's reign in 605 B.C. the Babylonian king Nebuchadnezzar defeated the Egyptian pharaoh Neco in battle at Carchemish, placing Judah under the control of Babylonia. This was a turning point in Judah's history. Jehoiakim (see Jer 36) refused to listen to Jeremiah's prediction of the impending Babylonian destruction. In 597 B.C., Nebuchadnezzar besieged Jerusalem and deported Jehoiachin to Babylon, as well as thousands of leading citizens, among them Ezekiel, who became a prophet in Babylon. Nebuchadnezzar then appointed Zedekiah as a puppet in place of the exiled Jehoiachin. Jeremiah was a kind of adviser to Zedekiah, who sought his counsel but seldom followed it. Jeremiah, a realist, urged Zedekiah (Jer 37–38) not to rebel against Babylonia, but instead to capitulate. As a result, Jeremiah was accused of being a traitor. Zedekiah rebelled against the Babylonians, and in 587–586 B.C. Nebuchadnezzar attacked and destroyed Jerusalem and its temple, deporting many of its inhabitants to Babylon. Zedekiah, the last king of Judah, was taken to Babylon, was imprisoned for treason, and died there. At the same time the fortified towns of Judah, including Lachish, were also destroyed.

17. The Babylonian Exile (586–539 B.C.)

After the captives of Judah were deported to Babylon, the Babylonians did not replace them with foreigners. Although the number of deportees is uncertain, the majority did not go into exile. In fact, some cultic practices continued to be observed at the site of the ruined Jerusalem temple (Jer 41.4–6). Meanwhile, the Babylonians and the Edomites (see Ps 137) sacked the land of Judah. Apparently, the Jews in exile prospered; among other considerations they were granted religious freedom.

Before the fall of Jerusalem, Jeremiah and Ezekiel uttered menacing oracles, to lead the people of Judah to repentance; after the fall, these prophets proclaimed oracles of hope: Jeremiah promised a new covenant (Jer 31.31–34), Ezekiel (37.40–48) a new beginning. Using the typology of the first exodus, the prophet Second Isaiah (Isa chs 40–55) also strove to restore the confidence of his people. Assuring them of imminent delivery from captivity, Second Isaiah declared that a new exodus would follow the demise of Babylon. Cyrus of Persia was God's "messiah" who would deliver the Jews (Isa 45.1–3).

In 539 B.C. at the battle of Opis on the Tigris, the Persians under Cyrus defeated the Babylonian army. Cyrus, a tolerant and enlightened leader, issued an edict liberating the Jews from captivity and permitting repatriation, though not all Jews were eager to return to Judah. The economic opportunities were greater in Babylon than in Jerusalem, which was in need of rebuilding. Cyrus also granted a certain amount of autonomy to Judah.

18. The Postexilic Period

The principal source of information for this period is in Ezra and Nehemiah. Cyrus appointed Sheshbazzar governor of the province of Judah, who led the first group of returning exiles back to Judah. Only in 520 B.C. did Zerubbabel, governor of the province of Judah, and Joshua, the high priest, join forces to undertake the rebuilding of the temple. With the prodding of the prophets Haggai and Zechariah, the temple was completed in 515 B.C. The Samaritans from the district of Samaria in the north offered assistance in rebuilding the temple, but Zerubbabel spurned them. Herein lies the root of the animosity, evident in the Gospels, between Jews and Samaritans. Later the Samaritans went on to build their own temple on Mount Gerizim, overlooking Shechem.

About 445 B.C. Nehemiah, who had been appointed governor of Jerusalem, came from Persia to rebuild the walls of Jerusalem. He met with stiff opposition from both outside and within Jerusalem. His opponents, opting for the status quo, may have felt threatened by a walled city. Nonetheless, Nehemiah completed the rebuilding of the walls in fifty-two days. He also repopulated Jeusalem. Instituting social and religious reforms, Nehemiah championed the cause of the poor, regulated tithing, enforced Sabbath observance, and forbade foreign marriages.

The priest Ezra came to Jerusalem from Babylon, perhaps after Nehemiah, as a religious leader in the company of a large number of exiles. He was skilled in the law of Moses. Some scholars describe his position as "secretary for Jewish affairs" (see Ezra 7.6–10). It was Ezra's function to enforce the observance of the Jewish law. Disturbed by the number of mixed marriages, Ezra fostered Jewish endogamy.

19. The Greek Period (333–63 B.C.)

In 334 B.C. Alexander the Great, king of Macedon, undertook the conquest of the Persian empire, including Anatolia, Phoenicia, Palestine, Egypt, and Mesopotamia. Persian rule came to an end in Judea when Alexander captured Jerusalem in 332 B.C.. The direct result of his victorious campaigns was hellenization, the imposition of Greek culture and language on the East. For the Jews, it meant the accommodation of Jewish faith to Greek practice. The Greek translation of the Old Testament (the Septuagint) and the composition of the New Testament in Greek are direct results of the Greek acculturation instituted by Alexander, and fostered by his successors.

After Alexander's death his vast empire was partitioned into four parts; two of these kingdoms competed for control of Palestine: Egypt, ruled by Ptolemy, and Asia (including Syria), ruled by Seleucus, both generals of Alexander. Ptolemy I captured Jerusalem in 320 B.C. With the Ptolemaic dynasty controlling Palestine for about a century, the Jewish community in Palestine underwent little change; it was a peaceful and prosperous period. The Ptolemies, and later the Seleucids, permitted the high priest to continue as both religious and civil head of Judea.

The Seleucids, also patrons of Hellenism, gained control of Palestine in 198 B.C. when Antiochus III (the Great; 223–187 B.C.) defeated the Ptolemies. Antiochus treated the Jews with consideration, providing financial assistance for the rebuilding of Jerusalem, and exempting them from taxes for a three-year period.

Whereas many Jews, especially the economically poor, opposed any form of hellenization, other Jews (Hellenistic Jews), especially those among the upper classes and the temple priesthood, were eager for assimilation. Embracing Greek culture willingly, those Jews became hellenizers. For example, the high priest Jason, who bought the office, transformed Jerusalem into a Hellenistic polis, a Greek city-state. Jason also built a gymnasium in Jerusalem under the patronage of Hermes and Hercules. The gymnasium was more than a coliseum; it became a social center in deliberate competition with the temple.

Antiochus IV (Epiphanes; 175–164 B.C.), who forbade Jewish religious practices, was the infamous Seleucid king against whom the Maccabees revolted. He erected in Jerusalem a citadel for his garrison; known as the Akra, it housed Syrian troops, and was at the same time the symbol of foreign rule. Attempting to destroy Judaism, Antiochus IV descrated the temple by erecting an altar to Zeus. The Maccabean family (the Hasmoneans), including the priest Mattathias and his five sons, revolted in 167 B.C. against Antiochus IV when he mandated Jews to offer pagan sacrifice.

Judas Maccabeus, the third of the five sons, succeeded Mattathias; conducting guerrilla warfare against both opposing Jews and Syrian troops, he led his forces to victory, liberating Jerusalem (except for the Akra fortress) in 164 B.C. This resulted in the purification and rededication of the temple, memorialized in the festival of the Dedication (John 10.22; called Hanukkah today).

Upon the death of Judas in 160 B.C., Jonathan (160–143 B.C.), who usurped the high priesthood in 152 B.C., was chosen leader of the Jewish forces. Another brother, Simon (143–134 B.C.), succeeded Jonathan. He was recognized as high priest, commander, and ethnarch of the Jews. Simon was successful in capturing the Akra, and razing it. From the height of the Akra the Seleucids had been able to spy on the Jews during temple services. (For an account of the general history of the period see 1 and 2 Maccabees.)

20. The Hasmoneans

The Hasmonean dynasty traced its roots to the family of the priest Mattathias. The capital of the dynasty was Jerusalem, center of religious, political, and economic life. Excluding the Maccabees, the Hasmonean dynasty extended from 134 to 63 B.C., and embraced John Hyrcanus I (134–104 B.C.), Aristobulus I (104–103 B.C.), Alexander Jannaeus (103–76 B.C.), Salome Alexandra (76–69 B.C.), and Aristobulus II (69–63 B.C.). The Hasmoneans attained the summit of their power under John Hyrcanus I and his son, Alexander Jannaeus. (In editions of this book that include the Apocryphal/Deuterocanonical Books, see "Chronological Table of Rulers," pp. XIV-XV AP of Apocrypha.)

John Hyrcanus I, Simon's son, succeeded as high priest when his father was murdered; he was an exemplary ruler, often compared with David. John Hyrcanus I extended Jewish rule to Transjordan; he forcibly converted the Idumeans to Judaism, imposing Jewish ritual observances on them; he destroyed the Samaritan temple on Mount Gerizim. During this period, or shortly before, two rival parties or "sects"—the Pharisees and the Sadducees—emerged in the Jewish community. The Pharisees took issue with Hyrcanus' secular attitude; in turn, he supported the Sadducees.

The Pharisees (the name may mean "separated ones") were principally a lay group. Advocating a strict interpretation of Torah ("law" or, better, "teaching") the Pharisees accepted both the written Torah (in the Pentateuch) and the oral Torah (accumulated interpretations of the Torah). Included among their beliefs were the resurrection, the coming of a Messiah, and angels. They emphasized ritual purity, tithing, and Sabbath observance. The description of the Pharisees in the Gospels is somewhat tendentious, reflecting an early Christian polemic. Matthew ch 23, for example, is a litany of angry fulminations against (some of) the Pharisees.

The conservative Sadducees were opponents of the Pharisees. The name "Sadducees" may be derived from the priestly Zadokite family of David's time. Although it is difficult to get a coherent picture of the Sadducees, their membership appears to be priestly (not all priests were Sadducees) and aristocratic. The Sadducees supported the Hasmonean priest-kings; they were also influenced by Greek culture. Unlike the Pharisees, the Sadducees did not believe in the immortality of the soul, the general resurrection, or angels. The Sadducees disappeared after the fall of Jerusalem in A.D. 70.

Hyrcanus' son, Aristobulus, appropriated the title of king, and his successors followed suit. The fact that he assumed a Greek name (Aristobulus, "excellent counselor") is an indication of Hellenistic influence.

During the long reign of Alexander Jannaeus, the Hasmoneans achieved considerable territorial expansion, approximating the boundaries of the ancient Davidic kingdom. A deep animosity developed between Alexander and the Pharisees, some of whom were put to death. Alexander's widow, Salome Alexandra, succeeded to the throne, and appointed her son, Hyrcanus II, as high priest. Unlike her husband, she favored the Pharisees, who were powerful in this period. At the death of Salome Alexandra, her two sons, Hyrcanus II and Aristobulus II, engaged in bitter rivalry. Aristobulus became king and high priest.

Ultimately, Pompey intervened with his Roman legions, capturing Jerusalem in 63 B.C.; he attacked the temple mount, entered the holy of holies, and destroyed the walls of the city. Aristobulus II was imprisoned in Rome, while Hyrcanus II ruled in Jerusalem as high priest, but not as king. Judea became part of the province of Syria. From 63 B.C. until the advent of Herod the Great in 37 B.C., the Hasmoneans ruled under the protection of Rome; in 37 B.C. the Herodians replaced the Hasmonean dynasty. It had been a period of great political intrigue.

21. The Herodian Period (63–4 B.C.)

Antipater II, the father of Herod the Great and Phasael, was a friend of Hyrcanus II. Because of their military support of Julius Caesar, both Hyrcanus II and Antipater were rewarded. Antipater was appointed procurator of Judea in 47 B.C., Herod was named governor of Galilee, and Phasael governor of Jerusalem. In 40 B.C. Herod was appointed king of the Jews by the Roman senate; in 37 B.C. he conquered the kingdom of Judea.

Herod the Great (37–4 B.C.) was king of the Jews for thirty-three years, ruling over Judea, Idumea, Perea, Galilee, and Jaffa. Though technically a Jew (as a native of Idumea), Herod was more Hellenist than Jewish; in fact, the Jews hated him. Herod was enamored of Greek culture. He was able to survive so long amidst intrigue and conspiracy because of his total loyalty to Rome, his ruthless repression of those who opposed him, and his unprincipled political maneuvering, not to mention his boundless ambition.

Herod's long reign marked an era of economic prosperity, when the Upper City of Jerusalem attained the zenith of its development; at the same time, the poor were living in the Lower City. As evidence of affluence, archaeologists have uncovered the remains of luxurious houses, adorned with mosaic flooring, frescoes, and painted plaster. Herod may be remembered best for his grandiose building activities. The designation "Herodian" is synonymous with military architecture and massive masonry throughout Palestine. Herod's best-known building project was the Jerusalem temple, rebuilt to ingratiate himself with the Jews. Begun in 20 B.C. and dedicated ten years later, the temple was not actually completed until A.D. 63. To accommodate the newly enlarged temple, Herod doubled the size of the temple platform by filling in the surrounding valleys. Retaining walls, still standing, were built to support the temple esplanade. The most famous of these walls is called the kotel or "western wall," regarded as one of the holiest places in Judaism.

In the northwest corner of the Upper City of Jerusalem, near the present Jaffa Gate, Herod built a splendid, fortified palace, but nothing remains of its superstructure. At the north side of the palace stood three towers, named in memory of Phasael (Herod's brother), Hippicus (an unknown friend), and Miriamme (Herod's Hasmonean wife).

Herod also rebuilt the Baris (a Hasmonean fortress), situated at the northwest corner of the temple enclosure. He enlarged it with towers, naming it Antonia after his patron Mark Antony. This huge fortress served to protect the temple mount.

Herod also constructed fortress-palaces throughout the realm, notably the Alexandrium, north of Jericho; the Machaerus on the east shore of the Dead Sea, where, according to Josephus, Herod Antipas put John the Baptist to death; Masada on the western cliffs of the Dead Sea, first fortified by Alexander Jannaeus, where, according to Josephus, resisting Jewish Zealots committed suicide in A.D. 74 rather than be taken captive by the Romans; and the Herodion, southeast of Bethlehem, where Herod is supposedly buried, although no tomb has been unearthed. Herod magnificently rebuilt Caesarea, the seaport on the eastern coast of the Mediterranean, renaming it Caesarea Maritima in honor of Octavian (Caesar Augustus). Herod also constructed a splendid new city at Samaria, renaming it Sebaste (Greek-Latin "Augustus") in honor of Caesar Augustus.

22. The New Testament Period (4 B.C.–A.D. 30)

According to the New Testament, Jesus was born when Herod the Great was king and Caesar Augustus was Roman emperor; the year was probably 6 B.C. At the death of Herod in 4 B.C., Augustus divided the kingdom among Herod's three sons. Archelaus (4 B.C.–A.D. 6) became ethnarch of Judea, Idumea, and Samaria. When he was removed for brutality, his territory became a Roman province ruled by a procurator. Herod Antipas (4 B.C.–A.D. 39), the most frequently mentioned Herod in the New Testament (and always designated as Herod), was tetrarch of Galilee and Perea. He established his capital at Tiberias on the western shore of the Sea of Galilee. John the Baptist reproached Herod Antipas for his marriage to Herodias, the mother of Salome, because Antipas was Herodias' half-uncle. At the instigation of the vindictive Herodias, Herod Antipas ordered the execution of John (Mk 6.17–29). He also had a part in the condemnation of Jesus.

Philip (4 B.C.–A.D. 34), was tetrarch of Batanea, Trachonitis, and Auranitis, place-names used in the Hellenistic period for the region of Bashan. Philip, a reputable ruler, rebuilt the old Greek city of Paneas (modern Baniyas) in the extreme north of Palestine, renaming it Caesarea Philippi, after the emperor and himself. This city is associated with Peter's confession (Mt 16.16). At Philip's death (A.D. 34) his region became part of the Roman province of Syria.

After the demise of Herod the Great, Jerusalem became a province of the Roman empire, ruled by Roman procurators residing in Caesarea. Pontius Pilate (A.D. 26–36) is the best-known of the Roman procurators of Judea. The preaching of John the Baptist and the ministry of Jesus took place during his governorship. Jewish sources underscore his cruel and insensitive nature. Lacking in respect for Jewish customs, he countered nonviolent protests with bloody responses. Despite his central role in the condemnation of Jesus, Pilate, according to the Gospels, thought Jesus innocent and tried to free him.

The four Gospels, the source for the life and especially the teachings of Jesus, are not intended as a biography in the modern sense (see pp. v–vi NT). On the basis of historical reconstruction, Jesus began his public ministry around A.D. 26, frequenting the Lower Galilee region (the territory of Herod Antipas). Three or four years later, Jesus moved south to Jerusalem to preach there. His public life is reckoned as extending two to three years. About A.D. 30 Roman soldiers put Jesus to death by crucifixion outside the walls of Jerusalem. According to the New Testament, Jesus rose from the dead and appeared to his followers.

23. The Post-Resurrection Period (A.D. 30–135)

After Pentecost, the gospel was preached abroad, first to the Jews and then to the Gentiles; shortly thereafter, perhaps in A.D. 36, persecution followed. Paul the apostle was born a Hellenistic Jew at Tarsus of Cilicia (in Asia Minor) in the early first century A.D. After persecuting the nascent church, he converted to Christianity and made three famous missionary journeys, described in Acts. Thirteen New Testament letters are attributed to Paul.

Herod Agrippa I (A.D. 41–44), friend of Emperor Caligula and grandson of Herod the Great, was given the title of king and eventually ruled the former kingdom of Herod the Great. He persecuted the Christians and, according to Acts 12, executed James, the son of Zebedee, and also imprisoned Peter. Herod Agrippa's name is associated with the foundations of the "third wall," the northernmost wall of Jerusalem completed as late as the first Jewish revolt (A.D. 66–70). The three northern walls of Jerusalem are known from the writings of the Jewish historian Josephus. Because the archaeological evidence is ambiguous, the alignment of the "third wall" remains a problem.

Herod Agrippa II (called Agrippa in the New Testament), son of Herod Agrippa I, governed (from A.D. 53) the former tetrarchy of Philip, as well as parts of Galilee and Perea. He apparently had an incestuous relationship with his sister Bernice. Paul as a prisoner addressed Agrippa and Bernice at Caesarea (Acts 26.2–29). Agrippa observed Jewish laws and customs; at the beginning of the Jewish revolt in A.D. 66, however, he sided with Rome against the Jews.

24. The Jewish Revolts (A.D. 66–135)

The first revolt broke out in A.D. 66. At that time the Christian community abandoned Jerusalem and fled to Pella in Transjordan. The Jews had some success until the emperor Nero dispatched Vespasian as field commander. He moved against Jerusalem in A.D. 69; meanwhile having been acclaimed emperor, he returned to Rome before the actual siege of Jerusalem. His son Titus led the attack on Jerusalem from the north side, always the most vulnerable, and built a siege wall around the city. First, he razed the fortress Antonia, and then destroyed the temple by fire. In A.D. 70, after a siege lasting from April to September, Jerusalem was captured, and its walls destroyed.

The emperor Hadrian visited Jerusalem in A.D. 129–130; he rebuilt the city as a Roman military camp, renaming it Aelia Capitolina. He also erected a temple honoring Jupiter Capitolinus on the temple mount. The rebuilding and renaming of Jerusalem most likely sparked the second Jewish revolt. Simon ben Kosibah (Bar Cochba) led this revolt against Rome between A.D. 132 and 135. Sextus Julius Severus crushed the revolt only after the Jews had reoccupied Jerusalem. A decree of Hadrian forbade Jews henceforth to live in Jerusalem, or even to visit the city.

III. ARCHAEOLOGY

25. Archaeology and the Bible

Archaeology may be defined as the scientific study of the material remains of past human life and activities. The interrelationship of the Bible and archaeology is reflected in the title "biblical archaeology." It is the function of biblical archaeology to correlate archaeological evidence with the biblical record for the purpose of illuminating the biblical text. Although other archaeologists had preceded W. Flinders Petrie, he conducted the first systematic excavation in Palestine in 1890. Excavating at Tell el-Hesi on the northern edge of the Negeb, he laid the foundations for the scientific dating of sites in Palestine. Since that time, significant progress has been made in Near Eastern archaeology, and especially since 1960 with new developments in the method of excavation, as well as in the processing and interpreting of data.

For convenience, archaeologists refer to periods of time (called "ages") that are named from the material culture that was prevalent during them. This is determined by the artifacts that are found in excavations for the time periods. The periods discussed below are the following:

|---|---|
| Early Bronze Age | 3000–2100 B.C. |
| Middle Bronze Age | 2100–1550 B.C. |
| Late Bronze Age | 1550–1200 B.C. |
| Iron Age I | 1200–900 B.C. |
| Iron Age II | 900–600 B.C. |
| Iron Age III | 600–300 B.C. |

Iron Age III is also called the Persian period. After that era, the ages are named for the dominant political or cultural power. See the discussion below.

The archaeological periods in Palestine date as early as Paleolithic (Old Stone Age), but in biblical studies it is sufficient to begin with the Middle Bronze Age (2100–1550 B.C.). This was a period of power and prosperity in Palestine, characterized by imposing city walls, a simplified alphabet, and international trade. The biblical ancestors (patriarchs) are often associated with the Middle Bronze Age (or the Late Bronze Age), though the chronology of the Genesis narratives is not easy to determine. The Hyksos, the Asiatics who ruled in Egypt as the fifteenth and sixteenth dynasties (ca. 1667–1559 B.C.), belong to the Middle Bronze period. Excavation of Hyksos sites in Egypt, Mari documents from Syria, and Nuzi tablets from northwest Iraq are shedding light on the cultures surrounding the biblical peoples. Excavations at Ras-Shamra, the ancient city-state of Ugarit in northern Syria, have uncovered five major phases of occupation beginning in the seventh and sixth millennia. This site has illuminated the Early Bronze (3000–2100 B.C.) and Middle Bronze (2100–1550 B.C.) Ages, and especially the Late Bronze Age (below).

Hazor (Josh 11.10), located nine miles north of the Sea of Galilee, was the largest city in Palestine during the Middle Bronze period. At Dan on the northern border of Israel a huge mud-brick gateway, including a set of towers and an arch, has been unearthed intact. At Megiddo the earliest excavated city gate dates from the Middle Bronze Age. Taanach, Tirzah, and Shechem were important urban centers in this period. Gezer, with its massive fortifications and a "high place," reached its peak as a Canaanite city in Middle Bronze. In this period Lachish was a Hyksos settlement, protected by a glacis (a defensible slope) and a moat.

The Late Bronze Age (1550–1200 B.C.) was the era of Egyptian domination in Palestine. The archives at Amarna in Egypt, the capital of Pharaoh Amenhoptep IV (Akhenaton), have yielded correspondence from Canaanite kings to the Egyptian court describing conditions in Palestine. The Late Bronze period marked the golden age of Ugarit. The cuneiform (wedge-shaped writing) texts unearthed at Ugarit have been invaluable in clarifying the biblical text. The language of these cuneiform texts, called Ugaritic, bears a close resemblance to biblical Hebrew.

Despite scholarly disputes about details of the exodus, the event itself is usually dated in the Late Bronze period. Some date the Israelite settlement in Canaan to the Late Bronze Age, though that event too is fraught with historical problems. Excavations at Israelite villages of the Early Iron Age, including Ai and Radanna, are casting some light on the manner of Israelite settlement. At the farming villages in the central hill-country archaeologists have uncovered the remains of small, rectangular pillared houses, as well as agricultural terraces. From the material elements found at Iron Age I sites it is obvious that their occupants were not nomads recently arrived from the desert.

26. Iron Age I (1200–900 B.C.)

The Iron Age is also known as the Israelite period. The introduction of iron metallurgy was one of the factors in the transition from the Bronze to the Iron Age. In the first half of the twelfth century B.C. the Philistines and other Sea Peoples settled in the East Mediterranean basin. The center of Philistine power was located along the southern coastal plain of Palestine (Ashdod, Ashkelon, Gaza, Gath, and Ekron), but not exclusively. It also extended north to Dor, and east to Beth-shan and Tell Deir Alla (Succoth?). Philistine pottery with its elaborate decoration testifies to the high level of culture achieved by the Philistines, despite the later pejorative connotation of their name. This pottery is painted in black and red on a white-slipped background.

Excavations at Ekron (Tel Miqne) and Ashkelon in the 1980s and 1990s add significantly to the history of the Philistines. Ekron, continuing as a Philistine city until the end of the seventh century B.C., is one of the largest Iron Age sites in modern Israel. In the seventh century B.C. Ekron was among the principal centers for production of olive oil in the ancient Near East. In 603 B.C. the Neo-Babylonians destroyed Ekron.

Ashkelon was one of the most important seaports in the East Mediterranean. Occupation at the site extended from about 2000 B.C. to A.D. 1500. The stele of Pharaoh Merneptah (ca. 1213–1204 B.C.) records the Egyptian conquest of Ashkelon. Indicative of the importance of this port city, Assyria, Egypt, and Neo-Babylonia successively conquered Ashkelon in the eighth and seventh centuries B.C.

Three superimposed Philistine temples, the earliest dating from the twelfth century B.C., have come to light at Tel Qasile, a prime Philistine site on the Yarkon river (within the modern city of Tel Aviv). Tel Batash, biblical Timnah, in the Sorek Valley, reveals continuous occupation from the Middle Bronze Age to the Persian period. This city played a prominent role in the Samson story. Philistine artifacts at Timnah indicate that the city prospered in Iron Age I.

Jerusalem may be the most excavated city in the world. Early excavations in Jerusalem took place from 1867, principally under British auspices. Between 1961 and 1967 Kenyon excavated stratigraphically in the City of David (Ophel hill). After 1967 Israeli archaeologists (principally, Mazar adjacent to the Temple Mount, Avigad in the Jewish Quarter, and Shiloh at the City of David) excavated Jerusalem intensively. The City of David, constituting only a small portion of modern Jerusalem, is located on the steep slope of the Old City's southeast spur. Kenyon discovered on the eastern ridge the Jebusite wall and adjacent tower (dating to 1800 B.C.) surrounding pre-Israelite Jerusalem. Continuing Kenyon's excavations, Shiloh uncovered twenty-five occupational strata, extending from the Chalcolithic period (4500–3200 B.C.) to medieval times. He also investigated Jerusalem's complex hydraulic system, including Hezekiah's 1,750-foot tunnel running under the city, the Siloam channel, and "Warren's shaft," a vertical shaft and connecting tunnels (named for Charles Warren, who discovered it in 1867). These three watercourses originated from the Gihon spring, Jerusalem's chief source of fresh water. Earlier archaeologists, dating "Warren's shaft" to the pre-Davidic Jebusite period, assumed that David's soldiers captured Jerusalem by entering the city through "Warren's shaft" (2 Sam 5). Shiloh, however, found no evidence for dating the shaft system before the Israelite occupation (in the tenth to ninth centuries B.C.).

Architectural remains from time of Solomon have also been uncovered in Palestine. Typical are the Solomonic casemate walls (a double line of fortification walls partitioned into compartments by cross walls), the impressive city gates with four entryways at Megiddo, Hazor, and Gezer (1 Kings 9.15), and the header-stretcher masonry (referring to the configuration of stones within a fortification wall). The tenth and ninth centuries B.C. were notable for hydraulic technology at several ancient cities; in addition to Jerusalem, archaeologists have uncovered water tunnels at Megiddo, Hazor, Gezer, and Gibeon. It was imperative to protect the water supply, especially during times of siege, by channeling it within the city walls.

Solomon undertook with Phoenician help the construction of the Jerusalem temple in the fourth year of his reign (ca. 960 B.C.), a project that took seven years. No remains of this temple have been unearthed; nevertheless a paper reconstruction is possible on the basis of the brief biblical description (1 Kings 6) and from comparison with extant temples in neighboring lands, especially the eighth-century B.C. temple at Tell Tainat in the Amuq valley (Syria). This temple and the Solomonic were long-room temples (the entrance on the short side, and the shrine at the opposite end), with a tripartite architectural design consisting of the vestibule, the holy place (nave), and the holy of holies. The Jerusalem temple was relatively modest in size: about 105 feet long, 35 feet wide, and 52 feet high.

The temple and royal palace together constituted the administrative center of the Israelite kingdom. The temple, principally a religious center, also played a major role in the economic and political life of the kingdom.

The Gezer calendar, found at Tel Gezer in 1908, is the oldest inscription thus far found that relates to the Bible. This small limestone plaque, written in Hebrew in the late tenth century B.C., provides information about the agricultural cycle in Palestine.

27. Iron Age II (900–600 B.C.)

This archaeological period is approximately coterminous with the divided kingdoms of Judah and Israel (922–586 B.C.). When the Northern Kingdom of Israel seceded under Jeroboam I, it had no permanent capital until Omri (876–869 B.C.) became king. He established the capital at Samaria (Shomron), and built an elaborate city virtually anew. This strategically located site, 300 feet above the surrounding area, has been excavated extensively. Samaria is a difficult site to interpret archaeologically because it has been destroyed and rebuilt several times, with the reuse of stone in the successive rebuilding of the city. After Omri and his son Ahab, the kings Jehu and Jeroboam II continued with the architectural development of the city.

Among the valuable artifacts from Samaria are ivory, pottery, and ostraca. More than five hundred fragments of ivory inlays, signs of the city's wealth, have been unearthed in the area of the royal quarter. Among ceramics of the ancient Near East, "Samaria ware" is highly prized; such vessels from Samaria are finely burnished with red slip (veneer). More than sixty ostraca (potsherds preserving writing in ink) were also uncovered. Dating from the reign of Jeroboam II in the eighth century B.C., these ostraca may have been tax receipts for the shipment of wine and oil, indicating Samaria's activity in commerce and trade. After the conquest of Samaria in 722/721 B.C., the Assyrians rebuilt the city as the headquarters of the whole administrative district.

The Siloam monumental inscription, the most important Hebrew inscription ever recovered, was found in 1880 carved on the east wall of Hezekiah's tunnel; it describes how two teams digging from opposite directions built the tunnel. Hezekiah, though unmentioned in the inscription, constructed this underground channel in Jerusalem in preparation for Sennacherib's siege in 701 B.C. (2 Chr 32.2–4, 30).

Another important discovery was a hoard in excess of two hundred ostraca at Arad; more than half are in Hebrew and dated to the monarchy; the remainder are in Aramaic from about 400 B.C.

At Ramat Rahel (Beth-haccherem?), situated south of Bethlehem, archaeologists excavated a royal citadel (ninth or eighth century B.C.) and a palace of one of the last kings of Judah, possibly Manasseh (687–642 B.C.). Khirbet Rabud, a large tell southwest of Hebron, is probably the site of the Levitical city of Debir, once thought to be identified with Tell Beit Mirsim. Debir was destroyed by Sennacherib, and rebuilt later. At Tel Goren in the En-gedi region, an oasis on the west shore of the Dead Sea, Israeli archaeologists unearthed an industrial installation dating to the reign of Josiah in the mid-seventh century B.C.

At the City of David (Jerusalem) archaeologists have found over fifty well-preserved clay bullae, used to seal papyri. These bullae, dating from the late seventh to the early sixth century B.C., may be from the royal archive of Jeremiah's time. Several of the names on the bullae are also found in Jer 36.

Beer-sheba, small in size, was the principal city of the northern Negeb. A strong fortification system combined with city-planning made Beer-sheba an impressive site. A street with buildings on each side encircled the city. An important discovery at Beer-sheba was a dismantled horned altar; some of its stones were found in a restored section of a storehouse wall, dating to the eighth century B.C. Three of the altar's horns were intact; the top of the fourth had been displaced. Archaeologists, rconstructing the altar, found that its original height was just over five feet. This altar may have been dismantled as a consequence of Hezekiah's reform, requiring worship to be centralized in Jerusalem.

Two Israelite forts located in the Negeb cast light on Iron Age II. The site of Ein el-Qudeirat, forty miles south of Beer-sheba, is considered to be Kadesh-barnea, the principal station during the Israelite sojourn in the wilderness. However, no Late Bronze or Early Iron Age remains that could relate to the exodus have been unearthed. The three successive fortresses found at the site date between the tenth and the sixth centuries B.C.

Kuntillet Ajrud, situated forty miles south of Ein el-Qudeirat, was a remote wayside shrine in northeastern Sinai. This southernmost outpost of the kingdom of Judah dates to about 800 B.C., when Amaziah was king of Judah and Joash king of Israel. More important than the buildings at the site are the inscriptions (dedications, prayers, requests, blessings) and accompanying drawings on the plaster walls and on two large storage jars. The interpretation of the inscriptions and the drawings is still uncertain.

Lachish in the foothills of the Hebron mountains was the second most important city of Judah. No site has illuminated more clearly Sennacherib's Assyrian assault on Judah in 701 B.C. Lachish, excavated in the 1930s and again in the 1970s and 1980s, is a textbook case in archaeology. The reliefs (now in the British Museum) adorning the walls of Sennacherib's palace at Nineveh, complemented by the Assyrian annals and the biblical record, depict in detail the siege of Lachish. In addition, they furnish military historians with valuable information about warfare in the Iron Age II period. A little more than a century after Sennacherib's siege of Lachish the Babylonian king Nebuchadnezzar destroyed the city as part of his conquest of Judah. The Lachish Letters, consisting of twenty-one ostraca, cast light on the city during the reign of King Zedekiah, shortly before it fell to the Babylonians.

Important Iron Age II sites are also found in the north of Israel. Dan, located at the foot of Mount Hermon, is the site of one of Jeroboam I's national sanctuaries in the Northern Kingdom. The excavators may have uncovered the sacred area or "high place" on the northwest side of the site. Jeroboam I may have built the square platform; the monumental steps were constructed during the reigns of Ahab and Jeroboam II.

Hazor, rebuilt during the Solomonic era, prospered during the reign of Jeroboam II. Israelite houses of this period are noteworthy: the excavators unearthed a four-room house with two stories, the second floor supported by pillars. Tiglath-pileser III destroyed Hazor in 732 B.C., as broken vessels in ash layers attest.

During Iron Age II the region east of the Jordan river (Transjordan) prospered. Extensive surveys of this region in the 1980s generated new data, adding considerably to the results of the earlier surveys of Glueck, who in the 1930s and the 1940s mapped, surveyed, and photographed Moab, Ammon, and Edom, lands practically unknown. The surveys and excavations in Transjordan have led to the discovery of new inscriptions that add considerably to the history of Transjordan.

With respect to the Ammonites, the following written material has come to light: the Tell Siran bronze bottle inscription, the Amman citadel inscription, the Amman theatre inscription, and numerous seals. With regard to the Moabites, the Moabite Stone (Mesha stele), documenting the Moabite King Mesha's revolt against Israelite control in the ninth century B.C., was discovered in 1868 at Dibon (modern Dhiban), Mesha's capital.

A tell near the modern village of Hesban in Jordan was once thought to be the site of biblical Heshbon, capital of the Amorite king Sihon, formerly in the land of Moab. The lack of Bronze Age remains and the paucity of Early Iron Age artifacts, however, cast doubt on the identification of the site. Iron Age II is well represented here, including ostraca from the seventh and sixth centuries B.C.

Almost no Edomite writing has come to light, with the exception of some seventh-century B.C. jar stamps from Tell el-Kheleifeh and an Edomite ostracon with six lines of writing from Horvat Uza, a Judean fortress in the eastern Negeb. But the picture is changing with the discovery in the 1980s of an Edomite shrine, the first ever excavated. Surprisingly, the shrine, named Qitmit, is located in ancient Judah, and not in Edom. This cult center dates to about 586 B.C., when the Babylonians destroyed Jerusalem. As this excavation continues into the 1990s, much more may be discovered.

28. Persian to Herodian Periods (539–4 B.C.)

Samaria was a provincial capital in the Persian era (sixth to fourth centuries B.C.), as it had been in the Assyrian period, but few Persian remains are in evidence at Samaria. During the Persian period the Upper City of Jerusalem was not resettled, the city being confined to the City of David and the temple mount. This restricted area was adequate for the small number of people living in Jerusalem at the time. New excavations underway in Palestine are more promising with respect to the Persian period.

Anafa in Upper Galilee was an affluent Hellenistic town from the mid-second century B.C. Molded glass vessels, fine red wares (terra sigillata), and elaborately decorated buildings attest to the wealth of this Greek settlement.

Concerning Jerusalem, Israeli excavators, concentrating on the southwest corner of the temple mount, as well as the area adjacent to the western and southern walls of the temple enclosure, have recovered remains dating from the Iron Age to the Ottoman era (A.D. 1516–1918), with most finds belonging to the Herodian period (37–4 B.C.). At the same time, excavations proceeding in the Jewish Quarter of the Old City unearthed remnants from the Hasmonean and Herodian periods. The artifacts reveal that during the Herodian period Jerusalem residents enjoyed considerable luxury. Beautiful stone objects (tables, bowls, cups, and purification jars) were recovered, as well as mosaics and frescoes.

29. New Testament Period

Archaeological evidence is far more extensive for the Old Testament than for the New. The New Testament encompasses a much shorter period; also, fewer New Testament excavations have been undertaken, though the situation is changing. The locations of many of the events in the life and ministry of Jesus are often uncertain; the sites currently associated with a number of them have been determined by pious tradition, not by scientific investigation.

The site of the famous Capernaum synagogue on the western shore of the Sea of Galilee is certain, but the date is in dispute. The Franciscan excavators favor the fourth or fifth century A.D. on the basis of coins found beneath the pavement, whereas the Israelis prefer a date in the late second or early third century A.D. The ruins of a more ancient synagogue, lying beneath the reconstructed limestone synagogue, may be the building where Jesus preached.

With respect to the trial and condemnation of Jesus, some scholars have conjectured that the Antonia fortress at the northwest corner of the temple enclosure was the site of the Roman praetorium where Pontius Pilate judged Jesus (Jn 18.28–19.16). It seems certain that the praetorium of Jesus' trial was located at Herod's palace, near the present Jaffa Gate in the northwest corner of the Upper City, which was the official residence of the Roman procurators (including Pontius Pilate) during their visits to Jerusalem. (A dedicatory inscription found in 1961 at Caesarea Maritima bears the name of Pontius Pilate.)

Some have conjectured that the broad stone pavement in the basement of the Sisters of Zion convent on the Via Dolorosa is the lithostrothon (stone pavement) mentioned in the trial of Jesus (Jn 19.13). Benoit demonstrated, however, that this stone pavement dates to the Roman emperor Hadrian (A.D. 117–138), and that the adjoining "Ecce Homo" arch (John 19.5) was the large central arch of Hadrian's east forum.

Concerning Josephus' three successive walls defending Jerusalem's northern side, the direction of the disputed second wall bears on the authenticity of the church of the Holy Sepulchre. The site of Jesus' burial had to have been located outside the city wall because burials were forbidden within the city. Recent excavations appear to confirm that at the time of Jesus' crucifixion the site of the Holy Sepulchre was located outside the second wall of Jerusalem.

Measures and Weights in the Bible

I. HEBREW MEASURES OF LENGTH

| Hebrew | NRSV | Equivalence | U.S. Measures |
|---|---|---|---|
| 'ammāh | cubit | 2 spans | 17.49 inches |
| zéreth | span | 3 handbreadths | 8.745 inches |
| ṭṓphaḥ, ṭéphaḥ | handbreadth | 4 fingers | 2.915 inches |
| 'eṣba' | finger | | 0.728 inch |

The cubit described in Ezekiel (40.5; 43.13) is equal to seven (not six) handbreadths, namely 20.405 inches.

II. MEASURES OF LENGTH IN THE NEW TESTAMENT

| Greek | NRSV | U.S. Measures |
|---|---|---|
| pēchus | cubit | about 1½ feet |
| orguia | fathom | about 72.44 inches |
| stadion | stadia, or the equivalent in miles | about 606 feet |
| milion | mile | about 4,854 feet |

III. HEBREW MEASURES OF CAPACITY

DRY MEASURES

| Hebrew | NRSV | Equivalence | U.S. Measures |
|---|---|---|---|
| ḥṓmer | homer | 2 lethechs | 6.524 bushels |
| kōr | measure, cor | | |
| léthekh | lethech | 5 ephahs | 3.262 bushels |
| 'êphāh | ephah, measure | 3 seahs | 20.878 quarts |
| ṣe'āh | measure | 3⅓ omers | 6.959 quarts |
| 'ṓmer | omer | 1⅕ kabs | 2.087 quarts |
| 'issārôn | tenth part (of ephah) | | |
| qabh | | kab | 1.159 quarts |

LIQUID MEASURES

| Hebrew | NRSV | Equivalence | U.S. Measures |
|---|---|---|---|
| kōr | measure, cor | 10 baths | 60.738 gallons |
| bath | bath | 6 hins | 6.073 gallons |
| hîn | hin | 3 kabs | 1.012 gallons |
| qabh | kab | 4 logs | 1.349 quarts |
| lōgh | log | | 0.674 pint |

IV. MEASURES OF CAPACITY IN THE NEW TESTAMENT

| Greek | NRSV | Equivalence | U.S. Measures |
|---|---|---|---|
| batos | measure | (Hebrew) bath | |
| koros | measure | (Hebrew) kōr | see Table III |
| saton | measure | (Hebrew) ṣe'āh | |
| metrētēs | measure | | 10.3 gallons |
| choinix | quart | | 0.98 dry quart |
| modios | bushel | (Latin) modius | 7.68 dry quarts |
| xestēs | pot | (Latin) sextarius | 0.96 dry pint, or 1.12 fluid pints |

V. HEBREW WEIGHTS

| Hebrew | NRSV | Equivalence | U.S. Avoirdupois |
|---|---|---|---|
| kikkār | talent | 60 minas | 75.558 pounds |
| māneh | mina | 50 shekels | 20.148 ounces |
| shéqel | shekel | 2 bekas | 176.29 grains |
| pîm (or payim) | pim | ⅔ shekel | 117.52 grains |
| béqa' | beka, half a shekel | 10 gerahs | 88.14 grains |
| gērāh | gerah | | 8.81 grains |

The practice of weighing unmarked ingots of metal used in commercial transactions prior to the invention of money explains that the names of the units of weight were used later as indications of value, and as names for monetary stardards. There is, however, no direct relation between the shekel-weight and the weight of a shekel piece.

VI. WEIGHTS IN THE NEW TESTAMENT

| Greek | NRSV | Equivalence | U.S. Avoirdupois |
|---|---|---|---|
| talenton | talent | (Hebrew) talent | see Table V |
| mna | pound | (Hebrew) mina | see Table V |
| litra | pound | (Latin) libra | 0.719 pound |

Index to the Annotations

The following index lists important names, institutions, and ideas that are mentioned in the annotations. In order to gain the fullest information, the Scriptural references as well as the annotation itself should be read, and all cross references should be consulted.

This index combines references from the Hebrew Scriptures, the New Testament, and the Apocryphal/Deuterocanonical Books. References to the Apocryphal/Deuterocanonical Books follow those to the other Scripture portions, in cases where a topic is treated in various places.

A separate Index to the Annotations of the Apocryphal/Deuterocanonical Books appears at the end of that section. In editions of this book that do not include the Apocryphal/Deuterocanonical Books, the reader should ignore references to them contained in this Index.

Page numbers are followed by letters indicating the section in which they are found, thus: OT = Old Testament, AP = Apocryphal/Deuterocanonical Books, NT = New Testament.
