4:10 giving out. The picture is of a worker staggering under the weight of his load and ready to fall at any step.

4:11 our enemies said. Either Nehemiah had friendly informants, or the enemy was spreading unsettling rumors.

4:12 ten times over. Many times.

4:13 lowest points . . . exposed places. Nehemiah posted men conspicuously in the areas that were the most vulnerable along the wall. spears. Used as thrusting weapons (Nu 25:7–8; 1Ki 18:28).

4:14 Don't be afraid of them. Remember the Lord. See note on 1:8. The best way to dispel fear is to remember the Lord, who alone is to be feared (see Dt 3:22; 20:3; 31:6).

4:16 shields. Made primarily of wood or wickerwork and therefore combustible (Eze 39:9). armor. The Hebrew for this word designated primarily a breastplate of metal or a coat of mail (see 2Ch 18:33).

4:17 work with one hand . . . weapon in the other. Means either that the workers carried their materials with one hand and their weapons with the other, or simply that the weapons were kept close at hand.

4:18 trumpet. See note on Isa 18:3; see also Jos 6:4,6,8,13.

4:20 Our God will fight for us! For the concept of holy war, in which God fights for his people, see Jos 10:14,42; Jdg 4:14; 20:35; 2Sa 5:24; see also essay on "The Conquest and the Ethical Question of War," p. 284.

4:21 till the stars came out. Indicates the earnestness of their efforts, since the usual time to stop working was at sunset (Dt 24:15; Mt 20:8).

4:22 guards by night. Even men from outside Jerusalem stayed in the city at night so that some of them could serve as sentries.

4:23 See NIV text note. Although the precise meaning of the end of the verse is not clear, the implication is that constant preparedness was the rule. According to Josephus (Antiquities, 11.5.8), Nehemiah "himself made the rounds of the city by night, never tiring either through work or lack of food and sleep, neither of which he took for pleasure but as a necessity."

5:1–19 During his major effort to rebuild the walls of Jerusalem, Nehemiah faced an economic crisis. Since the building of the wall took only 52 days (6:15), it is surprising that Nehemiah called a "large meeting" (v. 7) in the midst of such a project. Perhaps the economic pressures created by the rebuilding program brought to light problems that had long been simmering and that had to be dealt with before work could proceed. Among the classes affected by the economic crisis were (1) the landless, who were short of food (v. 2); (2) the landowners, who were compelled to mortgage their properties (v. 3); (3) those forced to borrow money at exorbitant interest rates and sell their children into slavery (vv. 4–5).

5:1 wives. The situation was so serious that the wives joined in the protest as they ran short of funds and supplies to feed their families. They complained not against the foreign authorities but against their own countrymen who were taking advantage of their poorer brothers at a time when all were needed for the defense of the country.

5:2 grain. About six to seven bushels would be needed for a man to feed his family for a month.

3Others were saying, "We are mortgaging our fields,[w] our vineyards and our homes to get grain during the famine."[x]

4Still others were saying, "We have had to borrow money to pay the king's tax[y] on our fields and vineyards. 5Although we are of the same flesh and blood[z] as our countrymen and though our sons are as good as theirs, yet we have to subject our sons and daughters to slavery.[a] Some of our daughters have already been enslaved, but we are powerless, because our fields and our vineyards belong to others."[b]

6When I heard their outcry and these charges, I was very angry. 7I pondered them in my mind and then accused the nobles and officials. I told them, "You are exacting usury[c] from your own countrymen!" So I called together a large meeting to deal with them 8and said: "As far as possible, we have bought[d] back our Jewish brothers who were sold to the Gentiles. Now you are selling your brothers, only for them to be sold back to us!" They kept quiet, because they could find nothing to say.[e]

9So I continued, "What you are doing is not right. Shouldn't you walk in the fear of our God to avoid the reproach[f] of our Gentile enemies? 10I and my brothers and my men are also lending the people money and grain. But let the exacting of usury stop![g] 11Give back to them immediately their fields, vineyards, olive groves and houses, and also the usury[h] you are charging them—the hundredth part of the money, grain, new wine and oil."

12"We will give it back," they said. "And we will not demand anything more from them. We will do as you say."

Then I summoned the priests and made the nobles and officials take an oath[i] to do what they had promised. 13I also shook[j] out the folds of my robe and said, "In this way may God shake out of his house and possessions every man who does not keep this promise. So may such a man be shaken out and emptied!"

At this the whole assembly said, "Amen,"[k] and praised the LORD. And the people did as they had promised.

14Moreover, from the twentieth year of King Artaxerxes,[l] when I was appoint-

5:3 mortgaging. Even those who had considerable property were forced to mortgage it, benefiting the wealthy few (cf. Isa 5:8). In times of economic stress the rich got richer, and the poor got poorer. famine. The economic situation was aggravated by the natural conditions that had produced a famine. Some 75 years earlier the prophet Haggai had referred to a time of drought, when food was insufficient (Hag 1:5–11). Such times of distress were considered to be expressions of God's judgment (Isa 51:19; Jer 14:13–18; Am 4:6). Famines were common in Canaan. They occurred in the time of Abraham (Ge 12:10), Isaac (Ge 26:1), Joseph (Ge 41:27,54), Ruth (Ru 1:1), David (2Sa 21:1), Elijah (1Ki 18:2), Elisha (2Ki 4:38) and Claudius (Ac 11:28).

5:4 tax. It is estimated that the Persian king collected the equivalent of 20 million darics a year in taxes. Little was ever returned to benefit the provinces, because most of it was melted down and stored as bullion. Alexander the Great found at Susa alone 9,000 talents (about 340 tons) of coined gold and 40,000 talents (about 1,500 tons) of silver stored as bullion. As coined money was increasingly taken out of circulation by taxes, inflation became rampant. The acquisition of land by the Persians and its removal from production also helped produce a 50 percent rise in prices during the Persian period.

5:5 slavery. In times of economic distress families would borrow funds, using family members as collateral. If a man could not repay the loan and its interest, his children, his wife, or even the man himself could be sold into bondage. An Israelite who fell into debt, however, would serve his creditor as a "hired worker" (Lev 25:39–40). He was to be released in the seventh year (Dt 15:12–18), unless he chose to stay voluntarily. During the seven-year famine in Egypt, Joseph was approached by people who asked him to accept their land and their bodies in exchange for food (Ge 47:18–19). The irony for the Israelites was that at least as exiles in Mesopotamia their families were together, but now, because of dire economic necessity, their children were being sold into slavery.

5:6 I was very angry. Sometimes it becomes necessary to express indignation against social injustice (cf. Mk 11:15–18; Eph 4:26).

5:7 usury. See notes on Ex 22:25–27; Lev 25:36; Dt 23:20. Josephus (Antiquities, 4.8.25) explains: "Let it not be permitted to lend upon usury to any Hebrew either meat or drink; for it is not just to draw a revenue from the misfortunes of a fellow countryman. Rather, in consoling him in his distress, you should reckon as gain the gratitude of such persons and the recompense that God has in store for an act of generosity."

5:8 Jewish brothers who were sold. An impoverished brother could be hired as a servant, but he was not to be sold as a slave (Lev 25:39–42). to the Gentiles. The sale of fellow Hebrews as slaves to foreigners was forbidden (Ex 21:8). kept quiet. Their guilt was so obvious that they had no rebuttal or excuse (cf. Jn 8:7–10).

5:9 not right. Failure to treat others, especially fellow believers, with compassion is an insult to our Maker and a blot on our testimony (cf. Pr 14:31; 1Pe 2:12–15).

5:10 let the exacting of usury stop! The OT condemns the greed that seeks a profit at the expense of people (Ps 119:36; Isa 56:9–12; 57:17; Jer 6:13; 8:10; 22:13–17; Eze 22:12–13; 33:31). In view of the economic crisis facing his people, Nehemiah urges the creditors to relinquish their rights to repayment with interest.

5:11 grain, new wine and oil. See notes on 10:37; Dt 7:13.

5:13 shook out the folds of my robe. Symbolizing the solemnity of an oath and reinforcing the attendant curses for its nonfulfillment. Amen. See 8:6; Nu 5:22; see also note on Dt 27:15.

5:14 thirty-second year. From Apr. 1, 433 B.C., to Apr. 19, 432. Nehemiah served his first term as governor for 12 years before being recalled to court (13:6), after which he returned to Jerusalem (13:7) for a second term whose length cannot be determined. food allotted to the governor. See v. 18. Provincial governors normally assessed the people in their provinces for their support. But ed to be their governor[m] in the land of Judah, until his thirty-second year—twelve years—neither I nor my brothers ate the food allotted to the governor. [15]But the earlier governors—those preceding me—placed a heavy burden on the people and took forty shekels[k] of silver from them in addition to food and wine. Their assistants also lorded it over the people. But out of reverence for God[n] I did not act like that. [16]Instead,[o] I devoted myself to the work on this wall. All my men were assembled there for the work; we[l] did not acquire any land.

[17]Furthermore, a hundred and fifty Jews and officials ate at my table, as well as those who came to us from the surrounding nations. [18]Each day one ox, six choice sheep and some poultry[p] were prepared for me, and every ten days an abundant supply of wine of all kinds. In spite of all this, I never demanded the food allotted to the governor, because the demands were heavy on these people.

[19]Remember[q] me with favor, O my God, for all I have done for these people.

Further Opposition to the Rebuilding

6 When word came to Sanballat, Tobiah,[r] Geshem[s] the Arab and the rest of our enemies that I had rebuilt the wall and not a gap was left in it—though up to that time I had not set the doors in the gates— [2]Sanballat and Geshem sent me this message: "Come, let us meet together in one of the villages[m] on the plain of Ono.[t]"

But they were scheming to harm me; [3]so I sent messengers to them with this reply: "I am carrying on a great project and cannot go down. Why should the work stop while I leave it and go down to you?" [4]Four times they sent me the same message, and each time I gave them the same answer.

[5]Then, the fifth time, Sanballat[u] sent his aide to me with the same message, and in his hand was an unsealed letter [6]in which was written:

> "It is reported among the nations—and Geshem[n][v] says it is true—that you and the Jews are plotting to revolt, and therefore you are building the wall. Moreover, according to these reports you are about to become their king [7]and Nehemiah, like Paul (1Co 9; 2Th 3:8–9), sacrificed even what was normally his in order to serve as an example to the people.

5:15 governors. The Hebrew for this word is used of Sheshbazzar (Ezr 5:14) and Zerubbabel (Hag 1:1,14; 2:2) as well as of various Persian officials (Ezr 5:3,6; 6:6–7,13; 8:36; Ne 2:7,9; 3:7). Nehemiah was not referring here to men of the caliber of Zerubbabel. Some believe that Judah did not have governors before Nehemiah and that the reference here is to governors of Samaria. But new archaeological evidence, in the form of seals and seal impressions, confirms the reference to the previous governors of Judah. heavy burden. It was customary Persian practice to exempt temple personnel from taxation, which increased the burden on lay people. assistants. If the governors themselves used extortion, their underlings often proved even more oppressive (cf. Mt 18:21–35; 20:25–28). reverence for God. Those in high positions are in danger of abusing their authority over their subordinates if they forget that they themselves are servants of a superior "Master in heaven" (Col 4:1; cf. Ge 39:9; 2Co 5:11).

5:16 did not acquire any land. Nehemiah's behavior as governor was guided by principles of service rather than by opportunism.

5:17 ate at my table. As part of his social responsibility, a ruler or governor was expected to entertain lavishly. A text found at Nimrud has Ashurnasirpal II feeding 69,574 guests at a banquet for ten days. When Solomon dedicated the temple, he sacrificed 22,000 cattle and 120,000 sheep and goats, and held a great festival for the assembly for 14 days (1Ki 8:62–65). We are not told how many he fed (cf. 1Ki 4:27).

5:18 Each day. The meat listed here would provide one meal for 600–800 persons, including the 150 Jews and officials of v. 17. Cf. Solomon's provisions for one day (1Ki 4:22–23). choice sheep. Cf. Mal 1:8. poultry. Chickens were domesticated in the Indus River Valley by 2000 B.C. and were brought to Egypt by the time of Thutmose III (15th century B.C.). They were known in Mesopotamia and in Greece by the eighth century B.C. The earliest inscriptional evidence for poultry in the land of Canaan is the seal of Jaazaniah (dated c. 600 B.C.), which depicts a fighting rooster.

5:19 Remember me. See note on 1:8; cf. Heb 6:10. Perhaps Nehemiah's memoirs (see Introduction to Ezra: Literary Form and Authorship) were inscribed as a memorial that was set up in the temple. A striking parallel to Nehemiah's prayer is found in a prayer of Nebuchadnezzar: "O Marduk, my lord, do remember my deeds favorably as good [deeds]; may (these) my good deeds be always before your mind."

6:1 Sanballat, Tobiah, Geshem. See notes on 2:10,19.

6:2 Ono. Located about seven miles southeast of Joppa near Lod (Lydda; see note on Ezr 2:33), in the westernmost area settled by the returning Jews (Ne 7:37; 11:35). It may have been proposed as neutral territory, but Nehemiah recognized the invitation as a trap (cf. Ge 4:8; Jer 41:1–3).

6:3 Nehemiah's sharp reply may seem like a haughty response to a reasonable invitation, but he correctly discerned the insincerity of his enemies. He refused to be distracted by matters that would divert his energies from rebuilding Jerusalem's wall.

6:4 Four times. Nehemiah's foes were persistent, but he was equally persistent in resisting them.

6:5 unsealed letter. During this period a letter was ordinarily written on a papyrus or leather sheet, which was rolled up, tied with a string and sealed with a clay bulla (seal impression) to guarantee the letter's authenticity. Sanballat apparently wanted the contents of his letter to be made known to the public at large.

6:6 their king. The Persian kings did not tolerate the claims of pretenders to kingship, as we can see from the Behistun (Bisitun) inscription of Darius I. In NT times the Roman emperor was likewise suspicious of any unauthorized claims to royalty (Jn 19:12; cf. Mt 2:1–13).

have even appointed prophets to make this proclamation about you in Jerusalem: 'There is a king in Judah!' Now this report will get back to the king; so come, let us confer together."

8I sent him this reply: "Nothing like what you are saying is happening; you are just making it up out of your head."

9They were all trying to frighten us, thinking, "Their hands will get too weak for the work, and it will not be completed."

But I prayed, "Now strengthen my hands."

10One day I went to the house of Shemaiah son of Delaiah, the son of Mehetabel, who was shut in at his home. He said, "Let us meet in the house of God, inside the temple[w], and let us close the temple doors, because men are coming to kill you—by night they are coming to kill you."

11But I said, "Should a man like me run away? Or should one like me go into the temple to save his life? I will not go!" 12I realized that God had not sent him, but that he had prophesied against me[x] because Tobiah and Sanballat[y] had hired him. 13He had been hired to intimidate me so that I would commit a sin by doing this, and then they would give me a bad name to discredit me.[z]

14Remember[a] Tobiah and Sanballat,[b] O my God, because of what they have done; remember also the prophetess[c] Noadiah and the rest of the prophets[d] who have been trying to intimidate me.

The Completion of the Wall

15So the wall was completed on the twenty-fifth of Elul, in fifty-two days. 16When all our enemies heard about this, all the surrounding nations were afraid and lost their self-confidence, because they realized that this work had been done with the help of our God.

17Also, in those days the nobles of Judah were sending many letters to Tobiah, and replies from Tobiah kept coming to them. 18For many in Judah were under oath to him, since he was son-in-law to Shecaniah son of Arah, and his son Jehohanan had married the daughter of Meshullam son of Berekiah. 19Moreover, they kept reporting to me his good deeds and then telling him what I said. And Tobiah sent letters to intimidate me.

7 After the wall had been rebuilt and I had set the doors in place, the gatekeepers[e] and the singers[f] and the Levites[g] were appointed. 2I put in charge of Jerusalem my brother Hanani,[h] along with[o] Hananiah[i] the commander of the citadel,[j] because he was a man of integrity and feared[k] God more than most men do. 3I said to them, "The gates of Jerusalem are not to be opened until the sun is hot. While the gatekeepers are still on duty, have them shut the doors

6:8 Nothing. Nehemiah does not mince words. He calls the report a lie. He may have sent his own messenger to the Persian king to assure him of his loyalty.

6:9 hands will get ... weak. Figurative language to express the idea of discouragement. The Hebrew for this phrase is used also in Ezr 4:4; Jer 38:4, as well as on an ostracon from Lachish dated c. 588 B.C.

6:10 Shemaiah ... was shut in. Perhaps as a symbolic action to indicate that his own life was in danger and to suggest that both Nehemiah and he must flee to the temple (for other symbolic actions see 1Ki 22:11; Isa 20:2–4; Jer 27:2–7; 28:10–11; Eze 4:1–17; 12:3–11; Ac 21:11). Since Shemaiah had access to the temple, he may have been a priest. He was clearly a friend of Tobiah (cf. v. 12), and therefore Nehemiah's enemy. It was at least credible for Shemaiah to propose that Nehemiah take refuge in the temple area at the altar of asylum (see Ex 21:13–14 and notes), but not in the "house of God," the temple building itself.

6:11 Even if the threat against his life was real, Nehemiah was not a coward who would run into hiding. Nor would he transgress the law to save his life. As a layman, he was not permitted to enter the sanctuary (Nu 18:7). When King Uzziah entered the temple to burn incense, he was punished by being afflicted with leprosy (2Ch 26:16–21).

6:12 The fact that Shemaiah proposed a course of action contrary to God's word revealed him as a false prophet (cf. Dt 18:20; Isa 8:19–20; see note on Dt 13:1–5).

6:13 If Nehemiah had wavered in the face of the threat against him, his leadership would have been discredited and morale among the people would have plummeted.

6:14 Remember. See note on 1:8. prophetess. See note on Ex 15:20.

6:15 twenty-fifth of Elul. Oct. 2, 444 B.C. fifty-two days. The walls that lay in ruins for nearly a century and a half were rebuilt in less than two months once the people were galvanized into action by Nehemiah's leadership. Archaeological investigations have shown that the circumference of the wall in Nehemiah's day was much reduced. Josephus states (Antiquities, 11.5.8) that the rebuilding of the wall took two years and four months, but he is doubtless including such additional tasks as further strengthening of various sections, embellishing and beautifying, and the like. The dedication of the wall is described in 12:27–47.

6:17–18 Tobiah was related to an influential family in Judah, since his son Jehohanan was married to the daughter of Meshullam, who had helped repair the wall of Jerusalem (3:4,30).

7:2 in charge of Jerusalem. Over Rephaiah and Shallum, who were over sections of the city (3:9,12). Hanani. See note on 1:2. citadel. See notes on 2:8; 3:1.

7:3 until the sun is hot. Normally the gates would be opened at dawn, but their opening was to be delayed until the sun was high in the heavens to prevent the enemy from making a surprise attack before most of the people were up.

and bar them. Also appoint residents of Jerusalem as guards, some at their posts and some near their own houses."

The List of the Exiles Who Returned

7:6–73pp — Ezr 2:1–70

4Now the city was large and spacious, but there were few people in it,[l] and the houses had not yet been rebuilt. 5So my God put it into my heart to assemble the nobles, the officials and the common people for registration by families. I found the genealogical record of those who had been the first to return. This is what I found written there:

6These are the people of the province who came up from the captivity of the exiles[m] whom Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon had taken captive (they returned to Jerusalem and Judah, each to his own town, 7in company with Zerubbabel,[n] Jeshua, Nehemiah, Azariah, Raamiah, Nahamani, Mordecai, Bilshan, Mispereth, Bigvai, Nehum and Baanah):

daughter of Barzillai the Gileadite and was called by that name).

64These searched for their family records, but they could not find them and so were excluded from the priesthood as unclean. 65The governor, therefore, ordered them not to eat any of the most sacred food until there should be a priest ministering with the Urim and Thummim.[a]

70Some of the heads of the families contributed to the work. The governor gave to the treasury 1,000 drachmas[q] of gold, 50 bowls and 530 garments for priests. 71Some of the heads of the families[b] gave to the treasury for the work 20,000 drachmas[r] of gold and 2,200 minas[s] of silver. 72The total given by the rest of the people was 20,000 drachmas of gold, 2,000 minas[t] of silver and 67 garments for priests.[c]

73The priests, the Levites, the gatekeepers, the singers and the temple servants,[d] along with certain of the people and the rest of the Israelites, settled in their own towns.[e]

Ezra Reads the Law

When the seventh month came and the Israelites had settled in their towns,[f] 1all the people assembled as one man in the square before the Water Gate.[g] They told Ezra the scribe to bring out the Book of the Law of Moses,[h] which the LORD had commanded for Israel.

2So on the first day of the seventh month[i] Ezra the priest brought the Law[j] before the assembly, which was made up of men and women and all who were able to understand. 3He read it aloud from daybreak till noon as he faced the square before the Water Gate[k] in the presence of the men, women and others who could understand. And all the people listened attentively to the Book of the Law.

5Ezra opened the book. All the people could see him because he was standing[m] above them; and as he opened it, the people all stood up. 6Ezra praised the LORD, the great God; and all the people lifted their hands[n] and responded, "Amen! Amen!" Then they bowed down and worshiped the LORD with their faces to the ground.

7:70 drachmas. See note on Ezr 2:69.
7:73 settled in their own towns. See note on Ezr 2:70. seventh month. October-November, 444 B.C.
8:1–18 According to the traditional view, the reading of the Law by Ezra would be the first reference to him in almost 13 years since his arrival in 458 B.C. Since he was commissioned to teach the Law (Ezr 7:6,10,14,25–26), it is surprising that there was such a long delay in its public proclamation.
8:1 all the people assembled. See Ezr 3:1, which also refers to an assembly called in the seventh month (Tishri), the beginning of the civil year (see chart on "Hebrew Calendar," p. 101). square before the Water Gate. See vv. 3,16; see also notes on 3:26; Ezr 10:9. Squares were normally located near a city gate (2Ch 32:6). scribe. See note on Ezr 7:6. Book of the Law of Moses. Cf. vv. 2–3,5,8–9,13–15,18. Four views have been proposed concerning the extent of this Book: (1) a collection of legal materials, (2) the priestly laws of Exodus and Leviticus, (3) the laws of Deuteronomy, (4) the Pentateuch. Surely Ezra could have brought back with him the Torah, i.e., the entire Pentateuch.
8:2 first day of the seventh month. Oct. 8, 444 B.C.; the New Year's Day of the civil calendar (see note on Lev 23:24), celebrated as the Feast of Trumpets (Nu 29:1–6), with cessation of labor and a sacred assembly. women. See 10:28. Women did not usually participate in assemblies (see note on Ex 10:11), but were brought, together with children, on such solemn occasions (Dt 31:12; Jos 8:35; 2Ki 23:2).
8:3 read it aloud. See Ex 24:7; Ac 8:30. from daybreak till noon. The people evidently stood (vv. 5,7) for five or six hours, listening attentively to the reading and exposition (vv. 7–8,12) of the Scriptures.
8:5 book. Scroll (see note on Ex 17:14). people all stood up. The rabbis deduced from this verse that the congregation should stand for the reading of the Torah. It is customary in Eastern Orthodox churches for the congregation to stand throughout the service.
8:6 lifted their hands. See Ex 9:29 and note; Ps 28:2; 134:2; 1Ti 2:8. Amen! Amen! See notes on Dt 27:15; Ro 1:25. The repetition conveys the intensity of feeling behind the affirmation (for other repetitions see Ge 22:11 and note; cf. 2Ki 11:14; Lk 23:21). worshiped. In its original sense the Hebrew for this verb meant "to prostrate oneself on the ground," as the frequently accompanying phrase "to the ground" indicates. Private acts of worship often involved prostration "to the ground," as in the case of Abraham's servant (Ge 24:52), Moses (Ex 34:8), Joshua (Jos 5:14) and Job (Job 1:20). There are three cases of spontaneous communal worship in Exodus (4:31; 12:27; 33:10). In 2Ch 20:18 Jehoshaphat and the people "fell down in worship before the LORD" when they heard his promise of victory.
8:7 instructed. See v. 8; Ezr 8:16 and note; Ps 119:34,73,130; Isa 40:14.

ah, Jamin, Akkub, Shabbethai, Hodiah, Maaseiah, Kelita, Azariah, Jozabad, Hanan and Pelaiah—instructed[p] the people in the Law while the people were standing there. [8]They read from the Book of the Law of God, making it clear[u] and giving the meaning so that the people could understand what was being read.

[9]Then Nehemiah the governor, Ezra the priest and scribe, and the Levites[q] who were instructing the people said to them all, "This day is sacred to the LORD your God. Do not mourn or weep."[r] For all the people had been weeping as they listened to the words of the Law.

[10]Nehemiah said, "Go and enjoy choice food and sweet drinks, and send some to those who have nothing[s] prepared. This day is sacred to our Lord. Do not grieve, for the joy[t] of the LORD is your strength."

[11]The Levites calmed all the people, saying, "Be still, for this is a sacred day. Do not grieve."

[12]Then all the people went away to eat and drink, to send portions of food and to celebrate with great joy,[u] because they now understood the words that had been made known to them.

[13]On the second day of the month, the heads of all the families, along with the priests and the Levites, gathered around Ezra the scribe to give attention to the words of the Law. [14]They found written in the Law, which the LORD had commanded through Moses, that the Israelites were to live in booths[v] during the feast of the seventh month [15]and that they should proclaim this word and spread it throughout their towns and in Jerusalem: "Go out into the hill country and bring back branches from olive and wild olive trees, and from myrtles, palms and shade trees, to make booths"—as it is written.[v]

[16]So the people went out and brought back branches and built themselves booths on their own roofs, in their courtyards, in the courts of the house of God and in the square by the Water Gate[w] and the one by the Gate of Ephraim.[x] [17]The whole company that had returned from exile built booths and lived in them.[y] From the days of Joshua son of Nun until that day, the Israelites had not celebrated[z] it like this. And their joy was very great.

[18]Day after day, from the first day to the last, Ezra read[a] from the Book of the Law[b] of God. They celebrated the feast for seven days, and on the eighth day, in accordance with the regulation,[c] there was an assembly.[d] [u]8 Or God, translating it [v]15 See Lev. 23:37-40.

8:8 read. See note on v. 3. making it clear. Rabbinic tradition understands the Hebrew for this expression as referring to translation from Hebrew into an Aramaic Targum (see NIV text note). But there is no evidence of Targums (free Aramaic translations of OT books or passages) from such an early date. The earliest extensive Targum is one on Job from Qumran, dated c. 150–100 B.C. Targums exist for every book of the OT except Daniel and Ezra-Nehemiah. understand. See v. 12.

8:9 Nehemiah ... Ezra. An explicit reference showing that they were contemporaries (see 12:26,36). Do not mourn. See Ezr 10:6 and note; Est 9:22; Isa 57:18–19; Jer 31:13. weep. See 1:4; Ezr 3:13 and note; 10:1.

8:10 choice food. Delicious festive food prepared with much fat. The fat of sacrificial animals was offered to God as the tastiest element of the burnt offering (Lev 1:8,12), the fellowship offering (Lev 3:9–10), the sin offering (Lev 4:8–10) and the guilt offering (Lev 7:3–4). The fat was not to be eaten in these cases. send some to those who have nothing. It was customary for God's people to remember the less fortunate on joyous occasions (2Sa 6:19; Est 9:22; contrast 1Co 11:20–22; Jas 2:14–16).

8:15 olive. Widespread in Mediterranean countries. It was growing in Canaan before the conquest (Dt 8:8). Because it takes an olive tree 30 years to mature, its cultivation requires peaceful conditions. wild olive trees. Lit. "tree of oil," commonly regarded as the wild olive tree. But this is questionable since the "tree of oil" was used as timber (1Ki 6:23,31–33), whereas the wood of the wild olive tree would have been of little value for use in the temple's furniture. Also, the wild olive tree contains very little oil. The phrase may refer to a resinous tree like the fir. myrtles. Evergreen bushes with a pleasing odor (Isa 41:19; 55:13; Zec 1:8,10–11). palms. The date palm was common around Jericho (Dt 34:3; 2Ch 28:15). shade trees. Cf. Eze 6:13; 20:28. Later Jewish celebrations of the Feast of Tabernacles include waving the lulav (made of branches of palms, myrtles and willows) with the right hand and holding branches of the ethrog (a citrus native to Canaan) in the left.

8:16 courts of the house of God. See note on 13:7. The temple that Ezekiel saw in his visions had an outer and an inner court (see p. 1276). Ezekiel's temple was to some extent patterned after Solomon's, which had an inner court of priests and an outer court (1Ki 6:36; 7:12; 2Ki 21:5; 23:12; 2Ch 4:9; 33:5). The temple of the NT era had a court of the Gentiles and an inner court, which was subdivided into courts of the women, of Israel and of the priests. The Temple Scroll from Qumran has God setting forth in detail an ideal temple. Columns 40–46 describe the outer court as follows: "On the roof of the third story are columns for the constructing of booths for the Feast of Tabernacles, to be occupied by the elders, tribal chieftains and commanders of thousands and hundreds." Gate of Ephraim. A gate of the oldest rampart of Jerusalem (see note on 3:6; see also 2Ki 14:13). It was restored by Nehemiah (12:39).

8:17 From the days of Joshua ... until that day. The phrase does not mean that the Feast of Tabernacles had not been celebrated since Joshua's time, because such celebrations took place after the dedication of Solomon's temple (2Ch 7:8–10) and after the return of the exiles (Ezr 3:4). What apparently is meant is that the feast had not been celebrated before with such great joy (cf. 2Ch 30:26; 35:18).

8:18 assembly. See Nu 29:35.

The Israelites Confess Their Sins

9 On the twenty-fourth day of the same month, the Israelites gathered together, fasting and wearing sackcloth and having dust on their heads.[e] [2]Those of Israelite descent had separated themselves from all foreigners.[f] They stood in their places and confessed their sins and the wickedness of their fathers.[g] [3]They stood where they were and read from the Book of the Law of the LORD their God for a quarter of the day, and spent another quarter in confession and in worshiping the LORD their God. [4]Standing on the stairs were the Levites[h]—Jeshua, Bani, Kadmiel, Shebaniah, Bunni, Sherebiah, Bani and Kenani—who called with loud voices to the LORD their God. [5]And the Levites—Jeshua, Kadmiel, Bani, Hashabneiah, Sherebiah, Hodiah, Shebaniah and Pethahiah—said: "Stand up and praise the LORD your God,[i] who is from everlasting to everlasting.[w]"

"Blessed be your glorious name,[j]

[x] 9 Hebrew Yam Suph; that is, Sea of Reeds

9:1–37 The ninth chapters of Ezra, Nehemiah and Daniel are devoted to confessions of national sin and to prayers for God's grace.

9:1 twenty-fourth day. Oct. 30, 444 B.C.; a day of penance in the spirit of the Day of Atonement, which was held on the tenth day (Lev 16:29–30). fasting . . . sackcloth . . . dust. See notes on Ge 37:34; Ezr 8:23; 10:6; Joel 1:13–14.

9:3 quarter of the day. About three hours.

9:5–37 One of the most beautiful prayers outside the Psalms, it reviews God's grace and power (1) in creation (v. 6), (2) in the Abrahamic covenant (vv. 7–8), (3) in Egypt and at the Red Sea (vv. 9–11), (4) in the desert and at Sinai (vv. 12–21), (5) during the conquest of Canaan (vv. 22–25), (6) through the judges (vv. 26–28), (7) through the prophets (vv. 29–31) and (8) in the present situation (vv. 32–37). Cf. Ps 78; 105–106.

9:6 You alone are the LORD. Though not in the words of Dt 6:4, which expresses the central monotheistic conviction of Israel's faith, the prayer begins with a similar affirmation (cf. 2Ki 19:15; Ps 86:10). highest heavens. See Dt 10:14; 1Ki 8:27; 2Ch 2:6; Ps 148:4. multitudes of heaven worship you. See Ps 89:5–7.

9:7 Ur of the Chaldeans. See note on Ge 11:28. named him Abraham. See note on Ge 17:5.

9:8 faithful. Compare Ro 4:16–22 with Jas 2:21–23. made a covenant with him. See note on Ge 15:18. Canaanites . . . Girgashites. See notes on Ge 10:6,15–18; 13:7; Ex 3:8; Ezr 9:1.

9:11 divided the sea. See Ex 14:21–22; 1Co 10:1.

9:13 laws. The singular form of the Hebrew for this word is Torah, which means "instruction," "law," and later the Pentateuch, the five books of Moses.

9:14 holy Sabbath. According to the rabbis, "the Sabbath outweighs all the commandments of the Torah." See 10:31–33; 13:15–22.

9:15 bread from heaven. See note on Ex 16:4. water from the rock. See note on Ex 17:6. sworn with uplifted hand. See Ge 14:22 and note; 22:15–17; Ex 6:8; Eze 20:6; 47:14.

9:16 stiff-necked. See vv. 17,29; see also notes on 3:5; Ex 32:9.

9:17 appointed a leader. Their intention to do so is recorded in Nu 14:4. gracious . . . abounding in love. See note on Ex 34:6–7.

remember[v] the miracles[w] you performed among them. They became stiff-necked[x] and in their rebellion appointed a leader in order to return to their slavery.[y] But you are a forgiving God,[z] gracious and compassionate,[a] slow to anger[b] and abounding in love.[c] Therefore you did not desert them,[d] 18even when they cast for themselves an image of a calf[e] and said, 'This is your god, who brought you up out of Egypt,' or when they committed awful blasphemies.[f]

19"Because of your great compassion you did not abandon[g] them in the desert. By day the pillar of cloud[h] did not cease to guide them on their path, nor the pillar of fire by night to shine on the way they were to take. 20You gave your good Spirit[i] to instruct[j] them. You did not withhold your manna[k] from their mouths, and you gave them water[l] for their thirst. 21For forty years[m] you sustained them in the desert; they lacked nothing,[n] their clothes did not wear out nor did their feet become swollen.[o]

22"You gave them kingdoms and nations, allotting to them even the remotest frontiers. They took over the country of Sihon[yp] king of Heshbon and the country of Og king of Bashan.[q] 23You made their sons as numerous as the stars in the sky,[r] and you brought them into the land that you told their fathers to enter and possess. 24Their sons went in and took possession of the land.[s] You subdued[t] before them the Canaanites, who lived in the land; you handed the Canaanites over to them, along with their kings and the peoples of the land, to deal with them as they pleased. 25They captured fortified cities and fertile land;[u] they took possession of houses filled with all kinds of good things,[v] wells already dug, vineyards, olive groves and fruit trees in abundance. They ate to the full and were well-nourished;[w] they reveled in your great goodness.[x]

26"But they were disobedient and rebelled against you; they put your law behind their backs.[y] They killed[z] your prophets,[a] who had admonished them in order to turn them back to you; they committed awful blasphemies.[b] 27So you handed them over to their enemies,[c] who oppressed them. But when they were oppressed they cried out to you. From heaven you heard them, and in your great compassion[d] you gave them deliverers,[e] who rescued them from the hand of their enemies.

28"But as soon as they were at rest, they again did what was evil in your sight.[f] Then you abandoned them to the hand of their enemies so that they ruled over them. And when they cried out to you again, you heard from heaven, and in your compassion[g] you delivered them[h] time after time.

29"You warned[i] them to return to your law, but they became arrogant[j] and disobeyed your commands. They sinned against your ordinances, by which a man will live if he obeys them.[k] Stubbornly they turned their backs[l] on you, became stiff-necked[m] and refused to listen.[n] 30For many years you were patient with them. By your Spirit you admonished them through your prophets.[o] Yet they paid no attention, so you handed them over to the neighboring peoples.[p] 31But in your great mercy you did not put an end[q] to them or abandon them, for you are a gracious and merciful[r] God.

9:18 blasphemies. See v. 26; Ex 32:4; Eze 35:12.
9:19 compassion. See vv. 27–28; a tender, maternal kind of love (see note on Zec 1:16).
9:20 Spirit to instruct. See Ex 31:3.
9:21 clothes did not wear out. Evidence of the special providence of God (see Dt 8:4; 29:5; contrast Jos 9:13). swollen. Or "blistered"; the Hebrew for this word occurs only here and in Dt 8:4.
9:22 Sihon . . . Og. See Nu 21:21–35.
9:23 numerous as the stars. See notes on Ge 13:16; 15:5; 22:17.
9:25 See Dt 6:10–12 and note; Jos 24:13. fertile. See v. 35; cf. Nu 14:7; Dt 8:7; Jos 23:13. wells already dug. Because of the lack of rainfall during much of the year, almost every house had its own well or cistern in which to store water from the rainy seasons (2Ki 18:31; Pr 5:15). By 1200 B.C. the technique of waterproofing cisterns was developed, permitting greater occupation of the central hills of Judah. vineyards, olive groves and fruit trees. Cf. Dt 8:8. The Egyptian story of Sinuhe (c. 2000 B.C.) describes Canaan as follows: "Figs were in it, and grapes. It had more wine than water. Plentiful was its honey, abundant its olives. Every (kind of) fruit was on its trees." well-nourished. Elsewhere the Hebrew for this word always implies physical fullness and spiritual insensitivity.

32"Now therefore, O our God, the great, mighty[s] and awesome God,[t] who keeps his covenant of love,[u] do not let all this hardship seem trifling in your eyes—the hardship[v] that has come upon us, upon our kings and leaders, upon our priests and prophets, upon our fathers and all your people, from the days of the kings of Assyria until today. 33In all that has happened to us, you have been just;[w] you have acted faithfully, while we did wrong.[x] 34Our kings,[y] our leaders, our priests and our fathers[z] did not follow your law; they did not pay attention to your commands or the warnings you gave them. 35Even while they were in their kingdom, enjoying your great goodness[a] to them in the spacious and fertile land you gave them, they did not serve you[b] or turn from their evil ways.

36"But see, we are slaves[c] today, slaves in the land you gave our forefathers so they could eat its fruit and the other good things it produces. 37Because of our sins, its abundant harvest goes to the kings you have placed over us. They rule over our bodies and our cattle as they please. We are in great distress.[d]

The Agreement of the People

38"In view of all this, we are making a binding agreement,[e] putting it in writing,[f] and our leaders, our Levites and our priests are affixing their seals to it."

10 Those who sealed it were:

Nehemiah the governor, the son of Hacaliah.

Zedekiah, 2Seraiah,[g] Azariah, Jeremiah, 3Pashhur,[h] Amariah, Malkijah, 4Hattush, Shebaniah, Malluch, 5Harim,[i] Meremoth, Obadiah, 6Daniel, Ginnethon, Baruch, 7Meshullam, Abijah, Mijamin, 8Maaziah, Bilgai and Shemaiah.
These were the priests.[j]

9The Levites:[k]

Jeshua son of Azaniah, Binnui of the sons of Henadad, Kadmiel, 10and their associates: Shebaniah, Hodiah, Kelita, Pelaiah, Hanan, 11Mica, Rehob, Hashabiah, 12Zaccur, Sherebiah, Shebaniah, 13Hodiah, Bani and Beninu.

14The leaders of the people:

The Romans misrepresented the Sabbath and the sabbath year as caused by laziness. According to Tacitus, the Jews "were led by the charms of indolence to give over the seventh year as well to inactivity."

go working the land[t] and will cancel all debts.[u]

32"We assume the responsibility for carrying out the commands to give a third of a shekel[z] each year for the service of the house of our God: 33for the bread set out on the table;[v] for the regular grain offerings and burnt offerings; for the offerings on the Sabbaths, New Moon[w] festivals and appointed feasts; for the holy offerings; for sin offerings to make atonement for Israel; and for all the duties of the house of our God.[x]

34"We—the priests, the Levites and the people—have cast lots[y] to determine when each of our families is to bring to the house of our God at set times each year a contribution of wood[z] to burn on the altar of the LORD our God, as it is written in the Law.

35"We also assume responsibility for bringing to the house of the LORD each year the firstfruits[a] of our crops and of every fruit tree.[b]

36"As it is also written in the Law, we will bring the firstborn[c] of our sons and of our cattle, of our herds and of our flocks to the house of our God, to the priests ministering there.[d]

37"Moreover, we will bring to the storerooms of the house of our God, to the priests, the first of our ground meal, of our ⌞grain⌟ offerings, of the fruit of all our trees and of our new wine and oil.[e] And we will bring a tithe[f] of our crops to the Levites,[g] for it is the Levites who collect the tithes in all the towns where we work.[h] 38A priest descended from Aaron is to accompany the Levites when they receive the tithes, and the Levites are to bring a tenth of the tithes[i] up to the house of our God, to the storerooms of the treasury. 39The people of Israel, including the Levites, are to bring their contributions of grain, new wine and oil to the storerooms where the articles for the sanctuary are kept and where the ministering priests, the gatekeepers and the singers stay.

"We will not neglect the house of our God."[j]

The New Residents of Jerusalem

11:3–19pp — 1Ch 9:1–17

11 Now the leaders of the people settled in Jerusalem, and the rest of the people cast lots to bring one out of every ten to live in Jerusalem,[k] the holy city,[l] while the remaining nine were to stay in their own towns.[m] 2The people commended all the men who volunteered to live in Jerusalem.

3These are the provincial leaders who settled in Jerusalem (now some Israel-

10:32 third of a shekel. Ex 30:13–14 speaks of a "half shekel" as "an offering to the LORD" from each man who was 20 years old or more as a symbolic ransom. Later Joash used the annual contributions for the repair of the temple (2Ch 24:4–14). In the NT period Jewish men from everywhere sent an offering of a half shekel (actually two drachmas, its equivalent; see Josephus, Antiquities, 3.8.2) for the temple in Jerusalem (Mt 17:24). The pledge of a third of a shekel in Nehemiah's time may have been due to economic circumstances.

10:33 bread. See note on Lev 24:8.

10:34 cast lots. See notes on 11:1; Jnh 1:7. contribution of wood. Though there is no specific reference to a wood offering in the Pentateuch, the perpetual burning of fire on the sanctuary altar (Lev 6:12–13) would have required a continual supply of wood. Josephus mentions "the festival of wood offering" on the 14th day of the fifth month (Ab). The Jewish Mishnah (rabbinic interpretations and applications of Pentateuchal laws) lists nine times when certain families brought wood, and stipulates that all kinds of wood were suitable except the vine and the olive. The Temple Scroll from Qumran describes the celebration of a wood offering festival for six days following a new oil festival.

10:35 firstfruits. Brought to the sanctuary to support the priests and Levites (Ex 23:19; Nu 18:13; Dt 26:1–11; Eze 44:30).

10:36 firstborn. See note on Ex 13:13.

10:37 storerooms. Chambers in the courts of the temple were used as storage rooms for silver, gold and sacred articles (cf. vv. 38–39; 12:44; 13:4–5,9; Ezr 8:28–30). new wine. See note on Dt 7:13. Though the Hebrew for this term can refer to freshly pressed grape juice (Isa 65:8; Mic 6:15), it can also be used of intoxicating wine (Hos 4:11). tithe. See notes on Ge 14:20; 28:22; Lev 27:30; Am 4:4. Levites. Tithes were meant for their support (13:12–13; Nu 18:21–32).

10:39 See 13:11. We will not neglect. Haggai (Hag 1:4–9) had accused the people of neglecting the temple.

11:1 cast lots. See 10:34. Lots were usually made out of small stones or pieces of wood. Sometimes arrows were used (Eze 21:21). one out of every ten to live in Jerusalem. Josephus (Antiquities, 11.5.8) asserts: "But Nehemiah, seeing that the city had a small population, urged the priests and Levites to leave the countryside and move to the city and remain there, for he had prepared houses for them at his own expense." The practice of redistributing populations was also used to establish Greek and Hellenistic cities. It involved the forcible transfer from rural settlements to urban centers. Tiberias on the Sea of Galilee was populated with Gentiles by such a process by Herod Antipas in A.D. 18. holy city. See Isa 48:2 and note; Da 9:24; Mt 4:5; 27:53; Rev 11:2; cf. Joel 3:17.

11:2 In addition to those chosen by lot (v. 1), some volunteered out of a sense of duty. But evidently most preferred to stay in their hometowns.

11:3–19 A census roster that parallels 1Ch 9:2–21, a list of the first residents in Jerusalem after the return from Babylonia. About half the names in the two lists are the same.

ites, priests, Levites, temple servants and descendants of Solomon's servants lived in the towns of Judah, each on his own property in the various towns,[n] [4]while other people from both Judah and Benjamin[o] lived in Jerusalem):[p]

From the descendants of Judah:

Athaiah son of Uzziah, the son of Zechariah, the son of Amariah, the son of Shephatiah, the son of Mahalalel, a descendant of Perez; [5]and Maaseiah son of Baruch, the son of Col-Hozeh, the son of Hazaiah, the son of Adaiah, the son of Joiarib, the son of Zechariah, a descendant of Shelah. [6]The descendants of Perez who lived in Jerusalem totaled 468 able men.

[7]From the descendants of Benjamin:

Sallu son of Meshullam, the son of Joed, the son of Pedaiah, the son of Kolaiah, the son of Maaseiah, the son of Ithiel, the son of Jeshaiah, [8]and his followers, Gabbai and Sallai—928 men. [9]Joel son of Zicri was their chief officer, and Judah son of Hassenuah was over the Second District of the city.

[10]From the priests:

Jedaiah; the son of Joiarib; Jakin; [11]Seraiah[q] son of Hilkiah, the son of Meshullam, the son of Zadok, the son of Meraioth, the son of Ahitub,[r] supervisor in the house of God, [12]and their associates, who carried on work for the temple—822 men; Adaiah son of Jeroham, the son of Pelaliah, the son of Amzi, the son of Zechariah, the son of Pashhur, the son of Malkijah, [13]and his associates, who were heads of families—242 men; Amashsai son of Azarel, the son of Ahzai, the son of Meshillemoth, the son of Immer, [14]and his[a] associates, who were able men—128. Their chief officer was Zabdiel son of Haggedolim.

[15]From the Levites:

Shemaiah son of Hasshub, the son of Azrikam, the son of Hashabiah, the son of Bunni; [16]Shabbethai[s] and Jozabad,[t] two of the heads of the Levites, who had charge of the outside work of the house of God; [17]Mattaniah[u] son of Mica, the son of Zabdi, the son of Asaph,[v] the director who led in thanksgiving and prayer; Bakbukiah, second among his associates; and Abda son of Shammua, the son of Galal, the son of Jeduthun.[w] [18]The Levites in the holy city[x] totaled 284.

[19]The gatekeepers:

Akkub, Talmon and their associates, who kept watch at the gates—172 men.

[20]The rest of the Israelites, with the priests and Levites, were in all the towns of Judah, each on his ancestral property. [21]The temple servants[y] lived on the hill of Ophel, and Ziha and Gishpa were in charge of them.

[22]The chief officer of the Levites in Jerusalem was Uzzi son of Bani, the son of Hashabiah, the son of Mattaniah,[z] the son of Mica. Uzzi was one of Asaph's descendants, who were the singers responsible for the service of the house of God. [23]The singers[a] were under the king's orders, which regulated their daily activity.

[24]Pethahiah son of Meshezabel, one of the descendants of Zerah[b] son of Judah, was the king's agent in all affairs relating to the people.

[25]As for the villages with their fields, some of the people of Judah lived in Kiri-

11:8 928. The men of Benjamin provided twice as many men as Judah (v. 6) to live in and protect the city of Jerusalem.

11:9 Second District. See 2Ch 34:22 (in Zep 1:10 the Hebrew for this phrase is translated "New Quarter"). Like the "market district" (Zep 1:11), which was probably the Tyropoeon Valley area, the Second District was a new suburb west of the temple area. Excavations indicate that the city had spread outside the walls in this direction by the late eighth century B.C. before the so-called Broad Wall was built c. 700 by Hezekiah (see note on 3:8).

11:16 outside work. Duties outside the temple (cf. 1Ch 26:29) but connected with it.

11:17 Asaph. See note on Ezr 2:41; see also titles of Ps 50; 73–83. Jeduthun. See 1Ch 16:42; 25:1,3; 2Ch 5:12; titles of Ps 39; 62; 77.

11:18 284. The relatively small number of Levites, compared with 1,192 priests (the total of 822, 242 and 128 in vv. 12–13), is striking (see note on Ezr 2:40).

11:20 ancestral property. Inalienable hereditary possessions—including land, buildings and movable goods—acquired by either conquest or inheritance (Ge 31:14; Nu 18:21; 27:7; 34:2; 36:3; 1Ki 21:1–4).

11:21 Ophel. See note on 3:26.

11:23 king's orders . . . regulated. David had regulated the services of the Levites, including the singers (1Ch 25). The Persian king, Darius I, gave a royal stipend so that the Jewish elders might "pray for the well-being of the king and his sons" (Ezr 6:10). Artaxerxes I may have done much the same for the Levite choir.

11:25–30 An important list, corresponding to earlier lists of towns in Judah. All these names also appear in Jos 15 with the exception of Dibon, Jekabzeel (but see Kabzeel in Jos 15:21), Jeshua, Meconah and En Rimmon (but see Ain and Rimmon in Jos 15:32). The list, however, is not comprehensive, since a number of towns listed in ch. 3; Ezr 2:21–22 are lacking. No Judean coins have been found outside the area designated by vv. 25–30.

So they were living all the way from Beersheba[p] to the Valley of Hinnom.

[31]The descendants of the Benjamites from Geba[q] lived in Micmash,[r] Aija, Bethel[s] and its settlements, [32]in Anathoth,[t] Nob[u] and Ananiah, [33]in Hazor,[v] Ramah[w] and Gittaim,[x] [34]in Hadid, Zeboim[y] and Neballat, [35]in Lod and Ono,[z] and in the Valley of the Craftsmen.

[36]Some of the divisions of the Levites of Judah settled in Benjamin.

Priests and Levites

12 These were the priests[a] and Levites[b] who returned with Zerubbabel[c] son of Shealtiel[d] and with Jeshua:[e]

These were the leaders of the priests and their associates in the days of Jeshua.

[8]The Levites were Jeshua,[j] Binnui, Kadmiel, Sherebiah, Judah, and also Mattaniah,[k] who, together with his associates, was in charge of the songs of thanksgiving. [9]Bakbukiah and Unni, their associates, stood opposite them in the services.

[c] 5 A variant of Miniamin

11:25 Kiriath Arba. See note on Ge 23:2. In the Hellenistic era it fell to the Idumeans, together with other Judean towns.

11:26 Moladah. Near Beersheba; later occupied by the Idumeans. Beth Pelet. Means "house of refuge," a site near Beersheba.

11:27 Hazar Shual. Means "enclosure of a fox" (see 1Ch 4:28). Beersheba. See note and NIV text note on Ge 21:31. Archaeological excavations reveal that the city was destroyed by Sennacherib in 701 B.C. and only resettled in the Persian period.

11:28 Ziklag. Given to David by Achish, king of Gath (1Sa 27:6), and taken by the Amalekites (1Sa 30:1); see Jos 15:31.

11:29 En Rimmon. Means "spring of the pomegranate," probably Khirbet Umm er-Ramamin, nine miles north-northeast of Beersheba (see Jos 15:32). Zorah. See note on Jdg 13:2. Jarmuth. Eight miles north-northeast of Eleutheropolis (Beit Jibrin), it was one of five Canaanite cities in the south that attempted to halt Joshua's invasion (Jos 10:3–5).

11:31–35 Most of the Benjamite towns listed here appear also in 7:26–38; Ezr 2:23–35.

11:31 Geba. See 12:29; see also note on 1Sa 13:3. Micmash. See note on 1Sa 13:2. Aija. An alternate name for Ai (see note on Jos 7:2). Bethel. See notes on Ge 12:8; Jos 7:2; Ezr 2:28; Am 4:4.

11:32 Anathoth. See note on Jer 1:1. Nob. See note on 1Sa 21:1. Ananiah. Probably Bethany, meaning "house of Ananiah" (see note on Mt 21:17).

11:33 Gittaim. Its location is not known.

11:34 Hadid. Three to four miles northeast of Lod (see 7:37; Ezr 2:33).

11:35 Lod. See note on Ezr 2:33. Ono. See note on 6:2. Valley of the Craftsmen. See 1Ch 4:14 and NIV text note. It may be the broad valley between Lod and Ono. The name may preserve the memory of the Philistine iron monopoly (1Sa 13:19–20).

12:1 Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel. See Ezr 3:2,8; 5:2; see also note on Hag 1:1. Jeshua. Returned from Babylonian exile in 538 B.C. (see vv. 10,26; 7:7; Ezr 2:2 and note; Hag 1:1; Zec 3:1 and note). Ezra. Not the Ezra of the book, who was the leader of the exiles who returned 80 years later.

12:7 leaders of the priests. The rotation of 24 priestly houses was established at the time of David (1Ch 24:3,7–19). Twenty-two heads of priestly houses are mentioned in vv. 1–7. Inscriptions listing the 24 divisions of the priests probably hung in many synagogues in the Holy Land. So far, only fragments of two such inscriptions have been recovered—from Ashkelon in the 1920s and from Caesarea in the 1960s (dated to the third and fourth centuries A.D.).

12:9 opposite them. See v. 24; Ezr 3:11 and note; cf. 2Ch 7:6. The singing was antiphonal, with two sections of the choir standing opposite each other. services. The Hebrew for this word (Mishmarot) is the title of a work from Qumran, which discusses in detail the rotation of the priestly families' service in the temple according to the sect's solar calendar and synchronized with the conventional lunar calendar.

12:10 Jeshua. See note on v. 1. Joiakim. See vv. 12,26. Eliashib. See vv. 22–23; the high priest who assisted in rebuilding the wall (3:1,20–21; 13:28). A priest named Eliashib was guilty of defiling the temple by assigning rooms to Tobiah the Ammonite (13:4,7). It is not known whether this Eliashib was the same as the high priest.

12:11 Jonathan. Since v. 22 mentions a Johanan after Joiada and before Jaddua, and v. 23 identifies Johanan as "son" of Eliashib, some believe that "Jonathan" is an error for "Johanan." Further complicating the identification are attempts to identify this high priest with a "Johanan" mentioned in the Elephantine papyri and in Josephus (Antiquities, 11.7.1). Such an identification, however, is disputable.

Jonathan, and Jonathan the father of Jaddua.

12 In the days of Joiakim, these were the heads of the priestly families:
of Seraiah's family, Meraiah;
of Jeremiah's, Hananiah; 13 of Ezra's, Meshullam;
of Amariah's, Jehohanan; 14 of Malluch's, Jonathan;
of Shecaniah's,[d] Joseph; 15 of Harim's, Adna;
of Meremoth's,[e] Helkai; 16 of Iddo's,[m] Zechariah;
of Ginnethon's, Meshullam; 17 of Abijah's,[n] Zicri;
of Miniamin's and of Moadiah's, Piltai; 18 of Bilgah's, Shammua;
of Shemaiah's, Jehonathan; 19 of Joiarib's, Mattenai;
of Jedaiah's, Uzzi; 20 of Sallu's, Kallai;
of Amok's, Eber; 21 of Hilkiah's, Hashabiah; of Jedaiah's, Nethanel.

22 The family heads of the Levites in the days of Eliashib, Joiada, Johanan and Jaddua, as well as those of the priests, were recorded in the reign of Darius the Persian. 23 The family heads among the descendants of Levi up to the time of Johanan son of Eliashib were recorded in the book of the annals. 24 And the leaders of the Levites[o] were Hashabiah, Sherebiah, Jeshua son of Kadmiel, and their associates, who stood opposite them to give praise and thanksgiving, one section responding to the other, as prescribed by David the man of God.[p]

25 Mattaniah, Bakbukiah, Obadiah, Meshullam, Talmon and Akkub were gatekeepers who guarded the storerooms at the gates. 26 They served in the days of Joiakim son of Jeshua, the son of Jozadak, and in the days of Nehemiah the governor and of Ezra the priest and scribe.

Dedication of the Wall of Jerusalem

27 At the dedication[q] of the wall of Jerusalem, the Levites were sought out from where they lived and were brought to Jerusalem to celebrate joyfully the dedication with songs of thanksgiving and with the music of cymbals,[r] harps and lyres.[s] 28 The singers also were brought together from the region around Jerusalem—from the villages of the Netophathites,[t] 29 from Beth Gilgal, and from the area of Geba and Azmaveth, for the singers had built villages for themselves around Jerusalem. 30 When the priests and Levites had purified themselves ceremonially, they purified the people,[u] the gates and the wall.

31 I had the leaders of Judah go up on top[f] of the wall. I also assigned two large choirs to give thanks. One was to proceed on top[g] of the wall to the right, toward the Dung Gate.[v] 32 Hoshaiah and half the leaders of Judah followed them, 33 along with Azariah, Ezra, Meshullam, 34 Judah, Benjamin,[w] Shemaiah, Jeremiah, 35 as well as some priests with trumpets,[x] and also Zechariah son of Jonathan, the son of Shemaiah, the son of Mattaniah, the son of Micaiah, the son of 12:12–21 All but one (Hattush, v. 2) of the 22 priestly families listed in vv. 1–7 are repeated (Rehum, v. 3, is a variant of Harim, v. 15; Mijamin, v. 5, is a variant of Miniamin, v. 17) in this later list, which dates to the time of Joiakim (v. 12), high priest in the late sixth and/or early fifth centuries B.C.

12:23 book of the annals. Cf. 7:5. This may have been the official temple chronicle, containing various lists and records. Cf. the annals of the Persian kings (Ezr 4:15; Est 2:23; 6:1; 10:2); cf. also the "book of the annals of the kings," mentioned frequently in 1, 2 Kings.

12:26 Nehemiah . . . Ezra. See note on 8:9.

12:27 dedication. See note on Ezr 6:16. cymbals. See note on Ezr 3:10. Cymbals were used in religious ceremonies (1Ch 16:42; 25:1; 2Ch 5:12; 29:25). Ancient examples have been found at Beth Shemesh and Tell Abu Hawam. harps. See note on Ge 31:27; used mainly in religious ceremonies (1Sa 10:5; 2Sa 6:5; Ps 150:3). Ancient harps have been reconstructed from information derived from the remains of harps at Ur, pictures of harps, and cuneiform texts describing in detail the tuning of harps. lyres. Had strings of the same length but of different diameters and tensions (see 1Ch 15:16; Da 3:5).

12:28 Netophathites. From Netophah, a town near Bethlehem (7:26).

12:29 Beth Gilgal. Perhaps the Gilgal near Jericho (see note on Jos 4:19), or the Gilgal of Elijah (2Ki 2:1), about seven miles north of Bethel.

12:30 purified. See note on Lev 4:12. The Levites are said to have purified all that was sacred in the temple (1Ch 23:28) and the temple itself (2Ch 29:15) during times of revival. Ritual purity was intended to teach God's holiness and moral purity (Lev 16:30).

12:31 two large choirs. See note on v. 38. The two great processions probably started from the area of the Valley Gate (2:13,15; 3:13) near the center of the western section of the wall. The first procession, led by Ezra (v. 36), moved in a counterclockwise direction upon the wall; the second, with Nehemiah (v. 38), moved in a clockwise direction. Both met between the Water Gate (v. 37) and the Gate of the Guard (v. 39), then entered the temple area. Cf. Ps 48:12–13. to the right. Or "to the south." The Semite oriented himself facing east, so the right hand represented the south (see Jos 17:7; 1Sa 23:24; Job 23:9). Dung Gate. See note on 2:13.

12:35 trumpets. See note on Ezr 3:10. Each choir had priests blowing trumpets, as well as Levites playing other musical instruments. Asaph. See note on 11:17.

Zaccur, the son of Asaph, 36and his associates—Shemaiah, Azarel, Milalai, Gilalai, Maai, Nethanel, Judah and Hanani—with musical instruments[y] prescribed by David the man of God.[z] Ezra[a] the scribe led the procession. 37At the Fountain Gate[b] they continued directly up the steps of the City of David on the ascent to the wall and passed above the house of David to the Water Gate[c] on the east.

40The two choirs that gave thanks then took their places in the house of God; so did I, together with half the officials, 41as well as the priests—Eliakim, Maaseiah, Miniamin, Micaiah, Elioenai, Zechariah and Hananiah with their trumpets—42and also Maaseiah, Shemaiah, Eleazar, Uzzi, Jehohanan, Malkijah, Elam and Ezer. The choirs sang under the direction of Jezrahiah. 43And on that day they offered great sacrifices, rejoicing because God had given them great joy. The women and children also rejoiced. The sound of rejoicing in Jerusalem could be heard far away.

44At that time men were appointed to be in charge of the storerooms[l] for the contributions, firstfruits and tithes.[m] From the fields around the towns they were to bring into the storerooms the portions required by the Law for the priests and the Levites, for Judah was pleased with the ministering priests and Levites.[n] 45They performed the service of their God and the service of purification, as did also the singers and gatekeepers, according to the commands of David[o] and his son Solomon.[p] 46For long ago, in the days of David and Asaph,[q] there had been directors for the singers and for the songs of praise[r] and thanksgiving to God. 47So in the days of Zerubbabel and of Nehemiah, all Israel contributed the daily portions for the singers and gatekeepers. They also set aside the portion for the other Levites, and the Levites set aside the portion for the descendants of Aaron.[s]

Nehemiah's Final Reforms

13 On that day the Book of Moses was read aloud in the hearing of the people and there it was found written that no Ammonite or Moabite should ever be admitted into the assembly of God,[t] 2because they had not met the Israelites with food and water but had hired Balaam[u] to call a curse down on them.[v] (Our God, however, turned the curse into a blessing.)[w] 3When the people heard this law, they excluded from Israel all who were of foreign descent.[x]

4Before this, Eliashib the priest had been put in charge of the storerooms[y] of the house of our God. He was closely associated with Tobiah,[z] 5and he had provided him with a large room formerly used to store the grain offerings and incense and temple articles, and also the tithes[a] of grain, new wine and oil prescribed for the Levites, singers and gatekeepers, as well as the contributions for the priests.

6But while all this was going on, I was not in Jerusalem, for in the thirty-second year of Artaxerxes[b] king of Babylon I had returned to the king. Some time later I asked his permission 7and came back to Nu 18:21–32; Dt 14:28–29; 26:12–15). Elsewhere we read of the chamber of Meshullam (3:30) and of Jehohanan (Ezr 10:6).

13:7 came back to Jerusalem. Nehemiah's second term must have ended before 407 B.C., when Bagohi (Bigvai) was governor of Judah according to the Elephantine papyri. Some have suggested that after Nehemiah's first term he was succeeded by his brother Hanani (see Jerusalem. Here I learned about the evil thing Eliashib[c] had done in providing Tobiah[d] a room in the courts of the house of God. [8]I was greatly displeased and threw all Tobiah's household goods out of the room.[e] [9]I gave orders to purify the rooms,[f] and then I put back into them the equipment of the house of God, with the grain offerings and the incense.[g]

[10]I also learned that the portions assigned to the Levites had not been given to them,[h] and that all the Levites and singers responsible for the service had gone back to their own fields.[i] [11]So I rebuked the officials and asked them, "Why is the house of God neglected?"[j] Then I called them together and stationed them at their posts.

[12]All Judah brought the tithes[k] of grain, new wine and oil into the storerooms.[l] [13]I put Shelemiah the priest, Zadok the scribe, and a Levite named Pedaiah in charge of the storerooms and made Hanan son of Zaccur, the son of Mattaniah, their assistant, because these men were considered trustworthy. They were made responsible for distributing the supplies to their brothers.[m]

[14]Remember[n] me for this, O my God, and do not blot out what I have so faithfully done for the house of my God and its services.

[15]In those days I saw men in Judah treading winepresses on the Sabbath and bringing in grain and loading it on donkeys, together with wine, grapes, figs and all other kinds of loads. And they were bringing all this into Jerusalem on the Sabbath.[o] Therefore I warned them against selling food on that day. [16]Men from Tyre who lived in Jerusalem were bringing in fish and all kinds of merchandise and selling them in Jerusalem on the Sabbath[p] to the people of Judah. [17]I rebuked the nobles of Judah and said to them, "What is this wicked thing you are doing—desecrating the Sabbath day? [18]Didn't your forefathers do the same things, so that our God brought all this calamity upon us and upon this city?[q] Now you are stirring up more wrath against Israel by desecrating the Sabbath."[r]

[19]When evening shadows fell on the gates of Jerusalem before the Sabbath,[s] I ordered the doors to be shut and not opened until the Sabbath was over. I stationed some of my own men at the gates so that no load could be brought in on note on 1:2). courts. See note on 8:16. Zerubbabel's temple had two courtyards (Zec 3:7; cf. Isa 62:9).

13:8 displeased ... threw. Nehemiah expressed his indignation by taking action (cf. vv. 24–25; 5:6–7). Contrast the reaction of Ezra, who "sat down appalled" (Ezr 9:3). Nehemiah's action reminds us of Christ's expulsion of the money changers from the temple area (Mt 21:12–13).

13:9 rooms. Though only a single chamber was mentioned in vv. 5–8, additional rooms were involved. A parallel to the occupation and desecration of the temple by Tobiah comes from a century earlier in Egypt, where Greek mercenaries had occupied the temple of Neith at Sais. Upon the appeal of the Egyptian priest, Udjahorresnet, the Persian king had the squatters driven out and the temple's ceremonies, processions and revenues restored: "And His Majesty commanded that all the foreigners who had settled in the temple of Neith should be driven out and that all their houses and all their superfluities that were in this temple should be thrown down, and that all their own baggage should be carried for them outside the wall of this temple."

13:10 Nehemiah was apparently correcting an abuse of long standing. Strictly speaking, the Levites had no holdings (Nu 18:20,23–24; Dt 14:29; 18:1), but some may have had private income (Dt 18:8). Therefore the Levites were dependent on the faithful support of the people. This may explain the reluctance of great numbers of Levites to return from exile (see Ezr 8:15–20). For the complaints of those who found little material advantage in serving the Lord see Mal 2:17; 3:13–15.

13:11 neglected. See note on 10:39.

13:12 tithes. See 12:44. Temples in Mesopotamia also levied tithes for the support of their personnel.

13:13 Of the four treasurers, one was a priest, one a Levite, one a scribe and one a layman of rank. trustworthy. Nehemiah appointed honest men to make sure that supplies were distributed equitably, just as the church appointed deacons for this purpose (Ac 6:1–5).

13:15 treading winepresses. See notes on Isa 5:2; 16:10. Sabbath. The temptation to violate the Sabbath rest was especially characteristic of non-Jewish merchants (see 10:31; Isa 56:1–8). On the other hand, the high regard that many had for the Sabbath was expressed by parents who called their children Shabbethai (see 8:7; 11:16; Ezr 10:15).

13:16 Tyre. See note on Isa 23:1. fish. Most of the fish exported by the Tyrians (Eze 26:4–5,14) was dried, smoked or salted. Fish, much of it from the Sea of Galilee, was an important part of the Israelites' diet (Lev 11:9; Nu 11:5; Mt 15:34; Lk 24:42; Jn 21:5–13). It was sold at the market near the Fish Gate (see note on 3:3).

13:17 rebuked the nobles. Because they were the leaders. desecrating. Turning what is sacred into common use and so profaning it (see Mal 2:10–11).

13:19 When evening shadows fell on the gates. Before sunset, when the Sabbath began. The Israelites, like the Babylonians, counted their days from sunset to sunset (the Egyptians reckoned theirs from dawn to dawn). The precise moment when the Sabbath began was heralded by the blowing of a trumpet by a priest. According to the Jewish Mishnah, "On the eve of Sabbath they used to blow six more blasts, three to cause the people to cease from work and three to mark the break between the sacred and the profane." Josephus (Wars, 4.9.12) speaks of the location on the parapet of the temple where the priests "gave a signal beforehand, with a trumpet, at the beginning of every seventh day, in the evening twilight, and also at the evening when that day was finished, announcing to the people the respective hours for ceasing work and for resuming their labors." Excavators at the temple mount recovered a stone from the southwest corner of the parapet, which had fallen to the ground in Titus's siege, with the inscription "for the place of the blowing (of the trumpet)."

the Sabbath day. [20]Once or twice the merchants and sellers of all kinds of goods spent the night outside Jerusalem. [21]But I warned them and said, "Why do you spend the night by the wall? If you do this again, I will lay hands on you." From that time on they no longer came on the Sabbath. [22]Then I commanded the Levites to purify themselves and go and guard the gates in order to keep the Sabbath day holy.

Remember[t] me for this also, O my God, and show mercy to me according to your great love.

[23]Moreover, in those days I saw men of Judah who had married[u] women from Ashdod, Ammon and Moab.[v] [24]Half of their children spoke the language of Ashdod or the language of one of the other peoples, and did not know how to speak the language[w] of Judah. [25]I rebuked them and called curses down on them. I beat some of the men and pulled out their hair. I made them take an oath[x] in God's name and said: "You are not to give your daughters in marriage to their sons, nor are you to take their daughters in marriage for your sons or for yourselves.[y] [26]Was it not because of marriages like these that Solomon king of Israel sinned? Among the many nations there was no king like him.[z] He was loved by his God,[a] and God made him king over all Israel, but even he was led into sin by foreign women.[b] [27]Must we hear now that you too are doing all this terrible wickedness and are being unfaithful to our God by marrying[c] foreign women?"

[28]One of the sons of Joiada son of Eliashib[d] the high priest was son-in-law to Sanballat[e] the Horonite. And I drove him away from me.

[29]Remember[f] them, O my God, because they defiled the priestly office and the covenant of the priesthood and of the Levites.[g]

[30]So I purified the priests and the Levites of everything foreign,[h] and assigned them duties, each to his own task. [31]I also made provision for contributions of wood[i] at designated times, and for the firstfruits.[j]

Remember[k] me with favor, O my God.

13:24 The Israelites recognized other people as foreigners by their languages (see Dt 3:9; Jdg 12:6; Ps 114:1; Isa 33:19; Eze 3:5–6).

13:25 pulled out their hair. See Ezr 9:3; Isa 50:6 and notes. You are not to give. Nehemiah's action was designed to prevent future intermarriages, whereas Ezra dissolved the existing unions.

13:26 Solomon. Israel's outstanding king in terms of wealth and political achievements (1Ki 3:13; 2Ch 1:12). Solomon began his reign by humbly asking for wisdom from the Lord (1Ki 3:5–9). he was led into sin. In later years his foreign wives led him to worship other gods, so that he built a high place for Chemosh, the god of the Moabites (1Ki 11:7).

13:28 son-in-law to Sanballat. According to Lev 21:14 the high priest was not to marry a foreigner. The expulsion of Joiada's son followed either this special ban or the general prohibition against intermarriage. The union described in this verse was especially rankling to Nehemiah in the light of Sanballat's enmity (see 2:10). Josephus (Antiquities, 11.7.2) records that an almost identical episode, involving a marriage between the daughter of a Sanballat of Samaria and the brother of the Jewish high priest, took place a little over a century later in the time of Alexander the Great.

13:30 duties. Or "divisions," referring to the assignment of particular duties to groups of priests and Levites, possibly on a rotating basis (see note on 12:9).

13:31 wood. See note on 10:34. firstfruits. See note on 10:35. Remember me with favor. The last recorded words of Nehemiah recapitulate a theme running through the final chapter (vv. 14,22; see note on 1:8). His motive throughout his ministry was to please and to serve his divine Sovereign.

Esther

Author and Date

Although we do not know who wrote the book of Esther, from internal evidence it is possible to make some inferences about the author and the date of composition. It is clear that the author was a Jew, both from his emphasis on the origin of a Jewish festival and from the Jewish nationalism that permeates the story. The author's knowledge of Persian customs, the setting of the story in the city of Susa and the absence of any reference to the land of Judah or to Jerusalem suggest that he was a resident of a Persian city. The earliest date for the book would be shortly after the events narrated, i.e., c. 460 B.C. (before Ezra's return to Jerusalem; see note on 8:12). Internal evidence also suggests that the festival of Purim had been observed for some time prior to the writing of the book (9:19). Several scholars have dated the book in the Hellenistic period; the absence of Greek words and the style of the author's Hebrew dialect, however, suggest that the book must have been written before the Persian empire fell to Greece in 331.

Purpose, Themes and Literary Features

The author's central purpose was to record the institution of the annual festival of Purim and to keep alive for later generations the memory of the great deliverance of the Jewish people during the reign of Xerxes. The book accounts for both the initiation of that observance and the obligation for its perpetual commemoration (see 3:7; 9:24,28–32; see also chart on "OT Feasts and Other Sacred Days," p. 174).

Throughout much of the story the author calls to mind the ongoing conflict of Israel with the Amalekites (see notes on 2:5; 3:1–6; 9:5–10), a conflict that began during the exodus (Ex 17:8–16; Dt 25:17–19) and continued through Israel's history (1Sa 15; 1Ch 4:43; and, of course, Esther). As the first to attack Israel after their deliverance from Egypt, the Amalekites were viewed—and the author of Esther views them—as the epitome of all the powers of the world arrayed against God's people (see Nu 24:20; 1Sa 15:1–3; 28:18). Now that Israel has been released from captivity, Haman's edict is the final major effort in the OT period to destroy them.

Closely associated with the conflict with the Amalekites is the rest that is promised to the people of God (see Dt 25:19). With Haman's defeat the Jews enjoy rest from their enemies (9:16,22).

The author also draws upon the remnant motif that recurs throughout the Bible (natural disasters, disease, warfare or other calamities threaten God's people; those who survive constitute a remnant). Events in the Persian city of Susa threatened the continuity of God's purposes in redemptive history. The future existence of God's chosen people, and ultimately the appearance of the Redeemer-Messiah, were jeopardized by Haman's edict to destroy the Jews. The author of Esther patterned much of his material on the events of the Joseph story (see notes on 2:3–4,9,21–23; 3:4; 4:14; 6:1,8,14; 8:6), in which the remnant motif is also central to the narrative (Ge 45:7).

Feasting is another prominent theme in Esther, as shown in the outline below. Banquets provide the setting for important plot developments. There are ten banquets: (1) 1:3–4, (2) 1:5–8, (3) 1:9, (4) 2:18, (5) 3:15, (6) 5:1–8, (7) 7:1–10, (8) 8:17, (9) 9:17, (10) 9:18–32. The three pairs of banquets that mark the beginning, middle and end of the story are particularly prominent: the two banquets given by Xerxes, the two prepared by Esther and the double celebration of Purim.

Recording duplications appears to be one of the favorite compositional techniques of the writer. In addition to the three groups of banquets that come in pairs there are two lists of the king's servants (1:10,14), two reports that Esther concealed her identity (2:10,20), two gatherings of the women (2:8,19), two houses for the women (2:12–14), two fasts (4:3,16), two consultations of Haman with his wife and friends (5:14; 6:13), two unscheduled appearances of Esther before the king (5:2; 8:3), two investitures for Mordecai (6:7–11; 8:15), two coverings of Haman's face (6:12; 7:8), two references to Haman's sons (5:11; 9:6–10, 13–14), two appearances of Harbona (1:10; 7:9), two royal edicts (3:12–14; 8:1–13), two references to the subsiding of the king's anger (2:1; 7:10), two references to the irrevocability of the Persian laws (1:19; 8:8), two days for the Jews to take vengeance (9:5–15) and two letters instituting the commemoration of Purim (9:20–32).

An outstanding feature of this book—one that has given rise to considerable discussion—is the complete absence of any explicit reference to God, worship, prayer, or sacrifice. This "secularity" has produced many detractors who have judged the book to be of little religious value. However, it appears that the author has deliberately refrained from mentioning God or any religious activity as a literary device to heighten the fact that it is God who controls and directs all the seemingly insignificant coincidences (see, e.g., note on 6:1) that make up the plot and issue in deliverance for the Jews. God's sovereign rule is assumed at every point (see note on 4:12–16), an assumption made all the more effective by the total absence of reference to him.

Queen Vashti Deposed

1 This is what happened during the time of Xerxes,[aa] the Xerxes who ruled over 127 provinces[b] stretching from India to Cush[b]:[c] 2At that time King Xerxes reigned from his royal throne in the citadel of Susa,[d] 3and in the third year of his reign he gave a banquet[e] for all his nobles and officials. The military leaders of Persia and Media, the princes, and the nobles of the provinces were present.

4For a full 180 days he displayed the vast wealth of his kingdom and the splendor and glory of his majesty. 5When these days were over, the king gave a banquet, lasting seven days,[f] in the enclosed garden[g] of the king's palace, for all the people from the least to the greatest, who were in the citadel of Susa. 6The garden had hangings of white and blue linen, fastened with cords of white linen and purple material to silver rings on marble pillars. There were couches[h] of gold and silver on a mosaic pavement of porphyry, marble, mother-of-pearl and other costly stones. 7Wine was served in goblets of gold, each one different from the other, and the royal wine was abundant, in keeping with the king's liberality.[i] 8By the king's command each guest was allowed to drink in his own way, for the king instructed all the wine stewards to serve each man what he wished.

10On the seventh day, when King Xerxes was in high spirits[k] from wine,[l] he commanded the seven eunuchs who served him—Mehuman, Biztha, Harbona,[m] Bigtha, Abagtha, Zethar and Carcas— 11to bring[n] before him Queen Vashti, wearing her royal crown, in order to display her beauty[o] to the people and nobles, for she was lovely to look at. 12But when the attendants delivered the king's command, Queen Vashti refused to come. Then the king became furious and burned with anger.[p] 13Since it was customary for the king to consult experts in matters of law and justice, he spoke with the wise men who understood the times[q] 14and were closest to the king—Carshena, Shethar, Admatha, Tarshish, Meres, Marsena and Memucan, the seven nobles[r] of Persia and Media who had special access to the king and were highest in the kingdom.

15"According to law, what must be done to Queen Vashti?" he asked. "She has not obeyed the command of King Xerxes that the eunuchs have taken to her."

16Then Memucan replied in the presence of the king and the nobles, "Queen Vashti has done wrong, not only against the king but also against all the nobles and the peoples of all the provinces of King Xerxes. 17For the queen's conduct will become known to all the women, and so they will despise their husbands and say, 'King Xerxes commanded Queen Vashti to be brought before him, but she would not come.' 18This very day the Persian and Median women of the nobility who have heard about the queen's conduct will respond to all the king's nobles in the same way. There will be no end of disrespect and discord.[s]

1:1 Xerxes. A transliteration of the Greek form of the Persian name Khshayarshan (see note on Ezr 4:6; see also NIV text note here). Xerxes succeeded his father Darius and ruled 486–465 B.C. 127 provinces. See 8:9. The Greek historian Herodotus (3.89) records that Xerxes's father Darius had organized the empire into 20 satrapies. (Satraps, the rulers of the satrapies, are mentioned in 3:12; 8:9; 9:3.) The provinces were smaller administrative units.

1:2 citadel of Susa. The fortified acropolis and palace complex; it is distinguished from the surrounding city in 3:15; 4:1–2,6; 8:15. Several archaeological investigations have been made at the site since the mid–19th century. Xerxes had made extensive renovations in the palace structures. Susa. The winter residence of the Persian kings; the three other capitals were Ecbatana (Ezr 6:2), Babylon and Persepolis. One of Daniel's visions was set in Susa (Da 8:2); Nehemiah also served there (Ne 1:1).

1:3–4 The year (483–482 B.C.), the persons in attendance and the length of the meeting suggest that the purpose of the gathering may have been to plan for the disastrous campaigns of 482–479 against Greece. Herodotus (7.8) possibly describes this assembly.

1:3 banquet. Feasting is a prominent theme in Esther (see Introduction: Purpose, Themes and Literary Features).

1:5–6 The excavations at Susa have unearthed a text in which Xerxes's father Darius describes in some detail the building of his palace. Xerxes continued the work his father had begun.

1:9 Queen Vashti. Deposed in 484/483 B.C.; Esther became queen in 479/478 (2:16–17). The Greek historians call Xerxes's queen Amestris; they record her influence during the early part of his reign and as queen mother during the following reign of her son Artaxerxes (Ezr 7:1,7,11–12,21; 8:1; Ne 2:1; 5:14; 13:6) until the time of her own death c. 424. Artaxerxes came to the throne when he was 18 years old; therefore he was born c. 484/483, approximately at the time of Vashti's deposal. Since he was the third son of Amestris, the name Amestris cannot be identified with Esther and must be viewed as a Greek version of the name Vashti. Comparatively little is known of the late portions of Xerxes's reign, nor is it possible to determine the subsequent events of the life of Esther. Apparently after Esther's death or her fall from favor, Vashti was able to reassert her power and to exercise a controlling influence over her son.

1:13–14 Ezr 7:14 and the Greek historian Herodotus indicate that seven men functioned as the immediate advisers to the king.

1:13 wise men who understood the times. Court astrologers.

19"Therefore, if it pleases the king,[t] let him issue a royal decree and let it be written in the laws of Persia and Media, which cannot be repealed,[u] that Vashti is never again to enter the presence of King Xerxes. Also let the king give her royal position to someone else who is better than she. 20Then when the king's edict is proclaimed throughout all his vast realm, all the women will respect their husbands, from the least to the greatest."

21The king and his nobles were pleased with this advice, so the king did as Memucan proposed. 22He sent dispatches to all parts of the kingdom, to each province in its own script and to each people in its own language,[v] proclaiming in each people's tongue that every man should be ruler over his own household.

Esther Made Queen

2 Later when the anger of King Xerxes had subsided,[w] he remembered Vashti and what she had done and what he had decreed about her. 2Then the king's personal attendants proposed, "Let a search be made for beautiful young virgins for the king. 3Let the king appoint commissioners in every province of his realm to bring all these beautiful girls into the harem at the citadel of Susa. Let them be placed under the care of Hegai, the king's eunuch, who is in charge of the women; and let beauty treatments be given to them. 4Then let the girl who pleases the king be queen instead of Vashti." This advice appealed to the king, and he followed it.

5Now there was in the citadel of Susa a Jew of the tribe of Benjamin, named Mordecai son of Jair, the son of Shimei, the son of Kish,[x] 6who had been carried into exile from Jerusalem by Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, among those taken captive with Jehoiachin[c][y] king of Judah.[z] 7Mordecai had a cousin named Hadassah, whom he had brought up because she had neither father nor mother. This girl, who was also known as Esther,[a] was lovely[b] in form and features, and Mordecai had taken her as his own daughter when her father and mother died.

8When the king's order and edict had been proclaimed, many girls were brought to the citadel of Susa[c] and put under the care of Hegai. Esther also was taken to the king's palace and entrusted to Hegai, who had charge of the harem.

1:19 cannot be repealed. The irrevocability of the Persian laws is mentioned in 8:8 and Da 6:8. never again to enter. The punishment corresponds to the crime: Since Vashti refused to appear before the king, it is decreed that she never appear before him again. Furthermore, from this point on she is no longer given the title "Queen" in the book of Esther.

1:22 proclaiming ... household. Or "that every man should be ruler over his own household and that his native language should be used in the home," thus referring to the use of the husband's native language in ethnically mixed marriages as a sign of his rule in the home (see Ne 13:23–24).

2:1 Later. Esther was taken to Xerxes "in the seventh year of his reign" (v. 16), i.e., in December, 479 B.C., or January, 478. The Greek wars intervened before a new queen was sought (see note on 1:3–4).

2:3–4 The phraseology here is similar to that in Ge 41:34–37. This and numerous other parallels suggest that the author of Esther modeled his work after the Joseph story. Both accounts are set in the courts of foreign monarchs and portray Israelite heroes who rise to prominence and provide the means by which their people are saved (see notes on vv. 9,21–23; 3:4; 4:14; 6:1,8,14; 8:6).

2:5 in the citadel of Susa a Jew. As far back as the fall of the northern kingdom in 722–721 B.C. Israelites had been exiled among the cities of the Medes (2Ki 17:6). After the conquest of Babylon by King Cyrus of Persia in 539, some of the Jewish population taken there by the Babylonians (605–586) probably moved eastward into the cities of Medo-Persia. Only 50,000 returned to Israel in the restoration of 538 (Ezr 2:64–67). The presence of a large Jewish population in Medo-Persia is confirmed by the discovery of an archive of texts in Nippur (southern Mesopotamia) from the period of Artaxerxes I (465–424) and Darius II (424–405). This archive contains the names of about 100 Jews who lived in that city. Some had attained positions of importance and wealth. Similar Jewish populations are probable in many other Medo-Persian cities. Mordecai. The name is derived from that of the Babylonian deity Marduk. There are numerous examples in the Bible of Jews having double names—a Hebrew name and a "Gentile" name. Mordecai likely had a Hebrew name, as did Esther (v. 7), Daniel and his friends (Da 1:6–7), Joseph (Ge 41:45) and others, but the text does not mention Mordecai's Hebrew name. A cuneiform tablet from Borsippa near Babylon mentions a scribe by the name of Mardukaya; he was an accountant or minister at the court of Susa in the early years of Xerxes. Many scholars identify him with Mordecai. son of Jair, the son of Shimei, the son of Kish. The persons named could be immediate ancestors, in which case Mordecai would be the great-grandson of Kish, who was among the exiles with Jehoiachin in 597 B.C. It is more likely, however, that the names refer to remote ancestors in the tribe of Benjamin (see 2Sa 16:5–14 for Shimei, 1Sa 9:1 for Kish). This association with the tribe and family of King Saul sets the stage for the ongoing conflict between Israel and the Amalekites (see notes on 3:1–6). If the names are those of remote ancestors, the clause "who had been carried into exile" (v. 6) would not apply to Mordecai, who would have been over 100 years old in that case; rather, it would have to be taken as an elliptical construction in the sense "whose family had been carried into exile."

2:6 Jehoiachin king of Judah. See 2Ki 24:8–17; 2Ch 36:9–10.

2:7 Hadassah. Esther's Hebrew name, meaning "myrtle." The name Esther is likely derived from the Persian word for "star," though some derive it from the name of the Babylonian goddess Ishtar (see note on Jer 7:18).

2:8 Esther also was taken. Neither she nor Mordecai would have had any choice in the matter (cf. 2Sa 11:4).

10Esther had not revealed her nationality and family background, because Mordecai had forbidden her to do so.[f] 11Every day he walked back and forth near the courtyard of the harem to find out how Esther was and what was happening to her.

17Now the king was attracted to Esther more than to any of the other women, and she won his favor and approval more than any of the other virgins. So he set a royal crown on her head and made her queen[m] instead of Vashti. 18And the king gave a great banquet,[n] Esther's banquet, for all his nobles and officials.[o] He proclaimed a holiday throughout the provinces and distributed gifts with royal liberality.[p]

Mordecai Uncovers a Conspiracy

19When the virgins were assembled a second time, Mordecai was sitting at the king's gate.[q] 20But Esther had kept secret her family background and nationality just as Mordecai had told her to do, for she continued to follow Mordecai's instructions as she had done when he was bringing her up.[r]

21During the time Mordecai was sitting at the king's gate, Bigthana[d] and Teresh, two of the king's officers[s] who guarded the doorway, became angry[t] and conspired to assassinate King Xerxes. 22But Mordecai found out about the plot and told Queen Esther, who in turn reported it to the king, giving credit to Mordecai. 23And when the report was investigated

2:9 special food. Lit. "her portions." Unlike Daniel and his friends (Da 1:5–10), Esther does not observe the dietary laws, perhaps in part to conceal her Jewish identity (vv. 10,20). Giving such portions is a sign of special favor (1Sa 9:22–24; 2Ki 25:29–30; Da 1:1–10; negatively, Jer 13:25); in the Joseph narrative cf. Ge 43:34. The motif of giving portions appears later as a practice in observing Purim (9:19,22).

2:10 The fact that Esther concealed her identity is reported twice—here and in v. 20 (for the author's use of duplications see Introduction: Purpose, Themes and Literary Features).

2:14 to another part of the harem. To the chambers of the concubines.

2:16 tenth month . . . seventh year. December, 479 B.C., or January, 478 (see notes on 1:3–4; 2:1). Esther's tenure as queen continued through the events of the book, i.e., through 473 (see 3:7 and note; see also 8:9–13; 9:1). She may have died or fallen from favor shortly thereafter (see note on 1:9).

2:18 holiday. The Hebrew for this word, unique to this verse, may imply a remission of taxes, an emancipation of slaves, a cancellation of debts or a remission of obligatory military service.

2:19 See Introduction: Purpose, Themes and Literary Features. The enlargement of the harem apparently continued unabated. Perhaps there is a causal connection between the second gathering of women and the assassination plot (vv. 21–23); some have suggested that it reflects palace intrigue in support of the deposed Vashti. king's gate. The gate of an ancient city was its major commercial and legal center. Markets were held in the gate; the court sat there to transact its business (see Dt 21:18–20; Jos 20:4; Ru 4:1–11; Ps 69:12). A king might hold an audience at the gate (see 2Sa 19:8; 1Ki 22:10). Daniel was at the king's gate (NIV "royal court") as ruler over all Babylon (Da 2:48–49). Mordecai's sitting at the king's gate confirms his holding a high position in the civil service of the empire (see note on v. 5). From this vantage point he might overhear plans for the murder of the king.

2:21–23 Another point of comparison with the Joseph narrative is the involvement of two chamberlains (Ge 40:1–3; see note on vv. 3–4).

2:23 hanged. See NIV text note. Among the Persians this form of execution was impalement, as is confirmed in pictures and statues from the ancient Near East and in the comments of the Greek historian Herodotus (3.125,129; 4.43). According to Herodotus (3.159) Darius I impaled 3,000 Babylonians when he took Babylon, an act that Darius himself recorded in his Behistun (Bisitun) inand found to be true, the two officials were hanged[u] on a gallows.[e] All this was recorded in the book of the annals[v] in the presence of the king.[w]

Haman's Plot to Destroy the Jews

3 After these events, King Xerxes honored Haman son of Hammedatha, the Agagite,[x] elevating him and giving him a seat of honor higher than that of all the other nobles. 2All the royal officials at the king's gate knelt down and paid honor to Haman, for the king had commanded this concerning him. But Mordecai would not kneel down or pay him honor.

3Then the royal officials at the king's gate asked Mordecai, "Why do you disobey the king's command?"[y] 4Day after day they spoke to him but he refused to comply.[z] Therefore they told Haman about it to see whether Mordecai's behavior would be tolerated, for he had told them he was a Jew.

5When Haman saw that Mordecai would not kneel down or pay him honor, he was enraged.[a] 6Yet having learned who Mordecai's people were, he scorned the idea of killing only Mordecai. Instead Haman looked for a way[b] to destroy[c] all Mordecai's people, the Jews,[d] throughout the whole kingdom of Xerxes.

7In the twelfth year of King Xerxes, in the first month, the month of Nisan, they cast the pur[e] (that is, the lot[f]) in the presence of Haman to select a day and month. And the lot fell on[t] the twelfth month, the month of Adar.[g]

8Then Haman said to King Xerxes, "There is a certain people dispersed and scattered among the peoples in all the provinces of your kingdom whose customs[h] are different from those of all other people and who do not obey[i] the king's laws; it is not in the king's best interest to tolerate them.[j] 9If it pleases the king, let a decree be issued to destroy them, and I will put ten thousand talents[g] of silver into the royal treasury for the men who carry out this business."[k]

scription. In Israelite and Canaanite practice, hanging was an exhibition of the corpse and not the means of execution itself (Dt 21:22–23; Jos 8:29; 10:26; 1Sa 31:8–10; 2Sa 4:12; 21:9–10). The execution of a chamberlain in the Joseph narrative also appears to have been by impalement (Ge 40:19). The sons of Haman were killed by the sword, and then their corpses were displayed in this way (9:5–14). annals. The concern of the author of Esther with rhetorical symmetry is seen in the fact that the annals are mentioned in the beginning (here), middle (6:1) and end (10:2) of the narrative. The episode dealing with the plot of Bigthana and Teresh is a good example of the many "coincidences" in the book that later take on crucial significance for the story.

3:1 After these events. Four years have elapsed since Esther's selection as queen (v. 7; 2:16–17). The fact that no reason is given for the promotion of Haman provides an ironic contrast between the unrewarded merit of Mordecai (2:21–23; see 6:3) and the unmerited reward of Haman. son of Hammedatha, the Agagite. There is some debate about the ancestry of Haman. The name Hammedatha appears to be Persian and probably refers to an immediate ancestor. The title "Agagite" could refer to some other immediate ancestor or to an unknown place; however, it is far more likely that it refers to Agag, king of Amalek (1Sa 15:20). The Amalekites had attacked Israel after she fled from Egypt (Ex 17:8–16; 1Sa 14:47–48); for this reason the Lord would "be at war against the Amalekites from generation to generation" (Ex 17:16). Israel was not to forget, but must "blot out the memory of Amalek from under heaven" (Dt 25:17–19). Saul's attack on Amalek (1Sa 15) resulted in the death of King Agag and most, though not all (1Ch 4:42–43), of the city's population. In Esther, about 500 years after the battle led by the Benjamite Saul, the Benjamite Mordecai (see note on 2:5) continues the war with the Amalekites.

3:2–6 Obedience to the second commandment (Ex 20:4) is not the issue in Mordecai's refusal to bow down to Haman, for the Jews were willing to bow down to kings (see 1Sa 24:8; 2Sa 14:4; 1Ki 1:16) and to other persons (see Ge 23:7; 33:3; 44:14). Only the long-standing enmity between the Jews and the Amalekites accounts both for Mordecai's refusal and for Haman's intent to destroy all the Jews (vv. 5–6). The threat against the Jews "throughout the whole kingdom" (v. 6) is a threat against the ultimate issue of redemptive history (see Introduction: Purpose, Themes and Literary Features).

3:4 Compare the phraseology with that in the Joseph story (Ge 39:10).

3:7 twelfth year ... first month. April or May, 474 B.C., the fifth year of Esther's reign. they. Either indefinite or the astrologers who assisted Haman (5:10,14; 6:12–13). pur. See 9:24,26. This word is found in Akkadian texts with the meaning "lot" (as here). The celebration known as Purim takes its name from the plural of this noun (see 9:23–32). There is irony in the fact that the month of the Jews' celebration of the Passover deliverance from Egypt is also the month that Haman begins plotting their destruction (Ex 12:1–11). twelfth month. An 11-month delay is contemplated between the securing of the decree and the execution of it in the month Adar (February-March).

3:8–9 The name of the people Haman wishes to destroy is slyly omitted in this blend of the true and the false: The Jews did have their own customs and laws, but they were not disobedient to the king (Jer 29:7).

3:8 dispersed and scattered. See 8:11,17; 9:2,12,16, 19–20,28.

3:9 ten thousand talents. Herodotus (3.95) records that the annual income of the Persian empire was 15,000 talents. If this figure is correct, Haman offers two-thirds of that amount—a huge sum. Presumably the money would have come from the plundered wealth of the victims of the decree. Verse 13 implies that those who would take part in the massacre were to be allowed to keep the plunder, perhaps adding financial incentive to the execution of the decree since Xerxes disavows taking the money (v. 11). On the other hand, 4:7 and 7:4 may imply that the king had planned on collecting some of the money. men who carry out this business. This clause may represent the title of revenue officers who would bring the money to the treasury, or it could refer to those who carry out the decree. The Amalekites had once before plundered Israel (see note on v. 1); Haman plans a recurrence.

12Then on the thirteenth day of the first month the royal secretaries were summoned. They wrote out in the script of each province and in the language[m] of each people all Haman's orders to the king's satraps, the governors of the various provinces and the nobles of the various peoples. These were written in the name of King Xerxes himself and sealed[n] with his own ring. 13Dispatches were sent by couriers to all the king's provinces with the order to destroy, kill and annihilate all the Jews[o]—young and old, women and little children—on a single day, the thirteenth day of the twelfth month, the month of Adar,[p] and to plunder[q] their goods. 14A copy of the text of the edict was to be issued as law in every province and made known to the people of every nationality so they would be ready for that day.[r]

15Spurred on by the king's command, the couriers went out, and the edict was issued in the citadel of Susa.[s] The king and Haman sat down to drink,[t] but the city of Susa was bewildered.[u]

Mordecai Persuades Esther to Help

4 When Mordecai learned of all that had been done, he tore his clothes,[v] put on sackcloth and ashes,[w] and went out into the city, wailing[x] loudly and bitterly. 2But he went only as far as the king's gate,[y] because no one clothed in sackcloth was allowed to enter it. 3In every province to which the edict and order of the king came, there was great mourning among the Jews, with fasting, weeping and wailing. Many lay in sackcloth and ashes.

4When Esther's maids and eunuchs came and told her about Mordecai, she was in great distress. She sent clothes for him to put on instead of his sackcloth, but he would not accept them. 5Then Esther summoned Hathach, one of the king's eunuchs assigned to attend her, and ordered him to find out what was troubling Mordecai and why.

9Hathach went back and reported to Esther what Mordecai had said. 10Then she instructed him to say to Mordecai, 11"All the king's officials and the people of the royal provinces know that for any man or woman who approaches the king in the inner court without being summoned[a] the king has but one law:[b] that he be put to death. The only exception to this is for the king to extend the gold scepter[c] to him and spare his life. But thirty days have passed since I was called to go to the king."

12When Esther's words were reported to Mordecai, 13he sent back this answer: "Do not think that because you are in the king's house you alone of all the Jews will escape. 14For if you remain silent[d] at this time, relief[e] and deliverance[f] for the Jews will arise from another place, but you and your father's family will perish. And who knows but that you

3:13 Haman's decree against Israel is the same destruction that had earlier been decreed against Amalek (1Sa 15:3). thirteenth day ... twelfth month. Mar. 7, 473 B.C. (see 8:12).

3:15 Haman and the king will drink together again in the story when the fate of the Jews is once again being decided (7:1–2), but then it will be at the dissolution of their relationship and the reversal of the decree here celebrated. The celebration here is in sharp contrast to the fasting and mourning of the Jews (4:1–3,15–16).

4:2 king's gate. See note on 2:19.

4:3 See note on 3:15. The prominence of feasting throughout the book of Esther sets the fasts of vv. 3,16 in sharp relief; a pair of fasts matches the prominent pairs of banquets (see Introduction: Purpose, Themes and Literary Features; see also note on 9:31).

4:4–12 The fact that the dialogue of Esther and Mordecai is mediated by Hathach reflects the prohibition against Mordecai's entering the royal citadel dressed in mourning (v. 2) and the isolation of Esther in the harem quarters.

4:7 See note on 3:9. That Mordecai is aware of the amount Haman promised to the king is a reminder of his high position in the bureaucracy at Susa (2:21–23).

4:11 Herodotus (3.118,140) also notes that anyone approaching the Persian king unsummoned would be killed unless the king gave immediate pardon.

4:12–16 The themes of the book of Esther are most clearly expressed in this passage. Mordecai's confidence for the Jews' deliverance is based on God's sovereignty in working out his purposes and fulfilling his promises. Their deliverance will come, even if through some means other than Esther. Yet that sovereignty is not fatalistic: Unless Esther exercises her individual responsibility, she and her family will perish. Cf. Mt 26:24; Ac 2:23 for similar treatments of the relationship between divine sovereignty and human responsibility.

4:14 such a time as this. Cf. Ge 45:5–7 in the Joseph narrative.

have come to royal position for such a time as this?"[g]

15Then Esther sent this reply to Mordecai: 16"Go, gather together all the Jews who are in Susa, and fast[h] for me. Do not eat or drink for three days, night or day. I and my maids will fast as you do. When this is done, I will go to the king, even though it is against the law. And if I perish, I perish."[i] 17So Mordecai went away and carried out all of Esther's instructions.

Esther's Request to the King

5 On the third day Esther put on her royal robes[j] and stood in the inner court of the palace, in front of the king's[k] hall. The king was sitting on his royal throne in the hall, facing the entrance. 2When he saw Queen Esther standing in the court, he was pleased with her and held out to her the gold scepter that was in his hand. So Esther approached and touched the tip of the scepter.[l]

3Then the king asked, "What is it, Queen Esther? What is your request? Even up to half the kingdom,[m] it will be given you."

4"If it pleases the king," replied Esther, "let the king, together with Haman, come today to a banquet I have prepared for him."

5"Bring Haman at once," the king said, "so that we may do what Esther asks."

So the king and Haman went to the banquet Esther had prepared. 6As they were drinking wine,[n] the king again asked Esther, "Now what is your petition? It will be given you. And what is your request? Even up to half the kingdom,[o] it will be granted."[p]

7Esther replied, "My petition and my request is this: 8If the king regards me with favor[q] and if it pleases the king to grant my petition and fulfill my request, let the king and Haman come tomorrow to the banquet[r] I will prepare for them. Then I will answer the king's question."

Haman's Rage Against Mordecai

9Haman went out that day happy and in high spirits. But when he saw Mordecai at the king's gate and observed that he neither rose nor showed fear in his presence, he was filled with rage[s] against Mordecai.[t] 10Nevertheless, Haman restrained himself and went home.

Calling together his friends and Zeresh,[u] his wife, 11Haman boasted[v] to them about his vast wealth, his many sons,[w] and all the ways the king had honored him and how he had elevated him above the other nobles and officials. 12"And that's not all," Haman added. "I'm the only person[x] Queen Esther invited to accompany the king to the banquet she gave. And she has invited me along with the king tomorrow. 13But all this gives me no satisfaction as long as I see that Jew Mordecai sitting at the king's gate.[y]"

14His wife Zeresh and all his friends said to him, "Have a gallows built, seventy-five feet[h] high,[z] and ask the king in the morning to have Mordecai hanged[a] on it. Then go with the king to the dinner and be happy." This suggestion delighted Haman, and he had the gallows built.

Prayer, which usually accompanied such fasting, was presumably a part of this fast as well (see Jdg 20:26; 1Sa 7:6; 2Sa 12:16; Ezr 8:21–23; Ne 9:1–3; Isa 58:3; Jer 14:12; Joel 1:14; 2:12–17; Jnh 3:6–9). The omission of any reference to prayer or to God is consistent with the author's intention; absence of any distinctively religious concepts or vocabulary is a rhetorical device used to heighten the fact that it is indeed God who has been active in the whole narrative (see Introduction: Purpose, Themes and Literary Features). I and my maids will fast. Note the rhetorical symmetry: Where once Esther and her maids had received special foods (2:9), now they share a fast. if I perish. Cf. the similar formulation in the Joseph narrative (Ge 43:14).

5:6–7 One can only speculate regarding Esther's reasons for delaying her answer to the king's question until he had asked it a third time (vv. 3,6; 7:2). The author uses these delays as plot retardation devices that sustain the tension and permit the introduction of new material on Haman's self-aggrandizement (vv. 11–12) and Mordecai's reward (6:6–11).

5:9 Haman's rage is kindled when Mordecai does not rise in his presence—an ironic contrast to his earlier refusal to bow (3:2–6).

5:11 many sons. Haman had ten sons (9:7–10). Herodotus (1.136) reports that the Persians prized a large number of sons second only to valor in battle; the Persian king sent gifts to the subject with the most sons (cf. Ps 127:3–5).

5:14 seventy-five feet high. There may be a note of hyperbole in the height of the gallows. Others have suggested that the gallows was erected atop some other structure to achieve this height, e.g., the city wall (see 1Sa 31:10). hanged. See note on 2:23.

6:1 This verse marks the literary center of the narrative. When things could not look worse, a series of seemingly trivial coincidences marks a critical turn that brings resolution to the story. The king's inability to sleep, his requesting the reading of the annals, the reading of the passage reporting Mordecai's past kindness, Haman's noisy carpentry in the early hours of the morning (5:14), his sudden entry into the outer court and his assumption that he was the man the king wished to honor—all are events testifying to the sovereignty of God over the events of the narrative. Circumstances that seemed incidental earlier in the narrative take on crucial significance. Just as in the Joseph story (Ge 41:1–45), the hero's personal fortunes are the chronicles,[c] the record of his reign, to be brought in and read to him. [2]It was found recorded there that Mordecai had exposed Bigthana and Teresh, two of the king's officers who guarded the doorway, who had conspired to assassinate King Xerxes.[d]

[3]"What honor and recognition has Mordecai received for this?" the king asked.

"Nothing has been done for him,"[e] his attendants answered.

[4]The king said, "Who is in the court?" Now Haman had just entered the outer court of the palace to speak to the king about hanging Mordecai on the gallows he had erected for him.

[5]His attendants answered, "Haman is standing in the court."

"Bring him in," the king ordered.

[6]When Haman entered, the king asked him, "What should be done for the man the king delights to honor?"

Now Haman thought to himself, "Who is there that the king would rather honor than me?" [7]So he answered the king, "For the man the king delights to honor, [8]have them bring a royal robe[f] the king has worn and a horse[g] the king has ridden, one with a royal crest placed on its head. [9]Then let the robe and horse be entrusted to one of the king's most noble princes. Let them robe the man the king delights to honor, and lead him on the horse through the city streets, proclaiming before him, 'This is what is done for the man the king delights to honor!'[h]"

[10]"Go at once," the king commanded Haman. "Get the robe and the horse and do just as you have suggested for Mordecai the Jew, who sits at the king's gate. Do not neglect anything you have recommended."

[11]So Haman got[i] the robe and the horse. He robed Mordecai, and led him on horseback through the city streets, proclaiming before him, "This is what is done for the man the king delights to honor!"

[12]Afterward Mordecai returned to the king's gate. But Haman rushed home, with his head covered[j] in grief, [13]and told Zeresh[k] his wife and all his friends everything that had happened to him.

His advisers and his wife Zeresh said to him, "Since Mordecai, before whom your downfall[l] has started, is of Jewish origin, you cannot stand against him—you will surely come to ruin!"[m] [14]While they were still talking with him, the king's eunuchs arrived and hurried Haman away to the banquet[n] Esther had prepared.

Haman Hanged

7 So the king and Haman went to dine[o] with Queen Esther, [2]and as they were drinking wine[p] on that second day, the king again asked, "Queen Esther, what is your petition? It will be given you. What is your request? Even up to half the kingdom,[q] it will be granted.[r]"

[3]Then Queen Esther answered, "If I have found favor[s] with you, O king, and if it pleases your majesty, grant me my life—this is my petition. And spare my people—this is my request. [4]For I and my people have been sold for destruction and slaughter and annihilation.[t] If we had merely been sold as male and female slaves, I would have kept quiet, because no such distress would justify disturbing the king.[i]"

[5]King Xerxes asked Queen Esther, "Who is he? Where is the man who has dared to do such a thing?"

Then Haman was terrified before the king and queen. [7]The king got up in a rage,[u] left his wine and went out into the palace garden.[v] But Haman, realizing that the king had already decided his fate,[w] stayed behind to beg Queen Esther for his life.

reversed because of the monarch's disturbed sleep (cf. Da 2:1; 6:18).

6:2 The scribe was reading at the time from the annals that recorded events five years earlier (compare 3:7 with 2:16).

6:4–6 Again, the irony is evident: Just as Haman had withheld from the king the identity of the "certain people" (3:8), so now the king unintentionally keeps from Haman the identity of the "man the king delights to honor" (v. 6).

6:8 royal robe the king has worn. See 8:15; see also Introduction: Purpose, Themes and Literary Features. Cf. in the Joseph story Ge 41:41–43. Great significance was attached to the king's garment in ancient times; wearing his garments was a sign of unique favor (1Sa 18:4). To wear another's garments was to partake of his power, stature, honor or sanctity (2Ki 2:13–14; Isa 61:3,10; Zec 3; Mk 5:27). Haman's suggestion is not only a great honor to the recipient, but it is also considerably flattering to the king: Wearing his garment was chosen instead of wealth.

6:13 See Introduction: Purpose, Themes and Literary Features.

6:14 Guests were usually escorted to feasts (see in the Joseph narrative Ge 43:15–26; cf. Mt 22:1–14).

7:2 See 5:3,6.

7:3 See 2:15,17.

7:4 sold. Esther refers to the bribe Haman offered to the king (3:9; 4:7); she also paraphrases Haman's edict (3:13). because no such distress . . . king. See NIV text note. The statement probably means either (1) that the affliction of the Jews would be less injurious to the king if slavery was all that was involved, or (2) that Esther would not trouble the king if slavery was the only issue.

[8]Just as the king returned from the palace garden to the banquet hall, Haman was falling on the couch[x] where Esther was reclining.[y]

The king exclaimed, "Will he even molest the queen while she is with me in the house?"[z]

As soon as the word left the king's mouth, they covered Haman's face.[a] [9]Then Harbona,[b] one of the eunuchs attending the king, said, "A gallows seventy-five feet[j] high[c] stands by Haman's house. He had it made for Mordecai, who spoke up to help the king."

The king said, "Hang him on it!"[d] [10]So they hanged[e] Haman[f] on the gallows[g] he had prepared for Mordecai.[h] Then the king's fury subsided.[i]

The King's Edict in Behalf of the Jews

8 That same day King Xerxes gave Queen Esther the estate of Haman,[j] the enemy of the Jews. And Mordecai came into the presence of the king, for Esther had told how he was related to her. [2]The king took off his signet ring,[k] which he had reclaimed from Haman, and presented it to Mordecai. And Esther appointed him over Haman's estate.[l]

[3]Esther again pleaded with the king, falling at his feet and weeping. She begged him to put an end to the evil plan of Haman the Agagite,[m] which he had devised against the Jews. [4]Then the king extended the gold scepter[n] to Esther and she arose and stood before him.

[5]"If it pleases the king," she said, "and if he regards me with favor[o] and thinks it the right thing to do, and if he is pleased with me, let an order be written overruling the dispatches that Haman son of Hammedatha, the Agagite, devised and wrote to destroy the Jews in all the king's provinces. [6]For how can I bear to see disaster fall on my people? How can I bear to see the destruction of my family?"[p]

[7]King Xerxes replied to Queen Esther and to Mordecai the Jew, "Because Haman attacked the Jews, I have given his estate to Esther, and they have hanged[q] him on the gallows. [8]Now write another decree[r] in the king's name in behalf of the Jews as seems best to you, and seal[s] it with the king's signet ring[t]—for no document written in the king's name and sealed with his ring can be revoked."[u]

[9]At once the royal secretaries were summoned—on the twenty-third day of the third month, the month of Sivan. They wrote out all Mordecai's orders to the Jews, and to the satraps, governors and nobles of the 127 provinces stretching from India to Cush.[k][v] These orders were written in the script of each province and the language of each people and also to the Jews in their own script and language.[w] [10]Mordecai wrote in the name of King Xerxes, sealed the dispatches with the king's signet ring, and sent them by mounted couriers, who rode fast horses especially bred for the king.

[11]The king's edict granted the Jews in every city the right to assemble and protect themselves; to destroy, kill and annihilate any armed force of any nationality or province that might attack them and their women and children; and to plunder[x] the property of their enemies. 7:8 falling on the couch where Esther was reclining. Meals were customarily taken reclining on a couch (Am 6:4–7; Jn 13:23). It is ironic that Haman, who became angry when the Jew Mordecai would not bow down (which set the whole story in motion), now falls before the Jewess Esther (see 6:13). The king's leaving the room sets the stage for the final twist that would seal Haman's fate. covered Haman's face. See 6:12; see also Introduction: Purpose, Themes and Literary Features.

7:9 Before this moment there is no evidence that Esther had known of Mordecai's triumph earlier in the day (ch. 6); she has pleaded for the life of her people. Harbona's reference to the gallows in effect introduces a second charge against Haman—his attempt to kill the king's benefactor. Harbona. See Introduction: Purpose, Themes and Literary Features. He had been sent earlier to bring Vashti and thus set in motion the events that would lead to her fall and the choice of Esther (1:10); now he is instrumental in the fall of Haman and the rise of Mordecai.

7:10 subsided. See 2:1; see also Introduction: Purpose, Themes and Literary Features.

8:1–17 The author achieves considerable literary symmetry by recapitulating much of 3:1–4:3 in almost identical terms.

8:1 gave Queen Esther the estate of Haman. Herodotus (3.128–129) and Josephus (Antiquities, 11.17) confirm that the property of a traitor reverted to the crown; Xerxes presents Haman's wealth (5:11) to Esther.

8:2 Cf. 3:10, where the king's offer of his ring includes Haman's keeping the money; here Mordecai receives the office and the estate of Haman.

8:3–6 Esther and Mordecai are secure (7:4–5), but the irrevocable decree is still a threat to the rest of the Jews.

8:3 Agagite. See note on 3:1.

8:6 Cf. the Joseph story (Ge 44:34).

8:8 See 1:19; see also Introduction: Purpose, Themes and Literary Features. The dilemma is the same as the one that confronted Darius the Mede in Daniel (Da 6:8,12,15). The solution is to issue another decree that in effect counters the original decree of Haman without formally revoking it (see note on 9:2–3).

8:9–13 The phraseology is taken from the parallel in 3:12–14. The extent of the destruction is the same as that earlier decreed against Amalek (see note on 3:13).

8:9 twenty-third day . . . third month. In Xerxes's 12th year, i.e., June 25, 474 B.C., two months and ten days after the proclamation of Haman's edict (see note on 3:13).

8:12 thirteenth day . . . twelfth month. Mar. 7, 473 B.C. (see 3:13). Some 15 years after this first Purim, Ezra would lead this in all the provinces of King Xerxes was the thirteenth day of the twelfth month, the month of Adar.[y] [13]A copy of the text of the edict was to be issued as law in every province and made known to the people of every nationality so that the Jews would be ready on that day[z] to avenge themselves on their enemies.

[14]The couriers, riding the royal horses, raced out, spurred on by the king's command. And the edict was also issued in the citadel of Susa.[a]

[15]Mordecai[b] left the king's presence wearing royal garments of blue and white, a large crown of gold[c] and a purple robe of fine linen.[d] And the city of Susa held a joyous celebration.[e] [16]For the Jews it was a time of happiness and joy,[f] gladness and honor.[g] [17]In every province and in every city, wherever the edict of the king went, there was joy[h] and gladness among the Jews, with feasting and celebrating. And many people of other nationalities became Jews because fear[i] of the Jews had seized them.[j]

9 On the thirteenth day of the twelfth month, the month of Adar,[k] the edict commanded by the king was to be carried out. On this day the enemies of the Jews had hoped to overpower them, but now the tables were turned and the Jews got the upper hand[l] over those who hated them.[m] [2]The Jews assembled in their cities[n] in all the provinces of King Xerxes to attack those seeking their destruction. No one could stand against them,[o] because the people of all the other nationalities were afraid of them. [3]And all the nobles of the provinces, the satraps, the governors and the king's administrators helped the Jews,[p] because fear of Mordecai had seized them.[q] [4]Mordecai[r] was prominent[s] in the palace; his reputation spread throughout the provinces, and he became more and more powerful.[t]

[5]The Jews struck down all their enemies with the sword, killing and destroying them,[u] and they did what they pleased to those who hated them. [6]In the citadel of Susa, the Jews killed and destroyed five hundred men. [7]They also killed Parshandatha, Dalphon, Aspatha, [8]Poratha, Adalia, Aridatha, [9]Parmashta, Arisai, Aridai and Vaizatha, [10]the ten sons[v] of Haman son of Hammedatha, the enemy of the Jews.[w] But they did not lay their hands on the plunder.[x]

[11]The number of those slain in the citadel of Susa was reported to the king that same day. [12]The king said to Queen Esther, "The Jews have killed and destroyed five hundred men and the ten sons of Haman in the citadel of Susa. What have they done in the rest of the king's provinces? Now what is your petition? It will be given you. What is your request? It will also be granted."[y]

[14]So the king commanded that this be done. An edict was issued in Susa, and they hanged[b] the ten sons of Haman. [15]The Jews in Susa came together on the fourteenth day of the month of Adar, and they put to death in Susa three hundred men, but they did not lay their hands on the plunder.[c]

[16]Meanwhile, the remainder of the Jews who were in the king's provinces also assembled to protect themselves and get relief[d] from their enemies.[e] They killed seventy-five thousand of them[f] but did not lay their hands on the plunder.[g] [17]This happened on the thirteenth day of the month of Adar, and on the fourteenth they rested and made it a day of feasting[h] and joy.

8:14–17 The phraseology is taken from 3:15–4:3.

8:15 royal garments. Mordecai's second investiture (see Introduction: Purpose, Themes and Literary Features; see also note on 6:8).

9:1 See notes on 8:9–13. The Jews carry out the edict of Mordecai eight months and 20 days later. tables were turned. The statement that the opposite happened points to the author's concern with literary symmetry: He balances most of the details from the first half of the story with their explicit reversal in the second half.

9:2–3 An illustration of Ge 12:3. Confronted with two conflicting edicts issued in the king's name—the edict of Haman and the edict of Mordecai—the governors follow the edict of the current regime.

9:5–10 The Jews attend to the unfinished business of "blotting out the name of the Amalekites" (Ex 17:16; Dt 25:17–19; see notes on 3:1–6). This incident is presented as the antithesis of 1Sa 15: The narrator is emphatic that the Jews did not take plunder, in spite of the king's permission to do so (8:11). Seizing the plunder 500 years earlier in the battle against Amalek had cost Saul his kingship (1Sa 15:17–19); here, not taking the plunder brings royal power to Mordecai (vv. 20–23). See vv. 15–16; cf. Ge 14:22–24.

9:10 sons of Haman. The second reference to Haman's sons (see 5:11; see also Introduction: Purpose, Themes and Literary Features).

9:12 See 5:3,6; 7:2.

9:13 The reference to hanging in this case is to the display of the corpses, not to the means of the execution (see vv. 7–10 and note on 2:23).

9:15–16 See note on vv. 5–10.

9:16,22 relief from their enemies. Closely associated with the vengeance on their enemies is the rest promised to Israel (Dt 25:19). The defeat of Haman brings rest to the Jews. Cf. 1Ch 22:6–10; Ps 95:8–11; Isa 32:18; Heb 3:11–4:11.

Purim Celebrated

18 The Jews in Susa, however, had assembled on the thirteenth and fourteenth, and then on the fifteenth they rested and made it a day of feasting and joy.

19 That is why rural Jews—those living in villages—observe the fourteenth of the month of Adar[i] as a day of joy and feasting, a day for giving presents to each other.[j]

20 Mordecai recorded these events, and he sent letters to all the Jews throughout the provinces of King Xerxes, near and far, 21 to have them celebrate annually the fourteenth and fifteenth days of the month of Adar 22 as the time when the Jews got relief[k] from their enemies, and as the month when their sorrow was turned into joy and their mourning into a day of celebration.[l] He wrote them to observe the days as days of feasting and joy and giving presents of food[m] to one another and gifts to the poor.[n]

23 So the Jews agreed to continue the celebration they had begun, doing what Mordecai had written to them. 24 For Haman son of Hammedatha, the Agagite,[o] the enemy of all the Jews, had plotted against the Jews to destroy them and had cast the pur[p] (that is, the lot[q]) for their ruin and destruction.[r] 25 But when the plot came to the king's attention,[1] he issued written orders that the evil scheme Haman had devised against the Jews should come back onto his own head,[s] and that he and his sons should be hanged[t] on the gallows.[u] 26 (Therefore these days were called Purim, from the word pur.[v]) Because of everything written in this letter and because of what they had seen and what had happened to them, 27 the Jews took it upon themselves to establish the custom that they and their descendants and all who join them should without fail observe these two days every year, in the way prescribed and at the time appointed. 28 These days should be remembered and observed in every generation by every family, and in every province and in every city. And these days of Purim should never cease to be celebrated by the Jews, nor should the memory of them die out among their descendants.

29 So Queen Esther, daughter of Abihail,[w] along with Mordecai the Jew, wrote with full authority to confirm this second letter concerning Purim. 30 And Mordecai sent letters to all the Jews in the 127 provinces[x] of the kingdom of Xerxes—words of goodwill and assurance— 31 to establish these days of Purim at their designated times, as Mordecai the Jew and Queen Esther had decreed for them, and as they had established for themselves and their descendants in regard to their times of fasting[y] and lamentation.[z] 32 Esther's decree confirmed these regulations about Purim, and it was written down in the records.

The Greatness of Mordecai

10 King Xerxes imposed tribute throughout the empire, to its distant shores.[a] 2 And all his acts of power and might, together with a full account of the greatness of Mordecai[b] to which the king had raised him,[c] are they not written in the book of the annals[d] of the kings of Media and Persia? 3 Mordecai the Jew was second[e] in rank[f] to King Xerxes,[g] preeminent among the Jews, and held in high esteem by his many fellow Jews, because he worked for the good of his people and spoke up for the welfare of all the Jews.[h]

9:24,26 pur. See note on 3:7.

9:27 all who join them. Some refer this phrase to a period of Jewish proselytism and regard it as important to dating the book. It is more likely that it refers to those mentioned in 8:17.

9:31 fasting. See notes on 4:3,16. No date is assigned for this fast. Jews traditionally observe the 13th of Adar, Haman's propitious day (see 3:7,13), as a fast ("the fast of Esther") before the celebration of Purim. These three days of victory celebration on the 13th–15th days of Adar rhetorically balance the three days of Esther's fasting prior to interceding with the king (4:16).

Wisdom Literature

The Jews sometimes speak of the OT as the Law, the Prophets and the Writings. Included within the third division are Psalms and wisdom materials such as Job, Proverbs and Ecclesiastes. These wisdom books are associated with a class of people called "wise men" or "sages" who are listed with priests and prophets as an important force in Israelite society (Jer 18:18). Wise men were called on to give advice to kings and to instruct the young. Whereas the priests and prophets dealt more with the religious side of life, wise men were concerned about practical and philosophical matters. Some of their writings, like Proverbs, were optimistic, as they showed the young how to behave in order to live prosperous and happy lives. Other materials, such as Job and Ecclesiastes, were more pessimistic as they wrestled with difficult philosophical and theological questions such as the problem of evil and the prosperity of the wicked (see also Ps 37; 73). Both viewpoints—the optimistic and the pessimistic—are also found in the literature of other nations in the ancient Near East.

Because of the nature of Proverbs, we must not interpret it as prophecy or its statements about certain effects and results as promises. For instance, 10:27 says that the years of the wicked are cut short, while the righteous live long and prosperous lives (see 3:2 and note). The righteous have abundant food (10:3), but the wicked will go hungry (13:25). While such verses are generally true, there are enough exceptions to indicate that sometimes the righteous suffer and the wicked prosper. Normally the righteous and wicked "receive their due on earth" (11:31), but at other times reward and punishment lie beyond the grave.

Job

Author

Although most of the book consists of the words of Job and his counselors, Job himself was not the author. We may be sure that the author was an Israelite, since he (not Job or his friends) frequently uses the Israelite covenant name for God (Yahweh; NIV "the LORD"). In the prologue (chs. 1—2), divine discourses (38:1—42:6) and epilogue (42:7–17) "LORD" occurs a total of 25 times, while in the rest of the book (chs. 3—37) it appears only once (12:9).

The unknown author probably had access to oral and/or written sources from which, under divine inspiration, he composed the book that we now have. Of course the subject matter of the prologue had to be divinely revealed to him, since it contains information only God could know. While the author preserves much of the archaic and non-Israelite flavor in the language of Job and his friends, he also reveals his own style as a writer of wisdom literature. The literary structures and the quality of the rhetoric used display the author's literary genius.

Date

Two dates are involved: (1) the date of the man Job and his historical setting, and (2) the date of the inspired writer who composed the book. The latter could be dated anytime from the reign of Solomon to the exile. Although the writer was an Israelite, he mentions nothing of Israelite history. He had a written and/or oral account about the non-Israelite sage Job (1:1), whose setting appears to be during the second millennium B.C. (2000–1000), and probably late in that millennium (see note on 19:24). Like the Hebrew patriarchs, Job lived more than 100 years (42:16). His wealth was measured in cattle (1:3), and he acted as priest for his family (1:5). The raiding of Sabean (1:15) and Chaldean (1:17) tribes fits the second millennium, as does the mention of the kesitah, "a piece of silver," in 42:11 (see Ge 33:19; Jos 24:32). The discovery of a Targum (Aramaic paraphrase) on Job from the first or second century B.C. (the earliest written Targum) makes a very late date for authorship highly unlikely.

Language and Text

In many places Job is difficult to translate because of its many unusual words and its style. For that reason, modern translations frequently differ widely. Even the early translator(s) of Job into Greek (the Septuagint) seems often to have been perplexed. The Septuagint of Job is about 400 lines shorter than the accepted Hebrew text, and it may be that the translator(s) simply omitted lines he (they) did not understand. The early Syriac (Peshitta), Aramaic (Targum) and Latin (Vulgate) translators had similar difficulties.

Theme and Message

The book provides a profound statement on the subject of theodicy (the justice of God in light of human suffering). But the manner in which the problem of theodicy is conceived and the solution offered (if it may be called that) is uniquely Israelite. The theodicy question in Greek and later Western thought has been: How can the justice of an almighty God be defended in the face of evil, especially human suffering—and, even more particularly, the suffering of the innocent? In this form of the question, three possible assumptions are left open: (1) that God is not almighty, (2) that God is not just (that there is a "demonic" element in his being) and (3) that man may be innocent. In ancient Israel, however, it was indisputable that God is almighty, that he is perfectly just and that no human is wholly innocent in his sight. These three assumptions were also fundamental to the theology of Job and his friends. Simple logic then dictated the conclusion: Every person's suffering is indicative of the measure of his guilt in the eyes of God. In the abstract, this conclusion appeared inescapable, logically imperative and theologically satisfying. Hence, in the context of such a theology, theodicy was not a problem because its solution was self-evident.

But what was thus theologically self-evident and unassailable in the abstract was often, as in the case of Job, in radical tension with actual human experience. There were those whose godliness was genuine, whose moral character was upright and who, though not sinless, had kept themselves from great transgression, but who nonetheless were made to suffer bitterly. For these the self-evident theology brought no consolation and offered no guidance. It only gave rise to a great enigma. And the God to whom the sufferer was accustomed to turn in moments of need and distress became himself the overwhelming enigma. In the speeches of chs. 3—37, we hear on the one hand the flawless logic but wounding thrusts of those who insisted on the "orthodox" theology, and on the other hand the writhing of soul of the righteous sufferer who struggles with the great enigma. In addition he suffers from the wounds inflicted by his well-intended friends (see note on 5:27). Here, then, we have a graphic portrayal of the unique form of the problem of theodicy as experienced by righteous sufferers within orthodox Israel.

The "solution" offered is also uniquely Israelite—or, better said, Biblical. The relationship between God and man is not exclusive and closed. A third party intrudes, the great adversary (see chs. 1—2). Incapable of contending with God hand to hand, power pitted against power, he is bent on frustrating God's enterprise embodied in the creation and centered on the God-man relationship. As tempter he seeks to alienate man from God (see Ge 3; Mt 4:1); as accuser (one of the names by which he is called, śaṭan, means "accuser") he seeks to alienate God from man (see Zec 3:1; Rev 12:9–10). His all-consuming purpose is to drive an irremovable wedge between God and man, to effect an alienation that cannot be reconciled.

In the story of Job, the author portrays the adversary in his boldest and most radical assault on God and the godly man in the special and intimate relationship that is dearest to them both. When God calls up the name of Job before the accuser and testifies to the righteousness of this one on the earth—this man in whom God delights—Satan attempts with one crafty thrust both to assail God's beloved and to show up God as a fool. True to one of his modes of operation, he accuses Job before God. He charges that Job's godliness is evil. The very godliness in which God takes delight is void of all integrity; it is a terrible sin. Job's godliness is self-serving; he is righteous only because it pays. If God will only let Satan tempt Job by breaking the link between righteousness and blessing, he will expose the righteous man for the sinner he is.

It is the adversary's ultimate challenge. For if the godliness of the righteous man in whom God delights can be shown to be a terrible sin, then a chasm of alienation stands between them that cannot be bridged. Then even redemption is unthinkable, for the godliest of men will be shown to be the most ungodly. God's whole enterprise in creation and redemption will be shown to be radically flawed, and God can only sweep it all away in awful judgment.

The accusation, once raised, cannot be removed, not even by destroying the accuser. So God lets the adversary have his way with Job (within specified limits) so that God and the righteous Job may be vindicated and the great accuser silenced. Thus comes the anguish of Job, robbed of every sign of God's favor so that God becomes for him the great enigma. Also his righteousness is assailed on earth through the logic of the "orthodox" theology of his friends. Alone he agonizes. But he knows in his heart that his godliness has been authentic and that someday he will be vindicated (see 13:18; 14:13–17; 16:19; 19:25–27). And in spite of all, though he may curse the day of his birth

(ch. 3) and chide God for treating him unjustly (9:28–35)—the uncalculated outcry of a distraught spirit—he will not curse God (as his wife, the human nearest his heart, proposes; see 2:9). In fact, what pains him most is God's apparent alienation from him.

In the end the adversary is silenced. And the astute theologians, Job's friends, are silenced. And Job is silenced. But God is not. And when he speaks, it is to Job that he speaks, bringing the silence of regret for hasty speech in days of suffering and the silence of repose in the ways of the Almighty (see 38:1—42:6). Furthermore, as his heavenly friend, God hears Job's intercessions for his associates (42:8–10), and he restores Job's beatitude (42:10–17).

In summary, the author's pastoral word to the godly sufferer is that his righteousness has such supreme value that God treasures it more than all. And the great adversary knows that if he is to thwart the purposes of God he must assail the righteousness of man (see 1:21–22; 2:9–10; 23:8, 10; cf. Ge 15:6). At stake in the suffering of the truly godly is the outcome of the struggle in heaven between the great adversary and God, with the all-encompassing divine purpose in the balance. Thus the suffering of the righteous has a meaning and value commensurate with the titanic spiritual struggle of the ages.

Literary Form and Structure

Like some other ancient compositions, the book of Job has a sandwich literary structure: prologue (prose), main body (poetry), and epilogue (prose), revealing a creative composition, not an arbitrary compilation. Some of Job's words are lament (cf. ch. 3 and many shorter poems in his speeches), but the form of lament is unique to Job and often unlike the regular format of most lament psalms (except Ps 88). Much of the book takes the form of legal disputation. Although the friends come to console him, they end up arguing over the reason for Job's suffering. The argument breaks down in ch. 27, and Job then proceeds to make his final appeal to God for vindication (chs. 29—31). The wisdom poem in ch. 28 appears to be the words of the author, who sees the failure of the dispute as evidence of a lack of wisdom. So in praise of true wisdom he centers his structural apex between the three cycles of dialogue-dispute (chs. 3—27) and the three monologues: Job's (chs. 29—31), Elihu's (chs. 32—37) and God's (38:1—42:6). Job's monologue turns directly to God for a legal decision: that he is innocent of the charges his counselors have leveled against him. Elihu's monologue—another human perspective on why people suffer—rebukes Job but moves beyond the punishment theme to the value of divine chastening and God's redemptive purpose in it. God's monologue gives the divine perspective: Job is not condemned, but neither is a logical or legal answer given to why Job has suffered. That remains a mystery to Job, though the reader is ready for Job's restoration in the epilogue because he has had the heavenly vantage point of the prologue all along. So the literary structure and the theological significance of the book are beautifully tied together.

1 In the land of Uz[a] there lived a man whose name was Job.[b] This man was blameless[c] and upright;[d] he feared God[e] and shunned evil.[f] 2He had seven sons[g] and three daughters,[h] 3and he owned seven thousand sheep, three thousand camels, five hundred yoke of oxen and five hundred donkeys,[i] and had a large number of servants.[j] He was the greatest man[k] among all the people of the East.[l]

4His sons used to take turns holding feasts[m] in their homes, and they would invite their three sisters to eat and drink with them. 5When a period of feasting had run its course, Job would send and have them purified.[n] Early in the morning he would sacrifice a burnt offering[o] for each of them, thinking, "Perhaps my children have sinned[p] and cursed God[q] in their hearts." This was Job's regular custom.

Then Satan went out from the presence of the LORD.

1:1 land of Uz. A large territory east of the Jordan (see v. 3), which included Edom in the south (see Ge 36:28; La 4:21) and the Aramean lands in the north (see Ge 10:23; 22:21). blameless and upright. Spiritually and morally upright. This does not mean that Job was sinless. He later defends his moral integrity but also admits he is a sinner (see 6:24; 7:21). feared God. See 28:28; Pr 3:7; see also note on Ge 20:11.

1:2 seven sons. An ideal number, signifying completeness (see note on Ru 4:15).

1:3 seven thousand sheep. See note on 42:12. Job's enormous wealth was in livestock, not land (see Ge 12:16; 13:2; 26:14). donkeys. The Hebrew for this word is feminine in form. Donkeys that produced offspring were very valuable. people of the East. The Hebrew for this phrase is translated "eastern peoples" in Ge 29:1; Jdg 6:3 (see note there).

1:5 period of feasting. On special occasions, feasts might last a week (see Ge 29:27; Jdg 14:12). purified. Made ceremonially clean in preparation for the sacrifices he offered for them (see Ex 19:10,14, where the Hebrew for this verb is translated "consecrate"). he would sacrifice. Before the ceremonial laws of Moses were introduced, the father of the household acted as priest (see Ge 15:9–10).

1:6 angels came to present themselves. See NIV text note here and on 2:1; 38:7. They came as members of the heavenly council who stand in the presence of God (see 1Ki 22:19; Ps 89:5–7; Jer 23:18,22). Satan. Lit. "the accuser" (see NIV text note; see also Rev 12:10). In Job the Hebrew for this word is always preceded by the definite article. In the Hebrew of 1Ch 21:1 the article is not used, because by then "Satan" had become a proper name.

1:7 The LORD. The Israelite covenant name for God (see Introduction: Author).

1:8 Have you considered ... Job? The Lord, not Satan, initiates the dialogue that leads to the testing of Job. He holds up Job as one against whom "the accuser" can lodge no accusation. my servant. See 42:7–8 and note; a designation for one who stands in a special relationship with God and is loyal in service (e.g., Moses, Nu 12:7; David, 2Sa 7:5; see Isa 42:1; 52:13; 53:11).

1:9 "The accuser" boldly accuses the man God commends: He says Job's righteousness, in which God delights, is self-serving—the heart of Satan's attack on God and his faithful servant in the book of Job.

1:10 hedge. Symbolizes protection (see Isa 5:5; contrast Job 3:23).

1:11 stretch out your hand and strike. See 4:5.

1:12 Satan, the accuser, is given power to afflict (v. 12a) but is kept on a leash (v. 12b). In all his evil among men (vv. 15,17) or in nature (vv. 16,19), Satan is under God's power (compare 1Ch 21:1 with 2Sa 24:1; see 1Sa 16:14; 2Sa 24:16; 1Co 5:5; 2Co 12:7; Heb 2:14). The contest, however, is not a sham. Will Job curse God to his face? If Job does not, the accuser will be proven false and God's delight in Job vindicated.

1:15 Sabeans. Probably south Arabians from Sheba, whose descendants became wealthy traders in spices, gold and precious stones (see the account of the queen of

Job's Second Test

2 On another day the angels[dz] came to present themselves before the LORD, and Satan also came with them[a] to present himself before him. 2And the LORD said to Satan, "Where have you come from?"

Satan answered the LORD, "From roaming through the earth and going back and forth in it."[b]

4"Skin for skin!" Satan replied. "A man will give all he has[f] for his own life. 5But stretch out your hand and strike his flesh and bones,[g] and he will surely curse you to your face."[h]

6The LORD said to Satan, "Very well, then, he is in your hands;[i] but you must spare his life."[j]

7So Satan went out from the presence of the LORD and afflicted Job with painful sores from the soles of his feet to the top of his head.[k] 8Then Job took a piece of broken pottery and scraped himself with it as he sat among the ashes.[l]

9His wife said to him, "Are you still holding on to your integrity?[m] Curse God and die!"[n]

Sheba in 1Ki 10:1–13; see also Ps 72:10,15; Isa 60:6; Jer 6:20; Eze 27:22; Joel 3:8). Job 6:19 calls the Sabeans "traveling merchants" and associates them with Tema (about 350 miles southeast of Jerusalem).

1:16 fire of God. Lightning (see Nu 11:1; 1Ki 18:38; 2Ki 1:12).

1:17 Chaldeans. A people who were Bedouin until c. 1000 B.C., when they settled in southern Mesopotamia and later became the nucleus of Nebuchadnezzar's empire.

1:19 mighty wind. Tornado.

1:20 At this, Job got up. He is silent until his children are killed. tore his robe and shaved his head. In mourning (see notes on Ge 37:34; Isa 15:2).

1:21 depart. See NIV text note; see also Ge 2:7; 3:19 and note. The LORD gave and the LORD has taken away. Job's faith leads him to see the sovereign God's hand at work, and that gives him repose even in the face of calamity.

2:1–3 Except for the final sentence, this passage is almost identical to 1:6–8. He who accused Job of having a deceitful motive is now shown to have a deceitful motive himself: to discredit the Lord through Job.

2:3 you incited me. God cannot be stirred up to do things against his will. Though it is not always clear how, everything that happens is part of his divine purpose (see 38:2).

2:4 Skin for skin! No doubt a proverb—perhaps originally an expression of willingness to barter one animal skin for another of equal value.

2:5 strike his flesh and bones. See 1:11–12; cf. Ge 2:23; Lk 24:39.

2:6 spare his life. Satan is still limited by God. Should Job die, neither God nor Job could be vindicated.

2:7 The precise nature of Job's sickness is uncertain, but its symptoms were painful festering sores over the whole body (7:5), nightmares (7:14), scabs that peeled and became black (30:28,30), disfigurement and revolting appearance (2:12; 19:19), bad breath (19:17), excessive thinness (17:7; 19:20), fever (30:30) and pain day and night (30:17). sores. The Hebrew for this word is translated "boils" in Ex 9:9; Lev 13:18; 2Ki 20:7.

2:8 ashes. Symbolic of mourning (see 42:6; Est 4:3; cf. Jnh 3:6, which speaks of sitting in dust).

2:9 Curse God. The Hebrew for this expression here and in 1:5 employs a euphemism (lit. "Bless God"). Satan is using Job's wife to tempt Job as he used Eve to tempt Adam. and die. Since nothing but death is left for Job, his wife wants him to provoke God to administer the final stroke due to all who curse him (Lev 24:10–16).

[10]He replied, "You are talking like a foolish[e] woman. Shall we accept good from God, and not trouble?"[o]

In all this, Job did not sin in what he said.[p]

Job's Three Friends

[11]When Job's three friends, Eliphaz the Temanite,[q] Bildad the Shuhite[r] and Zophar the Naamathite,[s] heard about all the troubles that had come upon him, they set out from their homes and met together by agreement to go and sympathize with him and comfort him.[t] [12]When they saw him from a distance, they could hardly recognize him;[u] they began to weep aloud,[v] and they tore their robes[w] and sprinkled dust on their heads.[x] [13]Then they sat on the ground[y] with him for seven days and seven nights.[z] No one said a word to him,[a] because they saw how great his suffering was.

Job Speaks

3 After this, Job opened his mouth and cursed the day of his birth.[b] [2]He said:

[3]"May the day of my birth perish, and the night it was said, 'A boy is born!'[c] [4]That day—may it turn to darkness;
may God above not care about it;
may no light shine upon it.
[5]May darkness and deep shadow[f][d] claim it once more;
may a cloud settle over it;
may blackness overwhelm its light.
[6]That night—may thick darkness[e] seize it;
may it not be included among the days of the year
nor be entered in any of the months.
[7]May that night be barren;
may no shout of joy[f] be heard in it.
[8]May those who curse days[g] curse that day,[g]
those who are ready to rouse Leviathan.[h] [9]May its morning stars become dark;
may it wait for daylight in vain and not see the first rays of dawn,[i] [10]for it did not shut the doors of the womb on me to hide trouble from my eyes.
[11]"Why did I not perish at birth, and die as I came from the womb?[j] [12]Why were there knees to receive me[k] and breasts that I might be nursed?
[13]For now I would be lying down[l] in peace;
I would be asleep and at rest[m] [14]with kings and counselors of the earth,[n] who built for themselves places now lying in ruins,[o] [15]with rulers[p] who had gold, who filled their houses with silver.[q] [16]Or why was I not hidden in the ground like a stillborn child,[r] like an infant who never saw the light of day?[s] [17]There the wicked cease from turmoil,[t]

[e] 10 The Hebrew word rendered foolish denotes moral deficiency. [f] 5 Or and the shadow of death [g] 8 Or the sea

2:10 Shall we accept good from God, and not trouble? A key theme of the book: Trouble and suffering are not merely punishment for sin; for God's people they may serve as a trial (as here) or as a discipline that culminates in spiritual gain (see 5:17; Dt 8:5; 2Sa 7:14; Ps 94:12; Pr 3:11–12; 1Co 11:32; Heb 12:5–11).

2:11 three friends. Older than Job (see 15:10). Eliphaz. An Edomite name (see Ge 36:11). Temanite. Teman was a village in Edom, south of the Dead Sea (see Ge 36:11; Jer 49:7; Eze 25:13; Am 1:12; Ob 9). Shuhite. Bildad may have been a descendant of Shuah, the youngest son of Abraham and Keturah (Ge 25:2). Naamathite. Apart from 11:1; 20:1; 42:9, this word does not occur elsewhere in the Bible.

2:12 could hardly recognize him. Cf. Isa 52:14; 53:3. tore their robes and sprinkled dust on their heads. Visible signs of mourning (see note on 1:20).

2:13 sat on the ground with him. See Eze 3:15; a commendable expression of sympathy. seven. See Ge 50:10; 1Sa 31:13; the number of completeness (see 1:2; see also note on Ru 4:15). No one said a word to him. Their mere presence was of more comfort to him than their words of advice would prove to be (see 16:2–3).

3:3 May the day of my birth perish. Job's very existence, which has been a joy to him because of God's favor, is now his intolerable burden. He is as close as he will ever come to cursing God, but he does not do it.

3:4 may it turn to darkness. God had said in Ge 1:3, "Let there be light." Job, using similar language, would negate God's creative act.

3:8 those who curse days. Eastern soothsayers, like Balaam (see Nu 22–24), who pronounced curses on people, objects and days. Leviathan. Using vivid, figurative language, Job wishes that "those who curse days" would arouse the sea monster Leviathan (see note on Isa 27:1) to swallow the day-night of his birth.

3:11–12,16,20–23 A series of rhetorical questions.

3:16 Since in fact his birth had taken place, the next possibility would have been a stillbirth. He would then have lived only in the grave (or Sheol), which he envisions as a place of peace and rest (vv. 13–19; see note on Ge 37:35). Such a situation would be much better than his present intolerable condition, in which he can find neither peace nor rest (v. 26).

and there the weary are at rest.[u] 18 Captives[v] also enjoy their ease;
they no longer hear the slave driver's[w] shout.[x] 19 The small and the great are there,[y] and the slave is freed from his master.

20 "Why is light given to those in misery, and life to the bitter of soul,[z] 21 to those who long for death that does not come,[a] who search for it more than for hidden treasure,[b] 22 who are filled with gladness and rejoice when they reach the grave?[c] 23 Why is life given to a man whose way is hidden,[d] whom God has hedged in?[e] 24 For sighing[f] comes to me instead of food;[g] my groans[h] pour out like water.[i] 25 What I feared has come upon me;
what I dreaded[j] has happened to me.[k]
26 I have no peace,[l] no quietness;
I have no rest,[m] but only turmoil."[n]

Eliphaz

4 Then Eliphaz the Temanite[o] replied:

2 "If someone ventures a word with you, will you be impatient?
But who can keep from speaking?[p]
3 Think how you have instructed many,[q]
how you have strengthened feeble hands.[r] 4 Your words have supported those who stumbled;[s]
you have strengthened faltering knees.[t] 5 But now trouble comes to you, and you are discouraged;[u]
it strikes[v] you, and you are dismayed.[w] 6 Should not your piety be your confidence[x] and your blameless[y] ways your hope?

7 "Consider now: Who, being innocent, has ever perished?[z]
Where were the upright ever destroyed?[a] 8 As I have observed,[b] those who plow evil[c] and those who sow trouble reap it.[d] 9 At the breath of God[e] they are destroyed;
at the blast of his anger they perish.[f] 10 The lions may roar[g] and growl, yet the teeth of the great lions[h] are broken.[i] 11 The lion perishes for lack of prey,[j] and the cubs of the lioness are scattered.[k]

12 "A word[l] was secretly brought to me, my ears caught a whisper[m] of it.[n] 13 Amid disquieting dreams in the night, when deep sleep falls on men,[o] 14 fear and trembling[p] seized me and made all my bones shake.[q] 15 A spirit glided past my face, and the hair on my body stood on end.[r] 16 It stopped, but I could not tell what it was.
A form stood before my eyes,
and I heard a hushed voice:[s]

3:18 slave driver's shout. As in Egypt (see Ex 5:13–14).
3:21–22 Death has become desirable for Job.
3:23 whom God has hedged in. God, who had put a hedge of protection around him (see 1:10 and note), has now, he feels, hemmed him in with turmoil (see v. 26).
4:1 Eliphaz the Temanite. See note on 2:11. Teman was an Edomite town noted for wisdom (see Jer 49:7). The speeches of Job's three friends contain elements of truth, but they must be carefully interpreted in context. The problem is not so much with what the friends knew but with what they did not know: God's high purpose in allowing Satan to buffet Job.
4:2 ventures a word. Eliphaz seems to be genuinely concerned with Job's well-being and offers a complimentary word (vv. 3–4). impatient. See note on 9:2–3.
4:5 strikes you. See 1:11; 2:5; 19:21.
4:6–7 Eliphaz counsels Job to be confident that his piety will count with God, that though God is now chastening him for some sin, it is to a good end (see v. 17; 5:17), and he can be assured that God will not destroy him along with the wicked.
4:6 piety. Lit. "fear (of God)" (see note on 1:1). The word is used only by Eliphaz (see 15:4; 22:4).
4:7–9 If Job is truly innocent, he will not be destroyed.
4:8–11 Just as the strongest lions eventually die (vv. 10–11), so the wicked are eventually destroyed (vv. 8–9).
4:9 blast of his anger. See Ex 15:7–8. God's judgment is fearfully severe.
4:12–21 Eliphaz tells of a hair-raising (see v. 15), mystical experience mediated through a dream (see v. 13), through which he claims to have received divine revelation and on which he bases his advice to Job.
4:13 Amid . . . dreams . . . when deep sleep falls on men. Eliphaz's words are echoed by Elihu in 33:15.
4:14 all my bones shake. A sign of great distress (see Jer 23:9; Hab 3:16).

20 Between dawn and dusk they are broken to pieces;

3 I myself have seen[k] a fool taking root,[l]

4 His children[o] are far from safety,[p]

and the thirsty pant after his wealth.
6 For hardship does not spring from the soil, nor does trouble sprout from the ground.[t] 7 Yet man is born to trouble[u]
as surely as sparks fly upward.
8 "But if it were I, I would appeal to God;
I would lay my cause before him.[v]
9 He performs wonders[w] that cannot be fathomed,[x] miracles that cannot be counted.[y] 10 He bestows rain on the earth;[z]
he sends water upon the countryside.[a] 11 The lowly he sets on high,[b]

[h] 21 Some interpreters end the quotation after verse 17.

4:17–21 All mortals are sinful; therefore God has a right to punish them. Job should be thankful for the correction God is giving him (see 5:17).

4:18–19 If the angels, who are not made of dust, can be guilty in God's sight, how much more man (see 15:15–16)!

4:18 servants. Angels.

4:19 houses of clay. Bodies made of dust (see 10:9; 33:6; see also note on Ge 2:7). moth. A symbol of fragility (cf. 27:18).

4:20 Between dawn and dusk. A vivid picture of the shortness of life.

4:21 tent. A temporary home, like the human body (see 2Co 5:1,4; 2Pe 1:13). without wisdom. Needlessly and senselessly (see v. 20).

5:1 To which ... will you turn? To plead your case with God. The idea of a mediator, someone to arbitrate between God and Job, is an important motif in the book (see 9:33; 16:19–20; see also NIV text note on 19:25). holy ones. Holy angels, the "sons of God" in the prologue (see NIV text notes on 1:6; 2:1).

5:2 Without mentioning him, Eliphaz implies that Job is resentful against God and that harm will follow. fool. One who pays no attention to God (see NIV text notes on 2:10; Pr 1:7).

5:3 A fool taking root. A wicked man prospering like a tree taking root (see Ps 1:3).

5:6 Unlike a weed, trouble must be sown and cultivated.

5:7 man is born to trouble. See 14:1; proof that no one is righteous in the eyes of God (see 4:17–19). Job should stop behaving like a fool (see vv. 1–7) and should humble himself. Then God would bless, and injustice would shut its mouth (see v. 16). sparks. Lit. "sons of Resheph." In Canaanite mythology, Resheph was a god of plague and destruction. "(Sons of) Resheph" is used as a poetic image in the OT for fire (SS 8:6), bolts of lightning (Ps 78:48) and pestilence (Dt 32:24; Hab 3:5).

5:9 Repeated in 9:10.

5:13 Quoted in part in 1Co 3:19 (the only clear quotation of Job in the NT).

5:17–26 While the preceding hymn (vv. 8–16) spoke of God's goodness and justice, this poem celebrates the blessedness of the man whom God disciplines (see Pr so do not despise the discipline[q] of the Almighty.[ir] 18For he wounds, but he also binds up;[s] he injures, but his hands also heal.[t] 19From six calamities he will rescue[u]

you;
in seven no harm will befall you.[v] 20In famine[w] he will ransom you from death,
and in battle from the stroke of the

and the wild animals will be at peace with you.[g] 24You will know that your tent is you will take stock of your property

Job

6 Then Job replied:
2"If only my anguish could be weighed and all my misery be placed on the scales![p] 3It would surely outweigh the sand[q] of the seas—
no wonder my words have been impetuous.[r] 4The arrows[s] of the Almighty[t] are in me,[u]
my spirit drinks[v] in their poison;[w] God's terrors[x] are marshaled against me.[y] 5Does a wild donkey[z] bray[a] when it has grass, or an ox bellow when it has fodder?[b] 6Is tasteless food eaten without salt, or is there flavor in the white of an egg[j]?[c] 7I refuse to touch it;
such food makes me ill.[d] 8"Oh, that I might have my request, that God would grant what I hope for,[e] 9that God would be willing to crush[f]
me,
to let loose his hand and cut me off![g] 10Then I would still have this consolation[h]—
my joy in unrelenting pain[i]— that I had not denied the words[j]
of the Holy One.[k] 11"What strength do I have, that I should still hope?

[i]17 Hebrew Shaddai; here and throughout Job
[j]6 The meaning of the Hebrew for this phrase is uncertain.

1:2,7; 3:12; 23:13,23). Eliphaz believed that discipline is temporary and is followed by healing (v. 18), and that the good man will always be rescued. But with Job's wealth gone and his children dead, these words about security (v. 24) and children (v. 25) must have seemed cruel indeed to him.

5:17 Almighty. The first of 31 times that the Hebrew word Shaddai is used in Job (see note on Ge 17:1).

5:19 six . . . seven. See 33:29; 40:5; Pr 6:16; 30:15,18,21,29; Ecc 11:2; Am 1:3,6,9,11,13; 2:1,4,6; Mic 5:5. Normally, such number patterns are not to be taken literally but are a poetic way of saying "many."

5:23 covenant with the stones. A figurative way of saying that stones will "be at peace with you" and will not ruin the crops (see 2Ki 3:19; Isa 5:2; Mt 13:5).

5:25 like the grass. As numerous as blades of grass (see note on Ge 13:16).

5:26 Eliphaz's prediction was more accurate than he realized (see 42:16–17).

5:27 apply it to yourself. Eliphaz's conclusion: Job must turn from unrighteousness (4:7) and resentment against God (v. 2) to humility (v. 11) and the acceptance of God's righteous discipline (v. 17). Eliphaz's purpose is to offer theological comfort and counsel to Job (2:11), but instead he wounds him with false accusation.

6:2–3 Job appeals for a sympathetic understanding of the harsh words he spoke in ch. 3.

6:4 arrows of the Almighty. Job shares Eliphaz's "orthodox" theology and believes that God is aiming his arrows of judgment at him—though he does not know why (see 7:20; 16:12–13; see also La 3:12; cf. Dt 32:23; Ps 7:13; 38:2).

6:5–6 Job claims the right to bray and bellow, since he has been wounded by God and offered tasteless food (words) by his friends.

6:8–9 Job repeats the thoughts of ch. 3.

6:10 Then. In the afterlife, Job would have the joy of knowing that he had remained true to God.

6:11 patient. See note on 9:2–3.

What prospects, that I should be patient?[l] 12 Do I have the strength of stone?
Is my flesh bronze?[m]
13 Do I have any power to help myself,[n]
now that success has been driven from me?

14 "A despairing man[o] should have the devotion[p] of his friends,[q] even though he forsakes the fear of the Almighty.[r] 15 But my brothers are as undependable as intermittent streams,[s] as the streams that overflow 16 when darkened by thawing ice and swollen with melting snow,[t] 17 but that cease to flow in the dry season, and in the heat[u] vanish from their channels.
18 Caravans turn aside from their routes;
they go up into the wasteland and perish.
19 The caravans of Tema[v] look for water,
the traveling merchants of Sheba[w] look in hope.
20 They are distressed, because they had been confident;
they arrive there, only to be disappointed.[x] 21 Now you too have proved to be of no help;
you see something dreadful and are afraid.[y] 22 Have I ever said, 'Give something on my behalf, pay a ransom[z] for me from your wealth,[a] 23 deliver me from the hand of the enemy, ransom me from the clutches of the ruthless'?[b]

24 "Teach me, and I will be quiet;[c] show me where I have been wrong.[d] 25 How painful are honest words![e]
But what do your arguments prove?
26 Do you mean to correct what I say, and treat the words of a despairing man as wind?[f] 27 You would even cast lots[g] for the fatherless[h] and barter away your friend.

28 "But now be so kind as to look at me.
Would I lie to your face?[i] 29 Relent, do not be unjust;[j] reconsider, for my integrity[k] is at stake.[k][l]
30 Is there any wickedness on my lips?[m]
Can my mouth not discern[n] malice?

7 "Does not man have hard service[o] on earth?[p]
Are not his days like those of a hired man?[q] 2 Like a slave longing for the evening shadows,[r] or a hired man waiting eagerly for his wages,[s] 3 so I have been allotted months of futility, and nights of misery have been assigned to me.[t]
4 When I lie down I think, 'How long before I get up?'[u]
The night drags on, and I toss till dawn.[v]
5 My body is clothed with worms[w] and scabs, my skin is broken and festering.[x]

6 "My days are swifter than a weaver's shuttle,[y] and they come to an end without hope.[z]
7 Remember, O God, that my life is but a breath;[a]

[k] 29 Or my righteousness still stands

6:14–15 See Gal 6:1. Job needs spiritual help, but his friends are proving to be undependable.
6:15 brothers. By calling his friends his "brothers," Job makes their callousness stand out more sharply.
6:19 Tema. See note on Isa 21:14. Sheba. See note on 1:15.
6:22–23 Job has not asked them for anything except what will cost them nothing: their friendship and counsel.
6:25 honest words. Job is referring to his own words.
6:26 wind. See 8:2.
6:27 In addition to dishonesty, Job accuses his friends of heartless cruelty.
6:29 Job softens his tone, pleading that his friends take back their false accusations.
7:1–21 Having replied to Eliphaz, Job now addresses his complaint toward God.
7:1 hard service. See 14:14. The Hebrew for this expression sometimes implies military service. It is also used in reference to the Babylonian exile in Isa 40:2 (see note there).
7:2 evening shadows. End of the workday.
7:5 See note on 2:7.
7:7 my life is but a breath. As a chronic sufferer he has lost all sense of purpose in life (see v. 3; see also Ps 144:3–4). He does not anticipate healing and sees death as his only escape.
7:8 you will look . . . no more. See v. 21.

you will look for me, but I will be no more.[c] 9As a cloud vanishes[d] and is gone, so he who goes down to the 10He will never come to his house

11"Therefore I will not keep silent;[i] meaning.[x]

Why have you made me your

Have I become a burden to you?[m][g] 21Why do you not pardon my offenses and forgive my sins?[h]
For I will soon lie down in the dust;[i] you will search for me, but I will be no more."[j]

8 Then Bildad the Shuhite[k] replied:

2"How long will you say such

3Does God pervert justice?[n]
Does the Almighty pervert what is [l]9 Hebrew Sheol [m]20 A few manuscripts of the Masoretic Text, an ancient Hebrew scribal tradition and Septuagint; most manuscripts of the Masoretic Text I have become a burden to myself.

7:9 he who goes down to the grave does not return. Such statements are based on common observation and are not meant to dogmatize about what happens after death. Mesopotamian descriptions of the netherworld refer to it similarly as the "land of no return" (see note on v. 21).
7:11 not keep silent. Job is determined to cry out against the apparent injustice of God who, it seems, will not leave him alone (vv. 17–20). speak out in ... anguish. See Jer 4:19. bitterness of ... soul. See 10:1; 21:25; 27:2.
7:12 the sea, or the monster of the deep. See 3:8 and NIV text note. The boisterous sea monster was a symbol of chaos (see Ps 74:13–14 and note; Isa 27:1; 51:9), and Job objects to being treated like him.
7:13–14 He thinks that even the nightmares that disturb his much-needed sleep are from God.
7:16 I despise my life. See note on 9:21.
7:17 What is man that you make so much of him ...? See Ps 144:3; cf. Ps 8:4–8, where the answer is given that man is created in God's image to have dominion over the world (see Ge 1:27–28). Job's words (vv. 18–21) are a parody on this theme—as if God's only interest in man is to scrutinize him unmercifully and take quick offense at his slightest fault.
7:19 even for an instant. Lit. "long enough for me to swallow my saliva."
7:20 If I have sinned, what have I done to you ...? I have not been perfect, but what terrible sin have I committed that deserves this kind of suffering? watcher. The Hebrew for this word is used in a favorable sense in Isa 27:3, but here Job complains that God is too critical. made me your target. See note on 6:4. burden to you. See NIV text note. Ancient Hebrew scribes report that a change in the text had been made from "you" to "myself" because the reading "you" involved too presumptuous a questioning of God's justice.
7:21 offenses ... sins. Job confesses that he is a sinner, but he cannot understand why God refuses to forgive him. lie down in the dust. Of the netherworld, as in Mesopotamian descriptions of it (see note on v. 9).
8:2 How long ...? See 18:2. In contrast to the older Eliphaz, Bildad is impatient.
8:3 Does God pervert justice? But Job has not yet blatantly accused God of injustice.
8:5–6 Bildad reasons as follows: God cannot be unjust, so Job and his family must be suffering as a result of sinfulness. Job should plead for mercy, and if he has been upright, God will restore him.
8:6 if you are pure and upright. We know God's verdict about Job (see 1:8; 2:3), but Bildad is confident that Job is a hypocrite (see v. 13).

even now he will rouse himself on your behalf[s] and restore you to your rightful place.[t] 7Your beginnings will seem humble, so prosperous[u] will your future be.[v]

8"Ask the former generations[w] and find out what their fathers learned, 9for we were born only yesterday and know nothing,[x] and our days on earth are but a shadow.[y] 10Will they not instruct[z] you and tell you?
Will they not bring forth words from their understanding?[a] 11Can papyrus grow tall where there is no marsh?[b]
Can reeds[c] thrive without water?
12While still growing and uncut,
they wither more quickly than grass.[d] 13Such is the destiny[e] of all who forget God;[f]
so perishes the hope of the godless.[g] 14What he trusts in is fragile[n];
what he relies on is a spider's web.[h] 15He leans on his web,[i] but it gives way;
he clings to it, but it does not hold.[j] 16He is like a well-watered plant in the sunshine, spreading its shoots[k] over the garden;[l] 17it entwines its roots around a pile of rocks and looks for a place among the stones.
18But when it is torn from its spot, that place disowns[m] it and says, 'I never saw you.'[n] 19Surely its life withers[o] away, and[o] from the soil other plants grow.[p]

20"Surely God does not reject a blameless[q] man or strengthen the hands of evildoers.[r] 21He will yet fill your mouth with laughter[s] and your lips with shouts of joy.[t] 22Your enemies will be clothed in shame,[u] and the tents[v] of the wicked will be no more."[w]

Job

9 Then Job replied:

2"Indeed, I know that this is true.
But how can a mortal be righteous before God?[x] 3Though one wished to dispute with him,[y]
he could not answer him one time out of a thousand.[z] 4His wisdom[a] is profound, his power is vast.[b]
Who has resisted[c] him and come out unscathed?[d] 5He moves mountains[e] without their knowing it and overturns them in his anger.[f] 6He shakes the earth[g] from its place and makes its pillars tremble.[h]

[n] 14 The meaning of the Hebrew for this word is uncertain. [o] 19 Or Surely all the joy it has / is that

8:7 See v. 21. Bildad spoke more accurately than he realized (see 42:10–17).

8:8 Ask the former generations. Eliphaz appealed to revelation from the spirit world (see 4:12–21), while Bildad appeals to the accumulated wisdom of tradition.

8:9 our days ... are but a shadow. A common motif in wisdom literature (see 14:2; 1Ch 29:15; Ps 102:11; 144:4; Ecc 6:12; 8:13).

8:11–19 A practical wisdom poem, giving words of instruction learned from the fathers. It is introduced in v. 10 and applied to Job in vv. 20–22.

8:20 Bildad is blunt about Job's being an evildoer, whereas Eliphaz had resorted to insinuation (see 4:7–9).

8:21 See note on v. 7.

9:2–3 Job does not believe that he is sinless, but he wishes to have his day in court so that he can prove he is innocent of the kind of sin that deserves the suffering he endures. In his despair he voices awful complaints against God (see vv. 16–20,22–24,29–35; 10:1–7,13–17). Yet he does not abandon God; he does not curse him (see 10:2,8–12), as Satan said he would (see 1:11; 2:5). Ch. 42 implies that Job persevered, but chs. 9–10 show that he did so with impatience (see 4:2; 6:11; 21:4). Cf. Jas 5:11, which speaks of Job's perseverance, not (as traditionally) his patience.

9:3 dispute. See v. 14. Job's speech is filled with the imagery of the courtroom: "answer him" (vv. 3,15,32), "argue with him" (v. 14), "innocent ... plead ... Judge" (v. 15), "summon(ed)" (vv. 16,19), "pronounce me guilty" (v. 20), "judges" (v. 24), "court" (v. 32), "charges ... against me" (10:2), "witnesses" (10:17). Job argues his innocence, but he feels that because God is so great there is no use in contending with him (v. 14). Job's innocence does him no good (v. 15).

9:5–10 A beautiful hymn about God's greatness. But Job is not blessed by it, for he does not see that God's power is controlled by goodness and justice.

9:6 pillars. See 26:11. The metaphor of the earth resting on a foundation (see 38:6; 1Sa 2:8; Ps 75:3; 104:5) is changed in 26:7 to a description of the earth suspended

[7]He speaks to the sun and it does not shine;[i] he seals off the light of the stars.[j] [8]He alone stretches out the heavens[k] and treads on the waves of the sea.[l] [9]He is the Maker[m] of the Bear and Orion, the Pleiades and the constellations of the south.[n] [10]He performs wonders[o] that cannot be fathomed, miracles that cannot be counted.[p] [11]When he passes me, I cannot see him;
when he goes by, I cannot perceive him.[q] [12]If he snatches away, who can stop him?[r]
Who can say to him, 'What are you doing?'[s] [13]God does not restrain his anger;[t] even the cohorts of Rahab[u] cowered at his feet.

[14]"How then can I dispute with him?
How can I find words to argue with him?[v]
[15]Though I were innocent, I could not answer him;[w]
I could only plead[x] with my Judge[y] for mercy.[z]
[16]Even if I summoned him and he responded,
I do not believe he would give me a hearing.[a] [17]He would crush me[b] with a storm[c] and multiply[d] my wounds for no reason.[e] [18]He would not let me regain my breath but would overwhelm me with misery.[f]

And if it is a matter of justice, who will summon him[p]?[h] over nothing.

9:8 stretches out the heavens. Either (1) creates the heavens (see Isa 44:24), or perhaps (2) causes the dawn to spread, like a man stretching out a tent (see Ps 104:2). treads on the waves. Canaanite texts describe the goddess Asherah as walking on the sea (or sea-god) to subdue it. Similarly, God "treads on the waves" to control the boisterous sea.

9:9 Bear ... Orion ... Pleiades. These three constellations are mentioned again in 38:31–32, and the last two are mentioned in Am 5:8 (see note there). Despite their limited knowledge of astronomy, the ancient Israelites were awed by the fact that God had created the constellations.

9:10 The same words are spoken by Eliphaz in 5:9.

9:12 who can stop him? Job argues that God has an unchallengeable, sovereign freedom that works to accomplish everything he pleases.

9:13 Rahab. Not the prostitute Rahab of Jos 2 but a mythical sea monster (see 26:12), elsewhere used as symbolic of Egypt (see Isa 30:7 and note). See 3:8; 7:12 and notes.

9:15 Judge. God's fairness is unimpeachable (see Ge 18:25 and note).

9:17 Job does not know that God has allowed Satan to crush him for a high purpose.

9:20 mouth would condemn me. See 15:6.

9:21 I despise my own life. See 7:16; words of despairing resignation that would be partially echoed in Job's final outpouring of repentance (see 42:6).

9:22–24 God has become Job's great enigma. Job describes a phantom God—one who does not exist, except in Job's mind. The God of the Bible is not morally indifferent (cf. God's words in 38:2; 40:2 and Job's response in 42:3).

9:24 blindfolds its judges. Our statues of Lady Justice are blindfolded, implying that she will judge impartially. But Job's accusation against God is that he has blindfolded the judges so that they see neither crimes nor innocence.

9:26 boats of papyrus. See note on Ex 2:3.

9:28 you will not hold me innocent. Job wants to stand before God as an innocent man—not sinless, but innocent of any sin commensurate with his suffering.

9:29 already found guilty. As appears from the bitter suffering he is enduring.

30 Even if I washed myself with soap[q][b] and my hands[c] with washing soda,[d] 31 you would plunge me into a slime pit[e]
so that even my clothes would detest me.[f] 32 "He is not a man[g] like me that I might answer him,[h] that we might confront each other in court.[i] 33 If only there were someone to arbitrate between us,[j] to lay his hand upon us both,[k] 34 someone to remove God's rod from me,[l]
so that his terror would frighten me no more.[m] 35 Then I would speak up without fear of him,[n] but as it now stands with me, I cannot.[o]

10 "I loathe my very life;[p] therefore I will give free rein to my complaint and speak out in the bitterness of my soul.[q] 2 I will say to God:[r] Do not condemn me, but tell me what charges[s] you have against me.[t] 3 Does it please you to oppress me,[u] to spurn the work of your hands,[v]
while you smile on the schemes of the wicked?[w] 4 Do you have eyes of flesh?
Do you see as a mortal sees?[x]
5 Are your days like those of a mortal or your years like those of a man,[y] 6 that you must search out my faults and probe after my sin[z]— 7 though you know that I am not guilty[a] and that no one can rescue me from your hand?[b]

8 "Your hands shaped[c] me and made me.
Will you now turn and destroy me?[d]
9 Remember that you molded me like clay.[e]
Will you now turn me to dust again?[f] 10 Did you not pour me out like milk and curdle me like cheese, 11 clothe me with skin and flesh and knit me together[g] with bones and sinews?
12 You gave me life[h] and showed me kindness,[i] and in your providence[j] watched over[k] my spirit.

13 "But this is what you concealed in your heart, and I know that this was in your mind:[l] 14 If I sinned, you would be watching me[m] and would not let my offense go unpunished.[n] 15 If I am guilty[o]—woe to me![p]
Even if I am innocent, I cannot lift my head,[q]
for I am full of shame and drowned in[r] my affliction.[r] 16 If I hold my head high, you stalk me like a lion[s] and again display your awesome power against me.[t]

[q] 30 Or snow [r] 15 Or and aware of

9:30 soda. A vegetable alkali used as a cleansing agent. The Hebrew underlying this word is translated "soap" in Jer 2:22; Mal 3:2.

9:33 someone to arbitrate between us. See note on 5:1. God is so immense that Job feels he needs someone who can help him, someone who can argue his case in court. Job's call is not directly predicting the mediatorship of Christ, for Job is not looking for one to forgive him but for one who can testify to his innocence (see 16:20–21; 19:25–26).

9:34 See 13:21. God's rod. Symbolic of divine judgment and wrath (see, e.g., Ps 89:32; La 3:1).

10:1 I loathe my very life. See note on 9:21. bitterness of my soul. Because Job is so bitter, his mind has conjured up a false picture of God.

10:3 Job imagines that God is angry with him, an innocent man (see 9:28 and note), and that he takes delight in the wicked. Such words are a reminder that the sickroom is not the place to argue theology; in times of severe suffering, people may say things that require a response of love and understanding. Job himself will eventually repent, and God will forgive (42:1–6).

10:4 eyes of flesh. Imperfect vision, like that of a man.

10:8–17 Job continues to question God as if he were his adversary in court. He wants to know how God, who so wonderfully formed him in the womb, could all the while have planned (see v. 13) to punish him—even though he may be innocent.

10:8–11 A poetic description of God making a baby in the womb (see Ps 139:13–16).

10:8 See Ps 119:73.

10:9 molded me like clay. See note on 4:19. turn me to dust. See note on Ge 3:19.

10:15–16 Job says that whether he is guilty or innocent, the all-powerful God will not treat him justly.

10:17 witnesses against me. See note on 9:3.

18"Why then did you bring me out of the womb?[x]
I wish I had died before any eye saw me.[y] 19If only I had never come into being, or had been carried straight from the womb to the grave![z] 20Are not my few days[a] almost over?[b]
Turn away from me[c] so I can have a moment's joy[d] 21before I go to the place of no return,[e] to the land of gloom and deep shadow,[s f] 22to the land of deepest night, of deep shadow[g] and disorder, where even the light is like darkness."[h]

Zophar

11 Then Zophar the Naamathite[i] replied:

2"Are all these words to go unanswered?[j]

3Will your idle talk[l] reduce men to silence?

10:18–22 See notes on ch. 3.

10:21 place of no return. See note on 7:9. land of gloom and deep shadow. See 38:17. Ancient Mesopotamian documents refer to the netherworld as the "house of darkness."

11:1–20 Like Eliphaz (see 4:7–11) and Bildad (see 8:3–6), Zophar claims that Job's sins have caused his troubles.

11:2–3 Zophar's failure to put himself in Job's place before condemning him shows a lack of compassion. Nor is Zophar entirely correct in his condemnation: Job has sincerely challenged what he perceives to be God's unjust actions (see 9:14–24), but he has not mocked God (as Zophar accuses him of having done).

11:4 I am pure. In 10:7,15 Job had disclaimed being guilty, and in 9:21 he said he was "blameless," the word God used to describe him in 1:8; 2:3. Zophar, however, implies that Job was claiming absolute purity (sinless perfection), but Job nowhere uses such terms of himself.

11:5 Zophar thought God should speak against Job, but eventually God spoke against Zophar himself (see 42:7).

11:6 true wisdom has two sides. OT wisdom literature (especially Proverbs) makes abundant use of the term mashal ("proverb," "riddle," "parable"), which often had a hidden as well as an obvious meaning. Zophar thinks Job is shallow and lacks an understanding of the true nature of God (see vv. 7–9).

11:7 Unwittingly, Zophar anticipates the Lord's discourses in 38:1–42:6.

11:8–9 In the same way that Zophar speaks of the height, depth, length and width of God's knowledge, Paul speaks of Christ's love (see Eph 3:18).

11:8 what can you do? Can you climb into the heavens and explore God's knowledge?

11:11–12 deceitful . . . witless. Zophar claims that it would take a miracle to change Job.

11:12 The NIV text note contrasts two related but utterly different Biblical animals—the wild donkey and the domestic donkey.

11:13–20 Zophar assumes that Job's problems are rooted in his sin; all Job has to do is to repent, and then his life will become blessed and happy. But God nowhere guarantees a life "brighter than noonday" (v. 17) simply because we are his children. He has higher purposes for us than our physical prosperity, or people courting our favor (v. 19). Zophar's philosophy is in conflict with Ps 73.

11:13 stretch out your hands to him. For help (see Pr 1:24; La 1:17).

11:15 lift up your face without shame. Zophar echoes Job's thought in 10:15.

you will stand firm[k] and without fear.[l] 16You will surely forget your trouble,[m] recalling it only as waters gone by.[n] 17Life will be brighter than noonday,[o] and darkness will become like morning.[p] 18You will be secure, because there is hope; you will look about you and take your rest[q] in safety.[r] 19You will lie down, with no one to make you afraid,[s] and many will court your favor.[t] 20But the eyes of the wicked will fail,[u] and escape will elude them;[v] their hope will become a dying gasp."[w]

Job

12 Then Job replied:

2"Doubtless you are the people, and wisdom will die with you![x] 3But I have a mind as well as you;
I am not inferior to you.
Who does not know all these things?[y]

4"I have become a laughingstock[z] to my friends,[a] though I called upon God and he answered[b]— a mere laughingstock, though righteous and blameless![c] 5Men at ease have contempt[d] for misfortune as the fate of those whose feet are slipping.[e] 6The tents of marauders are undisturbed,[f] and those who provoke God are secure[g]—
those who carry their god in their hands.[v]

7"But ask the animals, and they will teach you,[h] or the birds of the air,[i] and they will tell you;[j] 8or speak to the earth, and it will teach you, or let the fish of the sea inform you.
9Which of all these does not know[k] that the hand of the LORD has done this?[l] 10In his hand is the life[m] of every creature and the breath of all mankind.[n] 11Does not the ear test words as the tongue tastes food?[o]
12Is not wisdom found among the aged?[p]
Does not long life bring understanding?[q]

13"To God belong wisdom[r] and power;[s] counsel and understanding are his.[t] 14What he tears down[u] cannot be rebuilt;[v]
the man he imprisons cannot be released.[w] 15If he holds back the waters,[x] there is drought;[y]
if he lets them loose, they devastate the land.[z] 16To him belong strength and victory;[a] both deceived and deceiver are his.[b] 17He leads counselors away stripped[c] and makes fools of judges.[d] 18He takes off the shackles[e] put on by kings

[v] 6 Or secure / in what God's hand brings them

11:20 Bildad ended his speech in a similar way (see 8:22).
12:1–14:22 As before, Job's reply is divided into two parts: He speaks to his three friends (12:2–13:19), then to God (13:20–14:22).
12:2 For the first time, Job reacts with sarcasm to the harshness of his counselors (see v. 20).
12:3 Who does not know . . . ? See v. 9. The advice of Job's friends is trivial and commonplace.
12:4 God . . . answered. In the days before his suffering began (contrast 9:16).
12:5 The prosperous despise those who, like Job, have trouble.
12:6 Such statements (see 9:21–24) irked the counselors and made them brand Job as a man whose feet were slipping (see v. 5).
12:7–12 Job appeals to all creation to prove that God does what he pleases—that he does not use a person's piety as the sole basis for granting freedom from affliction.
12:7 they will teach you. That the righteous suffer and the evil are secure.
12:9 LORD. The only place in Job's and his friends' speeches (chs. 3–37) where the divine name "LORD" (Hebrew Yahweh) is used (see Introduction: Author).
12:11 Echoed by Elihu in 34:3. Cf. 6:6, where Job says that Eliphaz's words are like "tasteless food."
12:12 Job sarcastically chides his counselors for being elders and yet lacking in true wisdom.
12:13–25 The theme of this section is stated in v. 13: God is sovereign in the created world, and especially in history. The rest of the poem dwells on the negative aspects of God's power and wisdom—e.g., the destructive forces of nature (vv. 14–15), how judges become fools (v. 17), how priests become humiliated (v. 19), how trusted advisers are silenced and elders deprived of good sense (v. 20). Contrast the claim of Eliphaz that God always uses his power in ways that make sense (5:10–16).

12:20 See note on v. 2.
12:21a,24b The Hebrew text of these lines is repeated verbatim in Ps 107:40.
12:22 God knows even secret, evil plans.
12:25 grope in darkness. Job concludes this section with a parody of Eliphaz's confident assertion in 5:14.
13:1–12 Job feels that his counselors have become completely untrustworthy (see v. 12). He calls them quacks (see v. 4; see also 16:2) and accuses them of showing partiality to God (since God is stronger than Job) by telling lies about Job (see vv. 7–8). Someday God will examine and punish them for their deception (see vv. 9–11).
13:1 all this. God's sovereign actions as described in ch. 12.
13:2 See 15:9. I am not inferior to you. Repeated from 12:3.
13:5 See v. 13. The friends' silent presence had ministered to Job earlier (see 2:13), but Job's current retort is intended as sarcasm (cf. Pr 17:28).
13:12 defenses. Arguments in their defense of God's judgment.
13:15 See NIV text note. Both readings state that no matter what happens, Job intends to seek vindication from God and believes that he will receive it (see v. 18).
13:16 turn out for my deliverance. See Php 1:19 (perhaps Paul was reflecting on Job's experience).
13:17 Job asks his friends to listen to what he is going to say to God in 13:20–14:22.
13:20 two things. Job wants God (1) to withdraw his hand of punishment (v. 21), and (2) to start communicating with him (v. 22).
13:21 See 9:34.

[23]How many wrongs and sins have I committed?[h]

[24]Why do you hide your face[j]

Will you chase[n] after dry chaff?[o] [26]For you write down bitter things against me and make me inherit the sins of my youth.[p]

13:23 Job's words are based on the counselors' point that suffering always implies sinfulness. He does not yet understand that God has a higher purpose in his suffering. wrongs ... sins ... offense. The three most important OT terms for sin (see note on Ex 34:7).

13:24 hide your face. Withhold your blessing (see note on Ps 13:1).

13:26 sins of my youth. Since Job feels that he is not presently guilty of a sinful life, God must still be holding the sins of his youth against him. write down ... things against me. See Ps 130:3; Hos 13:12; contrast 1Co 13:5.

13:27 You fasten ... my paths. Elihu later quotes Job's words (see 33:11). marks on the soles of my feet. The Babylonian Code of Hammurapi (18th century B.C.) attests to the practice of putting marks on slaves. Job feels that he is being harassed by a God who has taken him captive and is tormenting him (see v. 25).

13:28–14:1 The introduction to ch. 14, expressing the pessimistic theme that man's legacy is trouble and his destiny is death.

13:28 garment eaten by moths. See Mt 6:19–20; Lk 12:33.

14:1 See 5:7.

14:2–6 A symmetrical poem centered around v. 4; v. 2 corresponds to v. 5, and v. 3 to v. 6. Job expostulates with God: Given man's insignificance and inherited impurity, why do you take him so seriously (see 13:25)?

14:2 He ... withers away. Life at best is brief and fragile (see 8:9; Ps 37:2; Isa 40:7,24). like a fleeting shadow. See note on 8:9.

14:7–12 Man is like a flower that lives its short life and is gone (v. 2), not like a tree that revives even after it has been cut down.

14:7 sprout. The Hebrew root underlying this word is translated "renewal" in v. 14.

14:13–17 Job's spirit now appears to rise above the despair engendered by his rotting body. Although resurrection in the fullest sense is not taught here, Job is saying that if God so desires he is able to hide Job in the grave, then raise him back to life at a time when the divine anger is past.

14:14 hard service. See note on 7:1.

18"But as a mountain erodes and crumbles[k]
and as a rock is moved from its place,[l] 19as water wears away stones and torrents[m] wash away the soil,[n] so you destroy man's hope.[o] 20You overpower him once for all, and he is gone;[p] you change his countenance and send him away.[q] 21If his sons are honored, he does not know it;
if they are brought low, he does not see it.[r] 22He feels but the pain of his own body[s] and mourns only for himself.[t]"

Eliphaz

15 Then Eliphaz the Temanite[u] replied:

2"Would a wise man answer with empty notions or fill his belly with the hot east wind?[v] 3Would he argue with useless words, with speeches that have no value?[w] 4But you even undermine piety and hinder devotion to God.[x] 5Your sin[y] prompts your mouth;[z] you adopt the tongue of the crafty.[a] 6Your own mouth condemns you, not mine;
your own lips testify against you.[b]

7"Are you the first man ever born?[c]
Were you brought forth before the hills?[d]
8Do you listen in on God's council?[e]
Do you limit wisdom to yourself?[f] 9What do you know that we do not know?
What insights do you have that we do not have?[g] 10The gray-haired and the aged[h] are on our side, men even older than your father.[i] 11Are God's consolations[j] not enough for you, words[k] spoken gently to you?[l] 12Why has your heart[m] carried you away, and why do your eyes flash, 13so that you vent your rage[n] against God and pour out such words[o] from your mouth?[p]

14"What is man, that he could be pure, or one born of woman,[q] that he could be righteous?[r] 15If God places no trust in his holy ones,[s] if even the heavens are not pure in his eyes,[t] 16how much less man, who is vile and corrupt,[u] who drinks up evil[v] like water![w]

17"Listen to me and I will explain to you; let me tell you what I have seen,[x] 18what wise men have declared, hiding nothing received from their fathers[y] 19(to whom alone the land[z] was given when no alien passed among them):
20All his days the wicked man suffers torment,[a]

14:18–22 Job's pessimism arises not from skepticism about the possibility of resurrection from the dead but rather from God's apparent unwillingness to do something immediately for a person like him, whose life has become a nightmare of pain and mourning.

15:1–6 Up to this point Eliphaz has been the most sympathetic of the three counselors, but now he has run out of patience with Job and denounces him more severely than before.

15:2 empty. The Hebrew for this word is translated "long-winded" in 16:3, where Job hurls Eliphaz's charges back at him. hot east wind. See 27:21; 38:24; the sirocco that blows in from the desert (see notes on Ge 41:6; Jer 4:11).

15:4 piety. See note on 4:6.

15:5 See Mt 15:11,17–18.

15:6 mouth condemns you. See 9:20.

15:7–10 Job, says Eliphaz, presumes to be wise enough to sit among the members of God's council in heaven (see note on 1:6) when in reality he is no wiser than ordinary elders and sages on earth.

15:10 Age, with its tested experience, was equated with wisdom in ancient times—a truism denied by Elihu (see 32:6–9).

15:11–13 Eliphaz chides Job for replying in rage to his friends' attempts to console him with gentle words, which Eliphaz believes come from God himself (v. 11). But Eliphaz has been guilty of cruel insinuation (ch. 5), and the other two counselors have been even more malicious. Genuine words of comfort for Job have been few indeed (see 4:2–6).

15:14–16 See 25:4–6. Eliphaz repeats what he had already said in 4:17–19, perhaps because he thought the earlier words had come to him through divine revelation (see note on 4:12–21).

15:14 born of woman. An echo of Job's words in 14:1.

15:15 holy ones. Angels (see note on 5:1).

15:16 drinks up evil like water. See Elihu's description of Job in 34:7.

15:17–26 Eliphaz now bolsters his earlier advice with traditional wisdom: The wicked man (a caricature of Job) can never escape the suffering he deserves.

15:20–35 A poem on the fate of the wicked (see 8:11–19). Eliphaz's caricature continues with a variety of figures: a belligerent sinner who attacks God (vv. 24–26); a fat, rich wicked man who finally gets what he deserves (vv. 27–32); a grapevine stripped before the fruit is ripe (v. 33a); "an the ruthless through all the years

21Terrifying sounds fill his ears;[c] when all seems well, marauders attack him.[d] 22He despairs of escaping the

he is marked for the sword.[f] 23He wanders about[g]—food for vultures[b];[h]
he knows the day of darkness[i] is at hand.[j] 24Distress and anguish[k] fill him with terror;[l]
they overwhelm him, like a king[m] poised to attack, 25because he shakes his fist[n] at God and vaunts himself against the Almighty,[o] 26defiantly charging against him with a thick, strong shield.[p]

27"Though his face is covered with fat and his waist bulges with flesh,[q] 28he will inhabit ruined towns and houses where no one lives,[r] houses crumbling to rubble.[s] 29He will no longer be rich and his wealth will not endure,[t] nor will his possessions spread over the land.[u] 30He will not escape the darkness;[v] a flame[w] will wither his shoots,[x] and the breath of God's mouth[y]
will carry him away.[z] 31Let him not deceive[a] himself by trusting what is worthless,[b] for he will get nothing in return.[c] 32Before his time[d] he will be paid in full,[e]
and his branches will not flourish.[f] 33He will be like a vine stripped of its unripe grapes,[g]
like an olive tree shedding its blossoms.[h] 34For the company of the godless[i] will be barren, and fire will consume[j] the tents of those who love bribes.[k]

16 Then Job replied:

2"I have heard many things like these;
miserable comforters[n] are you all![o] 3Will your long-winded speeches never end?[p]
What ails you that you keep on arguing?[q] 4I also could speak like you,
if you were in my place;
I could make fine speeches against
you
and shake my head[r] at you.
5But my mouth would encourage you; comfort[s] from my lips would bring you relief.[t]

6"Yet if I speak, my pain is not relieved;
and if I refrain, it does not go away.[u] 7Surely, O God, you have worn me out;[v]
you have devastated my entire testifies against me.[y]

my opponent fastens on me his olive tree shedding its blossoms" (v. 33b). As long as Eliphaz rejects Job's insistence that the wicked go on prospering, he does not have to wrestle with the disturbing corollary: the mystery of why the innocent sometimes suffer.

15:23,30 darkness. Death, characterized by the journey to the netherworld (see note on 10:21).

15:35 They conceive trouble and give birth to evil. Repeated in Isa 59:4 (see note there). Once initiated, sinful thoughts develop quickly into evil acts.

16:2–5 Helpful advice is usually brief and encouraging, not lengthy and judgmental.

16:2 miserable comforters. See note on 13:1–12. Job would eventually be comforted, but not by his three friends (see 42:11).

16:3 long-winded. See note on 15:2.

16:4 shake ... head. A gesture of insult and scorn (see Ps 22:7; Jer 48:27; Mt 27:39).

16:9 The figure here is graphic and disturbing: God, like a ferocious lion (see 10:16), attacks and tears at Job's flesh. opponent. The Hebrew for this word is translated "enemy" in 19:11.

16:10–14 Job sees himself as God's target and views his situation as the reverse of Eliphaz's description in 15:25–26.

[11]God has turned me over to evil men and thrown me into the clutches of the wicked.[h] [12]All was well with me, but he shattered me;
he seized me by the neck and crushed me.[i]
He has made me his target;[j]
[13] his archers surround me.[k] Without pity, he pierces[l] my kidneys and spills my gall on the ground.
[14]Again and again[m] he bursts upon me;
he rushes at me like a warrior.[n]

[15]"I have sewed sackcloth[o] over my skin and buried my brow in the dust.[p] [16]My face is red with weeping,[q] deep shadows ring my eyes;[r] [17]yet my hands have been free of violence[s] and my prayer is pure.[t]

[18]"O earth, do not cover my blood;[u] may my cry[v] never be laid to rest![w] [19]Even now my witness[x] is in heaven;[y]
my advocate is on high.[z] [20]My intercessor[a] is my friend[c][b]
as my eyes pour out[c] tears[d] to God; [21]on behalf of a man he pleads[e] with God
as a man pleads for his friend.

[22]"Only a few years will pass before I go on the journey of no return.[f]

17 [1]My spirit[g] is broken, my days are cut short,[h]
the grave awaits me.[i] [2]Surely mockers[j] surround me;[k]
my eyes must dwell on their hostility.

[3]"Give me, O God, the pledge you demand.[l]
Who else will put up security[m] for me?[n] [4]You have closed their minds to understanding;[o] therefore you will not let them triumph.
[5]If a man denounces his friends for reward,[p]
the eyes of his children will fail.[q]

[6]"God has made me a byword[r] to everyone,[s] a man in whose face people spit.[t] [7]My eyes have grown dim with grief;[u]
my whole frame is but a shadow.[v] [8]Upright men are appalled at this;
the innocent are aroused[w] against the ungodly.
[9]Nevertheless, the righteous[x] will hold to their ways, and those with clean hands[y] will grow stronger.[z]

[10]"But come on, all of you, try again!
I will not find a wise man among you.[a] [11]My days have passed,[b] my plans are shattered, and so are the desires of my heart.[c] [12]These men turn night into day;[d] in the face of darkness they say,
'Light is near.'[e]

[c] 20 Or My friends treat me with scorn [d] 13 Hebrew Sheol

16:12 All was well ... but he shattered me. See 2:3 and note. made me his target. See note on 6:4.
16:15–17 Job summarizes his misery: Though innocent, he continues to suffer.
16:15 sackcloth ... dust. Signs of mourning (see notes on Ge 37:34; Jnh 3:5–6).
16:18–21 Verse 18 (see v. 22; 17:1) indicates that Job does not think he will live long enough to be vindicated before his peers. His only hope is that in heaven he has a friend (v. 20), a holy one (see 5:1), who will be his "witness," his "advocate," his "intercessor," one who will plead with God on his behalf (v. 21; see 9:33 and note).
16:18 blood ... cry. Job felt that his blood, like Abel's (see Ge 4:10 and note), was innocent and would therefore cry out from the ground after his death.
16:20 intercessor. The Hebrew for this word is translated "mediator" in 33:23 and "spokesman" in Isa 43:27.
16:22 only a few years will pass. Job does not expect his death immediately. journey of no return. To the netherworld (see notes on 7:9; 10:21).
17:1 the grave awaits me. See note on vv. 10–16.
17:3 Give me ... the pledge you demand. Job is asking God for a guarantee that he is right, that he is not guilty of sins that deserve punishment (as his counselors have said).
17:4 their minds. Those of his three friends.
17:5 Job quotes a proverb to counter the false accusations of his friends.
17:6–9 The guarantee Job asked for is not provided, so he feels that God is responsible for making him an object of scorn. If the tone of vv. 8–9 is intended as sarcastic (as v. 10 would seem to indicate), the "upright" and "innocent" are the counselors.
17:6 byword. See 30:9; an object of scorn and ridicule (see the covenant curse in Dt 28:37). in whose face people spit. See 30:10.
17:7 frame is but a shadow. See note on 2:7.
17:10–16 Zophar had promised that Job's repentance would turn his darkness into light (11:17). Job now makes a parody on such advice (vv. 12–16). His only hope is the grave (see v. 1), which will not be as his home had been (vv. 13–15).
17:13 home. See Ecc 12:5. darkness. See 18:18; the netherworld (see note on 10:21).

18 Then Bildad the Shuhite[o] replied:

2 "When will you end these speeches?[p]
Be sensible, and then we can talk.
3 Why are we regarded as cattle[q]

[e] 16 Hebrew Sheol [f] 15 Or Nothing he had remains

17:14 In the grave, one's family consists only of decomposition and maggots.

17:15 where . . . is my hope? See 14:19.

17:16 gates of death. See 38:17; Mt 16:18. In Mesopotamian literature, all who entered the netherworld passed through a series of seven gates. dust. See note on 7:21.

18:1–4 Bildad resents what he perceives to be a belittling attitude. He considers Job's emotional reaction as self-centered and irrational.

18:5–21 Another poem on the fate of the wicked (see 8:11–19; 15:20–35). Bildad wants to convince Job that he is wrong when he claims that the righteous suffer and the wicked prosper. Bildad is absolutely certain that every wicked person gets paid in full, in this life, for his wicked deeds.

18:5 The lamp of the wicked is snuffed out. See 21:17; repeated in Pr 13:9. Life, symbolized by light, is extinguished.

18:13 death's firstborn. See 5:7.

18:14 king of terrors. A vivid figure of speech referring to death, which is personified in v. 13. Canaanite literature pictured death as the devouring god Mot. Isaiah reverses the figure and envisions the Lord as swallowing up death forever (Isa 25:8; see 1Co 15:54).

18:15 burning sulfur. Reminiscent of the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah (see Ge 19:24).

18:16 roots . . . and . . . branches. Cf. Am 2:9; figurative for descendants (see, e.g., Isa 11:1,10) and/or ancestors (see, e.g., Jdg 5:14; Isa 14:29).

18:17 memory of him perishes. Apparently Bildad knows nothing of punishment in the realm of death. The only retribution beyond the grave is having one's memory (name) cut off by not leaving any heirs (see v. 19).

18:18 darkness. See 17:13; the netherworld (see note on 10:21).

18:21 evil man . . . knows not God. Having no intimate knowledge of God is synonymous with being such is the place[o] of one who knows not God."[p]

Job

19 Then Job replied:

2"How long will you torment[q] me and crush[r] me with words?
3Ten times[s] now you have reproached[t] me;
shamelessly you attack me.
4If it is true that I have gone astray, my error[u] remains my concern alone.
5If indeed you would exalt yourselves above me[v]
and use my humiliation against me, 6then know that God has wronged me[w]
and drawn his net[x] around me.[y] 7"Though I cry, 'I've been wronged!' I get no response;[z]
though I call for help,[a] there is no justice.[b] 8He has blocked my way so I cannot pass;[c] he has shrouded my paths in darkness.[d] 9He has stripped[e] me of my honor[f] and removed the crown from my head.[g] 10He tears me down[h] on every side till I am gone;
he uproots my hope[i] like a tree.[j] 11His anger[k] burns against me;
he counts me among his enemies.[l] 12His troops advance in force;[m] they build a siege ramp[n] against
me
and encamp around my tent.[o] 13"He has alienated my brothers[p] from
me;
my acquaintances are completely estranged from me.[q] 14My kinsmen have gone away;
my friends[r] have forgotten me.
15My guests[s] and my maidservants[t]
count me a stranger;
they look upon me as an alien.
16I summon my servant, but he does not answer, though I beg him with my own mouth.
17My breath is offensive to my wife;
I am loathsome[u] to my own brothers.
18Even the little boys[v] scorn me;
when I appear, they ridicule me.[w] 19All my intimate friends[x] detest me;[y] those I love have turned against me.[z]
20I am nothing but skin and bones;[a] I have escaped with only the skin of my teeth.[g] 21"Have pity on me, my friends,[b] have pity,
for the hand of God has struck[c]
me.
22Why do you pursue[d] me as God does?[e]
Will you never get enough of my flesh?[f]
23"Oh, that my words were recorded, that they were written on a scroll,[g] 24that they were inscribed with an iron tool[h] on[h] lead, or engraved in rock forever![i] wicked (see Hos 4:1–2,6).

19:3 Ten times. Several times. Ten is often used as a round number (see, e.g., Ge 31:41; 1Sa 1:8).

19:4 my concern alone. Job's friends have no right to interfere or to behave as if they were God (see v. 22).

19:6 wronged. Cf. 40:8. The Hebrew for this verb is twice translated "pervert" in 8:3, where Bildad denied that God perverts justice. But Job, struggling with the enigma of his suffering, can only conclude that God is his enemy, though in fact he is his friend who delights in him (see 1:8; 2:3). Job's true enemy, of course, is the Accuser. drawn his net. The wicked may get themselves into trouble, as Bildad had pointed out (see 18:8–10), but Job here attributes his suffering to God.

19:7 I cry, 'I've been wronged!' Lit. "I cry, 'Violence!' " See Hab 1:2.

19:8–12 In Job's mind, God is at war with him (see 16:12–14).

19:10 uproots my hope like a tree. See 24:20; unlike 14:7–9, where Job had used as a symbol of hope a tree that is cut down but later sprouts again.

19:12 siege ramp. See 30:12.

19:13–19 See Jer 12:6. Nothing in life hurts more than rejection by one's family and friends. Job's children are gone, and his wife, brothers, friends and servants find him repulsive.

19:17 breath is offensive. See note on 2:7.

19:18 little boys scorn me. An intolerable insult in a patriarchal society, where one's elders were to be honored and respected (see Ex 20:12 and note).

19:20 skin and bones. See note on 2:7. skin of my teeth. The NIV text note understands the phrase to imply that even Job's teeth are gone.

19:21 hand of God has struck me. See 1:11; 2:4–6; see also note on v. 6.

19:23–27 Probably the best-known and most-loved passage in the book of Job, reaching a high point in Job's understanding of his own situation and of his relationship to God. Its position between two sections in which Job pleads with (vv. 21–22) and then warns (vv. 28–29) his friends causes it to stand out even more boldly.

19:23 my words. Job would have his complaint and defense recorded so that even after his death they would endure until he is finally vindicated. scroll. See note on Ex 17:14.

19:24 iron. See also 20:24; 28:2; 40:18; 41:27. Iron did not come into common use in the ancient Near East until the 12th century B.C.

25 I know that my Redeemer[i] lives,[k]

the sword,[p]
and then you will know that there is judgment.[n]"[q]

Zophar

20 Then Zophar the Naamathite[r] replied:

2 "My troubled thoughts prompt me to because I am greatly disturbed.[s] 3 I hear a rebuke[t] that dishonors me, and my understanding inspires me

to reply.

4 "Surely you know how it has been

19:25 I know that my Redeemer lives. This staunch confession of faith has been appropriated by generations of Christians, especially through the medium of Handel's Messiah. But these celebrate redemption from guilt and judgment; Job had something else in mind. Although in other contexts he desires a defender (see NIV text note; see also Pr 23:11) as an advocate in heaven who would plead with God on his behalf (see 9:33–34; 16:18–21 and notes; see also note on 5:1), here the Redeemer seems to be none other than God himself (see note on Ru 2:20). Job expresses confidence that ultimately God will vindicate his faithful servants in the face of all false accusations. in the end. Lit. "afterward" (after Job's life has ended). he will stand. To defend and vindicate me (see 42:7–10).

19:26 my skin has been destroyed. Job senses that the ravages of his disease will eventually bring about his death. I will see God. He is absolutely certain, however, that death is not the end of existence and that someday he will stand in the presence of his Redeemer and see him with his own eyes (see v. 27; see also Mt 5:8; 1Jn 3:2). See note on 42:5.

19:28 hound. The Hebrew for this verb is translated "pursue" in v. 22. It serves as a clue that Job's tirade against the counselors is being resumed after the intervening section (vv. 23–27).

20:1–29 Yet another poem on the fate of the wicked as held by the "orthodox" theology of Job's friends (see 8:11–19; 15:20–35; 18:5–21).

20:2–3 Zophar takes Job's words, especially his closing words in 19:28–29, as a personal affront. Job has dared to assert that on Zophar's theory of retribution Zophar himself is due for punishment.

20:4–11 Zophar is proud that he is a healthy and prosperous man, for, in his view, that in itself is proof of his goodness and righteousness. But the joy and vigor of the wicked will always be brief and elusive (see Ps 73:18–20 and note).

20:6 pride reaches to the heavens. See Ge 11:4 and note.

20:7 dung. A symbol of what is temporary and worthless (see 1Ki 14:10).

20:10,19 Oppression of the poor is the mark of the truly wicked (see, e.g., Am 2:6–8; 8:4–8). On this subject, Job had no quarrel with Zophar (see 31:16–23).

20:11 dust. See note on 7:21.

20:12–15 An evil man's wicked deeds are like tasty food that pleases his palate but turns sour in his stomach.

20:15 riches he swallowed. After taking what belonged to the poor (see note on vv. 10,19).

Job

21 Then Job replied:

2"Listen carefully to my words;[y] let this be the consolation you give me.[z]
3Bear with me while I speak, and after I have spoken, mock on.[a] 4"Is my complaint[b] directed to man?
Why should I not be impatient?[c] 5Look at me and be astonished;

6When I think about this, I am terrified;[e] trembling seizes my body.[f]

20:18 What he toiled for ... he will not enjoy. A common theme in wisdom literature (see, e.g., Ecc 2:18–23).

20:20–25 Although a wicked man may fill his belly, when God vents his anger against him there will be nothing for him to eat.

20:24 iron. See note on 19:24.

20:26 darkness. See note on 10:21.

20:27 See Dt 30:19 and note.

20:28 flood ... rushing waters. Caused by intermittent streams that can overflow and cause extensive damage during the rainy season (see 6:15–16).

20:29 Like Bildad in 18:21, Zophar concludes his speech with a summary statement in which he claims that all he has said is in accord with God's plans for judging sinners. Such is the fate God allots the wicked. Repeated almost verbatim by Job in 27:13.

21:2 consolation you give me. See v. 34 ("you console me"), which, with v. 2, frames Job's reply to Zophar.

21:4 Is my complaint directed to man? No, says Job, I am complaining to God, because he is responsible for my condition—at least Job so perceived it. impatient. See note on 9:2–3.

21:5 Look at me. Job addresses his three friends.

21:6 this. His complaint to God. I am terrified. To contemplate the morally upside-down situation in which the wicked flourish.

21:7–15 Job's counselors have elaborated on the fate of the wicked (see 8:11–19; 15:20–35; 18:5–21; ch. 20), but Job insists that experience shows just the reverse of what his friends have said. The wicked, who want to know nothing of God's ways and who even consider prayer a useless exercise (vv. 14–15), flourish in all they do. Far from dying prematurely, as Zophar assumed concerning them (see 20:11), they live long and increase in power (v. 7). Bildad's claim that the wicked have no offspring or descendants (see 18:19) Job flatly denies (vv. 8,11).

21:9 rod of God. See note on 9:34.

13 They spend their years in prosperity[o] and go down to the grave[q][p] in peace.[r][q]
14 Yet they say to God, 'Leave us alone![r]
We have no desire to know your ways.[s]
15 Who is the Almighty, that we should serve him?
What would we gain by praying to him?'[t] 16 But their prosperity is not in their own hands, so I stand aloof from the counsel of the wicked.[u]

17 "Yet how often is the lamp of the wicked snuffed out?[v]
How often does calamity[w] come upon them,
the fate God allots in his anger?[x] 18 How often are they like straw before the wind, like chaff[y] swept away[z][a] by a gale?[b]
19 ⌊It is said,⌋ 'God stores up a man's punishment for his sons.'[c]
Let him repay the man himself, so that he will know it![d] 20 Let his own eyes see his destruction;[e] let him drink[f] of the wrath of the Almighty.[s][g] 21 For what does he care about the family he leaves behind[h] when his allotted months[i] come to an end?[j]

22 "Can anyone teach knowledge to God,[k]
since he judges even the highest?[l] 23 One man dies in full vigor,[m] completely secure and at ease,[n] 24 his body[t] well nourished,[o] his bones[p] rich with marrow.[q] 25 Another man dies in bitterness of soul,[r] never having enjoyed anything good.
26 Side by side they lie in the dust,[s] and worms[t] cover them both.[u]

27 "I know full well what you are thinking, the schemes by which you would wrong me.
28 You say, 'Where now is the great man's[v] house, the tents where wicked men lived?'[w]
29 Have you never questioned those who travel?
Have you paid no regard to their accounts—30 that the evil man is spared from the day of calamity,[x] that he is delivered from[u] the day of wrath?[y] 31 Who denounces his conduct to his face?
Who repays him for what he has done?[z]
32 He is carried to the grave, and watch is kept over his tomb.[a] 33 The soil in the valley is sweet to him;[b] all men follow after him,
and a countless throng goes[v] before him.[c]

34 "So how can you console me[d] with your nonsense?

[s] 17-20 Verses 17 and 18 may be taken as exclamations and 19 and 20 as declarations. [t] 24 The meaning of the Hebrew for this word is uncertain. [u] 30 Or man is reserved for the day of calamity, / that he is brought forth to [v] 33 Or / as a countless throng went

21:13 peace. The Hebrew root underlying this word is translated "those who live quietly" in Ps 35:20.
21:16 See 22:18. Job disavows the unholy counsel of the wicked and knows that God is in control (see v. 17), but such knowledge makes God all the more of an enigma to him.
21:17 lamp of the wicked snuffed out. See 18:5 and note.
21:18 straw ... chaff. See 13:25; see also note on Ps 1:4.
21:20 drink ... wrath of the Almighty. See note on Isa 51:17.
21:22 Can anyone teach ... God ... ? See Isa 40:14. On the contrary, God is the one who does the teaching (see 35:11; 36:22; chs. 38–41).
21:26 dust. See note on 7:21.
21:34 how can you console me ... ? See 16:2 and note.
22:1–26:14 The third cycle of speeches, unlike the first (chs. 4–14) and second (chs. 15–21), is truncated and abbreviated. Bildad's speech is very brief (25:1–6), and Zophar does not speak at all. The dialogue between Job and his friends comes to an end because the friends cannot convince Job of his guilt—Job cannot acknowledge what is not true.
22:2–4 Eliphaz's odd reasoning is as follows: Since all things have their origin in God, man's giving back what God has given him does not enhance God in any way. Indeed, God is indifferent to man's goodness, because goodness is expected of him. It is when man becomes wicked that God is aroused (v. 4).

3What pleasure[i] would it give the Almighty if you were righteous?[j]
What would he gain if your ways were blameless?[k]

4"Is it for your piety that he rebukes
you
and brings charges against you?[l] 5Is not your wickedness great?
Are not your sins[m] endless?[n] 6You demanded security[o] from your brothers for no reason;[p]
you stripped men of their clothing, leaving them naked.[q] 7You gave no water[r] to the weary and you withheld food from the hungry,[s] 8though you were a powerful man, owning land[t]— an honored man,[u] living on it.[v] 9And you sent widows[w] away empty-handed[x]
and broke the strength of the fatherless.[y] 10That is why snares[z] are all around you,[a]
why sudden peril terrifies you,[b] 11why it is so dark[c] you cannot see, and why a flood of water covers you.[d]

12"Is not God in the heights of heaven?[e]
And see how lofty are the highest stars!
13Yet you say, 'What does God know?[f] Does he judge through such darkness?[g] 14Thick clouds[h] veil him, so he does not see us[i] as he goes about in the vaulted heavens.'[j] 15Will you keep to the old path that evil men[k] have trod?[l]

16They were carried off before their time,[m] their foundations[n] washed away
by a flood.[o]
17They said to God, 'Leave us alone!
What can the Almighty do to us?'[p] 18Yet it was he who filled their houses with good things,[q] so I stand aloof from the counsel of the wicked.[r]

19"The righteous see their ruin and rejoice;[s]
the innocent mock[t] them, saying, 20'Surely our foes are destroyed,[u]
and fire[v] devours their wealth.'

21"Submit to God and be at peace[w] with him;[x]
in this way prosperity will come to you.[y] 22Accept instruction from his mouth[z] and lay up his words[a] in your heart.[b] 23If you return[c] to the Almighty, you will be restored:[d]
If you remove wickedness far from your tent[e] 24and assign your nuggets[f] to the dust, your gold[g] of Ophir[h] to the rocks in the ravines,[i] 25then the Almighty will be your gold,[j]
the choicest silver for you.[k]

22:4 piety. See note on 4:6. brings charges against. See note on 9:3.

22:5–11 In his earlier speeches, Eliphaz was the least caustic and at first even offered consolation (4:6; 5:17). But despite what he said in 4:3–4, Eliphaz now reprimands Job for gross social sins against the needy, who are naked and hungry (vv. 6–7), and against widows and the fatherless (v. 9). The only proof Eliphaz has for Job's alleged wickedness is his present suffering (vv. 10–11). In ch. 29 Job emphatically denies the kind of behavior of which Eliphaz accuses him.

22:6 demanded security ... stripped men of their clothing. Sins condemned by the prophets (see, e.g., Am 2:8 and note).

22:9 widows ... fatherless. See 24:3; Isa 1:17 and note; Jas 1:27. strength. Lit. "arms" (as in 38:15).

22:10 snares. See 19:6 and note.

22:11 dark ... flood of water. Two common figures of trouble and distress (see Ps 42:7 and note; Isa 8:7–8,22; 43:2).

22:12–20 Eliphaz finally appears to support the argument of Bildad and Zophar, who were fully convinced that Job was a wicked man. Eliphaz makes a severe accusation: Job follows the path of the ungodly (v. 15), who defy God's power and say, "What can the Almighty do to us?" (v. 17; see vv. 13–14). They even have contempt for God's goodness (v. 18).

22:18 See 21:16 and note.

22:21–30 Eliphaz makes one last attempt to reach Job. In many ways it is a commendable call to repentance: Submit to God (v. 21), lay up God's words in your heart (v. 22), return to the Almighty and forsake wickedness (v. 23), find your delight in God rather than in gold (vv. 24–26), pray and obey (v. 27) and become concerned about sinners (vv. 29–30). But Eliphaz's advice assumes (1) that Job is a very wicked man and (2) that Job's major concern is the return of his prosperity (see v. 21). Job had already made it clear in 19:25–27 that he deeply yearned to see God and be his friend.

22:22 See Job's response in 23:12. lay up his words in your heart. See Ps 119:11.

22:24 gold of Ophir. See 28:16; the finest gold (see notes on 1Ki 9:28; 10:11; Ps 45:9; Isa 13:12).

26 Surely then you will find delight in the Almighty[l] and will lift up your face[m] to God.[n] 27 You will pray to him,[o] and he will hear you,[p]
and you will fulfill your vows.[q] 28 What you decide on will be done,[r] and light[s] will shine on your ways.[t] 29 When men are brought low[u] and you say, 'Lift them up!'
then he will save the downcast.[v] 30 He will deliver even one who is not innocent,[w]
who will be delivered through the cleanness of your hands."[x]

Job

23 Then Job replied:

2 "Even today my complaint[y] is bitter;[z]
his hand[w] is heavy in spite of[x] my groaning.[a] 3 If only I knew where to find him;
if only I could go to his dwelling![b] 4 I would state my case[c] before him and fill my mouth with arguments.[d] 5 I would find out what he would answer me,[e]
and consider what he would say.
6 Would he oppose me with great power?[f]
No, he would not press charges against me.[g] 7 There an upright man[h] could present his case before him,[i] and I would be delivered forever from my judge.[j]

8 "But if I go to the east, he is not there;
if I go to the west, I do not find
him.
9 When he is at work in the north, I do not see him;
when he turns to the south, I catch no glimpse of him.[k] 10 But he knows the way that I take;[l] when he has tested me,[m] I will come forth as gold.[n] 11 My feet have closely followed his steps;[o]
I have kept to his way without turning aside.[p] 12 I have not departed from the commands of his lips;[q] I have treasured the words of his mouth more than my daily bread.[r]

13 "But he stands alone, and who can oppose him?[s]
He does whatever he pleases.[t]
14 He carries out his decree against me, and many such plans he still has in store.[u]
15 That is why I am terrified before him;[v]
when I think of all this, I fear him.[w]
16 God has made my heart faint;[x]
the Almighty[y] has terrified me.[z] 17 Yet I am not silenced by the darkness,[a]
by the thick darkness that covers my face.

24 "Why does the Almighty not set times[b] for judgment?[c]

22:28 light will shine on your ways. Through obedience to the word of God (see vv. 22,27; 29:3; Ps 119:105).
22:30 cleanness of your hands. See note on Ps 24:4.
23:2 my complaint. See 21:4 and note. his hand is heavy. See NIV text notes; 33:7; see also note on 1Sa 5:6.
23:3 where to find him. See note on vv. 8–9.
23:6 not press charges against me. Job is seeking a fair trial. In 9:14–20 Job was fearful that he could not find words to argue with God. Now he is confident that if God would give him a hearing, he would be acquitted (see 13:13–19; see also Ps 17:1–3; 26:1–3 and notes).
23:8–9 east . . . west . . . north . . . south. Whatever direction Job went, he could not find God (contrast Ps 139:7–10).
23:8,10 I do not find him . . . But he knows the way that I take. Job is frustrated over his apparent inability to have an audience with God, who knows that he is an upright man. Job is here answering Eliphaz's admonition beginning in 22:21: "Submit to God and . . . prosperity will come." Job replies that this is what he has always done (vv. 11–12). He treasures God's words more than his daily food. He admits that God is testing him—not to purge away his sinful dross, but to show that Job is pure gold (see Ps 119:11,101,168; 1Pe 1:7).
23:12 Job's response to the advice offered by Eliphaz in 22:22. words . . . more than daily bread. See Dt 8:3.
23:13 he stands alone. Lit. "he is one (unique)." Though Job is not an Israelite, he worships the one true God—there is no other (see Dt 6:4 and note). He does whatever he pleases. He is sovereign (see Ps 115:3; 135:6; Lk 10:21).
23:15 I am terrified. See note on 21:6. A necessary part of Job's faith is fear of a God who does what he pleases. By contrast, the counselors tried to make God predictable.
23:17 I am not silenced by the darkness. Job responds to Eliphaz's accusation in 22:11 (see note there).
24:1–12 Job describes the terrible injustice that often exists in the world. Robbery of both the "haves" (see v. 2) and the "have-nots" (see vv. 3–4) is equally obnoxious to him. But perhaps his suffering has enabled him to empathize with the poor, who must forage for food (v. 5) and "glean in the vineyards of the wicked" (v. 6). The scene he depicts is heart-rending: The naked shiver in the cold of night (vv. 7–8), fatherless infants are "snatched from the breast" (v. 9), field hands harvest food but go hungry (v.

4They thrust the needy[h] from the path

5Like wild donkeys[k] in the desert, the poor go about their labor[l] of foraging food;
the wasteland[m] provides food for their children.
6They gather fodder[n] in the fields and glean in the vineyards[o] of the so the grave[bv] snatches away those who have sinned.

20The womb forgets them,
the worm[w] feasts on them;[x] evil men are no longer remembered[y]
but are broken like a tree.[z]

10), vineyard workers make wine but suffer thirst (v. 11), groans rise from the dying and wounded (v. 12). Job cannot understand why God is silent and indifferent (vv. 1,12) in the face of such misery, but the fact that God waits disproves the counselors' theory of suffering. Job is no more out of God's favor as one of the victims than the criminal in vv. 13–17 is in God's favor because of God's inaction.

24:1 See note on vv. 21–24.

24:2 move boundary stones. A serious crime in ancient times (see note on Dt 19:14).

24:3 orphan's ... widow's. See 22:9; Isa 1:17 and note; Jas 1:27.

24:5 wild donkeys. See 39:5–8.

24:6 glean. See note on Ru 1:22.

24:7,10 Job implicitly denies the accusation of Eliphaz (see 22:6).

24:13–17 A description of those who cause the suffering depicted in vv. 2–12: the murderer (v. 14), the adulterer (v. 15), the robber (v. 16). Darkness is their element, the medium in which they thrive (see vv. 14–17). By contrast, God's law is the light against which they rebel (see v. 13; see also note on 22:28).

24:18–20 Job seems to agree with the counselors here. But it is also legitimate to translate the verses as Job's call for redress against evildoers: "May their portion of the land be cursed ... may the grave snatch away ... May the womb forget them, may the worm feast on them; may evil men be no longer remembered but be broken like a tree."

24:20 worm feasts on them. See 21:26; Isa 14:11. broken like a tree. See note on 19:10.

24:21–24 By way of summary, Job says that God judges the wicked, but he does so in his own good time. Job wishes, however, that God would give the righteous the satisfaction of seeing it happen (v. 1).

25 Then Bildad the Shuhite[l] replied:

2"Dominion and awe belong to God;[m]
he establishes order in the heights of heaven.[n] 3Can his forces be numbered?
Upon whom does his light not rise?[o]

Job

26 Then Job replied:

2"How you have helped the powerless![u]
How you have saved the arm that is feeble![v]
3What advice you have offered to one without wisdom!
And what great insight[w] you have displayed!
4Who has helped you utter these words?
And whose spirit spoke from your mouth?[x]

[c] 6 Hebrew Sheol [d] 6 Hebrew Abaddon

24:24 cut off like heads of grain. A symbol of judgment (see note on Isa 17:5).

25:1–6 See note on 22:1–26:14. Bildad adds nothing new here, and Zophar, who has already admitted how emotionally disturbed he was (see 20:2), doesn't even comment.

25:2 establishes order in the heights of heaven. Bildad apparently considered heaven as a place of warfare, where God must use his celestial troops (see v. 3) to establish order.

25:3 his forces. Angels. his light. The sun. All that is under God's dominion pales before him.

25:4–6 Bildad echoes Eliphaz's earlier statements about human depravity (4:17–19; 15:14–16).

26:2–4 With biting sarcasm, Job responds to Bildad alone (the Hebrew for the words "you" and "your" in these verses is singular rather than plural), indicating that Eliphaz and Zophar have already been silenced.

26:2 saved the arm that is feeble. See 4:3–4; Isa 35:3; Heb 12:12.

26:5 The dead. The Hebrew for this expression is translated "spirits of the dead" in Pr 2:18, "spirits of the departed" in Isa 14:9 and "departed spirits" in Isa 26:14. The term is used figuratively of the deceased who inhabit the netherworld (see 3:13–15,17–19; see also note on 3:16). waters. Part of the world inhabited by living beings, and therefore above the netherworld.

26:6 Death. See NIV text note; personified elsewhere as the "king of terrors" (see 18:14 and note). Destruction. See NIV text note; see also 28:22; 31:12; Pr 15:11 and NIV text notes. In Rev 9:11, Abaddon is the name of the "angel of the Abyss" (see NIV text note there).

26:7 He. God. spreads out the northern ⌞skies⌟. See 37:18. empty space. The Hebrew for this word is translated "formless" in Ge 1:2. nothing. See note on 9:6.

26:11 pillars of the heavens. See note on 9:6.

26:12 churned up the sea. See Isa 51:15; Jer 31:35. Rahab. See note on 9:13.

26:13 gliding serpent. A description of the sea monster Leviathan (see notes on 3:8; Isa 27:1).

26:14 these are but the outer fringe of his works. What God has revealed of his dominion over natural

27 And Job continued his discourse:[s]

2"As surely as God lives, who has denied me justice,[t]
the Almighty,[u] who has made me taste bitterness of soul,[v] 3as long as I have life within me,
the breath of God[w] in my nostrils, 4my lips will not speak wickedness, and my tongue will utter no
deceit.[x] 5I will never admit you are in the right;
till I die, I will not deny my integrity.[y] 6I will maintain my righteousness[z]
and never let go of it;
my conscience[a] will not reproach me as long as I live.[b]

7"May my enemies be like the wicked,[c]
my adversaries[d] like the unjust!
8For what hope has the godless[e]
when he is cut off, when God takes away his life?[f] 9Does God listen to his cry when distress comes upon him?[g] 10Will he find delight in the Almighty?[h]
Will he call upon God at all times?

11"I will teach you about the power of God;
the ways[i] of the Almighty I will not conceal.[j] 12You have all seen this yourselves.
Why then this meaningless talk?

13"Here is the fate God allots to the wicked,
the heritage a ruthless man receives from the Almighty:[k] 14However many his children,[l] their fate is the sword;[m] his offspring will never have enough to eat.[n] 15The plague will bury those who survive him,
and their widows will not weep for them.[o]

and supernatural forces amounts to no more than a whisper. Job is impressed with the severely limited character of man's understanding. Zophar had chided Job about his inability to fathom the mysteries of God (11:7–9), but the knowledge possessed by Job's friends was not superior to that of Job himself (see 12:3; 13:2). thunder of his power. If it is difficult for us to comprehend the little that we know about God, how much more impossible it would be to understand the full extent of his might!

27:1–23 The dialogue-dispute section of the book begins with Job's opening lament (ch. 3), continues with the three cycles of speeches (chs. 4–14; 15–21; 22–26) and concludes with Job's closing discourse (ch. 27), in which he reasserts his own innocence (vv. 2–6) and eloquently describes the ultimate fate of the wicked (vv. 13–23).

27:2 As surely as God lives. The most solemn of oaths (see note on Ge 42:15). Job's faith in God continued despite his perception of denied justice.

27:5 you. The Hebrew for this word is plural. In his summary statement, Job once again speaks to his three friends as a group.

27:6 maintain my righteousness. God had spoken similarly of Job (see 2:3).

27:7 May my enemies be like the wicked. Job calls for his friends, who had falsely accused him of being wicked, to be treated as though they themselves were wicked men (cf. Ps 109:6–15; 137:8–9).

27:11 I will teach you. Job is about to remind his counselors about an issue on which they all agree: that the truly wicked deserve God's wrath (vv. 13–23). The three friends had falsely put Job in that category.

27:13–23 A poem that dramatizes the effect of Job's earlier call for redress (v. 7).

27:13 Job echoes the words of Zophar in 20:29 (see note there).

27:18 cocoon ... hut. Symbols of fragility (see note on 4:19; Isa 1:8 and note; 24:20).

27:21 east wind. See note on 15:2.

28:1–28 Job's friends' application of traditional wisdom to human suffering has been even more unsatisfactory than Job's untraditional response. Both attempts to penetrate the mystery have failed, and the dialogue has come to an unsatisfactory conclusion. Therefore Job, or perhaps the unknown author of the book, inserts a striking wisdom poem that answers the question, "Where can wisdom be found?" (v. 12; see v. 20). The poem consists of three parts: (1) precious stones and metals are found in the deepest mines (vv. 1–11); (2) wisdom is not found in mines, nor can it be bought with precious stones or metals (vv. 12–19); (3) wisdom is found only in God and in the fear of him (vv. 20–28). The chapter, then, anticipates the theme of God's speeches (38:1–42:6): God alone is the answer to the mystery that Job and his friends have sought to fathom.

28:1–11 A fascinating, lyrical description of ancient mining techniques.

28:2 Iron. See note on 19:24.

28:3 puts an end to the darkness. By using an artificial source of light, such as a torch or lamp.

28:4 dangles and sways. Mining, then as now, is difficult and dangerous work. Men will hazard everything to dig the earth's treasures.

28:6 sapphires. See v. 16; see also notes on SS 5:14; Isa 54:11.

28:9 roots of the mountains. A poetic expression emphasizing great depth (cf. Jnh 2:6).

28:10 tunnels through the rock. An eighth-century B.C. inscription found at Jerusalem's Pool of Siloam testifies to the sophistication of ancient tunneling technology.

28:12 The questions, repeated almost verbatim in v. 20, are answered in v. 28.

28:16 gold of Ophir. See 22:24 and note.

28:18 the price of wisdom is beyond rubies. Cf. the value of a "wife of noble character" (Pr 31:10), who fears the Lord (Pr 31:30) and is therefore wise (see v. 28).

28:19 Cush. The upper Nile region, south of Egypt.

28:21 hidden ... from the birds. As are precious stones and metals (see v. 7).

28:22 Destruction and Death. See note on 26:6.

28:25–27 Wisdom has been with God from the time of creation itself (see Pr 8:22–31).

[h]24 The meaning of the Hebrew for this clause is uncertain.

111:10; Pr 9:10; see Pr 1:7).

29:1–25 A classic example of Semitic rhetoric, using the following symmetrical pattern: blessing (vv. 2–6), honor (vv. 7–10), benevolence (vv. 11–17), blessing (vv. 18–20), honor (vv. 21–25).

29:2–6 Words charged with emotion. In earlier days, God had been Job's friend and companion.

29:3 by his light I walked. See note on 22:28.

29:4 when God's intimate friendship blessed my house. Lit. "when God's council was by my tent," or "when God was an intimate in my tent." The clause evokes a situation similar to that in Ge 18, where God and two members of his heavenly council eat and drink at Abraham's tent—and there God discloses to his friend the imminent birth of the promised son and God's intentions concerning Sodom and Gomorrah.

29:5 my children were around me. See 1:2.

29:6 cream ... olive oil. Symbols of richness and luxury (see 20:17; Eze 16:19).

29:7 gate of the city. Where the most important business was conducted and the most significant legal cases were tried (see note on Ru 4:1). took my seat. As a city elder, a member of the ruling council (see note on Ge 19:1).

29:12–13 I rescued ... the fatherless ... I made the widow's heart sing. Implicitly responding to Eliphaz's accusation in 22:9, Job expresses his concern for the helpless and unfortunate (see 24:9; 31:16–18,21).

29:14 I put on righteousness ... justice was my robe. For similar imagery see Isa 59:17; 61:10; Eph 6:14,17.

29:18 I thought. Job muses on what might have been the course of his life.

29:21–25 His counsel was valued (vv. 21–23), his approval sought (v. 24) and his civic leadership accepted with gratitude (v. 25).

I dwelt as a king[a] among his troops;
I was like one who comforts mourners.[b]

30 "But now they mock me,[c] men younger than I,
whose fathers I would have disdained to put with my sheep dogs.[d] 2Of what use was the strength of their hands to me, since their vigor had gone from them?
3Haggard from want and hunger, they roamed[i] the parched land[e] in desolate wastelands[f] at night.[g] 4In the brush they gathered salt herbs,[h] and their food[j] was the root of the broom tree.[i] 5They were banished from their fellow men, shouted at as if they were thieves.
6They were forced to live in the dry stream beds,
among the rocks and in holes in the ground.[j] 7They brayed[k] among the bushes[l] and huddled in the undergrowth.
8A base and nameless brood,[m]
they were driven out of the land.[n]

9"And now their sons mock me[o] in song;[p]
I have become a byword[q] among them.
10They detest me[r] and keep their distance;
they do not hesitate to spit in my face.[s] 11Now that God has unstrung my bow[t] and afflicted me,[u] they throw off restraint[v] in my presence.
12On my right[w] the tribe[k] attacks;
they lay snares[x] for my feet,[y]
they build their siege ramps against me.[z] 13They break up my road;[a] they succeed in destroying me[b]— without anyone's helping them.[l] 14They advance as through a gaping breach;[c] amid the ruins they come rolling in.
15Terrors[d] overwhelm me;[e]
my dignity is driven away as by the wind,
my safety vanishes like a cloud.[f]

16"And now my life ebbs away;[g] days of suffering grip me.[h] 17Night pierces my bones;
my gnawing pains never rest.[i] 18In his great power[j] ⌊God⌋ becomes like clothing to me[m];
he binds me like the neck of my garment.
19He throws me into the mud,[k] and I am reduced to dust and ashes.[l]

20"I cry out to you,[m] O God, but you do not answer;[n]
I stand up, but you merely look at me.
21You turn on me ruthlessly;[o] with the might of your hand[p] you attack me.[q] 22You snatch me up and drive me before the wind;[r]
you toss me about in the storm.[s] 23I know you will bring me down to death,[t]
to the place appointed for all the living.[u]

24"Surely no one lays a hand on a broken man[v]

25Have I not wept for those in trouble?[x]
Has not my soul grieved for the poor?[y] 26Yet when I hoped for good, evil came;

30:1–31 In contrast to the positive notes of blessing and honor sounded in ch. 29, Job now bemoans the suffering and dishonor he has been forced to undergo. God has heaped overwhelming terrors on him (v. 15). His final, forlorn lament (see v. 31) over his condition shows that his rage has not yet subsided.

30:1,9 now . . . mock me. Earlier both young and old had deferred to him (see 29:8–11,21–25).

30:4 salt herbs. Probably saltwort, which grows in otherwise infertile areas, including the regions east of Sinai where Job and his friends lived. Cf. 39:6. broom tree. A large bush that grows in the deserts of the Middle East (see 1Ki 19:4; Ps 120:4).

30:9 byword. See note on 17:6.

30:11 God has unstrung my bow. In contrast to 29:20, where Job was confident that his bow would be new and strong.

30:12 siege ramps. See 19:12.

30:14 breach. In a city wall.

30:15 driven . . . as by the wind. See v. 22.

30:17 gnawing pains. See note on 2:7.

30:18 neck of my garment. Tight-fitting collar.

30:19 dust and ashes. Symbolic of humiliation and insignificance (see note on Ge 18:27). Job would someday use "dust and ashes" to symbolize repentance (42:6).

30:20–23 Job now directs his thoughts away from men and toward God. He accuses God of abusing his power by attacking him despite his pleas for mercy.

30:24 Job feels that he has been treated unjustly, whether by God or by man.

30:26 Cf. Isa 5:2,7.

[n] 12 Hebrew Abaddon

30:28 blackened. See v. 30; see also note on 2:7.
30:29 brother of jackals . . . companion of owls. The prophet Micah uses similar imagery of himself in Mic 1:8.
30:30 fever. See note on 2:7.
31:1–40 The climactic section of Job's three-part summation (see note on 29:1–31:40). It is negative in the sense that Job denies all the sins listed, but it has the positive purpose of attesting loyalty to God as his sovereign Lord. In the strongest legal terms, using a series of self-maledictory oaths, Job completes his defense. No more can be said (v. 40). He now affixes his signature to the document (v. 35), and the burden of proof that he is a wretched sinner rests with God. Job's call for vindication had reached a climax in 27:2–6. Now he amplifies that statement with the details of his godly life. Each disavowal (vv. 5–7,9,13,16–21,24–27,29–34,38–39) is accompanied by an oath that calls for the punishment the offense deserves (vv. 8,10–12,14–15,22–23,28,40). The principle at work is the so-called "law of retaliation" (see Ex 21:23–25 and note).
31:1–12 Job begins with sins of the heart, especially sexual lust (vv. 1–4), cheating in business (vv. 5–8) and marital infidelity (vv. 9–12).
31:1 look lustfully at a girl. To do so is to sin (see Mt 5:28).
31:4 Echoed by Elihu in 34:21.
31:6 God weigh me in honest scales. See 6:2; Pr 16:12; 21:2; 24:12. blameless. Does not imply sinless perfection (see note on 1:1).
31:12 Destruction. See note on 26:6.
31:13–23 Job reveals genuine understanding concerning matters of social justice: Human equality is based on creation (vv. 13–15), compassion toward those in need is essential (vv. 16–20), and power and influence must not be abused (vv. 21–23).
31:16–17 widow . . . fatherless. See note on 29:12–13.

[o] 33 Or as Adam did

31:24–28 Covetous greed (vv. 24–25) and idolatry (vv. 26–27) are equally reprehensible in the eyes of God (v. 28; see Mt 6:19–24; Col 3:5).

31:25 my great wealth. See 1:3,10.

31:26–28 The sun and moon are not to be objects of worship (see Dt 4:19; 17:3; Eze 8:16–17).

31:27 kiss. An ancient gesture of worship (see 1Ki 19:18; Hos 13:2).

31:29–32 The sin of gloating over one's enemy was condemned by Moses (Ex 23:4–5) and by Christ (Mt 5:43–47).

31:33–34 A strong denial of hypocrisy.

31:33 as men do. See NIV text note and Ge 3:8–10; Hos 6:7.

31:35–37 Job's final call for justice. His signature endorses every word of the oaths he has just taken.

31:35 someone to hear me. See notes on 5:1; 9:33; 16:18–21; 19:25. let the Almighty answer me. See note on 38:1. accuser. The Hebrew for this word is not the same as that for "Satan" (see note on 1:6). Here Job's accuser is either (1) a human adversary (perhaps one of the three friends) or (2) God himself. In any event, Job assumes that accusations have been lodged against him before the court of heaven to which God has responded with judgments.

31:36 shoulder. Inscriptions were sometimes worn on the shoulder as a perpetual reminder of their importance (see Ex 28:12).

31:38–40 A climactic oath that completes an earlier theme and creates a unique emphasis. Job calls for a curse on his land if he has not been fully committed to social justice (see also vv. 13–15).

31:40 The words of Job are ended. His complaints and arguments are now over. He will only make brief statements of contrition (40:4–5; 42:2–6) following the divine discourses.

32:1–37:24 A fourth counselor, named Elihu and younger than the other three (32:4,6–7,9), has been standing on the sidelines, giving deference to age and listening to the dialogue-dispute. But now he declares himself ready to show that both Job and the three other counselors are in the wrong. Elihu's four poetic speeches (32:5–33:33; ch. 34;

righteous in his own eyes.[o] [2]But Elihu son of Barakel the Buzite,[p] of the family of Ram, became very angry with Job for justifying himself[q] rather than God.[r] [3]He was also angry with the three friends,[s] because they had found no way to refute Job,[t] and yet had condemned him.[pu] [4]Now Elihu had waited before speaking to Job because they were older than he.[v] [5]But when he saw that the three men had nothing more to say, his anger was aroused.

[6]So Elihu son of Barakel the Buzite said:

"I am young in years,
and you are old;[w]
that is why I was fearful,
not daring to tell you what I know.
[7]I thought, 'Age should speak; advanced years should teach wisdom.'[x]
[8]But it is the spirit[qy] in a man, the breath of the Almighty,[z] that gives him understanding.[a] [9]It is not only the old[r] who are wise,[b] not only the aged[c] who understand what is right.[d]

[10]"Therefore I say: Listen to me;[e]
I too will tell you what I know.[f] [11]I waited while you spoke,
I listened to your reasoning;
while you were searching for words, [12] I gave you my full attention.
But not one of you has proved Job wrong;
none of you has answered his arguments.[g]
[13]Do not say, 'We have found wisdom;[h]
let God refute[i] him, not man.'

[14]But Job has not marshaled his words against me,[j]
and I will not answer him with your arguments.

[15]"They are dismayed and have no more to say;
words have failed them.[k]
[16]Must I wait, now that they are silent, now that they stand there with no reply?
[17]I too will have my say;
I too will tell what I know.[l]
[18]For I am full of words, and the spirit[m] within me compels
me;[n]
[19]inside I am like bottled-up wine, like new wineskins ready to burst.[o]
[20]I must speak and find relief;
I must open my lips and reply.[p] [21]I will show partiality[q] to no one,[r] nor will I flatter any man;[s] [22]for if I were skilled in flattery, my Maker[t] would soon take me
away.[u]

33 "But now, Job, listen[v] to my words;
pay attention to everything I say.[w] [2]I am about to open my mouth;
my words are on the tip of my tongue.
[3]My words come from an upright heart;[x]
my lips sincerely speak what I know.[y]

ch. 35; chs. 36–37) are preceded by a prose introduction (32:1–4) written by the author of the book.

32:1 righteous in his own eyes. He insisted on his innocence in spite of the terrible suffering that he was experiencing.

32:2–3 angry. Elihu considers Job's emphasis on vindicating himself rather than God reprehensible, but he also believes that the friends' inability to refute Job was tantamount to condemning God (see NIV text note on v. 3).

32:2 Buzite. An inhabitant of Buz, a desert region in the east (see Jer 25:23).

32:6,10,17 tell . . . what I know. Elihu is eager to share his "knowledge" and assumes that he can communicate it effectively (see note on 36:4).

32:6 young . . . fearful. See Jer 1:6–8; 1Ti 4:12; 2Ti 1:7.

32:8 breath of the Almighty. See 33:4.

32:14 I will not answer him with your arguments. Elihu feels that something important has been left out and, where the wisdom of age has failed, he by the Spirit of God (see NIV text note on v. 8) has the understanding to supply the right answers.

32:15–22 Elihu delivers a soliloquy to himself, but it is also for the benefit of those who may be listening.

32:15–16 words have failed them . . . they stand there with no reply. See v. 5. The breakdown of the third cycle in the dialogue-dispute cut short Bildad's last word and left Zophar without a third speech (see note on 22:1–26:14).

32:18 I am full of words. Elihu's speeches continue unabated through ch. 37. He has a genuine contribution to make, however, to the problems Job is facing. At the same time, he does not stoop to false accusation about Job's earlier life but usually confines his criticism of Job to quotations from Job himself. This is perhaps the reason that God, in the epilogue, does not condemn Elihu along with Job's three friends (see 42:7).

32:19 new wineskins ready to burst. Old wineskins might be expected to crack or break (see Mt 9:17), but not new ones. Elihu is obviously eager to speak.

33:1–33 Elihu turns to Job and speaks directly to him. Unlike the three friends, he addresses Job by name (vv. 1,31; see 37:14).

33:1 pay attention to everything I say. He is thoroughly convinced of the importance and wisdom of the advice he is about to give (see vv. 31,33).

33:4 Spirit of God has made me. See Ge 1:2 and note. breath of the Almighty. See 32:8. gives me life. See 27:3; see also Ge 2:7 and note.

I am clean and free from guilt.[l]

[w] 22 Or to the dead [x] 24 Or grave

33:5 Answer me. He opens and closes his speech (see v. 32) with the same plea. if you can. His attitude of superiority shows through.

33:6 I . . . have been taken from clay. See note on 4:19.

33:7 hand . . . heavy upon. The idiom is elsewhere used only of God (see 23:2 and NIV text notes; see also note on 1Sa 5:6).

33:8 But you have said. Elihu's method is to quote Job (vv. 9–11; 34:5–6,9; 35:2–3) and then show him where and how he is wrong. The quotations are not always verbatim, which indicates that Elihu is content simply to repeat the substance of Job's arguments.

33:11 Elihu quotes Job's words almost verbatim here (see 13:27).

33:12 you are not right. Elihu feels that Job needs to be corrected. Certainly Job's perception of God as his enemy (see v. 10; 13:24; 19:11) is wrong, but Elihu is also offended by what he considers Job's claim to purity (see v. 9). Job, however, had never claimed to be "pure and without sin," though some of his words were also understood that way by Eliphaz (see 15:14–16). Job admits being a sinner (7:21; 13:26) but disclaims the outrageous sins for which he thinks he is being punished. His complaints about God's silence (see v. 13) are also an offense to Elihu. But he imputes to Job the blanket statement that God never speaks to man, whereas Job's point is that God is silent in his present experience.

33:18 pit. See vv. 22,24,28,30; a metaphor for the grave (see NIV text note), as often in the Psalms. perishing by the sword. See 36:12. The reading in the NIV text note in both verses refers to the figurative waterway between the land of the living and the realm of the dead. The Hebrew for "River" here is shelaḥ (from a root that means "to send") and sometimes means "water channel" (see Ne 3:15 and NIV text note), a conduit through which water is "sent" (see Jn 9:7) by a spring. The "River" therefore is the figurative means of passage between this world and the next.

33:19 a man may be chastened on a bed of pain. Dreams and visions (see v. 15) are not the only ways in which God speaks. He can talk to us in ways that we do not perceive (see v. 14). Elihu rightly states that God speaks to man in order to turn him from sin. But he overlooks Job's reason for wanting an audience with God: to find out what sins he is being accused of (see 13:22–23).

33:23–28 Having emphasized the importance of the chastening aspect of suffering, a point mentioned only briefly by Eliphaz (see 5:17), Elihu now moves on to the possibility of redemption based on a mediator (see note on 5:1). He further allows for God's gracious response of forgiveness where sincere repentance is present (vv. 27–28). But Elihu is still ignorant of the true nature of Job's relationship to God, known only in the divine council (chs. 1–2).

33:24 Spare him from going down to the pit. See Isa 38:17. ransom. See Ps 49:7–9 and note.

33:25 flesh is renewed like a child's . . . restored. Similar phrases are used in 2Ki 5:14 with reference to healing from it is restored as in the days of his youth.[t] 26 He prays to God and finds favor with him,[u]

he sees God's face and shouts for joy;[v]
he is restored by God to his righteous state.[w] 27 Then he comes to men and says,
'I sinned,[x] and perverted what was right,[y]
but I did not get what I deserved.[z] 28 He redeemed[a] my soul from going down to the pit,[yb] and I will live to enjoy the light.'[c] 29 "God does all these things to a man[d]— twice, even three times[e]— 30 to turn back[f] his soul from the pit,[zg] that the light of life[h] may shine on him.[i] 31 "Pay attention, Job, and listen[j] to me;[k] speak up, for I want you to be cleared.[n]

33 But if not, then listen to me;[o]

34 Then Elihu said:

2 "Hear my words, you wise men;
listen to me,[r] you men of learning.
3 For the ear tests words
as the tongue tastes food.[s] 4 Let us discern for ourselves what is right;[t]
let us learn together what is good.[u]

5 "Job says, 'I am innocent,[v]

7 What man is like Job, who drinks scorn like water?[a] 8 He keeps company with evildoers;
he associates with wicked men.[b]
9 For he says, 'It profits a man nothing when he tries to please God.'[c]

10 "So listen to me,[d] you men of understanding.[e] Far be it from God to do evil,[f] from the Almighty to do wrong.[g]

[z] 30 Or turn him back from the grave

leprosy.

33:26 sees God's face. Not literally (see note on Ge 16:13).

33:29 twice . . . three times. See note on 5:19.

33:30 to turn back his soul from the pit. Elihu teaches that God's apparent cruelty in chastening human beings is in reality an act of love, since man is never punished in this life in keeping with what he fully deserves (see v. 27). light of life. Spiritual well-being (see Ps 49:19; see also Ps 27:1 and note). In some contexts, the phrase refers to resurrection (see note on Isa 53:11).

33:32 I want you to be cleared. But this will happen, Elihu insists, only if Job repents.

34:1–37 The second of Elihu's four speeches (see note on 32:1–37:24), divided into three sections: (1) addressed to a group of wise men (vv. 2–15), doubtless including the three friends; (2) addressed to Job (vv. 16–33); (3) addressed to himself (vv. 34–37), as in 32:15–22 (see note there).

34:2,10 listen to me. Although it is possible that Elihu is overly impressed with his own wisdom, it is more likely that he considered himself a messenger of God (see 32:8,18 and NIV text note), especially in the light of his humble attitude in v. 4.

34:2 wise men . . . men of learning. Also referred to as "men of understanding" (vv. 10,34).

34:3 Elihu echoes the words of Job in 12:11 (see note there).

34:5,9 Job says . . . For he says. Elihu again quotes Job and then goes on to defend God's justice against what he considers to be Job's false theology (e.g., 9:14–24; 16:11–17; 19:7; 21:17–18; 24:1–12; 27:2). The substance of the quotation in v. 5 is accurate (cf. 12:4; 13:18; 27:6), and much of v. 6 represents Job fairly (see 21:34; 27:5; see also 6:4 and note)—though Job had never claimed to be completely guiltless. Verse 9 is not a direct quotation from Job, who had only imagined the wicked saying something similar (see 21:15). But perhaps Elihu derives it from Job's repeated statement that God treats the righteous and the wicked in the same way (cf. 9:22; 21:17; 24:1–12), leading to the conclusion that it does not pay to please God.

34:7 drinks scorn like water. See Eliphaz's description of man in 15:16.

34:10 Far be it from God to do evil. See Ge 18:25 and note. Elihu's concern that Job was making God the author of evil is commendable. Job, in his frustration, has come perilously close to charging God with wrongdoing (12:4–6; 24:1–12). He has suggested that this is the only conclusion he can reach on the basis of his knowledge and experience (9:24).

34:11 See 2Co 5:10.

34:13–15 Elihu is zealous for God's glory as the sovereign Sustainer who demonstrates his grace every moment by granting life and breath to man.

Who put him in charge of the whole world?[m] 14If it were his intention and he withdrew his spirit[an] and breath,[o] 15all mankind would perish[p] together and man would return to the dust.[q]

16"If you have understanding,[r] hear this;
listen to what I say.[s] 17Can he who hates justice govern?[t]
Will you condemn the just and mighty One?[u] 18Is he not the One who says to kings,
'You are worthless,' and to nobles,[v] 'You are wicked,'[w] 19who shows no partiality[x] to princes and does not favor the rich over the poor,[y] for they are all the work of his hands?[z] 20They die in an instant, in the middle of the night;[a]
the people are shaken and they pass away;
the mighty are removed without human hand.[b]

21"His eyes are on the ways of men;[c] he sees their every step.[d] 22There is no dark place,[e] no deep shadow,[f] where evildoers can hide.[g] 23God has no need to examine men further,[h] that they should come before him for judgment.[i] 24Without inquiry he shatters[j] the mighty[k] and sets up others in their place.[l] 25Because he takes note of their deeds,[m] he overthrows them in the night[n] and they are crushed.[o] 26He punishes them for their wickedness[p] where everyone can see them, 27because they turned from following him[q]
and had no regard for any of his ways.[r] 28They caused the cry of the poor to come before him, so that he heard the cry of the needy.[s] 29But if he remains silent,[t] who can condemn him?[u]
If he hides his face,[v] who can see him?
Yet he is over man and nation alike,[w] 30 to keep a godless[x] man from ruling,[y] from laying snares for the people.[z]

31"Suppose a man says to God,
'I am guilty[a] but will offend no more.
32Teach me what I cannot see;[b]
if I have done wrong, I will not do so again.'[c] 33Should God then reward you on your terms, when you refuse to repent?[d]
You must decide, not I;
so tell me what you know.

34"Men of understanding declare,
wise men who hear me say to me, 35'Job speaks without knowledge;[e]
his words lack insight.'[f] 36Oh, that Job might be tested to the utmost for answering like a wicked man![g] 37To his sin he adds rebellion; scornfully he claps his hands[h] among us and multiplies his words[i] against God."[j]

35 Then Elihu said:
2"Do you think this is just?

[a]14 Or Spirit

34:15 return to the dust. See Ecc 12:7; see also Ge 3:19 and note.

34:16 hear . . . listen. The Hebrew for these verbs is singular, addressed to Job. Elihu is concerned that Job's attitude about God's justice be corrected (see v. 17), so he stresses God's impartial rule as Lord of all, especially in meting out justice to the wicked in high places (see vv. 18–20).

34:18 worthless. See note on Dt 13:13.

34:21–28 God's omniscience guarantees that he will not make any mistakes when he punishes evildoers. It is not necessary for him to set times to examine people for judgment (see v. 23; contrast 24:1).

34:21 Elihu echoes the words of Job in 31:4.

34:29 if he remains silent, who can condemn him? Elihu attempts to answer Job's complaint about God's silence (ch. 23). God watches over men and nations to see that right is done (vv. 29–30).

34:31–33 First indirectly (vv. 31–32) and then more directly (v. 33), Elihu condemns Job and calls for his repentance.

34:35 Job speaks without knowledge. A motif in the first discourse of the Lord (see 38:2) and the final response of Job (see 42:3).

35:1–16 Elihu's third speech (see note on 32:1–37:24), addressed to Job.

35:2 cleared. The Hebrew for this word is translated "vindicated" in Job's statement in 13:18. Elihu thinks that it is unjust and inconsistent for Job to expect vindication from God and at the same time imply that God does not care whether we are righteous (see v. 3). But allow-

You say, 'I will be cleared[k] by God.[b,l] 3Yet you ask him, 'What profit is it to me,[c] and what do I gain by not sinning?'[m] 4"I would like to reply to you and to your friends with you.
5Look up at the heavens[n] and see;
gaze at the clouds so high above you.[o]
6If you sin, how does that affect him?
If your sins are many, what does that do to him?[p] 7If you are righteous, what do you give to him,[q] or what does he receive[r] from your hand?[s] 8Your wickedness affects only a man like yourself,[t] and your righteousness only the sons of men.[u] 9"Men cry out[v] under a load of oppression;[w] they plead for relief from the arm of the powerful.[x] 10But no one says, 'Where is God my Maker,[y] who gives songs[z] in the night,[a] 11who teaches[b] more to[c] us than to[d] the beasts of the earth and makes us wiser than[e] the birds of the air?'
12He does not answer[d] when men cry out because of the arrogance[e] of the wicked.[f] 13Indeed, God does not listen to their empty plea;
the Almighty pays no attention to it.[g] 14How much less, then, will he listen when you say that you do not see him,[h] that your case[i] is before him and you must wait for him,[j] 15and further, that his anger never punishes[k]
and he does not take the least notice of wickedness.[f,l] 16So Job opens his mouth with empty talk;[m] without knowledge he multiplies words."[n]

2"Bear with me a little longer and I will show you that there is more to be said in God's behalf.
3I get my knowledge from afar;[o]
I will ascribe justice to my Maker.[p] 4Be assured that my words are not false;[q]
one perfect in knowledge[r] is with you.[s] 5"God is mighty,[t] but does not despise men;[u]
he is mighty, and firm in his purpose.[v] 6He does not keep the wicked alive[w]
but gives the afflicted their rights.[x]

[b] 2 Or My righteousness is more than God's [c] 3 Or you [d] 11 Or teaches us by [e] 11 Or us wise by [f] 15 Symmachus, Theodotion and Vulgate; the meaning of the Hebrew for this word is uncertain.

ance must be made for a person to express his feelings. The psalmist who thirsted for God (Ps 42:1–2) also questioned why God had forgotten him (Ps 42:9) and rejected him (Ps 43:2).

35:5 Look up at the heavens and see. Elihu asserts that God is so far above man that there is really nothing man can do, good or bad, that will affect God's essential nature (see v. 6).

35:9 Men cry out . . . they plead for relief. Elihu states that those like Job who pray for help when suffering innocently never seem to get around to trusting the justice and goodness of their Maker, who is also the author of wisdom and joy (see vv. 10–11). Such failure is a sign of arrogance (see v. 12), so Job's complaint against God's justice and about God's silence is meaningless talk (see vv. 13–16).

35:10–11 gives songs . . . teaches . . . makes us wiser. God chooses to condescend, to reach out to man in love.

35:12 Is it because of the arrogance of the wicked that men are crying out? A comma after the first line would change the meaning and make more sense of the verse in context: Since men are arrogant, God does not listen (see v. 13). Job himself might not be wicked, but he shares their arrogance. He too receives no answer, because he does not ask rightly (see v. 14).

35:16 The reference here to Job in the third person does not necessarily mean that someone other than Job is being addressed (see note on vv. 1–16). without knowledge. See 38:2 and note. multiplies words. Against God (see 34:37).

36:1–37:24 Elihu's fourth and final (see 36:2) speech (see note on 32:1–37:24), addressed for the most part to Job (but see note on 37:2).

36:2–4 Elihu desires to strengthen the case for God's goodness and justice.

36:4 perfect in knowledge. Here Elihu applies the phrase to himself, while in 37:16 he applies it to God—thus appearing to make himself equal to God. But the Hebrew for "knowledge" is not quite the same here as in 37:16. Elihu is probably referring to his ability as a communicator, i.e., he claims perfection in the knowledge of speech (see note on 32:6,10,17).

36:5 God's power assures the fulfillment of his purpose.

36:6–9 A classic statement of God's justice in rewarding the righteous and punishing sinners (in contrast to what Job has been claiming). In v. 7 Elihu perhaps has in mind Job's complaint that God will not leave him alone (see 7:17–19), and in v. 9 he may be thinking of Job's charge that God will not present his indictment against him (see 31:35–36).

7He does not take his eyes off the righteous;[y]
he enthrones them with kings[z] and exalts them forever.[a] 8But if men are bound in chains,[b] held fast by cords of affliction,[c] 9he tells them what they have done—that they have sinned arrogantly.[d] 10He makes them listen[e] to correction[f]
and commands them to repent of their evil.[g] 11If they obey and serve him,[h] they will spend the rest of their days in prosperity[i] and their years in contentment.[j] 12But if they do not listen, they will perish by the sword[g][k]
and die without knowledge.[l]

13"The godless in heart[m] harbor resentment;[n]
even when he fetters them, they do not cry for help.[o] 14They die in their youth,[p] among male prostitutes of the shrines.[q] 15But those who suffer[r] he delivers in their suffering;[s] he speaks[t] to them in their affliction.[u]

16"He is wooing[v] you from the jaws of distress
to a spacious place[w] free from restriction,[x]
to the comfort of your table[y] laden with choice food.[z] 17But now you are laden with the judgment due the wicked;[a] judgment and justice have taken hold of you.[b] 18Be careful that no one entices you by riches;
do not let a large bribe[c] turn you aside.[d] 19Would your wealth[e] or even all your mighty efforts sustain you so you would not be in distress?
20Do not long for the night,[f]
to drag people away from their homes.[h] 21Beware of turning to evil,[g]
which you seem to prefer to affliction.[h]

22"God is exalted in his power.[i]
Who is a teacher like him?[j] 23Who has prescribed his ways[k] for him,[l]
or said to him, 'You have done wrong'?[m] 24Remember to extol his work,[n] which men have praised in song.[o] 25All mankind has seen it;[p] men gaze on it from afar.
26How great is God—beyond our understanding![q]
The number of his years is past finding out.[r]

27"He draws up the drops of water,[s] which distill as rain to the streams[i];[t] 28the clouds pour down their moisture and abundant showers[u] fall on mankind.[v] 29Who can understand how he spreads out the clouds,
how he thunders[w] from his pavilion?[x] 30See how he scatters his lightning[y]
about him,
bathing the depths of the sea.[z] 31This is the way he governs[j] the nations[a]
and provides food[b] in abundance.[c]
32He fills his hands with lightning

36:12 See NIV text note (see also note on 33:18).

36:13–15 Elihu understands that the basic spiritual need of man stems from his hardness of heart—his refusal to yield to God, to cry out to God in his distress (see Ps 107), or to hear the voice of God in suffering.

36:14 male prostitutes of the shrines. See note on 1Ki 14:24.

36:16–21 Elihu warns Job to respond to God's discipline by turning away from evil (see v. 21). Verse 16 shows that he still views Job as a man for whom there is hope.

36:16 He is wooing you. With tender compassion, God brings his people back to himself (see Hos 2:14).

36:21 Beware of turning to evil. Elihu's evaluation of Job is the opposite of God's (see 1:8; 2:3).

36:22–33 Elihu anticipates some of God's statements in the discourses of chs. 38–41.

36:24 his work, which men have praised in song. See, e.g., Ex 15:1; Jdg 5:1.

36:26 beyond our understanding. See 37:5. That God's ways and thoughts are infinitely higher than ours is an important theme in chs. 38–41.

36:30 bathing. Lit. "covering," here in the sense of "lighting up" the depths of the sea.

36:31 governs. The NIV text note understands the verse to mean that the Lord "nourishes" the nations with the showers mentioned in vv. 27–30.

36:32 his hands. Lit. "both hands." God works with equal effectiveness with either hand (cf. 1Ch 12:2).

and commands it to strike its mark.[d] 33His thunder announces the coming storm;[e] even the cattle make known its approach.[k][f]

37 "At this my heart pounds[g] and leaps from its place.
2Listen![h] Listen to the roar of his voice,[i] to the rumbling that comes from his mouth.[j] 3He unleashes his lightning[k] beneath the whole heaven and sends it to the ends of the earth.[l] 4After that comes the sound of his roar;
he thunders[m] with his majestic voice.[n]
When his voice resounds, he holds nothing back.
5God's voice thunders[o] in marvelous ways;[p]
he does great things beyond our understanding.[q] 6He says to the snow,[r] 'Fall on the earth,' and to the rain shower, 'Be a mighty downpour.'[s] 7So that all men he has made may know his work,[t] he stops every man from his labor.[l][u] 8The animals take cover;[v]
they remain in their dens.[w] 9The tempest comes out from its chamber,[x]
the cold from the driving winds.[y] 10The breath of God produces ice,

11He loads the clouds with moisture;[a] he scatters his lightning[b] through them.[c] 12At his direction they swirl around over the face of the whole earth to do whatever he commands them.[d] 13He brings the clouds to punish men,[e] or to water his earth[m] and show his love.[f] 14"Listen[g] to this, Job;
stop and consider God's wonders.[h] 15Do you know how God controls the clouds and makes his lightning[i] flash?[j] 16Do you know how the clouds hang poised,[k]
those wonders of him who is perfect in knowledge?[l] 17You who swelter in your clothes when the land lies hushed under the south wind,[m] 18can you join him in spreading out the skies,[n] hard as a mirror of cast bronze?[o] 19"Tell us what we should say to him;[p]
we cannot draw up our case[q] because of our darkness.[r] 20Should he be told that I want to speak?
Would any man ask to be swallowed up?
21Now no one can look at the sun,[s] bright as it is in the skies
after the wind has swept them clean.
22Out of the north he comes in golden splendor;[t]
God comes in awesome majesty.[u] 23The Almighty is beyond our reach and exalted in power;[v] in his justice[w] and great righteousness, he does not oppress.[x] 24Therefore, men revere him,[y]

37:1–13 A continuation of Elihu's hymnic description of God's marvels exhibited in the earth's atmosphere, beginning in 36:27. His heart pounds at the awesome display (see v. 1). The passage reveals a sophisticated observation of atmospheric conditions and their effects: the evaporation and distillation of water for rain (see 36:27 and NIV text note), the clouds as holders of moisture (see 36:28; 37:11) and the cyclonic behavior of clouds (see v. 12). Such forces originate from God's command and always perform his will for mankind, whether for good or for ill (v. 13).

37:2 Listen. The Hebrew for this verb is plural, indicating that others (including the three friends) besides Job are being addressed here (see note on 36:1–37:24). roar of his voice . . . rumbling. Thunder (see v. 4).

37:5 beyond our understanding. See note on 36:26.

37:10 breath of God. Here a metaphor for a chilling wind.

37:14–18 Job is challenged to ponder God's power over the elements. The question format is also used in the divine discourses (chs. 38–41).

37:16 perfect in knowledge. See note on 36:4.

37:18 spreading out the skies. See 26:7. hard as . . . bronze. In Dt 28:23, a bronze sky symbolizes unremitting heat (see note there).

37:19 we cannot draw up our case. Job had dared to sign his defense and call for an audience with God (see 31:35). For this, Elihu seeks to shame him. But he softens his tone by including himself as one equally vulnerable to God's majesty.

37:22 Out of the north he comes. See note on Ps 48:2. God comes. Elihu prepares Job for the appearance of God in the storm (chs. 38–41).

37:24 revere. Fear (see 28:28; Ge 20:11 and notes).

38:1–42:6 The theophany (appearance of God) to Job, consisting of two discourses by the Lord (38:1–40:2; 40:6–41:34), each of which receives a brief response from Job (40:3–5; 42:1–6).

38:1 the LORD. The Israelite covenant name for God (see Introduction: Author). storm. See 40:6. Elihu had imagined the appearance of the divine presence as a display of "golden splendor" and "awesome majesty" (37:22). He also had anticipated the storm or whirlwind (see note on 37:22), from which Job would hear the voice of God. Job had said, "Let the Almighty answer me" (31:35). He now receives the Lord's answer.

38:2 See 35:16. In 42:3, Job echoes the Lord's words. God states that Job's complaining and raging against him are unjustified and proceed from limited understanding.

38:3 Repeated in 40:7 (see also 42:4). The format of God's response is to ply Job with rhetorical questions, to each of which Job must plead ignorance. God says nothing about Job's suffering, nor does he address Job's problem about divine justice. Job gets neither a bill of indictment nor a verdict of innocence. But, more important, God does not humiliate or condemn him—which surely would have been the case if the counselors had been right. So by implication Job is vindicated, and later his vindication is directly affirmed (see 42:7–8). The divine discourses, then, succeed in bringing Job to complete faith in God's goodness without his receiving a direct answer to his questions.

38:4–38 Inanimate creation testifies to God's sovereignty and power (the earth, vv. 4–7,18; the sea, vv. 8–11,16; the sun, vv. 12–15; the netherworld, v. 17; light and darkness, vv. 19–20; the weather, vv. 22–30,34–38; the constellations, vv. 31–33). See note on 38:39–39:30.

38:4–5 See the similar questions of Agur, and the similar irony in his demand for a response (Pr 30:4).

38:7 See Ps 148:2–3; see also note on Ps 65:13. When the earth was created, the angels were there to sing the praises of the Creator, but Job was not (see vv. 4–5). He should therefore not expect to be able to understand even lesser aspects of God's plans for the world and for mankind. angels. See NIV text notes here and on 1:6; 2:1.

38:10–11 See Ps 33:7; Jer 5:22.

38:11 when I said. God the Father controls the sea by speaking to it, as does God the Son (see Lk 8:24–25).

38:12–13 The arrival of the dawn sends the wicked scurrying for cover.

38:14 clay under a seal. Either a cylinder seal (see note on Ge 38:18) or a stamp seal.

38:15 their light. The night is when the wicked are active (see Jn 3:19; for the imagery cf. Lk 11:35). upraised arm is broken. See 22:9 and note.

38:16 springs of the sea. See Ge 7:11; 8:2.

38:17 gates of death. See note on 17:16; see also 26:5–6.

38:22–23 hail . . . for days of war. See, e.g., Jos 10:11; Isa 28:2 and note.

38:31–32 Pleiades . . . Orion . . . Bear. See note on 9:9.

38:36 heart . . . mind. It is possible that the first word should be translated "ibis" and the second "rooster," two birds whose habits were sometimes observed by people who wished to forecast the weather. If so, the words would serve as a transition to the next major section of the first divine discourse.

38:39–39:30 Animate creation testifies to God's sovereignty, power and loving care (the lion, 38:39–40; the raven, 38:41; the mountain goat, 39:1–4; the wild donkey, vv. 5–8; the wild ox, vv. 9–12; the ostrich, vv. 13–18; the horse, vv. 19–25; the hawk, v. 26; the eagle, vv. 27–30). See note on 38:4–38.

39:5 wild donkey. See 24:5; see also the description of Ishmael in Ge 16:12 and note there.

39:9–12 As there was an implied contrast between the wild donkey and the domestic donkey (see v. 7), here there is a more explicit contrast between the wild ox and the domestic ox.

along with the flashing spear[v] and lance.
24In frenzied excitement he eats up the ground;
he cannot stand still when the trumpet sounds.[w] 25At the blast of the trumpet[x] he snorts, 'Aha!'
He catches the scent of battle from afar,
the shout of commanders and the battle cry.[y]

26"Does the hawk take flight by your wisdom and spread his wings toward the south?[z] 27Does the eagle soar at your command and build his nest on high?[a] 28He dwells on a cliff and stays there at night;
a rocky crag[b] is his stronghold.
29From there he seeks out his food;[c] his eyes detect it from afar.
30His young ones feast on blood, and where the slain are, there is he."[d]

40 The LORD said to Job:[e]
2"Will the one who contends with the Almighty[f] correct him?[g]
Let him who accuses God answer him!"[h]

3Then Job answered the LORD:

4"I am unworthy[i]—how can I reply to you?
I put my hand over my mouth.[j] 5I spoke once, but I have no answer[k]— twice, but I will say no more."[l]

6Then the LORD spoke to Job out of the storm:[m]

7"Brace yourself like a man;
I will question you,
and you shall answer me.[n]

8"Would you discredit my justice?[o]

39:11 great strength. In the OT, the wild ox (the now virtually extinct aurochs) often symbolizes strength (see, e.g., Nu 23:22; 24:8; Dt 33:17; Ps 29:6). Next to the elephant and rhinoceros, the wild ox was the largest and most powerful land animal of the OT world.

39:13–18 This stanza is unique in the discourses, because in it the Lord asks Job no questions. Could it be because the ostrich is so amusing?

39:13 pinions and feathers of the stork. A stork's wings were particularly impressive (see Zec 5:9).

39:18 horse and rider. Forms a transition to the next paragraph.

39:19–25 The horse is the only domestic animal in the discourses. This fact, though unexpected, serves the Lord's purpose, since it is specifically the war horse that is in view.

39:20 like a locust. Horses and locusts are compared also in Jer 51:27; Rev 9:7; cf. Joel 2:4.

39:26 hawk. The sparrow hawk, not resident to the Holy Land, stops there in its migration south for the winter.

39:27 eagle. Or possibly "vulture" (see v. 30).

40:1–2 The conclusion of the first divine discourse. Once again, God challenges Job to answer him.

40:3–5 Job, duly chastened and no longer "like a prince" (31:37), is unwilling to speak another word of complaint.

40:4 unworthy. The Hebrew for this word can also mean "small" or "insignificant."

40:5 once . . . twice. See note on 5:19.

40:6 See 38:1 and note.

40:7 Repeated from 38:3 (see note there).

40:8–14 The prologue to the second divine discourse, which ends at 41:34. Unlike the first discourse, God here addresses the issues of his own justice and Job's futile attempt at self-justification. In chs. 21 and 24, Job had

Would you condemn me to justify yourself?[p] 9Do you have an arm like God's,[q] and can your voice[r] thunder like his?[s] 10Then adorn yourself with glory and splendor, and clothe yourself in honor and majesty.[t] 11Unleash the fury of your wrath,[u] look at every proud man and bring him low,[v] 12look at every proud[w] man and humble him,[x] crush[y] the wicked where they stand.
13Bury them all in the dust together;[z] shroud their faces in the grave.[a] 14Then I myself will admit to you that your own right hand can save you.[b]

15"Look at the behemoth,[v] which I made[c] along with you and which feeds on grass like an ox.[d] 16What strength[e] he has in his loins, what power in the muscles of his belly![f] 17His tail[w] sways like a cedar;
the sinews of his thighs are close-knit.[g] 18His bones are tubes of bronze, his limbs[h] like rods of iron.[i] 19He ranks first among the works of God,[j] yet his Maker[k] can approach him with his sword.[l] 20The hills bring him their produce,[m] and all the wild animals play[n] nearby.[o] 21Under the lotus plants he lies, hidden among the reeds[p] in the marsh.[q] 22The lotuses conceal him in their shadow;
the poplars by the stream[r] surround him.
23When the river rages,[s] he is not alarmed;
he is secure, though the Jordan[t] should surge against his mouth.
24Can anyone capture him by the eyes,[x] or trap him and pierce his nose?[u]

41 "Can you pull in the leviathan[y][v] with a fishhook[w] or tie down his tongue with a rope?
2Can you put a cord through his nose[x] or pierce his jaw with a hook?[y] 3Will he keep begging you for mercy?[z]
Will he speak to you with gentle words?
4Will he make an agreement with you for you to take him as your slave for life?[a] 5Can you make a pet of him like a bird or put him on a leash for your girls?
6Will traders barter for him?
Will they divide him up among the merchants?
7Can you fill his hide with harpoons or his head with fishing spears?[b]

complained about God's indifference toward the wickedness of evil men. Here the Lord asserts his ability and determination to administer justice—a matter over which Job has no control. Therefore by implication Job is admonished to leave all this, including his own vindication (see v. 14), under the power of God's strong arm (see v. 9).

40:8 Would you condemn me to justify yourself? In 19:6, Job had said, "God has wronged me."

40:10 clothe yourself in honor and majesty. The Hebrew underlying this clause describes God in Ps 104:1: "you are clothed with splendor and majesty." The Lord here challenges Job to take on the appearance of deity—if he can.

40:11–12 See Isa 13:11, where the Lord describes himself as doing these things.

40:13 dust. See note on 7:21.

40:14 your own right hand can save you. Contrast Ps 49:7–9 (see note there).

40:15–24 The first of two poems (ch. 41 constitutes the second) in this discourse, each describing a huge beast and resuming the animal theme of ch. 39.

40:15 behemoth. The word is Hebrew and means "beast par excellence," referring to a large land animal (for possible identifications see NIV text note). Much of the language used to describe him in vv. 16–24 is highly poetic and hyperbolic. which I made. He is one of God's creatures, not a mythical being.

40:18 iron. See note on 19:24.

40:19 first among the works of God. The Hebrew underlying this phrase is translated "first of his works" in Pr 8:22 with reference to the creation of wisdom (see Pr 8:12). Here the descriptive phrase stresses the importance of the behemoth as an example of a huge animal under the control of a sovereign God.

40:21–23 reeds in the marsh ... poplars ... Jordan. The area described is probably the Huleh region, north of the Sea of Galilee.

40:24 The proposal to capture the behemoth forms a transition to the similar proposal concerning the leviathan in 41:1.

41:1–34 The second of two poems in the Lord's final discourse (see note on 40:15–24).

41:1 leviathan. The OT uses the word in both a figurative and a literal sense. For its figurative usage see note on 3:8. Literally, the leviathan was a large marine animal (see Ps 104:26), here perhaps a crocodile (see NIV text note). His description in ch. 41 indicates that he is even more terrifying than the behemoth in ch. 40.

[8]If you lay a hand on him, you will remember the struggle and never do it again![c] [9]Any hope of subduing him is false;
the mere sight of him is overpowering.[d]
[10]No one is fierce enough to rouse him.[e]
Who then is able to stand against me?[f]
[11]Who has a claim against me that I must pay?[g]
Everything under heaven belongs to me.[h]

[12]"I will not fail to speak of his limbs,[i] his strength[j] and his graceful form.
[13]Who can strip off his outer coat?
Who would approach him with a bridle?[k]
[14]Who dares open the doors of his mouth,[l]

[15]His back has[z] rows of shields

[17]They are joined fast to one another;
they cling together and cannot be parted.
[18]His snorting throws out flashes of light;
his eyes are like the rays of dawn.[n] [19]Firebrands[o] stream from his mouth;
sparks of fire shoot out.
[20]Smoke pours from his nostrils[p] as from a boiling pot over a fire of reeds.
[21]His breath[q] sets coals ablaze, and flames dart from his mouth.[r] [22]Strength[s] resides in his neck; dismay goes before him.
[23]The folds of his flesh are tightly joined;
they are firm and immovable.
[24]His chest is hard as rock, hard as a lower millstone.[t] [25]When he rises up, the mighty are terrified;[u] they retreat before his thrashing.[v] [26]The sword that reaches him has no effect, nor does the spear or the dart or the javelin.[w x] [27]Iron he treats like straw[y] and bronze like rotten wood.
[28]Arrows do not make him flee;[z] slingstones are like chaff to him.
[29]A club seems to him but a piece of straw;[a] he laughs[b] at the rattling of the lance.
[30]His undersides are jagged potsherds, leaving a trail in the mud like a threshing sledge.[c] [31]He makes the depths churn like a boiling caldron[d] and stirs up the sea like a pot of ointment.[e] [32]Behind him he leaves a glistening wake;
one would think the deep had white hair.
[33]Nothing on earth is his equal[f]— a creature without fear.
[34]He looks down on all that are haughty;[g]
he is king over all that are proud.[h]"

Job

42 Then Job replied to the LORD:

[2]"I know that you can do all things;[i] no plan of yours can be thwarted.[j] [3]You asked, 'Who is this that obscures my counsel without knowledge?'[k] Surely I spoke of things I did not understand, things too wonderful for me to know.[l]

41:30 jagged potsherds. Broken pottery fragments.

41:34 king over all that is proud. The Lord alone can humble such creatures. Job cannot be expected to do so, though God challenges him to attempt it—if he so desires (see 40:11–12).

42:1–6 Job's last recorded words are his response to the Lord's second discourse.

42:4 You said. Job quotes the Lord's words in 38:3; 40:7.

42:5 Job—and his three friends, and Elihu—had only heard of God, but now Job has seen God (see Isa 6:5) with the eyes of faith and spiritual understanding. He can therefore accept God's plan for his life (see v. 2)—which includes suffering. my eyes have seen you. A down payment on the hope expressed in 19:26 (see note there).

but now my eyes have seen you.[o] 6Therefore I despise myself[p] and repent[q] in dust and ashes."[r]

Epilogue

7After the LORD had said these things to Job[s], he said to Eliphaz the Temanite, "I am angry with you and your two friends,[t] because you have not spoken of me what is right, as my servant Job has.[u] 8So now take seven bulls and seven rams[v] and go to my servant Job[w] and sacrifice a burnt offering[x] for yourselves. My servant Job will pray for you, and I will accept his prayer[y] and not deal with you according to your folly.[z] You have not spoken of me what is right, as my servant Job has."[a] 9So Eliphaz the Temanite, Bildad the Shuhite and Zophar the Naamathite[b] did what the LORD told them; and the LORD accepted Job's prayer.[c]

10After Job had prayed for his friends, the LORD made him prosperous again[d] and gave him twice as much as he had before.[e] 11All his brothers and sisters and everyone who had known him before[f] came and ate with him in his house. They comforted and consoled him over all the trouble the LORD had brought upon him,[g] and each one gave him a piece of silver[a] and a gold ring.

12The LORD blessed the latter part of Job's life more than the first. He had fourteen thousand sheep, six thousand camels, a thousand yoke of oxen and a thousand donkeys. 13And he also had seven sons and three daughters. 14The first daughter he named Jemimah, the second Keziah and the third Keren-Happuch. 15Nowhere in all the land were there found women as beautiful as Job's daughters, and their father granted them an inheritance along with their brothers.

16After this, Job lived a hundred and forty years; he saw his children and their children to the fourth generation. 17And so he died, old and full of years.[h]

[a] 11 Hebrew him a kesitah; a kesitah was a unit of money of unknown weight and value.

42:6 I despise myself. See note on 9:21. To his humility (see 40:4–5) Job adds repentance for the presumptuous words he had spoken to God. dust and ashes. See 30:19 and note.

42:7–9 Despite Job's mistakes in word and attitude while he suffered, he is now commended and the counselors are rebuked. Why? Because even in his rage, even when he challenged God, he was determined to speak honestly before him. The counselors, on the other hand, mouthed many correct and often beautiful creedal statements, but without living knowledge of the God they claimed to honor. Job spoke to God; they only spoke about God. Even worse, their spiritual arrogance caused them to claim knowledge they did not possess. They presumed to know why Job was suffering.

42:7–8 my servant Job. The phrase is used four times in these two verses (see note on 1:8).

42:10 Job's prayer for those who had abused him is a touching OT illustration of the high Christian virtue our Lord taught in Mt 5:44. Job's prayer marked the turning point back to prosperity for him. made . . . prosperous again. The Hebrew for this expression is translated "restores the fortunes of " in Ps 14:7.

42:11 Contrast 16:2; 19:13. piece of silver. The Hebrew for this phrase is found elsewhere in the OT only in Ge 33:19 (see note there); Jos 24:32.

42:12–16 The cosmic contest with the Accuser is now over, and Job is restored. No longer is there a reason for Job to experience suffering—unless he was sinful and deserved it, which is not the case. God does not allow us to suffer for no reason, and even though the reason may be hidden in the mystery of his divine purpose (see Isa 55:8–9)—never for us to know in this life—we must trust in him as the God who does only what is right.

42:12 The number of animals is in each case twice as many (see v. 10) as Job had owned before (see 1:3).

42:13 seven sons and three daughters. To replace the children he had lost earlier (see 1:2,18–19).

42:14 Jemimah. Means "dove." Keziah. Means "cinnamon." Keren-Happuch. Means "container of antimony," a highly prized eyeshadow (see note on Jer 4:30).

42:15 granted them an inheritance along with their brothers. Contrast Nu 27:8.

42:16 lived a hundred and forty years. The longevity of a true patriarch (see note on Ex 6:16). he saw . . . to the fourth generation. See Ge 50:23.

42:17 old and full of years. See 5:26 and note; Ge 25:8.

Psalms

Name

The names "Psalms" and "Psalter" come from the Septuagint (the Greek translation of the OT), where they originally referred to stringed instruments (such as harp, lyre and lute), then to songs sung with their accompaniment. The traditional Hebrew title is tehillim (meaning "praises"; see note on Ps 145 title), even though many of the psalms are tephillot (meaning "prayers"). In fact, one of the first collections included in the book was titled "the prayers of David son of Jesse" (72:20).

Collection, Arrangement and Date

The Psalter is a collection of collections and represents the final stage in a process that spanned centuries. It was put into its final form by postexilic temple personnel, who completed it probably in the third century B.C. As such, it served as the prayer book (book of prayer, praise and religious instruction) for the second (Zerubbabel's and Herod's) temple and for use in the synagogues. By the first century A.D. it was referred to as the "Book of Psalms" (Lk 20:42; Ac 1:20). At that time also Psalms was used as a title for the entire section of the Hebrew OT canon known as the "Writings" (see Lk 24:44).

Many collections preceded this final compilation of the Psalms. In fact, the formation of psalters probably goes back to the early days of the first (Solomon's) temple (or even to the time of David), when the temple liturgy began to take shape. Reference has already been made to "the prayers of David." Additional collections expressly referred to in the present Psalter titles are: (1) the songs and/or psalms "of the Sons of Korah" (Ps 42—49; 84—85; 87—88), (2) the psalms and/or songs "of Asaph" (Ps 50; 73—83) and (3) the songs "of ascents" (Ps 120—134).

Other evidence points to further compilations. Ps 1—41 (Book I) make frequent use of the divine name Yahweh ("the LORD"), while Ps 42—72 (Book II) make frequent use of Elohim ("God"). The reason for the Elohim collection in distinction from the Yahweh collection remains unexplained, but both of them date, at least essentially in their present form, from the period of the monarchy. Moreover, Ps 93—100 appear to be a traditional collection (see "The LORD reigns" in 93:1; 96:10; 97:1; 99:1). Other apparent groupings include Ps 111—118 (a series of Hallelujah psalms), Ps 138—145 (all of which include "of David" in their titles) and Ps 146—150 (with their frequent "Praise the LORD"; see NIV text note on 111:1). Whether the "Great Hallel" (Ps 120—136) was already a recognized unit is not known. (The seven "penitential psalms" get their name from Christian liturgical usage and so were never a unit in the Jewish Psalter tradition; see introduction to Ps 6.)

In its final edition, the Psalter contained 150 psalms. On this the Septuagint and Hebrew texts agree, though they arrive at this number differently. The Septuagint has an extra psalm at the end (but not numbered separately as Ps 151); it also unites Ps 9—10 (see NIV text note on Ps 9) and Ps 114—115 and divides Ps 116 and Ps 147 each into two psalms. Strangely, both the Septuagint and Hebrew texts number Ps 42—43 as two psalms whereas they were evidently originally one (see NIV text note on Ps 42).

The Psalter was divided into five Books (Ps 1—41; 42—72; 73—89; 90—106; 107—150), and each was provided with an appropriate concluding doxology (see 41:13; 72:18–19; 89:52; 106:48; 150). The first two of these Books, as already noted, were probably preexilic. The division of the remaining psalms into three Books, thus attaining the number five, was possibly in imitation of the five books of Moses (otherwise known simply as the Law). At least one of these divisions (between Ps 106—107) seems arbitrary (see introduction to Ps 107). In spite of this five-book division, the Psalter was clearly thought of as a whole, with an introduction (Ps 1—2) and a conclusion (Ps 146—150). Notes throughout the Psalms give additional indications of conscious arrangement.

Authorship and Titles (or Superscriptions)

Of the 150 psalms, only 34 lack superscriptions of any kind (only 17 in the Septuagint). These so-called "orphan" psalms are found mainly in Books III–V, where they tend to occur in clusters: Ps 91; 93—97; 99; 104—107; 111—119; 135—137; 146—150. (In Books I–II, only Ps 1—2; 10; 33; 43; 71 lack titles, and Ps 10; 43 are actually continuations of the preceding psalms.)

The contents of the superscriptions vary but fall into a few broad categories: (1) author, (2) name of collection, (3) type of psalm, (4) musical notations, (5) liturgical notations and (6) brief indications of occasion for composition. For details see notes on the titles of the various psalms.

Students of the Psalms are not agreed on the antiquity and reliability of these superscriptions. That many of them are at least preexilic appears evident from the fact that the Septuagint translators were no longer clear as to their meaning. Furthermore, the practice of attaching titles, including the name of the author, is ancient. On the other hand, comparison between the Septuagint and the Hebrew texts shows that the content of some titles was still subject to change well into the postexilic period. Most discussion centers on categories 1 and 6 above.

As for the superscriptions regarding occasion of composition, many of these brief notations of events read as if they had been taken from 1,2 Samuel. Moreover, they are sometimes not easily correlated with the content of the psalms they head. The suspicion therefore arises that they are later attempts to fit the psalms into the real-life events of history. But then why the limited number of such notations, and why the apparent mismatches? The arguments cut both ways.

Regarding authorship, opinions are even more divided. The notations themselves are ambiguous since the Hebrew phraseology used, meaning in general "belonging to," can also be taken in the sense of "concerning" or "for the use of" or "dedicated to." The name may refer to the title of a collection of psalms that had been gathered under a certain name (as "Of Asaph" or "Of the Sons of Korah"). As for Davidic authorship, there can be little doubt that the Psalter contains psalms composed by that noted singer and musician and that there was at one time a "Davidic" psalter. This, however, may have also included psalms written concerning David, or concerning one of the later Davidic kings, or even psalms written in the manner of those he authored. It is also true that the tradition as to which psalms are "Davidic" remains somewhat indefinite, and some "Davidic" psalms seem clearly to reflect later situations (see, e.g., Ps 30 title—but see also note there; and see introduction to Ps 69 and note on Ps 122 title). Moreover, "David" is sometimes used elsewhere as a collective for the kings of his dynasty, and this could also be true in the psalm titles.

The word Selah is found in 39 psalms, all but two of which (Ps 140; 143, both "Davidic") are in Books I–III. It is also found in Hab 3, a psalm-like poem. Suggestions as to its meaning abound, but honesty must confess ignorance. Most likely, it is a liturgical notation. The common suggestions that it calls for a brief musical interlude or for a brief liturgical response by the congregation are plausible (the former may be supported by the Septuagint rendering). In some instances its present placement in the Hebrew text is highly questionable.

Psalm Types

Superscriptions to the Psalms acquaint us with an ancient system of classification: (1) mizmor ("psalm"); (2) shiggaion (see note on Ps 7 title); (3) miktam (see note on Ps 16 title); (4) shir ("song"); (5) maśkil (see note on Ps 32 title); (6) tephillah ("prayer"); (7) tehillah ("praise"); (8) lehazkir ("for being remembered"—i.e., before God, a petition); (9) letodah ("for praising" or "for giving thanks");

(10) lelammed ("for teaching"); and (11) shir yedioot ("song of loves"—i.e., a wedding song). The meaning of many of these terms, however, is uncertain. In addition, some titles contain two of these (especially mizmor and shir), indicating that the types are diversely based and overlapping.

Analysis of content has given rise to a different classification that has proven useful for study of the Psalms. The main types that can be identified are: (1) prayers of the individual (e.g., Ps 3; 7–8); (2) praise from the individual for God's saving help (e.g., Ps 30; 34); (3) prayers of the community (e.g., Ps 12; 44; 79); (4) praise from the community for God's saving help (e.g., Ps 66; 75); (5) confessions of confidence in the Lord (e.g., Ps 11; 16; 52); (6) hymns in praise of God's majesty and virtues (e.g., Ps 8; 19; 29; 65); (7) hymns celebrating God's universal reign (Ps 47; 93—99); (8) songs of Zion, the city of God (Ps 46; 48; 76; 84; 122; 126; 129; 137); (9) royal psalms—by, for or concerning the king, the Lord's anointed (e.g., Ps 2; 18; 20; 45; 72; 89; 110); (10) pilgrimage songs (Ps 120—134); (11) liturgical songs (e.g., Ps 15; 24; 68); (12) didactic (instructional) songs (e.g., Ps 1; 34; 37; 73; 112; 119; 128; 133).

This classification also involves some overlapping. For example, "prayers of the individual" may include prayers of the king (in his special capacity as king) or even prayers of the community speaking in the collective first person singular. Nevertheless, it is helpful to study a psalm in conjunction with others of the same type. Attempts to fix specific liturgical settings for each type have not been very convincing. For those psalms about which something can be said in this regard see the introductions to the individual psalms.

Of all these psalm types, the prayers (both of the individual and of the community) are the most complex. Several modes of speech combine to form these appeals to God: (1) address to God: "O LORD," "my God," "my deliverer"; (2) initial appeal: "Arise," "Answer me," "Help," "Save me"; (3) description of distress: "Many are rising against me," "The wicked attack," "I am in distress"; (4) complaint against God: "Why have you forsaken me?" "How long will you hide your face from me?"; (5) petition: "Be not far from me," "Vindicate me"; (6) motivation for God to hear: "for I take refuge in you," "for your name's sake"; (7) accusation against the adversary: "There is no truth in their mouths," "Ruthless men seek my life" ("the wicked" are often quoted); (8) call for redress: "Let them be put to shame," "Call him to account for his wickedness"; (9) claims of innocence: "I have walked in my integrity," "They hate me without cause"; (10) confessions of sin: "I have sinned against you," "I confess my iniquity"; (11) professions of trust: "You are a shield about me," "You will answer me"; (12) vows to praise for deliverance: "I will sing your might," "My lips will praise you"; (13) calls to praise: "Magnify the LORD with me," "Sing praise to the LORD"; (14) motivations for praise: "for you have delivered me," "for the LORD hears the needy."

Though not all these appear in every prayer, they all belong to the conventions of prayer in the Psalter, with petition itself being but one (usually brief) element among the rest. On the whole they reflect the conventions of the court, the psalmist(s) presenting his/their case before the heavenly King/Judge. When beset by wicked adversaries, the petitioner describes his situation, pleads his innocence ("righteousness"), lodges accusation against his adversaries, and appeals for deliverance and judicial redress. When suffering at the hands of God (when God is his adversary), he confesses his guilt and pleads for mercy. Giving attention to the various modes of speech in the prayers and to their functions in the judicial appeals they present will significantly aid the reader.

Literary Features

The Psalter is from first to last poetry, even though it contains many prayers and not all OT prayers were poetic (see 1Ki 8:23–53; Ezr 9:6–15; Ne 9:5–37; Da 9:4–19)—nor was all praise poetic, for that matter (see 1Ki 8:15–21). The Psalms are impassioned, vivid and concrete; they are rich in images, in simile and metaphor. Assonance, alliteration and wordplays abound in the Hebrew text. Effective use of repetition and the piling up of synonyms and complements to fill out the picture are characteristic. Key words frequently highlight major themes in prayer or song. Enclosure (repetition of a significant word or phrase at the end that occurs at the beginning) frequently wraps up a composition or a unit within it. The notes on the structure of the individual psalms often call attention to literary frames within which the psalm has been set.

Hebrew poetry lacks rhyme and regular meter. Its most distinctive and pervasive feature is parallelism. Most poetic lines are composed of two (sometimes three) balanced segments (the balance is often loose, with the second segment commonly somewhat shorter than the first). The second segment either echoes (synonymous parallelism), contrasts (antithetic parallelism) or syntactically completes (synthetic parallelism) the first. These three types are generalizations and are not wholly adequate to describe the rich variety that the creativity of the poets has achieved within the basic two-segment line structure. They can serve, however, as rough distinctions that will assist the reader. In the NIV the second and third segments of a line are slightly indented relative to the first.

Determining where the Hebrew poetic lines or line segments begin or end (scanning) is sometimes an uncertain matter. Even the Septuagint at times scans the lines differently from the way the Hebrew texts now available to us do. It is therefore not surprising that modern translations occasionally differ.

A related problem is the extremely concise, often elliptical writing style of the Hebrew poets. The syntactical connection of words must at times be inferred simply from context. Where more than one possibility presents itself, the translator is confronted with ambiguity. He is not always sure with which line segment a border word or phrase is to be read.

The stanza structure of Hebrew poetry is also a matter of dispute. Occasionally, recurring refrains mark off stanzas, as in Ps 42—43; 57. In Ps 110 two balanced stanzas are divided by their introductory oracles (see also introduction to Ps 132), while Ps 119 devotes eight lines to each letter of the Hebrew alphabet. For the most part, however, no such obvious indicators are present. The NIV has used spaces to mark off poetic paragraphs (called "stanzas" in the notes). Usually this could be done with some confidence, and the reader is advised to be guided by them. But there are a few places where these divisions are questionable—and are challenged in the notes.

Close study of the Psalms discloses that the authors often composed with an overall design in mind. This is true of the alphabetic acrostics, in which the poet devoted to each letter of the Hebrew alphabet one line segment (as in Ps 111—112), or a single line (as in Ps 25; 34; 145), or two lines (as in Ps 37), or eight lines (as in Ps 119). In addition Ps 33; 38; 103 each have 22 lines, no doubt because of the number of letters in the Hebrew alphabet (see Introduction to Lamentations: Literary Features). The oft-voiced notion that this device was used as a memory aid seems culturally prejudiced and quite unwarranted. Actually people of that time were able to memorize far more readily than most people today. It is much more likely that the alphabet—which was relatively recently invented as a simple system of symbols capable of representing in writing the rich and complex patterns of human speech and therefore of inscribing all that man can put into words (one of the greatest intellectual achievements of all time)—commended itself as a framework on which to hang significant phrases.

Other forms were also used. Ps 44 is a prayer fashioned after the design of a ziggurat (a Babylonian stepped pyramid; see note on Ge 11:4). A sense of symmetry is pervasive. There are psalms that devote the same number of lines to each stanza (as Ps 12; 41), or do so with variation only in the introductory or concluding stanza (as Ps 38; 83; 94). Others match the opening and closing stanzas and balance those between (as Ps 33; 86). A particularly interesting device is to place a key thematic line at the very center, sometimes constructing the whole or part of the poem around that center (see note on 6:6). Still other design features are pointed out in the notes. The authors of the psalms crafted their compositions very carefully. They were heirs of an ancient art (in many details showing that they had inherited a poetic tradition that goes back hundreds of years), and they developed it to a state of high sophistication. Their works are best appreciated when carefully studied and pondered.

Theology

The Psalter is for the most part a book of prayer and praise. It speaks to God in prayer and it speaks of God in praise—also in professions of faith and trust. Although occasionally didactic (instructional) in form and purpose (teaching the way of godliness), the Psalter is not a catechism of doctrine. Its "theology" is therefore not abstract or systematic but confessional and doxological. So a summation of that "theology" impoverishes it by translating it into an objective mode.

Furthermore, any summation faces a still greater problem. The Psalter is a large collection of independent pieces of many kinds, serving different purposes and written over the course of many centuries. Not only must a brief summary of its "theology" be selective and incomplete; it will also of necessity be somewhat artificial. It will suggest that each psalm reflects or at least presupposes the "theology" outlined, that there is no "theological" tension or progression within the Psalter. Manifestly this is not so.

Still, the final editors of the Psalter were obviously not eclectic in their selection. They knew that many voices from many times spoke here, but none that in their judgment was incompatible with the Law and the Prophets. No doubt they also assumed that each psalm was to be understood in the light of the collection as a whole. That assumption we may share. Hence something, after all, can be said concerning major theological themes that, while admittedly a bit artificial, need not seriously distort and can be helpful to the student of the Psalms.

At the core of the theology of the Psalter is the conviction that the gravitational center of life (of right human understanding, trust, hope, service, morality, adoration), but also of history and of the whole creation (heaven and earth), is God (Yahweh, "the LORD"). He is the Great King over all, the One to whom all things are subject. He created all things and preserves them; they are the robe of glory with which he has clothed himself. Because he ordered them, they have a well-defined and "true" identity (no chaos there). Because he maintains them, they are sustained and kept secure from disruption, confusion or annihilation. Because he alone is the sovereign God, they are governed by one hand and held in the service of one divine purpose. Under God creation is a cosmos—an orderly and systematic whole. What we distinguish as "nature" and history had for them one Lord, under whose rule all things worked together. Through the creation the Great King's majestic glory is displayed. He is good (wise, righteous, faithful, amazingly benevolent and merciful—evoking trust), and he is great (his knowledge, thoughts and works are beyond human comprehension—evoking reverent awe). By his good and lordly rule he is shown to be the Holy One.

As the Great King by right of creation and enduring absolute sovereignty, he ultimately will not tolerate any worldly power that opposes or denies or ignores him. He will come to rule the nations so that all will be compelled to acknowledge him. This expectation is no doubt the root and broadest scope of the psalmists' long view of the future. Because the Lord is the Great King beyond all challenge, his righteous and peaceable kingdom will come, overwhelming all opposition and purging the creation of all rebellion against his rule—such will be the ultimate outcome of history.

As the Great King on whom all creatures depend, he opposes the "proud," those who rely on their own resources (and/or the gods they have contrived) to work out their own destiny. These are the ones who ruthlessly wield whatever power they possess to attain worldly wealth, status and security; who are a law to themselves and exploit others as they will. In the Psalter, this kind of "pride" is the root of all evil. Those who embrace it, though they may seem to prosper, will be brought down to death, their final end. The "humble," the "poor and needy," those who acknowledge their dependence on the Lord in all things—these are the ones in whom God delights. Hence the "fear of the LORD"—i.e., humble trust in and obedience to the Lord—is the "beginning" of all wisdom (111:10). Ultimately, those who embrace it will inherit the earth. Not even death can hinder their seeing the face of God.

The psalmists' hope for the future—the future of God and his kingdom and the future of the godly—was firm, though somewhat generalized. None of the psalmists gives expression to a two-age vision of the future (the present evil age giving way to a new age of righteousness and peace on the other side of a great eschatological divide). Such a view began to appear in the intertestamental literature—a view that had been foreshadowed by Daniel (see especially 12:2–3) and by Isaiah (see 65:17–25; 66:22–24)—and it later received full expression in the teaching of Jesus and the apostles. But this revelation was only a fuller development consistent with the hopes the psalmists lived by.

Because God is the Great King, he is the ultimate Executor of justice among men (to avenge oneself is an act of the "proud"). God is the court of appeal when persons are threatened or wronged—especially when no earthly court that he has established has jurisdiction (as in the case of international conflicts) or is able to judge (as when one is wronged by public slander) or is willing to act (out of fear or corruption). He is the mighty and faithful Defender of the defenseless and the wronged. He knows every deed and the secrets of every heart. There is no escaping his scrutiny. No false testimony will mislead him in judgment. And he hears the pleas brought to him. As the good and faithful Judge, he delivers those who are oppressed or wrongfully attacked and redresses the wrongs committed against them (see note on 5:10). This is the unwavering conviction that accounts for the psalmists' impatient complaints when they boldly, yet as "poor and needy," cry to him, "Why (have you not yet delivered me)?" "How long, O LORD (before you act)?"

As the Great King over all the earth, the Lord has chosen Israel to be his servant people, his "inheritance" among the nations. He has delivered them by mighty acts out of the hands of the world powers, he has given them a land of their own (territory that he took from other nations to be his own "inheritance" in the earth), and he has united them with himself in covenant as the initial embodiment of his redeemed kingdom. Thus both their destiny and his honor came to be bound up with this relationship. To them he also gave his word of revelation, which testified of him, made specific his promises and proclaimed his will. By God's covenant, Israel was to live among the nations, loyal only to her heavenly King. She was to trust solely in his protection, hope in his promises, live in accordance with his will and worship him exclusively. She was to sing his praises to the whole world—which in a special sense revealed Israel's anticipatory role in the evangelization of the nations.

As the Great King, Israel's covenant Lord, God chose David to be his royal representative on earth. In this capacity, David was the Lord's "servant"—i.e., a member of the Great King's administration. The Lord himself anointed him and adopted him as his royal "son" to rule in his name. Through him God made his people secure in the promised land and subdued all the powers that threatened them. What is more, he covenanted to preserve the Davidic dynasty. Henceforth the kingdom of God on earth, while not dependent on the house of David, was linked to it by God's decision and commitment. In its continuity and strength lay Israel's security and hope as she faced a hostile world. And since the Davidic kings were God's royal representatives in the earth, in concept seated at God's right hand (110:1), the scope of their rule was potentially worldwide (see Ps 2).

The Lord's anointed, however, was more than a warrior king. He was to be endowed by God to govern his people with godlike righteousness: to deliver the oppressed, defend the defenseless, suppress the wicked, and thus bless the nation with internal peace and prosperity. He was also an intercessor with God in behalf of the nation, the builder and maintainer of the temple (as God's earthly palace and the nation's house of prayer) and the foremost voice calling the nation to worship the Lord. It is perhaps with a view to these last duties that he is declared to be not only king, but also "priest" (see Ps 110 and notes).

As the Great King, Israel's covenant Lord, God (who had chosen David and his dynasty to be his royal representatives) also chose Jerusalem (the City of David) as his own royal city, the earthly seat of his throne. Thus Jerusalem (Zion) became the earthly capital (and symbol) of the kingdom of God. There in his palace (the temple) he sat enthroned among his people. There his people could meet with him to bring their prayers and praise, and to see his power and glory. From there he brought salvation, dispensed blessings and judged the nations. And with him as the city's great Defender, Jerusalem was the secure citadel of the kingdom of God, the hope and joy of God's people.

God's goodwill and faithfulness toward his people were most strikingly symbolized by his pledged presence among them at his temple in Jerusalem, the "city of the Great King" (48:2). But no manifestation of his benevolence was greater than his readiness to forgive the sins of those who humbly confessed them and whose hearts showed him that their repentance was genuine and that their professions of loyalty to him had integrity. As they anguished over their own sinfulness, the psalmists remembered the ancient testimony of their covenant Lord: I am Yahweh ("the LORD"), "the compassionate and gracious God, slow to anger, abounding in love and faithfulness, maintaining love to thousands, and forgiving wickedness, rebellion and sin" (Ex 34:6–7). Only so did they dare to submit to him as his people, to "fear" him (see 130:3–4).

Unquestionably the supreme kingship of Yahweh (in which he displays his transcendent greatness and goodness) is the most basic metaphor and most pervasive theological concept in the Psalter—as in the OT generally. It provides the fundamental perspective in which man is to view himself, the whole creation, events in "nature" and history, and the future. The whole creation is his one kingdom. To be a creature in the world is to be a part of his kingdom and under his rule. To be a human being in the world is to be dependent on and responsible to him. To proudly deny that fact is the root of all wickedness—the wickedness that now pervades the world.

God's election of Israel and subsequently of David and Zion, together with the giving of his word, represent the renewed inbreaking of God's righteous kingdom into this world of rebellion and evil. It initiates the great divide between the righteous nation and the wicked nations, and on a deeper level between the righteous and the wicked, a more significant distinction that cuts even through Israel. In the end this divine enterprise will triumph. Human pride will be humbled, and wrongs will be redressed. The humble will be given the whole earth to possess, and the righteous and peaceable kingdom of God will come to full realization. These theological themes, of course, have profound religious and moral implications. Of these, too, the psalmists spoke.

One question that ought yet to be addressed is: Do the Psalms speak of the Christ? Yes, but in a variety of ways—and not as the prophets do. The Psalter is not a book of prophetic oracles and was never numbered among the prophetic books.

When the Psalms speak of the king on David's throne, they speak of the king who is being crowned (as in Ps 2; 72; 110—though some think 110 is an exception) or is reigning (as in Ps 45) at the time. They proclaim his status as God's anointed and declare what God will accomplish through him and his dynasty. Thus they also speak of the sons of David to come—and in the exile and the postexilic era, when there was no reigning king, they spoke to Israel only of the great Son of David whom the prophets had announced as the one in whom God's covenant with David would yet be fulfilled. So the NT quotes these psalms as testimonies to Christ, which in their unique way they are. In him they are truly fulfilled.

When in the Psalms righteous sufferers—who are "righteous" because they are innocent, not having provoked or wronged their adversaries, and because they are among the "humble" who trust in the Lord—cry out to God in their distress (as in Ps 22; 69), they give voice to the sufferings of God's servants in a hostile and evil world.

These cries became the prayers of God's oppressed "saints," and as such they were taken up into Israel's book of prayers. When Christ came in the flesh, he identified himself with God's "humble" people in the world. He became for them God's righteous servant par excellence, and he shared their sufferings at the hands of evil men. Thus these prayers became his prayers also—uniquely his prayers. In him the suffering and deliverance of which these prayers speak are fulfilled (though they continue to be the prayers also of those who take up their cross and follow him).

Similarly, in speaking of God's covenant people, of the city of God, and of the temple in which God dwells, the Psalms ultimately speak of Christ's church. The Psalter is not only the prayer book of the second temple; it is also the enduring prayer book of the people of God. Now, however, it must be used in the light of the new era of redemption that dawned with the first coming of the Messiah and that will be consummated at his second coming.

Ps 1 Author and date unknown. Godly wisdom here declares the final outcome of the two "ways": "the way of sinners" (v. 1) and "the way of the righteous" (v. 6). See 34:19–22; 37; essay on "Wisdom Literature," p. 721. As an introduction to the book, this psalm reminds the reader (1) that those of whom the Psalms speak (using various terms) as the people of God, those whom he receives in his presence and favors with his salvation and blessing, must be characterized by righteousness—sinners have no place among them (v. 5; see Ps 15; 24)—and (2) that the godly piety that speaks in the Psalms is a faithful response to God's revealed (and written) directives for life—which is the path that leads to blessedness.

1:1 Speaks progressively of association with the ungodly and participation in their ungodly ways. Blessed. The happy condition of those who revere the Lord and do his will (see 94:12; 112:1; 119:1–2; 128:1; Pr 29:18; cf. Ps 41:1; 106:3; Pr 14:21; Isa 56:2), who put their trust in him (see 40:4; 84:5,12; 144:15; 146:5; Pr 16:20; Isa 30:18; Jer 17:7; cf. Ps 2:12; 34:8), and so are blessed by God (see especially 41:1–3; 144:12–14; see also Mt 5:3–12). The Psalter begins by proclaiming the blessedness of the godly and ends by calling all living things to praise God in his earthly and heavenly sanctuaries (Ps 150). walk in. Order his life according to. counsel. Deliberations and advice (see Pr 1:10–19). stand. Station oneself. sinners. See v. 5; those for whom evil is habitual, for whom wickedness is a way of life. sit. Settle oneself. mockers. Those who ridicule God and defiantly reject his law (see Pr 1:22).

1:2 on his law he meditates. Seeking guidance for life in God's law rather than in the deliberations of the wicked. day and night. See Jos 1:8.

1:3 like a tree . . . does not wither. See Jer 17:8; a simile of the blessedness of the righteous. Such a tree withstands the buffeting of the winds and, flourishing, it blesses man, animals and birds with its unfailing fruit and shade.

1:4 like chaff . . . blows away. A simile of the wretchedness of the wicked. Chaff is carried away by the lightest wind, and its removal brings about cleansing by extracting what is utterly useless (see note on Ru 1:22).

1:5 will not stand in the judgment. Will not be able to withstand God's wrath when he judges (see 76:7; 130:3; Ezr 9:15; Mal 3:2; Mt 25:31–46; Rev 6:17). assembly. The worshiping assembly at God's sanctuary (as in 22:25; 26:12; 35:18; 40:9–10; 111:1; 149:1; see Ps 15; 24). righteous. One of several terms in the OT for God's people; it presents them as those who honor God and order their lives in all things according to his will. In every human relationship they faithfully fulfill the obligations that the relationship entails, remembering that power and authority (of whatever sort: domestic, social, political, economic, religious, intellectual) are to be used to bless, not to exploit.

1:6 way . . . way. Implicit in the destinies of the two lifestyles are also the destinies of those who choose them.

Ps 2 Author and date unknown (Peter and John ascribed it to David in Ac 4:25—possibly in accordance with the Jewish practice of honoring David as the primary author of the Psalter). A royal psalm, it was originally composed for the coronation of Davidic kings, in light of the Lord's covenant with David (see 2Sa 7). Later, prophetic words of judgment against the house of David and announcements of God's future redemption of his people through an exalted royal son of David highlighted the Messianic import of this psalm. As the second half of a two-part introduction to the Psalms, it proclaims the blessedness of all who acknowledge the lordship of God and his anointed and "take refuge in him" (v. 12; see note on 1:1)—as does the godly piety that speaks in the Psalms. This psalm is frequently quoted in the NT, where it is applied to Christ as the great Son of David and God's Anointed.

2:1–3 The nations rebel. In the ancient Near East the coronation of a new king was often the occasion for the revolt of peoples and kings who had been subject to the crown. The newly anointed king is here pictured as ruler over an empire.

2:1–2 For a NT application see Ac 4:25–28.

2:1 Why . . . ? A rhetorical question that implies "How dare they!"

2:2 LORD . . . his Anointed One. To rebel against the Lord's Anointed is also to rebel against the One who anointed him. Anointed One. See NIV text notes here and on vv. 6–7. The psalm refers to the Davidic king and is ultimately fulfilled in Christ. The English word "Messiah" comes from the Hebrew word for "anointed one," and the English word "Christ" from the Greek word for "anointed one" (see NIV text note on Mt 1:17).

Psalm 3

A psalm of David. When he fled from his son Absalom.[a]

2:4–6 The Lord mocks the rebels. With derisive laughter the Lord meets the confederacy of rebellious world powers with the sovereign declaration that it is he who has established the Davidic king in his own royal city of Zion (Jerusalem).

2:4 See 59:8.

2:5 anger ... wrath. God's anger is always an expression of his righteousness (see 7:11; see also note on 4:1).

2:6 holy hill. The site of the Jerusalem temple (see 2Ch 33:15); see also 3:4; 15:1; 43:3 ("holy mountain"); 99:9 ("holy mountain").

2:7–9 The Lord's Anointed proclaims the Lord's coronation decree. For NT application to Jesus' resurrection see Ac 13:33; to his superiority over angels see Heb 1:5; to his appointment as high priest see Heb 5:5.

2:7 Son ... Father. In the ancient Near East the relationship between a great king and one of his subject kings, who ruled by his authority and owed him allegiance, was expressed not only by the words "lord" and "servant" but also by "father" and "son." The Davidic king was the Lord's "servant" and his "son" (2Sa 7:5,14).

2:8 your inheritance. Your domain—as the promised land was the Lord's "inheritance" (Ex 15:17; see Jos 22:19; Ps 28:9; 79:1; 82:8). ends of the earth. Ultimately the rule of the Lord's Anointed will extend as far as the rule of God himself.

2:9 According to Rev 12:5; 19:15 this word will be fulfilled in the triumphant reign of Christ; in Rev 2:26–27 Christ declares that he will appoint those who remain faithful to him to share in his subjugating rule over the nations. dash them to pieces like pottery. See Jer 19:11.

2:10–12 The rebellious rulers are warned.

2:11 rejoice. Hail the Lord as King with joy. trembling. Awe and reverence.

2:12 Kiss. As a sign of submission (see 1Sa 10:1; 1Ki 19:18; Hos 13:2; see also note on Ge 41:40). Submission to an Assyrian king was expressed by kissing his feet. destroyed in your way. See 1:6 and note. Blessed. See 1:1 and note. him. The Lord.

Ps 3 Though threatened by many foes, the psalmist prays confidently to the Lord. Ps 3 and 4 are linked by references to glory (see v. 3; 4:2; see NIV text notes on both verses) and to the psalmist's sleep at night (see v. 5; 4:8). In v. 5 David speaks of the assurance of his waking in the morning because the Lord will keep him while he sleeps; in 4:8 he speaks of the inner quietness with which he goes to sleep because of the Lord's care. This juxtaposition of prayers with references to waking (morning) and sleeping (evening) at the beginning of the Psalter suggests that God's faithful care sustains the godly day and night whatever the need or circumstances, many of which will be mentioned in this book of prayers.

3 title When he fled. See 2Sa 15:13–17:22. References to events in David's life stand in the superscriptions of 13 psalms (3; 7; 18; 34; 51–52; 54; 56–57; 59–60; 63; 142), all but one (Ps 142) in Books I and II. See Introduction: Authorship and Titles (or Superscriptions).

3:1–2 David's need: threatened by many foes.

3:2 See 22:7–8; 71:10–11. The psalmists frequently quote their wicked oppressors in order to portray how they mock (see note on 1:1) God and his servants (see note on 10:11). Selah. See NIV text note; see also Introduction: Authorship and Titles (or Superscriptions).

3:3–4 David's confidence in God, who does not fail to answer his prayers.

3:3 shield. That one's king is his shield (protector) was a common concept in ancient Israel (see NIV text notes on 7:10; 47:9; 59:11; 84:9; 89:18; Ge 15:1). That the Lord is the shield of his people is frequently asserted (see 84:11; 91:4; 115:9–11; Dt 33:29; Pr 30:5) or claimed (see 18:2,30; 28:7; 33:20; 119:114; 144:2). you bestow glory on me. The psalmist rejoices in the Lord as his royal provider and protector (see note on 2:11). See NIV text note. lift up my head. In victory over his enemies (see 110:7).

you bestow glory on me and lift[h] up my head.[d] 4To the LORD I cry aloud,[e] and he answers me from his holy hill.[f] Selah

5I lie down and sleep;[g]
I wake again,[h] because the LORD sustains me.
6I will not fear[i] the tens of thousands drawn up against me on every side.[j] 7Arise,[k] O LORD!

Deliver me,[l] O my God!
Strike[m] all my enemies on the jaw;
break the teeth[n] of the wicked.

8From the LORD comes deliverance.[o]
May your blessing[p] be on your people. Selah

Psalm 4

For the director of music. With stringed instruments. A psalm of David.

1Answer me[q] when I call to you,
O my righteous God.
Give me relief from my distress;[r]
be merciful[s] to me and hear my prayer.[t]

2How long, O men, will you turn my glory[u] into shame[i]?[v]
How long will you love delusions and seek false gods[j]?[w] Selah 3Know that the LORD has set apart the godly[x] for himself;
the LORD will hear[y] when I call to him.

4In your anger do not sin;[z] when you are on your beds,[a] search your hearts and be silent. Selah

[h] 3 Or LORD, / my Glorious One, who lifts [i] 2 Or you dishonor my Glorious One [j] 2 Or seek lies

3:4 holy hill. The place of the Lord's sanctuary, the earthly counterpart of his heavenly throne room (see note on 2:6).

3:5–6 David's sense of security.

3:5 Even while his own watchfulness is surrendered to sleep, the watchful Lord preserves him (see 4:8).

3:7–8 David's prayer.

3:7 Arise ... Deliver. Hebrew idiom frequently prefaces an imperative calling for immediate action with the call to arise (see Ex 12:31, "Up!"; Dt 2:13; Jdg 7:9, "Get up"). In poetry the two imperatives of the idiom are often distributed between the two halves of the poetic line. Hence the psalmist's prayer is: "Arise (and) deliver me." LORD ... my God. That is, LORD my God; the two elements of a compound divine name are also frequently distributed between the two halves of a poetic line. break the teeth. Probably likening the enemies to wild animals (see note on 7:2).

3:8 From the LORD comes deliverance. A common feature in the prayers of the Psalter is a concluding expression of confidence that the prayer will be or has been heard (as in 6:8–10; 7:10–17; 10:16–18; 12:7; 13:5–6 and often elsewhere; see note on 12:5–6). Here David's confidence becomes a testimony to God's people. May your blessing be on your people. See 25:22; 28:8–9; 51:18. The psalmists stood before God, the royal King, as his servants responsible for the well-being of his people.

Ps 4 Perhaps a prayer for relief when some calamity (possibly drought; see v. 7) has fallen and many are turning from the Lord to the gods of Canaan, from whom they hope to receive better. See introduction to Ps 3.

4 title See Hab 3:19. For the director of music. Probably a liturgical notation, indicating either that the psalm was to be added to the collection of works to be used by the director of music in Israel's worship services, or that when the psalm was used in the temple worship it was to be spoken by the leader of the Levitical choir—or by the choir itself (see 1Ch 23:5,30; 25; Ne 11:17). In this liturgical activity the Levites functioned as representatives of the worshiping congregation. Following their lead the people probably responded with "Amen" and "Praise the LORD" (Hallelujah); see 1Ch 16:36; Ne 5:13; cf. 1Co 14:16; Rev 5:14; 7:12; 19:4. With stringed instruments. See Ps 6; 54–55; 61; 67; 76 titles. This is a liturgical notation, indicating that the Levites (see previous note) were to accompany the psalm with harp and lyre (see 1Ch 23:5; 25:1,3,6; cf. Ps 33:2; 43:4; 71:22; see also notes on Ps 39; 42 titles).

4:1 Initial request to be heard. righteous. Very often the "righteousness" of God in the Psalms (and frequently elsewhere in the OT) refers to the faithfulness with which he acts. This faithfulness is in full accordance with his commitments (both expressed and implied) to his people and with his status as the divine King—to whom the powerless may look for protection, the oppressed for redress and the needy for help. Give me relief. Lit. "Make a spacious place for me" (see 18:19 and note).

4:2–3 David rebukes those who turn away from his God to seek relief from the counterfeit gods; he assures them that the Lord will hear him.

4:2 How long ...? See Introduction: Theology; see also note on 6:3. my glory. David's special relationship with the Lord is the source of his glory—or perhaps he here speaks directly of God (see NIV text note here and on 3:3). Selah. See NIV text note on 3:2; see also Introduction: Authorship and Titles (or Superscriptions).

4:3 godly. Hebrew ḥasid, which occurs 26 times in the Psalms (once of God: 145:17, "loving"; cf. 18:25) and is usually rendered (in the plural) in the NIV as "the godly" or "saints." It is one of several Hebrew words for God's people, referring to them as people who are or should be devoted to God and faithful to him.

4:4–5 An exhortation not to give way to exasperation or anxiety (lit. "tremble" in anger or fear) but to look to the Lord.

4:4 In your anger do not sin. Paul uses these words in a different context (see Eph 4:26).

4:6 In the face of widespread uncertainty, David prays for the Lord to bless. Who ...? Which of the gods ...? face shine upon. See note on 13:1; a common expression for favor, reminiscent of the Aaronic benediction (see Nu 6:25–26).

4:8 See 3:5–6. in peace. Without anxiety.

Ps 5 This morning prayer, perhaps offered at the time of the morning sacrifice, is the psalmist's cry for help when his enemies spread malicious lies to destroy him.

5 title For the director of music. See note on Ps 4 title. flutes. The Hebrew for this word occurs only here; meaning uncertain.

5:1–3 Initial appeal to be heard.

5:2 King. See Introduction: Theology.

5:4–6 An appeal to the righteousness of God's rule over mankind.

5:5 The arrogant. See note on 31:23.

5:7–8 The psalmist presents his plea to the Lord in humble reverence (v. 7), trusting in the Lord's great mercy (v. 7) and righteousness (v. 8).

5:7 great mercy. See note on 6:4.

5:8 Lead me. As a shepherd (see 23:3). righteousness. See note on 4:1. make straight your way. May the way down which you lead me be straight, level and smooth, free from obstacles and temptations. The psalmist prays that God will so direct him that his enemies will have no grounds for their malicious accusations (see 25:4; 27:11; 139:24; 143:8–10).

5:9–10 Accusation (a common element in the prayers of the Psalter) and call for redress.

5:9 word from their mouth. The most frequent weapon used against the psalmists is the tongue (for a striking example see Ps 12; see also note on 10:7). The psalmists experienced that the tongue is as deadly as the sword (see 57:4; 64:3–4). Perhaps appeals to God against those who maliciously wield the tongue are frequent in the Psalms because only in God's courtroom can a person experience redress for such attacks. heart. See note on 4:7. throat . . . grave. See note on 49:14. they speak deceit. For the plots and intrigues of enemies, usually involving lies to discredit the king and bring him down, see Ps 17; 25; 27–28; 31; 35; 41; 52; 54–57; 59; 63–64; 71; 86; 109; 140–141—all ascribed to David. Frequently such attacks came when the king was "low" and seemingly abandoned by God (as in Ps 25; 35; 41; 71; 86; 109). In that case he was viewed as no longer fit to be king—God was no longer with him (and so he could no longer secure the safety of the nation; see 1Sa 8:20; 11:12; 12:12; 25:28; 2Sa 3:18; 7:9–11). In any event, he was an easy prey (see 3:2; 22:7–8; 71:11). See note on 86:17. See also Paul's use of this verse in Ro 3:13.

5:10 The presence of so-called "imprecations" (curses) in the Psalms has occasioned endless discussion and has caused many Christians to wince, in view of Jesus' instructions to turn the other cheek and to pray for one's enemies (see Mt 5:39,44), and his own example on the cross (see Lk 23:34). Actually, these "imprecations" are not that at all; rather, they are appeals to God to redress wrongs perpetrated against the psalmists by imposing penalties commensurate with the violence done (see 28:4)—in accordance also with normal judicial procedure in human courts (see Dt 25:1–3). The psalmists knew that he who has been wronged is not to right that wrong by his own hand but is to leave redress to the Lord, who says, "It is mine to avenge; I will repay" (Dt 32:35; see Pr 20:22; Ro 12:19). Therefore they appeal their cases to the divine Judge (see Jer 15:15). Banish them. From God's presence, thus from the source of blessing and life (see Ge 3:23). rebelled against you. By their attacks on the psalmist.

5:11 The psalmist expands his prayer to include all the godly (see note on 3:8). your name. The name of the Lord is the manifestation of his character (see notes on Ex 3:14–15; 34:6–7). It has no separate existence apart from the Lord, but is synonymous with the Lord himself in

Psalm 6

For the director of music. With stringed instruments. According to sheminith.[k]
A psalm of David.

[1]O LORD, do not rebuke me in your anger[j]
or discipline me in your wrath.
[2]Be merciful to me,[k] LORD, for I am faint;[l]
O LORD, heal me,[m] for my bones are in agony.[n]
[3]My soul is in anguish.[o]
How long,[p] O LORD, how long?

[4]Turn,[q] O LORD, and deliver me; save me because of your unfailing
love.[r]
[5]No one remembers you when he is dead.
Who praises you from the grave[s]?

[6]I am worn out[t] from groaning;[u] all night long I flood my bed with weeping[v]
and drench my couch with tears.[w]

his gracious manifestation and accessibility to his people. Hence the Jerusalem temple is the earthly residence of his name among his people (see 74:7; Dt 12:5,11; 2Sa 7:13), and his people can pray to him by calling on his name (see 79:6; 80:18; 99:6; 105:1; 116:4,13,17). The name of the Lord protects (see 20:1; Pr 18:10); the Lord saves by his name (see 54:1); and his saving acts testify that his name is near (see 52:9). Accordingly, the godly "trust in" his name (20:7; 33:21), hope in his name (see 52:9), "sing praise" to his name (7:17; 9:2; 18:49) and "rejoice in" his name (89:16). Both the "love" and the "fear" that belong alone to God are similarly directed toward his name (love: 69:36; 119:132; fear: 61:5; 86:11; 102:15).

5:12 See note on 3:8. righteous. See note on 1:5.

Ps 6 A prayer in time of severe illness, an occasion seized upon by David's enemies to vent their animosity. In early Christian liturgical tradition it was numbered with the seven penitential psalms (the others: Ps 32; 38; 51; 102; 130; 143).

6 title See note on Ps 4 title. According to. Represents a Hebrew preposition of varied usage (also found in the titles of Ps 8; 12; 46; 53; 81; 84; 88). sheminith. Occurs also in Ps 12 title and in 1Ch 15:21. It perhaps refers to an eight-stringed instrument (see NIV text note).

6:1–3 Initial appeal for mercy. Though the Lord has sent him illness to chastise him for his sin (see 32:3–5; 38:1–8,17–18), the psalmist asks that God would not in anger impose the full measure of the penalty for sin, for then death must come (see v. 5; see also 130:3).

6:1 Ps 38 begins similarly. rebuke ... discipline. That is, rebuke-and-discipline (see 39:11; see also note on 3:7). anger ... wrath. See note on 2:5.

6:2 bones. As the inner skeleton, they here represent the whole body.

6:3 soul. Not a spiritual aspect in distinction from the physical, nor the psalmist's "inner" being in distinction from his "outer" being, but his very self as a living, conscious, personal being. Its use in conjunction with "bones" (also in 35:9–10: "soul" and "whole being") did not for the Hebrew writer involve reference to two distinct entities but constituted for him two ways of referring to himself, as is the case also in the combination "soul" and "body" (31:9; 63:1). How long ... how long? See Introduction: Theology. Such language of impatience and complaint is found frequently in the prayers of the Psalter (usually "how long?" or "when?" or "why?"). It expresses the anguish of relief not (yet) granted and exhibits the boldness with which the psalmists wrestled with God on the basis of their relationship with him and their conviction concerning his righteousness (see note on 4:1).

6:4 unfailing love. The Hebrew for this phrase denotes befriending. Appeal to God's "(unfailing) love, kindness, mercy" is frequent in the OT since it summarizes all that the Lord covenanted to show to Israel (see Dt 7:9,12) as well as to David and his dynasty (see 89:24,28,33; 2Sa 7:15; Isa 55:3).

6:5 The psalmist urges that God's praise is at stake. It is the living, not the dead, who remember God's mercies and celebrate his deliverances. The Israelites usually viewed death as they saw it—the very opposite of life. And resurrection was not yet a part of their communal experience with God. The grave brought no escape from God (see 139:8), but just how they viewed the condition of the godly dead is not clear. (Non-Biblical documents from the ancient Near East indicate a general conception that immortality was reserved for the gods but that the dead continued to have some kind of shadowy existence in the dismal netherworld.) The OT writers knew that man was created for life, that God's will for his people was life and that he had power over death. They also knew that death was every man's lot, and at its proper time the godly rested in God and accepted it with equanimity (see Ge 15:15; 25:8; 47:30; 49:33; 1Ki 2:2). Death could even be a blessing for the righteous, affording escape from the greater evil that would overtake the living (see 2Ki 22:20; Isa 57:1–2). Furthermore, the death of the righteous was reputedly better than that of the wicked (see Nu 23:10). It seems clear that there was even an awareness that death (as observed) was not the end of hope for the righteous, that God had more in store for them (see especially 16:9–11; 17:15; 49:14–15; 73:24; see also note on Ge 5:24). But when the psalmists wrestled with God for the preservation of life, it was death as they saw it, in its radical contradiction to life, that was evoked.

6:6–7 Anguish at night because of the prolongation of the illness and the barbs of the enemies.

6:6 I am worn out from groaning. The very center of the poem—thus underscoring the pathos of this prayer. This literary device—of placing a key thematic line at the very center of the psalm—was frequently used (see notes on 8:4; 21:7; 23:4; 34:8–14; 42:8; 47:5–6; 48:8; 54:4; 71:14; 74:12; 76:7; 82:5a; 86:9; 92:8; 97:7; 113:5; 138:4–5; 141:5; see also Introduction: Literary Features).

7 My eyes grow weak[x] with sorrow;
they fail because of all my foes.
8 Away from me,[y] all you who do evil,[z]
for the LORD has heard my weeping.
9 The LORD has heard my cry for mercy;[a]
the LORD accepts my prayer.
10 All my enemies will be ashamed and dismayed;[b] they will turn back in sudden disgrace.[c]

Psalm 7

A shiggaion[md] of David, which he sang to the LORD concerning Cush, a Benjamite.

1 O LORD my God, I take refuge[e] in you; save and deliver me[f] from all who pursue me,[g] 2 or they will tear me like a lion[h] and rip me to pieces with no one to rescue[i] me.

3 O LORD my God, if I have done this and there is guilt on my hands[j]— 4 if I have done evil to him who is at peace with me or without cause[k] have robbed my foe—5 then let my enemy pursue and overtake[l] me;
let him trample my life to the ground[m]
and make me sleep in the dust.[n] Selah

6 Arise,[o] O LORD, in your anger; rise up against the rage of my enemies.[p]
Awake,[q] my God; decree justice.
7 Let the assembled peoples gather around you.
Rule over them from on high;[r]
8 let the LORD judge[s] the peoples.
Judge me, O LORD, according to my righteousness,[t]
according to my integrity,[u] O Most High.[v] 9 O righteous God,[w] who searches minds and hearts,[x]
bring to an end the violence of the wicked and make the righteous secure.[y]

10 My shield[nz] is God Most High, who saves the upright in heart.[a] 11 God is a righteous judge,[b] a God who expresses his wrath[c] every day.
12 If he does not relent,[d]
he[o] will sharpen his sword;[e]
he will bend and string his bow.[f] 13 He has prepared his deadly weapons;
he makes ready his flaming arrows.[g]

[m]Title: Probably a literary or musical term [n]10 Or sovereign [o]12 Or If a man does not repent, / God

6:7 eyes grow weak ... fail. In the vivid language of the OT the eyes are dimmed by failing strength (see 38:10; 1Sa 14:27,29 and NIV text notes; Jer 14:6), by grief (often associated with affliction: 31:9; 88:9; Job 17:7; La 2:11) and by longings unsatisfied or hope deferred (see 69:3; 119:82,123; Dt 28:32; Isa 38:14). because of all my foes. See note on 5:9.

6:8–10 Concluding expression of buoyant confidence (see note on 3:8).

6:10 At the psalmist's restoration, his enemies will be disgraced.

Ps 7 An appeal to the Lord's court of justice when enemies attack.

7 title shiggaion. See NIV text note. The word occurs only here (but see its plural in Hab 3:1). Cush. Not otherwise known, but as a Benjamite he was probably a supporter of Saul. Hence the title associates the psalm with Saul's determined attempts on David's life. See Introduction: Authorship and Titles (or Superscriptions).

7:1–2 Initial summation of David's appeal.

7:2 like a lion. As a young shepherd, David had been attacked by lions (see 1Sa 17:34–35). But it is also a convention in the Psalms to liken the attack of enemies to that of ferocious animals, especially the lion (see 10:9; 17:12; 22:12–13,16,20–21; 35:17; 57:4; 58:6; 124:6).

7:3–5 David pleads his own innocence; he has given his enemy no cause to attack him.

7:5 me. Lit. "my glory," a way of referring to the core of one's being (see 16:9; 30:12; 57:8; 108:1 and notes).

7:6 Arise ... rise up. See note on 3:7. anger. See v. 11 and note on 2:5. Awake. The Lord does not sleep (see 121:4) while evil triumphs and the oppressed cry to him in vain (as they do to Baal; see 1Ki 18:27). But the psalmists' language of urgent prayer vividly expresses their anguished impatience with God's inaction in the face of their great need (see 80:2; see also 78:65; Isa 51:9).

7:8 my righteousness. See vv. 3–5.

7:9 righteous. See note on 4:1. minds and hearts. Lit. "hearts and kidneys." The Israelites used the words as virtual synonyms (but "heart" most often) to refer to man's innermost center of conscious life (see note on 4:7). To "search mind and heart" was a conventional expression for God's examination of man's hidden character and motives (see Jer 11:20; 17:10; 20:12). the righteous. See note on 1:5.

7:10–13 David's confidence that his prayer will be heard (see note on 3:8).

7:10 shield. See note on 3:3. heart. See note on 4:7.

7:11 every day. God's judgments are not all kept in store for some future day.

7:14–16 David comforts himself with the common wisdom that under God's rule "crime does not pay."

16 The trouble he causes recoils on himself;
his violence comes down on his own head.

17 I will give thanks to the LORD because of his righteousness[k] and will sing praise[l] to the name of the LORD Most High.[m]

Psalm 8

For the director of music. According to gittith.[p] A psalm of David.

1 O LORD, our Lord,
how majestic is your name[n] in all the earth!

You have set your glory[o] above the heavens.[p]
2 From the lips of children and infants you have ordained praise[q][q] because of your enemies, to silence the foe[r] and the avenger.

3 When I consider your heavens,[s] the work of your fingers,[t]
the moon and the stars,[u] which you have set in place, 4 what is man that you are mindful of him,
the son of man that you care for him?[v]
5 You made him a little lower than the heavenly beings[r][w] and crowned him with glory and honor.[x]

6 You made him ruler[y] over the works of your hands;[z]
you put everything under his feet:[a][b] 7 all flocks and herds,[c] and the beasts of the field,[d] 8 the birds of the air, and the fish of the sea,[e]
all that swim the paths of the seas.

9 O LORD, our Lord,
how majestic is your name in all the earth![f]

[p] Title: Probably a musical term [q] 2 Or strength [r] 5 Or than God [s] Psalms 9 and 10 may have been originally a single acrostic poem, the stanzas of which begin with the successive letters of the Hebrew alphabet. In the Septuagint they constitute one psalm.

7:17 A vow to praise. Many prayers in the Psalter include such vows in anticipation of the expected answer to prayer. They reflect Israel's religious consciousness that praise must follow deliverance as surely as prayer springs from need—if God is to be truly honored. Such praise was usually offered with thank offerings and involved celebrating God's saving act in the presence of those assembled at the temple (see 50:14–15,23; see also note on 9:1). name of the LORD. See note on 5:11. Most High. See note on Ge 14:19.

Ps 8 In praise of the Creator (not of man—as is evident from the doxology that encloses it, vv. 1,9; see also note on 9:1) out of wonder over his sovereign ordering of the creation. Ge 1 (particularly vv. 26–28) clearly provides the spectacles, but David speaks out of his present experience of reality (perhaps on a bright, clear night when the vast host of the heavenly lights, stretching from horizon to horizon, erased from his musings small everyday affairs and engaged his mind with deeper thoughts). Two matters especially impressed him: (1) the glory of God reflected in the starry heavens, and (2) the astonishing condescension of God to be mindful of puny man, to crown him with glory almost godlike and to grant him lordly power over his creatures.

8 title For the director of music. See note on Ps 4 title. According to. See note on Ps 6 title. gittith. See Ps 81; 84 titles. The Hebrew word perhaps refers to either the winepress ("song of the winepress") or the Philistine city of Gath ("Gittite lyre or music"; see 2Sa 15:18).

8:1a name. See note on 5:11.

8:1b–2 The mighty God, whose glory is displayed across the face of the heavens, appoints (and evokes) the praise of little children to silence the dark powers arrayed against him (for a NT application see Mt 21:16).

8:2 avenger. See 44:16; one who strikes back in malicious revenge (not as in 9:12).

8:3–5 The vastness and majesty of the heavens as the handiwork of God (see 19:1–6; 104:19–23) evoke wonder for what their Maker has done for little man, who is here today and gone tomorrow (see 144:3–4). (See Job 7:17–21 for Job's complaint that God takes man too seriously.)

8:3 fingers. See note on Ex 8:19.

8:4–6 Heb 2:6–8, quoting the Septuagint (the Greek translation of the OT), applies these verses to Jesus, who as the incarnate Son of God is both the representative man and the one in whom man's appointed destiny will be fully realized. The author of Hebrews thus makes use of the eschatological implications of these nonprophetic words in his testimony to Christ. Paul does the same with v. 6 in 1Co 15:27 (see also Eph 1:22).

8:4 what. The Hebrew for this word is translated "how" in vv. 1,9 and begins the line that serves as the center of the psalm (see note on 6:6). are mindful of. Lit. "remember" (see note on Ge 8:1). son of man. Often a poetic synonym for "man" (see 80:17; 144:3; see also note on Eze 2:1).

8:5 heavenly beings. The exalted angelic creatures that surround God in his heavenly realm (as, e.g., in Isa 6:2); but see NIV text note.

8:6–8 See Ge 1:26–27. Man's rule is real—a part of his "glory and honor" (v. 5)—and it is his destiny (the eschatological import drawn on by Paul and the author of Hebrews; see note on vv. 4–6). But it is not absolute or independent. It is participation, as a subordinate, in God's rule; and it is a gift, not a right.

8:9 Repeated verbatim from v. 1a (see note there).

Ps 9 That Ps 9 and 10 were sometimes viewed (or used) as one psalm is known from the Septuagint (the Greek translation of the OT; see NIV text note). Whether they were originally composed as one psalm is not known, though a number of indicators point in that direction. Ps 10 is the only psalm from Ps 3 to 32 that has no superscrip-2I will be glad and rejoice[i] in you;

I will sing praise[j] to your name,[k]
O Most High.

3My enemies turn back;
they stumble and perish before you.
4For you have upheld my right[l] and my cause;[m]
you have sat on your throne,[n]

5You have rebuked the nations[p] and destroyed the wicked;
you have blotted out their name[q] for ever and ever.
6Endless ruin has overtaken the enemy,
you have uprooted their cities;[r]
even the memory of them[s] has perished.

7The LORD reigns forever;[t] he has established his throne[u] for judgment.
8He will judge the world in righteousness;[v]
he will govern the peoples with justice.[w]

tion, and the Hebrew text of the two psalms together appears to reflect an incomplete (or broken) acrostic structure. The first letter of each verse or pair of verses tends to follow the order of the Hebrew alphabet near the beginning of Ps 9 and again near the end of Ps 10. The thoughts also tend to be developed in two-verse units throughout. Ps 9 is predominantly praise (by the king) for God's deliverance from hostile nations (the specific occasion is unknown, but since there is no reference to victories on the part of Israel, God's destruction of the nations may have come by other means). It concludes with a short prayer for God's continuing righteous judgments (see v. 4) on the haughty nations. Ps 10 is predominantly prayer against the rapacity of unscrupulous men within the realm—as arrogant and wicked in their dealings with the "weak" (v. 2) as the nations were in their attacks on Israel (vv. 2–11 can serve equally as a description of both). The conjunction of these two within a single psalm is not unthinkable since the attacks of "the wicked" (9:5; 10:4), whether from within or from without, on the godly community are equally threatening to true Israel. Praise of God's past deliverances is often an integral part of prayer in the Psalter (see 3:3–4,8 and notes; 25:6; 40:1–5), as also in other ancient Near Eastern prayers. Such praise expressed the ground of the psalmist's hope that his present prayer would be heard, and it also functioned to motivate the Lord to act once more in his people's (or his servant's) behalf. For other lengthy prefaces to prayer see Ps 40; 44; 89. Probably Ps 9–10 came to be separated for the purpose of separate liturgical use, as did Ps 42–43 (see introduction there).

9 title For the director of music. See note on Ps 4 title. To ⌊the tune of⌋. See titles of Ps 22; 45; 56–60; 69; 75; 80; see also NIV text note on Ps 88 title. Nothing more is known of the apparent tune titles.

9:1–2 Initial announcement of praise.

9:1 heart. See note on 4:7. tell of. The Hebrew for this phrase is translated "declare" in v. 14. The praise of God in the Psalter is rarely a private matter between the psalmist and the Lord. It is usually a public (at the temple) celebration of God's holy virtues or of his saving acts or gracious bestowal of blessings. In his praise the psalmist proclaims to the assembled throng God's glorious attributes or his righteous (see note on 4:1) deeds (see, e.g., 22:22–31; 56:12–13; 61:8; 65:1; 69:30–33). To this is usually added a call to praise, summoning all who hear to take up the praise—to acknowledge and joyfully celebrate God's glory, his goodness and all his righteous acts. This aspect of praise in the Psalms has rightly been called the OT anticipation of NT evangelism. wonders. God's saving acts, sometimes involving miracles—as in the exodus from Egypt, the desert wanderings and the entrance into the promised land—and sometimes not, but always involving the manifestation of God's sovereign lordship over events. Here reference is to the destruction of the enemies celebrated in this psalm.

9:2,10 your name. See note on 5:11.

9:2 Most High. See note on Ge 14:19.

9:3–6 In destroying the enemies, God has redressed the wrongs committed by them against David (and Israel).

9:4 throne. See note on v. 7.

9:5 blotted out their name. As if from a register of mankind written on a papyrus scroll (see Nu 5:23; see also Dt 9:14; 25:19; 29:20; 2Ki 14:27).

9:7–10 Celebration of the righteous rule of God (see note on 4:1), which evokes trust in those who look to the Lord.

9:7 his throne. In heaven (see 11:4). See also v. 4.

9:8 See Ac 17:31.

9:11–12 A call to the assembly at the temple to take up the praise of God for his righteous judgments (see note on v. 1).

9:11 enthroned in Zion. God's heavenly throne (see v. 7) has its counterpart on earth in his temple at Jerusalem, from which center he rules the world (see 2:6; 3:4 and notes; 20:2). For God's election of Zion as the seat of his rule see 132:13.

9:12 he who avenges blood. See Dt 32:41,43.

9:13–14 Perhaps a recollection of David's prayer ("the cry of the afflicted," v. 12), which the Lord has now answered.

9:13 gates of death. See Job 17:16 and note.

14 that I may declare your praises[m] in the gates of the Daughter of Zion[n] and there rejoice in your salvation.[o]
15 The nations have fallen into the pit they have dug;[p]

17 The wicked return to the grave,[u][s]
all the nations that forget God.[t] 18 But the needy will not always be forgotten, nor the hope[u] of the afflicted[v] ever perish.

let the nations be judged[y] in your presence.
20 Strike them with terror,[z] O LORD; let the nations know they are but men.[a] Selah

Psalm 10[v]

1 Why, O LORD, do you stand far off?[b]
Why do you hide yourself[c] in times of trouble?
2 In his arrogance the wicked man hunts down the weak,[d] who are caught in the schemes he devises.
3 He boasts[e] of the cravings of his heart;
he blesses the greedy and reviles the LORD.[f] 4 In his pride the wicked does not seek him;
in all his thoughts there is no room for God.[g] 5 His ways are always prosperous;
he is haughty[h] and your laws are far from him;
he sneers at all his enemies.
6 He says to himself, "Nothing will shake me;
I'll always be happy[i] and never have trouble."
7 His mouth is full of curses[j] and lies and threats;[k] trouble and evil are under his tongue.[l] 8 He lies in wait[m] near the villages;
from ambush he murders the innocent,[n]
watching in secret for his victims.
9 He lies in wait like a lion in cover;
he lies in wait to catch the helpless;[o]
he catches the helpless and drags them off in his net.[p] 10 His victims are crushed,[q] they collapse;
they fall under his strength.

[t] 16 Or Meditation; possibly a musical notation
[u] 17 Hebrew Sheol [v] Psalms 9 and 10 may have been originally a single acrostic poem, the stanzas of which begin with the successive letters of the Hebrew alphabet. In the Septuagint they constitute one psalm.

9:14 declare. See notes on v. 1; 7:17. gates. Having been thrust down by the attacks of his enemies to "the gates of death" (v. 13), David prayed to be lifted up so he could celebrate his deliverance (see note on v. 1) in "the gates of . . . Zion." Daughter of Zion. A personification of Jerusalem and its inhabitants.

9:15–18 Under the Lord's just rule, those who wickedly attack others bring destruction on themselves (see 7:14–16 and note) and their end will be the grave. But those who are attacked ("the needy," v. 18) will not trust in the Lord in vain.

9:17 forget. Take no account of.

9:18 needy . . . afflicted. In this psalm David and Israel are counted among them because of the threat from the enemies. not . . . forgotten. Those who forget God will come to nothing, but the needy and afflicted will not be forgotten by God (see v. 12).

9:19–20 A prayer at the conclusion of praise, asking that the Lord may ever rule over the nations as he has done in the event here celebrated—that those who "forget God" (v. 17) may know that they are only men, not gods, and cannot withstand the God of Israel (see 10:18).

9:19 Arise. See note on 3:7.

Ps 10 A prayer for rescue from the attacks of unscrupulous men—containing a classic OT portrayal of "the wicked." See introduction to Ps 9.

10:1 See note on 6:3; see also Introduction: Theology.

10:2–11 Accusation lodged against the oppressors (see note on 5:9–10). In the Hebrew the interchange of singular and plural indicates that these accusations are being lodged against wicked oppressors in general. Their deeds betray the arrogance (see vv. 2–5—so long as they prosper, v. 5) with which they defy God (see vv. 3–4,13; see especially their words in vv. 6,11,13). They greedily seek to glut their unrestrained appetites (see v. 3) by victimizing others, taking account of neither God (see v. 4) nor his law (see v. 5).

10:2 hunts . . . caught. The psalmists often use imagery from the hunt (see vv. 8–9).

10:3 heart. See note on 4:7.

10:4 The wicked man does not consider that he has God to contend with (see note on v. 11; see also 14:1; 36:1; 53:1).

10:6 See vv. 11,13 and note on 3:2. to himself. Lit. "in his heart" (also in vv. 11,13); see note on 4:7. shake me. Disturb my well-being, unsettle my security.

10:7 curses and lies and threats. The three most common weapons of the tongue in Israel's experience (see note on 5:9). curses. The ancient Near Eastern peoples thought that by pronouncing curses on someone they could bring down the power of the gods (or other mysterious powers) on that person. They had a large conventional stock of such curses. lies. Slander and false testimony for malicious purposes (see, e.g., 1Ki 21:8–15).

10:9 See note on 7:2.

11 He says to himself, "God has forgotten;[r]
he covers his face and never sees."[s]

12 Arise,[t] LORD! Lift up your hand,[u]
O God.
Do not forget the helpless.[v]
13 Why does the wicked man revile
God?[w]
Why does he say to himself,
"He won't call me to account"?[x] 14 But you, O God, do see trouble[y] and grief;
you consider it to take it in hand.
The victim commits himself to you;[z] you are the helper[a] of the fatherless.
15 Break the arm of the wicked and evil man;[b]
call him to account for his wickedness
that would not be found out.

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever;[c]
the nations[d] will perish from his land.
17 You hear, O LORD, the desire of the afflicted;[e]
you encourage them, and you listen to their cry,[f] 18 defending the fatherless[g] and the oppressed,[h]
in order that man, who is of the earth, may terrify no more.

Psalm 11

For the director of music. Of David.

1 In the LORD I take refuge.[i]
How then can you say to me:
"Flee[j] like a bird to your mountain.[k]
2 For look, the wicked bend their bows;[l] they set their arrows[m] against the strings to shoot from the shadows[n]
at the upright in heart.[o] 3 When the foundations[p] are being destroyed,
what can the righteous do[w]?"

4 The LORD is in his holy temple;[q]
the LORD is on his heavenly throne.[r]
He observes the sons of men;[s]
his eyes examine[t] them.
5 The LORD examines the righteous,[u] but the wicked[x] and those who love violence
his soul hates.[v]
6 On the wicked he will rain fiery coals and burning sulfur;[w] a scorching wind[x] will be their lot.

7 For the LORD is righteous,[y]

[w] 3 Or what is the Righteous One doing [x] 5 Or The LORD, the Righteous One, examines the wicked, /

10:11 See note on 3:2. The arrogance with which the wicked speak (see 17:10), especially their easy dismissal of God's knowledge of their evil acts and his unfailing prosecution of their malicious deeds, is frequently noted by the psalmists (see v. 13; 12:4; 42:3,10; 59:7; 64:5; 71:11; 73:11; 94:7; 115:2; see also Isa 29:15; Eze 8:12).

10:12–15 Prayer that God will call the wicked to account.

10:12 Arise. See note on 3:7. forget. See 9:18. helpless. Those at the mercy of the oppressors (see v. 9).

10:13 Why . . . ? Why . . . ? See note on 6:3.

10:14 Appeal to God's righteous rule (see 5:4–6).

10:16–18 The psalmist's confidence in the righteous reign of the Lord (see note on 3:8). Reference to the nations (v. 16) and to the humbling of proud man (see v. 18; see also 9:19–20) suggests links with Ps 9. As the conclusion to Ps 10, this stanza expands the vision of God's just rule to its universal scope and sets the purging of the Lord's land of all nations that do not acknowledge him (see v. 16) alongside God's judicial dealing with the wicked oppressors. Both belong to God's assertion of his righteous rule in the face of man's arrogant denial of it.

10:18 who is of the earth. Who is not God and so constitutes no ultimate threat (see 49:12,20; 56:4,11; 62:9; 78:39; 103:14–16; 118:6,8–9; 144:4; Isa 31:3; Jer 17:5).

Ps 11 A confession of confident trust in the Lord's righteous rule, at a time when wicked adversaries seem to have the upper hand.

11 title For the director of music. See note on Ps 4 title.

11:1–3 David testifies of his unshakable trust in the Lord (his refuge) to apprehensive people around him. These people, seeing the power and underhandedness of the enemy (they "shoot from the shadows," v. 2), fear that the foundations (v. 3) are crumbling and that flight to a mountain refuge is the only recourse. He dismisses their fearful advice with disdain.

11:2 It is not clear whether those who wield the bows and arrows are archers or false accusers (see 57:4; 64:4; see also note on 5:9). heart. See note on 4:7.

11:3 foundations. Of the world order (see 82:5). To those who counsel flight, the powerful upsurge of evil appears to indicate that the righteous can no longer count on a world order in which good triumphs over evil. righteous. See note on 1:5.

11:4–7 Reply to the fearful: The Lord is still securely on his heavenly throne. And the righteous Lord (see v. 7) discerns the righteous (see v. 5) to give them a place in his presence (see v. 7), while his judgment will "rain" (v. 6) on the wicked.

11:4 The LORD is in his holy temple. Repeated verbatim in Hab 2:20. Here reference is to his heavenly temple.

11:6 Perhaps recalling God's judgment on Sodom and Gomorrah (see Rev 14:10; 20:10; 21:8). their lot. Lit. "the portion of their cup" (see 75:8 and note on 16:5).

11:7 righteous. See note on 4:1. upright men. Those concerning whom the fearful despaired (see v. 2). see his face. The Hebrew for "see the king's face" was an expression denoting access to the king (see Ge 43:3,5; 44:23,26; 2Sa 3:13, "come into my presence"; 14:24,28,32). Sometimes it referred to those who served before the king (see 2Ki 25:19, "royal advisers"; Est 1:14, those "who had special access to the king"). Here David speaks of special freedom he loves justice;[z] upright men[a] will see his face.[b]

Psalm 12

For the director of music. According to sheminith.[y] A psalm of David.

[1]Help, LORD, for the godly are no more;[c]
the faithful have vanished from among men.
[2]Everyone lies[d] to his neighbor;
their flattering lips speak with deception.[e] [3]May the LORD cut off all flattering lips[f]
and every boastful tongue[g] [4]that says, "We will triumph with our tongues;[h] we own our lips[z]—who is our master?" [5]"Because of the oppression[i] of the weak and the groaning[j] of the needy,
I will now arise,[k]" says the LORD.
"I will protect them[l] from those who malign them."
[6]And the words of the LORD are flawless,[m] like silver refined[n] in a furnace[o] of clay, purified seven times.
[7]O LORD, you will keep us safe[p]
and protect us from such people forever.[q] [8]The wicked freely strut[r] about when what is vile is honored among men.

Psalm 13

For the director of music.
A psalm of David.

[1]How long,[s] O LORD? Will you forget me[t] forever?
How long will you hide your face[u] from me?
[2]How long must I wrestle with my thoughts[v]
and every day have sorrow in my heart?
How long will my enemy triumph over me?[w]
[3]Look on me[x] and answer,[y] O LORD my God.
Give light to my eyes,[z] or I will sleep in death;[a] [4]my enemy will say, "I have overcome him,[b]" and my foes will rejoice when I fall.[c] of access before the heavenly King. Reference is no doubt to his presence at the temple (God's earthly royal house), but that is still the presence of the One who sits on the heavenly throne. Ultimate access to the heavenly temple may also be implied (see 16:11; 17:15; see also 23:6; 140:13). Even the pagan peoples surrounding Israel believed that man continued after death, though only in some kind of shadowy existence in the netherworld (see Isa 14:9–17).

Ps 12 A prayer for help when it seems that all men are faithless and every tongue false (see Mic 7:1–7).

12 title For the director of music. See note on Ps 4 title. According to sheminith. See note on Ps 6 title.

12:1–2 Initial appeal, with description of the cause of distress.

12:1 godly. See note on 4:3. the faithful. Those who maintain moral integrity.

12:2 See 5:9 and note.

12:3–4 The prayer.

12:3 cut off. Put an end to (physical mutilation is not in view). boastful. See note on 10:2–11.

12:4 See notes on 3:2; 10:11.

12:5–6 A reassuring word from the Lord. Such words of assurance following prayer in the Psalms were perhaps spoken by a priest (see 1Sa 1:17) or a prophet (see 51:8 and note; 2Sa 12:13). It may be that abrupt transitions from prayer to confidence in the Psalms (see note on 3:8) presuppose such priestly or prophetic words, even when they are not contained in the psalm. Here it is possible that David merely recalls this appropriate word from the Lord; notice that it is a general reassurance concerning the righteous rule of God (see note on 4:1).

12:5 I will now arise. See Isa 33:10.

12:6 words of the LORD. Set in sharp contrast with the boastful words of the adversaries; they are as flawless as thoroughly refined silver. furnace of clay. See note on Dt 4:20. seven. Signifies fullness or completeness—here thoroughness of refining.

12:7–8 Concluding expression of confidence (see note on 3:8).

12:8 David is confident, even though at the present time the wicked think they have the upper hand (see vv. 1–4).

Ps 13 A cry to the Lord for deliverance from a serious illness that threatens death (see v. 3), which would give David's enemies just what they wanted. See introduction to Ps 6.

13 title For the director of music. See note on Ps 4 title.

13:1–2 An anguished complaint concerning a prolonged serious illness.

13:1 How long . . . ? See note on 6:3; see also Introduction: Theology. forget. Ignore. hide your face. For use in combination with "forget" see 44:24. In moments of need the psalmists frequently ask God why he hides his face (see 30:7; 44:24; 88:14), or they plead with him not to do so (see 27:9; 69:17; 102:2; 143:7). When he does hide his face, those who depend on him can only despair (see 30:7; 104:29). When his face shines on a person, blessing and deliverance come (see 4:6 and note; 31:16; 67:1; 80:3,7,19; 119:135).

13:2 heart. See note on 4:7.

13:3–4 Appeal for deliverance from death.

13:3 Give light to my eyes. Restore me (see note on 6:7).

13:4 See notes on 3:2; 5:9. fall. Referring to death (as in 18:38; 82:7; 106:26; Jdg 5:27; 2Sa 1:19; Job 18:12).

5But I trust in your unfailing love;[d]
my heart rejoices in your salvation.[e] 6I will sing[f] to the LORD, for he has been good to me.

Psalm 14

14:1-7pp — Ps 53:1-6

For the director of music. Of David.

1The fool[a] says in his heart,
"There is no God."[g]
They are corrupt, their deeds are vile;
there is no one who does good.

2The LORD looks down from heaven[h] on the sons of men
to see if there are any who understand,[i] any who seek God.[j] 3All have turned aside,[k]
they have together become corrupt;[l] there is no one who does good,[m] not even one.[n]

4Will evildoers never learn—[o]
those who devour my people[p] as men eat bread and who do not call on the LORD?[q] 5There they are, overwhelmed with dread, for God is present in the company of the righteous.

Psalm 15

A psalm of David.

1LORD, who may dwell[u] in your sanctuary?[v]
Who may live on your holy hill?[w]

2He whose walk is blameless[x] and who does what is righteous, who speaks the truth[y] from his heart 3 and has no slander[z] on his tongue, who does his neighbor no wrong and casts no slur on his fellowman, 4who despises a vile man but honors[a] those who fear the LORD, who keeps his oath[b]
even when it hurts, 5who lends his money without usury[c]

[a] 1 The Hebrew words rendered fool in Psalms denote one who is morally deficient.

13:5-6 Concluding expression of confidence (see note on 3:8).

13:5 unfailing love. See note on 6:4. heart. See note on 4:7. rejoices. It is David who will rejoice, not his enemies.

13:6 See note on 7:17.

Ps 14 A testimony concerning the folly of evil men. This psalm has many links with Ps 10; 12. It shares the view of Ps 11 that the righteous Lord is on the throne, and it stands in contrast with Ps 15, which describes those who are acceptable to God. Ps 53 is a somewhat revised duplicate of this psalm.

14 title For the director of music. See note on Ps 4 title.

14:1-3 Characterization of the wicked. For Paul's use of these verses in a different context see Ro 3:10-12.

14:1 Not intended as a definition of the "fool"; see previous note and NIV text note. says. See note on 3:2. heart. See note on 4:7. no God. A practical atheism (see 10:4,6,11,13; 36:1; see also note on 10:4). no one who does good. Mankind in general is corrupt. Here the reference is to those who take no account of God and do not hesitate to show their malice toward "the company of the righteous" (see vv. 4-5)—as in 9:19-20; 10:2-11,13,18; 12:1-4,7-8 (this is also the situation that Ps 11 describes). Elsewhere the psalmists included themselves among those who are not righteous in God's eyes (see 130:3; 143:2; see also 1Ki 8:46; Job 9:2; Ecc 7:20).

14:2 The LORD. Emphatically contrasted with "the fool" (v. 1). who seek God. Those who truly seek God are described in Ps 15.

14:3 turned aside. From God and goodness.

14:4-6 The folly of the wicked exposed.

14:4 devour ... do not call on the LORD. Renewed characterization of the wicked: They live by the violence of their own hands and do not rely on the Lord (see 10:2-4).

14:5 Even God's mighty defense of the righteous teaches them nothing. righteous. See note on 1:5.

14:6 poor. God's people as the victims of injustice. refuge. See note on 4:1.

14:7 The psalmist longs for Israel's complete deliverance from her enemies—which will come when God deals with the wicked in defense of their victims. For a similar expansion of scope see 10:16-18 and note. Zion. See note on 9:11. Jacob ... Israel. Synonyms (see Ge 32:28).

Ps 15 Instruction to those who wish to have access to God at his temple (see 24:3-6; Isa 33:14-16). See also introduction to Ps 14.

15:1 dwell ... live on. Not as a priest but as God's guest in his holy, royal house, the temple (see 23:6; 27:4-6; 61:4; 84:10; 2Sa 12:20). holy hill. See note on 2:6.

15:2-5 Not sacrifices or ritual purity (as among the religions of the ancient Near East) but moral righteousness gives access to the Lord, the God of Israel (see the basic covenantal law: Ex 20:1-17; see also Isa 1:10-17; 33:14-16; 58:6-10; Jer 7:2-7; Eze 18:5-9; Hos 6:6; Am 5:14-15,21-24; Mic 6:6-8; Zec 7:9-10; 8:16-17).

15:2 blameless. See Ge 17:1 and note. righteous. See note on 1:5. heart. See note on 4:7.

15:3 tongue. See note on 5:9.

15:4 those who fear the LORD. Those who honor God and order their lives in accordance with his will (see note on Ge 20:11) because of their reverence for him.

15:5 usury. See note on Ex 22:25-27. be shaken. See note on 10:6.

will never be shaken.[e]

Psalm 16

A miktam[b] of David.

[1]Keep me safe,[f] O God, for in you I take refuge.[g]

[2]I said to the LORD, "You are my Lord;[h]
apart from you I have no good thing."[i] [3]As for the saints[j] who are in the who run after other gods.[m] or take up their names[n] on my lips.

[5]LORD, you have assigned me my portion[o] and my cup;[p]
you have made my lot[q] secure.
[6]The boundary lines[r] have fallen for me in pleasant places;
surely I have a delightful inheritance.[s]

Psalm 17

A prayer of David.

listen to my cry.[h]

[b] Title: Probably a literary or musical term [c] 3 Or As for the pagan priests who are in the land / and the nobles in whom all delight, I said: [d] 10 Hebrew Sheol [e] 10 Or your faithful one [f] 11 Or You will make

Ps 16 A prayer for safekeeping (the petition element in prayer psalms is often relatively short; see 3:7; 22:19–21; 44:23–26), pleading for the Lord's protection against the threat of death. It could also be called a psalm of trust.

16 title miktam. The term remains unexplained, though it always stands in the superscription of Davidic prayers occasioned by great danger (see Ps 56–60).

16:1 The petition and the basis for it. The rest of the psalm elaborates on the latter element.

16:2–4 The Lord is David's one and only good thing (see 73:25,28); David will have nothing to do with the counterfeit gods to whom others pour out their libations (see 4:2).

16:3 See Ps 101.

16:4 sorrows ... will increase. In contrast with David's good "portion" (v. 5; see note on 11:6), which affords him much joy (see 73:18–20). libations of blood. Blood of sacrifices poured on altars. take up their names. Appeal to or worship them (see Jos 23:7).

16:5–6 Joy over the inheritance received from the Lord. David refers to what the Lord bestowed on his people in the promised land, either to the gift of fields there (see Nu 16:14) or to the Lord himself (as in 73:26; 119:57; 142:5; La 3:24), who was the inheritance of the priests (see Nu 18:20) and the Levites (see Dt 10:9).

16:5 cup. A metaphor referring to what the host offers his guests to drink. To the godly the Lord offers a cup of blessings (see 23:5) or salvation (see 116:13); he makes the wicked drink from a cup of wrath (see Jer 25:15; Rev 14:10; 16:19). secure. Just as each Israelite's family inheritance in the promised land was to be secure (see Lev 25; Nu 36:7).

16:7–8 Praise of the Lord who counsels and keeps.

16:7 counsels. Shows the way that leads to life (see v. 11). heart. Lit. "kidneys" (see note on 7:9).

16:8 he is at my right hand. As sustainer and protector (see 73:23; 109:31; 110:5; 121:5); complemented by the reference to the Lord's right hand in v. 11. not be shaken. See note on 10:6.

16:9–11 Describes the joy of total security. David speaks here, as in the rest of his psalms, first of all of himself and of the life he now enjoys by the gracious provision and care of God. The Lord, in whom the psalmist takes refuge, wills life for him (hence he made known to him the path of life, v. 11) and will not abandon him to the grave, even though "flesh and ... heart ... fail" (73:26). But implicit in these words of assurance (if not actually explicit) is the confidence that, with the Lord as his refuge, even the grave cannot rob him of life (see 17:15; 73:24; see also note on 11:7). If this could be said of David, how much more of David's promised Son! So Peter quotes vv. 8–11 and declares that with these words David prophesied of Christ and his resurrection (Ac 2:25–28; see Paul's similar use of v. 10b in Ac 13:35). See also note on 6:5.

16:9 heart. See note on 4:7. tongue. Lit. "glory" (see note on 7:5).

16:10 Holy One. Hebrew hasid (see note on 4:3). Reference is first of all to David (hence the NIV text note; see also note on 2:2), but the psalm is ultimately fulfilled in Christ.

16:11 path of life. See Pr 15:24. your right hand. See note on v. 8.

Ps 17 The psalmist appeals to the Lord as Judge, when under attack by ungodly foes. The psalm reflects many of the Hebrew conventions of lodging a judicial appeal before the king.

Give ear[i] to my prayer—
it does not rise from deceitful lips.[j] [2]May my vindication[k] come from you;
may your eyes see what is right.[l] [3]Though you probe my heart[m] and examine me at night, though you test me,[n] you will find nothing;[o]
I have resolved that my mouth will not sin.[p] [4]As for the deeds of men—
by the word of your lips
I have kept myself
from the ways of the violent.
[5]My steps have held to your paths;[q]
my feet have not slipped.[r] [6]I call on you, O God, for you will answer me;[s] give ear to me[t] and hear my prayer.[u] [7]Show the wonder of your great love,[v] you who save by your right hand[w] those who take refuge[x] in you from their foes.
[8]Keep me[y] as the apple of your eye;[z] hide me[a] in the shadow of your wings[b] [9]from the wicked who assail me, from my mortal enemies who surround me.[c] [10]They close up their callous hearts,[d] and their mouths speak with arrogance.[e] [11]They have tracked me down, they now surround me,[f] with eyes alert, to throw me to the ground.
[12]They are like a lion[g] hungry for prey,[h] like a great lion crouching in cover.
[13]Rise up,[i] O LORD, confront them, bring them down;[j] rescue me from the wicked by your sword.
[14]O LORD, by your hand save me from such men, from men of this world[k] whose reward is in this life.[l]
You still the hunger of those you cherish;
their sons have plenty,
and they store up wealth[m] for their children.
[15]And I—in righteousness I will see your face; when I awake,[n] I will be satisfied with seeing your likeness.[o]

Psalm 18

18:Title–50pp — 2Sa 22:1–51

For the director of music. Of David the servant of the LORD. He sang to the LORD the words of this song when the LORD delivered him from the hand of all his enemies and from the hand of Saul. He said:

[1]I love you, O LORD, my strength.[p]
[2]The LORD is my rock,[q] my fortress[r] and my deliverer;[s]

17 title A prayer. See titles of Ps 86; 90; 102; 142; see also 72:20.
17:1–2 The initial appeal for justice.
17:1 ... plea. For justice. His case is truly just, not a clever misrepresentation by deceitful lips (for a similar situation see 1Sa 24:15).
17:3–5 David's claim of innocence in support of the rightness of his case. He is not guilty of the ungodly ways of his attackers—let God examine him (cf. 139:23–24).
17:3 heart. See note on 4:7.
17:4 word of your lips. God's revealed will, by which he has made known the "paths" (v. 5) that people are to walk.
17:6–9 The petition: what the Lord is to do for him—motivated by David's trust in him ("for you will answer me," v. 6) and the Lord's unfailing righteousness (see v. 7).
17:7 wonder. See note on 9:1. great love. See note on 6:4.
17:8 apple of your eye. See note on Dt 32:10. shadow. A conventional Hebrew metaphor for protection against oppression—as shade protects from the oppressive heat of the hot desert sun. Kings were spoken of as the "shade" of those dependent on them for protection (as in Nu 14:9, "protection"—lit. "shade"; La 4:20; Eze 31:6,12,17). Similarly, the Lord is the protective "shade" of his people (see 91:1; 121:5; Isa 25:4; 49:2; 51:16). wings. Metaphor for the protective outreach of God's power (see 36:7; 57:1; 61:4; 63:7; 91:4; Ru 2:12; see also Mt 23:37).
17:10–12 The accusation lodged against the vicious adversaries (see note on 5:9–10).
17:10 mouths. See note on 5:9. speak with arrogance. See note on 10:11.
17:12 lion. See note on 7:2.
17:13–14a Petition: how the Lord is to deal with the two parties in the conflict.
17:13 Rise up. See note on 3:7. bring them down. See note on 5:10.
17:14 such men. See 9:19–20; 10:18; 12:1–4,8; 14:1–3.
17:14b–15 Concluding confession of confidence (see note on 3:8).
17:15 in righteousness. The righteous Judge (see note on 4:1) will acknowledge and vindicate the innocence (righteousness) of the petitioner. see your face. See note on 11:7. when I awake. From the night of death (see note on 11:7)—in radical contrast to the destiny of the "men of this world" (v. 14; see notes on 6:5; 16:9–11). seeing your likeness. As Moses the servant of the Lord had seen it (see Nu 12:8).
Ps 18 This song of David occurs also (with minor variations) in 2Sa 22 (see notes there). In its structure, apart from the introduction (vv. 1–3) and the conclusion (vv. 46–50), the song is composed of three major divisions: (1) the Lord's deliverance of David from his mortal enemies (vv. 4–19); (2) the moral grounds for the Lord's saving help (vv. 20–29); (3) the Lord's help recounted (vv. 30–45).
18 title For the director of music. See note on Ps 4 title.

my God is my rock, in whom I take refuge.[t]
He is my shield[u] and the horn[s] of my salvation,[v] my stronghold.
3 I call to the LORD, who is worthy of praise,[w] and I am saved from my enemies.[x]

4 The cords of death[y] entangled me;
the torrents[z] of destruction overwhelmed me.
5 The cords of the grave[h] coiled around me;
the snares of death[a] confronted me.
6 In my distress[b] I called to the LORD;[c]
I cried to my God for help.
From his temple he heard my voice;[d]
my cry came[e] before him, into his ears.

7 The earth trembled[f] and quaked,[g] and the foundations of the mountains shook;[h]
they trembled because he was angry.[i] 8 Smoke rose from his nostrils;[j] consuming fire[k] came from his mouth, burning coals[l] blazed out of it.
9 He parted the heavens and came down;[m]
dark clouds[n] were under his feet.
10 He mounted the cherubim[o] and flew;
he soared[p] on the wings of the wind.[q] 11 He made darkness his covering,[r] his canopy[s] around—the dark rain clouds of the sky.
12 Out of the brightness of his presence[t] clouds advanced, with hailstones[u] and bolts of lightning.[v] 13 The LORD thundered[w] from heaven;
the voice of the Most High resounded.[i] 14 He shot his arrows[x] and scattered ⌞the enemies⌟, great bolts of lightning[y] and routed them.[z] 15 The valleys of the sea were exposed and the foundations[a] of the earth laid bare at your rebuke,[b] O LORD,
at the blast of breath from your nostrils.[c]

16 He reached down from on high and took hold of me;
he drew me out of deep waters.[d] 17 He rescued me from my powerful enemy,[e] from my foes, who were too strong for me.[f] 18 They confronted me in the day of my disaster,[g]
but the LORD was my support.[h]

[i] 13 Some Hebrew manuscripts and Septuagint (see also 2 Samuel 22:14); most Hebrew manuscripts resounded, / amid hailstones and bolts of lightning servant of the LORD. See 78:70; 89:3,20,39; 132:10; 144:10. The title designates David in his royal office as, in effect, an official in the Lord's own kingly rule over his people (see 2Sa 7:5)—as were Moses (see Ex 14:31 and note), Joshua (see Jos 24:29) and the prophets (Elijah, 2Ki 9:36; Jonah, 2Ki 14:25; Isaiah, Isa 20:3; Daniel, Da 6:20). song. See note on Ps 30 title. when the LORD delivered him. It is possible that David composed his song shortly after his victories over his foreign enemies (2Sa 8:1–14), but it may have been later in his life.

18:1–3 A prelude of praise.

18:1 Does not occur in 2Sa 22. I love you. From an unusual Hebrew expression that emphasizes the fervor of David's love.

18:2 rock . . . rock. The translation of two different Hebrew words. "Rock" is a common poetic figure for God (or the gods: Dt 32:31,37; Isa 44:8), symbolizing his unfailing (see Isa 26:4) strength as a fortress refuge (see vv. 31,46; 31:2–3; 42:9; 62:7; 71:3; 94:22; Isa 17:10) or as deliverer (see 19:14; 62:2; 78:35; 89:26; 95:1; Dt 32:15). It is a figure particularly appropriate for David's experience (see 1Sa 23:14,25; 24:2,22; 26:20), for the Lord was his true security. fortress. See note on 2Sa 22:2. shield. See note on 3:3. horn. See NIV text note; Dt 33:17; Jer 48:25.

18:4–6 God heard his cry for help.

18:4–5 David depicts his experiences in poetic figures of mortal danger.

18:4 cords. 2Sa 22:5 has "waves." torrents of destruction. See note on 30:1.

18:5 cords of the grave . . . snares of death. See 116:3. He had, as it were, been snared by death (personified) and bound as a prisoner of the grave (see Job 36:8).

18:6 temple. God's heavenly abode, where he sits enthroned (see 11:4; 113:5; Isa 6:1; 40:22).

18:7–15 The Lord came to the aid of his servant—depicted as a fearful theophany (divine manifestation) of the heavenly Warrior descending in wrathful attack upon David's enemies (see 5:4–5; 68:1–8; 77:16–19; Mic 1:3–4; Na 1:2–6; Hab 3:3–15). He sweeps down upon them like a fierce thunderstorm (see Jos 10:11; Jdg 5:20–22; 1Sa 2:10; 7:10; 2Sa 5:24; Isa 29:6).

18:8 God's fierce majesty is portrayed in terms similar to those applied to the awesome leviathan (Job 41:19–21).

18:9 parted the heavens and came down. See Isa 64:1 and note.

18:10 cherubim. Symbols of royalty (see 80:1; 99:1; see also notes on Ge 3:24; Ex 25:18). In Eze 1; 10, cherubim appear as the bearers of the throne-chariot of God.

18:13 voice. For thunder as the voice of God see Ps 29; Job 37:2–5. Most High. See note on Ge 14:19.

18:14 arrows. For shafts of lightning as the arrows of God see 77:17; 144:6; Hab 3:11.

18:15 Perhaps recalls the great deed of the heavenly Warrior when he defeated Israel's enemy at the Red Sea (see Ex 15:1–12).

18:16–19 The deliverance.

18:16 deep waters. See note on 32:6.

19 He brought me out into a spacious place;[i]
he rescued me because he delighted in me.[j] 20 The LORD has dealt with me according to my righteousness;[k]
according to the cleanness of my hands[l] he has rewarded me.[m]
21 For I have kept the ways of the LORD;[n]
I have not done evil by turning[o]
from my God.
22 All his laws are before me;[p]
I have not turned away from his decrees.
23 I have been blameless[q] before him and have kept myself from sin.
24 The LORD has rewarded me according to my righteousness,[r]
according to the cleanness of my hands in his sight.
25 To the faithful[s] you show yourself faithful,[t]
to the blameless you show yourself blameless, 26 to the pure[u] you show yourself pure, but to the crooked you show yourself shrewd.[v] 27 You save the humble[w] but bring low those whose eyes are haughty.[x]
28 You, O LORD, keep my lamp[y] burning;
my God turns my darkness into light.[z]
29 With your help[a] I can advance against a troop[j];
with my God I can scale a wall.
30 As for God, his way is perfect;[b]
the word of the LORD is flawless.[c]
He is a shield[d]
for all who take refuge[e] in him.
31 For who is God besides the LORD?[f]
And who is the Rock[g] except our God?
32 It is God who arms me with strength[h] and makes my way perfect.[i] 33 He makes my feet like the feet of a deer;[j]
he enables me to stand on the heights.[k]
34 He trains my hands for battle;[l]
my arms can bend a bow of bronze.
35 You give me your shield of victory,
and your right hand sustains[m] me;
you stoop down to make me great.
36 You broaden the path[n] beneath me,
so that my ankles do not turn.[o] 37 I pursued my enemies[p] and overtook
them;
I did not turn back till they were destroyed.
38 I crushed them[q] so that they could not rise;[r]
they fell beneath my feet.[s] 39 You armed me with strength[t] for battle;
you made my adversaries bow[u] at my feet.
40 You made my enemies turn their backs[v] in flight,
and I destroyed[w] my foes.
41 They cried for help, but there was no one to save them[x]— to the LORD, but he did not answer.[y]

[j] 29 Or can run through a barricade

18:19 spacious place. See 4:1 and note; where he is free to roam unconfined by the threats and dangers that had hemmed him in (vv. 4–6,16–18). To be afflicted or oppressed is like being bound by fetters (Job 36:8,13). To be delivered is to be set free (Job 36:16). delighted in me. God was pleased with David as "a man after his own heart" (1Sa 13:14; see also 1Sa 15:28; 1Ki 14:8; 15:5), a man with whom he had made a covenant assuring him of an enduring dynasty (2Sa 7). The thought is further elaborated in vv. 20–29.

18:20–24 David's righteousness rewarded. David's assertion of his righteousness (like that of Samuel, 1Sa 12:3; Hezekiah, 2Ki 20:3; Job, Job 13:23; 27:6; 31; see also Ps 17:3–5; 26; 44:17–18; 101) is not a pretentious boast of sinless perfection (see 51:5). Rather, it is a claim that, in contrast to his enemies, he has devoted himself heart and life to the service of the Lord, that his has been a godliness with integrity—itself the fruit of God's gracious working in his heart (see 51:10–12).

18:20,24 my righteousness. See note on 1:5. rewarded me. As a king benevolently rewards those who loyally serve him.

18:21 ways of the LORD. See 25:4 and note.

18:25–29 Because God responds to man in kind (see Job 34:1; Pr 3:34), David has experienced the Lord's favor.

18:26 crooked. Deviating from the straight path of truth and righteousness. shrewd. God responds to their perverse dealings thrust for thrust, like a wrestler countering his opponent.

18:27 The thought of this verse fits well with David's and Saul's reversals of status. It also echoes the central theme of Hannah's song, which the author of Samuel uses to highlight a major thesis of his account of the ways of God as he brings about his kingdom.

18:28 keep my lamp burning. God causes his life and undertakings to flourish (see especially Job 18:5–6; 21:17). light. See note on 27:1.

18:30–36 By God's blessing David the king has thrived.

18:30 is perfect. Does not fail—and so, because of his blessing, David's way has not failed (see v. 32). word of the LORD. While the reference is general, it applies especially to God's promise to David (see 2Sa 7:8–16). flawless. See note on 12:6. shield. See note on 3:3.

18:37–42 With God's help David has crushed all his foes.

42 I beat them as fine as dust[c] borne on the wind;
I poured them out like mud in the streets.

43 You have delivered me from the attacks of the people;
you have made me the head of nations;[a] people I did not know[b] are subject to me.
44 As soon as they hear me, they obey me;
foreigners[c] cringe before me.
45 They all lose heart;[d]
they come trembling[e] from their strongholds.[f]

46 The LORD lives![g] Praise be to my Rock![h]
Exalted be God[i] my Savior![j] 47 He is the God who avenges[k] me, who subdues nations[l] under me, 48 who saves[m] me from my enemies.[n]
You exalted me above my foes;
from violent men[o] you rescued me.
49 Therefore I will praise you among the nations,[p] O LORD;
I will sing[q] praises to your name.[r]
50 He gives his king great victories;
he shows unfailing kindness to his anointed,[s]
to David[t] and his descendants forever.[u]

Psalm 19

For the director of music.
A psalm of David.

1 The heavens[v] declare[w] the glory of God;[x]
the skies[y] proclaim the work of his hands.[z] 2 Day after day they pour forth speech; night after night they display knowledge.[a] 3 There is no speech or language where their voice is not heard.[k] 4 Their voice[l] goes out into all the earth, their words to the ends of the world.[b]

In the heavens he has pitched a tent[c] for the sun,[d] 5 which is like a bridegroom[e] coming forth from his pavilion,[f] like a champion[g] rejoicing to run his course.
6 It rises at one end of the heavens[h] and makes its circuit to the other;[i] nothing is hidden from its heat.

7 The law of the LORD[j] is perfect,[k] reviving the soul.[l]

18:43–45 God has made David the head of nations (see 2Sa 5; 8; 10)—he who had been, it seemed, on the brink of death (see vv. 4–5), sinking into the depths (see v. 16).

18:43 attacks of the people. All the threats he had endured from his own people in the days of Saul, and perhaps also in the time of Absalom's rebellion. people I did not know. Those with whom he had had no previous relations.

18:46–50 Concluding doxology.

18:46 The LORD lives! God's interventions and blessings in David's behalf have shown him to be the living God (see Dt 5:26).

18:47 avenges me. Redresses the wrongs committed against me (see Dt 32:41).

18:49 David vows to praise the Lord among the nations (see note on 9:1). name. See note on 5:11.

18:50 his king . . . his anointed. David views himself as the Lord's chosen and anointed king (see 1Sa 16:13; see also notes on 1Sa 10:25; 12:14–15). shows unfailing kindness. David's final words recall the Lord's covenant with him (see 2Sa 7:8–16). The whole song is to be understood in the context of David's official capacity and the Lord's covenant with him. What David claims in this grand conclusion—as, indeed, in the whole psalm—has been and is being fulfilled in Jesus Christ, David's great descendant.

Ps 19 A hymn extolling "the glory of God" (v. 1) as revealed to all by the starry heavens (see vv. 1–6) and "the law of the LORD" (v. 7), which has been given to Israel (see vv. 7–13). Placed next to Ps 18, it completes the cycle of praise—for the Lord's saving acts, for his glory reflected in creation and for his law.

19 title For the director of music. See note on Ps 4 title.

19:1–4a The silent heavens speak, declaring the glory of their Maker to all who are on the earth (see 148:3). The heavenly lights are not divine (see Dt 4:19; 17:3), nor do they control or disclose man's destiny (see Isa 47:13; Jer 10:2; Da 4:7). Their glory testifies to the righteousness and faithfulness of the Lord who created them (see 50:6; 89:5–8; 97:6; see also Ro 1:19–20).

19:4 Interpreting this heavenly proclamation eschatologically in the light of Christ, Paul applies this verse to the proclamation of the gospel in his own day (see Ro 10:18). He thus associates these two universal proclamations.

19:4b–6 The heavens are the divinely pitched "tent" for the lordly sun—widely worshiped in the ancient Near East (cf. Dt 4:19; 17:3; 2Ki 23:5,11; Jer 8:2; Eze 8:16), but here, as in 136:7–8; Ge 1:16, a mere creature of God. Of the created realm, the sun is the supreme metaphor of the glory of God (see 84:11; Isa 60:19–20), as it makes its daily triumphant sweep across the whole extent of the heavens and pours out its heat (felt presence) on every creature.

19:7–10 Stately, rhythmic celebration of the life-nurturing effects of the Lord's revealed law (see Ps 119).

19:7 the simple. The childlike, those whose understanding and judgment have not yet matured (see Pr 1:4). See also 119:98–100; 2Ti 3:15.

The statutes of the LORD are trustworthy,[m]
making wise the simple.[n] 8The precepts of the LORD are right,[o] giving joy[p] to the heart.
The commands of the LORD are radiant,
giving light to the eyes.[q] 9The fear of the LORD[r] is pure, enduring forever.
The ordinances of the LORD are sure and altogether righteous.[s] 10They are more precious than gold,[t]
than much pure gold;
they are sweeter than honey,[u]
than honey from the comb.[v] 11By them is your servant warned;
in keeping them there is great reward.

12Who can discern his errors?
Forgive my hidden faults.[w] 13Keep your servant also from willful sins;[x]
may they not rule over me.[y]
Then will I be blameless,[z] innocent of great transgression.

14May the words of my mouth and the meditation of my heart be pleasing[a] in your sight,
O LORD, my Rock[b] and my Redeemer.[c]

Psalm 20

For the director of music.
A psalm of David.

1May the LORD answer you when you are in distress;[d] may the name of the God of Jacob[e] protect you.[f] 2May he send you help[g] from the sanctuary[h] and grant you support[i] from Zion.[j] 3May he remember[k] all your sacrifices and accept your burnt offerings.[l]
Selah
4May he give you the desire of your heart[m]
and make all your plans succeed.[n] 5We will shout for joy[o] when you are victorious and will lift up our banners[p] in the name of our God.
May the LORD grant all your requests.[q]

6Now I know that the LORD saves his anointed;[r]
he answers him from his holy heaven with the saving power of his right hand.[s] 7Some trust in chariots[t] and some in horses,[u]
but we trust in the name of the LORD our God.[v] 8They are brought to their knees and fall,[w]
but we rise up[x] and stand firm.[y]

9O LORD, save the king!
Answer[m] us[z] when we call!

19:8 heart. See note on 4:7.
19:9 fear of the LORD. The sum of what the law requires (see note on 15:4).
19:10 sweeter than honey. By contrast, those who abandon the law turn justice into bitterness (see Am 5:7; 6:12).
19:11–13 The law marks the way that leads to life (see Dt 5:33). But man's moral consciousness remains flawed and imperfect; hence he errs without realizing it and has reason to seek pardon for hidden faults (v. 12; see Lev 5:2–4). Willful sins (v. 13), however, are open rebellion; they are the great transgression (v. 13) that leads to being cut off from God's people (see Nu 15:30–31).
19:11,13 your servant. The psalmist himself.
19:14 The psalmist presents this hymn as a praise offering to the Lord. heart. See note on 4:7. Rock ... Redeemer. See 78:35. Rock. See notes on 18:2; Ge 49:24. Redeemer. See note on Ex 6:6.
Ps 20 A liturgy of prayer for the king just before he goes out to battle against a threatening force (see 2Ch 20:1–30).
20 title For the director of music. See note on Ps 4 title.
20:1–5 The people (perhaps his assembled army) address the king, adding their prayers to his prayer for victory.
20:1 answer you. Hear your prayers, offered in the present distress, accompanied by "sacrifices" (v. 3); see v. 9. name. See vv. 5,7; see also note on 5:11. Jacob. See note on 14:7. protect you. Lit. "raise you to a high, secure place."
20:2 Zion. See note on 9:11.
20:4 heart. See note on 4:7.
20:5 We will shout ... name of our God. See note on 7:17. banners. Probably the troop standards around which the units rallied.
20:6 A participant in the liturgy (perhaps a Levite; see 2Ch 20:14) announces assurance that the king's prayer will be heard. his anointed. The king appointed by the Lord to rule in his name (see 2:2 and note).
20:7–8 The army's confession of trust in the Lord rather than in a chariot corps (cf. 33:16–17)—the enemy perhaps came reinforced by such a prized corps. See David's similar confession of confidence when he faced Goliath (1Sa 17:45–47).
20:9 The army's concluding petition. Answer ... when. See note on v. 1. The psalm ends as it began.
Ps 21 A psalm of praise for victories granted to the king. It is thus linked with Ps 20, but whether both were occasioned by the same events is unknown. Here the people's you have bestowed on him splendor and majesty.[h]

Psalm 22

For the director of music. To [the tune of] "The Doe of the Morning." A psalm of David.

1My God, my God, why have you forsaken me?[w]
Why are you so far[x] from saving me, so far from the words of my groaning?[y] 2O my God, I cry out by day, but you do not answer,[z]
by night,[a] and am not silent.
3Yet you are enthroned as the Holy One;[b]

22:3 [b] S 2Ki 19:22; Ps 71:22; S Mk 1:24

praise follows that of the king (see v. 1); there (Ps 20) the people's prayer was added to the king's. In its structure, the psalm is framed by vv. 1,13 ("O LORD, in your strength" is in both verses) and is centered around v. 7, which proclaims the king's trust in the Lord and the security afforded him by God's unfailing love (see Introduction: Literary Features).

21 title For the director of music. See note on Ps 4 title.

21:2–6 The people celebrate the Lord's many favors to the king: all "the desire of his heart" (v. 2). Verse 2 announces the theme; vv. 3–5 develop the theme; v. 6 climactically summarizes the theme.

21:2 heart. See note on 4:7.

21:3 welcomed him. Back from the battles. placed a crown . . . on his head. Exchanged the warrior's helmet for the ceremonial emblem of royalty—possibly the captured crown of the defeated king (see 2Sa 12:30).

21:4 The king's life has been spared—to live for ever and ever (see 1Ki 1:31; Da 2:4; 3:9; see also 1Sa 10:24; 1Ki 1:25,34,39).

21:5 glory . . . splendor and majesty. See 45:3; like that of his heavenly Overlord (see 96:3).

21:6 eternal blessings. Either (1) blessings of enduring value or (2) an unending flow of blessings. your presence. Your favor, which is the supreme cause of joy because it is the greatest blessing and the wellspring of all other blessings.

21:7 The center of the psalm (see note on 6:6). A participant in the liturgy (perhaps a priest or Levite) proclaims the reasons for the king's security. LORD . . . Most High. That is, LORD Most High (see 7:17; see also note on 3:7). unfailing love. See note on 6:4. Most High. See note on Ge 14:19. shaken. See note on 10:6.

21:8–12 The people hail the future victories of their triumphant king. Verse 8 announces the theme; vv. 9–11 develop the theme; v. 12 summarizes the theme.

21:9 In his wrath the LORD. Credits the king's victories to the Lord's wrath (see note on 2:5).

21:10 The king's royal enemies will be left no descendants to rise against him again.

21:13 Conclusion—and return to the beginning: Lord, assert your strength, in which "the king rejoices" (v. 1; see also v. 7), and we will ever praise your might.

Ps 22 The anguished prayer of David as a godly sufferer victimized by the vicious and prolonged attacks of enemies whom he has not provoked and from whom the Lord has not (yet) delivered him. It has many similarities with Ps 69, but contains no calls for redress (see note on 5:10) such as are found in 69:22–28. No other psalm fitted quite so aptly the circumstances of Jesus at his crucifixion. Hence on the cross he took it to his lips (see Mt 27:46 and parallels), and the Gospel writers, especially Matthew and John, frequently alluded to it (as they did to Ps 69) in their accounts of Christ's passion (Mt 27:35,39,43; Jn 19:23–24,28). They saw in the passion of Jesus the fulfillment of this cry of the righteous sufferer. The author of Hebrews placed the words of v. 22 on Jesus' lips (see Heb 2:12 and note). No psalm is quoted more frequently in the NT.

22 title See notes on Ps 4; 9 titles.

22:1 why . . . ? Why . . . ? See note on 6:3; see also Introduction: Theology.

22:1a Quoted by Jesus in Mt 27:46; Mk 15:34.

22:3–5 Recollection of what the Lord has been for Israel (see note on vv. 9–10).

22:3 enthroned. See note on 9:11. praise of Israel. The you are the praise[c] of Israel.[n] 4In you our fathers put their trust;

they trusted and you delivered them.[d] 5They cried to you[e] and were saved;
in you they trusted[f] and were not disappointed.[g]

6But I am a worm[h] and not a man, scorned by men[i] and despised[j] by the people.
7All who see me mock me;[k]
they hurl insults,[l] shaking their heads:[m] 8"He trusts in the LORD;
let the LORD rescue him.[n]
Let him deliver him,[o]
since he delights[p] in him."

9Yet you brought me out of the womb;[q]
you made me trust[r] in you even at my mother's breast.
10From birth[s] I was cast upon you;
from my mother's womb you have been my God.
11Do not be far from me,[t]
for trouble is near[u]
and there is no one to help.[v]

12Many bulls[w] surround me;[x] strong bulls of Bashan[y] encircle me.
13Roaring lions[z] tearing their prey[a] open their mouths wide[b] against me.
14I am poured out like water,
and all my bones are out of joint.[c]
My heart has turned to wax;[d]
it has melted away[e] within me.

15My strength is dried up like a potsherd,[f] and my tongue sticks to the roof of my mouth;[g]
you lay me[o] in the dust[h] of death.
16Dogs[i] have surrounded me;
a band of evil men has encircled me,
they have pierced[p][j] my hands and my feet.
17I can count all my bones;
people stare[k] and gloat over me.[l] 18They divide my garments among them and cast lots[m] for my clothing.[n]

19But you, O LORD, be not far off;[o]
O my Strength,[p] come quickly[q] to help me.[r] 20Deliver my life from the sword,[s]
my precious life[t] from the power of the dogs.[u] 21Rescue me from the mouth of the lions;[v] save[q] me from the horns of the wild oxen.[w]

22:14 bones ... heart. See note on 102:4. heart. See note on 4:7.

22:15 See Jn 19:28 and note. dust of death. See v. 29; see also Job 7:21 and note.

22:16 pierced my hands and my feet. The dogs and/or evil men wound his limbs as he seeks to ward off their attacks. But see also Isa 53:5; Zec 12:10; Jn 19:34,37.

22:17 I can count all my bones. Perhaps better, "I must display all my bones." The figure may be of one attacked by highway robbers or enemy soldiers, who strip him of his garments (see v. 18; see also note on vv. 20–21).

22:18 See introduction to this psalm; see also Jn 19:23–24.

22:20–21 The psalmist's prayer recalls in reverse order the four figures by which he portrayed his attackers in vv. 12–13,16–18: "sword," "dogs," "lions," "wild oxen." Here "sword" may evoke the scene described in vv. 16b–18, and thus many interpret it as an attack by robbers or enemy soldiers, though "sword" is often used figuratively of any violent death.

22:21 save me. The NIV text note gives the alternative translation "you have heard me," which would mean that the psalmist experiences the assurance of having been heard. The sense would be: You have heard my petition and will answer me by delivering me from death at the hands of my enemies (see note on 3:8). wild oxen. Aurochs, wild ancestors of domestic cattle; or possibly oryxes, large straight-horned antelopes.

22:22–31 Vows to praise the Lord when the Lord's sure deliverance comes (see note on 7:17). The vows proper appear in vv. 22,25. Verses 23–24 anticipate the calls to praise that will accompany the psalmist's praise (see note on 9:1). Verses 26–31 describe the expanding company of those who will take up the praise—a worldwide company of persons from every station in life and continuing through the generations. No psalm or prophecy contains a grander vision of the scope of the throng of worshipers who will join in the praise of God's saving acts.

22:22 See Heb 2:12 and note. name. See note on 5:11.

in the congregation[x] I will praise you.[y]
23 You who fear the LORD, praise him![z]
All you descendants of Jacob, honor him![a] Revere him,[b] all you descendants of Israel!
24 For he has not despised[c] or disdained the suffering of the afflicted one;[d] he has not hidden his face[e] from him but has listened to his cry for help.[f]

25 From you comes the theme of my praise in the great assembly;[g] before those who fear you[r] will I fulfill my vows.[h] 26 The poor will eat[i] and be satisfied;
they who seek the LORD will praise him—[j]
may your hearts live forever!
27 All the ends of the earth[k]
will remember and turn to the LORD, and all the families of the nations will bow down before him,[l] 28 for dominion belongs to the LORD[m] and he rules over the nations.

29 All the rich[n] of the earth will feast and worship;[o] all who go down to the dust[p] will kneel before him—
those who cannot keep themselves alive.[q] 30 Posterity[r] will serve him;
future generations[s] will be told about the Lord.
31 They will proclaim his righteousness[t] to a people yet unborn[u]— for he has done it.[v]

[r] 25 Hebrew him

22:23 fear the LORD. See v. 25; see also note on 15:4.
22:25 assembly. See note on 1:5.
22:26 will eat and be satisfied. As they share in the ceremonial festival of praise (see Lev 7:11–27).
22:27 All the ends of the earth. They too will be told of God's saving acts (see 18:49 and note on 9:1). The good news that the God of Israel hears the prayers of his people and saves them will move them to turn from their idols to the true God.
22:28 The rule of the God of Israel is universal, and the nations will come to recognize that fact through what he does in behalf of his people (see Ps 47; Ge 12:2–3; see also Dt 32:21; Ro 10:19; 11:13–14).
22:29 All the rich . . . all who go down. The most prosperous and those on the brink of death, and all those whose life situation falls in between these two extremes. dust. See v. 15; see also Job 7:21 and note.
22:31 righteousness. See note on 4:1.
Ps 23 A profession of joyful trust in the Lord as the good Shepherd-King. The psalm may have accompanied a festival of praise at "the house of the LORD" (v. 6) following a deliverance, such as is contemplated in 22:25–31 (see note on 7:17). The psalm can be divided into two balanced stanzas, each having four couplets (a couplet is one line of Hebrew poetry): (1) stanza one: vv. 1–2a,2b–3a,3b-c,4a-c (v. 4a-b is metrically a half-couplet); (2) stanza two: vv. 5a-b,5c-d,6a-b,6c-d. The triplet in the middle (v. 4d-f) is then a centering line (see note on 6:6), focusing on the Shepherd-King's reassuring presence with his people. It serves as a transition between the two stanzas, concluding the shepherd-sheep motif of the first and introducing the direct address ("you") of the second. The psalm is framed by the first and last couplets, each of which refers to "the LORD."
23:1 shepherd. A widely used metaphor for kings in the ancient Near East, and also in Israel (see 78:71–72; 2Sa 5:2; Isa 44:28; Jer 3:15; 23:1–4; Mic 5:4). For the Lord as the shepherd of Israel see 28:9; 79:13; 80:1; 95:7; 100:3; Ge 48:15; Isa 40:11; Jer 17:16; 31:10; 50:19; Eze 34:11–16. Here David the king acknowledges that the Lord is his Shepherd-King. For Jesus as the shepherd of his people see Jn 10:11,14; Heb 13:20; 1Pe 5:4; Rev 7:17. not be in want. On the contrary, he will enjoy "goodness" all his life (v. 6).
23:2 lie down. For flocks lying down in contented and secure rest see Isa 14:30; 17:2; Jer 33:12; Eze 34:14–15; Zep 2:7; 3:13. green pastures. Metaphor for all that makes life to flourish (see Eze 34:14; Jn 10:9). leads me. Like a shepherd (see Isa 40:11). quiet waters. Lit. "waters of resting places," i.e., restful waters—waters that provide refreshment and well-being (see Isa 49:10).
23:3 restores my soul. Revives me, refreshes my spirit (see 19:7; Ru 4:15; Pr 25:13; La 1:16). guides me in paths of righteousness. As a shepherd leads his sheep (see 77:20; 78:72) in paths that offer safety and well-being, so David's Shepherd-King guides him in ways that cause him to be secure and prosperous. For this meaning of "righteousness" see Pr 8:18 ("prosperity"); 21:21 ("prosperity"); Isa 48:18; see also Pr 8:20–21. It is also possible that "paths of righteousness" refers to the paths that conform to God's moral will. for his name's sake. The prosperity of the Lord's servant brings honor to the Lord's name (see 1Ki 8:41–42; Isa 48:9; Jer 14:21; Eze 20:9,14,22).
23:4 for you . . . comfort me. The very center of the psalm; see introductory note above. with me. See 16:8 and note; see also Dt 31:6,8; Mt 28:20. rod. Instrument of authority (as in 2:9; 45:6; Ex 21:20; 2Sa 7:14; Job 9:34); used also by shepherds for counting, guiding, rescuing and protecting sheep (see Lev 27:32; Eze 20:37). staff. Instrument of support (as in Ex 21:19; Jdg 6:21; 2Ki 4:29; Zec 8:4). comfort me. Reassure me (as in 71:21; 86:17; Ru 2:13; Isa 12:1; 40:1; 49:13).

through the valley of the shadow of death,[sd]
I will fear no evil,[e] for you are with me;[f]
your rod and your staff,
they comfort me.

5You prepare a table[g] before me in the presence of my enemies.
You anoint my head with oil;[h]
my cup[i] overflows.
6Surely goodness and love[j] will follow me
all the days of my life, and I will dwell in the house of the LORD
forever.

Psalm 24

Of David. A psalm.

1The earth is the LORD's,[k] and everything in it,
the world, and all who live in it;[l] 2for he founded it upon the seas and established it upon the waters.[m]

3Who may ascend the hill[n] of the LORD?
Who may stand in his holy place?[o] 4He who has clean hands[p] and a pure heart,[q] who does not lift up his soul to an idol[r] or swear by what is false.[t] 5He will receive blessing[s] from the LORD and vindication[t] from God his Savior.
6Such is the generation of those who seek him, who seek your face,[u] O God of Jacob.[u] Selah

7Lift up your heads, O you gates;[v] be lifted up, you ancient doors, that the King[w] of glory[x] may come in.[y] 8Who is this King of glory?
The LORD strong and mighty,[z]
the LORD mighty in battle.[a] 9Lift up your heads, O you gates;
lift them up, you ancient doors,
that the King of glory may come in.
10Who is he, this King of glory?

23:5 The heavenly Shepherd-King receives David at his table as his vassal king and takes him under his protection. In the ancient Near East, covenants were often concluded with a meal expressive of the bond of friendship (see 41:9; Ge 31:54; Ob 7); in the case of vassal treaties or covenants, the vassal was present as the guest of the overlord (see Ex 24:8–12). anoint my head with oil. Customary treatment of an honored guest at a banquet (see Lk 7:46; see also 2Sa 12:20; Ecc 9:8; Da 10:3). cup. Of the Lord's banquet (see note on 16:5).

23:6 goodness and love. Both frequently refer to covenant benefits (see note on 6:4); here they are personified (see 25:21; 43:3; 79:8; 89:14). follow. Lit. "pursue." dwell in the house of the LORD. See note on 15:1. forever. The Hebrew for this word suggests "throughout the years." But see also notes on 11:7; 16:9–11.

Ps 24 A processional liturgy (see Ps 47; 68; 118; 132) celebrating the Lord's entrance into Zion—composed either for the occasion when David brought the ark to Jerusalem (see 2Sa 6) or for a festival commemorating the event. It was probably placed next to Ps 23 because it prescribes who may enter the sanctuary (see 23:6). The church has long used this psalm in celebration of Christ's ascension into the heavenly Jerusalem—and into the sanctuary on high (see introduction to Ps 47).

24:1–2 The prelude (perhaps spoken by a Levite), proclaiming the Lord as the Creator, Sustainer and Possessor of the whole world, and therefore worthy of worship and reverent loyalty as "the King of glory" (vv. 7–10; see Ps 29; 33:6–11; 89:5–18; 93; 95:3–5; 104).

24:1 The earth . . . everything in it. For Paul's use of this declaration see 1Co 10:25–26.

24:2 An echo of Ge 1:1–10. founded . . . established. A metaphor taken from the founding of a city (see Jos 6:26; 1Ki 16:24; Isa 14:32) or of a temple (see 1Ki 5:17; 6:37; Ezr 3:6–12; Isa 44:28; Hag 2:18; Zec 4:9; 8:9). Like a temple, the earth was depicted as having foundations (see 18:15; 82:5; 1Sa 2:8; Pr 8:29; Isa 24:18) and pillars (see 75:3; Job 9:6). In the ancient Near East, temples were thought of as microcosms of the created world, so language applicable to a temple could readily be applied to the earth. upon. Or "above" (see 104:5–9; Ge 1:9; 49:25; Ex 20:4; Dt 33:13).

24:3–6 Instruction concerning those who may enter the sanctuary (probably spoken by a priest); see Ps 15 and introduction.

24:3 hill of the LORD. See 2:6 and note.

24:4 clean hands. Guiltless actions. pure heart. Right attitudes and motives. Jesus said that the "pure in heart . . . will see God" (Mt 5:8). heart. See note on 4:7. lift up his soul to. Worship or put his trust in (see 25:1–2). soul. See note on 6:3. by what is false. Or "falsely" (see NIV text note). Thus it includes perjury (for the same concern see Ex 20:16; Lev 19:12; Jer 5:2; 7:9; Zec 5:4; Mal 3:5).

24:5 vindication. That is, the fruits of vindication, such as righteous treatment from a faithful God; hence, here a synonym of "blessing" (see 23:3 and note).

24:6 generation. See note on 78:8. Jacob. See note on 14:7.

24:7–10 Heralding the approach of the King of glory (perhaps spoken by the king at the head of the assembled Israelites, with responses by the keepers of the gates). The Lord's arrival at his sanctuary in Zion completes his march from Egypt. "The LORD Almighty" (v. 10), "the LORD mighty in battle" (v. 8; see Ex 15:1–18), has triumphed over all his enemies and comes now in victory to his own city (see Ps 46; 48; 76; 87), his "resting place" (132:8,14; see 68:7–8; Jdg 5:4–5; Hab 3:3–7). Henceforth Jerusalem is the royal city of the kingdom of God (see note on 9:11).

24:7 Lift up your heads . . . be lifted up. In jubilant reception of the victorious King of glory (see 3:3; 27:6; 110:7). gates. Reference could be to the gates of either the city or the sanctuary. doors. A synonym for "gates," not in this case the doors of the gates (as in Jdg 16:3; 1Sa 21:13). The gates are personified for dramatic effect, as in Isa 14:31.

24:10 LORD Almighty. See note on 1Sa 1:3. Here it stands in climactic position.

The LORD Almighty[b]— he is the King of glory. Selah

Psalm 25[v]

Of David.

[1]To you, O LORD, I lift up my soul;[c]
[2] in you I trust,[d] O my God.
Do not let me be put to shame,
nor let my enemies triumph over me.
[3]No one whose hope is in you will ever be put to shame,[e]
but they will be put to shame who are treacherous[f] without excuse.

[4]Show me your ways, O LORD, teach me your paths;[g] [5]guide me in your truth[h] and teach me, for you are God my Savior,[i]
and my hope is in you[j] all day long.
[6]Remember, O LORD, your great mercy and love,[k]
for they are from of old.
[7]Remember not the sins of my youth[l] and my rebellious ways;[m] according to your love[n] remember me, for you are good,[o] O LORD.

[8]Good and upright[p] is the LORD;
therefore he instructs[q] sinners in his ways.
[9]He guides[r] the humble in what is right and teaches them[s] his way.
[10]All the ways of the LORD are loving and faithful[t] for those who keep the demands of his covenant.[u] [11]For the sake of your name,[v] O LORD, forgive[w] my iniquity,[x] though it is great.
[12]Who, then, is the man that fears the LORD?[y]
He will instruct him in the way[z] chosen for him.
[13]He will spend his days in prosperity,[a] and his descendants will inherit the land.[b] [14]The LORD confides[c] in those who fear him;
he makes his covenant known[d] to them.
[15]My eyes are ever on the LORD,[e] for only he will release my feet from the snare.[f] [16]Turn to me[g] and be gracious to me,[h] for I am lonely[i] and afflicted.

[v]This psalm is an acrostic poem, the verses of which begin with the successive letters of the Hebrew alphabet.

Ps 25 The psalmist prays for God's covenant mercies when suffering affliction for sins and when enemies seize the occasion to attack, perhaps by trying to discredit the king through false accusations (see note on 5:9). Appealing to God's covenant benevolence (his mercy, love, goodness, uprightness, faithfulness and grace; see vv. 6–8,10,16) and to his own reliance on the Lord (see vv. 1,5,15,20–21), he prays for deliverance from his enemies (see vv. 2,19), for guidance in God's will (see vv. 4–5,21; see also vv. 8–10,12), for the forgiveness of his sins (see vv. 7,11,18) and for relief from his affliction (see vv. 2,16–18,20). These are related: God's forgiveness will express itself in removing his affliction, and then his enemies will no longer have occasion to slander him. And with God guiding him in "his way" (v. 9)—i.e., in "the demands of his covenant" (v. 10)—he will no longer wander into "rebellious ways" (v. 7). This psalm is linked with Ps 24 by its reference to "lifting up the soul" in reliance on God (see v. 1; 24:4). Structurally, the psalm is an alphabetic acrostic (somewhat irregular, with an additional, concluding verse that extends the lines beyond the alphabet). It is composed of four unequal stanzas (of three, four, eight and six verses). The first and fourth stanzas are thematically related, as are the second and third (an a-b/b-a pattern).

25:1–3 Prayer for relief from distress or illness and the slander of his enemies that it occasions.

25:3 without excuse. David has given no cause for the hostility of his adversaries.

25:4–7 Prayer for guidance and pardon.

25:4 your ways ... your paths. Metaphors for "the demands of his covenant" (v. 10; see Dt 8:6; 10:12–13; 26:17; 30:16; Jos 22:5; see also vv. 8–9; 18:21; 51:13; 81:13; 95:10; 119:3,15; 128:1).

25:5 your truth. A life of faithfulness to the Lord.

25:6–7 Remember ... Remember not. Remember your long-standing ("from of old") "mercy and love," but do not remember my long-standing sins (those "of my youth"). love. See v. 10 and note on 6:4.

25:8–15 Confidence in the Lord's covenant favors. In this context of prayer for pardon, David implicitly identifies himself with sinners (v. 8) as well as with the humble (v. 9)—those who keep God's covenant (see vv. 10,14) and those who fear the Lord (see vv. 12,14). As sinner he is in need of forgiveness; as humble servant of the Lord he hopefully awaits God's pardon and guidance in covenant faithfulness.

25:9 humble. Those who acknowledge that they are without resources.

25:10 ways of the LORD. The Lord's benevolent dealings (see 103:7; 138:5) with those who are true to his ways (see note on v. 4).

25:11 For the sake of your name. See note on 23:3; see also 1Jn 2:12. name. See note on 5:11.

25:12 the way chosen for him. Or "the way he ought to choose."

25:13 inherit the land. Retain their family portion in the promised land (see 37:9,11,18,22,29,34; 69:36; Isa 60:21).

25:14 confides. Takes them into his confidence, as friends (see Ge 18:17–19; Job 29:4). fear. See note on 15:4.

25:16–21 Prayer for relief from distress or illness and the attacks of his enemies.

17The troubles[j] of my heart have multiplied;
free me from my anguish.[k] 18Look upon my affliction[l] and my distress[m] and take away all my sins.[n] 19See how my enemies[o] have increased and how fiercely they hate me![p] 20Guard my life[q] and rescue me;[r] let me not be put to shame,[s]
for I take refuge[t] in you.
21May integrity[u] and uprightness[v] protect me, because my hope is in you.[w] 22Redeem Israel,[x] O God, from all their troubles!

Psalm 26

Of David.

1Vindicate me,[y] O LORD, for I have led a blameless life;[z]
I have trusted[a] in the LORD without wavering.[b] 2Test me,[c] O LORD, and try me, examine my heart and my mind;[d] 3for your love[e] is ever before me, and I walk continually[f] in your truth.[g] 4I do not sit[h] with deceitful men, nor do I consort with hypocrites;[i] 5I abhor[j] the assembly of evildoers and refuse to sit with the wicked.
6I wash my hands in innocence,[k]
and go about your altar, O LORD, 7proclaiming aloud your praise[l] and telling of all your wonderful deeds.[m] 8I love[n] the house where you live, O LORD, the place where your glory dwells.[o] 9Do not take away my soul along with sinners, my life with bloodthirsty men,[p] 10in whose hands are wicked schemes,[q] whose right hands are full of bribes.[r] 11But I lead a blameless life;
redeem me[s] and be merciful to me.
12My feet stand on level ground;[t] in the great assembly[u] I will praise the LORD.

25:17 heart. See note on 4:7.

25:21 integrity and uprightness. Personified virtues (see 23:6 and note). Pardon is not enough; David prays that God will enable him to live a life of unmarred moral rectitude—even as God is "good and upright" (v. 8; see 51:10–12).

25:22 A concluding prayer in behalf of all God's people (see 3:8 and note). Redeem. Here, as often, a synonym for "deliver."

Ps 26 A prayer for God's discerning mercies—to spare his faithful and godly servant from the death that overtakes the wicked and ungodly. The prayer for vindication (see v. 1) suggests that the king is threatened by the "deceitful" (v. 4) and "bloodthirsty" (v. 9) men to whom he refers (as in Ps 23; 25; 27–28). This psalm is linked with Ps 27–28 (see also Ps 23–24) by the theme of the Lord's house: Here David's "love" (v. 8) for the temple (or tabernacle) testifies to the authenticity of his piety; in Ps 27 the Lord's temple is David's sanctuary from his enemies; in Ps 28 David directs his cry for help to the Lord's throne room ("your Most Holy Place," 28:2) in the temple.

26:1–8 An appeal for God to take account of David's moral integrity, his unwavering trust and his genuine delight in the Lord—not a boast of self-righteousness, such as that of the Pharisee (see Lk 18:9–14).

26:1 blameless life. See v. 11 and note; a claim of moral integrity (see vv. 2–5), not sinless perfection (see 7:8; 41:12; 101:2; and especially 1Ki 9:4). trusted. Obedience and trust are the two sides of godliness, as the Abraham story exemplifies (see Ge 12:4 and note; 22:12; see also Ps 34:8–14 and note).

26:2 heart . . . mind. See note on 7:9.

26:3 your love . . . your truth. That is, your love-and-truth (see 40:10). David keeps his eye steadfastly on the Lord's love (see note on 6:4) and truth (faithfulness; see 25:10), which are pledged to those "who keep the demands of his covenant" (25:10). walk continually. In order to receive the covenant benefits.

26:4–5 sit with. David refuses to settle in or associate himself with that company he describes as "deceitful men," "hypocrites," "evildoers," "the wicked" (see 1:1 and note; see also Ps 101).

26:4 hypocrites. Context may suggest those who deal fraudulently—or people like those described in Pr 6:12–14.

26:6 wash my hands in innocence. Reference appears to be to a ritual claiming innocence. "Clean hands and a pure heart" are requisite for those who come to God (see 24:4 and note). go about your altar. To vocally celebrate God's saving acts beside his altar was a public act of devotion in which one also invited all the assembled worshipers to praise (see 43:4).

26:7 your praise. See note on 9:1.

26:8 where your glory dwells. The presence of God's glory signaled the presence of God himself (see Ex 24:16; 33:22). His glory dwelling in the tabernacle (see Ex 40:35), and later the temple (see 1Ki 8:11), assured Israel of the Lord's holy, yet gracious, presence among them. Jn 1:14 announces that same presence in the Word who became flesh and who "made his dwelling among us."

26:9–11 An appeal that God will not bring on David the end (death) that awaits the wicked.

26:9 soul. See note on 6:3.

26:11 lead a blameless life. A return to the appeal with which David began (see v. 1). redeem. See note on 25:22.

26:12 A concluding confession of confidence (see note on 3:8) and a vow to praise (see note on 7:17). level ground. Where the going is smooth and free from the danger of falling (see 143:10; Isa 40:4; 42:16). assembly. See note on 1:5. praise. See note on 9:1.

Psalm 27

Of David.

1 The LORD is my light[v] and my salvation[w]—
whom shall I fear?
The LORD is the stronghold[x] of my life—
of whom shall I be afraid?[y]
2 When evil men advance against me to devour my flesh,[w] when my enemies and my foes attack
me,
they will stumble and fall.[z]
3 Though an army besiege me, my heart will not fear;[a]
though war break out against me, even then will I be confident.[b]

4 One thing[c] I ask of the LORD, this is what I seek:
that I may dwell in the house of the LORD
all the days of my life,[d] to gaze upon the beauty of the LORD and to seek him in his temple.
5 For in the day of trouble[e]
he will keep me safe[f] in his dwelling;
he will hide me[g] in the shelter of his tabernacle
and set me high upon a rock.[h] 6 Then my head will be exalted[i] above the enemies who surround me;[j]
at his tabernacle will I sacrifice[k] with shouts of joy;[l]
I will sing[m] and make music[n] to the LORD.

7 Hear my voice[o] when I call, O LORD;
be merciful to me and answer
me.[p]
8 My heart says of you, "Seek his[x] face![q]"
Your face, LORD, I will seek.
9 Do not hide your face[r] from me, do not turn your servant away in anger;[s]
you have been my helper.[t]
Do not reject me or forsake[u] me,
O God my Savior.[v]
10 Though my father and mother forsake
me,
the LORD will receive me.
11 Teach me your way,[w] O LORD; lead me in a straight path[x]
because of my oppressors.[y] 12 Do not turn me over to the desire of my foes,
for false witnesses[z] rise up against
me,
breathing out violence.

13 I am still confident of this:
I will see the goodness of the LORD[a] in the land of the living.[b] 14 Wait[c] for the LORD;
be strong[d] and take heart and wait for the LORD.

Ps 27 David's triumphantly confident prayer to God to deliver him from all those who conspire to bring him down. The prayer presupposes the Lord's covenant with David (see 2Sa 7). Faith's soliloquy (in two stanzas: vv. 1–3, 4–6), which publicly testifies to the king's confident reliance on the Lord, introduces the prayer of vv. 7–12. The conclusion (vv. 13–14) echoes the confidence of vv. 1–6 and adds faith's dialogue with itself—faith exhorting faith to wait patiently for that which is sure, though not yet seen (see Ps 42–43; Heb 11:1). See further the introduction to Ps 26.

27:1–3 The king's security in the Lord in the face of all that his enemies can do (see Ps 2).

27:1 light. Often symbolizes well-being (see 97:11; Job 18:5–6; 22:28; 29:3; Pr 13:9; La 3:2) or life and salvation (see 18:28; Isa 9:2; 49:6; 58:8; 59:9; Jer 13:16; Am 5:18–20). To say "The LORD is my light" is to confess confidence in him as the source of these benefits (see Isa 10:17; 60:1–2,19–20; Mic 7:8–9). my salvation. My Savior (see v. 9).

27:2 devour my flesh. See 7:2 and note.

27:3 heart. See note on 4:7.

27:4–6 The Lord's temple (or tabernacle) is the king's stronghold—because the Lord himself is his stronghold (see v. 1; see notes on 9:11; 18:2).

27:4 dwell in. See note on 15:1. beauty of the LORD. His unfailing benevolence (see 90:17: "favor of the Lord").

27:5 shelter of his tabernacle. See 31:20; 32:7; 61:4; 91:1.

27:6 will I sacrifice. See note on 7:17. I will sing. See note on 9:1.

27:7–12 Prayer for deliverance from treacherous enemies. These remain unspecified, whether from inside or outside the kingdom or both. Their chief weapon is false charges intent on discrediting the king (see note on 5:9).

27:9 hide your face. See note on 13:1. anger. See note on 2:5. you have been my helper. Or "be my helper."

27:10 the LORD will receive me. Or "may the LORD receive me."

27:11 Teach me your way. Only those who know and do the Lord's will can expect to receive favorable response to their prayers (see Ps 24–26; see also 2Sa 7:14). lead me in a straight path. See 5:8 and note.

27:13–14 Concluding note of confidence (see note on 3:8).

27:13 goodness of the LORD. The "good" things promised in the Lord's covenant with David (see 2Sa 7:28; see also 31:19 and note). land of the living. This life.

27:14 Wait for the LORD. Faith encouraging faith (see 42:5,11; 43:5; 62:5).

Ps 28 A prayer for deliverance from deadly peril at the

Psalm 29

A psalm of David.

1Ascribe to the LORD,[b] O mighty ones,[c] ascribe to the LORD glory[d] and strength.

29:1 [b] ver 2; 1Ch 16:28 [c] S 2Sa 1:19; Ps 103:20; Isa 10:13 [d] Ps 8:1

hands of malicious and God-defying enemies. As with Ps 25, the prayer ends with intercession for all the people of the Lord (see 3:8 and note). Reference in the last verse to the Lord as the shepherd of his people connects this psalm with Ps 23 and probably marks off Ps 23–28 as a collection linked by many common themes. See introductions to Ps 26; 29.

28:1–2 Initial appeal to be heard.

28:1 Rock. See note on 18:2. remain silent. Do not act in my behalf. pit. Metaphor for the grave (see note on 30:1).

28:2 lift up my hands. In worship and prayer (see 63:4; 134:2; 141:2). Most Holy Place. The inner sanctuary of the temple (see 1Ki 6:5), where the ark of the covenant stood (see 1Ki 8:6–8); it was God's throne room on earth.

28:3–5 Prayer for the Lord, enthroned in the temple, to deliver his servant and deal in judgment with those who harbor malice toward the king and God's people and defy God himself.

28:3 harbor malice. See note on 5:9. hearts. See note on 4:7.

28:4 Repay them. See note on 5:10; see also Mt 16:27; 2Ti 4:14; Rev 20:12–13; 22:12.

28:5 works of the LORD. His redemption of Israel, the establishment of Israel as his kingdom (by covenant, Ex 19–24), and the appointment of the house of David (also by covenant, 2Sa 7) as his earthly regent over his people. what his hands have done. By "what their hands have done" (v. 4), "the wicked" (v. 3) show that they do not acknowledge Israel and David's regency as the work of God's hands. he will tear. Or "may he tear."

28:6–7 Joyful praise, in confidence of being heard (see note on 3:8).

28:7 shield. See note on 3:3. heart. See note on 4:7. I will give thanks. See note on 7:17.

28:8–9 The Lord and his people (see note on 3:8).

28:8 people ... anointed one. These constitute a unity (see note on 2:2).

28:9 Save ... bless. God's two primary acts by which he effects his people's well-being: He saves from time to time as circumstances require; he blesses day by day to make their lives and labors fruitful. your inheritance. See Dt 9:29. shepherd. See introduction; see also 80:1; Isa 40:11; Jer 31:10; Eze 34; Mic 5:4. The answer to this prayer—the last, full answer—has come in the ministry of the "good shepherd" (Jn 10:11,14).

Ps 29 A hymn in praise of the King of creation, whose majesty and power are trumpeted by the thunderbolts of the rainstorm—as the storm rose above the Mediterranean ("the mighty waters," v. 3), swept across the Lebanon range (see vv. 5–6) and rolled over the wilds of Kadesh (northern Kadesh, on the upper reaches of the Orontes River, v. 8). The glory of the Lord is not only visible in the creation (19:1–6; 104 and often elsewhere); it is also audible in creation's most awesome voice. This hymn to Yahweh ("the LORD") served also as a testimony and protest against the worship of the Canaanite god Baal, who was thought to be the divine power present in the thunderstorm. Its climactic word (that "in his temple all cry, 'Glory!' ") suggests that in its present location it was intended to serve as a conclusion to the small collection, Ps 23–28 (see introductions to Ps 26; 28). In its structure, a two-verse introduction and a two-verse conclusion enclose a seven-verse stanza. In both the introduction and the conclusion the name Yahweh ("the LORD") is sounded four times; in the body of the psalm it is heard ten times. "The voice of the LORD" is repeated seven times—the seven thunders of God. (The numbers four, seven and ten often signified completeness in OT number symbolism.)

29:1–2 A summons to all beings in the divine realm (see note on v. 1) to worship the Lord—adapted from a conventional call to praise in the liturgy of the temple (see 96:7–9; 1Ch 16:28–29).

29:1 mighty ones. Lit. "sons of god(s)." Perhaps reference is to the angelic host (see 103:20; 148:2; Job 1:6 and NIV text note; 2:1 and NIV text note; Isa 6:2), or possibly to all those foolishly thought to be gods—as in Ps 97 (see v. 7), which has several thematic links with this psalm. The Lord alone must be acknowledged as the divine King.

[8]The voice of the LORD shakes the desert;
the LORD shakes the Desert of Kadesh.[p] [9]The voice of the LORD twists the oaks[a][q]
and strips the forests bare.
And in his temple all cry, "Glory!"[r] [10]The LORD sits[b] enthroned over the flood;[s]
the LORD is enthroned as King forever.[t] [11]The LORD gives strength to his people;[u]
the LORD blesses his people with peace.[v]

Psalm 30

A psalm. A song. For the dedication of the temple.[c] Of David.

[1]I will exalt[w] you, O LORD, for you lifted me out of the depths[x]
and did not let my enemies gloat over me.[y] [2]O LORD my God, I called to you for help[z] and you healed me.[a] [3]O LORD, you brought me up from the grave[d];[b]
you spared me from going down into the pit.[c]

[a] S Nu 12:13 30:3 [b] S Ps 16:10; S 56:13 [c] Ps 28:1; 55:23; 69:15; 86:13; 143:7; Pr 1:12; Isa 38:17; Jnh 2:6

y 2 Or LORD with the splendor of z 6 That is, Mount Hermon a 9 Or LORD makes the deer give birth b 10 Or sat c Title: Or palace d 3 Hebrew Sheol

29:2 name. See note on 5:11. in the splendor of his holiness. A rather literal translation of a difficult Hebrew phrase (see NIV text note). It is uncertain whether it describes God himself or the sanctuary or the (priestly) garb the worshipers are to wear when they approach God. The use of an almost identical Hebrew phrase in 110:3 (translated "in holy majesty") may give support for the last alternative; thus "in holy garments of splendor."

29:3–9 Praise of the Lord, whose voice the crashing thunder is (see 68:4,33). The sound and fury of creation's awesome displays of power proclaim the glory of Israel's God.

29:5 cedars of Lebanon. The mightiest of trees (see Isa 2:13 and note).

29:6 skip. See 114:4 and note.

29:9 temple. A primary thematic link with Ps 23–28. Reference may be to the temple in Jerusalem or to God's heavenly temple, where he sits enthroned (see 2:4; 11:4; 113:5; Isa 6:1; 40:22) as the Lord of all creation. But perhaps it is the creation itself that here is named God's temple (see note on 24:2). Then the "all" (those who cry "Glory!") is absolutely all—all creation shouts his praise (cf. 150:6). Glory! See note on 26:8.

29:10–11 The Lord's absolute and everlasting rule is committed to his people's complete salvation and unmixed blessedness—the crowning comfort in a world where threatening tides seem to make everything uncertain.

29:10 enthroned over the flood. As the One who by his word brought the ordered creation out of the formless "deep" (Ge 1:2,6–10); or the reference may be to the Noahic flood (see Ge 6:17).

Ps 30 A song of praise publicly celebrating the Lord's deliverance from the threat of death, probably brought on by illness ("you healed me," v. 2; see note on 7:17). The psalm is framed by commitments to praise (see vv. 1,12).

30 title A song. See titles of Ps 18; 45–46; 48; 65–68; 75–76; 83; 87–88; 92; 108—all psalms of praise except 83; 88. In addition there are the songs "of ascents" (Ps 120–134). For the dedication of the temple. Of David. If "Of David" indicates authorship, the most probable occasion for the psalm is recorded in 1Ch 21:1–22:6. In 1Ch 22:1–6 David dedicated both property and building materials for the temple, and he may well have intended that Ps 30 be used at the dedication of the temple itself. If this is the case, vv. 2–3 would refer to David's predicament in 1Ch 21:17–30. The "favor" of v. 5 would be an echo of the "mercy" of 1Ch 21:13, and v. 6 would refer to his sin of misplaced trust in a large, superior army (see 1Ch 21:1–8). Later, the psalm came to be applied to the exile experience of Israel. In Jewish liturgical practice dating from Talmudic times it is chanted at Hanukkah, the feast that celebrates the rededication of the temple by Judas Maccabeus (165 B.C.) after its desecration by Antiochus Epiphanes (168). In such communal use, the "I" of the psalm becomes the corporate "person" of Israel—a common mode of speaking in the OT.

30:1–3 Introductory announcement of the occasion for praise.

30:1 out of the depths. The vivid imagery that associates distress with "the depths"—so expressive of universal human experience—is common in OT poetry (see 69:2,15; 71:20; 88:6; 130:1; La 3:55; Jnh 2:2). The depths are often linked, as here, with Sheol ("the grave," v. 3) and "the pit" (v. 3), together with a cluster of related associations: silence (see 31:17; 94:17; 115:17; 1Sa 2:9), darkness (see 88:6,12; 143:3; Job 10:21–22; 17:13; Ecc 6:4; La 3:6), destruction (see v. 9; 18:4; 55:23, "corruption"; 88:11; Isa 38:17; Hos 13:14), dust (see v. 9; 7:5; 22:15,29; Job 17:16; 40:13; Isa 26:19; 29:4), mire (see 40:2; 69:2,14), slime (see 40:2) and mud (see 40:2; Job 30:19). See also note on 49:14. my enemies gloat over me. See introduction to Ps 6.

30:3 grave. Figurative of a "brink-of-death" experience, as in 18:5; Jnh 2:2. pit. See note on 28:1.

4Sing[d] to the LORD, you saints[e] of his;
praise his holy name.[f] 5For his anger[g] lasts only a moment,[h] but his favor lasts a lifetime;[i] weeping[j] may remain for a night, but rejoicing comes in the morning.[k]

6When I felt secure, I said,
"I will never be shaken."[l] 7O LORD, when you favored me, you made my mountain[e] stand firm;
but when you hid your face,[m]
I was dismayed.

8To you, O LORD, I called;
to the Lord I cried for mercy:
9"What gain is there in my destruction,[f] in my going down into the pit?[n]
Will the dust praise you?
Will it proclaim your faithfulness?[o]
10Hear,[p] O LORD, and be merciful to me;[q]
O LORD, be my help.[r]"

11You turned my wailing[s] into dancing;[t]
you removed my sackcloth[u] and clothed me with joy,[v] 12that my heart may sing to you and not be silent.
O LORD my God, I will give you thanks[w] forever.[x]

Psalm 31

31:1–4pp — Ps 71:1–3

For the director of music.
A psalm of David.

1In you, O LORD, I have taken refuge;[y]
let me never be put to shame;
deliver me in your righteousness.[z] 2Turn your ear to me,[a] come quickly to my rescue;[b]
be my rock of refuge,[c] a strong fortress to save me.
3Since you are my rock and my fortress,[d]
for the sake of your name[e] lead and guide me.
4Free me from the trap[f] that is set for me,
for you are my refuge.[g] 5Into your hands I commit my spirit;[h] redeem me, O LORD, the God of truth.[i]

6I hate those who cling to worthless idols;[j]
I trust in the LORD.[k] 7I will be glad and rejoice in your love, for you saw my affliction[l]

[i] Isa 45:19; 65:16 31:6 [j] S Dt 32:21 [k] S Ps 4:5 31:7 [l] S Ps 13:3

[e] 7 Or hill country [f] 9 Or there if I am silenced

30:4–5 Call to the gathered worshipers to take up the praise of God (see note on 9:1).
30:4 saints. See note on 4:3. name. Lit. "memorial" (see Isa 26:8; Hos 12:5).
30:5 anger. See note on 2:5. lasts only a moment. See Isa 54:7. remain for a night. Lit. "come in at evening to lodge." The figure is that of a guest lodging for only one night.
30:6–10 Expanded recollection of the Lord's gracious deliverance.
30:6–7 In his security he had grown arrogant, forgetful of who had made his "mountain stand firm," but the Lord reminded him.
30:6 never be shaken. He spoke as do the wicked (see 10:6), hence lost the blessing of the righteous (see 15:5). shaken. See note on 10:6.
30:7 made my mountain stand firm. Reference may be to David's security in his mountain fortress, Zion; or that mountain fortress may here serve as a metaphor for David's state as a vigorous and victorious king, the "mountain" on which he sat with such secure confidence in God. hid your face. See note on 13:1.
30:8–10 Shattered strength swept away all self-reliance; at the brink of death his cries for God's mercy rose.
30:9 See note on 6:5. your faithfulness. To your covenant.
30:11–12 God answered—and David vows to prolong his praise forever (see note on 7:17). Dancing and joy replace wailing and sackcloth so that songs of praise, not silence, may attend the acts of God.
30:11 sackcloth. A symbol of mourning (see 35:13; Ge 37:34).
30:12 heart. Lit. "glory" (see note on 7:5).
Ps 31 A prayer for deliverance when confronted by a conspiracy so powerful and open that all David's friends abandoned him. According to Lk 23:46, Jesus on the cross applied Ps 31:5 to his own circumstances; thus those who share in his sufferings at the hands of anti-Christian forces are encouraged to hear and use this psalm in a new light (see Ac 7:59; 1Pe 4:19). No psalm expresses a more sturdy trust in the Lord when powerful human forces threaten. The heart of the prayer itself is found in vv. 9–18, which is both preceded and followed by eight Hebrew poetic lines—stanzas that resound with the theme of trust (see v. 14). Verse 13, at the center of the psalm, expresses most clearly the prayer's occasion.
31 title For the director of music. See note on Ps 4 title.
31:1–5 Initial appeal to the Lord, the faithful refuge.
31:1 righteousness. See note on 4:1.
31:2 rock. See note on 18:2.
31:3 for the sake of your name. God's honor is at stake in the safety of his servant now under attack (see note on 23:3). name. See note on 5:11. lead and guide. As a shepherd (see 23:2–3 and notes).
31:4 trap that is set for me. By his enemies (see v. 11).
31:5 Into your hands I commit my spirit. The climactic expression of trust in the Lord—quoted by Jesus in Lk 23:46. commit. Lit. "deposit" (as in Jer 36:20, "put"), here in the very hands of God, thus entrusting to God's care (see Lev 6:4; 1Ki 14:27). my spirit. His very life. redeem. See note on 25:22. God of truth. The faithful, trustworthy God (see note on 30:9).
31:6–8 Confession of loyal trust in the Lord, whose past mercies to David when enemies threatened are joyfully recalled.
31:6 hate. Refuse to be associated with.
31:7 love. See vv. 16,21; see also note on 6:4. soul. See note on 6:3.

and knew the anguish[m] of my soul.
8 You have not handed me over[n] to the enemy
but have set my feet in a spacious place.[o]

9 Be merciful to me, O LORD, for I am in distress;[p] my eyes grow weak with sorrow,[q]
my soul and my body[r] with grief.
10 My life is consumed by anguish[s] and my years by groaning;[t]
my strength fails[u] because of my affliction,[g v]
and my bones grow weak.[w]
11 Because of all my enemies,[x]
I am the utter contempt[y] of my neighbors;[z]
I am a dread to my friends—
those who see me on the street flee from me.
12 I am forgotten by them as though I were dead;[a]
I have become like broken pottery.
13 For I hear the slander[b] of many;
there is terror on every side;[c]
they conspire against me[d]
and plot to take my life.[e]

14 But I trust[f] in you, O LORD;
I say, "You are my God."
15 My times[g] are in your hands;
deliver me from my enemies
and from those who pursue me.
16 Let your face shine[h] on your servant;
save me in your unfailing love.[i] 17 Let me not be put to shame,[j] O LORD, for I have cried out to you;
but let the wicked be put to shame and lie silent[k] in the grave.[h] 18 Let their lying lips[l] be silenced, for with pride and contempt
they speak arrogantly[m] against the righteous.

19 How great is your goodness,[n] which you have stored up for those who fear you, which you bestow in the sight of men[o]
on those who take refuge[p] in you.
20 In the shelter[q] of your presence you hide[r] them from the intrigues of men;[s] in your dwelling you keep them safe from accusing tongues.

21 Praise be to the LORD,[t] for he showed his wonderful love[u] to me when I was in a besieged city.[v] 22 In my alarm[w] I said,
"I am cut off[x] from your sight!"
Yet you heard my cry[y] for mercy
when I called to you for help.

23 Love the LORD, all his saints![z]
The LORD preserves the faithful,[a] but the proud he pays back[b] in full.
24 Be strong and take heart,[c] all you who hope in the LORD.

31:9–13 The distress described: He is utterly drained physically and emotionally (see vv. 9–10; see also 22:14–15); all his friends have abandoned him like a piece of broken pottery (see vv. 11–12); and all this because the conspiracy against him is so strong (v. 13).

31:9 eyes grow weak. See note on 13:3. soul. See note on 6:3.

31:10 bones. See note on 6:2.

31:11–12 Abandonment by friends was a common experience at a time when God seemed to have withdrawn his favor (see 38:11; 41:9; 69:8; 88:8,18; Job 19:13–19; Jer 12:6; 15:17).

31:13 slander. See note on 5:9. terror on every side. See notes on Jer 6:25; 20:3.

31:14–18 His trust in the Lord is unwavering; his defense against his powerful enemies is his reliance on God's faithfulness and discerning judgment.

31:14 Cf. v. 22.

31:15 My times are in your hands. All the events and circumstances of life are in the hands of the Lord, "my God" (v. 14).

31:16 face shine. See note on 13:1.

31:17–18 but let the wicked . . . be silenced. See note on 5:10.

31:18 lying lips. See note on 5:9. righteous. See note on 1:5.

31:19–20 Confident anticipation of God's saving help (see note on 3:8).

31:19 stored up. David deposits his life in the hands of God to share in the covenant benefits that God has stored up for his faithful servants ("goodness"; see Ex 18:9; Nu 10:29,32; Dt 26:11; Jos 21:45; 23:14–15; 2Ch 6:41; Ne 9:25,35; Isa 63:7; Jer 33:9; see also Jer 31:12,14, "bounty"). fear. See note on 15:4. bestow in the sight of men. Thus showing the Lord's approval of and his standing with his faithful servants in contrast to the accusations of their adversaries (see 86:17).

31:20 shelter of your presence. See note on 27:5. accusing tongues. See "slander" (v. 13) and "lying lips" (v. 18).

31:21–22 Praise anticipating deliverance (see note on 12:5–6).

31:21 besieged city. Metaphor for the threat he had experienced.

31:22 cut off from your sight. See note on 13:1.

31:23–24 Praise advances to encouragement of the saints (see 62:8).

31:23 saints. See note on 4:3. the faithful. Those who maintain moral integrity. the proud. Those who refuse to live in humble reliance on the Lord. They arrogantly try to make their way in the world either as a law to themselves (see, e.g., v. 18; 10:2–11; 73:6; 94:2–7; Dt 8:14; Isa 2:17; Eze 28:2,5; Hos 13:6) or by relying on false gods (see Jer 13:9–10). Hence "the proud" is often equivalent to "the wicked."

Psalm 32

Of David. A maskil.[1]

[1]Blessed is he whose transgressions are forgiven, whose sins are covered.[d] [2]Blessed is the man whose sin the LORD does not count against him[e]
and in whose spirit is no deceit.[f]

[3]When I kept silent,[g]
my bones wasted away[h]
through my groaning[i] all day long.
[4]For day and night your hand was heavy[j] upon me;
my strength was sapped[k]
as in the heat of summer. Selah
[5]Then I acknowledged my sin to you and did not cover up my iniquity.[l] I said, "I will confess[m] my transgressions[n] to the LORD"— and you forgave
the guilt of my sin.[o] Selah

[6]Therefore let everyone who is godly pray to you
while you may be found;[p] surely when the mighty waters[q] rise,[r]
they will not reach him.[s] [7]You are my hiding place;[t]
you will protect me from trouble[u] and surround me with songs of deliverance.[v] Selah

[8]I will instruct[w] you and teach you[x]
in the way you should go;
I will counsel you and watch over[y]
you.
[9]Do not be like the horse or the mule, which have no understanding but must be controlled by bit and bridle[z]
or they will not come to you.

Ps 32 A grateful testimony of joy for God's gift of forgiveness toward those who with integrity confess their sins and are receptive to God's rule in their lives. The psalm appears to be a liturgical dialogue between David and God in the presence of the worshipers at the sanctuary. In vv. 1–2 and again in v. 11 David speaks to the assembly; in vv. 3–7 he speaks to God (in their hearing); in vv. 8–10 he is addressed by one of the Lord's priests (but see note on vv. 8–10). In traditional Christian usage the psalm has been numbered among the penitential psalms (see introduction to Ps 6).

32 title maskil. Occurs also in the titles of Ps 42; 44–45; 52–55; 74; 78; 88–89; 142. The Hebrew word perhaps indicates that these psalms contain instruction in godliness (see 14:2; 53:2, "any who understand"; 41:1, "he who has regard"; but see also 47:7 and NIV text note).

32:1–2 Exuberant proclamation of the happy state of those who experience God's forgiveness. Blessed ... Blessed. See note on 1:1. Repetition underscores. are forgiven ... are covered ... does not count against him. Repetition with variation emphasizes and illumines. For Paul's use of these verses see Ro 4:6–8.

32:2 in whose spirit is no deceit. Only those honest with God receive pardon.

32:3–5 Testimony to a personal experience of God's pardon. God's heavy hand, brought down "day and night" on the stubborn silence of unacknowledged sin, filled life with groaning, but full confession brought blessed relief. Neither the sin nor the form of suffering is identified, other than that the latter was physically and psychologically devastating. But it would be uncharacteristic of the Psalms to speak of mere emotional disturbance brought on by suppressed guilt. Some affliction, perhaps illness, was the instrument of God's chastisement (see Ps 38).

32:4 strength was sapped. Under God's heavy hand he wilted like a plant in the heat of summer.

32:5 Again repetition is used (see note on vv. 1–2). sin ... iniquity ... transgressions. See 51:1–2; the three most common OT words for evil thoughts and actions (see Isa 59:12 and note). confess. See Ps 51; 2Sa 12:13.

32:6–7 A chastened confession that life is secure only with God.

32:6 Though addressed to God as confession, it is also intended for the ears of the fellow worshipers. He admonishes them to "seek the LORD while he may be found ... while he is near" (Isa 55:6) and not to foolishly provoke his withdrawal—and the coming near of his heavy hand—as David had done. A God who forgives is a God to whom one can entrust and devote his life (see 130:4). godly. See note on 4:3. mighty waters. Powerful imagery for threatening forces or circumstances. This and related imagery was borrowed from ancient Near Eastern creation myths. In many of these a primal mass of chaotic waters (their threatening and destructive forces were often depicted as a many-headed monster of the deep; see 74:13–14 and note) had to be subdued by the creator-god before he could fashion the world and/or rule as the divine king over the earth. Though in these myths the chaotic waters were subdued when the present world was created, they remained a constant threat to the security and well-being of the present order in the earth (the world in which man lives). Hence by association they were linked with anything that in human experience endangered or troubled that order. They were also associated with the sea, whose angry waves seemed determined at times to engulf the land. Since in Canaanite mythology Sea and Death were the two great enemies of Baal ("lord" of earth), imagery drawn from both realms was used by OT poets, sometimes side by side, to depict threats and distress (see 18:4–5,16; 42:7; 65:7; 74:12–14; 77:16,19; 89:9–10; 93:3–4; 124:4–5; 144:7–8; Job 7:12; 26:12; 38:8–11; Isa 5:30; 8:7–8; 17:12–14; 51:9–10; Jer 5:22; 47:2; 51:55; Hab 3:8–10; see also note on SS 8:7). For imagery associated with the realm of death see notes on 30:1; 49:14.

32:7 surround me with songs of deliverance. Because of your help, I will be surrounded by people celebrating your acts of deliverance, as I bring my thank offerings to you (see notes on 7:17; 9:1; see also 35:27; 51:8).

32:8–10 A priestly word of godly instruction, either to David (do not be foolish toward God again) or to those who have just been exhorted to trust in the Lord (to trust add obedience). Some believe that the psalmist himself here turns to others to warn them against the ways into which he had fallen (see 51:13).

32:9 God's servant must be wiser than beasts, more open to God's will than horses and mules are to the will of their masters (see Isa 1:3).

10 Many are the woes of the wicked,[a] but the LORD's unfailing love surrounds the man who trusts[b] in
him.

11 Rejoice in the LORD[c] and be glad, you
righteous;
sing, all you who are upright in heart!

Psalm 33

1 Sing joyfully[d] to the LORD, you
righteous;
it is fitting[e] for the upright[f] to praise him.
2 Praise the LORD with the harp;[g] make music to him on the ten-stringed lyre.[h] 3 Sing to him a new song;[i] play skillfully, and shout for joy.[j]

4 For the word of the LORD is right[k] and true;[l]
he is faithful[m] in all he does.
5 The LORD loves righteousness and justice;[n]
the earth is full of his unfailing love.[o]

6 By the word[p] of the LORD were the heavens made,[q]
their starry host[r] by the breath of his mouth.
7 He gathers the waters[s] of the sea into jars[j];[t] he puts the deep into storehouses.
8 Let all the earth fear the LORD;[u] let all the people of the world[v] revere him.[w]
9 For he spoke, and it came to be;
he commanded,[x] and it stood firm.
10 The LORD foils[y] the plans[z] of the nations;[a]
he thwarts the purposes of the peoples.
11 But the plans of the LORD stand firm[b]
forever,
the purposes[c] of his heart through all generations.

12 Blessed is the nation whose God is the LORD,[d]
the people he chose[e] for his inheritance.[f] 13 From heaven the LORD looks down[g]
and sees all mankind;[h] 14 from his dwelling place[i] he watches
all who live on earth—15 he who forms[j] the hearts of all, who considers everything they do.[k]
16 No king is saved by the size of his army;[l]
no warrior escapes by his great strength.
17 A horse[m] is a vain hope for deliverance;
despite all its great strength it cannot save.

j 7 Or sea as into a heap

32:10 unfailing love. See note on 6:4.

32:11 A final word to the assembled worshipers—let the praise of God resound (see note on 9:1). See also note on 1:5. heart. See note on 4:7.

Ps 33 A liturgy in praise of the Lord, the sovereign God of Israel. In the Psalms, calls to praise (as in vv. 1–3) and motivations for praise (as in vv. 4–19) belong to the language of praise (see note on 9:1). Most likely the voices of the Levitical choir (see 1Ch 16:7–36; 25:1) are heard in this psalm. Perhaps the choir leader spoke vv. 1–3, the choir vv. 4–19, and the people responded with the words of vv. 20–22. The original occasion is unknown, but reference to a "new song" (see note on v. 3) suggests a national deliverance, such as Judah experienced in the time of Jehoshaphat (see 2Ch 20) or Hezekiah (see 2Ki 19); see vv. 10–11,16–17. Along with Ps 1–2; 10 (but see introduction to Ps 9), this is one of the only four psalms in Book I without a superscription. Although structurally not an alphabetic acrostic like the psalm that follows it, the length of the psalm (22 verses) has been determined by the length of the Hebrew alphabet (22 letters); see Ps 38; 103; La 5. The body of the psalm is framed by a three-verse introduction (call to praise) and a three-verse conclusion (response to praise). In vv. 4–19 are heard the praise of the Lord, developed in two parts of eight verses each (vv. 4–11, 12–19).

33:1–3 The call to praise. Cf. Eph 5:19.

33:1 righteous. The assembly of worshipers (see note on 1:5).

33:3 new song. Celebrating God's saving act, as in 40:3; 96:1; 98:1; 144:9; 149:1; see Isa 42:10; Rev 5:9; 14:3; see also note on 7:17.

33:4–19 The praise, in two eight-verse parts.

33:4–11 Because the Lord is the Creator, who by his power imposed his order on the creation (see Ge 1), no power or combination of powers can thwart his plan and purpose to save his people. (Hence his chosen people are the blessed nation; see vv. 12–19.)

33:4 word. God's royal word by which he governs all things (see 107:20; 147:15,18). right and true. Not chaotic, devious or erratic. Under the Lord's rule in the creation there is goodness, order and dependability.

33:5 loves. Delights in doing. righteousness and justice. See note on 4:1. his unfailing love. Here, his goodness to all his creatures (see 36:5–9; 104:27–28; see also note on 6:4).

33:6 word. God's creating word (see v. 9; 104:7; 119:89; Ge 1; Job 38:8–11; Heb 11:3).

33:7 into jars . . . storehouses. Like a householder storing up his olive oil and grain (see 104:9; Ge 1:9–10; Job 38:8–11; Pr 8:29; Jer 5:22).

33:8 all the earth . . . all the people. Not only Israel, but all mankind, for all experience the goodness of his sovereign rule (see note on 9:1)—but he foils all their contrary designs (vv. 10–11). fear the LORD. See v. 18; see also note on 15:4.

33:11 heart. See note on 4:7.

33:12–19 Israel is safe and secure under God's protective rule.

33:12 Blessed. See note on 1:1. people he chose for his inheritance. Israel (see Dt 9:29).

33:16 king. Nation (see v. 12) and king constitute an organic social unit (see 28:8 and note).

18 But the eyes[n] of the LORD are on those who fear him,
on those whose hope is in his unfailing love,[o]
19 to deliver them from death[p] and keep them alive in famine.[q]

20 We wait[r] in hope for the LORD;
he is our help and our shield.
21 In him our hearts rejoice,[s]
for we trust in his holy name.[t] 22 May your unfailing love[u] rest upon us, O LORD,
even as we put our hope in you.

Psalm 34[k]

Of David. When he pretended to be insane[v] before Abimelech, who drove him away, and he left.

1 I will extol the LORD at all times;[w] his praise will always be on my lips.
2 My soul will boast[x] in the LORD;
let the afflicted hear and rejoice.[y]
3 Glorify the LORD[z] with me;
let us exalt[a] his name together.

4 I sought the LORD,[b] and he answered
me;
he delivered[c] me from all my fears.
5 Those who look to him are radiant;[d] their faces are never covered with shame.[e]
6 This poor man called, and the LORD heard him;
he saved him out of all his troubles.[f]
7 The angel of the LORD[g] encamps around those who fear him,
and he delivers[h] them.

8 Taste and see that the LORD is good;[i] blessed is the man who takes refuge[j] in him.
9 Fear the LORD,[k] you his saints, for those who fear him lack nothing.[l]
10 The lions may grow weak and hungry,
but those who seek the LORD lack no good thing.[m]

LORD.[p]

[k] This psalm is an acrostic poem, the verses of which begin with the successive letters of the Hebrew alphabet.

33:18–19 The concluding couplet of the second eight-verse stanza of praise contrasts with the concluding couplet of the first (vv. 10–11); both are climactic and together they voice the heart of the praise.

33:18,22 unfailing love. Here, his covenant favor toward Israel (see note on 6:4).

33:20–22 The people's response: faith's commitment expressed in confession (vv. 20–21) and petition (v. 22).

33:20 shield. See note on 3:3.

33:21 hearts. See note on 4:7. name. See note on 5:11.

Ps 34 Praise of the Lord for deliverance in answer to prayer, and instruction in godliness. In the Psalms, praise commonly leads to a call to praise, as in v. 3 (see note on 9:1). Here, uniquely (but see also Ps 92), praise (vv. 1–7) leads into godly instruction (vv. 8–22) in the manner of the wisdom teachers (see essay on "Wisdom Literature," p. 721). Structurally, the psalm is a somewhat irregular alphabetic acrostic (it lacks a verse for one Hebrew letter and adds a verse at the end). Its eight stanzas develop four major themes, with two stanzas devoted to each (see following notes).

34 title The superscription assigns this psalm to the occasion in David's life (see note on Ps 3 title) narrated in 1Sa 21:10–15—but note "Abimelech" rather than "Achish" (perhaps Abimelech was a traditional dynastic name or title for Philistine kings; see Ge 20; 21:22–34; 26). Not all agree with this tradition, however; they feel that it is more likely that early Hebrew editors of the Psalms linked 1Sa 21 with Ps 34 on the basis of word association (the Hebrew for "pretended to be insane," 1Sa 21:13, comes from the same root as the Hebrew used here for "taste," v. 8).

34:1–7 Praise for the Lord's deliverance in answer to prayer.

34:1–3 Commitment to continual praise—to the encouragement of the godly who are afflicted (v. 2; see the instruction in vv. 8–22).

34:2 soul. See note on 6:3.

34:3 name. See note on 5:11.

34:4–7 The occasion: God's saving answer to prayer.

34:5 radiant. With joy (see Isa 60:5).

34:6 poor. Here, as often in the Psalms, "poor" characterizes not necessarily one who has no possessions, but one who is (and recognizes that he is) without resources to effect his own deliverance (or secure his own life, safety or well-being)—and so is dependent on God.

34:7 angel of the LORD. God's heavenly representative, his "messenger," sent to effect his will on earth (see 35:5–6; see also note on Ge 16:7). encamps around. The line speaks of the security with which the Lord surrounds his people, individually and collectively; it does not teach a doctrine of individual "guardian angels." those who fear him. Those described in vv. 8–14.

34:8–14 Instruction in "the fear of the LORD." The two stanzas really belong together, with the title line (v. 11) at the center—Hebrew authors often centered key lines (see note on 6:6). Note the pattern of the imperatives: "Taste" (v. 8), "Fear" (v. 9), "Come" (v. 11), "keep" (v. 13), "Turn" (v. 14). A symmetrical development of the theme "good" dominates the stanza: Because the Lord is good (v. 8), those who trust in him will lack nothing good (v. 10); but in order to experience good days (v. 12), they must shun evil and do good (v. 14). To trust and obey—that is "the fear of the LORD." On the instruction of this stanza see Ps 37. For Peter's use of vv. 12–16 see 1Pe 3:8–12.

34:8 blessed. See note on 1:1.

34:9 Fear the LORD. See v. 11; see also note on 15:4. saints. See note on 4:3.

34:11 Come, my children. Conventional language of the wisdom teachers (see Introduction to Proverbs: Purpose and Teaching).

13keep your tongue[r] from evil and your lips from speaking lies.[s] 14Turn from evil and do good;[t] seek peace[u] and pursue it.

15The eyes of the LORD[v] are on the righteous[w]
and his ears are attentive[x] to their cry; 16the face of the LORD is against[y] those who do evil,[z] to cut off the memory[a] of them from the earth.

17The righteous cry out, and the LORD hears[b] them;
he delivers them from all their troubles.
18The LORD is close[c] to the brokenhearted[d]
and saves those who are crushed in spirit.

19A righteous man may have many troubles,[e] but the LORD delivers him from them all;[f] 20he protects all his bones, not one of them will be broken.[g]

21Evil will slay the wicked;[h]
the foes of the righteous will be condemned.
22The LORD redeems[i] his servants;
no one will be condemned who takes refuge[j] in him.

Psalm 35

Of David.

1Contend,[k] O LORD, with those who contend with me;
fight[l] against those who fight against me.
2Take up shield[m] and buckler;
arise[n] and come to my aid.[o] 3Brandish spear[p] and javelin[1][q] against those who pursue me.
Say to my soul,
"I am your salvation.[r]"

4May those who seek my life[s] be disgraced[t] and put to shame;[u] may those who plot my ruin be turned back[v] in dismay.
5May they be like chaff[w] before the wind,
with the angel of the LORD[x] driving them away; 6may their path be dark and slippery,
with the angel of the LORD pursuing them.
7Since they hid their net[y] for me without cause[z]
and without cause dug a pit[a] for me, 8may ruin overtake them by surprise—[b] may the net they hid entangle them, may they fall into the pit,[c] to their ruin.
9Then my soul will rejoice[d] in the LORD and delight in his salvation.[e] 10My whole being will exclaim,
"Who is like you,[f] O LORD?
You rescue the poor from those too strong[g] for them,

34:14 seek peace. See 37:37; 120:7; Pr 12:20; Zec 8:19 (also Zec 8:16–17); Mt 5:9; Ro 12:18; 1Co 7:15; 2Co 13:11; 1Th 5:13; Heb 12:14; Jas 3:17–18.
34:15–18 Assurance that the Lord hears the prayers of the righteous. He so thoroughly thwarts those who do evil that they are forgotten (v. 16).
34:15 righteous. See vv. 8–14; see also note on 1:5.
34:16 face of the LORD. See note on 13:1.
34:17–18 See especially 51:17.
34:19–22 Assurance that the Lord is the unfailing deliverer of the righteous—and condemns the wicked for their hostility toward the righteous (see v. 21).
34:20 all his bones. His whole being (see note on 6:2). not one of them will be broken. Perhaps John's Gospel applies this word to Jesus (see NIV text note on Jn 19:36)—as the one above all others who could be called a "righteous man" (v. 19).
34:21–22 condemned. Dealt with as guilty.
34:22 redeems. See note on 25:22.
Ps 35 An appeal to the heavenly King, as divine Warrior and Judge, to come to the defense of "his servant" (v. 27) who is being maliciously slandered by those toward whom he had shown only the most tender friendship. The attack seems to have been occasioned by some "distress" (v. 26) that had overtaken the king (see vv. 15,19,21,25), perhaps an illness (see v. 13; see also introduction to Ps 6). Ps 35 exemplifies such a "cry" to the Lord in expectation of vindication as that spoken of in 34:15–22—except that here the author does not expressly identify himself as one of the "righteous" (34:21); he appeals to the Lord rather as innocent victim of an unmotivated attack. Regarding structure, after an initial appeal to the Lord as divine Warrior (vv. 1–3) there follows a threefold elaboration of David's petition to the divine Judge, each concluding with a vow to praise (vv. 4–10, 11–18, 19–28); see note on 7:17.
35:1–3 Appeal to the Lord as Warrior-King (see Ex 15:1–18), David's Overlord.
35:2 arise. See note on 3:7.
35:3 soul. See note on 6:3.
35:4–10 Appeal to the Lord to deal with the attackers, matching judgment with their violent intent (see note on 5:10).
35:4 plot my ruin. See note on 5:9.
35:5–6 angel of the LORD. See 34:7 and note.
35:5 like chaff. See note on 1:4.
35:9–10 See note on 7:17.
35:9 soul. See note on 6:3.
35:10 poor and needy. See 34:6 and note.

[11]Ruthless witnesses[i] come forward; they question me on things I know nothing about.
[12]They repay me evil for good[j]
and leave my soul forlorn.
[13]Yet when they were ill, I put on sackcloth[k]

When my prayers returned to me unanswered,
[14] I went about mourning[m] as though for my friend or brother.
I bowed my head in grief
as though weeping for my mother.
[15]But when I stumbled, they gathered in glee;[n]
attackers gathered against me when I was unaware.
They slandered[o] me without ceasing.
[16]Like the ungodly they maliciously mocked[m];[p]
they gnashed their teeth[q] at me.
[17]O Lord, how long[r] will you look on?
Rescue my life from their ravages,
my precious life[s] from these lions.[t]
[18]I will give you thanks in the great assembly;[u]
among throngs[v] of people I will praise you.[w]

[19]Let not those gloat over me who are my enemies[x] without cause;
let not those who hate me without reason[y]
maliciously wink the eye.[z] [20]They do not speak peaceably, but devise false accusations[a] against those who live quietly in the land.
[21]They gape[b] at me and say, "Aha!
Aha![c]

Psalm 36

For the director of music. Of David the servant of the Lord.

[1]An oracle is within my heart concerning the sinfulness of the wicked:[n][v]

35:27 [p]Ps 9:4 [q]Ps 20:5; S 33:3 [r]Ps 147:11; 149:4 [s]S Job 17:3
35:28 [t]Ps 5:8; 51:14 [u]Ps 71:15,24; 72:15 36:1 [v]S Job 21:16

[m] 16 Septuagint; Hebrew may mean ungodly circle of mockers. [n] 1 Or heart: / Sin proceeds from the wicked.

35:11–18 The accusation—they repaid my friendship with malicious slander—with a renewed petition (v. 17) and a vow to praise (v. 18).
35:12 soul. See note on 6:3.
35:13 sackcloth. A symbol of mourning (see 30:11; Ge 37:34). fasting. An act of mourning (see 69:10).
35:15 stumbled. Not morally. He was brought low by circumstances (see 9:3; 27:2; 37:24; 56:13; 119:165).
35:16 gnashed their teeth. In malice (see 37:12; La 2:16).
35:17 how long . . . ? See note on 6:3 (see also Introduction: Theology). lions. See note on 7:2.
35:18 assembly. See note on 1:5.
35:19–28 Renewed appeal for judgment, with a concluding vow to praise (v. 28).
35:19 enemies without cause. See vv. 11–17; an experience frequently reflected also elsewhere in the Psalter (see 38:19; 69:4; 109:3; 119:78,86,161). See also La 3:52. hate me without reason. See 69:4. It is not known which of these passages is referred to in Jn 15:25. Both psalms reflect circumstances applicable also to Jesus' experience (but see introduction to Ps 69).
35:21 Aha! Aha! See v. 25; see also note on 3:2.
35:22 be not silent. Do not remain inactive (see 28:1 and note; 83:1; 109:1).
35:23 Awake. See note on 7:6. rise. See note on 3:7.
35:24 righteousness. See note on 4:1.
35:25 swallowed. See 124:3.
35:26 Once again: May their judgment match their evil intent (see vv. 4–10).
35:27 May all who are faithful supporters of the Lord's "servant" (here no doubt equivalent to his "anointed"; see note on 2:2) have reason to rejoice and praise the Lord.
35:28 righteousness. See note on 4:1.
Ps 36 A prayer for God's unfailing protection, as the psalmist reflects on the godlessness of the wicked and the goodness of God. In Jewish practice, vv. 7–10 form part of the morning prayer.
36 title For the director of music. See note on Ps 4 title.

There is no fear[w] of God
before his eyes.[x] 2For in his own eyes he flatters himself too much to detect or hate his sin.[y] 3The words of his mouth[z] are wicked and deceitful;[a] he has ceased to be wise[b] and to do good.[c] 4Even on his bed he plots evil;[d] he commits himself to a sinful course[e]
and does not reject what is wrong.[f]

5Your love, O LORD, reaches to the heavens,
your faithfulness[g] to the skies.[h] 6Your righteousness[i] is like the mighty mountains,[j]
your justice like the great deep.[k] O LORD, you preserve both man and beast.[l]
7 How priceless is your unfailing love![m]
Both high and low among men find[o] refuge in the shadow of your wings.[n]

8They feast on the abundance of your house;[o]
you give them drink from your river[p] of delights.[q] 9For with you is the fountain of life;[r]
in your light[s] we see light.

10Continue your love[t] to those who know you,[u]
your righteousness to the upright in heart.[v] 11May the foot of the proud not come against me,
nor the hand of the wicked[w] drive me away.
12See how the evildoers lie fallen—thrown down, not able to rise![x]

o 7 Or love, O God! / Men find; or love! / Both heavenly beings and men / find servant of the LORD. His royal servant (see notes on Ps 18 title; 35:27; see also 2Sa 7:20).

36:1–4 The foolish and haughty godlessness of the wicked.

36:1 oracle. Usually reserved for words of revelation from God, such as those spoken by the prophets (see, e.g., Nu 23:7; Isa 13:1; Jer 23:33–38; Eze 12:10; see also note on Nu 23:7). Here reference is to an insight, perhaps coming like a flash, into the true character of the wicked. heart. See note on 4:7. no fear of God. See 55:19. They take no account of his all-seeing eye, his righteous judgment and his power to deal with them (see note on 10:11). For Paul's use of this verse see Ro 3:18.

36:2 flatters himself. Not in self-righteousness but out of the smug, conceited notion that he is accountable to no one.

36:3 words of his mouth. See note on 5:9. ceased to be wise. See 94:8–11; Pr 2:9–11. do good. See 34:8–14 and note.

36:4 on his bed. When one's thoughts are free to range, and to set the course for the activities of the day. The wicked do not meditate on God's law "day and night" (1:2; see 119:55), or let a godly heart instruct them at night (see 16:7), or at night commune with God (see 42:8), think of him (see 63:6) and reflect on his promises (see 119:148).

36:5–9 The goodness of the Lord—his benevolence toward all his creatures (see 33:4–5).

36:5 love . . . faithfulness. That is, love-and-faithfulness (as in 57:3; 61:7; 85:10; 86:15; 89:14; 115:1; 138:2; Pr 3:3; 14:22; 16:6; 20:28; see note on 3:7). reaches to the heavens . . . to the skies. Encompasses all the realms of creaturely existence (see 57:10; 108:4).

36:6 righteousness . . . justice. That is, righteousness-and-justice (as in 33:5; 89:14; 97:2; Hos 2:19; see also Isa 9:7; 33:5; Jer 9:24). righteousness. See note on 4:1. mighty mountains . . . great deep. As high as the mountains, as deep as the sea.

36:7 unfailing love. See v. 5; see also note on 6:4. high and low. All conditions of men. shadow of your wings. See 17:8 and note.

36:8 feast . . . drink. Life-giving food and water. house. Here, God's whole estate or realm—i.e., the earth, from which springs the abundance of food for all living things (see note on 24:2). river. The "channel" (Job 38:25) by which God brings forth the rain out of his "storehouses" (33:7; see Job 38:8–11,22,37; Jer 10:13) in his "upper chambers" (104:13; see 65:9; Isa 30:25 and the references to "blessings" from heaven in Ge 49:25; Dt 33:23). This vivid imagery, depicting God's control over, and gift of, the waters from heaven, which feed the rivers and streams of earth to give life and health wherever they flow, is the source of the symbol of "the river of the water of life" that flows from the temple of God (Rev 22:1–2; see also Eze 47:1–12). of delights. Furnishing many sources of joy.

36:9 The climax and summation of vv. 5–9. fountain of life. See Jer 2:13; 17:13. Ultimately, for sinners, God provides the water of life through Jesus Christ (Jn 4:10,14). your light. See 27:1 and note. see. Experience, have, enjoy, as in 16:10; 27:13; 34:8,12; 49:9,19; 89:48; 90:15; 106:5 ("enjoy"); Job 9:25 ("glimpse"); 42:5; Ecc 1:16 ("experienced"); 3:13 ("find"); 6:6 ("enjoy"); 8:16; Isa 53:10; La 3:1. light. Life in its fullness as it was created to be. For the association of light with life see 49:19; 56:13; Job 3:20; 33:30; Isa 53:11.

36:10–11 The prayer: Your "love" (v. 5) and "righteousness" (v. 6), which you display in all creation—show these to all who know (acknowledge) you and are upright (the people of God). But keep the wicked, "foot" and "hand," from success against me (the king; see note on 33:16).

36:10 love. See note on 6:4. righteousness. See note on 4:1.

36:11 proud. See note on 31:23.

36:12 Confidence (see note on 3:8). lie fallen. Perhaps in death (see note on 13:4).

Psalm 37[p]

Of David.

[1]Do not fret because of evil men or be envious[y] of those who do wrong;[z] [2]for like the grass they will soon wither,[a] like green plants they will soon die away.[b]

[3]Trust in the LORD and do good;
dwell in the land[c] and enjoy safe pasture.[d] [4]Delight[e] yourself in the LORD and he will give you the desires of your heart.[f]

[5]Commit your way to the LORD; trust in him[g] and he will do this:
[6]He will make your righteousness[h] shine like the dawn,[i] the justice of your cause like the noonday sun.

[7]Be still[j] before the LORD and wait patiently[k] for him;
do not fret[l] when men succeed in their ways,[m]
when they carry out their wicked schemes.[n]

[8]Refrain from anger[o] and turn from wrath;
do not fret[p]—it leads only to evil.
[9]For evil men will be cut off,[q]
but those who hope[r] in the LORD will inherit the land.[s]

[10]A little while, and the wicked will be no more;[t] though you look for them, they will not be found.
[11]But the meek will inherit the land[u]
and enjoy great peace.[v]

[12]The wicked plot[w] against the righteous and gnash their teeth[x] at them; [13]but the Lord laughs at the wicked,
for he knows their day is coming.[y]

[14]The wicked draw the sword[z] and bend the bow[a]
to bring down the poor and needy,[b]
to slay those whose ways are upright.
[15]But their swords will pierce their own hearts,[c] and their bows will be broken.[d]

[16]Better the little that the righteous have than the wealth[e] of many wicked;
[17]for the power of the wicked will be broken,[f]

[p]This psalm is an acrostic poem, the stanzas of which begin with the successive letters of the Hebrew alphabet.

Ps 37 Instruction in godly wisdom. (For other "wisdom" psalms see 34:8–22; 49; 112; others closely related are Ps 1; 73; 91; 92:6–9,12–15; 111; 119; 127–128; 133; see essay on "Wisdom Literature," p. 721.) This psalm's dominant theme is related to the contrast between the wicked and the righteous reflected in Ps 36. The central issue addressed is: Who will "inherit the land" (vv. 9,11,22,29), i.e., live on to enjoy the blessings of the Lord in the promised land? Will the wicked, who plot (v. 12), scheme (vv. 7,32), default on debts (v. 21), use raw power to gain advantage (v. 14) and seem thereby to flourish (vv. 7,16,35)? Or will the righteous, who trust in the Lord (vv. 3,5,7,34) and are humble (v. 11), blameless (vv. 18,37), generous (vv. 21,26), upright (v. 37) and peaceable (v. 37), and from whose mouth is heard the moral wisdom that reflects meditation on God's law (vv. 30–31)? For a similar characterization of the wicked see 10:2–11; 73:4–12. For a similar characterization of the righteous see Ps 112. For a similar statement concerning the transitoriness of the wicked see Ps 49; 73:18–20. Structurally, in this alphabetic acrostic, two verses are devoted to each letter of the alphabet, though with some irregularity. The main theme is developed in vv. 1–11, then further elaborated in the rest of the psalm. The whole is framed by statements contrasting the brief career of the wicked (vv. 1–2) and the Lord's sustaining help of the righteous (vv. 39–40).

37:1–2 See v. 7; Ps 73.

37:2 See note on v. 20.

37:3 See 34:8–14 and note.

37:4 heart. See note on 4:7.

37:5 Commit. See 1Pe 5:7.

37:6 righteousness ... justice. That is, righteousness-and-justice (see note on 36:6). righteousness. See note on 1:5.

37:8 anger ... wrath. Evidence of fretting over the wicked's prosperity, gained to the disadvantage of and even at the expense of the righteous.

37:9 inherit the land. Receive from the Lord secure entitlement (for them and their children) to the promised land as the created and redeemed sphere and bountiful source of provision for the life of God's people. Those who hope in the Lord—i.e., trustfully look to him to bestow life and its blessings as a gift—will inherit the land, not those who apart from God and by evil means try to take possession of it and its wealth (see vv. 11,22,29; cf. Jos 7).

37:10 A little while. Shortness of time is here a figure for certainty of event (see 58:9; Job 20:5–11; Hag 2:6).

37:11 See Mt 5:5. meek. Those who humbly acknowledge their dependence on the goodness and grace of God and betray no arrogance toward their fellowman. great peace. Unmixed blessedness.

37:12 righteous. See note on 1:5. gnash their teeth. See 35:16 and note.

37:13 Lord laughs. See 2:4. knows their day is coming. Strikingly, the psalmist nowhere speaks of God's active involvement in bringing the wicked down—though he hints at it in v. 22. The certainty that the life of the wicked "will be cut off" is frequently asserted (vv. 9,22,28,34,38; cf. vv. 2,8,10,15,17,20,36,38)—and the Lord also knows it—but God's positive action is here reserved for his care for and protection of the righteous. their day. The time for each of them, when he will be "cut off," as in 1Sa 26:10 ("his time," lit. "his day"); Job 18:20 ("his fate").

37:14 poor and needy. See 34:6 and note.

37:15 pierce ... hearts. See 45:5.

37:16–17 righteous. See note on 1:5.

but the LORD upholds[g] the righteous.
18The days of the blameless are known to the LORD,[h] and their inheritance will endure forever.[i] 19In times of disaster they will not wither;
in days of famine they will enjoy plenty.
20But the wicked will perish:[j]
The LORD's enemies will be like the beauty of the fields, they will vanish—vanish like smoke.[k] 21The wicked borrow and do not repay, but the righteous give generously;[l] 22those the LORD blesses will inherit the
land,
but those he curses[m] will be cut off.[n] 23If the LORD delights[o] in a man's way, he makes his steps firm;[p] 24though he stumble, he will not fall,[q] for the LORD upholds[r] him with his hand.
25I was young and now I am old, yet I have never seen the righteous forsaken[s]
or their children begging[t] bread.
26They are always generous and lend freely;[u]
their children will be blessed.[v] 27Turn from evil and do good;[w] then you will dwell in the land forever.[x] 28For the LORD loves the just and will not forsake his faithful ones.[y]
They will be protected forever, but the offspring of the wicked will be cut off;[z] 29the righteous will inherit the land[a] and dwell in it forever.[b] 30The mouth of the righteous man utters wisdom,[c]
and his tongue speaks what is just.
31The law of his God is in his heart;[d]
his feet do not slip.[e] 32The wicked lie in wait[f] for the righteous,[g]
seeking their very lives;
33but the LORD will not leave them in their power or let them be condemned[h] when brought to trial.[i] 34Wait for the LORD[j]
and keep his way.[k]
He will exalt you to inherit the land;
when the wicked are cut off,[l] you will see[m] it.
35I have seen a wicked and ruthless man flourishing[n] like a green tree in its native soil, 36but he soon passed away and was no
more;
though I looked for him, he could not be found.[o] 37Consider the blameless,[p] observe the upright;[q]
there is a future[q] for the man of peace.[r]
38But all sinners[s] will be destroyed;[t]
the future[r] of the wicked will be cut off.[u] 39The salvation[v] of the righteous comes from the LORD;
he is their stronghold in time of trouble.[w] 40The LORD helps[x] them and delivers[y]
them;
he delivers them from the wicked
and saves[z] them,
because they take refuge[a] in him.

37:30 wisdom. See 119:98,130; Dt 4:6.
37:31 heart. See note on 4:7. do not slip. From the right path (see 17:5).
37:32 lie in wait. See 10:8–9; see also note on 7:2. seeking their very lives. Attempting to seize by false charges at court (see v. 33) the very livelihood of their intended victims.
37:35–36 Cf. vv. 25–26.
37:37–38 The great contrast: hope for the one, no hope for the other.
37:37 blameless. See note on v. 18.
37:39–40 the righteous . . . them. They are not at the mercy of the wicked: The Lord is their refuge, and in spite of all that the wicked do, the Lord makes secure their inheritance in the promised land.
Ps 38 An urgent appeal for relief from a severe and painful illness, God's "rebuke" for a sin David has committed.

2For your arrows[c] have pierced me, and your hand has come down upon me.
3Because of your wrath there is no health[d] in my body;
my bones[e] have no soundness
because of my sin.
4My guilt has overwhelmed[f] me like a burden too heavy to bear.[g]

5My wounds[h] fester and are loathsome[i]
because of my sinful folly.[j] 6I am bowed down[k] and brought very low;
all day long I go about mourning.[l] 7My back is filled with searing pain;[m]
there is no health[n] in my body.
8I am feeble and utterly crushed;[o]
I groan[p] in anguish of heart.[q]

9All my longings[r] lie open before
you, O Lord;
my sighing[s] is not hidden from
you.
10My heart pounds,[t] my strength fails[u] me;
even the light has gone from my eyes.[v] 11My friends and companions avoid me because of my wounds;[w]
my neighbors stay far away.
12Those who seek my life set their traps,[x]
those who would harm me talk of my ruin;[y]
all day long they plot deception.[z]

13I am like a deaf man, who cannot hear,[a] like a mute, who cannot open his mouth;
14I have become like a man who does not hear,
whose mouth can offer no reply.
15I wait[b] for you, O LORD;
you will answer,[c] O Lord my God.
16For I said, "Do not let them gloat[d] or exalt themselves over me when my foot slips."[e]

17For I am about to fall,[f]
and my pain[g] is ever with me.
18I confess my iniquity;[h]
I am troubled by my sin.
19Many are those who are my vigorous enemies;[i]
those who hate me[j] without reason[k] are numerous.
20Those who repay my good with evil[l] slander[m] me when I pursue what is good.

21O LORD, do not forsake me;[n]
be not far[o] from me, O my God.
22Come quickly[p] to help me,[q]
O Lord my Savior.[r]

Neither the specific occasion nor the illness can be identified. David's suffering is aggravated by the withdrawal of his friends (see v. 11) and the unwarranted efforts of his enemies to seize this opportunity to bring him down (vv. 12,16,19–20). See introductions to Ps 39–41. In traditional Christian usage, this is one of seven penitential psalms (see introduction to Ps 6). Like Ps 33 (see introductory note on its structure), its length (22 verses) is based on the number of letters in the Hebrew alphabet. The psalm is composed of five stanzas of four verses each, with a two-verse conclusion.

38 title A petition. Occurs elsewhere only in the title of Ps 70.

38:1–4 Plea for relief from the Lord's rebuke.

38:1 rebuke ... discipline. That is, rebuke-and-discipline (see 39:11; see also note on 3:7). anger ... wrath. See note on 2:5.

38:2 arrows. A vivid metaphor for God's blows (see Job 6:4; 34:6; La 3:12; Eze 5:16). your hand has come down upon me. See 32:4 and note on 32:3–5.

38:3 bones. See note on 6:2.

38:4 burden. Not only a psychological "burden of guilt," but the heavy burden of suffering described in vv. 5–8.

38:5–8 The devastating physical and psychological effects of his illness.

38:8 heart. See note on 4:7.

38:9–12 Renewed appeal, with further elaboration of his troubles: his illness (v. 10), abandonment by his friends (v. 11) and the hostility of his enemies (v. 12).

38:10 light has gone from my eyes. See note on 13:3.

38:11 See note on 31:11–12.

38:12 See note on 5:9.

38:13–16 Let the Lord answer (v. 15) my enemies. Like a deaf-mute, David will not reply to his enemies (vv. 13–14); he waits for the Lord to act in his behalf (vv. 15–16). See 1Sa 25:32–39; 2Sa 16:10,12.

38:16 when my foot slips. When he experiences a personal blow to health or circumstance—here referring to his illness (see 66:9; 94:18; 121:3).

38:17–20 As health declines, the vigor of his many enemies increases.

38:17 about to fall. Death seems near (see note on 13:4).

38:18 See vv. 3–4; Ps 32.

38:19–20 He has sinned against the Lord, but he is innocent of any wrong against those attacking him (see note on 35:19).

38:20 slander. Accuse (falsely), as in 71:13; 109:4,20,29; Zec 3:1. when. Or "though." good. Morally good (see 34:14).

38:21–22 In conclusion, a renewed appeal.

Ps 39 The poignant prayer of a soul deeply troubled by the fragility of human life. He is reminded of this by the present illness through which God is rebuking him (vv. 10–11) for his "transgressions" (v. 8). Ps 38 speaks of silence before the enemy, Ps 39 of silence before God. Both are prayers in times of illness (God's "rebuke," v. 11; 38:1); both acknowledge sin, and both express deep trust in God. See introduction to Ps 40. In addition, this psalm has many links with Ps 90; see also Ps 49.

Psalm 40

40:13–17pp — Ps 70:1–5

For the director of music. Of David.
A psalm.

[1]I waited patiently[f] for the LORD;
he turned to me and heard my cry.[g]
[2]He lifted me out of the slimy pit,[h] out of the mud[i] and mire;[j]
he set my feet[k] on a rock[l]

39 title For the director of music. See note on Ps 4 title. Jeduthun. One of David's three choir leaders (1Ch 16:41–42; 25:1,6; 2Ch 5:12; called his "seer" in 2Ch 35:15). Jeduthun is probably also the Ethan of 1Ch 6:44; 15:19; if so, he represented the family of Merari, even as Asaph did the family of Gershon and Heman the family of Kohath, the three sons of Levi (see 1Ch 6:16,33,39,43–44). See titles of Ps 62; 77; 89.

39:1–3 Introduction: Having determined to keep silent, he could finally no longer suppress his anguish.

39:1 He had kept a muzzle on his mouth for fear that rebellious words would escape in the hearing of the wicked (see Ps 73).

39:2–3 Suppressed anguish only intensified the agony (see Jer 20:9).

39:4–6 A prayer for understanding and patient acceptance of the brief span of human life.

39:4 how fleeting is my life. See 78:39 and note on 37:20.

39:5 as nothing before you. See 90:4. but a breath. See v. 11; 144:4; Job 14:2; Ecc 6:12.

39:6 Could almost serve as a summary of Ecclesiastes.

39:7–11 A modest prayer: Only grant me relief from your present rebuke.

39:8 Save me. As from an enemy. scorn of fools. If the Lord does not restore him, he will be mocked (see 22:7–8; 69:6–12) by godless fools (see 14:1).

39:10 blow of your hand. See 32:4; 38:2.

39:11 rebuke and discipline. See 6:1; 38:1. but a breath. See note on v. 5.

39:12–13 The modest prayer repeated even more modestly.

39:12 an alien, a stranger. He lives this life before God only as a pilgrim passing through.

39:13 Look away from me. See Job 7:17–19; 10:20–21; 14:6. rejoice again. See Job 9:27; 10:20. am no more. Here there is no glimpse of what lies beyond the horizon of death (see note on 6:5).

Ps 40 A prayer for help when troubles abound. The causes of distress are not specified, but David acknowledges that they are occasioned by his sin (see v. 12), as in Ps 38–39; 41 (see introductions to Ps 39; 41). They are aggravated by the gloating of his enemies, a theme also present in Ps 38–39; 41 (see introduction to Ps 6). The prayer begins with praise of God for his past mercies (vv. 1–5) and a testimony to the king's own faithfulness to the Lord (vv. 6–10). These form the grounds for his present appeal for help (vv. 11–17). See also the lengthy prefaces to prayer in Ps 44; 89. Ps 70 is a somewhat revised duplicate of vv. 13–17 of this psalm.

40 title For the director of music. See note on Ps 4 title.

40:1–5 Praise of the Lord for past mercies (see introduction to Ps 9).

40:1–3 David's experience of God's past help in time of trouble, which moved him to praise and others to faith (see notes on 7:17; 9:1).

40:2 See 30:1 and note.

40:3 new song. See note on 33:3. Many will see. As a result of David's praise (see 18:49; 22:22–31; see also note on 9:1). fear. See note on 34:8–14.

a hymn of praise to our God.
Many will see and fear[n]
and put their trust[o] in the LORD.

[4]Blessed is the man[p] who makes the LORD his trust,[q] who does not look to the proud,[r]
to those who turn aside to false gods.[ss]

[5]Many, O LORD my God, are the wonders[t] you have done.
The things you planned for us
no one can recount[u] to you;
were I to speak and tell of them,
they would be too many[v] to declare.

[6]Sacrifice and offering you did not desire,[w] but my ears you have pierced[t,u];[x] burnt offerings[y] and sin offerings you did not require.
[7]Then I said, "Here I am, I have come—it is written about me in the scroll.[vz] [8]I desire to do your will,[a] O my God;[b] your law is within my heart."[c]

[9]I proclaim righteousness[d] in the great assembly;[e]
I do not seal my lips,
as you know,[f] O LORD.
[10]I do not hide your righteousness in my heart;
I speak of your faithfulness[g] and salvation.
I do not conceal your love and your truth
from the great assembly.[h] [11]Do not withhold your mercy[i] from me, O LORD; may your love[j] and your truth[k] always protect[l] me.
[12]For troubles[m] without number surround me;
my sins have overtaken me, and I cannot see.[n]
They are more than the hairs of my head,[o]
and my heart fails[p] within me.

[13]Be pleased, O LORD, to save me;
O LORD, come quickly to help me.[q]
[14]May all who seek to take my life[r] be put to shame and confusion;[s] may all who desire my ruin[t]
be turned back in disgrace.
[15]May those who say to me, "Aha! Aha!"[u] be appalled at their own shame.
[16]But may all who seek you[v] rejoice and be glad[w] in you;
may those who love your salvation always say,
"The LORD be exalted!"[x]

[17]Yet I am poor and needy;[y] may the Lord think[z] of me.

40:4–5 The Lord's benevolence to others: to all who trust in the Lord (v. 4), and to his people Israel (v. 5).

40:4 See Jer 17:7; praise of the Lord for the blessedness of those who trust in him (see 32:1–2; 146:5). Blessed. See note on 1:1. proud. See note on 31:23.

40:5 wonders. See note on 9:1. planned. God's actions in behalf of Israel are according to his predetermined purpose (see Isa 25:1; 46:10–11).

40:6–8 David's commitment to God's will. Heb 10:5–10 applies these verses to Christ (see notes there).

40:6 did not desire.... not require. More important is obedience (see 1Sa 15:22), especially to God's moral law (see Isa 1:10–17; Am 5:21–24; Mic 6:6–8)—i.e., the ten basic commandments of his covenant (see Ex 20:3–17; Dt 5:7–21). pierced. Lit. "dug." Translated "pierced," it probably refers to the sign by which a servant pledged lifelong service to his beloved master (see Ex 21:6; Dt 15:17). If, however, it is translated "opened" (see NIV text note), it refers to ears made able and eager to hear God's law (see Pr 28:9; Isa 48:8; 50:4–5).

40:7 Here I am, I have come. Probably refers to David's commitment to the Lord at the time of his enthronement. it is written about me in the scroll. Some take this to be a reference to a prophecy, perhaps Dt 17:14–15. The context, however, strongly suggests that the "scroll" refers to the personal copy of the law that the king is to take at the time of his enthronement to serve as the covenant charter of his administration (see Dt 17:18–20; 2Ki 11:12; cf. 1Ki 2:3; see also NIV text note).

40:8 I desire. Whatever is in full accord with God's "desire" (v. 6)—a claim that frames the stanza.

40:9–10 David's life is filled with praise, proclaiming God's faithful and loving acts in behalf of his people. This, too, God desires more than animal sacrifices (see 50:7–15,23).

40:9 proclaim. See 68:11; 96:2; as good tidings (see 1Ki 1:42; Isa 40:9; 41:27; 52:7; 61:1). righteousness. See note on 4:1. in the great assembly. See notes on 1:5; 9:1. not seal my lips. He is not silent about God's praise (see 38:13–16; 39:1 and notes).

40:10 heart. See note on 4:7. your love and your truth. See note on 26:3.

40:11–17 The prayer for help.

40:11 your love and your truth. Which he has been proclaiming to all at the temple (see v. 10 and note).

40:12 sins have overtaken me. In the form of the "troubles without number" that burden him (see Ps 38–39 and their introductions). cannot see. See note on 13:3. more than the hairs of my head. See Mt 10:30; Lk 12:7. heart. See note on 4:7.

40:14–15 In the midst of his troubles his enemies harass him, as in 38:12; 39:8; 41:5,7 and often in the Psalms (see note on 5:9). May those who wish to put him to shame be put to shame themselves (see note on 5:10).

40:15 Aha! Aha! See note on 3:2.

40:17 poor and needy. In need of God's help (see note on 34:6).

You are my help[a] and my deliverer;[b]
O my God, do not delay.[c]

Psalm 41

For the director of music.
A psalm of David.

[1]Blessed[d] is he who has regard for the weak;[e]
the LORD delivers him in times of trouble.[f]
[2]The LORD will protect[g] him and preserve his life;[h]
he will bless him in the land[i] and not surrender him to the desire of his foes.[j]
[3]The LORD will sustain him on his sickbed[k]
and restore him from his bed of illness.[l]

[4]I said, "O LORD, have mercy[m] on me; heal[n] me, for I have sinned[o]
against you."
[5]My enemies say of me in malice,
"When will he die and his name perish?[p]"
[6]Whenever one comes to see me, he speaks falsely,[q] while his heart gathers slander;[r]
then he goes out and spreads[s] it abroad.

[7]All my enemies whisper together[t]
against me;
they imagine the worst for me,
saying,
[8]"A vile disease has beset him;
he will never get up[u] from the place where he lies."
[9]Even my close friend,[v] whom I trusted,
he who shared my bread,
has lifted up his heel against me.[w]

[10]But you, O LORD, have mercy[x] on
me;
raise me up,[y] that I may repay[z]
them.
[11]I know that you are pleased with me,[a]
for my enemy does not triumph over me.[b] [12]In my integrity[c] you uphold me[d] and set me in your presence forever.[e]

[13]Praise[f] be to the LORD, the God of Israel,[g]
from everlasting to everlasting.
Amen and Amen.[h]

[w] In many Hebrew manuscripts Psalms 42 and 43 constitute one psalm. [x] Title: Probably a literary or musical term

Ps 41 David's prayer for mercy when seriously ill. He acknowledges that his illness is related to his sin (v. 4). See the introductions to Ps 38–40. His enemies greet the prospect of his death with malicious glee (see note on 5:9), and even his "close friend" (v. 9) betrays his friendship (see note on 31:11–12). This psalm concludes a collection of four psalms connected by common themes, and also forms the conclusion to Book I. (Book I begins and ends with a "Blessed" psalm.) In its structure, the psalm is very symmetrical, composed of four stanzas of three verses each. The first and fourth stanzas frame the prayer with a note of confidence; stanzas two and three elaborate the prayer. Verse 13 is actually not part of the psalm but the doxology that closes Book I (see note on v. 13).

41 title For the director of music. See note on Ps 4 title.

41:1–3 Confidence that the Lord will restore.

41:1 Blessed is he who has regard for the weak. Especially if he is king, whose duty it is to defend the powerless (see 72:2,4,12–14; 82:3–4; Pr 29:14; 31:8–9; Isa 11:4; Jer 22:16). Blessed. See note on 1:1.

41:4–6 Prayer for God to show mercy and to heal.

41:4 sinned. See note on 32:3–5.

41:5 When will he die . . . ? See note on 3:2. his name perish. See note on 9:5.

41:6 see me. Visit him in his sickness. speaks falsely. Speaks as if he were a friend. heart. See note on 4:7.

41:7–9 His enemies and his friend.

41:9 close friend . . . who shared my bread. One who shared the king's table—i.e., was an honored, as well as trusted, friend (see note on 31:11–12). Reference may be to one who had sealed his friendship by a covenant (see note on 23:5). For Jesus' use of this verse in application to himself see Jn 13:18. In fulfilling the role of his royal ancestor as God's anointed king over Israel, the great Son of David also experienced the hostility of men and the betrayal of a trusted associate, and thus fulfilled his forefather's lament.

41:10–12 Prayer, with confidence.

41:10 that I may repay them. That I (as king) may call them to account.

41:12 set. Establish. in your presence. As the royal servant of Israel's heavenly King. (For the idiom see 101:7; 1Sa 16:22, "in my service"; 1Ki 10:8, "before you"; 17:1, "whom I serve.") forever. Never to be rejected (see 2Sa 7:15–16).

41:13 The doxology with which the worshiping community is to respond to the contents of Book I (see 72:18–19; 89:52; 106:48; 150).

Ps 42–43 A prayer for deliverance from being "oppressed by the enemy" (42:9; 43:2) and for restoration to the presence of God at his temple. That these two psalms form a single prayer (though they are counted as two psalms also in the Septuagint) is evident from its unique structure (see below) and the development of common themes. Ps 43 may have come to be separated from Ps 42 for a particular liturgical purpose (see introduction to Ps 9). The speaker may have been a leading member of the Korahites whose normal duties involved him in the liturgical activities of the temple (see especially 42:4 and note on Ps 42 title). It may be that the "ungodly nation" (43:1) referred to was the Arameans of Damascus and that the author had been taken captive by the Arameans during one of their incursions into Judah, such as that of Hazael (see 2Ki 12:17–18). (This attack by Hazael affected especially the area in which the Korahites, descendants of Kohath, had been assigned cities; see Jos 21:4,9–19.) See also notes below. This psalm begins Book II of the Psalter, a collection that is distinguished from Book I primarily by the fact that the Hebrew word for "God" (Elohim) predominates, whereas in the first book the Hebrew word for "the LORD" (Yahweh) predominates.

Structurally, the three stanzas of this psalm are symmetrical (each contains four verses), and each is followed by the same refrain (42:5,11; 43:5). The middle stanza, however, has at its center (see note on 6:6) an additional verse (42:8) that interrupts the developing thought and injects a note of confidence, such as comes to expression also in the threefold refrain. Apart from the refrains, the prayer is framed by an expression of longing for God's presence (42:1) and a vow to praise God at his altar (43:4). For other psalms with recurring refrains see Ps 46; 49; 59; 80; 107.

42 title For the director of music. See note on Ps 4 title. maskil. See note on Ps 32 title. of the Sons of Korah. Or "for the Sons of Korah"; see "For Jeduthun" in Ps 39 title. "Sons of Korah" refers to the Levitical choir made up of the descendants of Korah appointed by David to serve in the temple liturgy. The Korahites represented the Levitical family of Kohath son of Levi. Their leader in the days of David was Heman (see Ps 88 title)—just as Asaph led the choir of the Gershonites and Jeduthun (Ethan) the choir of the Merarites (see 1Ch 6:31–47 and note on Ps 39 title). This is the first of a collection of seven psalms ascribed to the "Sons of Korah" (Ps 42–49); four more occur in Book III (Ps 84–85; 87–88).

42:1–4 Longing to be with God at the temple.

42:1 deer pants for . . . water. Because its life depends on water—especially when being pressed by hunters, as the psalmist was by his oppressors. soul. See note on 6:3.

42:2 living God. See Dt 5:26. When . . . ? Circumstances (see v. 9; 43:1–2) now prevent him from being at the temple. meet with God. Enter his presence to commune with him (see Ex 19:17; 29:42–43; 30:6,36).

42:3 day and night. See vv. 8,10. Where is your God? See note on 10:11.

42:4 soul. See note on 6:3. leading the procession. Suggests that the author normally had a leading role in the liturgy of the temple.

42:5 The refrain: faith encouraging faith (see 27:13–14 and introduction to Ps 27). praise him. For his saving help (see notes on 7:17; 9:1; see also 43:4).

42:6–10 The cause and depth of the trouble of his soul.

42:6 soul is downcast. See vv. 5,11; 43:5. therefore I will remember you. As he remembers (v. 4) in his exile the joy of his past intimacy with God, so now in his exile he remembers God and painfully wonders (vv. 7,9–10), yet not without hope (v. 8). (But some believe that the clause should be rendered "because I remember you.") from the land . . . from Mount Mizar. Probably indicating that the author speaks from exile outside the contemporary boundaries of Israel and Judah. Some think the author locates himself at Mount Mizar (a small peak or village, not otherwise known) on the flanks of Mount Hermon somewhere near the headwaters of the Jordan. Others translate the Hebrew for "from" as "far from" and understand "the land of the Jordan" to refer to the promised land (which lies along the Jordan and from which the author was separated). The mention of "the heights of Hermon" may then be a reference to the high peak that marked the northern border of the land (see Dt 3:8; Jos 11:17; 13:11; 1Ch 5:23) and looked down upon it (see 133:3; SS 4:8). Some have suggested that "Mount Mizar" is an additional reference to "the heights of Hermon," calling that high peak the "little mountain" (literal translation) in comparison with Mount Zion (see 68:15–16).

42:7 deep calls . . . your waterfalls. Often taken to be an allusion to the cascading waters of the upper Jordan as they rush down from Mount Hermon. It is more likely, however, that this is a literary allusion to the "waterfalls" by which the waters from God's storehouse of water above (see note on 36:8)—the "deep" above—pour down into the streams and rivers that empty into the seas—the "deep" below. It pictures the great distress the author suffers, and the imagery is continued in the following reference to God's "waves and breakers" sweeping over him (see 69:1–2; 88:7; Jnh 2:3,5; see also note on 32:6). God's hand is involved in the psalmist's suffering, at least to the extent that he has allowed this catastrophe. He seems to the psalmist to have "forgotten" (v. 9)—to have "rejected" (43:2)—him. But he makes no link between this and any sin in his life (see Ps 44; 77).

42:8 The center: confession of hope in all the trouble. That is, "Day-and-night [cf. v. 3] the LORD directs his love, and his song is with me" (see note on 3:7). the LORD. Only here at the center in this psalm (see introduction). directs his love. Sends forth his love, like a messen-a prayer to the God of my life.[j]

9I say to God my Rock,[k]
"Why have you forgotten[l] me?
Why must I go about mourning,[m] oppressed[n] by the enemy?"[o] 10My bones suffer mortal agony[p] as my foes taunt[q] me, saying to me all day long,
"Where is your God?"[r]

11Why are you downcast, O my soul?
Why so disturbed within me?
Put your hope in God,
for I will yet praise him,
my Savior and my God.[s]

Psalm 43[z]

1Vindicate me, O God,
and plead my cause[t] against an ungodly nation;
rescue me[u] from deceitful and wicked men.[v] 2You are God my stronghold.
Why have you rejected[w] me?
Why must I go about mourning,[x]
oppressed by the enemy?[y] 3Send forth your light[z] and your truth,[a] let them guide me;[b]
let them bring me to your holy mountain,[c]
to the place where you dwell.[d] 4Then will I go[e] to the altar[f] of God, to God, my joy[g] and my delight.[h]
I will praise you with the harp,[i]
O God, my God.

5Why are you downcast, O my soul?
Why so disturbed within me?
Put your hope in God,
for I will yet praise him,
my Savior and my God.[j]

Psalm 44

For the director of music. Of the Sons of Korah. A maskil.[a]

1We have heard with our ears,[k]
O God;
our fathers have told us[l]
what you did in their days,
in days long ago.[m] 2With your hand you drove out[n] the nations and planted[o] our fathers;
you crushed[p] the peoples and made our fathers flourish.[q] 3It was not by their sword[r] that they won the land, nor did their arm bring them victory;
it was your right hand,[s] your arm,[t]
and the light[u] of your face, for you loved[v] them.

[z] In many Hebrew manuscripts Psalms 42 and 43 constitute one psalm. [a] Title: Probably a literary or musical term [b] 4 Septuagint, Aquila and Syriac; Hebrew King, O God; / command ger to do his will (see 43:3). love. See note on 6:4. his song. A song concerning him. prayer. Praise and prayer belong together in the thought of the psalmist.

42:9 Echoed in 43:2. Rock. See note on 18:2. Why . . . ? Why . . . ? See note on 6:3 (see also Introduction: Theology).

42:10 See v. 3. bones. See note on 6:2.

43:1–4 Prayer for deliverance from the enemy and for restoration to God's presence.

43:1 A plea in the language of the court (see introduction to Ps 17).

43:2 Echoes 42:9.

43:3 your light and your truth. Personified as God's messengers who work out (1) his salvation (light; see note on 27:1) and (2) his faithful care in behalf of his own (truth; see 26:3; 30:9; 40:10). May these guide me back to your temple. holy mountain. See note on 2:6.

43:4 See note on 7:17. to the altar. See 26:6 and note.

Ps 44 Israel's cry for help after suffering a devastating defeat at the hand of an enemy. In the light of vv. 17–22, it is difficult to associate this psalm with any of those defeats announced by the prophets as judgments on Israel's covenant unfaithfulness. It probably relates to an experience of the kingdom of Judah (which as a nation did not break covenant with the Lord until late in her history), perhaps during the reign of Jehoshaphat or Hezekiah. Structurally, three thematic developments rise one upon the other as the psalm advances to the prayer in the closing verses. Its structure is like the stages of a ziggurat (a stepped pyramidal structure that the Babylonians built as a mountain-like base for some of their temples; see Ge 11:4 and note) leading to the temple that crowns it. First there is praise of the Lord for past victories (vv. 1–8), second a description of the present defeat and its consequences (vv. 9–16), third a plea of innocence (vv. 17–22), then finally the prayer (vv. 23–26). Each of the themes (recalling of past mercies, description of the present distress, and claim of covenant loyalty) in its own way functions as a ground for the appeal for help (see Ps 40 and its introduction; see also the lengthy prefaces to prayer in Ps 40; 89).

44 title See note on Ps 42 title.

44:1–8 Praise to God for past victories: (1) those by which Israel became established in the land (vv. 1–3); (2) those by which Israel has been kept secure in the land (vv. 4–8).

44:1 See 78:3.

44:3 light of your face. See notes on 4:6; 13:1.

44:4 my. Here and elsewhere in this psalm the first-person singular pronoun refers to the nation corporately (see note on Ps 30 title). Jacob. See note on 14:7.

44:5,8 your name. See v. 20; see also note on 5:11.

7but you give us victory[c] over our enemies, you put our adversaries to shame.[d] 8In God we make our boast[e] all day long,[f] and we will praise your name forever.[g] Selah

9But now you have rejected[h] and humbled us;[i] you no longer go out with our armies.[j] 10You made us retreat[k] before the enemy, and our adversaries have plundered[l] us.
11You gave us up to be devoured like sheep[m] and have scattered us among the nations.[n] 12You sold your people for a pittance,[o] gaining nothing from their sale.

13You have made us a reproach[p] to our neighbors,[q]
the scorn[r] and derision[s] of those around us.
14You have made us a byword[t] among the nations;
the peoples shake their heads[u] at us.
15My disgrace[v] is before me all day long,
and my face is covered with shame[w] 16at the taunts[x] of those who reproach and revile[y] me, because of the enemy, who is bent on revenge.[z]

17All this happened to us, though we had not forgotten[a] you or been false to your covenant.
18Our hearts had not turned[b] back;
our feet had not strayed from your path.

19But you crushed[c] us and made us a haunt for jackals[d]
and covered us over with deep darkness.[e]

20If we had forgotten[f] the name of our God or spread out our hands to a foreign god,[g] 21would not God have discovered it, since he knows the secrets of the heart?[h] 22Yet for your sake we face death all day long;
we are considered as sheep[i] to be slaughtered.[j]

23Awake,[k] O Lord! Why do you sleep?[l]
Rouse yourself![m] Do not reject us forever.[n] 24Why do you hide your face[o] and forget[p] our misery and oppression?[q]

25We are brought down to the dust;[r] our bodies cling to the ground.
26Rise up[s] and help us;
redeem[t] us because of your unfailing love.[u]

[c]Title: Probably a literary or musical term

44:9–16 But now you have forsaken us: (1) You have caused us to suffer defeat (vv. 9–12); (2) you have shamed us before our enemies (vv. 13–16).

44:11 gave us up to be devoured like sheep. Have not protected us as our Shepherd-King (see v. 4 and note on 23:1).

44:12 sold your people. Like chattel no longer valued (see Dt 32:30; Jdg 2:14). for a pittance. For nothing of value (see Isa 52:3; Jer 15:13; cf. Isa 43:3–4).

44:14 shake their heads. In scorn (see 64:8).

44:16 bent on revenge. See 8:2 and note.

44:17–22 And we have not been disloyal to you: (1) We have not been untrue to your covenant (vv. 17–19); (2) you are our witness that we have not turned to another god (vv. 20–22).

44:17 your covenant. See Ex 19–24.

44:18 hearts. See note on 4:7. your path. The way marked out in God's covenant (see note on 5:8).

44:19 you crushed us. But that cannot be used as evidence that we have been disloyal. haunt for jackals. A desolate place, uninhabited by man (see Isa 13:22; Jer 9:11). deep darkness. The absence of all that was associated with the metaphor "light" (see notes on 30:1; 36:9).

44:20 spread out our hands. Prayed (see Ex 9:29).

44:22 Yet. Or "As a matter of fact" or "As you, O God, know." From the time of her stay in Egypt (see Ex 1), Israel has suffered the hostility of the nations because of her relationship with the Lord (see Mt 10:34). For Paul's application of this verse to the Christian community in the light of Christ's death and resurrection see Ro 8:36.

44:23–26 The appeal for help: (1) Awake to our need (vv. 23–24); (2) arise to our help (vv. 25–26; see introduction to Ps 16).

44:23 Awake. See note on 7:6. Why . . . ? See note on 6:3 (see also Introduction: Theology).

44:24 hide your face. See note on 13:1.

44:25 brought down to the dust. About to sink into death (see 22:29 and note; see also note on 30:1).

44:26 Rise up. See note on 3:7. redeem. See note on 25:22. unfailing love. See note on 6:4.

Ps 45 A song in praise of the king on his wedding day (see title). He undoubtedly belonged to David's dynasty, and the song was probably used at more than one royal wedding. Since the bride is a foreign princess (see vv. 10,12), the wedding reflects the king's standing as a figure of international significance (see note on v. 9). Accordingly he is addressed as one whose reign is to be characterized by victories over the nations (vv. 3–5; cf. Ps 2; 110). As a royal son of David, he is a type (foreshadowing) of Christ. After the exile this psalm was applied to the Messiah, the promised Son of David who would sit on David's throne (for the application of vv. 6–7 to Christ see Heb 1:8–9). The superscription implies that it was composed and sung by a member of the Levitical temple choir, a fact not surprising in view of the close link between the temple (housing the earthly throne room of Israel's heavenly King) and the Davidic dynasty (the Lord's appointed regents over his people, described throughout the books of Samuel, Kings and Chronicles). As a word from one of the temple personnel, the song was no doubt received as a word from the temple—and from the One who sat enthroned there. In its structure, the song is framed by vv. 1,17 while vv. 2,16 constitute a secondary frame within them—all addressed to the king. The body of the song falls into two parts: (1) words addressed to the king (vv. 3–9) and (2) words addressed to the royal bride (vv. 10–15). These in turn each contain two parts, reflecting a similar pattern: (1) (a) exhortations to the king (vv. 3–5), (b) the glory of the king (vv. 6–9); (2) (a) exhortations to the bride (vv. 10–11), (b) the glory of the bride (vv. 12–15).

45 title For the director of music. See note on Ps 4 title. To ⌊the tune of⌋. See note on Ps 9 title. Lilies. See Ps 69 title. "Lilies" may be an abbreviated form of "The Lily (Lilies) of the Covenant" found in the titles of Ps 60; 80. Of the Sons of Korah. See note on Ps 42 title. maskil. See note on Ps 32 title. song. See note on Ps 30 title.

45:1 See v. 17, where the speaker pledges (perhaps by means of this song) to perpetuate the king's memory throughout the generations and awaken the praise of the nations. heart. See note on 4:7.

45:2 most excellent of men. One who excels in manly traits and beauty, as a king should (see 1Sa 9:2; 16:18)—but he is so beyond ordinary men as to be almost Godlike (see note on v. 6). lips . . . anointed with grace. See Pr 22:11; Ecc 10:12; cf. Isa 50:4; Lk 4:22; see also v. 16, where it is suggested that such a king will be perpetuated in his sons. forever. See note on v. 6.

45:3–5 Go forth with your sword victoriously in the service of all that is right, and clothe yourself thereby with glory—make your reign adorn you more truly than the wedding garb with which you are now arrayed (v. 8).

45:3 splendor and majesty. See 21:5 and note.

45:4 righteousness. See note on 1:5. awesome deeds. See 66:5; 106:22; 145:6.

45:5 nations fall beneath your feet. See 2:8–9; 110:1–2,5–6.

45:6–9 The glory of the king's reign: justice and righteousness (see Ps 72).

45:6 O God. Possibly the king's throne is called God's throne because he is God's appointed regent. But it is also possible that the king himself is addressed as "god." The Davidic king (the "LORD's anointed," 2Sa 19:21), because of his special relationship with God, was called at his enthronement the "son" of God (see 2:7; 2Sa 7:14; 1Ch 28:6; cf. 89:27). In this psalm, which praises the king and especially extols his "splendor and majesty" (v. 3), it is not unthinkable that he was called "god" as a title of honor (cf. Isa 9:6). Such a description of the Davidic king attains its fullest meaning when applied to Christ, as the author of Hebrews does (Heb 1:8–9). (The pharaohs of Egypt were sometimes addressed as "my god" by their vassal kings in Canaan, as evidenced by the Amarna letters; see chart on "Ancient Texts Relating to the OT," p. xxii.) for ever and ever. See vv. 2,17. Such was the language used with respect to kings (see note on 21:4). It here gains added significance in the light of God's covenant with David (see 89:4,29,36; 132:12; 2Sa 7:16). In Christ, the Son of David, it is fulfilled.

45:7 companions. The noble guests of the king, perhaps from other lands. oil of joy. God has anointed him with a more delightful oil than the aromatic oils with which his head and body were anointed on his wedding day—namely, with joy (see 23:5; Isa 61:3).

45:8–9 The glory of the king's wedding.

45:8 myrrh. See notes on Ge 37:25; SS 1:13. aloes. See note on SS 4:14. cassia. See note on Ex 25:6. palaces adorned with ivory. See 1Ki 22:39; Am 3:15; 6:4.

45:9 Daughters of kings. Whether members of his royal harem (see 1Ki 11:1–3) or guests at his wedding, they represent international recognition of the king. in gold of Ophir. Adorned with jewels of finest gold (see notes on Ge 10:29; 1Ki 9:28) and all the finery associated with it.

45:12–15 The royal bride's glory.
45:12 Daughter of Tyre. A personification of the city of Tyre and its inhabitants (see note on 2Ki 19:21). The king of Tyre was the first foreign ruler to recognize the Davidic dynasty (see 2Sa 5:11), and Solomon maintained close relations with that city-state (see 1Ki 5; 9:10–14,26–28). As a great trading center on the Mediterranean coast, Tyre was world-renowned for its wealth (see Isa 23; Eze 26:1–28:19). men of wealth. Such as those from your homeland. seek your favor. Desire to be in your good graces as the wife of this king.
45:14 virgin companions. She too has "companions" (see v. 7), perhaps her permanent attendants. to you. To the king.
45:16 Your. The king's. take the place of your fathers. As the family line continues (dynastic succession). Perhaps it is also hinted that they will surpass the fathers in honor (see note on v. 2). land. Or "earth."
45:17 See note on v. 1. for ever and ever. See note on v. 6.

Ps 46 A celebration of the security of Jerusalem as the city of God (the inspiration of Martin Luther's great hymn, "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God"). Thematically this psalm is closely related to Ps 48 (see also Ps 76; 87), while Ps 47 celebrates God's victorious reign over all the earth. It probably predates the exile. However, as a song concerning the "city of God" (v. 4), the royal city of his kingdom on earth (see Ps 48), it remained for Israel a song of hope celebrating the certain triumph of God's kingdom. It was originally liturgical and sung at the temple: The citizens of Jerusalem (or the Levitical choir in their stead) apparently sang the opening stanza (vv. 1–3) and the responses (vv. 7,11), while the Levitical leader of the liturgy probably sang the second and third stanzas (vv. 4–6,8–10). In its structure, apart from the refrains (vv. 7,11), the psalm is composed of three symmetrical stanzas, each containing three verses. For other psalms with recurring refrains see introduction to Ps 42–43.

46 title For the director of music. See note on Ps 4 title. Of the Sons of Korah. See note on Ps 42 title. According to. See note on Ps 6 title. alamoth. See NIV text note. Since the Hebrew word appears to mean "maidens," the phrase "according to alamoth" may refer to the "maidens playing tambourines" who accompanied the singers as the liturgical procession made its way to the temple (68:25). A song. See note on Ps 30 title.

46:1–3 A triumphant confession of fearless trust in God, though the continents break up and sink beneath the resurging waters of the seas—i.e., though the creation itself may seem to become uncreated (see 104:6–9; Ge 1:9–10) and all may appear to be going down before the onslaught of the primeval deep. The described upheaval is probably imagery for great threats to Israel's existence (see note on 32:6), especially from her enemies (see vv. 6,8–10; 65:5–8).

46:4–6 A description of blessed Zion—a comforting declaration of God's mighty, sustaining presence in his city.

46:4 river. Jerusalem had no river, unlike Thebes (Na 3:8), Damascus (2Ki 5:12), Nineveh (Na 2:6,8) or Babylon (137:1), yet she had a "river." Here the "river" of 36:8 (see note there) serves as a metaphor for the continual outpouring of the sustaining and refreshing blessings of God, which make the city of God like the Garden of Eden (see Ge 2:10; Isa 33:21; 51:3; cf. also Eze 31:4–9). city of God. See v. 5; see especially Ps 48. God ... Most High. That is, God Most High (see 57:2; see also note on 3:7). Most High. See note on Ge 14:19. dwells. See note on 9:11.

46:5 at break of day. Or "as dawn approaches"—i.e., when attacks against cities were likely to be launched. His help brings on the dawn of deliverance, dispelling the night of danger (see 44:19 and note; cf. Isa 37:36 for an example).

God will help[i] her at break of

Psalm 47

For the director of music. Of the Sons of Korah. A psalm.

1Clap your hands,[b] all you nations;
shout to God with cries of joy.[c] 2How awesome[d] is the LORD Most High,[e]
the great King[f] over all the earth!
3He subdued[g] nations under us,
peoples under our feet.
4He chose our inheritance[h] for us, the pride of Jacob,[i] whom he loved. Selah

5God has ascended[j] amid shouts of joy,[k]
the LORD amid the sounding of trumpets.[l] 6Sing praises[m] to God, sing praises; sing praises to our King, sing praises.

[f] 9 Or chariots

46:6 Nations ... fall. Because of God's victory (see vv. 8–9; 48:4–7). in uproar. See v. 3 and note on vv. 1–3; see also 2:1–3; Rev 11:18. lifts his voice. See 2:5; 9:5; Jer 25:30; Am 1:2; see also 104:7. God's thunder is evoked (see introduction to Ps 29), the thunder of his wrath (see 18:13; Isa 2:10). earth melts. As though struck by lightning (see 97:4–5).

46:7 The people's glad response (also v. 11). LORD Almighty. See note on 1Sa 1:3. Jacob. See note on 14:7.

46:8–10 A declaration of the blessed effects of God's triumph over the nations.

46:8 Come and see. An invitation to see God's victories in the world (see 48:8 and note). the LORD. Emphatic because of its rare use in Book II of the Psalter. on the earth. Among the hostile nations.

46:9 No more attacks against his city. The verse probably speaks of universal peace (see note on 65:6–7). breaks ... shatters ... burns. See 76:3; see also 1Sa 2:4. For the Messiah's universal victory over Israel's enemies see Isa 9:2–7.

46:10 God's voice breaks through, as he addresses the nations (see v. 6)—the climax. Be still. Here, the Hebrew for this phrase probably means "Enough!" as in 1Sa 15:16 ("Stop!"). know. Acknowledge. I will be exalted ... in the earth. God's mighty acts in behalf of his people will bring him universal recognition, a major theme in the Psalter (see 22:27; 47:9; 57:5,11; 64:9; 65:8; 66:1–7; 67:2–5; 86:9; 98:2–3; 99:2–3; 102:15) and elsewhere in the OT (see Ex 7:5; 14:4,18; Lev 26:45; Nu 14:15; 1Sa 17:46; 1Ki 8:41–43; 2Ki 19:19; Eze 20:41; 28:25; 36:23; Hab 2:14). This has proven to be supremely true of God's climactic saving act in the birth, life, death, resurrection and glorification of Jesus Christ—yet to be brought to complete fruition at his return.

46:11 See note on v. 7.

Ps 47 Celebration of the universal reign of Israel's God: a testimony to the nations. This psalm belongs to a group of hymns to the Great King found elsewhere clustered in Ps 92–100. Here it serves to link Ps 46 and 48, identifying the God who reigns in Zion as "the great King over all the earth" (v. 2; see v. 7; 48:2). It dates from the period of the monarchy and was composed for use in the temple liturgy on one of the high festival days. The specific setting is perhaps the Feast of Tabernacles (see Lev 23:34), which was also the festival for which Solomon waited to dedicate the temple (see 1Ki 8:2). A liturgical procession is presupposed (v. 5), similar to that indicated in Ps 24; 68. Later Jewish usage employed this psalm in the synagogue liturgy for Rosh Hashanah (the New Year festival). The Christian church has appropriately employed it in the celebration of Christ's ascension (see v. 5). Structurally, vv. 5–6 form a centered (see note on 6:6) couplet between two four-line stanzas (in Hebrew). This center may represent a different voice in the liturgy.

47 title See note on Ps 42 title.

47:1–4 The nations are called to rejoice in the God of Israel, the Lord over all the earth—OT anticipation of the evangelization of the nations (see note on 9:1).

47:1 Clap your hands. As at the enthronement of a king (see 2Ki 11:12; see also 98:8) or at other times of rejoicing (see Isa 55:12). cries of joy. See 1Ki 1:40; 2Ki 11:14.

47:2–3 The Lord of all the earth has shaped the destiny of his people Israel (see 105:6; 135:4; Ex 9:29; 15:1–18; 19:5–6; Dt 7:6; 14:2; Isa 41:8).

47:2 How awesome ... ! See 68:35; 89:7; 99:3; 111:9; see also note on 45:4. Most High. See note on Ge 14:19. great King. A title often used by the imperial rulers of Assyria (see note on 2Ki 18:19).

47:3 See 2Sa 5:17–25; 8:1–14; 10.

47:4 inheritance. The promised land (see Ge 12:7; 17:8; Ex 3:8; Dt 1:8; Jer 3:18). pride. That in which he took supreme delight. Jacob. See note on 14:7.

47:5–6 The center of the poem (see note on 6:6). These verses portray the liturgical ascension of God to the temple—perhaps represented by the processional bearing of the ark into the temple. The ark is symbolic of God's throne; the temple is the earthly symbol of his heavenly palace (see Ps 24; 68).

47:5 shouts of joy ... sounding of trumpets. See note on v. 1. trumpets. The ram's horn, here announcing the presence of God as King (see 98:6; Ex 19:16,19; Jos 6:4).

7For God is the King of all the earth;[n] sing to him a psalm[g o] of praise.
8God reigns[p] over the nations;
God is seated on his holy throne.[q] 9The nobles of the nations assemble as the people of the God of Abraham,
for the kings[h] of the earth belong to God;[r]
he is greatly exalted.[s]

A song. A psalm of the Sons of Korah.

1Great is the LORD,[t] and most worthy of praise,[u]
in the city of our God,[v] his holy mountain.[w] 2It is beautiful[x] in its loftiness, the joy of the whole earth.
Like the utmost heights of Zaphon[i y] is Mount Zion,[z]
the[j] city of the Great King.[a] 3God is in her citadels;[b]
he has shown himself to be her fortress.[c] 4When the kings joined forces, when they advanced together,[d]

they fled in terror.[e] 6Trembling seized[f] them there, pain like that of a woman in labor.[g]
7You destroyed them like ships of Tarshish[h]
shattered by an east wind.[i] 8As we have heard,
so have we seen in the city of the LORD Almighty,
in the city of our God:
God makes her secure forever.[j]

47:7–9 The liturgical enthronement of God as world ruler. 47:7 God is the King of all the earth. See 2Sa 15:10; 2Ki 9:13; Isa 52:7. psalm. See NIV text note; see also note on Ps 32 title.

47:8 seated on his holy throne. In the Most Holy Place of the temple, where he takes the reins of world rule into his hands (see Jer 17:12). This verse is frequently echoed in Revelation (see Rev 4:9,10; 5:1,7,13; 6:16; 7:10,15; 19:4).

47:9 The nations acknowledge the God of Israel to be the Great King—anticipated as the final effect of God's rule (see note on 46:10). as the people of the God of Abraham. Thus the promises to Abraham will be fulfilled (see Ge 12:2–3; 17:4–6; 22:17–18). kings. See NIV text note; see also note on 3:3; cf. Isa 2:2; 56:7.

Ps 48 A celebration of the security of Zion (as viewed with the eyes of faith) in that it is the city of the Great King (see introductions to Ps 46–47). It may have been sung by the Levitical choir on behalf of the assembled worshipers at the temple. Structure and theme are beautifully matched. The first and last verses combine to frame the whole with a comforting confession concerning Zion's God. The center, v. 8 (see note on 6:6), summarizes the main theme of the body of the psalm. Four stanzas (having a symmetrical pattern in Hebrew: three lines, four lines, four lines, three lines) develop the theme: (1) the beauty of Zion as God's impregnable citadel (vv. 2–3); (2) the futility of all enemy attacks (vv. 4–7); (3) Zion's joy over God's saving acts (vv. 9–11)—related to the second stanza; (4) Zion as impregnable citadel (vv. 12–13)—related to the first stanza. Regularly distributed between the four main stanzas are allusions to the four primary directions (see notes on vv. 2,7,10,13)—suggesting that the city is secure from all points of attack.

48 title song. See note on Ps 30 title. of the Sons of Korah. See note on Ps 42 title.

48:1 in the city of our God, his holy mountain. See 46:4. our God. Occurs in this psalm only here, in the center (v. 8) and at the end (v. 14). holy mountain. See 43:3; see also note on 2:6.

48:2–3 Describes the lofty impregnability of Mount Zion.

48:2 beautiful. Its loftiness and secure position are its beauty (see note on 27:4). loftiness. Although not the highest ridge in its environment, in its significance as the mountain of God it is the "highest" mountain in the world (see 68:15–16 and note; Isa 2:2). joy of the whole earth. Perhaps referring to admiration from other nations, like that expressed by the queen of Sheba (see 1Ki 10:1–13). Zaphon. See NIV text note. Mount Zaphon in the far north was for the Phoenicians the sacred residence of El, the chief of their gods—as Mount Olympus was the mountain citadel of Zeus for the Greeks. Great King. See note on 47:2.

48:3 God himself, not her walls, was Zion's defense, a fact on which the next stanza elaborates (see note on vv. 12–13). her citadels. See v. 13.

48:4–7 The futile attacks of hostile nations—they fled in panic when they saw that the Great King was in Zion. Such events as the destruction of the confederacy in the days of Jehoshaphat (see 2Ch 20) or the slaughter of the Assyrians in the time of Hezekiah (see 2Ki 19:35–36) may have been in the psalmist's mind.

48:7 ships of Tarshish. Great merchant ships of the Mediterranean (see 1Ki 10:22 and NIV text note). shattered by an east wind. See Ac 27:14; see also 1Ki 22:48. east. See introduction above.

48:8 The central verse and theme (see note on 6:6). heard . . . seen. "Seen" is climactic, as in Job 42:5. They had heard because "our fathers have told us what you did in their days" (44:1; see 78:3), but now in the liturgical experience of God at his temple they have "seen" how secure the city of God is. LORD Almighty. See note on 1Sa 1:3. our God. See note on v. 1.

48:9–11 The worshipers meditate at the temple with joy because of God's mighty acts in Zion's behalf.

48:9 Within your temple. In the temple courts. unfailing love. See note on 6:4. As is clear from vv. 10–11, reference here is to God's saving acts by which he has expressed his covenant love for his people (see 31:21; 40:9–10).

48:10 name. See note on 5:11. reaches. From the temple to the ends of the earth (see 9:11; 22:27). right hand. In your praise reaches to the ends of the earth;[n] your right hand is filled with righteousness.

[11]Mount Zion rejoices, the villages of Judah are glad because of your judgments.[o]

[12]Walk about Zion, go around her, count her towers,[p] [13]consider well her ramparts,[q] view her citadels,[r]
that you may tell of them to the next generation.[s] [14]For this God is our God for ever and ever;
he will be our guide[t] even to the end.

Psalm 49

For the director of music. Of the Sons of Korah. A psalm.

[1]Hear[u] this, all you peoples;[v] listen, all who live in this world,[w] [2]both low and high,[x]
rich and poor alike:
[3]My mouth will speak words of wisdom;[y]
the utterance from my heart will give understanding.[z] [4]I will turn my ear to a proverb;[a] with the harp[b] I will expound my riddle:[c]

[5]Why should I fear[d] when evil days come, when wicked deceivers surround me—[6]those who trust in their wealth[e] and boast[f] of their great riches?[g] [7]No man can redeem the life of another or give to God a ransom for him—[8]the ransom[h] for a life is costly, no payment is ever enough—[i] [9]that he should live on[j] forever and not see decay.[k]

[10]For all can see that wise men die;[l]
the foolish and the senseless[m] alike perish and leave their wealth[n] to others.[o] [11]Their tombs[p] will remain their houses[k] forever, their dwellings for endless generations,[q]
though they had[l] named[r] lands after themselves.

[12]But man, despite his riches, does not endure;[s] he is[m] like the beasts that perish.[t]

Hebrew idiom a subtle reference to the south. righteousness. Righteous acts (see 40:9–10 and note; see also note on 4:1).

48:11 judgments. God's righteous judgments by which he has acted in defense of Zion.

48:12–13 The people contemplate Zion's defense, viewed from the perspective of what they have "seen" (v. 8) at the temple. The strength of Zion's "towers," "ramparts" and "citadels" is the presence of God.

48:13 next generation. Lit. "the generation behind"; in Hebrew idiom "behind" is a subtle reference to the west.

48:14 our God. See note on v. 1. guide. The great Shepherd-King (see note on 23:1). the end. Lit. "death."

Ps 49 A word of instruction from the temple following upon Ps 46–48 (see introductions to those psalms). It concerns rich fools who proudly rely on their great wealth and on themselves to assure their security in the world (see Ps 52). The Levitical author knows what it is to be without wealth (see Nu 18:21–24; Dt 14:27–29) and has observed the attitudes of many of the rich (see vv. 5–6). He has seen through their folly, however, and offers his wisdom for all to hear (vv. 1–2), so that those who are awed by the rich may be freed from their spell. Inescapable death is their undoing and their destiny, and in the end the "upright will rule over them" (v. 14). The date of this psalm may well be postexilic. See introduction to Ps 37.

49 title See note on Ps 42 title.

49:1–4 Introduction.

49:1–2 More like the address of the prophets (see 1Ki 22:28; Isa 34:1; Mic 1:2) than that of the wisdom teachers (see 34:11; Pr 1:8,10; 2:1).

49:3 See Mt 12:34. wisdom. See essay on "Wisdom Literature," p. 721. heart. See note on 4:7.

49:4 turn my ear. The wisdom he is about to speak first had to be "heard" by him—all true wisdom is from God (see Job 28). with the harp. Another hint of the author's sense of inspiration (see 1Sa 10:5–6; 2Ki 3:15).

49:5–11 Those of little means or power need not be unsettled when surrounded by rich fools who threaten and strut; death is their destiny.

49:7–9 Wealth cannot buy escape from death—not even one's "redeemer" can accomplish it (cf. Ex 21:30; Lev 25:47–49). Only God himself can redeem a life from the grave (see v. 15 and note).

49:10 Anyone with "eyes in his head" (Ecc 2:14) can see that even the wise die (see Ecc 7:2; 9:5) and leave their wealth to others (see Ecc 2:18,21). How much more the fool (see 73:18–20; 92:6–7)! See also 89:48; Job 30:23; Ecc 2:14–16. wise men ... foolish. Essentially the "righteous" and the "wicked" of Ps 37. wealth. Often gotten by devious means that their foolish "wisdom" had contrived (v. 5). to others. But not to their children (see note on 37:29; see also 39:6; Lk 12:20–21).

49:11 Though they lavish wealth on their tombs and try at least to perpetuate their memory by putting their names to their large landholdings (see Nu 32:41) as an enduring memorial, they only suffer the bitter irony of having their graves as their "eternal home" (Ecc 12:5).

49:12 Their epitaph (see note on 10:18; see also Ecc 3:19; 7:2) and the psalm's refrain (see NIV text note; see also introduction to Ps 42–43).

13This is the fate of those who trust in themselves,[u] and of their followers, who approve their sayings. Selah 14Like sheep they are destined[v] for the grave,[n w] and death will feed on them.
The upright will rule[x] over them in the morning;
their forms will decay in the grave,[n]
far from their princely mansions.
15But God will redeem my life[o] from the grave;[y]
he will surely take me to himself.[z] Selah

16Do not be overawed when a man grows rich,
when the splendor of his house increases; 17for he will take nothing[a] with him when he dies,
his splendor will not descend with him.[b] 18Though while he lived he counted himself blessed—[c] and men praise you when you prosper—19he will join the generation of his fathers,[d] who will never see the light[e] ⌊of life⌋.
20A man who has riches without understanding[f] is like the beasts that perish.[g]

Psalm 50

A psalm of Asaph.

[n] 14 Hebrew Sheol; also in verse 15 [o] 15 Or soul

49:13–15 Their fate and mine—so "why should I fear?" (v. 5).

49:13 in themselves. As those who have "succeeded" (see v. 6).

49:14 Like sheep. Death is already their shepherd, "guiding" them to the grave. death will feed on them. For the imagery of death (or the grave) as an insatiable monster feeding on its victims see 69:15; 141:7; Pr 1:12; 27:20; 30:15–16; Isa 5:14; Jnh 2:2 ("depths"; lit. "belly"); Hab 2:5. The imagery is borrowed from Canaanite mythology, which so depicts the god Mot (death). As one Canaanite document reads, "Do not approach divine Mot, lest he put you like a lamb into his mouth." rule over. See Lev 26:17; Isa 14:2; perhaps "prevail over" in contrast to the situation referred to in v. 5. in the morning. See vv. 15,19 and notes on 6:5; 11:7; 16:9–11; 17:15. But see also introduction to Ps 57.

49:15 See note on vv. 7–9. redeem ... from the grave. While this may refer to saving (for a while) from the universal prospect of death (as in Job 5:20; see 116:8), the context strongly suggests that the author, as one of the upright, speaks of his final destiny. Perhaps the thought is of being conveyed into the presence of God in his heavenly temple, analogous to the later Jewish thought of being conveyed to "Abraham's side" (Lk 16:22; see notes on 6:5; 11:7; 16:9–11; 17:15). my life. Or "my soul" (see NIV text note; see also note on 6:3). take me to himself. See 73:24; see also Ge 5:24 and note.

49:16–19 So do not let the present state of the wealthy captivate you.

49:16 his house. His whole estate (see Ex 20:17).

49:19 light ⌊of life⌋. See notes on 27:1; Isa 53:11.

49:20 The last word. See note on v. 12.

Ps 50 The Lord calls his covenant people to account as they meet before him in worship at the temple. (Thus the psalm has links with Ps 46–49; see introductions to those psalms.) The psalm appears to have been composed for a temple liturgy in which Israel reaffirms her commitment to God's covenant. A leader of the Levitical choir addresses Israel on behalf of the Lord (see Ps 15; 24, either of which may have been spoken earlier in the same liturgy). This liturgy was possibly related to the Feast of Tabernacles (see Dt 31:9–13; see also introduction to Ps 47). In its rebuke of a false understanding of sacrifice the psalm has affinity with the prophecies of Amos, Micah and Isaiah and so may date from the late eighth and/or early seventh centuries B.C. Others find a closer relationship with the reformation of Josiah (2Ki 22:1–23:25) and the ministry of Jeremiah. Structurally, the psalm has three parts: (1) the announcement of the "coming" of Israel's covenant Lord to call his people to account (vv. 1–6); (2) the Lord's words of correction for those of honest intent (vv. 7–15); (3) his sharp rebuke of "the wicked" among them (vv. 16–23).

50 title A traditional ascription of the psalm to Asaph; or it may mean "for Asaph" (see "For Jeduthun" in Ps 39 title) or for the descendants of Asaph who functioned in his place. This psalm may have been separated from the other psalms of Asaph (73–83) because of its thematic links with Ps 46–49. Asaph was one of David's three choir leaders (see note on Ps 39 title).

50:1–6 The Lord comes (v. 3) in the temple worship to correct and rebuke his people: Israel must know that the God of Zion is the God of Sinai (see Ex 19:16–20).

50:1 The Mighty One, God, the LORD. A sequence found elsewhere only in Jos 22:22 (see note there). Ps 50 is noteworthy for its use of numerous names and titles for God (seven in all: three in v. 1, four in the rest of the psalm; see notes on vv. 6,14,21–22). the earth. See "the heavens ... the earth" (v. 4) and "the heavens" (v. 6). When Moses renewed the covenant between the Lord and Israel on the plains of Moab, he called upon heaven and earth to serve as third-party witnesses to the covenant (Dt 30:19; 31:28). The Lord now summons these to testify that his present word to his people is in complete accord with that covenant (see Isa 1:2).

50:2 perfect in beauty. Because God resides there (cf. Eze 27:3–4,11; 28:12). shines forth. Manifests his glory as he comes to act (see 80:1; 94:1; Dt 33:2; cf. Eze 28:7,17), now confronting his people, but not yet announcing judgment as in Isa 1 or Mic 1.

50:3 comes. From his enthronement between the cherubim (see 80:1; 99:1; see also 1Sa 4:4; 2Sa 6:2; 2Ki 19:15) in the Most Holy Place of the temple (see note on 28:2; see also Isa 26:21; Mic 1:3). will not be silent. No longer (see v. 21) will he let their sins go unrebuked. fire ... tempest. See Ex 19:16,18.

a fire devours[o] before him,[p]
and around him a tempest[q] rages.

and the earth,[r] that he may judge
his people:[s]

O Israel, and I will testify[x] against
you:

[16]But to the wicked, God says:

"What right have you to recite my laws
or take my covenant[r] on your lips?[s]
[17]You hate[t] my instruction and cast my words behind[u] you.
[18]When you see a thief, you join[v] with
him;
you throw in your lot with adulterers.[w] [19]You use your mouth for evil and harness your tongue to deceit.[x] [20]You speak continually against your brother[y]
and slander your own mother's son.
[21]These things you have done and I kept silent;[z]
you thought I was altogether[p] like
you.
But I will rebuke[a] you and accuse[b] you to your face.

[22]"Consider this, you who forget God,[c]

none to rescue:[d] [23]He who sacrifices thank offerings
honors me,

[p]21 Or thought the 'I AM' was

honors me,

50:4 judge. Call them to account in accordance with his covenant.

50:5 consecrated ones. See note on 4:3. by sacrifice. Sacrifices were a part of the ritual that sealed the covenant (see Ex 24:4–8) and continued to be an integral part of Israel's expression of covenant commitment to the Lord.

50:6 proclaim. See note on v. 1. righteousness. See note on 4:1. judge. Lord over his people (the Hebrew for "judge" and that for "king" are sometimes used synonymously; see, e.g., Isa 33:22). "Judge" occurs as a title for God (see note on v. 1) in, e.g., 94:2; Ge 18:25; Jdg 11:27.

50:7–15 The Lord corrects his people.

50:7 my people. "Our God" (v. 3) and "your God" (here) reflect the covenant bond. I am God, your God. See Ex 19:3–6; Lev 19:2–4,10,25,31,34,36; 20:7,24; 22:33; 23:22.

50:8–13 Israel had not failed to bring enough sacrifices (v. 8), but she was ever tempted to think that sacrifices were of first importance to God, as though he was dependent on them. This notion was widespread among Israel's pagan neighbors. See note on 40:6.

50:10 thousand. Used here figuratively for a very large number.

50:12 the world . . . in it. See 24:1 and note.

50:14–15 God wants Israel to acknowledge her dependence on him, by giving thank offerings for his mercies (v. 14) and by praying to him in times of need (v. 15; see 116:17–19). Those who do so may expect God's gracious answer to their prayers (stated more directly in v. 23). God also desires obedience to his moral law (see vv. 16–21 and note on 40:6).

50:14 thank offerings. See Lev 7:12–13. God . . . Most High. That is, God Most High (see 57:2 and note on 3:7). your vows. Vows that accompanied prayer in times of need, usually involving thank offerings (see 66:13–15), always involving praise of the Lord for his answer to prayer (see note on 7:17). See also Heb 13:15. Most High. See note on v. 1; see also note on Ge 14:19.

50:15 honor me. With praise in the fulfillment of the vows (see v. 23)—and, implicitly, with obedience to his covenant law (see following verses).

50:16–23 The Lord's rebuke of the wicked.

50:16 recite my laws. Apparently a part of the liturgy of covenant commitment.

50:17 You hate my instruction. They formally participate in the holy ritual but reject God's law as the rule for life outside the ritual.

50:19 use your mouth for evil. See note on 5:9.

50:21 God's merciful and patient "silence" is distorted by the wicked into bad and self-serving theology (see Ecc 8:11; Isa 42:14; 57:11). thought I was altogether. See NIV text note; Ex 3:14 and note (see also note on v. 1). accuse you to your face. Set forth the particulars of my indictment before your eyes.

50:22 God. A relatively rare word for "God" (Hebrew Eloah), though common in Job. See note on v. 1.

50:23 See note on vv. 14–15.

Psalm 51

For the director of music. A psalm of David. When the prophet Nathan came to him after David had committed adultery with Bathsheba.[g]

[1]Have mercy[h] on me, O God, according to your unfailing love;[i] according to your great compassion[j] blot out[k] my transgressions.[l] [2]Wash away[m] all my iniquity and cleanse[n] me from my sin.

[3]For I know my transgressions, and my sin is always before me.[o] [4]Against you, you only, have I sinned[p]
and done what is evil in your sight,[q]
so that you are proved right when you speak
and justified when you judge.[r] [5]Surely I was sinful[s] at birth,[t] sinful from the time my mother conceived me.

[6]Surely you desire truth in the inner parts[r];
you teach[s] me wisdom[u] in the inmost place.[v]

[7]Cleanse[w] me with hyssop,[x] and I will be clean;
wash me, and I will be whiter than snow.[y]
[8]Let me hear joy and gladness;[z] let the bones[a] you have crushed rejoice.
[9]Hide your face from my sins[b] and blot out[c] all my iniquity.

[10]Create in me a pure heart,[d] O God, and renew a steadfast spirit within me.[e] [11]Do not cast me[f] from your presence[g]

Ps 51 David's humble prayer for forgiveness and cleansing. As the prayer of a contrite sinner, it represents a proper response to the Lord's confrontation of his people in Ps 50 (compare v. 16 with 50:8–15). This psalm has many points of contact with Ps 25. In traditional Christian usage it is one of seven penitential psalms (see introduction to Ps 6). The psalm is constructed symmetrically: A two-verse introduction balances a two-verse conclusion, and the enclosed four stanzas in Hebrew consist of five lines, three lines, three lines and five lines respectively. The whole is framed by David's prayer for himself (vv. 1–2) and for Zion (vv. 18–19). The well-being of the king and the city stand and fall together (see 28:8 and note on 3:8).

51 title For the director of music. See note on Ps 4 title. When. For the event referred to see 2Sa 11:1–12:25; see also note on Ps 3 title.

51:1–2 In mercy grant pardon (see Lk 18:13). Note the piling up of synonyms: mercy, unfailing love, great compassion; blot out, wash, cleanse; transgressions, iniquity, sin (for this last triad see note on 32:5).

51:1 unfailing love. See note on 6:4. blot out. See v. 9. The image is that of a papyrus scroll (see note on 9:5) on which God had recorded David's deeds. The "blotting out" of sins pictures forgiveness (Jer 18:23; see Isa 43:25). For the imagery of God's keeping records of the events in his realm in the way that earthly kings do, see 56:8; 87:6; 130:3; 139:16; Ne 13:14; Da 7:10; see also Ex 32:32–33.

51:2 See v. 7. Wash. As a filthy garment. cleanse me. Make me clean in your sight (see Lev 11:32).

51:3–6 Confession of sin (cf. Pr 28:13; 1Jn 1:9).

51:3 before me. On my mind.

51:4 Against you . . . only. David acknowledges that his sin was preeminently against God (see 2Sa 12:13; cf. Ge 20:6; 39:9; Lk 15:18). He had violated specific covenant stipulations (Ex 20:13–14,17). when you speak . . . when you judge. As the Lord did through Nathan the prophet (2Sa 12:7–12). For a NT application see Ro 3:4.

51:5 He cannot plead that this sin was a rare aberration in his life; it sprang from what he is and has been (in his "inner parts," v. 6) from birth (see 58:3; Ge 8:21; cf. Jn 9:34; Eph 2:3). The apparently similar statements in Job 14:4; 15:14; 25:4–6 rise from a different motivation.

51:6 The great contrast: He has acted absolutely contrary to what God desires and to what God has been teaching him "in the inmost place." But it is just this "desire" of God and this "teaching" of God that are his hope—what he pleads for in vv. 7,10. truth. Moral integrity. inner parts. See 139:13–16; Job 38:36. wisdom. Whoever gives himself over to sin is a fool; he who has God's law in his heart is wise (see 37:30–31). inmost place. The most secret place within.

51:7–9 Renewed prayer for pardon.

51:7 Cleanse me. Lit. "Un-sin me." hyssop. Used in ritual cleansing; see note on Ex 12:22. be clean. The Hebrew root for this phrase is the same as that for "cleanse" in v. 2. whiter than snow. Like a filthy garment, he needs washing (see note on v. 2); but if God washes him, he will be so pure that there is no figurative word that can describe him (see Isa 1:18; Da 7:9; Rev 7:14; 19:14).

51:8 Let me hear joy. Let me be surrounded by joy (see 32:7 and note; see also 35:27), or let me hear a prophetic oracle of forgiveness that will result in joy—from the assurance of sins forgiven (see 2Sa 12:13). bones. See note on 6:2.

51:9 Hide your face. From what is "always before me" (v. 3). blot out. See note on v. 1.

51:10–12 Prayer for purity—for a pure heart, a steadfast spirit of faithfulness and a willing spirit of service. These can be his only if God does not reject him and take his Holy Spirit from him. If granted, the joy of God's salvation will return to gladden his troubled soul.

51:10 Create. As something new, which cannot emerge from what now is (see v. 5), and which only God can fashion (see Ge 1:1; Isa 65:17; Jer 31:22). heart. See note on 4:7.

51:11 The two requests are essentially one (see 139:7; Eze 39:29). David's prayer recalls the rejection of Saul (see 1Sa 16:1,14; 2Sa 7:15) and pleads for God not or take your Holy Spirit[h] from me.

[12]Restore to me the joy of your salvation[i] and grant me a willing spirit,[j] to sustain me.[k]

[13]Then I will teach transgressors your ways,[l] and sinners[m] will turn back to you.[n] [14]Save me[o] from bloodguilt,[p] O God, the God who saves me,[q]
and my tongue will sing of your righteousness.[r] [15]O Lord, open my lips,[s] and my mouth will declare your praise.
[16]You do not delight in sacrifice,[t] or I would bring it;
you do not take pleasure in burnt offerings.
[17]The sacrifices[u] of God are[t] a broken spirit;
a broken and contrite heart,[v]
O God, you will not despise.

[18]In your good pleasure make Zion[w] prosper; build up the walls of Jerusalem.[x] [19]Then there will be righteous sacrifices,[y] whole burnt offerings[z] to delight you;
then bulls[a] will be offered on your altar.

Psalm 52

For the director of music. A maskil[u] of David. When Doeg the Edomite[b] had gone to Saul and told him: "David has gone to the house of Ahimelech."

[1]Why do you boast of evil, you mighty man?
Why do you boast[c] all day long,[d]
you who are a disgrace in the eyes of God?
[2]Your tongue plots destruction;[e] it is like a sharpened razor,[f]
you who practice deceit.[g] [3]You love evil[h] rather than good, falsehood[i] rather than speaking the truth. Selah
[4]You love every harmful word,
O you deceitful tongue![j]

[5]Surely God will bring you down to everlasting ruin:
He will snatch you up and tear[k] you from your tent;
he will uproot[l] you from the land of the living.[m] Selah [6]The righteous will see and fear;
they will laugh[n] at him, saying, [7]"Here now is the man who did not make God his stronghold[o]
but trusted in his great wealth[p]

to take away his Spirit, by which he had equipped and qualified him for his royal office (see 1Sa 16:13; cf. 2Sa 23:1–2). Holy Spirit. The phrase is found elsewhere in the OT only in Isa 63:10–11. By his Spirit, God effected his purposes in creation (see 104:30; Ge 1:2; Job 33:4) and redemption (see Isa 32:15; 44:3; 63:11,14; Hag 2:5), equipped his servants for their appointed tasks (see Ex 31:3; Nu 11:29; Jdg 3:10; 1Sa 10:6; 16:13; Isa 11:2; 42:1), inspired his prophets (see Nu 24:2–3; 2Sa 23:2; Ne 9:30; Isa 59:21; 61:1; Eze 11:5; Mic 3:8; Zec 7:12) and directed their ministries (see 1Ki 18:12; 2Ki 2:16; Isa 48:16; Eze 2:2; 3:14). And it is by his Spirit that God gives his people a "new heart and . . . a new spirit" to live by his will (see Eze 36:26–27; see also Jer 24:7; 32:39; Eze 11:19; 18:31).

51:13–17 The vow to praise (see note on 7:17).

51:13 His praise for God's forgiveness and purification will be accompanied by instruction for sinners (see Ps 34 and note on 32:8–10). your ways. See 25:4 and note.

51:14 If God will only forgive, praise will follow. righteousness. See note on 4:1.

51:15 open my lips. By granting the forgiveness and cleansing I seek.

51:16 See note on 40:6.

51:17 broken spirit; a broken and contrite heart. What pleases God more than sacrifices is a humble heart that looks to him when troubles crush and penitently pleads for mercy when sin has been committed (see 50:7–15 and notes; see also 34:17–18).

51:18–19 Prayer for Zion (see note on 3:8).

51:19 righteous sacrifices. Such as are pleasing to God; here, sacrifices accompanied by praise for God's mercies (see 50:14–15 and notes).

Ps 52 Fearless confidence in God when under attack by an arrogant and evil enemy. David stands in the presence of God and from the high tower of that refuge hurls his denunciation (much like the prophetic denunciation in Isa 22:15–19) into the face of his attacker. Though not a wisdom psalm, it has much in common with Ps 49. The extended depiction of David's enemy forms a sharp contrast with the spirit of Ps 51. See also David's denunciation of Goliath (1Sa 17:45–47).

52 title For the director of music. See note on Ps 4 title. maskil. See note on Ps 32 title. When. See note on Ps 3 title. For the event referred to see 1Sa 22:9–10.

52:1–4 The enemy castigated.

52:1 Why . . . ? By what right? See 50:16; Isa 3:15. boast. By act as well as by word (see 75:4–5). mighty man. In his own estimation (see Isa 22:17).

52:2 Your tongue. See v. 4; see also note on 5:9.

52:3 Your whole moral sense is perverted. love. Prefer.

52:4 tongue. See note on v. 2.

52:5–7 The enemy's end announced (implicitly a prayer): God will slay you, and the righteous will mock you.

52:5 Note the triple imagery: "bring you down," "snatch you up," "uproot you." The arrogant enemy will meet the same end as the rich fools of Ps 49. from your tent. See Job 18:14. uproot you. Contrast v. 8.

52:6 righteous. See note on 1:5. fear. Learn from your downfall (see 40:3 and note on 34:8–14).

52:7 See Ps 49.

and grew strong by destroying others!"

8 But I am like an olive tree[q] flourishing in the house of God;
I trust[r] in God's unfailing love
for ever and ever.
9 I will praise you forever[s] for what you have done;
in your name I will hope,[t] for your name is good.[u]
I will praise you in the presence of your saints.[v]

Psalm 53

53:1–6pp — Ps 14:1–7

For the director of music. According to mahalath.[v] A maskil[w] of David.

1 The fool[w] says in his heart,
"There is no God."[x]
They are corrupt, and their ways are vile;
there is no one who does good.

2 God looks down from heaven[y]
on the sons of men
to see if there are any who understand,[z] any who seek God.[a] 3 Everyone has turned away,
they have together become corrupt;
there is no one who does good,
not even one.[b]

4 Will the evildoers never learn—those who devour my people as men eat bread and who do not call on God?
5 There they were, overwhelmed with dread, where there was nothing to dread.[c]
God scattered the bones[d] of those who attacked you;[e]
you put them to shame,[f] for God despised them.[g]

6 Oh, that salvation for Israel would come out of Zion!
When God restores the fortunes of his people, let Jacob rejoice and Israel be glad!

Psalm 54

For the director of music. With stringed instruments. A maskil[w] of David. When the Ziphites[h] had gone to Saul and said, "Is not David hiding among us?"

1 Save me[i], O God, by your name;[j] vindicate me by your might.[k]
2 Hear my prayer, O God;[l]
listen to the words of my mouth.

3 Strangers are attacking me;[m] ruthless men[n] seek my life[o]— men without regard for God.[p]

[w] Title: Probably a literary or musical term

52:8–9 David's security is God.
52:8 like an olive tree. Which lives for hundreds of years. flourishing. See 1:3. It will not be uprooted (see v. 5). in the house of God. Olive trees were not planted in the temple courts, but David had access to God's temple as his refuge (see 15:1; 23:6; 27:4; 61:4 and note), where he was kept safe (see 27:5 and note). unfailing love. See note on 6:4.
52:9 A vow to praise (see note on 7:17). name. See note on 5:11. saints. See note on 4:3.
Ps 53 A testimony concerning the folly of evil men, a somewhat revised duplicate of Ps 14; see introduction there. (The main difference between the two psalms is that here the word "God" is used instead of "the LORD"; see also note on v. 5.) The original psalm may have been revised in the light of an event such as is narrated in 2Ch 20. Here it also serves as a further commentary on the kind of arrogant fool denounced in Ps 52.
53 title For the director of music. See note on Ps 4 title. According to. See note on Ps 6 title. mahalath. Possibly the name of a tune (see note on Ps 9 title). The Hebrew appears to be the word for "suffering" or "sickness" (see Ps 88 title and NIV text note there). Perhaps the Hebrew phrase indicates here that the psalm is to be used in a time of affliction, when the godless mock (see Ps 102; see also note on 5:9). maskil. See note on Ps 32 title.
53:1–4 See notes on 14:1–4.
53:5 Differs considerably from 14:5–6, though the basic thought remains the same: God overwhelms the godless who attack his people. Here the verbs are in the past tense (perhaps to express the certainty of their downfall). where there was nothing to dread. They fell victim to fear when, humanly speaking, they were not even threatened. God's curse fell on them rather than on Israel (see Lev 26:36–37; see also Jdg 7:21; 2Ki 3:22–23; 7:6–7; Pr 28:1). scattered the bones. Over the battlefield of their defeat, their bodies left unburied like something loathsome (see Isa 14:18–20; Jer 8:2 and note). God despised them. As they had despised him.
53:6 See note on 14:7.
Ps 54 A prayer for deliverance from enemies who want to have David killed. The prayer is short, like that of Ps 3; 4; 13; yet it is one of the most typical prayers of the Psalter. Completely symmetrical, the prayer is framed by David's cry for vindication (v. 1) and his statement of assurance that he will look in triumph on his foes (v. 7). A confession of confidence (v. 4) centers the prayer (see 42:8 and note on 6:6). The opening stanza has two verses, like the conclusion, while vv. 3,5 each form a separate element in the prayer.
54 title For the director of music. See note on Ps 4 title. With stringed instruments. See note on Ps 4 title. maskil. See note on Ps 32 title. When. For the event referred to see 1Sa 23:19; see also note on Ps 3 title.
54:1–2 Prayer for God to judge his case (see Ps 17).
54:1 name. See v. 6; see also note on 5:11.
54:3 The case against his enemies. without regard for God. Like those of Ps 53.
54:4 The confession of confidence and the center of the poem (see 42:8 and note).

5 Let evil recoil[s] on those who slander me;
in your faithfulness[t] destroy them.

6 I will sacrifice a freewill offering[u] to you;
I will praise[v] your name, O LORD, for it is good.[w]
7 For he has delivered me[x] from all my troubles, and my eyes have looked in triumph on my foes.[y]

Psalm 55

For the director of music. With stringed instruments. A maskil[x] of David.

1 Listen to my prayer, O God, do not ignore my plea;[z]
2 hear me and answer me.[a]
My thoughts trouble me and I am distraught[b] 3 at the voice of the enemy, at the stares of the wicked;
for they bring down suffering upon me[c]
and revile[d] me in their anger.[e]

4 My heart is in anguish[f] within me;
the terrors[g] of death assail me.
5 Fear and trembling[h] have beset me;
horror[i] has overwhelmed me.
6 I said, "Oh, that I had the wings of a dove!
I would fly away and be at rest—
7 I would flee far away and stay in the desert;[j] Selah
8 I would hurry to my place of shelter,[k] far from the tempest and storm."[l]

9 Confuse the wicked, O Lord, confound their speech,[m] for I see violence and strife[n] in the city.[o] 10 Day and night they prowl[p] about on its walls; malice and abuse are within it.
11 Destructive forces[q] are at work in the city;
threats and lies[r] never leave its streets.

12 If an enemy were insulting me,
I could endure it;
if a foe were raising himself against me,
I could hide from him.
13 But it is you, a man like myself,
my companion, my close friend,[s] 14 with whom I once enjoyed sweet fellowship[t]
as we walked with the throng at the house of God.[u]

15 Let death take my enemies by surprise;[v] let them go down alive to the grave,[y w] for evil finds lodging among them.

16 But I call to God, and the LORD saves me.
17 Evening,[x] morning[y] and noon[z]
I cry out in distress,
and he hears my voice.
18 He ransoms me unharmed
from the battle waged against me,

54:5 The call for redress (see note on 5:10).
54:6 The vow to praise (see note on 7:17). name. See v. 1; see also note on 5:11.
54:7 Assurance of being heard (see note on 3:8).

Ps 55 A prayer for God's help when threatened by a powerful conspiracy in Jerusalem under the leadership of a former friend. The situation described is like that of Absalom's conspiracy against the king (see 2Sa 15–17): The city is in turmoil; danger is everywhere; there is uncertainty as to who can be trusted; rumors, false reports and slander are circulating freely. Under such circumstances David longs for a quiet retreat to escape it all (vv. 6–8). That being out of the question, he casts his cares on the Lord, whom he knows he can trust. In its structure, the prayer is framed by a plea for help (v. 1) and a simple confession of faith: "I trust in you" (v. 23).

55 title For the director of music. See note on Ps 4 title. With stringed instruments. See note on Ps 4 title. maskil. See note on Ps 32 title.
55:1–3 Initial appeal for God to hear.
55:4–8 His heart's anguish.
55:4–5 Danger is everywhere (see 31:13), a danger so great that it is as if death itself were stalking him (see 18:4–5; 116:3).
55:4 heart. See note on 4:7. terrors of death. See 1Sa 5:11; 15:32; 28:5; Job 18:14.
55:6–8 He longs for a quiet retreat, away from treacherous and conniving people (see similarly Jer 9:2–6).
55:9–11 Prayer for God to foil the plots of his enemies.
55:9 Confuse ... confound their speech. Paralyze the conspirators with conflicting designs, as at Babel (Ge 11:5–9; see 2Sa 17:1–14). the city. See v. 11; Jerusalem.
55:10 malice and abuse. Like watchmen on the walls (see 127:1; 130:6; SS 5:7).
55:11 threats and lies. Like watchmen who patrol the city streets (see SS 3:3).
55:12–14 The insults and plots of an enemy can be endured—but those of a treacherous friend?
55:13 my companion, my close friend. See v. 20; see also 41:9 and note.
55:14 at the house of God. Their ties of friendship had been a bond hallowed by common commitment to the Lord and sealed by its public display in the presence of God and the worshipers at the temple.
55:15 Prayer for redress (see note on 5:10). Let death take my enemies. The conspirators were seeking his death. alive to the grave. May they go to the grave before life has run its normal course (see v. 23; Nu 16:29–33; Pr 1:12; Isa 5:14).
55:16–19 Assurance of being heard (see note on 3:8).
55:17 Evening, morning and noon I cry out. Cf. Da 6:10.
55:18 ransoms. Here a vivid synonym for "rescues" (see Isa 50:2; Jer 31:11).

Psalm 56

For the director of music. To ⌞the tune of⌟ "A Dove on Distant Oaks." Of David. A miktam.[z] When the Philistines had seized him in Gath.

1Be merciful to me,[o] O God, for men hotly pursue me;[p] all day long they press their attack.[q]
2My slanderers pursue me all day long;[r]
many are attacking me in their pride.[s]

3When I am afraid,[t]
I will trust in you.[u]
4In God, whose word I praise,[v] in God I trust; I will not be afraid.[w]
What can mortal man do to me?[x]

5All day long they twist my words;[y] they are always plotting to harm
me.
6They conspire,[z] they lurk, they watch my steps,[a] eager to take my life.[b]

7On no account let them escape;[c] in your anger, O God, bring down
the nations.[d] 8Record my lament;
list my tears on your scroll[a e]—
are they not in your record?[f]

9Then my enemies will turn back[g]
when I call for help.[h]
By this I will know that God is for me.[i] 10In God, whose word I praise, in the LORD, whose word I praise—11in God I trust; I will not be afraid.
What can man do to me?

12I am under vows[j] to you, O God;
I will present my thank offerings to
you.

[a 8] Or / put my tears in your wineskin

55:19 He who is the eternal King will deal with those who "never change" in their ways and show "no fear of God" (see 36:1 and note; see also Ps 14; 53).
55:20–21 Further sorrowful (or angry) reflection over the treachery of his former friend.
55:20 his friends. Lit. "those at peace with him" (see 7:4).
55:21 See 28:3; Pr 5:3–4; see also note on 5:9. heart. See note on 4:7.
55:22–23 Once more, assurance of being heard.
55:22 A testimony to all who are assembled at the temple. 1Pe 5:7 echoes this assurance. righteous. See note on 1:5.
55:23 pit of corruption. The grave (see note on 30:1). not live out half their days. See note on v. 15.

Ps 56 A prayer for help when the psalmist is attacked by enemies and his very life is threatened. It is marked by consoling trust in the face of unsettling fear. Structurally, the prayer is framed by an urgent appeal to God (vv. 1–2) and a word of confident assurance (vv. 12–13). An inner frame, vv. 3–4 and vv. 10–11, confesses a sure trust in God in a form that is almost a refrain. The prayer itself is developed in the intervening verses (vv. 5–9).
56 title For the director of music. See note on Ps 4 title. To ⌞the tune of⌟. See note on Ps 9 title. miktam. See note on Ps 16 title. When. See note on Ps 3 title. For the event referred to see 1Sa 21:10–15; see also Ps 34 title and note. had seized. Or "were about to seize."
56:1–2 Initial appeal for God's help.
56:2 My slanderers. The enemies' chief weapon is the tongue (see note on 5:9). their pride. Confident in their position of strength, they take no account of David's God (see notes on 3:2; 5:9; 10:11).
56:3–4 See vv. 10–11; confession of trust in the face of fear.
56:4 word. God's reassuring promise that he will be the God of his people and will come to their aid when they appeal to him (see 50:15; 91:15; see also 119:74,81; 130:5). mortal man. Lit. "flesh"—i.e., man's feebleness compared with God's power (see note on 10:18).
56:5–7 Accusation and call for redress (see note on 5:9–10).
56:5 twist my words. See v. 2.
56:7 See note on 5:10. anger. See note on 2:5.
56:8–9 Appeal for God to take special note of the psalmist's troubles.
56:8 Record . . . list . . . on your scroll. Record my troubles in your heavenly royal records as matters calling for your action (see note on 51:1).
56:9 If God takes such note of his tears that he records them in his book, he will surely respond to David's call for help.
56:10–11 Renewed confession of trust in the face of fear (see vv. 3–4).
56:12–13 Assurance of being heard (see note on 3:8).
56:12 I am under vows. Speaking as if his prayer has already been heard, David acknowledges that now he must keep the vows he made to God when he was

13For you have delivered me[b] from death[k]
and my feet from stumbling, that I may walk before God
in the light of life.[c][l]

Psalm 57

57:7-11pp — Ps 108:1-5

For the director of music. ⌊To the tune of⌋ "Do Not Destroy." Of David. A miktam.[d] When he had fled from Saul into the cave.[m]

1Have mercy on me, O God, have mercy on me, for in you my soul takes refuge.[n]
I will take refuge in the shadow of your wings[o]
until the disaster has passed.[p]

2I cry out to God Most High, to God, who fulfills ⌊his purpose⌋ for me.[q] 3He sends from heaven and saves me,[r] rebuking those who hotly pursue me;[s] Selah
God sends his love and his faithfulness.[t]

4I am in the midst of lions;[u]
I lie among ravenous beasts—men whose teeth are spears and arrows, whose tongues are sharp swords.[v]

5Be exalted, O God, above the heavens;
let your glory be over all the earth.[w]

6They spread a net for my feet[x]—
I was bowed down[y] in distress.
They dug a pit[z] in my path—
but they have fallen into it themselves.[a] Selah

7My heart is steadfast, O God, my heart is steadfast;[b]
I will sing and make music.
8Awake, my soul!
Awake, harp and lyre![c]
I will awaken the dawn.

9I will praise you, O Lord, among the nations;
I will sing of you among the peoples.
10For great is your love, reaching to the heavens;
your faithfulness reaches to the skies.[d]

11Be exalted, O God, above the heavens;[e] let your glory be over all the earth.[f]

56:13 me. See NIV text note; see also note on 6:3. stumbling. See note on 35:15. before God. See note on 11:7. light of life. The full blessedness of life (see note on 36:9).

Ps 57 A prayer for deliverance when threatened by fierce enemies (it has many links with Ps 56). The psalm appears to reflect the imagery of the night of danger (v. 4: "I lie [down]") followed by the morning of salvation (v. 8: "I will awaken the dawn"). For other instances of these associations see 30:5; 46:5; 59:6,14,16; 63:1,6; 90:14. Verses 7–11 are used again in 108:1–5. The psalm is composed of two parts, equal in length (vv. 1–5 and vv. 6–11) and alike in structure—both contain three Hebrew couplets and end with an identical refrain. (For the use of refrains elsewhere see introduction to Ps 42–43.)

57 title See note on Ps 56 title. Do Not Destroy. See Ps 58; 59; 75 titles. When. For the event referred to see 1Sa 24:1–3; see also Ps 142 title.

57:1–5 The prayer.

57:1 Initial cry for God's merciful help. my soul. Or "I," as in v. 4, where the first "I" is lit. "My soul" (see note on 6:3). shadow of your wings. See note on 17:8.

57:2–3 Confidence of being heard.

57:2 Most High. See note on Ge 14:19. who fulfills ⌊his purpose⌋ for me. See 138:8. God will not let David's enemies thwart his divine purposes for anointing him king (see 1Sa 16:1,12; 2Sa 7). But the Hebrew can also be translated "who makes an end ⌊of troubles⌋ for me" (see 7:9).

57:3 He sends. God sends his love and faithfulness (here personified; see note on 23:6) as his messengers from heaven to save his servant (see note on 43:3). his love and his faithfulness. See note on 26:3. love. See note on 6:4.

57:4 The threatening situation. I lie. As a sheep among lions. ravenous beasts. The psalmists often compare their enemies to ferocious beasts (see note on 7:2). (The use of the metaphor here has no connection with the description of Saul and Jonathan in 2Sa 1:23.) tongues. See note on 5:9.

57:5 A prayer for God to show his exalted power and glory throughout his creation by coming to his servant's rescue (see 7:6–7; 21:13; 46:10; 59:5,8; 113:4–9; cf. Ex 14:4; Isa 26:15; 44:23; 59:19; see also note on Ps 46:10).

57:6–11 Praise for God's saving help—confidently anticipating the desired deliverance. For such a sudden transition from prayer to assurance see note on 3:8.

57:6 The threat and its outcome: The enemies suffer the calamity they plotted. net ... pit. They hunted him as if he were a wild beast, but the "lions" themselves were caught.

57:7 All cause for fear has been removed. heart. See note on 4:7. is steadfast. Feels secure (see 112:7).

57:8 Awake ... Awake. Greet with joy the dawn of the day of deliverance (see Isa 51:9,17; 52:1). soul. Lit. "glory" (see note on 7:5). harp and lyre. Instruments (here personified) to accompany the praise of the Lord at his temple in celebration of deliverance (see 71:22; 81:2; and note on Ps 4 title). awaken the dawn. With joyful cries proclaiming God's saving act. (Dawn, too, is here personified—the Canaanites even deified it.)

57:9–10 The vow to praise (see notes on 7:17; 9:1).

57:10 love. See note on 6:4. love ... faithfulness. That is, love-and-faithfulness (see v. 3; note on 36:5; see also note on 3:7). reaching to the heavens ... to the skies. See note on 36:5.

57:11 The refrain (see v. 5), but now as praise (see 18:46; 30:1; 34:3; 35:27; 40:16; 70:4; 92:8; 97:9; 99:2; 113:4; 148:13).

Psalm 58

For the director of music. ⌊To the tune of⌋ "Do Not Destroy." Of David. A miktam.[e]

[1]Do you rulers indeed speak justly?[g]
Do you judge uprightly among men?
[2]No, in your heart you devise injustice,[h] and your hands mete out violence on the earth.[i] [3]Even from birth the wicked go astray;
from the womb they are wayward and speak lies.
[4]Their venom is like the venom of a snake,[j]
like that of a cobra that has stopped its ears, [5]that will not heed[k] the tune of the charmer,[l] however skillful the enchanter may be.

[6]Break the teeth in their mouths, O God;[m] tear out, O LORD, the fangs of the lions![n]

[7]Let them vanish like water that flows away;[o]
when they draw the bow, let their arrows be blunted.[p] [8]Like a slug melting away as it moves along,[q] like a stillborn child,[r] may they not see the sun.

[9]Before your pots can feel ⌊the heat of⌋ the thorns[s]— whether they be green or dry—the wicked will be swept away.[ft] [10]The righteous will be glad[u] when they are avenged,[v] when they bathe their feet in the blood of the wicked.[w] [11]Then men will say,
"Surely the righteous still are rewarded;[x]
surely there is a God who judges the earth."[y]

[e]Title: Probably a literary or musical term [f]9 The meaning of the Hebrew for this verse is uncertain.

Ps 58 A prayer for God, the supreme Judge, to set right the affairs of men, judging those rulers who corrupt justice, and championing the cause of the righteous. (The psalm was applied by the early church to Jesus' trial before the Sanhedrin; see Mt 26:57–68 and parallels.) Concern for the just use of judicial power is pervasive throughout the OT. This was the primary agency in the administrative structures of the ancient Near East for the protection of the innocent, usually the poor and powerless, against the assaults of unscrupulous men, usually the rich and powerful. Israelite society was troubled with the corruption of this judicial power from the days of Samuel to the end of the monarchy (see, e.g., 1Sa 8:3; Isa 1:23; 5:23; 10:1–2; Eze 22:6,12; Am 5:7,10–13; Mic 3:1–3,9–11; 7:2). Even in David's time all was not well (see 2Sa 15:1–4). For the central concern of this psalm see Ps 82. Structurally, the psalm is framed by a rhetorical address to the wicked judges in their absence (vv. 1–2) and by a reassuring word to "the righteous" (vv. 9–11). The frame also emphasizes the fact that those who do not judge uprightly (v. 1) will be judged by God (v. 11).

58 title For the director of music. See note on Ps 4 title. ⌊To the tune of⌋. See note on Ps 9 title. Do Not Destroy. See Ps 57; 59; 75 titles. miktam. See note on Ps 16 title.

58:1–5 Accusation against the wicked judges whose mouths, hearts and hands (vv. 1–2) are united in the pursuit of injustice.

58:1 rulers. Lit. "gods," a title applied to those whose administrative positions called upon them to act as earthly representatives of God's heavenly court (see NIV text notes on Ex 21:6; 22:8–9; see also Dt 1:17; 2Ch 19:6). speak justly. Make just judicial pronouncements.

58:2 heart. See note on 4:7. mete out violence. Issue decisions that result in cruel injustice.

58:3 from birth . . . from the womb. Their corrupt ways are not sporadic; they act in accordance with their nature (see 51:5). Here reference is to the wicked; the author does not make a general statement about all people, as is the case in Ge 6:5; 8:21; Job 14:4; 15:14–16; 25:4–6. the wicked. See their description in Ps 10. speak lies. They have never been concerned for the truth (see Jn 8:44).

58:4 venom. What issues from their mouths is as cruel and deadly as the venom of snakes (see 140:3; Mt 23:33; Jas 3:8). stopped its ears. They are incorrigible; nothing—neither appeals nor threats—will move them.

58:6–8 Prayer for God to purge the land of such perverse judges. The author uses imagery drawn from conventional curses of the ancient Near East (see note on 5:10).

58:6 Let the weapons of their mouths (see 57:4) be broken and torn out. lions. See note on 7:2.

58:7 water that flows away. And is absorbed by the ground. arrows. Malicious pronouncements (see 57:4 and note on 5:9).

58:8 slug. That appears to dry up to nothing as it moves over a stone in the hot sun.

58:9–11 Assurance that God will surely judge them (see note on 3:8).

58:9 See NIV text note. The verse may be speaking picturesquely of the speed of God's judgment—speed probably signifying here the inescapable certainty of his judgment (see note on 37:10; see also Lk 18:7–8). thorns. Twigs from wild thornbushes were used as fuel for quick heat (see 118:12; Ecc 7:6). swept away. As by a storm—God's storm (see Job 27:21).

58:10 righteous. Here a judicial term for those who are in the right but who have been wronged (see note on 1:5). when they are avenged. When the wrongs committed against them are redressed. bathe their feet in the blood. Vivid imagery borrowed from the literary conventions of the ancient Near East (see 68:23). Its origins are the exaggerated language of triumphant reports of victory on the battlefield.

58:11 The climax: When God has judged the unjust "gods" (see note on v. 1), all people will see that right ultimately triumphs under God's just rule (see note on 46:10). No more will people despair, like those in Mal 3:15.

Psalm 59

For the director of music. To the tune of "Do Not Destroy." Of David. A miktam.[g] When Saul had sent men to watch David's house[z] in order to kill him.

[1]Deliver me from my enemies,
O God;[a]
protect me from those who rise up against me.[b] [2]Deliver me from evildoers[c] and save me from bloodthirsty men.[d]

[3]See how they lie in wait for me!
Fierce men conspire[e] against me for no offense or sin of mine,
O LORD.
[4]I have done no wrong,[f] yet they are ready to attack me.[g]
Arise to help me; look on my plight![h]
[5]O LORD God Almighty, the God of Israel,[i] rouse yourself[j] to punish all the nations;[k] show no mercy to wicked traitors.[l] Selah

[6]They return at evening, snarling like dogs,[m]
and prowl about the city.

Ps 59 A prayer for deliverance when endangered by enemy attacks. If originally composed by David under the circumstances noted in the superscription, it must have been revised for use by one of David's royal sons when Jerusalem was under siege by a hostile force made up of troops from many nations—as when Hezekiah was besieged by the Assyrians (see 2Ki 18:19). (Some, however, ascribe it to Nehemiah; see Ne 4.) The enemy weapon most prominent is the tongue, attacking with slander and curses. In this psalm, too, the imagery of the night of danger (vv. 6,14), followed by the morning of deliverance (v. 16), is evoked (see introduction to Ps 57). Regarding the structure, the two halves of the psalm (vv. 1–9,10–17) each conclude with an almost identical refrain (vv. 9,17), preceded by a stanza that begins with a like characterization of the enemies (vv. 6,14). The first half of the psalm is predominantly prayer, the second half predominantly assurance of deliverance. The whole is framed by a cry for protection (v. 1) and a joyful confession that God is the psalmist's "fortress" (v. 17, in Hebrew the same root as that for "protect" in v. 1).

59 title See note on Ps 56 title. Do Not Destroy. See Ps 57; 58; 75 titles. When. For the event referred to see 1Sa 19:11.

59:1–2 The cry for deliverance.

59:1 protect me. Lit. "raise me to a high, secure place."

59:2 evildoers ... bloodthirsty men. Common characterizations of those who attack the psalmists out of malice.

59:3–5 By slander (v. 10) and lies (v. 12) the enemies seek to justify their attacks, but the psalmist protests his innocence and pleads with God to judge those who wrong him (see 58:11).

59:3 lie in wait. See 10:8–9 and note on 7:2.

59:4 Arise. See note on 3:7.

59:5 LORD God Almighty. See note on 1Sa 1:3. God of Israel. This appeal to the Lord as the God of Israel to punish the nations makes clear that the attack on the psalmist involves an attack by the nations on Israel. rouse yourself. See note on 7:6. punish ... show no mercy. See note on 5:10. traitors. Whether Israelites had joined in the attack is not clear; the Hebrew indicates only that the enemies were treacherous.

59:6–8 Confidence: Surely God mocks such a pack of dogs (see 22:16–17).

59:6 about the city. The enemies besiege the city like dogs at night on the prowl for food (see vv. 14–15).

59:7 swords from their lips. Their "curses and lies" (v. 12). For the imagery see 57:4; see also note on 5:9. they say. See note on 3:2.

59:9 watch. Hebrew shamar (see note on v. 17). The psalmist watches as one who longingly waits for the morning (of salvation); see 130:6.

59:10–13 The prayer renewed. Confident that the Lord will hear his prayer (v. 10) and will punish the nations (v. 5), the psalmist prays that God will not sweep them away suddenly but will prolong their punishment so that Israel ("my people," v. 11) will not forget God's acts of salvation, as they had done so often before (see 78:11; 106:13). Nevertheless, the psalmist asks God not to allow the enemies to escape the full consequences of their malice (vv. 12–13).

59:10 loving. See note on 6:4.

59:11 shield. See note on 3:3. wander about. Like vagabonds, with no place to settle (see Ge 4:12; 2Sa 15:20; La 4:15) and having to hunt for food (like dogs, v. 15; see 109:10; Am 4:8).

59:12 See note on v. 7. caught in their pride. Let the pride with which they treacherously attack the Lord's servant and his people be the trap that catches them. curses and lies. See 10:7 and note.

59:13 Then it will be known. When God has thus dealt with Israel's enemies, all the world will acknowledge that the Judge of all the earth (see 58:11) is the God of Israel. Jacob. See note on 14:7.

Then it will be known to the ends of the earth that God rules over Jacob.[b] Selah

[14]They return at evening,
snarling like dogs,
and prowl about the city.
[15]They wander about for food[c]
and howl if not satisfied.
[16]But I will sing[d] of your strength,[e] in the morning[f] I will sing of your love;[g] for you are my fortress,[h]
my refuge in times of trouble.[i] [17]O my Strength, I sing praise to you;
you, O God, are my fortress, my loving God.[j]

Psalm 60

60:5–12pp — Ps 108:6–13

For the director of music. To the tune of "The Lily of the Covenant." A miktam[i] of David. For teaching. When he fought Aram Naharaim[j] and Aram Zobah,[k] and when Joab returned and struck down twelve thousand Edomites in the Valley of Salt.[k]

[1]You have rejected us,[l] O God, and burst forth upon us;
you have been angry[m]—now restore us![n]
[2]You have shaken the land[o] and torn it open;
mend its fractures,[p] for it is quaking.
[3]You have shown your people desperate times;[q]
you have given us wine that makes us stagger.[r] [4]But for those who fear you, you have raised a banner[s] to be unfurled against the bow.
Selah
[5]Save us and help us with your right hand,[t] that those you love[u] may be delivered.
[6]God has spoken from his sanctuary:
"In triumph I will parcel out Shechem[v]
and measure off the Valley of Succoth.[w]

59:14–16 Assurance of being heard (see note on 3:8). Just as God mocks the defiant pack of dogs (vv. 6–8), so the psalmist will sing for joy at God's triumph over them.
59:16 strength ... love ... fortress. See the refrain (vv. 9,17). morning. See introduction.
59:17 The vow to praise (see note on 7:17). sing. Hebrew zamar (see note on v. 9). The play on words in the refrain marks an advance from watching during the night of danger to singing in the morning of salvation.
Ps 60 A national prayer for God's help after suffering a severe blow by a foreign nation, presumably Edom (see v. 9). The prayer leader may have been the king (the "me" in v. 9), as in 2Ch 20. The lament that God has "rejected" (v. 1) his people and no longer accompanies their armies links the psalm with Ps 44. Verses 5–12 appear again in 108:6–13. As for its structure, the prayer is framed by three verses lamenting God's rejection of his people (vv. 1–3) and three verses expressing confidence that the God who has rejected them will yet give them victory (vv. 10–12). This transition from lament to confidence constitutes the overarching movement of the prayer. Verses 4–8 contain the plea for help (v. 5) and the grounds for confidence (vv. 4,6–8).
60 title See note on Ps 56 title. The Lily of the Covenant. See Ps 80 title and note on Ps 45 title. For teaching. Only here in the psalm titles. For other songs that Israel was to learn see Dt 31:19,21; 2Sa 1:18. That it was intended for a variety of uses, especially to convey confidence in times of national threat, is illustrated by its use in Ps 108. When. For the events referred to see 2Sa 8; 1Ch 18 (perhaps also 2Sa 10). If the tradition that assigns the prayer to these events is correct, it must be supposed that our knowledge of the events is incomplete, since these accounts do not mention Edom. The Israelite war against Edom at this time of great northern battles may have been occasioned by an attack on the part of Edom trying to take advantage of Israel's preoccupation elsewhere, an attack in which Edom succeeded in overrunning the garrisons that guarded Judah's southern borders.
60:1–3 Lament over God's rejection of his people (see 44:9–16; 89:38–45) and prayer for restoration.
60:1 rejected us. At least momentarily (see 30:5). Defeat by the enemy is interpreted as a sign of God's anger (though no reason for that anger is noted, and the bond between Israel and God is not broken). burst forth. Like a flood (see 2Sa 5:20).
60:2 shaken the land. As by a devastating earthquake—such as was occasionally experienced in ancient Canaan.
60:3 wine that makes us stagger. God has made them drink from the cup of his wrath rather than from his cup of blessing and salvation (see note on 16:5).
60:4–8 A plea for help, grounded in reasons for confidence.
60:4 those who fear you. Your people, in distinction from the nations (see 61:5; see also note on Ge 20:11). have raised. Or "raise"—in which case v. 4 already begins the plea voiced in v. 5, rather than being an expression of confidence. banner. Banners were used as rallying points for troops in preparation for battle and for leading them into action. This practice is often alluded to in Isaiah (5:26; 11:10,12; 13:2; 18:3; 30:17; 49:22; 62:10) and Jeremiah (4:21, "standard"; 50:2; 51:12,27). It is possible to read v. 4 as a petition, in which case it pleads for God to rally the troops of Israel and lead them against the foe. If, however, it is an expression of confidence (as the NIV renders it), the "banner" must be the reassuring word from God recited in vv. 6–8 (see Ex 17:15). bow. The enemy armed with bows.
60:5 those you love. The Hebrew for this expression is here a word of special endearment, as in 127:2; 2Sa 12:25; Jer 11:15.
60:6–8 A comforting oracle from the Lord, perhaps recalling an already ancient word from the time of the conquest. If so, it may have been preserved in the "Book of the Wars of the LORD" (Nu 21:14). In any event, the Lord is depicted as Israel's triumphant Warrior-King (see Ex 15:3,13–18).

7 Gilead[x] is mine, and Manasseh is mine;
Ephraim[y] is my helmet,
Judah[z] my scepter.[a] 8 Moab is my washbasin, upon Edom I toss my sandal;
over Philistia I shout in triumph.[b]"

9 Who will bring me to the fortified city?
Who will lead me to Edom?
10 Is it not you, O God, you who have rejected us and no longer go out with our armies?[c] 11 Give us aid against the enemy,
for the help of man is worthless.[d] 12 With God we will gain the victory,
and he will trample down our enemies.[e]

Psalm 61

For the director of music. With stringed instruments. Of David.

1 Hear my cry, O God;[f]
listen to my prayer.[g]
2 From the ends of the earth I call to you,
I call as my heart grows faint;[h]
lead me to the rock[i] that is higher than I.
3 For you have been my refuge,[j]
a strong tower against the foe.[k] 4 I long to dwell[l] in your tent forever and take refuge in the shelter of your wings.[m] Selah
5 For you have heard my vows,[n] O God;

60:6 parcel out ... measure off. Divide his conquered territory among his servant people who were with him in the battles. Shechem ... Succoth. Places representative of the territory west and east of the Jordan taken over by the Lord and Israel (see Ge 33:17–18; 1Ki 12:25).

60:7 Israel is the Lord's kingdom—the land conquered and his people established within it. Gilead ... Manasseh. Half of Manasseh was established in Gilead, east of the Jordan, and half of it west of the Jordan, just north of Ephraim (see Jos 13:29–31; 17:5–11). This once again showed that the Lord's kingdom included territory both east and west of the Jordan. Ephraim ... Judah. The two leading tribes of Israel, the one representative of the Rachel tribes (Ephraim) in the north, the other of the Leah tribes (Judah) in the south; see Ge 48:13–20; 49:8–12; Nu 2:3,18; Jos 15–16. Together they represented all Israel (Isa 11:13; Zec 9:13). helmet. As a powerful and aggressive tribe (Dt 33:17; Jdg 7:24–8:3; 12:1), Ephraim figuratively represents the Lord's helmet. scepter. Called such because from Judah would come (Ge 49:10)—and had now come (1Sa 16:1–13)—the Lord's chosen earthly regent over his people (see 2Sa 7).

60:8 Moab ... Edom ... Philistia. Perpetual enemies on Israel's eastern, southern and western borders respectively (see Ex 15:14–15; see also Ex 13:17; Nu 20:14–21; 22–24). is my washbasin. Is reduced to a household vessel in which the Lord washes his feet (Ge 18:4). The metaphor is perhaps suggested by the fact that Moab lay along the east shore of the Dead Sea. toss my sandal. Perhaps refers to the conventional symbolic act by which one claimed possession of land (cf. Ru 4:7).

60:9 A rhetorical question following the reassuring oracle and leading to the confidence expressed in vv. 10–12. me ... me. Possibly referring to the king (see introduction), though the praying community may be referring to itself collectively (see note on Ps 30 title). lead me. As God went before his people into battle in the desert (Ex 13:21) and during the conquest (Ex 23:27–28; 33:2; Dt 9:3; 31:8).

60:10–12 Confidence of victory (see note on 3:8).

60:10 rejected. See v. 1.

60:11 help. Lit. "salvation" (see v. 5, "Save"). of man. See 33:17.

60:12 gain the victory. Lit. "do mighty things." With God's help Israel will achieve in a manner similar to that of the Lord himself (see 118:15–16) and will triumph over Edom (see Nu 24:18, "grow strong"). trample down. Like a victorious warrior (see Isa 14:19, 25; Jer 12:10; Zec 10:5).

Ps 61 A prayer for restoration to God's presence. The circumstances appear to be similar to those referred to in Ps 42–43. Here, however, a king is involved (v. 6), and if the author was David, he may have composed this prayer at the time of his flight from Absalom (see 2Sa 17:21–29). For another possibility see note on v. 2. Ps 61–64 form a series linked together by the common theme of trust in God when under threat. Structurally, the prayer is framed by a cry to God (v. 1) and a vow to praise (v. 8). The body of the psalm is composed of three couplets: vv. 2–3, 4–5, 6–7.

61 title See note on Ps 4 title.

61:1 Initial plea for God to hear.

61:2–3 The prayer.

61:2 ends of the earth. So it seemed (see 42:6). Possibly the phrase here refers to the brink of the netherworld, i.e., the grave (see 63:9); the psalmist feels himself near death. heart. See note on 4:7. lead me. See 23:2. rock. Secure place (see 27:5; 40:2). higher than I. The place of security that he seeks is beyond his reach; only God can bring him to it. Since God is often confessed by the psalmists to be their "rock of refuge" (31:2; 71:3; see also 18:2; 62:2,6–7; 94:22), it may be that God himself is that higher "rock" (the secure refuge) that the psalmist pleads for (see v. 3). Or it may be the secure refuge of God's sanctuary (see v. 4; see also 27:5).

61:3 The reason he appeals to God: God has never failed him as a refuge. foe. If this is a prayer when faced with death, death is the present foe (see 68:20; 141:8; Job 33:22; Isa 25:8; 28:15; Jer 9:21; Hos 13:14; see also 1Co 15:26). See note on 49:14.

61:4–5 Longing for the security of God's sanctuary (see 27:5 and note).

61:4 dwell in. See note on 15:1; tent. Residence (see 2Sa 6:17; 7:2; 1Ki 1:39; 2:28–30). shelter of your wings. See note on 17:8.

61:5 The reason for his longing: Either (1) because God has been so responsive to him in the past, or (2) confidence that his longing is about to be satisfied. my vows. The vows that accompanied his prayers (see 50:14; 66:14; see also note on 7:17). heritage. A place with God's people in the promised land, together with all that the Lord had promised to give and to be to his people (see 16:6; 37:18; 135:12; 136:21–22). those who fear. See 60:4 and note. your name. See note on 5:11.

you have given me the heritage of those who fear your name.[o] 6Increase the days of the king's life,[p] his years for many generations.[q] 7May he be enthroned in God's presence forever;[r] appoint your love and faithfulness to protect him.[s] 8Then will I ever sing praise to your name[t]
and fulfill my vows day after day.[u]

Psalm 62

For the director of music. For Jeduthun.
A psalm of David.

1My soul finds rest[v] in God alone;[w]
my salvation comes from him.
2He alone is my rock[x] and my salvation;[y]
he is my fortress,[z] I will never be shaken.[a] 3How long will you assault a man?
Would all of you throw him down—
this leaning wall,[b] this tottering fence?
4They fully intend to topple him
from his lofty place;
they take delight in lies.
With their mouths they bless,
but in their hearts they curse.[c]
Selah
5Find rest, O my soul, in God alone;[d]
my hope comes from him.
6He alone is my rock and my salvation;
he is my fortress, I will not be shaken.
7My salvation and my honor depend on God[1];
he is my mighty rock, my refuge.[e] 8Trust in him at all times, O people;[f] pour out your hearts to him,[g]
for God is our refuge. Selah 9Lowborn men[h] are but a breath,[i]
the highborn are but a lie;
if weighed on a balance,[j] they are nothing;
together they are only a breath.
10Do not trust in extortion[k] or take pride in stolen goods;[l] though your riches increase,
do not set your heart on them.[m] 11One thing God has spoken,
two things have I heard:
that you, O God, are strong,[n]
12 and that you, O Lord, are loving.[o]

61:6–7 Prayer for the king's long life. The king himself may have made this prayer—such transitions to the third person are known from the literature of the ancient Near East—or it may be the prayer of the people, perhaps voiced by a priest or Levite. Later Jewish interpretations applied these verses to the Messiah. They are fulfilled in Christ, David's great Son.

61:6 May the king live forever (see note on 45:6).

61:7 enthroned in God's presence. See note on 41:12. love and faithfulness. Personified as God's messengers (see notes on 23:6; 43:3; see also note on 26:3).

61:8 The vow to praise (see note on 7:17).

Ps 62 The psalmist commits himself to God when threatened by the assaults of conspirators who wish to dethrone him. The author surely was a king and, if it was David, the circumstances could well have been the efforts of the family of Saul to topple him. Verse 3 suggests a time of weakness and may indicate advanced age. Implicitly the psalm is an appeal to God to uphold him. No psalm surpasses it in its expression of simple trust in God (see Ps 31 and introduction to Ps 61). The psalm is composed of three parts: vv. 1–4, 5–8, 9–12. The middle stanza (vv. 5–8), which begins by echoing vv. 1–2, constitutes the central expression of trust and hope. The whole is framed by a confession of tranquil resting in God (vv. 1–2) and the reason for such trust (vv. 11–12). The remaining verses (vv. 3–4,9–10) speak of those who threaten.

62 title See note on Ps 39 title.

62:1–4 Confidence in God in the face of conspiracy.

62:1 My soul. See note on 6:3. finds rest. Lit. "is silence," i.e., is in repose.

62:2,6 shaken. See note on 10:6.

62:3 Question to the assailants: Will you never give up? leaning wall ... tottering fence. A metaphor for David's fragile condition: either (1) a confession that he has no strength in himself, or (2) an acknowledgment that he is in a weakened condition—or, perhaps, (3) a reflection on how his enemies perceive him, a "pushover."

62:4 lofty place. Throne. lies ... curse. See note on 10:7. bless. For example, "Long live the king" (1Sa 10:24; 2Sa 16:16; see also 1Ki 1:25,34,39).

62:5–8 Trust in God: an exhortation to himself (v. 5) and to the people (v. 8).

62:5 Find rest. See note on v. 1; faith encouraging faith (see 27:13–14; 42:5,11; 43:5).

62:8 Exhortation to God's people (see 31:23–24). pour out your hearts. In earnest prayer (see La 2:19). hearts. See note on 4:7.

62:9–12 Frail, misguided man; mighty, trustworthy God.

62:9–10 Man, as a threat, is nothing (see note on 10:18).

62:9 Lowborn ... highborn. Persons of every condition. breath ... lie. People appear to be much more than a puff of wind, especially the rich and powerful.

62:10 A warning to those (including those conspiring against him) who trust in their own devices to get what they want (by fair means or foul) rather than trusting in God to sustain them—a virtual summary of Ps 49. heart. See note on 4:7.

62:11–12 The climax: recollection of God's reassuring word to his people. strong ... loving. Able to do all that he has promised; committed to his people's salvation and blessedness.

62:11 One thing ... two things. See note on Am 1:3.

62:12 loving. See note on 6:4. Surely. Ultimately every person will experience God's righteousness (see note on 4:1). reward ... according to. See notes on Jer 17:10; 32:19.

Surely you will reward each person
according to what he has done.[p]

Psalm 63

A psalm of David. When he was in the Desert of Judah.

1 O God, you are my God, earnestly I seek you;
my soul thirsts for you,[q]
my body longs for you,
in a dry and weary land
where there is no water.[r]

2 I have seen you in the sanctuary[s] and beheld your power and your glory.[t]
3 Because your love is better than life,[u]
my lips will glorify you.
4 I will praise you as long as I live,[v] and in your name I will lift up my hands.[w]
5 My soul will be satisfied as with the richest of foods;[x]
with singing lips my mouth will praise you.

6 On my bed I remember you;
I think of you through the watches of the night.[y]
7 Because you are my help,[z]
I sing in the shadow of your wings.[a] 8 My soul clings to you;[b]
your right hand upholds me.[c]

9 They who seek my life will be destroyed;[d]
they will go down to the depths of the earth.[e]
10 They will be given over to the sword[f]
and become food for jackals.[g]

11 But the king will rejoice in God;
all who swear by God's name will praise him,[h]
while the mouths of liars will be silenced.[i]

Ps 63 A confession of longing for God and for the security his presence offers when deadly enemies threaten. That longing is vividly described by the metaphor of thirst (v. 1) and hunger (v. 5; see 42:1–2). Like Ps 62 this psalm is an implicit prayer. It is linked to that psalm also by the advancement from hearing (62:11) to seeing (v. 2; see 48:8 and note). The imagery of the night of danger (v. 6) and the morning of salvation (see note on v. 1) once more occurs (see introduction to Ps 57). This psalm was prescribed for daily public prayers of the early church. In its structure, the initial expression of longing (v. 1) gives way at the end to the expectation of joy (v. 11)—the literary frame of the psalm. What he has seen in the sanctuary (v. 2) he remembers on his bed at night (v. 6), and that reassures him that his enemies will suffer the end they plot for him (vv. 9–10).

63 title See note on Ps 3 title. When. If this tradition is correct, the reference is probably to 2Sa 15:23–28; 16:2,14; 17:16,29 since the psalmist is referred to as king (see v. 11).

63:1 Intense longing for God in a time of need. earnestly. Lit. "at dawn," "in the morning." my soul . . . my body. I, with my whole being (see note on 6:3). dry and weary land. A metaphor for his situation of need, in which he does not taste "the richest of foods" (v. 5) supplied by the "river whose streams make glad the city of God" (see 46:4 and note).

63:2–5 Comforting reflection on what he had seen in the sanctuary; it awakens joyful expectations.

63:2 See 27:4; 48:8 and notes.

63:3 love. See note on 6:4.

63:4 name. See note on 5:11. lift up my hands. In praise.

63:5 soul. See note on 6:3. the richest of foods. Lit. "marrow and fat."

63:6–8 Night reflections, remembering what he had seen "in the sanctuary" (v. 2).

63:6 On my bed. At night as he expectantly awaits the dawning of the morning of deliverance. watches of the night. See note on Jdg 7:19; see also 119:148; La 2:19.

63:7 shadow of your wings. See note on 17:8.

63:9–10 His enemies will get what they deserve; in seeking his life they forfeit their own (see Ge 9:5; Ex 21:23; Dt 19:21; see also note on Ps 5:10).

63:9 depths. See note on 30:1. earth. Here, the netherworld or grave (see note on 61:2).

63:10 food for jackals. Like bodies of enemies left unburied on the battlefield to add to their disgrace (see note on 53:5).

63:11 all who swear by God's name. Those who revere and trust God (see Dt 6:13). mouths of liars. Those who live by falsehood.

Ps 64 Prayer to God for protection when threatened by a conspiracy. The circumstances may be similar to those reflected in Ps 62 (see introduction to that psalm), but here there is no allusion to the king's weakened condition, and it is not clear whether the conspirators come from within or outside Israel (see note on v. 2). As so often in the prayers of the Psalter, the enemy's tongue is his main weapon (see note on 5:9). The prayer is framed by a plea for protection (vv. 1–2) and a confident word concerning the effects of God's saving action (vv. 9–10). At the center, vv. 5–6 describe the disdainful confidence of the conspirators. Verses 3–4 relate how the enemies attack with their tongues, while vv. 7–8 proclaim how God will turn their tongues against them.

64 title See note on Ps 4 title.

64:1–2 The prayer for protection.

64:1 Hear. In Hebrew a wordplay on the word for "rejoice" in v. 10 (see note there).

64:2 noisy crowd. The Hebrew root underlying this expression is the same as that for "conspire" in 2:1.

[3]They sharpen their tongues like swords[n]
and aim their words like deadly arrows.[o] [4]They shoot from ambush at the innocent man;[p] they shoot at him suddenly, without fear.[q]

[5]They encourage each other in evil plans, they talk about hiding their snares;[r]
they say, "Who will see them[m]?"[s] [6]They plot injustice and say,
"We have devised a perfect plan!"
Surely the mind and heart of man are cunning.

[7]But God will shoot them with arrows;
suddenly they will be struck down.
[8]He will turn their own tongues against them[t]
and bring them to ruin;
all who see them will shake their heads[u] in scorn.[v]

[9]All mankind will fear;[w] they will proclaim the works of God and ponder what he has done.[x] [10]Let the righteous rejoice in the LORD[y] and take refuge in him;[z] let all the upright in heart praise him![a]

Psalm 65

For the director of music.
A psalm of David. A song.

[1]Praise awaits[n] you, O God, in Zion;[b] to you our vows will be fulfilled.[c] [2]O you who hear prayer, to you all men will come.[d] [3]When we were overwhelmed by sins,[e] you forgave[o] our transgressions.[f] [4]Blessed are those you choose[g]
and bring near[h] to live in your courts!
We are filled with the good things of your house,[i]
of your holy temple.

[5]You answer us with awesome deeds of righteousness,[j] O God our Savior,[k]
the hope of all the ends of the earth[l] and of the farthest seas,[m] [6]who formed the mountains[n] by your power, having armed yourself with strength,[o]

64:3–4 The enemy attacks.
64:3 tongues. See note on 5:9. swords . . . deadly arrows. See 59:7.
64:4 without fear. They feel themselves secure from exposure and retaliation, but see vv. 7–8.
64:5–6 The enemies' contemptuous self-confidence.
64:5 they say. See notes on 3:2; 10:11.
64:6 heart. See note on 4:7. cunning. Lit. "deep" (see Pr 18:4; 20:5).
64:7–8 Confidence in God's righteous judgment: He will do to them what they had intended to do to David (see 63:9–10 and note). shoot . . . arrows; suddenly . . . tongues. See vv. 3–4.
64:8 shake their heads. See 44:14.
64:9–10 The happy effects of God's judgment: All mankind will fear, proclaim, ponder (see note on 46:10); the righteous will rejoice, take refuge, praise.
64:9 See 58:11; see also 40:3; 52:6; 65:8.
64:10 righteous. See note on 1:5. rejoice. In Hebrew this is the first word of the line, and it is a wordplay on the Hebrew for "Hear," which is the first word of the first line.
Ps 65 A hymn in praise of God's great goodness to his people. In answer to their prayers (1) he pardons their sins so that they continue to enjoy the "good things" of fellowship with him at his temple (vv. 3–4); (2) he orders the affairs of the world so that international turbulence is put to rest and Israel is secure in her land (vv. 5–8); and (3) he turns the promised land into a veritable Garden of Eden (vv. 9–13). This hymn begins a series of four that are linked by many common themes.
65 title See notes on Ps 4; 30 titles.
65:1–2 Introductory commitment to praise.
65:1 awaits. Or "is silent before" (see note on 62:1; see also NIV text note here). Perhaps the imagery is that of praise personified as a permanent resident of the temple, lying quietly at rest, whom the people will awaken when they come to make good their vows (see 57:8). our vows. Those made in conjunction with their prayers in time of need (see 66:14 and note on 7:17).
65:2 all men. Lit. "all flesh," perhaps referring to all God's people, as in Joel 2:28 ("all people"). Most interpreters believe (in light of vv. 5,8) that the reference is more universal, as in 64:9; 66:1,4,8; 67:3–5 and elsewhere. will come. To praise God as the (only) God who hears and graciously answers prayers.
65:3–4 The first and primary blessing.
65:3 forgave our transgressions. Accepted the atonement sacrifices you appointed and so forgave our sins (see NIV text note; see also 32:1–2; 78:38; 79:9 and notes on Lev 16:20–22; 17:11; Heb 2:17; 9:5,7).
65:4 Blessed. See note on 1:1. those you choose and bring near. Everyone belonging to Israel as God's chosen people (see, e.g., 33:12; Dt 4:37) and whom God accepts at his temple. live in your courts. See note on 15:1; see also 23:6. good things of your house. All the blessings that flow from God's presence (see 36:8 and note).
65:5–8 God stills the nations and makes Israel secure in answer to her prayers.
65:5 awesome deeds. Acts of God such as were associated with his deliverance of Israel from Egypt and the conquest of Canaan, acts of power that made Israel's enemies cringe (see 66:3; see also 106:22; 145:6; Dt 10:21; 2Sa 7:23; Isa 64:3). righteousness. Saving acts by which God kept his covenanted promises to Israel (see note on 4:1). hope of all. Even though the nations of the world did not yet know it.
65:6–7 The God of creation who by his power brought order to the world out of the earlier chaos (see Ge 1) similarly in the redemption of his people estab-

7who stilled the roaring of the seas,[p]
the roaring of their waves, and the turmoil of the nations.[q] 8Those living far away fear your wonders;
where morning dawns and evening fades
you call forth songs of joy.[r]

9You care for the land and water it;[s]
you enrich it abundantly.[t]
The streams of God are filled with water to provide the people with grain,[u] for so you have ordained it.[p] 10You drench its furrows and level its ridges;
you soften it with showers[v]
and bless its crops.
11You crown the year with your bounty,[w]
and your carts overflow with abundance.[x] 12The grasslands of the desert overflow;[y]
the hills are clothed with gladness.[z] 13The meadows are covered with flocks[a] and the valleys are mantled with grain;[b] they shout for joy and sing.[c]

Psalm 66

For the director of music. A song. A psalm.

1Shout with joy to God, all the earth![d]
2 Sing the glory of his name;[e] make his praise glorious![f] 3Say to God, "How awesome are your deeds![g]
So great is your power that your enemies cringe[h] before you.
4All the earth bows down[i] to you;
they sing praise[j] to you,
they sing praise to your name."
Selah

5Come and see what God has done, how awesome his works[k] in man's behalf!

[p]9 Or for that is how you prepare the land

lishes a peaceful order among nations (see Isa 2:4; 11:6–9; Mic 4:3–4) so that Israel may be at rest in the promised land (see also Ps 33; 46). God's mighty acts in redemption are often compared by OT poets with his mighty acts in creation (see 74:12–17; 89:9–18; Isa 27:1; 40:6–14,21–31; 51:9–11), since his power as Creator guaranteed his power as Redeemer. formed the mountains ... stilled ... the seas. Gave order to the whole creation (see 95:4–5).

65:8 All peoples will (ultimately) see God's saving acts in behalf of his people and will be moved to fear (see note on 46:10). And all creation will rejoice (see v. 13). wonders. Or "signs," referring to God's great saving acts, such as those he performed when he delivered Israel out of Egypt (Dt 4:34; see Ps 78:43; 105:27; 135:9). As "signs" they indicated that God was at work (see Jn 2:11 and note).

65:9–13 God blesses the promised land with all good things in answer to Israel's prayers.

65:9 streams of God. See note on 36:8.

65:11 bounty. Lit. "goodness" (see 68:10; see also 31:19 and note).

65:13 they shout for joy and sing. In the exuberant language of the psalmists, all creation—even its inanimate elements—joins the human chorus to celebrate the goodness of God in creation, blessing and redemption (see 89:12; 96:11–13; 98:8–9; 103:22; 145:10; 148:3–4,7–10; see also Job 38:7; Isa 44:23; 49:13; 55:12).

Ps 66 A psalm of praise for God's answer to prayer. It seems that God has saved the author, probably a king, from an enemy threat, and his deliverance has involved also that of the whole nation. It has often been suggested that the psalm speaks of Judah's remarkable deliverance from the Assyrians (see 2Ki 19). The praise is offered at the temple in fulfillment of a vow (vv. 13–14; see note on 7:17). Such praise was often climaxed by a call for others to take up the praise (see note on 9:1). Here the psalmist exuberantly begins with that call and, as often elsewhere (e.g., 67:3–5; 68:32; 98:4; 99:3; 100:1; 117:1), addresses it even to the far corners of the earth. This psalm is the second in a series of four (see introduction to Ps 65). The psalm is framed by a call to praise (vv. 1–2) and a declaration of the present occasion for praise (vv. 19–20, in Hebrew involving a play on words—the Hebrew for "praise" and "prayer" sound very much alike). The opening stanza is followed by two thematic sequences having the same structure: a three-verse stanza followed by a five-verse stanza. The first line of the first stanza of the first sequence (v. 5) begins with "Come and see"; the first line of the second stanza of the second sequence (v. 16) begins with "Come and listen."

66 title See notes on Ps 4; 30 titles.

66:1–4 Calling all the earth to joyful praise.

66:1 all the earth. See note on 65:2.

66:2 name. See note on 5:11.

66:3 awesome. See v. 5; see also note on 65:5. cringe. See Jos 5:1; 2Ch 20:29.

66:4 See note on 46:10.

66:5–7 Recollection of God's deliverance of Israel at the Red Sea as a sign of his power to rule over the nations. The psalmist portrays his deliverance (see introduction above) both as similar to this Red Sea rescue in its manifestation of God's saving power (see 65:5–7 for a comparison of God's mighty saving acts with his mighty acts of creation) and as a continuation of God's same saving purposes.

66:5 Come and see. God's saving acts of old can still be "seen" at his temple, where they are continually celebrated (see 46:8; 48:8–9 and notes). in man's behalf. Specifically in behalf of his people.

66:6 waters. Possibly the Jordan, but more likely a parallel reference to the Red Sea.

they passed through[m] the waters

66:7 rebellious. Nations that are in revolt against God's rule (see 68:6).

66:8–12 Proclamation in praise of God's new deliverance of his people.

66:8 peoples. Here probably the grateful throng of worshipers (see 2Ch 20:27–28).

66:9 from slipping. See note on 38:16.

66:10 tested ... refined. From one point of view, times of distress constitute a testing of God's people as to their trust in and loyalty to God. The metaphor is borrowed from the technology of refining precious metals, which included heating the metals in a crucible to see if all impurities had been removed (see 12:6; 17:3).

66:11–12 You ... You. God's rule is all-pervasive; even when enemies for malicious purposes attack his people, God is not a mere passive observer but has his own holy purposes in it (see Isa 45:7; Am 3:6). prison ... burdens ... ride over. Three metaphors describe their suffering: captives thrown into prison, prisoners of war turned into slaves, defeated troops overrun by a chariot force.

66:12 fire and water. Conventional metaphors for severe trials (see Isa 43:2). to a place of abundance. Lit. "to an overflowing" (see 23:5). They were brought out of a situation of distress into a situation of overflowing well-being.

66:13–15 Announcement of fulfillment of vows: addressed to God (see note on 7:17; see also 50:14; 116:17–19).

66:13 I. The king.

66:16–20 Proclamation of what God has done: in praise of God, addressed to the worshiping congregation.

66:16 fear God. See note on Ge 20:11.

66:17 his praise. Prayer and praise belonged together in the OT (see also Php 4:6; 1Ti 2:1).

66:20 Praise be to God. See v. 8. love. See note on 6:4.

Ps 67 A communal prayer for God's blessing. Its content, form and brevity suggest that it served as a liturgical prayer of the people at the conclusion of worship, perhaps just prior to (or immediately after) the priestly benediction (see note on v. 1). God's blessing of his people (as well as his saving acts in their behalf) will catch the attention of the nations and move them to praise (see 65:2). This psalm is the third in a series of four (see introduction to Ps 65). It has a completely symmetrical structure: Two verses at the beginning contain the prayer, while the two verses of the concluding stanza speak of the effects of God's answer. In the intervening stanza, framed by a refrain (vv. 3,5), the people seek to motivate God's answer by referring to the worldwide praise that his mercies to his people will awaken.

67 title See notes on Ps 4; 30 titles.

67:1–2 The prayer.

67:1 The heart of the prayer, anticipating (or echoing) the priestly benediction (see Nu 6:24–26). make his face shine. See notes on 4:6; 13:1.

67:2 May God's favors to his people be so obvious that all the world takes notice (see note on 46:10).

67:3–5 The motivation. Elaborating on v. 2, the people speak of the worldwide praise that will resound to God when he graciously blesses his people. Their wish is twofold: (1) that God's blessings may be so abundant that the people will be moved to praise, and (2) that the nations may indeed add their praise to that of Israel—an appropriate expression at this climax of the liturgy of worship.

67:4 May the nations rejoice in the Lord when they see how benevolent the rule of God is (see 98:4–6; 100:1).

may all the peoples praise you.

6Then the land will yield its harvest,[p]
and God, our God, will bless us.[q] 7God will bless us,
and all the ends of the earth[r] will fear him.[s]

Psalm 68

For the director of music. Of David.
A psalm. A song.

1May God arise,[t] may his enemies be scattered;[u]
may his foes flee[v] before him.
2As smoke[w] is blown away by the wind,
may you blow them away;
as wax melts[x] before the fire,
may the wicked perish[y] before
God.
3But may the righteous be glad and rejoice[z] before God;
may they be happy and joyful.

4Sing to God, sing praise to his name,[a] extol him who rides on the clouds[q][b]—
his name is the LORD[c]—
and rejoice before him.

67:6–7 The effects of God's blessing his people.

67:6 The promised land will yield its abundance (see 65:9–13).

Ps 68 A processional liturgy celebrating the glorious and triumphant rule of Israel's God (see introductions to Ps 24; 47; 118; 132). Verses 1–18 contain many clear references to God's triumphal march from Mount Sinai (in the days of Moses) to Mount Zion (in the days of David). The events at Mount Sinai marked the birth of the kingdom of God among his people; the establishing of the ark of the covenant, symbol of God's throne, in Jerusalem marked the establishment of God's redemptive kingdom in the earth, with Jerusalem as its royal city. The early church, taking its cue from Eph 4:8–13, understood this psalm to foreshadow the resurrection, ascension and present rule of Christ and the final triumph of his church over the hostile world. Ps 68 is the last in a series of four (see introduction to Ps 65).

The psalm is composed of nine stanzas (vv. 19–20 should probably be joined with vv. 21–23), with a concluding doxology. The first stanza indicates the beginning of the liturgical procession, and the last refers to its conclusion—God enthroned in his sanctuary. The seventh (vv. 24–27) speaks expressly of the procession coming into view and entering the sanctuary. In light of these clear references, the third stanza (vv. 7–10) suggests a stage in the procession recalling the desert journey from Sinai to the promised land, while the fifth (vv. 15–18) marks that stage in which the Lord ascends Mount Zion. On the other hand, the second stanza (vv. 4–6) reflects on the benevolence of God's rule; the fourth (vv. 11–14) recalls his victories over the kings of Canaan; the sixth (vv. 19–23) speaks reassuringly of God's future victories; and the eighth (vv. 28–31) contains prayers that God may muster his power to subdue the enemy as he had done before.

68 title See notes on Ps 4; 30 titles.

68:1–3 The start of the procession, liturgically recalling the beginning of God's march with his people in army formation from Sinai (see Nu 10:33–35).

68:1 enemies be scattered. See note on v. 30.

68:3 righteous. Israel as the committed people of God in distinction from those opposed to the coming of God's kingdom (the "wicked" of v. 2).

68:4–6 A call to praise God for the benevolence of his rule.

68:4 name. See note on 5:11. who rides on the clouds. An epithet of Baal found in Canaanite literature is used to make the point that the Lord (Yahweh, not Baal) is the exalted One who truly makes the storm cloud his chariot (see v. 33; 18:9; 104:3; Isa 19:1; Mt 26:64).

68:5–6 God is the defender of the powerless (see 10:14; 146:7–9; 147:6; Dt 10:18).

68:6 sets the lonely in families. See Ex 1:21; Ru 4:14–17; 1Sa 2:5. leads forth the prisoners. As he led Israel out of Egypt (see 69:33; 107:10,14). rebellious. See notes on v. 18; 66:7. sun-scorched land. A place utterly barren, lacking even soil for vegetation (see Eze 26:4,14).

68:7–10 Recollection of God's march through the desert from Sinai into the promised land (see Jdg 5:4–5; Hab 3:3–6).

68:8 earth shook. A reference to the quaking of Mount Sinai (Ex 19:18). heavens poured down rain. The Pentateuch preserves no tradition of rain during the desert wanderings, but here (and in Jdg 5:4) rain is closely associated with the quaking of the earth as a manifestation of the majesty of God. Perhaps the "thunder and lightning, with a thick cloud" over Mount Sinai (Ex 19:16) were accompanied by rain. But see also v. 9, which suggests rains that refreshed the people on their journey.

68:9 your . . . inheritance. The people of Israel (see Dt 9:29).

68:10 it. Probably refers to the promised land. bounty. Lit. "goodness" (see 65:11 and note). provided. From the produce of Canaan (see Jos 5:11–12). poor. Israel as a people dependent on God.

11The Lord announced the word, and great was the company[t] of those who proclaimed it: 12"Kings and armies flee[u] in haste;
in the camps men divide the plunder.[v] 13Even while you sleep among the campfires,[s w]
the wings of ⌊my⌋ dove are sheathed with silver,
its feathers with shining gold."
14When the Almighty[t] scattered[x] the kings in the land,
it was like snow fallen on Zalmon.[y]

15The mountains of Bashan[z] are majestic mountains;[a] rugged are the mountains of Bashan.
16Why gaze in envy, O rugged mountains,
at the mountain where God
chooses[b] to reign,
where the LORD himself will dwell forever?[c] 17The chariots[d] of God are tens of thousands and thousands of thousands;[e]
the Lord ⌊has come⌋ from Sinai into his sanctuary.
18When you ascended[f] on high,[g]
you led captives[h] in your train;
you received gifts from men,[i] even from[u] the rebellious[j]— that you,[v] O LORD God, might dwell
there.

19Praise be to the Lord, to God our Savior,[k]
who daily bears our burdens.[l]
Selah
20Our God is a God who saves;[m] from the Sovereign LORD comes escape from death.[n] 21Surely God will crush the heads[o] of his enemies,
the hairy crowns of those who go on in their sins.
22The Lord says, "I will bring them from Bashan;
I will bring them from the depths of the sea,[p] 23that you may plunge your feet in the blood of your foes,[q]
while the tongues of your dogs[r] have their share."

24Your procession has come into view,

the procession of my God and King into the sanctuary.[s]

68:11–14 Recollection of God's victories over the kings of Canaan.

68:11 announced the word. God declared beforehand that he would be victorious over the Canaanite kings (see Ex 23:22–23,27–28,31; Dt 7:10–24; 11:23–25; Jos 1:2–6). proclaimed it. Celebrated God's victories (see Ex 15:1–21; 1Sa 18:6–7; 2Ch 20:26–28). proclaimed. See 40:9 and note.

68:13 sleep among the campfires. Rest in camp (see Jdg 5:16; see also NIV text note on Ge 49:14). wings of ⌊my⌋ dove are sheathed. Israel, God's "dove" (see 74:19 and note; cf. Hos 7:11), is enriched with the silver and gold of plunder from the kings of Canaan even though she still remains in camp. This poetic hyperbole (a figure of speech that uses exaggeration for emphasis) celebrates the fact that God had defeated the kings even before Israel met them in battle (see Jos 2:8–11; 5:1; 6:16; see also 2Sa 5:24; 2Ki 7:5–7; 19:35; 2Ch 20:22–30).

68:14 Almighty. See NIV text note; see also note on Ge 17:1. like snow fallen on Zalmon. Zalmon was a mountain near Shechem (see Jdg 9:46–48), but others identify it here as Jebel Druze, a dark volcanic mountain east of Bashan. Its name appears to mean "the dark one"—in distinction from the Lebanon ("the white one") range, composed of limestone—and the figure may involve the contrast of white snow scattered on "Dark Mountain." The reference may then be to abandoned weapons littering the field from which the kings have fled headlong (see 2Ki 7:15).

68:15–18 Celebration of God's ascent to Mount Zion.

68:15–16 The mountains surrounding Bashan, including the towering Mount Hermon, are portrayed as being jealous because God has chosen Mount Zion as the seat of his rule, making it the "highest" of mountains (see 48:2 and note).

68:17 chariots of God. God's great heavenly host, here likened to a vast chariot force (see 2Ki 6:17; Hab 3:8,15). In the time of the Roman empire Jesus referred to God's host in terms of "legions" (Mt 26:53).

68:18 ascended on high. Went up to your place of enthronement on Mount Zion (see 47:5–6 and note; see also 7:7). led captives . . . received gifts. Like a victorious king after triumphs on the field of battle. rebellious. Those who had opposed the kingdom of God (see v. 6 and note on 66:7) are compelled to submit to him and bring tribute. that you . . . might dwell there. Grammatically completes the clause, "When you ascended on high." Paul applies this verse (as translated in the Septuagint) to the ascended Christ (Eph 4:8–13), thereby implying that Christ's ascension was a continuation of, and a fulfillment of, God's establishment of his kingdom in his royal city Jerusalem (see introduction).

68:19–23 Joyous confession of hope that God's victorious campaigns will continue until the salvation of his people is complete.

68:19 bears our burdens. Releases us from bearing the burdens that enslavement to our enemies would impose on us (see 81:6; Isa 9:4; 10:27). But some associate this line with such passages as 55:22; Isa 46:4.

68:20 escape from death. At the hand of our enemies—implicitly, perhaps, also from death itself as the last great enemy (see notes on 6:5; 11:7; 16:9–11; 17:15; 49:14–15).

68:21 As God assures the life of his people (see v. 20), so he will crush those who oppose him. crush the heads. See Nu 24:17.

68:22 them. The enemies who fled at the victorious onward march of God and his host (see vv. 12,17). Bashan . . . depths of the sea. The former (see also v. 15) was the high plateau east of the Jordan, the latter the Mediterranean Sea—none of the enemies will escape (see Am 9:1–4).

68:23 See note on 58:10.

68:24–27 The liturgical procession approaches the temple (see Ps 24; 47).

25 In front are the singers,[t] after them
the musicians;[u]
with them are the maidens playing tambourines.[v]
26 Praise God in the great congregation;[w] praise the LORD in the assembly of Israel.[x]
27 There is the little tribe[y] of Benjamin,[z] leading them, there the great throng of Judah's princes,
and there the princes of Zebulun and of Naphtali.[a] 28 Summon your power,[b] O God[w]; show us your strength,[c] O God, as you have done[d] before.
29 Because of your temple at Jerusalem kings will bring you gifts.[e] 30 Rebuke the beast[f] among the reeds,[g]
the herd of bulls[h] among the calves of the nations.
Humbled, may it bring bars of silver.
Scatter the nations[i] who delight in war.[j]
31 Envoys will come from Egypt;[k]
Cush[x][l] will submit herself to God.
32 Sing to God, O kingdoms of the earth,[m]
sing praise[n] to the Lord, Selah 33 to him who rides[o] the ancient skies above,
who thunders[p] with mighty voice.[q]
34 Proclaim the power[r] of God, whose majesty[s] is over Israel,
whose power is in the skies.
35 You are awesome,[t] O God, in your

Psalm 69

For the director of music. To ⌞the tune of⌟ "Lilies." Of David.

1 Save me, O God, for the waters[y] have come up to my neck.[z]
2 I sink in the miry depths,[a]
where there is no foothold.
I have come into the deep waters;
the floods engulf me.
3 I am worn out calling for help;[b]
my throat is parched.
My eyes fail,[c]
looking for my God.

69:3 [b] Ps 6:6
[c] Ps 119:82

[w] 28 Many Hebrew manuscripts, Septuagint and Syriac; most Hebrew manuscripts Your God has summoned power for you
[x] 31 That is, the upper Nile region

68:25 maidens playing tambourines. See note on Jer 31:4.

68:27 All Israel is represented, from little Benjamin to powerful Judah, and tribes from the north as well as the south. Benjamin, leading. Perhaps reflecting the fact that from the tribe of Benjamin came the first king (Saul), who began the royal victories over Israel's enemies (see 1Sa 11:11; 14:20–23).

68:28–31 Prayer for God to continue his conquest of the threatening powers.

68:28 Summon your power. Or, perhaps, "Command your power to act."

68:29 Because of your temple. Because your earthly royal house has been established in Jerusalem. bring you gifts. Acknowledge you by bringing tribute, as subjected kings brought tribute to their conquerers (see 2Sa 8:2,6,10; 2Ki 3:4).

68:30 Rebuke. See note on 76:6. beast among the reeds. Pharaoh (see Eze 29:3). herd of bulls among the calves. Powerful princes supporting the pharaoh, and the lesser princes of other nations. Egypt is singled out here as representative of the hostile nations—because of Israel's past experiences with that world power and because at the time the psalm was composed it was the one great empire on Israel's immediate horizons. Scatter the nations. See v. 1; so that Israel may have peace (see 46:9; 48:4–7; 65:7; 76:3).

68:32–35 Climax of the liturgical procession: a call for all kingdoms to hail with praise the God of Israel as the God who reigns in heaven and has established his earthly throne in the temple in Jerusalem (see Ps 47).

68:33 See v. 4 and note. thunders with mighty voice. See note on 29:3–9.

68:35 awesome. See 45:4 and note. gives power and strength to his people. The Lord of all has made Israel his people (his "kingdom"; see Ex 19:5–6), and his rule among them makes them participants in his victorious power (see 29:10–11).

Ps 69 A plea for God to have mercy and to save from a host of enemies: the prayer of a godly king when under vicious attack by a widespread conspiracy at a time when God had "wounded" him (see v. 26) for some sin in his life (see v. 5). If, as tradition claims, David authored the original psalm (see the superscription), the occasion is unknown. In its present form the prayer suggests a later son of David who ruled over the southern kingdom of Judah (see v. 35). That king may have been Hezekiah (see 2Ki 18–20; 2Ch 29–32). In themes and language this psalm has many links with Ps 32; 35; 38; 40; 109 (all psalms "of David"; see also Ps 18). It begins a series of three prayers for deliverance when threatened by enemies. The authors of the NT viewed this cry of a godly sufferer as foreshadowing the sufferings of Christ; no psalm, except Ps 22, is quoted more frequently in the NT.

69 title For the director of music. See note on Ps 4 title. To ⌞the tune of⌟. See note on Ps 9 title. Lilies. See note on Ps 45 title.

69:1–4 Initial plea for God to save.

69:1–2 waters . . . miry depths . . . deep waters . . . floods. Conventional imagery for great distress (see notes on 30:1; 32:6)—here the results of God's "wounding" (see v. 26), but especially of the attacks of the enemies (see vv. 14–15,29).

69:3 throat is parched. See 22:15. eyes fail. See 6:7 and note.

4 Those who hate me[d] without reason[e] outnumber the hairs of my head;
many are my enemies without cause,[f]
those who seek to destroy me.[g]
I am forced to restore what I did not steal.

5 You know my folly,[h] O God;
my guilt is not hidden from you.[i]

6 May those who hope in you not be disgraced because of me, O Lord, the LORD Almighty;
may those who seek you not be put to shame because of me,
O God of Israel.
7 For I endure scorn[j] for your sake,[k]
and shame covers my face.[l] 8 I am a stranger to my brothers, an alien to my own mother's sons;[m] 9 for zeal for your house consumes me,[n] and the insults of those who insult you fall on me.[o] 10 When I weep and fast,[p]
I must endure scorn;
11 when I put on sackcloth,[q]
people make sport of me.
12 Those who sit at the gate[r] mock me,
and I am the song of the drunkards.[s]

13 But I pray to you, O LORD, in the time of your favor;[t]
in your great love,[u] O God, answer me with your sure salvation.
14 Rescue me from the mire,
do not let me sink;
deliver me from those who hate me,
from the deep waters.[v]
15 Do not let the floodwaters[w] engulf me or the depths swallow me up[x] or the pit close its mouth over me.[y] 16 Answer me, O LORD, out of the goodness of your love;[z] in your great mercy turn to me.
17 Do not hide your face[a] from your servant;
answer me quickly,[b] for I am in trouble.[c] 18 Come near and rescue me;
redeem[d] me because of my foes.

19 You know how I am scorned,[e] disgraced and shamed;
all my enemies are before you.
20 Scorn has broken my heart and has left me helpless;
I looked for sympathy, but there was none,
for comforters,[f] but I found none.[g] 21 They put gall in my food and gave me vinegar[h] for my thirst.[i]

22 May the table set before them become a snare;

69:4 without reason ... without cause. Those whom he has not wronged are pitted against him (see 35:19 and note). outnumber the hairs of my head. See note on 40:12. I am forced. An illustrative way of saying that his enemies are spreading false accusations about him (see 5:9 and note).

69:5–12 Prayer that God's discipline of his godly servant may not bring disgrace on all those who trustingly look to the Lord. The author acknowledges (v. 5) that God's "wounding" of him (see v. 26) has been occasioned by some sin in his life (but he has not sinned against those who have become his enemies). Because of his present suffering, his enemies mock his deep commitment to the Lord (see 22:6–8; 42:3; 79:10; 115:2; Job 2:9). Implicitly he prays that God will restore him again and vindicate his trust in him.

69:5 folly. See NIV text note on 14:1.

69:8 Even those nearest him dissociate themselves from him (see 31:11–12 and note).

69:9 zeal for your house. What was true of the author was even more true of Jesus (see Jn 2:17). insults of those who insult you. Those who mock God also mock his servant who trusts in him (see 74:18,22–23; 2Ki 18:31–35)—as Christ also experienced (see Ro 15:3).

69:10–11 weep and fast ... put on sackcloth. As tokens of humbling himself before the Lord in repentance as he prays for God to have mercy and restore him (see 35:13 and note; see also Ge 37:34; 2Sa 12:16–17; Joel 1:13–14; 2:15–17; Jnh 3:5).

69:12 Those who sit at the gate ... drunkards. Everyone, from the elders of the city to the town drunks.

69:13–18 Though they mock, I pray to you.

69:13 time of your favor. When God is near to save (see 32:6 and note; see also Isa 49:8; 61:2; 2Co 6:2). great love. See note on 6:4.

69:14–15 mire ... deep waters ... floodwaters ... depths. See note on vv. 1–2.

69:15 swallow me. See note on 49:14. pit. See note on 30:1.

69:16 love. See note on 6:4.

69:17 hide your face. See note on 13:1.

69:18 redeem. See note on 25:22.

69:19–21 In my trouble they heaped on scorn instead of bringing comfort (see 35:11–16; see also 142:4; Job 13:4; 16:2; 21:34).

69:20 heart. See note on 4:7.

69:21 gall in my food ... vinegar for my thirst. Vivid metaphors for the bitter scorn they made him eat and drink when his whole being craved for the nourishment and refreshment of comfort. The authors of the Gospels, especially Matthew, suggest that the suffering expressed in this verse foreshadowed Christ's suffering on the cross (see Mt 27:34,48; Mk 15:23,36; Lk 23:36; Jn 19:29).

69:22–28 Prayer for God to redress the wrongs committed (see note on 5:10).

69:22–23 For Paul's application of these verses to the Jews who rejected the Christ see Ro 11:9–10.

69:22 They had set his table with "gall" and "vinegar" (v. 21). table set before them. Reference may be to the meal accompanying the sealing of a covenant (see note on 23:5). In that case, this verse alludes to a pact uniting the enemies and calls on God to turn it against them.

may it become retribution and[y] a trap.[j] 23 May their eyes be darkened so they cannot see,
and their backs be bent forever.[k] 24 Pour out your wrath[l] on them;
let your fierce anger overtake them.
25 May their place be deserted;[m]
let there be no one to dwell in their tents.[n] 26 For they persecute those you wound and talk about the pain of those you hurt.[o] 27 Charge them with crime upon crime;[p] do not let them share in your salvation.[q] 28 May they be blotted out of the book of life[r] and not be listed with the righteous.[s]

29 I am in pain and distress;
may your salvation, O God, protect me.[t]

30 I will praise God's name in song[u]
and glorify him[v] with thanksgiving.
31 This will please the LORD more than an ox, more than a bull with its horns and hoofs.[w] 32 The poor will see and be glad[x]— you who seek God, may your hearts live![y] 33 The LORD hears the needy[z] and does not despise his captive people.

34 Let heaven and earth praise him,
the seas and all that move in them,[a] 35 for God will save Zion[b] and rebuild the cities of Judah.[c]
Then people will settle there and possess it;
36 the children of his servants will inherit it,[d]
and those who love his name will dwell there.[e]

Psalm 70

70:1-5pp — Ps 40:13-17

For the director of music. Of David.
A petition.

1 Hasten, O God, to save me;
O LORD, come quickly to help me.[f]
2 May those who seek my life[g] be put to shame and confusion;
may all who desire my ruin be turned back in disgrace.[h] 3 May those who say to me, "Aha! Aha!"[i] turn back because of their shame.
4 But may all who seek you[j] rejoice and be glad[k] in you;
may those who love your salvation always say,
"Let God be exalted!"[l]

5 Yet I am poor and needy;[m] y 22 Or snare / and their fellowship become

69:23 They mocked him for his "wound" (v. 26); now may they experience the same failing of the eyes (see v. 3 and note on 6:7) and bending of the back (from weakness and pain; see 38:5–8). May ... their backs be bent. Lit. "May ... their loins give way." "Loins" refers to the belly and lower part of the back; they were viewed as the back's center of strength (see 66:11; see also Job 40:16).

69:24 wrath ... anger. See note on 2:5. overtake them. Like a flash flood.

69:25 They sought to remove him from his place; may they be removed. Cf. Peter's application of this judgment to Judas (Ac 1:20).

69:26 The great wrong committed by his enemies against him and to which reference has repeatedly been made.

69:27 They have falsely charged him with crimes (v. 4); may their real crimes all be charged against them.

69:28 They had plotted his death; may death be their destiny. book of life. God's royal list of the righteous, whom God blesses with life (see 1:3; 7:9; 11:7; 34:12; 37:17,29; 55:22; 75:10; 92:12–14; 140:13). For other references to God's books see notes on 9:5; 51:1. In the NT the "book of life" refers to God's list of those destined for eternal life (see Php 4:3; Rev 3:5; 13:8; 17:8; 20:12,15; 21:27).

69:29 Renewal of the prayer just prior to the vow to praise. protect me. Lit. "raise me to a high, secure place."

69:30–33 A vow to praise (see note on 7:17) out of assurance that the prayer will be heard (see note on 3:8).

69:30 God's name. See v. 36 and note on 5:11.

69:32 poor. See note on 34:6. see and be glad. See 22:26 and note. hearts. See note on 4:7. live. Bubble over with the joy of life, because the Lord does hear the prayers of his people in need—contrary to the mocking of scoffers.

69:34–36 A call to praise (see note on 9:1) in the assurance that God will restore Judah and assure his people's inheritance in the promised land. This stanza appears to indicate that in its final form this royal prayer was used at a time when not only the king was in trouble but the kingdom of Judah had also suffered devastating defeat.

69:34 Let all creation praise him (see 148:1–13; Isa 49:13).

69:35–36 people ... children. God's people and their children through the generations, specifically those who love his name.

69:35 Zion. See note on 9:11.

Ps 70 An urgent prayer for God's help when threatened by enemies—a somewhat revised duplicate of 40:13–17 (see notes there). This is the second in a series of three such prayers; its language has many links with that of Ps 71. The prayer is framed by pleas for God to "come quickly" with his help (vv. 1,5). The rest of the prayer focuses on the effects of God's saving help: (1) upon those "who seek my life" (vv. 2–3) and (2) for those "who seek you" (v. 4).

70 title See note on Ps 4 title. A petition. See note on Ps 38 title.

70:4 God's deliverance of his servant will give joy to all who trust in the Lord, because they see in it the assurance of their own salvation. Let God be exalted! Because his saving help is sure and effective (contrast v. 3).

come quickly to me,[n] O God.
You are my help[o] and my deliverer;[p]
O LORD, do not delay.[q]

Psalm 71

71:1-3pp — Ps 31:1-4

[1]In you, O LORD, I have taken refuge;[r] let me never be put to shame.[s] [2]Rescue me and deliver me in your righteousness;
turn your ear[t] to me and save me.
[3]Be my rock of refuge,
to which I can always go;
give the command to save me,
for you are my rock and my fortress.[u] [4]Deliver[v] me, O my God, from the hand of the wicked,[w] from the grasp of evil and cruel men.[x]

[5]For you have been my hope,[y]
O Sovereign LORD,
my confidence[z] since my youth.
[6]From birth[a] I have relied on you;
you brought me forth from my mother's womb.[b]
I will ever praise[c] you.
[7]I have become like a portent[d] to many,
but you are my strong refuge.[e] [8]My mouth[f] is filled with your praise, declaring your splendor[g] all day long.

[9]Do not cast[h] me away when I am old;[i] do not forsake[j] me when my strength is gone.
[10]For my enemies[k] speak against me;
those who wait to kill[l] me
conspire[m] together.
[11]They say, "God has forsaken[n] him;
pursue him and seize him,
for no one will rescue[o] him."
[12]Be not far[p] from me, O God;
come quickly, O my God, to help[q] me.
[13]May my accusers[r] perish in shame;[s] may those who want to harm me be covered with scorn and disgrace.[t]

[14]But as for me, I will always have hope;[u]
I will praise you more and more.
[15]My mouth will tell[v] of your righteousness,[w] of your salvation all day long,
though I know not its measure.
[16]I will come and proclaim your mighty acts,[x] O Sovereign LORD;
I will proclaim your righteousness, yours alone.
[17]Since my youth, O God, you have taught[y] me,
and to this day I declare your marvelous deeds.[z] [18]Even when I am old and gray,[a] do not forsake me, O God,
till I declare your power[b] to the next generation,
your might to all who are to come.[c]

[19]Your righteousness reaches to the skies,[d] O God,

Ps 71 A prayer for God's help in old age when enemies threaten because they see that the king's strength is waning (see note on 5:9). The psalm bears no superscription, but it may well be that Ps 70 was viewed by the editors of the Psalms as the introduction to Ps 71, in which case the psalm is ascribed to David (in his old age; see vv. 9,18). This suggestion gains support from the fact that Ps 72 is identified as a prayer by and/or for King Solomon (see introduction to that psalm). This is the third in a series of three prayers; its dominant theme is hope (see v. 14). Formally symmetrical, the psalm is composed of six stanzas, having a five-four-five, five-four-five (in Hebrew) line pattern: vv. 1–4 (five lines), vv. 5–8 (four lines), vv. 9–13 (five lines), vv. 15–18 (five lines), vv. 19–21 (four lines), vv. 22–24 (five lines). At the center (v. 14; see note on 6:6) stands a confident confession of hope. The whole is framed by an appeal for help (vv. 1–4) and a vow to praise in anticipation of deliverance (vv. 22–24). The second and fifth stanzas are linked by references to the troubles the king has experienced; stanzas three and four are linked by references to old age.

71:1–4 The initial appeal for God's help.

71:2 your righteousness. See vv. 15–16,19,24; see also note on 4:1.

71:5–8 A confession that the Lord has always been his hope (see vv. 14,19–21).

71:5 since my youth. See 22:9.

71:7 like a portent. The troubles of his life (see v. 20) have been viewed by others as holding some special significance—especially since the Lord has been his "strong refuge" through them all.

71:9–13 A prayer for God's continuing help in the waning years of his life.

71:10 enemies speak against me. See notes on 3:2; 5:9.

71:13 A plea for redress (see note on 5:10).

71:14 The centered confession of unfaltering hope (see 42:8; see also notes on 6:6; 42:8).

71:15–18 A vow to praise, accompanying the renewal of his prayer (v. 18); see note on 7:17.

71:16–17 mighty acts ... righteousness ... marvelous deeds. God's "mighty (marvelous) acts" in behalf of his people are expressions of his righteousness; thus they can also be called his "righteous acts" (v. 24).

71:16 come. To the temple, where God's people assemble for worship.

71:19–21 A confession that the Lord is still his hope, in the face of all his troubles (see vv. 5–8,14).

71:19 reaches to the skies. Is as expansive as all space above the earth (see also 36:5 and note). Who, O God, is like you? See Mic 7:18.

you will restore[h] my life again;
from the depths of the earth[i]
you will again bring me up.
21You will increase my honor[j]
and comfort[k] me once again.

22I will praise you with the harp[l]

I will sing praise to you with the 23My lips will shout for joy[o]

71:23 redeemed. Here, as often, a synonym for "deliver."
71:24 righteous acts. God's saving acts in behalf of his people according to his covenant promises.

Ps 72 A prayer for the king, a son of David who rules on David's throne as God's earthly regent over his people. It may have been used at the time of the king's coronation (as were Ps 2; 110). Possibly vv. 2–11,17 are expressly a petition (see NIV text note on v. 2), but even if the NIV text rendering is taken, these verses are implicit prayers. They express the desire of the nation that the king's reign will, as a consequence of God's endowment of his servant, be characterized by justice and righteousness, the supreme virtues of kingship. The prayer reflects the ideal concept of the king and the glorious effects of his reign. See Jeremiah's indictment of some of the last Davidic kings (e.g., Jer 22:2–3,13,15) and the prophetic announcement of the Messiah's righteous rule (see Isa 9:7; 11:4–5; Jer 23:5–6; 33:15–16; Zec 9:9). Later Jewish tradition saw in this psalm a description of the Messiah, as did the early church. The last three verses do not belong to the prayer (see notes there).
72 title Of Solomon. Either by him or for him—of course, both may be true. Undoubtedly it was also used by Israel (Judah) as a prayer for later Davidic kings.
72:1 The basic prayer. justice ... righteousness. May the king be endowed with the gift for and the love of justice and righteousness so that his reign reflects the rule of God himself. Solomon asked for wisdom (see 1Ki 3:9,11–12; see also Pr 16:12). righteousness. See note on 4:1.
72:2–7 The quality of his reign: May it be righteous, prosperous and enduring.
72:3 Righteousness in the realm will be like fertilizing rain on the land, for then the Lord will bless his people with abundance (see vv. 6–7; 5:12; 65:9–13; 133:3; Lev 25:19; Dt 28:8).
72:5 endure as long as the sun. See 21:4 and note.
72:6 See v. 3 and note; see also v. 7. For another vivid metaphor expressive of the significance of the Lord's anointed for the realm see La 4:20.
72:7 righteous. See note on 1:5. will flourish. Because the king supports and protects them, but uses all his royal power to suppress the wicked (see Ps 101).
72:8–14 The extent of his domain (vv. 8–11) as the result of his righteous rule (vv. 12–14).
72:8 His kingdom and his authority will extend to all the world (see vv. 9–11). Ideally and potentially, as God's earthly regent, he possesses royal authority that extends on earth as far as God's—an expectation that is fulfilled in Christ. See Zec 9:10 and note.
72:9 The tribes of the Arabian Desert to the east will yield to him. lick the dust. See Mic 7:17.
72:10 The kings whose lands border the Mediterranean Sea to the west will acknowledge him as overlord, as will those who rule in south Arabia and along the eastern African coast. Tarshish. A distant Mediterranean seaport, perhaps as far west as modern Spain. Sheba. See notes on Ge 10:28; 1Ki 10:1; Joel 3:8. Seba. Elsewhere in the OT associated with Cush (Ge 10:7; Isa 43:3); it may refer to a region in modern Sudan, south of Egypt.

will bring tribute to him;
the kings of Sheba[g] and Seba will present him gifts.[h] [11]All kings will bow down[i] to him and all nations will serve[j] him.

[12]For he will deliver the needy who cry out,
the afflicted who have no one to help.
[13]He will take pity[k] on the weak and the needy and save the needy from death.
[14]He will rescue[l] them from oppression and violence, for precious[m] is their blood in his sight.

[15]Long may he live!
May gold from Sheba[n] be given him.
May people ever pray for him and bless him all day long.[o] [16]Let grain[p] abound throughout the land; on the tops of the hills may it sway.
Let its fruit[q] flourish like Lebanon;[r]
let it thrive like the grass of the field.[s] [17]May his name endure forever;[t]
may it continue as long as the sun.[u]

All nations will be blessed through him, and they will call him blessed.[v]

BOOK III

Psalms 73–89

Psalm 73

A psalm of Asaph.

[1]Surely God is good to Israel, to those who are pure in heart.[c]
[2]But as for me, my feet had almost slipped;[d]
I had nearly lost my foothold.[e]
[3]For I envied[f] the arrogant when I saw the prosperity of the wicked.[g]

[4]They have no struggles; their bodies are healthy and strong.[d]

[d]4 With a different word division of the Hebrew; Masoretic Text struggles at their death; / their bodies are healthy

72:15–17 Concluding summation: May the king enjoy a long, prosperous, world-renowned reign—one that blesses all the nations.

72:17 All nations. The language recalls the promise to Abraham (see Ge 12:3; 22:18) and suggests that it will be fulfilled through the royal son of David—ultimately the Messiah.

72:18–19 A doxology at the conclusion of Book II of the Psalter (see 41:13 and note). It is the people's response, their "Amen," to the contents of Book II (see note on Ps 4 title).

72:19 filled with his glory. See note on 85:9.

72:20 An editorial notation probably carried over from an earlier collection of psalms ascribed exclusively to David. prayers of David. See titles of Ps 86; 142.

Ps 73 A word of godly wisdom concerning the destinies of the righteous and the wicked. The editors of the Psalter placed it at the beginning of Book III, as they did Ps 1 at the beginning of the whole collection (see introduction to Ps 1). Here is addressed one of the most disturbing problems of the OT saints: How is it that the wicked so often prosper while the godly suffer so much? Thematically the psalm has many links with Ps 49 (see introduction to that psalm; see also Ps 37). Its date may be as late as the postexilic era. Thematic development divides the psalm's structure into two halves of 14 verses each. The whole is framed by the sharply etched contrast of v. 1 and v. 27.

73 title The psalm is ascribed to Asaph, leader of one of David's Levitical choirs (see notes on Ps 39; 42; 50 titles). It begins a collection of 11 Asaphite psalms (Ps 73–83), to which Ps 50 at one time probably belonged. In view of the fact that the collection clearly contains prayers from a later date (e.g., Ps 74; 79; 83), references to Asaph in these titles must sometimes include descendants of Asaph who functioned in his place (see note on Ps 50 title). The Asaphite psalms are dominated by the theme of God's rule over his people and the nations. Apart from an introductory word of instruction (Ps 73) the collection is bracketed by prayers for God to rescue his people from foreign oppression (Ps 74; 83). The rest of the collection (Ps 75–82) appears to reflect thematic pairing: 1. The God who brings down the wicked and exalts the righteous (Ps 75) is the God and Savior of Israel (Ps 76). 2. God's saving acts in behalf of his people are remembered (Ps 77–78). 3. God is petitioned for help against the devastating attacks of Israel's enemies (Ps 79–80). 4. God is portrayed as presiding in judgment over his people (Ps 81) and over the world powers (Ps 82).

73:1–14 An almost fatal trial of faith: In the midst of his many troubles a godly man lets his eyes become fixed on the prosperity of the wicked.

73:1 pure in heart. See v. 13; see also note on 24:4. heart. See note on 4:7.

73:2 feet had almost slipped. From the path of truth and godliness (see 37:31 and note).

73:4–12 A description of the prosperous state of the wicked and the haughty self-reliance such prosperity engenders—hardly an objective account; it is rather the exaggerated picture that envious and troubled eyes perceived (see the description of the wicked in 10:2–11; cf. Job's anguished portrayal of the prosperity of the wicked in Job 21).

5 They are free[h] from the burdens common to man;
they are not plagued by human ills.
6 Therefore pride[i] is their necklace;[j] they clothe themselves with violence.[k]
7 From their callous hearts[l] comes iniquity[e];
the evil conceits of their minds know no limits.
8 They scoff, and speak with malice;[m] in their arrogance[n] they threaten oppression.[o]
9 Their mouths lay claim to heaven, and their tongues take possession of
the earth.
10 Therefore their people turn to them and drink up waters in abundance.[f]
11 They say, "How can God know?
Does the Most High have knowledge?"

12 This is what the wicked are like—always carefree,[p] they increase in wealth.[q]

13 Surely in vain[r] have I kept my heart pure;
in vain have I washed my hands in innocence.[s] 14 All day long I have been plagued;[t]
I have been punished every morning.

15 If I had said, "I will speak thus,"
I would have betrayed your children.
16 When I tried to understand[u] all this,
it was oppressive to me
17 till I entered the sanctuary[v] of God;
then I understood their final destiny.[w]

18 Surely you place them on slippery ground;[x]
you cast them down to ruin.[y] 19 How suddenly[z] are they destroyed, completely swept away[a] by terrors!
20 As a dream[b] when one awakes,[c]
so when you arise, O Lord, you will despise them as fantasies.[d]

21 When my heart was grieved and my spirit embittered, 22 I was senseless[e] and ignorant;
I was a brute beast[f] before you.

23 Yet I am always with you;
you hold me by my right hand.[g] 24 You guide[h] me with your counsel,[i] and afterward you will take me into glory.
25 Whom have I in heaven but you?[j]
And earth has nothing I desire besides you.[k]
26 My flesh and my heart[l] may fail,[m] but God is the strength[n] of my heart
and my portion[o] forever.

27 Those who are far from you will perish;[p]
you destroy all who are unfaithful[q]
to you.
28 But as for me, it is good to be near
God.[r]
I have made the Sovereign LORD my refuge;[s]
I will tell of all your deeds.[t]

73:6 pride is their necklace. Contrast Pr 1:9; 3:3,22.

73:11 God . . . Most High. That is, God Most High (see 57:2; see also note on 3:7). Most High. See note on Ge 14:19.

73:13–14 The thoughts that plagued him when he compared the state of the wicked with his own troubled lot.

73:13 heart pure. See note on v. 1.

73:14 punished. As a child by his father to keep him in the right way (see Pr 3:12; 23:13–14).

73:15–28 The renewal of faith: In the temple the godly man sees the destiny God has appointed for the wicked.

73:15 If I had said. If he had given public expression to his thoughts as embodying true insight. your children. Those characterized by a humble reliance on and commitment to God.

73:18–20 Though the wicked seem to prosper, God has made their position precarious, and without warning they are swept away. The psalmist does not reflect on their state after death but leaves it as his final word that the wicked fall utterly and inevitably from their state of proud prosperity (see Ps 49; cf. the final state of the godly in v. 24).

73:20 When God arouses himself as from sleep (see note on 7:6) and deals with the wicked, they vanish like the shadowy characters of a dream.

73:21 heart. See note on 4:7. spirit. Lit. "kidneys" (see note on 7:9).

73:22 a brute beast. As stupid as a beast (see Job 18:3).

73:23–26 Although he had (almost) fallen to the level of beastly stupidity, God has not, will not, let him go—ever!

73:24 God's counsel has overcome his folly and will guide him through all the pitfalls of life (see 16:7; 32:8; 48:14). take me into glory. At the end of the believer's pilgrimage (see 49:15 and note).

73:25 Though he has envied the prosperity of the wicked, he now confesses that nothing in heaven or earth is more desirable than God.

73:26 My flesh . . . heart. My whole being (see 84:2). heart. See note on 4:7. portion. Since the psalmist was a Levite, the Lord was his portion in the promised land in that he lived by the people's tithes dedicated to the Lord (see Nu 18:21–24; Dt 10:9; 18:1–2). Here he confesses more: The Lord himself is his sustainer, his preserver—his very life.

73:28 I will tell of all your deeds. A concluding vow to praise God for all his mercies to him (see note on 7:17).

Psalm 74

A maskil[g] of Asaph.

[1]Why have you rejected[u] us forever,[v] O God?
Why does your anger smolder against the sheep of your pasture?[w]
[2]Remember the people you purchased[x] of old,[y]
the tribe of your inheritance,[z] whom you redeemed[a]— Mount Zion,[b] where you dwelt.[c] [3]Turn your steps toward these everlasting ruins,[d] all this destruction the enemy has brought on the sanctuary.

[4]Your foes roared[e] in the place where you met with us;
they set up their standards[f] as signs.
[5]They behaved like men wielding axes to cut through a thicket of trees.[g] [6]They smashed all the carved[h] paneling
with their axes and hatchets.
[7]They burned your sanctuary to the ground;
they defiled[i] the dwelling place[j]
of your Name.[k] [8]They said in their hearts, "We will crush[l] them completely!"
They burned[m] every place where God was worshiped in the
land.
[9]We are given no miraculous signs;[n]
no prophets[o] are left,
and none of us knows how long this will be.

[10]How long[p] will the enemy mock[q]
you, O God?
Will the foe revile[r] your name
forever?
[11]Why do you hold back your hand,
your right hand?[s] Take it from the folds of your garment[t] and destroy them!

[12]But you, O God, are my king[u] from of old;
you bring salvation[v] upon the earth.
[13]It was you who split open the sea[w]
by your power;

[g]Title: Probably a literary or musical term

Ps 74 A prayer for God to come to the aid of his people and defend his cause in the face of the mocking of the enemies—the Lord's relation to his people is like that of a king to his nation. The psalm dates from the time of the exile when Israel had been destroyed as a nation, the promised land devastated and the temple reduced to ruins (see Ps 79; La 2). Its relationship to the ministries of Jeremiah and Ezekiel is uncertain (see note on v. 9). Thematically the psalm divides into two halves of 11 verses each, with v. 12 (the center line; see note there) highlighting the primary thematic element that unifies the prayer. Verses 1–11 are framed by the "Why's" of the people's complaint (vv. 1,11); the whole psalm is framed by pleas for God to "remember"(vv. 2,22). Note also that the "they's" of vv. 4–8 have their counterpoint in the "you's" of vv. 13–17 (highlighted in the Hebrew by seven emphatic pronouns)—the mighty acts of God are appealed to against the destructive and haughty deeds of the enemies.

74 title maskil. See note on Ps 32 title. Asaph. See note on Ps 73 title.

74:1–2 Initial complaint and appeal.

74:1 Why . . . ? Why . . . ? Cf. "How long . . . ?" (v. 10) and "Why . . . ?" (v. 11). See note on 6:3; see also Introduction: Theology. forever. So it seemed, since no relief was in sight. anger. See note on 2:5. sheep of your pasture. See note on 23:1.

74:2 purchased. Or "acquired"; or "created." tribe. Here referring to all Israel. your inheritance. See Dt 9:29. redeemed. Here, as often, a synonym for "deliver." Mount Zion. See note on 9:11. This verse recalls the victory song of Ex 15 (see especially vv. 13–17, and compare the center verse of this psalm, v. 12, with the last verse of the song, Ex 15:18) and thus sets the stage for the other exodus recollections that follow. The Babylonian destruction of Zion seems to be the undoing of God's great victory over Egypt when he redeemed his people.

74:3–8 The Babylonians' high-handed destruction of the Lord's temple.

74:3 Turn your steps toward. Hurry to restore.

74:4 standards. Probably troop standards (see Nu 1:52; Isa 31:9; Jer 4:21). as signs. Signifying their triumph.

74:6 carved paneling. See 1Ki 6:15.

74:7 your Name. See note on 5:11. The NIV capitalizes "Name" when it stands for God's presence at the sanctuary (see Dt 12:5).

74:8 They said. See note on 10:11. every place where God was worshiped. Lit. "all the meeting places of God" (see v. 4). The reference is uncertain. At the time of the Babylonian attacks there may have been a number of (illegitimate) places in Judah where people went to worship God (see notes on 1Ki 3:2; 2Ki 18:4).

74:9–11 The complaint and prayer renewed (see vv. 1–2).

74:9 no miraculous signs. As there were at the time of the exodus (see vv. 13–15; 78:43). no prophets. Jeremiah had been taken to Egypt (see Jer 43:6–7), but whether Ezekiel was no longer prophesying is unknown. Perhaps this psalm was composed by an Asaphite who remained in Israel, part of a small group overlooked by Johanan when that army officer led the remnant to Egypt (see Jer 43:4–7).

74:10 mock you . . . revile your name. See v. 18; see also v. 22; 2Ki 18:32–35; Isa 37:6,23.

74:12 The center verse (center line in the Hebrew text; see note on 6:6). The whole psalm presupposes the truth confessed here: God is Israel's King, her hope and Savior; Israel is God's people (kingdom). This accounts for both the complaint and the prayer, and why the destruction of Israel brings with it the mocking of God. my. Communal use of the singular pronoun (see note on Ps 30 title). from of old. From the days of the exodus (see Ex 3:7; 19:5–6).

74:13–17 The Lord is the mighty God of salvation and creation (see 65:6–7 and note).

74:13–14 Recollection of God's mighty acts when he delivered his people from Egypt. The imagery is borrowed from ancient Near Eastern creation myths, in which the primeval chaotic waters were depicted you broke the heads of the monster[x] in the waters.

14It was you who crushed the heads of Leviathan[y]
and gave him as food to the creatures of the desert.[z] 15It was you who opened up springs[a]
and streams;
you dried up[b] the ever flowing rivers.
16The day is yours, and yours also the night;
you established the sun and moon.[c] 17It was you who set all the boundaries[d] of the earth;
you made both summer and winter.[e]

18Remember how the enemy has mocked you, O LORD, how foolish people[f] have reviled
your name.
19Do not hand over the life of your dove[g] to wild beasts;
do not forget the lives of your afflicted[h] people forever.
20Have regard for your covenant,[i] because haunts of violence fill the dark places[j] of the land.
21Do not let the oppressed[k] retreat in disgrace;
may the poor and needy[l] praise
your name.

22Rise up,[m] O God, and defend your
cause;
remember how fools[n] mock you all day long.
23Do not ignore the clamor[o] of your adversaries,[p]
the uproar[q] of your enemies,[r] which rises continually.

Psalm 75

For the director of music. ⌞To the tune of⌟
"Do Not Destroy." A psalm of Asaph.
A song.

1We give thanks to you, O God, we give thanks, for your Name is near;[s]
men tell of your wonderful deeds.[t]

2You say, "I choose the appointed time;[u]
it is I who judge uprightly.[v] 3When the earth and all its people quake,[w]
it is I who hold its pillars[x] firm.
Selah

75:3 [w]Isa 24:19 [x]1Sa 2:8; S 2Sa 22:8

as a many-headed monster that the creator-god overcame, after which he established the world order (see note on 32:6). The poet here interweaves creation and salvation themes to celebrate the fact that the God of Israel has shown by his saving acts (his opening of the Red Sea for his people and his destruction of the Egyptians) that he is able to overcome all hostile powers to redeem his people and establish his new order in the world. For poetic use of this imagery (1) to celebrate God's creation works see 89:10; Job 9:13; 26:12–13; (2) to celebrate the deliverance from Egypt see Isa 51:9; (3) to announce a future deliverance of Israel see Isa 27:1. Echoes of the same imagery are present in the judgment announced against Egypt in Eze 29:3–5; 32:2–6.

74:15 Recollection of God's water miracles at the Red Sea, in the desert and at the Jordan.

74:16–17 God is the One who established the orders of creation; he (alone) is able to effect redemption and establish his kingdom in the world against all creaturely opposition.

74:18–23 A prayer for God to defend his cause and restore his people.

74:18 See vv. 2,10. foolish people. The "foes" of v. 10 are here called fools for their contempt of God (see v. 22; see also NIV text note on 14:1).

74:19 your dove. Israel—probably a figure of endearment (see SS 2:14; 5:2; 6:9; see also Ps 68:13 and note). wild beasts. See note on 7:2.

74:20 your covenant. God's covenant to be the God of Israel, who makes them secure and richly blessed in the promised land (see Ex 19:5–6; 23:27–31; 34:10–11; Lev 26:11–12,42,44–45; Dt 28:1–14; see also Ps 105:8–11; 106:45; 111:5,9; Isa 54:10; Jer 14:21; Eze 16:60).

74:21 poor and needy. See note on 34:6. praise your name. May they have cause to do so.

74:22 Rise up. See note on 3:7.

74:23 clamor . . . uproar. See 64:2.

Ps 75 A song of reassurance when arrogant worldly powers threaten Israel's security. The psalm may date from the time of the Assyrian menace (see 2Ki 18:13–19:37). See also Ps 11; 76. Thematic parallels to the song of Hannah (1Sa 2:1–10) are numerous. The worshiping congregation speaks (v. 1), perhaps led in its praise by one of the descendants of Asaph (v. 9). The psalm is framed by thanksgiving (v. 1) and praise (vv. 9–10). Two stanzas of four (Hebrew) lines each form the body of the psalm, and each stanza is composed of two couplets. The first stanza contains a reassuring word from heaven; the second contains a triumphant response from earth.

75 title For the director of music. See note on Ps 4 title. ⌞To the tune of⌟. See note on Ps 9 title. Do Not Destroy. See Ps 57; 58; 59 titles. Asaph. See note on Ps 73 title. song. See note on Ps 30 title.

75:1 The congregation begins with thanksgiving in the form of praise (see 7:17; 28:7; 30:12; 35:18). Name. See notes on 5:11; 74:7. wonderful deeds. See note on 9:1.

75:2–5 A reassuring word from above: God will not fail to call the arrogant to account. It is not clear whether a new word from the Lord is heard or whether these verses recall (and perhaps summarize) earlier prophetic words (such as those of Isaiah in 2Ki 19:21–34).

75:2 God will not fail to judge—but in his own time.

75:3 When, because of the upsurge of evil powers, the whole moral order of the world seems to have crumbled, God still guarantees its stability (see note on 11:3). pillars. A figure for that which stabilizes the world order (see note on 24:2).

[4]To the arrogant[y] I say, 'Boast no more,'[z] and to the wicked, 'Do not lift up your horns.[a] [5]Do not lift your horns against heaven;
do not speak with outstretched neck.[b]' "

[6]No one from the east or the west or from the desert can exalt a man.
[7]But it is God who judges:[c]
He brings one down, he exalts another.[d] [8]In the hand of the LORD is a cup full of foaming wine mixed[e] with spices;
he pours it out, and all the wicked of the earth drink it down to its very dregs.[f]

[9]As for me, I will declare[g] this forever;
I will sing[h] praise to the God of Jacob.[i] [10]I will cut off the horns of all the wicked, but the horns of the righteous will be lifted up.[j]

Psalm 76

For the director of music. With stringed instruments. A psalm of Asaph. A song.

[1]In Judah God is known;
his name is great[k] in Israel.
[2]His tent is in Salem,[l]
his dwelling place in Zion.[m] [3]There he broke the flashing arrows,[n]
the shields and the swords, the weapons of war.[o] Selah

[4]You are resplendent with light,[p] more majestic than mountains rich with game.
[5]Valiant men[q] lie plundered, they sleep their last sleep;[r]
not one of the warriors can lift his hands.
[6]At your rebuke,[s] O God of Jacob, both horse and chariot[t] lie still.
[7]You alone are to be feared.[u]
Who can stand[v] before you when you are angry?[w] [8]From heaven you pronounced judgment, and the land feared[x] and was quiet—

76:8 [x]S 1Ch 16:30; Eze 38:20

75:4 arrogant . . . wicked. To the psalmists the wicked are both arrogant (see especially Ps 10; 73:4–12; 94:4; see also note on 31:23) and foolish (see 14:1; 74:18,22; 92:6; 94:8). lift up your horns. A figure for defiant opposition, based on the action of attacking bulls. "Horn" (see also v. 10) is a common Biblical metaphor for vigor or strength (see NIV text note on 18:2).

75:5 outstretched neck. A sign of defiance.

75:6–8 Triumphant echo from earth: perhaps spoken by the Levitical song leader in elaboration of the comforting word from God.

75:8 cup. See note on 16:5. mixed with spices. The spices used increased the intoxicating effect (see Pr 9:2,5; 23:29–30; SS 8:2; Isa 65:11). drink it down. Because God pours it out, they have no choice.

75:9 Concluding vow to praise God forever (see note on 7:17) for his righteous judgments. me. Probably the Levitical song leader speaking representatively for the people, but the pronoun may be a communal use of the singular, as in 74:12 (see note on Ps 30 title). Jacob. A synonym for Israel (see Ge 32:28).

75:10 It is unclear who is speaking. The action pledged appears unlikely for a Levite but appropriate for a king (see Ps 101). This is not, however, a royal psalm. It seems best, then, to suppose that the speaker(s) of v. 9 recall(s) another word from the Lord. The connection would be: " . . . the God of Jacob/(who declares,) 'I will . . .' " righteous. See note on 1:5. lifted up. See v. 7; see also note on v. 4.

Ps 76 A celebration of the Lord's invincible power in defense of Jerusalem, his royal city. The psalm is thematically related to Ps 46; 48; 87 (see introduction to Ps 46). The ancient tradition may well be correct that the psalm was composed after the Lord's destruction of Sennacherib's army when it threatened Jerusalem (see 2Ki 19:35). Structurally, the opening (vv. 1–3) and closing (vv. 11–12) stanzas contain the main thematic development. Between them, a seven-verse stanza of praise addressed to God (vv. 4–10) celebrates his awesome act of judgment. The internal structure is notable: Verses 4,7,10 present general reflections, while the intervening verses recall the judgment itself. Verse 7, the center line (see note on 6:6), states the main theme of this stanza.

76:1–3 God's crushing defeat of the enemy in defense of Zion.

76:1 is known. Now especially—as a result of his marvelous act. Israel. The poet probably does not intend to distinguish between the two kingdoms (Judah and Israel) but only, by joining their names together, to refer to the whole of God's covenant people. Moreover, as a result of the Assyrian invasions, many displaced Israelites from the northern kingdom now resided in and around Jerusalem.

76:2 tent. Lit. "booth," referring to the temple. Since the Lord has just achieved a great victory over a menacing army, the poet may have wished to speak of the temple as the Lord's campaign tent (see 2Sa 11:11; 1Ki 20:12,16). But see also 18:11 ("canopy"); 31:20 ("dwelling"). Salem. Jerusalem, as the parallelism makes clear (see note on Ge 14:18). Zion. See note on 9:11.

76:4–10 Praise of God's awesome majesty, whose mighty judgment evokes fearful reverence (see introduction).

76:5–6 Perhaps echoes also God's victory over the Egyptians at the Red Sea (see Ex 14:28,30; 15:4–5,10).

76:6 rebuke. This word, when predicated of God, usually refers to either (1) the thunder of his fierce majesty by which he wields his sovereign control over cosmic entities (see 18:15; 104:7; 106:9; Job 26:11; Isa 50:2; Na 1:4) or repulses his enemies (as here; see also 9:5; 68:30; Isa 17:13), or (2) the thunder of his wrath (see 80:16; Isa 51:20; 54:9; 66:15; Mal 2:3). God of Jacob. A link with Ps 75 (see 75:9 and note).

76:7 The thematic center of vv. 4–10 (see note on 6:6).

76:8 From heaven. Though God is present in Zion (see v. 2), he sovereignly rules from heaven.

9 when you, O God, rose up to judge,[y] to save all the afflicted[z] of the land. Selah 10 Surely your wrath against men brings you praise,[a] and the survivors of your wrath are restrained.[h]

11 Make vows to the LORD your God and fulfill them;[b] let all the neighboring lands bring gifts[c] to the One to be feared.
12 He breaks the spirit of rulers;
he is feared by the kings of the earth.

Psalm 77

For the director of music. For Jeduthun. Of Asaph. A psalm.

1 I cried out to God[d] for help;
I cried out to God to hear me.
2 When I was in distress,[e] I sought the Lord;
at night[f] I stretched out untiring hands[g]
and my soul refused to be comforted.[h]

3 I remembered[i] you, O God, and I groaned;[j]
I mused, and my spirit grew faint.[k] Selah
4 You kept my eyes from closing;
I was too troubled to speak.[l]
5 I thought about the former days,[m]
the years of long ago;
6 I remembered my songs in the night.
My heart mused and my spirit inquired:

7 "Will the Lord reject forever?[n]
Will he never show his favor[o] again?
8 Has his unfailing love[p] vanished forever?
Has his promise[q] failed for all time?
9 Has God forgotten to be merciful?[r]
Has he in anger withheld his compassion?[s]" Selah

10 Then I thought, "To this I will appeal:
the years of the right hand[t] of the Most High." 11 I will remember the deeds of the LORD;
yes, I will remember your miracles[u] of long ago.
12 I will meditate[v] on all your works and consider all your mighty deeds.[w]

13 Your ways, O God, are holy.
What god is so great as our God?[x] 14 You are the God who performs miracles;[y]
you display your power among the peoples.
15 With your mighty arm you redeemed your people,[z]

[h] 10 Or Surely the wrath of men brings you praise, / and with the remainder of wrath you arm yourself

76:10 wrath. See note on 2:5. brings you praise. When his judgments bring deliverance, those rescued praise him. If the alternative translation in the NIV text note is taken, "the wrath of men brings you praise" would mean that when men rise against God's kingdom, he crushes them in wrath to his own praise as Victor and Deliverer. And "the remainder of wrath" would indicate that particular judgments do not exhaust his wrath; a remainder is left to deal with other hostile powers.

76:11–12 Let Israel acknowledge God's help with grateful vows; let the nations acknowledge his sovereign rule with tribute.

76:11 Make vows. See note on 50:14.

76:12 spirit of rulers. Their bold rebelliousness.

Ps 77 Comforting reflections in a time of great distress. The interplay of verb forms in vv. 1–6 makes it uncertain whether the psalm is a prayer (in which case the verbs of these verses would have to be rendered in the present tense) or the recollection of a past experience (as the NIV understands it). The distress appears to be personal rather than national. Comparison of vv. 16–19 with Hab 3:8–10 suggests, but does not prove, a time late in the monarchy. The poetic development advances from anguished bewilderment (vv. 1–9) to comforting recollection (vv. 10–20). A striking and dramatic feature is the insertion of a four-verse stanza (vv. 16–19) between the third and fourth verses of another four-verse stanza (vv. 13–15,20).

77 title For the director of music. See note on Ps 4 title. Jeduthun. See note on Ps 39 title. Asaph. See note on Ps 73 title.

77:1–9 Anguished perplexity over God's apparent inaction, when he fails to respond to unceasing and urgent prayers.

77:2 soul. See note on 6:3.

77:3–6 Remembrance of God's past mercies intensifies the present perplexity (as also in 22:1–11). God's failure to act now is so troubling that the psalmist cannot sleep (cf. 3:5; 4:8) and words fail (but see vv. 10–20).

77:6 heart. See note on 4:7.

77:7–9 Though words fail (v. 4), troubled thoughts will not go away.

77:8 unfailing love. See note on 6:4.

77:9 anger. See note on 2:5.

77:10–20 Reassuring recollection of God's mighty acts in behalf of Israel in the exodus.

77:10–12 Faith's decision to look beyond the present troubles—and God's bewildering inactivity—to draw hope anew from God's saving acts of old.

77:10 Most High. See note on Ge 14:19.

77:11,14 miracles. See note on 9:1 ("wonders").

77:13–20 God's mighty acts in the exodus recalled.

77:13 Appears to echo Ex 15:11. are holy. Or "are seen in the sanctuary" (see 63:2).

77:15 redeemed. Here, as often, a synonym for "deliver" (see 74:2). Joseph. OT authors sometimes refer to the northern kingdom as "Joseph" (or "Ephraim," Joseph's son) in distinction from the southern kingdom of Judah (see 78:67; 2Sa 19:20; 1Ki 11:28; Eze 37:16,19; Am 5:6,15; 6:6; Zec 10:6). However, here and elsewhere (see 80:1; 81:5; Ob 18) Joseph—the one elevated to the position of firstborn (see Ge 48:5 and note; Jos 16:1–4; 1Ch 5:2; Eze 47:13)—represents the whole of his generation and thus the descendants of Jacob and Joseph. Selah

[i] Title: Probably a literary or musical term also all the descendants of Jacob.

77:16–19 A poetically heightened description of the majesty of God displayed when he opened a way through the Red Sea. Verses 16,19 speak expressly of that event; the intervening verses (vv. 17–18) evoke the majesty of God displayed in the thunderstorm and earthquake. Ex 14:19 speaks only of God's cloud, not of a thunderstorm or earthquake, but the Hebrew poets often associated either or both with the Lord's coming to effect redemption or judgment—no doubt because these were the two most fearsome displays of power known to them (see 18:12–14; 68:8; Jdg 5:4–5; Hab 3:6,10). Here the psalmist declares: It was the God of thunderstorm and earthquake who made his majestic way through the mighty waters of the sea to bring his people out of bondage. For Christians the display of God's power in behalf of his people now includes the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead (see Mt 28:2; cf. Eph 1:18–23).

77:17 arrows. Lightning bolts.

77:20 Completes the thought of v. 15 (see introduction). led your people. Through the Desert of Sinai.

Ps 78 A psalm of instruction—of warnings not to repeat Israel's sins of the past but to remember God's saving acts and marvelously persistent grace and, remembering, to keep faith with him and his covenant. Here as elsewhere (pervasively in the OT), trust in and loyalty to God on the part of God's people are covenant matters. They do not spring from abstract principles (such as the formal structure of the God-man relationship) or from general human consciousness (such as feelings of dependence on "God" or a sense of awe in the presence of the "holy"), but they result from remembering God's mighty saving acts. Correspondingly, unfaithfulness is the more blameworthy because it contemptuously disregards all God's wonderful acts in his people's behalf (see Ps 105–106).

The psalm probably dates from the period of the divided monarchy and may have been composed about the time of the prophet Hosea (both Hosea and Isaiah speak frequently of the northern kingdom as Ephraim since it was the dominant tribe of that realm). Israel's unfaithfulness is here epitomized in the sin of Ephraim (v. 9); the psalm concludes by recalling the rejection of "Israel" (v. 59) and the abandonment of Shiloh (v. 60), but the election of Judah and Mount Zion (v. 68). Coming, as may be assumed, from the pen of an Asaphite, the psalm was no doubt a warning to worshipers at Jerusalem not to fall away after the manner of their brothers to the north.

By placing this psalm next to Ps 77, the editors of the Psalter ranged David alongside Moses (and Aaron) as the Lord's shepherd over his people (see vv. 70–72; 77:20) who brought the exodus to its (provisionally) climactic fruition by completing the conquest of the promised land—a perspective apparently shared by the author of the psalm.

The psalm is composed of 77 (Hebrew) lines (72 numbered verses) and seven stanzas—with an 11-line introduction. After the introduction, the structure of the stanzas is symmetrical: 8 lines, 16 lines, 9 lines, 16 lines, 9 lines, 8 lines. The two sequences of 16 lines–9 lines constitute a thematic cycle, while the two 8-line stanzas frame the double cycle and underscore the contrast between the sin of Israel ("Ephraim," vv. 9–16) and the unending mercy of God to his people—mercy that is evidenced in his victory over his enemies and his election of Zion (in Judah) and David (vv. 65–72).

78:1–8 Our children must hear what our fathers have told us, so that they may be faithful to the Lord.

78:1–2 This introduction is written in the style of a wisdom writer (see essay on "Wisdom Literature," p. 721; see also Ps 49:1–4).

78:2 parables . . . hidden things. The Hebrew underlying these two expressions occurs in 49:4 ("proverb," "riddle") and Eze 17:2 ("parable," "allegory")—which raises the question of whether the author is here influenced by prophetic use of wisdom language. While both terms had specialized uses—those reflected in 49:4—they apparently also became conventionalized more generally for instruction in a wide variety of forms. things from of old. Things for instruction from the past. Mt 13:35 refers to this verse as a prophecy of Jesus' parabolic teaching. Matthew apparently perceived in this psalm a prophetic voice anticipating that of the great Prophet. The "parables" of the psalm are, however, more like the teaching of Stephen (Ac 7) than that of Jesus.

78:4–5 The Lord's saving acts and covenant statutes—both must be taught, and in relationship, for together they remain the focal point for faith and obedience down through the generations (see vv. 7–8).

78:4 not hide them. See Job 15:18.

78:5 teach their children. See, e.g., Ex 10:2; 12:26–27; 13:8,14; Dt 4:9; 6:20–21.

and established the law in Israel, which he commanded our forefathers
to teach their children, 6so the next generation would know them, even the children yet to be born,[w]
and they in turn would tell their children.
7Then they would put their trust in God and would not forget[x] his deeds but would keep his commands.[y] 8They would not be like their forefathers[z]— a stubborn[a] and rebellious[b] generation, whose hearts were not loyal to God,
whose spirits were not faithful to him.

9The men of Ephraim, though armed with bows,[c] turned back on the day of battle;[d] 10they did not keep God's covenant[e] and refused to live by his law.[f] 11They forgot what he had done,[g]
the wonders he had shown them.
12He did miracles[h] in the sight of their fathers in the land of Egypt,[i] in the region of Zoan.[j] 13He divided the sea[k] and led them through;
he made the water stand firm like a wall.[l] 14He guided them with the cloud by day and with light from the fire all night.[m] 15He split the rocks[n] in the desert and gave them water as abundant as the seas; 16he brought streams out of a rocky crag and made water flow down like rivers.

17But they continued to sin[o] against him, rebelling in the desert against the Most High.
18They willfully put God to the test[p]
by demanding the food they craved.[q] 19They spoke against God,[r] saying,
"Can God spread a table in the desert?
20When he struck the rock, water gushed out,[s] and streams flowed abundantly.
But can he also give us food?
Can he supply meat[t] for his people?"
21When the LORD heard them, he was very angry;
his fire broke out[u] against Jacob,
and his wrath rose against Israel, 22for they did not believe in God or trust[v] in his deliverance.
23Yet he gave a command to the skies above and opened the doors of the heavens;[w] 24he rained down manna[x] for the people to eat, he gave them the grain of heaven.
25Men ate the bread of angels;
he sent them all the food they could eat.
26He let loose the east wind[y] from the heavens

78:8 stubborn and rebellious. Like a rebellious son (see Dt 9:6–7, 24; 31:27). generation. A people with certain characteristics (see 24:6; Dt 32:5,20), thus not limited to the exodus generation (see vv. 9–11,56–64). hearts. See note on 4:7.

78:9–16 The northern kingdom has violated God's covenant, not remembering his saving acts (a message emphasized by the prophets Amos and Hosea). Israel's history with God has been a long series of rebellions on her part (vv. 9–16,32–39,56–64), beginning already in the desert (vv. 17–31,40–55).

78:9 men of Ephraim. The northern kingdom, dominated by the tribe of Ephraim (see introduction). turned back. Neither the tribe of Ephraim nor the northern kingdom had a reputation for cowardice or ineffectiveness in battle (see, e.g., Dt 33:17). This verse is best understood as a metaphor for Israel's betrayal of God's covenant (see v. 10), related to the figure of the "faulty bow" (v. 57).

78:12–16 A summary reference to the plagues in Egypt and to the water miracles at the Red Sea and in the desert. In the two cycles that follow (vv. 17–39,40–64), further elaboration intensifies the indictment.

78:12 See Ex 7–12. Zoan. A city in the northeast part of the Nile delta (see v. 43; see also Nu 13:22 and note).

78:13 See Ex 14:1–15:21.

78:15–16 See v. 20; Ex 17:6; Nu 20:8,10–11.

78:17–31 Israel's rebelliousness in the desert; God's marvelous provision of food—and his anger.

78:17 continued. Although no sin in the desert has yet been mentioned, the poet probably expected his readers to recall (in conjunction with the miraculous provisions of water just mentioned) how the people grumbled at Marah because of lack of water (see Ex 15:24). Most High. See vv. 35,56; see also note on Ge 14:19.

78:18 See Ex 16:2–3. put God to the test. See vv. 41,56; see also note on Ex 17:2.

78:19 Can God spread a table . . . ? For a different use of the same imagery see 23:5.

78:20 food . . . meat. The poet is probably combining and compressing two episodes (Ex 16:2–3; Nu 11:4).

78:21 wrath. See vv. 31,49–50,58–59,62; see also note on 2:5.

78:23 opened the doors of the heavens. For this imagery see Ge 7:11; 2Ki 7:2; Mal 3:10.

78:25 bread of angels. So called because it came down from heaven. angels. Lit. "mighty ones." The Hebrew word is used only here of the angels, but reference is clearly to heavenly beings (see 103:20).

78:26–28 See Ex 16:13; Nu 11:31.

78:26 east wind . . . south wind. Since the quail were migrating from Egypt at this time, the south wind may have carried them north and the east wind may have diverted and led forth the south wind by his power.

27 He rained meat down on them like dust, flying birds[z] like sand on the seashore.
28 He made them come down inside their camp,
all around their tents.
29 They ate till they had more than enough,[a] for he had given them what they craved.
30 But before they turned from the food they craved, even while it was still in their mouths,[b] 31 God's anger rose against them;
he put to death the sturdiest[c] among them,
cutting down the young men of Israel.

32 In spite of all this, they kept on sinning;[d] in spite of his wonders,[e] they did not believe.[f] 33 So he ended their days in futility[g]
and their years in terror.
34 Whenever God slew them, they would seek[h] him;
they eagerly turned to him again.
35 They remembered that God was their Rock,[i] that God Most High was their Redeemer.[j] 36 But then they would flatter him with their mouths,[k] lying to him with their tongues; 37 their hearts were not loyal[l] to him,
they were not faithful to his covenant.
38 Yet he was merciful;[m]
he forgave[n] their iniquities[o]
and did not destroy them.
Time after time he restrained his anger[p]
and did not stir up his full wrath.

39 He remembered that they were but flesh,[q]
a passing breeze[r] that does not return.

40 How often they rebelled[s] against him in the desert[t] and grieved him[u] in the wasteland!
41 Again and again they put God to the test;[v]
they vexed the Holy One of Israel.[w] 42 They did not remember[x] his power—
the day he redeemed them from the oppressor,[y] 43 the day he displayed his miraculous signs[z] in Egypt, his wonders[a] in the region of Zoan.
44 He turned their rivers to blood;[b]
they could not drink from their streams.
45 He sent swarms of flies[c] that devoured them,
and frogs[d] that devastated them.
46 He gave their crops to the grasshopper,[e] their produce to the locust.[f] 47 He destroyed their vines with hail[g]
and their sycamore-figs with sleet.
48 He gave over their cattle to the hail,
their livestock[h] to bolts of lightning.
49 He unleashed against them his hot anger,[i] his wrath, indignation and hostility—a band of destroying angels.[j] 50 He prepared a path for his anger;
he did not spare them from death
but gave them over to the plague.
51 He struck down all the firstborn of Egypt,[k]
the firstfruits of manhood in the tents of Ham.[l]

78:27 like dust ... like sand. Similes for a huge number (see note on Ge 13:16).
78:30–31 See Nu 11:33.
78:32–39 Rebelliousness, which became Israel's way of life, showed itself early in the desert wandering (vv. 17–31) and continued throughout that journey.
78:32 did not believe. That God could give them victory over the Canaanites (see Nu 14:11).
78:33 The exodus generation was condemned to die in the desert (see Nu 14:22–23,28–35).
78:34–37 A cycle repeated frequently during the period of the judges.
78:35 Rock. See note on 18:2. Redeemer. Deliverer (see note on Ex 6:6).
78:36 See Isa 29:13.
78:37 hearts. See note on 4:7.

78:39 See 103:14; see also note on 10:18.
78:40–64 The second cycle (the first is vv. 17–39).
78:40–55 Israel's rebelliousness began in the desert; she did not remember how she had been delivered from oppression by God's plagues upon Egypt (see v. 12). Yet he brought them through the sea and the desert and established them in the promised land.
78:41 Holy One of Israel. See 71:22; 89:18; see also note on Isa 1:4.
78:44–51 The plagues upon Egypt (see Ex 7–12): The sequence in Exodus is followed only in the first and last; the third, fifth, sixth and ninth plagues are not mentioned.
78:47 sycamore-figs. See note on Am 7:14.
78:49 destroying angels. The poet personifies God's wrath, indignation and hostility as agents of his anger.
78:51 tents. Dwellings. Ham. For the association of Ham with Egypt see 105:23,27; 106:21–22; Ge 10:6 and note.

52But he brought his people out like a flock;[m] he led them like sheep through the desert.
53He guided them safely, so they were unafraid;
but the sea engulfed[n] their enemies.[o] 54Thus he brought them to the border of his holy land, to the hill country his right hand[p] had taken.
55He drove out nations[q] before them and allotted their lands to them as an inheritance;[r] he settled the tribes of Israel in their homes.
56But they put God to the test and rebelled against the Most High;
they did not keep his statutes.
57Like their fathers[s] they were disloyal and faithless, as unreliable as a faulty bow.[t] 58They angered him[u] with their high places;[v]
they aroused his jealousy with their idols.[w] 59When God heard[x] them, he was very angry;[y]
he rejected Israel[z] completely.
60He abandoned the tabernacle of Shiloh,[a] the tent he had set up among men.[b] 61He sent ⌊the ark of⌋ his might[c] into captivity,[d] his splendor into the hands of the enemy.
62He gave his people over to the sword;[e]
he was very angry with his inheritance.[f] 63Fire consumed[g] their young men, and their maidens had no wedding songs;[h] 64their priests were put to the sword,[i] and their widows could not weep.
65Then the Lord awoke as from sleep,[j] as a man wakes from the stupor of wine.
66He beat back his enemies;
he put them to everlasting shame.[k] 67Then he rejected the tents of Joseph,
he did not choose the tribe of Ephraim;[l]
68but he chose the tribe of Judah,[m]
Mount Zion,[n] which he loved.
69He built his sanctuary[o] like the heights,
like the earth that he established forever.
70He chose David[p] his servant

78:53 sea. Red Sea.
78:55 Summarizes the story told in Joshua.
78:56–64 Rebelliousness continued to be Israel's way of life in the promised land (a recurring theme of Judges; see also 1Sa 2:12–7:2), so God rejected Israel (v. 59; see Jer 7:15).
78:57 faulty bow. See note on v. 9.
78:58 high places. See note on 1Sa 9:12. jealousy. God's intense reaction to disloyalty to him (see note on Ex 20:5).
78:59 rejected Israel completely. Abandoned her to her enemies. The psalmist does not speak of a permanent casting off of Israel, not even of the ten northern tribes.
78:60 Shiloh. The center of worship since the time of Joshua (see Jos 18:1,8; 21:1–2; Jdg 18:31; 1Sa 1:3; Jer 7:12), it was located in Ephraim between Bethel and Shechem (see Jdg 21:19). Apparently it was destroyed by the Philistines when they captured the ark or shortly afterward (see note on Jer 7:12).
78:61 his might ... his splendor. The ark is here so called because it was the sign of God's kingship in Israel and the focal point for the display of his power and glory (see 26:8; 63:2; 1Sa 4:3,21–22).
78:62,71 his inheritance. See Dt 9:29.
78:63 Fire. Often associated with the sword (see vv. 62,64) as the two primary instruments of destruction in ancient warfare. no wedding songs. So great was the catastrophe that both the wedding songs of the brides and the wailing of the widows (see v. 64) were silenced in the land.
78:64 priests were put to the sword. See 1Sa 4:11.
78:65–72 The Lord's election of Judah (instead of Ephraim) as the leading tribe in Israel (anticipated in Jacob's deathbed blessing of his sons, Ge 49:8–12), of Mount Zion (instead of Shiloh) as the place of his sanctuary (royal seat), and of David as his regent to shepherd his people. By these acts the Lord established his people securely as his kingdom in the promised land, following the long period of Israel's troubles from the death of Joshua to the death of Saul—by then God's salvation of Israel begun in the exodus reached its climactic (if provisional) fulfillment (see introduction to Ps 68 and the combination of echoes of God's saving act in the exodus and through David in Isaiah's prophecy of Israel's future deliverance, Isa 11:11–16).
78:65 awoke as from sleep. Poetic hyperbole to highlight the contrast between God's action in behalf of his people in the days of David and the preceding time of Israel's troubles (see note on 7:6).
78:66–72 The saving events noted have two focal points: (1) God's decisive victory over his enemies (thus securing his realm) and the establishment of Zion as his royal city, and (2) the appointment of David to be the shepherd of his people.
78:67 tents of Joseph. A figure for the tribe of Ephraim (for the figurative use of "tents" see v. 51; see also 69:25; 83:6; 84:10; 120:5; Ge 9:27; Dt 33:18; 1Ki 12:16; Job 8:22; 12:6; Hab 3:7; Mal 2:12).
78:68,70 he chose ... Mount Zion ... He chose David. See Ps 132.
78:69 heights ... earth. The verse is subject to two interpretations: (1) The Lord built his sanctuary as impregnable as a mountain fortress and as enduring and unmovable as the age-old earth, or (2) the Lord built his sanctuary as secure and enduring as the heavens and the earth (see note on 24:2) and there manifests himself as the Lord of glory (see 24:7–10; 26:8; 63:2; 96:6), even as he does in the creation (see 19:1; 29:9; 97:6).
78:70–71 See 1Sa 16:11–13; 2Sa 7:8.
78:70 his servant. Here an official title marking David as a member of God's royal administration (see notes on Ex 14:31; Ps 18 title; Isa 41:8–9; 42:1).

and took him from the sheep pens; 71 from tending the sheep[q] he brought him to be the shepherd[r] of his people Jacob,
of Israel his inheritance.
72 And David shepherded them with integrity of heart;[s] with skillful hands he led them.

Psalm 79

A psalm of Asaph.

1 O God, the nations have invaded your inheritance;[t]
they have defiled[u] your holy temple,
they have reduced Jerusalem to rubble.[v] 2 They have given the dead bodies of your servants as food to the birds of the air,[w]
the flesh of your saints to the beasts of the earth.[x] 3 They have poured out blood like water
all around Jerusalem, and there is no one to bury[y] the dead.[z]
4 We are objects of reproach to our neighbors, of scorn[a] and derision to those around us.[b]
5 How long,[c] O LORD? Will you be angry[d] forever?
How long will your jealousy burn like fire?[e] 6 Pour out your wrath[f] on the nations that do not acknowledge[g] you, on the kingdoms that do not call on your name;[h] 7 for they have devoured[i] Jacob and destroyed his homeland.
8 Do not hold against us the sins of the fathers;[j] may your mercy come quickly to meet us, for we are in desperate need.[k] 9 Help us,[l] O God our Savior, for the glory of your name;
deliver us and forgive our sins for your name's sake.[m] 10 Why should the nations say, "Where is their God?"[n]
Before our eyes, make known among the nations that you avenge[o] the outpoured blood[p] of your servants.
11 May the groans of the prisoners come before you;

78:71 shepherd. See note on 23:1.

78:72 Israel under the care of the Lord's royal shepherd from the house of David was for the prophets the hope of God's people (see Eze 34:23; 37:24; Mic 5:4—fulfilled in Jesus Christ, Mt 2:6; Jn 10:11; Rev 7:17).

Ps 79 Israel's prayer for God's forgiveness and help and for his judgment on the nations that have so cruelly destroyed her, showing utter contempt for both the Lord and his people. Like Ps 74, with which it has many thematic links, it dates from the time of the exile. The poignancy of its appeal is heightened by its juxtaposition to Ps 77 (recalling God's saving acts under Moses) and Ps 78 (recalling God's saving acts under David), two psalms with which it is significantly linked by the shepherd-sheep figure and other thematic elements. Israel acknowledges that the Lord has used the nations to punish her for her sins, so she pleads for pardon. But she knows too that the nations have acted out of their hostility to and disdain for God and his people; that warrants her plea for God's judgment on them (see Isa 10:5–11; 47:6–7). Daniel's prayer (Da 9:4–19) contains much that is similar to the elements of penitence in this psalm.

79 title Asaph. See note on Ps 73 title.

79:1–4 What the nations have done: They have attacked God's own special domain, violated his temple, destroyed his royal city, slaughtered his people, degraded them in death (by withholding burial—see note on 53:5—and leaving their bodies as carrion for birds and beasts) and reduced them to the scorn of the world.

79:1 your inheritance. Cf. 78:62,71. Here reference is to Israel's homeland as the Lord's domain (see note on 2:8). holy temple. See note on 78:69.

79:2 your servants. Though banished from the Lord's land for sins that cannot be denied, the exiles plead their special covenant relationship with God (see "your saints," here, and "your people, the sheep of your pasture," v. 13). saints. See note on 4:3.

79:3 poured out blood ... all around Jerusalem. Cf. 2Ki 21:16.

79:5–8 A prayer for God to relent and deal with the nations who do not acknowledge him.

79:5 How long ...? See note on 6:3 (see also Introduction: Theology). angry. See v. 6 ("wrath"); see also note on 2:5. jealousy. See note on 78:58. burn like fire. See Dt 4:24; 6:15; Zep 1:18; 3:8.

79:6–7 See Jer 10:25 and note. Perhaps the psalmist is quoting Jeremiah here.

79:6 Pour out your wrath. As they "poured out" (v. 3) the blood of your people. The exiles plead with God to redress the wrongs committed against them (see note on 5:10).

79:7 devoured. Like wild beasts (see 44:11; 74:19 and note on 7:2). Jacob. A synonym for Israel (see Ge 32:28).

79:8 sins of the fathers. Israel suffered exile because of the accumulated sins of the nation (see 2Ki 17:7–23; 23:26–27; 24:3–4; Da 9:4–14), from which she did not repent until the judgment of God had fallen on her. The exiles here pray that God will take notice of their penitence and not continue to hold the sins of past generations against his now repentant people. mercy. Here personified as God's agent sent to bring relief (see notes on 23:6; 43:3).

79:9–11 A prayer for God to help and forgive his people and to redress the violent acts of the enemies.

79:9 for the glory of your name. As the desolation of God's people brings reproach to God (see v. 10), so their salvation and prosperity bring him glory (see note on 23:3). forgive. See note on 65:3.

79:10 Where is their God? See note on 3:2. avenge. Redress (see Dt 32:35,43).

79:11 prisoners ... those condemned to die. The exiles, as imperial captives in Babylonia (see 102:20)—not actually in prisons, but under threat of death should they seek to return to their homeland.

by the strength of your arm

12 Pay back into the laps[q] of our the reproach they have hurled at

you, O Lord.
13 Then we your people, the sheep of

we will recount your praise.

Psalm 80

For the director of music. To ⌞the tune of⌟ "The Lilies of the Covenant." Of Asaph. A psalm.

1 Hear us, O Shepherd of Israel, you who lead Joseph like a flock;[u] you who sit enthroned between the cherubim,[v] shine forth
2 before Ephraim, Benjamin and Manasseh.[w] Awaken[x] your might;
come and save us.[y]
3 Restore[z] us,[a] O God;
make your face shine upon us,
that we may be saved.[b]

4 O Lord God Almighty, how long[c] will your anger
smolder[d]
against the prayers of your people?
5 You have fed them with the bread of tears;[e]
you have made them drink tears by the bowlful.[f]
6 You have made us a source of contention to our neighbors, and our enemies mock us.[g]

7 Restore us, O God Almighty;
make your face shine upon us,
that we may be saved.[h]

8 You brought a vine[i] out of Egypt;
you drove out[j] the nations and planted[k] it.
9 You cleared the ground for it,
and it took root and filled the land.
10 The mountains were covered with its shade,
the mighty cedars with its branches.

79:12–13 Concluding prayer and vow to praise.

79:12 Pay back into the laps. See note on Jer 32:18. seven times. In full measure; the number seven symbolized completeness. reproach ... at you. The enemies' violent action against Israel was above all a high-handed reviling of God (see vv. 1,10; 2Ki 19:10–12,22–23; Isa 52:5).

79:13 See note on 7:17. sheep of your pasture. See 74:1; 77:20; 78:72. from generation to generation. See 78:4.

Ps 80 Israel's prayer for restoration when she had been ravaged by a foreign power. It seems likely that "Ephraim, Benjamin and Manasseh" (v. 2) here represent the northern kingdom. If Jeroboam was indeed given ten tribes (see 1Ki 11:29–36), leaving only one to Rehoboam—Judah (see 1Ki 12:20), which was actually two tribes because Simeon was located within Judah (see Jos 19:1–9)—then Benjamin belonged to the northern kingdom. However, part of Benjamin must always have remained with the southern kingdom since its territory actually bordered on Jerusalem itself, and the southern kingdom continued to control Jerusalem's environs (see 1Ki 12:21). This suggests that the disaster suffered was the Assyrian campaign that swept the northern kingdom away (see 2Ki 17:1–6). Recent archaeological surveys of the Holy Land have shown that Jerusalem and the surrounding countryside experienced at this time a dramatic increase of population, no doubt the result of a massive influx of displaced persons from the north fleeing the Assyrian beast. This could account for the presence of "Ephraim, Benjamin and Manasseh" at the Jerusalem sanctuary, and for a national prayer for restoration with special focus on these tribes (see notes below).

The prayer has five stanzas of four (Hebrew) lines each. A recurring petition climaxes the first, second and last (for other refrains see introduction to Ps 42–43), with a progressing urgency of appeal: "O God" (v. 3); "O God Almighty" (v. 7); "O Lord God Almighty" (v. 19).

80 title For the director of music. See note on Ps 4 title. To ⌞the tune of⌟. See note on Ps 9 title. Lilies. See note on Ps 45 title. Asaph. See note on Ps 73 title.

80:1–3 An appeal for God to arouse himself and go before his people again with all his glory and might as he did of old in the desert.

80:1 See the shepherd-flock motif in 74:1; 77:20; 78:52,71–72; 79:13. Joseph. See note on 77:15. enthroned between the cherubim. See note on Ex 25:18. shine forth. Let your glory be seen again, as in the desert journey (see Ex 24:16–17; 40:34–35), but now especially through your new saving act (see 102:15–16; Ex 14:4,17–18; Nu 14:22; Isa 40:5; 44:23; 60:1–2).

80:2 before Ephraim, Benjamin and Manasseh. March against the nations as you marched in the midst of your army from Sinai into the promised land (in that march the ark of the covenant advanced in front of the troops of these three tribes; see Nu 10:21–24; see also introduction to Ps 68). Awaken. See note on 7:6.

80:3 make your face shine. See vv. 7,19; an echo of the priestly benediction (see Nu 6:25; see also notes on 4:6; 13:1).

80:4–7 A lament over the Lord's severe punishment of his people.

80:4 Lord ... Almighty. See vv. 7,14,19; see also note on 1Sa 1:3. how long ...? See note on 6:3 (see also Introduction: Theology). anger. See note on 2:5.

80:5 God has now given them tears to eat and tears to drink rather than "the bread of angels" and water from the rock (see 78:20,25).

80:8–16 This use of the vine-vineyard metaphor (here to describe Israel's changed condition) is found also in the prophets (see Isa 3:14; 5:1–7; 27:2; Jer 2:21; 12:10; Eze 17:6–8; 19:10–14; Hos 10:1; 14:7; Mic 7:1; see also Ge 49:22; Mt 20:1–16; Mk 12:1–9; Lk 20:9–16; Jn 15:1–5).

80:8–11 Israel was once God's flourishing transplanted vine.

80:8 brought. See 78:52; here the Hebrew for this verb has the sense of "uprooted" (as in Job 19:10). drove out the nations and planted. See 44:2. planted. Transplanted.

80:9 cleared the ground. See Isa 5:2.

80:10 mighty cedars. Lit. "cedars of God" (the Hebrew word for "God" is sometimes used in the sense of "mighty"; see, e.g., note on 29:1).

Psalm 81

For the director of music. According to gittith.[m] Of Asaph.

1 Sing for joy to God our strength;
shout aloud to the God of Jacob![t]
2 Begin the music, strike the tambourine,[u] play the melodious harp[v] and lyre.[w]

81:3 [x]S Ex 19:13 [y]S Ne 10:33

[j]11 Probably the Mediterranean [k]11 That is, the Euphrates [l]15 Or branch [m]Title: Probably a musical term

80:11 Sea ... River. See NIV text notes; see also Ex 23:31 and note.

80:12–15 A prayer for God to renew his care for his ravaged vine.

80:12 Why ...? Israel's anguished perplexity over God's abandonment (see note on 6:3). broken down its walls. Taken away its defenses.

80:14 Watch over. See Ex 3:16. But the Hebrew for this phrase may have the sense here that it has in Ru 1:6: "come to the aid of."

80:15 son. Israel (see Ex 4:22–23; Hos 11:1). But "son" may sometimes be used also to refer to a vine branch (see NIV text note; see also note on Ge 49:22). That may be the case here, thus yielding the conventional pair "root and branch," a figure for the whole vine (see Job 18:16; 29:19; Eze 17:7; Mal 4:1; see also Isa 5:24; 27:6; 37:31; Eze 17:9; 31:7; Hos 9:16; Am 2:9; Ro 11:16). raised up. See v. 17; lit. "made vigorous."

80:16–19 Concluding prayer for restoration.

80:16 rebuke. See 9:5 and note on 76:6.

80:17 Let your hand rest on. Show your favor to (see Ezr 7:6,9,28; 8:18,22,31; Ne 2:8,18). at. Lit. "of." your right hand. Reference may be to the Davidic king as the Lord's anointed, seated in the place of honor in God's presence (see 110:1) and the one in whom the hope of the nation rested (see 2:7–9; 72:8–11; 89:21–25). But v. 15 strongly suggests another sense: that "the man" is Jacob/Israel and that he is "of" God's "right hand" in that he has been "planted" and "raised up" by him.

80:18 A vow to be loyal to God and to trust in him alone. It occurs in a place where it would be more common to find a vow to praise (see note on 7:17).

Ps 81 A festival song. But it is unclear whether the festival is Passover/Unleavened Bread (v. 5; see Ex 12:14–17) or the Jewish New Year (v. 3; see Lev 23:24; Nu 29:1) or the Feast of Tabernacles (v. 3; see Lev 23:34; Nu 29:12). It may have been used at all three. But more likely it was composed for use at both New Year (the first day of the month, "New Moon") and the beginning of Tabernacles (the 15th day of the month, full moon); see notes below. Whether the psalm is preexilic or postexilic cannot be determined, but it clearly shows the grand significance of Israel's annual religious festivals (see chart on "OT Feasts and Other Sacred Days," p. 174). As memorials of God's saving acts they called Israel to celebration, remembrance and recommitment (see Ps 95). In this psalm Israel is addressed by a Levite, speaking (prophetically) on behalf of God.

Though the psalm falls into two parts (vv. 1–5, 6–16), thematic development follows a symmetrical pattern: two verses, three verses; two verses, three verses; two verses, four verses. Note also the contrast between vv. 6–7 and vv. 11–12, and the thematic link between v. 10c and v. 16.

81 title For the director of music. See note on Ps 4 title. According to. See note on Ps 6 title. gittith. See note on Ps 8 title. Asaph. See note on Ps 73 title.

81:1–5 A summons to celebrate the appointed sacred feast.

81:1 Jacob. A synonym for Israel (see Ge 32:28).

81:2 tambourine. See note on Jer 31:4. harp and lyre. See note on 57:8.

81:3 ram's horn. The ram's horn trumpet (see Ex 19:13). our Feast. Probably the Feast of Tabernacles, often called simply "the feast/festival" (see 1Ki 8:2,65; 12:32; 2Ch 5:3; 7:8; Ne 8:14,18; Eze 45:25; see also Dt 16:14). As the great seven-day autumn festival, beginning on the 15th of the month (full moon), it followed shortly after the Day of Atonement (observed on the tenth of the month, Lev 16:29), recalled God's care for his people during the desert journey (see Lev 23:43), served as a feast of thanksgiving for the harvest (see Lev 23:39–40; Dt 16:13–15) and marked the conclusion of the annual cycle of religious festivals that began with Passover and Unleavened Bread six months earlier (see Ex 23:14–17; Lev 23; Dt 16:16). Every seventh year at this festival the covenant law was to be read to all the people (see Dt 31:9–13; Ne 8:2,15). The first day of this month (New Moon) was commemorated with trumpets (see Lev 23:24). It later came to be known as New Year since the seventh month marked the end of harvest and the beginning of the rainy season, when the new crops were planted.

81:4–5 decree ... ordinance ... statute. See the passages referred to in note on v. 3.

Psalm 82

A psalm of Asaph.

1God presides in the great assembly;
he gives judgment[t] among the "gods":[u]

82:1 [t] Ps 7:8; 58:11; Isa 3:13; 66:16; Joel 3:12 [u] S Job 21:22

[n b] 5 Or / and we heard a voice we had not known

81:5 Joseph. See note on 77:15. when he went out against Egypt. Some believe this indicates that the festival referred to is Passover and Unleavened Bread (see Ex 12:14,42). More likely it serves as a reference to the whole exodus period, while highlighting especially God's triumph over Egypt by which he had set his people free (see vv. 6–7). heard a language we did not understand. Were aliens in a foreign land (see 114:1; see also Dt 28:49; Isa 19:18; 33:19; Jer 5:15; Eze 3:5–6). If the alternative translation in the NIV text note is taken, the "voice" is the "thunder" of God's judgment against Egypt (see v. 7), which the Levitical author then proceeds to interpret as to its present reference for the celebrating congregation (vv. 6–16).

81:6–10 God heard and delivered and now summons his people to loyalty.

81:6 burden . . . basket. The forced labor to which the Israelites were subjected in Egypt (see Ex 1:11–14).

81:7 you called and I rescued. See Ex 3:7–10. out of a thundercloud. See 106:9; Ex 14:21,24; 15:8,10; see also note on 76:6. I tested you. See Ex 17:1–7.

81:8–10 God heard his people in their distress (vv. 6–7); now they must listen to him.

81:9–10 See Ex 19:4–5; 20:2–4; Dt 4:15–20.

81:10 Open wide your mouth. Trust in the Lord alone for all of life's needs. I will fill it. See v. 16; as he did in the desert (see 78:23–29; see also 37:3–4; Dt 11:13–15; 28:1–4).

81:11–16 Israel has not listened—if only they would! See Eze 18:23,32; 33:11.

81:11 See 78:10,17,32,40,56; Dt 9:7,24; Jer 7:24–26.

81:12 It is God who "circumcises" the heart (see Dt 30:6; see also 1Ki 8:58; Jer 31:33; Eze 11:19; 36:26). Thus for God to abandon his people to their sins is the most fearful of punishments (see 78:29; Isa 6:9–10; 29:10; 63:17; cf. Ro 1:24,26,28).

81:13–16 See the promised covenant blessings outlined in Ex 23:22–27; Lev 26:3–13; Dt 7:12–26; 28:1–14.

81:13 my ways. See 25:4 and note.

81:16 honey from the rock. See note on Dt 32:13.

Ps 82 A word of judgment on unjust rulers and judges. The Levitical author of this psalm evokes a vision of God presiding over his heavenly court—analogous to the experiences of the prophets (see 1Ki 22:19–22; Isa 6:1–7; Jer 23:18,22; see also Job 15:8). As the Great King (see introduction to Ps 47) and the Judge of all the earth (see 94:2; Ge 18:25; 1Sa 2:10) who "loves justice" (99:4) and judges the nations in righteousness (see 9:8; 96:13; 98:9), he is seen calling to account those responsible for defending the weak and oppressed on earth. An early rabbinic interpretation (see Jn 10:34–35) understood the "gods" (vv. 1,6) to be unjust rulers and judges in Israel, of whom there were many (see 1Sa 8:3; Isa 1:16–17; 3:13–15; Jer 21:12; 22:3; Eze 34:4,21; Mic 3:1–3; 7:3). Today many identify the "gods" as the kings of surrounding nations who encouraged the conceit that they were actually or virtually divine beings but who ruled with lofty disregard for justice—though honoring it as a royal ideal. Others hold that the "gods" are the divine beings in whose names the kings claimed to rule (see 95:3). In any event, rulers and judges here are confronted by their King and Judge (see Ps 58). Structurally, the words of the Levite (vv. 1,6) frame the words of God. At the very center (v. 5a; see note on 6:6) stands the most devastating judgment of all.

82 title See note on Ps 73 title.

82:1 great assembly. The assembly in the great Hall of Justice (cf. 1Ki 7:7) in heaven (see 89:5; 1Ki 22:19; Job 1:6; 2:1; Isa 6:1–4). As if in a vision, the psalmist sees the rulers and judges gathered before the Great King to give account of their administration of justice. gods. See v. 6. In the language of the OT—and in accordance with the conceptual world of the ancient Near East—rulers and judges, as deputies of the heavenly King, could be given the honorific title "god" (see note on 45:6; see also NIV text notes on Ex 21:6; 22:8) or be called "son of God" (see 2:7

for all the nations are your inheritance.[g]

Psalm 83

A song. A psalm of Asaph.

1O God, do not keep silent;[h] be not quiet, O God, be not still.

2See how your enemies are astir,[i] how your foes rear their heads.[j] 3With cunning they conspire[k] against your people;
they plot against those you cherish.[l] 4"Come," they say, "let us destroy[m] them as a nation,[n] that the name of Israel be remembered[o] no more."

5With one mind they plot together;[p] they form an alliance against you—6the tents of Edom[q] and the Ishmaelites, of Moab[r] and the Hagrites,[s] 7Gebal,[pt] Ammon[u] and Amalek,[v]
Philistia,[w] with the people of Tyre.[x] 8Even Assyria[y] has joined them to lend strength to the descendants of Lot.[z] Selah

9Do to them as you did to Midian,[a] as you did to Sisera[b] and Jabin[c] at the river Kishon,[d] 10who perished at Endor[e]

and note).

82:3–4 In the OT a first-order task of kings and judges was to protect the powerless against all who would exploit or oppress them (see 72:2,4,12–14; Pr 31:8–9; Isa 11:4; Jer 22:3,16).

82:5 They know . . . nothing. The center of the poem (see note on 6:6). They ought to have shared in the wisdom of God (see 1Ki 3:9; Pr 8:14–16; Isa 11:2), but they are utterly devoid of true understanding of moral issues or of the moral order that God's rule sustains (see Isa 44:19). foundations . . . are shaken. When such men are the wardens of justice, the whole world order crumbles (see 11:3; 75:3 and notes).

82:6 I said. Those who rule (or judge) do so by God's appointment (see 2:7; Isa 44:28) and thus they are his representatives—whether they acknowledge him or not (see Ex 9:16; Jer 27:6; Da 2:21; 4:17,32; 5:18; Jn 19:11; Ro 13:1). gods. See note on v. 1. sons of. See note on v. 1. Most High. See note on Ge 14:19.

82:7 However exalted their position, these corrupt "gods" will be brought low by the same judgment as other men. fall. See note on 13:4.

82:8 Having seen the prospect in store, the psalmist prays for God's judgment to hasten and for the perfect reign of God to come quickly to the whole world. Rise up. See note on 3:7. inheritance. Domain (see note on 79:1).

Ps 83 Israel's prayer for God to crush his enemies when the whole world—or so it seemed—was arrayed against his people. Neither Kings nor Chronicles tells of a confederacy as extensive as that described here. Perhaps only some of the nations mentioned were actually attacking, while the rest of Israel's historic enemies were more passively supporting the campaign. If so, the occasion may have been that reported in 2Ch 20, when Moab, Ammon, Edom and their allies were invading Judah. In any event, the psalm must date from sometime after the reign of Solomon and before the great thrust of Assyria in the time of King Menahem (see 2Ki 15:19).

Each of the two main divisions (vv. 1–8, 9–18) consists of two four-verse stanzas, with the latter division being extended by a two-verse stanza that brings the prayer to its climactic conclusion.

83 title song. See note on Ps 30 title. Asaph. See note on Ps 73 title.

83:1–4 An appeal to God to act in the face of Israel's imminent danger.

83:1 do not keep silent. Do not remain inactive (see 35:22; 109:1).

83:4 they say. See note on 3:2. let us destroy them. Israel's very existence is at stake (see v. 12).

83:5–8 The array of nations allied against Israel—threat from every quarter.

83:6 Hagrites. Either Ishmaelites (descendants of Hagar) or a group mentioned in Assyrian inscriptions as an Aramean confederacy (see 1Ch 5:10,18–22; 27:31).

83:7 Gebal. See 1Ki 5:18; Eze 27:9. Gebal was an important Phoenician city (see NIV text note).

83:8 Assyria. Since it is mentioned only as an ally of Moab and Ammon (the descendants of Lot; see note on Ge 19:36–38), Assyria, though distantly active in the region, must not yet have become a major threat in its own right.

83:9–12 A plea for God to destroy his enemies as he did of old in the time of the judges. Those who hurl themselves against the kingdom of God to destroy it from the earth—so that the godless powers are left to shape the destiny of the world as they will—must be crushed if God's kingdom of righteousness and peace is to come and be at rest (see note on 5:10).

83:9 as you did to Midian. In Gideon's great victory (see Jdg 7). as you did to Sisera and Jabin. In Barak's defeat of the Canaanite coalition (see Jdg 4).

83:10 Endor. See Jos 17:11 and note; northeast of where the main battle was fought—apparently where much of the fleeing army was overtaken and decimated.

Psalm 84

For the director of music. According to gittith.[q] Of the Sons of Korah. A psalm.

[1]How lovely is your dwelling place,[t] O LORD Almighty!
[2]My soul yearns,[u] even faints, for the courts of the LORD;
my heart and my flesh cry out for the living God.[v]

[3]Even the sparrow has found a home, and the swallow a nest for herself, where she may have her young—a place near your altar,[w] O LORD Almighty,[x] my King[y] and my God.[z] [4]Blessed are those who dwell in your house;
they are ever praising you. Selah

[5]Blessed are those whose strength[a] is in you, who have set their hearts on pilgrimage.[b]
[6]As they pass through the Valley of Baca,

[q] Title: Probably a musical term

83:11 Oreb and Zeeb . . . Zebah and Zalmunna. Leaders of the Midianite host destroyed by Gideon.
83:12 See v. 4.
83:13–16 The plea renewed, with vivid imagery of fleeing armies and of God's fearsome power.
83:15 Imagery of the heavenly Warrior attacking his enemies out of the thunderstorm (see 18:7–15; 68:33; 77:17–18; Ex 15:7–10; Jos 10:11; Jdg 5:4,20–21; 1Sa 2:10; 7:10; Isa 29:5–6; 33:3). For the storm cloud as God's chariot see 68:4 and note.
83:16 will seek. See note on v. 18. name. See note on 5:11.
83:17–18 The prayer's climactic conclusion.
83:18 The ultimate goal of God's warfare is not merely the security of Israel and the destruction of Israel's (and God's) enemies but the worldwide acknowledgment of the true God and of his rule, even to the point of seeking him as his people do (see v. 16; see also 40:9; 47:9; 58:11; 59:13 and notes). Most High. See note on Ge 14:19.

Ps 84 A prayer of longing for the house of the Lord. In tone and perspective it stands close to Ps 42 and may reflect similar circumstances. If so, the author (presumably a Levite who normally functioned in the temple service), now barred from access to God's house (perhaps when Sennacherib was ravaging Judah; see 2Ki 18:13–16), gives voice to his longing for the sweet nearness to God in his temple that he had known in the past. Reference to God and his temple and to the "blessedness" (see vv. 4–5,12) of those having free access to both dominates the psalm and highlights its central themes.

The psalm has three main divisions (vv. 1–4, 5–7, 8–11) and a conclusion (v. 12). In the Hebrew text, a six-line unit precedes and follows a three-line reflection on the blessedness of those free to make pilgrimage to Zion. Each of these six-line divisions contains three references to the "LORD," while the seventh reference (symbolizing completeness or perfection) appears in the conclusion.

84 title For the director of music. See note on Ps 4 title. According to. See note on Ps 6 title. gittith. See note on Ps 8 title. Of the Sons of Korah. See note on Ps 42 title.
84:1–4 A confession of deep longing for the house of the Lord.
84:1 lovely. The traditional rendering of the Hebrew here, but perhaps better translated "beloved" or "loved." LORD Almighty. See vv. 3,8,12; see also note on 1Sa 1:3.
84:2 My soul. I (see note on 6:3). courts. Of the temple (see v. 10; 2Ki 21:5; 23:11–12). my heart . . . flesh. My whole being (see 73:26). heart. See note on 4:7. living God. See Dt 5:26.
84:3 The psalmist is jealous of the small birds that have such unhindered access to the temple and the altar. They are able even to build their nests there for their young—the place where Israel was to have communion with God.
84:4–5,12 Blessed. See note on 1:1.
84:4 who dwell in your house. See note on 15:1.
84:5–7 The joyful blessedness of those who are free to make pilgrimage to Zion—them too the psalmist envies.
84:5 those whose strength is in you. Those who have come to know the Lord as their deliverer and the sustainer of their lives. who have set their hearts on pilgrimage. Lit. "in whose hearts are (the) highways," i.e., the highways the Israelites took to observe the religious festivals at Jerusalem (Zion, v. 7). hearts. See note on 4:7.
84:6 As they pass. On their way to the temple. Baca. Means either "weeping" or "balsam trees" (common in arid valleys). The place is unknown and may be figurative (see 23:4) for arid stretches the pilgrims had to traverse. place of springs. The joyful expectations of the pilgrims transform the difficult ways into places of refreshment. autumn rains. The gentle early showers that are harbingers of the later spring rains (see Joel 2:23). pools. The Hebrew for this word may refer to "blessings" or to "pools" (see NIV text note), but it is likely that both are intended. By God's benevolent care over his pilgrims, the vale of weeping (or balsam trees), already transformed by the glad hearts of the expectant wayfarers, is turned into a valley of praise (see 2Ch 20:26). God's saints on their hopeful way to Zion experience anew the bountiful hand of God as their ancestors did on their way through the Desert of

Psalm 85

For the director of music. Of the Sons of Korah. A psalm.

1You showed favor to your land,
O LORD;
you restored the fortunes[p] of Jacob.
2You forgave[q] the iniquity[r] of your people
and covered all their sins. Selah 3You set aside all your wrath[s] and turned from your fierce anger.[t]

4Restore[u] us again, O God our Savior,[v]
and put away your displeasure toward us.
5Will you be angry with us forever?[w]
Will you prolong your anger
through all generations?
6Will you not revive[x] us again, that your people may rejoice[y] in
you?
7Show us your unfailing love,[z]
O LORD,
and grant us your salvation.[a]

8I will listen to what God the LORD will say;

[r]6 Or blessings [s]9 Or sovereign

Sinai to the promised land (see 78:15–16; 105:41; 114:8)—and as their descendants would on their return to Zion from Babylonian exile (see Isa 41:17–20; 43:19–20; 49:10).

84:7 from strength to strength. Whatever the toils and hardships of the journey (see Isa 40:31). Zion. See 9:11 and note.

84:8–11 A prayer for the king, and its motivation: Only as God blesses the king in Jerusalem will the psalmist once more realize his great desire to return to his accustomed service in the temple (see introduction).

84:8 LORD God Almighty . . . God of Jacob. That is, LORD God Almighty, the God of Jacob (see 59:5; see also note on 3:7). Jacob. A synonym for Israel (see Ge 32:28).

84:9 our shield. The king in Jerusalem (see NIV text note; see also note on 3:3). anointed one. God's earthly regent over his people (from David's line); see note on 2:2.

84:10 doorkeeper. Probably the psalmist's normal (and humble) service at the temple (see 2Ki 22:4). dwell in the tents of the wicked. Share in the life of those who do not honor the God of Zion.

84:11 sun. The glorious source of the light of life (see note on 27:1). shield. See note on 3:3. blameless. See 15:2 and note on Ge 17:1.

84:12 The sum of it all (see 40:4).

Ps 85 A communal prayer for the renewal of God's mercies to his people at a time when they are once more suffering distress. Many believe that vv. 1–3 refer to the return from exile and that the troubles experienced are those alluded to by Nehemiah and Malachi. Verse 12 suggests that a drought has ravaged the land and may reflect the drought with which the Lord chastened his people in the time of Haggai (see Hag 1:5–11). Christian liturgical usage has often employed this psalm in the Christmas season.

The psalm has two main divisions of seven (Hebrew) lines each: (1) the prayer (vv. 1–7); (2) a reassuring word (vv. 8–13). Each division contains a three-line stanza followed by a four-line stanza, with the corresponding stanzas of the second half answering to those of the first: Verses 1–3 speak of mercies granted, while vv. 8–9 speak of mercies soon to come; vv. 4–7 voice the prayer, and vv. 10–13 offer the blessed reassurance that the prayer will be heard. Each of the four stanzas contains one reference to the "LORD."

85 title For the director of music. See note on Ps 4 title. Of the Sons of Korah. See note on Ps 42 title.

85:1–7 Prayer for the renewal of God's favor.

85:1–3 Israel begins her prayer by appealing to the Lord's past mercies, recalling how he has forgiven and restored them before (perhaps a reference to the restoration from exile).

85:1 restored the fortunes of Jacob. Or "brought Jacob back from exile" (see Jer 29:14 and NIV text note). Jacob. A synonym for Israel (see Ge 32:28).

85:3 wrath . . . anger. See v. 5; see also note on 2:5.

85:4–7 The prayer acknowledges that the present troubles are indicative of God's displeasure. No confession of sin is expressed, but in the light of v. 3 (and possibly v. 8; see below) it is probably implicit.

85:7 unfailing love. See v. 10; see also note on 6:4.

85:8–13 God's reassuring answer to the prayer, conveyed through a priest or Levite, perhaps one of the Korahites (see note on 12:5–6; see also 2Ch 20:14).

85:8–9 The assurance that God will again bless his people.

85:8 I will listen. The speaker awaits the word from the Lord. promises peace. The word from the Lord perhaps takes the form of the priestly benediction (see Nu 6:22–26). saints. See note on 4:3. but let them not return to folly. And so provoke God's displeasure again. But it is also possible to translate the clause: "and to those who turn from folly."

he promises peace[b] to his people, his saints—
but let them not return to folly.[c] 9Surely his salvation[d] is near those who fear him,
that his glory[e] may dwell in our
land.

10Love and faithfulness[f] meet together; righteousness[g] and peace kiss each other.
11Faithfulness springs forth from the earth,
and righteousness[h] looks down
from heaven.
12The LORD will indeed give what is good,[i]
and our land will yield[j] its harvest.
13Righteousness goes before him and prepares the way for his steps.

folly. See NIV text note on 14:1.

85:9 glory. Wherever God's saving power is displayed, his glory is revealed (see 57:5,11; 72:18–19; Ex 14:4,17–18; Nu 14:22; Isa 40:5; 44:23; 66:19; Eze 39:21).

85:10–13 God's sure mercies to his people spring from his covenant love, to which in his faithfulness and righteousness he remains true, and that assures his people's welfare (peace).

85:10 Love and faithfulness . . . righteousness and peace. These expressions of God's favor toward his people are here personified (see note on 23:6), and the vivid portrayal of their meeting and embracing offers one of the most beautiful images in all Scripture of God's gracious dealings with his covenant people. righteousness. See vv. 11,13; see also note on 4:1. peace. See note on Nu 6:26.

85:11 Faithfulness springs forth. As new growth springs from the earth to bless mankind with plenty. righteousness looks down. It shines down benevolently. (With "disaster" as subject, the Hebrew for "looks down" indicates the opposite effect: Jer 6:1, "looms.") From heaven and from earth, God's covenant blessings will abound till Israel's cup overflows.

85:12 what is good. See 31:19 and note.

85:13 Righteousness goes before. Again the psalmist personifies. Acting either as herald or guide, righteousness leads the way and marks the course for God's engagement in his people's behalf—and righteousness is God's perfect faithfulness to all his covenant commitments (see note on 4:1).

Ps 86 A prayer for God's help when attacked by enemies, whose fierce onslaughts betray their disdain for the Lord. Whether or not David was the author (see Introduction: Authorship and Titles), the psalmist's identification of himself as God's "servant" (v. 2) suggests his royal status and thus his special relationship with the Lord (see 2Sa 7:5,8 and note on Ps 18 title). The enemies may then be either those within the kingdom who refuse to acknowledge him as the Lord's anointed, or foreign powers that are attempting to remove him from the international scene.

The psalm is composed of five stanzas, having a symmetrical verse pattern (four, three, three, three, four). The author identifies himself as the Lord's servant in the first and last stanzas, which also contain the prayer for God's mercy and deliverance from the enemy threat. The center stanza (vv. 8–10) hails the Lord as the incomparable, the only God, whom all the nations will someday worship. Verse 9 is the center verse (see note on 6:6).

86 title prayer. See note on Ps 17 title; see also note on 72:20. of David. This is the only psalm in Book III (Ps 73–89) that is ascribed to David. Perhaps its placement among the Korahite psalms is because those who arranged the Psalter perceived a thematic link between v. 9 and 87:4.

86:1–4 Initial prayer for God to have mercy and protect the life of his servant.

86:1 poor and needy. See 35:10; see also 34:6 and note.

86:2 devoted to you. The Hebrew for this phrase is ḥasid (see note on 4:3). You are my God. Not that David has chosen him, but that he has chosen David to be his servant (see 1Sa 13:14; 15:28; 16:12; 2Sa 7:8). David's devotion to God and God's commitment to him are deliberately juxtaposed. your servant. See vv. 4,16; see also introduction.

86:4 my soul. See note on 6:3.

86:5–7 In his need David prays to the Lord because, out of his kindness and love, God answers prayer.

86:5 love. See vv. 13,15; see also note on 6:4.

86:8–10 The God to whom David appeals is the only true God. No other "god" acts with such sovereign power (see 115:3–7; 135:13–17)—that is why David appeals to him and why all the nations will someday worship him.

86:9 All the nations. See note on 46:10. This is the center verse of the psalm (see note on 6:6) and contains the psalm's most exalted confession of faith concerning God's sovereign and universal rule. they will bring glory. As David vows to do (v. 12). your name. See vv. 11–12; see also note on 5:11.

they will bring glory[y] to your name.
[10]For you are great[z] and do marvelous deeds;[a] you alone[b] are God.

[11]Teach me your way,[c] O LORD, and I will walk in your truth;[d]
give me an undivided[e] heart, that I may fear[f] your name.
[12]I will praise you, O Lord my God, with all my heart;[g]
I will glorify your name forever.
[13]For great is your love toward me;
you have delivered me[h] from the depths of the grave.[i]

[14]The arrogant are attacking me, O God;
a band of ruthless men seeks my life—
men without regard for you.[j] [15]But you, O Lord, are a compassionate and gracious[k] God, slow to anger,[l] abounding[m] in love and faithfulness.[n] [16]Turn to me[o] and have mercy[p] on me;
grant your strength[q] to your servant and save the son of your maidservant.[ur] [17]Give me a sign[s] of your goodness, that my enemies may see it and be put to shame,
for you, O LORD, have helped me and comforted me.

Psalm 87

Of the Sons of Korah. A psalm. A song.

[1]He has set his foundation on the holy mountain;[t]
[2] the LORD loves the gates of Zion[u] more than all the dwellings of Jacob.
[3]Glorious things are said of you,
O city of God:[v] Selah
[4]"I will record Rahab[vw] and Babylon

87:1 [s]S Ps 48:1 87:2 [u]Ps 2:6 87:3 [v]S Ps 46:4 87:4 [w]S Job 9:13

[t]13 Hebrew Sheol [u]16 Or save your faithful son [v]4 A poetic name for Egypt

86:10 marvelous deeds. See note on 9:1.

86:11–13 A prayer for godliness and a vow to praise.

86:11 Teach me ... give me. What would be the benefit if God saved him from his enemies but abandoned him to his own waywardness? David's dependence on God is complete, and so is his devotion to God—save me from the enemy outside but also from my frailty within (see 25:5; 51:7,10). Only one who is thus devoted to God may expect God's help and will truly fulfill the vow (v. 12). undivided heart. See Eze 11:19; see also 1Ch 12:33; 1Co 7:35. heart. See note on 4:7.

86:12 Vow to praise (see note on 7:17).

86:13 David anticipates the answer to his prayer (see note on 3:8). depths. See note on 30:1.

86:14–17 Conclusion: the prayer renewed.

86:14 ruthless. The Hebrew for this word suggests also ferocity. men without regard for you. In their arrogance they dismiss the heavenly Warrior, who is David's defender (see note on 10:11; see also Jer 20:11).

86:15 Echoes v. 5, but is even more similar to Ex 34:6 (see note on Ex 34:6–7).

86:16 grant your strength. Exert your power in my behalf. son of your maidservant. See NIV text note; see also 116:16 and NIV text note.

86:17 goodness. Covenanted favors (see 27:13 and note). may see it. May see that you stand with me and help me (see 31:19 and note).

Ps 87 A celebration of Zion as the "city of God" (v. 3), the special object of his love and the royal city of his kingdom (see introductions to Ps 46; 48; 76). According to the ancient and consistent interpretation of Jewish and Christian scholars alike, this psalm stands in lonely isolation in the Psalter (but see 47:9) in that it foresees the ingathering of the nations into Zion as fellow citizens with Israel in the kingdom of God—after the manner of such prophetic visions as Isa 2:2–4; 19:19–25; 25:6; 45:14,22–24; 56:6–8; 60:3; 66:23; Da 7:14; Mic 4:1–3; Zec 8:23; 14:16. (Accordingly, some have assigned it to the time of Isaiah and Micah, while others have thought it to be postexilic.) So interpreted, this psalm stands in sharpest possible contrast with the other Zion songs of the Psalter (see Ps 46; 48; 76; 125; 129; 137). The key to its main thrust lies in v. 4. It may be that its historic interpretation has sprung from the failure of tradition to preserve memory of the Hebrew poetic device of interrupted syntax (which occurs elsewhere) and that the references to foreign nations should be read as vocatives (see NIV text note on v. 4). With this reading, the psalm stands in thematic accord with the other Zion songs, celebrating God's special love for Zion—which is thrown into the teeth of Zion's historic enemies (see note on v. 4).

87 title Of the Sons of Korah. See note on Ps 42 title. song. See note on Ps 30 title.

87:1 his foundation. The Lord himself has laid the foundations of Zion (see Isa 14:32) and of the temple as his royal house. mountain. The Hebrew for this word is plural, emphasizing the majesty of the holy mountain on which God's throne has been set (see 48:2 and note).

87:2 loves ... more than. As the city of his founding, his chosen seat of rule over his people, Zion is the Lord's most cherished city, even among the towns of Israel (see 9:11; 78:68; 132:12–14). Jacob. A synonym for Israel (see Ge 32:28).

87:4 I will record ... This one was born in Zion. God will list them in his royal register (see notes on 9:5; 51:1; 69:28) as those who are native (born) citizens of his royal city, having all the privileges and enjoying all the benefits and security of such citizenship. Rahab. Whereas elsewhere this name is applied to the mythical monster of the deep (see 89:10; see also notes on 32:6; Job 9:13), here the reference is to Egypt (see NIV text note), as in Isa 30:7 (see note there); 51:9. The nations listed are representative of all Gentile peoples. As usually interpreted, the psalm here foresees a widespread conversion to the Lord from the peoples who from time immemorial had been hostile to him and to his kingdom (see Isa 19:21; 26:18 and note). But if the NIV text note is correct (see also v. 5), the Lord is here portrayed as carefully recording the names of all his people, those who acknowledge him as their covenant Lord (Hos 6:3), so as to take them under his protection as the citizens of his royal city. Ominously he warns the nations (as in Isa 14:28–32) that he has carefully registered his people one and all and will hold the nations accountable for the harm they do to any one of them (see 105:15).

among those who acknowledge me—Philistia[x] too, and Tyre[y], along with Cush[w]— and will say, 'This[x] one was born in Zion.[z]' "

[5]Indeed, of Zion it will be said,
"This one and that one were born in her,
and the Most High himself will establish her."
[6]The LORD will write in the register[a] of the peoples:
"This one was born in Zion." Selah
[7]As they make music[b] they will sing,
"All my fountains[c] are in you."

Psalm 88

A song. A psalm of the Sons of Korah. For the director of music. According to mahalath leannoth.[y] A maskil[z] of Heman the Ezrahite.

[1]O LORD, the God who saves me,[d] day and night I cry out[e] before you.
[2]May my prayer come before you;
turn your ear to my cry.
[3]For my soul is full of trouble[f]
and my life draws near the grave.[ag]
[4]I am counted among those who go down to the pit;[h]
I am like a man without strength.[i] [5]I am set apart with the dead,
like the slain who lie in the grave,
whom you remember no more,
who are cut off[j] from your care.
[6]You have put me in the lowest pit,
in the darkest depths.[k] [7]Your wrath[l] lies heavily upon me;
you have overwhelmed me with all your waves.[m] Selah
[8]You have taken from me my closest friends[n]
and have made me repulsive to them.
I am confined[o] and cannot escape;[p]
[9] my eyes[q] are dim with grief.
I call[r] to you, O LORD, every day;
I spread out my hands[s] to you.
[10]Do you show your wonders to the dead?
Do those who are dead rise up and praise you? Selah

87:5 This one and that one. Wherever they may be dispersed among the nations. Most High. See note on Ge 14:19.

87:7 All my fountains. All that refreshes them is found in the city of God, a possible allusion to God's "river of delights" (36:8) "whose streams make glad the city of God" (46:4); see notes on those passages. Alternatively, "fountains" may be a metaphor for sources; the sense of the line would then be: We all spring from you. my. Communal use of the singular pronoun (see note on 30 title).

Ps 88 A cry out of the depths, the prayer of one on the edge of death, whose whole life has been lived, as it were, in the near vicinity of the grave. So troubled have been his years that he seems to have known only the back of God's hand (God's "wrath," v. 7), and even those nearest him have withdrawn themselves as from one with an infectious skin disease (see v. 8). No expressions of hopeful expectation (as in most prayers of the Psalter) burst from these lips; the last word speaks of darkness as "my closest friend." And yet the prayer begins, "O LORD, the God who saves me." The psalm recalls the fact that although sometimes godly persons live lives of unremitting trouble (see 73:14), they can still grasp the hope that God is Savior. In its Hebrew structure, three four-line stanzas (vv. 3–5, 6–9a, 9b–12) are framed by two two-line prayers; to this is appended an additional four-line stanza in which the psalmist complains that his present distress is but characteristic of his whole troubled life.

88 title The psalm bears a double title, perhaps representing two different traditions. song. See note on Ps 30 title. of the Sons of Korah. See note on Ps 42 title. For the director of music. See note on Ps 4 title. According to. See note on Ps 6 title. maskil. See note on Ps 32 title. Heman. See note on Ps 39 title. Ezrahite. The reference appears to be to Zerah, one of Judah's sons, who is recorded as having a Heman and an Ethan (see Ps 89 title) among his sons (see 1Ch 2:6). If so, the title here represents a confusion in the tradition, arising from the similarity between these two Judahite names and those of two famous Korahite choir leaders, Heman and Ethan (Jeduthun; see note on Ps 39 title).

88:1–2 Opening appeal to the Lord as "the God who saves me."

88:3–5 Living on the brink of death. Whether the psalmist lies mortally ill or experiences some analogous trouble or peril cannot be known.

88:3 my soul. See note on 6:3.

88:4 pit. See note on 30:1.

88:5 remember no more. From the perspective of this life, death cuts off from God's care; there is no remembering by God of the needy sufferer to rescue and restore (see 25:7; 74:2; 106:4). In his dark mood the author portrays his situation in bleakest colors (see note on 6:5).

88:6–9a You, O God, have done this! The psalmist knows no reason for it (see v. 14), but he knows God's hand is in it (see Ru 1:20–21; Am 3:6). That his Savior-God shows him the face of wrath deepens his anguish and helplessness. But he does not try to resolve the dark enigma; he simply pleads his case—and it is to his Savior-God that he can appeal.

88:6 lowest pit . . . darkest depths. See note on 30:1.

88:7 wrath. See v. 16; see also note on 2:5. all your waves. See note on 32:6.

88:8 my closest friends. See v. 18 and note on 31:11–12.

88:9 eyes are dim. See note on 6:7.

88:9b–12 Appeal to God to help before the psalmist sinks into "the land of oblivion" (see note on v. 5).

88:10,12 wonders. God's saving acts in behalf of his people (see note on 9:1).

88:10 rise up. In the realm of the dead (not in the resurrection); see Isa 14:9.

88:11 love . . . faithfulness. That is, love-and-faithfulness your faithfulness[u] in Destruction[b]?

12Are your wonders known in the place of darkness,
or your righteous deeds in the land of oblivion?

13But I cry to you for help,[v] O LORD;

14Why, O LORD, do you reject[y] me and hide your face[z] from me?

15From my youth[a] I have been

[b] 11 Hebrew Abaddon [c] Title: Probably a literary or musical term

(see note on 36:5; see also note on 3:7). love. See note on 6:4.

88:12 righteous deeds. See note on 71:24.

88:13–14 Concluding prayer.

88:14 Why . . . ? See note on 6:3; see also Introduction: Theology. hide your face. See note on 13:1.

88:15–18 The psalmist has been no stranger to trouble; all his life he has suffered the terrors of God.

88:17 like a flood. See v. 7; see also note on 32:6.

Ps 89 A prayer that mourns the downfall of the Davidic dynasty and pleads for its restoration. The bitter shock of that event (reflected partially in the sudden transition of v. 38) is almost unbearable—that God, the faithful and almighty One, has abandoned his anointed and made him the mockery of the nations, in seeming violation of his firm covenant with David—and it evokes from the psalmist a lament that borders on reproach (vv. 38–45). The event may have been the attack on Jerusalem by Nebuchadnezzar and the exile of King Jehoiachin in 597 B.C. (see 2Ki 24:8–17).

As with Ps 44 (see introduction to that psalm), a massive foundation is laid for the prayer with which the psalm concludes. An introduction (vv. 1–4) sings of God's love and faithfulness (vv. 1–2) and his covenant with David (vv. 3–4). These two themes are then jubilantly expanded in order: vv. 5–18, God's love and faithfulness; vv. 19–37, his covenant with David. Suddenly jubilation turns to lament, and the psalmist recounts in detail how God has rejected his anointed (vv. 38–45). Thus he comes to his prayer, impatient and urgent, that God will remember once more his covenant with David (vv. 46–51). (Verse 52 concludes not the psalm but Book III of the Psalter.)

89 title maskil. See note on Ps 32 title. Ethan. Jeduthun (see note on Ps 39 title). The author was no doubt a Levite (perhaps a descendant of Jeduthun) who voiced this agonizing prayer as spokesman for the nation. Ezrahite. See note on Ps 88 title.

89:1–2 God's love and faithfulness celebrated.

89:1 love . . . faithfulness. See vv. 2,33,49; that is, love-and-faithfulness (see v. 14); see note on 36:5. love. See vv. 2,14,24,28,33,49; see also note on 6:4. It is God's love and faithfulness that appear to have failed in his rejection (see vv. 38–45) of the Davidic king. The author repeats each of these words precisely seven times (in v. 14 the Hebrew uses a different—but related—word for "faithfulness").

89:2 in heaven itself. God's love and faithfulness have been made sure in the highest seat of power and authority (see vv. 5–8).

89:3–4 God's covenant with David celebrated (see 2Sa 7:8–16).

89:3 servant. See vv. 20,39,50; here an official title (see note on 78:70).

89:5–8 The Lord's faithfulness and awesome power set him apart among all the powers in the heavenly realm, and they acknowledge him with praise and reverence.

89:5 The heavens. All beings belonging to the divine realm in the heavens. wonders. God's mighty acts in creation and redemption (see note on 9:1). assembly of the holy ones. The divine council in heaven (see v. 7; see also note on 82:1).

89:6 heavenly beings. Lit. "sons of god(s)" (see 29:1 and note).

89:8 LORD . . . Almighty. See note on 1Sa 1:3. your faithfulness surrounds you. It also surrounds this stanza (see v. 5).

89:9–13 The Lord's power as Creator—and creation's joy in him.

10 You crushed Rahab[v] like one of the slain;
with your strong arm you scattered[w] your enemies.
11 The heavens are yours,[x] and yours also the earth;[y]
you founded the world and all that is in it.[z] 12 You created the north and the south;
Tabor[a] and Hermon[b] sing for joy[c] at your name.
13 Your arm is endued with power;
your hand is strong, your right hand exalted.[d]

14 Righteousness and justice are the foundation of your throne;[e] love and faithfulness go before you.[f] 15 Blessed are those who have learned to acclaim you, who walk[g] in the light[h] of your presence, O LORD.
16 They rejoice in your name[i] all day long;
they exult in your righteousness.
17 For you are their glory and strength,[j]
and by your favor you exalt our horn.[d k] 18 Indeed, our shield[e l] belongs to the LORD, our king[m] to the Holy One of Israel.

19 Once you spoke in a vision, to your faithful people you said:
"I have bestowed strength on a warrior;
I have exalted a young man from among the people.
20 I have found David[n] my servant;[o]
with my sacred oil[p] I have anointed[q] him.
21 My hand will sustain him;
surely my arm will strengthen him.[r]
22 No enemy will subject him to tribute;[s]

[d] 17 Horn here symbolizes strong one. [e] 18 Or sovereign [f] 24 Horn here symbolizes strength.

89:9–10 Poetic imagery borrowed from ancient Near Eastern myths of creation, here celebrating God's power in ordering the primeval chaotic waters so that the creation order could be established (see Ge 1:6–10; see also notes on 65:6–7; 74:13–14).

89:10 Rahab. Mythical monster of the deep (see notes on 32:6; 87:4), probably another name for Leviathan (see 74:14; 104:26). The last half of this verse is probably echoed in Lk 1:51.

89:12 the north and the south. Reference may be to two mountains, here parallel to Tabor and Hermon: "Mount North" (Zaphon; see 48:2 and note) and Mount Amana (see SS 4:8). Tabor. See note on Jdg 4:6. Hermon. See note on Dt 3:8. sing for joy. See note on 65:13. name. See vv. 16,24; see also note on 5:11.

89:14–18 The Lord's righteousness and faithfulness in his rule in behalf of his people—and their joy in him.

89:14 Righteousness and justice are the foundation stones of God's throne; love and faithfulness are personified as angelic attendants that herald his royal movements (see note on 23:6). Righteousness. See v. 16; see also note on 4:1.

89:17 horn. King (see NIV text note; see also v. 18).

89:18 Holy One of Israel. See note on Isa 1:4.

89:19–29 The Lord's election of David to be his regent over his people, and his everlasting covenant with him. The thought is developed by couplets: (1) introduction (v. 19); (2) I have anointed David as my servant and will sustain him (vv. 20–21); (3) I will crush all his foes (vv. 22–23); (4) I will extend his realm (vv. 24–25); (5) I will make him first among the kings (vv. 26–27); (6) I will cause his dynasty to endure forever (vv. 28–29)—a promise fulfilled in the eternal reign of Jesus Christ (see Jn 12:34).

89:19 vision. Reference is to the revelation to Samuel (see 1Sa 16:12) and/or to Nathan (see 2Sa 7:4–16). faithful people. See note on 4:3.

89:25 sea ... rivers. David's rule will reach from the Mediterranean Sea to the Euphrates River (see 72:8; 80:11 and note on Ex 23:31). But the author uses imagery that underscores the fact that, as his royal "son" (see v. 26) and regent, David's rule will be a reflection of God's (see vv. 9–10 and notes; also compare v. 23 with v. 10).

89:27 firstborn. The royal son of highest privilege and position in the kingdom of God (see 2:7–12; 45:6–9; 72:8–11; 110), thus the most exalted of the kings of the earth (see Rev 1:5). So the words may speak of universal rule—ultimately fulfilled in Christ.

89:29 as long as the heavens endure. See vv. 36–37.

89:30–37 The Lord's covenant with David and his dynasty (see chart on "Major Covenants in the OT," p. 19) was everlasting (see v. 28) and unconditional—though if any of his royal descendants is unfaithful, he will individually suffer under God's rod (to the detriment of the entire nation).

and fail to keep my commands, 32I will punish their sin with the rod, their iniquity with flogging;[g] 33but I will not take my love from him,[h]
nor will I ever betray my faithfulness.
34I will not violate my covenant or alter what my lips have uttered.[i] 35Once for all, I have sworn by my holiness—
and I will not lie to David—36that his line will continue forever and his throne endure before me like the sun;[j] 37it will be established forever like the moon,
the faithful witness in the sky."[k]
Selah

38But you have rejected,[l] you have spurned,
you have been very angry with your anointed one.
39You have renounced the covenant with your servant and have defiled his crown in the dust.[m] 40You have broken through all his walls[n]
and reduced his strongholds[o] to ruins.
41All who pass by have plundered[p]
him;
he has become the scorn of his neighbors.[q] 42You have exalted the right hand of his foes;
you have made all his enemies
rejoice.[r] 43You have turned back the edge of his sword and have not supported him in battle.[s] 44You have put an end to his splendor and cast his throne to the ground.
45You have cut short[t] the days of his youth;
you have covered him with a mantle of shame.[u] Selah

46How long, O LORD? Will you hide yourself forever?
How long will your wrath burn like fire?[v]
47Remember how fleeting is my life.[w]
For what futility you have created all men!
48What man can live and not see death, or save himself from the power of the grave[g]?[x] Selah 49O Lord, where is your former great love,
which in your faithfulness you swore to David?
50Remember, Lord, how your servant has[h] been mocked,[y]
how I bear in my heart the taunts
of all the nations, 51the taunts with which your enemies have mocked, O LORD, with which they have mocked every step of your anointed one.[z]

BOOK IV

Psalms 90–106

Psalm 90

A prayer of Moses the man of God.

1Lord, you have been our dwelling place[b]
throughout all generations.
2Before the mountains were born[c]

90:1 [b] S Dt 33:27; Eph 2:22; Rev 21:3
90:2 [c] S Job 15:7

[g] 48 Hebrew Sheol [h] 50 Or your servants have

89:38–45 God's present rejection of David's son, and all its fearful consequences—the undoing of all that had been promised and assured by covenant (see especially vv. 19–29).

89:46–51 The prayer, an appeal—in spite of all—to God's faithfulness to his covenant with David. In this dark hour, that remains the psalmist's hope.

89:46 How long . . . ? See note on 6:3; see also Introduction: Theology. wrath. See note on 2:5.

89:50 Remember. See v. 47.

89:52 A brief doxology with which the final editors concluded Book III of the Psalter (see note on 41:13).

Ps 90 A prayer to the everlasting God to have compassion on his servants, who live their melancholy lives under the rod of divine wrath and under his sentence of death—a plea that God will yet show them his love, give them cause for joy and bless their labors with enduring worth. No other psalm depicts so poignantly the dismal state of man before the face of God, holy and eternal. Yet there is neither defiance nor despair; honesty acknowledges guilt (God's anger is warranted), and faith knows of God's "unfailing love" (v. 14) to which appeal can confidently be made. That Israel's 40 years of enforced sojourn in the "vast and dreadful desert" (Dt 8:15) on its pilgrimage to the promised land (see Nu 14:26–35) should evoke such a prayer ought not be surprising.

Two stanzas descriptive of the human condition under God's aggrieved anger (vv. 3–6, 7–10) are framed by two couplets (vv. 1–2, 11–12) that, by their implicit contrasts, highlight the major polarities over which the intervening stanzas brood: 1. The Lord, who has ever been our "dwelling place" (v. 1), has shown us the power of his wrath (v. 7). 2. God is the Everlasting One (v. 2), while we must come to terms with the small number of our days (v. 12). These reflections lead to the prayer with which the psalm concludes (vv. 13–17).

90 title A prayer. See note on Ps 17 title. man of God. A phrase normally applied in the OT to prophets (see note on 1Sa 2:27), including Moses (see, e.g., Jos 14:6).

90:1 dwelling place. See 91:9. The Hebrew for this phrase is translated "refuge" in 71:3.

or you brought forth the earth and the world, from everlasting to everlasting[d] you are God.[e]

[3]You turn men back to dust, saying, "Return to dust, O sons of men."[f] [4]For a thousand years in your sight are like a day that has just gone by, or like a watch in the night.[g] [5]You sweep men away[h] in the sleep of death;
they are like the new grass of the morning—[6]though in the morning it springs up new,
by evening it is dry and withered.[i]

[7]We are consumed by your anger and terrified by your indignation.
[8]You have set our iniquities before you, our secret sins[j] in the light of your presence.[k] [9]All our days pass away under your wrath;
we finish our years with a moan.[l] [10]The length of our days is seventy years[m]— or eighty,[n] if we have the strength;
yet their span[i] is but trouble and sorrow,[o]
for they quickly pass, and we fly away.[p]

[11]Who knows the power of your anger?
For your wrath[q] is as great as the fear that is due you.[r] [12]Teach us to number our days[s] aright, that we may gain a heart of wisdom.[t]

[13]Relent, O LORD! How long[u] will it be?
Have compassion on your servants.[v]
[14]Satisfy[w] us in the morning with your unfailing love,[x] that we may sing for joy[y] and be glad all our days.[z] [15]Make us glad for as many days as you have afflicted us, for as many years as we have seen trouble.
[16]May your deeds be shown to your servants, your splendor to their children.[a] [17]May the favor[j] of the Lord our God rest upon us; establish the work of our hands for us—

yes, establish the work of our hands.[b]

90:17 [b]Isa 26:12 91:1 [c]S Ex 33:22

[i]10 Or yet the best of them [j]17 Or beauty

90:3–6 Man lives under God's sentence of death—"dust . . . to dust" (Ge 3:19).

90:4–5 For . . . You. Perhaps better "Though . . . , you": Though for God 1,000 years are like a watch in the night, which man sleeps through with no sense of the passage of time, he cuts man's life short like new grass that shows itself at dawn's light but is withered away by the hot Canaanite sun before evening falls.

90:4 watch in the night. See note on Jdg 7:19.

90:7–10 Even life's short span is filled with trouble, as God ferrets out man's every sin and makes him feel his righteous anger.

90:7 anger . . . indignation. See vv. 9,11; see also note on 2:5.

90:8 light of your presence. The holy light of God that illumines the hidden corners of the heart and exposes its dark secrets.

90:10 eighty. Hebrew poetic convention called for 80 following 70 in parallel construction (see note on Am 1:3). their span. Lit. "their pride" (see NIV text note), i.e., what men prize in their years. The thought could be: All their health, joys, riches and honor are soured by trouble and sorrow. sorrow. Or "emptiness."

90:11–12 Who knows . . . ? . . . Teach us. No one has taken the measure of God's anger. But everyone ought to know the measure of his (few) days or he will play the arrogant fool, with no thought of his mortality or of his accountability to God (see Ps 49; 73:4–12).

90:11 fear that is due you. See note on Ge 20:11.

90:12 gain. Or "harvest." heart. See note on 4:7.

90:13–17 Prayer for God's compassion—from him come also joy and gladness.

90:13 Relent. Lit. "Turn" (cf. v. 3). How long . . . ? See note on 6:3 (see also Introduction: Theology).

90:14 in the morning. Let there be for us a dawning of your love to relieve this long, dark night of your anger. Perhaps Moses (see title) pleads for the promised rest of the promised land (see Ex 33:14; Dt 12:9). The final answer to his prayer comes with the resurrection (see Ro 5:2–5; 8:18; 2Co 4:16–18). unfailing love. See note on 6:4.

90:16 deeds . . . splendor. That is, deeds-of-splendor (see 111:3; see also note on 3:7). For a fuller description of such deeds see the whole of Ps 111. to their children. As to past generations (v. 1).

90:17 favor. See NIV text note; see also 27:4 and note. establish. As you only have been our security in the world (see v. 1), so also make our labors to be effective and enduring—though we are so transient.

Ps 91 A glowing testimony to the security of those who trust in God. It was probably written by one of the temple personnel (a priest or Levite) as a word of assurance to godly worshipers. Because the "you" of vv. 3–13 applies to any of the godly who "make the Most High your dwelling" (v. 9; see 90:1), the devil applied vv. 11–12 to Jesus (see Mt 4:6; Lk 4:10–11). Structurally, the psalm is divided into two halves of eight verses each, with the opening couplet of the second half (vv. 9–10) echoing the theme of vv. 1–2. In the first half, the godly are assured of security from four threats (vv. 5–6)—though thousands fall (v. 7). In the second half, they are assured of triumphing over four menacing beasts (v. 13). The oracle of vv. 14–16 offers climactic assurance.

91:1 shelter. The temple (as in 27:5; 31:20; see also 23:6; 27:4), where the godly find safety under the protective will rest in the shadow[d] of the Almighty.[k] 2I will say[l] of the LORD, "He is my refuge[e] and my fortress,[f]

my God, in whom I trust."
3Surely he will save you from the fowler's snare[g]
and from the deadly pestilence.[h] 4He will cover you with his feathers, and under his wings you will find refuge;[i] his faithfulness will be your shield[j] and rampart.
5You will not fear[k] the terror of night,
nor the arrow that flies by day, 6nor the pestilence that stalks in the darkness,
nor the plague that destroys at midday.
7A thousand may fall at your side,
ten thousand at your right hand,
but it will not come near you.
8You will only observe with your eyes and see the punishment of the wicked.[l] 9If you make the Most High your dwelling—
even the LORD, who is my refuge—10then no harm[m] will befall you, no disaster will come near your tent.
11For he will command his angels[n] concerning you to guard you in all your ways;[o] 12they will lift you up in their hands, so that you will not strike your foot

you will trample the great lion and the serpent.[q]
14"Because he loves me," says the LORD,
"I will rescue him;
I will protect him, for he acknowledges my name.
15He will call upon me, and I will answer him;
I will be with him in trouble,
I will deliver him and honor him.[r]

Psalm 92

A psalm. A song. For the Sabbath day.

1It is good to praise the LORD and make music[u] to your name,[v]
O Most High,[w] 2to proclaim your love in the morning[x]
and your faithfulness at night, 3to the music of the ten-stringed lyre[y]
and the melody of the harp.[z]

92:3 [y]S Ps 71:22 [z]S 1Sa 10:5; S Ne 12:27; S Ps 33:2; 81:2

[k] 1 Hebrew Shaddai [l] 2 Or He says wings of the Lord (see v. 4; 61:4). Most High. See v. 9; see also note on Ge 14:19. shadow. See note on 17:8. Almighty. See NIV text note and note on Ge 17:1.

91:3 fowler's snare. Metaphor for danger from an enemy (see 124:7). pestilence. These two threats are further elaborated in vv. 5–6.

91:4 with his feathers. See note on 17:8.

91:5 terror. As in 64:1 ("threat"), reference is to attack by enemies; thus it is paired with "arrow." These two references to threats from war are arrayed alongside "pestilence" and "plague" (v. 6), two references to mortal diseases that often reached epidemic proportions. night . . . day. At whatever time of day or night the threat may come, you will be kept safe—the time references are not specific to their respective phrases (see also v. 6).

91:7 ten thousand. Hebrew poetic convention called for 10,000 following 1,000 in parallel construction (see notes on 90:10; Am 1:3). Cf. 1Sa 18:7.

91:9 dwelling. See 90:1 and note.

91:11–12 Quoted by Satan in Mt 4:6; Lk 4:10–11.

91:11 his angels. See note on 34:7.

91:12 against a stone. On the stony trails of Canaan (see Pr 3:23).

91:13 lion . . . cobra . . . great lion . . . serpent. These double references to lions and to poisonous snakes balance the double references of vv. 5–6, and complete the illustrative roster of mortal threats (see Am 5:19).

91:14–16 Employing the form of a prophetic oracle, the author (see introduction) supports his testimony by assuring the godly that it is confirmed by all the promises of God to those who truly love and trust him.

91:14 protect him. Lit. "raise him to a high, secure place." my name. See note on 5:11.

Ps 92 A joyful celebration of the righteous rule of God. Its testimony to the prosperity of the righteous, "planted in the house of the LORD" (v. 13), links it thematically with Ps 91, while its joy over God's righteous reign relates it to the cluster of psalms that follow (Ps 93–100; see especially Ps 94). In fact, celebration of God's love and faithfulness as characteristic of his reign (see v. 2; 100:5) may have served for the editors of the Psalter as a frame enclosing the collection. The psalmist here may have been the king (see vv. 10–11). Following the introduction on praise (vv. 1–3), vv. 4–5 offer the motivation for the praise ("me," "I"), which is picked up again in vv. 10–11 ("my," "me," "My," "my," "my," "my"). Verses 6–9 expound the folly and destiny of evildoers, while vv. 12–15 expound the prosperity of the righteous. Notice also the link between v. 7 and v. 13. The NIV text offers a different analysis of the psalm's structure. If the analysis presented here is followed, v. 8 should be read as concluding the thought of v. 7.

92 title A song. See note on Ps 30 title. For the Sabbath day. In the postexilic liturgy of the temple, this psalm came to be sung at the time of the morning sacrifice on the Sabbath. (The rest of the weekly schedule was: first day, Ps 24; second day, Ps 48; third day, Ps 82; fourth day, Ps 94; fifth day, Ps 81; sixth day, Ps 93.)

92:1–3 Hymnic introduction.

92:1 LORD . . . Most High. That is, LORD Most High (see 7:17; see also note on 3:7). name. See note on 5:11. Most High. See note on Ge 14:19.

92:2 love . . . faithfulness. That is, love-and-faithfulness (see note on 36:5; see also note on 3:7). love. See note on 6:4. morning . . . night. Continuously.

92:3 lyre . . . harp. See note on 57:8. harp. See note on Ge 31:27.

4For you make me glad by your deeds,
O LORD;
I sing for joy[a] at the works of your hands.[b] 5How great are your works,[c] O LORD, how profound your thoughts![d] 6The senseless man[e] does not know, fools do not understand, 7that though the wicked spring up like grass and all evildoers flourish,
they will be forever destroyed.[f]

8But you, O LORD, are exalted forever.

9For surely your enemies[g], O LORD, surely your enemies will perish;
all evildoers will be scattered.[h] 10You have exalted my horn[m][i] like that of a wild ox;[j] fine oils[k] have been poured upon me.
11My eyes have seen the defeat of my adversaries;
my ears have heard the rout of my wicked foes.[l]

12The righteous will flourish[m] like a palm tree, they will grow like a cedar of Lebanon;[n] 13planted in the house of the LORD, they will flourish in the courts of our God.[o] 14They will still bear fruit[p] in old age,
they will stay fresh and green, 15proclaiming, "The LORD is upright;
he is my Rock, and there is no wickedness in him.[q]"

Psalm 93

1The LORD reigns,[r] he is robed in majesty;[s]
the LORD is robed in majesty and is armed with strength.[t]
The world is firmly established;[u]
it cannot be moved.[v] 2Your throne was established[w] long ago;
you are from all eternity.[x]

3The seas[y] have lifted up, O LORD, the seas have lifted up their voice;[z]
the seas have lifted up their pounding waves.[a] 4Mightier than the thunder[b] of the great waters, mightier than the breakers[c] of the sea—
the LORD on high is mighty.[d]

5Your statutes stand firm; holiness[e] adorns your house[f]
for endless days, O LORD.

[m]10 Horn here symbolizes strength.

92:4–5 Joy over God's saving acts (see vv. 10–11).
92:5 profound. Lit. "deep." your thoughts. As shown by your deeds.
92:6–9 The fatal folly of evildoers (contrast vv. 12–15).
92:6 senseless ... fools. See NIV text note on 14:1; see also 49:10; 94:8–11. They do not know that the Lord rules righteously. They see the wicked flourishing, but do not see the Lord or foresee the end he has appointed for them. The author thus characterizes his "wicked foes" (v. 11), whom the Lord has routed.
92:7 A condensed statement of what is expounded more fully in Ps 73 (see note on 90:4–5).
92:8 exalted forever. God's eternal exaltation assures the destruction of his enemies.
92:9 enemies. Here the evildoers, referred to also in v. 7.
92:10–11 Joy over God's favors (see vv. 4–5): God has made him triumphant (see 89:24) and anointed him with "the oil of joy" (45:7; see also 23:5) by giving him victory over all his enemies.
92:12–15 The secure prosperity of the righteous (contrast vv. 6–9).
92:13 planted in the house of the LORD. Though the wicked may "spring up like grass," their end is sure (see v. 7). But the righteous are planted in a secure place (see Ps 91) and so retain the vigor of youth into old age, rejoicing in God's just discrimination (see v. 15). courts. Of the temple (see 84:2,10; 2Ki 21:5; 23:11–12).
Ps 93 A hymn to the eternal, universal and invincible reign of the Lord, a theme it shares with Ps 47; 94–100. Together they offer a majestic confession of faith in and hope for the kingdom of God on earth. These hymns were composed for the liturgy of a high religious festival in which the kingship of the Lord—over the cosmic order, over the nations and in a special sense over Israel—was annually celebrated (see introduction to Ps 47). And implicitly, where not explicitly, the Lord's kingship is hailed in contrast to the claims of all other gods; he is "the great King above all gods" (95:3). Ps 93–100 may all have been composed by temple personnel and spoken by them in the liturgy. They probably date from the preexilic era. Structurally, the psalm has two short stanzas (vv. 1–2, 3–4) and a conclusion (v. 5).
93:1–2 The Lord's reign, by which the creation order has been and will be secure throughout the ages, is from eternity (see Ge 1:1). Though Israel as a nation has come late on the scene, her God has been King since before the creation of the world.
93:1 The LORD reigns. The ultimate truth, and first article, in Israel's creed (see 96:10; 97:1; 99:1; see also Zec 14:9 and note).
93:3–4 Since his founding of the world, the Lord has shown himself to be mightier than all the forces of disorder that threaten his kingdom.
93:3 seas. Reference is to the primeval chaotic waters, tamed and assigned a place by the Lord's creative word (see 33:7; 104:7–9; Ge 1:6–10; Job 38:8–11). Implicitly they symbolize all that opposes the coming of the Lord's kingdom (see 65:6–7; 74:13–14 and notes).
93:4 The thunder of the chaotic waters is no match for the thunder of the Lord's ordering word (see 104:7).
93:5 statutes. He whose indisputable rule has made the world secure has given his people life directives that are stable and reliable (see 19:7)—and that they must honor (see 95:8–11). your house. His earthly temple—but also the heavenly. for endless days. Qualifies both clauses.

Psalm 94

[1]O LORD, the God who avenges,[g]
O God who avenges, shine forth.[h]
[2]Rise up,[i] O Judge[j] of the earth;
pay back[k] to the proud what they deserve.
[3]How long will the wicked, O LORD,
how long will the wicked be jubilant?[l]

[4]They pour out arrogant[m] words;
all the evildoers are full of boasting.[n] [5]They crush your people,[o] O LORD;
they oppress your inheritance.[p] [6]They slay the widow[q] and the alien;
they murder the fatherless.[r] [7]They say, "The LORD does not see;[s]
the God of Jacob[t] pays no heed."

[8]Take heed, you senseless ones[u]
among the people;
you fools, when will you become wise?
[9]Does he who implanted the ear not hear?
Does he who formed the eye not see?[v]
[10]Does he who disciplines[w] nations not punish?
Does he who teaches[x] man lack knowledge?
[11]The LORD knows the thoughts[y] of man;
he knows that they are futile.[z]

[12]Blessed is the man you discipline,[a] O LORD, the man you teach[b] from your law;
[13]you grant him relief from days of trouble,[c] till a pit[d] is dug for the wicked.
[14]For the LORD will not reject his people;[e]
he will never forsake his inheritance.
[15]Judgment will again be founded on righteousness,[f]
and all the upright in heart[g] will follow it.

[16]Who will rise up[h] for me against the wicked?
Who will take a stand for me against evildoers?[i] [17]Unless the LORD had given me help,[j]
I would soon have dwelt in the silence of death.[k]
[18]When I said, "My foot is slipping,[l]" your love, O LORD, supported me.
[19]When anxiety[m] was great within me, your consolation[n] brought joy to my soul.

[20]Can a corrupt throne[o] be allied with you—one that brings on misery by its decrees?[p]
[21]They band together[q] against the righteous

Ps 94 An appeal to the Lord, as "Judge of the earth" (v. 2), to redress the wrongs perpetrated against the weak by arrogant and wicked men who occupy seats of power. The psalm has links with Ps 92, but is the voice of the oppressed within Israel (thus not the king), seeking redress at God's throne for injustices done them by those smugly established in the power structures of the nation. Thus it is unique within the Ps 92–100 collection. (See introduction to Ps 93.) Following a three-verse introduction, the thought advances regularly in five stanzas of four verses each.

94:1–3 Initial appeal to God, the Judge.

94:1 avenges. Redresses wrongs (see Dt 32:35,41 and note on Dt 32:35).

94:2 the proud. See vv. 4–7.

94:3 How long . . . ? See note on 6:3; see also Introduction: Theology.

94:4–7 Indictment of the wicked.

94:4 arrogant words . . . boasting. For the arrogance of the wicked see 10:2–11 and notes.

94:5 your people . . . your inheritance. Those among them who are vulnerable (see v. 6).

94:7 They say. See notes on 3:2; 10:11. Jacob. A synonym for Israel (see Ge 32:28).

94:8–11 Warning to the wicked—those "senseless . . . fools" (see 92:6–9; see also NIV text note on 14:1).

94:10 disciplines. Keeps them in line by means of punishment (see Lev 26:18; Jer 31:18). teaches. Gives him some knowledge of the creation order (see Isa 28:26).

94:11 The LORD knows. Contrary to their foolish supposition (see v. 7).

94:12–15 Those whose lives are directed by God's law are the blessed ones (see Ps 1)—contrary to the arrogant expectations of the wicked and in spite of their oppressions.

94:12 Blessed. See note on 1:1. discipline . . . teach. See v. 10. Here the author speaks of God's correcting and teaching his people in the ways of his law.

94:14 people . . . inheritance. See v. 5. The Lord will not abandon the powerless among his people to the injustice of their oppressors. Paul may be echoing this verse in Ro 11:1–2.

94:15 be founded on. Or "restore." heart. See note on 4:7. will follow it. Or "with it." In any event, the author appears to say that God's judgment will restore justice for the upright in heart.

94:16–19 The Lord is the only sure court of appeal.

94:17 silence of death. See note on 30:1. Without God's help the wicked would have silenced the psalmist in the grave, but now it is the wicked for whom the pit will be dug (see v. 13).

94:18 When I said. When he felt he was about to be overwhelmed by the wicked (see note on 38:16). love. See note on 6:4.

94:19 soul. See note on 6:3.

94:20–23 Confidence that the Lord's justice will prevail.

94:20 corrupt throne. A seat of authority that works mischief. The author speaks of injustice at the center of power.

94:21 righteous. See note on 1:5.

Psalm 95

1Come,[x] let us sing for joy[y] to the LORD;
let us shout aloud[z] to the Rock[a] of our salvation.
2Let us come before him[b] with thanksgiving[c] and extol him with music[d] and song.

3For the LORD is the great God,[e]
the great King[f] above all gods.[g] 4In his hand are the depths of the earth,[h] and the mountain peaks belong to him.
5The sea is his, for he made it,
and his hands formed the dry land.[i]

6Come, let us bow down[j] in worship,[k] let us kneel[l] before the LORD our Maker;[m] 7for he is our God and we are the people of his pasture,[n]
the flock under his care.

Today, if you hear his voice,
8 do not harden your hearts[o] as you did at Meribah,[np]
as you did that day at Massah[o] in the desert,[q] 9where your fathers tested[r] and tried me, though they had seen what I did.
10For forty years[s] I was angry with that generation;
I said, "They are a people whose hearts go astray,[t]
and they have not known my ways."[u] 11So I declared on oath[v] in my anger,
"They shall never enter my rest."[w]

[n]8 Meribah means quarreling. [o]8 Massah means testing.

Ps 95 A call to worship the Lord, spoken by a priest or Levite to the assembled Israelites at the temple. (See introduction to Ps 93.) The psalm is composed of two parts: (1) a call to praise the Lord of all the earth (vv. 1–5); (2) a call to acknowledge by submissive attitude and obedient heart the Lord's kingship over his people (vv. 6–11). Each part also has two subdivisions, the latter of which forms the climax. Cf. the structure of Ps 96.

95:1–2 The call to praise.

95:1 Rock of our salvation. See note on 18:2.

95:3–5 Why Israel is to praise the Lord—because he is above all gods, and there is no corner of the universe that is not in his hand. The ancient pagan world had different gods for different peoples, different geographical areas, different cosmic regions (heaven, earth, netherworld) and different aspects of life (e.g., war, fertility, crafts).

95:4–5 depths ... mountain peaks ... sea ... dry land. All the world—the extremes and all that lies between and all that is in them.

95:6–11 The exhortation to submit to the Lord with obedient hearts—a bent knee is not enough. For a NT reflection on these verses in the light of the advent of Christ see Heb 3:7–4:13.

95:6–7 The call to confess submission to the Lord by kneeling before him.

95:6 our Maker. Both as Creator of all things (see Ge 1) and as Israel's Redeemer, he has "made" her what she is: the people of the Lord in the earth (see Isa 45:9–13; 51:12–16).

95:7 people of his pasture. See 100:3; Jer 23:1; Eze 34:21. Since kings were commonly called the "shepherds" of their people (see note on 23:1), their realms could be referred to as their "pastures" (see Jer 25:36; 49:20; 50:45). if you hear his voice. In the liturgy of the religious festival, possibly in some such manner as Ps 50 and/or 78.

95:8 Meribah ... Massah. See NIV text notes. The leader of the liturgy reminds Israel of times of her rebellion in the desert (see Ex 17:7; Nu 20:13).

95:9 me. Official representatives of the Lord, when speaking for him, could shift to first person (see 50:5,7–15; see also note on Ge 16:7). had seen what I did. In Egypt and at the Red Sea—and his provision of food in the desert (see Ex 16; see also Nu 14:11).

95:10 forty years. The climax of Israel's rebellion came when she faithlessly refused to undertake the conquest of Canaan and considered returning to Egypt (see Nu 14:1–4). It was then that God condemned her to a 40-year stay in the desert (see Nu 14:34). angry. See note on 2:5. that generation. The (adult) Israelites who came out of Egypt and covenanted with God at Sinai (see Nu 32:13). They are a people ... my ways. A restatement of the Lord's word in Nu 14:11. hearts. See note on 4:7. my ways. See 25:4 and note.

95:11 on oath. See Nu 14:28. never enter my rest. The language of Nu 14:30 is "not one of you will enter the land," but since the promised land was also called the place where God will give his people "rest" (Jos 1:13,15; see Ex 33:14; Dt 12:10; 25:19), the two statements are equivalent. rest. Here a fertile concept indicating Israel's possession of a place with God in the earth where she is secure from all external threats and internal calamities (see 1Ki 5:4).

Ps 96 A call to all nations to praise the Lord as the only God and to proclaim the glory of his reign throughout the world—an OT anticipation of the world mission of the NT people of God (see Mt 28:16–20). (See introductions to Ps 93; 95.) This psalm appears in slightly

2 Sing to the LORD, praise his name;[z] proclaim his salvation[a] day after day.
3 Declare his glory[b] among the nations,
his marvelous deeds[c] among all peoples.
4 For great is the LORD and most worthy of praise;[d]
he is to be feared[e] above all gods.[f] 5 For all the gods of the nations are idols,[g]
but the LORD made the heavens.[h] 6 Splendor and majesty[i] are before him;
strength and glory[j] are in his sanctuary.
7 Ascribe to the LORD,[k] O families of nations,[l] ascribe to the LORD glory and strength.
8 Ascribe to the LORD the glory due his name;
bring an offering[m] and come into his courts.[n] 9 Worship the LORD[o] in the splendor of his[p] holiness;[p] tremble[q] before him, all the earth.[r]
10 Say among the nations, "The LORD reigns.[s]"
The world is firmly established,[t] it cannot be moved;[u]
he will judge[v] the peoples with equity.[w] 11 Let the heavens rejoice,[x] let the earth be glad;[y]
let the sea resound, and all that is in it; 12 let the fields be jubilant, and everything in them.
Then all the trees of the forest[z] will sing for joy;[a] 13 they will sing before the LORD, for he comes,
he comes to judge[b] the earth.
He will judge the world in righteousness[c] and the peoples in his truth.[d] altered form in 1Ch 16:23–33. The psalm is composed of two parts: (1) a call to all nations to sing the praise of the Lord (vv. 1–6); (2) a call to all nations to worship the Lord and to hail throughout the world the glory of his righteous rule (vv. 7–13). Each part has two subdivisions, the last of which forms the climax to the whole psalm. Cf. the structure of Ps 95.

96:1–3 The call to all the earth to sing the praise of the Lord among the nations. Triple repetition ("Sing ... sing ... Sing") was a common feature in OT liturgical calls to worship (see vv. 7–9 and note; see also 103:20–22; 118:2–4; 135:1; 136:1–3).

96:1 new song. See note on 33:3. all the earth. See v. 9; or "all the land," in which case the call is addressed to all Israel. However, the worldwide perspective of this psalm (see especially v. 7) suggests that here the psalmist has in view broader horizons (see 97:1; 100:1 and note; 117:1; see also note on 9:1).

96:2 name. See v. 8; see also note on 5:11. proclaim his salvation. Proclaim (see 40:9 and note) that deliverance comes from the Lord (see 3:8; see also 85:9).

96:3 glory. See note on 85:9. marvelous deeds. See note on 71:16–17.

96:4–6 Why "all the earth" is to praise the Lord: He alone is God (see Ps 115).

96:4 feared. See note on Ge 20:11.

96:5 made the heavens. As the Maker of the heavenly realm, in pagan eyes the abode of the gods, the Lord is greater than all the gods (see 97:7).

96:6 Splendor and majesty ... strength and glory. Two pairs of divine attributes personified as throne attendants whose presence before the Lord heralds the exalted nature of the one, universal King. For similar personifications see 23:6 and note. glory. The Hebrew for this word here connotes radiant beauty.

96:7–9 The call to all nations to worship the Lord (see 29:1–2 and note). The two half-sentences of 29:2 have been expanded in this psalm. The threefold "ascribe" here balances the threefold "sing" of vv. 1–2.

96:8 courts. Of the temple (see 84:2,10; 2Ki 21:5; 23:11–12).

96:9 tremble. In reverent awe, equivalent to "fear" (see v. 4).

96:10–13 The call to all nations to proclaim among the nations the righteous reign of the Lord.

96:10 The Lord reigns. See 93:1 and note. The world ... with equity. In OT perspective, the world order is one, embracing both its physical and moral aspects because both have been established by God as aspects of his one kingdom and both are upheld by his one rule. Therefore God's rule over creation and over the affairs of men (also his acts of creation and redemption) is often spoken of in one breath, and "righteousness," "faithfulness" and "love" are equally ascribable to both. And since the creation order is secure in its "goodness" (see Ge 1), it often serves in OT poetry (as it does here) as a manifest assurance that God's rule over the affairs of men will also be "with equity," "in righteousness" and "in ... truth" (v. 13; see 11:3; 33:4–11; 36:5–9; 57:10; 65:6–7; 71:19; 74:13–14,16–17; 75:3; 82:5; 93:3–4; 119:89–91 and notes). will judge. See v. 13 and note.

96:11–12 Because God's kingdom is one (see v. 10 and note), all his creatures will rejoice when God's rule over mankind brings righteousness to full expression in his cosmic kingdom (see note on 65:13; see also 97:7–9). For the present state of the creation as it awaits the fullness of redemption see Ro 8:21–22 and notes.

96:13 comes ... comes ... will judge. Because God reigns over all things and is the Lord of history, Israel lived in hope (as the prophets announced) of the "coming" of God—his future acts by which he would decisively deal with all wickedness and establish his righteousness in the earth. righteousness. See note on 4:1.

Ps 97 A joyful celebration of the Lord's righteous reign over all the earth. (See introductions to Ps 93; 95.) The psalm's two main divisions (vv. 1–6, 8–12) are joined by a centered verse (v. 7; see note on 6:6) that serves as a counterpoint to the main theme. The opening verses of the two main divisions are thematically linked: v. 1, "be glad ... rejoice"; v. 8, "rejoices ... are glad"—in reverse order, a frequent stylistic device in OT poetry.

97:1–6 A testimony to the nations—that they too have seen God's majesty displayed (vv. 2–6) and ought to rejoice with Israel that the Lord reigns supreme.

97:1 The Lord reigns. See 93:1 and note. earth. See 96:1; 99:1; 117:1; see also note on 9:1. distant shores. Even distant lands reached by the far-ranging ships that sail the seas (see 1Ki 9:26–28; 10:22; Isa 60:9; Jnh 1:3).

97:2–6 The Lord's majestic glory revealed in the sky's awesome displays, especially in the thunderstorm (see 18:7–15 and note; see also introduction to Ps 29).

97:2 Clouds and thick darkness. The dark storm clouds that hide the sun and cast a veil across the sky are dramatic visual reminders that the fierce heat and brilliance (also metaphors) of God's naked glory must be veiled from creaturely eyes (see Ex 19:9; 1Ki 8:12). Thus also a curtain closed off the Most Holy Place in the tabernacle and temple (see Ex 26:33; 2Ch 3:14), veiling it in darkness. righteousness. See v. 6; see also note on 4:1. foundation of his throne. God rules by his power (see 66:7), but his reign is founded on righteousness and justice, which also the heavens proclaim (see v. 6 and note).

97:3 Fire. Manifested in the storm cloud's lightning bolts (see v. 4), fire often signified God's judicial wrath (see, e.g., 21:9; 50:3; 83:14; Dt 4:24; 9:3; 32:22; 1Ki 19:12; Isa 10:17; 30:27,30).

97:4 earth. Here probably the physical earth personified.

97:6 proclaim his righteousness. The stable order of the heaven's vast array "speaks" (see 19:1–4); it declares that God's reign similarly upholds the moral order (see note on 96:10). all the peoples see. Verses 2–6 have spoken of general revelation (cf. 19:1–6).

97:7 The center verse (see note on 6:6) and counterpoint of the psalm: joy to all who acknowledge the Lord; shame and disgrace to those who trust in the false gods. worship him. With biting irony the psalm calls on all the gods that people foolishly worship to bow in worship before the Lord (see v. 9; see also 29:1 and note).

97:8–12 A declaration of Zion's joy that the Lord reigns (vv. 8–9), and a reminder that only those who hate evil have real cause to rejoice in his righteous rule (vv. 10–12).

97:8 Zion hears. That "the LORD reigns" (v. 1) in "righteousness" (v. 6). judgments. God's righteous acts in the affairs of mankind (see 105:7; Isa 26:9), especially his saving acts in Israel's behalf (see 48:11; 105:5; Dt 33:21).

97:9 Most High. See note on Ge 14:19.

97:10 faithful ones. See note on 4:3.

97:11 Light. See 27:1 and note; see also 36:9. righteous. See v. 12; see also note on 1:5. heart. See note on 4:7.

97:12 name. See note on 30:4.

Ps 98 A call to celebrate with joy the righteous reign of the Lord. Its beginning and end echo Ps 96. (See introductions to Ps 93; 95.) The three stanzas progressively extend the call to ever wider circles: (1) the worshiping congregation at the temple; (2) all the peoples of the earth; (3) the whole creation. The first stanza recalls God's revelation of his righteousness (v. 2) in the past; the last stanza speaks confidently of his coming rule "in righteousness" (v. 9); the middle stanza is enclosed by the jubilant cry, "Shout for joy" (vv. 4,6).

98:1–3 The call to celebrate in song God's saving acts in behalf of his people.

98:1 new song. See note on 33:3. marvelous things. See note on 9:1 ("wonders").

98:2 made ... known ... revealed ... to the nations. God's saving acts in behalf of his people are also his self-revelation to the nations; in this sense God is his own evangelist (see note on 46:10; see also Isa 52:10). salvation ... righteousness. God's saving acts reveal his righteousness (see notes on 4:1; 71:24).

[3]He has remembered[y] his love and his faithfulness to the house of Israel;
all the ends of the earth[z] have seen the salvation of our God.[a] with the harp and the sound of singing,[d] [6]with trumpets[e] and the blast of the ram's horn[f]— and the peoples with equity.[m]

Psalm 99

[1]The LORD reigns,[n]
let the nations tremble;[o]
he sits enthroned[p] between the cherubim,[q]
let the earth shake.
[2]Great is the LORD[r] in Zion;[s] he is exalted[t] over all the nations.
[3]Let them praise[u] your great and awesome name[v]—
he is holy.[w]

[4]The King[x] is mighty, he loves justice[y]— you have established equity;[z]
in Jacob you have done
what is just and right.[a] [5]Exalt[b] the LORD our God and worship at his footstool;
he is holy.

[6]Moses[c] and Aaron[d] were among his priests, Samuel[e] was among those who called on his name;
they called on the LORD

98:3 love ... faithfulness. That is, love-and-faithfulness (see note on 36:5; see also note on 3:7). This compound expression often sums up God's covenant commitment to his people (see note on 6:4).

98:4–6 The call to all the earth to join in the celebration.

98:4 See 100:1. all the earth. The peoples of the earth (see 96:1 and note; see also 99:1).

98:5 harp. See note on Ge 31:27.

98:6 trumpets. The special long, straight trumpets of the sanctuary (referred to only here in Psalms; see notes on Nu 10:2–3,10). ram's horn. The more common trumpet (referred to also in 47:5; 81:3; 150:3; see note on Joel 2:1).

98:7–9 The call to the whole creation to celebrate (see note on 96:11–12).

98:7 sea ... world. The two great regions of creaturely life.

98:8 rivers ... mountains. From the rivers to the mountains, let every feature of the whole earth clap and sing (see note on 65:13).

98:9 comes to judge. See 96:13 and note. Israel in faith lived between the past (see vv. 1–3) and the future righteous (saving) acts of God.

Ps 99 A hymn celebrating the Lord as the great and holy King in Zion. In developing his theme, the poet makes striking use of the symbolic significance (completeness) of the number seven: Seven times he speaks of the "LORD," and seven times he refers to him by means of independent personal pronouns (Hebrew). (See introduction to Ps 93.) The form is symmetrical, with four stanzas of three (Hebrew) poetic lines and with each of the two main divisions concluded by the major refrain (vv. 5,9). The lesser refrain, "he is holy" (vv. 3,5, and expanded in v. 9), probably reflects a traditional threefold liturgical rubric (see Isa 6:3; Rev 4:8; see also Ps 96:1–3,7–9 and notes for further evidence of a liturgical penchant for triple repetition). The second half of the psalm develops the theme introduced in the second stanza.

99:1–3 The God enthroned in Zion is ruler over all the nations—let them acknowledge him.

99:1 The LORD reigns. See 93:1 and note. tremble ... shake. In reverent awe before God. cherubim. See 80:1; see also note on Ex 25:18.

99:3 Let them praise. As the Great King, he ought to be shown the fear (v. 1) and honor that are his due. name. See v. 6; see also note on 5:11. holy. See vv. 5,9; see also Introduction to Leviticus: Themes; note on Lev 11:44.

99:4–5 The Lord has shown the quality of his rule by what he has done for Israel.

99:4 See 103:6–12. is mighty ... loves justice. Two chief characteristics of God's reign. established equity. As a (his) throne (see 9:7–8; 97:2; 2Sa 7:13). Jacob. A synonym for Israel (see Ge 32:28). just and right. Justice and righteousness, as in 97:2. Though even the heavens proclaim God's righteousness (see 97:6 and note), it is in the whole complex of his saving acts in and for Israel that the "righteousness" of God's reign is especially disclosed (see 98:2 and note).

99:5 See also v. 9. For other refrains in the Psalms see introduction to Ps 42–43. footstool. God's royal footstool (see 2Ch 9:18), here a metaphor linking the heavenly throne with the earthly; when God sits on his heavenly throne, his earthly throne is his footstool (here "his holy mountain," v. 9; see 132:7; 1Ch 28:2; La 2:1).

99:6–7 In Israel the Lord provided priestly intermediaries, who (1) were appointed to intercede with him on behalf of his faltering people (v. 6), and (2) were given knowledge of his will so they could instruct Israel.

99:6 Moses ... Aaron ... Samuel. These three no doubt serve here as representatives of all those the Lord used as intermediaries with his people in times of great crises. priests ... who called on his name. The priestly function of intercession is highlighted (see Ex 17:11 and note; 32:11–13,31–32; Nu 14:13–19; 21:7; 1Sa 7:5,8–9; 12:19,23; Jer 15:1). answered them. See v. 8; see also the Lord's responses to the intercessions referred to in note on vv. 6–7.

[7]He spoke to them from the pillar of cloud;[g]
they kept his statutes and the decrees he gave them.

you answered them;
you were to Israel[q] a forgiving God,[h]
though you punished[i] their misdeeds.[r] [9]Exalt the LORD our God and worship at his holy mountain, for the LORD our God is holy.

Psalm 100

A psalm. For giving thanks.

[1]Shout for joy[j] to the LORD, all the earth.
[2] Worship the LORD[k] with gladness;
come before him[l] with joyful songs.
[3]Know that the LORD is God.[m]
It is he who made us,[n] and we are his[s];
we are his people,[o] the sheep of his pasture.[p] [4]Enter his gates with thanksgiving[q]
and his courts[r] with praise;
give thanks to him and praise his name.[s] [5]For the LORD is good[t] and his love endures forever;[u] his faithfulness[v] continues through all generations.

[q]8 Hebrew them [r]8 Or / an avenger of the wrongs done to them [s]3 Or and not we ourselves

99:7 spoke to them from the pillar of cloud. Though reference may be to all Israel ("them"), more likely the hymn recalls God's speaking with Moses (see Ex 33:9) and Aaron (see Nu 12:5–6). But that special mode of revelation in the desert may also be generalized here to include God's revelations to Samuel, who was called to his prophetic ministry at the sanctuary, "where the ark of God was" (1Sa 3:3; see also 1Sa 12:23). they kept. However imperfectly, it was in Israel that God's righteous statutes and decrees were kept because only in Israel had they been made known (see 147:19–20; Dt 4:5–8).

99:8–9 The justice and righteousness of God's rule in Israel (see v. 4) have been especially shown in the manner in which he has dealt with their sins (see Ex 34:6–7; see also note on 4:1).

99:9 holy mountain. See v. 5 and note. the LORD our God is holy. Climactic expansion of the secondary refrain.

Ps 100 A call to praise the Lord. Whether or not it was composed for that purpose, the final editors of the Psalter here used it to close the series that begins with Ps 93. It has special affinity with 95:1–2,6–7; see also Ps 117. (See introduction to Ps 93.) The second main division (vv. 4–5) parallels the structure of the first (vv. 1–3), namely, a call to praise followed by a declaration of why the Lord is worthy of praise—the corresponding elements of the two divisions are complementary.

100 title thanks. Grateful praise (see v. 4; see also note on 75:1). Perhaps it indicates that the psalm was to accompany a thank offering (see Lev 7:12).

100:1 all the earth. Though vv. 3,5 clearly speak of God's special relationship with Israel, the call to worship goes out to the whole world, which ought to acknowledge the Lord because of what he has done for his people (see also Ps 98–99; 117).

100:3 Know. Acknowledge. made us. See 95:6 and note. sheep of his pasture. See 95:7 and note.

100:4 his gates. The gates of the temple (see 24:7 and note). courts. Of the temple (see 84:2,10; 2Ki 21:5; 23:11–12).

100:5 the LORD is good. In that his love-and-faithfulness (see note on 36:5) are unfailing through all time (see 98:3 and note). love. See note on 6:4.

Ps 101 A king's pledge to reign righteously (see 2Ki 23:3). If authored by David (see title), it may have been composed for Solomon's use at his coronation (see 1Ki 2:2–4; see also 2Sa 23:1–7 and introduction to Ps 72). Only Christ, the great Son of David, has perfectly fulfilled these commitments. In the final arrangement of the Psalter this psalm, together with Ps 110 (both relating to the king), frames the collection of ten psalms located between the preceding thematic group (Ps 92–100; see introduction to Ps 92) and that which follows (Ps 111–118; see introduction to Ps 111). This little psalter-within-the-Psalter is concentrically arranged: Ps 102 and 109 are individual prayers; Ps 103 and 108 praise the Lord for his "great . . . love" (103:11; 108:4) that reaches to the heavens; Ps 104, which celebrates God's many wise and benevolent acts in creation, and Ps 107, which celebrates God's "wonderful deeds" (107:8,15,21,24,31) for man through his lordship over creation, are complements; and so also are Ps 105, which recites the history of Israel's redemption, and Ps 106, which recites the same history as a history of Israel's rebellion. As a mini-Psalter, it includes most of the forms and themes found in the rest of the Psalter. Its outer frame is devoted to royal psalms and its center pair is devoted to recitals of Israel's history with God—with its themes ranging from creation and God's eternal enthronement to the covenant with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, the exodus from Egypt and entrance into Canaan, the exile and restoration, and finally the ultimate triumph of the Lord's anointed. The collection bears a distinctive redemption–history stamp and evokes recollection of all the salient elements of the OT message. (For the problem of the Book division at Ps 107 see introduction to that psalm.)

Composed of seven couplets (the number of completeness), the psalm begins with a twofold introduction (vv. 1–3a; see notes below), followed by a five-stanza (vv. 3b–8) elaboration of the theme of the second stanza. Of these five stanzas, the middle one (v. 6) speaks of the king's commitment to the "faithful" and "blameless," while the other four (vv. 3b–4, 5, 7, 8) declare his repudiation of all the "faithless" and "wicked" in the land. (For the parallel relationship of stanzas six and seven with three and four see notes below.) The middle stanza is linked with stanzas one and two also by the catchword "blameless." (For centering in the Psalms see note on 6:6.)

101:1–2a Celebration of the pattern of God's reign, which the king makes the model for his own.

101:1 love and justice. Two of the chief qualities of God's

Psalm 102

A prayer of an afflicted man. When he is faint and pours out his lament before the LORD.

[1]Hear my prayer,[j] O LORD;
let my cry for help[k] come to you.
[2]Do not hide your face[l] from me when I am in distress.
Turn your ear[m] to me;
when I call, answer me quickly.
[3]For my days vanish like smoke;[n] embers.

rule (see 6:4; 99:4 and notes).

101:2a blameless. See vv. 2b,6; see also note on Ge 17:1. when . . . ? An urgent prayer for God to come and sustain in him his pledge (see 1Ki 3:7–9; see also Ps 72).

101:2b–3a The essential commitment. heart . . . eyes. In OT understanding, a person follows the dictates of the heart—the inner man (see note on 4:7)—and/or the attractions of the eye—external influences (see 119:37; Jdg 14:1–2; 2Sa 11:2; 2Ki 16:10; Job 31:1; Pr 4:25; 17:24). For the combination heart-eyes see v. 5; Nu 15:39; Job 31:7; Pr 21:4; Ecc 2:10; Jer 22:17.

101:2b house. Royal administration (also in v. 7).

101:3a vile. Belial (see 2Co 6:15) is derived from the Hebrew for this word (see note on Dt 13:13).

101:3b–4 A repudiation of evil deeds and those who promote them (see v. 7).

101:3b faithless. Those who rebel against what is right (see Hos 5:2, "rebels").

101:4 perverse. The opposite of "blameless" (see 18:26, "crooked"; see also Pr 11:20; 19:1; 28:6). A perverse heart and a deceitful tongue (see v. 7) are root and fruit (see Pr 17:20).

101:5 A pledge to remove from his presence all slanderous and all arrogant persons (see v. 8). put to silence. Destroy (as in 54:5; 94:23). See v. 8. haughty eyes . . . proud heart. See vv. 2b–3a and note; see also 131:1; Pr 21:4; Isa 10:12. The arrogant tend to be ruthless (see Isa 10:12) and are a law to themselves (see note on 31:23).

101:6 A pledge to surround himself in his reign with the faithful and blameless. My eyes will be on. I will look with favor on (see 33:18; 34:15). the faithful. Those who maintain moral integrity. minister to me. Serve as my aide (see Ex 24:13), attendant (see Ge 39:4; 1Ki 19:21), personal servant (see 2Ki 4:43), commander and official (see 1 Ch 27:1; 2Ch 17:19; Pr 29:12).

101:7 A repudiation of all those who make their way by double-dealing (see vv. 3b–4).

101:8 A pledge to remove all the wicked from the Lord's kingdom (see v. 5). Every morning. With diligence and persistence (see Jer 21:12; Zep 3:5). It may have been traditional for kings to hear cases in the morning. city of the LORD. See Ps 46; 48; 87; see also note on 3:4.

Ps 102 The prayer of an individual in a time of great distress. It is also one of the traditional penitential psalms (see introduction to Ps 6). Some interpreters believe that the "I" of vv. 1–11,23–24 was originally communal (see note on Ps 30 title; see also note on title below). (See introduction to Ps 101.) The main body of the psalm (vv. 1–22) is developed in four stanzas (initial appeal for God to hear, vv. 1–2; description of distress, vv. 3–11; assurance that the Lord will surely hear, vv. 12–17; call for the Lord's certain deliverance to be recorded for his enduring praise, vv. 18–22), followed by a concluding recapitulation (vv. 23–28).

102 title Unique in the Psalter (no author named and no liturgical or historical notes), the title identifies only the life situation in which the prayer is to be used, and in accordance with vv. 1–11,23–24 it designates the prayer as that of an individual. But vv. 12–22,28 clearly indicate national involvement in the calamity. It may be that the distress suffered by the individual, while its description suggests physical illness, is the result of his sharing in a national disaster such as the exile—a suggestion supported by references to the restoration of Zion. Because of the close relationship of the fortunes of king and nation and because of the many themes shared by this and some of the royal psalms, it has been plausibly suggested that the prayer was originally that of a Davidic king, or of a member of the Davidic royal house, while in Babylonian exile. prayer. See vv. 1,17. faint. See 61:2; 77:3; 142:3; 143:4; see also 107:5; Jnh 2:7. lament. The Hebrew for this word is translated "complaint" in 64:1; 142:2; Job 7:13; 9:27; 10:1; 21:4.

102:2 hide your face. See note on 13:1.

102:3–11 The description of distress—a suffering so great that it withers body and spirit—brought on by a visitation of God's wrath (v. 10) and making him the mockery of his enemies (v. 8).

102:3 my days. His life wastes away—a lament that frames the whole stanza (see v. 11). bones burn. As if a fire is consuming his physical frame (see 31:10; 32:3; 42:10).

102:4 heart. See note on 4:7. Here "heart" is used in combination with "bones" (v. 3) to refer to the whole man (body and spirit); see 22:14; Pr 14:30; 15:30; Isa 66:14 ("and

102:6 owl . . . owl. Translations of two different Hebrew words (cf. Lev 11:16–18). The owl was associated with desert areas and ruins (see Isa 34:11,15; Jer 50:39; Zep 2:14).

102:8 enemies taunt me. See 109:25; see also notes on 5:9; 39:8. use my name as a curse. They say, "May you become like that one (the one named) is."

102:9 drink . . . tears. For tears as food and drink see 42:3; 80:5.

102:10 wrath. See note on 2:5.

102:11 A concluding summation of vv. 3–4.

102:12–17 Assurance that the King eternal will surely hear the prayer of the destitute (v. 17) and restore Zion (see note on 3:8).

102:12 sit enthroned forever. A central theme of the preceding collection (Ps 92–100). Because God reigns forever and remains the same (see v. 27), his mercies to those who look to him for salvation will not fail. renown. See note on 30:4 ("name"). For elaborate celebrations of the Lord's renown see Ps 111; 135; 145.

102:13 This verse and v. 16 form an inner frame around the stanza. The two verses (see v. 14) suggest that the psalmist's distress was occasioned by the Babylonian exile. arise. See note on 3:7. appointed time. The time set by God for judgment and deliverance (see 75:2; Ex 9:5; 2Sa 24:15; Da 11:27,35). Perhaps the psalmist is referring to a time announced by a prophet.

102:14 dear to your servants. If Zion, the city of God (see 46:4; 48:1–2,8; 87:3; 101:8; 132:13), is so loved by the Lord's servants (see Ps 126; 137), how much more is she cherished by the Lord!

102:15 See note on 46:10. name. See note on 5:11.

102:16 and appear in his glory. Or "and thus appear in his glory" (see v. 15 and note on 46:10; see also Isa 40:1–5). This hope will find its fullest expression in the "new Jerusalem" (see Rev 21).

102:18–22 Let God's certain deliverance of his people be recorded for his continual praise.

102:18 written. Only here does a psalmist call for memory to be sustained by a written record of God's saving act; usually oral transmission suffices (see 22:30; 44:1; 78:1–4). created. Brought into being by God's sovereign act (see 51:10; 104:30; 139:13).

102:20 prisoners . . . those condemned to death. Perhaps prisoners of war, but more likely the exiles in Babylon (see 79:11 and note).

102:21 praise. See note on 9:1.

102:22 See note on 46:10; see also 47:9 and note; 96; 98; 100. The expectation here expressed may also be influenced by such prophecies as Isa 2:2–4; Mic 4:1–3.

102:23–28 Concluding recapitulation.

102:23–24a See vv. 3–11.

102:24b–27 See v. 12 and note. For a NT application of vv. 25–27 to Christ see Heb 1:10–12 and note on Heb 1:10.

26 They will perish,[c] but you remain;
they will all wear out like a

Like clothing you will change them and they will be discarded.
27 But you remain the same,[d]
and your years will never end.[e] 28 The children of your servants[f] will

Psalm 103

Of David.

1 Praise the LORD,[h] O my soul;[i] all my inmost being, praise his holy name.[j]
2 Praise the LORD,[k] O my soul, and forget not[l] all his benefits—3 who forgives all your sins[m] and heals[n] all your diseases, 4 who redeems your life[o] from the pit and crowns you with love and compassion,[p]
5 who satisfies[q] your desires with good things
so that your youth is renewed[r]
like the eagle's.[s]

6 The LORD works righteousness[t]
and justice for all the oppressed.[u]

7 He made known[v] his ways[w] to Moses,
his deeds[x] to the people of Israel:

8 The LORD is compassionate and gracious,[y]
slow to anger, abounding in love.
9 He will not always accuse, nor will he harbor his anger
forever;[z]
10 he does not treat us as our sins deserve[a] or repay us according to our iniquities.
11 For as high as the heavens are above
the earth,
so great is his love[b] for those who fear him;[c] 12 as far as the east is from the west, so far has he removed our transgressions[d] from us.
13 As a father has compassion[e] on his children,
so the LORD has compassion on
those who fear him;
14 for he knows how we are formed,[f] he remembers that we are dust.[g] 15 As for man, his days are like grass,[h] he flourishes like a flower[i] of the field;
16 the wind blows[j] over it and it is gone,
and its place[k] remembers it no
more.
17 But from everlasting to everlasting

But he is more enduring than what he has made—and the first creation will give way to a new creation (see Isa 65:17; 66:22).

102:28 Because the Lord does not change (see v. 27), Israel's future is secure (see Mal 3:6). live in your presence. Or "dwell in the (promised) land" (see 69:36; see also 37:3,29; Isa 65:9). established before you. See 2Sa 7:24.

Ps 103 A hymn to God's love and compassion toward his people. (See introduction to Ps 101.) Calls to praise frame the body of the hymn (vv. 1–2, 20–22) and set its tone. The recital of praise falls into two unequal parts: (1) a three-verse celebration of personal benefits received (vv. 3–5) and (2) a 14-verse recollection of God's mercies to his people Israel (vv. 6–19). The major division (vv. 6–19) is composed of six couplets framed by vv. 6 and 19, which describe the general character of God's reign. Thematic development divides the six couplets into two equal parts (vv. 7–12, 13–18), of which the first celebrates God's compassion on his people as sinners while the second sings of his compassion on them as frail mortals. The two concluding couplets proclaim the vastness of his love (vv. 11–12) and its unending perseverance (vv. 17–18). As with the hymn found in Ps 33, the length of the psalm has been determined by the number of letters in the Hebrew alphabet (see introduction to Ps 33).

103:1–2 Call to praise, directed inward (cf. vv. 20–22).

103:1–2,22 O my soul. A conventional Hebrew way of addressing oneself (see 104:1,35; 116:7). soul. See note on 6:3.

103:3–5 Recital of personal blessings received.

103:4 redeems. A synonym for "delivers." pit. A metaphor for the grave (see note on 30:1). love and compassion. The key words of the hymn (see vv. 8,11,13,17). love. See vv. 8,11,17; see also note on 6:4.

103:5 like the eagle's. The vigor of youth is restored to match the proverbial unflagging strength of the eagle (see Isa 40:31).

103:6–19 God's love and compassion toward his people.

103:6 Together with v. 19 (the other side of the literary frame) it characterizes the reign of God under which Israel has been so graciously blessed. righteousness. See v. 17; see also note on 4:1.

103:7–12 God's compassion on his people as sinners.

103:7–8 See 99:7; Ex 33:13; see also note on Ex 34:6–7.

103:7 his ways. See 25:10 and note.

103:9 anger. See note on 2:5.

103:11–12 The vastness of God's love is supremely shown in his forgiving Israel's sins.

103:11 See 36:5–9. so great is. So prevails. those who fear him. See vv. 13,17–18; see also 34:8–14 and note.

103:12 See Isa 1:18; 38:17; 43:25; Jer 31:34; 50:20; Mic 7:18–19.

103:13–18 God's compassion on his people as frail mortals; perhaps echoed in Lk 1:50.

103:14 we are dust. See note on 78:39.

103:17 The infinite span of God's love overarches man's little time (see v. 11). with their children's children. See note on 109:12.

the LORD's love is with those who fear him,
and his righteousness with their children's children[l]— 18with those who keep his covenant[m] and remember[n] to obey his precepts.[o]

19The LORD has established his throne[p] in heaven,
and his kingdom rules[q] over all.

20Praise the LORD,[r] you his angels,[s] you mighty ones[t] who do his bidding,[u]
who obey his word.
21Praise the LORD, all his heavenly hosts,[v]
you his servants[w] who do his will.
22Praise the LORD, all his works[x] everywhere in his dominion.

Praise the LORD, O my soul.[y]

Psalm 104

1Praise the LORD, O my soul.[z]

O LORD my God, you are very great;
you are clothed with splendor and majesty.[a] 2He wraps[b] himself in light[c] as with a garment;
he stretches[d] out the heavens[e]
like a tent[f]
3 and lays the beams[g] of his upper chambers on their waters.[h]
He makes the clouds[i] his chariot[j] and rides on the wings of the wind.[k] 4He makes winds his messengers,[u][l] flames of fire[m] his servants.

5He set the earth[n] on its foundations;[o]
it can never be moved.
6You covered it[p] with the deep[q] as with a garment;
the waters stood[r] above the mountains.
7But at your rebuke[s] the waters fled, at the sound of your thunder[t] they took to flight;
8they flowed over the mountains,
they went down into the valleys, to the place you assigned[u] for
them.
9You set a boundary[v] they cannot cross;

103:19 See v. 6 and note; see also 9:4,7; 11:4; 47:2,7–8; 123:1.

103:20–22 Concluding call to praise, directed to all creatures (cf. vv. 1–2). A call to praise is often the climax of praise in the Psalter (as also of the whole collection; see Ps 148–150). See note on 9:1. Praise ... Praise ... Praise. See note on 96:1–3 (the final line was probably added by the editors of the Psalter; see 104:1,35).

103:20 who do his bidding. See 91:11; Heb 1:14.

103:21 heavenly hosts. Uniquely here and in 148:2 the Hebrew for "hosts" is masculine, and in both places the "hosts" are associated with "angels." servants. Translates the participle of the Hebrew verb for "minister" in 101:6 (see note there; see also note on 104:4).

103:22 all his works. See 65:13; 96:11–12 and notes.

Ps 104 A hymn to the Creator. Obviously influenced by Ge 1, the preexilic author has adapted that account to his different purpose and has subordinated its sequence somewhat to his own design (see next paragraph). Whereas Ge 1 recounts creation as God's first work at the beginning, the poet views the creation displayed before his eyes and sings the glory of its Maker and Sustainer. Surprisingly, he only hints at the angelic world (v. 4) and mentions man only in passing (vv. 14,23); his theme is the visible creation around him, which he views as the radiant and stately robe with which the invisible Creator has clothed himself to display his glory. (See introduction to Ps 101.)

Following his one-verse introduction, the poet designed the main body of his poem concentrically, with stanzas of three-five-nine-five-three verses. The first stanza speaks of the celestial realm (vv. 2–4) and the fifth of the nautical (vv. 24–26)—the two realms that bracket the "earth" of his experience. The second sings of the earth's solid foundations and secure boundaries (vv. 5–9) and the fourth of the orderly cycles of life on earth governed by sun and moon (vv. 19–23). At the center a nine-verse stanza (composed of three triplets) celebrates the luxuriation of life in the earth (vv. 10–18). To the poem's main body he added a four-verse stanza that recites how God maintains life on earth (vv. 27–30), a two-verse conclusion (vv. 31–32—which together with v. 1 frames the whole), and a three-verse epilogue (vv. 33–35). The outer frame ("Praise the LORD, O my soul") was probably added by the editors of the Psalter when they inserted the Book division after Ps 106—thus concluding Book IV with doxologies (see the liturgical frames added to Ps 105–106 and the similar conclusion to Book V: Ps 146–150).

104:1 Introduction: the theme of the hymn. clothed. See note on 102:26.

104:2–4 The celestial realm.

104:2 light. Cf. the first day of creation in Ge 1. heavens. Cf. the second day of creation in Ge 1. like a tent. Over the earth and the luminaries that give it light.

104:3 upper chambers. Vivid imagery for the heavenly abode of God (see v. 13). In the singular, the Hebrew for this phrase usually refers to the upper-level room of a house (as in 1Ki 17:19; 2Ki 1:2). their waters. The waters above the "tent" (v. 2; see Ge 1:7), from which, in the imagery of the OT, God gives the rain (see v. 13; see also 36:8 and note). clouds his chariot. See 18:7–15; 68:4; 77:16–19 and notes.

104:4 winds ... flames of fire. The winds and lightning bolts of the thunderstorm, here personified as the agents of God's purposes (see 148:8; cf. 103:21).

104:5–9 The earth realm made secure (vv. 5,9 frame the stanza, highlighting its two main themes).

104:5 earth. Land in distinction from sky and seas, not the earth as a planet (see Ge 1:10). foundations. See 24:2 and note. can never be moved. Firmly founded (see 93:1; 96:10), it will not give way (cf. v. 9).

104:7 rebuke. See note on 76:6. waters fled. Cf. the third day of creation in Ge 1.

104:9 set a boundary. So that the land ("earth") will never never again will they cover the earth.

10He makes springs[w] pour water into the ravines;
it flows between the mountains.
11They give water[x] to all the beasts of the field;
the wild donkeys[y] quench their thirst.
12The birds of the air[z] nest by the waters;
they sing among the branches.[a] 13He waters the mountains[b] from his upper chambers;[c]
the earth is satisfied by the fruit of his work.[d] 14He makes grass grow[e] for the cattle, and plants for man to cultivate—bringing forth food[f] from the
earth:
15wine[g] that gladdens the heart of
man,
oil[h] to make his face shine,
and bread that sustains[i] his heart.
16The trees of the LORD[j] are well watered,
the cedars of Lebanon[k] that he planted.
17There the birds[l] make their nests;
the stork has its home in the pine trees.
18The high mountains belong to the wild goats;[m]
the crags are a refuge for the coneys.[v n]

19The moon marks off the seasons,[o]
and the sun[p] knows when to go down.
20You bring darkness,[q] it becomes night,[r]
and all the beasts of the forest[s] prowl.
21The lions roar for their prey[t] and seek their food from God.[u] 22The sun rises, and they steal away;

104:10–18 The earth a flourishing garden of life—the center of the psalm and the focal point of the author's contemplation of the creation (the earth, bounded by sky, vv. 2–4, and sea, vv. 24–26). Cf. the third and sixth days of creation in Ge 1.

104:10–12 The gift of water from below—watering the ravines of the Negev.

104:13–15 The gift of water from above—watering the uplands of Israel with their cultivated fields.

104:13 upper chambers. See v. 3 and note.

104:15 heart . . . heart. See note on 4:7. oil. Olive oil. make his face shine. As food (see 1Ki 17:12), causing man's face to glow with health, and/or as cosmetic (see Est 2:12).

104:16–18 Well-watered Lebanon, with its great trees, its hordes of birds and its alpine animals, the very epitome of God's earthly parkland (see 72:16; 2Ki 14:9; 19:23; Isa 10:34; 35:2; 40:16; 60:13; Jer 22:6; Hos 14:7).

104:19–23 The orderly cycles of life on earth, governed by the moon and sun. Cf. the fourth day of creation in Ge 1.

104:21,23 lions . . . man. The one (representing the animal world), lord of the night; the other, lord of the day.

104:24–26 The nautical realm. Cf. the fifth day of creation in Ge 1. The realm of the sea is structurally balanced with the celestial realm (vv. 2–4) as the other boundary to the realm of earth.

104:24 A pause to recapitulate before treating the sea.

104:25 teeming. See Ge 1:20–21.

104:26 leviathan. That fearsome mythological monster of the deep (see Job 3:8 and note) is merely God's harmless pet playing in the ocean.

104:27–30 By God's benevolent care this zoological garden flourishes. Cf. the sixth day of creation in Ge 1.

104:29 hide your face. See note on 13:1.

104:30 created. See note on 102:18.

104:31 glory of the LORD. Such as is displayed in his creation.

104:32 He is so much greater than his creation that with a look or a touch he could undo it.

33 I will sing[r] to the LORD all my life;
I will sing praise to my God as long as I live.
34 May my meditation be pleasing to him,
as I rejoice[s] in the LORD.
35 But may sinners vanish[t] from the earth and the wicked be no more.[u]

Praise the LORD, O my soul.

Praise the LORD.[w][v]

Psalm 105

105:1-15pp — 1Ch 16:8-22

1 Give thanks to the LORD,[w] call on his name;[x] make known among the nations what he has done.
2 Sing to him,[y] sing praise[z] to him;
tell of all his wonderful acts.[a] 3 Glory in his holy name;[b]
let the hearts of those who seek the LORD rejoice.
4 Look to the LORD and his strength;
seek his face[c] always.
5 Remember the wonders[d] he has done,
his miracles, and the judgments he pronounced,[e]
6 O descendants of Abraham his servant,[f]
O sons of Jacob, his chosen[g] ones.
7 He is the LORD our God;
his judgments are in all the earth.
8 He remembers his covenant[h] forever,
the word he commanded, for a thousand generations, 9 the covenant he made with Abraham,[i]
the oath he swore to Isaac.
10 He confirmed it[j] to Jacob as a decree, to Israel as an everlasting covenant:[k] 11 "To you I will give the land of Canaan[l] as the portion you will inherit."[m] 12 When they were but few in number,[n] few indeed, and strangers in it,[o] 13 they wandered from nation to nation,[p] from one kingdom to another.
14 He allowed no one to oppress[q] them;
for their sake he rebuked kings:[r] 15 "Do not touch[s] my anointed ones;
do my prophets[t] no harm."
16 He called down famine[u] on the land and destroyed all their supplies of food; 17 and he sent a man before them—
Joseph, sold as a slave.[v]
18 They bruised his feet with shackles,[w]

[w] 35 Hebrew Hallelu Yah; in the Septuagint this line stands at the beginning of Psalm 105.

104:33-35 Pious epilogue.
104:33 A vow to praise—here attached to a hymn of praise (see note on 7:17).
104:34 my meditation. The preceding hymn (see 19:14 and note).
104:35 May the earth be purged of that which alone mars it (cf. Rev 21:27). Praise the LORD (last occurrence). Probably belongs to Ps 105 (see NIV text note and 105:45; 106:1,48).

Ps 105 An exhortation to Israel to worship and trust in the Lord because of all his saving acts in fulfillment of his covenant with Abraham to give his descendants the land of Canaan. It was composed to be addressed to Israel by a Levite (see 1Ch 16:7 and compare vv. 1–15 with 1Ch 16:8–22) on one of her annual religious festivals (see chart on "OT Feasts and Other Sacred Days," p. 174), possibly the Feast of Tabernacles (see Lev 23:34) but more likely the Feast of Weeks (see Ex 23:16; Lev 23:15–21; Nu 28:26; Dt 16:9–12; see also Dt 26:1–11). For other recitals of the same history (but for different purposes) see Ps 78; 106; Jos 24:2–13; Ne 9:7–25.

The introduction is composed of seven verses in two parts: (1) an exhortation (with ten imperatives) to worship the Lord (vv. 1–4); (2) a call to remember what the Lord has done (vv. 5–7). The main body that follows is framed by two four-verse stanzas (vv. 8–11, 42–45) that summarize—as introduction and conclusion—its main theme: The Lord has remembered his covenant with Abraham. The editors of the Psalter have added an outer frame of "Hallelujahs" (see introduction to Ps 104; see also note on 104:35).

105:1–4 The exhortation to worship and trust.

105:1 Give thanks. Through praise (see note on Ps 100 title). call on. In prayer (see v. 4). The first two imperatives highlight the two themes of the ten imperatives of the exhortation: praise and prayer as expressions of devotion to the Lord (celebration of his past saving acts; trust in him for future deliverance and blessing). his name. See v. 3; see also note on 5:11. make known among the nations. As an integral part of praise (see note on 9:1).
105:2 wonderful acts. See v. 5 ("wonders"); see also note on 9:1.
105:3,25 hearts. See note on 4:7.
105:5–7 Exhortation to remember God's saving acts.
105:5 Remember. As a motivation for and focus of worship and the basis for trust—remember how the Lord has remembered (see vv. 8–11). judgments. See v. 7; see also notes on 48:11; 97:8. pronounced. As Lord, he commands and it is done.
105:8–11 The Lord remembers his covenant with Abraham (see vv. 42–45).
105:8 covenant. The promissory covenant of Ge 15:9–21. This verse and v. 9 may be echoed in Lk 1:72–73. thousand generations. See Ex 20:6; Dt 7:9; 1Ch 16:15.
105:10 as a decree. As a fixed policy governing his future actions (see note on v. 45).
105:12–41 A recital of God's saving acts in Israel's behalf from the granting of the covenant (see v. 11; Ge 15:9–20) to its fulfillment (see v. 44; Jos 21:43). Cf. the recital prescribed by Moses in conjunction with the offering of first-fruits (Dt 26:1–11).
105:14–15 See Ge 20:2–7; see also note on Ge 20:7.
105:18 shackles ... irons. That is, shackles of iron (see his neck was put in irons, 19till what he foretold[x] came to pass,

till the word[y] of the LORD proved him true.
20The king sent and released him,
the ruler of peoples set him free.[z] 21He made him master of his household, ruler over all he possessed, 22to instruct his princes[a] as he pleased and teach his elders wisdom.[b]

23Then Israel entered Egypt;[c]
Jacob lived[d] as an alien in the land of Ham.[e] 24The LORD made his people very fruitful;
he made them too numerous[f] for their foes, 25whose hearts he turned[g] to hate his people,
to conspire[h] against his servants.
26He sent Moses[i] his servant, and Aaron,[j] whom he had chosen.[k] 27They performed[l] his miraculous signs[m] among them, his wonders[n] in the land of Ham.
28He sent darkness[o] and made the land dark—for had they not rebelled against[p] his words?
29He turned their waters into blood,[q] causing their fish to die.[r] 30Their land teemed with frogs,[s] which went up into the bedrooms of their rulers.
31He spoke,[t] and there came swarms of flies,[u]
and gnats[v] throughout their country.
32He turned their rain into hail,[w]
with lightning throughout their land; 33he struck down their vines[x] and fig trees[y]
and shattered the trees of their country.
34He spoke,[z] and the locusts came,[a] grasshoppers[b] without number;[c] 35they ate up every green thing in their land, ate up the produce of their soil.
36Then he struck down all the firstborn[d] in their land, the firstfruits of all their manhood.

37He brought out Israel, laden with silver and gold,[e] and from among their tribes no one faltered.
38Egypt was glad when they left,
because dread of Israel[f] had fallen on them.
39He spread out a cloud[g] as a covering,
and a fire to give light at night.[h] 40They asked,[i] and he brought them quail[j] and satisfied them with the bread of heaven.[k] 41He opened the rock,[l] and water gushed out;
like a river it flowed in the desert.

42For he remembered his holy promise[m] given to his servant Abraham.
43He brought out his people with rejoicing,[n]

149:8; see also note on 3:7). The poet takes the freedom to use a later conventional description of prisoners (see Job 13:27; 33:11). (Shackles are not spoken of in Ge 39:20–23, and iron came into common use for them at a later time—earlier shackles were made of bronze; see Jdg 16:21.)

105:22 instruct. Lit. "bind," i.e., govern or control. He whose "neck" (v. 18; Hebrew nephesh) had been shackled was given authority to "bind" Pharaoh's princes "as he pleased" (Hebrew "with his nephesh"—here meaning his will). elders. Pharaoh's counselors, conventionally older men of wide experience and learning (see note on Ex 3:16).

105:23,27 land of Ham. See 78:51 and note.

105:25 turned. In OT perspective God's sovereign control over Israel's destiny is so complete that it governs—mysteriously—even the evil that men commit against her; hence the bold language used here (see Ex 4:21; 7:3; Jos 11:20; 2Sa 24:1; Isa 10:5–7; 37:26–27; Jer 34:22).

105:26,42 servant. See 78:70 and note.

105:28–36 Recital of the plagues against Egypt. In this poetic recollection seven plagues (symbolizing completeness) represent the ten plagues of Ex 7–11. Apart from omissions (the plagues of livestock disease and boils) the poet follows the order of Exodus except that he combines the third and fourth plagues (gnats and flies)—in reverse order—to stay within the number seven. He also places the ninth plague (darkness) first in order to frame his recital with mention of the two plagues that climaxed the series.

105:39 as a covering. Elsewhere it is said that the cloud (symbolic of God's presence) served (1) as a guide for Israel in her desert journeys (see 78:14; Ex 13:21; Nu 9:17; Ne 9:12,19), (2) as a shield of darkness to protect Israel from the pursuing Egyptians (see Ex 14:19–20) and (3) as a covering for the fiery manifestations of God's glorious presence (see Ex 16:10; 24:16; 34:5; 40:34–35,38; Nu 11:25; 12:5; 16:42; Dt 31:15; 1Ki 8:11). The psalmist appears to highlight yet another function: God's protective cover over his people in the desert, perhaps as his shading "wings" (17:8; see note there), so that the sun would not harm them by day (see 121:5–6).

105:40 bread of heaven. See 78:24–25 and notes.

105:41 like a river. Poetically heightened imagery to evoke due wonder for the event. This miracle of the desert wanderings concludes the recital and has been placed in climactic position as one of the most striking manifestations of God's redeeming power and benevolence (see 114:8; Isa 43:19–20; cf. Isa 50:2).

105:42–45 Concluding summary (balancing the introduction to the recital: vv. 8–11).

Psalm 106

106:1,47–48pp — 1Ch 16:34–36

1 Praise the LORD.[y s]

Give thanks to the LORD, for he is good;[t] his love endures forever.[u] 2 Who can proclaim the mighty acts[v] of the LORD or fully declare his praise?
3 Blessed are they who maintain justice,[w] who constantly do what is right.[x] 4 Remember me,[y] O LORD, when you show favor[z] to your people, come to my aid[a] when you save them,
5 that I may enjoy the prosperity[b] of your chosen ones,[c] that I may share in the joy[d] of your nation and join your inheritance[e] in giving praise.

6 We have sinned,[f] even as our fathers[g] did;
we have done wrong and acted wickedly.[h]
7 When our fathers were in Egypt, they gave no thought[i] to your miracles;
they did not remember[j] your many kindnesses, and they rebelled by the sea,[k] the Red Sea.[z] 8 Yet he saved them[l] for his name's sake,[m]
to make his mighty power[n] known.
9 He rebuked[o] the Red Sea, and it dried up;[p]
he led them through[q] the depths as through a desert.
10 He saved them[r] from the hand of the foe;[s] from the hand of the enemy he redeemed them.[t] 11 The waters covered[u] their adversaries;
not one of them survived.
12 Then they believed his promises and sang his praise.[v]

13 But they soon forgot[w] what he had done

105:44 gave them the lands. See v. 11.

105:45 precepts. God has kept his "decree" (v. 10) so that Israel might keep his "precepts"—the Hebrew word is the same (see note on v. 5: "remember"). God's redemptive working in fulfillment of his covenant promise has as its goal the creating of a people in the earth who conform their lives to his holy will. Thus the list of appropriate responses begun in v. 1—praise and prayer (trust)—is completed by the third: obedience (see Ge 18:19).

Ps 106 A confession of Israel's long history of rebellion and a prayer for God to once again save his people. In length, poetic style and shared themes it has much affinity with Ps 105 even while it contrasts with it by reciting the past as a history of rebellion (see Ps 78; Ne 9:5–37). It was most likely authored by a Levite in Jerusalem sometime after the return of some of the exiles. The first verse and the last two verses seem to have been taken over from an earlier composition (see 1Ch 16:34–36). These may have been added (along with the "Hallelujah"; see NIV text note) by the editors of the Psalter (borrowing from an earlier Davidic psalter) when they set the Book divisions between Ps 106 and 107. (See introduction to Ps 101.)

Apart from the fact that the psalm has an introduction (vv. 1–5) and a (composite) conclusion (vv. 44–48), the recital character of its main theme (as in Ps 105) controls its basic outline. Beginning with the events at the Red Sea (vv. 6–12), the psalm next narrates at length Israel's many rebellions during the desert wanderings (vv. 13–33), follows with a summary description of Israel's apostasy in the promised land (vv. 34–39) and completes its recital with a general statement of God's stern measures in the promised land (vv. 40–43).

106:1–5 Introduction.

106:1 Give thanks. With praise (see note on Ps 100 title); a conventional liturgical call to praise (see 107:1; 118:1,29; 136:1–3). love. See note on 6:4.

106:2 Who can . . . ? With integrity. his praise. Praise for his mighty acts (see v. 47; see also note on 9:1).

106:3 Blessed. See note on 1:1. justice . . . what is right. That is, justice-and-righteousness (see 36:6 and note; see also note on 3:7). This verse answers the question posed in v. 2.

106:4 Remember me. As one committed to the way of life described in v. 3. when you show favor. Or "with the favor you show" (see vv. 44–46). when you save them. Or "with your salvation." The psalmist prays that God will include him in all the mercies of his "great love" (v. 45), which he shows to his people. Thus the inner logic of the prayer seems to be completed at v. 46. The editors of the Psalter appear to have converted an individual prayer into a communal one by their additions (see introduction).

106:5 prosperity . . . joy . . . praise. A progressive sequence of cause and effect. your inheritance. See v. 40.

106:6–43 Israel's history of rebellion.

106:6 A general confession of sin introducing the recital. We. The author identifies himself with Israel in her rebellion even as he prays for inclusion in God's mercies toward his people (see Ezr 9:6–7).

106:7,22 miracles. For example, the plagues against Egypt (see note on 9:1, "wonders").

106:10 redeemed. Here, as often, a synonym for "delivered."

106:13 his counsel. The working out of his plan.

and did not wait for his counsel.[x] 14In the desert[y] they gave in to their craving;
in the wasteland[z] they put God to the test.[a] 15So he gave them[b] what they asked for,
but sent a wasting disease[c] upon them.

16In the camp they grew envious[d] of Moses and of Aaron, who was consecrated to the LORD.
17The earth opened[e] up and swallowed Dathan;[f] it buried the company of Abiram.[g] 18Fire blazed[h] among their followers;
a flame consumed the wicked.

19At Horeb they made a calf[i] and worshiped an idol cast from metal.
20They exchanged their Glory[j]
for an image of a bull, which eats grass.
21They forgot the God[k] who saved them,
who had done great things[l] in Egypt, 22miracles in the land of Ham[m] and awesome deeds[n] by the Red Sea.
23So he said he would destroy[o] them—had not Moses, his chosen one, stood in the breach[p] before him
to keep his wrath from destroying them.

24Then they despised[q] the pleasant land;[r]
they did not believe[s] his promise.
25They grumbled[t] in their tents and did not obey the LORD.
26So he swore[u] to them with uplifted hand that he would make them fall in the desert,[v] 27make their descendants fall among the nations and scatter[w] them throughout the lands.

28They yoked themselves to the Baal of Peor[x]
and ate sacrifices offered to lifeless gods; 29they provoked the LORD to anger[y] by their wicked deeds,[z] and a plague[a] broke out among them.
30But Phinehas[b] stood up and intervened, and the plague was checked.[c] 31This was credited to him[d] as righteousness for endless generations[e] to come.

32By the waters of Meribah[f] they angered the LORD, and trouble came to Moses because of them;
33for they rebelled[g] against the Spirit[h] of God, and rash words came from Moses' lips.[ai]

34They did not destroy[j] the peoples as the LORD had commanded[k] them, 35but they mingled[l] with the nations and adopted their customs.
36They worshiped their idols,[m]
which became a snare[n] to them.
37They sacrificed their sons[o]
and their daughters to demons.[p] 38They shed innocent blood,

106:16–18 See Nu 16:1–35.
106:19 Horeb. See note on Ex 3:1.
106:20 Glory. Glorious One (see 1Sa 15:29; Jer 2:11).

106:23 stood in the breach. See Ex 32:11–14,31–32. wrath. See note on 2:5.
106:24 pleasant land. So described in Jer 3:19; 12:10; Zec 7:14; see also Dt 8:7–9; Eze 20:6.
106:26–27 fall. See note on 13:4.
106:28–31 See Nu 25.
106:31 credited to him as righteousness. As Abram's faith was "credited to him as righteousness" (Ge 15:6), so, says the psalmist, was Phinehas's priestly zeal for the Lord (see Nu 25:7–8). for endless generations. The psalmist refers to the "covenant of a lasting priesthood" (Nu 25:13) that the Lord granted Phinehas as a gracious reward for his zealous act. It was the granting of this promissory covenant that warranted the statement about crediting righteousness, for God's granting of a promissory covenant to Abram had followed upon his crediting Abram's faith to him as righteousness (see Ge 15:9–21). Similarly, God's promissory covenants with Noah (see Ge 9:9–17) and with David (see 2Sa 7:5–16) followed upon God's testimony to their righteousness (see Ge 7:1; 1Sa 13:14). See chart on "Major Covenants in the OT," p. 19.
106:32 Meribah. See note on Ex 17:7.
106:33 against the Spirit of God. For a literal rendering of the Hebrew see NIV text note. The interpretation embodied in the NIV text appears warranted by Isa 63:10 (see also Ps 78:40). For the Spirit of God present and at work in the desert wanderings see Ex 31:3; Nu 11:17; 24:2; Ne 9:20; Isa 63:10–14.
106:34–39 A general description of the worst of rebellious Israel's sins, applicable from the time of the judges to the Babylonian exile.
106:37 demons. The Hebrew for this word occurs elsewhere in the OT only in Dt 32:17, where it refers to false gods. It is related to a Babylonian word referring to (pagan) protective spirits.
106:38 Cf. Jer 19:4–5. innocent blood. The blood of any-the blood of their sons[q] and daughters,

whom they sacrificed to the idols of Canaan,
and the land was desecrated by their blood.
39They defiled themselves[r] by what they did;
by their deeds they prostituted[s] themselves.

40Therefore the LORD was angry[t] with his people and abhorred his inheritance.[u] 41He handed them over[v] to the nations,
and their foes ruled over them.
42Their enemies oppressed[w] them and subjected them to their power.
43Many times he delivered them,[x]
but they were bent on rebellion[y] and they wasted away in their sin.

44But he took note of their distress
when he heard their cry;[z] 45for their sake he remembered his covenant[a]
and out of his great love[b] he relented.[c]

46He caused them to be pitied[d]
by all who held them captive.

47Save us,[e] O LORD our God, and gather us[f] from the nations, that we may give thanks[g] to your holy name[h] and glory in your praise.

48Praise be to the LORD, the God of Israel,
from everlasting to everlasting.
Let all the people say, "Amen!"[i]

Praise the LORD.

one not guilty of a capital crime. desecrated. The very land itself is defiled by the slaughter of innocents (see Nu 35:33; Jer 3:2,9).

106:39 defiled. See Lev 18:24; Jer 2:23; Eze 20:30–31; 22:3–4. prostituted themselves. Committed prostitution by joining themselves with false gods (see Eze 23:3,5–8; Hos 5:3; 6:10; see also note on Jdg 2:17).

106:40–43 God's stern measures against his rebellious people—a general description applicable from the days of the judges to the Babylonian exile and focusing particularly on God's most severe form of covenant sanctions (see Lev 26:25–26,33,38–39; Dt 28:25,36–37,48–57,64–68).

106:40 angry. See note on 2:5. abhorred. See 5:6.

106:44–46 God's gracious remembering of his covenant—a general description applicable from the days of the judges to the Babylonian exile.

106:44 heard their cry. See Ex 2:23; 3:7–9; Nu 20:16; Jdg 3:9,15; 4:3; 6:6–7; 10:10; 1Sa 9:16; 2Ch 20:6–12; Ne 9:27–28.

106:45 remembered his covenant. See 105:8,42; Ex 2:24; Lev 26:42,45. love. See note on 6:4.

106:46 pitied by all who held them captive. Makes clear that the author's recital includes the Babylonian captivity (see 1Ki 8:50; 2Ch 30:9; Ezr 9:9; Jer 42:12). Although there were earlier captivities of Israelite communities, no other captive group was said to have been shown pity.

106:47 A communal prayer for deliverance and restoration from dispersion (see introduction and note on v. 4). name. See note on 5:11. glory in. Triumphantly celebrate. The Hebrew for this phrase is found elsewhere only in the parallel in 1Ch 16:35. praise. See note on 9:1.

106:48 The doxology for Book IV (see 41:13 and note). Amen! See note on Dt 27:15.

Ps 107 An exhortation to praise the Lord for his unfailing love in that he hears the prayers of those in need and saves them (see next paragraph—on structure). It was composed for liturgical use at one of Israel's annual religious festivals. Interpretations vary widely, but the following is most likely: Having experienced anew God's mercies in her return from Babylonian exile (v. 3; see Jer 33:11), Israel is led by a Levite in celebrating God's unfailing benevolence toward those who have cried to him in the crises of their lives. In its recitational style the psalm is closely related to Ps 104–106, and in its language to Ps 105–106. For that reason it has been seriously proposed that with these last two psalms it forms a trilogy from the same author. Whether or not this is so, its affinity with the preceding psalms strongly suggests that it was associated with them before the insertion of a Book division between Ps 106 and 107 and that it was intended to conclude the little series, Ps 104–107. Its recital of God's "wonderful deeds for men" (v. 8)—which climaxes Ps 105–106—balances the recital of his many wise works in creation (see 104:2–26) and his benevolent care over the animal world (see 104:27–30). The editors may have inserted a Book division between Ps 106 and 107 with a view to a fivefold division of the Psalter (see Introduction: Collection, Arrangement and Date). (See introduction to Ps 101.)

The introduction (vv. 1–3) and conclusion (v. 43) enclose six stanzas, of which the last two (vv. 33–38, 39–42) stand apart as an instructive supplement focusing in a more general way on reversals in fortunes—which, however, end up with God restoring the "hungry" (v. 36) and the "needy" (v. 41). Of the four remaining stanzas (marked by recurring refrains: vv. 6,13,19,28; vv. 8,15,21,31), the first and last refer to God's deliverance of those lost in the trackless desert (vv. 4–9) and those imperiled on the boisterous sea (vv. 23–32). The two central stanzas celebrate deliverance from the punishment of foreign bondage (vv. 10–16) and from the punishment of disease (vv. 17–22). Of the concluding lines to these four stanzas, the first two (vv. 9,16) and the last two (vv. 22,32) are similar. The verse pattern of these four stanzas (six-seven-six-ten) makes deliberate use of the significant numbers seven and ten.

107:1–3 Introductory call to praise.

107:1 A conventional liturgical call to praise (see 106:1; 118:1,29; 136:1; Jer 33:11). Give thanks. See vv. 8,15,21,31; see also note on Ps 100 title. love. See vv. 8,15,21,31,43; see also note on 6:4.

107:2 redeemed. Here, as often, a synonym for "delivered."

those he redeemed from the hand of the foe, 3 those he gathered[m] from the lands,
from east and west, from north and south.[b]

4 Some wandered in desert[n] wastelands, finding no way to a city[o] where they could settle.
5 They were hungry[p] and thirsty,[q]
and their lives ebbed away.
6 Then they cried out[r] to the LORD in their trouble, and he delivered them from their distress.
7 He led them by a straight way[s]
to a city[t] where they could settle.
8 Let them give thanks[u] to the LORD for his unfailing love[v] and his wonderful deeds[w] for men, 9 for he satisfies[x] the thirsty and fills the hungry with good things.[y]

10 Some sat in darkness[z] and the deepest gloom, prisoners suffering[a] in iron chains,[b] 11 for they had rebelled[c] against the words of God and despised[d] the counsel[e] of the Most High.
12 So he subjected them to bitter labor;
they stumbled, and there was no one to help.[f] 13 Then they cried to the LORD in their trouble, and he saved them[g] from their distress.
14 He brought them out of darkness[h] and the deepest gloom[i]
and broke away their chains.[j] 15 Let them give thanks[k] to the LORD for his unfailing love[l] and his wonderful deeds[m] for men, 16 for he breaks down gates of bronze and cuts through bars of iron.

17 Some became fools[n] through their rebellious ways[o]
and suffered affliction[p] because of their iniquities.
18 They loathed all food[q]
and drew near the gates of death.[r] 19 Then they cried[s] to the LORD in their trouble,

[b] 3 Hebrew north and the sea

107:3 from the lands. From the dispersion resulting from the Assyrian (see 2Ki 17:6) and Babylonian captivities (see 2Ki 24:14,16; 25:11,26; Jer 52:28–30; see also Ne 1:8; Est 8:5,9,13; Isa 11:12; 43:5–6; Eze 11:17; 20:34). south. Lit. "(the) sea" (see NIV text note), i.e., the west, as in Isa 49:12. But perhaps the final letter of the Hebrew word has been lost, which if supplied yields "south."

107:4–9 Deliverance for those lost in the trackless desert. No reference is made to rebellion (as in the third and fourth stanzas), but since Israel had journeyed through the desert on her way to Canaan she had firsthand experience of the terrors of the desert. She was, moreover, bounded on the east by the great Arabian Desert (as on the west by the Mediterranean Sea; see vv. 23–32), across which her merchant caravans traveled.

107:4,7,36 city where they could settle. Lit. "city of habitation," i.e., where people live and where a steady supply of food and water makes human life secure.

107:6 they cried out. The author uses the same Hebrew verb in v. 28, thus linking the fifth stanza with the second. In vv. 13,19 he uses a different (but similar-sounding) Hebrew verb, linking the third and fourth stanzas. Just as Israel's history was a history of divine deliverance (see Ps 105) and a history of rebellion (see Ps 106), so also it was a history of crying out to the Lord in distress (see references in note on 106:44).

107:7 straight way. Direct route, clear of dangerous and difficult obstacles.

107:8 For other refrains see introduction to Ps 42–43. wonderful deeds. See vv. 15,21,24,31; see also note on 9:1 ("wonders").

107:9 satisfies the thirsty . . . fills the hungry. See v. 5; see also 105:40–41.

107:10–16 Deliverance from the punishment of foreign bondage. God even delivers those who cry to him when their distress is a result of his discipline for their sins (see vv. 17–20,33–41).

107:10 sat in darkness . . . deepest gloom. Vivid imagery for distress (see 18:28; Isa 5:30; 8:22; 59:9; see also note on 44:19). prisoners. While reference is no doubt to foreign bondage, the imagery of being bound was also used by OT poets to refer to other forms of distress (see Job 36:8; Isa 28:22; La 3:7); so the reference may be deliberately ambiguous.

107:11 God . . . Most High. That is, God Most High (see Ge 14:19 and note; see also note on 3:7). counsel. God's wise directives embodied in his words.

107:12 subjected them to bitter labor. Lit. "brought down their heart with labor," i.e., a labor so burdensome it broke their spirit. stumbled. Their strength failed (see 31:10; 109:24; Ne 4:10; Isa 40:30; Zec 12:8).

107:13 cried to. See note on v. 6.

107:16 Either this verse is quoted from Isa 45:2, or both verses quote an established saying. gates of bronze. City gates—normally of wood; here proverbially of bronze, the strongest gates then imaginable (see Jer 1:18). bars of iron. Bars that secured city gates (see Dt 3:5; Jer 51:30), usually made of wood (see Na 3:13) but sometimes of bronze (see 1Ki 4:13). "Can a man break iron . . . or bronze?" was a proverb of the time (see Jer 15:12).

107:17–22 Deliverance from the punishment of wasting disease (see note on vv. 10–16).

107:17 fools. See Jer 4:22; see also NIV text note on 14:1. "Fools despise wisdom and discipline" (Pr 1:7; see v. 43). affliction because of their iniquities. See Lev 26:16,25; Dt 28:20–22,35,58–61.

107:18 gates of death. The realm of the dead was sometimes depicted as a netherworld city with a series of concentric walls and gates (seven, each inside the other, according to ancient Near Eastern mythology) to keep those descending there from returning to the land of the living (see 9:13 and note on Job 38:17; see also Mt 16:18).

107:19 cried to. See note on v. 6. saved. See v. 13 (anoth-and he saved them[t] from their distress.

20He sent forth his word[u] and healed them;[v]
he rescued[w] them from the grave.[x]
21Let them give thanks[y] to the LORD for his unfailing love[z]

22Let them sacrifice thank offerings[b] and tell of his works[c] with songs of joy.[d]

23Others went out on the sea[e] in ships;[f]
they were merchants on the mighty waters.
24They saw the works of the LORD,[g] his wonderful deeds in the deep.
25For he spoke[h] and stirred up a tempest[i] that lifted high the waves.[j] 26They mounted up to the heavens and went down to the depths;
in their peril[k] their courage melted[l] away.
27They reeled[m] and staggered like drunken men;
they were at their wits' end.
28Then they cried[n] out to the LORD in their trouble, and he brought them out of their distress.[o] 29He stilled the storm[p] to a whisper;

30They were glad when it grew calm,
and he guided them[s] to their desired haven.
31Let them give thanks[t] to the LORD for his unfailing love[u] and his wonderful deeds[v] for men.

32Let them exalt[w] him in the assembly[x] of the people and praise him in the council of the elders.

33He turned rivers into a desert,[y] flowing springs[z] into thirsty ground, 34and fruitful land into a salt waste,[a] because of the wickedness of those who lived there.
35He turned the desert into pools of water[b] and the parched ground into flowing springs;[c] 36there he brought the hungry to live, and they founded a city where they could settle.
37They sowed fields and planted vineyards[d] that yielded a fruitful harvest; 38he blessed them, and their numbers greatly increased,[e]
and he did not let their herds diminish.[f]

39Then their numbers decreased,[g] and they were humbled[h] by oppression, calamity and sorrow; 40he who pours contempt on nobles[i] made them wander in a trackless waste.[j] 41But he lifted the needy[k] out of their affliction and increased their families like flocks.[l] 42The upright see and rejoice,[m] but all the wicked shut their mouths.[n] er link between the second and third stanzas); cf. vv. 6,28.

107:20 his word. His command, here personified as the agent of his purpose (see 147:15,18; see also note on 23:6).

107:22 thank offerings. See Lev 7:12–15; 22:29–30. tell of his works. See note on 7:17. In their concluding lines, stanzas four and five are linked, as are stanzas two and three. songs of joy. See, e.g., Ps 116.

107:23–32 Deliverance from the perils of the sea (see note on vv. 4–9). Israel's merchants also braved the sea in pursuit of trade (see Ge 49:13; Jdg 5:17; 1Ki 9:26–28; 10:22).

107:23 mighty waters. See 29:3.

107:24 wonderful deeds in the deep. Since the peoples of the eastern Mediterranean coastlands associated the "mighty waters" (v. 23) of the sea with the primeval chaotic waters (see note on 32:6), the Lord's total control of them was always for Israel a cause of wonder and of a sense of security. Therefore the terrifying storms that sometimes swept the Mediterranean (see Jnh 1; Ac 27) are here included among his wonderful deeds.

107:30 haven. Perhaps trading center.

107:32 See v. 22. elders. See note on Ex 3:16.

107:33–42 A twofold instructive supplement recalling how the Lord sometimes disciplined his people by turning the fruitful land (v. 34) into a virtual desert (see 1Ki 17:1–7; 2Ki 8:1) but then restored the land again (see Ru 1:6; 1Ki 18:44–45), so that the hungry (v. 36) could live there and prosper in the midst of plenty. But then he sent powerful armies against them (such as the Assyrians, 2Ki 17:3–6, and the Babylonians, 2Ki 24:20b–25:26) that devastated the land once more and deported its people; yet afterward he restored the needy (v. 41). But the poet generalizes upon these experiences in the manner of the wisdom teachers.

107:33–35 The imagery is similar to that found in Isa 35:6–7; 41:18; 42:15; 43:19–20; 50:2 and may indicate that the author has been influenced by Isaiah.

107:40 Perhaps quoted from Job 12:21,24. In their prosperity the people, led by their nobles, grow proud and turn their backs on the God who has blessed them (see Dt 31:20; 32:15), so he returns them to the desert (see Dt 32:10; Hos 2:3,14).

107:41 needy. Those in need of help (see v. 39; see also 9:18 and note).

107:42 Conclusion to the instruction (vv. 33–41); perhaps an echo of Job 5:16. upright ... wicked. A frequent contrast in OT wisdom literature (see Pr 2:21–22; 11:6–7; 12:6; 14:11; 15:8; 21:18,29; 29:27—but the Hebrew for "wicked" here is shared more often with Job).

43 Whoever is wise,[o] let him heed these things and consider the great love[p] of the LORD.

Psalm 108

108:1–5pp — Ps 57:7–11
108:6–13pp — Ps 60:5–12

A song. A psalm of David.

1 My heart is steadfast,[q] O God;
I will sing[r] and make music with all my soul.
2 Awake, harp and lyre![s]
I will awaken the dawn.
3 I will praise you, O LORD, among the nations;
I will sing of you among the peoples.
4 For great is your love,[t] higher than the heavens;
your faithfulness[u] reaches to the skies.[v] 5 Be exalted, O God, above the heavens,[w] and let your glory be over all the earth.[x]

6 Save us and help us with your right hand,[y] that those you love may be delivered.
7 God has spoken[z] from his sanctuary:[a]
"In triumph I will parcel out Shechem[b] and measure off the Valley of Succoth.[c] 8 Gilead is mine, Manasseh is mine;
Ephraim is my helmet,
Judah[d] my scepter.
9 Moab[e] is my washbasin,
upon Edom[f] I toss my sandal;
over Philistia[g] I shout in triumph."
10 Who will bring me to the fortified city?
Who will lead me to Edom?
11 Is it not you, O God, you who have rejected us and no longer go out with our armies?[h] 12 Give us aid against the enemy,
for the help of man is worthless.[i] 13 With God we will gain the victory,
and he will trample down[j] our enemies.

Psalm 109

For the director of music. Of David.
A psalm.

1 O God, whom I praise,[k]
do not remain silent,[l] 2 for wicked and deceitful men[m] have opened their mouths against me;
they have spoken against me with lying tongues.[n]
3 With words of hatred[o] they surround me;
they attack me without cause.[p] 4 In return for my friendship they accuse me, but I am a man of prayer.[q] 5 They repay me evil for good,[r] and hatred for my friendship.

107:43 Conclusion to the psalm. Whoever is wise. See Dt 32:29; Hos 14:9. these things. The instruction in vv. 33–42. consider the great love of the LORD. The theme of vv. 4–32.

Ps 108 Praise of God's love, and prayer for his help against the enemies—a combination (with very slight modifications) of 57:7–11 and 60:5–12. For a similar composition of a new psalm by combination of portions from several psalms see 1Ch 16:8–36. The celebration of the greatness of God's love (v. 4) links this psalm thematically with Ps 103 (see 103:11). See introduction to Ps 101.

108 title song. See note on Ps 30 title. of David. Both sources (Ps 57; 60) were credited to him.

108:1–5 Praise of God's love, possibly intended to function here as an expression of trust in God (the God of vv. 7–9,11), to whom appeal is to be made (vv. 6,12); see 109:1 and note. For this stanza see notes on 57:7–11.

108:1 soul. Lit. "glory" (see note on 7:5).

108:6–13 Prayer for God's help against enemies (see notes on 60:5–12).

Ps 109 A prayer for God to judge a case of false accusation. The author speaks of his enemies in the singular in vv. 6–19 but in the plural elsewhere. Some therefore suppose that vv. 6–19 contain the enemies' curses pronounced against the author (see NIV text note on v. 6). But it is more likely that either (1) the author shifts here to a collective mode of speaking, or (2) the enemies are united under a leader whose personal animosity toward the psalmist has fired the antagonism of others and so is singled out for special attention. Traditional attempts to isolate a distinct class of psalms called "imprecatory" (and then identify Ps 109 as the climax of the series) are mistaken (see note on vv. 6–15). This prayer has much affinity with Ps 35. See introduction to Ps 101.

Two (Hebrew) four-line stanzas of petition frame the whole (vv. 1–5, 26–29), followed by a two-line conclusion (vv. 30–31). The remaining 20 lines fall into two main divisions of ten lines each (vv. 6–15, 16–25). Of these, the second is thematically divided into two parts of five lines each, the first of which (vv. 16–20) catalogues what "he" has done while the second (vv. 21–25) describes how "I" am suffering.

109 title See note on Ps 4 title.

109:1–5 Appeal to God to deliver him from false accusers.

109:1 whom I praise. The one he publicly praises as his trustworthy deliverer and defender (see 22:3 and note; see also 35:18; 74:21; 76:10; 79:13; 102:18). silent. (Judicially) inactive (see 28:1; 35:22; 50:3,21; 83:1).

109:2–5 The particulars of his case, which he presents before the heavenly bar of justice (see 35:11–16).

109:2 opened their mouths against me. See note on 5:9.

109:4 but I am a man of prayer. In contrast to the enemy (see vv. 16–18). The intent may be: But I have prayed for them (as in 35:13–14).

6 Appoint[c] an evil man[d] to oppose him;
let an accuser[e,s] stand at his right hand.
7 When he is tried, let him be found guilty,[t]
and may his prayers condemn[u] him.
8 May his days be few;[v]
may another take his place[w] of leadership.
9 May his children be fatherless

10 May his children be wandering beggars;[y] may they be driven[f] from their ruined homes.
11 May a creditor[z] seize all he has;
may strangers plunder[a] the fruits of his labor.[b] 12 May no one extend kindness to him or take pity[c] on his fatherless children.
13 May his descendants be cut off,[d] their names blotted out[e] from the next generation.
14 May the iniquity of his fathers[f] be remembered before the LORD;
may the sin of his mother never be blotted out.
15 May their sins always remain before[g] the LORD, that he may cut off the memory[h] of them from the earth.
16 For he never thought of doing a kindness, but hounded to death the poor and the needy[i] and the brokenhearted.[j] 17 He loved to pronounce a curse—may it[g] come on him;[k]
he found no pleasure in blessing—may it be[h] far from him.
18 He wore cursing[l] as his garment;
it entered into his body like water,[m]
into his bones like oil.
19 May it be like a cloak wrapped[n] about him,
like a belt tied forever around him.
20 May this be the LORD's payment[o] to my accusers, to those who speak evil[p] of me.
21 But you, O Sovereign LORD, deal well with me for your name's sake;[q]
out of the goodness of your love,[r] deliver me.[s] 22 For I am poor and needy, and my heart is wounded within me.
23 I fade away like an evening shadow;[t]

109:6–15 Appeal for judicial redress—that the Lord will deal with them in accordance with their malicious intent against him, matching punishment with crime (see note on 5:10; see also 35:4–10 and note).

109:6 evil man ... accuser. It may well be that the alternative translations in the NIV text notes are to be preferred (see note on Job 1:6). The psalmist's enemy falsely accused him in order to bring him down; now let the enemy be confronted by an accuser.

109:7 his prayers. The petitions he offers in his defense.

109:8 days be few. The false accuser was no doubt seeking to effect David's death (see 1Ki 21:8–15). another take his place of leadership. The enemy held some official position and was perhaps plotting a coup. For a NT application of these words to Judas see Ac 1:20.

109:10–11 May he also be deprived of all his property so that he has no inheritance to pass on to his children.

109:12 no one extend kindness. See v. 16. his ... children. The close identity of a man with his children and of children with their parents, resulting from the tightly bonded unity of the three- or four-generation households of that ancient society, is alien to the modern reader, whose sense of self is highly individualistic. But that deep, profoundly human bond accounts for the ancient legal principle of "punishing the children for the sin of the fathers to the third and fourth generation" (see Ex 20:5; but see also 103:17; Ge 18:19).

109:13 Since a man lived on in his children (see previous note), the focus of judgment remains on the false accuser (see 21:10; 37:28). names blotted out. See note on 9:5.

109:14–15 iniquity of his fathers ... sin of his mother ... their sins. These verses return to the theme of vv. 7–8 (and thus form a frame around the stanza): May the indictment the accuser lodges against him include the sins of his parents (see note on v. 12).

109:15 cut off the memory of them. May this slanderer be the last of their family line.

109:16–20 The ruthless character of the enemy—may he be made to suffer the due consequences (see 10:2–15; 59:12–13). Accusation of the adversary is a common feature in psalms that are appeals to the heavenly Judge (see, e.g., 5:9–10; 10:2–11; 17:10–12).

109:17 curse. The enemy added curses to lies (see note on 10:7).

109:18 into his body like water, into his bones like oil. Cursing was his food and drink as well as his clothing; he lived by cursing (see Pr 4:17).

109:21–25 The intensity of "my" suffering—Lord, deliver me!

109:21 for your name's sake. See notes on 5:11; 23:3. love. See v. 26; see also note on 6:4.

109:22 The psalmist's description of his situation echoes the words of v. 16. poor and needy. Dependent on the Lord (see note on 34:6). heart. See note on 4:7. is wounded. The Hebrew for this phrase sounds like the Hebrew for "curse" in vv. 17–18, a deliberate wordplay—while he lives by cursing, I live with deep inward pain.

109:23 I fade away. Apparently the psalmist suffers a life-sapping affliction, which is the occasion for his enemies to turn on him (see vv. 24–25; see also note on 5:9). like an evening shadow. See 102:11. shaken off. See Ne 5:13; Job 38:13.

25 I am an object of scorn[x] to my accusers;
when they see me, they shake their heads.[y]

26 Help me,[z] O LORD my God; save me in accordance with your
love.
27 Let them know[a] that it is your hand,
that you, O LORD, have done it.
28 They may curse,[b] but you will bless;
when they attack they will be put to shame,
but your servant will rejoice.[c] 29 My accusers will be clothed with disgrace
and wrapped in shame[d] as in a cloak.

30 With my mouth I will greatly extol
the LORD;
in the great throng[e] I will praise
him.

to save his life from those who condemn him.

Psalm 110

Of David. A psalm.

1 The LORD says[g] to my Lord:
"Sit at my right hand[h] until I make your enemies
a footstool for your feet."[i]

2 The LORD will extend your mighty scepter[j] from Zion;[k]
you will rule[l] in the midst of your enemies.
3 Your troops will be willing on your day of battle.
Arrayed in holy majesty,[m]
from the womb of the dawn you will receive the dew of your youth.[in]

109:26–29 Concluding petition, with many echoes of preceding themes.

109:28 servant. Perhaps identifies the psalmist as the Lord's anointed (see title; see also 78:70 and note).

109:30–31 A vow to praise the Lord for his deliverance (see note on 7:17).

Ps 110 Oracles concerning the Messianic King-Priest. This psalm (specifically its two brief oracles, vv. 1,4) is frequently referred to in the NT testimony to Christ. Like Ps 2, it has the marks of a coronation psalm, composed for use at the enthronement of a new Davidic king. Before the Christian era Jews already viewed it as Messianic. Because of the manner in which it has been interpreted in the NT—especially by Jesus (see Mt 22:43–45; Mk 12:36–37; Lk 20:42–44), but also by Peter (see Ac 2:34–36) and the author of Hebrews (see especially Heb 1:13; 5:6–10; 7:11–28)—Christians have generally held that this is the most directly "prophetic" of all the psalms. If so, David, speaking prophetically (see 2Sa 23:2), composed a coronation psalm for his great future Son, of whom the prophets did not speak until later. It may be, however, that David composed the psalm for the coronation of his son Solomon, that he called him "my Lord" (v. 1) in view of his new status, which placed him above the aged David, and that in so doing he spoke a word that had far larger meaning than he knew. This would seem to be in more accord with what we know of David from Samuel, Kings and Chronicles. See introduction to Ps 101.

The psalm falls into two precisely balanced halves (vv. 1–3, 4–7). Each of the two brief oracles (vv. 1,4) is followed by thematically similar elaboration.

110:1–3 The Lord's decree, establishing his anointed as his regent in the face of all opposition (see 2:7–12).

110:1 The first oracle (see note on v. 4). my Lord. My sovereign, therefore superior to David (see Mt 22:44–45; Mk 12:36–37; Lk 20:42–44; Ac 2:34–35; Heb 1:13 and their contexts). Sit. Sit enthroned. right hand. The place of honor beside a king (see 45:9; 1Ki 2:19); thus he is made second in authority to God himself. NT references to Jesus' exaltation to this position are many (see Mt 26:64; Mk 14:62; 16:19; Lk 22:69; Ac 2:33; 5:31; 7:55–56; Ro 8:34; Eph 1:20; Col 3:1; Heb 1:3; 8:1; 10:12; 12:2). enemies. See note on 2:1–3. footstool for your feet. See Heb 10:12–13. Ancient kings often had themselves portrayed as placing their feet on vanquished enemies (see Jos 10:24). For a royal footstool as part of the throne see 2Ch 9:18. For the thought here see 1Ki 5:3. Paul applies this word to Christ in 1Co 15:25; Eph 1:22.

110:2 extend your mighty scepter. Expand your reign in ever widening circles until no foe remains to oppose your rule. Zion. David's royal city (see 2Sa 5:7,9), but also God's (see 9:11 and note), where he rules as the Great King (see Ps 46; 48; 132:13–18). The Lord's anointed is his regent over his emerging kingdom in the world.

110:3 willing. Lit. "freewill offerings," i.e., they will offer themselves as dedicated warriors to support you on the battlefield (see Jdg 5:2)—as the Israelites offered of their treasures for the building of the tabernacle in the desert (see Ex 35:29; 36:3; see also Ezr 1:4; 2:68). Accordingly, Paul speaks of Christ's followers offering their bodies "as living sacrifices" (Ro 12:1) and of himself as a "drink offering" (Php 2:17); see also 2Co 8:5. Arrayed . . . your youth. If the text is descriptive of the Lord's anointed, as seems likely, it depicts him as clothed in royal majesty and glory and perpetually preserving the bloom of youth even as the "womb of the dawn" gives birth each morning to the dew (for a different use of this imagery see Isa 26:19). If it speaks of the young warriors who flock to him (see NIV text note), it apparently describes them as dressed in priestly garb, ready for participation in a holy war (see 1Sa 21:4–5; 25:28; 2Ch 13:8,12; 20:15,21; Isa 13:3–4; Jer 6:4; 51:27), and pouring into his camp morning by morning as copious as the dew (see 2Sa 17:11–12). holy majesty. See note on 29:2.

110:4–7 The Lord's oath establishing his anointed as king-priest in Zion and assuring him victory over all powers that oppose him.

110:4 The second oracle (see note on v. 1). has sworn. In accordance also with his sworn covenant to maintain David's royal line forever (see 89:35–37). The force of this oath is elaborated by the author of Hebrews (Heb 6:16–18; 7:20–22). priest . . . in the order of Melchizedek. David and his royal sons, as chief representatives of the rule of God, performed many worship-focused activities, such as overseeing the ark of the covenant (see 2Sa 6:1–15, especially v. 14; 1Ki 8:1), building and overseeing and will not change his mind:[o]

"You are a priest forever,[p] in the order of Melchizedek.[q]"

5The Lord is at your right hand;[r]
he will crush kings[s] on the day of his wrath.[t] 6He will judge the nations,[u] heaping up the dead[v]
and crushing the rulers[w] of the whole earth.
7He will drink from a brook beside the way;[x] therefore he will lift up his head.

Psalm 111[k]

1Praise the LORD.[l]

I will extol the LORD[y] with all my heart[z]
in the council[a] of the upright and in the assembly.[b]

2Great are the works[c] of the LORD;
they are pondered by all[d] who delight in them.
3Glorious and majestic are his deeds, and his righteousness endures[e] forever.
4He has caused his wonders to be remembered;
the LORD is gracious and compassionate.[f] 5He provides food[g] for those who fear him;[h]
he remembers his covenant[i] forever.
6He has shown his people the power of his works,[j] giving them the lands of other nations.[k] 7The works of his hands[l] are faithful and just;
all his precepts are trustworthy.[m] 8They are steadfast for ever[n] and ever, done in faithfulness and uprightness.
9He provided redemption[o] for his people;

the temple (see 1Ki 5–7; 2Ki 12:4–7; 22:3–7; 23:4–7; 2Ch 15:8; 24:4–12; 29:3–11; 34:8) and overseeing the work of the priests and Levites and the temple liturgy (see 1Ch 6:31; 15:11–16; 16:4–42; 23:3–31; 25:1; 2Ch 17:7–9; 19:8–11; 29:25,30; 31:2; 35:15–16; Ezr 3:10; 8:20; Ne 12:24,36,45). In all these duties they exercised authority over even the high priest. But they could not engage in those specifically priestly functions that had been assigned to the Aaronic priesthood (see 2Ch 26:16–18). In the present oracle the son of David is installed by God as king-priest in Zion after the manner of Melchizedek, the king-priest of God Most High at Jerusalem in the days of Abraham (see Ge 14:18). As such a king-priest, he was appointed to a higher order of priesthood than that of Aaron and his sons. (For the union of king and priest in one person see Zec 6:13.) What this means for Christ's priesthood is the main theme of Heb 7. forever. Permanently and irrevocably; perhaps alluded to in Jn 12:34.

110:5 The Lord is at your right hand. God is near to assist you in your warfare (see v. 2; 109:31). Some take these words as an address to God: The Lord (David's superior son) is at your (God's) right hand (as in v. 1). on the day of his wrath. See 2:5 and note.

110:6 He. The Lord's anointed. heaping up the dead. Battlefield imagery (borrowed from David's victories) that depicts the victory of the Lord's anointed over all powers that oppose the kingdom of God (see 2:9; Rev 19:11–21).

110:7 drink from a brook. Even in the heat of battle he will find refreshment and lift up his head with undiminished vigor (see note on v. 3). For another possible but less likely rendering of this line see NIV text note.

Ps 111 Praise of God for his unfailing righteousness. The psalm combines hymnic praise with wisdom instruction, as its first and last verses indicate. Close comparison with Ps 112 shows that these two psalms are twins, probably written by the same author and intended to be kept together. The two psalms are most likely postexilic. They introduce a series of Hallelujah psalms (Ps 111–118), but stand apart from them in traditional Jewish liturgical use (see introduction to Ps 113). Structurally, both Ps 111 and Ps 112 are alphabetic acrostics (see NIV text note), but unique in that each (Hebrew) half-line advances the alphabet. Both psalms are framed by first and last verses that highlight their primary themes, and in both psalms the main body develops the theme introduced by the first verse, while the closing verse adds a counterpart. In both psalms the main body of eight verses falls thematically into two halves of four verses each, with the corresponding verses of each half containing certain thematic links (compare, e.g., 111:2 and 111:6; also vv. 5 and 9). Corresponding verses of the two psalms also tend to share common themes (compare, e.g., 111:3–5 with 112:3–5).

111:1 I will extol. Introductory to the praise that follows in vv. 2–9. council of the upright. Probably a more intimate circle than the assembly (see 107:32 for a similar distinction) and referring to those who are truly godly—such as the "upright" of 112:2,4 (see 11:7; 33:1; 49:14; 97:11; 107:42; 140:13). in the assembly. See note on 9:1.

111:2 works of the LORD. The hymn focuses especially on what God has done for his people. Verses 2,9 sum it up. pondered. Reflectively examined (see Ezr 10:16, "investigate"; Ecc 1:13, "study").

111:3 righteousness. As embodied in his deeds (see note on 4:1).

111:4 wonders. See note on 9:1. gracious and compassionate. See Ex 34:6–7 and note.

111:5 provides food. Illustrative of his bountiful provisions for the daily needs of his people (as in the Lord's prayer: "Give us today our daily bread," Mt 6:11). fear. See v. 10 and note. his covenant. See v. 9; see also 105:8–11.

111:6 Cf. v. 2.

111:7 faithful and just. Cf. "Glorious and majestic" (v. 3). precepts are trustworthy. See note on 93:5.

111:8 They. "The works of his hands" (v. 7). faithfulness and uprightness. Cf. "gracious and compassionate" (v. 4).

111:9 provided redemption. The other great benefit of God's deeds in behalf of his people (cf. "provides food," v. 5). holy and awesome. As shown by his works. name. See note on 5:11.

he ordained his covenant forever—holy and awesome[p] is his name.

all who follow his precepts have good understanding.[s]
To him belongs eternal praise.[t]

Psalm 112[m]

[1]Praise the LORD.[n][u]

Blessed is the man[v] who fears the LORD,[w] who finds great delight[x] in his commands.

[2]His children[y] will be mighty in the
land;
the generation of the upright will be blessed.
[3]Wealth and riches[z] are in his house, and his righteousness endures[a]
forever.
[4]Even in darkness light dawns[b] for the upright,
for the gracious and compassionate and righteous[c] man.[o] [5]Good will come to him who is generous and lends freely,[d] who conducts his affairs with justice.
[6]Surely he will never be shaken;[e] a righteous man will be remembered[f] forever.

[7]He will have no fear of bad news;
his heart is steadfast,[g] trusting in the LORD.[h]
[8]His heart is secure, he will have no fear;[i]
in the end he will look in triumph on his foes.[j] [9]He has scattered abroad his gifts to the poor,[k]
his righteousness endures[l] forever;
his horn[p] will be lifted[m] high in honor.

[10]The wicked man will see[n] and be vexed,
he will gnash his teeth[o] and waste away;[p]
the longings of the wicked will come to nothing.[q]

[m]This psalm is an acrostic poem, the lines of which begin with the successive letters of the Hebrew alphabet.
[n]1 Hebrew Hallelu Yah [o]4 Or / for the LORD is gracious and compassionate and righteous [p]9 Horn here symbolizes dignity. [q]1 Hebrew Hallelu Yah; also in verse 9

111:10 Concluding word of godly wisdom. The fear of the LORD is the beginning of wisdom. The classic OT statement concerning the religious basis of what it means to be wise (see Job 28:28; Pr 1:7; 9:10; see also note on Ge 20:11). who follow his precepts. Lit. "who do them." The plural Hebrew pronoun refers back to "precepts" in v. 7 (see 19:7–9, where "The fear of the LORD" stands parallel to "statutes," "precepts," "commands," "ordinances"; see also 112:1).

Ps 112 A eulogy to the godly man—in the spirit of Ps 1 but formed after the pattern of Ps 111 and likely intended as its complement (see introduction to Ps 111).

112:1 The basic theme, developed more fully in vv. 2–9. Verse 10 states its converse. See 1:1–2; 128:1. Blessed. See note on 1:1. fears the LORD. See 34:8–14 and note.

112:2 children. The godly man brings blessing to his children and is himself blessed through them (cf. v. 6; see 37:26; 127:3–5; 128:3; see also note on 109:12). will be mighty. Will be persons of influence and reputation.

112:3 Wealth and riches. See 1:3; 128:2. righteousness. See v. 9; see also note on 1:5. endures. It is not an occasional characteristic of his actions (see "steadfast," v. 7).

112:4 darkness. A metaphor for calamitous times (see 107:10 and note). light. See note on 27:1. gracious and compassionate. See Ex 34:6–7 and note.

112:5 Good. Well-being and prosperity (see 34:8–14 and note). is generous and lends freely. See v. 9; see also 111:5.

112:6 shaken. See note on 10:6. remembered forever. His righteousness will have erected an enduring memorial of honor in the memory of both God and man (see v. 2 and note).

112:7 heart. See v. 8; see also note on 4:7. trusting. His trust in God will be as steadfast as his righteousness is enduring (see v. 3). For trust and obedience to God's righteous will as the sum of true godliness see 34:8–14 and note.

112:8 will look in triumph. "Even in darkness light dawns" (v. 4).

112:9 gifts to the poor. See v. 5. lifted high in honor. As God's name is held in holy awe (see 111:9), so the godly man will be held in honor.

112:10 The counterpart. see and be vexed. That godliness is the way to blessedness is the reverse of the expectations of the wicked (see 10:2–11; 107:42). come to nothing. See 1:4–6; see also Ps 37; cf. 111:10.

Ps 113 A hymn to the Lord celebrating his high majesty and his mercies to the lowly (see 138:6). It was probably composed originally for the temple liturgy. This psalm begins the "Egyptian Hallel" (Ps 113–118), which came to be used in Jewish liturgy at the great religious festivals (Passover, Weeks, Tabernacles, Dedication, New Moon; see Lev 23; Nu 10:10; Jn 10:22; see also chart on "OT Feasts and Other Sacred Days," p. 174). At Passover, Ps 113 and 114 were sung before the meal and Ps 115–118 after the meal. (See introduction to Ps 111.)

Three precisely balanced stanzas (each having three verses) give the psalm a pleasing symmetry. With seven (the number of completeness) verbs the author celebrates God's praise in stanzas two and three ("is exalted," "sits . . . on high," "stoops down," "raises," "lifts," "seats," "settles")—and note the fourfold praise in the first stanza. At the center (v. 5; see note on 6:6) a rhetorical question focuses and heightens the hymnic theme.

113:1b–3 The fourfold call to praise.

113:1 name of the LORD. See vv. 2–3. Triple repetition was a common liturgical convention (see note on 96:1–3). name. See note on 5:11.

2 Let the name of the LORD be praised,[t]
both now and forevermore.[u] 3 From the rising of the sun[v] to the place where it sets, the name of the LORD is to be praised.

4 The LORD is exalted[w] over all the nations,
his glory above the heavens.[x]
5 Who is like the LORD our God,[y] the One who sits enthroned[z] on high,[a] 6 who stoops down to look[b] on the heavens and the earth?

7 He raises the poor[c] from the dust and lifts the needy[d] from the ash heap;
8 he seats them[e] with princes,
with the princes of their people.
9 He settles the barren[f] woman in her home
as a happy mother of children.

Praise the LORD.

115:4-11pp — Ps 135:15-20

faithfulness.[q]

113:2 now and forevermore. The praise of those who truly praise the Lord cannot rest content until it fills all time—and space (v. 3).

113:4–6 The Lord is enthroned on high, exalted over all creation.

113:4 See the refrain in 57:5,11. over all the nations. And implicitly over all their gods (see 95:3; 96:4–5; 97:9; see also 47:2,7–8). above the heavens. Above even the most exalted aspect of the creation (see v. 6).

113:5 The rhetorical center (see note on 6:6). our God. What grace, that he has covenanted to be "our" God (see Ge 17:7; Ex 19:5–6; 20:2)!

113:7–9 The Lord exalts the lowly—the God of highest majesty does not ally himself with the high and mighty of the earth but stands with and raises up the poor and needy (see 1Sa 2:3–8; Lk 1:46–55).

113:7–8 Repeated almost verbatim from 1Sa 2:8.

113:7 poor ... needy. See 9:18; 34:6 and notes. dust ... ash heap. Symbolic of a humble status (see Ge 18:27; 1Ki 16:2), but here probably also of extreme distress and need (see Job 30:19; 42:6; Isa 47:1; Jer 25:34).

113:9 barren woman. In that ancient society barrenness was for a woman the greatest disgrace and the deepest tragedy (see Ge 30:1; 1Sa 1:6–7,10); in her old age she would be as desolate as Naomi because she would have no one to sustain her (see Ru 1:11–13; see also 2Ki 4:14). home. Family circle. happy mother. Because of God's gracious provision, as in the case of Sarah (see Ge 21:2), Rebekah (see Ge 25:21), Rachel (see Ge 30:23), Hannah (see 1Sa 1:20), the Shunammite (see 2Ki 4:17) and others. Praise the LORD. Probably once stood at the beginning of Ps 114, which now lacks a Hallelujah.

Ps 114 A hymnic celebration of the exodus—one of the most exquisitely fashioned songs of the Psalter. It probably dates from the period of the monarchy sometime after the division of the kingdom (see v. 2). No doubt it was composed for liturgical use at the temple during one of the annual religious festivals (see introduction to Ps 113). The theme is progressively developed through four balanced stanzas, reaching its climax in the fourth. The first two stanzas (vv. 1–4) recall the great events of the exodus; the last two (vv. 5–8) celebrate their continuing significance.

114:1–2 The great OT redemptive event.

114:1 Israel ... house of Jacob. Synonyms (see Ex 19:3). came out of Egypt. Recalls the exodus and all the great events of the desert journey.

114:2 Judah ... Israel. The southern and northern kingdoms, viewed here as the one people of God. became. The crucial event was the establishment of the covenant at Sinai, where Israel became bound to the Lord as a "kingdom of priests and a holy nation" (Ex 19:3–6). God's. Lit. "his." The "antecedent" is not expressed until the climax (v. 7). sanctuary. His temple in which he took up his residence in the world—symbolized by the tabernacle, later the temple. In Ex 15:17 the promised land is similarly called God's sanctuary. dominion. The special realm over which he ruled as King. This, rather than the exodus itself, was the great wonder of God's grace.

114:3–4 The author evokes a fearsome scene such as that portrayed by other poets (see 18:7–15; 68:7–8; 77:16–19; Jdg 5:4–5; Hab 3:3–10).

114:3 sea ... Jordan. The Red Sea and the Jordan River, through which the Lord brought his people—here they are personified. looked and fled. Saw the mighty God approach in his awesome pillar of cloud and fled.

114:4 skipped. Or "leaped"; the mountains and hills quaked at God's approach (see 29:6).

114:7–8 The Lord of yesterday (vv. 5–6)—the God of Jacob—is still with us.

114:7 Tremble. In awesome recognition. earth. All creation. Jacob. A synonym for Israel (see Ge 32:28).

114:8 turned the rock into a pool. Thus sustaining and refreshing life (see Ex 17:6; Nu 20:11).

Ps 115 Praise of the Lord, the one true God, for his love and faithfulness toward his people. It was composed as a liturgy of praise for the temple worship. It may have been written for use at the dedication of the second temple (see Ezr 6:16) when Israel was beginning to revive after the disruption of the exile. See introduction to Ps 113. Structurally, the song advances in five movements involving a liturgical exchange between the people and temple personnel: (1) vv. 1–8: the people; (2) vv. 9–11: Levitical choir leader (the refrain perhaps spoken by the Levitical choir); (3) vv. 12–13: the people; (4) vv. 14–15: the priests; (5) vv. 16–18: the people.

115:1–8 Praise of God's love and faithfulness toward his people, which silences the taunts of the nations.

115:1 Not to us . . . not to us. Israel's existence, and now her revival, is not her own achievement. name. See note on 5:11. love and faithfulness. The most common OT expression for God's covenant benefits (see note on 26:3). love. See note on 6:4.

115:2 Where is their God? The taunt of the nations when Israel is decimated by natural disasters (see Joel 2:17) or crushed by enemies, especially when Judah is destroyed and the temple of God razed (see 79:10; Mic 7:10).

115:3 is in heaven. Sits enthroned (see 113:5) in the "highest heavens" (v. 16). whatever pleases him. If Israel is decimated or destroyed, it is God's doing; it is not his failure or inability to act, nor is it the achievement of the idols the nations worship. And when Israel is revived, that is also God's doing, and no other god can oppose him.

115:4–7 Whatever glory and power the false gods are thought to have (as symbolized in the images made to represent them), they are mere figments of human imagination and utterly worthless (see 135:15–18; Isa 46:1–7).

115:8 Those who make them. The taunting nations (cf. v. 2). like them. Powerless and ineffectual. For a graphic elaboration of this truth see Isa 44:9–20.

115:9–11 The call to trust in the Lord, not in idols (see v. 8). For triple repetition as a liturgical convention see note on 96:1–3. For the same groupings see 118:2–4; see also 135:19–20.

115:11 You who fear him. Perhaps proselytes (see 1Ki 8:41–43; Ezr 6:21; Ne 10:28).

115:12–13 The people's confession of trust.

115:14–15 The priestly blessing.

115:14 make you increase. In numbers, wealth and strength (cf. Ecc 2:9: "became greater by far than"—lit. "increased more than").

115:16–18 The people's concluding doxology.

115:16 highest heavens . . . earth. The one the exclusive realm of the exalted, all-sovereign God; the other the divinely appointed place for man, where he lives under God's rule and care, enjoys his abundant blessings (vv. 12–13) and celebrates his praise (v. 18).

115:17 not the dead. The dead no longer live in "the earth" (v. 16) but have descended to the silent realm below, where blessings are no longer enjoyed and hence praise is absent (see notes on 6:5; 30:1).

Ps 116 Praise of the Lord for deliverance from death. It may have been written by a king (see v. 16 and note; cf. also Hezekiah's thanksgiving, Isa 38:10–20); its language echoes many of the psalms of David. As used in Jewish liturgy (see introduction to Ps 113), the singular personal pronoun must have been used corporately (see note on Ps 30 title), and the references to "death" may have been understood as alluding to the Egyptian bondage and/or the exile. This thanksgiving song of seven stanzas (reading v. 7 with the following verses; see note on v. 7) falls into three main divisions (vv. 1–6, 7–14, 15–19), each of which contains a unified thematic development.

116:1–6 I love the Lord because he has heard and saved me.

116:2 I will call on him. In him I will trust and my prayers will ever be to him—a declaration repeated in each of the main divisions (see vv. 13,17).

3The cords of death[p] entangled me,
the anguish of the grave[s] came upon me;
I was overcome by trouble and sorrow.
4Then I called on the name[q] of the LORD:
"O LORD, save me![r]"

5The LORD is gracious and righteous;[s] our God is full of compassion.[t] 6The LORD protects the simplehearted;
when I was in great need,[u] he saved me.[v]

7Be at rest[w] once more, O my soul, for the LORD has been good[x] to you.

8For you, O LORD, have delivered my soul[y] from death,
my eyes from tears,
my feet from stumbling,
9that I may walk before the LORD[z] in the land of the living.[a] 10I believed;[b] therefore[t] I said,
"I am greatly afflicted."[c] 11And in my dismay I said,
"All men are liars."[d]

12How can I repay the LORD for all his goodness[e] to me?
13I will lift up the cup of salvation and call on the name[f] of the LORD.

116:3–4 See 18:4–6.
116:3 cords of death. See note on 18:5.
116:5 our God. The author is conscious of those about him; he is praising the Lord "in the presence of all his people" (vv. 14,18).
116:6 simplehearted. The person who is childlike in his sense of dependence on and trust in the Lord (see note on 19:7).
116:7–14 The Lord's goodness to me and how I will repay him.
116:7 rest. A state of unthreatened well-being (cf. Jer 6:16; see 1Ki 5:4; see also note on 23:2, "quiet waters"). O my soul. See note on 103:1–2,22. has been good. The Hebrew underlying this phrase is the same as that underlying "goodness" in v. 12 (see note there) and so marks v. 7 as introductory to vv. 7–14.
116:8 my soul. Me (see note on 6:3).
116:10 I believed. The author speaks of his faith that moved him to call on the Lord when he was threatened. I am greatly afflicted. This and the quotation in v. 11 should perhaps be taken, together with the one in v. 4, as a brief recollection of the prayer offered when the psalmist was in distress. The threat of death from which he had been delivered was brought on by the false accusations of enemies, as in Ps 109 (see notes on 5:9; 10:7). (For another interpretation see following note.)
116:11 All men are liars. The heart of the accusation he had lodged against his false accusers (for examples of similar accusations see 5:9–10; 35:11,15; 109:2–4). Others interpret these words as a declaration that all men offer but a false hope for deliverance (see 60:11; 118:8–9)—therefore the psalmist called on the Lord.
116:12 How can I repay . . . ? By offering to the Lord those expressions of devotion he desires (compare vv. 13–14,17–18 with 50:14–15,23). goodness. The Hebrew for this word occurs only here in the OT, but represents the same basic root as "has been good" in v. 7 (see note there).
116:13 cup of salvation. Often thought to be related to the cup of the Passover meal referred to in Mt 26:27 and parallels, but far more likely the cup of wine drunk at the festal meal that climaxed a thank offering (cf. 22:26,29; Lev 7:11–21)—called the "cup of salvation" because the thank offering and its meal celebrated deliverance by the Lord. See the parallel with "sacrifice a thank offering" in the corresponding series in vv. 17–18.
116:14 vows. To praise the Lord (see note on 7:17).
116:15–19 Because God has counted my life precious, I offer him the expressions of my devotion.
116:15 Precious . . . is the death. Not in the sense of highly valued but of that which is carefully watched over; cf. the analogous expression, "precious is their blood in his sight" (72:14). saints. See note on 4:3.
116:16 your servant. This may identify the psalmist as the Lord's anointed (see 78:70), but in any event as one devoted to the Lord (see 19:11,13). son of your maidservant. See NIV text note; see also 86:16 and NIV text note.
116:19 courts. Of the temple (see 84:2,10; 2Ki 21:5; 23:11–12).
Ps 117 The shortest psalm in the Psalter—and the shortest chapter in the Bible—Ps 117 is an expanded Hallelujah (sometimes joined with Ps 118). It may originally have served as the conclusion to the preceding collection of Hallelujah psalms (Ps 111–116)—of which it is the seventh. All nations and peoples are called on to praise the Lord (as in 47:1; 67:3–5; 96:7; 98:4; 100:1; see note on 9:1) for his great love and enduring faithfulness toward Israel (see Isa 12:4–6). Thus the Hallelujahs of the OT Psalter, when fully expounded, express that great truth, so often emphasized in the OT, that the destiny of all peoples is involved in what God was doing in and for his people Israel (see, e.g., 2:8–12; 47:9; 67:2; 72:17; 102:15; 110; Ge 12:3; Dt 32:43; 1Ki

[2]For great is his love[s] toward us,

Psalm 118

[1]Give thanks to the LORD,[u] for he is good;[v]
his love endures forever.[w]

[2]Let Israel say:[x]
"His love endures forever."[y]
[3]Let the house of Aaron say:[z]
"His love endures forever."
[4]Let those who fear the LORD[a] say:
"His love endures forever."

[5]In my anguish[b] I cried to the LORD, and he answered[c] by setting me free.
[6]The LORD is with me;[d] I will not be afraid.
What can man do to me?[e] [7]The LORD is with me; he is my helper.[f]
I will look in triumph on my enemies.[g]

[8]It is better to take refuge in the LORD[h] than to trust in man.[i] [9]It is better to take refuge in the LORD than to trust in princes.[j]

[10]All the nations surrounded me, but in the name of the LORD I cut them off.[k] [11]They surrounded me[l] on every side,[m]
but in the name of the LORD I cut them off.
[12]They swarmed around me like bees,[n] but they died out as quickly as burning thorns;[o]
in the name of the LORD I cut them off.[p]

[13]I was pushed back and about to fall, but the LORD helped me.[q] [14]The LORD is my strength[r] and my song;
he has become my salvation.[s]

[15]Shouts of joy[t] and victory resound in the tents of the righteous:
"The LORD's right hand[u] has done mighty things![v]
[16] The LORD's right hand is lifted high;
the LORD's right hand has done mighty things!"

[17]I will not die[w] but live, and will proclaim[x] what the LORD has done.

117:1 Quoted in Ro 15:11 as proof that the salvation of Gentiles and the glorifying of God by Gentiles was not a divine afterthought.

117:2 The reason for the praise. love . . . faithfulness. That is, love-and-faithfulness (see 36:5 and note; see also note on 3:7). love. See note on 6:4.

Ps 118 A hymn of thanksgiving for deliverance from enemies. Of the many interpretations of this psalm, three have gained the most adherents (but with much variation in detail): 1. A Davidic king leads the nation in a liturgy of thanksgiving for deliverance and victory after a hard-fought battle with a powerful confederacy of nations (cf. 2Ch 20:27–28; see note on v. 19). 2. Israel celebrates—probably at the Feast of Tabernacles—her deliverance from Egypt and victory over the Canaanites. 3. The postexilic Jews celebrate deliverance from their enemies, either at the dedication of the second temple (see Ezr 6:16) or at the dedication of the rebuilt walls of Jerusalem (see Ne 12:37–43). According to the first interpretation, the speaker in vv. 5–21 is the king; according to the second and third, the speaker is the Levitical (or priestly) leader of the liturgy, speaking (representatively) on behalf of the people. The notes that follow assume the first interpretation. In the postexilic liturgy developed for the annual festivals (see introduction to Ps 113), the song was used as a thanksgiving for national deliverance. As the last song of that liturgy, it may have been the hymn sung by Jesus and his disciples at the conclusion of the Last Supper (see Mt 26:30).

Following a liturgical call to praise (vv. 1–4), the king offers a song of thanksgiving for deliverance and victory in battle (vv. 5–21). In vv. 22–27 the people rejoice over what the Lord has done. Thereafter, the king speaks his final word of praise (v. 28), and a liturgical conclusion (v. 29) repeats the opening call to praise, thus framing the whole service.

118:1–4 The liturgical call to praise.

118:1 A conventional call to praise (shared in whole or in part with Ps 105–107; 136; 1Ch 16:8,34; 2Ch 20:21). Give thanks. See note on Ps 100 title. This, together with vv. 2–4 (except for the refrain) and 29, may have been by the same voice that speaks in vv. 5–21. love. See vv. 2–4,29; see also note on 6:4.

118:2–4 Israel . . . house of Aaron . . . those who fear the LORD. See 115:9–11 and note. Triple repetition is a common feature in this psalm (see note on 96:1–3).

118:5–21 The king's song of thanksgiving for deliverance and victory.

118:5 free. Lit. "in a broad place"; see 18:19 and note ("spacious place").

118:7 I will look. Or "I look."

118:8–9 See 33:16–19; see also Ps 62; 146.

118:10 in the name of the LORD. See 1Sa 17:45. name. See vv. 11–12,26; see also note on 5:11.

118:12 as burning thorns. See 58:9 and note.

118:13 fall. Be killed (see vv. 17–18; see also note on 13:4).

118:14 Perhaps recalls the triumph song of Ex 15, but more likely the verse had become a widely used testimony of praise (see Isa 12:2).

118:15 tents. Dwellings. righteous. Israel as the people (ideally) committed in heart and life to the Lord (see v. 20; see also 68:3 and note). Cf. "the tents of the wicked" (84:10).

118:17 live, and . . . proclaim. See 115:17–18; see also note on 6:5.

[x] 26 The Hebrew is plural. [y] 27 Or Bind the festal sacrifice with ropes / and take it [z] This psalm is an acrostic poem; the verses of each stanza begin with the same letter of the Hebrew alphabet.

118:18 chastened me. The king acknowledges that the grave threat through which he has passed has also served God's purpose—to discipline him and teach him humble godliness (see 6:1; 38:1; 94:12; Dt 4:36; 8:5).
118:19 Open for me. This line suggests a liturgical procession (see v. 27) in which the king approaches the inner court of the temple at the head of the jubilant worshipers (see Ps 24; 68). gates. Those leading to the inner temple court. of righteousness. Often thought to be the name of a particular gateway, but more likely only descriptive here of the gate "through which the righteous may enter" (v. 20). It is possible that the procession began outside the city and that "the gates of righteousness" are the gates of Jerusalem, the city of God (see note on 24:7; see also Isa 26:2).
118:21 This closing verse of the thanksgiving song echoes the "Give thanks" of v. 1, the "answered ... me" of v. 5 and the testimony of v. 14.
118:22–27 The people's exultation.
118:22 The stone the builders rejected. Most likely a reference to the king (whose deliverance and victory are being celebrated), who had been looked on with disdain by the kings invading his realm—the builders of worldly empires. Others suppose that the stone refers to Israel, a nation held in contempt by the world powers. capstone. Lit. "head of the corner"—either a capstone over a door (a large stone used as a lintel), or a large stone used to anchor and align the corner of a wall, or the keystone of an arch (see Zec 4:7; 10:4). By a wordplay (pun) the author hints at "chief ruler" (the Hebrew word for "corner" is sometimes used as a metaphor for leader/ruler; see Isa 19:13; see also Jdg 20:2; 1Sa 14:38). This stone, disdained by the worldly powers, has become the most important stone in the structure of the new world order that God is bringing about through Israel. Jesus applied this verse (and v. 23) to himself (see Mt 21:42; Mk 12:10–11; Lk 20:17; see also Ac 4:11; Eph 2:20; 1Pe 2:7).
118:24 day the LORD has made ... rejoice. This day of rejoicing was made possible by God's deliverance in the victory being celebrated. Others suppose a reference to Passover or the Feast of Tabernacles. has made. Or "has done it" (see vv. 15–17,23)—has made the "stone" the "capstone" (v. 22).
118:25 Prayer for the Lord to continue to save and sustain his people.
118:26 who comes in the name of the LORD. The one who with God's help had defeated the enemies "in the name of the LORD" (see vv. 10–12). From the house of the LORD. From God's very presence (see 134:3). you. The plural (see NIV text note) may have been used to exalt the king (the plural was often used with reference to God), whom God had so singularly blessed (see NIV text note on 1Ki 9:6). Alternatively, it may refer to those who have come with the king victoriously from the battle. The crowds who greeted Jesus at his Triumphal Entry into Jerusalem used the words of vv. 25–26 (see Jn 12:13).
118:27 made his light shine upon us. An echo of the priestly benediction (see Nu 6:25). With boughs ... up. Apparently a call to complete the climax of the liturgy of a thank offering (see Lev 7:11–21), though others suggest the liturgy of the Feast of Tabernacles.
118:28–29 See introduction.
Ps 119 A devotional on the word of God. The author was an Israelite of exemplary piety (probably postexilic) who (1) was passionately devoted to the word of God as the word of life; (2) humbly acknowledged, nevertheless, the errant ways of his heart and life; (3) knew the pain—but also the fruits—of God's corrective discipline; and (4) had suffered much at the hands of those who arrogantly disregarded God's word and made him the target of their hostility, ridicule and slander. It is possible that he was a priest (see notes on vv. 23,57)—and the psalm might well be a vehicle for priestly instruction in godliness. He elaborated on the themes of 19:7–13 and interwove with them many prayers for deliverance, composing a massive alphabetic acrostic (see NIV text note) that demands patient, meditative reading. In regard to length, form and type it stands alone in the Psalter. And of all the psalms, this one is the most likely to have been composed originally in writing and intended to be read rather than sung or recited. Most of its lines are addressed to God, mingling prayers with professions of devotion to God's law. Yet, as the opening verses (and perhaps also its elaborate acros-tic form) make clear, it was intended for godly instruction (in the manner of Ps 1; see v. 9 and note). It was included in the Psalter no doubt as a model of piety.

Whereas elsewhere in the Psalter the focus falls primarily on God's mighty acts of creation and redemption and his rule over all the world, here devotion to the word of God (and the God of the word) is the dominant theme. The author highlights two aspects of that word: (1) God's directives for life and (2) God's promises—the one calling for obedience, the other for faith (the two elements of true godliness; see 34:8–14 and note). In referring to these, he makes use of eight Hebrew terms supplied him by OT traditions: torah, "law"; 'edot, "statutes"; piqqudim, "precepts"; miṣwot, "commands, commandments"; mishpaṭim, "laws" (all shared with 19:7–9; mishpaṭim is translated "ordinances" in 19:9); ḥuqqim, "decrees"; dabar, "word" (sometimes in the sense of "law," sometimes in the sense of "promise"); 'imrah, "word," but more often "promise." These terms he distributes throughout the 22 stanzas (using all eight in He, Waw, Heth, Yodh, Kaph, Pe—never using less than six), employing a different order in each stanza. It may be that the availability of these eight terms determined (in large part) for the author the decision to devote eight verses to each letter of the alphabet. The alphabetic acrostic form, especially one as elaborate as this, may appear arbitrary and artificial to a modern reader (as if the author merely selected a traditional form from the poet's workshop and then labored to fill it with pious sentences), but a sympathetic and reflective reading of this devotional will compel a more favorable judgment. The author had a theme that filled his soul, a theme as big as life, that ranged the length and breadth and height and depth of a person's walk with God. Nothing less than the use of the full power of language would suffice, and of that the alphabet was a most apt symbol.

Apart from the obvious formal structure dictated by the chosen acrostic form, little need (or can) be said. It must be noted, however, that the first three and the last three verses were designed as introduction and conclusion to the whole. The former sets the tone of instruction in godly wisdom; the latter succinctly restates and summarizes the main themes. It may also be observed that the middle of the psalm has been marked by a similar three-verse introduction to the second half (see note on vv. 89–91). For the rest, the thought meanders, turns back upon itself and repeats (with varied nuances). The following notes point out continuities of thought and possible structure within stanzas.

119:1–2 Blessed. See note on 1:1.

119:1 whose ways are blameless. This opening general description is further elaborated in the rest of the introduction, which concludes with an equally general statement: "they walk in his ways" (v. 3). See Ge 17:1; cf. Ge 26:5. law. Hebrew torah, a collective term for God's covenant directives for his people (see Dt 4:44). "Law" often came, especially later, to have a broader reference—the whole Pentateuch (see Lk 24:44) or even the whole OT (see Jn 15:25; 1Co 14:21)—but here it is limited by the synonyms with which it is used interchangeably.

119:2 statutes. Hebrew 'edot, a specifically covenantal term referring to stipulations laid down by the covenant Lord (see 25:10, "demands"; Dt 4:45, "stipulations"). heart. See v. 7; see also note on 4:7.

119:3 ways. The Hebrew for this word occurs only rarely in this psalm, but is common in Deuteronomy and elsewhere as a general reference to God's covenant requirements (see note on 25:4)—used here to balance "ways" in v. 1.

119:4–8 Those who obey God's law (see vv. 4–5,8) can hope for God's help (see vv. 6–8).

119:4 precepts. Hebrew piqqudim, covenant regulations laid down by the Lord (see 19:8; 111:7).

119:5 decrees. Hebrew ḥuqqim, covenant directives (see Dt 6:2; 28:15,45; 30:10,16; 1Ki 11:11), emphasizing their fixed character.

119:6 not be put to shame. The psalmist would not suffer poverty or sickness, or humiliation at the hands of his enemies, and so become the object of sneers (see vv. 31,46,80; 25:2–3,20), but he would have reason to praise the Lord (see v. 7) for blessings received and deliverances granted because the Lord does not forsake him (see v. 8). consider. Respect, have regard for (see v. 15; 74:20). commands. Hebrew miṣwot, covenant directives (see Ex 20:6; 24:12; Dt 4:2), designated specifically as that which God has commanded.

119:7 righteous. One of the author's favorite characterizations of God's law (see vv. 62,75,106,123,138,144,160,164,172; see also 19:9). laws. Hebrew mishpaṭim, covenant directives (see Ex 21:1; 24:3; Dt 4:1), as the laws laid down by a ruler (king).

119:8 not ... forsake me. Not abandon me to poverty, sickness or my enemies.

119:9 young man. Some have thought this a characterization of the author, but more likely it indicates instruction addressed to the young after the manner of the wisdom teachers (see 34:11; Pr 1:4; Ecc 11:9; 12:1). pure. Free from all moral taint (see 73:13). word. Hebrew dabar, a general designation for God's (word) revelation, but here used with special reference to his law (sometimes promises).

119:10 I seek you. The author's devotion is first of all to the God of the law and the promises; they have meaning for him only because they are God's word of life for him. heart. See v. 11; see also note on 4:7.

11 I have hidden your word in my heart[n] that I might not sin[o] against you.
12 Praise be[p] to you, O LORD;
teach me[q] your decrees.[r] 13 With my lips I recount
all the laws that come from your mouth.[s] 14 I rejoice in following your statutes[t]
as one rejoices in great riches.
15 I meditate on your precepts[u]
and consider your ways.
16 I delight[v] in your decrees;
I will not neglect your word.

ג Gimel

17 Do good to your servant,[w] and I will live;
I will obey your word.[x]
18 Open my eyes that I may see wonderful things in your law.
19 I am a stranger on earth;[y]
do not hide your commands from me.
20 My soul is consumed[z] with longing for your laws[a] at all times.
21 You rebuke the arrogant,[b] who are cursed[c]
and who stray[d] from your commands.
22 Remove from me scorn[e] and contempt, for I keep your statutes.[f] 23 Though rulers sit together and slander me, your servant will meditate on your decrees.
24 Your statutes are my delight;
they are my counselors.

ד Daleth

25 I am laid low in the dust;[g] preserve my life[h] according to your word.[i] 26 I recounted my ways and you answered me; teach me your decrees.[j] 27 Let me understand the teaching of your precepts;
then I will meditate on your wonders.[k] 28 My soul is weary with sorrow;[l] strengthen me[m] according to your word.[n] 29 Keep me from deceitful ways;[o] be gracious to me[p] through your law.
30 I have chosen[q] the way of truth;[r]
I have set my heart[s] on your laws.
31 I hold fast[t] to your statutes, O LORD;
do not let me be put to shame.
32 I run in the path of your commands,
for you have set my heart free.

119:11 word. Hebrew 'imrah, a synonym of dabar ("word"; see note on v. 9; see also Dt 33:9; Pr 30:5). Except where noted, as here, "word" in this psalm is dabar; 'imrah is usually translated "promise."

119:13 recount. Either in meditation or in liturgies of covenant commitment to the Lord (see 50:16, "recite").

119:14 as one rejoices in great riches. See vv. 72,111,162.

119:15 ways. The Hebrew for this word is a synonym of the Hebrew for "ways" in v. 3 (the two Hebrew words parallel each other in 25:4).

119:17–24 Devotion to God's law marks the Lord's servant, but alienates him from the arrogant (v. 21) of the world.

119:17 I will obey. Out of gratitude for God's care and blessing.

119:18 wonderful things. Usually ascribed to God's redeeming acts (see 9:1 and note)—but God's law contains matters just as wonderful (see v. 27).

119:19 stranger on earth. As a servant of the Lord, i.e., a citizen of his kingdom, he is not at home in any of the kingdoms of the world (see 39:12 and note; see also note on v. 54).

119:20 My soul is. I am (see vv. 28,81; see also note on 6:3).

119:21 the arrogant. Those who are a law to themselves, most fully described in 10:2–11 (see vv. 51,69,78,85,122; see also note on 31:23). The author has suffered much from their hostility because of his zeal for God and his law, as the next two verses and many others indicate. cursed. Ripe for God's judgment.

119:22 scorn and contempt. Of the arrogant.

119:23 rulers. Because the author mentions also speaking "before kings" (v. 46) and being persecuted by "rulers" (v. 161), it may be that he held some official position, such as priest (one of whose functions it would have been to teach God's law; see Lev 10:11; Ezr 7:6; Ne 8:2–8; Jer 2:8; 18:18; Mal 2:7; see also note on v. 57). (These kings and rulers are probably either Israelite from the time of the monarchy or Persian in the postexilic period.) sit. As those securely settled in the world—not as strangers (cf. v. 19). together and slander. As they share their worldly counsels, they speak derisively of the one who stands apart because he delights in God's statutes and makes them his "counselors" (v. 24).

119:25–32 Whether "laid low" (v. 25) or "set . . . free" (v. 32), he is determined to "hold fast" (v. 31) to God's word.

119:25 laid low. The author speaks much of his sorrow suffering and affliction (see vv. 28,50,67, 71,75,83,92,107,143,153). It is likely that the ridicule, slander and persecution from his adversaries are usually occasioned by this suffering of God's devoted servant, who makes God's word (his law and promises) the hope of his life (see vv. 42,51,65,69,78,85,95,110, 134,141,150,154,157,161; see also notes on v. 6; 5:9; 31:11–12). in the dust. See 44:25 and note. word. Especially its promises, as also in vv. 28,37,42,49,65,74,81,107,114,147.

119:27 wonders. See note on v. 18.

119:29 deceitful ways. Ways that seem right but lead to death (see Pr 14:12)—in contrast to the ways prescribed by God's law, which are trustworthy (see vv. 86,138) and true (see vv. 142,151,160). through your law. By keeping me true to your law, let me enjoy your blessings.

119:30 way of truth. See note on v. 29.

119:31 put to shame. See note on v. 6.

119:32 set my heart free. Lit. "enlarged my heart," i.e., expanded it with joy (see Isa 60:5, "swell with joy"). Others translate it "increased my understanding" (see 1Ki 4:29, "breadth of understanding"). heart. See note on 4:7.

ה He

33Teach me,[u] O LORD, to follow your decrees;
then I will keep them to the end.
34Give me understanding,[v] and I will keep your law[w]
and obey it with all my heart.[x] 35Direct me[y] in the path of your commands,[z]
for there I find delight.[a] 36Turn my heart[b] toward your statutes and not toward selfish gain.[c] 37Turn my eyes away from worthless
things;
preserve my life[d] according to your word.[ae] 38Fulfill your promise[f] to your servant,
so that you may be feared.
39Take away the disgrace[g] I dread,
for your laws are good.
40How I long[h] for your precepts!
Preserve my life[i] in your righteousness.

ו Waw

41May your unfailing love[j] come to me, O LORD, your salvation according to your promise;[k] 42then I will answer[l] the one who taunts me,[m]
for I trust in your word.
43Do not snatch the word of truth from my mouth,[n]
for I have put my hope[o] in your laws.
44I will always obey your law,[p]
for ever and ever.
45I will walk about in freedom, for I have sought out your precepts.[q] 46I will speak of your statutes before kings[r]
and will not be put to shame,[s] 47for I delight[t] in your commands because I love them.[u] 48I lift up my hands to[b] your commands, which I love,
and I meditate[v] on your decrees.

ז Zayin

49Remember your word[w] to your servant,
for you have given me hope.[x] 50My comfort in my suffering is this:
Your promise preserves my life.[y] 51The arrogant mock me[z] without restraint,
but I do not turn[a] from your law.
52I remember[b] your ancient laws,
O LORD,
and I find comfort in them.
53Indignation grips me[c] because of the wicked,
who have forsaken your law.[d] 54Your decrees are the theme of my song[e]
wherever I lodge.
55In the night I remember[f] your name,
O LORD,
and I will keep your law.[g] 56This has been my practice:
I obey your precepts.[h]

119:52 ancient. God's law is not fickle, but it is grounded firmly in his unchanging moral character. This is a major source of the author's comfort and one of the main reasons he cherishes the law so highly (see vv. 89,144,152,160).
119:53 Indignation grips me. Zeal for God's law (see vv. 136,139) awakens righteous anger against those who reject it (see vv. 113,115,158), and it brings abhorrence of all that is contrary to it (see vv. 104,128,163); but it draws together those who honor it (see v. 63).
119:54 wherever I lodge. Lit. "in my temporary house." The sense may be that of v. 19 (see note there).

119:70 callous and unfeeling. Lit. "fat as grease." Similar expressions occur also in Isa 6:10; Jer 5:28 (see also 17:10).

119:72 than thousands ... of silver and gold. See vv. 14,57,111,162.

119:73–80 Complete your forming of me by helping me to conform to your righteous laws so that the arrogant may be put to shame and those who fear you may rejoice with me. (The stanza has a concentric structure; compare vv. 73 and 80, 74 and 79, 75 and 78, 76 and 77.)

119:73 give me understanding. What I need to perfect the work you began when you formed me.

119:74 fear you. See v. 79; see also note on 34:8–14. when they see me. When I am perfectly formed and enjoying the blessings of the godly. word. See note on v. 25.

119:75 laws. Here the Hebrew for this word (mishpatim) may refer to God's just decisions in dealing with his servant, as the rest of the verse implies (see v. 84 and note). you have afflicted me. See vv. 67,71.

119:76 unfailing love. See note on 6:4. my comfort. In my affliction.

119:77 that I may live. And not perish in my affliction.

119:78 the arrogant. See note on v. 21. be put to shame. As they have subjected me to shame (see note on 5:10). for wronging me. See note on v. 25 ("laid low").

119:79 turn to me. See v. 63 and note on v. 53.

119:80 heart. See note on 4:7. not be put to shame. See note on v. 6.

81 My soul faints[x] with longing for your salvation,[y]
but I have put my hope[z] in your word.
82 My eyes fail,[a] looking for your promise;[b]
I say, "When will you comfort me?" 83 Though I am like a wineskin in the smoke,
I do not forget[c] your decrees.
84 How long[d] must your servant wait?
When will you punish my persecutors?[e]
85 The arrogant[f] dig pitfalls[g] for me, contrary to your law.
86 All your commands are trustworthy;[h] help me,[i] for men persecute me[j] without cause.[k]
87 They almost wiped me from the earth, but I have not forsaken[l] your precepts.
88 Preserve my life[m] according to your

89 Your word, O LORD, is eternal;[p] it stands firm in the heavens.
90 Your faithfulness[q] continues through all generations;[r]
you established the earth, and it endures.[s]
91 Your laws endure[t] to this day, for all things serve you.[u] 92 If your law had not been my

97 Oh, how I love your law![e]
I meditate[f] on it all day long.
98 Your commands make me wiser[g]
than my enemies,
for they are ever with me.
99 I have more insight than all my teachers,
for I meditate on your statutes.[h] 100 I have more understanding than the elders,
for I obey your precepts.[i] 101 I have kept my feet[j] from every evil path
so that I might obey your word.[k] 102 I have not departed from your laws,[l]
for you yourself have taught[m] me.

119:81–88 Save me from my affliction and my persecutors, according to your promises, and I will obey your statutes. This last stanza of the first half of the psalm, like the closing stanza, is dominated by prayer for God's help (see note on v. 25).

119:81 soul. See note on 6:3.

119:82 My eyes fail. See note on 6:7.

119:83 like a wineskin in the smoke. As a wineskin hanging in the smoke and heat above a fire becomes smudged and shriveled, so the psalmist bears the marks of his affliction.

119:84 How long . . . wait? Lit. "How (many are) the days of your servant?" That is, do not delay the punishment of my persecutors, because my life is short. punish. Lit. "effect justice upon" (the Hebrew for "justice" is mishpat; see note on v. 7, "laws"; see also note on 5:10).

119:85 The arrogant. See note on v. 21. dig pitfalls. Probably referring to slander—public accusations that the psalmist must be guilty of vile sins or he would not be suffering such affliction. contrary to your law. See Ex 20:16.

119:86 trustworthy. See note on v. 29 ("deceitful ways").

119:88 love. See note on 6:4.

119:89–91 God's sovereign and unchanging word governs and maintains all creation. (These first three verses of the second half of the psalm teach a general truth; cf. vv. 1–3.)

119:89 Your word. Here God's word by which he created, maintains and governs all things (see 33:4,6; 107:20; 147:15,18). stands firm in the heavens. The secure order of the heavens and the earth (v. 90) declare (19:1–4) the reassuring truth that God's word (his "laws," v. 91), by which he upholds and governs all things, is enduring (eternal) and trustworthy ("Your faithfulness," v. 90). And that is the larger truth that confirms the godly man's confidence in the trustworthiness of God's word (his laws and promises) of special revelation (see notes on 93:5; 96:10; see also note on v. 29, "deceitful ways").

119:90 Your faithfulness. An indirect reference to God's word (see v. 89 and note).

119:92 would have perished in my affliction. Would not have learned the way of life (see v. 93) from your law (see vv. 67,71 and note on vv. 65–72).

119:95 The wicked. See note on v. 21 ("the arrogant"). waiting to destroy me. See note on v. 25 ("laid low").

119:96 perfection. Probably that which has been perfected in the sense of completed, given fixed bounds so that it is no longer open-ended. boundless. Lit. "very broad," i.e., an inexhaustible source of wise counsel for life (see vv. 97–100).

119:97–104 Meditation on God's law yields the highest wisdom.

119:98 my enemies. Those arrogant ones (see note on v. 21) who place confidence in worldly wisdom. they. Your commands.

119:99 teachers. Merely human teachers.

119:100 elders. Old men, taught by experience (see note on Ex 3:16).

119:102 you . . . have taught me. Through your laws.

103 How sweet are your words to my taste, sweeter than honey[n] to my mouth![o] 104 I gain understanding[p] from your precepts;
therefore I hate every wrong path.[q]

119:103 words. Perhaps better understood here as "laws" (see vv. 67,133,158,172 and note on v. 11).
119:104 hate every wrong path. See note on v. 53.
119:105 lamp . . . light. Apart from which I could only grope about in the darkness.
119:106 have taken an oath and confirmed it. Have covenanted (see Ne 10:29).
119:107 See v. 25 and note.
119:109 take my life in my hands. By publicly honoring God's law even in the face of threats and hostility (see especially vv. 23,46,161).
119:110 set a snare. See v. 85 and note.
119:111–112 heart. See note on 4:7.
119:111 my heritage. The possession I have received from God as my homestead and that from which I draw the provisions for my life (see note on vv. 57–64).
119:113 hate double-minded men. See v. 115; see also note on v. 53. A double-minded man is "unstable in all he does" (Jas 1:8).
119:114 word. See note on v. 25.
119:118 reject. Or "shake off" or "make light of." their deceitfulness. Probably their ways, which are deceitful (see note on v. 29).
119:119 dross. Scum removed from molten ore or metal. The Hebrew for this word is a pun on the word for "stray" in v. 118: Those who stray are treated like dross.
119:120 My flesh trembles. He quivers out of his deep reverence for God.
119:121–128 As your faithful servant I pray for deliverance from my oppressors—another stanza in which prayer for deliverance is dominant (see vv. 81–88 and note; see also note on v. 25, "laid low").
119:121 what is righteous and just. God's law.
119:122 The only verse in this psalm that does not have either a direct or an indirect (as in vv. 90,121,132; see note on v. 75) reference to God's word. the arrogant. See note on v. 21.
119:123 My eyes fail. See note on 6:7.
119:124 love. See note on 6:4.
119:126 act. Either in defense of his servant, or in judgment on the lawbreakers, or both.
119:127 more than gold. See vv. 14,57,72,111.

119:128 I hate every wrong path. See note on v. 53.
119:129 wonderful. See v. 18 and note.
119:130 unfolding. Lit. "opening," here meaning (1) the revelation of your words, (2) the interpretation (see "expound," 49:4) of your words, or (3) the entering of your words into the heart. the simple. See 19:7 and note.
119:132 as you always do. Lit. "as is (your) manner" (the Hebrew for "manner" is mishpaṭ); hence an indirect reference (see note on v. 122) to God's law (see note on v. 7).
119:134,154 Redeem. Here, as often, a synonym for "deliver."
119:134 oppression. See note on v. 25 ("laid low").
119:135 your face shine. See note on 13:1 ("hide your face").
119:136 See v. 53 and note.
119:137–144 The Lord and his laws are righteous.
119:137 Righteous. See note on 4:1.
119:138 trustworthy. See v. 142; see also note on v. 29 ("deceitful ways").
119:139 My zeal. See note on v. 53.
119:140 promises. Hebrew 'imrah; perhaps better rendered "word" here (see note on v. 11). tested. Lit. "refined," i.e., God's word contains nothing worthless or useless.
119:141 lowly and despised. Cf. v. 143; see also note on v. 25.
119:145–152 Save me, O Lord, and I will keep your law. As the psalm draws to a close, prayer for deliverance becomes more dominant (see note on v. 25, "laid low").
119:148 watches of the night. See note on Jdg 7:19; see also La 2:19.
119:149 love. See note on 6:4. your laws. Or "your justice" (complementing "your love"); Hebrew mishpaṭ (see note on v. 75).
119:150 far from your law. See vv. 21,53,85,118,126,139, 155,158.
119:151 are true. See note on v. 29 ("deceitful ways").

word.
162I rejoice[w] in your promise like one who finds great spoil.[x] 163I hate and abhor[y] falsehood
but I love your law.[z] 164Seven times a day I praise you for your righteous laws.[a] 165Great peace[b] have they who love your law,
and nothing can make them
stumble.[c] 166I wait for your salvation,[d] O LORD, and I follow your commands.
167I obey your statutes,
for I love them[e] greatly.
168I obey your precepts[f] and your statutes,[g]
for all my ways are known[h] to
you.

ת Taw

169May my cry come[i] before you,
O LORD;
give me understanding[j] according to your word.[k] 170May my supplication come[l] before
you;
deliver me[m] according to your promise.[n]
171May my lips overflow with praise,[o] for you teach me[p] your decrees.
172May my tongue sing[q] of your word, for all your commands are righteous.[r] 173May your hand be ready to help[s] me,
for I have chosen[t] your precepts.
174I long for your salvation,[u] O LORD, and your law is my delight.[v] 175Let me live[w] that I may praise you,
and may your laws sustain me.
176I have strayed like a lost sheep.[x]
Seek your servant,
for I have not forgotten[y] your commands.

119:158 word. Hebrew 'imrah (see note on v. 11).
119:160 All. Lit. "The sum of" (as in 139:17). true. See note on v. 29 ("deceitful ways"). eternal. See note on v. 52.
119:161–168 See note on vv. 145–152.
119:161 Rulers. See note on v. 23. heart. See note on 4:7.
119:162 great spoil. See vv. 14,72,111.
119:163 I hate. See note on v. 53. falsehood. Or "that which is (ways that are) deceitful" (see v. 29 and note).
119:164 Seven. A number signifying completeness—he praises God throughout the day.
119:165 Great peace. Complete security and well-being.
119:169–176 See note on vv. 145–152.
119:171 overflow with praise. Because you have delivered me.
119:172 righteous. See note on v. 7.
119:174–176 The conclusion to the psalm.
119:176 I have strayed. See Isa 53:6; the clearest expression of the author's acknowledgment that, for all his devotion to God's law, he has again and again wandered into other (deceitful) ways and, like a lost sheep, must be brought back by his heavenly Shepherd. For one who has made God's law the guide and dearest treasure of his life, the last word can only be such a confession—and such a prayer.
Ps 120 A prayer for deliverance from false accusers. Verse 7 suggests that the speaker is a king, in which case the accusers seek either to discredit him before his people or, more likely, to awaken suspicion concerning him in foreign courts. But if "war" is understood metaphorically, the psalm could be used also by a private individual beset by slanderers.
120 title ascents. Some have thought that the Hebrew for this word refers to stairs leading to the temple, hence "a song of the stairs," to be used in the temple liturgy (probably at the Feast of Tabernacles). Most believe it refers to the annual religious pilgrimages to Jerusalem (see 84:5–7; Ex 23:14–17; Dt 16:16; Mic 4:2; Zec 14:16), which brought the worshipers singing to Mount Zion (Isa 30:29)—a view that does not exclude the psalm's use also in the temple liturgy. This title, found also at the head of Ps 121–134, no doubt reflects postexilic usage rather than the original purpose of composition and also marks Ps 120–134 as a collection that was taken up as a unit into the final postexilic arrangement of the Psalter. Together with Ps 135–136, it came to be known in Jewish liturgy as the "Great Hallel" (in distinction from the "Egyptian Hallel"; see introduction to Ps 113). The spirit of Ps 84 pervades it

[2]Save me, O LORD, from lying lips[b] and from deceitful tongues.[c] [3]What will he do to you, and what more besides, O deceitful tongue?
[4]He will punish you with a warrior's sharp arrows,[d] with burning coals of the broom tree.
[5]Woe to me that I dwell in Meshech, that I live among the tents of Kedar![e] [6]Too long have I lived among those who hate peace.
[7]I am a man of peace;
but when I speak, they are for war.

Psalm 121

A song of ascents.

[1]I lift up my eyes to the hills—where does my help come from?
[2]My help comes from the LORD, the Maker of heaven[f] and earth.[g] [3]He will not let your foot slip—he who watches over you will not slumber; [4]indeed, he who watches[h] over Israel will neither slumber nor sleep.
[5]The LORD watches over[i] you—
the LORD is your shade at your right hand; [6]the sun[j] will not harm you by day,
nor the moon by night.
[7]The LORD will keep you from all harm[k]—
he will watch over your life;
[8]the LORD will watch over your coming and going both now and forevermore.[l]

121:6 [j]Isa 49:10
121:7 [k]S Ps 9:9
121:8 [l]Dt 28:6

(see also Ps 42–43). Whether a thematic (or some other) scheme controls the arrangement of Ps 120–134 is unclear, though it is probably not coincidental that they begin with a prayer that evokes the experience of one far from home and beset by barbarians and end with a call to praise in the sanctuary. See introduction to Ps 122.

120:2 lying lips . . . deceitful tongues. See note on 5:9.

120:3–4 Assurance that God will act (see 6:8–10 and note on 3:8).

120:3 he. The Lord. what more besides. An echo of a common oath formula (see 1Sa 3:17 and note), thus suggesting the certainty of God's judgment on the enemies.

120:4 sharp arrows . . . burning coals. As a weapon, the tongue is a sharp arrow (see Pr 25:18; Jer 9:8; see also 57:4; 64:3) and a searing fire (see Pr 16:27; Jas 3:6), and God's judgment will answer in kind (see 7:11–13; 11:6; 64:7). For judgment in kind see 63:9–10; 64:7–8 and notes. broom tree. A desert shrub, sometimes large enough to provide shade.

120:5–7 Complaint over prolonged harassment.

120:5 Meshech . . . Kedar. The former was in central Asia Minor (see note on Ge 10:2), the latter in Arabia (see note on Isa 21:16). Besieged by slanderers, the psalmist feels as if far from home, surrounded by barbarians.

Ps 121 A dialogue (perhaps liturgical) of confession and assurance. Its use as a pilgrimage song provides the key to its understanding. Whether the dialogue takes place in a single heart (cf. the refrain in Ps 42–43) or between individuals in the caravan is of no great consequence since all would share the same convictions. The comforting assurance expressed (see Ps 33) is equally appropriate for the pilgrimage to Jerusalem and for the pilgrimage of life to the "glory" into which the faithful will be received (see notes on 49:15; 73:24). The psalm is composed of four couplets, each having an introductory line, which the rest of the couplet develops. Key terms are "the LORD" and "watch over," each occurring five times.

121 title See note on Ps 120 title.

121:1–2 Confession of trust in the Lord.

121:1 hills. Those in the vicinity of Jerusalem, of which Mount Zion is one (125:2), or, if the plural indicates majesty (as in the Hebrew in 87:1; 133:3), Mount Zion itself.

121:2 Maker of heaven and earth. The one true God, the King of all creation (see 124:8; 134:3; see also 33:6; 89:11–13; 96:4–5; 104:2–9; 136:4–9).

121:3–4 Assurance concerning the unsleeping guardian over Israel.

121:3 not let your foot slip. Not even where the way is treacherous. not slumber. Like the pagan god Baal (see 1Ki 18:27).

121:4 he who watches over Israel. The Lord of all creation and the guardian over Israel—the One in whom the faithful may put unfaltering trust.

121:5–6 Assurance concerning unfailing protection.

121:5 shade. See 91:1 ("shadow") and note on 17:8. at your right hand. See 16:8 and note.

121:6 sun . . . moon. Here, in agreement with the "shade" metaphor, these serve as figures for all that distresses or threatens, day or night (see Isa 4:6; 25:4–5; 49:10; Jnh 4:8).

121:7–8 Assurance concerning all of life.

121:8 your coming and going. Lit. "your going and coming." Although the Hebrew order is like that in such military contexts as 1Sa 29:6 ("to have you serve"); 2Sa 3:25 ("your movements"), the sense here is similar to that in Dt 28:6.

Ps 122 A hymn of joy over Jerusalem (see Ps 42–43; 46; 48; 84; 87; 137 and the introductions to those psalms). Sung by a pilgrim in Jerusalem (very likely at one of the three annual festivals, Dt 16:16), it expresses his deep joy over the city and his prayer for its welfare. As the third of the pilgrimage psalms (see introduction to Ps 120), it shares many dominant themes with Ps 132, the third from the end of this collection—possibly a deliberate arrangement. Structurally, a two-verse introduction locates the worshiper with the festival throng in the city of his joy, and the major themes are developed in two stanzas of four (Hebrew) lines each. References to "the house of the LORD" (vv. 1,9) frame the song.

122 title ascents. See note on Ps 120 title. Of David. This element is not present in all ancient witnesses to the text, and the content suggests a later date (see note on v. 1).

122:1–2 Joy for having joined the pilgrimage to Jerusalem.

122:1 the house of the LORD. The temple (2Sa 7:5,13; 1Ki 5:3,5, "temple"; 8:10, "temple"). That Jerusalem became the city of pilgrimage before the dedication of the temple is doubtful in light of 1Ki 3:4; 8:1–11.

2 Our feet are standing in your gates, O Jerusalem.

3 Jerusalem is built like a city that is closely compacted together.
4 That is where the tribes go up,
the tribes of the LORD,
to praise the name of the LORD
according to the statute given to Israel.
5 There the thrones for judgment stand,
the thrones of the house of David.

6 Pray for the peace of Jerusalem:
"May those who love[m] you be secure.
7 May there be peace[n] within your walls and security within your citadels.[o]"
8 For the sake of my brothers and
friends,
I will say, "Peace be within you."
9 For the sake of the house of the LORD
our God,
I will seek your prosperity.[p]

1 If the LORD had not been on our

2 if the LORD had not been on our side

[r] S Ps 25:15
124:1 [s] Ps 129:1
124:4 [t] Ps 88:17
[u] S Ps 18:4

122:2 gates. Gateways.

122:3–5 Jerusalem's significance for the faithful.

122:3 closely compacted together. Perhaps refers to the city's well-knit construction (see Ps 48) and probably recalls the construction of the tabernacle (cf. Ex 26:11, "fasten ... together as a unit"). If so, Jerusalem is being celebrated as the earthly residence of God (see note on 9:11; see also Isa 4:5).

122:4 to praise. For God's saving acts in behalf of Israel and his blessings on the nation. name. See note on 5:11. statute given to Israel. See 81:3–5; Dt 16:1–17.

122:5 There ... the thrones of the house of David. Jerusalem is both the city of the Lord and the royal city of his chosen dynasty, through which he (ideally) protects and governs the nation (see 2:2,6–7; 89:3–4,19–37; 110; 2Sa 7:8–16 and notes). In postexilic times it remained, though now in Messianic hope, the city of David.

122:6–9 Prayers for Jerusalem's peace.

122:6 In Hebrew a beautiful wordplay tightly binds together "pray," "peace," "Jerusalem" and "be secure." peace. See vv. 7–8; includes both security and prosperity. those who love you. The psalmist, those referred to in vv. 1,8 and all who love Jerusalem because they are devoted to the Lord and his chosen king. These constitute a loving brotherhood, who worship together, pray together and seek each other's welfare as the people of God (see Ps 133).

122:7 walls ... citadels. See 48:13 ("ramparts ... citadels").

122:8–9 For the sake of ... For the sake of. Because Jerusalem is the place supreme where God and his people meet together in fruitful union, the psalmist vows to seek the city's peace.

Ps 123 A prayer of God's humble people for him to show mercy and so foil the contempt of the proud. See introduction to Ps 124. As to its structure, a one-verse introduction is followed by two couplets, each developing its own theme.

123 title See note on Ps 120 title.

123:1 whose throne is in heaven. The same God whose earthly throne is in the temple on Mount Zion (see 122:5 and note; see also 2:4; 9:11; 11:4; 80:1; 99:1; 113:5; 132:14).

123:2 slaves ... maid. Similes by which the faithful (men and women alike) present themselves as humbly dependent on God.

123:4 the proud ... the arrogant. Those who live by their own wits and strength (see notes on 10:2–11; 31:23) pour contempt on those who humbly rely on God, especially when those who rely on God suffer or do not prosper.

Ps 124 Israel's praise of the Lord for deliverance from powerful enemies—an appropriate sequel to Ps 123. Very likely a Levite speaks in vv. 1–5, while the worshipers answer in vv. 6–8. Like Ps 129 it divides into two well-balanced stanzas.

124 title ascents. See note on Ps 120 title. Of David. Not all ancient witnesses to the text contain this element, and both language and theme suggest a postexilic date (see note on Ps 122 title). It may have been assigned to David because of supposed echoes of Ps 18; 69.

124:1–5 Let Israel acknowledge that the Lord alone has saved her from extinction (see 20:7; 94:17).

124:2 men attacked. Proud and arrogant men (123:4) may attack, but the Lord is Israel's help (v. 8).

124:3 swallowed us. Like death (see note on 49:14). But see 69:15.

124:4–5 flood ... torrent ... raging waters. See 18:16; see also 32:6; 69:1–2 and notes.

124:6–8 Response of praise for deliverance—with a vivid who has not let us be torn by their teeth.

7We have escaped like a bird out of the fowler's snare;[v]
the snare has been broken,[w]
and we have escaped.
8Our help is in the name[x] of the LORD,
the Maker of heaven[y] and earth.

Psalm 125

A song of ascents.

1Those who trust in the LORD are like Mount Zion,[z]

2As the mountains surround enrichment of the imagery.

124:6 torn by their teeth. As by wild beasts (see note on 7:2).

124:7 escaped like a bird out of the fowler's snare. A most apt figure for Israel's release from Babylonian captivity.

124:8 In climax, the great confession (see 121:2 and note).

Ps 125 Israel's peace: in testimony, prayer and benediction. The psalm is most likely postexilic and was probably spoken in the temple liturgy by a Levite.

125 title See note on Ps 120 title.

125:1–2 The solid security of God's people.

125:1 Those who trust in the LORD. God's "people" (v. 2) are also characterized as "the righteous" (v. 3) and "those who are good," "who are upright in heart" (v. 4). For a similar description of the "righteous" see 34:8–14 and note. like Mount Zion. In their security (see Ps 46; 48).

125:2 mountains surround Jerusalem. Though Jerusalem is not surrounded by a ring of peaks, the city is located in what OT writers called a mountainous region. so the LORD surrounds his people. As surely, as substantially and as immovably (see 2Ki 6:17; Zec 2:5).

125:3 Wicked rulers, whether by example or by oppression, tend to corrupt even the righteous, but the Lord will preserve his people also from this corrosive threat. scepter of the wicked. Probably referring to Persian rule (see Ne 9:36–37) and its invidious underlings, such as those Nehemiah had to contend with (see Ne 2:19; 4:1–3,7–8; 6:1–14,17–19; 13:7–8,28). land allotted to the righteous. The promised land (see 78:55).

125:4–5 To each according as he is and does—that is God's way (see 18:25–27); thus the confident prayer (v. 4) and the equally confident assertion (v. 5).

125:4 heart. See note on 4:7.

125:5 Peace be upon Israel. Perhaps a concise form of the priestly benediction (Nu 6:24–26).

Ps 126 A song of joy for restoration to Zion. If not composed for those who returned from Babylonian exile (see Ezra and Nehemiah)—the place of exile is not named—it surely served to voice the joy of that restored community (cf. Ps 42–43; 84; 137). The psalm divides into two stanzas of four (Hebrew) lines each, with their initial lines sharing a common theme. Thematic unity is further served by repetition (cf. vv. 2–3) and other key words ("the LORD," "songs of joy," "carrying"). References to God's action (vv. 1,3) frame the first stanza, while v. 2 offers exposition.

126:1–3 Joy over restoration experienced.

126:1 brought back the captives. This translation and its alternative (see NIV text note here and on v. 4) have essentially the same result. dreamed. The wonder and joy of the reality were so marvelous that they hardly dared believe it. It seemed more like the dreams with which they had so long been tantalized.

126:2 The twofold effect: joy for those who returned and honor for God among the nations (see note on 46:10).

126:4–6 Prayer for restoration to be completed.

126:4 Restore our fortunes. Either complete the repatriation of exiles or fully restore the security and prosperity of former times. like streams in the Negev. Which are bone-dry in summer, until the winter rains renew their flow.

126:5–6 An apt metaphorical portrayal of the joy already experienced and the joy anticipated. in tears ... weeping. Even when sowing is accompanied by trouble or sorrow, harvest brings joy. For a related figure see 20:5.

Psalm 127

A song of ascents. Of Solomon.

1 Unless the LORD builds[v] the house, its builders labor in vain.
Unless the LORD watches[z] over the city,
the watchmen stand guard in vain.
2 In vain you rise early and stay up late,
toiling for food[a] to eat—
for he grants sleep[b] to[t] those he loves.[c]

3 Sons are a heritage from the LORD, children a reward[d] from him.
4 Like arrows[e] in the hands of a warrior are sons born in one's youth.
5 Blessed is the man whose quiver is full of them.[f]
They will not be put to shame when they contend with their enemies[g] in the gate.[h]

Psalm 128

A song of ascents.

1 Blessed are all who fear the LORD,[i] who walk in his ways.[j]
2 You will eat the fruit of your labor;[k] blessings and prosperity[l] will be yours.
3 Your wife will be like a fruitful vine[m]
within your house;
your sons[n] will be like olive shoots[o]
around your table.
4 Thus is the man blessed[p]
who fears the LORD.[q]

5 May the LORD bless you from Zion[r]
all the days of your life;
may you see the prosperity of Jerusalem,[s] 6 and may you live to see your children's children.[t]

Peace be upon Israel.[u]

[t] 2 Or eat— / for while they sleep he provides for

Ps 127 Godly wisdom concerning home and hearth. Its theme is timeless; it reminded the pilgrims on their way to Jerusalem that all of life's securities and blessings are gifts from God rather than their own achievements (see Dt 28:1–14). Two balanced stanzas develop, respectively, two distinct but related themes.

127 title ascents. See note on Ps 120 title. Of Solomon. If Solomon was not the author (not all witnesses to the text ascribe it to him), it is easy to see why some thought him so.

127:1–2 It is the Lord who provides shelter, security and food.

127:1 house. Domestic shelter. builders. The Hebrew for this word is a pun on that for "Sons" in v. 3. watches over. See 121:3–8. city. The center of power, the refuge when enemies invade the land. watchmen. See 2Sa 13:34; 18:24–27; SS 3:3; 5:7.

127:2 he grants sleep. A good harvest is not the achievement of endless toil, but it is the result of God's blessing (see Pr 10:22; Mt 6:25–34; 1Pe 5:7). those he loves. See especially Dt 33:12; Jer 11:15.

127:3–5 Children are God's gift and a sign of his favor.

127:3 Sons. See note on v. 1. Children too are a gift—not the mere product of virility and fertility (see 113:9 and note; Ge 30:2). heritage. Emphasis here is on gift rather than possession. But perhaps more is implied. In the OT economy, an Israelite's "inheritance" from the Lord was first of all property in the promised land (Nu 26:53; Jos 11:23; Jdg 2:6), which provided a sure place in the life and "rest" (Jos 1:13) of the Lord's kingdom. But without children the inheritance in the land would be lost (Nu 27:8–11), so that offspring were a heritage in a double sense. reward from him. Bestowed by God on one who stands in his favor because he has been faithful.

127:5 when they contend with their enemies. Fathers with many sons have many defenders when falsely accused in court. Moreover, the very fact that they have many sons as God's "reward" (v. 3) testifies to God's favor toward them (in effect, they are God-provided character witnesses; see 128:3–4). in the gate. For "(city) gate" as court see Dt 17:5; 21:19; 22:15,24; 25:7; Ru 4:1; Isa 29:21 ("court"); Am 5:12 ("courts").

Ps 128 The blessedness of the godly man; another word of wisdom concerning hearth and home (see Ps 127). The concluding benediction suggests that the psalm originally served as a Levitical (or priestly) word of instruction to those assembled from their homes to worship in Jerusalem. Its date may well be preexilic. Structurally, the frame ("who fear[s] the LORD") around vv. 1–4 sets off those verses as the main body of the psalm.

128 title See note on Ps 120 title.

128:1–4 Blessedness affirmed.

128:1 Blessed. See note on 1:1. fear the LORD. See note on 34:8–14. his ways. See note on 25:4.

128:2 Blessings upon labor.

128:3 A faithful and fruitful wife. vine. Symbol of fruitfulness (Ge 49:22)—and perhaps also of sexual charms (SS 7:8–12) and festivity (Jdg 9:13). within your house. She is not like the faithless wife whose "feet never stay at home" (Pr 7:11). olive shoots. Ever green and with the promises of both long life and productivity (of staples: wood, fruit, oil). The vine and the olive tree are frequently paired in the OT (as, e.g., in Ex 23:11). Both were especially long-lived, and they produced the wine and the oil that played such a central role in the lives of the people. around your table. Converting each family meal into a banquet of domestic joys.

128:5–6 The benediction pronounced—completing the scope of true blessedness: unbroken prosperity, secure relationship with God and secure national existence (the prosperity of Jerusalem entailed both), and long life.

128:5 from Zion. See 9:11 and note; 20:2; 135:21.

128:6 Peace be upon Israel. See 125:5 and note.

Ps 129 Israel's prayer for the continued withering of all 2they have greatly oppressed me from my youth, but they have not gained the victory[y] over me.

3Plowmen have plowed my back and made their furrows long.
4But the LORD is righteous;[z]
he has cut me free[a] from the cords of the wicked.[b]

5May all who hate Zion[c] be turned back in shame.[d] 6May they be like grass on the roof,[e] which withers[f] before it can grow; 7with it the reaper cannot fill his hands,[g]
nor the one who gathers fill his arms.
8May those who pass by not say,
"The blessing of the LORD be upon you;
we bless you[h] in the name of the LORD."

Psalm 130

A song of ascents.

1Out of the depths[i] I cry to you,[j] O LORD;
2 O Lord, hear my voice.[k]
Let your ears be attentive[l] to my cry for mercy.[m]

3If you, O LORD, kept a record of sins,
O Lord, who could stand?[n] 4But with you there is forgiveness;[o] therefore you are feared.[p]

5I wait for the LORD,[q] my soul waits,[r] and in his word[s] I put my hope.
6My soul waits for the Lord
more than watchmen[t] wait for the morning, more than watchmen wait for the morning.[u]

7O Israel, put your hope[v] in the LORD, for with the LORD is unfailing love[w]
and with him is full redemption.[x] 8He himself will redeem[y] Israel from all their sins.[z]

Psalm 131

A song of ascents. Of David.

1My heart is not proud,[a] O LORD, my eyes are not haughty;[b]
I do not concern myself with great matters[c] or things too wonderful for me.[d] 2But I have stilled and quieted my soul;[e] like a weaned child with its mother, like a weaned child is my soul[f] within me.

her powerful enemies. The rescue celebrated (v. 4) is probably from Babylonian exile. Against the background of Ps 124–128, this prayer for the withholding of God's blessing is set in sharp relief. Like Ps 124 (with which Ps 129 shares other affinities), the psalm is composed of two nicely balanced stanzas.

129 title See note on Ps 120 title.

129:1–4 The wicked oppressors have not prevailed.

129:1 from my youth. From the time Israel was enslaved in Egypt, she has suffered much at the hands of hostile powers.

129:2 have not gained the victory. Have not succeeded in their efforts to destroy Israel totally or to hold her permanently in bondage.

129:4 righteous. See note on 4:1.

129:5–8 May all who hate Zion wither.

129:5 See note on 5:10.

129:6 like grass on the roof. May those who would "plow" the backs of Israel (see v. 3) wither like grass that sprouts on the flat, sunbaked housetops, where no plow can prepare a nurturing soil to sustain the young shoots—and so there is no harvest (v. 7).

129:8 those who pass by. Whoever may pass by the harvesters in the fields will exchange no joyful greetings (Ru 2:4) because the hands of the harvesters will be empty.

Ps 130 A testimony of trust in the Lord—by one who knows that even though he is a sinner, the Lord hears his cry out of the depths. The language of the psalm suggests a postexilic date. This is the sixth of seven penitential psalms (see introduction to Ps 6). Composed of four couplets, the psalm further divides into two halves of two couplets each.

130 title See note on Ps 120 title.

130:1–4 A prayer for mercy, and grounds for assurance.

130:1 the depths. As in 69:2 (see notes on 30:1; 32:6).

130:4 there is forgiveness. No doubt recalling such reassuring words as Ex 34:6–7. feared. Honored, worshiped, trusted and served as the one true God. If God were not forgiving, people could only flee from him in terror.

130:5–8 Trust in the Lord: a personal testimony, expanding into a reassuring invitation (see 131:3).

130:5 I wait. In hopeful expectation. my soul. See note on 6:3. his word. Especially his covenant promises (see 119:25,28,37,42,49,65,74,81,107,114,147).

130:6 watchmen. See 127:1; 2Sa 13:34; 18:24–27; SS 3:3; 5:7. the morning. See introduction to Ps 57; see also note on 59:9.

130:7 unfailing love. See note on 6:4.

130:8 from all their sins. From the root of trouble—but also from all its consequences. This greatest of all hopes has been fulfilled in Christ.

Ps 131 A confession of humble trust in the Lord—appropriately placed next to Ps 130.

131 title ascents. See note on Ps 120 title.

131:1 heart. See note on 4:7. proud ... haughty. More than all else, it is human pride that pits man against God (see note on 31:23; cf. 2Sa 6:21–22). concern myself with. (Presume to) walk among, live among, be party to. great matters ... too wonderful for me. Heroic exploits or achievements to rival, if not substitute for, the mighty works of God. The focus seems to be on not claiming Godlike powers (thus trusting in God for deliverance and blessing) rather than on seeking (or claiming) Godlike understanding.

131:2 soul. See note on 6:3. weaned child. A child of four or five who walks trustingly beside his mother.

3 O Israel, put your hope[g] in the LORD both now and forevermore.[h]

Psalm 132

132:8–10pp — 2Ch 6:41–42

A song of ascents.

1 O LORD, remember David and all the hardships he endured.[i] 2 He swore an oath to the LORD and made a vow to the Mighty One of Jacob:[j]
3 "I will not enter my house[k] or go to my bed—4 I will allow no sleep to my eyes,
no slumber to my eyelids,
5 till I find a place[l] for the LORD, a dwelling for the Mighty One of Jacob."
6 We heard it in Ephrathah,[m]
we came upon it in the fields of Jaar[g:h][n]
7 "Let us go to his dwelling place;[o]
let us worship at his footstool[p]— 8 arise, O LORD,[q] and come to your resting place,
you and the ark of your might.
9 May your priests be clothed with righteousness;[r]
may your saints[s] sing for joy." 10 For the sake of David your servant,
do not reject your anointed one.
11 The LORD swore an oath to David,[t] a sure oath that he will not revoke:
"One of your own descendants[u]
I will place on your throne—12 if your sons keep my covenant[v] and the statutes I teach them, then their sons will sit on your throne[w] for ever and ever."

[g] 6 That is, Kiriath Jearim [h] 6 Or heard of it in Ephrathah, / we found it in the fields of Jaar. (And no quotes around verses 7-9)

131:3 As he has done, so ought all Israel—for all time.

Ps 132 A prayer for God's favor on the son of David who reigns on David's throne—as the structure makes clear (and see note on v. 10). Its language suggests a date early in the monarchy. The venerable belief that it was composed for the dedication of the temple may be correct (compare vv. 8–10 with 2Ch 6:41–42), but the possibility cannot be ruled out that it was used in the coronation ritual (cf. Ps 2; 72; 110). The author of Chronicles places the prayer (or a portion of it) on the lips of the king himself. In the postexilic liturgy it had Messianic implications.

Two verses of petition (vv. 1,10) are each followed (in Hebrew) by two four-line stanzas, all having an identical form: an introductory line followed by a three-line quotation (see the structure of these quotations). A final couplet brings the prayer to its climactic conclusion. The four stanzas, together with the final couplet, ground the prayer made in vv. 1,10. Verses 2–9 appeal to David's oath to the Lord to find a "place" for the Lord and to his bringing the ark to its "resting place," while vv. 11–18 appeal to the Lord's oath to David and to his election of Zion as his "resting place" (but see note on v. 10).

132:1 remember. See 20:3; see also 1Ki 11:12–13; 15:4–5. hardships. Those he took on himself in his vow (vv. 2–5; see Nu 30:13, where the same technical term for a self-denying oath is used).

132:2 He swore an oath. This prayer for David's son is grounded in the special relationship between David and the Lord, as epitomized in their mutual oaths (see vv. 11–12). In 2Sa 6–7, which narrates the events here recalled, David's oath is not mentioned. LORD . . . Mighty One of Jacob. See v. 5; Isa 1:24; see also note on 3:7. Jacob. A synonym for Israel (see Ge 32:28).

132:6 it . . . it. Often thought to refer to the ark (see second NIV text note), but more likely it refers to the call to worship that follows (in Hebrew the pronoun is feminine, but the Hebrew for "ark" is masculine). Ephrathah. The region around Bethlehem, David's hometown (see Ru 4:11; Mic 5:2). fields of Jaar. See first NIV text note; see also 2Sa 6:2 and first NIV text note there. The call to worship is depicted as emanating from David's city and the city where the ark had been since the days of Samuel (see 1Sa 7:1). The call appears to come from a time after the temple had been built—thus involving a poetic compression of events.

132:7 footstool. See 99:5 and note.

132:8 arise. Although the Hebrew omits (a common feature in Hebrew poetry) an introductory word, such as "saying," vv. 8–9 are probably words on the lips of the worshipers. See introduction to Ps 24. resting place. As the promised land was Israel's place of rest at the end of her wanderings (see Nu 10:33; Jos 1:13; Mic 2:10), so the temple was the Lord's resting place after he had been moving about in a tent (see 2Sa 7:6; see also 1Ch 28:2). The expression may suggest that the temple was the place of God's throne (v. 14). ark of your might. See note on 78:61.

132:9 clothed with. Beyond their normal priestly garb—may their ministry bear the character of (see Job 29:14; Pr 31:25), i.e., result in. righteousness. Since the corresponding word in v. 16 is "salvation," the same word used by the author of Chronicles when quoting this verse (2Ch 6:41), and since "righteousness" and "salvation" are often paralleled (40:10; 51:14; 71:15; 98:2; Isa 45:8; 46:13; 51:5–6; 56:1; 59:17; 60:17–18; 61:10; 62:1), the reference is clearly to God's righteousness that effects the salvation of his people (see note on 4:1). saints. See note on 4:3.

132:10 See v. 1. your servant. See note on Ps 18 title. do not reject. Do not refuse his petitions (as in 1Ki 2:16–17,20; see 1Ki 8:59; 2Ch 6:41–42). If, as some have proposed, the petitions in vv. 1,10 form a frame around the first half of the psalm, the second half offers assurance that the prayer will be heard (perhaps spoken by a priest or Levite). In any event, David's vow to provide the Lord a dwelling place, which would be for his royal sons and for Israel a house of prayer (see 1Ki 8:27–53; 9:3; 2Ch 7:15–16; Isa 56:7), is made the basis for the appeal that God will hear his anointed's prayer. your anointed one. See note on 2:2.

132:11–12 The Lord's covenant with David is recalled, as grounds for the prayer. These and vv. 13–18 are a poetic recollection of 1Ki 9:1–5 (see 2Ch 7:11–18).

132:11 swore an oath. See v. 2 and note. 2Sa 7 does not mention an oath, but elsewhere God's promise to David is called a covenant (89:3,28,34,39; 2Sa 23:5; Isa 55:3), and covenants were made on oath. will not revoke. See 110:4.

132:12 covenant . . . statutes. The stipulations of the Sinai covenant, which all Israelites were to keep (see 1Sa 10:25 and note; see also 1Ki 2:3–4).

13For the LORD has chosen Zion,[x]
he has desired it for his dwelling:[y] 14"This is my resting place for ever and ever;[z] here I will sit enthroned,[a] for I have desired it—15I will bless her with abundant provisions;
her poor will I satisfy with food.[b] 16I will clothe her priests[c] with salvation, and her saints will ever sing for joy.[d] 17"Here I will make a horn[i] grow[e] for David and set up a lamp[f] for my anointed one.[g] 18I will clothe his enemies with shame,[h]
but the crown on his head[i] will be resplendent."

2It is like precious oil poured on the head,[l] running down on the beard, running down on Aaron's beard,
down upon the collar of his robes.
3It is as if the dew[m] of Hermon[n] were falling on Mount Zion.[o]
For there the LORD bestows his blessing,[p]

3May the LORD, the Maker of heaven[x] and earth, bless you from Zion.[y]

Psalm 135

135:15–20pp — Ps 115:4–11

1Praise the LORD.[j]
Praise the name of the LORD;

[i] 17 Horn here symbolizes strong one, that is, king.
[j] 1 Hebrew Hallelu Yah; also in verses 3 and 21

132:13–16 The Lord's election of Zion recalled, as grounds for the prayer.
132:13 desired it for his dwelling. David's and the Lord's desires harmonize (see Dt 12:5–14).
132:15 The Lord enthroned in his resting place (see vv. 8,14) will bless the land, making it a place of rest for his people (see Dt 12:9; Jos 1:13; 1Ki 5:4).
132:16 See note on v. 9.
132:17–18 Concluding word of assurance, which addresses the petition (vv. 1,10) directly and climactically.
132:17 horn. The Lord's anointed (see NIV text note). grow. Like a plant or branch. set up a lamp for. See note on 1Ki 11:36.
132:18 clothe ... with shame. In contrast with v. 16. be resplendent. Lit. "blossom"—subtly evoking the imagery: grow (v. 17) and blossom.
Ps 133 A song in praise of brotherly unity among the people of God. If David was the author (see title), he may have been moved to write it by some such occasion as when, after many years of conflict, all Israel came to Hebron to make him king (2Sa 5:1–3). The first and last (Hebrew) lines (vv. 1,3b) frame the whole with the song's main theme. Next to these an inner frame (lines 2,4) elaborates with two striking complementary similes (vv. 2a,3a). The center line (v. 2b) extends the first simile.
133 title ascents. See note on Ps 120 title. Of David. Not all textual sources ascribe the psalm to him.
133:1 good and pleasant. See 135:3; 147:1.
133:2 like precious oil ... on Aaron's beard ... upon the collar of his robes. The oil of Aaron's anointing (Ex 29:7; Lev 21:10) saturated all the hair of his beard and ran down on his priestly robes, signifying his total consecration to holy service. Similarly, brotherly harmony sanctifies God's people.
133:3 dew of Hermon ... on Mount Zion. A dew as profuse as that of Mount Hermon would make Mount Zion (or the mountains of Zion) richly fruitful (see Ge 27:28; Hag 1:10; Zec 8:12). So would brotherly unity make Israel richly fruitful. The two similes (vv. 2–3) are well chosen: God's blessings flowed to Israel through the priestly ministrations at the sanctuary (Ex 29:44–46; Lev 9:22–24; Nu 6:24–26)—epitomizing God's redemptive mercies—and through heaven's dew that sustained life in the fields—epitomizing God's providential mercies in the creation order. life. The great covenant blessing (see Dt 30:15,19–20; 32:47).
Ps 134 A liturgy of praise—a brief exchange between the worshipers, as they are about to leave the temple after the evening service, and the Levites, who kept the temple watch through the night. In the Psalter it concludes the "songs of ascent," as Ps 117 concludes a collection of Hallelujah psalms (Ps 111–117). Its date is probably postexilic.
134 title See note on Ps 120 title.
134:1–2 The departing worshipers call on the Levites to continue the praise of the Lord through the night (see 1Ch 9:33).
134:2 Lift up your hands. See 63:4.
134:3 One of the Levites responds with a benediction on the worshipers (see note on 121:2; see also 124:8; 128:5).
Ps 135 A call to praise the Lord—the one true God: Lord of all creation, Lord over all the nations, Israel's Redeemer. No doubt postexilic, it echoes many lines found elsewhere in the OT. It was clearly composed for the temple liturgy. For its place in the Great Hallel see note on Ps 120 title. Framed with "Hallelujahs" (as are also Ps 146–150), its first and last stanzas are also calls to praise. Recital of God's saving acts for Israel in Egypt and Canaan (vv. 8–12) makes up the middle of seven stanzas, while the remaining four constitute two pairs related to each other by theme and language (vv. 3–4, 13–14; vv. 5–7, 15–18).

praise him, you servants[z] of the LORD, 2you who minister in the house[a] of the LORD,
in the courts[b] of the house of our God.

3Praise the LORD, for the LORD is good;[c] sing praise to his name,[d] for that is pleasant.[e] 4For the LORD has chosen Jacob[f] to be his own,
Israel to be his treasured possession.[g]

5I know that the LORD is great,[h] that our Lord is greater than all gods.[i] 6The LORD does whatever pleases him,[j] in the heavens and on the earth,[k] in the seas and all their depths.
7He makes clouds rise from the ends of the earth;
he sends lightning with the rain[l] and brings out the wind[m] from his storehouses.[n]

8He struck down the firstborn[o] of Egypt,
the firstborn of men and animals.
9He sent his signs[p] and wonders into your midst, O Egypt, against Pharaoh and all his servants.[q] 10He struck down many[r] nations and killed mighty kings—
11Sihon[s] king of the Amorites,[t]
Og king of Bashan[u]
and all the kings of Canaan[v]— 12and he gave their land as an inheritance,[w] an inheritance to his people Israel.

13Your name, O LORD, endures forever,[x] your renown,[y] O LORD, through all generations.
14For the LORD will vindicate his people[z] and have compassion on his servants.[a] 15The idols of the nations[b] are silver and gold, made by the hands of men.[c] 16They have mouths, but cannot speak,[d] eyes, but they cannot see; 17they have ears, but cannot hear,

nor is there breath[e] in their mouths.
18Those who make them will be like them,
and so will all who trust in them.

19O house of Israel, praise the LORD;[f]
O house of Aaron, praise the LORD; 20O house of Levi, praise the LORD;
you who fear him, praise the LORD.
21Praise be to the LORD from Zion,[g]
to him who dwells in Jerusalem.[h]

Praise the LORD.

135:1–2 Initial call to praise, addressed to priests and Levites (see 134:1–2).
135:1,3,13 name. See note on 5:11.
135:3–4 A central reason for Israel to praise the Lord (see vv. 13–14).
135:3 that is pleasant. See 133:1. Or "he (the Lord) is beautiful" (see 27:4 and note).
135:4 Jacob. A synonym for Israel (see Ge 32:28). his treasured possession. See Ex 19:5 and note.
135:5–7 The Lord is great as well as good (v. 3); he is the absolute Lord in all creation (cf. the word about idols in vv. 15–18; see Jer 10:11–16; see also 115:3 and 96:5; 97:7 and notes).
135:6 does whatever pleases him. The idols can do nothing (vv. 16–17); they are themselves "done" (made) by their worshipers (v. 18). heavens ... earth ... seas. The three great domains of the visible creation, as the ancients viewed it (see Ge 1:8–10 and introduction to Ps 104).
135:7 He makes clouds. The Lord, not Baal or any other god, brings the life-giving rains (see Ps 29). wind. See 104:4; 148:8. The idols do not even have any "wind" (breath) in their mouths (v. 17). storehouses. See 33:7 and note; Job 38:22.
135:8–12 The Lord's triumph over Egypt and over the kings whose lands became Israel's inheritance, a concise recollection of Ex 7–14; Nu 21:21–35; Joshua.
135:13–14 See vv. 3–4 and note.
135:14 vindicate. Uphold against all attacks by the world powers both Israel's cause and her claim that the Lord is the only true God. have compassion on. See Ex 34:6–7. his servants. His covenant people.
135:15–18 The powerlessness of the false gods and of those who trust in them (see vv. 5–7 and note; see also 115:4–8 and notes).
135:19–21 Concluding call to praise, addressed to all who are assembled at the temple (see 115:9–11; 118:2–4).
Ps 136 A liturgy of praise to the Lord as Creator and as Israel's Redeemer. Its theme and many of its verses parallel much of Ps 135. Most likely a Levitical song leader led the recital, while the Levitical choir (1Ch 16:41; 2Ch 5:13; Ezr 3:11) or the worshipers (2Ch 7:3,6; 20:21) responded with the refrain (see 106:1; 107:1; 118:1–4,29). This liturgy concludes the Great Hallel (see note on Ps 120 title). Following the initial call to praise (vv. 1–3), the recital devotes six verses to God's creation acts (vv. 4–9), six to his deliverance of Israel out of Egypt (vv. 10–15), one to the desert journey (v. 16) and six to the conquest (vv. 17–22). The four concluding verses return to the same basic themes in reverse order: God's action in history in behalf of his people

2Give thanks[l] to the God of gods.[m]
3Give thanks[n] to the Lord of lords:[o]
His love endures forever.
4to him who alone does great wonders,[p]
His love endures forever.

Psalm 137

1By the rivers of Babylon[t] we sat and wept[u] when we remembered Zion.[v] 2There on the poplars[w]
we hung our harps,[x] 3for there our captors[y] asked us for songs, our tormentors demanded[z] songs of joy;
they said, "Sing us one of the songs of Zion!"[a] 4How can we sing the songs of the LORD[b]
while in a foreign land?
5If I forget you,[c] O Jerusalem,

(vv. 23–24), God's action in the creation order (v. 25) and a closing call to praise (v. 26).

136:1–3,26 Give thanks to. Or "Praise" (see 7:17 and note).

136:2 the God of gods. See Dt 10:17; see also 135:5.

136:5 by his understanding. See Pr 3:19; Jer 10:12.

136:6 upon the waters. See 24:2 and note.

136:7–9 Direct echoes of Ge 1:16.

136:23–24 Probably a concluding summary of the deliverance recalled above, but may allude also to the deliverances experienced during the period of the judges and the reign of David.

136:26 the God of heaven. A Persian title for God (see note on Ezr 1:2) found frequently in Ezra, Nehemiah and Daniel. Its intent is similar to that of the language of vv. 2–3.

Ps 137 A plaintive song of the exile—of one who has recently returned from Babylon but in whose soul there lingers the bitter memory of the years in a foreign land and of the cruel events that led to that enforced stay. Here speaks the same deep love of Zion as that found in Ps 42–43; 46; 48; 84; 122; 126. The 12 poetic lines of the Hebrew song divide symmetrically into three stanzas of four lines each: the remembered sorrow and torment (vv. 1–3), an oath of total commitment to Jerusalem (vv. 4–6), a call for retribution on Edom and Babylon (vv. 7–9).

137:1 rivers. The Tigris and Euphrates and the many canals associated with them. we sat. Again and again the thought of their forced separation from Zion brought them down to the posture of mourning (see Job 2:8,13; La 2:10).

137:2 we hung our harps. "The joyful harp is silent" (Isa 24:8) because the callous Babylonians demanded exotic entertainment with the joyful songs of distant Zion, while the exiles' instruments were only "tuned to mourning" (Job 30:31).

137:4–6 Only he whose heart had disowned the Lord and his holy city Jerusalem could play the puppet on a Babylonian stage. But may I never play the harp again or sing may my right hand forget ⌊its skill⌋.

6 May my tongue cling to the roof[d] of my mouth
if I do not remember[e] you, if I do not consider Jerusalem[f]
my highest joy.

7 Remember, O LORD, what the Edomites[g] did on the day Jerusalem fell.[h]
"Tear it down," they cried,
"tear it down to its foundations!"[i]

8 O Daughter of Babylon, doomed to destruction,[j] happy is he who repays you for what you have done to us—9 he who seizes your infants and dashes them[k] against the rocks.

Psalm 138

Of David.

1 I will praise you, O LORD, with all my heart;
before the "gods"[l] I will sing[m] your praise.
2 I will bow down toward your holy temple[n]
and will praise your name[o]
for your love and your faithfulness,[p] for you have exalted above all things your name and your word.[q] 3 When I called,[r] you answered me;[s]
you made me bold[t] and stouthearted.[u]

4 May all the kings of the earth[v] praise you, O LORD, when they hear the words of your mouth.
5 May they sing[w] of the ways of the LORD, for the glory of the LORD[x] is great.

6 Though the LORD is on high, he looks upon the lowly,[y]
but the proud[z] he knows from afar.
7 Though I walk[a] in the midst of trouble, you preserve my life;[b]
you stretch out your hand[c] against the anger of my foes,[d] with your right hand[e] you save me.[f] 8 The LORD will fulfill ⌊his purpose⌋[g] for me;
your love, O LORD, endures forever[h]—

another syllable if I am untrue to that beloved city!

137:7–9 Lord, remember Edom; and as for you, Babylon, I bless whoever does to you what you did to Jerusalem: a passionate call for redress from a loyal son of the ravaged city (see note on 5:10).

137:7 Edomites. The agelong animosity of Edom—descendants of Esau, Jacob's brother—showed its most dastardly face in Jerusalem's darkest hour. No doubt the author knew the Lord's judgments against that nation announced by the prophets (Isa 63:1–4; Jer 49:7–22; Eze 25:8,12–14; 35; Obadiah). Tear it down. Lit. "Strip her"—cities were conventionally portrayed as women. La 4:21 anticipates that Edom will be punished by suffering the same humiliation.

137:8 Daughter. A personification of Babylon and its inhabitants. doomed to destruction. The author may have known the Lord's announced judgments on this cruel destroyer (Isa 13; 21:1–10; 47; Jer 50–51; Hab 2:4–20).

137:9 your infants. War was as cruel then as now; women and children were not spared (see 2Ki 8:12; 15:16; Isa 13:16,18; Hos 10:14; 13:16; Am 1:13; Na 3:10). For the final announcement of the destruction of the "Babylon" that persists in its warfare against the City of God, and the joy with which that announcement is greeted, see Rev 18:1–19:4.

Ps 138 A royal song of praise for God's saving help against threatening foes. In many respects it is like Ps 18, though it is more concise and direct. Two (Hebrew) four-line stanzas (vv. 1–3, 6–8) develop the main theme; at the center a two-line stanza (vv. 4–5) expands the praise of the Lord to a universal company of earth's royalty.

138 title This begins a collection of eight "Davidic" psalms (Ps 138–145): six prayers framed by two psalms of praise.

138:1–3 Praise for God's faithful love shown in answer to prayers for help.

138:1 heart. See note on 4:7. gods. Either pagan kings (see vv. 4–5) or the gods they claimed to represent (see introduction to Ps 82; see also note on 82:1).

138:2 your holy temple. If David is in fact the author, reference is to the tent he set up for the ark (2Sa 6:17)—many psalms ascribed to David refer to the "temple" (see, e.g., 5:7; 11:4; 18:6; 27:4; see also Ps 30 title). name. See note on 5:11. love and . . . faithfulness. See note on 36:5. love. See v. 8; see also note on 6:4. your word. Especially God's promises. God's display of his love and faithfulness in his answers to prayer (v. 3) has made his name and promises more precious than all else that even a king may possess.

138:4–5 The center of the poem (see note on 6:6): a wish and hope that all the kings of earth may come to join him in his praise of the Lord (see note on 9:1).

138:4 words of your mouth. God's grand commitments to his people.

138:5 ways of the LORD. See 25:10 and note. God's words and his ways are in harmony, and together they display his great glory (see Ps 145).

138:6–8 A testimony to God's condescending and faithful love, concluded with a prayer.

138:6 See 113:4–9 and notes. looks. With favor. the proud. See notes on 31:23; 101:5; 131:1. knows from afar. Already from a great distance recognizes them for what they are and so does not let them "see his face" (see note on 11:7).

138:8 will fulfill ⌊his purpose⌋. See note on 57:2. works of your hands. The king himself, whom the Lord had made. The Hebrew often uses plurals to refer to God or the king.

Psalm 139

For the director of music. Of David.
A psalm.

[1]O LORD, you have searched me[k]
and you know[l] me.
[2]You know when I sit and when I rise;[m]
you perceive my thoughts[n] from afar.
[3]You discern my going out[o] and my lying down;
you are familiar with all my ways.[p]
[4]Before a word is on my tongue you know it completely,[q] O LORD.
[5]You hem me in[r]—behind and before;
you have laid your hand upon me.
[6]Such knowledge is too wonderful for me,[s]
too lofty[t] for me to attain.
[7]Where can I go from your Spirit?
Where can I flee[u] from your presence?
[8]If I go up to the heavens,[v] you are there;
if I make my bed[w] in the depths,[1]
you are there.
[9]If I rise on the wings of the dawn,
if I settle on the far side of the sea, [10]even there your hand will guide me,[x]
your right hand[y] will hold me fast.
[11]If I say, "Surely the darkness will hide
me
and the light become night around
me," [12]even the darkness will not be dark[z]
to you;
the night will shine like the day,
for darkness is as light to you.
[13]For you created my inmost being;[a] you knit me together[b] in my mother's womb.[c] [14]I praise you[d] because I am fearfully and wonderfully made;
your works are wonderful,[e]
I know that full well.
[15]My frame was not hidden from you when I was made[f] in the secret place.
When I was woven together[g] in the depths of the earth,[h] [16] your eyes saw my unformed body.

[1]8 Hebrew Sheol

Ps 139 A prayer for God to examine the heart and see its true devotion. Like Job, the author firmly claims his loyalty to the Lord. Nowhere (outside Job) does one find expressed such profound awareness of how awesome it is to ask God to examine not only one's life but also his soul—God, who knows every thought, word and deed, from whom there is no hiding, who has been privy even to one's formation in the dark concealment of the womb. The thought progresses steadily in four poetic paragraphs of six verses each (vv. 1–6, 7–12, 13–18, 19–24), and each paragraph is concluded with a couplet that elaborates on the unit's central theme. References to God's searching and knowing begin and end the prayer.

139:1–6 God, you know me perfectly, far beyond my knowledge of myself: my every action (v. 2a), my every undertaking (v. 3a) and the manner in which I pursue it (v. 3b), even my thoughts before they are fully crystallized (v. 2b) and my words before they are uttered (v. 4).

139:5 You hem me in. To keep me under scrutiny. laid your hand upon me. So that I do not escape you. The figures are different in Job 13:27, but the thought is much the same. hand. Or "hands."

139:6 too wonderful for me. Yours is a "wonder" knowledge, beyond my human capacity—the Hebrew term regularly applies to God's wondrous acts (see 77:11,14, "miracles"; Ex 15:11).

139:7–12 There is no hiding from you—here no abstract doctrine of divine omnipresence but an awed confession that God cannot be escaped (see Jer 23:23–24).

139:7 your Spirit ... your presence. See 51:11; Isa 63:9–10; Eze 39:29 ("face ... Spirit").

139:8 the heavens ... the depths. The two vertical extremes (see NIV text note).

139:9 wings of the dawn ... far side of the sea. The two horizontal extremes: east and west (the sea is the Mediterranean). Using a literary figure in which the totality is denoted by referring to its two extremes (merism), vv. 8–9 specify all spatial reality, the whole creation.

139:10 guide me ... hold me fast. Though this language occurs in 73:23–24 to indicate God's solicitous care, it here denotes God's inescapable supervision, not unlike the thought of v. 5.

139:11–12 Just as the whole creation offers no hiding place (vv. 8–9), neither does even the darkness.

139:13–16 You yourself put me together in the womb and ordained the span of my life before I was born.

139:13 created. The Hebrew for this verb is the same as in Ge 14:19,22; Pr 8:22 ("brought ... forth"), not as in Ge 1:1,21,27. inmost being. Lit. "kidneys"—in Hebrew idiom, the innermost center of emotions and of moral sensitivity—that which God tests and examines when he "searches" a person (see note on 7:9).

139:14 fearfully ... wonderfully ... wonderful. You know me as the One who formed me (see vv. 15–16), but I cannot begin to comprehend this creature you have fashioned. I can only look upon him with awe and wonder (see note on v. 6)—and praise you (see Ecc 11:5).

139:15 secret place ... depths of the earth. Reference is to the womb: called "the secret place" because it normally conceals (see 2Sa 12:12), and it shares with "the depths of the earth" (see note on 30:1) associations with darkness, dampness and separation from the visible realm of life. Moreover, both phrases refer to the place of the dead (63:9; Job 14:13; Isa 44:23; 45:19), with which on one level the womb appears to have been associated: Man comes from the dust and returns to the dust (90:3; Ge 3:19; Ecc 3:20; 12:7), and the womb is the "depth"-like place where he is formed (see Isa 44:2,24; 49:5; Jer 1:5).

139:16 All the days ordained. The span of life sovereignly determined. your book. The heavenly royal register of God's decisions (see note on 56:8).

All the days ordained[i] for me were written in your book before one of them came to be.

17How precious to[m] me are your thoughts,[j] O God![k]
How vast is the sum of them!
18Were I to count them,[l] they would outnumber the grains of sand.[m]
When I awake,[n]
I am still with you.

19If only you would slay the wicked,[o]
O God!
Away from me,[p] you bloodthirsty men![q] 20They speak of you with evil intent;
your adversaries[r] misuse your name.[s] 21Do I not hate those[t] who hate you,
O LORD,
and abhor[u] those who rise up against you?
22I have nothing but hatred for them;
I count them my enemies.[v]

23Search me,[w] O God, and know my heart;[x]
test me and know my anxious thoughts.
24See if there is any offensive way[y] in
me,
and lead me[z] in the way
everlasting.

[m] 17 Or concerning

139:17 your thoughts. As expressed in his works—and in contrast with "my thoughts" (v. 2).

139:18 When I awake. The sleep of exhaustion overcomes every attempt to count God's thoughts/works (see 63:6; 119:148), and waking only floods my soul once more with the sense of the presence of this God.

139:19–22 My zeal for you sets me against all your adversaries.

139:19 If only. Jealous impatience with God's patience toward the wicked—whose end will come (Isa 11:4). But the psalmist leaves it to God.

139:20 misuse your name. Perhaps by calling down curses on those trying to be the faithful servants of God.

139:21–22 A declaration of loyalty that echoes the pledge required by ancient Near Eastern kings of their vassals (e.g., "With my friend you shall be friend, and with my enemy you shall be enemy," from a treaty between Mursilis II, a Hittite king, and Tette of Nuhassi, 14th century B.C.).

139:23–24 Examine me, see the integrity of my devotion and keep me true (see 17:3–5 and note).

139:23 heart. See note on 4:7. anxious thoughts. See 94:19. It is no light matter to be examined by God.

139:24 the way everlasting. See note on 16:9–11.

Ps 140 A prayer for deliverance from the plots and slander of unscrupulous enemies. It recalls Ps 58; 64 but employs a number of words found nowhere else in the OT. Four well-balanced stanzas are followed by a two-verse conclusion. The prayer is strikingly rich in physiological allusions: heart, head, tongue, lips, hands, feet—also ears (lit. "Give ear to," v. 6) and teeth (by a wordplay on the Hebrew for "make sharp," v. 3). See Ps 141.

140 title For the director of music. See note on Ps 4 title. of David. See note on Ps 138 title.

140:1–3 Rescue me from those "vipers."

140:2 hearts. See note on 4:7.

140:3 tongues. See note on 5:9. poison of vipers. See 58:4 and note.

140:4–5 Protect me from those proud and wicked hunters (see 10:2–11 and notes).

140:5 Proud men. See note on 31:23.

140:6–8 Do not let these wicked men attain their evil designs against me.

140:9–11 Let the harm they plot against me recoil on their heads (see note on 5:10).

140:10 burning coals. See note on 11:6. fire ... miry pits. This combination, together with the conjunction of fire and darkness in Job 15:30; 20:26, suggests the idea that the fire of God's judgment (see, e.g., 21:9; 97:3; Isa 1:31; 26:11; 33:14) reaches even into the realm of the dead (see Job 31:12 and note on Ps 30:1). never to rise. See 36:12; Isa

[11]Let slanderers not be established in the land;
may disaster hunt down men of violence.[r]

[12]I know that the LORD secures justice for the poor[s] and upholds the cause[t] of the needy.[u] [13]Surely the righteous will praise your name[v] and the upright will live[w] before you.[x]

Psalm 141

A psalm of David.

[1]O LORD, I call to you; come quickly[y] to me.
Hear my voice[z] when I call to you.
[2]May my prayer be set before you like incense;[a] may the lifting up of my hands[b] be like the evening sacrifice.[c]

[3]Set a guard over my mouth,[d] O LORD;
keep watch over the door of my lips.[e] [4]Let not my heart[f] be drawn to what is evil, to take part in wicked deeds[g]
with men who are evildoers;
let me not eat of their delicacies.[h]

[5]Let a righteous man[n] strike me—it is a kindness;
let him rebuke me[i]—it is oil on my head.[j]
My head will not refuse it.

Yet my prayer is ever against the deeds of evildoers;
[6] their rulers will be thrown down from the cliffs,[k]
and the wicked will learn that my words were well spoken.
[7]They will say, "As one plows[l] and breaks up the earth,[m] so our bones have been scattered at the mouth[n] of the grave.[o]"

[8]But my eyes are fixed[o] on you,
O Sovereign LORD;
in you I take refuge[p]—do not give me over to death.
[9]Keep me[q] from the snares they have laid[r] for me,
from the traps set[s] by evildoers.
[10]Let the wicked fall[t] into their own nets, while I pass by in safety.[u]

Psalm 142

A maskil[p] of David. When he was in the cave.[v] A prayer.

[1]I cry aloud[w] to the LORD;
I lift up my voice to the LORD for mercy.[x]

26:14.

140:11 hunt down. May these hunters (vv. 4–5) themselves be hunted by the ruin they intended to bring on me.

140:12–13 Confidence in God's just judgment (see note on 3:8).

140:12 poor . . . needy. See notes on 9:18; 34:6.

140:13 the righteous. See note on 1:5. will praise. Having experienced God's help (see notes on 7:17; 9:1). will live before you. In contrast to the wicked (v. 10; see notes on 11:7; 16:9–11).

Ps 141 A prayer for deliverance from the wicked and their evil ways. The stanza structure of the first half (two Hebrew lines plus three lines) is repeated in the second half, while at the center a couplet develops a complementary theme (see note on v. 5). Like Ps 140, the prayer is profuse in its physiological allusions: hands, mouth, lips, heart, head, bones, eyes.

141 title See note on Ps 138 title.

141:1–2 Initial appeal for God to hear.

141:3–4 A plea that God will keep him from speaking, desiring or doing what is evil.

141:4 Let not my heart. Keep me from yielding to the example and urgings of the wicked (see Pr 1:10–16). heart. See note on 4:7. their delicacies. The luxuriant tables the wicked set from their unjust gains—keep me from acquiring an appetite for such unholy dainties.

141:5 The center of the poem (see note on 6:6). Let a righteous man strike me. The disciplining blows and rebukes of the righteous are the true "kindness" (Hebrew hesed, meaning "love" or "acts of authentic friendship"; see Pr 27:6; see also note on 6:4). oil on my head. See note on 23:5. My head . . . deeds of evildoers. Perhaps better: "Let my head not refuse it (this 'oil' from the righteous),/for my prayer is still against their (the wicked's) evil deeds."

141:6–7 The destiny of the wicked. their rulers will be thrown down . . . the wicked will learn . . . They will say. Perhaps better: "let their rulers be thrown down . . . let the wicked learn . . . Let them say."

141:6 my words. Of commitment to righteousness, as in vv. 3–5. well spoken. Good and right.

141:8–10 A plea that God will deliver from the designs of the wicked.

141:8 do not give me over to death. As you do the wicked (see v. 7; see also 73:18–20,23–26 and notes).

141:9 snares . . . traps. Perhaps, as usual, the plots of men to bring him down (as in 38:12; 64:5; 91:3; 140:5; 142:3)—but here reference may be to the enticements to evil that the wicked lay before him (see Ex 23:33; Dt 7:16; Jos 23:13; Jdg 2:3).

141:10 Let the wicked fall. See note on 5:10.

Ps 142 A plaintive prayer for deliverance from powerful enemies—when powerless, alone and without refuge. Apart from the introduction (vv. 1–2) and conclusion (v. 7b), the prayer (in Hebrew) is composed of two four-line stanzas (vv. 3–7a).

142 title maskil. See note on Ps 32 title. of David. See note on Ps 138 title. When . . . cave. See note on Ps 57 title. A prayer. See note on Ps 17 title.

142:1–2 Initial appeal—using the formal third person (as was often done when addressing kings), equivalent to: "I cry aloud to you, O LORD."

[2]I pour out my complaint[y] before
him;
before him I tell my trouble.[z] [3]When my spirit grows faint[a] within
me,
it is you who know my way.
In the path where I walk men have hidden a snare for me.
[4]Look to my right and see;
no one is concerned for me.
I have no refuge;[b]
no one cares[c] for my life.
[5]I cry to you, O LORD;
I say, "You are my refuge,[d] my portion[e] in the land of the living."[f]
[6]Listen to my cry,[g] for I am in desperate need;[h] rescue me[i] from those who pursue
me,
for they are too strong[j] for me.
[7]Set me free from my prison,[k]
that I may praise your name.[l]
Then the righteous will gather about
me
because of your goodness to me.[m]

Psalm 143

A psalm of David.

[1]O LORD, hear my prayer,[n]
listen to my cry for mercy;[o]
in your faithfulness[p] and righteousness[q]
come to my relief.
[2]Do not bring your servant into judgment,
for no one living is righteous[r]
before you.
[3]The enemy pursues me,
he crushes me to the ground;
he makes me dwell in darkness[s]
like those long dead.[t]
[4]So my spirit grows faint within me;
my heart within me is dismayed.[u]
[5]I remember[v] the days of long ago;
I meditate[w] on all your works and consider what your hands have done.
[6]I spread out my hands[x] to you;
my soul thirsts for you like a parched land. Selah
[7]Answer me quickly,[y] O LORD;
my spirit fails.[z]
Do not hide your face[a] from me or I will be like those who go down to the pit.
[8]Let the morning bring me word of your unfailing love,[b]
for I have put my trust in you.
Show me the way[c] I should go,
for to you I lift up my soul.[d]
[9]Rescue me[e] from my enemies,[f]
O LORD,
for I hide myself in you.
[10]Teach me[g] to do your will,

142:3–4 Description of his "desperate need" (v. 6).
142:3 When my spirit grows faint. Because he is overwhelmed by his situation (see 22:14–15). you who know. And are concerned about (cf. v. 4).
142:4 to my right. To my right hand, where one's helper or defender stands (see 16:8 and note). is concerned. In Hebrew a less common synonym of "know" (v. 3); see Ru 2:10,19 ("notice").
142:5–7 Prayer for rescue.
142:5 portion. The sustainer and preserver of his life (see 73:26 and note).
142:7 prison. Metaphor for the sense of being fettered by affliction (see note on 18:19; see also Job 36:8). that I may praise. In celebration of God's saving help (see note on 7:17). name. See note on 5:11. righteous. See note on 1:5. will gather about me. He will no longer be alone. The conclusion expresses an expectant word of confidence (see note on 3:8).
Ps 143 A prayer for deliverance from enemies and for divine leading. This is the seventh and final penitential psalm (see introduction to Ps 6). In the first half (vv. 1–6) the psalmist makes his appeal and describes his situation; in the second half (vv. 7–12) he presents his prayer. Appeal to God's righteousness (vv. 1,11) and the author's self-identification as "your servant" (vv. 2,12) enclose the prayer. See also his appeal to God's faithfulness (v. 1) and unfailing love (v. 12), which together form a frequent pair (see note on 36:5). For another enclosure see note on v. 7.
143 title See note on Ps 138 title.
143:1–2 Initial appeal.
143:1 righteousness. See note on 4:1.
143:2 As he begins his prayer, he pleads that God not sit in judgment over his servant (he knows his own failings) but that he focus his judicial attention on the enemy's harsh and unwarranted attacks.
143:3–4 The distress he suffers.
143:3 The last half of this verse appears almost verbatim in La 3:6. in darkness. As one cut off from the enjoyments of life (see v. 7; see also notes on 27:1; 30:1).
143:4 my spirit grows faint. See note on 142:3. heart. See note on 4:7.
143:5–6 Remembrance of God's past acts of deliverance encourages him in his appeal.
143:6 spread out my hands. In prayer (see 44:20; 88:9; Ex 9:29). soul. See v. 8; see also note on 6:3. thirsts for you. See note on 63:1.
143:7–10 The prayer.
143:7 my spirit fails. Or perhaps: "my spirit faints with longing," which parallels that in 119:81; in view of the next line the thought appears closer to that of 104:29 (where "breath" translates the same Hebrew word as that for "spirit" here). Ultimately, the failing of "my spirit" will be healed by the leading of "your good Spirit" (v. 10)—the two references enclose the prayer. hide your face. See note on 13:1. the pit. See v. 3 and note on 30:1.
143:8 the morning. Of salvation from the present "darkness" (v. 3; see introduction to Ps 57). unfailing love. See v. 12; see also note on 6:4. Show me the way. See v. 10. Deliverance from the enemy is not enough—either for God's "servant" (vv. 2,12) or for entrance into life.
143:10 level ground. See note on 26:12.

for you are my God;[h]
may your good Spirit lead[i] me on level ground.[j]

11For your name's sake,[k] O LORD, preserve my life;[l]
in your righteousness,[m] bring me out of trouble.
12In your unfailing love, silence my enemies;[n]
destroy all my foes,[o]
for I am your servant.[p]

Psalm 144

Of David.

1Praise be to the LORD my Rock,[q] who trains my hands for war,
my fingers for battle.
2He is my loving God and my fortress,[r]
my stronghold[s] and my deliverer,
my shield,[t] in whom I take refuge,
who subdues peoples[q][u] under me.

3O LORD, what is man[v] that you care for him,
the son of man that you think of
him?
4Man is like a breath;[w]
his days are like a fleeting shadow.[x]

5Part your heavens,[y] O LORD, and come down;[z] touch the mountains, so that they smoke.[a] 6Send forth lightning[b] and scatter[c]
⌊the enemies⌋;
shoot your arrows[d] and rout them.

7Reach down your hand from on high;[e]
deliver me and rescue me[f]
from the mighty waters,[g]
from the hands of foreigners[h] 8whose mouths are full of lies,[i] whose right hands[j] are deceitful.[k]

9I will sing a new song[l] to you,
O God;
on the ten-stringed lyre[m] I will make music to you, 10to the One who gives victory to kings,[n]
who delivers his servant David[o]
from the deadly sword.[p]

11Deliver me and rescue me[q] from the hands of foreigners[r] whose mouths are full of lies,[s] whose right hands are deceitful.[t]

12Then our sons in their youth will be like well-nurtured plants,[u] and our daughters will be like pillars[v]
carved to adorn a palace.
13Our barns will be filled[w]
with every kind of provision.
Our sheep will increase by thousands,
by tens of thousands in our fields;
14 our oxen[x] will draw heavy loads.[r]
There will be no breaching of walls,[y]

143:11–12 Concluding summary of the prayer (see introduction).

143:11 For your name's sake. See note on 23:3.

143:12 destroy all my foes. See note on 5:10.

Ps 144 A royal prayer for victory over treacherous enemies (but see note on vv. 12–15). Verses 1–10 show much affinity with Ps 18; this section begins and ends like that psalm, and vv. 5–7 all appear to be variations on corresponding lines found there (see notes below). The remaining lines of this section contain similar echoes of other psalms, and the author may have drawn directly on them. The main body (vv. 1–10) is fairly typical of the prayers of the Psalter, but the conclusion (vv. 12–15) is unique. Verse 11 appears to be transitional.

144:1–2 Praise of the Lord. As the opening words of a prayer, it seems to function both as an initial appeal (see 143:1–2) and as a confession of confidence that the prayer will be heard. Notice the unusual piling up of epithets for God—all having their counterparts in Ps 18.

144:2 my loving God. Lit. "my unfailing love" (see note on 6:4); so called because God is the source of benevolent acts of love that David can count on—just as God can be called "my salvation" because he is the source of salvation (see 27:1; 35:3; 62:2).

144:3–4 Confession of man's insignificance and of his dependence on God's help.

144:3 A variation of 8:4.

144:4 See 39:4–6 and notes.

144:5–8 Prayer for deliverance.

144:5 See 18:9 and note on 18:7–15.

144:6 See 18:14 and note.

144:7 See 18:16–17 and note on 32:6. foreigners. Bordering kingdoms.

144:8 mouths. See note on 5:9. right hands. Hands raised to swear covenant oaths of allegiance or submission (see 106:26; Ex 6:8; Dt 32:40).

144:9–10 Vow to praise (see note on 7:17).

144:9 new song. See note on 33:3.

144:10 his servant David. See note on Ps 18 title.

144:11 Repetition of the prayer in vv. 7–8, apparently to serve as transition to what follows: If God will deliver his servant David, the realm will prosper and be secure.

144:12–15 Many believe this to be a separate prayer ("May our sons . . ."), unrelated to vv. 1–11, but the apparently transitional function of v. 11 supports the NIV rendering.

144:12 daughters . . . like pillars carved. Temple columns in the shape of women were not uncommon (e.g., on the Acropolis in Athens).

144:14 our oxen will draw heavy loads. Or "our oxen will be heavy with flesh" or "our oxen will be heavy with young" (see also NIV text note).

no going into captivity,
no cry of distress in our streets.[z]

blessed are the people whose God is the LORD.

Psalm 145[s]

A psalm of praise. Of David.

1I will exalt you,[b] my God the King;[c]
I will praise your name[d] for ever and ever.
2Every day I will praise[e] you and extol your name[f] for ever and ever.

3Great is the LORD[g] and most worthy of praise;[h] his greatness no one can fathom.[i] 4One generation[j] will commend your works to another;
they will tell[k] of your mighty acts.[l] 5They will speak of the glorious splendor[m] of your majesty, and I will meditate on your wonderful works.[t n] 6They will tell[o] of the power of your awesome works,[p] and I will proclaim[q] your great deeds.[r] 7They will celebrate your abundant goodness[s] and joyfully sing[t] of your righteousness.[u]

8The LORD is gracious and compassionate,[v] slow to anger and rich in love.[w] 9The LORD is good[x] to all;
he has compassion[y] on all he has made.
10All you have made will praise you,[z] O LORD;
your saints will extol[a] you.[b] 11They will tell of the glory of your kingdom[c] and speak of your might,[d] 12so that all men may know of your mighty acts[e]
and the glorious splendor of your kingdom.[f] 13Your kingdom is an everlasting kingdom,[g]
and your dominion endures through all generations.

The LORD is faithful[h] to all his promises[i] and loving toward all he has made.[u] 14The LORD upholds[j] all those who fall and lifts up all[k] who are bowed down.[l] 15The eyes of all look to you, and you give them their food[m] at the proper time.
16You open your hand and satisfy the desires[n] of every living thing.

17The LORD is righteous[o] in all his ways and loving toward all he has made.[p] 18The LORD is near[q] to all who call on him,[r] to all who call on him in truth.
19He fulfills the desires[s] of those who fear him;[t] he hears their cry[u] and saves them.[v]
20The LORD watches over[w] all who love him,[x]

[s] This psalm is an acrostic poem, the verses of which (including verse 13b) begin with the successive letters of the Hebrew alphabet. [t] 5 Dead Sea Scrolls and Syriac (see also Septuagint); Masoretic Text On the glorious splendor of your majesty / and on your wonderful works I will meditate [u] 13 One manuscript of the Masoretic Text, Dead Sea Scrolls and Syriac (see also Septuagint); most manuscripts of the Masoretic Text do not have the last two lines of verse 13.

144:15 Blessed. See note on 1:1.

Ps 145 A hymn to the Lord, the Great King, for his mighty acts and benevolent virtues, which are the glory of his kingly rule. It exploits to the full the traditional language of praise and, as an alphabetic acrostic, reflects the care of studied composition. Between the two-line introduction (vv. 1–2) and one-line conclusion (v. 21), four poetic paragraphs develop as many themes, each introduced with a thematic line (see vv. 3,8,13b,17).

145 title praise. Hebrew tehillah, occurring only here in the psalm titles, but from a plural form (tehillim) has come the traditional Hebrew name of the Psalter. Of David. See note on Ps 138 title.

145:1–2 Initial commitment to praise. name. See v. 21, thus framing the psalm (see note on 5:11).

145:3–7 Praise of God's mighty acts, which display his greatness (v. 3) and his goodness (v. 7)—as the author underscores by enclosing the paragraph with these two references. For the same combination see 86:10,17; 135:3,5.

145:4 will commend . . . will tell. See vv. 5–7,10–12,21; see also note on 9:1. your works. In creation, providence and redemption.

145:7 righteousness. See v. 17; see also note on 4:1.

145:8–13a Praise of God's benevolent virtues, which move all creatures to celebrate the glory of his kingdom.

145:8 See Ex 34:6–7 and note.

145:10 All you have made will praise you. See v. 21; see also note on 65:13. saints. See note on 4:3.

145:13b–16 Praise God's faithfulness.

145:13b,17 loving. See note on 6:4. For the combination "faithful . . . and loving" see note on 36:5.

145:17–20 Praise of God's righteousness.

145:18 in truth. With godly integrity.

Psalm 146

1 Praise the LORD.[v]

Praise the LORD,[c] O my soul.
2 I will praise the LORD all my life;[d]
I will sing praise[e] to my God as long as I live.[f]

3 Do not put your trust in princes,[g] in mortal men,[h] who cannot save.
4 When their spirit departs, they return to the ground;[i] on that very day their plans come to nothing.[j]

5 Blessed is he[k] whose help[l] is the God of Jacob,
whose hope is in the LORD his God, 6 the Maker of heaven[m] and earth,
the sea, and everything in them—
the LORD, who remains faithful[n]
forever.
7 He upholds[o] the cause of the oppressed[p]
and gives food to the hungry.[q]
The LORD sets prisoners free,[r] 8 the LORD gives sight[s] to the blind,[t]
the LORD lifts up those who are bowed down,[u]
the LORD loves the righteous.[v]
9 The LORD watches over the alien[w] and sustains the fatherless[x] and the widow,[y]
but he frustrates the ways of the wicked.

10 The LORD reigns[z] forever, your God, O Zion, for all generations.

Praise the LORD.

Psalm 147

1 Praise the LORD.[w]

How good it is to sing praises to our God,
how pleasant[a] and fitting to praise
him![b]

2 The LORD builds up Jerusalem;[c] he gathers the exiles[d] of Israel.
3 He heals the brokenhearted[e]
and binds up their wounds.[f]

4 He determines the number of the stars[g]
and calls them each by name.
5 Great is our Lord[h] and mighty in power;[i]
his understanding has no limit.[j] 6 The LORD sustains the humble[k] but casts the wicked[l] to the ground.

[v] 1 Hebrew Hallelu Yah; also in verse 10
[w] 1 Hebrew Hallelu Yah; also in verse 20

145:21 The praise of God must continue, and every creature take it up—forever. every creature. Or perhaps "every human" (lit. "all flesh"; see 65:2, "all men"; but see also 150:6).

Ps 146 An exhortation to trust in the Lord, Zion's King. The first of five Hallelujah psalms with which the Psalter closes, its date is probably postexilic. This and the remaining four psalms are all framed with Hallelujahs, which may have been added by the final editors (see Ps 105–106; 111–117).

146:1–2 Initial vow to praise—as long as life continues (see 145:21).

146:1 Praise the LORD, O my soul. See the frames around Ps 103–104. soul. See note on 6:3.

146:3–4 The call to trust in the Lord (see vv. 5–9) is heightened by contrast.

146:5–9 Exhortation to trust in the covenant God of Jacob (see note on 14:7), who as Creator is Lord over all, as the Faithful One defends the defenseless and provides for the needy, and as the Righteous One shows favor to the righteous but checks the wicked in their pursuits.

146:6 Maker of heaven and earth. See note on 121:2.

146:8 righteous. See note on 1:5.

146:10 Concluding exultant testimony to the citizens of God's royal city. Zion. See note on 9:11.

Ps 147 Praise of God, the Creator, for his special mercies to Israel—possibly composed for the Levitical choirs on the joyous occasion of the dedication of the rebuilt walls of Jerusalem (see Ne 12:27–43). The Septuagint (the Greek translation of the OT) divides the work into two separate psalms (vv. 1–11, 12–20), but it is actually a three-part song (vv. 1–6, 7–11, 12–20), bound together by the frame (vv. 2–3, 19–20), in which the Lord's unique favors to Israel are celebrated. See introduction to Ps 146.

147:1 See note on 135:3.

147:2 builds up . . . gathers. Refers to the postexilic restoration of Jerusalem and Israel.

147:3 brokenhearted. Such as the exiles (see Ps 137; cf. Ps 126) and those who struggled in the face of great opposition to rebuild Jerusalem's walls (Ne 2:17–20; 4:1–23).

147:4–6 He whose power and understanding are such that he fixes the number of (or counts) the stars and names them is able to sustain his humble ones and bring the wicked down (see 20:8; 146:9; see also Isa 40:26–29).

147:6 humble. Those who acknowledge that they are without resources (see 149:4). ground. Probably the grave (see note on 61:2).

147:7–11 The God who governs the rain and thus provides food for beast and bird is not pleased by man's reliance on his own capabilities or those of the animals he has domesticated (or the technologies he has developed); he is pleased when people serve him and trust make music[o] to our God on the harp.[p] [8]He covers the sky with clouds;[q]

he supplies the earth with rain[r] and makes grass grow[s] on the hills.
[9]He provides food[t] for the cattle and for the young ravens[u] when they call.

[10]His pleasure is not in the strength[v] of the horse,[w] nor his delight in the legs of a man; [11]the LORD delights[x] in those who fear him,[y] who put their hope[z] in his unfailing love.[a] [12]Extol the LORD, O Jerusalem;[b] praise your God, O Zion, [13]for he strengthens the bars of your gates[c]

and blesses your people[d] within you.
[14]He grants peace[e] to your borders and satisfies you[f] with the finest of wheat.[g]

[15]He sends his command[h] to the earth;
his word runs[i] swiftly.
[16]He spreads the snow[j] like wool and scatters the frost[k] like ashes.
[17]He hurls down his hail[l] like pebbles.
Who can withstand his icy blast?
[18]He sends his word[m] and melts them;
he stirs up his breezes,[n] and the waters flow.

[19]He has revealed his word[o] to Jacob,[p] his laws and decrees[q] to Israel.

Psalm 148

[1]Praise the LORD.[xu]

Praise the LORD from the heavens,[v] praise him in the heights above.
[2]Praise him, all his angels,[w] praise him, all his heavenly hosts.[x] [3]Praise him, sun[y] and moon, praise him, all you shining stars.
[4]Praise him, you highest heavens[z] and you waters above the skies.[a] [5]Let them praise the name[b] of the LORD, for he commanded[c] and they were created.
[6]He set them in place for ever and ever;
he gave a decree[d] that will never pass away.

[7]Praise the LORD[e] from the earth,
you great sea creatures[f] and all ocean depths,[g] [8]lightning and hail,[h] snow and clouds, stormy winds that do his bidding,[i] [9]you mountains and all hills,[j] fruit trees and all cedars, [10]wild animals[k] and all cattle,
small creatures and flying birds, [11]kings[l] of the earth and all nations,
you princes and all rulers on earth, [12]young men and maidens, old men and children.

[13]Let them praise the name of the LORD,[m] for his name alone is exalted;

147:11 fear. See note on 34:8–14. unfailing love. See note on 6:4.
147:12–18 The Lord of all creation, Zion's God, secures his people's defenses and prosperity, their peace and abundant provision. The verses mention clouds and rain (v. 8); snow, frost and hail (vv. 16–17); icy winds and warm breezes (vv. 17–18)—the whole range of weather.
147:15 his command . . . his word. Personified as messengers commissioned to carry out a divine order (see notes on 23:6; 33:4; 104:4).
147:19–20 God's most unique gift to Israel: his other word, his redemptive word, by which he makes known his program of salvation and his holy will.
Ps 148 A call to all things in all creation to praise the Lord. Whatever its original liturgical purpose, its placement here serves to complete the scope of the calls to praise with which the Psalter concludes. Two balanced stanzas of six verses each are followed by a two-verse conclusion. In the first stanza (vv. 1–6) the call goes to all creatures in the heavens, in the second (vv. 7–12) to all beneath the heavens (see 103:20–22). The conclusion (vv. 13–14) focuses on motivation for praise. See introduction to Ps 146.
148:1–6 Let all creatures in the heavens praise the Lord.
148:3 sun and moon . . . shining stars. See note on 65:13.
148:4 waters above the skies. The "deep" above (see Ge 1:7; cf. "ocean depths" in v. 7; see also note on 42:7).
148:5 name of the LORD. See v. 13; see also note on 5:11. They are to praise the Lord because he has created them and made their existence secure.
148:7–12 Let all creatures of earth praise the Lord. ("Heaven and earth" are the sum of all creation; see v. 13; see also 89:11; 113:6; 136:5–6; Ge 2:1,4.)
148:7 sea creatures and all ocean depths. Likely with Ge 1 in mind (see Ge 1:7,10,21), the call begins with these and moves toward the human components. This and the pairs that follow employ a figure of speech (merism) that refers to all reality pertaining to the sphere to which they belong—here, all creatures great and small that belong to the realm of lakes and seas.
148:8 his bidding. Lit. "his word" (see 147:15 and note).
148:13–14 Conclusion, with focus on motivation for praise.
148:13 his name . . . his splendor. As shown in the glory of his creation. is above. The glory of the Creator is greater his splendor[n] is above the earth and the heavens.[o] 14He has raised up for his people a than the glory of the creation.

148:14 horn. The Lord's anointed (see NIV text note; see also notes on 2:2; Ps 18 title). It may be, however, that "horn" here represents the strength and vigor of God's people (see 92:10; 1Sa 2:1; Jer 48:25; La 2:17). In any event, reference is to God's saving acts for Israel—God is to be praised for his works in creation and redemption (see note on 65:6–7). praise. See 22:3 and note.

Ps 149 Praise of God for the high honor bestowed on his people. It is no doubt postexilic. Israel's unique honor has two sides: She has been granted salvation (in fact and in promise), and she has been armed to execute God's sentence of judgment on the world powers that have launched their attacks against the kingdom of God—she is the earthly contingent of the armies of the King of heaven (see 68:17 and note; see also Jos 5:14; 2Sa 5:23–24; 2Ch 20:15–17,22; Hab 3:3–15). This next-to-last psalm clearly marks the Psalter as the prayer book (liturgical book of prayer and praise) of OT Israel.

Following an introductory verse, the two main themes are developed in two balanced stanzas of four verses each. References to God's "saints" enclose the song (see also v. 5). The common pair of synonyms, "honor" (v. 5) and "glory" (v. 9), effectively link the two stanzas (see 8:5; 21:5, "glory ... majesty"; 104:1,31, "majesty ... glory"; 145:5,12, "glorious splendor"; Isa 35:2, "glory ... splendor").

149:1 new song. See note on 33:3. in the assembly. See note on 9:1. saints. See vv. 5,9; see also note on 4:3.

149:2–5 Let Israel rejoice in their King, who has crowned them with the honor of salvation.

149:3 his name. See note on 5:11.

149:4 crowns. Endows with splendor (see Isa 55:5; 60:9; 61:3). humble. Those who acknowledge that they are without resources (see 147:6).

149:5 on their beds. The salvation (v. 4) so tangible in the daytime evokes songs in the night (see 42:8; 63:6; 77:6).

149:6–9 Let Israel praise their God, who has given them the glory of bearing the sword as his army in service.

149:7 vengeance. God's just retribution on those who have attacked his kingdom. Of this divine retribution the OT speaks often: 58:10; 79:10; 94:1; Nu 31:2; Dt 32:35,41,43; 2Ki 9:7; Isa 34:8; 35:4; 47:3; 59:17; 61:2; 63:4; Jer 46:10; 50:15,28; 51:6,11,36; Eze 25:14,17; Mic 5:15; Na 1:2. In the NT age, however, God's people are armed with the "sword of the Spirit" for overcoming the powers arrayed against God's kingdom (see 2Co 6:7; 10:4; Eph 6:12,17; Heb 4:12); their participation in God's retribution on the world awaits the final judgment (see 1Co 6:2–3).

149:9 sentence written. God's firmly determined judgment (see 139:16 and note).

Ps 150 The final great Hallelujah—perhaps composed specifically to close the Psalter. See the conclusions to the first four Books: 41:13; 72:18–19; 89:52; 106:48. This final call to praise moves powerfully by stages from place to themes to orchestra to choir, framed with Hallelujahs. See introduction to Ps 146.

150:1 Where God should be praised. his sanctuary. At Jerusalem. his mighty heavens. Lit. "the expanse of his power" (see 19:1, "skies"; Ge 1:6), i.e., the expanse that displays or symbolizes his power or in which his power resides. Usually thought to refer to God's heavenly temple (see 11:4), it may signify the vaulted ceiling of the visible universe viewed as a cosmic temple.

150:2 Why God should be praised. his acts of power. In creation and redemption.

150:3–5 How God should be praised—with the whole orchestra (eight instruments: wind, string, percussion), with dancing aptly placed at the middle.

[4]praise him with tambourine and dancing,[v] praise him with the strings[w] and flute,[x]
[5]praise him with the clash of cymbals,[y]

Proverbs

Authors

Although the book begins with a title ascribing the proverbs to Solomon, it is clear from later chapters that he was not the only author of the book. Pr 22:17 refers to the "sayings of the wise," and 24:23 mentions additional "sayings of the wise." The presence of an introduction in 22:17–21 further indicates that these sections stem from a circle of wise men, not from Solomon himself. Ch. 30 is attributed to Agur son of Jakeh and 31:1–9 to King Lemuel, neither of whom is mentioned elsewhere. Lemuel's sayings contain several Aramaic spellings that point to a non-Israelite background.

Most of the book, however, is closely linked with Solomon. The headings in 10:1 and 25:1 again include his name, though 25:1 states that these proverbs were copied by the men of Hezekiah. This indicates that a group of wise men or scribes compiled these proverbs as editors and added chs. 25—29 to the earlier collections. Solomon's ability to produce proverbs is specified in 1Ki 4:32, where 3,000 proverbs are attributed to him. Coupled with the statements about his unparalleled wisdom (1Ki 4:29–31), it is quite likely that he was the source of most of Proverbs. The book contains a short prologue (1:1–7) and a longer epilogue (31:10–31), which may have been added to the other materials. It is possible that the discourses in the large opening section (1:8—9:18) were the work of a compiler or editor, but the similarities of this section with other chapters (compare 6:1 with 11:15; 17:18; 20:16; 27:13; compare 6:19 with 14:5,25; 19:5) fit a Solomonic origin equally well. The emphasis on the "fear of the LORD" (1:7) throughout the book ties the various segments together.

Date

If Solomon is granted a prominent role in the book, most of Proverbs would stem from the tenth century B.C. during the time of Israel's united kingdom. The peace and prosperity that characterized that era accord well with the development of reflective wisdom and the production of literary works. Moreover, several scholars have noted that the 30 sayings of the wise in 22:17—24:22 contain similarities to the 30 sections of the Egyptian "Wisdom of Amenemope," an instructional piece that is roughly contemporary with the time of Solomon. Likewise, the personification of wisdom so prominent in chs. 1—9 (see 1:20 and note; 3:15–18; 8:1–36) can be compared with the personification of abstract ideas in both Mesopotamian and Egyptian writings of the second millennium B.C.

The role of Hezekiah's men (see 25:1) indicates that important sections of Proverbs were compiled and edited from 715 to 686 B.C. This was a time of spiritual renewal led by the king, who also showed great interest in the writings of David and Asaph (see 2Ch 29:30). Perhaps it was also at this time that the sayings of Agur (ch. 30) and Lemuel (31:1–9) and the other "sayings of the wise" (22:17—24:22; 24:23–34) were added to the Solomonic collections, though it is possible that the task of compilation was not completed until after the reign of Hezekiah.

The Nature of a Proverb

The Hebrew word translated "proverb" is also translated "taunt" (Isa 14:4), "oracle" (Nu 23:7,18) and "parable" (Eze 17:2); so its meaning is considerably broader than the English term. This may help explain the presence of the longer discourse sections in chs. 1—9. Most proverbs are short, compact statements that express truths about human behavior. Often there is some repetition of a word or sound that aids memorization. In 30:33, e.g., the same Hebrew verb is translated "churning," "twisting" and "stirring up."

In the largest section of the book (10:1—22:16) most of the proverbs are two lines long, and those in chs. 10—15 almost always express a contrast. Sometimes the writer simply makes a general observation, such as "a bribe is a charm to the one who gives it" (17:8; cf. 14:20), but usually he evaluates conduct: "but he who hates bribes will live" (15:27). Many proverbs, in fact, describe the consequences of a particular action or character trait: "A wise son brings joy to his father" (10:1). Since the proverbs were written primarily for instruction, often they are given in the form of commands: "Do not love sleep or you will grow poor" (20:13). Even where the imperative form is not used, the desired action is quite clear (see 14:5).

A common feature of the proverbs is the use of figurative language: "Like cold water to a weary soul / is good news from a distant land" (25:25). In ch. 25 alone there are 11 verses that begin with "like" or "as." These similes make the proverbs more vivid and powerful. Occasionally the simile is used in a humorous or sarcastic way: "Like a gold ring in a pig's snout / is a beautiful woman who shows no discretion" (11:22; cf. 26:9), or, "As a door turns on its hinges, / so a sluggard turns on his bed" (26:14). Equally effective is the use of metaphors: "The teaching of the wise is a fountain of life" (13:14), and "the tongue that brings healing is a tree of life" (15:4). According to 16:24 "pleasant words are a honeycomb." The figure of sowing and reaping is used in both a positive and a negative way (cf. 11:18; 22:8).

In order to develop a proper set of values, a number of proverbs use direct comparisons: "Better a poor man whose walk is blameless / than a rich man whose ways are perverse" (28:6). This "better . . . than" pattern can be seen also in 15:16–17; 16:19,32; 17:1,12; a modified form occurs in 22:1. Another pattern found in the book is the so-called numerical proverb. Used for the first time in 6:16 (see note there), this type of saying normally has the number three in the first line and four in the second (cf. 30:15,18,21,29).

The repetition of entire proverbs (compare 6:10–11 with 24:33–34; 14:12 with 16:25; 20:16 with 27:13) or parts of proverbs may serve a poetic purpose. A slight variation allows the writer(s) to use the same image to make a related point (as in 17:3; 27:21) or to substitute a word to achieve greater clarity or a different emphasis (cf. 19:1; 28:6). In 26:4–5 the same line is repeated in a seemingly contradictory way, but this was designed to make two different points (see notes there).

At times the book of Proverbs is very direct and earthy (cf. 6:6; 21:9; 25:16; 26:3,11). This is the nature of wisdom literature as it seeks to drive home truth and to turn sinners from their wicked ways (see essay on "Wisdom Literature," p. 721).

Purpose and Teaching

According to the prologue, Proverbs was written to give "prudence to the simple, knowledge and discretion to the young" (1:4), and to make wise men wiser (1:5). The frequent references to "my son" (1:8,10; 2:1; 3:1; 4:1; 5:1) emphasize instructing the young and guiding them into a happy and prosperous life. Acquiring wisdom and knowing how to avoid the pitfalls of folly will lead to health and success. Although Proverbs is a practical book dealing with the art of living, it bases wisdom solidly on the fear of the Lord (1:7). Throughout the book this reverence for God is set forth as the path to life and security (cf. 3:5; 9:10; 22:4). People must trust in the Lord (3:5) and not in themselves (28:26). The references to the "tree of life" (3:18; 11:30; 13:12) recall the joyful bliss of the Garden of Eden and figuratively say that the one who finds wisdom will be greatly blessed.

In chs. 1—9 the writer contrasts the way of wisdom with the path of violence (1:11–18) and immorality (2:16–18). The adulteress with her seductive words tries to lure a young man to her house and ultimately to death (cf. ch. 5; 6:24–35; 7; 9:13–18). Sexual immorality is thus an example of and a symbol for the antithesis of wisdom (cf. 22:14; 23:27; 30:20).

At the same time, Proverbs condemns the quarrelsome wife and her unbearable ways (19:13; 21:9,19). The home is supposed to be a place of love, not dissension (cf. 15:17; 17:1). Quarrelsome, quick-tempered men are also denounced (cf. 14:29; 26:21), and gossiping is viewed as a source of great trouble (11:13; 18:8; 26:22). If anyone is able to control his tongue, he is a man of knowledge (cf. 10:19; 17:27). At the same time, the tongue must be used to instruct one's children (cf. 1:8; 22:6; 31:26), and discipline is necessary for their well-being (see 13:24 and note).

Proverbs strongly encourages diligence and hard work (see 10:4 and note; 31:17–19) and holds the sluggard up to contempt for his laziness (see 6:6 and note). A son "who sleeps during harvest is a disgraceful son" (10:5), and those who love sleep are sure to grow poor (cf. 20:13). Generally, wealth is connected to righteousness (cf. 3:16) and poverty to wickedness (cf. 22:16), but some verses link riches with the wicked (15:16; 28:6). Honesty and justice are praised repeatedly, and it is expected that a king will defend the rights of the poor and needy (cf. 31:5). Those who are kind to the needy will be richly blessed (see 14:21 and note), but there are several warnings against putting up security for a neighbor (see 6:1 and note).

The proud and the arrogant are sure to be destroyed (cf. 11:2; 16:18), especially the mocker with his "overweening pride" (see 21:24 and note on 1:22). Drunkards are depicted as the epitome of the fool (cf. 20:1), and their woes and miseries are described in graphic terms in 23:29–35.

Although Proverbs is more practical than theological, God's work as Creator is especially highlighted. The role of wisdom in creation is the subject of 8:22–31 (see notes there), where wisdom as an attribute of God is personified. Twice God is called the Maker of the poor (14:31; 17:5). He also directs the steps of a man (cf. 16:9; 20:24), and his eyes observe all his actions (cf. 5:21; 15:3). God is sovereign over the kings of the earth (21:1), and all history moves forward under his control (see notes on 16:4,33).

Literary Structure

The sectional headings found in the NIV text itself divide the book into well-defined units. A short prologue (stating the purpose and theme, 1:1–7) opens the book, and a longer epilogue (identifiable by its subject matter and its alphabetic form, 31:10–31) closes it. The first nine chapters contain a series of discourses that contrast the way and benefits of wisdom with the way of the fool. Except for the sections where personified wisdom speaks (1:20; 8:1,22; 9:1), each discourse begins with "my son" or "my sons." These units are similar to the discourses found in Job and Ecclesiastes, which also contain speeches given in poetic form.

A key feature in the introductory discourses of Proverbs is the personification of both wisdom and folly (as women), each of whom (by appeals and warnings on the part of Lady Wisdom, by enticements on the part of Lady Folly) seeks to persuade "simple" youths to follow her ways. These discourses are strikingly organized. Beginning (1:8–33) and ending (chs. 8—9) with direct enticements and appeals, the main body of the discourses is made up of two nicely balanced sections, one devoted to the commendation of wisdom (chs. 2—4) and the other to warnings against folly (chs. 5—7). In these discourses the young man is depicted as being enticed to folly by men who try to get ahead in the world by exploiting others (1:10–19) and by women who seek sexual pleasure outside the bond of marriage (ch. 5; 6:20–25; 7). In the social structures of that day, these were the two great temptations for young men. The second especially functions here as illustrative and emblematic of the appeal of Lady Folly.

The main collection of Solomon's proverbs in 10:1—22:16 consists of individual couplets, many of which express a contrast. On the surface, there does not seem to be any discernible arrangement, though occasionally two or three proverbs deal with the same subject. For example, 11:24–25 deals with generosity, 16:12–15 mentions a king, and 19:4,6–7 talks about friendship. However, there is growing evidence that arrangements of larger units were deliberate. Further study of this possibility is necessary. The second Solomonic collection (chs. 25—29) continues the pattern of two-line verses, but there are also examples of proverbs with three (25:13; 27:10,22) or four (25:4–5,21–22; 26:18–19) lines. The last five verses of ch. 27 (vv. 23–27) present a short discourse on the benefits of raising flocks and herds.

In the "thirty sayings" of the wise (22:17—24:22) and the "further sayings" of 24:23–34, there is a prevalence of two- or three-verse units and something of a return to the style of chs. 1—9 (see 23:29–35 especially). These sections function as an appendix to 10:1—22:16 and contain some similar proverbs (compare 24:6 with 11:14; 24:16 with 11:5). Even stronger are the links with chs. 1—9 (compare 23:27 with 2:16; 24:33–34 with 6:10–11).

The last two chapters serve as an appendix to chs. 25—29. The words of Agur are dominated by the numerical proverb (30:15,18,21,24,29) and include a close parallel to Ps 18:30 in 30:5 (also compare 30:6 with Dt 4:2). After the nine verses attributed to King Lemuel (31:1–9), Proverbs concludes with an epilogue, an impressive acrostic poem honoring the wife of noble character. She demonstrates, and thus epitomizes, many of the qualities and values identified with wisdom throughout the book. In view of the fact that Proverbs is primarily addressed to young men on the threshold of mature life, this focus on the wife of noble character appears surprising. But its purpose may be twofold: (1) to offer counsel on the kind of wife a young man ought to seek, and (2) in a subtle way to advise the young man (again) to marry Lady Wisdom, thus returning to the theme of chs. 1—9 (as climaxed in ch. 9; compare the description of Lady Wisdom in 9:1–2 with the virtues of the wife of noble character). In any event, the concluding epitomizing of wisdom in the wife of noble character forms a literary frame with the opening discourses, where wisdom is personified as a woman.

Prologue: Purpose and Theme

1 The proverbs[a] of Solomon[b] son of David, king of Israel:[c]

[2]for attaining wisdom and discipline;
for understanding words of insight;
[3]for acquiring a disciplined and prudent life,
doing what is right and just and fair;
[4]for giving prudence to the simple,[d] knowledge and discretion[e] to the young—[5]let the wise listen and add to their learning,[f]
and let the discerning get guidance—
[6]for understanding proverbs and

Warning Against Enticement

[8]Listen, my son,[m] to your father's[n] instruction and do not forsake your mother's teaching.[o]

[9]They will be a garland to grace your head
and a chain to adorn your neck.[p]

[10]My son, if sinners entice[q] you, do not give in[r] to them.[s] [11]If they say, "Come along with us;
let's lie in wait[t] for someone's
blood,
let's waylay some harmless soul; [12]let's swallow[u] them alive, like the grave,[b] and whole, like those who go down to the pit;[v]
[13]we will get all sorts of valuable things and fill our houses with plunder; [14]throw in your lot with us, and we will share a common purse[w]"— [15]my son, do not go along with them, do not set foot[x] on their paths;[y] [16]for their feet rush into sin,[z] they are swift to shed blood.[a] [17]How useless to spread a net in full view of all the birds!
[18]These men lie in wait[b] for their own
blood;
they waylay only themselves![c] [19]Such is the end of all who go after ill-gotten gain;

[a] 7 The Hebrew words rendered fool in Proverbs, and often elsewhere in the Old Testament, denote one who is morally deficient. [b] 12 Hebrew Sheol

1:1 Solomon. His wisdom and prolific production of proverbs and songs are mentioned in 1Ki 4:32. His name occurs again in the headings of 10:1 and 25:1. Cf. Ecc 1:1; SS 1:1.
1:2–4 Verses 2–3 apply to the son (or student); v. 4 refers to the father (or teacher).
1:2 wisdom. This key term occurs 41 times in the book. It includes skill in living—following God's design and thus avoiding moral pitfalls. A craftsman can be called a wise (skillful) man (Ex 31:3). Proverbs urges people to get wisdom (4:5), for it is worth more than silver or gold (3:13–14). The NT refers to Christ as "wisdom from God" (1Co 1:30; cf. Col 2:3).
1:3 right and just and fair. See 2:9.
1:4 prudence. Good judgment or good sense (see 15:5; 19:25). Outside Proverbs the Hebrew word is used in the negative sense of "shrewd" or "crafty" (Ge 3:1; Job 5:13). simple. Another key word in Proverbs, occurring some 15 times. It denotes those who are easily persuaded and who "lack judgment" (9:4,16), who are immature, inexperienced and naive (cf. Ps 19:7). See NIV text note on 1:22.
1:6 riddles. The Hebrew for this word can sometimes refer to allegories (cf. Eze 17:2).
1:7 The theme of the book (see 9:10; 31:30; cf. Job 28:28; Ps 111:10). fear of the LORD. A loving reverence for God that includes submission to his lordship and to the commands of his word (Ecc 12:13). God is our king (Mal 1:14), but even as we stand in awe of him we can rejoice (see Ps 2:11; Isa 12:6). fools. Those who hate knowledge (v. 22) and correction of any kind (12:1), who are "quick to quarrel" (20:3) and "give full vent" to their anger (29:11), who are complacent (1:32) and who trust in themselves (28:26) rather than in God (Ps 14:1). despise wisdom and discipline. See 5:12 and note.
1:8 A typical introduction to an instruction speech in Proverbs, evoking a domestic situation of a father preparing his son for life in the world. Here and in 6:20 the mother is also depicted as teacher.
1:9 to grace . . . to adorn. Those who follow wisdom add beauty and honor to their lives.
1:11 lie in wait for . . . blood. Their goal is personal enrichment by theft or oppression (vv. 13,19), even if they have to commit murder. The author uses two major enticements that confronted the young man (in that culture) as examples of the way of folly: (1) to get rich by exploiting others (here) and (2) to be drawn into illicit sexual pleasure by immoral women who fail to honor their marriage vows (5:1–6; 6:24; 7:5; cf. 2:12–19).
1:12 swallow . . . like the grave. Vivid poetic imagery for shamelessly victimizing others.
1:13 valuable things. By contrast, the book of Proverbs teaches that wisdom brings the greatest riches man could ever gain (3:14–16; 16:16; see also Job 28:12–19).
1:15 paths. Cf. the destructive paths of the adulteress in 2:18; 7:25.
1:16 The same as the first two lines of Isa 59:7 and partially quoted in Ro 3:15. Cf. Pr 6:17–18.
1:17 net. Nets were used to catch birds and animals (see 6:5; 7:23; Ecc 9:12; Isa 51:20; Jer 5:26).
1:18 waylay only themselves. The wicked unintentionally spread a net for their own feet (29:6; Ps 35:8), so they are less intelligent than birds (see 7:22–23). According to Isa 17:14, the lot of those who plunder God's people is destruction.
1:19 Cf. Isa 17:14. Contrast the long life enjoyed by the one who hates ill-gotten gain (28:16).

it takes away the lives of those who get it.[d]

Warning Against Rejecting Wisdom

20 Wisdom calls aloud[e] in the street, she raises her voice in the public squares;
21 at the head of the noisy streets[c] she cries out,
in the gateways of the city she makes her speech:

22 "How long will you simple ones[d][f]
love your simple ways?
How long will mockers delight in mockery
and fools hate[g] knowledge?
23 If you had responded to my rebuke,
I would have poured out my heart
to you
and made my thoughts known to
you.
24 But since you rejected[h] me when I called[i] and no one gave heed[j] when I stretched out my hand, 25 since you ignored all my advice and would not accept my rebuke, 26 I in turn will laugh[k] at your disaster;[l]
I will mock[m] when calamity
overtakes you[n]— 27 when calamity overtakes you like a storm,
when disaster[o] sweeps over you like a whirlwind, when distress and trouble
overwhelm you.

28 "Then they will call to me but I will not answer;[p]
they will look for me but will not find me.[q]
29 Since they hated knowledge and did not choose to fear the LORD,[r]
30 since they would not accept my advice
and spurned my rebuke,[s] 31 they will eat the fruit of their ways and be filled with the fruit of their schemes.[t] 32 For the waywardness of the simple will kill them,
and the complacency of fools will destroy them;[u] 33 but whoever listens to me will live in safety[v]
and be at ease, without fear of harm."[w]

[c] 21 Hebrew; Septuagint / on the tops of the walls
[d] 22 The Hebrew word rendered simple in Proverbs generally denotes one without moral direction and inclined to evil.

1:20 Wisdom calls aloud. Here and in 3:15–18; 8; 9:1–12 wisdom is personified. This is a poetic device common also in Isaiah (cf. 55:12; 59:14). public squares. Open areas inside the gate of a fortified city.

1:21 gateways. Where the leaders of the city met to hold court (see 31:23; Ru 4:11; Job 29:7) and where the marketplace was located (2Ki 7:1). As a young man confronts life in its social context, two voices lure him, appeal for his allegiance, and seek to shape his life: (1) the voice of wisdom (as exemplified in the instructions of the teachers of wisdom) and (2) the voice of folly (as exemplified in the sinners of vv. 10–14 and in the adulteress of 5:3; 6:24; 7:5). Thus in the midst of life the youth must learn to exercise discretion. Here and in chs. 8–9 wisdom makes her appeal. She speaks neither out of heaven (by special revelation, as do the prophets) nor out of the earth (through voices from the dead—necromancy; see Lev 19:31; Dt 18:11; 1Sa 28:7–19), but out of the center of the life of the city, where man's communal experience of the creation order (established by God's wisdom, 8:22–31) is concentrated (see, e.g., 11:10 and note). And it is there also that the godly, the truly wise, test human experience in the crucible of faith and afterward give divine wisdom a human voice in their wise instructions—as in Proverbs.

1:22 mockers. Those who are proud and arrogant (21:24), who are full of insults, hatred and strife (9:7–8; 22:10; 29:8), who resist correction (13:1; 15:12) even though they deserve flogging (19:25; 21:11).

1:23 poured out my heart. Wisdom is like a fountain. Her words would constantly refresh and strengthen (see 18:4).

1:24 rejected me. As God was rejected by Israel (see Isa 1:4; 5:24) and Jesus by the people of Jerusalem (Mt 23:37). stretched out my hand. Cf. Isa 65:2, where God held out his hands all day long to a stubborn people.

1:25 ignored . . . advice. Cf. 8:33.

1:26 laugh at your disaster. Not an expression of heartlessness but a reaction to the absurdity of fools, who laugh at wisdom, choose folly and bring disaster on themselves. Cf. the Lord's response to kings who think they can rebel against him (Ps 2:4). calamity overtakes you. Also the fate of "a scoundrel and villain" (6:12–15).

1:27 like a storm. See 10:25. like a whirlwind. When Job's family was killed by a mighty wind (Job 1:19), his comforters concluded that his wickedness was the cause of the disaster (Job 18:5,12). distress and trouble. See Isa 8:22.

1:28 I will not answer. Just as God refused to listen to Israel when the people sinned (Dt 1:45; Isa 1:15). find me. Those who find wisdom find life and blessing (see v. 33; 3:13; 8:17,35).

1:29 fear the LORD. See note on v. 7.

1:31 eat . . . be filled with the fruit. The consequences depend on their actions (18:20; 31:31; Isa 3:10). "A man reaps what he sows" (Gal 6:7).

1:32 complacency. A false sense of security (see Isa 32:9; Am 6:1; Zep 1:12).

1:33 in safety . . . at ease. Words used of places that enjoy God's protection (see Isa 32:18; Eze 34:27).

2:1 store up . . . within you. Just as the psalmist urged young men to avoid sin by hiding God's word in their hearts (Ps 119:11).

2:2 turning your ear. Listening implies attentiveness and obedience (Isa 55:3; Jer 13:15). heart. The Hebrew word translated "heart" here (and in 4:21; 1Ki 3:9) can sometimes be translated "mind" (see Job 12:3).

3 and if you call out for insight[z] and cry aloud for understanding, 4 and if you look for it as for silver and search for it as for hidden treasure,[a] 5 then you will understand the fear of the LORD
and find the knowledge of God.[b] 6 For the LORD gives wisdom,[c] and from his mouth come knowledge and understanding.[d]
7 He holds victory in store for the upright,
he is a shield[e] to those whose walk is blameless,[f] 8 for he guards the course of the just and protects the way of his faithful ones.[g]

9 Then you will understand[h] what is right and just and fair—every good path.
10 For wisdom will enter your heart,[i] and knowledge will be pleasant to your soul.
11 Discretion will protect you,
and understanding will guard
you.[j]

12 Wisdom will save[k] you from the ways of wicked men, from men whose words are perverse,
13 who leave the straight paths to walk in dark ways,[l] 14 who delight in doing wrong and rejoice in the perverseness of evil,[m] 15 whose paths are crooked[n] and who are devious in their ways.[o]

16 It will save you also from the adulteress,[p]
from the wayward wife with her seductive words,
17 who has left the partner of her youth and ignored the covenant she made before God.[e][q]
18 For her house leads down to death and her paths to the spirits of the dead.[r]
19 None who go to her return or attain the paths of life.[s]

20 Thus you will walk in the ways of good men and keep to the paths of the righteous.
21 For the upright will live in the land,[t]
and the blameless will remain in it; 22 but the wicked[u] will be cut off from the land,[v]
and the unfaithful will be torn from it.[w]

2:4 silver . . . hidden treasure. Job 28:1–11 describes ancient mining techniques, comparing mining with the search for wisdom (see Job 28:12).

2:5 fear of the LORD. See note on 1:7. knowledge of God. Involves knowing God as a person (Php 3:10) and knowing what he is teaching us (v. 6). God. Hebrew Elohim (see note on Ge 2:4); occurs elsewhere in Proverbs only in v. 17; 3:4; 25:2; 30:9.

2:7 holds . . . in store. For those who "store up" his commands (v. 1). shield. Associated with victory also in Ps 18:2,35; cf. Pr 30:5. blameless. Those with spiritual and moral integrity. This does not imply sinlessness (see 19:1).

2:8 guards . . . protects. See Ps 91:3–7,11–12.

2:9–11 Those who know the Lord and the wisdom he gives will know what course of action to follow (cf. Heb 5:11–14).

2:9 right and just and fair. See 1:3; Php 4:8. good path. See "the paths of righteousness" of Ps 23:3.

2:10 pleasant to your soul. Just as the words of a wise man are "sweet to the soul" of another (16:24; cf. 3:17).

2:11 protect . . . guard. As God guards the faithful (v. 8).

2:12–19 Wisdom will save from the enticements of men to follow perverse ways (vv. 12–15) and from the enticements of the adulteress (vv. 16–19). See note on 1:11.

2:12 words are perverse. Cf. v. 14. The deceitfulness of men's speech is also mentioned in 8:13; 10:31–32; 17:20.

2:13 straight paths. See 3:6; 9:15–16. dark ways. Men love darkness instead of light (see Jn 3:19–21; see also Job 24:15–16; Isa 29:15; Ro 13:12).

2:14 delight . . . rejoice in . . . evil. Like the sinners of 1:10–16.

2:15 paths are crooked. See Isa 59:7–8.

2:16 adulteress . . . wayward wife. The Hebrew for these terms occurs again in 5:20 and 7:5. The terms mean lit. "stranger" and "foreigner" (cf. 5:10) because anyone other than one's own wife was to be considered off limits, like a foreigner who worshiped another god (cf. 1Ki 11:1). "Wayward wife" is parallel to "immoral woman" in 6:24 and "prostitute" in 23:27. seductive words. Equal to the "smooth tongue" of 6:24 and the "smooth talk" of 7:21. Cf. 5:3.

2:17 partner of her youth. Her husband, whom she married when she was a young woman (cf. Isa 54:6). covenant . . . before God. Probably the marriage covenant, spoken in God's presence (see Eze 16:8; Mal 2:14). Alternatively, the breaking of the seventh commandment (Ex 20:14) may be indicated (see NIV text note).

2:18 leads down to death. According to 7:27, "her house is a highway to the grave." A life of immorality leads to the destruction and death of all who are involved (cf. 5:5; 9:18). spirits of the dead. See Job 26:5 and note. The deceased are in the grave (or Sheol), "the chambers of death" (7:27).

2:21 live in the land. Israel had been promised the land of Canaan (Ge 17:8; Dt 4:1), and Ps 37:29 says that "the righteous will inherit the land" (see Ps 37:9,11; Mt 5:5). blameless. See note on v. 7.

2:22 cut off from the land . . . torn from it. In Dt 28:63 God warned that if the people refuse to obey him, they "will be uprooted from the land." Evil men and their offspring will be cut off (Ps 37:9,28).

[2]for they will prolong your life many years[z] and bring you prosperity.[a]

[3]Let love and faithfulness[b] never leave you;
bind them around your neck,
write them on the tablet of your heart.[c] [4]Then you will win favor and a good name in the sight of God and man.[d]

[5]Trust in the LORD[e] with all your heart and lean not on your own understanding; [6]in all your ways acknowledge him,
and he will make your paths[f] straight.[fg]

[7]Do not be wise in your own eyes;[h] fear the LORD[i] and shun evil.[j] [8]This will bring health to your body[k] and nourishment to your bones.[l]

[9]Honor the LORD with your wealth, with the firstfruits[m] of all your crops;
[10]then your barns will be filled[n] to overflowing, and your vats will brim over with new wine.[o]

[11]My son,[p] do not despise the LORD's discipline[q]
and do not resent his rebuke, [12]because the LORD disciplines those he loves,[r] as a father[g] the son he delights in.[s]

[13]Blessed is the man who finds wisdom,
the man who gains understanding, [14]for she is more profitable than silver and yields better returns than gold.[t] [15]She is more precious than rubies;[u] nothing you desire can compare with her.[v] [16]Long life is in her right hand;[w] in her left hand are riches and honor.[x] [17]Her ways are pleasant ways, and all her paths are peace.[y] [18]She is a tree of life[z] to those who embrace her;
those who lay hold of her will be blessed.[a] [19]By wisdom[b] the LORD laid the earth's foundations,[c] by understanding he set the heavens[d] in place;

[f]6 Or will direct your paths [g]12 Hebrew; Septuagint and he punishes

3:2 prolong your life. Fear of the Lord (10:27; 19:23) brings health to the body (v. 8) and "adds length to life" (10:27; see also 9:10–11). prosperity. When Solomon prayed for wisdom, God promised him riches as well as long life if he obeyed God's commands (1Ki 3:13–14). Normally the righteous are prosperous and happy (12:21), but sometimes it is the wicked who are strong and prosperous (Ps 73:3,12), temporary though that may be (Ps 73:17–19). Job 1–2 also shows how disaster and death can strike a godly person.

3:3 bind . . . neck. Like a beautiful necklace (cf. 1:9; 3:22). write them on the tablet of your heart. See Jer 31:33.

3:4 favor. See 8:35; Ge 6:8. God and man. See Lk 2:52; Ro 12:17; 2Co 8:21.

3:5 Trust in the LORD. Commit your way to the Lord (Ps 37:5), like Israel's forefathers, who trusted in God and were rescued (Ps 22:4–5). with all your heart. Like Caleb (Nu 14:24; Dt 1:36) or the godly King Hezekiah (Isa 38:3). David challenged Solomon to serve God with wholehearted devotion (1Ch 28:9).

3:6 acknowledge him. Be ever mindful of God and serve him with a willing and faithful heart (see 1Ch 28:9; Hos 4:1; 6:6). make your paths straight. He will remove the obstacles from your pathway and bring you to your appointed goal (see 11:5; Isa 45:13).

3:7 fear the LORD and shun evil. Cf. Job, who was a "blameless and upright" man (Job 1:1). See note on 1:7.

3:8 bones. The whole body. Elsewhere, good news and pleasant words bring health to the bones (15:30; 16:24; cf. 17:22).

3:9 firstfruits. The Israelites were required to give to the priests the first part of the olive oil, wine and grain produced each year (see Lev 23:10; Nu 18:12–13).

3:10 filled to overflowing. For those who bring to the Lord his tithes and offerings, God promises to pour out more blessing than they have room for (see Mal 3:10; see also Dt 28:8,12; 2Co 9:8).

3:11–12 A warning that the righteous are not always prosperous (see v. 2 and note). Through times of testing and affliction, God is teaching them (see 12:1; Job 5:17; 36:22; Ps 119:71). Heb 12:5–6 quotes both of these verses to encourage believers to endure hardship (Heb 12:7). "God disciplines us for our good" (Heb 12:10).

3:12 as a father. God disciplined his son Israel by testing the nation in the desert 40 years (Dt 8:2–5).

3:13–18 A poem praising wisdom that begins and ends with the word "blessed" (cf. Job 5:17).

3:14 more profitable than silver . . . gold. The psalmist makes the same claim for the commands and precepts of the Lord (Ps 19:10; 119:72,127).

3:15–18 Wisdom is personified.

3:15 rubies. Considered of less value than wisdom also in Job 28:18. The "wife of noble character" is worth more than rubies (31:10).

3:16 Long life. See note on v. 2. riches and honor. See 8:18; 22:4.

3:17 peace. Hebrew shalom, translated "prosperity" in v. 2 (see 16:7; Ps 119:165).

3:18 tree of life. Source of life. This figure of speech may allude to the tree in the Garden of Eden (see Ge 2:9 and note; cf. Pr 11:30; 13:12; 15:4).

3:19–20 The role of wisdom in creation is described more fully in 8:22–31. Divine wisdom guided the Creator and now permeates the whole creation. To live by wisdom is to imitate the Lord and conform to the divinely appointed creation order.

3:19 earth's foundations. God's work in creation is compared to the construction of a building (see 1Ki 5:17; 6:37; see also 8:29; Job 38:4–6; Ps 104:5; Zec 12:1). set the heavens in place. See Isa 42:5; 51:16.

28 Do not say to your neighbor, when you now have it with you.[q]

who lives trustfully near you.[r] 30 Do not accuse a man for no reason—when he has done you no harm.

31 Do not envy[s] a violent man

Wisdom Is Supreme

4 Listen, my sons,[b] to a father's instruction;[c] pay attention and gain understanding.[d] 2 I give you sound learning,
so do not forsake my teaching.
3 When I was a boy in my father's house,
still tender, and an only child of my mother, 4 he taught me and said,
"Lay hold[e] of my words with all your heart;
keep my commands and you will live.[f] 5 Get wisdom,[g] get understanding;
do not forget my words or swerve from them.
6 Do not forsake wisdom, and she will protect you;[h] love her, and she will watch over you.[i] 7 Wisdom is supreme; therefore get wisdom.
Though it cost all[j] you have,[h] get understanding.[k] 8 Esteem her, and she will exalt you;
embrace her, and she will honor you.[l]

[h] 7 Or Whatever else you get

3:20 divided. Or "broken open." God opened up springs and streams (see Ge 7:11; 49:25; Ps 74:15). Alternatively, though perhaps less likely, reference is to the dividing of the waters above from the waters below (see Ge 1:7; Ps 42:7 and note). dew. Probably also includes rain (see Dt 33:13; 2Sa 1:21).

3:22 ornament to grace your neck. Like a beautiful necklace (see v. 3).

3:23 in safety, and your foot will not stumble. Cf. 10:9.

3:24 when you lie down, you will not be afraid. Also listed among the covenant blessings (see Lev 26:6; Job 11:18–19; Mic 4:4; Zep 3:13; see also Pr 1:33). your sleep will be sweet. See 6:22; Ps 4:8.

3:25 disaster ... ruin. The Lord shields the godly from deadly arrows and plagues (see 10:25; Ps 91:3–8; Job 5:21).

3:26 will keep your foot from being snared. Contrast the fate of the fool in 1:18; 7:22–23.

3:27 withhold good. See Ac 9:36; Gal 6:10; 1Jn 3:17–18. those who deserve it. Especially the poor and needy.

3:28 See Lk 11:5–8; Jas 2:15–16.

3:30 Do not accuse ... for no reason. See Job 2:3.

3:31 Do not envy. See 24:19; Ps 37:1,7. violent man. Like the sinners of 1:10–16 (cf. 16:29).

3:32 detests. A word that elsewhere expresses abhorrence of pagan practices (see Dt 18:9,12) and moral abuses. It is common in Proverbs (e.g., 6:16; 8:7; 11:20). takes the upright into his confidence. See Ge 18:17–19; Job 29:4; Ps 25:14; Jn 15:15.

3:33 This contrast is seen also in Dt 11:26–28. The LORD's curse is on the house of the wicked. See Jos 7:24–25; Zec 5:3–4. blesses the home of the righteous. See Job 42:12–14.

3:34 mocks proud mockers. See note on 1:26. gives grace. Shows favor (see v. 4).

4:3 still tender. Cf. David's words about Solomon, who was "young and inexperienced" (1Ch 22:5; 29:1). This is part of an autobiographical statement, such as was sometimes used by the wisdom teachers (see 24:30–34; see also the book of Ecclesiastes). only child. Therefore deeply loved (cf. Ge 37:3; Zec 12:10).

4:4 with all your heart. See note on 3:5.

4:6 protect ... watch over. The Hebrew for these two verbs is used together also in 2:8,11. love her. To love wisdom is to prosper (8:21); to hate wisdom is to "love death" (8:36).

4:7 is supreme. Or "ranks first"; translated "is the beginning" in 1:7. Though it cost all you have. Cf. the merchant who sold everything to buy a pearl of great value (Mt 13:45–46).

9She will set a garland of grace on your head and present you with a crown of splendor.[m]"

10Listen, my son,[n] accept what I say, and the years of your life will be many.[o]
11I guide[p] you in the way of wisdom and lead you along straight paths.[q] 12When you walk, your steps will not be hampered;
when you run, you will not stumble.[r] 13Hold on to instruction, do not let it go;
guard it well, for it is your life.[s] 14Do not set foot on the path of the wicked
or walk in the way of evil men.[t] 15Avoid it, do not travel on it;
turn from it and go on your way.
16For they cannot sleep till they do evil;[u]
they are robbed of slumber till they make someone fall.
17They eat the bread of wickedness and drink the wine of violence.[v]

18The path of the righteous[w] is like the first gleam of dawn,[x] shining ever brighter till the full light of day.[y] 19But the way of the wicked is like deep darkness;[z]
they do not know what makes them stumble.[a]

20My son,[b] pay attention to what I say; listen closely to my words.[c] 21Do not let them out of your sight,[d]
keep them within your heart; 22for they are life to those who find
them
and health to a man's whole body.[e] 23Above all else, guard[f] your heart, for it is the wellspring of life.[g] 24Put away perversity from your mouth;
keep corrupt talk far from your lips.
25Let your eyes[h] look straight ahead, fix your gaze directly before you.
26Make level[i] paths for your feet[i]
and take only ways that are firm.
27Do not swerve to the right or the left;[j]
keep your foot from evil.

Warning Against Adultery

5 My son,[k] pay attention to my wisdom,
listen well to my words[l] of insight, 2that you may maintain discretion and your lips may preserve
knowledge.
3For the lips of an adulteress drip honey,
and her speech is smoother than

[i] 26 Or Consider the [j] 5 Hebrew Sheol

4:9 crown of splendor. Wreaths or crowns were worn at joyous occasions, such as weddings or feasts (see Eze 16:12; 23:42).
4:10 years . . . will be many. See note on 3:2.
4:11 straight paths. Right paths (see notes on 3:6; Ps 23:3).
4:12 you will not stumble. Because of some obstacle or lack of light (see v. 19; 3:23; 10:9; Ps 18:36; Isa 40:30–31).
4:14 path of the wicked. Cf. the destructive paths of the adulteress in 2:18; 7:25; see Ps 1:1; 17:4–5.
4:16 cannot sleep till they do evil. See Ps 36:4; Mic 2:1. Contrast the attitude of David, who would not sleep until he found a permanent place for God's house (Ps 132:3–5).
4:17 eat the bread . . . drink the wine. They thrive on wickedness and violence (see 13:2; Job 15:16).
4:18 path of the righteous is . . . shining ever brighter. The godly have all the guidance and protection they need (see vv. 11–12) and are able to lead others to righteousness (Da 12:3).
4:19 deep darkness. A dangerous path that leads to destruction (see note on 2:13; see also Isa 59:9–10; Jer 23:12; Jn 11:10; 12:35).
4:21 heart. See 3:1,3.
4:22 health. Physical, psychological and spiritual (see 3:8 and note).
4:23 wellspring of life. If we store up good things (2:1) in our hearts, our words and actions will be good. "Out of the overflow of the heart the mouth speaks" (Mt 12:34; cf. Mk 7:21).
4:24 Put away perversity from your mouth. See note on 2:12; see also 19:1. corrupt talk. See 6:12; 19:28; Eph 4:29; Jas 3:6.
4:25 look straight ahead. Not at worthless things (Ps 119:37).
4:26 Make level paths. Remove every moral hindrance (see vv. 11–12; Isa 26:7).
4:27 Do not swerve to the right or the left. A warning found also in Dt 5:32–33; 28:14; Jos 1:7. foot from evil. See 1:15.
5:2 lips may preserve knowledge. Applied to a priest in Mal 2:7.
5:3 lips . . . drip honey. Probably a reference to the pleasant-sounding talk (cf. 16:24) of the adulteress, though some explain it as kisses (cf. SS 4:11; 5:13; 7:9). adulteress. See note on 2:16. smoother than oil. See 2:16. Her words are soothing (see Ps 55:21) but full of flattery (Pr 29:5) and hypocrisy (Ps 5:9).
5:4 gall. A bitter herb (see Dt 29:18; La 3:15,19; Am 6:12). double-edged sword. A lethal weapon (see Jdg 3:16; see also Ps 55:21; 149:6; Heb 4:12; Rev 1:16).
5:5 down to death. Her immorality hastens her end (see note on 2:18).
5:6 paths are crooked. See 2:15; 10:9. knows it not. Or "does not acknowledge it."

her paths are crooked, but she knows it not.[p]

[7]Now then, my sons, listen[q] to me;
do not turn aside from what I say.
[8]Keep to a path far from her,[r] do not go near the door of her house,
[9]lest you give your best strength to others
and your years to one who is cruel, [10]lest strangers feast on your wealth and your toil enrich another man's house.[s] [11]At the end of your life you will groan, when your flesh and body are spent.
[12]You will say, "How I hated discipline!
How my heart spurned
correction![t]
[13]I would not obey my teachers or listen to my instructors.
[14]I have come to the brink of utter ruin[u]
in the midst of the whole assembly."[v]

[15]Drink water from your own cistern, running water from your own well.
[16]Should your springs overflow in the streets,
your streams of water in the public squares?
[17]Let them be yours alone, never to be shared with strangers.

[18]May your fountain[w] be blessed, and may you rejoice in the wife of your youth.[x]
[19]A loving doe, a graceful deer[y]— may her breasts satisfy you always, may you ever be captivated by her
love.
[20]Why be captivated, my son, by an adulteress?
Why embrace the bosom of another man's wife?

[21]For a man's ways are in full view[z] of
the LORD,
and he examines[a] all his paths.[b] [22]The evil deeds of a wicked man ensnare him;[c]
the cords of his sin hold him fast.[d]
[23]He will die for lack of discipline,[e] led astray by his own great folly.[f]

Warnings Against Folly

6 My son,[g] if you have put up security[h] for your neighbor,[i] if you have struck hands in pledge[j] for another, [2]if you have been trapped by what you said,
ensnared by the words of your
mouth,
[3]then do this, my son, to free yourself, since you have fallen into your neighbor's hands:

6:1 [g]S Pr 1:8 [h]Job 17:3 [i]Pr 17:18 [j]Pr 11:15; 22:26-27

5:7–14 The father (teacher) warns the son (student) about the price of immorality.
5:8 far from her. See Ge 39:12; 2Ti 2:22. door of her house. Cf. 7:25; 9:14.
5:9 one who is cruel. Possibly the vengeful husband (see 6:34–35).
5:10 strangers feast on your wealth. Contrast the riches and honor that come to the man who embraces wisdom (3:16–18). Immorality eventually reduces one "to a loaf of bread" (6:26).
5:11 flesh and body are spent. Possibly because of the debilitating effects of immorality (see 1Co 6:18; cf. Pr 3:8; 4:22), but more likely referring to the loss of vigor that accompanies old age.
5:12 hated discipline ... spurned correction. In old age he will look back and sadly acknowledge that he has played the fool (see 1:7,22,29–30).
5:13 would not obey. In spite of the repeated urging to "listen" or "pay attention" to their instruction (1:8; 3:1; 4:1; 5:1).
5:14 utter ruin. Physical, financial and social. in the midst of the whole assembly. The offender was subject to "blows and disgrace" (6:33) or even death (see Dt 22:22).
5:15 your own cistern ... your own well. Your own wife (see SS 4:12,15). Let your own wife be your source of pleasure, as water refreshes a thirsty man. Wells and cisterns were privately owned and of great value (2Ki 18:31; Jer 38:6).
5:16 springs ... streams of water. Like "cistern" and "well" in v. 15 and "fountain" in v. 18, these also refer to the wife (see SS 4:12,15). in the public squares. The wife may become promiscuous if the husband is unfaithful.
5:18 wife of your youth. Chosen by you when you were young.
5:19 doe ... deer. Descriptive of the wife, perhaps because of the delicate beauty of the doe's limbs (see SS 2:9). may her breasts satisfy you always. See SS 7:7–8. captivated. Or "exhilarated," "intoxicated." Marital love is portrayed as better than wine in SS 4:10 (cf. SS 7:9).
5:20 Why ... ? In light of the sheer joy found within the bonds of marriage and the "utter ruin" (v. 14) outside it, why commit adultery? adulteress. See v. 3; 2:16 and note.
5:21 in full view of the LORD. See 15:3; Job 31:4; 34:21; Jer 16:17. examines all his paths. See Job 7:18; 34:23; Ps 11:4; 26:2; 139:23; Jer 17:10.
5:22 ensnare him. See 1:18 and note; Dt 7:25; 12:30. In Ecc 7:26 the sinner is ensnared by a woman "whose heart is a trap." cords of his sin. See Job 36:8; Ecc 4:12; Isa 5:18.
5:23 The death of the fool is described in similar terms in 1:29–32; 7:21–25; cf. Job 36:12. discipline. See v. 12.
6:1 put up security ... struck hands in pledge. Refers to responsibility for someone else's debt (cf. 22:26) or for some other obligation. It can end in abject poverty (cf. 22:27) or even slavery if you cannot pay. For example, Judah volunteered to personally guarantee the safe return of Benjamin to Jacob (Ge 43:9), and when this seemed impossible, he had to offer himself to Joseph as a slave (Ge 44:32–33). Such an arrangement was sealed by "striking hands," equivalent to our handshake (see 11:15; 17:18; 20:16; 22:26; cf. Job 17:3).
6:2 trapped ... ensnared. Cf. v. 5; 5:22.
6:3 to free yourself. To gain release from the obligation. fallen into your neighbor's hands. Assumed responsibility for his obligation. press your plea. Be as persistent as the man in Lk 11:8.

Go and humble yourself;
press your plea with your neighbor!
4Allow no sleep to your eyes,
no slumber to your eyelids.[k] 5Free yourself, like a gazelle[l] from the hand of the hunter,[m] like a bird from the snare of the fowler.[n]

6Go to the ant, you sluggard;[o]
consider its ways and be wise!
7It has no commander,
no overseer or ruler, 8yet it stores its provisions in summer[p]
and gathers its food at harvest.[q]

9How long will you lie there, you sluggard?[r]
When will you get up from your sleep?
10A little sleep, a little slumber,
a little folding of the hands to rest[s]— 11and poverty[t] will come on you like a bandit
and scarcity like an armed man.[k]

12A scoundrel and villain, who goes about with a corrupt
mouth,
13 who winks with his eye,[u] signals with his feet and motions with his fingers,[v] 14 who plots evil[w] with deceit in his heart—
he always stirs up dissension.[x] 15Therefore disaster will overtake him in an instant;[y]
he will suddenly[z] be destroyed—without remedy.[a]

16There are six things the LORD hates,[b]
seven that are detestable to him:
17 haughty eyes,[c] a lying tongue,[d]
hands that shed innocent blood,[e] 18 a heart that devises wicked schemes, feet that are quick to rush into evil,[f]
19 a false witness[g] who pours out lies[h]
and a man who stirs up dissension among brothers.[i]

[k] 11 Or like a vagrant / and scarcity like a beggar

6:4 no sleep . . . no slumber. Like David in Ps 132:4.
6:5 snare of the fowler. See Ps 124:7.
6:6 sluggard. A lazy individual who refuses to work and whose desires are not met (see 10:26; 13:4; 15:19; 19:24; 22:13; 24:30; 26:13–16).
6:7 no commander. Cf. the locust in 30:27.
6:9 How long will you lie there, you sluggard? His love for sleep is described also in 26:14.
6:10–11 Repeated in 24:33–34.
6:11 poverty . . . scarcity. Connected with too much sleep also in 10:5; 19:15; 20:13. Hard work is an antidote to poverty (see 12:11; 14:23; 28:19). like a bandit . . . an armed man. Poverty will come when it is too late to do anything about it (cf. Mt 24:43).
6:12–14 A vivid description of one who uses mouth, eyes, feet and fingers (all a person's means of communication) in devious ways to achieve the deceitful plots of his heart—here especially to spread slander about someone to destroy him.
6:12 scoundrel. A worthless, wicked man (Jdg 19:22; 1Sa 25:25; Job 34:18). See note on Dt 13:13. corrupt mouth. See 19:28; 2:12 and note.
6:13 winks with his eye. To make insinuations (see 10:10; 16:30).
6:14 plots evil. See v. 18; 3:29; Mic 2:1. stirs up dissension. Through slander he creates distrust that culminates in alienation and conflict.
6:15 disaster will overtake him in an instant. Usually a sign of God's judgment (see 1:26; 24:22; Job 34:20). suddenly be destroyed—without remedy. He will suffer the same fate he thought to bring upon another—his punishment will fit his crime.
6:16–19 A further elaboration on the theme of vv. 12–15, explaining why "disaster will overtake" (v. 15) the scoundrel described here.
6:16 six . . . seven. A way of handling numbers in synonymous parallelism in Hebrew poetry (see Introduction: The Nature of a Proverb). Such catalogues of items are frequent in the wisdom literature of the OT (see 30:15,18,21,29; see also Job 5:19). detestable. See 3:32 and note.
6:17 haughty eyes. They reflect a proud heart, and God will judge them (see 21:4; 30:13; Ps 18:27; 101:5). lying tongue. See 2:12 and note; 12:19; 17:7; 21:6. hands that shed innocent blood. See 1:11,16 and notes; 28:17.
6:18 heart that devises wicked schemes. See 1:31; 24:2; Ge 6:5. feet that . . . rush into evil. See 1:16 and note.
6:19 false witness. Proverbs emphasizes the damage done by the false witness (12:17–18; 25:18; see note on Ps 5:9) and the punishment he receives (see note on v. 15; see also 19:5,9; 21:28). pours out lies. See 14:5,25. stirs up dissension. See note on v. 14.
6:20 See 1:8.
6:21 Those who follow wisdom add beauty and honor to their lives.
6:22 walk. Cf. 4:11. when you sleep. See note on 3:24. watch over you. See 4:6.
6:23 lamp . . . light. Just as the word of God "is a lamp to my feet and a light for my path" (Ps 119:105; cf. Ps 19:8). way to life. See 3:22; 4:22. Contrast the way to death for the one who hates discipline (5:23).

and the corrections of discipline are the way to life,[n] 24keeping you from the immoral woman,
from the smooth tongue of the wayward wife.[o] 25Do not lust in your heart after her beauty
or let her captivate you with her eyes, 26for the prostitute reduces you to a loaf of bread,
and the adulteress preys upon your very life.[p] 27Can a man scoop fire into his lap without his clothes being burned?
28Can a man walk on hot coals without his feet being scorched?
29So is he who sleeps[q] with another man's wife;[r]
no one who touches her will go unpunished.

30Men do not despise a thief if he steals to satisfy his hunger when he is starving.
31Yet if he is caught, he must pay sevenfold,[s]
though it costs him all the wealth of his house.
32But a man who commits adultery[t] lacks judgment;[u]
whoever does so destroys himself.
33Blows and disgrace are his lot, and his shame will never[v] be wiped away;
34for jealousy[w] arouses a husband's fury,[x]
and he will show no mercy when he takes revenge.

I noticed among the young men,
a youth who lacked judgment.[d] 8He was going down the street near walking along in the direction of her house 9at twilight,[e] as the day was fading, as the dark of night set in.

10Then out came a woman to meet him, dressed like a prostitute and with crafty intent.
11(She is loud[f] and defiant,
her feet never stay at home;

6:24 See notes on 2:16; 5:3.
6:25 Do not lust. Jesus shows the close connection between lust and adultery (Mt 5:28; cf. Ex 20:17). captivate you. See 5:20.
6:26 reduces you to a loaf of bread. Both the prostitute (29:3) and the adulteress (5:10) reduce a man to poverty (see 1Sa 2:36).
6:29 no one ... will go unpunished. See vv. 33–34; see also note on 5:14.
6:31 sevenfold. Hebrew law demanded no more than fivefold payment as a penalty for any theft (Ex 22:1–9). The number seven is here symbolic—he will pay in full.
6:32 destroys himself. See 5:14 and note; 7:22–23.
6:33 disgrace. Disgrace followed Amnon's raping of Tamar (2Sa 13:13,22).
6:34 jealousy. Its strength is also illustrated in 27:4; SS 8:6.
7:1 See Ps. 119:11.
7:2 the apple of your eye. The pupil, which is cared for and protected because of its great value (see Dt 32:10 and note).
7:3 Bind them on your fingers. As a reminder (see 6:21; Dt 6:8). tablet of your heart. See Jer 31:33.
7:4 wisdom. As embodied in the instructions of the wisdom teacher (vv. 1–3). my sister ... kinsman. Make wisdom your most intimate companion. "Sister" may be used here in the sense of "bride" (see SS 4:9–10,12; 5:1–2).
7:5 See note on 2:16.
7:7 simple. See note on 1:4. who lacked judgment. See 6:32; 9:4,16.
7:8 in the direction of her house. See 5:8.
7:9 dark of night. He was hoping no one would see him (see 2:13 and note).
7:10 dressed like a prostitute. Perhaps in a gaudy manner (see Eze 16:16) and heavily veiled (see Ge 38:14–15).
7:11 loud. Applied to the "woman Folly" in 9:13.
7:12 she lurks. Ready to catch her prey (see v. 22).
7:13 kissed him. A bold greeting (see Ge 29:11).
7:14 fellowship offerings. Part of the meat could be eaten by the one who brought the offering and by his (or her) family (Lev 7:12–15). today I fulfilled my vows. An offering made as the result of a vow was one of the fellowship offerings, and the meat had to be eaten on the first or second day (see Lev 7:15–16). So the young man had an today I fulfilled my vows.

15So I came out to meet you;
I looked for you and have found you!
16I have covered my bed with colored linens from Egypt.
17I have perfumed my bed[k]
with myrrh,[l] aloes and cinnamon.
18Come, let's drink deep of love till morning;
let's enjoy ourselves with love![m] 19My husband is not at home;
he has gone on a long journey.
20He took his purse filled with money and will not be home till full moon."

21With persuasive words she led him astray;
she seduced him with her smooth talk.[n] 22All at once he followed her like an ox going to the slaughter, like a deer[m] stepping into a noose[no] 23 till an arrow pierces[p] his liver, like a bird darting into a snare,
little knowing it will cost him his life.[q]

24Now then, my sons, listen[r] to me;
pay attention to what I say.
25Do not let your heart turn to her ways or stray into her paths.[s] 26Many are the victims she has brought down;
her slain are a mighty throng.
27Her house is a highway to the grave,[o] leading down to the chambers of death.[t]

Wisdom's Call

8 Does not wisdom call out?[u]
Does not understanding raise her voice?
2On the heights along the way,
where the paths meet, she takes her stand; 3beside the gates leading into the city,
at the entrances, she cries aloud:[v]
4"To you, O men, I call out;[w]
I raise my voice to all mankind.
5You who are simple,[x] gain prudence;[y]
you who are foolish, gain understanding.
6Listen, for I have worthy things to say;
I open my lips to speak what is right.
7My mouth speaks what is true,[z]
for my lips detest wickedness.
8All the words of my mouth are just;
none of them is crooked or perverse.
9To the discerning all of them are right;
they are faultless to those who have knowledge.
10Choose my instruction instead of silver, knowledge rather than choice gold,[a] 11for wisdom is more precious[b] than rubies, and nothing you desire can compare with her.[c]

12"I, wisdom, dwell together with prudence;
I possess knowledge and discretion.[d]
13To fear the LORD[e] is to hate evil;[f]
I hate[g] pride and arrogance, evil behavior and perverse speech.

7:16 colored linens from Egypt. Linen is associated with the wealthy in 31:22. Egyptian linen was of great value (see Isa 19:9; Eze 27:7).

7:17 myrrh, aloes and cinnamon. Fragrant perfumes that are linked with making love also in Ps 45:8; SS 4:14; 5:5.

7:18 drink deep of love. Making love is compared to eating and drinking also in 9:17; 30:20; SS 4:16; 5:1. enjoy ourselves. See SS 4:10.

7:19 not at home. So he will never know (cf. 6:34–35). long journey. Perhaps he was a wealthy merchant.

7:20 money. Pieces of silver of various weights were a common medium of exchange, but not in the form of coins until a later period.

7:21 persuasive words . . . smooth talk. See notes on 2:16; 5:3; see also 6:24; 7:5. led him astray. Cf. 5:23.

7:22 like an ox going to the slaughter. Totally oblivious of the fate that awaits him. noose. See Isa 51:20.

7:23 pierces his liver. The terrible fate of the wicked is similarly described in Job 20:24–25. darting into a snare. See notes on 1:17–18; 5:22.

8:1–36 Wisdom is personified (see note on 1:20) as she addresses mankind in preparation for the final plea from both "Wisdom" and "Folly" in ch. 9.

8:1 call out . . . raise her voice. See 1:20.

8:2–3 See notes on 1:20–21.

8:4 mankind. See v. 31.

8:5 simple . . . foolish. Both are addressed in wisdom's speech in 1:22,32. simple, gain prudence. See note on 1:4.

8:6 worthy things . . . what is right. See Php 4:8.

8:7 my lips detest wickedness. See 3:32; 12:22.

8:8 crooked or perverse. See Php 2:15; cf. Pr 2:15.

8:9 To the discerning. The wiser a person is, the more he appreciates words of wisdom. who have knowledge. Especially the knowledge of God (see note on 2:5).

8:10 silver . . . gold. See v. 19; 2:4; 3:14 and note.

8:11 Almost identical with 3:15 (see note there).

8:12 dwell together with prudence. Cf. Job 28:20. prudence . . . knowledge and discretion. See 1:4 and note.

8:13 To fear the LORD is to hate evil. See 1:7; 3:7 and notes;

14 Counsel and sound judgment are mine;
I have understanding and power.[h]
15 By me kings reign and rulers[i] make laws that are just;
16 by me princes govern,[j]
and all nobles who rule on earth.[p] 17 I love those who love me,[k]
and those who seek me find me.[l] 18 With me are riches and honor,[m] enduring wealth and prosperity.[n] 19 My fruit is better than fine gold;[o] what I yield surpasses choice silver.[p] 20 I walk in the way of righteousness,[q]
along the paths of justice,

me
and making their treasuries full.[r]

22 "The LORD brought me forth as the first of his works,[q,r]
before his deeds of old; 23 I was appointed[s] from eternity, from the beginning, before the world began.
24 When there were no oceans, I was given birth,
when there were no springs
abounding with water;[s] 25 before the mountains were settled in place,[t]
before the hills, I was given birth,[u] 26 before he made the earth or its fields or any of the dust of the world.[v] 27 I was there when he set the heavens in place,[w]
when he marked out the horizon[x]
on the face of the deep, 28 when he established the clouds above[y]
and fixed securely the fountains of the deep,[z]
29 when he gave the sea its boundary[a] so the waters would not overstep his command,[b] and when he marked out the foundations of the earth.[c]

side.[d]
I was filled with delight day after day, rejoicing always in his presence, 31 rejoicing in his whole world and delighting in mankind.[e] blessed are[g] those who keep my waiting at my doorway.

8:14 Counsel and sound judgment . . . understanding and power. These characterize the Lord (2:6–7; Job 12:13,16; Isa 40:13–14; Ro 16:27) and the Spirit of the Lord (Isa 11:2). Counsel. See 1:25; 19:20. power. Cf. Ecc 9:16.

8:15 By me kings reign. See 29:4. Solomon prayed for wisdom to govern Israel (see 1Ki 3:9; 2Ch 1:10).

8:17 I love. I pour out my benefits on (see 4:6 and note; see also Jn 14:21). those who seek me find me. See 2:4–5; Isa 55:6; Jas 1:5.

8:18 riches and honor. See 3:16; 22:4. prosperity. See note on 3:2; see also 21:21.

8:19 My fruit. Wisdom is called a "tree of life" in 3:18 (see note there). fine gold . . . choice silver. See v. 10; Job 28:15; see also 3:14 and note.

8:20 way . . . paths. See 3:17. justice. See v. 15.

8:21 bestowing wealth. See v. 18; Zec 8:12. making their treasuries full. See note on 3:10; see also 24:4.

8:22–31 A hymn describing wisdom's role in creation. Wisdom is here personified, as in 1:20–33; 3:15–18; 9:1–12. Therefore these verses should not be interpreted as a direct description of Christ. Yet they provide part of the background for the NT portrayal of Christ as the divine Word (Jn 1:1–3) and as the wisdom of God (1Co 1:24,30; Col 2:3). Here, wisdom is an attribute of God involved with him in creation.

8:22 brought . . . forth. The Hebrew for this verb is also used in Ge 4:1; 14:19,22 ("Creator"). me. Wisdom (see 3:19; Ps 104:24). as the first of his works. Cf. Job's statement about the behemoth (Job 40:19).

8:23 from eternity. Descriptive also of Christ (see Jn 1:1; cf. Mic 5:2). before the world began. Wisdom was already there before God began to create the world (cf. Christ's statement in Jn 17:5).

8:24 I was given birth. Elsewhere it is the sea (Job 38:8–9) and the mountains and earth that are "brought forth" (Ps 90:2; Job 15:7). springs abounding with water. See Ps 104:10.

8:25 mountains. See Ps 90:2.

8:27 set the heavens in place. See 3:19. when he marked out the horizon on the face of the deep. See Job 26:10.

8:28 fountains of the deep. Earth's springs and streams (see note on 3:20; cf. Ge 7:11).

8:29 the sea its boundary. See Ge 1:9; Job 38:10–11; Ps 104:9. foundations of the earth. See note on 3:19.

8:30 craftsman. A craftsman was sometimes called a wise man. See, e.g., Bezalel, who designed and built the tabernacle (Ex 31:3). Here the term stresses the skill demonstrated in creation. filled with delight . . . rejoicing. Cf. the joyful shouts of the angels at the time of creation (Job 38:7).

8:31 delighting in mankind. Cf. v. 4. Man, made in the image of God, represented the climax of creation (see Ge 1:26–28).

8:32 blessed. The blessings associated with gaining wisdom are also given in 3:13–18; see also Ps 119:1–2; 128:1.

8:34 watching daily at my doors. Contrast the warning not to go near the door of the adulteress's house (5:8).

8:35 finds life. See 3:2; 4:22 and notes. favor. See 3:4; 12:2;

and receives favor from the LORD.[l] 36But whoever fails to find me harms himself;[m] all who hate me love death."[n]

Invitations of Wisdom and Folly

9 Wisdom has built[o] her house;
she has hewn out its seven pillars.
2She has prepared her meat and mixed her wine;[p]
she has also set her table.[q] 3She has sent out her maids, and she calls[r] from the highest point of the city.[s] 4"Let all who are simple[t] come in here!"
she says to those who lack judgment.[u] 5"Come,[v] eat my food and drink the wine I have mixed.[w] 6Leave your simple ways and you will live;[x] walk in the way of understanding.[y]

7"Whoever corrects a mocker invites insult;
whoever rebukes a wicked man incurs abuse.[z] 8Do not rebuke a mocker[a] or he will hate you;
rebuke a wise man and he will love you.[b] 9Instruct a wise man and he will be wiser still;
teach a righteous man and he will add to his learning.[c] 10"The fear of the LORD[d] is the beginning of wisdom, and knowledge of the Holy One[e] is understanding.[f] 11For through me your days will be many,
and years will be added to your life.[g] 12If you are wise, your wisdom will reward you;
if you are a mocker, you alone will suffer."

13The woman Folly is loud;[h]
she is undisciplined and without knowledge.[i] 14She sits at the door of her house, on a seat at the highest point of the city,[j] 15calling out[k] to those who pass by,
who go straight on their way.
16"Let all who are simple come in here!"
she says to those who lack judgment.[l] 17"Stolen water is sweet;
food eaten in secret is delicious![m]" 18But little do they know that the dead are there, that her guests are in the depths of the grave.[tn]

[t] 18 Hebrew Sheol

18:22.

8:36 all who hate me love death. See 1:28–33; 5:12,23; 7:27 and notes.

9:1 has built her house. Both wisdom and folly have a house to which mankind is invited (see v. 14; 7:8; 8:34), but wisdom has built her house (see note on 14:1)—for her there is no "sitting" (v. 14). Cf. the virtues of the wife of noble character (31:10–27). seven pillars. Indicating a large house. Perhaps "seven" refers to seven major aspects of wisdom.

9:2 See v. 17 and note. The banquet prepared by wisdom contrasts with the "perfumed bed" made ready by the adulteress in 7:17. mixed her wine. With spices, to make it tastier (see SS 8:2).

9:3 she calls from the highest point of the city. See the description of Folly in v. 14; see also 8:1–3.

9:4 The same invitation is given by Folly in v. 16. simple. See 1:4 and note on 8:5. lack judgment. See v. 16; 7:7.

9:5 As in v. 2, wisdom's gifts to mankind are described symbolically as a great banquet (see Isa 55:1–2; cf. Jn 6:27,35).

9:6 Leave your simple ways. See 1:22. you will live. See v. 11; 8:35; see also note on 3:2.

9:7 Whoever corrects a mocker invites insult. See 1:22 and note; cf. 1:30. incurs abuse. Cf. 1Pe 4:4.

9:8 he will hate you. See 15:12,32. rebuke a wise man and he will love you. See 10:8; 17:10.

9:9 he will be wiser still. See 18:15; 21:11.

9:10–12 Wisdom's final words summarize the heart of the message in chs. 1–9.

9:10 The fear of the LORD is the beginning of wisdom. See 1:7 and note. knowledge of the Holy One. See note on 2:5. "Holy One" occurs elsewhere in Proverbs only in 30:3.

9:11 years will be added to your life. See note on 3:2; see also 3:16; 10:27; 14:27; 19:23.

9:12 your wisdom will reward you. Some of wisdom's rewards are given in 3:16–18; 4:22; 8:35; 14:14. mocker. See v. 7; see note on 1:22. will suffer. See 1:26; 19:29.

9:13 The woman Folly is loud. "Loud" links the personified "Folly" with the adulteress, the wayward wife of 2:16 and 7:11. undisciplined and without knowledge. She lacks good judgment, prudence and the fear of the Lord (see 1:3–4,22,29; 5:6).

9:14 sits. Cf. wisdom's building her house (v. 1). at the door of her house. See 5:8; 8:34. at the highest point of the city. Cf. the position of wisdom in v. 3; 8:2.

9:15 calling out. Cf. the appeal of wisdom in v. 3; 8:1,4.

9:16 Her invitation is identical to wisdom's (v. 4; see note on 1:21).

9:17 Stolen water . . . food eaten in secret. The "banquet" prepared by "Folly" seems poorer than the wine and meat of wisdom (v. 2). And it was stolen at that! This "meal" refers to stolen pleasures, exemplified by the illicit sex offered by the adulteress (see 7:18 and note; cf. 5:15–16). sweet. But see Job 20:12–14.

9:18 the dead are there . . . her guests are in the depths of the grave. Similar to 2:18; 5:5; 7:27 (see notes).

10:1 The proverbs of Solomon. The title of a collection of individual proverbs that extends through 22:16. The numerical values of the consonants in the Hebrew word for "Solomon" total 375—the exact number of verses in 10:1–22:16; 375 of Solomon's proverbs were selected from a much larger number (cf. 1Ki 4:32). wise son. See v. 5; 15:20; 17:21,25; 29:3,15. In later collections he is described as a "righteous man" (23:24–25) and as one "who keeps the law" (28:7).

10:2 Ill-gotten treasures are of no value. They are fleeting (21:6) and result in God's judgment (see 1:19 and note; 10:16; Eze 7:19). righteousness delivers from death. See 2:16–18; 3:2; 13:21.

10:3 not let the righteous go hungry. See 13:25; 28:25; Ps 34:9–10; 37:19,25. But see note on Pr 3:2. thwarts the craving of the wicked. See Nu 11:34; Ps 112:10.

10:4 Many proverbs praise diligence and the profit it brings, and they condemn laziness as a cause of hunger and poverty (see 6:6–11 and notes; 12:11,24,27; 13:4; 14:23; 18:9; 27:23–27; 28:19).

10:5 sleeps during harvest. Sleeping when there is work to be done is condemned also in 6:9–11; 19:15; 20:13. disgraceful son. See 17:2; 19:26; 28:7; 29:15.

10:6 Blessings. God's gifts and favors (see 3:13–18; 28:20; Ge 49:26; Dt 33:16). crown. See 11:26. violence overwhelms the mouth of the wicked. The trouble caused by their lips will eventually ruin them (see Ps 140:9; Hab 2:17; but cf. Pr 2:11).

10:7 memory of the righteous. Remembering the righteous (see 22:1).

10:8 The wise . . . accept commands. See 9:8–9. chattering fool comes to ruin. See vv. 10,14,18,19.

10:9 man of integrity walks securely. See 2:7; 3:23; 13:6; Ps 23:4; Isa 33:15–16. he who takes crooked paths will be found out. See 26:26; Lk 8:17; 1Ti 5:24–25; 2Ti 3:9.

10:10 winks maliciously. See note on 6:13. chattering fool. See v. 8.

10:11 fountain of life. A source of life-giving wisdom (see 13:14; 14:27; 16:22; see also Ps 37:30). violence overwhelms. Perhaps the meaning is that violence controls his mouth, but see note on v. 6.

10:12 stirs up dissension. See note on 6:14. covers over all wrongs. Promotes forgiveness (see 17:9). This line is quoted in Jas 5:20; 1Pe 4:8.

10:13 rod is for the back. See 14:3; 19:29.

10:14 store up knowledge. Rather than babbling folly—and so the wise prosper. See 2:1 and note. invites ruin. Quick with his mouth, the fool only brings ruin on himself (see vv. 8,10; 13:3).

10:15 An observation about wealth and poverty. wealth . . . is their fortified city. Wealth brings friends (14:20; 19:4) and power (18:23; 22:7)—but ultimate security is found only in God (Ps 52:7). poverty is the ruin of the poor. Poverty has no influence (18:23), no friends (19:4,7), no security. See v. 4 and note.

10:16 wages of the righteous bring them life. Not wealth (v. 15) but righteousness assures life (see note on 3:2; see also 3:16; 4:22). income of the wicked brings them punishment. See 1:13,31 and notes. "The wages of sin is death" (Ro 6:23).

10:17 way to life. See note on 6:23. whoever ignores correction. See 5:12; 15:10.

18 He who conceals his hatred has lying lips,[t] and whoever spreads slander is a fool.

19 When words are many, sin is not absent,
but he who holds his tongue is wise.[u]

20 The tongue of the righteous is choice silver, but the heart of the wicked is of little value.

21 The lips of the righteous nourish many,
but fools die for lack of judgment.[v]

22 The blessing of the LORD[w] brings wealth,[x]
and he adds no trouble to it.[y]

23 A fool finds pleasure in evil conduct,[z]
but a man of understanding delights in wisdom.

24 What the wicked dreads[a] will overtake him;[b]
what the righteous desire will be granted.[c]

25 When the storm has swept by, the wicked are gone, but the righteous stand firm[d] forever.[e]

26 As vinegar to the teeth and smoke[f] to the eyes, so is a sluggard to those who send him.[g]

27 The fear of the LORD adds length to life,[h]
but the years of the wicked are cut short.[i]

28 The prospect of the righteous is joy, but the hopes of the wicked come to nothing.[j]

29 The way of the LORD is a refuge for the righteous, but it is the ruin of those who do evil.[k]

30 The righteous will never be uprooted, but the wicked will not remain in the land.[l]

31 The mouth of the righteous brings forth wisdom,[m] but a perverse tongue[n] will be cut out.

32 The lips of the righteous know what is fitting,[o]
but the mouth of the wicked only what is perverse.[p]

11 The LORD abhors dishonest scales,[q]
but accurate weights are his delight.[r]

2 When pride comes, then comes disgrace,[s] but with humility comes wisdom.[t]

3 The integrity of the upright guides them, but the unfaithful are destroyed by their duplicity.[u]

10:20 choice silver. What the righteous say has great value (see 3:14; 8:10; 25:11). heart of the wicked. Their thoughts and schemes (see 6:14,18).
10:21 nourish many. See v. 11 and note. die for lack of judgment. See 5:23 and note; see also 7:7; 9:16.
10:22 blessing of the LORD brings wealth. Wealth is a gift from God, not a product of human attainment (see notes on v. 6; 3:10; see also 8:21; Ge 24:35; 26:12). adds no trouble to it. Unlike the "ill-gotten treasures" of v. 2 (see note); cf. 15:6.
10:23 finds pleasure in evil conduct. See 2:14; 15:21; 26:19.
10:24 What the wicked dreads. Calamity and distress (see 1:26–27; 3:25; Job 15:21; Isa 66:4). what the righteous desire. See Ps 37:4; 145:19; Mt 5:6; 1Jn 5:14–15.
10:25 Cf. the wise man who built his house on a rock, and the foolish man who built his on the sand (Mt 7:24–27). the wicked are gone. See Ps 37:10; Isa 28:18. the righteous stand firm. Unshakable, unmovable (see 3:25 and note; see also 12:3,7; 14:11; Ps 15:5; 1Co 15:58).
10:26 vinegar. See 25:20; Ps 69:21. sluggard. See note on 6:6. who send him. As a messenger (cf. 25:13; 26:6) or worker.
10:27 fear of the LORD. See note on 1:7. adds length to life. See note on 3:2. years . . . are cut short. See Job 22:16; Ps 37:36; 55:23.
10:28 prospect of the righteous. See v. 24 and note; Ps 9:18. joy. Of fulfillment (cf. 11:23). hopes of the wicked come to nothing. See 11:7,23.
10:29 way of the LORD. The way he prescribes, the life of wisdom (see Ps 27:11; 143:8; Mt 22:16; Ac 18:25). ruin of those who do evil. Since judgment comes to those who refuse God's way (see 21:15; 2Co 2:15–16; 2Pe 2:21).
10:30 never be uprooted. See 2:21 and note; 10:25; 12:3; Ps 125:1. not remain in the land. See note on 2:22.
10:31 perverse tongue. See note on 2:12. cut out. See Ps 12:3; cf. Mt 5:30.
11:1 abhors dishonest scales. Similar denunciation is found in the law (see Lev 19:35 and note) and the prophets (Am 8:5; Mic 6:11). See also 16:11; 20:10,23. accurate weights. Silver was weighed on scales balanced against a stone weight. Weights with dishonest labels were used for cheating.
11:2 When pride comes, then comes disgrace. Along with destruction (see 16:18; cf. the humbling of proud Assyria in Isa 10:12; cf. also Isa 14:13–15). with humility comes wisdom. Along with honor (see note on 15:33).
11:3 integrity . . . guides them. Cf. the actions of Joseph in Ge 39:6–12. unfaithful are destroyed. See 2:22 and note; see also 19:3. duplicity. Cf. Lk 20:23.

16A kindhearted woman gains respect,[r] but ruthless men gain only wealth.

17A kind man benefits himself,
but a cruel man brings trouble on himself.

18The wicked man earns deceptive wages,
but he who sows righteousness reaps a sure reward.[s]

19The truly righteous man attains life,[t]
but he who pursues evil goes to his death.[u]

20The LORD detests men of perverse heart[v]
but he delights[w] in those whose ways are blameless.[x]

21Be sure of this: The wicked will not go unpunished, but those who are righteous will go free.[y]

1:18). righteousness delivers from death. See 2:16–18; 3:2; 10:2; 13:21.

11:5 blameless. See note on 2:7. makes a straight way for them. Enables them to reach their goals (see note on 3:6; see also v. 3; 10:9).

11:6 righteousness ... delivers them. See vv. 3–4. trapped. See 5:22 and note.

11:7 his hope perishes. See v. 23; 10:28.

11:8 Cf. the rescue of Mordecai and the execution of Haman in Est 5:14; 7:10.

11:9 destroys his neighbor. By spreading slander (cf. 10:18). through knowledge. Perhaps the knowledge of the schemes and distortions of the godless (cf. Jn 2:25).

11:10 city rejoices. See 28:12; 29:2. Thus life in the city is itself a teacher of wisdom (see note on 1:21). shouts of joy. Cf. the joy at the fall of Assyria (Isa 30:32; Na 3:19; cf. 2Ch 21:20).

11:11 blessing of the upright. Their good influence and desire for justice as well as their prosperity (v. 10) bring honor to the city. mouth of the wicked. Their deceit, dishonesty and sowing of discord (see v. 9; 6:12–14).

11:12 derides his neighbor. Shows his contempt openly (see 10:18; 14:21). holds his tongue. See 10:19.

11:14 See the close parallels in 15:22; 20:18; 24:6. advisers. See 2Sa 16:23; Isa 1:26.

11:15 See note on 6:1.

11:16 Assumes that "a good name is more desirable than great riches" (22:1) and insightfully observes that a woman, if she is kindhearted, will be accorded more respect than wealthy men if they are ruthless. kindhearted woman. See 31:28,30.

11:17 benefits himself. See Mt 5:7. brings trouble on himself. See Ge 34:25–30; 49:7.

11:18 deceptive wages. Because they do not last (see notes on 10:2,16; see also Hag 1:6). reaps a sure reward. See 10:24; Gal 6:8–9; Jas 3:18.

11:19 attains life. See 10:16; see also 12:28; 19:23. goes to his death. See 5:23; 21:16; Ro 6:23; Jas 1:15.

11:20 detests men of perverse heart. See 3:32 and note; 16:5. blameless. See note on 2:7.

11:21 will not go unpunished. See 6:29. will go free. See Ps 118:5.

11:22 gold ring. Commonly worn by women on their noses (see Ge 24:47; Eze 16:12). shows no discretion. Abigail was praised by David for her display of "good judgment" (1Sa 25:33).

11:23 See 10:24,28. wrath. Judgment (see v. 4; Isa 10:3; Zep 1:18; Ro 2:8–9).

24 One man gives freely, yet gains even more;
another withholds unduly, but comes to poverty.

25 A generous[z] man will prosper;
he who refreshes others will himself be refreshed.[a]

26 People curse the man who hoards grain, but blessing crowns him who is willing to sell.

27 He who seeks good finds goodwill,

4 A wife of noble character[l] is her husband's crown, but a disgraceful wife is like decay in his bones.[m]

5 The plans of the righteous are just,
but the advice of the wicked is deceitful.

6 The words of the wicked lie in wait for blood,
but the speech of the upright rescues them.[n]

7 Wicked men are overthrown and are no more,[o]
but the house of the righteous stands firm.[p]

8 A man is praised according to his wisdom, but men with warped[q] minds are despised.

9 Better to be a nobody and yet have a servant than pretend to be somebody and have no food.

10 A righteous man cares for the needs of his animal,[r] but the kindest acts of the wicked are cruel.

11:24 Generosity is the path to blessing and further prosperity (see 3:9–10 and notes; Ecc 11:1–2 and notes; Ps 112:9; 2Co 9:6–9). By contrast, the stingy person does not make any friends and hurts himself in the long run (21:13).

11:25 generous man will prosper. "For he shares his food with the poor" (22:9). "Whoever sows generously will also reap generously" (2Co 9:6; cf. Lk 6:38). be refreshed. See Ro 15:32.

11:26 hoards grain. Probably in times of scarcity to raise the price. blessing crowns. See 10:6. who is willing to sell. Like Joseph during the famine in Eygpt (Ge 41:53–57).

11:27 He who seeks good finds goodwill. Like the man in v. 25 (cf. Mt 7:12). evil comes to him who searches for it. His wicked schemes will backfire (see v. 8 and note; 1:18).

11:28 Whoever trusts in his riches. Usually said of the wicked (Ps 49:6; 62:10; but see Mk 10:25; 1Ti 6:17). like a green leaf. See Ps 1:3.

11:29 He who brings trouble on his family will inherit only wind. The inheritance of Levi and Simeon was affected because of their cruelty against Shechem (Ge 34:25–30; 49:7). See 15:27 and note. servant to the wise. As the evil man serves the good (14:19; cf. 17:2).

11:30 fruit of the righteous. What a wise man produces (8:18–19). tree of life. See note on 3:18. wins souls. Wins people over to wisdom and righteousness (see Da 12:3; 1Co 9:19–22; Jas 5:20). However, the Hebrew for this expression is unusual so that its translation is somewhat uncertain.

11:31 the righteous receive their due. Even Moses and David were punished for their sins (see Nu 20:11–12; 2Sa 12:10). how much more the ungodly and the sinner! See 1:18,31 and notes; Ps 11:6; 73:18–19.

12:1 loves discipline loves knowledge. See 1:7; 10:17; see also 6:23 and note. hates correction is stupid. See 1:22; 5:12 and note.

12:2 obtains favor. See 3:4; 8:35. condemns a crafty man. Cf. Job 5:12–13; 1Co 3:19.

12:3 cannot be established. See 11:5. righteous cannot be uprooted. See 2:21; see also notes on 10:25,30.

12:4 wife of noble character. Someone like Ruth (Ru 3:11). Such a woman is fully described in 31:10–31. her husband's crown. She brings him honor and joy (see 4:9 and note). decay. See Hab 3:16. his bones. See note on 3:8.

12:5 advice of the wicked is deceitful. See Ps 1:1.

12:6 lie in wait for blood. See note on 1:11; see also 1:16. speech of the upright rescues them. See 11:3–4,6,9.

12:7 See 10:25 and note.

12:8 praised according to his wisdom. See 3:4 and note. men with warped minds are despised. See Dt 32:5; Tit 3:11.

12:9 yet have a servant. Even people of moderate means had servants (see Jdg 6:15,27). pretend to be somebody. Cf. 13:7.

12:10 cares for the needs of his animal. See 27:23; Dt 25:4. kindest acts of the wicked are cruel. Probably to both man and beast.

11 He who works his land will have abundant food, but he who chases fantasies lacks judgment.[s]

12 The wicked desire the plunder of evil men, but the root of the righteous flourishes.

13 An evil man is trapped by his sinful talk,[t]
but a righteous man escapes trouble.[u]

14 From the fruit of his lips a man is filled with good things[v] as surely as the work of his hands rewards him.[w]

15 The way of a fool seems right to him,[x]
but a wise man listens to advice.[y]

16 A fool[z] shows his annoyance at once,[a] but a prudent man overlooks an insult.[b]

17 A truthful witness gives honest testimony, but a false witness tells lies.[c]

18 Reckless words pierce like a sword,[d]
but the tongue of the wise brings healing.[e]

19 Truthful lips endure forever, but a lying tongue lasts only a moment.

20 There is deceit in the hearts of those who plot evil, but joy for those who promote peace.[f]

21 No harm befalls the righteous,[g]
but the wicked have their fill of trouble.

22 The LORD detests lying lips,[h]
but he delights[i] in men who are truthful.[j]

23 A prudent man keeps his knowledge to himself,[k]
but the heart of fools blurts out folly.[l]

24 Diligent hands will rule, but laziness ends in slave labor.[m]

25 An anxious heart weighs a man down,[n]
but a kind word cheers him up.

26 A righteous man is cautious in friendship,[v]
but the way of the wicked leads them astray.[o]

27 The lazy man does not roast[w] his game, but the diligent man prizes his possessions.

28 In the way of righteousness there is life;[p] along that path is immortality.

13 A wise son heeds his father's instruction, but a mocker does not listen to rebuke.[q]

2 From the fruit of his lips a man enjoys good things,[r] but the unfaithful have a craving for violence.

[v] 26 Or man is a guide to his neighbor [w] 27 The meaning of the Hebrew for this word is uncertain.

12:11 Repeated with slight variation in 28:19. chases fantasies. Schemes for making easy money.
12:12 desire the plunder of evil men. See 1:13 and note; 21:10. root of the righteous flourishes. They bear fruit, like firmly rooted trees (see vv. 3,7; 11:30; Ps 1:3; see also 10:25 and note).
12:13 trapped by his sinful talk. See 1:18 and note; 29:6. righteous man escapes trouble. See 11:8–9 and notes; 21:23; 2Pe 2:9.
12:14 A man who speaks with wisdom will reap a harvest from his words, just as a farmer enjoys the crops he planted (see 1:31 and note; Job 34:11).
12:15 seems right. But ends in death (see 1:25,30; 14:12; 16:25).
12:16 overlooks an insult. Has good self-control (see 29:11; 2Sa 16:11–12).
12:17 false witness tells lies. See note on 6:19.
12:18 Reckless words. Cf. Ps 106:33. pierce like a sword. See note on Ps 5:9. tongue of the wise brings healing. By soothing, comforting words (see 4:22; 15:4).
12:19 lasts only a moment. The lies will be refuted and the liar punished (see 19:9; Ps 52:4–5).
12:20 deceit in the hearts. See 6:14 and note; see also 1:31; 24:2; Ge 6:5. joy for those who promote peace. "Blessed are the peacemakers" (Mt 5:9).
12:21 No harm. See 1:33 and note; 2:8; Ps 91:10–12; 121:7. their fill of trouble. See 1:31 and note; 11:5,8; 22:8; Job 4:8.
12:22 Compare the structure of this verse with that of 11:1,20. detests. See note on 3:32. men who are truthful. See 16:13.
12:23 keeps his knowledge to himself. Stores up knowledge (see 10:14). blurts out folly. See v. 16; 13:16; 15:2; 29:11.
12:24 Diligent hands . . . laziness. Contrasted also in 10:4 (see note there). will rule. Cf. 17:2. slave labor. See Jdg 1:28; see also note on 2Sa 20:24.
12:25 anxious heart. See Ps 94:19. kind word cheers him up. See 15:23.
12:26 cautious in friendship. He chooses his friends with care (see 18:24; 22:24). leads them astray. See 5:23; 14:22.
12:27 does not roast his game. And is too lazy to lift the food from the dish to his mouth (19:24). prizes his possessions. Cf. Ecc 5:19.
12:28 there is life. Cf. 3:2; 11:4. immortality. Lit. "no death." The way or path of righteousness does not lead to death. Cf. the identification of wisdom with the "tree of life" (3:18 and note; cf. 14:32).
13:1 heeds his father's instruction. See 1:8; 4:1. mocker does not listen to rebuke. See 1:22; 9:7–8 and notes.
13:2 See 12:14 and note. have a craving for violence. See 4:17 and note.

13:3 guards his lips guards his life. The ability to control the tongue is one of the clearest marks of wisdom. "The tongue has the power of life and death" (18:21; see 10:19; 21:23; Jas 3:2). he who speaks rashly will come to ruin. See 12:18 and note; see also 10:14; 18:7; 2Ti 3:3–4.
13:4 sluggard. See 6:6 and note. craves and gets nothing. Is never satisfied, yet refuses to work (see 21:25–26). desires of the diligent are fully satisfied. Diligence yields a profit (see 6:6; see also notes on 10:4,24).
13:5 bring shame and disgrace. Like a lazy or ungrateful son (10:5; 19:26).

13:8 may ransom his life. Has the means to pay off robbers or enemies (see 10:15 and note; Jer 41:8). poor man hears no threat. Even poverty has its advantages.
13:9 light . . . lamp. Symbols of life (cf. Job 3:20). shines brightly. There is joy and prosperity (see note on 4:18). lamp of the wicked is snuffed out. His life will end (see 20:20; 24:20; Job 18:5; 21:17).
13:10 Pride. See 11:2 and note.
13:11 Dishonest money dwindles away. Such as wealth gained by extortion (Ps 62:10) or deceit (Pr 21:6). See note on 10:2; see also Jer 17:11. makes it grow. See note on 10:4.
13:12 Hope deferred makes the heart sick. Cf. Ge 30:1. longing fulfilled is a tree of life. It revives and strengthens (see note on 3:18; see also 10:28; 13:19).
13:13 who scorns instruction will pay for it. See 1:29–31; see also 5:12 and note. who respects a command is rewarded. With the benefits wisdom gives (see 3:2 and note; 3:16–18; 13:21).

13:23 injustice sweeps it away. Probably a case of the rich and powerful oppressing the poor (cf. Ps 35:10).

13:24 who spares the rod hates his son. Parents are encouraged to apply the rod of punishment to drive out folly (22:15) so that the child will not follow a path of destruction (19:18; 23:13–14). The rod "imparts wisdom" (29:15) and promotes a healthy and happy family (29:17). Discipline is rooted in love (see 3:11–12 and note). rod. Probably a figure of speech for discipline of any kind.

13:25 States more specifically the teaching of vv. 13,18,21; see 10:3 and note.

14:1 wise woman builds her house. She is a source of strength and an example of diligence for her family (see 31:10–31). Cf. the house built by wisdom in 9:1.

14:4 Perhaps the thought is that men need to take good care of their oxen (the means of production) if they expect an abundant harvest (see 12:10).

14:5 See note on 6:19.

14:6 mocker. See 1:22 and note. seeks wisdom and finds none. Because he refuses to fear the Lord or accept any correction.

14:8 folly of fools is deception. What a fool believes to be prudent (but is really folly) does not bring success; instead, it tends toward his ruin.

14:9 mock at making amends for sin. Cf. 19:28. goodwill . . . among the upright. See 11:27.

21 He who despises his neighbor sins,[x]
but blessed is he who is kind to the needy.[y]

22 Do not those who plot evil go astray?[z]
But those who plan what is good find[y] love and faithfulness.

23 All hard work brings a profit,
but mere talk leads only to poverty.

24 The wealth of the wise is their crown, but the folly of fools yields folly.[a] 25 A truthful witness saves lives, but a false witness is deceitful.[b]

26 He who fears the LORD has a secure fortress,[c] and for his children it will be a refuge.[d]

27 The fear of the LORD is a fountain of life,[e] turning a man from the snares of death.[f]

28 A large population is a king's glory, but without subjects a prince is ruined.[g]

29 A patient man has great understanding,[h]
but a quick-tempered man displays folly.[i]

30 A heart at peace gives life to the body, but envy rots the bones.[j]

31 He who oppresses the poor shows contempt for their Maker,[k]

[y] 22 Or show [z] 33 Hebrew; Septuagint and Syriac / but in the heart of fools she is not known

14:19 Evil men will bow down. Cf. 17:2. at the gates of the righteous. Perhaps to beg for some favor (cf. 1Sa 2:36).

14:20 shunned even by their neighbors. And sometimes by their relatives (see 19:7).

14:21 blessed is he who is kind to the needy. Sharing food (22:9), lending money (28:8) and defending rights (31:9) are ways one can show kindness. Such a person "honors God" (v. 31; cf. 17:5) and will lack nothing (28:27). Cf. 21:13; Ps 41:1.

14:22 plot evil. See 3:29; 6:14,18; Mic 2:1. go astray. See 5:23; 12:26. find love and faithfulness. Receive the support and care of faithful friends (cf. 3:3; 16:6; 20:28)—perhaps God's support and care are also implied here.

14:23 hard work brings a profit. See note on 10:4; see also 21:5.

14:24 wealth ... is their crown. The wise obtain wealth, and it adorns them like a crown (see 10:22). yields folly. An empty inheritance (see v. 18; 3:35).

14:25 See v. 5; 12:17; see also note on 6:19.

14:26 fears the LORD. See 1:7; 3:7 and notes. secure fortress ... refuge. Means either that the father's godliness will result in blessing for himself and his children (see 20:7) or that the "fear of the LORD" will be a strong tower where the children also can find refuge (see 18:10; Ps 71:7; Isa 33:6).

14:27 See note on 10:11; see also 13:14.

14:29 patient man. See 15:18; 16:32; 19:11; Jas 1:19.

14:30 gives life to the body. Cf. the healthy effects of fearing the Lord and walking in wisdom in 3:7–8,16–18. envy rots the bones. See note on 3:8; see also 12:4; Ps 37:7–8.

14:31 shows contempt for their Maker. Because God created both the rich and the poor in his image (see 22:2; Job 31:15; Jas 3:9). kind to the needy. See note on v. 21. honors God. Does God's will, and in a sense gives to God himself (see 19:17; Mt 25:40).

14:32 wicked are brought down. See 1:26–27 and note; 11:5; 24:16. even in death the righteous have a refuge. Their faith in God gives them hope beyond the grave (see note on 12:28; see also Ps 49:14–15; 73:24).

14:33 even among fools she lets herself be known. Perhaps means that even fools occasionally display a bit of wisdom (cf. Ac 17:27–28; Ro 1:19–20), but see NIV text note.

14:34 Righteousness exalts a nation. See note on 11:11. Israel was promised prosperity and prestige if she obeyed God's laws (see Dt 28:1–14). sin is a disgrace to any people. The Canaanites were driven out because of their terrible sin (Lev 18:24–25), and Israel later received the same curse (Dt 28:15–68; cf. 2Sa 12:10).

14:35 incurs his wrath. See 16:14; 19:12; Da 2:12.

15:1 gentle answer turns away wrath. Cf. the way Gideon calmed the anger of the men of Ephraim in Jdg 8:1–3 (cf. also Pr 15:18; Ecc 10:4). harsh word stirs up anger. Nabal's sarcastic response put David in a fighting mood (1Sa 25:10–13).

15:2 gushes folly. See vv. 7, 28; 12:23; 13:16.

3 The eyes[v] of the LORD are everywhere,[w] keeping watch on the wicked and the good.[x]

4 The tongue[y] that brings healing is a tree of life,[z]
but a deceitful tongue crushes the spirit.[a]

5 A fool spurns his father's discipline, but whoever heeds correction shows prudence.[b]

6 The house of the righteous contains great treasure,[c]
but the income of the wicked brings them trouble.[d]

7 The lips of the wise spread knowledge;[e]
not so the hearts of fools.

8 The LORD detests the sacrifice[f] of the wicked,[g]
but the prayer of the upright pleases him.[h]

9 The LORD detests the way of the wicked[i] but he loves those who pursue righteousness.[j]

10 Stern discipline awaits him who leaves the path;
he who hates correction will die.[k]

11 Death and Destruction[a] lie open before the LORD[l]— how much more the hearts of men![m]

12 A mocker resents correction;[n]
he will not consult the wise.

13 A happy heart makes the face cheerful,[o]
but heartache crushes the spirit.[p]

14 The discerning heart seeks knowledge,[q]
but the mouth of a fool feeds on folly.

15 All the days of the oppressed are wretched,
but the cheerful heart has a continual feast.[r]

16 Better a little with the fear of the LORD than great wealth with turmoil.[s]

17 Better a meal of vegetables where there is love
than a fattened calf with hatred.[t]

18 A hot-tempered man stirs up dissension,[u]
but a patient man calms a quarrel.[v]

19 The way of the sluggard is blocked with thorns,[w]
but the path of the upright is a highway.

20 A wise son brings joy to his father,[x] but a foolish man despises his mother.

21 Folly delights a man who lacks judgment,[y]
but a man of understanding keeps a straight course.

22 Plans fail for lack of counsel,[z] but with many advisers[a] they succeed.[b]

23 A man finds joy in giving an apt reply[c]—
and how good is a timely word![d]

[b]24 Hebrew Sheol [c]33 Or Wisdom teaches the fear of the LORD

15:25 tears down the proud man's house. See 2:22; 14:11; see also 10:25 and note. keeps the widow's boundaries intact. In ancient times boundary stones marked a person's property. Anyone who moved such a stone was, in effect, stealing land (see 22:28; Job 24:2; Ps 68:5; see also Dt 19:14 and note).

15:26 detests the thoughts of the wicked. Cf. vv. 8–9. those of the pure. See 22:11; Ps 24:4.

15:27 greedy man brings trouble to his family. See 1:19; 11:29; 28:25. Achan's whole family perished because of his greed at Jericho (Jos 7:24–26). he who hates bribes will live. See 17:8; 28:16; Dt 16:19; 1Sa 12:3; Ecc 7:7; 1Ti 6:10.

15:28 weighs its answers. Cf. 10:32; 1Pe 3:15. gushes evil. See v. 2; see also v. 7; 12:23.

15:29 far from the wicked. See 1:28 and note.

15:30 cheerful look brings joy. Cf. v. 13; 16:15; Job 29:24. good news gives health to the bones. See 3:8 and note; see also Php 2:19.

15:31 who listens to a life-giving rebuke. See 1:23; 6:23 and note.

15:32 who ignores discipline despises himself. See note on 5:12; see also 1:7; 5:23; 8:36. whoever heeds correction. Cf. vv. 5,31.

15:33 fear of the LORD. See note on 1:7. humility comes before honor. See 22:24; 25:6–7; Mt 23:12; Lk 14:11; 18:14; 1Pe 5:6. Wisdom also comes with humility (11:2; 13:10).

16:1 from the LORD comes the reply of the tongue. God must give the ability to articulate and accomplish those plans (cf. 19:21).

16:2 seem innocent. See 14:12. motives are weighed by the LORD. See 24:12; Ps 139:23; 1Co 4:4–5; Heb 4:12.

16:3 Commit. See 1Pe 5:7. plans will succeed. Goals will be reached (see 3:5–6 and notes; Ps 1:3; 55:22; 90:17).

16:4 works out everything for his own ends. God is sovereign in every life and in all of history (see Ecc 7:14; Ro 8:28). the wicked for a day of disaster. Even through wicked men God displays his power (cf. Ex 9:16), and all evil will be judged (cf. Eze 38:22–23; Ro 2:5–11).

16:5 See 11:20–21 and notes.

16:6 Through love and faithfulness sin is atoned for. The moral quality of conduct that God desires is sometimes summed up as "love and faithfulness" (3:3; Hos 4:1). When his people repent of sin and bring their lives into accord with his will, God forgives and withdraws his judgment (see Isa 1:18–19; 55:7; Jer 3:22; Eze 18:23,30–32; 33:11–12,14–16; Hos 14:1–2,4). Thus it can be said that love and faithfulness, in a manner of speaking, "atone for" sin, i.e., they turn away God's wrath against it. fear of the LORD. See note on 1:7.

16:7 makes even his enemies live at peace with him. As in the reigns of godly Asa and Jehoshaphat (2Ch 14:6–7; 17:10). peace. See 3:17 and note; Ro 12:18; Heb 12:14.

16:8 See 10:2 and note.

16:9 the LORD determines his steps. Verses 1,3–4 (see notes) also emphasize God's control of men's lives (see 19:21; 20:24; Ps 37:23; Jer 10:23).

16:10 speak as an oracle. In judging cases brought before him, a king functioned as God's representative (see Dt 1:17). Therefore he needed the divine gift of wisdom to discern between right and wrong in order to render God's judgment (see 1Ki 3:9). When he did so, his judgment was tantamount to a divine oracle for the people (see 1Ki 3:28; see also 2Sa 14:17,20; 19:27).

16:11 See note on 11:1. Honest scales . . . from the LORD. Cf. 21:2; 24:12; Job 6:2; 31:6. all the weights in the bag. Merchants carried stones of different sizes with them to weigh and measure quantities of silver for payment (cf. Mic 6:11).

16:12 throne is established through righteousness. When the king "judges the poor with fairness" (29:14), refuses to take bribes (29:4) and removes any wicked advisers (25:5). See 14:34; Dt 17:19–20; Isa 16:5; Ro 13:3.

16:13 in honest lips. Rather than in flattering lips (cf. 20:28).

16:14 messenger of death. Any angry king can pronounce death quickly and effectively (see 19:12; Est 7:7–10; Mt 22:7; Lk 19:27). wise man will appease it. Cf. Daniel's response to the rage of Nebuchadnezzar (Da 2:12–16).

16:15 face brightens. Cf. Nu 6:25. his favor is like a rain cloud in spring. The spring rain was essential for the full development of barley and wheat; it was therefore a sign of good things to come. Cf. the "dew" of 19:12; see Ps 72:6.

16:16 See 3:14 and note; 8:10,19.

16:17 highway of the upright. See note on 15:19. avoids evil. Cf. the thorns and snares in the paths of the wicked (22:5).

16:18 See 11:2 and note.

16:19 Better to be lowly in spirit. See 3:34; Isa 57:15; Mt 5:3. share plunder with the proud. See 1:13–14; Jdg 5:30.

16:20 prospers. See 13:13 and note. blessed is he who trusts in the LORD. See v. 3; 3:5–6; 28:25; Ps 34:8; 37:4–5.

16:21 pleasant words promote instruction. Cf. the last line of v. 23. "Pleasant" (lit. "sweet") is expanded in v. 24. Cf. the persuasive but destructive words of the adulteress in 7:21.

16:22 fountain of life. See note on 10:11. punishment to fools. See 13:13 and note; see also 7:22; 13:15; 15:10.

16:23 guides his mouth. See 22:17–18.

16:24 Pleasant words are a honeycomb. They are good for you (see 24:13–14), and they taste good (cf. 2:10; Ps 19:10). healing to the bones. See notes on 4:22; 12:18; 15:30. bones. See note on 3:8.

16:25 in the end it leads to death. See 5:4,23; 7:21–27; Mt 7:13–14.

16:26 Cf. 2Th 3:10: "If a man will not work, he shall not eat"; see also Ecc 6:7; Eph 4:28.

16:27 scoundrel. See 6:12 and note; see also note on Dt 13:13. plots evil. See 3:29; 6:14; Mic 2:1. scorching fire. His speech is inflammatory and destructive (see Jas 3:6).

16:28 stirs up dissension. See note on 6:14. gossip. See 11:13.

not good.[l]

30He who winks[m] with his eye is plotting perversity;
he who purses his lips is bent on evil.

31Gray hair is a crown of splendor;[n]
it is attained by a righteous life.

32Better a patient man than a warrior, a man who controls his temper than one who takes a city.

33The lot is cast[o] into the lap, but its every decision[p] is from the LORD.[q]

17 Better a dry crust with peace and quiet
than a house full of feasting,[f] with strife.[r]

2A wise servant will rule over a disgraceful son,
and will share the inheritance as one of the brothers.

3The crucible for silver and the furnace for gold,[s]
but the LORD tests the heart.[t]

4A wicked man listens to evil lips;
a liar pays attention to a malicious
tongue.

5He who mocks the poor[u] shows contempt for their Maker;[v] whoever gloats over disaster[w] will not go unpunished.[x]

6Children's children[y] are a crown to the aged,
and parents are the pride of their children.

7Arrogant[g] lips are unsuited to a fool—
how much worse lying lips to a ruler![z]

8A bribe is a charm to the one who gives it;
wherever he turns, he succeeds.[a]

9He who covers over an offense promotes love,[b]
but whoever repeats the matter separates close friends.[c]

10A rebuke impresses a man of discernment
more than a hundred lashes a fool.

11An evil man is bent only on rebellion;
a merciless official will be sent against him.

12Better to meet a bear robbed of her cubs
than a fool in his folly.[d]

13If a man pays back evil[e] for good,[f] evil will never leave his house.

14Starting a quarrel is like breaching a dam;
so drop the matter before a dispute breaks out.[g]

15Acquitting the guilty and condemning the innocent[h]—
the LORD detests them both.[i]

[f] 1 Hebrew sacrifices [g] 7 Or Eloquent

16:30 winks with his eye. See note on 6:13. purses his lips. Thereby making insinuations (see note on 6:12–14).

16:31 Gray hair is a crown of splendor. The elderly were to receive deep respect (see Lev 19:32). by a righteous life. See 3:1–2,16.

16:32 patient man ... warrior. See 14:29; 15:18; 19:11; Jas 1:19. "Wisdom is better than weapons of war" (Ecc 9:18). man who controls his temper than one who takes a city. Although one who practices patience and self-control receives far less attention and acclaim than a warrior who takes a city, he accomplishes better things.

16:33 The lot is cast into the lap. Here the lot may have been several pebbles held in the fold of a garment and then drawn out or shaken to the ground. It was commonly used to make decisions (see notes on Ex 28:30; Nu 26:53; Ne 11:1; Jnh 1:7; Ac 1:26; see also Ps 22:18). every decision is from the LORD. God, not chance, is in control (see vv. 1,3–4,9).

17:2 A wise servant will rule over a disgraceful son. See 11:29 and note. disgraceful son. See 10:5; 19:26; 28:7; 29:15.

17:3 The crucible ... the furnace. Silver and gold were refined to remove their impurities (cf. Isa 1:25; Mal 3:3). tests the heart. See 15:11; 16:2 and notes; Jer 17:10.

17:5 who mocks the poor shows contempt for their Maker. See 14:31 and note. whoever gloats over disaster will not go unpunished. The people of Edom in particular were condemned for gloating over the collapse of "brother" Israel (Ob 10; see Eze 35:12,15; see also Pr 24:17).

17:6 crown to the aged. Cf. the "gray hair" of 16:31. To live to see one's grandchildren was considered a great blessing (see Ge 48:11; Ps 128:5–6). parents are the pride of their children. See Ge 47:7.

17:7 For the structure of this verse cf. 19:10; 26:1. Arrogant. See NIV text note. lying lips to a ruler. His right to rule depends on honesty and justice (see 12:22; 16:12–13).

17:8 A bribe is a charm. A sad commentary on human behavior (see 18:16; 21:14; Ecc 10:19). Elsewhere, bribes are condemned (see v. 23; 15:27; 28:16; Dt 16:19; 1Sa 12:3; Ecc 7:7; Isa 1:23; Am 5:12; 1Ti 6:10).

17:9 He who covers over an offense promotes love. See 10:12 and note.

17:10 rebuke impresses a man of discernment. See 9:8–9. a hundred lashes a fool. Fools deserved and received flogging (cf. 10:13; 19:25,29; 26:3; Dt 25:3).

17:11 merciless official. Cf. the dispatching of Abishai and Joab to end Sheba's rebellion against David (2Sa 20:1–22; see 1Ki 2:25,29,46; Pr 16:14).

17:12 bear robbed of her cubs. Sure to attack you and rip you open (see 2Sa 17:8; Hos 13:8; cf. the raging of the fool in 29:9).

17:13 pays back evil for good. Like Nabal, who refused to pay David's men (1Sa 25:21; see Ps 109:5; Ro 12:17–21). evil will never leave his house. The fate of David's family after his affair with Bathsheba and the murder of Uriah (2Sa 12:10; cf. Jer 18:20–23).

17:15 Acquitting the guilty. Perhaps because of a bribe

16 Of what use is money in the hand of a fool, since he has no desire to get wisdom?[j]

17 A friend loves at all times, and a brother is born for adversity.[k]

18 A man lacking in judgment strikes hands in pledge and puts up security for his neighbor.[l]

19 He who loves a quarrel loves sin;
he who builds a high gate invites destruction.

20 A man of perverse heart does not prosper;
he whose tongue is deceitful falls into trouble.

21 To have a fool for a son brings grief;
there is no joy for the father of a fool.[m]

22 A cheerful heart is good medicine, but a crushed[n] spirit dries up the bones.[o]

23 A wicked man accepts a bribe[p] in secret to pervert the course of justice.[q]

24 A discerning man keeps wisdom in view, but a fool's eyes[r] wander to the ends of the earth.

25 A foolish son brings grief to his father and bitterness to the one who bore him.[s]

26 It is not good to punish an innocent man,[t] or to flog officials for their integrity.

27 A man of knowledge uses words with restraint,[u]
and a man of understanding is even-tempered.[v]

28 Even a fool is thought wise if he keeps silent, and discerning if he holds his tongue.[w]

18 An unfriendly man pursues selfish ends;
he defies all sound judgment.

2 A fool finds no pleasure in understanding but delights in airing his own opinions.[x]

3 When wickedness comes, so does contempt, and with shame comes disgrace.

4 The words of a man's mouth are deep waters,[y]
but the fountain of wisdom is a bubbling brook.

5 It is not good to be partial to the wicked[z] or to deprive the innocent of justice.[a]

6 A fool's lips bring him strife, and his mouth invites a beating.[b]

7 A fool's mouth is his undoing, and his lips are a snare[c] to his soul.[d]

8 The words of a gossip are like choice morsels;
they go down to a man's inmost parts.[e]

9 One who is slack in his work is brother to one who destroys.[f]

(see v. 8; 24:24).

17:16 money in the hand of a fool. Perhaps to pay the fee for his schooling.

17:17 friend loves at all times. Cf. David's friendship with Jonathan (2Sa 1:26; see 18:24; Ru 1:16; 1Co 13:4–7).

17:18 See 6:1 and note.

17:19 who loves a quarrel loves sin. A hot-tempered man commits many sins (29:22). builds a high gate. Out of pride (cf. 16:18; 29:23).

17:20 does not prosper. Contrast 16:20. whose tongue is deceitful. See note on 2:12.

17:21 grief . . . no joy. See v. 25; 19:13.

17:22 cheerful heart. See 14:30; 15:13,30; 16:15; Job 29:24. crushed spirit dries up the bones. See note on 3:8; see also 12:4; 14:30; Ps 32:3; 37:7–8.

17:23 accepts a bribe. See note on v. 8.

17:24 wander to the ends of the earth. He chases fantasies and is interested in everything except wisdom (see 12:11; cf. Dt 30:11–14).

17:25 See v. 21. bitterness. See 14:10 and note.

17:26 punish an innocent man. See v. 15 and note. flog officials. Cf. the beating and disgrace endured by Jeremiah (Jer 20:2; see v. 10 and note).

17:27 uses words with restraint. See 10:19. even-tempered. See 16:32.

17:28 a fool is thought wise if he keeps silent. Cf. Job's sarcastic comment in Job 13:5.

18:1 pursues selfish ends. He is quarrelsome and hot-tempered (cf. 17:14; Gal 5:20).

18:2 airing his own opinions. Cf. Ecc 10:3.

18:3 contempt . . . shame . . . disgrace. Cf. 3:35; 6:33; 10:5; 11:2; Ps 31:17; Isa 22:18.

18:4 deep waters. Profound or obscure (cf. 20:5). fountain of wisdom is a bubbling brook. A wise man's words are refreshing and a source of life (see 1:23; 13:14; see also 10:11 and note).

18:5 partial to the wicked. See 17:15 and note. Favoritism of any kind was condemned in the law (see Lev 19:15; Dt 1:17; 16:19). to deprive the innocent of justice. See 17:26; 31:5; Mal 3:5.

18:6 bring him strife. A fool is quick to quarrel (see 17:14,19; 20:3). invites a beating. By a rod on his back (see 10:13; 19:29).

18:7 See 10:14 and note.

18:8 words of a gossip are like choice morsels. They are as pleasant as a wise man's words (cf. 16:21,23), but they promote dissension (see 11:13; 26:20,22). they go down to a man's inmost parts. Where they are thoroughly digested and so are carried about and live on and on.

18:9 who is slack in his work. See 10:4 and note.

10 The name of the LORD is a strong tower;[g]
the righteous run to it and are safe.[h]

11 The wealth of the rich is their fortified city;[i] they imagine it an unscalable wall.

12 Before his downfall a man's heart is proud, but humility comes before honor.[j]

13 He who answers before listening—that is his folly and his shame.[k]

14 A man's spirit sustains him in sickness, but a crushed spirit who can bear?[l]

15 The heart of the discerning acquires knowledge;[m]
the ears of the wise seek it out.

16 A gift[n] opens the way for the giver and ushers him into the presence of the great.

17 The first to present his case seems right, till another comes forward and questions him.

18 Casting the lot settles disputes[o]
and keeps strong opponents apart.

19 An offended[p] brother is more unyielding than a fortified city, and disputes are like the barred gates of a citadel.

20 From the fruit of his mouth a man's stomach is filled; with the harvest from his lips he is satisfied.[q]

21 The tongue has the power of life and death,[r] and those who love it will eat its fruit.[s]

22 He who finds a wife finds what is good[t] and receives favor from the LORD.[u]

23 A poor man pleads for mercy,
but a rich man answers harshly.

24 A man of many companions may come to ruin, but there is a friend who sticks closer than a brother.[v]

19 Better a poor man whose walk is blameless than a fool whose lips are perverse.[w]

2 It is not good to have zeal without knowledge, nor to be hasty and miss the way.[x]

3 A man's own folly[y] ruins his life, yet his heart rages against the LORD.[z]

4 Wealth brings many friends, but a poor man's friend deserts him.[a]

5 A false witness[b] will not go unpunished,[c] and he who pours out lies will not go free.[d]

6 Many curry favor with a ruler,[e] and everyone is the friend of a man who gives gifts.[f]

7 A poor man is shunned by all his relatives—how much more do his friends avoid him![g]
Though he pursues them with pleading, they are nowhere to be found.[h]

8 He who gets wisdom loves his own soul;

18:22 who finds a wife finds what is good. See 12:4 and note; 19:14. receives favor from the LORD. Identical to 8:35, where finding wisdom brought such favor.
18:24 man of many companions may come to ruin. One must choose friends carefully (see 12:26 and note; 17:17).
19:1 blameless. See note on 2:7. than a fool. Even if he becomes rich (see 28:6).
19:2 zeal without knowledge. Cf. Ro 10:2. be hasty. Haste can lead to poverty (21:5) or folly (29:20). miss the way. The Hebrew for this expression often refers to sin.
19:3 his heart rages against the LORD. He blames God for his troubles (see Ge 4:5; Isa 8:21; cf. La 3:39).
19:4 See v. 7; 14:20.
19:5 See 6:19 and note.
19:6 curry favor. Cf. Job 11:19. friend of a man who gives gifts. Generosity (v. 4) or bribery (18:16) could be in view.
19:7 poor man is shunned. See v. 4; 14:20; Job 19:19; Ps 38:11.
19:8 loves his own soul. Cf. 8:35–36. prospers. See 13:13 and note.

19:11 patience. See 14:29; 15:18; 16:32; Ecc 7:9; Jas 1:19. overlook an offense. Has good self-control (see 12:16; 29:11; 2Sa 16:11–12).

19:12 A king's rage is like the roar of a lion. See 16:14 and note. his favor is like dew. See 16:15 and note.

19:13 foolish son. See 17:21,25. quarrelsome wife. Also denounced in 21:9,19; 25:24; 27:15. Stirring up dissension is condemned throughout Proverbs (see 6:14 and note).

19:14 prudent wife. See 12:4 and note; see also 18:22.

19:18 Discipline your son ... not ... to his death. See note on 13:24.

19:19 hot-tempered man. Cf. 14:16–17,29; 15:18.

19:21 See 16:1,9 and notes.

19:22 desires ... unfailing love. But such loyalty is difficult to find (cf. 20:6; 14:22). better to be poor than a liar. See vv. 1,28; 6:12.

19:23 fear of the LORD. See note on 1:7. leads to life. See note on 10:11. untouched by trouble. See 3:2; 14:26 and notes.

19:25 Flog a mocker. See v. 29; 14:3; see also notes on 1:22; 17:10. simple. Not to be confused with the mocker (see note on 1:4).

19:26 robs his father and drives out his mother. Children were expected to take care of their parents when they were sick or elderly (cf. Isa 51:18). Robbing them (cf. Jdg 17:1–2) and attacking them (Ex 21:15,17) were serious crimes. shame and disgrace. See 10:5; 13:5.

19:27 See 5:1–2.

19:28 corrupt witness. See v. 5; see also note on 6:19. gulps down evil. Cf. the description of man as one "who drinks up evil like water" (Job 15:16; see Job 34:7).

20 Wine[k] is a mocker[l] and beer a brawler;
whoever is led astray[m] by them is not wise.[n]

2 A king's wrath is like the roar of a lion;[o]
he who angers him forfeits his life.[p]

3 It is to a man's honor to avoid strife, but every fool[q] is quick to quarrel.[r]

4 A sluggard[s] does not plow in season;
so at harvest time he looks but finds nothing.[t]

5 The purposes of a man's heart are deep waters,[u]
but a man of understanding draws them out.

6 Many a man claims to have unfailing love, but a faithful man who can find?[v]

7 The righteous man leads a blameless life;[w] blessed are his children after him.[x]

8 When a king sits on his throne to judge,[y]
he winnows out all evil with his eyes.[z]

9 Who can say, "I have kept my heart pure;[a]
I am clean and without sin"?[b]

10 Differing weights and differing measures—the LORD detests them both.[c]

11 Even a child is known by his actions, by whether his conduct is pure[d] and right.

12 Ears that hear and eyes that see—the LORD has made them both.[e]

13 Do not love sleep or you will grow poor;[f]
stay awake and you will have food to spare.

14 "It's no good, it's no good!" says the buyer;
then off he goes and boasts about his purchase.

15 Gold there is, and rubies in abundance,
but lips that speak knowledge are a rare jewel.

16 Take the garment of one who puts up security for a stranger;
hold it in pledge[g] if he does it for a wayward woman.[h]

17 Food gained by fraud tastes sweet to a man,[i] but he ends up with a mouth full of gravel.[j]

18 Make plans by seeking advice;
if you wage war, obtain guidance.[k]

19 A gossip betrays a confidence;[l] so avoid a man who talks too much.

20 If a man curses his father or mother,[m] his lamp will be snuffed out in pitch darkness.[n]

21 An inheritance quickly gained at the beginning will not be blessed at the end.

22 Do not say, "I'll pay you back for this wrong!"[o]
Wait for the LORD, and he will deliver you.[p]

20:1 Wine is a mocker and beer a brawler. Those who overindulge become mockers and brawlers (see Hos 7:5). Proverbs associates drunkenness with poverty (23:20–21), strife (23:29–30) and injustice (31:4–5). led astray. See Ge 9:21; Isa 28:7.

20:8 winnows out all evil. See 16:10; Ps 11:4.

20:9 pure . . . clean . . . without sin. No one is without sin (cf. Job 14:4; Ro 3:23)—but those whose sins have been forgiven have "clean hands and a pure heart" (Ps 24:4; see also 51:1–2,9–10).

20:10 See note on 11:1; cf. 16:11.

20:13 sleep . . . grow poor. See 24:33–34.

20:14 It's no good, it's no good! Prices were often agreed upon by bargaining, so the buyer is questioning the quality of the article in order to buy it more cheaply.

20:15 Gold . . . rubies. Earlier, wisdom itself was valued more highly than gold or rubies (3:14–15; 8:10–11).

20:16 See note on 6:1. Take the garment. A garment could be taken as security for a debt (Dt 24:10–13). Anyone who foolishly assumes responsibility for the debt of a stranger, whose reliability is unknown, or of a wayward woman, whose unreliability is known, ought to be held accountable, even to the degree of taking his garment as a pledge.

20:17 tastes sweet to a man. Cf. the sweet "food" prepared by the adulteress in 9:17. Zophar observes that evil is sweet in the mouth of a wicked man, but it turns sour in his stomach (Job 20:12–18). See note on 10:2.

20:18 advice . . . guidance. See 15:22; Lk 14:31.

20:20 curses his father or mother. Punishable by death (see Lev 20:9; cf. Pr 30:11,17). lamp . . . snuffed out. He will die (see note on 13:9).

20:21 inheritance quickly gained . . . will not be blessed. Cf. 19:26; cf. also the sad experience of the son who "squandered his wealth in wild living" (Lk 15:12–13).

20:22 I'll pay you back. Vengeance was God's prerogative. He would repay the wicked for their actions (see Dt 32:35; Ps 94:1). Wait for the LORD. See Ps 27:14; 37:34.

23 The LORD detests differing weights, and dishonest scales do not please him.[q]

24 A man's steps are directed[r] by the LORD.[s]
How then can anyone understand his own way?[t]

25 It is a trap for a man to dedicate something rashly and only later to consider his vows.[u]

26 A wise king winnows out the wicked;
he drives the threshing wheel over them.[v]

27 The lamp of the LORD[w] searches the spirit of a man[j];
it searches out his inmost being.[x]

28 Love and faithfulness keep a king safe;
through love[y] his throne is made secure.[z]

29 The glory of young men is their strength, gray hair the splendor of the old.[a]

30 Blows and wounds cleanse[b] away evil, and beatings[c] purge the inmost being.

21 The king's heart is in the hand of the LORD;
he directs it like a watercourse wherever he pleases.[d]

2 All a man's ways seem right to him, but the LORD weighs the heart.[e]

3 To do what is right and just is more acceptable to the LORD than sacrifice.[f]

4 Haughty eyes[g] and a proud heart, the lamp of the wicked, are sin!

5 The plans of the diligent lead to profit[h] as surely as haste leads to poverty.

6 A fortune made by a lying tongue is a fleeting vapor and a deadly snare.[ki]

7 The violence of the wicked will drag them away,[j]

8 The way of the guilty is devious,[k]

when a wise man is instructed, he gets knowledge.[m]

20:25 dedicate something rashly. Promise to make a special gift to the Lord if he answers an earnest request (see Lev 27:1–25; Dt 23:21; Jdg 11:30–31,34–35; 1Sa 1:11). Sometimes such a vow was made hastily and was not carried out (cf. Ecc 5:4–6).
20:26 threshing wheel. The wheel of the threshing cart that separated the grain from the husk (cf. Isa 28:27–28). The wicked will be separated from the righteous and duly punished.
20:27 lamp of the LORD. Perhaps his eyes (cf. 5:21; 15:3). searches the spirit . . . his inmost being. See note on 15:11.
20:28 Love and faithfulness keep a king safe . . . secure. Benevolence and kindness endear a king to his people and encourage them to be loyal subjects (cf. 3:3; 14:22; 16:12; 29:14).
20:29 their strength. Cf. Jer 9:23. gray hair the splendor of the old. See note on 16:31.
20:30 Blows and wounds cleanse away evil. Stern punishment is necessary to restrain evil. Several verses refer to fools whose backs are beaten (10:13; 14:3; 19:29), but even then, because they are fools, they may not change their ways (cf. 17:10; 27:22).
21:1 king's heart is in the hand of the LORD. God controls the lives and actions even of kings, such as Nebuchadnezzar (Da 4:31–32,35) and Cyrus (Isa 45:1–3; cf. Ezr 6:22). directs it . . . wherever he pleases. See 16:9; see also 16:1; 19:21; 20:24.

21:3 more acceptable . . . than sacrifice. A theme also found in the prophets (Hos 6:6; Mic 6:7–8). See v. 27; see also note on 15:8.
21:4 Haughty eyes. See note on 6:17; see also 16:5,18. lamp. Eyes (see 20:27; Lk 11:34).
21:5 The plans of the diligent lead to profit. See note on 10:4. haste. Either rash actions (19:2) or a desire to get rich quick (see 13:11 and note; 20:21; 28:20).
21:6 fortune made by a lying tongue. See note on 10:2; cf. 19:1. fleeting vapor. See 13:11 and note; Ecc 1:14. deadly snare. Cf. 5:22; 7:23.

14A gift given in secret soothes anger, and a bribe concealed in the cloak pacifies great wrath.[q]

15When justice is done, it brings joy to the righteous but terror to evildoers.[r]

16A man who strays from the path of understanding fate of the rich man (Lk 16:19–31) and the unmerciful servant (Mt 18:23–34).

21:14 gift . . . bribe. See note on 17:8; see also 18:16; 19:6. soothes anger . . . wrath. Perhaps that of an offended party (see 6:34–35).

21:15 joy to the righteous. See 11:10 and note. terror to evildoers. See 10:29 and note; Ro 13:3.

21:16 Graphically illustrated by the man who succumbed to the adulteress (see 2:18; 5:23; 7:22–23; 9:18).

21:17 wine and oil. Both were associated with lavish feasting (see 23:20–21; Am 6:6). Oil was used in various lotions or perfumes, some of which were very expensive (Jn 12:5).

21:18 The wicked become a ransom for the righteous. Close to the thought of 11:8. In Isa 43:3–4 God gave three nations to Persia in exchange for Persia's willingness to release the exiles of Judah (see note on Isa 43:4).

21:19 See 19:13 and note.

21:20 stores of choice food. See 3:10 and note; 8:21. oil. Olive oil (see note on v. 17; see also Dt 7:13).

21:21 pursues righteousness. See 15:9. life, prosperity and honor. Benefits for those who seek wisdom (see note on 3:2; see also 3:16; 8:18; cf. 22:4).

21:22 wise man . . . pulls down the stronghold. Probably another way of saying, "Wisdom is better than strength" (Ecc 9:16). Cf. 24:5; 2Co 10:4, where spiritual weapons "have divine power to demolish strongholds."

21:23 See 13:3 and note; 18:21.

21:24 "Mocker" is his name. See note on 1:22. God mocks and punishes him for his "overweening pride" (cf. 3:34; 19:25,29; 21:11).

21:25 sluggard's craving. See notes on 6:6; 13:4.

21:26 give without sparing. The righteous are prosperous, so they can share with those in need (see Ps 37:26; 112:9; cf. Eph 4:28).

21:27 The sacrifice of the wicked is detestable. See notes on v. 3; 15:8.

21:28 false witness will perish. See 19:5,9; see also note on 6:19.

21:29 bold front. Cf. the behavior of the adulteress in 7:13.

21:30 no plan that can succeed against the LORD. Because he is sovereign and controls people and nations (see 16:4,9 and notes; 19:21; 21:1; 1Co 3:19–20).

21:31 horse. Many times God cautions against trusting in horses and chariots for victory (e.g., Ps 20:7; Hos 1:7; cf. Dt 17:16). victory rests with the LORD. See 1Sa 17:47; Ps 3:8.

22:1 good name. Its value is recognized also in 3:4; 10:7; Ecc 7:1. better than silver or gold. Like the possession of wisdom (see 3:14; 16:16).

22:2 Maker of them all. See 14:31 and note.

and when he is old he will not turn from it.[w]

7 The rich rule over the poor, and the borrower is servant to the lender.

8 He who sows wickedness reaps trouble,[x] and the rod of his fury will be destroyed.[y]

9 A generous man will himself be blessed,[z] for he shares his food with the poor.[a]

10 Drive out the mocker, and out goes strife;
quarrels and insults are ended.[b]

11 He who loves a pure heart and whose speech is gracious will have the king for his friend.[c]

12 The eyes of the LORD keep watch over knowledge, but he frustrates the words of the unfaithful.

13 The sluggard says, "There is a lion outside!"[d] or, "I will be murdered in the streets!"

14 The mouth of an adulteress is a deep pit;[e] he who is under the LORD's wrath will fall into it.[f]

15 Folly is bound up in the heart of a child, but the rod of discipline will drive it far from him.[g]

16 He who oppresses the poor to increase his wealth and he who gives gifts to the rich—both come to poverty.

Sayings of the Wise

17 Pay attention[h] and listen to the sayings of the wise;[i] apply your heart to what I teach,[j] 18 for it is pleasing when you keep them in your heart and have all of them ready on your lips.
19 So that your trust may be in the LORD,
I teach you today, even you.
20 Have I not written thirty[p] sayings for you, sayings of counsel and knowledge, 21 teaching you true and reliable words,[k]
so that you can give sound answers to him who sent you?

22:3 prudent man ... takes refuge. Cf. 14:8. the simple. See note on 1:4; see also 9:16.
22:4 See 18:12. Humility and the fear of the LORD. Associated also in 15:33 (see note on 1:7). wealth and honor and life. Benefits for those who seek wisdom (see note on 3:2; see also 3:16; 8:18; cf. 21:21).
22:5 thorns and snares. Evil (cf. 15:19). stays far from them. By taking the "highway of the upright" (16:17).
22:6 Train. Or "Dedicate," as in 1Ki 8:63; see also NIV text note; cf. Ge 18:19. Instruction (1:8) and discipline (22:15) are primarily involved. way he should go. The right way, the way of wisdom (see 4:11 and note). old. Or "grown."
22:7 The rich. See note on 10:15. the borrower is servant to the lender. One of the reasons why putting up security for someone else (v. 26) was frowned upon (cf. Ne 5:4–5).
22:8 sows wickedness reaps trouble. See 12:21. rod of his fury. His ability to oppress others (see Ps 125:3; Isa 14:5–6).
22:9 generous man will ... be blessed. See note on 11:25. shares his food. See note on 14:21; see also Dt 15:8–11.
22:10 Drive out the mocker. See note on 1:22; cf. Ge 21:9–10. out goes strife ... insults. Cf. 17:14; 18:3; 20:3.
22:11 pure heart. Cf. Ps 24:4. whose speech is gracious. Characteristic of the wise man in Ecc 10:12. king for his friend. Cf. v. 29.
22:12 The eyes of the LORD keep watch. See 5:21; 15:3; Job 31:4; 34:21; Jer 16:17; Heb 4:13. over knowledge. God protects those who have knowledge (cf. Ps 1:6; 34:15). frustrates ... the unfaithful. Overrules their plans and desires (see 16:9; see also note on 21:30).
22:13 The sluggard (see note on 6:6) creates excuses to avoid work.
22:14 mouth of an adulteress. Her seductive words (see note on 5:3; see also 2:16; 7:5). deep pit. Perhaps a well or a hunter's trap (see 5:22 and note; 7:22).
22:15 rod of discipline. See note on 13:24.
22:16 who oppresses the poor. Condemned also in 14:31; 28:3. gives gifts to the rich. Perhaps bribes (see 17:8; 18:16; 19:6). poverty. See 21:5; 28:22.
22:17–24:22 A new section that returns more to the style of chs. 1–9. Verses 17–21 form the introduction to these 30 sayings.
22:17 Pay attention and listen. See 4:20; 5:1. sayings of the wise. A title, like "proverbs of Solomon" in 10:1.
22:18 it is pleasing. See 2:10; 16:24.
22:19 that your trust may be in the LORD. See note on 3:5.
22:20 thirty sayings. There are 30 units in 22:22–24:22. Most of them are two or three verses long, but see 23:29–35. The Egyptian "Wisdom of Amenemope" (see Introduction: Date) also contains 30 sections.
22:21 give sound answers. See 1Pe 3:15. him who sent you. Possibly a parent or guardian.

22 Do not exploit the poor[l] because they are poor and do not crush the needy in court,[m]
23 for the LORD will take up their case[n] and will plunder those who plunder
them.[o]

24 Do not make friends with a hot-tempered man,
do not associate with one easily angered,
25 or you may learn his ways and get yourself ensnared.[p]

26 Do not be a man who strikes hands in pledge[q]
or puts up security for debts;
27 if you lack the means to pay, your very bed will be snatched from under you.[r]

28 Do not move an ancient boundary stone[s]
set up by your forefathers.

29 Do you see a man skilled[t] in his work?
He will serve[u] before kings;[v]
he will not serve before obscure
men.

23 When you sit to dine with a ruler,
note well what[q] is before you,
2 and put a knife to your throat
if you are given to gluttony.
3 Do not crave his delicacies,[w]
for that food is deceptive.

4 Do not wear yourself out to get rich;
have the wisdom to show restraint.
5 Cast but a glance at riches, and they are gone,[x]
for they will surely sprout wings and fly off to the sky like an eagle.[y]

6 Do not eat the food of a stingy man, do not crave his delicacies;[z] 7 for he is the kind of man who is always thinking about the cost.[r]
"Eat and drink," he says to you,
but his heart is not with you.
8 You will vomit up the little you have eaten and will have wasted your compliments.

9 Do not speak to a fool, for he will scorn the wisdom of your words.[a]

10 Do not move an ancient boundary stone[b] or encroach on the fields of the
fatherless,
11 for their Defender[c] is strong;[d]
he will take up their case against you.[e]

12 Apply your heart to instruction[f] and your ears to words of knowledge.

13 Do not withhold discipline from a child;
if you punish him with the rod, he will not die.
14 Punish him with the rod and save his soul from death.[sg]

22:22 Do not exploit the poor. See v. 16; 14:31. do not crush the needy in court. See Isa 1:17.

22:23 the LORD will take up their case. See 23:11; Ps 12:5; 140:12; Isa 3:13–15; Mal 3:5. will plunder those who plunder them. See Ex 22:22–24.

22:24 Do not make friends. Cf. 12:26. hot-tempered man. His characteristics are given in 14:16–17; 15:18; 29:22.

22:25 may learn his ways. "Bad company corrupts good character" (1Co 15:33). ensnared. See note on 5:22; see also 12:13; 13:14; 29:6.

22:26 See note on 6:1.

22:27 your very bed will be snatched. You will be reduced to poverty.

22:28 ancient boundary stone. See note on 15:25; see also 23:10.

22:29 skilled in his work. Craftsmen were considered to be wise (see note on 8:30; see also Ex 35:30–35). serve before kings. Like Joseph, an administrator (Ge 41:46); David, a musician (1Sa 16:21–23); and Huram, a worker in bronze (1Ki 7:14).

23:2 gluttony. Cf. the similar warning in vv. 20–21.

23:3 Do not crave his delicacies. Repeated in a different context in v. 6. deceptive. Perhaps the meaning is that the ruler wants to obligate you in some way, even to influence you to support a wicked scheme (cf. Ps 141:4).

23:4 Do not wear yourself out to get rich. The desire to get rich can ruin a person physically and spiritually. "For the love of money is a root of all kinds of evil" (1Ti 6:10; cf. 15:27; 28:20; Heb 13:5).

23:5 riches . . . are gone. Our trust must be in God, not in riches (see Jer 17:11; Lk 12:21; 1Ti 6:17).

23:6 stingy man. One eager to get rich (see 28:22).

23:7 his heart is not with you. Cf. 26:24–25.

23:8 vomit. Out of disgust at the attitude of the host.

23:9 scorn the wisdom of your words. Fools despise wisdom (1:7) and hate knowledge and correction (1:22; 12:1). They heap abuse on one who rebukes them (9:7).

23:10 ancient boundary stone. See note on 15:25; see also 22:28. fatherless. Oppressing the widow and the fatherless is strongly denounced (see Isa 10:2; Jer 22:3; Zec 7:10).

23:11 Defender. Kinsman-Redeemer, someone who helped a close relative regain land (see Lev 25:25 and note) or who avenged his death (Nu 35:12,19). God is a "father to the fatherless, a defender of widows" (Ps 68:5). See notes on Ru 2:20; Jer 31:11; see also Jer 50:34. will take up their case. See Ps 12:5; 140:12; Isa 3:13–15; Mal 3:5.

23:13–14 See 13:24 and note.

23:15 See 10:1 and note; see also v. 24; 27:11; 29:3. My son. See 1:8,10.

16 my inmost being will rejoice when your lips speak what is right.[h]
17 Do not let your heart envy[i] sinners, but always be zealous for the fear of the LORD.
18 There is surely a future hope for you, and your hope will not be cut off.[j] 19 Listen, my son,[k] and be wise, and keep your heart on the right
path.
20 Do not join those who drink too much wine[l]
or gorge themselves on meat, 21 for drunkards and gluttons become poor,[m]
and drowsiness clothes them in rags.
22 Listen to your father, who gave you
life,
and do not despise your mother
when she is old.[n] 23 Buy the truth and do not sell it;
get wisdom, discipline and understanding.[o]
24 The father of a righteous man has great joy;
he who has a wise son delights in him.[p]
25 May your father and mother be glad;
may she who gave you birth
rejoice![q]
26 My son,[r] give me your heart and let your eyes keep to my ways,[s]
27 for a prostitute is a deep pit[t] and a wayward wife is a narrow
well.
28 Like a bandit she lies in wait,[u] and multiplies the unfaithful among men.
29 Who has woe? Who has sorrow?
Who has strife? Who has complaints?
Who has needless bruises? Who has bloodshot eyes?
30 Those who linger over wine,[v] who go to sample bowls of mixed wine.
31 Do not gaze at wine when it is red,
when it sparkles in the cup,
when it goes down smoothly!
32 In the end it bites like a snake and poisons like a viper.
33 Your eyes will see strange sights and your mind imagine confusing
things.
34 You will be like one sleeping on the high seas,
lying on top of the rigging.
35 "They hit me," you will say, "but I'm not hurt!
They beat me, but I don't feel it!
When will I wake up
so I can find another drink?"[w]

24 Do not envy[x] wicked men, do not desire their company;
2 for their hearts plot violence,[y] and their lips talk about making trouble.[z]
3 By wisdom a house is built,[a] and through understanding it is established;
4 through knowledge its rooms are filled with rare and beautiful treasures.[b] 5 A wise man has great power, and a man of knowledge increases
strength;
6 for waging war you need guidance, and for victory many advisers.[c]
7 Wisdom is too high for a fool;

23:28 lies in wait. See 6:26; 7:12; Ecc 7:26. multiplies the unfaithful. Cf. 7:26.
23:29–35 A vivid description of the physical and psychological effects of drunkenness.
23:29 Who has woe? Cf. the woes pronounced on drunkards in Isa 5:11,22. strife. See 20:1. bruises. Cf. the "beatings for the backs of fools" in 19:29.
23:30 linger over wine. See 1Sa 25:36. mixed wine. Probably with spices (see 9:2; Ps 75:8).
23:32 bites like a snake. Death will be the result (cf. Nu 21:6).
23:33 see strange sights ... imagine confusing things. Perhaps a reference to the delirium that afflicts the alcoholic.
23:34 You will be like one sleeping on the high seas. Your head will be spinning.
23:35 They beat me, but I don't feel it! Cf. the condition of Israel in Jer 5:3. so I can find another drink. The woe and misery do not prevent him from repeating his folly (cf. 26:11; 27:22; Isa 56:12).
24:1 Do not envy. See v. 19; Ps 37:1. do not desire their company. See 1:15; 12:26; 23:20.
24:2 plot violence. See 1:10–11; 6:14; Job 15:35; Ps 38:12.
24:3 house. Symbolic of the life of an individual or a family. is built. Cf. the similar expression in 9:1.
24:4 rare and beautiful treasures. Wisdom promises to bestow wealth on those who love her (8:21).
24:5 has great power. See note on 21:22.
24:7 at the gate. The normal meeting place for official business (see note on 1:21).

in the assembly at the gate he has nothing to say.

8He who plots evil
will be known as a schemer.
9The schemes of folly are sin,
and men detest a mocker.

10If you falter in times of trouble,
how small is your strength![d]

11Rescue those being led away to death; hold back those staggering toward slaughter.[e] 12If you say, "But we knew nothing about this,"
does not he who weighs[f][g] the heart perceive it?
Does not he who guards your life

Will he not repay[h] each person honey from the comb is sweet to your taste.

14Know also that wisdom is sweet to
your soul;
if you find it, there is a future hope
for you,
and your hope will not be cut off.[j][k]

15Do not lie in wait like an outlaw against a righteous man's house,
do not raid his dwelling place; 16for though a righteous man falls seven times, he rises again,

by calamity.[l]

Further Sayings of the Wise

23These also are sayings of the wise:[t]

To show partiality[u] in judging is not good:[v] 24Whoever says to the guilty, "You are innocent"[w]—
peoples will curse him and nations denounce him.
25But it will go well with those who convict the guilty, and rich blessing will come upon
them.

26An honest answer is like a kiss on the lips.

27Finish your outdoor work and get your fields ready;
after that, build your house.

28Do not testify against your neighbor without cause,[x]
or use your lips to deceive.
29Do not say, "I'll do to him as he has done to me;

24:8 plots evil. See v. 2; see also 1:10–11; 6:14; Job 15:35; Ps 38:12. schemer. Called a "crafty man" in 12:2; 14:17.

24:9 schemes of folly are sin. Cf. 1:11–16; 9:13–18. men detest a mocker. Because he is proud, insulting (9:7) and quarrelsome (22:10). See note on 1:22.

24:10 Cf. Jer 12:5; Gal 6:9.

24:11 those being led away to death. Perhaps innocent men condemned to die (cf. 17:15; Isa 58:6–7).

24:12 does not he who weighs the heart perceive it? God knows even our thoughts and motives (see 16:2; 21:2; Ps 94:9–11).

24:14 wisdom is sweet to your soul. It nourishes and brings healing (see 16:24 and note). future hope. See Ps 9:18; 37:37; Jer 29:11.

24:15 lie in wait. Cf. 1:11; 12:6; Ps 10:9–10.

24:16 seven times. Many times (see 6:16; Job 5:19 and note). rises again. God promises to uphold and rescue the righteous (cf. Ps 34:19; 37:24; Mic 7:8). wicked are brought down. See v. 22; 4:19; 6:15; 11:3,5.

24:17 Do not gloat. See 17:5 and note.

24:18 turn his wrath away from him. Edom was made desolate because she rejoiced over Israel's destruction (see Eze 35:15).

24:19 Almost identical to Ps 37:1; see v. 1; 23:17.

24:20 no future hope. For himself or his posterity (see Ps 37:2,28,38; contrast v. 14; 23:18). lamp ... will be snuffed out. See note on 13:9.

24:21 Fear the LORD and the king. Submission to civil authority is also commanded in Ecc 8:2–5. 1Pe 2:17 says, "fear God, honor the king," and Ro 13:1–7 urges the same obedience. These passages all view the king as a terror to the wicked (cf. 20:8,26).

24:22 those two. God and the king. sudden destruction ... calamities. God's judgment is more common (see 6:15; 11:3,5), but the power of the king is seen in 20:26.

24:23–34 An appendix to 22:17–24:22, giving a few additional sayings of the wise.

24:23 partiality in judging is not good. See 18:5 and note.

24:24 You are innocent. See 17:15. peoples will curse him. Just as they "curse the man who hoards grain" (11:26).

24:25 rich blessing. See 10:6; Dt 16:20.

24:26 honest answer. Cf. 16:13. like a kiss. Cf. the "pleasant words" that are "sweet to the soul" in 16:24.

24:27 get your fields ready. Plan carefully and acquire the means as you build your house. house. See note on v. 3.

24:28 testify ... without cause. See 3:30. use your lips to deceive. See 6:19 and note; 12:17; 25:18.

24:29 I'll pay that man back. A spirit of revenge is dis-

I'll pay that man back for what he did."[y]

30I went past the field of the sluggard,[z] past the vineyard of the man who lacks judgment; 31thorns had come up everywhere,
the ground was covered with weeds,
and the stone wall was in ruins.
32I applied my heart to what I observed and learned a lesson from what I saw:
33A little sleep, a little slumber,
a little folding of the hands to rest[a]— 34and poverty will come on you like a bandit and scarcity like an armed man.[tb]

More Proverbs of Solomon

25 These are more proverbs[c] of Solomon, copied by the men of Hezekiah king of Judah:[d]

2It is the glory of God to conceal a matter;
to search out a matter is the glory of kings.[e]

3As the heavens are high and the earth is deep,
so the hearts of kings are unsearchable.

4Remove the dross from the silver, and out comes material for[u] the silversmith; 5remove the wicked from the king's presence,[f]
and his throne will be established[g] through righteousness.[h] 6Do not exalt yourself in the king's presence, and do not claim a place among great men; 7it is better for him to say to you,

"Come up here,"[i]
than for him to humiliate you before a nobleman.

What you have seen with your eyes 8 do not bring[v] hastily to court, for what will you do in the end
if your neighbor puts you to shame?[j]

9If you argue your case with a neighbor, do not betray another man's confidence, 10or he who hears it may shame you and you will never lose your bad reputation.

11A word aptly spoken is like apples of gold in settings of silver.[k]

12Like an earring of gold or an ornament of fine gold is a wise man's rebuke to a listening ear.[l]

13Like the coolness of snow at harvest time is a trustworthy messenger to those who send him;
he refreshes the spirit of his masters.[m]

[t]34 Or like a vagrant / and scarcity like a beggar [u]4 Or comes a vessel from [v]7,8 Or nobleman / on whom you had set your eyes. / [8]Do not go couraged also in 20:22 (see note there); cf. 25:21–22; Mt 5:43–45; Ro 12:17.

24:30 sluggard. See note on 6:6; see also 20:4.

24:31 thorns . . . weeds. Cf. 15:19; Isa 34:13.

25:1–29:27 Another collection of Solomon's proverbs similar to 10:1–22:16.

25:1 proverbs of Solomon. See notes on 1:1; 10:1. copied by the men of Hezekiah. There was a great revival in the reign of Hezekiah (c. 715–686 B.C.), and the king restored the singing of hymns to its proper place (2Ch 29:30). His interest in the words of David corresponds to his support of a compilation of Solomon's proverbs. Solomon was the last king to rule over all Israel during the united monarchy; Hezekiah was the first king to rule over all Israel (now restricted to the southern kingdom) after the destruction of the divided monarchy's northern kingdom.

25:2 to conceal a matter. God gets glory because man cannot understand his universe or the way he rules it (see Dt 29:29; Job 26:14 and note; Isa 40:12–24; Ro 11:33–36). to search out a matter. A king gets glory if he can uncover the truth and administer justice (see 1Ki 3:9; 4:34).

25:3 are unsearchable. Cannot be understood; like the four things in 30:18–19. Yet God controls the hearts of kings (see note on 21:1).

25:4 Remove the dross from the silver. A process compared to the purification of society in general and rulers in particular in Isa 1:22–25; Eze 22:18; Mal 3:2–3.

25:5 his throne will be established through righteousness. See note on 16:12; see also 20:26.

25:6 in the king's presence. Probably at a feast (cf. 23:1). Jesus spoke about the place of honor at a wedding feast (Lk 14:7–11).

25:7 Come up here. Cf. "Friend, move up to a better place" (Lk 14:10); contrast Isa 22:15–19.

25:8 do not bring hastily to court. A warning about the seriousness of disputes (see 17:14) and the need to exercise caution (see 24:28).

25:9 do not betray another man's confidence. If you do, you are a gossip (see 11:13; 20:19).

25:10 bad reputation. A good name is one of life's most valuable possessions (see 22:1 and note).

25:11 gold . . . silver. Cf. the fruit of wisdom in 8:19.

25:12 earring of gold. Comparable to the beautiful wreath and necklace that represent the adornment of wisdom and sound teaching (see 1:9; 3:22; 4:9). wise man's rebuke. Cf. the "life-giving rebuke" of 15:31.

25:13 coolness of snow. Probably a drink cooled by snow from the mountains; it did not snow at harvest time. See 26:1; contrast 10:26. trustworthy messenger. See 13:17 and note.

14 Like clouds and wind without rain is a man who boasts of gifts he does not give.

15 Through patience a ruler can be persuaded,[n] and a gentle tongue can break a bone.[o]

16 If you find honey, eat just enough—too much of it, and you will vomit.[p]

17 Seldom set foot in your neighbor's house—too much of you, and he will hate you.

18 Like a club or a sword or a sharp arrow is the man who gives false testimony against his neighbor.[q]

19 Like a bad tooth or a lame foot is reliance on the unfaithful in times of trouble.

20 Like one who takes away a garment on a cold day, or like vinegar poured on soda,
is one who sings songs to a heavy heart.

21 If your enemy is hungry, give him food to eat;
if he is thirsty, give him water to drink.

22 In doing this, you will heap burning coals[r] on his head, and the LORD will reward you.[s]

23 As a north wind brings rain, so a sly tongue brings angry looks.

24 Better to live on a corner of the roof than share a house with a quarrelsome wife.[t]

25 Like cold water to a weary soul is good news from a distant land.[u]

26 Like a muddied spring or a polluted well is a righteous man who gives way to the wicked.

27 It is not good to eat too much honey,[v]
nor is it honorable to seek one's own honor.[w]

28 Like a city whose walls are broken down is a man who lacks self-control.

26 Like snow in summer or rain[x] in harvest, honor is not fitting for a fool.[y]

2 Like a fluttering sparrow or a darting swallow, an undeserved curse does not come to rest.[z]

3 A whip for the horse, a halter for the donkey,[a] and a rod for the backs of fools![b]

4 Do not answer a fool according to his folly, or you will be like him yourself.[c]

5 Answer a fool according to his folly, or he will be wise in his own eyes.[d]

25:14 Like clouds ... without rain. An image applied to unproductive men in Jude 12.
25:15 Through patience a ruler can be persuaded. Cf. 14:29. gentle tongue. See note on 15:1.
25:18 club ... sword ... arrow. Cf. Ps 57:4; Jer 9:8. false testimony. See note on 6:19; see also 24:28; Ex 20:16.
25:19 bad tooth ... lame foot. Relying on Egypt was like leaning on a splintered reed (Isa 36:6).
25:20 soda. Probably sodium carbonate, "natron" (see Jer 2:22). There is a vigorous reaction when vinegar is poured on it. sings songs to a heavy heart. The exiles were reluctant to sing the songs of Zion (Ps 137:3–4).
25:21–22 Quoted in Ro 12:20 as a way to overcome evil with good.
25:21 Kindness to one's enemy is encouraged in 20:22; Ex 23:4–5. give him food ... water. At Elisha's request, a trapped Aramean army was given a great feast and then sent home (2Ki 6:21–23; cf. 2Ch 28:15).
25:22 heap burning coals on his head. Horrible punishment reserved for the wicked (see Ps 140:10). Here, however, it is kindness that will hurt the enemy (cf. the broken bone of v. 15) but perhaps win him over. Alternatively, the expression may reflect an Egyptian expiation ritual, in which a guilty person, as a sign of his repentance, carried a basin of glowing coals on his head. The meaning here, then, would be that in returning good for evil and so being kind to your enemy, you may cause him to repent or change. LORD will reward you. Even if the enemy remains hostile (cf. 11:18; 19:17).
25:23 north. Perhaps northwest (cf. Lk 12:54). sly tongue. One that spreads slander (cf. 10:18).
25:25 good news from a distant land. See Ge 45:25–28.
25:26 muddied spring. Cf. Eze 34:18–19. righteous man who gives way. Perhaps through bribery (cf. 17:8; 29:4; Isa 1:21–23).
25:27 to seek one's own honor. See vv. 6–7 and notes.
25:28 city whose walls are broken down. Defenseless and disgraced (cf. Ne 1:3). man who lacks self-control. See 16:32 and note.
26:1 rain in harvest. It rarely rains in the Holy Land from June through September, but see 1Sa 12:17–18. honor is not fitting for a fool. See v. 8; 30:22.
26:2 undeserved curse does not come to rest. When David was cursed by Shimei, he realized that the curse would not take effect because he was innocent of the charge of murdering members of Saul's family (2Sa 16:8,12).
26:3 rod for the backs of fools. See 14:3; 19:29.
26:4 Do not answer a fool according to his folly. Do not stoop to his level (see 23:9; Mt 7:6).
26:5 Answer a fool according to his folly. Sometimes folly must be plainly exposed and denounced.
26:6 drinking violence. See 4:17; Job 34:7. sending of a message by the hand of a fool. He will likely misrepresent the one who sends him, or in some other manner frustrate is the sending of a message by the hand of a fool.[e]

7 Like a lame man's legs that hang limp is a proverb in the mouth of a fool.[f]

8 Like tying a stone in a sling is the giving of honor to a fool.[g]

9 Like a thornbush in a drunkard's hand is a proverb in the mouth of a fool.[h]

10 Like an archer who wounds at random is he who hires a fool or any passer-by.

11 As a dog returns to its vomit,[i] so a fool repeats his folly.[j]

12 Do you see a man wise in his own eyes?[k]
There is more hope for a fool than for him.[l]

13 The sluggard says,[m] "There is a lion in the road, a fierce lion roaming the streets!"[n]

14 As a door turns on its hinges, so a sluggard turns on his bed.[o]

15 The sluggard buries his hand in the dish;
he is too lazy to bring it back to his mouth.[p]

16 The sluggard is wiser in his own eyes than seven men who answer discreetly.

17 Like one who seizes a dog by the ears is a passer-by who meddles in a quarrel not his own.

18 Like a madman shooting firebrands or deadly arrows

19 is a man who deceives his neighbor and says, "I was only joking!"

20 Without wood a fire goes out;
without gossip a quarrel dies down.[q]

21 As charcoal to embers and as wood to fire, so is a quarrelsome man for kindling strife.[r]

22 The words of a gossip are like choice morsels;
they go down to a man's inmost parts.[s]

23 Like a coating of glaze[w] over earthenware are fervent lips with an evil heart.

24 A malicious man disguises himself with his lips,[t]
but in his heart he harbors deceit.[u] 25 Though his speech is charming,[v] do not believe him, for seven abominations fill his heart.[w] 26 His malice may be concealed by deception, but his wickedness will be exposed in the assembly.

27 If a man digs a pit,[x] he will fall into it;[y]
if a man rolls a stone, it will roll back on him.[z]

28 A lying tongue hates those it hurts, and a flattering mouth[a] works ruin.

27 Do not boast[b] about tomorrow, for you do not know what a day may bring forth.[c]

the sender's purpose (see 13:17).

26:8 Like tying a stone in a sling. A fool with authority wields a formidable weapon, but it is useless in his hands—as useless as a stone that is tied, not placed, in the sling.

26:9 A fool reciting a proverb will do as much damage to himself and others as a drunkard wielding a thornbush.

26:10 he who hires a fool or any passer-by. Abimelech hired "reckless adventurers" to help him murder his half brothers and set up a brief and ill-fated rule (Jdg 9:4–6).

26:11 As a dog returns to its vomit. Quoted in 2Pe 2:22 with reference to false teachers. fool repeats his folly. The drunkard returns to his drink (23:35).

26:12 wise in his own eyes. This conceit is applied to the sluggard in v. 16 and the rich in 28:11; cf. 26:5.

26:13 See 22:13 and note.

26:14 The sluggard loves to sleep and seems to be attached to his bed as a door to its hinges.

26:16 wiser in his own eyes. See v. 12 and note.

26:17 seizes a dog by the ears. To do so is to immediately create a disturbance.

26:18 Like a madman shooting. Cf. the archer in v. 10. firebrands. Could easily ignite sheaves of grain (cf. Zec 12:6).

26:19 I was only joking! Explaining it as a prank is a poor excuse.

26:21 kindling strife. See 6:14 and note.

26:22 See 18:8 and note.

26:23 coating of glaze over earthenware. Cf. the clean outside of the cup and dish (Lk 11:39; cf. Mt 23:27). fervent lips with an evil heart. The speech of the adulteress is seductive (2:16; 5:3).

26:24 in his heart he harbors deceit. See 12:20.

26:25 his speech is charming. See Jer 9:8. seven. Many (see note on Job 5:19). For seven things the Lord detests see 6:16–19.

26:26 will be exposed in the assembly. See 5:14; Lk 8:17.

26:27 If a man digs a pit, he will fall into it. "The trouble he causes recoils on himself" (Ps 7:16). See 1:18 and note; 28:10; 29:6; Est 7:10; Ps 7:15; Ecc 10:8–9.

26:28 lying tongue hates those it hurts. See 10:18. flattering mouth works ruin. See 29:5; cf. 16:13.

27:1 Cf. the words of the rich fool in Lk 12:19–20; see Pr 16:9; Isa 56:12.

2 Let another praise you, and not your own mouth;
someone else, and not your own lips.[d]

3 Stone is heavy and sand[e] a burden, but provocation by a fool is heavier than both.

4 Anger is cruel and fury overwhelming, but who can stand before jealousy?[f]

5 Better is open rebuke than hidden love.

6 Wounds from a friend can be trusted,
but an enemy multiplies kisses.[g]

7 He who is full loathes honey, but to the hungry even what is bitter tastes sweet.

8 Like a bird that strays from its nest[h] is a man who strays from his home.

9 Perfume[i] and incense bring joy to the heart, and the pleasantness of one's friend springs from his earnest counsel.

10 Do not forsake your friend and the friend of your father, and do not go to your brother's house when disaster[j] strikes you—better a neighbor nearby than a brother far away.

11 Be wise, my son, and bring joy to my heart;[k]
then I can answer anyone who treats me with contempt.[l]

12 The prudent see danger and take refuge, but the simple keep going and suffer for it.[m]

13 Take the garment of one who puts up security for a stranger;
hold it in pledge if he does it for a wayward woman.[n]

14 If a man loudly blesses his neighbor early in the morning, it will be taken as a curse.

15 A quarrelsome wife is like a constant dripping[o] on a rainy day;
16 restraining her is like restraining the wind or grasping oil with the hand.

17 As iron sharpens iron,
so one man sharpens another.

18 He who tends a fig tree will eat its fruit,[p] and he who looks after his master will be honored.[q]

19 As water reflects a face, so a man's heart reflects the man.

20 Death and Destruction[x] are never satisfied,[r] and neither are the eyes of man.[s]

21 The crucible for silver and the furnace for gold,[t]
but man is tested by the praise he receives.

22 Though you grind a fool in a mortar, grinding him like grain with a pestle,
you will not remove his folly from him.

27:19 a man's heart reflects the man. The condition of a man's heart indicates his true character (see Mt 5:8).
27:20 Death and Destruction. See note on Job 26:6; see also 15:11. are never satisfied. Their appetite is insatiable (see Isa 5:14). neither are the eyes of man. See Ecc 4:8.
27:21 crucible . . . gold. Silver and gold were refined to remove their impurities (cf. Isa 1:25; Mal 3:3). man is tested by the praise he receives. He must not become proud, and he must be wary of flattery (cf. 12:8; Lk 6:26).
27:22 mortar. A bowl (see Nu 11:8). pestle. A club-like tool for pounding grain in a mortar. you will not remove his folly. In spite of severe punishment, fools refuse to change (see note on 20:30; see also 26:11; Jer 5:3).

23 Be sure you know the condition of your flocks,[u] give careful attention to your herds; 24 for riches do not endure forever,[v]
and a crown is not secure for all generations.
25 When the hay is removed and new growth appears and the grass from the hills is gathered in, 26 the lambs will provide you with clothing,
and the goats with the price of a field.
27 You will have plenty of goats' milk to feed you and your family and to nourish your servant girls.

28 The wicked man flees[w] though no one pursues,[x]
but the righteous are as bold as a lion.[y]

2 When a country is rebellious, it has many rulers, but a man of understanding and knowledge maintains order.

3 A ruler[y] who oppresses the poor is like a driving rain that leaves no crops.

4 Those who forsake the law praise the wicked,
but those who keep the law resist them.

5 Evil men do not understand justice, but those who seek the LORD understand it fully.

6 Better a poor man whose walk is blameless than a rich man whose ways are perverse.[z]

7 He who keeps the law is a discerning son, but a companion of gluttons disgraces his father.[a]

8 He who increases his wealth by exorbitant interest[b] amasses it for another,[c] who will be kind to the poor.[d]

9 If anyone turns a deaf ear to the law, even his prayers are detestable.[e]

10 He who leads the upright along an evil path will fall into his own trap,[f]
but the blameless will receive a good inheritance.

11 A rich man may be wise in his own eyes,
but a poor man who has discernment sees through him.

12 When the righteous triumph, there is great elation;[g] but when the wicked rise to power, men go into hiding.[h]

13 He who conceals his sins[i] does not prosper, but whoever confesses[j] and renounces them finds mercy.[k]

14 Blessed is the man who always fears the LORD,

[y] 3 Or A poor man

27:23–27 A section praising the basic security afforded by agricultural pursuits—reflecting the agricultural base of the ancient economy.

27:23 give careful attention to your herds. Like Jacob, with Laban's flocks (Ge 31:38–40).

27:24 riches do not endure. See note on 23:5. crown is not secure. Even kings may lose their wealth and power (see Job 19:9; La 5:16).

27:25 hay is removed. This began in March or April.

27:26 price of a field. See 31:16. Sheep and goats sometimes also served as tribute payments (see 2Ki 3:4).

27:27 goats' milk. Commonly drunk along with cows' milk (see Dt 32:13–14; Isa 7:21–22). servant girls. See 31:15.

28:1 wicked man flees. See Lev 26:17,36; Ps 53:5. bold as a lion. Like David in 1Sa 17:46; cf. Ps 18:33–38.

28:2 it has many rulers. Israel's rebellion often brought rapid change in leadership (see 1Ki 16:8–28; 2Ki 15:8–15). man of understanding . . . maintains order. A wise ruler will be successful (see 8:15–16; 24:5; 29:4).

28:3 who oppresses the poor. See 14:31. driving rain. Describes the destructive power of Assyria's army in Isa 28:2. The gentle rain is compared to a righteous king in Ps 72:6–7.

28:4 law. Either the teachings of wisdom (3:1; 7:2) or the law of Moses (Ps 119:53). praise the wicked. Cf. Ro 1:32. who keep the law. See v. 7; 29:18; cf. v. 9. resist them. See Eph 5:11; cf. Ro 1:32.

28:5 who seek the LORD. Who fear him (see note on 1:7). understand it fully. They know "what is right and just and fair" (2:9).

28:6 blameless. See 2:7 and note.

28:7 who keeps the law. See note on v. 4. companion of gluttons. See notes on 23:20–21.

28:8 exorbitant interest. Prohibited in Ex 22:25; Lev 25:35–37; Dt 23:19–20; Eze 22:12. amasses it for another. See 13:22 and note. kind to the poor. See 14:31; see also note on 14:21.

28:9 law. See note on v. 4. his prayers are detestable. Like the sacrifice of the wicked in 15:8 (see note on 3:32; see also Ps 66:18; Isa 1:15; 59:1–2).

28:10 into his own trap. See note on 26:27. blameless. See note on 2:7. good inheritance. See 3:35; Heb 6:12; 1Pe 3:9.

28:11 rich man may be wise in his own eyes. Like the fool (26:5) or the sluggard (26:16).

28:12 there is great elation. See 11:10 and note. men go into hiding. Obadiah hid 100 prophets during the reign of Ahab (1Ki 18:13), and Joash was hidden for six years while the wicked Athaliah ruled (2Ki 11:2–3).

28:13 He who conceals his sins does not prosper. Note the physical and psychological pain referred to in 3:7–8; Ps 32:3. whoever confesses and renounces them finds mercy. Note the joy of forgiveness in Ps 32:5,10–11.

28:14 fears the LORD. See note on 1:7; see also 23:17. who hardens his heart. Like Pharaoh (Ex 7:13), and the Israelites who tested the Lord at Horeb (Ex 17:7; cf. Ps 95:8; Ro 2:5).

but he who hardens his heart falls into trouble.

15Like a roaring lion or a charging bear is a wicked man ruling over a helpless people.

16A tyrannical ruler lacks judgment, but he who hates ill-gotten gain will enjoy a long life.

17A man tormented by the guilt of murder
will be a fugitive[l] till death;
let no one support him.

18He whose walk is blameless is kept safe,[m]
but he whose ways are perverse will suddenly fall.[n]

19He who works his land will have abundant food,
but the one who chases fantasies will have his fill of poverty.[o]

20A faithful man will be richly blessed, but one eager to get rich will not go unpunished.[p]

21To show partiality[q] is not good[r]— yet a man will do wrong for a piece of bread.[s]

22A stingy man is eager to get rich and is unaware that poverty awaits him.[t]

23He who rebukes a man will in the end gain more favor than he who has a flattering tongue.[u]

24He who robs his father or mother[v] and says, "It's not wrong"— he is partner to him who destroys.[w]

25A greedy man stirs up dissension,[x] but he who trusts in the LORD[y] will prosper.

26He who trusts in himself is a fool,[z] but he who walks in wisdom is kept safe.[a]

27He who gives to the poor will lack nothing,[b]
but he who closes his eyes to them receives many curses.[c]

28When the wicked rise to power, people go into hiding;[d]
but when the wicked perish, the righteous thrive.

29 A man who remains stiff-necked[e] after many rebukes will suddenly be destroyed[f]— without remedy.[g]

2When the righteous thrive, the people rejoice;[h]
when the wicked rule,[i] the people groan.[j]

3A man who loves wisdom brings joy to his father,[k]
but a companion of prostitutes squanders his wealth.[l]

4By justice a king gives a country stability,[m]
but one who is greedy for bribes tears it down.

5Whoever flatters his neighbor is spreading a net for his feet.[n]

6An evil man is snared by his own sin,[o]
but a righteous one can sing and be glad.

28:15 roaring lion. Full of rage and murderous intent (cf. 19:12; Mt 2:16; 1Pe 5:8). charging bear. See 17:12 and note. wicked man ruling. See v. 12.

28:16 he who hates ill-gotten gain will enjoy a long life. Unlike those who love such gain (see 1:19).

28:17 will be a fugitive till death. Cain was a "restless wanderer" in fear of his life (Ge 4:14). Murder was punishable by death (see Ge 9:6; Ex 21:14).

28:18 blameless . . . perverse. Contrasted also in v. 6; 19:1. will suddenly fall. Cf. 11:5.

28:19 chases fantasies. Schemes for making easy money.

28:20 richly blessed. With God's gifts and favors (see 3:13–18; 10:6; Ge 49:26; Dt 33:16). one eager to get rich will not go unpunished. Cf. similar warnings in 20:21; 23:4 (see notes).

28:21 To show partiality is not good. See 18:5 and note; 24:23. will do wrong for a piece of bread. Perhaps a reference to a bribe, however small (cf. Eze 13:19).

28:22 stingy man. See 23:6. eager to get rich. A warning to him is given in v. 20 (cf. similar warnings in 20:21; 23:4). poverty awaits him. Because it is the generous man who prospers (see note on 11:25).

28:23 He who rebukes a man. See Gal 2:14; cf. 15:31; 25:12. who has a flattering tongue. Cf. 16:13; 26:28; 29:5.

28:24 who robs his father or mother. See note on 19:26; cf. Mt 15:4–6; Mk 7:10–12.

28:25 stirs up dissension. See note on 6:14. will prosper. As does also the generous person (11:25) and the one who is diligent (13:4, lit. "the desires of the diligent prosper").

28:26 who walks in wisdom. Equals "who trusts in the LORD" in 29:25; cf. 3:5.

28:27 gives to the poor. See note on 14:21. will lack nothing. Generosity is the path to blessing (see 11:24 and note; 14:21; 19:17). closes his eyes to them. See 21:13.

28:28 people go into hiding. See v. 12 and note. righteous thrive. See 11:10; 29:2.

29:1 stiff-necked after many rebukes. Eli's sons died because of their stubbornness (see 1Sa 2:25; cf. Dt 9:6,13). will suddenly be destroyed—without remedy. Identical to 6:15. Cf. the fate of the mockers in 1:22–27.

29:2 When the righteous thrive, the people rejoice. See 11:10 and note. when the wicked rule, the people groan. See 28:12 and note; see also Jdg 2:18. The Israelites groaned in Egypt (Ex 2:23–24).

29:3 man who loves wisdom brings joy to his father. See 10:1 and note. companion of prostitutes squanders his wealth. See 5:10; 6:26 and notes.

29:4 By justice a king gives a country stability. See 16:12 and note. bribes. See 17:8 and note.

29:6 snared by his own sin. See 1:18 and note; 22:5.

7 The righteous care about justice for the poor,[p] but the wicked have no such concern.

8 Mockers stir up a city,
but wise men turn away anger.[q]

9 If a wise man goes to court with a fool,
the fool rages and scoffs, and there is no peace.

10 Bloodthirsty men hate a man of integrity and seek to kill the upright.[r]

11 A fool gives full vent to his anger,[s]
but a wise man keeps himself under control.[t]

12 If a ruler[u] listens to lies,
all his officials become wicked.[v]

13 The poor man and the oppressor have this in common:
The LORD gives sight to the eyes of both.[w]

14 If a king judges the poor with fairness, his throne will always be secure.[x]

15 The rod of correction imparts wisdom, but a child left to himself disgraces his mother.[y]

16 When the wicked thrive, so does sin, but the righteous will see their downfall.[z]

17 Discipline your son, and he will give you peace;
he will bring delight to your soul.[a]

18 Where there is no revelation, the people cast off restraint;
but blessed is he who keeps the law.[b]

19 A servant cannot be corrected by mere words;
though he understands, he will not respond.

20 Do you see a man who speaks in haste?
There is more hope for a fool than for him.[c]

21 If a man pampers his servant from youth, he will bring grief[z] in the end.

22 An angry man stirs up dissension, and a hot-tempered one commits many sins.[d]

23 A man's pride brings him low,[e]
but a man of lowly spirit gains honor.[f]

24 The accomplice of a thief is his own enemy;
he is put under oath and dare not testify.[g]

25 Fear[h] of man will prove to be a snare, but whoever trusts in the LORD[i] is kept safe.[j]

26 Many seek an audience with a ruler,[k]
but it is from the LORD that man gets justice.[l]

27 The righteous detest the dishonest;
the wicked detest the upright.[m]

[z] 21 The meaning of the Hebrew for this word is uncertain. [a] 1 Or Jakeh of Massa

29:7 The righteous care about justice for the poor. Like Job (Job 29:16); cf. v. 14; 19:17; 22:22.
29:8 Mockers stir up a city. See notes on 6:14; 11:11; see also 26:21. Mockers. See 1:22 and note. wise men turn away anger. See Jas 3:17–18.
29:9 the fool rages and scoffs. Like an angry bear (17:12) or the tossing sea (Isa 57:20–21).
29:10 Bloodthirsty men hate a man of integrity. Their schemes are described in 1:11–16; cf. Ps 5:6.
29:11 gives full vent to his anger. See v. 9; 14:16–17. keeps himself under control. See 16:32 and note.
29:12 all his officials become wicked. Cf. Isa 1:23.
29:14 See note on 16:12; see also v. 4; Isa 9:7.
29:15 rod of correction. See note on 13:24.
29:16 When the wicked thrive. See v. 2; 11:11; 28:12,28. righteous will see their downfall. See 10:25 and note; 14:11; 21:12.
29:17 Discipline your son. Teach him and train him (see 13:24 and note; 22:6).
29:18 revelation. A message from God given through a prophet; a prophetic vision (see 1Sa 3:1; Isa 1:1; Am 8:11–12). people cast off restraint. Possibly an allusion to the sinful actions of the Israelites while Moses was on Mount Sinai (see Ex 32:25 and note). blessed is he who keeps the law. See 28:4 and note; see also 8:32; 28:14.
29:19 cannot be corrected by mere words. Servants, like sons (vv. 15,17), must be disciplined (see note on 22:6).
29:20 who speaks in haste. See 10:19; 17:27–28; Jas 1:19. There is more hope for a fool than for him. Identical to 26:12.
29:21 pampers his servant. See v. 19.
29:22 angry man stirs up dissension. See note on 6:14; see also 15:18.
29:23 See 15:33 and note; see also 18:12.
29:24 he is put under oath. He will be held responsible for failing to testify (cf. Lev 5:1).
29:25 Fear of man. Cf. 1Sa 15:24; Isa 51:12; Jn 12:42–43. whoever trusts in the LORD is kept safe. See 18:10 and note; cf. 3:5–6.
29:26 Many seek an audience. See 1Ki 10:24. it is from the LORD that man gets justice. God controls a king's actions (see note on 21:1) and defends the cause of the poor and the just (cf. Job 36:6).
30:1–33 The first of two chapters that serve as an appendix to Proverbs.
30:1 Agur son of Jakeh. Probably a wise man like Ethan

This man declared to Ithiel, to Ithiel and to Ucal:[b]

2"I am the most ignorant of men;
I do not have a man's understanding.
3I have not learned wisdom, nor have I knowledge of the Holy
One.[o] 4Who has gone up[p] to heaven and come down?
Who has gathered up the wind in the hollow[q] of his hands?
Who has wrapped up the waters[r] in his cloak?[s]
Who has established all the ends of
the earth?
What is his name,[t] and the name of his son?
Tell me if you know!

5"Every word of God is flawless;[u] he is a shield[v] to those who take refuge in him.
6Do not add[w] to his words, or he will rebuke you and prove you a liar.

7"Two things I ask of you, O LORD;
do not refuse me before I die:
8Keep falsehood and lies far from me;
give me neither poverty nor riches,
but give me only my daily bread.[x] 9Otherwise, I may have too much and disown[y] you and say, 'Who is the LORD?'[z]
Or I may become poor and steal, and so dishonor the name of my God.[a]

10"Do not slander a servant to his master, or he will curse you, and you will pay for it.

11"There are those who curse their fathers and do not bless their mothers;[b] 12those who are pure in their own eyes[c]
and yet are not cleansed of their filth;[d] 13those whose eyes are ever so haughty,[e]
whose glances are so disdainful; 14those whose teeth[f] are swords and whose jaws are set with knives[g]
to devour[h] the poor[i] from the earth,
the needy from among mankind.[j]

15"The leech has two daughters.
'Give! Give!' they cry.

"There are three things that are never satisfied,[k]
four that never say, 'Enough!':
16the grave,[c][l] the barren womb, land, which is never satisfied with water,
and fire, which never says,
'Enough!'

17"The eye that mocks[m] a father, that scorns obedience to a mother, will be pecked out by the ravens of the valley,
will be eaten by the vultures.[n]

and Heman (1Ki 4:31). oracle. Usually the message of a prophet (see note on Isa 13:1). If "oracle" is taken as the place name "Massa" (see NIV text note), Agur would then be associated with an Ishmaelite people (cf. Ge 25:13–14). Ithiel . . . Ucal. Perhaps students of Agur, but see NIV text note.

30:2 I am the most ignorant of men. Paul described himself as the "worst of sinners" (1Ti 1:16).

30:3 knowledge of the Holy One. See note on 2:5. "Holy One" occurs elsewhere in Proverbs only in 9:10.

30:4 The use of rhetorical questions to express God's greatness as Creator occurs also in Job 38:4–11; Isa 40:12. gathered up the wind. Cf. Ps 135:7. wrapped up the waters in his cloak. See Job 26:8; 38:8–9. Tell me if you know! God similarly challenged Job (Job 38:4).

30:5 Almost identical to Ps 18:30. shield. See note on 2:7. to those who take refuge in him. See 14:32; 18:10.

30:6 Do not add to his words. Cf. Moses' warning to the Israelites in Dt 4:2.

30:7 Two things. The use of lists characterizes Agur's sayings (see vv. 15,18,21,24,29).

30:8 my daily bread. Cf. Job 23:12 and the Lord's Prayer (Mt 6:11).

30:9 I may have too much and disown you. Moses predicted that Israel would forget God when their food was plentiful and their herds large (Dt 8:12–17; 31:20). Who is the LORD? Or, Why should I serve him (see Job 21:14–16)? become poor and steal. Cf. 6:30.

30:10 you will pay for it. Since the accusation is false, the servant's curse will be effective (cf. 26:2)—so do not suppose you can take advantage of a servant's lowly position.

30:11 curse their fathers. Punishable by death (see Ex 21:17; Lev 20:9; cf. v. 17).

30:12 those who are pure in their own eyes. Like the Pharisee (Lk 18:11; cf. Isa 65:5).

30:13 whose eyes are . . . haughty. See note on 6:17; see also Isa 3:16.

30:14 whose teeth are swords . . . whose jaws are . . . knives. The wicked are like ravenous beasts that devour the prey (see Job 29:17). to devour the poor . . . the needy. Cf. Ps 14:4; Mic 3:2–3.

30:15,18,21,29 three . . . four. See note on 6:16.

30:16 grave. Its appetite is never satisfied (Isa 5:14; Hab 2:5). barren womb. In ancient Israel, a wife without children was desolate, even desperate (cf. Ge 16:2; 30:1; Ru 1:11–13,20–21; 1Sa 1:6,10–11; 2Ki 4:14).

30:17 The eye. Haughty and disdainful (see v. 13). mocks a father . . . a mother. See v. 11 and note; 15:20. will be pecked out by the ravens . . . the vultures. The loss of an eye was a terrible curse (see the story of Samson in Jdg 16:21). Since vultures normally devoured the dead (see Jer 16:4; Mt 24:28), the meaning may be that the body of a disgraceful son will lie unburied and exposed.

18"There are three things that are too amazing for me,
four that I do not understand:
19the way of an eagle in the sky,
the way of a snake on a rock,
the way of a ship on the high seas, and the way of a man with a maiden.

20"This is the way of an adulteress:
She eats and wipes her mouth and says, 'I've done nothing wrong.'[o]

21"Under three things the earth trembles,
under four it cannot bear up:
22a servant who becomes king,[p] a fool who is full of food, 23an unloved woman who is married, and a maidservant who displaces
her mistress.

24"Four things on earth are small,
yet they are extremely wise:
25Ants are creatures of little strength, yet they store up their food in the summer;[q] 26coneys[d][r] are creatures of little power,
yet they make their home in the crags;
27locusts[s] have no king,
yet they advance together in ranks; 28a lizard can be caught with the hand,
yet it is found in kings' palaces.

29"There are three things that are stately in their stride,
four that move with stately bearing:
30a lion, mighty among beasts,
who retreats before nothing; 31a strutting rooster, a he-goat, and a king with his army around him.[e]

32"If you have played the fool and exalted yourself,
or if you have planned evil,
clap your hand over your mouth![t] 33For as churning the milk produces butter,
and as twisting the nose produces
blood,
so stirring up anger produces strife."

Sayings of King Lemuel

31 The sayings[u] of King Lemuel—an oracle[f] his mother taught him:

2"O my son, O son of my womb,
O son of my vows,[g][v] 3do not spend your strength on women,
your vigor on those who ruin
kings.[w]

4"It is not for kings, O Lemuel—not for kings to drink wine,[x]
not for rulers to crave beer, 5lest they drink[y] and forget what the law decrees,[z]
and deprive all the oppressed of their rights.
6Give beer to those who are perishing, wine[a] to those who are in anguish;
7let them drink[b] and forget their poverty

30:18–19 It is difficult to understand the four "ways" because there are no tracks that can be readily followed.
30:19 way of an eagle. Soaring and swooping majestically (cf. Job 39:27; Jer 48:40; 49:22). way of a man with a maiden. Probably a reference to the mystery of courting and how it leads to consummation.
30:20 adulteress. See 2:16 and note. She eats and wipes her mouth. Making love is compared to eating food also in 9:17 (see note there; see also 7:18 and note).
30:22 servant who becomes king. See 19:10 and note.
30:23 unloved woman who is married. Probably one of several wives, who is miserable because her husband does not love her (cf. Leah in Ge 29:31–32). maidservant who displaces her mistress. Perhaps because she was able to bear a child, whereas the wife was barren (cf. Hagar and Sarah in Ge 16:1–6).
30:26 in the crags. Which provide a refuge for them (see Ps 104:18).
30:27 locusts have no king. Cf. 6:7. advance together in ranks. Locusts are portrayed as a mighty army in Joel 2:3–9.
30:28 found in kings' palaces. Lizards climb stone walls easily.
30:30 lion, mighty among beasts. See 2Sa 1:23; Mic 5:8.
30:31 he-goat. Goats were used to lead flocks of sheep (see Jer 50:8; Da 8:5).
30:32 exalted yourself. Pride is condemned in 8:13; 11:2; 16:18. planned evil. Cf. 6:14; 16:27. clap your hand over your mouth. Stop your plotting immediately (cf. Job 21:5; 40:4).
30:33 stirring up anger produces strife. See notes on 6:14; 15:1; see also 29:22.
31:1–9 This brief section is also of non-Israelite origin. King Lemuel is otherwise unknown.
31:1 oracle. See note on 30:1. his mother. This entire chapter emphasizes the role and significance of wise women. The queen mother was an influential figure (see 1Ki 1:11–13; 15:13).
31:2 son of my vows. Hannah made a vow as she prayed for a son (1Sa 1:11). vows. See 20:25 and note.
31:3 your strength on women. A warning against a large harem and sexual immorality (see 5:9–11 and notes; 1Ki 11:1; Ne 13:26).
31:4 It is not for kings . . . to drink wine. Woe to the land whose rulers are drunkards (Ecc 10:16–17; see 20:1 and note; Hos 7:5).
31:5 deprive all the oppressed of their rights. See 30:14 and note; see also 17:15; Isa 5:23; 10:2.
31:7 let them drink and forget. Contrast v. 5: "lest they drink."

and remember their misery no more.

8"Speak[c] up for those who cannot speak for themselves, for the rights of all who are destitute.
9Speak up and judge fairly;
defend the rights of the poor and needy."[d]

Epilogue: The Wife of Noble Character

10[h]A wife of noble character[e] who can find?[f]
She is worth far more than rubies.
11Her husband[g] has full confidence in her and lacks nothing of value.[h] 12She brings him good, not harm,
all the days of her life.
13She selects wool and flax and works with eager hands.[i] 14She is like the merchant ships, bringing her food from afar.
15She gets up while it is still dark;
she provides food for her family and portions for her servant girls.
16She considers a field and buys it;
out of her earnings she plants a vineyard.
17She sets about her work vigorously;
her arms are strong for her tasks.
18She sees that her trading is profitable,
and her lamp does not go out at night.
19In her hand she holds the distaff and grasps the spindle with her fingers.
20She opens her arms to the poor and extends her hands to the needy.[j] 21When it snows, she has no fear for her household;
for all of them are clothed in scarlet.
22She makes coverings for her bed;
she is clothed in fine linen and purple.
23Her husband is respected at the city gate, where he takes his seat among the elders[k] of the land.
24She makes linen garments and sells them,
and supplies the merchants with sashes.
25She is clothed with strength and dignity;
she can laugh at the days to come.
26She speaks with wisdom,
and faithful instruction is on her tongue.[l] 27She watches over the affairs of her household and does not eat the bread of idleness.
28Her children arise and call her blessed;
her husband also, and he praises her: 29"Many women do noble things, but you surpass them all."

[h] 10 Verses 10-31 are an acrostic, each verse beginning with a successive letter of the Hebrew alphabet.

31:8–9 The king represents God as the defender of the poor and needy (see 16:10; Ps 82:3; cf. Lev 19:15; Job 29:12–17; Isa 1:17).

31:10–31 The epilogue: an acrostic poem (see NIV text note) praising the "wife of noble character" (v. 10). It corresponds to 1:1–7 (the prologue) as it describes a "woman who fears the LORD" (v. 30; see note on 1:7). Such a wife is almost a personification of wisdom. Like wisdom, she is "worth far more than rubies" (v. 10; 3:15; 8:11), and he who finds her "receives favor from the LORD" (8:35; 18:22). See Introduction: Literary Structure.

31:10 wife of noble character. Like Ruth (Ru 3:11). She is "her husband's crown" (12:4).

31:12 She brings him good. See 18:22; 19:14.

31:13 flax. Its fibers were made into linen (see vv. 19,22,24; cf. Isa 19:9).

31:14 like the merchant ships. She is an enterprising person (see v. 18).

31:15 She gets up while it is still dark. She is the opposite of the sluggard (see 6:9–10; 20:13). portions for her servant girls. See 27:27; Lk 12:42.

31:16 considers a field . . . plants a vineyard. She shows good judgment—unlike the sluggard, whose vineyard is overgrown with thorns and weeds (24:30–31).

31:17 sets about her work vigorously. See 10:4 and note.

31:18 her trading is profitable. Like wisdom, she is "worth far more than rubies" (v. 10; 3:15; 8:11). Wisdom "is more profitable than silver" (3:14).

31:19 distaff . . . spindle. Spinning thread was women's work.

31:20 opens her arms to the poor. See note on 14:21; see also 22:9; Job 31:16–20.

31:21 clothed in scarlet. Of high quality, probably made of wool (cf. 2Sa 1:24; Rev 18:16).

31:22 fine linen. Associated with nobility (see note on 7:16; see also Ge 41:42). purple. Linked with kings (Jdg 8:26; SS 3:10) or the rich (Lk 16:19; Rev 18:16).

31:23 at the city gate. The court (see note on 1:21).

31:24 linen garments. See Jdg 14:12–13; Isa 3:23. merchants. Cf. v. 18.

31:25 clothed with strength and dignity. See Isa 52:1; 1Ti 2:9–10. The opposite is to be "clothed with shame and disgrace" (Ps 35:26). she can laugh at the days to come. She is free of anxiety and worry (cf. Job 39:7).

31:26 faithful instruction. Given to her children and friends. She is a wise and loving counselor (see 1:8; 6:20).

31:28 blessed. That is, one who enjoys happy circumstances and from whom joy radiates to others. See Ge 30:13; Ps 72:17; SS 6:9; Mal 3:12; cf. Ru 4:14–15.

31:29 do noble things. See Isa 32:8.

30 Charm is deceptive, and beauty is fleeting;
but a woman who fears the LORD is to be praised.

31:31 m Pr 11:16

31 Give her the reward she has earned,
and let her works bring her praise[m] at the city gate.

31:30 Charm is deceptive. Cf. 5:3. beauty is fleeting. Cf. Job 14:2; 1Pe 3:3–5. who fears the LORD. See note on 1:7.

31:31 reward she has earned. See 12:14 and note. bring her praise. Honor comes through "humility and the fear of the LORD" (22:4). at the city gate. See v. 23; see also note on 1:21.

Ecclesiastes

Author and Date

No time period or writer's name is mentioned in the book, but several passages strongly suggest that King Solomon is the author (1:1,12,16; 2:4–9; 7:26–29; 12:9; cf. 1Ki 2:9; 3:12; 4:29–34; 5:12; 10:1–8). On the other hand, the writer's title ("Teacher," Hebrew qoheleth; see note on 1:1), his unique style of Hebrew and his attitude toward rulers (suggesting that of a subject rather than a monarch—see, e.g., 4:1–2; 5:8–9; 8:2–4; 10:20) may point to another person and a later period.

Purpose and Method

With his life largely behind him, the author takes stock of the world as he has experienced it between the horizons of birth and death—the latter a horizon beyond which man cannot see. The world is seen as being full of enigmas, the greatest of which is man himself.

From the perspective of his own understanding, the Teacher takes measure of man, examining his capabilities. He discovers that human wisdom, even that of a godly person, has limits (1:13,16–18; 7:24; 8:16–17). It cannot find out the larger purposes of God or the ultimate meaning of man's existence.

As the author looks about at the human enterprise, he sees man in mad pursuit of one thing and then another—laboring as if he could master the world, lay bare its secrets, change its fundamental structures, break through the bounds of human limitations and master his own destiny. He sees man vainly pursuing hopes and expectations that in reality are "meaningless, a chasing after the wind" (1:14; 2:11,17,26; 4:4,16; 6:9; cf. 1:17; 4:6).

But faith teaches him that God has ordered all things according to his own purposes (3:1–15; 5:19; 6:1–2; 9:1) and that man's role is to accept these, including his own limitations, as God's appointments. Man, therefore, should be patient and enjoy life as God gives it. He should know his own limitations and not vex himself with unrealistic expectations. He should be prudent in everything, living carefully before God and the king and, above all, fearing God and keeping his commandments (12:13).

Teaching

Life not centered on God is purposeless and meaningless. Without him, nothing else can satisfy (2:25). With him, all of life and his other good gifts are to be gratefully received (see Jas 1:17) and used and enjoyed to the full (2:26; 11:8). The book contains the philosophical and theological reflections of an old man (12:1–7), most of whose life was meaningless because he had not himself relied on God as he should have.

Outline

I. Author (1:1)
II. Theme: The meaninglessness of man's efforts on earth apart from God (1:2)
III. Introduction: The profitlessness of working to accumulate things to achieve happiness (1:3–11)

IV. Discourse, Part 1: In spite of life's apparent enigmas and meaninglessness, it is to be enjoyed as a gift from God (1:12—11:6)
V. Discourse, Part 2: Since old age and death will soon come, man should enjoy life in his youth, remembering that God will judge (11:7—12:7)
VI. Theme Repeated (12:8)
VII. Conclusion: Reverently trust in and obey God (12:9–14)

Everything Is Meaningless

1 The words of the Teacher,[aa] son of David, king in Jerusalem:[b]

2"Meaningless! Meaningless!" says the Teacher.
"Utterly meaningless!
Everything is meaningless."[c]

3What does man gain from all his labor at which he toils under the sun?[d] 4Generations come and generations go, but the earth remains forever.[e] 5The sun rises and the sun sets, and hurries back to where it rises.[f] 6The wind blows to the south and turns to the north;
round and round it goes,
ever returning on its course.
7All streams flow into the sea,
yet the sea is never full.
To the place the streams come from,
there they return again.[g] 8All things are wearisome, more than one can say.
The eye never has enough of seeing,[h]
nor the ear its fill of hearing.
9What has been will be again, what has been done will be done again;[i]
there is nothing new under the sun.
10Is there anything of which one can say,
"Look! This is something new"?
It was here already, long ago;
it was here before our time.
11There is no remembrance of men of old,[j] and even those who are yet to come will not be remembered by those who follow.[k]

Wisdom Is Meaningless

12I, the Teacher,[l] was king over Israel in Jerusalem.[m] 13I devoted myself to study and to explore by wisdom all that is done under heaven.[n] What a heavy burden God has laid on men![o] 14I have seen all the things that are done under the sun; all of them are meaningless, a chasing after the wind.[p]

15What is twisted cannot be straightened;[q]
what is lacking cannot be counted.

16I thought to myself, "Look, I have grown and increased in wisdom more than anyone who has ruled over Jerusalem before me;[r] I have experienced much of wisdom and knowledge." 17Then I applied myself to the understanding of wisdom,[s] and also of madness and folly,[t] but I learned that this, too, is a chasing after the wind.

[aa] 1 Or leader of the assembly; also in verses 2 and 12

1:1 Teacher. The teacher of wisdom (12:9). The Hebrew term for "Teacher" (qoheleth) is related to that for "assembly" (see NIV text note; Ex 16:3; Nu 16:3). Perhaps the Teacher, whose work is described in 12:9–10, also held an office in the assembly. The Septuagint (the Greek translation of the OT) word for "Teacher" is ekklesiastes, from which most English titles of the book are taken, and from which such English words as "ecclesiastical" are derived. son of David. Suggests Solomon, though his name occurs nowhere in the book. The Hebrew word for "son" can refer to a descendant (even many generations removed)—or even to someone who follows in the footsteps of another (see Ge 4:21; see also Introduction: Author and Date).

1:2 Briefly states the author's theme (see 12:8). Meaningless! This key term occurs about 35 times in the book and only once elsewhere (Job 27:12). The Hebrew for it originally meant "breath" (see Ps 39:5,11; 62:9; 144:4). The basic thrust of Ecclesiastes is that all of life is meaningless, useless, hollow, futile and vain if it is not rightly related to God. Only when based on God and his word is life worthwhile. Everything. See v. 8; whatever man undertakes apart from God.

1:3–11 In this section the author elaborates his theme that human effort appears to be without benefit or purpose.

1:3 Jesus expands on this question in Mk 8:36–38. under the sun. Another key expression (used 29 times), which refers to this present world and the limits of what it offers. "Under heaven," though it occurs less frequently (v. 13; 2:3; 3:1), is used synonymously.

1:4 earth remains forever. By contrast, man's life is fleeting.

1:8 All things. Everything mentioned in vv. 4–7 (see note on v. 2).

1:10 something new. Many things seem to be new simply because the past is easily and quickly forgotten. The old ways reappear in new guises.

1:12–18 Having set forth his theme that all human striving seems futile (see especially vv. 3,11, which frame the section), the Teacher shows that both human endeavor (vv. 12–15; cf. 2:1–11) and the pursuit of human wisdom (vv. 16–18; cf. 2:12–17) are futile and meaningless.

1:12 I. The author shifts to the first person, returning to the third person only in the conclusion (12:9–14).

1:13 God. The only Hebrew word the writer uses for God is Elohim (used almost 30 times), which emphasizes his absolute sovereignty. He does not use the covenant name, Yahweh (translated "LORD"; see note on Ex 3:15).

1:14 chasing after the wind. A graphic illustration of futility and meaninglessness (see Introduction: Purpose and Method). These words are used nine times in the first half of the discourse (here; v. 17; 2:11,17,26; 4:4,6,16; 6:9; see also 5:16).

1:15 See 7:13 and note. Because of the unalterableness of events, human effort is meaningless and hopeless. We should therefore learn to happily accept things the way they are and to accept our divinely appointed lot in life, as the Teacher later counsels.

1:16 anyone who has ruled over Jerusalem before me. See 2:7,9. This does not necessarily exclude Solomon as the Teacher. The reference could include kings prior to David, such as Melchizedek (Ge 14:18), Adoni-Zedek (Jos 10:1) and Abdi-Khepa (mentioned in the Amarna letters from Egypt; see chart on "Ancient Texts Relating to the OT," p. xxii).

18For with much wisdom comes much sorrow;[u]
the more knowledge, the more grief.[v]

Pleasures Are Meaningless

2 I thought in my heart, "Come now, I will test you with pleasure[w] to find out what is good." But that also proved to be meaningless. 2"Laughter,"[x] I said,
"is foolish. And what does pleasure accomplish?" 3I tried cheering myself with wine,[y] and embracing folly[z]—my mind still guiding me with wisdom. I wanted to see what was worthwhile for men to do under heaven during the few days of their lives.

4I undertook great projects: I built houses for myself[a] and planted vineyards.[b] 5I made gardens and parks and planted all kinds of fruit trees in them. 6I made reservoirs to water groves of flourishing trees. 7I bought male and female slaves and had other slaves[c] who were born in my house. I also owned more herds and flocks than anyone in Jerusalem before me. 8I amassed silver and gold[d] for myself, and the treasure of kings and provinces.[e] I acquired men and women singers,[f] and a harem[b] as well—the delights of the heart of man. 9I became greater by far than anyone in Jerusalem[g] before me.[h] In all this my wisdom stayed with me.

10I denied myself nothing my eyes desired;
I refused my heart no pleasure.
My heart took delight in all my work,
and this was the reward for all my labor.
11Yet when I surveyed all that my hands had done
and what I had toiled to achieve, everything was meaningless, a chasing after the wind;[i] nothing was gained under the sun.[j]

Wisdom and Folly Are Meaningless

12Then I turned my thoughts to consider wisdom,
and also madness and folly.[k]
What more can the king's successor do than what has already been done?[l] 13I saw that wisdom[m] is better than folly,[n]
just as light is better than darkness.
14The wise man has eyes in his head, while the fool walks in the
darkness;
but I came to realize that the same fate overtakes them both.[o]

15Then I thought in my heart,

"The fate of the fool will overtake me also.
What then do I gain by being wise?"[p]
I said in my heart,
"This too is meaningless."
16For the wise man, like the fool, will not be long remembered;[q]
in days to come both will be forgotten.[r]
Like the fool, the wise man too must die![s]

Toil Is Meaningless

17So I hated life, because the work that is done under the sun was grievous to me. All of it is meaningless, a chasing after the wind.[t] 18I hated all the things I had toiled for under the sun, because I must leave them to the one who comes after me.[u] 19And who knows whether he will be a wise man or a fool?[v] Yet he will have control over all the work into which I have poured my effort and skill under the sun. This too is meaningless.
20So my heart began to despair over all my toilsome labor under the sun. 21For a [b] 8 The meaning of the Hebrew for this phrase is uncertain.

1:18 Humanistic wisdom—wisdom without God—leads to grief and sorrow.

2:1–11 The Teacher now shows that mere pleasure cannot give meaning or satisfaction (see 1:12–15; see also note on 1:12–18).

2:1 I thought in my heart. See v. 15; 1:16.

2:3 my mind still guiding me with wisdom. From first to last (v. 9) the author used wisdom to discover the good (v. 1) and the worthwhile (v. 3).

2:4–9 See 1Ki 4–11, which tells of Solomon's splendor and of his wives.

2:8 harem. The Hebrew for this word occurs only here in Scripture (see NIV text note). The meaning seems to be indicated in an early Egyptian letter that uses a similar Canaanite term for concubines. It fits the situation of Solomon, who had 300 concubines in addition to 700 wives (1Ki 11:3).

2:10 work . . . labor. A key thought in Ecclesiastes is the meaninglessness (v. 11), apart from God, of toil, labor, work—words that occur more than 25 times.

2:12–17 The Teacher returns to the folly of trying to find satisfaction in merely human wisdom (see 1:16–18; see also note on 1:12–18).

2:13 wisdom is better than folly. Even secular wisdom is better than folly, but in the end it is of no value, since "the same fate overtakes them both" (i.e., overtakes both the wise believer and the foolish unbeliever, v. 14; see Ps 49:10).

2:14 eyes. Understanding.

2:16 People tend to soon forget even the greatest leaders and heroes (see 1:11).

2:18 leave them to the one who comes after me. See v. 21; Ps 39:6; Lk 12:20.

2:19 who knows . . . ? For a more searching "Who knows . . . ?" for secular man see 3:21.

man may do his work with wisdom, knowledge and skill, and then he must leave all he owns to someone who has not worked for it. This too is meaningless and a great misfortune. 22What does a man get for all the toil and anxious striving with which he labors under the sun?[w] 23All his days his work is pain and grief;[x] even at night his mind does not rest.[y] This too is meaningless.

24A man can do nothing better than to eat and drink[z] and find satisfaction in his work.[a] This too, I see, is from the hand of God,[b] 25for without him, who can eat or find enjoyment?[c] 26To the man who pleases him, God gives wisdom,[d] knowledge and happiness, but to the sinner he gives the task of gathering and storing up wealth[e] to hand it over to the one who pleases God.[f] This too is meaningless, a chasing after the wind.

A Time for Everything

3 There is a time[g] for everything, and a season for every activity
under heaven:

2 a time to be born and a time to die,
a time to plant and a time to uproot,[h]
3 a time to kill[i] and a time to heal, a time to tear down and a time to build,
4 a time to weep and a time to laugh,
a time to mourn and a time to dance,
5 a time to scatter stones and a time to gather them,
a time to embrace and a time to refrain,
6 a time to search and a time to give up,
a time to keep and a time to throw away,
7 a time to tear and a time to mend, a time to be silent[j] and a time to
speak,
8 a time to love and a time to hate,
a time for war and a time for peace.

9What does the worker gain from his toil?[k] 10I have seen the burden God has laid on men.[l] 11He has made everything beautiful in its time.[m] He has also set eternity in the hearts of men; yet they cannot fathom[n] what God has done from beginning to end.[o] 12I know that there is nothing better for men than to be happy and do good while they live. 13That everyone may eat and drink,[p] and find satisfaction[q] in all his toil—this is the gift of God.[r] 14I know that everything God does will endure forever; nothing can be added to it and nothing taken from it. God does it so that men will revere him.[s]

15Whatever is has already been,[t] and what will be has been before;[u] and God will call the past to account.[c]

16And I saw something else under the sun:

In the place of judgment—wickedness
was there,
in the place of justice—wickedness
was there.

17I thought in my heart,

"God will bring to judgment[v]
both the righteous and the wicked, for there will be a time for every activity,
a time for every deed."[w]

18I also thought, "As for men, God tests them so that they may see that they are like the animals.[x] 19Man's fate[y] is like that of the animals; the same fate awaits them both: As one dies, so dies the other. All have the same breath[d]; man has no advantage over the animal. Everything is meaningless. 20All go to the same place;

[c] 15 Or God calls back the past [d] 19 Or spirit

2:24–25 The heart of Ecclesiastes, a theme repeated in 3:12–13,22; 5:18–20; 8:15; 9:7 and climaxed in 12:13. Only in God does life have meaning and true pleasure. Without him nothing satisfies, but with him we find satisfaction and enjoyment. True pleasure comes only when we acknowledge and revere God (12:13).

2:26 but to the sinner. For exceptions to this general principle see 8:14; Ps 73:1–12.

3:1–22 The Teacher shows that we are subject to times and changes over which we have little or no control, and contrasts this state with God's eternity and sovereignty. God sovereignly predetermines all of life's activities (e.g., the 14 opposites of vv. 2–8).

3:1 Cf. 8:6.

3:2 a time. Divinely appointed (see Ps 31:15; Pr 16:1–9).

3:11 The chapter summarized: God's beautiful but tantalizing world is too big for us, yet its satisfactions are too small. Since we were made for eternity, the things of time cannot fully and permanently satisfy.

3:12–13 A pointer to the book's conclusion. God's people find meaning in life when they cheerfully accept it from the hand of God.

3:14 forever. In this word the "eternity" of v. 11 becomes clearer. revere. Sums up the message of the book (cf. 12:13).

3:15 See 1:9.

3:17 judgment. God's true judgments are the answer to human cynicism about man's injustices. "The past" (v. 15) is not meaningless (as people dismiss it as being, 1:11), and God will override the perverse judgments (v. 16) of men (see 12:14).

3:18 like the animals. Man "under the sun" (man on his own) is as mortal as any animal; but, unlike them, he must be made to see this condition and, through his dim awareness of eternity (v. 11), be distressed.

3:19 same breath. See Ps 104:27–30.

3:20 to the same place. Not heaven or hell but man's observable destination, which is a return to all come from dust, and to dust all return.[z] [21]Who knows if the spirit of man rises upward[a] and if the spirit of the animal[e] goes down into the earth?"

[22]So I saw that there is nothing better for a man than to enjoy his work,[b] because that is his lot.[c] For who can bring him to see what will happen after him?

Oppression, Toil, Friendlessness

4 Again I looked and saw all the oppression[d] that was taking place under the sun:

I saw the tears of the oppressed—
and they have no comforter;
power was on the side of their oppressors—
and they have no comforter.[e] [2]And I declared that the dead,[f] who had already died,
are happier than the living,
who are still alive.[g] [3]But better than both is he who has not yet been,[h] who has not seen the evil that is done under the sun.[i]

[4]And I saw that all labor and all achievement spring from man's envy of his neighbor. This too is meaningless, a chasing after the wind.[j]

[5]The fool folds his hands[k] and ruins himself.
[6]Better one handful with tranquillity than two handfuls with toil[l] and chasing after the wind.

[7]Again I saw something meaningless under the sun:

[8]There was a man all alone;
he had neither son nor brother.
There was no end to his toil,
yet his eyes were not content[m] with his wealth.
"For whom am I toiling," he asked,
"and why am I depriving myself of enjoyment?"
This too is meaningless—
a miserable business!

[9]Two are better than one,
because they have a good return for their work:
[10]If one falls down,
his friend can help him up.
But pity the man who falls and has no one to help him up!
[11]Also, if two lie down together, they will keep warm.
But how can one keep warm alone?
[12]Though one may be overpowered,
two can defend themselves.
A cord of three strands is not quickly broken.

Advancement Is Meaningless

[13]Better a poor but wise youth than an old but foolish king who no longer knows how to take warning. [14]The youth may have come from prison to the kingship, or he may have been born in poverty within his kingdom. [15]I saw that all who lived and walked under the sun followed the youth, the king's successor. [16]There was no end to all the people who were before them. But those who came later were not pleased with the successor. This too is meaningless, a chasing after the wind.

Stand in Awe of God

5 Guard your steps when you go to the house of God. Go near to listen rather than to offer the sacrifice of fools, who do not know that they do wrong.

[2]Do not be quick with your mouth, do not be hasty in your heart to utter anything before God.[n] dust, just like the animals. Death is the great leveler of all living things (see Ge 3:19; Ps 103:14).

3:21 Who knows . . . ? See 2:19 and note; cf. 12:7. Man on his own cannot know; he can only guess. The answer, revealed at first in glimpses (e.g., Ps 16:9–11; 49:15; 73:23–26; Isa 26:19; Da 12:2–3), was brought fully "to light through the gospel" (2Ti 1:10).

3:22 nothing better. As an end in itself, work too is meaningless (see 4:4; 9:9). Only receiving it as a gift from God (v. 13) gives it enduring worth (v. 14).

4:1 oppression. A theme already touched on (3:16) and another ingredient in the human tragedy. To find life meaningless is sad enough, but to taste its cruelty is bitter beyond words.

4:2 happier than the living. See Job 3; Jer 20:14–18. For faith that sees a bigger picture see Ro 8:35–39.

4:4–6 Neither hard work (motivated by envy) nor idleness brings happiness, meaning or fulfillment.

4:4 all labor and all achievement. This too is meaningless unless done with God's blessing (see 3:13; cf. the selfless success of Joseph, Ge 39).

4:5 The ruin of the idle person is vividly pictured in 10:18; Pr 6:6–11; 24:30–34.

4:6 tranquillity. See Pr 30:7–9. Paul says the last word on this subject (Php 4:11–13).

4:7–12 The loner, too, has a meaningless and difficult life if he is an unbeliever.

4:12 two . . . three. A climactic construction.

4:13–16 Advancement without God is another example of the meaninglessness of secularism.

5:1–7 The theme of this section is the meaninglessness of superficial religion, as reflected in making rash vows.

5:1 Guard your steps. Think about what you ought to say and do. listen. Obey. 1Sa 15:22 uses the same Hebrew verb and makes the same contrast between real and superficial worship. sacrifice. Probably connected with the vow of vv. 4–6.

5:2 quick with your mouth. As in a rash vow.

and you are on earth,
so let your words be few.[o] 3As a dream[p] comes when there are many cares, so the speech of a fool when there are many words.[q]

4When you make a vow to God, do not delay in fulfilling it.[r] He has no pleasure in fools; fulfill your vow.[s] 5It is better not to vow than to make a vow and not fulfill it.[t] 6Do not let your mouth lead you into sin. And do not protest to the [temple] messenger, "My vow was a mistake." Why should God be angry at what you say and destroy the work of your hands? 7Much dreaming and many words are meaningless. Therefore stand in awe of God.[u]

Riches Are Meaningless

8If you see the poor oppressed[v] in a district, and justice and rights denied, do not be surprised at such things; for one official is eyed by a higher one, and over them both are others higher still. 9The increase from the land is taken by all; the king himself profits from the fields.

10Whoever loves money never has money enough;
whoever loves wealth is never satisfied with his income.
This too is meaningless.

11As goods increase,
so do those who consume them.
And what benefit are they to the owner except to feast his eyes on them?

12The sleep of a laborer is sweet, whether he eats little or much,
but the abundance of a rich man permits him no sleep.[w]

13I have seen a grievous evil under the sun:[x] wealth hoarded to the harm of its owner, 14 or wealth lost through some misfortune,

so that when he has a son
there is nothing left for him.
15Naked a man comes from his mother's womb, and as he comes, so he departs.[y]
He takes nothing from his labor[z] that he can carry in his hand.[a]

16This too is a grievous evil:

As a man comes, so he departs,
and what does he gain,
since he toils for the wind?[b] 17All his days he eats in darkness, with great frustration, affliction and anger.

18Then I realized that it is good and proper for a man to eat and drink,[c] and to find satisfaction in his toilsome labor[d] under the sun during the few days of life God has given him—for this is his lot. 19Moreover, when God gives any man wealth and possessions,[e] and enables him to enjoy them,[f] to accept his lot[g] and be happy in his work—this is a gift of God.[h] 20He seldom reflects on the days of his life, because God keeps him occupied with gladness of heart.[i]

6 I have seen another evil under the sun, and it weighs heavily on men:
2God gives a man wealth, possessions and honor, so that he lacks nothing his heart desires, but God does not enable him to enjoy them,[j] and a stranger enjoys them instead. This is meaningless, a grievous evil.[k]

3A man may have a hundred children and live many years; yet no matter how long he lives, if he cannot enjoy his prosperity and does not receive proper burial, I say that a stillborn[l] child is better off than he.[m] 4It comes without meaning, it departs in darkness, and in darkness its name is shrouded. 5Though it never saw the sun or knew anything, it has more rest than does that man— 6even if he lives a thousand years twice over but

5:3 A proverb. In the context it suggests that in the midst of cares a person dreams of bliss (as a starving man dreams of a banquet), and in anticipation may offer rash vows ("many words") to God (see v. 7).

5:4 vow. See Dt 23:21–23; 1Sa 1:11, 24–28. no pleasure in fools. In Scripture the fool is not one who cannot learn, but one who refuses to learn (see Pr 1:20–27; see also NIV text note on Pr 1:7).

5:6 messenger. See Mal 2:7.

5:8 do not be surprised. For other frank appraisals of human society see 4:1–3. This teacher, like Jesus, who "knew what was in a man" (Jn 2:25), had no illusions or utopian schemes.

5:9 king ... profits from the fields. See note on Am 7:1.

5:10 Greater wealth does not bring satisfaction (see 1Ti 6:9–10).

5:11–12 Greater wealth brings greater anxiety.

5:13 harm. Including worry about his possessions.

5:15 He takes nothing. See Lk 12:14–21.

5:18–20 See note on 2:24–25.

6:2–3,6 enjoy. Comparing v. 2 with 5:19 demonstrates that the ability to enjoy God's blessings is a bonus—a gift of God, not a right or guarantee. God calls the person who forgets this truth a fool (Lk 12:20).

6:3 does not receive proper burial. Dies unlamented or dishonored, like King Jehoiakim (Jer 22:18–19). stillborn child. For the secularist, life is a pointless journey to extinction, to which being stillborn is the quickest and easiest route (cf. Job 3:16; Ps 58:8).

6:6 to the same place. Still talking in terms of what we can observe (that all men die), not of what lies beyond death (see v. 12; 3:21).

fails to enjoy his prosperity. Do not all go to the same place?[n]

7All man's efforts are for his mouth, yet his appetite is never satisfied.[o] 8What advantage has a wise man over a fool?[p]
What does a poor man gain by knowing how to conduct himself before others?
9Better what the eye sees than the roving of the appetite.
This too is meaningless,
a chasing after the wind.[q]

10Whatever exists has already been named,[r]
and what man is has been known;
no man can contend
with one who is stronger than he.
11The more the words,
the less the meaning,
and how does that profit anyone?

12For who knows what is good for a man in life, during the few and meaningless days[s] he passes through like a shadow?[t] Who can tell him what will happen under the sun after he is gone?

Wisdom

7 A good name is better than fine perfume,[u]
and the day of death better than the day of birth.[v] 2It is better to go to a house of mourning
than to go to a house of feasting, for death[w] is the destiny[x] of every man;
the living should take this to heart.
3Sorrow is better than laughter,[y] because a sad face is good for the heart.
4The heart of the wise is in the house
of mourning,
but the heart of fools is in the house of pleasure.[z] 5It is better to heed a wise man's rebuke[a] than to listen to the song of fools.
6Like the crackling of thorns[b] under the pot,
so is the laughter[c] of fools.
This too is meaningless.

7Extortion turns a wise man into a fool,
and a bribe[d] corrupts the heart.

8The end of a matter is better than its beginning,
and patience[e] is better than pride.
9Do not be quickly provoked[f] in your spirit,
for anger resides in the lap of fools.[g]

10Do not say, "Why were the old days[h] better than these?"
For it is not wise to ask such questions.

11Wisdom, like an inheritance, is a good thing[i]
and benefits those who see the sun.[j] 12Wisdom is a shelter
as money is a shelter, but the advantage of knowledge is this:
that wisdom preserves the life of its possessor.

13Consider what God has done:[k]

Who can straighten
what he has made crooked?[l] 14When times are good, be happy;
but when times are bad, consider:
God has made the one
as well as the other.[m]
Therefore, a man cannot discover anything about his future.

15In this meaningless life[n] of mine I have seen both of these:

a righteous man perishing in his righteousness,
and a wicked man living long in his wickedness.[o] 16Do not be overrighteous, neither be overwise—
why destroy yourself?

6:7–12 In confronting complacency, the Teacher gives several causes for concern: the short-lived (v. 7), debatable (v. 8) and elusive (v. 9) rewards of life; the limits of our creativity, power and wisdom (vv. 10–11); and the unreliability of merely human values and predictions (v. 12).

6:10 named. Predetermined by God. known. Foreknown by God. one who is stronger. God.

6:12 like a shadow. See 1Ch 29:15.

7:1 day of death better. The Christian has ample reason to say this (2Co 5:1–10; Php 1:21–23). But the Teacher's point is valid, as explained in vv. 2–6, namely, that happy times generally teach us less than hard times.

7:7 bribe. See Mt 28:11–15; Lk 22:4–6.

7:9 anger. See, e.g., Pr 16:32; 17:14; 1Co 13:4–5.

7:12 preserves the life. The Hebrew for this expression can also mean "gives life" or "renews life" (see Pr 3:13–18; 13:14).

7:13 Who can straighten . . . ? Not fatalism, but a reminder of who is God. Man cannot change what God determines (see note on 1:15).

7:14 God has made the one [bad times] as well as the other [good times]. Cf. Ro 8:28–29.

7:15 righteous man perishing. Righteousness is no sure protection against hard times or an early death.

7:16 not . . . overrighteous . . . overwise. If true righteousness and wisdom do not necessarily prevent ruin, then extreme, legalistic righteousness and wisdom will surely not help.

17 Do not be overwicked, and do not be a fool—
why die before your time?[p] 18 It is good to grasp the one and not let go of the other.
The man who fears God[q] will avoid all ⌊extremes⌋.[f]

19 Wisdom[r] makes one wise man more powerful[s]
than ten rulers in a city.

20 There is not a righteous man[t] on earth
who does what is right and never sins.[u]

21 Do not pay attention to every word people say,
or you[v] may hear your servant
cursing you—22 for you know in your heart that many times you yourself have cursed others.

23 All this I tested by wisdom and I said,

"I am determined to be wise"[w]—
but this was beyond me.
24 Whatever wisdom may be,
it is far off and most profound—who can discover it?[x] 25 So I turned my mind to understand, to investigate and to search out wisdom and the scheme of things[y]
and to understand the stupidity of wickedness
and the madness of folly.[z]

26 I find more bitter than death the woman who is a snare,[a] whose heart is a trap
and whose hands are chains.
The man who pleases God will escape her,
but the sinner she will ensnare.[b]

27 "Look," says the Teacher,[g][c] "this is what I have discovered:

"Adding one thing to another to discover the scheme of things—
28 while I was still searching but not finding—
I found one ⌊upright⌋ man among a thousand,
but not one ⌊upright⌋ woman[d]
among them all.
29 This only have I found:
God made mankind upright, but men have gone in search of many schemes."

8 Who is like the wise man?
Who knows the explanation of
things?
Wisdom brightens a man's face and changes its hard appearance.

Obey the King

2 Obey the king's command, I say, because you took an oath before God. 3 Do not be in a hurry to leave the king's presence.[e] Do not stand up for a bad cause, for he will do whatever he pleases. 4 Since a king's word is supreme, who can say to him, "What are you doing?[f]"

5 Whoever obeys his command will come to no harm, and the wise heart will know the proper time and procedure.
6 For there is a proper time and procedure for every matter,[g] though a man's misery weighs heavily upon him.

7 Since no man knows the future,
who can tell him what is to come?
8 No man has power over the wind to contain it[h];
so no one has power over the day
of his death.
As no one is discharged in time of
war,
so wickedness will not release those who practice it.

9 All this I saw, as I applied my mind to everything done under the sun. There is a time when a man lords it over others to his own[i] hurt. 10 Then too, I saw the wicked buried[h]—those who used to come and go from the holy place and re-

7:17 not ... overwicked. Extreme wickedness is even more foolhardy.

7:18 the one ... the other. The God-fearing person will avoid both extremes (legalism and libertinism) and lead a balanced—truly righteous and wise—life.

7:20 not a righteous man on earth. A sober Biblical truth (see Ro 3:10–20).

7:24 See Job 28:12–28; 1Co 2:9–16.

7:26 See Pr 7:6–27.

7:27 Teacher. See note on 1:1. Adding one thing to another to discover the scheme of things. This inductive method can never be complete, nor can we reliably interpret all that we manage to observe (3:11b). Human wisdom and understanding must always yield to revealed truth.

7:29 God made mankind upright, but. See Ge 3:1–6; Ro 5:12.

8:2 king's command. Both principle (v. 2) and prudence (vv. 3–6) set limits on our freedom. took an oath. Of loyalty to the king (as seen, e.g., in 1Ch 29:24).

8:4 who can say ..., "What are you doing?" Cf. Isa 45:9; Ro 9:20.

8:6 a man's misery. One should put the king's command above his own misery.

8:7–8 no man knows .... No man has power. See Ps 31:15; 2Cor 5:1–10; Jas 4:13–16.

8:10 the wicked buried. In this context it implies undeserved respect (see note on 6:3; cf. Job 21:28–33; Lk 16:22).

ceive praise[j] in the city where they did this. This too is meaningless.

11When the sentence for a crime is not quickly carried out, the hearts of the people are filled with schemes to do wrong. 12Although a wicked man commits a hundred crimes and still lives a long time, I know that it will go better[i] with God-fearing men,[j] who are reverent before God.[k] 13Yet because the wicked do not fear God,[l] it will not go well with them, and their days[m] will not lengthen like a shadow.

14There is something else meaningless that occurs on earth: righteous men who get what the wicked deserve, and wicked men who get what the righteous deserve.[n] This too, I say, is meaningless.[o] 15So I commend the enjoyment of life[p], because nothing is better for a man under the sun than to eat and drink[q] and be glad.[r] Then joy will accompany him in his work all the days of the life God has given him under the sun.

16When I applied my mind to know wisdom[s] and to observe man's labor on earth[t]—his eyes not seeing sleep day or night— 17then I saw all that God has done.[u] No one can comprehend what goes on under the sun. Despite all his efforts to search it out, man cannot discover its meaning. Even if a wise man claims he knows, he cannot really comprehend it.[v]

A Common Destiny for All

9 So I reflected on all this and concluded that the righteous and the wise and what they do are in God's hands, but no man knows whether love or hate awaits him.[w] 2All share a common destiny—the righteous and the wicked, the good and the bad,[k] the clean and the unclean, those who offer sacrifices and those who do not.

As it is with the good man,
so with the sinner;
as it is with those who take oaths,
so with those who are afraid to take them.[x]

3This is the evil in everything that happens under the sun: The same destiny overtakes all.[y] The hearts of men, moreover, are full of evil and there is madness in their hearts while they live,[z] and afterward they join the dead.[a] 4Anyone who is among the living has hope[l]—even a live dog is better off than a dead lion!

5For the living know that they will die, but the dead know nothing;[b]
they have no further reward, and even the memory of them[c] is forgotten.[d] 6Their love, their hate and their jealousy have long since vanished; never again will they have a part in anything that happens under the sun.[e]

7Go, eat your food with gladness, and drink your wine[f] with a joyful heart,[g] for it is now that God favors what you do. 8Always be clothed in white,[h] and always anoint your head with oil. 9Enjoy life with your wife,[i] whom you love, all the days of this meaningless life that God has given you under the sun—all your meaningless days. For this is your lot[j] in life and in your toilsome labor under the sun. 10Whatever[k] your hand finds to do, do it with all your might,[l] for in the grave,[m] where you are going, there is neither working nor planning nor knowledge nor wisdom.[n]

11I have seen something else under the sun:

The race is not to the swift or the battle to the strong,[o]

8:11 Delayed punishment tends to induce more wrongdoing.

8:12 I know. Here the Teacher speaks from mature faith, not as one "still searching but not finding" (7:28). For similar declarations see 3:17; 11:9; 12:14.

8:14 Job 21–24 enlarges on this; Ps 73 draws the sting of it; and Jn 5:28–29 gives the final explanation.

8:15 eat . . . drink . . . be glad. Spoken gratefully (see 5:19; 9:7; Dt 8). For such words spoken arrogantly see Lk 12:19–20; 1Co 15:32.

8:17 No one can comprehend. Dt 29:29 sums up what we are allowed and not allowed to know.

9:1 whether love or hate. The future is under God's control, and no one knows whether that future will be good or bad.

9:2 common destiny. Not only the wise and foolish (2:14), but also the good and the bad are seen leveled, in the sense noted at 3:20. For the Teacher's conviction (beyond mere observation) that God ultimately will see justice done see note on 8:12.

9:3 evil . . . evil. The apparently common destiny (both the righteous and the wicked die) encourages some people to sin.

9:5 no further reward. The dead have lost all opportunity in this life for enjoyment and reward from labor (see v. 6).

9:7–9 The Babylonian Epic of Gilgamesh contains a section (10.3.6–14) remarkably similar to this passage, illustrating the international flavor of ancient wisdom literature (see chart on "Ancient Texts Relating to the OT," p. xxii).

9:7 See note on 8:15.

9:10 Cf. Col 3:23.

9:11 time and chance. Success is uncertain—more evidence that man does not ultimately control events.

nor does food come to the wise[p] or wealth to the brilliant or favor to the learned;
but time and chance[q] happen to them all.[r]

[12]Moreover, no man knows when his hour will come:

As fish are caught in a cruel net,
or birds are taken in a snare,
so men are trapped by evil times[s] that fall unexpectedly upon them.[t]

Wisdom Better Than Folly

[13]I also saw under the sun this example of wisdom[u] that greatly impressed me: [14]There was once a small city with only a few people in it. And a powerful king came against it, surrounded it and built huge siegeworks against it. [15]Now there lived in that city a man poor but wise, and he saved the city by his wisdom. But nobody remembered that poor man.[v] [16]So I said, "Wisdom is better than strength." But the poor man's wisdom is despised, and his words are no longer heeded.[w]

[17]The quiet words of the wise are more to be heeded
than the shouts of a ruler of fools.
[18]Wisdom[x] is better than weapons of
war,
but one sinner destroys much good.

10 As dead flies give perfume a bad smell,
so a little folly[y] outweighs wisdom and honor.
[2]The heart of the wise inclines to the right,
but the heart of the fool to the left.
[3]Even as he walks along the road,
the fool lacks sense and shows everyone[z] how stupid
he is.
[4]If a ruler's anger rises against you,
do not leave your post;[a] calmness can lay great errors to rest.[b]

[5]There is an evil I have seen under the sun,
the sort of error that arises from a ruler:
[6]Fools are put in many high positions,[c]
while the rich occupy the low ones.
[7]I have seen slaves on horseback, while princes go on foot like slaves.[d]

[8]Whoever digs a pit may fall into it;[e] whoever breaks through a wall may be bitten by a snake.[f] [9]Whoever quarries stones may be injured by them;
whoever splits logs may be endangered by them.[g]

[10]If the ax is dull and its edge unsharpened, more strength is needed
but skill will bring success.

[11]If a snake bites before it is charmed,
there is no profit for the charmer.[h]

[12]Words from a wise man's mouth are gracious,[i] but a fool is consumed by his own lips.[j]
[13]At the beginning his words are folly;
at the end they are wicked madness—
[14] and the fool multiplies words.[k]

No one knows what is coming—who can tell him what will happen after him?[l]

[15]A fool's work wearies him;
he does not know the way to town.

[16]Woe to you, O land whose king was a servant[n m]
and whose princes feast in the morning.
[17]Blessed are you, O land whose king is of noble birth and whose princes eat at a proper time—
for strength and not for drunkenness.[n]

[18]If a man is lazy, the rafters sag;
if his hands are idle, the house
leaks.[o]

9:12 hour. Of disaster. men are trapped. Success is unpredictable, because man is not wise enough to know when misfortune may overtake him.

9:15 But nobody remembered. Further warning against placing too high hopes on one's wisdom. Its reputation fades, its good is soon undone (v. 18b), and it has no answer to death (2:15–16).

10:1 a little folly outweighs. 2Ki 20:12–19 presents a striking example.

10:2 to the right . . . to the left. These can stand for the greater and the lesser good (cf. Ge 48:13–20); or perhaps here, as in some later Jewish writings, for good and evil.

10:5 error . . . from a ruler. For the Teacher's observations on human regimes see vv. 4,6–7,16–17,20; 3:16; 4:1–3,13–16; 5:8–9; 8:2–6,10–11; 9:17.

10:12 Words. A favorite topic in wisdom literature (see, e.g., Pr 15).

10:15 does not know the way to town. Since in Scripture a fool is one who refuses God's teaching (see note on 5:4), this caustic saying (probably proverbial) refers to more than mere stupidity.

10:16 whose king was a servant. A small-minded upstart, not a "poor but wise youth" as in 4:13. See 2Ki 15:8–25; Hos 7:3–7, which portray some of the short-lived usurpers and vicious courtiers who hastened the downfall of Israel.

10:18 lazy . . . idle. See note on 4:5.

19 A feast is made for laughter, and wine[p] makes life merry,
but money is the answer for everything.

20 Do not revile the king[q] even in your thoughts,
or curse the rich in your bedroom, because a bird of the air may carry your words,
and a bird on the wing may report
what you say.

Bread Upon the Waters

11 Cast[r] your bread upon the waters,
for after many days you will find it again.[s]
2 Give portions to seven, yes to eight, for you do not know what disaster
may come upon the land.

3 If clouds are full of water,
they pour rain upon the earth.
Whether a tree falls to the south or to the north,
in the place where it falls, there will
it lie.
4 Whoever watches the wind will not plant;
whoever looks at the clouds will not reap.

5 As you do not know the path of the wind,[t] or how the body is formed[o] in a mother's womb,[u]
so you cannot understand the work of God,
the Maker of all things.

6 Sow your seed in the morning, and at evening let not your hands be idle,[v]
for you do not know which will succeed,
whether this or that,
or whether both will do equally
well.

Remember Your Creator While Young

7 Light is sweet, and it pleases the eyes to see the sun.[w]
8 However many years a man may live,
let him enjoy them all.
But let him remember[x] the days of
darkness,
for they will be many.
Everything to come is meaningless.

9 Be happy, young man, while you are young,
and let your heart give you joy in the days of your youth.
Follow the ways of your heart and whatever your eyes see,
but know that for all these things
God will bring you to judgment.[y] 10 So then, banish anxiety[z] from your heart
and cast off the troubles of your body,
for youth and vigor are meaningless.[a]

12 Remember[b] your Creator in the days of your youth, before the days of trouble[c] come and the years approach when you will say,
"I find no pleasure in them"—
2 before the sun and the light and the moon and the stars grow dark,
and the clouds return after the rain;
3 when the keepers of the house
tremble,
and the strong men stoop,
when the grinders cease because they are few,
and those looking through the windows grow dim;
4 when the doors to the street are closed
and the sound of grinding fades;

10:19 money is the answer for everything. Can be read at various levels—as a wry comment on human values, as sober advice to earn a good living rather than have a good time (see the first two lines) or as stating the great versatility of money (cf. Lk 16:9).

11:1 Cast your bread upon the waters. Be adventurous, like those who accept the risks and reap the benefits of seaborne trade. Do not always play it safe (see Pr 11:24).

11:2 Give portions to seven. Be generous while you have plenty; unforeseen disasters may make you dependent on the generosity of others.

11:3–6 clouds . . . tree . . . wind . . . seed. Do not toy with maybes and might-have-beens. Start where you can, and recognize how limited your role (or knowledge) is.

11:5 wind. See NIV text note; cf. Jn 3:8 ("wind" and "spirit" are the same word in the original in both verses).

11:7–10 Live life to the fullest.

11:8,10 meaningless. Warns against letting the wonderful gifts mentioned in vv. 7–10 dazzle and distract us. Verse 9 sets us on the true course.

11:9 judgment. See 12:14 and note. The prospect of divine praise or blame makes every detail of life significant rather than meaningless. To know this gives direction to our heart and discrimination to our eyes. The stage is set for ch. 12.

12:2–5 A graphic description of man's progressive deterioration; an allegory of aging.

12:3 keepers of the house. This and the other metaphors may refer to parts of the body (hands, legs, etc.). But the imagery should not be pressed to the extent that it destroys the poetry, which moves freely between figures such as darkness, storm, a house in decline and a deserted well, and such literal descriptions as in v. 5a.

when men rise up at the sound of birds, but all their songs grow faint;[d] 5when men are afraid of heights and of dangers in the streets;
when the almond tree blossoms and the grasshopper drags himself along and desire no longer is stirred.
Then man goes to his eternal home[e]
and mourners[f] go about the streets.

6Remember him—before the silver cord is severed, or the golden bowl is broken;
before the pitcher is shattered at the spring,
or the wheel broken at the well, 7and the dust returns[g] to the ground it came from,
and the spirit returns to God[h] who gave it.[i]

8"Meaningless! Meaningless!" says the Teacher.[pj]
"Everything is meaningless![k]"

The Conclusion of the Matter

9Not only was the Teacher wise, but also he imparted knowledge to the people. He pondered and searched out and set in order many proverbs.[l] 10The Teacher[m] searched to find just the right words, and what he wrote was upright and true.[n]

11The words of the wise are like goads, their collected sayings like firmly embedded nails[o]—given by one Shepherd. 12Be warned, my son, of anything in addition to them.

Of making many books there is no end, and much study wearies the body.[p] 13Now all has been heard;

here is the conclusion of the matter:
Fear God[q] and keep his commandments,[r]
for this is the whole ⌞duty⌟ of man.[s] 14For God will bring every deed into judgment,[t] including every hidden thing,[u]
whether it is good or evil.

12:6 silver cord ... golden bowl. A hanging lamp suspended by a silver chain. If only one link snaps, this light and beauty will perish, suggesting how fragile life is.

12:8 Meaningless! Such is life "under the sun" (on earth, apart from God), ending in brokenness. But with a relationship to our Creator already demanded (v. 1), and with the fact of his judgment affirmed (11:9), meaninglessness is not the last word. Teacher. See note on 1:1.

12:14 every deed into judgment. Glimpses of this truth are given at intervals in the book: 3:17; 8:12–13; 11:9 and note; see Mt 12:36; 1Co 3:12–15; 2Co 5:9–10; Heb 4:12–13. every hidden thing. See Ro 2:16.

Song of Songs

Title

The title in the Hebrew text is "Solomon's Song of Songs," meaning a song by, for, or about Solomon. The phrase "Song of Songs" means the greatest of songs (cf. Dt 10:17, "God of gods and Lord of lords"; 1Ti 6:15, "King of kings").

Author and Date

Verse 1 appears to ascribe authorship to Solomon (see note on 1:1; but see also Title above). Solomon is referred to seven times (1:1,5; 3:7,9,11; 8:11–12), and several verses speak of the "king" (1:4,12; 7:5), but whether he was the author remains an open question.

To date the Song in the tenth century B.C. during Solomon's reign is not impossible. In fact, mention of Tirzah and Jerusalem in one breath (6:4) has been used to prove a date prior to King Omri (885–874 B.C.; see 1Ki 16:23–24), though the reason for Tirzah's mention is not clear. On the other hand, many have appealed to the language of the Song as proof of a much later date, but on present evidence the linguistic data are ambiguous.

Consistency of language, style, tone, perspective and recurring refrains seems to argue for a single author. However, many who have doubted that the Song came from one pen, or even from one time or place, explain this consistency by ascribing all the Song's parts to a single literary tradition, since Near Eastern traditions were very careful to maintain stylistic uniformity.

Interpretation

To find the key for unlocking the Song, interpreters have looked to prophetic, wisdom and apocalyptic passages of Scripture, as well as to ancient Egyptian and Babylonian love songs, traditional Semitic wedding songs and songs related to ancient Mesopotamian fertility cults. The closest parallels appear to be those found in Proverbs (see Pr 5:15–20; 6:24–29; 7:6–23). The description of love in 8:6–7 (cf. the descriptions of wisdom found in Pr 1—9 and Job 28) seems to confirm that the Song belongs to Biblical wisdom literature and that it is wisdom's description of an amorous relationship. The Bible speaks of both wisdom and love as gifts of God, to be received with gratitude and celebration.

This understanding of the Song contrasts with the long-held view that the Song is an allegory of the love relationship between God and Israel, or between Christ and the church, or between Christ and the soul (though the NT nowhere quotes from or even alludes to the Song). It is also distinct from more modern interpretations of the Song, such as that which sees it as a poetic drama celebrating the triumph of a maiden's pure, spontaneous love for her rustic shepherd lover over the courtly blandishments of Solomon, who sought to win her for his royal harem. Rather, it views the Song as a linked chain of lyrics depicting love in all its spontaneity, beauty, power and exclusiveness—experienced in its varied moments of separation and intimacy, anguish and ecstasy, tension and contentment. The Song shares with the love poetry of many cultures its extensive use of highly sensuous and suggestive imagery drawn from nature.

Theme and Theology

In ancient Israel everything human came to expression in words: reverence, gratitude, anger, sorrow, suffering, trust, friendship, commitment, loyalty, hope, wisdom, moral outrage, repentance. In the Song, it is love that finds words—inspired words that disclose its exquisite charm and beauty as one of God's choicest gifts. The voice of love in the Song, like that of wisdom in Pr 8:1—9:12, is a woman's voice, suggesting that love and wisdom draw men powerfully with the subtlety and mystery of a woman's allurements.

This feminine voice speaks profoundly of love. She portrays its beauty and delights. She claims its exclusiveness ("My lover is mine and I am his," 2:16) and insists on the necessity of its pure spontaneity ("Do not arouse or awaken love until it so desires," 2:7). She also proclaims its overwhelming power—it rivals that of the fearsome enemy, death; it burns with the intensity of a blazing fire; it is unquenchable even by the ocean depths (8:6–7a). She affirms its preciousness: All a man's possessions cannot purchase it, nor (alternatively) should they be exchanged for it (8:7b). She hints, without saying so explicitly (see the last NIV text note on 8:6), that it is a gift of the Lord to man.

God intends that such love—grossly distorted and abused by both ancient and modern people—be a normal part of marital life in his good creation (see Ge 1:26–31; 2:24).

Literary Features

No one who reads the Song with care can question the artistry of the poet. The subtle delicacy with which he evokes intense sensuous awareness while avoiding crude titillation is one of the chief marks of his achievement. This he accomplishes largely by indirection, by analogy and by bringing to the foreground the sensuous in the world of nature (or in food, drink, cosmetics and jewelry). To liken a lover's enjoyment of his beloved to a gazelle "browsing among lilies" (2:16), or her breasts to "twin fawns of a gazelle that browse among the lilies" (4:5), or the beloved herself to a garden filled with choice fruits inviting the lover to feast (4:12–16)—these combine exquisite artistry and fine sensitivity.

Whether the Song has the unity of a single dramatic line linking all the subunits into a continuing story is a matter of ongoing debate among interpreters. There do appear to be connected scenes in the love relationship (see Outline).

Virtually all agree that the literary climax of the Song is found in 8:6–7, where the unsurpassed power and value of love—the love that draws man and woman together—are finally expressly asserted. Literary relaxation follows the intenseness of that declaration. A final expression of mutual desire between the lovers brings the Song to an end, suggesting that love goes on. This last segment (8:8–14) is in some sense also a return to the beginning, as references to the beloved's brothers, to her vineyard and to Solomon (the king) link 8:8–12 with 1:2–6.

In this song of love the voice of the beloved is dominant. It is her experience of love, both as the one who loves and as the one who is loved, that is most clearly expressed. The Song begins with her wish for the lover's kiss and ends with her urgent invitation to him for love's intimacy.

1 Solomon's Song of Songs.[a]

Beloved[a]

[2]Let him kiss me with the kisses of his mouth—for your love[b] is more delightful than wine.[c] [3]Pleasing is the fragrance of your perfumes;[d] your name[e] is like perfume poured out.
No wonder the maidens[f] love you!
[4]Take me away with you—let us hurry!
Let the king bring me into his chambers.[g]

Friends

We rejoice and delight[h] in you[b];
we will praise your love[i] more than wine.

Beloved

How right they are to adore you!

[5]Dark am I, yet lovely,[j] O daughters of Jerusalem,[k] dark like the tents of Kedar,[l]
like the tent curtains of Solomon.[c] [6]Do not stare at me because I am dark, because I am darkened by the sun.
My mother's sons were angry with me and made me take care of the vineyards;[m]
my own vineyard I have neglected.

[7]Tell me, you whom I love, where you graze your flock and where you rest your sheep[n] at midday.
Why should I be like a veiled[o] woman beside the flocks of your friends?

Friends

[8]If you do not know, most beautiful of women,[p] follow the tracks of the sheep and graze your young goats
by the tents of the shepherds.

Lover

[9]I liken you, my darling, to a mare harnessed to one of the chariots[q] of Pharaoh.
[10]Your cheeks[r] are beautiful with earrings, your neck with strings of jewels.[s] [11]We will make you earrings of gold, studded with silver.

Beloved

[12]While the king was at his table, my perfume spread its fragrance.[t]
[13]My lover is to me a sachet of myrrh[u]

[a]Primarily on the basis of the gender of the Hebrew pronouns used, male and female speakers are indicated in the margins by the captions Lover and Beloved respectively. The words of others are marked Friends. In some instances the divisions and their captions are debatable. [b]4 The Hebrew is masculine singular. [c]5 Or Salma

1:1 Solomon's. See Introduction: Title; Author and Date. Song of Songs. Greatest of songs (see Introduction: Title). 1Ki 4:32 says that Solomon wrote 1,005 songs.

1:2–3 kisses ... your love ... your perfumes. Cf. 4:10–11, "your love ... your perfume ... Your lips."

1:2 him ... his ... your. These pronouns all refer to the same person, the lover (Solomon). love. Expressions of love—caresses, embraces and consummation (see v. 4; 4:10; 7:12; see also Pr 7:18; Eze 16:8; 23:17). more delightful than wine. See v. 4. In 4:10 the lover speaks similarly of the beloved's love.

1:3 perfumes. Aromatic spices and gums blended in cosmetic oil. your name. The very mention of the lover's name fills the air as with a pleasant aroma. The Hebrew words for "name" and "perfume" sound alike. maidens. Probably young women of the court or of the royal city (see 6:8–9).

1:4 king. Solomon. his chambers. The king's private quarters. We. Probably the maidens of v. 3. praise your love more than wine. For the reason given in v. 2.

1:5 Dark. Deeply browned by the sun (see v. 6); not considered desirable. daughters of Jerusalem. Probably the maidens of v. 3 and usually the "Friends" in the sectional headings. tents ... tent curtains. Handwoven from black goat hair. Kedar. See note on Isa 21:16.

1:6 my own vineyard. Her body, as in 8:12 (see 2:15). Vineyard is an apt metaphor since it yields wine, and the excitements of love are compared with those produced by wine (see note on v. 2). The beloved is also compared to a garden, yielding precious fruits for the lover (see note on 4:12).

1:7 whom I love. See 3:1. where you graze your flock. The lover is portrayed as a shepherd. In v. 8 the beloved is depicted as a shepherdess. midday. A time of rest in warm climates. veiled woman. Prostitute (see Ge 38:14–15). The beloved does not wish to look for her lover among the shepherds, appearing as though she were a prostitute.

1:8 beautiful. The beloved; also in v. 15; 2:10,13; 4:1,7; 5:9; 6:1,4,10 ("fair"). The lover is called "handsome" in v. 16 (in Hebrew the same word as that for "beautiful"). your young goats. The beloved is pictured as a shepherdess (see v. 7). by the tents of the shepherds. The beloved is instructed to learn where the lover is by joining the shepherds in the fields.

1:9 my darling. Used only of the beloved (see note on v. 13). mare. A flattering comparison, similar to Theocritus's praise of the beautiful Helen of Troy (Idyl, 18.30–31). harnessed to one of the chariots of Pharaoh. Her beauty attracts attention the way a mare would among the Egyptian chariot stallions. According to 1Ki 10:28, Solomon imported horses from Egypt (but see NIV text note there).

1:11 We. Perhaps the "daughters of Jerusalem."

1:12 king. Solomon. at his table. Reclining on his couch at the table. my perfume. Nard, an aromatic oil extracted from the roots of a perennial herb that grows in India (see 4:13–14; Mk 14:3; Jn 12:3).

1:13 My lover. Used only of the lover (see note on v. 9). myrrh. An aromatic gum exuding from the bark of a balsam tree that grows in Arabia, Ethiopia and India. It was commonly used as an alluring feminine perfume (Est 2:12; Pr 7:17). It was also used to perfume royal nuptial robes (Ps 45:8). The Magi brought myrrh to the young Jesus as a gift fit for a king (Mt 2:2,11). Myrrh was an ingredient in the holy anointing oil (Ex 30:23).

8 Listen! My lover!
Look! Here he comes,
leaping across the mountains,
bounding over the hills.[p]
9 My lover is like a gazelle[q] or a young stag.[r]
Look! There he stands behind our wall, gazing through the windows,
peering through the lattice.
10 My lover spoke and said to me,
"Arise, my darling,
my beautiful one, and come with me.
11 See! The winter is past;
the rains are over and gone.
12 Flowers appear on the earth;
the season of singing has come,
the cooing of doves
is heard in our land.
13 The fig tree forms its early fruit;[s]
the blossoming[t] vines spread their fragrance.
Arise, come, my darling;
my beautiful one, come with me."

1:14 henna. A shrub of Palestine (perhaps the cypress) with tightly clustered, aromatic blossoms. En Gedi. An oasis watered by a spring, located on the west side of the Dead Sea. David sought refuge there from King Saul (1Sa 24:1).
1:15 How beautiful . . . darling! See 4:1; 6:4; cf. v. 16. my darling. See note on v. 9. doves. See 4:1.
1:16 handsome. See note on v. 8 ("beautiful"). verdant. The lovers lie together in the field under the trees.
2:1 rose. See NIV text note and Isa 35:1–2. Sharon. The fertile coastal plain south of Mount Carmel (see map No. 2 at the end of the Study Bible). lily. Probably either lotus or anemone.
2:2 my darling. See note on 1:9. maidens. See note on 1:3.
2:3 apple tree. The precise nature of this fruit tree is uncertain.
2:4 banner. See 6:4; Nu 2:2; Ps 20:5. The king's love for her is displayed for all to see, like a large military banner.
2:5 raisins . . . apples. Probably metaphors for love's caresses and embraces.
2:7 A recurring refrain in the Song (see 3:5; 8:4; cf. 5:8). It is always spoken by the beloved and always in a context of physical intimacy with her lover. Daughters of Jerusalem. See note on 1:5. charge. Place under oath. gazelles . . . does. Perhaps in the imaginative language of love the gazelles and does are portrayed as witnesses to the oath. This would be in harmony with the author's frequent reference to nature. until it so desires. Out of the beloved's experience of love comes wise admonition that love is not to be artificially stimulated; utter spontaneity is essential to its genuine truth and beauty.
2:9 gazelle. Celebrated for its form and beauty. young stag. An apt simile for youthful vigor (cf. Isa 35:6). gazing . . . lattice. The eager lover tries to catch sight of the beloved while she is still preparing herself for their meeting.
2:10 Arise . . . with me. See v. 13; cf. 7:11–13. my beautiful one. See note on 1:8.
2:11–13 The first signs of spring appear (see 6:11; 7:12)—the time of love.
2:14 dove . . . on the mountainside. Cf. Ps 55:6–8; Jer 48:28.
2:15 Perhaps spoken by the beloved. vineyards. As in 1:6 ("my own vineyard"), probably a metaphor for the lovers' physical beauty. Thus the desire is expressed that the lovers be kept safe from whatever ("foxes") might mar their mutual attractiveness. in bloom. Their attractiveness is in our vineyards that are in bloom.[y]

I looked for him but did not find him.
2 I will get up now and go about the city,

I will search for the one my heart loves.
So I looked for him but did not find him.
3 The watchmen found me
as they made their rounds in the city.[g]
"Have you seen the one my heart loves?"
4 Scarcely had I passed them when I found the one my heart loves.
I held him and would not let him go till I had brought him to my mother's house,[h]
to the room of the one who conceived me.[i] 5 Daughters of Jerusalem, I charge you[j] perfumed with myrrh[m] and incense made from all the spices[n] of the merchant?

7 Look! It is Solomon's carriage, escorted by sixty warriors,[o]
the noblest of Israel, 8 all of them wearing the sword,
all experienced in battle,
each with his sword at his side,
prepared for the terrors of the night.[p] 9 King Solomon made for himself the carriage;
he made it of wood from Lebanon.
10 Its posts he made of silver,
its base of gold.
Its seat was upholstered with purple, its interior lovingly inlaid
by[s] the daughters of Jerusalem.

They belong to each other exclusively in a relationship that allows no intrusion. browses among the lilies. The lover is compared to a gazelle (see v. 17). The browsing is a metaphor for the lover's intimate enjoyment of her charms (see 6:2–3).

3:1 This verse begins a new moment in love's experience. All night long. Night, with its freedom from the distractions of the day, allows the heart to be filled with its own preoccupations.

3:3 watchmen. Were stationed at the city gates (see Ne 3:29; 11:19; 13:22) and on the walls (see 5:7; 2Sa 13:34; 18:24–27; 2Ki 9:17–20; Ps 127:1; Isa 52:8; 62:6). Apparently they also patrolled the streets at night (see 5:7).

3:4 mother's. Mothers are referred to frequently in the Song; fathers are never mentioned.

3:5 See note on 2:7. Once again the charge occurs at the moment of intimacy.

3:6–11 Perhaps spoken by the friends (see 8:5). If so, this section probably portrays the wedding procession of Solomon and his bride approaching the city.

3:6 This verse begins a new moment in the relationship. Who ... desert. See 8:5, where the reference is to the beloved. desert. Uncultivated seasonal grasslands. smoke. Incense (see note on Ex 30:34). of the merchant. Imported.

3:7 carriage. A richly adorned royal conveyance, a palanquin (see vv. 9–10).

3:8 terrors of the night. See Ps 91:5.

3:10 posts. Supporting the canopy. silver ... gold. Probably metals that overlay the Lebanon wood. purple. See notes on 7:5; Ex 25:4.

3:11 daughters of Zion. Elsewhere "daughters of Jerusalem" (see note on 1:5). crown. A wedding wreath (see Isa 61:10). mother. See note on v. 4. Here the reference is to Bathsheba.

4:1–7 For other exuberant descriptions of the beloved's beauty see 6:4–9; 7:1–7.

4:1b–2 See 6:5b–6.

4:1 How beautiful ... darling! See 1:15 and note. eyes behind your veil. With the rest of her face concealed, the lover's attention is focused on the beloved's eyes. doves. See 1:15 and note. flock of goats. The goats of Canaan were usually black (see note on 1:5). The lover's hair was also black (5:11). descending from Mount Gilead. The beloved's black tresses flowing from her head remind the lover of a flock of sleek black goats streaming down one of the hills of Gilead (noted for its good pasturage).

[2]Your teeth are like a flock of sheep just shorn,
coming up from the washing.
Each has its twin;
not one of them is alone.[v]
[3]Your lips are like a scarlet ribbon;
your mouth[w] is lovely.[x]
Your temples behind your veil are like the halves of a pomegranate.[y]
[4]Your neck is like the tower[z] of David,
built with elegance[h];
on it hang a thousand shields,[a]
all of them shields of warriors.
[5]Your two breasts[b] are like two fawns,
like twin fawns of a gazelle[c]
that browse among the lilies.[d] [6]Until the day breaks and the shadows flee,[e]
I will go to the mountain of myrrh[f]
and to the hill of incense.
[7]All beautiful[g] you are, my darling;
there is no flaw[h] in you.

[8]Come with me from Lebanon, my bride,[i] come with me from Lebanon.
Descend from the crest of Amana, from the top of Senir,[j] the summit of Hermon,[k]
from the lions' dens and the mountain haunts of the leopards.

[9]You have stolen my heart, my sister, my bride;[l]
you have stolen my heart
with one glance of your eyes, with one jewel of your necklace.[m] [10]How delightful[n] is your love[o], my sister, my bride!
How much more pleasing is your love than wine,[p]
and the fragrance of your perfume[q] than any spice!
[11]Your lips drop sweetness as the honeycomb, my bride;
milk and honey are under your tongue.[r]
The fragrance of your garments is like that of Lebanon.[s] [12]You are a garden[t] locked up, my sister, my bride;[u]
you are a spring enclosed, a sealed fountain.[v] [13]Your plants are an orchard of pomegranates[w]
with choice fruits,
with henna[x] and nard, [14] nard and saffron, calamus and cinnamon,[y]
with every kind of incense tree, with myrrh[z] and aloes[a]
and all the finest spices.[b] [15]You are[i] a garden[c] fountain,[d] a well of flowing water streaming down from Lebanon.

4:2 just shorn. Clean and white. coming up from the washing. Still wet, like moistened teeth.

4:3 Your lips . . . scarlet. Perhaps the beloved painted her lips, like Egyptian women. temples behind . . . veil. See note on v. 1. halves of a pomegranate. Round and blushed with red.

4:4 The beloved's erect, bespangled neck is like a tower on the city wall adorned with warriors' shields (cf. 7:4).

4:5 See 7:3. fawns. Representing tender, delicate beauty, and promise rather than full growth (cf. 8:8). gazelle. See note on 2:9. Elsewhere the simile is used of the lover. browse among the lilies. For a different use of this phrase see 2:16 and note.

4:6 Until . . . shadows flee. See 2:17. mountain of myrrh . . . hill of incense. Metaphors for lovers' intimacy.

4:8 To the lover the beloved seems to have withdrawn as if to a remote mountain. Lebanon . . . Amana . . . Hermon. Mountain peaks on the northern horizon. Senir. Amorite name for Mount Hermon (Dt 3:9).

4:9 my sister. For lovers to address each other as "brother" and "sister" was common in the love poetry of the ancient Near East (see vv. 10,12; 5:1). one glance of your eyes. See 6:5 and note.

4:10 more pleasing . . . than wine. See note on 1:2. fragrance of your perfume. See 1:3. spice. See v. 14; 5:1,13; 6:2; 8:14. Spice was an imported luxury item (see 1Ki 10:2,10,25; Eze 27:22). Spices were used for fragrance in the holy anointing oil (Ex 25:6; 30:23–25; 35:8) and for fragrant incense (Ex 25:6; 35:8) as well as for perfume.

4:11 Your lips drop sweetness. The beloved speaks to him of love (cf. Pr 5:3; 16:24). People in the ancient Near East associated sweetness with the delights of love. milk and honey. Perhaps reminiscent of the description of the promised land (see note on Ex 3:8). under your tongue. See Job 20:12; Ps 10:7.

4:12 garden. A place of sensual delights (see v. 16; 5:1; 6:2; see also note on 1:6). locked up . . . enclosed . . . sealed. Metaphors for the beloved's virginity—or perhaps for the fact that she keeps herself exclusively for her husband. spring . . . fountain. Sources of refreshment; metaphors for the beloved as a sexual partner, as in Pr 5:15–20.

4:13–15 Verses 13–14 elaborate on the garden metaphor of v. 12a, and v. 15 on the fountain metaphor of v. 12b. The trees and spices in vv. 13–14 are mostly exotic, referring to the beloved's charms.

4:13 Your plants. All the beloved's features that delight the lover. orchard. Hebrew pardes (from which the English word "paradise" comes), a loanword from Old Persian meaning "enclosure" or "park." In Ne 2:8 and Ecc 2:5 it refers to royal parks and forests. henna. See note on 1:14. nard. See note on 1:12.

4:14 saffron. A plant of the crocus family bearing purple or white flowers, parts of which, when dried, were used as a cooking spice. calamus. An imported (see Jer 6:20), aromatic spice cane, used also in the holy anointing oil (Ex 30:23,25, "cane") and in incense (Isa 43:23–24). cinnamon. Used in the holy anointing oil (Ex 30:23,25). myrrh. See note on 1:13. aloes. Aromatic aloes, used to perfume royal nuptial robes (Ps 45:8). Pr 7:17 says that the adulteress perfumed her bed "with myrrh, aloes and cinnamon."

4:15 flowing. Fresh, not stagnant. streaming . . . from Lebanon. Fresh, cool, sparkling water from the snowfields on the Lebanon mountains.

16 Awake, north wind, and come, south wind!
Blow on my garden,[e]
that its fragrance[f] may spread abroad.
Let my lover[g] come into his garden and taste its choice fruits.[h]

5 I have come into my garden,[i] my

2 I slept but my heart was awake.
Listen! My lover is knocking:
"Open to me, my sister, my darling,
my dove,[l] my flawless[m] one.[n]
My head is drenched with dew, my hair with the dampness of the night."
3 I have taken off my robe—
must I put it on again?
I have washed my feet—
must I soil them again?
4 My lover thrust his hand through the latch-opening;
my heart began to pound for him.
5 I arose to open for my lover, and my hands dripped with myrrh,[o]
my fingers with flowing myrrh,
on the handles of the lock.
6 I opened for my lover,[p] but my lover had left; he was gone.[q]
My heart sank at his departure.[j]
I looked[r] for him but did not find
him.
I called him but he did not answer.
7 The watchmen found me
as they made their rounds in the city.[s]
They beat me, they bruised me;
they took away my cloak,
those watchmen of the walls!
8 O daughters of Jerusalem, I charge you[t]—
if you find my lover,[u]
what will you tell him?
Tell him I am faint with love.[v]

9 How is your beloved better than others,
most beautiful of women?[w]
How is your beloved better than others,
that you charge us so?

Beloved

10 My lover is radiant and ruddy, outstanding among ten thousand.[x] 11 His head is purest gold;
his hair is wavy
and black as a raven.
12 His eyes are like doves[y]
by the water streams, washed in milk,[z]
mounted like jewels.
13 His cheeks[a] are like beds of spice[b] yielding perfume.
His lips are like lilies[c] dripping with myrrh.[d] 14 His arms are rods of gold set with chrysolite.
His body is like polished ivory decorated with sapphires.[k e] 15 His legs are pillars of marble set on bases of pure gold.
His appearance is like Lebanon,[f]
choice as its cedars.

4:16 May the fragrance of my charms be wafted about to draw my lover to me so that we may enjoy love's intimacies. his garden. She belongs to him and she yields herself to her lover (see 6:2).

5:1 The lover claims the beloved as his garden and enjoys all her delights. my sister. See note on 4:9. Eat ... O lovers. The friends of the lovers applaud their enjoyment of love.

5:2–8 See 3:1–5 and note on 3:1.

5:2 I slept ... was awake. Love holds sway even in sleep—just as a new mother sleeps with an ear open to her baby's slightest whimper.

5:3 Instinctive reaction raises a foolish complaint before the language of love takes over.

5:5 my hands ... flowing myrrh. Love's eager imagination extravagantly lotioned the beloved's hands with perfume.

5:9 The friends' question provides an opportunity for the beloved to describe the beauty of her lover—which she does only here.

5:10 ruddy. See 1Sa 16:12.

5:11 black. The beloved's hair was also black (see note on 4:1).

5:12 doves. See note on 1:15. by the water streams. The lover's eyes sparkle. washed in milk. Describing the white of the eye.

5:13 spice ... lilies. These similes probably compare sensuous effects rather than appearances, as do the following similes and metaphors, at least in part. lilies. See note on 2:1. dripping with myrrh. Love's pleasant excitements are aroused by the lover's lips.

5:14 chrysolite. See note on Eze 1:16. sapphires. Hebrew sappir (from which the English word "sapphire" comes).

5:15 appearance is like Lebanon. Awesome and majestic. choice as its cedars. The cedars of Lebanon were renowned throughout the ancient Near East, and their wood was desired for adorning temples and palaces.

5:16 mouth. The lover's kisses and loving speech. daughters of Jerusalem. See note on 1:5.

6:1 The question asked by the friends forms a transition from the beloved's description of the lover to her delighted acknowledgment of his intimacy with her and the exclusiveness of their relationship.

6:2 his garden. The beloved. beds of spices. Her sensuous attractions (cf. 5:13). browse. Enjoy (see note on 2:16). gather lilies. See note on 2:1. The lover, enjoying intimacies with the beloved, is compared to a graceful gazelle (see notes on 2:7,9) nibbling from lily to lily in undisturbed enjoyment of exotic delicacies.

6:3 I ... mine. See note on 2:16. Notice the reversal; here her yielding to her lover is emphasized.

6:4 Tirzah. An old Canaanite city in the middle of the land (see Jos 12:24). It was chosen by Jeroboam I (930–909 B.C.) as the first royal city of the northern kingdom (see 1Ki 14:17; see also 1Ki 15:21; 16:23–24). The meaning of its name ("pleasure, beauty") suggests that it was a beautiful site, perhaps explaining why the author here sets it alongside Jerusalem (though what constituted the beauty of Tirzah is not known). Comparison of the beloved's beauty to that of cities was perhaps not so unusual in the ancient Near East, since cities were regularly depicted as women (see note on 2Ki 19:21). majestic. See v. 10. as troops with banners. The beloved's noble beauty evoked in the lover emotions like those aroused by a troop marching under its banners.

6:5–7 See 4:1–3 and notes.

6:5 your eyes ... overwhelm me. The beloved's eyes awaken in the lover such intensity of love that he is held captive (see 4:9).

6:8 queens ... concubines ... virgins. The reference is either to Solomon's harem or to all the beautiful women of the realm.

6:9 perfect one. Cf. "flawless one" in 5:2. only daughter. Not literally, but the one uniquely loved (cf. Ge 22:2; Jdg 11:34; Pr 4:3). maidens ... praised her. All the other women praised her beauty (see 1:8; 5:9; 6:1).

6:10 See 5:9; 6:1.

6:11 nut. Perhaps walnut. look ... in the valley. For the first signs of spring (see note on 2:11–13).

6:12 The most obscure verse in the Song. See NIV text note for other possible translations. chariots. Solomon was famous for his chariots (1Ki 10:26).

6:13 Shulammite. The beloved. It is either a variant of "Shunammite" (see 1Ki 1:3), i.e., a young woman from Shunem (see Jos 19:18), or a feminine form of the word "Solomon," meaning "Solomon's girl." In ancient Semitic languages the letters l and n were sometimes interchanged.

7 How beautiful your sandaled feet,
O prince's[e] daughter!
Your graceful legs are like jewels,
the work of a craftsman's hands.
2 Your navel is a rounded goblet that never lacks blended wine.
Your waist is a mound of wheat encircled by lilies.
3 Your breasts[f] are like two fawns, twins of a gazelle.
4 Your neck is like an ivory tower.[g]
Your eyes are the pools of Heshbon[h]

Your nose is like the tower of 5 Your head crowns you like Mount

Your hair is like royal tapestry;

who was nursed at my mother's breasts!
Then, if I found you outside,
I would kiss you,
and no one would despise me.
2 I would lead you

she who has taught me.
I would give you spiced wine to drink,
the nectar of my pomegranates.

7:1–7 Here the description moves up from the feet rather than down from the head (cf. 5:11–15).

7:1 Cf. v. 6. prince's daughter. Alludes to the nobility of her beauty (see Ps 45:13). graceful. The Hebrew for this word suggests "curvaceous."

7:2 goblet. A large, two-handled, ring-based bowl (see Ex 24:6; Isa 22:24; see also Am 6:6). encircled by lilies. The beloved perhaps wore a loose garland of flowers around her waist.

7:3 See note on 4:5.

7:4 ivory tower. Mixed imagery, referring to shape as well as to color and texture. pools. The beloved's eyes reflect like the surface of a pool; or the imagery may depict serenity and gentleness. Heshbon. Once the royal city of King Sihon (Nu 21:26), it was blessed with an abundant supply of spring water. Bath Rabbim. Means "daughter of many"; perhaps a popular name for Heshbon. tower of Lebanon. Perhaps a military tower on the northern frontier of Solomon's kingdom, but more likely the beautiful, towering Lebanon mountain range.

7:5 Mount Carmel. A promontory midway along the western coast of the kingdom, with a wooded top and known for its beauty. royal tapestry. A reference to purple, royal cloth, as in 3:10 (see note on Ex 25:4). king. Solomon. tresses. The Hebrew for this word suggests a similarity to flowing water (cf. 4:1; 6:5).

7:7 palm. The stately date palm.

7:8 I said. To myself. I will climb. The beloved's beauty draws him irresistibly. vine. Grape. apples. Perhaps the fragrance of apple blossoms (but see note on 2:3).

7:9 May the wine . . . to my lover. The beloved offers the wine (see 5:1) of her love to her lover.

7:10 I belong. See notes on 2:16; 6:3. desire. Cf. Ge 3:16.

7:11–12 In 2:10–13 the beloved reports a similar invitation from her lover.

7:12 I will give you my love. She offers herself completely to her lover.

7:13 mandrakes. Short-stemmed herbs associated with fertility (see note on Ge 30:14). The odor of its blossom is pungent. at our door. Where the lovers meet. every delicacy. Metaphor for the delights the beloved has for her lover from her "garden" (cf. 4:13–14). both new and old. Those already shared and those still to be enjoyed.

8:1 no one would despise me. The beloved could openly show affection without any public disgrace.

8:2 I would give you. She would offer her lover the delights of her love. nectar. The Hebrew for this word refers to intoxicating juices.

8:4 See 2:7 and note.

8:5 Who ... desert. See 3:6. Under the apple tree. In the ancient world, sexual union and birth were often associated with fruit trees.

8:6–7 love is ... grave. It burns ... flame. Many waters ... away. These three wisdom statements (see essay on "Wisdom Literature," p. 721) characterize marital love as the strongest, most unyielding and invincible force in human experience. With these statements the Song reaches its literary climax and discloses its purpose.

8:6 seal. Seals were precious to their owners, as personal as their names (see note on Ge 38:18). arm. Probably a poetic synonym for "hand." unyielding as the grave. As the grave will not give up the dead, so love will not surrender the loved one. mighty flame. The Hebrew expression conveys the idea of a most intense flame, hinting that it has been kindled by the Lord (see NIV text note).

8:7 Many waters. Words that suggest not only the ocean depths (see Ps 107:23) but also the primeval waters that the people of the ancient Near East regarded as a permanent threat to the world (see note on Ps 32:6). The waters were also associated with the realm of the dead (see note on Ps 30:1). If one ... scorned. A fourth wisdom statement (see note on vv. 6–7), declaring love's unsurpassed worth.

8:8–14 In the closing lines of the Song, the words of the brothers (vv. 8–9), the beloved's reference to her own vineyard (v. 12) and her final reference to Solomon (vv. 11–12) suggest a return to the beginning of the Song (see 1:2–7). The lines may recall the beloved's development into the age for love and marriage and the blossoming of her relationship with her lover.

8:8 In the ancient Near East, brothers often were guardians of their sisters, especially in matters pertaining to marriage (see Ge 24:50–60; 34:13–27). the day she is spoken for. Marriage was often contracted at an early age.

8:9 This imaginative verse probably expresses the brothers' determination to defend their young sister (the beloved) until her proper time for love and marriage has come. Or it may mean that the brothers are concerned to see that she is properly adorned for marriage before she is spoken for.

8:10 I ... like towers. In contrast to the time when she was watched over by her brothers, the beloved rejoices in her maturity (see Eze 16:7–8). his. The lover's.

8:11–12 thousand shekels ... two hundred. Whether these figures are to be taken literally (see Isa 7:23) is uncertain.

8:11 Baal Hamon. Location unknown. The Hebrew hamon sometimes means "wealth" or "abundance"; hence Baal (i.e., "lord") Hamon could mean "lord of abundance," bringing to mind Solomon's great wealth.

8:12 my own vineyard. Her body (see note on 1:6). mine to give. As Solomon is master of his vineyard, so the beloved is mistress of her attractions to dispense them as she will. She offers Solomon the owner's portion of her vineyard.

8:13 in the gardens. In 7:11–12 the beloved invites her lover to accompany her to the countryside and the vineyards. Here the imagery places her appropriately in a garden. friends. Male; perhaps the companions of the lover (see 1:7). let me hear your voice. See 2:14.

8:14 be like a gazelle or ... stag. Display your virile strength and agility for my delight (see note on 2:9). on the spice-laden mountains. Cf. 2:17.

Isaiah

Author

Isaiah son of Amoz is often thought of as the greatest of the writing prophets. His name means "The LORD saves." He was a contemporary of Amos, Hosea and Micah, beginning his ministry in 740 B.C., the year King Uzziah died (see note on 6:1). According to an unsubstantiated Jewish tradition (The Ascension of Isaiah), he was sawed in half during the reign of Manasseh (cf. Heb 11:37). Isaiah was married and had at least two sons, Shear-Jashub (7:3) and Maher-Shalal-Hash-Baz (8:3). He probably spent most of his life in Jerusalem, enjoying his greatest influence under King Hezekiah (see 37:1–2). Isaiah is also credited with writing a history of the reign of King Uzziah (2Ch 26:22).

Many scholars today challenge the claim that Isaiah wrote the entire book that bears his name. Yet his is the only name attached to it (see 1:1; 2:1; 13:1). The strongest argument for the unity of Isaiah is the expression "the Holy One of Israel," a title for God that occurs 12 times in chs. 1—39 and 14 times in chs. 40—66. Outside Isaiah it appears in the OT only 6 times. There are other striking verbal parallels between chs. 1—39 and chs. 40—66. Compare the following verses:

|---|---|
| 1:2 | 66:24 |
| 1:5–6 | 53:4–5 |
| 5:27 | 40:30 |
| 6:1 | 52:13; 57:15 |
| 6:11–12 | 62:4 |
| 11:1 | 53:2 |
| 11:6–9 | 65:25 |
| 11:12 | 49:22 |
| 35:10 | 51:11 |

Altogether, there are at least 25 Hebrew words or forms found in Isaiah (i.e., in both major divisions of the book) that occur in no other prophetic writing.

Isaiah's use of fire as a figure of punishment (see 1:31; 10:17; 26:11; 33:11–14; 34:9–10; 66:24), his references to the "holy mountain" of Jerusalem (see note on 2:2–4) and his mention of the highway to Jerusalem (see note on 11:16) are themes that recur throughout the book.

The structure of Isaiah also argues for its unity. Chs. 36—39 constitute a historical interlude, which concludes chs. 1—35 and introduces chs. 40—66 (see note on 36:1).

Several NT verses refer to the prophet Isaiah in connection with various parts of the book: Mt 12:17–21 (Isa 42:1–4); Mt 3:3 and Lk 3:4 (Isa 40:3); Ro 10:16,20 (Isa 53:1; 65:1); see especially Jn 12:38–41 (Isa 53:1; 6:10).

Most of the events discussed in chs. 1—39 occurred during Isaiah's ministry (see 6:1; 14:28; 36:1), so it is likely that these chapters were completed not long after 701 B.C., the year the Assyrian army was destroyed (see note on 10:16). The prophet lived until at least 681 (see note on 37:38) and may have written chs. 40—66 during his later years. In his message to the exiles of the sixth century B.C., Isaiah was projected into the future, just as the apostle John was in Rev 4—22.

Background

Isaiah wrote during the stormy period marking the expansion of the Assyrian empire and the decline of Israel. Under King Tiglath-Pileser III (745–727 B.C.) the Assyrians swept westward into Aram (Syria) and Canaan. About 733 the kings of Aram and Israel tried to pressure Ahaz king of Judah into joining a coalition against Assyria. Ahaz chose instead to ask Tiglath-Pileser for help, a decision condemned by Isaiah (see note on 7:1). Assyria did assist Judah and conquered the northern kingdom in 722–721. This made Judah even more vulnerable, and in 701 King Sennacherib of Assyria threatened Jerusalem itself (see 36:1 and note). The godly King Hezekiah prayed earnestly, and Isaiah predicted that God would force the Assyrians to withdraw from the city (37:6–7).

Nevertheless Isaiah warned Judah that her sin would bring captivity at the hands of Babylon. The visit of the Babylonian king's envoys to Hezekiah set the stage for this prediction (see 39:1,6 and notes). Although the fall of Jerusalem would not take place until 586 B.C., Isaiah assumes the demise of Judah and proceeds to predict the restoration of the people from captivity (see 40:2–3 and notes). God would redeem his people from Babylon just as he rescued them from Egypt (see notes on 35:9; 41:14). Isaiah predicts the rise of Cyrus the Persian, who would unite the Medes and Persians and conquer Babylon in 539 (see 41:2 and note). The decree of Cyrus would allow the Jews to return home in 538, a deliverance that prefigured the greater salvation from sin through Christ (see 52:7 and note).

Themes and Theology

Isaiah is a book that unveils the full dimensions of God's judgment and salvation. God is "the Holy One of Israel" (see 1:4; 6:1 and notes) who must punish his rebellious people (1:2) but will afterward redeem them (41:14,16). Israel is a nation blind and deaf (6:9–10; 42:7), a vineyard that will be trampled (5:1–7), a people devoid of justice or righteousness (5:7; 10:1–2). The awful judgment that will be unleashed upon Israel and all the nations that defy God is called "the day of the LORD." Although Israel has a foretaste of that day (5:30; 42:25), the nations bear its full power (see 2:11,17,20 and note). It is a day associated in the NT with Christ's second coming and the accompanying judgment (see 24:1,21; 34:1–2 and notes). Throughout the book, God's judgment is referred to as "fire" (see 1:31; 30:33 and notes). He is the "Sovereign LORD" (see note on 25:8), far above all nations and rulers (40:15–24).

Yet God will have compassion on his people (14:1–2) and will rescue them from both political and spiritual oppression. Their restoration is like a new exodus (43:2,16–19; 52:10–12) as God redeems them (see 35:9; 41:14 and notes) and saves them (see 43:3; 49:8 and notes). Israel's mighty Creator (40:21–22; 48:13) will make streams spring up in the desert (32:2) as he graciously leads them home. The theme of a highway for the return of exiles is a prominent one (see 11:16; 40:3 and notes) in both major parts of the book. The Lord raises a banner to summon the nations to bring Israel home (see 5:26 and note).

Peace and safety mark this new Messianic age (11:6–9). A king descended from David will reign in righteousness (9:7; 32:1), and all nations will stream to the holy mountain of Jerusalem (see 2:2–4 and note). God's people will no longer be oppressed by wicked rulers (11:14; 45:14), and Jerusalem will truly be the "City of the LORD" (60:14).

The Lord calls the Messianic King "my servant" in chs. 42—53, a term also applied to Israel as a nation (see 41:8–9; 42:1 and notes). It is through the suffering of the servant that salvation in its fullest sense is achieved. Cyrus was God's instrument to deliver Israel from Babylon (41:2), but Christ delivered mankind from the prison of sin (52:13—53:12). He became a "light for the Gentiles" (42:6), so that those nations that faced judgment (chs. 13—23) could find salvation (55:4–5). These Gentiles also became "servants of the LORD" (see 54:17 and note).

The Lord's kingdom on earth, with its righteous Ruler and his righteous subjects, is the goal toward which the book of Isaiah steadily moves. The restored earth and the restored people will then conform to the divine ideal, and all will result in the praise and glory of the Holy One of Israel for what he has accomplished.

Literary Features

Isaiah contains both prose and poetry; the beauty of its poetry is unsurpassed in the OT. The main prose material is found in chs. 36—39, the historical interlude that unites the two parts of the book (see Author). The poetic material includes a series of oracles in chs. 13—23. A taunting song against the king of Babylon is found in 14:4–23. Chs. 24—27 comprise an apocalyptic section stressing the last days (see note on 24:1—27:13). A wisdom poem is found in 28:23–29 (also cf. 32:5–8). The song of the vineyard (5:1–7) begins as a love song as Isaiah describes God's relationship with Israel. Hymns of praise are given in 12:1–6 and 38:10–20, and a national lament occurs in 63:7—64:12. The poetry is indeed rich and varied, as is the prophet's vocabulary (e.g., he uses nearly 2,200 different Hebrew words—more than any other OT writer).

One of Isaiah's favorite techniques is personification. The sun and moon are ashamed (24:23), while the desert and parched land rejoice (see 35:1 and note) and the mountains and forests burst into song (44:23). The trees "clap their hands" (55:12). A favorite figure is the vineyard, which represents Israel (5:7). Treading the winepress is a picture of judgment (see 63:3 and note), and to drink God's "cup of wrath" is to stagger under his punishment (see 51:17 and note). Isaiah uses the name "Rock" to describe God (17:10), and animals such as Leviathan and Rahab represent nations (see 27:1; 30:7; 51:9).

The power of Isaiah's imagery is seen in 30:27–33, and he makes full use of sarcasm in his denunciation of idols in 44:9–20. A forceful example of wordplay appears in 5:7 (see note there), and one finds chiasm (inversion) in 6:10 (see note there; see also note on 16:7) and alliteration and assonance in 24:17 (see note there). The "overwhelming scourge" of 28:15,18 is an illustration of mixed metaphor.

Isaiah often alludes to earlier events in Israel's history, especially the exodus from Egypt. The crossing of the Red Sea forms the background for 11:15 and 43:2,16–17, and other allusions occur in 4:5–6; 31:5; 37:36 (see notes on these verses). The overthrow of Sodom and Gomorrah is referred to in 1:9, and Gideon's victory over Midian is mentioned in 9:4; 10:26 (see also 28:21). Several times Isaiah draws upon the song of Moses in Dt 32 (cf. 1:2 and Dt 32:1; 30:17 and Dt 32:30; 43:11,13 and Dt 32:39). Isaiah, like Moses, called the nation to repentance and to faith in a holy, all-powerful God. See also note on 49:8.

1:1–31 Compare the indictment of ch. 1 with that of ch. 5; the two enclose the first series of oracles. Ch. 1 also serves as an introduction to the whole book.

1:1 The title of the book. Other headings occur in 2:1; 13:1; 14:28; 15:1; 17:1; 19:1; 21:1,11,13; 22:1; 23:1. vision. In the sense of "revelation" or "prophecy" (see 1Sa 3:1; Pr 29:18; Ob 1). Amoz. Not to be confused with the prophet Amos. Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz and Hezekiah. These kings reigned from 792 to 686 B.C. None of the kings of Israel is mentioned since Isaiah ministered primarily to the southern kingdom (Judah).

1:2 Isaiah begins and ends (66:24) with a condemnation of those who rebel against God. The prophet calls on heaven and earth to testify to the truth of God's accusation against Israel and the rightness of his judgment—since they were witnesses of his covenant (see Dt 30:19; 31:28; 32:1).

1:3 manger. Feeding trough. does not know. Refusal to know and understand God later resulted in Judah's exile from her land (5:13).

1:4 Holy One of Israel. Occurs 26 times in Isaiah (see especially 5:24) and only 6 times elsewhere in the OT (see Introduction: Author).

1:5–6 The pitiable moral and spiritual condition of Israel is transferred to the suffering servant in 53:4–5. The Hebrew words for "beaten," "injured" and "welts" correspond to those for "smitten," "infirmities" and "wounds."

1:6 The disease ravages the entire body, as with Job (2:7). oil. Commonly used for treating wounds (see Lk 10:34).

1:7–9 The desolation of the land of Judah is the result of foreign invasion: e.g., by Aram, the northern kingdom of Israel, Edom and Philistia (2Ch 28:5–18); later (701 B.C.), by King Sennacherib and the Assyrian army (36:1–2); still later (605–586), by King Nebuchadnezzar and the Neo-Babylonian army.

1:8 Daughter of Zion. A personification of Jerusalem and its inhabitants. shelter . . . hut. Temporary structures used by watchmen (Job 27:18), who were on the lookout for thieves and intruders. Thus Jerusalem was not very defensible. melons. Or possibly "cucumbers."

1:9–10 Sodom . . . Gomorrah. Classic examples of sinful cities that were completely destroyed (see 3:9; Ge 13:13; 18:20–21; 19:5,24–25). Just as Jesus addressed Peter as though he were Satan (Mt 16:23), so Isaiah addresses his countrymen as though they were the rulers of Sodom and the people of Gomorrah.

1:9 Quoted in Ro 9:29, where it is linked with Isa 10:22–23. Isaiah often refers to the remnant that will survive God's judgment on the nation and take possession of the land (see 4:3; 10:20–23; 11:11,16; 46:3).

1:11–15 The sincerity of the worshiper, not the number of his religious activities, is most important

ISAIAH

NAME MEANS: "The LORD saves" OCCUPATION: Prophet to the southern kingdom of Judah BEST KNOWN FOR:
- his status as Israel's greatest prophet
- his direct and honest approach in calling Israel to repentance and righteous living
- the inspired predictions he made about the coming Messiah, Servant, Shepherd, King what are they to me?" says the LORD.

"I have more than enough of burnt offerings,
of rams and the fat of fattened animals;[s]
I have no pleasure[t] in the blood of bulls[u] and lambs and goats.[v] 12When you come to appear before me, who has asked this of you,[w]
this trampling of my courts?
13Stop bringing meaningless offerings![x]
Your incense[y] is detestable[z] to me.
New Moons,[a] Sabbaths and convocations[b]—
I cannot bear your evil assemblies.
14Your New Moon[c] festivals and your appointed feasts[d]
my soul hates.[e]
They have become a burden to me;[f]
I am weary[g] of bearing them.
15When you spread out your hands[h] in prayer,
I will hide[i] my eyes from you;
even if you offer many prayers,
I will not listen.[j]
Your hands[k] are full of blood;[l]
16 wash[m] and make yourselves clean.
Take your evil deeds
out of my sight![n]
Stop doing wrong,[o]
17 learn to do right![p] Seek justice,[q]
encourage the oppressed.[ar] Defend the cause of the fatherless,[s] plead the case of the widow.[t] 18"Come now, let us reason together,"[u] says the LORD.
"Though your sins are like scarlet,
they shall be as white as snow;[v]
though they are red as crimson, they shall be like wool.[w] 19If you are willing and obedient,[x]
you will eat the best from the land;[y] 20but if you resist and rebel,[z]
you will be devoured by the sword."[a]
For the mouth of the LORD has spoken.[b]

21See how the faithful city has become a harlot![c]
She once was full of justice; righteousness[d] used to dwell in her—
but now murderers![e] 22Your silver has become dross,[f]
your choice wine is diluted with water.
23Your rulers are rebels,[g] companions of thieves;[h]
they all love bribes[i]
and chase after gifts.
They do not defend the cause of the fatherless;
the widow's case does not come before them.[j] 24Therefore the Lord, the LORD Almighty, the Mighty One[k] of Israel,
declares:
"Ah, I will get relief from my foes and avenge[l] myself on my enemies.[m] 25I will turn my hand against you;[n]
I will thoroughly purge[o] away your dross[p]
and remove all your impurities.[q] 26I will restore your judges as in days of old,[r] your counselors as at the beginning.
Afterward you will be called[s]

[a]17 Or / rebuke the oppressor

(see 66:3; Jer 7:21–26; Hos 6:6; Am 5:21–24; Mic 6:6–8).

1:11 fattened animals. Those kept in confinement for special feeding.

1:14 New Moon festivals. Celebrated on the first day of each Hebrew month. Special sacrifices and feasts were part of the observance (see Nu 28:11–15). appointed feasts. Included the annual feasts, such as Passover, Weeks (Pentecost) and Tabernacles (Ex 23:14–17; 34:18–25; Lev 23; Dt 16:1–17).

1:15 hide my eyes. In 8:17; 59:2 God hides his face from Israel (see also Mic 3:4).

1:17 See Jer 22:16; Jas 1:27. fatherless ... widow. Represented the weak and often oppressed part of society. Rulers were warned not to take advantage of them (see v. 23; 10:2; Jer 22:3).

1:18 scarlet ... crimson. Refers to the blood that has stained the hands of murderers (see vv. 15,21). white as snow. A powerful figurative description of the result of forgiveness (see Ps 51:7). This offer of forgiveness is conditioned on the reformation of life called for in v. 19.

1:19–20 eat ... be devoured. The vivid contrast is stressed by the use of the same Hebrew verb.

1:21 Jerusalem (representing all Judah) has been an unfaithful wife to the Lord. By following idols and foreign gods she has become a harlot in a spiritual sense (see v. 4; Jer 3:6–14; Eze 16:25–26).

1:24 The Lord, the LORD Almighty, the Mighty One of Israel. Stressing God's authority as Judge.

1:25–26 turn ... restore. The use of the same Hebrew verb emphasizes the contrast (see note on vv. 19–20).

1:25 purge away your dross. Purifying fire is also mentioned in 4:4; 48:10.

1:26 Faithful City. See v. 21. Using a related Hebrew noun, Zec 8:3 similarly refers to the future Jerusalem as the "City of Truth."

the City of Righteousness,[t]
the Faithful City.[u]"

[27]Zion will be redeemed with justice, her penitent[v] ones with righteousness.[w] [28]But rebels and sinners[x] will both be broken,
and those who forsake[y] the LORD will perish.[z]

[29]"You will be ashamed[a] because of the sacred oaks[b]
in which you have delighted;
you will be disgraced because of the gardens[c]
that you have chosen.
[30]You will be like an oak with fading leaves,[d]
like a garden without water.
[31]The mighty man will become tinder and his work a spark;
both will burn together,
with no one to quench the fire.[e]"

The Mountain of the LORD

2:1–4pp — Mic 4:1–3

2 This is what Isaiah son of Amoz saw concerning Judah and Jerusalem:[f]

[2]In the last days[g]

the mountain[h] of the LORD's temple will be established as chief among the mountains;[i]
it will be raised[j] above the hills, and all nations will stream to it.[k]

[3]Many peoples[l] will come and say,

"Come, let us go[m] up to the mountain[n] of the LORD, to the house of the God of Jacob.
He will teach us his ways,
so that we may walk in his paths."
The law[o] will go out from Zion, the word of the LORD from Jerusalem.[p]

let us walk in the light[v] of the LORD.

The Day of the LORD

[6]You have abandoned[w] your people,
the house of Jacob.[x]
They are full of superstitions from the East;
they practice divination[y] like the Philistines[z]
and clasp hands[a] with pagans.[b] [7]Their land is full of silver and gold;[c]
there is no end to their treasures.[d]
Their land is full of horses;[e]
there is no end to their chariots.[f] [8]Their land is full of idols;[g] they bow down[h] to the work of their hands,[i]
to what their fingers[j] have made.
[9]So man will be brought low[k] and mankind humbled[l]—
do not forgive them.[b][m]

[b]9 Or not raise them up

1:27–28 This contrast between the redemption of Zion (Jerusalem) as a whole and the perishing of individuals who refuse to repent is developed in 65:8–16.

1:29 sacred oaks ... gardens. Pagan sacrifices were offered and sexual immorality occurred at such places (see 65:3; 66:17).

1:31 fire. A figure of punishment (see 33:11–14; 34:9–10).

2:1 A second introduction, probably relating to chs. 2–4 or to chs. 2–12 (see 13:1).

2:2–5 See note on 4:2–6.

2:2–4 Almost identical to Mic 4:1–3. The theme of the "mountain of the LORD" (Mount Zion) is common in Isaiah; it occurs in passages that depict the coming of both Jews and Gentiles to Jerusalem (Zion) in the last days (see 11:9; 27:13; 56:7; 57:13; 65:25; 66:20; see also 60:3–5; Zec 14:16). Some believe that the peace described in this passage has been inaugurated through the coming of Christ and the preaching of the gospel, and will be consummated at the return of Christ. Others maintain that it is a prophecy of conditions during a future reign of Christ on the earth.

2:2 the last days. Can refer to the future generally (see Ge 49:1), but usually it seems to have in view the Messianic era. In a real sense the last days began with the first coming of Christ (see Ac 2:17; Heb 1:2) and will be fulfilled at his second coming.

2:4 swords into plowshares. The reverse process occurs in Joel 3:10. What is here called a plowshare was actually an iron point mounted on a wooden beam. Ancient plows did not have a plowshare proper.

2:6 East. Probably means Aram (Syria) and Mesopotamia. divination like the Philistines. See 1Sa 6:2; see also Dt 18:10–11 for a description of such practices.

2:7 silver and gold ... horses. Accumulating large quantities of these was forbidden to the king (Dt 17:16–17). They usually led to a failure to trust in God (see 31:1).

2:10,19,21 These verses form a refrain that builds to a climax in v. 21. Lines 3–4 of each verse are identical.

2:10 rocks ... ground. During times of severe oppression the Israelites took refuge in caves and holes in the ground (see Jdg 6:1–2; 1Sa 13:6). majesty. The Hebrew for this hide[n] in the ground

from dread of the LORD
and the splendor of his majesty![o] [11]The eyes of the arrogant[p] man will be humbled[q] and the pride[r] of men brought low;[s]
the LORD alone will be exalted[t] in that day.[u]

[12]The LORD Almighty has a day[v] in store for all the proud[w] and lofty,[x] for all that is exalted[y]
(and they will be humbled),[z]
[13]for all the cedars of Lebanon,[a] tall and lofty,[b] and all the oaks of Bashan,[c] [14]for all the towering mountains and all the high hills,[d] [15]for every lofty tower[e] and every fortified wall,[f] [16]for every trading ship[c][g]
and every stately vessel.
[17]The arrogance of man will be brought low[h] and the pride of men humbled;[i]
the LORD alone will be exalted in that day,[j] [18] and the idols[k] will totally disappear.[l]

[19]Men will flee to caves[m] in the rocks and to holes in the ground[n]
from dread[o] of the LORD and the splendor of his majesty,[p]
when he rises to shake the earth.[q] [20]In that day[r] men will throw away to the rodents and bats[s] their idols of silver and idols of gold,[t] which they made to worship.[u] [21]They will flee to caverns in the rocks[v] and to the overhanging crags
from dread of the LORD
and the splendor of his majesty,[w]
when he rises[x] to shake the earth.[y]

[22]Stop trusting in man,[z] who has but a breath[a] in his nostrils.
Of what account is he?[b]

Judgment on Jerusalem and Judah

3 See now, the Lord,
the LORD Almighty, is about to take from Jerusalem and Judah
both supply and support:[c] all supplies of food[d] and all supplies of water,[e] [2] the hero and warrior,[f]
the judge and prophet,
the soothsayer[g] and elder,[h] [3]the captain of fifty[i] and man of rank,[j]
the counselor, skilled craftsman[k] and clever enchanter.[l]

[4]I will make boys their officials; mere children will govern them.[m] [5]People will oppress each other—man against man, neighbor against neighbor.[n]
The young will rise up against the old,
the base against the honorable.

[6]A man will seize one of his brothers at his father's home, and say,

[c] 16 Hebrew every ship of Tarshish word is translated "pride" when used of man. Pride is an attempt by man to be his own god (see 14:13–14).

2:11,17,20 in that day. The phrase occurs seven times in chs. 2–4 (see 3:7,18; 4:1–2). The day of the Lord (see also v. 12) is a time of judgment and/or blessing as God intervenes decisively in the affairs of the nations (see Zep 1:14–2:3). Assyria and Babylon would bring the terror of judgment upon Judah in Isaiah's day (5:30).

2:13 cedars of Lebanon. Even inanimate things that people stand in awe of will be humbled so that "the LORD alone will be exalted" (v. 11). Bashan. A region east of the Jordan River and north of Gilead. It was famous for its oaks (Eze 27:6) and its animals (Eze 39:18).

2:16 trading ship. These "ships of Tarshish" (see NIV text note) were large vessels such as those used by Solomon (1Ki 10:22) and the Phoenicians (Isa 23:1,14) to ply the sea in far-flung commercial ventures.

2:20 The futility of worshiping idols is repeatedly noted by Isaiah (see, e.g., 30:22; 31:7; 40:19–20; 44:9–20). See also note on 40:18–20.

2:22 Stop trusting in man. Lit. "Cease from man" or "Give up on man." The term describes the rejection of the Messiah in 53:3. Ironically, the one Man who should have been trusted and "esteemed" (equals "of what account" here) was "rejected," "given up on" by men. He alone was worthy of the esteem wrongly given to frail leaders.

3:1–3 Leaders would be taken away by either death or deportation (see 2Ki 24:14; 25:18–21).

3:2–3 soothsayer ... enchanter. Occult practitioners and snake charmers (see Dt 18:10; Jer 8:17), whose activities were condemned. Both legitimate and illegitimate kinds of assistance would be removed or deported (see 2Ki 24:14–16; Hos 3:4).

3:3 captain of fifty. A company of 50 was a common military unit (see 2Ki 1:9). It was also used for civil groupings (Ex 18:25).

3:6 Normally it was unnecessary to force anyone to be a leader. In 4:1 the same social upheaval is seen as seven women "take hold of" one man. You have a cloak. Perhaps the one brother was not as poor as the others. heap of ruins. Probably Jerusalem (v. 8).

"You have a cloak, you be our leader;
take charge of this heap of ruins!"
7But in that day[o] he will cry out,
"I have no remedy.[p]
I have no food[q] or clothing in my house;
do not make me the leader of the people."[r]

8Jerusalem staggers, Judah is falling;[s]
their words[t] and deeds[u] are against the LORD, defying[v] his glorious presence.
9The look on their faces testifies[w] against them;
they parade their sin like Sodom;[x]
they do not hide it.
Woe to them!
They have brought disaster[y] upon themselves.

10Tell the righteous it will be well[z] with them, for they will enjoy the fruit of their deeds.[a] 11Woe to the wicked![b] Disaster[c] is upon them!
They will be paid back[d] for what their hands have done.[e]

12Youths[f] oppress my people, women rule over them.
O my people, your guides lead you astray;[g]
they turn you from the path.

13The LORD takes his place in court;[h]
he rises to judge[i] the people.
14The LORD enters into judgment[j] against the elders and leaders of his people:
"It is you who have ruined my vineyard;
the plunder[k] from the poor[l] is in your houses.
15What do you mean by crushing my people[m] and grinding[n] the faces of the poor?"[o]
declares the Lord,
the LORD Almighty.[p]

16The LORD says,
"The women of Zion[q] are haughty, walking along with outstretched necks,[r]
flirting with their eyes, tripping along with mincing steps,
with ornaments jingling on their ankles.
17Therefore the Lord will bring sores on the heads of the women of Zion;
the LORD will make their scalps bald.[s]"

18In that day[t] the Lord will snatch away their finery: the bangles and headbands and crescent necklaces,[u] 19the earrings and bracelets[v] and veils,[w] 20the headdresses[x] and ankle chains and sashes, the perfume bottles and charms, 21the signet rings and nose rings,[y] 22the fine robes and the capes and cloaks,[z] the purses 23and mirrors, and the linen garments[a] and tiaras[b] and shawls.

24Instead of fragrance[c] there will be a stench;[d] instead of a sash,[e] a rope;
instead of well-dressed hair, baldness;[f]
instead of fine clothing, sackcloth;[g] instead of beauty,[h] branding.[i] 25Your men will fall by the sword,[j] your warriors in battle.[k] 26The gates[l] of Zion will lament and mourn;[m] destitute,[n] she will sit on the ground.[o]

4 In that day[p] seven women will take hold of one man[q] and say, "We will eat our own food[r] and provide our own clothes;

3:8 Judah is falling. Consummated almost 150 years later.
3:9 Sodom. See note on 1:9–10.
3:12 In the Near East, neither the rule of the young nor that of women was looked on with favor.
3:14 vineyard. Represents Israel (see 5:1).
3:15 The leaders were grinding the poor, as men grind grain between two millstones.
3:16–24 For a NT warning against overemphasis on outward adornment see 1Pe 3:3–4.
3:16 walking . . . tripping along. In the Near East the way one walked communicated specific attitudes. Ornaments on ankles made short steps necessary.
3:17 bald. Baldness was associated with mourning over catastrophe (see v. 24; 15:2).
3:18 crescent necklaces. Probably moon-shaped; they implied veneration of the popular moon-god.
3:20 headdresses. Perhaps a kind of turban (see Eze 24:17,23).
3:21 signet rings. Contained a seal and were a mark of authority (see Ge 41:42 and note). nose rings. Sometimes made of gold and worn by brides.
3:24 rope . . . branding. Captives were treated like cattle. They were led away by ropes and sometimes branded.
3:26 gates of Zion. The gates are personified, as in Ps 24:7,9. They will lament because the crowds that used to assemble there are gone.
4:1–2 In that day. See notes on 2:2 and 2:11,17,20. After judgment comes salvation.
4:1 See note on 3:6. War will decimate the male population (3:25; see 13:12), leaving many women with the double disgrace of being widows and childless. See 54:4.

only let us be called by your name.
Take away our disgrace!"[s]

The Branch of the LORD

2In that day[t] the Branch of the LORD[u] will be beautiful[v] and glorious, and the fruit[w] of the land will be the pride and glory[x] of the survivors[y] in Israel. 3Those who are left in Zion,[z] who remain[a] in Jerusalem, will be called holy,[b] all who are recorded[c] among the living in Jerusalem. 4The Lord will wash away the filth[d] of the women of Zion;[e] he will cleanse[f] the bloodstains[g] from Jerusalem by a spirit[d] of judgment[h] and a spirit[d] of fire.[i] 5Then the LORD will create[j] over all of Mount Zion[k] and over those who assemble there a cloud of smoke by day and a glow of flaming fire by night;[l] over all the glory[m] will be a canopy.[n] 6It will be a shelter[o] and shade from the heat of the day, and a refuge[p] and hiding place from the storm[q] and rain.

The Song of the Vineyard

5 I will sing for the one I love
a song about his vineyard:[r]
My loved one had a vineyard on a fertile hillside.
2He dug it up and cleared it of stones and planted it with the choicest vines.[s]
He built a watchtower[t] in it and cut out a winepress[u] as well.
Then he looked for a crop of good grapes,
but it yielded only bad fruit.[v]

3"Now you dwellers in Jerusalem and men of Judah,
judge between me and my vineyard.[w] 4What more could have been done for my vineyard than I have done for it?[x]
When I looked for good grapes, why did it yield only bad?[y] 5Now I will tell you what I am going to do to my vineyard:
I will take away its hedge,
and it will be destroyed;[z]
I will break down its wall,[a]
and it will be trampled.[b] 6I will make it a wasteland,[c] neither pruned nor cultivated, and briers and thorns[d] will grow
there.
I will command the clouds not to rain[e] on it."

7The vineyard[f] of the LORD Almighty is the house of Israel, and the men of Judah
are the garden of his delight.
And he looked for justice,[g] but saw bloodshed;
for righteousness,[h] but heard cries of distress.[i]

[d]4 Or the Spirit

4:2–6 An oracle of redemption just before the long message of indictment and judgment in ch. 5. It balances that found in 2:2–5, which immediately follows the long message of indictment and judgment in ch. 1 (see note on 1:1–31). These two oracles of redemption were intended to complement each other.

4:2–3 survivors . . . are left. See note on 1:9.

4:2 Branch. A Messianic title related to the "shoot" and "Branch" (11:1; 53:2) descended from David—but some believe that here "branch" refers to Judah. pride. A legitimate pride in the fruitfulness of the land that will characterize the Messiah's reign (see Ps 72:3,6,16). Contrast the pride of 2:11,17. glory. Here the fruitfulness of the land will be Israel's glory; in 46:13 God's salvation will be her glory ("splendor"); in 60:19 God himself will be her glory.

4:3 holy. Means "set apart" to God. See 1:26; 6:13; see also Zec 14:20.

4:4 judgment . . . fire. Purifying fire is also mentioned in 1:25; 48:10.

4:5–6 cloud . . . fire . . . shelter. These words recall Israel's desert wanderings, when the pillar of cloud and fire guided and protected the people (Ex 13:21–22; 14:21–22). Isaiah often refers to the time of the exodus (see 11:15–16; 31:5; 51:10).

4:5 the glory. The manifestation of God's presence represented by a glow of flaming fire (see Ex 16:10; 24:17; 40:34–35). canopy. The cloud of smoke.

4:6 God's presence in cloud and fire will protect and preserve redeemed Zion (cf. Ps 121:5–6).

5:1–30 See note on 1:1–31.

5:1 loved one. God. vineyard. Israel (see v. 7; 3:14; Ps 80:8–16). Jesus' parable of the tenants (Mt 21:33–44; Mk 12:1–11; Lk 20:9–18) is probably based on this song. See Jn 15:1–17.

5:2 watchtower. Contrast the more modest "shelter" of 1:8. God's vineyard had every advantage (see Mt 21:33). winepress. Or "wine vat," a trough into which the grape juice flowed (see 16:10). he looked for . . . but. The interpretation (v. 7) uses the same expression.

5:6 briers and thorns. This pair occurs five more times (7:23–25; 9:18; 27:4). not to rain. The withholding of rain constituted a curse on the land. See Dt 28:23–24; 2Sa 1:21; 1Ki 17:1.

5:7 The song of the vineyard (vv. 1–6) is now interpreted. A powerful play on words makes the point: The words for "justice" and "bloodshed" (mishpaṭ and mispaḥ) sound alike, as do those for "righteousness" (ṣedaqah) and "distress" (ṣe'aqah).

5:8–23 A series of six woes are pronounced (vv. 8, 11–12, and join field to field[k] till no space is left and you live alone in the land.

9The LORD Almighty[l] has declared in my hearing:[m]

"Surely the great houses will become desolate,[n]
the fine mansions left without occupants.
10A ten-acre[e] vineyard will produce only a bath[f] of wine, a homer[g] of seed only an ephah[h] of grain."[o]

11Woe[p] to those who rise early in the morning to run after their drinks, who stay up late at night
till they are inflamed with wine.[q] 12They have harps and lyres at their banquets, tambourines[r] and flutes[s] and wine,
but they have no regard[t] for the deeds of the LORD,
no respect for the work of his hands.[u] 13Therefore my people will go into exile[v] for lack of understanding;[w] their men of rank[x] will die of hunger and their masses will be parched with thirst.[y] 14Therefore the grave[i][z] enlarges its appetite and opens its mouth[a] without limit;
into it will descend their nobles and masses with all their brawlers and revelers.[b] 15So man will be brought low[c] and mankind humbled,[d]
the eyes of the arrogant[e] humbled.
16But the LORD Almighty will be exalted[f] by his justice,[g] and the holy God will show himself holy[h] by his righteousness.
17Then sheep will graze as in their own pasture;[i] lambs will feed[j] among the ruins of the rich.

18Woe[j] to those who draw sin along with cords[k] of deceit, and wickedness[l] as with cart ropes, 19to those who say, "Let God hurry, let him hasten[m] his work
so we may see it.
Let it approach,
let the plan of the Holy One[n] of Israel come,
so we may know it."[o]

20Woe[p] to those who call evil good[q] and good evil,[r]
who put darkness for light and light for darkness,[s] who put bitter for sweet and sweet for bitter.[t]

21Woe to those who are wise in their own eyes[u] and clever in their own sight.

22Woe to those who are heroes at drinking wine[v] and champions at mixing drinks,[w] 23who acquit the guilty for a bribe,[x]
but deny justice[y] to the innocent.[z] 24Therefore, as tongues of fire[a] lick up straw[b] and as dry grass sinks down in the flames, so their roots will decay[c]
and their flowers blow away like dust;[d] for they have rejected the law of the LORD Almighty and spurned the word[e] of the Holy One[f] of Israel.

5:8 house to house ... field to field. Land in Israel could only be leased, never sold, because parcels had been permanently assigned to individual families (see Nu 27:7–11; 1Ki 21:1–3).

5:10 ephah. A tenth of a homer. Meager crops often accompanied national sin (Dt 28:38–39; Hag 2:16–17). The amount of wine and grain is only a tiny fraction of what a ten-acre vineyard and a homer of seed would normally produce.

5:11–13 See Am 4:1–3; 6:6–7, where a style of life characterized by drunkenness and revelry is likewise condemned.

5:14 grave. See note on Ge 37:35. The grave has an insatiable appetite (see Hab 2:5).

5:18 Contrast Hos 11:4, where God leads his people with "cords of human kindness."

5:19 The Hebrew for the words "hurry" and "hasten" corresponds to that of the first and third elements of the name "Maher-Shalal-Hash-Baz" (see NIV text note on 8:1). When Isaiah named his son (8:3), he may have been responding to the sarcastic taunts of these sinners. God did bring swift judgment, according to v. 26. Holy One of Israel. See 1:4 and note.

5:22 mixing drinks. Spices were added to beer and wine (see Pr 23:30).

5:23 See 1:23; 10:1–2.

5:24 spurned ... the Holy One of Israel. See v. 19; see also 1:4 and note.

25 Therefore the LORD's anger[g] burns against his people;
his hand is raised and he strikes them down.
The mountains shake,[h] and the dead bodies[i] are like refuse[j] in the streets.[k]

Yet for all this, his anger is not turned away,[l]
his hand is still upraised.[m]

26 He lifts up a banner[n] for the distant
nations,
he whistles[o] for those at the ends of the earth.[p]
Here they come,
swiftly and speedily!
27 Not one of them grows tired[q] or stumbles,
not one slumbers or sleeps;
not a belt[r] is loosened at the waist,[s]
not a sandal thong is broken.[t] 28 Their arrows are sharp,[u]
all their bows[v] are strung;
their horses' hoofs[w] seem like flint, their chariot wheels like a whirlwind.[x]
29 Their roar is like that of the lion,[y]
they roar like young lions;
they growl as they seize[z] their prey and carry it off with no one to rescue.[a] 30 In that day[b] they will roar over it like the roaring of the sea.[c]
And if one looks at the land, he will see darkness[d] and distress;[e]
even the light will be darkened[f]
by the clouds.

Isaiah's Commission

6 In the year that King Uzziah[g] died,[h] I saw the Lord[i] seated on a throne,[j] high and exalted,[k] and the train of his robe[l] filled the temple. 2 Above him were seraphs,[m] each with six wings: With two wings they covered their faces, with two they covered their feet,[n] and with two they were flying. 3 And they were calling to one another:

"Holy, holy[o], holy is the LORD Almighty;[p]
the whole earth[q] is full of his glory."[r]

4 At the sound of their voices the doorposts and thresholds shook and the temple was filled with smoke.[s]

5 "Woe[t] to me!" I cried. "I am ruined![u] For I am a man of unclean lips,[v w] and I live among a people of unclean lips,[x] and my eyes have seen[y] the King,[z] the LORD Almighty."[a]

6 Then one of the seraphs flew to me with a live coal[b] in his hand, which he

5:25 The mountains shake. When God takes action, even the mountains tremble (see 64:3; Jer 4:24–26). This is the language of theophany (a manifestation or appearance of God). Yet ... upraised. A refrain repeated in 9:12,17,21; 10:4.

5:26 lifts up a banner. A pole with a banner was often placed on a hill as a signal for gathering troops (13:2) or for summoning the nations to bring Israel back home (11:10,12; 49:22; 62:10). distant nations. Such as Assyria, whose armies struck Israel and Judah in 722 and 701 B.C., and Babylon, which began its invasions in 605. those at the ends of the earth. Nations like Egypt and Assyria.

5:27 Not one ... grows tired or stumbles. Cf. the use of these terms in 40:29–31.

5:30 In that day. See note on 2:11,17,20. darkness and distress. Similar words describe the horrors of war in 8:22.

6:1 the year that King Uzziah died. 740 B.C. Isaiah's commission probably preceded his preaching ministry; the account was postponed to serve as a climax to the opening series of oracles and to provide warrant for the shocking announcements of judgment they contain. The people had mocked the "Holy One of Israel" (5:19), and now he has commissioned Isaiah to call them to account. Uzziah reigned from 792 to 740 and was a godly and powerful king. When he insisted on burning incense in the temple, however, he was struck with leprosy and remained leprous until his death (2Ch 26:16–21). He was also called Azariah (2Ki 14:21; 2Ch 26:1). I saw. Probably in a vision in the temple. the Lord. The true King (see v. 5). high and exalted. The same Hebrew words are applied to God in 57:15, and similar terms are used of the suffering servant in 52:13. train of his robe. A long, flowing garment. Cf. the robe of the "son of man" in Rev 1:13. temple. Probably the heavenly temple, with which the earthly temple was closely associated. John's vision of God on his throne is similar (Rev 4:1–8).

6:2 seraphs. See v. 6; angelic beings not mentioned elsewhere. The Hebrew root underlying this word means "burn," perhaps to indicate their purity as God's ministers. (It refers to venomous snakes in 14:29; 30:6; see Nu 21:6.) They correspond to the "living creatures" of Rev 4:6–9, each of whom also had six wings. covered their faces. Apparently they could not gaze directly at the glory of God.

6:3 Holy, holy, holy. The repetition underscores God's infinite holiness. Note the triple use of "the temple of the LORD" in Jer 7:4 to stress the people's confidence in the security of Jerusalem because of the presence of that sanctuary. full of his glory. In Nu 14:21–22; Ps 72:18–19 the worldwide glory of God is linked with his miraculous signs.

6:4 doorposts ... shook ... filled with smoke. Similarly the power of God's voice terrified the Israelites at Mount Sinai, and the mountain was covered with smoke (see Ex 19:18–19; 20:18–19).

6:5 eyes have seen the King. Isaiah was dismayed because anyone who saw God expected to die immediately (see Ge 16:13; 32:30 and notes; Ex 33:20).

6:6 live coal. Coals of fire were taken inside the Most Holy Place on the Day of Atonement (Lev 16:12), when sacrifice was made to atone for sin. See note on 1:25.

7With it he touched my mouth and said,
"See, this has touched your lips;[c] your guilt is taken away and your sin atoned for.[d]"

8Then I heard the voice[e] of the Lord saying, "Whom shall I send?[f] And who will go for us?[g]"

And I said, "Here am I.[h] Send me!"

9He said, "Go[i] and tell this people:

" 'Be ever hearing, but never understanding;
be ever seeing, but never 10Make the heart of this people calloused;[k]

make their ears dull and close their eyes.[k][l] Otherwise they might see with their eyes,

and turn and be healed."[n]

11Then I said, "For how long,
O Lord?"[o]

And he answered:

"Until the cities lie ruined[p] until the houses are left deserted[q] and the fields ruined and ravaged,[r] 12until the Lord has sent everyone far

The Sign of Immanuel

7 When Ahaz[z] son of Jotham, the son of Uzziah, was king of Judah, King Rezin[a] of Aram[b] and Pekah[c] son of Remaliah[d] king of Israel marched up to fight against Jerusalem, but they could not overpower it.

2Now the house of David[e] was told,
"Aram has allied itself with[1] Ephraim[f]"; so the hearts of Ahaz and his people were shaken,[g] as the trees of the forest are shaken by the wind.

3Then the Lord said to Isaiah, "Go out, you and your son Shear-Jashub,[m][h] to meet Ahaz at the end of the aqueduct of the Upper Pool, on the road to the Wash-erman's Field.[i] 4Say to him, 'Be careful, keep calm[j] and don't be afraid.[k] Do not lose heart[l] because of these two smoldering stubs[m] of firewood—because of the fierce anger[n] of Rezin and Aram and of the son of Remaliah.[o] 5Aram, Ephraim and Remaliah's[p] son have plotted[q] your ruin, saying, 6"Let us invade Judah; let us tear it apart and divide it among ourselves, and make the [m] 3 Shear-Jashub means a remnant will return.

---

6:7 touched my mouth. When God commissioned Jeremiah, his hand touched the prophet's mouth (Jer 1:9).

6:8–10 Isaiah's prophetic commission will have the ironic but justly deserved effect of hardening the callous hearts of rebellious Israel—and so rendering the warnings of judgment sure (see vv. 11–13). See also Jer 1:8,19; Eze 2:3–4.

6:8 for us. The heavenly King speaks in the divine council. As a true prophet, Isaiah is made privy to that council, as were Micaiah (1Ki 22:19–20) and Jeremiah (23:18,22). Cf. Ge 1:26; 11:7; Am 3:7. Here am I. See note on Ge 22:1.

6:9–10 Quoted by Jesus in the parable of the sower (Mt 13:14–15; Mk 4:12; Lk 8:10). See also Ro 11:7–10,25.

6:10 heart ... ears ... eyes ... eyes ... ears ... hearts. The a-b-c/c-b-a inversion is called a "chiastic" arrangement, a common literary device in the OT. ears dull ... close their eyes. Israel's deafness and blindness are also mentioned in 29:9; 42:18; 43:8. One day, however, the nation will be able to see and hear (29:18; 35:5).

6:12 far away. See 5:13.

6:13 a tenth. A remnant—even it will be laid waste. holy seed. The few who are faithful in Israel (cf. 1Ki 19:18; see note on 1:9). stump. Out of which the nation will grow again. For a similar use of this imagery see 11:1.

7:1–12:6 The second section of Isaiah's prophecies, climaxing in the songs of praise found in ch. 12.

7:1 The invasion of Rezin and Pekah (probably in 735/734 B.C.) is known as the Syro-Ephraimite War. Aram (Syria) and Israel (Ephraim; see note on v. 2) were trying unsuccessfully to persuade Ahaz to join a coalition against Assyria, which had strong designs on lands to the west. Isaiah was trying to keep Ahaz from forming a counteralliance with Assyria (see 2Ki 16:5–18; 2Ch 28:16–21). Pekah. Ruled 752–732 B.C. (see 2Ki 15:27–31).

7:2 house of David. A reference to Ahaz, who belonged to David's dynasty (see 2Sa 7:8–11). Ephraim. Another name for Israel, the northern kingdom. hearts ... were shaken. Ahaz had been defeated by Aram and Israel earlier (2Ch 28:5–8).

7:3 Shear-Jashub. See NIV text note; see also 10:21–22. Isaiah gave each of his sons symbolic names (see 8:1,3,18). aqueduct of the Upper Pool. Location unknown. Ahaz was probably inspecting the city's water supply. Washerman's Field. Clothes were cleaned by trampling on them in cold water and using a kind of soap (soda) or bleach (see Mal 3:2; Mk 9:3).

7:4 two smoldering stubs. Damascus (Aram's capital; see v. 8) was crushed by Tiglath-Pileser III in 732 B.C., and Israel was soundly defeated the same year.

7:6 Tabeel. An Aramaic name sometimes associated with the "land of Tob" east of the Jordan River (see Jdg 11:3).

son of Tabeel king over it." 7Yet this is what the Sovereign LORD says:[r]

" 'It will not take place,
it will not happen,[s] 8for the head of Aram is Damascus,[t] and the head of Damascus is only Rezin.[u]
Within sixty-five years Ephraim will be too shattered[v] to be a people.
9The head of Ephraim is Samaria,[w]
and the head of Samaria is only Remaliah's son.
If you do not stand[x] firm in your faith,[y]
you will not stand at all.' "[z]

10Again the LORD spoke to Ahaz, 11"Ask the LORD your God for a sign,[a] whether in the deepest depths or in the highest heights.[b]"

12But Ahaz said, "I will not ask; I will not put the LORD to the test.[c]"

13Then Isaiah said, "Hear now, you house of David![d] Is it not enough[e] to try the patience of men? Will you try the patience[f] of my God[g] also? 14Therefore the Lord himself will give you[n] a sign:[h] The virgin[i] will be with child and will give birth to a son,[j] and[o] will call him Immanuel.[p k] 15He will eat curds[l] and honey[m] when he knows enough to reject the wrong and choose the right. 16But before the boy knows[n] enough to reject the wrong and choose the right,[o] the land of the two kings you dread will be laid waste.[p] 17The LORD will bring on you and on your people and on the house of your father a time unlike any since Ephraim broke away[q] from Judah—he will bring the king of Assyria.[r]"

18In that day[s] the LORD will whistle[t] for flies from the distant streams of Egypt and for bees from the land of Assyria.[u] 19They will all come and settle in the steep ravines and in the crevices[v] in the rocks, on all the thornbushes[w] and at all the water holes. 20In that day[x] the Lord will use[y] a razor hired from beyond the River[q z]—the king of Assyria[a]—to shave your head and the hair of your legs, and to take off your beards[b] also.[c] 21In that day,[d] a man will keep alive a young cow and two goats.[e] 22And because of the abundance of the milk they give, he will have curds to eat. All who remain in the land will eat curds[f] and honey.[g] 23In that day,[h] in every place where there were a thousand vines worth a thousand silver shekels,[r i] there will be only briers and

[n] 14 The Hebrew is plural. [o] 14 Masoretic Text; Dead Sea Scrolls and he or and they [p] 14 Immanuel means God with us. [q] 20 That is, the Euphrates
[r] 23 That is, about 25 pounds (about 11.5 kilograms)

7:8 Within sixty-five years. By c. 670 B.C. Esarhaddon (and, shortly after him, Ashurbanipal) king of Assyria settled foreign colonists in Israel. Their intermarriage with the few Israelites who had not been deported resulted in the "Samaritans" (see 2Ki 17:24–34 and note on 2Ki 17:29) and marked the end of Ephraim as a separate nation.

7:9 only Remaliah's son. Pekah was a usurper and hardly worthy to challenge Ahaz, a son of David. Aram (v. 8) and Israel (v. 9) had human heads. Judah had a divine head; God was with them (v. 14; 8:8,10). stand firm ... stand. The use of the same Hebrew verb emphasizes the seriousness of the Lord's warning (see 1:19–20,25–26 and notes).

7:11 a sign. God was willing to strengthen the faith of Ahaz through a sign (see Ex 3:12).

7:13 house of David. See note on v. 2.

7:14 sign. A sign was normally fulfilled within a few years (see 20:3; 37:30; cf. 8:18). virgin. May refer to a young woman betrothed to Isaiah (8:3), who was to become his second wife (his first wife presumably having died after Shear-Jashub was born). In Ge 24:43 the same Hebrew word ('almah) refers to a woman about to be married (see also Pr 30:19). Mt 1:23 apparently understood the woman mentioned here to be a type (a foreshadowing) of the Virgin Mary. Immanuel. The name "God is with us" was meant to convince Ahaz that God could rescue him from his enemies. See Nu 14:9; 2Ch 13:12; Ps 46:7. "Immanuel" is used again in 8:8,10, and it may be another name for Maher-Shalal-Hash-Baz (8:3). If so, the boy's names had complementary significance (see note on 8:3). Jesus was the final fulfillment of this prophecy, for he was "God with us" in the fullest sense (Mt 1:23; cf. Isa 9:6–7).

7:15 curds and honey. Curds (a kind of yogurt) and honey meant a return to the simple diet of those who lived off the land. The Assyrian invasion would devastate the countryside and make farming impossible. (See vv. 22–25 for the significance of the expression.) when he knows ... wrong ... right. Suggests the age of moral determination and responsibility under the law—most likely 12 or 13 years of age. Thus, "when" this boy is 12 or 13 (722/721 B.C.), he will be eating curds and honey instead of agricultural products—due to the devastation of Israel by Assyria. Some believe that this expression involves a shorter period of time, identical to that in v. 16 and 8:4.

7:16 before the boy knows ... land ... laid waste. See note on v. 4; cf. 8:4. "Before" the boy is 12 or 13 years old, Aram and Israel will be plundered. This happened in 732 B.C., when the boy was about two years old.

7:17 Ephraim broke away from Judah. Almost two centuries earlier (see 1Ki 12:19–20). king of Assyria. Ahaz's appeal to Assyria would bring temporary relief (2Ki 16:8–9), but eventually Assyria would attack Judah (see 8:7–8; 36:1).

7:18,20,23 In that day. Their difficulties will be a foretaste of the "day of the LORD." See note on 2:11,17,20.

7:18 flies ... bees. See Ex 23:28 and note.

7:19 crevices in the rocks. See note on 2:10. It will be impossible to escape from the invaders.

7:20 shave ... head ... beards. The forcible shaving of the beard was considered a great insult (2Sa 10:4–5). In times of mourning, a man would shave his own head and beard (see 15:2; see also note on 3:17).

7:23 briers and thorns. See note on 5:6. The destruction of the vineyards and the farmlands would fulfill 5:5–6.

thorns.[j] 24Men will go there with bow and arrow, for the land will be covered with briers[k] and thorns. 25As for all the hills[l] once cultivated by the hoe, you will no longer go there for fear of the briers and thorns;[m] they will become places where cattle are turned loose and where sheep run.[n]

Assyria, the LORD's Instrument

8 The LORD said to me, "Take a large scroll[o] and write on it with an ordinary pen: Maher-Shalal-Hash-Baz.[s p] 2And I will call in Uriah[q] the priest and Zechariah son of Jeberekiah as reliable witnesses[r] for me."

3Then I went to the prophetess,[s] and she conceived and gave birth to a son.[t] And the LORD said to me, "Name him Maher-Shalal-Hash-Baz.[u] 4Before the boy knows[v] how to say 'My father' or 'My mother,' the wealth of Damascus[w] and the plunder of Samaria will be carried off by the king of Assyria.[x]"

5The LORD spoke to me again:

6"Because this people has rejected[y]
the gently flowing waters of Shiloah[z]
and rejoices over Rezin and the son of Remaliah,[a] 7therefore the Lord is about to bring against them
the mighty floodwaters[b] of the the king of Assyria[c] with all his pomp.[d]

It will overflow all its channels, run over all its banks[e] 8and sweep on into Judah, swirling over it,[f]
passing through it and reaching up to the neck.
Its outspread wings[g] will cover the breadth of your land,

9Raise the war cry,[v i] you nations,

Fear God

11The LORD spoke to me with his strong hand upon me,[o] warning me not to follow[p] the way of this people. He said:

12"Do not call conspiracy[q] everything that these people call do not fear what they fear,[r] and do not dread it.[s] 13The LORD Almighty is the one you are

8:1–2 scroll ... witnesses. The witnesses would attest to a legal transaction, either the marriage of Isaiah (see note on 7:14) or a symbolic deed connected with Maher-Shalal-Hash-Baz. The Hebrew word for "scroll" is related to the word for "unsealed copy" in Jer 32:11.

8:2 Uriah the priest. Served under King Ahaz (see 2Ki 16:10–11).

8:3–10 See 7:14–17.

8:3 prophetess ... son. Probably the initial fulfillment of 7:14. This is the only known case of a prophetess (see note on Ex 15:20) marrying a prophet. But the young woman may be called a prophetess here because she had become the wife of a prophet. Maher-Shalal-Hash-Baz. This symbolic name (see NIV text note on v. 1) meant that Ahaz's enemies would be plundered (see v. 4 and note on 7:4), but it also implied that Judah would suffer (see vv. 7–8).

8:4 knows how to say. At about age two. The time period is identical to that in 7:16 (see notes on 7:4,16). plunder of Samaria will be carried off. The first stage of the destruction of the northern kingdom (see note on 7:4), which was not completed until 722–721 B.C. (see note on 7:15).

8:6 waters of Shiloah. The waters in Jerusalem that flow from the Gihon spring (see 2Ch 32:30) to the Pool of Siloam (see Jn 9:7) may be intended (see Ne 3:15). Here they symbolize the sustaining power of the Lord. Rezin and the son of Remaliah. Rezin and Pekah both died in 732 B.C. (see 2Ki 16:9; see note on Isa 7:1).

8:7–8 floodwaters ... sweep on. Mighty rivers were often used to symbolize a powerful invading army (see 28:17–19).

8:8 up to the neck. Sennacherib's invasion in 701 B.C. overwhelmed all the cities of Judah except Jerusalem (see 1:7–9). outspread wings. The figure changes to a bird of prey, perhaps the eagle, renowned for its speed. Immanuel. All seems lost, but "God is with us" (v. 10) and defeats the enemy (see note on 7:14).

8:9 nations ... be shattered. Just as Aram and Israel would be shattered (7:7–9), so Assyria and Babylon would eventually fall.

8:10 it will not stand. Only God's plans and purposes will last.

8:11 his strong hand upon me. See Eze 1:3; 37:1; 40:1. The prophets were conscious of God's presence in and control over their lives.

8:12 conspiracy. Isaiah's warning against relying on Assyria was considered treason (see note on 7:1; cf. Jer 37:13–14).

8:13 the one you are to fear. See 7:2; Pr 1:7.

8:14 sanctuary ... stone ... fall. Either the Lord is the cornerstone of our lives (see 28:16) or he is a rock over which we fall. See Ro 9:33; 1Pe 2:6–8 for an application to Christ. both houses. The northern and south-

9 Nevertheless, there will be no more gloom[x] for those who were in distress. In the past he humbled the land of Zebulun and the land of Naphtali,[y] but in the future he will honor Galilee of the Gentiles, by the way of the sea, along the Jordan—

8:16 Perhaps a reference to the legal transaction connected with vv. 1–2 (see note there). testimony. See v. 20. By preserving Isaiah's teaching ("the law"), his disciples could later prove that his predictions had come true. This term occurs elsewhere only in Ru 4:7 ("method of legalizing transactions"). law. The Hebrew for this word can also mean "teaching" or "instruction." The legal document containing Isaiah's teaching about Assyria's invasion was tied and sealed and then given to the prophet's followers, who were to preserve it until the time of its fulfillment, when God would authenticate it by the events of history (see Jer 32:12–14,44).

8:17–18 In Heb 2:13 these verses are applied to Christ.

8:17 hiding his face. See 1:15; 59:2; Mic 3:4.

8:18 signs and symbols. See notes on 7:3,14; cf. 20:3.

8:19 mediums and spiritists. In the present crisis, people were turning to the spirits of the dead (necromancy), as King Saul did when he went to a medium to contact the spirit of Samuel (1Sa 28:8–11) and learn about the future. See note on 3:2–3.

8:20 the law . . . the testimony. See v. 16 and note. Only by heeding the Lord's word through Isaiah—reinforced by the "signs and symbols" (v. 18) that Isaiah and his sons represented—would the light dawn for Israel.

8:21–22 The Assyrian invasion would bring deep distress on all Israel.

8:21 curse . . . king and . . . God. Because of their terrible suffering (cf. Pr 19:3)—but severe punishment awaited anyone who cursed God or a ruler (Ex 22:28; Lev 24:15–16).

9:1 Naphtali. This tribe in northern Israel suffered greatly when the Assyrian Tiglath-Pileser III attacked in 734 and 732 B.C. (2Ki 15:29). will honor Galilee. Fulfilled when Jesus ministered in Capernaum—near the major highway from Egypt to Damascus, called the "way of the sea" (Mt 4:13–15).

9:2 great light. Jesus and his salvation would be a "light for the Gentiles" (42:6; 49:6).

9:4 Midian's defeat. Gideon defeated the hordes of Midian and broke their domination over Israel (Jdg 7:22–25). yoke . . . bar. In 10:26–27 Isaiah predicts that God will destroy the Assyrian army and their oppressive yoke. This was fulfilled in 701 B.C. (see 37:36–38).

9:5 boot . . . garment. Military equipment will no longer be needed. See notes on 2:2–4.

9:6 son. A royal son, a son of David (see v. 7; see also 2Sa 7:14; Ps 2:7; Mt 1:1; 3:17; Lk 1:32). Wonderful Counselor. Each of the four throne names of the Messiah consists of two elements. Unlike Immanuel (see note on 7:14), these titles were not like normal OT personal names. "Counselor" points to the Messiah as a king (see Mic 4:9) who determines upon and carries out a program of action (see 14:27, "purposed"; Ps 20:4, "plans"). As Wonderful Counselor, the coming Son of David will carry out a royal program that will cause all the world to marvel. What that program will be is spelled out in ch. 11, and more fully in chs. 24–27 (see 25:1—"marvelous things, things planned [counseled] long ago"). Mighty God. See 10:21. His divine power as a warrior is stressed. Everlasting Father. He will be an enduring, compassionate provider and protector (cf.

to us a son is given,[n]
and the government[o] will be on his shoulders.[p]
And he will be called Wonderful Counselor,[z][q] Mighty God,[r]
Everlasting[s] Father,[t] Prince of Peace.[u] [7]Of the increase of his government[v] and peace[w]
there will be no end.[x]
He will reign[y] on David's throne and over his kingdom, establishing and upholding it with justice[z] and righteousness[a] from that time on and forever.[b]
The zeal[c] of the LORD Almighty will accomplish this.

The LORD's Anger Against Israel

[8]The Lord has sent a message[d] against Jacob;
it will fall on Israel.
[9]All the people will know it—Ephraim[e] and the inhabitants of Samaria[f]— who say with pride and arrogance[g] of heart, [10]"The bricks have fallen down, but we will rebuild with dressed stone;[h]
the fig[i] trees have been felled,
but we will replace them with cedars.[j]" [11]But the LORD has strengthened Rezin's[k] foes against them and has spurred their enemies on.
[12]Arameans[l] from the east and Philistines[m] from the west have devoured[n] Israel with open mouth.

Yet for all this, his anger[o] is not turned away, his hand is still upraised.[p]

[13]But the people have not returned[q] to him who struck[r] them, nor have they sought[s] the LORD Almighty.

[14]So the LORD will cut off from Israel both head and tail, both palm branch and reed[t] in a single day;[u] [15]the elders[v] and prominent men[w] are the head, the prophets[x] who teach lies[y] are the tail.
[16]Those who guide[z] this people mislead them,
and those who are guided are led astray.[a] [17]Therefore the Lord will take no pleasure in the young men,[b] nor will he pity[c] the fatherless and widows, for everyone is ungodly[d] and wicked,[e]
every mouth speaks vileness.[f]

Yet for all this, his anger is not turned away, his hand is still upraised.[g]

[18]Surely wickedness burns like a fire;[h] it consumes briers and thorns,[i] it sets the forest thickets ablaze,[j]
so that it rolls upward in a column of smoke.
[19]By the wrath[k] of the LORD Almighty the land will be scorched[l] and the people will be fuel for the fire;[m]
no one will spare his brother.[n] [20]On the right they will devour, but still be hungry;[o]
on the left they will eat,[p]
but not be satisfied.
Each will feed on the flesh of his own offspring[a]:
[21] Manasseh will feed on Ephraim, and Ephraim on Manasseh;[q]

40:9–11). Prince of Peace. His rule will bring wholeness and well-being to individuals and to society (see 11:6–9).

9:7 David's throne ... righteousness ... forever. In spite of the sins of kings like Ahaz, Christ will be a descendant of David who will rule in righteousness forever (see 11:3–5; 2Sa 7:12–13,16; Jer 33:15,20–22). The zeal ... this. God is like a jealous lover who will not abandon his people.

9:9 Ephraim. See note on 7:2.

9:10 bricks have fallen down. Bricks made of clay and dried by the sun crumbled easily. dressed stone. Amos denounces the stone mansions of the wicked (Am 5:11). cedars. The cedars of Lebanon provided the most valuable wood in the ancient Near East (see 1Ki 7:2–3).

9:11 Rezin's foes. The Assyrians (see note on 7:1).

9:12,17,21 Yet ... upraised. See 5:25. This refrain is repeated in 10:4, where the anger of the Lord reaches a climax in the captivity of his people.

9:14 head and tail ... palm branch and reed. The leaders of Israel (see also 3:1–3). These two pairs refer to Egyptian leaders in 19:15.

9:17 fatherless and widows. They often suffered at the hands of the powerful (see note on 1:17), but now even they are wicked.

9:18 briers and thorns. See note on 5:6.

9:19 fuel for the fire. Contrast v. 5.

9:21 Manasseh ... Ephraim. These two prominent tribes in the northern kingdom were descended from the two sons of Joseph (see Ge 46:20; see also Ge 48:5–6 and notes). They had fought each other centuries earlier (Jdg 12:4).

10 Woe[t] to those who make unjust
laws,
to those who issue oppressive decrees,[u]

and withhold justice from the oppressed of my people,[w] making widows their prey

God's Judgment on Assyria

5"Woe[e] to the Assyrian,[f] the rod[g]
of my anger,
in whose hand is the club[h] of my wrath![i] 6I send him against a godless[j] nation,
I dispatch[k] him against a people who anger me,[l]
to seize loot and snatch plunder,[m] and to trample[n] them down like mud in the streets.
7But this is not what he intends,[o]
this is not what he has in mind;
his purpose is to destroy,
to put an end to many nations.
8'Are not my commanders[p] all kings?'
he says.
9 'Has not Calno[q] fared like Carchemish?[r]
Is not Hamath[s] like Arpad,[t] and Samaria[u] like Damascus?[v] 10As my hand seized the kingdoms of the idols,[w] kingdoms whose images excelled those of Jerusalem and Samaria—11shall I not deal with Jerusalem and her images
as I dealt with Samaria and her idols?[x]' "

12When the Lord has finished all his work[y] against Mount Zion[z] and Jerusalem, he will say, "I will punish the king of Assyria[a] for the willful pride[b] of his heart and the haughty look[c] in his eyes. 13For he says:

" 'By the strength of my hand[d] I have done this,[e]
and by my wisdom, because I have understanding.
I removed the boundaries of nations,
I plundered their treasures;[f] like a mighty one I subdued[b] their kings.[g] 14As one reaches into a nest,[h] so my hand reached for the wealth[i] of the nations;
as men gather abandoned eggs,
so I gathered all the countries;[j]
not one flapped a wing, or opened its mouth to chirp.[k]' "

who swings it,
or the saw boast against him who uses it?[l]
As if a rod were to wield him who not wood!

16Therefore, the Lord, the LORD
Almighty,

[b]13 Or / I subdued the mighty,

10:1 Woe. Cf. the series of woes in 5:8–23.
10:2 widows . . . fatherless. See notes on 1:17; 9:17.
10:4 captives . . . slain. Jer 39:6–7 similarly describes the plight of Judah's rulers when Nebuchadnezzar captured Jerusalem in 586 B.C. Yet . . . upraised. See note on 9:12,17,21.
10:5 rod . . . club. See 9:4 and note. Babylon also was a hammer or club used by God to punish other nations (Jer 50:23; 51:20; Hab 1:6).
10:6 godless nation. Judah (see v. 10). loot . . . plunder. The last part of the fulfillment symbolized by Maher-Shalal-Hash-Baz ("loot" here is the translation of Hebrew shalal, and "plunder" is the translation of baz). See 8:1–4 and note on 8:3.
10:9 Calno. A region in northern Aram (Syria). See Calneh in Am 6:2. Carchemish. The great fortress on the Euphrates River east of Calno (see Jer 46:2). Hamath. A city on the Orontes River that marked the northern extent of Solomon's rule (2Ch 8:4). See note on 2Ki 17:24. Arpad. A city near Hamath and just south of Calno. All these areas submitted to Assyria by c. 717 B.C. (see 36:19).
10:10 images . . . of Jerusalem and Samaria. No Israelite was supposed to worship idols, but the land was full of them (2:8). Samaria fell to Shalmaneser V (2Ki 17:3–6) and Sargon II in 722–721 B.C.
10:12 pride. Judgment against the proud was announced in 2:11,17.
10:13–14 my . . . I. The king of Assyria boastfully refers to himself nine times. Cf. 14:13–14; Eze 28:2–5.
10:15 ax . . . saw . . . rod . . . club. See v. 5; 9:4 and notes.
10:16 the Lord, the LORD Almighty. See 1:24 and note. wasting disease. When the angel put to death 185,000 soldiers of the Assyrian king Sennacherib in 701 B.C., he may have used a rapidly spreading plague (see note on 37:36; will send a wasting disease[n] upon his sturdy warriors;[o]

The Remnant of Israel

20In that day[z] the remnant of Israel, the survivors[a] of the house of Jacob,
will no longer rely[b] on him who struck them down[c]
but will truly rely[d] on the LORD,
the Holy One of Israel.[e] 21A remnant[f] will return,[cg] a remnant of Jacob will return to the Mighty God.[h] 22Though your people, O Israel, be like the sand[i] by the sea,
only a remnant will return.[j] Destruction has been decreed,[k] overwhelming and righteous.
23The Lord, the LORD Almighty, will carry out the destruction decreed[l] upon the whole land.[m]

24Therefore, this is what the Lord, the LORD Almighty, says:

"O my people who live in Zion,[n]
do not be afraid[o] of the Assyrians, who beat[p] you with a rod[q]
and lift up a club against you, as Egypt did.
25Very soon[r] my anger against you will end
and my wrath[s] will be directed to their destruction.[t]"

26The LORD Almighty will lash[u] them with a whip,
as when he struck down Midian[v]
at the rock of Oreb;
and he will raise his staff[w] over the waters,[x]
as he did in Egypt.
27In that day[y] their burden[z] will be lifted from your shoulders, their yoke[a] from your neck;[b]
the yoke[c] will be broken because you have grown so fat.[d]

28They enter Aiath;
they pass through Migron;[d]
they store supplies[e] at Micmash.[f] 29They go over the pass, and say,
"We will camp overnight at Geba.[g]"
Ramah[h] trembles;
Gibeah[i] of Saul flees.[j]
30Cry out, O Daughter of Gallim![k]
Listen, O Laishah!
Poor Anathoth![l] 31Madmenah is in flight;
the people of Gebim take cover.
32This day they will halt at Nob;[m]
they will shake their fist[n]

10:17,20 Holy One. See note on 1:4.

10:18–19 forests. A reference to the Assyrian army. See vv. 33–34.

10:19 Probably fulfilled between 612 B.C. (fall of Nineveh) and 605 (battle of Carchemish).

10:20,27 In that day. The day of victory and joy, the positive aspect of the "day of the LORD" (see notes on 2:11,17,20; 9:4). Israel is restored and the people praise God. Ch. 11 connects this "day" with the Messianic age (see 11:10–11; see also 12:1,4).

10:20–22 remnant. See note on 1:9. "A remnant will return" was the name of Isaiah's first son (see NIV text note on 7:3). A faithful remnant led by Hezekiah survived the Assyrian invasion of 701 B.C. (see 37:4). Later, a remnant returned from Babylonian exile.

10:20 him who struck them. The king of Assyria (see note on 7:17).

10:21 Mighty God. See note on 9:6.

10:22 the sand by the sea. See notes on Ge 13:16; 22:17. Destruction ... decreed. Because of Israel's sin, God would punish the nation through foreign invaders.

10:23–24 The Lord, the LORD Almighty. See 1:24 and note.

10:24 rod ... club. See v. 5; 9:4 and notes.

10:26–27 Midian ... burden ... yoke. See note on 9:4.

10:26 Oreb. One of the Midianite leaders (Jdg 7:25). the waters ... in Egypt. When Moses stretched out his hand over the Red Sea, the waters engulfed the chariots of Pharaoh (see Ex 14:26–28).

10:27 fat. Like a sturdy animal, Israel is able to break the yoke.

10:28–32 As if seeing a vision, Isaiah describes the approach of the Assyrian army to Jerusalem from about ten miles north of the city.

10:28 Micmash. Located about seven miles north of Jerusalem.

10:29 Ramah. The home of Samuel. It was about five miles from Jerusalem (1Sa 7:17). Gibeah of Saul. About three miles from Jerusalem. It had been the capital of Israel's first king (see 1Sa 10:26).

10:30 Poor Anathoth. Jeremiah's hometown (see Jer 1:1). The Hebrew for "poor" sounds like the word "Anathoth," thus a wordplay.

10:32 Nob. Perhaps on Mount Scopus, on the outskirts of Jerusalem. Daughter of Zion. A personification of Jerusalem and its inhabitants.

11 A shoot[w] will come up from the stump[x] of Jesse;[y] from his roots a Branch[z] will bear fruit.[a] 2 The Spirit[b] of the LORD will rest on him—
the Spirit of wisdom[c] and of understanding, the Spirit of counsel and of power,[d]
the Spirit of knowledge and of the fear of the LORD—
3 and he will delight in the fear[e] of the LORD.

He will not judge by what he sees with his eyes,[f] or decide by what he hears with his ears;[g] 4 but with righteousness[h] he will judge the needy,[i] with justice[j] he will give decisions for the poor[k] of the earth.
He will strike[l] the earth with the rod of his mouth;[m]

[e] 6 Hebrew; Septuagint lion will feed [f] 11 Hebrew from Pathros

10:33 the Lord, the LORD Almighty. See 1:24 and note. boughs ... trees. Sennacherib and his armies will fall (see vv. 16–19 and notes).

10:34 Lebanon. Refers to the famed cedars of Lebanon (see note on 2:13).

11:1 shoot ... stump. The Assyrians all but destroyed Judah, but it was the Babylonian exile that brought the kingdom of Judah to an end in 586 B.C. The Messiah will grow as a shoot from that stump of David's dynasty. See 6:13 and note. Jesse. David's father (see 1Sa 16:10–13). Branch. See notes on 4:2; Mt 2:23.

11:2 The Spirit ... will rest on him. The Messiah, like David (1Sa 16:13), will be empowered by the Holy Spirit. counsel ... power. The Spirit will endow him with the wisdom to undertake wise purposes and with the power to carry them out (see note on 9:6). fear of the LORD. See Pr 1:7.

11:3 delight in the fear of the LORD. See Jn 8:29.

11:4 righteousness ... justice. The rulers of Isaiah's day lacked these qualities (see 1:17; 5:7; see also note on 9:7). rod of his mouth. Assyria was God's rod in 10:5,24, but the Messiah will rule the nations with an iron scepter (Ps 2:9; Rev 19:15).

11:5 belt. When a man prepared for vigorous action, he tied up his loose, flowing garments with a belt (see 5:27).

11:6–9 The peace and safety of the Messianic age are reflected in the fact that little children will be unharmed as they play with formerly ferocious animals. Such conditions are a description of the future consummation of the Messianic kingdom. See 2:2–4 and notes; 35:9; 65:20–25; Eze 34:25–29.

11:9 my holy mountain. See 2:2–4 and note. full of the knowledge. See 2:3, where the word of the Lord is taught in Jerusalem. Cf. Hab 2:14.

11:10 In that day. See note on 10:20,27. Root of Jesse. A Messianic title closely connected with v. 1 (see also 53:2; Ro 15:12; Rev 5:5; 22:16). banner. See 5:26 and note.

11:11 second time. The first time was the exodus from Egypt (see v. 16). The second is probably the return from Assyrian and Babylonian exile, though some interpreters, who believe that the passage refers to the dispersion after the destruction of Jerusalem in A.D. 70, place the regathering at Christ's second coming. remnant. See notes on 1:9; 10:20–22. Lower Egypt. The delta region of the Nile, in the north. Upper Egypt. Southern Egypt, upstream from the delta. Elam. The land northeast of the lower Tigris Valley (see 21:2; Jer 49:34–39; Da 8:2). Hamath. See note on 10:9. islands of the sea. The coastlands and islands of the Mediterranean are probably intended (see 41:1,5; 42:4; Ge 10:5).

Cush,[g] from Elam,[m] from Babylonia,[h] from Hamath[n] and from the islands[o] of the sea.[p]

12 He will raise a banner[q] for the nations and gather[r] the exiles of Israel;[s] he will assemble the scattered people[t] of Judah from the four quarters of the earth.[u] 13 Ephraim's jealousy will vanish, and Judah's enemies[i] will be cut off;
Ephraim will not be jealous of Judah,
nor Judah hostile toward Ephraim.[v] 14 They will swoop down on the slopes of Philistia[w] to the west;
together they will plunder the people to the east.[x]
They will lay hands on Edom[y] and Moab,[z] and the Ammonites[a] will be subject to them.[b] 15 The LORD will dry up[c]
the gulf of the Egyptian sea;
with a scorching wind[d] he will sweep his hand[e]
over the Euphrates River.[j][f]
He will break it up into seven streams
so that men can cross over in sandals.[g] 16 There will be a highway[h] for the remnant[i] of his people that is left from Assyria,[j] as there was for Israel
when they came up from Egypt.[k]

Songs of Praise

12 In that day[l] you will say:

"I will praise[m] you, O LORD.
Although you were angry with me,
your anger has turned away[n]
and you have comforted[o] me.
2 Surely God is my salvation;[p]
I will trust[q] and not be afraid.
The LORD, the LORD,[r] is my strength[s] and my song;
he has become my salvation.[t]" 3 With joy you will draw water[u] from the wells[v] of salvation.

4 In that day[w] you will say:

"Give thanks to the LORD, call on his name;[x] make known among the nations[y]
what he has done,
and proclaim that his name is exalted.[z]
5 Sing[a] to the LORD, for he has done glorious things;[b] let this be known to all the world.
6 Shout aloud and sing for joy,[c] people of Zion, for great[d] is the Holy One of Israel[e] among you.[f]"

11:12 gather the exiles. See 27:13; 49:22; 56:8; 62:10; 66:20. four quarters. Lit. "four wings." "Four quarters of the earth" is equivalent to "ends of the earth" (see 24:16; Job 37:3).

11:13 Ephraim's jealousy. See note on 7:2. Prior to the exile, Ephraim and Judah were frequently fighting each other (see 9:21).

11:14 people to the east. Perhaps the Midianites, who plundered Israel, along with other eastern peoples (see 9:4). Edom ... Moab ... Ammonites. After the exodus, Israel did not attack these nations (see Jdg 11:14–18). Israel's future political domination is also referred to in 14:2; 49:23; 60:12 (see also 25:10; 34:5).

11:15 dry up ... the Egyptian sea. An allusion to the drying up of the Red Sea during the exodus (see Ex 14:21–22). gulf. Lit. "tongue" (see "bay" in Jos 15:2,5). Euphrates. Rev 16:12 refers to the drying up of the Euphrates, perhaps symbolizing the removal of barriers preventing the coming of "the kings from the East."

11:16 highway. The removal of obstacles and the building of a highway leading to Jerusalem are also described in 57:14; 62:10 (cf. 40:3–4).

12:1–6 Two short psalms of praise for deliverance (vv. 1–3, 4–6) climax chs. 7–11 (see note on 7:1–12:6; see also note on 6:1).

12:1,4 In that day. See note on 10:20,27.

12:1 I will praise you. The "I" is probably the nation, praising the Lord for the deliverance he is sure to bring. your anger has turned away. See note on 9:12,17,21. After God punishes Israel, his anger will be directed against nations like Assyria and Babylon.

12:2 The LORD, the LORD. Two forms for the personal name of God are given: The first is "Yah"; the second was probably pronounced "Yahweh." See note on Ex 3:15. The LORD ... salvation. These lines quote Ex 15:2, a verse commemorating the defeat of the Egyptians at the Red Sea. See also Ps 118:14.

12:3 wells. Perhaps an allusion to God's abundant provision of water for Israel during the desert wanderings (cf. Ex 15:25,27). But here God's future saving act is itself the "well" from which Israel will draw life-giving water (see Ps 36:9; Jer 2:13; Jn 4:10).

12:6 Shout aloud and sing for joy. These two imperatives occur again in 54:1, where Zion rejoices over the restoration of her people. Holy One of Israel. See notes on 1:4; 6:1.

13:1–23:18 A series of prophecies against the nations

[2]Raise a banner[k] on a bare hilltop, shout to them;
beckon to them
to enter the gates[l] of the nobles.
[3]I have commanded my holy ones;
I have summoned my warriors[m] to carry out my wrath[n]—
those who rejoice[o] in my triumph.

[4]Listen, a noise on the mountains,
like that of a great multitude![p] Listen, an uproar[q] among the kingdoms,
like nations massing together!
The LORD Almighty[r] is mustering[s] an army for war.
[5]They come from faraway lands, from the ends of the heavens[t]—
the LORD and the weapons[u] of his wrath[v]—
to destroy[w] the whole country.

[6]Wail,[x] for the day[y] of the LORD is near;
it will come like destruction[z] from the Almighty.[ka]
[7]Because of this, all hands will go limp,[b]
every man's heart will melt.[c] [8]Terror[d] will seize them, pain and anguish will grip[e] them;
they will writhe like a woman in labor.[f]
They will look aghast at each other,
their faces aflame.[g]

[9]See, the day[h] of the LORD is coming —a cruel[i] day, with wrath[j] and fierce anger[k]—
to make the land desolate
and destroy the sinners within it.
[10]The stars of heaven and their constellations will not show their light.[l]
The rising sun[m] will be darkened[n] and the moon will not give its light.[o]
[11]I will punish[p] the world for its evil,
the wicked[q] for their sins.
I will put an end to the arrogance of the haughty[r]
and will humble[s] the pride of the ruthless.[t]
[12]I will make man[u] scarcer than pure gold,
more rare than the gold of Ophir.[v] [13]Therefore I will make the heavens tremble;[w]
and the earth will shake[x] from its place
at the wrath[y] of the LORD Almighty,

[k]6 Hebrew Shaddai

(see also Jer 46–51; Eze 25–32; Am 1–2; Zep 2:4–15). They begin with Babylon (13:1–14:23) and Assyria (14:24–27) before moving on to smaller nations. God's judgment on his people does not mean that the pagan nations will be spared (see Jer 25:29). In fact, God's judgments on the nations are often a part of his salvation of his people (see, e.g., 10:12).

13:1–14:27 This prophecy concerns Babylon during the Assyrian empire rather than during the Neo-Babylonian empire. Thus the prophecy is actually against the Assyrian empire, Babylon being its most important city. From 729 B.C. on, the kings of Assyria also assumed the title "king of Babylon." Note that there is no new "oracle" heading at 14:24, even though 14:24–27 clearly pertains to Assyria; so 13:1–14:27 forms a unit.

13:1 See note on 1:1. oracle. The Hebrew for this word is related to a Hebrew verb meaning "to lift up, carry" and is possibly to be understood as either lifting up one's voice or carrying a burden. Such an "oracle" often contains a message of doom. Babylon. See 21:1–9; 46:1–2; 47:1–15; Jer 50–51. Its judgment is announced first because of the present Assyrian threat and because Babylon would later bring about the downfall of Judah and Jerusalem between 605 and 586 B.C. Babylon was conquered by Cyrus the Persian (see 45:1; 47:1) in 539. Subsequently it came to symbolize the world powers arrayed against God's kingdom (cf. 1Pe 5:13), and its final destruction is announced in Rev 14:8; 16:19; 17–18. Here, however, Babylon is still part of the Assyrian empire (see 14:24–27; see also note on 13:1–14:27).

13:2 Raise a banner. See note on 5:26.

13:3 my holy ones. Or "my consecrated ones," those set apart to carry out God's will. Cf. 10:5, where the Lord calls Assyria "the rod of my anger"; see also 45:1. wrath. God's anger is no longer turned against Israel (see 5:25; 9:12,17,21; 10:4) but against her enemies (see vv. 5,9,13; cf. 30:27). God must punish sin, particularly arrogance (see v. 11).

13:4 The LORD Almighty is mustering an army. The Hebrew for "army" is the singular form of the word for "Almighty." God is the head of the armies of Israel (1Sa 17:45), of angelic powers (1Ki 22:19; Lk 2:13) and, here, of the armies that will destroy Babylon.

13:5 weapons of his wrath. Assyria was the club in God's hand during Isaiah's day, and Babylon itself would later serve as God's weapon (see 10:5 and note).

13:6,9 day of the LORD. See note on 2:11,17,20.

13:6 destruction. Hebrew shod, forming a wordplay on "Almighty" (Hebrew Shaddai)—as also in Joel 1:15. See note on 5:7. For Shaddai see note on Ge 17:1.

13:7 hands will go limp. Courage will fail. See Jer 6:24.

13:8 Terror. Holy war usually brings panic to the enemy (see Ex 15:14–16; Jdg 7:21–22). pain ... labor. The prophets often compare the suffering of judgment and war with the pain and anguish that frequently accompany childbirth (see 26:17; Jer 4:31; 6:24).

13:10 stars ... sun ... moon. Cosmic darkness is associated with the day of the Lord also in Joel 2:10,31; Rev 6:12–13. Cf. Jdg 5:20.

13:11 arrogance ... pride. Cf. 2:9,11,17; 5:15.

13:12 scarcer ... rare. War will reduce the male population drastically (see 4:1 and note). gold of Ophir. Solomon imported large quantities of gold from this place (see 1Ki 9:28; 10:11 and notes).

13:13 heavens tremble ... earth ... shake. Thunderstorms and earthquakes often accompany the powerful presence of the Lord (see notes on v. 10; 34:4; Ex 19:16). Hail may also be involved (cf. 30:30; Jos 10:11).

[l]19 Or Chaldeans' [m]4 Dead Sea Scrolls, Septuagint and Syriac; the meaning of the word in the Masoretic Text is uncertain.

13:14 flee. From parts of the Assyrian empire.
13:16 infants ... dashed to pieces. Invading armies often slaughtered infants and children; thus there would be no future warriors, nor would there be a remnant through which the city (or country or people) might be revived (see Ps 137:8–9; Hos 10:14; Na 3:10). wives ravished. Women also suffered greatly in war. With their husbands killed, they were often used as prostitutes (see note on Am 7:17).
13:17 the Medes. Located in what is today northwestern Iran. There was conflict between Assyria and Media during the eighth century B.C. Some, however, relate the fulfillment of this verse to the period when the Medes joined the Babylonians in defeating Assyria in 612–609 but later united with Cyrus to conquer Babylon in 539. See Jer 51:11,28; Da 5:31; 6:28.
13:19 glory ... pride. Babylon with its temples and palaces became a very beautiful city (see Da 4:29–30). The hanging gardens of Nebuchadnezzar were one of the seven wonders of the ancient world. In 4:2 the Hebrew words for "glory" and "pride" were used to describe the "Branch of the LORD." Babylonians. The Neo-Babylonian empire of 612–539 B.C. was led by the Chaldean people of southern Babylonia. Nabopolassar welded the tribes together c. 626, and his son Nebuchadnezzar became their most powerful ruler (605–562). Sodom and Gomorrah. Previously Isaiah compared Judah to these cities (see 1:9–10 and note).
13:20–22 See the similar description of the desolation of Edom in 34:10–15. Cf. Rev 18:2.
13:20 never be inhabited. Babylon was completely deserted by the seventh century A.D.
13:21 wild goats. This term is connected with demons ("goat idols") in Lev 17:7; 2Ch 11:15. In Rev 18:2 fallen Babylon is described as a home for demons and evil spirits.
14:1 will have compassion ... will settle them. Babylon's fall will be linked with Israel's restoration. God's compassion on his people is the theme of chs. 40–66 (see 40:1–2). in their own land. See 2:2–4; 11:10–12 and notes. Aliens will join them. See 11:10; 56:6–7; 60:3.
14:2 Nations ... place. See note on 5:26. will possess the nations. See note on 11:14.
14:3–21 However exalted (and almost divine) the king of Babylon may have thought himself (see vv. 12–14), he will go the way of all world rulers—down to the grave.
14:3 suffering ... cruel bondage. The Babylonian captivity was much like Israel's experience in Egypt (cf. Ex 1:14).
14:4 taunt. Cf. the taunts against Babylon in Rev 18. king of Babylon. Another title used by the king of Assyria at this time.

5 The LORD has broken the rod[t] of the wicked,[u]
the scepter[v] of the rulers, 6 which in anger struck down peoples[w] with unceasing blows, and in fury subdued[x] nations with relentless aggression.[y] 7 All the lands are at rest and at peace;[z]
they break into singing.[a] 8 Even the pine trees[b] and the cedars of Lebanon exult over you and say,
"Now that you have been laid low, no woodsman comes to cut us down."[c]

9 The grave[n][d] below is all astir to meet you at your coming;
it rouses the spirits of the departed[e] to greet you—all those who were leaders[f] in the world;
it makes them rise from their thrones—all those who were kings over the nations.[g] 10 They will all respond,
they will say to you,
"You also have become weak, as we are;
you have become like us."[h] 11 All your pomp has been brought down to the grave,[i] along with the noise of your harps;[j] maggots are spread out beneath you and worms[k] cover you.[l]

12 How you have fallen[m] from heaven,
O morning star,[n] son of the dawn!
You have been cast down to the earth,
you who once laid low the nations![o] 13 You said in your heart,
"I will ascend[p] to heaven;
I will raise my throne[q] above the stars of God;
I will sit enthroned on the mount of assembly,[r] on the utmost heights[s] of the sacred mountain.[o]
14 I will ascend above the tops of the clouds;[t]
I will make myself like the Most High."[u]
15 But you are brought down[v] to the grave,[w] to the depths[x] of the pit.[y]

16 Those who see you stare at you, they ponder your fate:[z]
"Is this the man who shook[a] the earth and made kingdoms tremble, 17 the man who made the world a desert,[b] who overthrew[c] its cities and would not let his captives go home?"[d]

18 All the kings of the nations lie in state, each in his own tomb.[e] 19 But you are cast out[f] of your tomb like a rejected branch;
you are covered with the slain,[g]
with those pierced by the sword,[h]
those who descend to the stones of the pit.[i] Like a corpse trampled underfoot, 20 you will not join them in burial,[j] for you have destroyed your land and killed your people.

The offspring[k] of the wicked[l] will never be mentioned[m] again.

[n] 9 Hebrew Sheol; also in verses 11 and 15 [o] 13 Or the north; Hebrew Zaphon

14:5 rod . . . scepter. See 10:5 and note; see also 10:24.
14:7 break into singing. See 12:6 and note.
14:8 pine trees . . . cedars. Isaiah often personified nature. The trees along with the mountains burst into song in 44:23 (cf. 55:12). cedars of Lebanon. These highly prized timbers were hauled away by the kings of Assyria and Babylon for centuries.
14:9 leaders. Lit. "goats"; a goat often led a flock of sheep (see Jer 50:8). In Zec 10:3 the term is parallel to "shepherds." rise from their thrones. Conditions among the dead are described in terms of their roles on earth.
14:11 pomp . . . grave. Cf. 5:14. noise of your harps. Music is sometimes a sign of luxury and pleasure (see Am 6:5–6).
14:12–15 Some believe that Isaiah is giving a description of the fall of Satan (cf. Lk 10:18—where, however, Jesus seems to be referring to an event contemporary with himself). But the passage clearly applies to the king of Babylon, who is later used as a type (prefiguration) of the "beast" who will lead the Babylon of the last days (see Rev 13:4; 17:3). Cf. the description of the ruler of Tyre in Eze 28.
14:12 morning star. The Hebrew for this expression is translated "Lucifer" in the Latin Vulgate.
14:13 sacred mountain. Mount Zaphon (see Ps 48:1–2), also called Mount Casius, was about 25 miles northeast of Ugarit in Syria. The Canaanites considered it the home and meeting place of the gods, much like Mount Olympus for the Greeks (see Ps 48:2 and note). Cf. Ps 82:1.
14:16–20a These verses seem to take place on earth, not in the realm of the dead (Sheol)—probably also vv. 9–10.
14:17 captives go home. Babylon, like Assyria, deported large segments of defeated populations to subdue the rebellious among them (see 2Ki 24:14–16).
14:19 cast out of your tomb. A proper burial was considered important for an ordinary individual, and especially so for a king. To have one's body simply discarded was a terrible fate. corpse trampled. See 5:25.

21 Prepare a place to slaughter his sons[n]
for the sins of their forefathers;[o]
they are not to rise to inherit the land and cover the earth with their cities.

22 "I will rise up[p] against them," declares the LORD Almighty.
"I will cut off from Babylon her name[q] and survivors,
her offspring and descendants,[r]"
declares the LORD.
23 "I will turn her into a place for owls[s]
and into swampland;
I will sweep her with the broom of destruction,[t]"
declares the LORD Almighty.[u]

A Prophecy Against Assyria

24 The LORD Almighty has sworn,[v]

"Surely, as I have planned,[w] so it will be,
and as I have purposed, so it will stand.[x]
25 I will crush the Assyrian[y] in my
land;
on my mountains I will trample
him down.
His yoke[z] will be taken from my people,
and his burden removed from their shoulders.[a]"

26 This is the plan[b] determined for the whole world;
this is the hand[c] stretched out over all nations.
27 For the LORD Almighty has purposed,[d] and who can thwart him?
His hand[e] is stretched out, and who can turn it back?[f]

A Prophecy Against the Philistines

28 This oracle[g] came in the year[h]
King Ahaz[i] died:

29 Do not rejoice, all you Philistines,[j] that the rod that struck you is broken;
from the root of that snake will spring up a viper,[k] its fruit will be a darting, venomous serpent.[l] 30 The poorest of the poor will find pasture,
and the needy[m] will lie down in safety.[n]
But your root I will destroy by famine;[o]
it will slay[p] your survivors.[q]
31 Wail,[r] O gate! Howl, O city![s] Melt away, all you Philistines![t]
A cloud of smoke comes from the north,[u]
and there is not a straggler in its ranks.[v]
32 What answer shall be given to the envoys[w] of that nation?
"The LORD has established Zion,[x] and in her his afflicted people will find refuge.[y]"

14:21 slaughter his sons. A man's children, as well as his tombstone, were his memorial (cf. 2Sa 18:18). The king of Babylon would have neither (cf. 47:9).

14:22–23 The taunt is extended to include Babylon itself (see note on vv. 3–21); fulfilled, at least partially, through Sennacherib's destruction of Babylon in 689 B.C.—ultimately by the Medes and Persians after they took Babylon in 539.

14:22 survivors. A remnant; Israel will survive through a remnant (see 10:20–22; 11:11,16), but Babylon will not.

14:23 See 13:20–22 and notes. swampland. Southern Babylonia, where the Chaldean tribes once lived, was a region of marshlands.

14:24–27 See Zep 2:13–15; see also note on 13:1–14:27.

14:24 it will stand. See 8:10 and note. God's sovereign purposes regarding Assyria and Babylon will be carried out.

14:25 yoke . . . burden. See 9:4 and note.

14:26–27 hand stretched out. See 9:12; 12:1 and notes. God's hand was stretched out against Egypt at the Red Sea (see Ex 15:12).

14:28–32 See Jer 47; Eze 25:15–17; Am 1:6–8; Zep 2:4–7.

14:28 oracle. See note on 13:1. the year. Perhaps 715 B.C. The occasion appears to be the Philistine revolt against Assyria while King Sargon (see 20:1) was too preoccupied with serious revolts elsewhere to give much attention to Canaan.

14:29 Philistines. See note on Ge 10:14. Philistine territory was vulnerable to attack by the great empires (Egypt and Assyria) since it lay along the main route from Egypt to Mesopotamia. the rod. Probably Sargon of Assyria. is broken. If the rod was Sargon, reference is to the threats to his empire by a series of revolts in Babylonia and Asia Minor. root . . . fruit. A figure of speech that refers to the whole (tree) by speaking of its two extremes. After Sargon will come other Assyrian kings: Sennacherib, Esarhaddon, Ashurbanipal.

14:30 poor . . . needy. Israelites (see v. 32).

14:31 Wail. Cf. the similar reaction in 13:6; 15:2; 16:7; 23:1. cloud of smoke. The dust raised by the marching feet and the chariots of the Assyrians—who always invaded Canaan from the north. not a straggler. A longer description is found in 5:26–29.

14:32 has established Zion. God will protect Jerusalem from the Assyrians (compare 31:4–5 with 2:2).

15:1–16:14 See Jer 48; Eze 25:8–11; Am 2:1–3; Zep 2:8–11.

15:1 oracle. See note on 13:1. Moab. A country east of Kir[d] in Moab is ruined, destroyed in a night!

Dibon[e] goes up to its temple,
to its high places[f] to weep;
Moab wails[g] over Nebo[h] and Medeba.
Every head is shaved[i]
and every beard cut off.[j]
In the streets they wear sackcloth;[k] on the roofs[l] and in the public squares[m]
they all wail,[n]
prostrate with weeping.[o]
Heshbon[p] and Elealeh[q] cry out, their voices are heard all the way to Jahaz.[r]
Therefore the armed men of Moab cry out,
and their hearts are faint.

My heart cries out[s] over Moab;[t] her fugitives[u] flee as far as Zoar,[v] as far as Eglath Shelishiyah.
They go up the way to Luhith, weeping as they go;
on the road to Horonaim[w]
they lament their destruction.[x]
The waters of Nimrim are dried up[y] and the grass is withered;[z]
the vegetation is gone[a] and nothing green is left.[b]
So the wealth they have acquired[c] and stored up they carry away over the Ravine of the Poplars.

Their outcry echoes along the border of Moab;
their wailing reaches as far as Eglaim,
their lamentation as far as Beer[d] Elim.
Dimon's[p] waters are full of blood,
but I will bring still more upon Dimon[p]— a lion[e] upon the fugitives of Moab[f] and upon those who remain in the land.

16 Send lambs[g] as tribute[h]
to the ruler of the land,
from Sela,[i] across the desert,
to the mount of the Daughter of Zion.[j]
Like fluttering birds pushed from the nest,[k]
so are the women of Moab[l] at the fords[m] of the Arnon.[n]

"Give us counsel,
render a decision.
Make your shadow like night—
at high noon.
Hide the fugitives,[o]
do not betray the refugees.
Let the Moabite fugitives stay with
you;

[p] 9 Masoretic Text; Dead Sea Scrolls, some Septuagint manuscripts and Vulgate Dibon

the Dead Sea that was a perpetual enemy of Israel (see 25:10; 2Ki 13:20). Ar. The location of this city is unknown. ruined. The same word describes Isaiah's feelings about himself in 6:5. The destruction of Moab was probably connected with an invasion by Sargon of Assyria in 715/713 B.C. Cf. Jer 48:1–17. Kir. Probably Kir Hareseth, 15 miles south of the Arnon River and perhaps the capital of Moab at this time. Kir means "city."

15:2 Dibon. Located four miles north of the Arnon River and given to the tribe of Gad at one time (see Nu 32:34). high places. Shrines originally built on hilltops and usually associated with pagan worship. Nebo. North of the Arnon River, perhaps near Mount Nebo (Dt 34:1). Medeba. About six miles south of Heshbon (see v. 4) and once captured by Israel from Sihon (see Nu 21:26,30). head is shaved ... beard cut off. Characteristic of intense mourning (Jer 48:37).

15:3 sackcloth. The coarse garb of mourners (see Job 16:15; Jer 48:37; La 2:10), made of goat hair. roofs. Perhaps chosen because incense was sometimes offered there (see Jer 19:13).

15:4 Heshbon. Located about 18 miles east of the northern tip of the Dead Sea. See also Jer 48:34. It was King Sihon's capital before Israel captured it (see Nu 21:23–26). Elealeh. About a mile north of Heshbon and always mentioned with it. Jahaz. Just north of the Arnon River and about 20 miles from Heshbon (Nu 21:23; Jer 48:34).

15:5 Zoar. Probably located near the southern end of the Dead Sea. Lot fled there from Sodom (see Ge 14:2; 19:23,30). Eglath Shelishiyah. Location unknown (see also Jer 48:34). The words may mean "a three-year-old heifer" (cf. 1Sa 1:24). Luhith. Location unknown (see also Jer 48:5). Horonaim. Location unknown (see also Jer 48:3,5,34).

15:6 waters of Nimrim. Perhaps to be identified with the Wadi en-Numeirah, ten miles from the southern end of the Dead Sea (cf. Jer 48:34). grass is withered. The advancing enemy may have stopped up the major springs of Moab.

15:7 Ravine of the Poplars. Probably at the border between Moab and Edom (see v. 8).

15:8 Eglaim. Perhaps near the northern border of Moab. Beer Elim. Beer means "well" (cf. Nu 21:16). This site may have been close to the southern border.

15:9 Dimon's waters ... blood. The Hebrew for "blood" (dam) sounds like "Dimon." This is probably also a wordplay on the name "Dibon" (v. 2), close to the Arnon River. Many Moabites will die in the conflict. a lion. A reference to either the Assyrian army (cf. 5:29; Jer 50:17) or actual lions (cf. 13:21–22).

16:1 lambs as tribute. As King Mesha sent 100,000 lambs to King Ahab of Israel each year (see 2Ki 3:4), so now proud Moab, which has often oppressed Israel, is advised in her crisis to submit to the king in Jerusalem. Sela. The naturally fortified capital of the Edomites south of the Dead Sea, situated on a rocky plateau that towers 1,000 feet above the nearby Petra (cf. 42:11). The name means "cliff." The tribute would be sent around the southern end of the Dead Sea. Daughter of Zion. A personification of Jerusalem and its inhabitants.

16:2 fords of the Arnon. The women were fleeing south, away from the northern invader.

16:3 Hide the fugitives. The Moabites are asking Judah for refuge (contrast Ru 1:1; 1Sa 22:3–4).

16:4 destroyer. Probably Assyria (see notes on 15:1; 33:1). oppressor. Moab.

be their shelter[p] from the destroyer."

The oppressor[q] will come to an end, and destruction will cease;[r]
the aggressor will vanish from the land.
5In love a throne[s] will be established;[t] in faithfulness a man will sit on it—
one from the house[q] of David[u]— one who in judging seeks justice[v] and speeds the cause of righteousness.

6We have heard of Moab's[w] pride[x]— her overweening pride and conceit, her pride and her insolence—
but her boasts are empty.
7Therefore the Moabites wail,[y]
they wail together for Moab.
Lament and grieve
for the men[rz] of Kir Hareseth.[a] 8The fields of Heshbon[b] wither,[c]
the vines of Sibmah[d] also.
The rulers of the nations have trampled down the choicest vines,[e] which once reached Jazer[f]
and spread toward the desert.
Their shoots spread out[g]
and went as far as the sea.[h] 9So I weep,[i] as Jazer weeps, for the vines of Sibmah.
O Heshbon, O Elealeh,[j]
I drench you with tears![k]
The shouts of joy[l] over your ripened fruit and over your harvests[m] have been stilled.
10Joy and gladness are taken away from the orchards;[n]
no one sings or shouts[o] in the vineyards;
no one treads[p] out wine at the presses,[q]
for I have put an end to the shouting.
11My heart laments for Moab[r] like a harp,[s]
my inmost being[t] for Kir Hareseth.
12When Moab appears at her high place,[u]
she only wears herself out;
when she goes to her shrine[v] to pray,
it is to no avail.[w]

13This is the word the LORD has already spoken concerning Moab. 14But now the LORD says: "Within three years,[x] as a servant bound by contract[y] would count them,[z] Moab's splendor and all her many people will be despised,[a] and her survivors will be very few and feeble."[b]

An Oracle Against Damascus

17 An oracle[c] concerning Damascus:[d]

"See, Damascus will no longer be a city
but will become a heap of ruins.[e] 2The cities of Aroer[f] will be deserted and left to flocks,[g] which will lie down,[h]
with no one to make them afraid.[i] 3The fortified[j] city will disappear from Ephraim,

[q]5 Hebrew tent [r]7 Or "raisin cakes," a wordplay

16:5 house of David. See 9:7; Am 9:11 and notes. "House" equals "dynasty" (see note on 7:2). in judging seeks justice. See 11:2–4 and notes. The Messiah is again in view.
16:6 Moab's pride. Though a small nation, Moab is proud and defiant like Assyria and Babylon. Cf. 10:12; 14:13; 25:11; Jer 48:42.
16:7 men. See NIV text note. Kir Hareseth. See note on 15:1. The four cities in vv. 7–8 appear in inverted (chiastic) order in vv. 9–11.
16:8 Heshbon. See note on 15:4. Sibmah. Perhaps three miles west of Heshbon. See Jer 48:32. choicest vines. The poet shifts to a metaphor, comparing Moab to a vineyard (see 5:1–7). He returns to a literal description again in v. 10. Jazer. Possibly located about 15 miles north of the Dead Sea. desert. On the eastern edge of Moab. shoots spread out. This is hyperbole, as in Ps 80:11, where Israel is the vineyard. sea. Probably the Dead Sea.
16:9–11 I ... I ... I ... My ... my. The Lord (and/or Isaiah) weeps and laments over the destruction brought on proud Moab to humble her.
16:9 Elealeh. See note on 15:4.
16:10 treads out wine. The grapes were trampled on, and the juice flowed into the wine vat (see note on 5:2; cf. Jer 48:33; Am 9:13).
16:11 Cf. Jer 48:36.
16:12 high place. See 15:2 and note. pray ... to no avail. Moab's god, Chemosh, was a mere idol (see 44:17–20; 1Ki 11:7).
16:13–14 An epilogue to 15:1–16:12.
16:14 Within three years. Other signs that have a three-year limit are given in 20:3; 37:30; see also notes on 7:14,16. Moab's three years were over by c. 715 B.C. (see note on 15:1). servant bound by contract. Cf. 21:16–17, where the prophecy against Kedar follows the pattern of this verse.
17:1–14 See Jer 49:23–27; Am 1:3–5.
17:1 oracle. See note on 13:1. Damascus. The capital of Aram (Syria), located northeast of Mount Hermon on strategic trade routes between Mesopotamia, Egypt and Arabia. Since the time of David, the Arameans of Damascus were frequent enemies of Israel (see 2Sa 8:5; 1Ki 22:31).
17:2 Aroer. About 14 miles east of the Dead Sea on the Arnon River. It marked the southern boundary of Aram's sphere of control (see 2Ki 10:32–33).
17:3 Ephraim. The northern kingdom (see note on 7:2) is mentioned here because of its alliance with Damascus against Assyria (see note on 7:1). royal power. In 732 B.C. Tiglath-Pileser III captured Damascus and made it an As-and royal power from Damascus;

the remnant of Aram will be like the glory[k] of the Israelites,"[l]
declares the LORD Almighty.

4"In that day[m] the glory[n] of Jacob will fade;
the fat of his body will waste[o]
away.
5It will be as when a reaper gathers
the standing grain and harvests[p] the grain with his arm—
as when a man gleans heads of grain[q]
in the Valley of Rephaim.[r] 6Yet some gleanings will remain,[s] as when an olive tree is beaten,[t] leaving two or three olives on the topmost branches,
four or five on the fruitful boughs," declares the LORD, the God of Israel.

7In that day[u] men will look[v] to their Maker[w] and turn their eyes to the Holy
One[x] of Israel.
8They will not look to the altars,[y]
the work of their hands,[z] and they will have no regard for the Asherah poles[sa]
and the incense altars their fingers[b] have made.

9In that day their strong cities, which they left because of the Israelites, will be like places abandoned to thickets and undergrowth.[c] And all will be desolation.

10You have forgotten[d] God your Savior;[e]
you have not remembered the Rock,[f] your fortress.[g] Therefore, though you set out the finest plants and plant imported vines,[h] 11though on the day you set them out,
you make them grow,
and on the morning[i] when you plant them, you bring them to bud,
yet the harvest[j] will be as nothing[k] in the day of disease and incurable[l] pain.[m]

12Oh, the raging[n] of many nations—they rage like the raging sea![o]
Oh, the uproar[p] of the peoples—they roar like the roaring of great waters![q] 13Although the peoples roar[r] like the roar of surging waters, when he rebukes[s] them they flee[t] far away, driven before the wind like chaff[u] on
the hills,
like tumbleweed before a gale.[v]
14In the evening, sudden[w] terror![x]
Before the morning, they are gone![y]
This is the portion of those who loot us,
the lot of those who plunder us.

syrian province. Many of the cities of Israel were also captured (see note on 9:1).

17:4–11 The prophet shifts from Damascus to Israel (likely the northern kingdom)—a shift prepared for at the end of v. 3. This association of judgment on Damascus and Israel reflects the same linkage as that in ch. 7.

17:4,7,9 In that day. See notes on 2:11,17,20; 10:20,27.

17:5 harvests the grain. Harvest can signify a time of judgment (see Joel 3:13). Valley of Rephaim. A fertile area west of Jerusalem (Jos 15:8) and the scene of Philistine raids (1Ch 14:9).

17:7–8 Cf. 2:20; 10:20.

17:7 Holy One of Israel. See note on 1:4.

17:8 altars. Probably altars for Baal (cf. 1Ki 16:32). Asherah poles. See notes on Ex 34:13; Jdg 2:13; see also NIV text note here. incense altars. Associated with high places in Lev 26:30 and with altars for Baal in 2Ch 34:4.

17:9 they. Perhaps the Canaanites, whose religious practices are referred to in v. 8. thickets and undergrowth. Cf. 7:23–25.

17:10 the Rock. See 26:4; 30:29; 44:8; Dt 32:4,15,18; Ps 19:14. vines. Probably representing the people of Israel (see 5:7; 18:5; 37:30–31).

17:11 disease and incurable pain. Brought by the Assyrian invasions.

17:12–14 The same sequence of a powerful invader that is quickly cut down occurs in 10:28–34. Both passages may refer to Sennacherib's invasion of 701 B.C. (see 37:36–37). But it is more likely that the prophet here speaks more generally of Israel's experience of the world of nations as a perpetual threat to her existence.

17:12 raging sea. Assyria is called "floodwaters" in 8:7.

17:13 chaff . . . tumbleweed. Symbolic of the enemy also in 29:5; 41:15–16; Ps 83:13.

18:1–7 See Zep 2:12.

18:1 whirring wings. Either a reference to insects (perhaps locusts) or a figurative description of the armies of Cush (see 7:18–19). Cush. Nubia or ancient Ethiopia (not to be confused with modern Ethiopia, which is located farther to the southeast), south of Egypt. In 715 B.C. a Cushite named Shabako gained control of Egypt and founded the 25th dynasty.

18:2 sea. Perhaps the Nile River (cf. 19:5; Na 3:8, where the same Hebrew word is translated "river"). papyrus boats. See note on Ex 2:3. Go, swift messengers. With the message contained in vv. 3–6. people tall and smooth-

5 For, before the harvest, when the

A Prophecy About Egypt

19 An oracle[w] concerning Egypt:[x y]

See, the LORD rides on a swift cloud[z]
and is coming to Egypt.
The idols of Egypt tremble before him,
and the hearts of the Egyptians melt[a] within them.

2 "I will stir up Egyptian against Egyptian—
brother will fight against brother,[b] neighbor against neighbor,
city against city,
kingdom against kingdom.[c] 3 The Egyptians will lose heart,[d] and I will bring their plans[e] to nothing;[f]
they will consult the idols and the spirits of the dead,
the mediums and the spiritists.[g] 4 I will hand the Egyptians over to the power of a cruel master, and a fierce king[h] will rule over
them,"
declares the Lord, the LORD
Almighty.

5 The waters of the river will dry up,[i] and the riverbed will be parched and dry.[j]
6 The canals will stink;[k]
the streams of Egypt will dwindle and dry up.[l]
The reeds[m] and rushes will wither,[n]
7 also the plants[o] along the Nile,
at the mouth of the river.
Every sown field[p] along the Nile will become parched, will blow away and be no more.[q] 8 The fishermen[r] will groan and lament,
all who cast hooks[s] into the Nile;
those who throw nets on the water will pine away.

skinned. Probably the peoples of Cush and Egypt. Unlike Semites, they were clean-shaven (see note on Ge 41:14). rivers. The Nile and its tributaries.

18:3 All you people of the world. All the nations arrayed against God's people Israel (see 17:12–14 and note). banner. See 5:26 and note. trumpet. Used to summon troops.

18:4 remain quiet. In the face of the hostility of the nations, the Lord will not act immediately; but when they are in the full growth of summer (v. 5), he will cut them down.

18:6 birds of prey . . . wild animals. Cf. 56:9; Jer 7:33; Eze 32:4; 39:17–20.

18:7 See v. 2. gifts. According to 2Ch 32:23 gifts were brought to Hezekiah after Sennacherib's death. The Moabites were asked to send tribute to Mount Zion in 16:1 (cf. 45:14; Zep 3:10). place of the Name. See Dt 12:5 and note.

19:1–20:6 See Jer 46; Eze 29–32.

19:1 oracle. See note on 13:1. rides on a swift cloud. A metaphor used also in Ps 68:4; 104:3; cf. Mt 26:64. idols . . . tremble. See Jer 50:2. God had also previously judged Egypt's idols during the ten plagues (see Ex 12:12 and note). hearts . . . melt. See 13:7.

19:2 Egyptian against Egyptian. Cf. 9:21. The Libyan dynasty clashed with the "Ethiopians" (Cushites; see note on 18:1) and with the Saites of Dynasty 24.

19:3 consult . . . spiritists. Israel also did so in desperate times (see 8:19 and note).

19:4 cruel master. The king of Assyria (see 20:4). Esarhaddon conquered Egypt in 670 B.C.

19:5 river will dry up. The Nile was the lifeline of Egypt; its annual flooding provided essential water and produced the only fertile soil there.

19:6 canals. For irrigation.

19:7 sown field. Egypt's crops were normally abundant, and some were exported.

19:8 fishermen. Fish were usually plentiful (see Nu 11:5).

[9]Those who work with combed flax[t]
will despair,
the weavers of fine linen[u] will lose hope.
[10]The workers in cloth will be dejected, and all the wage earners will be sick at heart.

[11]The officials of Zoan[v] are nothing but fools;
the wise counselors[w] of Pharaoh give senseless advice.[x]
How can you say to Pharaoh,
"I am one of the wise men,[y]
a disciple of the ancient kings"?

[12]Where are your wise men[z] now?
Let them show you and make known what the LORD Almighty has planned[a] against Egypt.
[13]The officials of Zoan[b] have become fools,
the leaders of Memphis[vc] are deceived;
the cornerstones[d] of her peoples have led Egypt astray.
[14]The LORD has poured into them
a spirit of dizziness;[e] they make Egypt stagger in all that she does,
as a drunkard staggers[f] around in his vomit.
[15]There is nothing Egypt can do—head or tail, palm branch or reed.[g]

[16]In that day[h] the Egyptians will be like women.[i] They will shudder with fear[j] at the uplifted hand[k] that the LORD Almighty raises against them. [17]And the land of Judah will bring terror to the Egyptians; everyone to whom Judah is mentioned will be terrified,[l] because of what the LORD Almighty is planning[m] against them.

[18]In that day[n] five cities[o] in Egypt will speak the language of Canaan and swear allegiance[p] to the LORD Almighty. One of them will be called the City of Destruction.[wq]

[19]In that day[r] there will be an altar[s] to the LORD in the heart of Egypt,[t] and a monument[u] to the LORD at its border. [20]It will be a sign and witness[v] to the LORD Almighty in the land of Egypt. When they cry out to the LORD because of their oppressors, he will send them a savior[w] and defender, and he will rescue[x] them. [21]So the LORD will make himself known to the Egyptians, and in that day they will acknowledge[y] the LORD. They will worship[z] with sacrifices and grain offerings; they will make vows to the LORD and keep them.[a] [22]The LORD will strike[b] Egypt with a plague;[c] he

19:9 work with ... flax. Large amounts of water were needed to process flax. fine linen. Another well-known Egyptian export.

19:11 Zoan. A city (possibly Tanis) in the northeastern part of the Nile delta, familiar to the Israelites during their years in Egypt (see Nu 13:22; Ps 78:12,43). It was the northern capital for the 25th dynasty (see note on 18:1). wise men. See v. 12. Egypt was famous for its wise men (see 1Ki 4:30).

19:13 Memphis. An important city 15 miles south of the delta that was the capital during the Old Kingdom (c. 2686–2160 B.C.). cornerstones. Prophets and priests, as well as political leaders (see 9:15–16).

19:14 drunkard staggers. Israel's leaders stagger in 28:7–8.

19:15 head or tail, palm branch or reed. Egypt's leaders. The same two pairs are used of Israel's leaders in 9:14–15.

19:16–25 A chain of four announcements of coming events associated with "that day": 1. An act of divine judgment will cause Egypt to "shudder with fear" (v. 16) and be in terror of Judah (vv. 16–17). 2. "Five cities" in Egypt will "swear allegiance" to the Lord (v. 18). 3. Because of a divine act of deliverance and healing in Egypt, an altar will be erected in Egypt where Egyptians will offer sacrifices to the Lord (vv. 19–22). 4. Egypt, Assyria and Israel will be linked into one people of the Lord (vv. 23–25). The prophet looks well beyond the present realities in which the world powers do not acknowledge the true God and proudly pursue their own destinies, running roughshod over the people of the Lord. He foresees a series of divine acts that will bring about the conversion of the nations.

19:16,18–19,23–24 In that day. The coming day of the Lord (see 10:20,27 and note; cf. 11:10–11).

19:16 shudder with fear. Like the people of Jericho (Jos 2:9,11). hand ... the LORD ... raises. See 14:26–27 and note.

19:17 land of Judah. The Egyptians will somehow recognize (perhaps through court contacts with Hezekiah) that it is the God of Judah who has brought judgment upon them.

19:18 five. Perhaps in the sense of "many." speak the language of Canaan. Either a symbolic reference to Egypt's allegiance to the Lord (see vv. 21–22,25) or a literal reference to Jews living in Egypt. After the fall of Jerusalem in 586 B.C., many Jews fled to Egypt (Jer 44:1). City of Destruction. Probably a reference to Heliopolis, city of the sun-god; it was destroyed by Nebuchadnezzar (see Jer 43:12–13). The Hebrew for "destruction" is almost identical to the Hebrew for "sun."

19:19 altar. Some relate this to the temple built in Egypt by the Jewish high priest Onias IV, who fled to Egypt in the second century B.C., but the reference appears to be to a conversion to the Lord of a significant number of Egyptians.

19:20 sign and witness. Cf. the purpose of the altar built near the Jordan River by the Transjordan tribes in Jos 22:26–27. oppressors ... savior. The language of the book of Judges (see Jdg 2:18). It is uncertain who this savior and defender is, but the prophet may well have in mind the promised Son of the house of David (see 11:1–10).

19:21 make himself known. Cf. Ex 7:5. worship with sacrifices. Offerings of foreigners are also mentioned in 56:7; 60:7 (cf. Zec 14:16–19).

19:22 strike Egypt with a plague. Oppression (see v. 20) and plague were two common forms of divine affliction. Contrast the results of the plague on the firstborn in Ex will strike them and heal them. They will turn[d] to the LORD, and he will respond to their pleas and heal[e] them.

[23]In that day[f] there will be a highway[g] from Egypt to Assyria.[h] The Assyrians will go to Egypt and the Egyptians to Assyria. The Egyptians and Assyrians will worship[i] together. [24]In that day[j] Israel will be the third, along with Egypt and Assyria,[k] a blessing[l] on the earth. [25]The LORD Almighty will bless[m] them, saying, "Blessed be Egypt my people,[n] Assyria my handiwork,[o] and Israel my inheritance.[p]"

A Prophecy Against Egypt and Cush

20 In the year that the supreme commander,[q] sent by Sargon king of Assyria, came to Ashdod[r] and attacked and captured it— [2]at that time the LORD spoke through Isaiah son of Amoz.[s] He said to him, "Take off the sackcloth[t] from your body and the sandals[u] from your feet." And he did so, going around stripped[v] and barefoot.[w]

[3]Then the LORD said, "Just as my servant[x] Isaiah has gone stripped and barefoot for three years,[y] as a sign[z] and portent[a] against Egypt[b] and Cush,[xc] [4]so the king[d] of Assyria will lead away stripped[e] and barefoot the Egyptian captives[f] and Cushite[g] exiles, young and old, with buttocks bared[h]—to Egypt's shame.[i] [5]Those who trusted[j] in Cush[k] and boasted in Egypt[l] will be afraid and put to shame.[m] [6]In that day[n] the people who live on this coast will say, 'See what has happened[o] to those we relied on,[p] those we fled to for help[q] and deliverance from the king of Assyria! How then can we escape?[r]' "

A Prophecy Against Babylon

21 An oracle[s] concerning the Desert[t] by the Sea:

Like whirlwinds[u] sweeping through the southland,[v] an invader comes from the desert,
from a land of terror.

[2]A dire[w] vision has been shown to me:
The traitor betrays,[x] the looter takes loot.
Elam,[y] attack! Media,[z] lay siege!
I will bring to an end all the groaning she caused.

[3]At this my body is racked with pain,[a] pangs seize me, like those of a woman in labor;[b]
I am staggered by what I hear,
I am bewildered[c] by what I see.

[xc] 3 That is, the upper Nile region; also in verse 5

12:23. turn . . . heal. Cf. 6:10; here parallel to sending Egypt a "savior and defender" (v. 20). Earlier a hardhearted pharaoh had not turned to the Lord (Ex 9:34–35).

19:23 highway. Cf. the highway to Jerusalem in 11:16 (see note there). For centuries Egyptians and Assyrians had fought each other (see 20:4), but in the future they would be linked in a bond of friendship sealed by their common allegiance to the Lord (cf. 25:3). worship together. This description of peace and of unity in worship is similar to 2:2–4 (see note there; see also note on v. 21).

19:25 will bless them. A fulfillment of Ge 12:3. Egypt my people. Such a universal vision seems possible for Isaiah only in the light of what has been said about the "shoot . . . from the stump of Jesse" (11:1; see 11:1–10). Cf. 45:14; Eph 2:11–13.

20:1–6 An epilogue to chs. 18–19, as 16:13–14 is to 15:1–16:12.

20:1 the year. Probably 712 B.C. Sargon. Sargon II, who reigned 721–705 B.C. He is mentioned by name only here in the OT. Ashdod. One of the five Philistine cities (see map, p. 327), Ashdod was located near the Mediterranean Sea about 18 miles northeast of Gaza. The city had rebelled against Assyria in 713 under King Azuri. In 1963 three fragments of an Assyrian monument commemorating Sargon's victory and mentioning Sargon by name were discovered at Ashdod.

20:2 sackcloth. Normally the garment of mourners (see note on 15:3), but perhaps also the usual garb of prophets (see 2Ki 1:8; Zec 13:4).

20:3 my servant. A title for prophets and others used by God in a special way. three years. See 16:14 and note. sign and portent. See 8:18; see also 7:3,14 and notes. The prophet Ezekiel's behavior also had symbolic significance (Eze 24:24,27; cf. Zec 3:8). Egypt and Cush. See 18:1; 19:1.

20:4 stripped and barefoot. Cf. 2Ch 28:15; Mic 1:8.

20:5 trusted in Cush . . . Egypt. After Assyria conquered the northern kingdom of Israel in 722–721 B.C., King Hezekiah of Judah was under great pressure to make an alliance with Egypt. Isaiah urgently warned against such a policy (cf. 30:1–2; 31:1).

21:1 oracle. See note on 13:1. Desert. The coming judgment would eventually turn Babylon (see v. 9) into a wasteland (cf. 13:20–22). the Sea. Refers either to the Persian Gulf, which was just south of Babylon, or to the alluvial plain deposited by the Euphrates and Tigris rivers and their tributaries. whirlwinds . . . desert. The desert sometimes spawns powerful winds (see Hos 13:15). an invader. Lit. "it"; it is not clear whether "comes from the desert, from a land of terror" is ascribed to an invader or continues the description of the whirlwinds.

21:2 Elam. See note on 11:11. The Elamites were a perpetual enemy of Assyria and Babylon. Much later, they were part of the Persian army that conquered Babylon under Cyrus in 539 B.C. Media. See note on 13:17. she. Babylon.

21:3 racked with pain, pangs seize me. See Daniel's reaction to visions in Da 8:27; 10:16–17; but see also notes on 29:9–11.

4My heart[d] falters, fear makes me tremble;[e]
the twilight I longed for has become a horror[f] to me.

5They set the tables,
they spread the rugs,
they eat, they drink![g]
Get up, you officers,
oil the shields![h]

6This is what the Lord says to me:

"Go, post a lookout[i]
and have him report what he sees.
7When he sees chariots[j]
with teams of horses, riders on donkeys
or riders on camels,[k]
let him be alert, fully alert."

8And the lookout[y][l] shouted,

"Day after day, my lord, I stand on the watchtower;
every night I stay at my post.
9Look, here comes a man in a chariot[m]
with a team of horses.
And he gives back the answer:
'Babylon[n] has fallen,[o] has fallen!
All the images of its gods[p] lie shattered[q] on the ground!' "

10O my people, crushed on the threshing floor,[r]
I tell you what I have heard from the LORD Almighty, from the God of Israel.

A Prophecy Against Edom

11An oracle concerning Dumah[z]:[s]

Someone calls to me from Seir,[t]
"Watchman, what is left of the night?
Watchman, what is left of the night?"
12The watchman replies,
"Morning is coming, but also the night.
If you would ask, then ask;
and come back yet again."

A Prophecy Against Arabia

13An oracle[u] concerning Arabia:[v]

You caravans of Dedanites,[w] who camp in the thickets of Arabia, 14 bring water for the thirsty;
you who live in Tema,[x]
bring food for the fugitives.
15They flee[y] from the sword,[z]
from the drawn sword, from the bent bow
and from the heat of battle.

16This is what the Lord says to me: "Within one year, as a servant bound by contract[a] would count it, all the pomp[b] of Kedar[c] will come to an end. 17The survivors of the bowmen, the warriors of Kedar, will be few.[d]" The LORD, the God of Israel, has spoken.[e]

[y] 8 Dead Sea Scrolls and Syriac; Masoretic Text A lion
[z] 11 Dumah means silence or stillness, a wordplay on Edom.

21:4 twilight. Perhaps the end of the Babylonian empire (see note on v. 12). a horror to me. The devastation is beyond even what he had desired.
21:5 eat ... drink. With the kind of confident assurance reflected in Belshazzar's feast (see Da 5:1). Get up ...! Rhetorically the prophet, who has seen in a vision the coming attack on Babylon, calls on the officers of Babylon to prepare. oil the shields. To make supple the leather that covers the shields so that blows from swords or arrows would glance off.
21:6 Go, post a lookout. Probably on the walls of Jerusalem.
21:7 chariots ... donkeys ... camels. Bearing messengers from afar.
21:9 Babylon has fallen. See 13:19. Babylon fell in 689 B.C. and again in 539. These words were adapted by John in Rev 14:8; 18:2. its gods lie shattered. The fall of a kingdom meant the disgrace of its gods (cf. 46:1–2).
21:10 crushed. Judah would be punished by the Babylonians and taken into captivity (see 39:5–7). on the threshing floor. Threshing was a common metaphor for judgment or destruction from war (see Am 1:3).
21:11–12 See Jer 49:7–22; Eze 25:12–14; Am 1:11–12.
21:11 oracle. See note on 13:1. Seir. A synonym for Edom (Ge 32:3), homeland of Esau's descendants, south of the Dead Sea. Edom is dealt with more extensively in 34:5–15 (cf. 63:1).
21:12 Morning ... but also the night. Perhaps meaning that the long night of Assyrian oppression is almost over, but only a short "morning" will precede Babylonian domination.
21:13–17 See Jer 49:28–33.
21:13 oracle. See note on 13:1. Dedanites. An Arabian tribe whose merchant activities are mentioned also in Eze 27:20; 38:13. thickets. The caravans had to hide from the invader (cf. Jdg 5:6). The Assyrians began to attack the Arabs in 732 B.C., and the Babylonians did the same under Nebuchadnezzar (see Jer 25:17,23–24).
21:14 Tema. An oasis in northern Arabia about 400 miles southwest of Babylon (cf. Job 6:19; Jer 25:23).
21:15 sword ... bow. The simple bows of the Arabs were ineffective against the swords and composite bows of Assyria.
21:16 servant bound by contract. See 16:14 and note. pomp. See 14:11; 16:14. Kedar. The home of Bedouin tribes in the Arabian Desert. Kedar was known for its flocks (60:7; Eze 27:21). Nebuchadnezzar defeated the people of Kedar (Jer 49:28–29; cf. Jer 2:10).
21:17 survivors ... will be few. Cf. 10:19; 16:14; 17:6.
22:1–13 The notes on this prophecy assume that it refers primarily to the final Babylonian siege of Jerusalem in 588–586 B.C. But it is also possible that the primary reference is to the siege by the Assyrian king Sennacherib in 701.

What troubles you now,
that you have all gone up on the roofs,[i] 2O town full of commotion,
O city of tumult[j] and revelry?[k]
Your slain[l] were not killed by the sword,[m] nor did they die in battle.
3All your leaders have fled[n] together;
they have been captured[o] without using the bow.
All you who were caught were taken prisoner together,
having fled while the enemy was still far away.
4Therefore I said, "Turn away from me;
let me weep[p] bitterly.
Do not try to console me
over the destruction of my people."[q]

5The Lord, the LORD Almighty, has a day[r] of tumult and trampling[s] and terror[t] in the Valley of Vision,[u] a day of battering down walls[v] and of crying out to the mountains.
6Elam[w] takes up the quiver,[x]
with her charioteers and horses;
Kir[y] uncovers the shield.
7Your choicest valleys[z] are full of chariots, and horsemen are posted at the city gates;[a] 8 the defenses of Judah are stripped away.

And you looked in that day[b] to the weapons[c] in the Palace of the Forest;[d] 9you saw that the City of David had many breaches[e] in its defenses;
you stored up water
in the Lower Pool.[f] 10You counted the buildings in Jerusalem and tore down houses[g] to strengthen the wall.[h] 11You built a reservoir between the two walls[i] for the water of the Old Pool,[j] but you did not look to the One who made it, or have regard[k] for the One who planned[l] it long ago.

12The Lord, the LORD Almighty, called you on that day[m]
to weep[n] and to wail, to tear out your hair[o] and put on sackcloth.[p] 13But see, there is joy and revelry,[q] slaughtering of cattle and killing of sheep, eating of meat and drinking of wine![r]
"Let us eat and drink," you say,
"for tomorrow we die!"[s]

14The LORD Almighty has revealed this in my hearing:[t] "Till your dying day this sin will not be atoned[u] for," says the Lord, the LORD Almighty.

15This is what the Lord, the LORD Almighty, says:

"Go, say to this steward, to Shebna,[v] who is in charge[w] of the palace:[x] 16What are you doing here and who gave you permission to cut out a grave[y] for yourself[z] here,

22:1 oracle. See note on 13:1. Valley of Vision. A valley where God revealed himself in visions, probably one of the valleys near Jerusalem (see note on v. 7). See also v. 5. roofs. See 15:3 and note.

22:2 tumult and revelry. See v. 13; 5:11–12; 32:13. Jerusalem is behaving just like Babylon (see 21:5; cf. 23:7). not killed by the sword. Perhaps a reference to death from disease and famine when the Babylonians besieged Jerusalem in 586 B.C.

22:3 leaders have fled. King Zedekiah and his army fled Jerusalem but were captured near Jericho (see 2Ki 25:4–6).

22:5 has a day. See 2:12 and note on 2:11,17,20. Also cf. "in that day" in v. 8 and "on that day" in v. 12. tumult. A fulfillment of the curse of Dt 28:20.

22:6 Elam. See note on 11:11. Elamites probably fought in the Babylonian army. Kir. Perhaps another name for Media (see 21:2).

22:7 choicest valleys. The Kidron Valley lay east of Jerusalem (see Jn 18:1), the Hinnom Valley to the south and west (see Jos 15:8).

22:8 Palace of the Forest. Built by King Solomon out of cedars from Lebanon (see 1Ki 7:2–6; 10:17,21).

22:9 City of David. See 2Sa 5:6–7,9. Lower Pool. Probably the same as the "Old Pool" of v. 11. Hezekiah made a pool and a tunnel as a precaution against Sennacherib's invasion (see 2Ki 20:20). The "Upper Pool" is mentioned in 7:3; 36:2.

22:10 strengthen the wall. Cf. Hezekiah's preparations in 2Ch 32:5.

22:11 did not look to the One. In 31:1 those who look to horses and chariots rather than to God are similarly condemned.

22:12 tear out your hair. The hair was either torn out or shaved off (cf. Jer 16:6; Eze 27:31).

22:13 joy and revelry. The same Hebrew phrase is translated "gladness and joy" in 35:10; 51:11, passages depicting great hope in connection with restoration. But this was a time to mourn (Ecc 3:4). See note on v. 2.

22:15 Shebna. Apparently a foreigner, possibly Egyptian; a contemporary of King Hezekiah. in charge of the palace. A position second only to the king (see note on v. 21; cf. 36:3; 1Ki 4:6; 2Ki 15:5).

22:16 cut out a grave. One's place of burial was considered very important, and Shebna coveted a tomb worthy of a king (cf. 2Ch 16:14).

hewing your grave on the height and there your splendid chariots[c] will remain—

you disgrace to your master's house!
19I will depose you from your office,
and you will be ousted[d] from your position.[e]

20"In that day[f] I will summon my servant,[g] Eliakim[h] son of Hilkiah. 21I will clothe him with your robe and fasten your sash[i] around him and hand your authority[j] over to him. He will be a father to those who live in Jerusalem and to the house of Judah. 22I will place on his shoulder[k] the key[l] to the house of David;[m] what he opens no one can shut, and what he shuts no one can open.[n] 23I will drive him like a peg[o] into a firm place;[p] he will be a seat[a] of honor[q] for the house of his father. 24All the glory of his family will hang on him: its offspring and offshoots—all its lesser vessels, from the bowls to all the jars.

A Prophecy About Tyre

23 An oracle concerning Tyre:[u]

Wail,[v] O ships[w] of Tarshish![x]
For Tyre is destroyed[y] and left without house or harbor.
From the land of Cyprus[b]
word has come to them.

2Be silent,[z] you people of the island and you merchants[a] of Sidon,[b] whom the seafarers have enriched.
3On the great waters came the grain of the Shihor;[c]
the harvest of the Nile[c,d] was the revenue of Tyre,[e] and she became the marketplace of the nations.

4Be ashamed, O Sidon,[f] and you, O fortress of the sea,
for the sea has spoken:
"I have neither been in labor nor given birth;[g]
I have neither reared sons nor brought up daughters."
5When word comes to Egypt, they will be in anguish[h] at the report from Tyre.[i]

6Cross over to Tarshish;[j] wail, you people of the island.
7Is this your city of revelry,[k]

22:17 hurl you away. Cf. Jer 22:24–26.
22:18 There you will die. Apparently without an honorable burial (see note on 14:19). chariots. A sign of luxury and high office (see 2:7; Ge 41:43).
22:20 In that day. When the Lord acts in judgment (see vv. 17–19). my servant. See note on 20:3. Eliakim. See 36:3,11,22; 37:2.
22:21 hand your authority over to him. By 701 B.C. (see 36:3) Eliakim had replaced Shebna, who was demoted to "secretary."
22:22 Quoted in part in Rev 3:7. The mention of "father" (v. 21) and of the responsibility "on his shoulder" recalls the words about the Messiah in 9:6. key to the house of David. The authority delegated to him by the king, who belongs to David's dynasty—perhaps controlling entrance into the royal palace. Cf. the "keys of the kingdom" given to Peter (Mt 16:19).
22:23 peg. Normally the Hebrew for this word refers to a tent peg, but here to a peg driven into wood (see Eze 15:3). seat of honor. Cf. 1Sa 2:8.
22:25 In that day. Another (unspecified) day when the Lord will come in judgment. peg ... will give way. Eliakim, like Shebna, will eventually fall from power.
23:1–18 See Eze 26:1–28:19; Am 1:9–10.
23:1 oracle. See note on 13:1. Tyre. The main seaport along the Phoenician coast, about 35 miles north of Mount Carmel. Part of the city was built on two rocky islands about half a mile from the shore. King Hiram of Tyre supplied cedars and craftsmen for the temple (see 1Ki 5:8–9) and sailors for Solomon's commercial fleet (1Ki 9:27). Wail, O ships. See v. 14. ships of Tarshish. Trading ships (see note on 2:16). destroyed. Fulfilled through Assyria, Nebuchadnezzar and Alexander. Nebuchadnezzar captured the mainland city in 572 B.C. (see Eze 26:7–11), but the island fortress was not taken until Alexander the Great destroyed it in 332 (cf. Eze 26:3–5). Cyprus. An island that had close ties with Tyre (see Eze 27:6).
23:2,4,12 Sidon. See Eze 28:20–26, the other prominent Phoenician city, about 25 miles north of Tyre.
23:2 merchants ... seafarers. Tyre's commercial ventures affected the entire Mediterranean world (see vv. 3,8).
23:3 Shihor. Probably the easternmost branch of the Nile (see Jer 2:18). harvest of the Nile. See 19:7 and note.
23:4 fortress of the sea. Tyre (see note on v. 1). labor ... birth. Contrast 54:1.
23:6 Tarshish. Perhaps Tartessus in Spain (see Jnh 1:3 and note), or an island in the western Mediterranean, or a site on the coast of North Africa.
23:7 revelry. See note on 22:2. old, old city. Tyre was founded before 2000 B.C. settle in far-off lands. Carthage in North Africa was a colony of Tyre. Tarshish may have been another.

the old, old city, whose feet have taken her
to settle in far-off lands?
8Who planned this against Tyre,
the bestower of crowns,
whose merchants[l] are princes, whose traders[m] are renowned in
the earth?
9The LORD Almighty planned[n] it, to bring low[o] the pride of all glory and to humble[p] all who are renowned[q] on the earth.

10Till[d] your land as along the Nile,
O Daughter of Tarshish,
for you no longer have a harbor.
11The LORD has stretched out his hand[r] over the sea
and made its kingdoms tremble.[s]
He has given an order concerning Phoenicia[e]
that her fortresses be destroyed.[t] 12He said, "No more of your reveling,[u]
O Virgin Daughter[v] of Sidon, now crushed!

"Up, cross over to Cyprus[f];[w] even there you will find no rest."
13Look at the land of the Babylonians,[g][x]
this people that is now of no account!
The Assyrians[y] have made it a place for desert creatures;[z] they raised up their siege towers,[a] they stripped its fortresses bare and turned it into a ruin.[b]

14Wail, you ships[c] of Tarshish;[d] your fortress is destroyed![e]

15At that time Tyre[f] will be forgotten for seventy years,[g] the span of a king's life. But at the end of these seventy years, it will happen to Tyre as in the song of the prostitute:

16"Take up a harp, walk through the city,
O prostitute[h] forgotten;
play the harp well, sing many a song,
so that you will be remembered."

17At the end of seventy years,[i] the LORD will deal with Tyre. She will return to her hire as a prostitute[j] and will ply her trade with all the kingdoms on the face of the earth.[k] 18Yet her profit and her earnings will be set apart for the LORD;[l] they will not be stored up or hoarded. Her profits will go to those who live before the LORD,[m] for abundant food and fine clothes.[n]

The LORD's Devastation of the Earth

24 See, the LORD is going to lay waste the earth[o]
and devastate[p] it;
he will ruin its face
and scatter[q] its inhabitants—2it will be the same for priest as for people,[r]
for master as for servant,
for mistress as for maid,
for seller as for buyer,[s]
for borrower as for lender,
for debtor as for creditor.[t] 3The earth will be completely laid waste[u]
and totally plundered.[v]
The LORD has spoken[w]
this word.

4The earth dries up[x] and withers,[y]
the world languishes and withers, the exalted[z] of the earth languish.[a] 5The earth is defiled[b] by its people;

23:12 Virgin Daughter of Sidon. See note on v. 10. now crushed. Sidon was captured by Esarhaddon in the seventh century B.C. and later by Nebuchadnezzar c. 587 (cf. Jer 25:22).
23:13 Assyrians. Sennacherib destroyed the city of Babylon in 689 B.C. Phoenicia would look like the Babylon of that time. desert creatures. Cf. 13:21. siege towers. See note on 2Ki 25:1.
23:14 See v. 1 and note.
23:15 seventy years. Also the length of the Babylonian captivity (see Jer 25:11; 29:10), and the length of time Sennacherib decreed that Babylon should remain devastated.
23:16 Cf. Pr 7:10–15.
23:17 her hire as a prostitute. A "prostitute" nation was one that sought to make the highest profits, regardless of the means. Self-gratification was the key (cf. Rev 17:5).
23:18 set apart for the LORD. The earnings of a prostitute could not be given to the Lord (Dt 23:18), but the silver and gold of a city "devoted to destruction" (see note on Dt 2:34) were placed in the Lord's treasury (see Jos 6:17,19; cf. Mic 4:13). to those. Israel will one day receive the wealth of the nations (see note on 18:7; cf. 60:5–11; 61:6).
24:1–27:13 Chs. 24–27 deal with judgment and blessing in the last days, the time of God's final victory over the forces of evil. These chapters form a conclusion to chs. 13–23 just as chs. 34–35 form a conclusion to chs. 28–33.
24:1 lay waste the earth. Cf. 2:10,19,21; see also 13:13 and note. scatter its inhabitants. See Ge 11:9.
24:2 Social distinctions will provide no escape from the judgment (cf. 3:1–3).
24:4 dries up and withers. Words applied to Moab in 15:6; 16:8. Cf. 34:4.
24:5 broken the everlasting covenant. Reference is prob-

earth;
its people must bear their guilt.
Therefore earth's inhabitants are burned up,[f]
and very few are left.
7The new wine dries up[g] and the vine withers;[h] all the merrymakers groan.[i] 8The gaiety of the tambourines[j] is stilled,
the noise[k] of the revelers[l] has stopped,
the joyful harp[m] is silent.[n] 9No longer do they drink wine[o] with the beer is bitter[p] to its drinkers.

10The ruined city[q] lies desolate;[r]
the entrance to every house is barred.
11In the streets they cry out[s] for wine;[t] all joy turns to gloom,[u]
all gaiety is banished from the earth.
12The city is left in ruins,[v]
its gate[w] is battered to pieces.
13So will it be on the earth and among the nations,
as when an olive tree is beaten,[x] or as when gleanings are left after the grape harvest.[y]

14They raise their voices, they shout for joy;[z]
from the west[a] they acclaim the LORD's majesty.
15Therefore in the east[b] give glory[c] to
the LORD;
exalt[d] the name[e] of the LORD, the God of Israel,
in the islands[f] of the sea.
16From the ends of the earth[g] we hear singing:[h]
"Glory[i] to the Righteous One."[j]

But I said, "I waste away, I waste away![k]
Woe[l] to me!
The treacherous[m] betray!
With treachery the treacherous betray![n]" 17Terror[o] and pit and snare[p] await
you,
O people of the earth.[q] 18Whoever flees[r] at the sound of terror will fall into a pit;[s] whoever climbs out of the pit will be caught in a snare.[t]

The floodgates of the heavens[u] are opened,
the foundations of the earth
shake.[v] 19The earth is broken up,[w]
the earth is split asunder,[x]
the earth is thoroughly shaken.
20The earth reels like a drunkard,[y]
it sways like a hut[z] in the wind;
so heavy upon it is the guilt of its rebellion[a]
that it falls[b]—never to rise again.[c]

21In that day[d] the LORD will punish[e]
the powers[f] in the heavens above and the kings[g] on the earth below.
22They will be herded together like prisoners[h] bound in a dungeon;[i] ably to the covenant of Ge 9:8–17 (see Ge 9:11 and note). See also v. 18 and note. Although everlasting from the divine viewpoint, God's covenants can be broken by sinful mankind.

24:6 curse. Because of the intensification of evil in the world, God's devastating curse will burn up the earth's inhabitants (cf. Ge 8:21–22; cf. also the covenant of Ge 9:8–17).

24:7 vine withers. See v. 4 and note.

24:8 gaiety . . . is stilled. Cf. 22:2,13; 23:7.

24:9 wine with a song. Characteristic of Judah in 5:11–13 (see note there).

24:10 ruined city. The same idea appears in 25:2; 26:5 (cf. 17:1; 19:18). It is probably a composite of all the cities opposed to God—such as Babylon, Tyre, Jerusalem and Rome.

24:13 Only a few olives and grapes will be left (see v. 6; 17:6,11).

24:14 They. The godly remnant that survives the judgment.

24:15 islands. See note on 11:11.

24:16 ends of the earth. See note on 11:12. I. Probably collective for the godly community that wastes away because of the villainy of the treacherous nations that seek to crush the people of God. I waste away . . . betray! In the Hebrew text these last four lines of the verse (Razi li, razi li! 'Oy li! Bogedim bagadu! Ubeged bogedim bagadu!) contain a powerful example of alliteration and assonance. Woe to me! Isaiah had the same reaction in 6:5. The treacherous. The enemies of God's people.

24:17–18 Cf. Am 5:19.

24:17 Terror and pit and snare. Another example (see note on v. 16) of alliteration and assonance (see note on Jer 48:43). The Hebrew words are paḥad, paḥat and paḥ.

24:18 floodgates of the heavens. An echo of Noah's flood (Ge 7:11; 8:2). foundations . . . shake. Earthquakes and thunder (see note on 13:13; cf. Joel 3:16).

24:20 like a drunkard. Cf. 19:14. like a hut. See 1:8 and note.

24:21 In that day. The day of the Lord (see notes on 2:11,17,20; 10:20,27; cf. 25:9; 26:1; 27:1–2,12–13). powers in the heavens. Satan and the fallen angels (see Eph 6:11–12).

24:22 shut up in prison. Cf. Rev 20:2. punished after many they will be shut up in prison and be punished[h] after many days.[j] 23 The moon will be abashed, the sun[k] ashamed; for the LORD Almighty will reign[l] on Mount Zion[m] and in Jerusalem, and before its elders, gloriously.[n]

Praise to the LORD

25 O LORD, you are my God;[o]
I will exalt you and praise your name,[p] for in perfect faithfulness[q]
you have done marvelous things,[r] things planned[s] long ago.
2 You have made the city a heap of rubble,[t]
the fortified[u] town a ruin,[v]
the foreigners' stronghold[w] a city no more;
it will never be rebuilt.[x]
3 Therefore strong peoples will honor you;[y] cities of ruthless[z] nations will revere you.
4 You have been a refuge[a] for the poor,[b] a refuge for the needy[c] in his distress, a shelter from the storm[d]
and a shade from the heat.
For the breath of the ruthless[e] is like a storm driving against a wall
5 and like the heat of the desert.
You silence[f] the uproar of foreigners;[g] as heat is reduced by the shadow of a cloud,
so the song of the ruthless[h] is stilled.

6 On this mountain[i] the LORD Almighty will prepare a feast[j] of rich food for all peoples, a banquet of aged wine—
the best of meats and the finest of wines.[k] 7 On this mountain he will destroy the shroud[l] that enfolds all peoples,[m]
the sheet that covers all nations;
8 he will swallow up death[n] forever.
The Sovereign LORD will wipe away the tears[o]
from all faces;
he will remove the disgrace[p] of his people
from all the earth.
The LORD has spoken.[q]

9 In that day[r] they will say,

"Surely this is our God;[s]
we trusted[t] in him, and he saved[u] us.
This is the LORD, we trusted in him;
let us rejoice[v] and be glad in his salvation."[w]

10 The hand of the LORD will rest on this mountain;[x] but Moab[y] will be trampled under him
as straw is trampled down in the manure.
11 They will spread out their hands in it,
as a swimmer spreads out his hands to swim.
God will bring down[z] their pride[a]
despite the cleverness[i] of their hands.
12 He will bring down your high fortified walls[b]

[h] 22 Or released [i] 11 The meaning of the Hebrew for this word is uncertain.

days. See NIV text note; cf. Rev 20:7–10.

24:23 moon ... abashed, the sun ashamed. The sun and moon do not shine during judgment (see note on 13:10) or when the Lord is the "everlasting light" (60:19–20; cf. Rev 21:23; 22:5). reign on Mount Zion. See 2:2–4 and note.

25:1–5 A song of praise celebrating the deliverance brought about by the judgments of ch. 24 (see 24:14–16; see also ch. 12).

25:1 planned long ago. See 14:24,26–27; 23:8–9.

25:2 the city ... a ruin. See 24:10 and note. never be rebuilt. Cf. 24:20.

25:3 strong peoples ... ruthless nations. Such as Egypt and Assyria (see 19:18–25 and notes). honor you ... revere you. See 24:15.

25:4–5 refuge ... shelter ... shade ... cloud. See 4:5–6 and note; cf. 32:2.

25:6–8 The eschatological feast of God.

25:6–7,10 this mountain. Mount Zion. See 2:2–4 and note; cf. 24:23.

25:6 feast ... banquet. Associated with a coronation (1Ki 1:25) or wedding (Jdg 14:10); cf. the "wedding supper of the Lamb" (Rev 19:9). rich food. Symbolic of great spiritual blessings (see 55:2). aged wine. The best wine—aged by being left on its dregs (see Jer 48:11; Zep 1:12).

25:7 shroud ... sheet. Or "covering ... veil," with which faces were covered in mourning—in any event, the associations are with death.

25:8 Quoted in part in 1Co 15:54. swallow up death. Death, the great swallower (see Ps 49:14 and note), will be swallowed up. Sovereign LORD. See 7:7; 28:16; 30:15; 40:10; 49:22; 52:4; 61:11; 65:13. remove the disgrace. See 54:4.

25:9 Another brief song of praise. In that day. See 12:1,4; 24:21; see also 10:20,27 and note. we trusted ... he saved. Cf. Ps 22:4–5. rejoice and be glad. Cf. 35:10; 51:11; 66:10.

25:10–12 An elaboration on the theme of judgment.

25:10 Moab. Symbolic of all the enemies of God, like Edom in 34:5–17. See note on 15:1.

25:11 pride. See note on 16:6.

25:12 high fortified walls. See v. 2; 2:15; 2Ki 3:27; Jer 51:58.

and lay them low;[c]
he will bring them down to the ground, to the very dust.

A Song of Praise

26 In that day[d] this song will be sung[e] in the land of Judah:

We have a strong city;[f]
God makes salvation its walls[g] and ramparts.[h] [2]Open the gates[i] that the righteous[j] nation may enter,
the nation that keeps faith.
[3]You will keep in perfect peace[k]
him whose mind is steadfast,
because he trusts[l] in you.
[4]Trust[m] in the LORD forever,[n]
for the LORD, the LORD, is the Rock[o] eternal.
[5]He humbles those who dwell on high,
he lays the lofty city low;
he levels it to the ground[p]
and casts it down to the dust.[q] [6]Feet trample[r] it down—
the feet of the oppressed,[s]
the footsteps of the poor.[t]

[7]The path of the righteous is level;[u]
O upright One,[v] you make the way of the righteous smooth.[w] [8]Yes, LORD, walking in the way of your laws,[x]
we wait[y] for you;
your name[z] and renown
are the desire of our hearts.
[9]My soul yearns for you in the night;[a]
in the morning my spirit longs[b] for you.
When your judgments[c] come upon the earth,
the people of the world learn righteousness.[d] [10]Though grace is shown to the wicked,[e] they do not learn righteousness;
even in a land of uprightness they go on doing evil[f]
and regard[g] not the majesty of the LORD.
[11]O LORD, your hand is lifted high,[h]
but they do not see[i] it.
Let them see your zeal[j] for your people and be put to shame;[k] let the fire[l] reserved for your enemies consume them.

[12]LORD, you establish peace[m] for us;
all that we have accomplished you have done[n] for us.
[13]O LORD, our God, other lords[o] besides you have ruled over us, but your name[p] alone do we honor.[q] [14]They are now dead,[r] they live no more;
those departed spirits[s] do not rise.
You punished them and brought them to ruin;[t]
you wiped out all memory of them.[u] [15]You have enlarged the nation, O LORD;
you have enlarged the nation.[v]
You have gained glory for yourself;
you have extended all the borders[w] of the land.

[16]LORD, they came to you in their distress;[x]
when you disciplined[y] them, they could barely whisper[z] a prayer.[k] [17]As a woman with child and about to give birth[a] writhes and cries out in her pain, so were we in your presence, O LORD.

26:7 path . . . level; . . . way . . . smooth. A theme found also in 40:3–4; 42:16; 45:13.
26:8 A desire for God to reveal his power in their behalf (see Hos 12:5–6). name and renown. See v. 13; 24:15; 25:1.
26:9 judgments. Punishment (cf. 4:4).
26:10 grace. Such as the blessings of harvest and general prosperity (cf. Mt. 5:45).
26:11 hand is lifted high. A sign of power. See 9:12,17,21 and note; Ps 89:13. zeal. See 9:7 and note; cf. 37:32; 63:15. fire. See note on 1:31.

26:13 other lords. Foreign rulers, such as those of Egypt or Assyria.
26:14 dead . . . departed spirits. Cf. the fate of the king of Babylon in 14:9–10.
26:15 enlarged the nation. Applied to the return from Babylonian exile in 54:2–3; also cf. 9:3.
26:16–18 The prophet speaks to the Lord on behalf of God's people.
26:16 distress. Perhaps the Assyrian oppression, described in 5:30; 8:21–22. The period of the judges is also possible (see Jdg 6:2,6).
26:17–18 give birth writhes . . . in pain. See 13:8 and note (cf. 37:3).

18 We were with child, we writhed in pain,
but we gave birth[b] to wind.
We have not brought salvation[c] to the earth;
we have not given birth to people of the world.[d]

19 But your dead[e] will live;
their bodies will rise.
You who dwell in the dust,[f]
wake up and shout for joy.
Your dew[g] is like the dew of the morning;
the earth will give birth to her dead.[h]

20 Go, my people, enter your rooms and shut the doors[i] behind you; hide[j] yourselves for a little while until his wrath[k] has passed by.[l] 21 See, the LORD is coming[m] out of his dwelling[n] to punish[o] the people of the earth for their sins.
The earth will disclose the blood[p] shed upon her;
she will conceal her slain no longer.

Deliverance of Israel

27 In that day,[q]
the LORD will punish with his sword,[r]
his fierce, great and powerful sword, Leviathan[s] the gliding serpent,[t]
Leviathan the coiling serpent;
he will slay the monster[u] of the sea.

I guard[z] it day and night
so that no one may harm[a] it.
4 I am not angry.
If only there were briers and thorns confronting me!
I would march against them in battle;
I would set them all on fire.[b]
5 Or else let them come to me for refuge;[c] let them make peace[d] with me, yes, let them make peace with me."

6 In days to come Jacob will take root,[e]
Israel will bud and blossom[f]
and fill all the world with fruit.[g]

7 Has [the LORD] struck her as he struck[h] down those who struck her?
Has she been killed
as those were killed who killed her?
8 By warfare[i] and exile[j] you contend with her—with his fierce blast he drives her out,
as on a day the east wind[j] blows.
9 By this, then, will Jacob's guilt be atoned[k] for,
and this will be the full fruitage of the removal of his sin:[l]
When he makes all the altar stones[m] to be like chalk stones crushed to pieces, no Asherah poles[mn] or incense altars[o] will be left standing.

18 See Septuagint; the meaning of the Hebrew for this word is uncertain. m9 That is, symbols of the goddess Asherah

26:18 salvation to the earth. Israel was designed to be "a light for the Gentiles" (see 42:6; 49:6 and notes; see also 9:2 and note).

26:19–21 The prophet speaks a word of reassurance to God's people.

26:19 dead will live ... bodies will rise. A reference to the restoration of Israel (see Eze 37:11–12)—perhaps including the resurrection of the body (Da 12:2). Cf. 25:8; contrast 26:14. dew. A symbol of fruitfulness (see 2Sa 1:21; Hos 14:5).

26:20–21 See 24:21–22 and note on 2:11,17,20.

26:20 a little while ... wrath. Cf. 10:25; 54:7–8. Assyrian tyranny and Babylonian exile, as well as all other oppressions, will end.

26:21 punish. See 66:14–16. will disclose ... will conceal ... no longer. The blood and bodies of the innocent/righteous who have been slaughtered by the oppressive powers will no longer be hidden in the ground, but will be brought forth to testify against their murderers, so that God may in judgment avenge their deaths (see Ge 4:10).

27:1–2,12–13 In that day. See 10:20,27 and note; see also 12:1,4; 24:21; 25:9; 26:1.

27:1 The climactic word of judgment. Leviathan ... monster. A symbol (drawn from Canaanite myths) of wicked nations, such as Egypt (see 30:7 and note; 51:9; Eze 29:3; 32:2). gliding ... coiling serpent. Cf. Job 3:8; 41:1; Ps 74:14. Such descriptions of Leviathan occur outside the Bible as well.

27:2–6 A second vineyard song (see 5:1–7 and notes).

27:2 vineyard. Israel.

27:4–5 A picture of Israel's lukewarmness toward the Lord—not "briers and thorns" (v. 4) like the other nations, but not fully trusting in the Lord either (see 29:13).

27:4 briers and thorns. See 5:6 and note.

27:6 take root. See 11:1,10 and notes. bud and blossom. See 4:2 and note. The Messianic age is in view. fill all the world. Contrast 26:18.

27:7–11 What the Lord is going to do with Israel in the judgments that are about to overtake her in Isaiah's day.

27:7 struck her. Cf. 10:24–26.

27:8 exile. Probably the Babylonian captivity. east wind. A hot wind from the desert (see Jer 4:11; Eze 19:12).

27:9 atoned for. Israel (Jacob) will have to atone for her guilt through the coming judgment. altar ... Asherah poles ... incense altars. See 17:8 and note. crushed to pieces. See Ex 34:13.

10 The fortified city stands desolate,[p] an abandoned settlement, forsaken[q] like the desert;
there the calves graze,[r]
there they lie down;[s]
they strip its branches bare.
11 When its twigs are dry, they are broken off[t]
and women come and make fires[u]
with them.
For this is a people without understanding;[v]
so their Maker has no compassion on them, and their Creator[w] shows them no favor.[x]

12 In that day the LORD will thresh[y] from the flowing Euphrates[n] to the Wadi of Egypt,[z] and you, O Israelites, will be gathered[a] up one by one. 13 And in that day[b] a great trumpet[c] will sound. Those who were perishing in Assyria and those who were exiled[d] in Egypt[e] will come and worship[f] the LORD on the holy mountain[g] in Jerusalem.

Woe to Ephraim

28 Woe[h] to that wreath, the pride of Ephraim's[i] drunkards, to the fading flower, his glorious
beauty,
set on the head of a fertile valley[j]—
to that city, the pride of those laid low by wine![k]
2 See, the Lord has one who is powerful[l] and strong.
Like a hailstorm[m] and a destructive wind,[n]
like a driving rain and a flooding[o] downpour,
he will throw it forcefully to the
ground.
3 That wreath, the pride of Ephraim's[p] drunkards,
will be trampled[q] underfoot.

4 That fading flower, his glorious
beauty,
set on the head of a fertile valley,[r]
will be like a fig[s] ripe before harvest—
as soon as someone sees it and takes it in his hand,
he swallows it.

5 In that day[t] the LORD Almighty will be a glorious[u] crown,[v] a beautiful wreath
for the remnant[w] of his people.
6 He will be a spirit of justice[x] to him who sits in judgment,[y]
a source of strength to those who turn back the battle[z]
at the gate.

7 And these also stagger[a] from wine[b] and reel[c] from beer:
Priests[d] and prophets[e] stagger from beer
and are befuddled with wine;
they reel from beer,
they stagger when seeing visions,[f]
they stumble when rendering decisions.
8 All the tables are covered with vomit[g]
and there is not a spot without filth.

9 "Who is it he is trying to teach?[h]
To whom is he explaining his message?[i]
To children weaned[j] from their milk,[k]
to those just taken from the breast?
10 For it is:
Do and do, do and do,

[n] 12 Hebrew River

27:10 fortified city. Jerusalem. desolate ... forsaken. Cf. 6:11–12. calves graze. Cf. 5:5; 7:25.

27:12–13 The redemption that lies beyond the coming judgment.

27:12 will thresh. Judgment on the nations into which Israel has been dispersed (see note on 21:10). The threshing will separate Israelites from Gentiles. Wadi of Egypt. Probably the Wadi el-Arish, the southern border of the promised land (the Euphrates is the northern border). See Ge 15:18 and note; 1Ki 4:21; 8:65.

27:13 great trumpet. Used especially to summon troops (see 1Sa 13:3). Assyria ... Egypt. See 11:11–12 and notes. holy mountain. Mount Zion (see 2:2–4 and note; see also 24:23; 25:6–7,10 and note).

28:1–35:10 A series of six woes (28:1; 29:1; 29:15; 30:1; 31:1; 33:1), concluded with an announcement of judgment on the nations (ch. 34) and a song celebrating the joy of the redeemed (ch. 35). Cf. the six woes in ch. 5 (see note on 5:8–23).

28:1 wreath. Samaria, the capital of the northern kingdom, was a beautiful city on a prominent hill. pride. See v. 3 and note on 16:6. Ephraim's. See note on 7:2. drunkards. In the eighth century B.C. Samaria was a city of luxury and indulgence. See 5:11–13 and note; Am 6:4–7. fertile valley. Cf. 5:1.

28:2 one who is powerful. The king of Assyria. hailstorm ... flooding downpour. See v. 17; 8:7–8 and note; 17:12 and note. Cf. 30:30; 32:19.

28:5 In that day. See 4:1–2; 10:20,27 and note; 12:1,4; 24:21; 25:9; 26:1; 27:1–2,12–13. glorious ... beautiful. See 4:2. remnant. See note on 1:9.

28:6 spirit of justice. See 11:2–4 and notes. gate. The most vulnerable part of a city.

28:7 wine ... beer. The religious leaders should have been filled with the Spirit, not with wine. See Lev 10:9; Nu 11:29; Eph 5:18.

28:8 vomit. Cf. Jer 25:16,27.

28:9–10 The mocking response of Isaiah's hearers (see NIV text note on v. 10). Cf. the mocking tones of 5:19.

rule on rule, rule on rule[o];
a little here, a little there.[l]"

[11]Very well then, with foreign lips and strange tongues[m]
God will speak to this people,[n] [12]to whom he said,
"This is the resting place, let the weary rest";[o]
and, "This is the place of repose"—
but they would not listen.
[13]So then, the word of the LORD to them will become:
Do and do, do and do,
rule on rule, rule on rule;
a little here, a little there[p]—
so that they will go and fall backward, be injured[q] and snared and captured.[r]

[14]Therefore hear the word of the LORD,[s] you scoffers[t] who rule this people in Jerusalem.
[15]You boast, "We have entered into a covenant with death,[u] with the grave[v] we have made an agreement.
When an overwhelming scourge sweeps by,[w] it cannot touch us,
for we have made a lie[x] our refuge and falsehood[q] our hiding place.[y]"

[16]So this is what the Sovereign LORD says:

"See, I lay a stone in Zion,[z] a tested stone,[a]
a precious cornerstone for a sure foundation;[a]
the one who trusts will never be dismayed.[b] [17]I will make justice[c] the measuring line and righteousness the plumb line;[d] hail[e] will sweep away your refuge,
the lie,
and water will overflow[f] your hiding place.
[18]Your covenant with death will be annulled;
your agreement with the grave will not stand.[g]
When the overwhelming scourge sweeps by,[h]
you will be beaten down[i] by it.
[19]As often as it comes it will carry you away;[j] morning after morning,[k] by day and by night, it will sweep through."

The understanding of this message will bring sheer terror.[l] [20]The bed is too short to stretch out on,
the blanket too narrow to wrap around you.[m] [21]The LORD will rise up as he did at Mount Perazim,[n] he will rouse himself as in the Valley of Gibeon[o]—
to do his work,[p] his strange work,
and perform his task, his alien task.
[22]Now stop your mocking,[q] or your chains will become heavier;
the Lord, the LORD Almighty, has told me of the destruction decreed[r] against the whole land.[s]

[23]Listen[t] and hear my voice;
pay attention and hear what I say.
[24]When a farmer plows for planting,[u]
does he plow continually?
Does he keep on breaking up and harrowing the soil?
[25]When he has leveled the surface,
does he not sow caraway and scatter cummin?[v]

28:11–12 Quoted in part in 1Co 14:21.
28:11 foreign lips. The language of the Assyrians.
28:12 resting place. The land given to them by the Lord, in whom they were to trust (see 26:3; 30:15; 40:31; Jos 1:13). would not listen. Cf. Jer 6:16.
28:13 will become. They say the prophet is speaking nonsense, so the word of the Lord that he speaks will remain nonsense to them (see 6:9–10 and notes).
28:15,18 covenant with death. Possibly an allusion to necromancy and worship of idols (see 8:19). By using a vivid figure of speech, Isaiah mocks their sense of assurance against national calamity, placing on their lips a claim to have a covenant with death that it will not harm them (see Hos 2:18). overwhelming scourge. A mixed metaphor referring to the armies of Assyria and Babylonia. "Overwhelming" pictures an army as a flooding river (see 8:7); a "scourge" is a whip (10:26).
28:16 stone. The Lord (see 8:14; 17:10 and notes). cornerstone. Cf. the "capstone" of Ps 118:22. sure foundation. See 1Co 3:11; cf. 1Pe 2:4–7.
28:17 measuring line ... plumb line. The standards and tests the Lord will apply are his justice and righteousness. hail. See v. 2; 30:30; 32:19.
28:20 too short ... too narrow. Israel was unprepared both militarily and spiritually.
28:21 Mount Perazim. Where God "broke out" against the Philistines (2Sa 5:20). Valley of Gibeon. Where God sent hail to demolish the Amorites (Jos 10:10–12). strange work ... alien task. This time God would fight against Israel.
28:22 destruction decreed. See 10:22–23 and note on 10:22.
28:23–29 A wisdom poem (a poetic parable) in two stanzas, each ending in a verse that praises the wisdom of God. In the context, and since "threshing" is emphasized (vv. 27–28), the point may be that though God must punish Israel, his actions will be as measured and as well-timed as a farmer's. See 27:12 and note.
28:25 cummin. An herb for seasoning. spelt. A kind of Does he not plant wheat in its

26 His God instructs him and teaches[y] him the right way.

27 Caraway is not threshed[z] with a sledge,[a] nor is a cartwheel rolled over cummin;
caraway is beaten out with a rod,[b] and cummin with a stick.
28 Grain must be ground to make bread;
so one does not go on threshing it
forever.
Though he drives the wheels of his threshing cart[c] over it,
his horses do not grind it.
29 All this also comes from the LORD
Almighty,
wonderful in counsel[d] and magnificent in wisdom.[e]

Woe to David's City

29 Woe[f] to you, Ariel, Ariel,[g]
the city[h] where David settled!
Add year to year
and let your cycle of festivals[i] go on.
2 Yet I will besiege Ariel;[j]
she will mourn and lament,[k]
she will be to me like an altar hearth.[s][l]
3 I will encamp against you all around;
I will encircle[m] you with towers and set up my siege works[n]
against you.
4 Brought low, you will speak from the
ground;
your speech will mumble[o] out of the dust.[p]
Your voice will come ghostlike[q] from
the earth;
out of the dust your speech will whisper.[r]

5 But your many enemies will become like fine dust,[s]
the ruthless[t] hordes like blown chaff.[u]
Suddenly,[v] in an instant,
6 the LORD Almighty will come[w] with thunder[x] and earthquake[y] and great noise,
with windstorm and tempest[z] and flames of a devouring fire.[a] 7 Then the hordes of all the nations[b] that fight against Ariel,[c] that attack her and her fortress and besiege her,
will be as it is with a dream,[d]
with a vision in the night—8 as when a hungry man dreams that he is eating,
but he awakens,[e] and his hunger remains;
as when a thirsty man dreams that he is drinking,
but he awakens faint, with his thirst unquenched.[f]
So will it be with the hordes of all the nations
that fight against Mount Zion.[g]

9 Be stunned and amazed,[h] blind yourselves and be sightless;[i] be drunk,[j] but not from wine,[k] stagger,[l] but not from beer.
10 The LORD has brought over you a deep sleep:[m]
He has sealed your eyes[n] (the prophets);[o]
he has covered your heads (the seers).[p]

11 For you this whole vision[q] is nothing but words sealed[r] in a scroll. And if you give the scroll to someone who can read, and say to him, "Read this, please," he will answer, "I can't; it is sealed." 12 Or if you give the scroll to someone who cannot read, and say, "Read this, please," he will answer, "I don't know how to read."

wheat (see note on Ex 9:32).
28:27 rod. See 10:5 and note.
28:29 wonderful in counsel. See 9:6 and note.
29:1,2,7 Ariel. Jerusalem. Fighting and bloodshed will turn Jerusalem into a virtual "altar hearth" (Hebrew 'ari'el; see NIV text note on v. 2). Similar Hebrew words for the same term are used in Eze 43:15–16.
29:1 Woe. See note on 28:1. city where David settled. See 2Sa 5:6–9. cycle of festivals. See 1:13–14 and note on 1:14.
29:3 towers. Pushed up to the city wall by attackers so they could fight the defenders on the same level.
29:4 whisper. Used of mediums and spiritists in 8:19. Judah speaks as from the realm of the dead—so much for their covenant with death (see 28:15,18).
29:5–8 In God's time, those nations that devastate Jerusalem will be devastated (see 10:5–19; 27:1). The sudden destruction of the enemy resembles that of Assyria's army in 701 B.C. (see 10:16 and note).
29:5 chaff. See 17:13; Ps 1:4 and notes.
29:6 thunder and earthquake . . . windstorm and tempest. As in Jdg 5:4–5; Ps 18:7–15; Hab 3:3–7; see also 28:2; Ps 83:13–15 and notes.
29:9–14 Isaiah speaks again of Israel's spiritual state and warns of the Lord's impending judgment.
29:9 blind yourselves . . . be drunk. Refers to spiritual stupor (see 6:10 and note; cf. 28:1,7).
29:10 Quoted in part in Ro 11:8. seers. See 1Sa 9:9 and note; 2Ki 17:13.

13 The Lord says:

"These people[s] come near to me with their mouth and honor me with their lips,[t]
but their hearts are far from me.[u]
Their worship of me is made up only of rules taught by men.[tv]
14 Therefore once more I will astound
these people with wonder upon wonder;[w]
the wisdom of the wise[x] will perish, the intelligence of the intelligent will vanish.[y]"
15 Woe to those who go to great depths to hide[z] their plans from the Lord, who do their work in darkness and think,
"Who sees us?[a] Who will know?"[b]
16 You turn things upside down, as if the potter were thought to be like the clay![c]
Shall what is formed say to him who formed[d] it,
"He did not make me"?
Can the pot say of the potter,[e]
"He knows nothing"?[f]

17 In a very short time,[g] will not Lebanon[h] be turned into a fertile field[i] and the fertile field seem like a forest?[j] 18 In that day[k] the deaf[l] will hear the words of the scroll, and out of gloom and darkness[m]
the eyes of the blind will see.[n] 19 Once more the humble[o] will rejoice in the Lord;
the needy[p] will rejoice in the Holy
One[q] of Israel.
20 The ruthless[r] will vanish,[s]
the mockers[t] will disappear, and all who have an eye for evil[u]
will be cut down—21 those who with a word make a man out to be guilty,
who ensnare the defender in court[v]
and with false testimony[w] deprive the innocent of justice.[x]

22 Therefore this is what the Lord, who redeemed[y] Abraham,[z] says to the house of Jacob:

"No longer will Jacob be ashamed;[a] no longer will their faces grow pale.[b]
23 When they see among them their children,[c]
the work of my hands,[d]
they will keep my name holy;[e] they will acknowledge the holiness of the Holy One[f] of Jacob, and will stand in awe of the God of Israel.
24 Those who are wayward[g] in spirit will gain understanding;[h]
those who complain will accept instruction."[i]

Woe to the Obstinate Nation

30 "Woe[j] to the obstinate

declares the Lord,
"to those who carry out plans that are

[t] 13 Hebrew; Septuagint They worship me in vain; / their teachings are but rules taught by men

29:13 Quoted in part by Jesus to show the hypocrisy of the Pharisees (Mt 15:8–9). These people. Not "my people" (cf. 8:6,11–12; Jer 14:10–11; Hag 1:2).

29:14 Quoted in part in 1Co 1:19. wonder upon wonder. He who showed them wonders in the exodus (see Ex 15:11; Ps 78:12) will now show them wonders in judgment. wisdom . . . will perish. Cf. 44:25; Jer 8:9.

29:15 Woe. A new woe begins (see note on 28:1–35:10). their plans. Perhaps the alliance between Ahaz and Assyria or between Hezekiah and Egypt (see 30:1–2). Who sees us? See note on Ps 10:11.

29:16 Quoted in part in Ro 9:20. Cf. the creation of Adam in Ge 2:7; also cf. Isa 10:15.

29:17–24 Another sudden shift to the theme of redemption, as in 28:5–8.

29:17 Lebanon. Perhaps symbolic of Assyria (see 10:34). The forests of Lebanon were unequaled (see 2:13), so "fertile field" represents a lesser status (see 32:15).

29:18 In that day. See notes on 10:20,27; 26:1. Beyond the day of Assyria's destruction lies the day of Israel's restoration. deaf will hear . . . blind will see. Linked with the Messianic age in 35:5.

29:19 needy. See 11:4. Holy One of Israel. See note on 1:4.

29:20 ruthless. See v. 21. mockers. Cf. 28:14,22.

29:21 deprive . . . of justice. See 1:17; 9:17 and notes; see also 10:2; Am 5:10,12.

29:22 redeemed. Normally used of the deliverance of Israel from Egypt (see Ex 6:6; 15:13). Cf. 43:1,3,14. But Abraham also had an "exodus" out of a pagan world (see Ge 12:1; Jos 24:2–3,14–15). be ashamed. Cf. 45:17; 50:7; 54:4. grow pale. From fear of the enemy.

29:23 see . . . their children. Cf. 49:20–21; 54:1–2. Restoration from exile may be in view. See also 53:10. children, the work of my hands. See 45:11 (cf. Eph 2:10). acknowledge the holiness . . . stand in awe. See 8:13. Isaiah's contemporaries showed little respect for the Lord. Holy One of Jacob. Cf. v. 19; see note on 1:4.

29:24 wayward in spirit. See 19:14. gain understanding. Contrast 1:3.

30:1 Woe. See note on 28:1–35:10. obstinate children. See 1:2 and note. plans . . . not mine. See 29:15 and note. alliance. After Shabako became pharaoh in 715 B.C., the smaller nations in Aram (Syria) and Canaan sought his help against Assyria. Judah apparently joined them (see 20:5 and note). my Spirit. Who spoke through his prophet.

forming an alliance,[l] but not by my Spirit,
heaping sin upon sin;
2who go down to Egypt[m]
without consulting[n] me;
who look for help to Pharaoh's protection,[o]
to Egypt's shade for refuge.[p] 3But Pharaoh's protection will be to your shame,
Egypt's shade[q] will bring you disgrace.[r]
4Though they have officials in Zoan[s] and their envoys have arrived in Hanes, 5everyone will be put to shame because of a people[t] useless[u] to
them,
who bring neither help[v] nor advantage,
but only shame and disgrace.[w]"

6An oracle[x] concerning the animals of the Negev:[y]

Through a land of hardship and distress,[z]
of lions[a] and lionesses, of adders and darting snakes,[b]
the envoys carry their riches on donkeys'[c] backs,
their treasures[d] on the humps of camels,
to that unprofitable nation,
7 to Egypt, whose help is utterly useless.[e]
Therefore I call her
Rahab[f] the Do-Nothing.

8Go now, write it on a tablet[g] for
them,
inscribe it on a scroll,[h]
that for the days to come it may be an everlasting witness.[i] 9These are rebellious[j] people, deceitful[k] children,
children unwilling to listen to the LORD's instruction.[l] 10They say to the seers,[m]
"See no more visions[n]!"
and to the prophets,
"Give us no more visions of what is right!
Tell us pleasant things,[o]
prophesy illusions.[p] 11Leave this way,[q]
get off this path,
and stop confronting[r] us with the Holy One[s] of Israel!"

12Therefore, this is what the Holy One[t] of Israel says:

"Because you have rejected this message,[u] relied on oppression[v]
and depended on deceit, 13this sin will become for you like a high wall,[w] cracked and bulging,
that collapses[x] suddenly,[y] in an instant.
14It will break in pieces like pottery,[z] shattered so mercilessly that among its pieces not a fragment will be found for taking coals from a hearth or scooping water out of a cistern."

15This is what the Sovereign[a] LORD, the Holy One[b] of Israel, says:

"In repentance and rest[c] is your salvation,
in quietness and trust[d] is your
strength,
but you would have none of it.[e] 16You said, 'No, we will flee[f] on horses.'[g]
Therefore you will flee!
You said, 'We will ride off on swift horses.'
Therefore your pursuers will be swift!
17A thousand will flee

30:2 Hezekiah did this (see 2Ki 18:21). shade. A metaphor for a king as one who provides protection (see Jdg 9:15; La 4:20). The Lord should have been Israel's "shade" (cf. 49:2; 51:16; see Ps 91:1; 121:5).

30:3,5 shame ... disgrace. Cf. 20:4–5; see Jdg 9:14–15 and notes.

30:4 Zoan. Ironically, where the Israelites once served as slaves; see 19:11 and note. Hanes. Possibly Heracleopolis Magna, about 50 miles south of Cairo, or perhaps a city in the Nile delta, close to Zoan.

30:6 oracle. See 13:1 and note. Negev. The dry region in the southern part of the Holy Land (see Ge 12:9 and note; cf. Jdg 1:9). hardship and distress. Perhaps it was necessary to use back roads because the Assyrians had control of the main coastal road (see Dt 8:15; Jdg 5:6). darting snakes. See 14:29.

30:7 Rahab. A mythical sea monster, here symbolic of Egypt. The name itself means "storm," and also "arrogance." See 27:1 and note.

30:8 write it. Probably the name "Rahab the Do-Nothing."

30:9 rebellious people. See v. 1; see also 1:2 and note.

30:10 seers. See 1Sa 9:9 and note; 2Ki 17:13. See no more visions. Cf. Am 2:12. Tell us pleasant things. As false prophets do (1Ki 22:13; Jer 6:14; 8:11; 23:17,26).

30:11–12,15 Holy One of Israel. See 1:4 and note.

30:12 oppression. Especially in their domestic policy (see 1:15–17,23; 5:7; 29:21; 58:3–4; 59:3,6–8,13). deceit. Especially in their foreign policy (see vv. 1–2; 29:15).

30:13 like a high wall. Oppression and deceit (v. 12) had been the "wall" they built to assure their safety and prosperity, but it will be shattered to pieces.

30:15 See 26:3. repentance and rest. The true way to salvation and security.

30:16 horses. See Ps 33:17.

30:17 A thousand will flee. A fulfillment of the curse of Dt 32:30. flagstaff ... banner. See 5:26 and note (see also 1:8

18Yet the LORD longs[l] to be gracious to you;
he rises to show you compassion.[m]
For the LORD is a God of justice.[n]
Blessed are all who wait for him![o]

19O people of Zion, who live in Jerusalem, you will weep no more.[p] How gracious he will be when you cry for help![q] As soon as he hears, he will answer[r] you. 20Although the Lord gives you the bread[s] of adversity and the water of affliction, your teachers[t] will be hidden[u] no more; with your own eyes you will see them. 21Whether you turn to the right or to the left, your ears will hear a voice[v] behind you, saying, "This is the way;[w] walk in it." 22Then you will defile your idols[x] overlaid with silver and your images covered with gold;[y] you will throw them away like a menstrual[z] cloth and say to them, "Away with you![a]"

23He will also send you rain[b] for the seed you sow in the ground, and the food that comes from the land will be rich[c] and plentiful.[d] In that day[e] your cattle will graze in broad meadows.[f] 24The oxen[g] and donkeys that work the soil will eat fodder[h] and mash, spread out with fork[i] and shovel. 25In the day of great slaughter,[j] when the towers[k] fall, streams of water will flow[l] on every high mountain and every lofty hill. 26The moon will shine like the sun,[m] and the sunlight will be seven times brighter, like the light of seven full days, when the LORD binds up the bruises of his people and heals[n] the wounds he inflicted.

27See, the Name[o] of the LORD comes from afar, with burning anger[p] and dense clouds of smoke;
his lips are full of wrath,[q]
and his tongue is a consuming fire.[r] 28His breath[s] is like a rushing torrent,[t] rising up to the neck.[u]
He shakes the nations in the sieve[v] of destruction;
he places in the jaws of the peoples a bit[w] that leads them astray.
29And you will sing
as on the night you celebrate a holy festival;[x] your hearts will rejoice[y]
as when people go up with flutes[z] to the mountain[a] of the LORD, to the Rock[b] of Israel.
30The LORD will cause men to hear his majestic voice[c] and will make them see his arm[d] coming down with raging anger[e] and consuming fire,[f] with cloudburst, thunderstorm[g] and hail.[h] 31The voice of the LORD will shatter Assyria;[i] with his scepter he will strike[j] them down.
32Every stroke the LORD lays on them and note).

30:18 longs to be gracious. After punishing Israel, God will once again bless them (cf. 40:2).

30:19 weep no more. See 25:8 and note. God's response is similar to his zeal for the vineyard (Israel) in 27:2–6.

30:20 bread of adversity ... water of affliction. Prisoners' food (see 1Ki 22:27). teachers. Prophets, like Isaiah.

30:21 This is the way. Contrast the attitude shown in vv. 10–11 (cf. 29:24).

30:22 defile your idols. In repentance, not in despair as in 2:20 (see note there).

30:23 rain ... food ... rich and plentiful. Part of the covenant blessings promised in Dt 28:11–12. See 5:6 and note. In that day. Cf. 29:18; see notes on 10:20,27; 26:1. cattle will graze. Cf. 32:20.

30:24 mash. Seasoned, tasty fodder.

30:25 day of great slaughter. Cf. 24:1; 34:2,6. Assyria's fall (v. 31) is one illustration. streams ... on every high mountain. Paradise-like conditions will return to the land (see 41:18; Ps 104:13–15).

30:26 moon ... brighter. The darkness will be past: Night will be like the day, and day will be illumined with sevenfold light. binds up the bruises ... heals the wounds. Israel was bruised politically because of the sins of the people (see 1:6; 61:1; Jer 33:6).

30:27 the Name. The revelation of God, especially his power and glory. anger ... clouds of smoke. The language of theophany (a manifestation or appearance of God). God is portrayed as coming in a storm (see v. 30; see also 28:2; 29:6; Ps 18:7–15 and notes). consuming fire. Perhaps lightning.

30:28 rising up to the neck. The army of Assyria was similarly described in 8:8 (see note there). bit. Cf. 37:29.

30:29 sing ... holy festival. Perhaps the Passover, alluded to in 31:5 (cf. Mt 26:30). mountain of the LORD. Zion, where the temple was (see 2:2–4 and note). Rock. God himself (see 17:10 and note).

30:30–31 voice. Associated with thunder in Ex 20:18–19; Ps 29:3–4.

30:30 arm coming down. See 9:12,17,21; 51:9 and notes. cloudburst ... hail. See 28:2.

30:31 voice of the LORD will shatter. Cf. Ps 29:5–9.

30:32 his punishing rod. See 11:4 and note. music of tambourines. After a great victory the women rejoiced with with his punishing rod[k] will be to the music of tambourines[l] and harps,

as he fights them in battle with the blows of his arm.[m] 33Topheth[n] has long been prepared;
it has been made ready for the king.
Its fire pit has been made deep and wide,
with an abundance of fire and wood;
the breath[o] of the LORD,
like a stream of burning sulfur,[p]
sets it ablaze.[q]

Woe to Those Who Rely on Egypt

31 Woe[r] to those who go down to Egypt[s] for help,
who rely on horses,[t]
who trust in the multitude of their chariots[u]
and in the great strength of their horsemen,
but do not look to the Holy One[v] of Israel,
or seek help from the LORD.[w] 2Yet he too is wise[x] and can bring disaster;[y]
he does not take back his words.[z]
He will rise up against the house of the wicked,[a]
against those who help evildoers.
3But the Egyptians[b] are men and not God;[c]
their horses[d] are flesh and not spirit.
When the LORD stretches out his hand,[e]
he who helps will stumble,
he who is helped[f] will fall;
both will perish together.[g]

4This is what the LORD says to me:

"As a lion[h] growls,
a great lion over his prey—and though a whole band of shepherds[i]
is called together against him, he is not frightened by their shouts or disturbed by their clamor[j]— so the LORD Almighty will come down[k]
to do battle on Mount Zion and on its heights.
5Like birds hovering[l] overhead,
the LORD Almighty will shield[m] Jerusalem;
he will shield it and deliver[n] it,
he will 'pass over'[o] it and will rescue it."

6Return[p] to him you have so greatly revolted[q] against, O Israelites. 7For in that day[r] every one of you will reject the idols of silver and gold[s] your sinful hands have made.[t]

8"Assyria[u] will fall by a sword that is not of man;
a sword, not of mortals, will devour[v] them.
They will flee before the sword and their young men will be put to forced labor.[w] 9Their stronghold[x] will fall because of terror;
at sight of the battle standard[y]
their commanders will panic,[z]"
declares the LORD,
whose fire[a] is in Zion,
whose furnace[b] is in Jerusalem.

The Kingdom of Righteousness

32 See, a king[c] will reign in righteousness
and rulers will rule with justice.[d] 2Each man will be like a shelter[e] from the wind and a refuge from the storm,[f] singing and dancing (see Ex 15:20–21; 1Sa 18:6).

30:33 Topheth. A region outside Jerusalem where children were sacrificed to Molech (see 2Ki 23:10; Jer 7:31–32; 19:6,11–14), the god of the Ammonites (see 1Ki 11:7). Thus it was a place of burning. king. Of Assyria. burning sulfur. See 1:31; Ge 19:24 and notes.

31:1 See 30:1 and note. Ch. 31 recapitulates ch. 30. go down to Egypt. See Ge 26:2. horses ... chariots. Egypt had large numbers of horses and chariots (see 1Ki 10:28–29). Holy One of Israel. See 1:4 and note.

31:2 he too is wise. People had questioned God's wisdom in 29:14–16.

31:3 stretches out his hand. Cf. the refrain in 5:25; 9:12,17,21; 10:4. helps will stumble. Cf. 30:3,5.

31:4 lion. A simile, but perhaps also an allusion to the Assyrian king (see note on 15:9). shepherds. Perhaps an allusion to the rulers of the nations (see NIV text note on Na 3:18).

31:5 birds ... will shield. Cf. Dt 32:10–11. pass over. The technical word used of the destroying angel who "passed over" every house in Egypt that had blood on the doorposts (see Ex 12:13,23). Cf. Isa 37:35.

31:6 greatly revolted. See 1:2 and note.

31:7 reject the idols. See 2:20 and note.

31:8 sword, not of mortals. The angel of the Lord struck down 185,000 soldiers (see 37:36). put to forced labor. As prisoners of war.

31:9 stronghold. Nineveh was destroyed by the Medes and Babylonians in 612 B.C. (see Na 3:7). commanders will panic. Cf. Na 2:10. fire ... furnace. The Lord's glory resides in Zion, and from that center of his people his fire of judgment breaks out upon the wicked (see 10:17; 30:33; cf. Lev 10:2; Joel 3:16; Am 1:2).

32:1 king ... in righteousness. The Messianic age is again in view (see 9:7; 11:4; 16:5 and notes). Cf. vv. 16–17; 33:17.

32:2 Each man. The Lord's redeemed, as sources of protection and blessing, will reflect him (see the rest of this like streams of water[g] in the desert[h] and the shadow of a great rock in a thirsty land.

3Then the eyes of those who see will no longer be closed,[i] and the ears[j] of those who hear will listen.
4The mind of the rash will know and understand,[k]
and the stammering tongue[l] will be fluent and clear.
5No longer will the fool[m] be called noble nor the scoundrel be highly respected.
6For the fool speaks folly,[n]
his mind is busy with evil:[o]
He practices ungodliness[p]
and spreads error[q] concerning the LORD;
the hungry he leaves empty[r]
and from the thirsty he withholds water.
7The scoundrel's methods are wicked,[s] he makes up evil schemes[t]
to destroy the poor with lies, even when the plea of the needy[u] is just.[v] 8But the noble man makes noble plans, and by noble deeds[w] he stands.[x]

The Women of Jerusalem

9You women[y] who are so complacent, rise up and listen[z] to me;
you daughters who feel secure,[a] hear what I have to say!
10In little more than a year[b]
you who feel secure will tremble;
the grape harvest will fail,[c]
and the harvest of fruit will not come.
11Tremble,[d] you complacent women;
shudder, you daughters who feel secure![e] Strip off your clothes,[f] put sackcloth[g] around your waists.
12Beat your breasts[h] for the pleasant fields,
for the fruitful vines[i] 13and for the land of my people, a land overgrown with thorns and briers[j]— yes, mourn[k] for all houses of merriment and for this city of revelry.[l] 14The fortress[m] will be abandoned, the noisy city deserted;[n]
citadel and watchtower[o] will become a wasteland forever, the delight of donkeys,[p] a pasture for flocks,[q] 15till the Spirit[r] is poured upon us from on high, and the desert becomes a fertile field,[s] and the fertile field seems like a forest.[t] 16Justice[u] will dwell in the desert[v]
and righteousness[w] live in the fertile field.
17The fruit of righteousness[x] will be peace;[y]
the effect of righteousness will be quietness and confidence[z] forever.
18My people will live in peaceful[a] dwelling places, in secure homes,[b]
in undisturbed places of rest.[c] 19Though hail[d] flattens the forest[e]
and the city is leveled[f] completely, 20how blessed you will be,

note; see also vv. 3–8). shelter ... refuge ... shadow. Similar terms are applied to the Lord in 25:4 (see 4:5–6 and note). streams ... in the desert. See 35:6–7; 41:18; 49:10.

32:3 eyes ... no longer be closed ... ears ... listen. See 35:5 and note (contrast 6:9–10).

32:5–8 The redeemed will no longer be among the fools. The contrast between the fool and the wise or noble man is characteristic of wisdom literature (compare Pr 9:1–6 with Pr 9:13–18).

32:6 fool speaks folly. Cf. 9:16–17; Ps 14:1; 53:1.

32:7 plea of the needy. See 1:17 and note.

32:8 plans ... stands. See 8:10 and note.

32:9 women. Cf. 3:16–4:1. complacent ... feel secure. See v. 11; Am 6:1. These words are used in a good sense in v. 18 (the Hebrew for "undisturbed" is the same as that for "complacent").

32:10 a year. Perhaps the invasion of Sennacherib (701 B.C.) is in view. grape harvest will fail. Cf. 37:30. The armies of Assyria would bring widespread destruction, ruining the summer fruit.

32:11 Strip. Cf. 47:2–3. sackcloth. Cf. 3:24; 22:12; see note on Ge 37:34.

32:12 Beat your breasts. Like the slave girls of Nineveh (Na 2:7). for the fruitful vines. Cf. the Lord's weeping in 16:9.

32:13 thorns and briers. See 5:6; 7:23 and notes. merriment ... revelry. See 22:2 and note; cf. Jer 16:8–9.

32:14 fortress ... noisy city. Assyria's invasion is a warning that Jerusalem (see 24:10 and note) will one day be destroyed. donkeys ... flocks. Cf. 7:25; 13:21–22; 34:13.

32:15 till the Spirit. The outpouring of the Spirit is linked with abundance also in 44:3 (see v. 2; 11:2 and notes; see also Joel 2:28–32). fertile field ... forest. The forest probably stands for Lebanon (see 29:17 and note; cf. 35:1–2).

32:16 Justice ... righteousness. See v. 1 and note.

32:17 peace. Cf. 9:7; 11:6–9. quietness and confidence. Contrast 30:15.

32:18 secure ... undisturbed. See note on v. 9. places of rest. See 28:12 and note.

32:19 hail. Cf. 28:2. forest. Probably Assyria. See 10:33–34 and notes. city. See 24:10 and note.

32:20 The abundance of the day of the Lord is described (see 30:23–24 and notes).

sowing[g] your seed by every stream,[h]

Distress and Help

33 Woe[j] to you, O destroyer, you who have not been destroyed!
Woe to you, O traitor,
you who have not been betrayed!
When you stop destroying,
you will be destroyed;[k]
when you stop betraying,
you will be betrayed.[l]

2 O LORD, be gracious[m] to us;
we long for you.
Be our strength[n] every morning,
our salvation[o] in time of distress.[p] 3 At the thunder of your voice,[q] the peoples flee;[r] when you rise up,[s] the nations scatter.
4 Your plunder,[t] O nations, is harvested[u] as by young locusts;[v] like a swarm of locusts men pounce on it.

5 The LORD is exalted,[w] for he dwells on high;[x]
he will fill Zion with justice[y] and righteousness.[z] 6 He will be the sure foundation for your times, a rich store of salvation[a] and wisdom and knowledge;
the fear[b] of the LORD is the key to this treasure.[uc]

7 Look, their brave men[d] cry aloud in the streets;
the envoys[e] of peace weep bitterly.
8 The highways are deserted,
no travelers[f] are on the roads.[g]
The treaty is broken,[h] its witnesses[v] are despised,
no one is respected.
9 The land mourns[w i] and wastes away,
Lebanon[j] is ashamed and withers;[k]
Sharon[l] is like the Arabah, and Bashan[m] and Carmel[n] drop their leaves.

10 "Now will I arise,[o]" says the LORD.
"Now will I be exalted;[p]
now will I be lifted up.
11 You conceive[q] chaff,
you give birth[r] to straw;
your breath is a fire[s] that consumes you.
12 The peoples will be burned as if to lime;[t] like cut thornbushes[u] they will be set ablaze.[v]"

13 You who are far away,[w] hear[x] what I have done;
you who are near, acknowledge my power!
14 The sinners[y] in Zion are terrified;
trembling[z] grips the godless:
"Who of us can dwell with the consuming fire?[a]
Who of us can dwell with everlasting burning?" 15 He who walks righteously[b] and speaks what is right,[c] who rejects gain from extortion[d]

[u] 6 Or is a treasure from him
[v] 8 Dead Sea Scrolls; Masoretic Text / the cities
[w] 9 Or dries up

33:1 Woe. See note on 28:1–35:10. destroyer ... traitor. Probably Assyria—depicted as treacherous (see 10:5–6; 16:4; 21:2; 24:16 and notes).

33:2–9 A prayer asking the Lord to bring about the promised destruction of Assyria.

33:2 be gracious. See 30:18 and note. strength ... salvation. See 12:2 and note; cf. 59:16. distress. See 37:3.

33:3 thunder of your voice. See 30:30–31 and note. rise up ... scatter. An allusion to Nu 10:35; cf. Ps 68:1.

33:5 fill ... righteousness. See 1:26; 32:1 and note.

33:6 wisdom ... knowledge ... fear of the LORD. Terms linked with the Messiah in 11:2. See 9:6; Pr 1:7 and notes.

33:7 their brave men. The men of Judah, during Sennacherib's invasion of 701 B.C. (see 10:28–34). envoys of peace. Perhaps the three officials who conferred with the Assyrian field commander (see 36:3,22).

33:8 highways are deserted. Travel and trade were impossible, creating economic hardship (see Jdg 5:6). treaty. Perhaps the agreement made when Hezekiah paid large sums to Sennacherib (2Ki 18:14).

33:9 land ... wastes away. Farmland and pastures were ruined by the invaders. See 24:4 and note. Lebanon. Renowned for its cedars (2:13) and animals (40:16). Sharon. A plain along the Mediterranean coast north of Joppa, known for its beautiful foliage and superb grazing land (see 35:2; 65:10; 1Ch 27:29). Arabah. Desert land associated with the Jordan River and the Dead Sea (see Dt 1:1; 2:8). Bashan. See 2:13 and note. Carmel. See note on 1Ki 18:19; means "fertile field" (as in 29:17; 32:15) or "orchards" (as in 16:10) and is also associated with lush pasturelands (see 35:2; Mic 7:14 and NIV text note; Na 1:4).

33:10 be exalted. Through the judgment he brings on his rebellious people (see v. 14 and note).

33:11 conceive ... give birth. Cf. 26:18. breath is a fire. They only produce what results in their destruction.

33:12 to lime. The burning will be complete (see Am 2:1). thornbushes. They burn very quickly (see 27:4; 2Sa 23:6–7).

33:13 hear ... acknowledge. Cf. 34:1.

33:14 sinners in Zion. See 1:27–28; 4:4. consuming fire. The presence of the God of judgment (see 29:6; 30:27,30; Ex 24:17; Dt 4:24; 9:3; 2Sa 22:9; Ps 18:8; Heb 12:29).

33:15 Similar requirements are found in Ps 15:2–5; 24:4. bribes. See 1:23.

and keeps his hand from accepting bribes,[e] who stops his ears against plots of murder and shuts his eyes[f] against contemplating evil—16this is the man who will dwell on the heights,[g] whose refuge[h] will be the mountain fortress.[i]
His bread will be supplied, and water will not fail[j] him.

17Your eyes will see the king[k] in his beauty[l] and view a land that stretches afar.[m] 18In your thoughts you will ponder the former terror:[n]
"Where is that chief officer?
Where is the one who took the revenue?
Where is the officer in charge of the towers?[o]" 19You will see those arrogant people[p] no more,
those people of an obscure speech,
with their strange, incomprehensible tongue.[q]

20Look upon Zion,[r] the city of our festivals;
your eyes will see Jerusalem,
a peaceful abode,[s] a tent[t] that will not be moved;[u] its stakes will never be pulled up, nor any of its ropes broken.
21There the LORD will be our Mighty[v] One.
It will be like a place of broad rivers and streams.[w]
No galley with oars will ride them,
no mighty ship[x] will sail them.
22For the LORD is our judge,[y]
the LORD is our lawgiver,[z]
the LORD is our king;[a] it is he who will save[b] us.

23Your rigging hangs loose:
The mast is not held secure,
the sail is not spread.
Then an abundance of spoils will be divided and even the lame[c] will carry off plunder.[d] 24No one living in Zion will say, "I am ill";[e] and the sins of those who dwell there will be forgiven.[f]

Judgment Against the Nations

34 Come near, you nations, and listen;[g] pay attention, you peoples![h]
Let the earth[i] hear, and all that is in it,
the world, and all that comes out of it![j] 2The LORD is angry with all nations;
his wrath[k] is upon all their armies.
He will totally destroy[x][l] them,
he will give them over to slaughter.[m] 3Their slain[n] will be thrown out, their dead bodies[o] will send up a stench;[p]
the mountains will be soaked with their blood.[q] 4All the stars of the heavens will be dissolved[r]

[x] 2 The Hebrew term refers to the irrevocable giving over of things or persons to the LORD, often by totally destroying them; also in verse 5.

33:16 heights ... fortress. Symbolic of the security found in God (cf. Ps 18:1–3). bread ... water. Cf. 49:10.

33:17 king. See 32:1 and note; cf. 6:5. in his beauty. Reflecting on the splendor and majesty of a Davidic king; probably a foreshadowing of the Messianic kingdom (cf. 4:2; Ps 45:3–4; contrast Isa 53:2). land ... afar. See 26:15 and note.

33:18 former terror. The Assyrian invasion (see 17:12–14 and note). revenue. Forced tribute (see note on v. 8). towers. Judah's fortifications were probably under strict Assyrian control (see 2:15).

33:19 arrogant. Cf. 10:12. obscure speech. The Assyrian language was related to Hebrew but was different enough to sound strange to Israelite ears. See 28:11; Dt 28:49.

33:20 Look upon Zion. The redeemed city, in contrast to the city described in vv. 7–9. festivals. See 1:14 and note. peaceful abode. See 32:17–18 and notes. tent ... not ... moved. Her exile will be over. stakes ... ropes. Cf. the similar description of Jerusalem in 54:2.

33:21 Mighty One. See 10:34 (cf. Ps 93:4). broad rivers. To prevent easy access to her borders—thus like Tyre (23:1) or Thebes (see Na 3:8).

33:22 our judge. See 2:4; 11:4 and note. our lawgiver. See 2:3; 51:4; Ge 49:10. our king. See v. 17; 32:1 and note; see also Ps 46; 48. save. See Jdg 2:16.

33:23 rigging. Jerusalem is pictured as a ship, unprepared to sail into battle against Assyria. Then. When God strikes down the Assyrian army (see 10:33–34; 37:36). plunder. See v. 4.

33:24 Looking beyond Isaiah's own day to the physically and spiritually whole Jerusalem of vv. 17,20–22.

34:1–35:10 Chs. 34–35 conclude chs. 28–33 and comprise an eschatological section corresponding to chs. 24–27, which conclude chs. 13–23 (see note on 24:1–27:13).

34:2 angry ... wrath. In the day of the Lord (see 2:11,17,20; 26:20–21 and notes). See also 13:3 and note; 13:13. totally destroy. The kind of destruction the Canaanites had deserved. See NIV text note; see also v. 5; Jos 6:17. slaughter. See 30:25 and note.

34:3 thrown out. Not to have a proper burial was considered a disgrace (see 14:19 and note).

34:4 stars ... dissolved. Disturbances in the heavens characterize the day of the Lord (see 13:10,13 and notes; cf. Eze 32:7–8). sky ... scroll ... starry host will fall. Referred to in Mt 24:29; Rev 6:13–14 in connection with the "great distress" (Mt 24:21) and the second coming of Christ. withered leaves. Cf. 24:4; 40:7–8.

and the sky rolled up[s] like a scroll;
all the starry host will fall[t]
like withered[u] leaves from the vine, like shriveled figs from the fig tree.

5 My sword[v] has drunk its fill in the heavens;
see, it descends in judgment on Edom,[w]
the people I have totally destroyed.[x] 6 The sword[y] of the LORD is bathed in blood, it is covered with fat—
the blood of lambs and goats,
fat from the kidneys of rams.
For the LORD has a sacrifice[z] in Bozrah[a] and a great slaughter[b] in Edom.
7 And the wild oxen[c] will fall with them,
the bull calves and the great bulls.[d]
Their land will be drenched with blood,[e]
and the dust will be soaked with fat.

8 For the LORD has a day[f] of vengeance,[g]
