2 tn Heb "And you shall keep, you." The latter emphatic personal pronoun "you" is left out of a few medieval Hebrew MSS, Smr, the LXX, Syriac, and Vulgate.

3 tn Heb "the native and the sojourner"; NIV "The native-born and the aliens"; NAB "whether natives or resident aliens."

4 tn Heb "for all these abominations the men of the land who were before you have done."

5 tn Heb "And the land will not vomit you out in your defiling it."

6 tc The MT reads the singular "nation" and is followed by ASV, NASB, NRSV; the LXX, Syriac, and Targum have the plural "nations" (cf. v. 24).

7 sn Regarding the "cut off" penalty see the note on Lev 7:20.

8 tn Heb "to not do from the statutes of the detestable acts."

9 tn Heb "and you will not." The Hebrew conjunction וְ (vav, "and") can be considered to have resultative force here.

10 tn Heb "A man his mother and his father you [plural] shall fear." The LXX, Syriac, Vulgate, and certain Targum MSS reverse the order, "his father and his mother." The term "fear" is subject to misunderstanding by the modern reader, so "respect" has been used in the translation. Cf. NAB, NRSV "revere"; NASB "reverence."

11 sn Regarding the difficult etymology and meaning of the term for "idols" (אֱלִילִים, 'elilim), see B. A. Levine, Leviticus (JPSTC), 126; J. E. Hartley, Leviticus (WBC), 304; N. H. Snaith, Leviticus and Numbers (NBC), 89; and Judith M. Hadley, NIDOTTE 1:411. It appears to be a diminutive play on words with אֵל ('el, "god; God") and, perhaps at the same time, recalls a common Semitic word for "worthless; weak; powerless; nothingness." Snaith suggests a rendering of "worthless godlings."

12 tn Heb "for your acceptance"; cf. NIV, NLT "it will be accepted on your behalf."

13 tn Heb "from the following day" (HALOT 572 s.v. מָחָרָת 2.b).

14 tn Heb "shall be burned with fire"; KJV "shall be burnt in the fire." Because "to burn with fire" is redundant in contemporary English the present translation simply has "must be burned up."

15 tn Heb "And if being eaten [infinitive absolute] it is eaten [finite verb]." For the infinitive absolute used to highlight contrast rather than emphasis see GKC 343 §113.p.

16 tn Or "desecrated," or "defiled," or "forbidden." For this difficult term see J. Milgrom, Leviticus (AB), 1:422, on Lev 7:18.

17 tn See the note on Lev 17:16 above.

18 sn Regarding "profaned," see the note on Lev 10:10 above.

19 tn Heb "the holiness of the LORD."

20 sn On the "cut off" penalty see the note on Lev 7:20.

21 tn Heb "And in your harvesting the harvest."

22 tn Heb "you shall not complete the corner of your field to harvest."

23 tn Heb "And you shall not deal severely with your vineyard."

24 tn Heb "you shall not deal falsely a man with his fellow citizen."

25 tn Heb "And you shall not swear to the falsehood."

26 tn Heb "and you shall not profane"; NAB "thus profaning."

27 tn Heb "You shall not oppress your neighbor and you shall not rob."

28 tn Heb "hold back with you"; perhaps "hold back for yourself" (cf. NRSV "keep for yourself").

deaf person or put a stumbling block in front of a blind person.[1] You must fear[2] your God; I am the LORD.

Justice, Love, and Propriety

19:15 "'You[3] must not deal unjustly in judgment:[4] you must neither show partiality to the poor nor honor the rich.[5] You must judge your fellow citizen fairly.[6] 19:16 You must not go about as a slanderer among your people.[7] You must not stand idly by when your neighbor's life is at stake.[8] I am the LORD. 19:17 You must not hate your brother in your heart. You must surely reprove your fellow citizen so that you do not incur sin on account of him.[9] 19:18 You must not take vengeance or bear a grudge[10] against the children of your people, but you must love your neighbor as yourself.[11] I am the LORD. 19:19 You must keep my statutes. You must not allow two different kinds of your animals to breed,[12] you must not sow your field with two different kinds of seed, and you must not wear[13] a garment made of two different kinds of fabric.[14]

Lying with a Slave Woman

19:20 "'When a man has sexual intercourse with a woman,[15] although she is a slave woman designated for another man and she has not yet been ransomed, or freedom has not been granted to her, there will be an obligation to pay compensation.[16] They must not be put to death, because she was not free. 19:21 He must bring his guilt offering to the LORD at the entrance of the Meeting Tent, a guilt offering ram,[17] 19:22 and the priest is to make atonement for him with the ram of the guilt offering before the LORD for his sin that he has committed,[18] and he will be forgiven[19] of his sin[20] that he has committed.

The Produce of Fruit Trees

19:23 "'When you enter the land and plant any fruit tree,[21] you must consider its fruit to be forbidden.[22] Three years it will be forbidden to you;[23] it must not be eaten. 19:24 In the fourth year all its fruit will be holy, praise offerings[24] to the LORD. 19:25 Then in the fifth year you may eat its fruit to add its produce to your harvest.[25] I am the LORD your God.

1 tn Heb "You shall not curse a deaf [person] and before a blind [person] you shall not put a stumbling block."

2 tn Heb "And you shall fear." Many English versions (e.g., KJV, ASV, NAB, NASB, NIV) regard the Hebrew conjunction ו (vav, "and") as adversative in force here ("but").

3 tc Smr has the singular rather than the plural "you" of the MT, which brings this verb form into line with the ones surrounding it.

4 tn Heb "You shall not do injustice in judgment" (NASB similar); cf. NIV "do not pervert justice."

5 tn Heb "You shall not lift up faces of poor [people] and you shall not honor faces of great."

6 tn Heb "In righteousness you shall judge your fellow citizen."

7 tn The term רָכִיל (rakhil) is traditionally rendered "slanderer" here (so NASB, NIV, NRSV; see also J. E. Hartley, Leviticus [WBC], 304, 316), but the exact meaning is uncertain (see the discussion in B. A. Levine, Leviticus [JPSTC], 129). It is sometimes related to I רָכַל ("to go about as a trader [or "merchant"]"; BDB 940 s.v. רָכַל), and taken to refer to cutthroat business dealings, but there may be a II רָכַל, the meaning of which is dubious (HALOT 1237 s.v. II *רכל). Some would render it "to go about as a spy."

8 tn Heb "You shall not stand on the blood of your neighbor." This part of the verse is also difficult to interpret. The rendering here suggests that one will not allow a neighbor to be victimized, whether in court (cf. v. 15) or in any other situation (see the discussion in B. A. Levine, Leviticus [JPSTC], 129).

9 tn Heb "and you will not lift up on him sin." The meaning of the line is somewhat obscure. It means either (1) that one should rebuke one's neighbor when he sins lest one also becomes guilty, which is the way it is rendered here (see NIV, NRSV, NEB, JB; see also B. A. Levine, Leviticus [JPSTC], 129-30, and J. E. Hartley, Leviticus [WBC], 303, and the discussion on pp. 316-17), or (2) one may rebuke one's neighbor without incurring sin just as long as he does not hate him in his heart (see the first part of the verse; cf. NASB, NAB).

10 tn Heb "and you shall not retain [anger?]." This line seems to refer to the retaining or maintaining of some vengeful feelings toward someone. Compare the combination of the same terms for taking vengeance and maintaining wrath against enemies in Nahum 1:2 (see J. E. Hartley, Leviticus [WBC], 305).

11 sn Some scholars make a distinction between the verb אָהַב ('ahav, "to love") with the direct object and the more unusual construction with the preposition לְ (lamed) as it is here and in Lev 19:34 and 2 Chr 19:2 only. If there is a distinction, the construction here probably calls for direct and helpful action toward one's neighbor (see the discussion in J. E. Hartley, Leviticus [WBC], 305, and esp. 317-18). Such love stands in contrast to taking vengeance or bearing a grudge against someone and, in NT terms, amounts to fulfilling the so-called "golden rule" (Matt 7:12).

12 tn Heb "Your animals, you shall not cross-breed two different kinds."

13 tn Heb "you shall not cause to go up on you."

14 sn Cf. Deut 22:11 where the Hebrew term translated "two different kinds" (כִּלְאַיִם, kil'ayim) refers to a mixture of linen and wool woven together in a garment.

15 tn Heb "And a man when he lies with a woman the lying of seed."

16 sn That is, the woman had previously been assigned for marriage to another man but the marriage deal had not yet been consummated. In the meantime, the woman has lost her virginity and has, therefore, lost part of her value to the master in the sale to the man for whom she had been designated. Compensation was, therefore, required (see the explanation in B. A. Levine, Leviticus [JPSTC], 130-31).

17 sn On the guilt offering see the note on Lev 5:15 above.

18 tn Heb "on his sin which he has sinned."

19 tn Heb "there shall be forgiveness to him" or "it shall be forgiven to him."

20 tn Heb "from his sin."

21 tn Heb "tree of food"; KJV, ASV, NASB, NRSV "trees for food."

22 tn Heb "you shall circumcise its fruit [as] its foreskin," taking the fruit to be that which is to be removed and, therefore, forbidden. Since the fruit is uncircumcised it is forbidden (see J. E. Hartley, Leviticus [WBC], 306, and esp. B. A. Levine, Leviticus [JPSTC], 131-32).

23 tn Heb "it shall be to you uncircumcised."

24 tn See B. A. Levine, Leviticus (JPSTC), 132, where the translation reads "set aside for jubilation"; a special celebration before the LORD.

25 tn Heb "to add to you its produce." The rendering here assumes that the point of this clause is simply that finally being allowed to eat the fruit in the fifth year adds the fruit of the tree to their harvest. Some take the verb to be from אָסַף ('asaf, "to gather") rather than יָסַף (yasaf, "to add; to increase"), rendering the verse, "to gather to you the produce" (E. S. Gerstenberger, Leviticus [OTL], 260, and see the versions refer-

Blood, Hair, and Body

19:26 "'You must not eat anything with the blood still in it.[1] You must not practice either divination or soothsaying.[2] 19:27 You must not round off the corners of the hair on your head or ruin the corners of your beard.[3] 19:28 You must not slash your body for a dead person[4] or incise a tattoo on yourself.[5] I am the LORD. 19:29 Do not profane your daughter by making her a prostitute,[6] so that the land does not practice prostitution and become full of lewdness.[7]

Purity, Honor, Respect, and Honesty

19:30 "'You must keep my Sabbaths and fear my sanctuary. I am the LORD. 19:31 Do not turn to the spirits of the dead and do not seek familiar spirits[8] to become unclean by them. I am the LORD your God. 19:32 You must stand up in the presence of the aged, honor the presence of an elder, and fear your God. I am the LORD. 19:33 When a foreigner resides[9] with you in your land, you must not oppress him. 19:34 The foreigner who resides with you must be to you like a native citizen among you; so[10] you must love him as yourself, because you were foreigners in the land of Egypt. I am the LORD your God. 19:35 You must not do injustice in the regulation of measures, whether of length, weight, or volume.[11] 19:36 You must have honest balances,[12] honest weights, an honest ephah, and an honest hin.[13] I am the LORD your God who brought you out from the land of Egypt. 19:37 You must be sure to obey all my statutes and regulations.[14] I am the LORD.'"

Prohibitions against Illegitimate Family Worship

20:1 The LORD spoke to Moses: 20:2 "You are to say to the Israelites, 'Any man from the Israelites or from the foreigners who reside in Israel[15] who gives any of his children[16] to Molech[17] must be put to death; the people of the land must pelt him with stones.[18] 20:3 I myself will set my face[19] against that man and cut him off from the midst of his people,[20] because he has given some of his children to Molech and thereby defiled my sanctuary and profaned my holy name.[21] 20:4 If, however, the people of the land shut their eyes[22] to that man[23] when he gives some of his children to Molech so that they do not put him to death, 20:5 I myself will set my face against that man and his clan. I will cut off from the midst of their people both him enced in J. E. Hartley, Leviticus [WBC], 306). Others take it to mean that by following the regulations given previously they will honor the LORD so that the LORD will cause the trees to increase the amount of fruit they would normally produce (Hartley, 303, 306; cf. NASB, NIV, NRSV, NLT).

[1] tn Heb "You shall not eat on the blood." See the extensive remarks in J. E. Hartley, Leviticus (WBC), 319-20, and B. A. Levine, Leviticus (JPSTC), 132-33. The LXX has "on the mountains," suggesting that this is a prohibition against illegitimate places and occasions of worship, not the eating of blood.

[2] tn Heb "You shall not practice divination and you shall not practice soothsaying"; cf. NRSV "practice augury or witchcraft." For suggestions regarding the practices involved see B. A. Levine, Leviticus (JPSTC), 133, and J. E. Hartley, Leviticus (WBC), 320.

[3] tc Heb "and you [singular] shall not ruin the corner of your [singular] beard." Smr, LXX, Syriac, and Tg. Ps.-J. have the plural pronouns (i.e., "you" and "your" plural) rather than the singular of the MT.

[4] tn Heb "And slash for the soul you shall not give." The Hebrew term נֶפֶשׁ (nefesh, "soul, person, life") can sometimes refer to a "dead person" (cf. Lev 21:1, 5; 22:5). See J. E. Hartley, Leviticus (WBC), 306, 320-21.

[5] tn Heb "and a writing of incision you shall not give in you."

[6] tn Heb "to make her practice harlotry." Some recent English versions regard this as religious or temple prostitution (cf. TEV, CEV).

[7] tn Heb "and the land become full of lewdness." Regarding the term "lewdness," see the note on Lev 18:17 above.

[8] sn The prohibition here concerns those who would seek special knowledge through the spirits of the dead, whether the dead in general or dead relatives in particular (i.e., familiar spirits; see J. E. Hartley, Leviticus [WBC], 321, and B. A. Levine, Leviticus [JPSTC], 134). Cf. Lev 20:6 below.

[9] tn Heb "And when a sojourner sojourns."

[10] tn Heb "and." The Hebrew conjunction וְ (vav, "and") can be considered to have resultative force here.

[11] tn That is, liquid capacity (HALOT 640 s.v. מְשׂוּרָה). Cf. ASV, NIV, NRSV, TEV "quantity"; NAB, NASB "capacity."

[12] tn Heb "balances of righteousness," and so throughout this sentence.

[13] sn An ephah is a dry measure which measures about four gallons, or perhaps one third of a bushel, while a hin is a liquid measure of about 3.6 liters (= approximately 1 gallon).

[14] tn Heb "And you shall keep all my statutes and all my regulations and you shall do them." This appears to be a kind of verbal hendiadys, where the first verb is a modifier of the action of the second verb (see GKC 386 §120.d, although שָׁמַר [shamar, "to keep"] is not cited there; cf. Lev 22:31).

[15] tn Heb "or from the sojourner who sojourns"; NAB "an alien residing in Israel."

[17] tn Regarding Molech and Molech worship see the note on Lev 18:21.

[18] tn This is not the most frequently-used Hebrew verb for stoning (see instead סָקַל, saqal), but a word that refers to the action of throwing, slinging, or pelting someone with stones (רָגַם, ragam; see HALOT 1187 s.v. רגם qal.a, and B. A. Levine, Leviticus [JPSTC], 136).

[19] tn Heb "And I, I shall give my faces."

[20] sn On the "cut off" penalty see the notes on Lev 7:20 and 17:4.

[21] tn Heb "for the sake of defiling my sanctuary and to profane my holy name."

[22] tn Heb "And if shutting [infinitive absolute] they shut [finite verb]." For the infinitive absolute used to highlight contrast rather than emphasis see GKC 343 §113.p.

[23] tn Heb "from that man" (so ASV); NASB "disregard that man."

and all who follow after him in spiritual prostitution,[1] to commit prostitution by worshiping Molech.[2]

Prohibition against Spiritists and Mediums[3]

20:6 "'The person who turns to the spirits of the dead and familiar spirits[4] to commit prostitution by going after them, I will set my face[5] against that person and cut him off from the midst of his people.

Exhortation to Holiness and Obedience

20:7 "'You must sanctify yourselves and be holy, because I am the LORD your God. 20:8 You must be sure to obey my statutes.[6] I am the LORD who sanctifies you.

Family Life and Sexual Prohibitions[7]

20:9 "'If anyone[8] curses his father and mother[9] he must be put to death. He has cursed his father and mother; his blood guilt is on himself.[10] 20:10 If a man[11] commits adultery with his neighbor's wife,[12] both the adulterer and the adulteress must be put to death. 20:11 If a man has sexual intercourse with his father's wife, he has exposed his father's nakedness.[13] Both of them must be put to death; their blood guilt is on themselves.[14] 20:12 If a man has sexual intercourse with his daughter-in-law, both of them must be put to death. They have committed perversion;[15] their blood guilt is on themselves. 20:13 If a man has sexual intercourse with a male as one has sexual intercourse with a woman,[16] the two of them have committed an abomination. They must be put to death; their blood guilt is on themselves. 20:14 If a man has sexual intercourse with both a woman and her mother,[17] it is lewdness.[18] Both he and they must be burned to death,[19] so there is no lewdness in your midst. 20:15 If a man has sexual intercourse[20] with any animal, he must be put to death, and you must kill the animal. 20:16 If a woman approaches any animal to have sexual intercourse with it,[21] you must kill the woman, and the animal must be put to death; their blood guilt is on themselves.

20:17 "'If a man has sexual intercourse with[22] his sister, whether the daughter of his father or his mother, so that he sees her nakedness and she sees his nakedness, it is a disgrace. They must be cut off in the sight of the children of their people.[23] He has exposed his sister's nakedness; he will bear his punishment for iniquity.[24] 20:18 If a man has sexual intercourse with a menstruating woman and uncovers her nakedness, he has laid bare her fountain of blood and she has exposed the fountain of her blood, so both of them[25] must be cut off from the midst of their people. 20:19 You must not expose the nakedness of your mother's sister and your father's sister, for such a person has laid bare his own close relative.[26] They must bear their punishment for iniquity.[27] 20:20 If a man has sexual

[1] tn The adjective "spiritual" has been supplied in the translation to clarify that this is not a reference to literal prostitution, but figuratively compares idolatry to prostitution.

[2] tn Heb "to commit harlotry after Molech." The translation employs "worshiping" here for clarity (cf. NAB, NCV, TEV, CEV, NLT). On the "cut off" penalty see the note on Lev 7:20.

[3] sn For structure and coherence in Lev 20:6-27 see the note on v. 27 below.

[4] tn See the note on the phrase "familiar spirits" in Lev 19:31 above.

[5] tn Heb "I will give my faces."

[6] tn Heb "And you shall keep my statutes and you shall do them." This appears to be a kind of verbal hendiadys, where the first verb is a modifier of the action of the second verb (see GKC 386 §120.d, although שָׁמַר [shamar, "to keep"] is not cited there; cf. Lev 22:31, etc.).

[7] sn Compare the regulations in Lev 18:6-23.

[8] tn Heb "If a man a man who."

[9] tn Heb "makes light of his father and his mother." Almost all English versions render this as some variation of "curses his father or mother."

[10] tn Heb "his blood [plural] is in him." Cf. NAB "he has forfeited his life"; TEV "is responsible for his own death."

sn The rendering "blood guilt" refers to the fact that the shedding of blood brings guilt on those who shed it illegitimately (even the blood of animals shed illegitimately, Lev 17:4; cf. the background of Gen 4:10-11). If the community performs a legitimate execution, however, the blood guilt rests on the person who has been legitimately executed (see the remarks and literature cited in J. E. Hartley, Leviticus [WBC], 328).

[11] tn Heb "And a man who." The syntax here and at the beginning of the following verses elliptically mirrors that of v. 9, which justifies the rendering as a conditional clause.

[12] tc The reading of the LXX minuscule MSS has been followed here (see the BHS footnote a-a). The MT has a dittography, repeating "a man who commits adultery with the wife of" (see the explanation in J. E. Hartley, Leviticus [WBC], 328). The duplication found in the MT is reflected in some English versions, e.g., KJV, ASV, NASB, NIV.

[13] sn See the note on Lev 18:7 above.

[14] tn See the note on v. 9 above.

[15] tn The Hebrew term תֶּבֶל (tevel, "perversion") derives from the verb "to mix; to confuse" (cf. KJV, ASV "they have wrought confusion").

[16] tn Heb "[as the] lyings of a woman." The specific reference here is to homosexual intercourse between males.

[17] tn Heb "And a man who takes a woman and her mother." The Hebrew verb "to take" in this context means "to engage in sexual intercourse."

[18] tn Regarding "lewdness," see the note on Lev 18:17 above.

[19] tn Heb "in fire they shall burn him and them." The active plural verb sometimes requires a passive translation (GKC 460 §144.f, g), esp. when no active plural subject has been expressed in the context. The present translation specifies "burned to death" because the traditional rendering "burnt with fire" (KJV, ASV; NASB "burned with fire") could be understood to mean "branded" or otherwise burned, but not fatally.

[20] tn See the note on Lev 18:20 above.

[21] tn Heb "to copulate with it" (cf. Lev 20:16).

[22] tn Heb "takes." The verb "to take" in this context means "to engage in sexual intercourse," though some English versions translate it as "marry" (e.g., NIV, NCV, TEV, CEV).

[23] tn Regarding the "cut off" penalty, see the note on Lev 7:20.

[24] tn See the note on Lev 17:16 above.

[25] tn Heb "and the two of them."

[26] tn Heb "his flesh."

[27] tn See the note on Lev 17:16 above.

intercourse with his aunt, he has exposed his uncle's nakedness; they must bear responsibility for their sin, they will die childless. 20:21 If a man has sexual intercourse with[1] his brother's wife, it is indecency. He has exposed his brother's nakedness;[2] they will be childless.

Exhortation to Holiness and Obedience

20:22 "'You must be sure to obey all my statutes and regulations,[3] so that[4] the land to which I am about to bring you to take up residence there does not vomit you out. 20:23 You must not walk in the statutes of the nation[5] which I am about to drive out before you, because they have done all these things and I am filled with disgust against them. 20:24 So I have said to you: You yourselves will possess their land and I myself will give it to you for a possession, a land flowing with milk and honey. I am the LORD your God who has set you apart from the other peoples.[6] 20:25 Therefore you must distinguish[7] between the clean animal and the unclean, and between the unclean bird and the clean, and you must not make yourselves detestable by means of an animal or bird or anything that creeps on the ground – creatures[8] I have distinguished for you as unclean.[9] 20:26 You must be holy to me because I, the LORD, am holy, and I have set you apart from the other peoples to be mine.

Prohibition against Spiritists and Mediums

20:27 "'A man or woman who[10] has in them a spirit of the dead or a familiar spirit[11] must be put to death. They must pelt them with stones;[12] their blood guilt is on themselves.'"

Rules for the Priests

21:1 The LORD said to Moses: "Say to the priests, the sons of Aaron – say to them, 'For a dead person[13] no priest[14] is to defile himself among his people,[15] 21:2 except for his close relative who is near to him:[16] his mother, his father, his son, his daughter, his brother, 21:3 and his virgin sister who is near to him,[17] who has no husband; he may defile himself for her. 21:4 He must not defile himself as a husband among his people so as to profane himself.[18] 21:5 Priests[19] must not have a bald spot shaved on their head, they must not shave the corner of their beard, and they must not cut slashes in their body.[20]

21:6 "'They must be holy to their God, and they must not profane[21] the name of their God, because they are the ones who present the LORD's gifts,[22] the food of their God. Therefore

1 tn Heb "takes." The verb "to take" in this context means "to engage in sexual intercourse."

2 sn See the note on Lev 18:7 above.

3 tn Heb "And you shall keep all my statutes and all my regulations and you shall do them." This appears to be a kind of verbal hendiadys, where the first verb is a modifier of the action of the second verb (see GKC 386 §120.d, although שָׁמַר [shamar, "to keep"] is not cited there; cf. Lev 22:31, etc.).

4 tn Heb "and." The Hebrew conjunction וְ (vav, "and") can be considered to have resultative force here.

5 tc One medieval Hebrew MS, Smr, and all the major ancient versions have the plural "nations." Some English versions retain the singular (e.g., KJV, ASV, NASB, NRSV); others have the plural "nations" (e.g., NAB, NIV) and still others translate as "people" (e.g., TEV, NLT).

6 tc Here and with the same phrase in v. 26, the LXX adds "all," resulting in the reading "all the peoples."

7 tn Heb "And you shall distinguish." The verb is the same as "set apart" at the end of the previous verse. The fact that God had "set them apart" from the other peoples roundabout them called for them to "distinguish between" the clean and the unclean, etc.

8 tn The word "creatures" has been supplied in the translation to make it clear that the following relative clause modifies the animal, bird, or creeping thing mentioned earlier, and not the ground itself.

9 tc The MT has "to defile," but Smr, LXX, and Syriac have "to uncleanness."

10 tc Smr, LXX, Syriac, and some Targum MSS have the relative pronoun אֲשֶׁר ('asher, "who, which"), rather than the MT's כִּי (ki, "for, because, that").

11 tn See the note on the phrase "familiar spirit" in Lev 19:31 above.

12 tn This is not the most frequently-used Hebrew verb for stoning, but a word that refers to the action of throwing, slinging, or pelting someone with stones (see the note on v. 2 above). Smr and LXX have "you [plural] shall pelt them with stones."

sn At first glance Lev 20:27 appears to be out of place but, on closer examination, one could argue that it constitutes the back side of an envelope around the case laws in 20:9-21, with Lev 20:6 forming the front of the envelope (note also that execution of mediums and spiritists by stoning in v. 27 is not explicitly stated in v. 6). This creates a chiastic structure: prohibition against mediums and spiritists (vv. 6 and 27), variations of the holiness formula (vv. 7 and 25-26), and exhortations to obey the LORD's statutes (and judgments; vv. 8 and 22-24). Again, in the middle are the case laws (vv. 9-21).

13 tn The Hebrew term נֶפֶשׁ (nefesh, "soul, person, life") can sometimes refer to a "dead person" (cf. Lev 19:28 above and the literature cited there).

14 tn Heb "no one," but "priest" has been used in the translation to clarify that these restrictions are limited to the priests, not to the Israelites in general (note the introductory formula, "say to the priests, the sons of Aaron").

15 tc The MT has "in his peoples," but Smr, LXX, Syriac, Targum, and Tg. Ps.-J. have "in his people," referring to the Israelites as a whole.

16 tn Heb "except for his flesh, the one near to him."

17 tn Cf. v. 2a.

18 tn Heb "He shall not defile himself a husband in his peoples, to profane himself." The meaning of the line is disputed, but it appears to prohibit a priest from burying any relative by marriage (as opposed to the blood relatives of vv. 2-3), including his wife (compare B. A. Levine, Leviticus [JPSTC], 142-43 with J. E. Hartley, Leviticus [WBC], 343, 348).

19 tn Heb "they"; the referent (priests, see the beginning of v. 1) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

20 tn Heb "and in their body they shall not [cut] slash[es]" (cf. Lev 19:28). The context connects these sorts of mutilations with mourning rites (cf. Lev 19:27-28 above).

21 sn Regarding "profane," see the note on Lev 10:10 above.

22 sn Regarding the Hebrew term for "gifts," see the note on Lev 1:9 above (cf. also 3:11 and 16 in combination with the word for "food" that follows in the next phrase here).

they must be holy.[1] 21:7 They must not take a wife defiled by prostitution,[2] nor are they to take a wife divorced from her husband,[3] for the priest[4] is holy to his God.[5] 21:8 You must sanctify him because he presents the food of your God. He must be holy to you because I, the LORD who sanctifies you all,[6] am holy. 21:9 If a daughter of a priest profanes herself by engaging in prostitution, she is profaning her father. She must be burned to death.[7]

Rules for the High Priest

21:10 "'The high[8] priest – who is greater than his brothers, on whose head the anointing oil is poured, who has been ordained[9] to wear the priestly garments – must neither dishevel the hair of his head nor tear his garments.[10] 21:11 He must not go where there is any dead person;[11] he must not defile himself even for his father and his mother. 21:12 He must not go out from the sanctuary and must not profane[12] the sanctuary of his God, because the dedication of the anointing oil of his God is on him. I am the LORD. 21:13 He must take a wife who is a virgin.[13] 21:14 He must not marry[14] a widow, a divorced woman, or one profaned by prostitution; he may only take a virgin from his people[15] as a wife. 21:15 He must not profane his children among his people,[16] for I am the LORD who sanctifies him.'"

Rules for the Priesthood

21:16 The LORD spoke to Moses: 21:17 "Tell Aaron, 'No man from your descendants throughout their generations[17] who has a physical flaw[18] is to approach to present the food of his God. 21:18 Certainly[19] no man who has a physical flaw is to approach: a blind man, or one who is lame, or one with a slit nose,[20] or a limb too long, 21:19 or a man who has had a broken leg or arm,[21] 21:20 or a hunchback, or a dwarf,[22] or one with a spot in his eye,[23] or a festering eruption, or a feverish rash,[24] or a crushed testicle. 21:21 No man from the descendants of Aaron the priest who has a physical flaw may

[1] tc Smr and all early versions have the plural adjective "holy" rather than the MT singular noun "holiness."

[2] tn Heb "A wife harlot and profaned they shall not take." The structure of the verse (e.g., "wife" at the beginning of the two main clauses) suggests that "harlot and profaned" constitutes a hendiadys, meaning "a wife defiled by harlotry" (see the explanation in B. A. Levine, Leviticus [JPSTC], 143, as opposed to that in J. E. Hartley, Leviticus [WBC], 343, 348; cf. v. 14 below). Cf. NASB "a woman who is profaned by harlotry."

[3] sn For a helpful discussion of divorce in general and as it relates to this passage see B. A. Levine, Leviticus (JPSTC), 143-44.

[4] tn Heb "he"; the referent (the priest) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[5] tn The pronoun "he" in this clause refers to the priest, not the former husband of the divorced woman.

[6] tn The three previous second person references in this verse are all singular, but this reference is plural. By adding "all" this grammatical distinction is preserved in the translation.

[7] tn See the note on "burned to death" in 20:14.

[8] tn The adjective "high" has been supplied in the translation for clarity, as in many English versions.

[9] tn Heb "and he has filled his hand." For this expression see the note on Lev 8:33.

[10] tn Regarding these signs of mourning see the note on Lev 10:6. His head had been anointed (v. 10a) so it must not be unkempt (v. 10b), and his garments were special priestly garments (v. 10a) so he must not tear them (v. 10b). In the translation "garments" has been employed rather than "clothes" to suggest that the special priestly garments are referred to here; cf. NRSV "nor tear his vestments."

[11] tc Although the MT has "persons" (plural), the LXX and Syriac have the singular "person" corresponding to the singular adjectival participle "dead" (cf. also Num 6:6).

[12] sn Regarding "profane," see the note on Lev 10:10 above.

[13] tn Heb "And he, a wife in her virginity he shall take."

[15] tc The MT has literally, "from his peoples," but Smr, LXX, Syriac, Targum, and Tg. Ps.-J. have "from his people," referring to the Israelites as a whole.

[16] tc The MT has literally, "in his peoples," but Smr, LXX, Syriac, Targum, and Tg. Ps.-J. have "in his people," referring to the Israelites as a whole.

[17] tn Heb "to their generations."

[18] tn Heb "who in him is a flaw"; cf. KJV, ASV "any blemish"; NASB, NIV "a defect." The rendering "physical flaw" is used to refer to any birth defect or physical injury of the kind described in the following verses (cf. the same Hebrew word also in Lev 24:19-20). The same term is used for "flawed" animals, which must not be offered to the LORD in Lev 22:20-25.

[19] tn The particle כִּי (ki) in this context is asseverative, indicating absolutely certainty (GKC 498 §159.ee).

[20] tn Lexically, the Hebrew term חָרֻם (kharum) seems to refer to a split nose or perhaps any number of other facial defects (HALOT 354 s.v. II חרם qal; cf. G. J. Wenham, Leviticus [NICOT], 292, n. 7); cf. KJV, ASV "a flat nose"; NASB "a disfigured face." The NJPS translation is "a limb too short" as a balance to the following term which means "extended, raised," and apparently refers to "a limb too long" (see the explanation in B. A. Levine, Leviticus [JPSTC], 146).

[21] tn Heb "who there is in him a broken leg or a broken arm," or perhaps "broken foot or broken hand." The Hebrew term רֶגֶל (regel) is commonly rendered "foot," but it can also refer to the "leg," and the Hebrew יָד (yad) is most often translated "hand," but can also refer to the "[fore]arm" (as opposed to כַּף, kaf, "palm of the hand" or "hand"). See HALOT 386 s.v. יָד and 1184 s.v. רֶגֶל respectively (cf. the NJPS translation). In this context, these terms probably apply to any part of the limb that was broken, including hand and the foot. B. A. Levine (Leviticus [JPSTC], 146) points out that such injuries often did not heal properly in antiquity because they were not properly set and, therefore, remained a "physical flaw" permanently.

[22] tn Heb "thin"; cf. NAB "weakly." This could refer to either an exceptionally small (i.e., dwarfed) man (B. A. Levine, Leviticus [JPSTC], 146) or perhaps one with a "withered limb" (J. E. Hartley, Leviticus [WBC], 342, 344).

[23] tn The term rendered "spot" derives from a root meaning "mixed" or "confused" (cf. NAB "walleyed"). It apparently refers to any kind of marked flaw in the eye that can be seen by others. Smr, Syriac, Tg. Onq., and Tg. Ps.-J. have plural "his eyes."

[24] tn The exact meaning and medical reference of the terms rendered "festering eruption" and "feverish rash" is unknown, but see the translations and remarks in B. A. Levine, Leviticus (JPSTC), 146; J. E. Hartley, Leviticus (WBC), 342, 344, 349-50; and R. K. Harrison, NIDOTTE 1:890 and 2:461.

step forward[1] to present the LORD's gifts; he has a physical flaw, so he must not step forward to present the food of his God. 21:22 He may eat both the most holy and the holy food of his God, 21:23 but he must not go into the veil-canopy[2] or step forward to the altar because he has a physical flaw. Thus[3] he must not profane my holy places, for I am the LORD who sanctifies them.'"

21:24 So[4] Moses spoke these things[5] to Aaron, his sons, and all the Israelites.

Regulations for the Eating of Priestly Stipends

22:1 The LORD spoke to Moses: 22:2 "Tell Aaron and his sons that they must deal respectfully with the holy offerings[6] of the Israelites, which they consecrate to me, so that they do not profane my holy name.[7] I am the LORD. 22:3 Say to them, 'Throughout your generations,[8] if any man from all your descendants approaches the holy offerings which the Israelites consecrate[9] to the LORD while he is impure,[10] that person must be cut off from before me.[11] I am the LORD. 22:4 No man[12] from the descendants of Aaron who is diseased or has a discharge[13] may eat the holy offerings until he becomes clean. The one[14] who touches anything made unclean by contact with a dead person,[15] or a man who has a seminal emission,[16] 22:5 or a man who touches a swarming thing by which he becomes unclean,[17] or touches a person[18] by which he becomes unclean, whatever that person's impurity[19] – 22:6 the person who touches any of these[20] will be unclean until evening and must not eat from the holy offerings unless he has bathed his body in water. 22:7 When the sun goes down he will be clean, and afterward he may eat from the holy offerings, because they are his food. 22:8 He must not eat an animal that has died of natural causes[21] or an animal torn by beasts and thus become unclean by it. I am the LORD. 22:9 They must keep my charge so that they do not incur sin on account of it[22] and therefore die[23] because they profane it. I am the LORD who sanctifies them.

22:10 "'No lay person[24] may eat anything holy. Neither a priest's lodger[25] nor a hired laborer may eat anything holy, 22:11 but if a priest buys a person with his own money,[26] that person[27] may eat the holy offerings,[28] and those born in the priest's[29] own house may eat his food.[30] 22:12 If a priest's daughter marries a lay

[1] tn Or "shall approach" (see HALOT 670 s.v. נגשׁ).

[2] sn See the note on Lev 16:2 for the rendering "veil-canopy."

[3] tn Heb "And." The Hebrew conjunction ו (vav, "and") can be considered to have resultative force here.

[4] tn Heb "And." The Hebrew conjunction ו (vav, "and") introduces a concluding statement for all the preceding material.

[5] tn The words "these things" are not in the Hebrew text, but have been supplied in the translation for clarity.

[6] tn Heb "holy things," which means the "holy offerings" in this context, as the following verses show. The referent has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[7] tn Heb "from the holy things of the sons of Israel, and they shall not profane my holy name, which they are consecrating to me." The latter (relative) clause applies to the "the holy things of the sons of Israel" (the first clause), not the LORD's name (i.e., the immediately preceding clause). The clause order in the translation has been rearranged to indicate this.

[8] tn Heb "To your generations."

[9] tn The Piel (v. 2) and Hiphil (v. 3) forms of the verb קָדַשׁ (qadash) appear to be interchangeable in this context. Both mean "to consecrate" (Heb "make holy [or "sacred"]").

[10] tn Heb "and his impurity [is] on him"; NIV "is ceremonially unclean"; NAB, NRSV "while he is in a state of uncleanness."

[11] sn Regarding the "cut off" penalty, see the note on Lev 7:20. Cf. the interpretive translation of TEV "he can never again serve at the altar."

[12] tn Heb "Man man." The reduplication is a way of saying "any man" (cf. Lev 15:2; 17:3, etc.), but with a negative command it means "No man" (see B. A. Levine, Leviticus [JPSTC], 147).

[13] sn The diseases and discharges mentioned here are those described in Lev 13-15.

[14] tn Heb "And the one."

[15] tn Heb "in all unclean of a person/soul"; for the Hebrew term נֶפֶשׁ (nefesh) meaning "a [dead] person," see the note on Lev 19:28.

[16] tn Heb "or a man who goes out from him a lying of seed."

[17] tn Heb "which there shall be uncleanness to him."

[18] tn The Hebrew term for "person" here is אָדָם (adam, "human being"), which could be either a male or a female person.

[19] tn Heb "to all his impurity." The phrase refers to the impurity of the person whom the man touches to become unclean (see the previous clause). To clarify this, the translation uses "that person's" rather than "his."

[20] sn The phrase "any of these" refers back to the unclean things touched in vv. 4b-5.

[21] tn Heb "a carcass," referring to the carcass of an animal that has died on its own, not the carcass of an animal slaughtered for sacrifice or killed by wild beasts. This has been clarified in the translation by supplying the phrase "of natural causes"; cf. NAB "that has died of itself"; TEV "that has died a natural death."

[22] tn Heb "and they will not lift up on it sin." The pronoun "it" (masculine) apparently refers to any item of food that belongs to the category of "holy offerings" (see above).

[23] tn Heb "and die in it."

[24] tn Heb "No stranger" (so KJV, ASV), which refers here to anyone other than the Aaronic priests. Some English versions reverse the negation and state positively: NIV "No one outside a priest's family"; NRSV "Only a member of a priestly family"; CEV "Only you priests and your families."

[25] tn Heb "A resident [תּוֹשָׁב (toshav) from יָשַׁב (yashav, "to dwell, to reside")] of a priest." The meaning of the term is uncertain. It could refer to a "guest" (NIV) or perhaps "bound servant" (NRSV; see B. A. Levine, Leviticus [JPSTC], 149). In the translation "lodger" was used instead of "boarder" precisely because a boarder would be provided meals with his lodging, the very issue at stake here.

[26] tn Heb "and a priest, if he buys a person, the property of his silver."

[27] tn Heb "he"; the referent (the person whom the priest has purchased) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[28] tn Heb "eat it"; the referent (the holy offerings) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[29] tn Heb "his"; the referent (the priest) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[30] tn Heb "and the [slave] born of his house, they shall eat in his food." The LXX, Syriac, Tg. Onq., Tg. Ps.-J., and some MSS of Smr have plural "ones born," which matches the following plural "they" pronoun and the plural form of the verb.

person,[1] she may not eat the holy contribution offerings,[2] 22:13 but if a priest's daughter is a widow or divorced, and she has no children so that she returns to live in[3] her father's house as in her youth,[4] she may eat from her father's food, but no lay person may eat it.

22:14 "'If a man eats a holy offering by mistake,[5] he must add one fifth to it and give the holy offering to the priest.[6] 22:15 They[7] must not profane the holy offerings which the Israelites contribute[8] to the LORD,[9] 22:16 and so cause them to incur a penalty for guilt[10] when they eat their holy offerings,[11] for I am the LORD who sanctifies them.'"

Regulations for Offering Votive and Freewill Offerings

22:17 The LORD spoke to Moses: 22:18 "Speak to Aaron, his sons, and all the Israelites and tell them, 'When any man[12] from the house of Israel or from the foreigners in Israel[13] presents his offering for any of the votive or freewill offerings which they present to the LORD as a burnt offering, 22:19 if it is to be acceptable for your benefit[14] it must be a flawless male from the cattle, sheep, or goats. 22:20 You must not present anything that has a flaw,[15] because it will not be acceptable for your benefit.[16] 22:21 If a man presents a peace offering sacrifice to the LORD for a special votive offering[17] or for a freewill offering from the herd or the flock, it must be flawless to be acceptable;[18] it must have no flaw.[19]

22:22 "'You must not present to the LORD something blind, or with a broken bone, or mutilated, or with a running sore,[20] or with a festering eruption, or with a feverish rash.[21] You must not give any of these as a gift[22] on the altar to the LORD. 22:23 As for an ox[23] or a sheep with a limb too long or stunted,[24] you may present it as a freewill offering, but it will not be acceptable for a votive offering.[25] 22:24 You must not present to the LORD something with testicles that are bruised, crushed, torn, or cut off;[26] you must

1 tn Heb "And a daughter of a priest, if she is to a man, a stranger" (cf. the note on v. 10 above).

2 tn Heb "she in the contribution of the holy offerings shall not eat." For "contribution [offering]" see the note on Lev 7:14 and the literature cited there. Cf. NCV "the holy offerings"; TEV, NLT "the sacred offerings."

3 tn Heb "to"; the words "live in" have been supplied in the translation for clarity.

4 tn Heb "and seed there is not to her and she returns to the house of her father as her youth." The mention of having "no children" appears to imply that her children, if she had any, should support her; this is made explicit by NLT's "and has no children to support her."

5 tn Heb "And a man, if he eats a holy thing in error" (see the Lev 4:2 note on "straying," which is the term rendered "by mistake" here).

6 sn When a person trespassed in regard to something sacred to the LORD, reparation was to be made for the trespass, involving restitution of that which was violated plus one fifth of its value as a fine. It is possible that the restoration of the offering and the additional one fifth of its value were made as a monetary payment (see, e.g., B. A. Levine, Leviticus [JPSTC], 150). See the regulations for the "guilt offering" in Lev 5:16; 6:5 [5:24 HT] and the notes there.

7 tn Contextually, "They" could refer either to the people (v. 14a; cf. NRSV "No one") or the priests (v. 14b; cf. NIV "The priests"), but the latter seems more likely (see J. E. Hartley, Leviticus [WBC], 356, and B. A. Levine, Leviticus [JPSTC], 150). The priests were responsible to see that the portions of the offerings that were to be consumed by the priests as prebends did not become accessible to the people. Mistakes in this matter (cf. v. 14) would bring "guilt" on the people, requiring punishment (v. 16).

8 tn The Hebrew verb הֵרִים (herim, rendered "contribute" here) is commonly used for setting aside portions of an offering (see, e.g., Lev 4:8-10 and R. E. Averbeck, NIDOTTE 4:335-36).

9 tn Heb "the holy offerings of the sons of Israel which they contribute to the LORD." The subject "they" here refers to the Israelites ("the sons of Israel") which is the most immediate antecedent. To make this clear, the present translation has "the holy offerings which the Israelites contribute to the LORD."

10 tn Heb "iniquity of guilt"; NASB "cause them to bear punishment for guilt." The Hebrew word עָוֹן ('avon, "iniquity") can designate either acts of iniquity or the penalty (i.e., punishment) for such acts.

11 sn That is, when the lay people eat portions of offerings that should have been eaten only by priests and those who belonged to priestly households.

12 tn Heb "Man, man." The reduplication is a way of saying "any man" (cf. Lev 15:2; 17:3, etc.; see the distributive repetition of the noun in GKC 395-96 §123.c).

13 tn Heb "and from the foreigner [singular] in Israel." Some medieval Hebrew MSS, Smr, LXX, Syriac, and Vulgate add "who resides" after "foreigner": "the foreigner who resides in Israel" (cf., e.g., Lev 20:2 above).

14 tn Heb "for your acceptance." See Lev 1:3-4 above and the notes there.

15 tn Heb "all which in it [is] a flaw." Note that the same term is used for physical flaws of people in Lev 21:17-24. Cf. KJV, ASV, NRSV "blemish"; NASB, NIV, TEV "defect"; NLT "with physical defects."

16 tn Heb "not for acceptance shall it be for you"; NIV "it will not be accepted on your behalf" (NRSV and NLT both similar).

17 tn The meaning of the expression לְפַלֵּא־נֶדֶר (l^efalle'-neder) rendered here "for a special votive offering" is much debated. Some take it as an expression for fulfilling a vow, "to fulfill a vow" (e.g., HALOT 927-28 s.v. פלא piel and NASB; cf. NAB, NRSV "in fulfillment of a vow") or, alternatively, "to make a vow" or "for making a vow" (HALOT 928 s.v. פלא piel [II פלא]). Perhaps it refers to the making a special vow, from the verb פָּלָא (pala', "to be wonderful, to be remarkable"); cf. J. Milgrom, Numbers (JPSTC), 44. B. A. Levine, Leviticus (JPSTC), 151 and 193, suggests that this is a special term for "setting aside a votive offering" (related to פְּלֻּלָה [palah, "to set aside"]). In general, the point of the expression seems to be that this sacrifice arises as a special gift to God out of special circumstances in the life of the worshiper.

18 tn Heb "for acceptance"; NAB "if it is to find acceptance."

19 tn Heb "all/any flaw shall not be in it."

20 tn Or perhaps "a wart" (cf. NIV; HALOT 383 s.v. יַבֶּלֶת, but see the remarks in J. E. Hartley, Leviticus [WBC], 358).

21 sn See the note on Lev 21:20 above.

22 sn This term for offering "gift" is explained in the note on Lev 1:9.

23 tn Heb "And an ox."

24 tn Heb "and stunted" (see HALOT 1102 s.v. I קלט).

25 sn The freewill offering was voluntary, so the regulations regarding it were more relaxed. Once a vow was made, the paying of it was not voluntary (see B. A. Levine, Leviticus [JPSTC], 151-52, for very helpful remarks on this verse).

26 sn Compare Lev 21:20b.

not do this in your land. 22:25 Even from a foreigner[1] you must not present the food of your God from such animals as these, for they are ruined and flawed;[2] they will not be acceptable for your benefit.'"

22:26 The LORD spoke to Moses: 22:27 "When an ox, lamb, or goat is born, it must be under the care of[3] its mother seven days, but from the eighth day onward it will be acceptable as an offering gift[4] to the LORD. 22:28 You must not slaughter an ox or a sheep and its young[5] on the same day.[6] 22:29 When you sacrifice a thanksgiving offering to the LORD, you must sacrifice it so that it is acceptable for your benefit.[7] 22:30 On that very day[8] it must be eaten; you must not leave any part of it[9] over until morning. I am the LORD.

22:31 "You must be sure to do my commandments.[10] I am the LORD. 22:32 You must not profane my holy name, and I will be sanctified in the midst of the Israelites. I am the LORD who sanctifies you, 22:33 the one who brought you out from the land of Egypt to be your God.[11] I am the LORD."

Regulations for Israel's Appointed Times

23:1 The LORD spoke to Moses: 23:2 "Speak to the Israelites and tell them, 'These are the LORD's appointed times which you must proclaim as holy assemblies – my appointed times:[12]

The Weekly Sabbath

23:3 "'Six days work may be done, but on the seventh day there must be a Sabbath of complete rest,[13] a holy assembly. You must not do any work; it is a Sabbath to the LORD in all the places where you live.

The Festival of Passover and Unleavened Bread

23:4 "'These are the LORD's appointed times, holy assemblies, which you must proclaim at their appointed time. 23:5 In the first month, on the fourteenth day of the month, at twilight,[14] is a Passover offering to the LORD. 23:6 Then on the fifteenth day of the same month[15] will be the festival of unleavened bread to the LORD; seven days you must eat unleavened bread. 23:7 On the first day there will be a holy assembly for you; you must not do any regular work.[16] 23:8 You must present a gift to the LORD for seven days, and the seventh day is a holy assembly; you must not do any regular work.'"

The Presentation of First Fruits

23:9 The LORD spoke to Moses: 23:10 "Speak to the Israelites and tell them, 'When you enter the land that I am about to give to you and you gather in its harvest,[17] then you must bring the sheaf of the first portion of your harvest[18] to the priest, 23:11 and he must wave the sheaf before the LORD to be accepted for your benefit[19] – on the day after the Sabbath the priest is to wave it.[20] 23:12 On the day you wave the sheaf you must also offer[21] a flawless yearling lamb[22] for a burnt offering to the LORD,

1 tn Heb "And from the hand of a son of a foreigner."

2 tn Heb "for their being ruined [is] in them, flaw is in them"; NRSV "are mutilated, with a blemish in them"; NIV "are deformed and have defects." The MT term מָשְׁחָתָם (moshkhatam, "their being ruined") is a Muqtal form (= Hophal participle) from שָׁחַת (shakhat, "to ruin"). Smr has plural בהם משחתים ("deformities in them"; cf. the LXX translation). The Qumran Leviticus scroll (11QpaleoLev) has הם תימ[...], in which case the restored participle would appear to be the same as Smr, but there is no בְּ (bet) preposition before the pronoun, yielding "they are deformed" (see D. N. Freedman and K. A. Mathews, The Paleo-Hebrew Leviticus Scroll, 41 and the remarks in J. E. Hartley, Leviticus [WBC], 358).

3 tn The words "the care of" are not in the Hebrew text, but are implied. Although many modern English versions render "with its mother" (e.g., NAB, NASB, NIV, NRSV, NLT), the literal phrase "under its mother" refers to the young animal nursing from its mother. Cf. KJV, ASV "it shall be seven days under the dam," which would probably be misunderstood.

4 tn Heb "for an offering of a gift."

5 tn Heb "And an ox or a sheep, it and its son, you shall not slaughter."

6 tn Heb "in one day."

7 tn Heb "for your acceptance" (see the notes on Lev 1:3-4 and 22:19 above).

8 tn Heb "On that day"; NIV, NCV "that same day."

9 tn Heb "from it."

10 tn Heb "And you shall keep my commandments and you shall do them." This appears to be a kind of verbal hendiadys, where the first verb is a modifier of the action of the second verb (see GKC 386 §120.d, although שָׁמַר [shamar, "to keep"] is not cited there; cf. Lev 20:8, etc.).

11 tn Heb "to be to you for God."

12 tn Heb "these are them, my appointed times."

sn The term מוֹעֵד (mo'ed, rendered "appointed time" here) can refer to either a time or place of meeting. See the note on "tent of meeting" (אֹהֶל מוֹעֵד, 'ohel mo'ed) in Lev 1:1.

13 tn This is a superlative expression, emphasizing the full and all inclusive rest of the Sabbath and certain festival times throughout the chapter (see B. A. Levine, Leviticus [JPSTC], 155). Cf. ASV "a sabbath of solemn rest."

14 tn Heb "between the two evenings," perhaps designating the time between the setting of the sun and the true darkness of night. Cf. KJV, ASV "at even"; NAB "at the evening twilight."

sn See B. A. Levine, Leviticus (JPSTC), 156, for a full discussion of the issues raised in this verse. The rabbinic tradition places the slaughter of Passover offerings between approximately 3:00 P.M. and 6:00 P.M., not precisely at twilight. Moreover, the term פֶּסַח (pesakh) may mean "protective offering" rather than "Passover offering," although they amount to about the same thing in the historical context of the exodus from Egypt (see Exod 11-12).

15 tn Heb "to this month."

16 tn Heb "work of service"; KJV "servile work"; NASB "laborious work"; TEV "daily work."

17 tn Heb "and you harvest its harvest."

18 tn Heb "the sheaf of the first of your harvest."

19 tn Heb "for your acceptance."

20 sn See Lev 7:30 for a note on the "waving" of a "wave offering."

21 tn Heb "And you shall make in the day of your waving the sheaf."

22 tn Heb "a flawless lamb, a son of its year"; KJV "of the first year"; NLT "a year-old male lamb."

23:13 along with its grain offering, two tenths of an ephah of[1] choice wheat flour[2] mixed with olive oil, as a gift to the LORD, a soothing aroma,[3] and its drink offering, one fourth of a hin of wine.[4] 23:14 You must not eat bread, roasted grain, or fresh grain until this very day,[5] until you bring the offering of your God. This is a perpetual statute throughout your generations[6] in all the places where you live.

The Festival of Weeks

23:15 "'You must count for yourselves seven weeks from the day after the Sabbath, from the day you bring the wave offering sheaf; they must be complete weeks.[7] 23:16 You must count fifty days – until the day after the seventh Sabbath – and then[8] you must present a new grain offering to the LORD. 23:17 From the places where you live you must bring two loaves of[9] bread for a wave offering; they must be made from two tenths of an ephah of fine wheat flour, baked with yeast,[10] as first fruits to the LORD. 23:18 Along with the loaves of bread,[11] you must also present seven flawless yearling lambs,[12] one young bull,[13] and two rams.[14] They are to be a burnt offering to the LORD along with their grain offering[15] and drink offerings, a gift of a soothing aroma to the LORD.[16] 23:19 You must also offer[17] one male goat[18] for a sin offering and two yearling lambs for a peace offering sacrifice, 23:20 and the priest is to wave them – the two lambs[19] – along with the bread of the first fruits, as a wave offering before the LORD; they will be holy to the LORD for the priest.

23:21 "'On this very day you must proclaim an assembly; it is to be a holy assembly for you.[20] You must not do any regular work. This is a perpetual statute in all the places where you live throughout your generations.[21] 23:22 When you gather in the harvest[22] of your land, you must not completely harvest the corner of your field,[23] and you must not gather up the gleanings of your harvest. You must leave them for the poor and the foreigner. I am the LORD your God.'"[24]

The Festival of Horn Blasts

23:23 The LORD spoke to Moses: 23:24 "Tell the Israelites, 'In the seventh month, on the first day of the month, you must have a complete rest, a memorial announced by loud horn blasts,[25] a holy assembly. 23:25 You must not do any regular work, but[26] you must present a gift to the LORD.'"

The Day of Atonement

23:26 The LORD spoke to Moses: 23:27 "The[27] tenth day of this seventh month is the

[2] sn See the note on Lev 2:1.

[3] sn See the note on Lev 1:9.

[4] tn Heb "wine, one fourth of the hin." A pre-exilic hin is about 3.6 liters (= ca. 1 gallon), so one fourth of a hin would be about 1 quart (1 liter).

[5] tn Heb "until the bone of this day."

[6] tn Heb "for your generations."

[7] tn Heb "seven Sabbaths, they shall be complete." The disjunctive accent under "Sabbaths" precludes the translation "seven complete Sabbaths" (as NASB, NIV; cf. NAB, NRSV, NLT). The text is somewhat awkward, which may explain why the LXX tradition is confused here, either adding "you shall count" again at the end of the verse, or leaving out "they shall be," or keeping "they shall be" and adding "to you."

[8] tn Heb "and." In the translation "then" is supplied to clarify the sequence.

[9] tc Smr, LXX, Syriac, Tg. Onq., and Tg. Ps.-J. insert the word חַלּוֹת (khallot, "loaves"; cf. Lev 2:4 and the note there). Even though "loaves" is not explicit in the MT, the number "two" suggests that these are discrete units, not just a measure of flour, so "loaves" should be assumed even in the MT.

[10] tn Heb "with leaven." The noun "leaven" is traditional in English versions (cf. KJV, ASV, NASB, NRSV), but "yeast" is more commonly used today.

[11] tn Heb "And you shall present on the bread."

[12] tn Heb "seven flawless lambs, sons of a year."

[13] tn Heb "and one bull, a son of a herd."

[14] tc Smr and LXX add "flawless."

[15] tn Heb "and their grain offering."

[16] sn See the note on Lev 1:9.

[17] tn Heb "And you shall make."

[18] tn Heb "a he-goat of goats."

[19] tn Smr and LXX have the Hebrew article on "lambs." The syntax of this verse is difficult. The object of the verb (two lambs) is far removed from the verb itself (shall wave) in the MT, and the preposition עַל ('al, "upon"), rendered "along with" in this verse, is also added to the far removed subject (literally, "upon [the] two lambs"; see B. A. Levine, Leviticus [JPSTC], 159). It is clear, however, that the two lambs and the loaves (along with their associated grain and drink offerings) constituted the "wave offering," which served as the prebend "for the priest." Burnt and sin offerings (vv. 18-19a) were not included in this (see Lev 7:11-14, 28-36).

[20] tn Heb "And you shall proclaim [an assembly] in the bone of this day; a holy assembly it shall be to you" (see the remarks in B. A. Levine, Leviticus [JPSTC], 160, and the remarks on the LXX rendering in J. E. Hartley, Leviticus [WBC], 367).

[21] tn Heb "for your generations."

[22] tn Heb "And when you harvest the harvest."

[23] tn Heb "you shall not complete the corner of your field in your harvest."

[24] sn Compare Lev 19:9-10.

[25] tn Heb "a memorial of loud blasts." Although the term for "horn" does not occur here, allowing for the possibility that vocal "shouts" of acclamation are envisioned (see P. J. Budd, Leviticus [NCBC], 325), the "blast" of the shofar (a trumpet made from a ram's "horn") is most likely what is intended. On this occasion, the loud blasts on the horn announced the coming of the new year on the first day of the seventh month (see the explanations in J. E. Hartley, Leviticus [WBC], 387, and B. A. Levine, Leviticus [JPSTC], 160).

[26] tn Heb "and." The Hebrew conjunction וְ (vav, "and") can be considered to have adversative force here (cf. KJV, NASB, NIV).

[27] tn Heb "Surely the tenth day" or perhaps "Precisely the tenth day." The Hebrew adverbial particle אַךְ ('akh) is left untranslated by most recent English versions; cf. however NASB "On exactly the tenth day."

Day of Atonement.[1] It is to be a holy assembly for you, and you must humble yourselves[2] and present a gift to the LORD. 23:28 You must not do any work on this particular day,[3] because it is a day of atonement to make atonement for yourselves[4] before the LORD your God. 23:29 Indeed,[5] any person who does not behave with humility on this particular day will be cut off from his people.[6] 23:30 As for any person[7] who does any work on this particular day, I will exterminate[8] that person from the midst of his people![9] 23:31 You must not do any work. This is a perpetual statute throughout your generations[10] in all the places where you live. 23:32 It is a Sabbath of complete rest for you, and you must humble yourselves on the ninth day of the month in the evening, from evening until evening you must observe your Sabbath."[11] 23:33 The LORD spoke to Moses: 23:34 "Tell the Israelites, 'On the fifteenth day of this seventh month is the Festival of Temporary Shelters[12] for seven days to the LORD. 23:35 On the first day is a holy assembly; you must do no regular work.[13] 23:36 For seven days you must present a gift to the LORD. On the eighth day there is to be a holy assembly for you, and you must present a gift to the LORD. It is a solemn assembly day;[14] you must not do any regular work.

The Festival of Booths

23:37 "'These are the appointed times of the LORD that you must proclaim as holy assemblies to present a gift to the LORD – burnt offering, grain offering, sacrifice, and drink offerings,[15] each day according to its regulation,[16] 23:38 besides[17] the Sabbaths of the LORD and all your gifts, votive offerings, and freewill offerings which you must give to the LORD.

23:39 "'On[18] the fifteenth day of the seventh month, when you gather in the produce of the land, you must celebrate a pilgrim festival of the LORD for seven days. On the first day is a complete rest and on the eighth day is complete rest. 23:40 On the first day you must take for yourselves branches from majestic trees[19] – palm branches, branches of leafy trees, and willows of the brook – and you must rejoice before the LORD your God for seven days. 23:41 You must celebrate it as a pilgrim festival to the LORD for seven days in the year. This is a perpetual statute throughout your generations;[20] you must celebrate it in the seventh month. 23:42 You must live in temporary shelters[21] for seven days; every native citizen in Israel must live in temporary shelters, 23:43 so that your future generations may know that I made the Israelites live in temporary shelters when I brought them out from the land of Egypt. I am the LORD your God.'"

23:44 So Moses spoke to the Israelites about the appointed times of the LORD.[22]

[1] sn See the description of this day and its regulations in Lev 16 and the notes there.

[2] tn Heb "you shall humble your souls." See the note on Lev 16:29 above.

[3] tn Heb "in the bone of this day."

[4] tn Heb "on you [plural]"; cf. NASB, NRSV "on your behalf."

[5] tn The particular כִּי (ki) is taken in an asseverative sense here ("Indeed," see the NJPS translation).

[6] tn Heb "it [i.e., that person; literally "soul," feminine] shall be cut off from its peoples [plural]"; NLT "from the community."

[7] tn Heb "And any person."

[8] tn See HALOT 3 s.v. I אבד hif. Cf. KJV, NASB, NIV, NRSV, NLT "destroy"; CEV "wipe out."

[9] tn Heb "its people" ("its" is feminine to agree with "person," literally "soul," which is feminine in Hebrew; cf. v. 29).

[11] tn Heb "you shall rest your Sabbath."

[12] tn The rendering "booths" (cf. NAB, NASB, NRSV) is probably better than the traditional "tabernacles" in light of the meaning of the term סֻכָּה (sukkah, "hut, booth"), but "booths" are frequently associated with trade shows and craft fairs in contemporary American English. The nature of the celebration during this feast (see the following verses) as a commemoration of the wanderings of the Israelites after they left Egypt suggests that a translation like "temporary shelters" is more appropriate.

[14] tn The Hebrew term עֲצֶרֶת ('atseret) "solemn assembly [day]" derives from a root associated with restraint or closure. It could refer either to the last day as "closing assembly" day of the festival (e.g., NIV) or a special day of restraint expressed in a "solemn assembly" (e.g., NRSV); cf. NLT "a solemn closing assembly."

[16] tn Heb "a matter of a day in its day"; NAB "as prescribed for each day"; NRSV, NLT "each on its proper day."

[17] tn Heb "from to separation." See BDB 94 s.v. בַּד 1.e for an explanation of this phrase. This phrase is repeated in front of each of the four items in this verse in the Hebrew text, but these have not been translated into English for stylistic reasons. Cf. KJV, NASB "besides"; NRSV "apart from."

[18] tn Heb "Surely on the fifteenth day." The Hebrew adverbial particle אַךְ ('akh) is left untranslated by most recent English versions; however, cf. NASB "On exactly the fifteenth day."

[19] tn Heb "fruit of majestic trees," but the following terms and verses define what is meant by this expression. For extensive remarks on the celebration of this festival in history and tradition see B. A. Levine, Leviticus (JPSTC), 163; J. E. Hartley, Leviticus (WBC), 389-90; and P. J. Budd, Leviticus (NCBC), 328-29.

[20] tn Heb "for your generations."

[21] tn Heb "in the huts" (again at the end of this verse and in v. 43), perhaps referring to temporary shelters (i.e., huts) made of the foliage referred to in v. 40 (J. E. Hartley, Leviticus [WBC], 389).

[22] sn E. S. Gerstenberger (Leviticus [OTL], 352) takes v. 44 to be an introduction to another set of festival regulations, perhaps something like those found in Exod 23:14-17. For others this verse reemphasizes the Mosaic authority of the preceding festival regulations (e.g., J. E. Hartley, Leviticus [WBC], 390).

Regulations for the Lampstand and Table of Bread

24:1 The LORD spoke to Moses: 24:2 "Command the Israelites to bring[1] to you pure oil of beaten olives for the light, to make a lamp burn continually.[2] 24:3 Outside the veil-canopy[3] of the congregation in the Meeting Tent Aaron[4] must arrange it from evening until morning before the LORD continually. This is a perpetual statute throughout your generations.[5] 24:4 On the ceremonially pure lampstand[6] he must arrange the lamps before the LORD continually.

24:5 "You must take choice wheat flour[7] and bake twelve loaves;[8] there must be two tenths of an ephah of flour in[9] each loaf, 24:6 and you must set them in two rows, six in a row,[10] on the ceremonially pure table before the LORD. 24:7 You must put pure frankincense[11] on each row,[12] and it will become a memorial portion[13] for the bread, a gift[14] to the LORD. 24:8 Each Sabbath day[15] Aaron[16] must arrange it before the LORD continually; this portion[17] is from the Israelites as a perpetual covenant. 24:9 It will belong to Aaron and his sons, and they must eat it in a holy place because it is most holy to him, a perpetual allotted portion[18] from the gifts of the LORD."

A Case of Blaspheming the Name

24:10 Now[19] an Israelite woman's son whose father was an Egyptian went out among the Israelites, and the Israelite woman's son and an Israelite man[20] had a fight in the camp. 24:11 The Israelite woman's son misused the Name and cursed,[21] so they brought him to Moses. (Now his mother's name was Shelomith daughter of Dibri, of the tribe of Dan.) 24:12 So they placed him in custody until they were able[22] to make a clear legal decision for themselves based on words from the mouth of the LORD.[23]

24:13 Then the LORD spoke to Moses: 24:14 "Bring the one who cursed outside the camp, and all who heard him are to lay their hands on his head, and the whole congregation is to stone

[1] tn Heb "and let them take." The simple vav (ו) on the imperfect/jussive form of the verb לָקַח (laqakh, "to take") following the imperative ("Command") indicates a purpose clause ("to bring...").

[2] tn Heb "to cause to ascend a lamp continually."

[3] tn The Hebrew term פָּרֹכֶת (parokhet) is usually translated "veil" or "curtain," but it seems to have stretched not only in front of but also over the top of the ark of the covenant which stood behind and under it inside the most holy place (see R. E. Averbeck, NIDOTTE 3:687-89).

[4] tc Several medieval Hebrew MSS, Smr, and the LXX add "and his sons."

[5] tn Heb "for your generations."

[6] tn Alternatively, "pure [gold] lampstand," based on Exod 25:31, etc., where the term for "gold" actually appears (see NAB, NASB, NIV, NRSV, NLT, and the remarks in J. E. Hartley, Leviticus [WBC], 395, etc.). However, in Lev 24:4 the adjective "pure" is feminine, corresponding to "lampstand," not an assumed noun "gold" (contrast Exod 25:31), and the "table" in v. 6 was overlaid with gold, but was not made of pure gold. Therefore, it is probably better to translate "[ceremonially] pure lampstand" (v. 4) and "[ceremonially] pure table" (v. 6); see NEB; cf. KJV, ASV; B. A. Levine, Leviticus [JPSTC], 164-65; and G. J. Wenham, Leviticus [NICOT], 307.

[7] sn See the note on Lev 2:1.

[8] tn Heb "and bake it twelve loaves"; KJV, NAB, NASB "cakes."

[9] tn The words "of flour" are supplied in the translation for clarity.

sn See the note on Lev 5:11.

[10] tn Heb "six of the row."

[11] tn This is not just any "incense" (קְטֹרֶת, qetoret; R. E. Averbeck, NIDOTTE 3:913-16), but specifically "frankincense" (לְבֹנָה, levonah; R. E. Averbeck, NIDOTTE 2:756-57).

[12] tn Heb "on [עַל, 'al] the row," probably used distributively, "on each row" (J. E. Hartley, Leviticus [WBC], 395-96). Perhaps the frankincense was placed "with" or "along side of" each row, not actually on the bread itself, and was actually burned as incense to the LORD (cf. NIV "Along [Alongside CEV] each row"; NRSV "with each row"; NLT "near each row"; B. A. Levine, Leviticus [JPSTC], 165). This particular preposition can have such a meaning.

[13] sn The "memorial portion" (אַזְכָּרָה, 'azkharah) was normally the part of the grain offering that was burnt on the altar (see Lev 2:2 and the notes there), as opposed to the remainder, which was normally consumed by the priests (Lev 2:3; see the full regulations in Lev 6:14-23 [6:7-16 HT]).

[15] tn Heb "In the day of the Sabbath, in the day of the Sabbath." The repetition is distributive. A few medieval Hebrew MSS, the LXX, and the Syriac delete the second occurrence of the expression.

[16] tn Heb "he"; the referent (Aaron) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[17] tn The word "portion" is supplied in the translation here for clarity, to specify what "this" refers to.

[18] tn Or "a perpetual regulation"; NRSV "a perpetual due."

[19] tn Heb "And."

[20] tn Heb "the Israelite man," but Smr has no article, and the point is that there was a conflict between the man of mixed background and a man of full Israelite descent.

[21] tn The verb rendered "misused" means literally "to bore through, to pierce" (HALOT 719 s.v. נקב qal); it is from נָקַב (naqav), not קָבַב (qavav; see the participial form in v. 16a). Its exact meaning here is uncertain. The two verbs together may form a hendiadys, "he pronounced by cursing blasphemously" (B. A. Levine, Leviticus [JPSTC], 166), the idea being one of the following: (1) he pronounced the name "Yahweh" in a way or with words that amounted to "some sort of verbal aggression against Yahweh himself" (E. S. Gerstenberger, Leviticus [OTL], 362), (2) he pronounced a curse against the man using the name "Yahweh" (N. H. Snaith, Leviticus and Numbers [NCBC], 110; G. J. Wenham, Leviticus [NICOT], 311), or (3) he pronounced the name "Yahweh" and thereby blasphemed, since the "Name" was never to be pronounced (a standard Jewish explanation). In one way or another, the offense surely violated Exod 20:7, one of the ten commandments, and the same verb for cursing is used explicitly in Exod 22:28 (27 HT) for prohibition against "cursing" God. For a full discussion of these and related options for interpreting this verse see P. J. Budd, Leviticus (NCBC), 335-36; J. E. Hartley, Leviticus (WBC), 408-9; and Levine, 166.

[22] tn The words "until they were able" are not in the Hebrew text, but are implied.

[23] tn The Hebrew here is awkward. A literal reading would be something like the following: "And they placed him in custody to give a clear decision [HALOT 976 s.v. פרש qal] for themselves on the mouth of the LORD." In any case, they were apparently waiting for a direct word from the LORD regarding this matter (see vv. 13ff).

him to death.[1] 24:15 Moreover,[2] you are to tell the Israelites, 'If any man curses his God[3] he will bear responsibility for his sin, 24:16 and one who misuses[4] the name of the LORD must surely be put to death. The whole congregation must surely stone him, whether he is a foreigner or a native citizen; when he misuses the Name he must be put to death.

24:17 "'If a man beats any person to death,[5] he must be put to death. 24:18 One who beats an animal to death[6] must make restitution for it, life for life.[7] 24:19 If a man inflicts an injury on[8] his fellow citizen,[9] just as he has done it must be done to him – 24:20 fracture for fracture, eye for eye, tooth for tooth – just as he inflicts an injury on another person[10] that same injury[11] must be inflicted on him. 24:21 One who beats an animal to death[12] must make restitution for it, but[13] one who beats a person to death must be put to death. 24:22 There will be one regulation[14] for you, whether a foreigner or a native citizen, for I am the LORD your God.'"

24:23 Then Moses spoke to the Israelites and they brought the one who cursed outside the camp and stoned him with stones. So the Israelites did just as the LORD had commanded Moses.

Regulations for the Sabbatical Year

25:1 The LORD spoke to Moses at Mount Sinai: 25:2 "Speak to the Israelites and tell them, 'When you enter the land that I am giving you, the land must observe a Sabbath[15] to the LORD. 25:3 Six years you may sow your field, and six years you may prune your vineyard and gather the produce,[16] 25:4 but in the seventh year the land must have a Sabbath of complete rest[17] – a Sabbath to the LORD. You must not sow your field or[18] prune your vineyard. 25:5 You must not gather in the aftergrowth of your harvest and you must not pick the grapes of your unpruned[19] vines; the land must have a year of complete rest. 25:6 You may have the Sabbath produce[20] of the land to eat – you, your male servant, your female servant, your hired worker, the resident foreigner who stays with you,[21] 25:7 your cattle, and the wild animals that are in your land – all its produce will be for you[22] to eat.

Regulations for the Jubilee Year of Release

25:8 "'You must count off[23] seven weeks of years, seven times seven years,[24] and the days of the seven weeks of years will amount to forty-nine years.[25] 25:9 You must sound loud horn blasts[26] – in the seventh month, on the tenth day of the month, on the Day of Atonement – you must sound the horn in your entire land. 25:10 So you must consecrate the fiftieth year,[27] and you must proclaim a release[28] in the land for all its inhabitants. That year will be your jubilee;[29]

[1] tn The words "to death" are supplied in the translation as a clarification; they are clearly implied from v. 16.

[2] tn Heb "And."

[3] sn See the note on v. 11 above and esp. Exod 22:28 [27 HT].

[4] sn See the note on v. 11 above.

[5] tn Heb "And if a man strikes any soul [נֶפֶשׁ, nefesh] of mankind." The idiom seems to derive from the idea of striking a fatal blow to the very "life" (literally, "soul") of a human being, not just landing a blow on their body (HALOT 698 s.v. נכה hif.2). On the difficulty of the meaning and significance of the term נֶפֶשׁ see the notes on Lev 17:10-11.

[6] tn Heb "And one who strikes a soul of an animal."

[7] tn Heb "soul under soul." Cf. KJV "beast for beast"; NCV "must give...another animal to take its place."

[8] tn Heb "gives a flaw in"; KJV, ASV "cause a blemish in."

[9] tn Or "neighbor" (so NAB, NASB, NIV); TEV, NLT "another person."

[10] tn Heb "in the man [אָדָם, 'adam]."

[11] tn Heb "just as he inflicts an injury...it must be inflicted on him." The referent ("that same injury") has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[12] sn See the note on v. 18 above.

[13] tn Heb "and," but here the Hebrew conjunction ו (vav, "and") is adversative, contrasting the consequences of beating an animal to death with those of beating a person to death.

[14] tn Heb "a regulation of one"; KJV, ASV "one manner of law"; NASB "one standard."

[15] tn Heb "the land shall rest a Sabbath."

[16] tn Heb "its produce," but the feminine pronoun "its" probably refers to the "land" (a feminine noun in Hebrew; cf. v. 2), not the "field" or the "vineyard," both of which are normally masculine nouns (see B. A. Levine, Leviticus [JPSTC], 170).

[17] tn Heb "and in the seventh year a Sabbath of complete rest shall be to the land." The expression "a Sabbath of complete rest" is superlative, emphasizing the full and all inclusive rest of the seventh year of the sabbatical cycle. Cf. ASV "a sabbath of solemn rest"; NAB "a complete rest."

[18] tn Heb "and." Here the Hebrew conjunction ו (vav, "and") has an alternative sense ("or").

[19] tn Heb "consecrated, devoted, forbidden" (נָזִיר, nazir). The same term is used for the "consecration" of the "Nazirite" (and his hair, Num 6:2, 18, etc.), a designation which, in turn, derives from the very same root.

[20] tn The word "produce" is not in the Hebrew text but is implied; cf. NASB "the sabbath products."

[21] tn A "resident who stays" would be a foreign person who was probably residing as another kind of laborer in the household of a landowner (B. A. Levine, Leviticus [JPSTC], 170-71). See v. 35 below.

[22] tn The words "for you" are implied.

[23] tn Heb "And you shall count off for yourself."

[24] tn Heb "seven years seven times."

[25] tn Heb "and they shall be for you, the days of the seven Sabbaths of years, forty-nine years."

[26] sn On the "loud horn blasts" see the note on Lev 23:24, but unlike the language there, the Hebrew term for "horn" (שׁוֹפָר, shofar) actually appears here in this verse (twice).

[27] tn Heb "the year of the fifty years," or perhaps "the year, fifty years" (GKC 435 §134.o, note 2).

[28] tn Cf. KJV, ASV, NAB, NIV, NRSV "liberty"; TEV, CEV "freedom." The characteristics of this "release" are detailed in the following verses. For substantial summaries and bibliography on the biblical and ancient Near Eastern material regarding such a "release" see J. E. Hartley, Leviticus (WBC), 427-34, and B. A. Levine, Leviticus (JPSTC), 270-74.

[29] tn Heb "A jubilee that shall be to you." Although there has been some significant debate about the original meaning of the Hebrew word translated "jubilee" (יוֹבֵל, yovel; see the summary in J. E. Hartley, Leviticus [WBC], 434), the term most likely means "ram" and can refer also to a "ram's horn." The fiftieth year would, therefore, be called the "jubilee" because of the associated sounding of the "ram's horn" (see B. A. Levine, Leviticus [JPSTC], 172, and the literature cited there).

each one of you must return[1] to his property and each one of you must return to his clan. 25:11 That fiftieth year will be your jubilee; you must not sow the land, harvest its aftergrowth, or pick the grapes of its unpruned vines.[2] 25:12 Because that year is a jubilee, it will be holy to you – you may eat its produce[3] from the field.

Release of Landed Property

25:13 "'In this year of jubilee you must each return[4] to your property. 25:14 If you make a sale[5] to your fellow citizen[6] or buy[7] from your fellow citizen, no one is to wrong his brother.[8] 25:15 You may buy it from your fellow citizen according to the number of years since[9] the last jubilee; he may sell it to you according to the years of produce that are left.[10] 25:16 The more years there are,[11] the more you may make its purchase price, and the fewer years there are,[12] the less you must make its purchase price, because he is only selling to you a number of years of[13] produce. 25:17 No one is to oppress his fellow citizen,[14] but you must fear your God, because I am the LORD your God. 25:18 You must obey my statutes and my regulations; you must be sure to keep them[15] so that you may live securely in the land.[16]

25:19 "'The land will give its fruit and you may eat until you are satisfied,[17] and you may live securely in the land. 25:20 If you say, 'What will we eat in the seventh year if we do not sow and gather our produce?' 25:21 I will command my blessing for you in the sixth year so that it may yield[18] the produce[19] for three years, 25:22 and you may sow the eighth year and eat from that sixth year's produce[20] – old produce. Until you bring in the ninth year's produce,[21] you may eat old produce. 25:23 The land must not be sold without reclaim[22] because the land belongs to me, for you are foreigners and residents with me.[23] 25:24 In all your landed property[24] you must provide for the right of redemption of the land.[25]

25:25 "'If your brother becomes impoverished and sells some of his property, his near redeemer is to come to you and redeem what his brother sold.[26] 25:26 If a man has no redeemer, but he prospers[27] and gains enough for its redemption,[28] 25:27 he is to calculate the value of the years it was sold,[29] refund the balance[30] to the man to whom he had sold it, and return to his property. 25:28 If he has not prospered enough to refund[31] a balance to him, then what he sold[32] will belong to[33] the one who bought it until the jubilee year, but it must revert[34] in the jubilee

1 tn Heb "you [plural] shall return, a man."

2 tn Heb "you shall not sow and you shall not…and you shall not…."

sn See v. 5 above and the notes there.

3 tn That is, the produce of the land (fem.; cf. v. 7 above).

4 tn Heb "you [plural] shall return, a man."

5 tn Heb "sell a sale."

6 tn Or "to one of your countrymen" (NIV); NASB "to your friend."

7 tn The Hebrew infinitive absolute קָנֹה (qanoh, "buying") substitutes for the finite verb here in sequence with the previous finite verb "sell" at the beginning of the verse (see GKC 345 §113.z).

8 tn Heb "do not oppress a man his brother." Here "brother" does not refer only to a sibling, but to a fellow Israelite.

9 tn Heb "in the number of years after."

10 tn The words "that are left" are not in the Hebrew text, but are implied.

sn The purchaser is actually buying only the crops that the land will produce until the next jubilee, since the land will revert to the original owner at that time. The purchaser, therefore, is not actually buying the land itself.

11 tn Heb "To the mouth of the many years."

12 tn Heb "to the mouth of the few years."

13 tn Heb "a number of produce"; the words "years of" are implied. As an alternative this could be translated "a number of harvests" (cf. NRSV, NLT).

14 tn Heb "And you shall not oppress a man his fellow citizen."

15 tn Heb "And you shall keep and do them." This appears to be a kind of verbal hendiadys, where the first verb is a modifier of the action of the second verb (see GKC 386 §120.d, although שָׁמַר [shamar, "to keep"] is not cited there; cf. Lev 20:8, etc.).

16 tn Heb "and you shall dwell on the land to security."

17 tn Heb "eat to satisfaction"; KJV, ASV "ye shall eat your fill."

18 tn Heb "and it [i.e., the land] shall make the produce." The Hebrew term וְעָשָׂת (v^e'asat, "and it shall make") is probably an older third feminine singular form of the verb (GKC 210 §75.m). Smr has the normal form.

19 tn Smr and LXX have "its produce" (cf. 25:3, 7, etc.) rather than "the produce."

20 tn Heb "the produce," referring to "the produce" of the sixth year of v. 21. The words "sixth year" are supplied for clarity.

21 tn Heb "until the ninth year, until bringing [in] its produce."

22 tn The term rendered "without reclaim" means that the land has been bought for the full price and is, therefore, not subject to reclaim under any circumstances. This was not to be done with land in ancient Israel (contrast the final full sale of houses in v. 30; see the evidence cited in B. A. Levine, Leviticus [JPSTC], 174).

23 tn That is, the Israelites were strangers and residents who were attached to the LORD's household. They did not own the land. Note the parallel to the "priest's lodger" in Lev 22:10.

24 tn Heb "And in all the land of your property."

25 tn Heb "right of redemption you shall give to the land"; NAB "you must permit the land to be redeemed."

26 tn Heb "the sale of his brother."

27 tn Heb "and his hand reaches."

28 tn Heb "and he finds as sufficiency of its redemption."

29 tn Heb "and he shall calculate its years of sale."

30 tn Heb "and return the excess."

31 tn Heb "And if his hand has not found sufficiency of returning." Although some versions take this to mean that he has not made enough to regain the land (e.g., NASB, NRSV; see also B. A. Levine, Leviticus [JPSTC], 176), the combination of terms in Hebrew corresponds to the portion of v. 27 that refers specifically to refunding the money (cf. v. 27; see NIV and G. J. Wenham, Leviticus [NICOT], 315).

32 tn Heb "his sale."

33 tn Heb "will be in the hand of." This refers to the temporary control of the one who purchased its produce until the next year of jubilee, at which time it would revert to the original owner.

34 tn Heb "it shall go out" (so KJV, ASV; see B. A. Levine, Leviticus [JPSTC], 176).

and the original owner[1] may return to his property.

Release of Houses

25:29 "'If a man sells a residential house in a walled city,[2] its right of redemption must extend[3] until one full year from its sale;[4] its right of redemption must extend to a full calendar year.[5] 25:30 If it is not redeemed before the full calendar year is ended,[6] the house in the walled city[7] will belong without reclaim[8] to the one who bought it throughout his generations; it will not revert in the jubilee. 25:31 The houses of villages, however,[9] which have no wall surrounding them[10] must be considered as the field[11] of the land; they will have the right of redemption and must revert in the jubilee. 25:32 As for[12] the cities of the Levites, the houses in the cities which they possess,[13] the Levites must have a perpetual right of redemption. 25:33 Whatever someone among the Levites might redeem – the sale of a house which is his property in a city – must revert in the jubilee,[14] because the houses of the cities of the Levites are their property in the midst of the Israelites. 25:34 Moreover,[15] the open field areas of their cities[16] must not be sold, because that is their perpetual possession.

Debt and Slave Regulations

25:35 "'If your brother[17] becomes impoverished and is indebted to you,[18] you must support[19] him; he must live[20] with you like a foreign resident.[21] 25:36 Do not take interest or profit from him,[22] but you must fear your God and your brother must live[23] with you. 25:37 You must not lend him your money at interest and you must not sell him food for profit.[24] 25:38 I am the LORD your God who brought you out from the land of Egypt to give you the land of Canaan – to be your God.[25]

25:39 "'If your brother becomes impoverished with regard to you so that he sells himself to you, you must not subject him to slave service.[26] 25:40 He must be with you as a hired worker, as a resident foreigner;[27] he must serve with you until the year of jubilee, 25:41 but then[28] he may go free,[29] he and his children with him, and may return to his family and to the

1 tn Heb "he"; the referent (the original owner of the land) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

2 tn Heb "a house of a residence of a walled city."

3 tn Heb "shall be."

4 tn Heb "of its sale."

5 tn Heb "days its right of redemption shall be" (see B. A. Levine, Leviticus [JPSTC], 176).

6 tn Heb "until fulfilling to it a complete year.'

7 tn Heb "the house which [is] in the city which to it [is] a wall." The Kethib has לֹא (lo', "no, not") rather than לוֹ (lo, "to it") which is the Qere.

8 tn See the note on v. 23 above.

9 tn Heb "And the houses of the villages."

10 tn Heb "which there is not to them a wall."

11 tn Heb "on the field."

12 tn Heb "And."

13 tn Heb "the houses of the cities of their property."

14 tn Heb "And which he shall redeem from the Levites shall go out, sale of house and city, his property in the jubilee." Although the end of this verse is clear, the first part is notoriously difficult. There are five main views. (1) The first clause of the verse actually attaches to the previous verse, and refers to the fact that their houses retain a perpetual right of redemption (v. 32b), "which any of the Levites may exercise" (v. 33a; J. E. Hartley, Leviticus [WBC], 418, 421). (2) It refers to property that one Levite sells to another Levite, which is then redeemed by still another Levite (v. 33a). In such cases, the property reverts to the original Levite owner in the jubilee year (v. 33b; G. J. Wenham, Leviticus [NICOT], 321). (3) It refers to houses in a city that had come to be declared as a Levitical city but had original non-Levitical owners. Once the city was declared to belong to the Levites, however, an owner could only sell his house to a Levite, and he could only redeem it back from a Levite up until the time of the first jubilee after the city was declared to be a Levitical city. In this case the first part of the verse would be translated, "Such property as may be redeemed from the Levites" (NRSV, NJPS). At the first jubilee, however, all such houses became the property of the Levites (v. 33b; P. J. Budd, Leviticus [NCBC], 353). (4) It refers to property "which is appropriated from the Levites" (not "redeemed from the Levites," v. 33a) by those who have bought it or taken it as security for debts owed to them by Levites who had fallen on bad times. Again, such property reverts back to the original Levite owners at the jubilee (B. A. Levine, Leviticus [JPSTC], 177). (5) It simply refers to the fact that a Levite has the option of redeeming his house (i.e., the prefix form of the verb is taken to be subjunctive, "may or might redeem"), which he had to sell because he had fallen into debt or perhaps even become destitute. Even if he never gained the resources to do so, however, it would still revert to him in the jubilee year. The present translation is intended to reflect this latter view.

15 tn Heb "And."

16 sn This refers to the region of fields just outside and surrounding the city where cattle were kept and garden crops were grown (B. A. Levine, Leviticus [JPSTC], 177).

17 tn It is not clear to whom this refers. It is probably broader than "sibling" (cf. NRSV "any of your kin"; NLT "any of your Israelite relatives") but some English versions take it to mean "fellow Israelite" (so TEV; cf. NAB, NIV "countrymen") and others are ambiguous (cf. CEV "any of your people").

18 tn Heb "and his hand slips with you."

19 tn Heb "strengthen"; NASB "sustain."

20 tn The form וְחַי (vakhay, "and shall live") looks like the adjective "living," but the MT form is simply the same verb written as a double ayin verb (see HALOT 309 s.v. חיה qal, and GKC 218 §76.i; cf. Lev 18:5).

21 tn Heb "a foreigner and resident," which is probably to be combined (see B. A. Levine, Leviticus [JPSTC], 170-71).

22 tn The meaning of the terms rendered "interest" and "profit" is much debated (see the summaries in P. J. Budd, Leviticus [NCBC], 354-55 and B. A. Levine, Leviticus [JPSTC], 178). Verse 37, however, suggests that the first refers to a percentage of money and the second percentage of produce (see J. E. Hartley, Leviticus [WBC], 421).

23 tn In form the Hebrew term וְחֵי (v^{e}khey, "shall live") is the construct plural noun (i.e., "the life of"), but here it is used as the finite verb (cf. v. 35 and GKC 218 §76.i).

24 tn Heb "your money" and "your food." With regard to "interest" and "profit" see the note on v. 36 above.

25 tn Heb "to be to you for a God."

26 tn Heb "you shall not serve against him service of a slave." A distinction is being made here between the status of slave and indentured servant.

27 tn See the note on Lev 25:6 above.

28 tn Heb "and." The Hebrew conjunction ו (vav, "and") can be considered to have adversative force here.

29 tn Heb "may go out from you."

property of his ancestors.[1] 25:42 Since they are my servants whom I brought out from the land of Egypt, they must not be sold in a slave sale.[2] 25:43 You must not rule over him harshly,[3] but you must fear your God.

25:44 "'As for your male and female slaves[4] who may belong to you – you may buy male and female slaves from the nations all around you.[5] 25:45 Also you may buy slaves[6] from the children of the foreigners who reside with you, and from their families that are[7] with you, whom they have fathered in your land, they may become your property. 25:46 You may give them as inheritance to your children after you to possess as property. You may enslave them perpetually. However, as for your brothers the Israelites, no man may rule over his brother harshly.[8]

25:47 "'If a resident foreigner who is with you prospers[9] and your brother becomes impoverished with regard to him so that[10] he sells himself to a resident foreigner who is with you or to a member[11] of a foreigner's family, 25:48 after he has sold himself he retains a right of redemption.[12] One of his brothers may redeem him, 25:49 or his uncle or his cousin[13] may redeem him, or anyone of the rest of his blood relatives – his family[14] – may redeem him, or if[15] he prospers he may redeem himself. 25:50 He must calculate with the one who bought him the number of years[16] from the year he sold himself to him until the jubilee year, and the cost of his sale must correspond to the number of years, according to the rate of wages a hired worker would have earned while with him.[17] 25:51 If there are still many years, in keeping with them[18] he must refund most of the cost of his purchase for his redemption, 25:52 but if only a few years remain[19] until the jubilee, he must calculate for himself in keeping with the remaining years and refund it for his redemption. 25:53 He must be with the one who bought him[20] like a yearly hired worker.[21] The one who bought him[22] must not rule over him harshly in your sight. 25:54 If, however,[23] he is not redeemed in these ways, he must go free[24] in the jubilee year, he and his children with him, 25:55 because the Israelites are my own servants;[25] they are my servants whom I brought out from the land of Egypt. I am the LORD your God.

Exhortation to Obedience

26:1 "'You must not make for yourselves idols,[26] so you must not set up for yourselves a carved image or a pillar, and you must not place a sculpted stone in your land to bow down before[27] it, for I am the LORD your God. 26:2 You must keep my Sabbaths and reverence[28] my sanctuary. I am the LORD.

The Benefits of Obedience

26:3 "'If you walk in my statutes and are sure to obey my commandments,[29] 26:4 I will give you your rains in their time so that[30] the land will give its yield and the trees of the field will produce their fruit.[31] 26:5 Threshing season will extend for you until the season for harvesting grapes,[32] and the season for harvesting grapes will extend until sowing season, so[33] you

[1] tn Heb "fathers."

[2] tn Or perhaps reflexive Niphal rather than passive, "they shall not sell themselves [as in] a slave sale."

[3] tn Heb "You shall not rule in him in violence"; cf. NASB "with severity"; NIV "ruthlessly."

[4] tn Heb "And your male slave and your female slave." Smr has these as plural terms, "slaves," not singular.

[5] tn Heb " from the nations which surround you, from them you shall buy male slave and female slave."

[6] tn The word "slaves" is not in the Hebrew text, but is implied here.

[7] tn Heb "family which is" (i.e., singular rather than plural).

[8] tn Heb "and your brothers, the sons of Israel, a man in his brother you shall not rule in him in violence."

[9] tn Heb "And if the hand of a foreigner and resident with you reaches" (cf. v. 26 for this idiom).

[10] tn Heb "and." The Hebrew conjunction ו (vav, "and") can be considered to have resultative force here.

[11] tn Heb "offshoot, descendant."

[12] tn Heb "right of redemption shall be to him."

[13] tn Heb "the son of his uncle."

[14] tn Heb "or from the remainder of his flesh from his family."

[15] tc The LXX, followed by the Syriac, actually has "if," which is not in the MT.

[16] tn Heb "the years."

[17] tn Heb "as days of a hired worker he shall be with him." For this and the following verses see the explanation in P. J. Budd, Leviticus (NCBC), 358-59.

[18] tn Heb "to the mouth of them."

[19] tn Heb "but if a little remains in the years."

[20] tn Heb "be with him"; the referent (the one who bought him) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[21] tn Heb "As a hired worker year in year."

[22] tn Heb "He"; the referent (the one who bought him) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[23] tn Heb "And if."

[24] tn Heb "go out."

[25] tn Heb "because to me the sons of Israel are servants."

[26] sn For the literature regarding the difficult etymology and meaning of the term for "idols" (אֱלִילִם, 'elilim), see the literature cited in the note on Lev 19:4. It appears to be a diminutive play on words with אֵל ('el, "god, God") and, perhaps at the same time, recalls a common Semitic word for "worthless, weak, powerless, nothingness." Snaith suggests a rendering of "worthless godlings."

[27] tn Heb "on." The "sculpted stone" appears to be some sort of stone with images carved into (see B. A. Levine, Leviticus [JPSTC], 181, and J. E. Hartley, Leviticus [WBC], 449).

[28] tn Heb "and my sanctuary you shall fear." Cf. NCV "respect"; CEV "honor."

[29] tn Heb "and my commandments you shall keep and do them." This appears to be a kind of verbal hendiadys, where the first verb is a modifier of the action of the second verb (see GKC 386 §120.d, although שָׁמַר [shamar, "to keep"] is not cited there; cf. Lev 20:8; 25:18, etc.).

[30] tn Heb "and." The Hebrew conjunction ו (vav, "and") can be considered to have resultative force here.

[31] tn Heb "the tree of the field will give its fruit." As a collective singular this has been translated as plural.

[32] tn Heb "will reach for you the vintage season."

will eat your bread until you are satisfied,[1] and you will live securely in your land. 26:6 I will grant peace in the land so that[2] you will lie down to sleep without anyone terrifying you.[3] I will remove harmful animals[4] from the land, and no sword of war[5] will pass through your land. 26:7 You will pursue your enemies and they will fall before you by the sword.[6] 26:8 Five of you will pursue a hundred, and a hundred of you will pursue ten thousand, and your enemies will fall before you by the sword. 26:9 I will turn to you, make you fruitful, multiply you, and maintain[7] my covenant with you. 26:10 You will still be eating stored produce from the previous year[8] and will have to clean out what is stored from the previous year to make room for new.[9]

26:11 "'I will put my tabernacle[10] in your midst and I will not abhor you.[11] 26:12 I will walk among you, and I will be your God and you will be my people. 26:13 I am the LORD your God who brought you out from the land of Egypt, from being their slaves,[12] and I broke the bars of your yoke and caused you to walk upright.[13]

The Consequences of Disobedience

26:14 "'If, however,[14] you do not obey me and keep[15] all these commandments – 26:15 if you reject my statutes and abhor my regulations so that you do not keep[16] all my commandments and you break my covenant – 26:16 I for my part[17] will do this to you: I will inflict horror on you, consumption and fever, which diminish eyesight and drain away the vitality of life.[18] You will sow your seed in vain because[19] your enemies will eat it.[20] 26:17 I will set my face against you. You will be struck down before your enemies, those who hate you will rule over you, and you will flee when there is no one pursuing you.

26:18 "'If, in spite of all these things,[21] you do not obey me, I will discipline you seven times more on account of your sins.[22] 26:19 I will break your strong pride and make your sky like iron and your land like bronze. 26:20 Your strength will be used up in vain, your land will not give its yield, and the trees of the land[23] will not produce their fruit.

26:21 "'If you walk in hostility against me[24] and are not willing to obey me, I will increase your affliction[25] seven times according to your sins. 26:22 I will send the wild animals[26] against you and they will bereave you of your children,[27] annihilate your cattle, and diminish your population[28] so that your roads will become deserted.

26:23 "'If in spite of these things[29] you do not allow yourselves to be disciplined and you walk in hostility against me,[30] 26:24 I myself will also walk in hostility against you and strike you[31] seven times on account of your sins. 26:25 I will bring on you an avenging sword, a covenant vengeance.[32] Although[33] you will gather together into your cities, I will send pestilence among you and you will be given into enemy

1 tn Heb "to satisfaction"; KJV, ASV, NASB "to the full."

2 tn Heb "and." The Hebrew conjunction ו (vav, "and") can be considered to have resultative force here.

3 tn Heb "and there will be no one who terrifies." The words "to sleep" have been supplied in the translation for clarity.

4 tn Heb "harmful animal," singular, but taken here as a collective plural (so almost all English versions).

5 tn Heb "no sword"; the words "of war" are supplied in the translation to indicate what the metaphor of the sword represents.

6 tn Heb "to the sword."

7 tn Heb "cause to arise," but probably used here for the LORD's intention of confirming or maintaining the covenant commitment made at Sinai. Cf. KJV "establish"; NASB "will confirm"; NAB "carry out"; NIV "will keep."

8 tn Heb "old [produce] growing old."

9 tn Heb "and old from the presence of new you will bring out."

10 tn LXX codexes Vaticanus and Alexandrinus have "my covenant" rather than "my tabernacle." Cf. NAB, NASB, NRSV "my dwelling."

11 tn Heb "and my soul [נֶפֶשׁ, nefesh] will not abhor you."

12 tn Heb "from being to them slaves."

13 tn In other words, to walk as free people and not as slaves. Cf. NIV "with (+ your CEV, NLT) heads held high"; NCV "proudly."

14 tn Heb "And if."

15 tn Heb "and do not do."

16 tn Heb "to not do."

17 tn Or "I also" (see HALOT 76 s.v. אַף 6.b).

18 tn Heb "soul." These expressions may refer either to the physical effects of consumption and fever as the rendering in the text suggests (e.g., J. E. Hartley, Leviticus [WBC], 452, 454, "diminishing eyesight and loss of appetite"), or perhaps the more psychological effects, "which exhausts the eyes" because of anxious hope "and causes depression" (Heb "causes soul [נֶפֶשׁ, nefesh] to pine away"), e.g., B. A. Levine, Leviticus (JPSTC), 185.

19 tn Heb "and." The Hebrew conjunction ו (vav, "and") can be considered to have causal force here.

20 tn That is, "your enemies will eat" the produce that grows from the sown seed.

21 tn Heb "And if until these."

22 tn Heb "I will add to discipline you seven [times] on your sins."

23 tn Heb "the tree of the land will not give its fruit." The collective singular has been translated as a plural. Tg. Onq., some medieval Hebrew MSS, Smr, LXX, and Tg. Ps.-J. have "the field" as in v. 4, rather than "the land."

24 tn Heb "hostile with me," but see the added preposition בְּ (bet) on the phrase "in hostility" in v. 24 and 27.

25 tn Heb "your blow, stroke"; cf. TEV "punishment"; NLT "I will inflict you with seven more disasters."

26 tn Heb "the animal of the field." This collective singular has been translated as a plural. The expression "animal of the field" refers to a wild (i.e., nondomesticated) animal.

27 tn The words "of your children" are not in the Hebrew text, but are implied.

28 tn Heb "and diminish you."

29 tn Heb "And if in these."

30 tn Heb "with me," but see the added preposition בְּ (bet) on the phrase "in hostility" in vv. 24 and 27.

31 tn Heb "and I myself will also strike you."

32 tn Heb "vengeance of covenant"; cf. NAB "the avenger of my covenant."

33 tn Heb "and." The Hebrew conjunction ו (vav, "and") has a concessive force in this context.

hands.[1] 26:26 When I break off your supply of bread,[2] ten women will bake your bread in one oven; they will ration your bread by weight,[3] and you will eat and not be satisfied.

26:27 "'If in spite of this[4] you do not obey me but walk in hostility against me,[5] 26:28 I will walk in hostile rage against you[6] and I myself will also discipline you seven times on account of your sins. 26:29 You will eat the flesh of your sons and the flesh of your daughters.[7] 26:30 I will destroy your high places and cut down your incense altars,[8] and I will stack your dead bodies on top of the lifeless bodies of your idols.[9] I will abhor you.[10] 26:31 I will lay your cities waste[11] and make your sanctuaries desolate, and I will refuse to smell your soothing aromas. 26:32 I myself will make the land desolate and your enemies who live in it will be appalled. 26:33 I will scatter you among the nations and unsheathe the sword[12] after you, so your land will become desolate and your cities will become a waste.

26:34 "'Then the land will make up for[13] its Sabbaths all the days it lies desolate while you are in the land of your enemies; then the land will rest and make up its Sabbaths. 26:35 All the days of the desolation it will have the rest it did not have[14] on your Sabbaths when you lived on it.

26:36 "'As for[15] the ones who remain among you, I will bring despair into their hearts in the lands of their enemies. The sound of a blowing leaf will pursue them, and they will flee as one who flees the sword and fall down even though there is no pursuer. 26:37 They will stumble over each other as those who flee before a sword, though[16] there is no pursuer, and there will be no one to take a stand[17] for you before your enemies. 26:38 You will perish among the nations; the land of your enemies will consume you.

Restoration through Confession and Repentance

26:39 "'As for the ones who remain among you, they will rot away because of[18] their iniquity in the lands of your enemies, and they will also rot away because of their ancestors'[19] iniquities which are with them. 26:40 However, when[20] they confess their iniquity and their ancestors' iniquity which they committed by trespassing against me,[21] by which they also walked[22] in hostility against me[23] 26:41 (and I myself will walk in hostility against them and bring them into the land of their enemies), and[24] then their uncircumcised hearts become humbled and they make up for[25] their iniquity, 26:42 I will remember my covenant with Jacob and also my covenant with Isaac and also my covenant with Abraham,[26] and I will remember the land. 26:43 The land will be abandoned by them[27] in order that it may make up for[28] its Sabbaths while it is made desolate[29] without them,[30] and they will

[1] tn Heb "in hand of enemy," but Tg. Ps.-J. and Tg. Neof. have "in the hands of your enemies" (J. E. Hartley, Leviticus [WBC], 454).

[2] tn Heb "When I break to you staff of bread" (KJV, ASV, and NASB all similar).

[3] tn Heb "they will return your bread in weight."

[4] tn Heb "And if in this."

[5] tn Heb "with me."

[6] tn Heb "in rage of hostility with you"; NASB "with wrathful hostility"; NRSV "I will continue hostile to you in fury"; CEV "I'll get really furious."

[7] tn Heb "and the flesh of your daughters you will eat." The phrase "you will eat" has not been repeated in the translation for stylistic reasons.

[8] sn Regarding these cultic installations, see the remarks in B. A. Levine, Leviticus (JPSTC), 188, and R. E. Averbeck, NIDOTTE 2:903. The term rendered "incense altars" might better be rendered "sanctuaries [of foreign deities]" or "stelae."

[9] tn The translation reflects the Hebrew wordplay "your corpses...the corpses of your idols." Since idols, being lifeless, do not really have "corpses," the translation uses "dead bodies" for people and "lifeless bodies" for the idols.

[10] tn Heb "and my soul will abhor you."

[11] tn Heb "And I will give your cities a waste"; NLT "make your cities desolate."

[12] tn Heb "and I will empty sword" (see HALOT 1228 s.v. 3 ריק).

[13] tn There are two Hebrew roots רָצָה (ratsah), one meaning "to be pleased with; to take pleasure" (HALOT 1280-81 s.v. רצה; cf. "enjoy" in NASB, NIV, NRSV, and J. E. Hartley, Leviticus [WBC], 452), and the other meaning "to restore" (HALOT 1281-82 s.v. II רצה; cf. NAB "retrieve" and B. A. Levine, Leviticus [JPSTC], 189).

[14] tn Heb "it shall rest which it did not rest."

[15] tn Heb "And."

[16] tn Heb "and." The Hebrew conjunction ו (vav, "and") is used in a concessive sense here.

[17] tn The term rendered "to stand up" is a noun, not an infinitive. It occurs only here and appears to designate someone who would take a powerful stand for them against their enemies.

[18] tn Heb "in" (so KJV, ASV; also later in this verse).

[19] tn Heb "fathers'" (also in the following verse).

[20] tn Heb "And." Many English versions take this to be a conditional clause ("if...") though there is no conditional particle (see, e.g., NASB, NIV, NRSV; but see the very different rendering in B. A. Levine, Leviticus [JPSTC], 190). The temporal translation offered here ("when") takes into account the particle אָז ('az, "then"), which occurs twice in v. 41. The obvious contextual contrast between vv. 39 and 40 is expressed by "however" in the translation.

[21] tn Heb "in their trespassing which they trespassed in me." See the note on Lev 5:15, although the term is used in a more technical sense there in relation to the "guilt offering."

[22] tn Heb "and also which they walked."

[23] tn Heb "with me."

[24] tn Heb "or then," although the LXX has "then" and the Syriac "and then."

[25] tn Heb "and then they make up for." On the verb "make up for" see the note on v. 34 above.

[26] tn Heb "my covenant with Abraham I will remember." The phrase "I will remember" has not been repeated in the translation for stylistic reasons.

[27] tn Heb "from them." The preposition "from" refers here to the agent of the action (J. E. Hartley, Leviticus [WBC], 455).

[28] tn The jussive form of the verb with the simple vav (ו) here calls for a translation that expresses purpose.

[29] tn The verb is the Hophal infinitive construct with the third feminine singular suffix (GKC 182 §67.y; cf. v. 34).

[30] tn Heb "from them."

make up for their iniquity because[1] they have rejected my regulations and have abhorred[2] my statutes. 26:44 In spite of this, however, when they are in the land of their enemies I will not reject them and abhor them to make a complete end of them, to break my covenant with them, for I am the LORD their God. 26:45 I will remember for them the covenant with their ancestors[3] whom I brought out from the land of Egypt in the sight of the nations to be their God. I am the LORD.'"

Summary Colophon

26:46 These are the statutes, regulations, and instructions which the LORD established[4] between himself and the Israelites at Mount Sinai through[5] Moses.

Redemption of Vowed People

27:1 The LORD spoke to Moses: 27:2 "Speak to the Israelites and tell them, 'When a man makes a special votive offering[6] based on the conversion value of persons to the LORD,[7] 27:3 the conversion value of the male[8] from twenty years old up to sixty years old[9] is fifty shekels by the standard of the sanctuary shekel.[10] 27:4 If the person is a female, the conversion value is thirty shekels. 27:5 If the person is from five years old up to twenty years old, the conversion value of the male is twenty shekels, and for the female ten shekels. 27:6 If the person is one month old up to five years old, the conversion value of the male is five shekels of silver,[11] and for the female the conversion value is three shekels of silver. 27:7 If the person is from sixty years old and older, if he is a male the conversion value is fifteen shekels, and for the female ten shekels. 27:8 If he is too poor to pay the conversion value, he must stand the person before the priest and the priest will establish his conversion value;[12] according to what the man who made the vow can afford,[13] the priest will establish his conversion value.

Redemption of Vowed Animals

27:9 "'If what is vowed is a kind of animal from which an offering may be presented[14] to the LORD, anything which he gives to the LORD from this kind of animal[15] will be holy. 27:10 He must not replace or exchange it, good for bad or bad for good, and if he does indeed exchange one animal for another animal, then both the original animal[16] and its substitute will be holy. 27:11 If what is vowed is an unclean animal from which an offering must not be presented to the LORD, then he must stand the animal before the priest, 27:12 and the priest will establish its conversion value,[17] whether good or bad. According to the assessed conversion value of the priest, thus it will be. 27:13 If, however, the person who made the vow redeems the animal,[18] he must add one fifth to[19] its conversion value.

Redemption of Vowed Houses

27:14 "'If a man consecrates his house as holy to the LORD, the priest will establish its conversion value, whether good or bad. Just as the priest establishes its conversion value, thus it

[1] tn Heb "because and in because," a double expression, which is used only here and in Ezek 13:10 (without the vav) for emphasis (GKC 492 §158.b).

[2] tn Heb "and their soul has abhorred."

[3] tn Heb "covenant of former ones."

sn For similar expressions referring back to the ancestors who refused to follow the stipulations of the Mosaic covenant see, for example, Deut 19:14, Jer 11:10, and Ps 79:8 (see B. A. Levine, Leviticus [JPSTC], 192, and J. E. Hartley, Leviticus [WBC], 471).

[4] tn Heb "gave" (so NLT); KJV, ASV, NCV "made."

[5] tn Heb "by the hand of" (so KJV).

[6] tn Cf. the note on Lev 22:21. Some take this as an expression for fulfilling a vow, "to fulfill a vow" (e.g., HALOT 927-28 s.v. פלא piel and NASB; cf. NRSV "in fulfillment of a vow") or, alternatively, "to make a vow" or "for making a vow" (HALOT 928 s.v. פלא piel [II פלא]). Perhaps it refers to the making a special vow, from the verb פָּלָא (pala', "to be wonderful; to be remarkable"), cf. Milgrom, Numbers [JPSTC], 44. B. A. Levine, Leviticus (JPSTC), 151 and 193, suggests that this is a special term for "setting aside a votive offering" (related to פָּלַח, palah, "to set aside"). In general, the point of the expression seems to be that this sacrifice is a special gift to God that arose out of special circumstances in the life of the worshiper.

[7] tn Heb "in your valuation, persons to the LORD," but "in your valuation" is a frozen form and, therefore, the person ("your") does not figure into the translation (see J. E. Hartley, Leviticus [WBC], 73). Instead of offering a person to the LORD one could redeem that person with the appropriate amount of money delineated in the following verses (see the note on Lev 5:15 above and the explanation in Hartley, 480-81).

[8] tn Heb "your conversion value shall be [for] the male."

[9] tn Heb "from a son of twenty years and until a son of sixty years."

[10] tn See the note on Lev 5:15.

[11] tn Heb "five shekels silver."

[12] tn Heb "and the priest shall cause him to be valued."

[13] tn Heb "on the mouth which the hand of the one who vowed reaches."

[14] tn Heb "which they may present from it an offering." The plural active verb is sometimes best rendered in the passive (GKC 460 §144.f, g). Some medieval Hebrew MSS, Smr, a MS of the Targum, and the Vulgate all have the singular verb instead (cf. similarly v. 11).

[15] tn Heb "from it." The masculine suffix "it" here is used for the feminine in the MT, but one medieval Hebrew MS, some MSS of Smr, the LXX, and the Syriac have the feminine. The referent (this kind of animal) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[16] tn Heb "it and its substitute." The referent (the original animal offered) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[17] tn Heb "and the priest shall cause it to be valued." See the note on v. 8 above.

[18] tn Heb "And if redeeming [infinitive absolute] he redeems it [finite verb]." For the infinitive absolute used to highlight contrast rather than emphasis see GKC 343 §113.p. The referent of "he" (the person who made the vow) and "it" (the animal) have both been specified in the translation for clarity.

[19] tn Heb "on," meaning "on top of, in addition to" (likewise in v. 15).

will stand.[1] 27:15 If the one who consecrates it redeems his house, he must add to it one fifth of its conversion value in silver, and it will belong to him.[2]

Redemption of Vowed Fields

27:16 "'If a man consecrates to the LORD some of his own landed property, the conversion value must be calculated in accordance with the amount of seed needed to sow it,[3] a homer of barley seed being priced at fifty shekels of silver.[4] 27:17 If he consecrates his field in the jubilee year,[5] the conversion value will stand, 27:18 but if[6] he consecrates his field after the jubilee, the priest will calculate the price[7] for him according to the years that are left until the next jubilee year, and it will be deducted from the conversion value. 27:19 If, however, the one who consecrated the field redeems it,[8] he must add to it one fifth of the conversion price[9] and it will belong to him.[10] 27:20 If he does not redeem the field, but sells[11] the field to someone else, he may never redeem it. 27:21 When it reverts[12] in the jubilee, the field will be holy to the LORD like a permanently dedicated field;[13] it will become the priest's property.[14]

27:22 "'If he consecrates to the LORD a field he has purchased,[15] which is not part of his own landed property, 27:23 the priest will calculate for him the amount of its conversion value until the jubilee year, and he must pay[16] the conversion value on that jubilee day as something that is holy to the LORD. 27:24 In the jubilee year the field will return to the one from whom he bought it, the one to whom it belongs as landed property. 27:25 Every conversion value must be calculated by the standard of the sanctuary shekel;[17] twenty gerahs to the shekel.

Redemption of the Firstborn

27:26 "'Surely no man may consecrate a firstborn that already belongs to the LORD as a firstborn among the animals; whether it is an ox or a sheep, it belongs to the LORD.[18] 27:27 If, however,[19] it is among the unclean animals, he may ransom it according to[20] its conversion value and must add one fifth to it, but if it is not redeemed it must be sold according to its conversion value.

Things Permanently Dedicated to the Lord

27:28 "'Surely anything which a man permanently dedicates to the LORD[21] from all that belongs to him, whether from people, animals, or his landed property, must be neither sold nor redeemed; anything permanently dedicated is most holy to the LORD. 27:29 Any human being who is permanently dedicated[22] must not be ransomed; such a person must be put to death.

Redemption of the Tithe

27:30 "'Any tithe[23] of the land, from the grain of the land or from the fruit of the trees, belongs to the LORD; it is holy to the LORD. 27:31 If a man redeems[24] part of his tithe, however, he must add one fifth to it.[25] 27:32 All the tithe of herd or flock, everything which passes under the rod, the tenth one will be holy to the LORD.[26] 27:33 The owner[27] must not examine the animals to distinguish between good and bad, and he must not exchange it. If, however, he

[1] tn The expression "it shall stand" may be a technical term for "it shall be legally valid"; cf. NLT "assessment will be final."

[2] tn Heb "and it shall be to him."

[3] tn Heb "a conversion value shall be to the mouth of its seed."

[4] tn Heb "seed of a homer of barley in fifty shekels of silver."

[5] tn Heb "from the year of the jubilee." For the meaning of "jubilee," see the note on Lev 25:10 above.

[6] tn Heb "And if." The Hebrew conjunction ו (vav, "and") can be considered to have adversative force here.

[7] tn Heb "the silver."

[8] tn Heb "And if redeeming [infinitive absolute] he redeems [finite verb] the field, the one who consecrated it." For the infinitive absolute used to highlight contrast rather than emphasis see GKC 343 §113.p.

[9] tn Heb "the silver of the conversion value."

[10] tn Heb "and it shall rise to him." See HALOT 1087 s.v. קוּם 7 for the rendering offered here, but see also the note on the end of v. 14 above (cf. J. E. Hartley, Leviticus [WBC], 476, 478).

[11] tn Heb "and if he sells."

[12] tn Heb "When it goes out" (cf. Lev 25:25-34).

[13] tn Heb "like the field of the permanent dedication." The Hebrew word חֵרֶם (kherem) is a much discussed term. In this and the following verses it refers in a general way to the fact that something is permanently devoted to the LORD and therefore cannot be redeemed (cf. v. 20b). See J. A. Naudé, NIDOTTE 2:276-77; N. Lohfink, TDOT 5:180-99, esp. pp. 184, 188, and 198-99; and the numerous explanations in J. E. Hartley, Leviticus (WBC), 483-85.

[14] tn Heb "to the priest it shall be his property."

[15] tn Heb "his field of purchase," which is to be distinguished from his own ancestral "landed property" (cf. v. 16 above).

[17] tn See the note on Lev 5:15.

[18] tn Heb "to the LORD it is."

[20] tn Heb "in" or "by."

[21] tn Heb "Surely, any permanently dedicated [thing] which a man shall permanently dedicate to the LORD." The Hebrew term חֵרֶם (kherem) refers to things that are devoted permanently to the LORD (see the note on v. 21 above).

[22] tn Heb "permanently dedicated from among men."

[23] tn On the "tithe" system in Israel, see R. E. Averbeck, NIDOTTE 2:1035-55 and esp. pp. 1041-42 on Lev 27:30-33.

[24] tn Heb "And if redeeming [infinitive absolute] a man redeems [finite verb]." For the infinitive absolute used to highlight contrast rather than emphasis see GKC 343 §113.p.

[25] tn Heb "its one fifth on it."

[26] sn The tithed animal was the tenth one that passed under the shepherd's rod or staff as they were being counted (see J. E. Hartley, Leviticus [WBC], 485, and B. A. Levine, Leviticus [JPSTC], 200).

[27] tn Heb "he"; the referent (the owner of the animal) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

does exchange it,[1] both the original animal[2] and its substitute will be holy.[3] It must not be redeemed.'"

27:34 These are the commandments which the LORD commanded Moses to tell the Israelites[4] at Mount Sinai.

[1] tn Heb "And if exchanging [infinitive absolute] he exchanges it [finite verb]." For the infinitive absolute used to highlight contrast rather than emphasis see GKC 343 §113.p.

[2] tn Heb "it and its substitute." The referent (the original animal offered) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[3] tn Heb "it shall be and its substitute shall be holy."

[4] tn Most of the commentaries and English versions translate, "which the LORD commanded Moses for the children of Israel." The preposition אֶל ('el), however, does not usually mean "for." In this book it is commonly used when the LORD commands Moses "to speak [un]to" a person or group of persons (see, e.g., Lev 1:2; 4:2, etc.). The translation "to tell" here reflects this pattern in the book of Leviticus.

[1] sn The book of Numbers is the fourth book of the Pentateuch, traditionally called the Law of Moses. It provides a record of the experience of the Israelites during the wilderness wanderings, and records the laws for the camp as they traveled from place to place. The book focuses on the difficulties of the Israelites due to their lack of faith, rebellion, and apostasy. It also records God's protection of his people from opposition from without. The book makes a fitting contribution to the collection of holy writings as it shows the spiritual and physical progression of the company of the redeemed toward the promised land. The book has to be studied in conjunction with the other books of the Pentateuch. It builds on the promises made to Abraham in Genesis and the redemption from bondage in Exodus; it completes the cultic instructions for Israel that were laid down in Leviticus, and it concerns the worship in and the movement of the tabernacle that was built in Exodus. But the information here, both legal and historical, was not the major concern in those books. The book gets its title in English (following the Greek tradition) from the two censuses taken of the people, one at the beginning of the wanderings and the other at the end (although the Hebrew title is taken from the beginning of the book, בַּמִּדְבָּר [bammidbar], "in the wilderness"). In these lists particular emphasis is given to the leaders of the clans, a theme that will continue in the book as the focus is on how the leaders function in all the trials and temptations of the journey. The material in this book is essentially a theological interpretation of historical events, and as such it stands as an integral part of the revelation of God. In the study of the book of Numbers, when these issues of the nature of the text are significant to the interpretation and acceptance of the text, the notes will comment on them briefly. The indication at the outset of the book is that Moses had a good number of people who were able to help him compile the statistics and the facts of the wandering community. In Num 11:16-18 there is a group of leaders known as שֹׁטְרִים (shotᵉrim). This term was used in Exod 5:16-19 to describe the officers or foremen of the Israelites. They were appointed supervisors of the clans by Moses, and by the time of Joshua (Josh 1:10) they were a literary guild. The Hebrew word, cognate with Akkadian sataru, means "to write." These people were to Israel what the scribes and chroniclers were to the pagan nations. They assisted Moses and the priests in their keeping of records. So no matter what they were called from time to time, there was a group of literate people who could keep the records and preserve the information from the very beginning. Their work matches the activities of scribes in the ancient world who used all the literary devices to preserve the material. There is no reason to doubt that the events recorded were attested to and preserved by such eyewitnesses. But their work would have been essentially to serve the leader, Moses. The book essentially follows the order of the events chronologically, more or less. Where it departs from that order it does so for literary or theological reasons. At the center of the theological concern is the tabernacle, its significance to the faith, and therefore the care in using it and in moving it. Its importance explains the presence and the arrangement of the ritual laws. With the records and statistics provided for him, Moses could then introduce into the record the great events in the wilderness experience of Israel, which were to become warnings and encouragements for all time. Most of this material comes from the two years at the beginning of the experience and the two years at the end. But this itself may be a literary device (merism) to show the nature of the wanderings throughout. The Hebrew text of the book of Numbers has been preserved fairly well. It has not been preserved as well as Leviticus, which was most important to the ministry of the priests and Levites. But in comparison with some of the prophetic writings, Numbers represents a well-preserved text. The problems will be discussed in the relevant passages. So Numbers is essentially a part of the unfolding revelation of the Torah, the Law. It shows God's faithfulness to his covenant plan and to his covenant people, but it also shows the problems incurred by the people's lack of faith and obedience. The book focuses frequently on the nature of the holy LORD God, for at the center of all this material is the person and the works of the LORD. This provided the standard for the faith and practice of the people. For more information on chapter one, see W. F. Albright, "The Administrative Divisions of Israel and Judah," JPOS 5 (1925): 17-54; A. Cody, A History of Old Testament Priesthood; A. [2] sn The holy name is "Yahweh." This is the ancient name for the God of the covenant community. The name was explained or interpreted by Moses for the Israelites by the etymological connection to the verb "to be." God said that its significance was "I AM that I AM" (אֶהְיֶה אֲשֶׁר אֶהְיֶה, 'ehyeh 'aser 'ehyeh) using the first person of the verb; the name, the third person of the verb, would therefore mean "He is." The name indicates that God is the sovereign LORD of creation, the eternal God, the covenant Lord; he is sovereignly independent of all creation, but he is intimately involved with all his people. Most English translations do not use it, but follow the Jewish custom of using substitute words for the holy name, such as "the LORD," "the Eternal One," etc.

[4] sn This was one of several names by which the tabernacle was known. This was the tent with its furnishings that the Israelites built according to the book of Exodus. While that tabernacle was being built, the LORD met with Moses in a tent of meeting nearby (Exod 33:7), but when the project was finished, the title was transferred to the tabernacle. It may be that the expression "tent of meeting" refers to the inner tabernacle where God revealed himself to Moses and Aaron, and the word "tabernacle" refers to the whole shrine, the curtained structure with all its contents. This would mean that God addressed Moses from between the cherubim in the wilderness[1] of Sinai[2] on the first day of the second month of the second year after[3] the Israelites[4] departed from the land of Egypt.[5] He said:[6] 1:2 "Take a census[7] of the entire[8] Israelite community[9] by their clans and families,[10] counting the name of every individual male.[11] 1:3 You and Aaron are to number[12] all in Israel who can serve in the army,[13] those who are[14] twenty years old or older,[15] by their divisions.[16] 1:4 And to help you[17] there is to be a man from each[18] tribe, each man[19] the head[20] of his family.[21] 1:5 Now these are the names of the men who are to help[22] you:

1:7 from Judah, Nahshon[25] son of Amminadab;

holy of holies (see R. A. Cole, Exodus [TOTC], 191). The point is clear, though – the shrine was functioning as the sign of God's actual presence and leadership among his people.

[1] sn The English word "wilderness" is workable for the Hebrew term, because it describes land that is wild. The term "desert" works if one thinks of land deserted by people. But to many modern readers "desert" suggests the idea of an arid land without growth. The word must not be pressed to mean only sand dunes; it describes land that has rocks, canyons, oases, shrubs and trees occasionally, some animal life, and of course sand.

[2] sn The exact location of Mount Sinai has been debated for some time. The traditional view from very early times is that it is located in the south, Jebel Musa, south of the monastery of St. Catherine. The other plausible suggestion is Ras es-Safsafeh, which is on the other end of the valley near the monastery. The mountain is also called Horeb in the Bible. The wilderness of Sinai would refer to the large plain that is at the base of the mountain. See further G. E. Wright, IDB 4:376-78; and G. I. Davies, The Way of the Wilderness.

[3] tn The construction uses the infinitive construct of יָצָא (yatsa', "to go out"), with a suffix serving as the subjective genitive, and the lamed preposition providing the temporal indication: "according to the going out of them." The Israelites are clearly intended as the subject.

[4] tn Heb "they"; the referent (the Israelites) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[5] sn This means that the Israelites had spent nine months at Sinai, because they had arrived there in the third month following the exodus. This account does not follow a strict chronology (see Num 9:1). The difference of one month in the narrative is not a critical difference, but a literary general reference. Here begins a new section of major importance to the future of the nation – the numbering for war and for settlement.

[6] tn Heb "saying." A new sentence was started here in the English translation for stylistic reasons.

[7] tn The construction is literally "lift up the head[s]," (שְׂאוּ אֶת־רֹאשׁ, se'u 'et-ro'sh). This idiom for taking a census occurs elsewhere (e.g., Exod 30:12; Num 26:2). The idea is simply that of counting heads to arrive at the base for the standing army. This is a different event than the one recorded in Exod 30:11-16, which was taken for a different purpose altogether. The verb is plural, indicating that Moses had help in taking the census.

[9] tn Heb "the congregation of Israel."

[10] tn The tribe (מַטֶּה, matteh or שֵׁבֶט, shevet) is the main category. The family groups or clans (מִשְׁפָּחוֹת, mishpekhot) and the households or families (בֵּית אָבֹת, bet 'avot) were sub-divisions of the tribe.

[11] tn This clause simply has "in/with the number of the names of every male with respect to their skulls [individually]." Counting heads, or every skull, simply meant that each person was to be numbered in the census. Except for the Levites, no male was exempt from the count.

[12] tn The verb (פָּקַד, paqad) means "to visit, appoint, muster, number." The word is a common one in scripture. It has as its basic meaning the idea of "determining the destiny" of someone, by appointing, mustering, or visiting. When God "visits," it is a divine intervention for either blessing or cursing. Here it is the taking of a census for war (see G. André, Determining the Destiny [ConBOT], 16).

[13] tn The construction uses the participle "going out" followed by the noun "army." It describes everyone "going out in a military group," meaning serving in the army. It was the duty of every able-bodied Israelite to serve in this "peoples" army. There were probably exemptions for the infirm or the crippled, but every male over twenty was chosen. For a discussion of warfare, see P. C. Craigie, The Problem of War in the Old Testament, and P. D. Miller, "The Divine Council and the Prophetic Call to War," VT 18 (1968): 100-107.

[15] tn Heb "and up."

[16] tn The noun (צָבָא, tsava') means "army" or "military group." But the word can also be used for nonmilitary divisions of labor (Num 4:3).

[17] tn Heb "and with you."

[18] tn The construction uses the noun in a distributive sense: "a man, a man for a tribe," meaning a man for each tribe.

[19] tn The clause expresses a distributive function, "a man" means "each man."

[20] sn See J. R. Bartlett, "The Use of the Word ראש as a Title in the Old Testament," VT 19 (1969): 1-10.

[21] tn Heb "the house of his fathers."

[22] tn The verb is עָמַד ('amad, "to stand"). It literally then is, "who will stand with you." They will help in the count, but they will also serve as leaders as the camp moves from place to place.

[23] tn The preposition lamed (ל) prefixed to the name could be taken in the sense of "from," but could also be "with regard to" (specification).

[24] sn This name and the name Ammishaddai below have the theophoric element (שַׁדַּי, shadday, "the Almighty"). It would mean "the Almighty is my rock"; the later name means "the Almighty is my kinsman." Other theophoric elements in the passage are "father," "brother," and "God."

[25] sn Nahshon was an ancestor of Boaz and David, and therefore of Christ (Luke 3:32-33).

[26] tc There is a textual difficulty with this verb. The Greek form uses r and not d, giving the name Ra'oul. There is even some variation in the Hebrew traditions, but BHS (following the Leningrad codex of A.D. 1008) has preferred the name Deuel.

The Census of the Tribes

1:16 These were the ones chosen[1] from the community, leaders[2] of their ancestral tribes.[3] They were the heads of the thousands[4] of Israel.

1:17 So Moses and Aaron took these men who had been mentioned specifically by name, 1:18 and they assembled[5] the entire community together on the first day of the second month.[6] Then the people recorded their ancestry[7] by their clans and families, and the men who were twenty years old or older were listed[8] by name individually, 1:19 just as the LORD had commanded Moses. And so he numbered them in the wilderness of Sinai.

1:20 And they were as follows:

The descendants of Reuben, the firstborn son of Israel: According to the records of their clans and families, all the males twenty years old or older who could serve in the army were listed by name individually. 1:21 Those of them who were numbered[9] from the tribe of Reuben were 46,500.[10]

1 tc The form has a Kethib-Qere problem, but the sentence calls for the Qere, the passive participle in the construct – "the called of...." These men were God's choice, and not Moses', or their own choice. He announced who they would be, and then named them. So they were truly "called" (קְרָא, qara'). The other reading is probably due to a copyist's error.

2 tn The word is נָשִׂיא (nasi', "exalted one, prince, leader"). Cf. KJV, ASV, NAB "princes." These were men apparently revered or respected in their tribes, and so the clear choice to assist Moses with the leadership. See further, E. A. Speiser, "Background and Function of the Biblical nāśî'," CBQ 25 (1963): 111-17.

3 tn Heb "exalted ones of the tribes of their fathers." The earlier group of elders was chosen by Moses at the advice of his father-in-law. This group represents the few leaders of the tribes that were chosen by God, a more literate group apparently, who were the forerunners of the שֹׁטְרִים (shott^{e}rim).

4 tc The Hebrew text has אַלְפֵי ('alfey, "thousands of"). There is some question over this reading in the MT, however. The community groups that have these leaders were larger tribes, but there is little certainty about the size of the divisions.

5 tn The verb is the Hiphil of the root קָהַל (qahal), meaning "to call, assemble"; the related noun is an "assembly."

6 tc The LXX adds "of the second year."

7 tn The verb is the Hitpael preterite form וַיִּתְיַלְּדוּ (vayyityal-du). The cognate noun תּוֹלְדוֹת (tol^{e}dot) is the word that means "genealogies, family records, records of ancestry." The root is יָלַד (yalad, "to bear, give birth to"). Here they were recording their family connections, and not, of course, producing children. The verbal stem seems to be both declarative and reflexive.

8 tn The verb is supplied. The Hebrew text simply has "in/with the number of names of those who are twenty years old and higher according to their skulls."

9 tn Heb "those numbered of them." The form is פְּקֻדֵיהֶם (p^{e}qudehem), the passive participle with the pronominal suffix. This indicates that the number came to 46,500, but it specifically refers to "those numbered." This expression occurs frequently throughout the book of Numbers.

10 sn There has been much discussion about the numbers in the Israelite wilderness experience. The immediate difficulty for even the casual reader is the enormous number of the population. If indeed there were 603,550 men twenty years of age and older who could fight, the total population of the exodus community counting women and children would have been well over a million, or even two million as calculated by some. This is not a figure that the Bible ever gives, but given the sizes of families the estimate would not be far off. This is a staggering number to have cross the Sea, drink from the oases, or assemble in the plain by Sinai. It is not a question of whether or not God could provide for such a number; it is rather a problem of logistics for a population of that size in that period of time. The problem is not with the text itself, but with the interpretation of the word אֶלֶף ('elef), traditionally translated "thousand." The word certainly can be taken as "thousand," and most often is. But in view of the problem of the large number here, some scholars have chosen one of the other meanings attested in literature for this word, perhaps "troop," or "family," or "tent group," even though a word for "family" has already been used (see A. H. McNeile, Numbers, 7; J. Garstang, Joshua-Judges, 120; J. Bright, History of Israel, 144). Another suggestion is to take the word as a "chief" or "captain" based on Ugaritic usage (see R. E. D. Clarke, "The Large Numbers of the Old Testament," JTVI 87 [1955]: 82-92; and J. W. Wenham, "Large Numbers in the Old Testament," TynBul 18 [1967]: 19-53). This interpretation would reduce the size of the Israelite army to about 18,000 men from a population of about 72,000 people. That is a radical change from the traditional reading and may be too arbitrary an estimate. A more unlikely calculation following the idea of a new meaning would attempt to divide the numbers and use the first part to refer to the units and the second the measurement (e.g., 65 thousand and four hundred would become 65 units of four hundred). Another approach has been to study the numbers rhetorically, analyzing the numerical values of letters and words. But this method, known as gematria, came in much later than the biblical period (see for it G. Fohrer, Introduction to the Old Testament, 184; and A. Noordtzij, Numbers [BSC], 24). On this system the numbers for "the sons of Israel" would be 603. But the number of the people in the MT is 603,550. Another rhetorical approach is that which says the text used exaggerations in the numbers on an epic scale to make the point of God's blessing. R. B. Allen's view that the numbers have been magnified by a factor of ten ("Numbers," The Expositor's Bible Commentary, 2:688-91), which would mean the army was only 60,000 men, seems every bit as arbitrary as Wenham's view to get down to 18,000. Moreover, such views cannot be harmonized with the instructions in the chapter for them to count every individual skull – that seems very clear. This is not the same kind of general expression one finds in "Saul has killed his thousands, David his ten thousands" (1 Sam 18:7). There one expects the bragging and the exaggerations. But in a text of numbering each male, to argue that the numbers have been inflated ten-fold to form the rhetoric of praise for the way God has blessed the nation demands a much more convincing argument than has typically been given. On the surface it seems satisfactory, but it raises a lot of questions. Everything in Exodus and Numbers attests to the fact that the Israelites were in a population explosion, that their numbers were greater than their Egyptian overlords. Pharaoh had attempted to counter their growth by killing males from the ranks. That only two midwives are named must be taken to mean that they were heads of the guilds, for two could not service a population – even of the smaller estimate given above. But even though the size had to have been great and seen as a threat, we are at a loss to know exactly how to determine it. There is clearly a problem with the word "thousand" here and in many places in the OT, as the literature will show, but the problem cannot really be solved without additional information. The suggestions proposed so far seem to be rather arbitrary attempts to reduce the number to a less-embarrassing total, one that would seem more workable in the light of contemporary populations and armies, as well as space and time for the people's movement in the wilderness. An army of 10,000 or 20,000 men in those days would have been a large army; an army of 600,000 (albeit a people's army, which may mean that only a portion of the males would actually fight at any time – as was true at Ai) is large even by today's standards. But the count appears to have been literal, and the totals calculated accordingly, totals which match other passages in the text. If some formula is used to reduce the thousands in this army, then there is the problem of knowing what to do when a battle has only five thousand, or three thousand men. One can only conclude that on the basis of what we know the word should be left with the translation "thousand," no matter what difficul-

From the descendants of Ephraim: According to the records of their clans and families, all the males twenty years old or older who could serve in the army were listed by name. 1:33 Those of them who were numbered from the tribe of Ephraim were 40,500. 1:34 From the descendants of Manasseh: According to the records of their clans and families, all the males twenty years old or older who could serve in the army were listed by name. 1:35 Those of them who were numbered from the tribe of Manasseh were 32,200.

1:36 From the descendants of Benjamin: According to the records of their clans and families, all the males twenty years old or older who could serve in the army were listed by name. 1:37 Those of them who were numbered from the tribe of Benjamin were 35,400.

1:38 From the descendants of Dan: According to the records of their clans and families, all the males twenty years old or older who could serve in the army were listed by name. 1:39 Those of them who were numbered from the tribe of Dan were 62,700.

1:40 From the descendants of Asher: According to the records of their clans and families, all the males twenty years old or older who could serve in the army were listed by name. 1:41 Those of them who were numbered from the tribe of Asher were 41,500.

1:42 From[3] the descendants of Naphtali: According to the records of their clans and families, all the males twenty years old or older who could serve in the army were listed by name. 1:43 Those of them who were numbered from the tribe of Naphtali were 53,400.

1:44 These were the men whom Moses and Aaron numbered[4] along with the twelve leaders of Israel, each of whom[5] was from his own family. 1:45 All the Israelites who were twenty years old or older, who could serve in Israel's army, were numbered[6] according to their families. 1:46 And all those numbered totaled 603,550.

The Exemption of the Levites

1:47 But[7] the Levites, according to the tribe of their fathers,[8] were not numbered[9] among them. 1:48 The LORD had said to Moses,[10] ties this might suggest to the reader. One should be cautious, though, in speaking of a population of two million, knowing that there are serious problems with the calculation of that number, if not with the word "thousand" itself. It is very doubtful that the population of the wilderness community was in the neighborhood of two million. Nevertheless, until a more convincing explanation of the word "thousand" or the calculation of the numbers is provided, one should retain the reading of the MT but note the difficulty with the large numbers.

[1] tc Some witnesses have omitted "those that were numbered of them," to preserve the literary pattern of the text. The omission is supported by the absence of the expression in the Greek as well as in some MT MSS. Most modern commentators follow this.

[2] tc The LXX has vv. 24-35 after v. 37.

[3] tc The verse does not have the preposition, only "the descendants of Naphtali."

[4] tn The construction uses both the passive participle הַפְקֻדִים (happequdim) and the verb פָּקַד (paqad), giving a literal translation of "these were the numbered ones, whom Moses and Aaron numbered."

[5] tn Heb "they were one man for the house of his fathers."

[6] tn Literally the text has, "and all the numbered of the Israelites were according to their families." The verb in the sentence is actually without a complement (see v. 46).

[7] tn The vav (ו) on this word indicates a disjunction with the previous sequence of reports. It may be taken as a contrastive clause, translated "but" or "however."

[8] tn The construction is unexpected, for Levites would be from the tribe of Levi. The note seems more likely to express that all these people were organized by tribal lineage, and so too the Levites, according to the tribe of their fathers – individual families of Levites.

[9] tc The form in the text is הָתְפְּקְדוּ (hotpaqedu); if this is correct, then it is an isolated instance of the reflexive of the Qal of פָּקַד (paqad). Some, however, explain the form as the Hitpael without the doubling of the middle letter and with a compensatory lengthening of the vowel before it (G. B. Gray, Numbers [ICC], 10).

[10] tn Heb "had spoken to Moses, saying." The infinitive construct of אָמַר ('amar), sometimes rendered "saying" in older English translations, does not need to be translated, but can be taken simply as the indicator of direct discourse. Most re-

They must carry[7] the tabernacle and all its furnishings; and they[8] must attend to it and camp around it.[9] 1:51 Whenever the tabernacle is to move,[10] the Levites must take it down, and whenever the tabernacle is to be reassembled,[11] the Levites must set it up.[12] Any unauthorized person[13] who approaches it must be killed.

1:52 "The Israelites will camp according to their divisions, each man in his camp, and each man by his standard. 1:53 But the Levites must camp around the tabernacle of the testimony, so that the LORD's anger[14] will not fall on the Israelite community. The Levites are responsible for the care[15] of the tabernacle of the testimony."

1:54 The Israelites did according to all that the LORD commanded Moses[16] – that is what they did.

The Arrangement of the Tribes

2:1[17] The LORD spoke to Moses and to Aaron: 2:2 "Every one[18] of the Israelites must camp[19] under his standard with the emblems of his family;[20] they must camp at some distance[21] around the tent of meeting.[22] cent English translations, including the present one, leave the form untranslated for stylistic reasons to avoid redundancy.

[1] sn From the giving of the Law on the priesthood comes the prerogative of the tribe of Levi. There were, however, members of other tribes who served as priests from time to time (see Judg 17:5).

[2] tn The construction has literally, "only the tribe of Levi you shall not number." The Greek text rendered the particle אַךְ ('akh) forcefully with "see to it that" or "take care that." For the uses of this form, see R. J. Williams, Hebrew Syntax, 65, §388-89.

[3] tn Heb "lift up their head."

[4] tn Heb "in the midst of the sons of Israel."

[5] tn The same verb translated "number" (פָּקַד, paqad) is now used to mean "appoint" (הִפְקֵד, hafqed), which focuses more on the purpose of the verbal action of numbering people. Here the idea is that the Levites were appointed to take care of the tabernacle. On the use of this verb with the Levites' appointment, see M. Gertner, "The Masorah and the Levites," VT 10 (1960): 252.

[6] tn The Hebrew name used here is מִשְׁכַּן הָעֵדֻת (mishkan ha'edut). The tabernacle or dwelling place of the LORD was given this name because it was here that the tablets of the Law were kept. The whole shrine was therefore a reminder (הָעֵדוּת, a "warning sign" or "testimony") of the stipulations of the covenant. For the ancient Near Eastern customs of storing the code in the sanctuaries, see M. G. Kline, Treaty of the Great King, 14-19, and idem, The Structure of Biblical Authority, 35-36. Other items were in the ark in the beginning, but by the days of Solomon only the tablets were there (1 Kgs 8:9).

[7] tn The imperfect tense here is an obligatory imperfect telling that they are bound to do this since they are appointed for this specific task.

[8] tn The addition of the pronoun before the verb is emphatic – they are the ones who are to attend to the tabernacle. The verb used is שָׁרַת (sharat) in the Piel, indicating that they are to serve, minister to, attend to all the details about this shrine.

[9] tn Heb "the tabernacle." The pronoun ("it") was used in the translation here for stylistic reasons.

[10] tn The construction uses the infinitive construct with the temporal preposition; the "tabernacle" is then the following genitive. Literally it is "and in the moving of the tabernacle," meaning, "when the tabernacle is supposed to be moved," i.e., when people are supposed to move it. The verb נָסַע (nasa') means "pull up the tent pegs and move," or more simply, "journey."

[11] tn Here we have the parallel construction using the infinitive construct in a temporal adverbial clause.

[12] tn Heb "raise it up."

[13] tn The word used here is זָר (zar), normally translated "stranger" or "outsider." It is most often used for a foreigner, an outsider, who does not belong in Israel, or who, although allowed in the land, may be viewed with suspicion. But here it seems to include even Israelites other than the tribe of Levi.

[14] tc Instead of "wrath" the Greek text has "sin," focusing the emphasis on the human error and not on the wrath of God. This may have been a conscious change to explain the divine wrath.

tn Heb "so that there be no wrath on." In context this is clearly the divine anger, so "the LORD's" has been supplied in the translation for clarity.

[15] tn The main verb of the clause is the perfect tense with vav (ו) consecutive, וְשָׁמְרוּ (v^{e}sham^{e}ru) meaning they "shall guard, protect, watch over, care for." It may carry the same obligatory nuance as the preceding verbs because of the sequence. The object used with this is the cognate noun מִשְׁמֶרֶת (mishmeret): "The Levites must care for the care of the tabernacle." The cognate intensifies the construction to stress that they are responsible for this care.

[17] sn For this chapter, see C. E. Douglas, "The Twelve Houses of Israel," JTS 37 (1936): 49-56; C. C. Roach, "The Camp in the Wilderness: A Sermon on Numbers 2:2," Int 13 (1959): 49-54; and G. St. Clair, "Israel in Camp: A Study," JTS 8 (1907): 185-217.

[18] tn Heb "a man by his own standard."

[20] tn Heb "of/for the house of their fathers."

[22] sn The Israelites were camping as a military camp, each tribe with the standards and emblems of the family. The standard was the symbol fastened to the end of a pole and carried to battle. It served to rally the tribe to the battle. The Bible nowhere describes these, although the serpent emblem of Numbers 21:8-9 may give a clue. But they probably did not have shapes of animals in view of the prohibition in the Decalogue. The standards may have been smaller for the families than the ones for the tribes. See further K. A. Kitchen, "Some Egyptian Background to the Old Testament," TynBul 5 (1960): 11; and T. W. Mann, Divine Presence and Guidance in Israelite Tradition, 169-73.

[24] tc The two synonyms might seem to be tautological, but this is fairly common and therefore acceptable in Hebrew prose (cf. Exod 26:18; 38:13; etc.).

[25] tn The sentence actually has "[those camping...are] the standard of the camp of Judah according to their divisions."

leader of the people of Judah is[1] Nahshon son of Amminadab. 2:4 Those numbered in his division[2] are 74,600. 2:5 Those who will be camping next to them[3] are the tribe of Issachar. The leader of the people of Issachar is Nethanel son of Zuar. 2:6 Those numbered in his division are 54,400. 2:7 Next will be[4] the tribe of Zebulun. The leader of the people of Zebulun is Eliab son of Helon. 2:8 Those numbered in his division are 57,400. 2:9 All those numbered of the camp of Judah, according to their divisions, are 186,400. They will travel[5] at the front.

The Tribes on the South

2:10 "On the south will be the divisions of the camp of Reuben under their standard.[6] The leader of the people of Reuben is Elizur son of Shedeur. 2:11 Those numbered in his division are 46,500. 2:12 Those who will be camping next to them are the tribe of Simeon. The leader of the people of Simeon is Shelumiel son of Zurishaddai. 2:13 Those numbered in his division are 59,300. 2:14 Next will be[7] the tribe of Gad. The leader of the people of Gad is Eliasaph son of Deuel.[8] 2:15 Those numbered in his division are 45,650. 2:16 All those numbered of the camp of Reuben, according to their divisions, are 151,450. They will travel second.

The Tribe in the Center

2:17 "Then the tent of meeting with the camp of the Levites will travel in the middle of the camps. They will travel in the same order as they camped, each in his own place[9] under his standard.

The Tribes on the West

2:18 "On the west will be the divisions of the camp of Ephraim under their standard. The leader of the people of Ephraim is Elishama son of Ammihud. 2:19 Those numbered in his division are 40,500. 2:20 Next to them will be the tribe of Manasseh. The leader of the people of Manasseh is Gamaliel son of Pedahzur. 2:21 Those numbered in his division are 32,200. 2:22 Next will be[10] the tribe of Benjamin. The leader of the people of Benjamin is Abidan son of Gideoni. 2:23 Those numbered in his division are 35,400. 2:24 All those numbered of the camp of Ephraim, according to their divisions, are 108,100. They will travel third.

The Tribes on the North

2:25 "On the north will be the divisions of the camp of Dan, under their standards. The leader of the people of Dan is Ahiezer son of Ammishaddai. 2:26 Those numbered in his division are 62,700. 2:27 Those who will be camping next to them are the tribe of Asher. The leader of the people of Asher is Pagiel son of Ocran. 2:28 Those numbered in his division are 41,500. 2:29 Next will be[11] the tribe of Naphtali. The leader of the people of Naphtali is Ahira son of Enan. 2:30 Those numbered in his division are 53,400. 2:31 All those numbered of the camp of Dan are 157,600. They will travel last, under their standards."

Summary

2:32 These are the Israelites, numbered according to their families.[12] All those numbered in the camps, by their divisions, are 603,550. 2:33 But the Levites were not numbered among the other Israelites, as the LORD commanded Moses.

2:34 So the Israelites did according to all that the LORD commanded Moses; that is the way[13] they camped under their standards, and that is the way they traveled, each with his clan and family.

[1] tn Or "will be."

[2] tc The expression "and his divisions and those numbered of them" is somewhat tautological. The words are synonyms used for statistical purposes, and so neither should be simply deleted.

[3] tn Heb "by him" [i.e., Judah].

[4] tn This part has been supplied; the text simply has "the tribe of Zebulun."

[5] tn The verb is נָסַע (nasa'): "to journey, travel, set out," and here, "to move camp." Judah will go first, or, literally, at the head of the nation, when they begin to travel.

[6] tn Here and throughout the line is literally "[under] the standard of the camp of Reuben...according to their divisions."

[8] tc The Leningrad codex, upon which BHS is based, has "Reuel" here. In reading "Deuel" the translation presented above follows many medieval Hebrew manuscripts, Smr, and the Latin Vulgate. Cf. Num 1:14.

[9] tn The Hebrew expression is עַל־יָדוֹ ('al-yado, "upon his hand"). This clearly refers to a specifically designated place for each man.

[10] tn Here too the Hebrew text simply has "and the tribe of Benjamin."

[11] tn The Hebrew text has "and the tribe of Naphtali."

[12] tn Heb "the house of their fathers." So also in v. 34.

[13] tn The Hebrew word is כֵּן (ken, "thus, so").

The Sons of Aaron

3:1[1] Now these are the records[2] of Aaron and Moses when[3] the LORD spoke with Moses on Mount Sinai. 3:2 These are the names of the sons of Aaron: Nadab, the firstborn, and Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar. 3:3 These are the names of the sons of Aaron, the anointed[4] priests, whom he consecrated[5] to minister as priests.[6]

3:4 Nadab and Abihu died[7] before the LORD[8] when they offered[9] strange[10] fire[11] before the LORD in the wilderness of Sinai, and they had no children.[12] So Eleazar and Ithamar ministered as priests[13] in the presence of[14] Aaron their father.

The Assignment of the Levites

3:5 The LORD spoke to Moses: 3:6 "Bring the tribe of Levi near,[15] and present[16] them before Aaron the priest, that they may serve him.[17] 3:7 They are responsible for his needs[18] and the needs of the whole community before the tent of meeting, by attending[19] to the service of the tab-

Brin, "The First-born in Israel in the Biblical Period" (Ph.D. diss., University of Tel Aviv, 1971); S. H. Hooke, "Theory and Practice of Substitution," VT 2 (1952): 2-17; and J. Morgenstern, "A Chapter in the History of the High Priesthood," AJSL 55 (1938): 1-24.

2 tn The construction is וְאֵלֶּה תוֹלְדֹת (v^{e}elleh tol^{e}dot), which was traditionally translated "now these are the generations," much as it was translated throughout the book of Genesis. The noun can refer to records, stories, genealogies, names, and accounts of people. Here it is the recorded genealogical list with assigned posts included. Like Genesis, it is a heading of a section, and not a colophon as some have suggested. It is here similar to Exodus: "these are the names of." R. K. Harrison, Numbers (WEC), 62, insists that it is a colophon and should end chapter 2, but if that is followed in the Pentateuch, it creates difficulty throughout the narratives. See the discussion by A. P. Ross, Creation and Blessing, 69-74.

3 tn The expression in the Hebrew text ("in the day of") is idiomatic for "when."

4 tn The verb מָשַׁח (mashakh) means "to anoint"; here the form modifies the "priests." The service of consecration was carried out with anointing oil (Exod 30:30). The verb is used for the anointing of kings as well as priests in the OT, and so out of that derived the technical title "Messiah" for the coming ideal king – the "Anointed One."

5 tn In this verse the expression is in a relative clause: "who he filled their hand" means "whose hands he filled," or "whom he consecrated." The idiomatic expression used here is from Lev 8; it literally is "he filled their hand" (מִלֵּא יָדָם, mille' yadam). In the ordination service Moses placed some of the meat from the sacrifice in the hand of the ordinand, and this signified what he was going to be about – having his hand full, or being consecrated to the priesthood. There is some evidence that this practice or expression was also known in Mesopotamia. In modern ordination services a NT or a Bible may be placed in the ordinand's hand – it is what the ministry will be about.

6 tn The form is an infinitival construction for the word for the priest, showing the purpose for the filling of the hands.

7 tn The verb form is the preterite with vav (ו) consecutive, literally "and Nadab died." Some commentators wish to make the verb a past perfect, rendering it "and Nadab had died," but this is not necessary. In tracing through the line from Aaron it simply reports that the first two sons died. The reference is to the event recorded in Lev 10 where the sons brought "strange" or foreign" fire to the sanctuary.

8 tc This initial clause is omitted in one Hebrew MS, Smr, and the Vulgate.

9 tn The form בְּהַקְרָבָם (b^{e}haqrivam) is the Hiphil infinitive construct functioning as a temporal clause: "when they brought near," meaning, "when they offered." The verb קָרַב (qarav) is familiar to students of the NT because of "corban" in Mark 7:11.

10 tn Or "prohibited." See HALOT 279 s.v. זָר 3.

11 tn The expression אֵשׁ זָרָה ('esh zarah, "strange fire") seems imprecise and has been interpreted numerous ways (see the helpful summary in J. E. Hartley, Leviticus [WBC 4], 132-33). The infraction may have involved any of the following or a combination thereof: (1) using coals from some place other than the burnt offering altar (i.e., "unauthorized coals" according to J. Milgrom, Leviticus [AB], 1:598; cf. Lev 16:12 and cf. "unauthorized person" [אִישׁ זָר, 'ish zar] in Num 16:40 [17:5 HT], NASB "layman"), (2) using the wrong kind of incense (cf. the Exod 30:9 regulation against "strange incense" [קְטֹרֶת זָרָה, q^{e}toret zarah] on the incense altar and the possible connection to Exod 30:34-38), (3) performing an incense offering at an unprescribed time (B. A. Levine, Leviticus [JPSTC], 59), or (4) entering the Holy of Holies at an inappropriate time (Lev 16:1-2).

sn This event is narrated in Lev 10:1-7.

12 sn The two young priests had been cut down before they had children; the ranks of the family of Aaron were thereby cut in half in one judgment from God. The significance of the act of judgment was to show that the priests had to sanctify the LORD before the people – they were to be examples that the sanctuary and its contents were distinct.

13 tn The verb is the Piel preterite from the root כָּהַן (kahan): "to function as a priest" or "to minister."

14 tn The expression "in the presence of" can also mean "during the lifetime of" (see Gen 11:28; see also BDB 818 s.v. פָּנֶה II.7.a; cf. NASB, NIV, NCV, NRSV, TEV).

15 sn The use of the verb קָרַב (qarav) forms an interesting wordplay in the passage. The act of making an offering is described by this verb, as was the reference to the priests' offering of strange fire. Now the ceremonial presentation of the priests is expressed by the same word – they are being offered to God.

16 tn The verb literally means "make it [the tribe] stand" (וְהַעֲמַדְתָּ אֹתוֹ, v^{e}ha'amadta 'oto). The verb is the Hiphil perfect with a vav (ו) consecutive; it will take the same imperative nuance as the form before it, but follow in sequence ("and then"). This refers to the ceremonial presentation in which the tribe would take its place before Aaron, that is, stand before him and await their assignments. The Levites will function more like a sacred guard than anything else, for they had to protect and care for the sanctuary when it was erected and when it was transported (see J. Milgrom, Studies in Levitical Terminology, 8-10).

17 tn The verb וְשֵׁרְתוּ (v^{e}sher^{e}tu) is the Piel perfect with a vav (ו) consecutive; it carries the same volitional force as the preceding verb forms, but may here be subordinated in the sequence to express the purpose or result of the preceding action.

18 tn The Hebrew text uses the perfect tense of שָׁמַר (shamar) with a vav (ו) consecutive to continue the instruction of the preceding verse. It may be translated "and they shall keep" or "they must/are to keep," but in this context it refers to their appointed duties. The verb is followed by its cognate accusative – "they are to keep his keeping," or as it is often translated, "his charge." This would mean whatever Aaron needed them to do. But the noun is also used for the people in the next phrase, and so "charge" cannot be the meaning here. The verse is explaining that the Levites will have duties to perform to meet the needs of Aaron and the congregation.

19 tn The form is the Qal infinitive construct from עָבַד ('avad, "to serve, to work"); it is taken here as a verbal noun and means "by (or in) serving" (see R. J. Williams, Hebrew Syntax, 36, §195). This explains the verb "keep [his charge]." Here too the form is followed by a cognate accusative; they will be there to "serve the service" or "work the work."

ernacle. 3:8 And they are responsible for all the furnishings of the tent of meeting, and for the needs of the Israelites, as they serve[1] in the tabernacle. 3:9 You are to assign[2] the Levites to Aaron and his sons; they will be assigned exclusively[3] to him out of all[4] the Israelites. 3:10 So you are to appoint Aaron and his sons, and they will be responsible for their priesthood,[5] but the unauthorized person[6] who comes near must be put to death."

3:11 Then the LORD spoke to Moses: 3:12 "Look,[7] I myself have taken the Levites from among the Israelites instead of[8] every firstborn who opens the womb among the Israelites. So the Levites belong to me, 3:13 because all the firstborn are mine. When I destroyed[9] all the firstborn in the land of Egypt, I set apart for myself all the firstborn in Israel, both man and beast. They belong to me. I am the LORD."[10]

The Numbering of the Levites

3:14 Then the LORD spoke to Moses in the wilderness of Sinai: 3:15 "Number the Levites by their clans[11] and their families; every male from a month old and upward you are to number."[12] 3:16 So Moses numbered them according to the word[13] of the LORD, just as he had been commanded.[14]

The Summary of Families

3:17 These were the sons[15] of Levi by their names: Gershon, Kohath, and Merari.

3:18 These are the names of the sons of Gershon by their families: Libni and Shimei. 3:19 The sons of Kohath by their families were: Amram, Izhar, Hebron, and Uzziel. 3:20 The sons of Merari by their families were Mahli and Mushi. These are the families of the Levites by their clans.

The Numbering of the Gershonites

3:21 From Gershon came the family of the Libnites and the family of the Shimeites; these were the families of the Gershonites. 3:22 Those of them who were numbered, counting every male from a month old and upward, were 7,500. 3:23 The families of the Gershonites were to camp behind the tabernacle toward the west. 3:24 Now the leader[16] of the clan[17] of the Gershonites was Eliasaph son of Lael.

3:25 And[18] the responsibilities of the Gershonites in the tent of meeting included the tabernacle, the tent with its covering, the curtain at the entrance of the tent of meeting, 3:26 the hangings of the courtyard,[19] the curtain at the entrance to the courtyard that surrounded the tabernacle and the altar, and their ropes, plus all the service connected with these things.[20]

1 tn The construction uses the infinitive construct (epexegetically) followed by its cognate accusative. It would convey "to serve the service of the tabernacle," but more simply it may be rendered as "serving." Their spiritual and practical service is to serve.

sn The Levites had the duty of taking care of all the tabernacle and its furnishings, especially in times when it was to be moved. But they were also appointed to be gate-keepers (2 Kgs 22:4; 1 Chr 9:19) in order to safeguard the purity of the place and the activities that went on there. Their offices seem to have then become hereditary in time (1 Sam 1:3); they even took on more priestly functions, such as pronouncing the benediction (Deut 10:8). See further R. de Vaux, Ancient Israel, 348-49.

2 tn The verb וְנָתַתָּה (v^{e}natattah) is normally "give." Here, though, the context refers to the assignment of the Levites to the priests for their duties. The form is the perfect tense with vav (ו) consecutive, continuing the sequence for the imperfect of instruction.

3 tn This emphasis is derived from the simple repetition of the passive participle, נְתוּנִם (n^{e}tunim n^{e}tunim). See GKC 396 §123.e. The forms serve as the predicate with the subject pronoun.

4 tn The Hebrew text simply has the preposition, "from the Israelites."

5 tc The LXX includes the following words here: "and all things pertaining to the altar and within the veil." Cf. Num 18:7.

6 tn The word is זָר (zar), usually rendered "stranger, foreigner, pagan." But in this context it simply refers to anyone who is not a Levite or a priest, an unauthorized person or intruder in the tabernacle. That person would be put to death.

7 tn The particle הִנֵּה (hinneh) here carries its deictic force, calling attention to the fact that is being declared. It is underscoring the fact that the LORD himself chose Levi.

8 tn Literally "in the place of."

9 tn The form הַכֹּתִי (hakkoti) is the Hiphil infinitive construct of the verb נָכָה (nakhah, "to strike, smite, attack"). Here, after the idiomatic "in the day of," the form functions in an adverbial clause of time – "when I destroyed."

10 sn In the Exodus event of the Passover night the principle of substitution was presented. The firstborn child was redeemed by the blood of the Lamb and so belonged to God, but then God chose the Levites to serve in the place of the firstborn. The ritual of consecrating the firstborn son to the LORD was nevertheless carried out, even with Jesus, the firstborn son of Mary (Luke 2:22-23).

11 tn Heb "the house of their fathers." So also in v. 20.

12 tn Heb "you are to/shall number them."

13 tn Heb "at the mouth of the LORD."

14 tn The Pual perfect may be given the past perfect translation in this sentence because the act of commanding preceded the act of numbering.

15 tn The word "sons of" does at the outset refer to the sons of Levi. But as the listing continues the expression refers more to the family groups of the various descendants.

16 tn The vav (ו) disjunctive on the noun at the beginning of the verse here signals a greater emphasis on the individual rather than another item in the numbering of the clans.

17 tn Heb "a father's house." So also in vv. 30,35.

18 tn The disjunctive vav (ו) here introduces a new section, listing the various duties of the clan in the sanctuary. The Gershonites had a long tradition of service here. In the days of David Asaph and his family were prominent as musicians. Others in the clan controlled the Temple treasuries. But in the wilderness they had specific oversight concerning the tent structure, which included the holy place and the holy of holies.

19 tc The phrases in this verse seem to be direct objects without verbs. BHS suggests deleting the sign of the accusative (for which see P. P. Saydon, "Meanings and Uses of the Particle אֵת," VT 14 [1964]: 263-75).

20 tn Heb "for all the service of it [them]."

The Numbering of the Kohathites

3:27 From Kohath came the family of the Amramites, the family of the Izharites, the family of the Hebronites, and the family of the Uzzielites; these were the families of the Kohathites.[1] 3:28 Counting every male from a month old and upward, there were 8,600. They were responsible for the care[2] of the sanctuary. 3:29 The families of the Kohathites were to camp on the south side of the tabernacle. 3:30 Now the leader of the clan of the families of the Kohathites was Elizaphan son of Uzziel.

3:31 Their responsibilities included the ark, the table, the lampstand, the altars, and the utensils of the sanctuary with which they ministered,[3] the curtain, and all their service.[4] 3:32 Now the head of all the Levitical leaders[5] was Eleazar son of Aaron the priest. He was appointed over those who were responsible[6] for the sanctuary.

The Numbering of Merari

3:33 From Merari came the family of the Mahlites and the family of the Mushites; these were[7] the families of Merari. 3:34 Those of them who were numbered, counting every male from a month old and upward, were 6,200. 3:35 Now the leader of the clan of the families of Merari was Zuriel son of Abihail. These were to camp on the north side of the tabernacle.

3:36 The appointed responsibilities of the Merarites included the frames of the tabernacle, its crossbars, its posts, its sockets, its utensils, plus all the service connected with these things,[8] 3:37 and the pillars of the courtyard all around, with their sockets, their pegs, and their ropes.

3:38 But those who were to camp in front of the tabernacle on the east, in front of the tent of meeting, were Moses, Aaron,[9] and his sons. They were responsible for the needs[10] of the sanctuary and for the needs of the Israelites, but the unauthorized person who approached was to be put to death. 3:39 All who were numbered of the Levites, whom Moses and Aaron numbered by the word[11] of the LORD, according to their families, every male from a month old and upward, were 22,000.[12]

The Substitution for the Firstborn

3:40 Then the LORD said to Moses, "Number all the firstborn males of the Israelites from a month old and upward, and take[13] the number of their names. 3:41 And take[14] the Levites for me – I am the LORD – instead of all the firstborn males among the Israelites, and the livestock of the Levites instead of all the firstborn of the livestock of the Israelites." 3:42 So Moses numbered all the firstborn males among the Israelites, as the LORD had commanded him. 3:43 And all the firstborn males, by the number of the names from a month old and upward, totaled 22,273.

3:44 Then the LORD spoke to Moses: 3:45 "Take the Levites instead of all the firstborn males among the Israelites, and the livestock of the Levites instead of their livestock. And the Levites will be mine. I am the LORD. 3:46 And for the redemption of the 273 firstborn males of the Israelites who exceed the number of the Levites, 3:47 collect[15] five shekels for each[16] one

[1] sn Both Moses and Aaron came from this line (6:16-20). During the Hebrew monarchy this branch of the line of Levi was exemplary in music (1 Chr 6:33-48). They were also helpful to Hezekiah in his reforms (1 Chr 29:12-14).

[2] tn The construction here is a little different. The Hebrew text uses the participle in construct plural: שֹׁמְרֵי (shom^{e}rey, literally "keepers of"). The form specifies the duties of the 8,600 Kohathites. The genitive that follows this participle is the cognate מִשְׁמֶרֶת (mishmeret) that has been used before. So the expression indicates that they were responsible for the care of this part of the cult center. There is no reason to delete one of the forms (as does J. A. Paterson, Numbers, 42), for the repetition stresses the central importance of their work.

[3] tn The verb is וְיִשְׁרְתוּ (y^{e}shar^{e}tu, "they will serve/minister"). The imperfect tense in this place, however, probably describes what the priests would do, what they used to do. The verb is in a relative clause: "which they would serve with them," which should be changed to read "with which they would serve."

[4] tn The word is literally "its [their] service." It describes all the implements that were there for the maintenance of these things.

[5] tn The Hebrew construction has "the leader of the leaders of" (וּנְשִׂיא נְשִׂיאֵי, un^{e}si' n^{e}si'ey).

[6] tn Heb "the keepers of the responsibility" (שֹׁמְרֵי מִשְׁמֶרֶת, shom^{e}rey mishmeret). The participle is a genitive specifying the duty to which he was appointed (thing possessed); its cognate genitive emphasizes that their responsibility was over the holy place.

[7] tn The Hebrew text has "these they the families of Merari." The independent personal pronoun has an anaphoric use, somewhat equivalent to the copula "and" (see R. J. Williams, Hebrew Syntax, 23, §115).

[8] tn Heb "and all their service." This could possibly be a hendiadys: "and all their working tools." However, the parallel with v. 26 suggests this is a separate phrase.

[9] tc In some Hebrew MSS and Smr "and Aaron" is not in the verse. The omission arose probably by scribal error with such repetitious material that could easily give rise to variant traditions.

[10] tn Here again the verb and its cognate noun are used: keeping the keep, or keeping charge over, or taking responsibility for the care of, or the like.

[11] tn Here again the Hebrew has "at the mouth of," meaning in accordance with what the LORD said. So also in v. 51.

[12] tn The total is a rounded off number; it does not duplicate the precise total of 22,300. Some modern scholars try to explain it by positing an error in v. 28, suggesting that "six" should be read as "three" (שֵׁשׁ [shesh] as שָׁלֹשׁ [shalosh]).

[13] tn The verb נָשָׂא (nasa', "take") has here the sense of collect, take a census, or register the names.

[14] tn The verb is the perfect tense with vav (ו) consecutive; it carries forward the instructions from the preceding verse. The verb "take" now has the sense of appointing or designating the Levites.

[15] tn The verb again is the perfect tense in sequence; the meaning of "take" may be interpreted here with the sense of "collect."

[16] tn The idea is expressed simply by repetition: "take five, five, shekels according to the skull." They were to collect five shekels for each individual.

individually; you are to collect[1] this amount[2] in the currency of the sanctuary shekel (this shekel is twenty gerahs).[3] 3:48 And give the money for the redemption of the excess number of them to Aaron and his sons."

3:49 So Moses took the redemption money[4] from those who were in excess of those redeemed by the Levites. 3:50 From the firstborn males of the Israelites he collected the money, 1,365 shekels, according to the sanctuary shekel. 3:51 Moses gave the redemption money to Aaron and his sons, according to the word of the LORD, as the LORD had commanded Moses.

The Service of the Kohathites

4:1[5] Then the LORD spoke to Moses and Aaron: 4:2 "Take a census[6] of the Kohathites from among the Levites, by their families and by their clans, 4:3 from thirty years old and upward to fifty years old, all who enter the company[7] to do the work in the tent of meeting. 4:4 This is the service of the Kohathites in the tent of meeting, relating to the most holy things.[8] 4:5 When it is time for the camp to journey,[9] Aaron and his sons must come and take down the screening curtain and cover the ark of the testimony with it. 4:6 Then they must put over it a covering of fine leather[10] and spread over that a cloth entirely of blue, and then they must insert its poles.

4:7 "On the table of the presence[11] they must spread a blue[12] cloth, and put on it the dishes, the pans, the bowls, and the pitchers for pouring, and the Bread of the Presence must be on it continually. 4:8 They must spread over them a scarlet cloth, and cover the same with a covering of fine leather; and they must insert its poles.

4:9 "They must take a blue cloth and cover the lampstand of the light, with its lamps, its wick-trimmers, its trays, and all its oil vessels, with which they service it. 4:10 Then they must put it with all its utensils in a covering of fine leather, and put it on a carrying beam.[13]

4:11 "They must spread a blue cloth on the gold altar, and cover it with a covering of fine leather; and they must insert its poles. 4:12 Then they must take all the utensils of the service, with which they serve in the sanctuary, put them in a blue cloth, cover them with a covering of fine leather, and put them on a carrying beam. 4:13 Also, they must take away the ashes from the altar[14] and spread a purple cloth over it. 4:14 Then they must place on it all its implements with which they serve there – the trays, the meat forks, the shovels, the basins, and all the utensils of the altar – and they must spread on it a covering of fine leather, and then insert its poles.[15]

1 tn The verb form now is the imperfect of instruction or legislation.

2 tn Heb "them," referring to the five shekels.

3 sn The sanctuary shekel was first mentioned in Exod 30:13. The half-shekel of Exod 38:26 would then be 10 gerahs. Consequently, the calculations would indicate that five shekels was about two ounces of silver for each person. See R. B. Y. Scott, "Weights and Measures of the Bible," BA 22 (1951): 22-40, and "The Scale-Weights from Ophel, 1963-1964," PEQ 97 (1965): 128-39.

4 sn The word used is "silver." Coins were not in existence until after 700 B.C. (starting with Lydia).

5 sn The chapter has four main parts to it: Kohathites (1-20), Gershonites (21-28), Merarites (29-33) and the census of the Levites (34-49).

sn The census of chapter 3 was to register all male Levites from a month old and up. It arranged the general duties of each of the tribes. The second census of Levites now will focus on those between 30 and 50 years of age, those who were actually in service. These are the working Levites. The duties here will be more specific for each of the families. The Kohathites, although part of the ordinary ministry of Levites, were a special group chosen to handle the most holy furnishings. J. Milgrom shows three aspects of their service: (1) skilled labor (מְלֶאכָה, me'la'khah) or "work," (2) physical labor (עֲבֹדָה, 'avodah) or "service," and (3) assisting the priests (שָׁרֵת, sharet) or "ministering" (see his Studies in Levitical Terminology, 1:60-70).

7 tn The word "company" is literally "host, army" (צָבָא, tsava'). The repetition of similar expressions makes the translation difficult: Heb "all [who] come to the host to do work in the tent."

8 tn The Hebrew text simply has "the holy of holies," or "the holy of the holy things" (קֹדֶשׁ הַקָּדָשִׁים, qodesh haqqodashim). The context indicates that this refers to all the sacred furnishings.

9 tn The Hebrew text uses the infinitive construct in an adverbial clause of time; literally it says "in the journeying of the camp." The genitive in such constructions is usually the subject. Here the implication is that people would be preparing to transport the camp and its equipment.

10 tn The exact meaning of the Hebrew word here is difficult to determine. The term תַּחַשׁ (takhash) has been translated "badgers' [skins]" by KJV. ASV has "sealskin" while RSV uses "goatskin"; NEB and NASB have "porpoise skin," and NIV has "hides of sea cows." This is close to "porpoise," and seems influenced by the Arabic. The evidence is not strong for any of these meanings, and some of the suggestions would be problematic. It is possible the word is simply used for "fine leather," based on the Egyptian ths. This has been followed by NRSV ("fine leather") and NLT ("fine goatskin leather") along with the present translation. See further HALOT 1720-21 s.v. תַּחַשׁ.

11 sn The Hebrew actually has the "table of faces," and this has been traditionally rendered "table of shewbread."

12 tn The Greek has "violet" instead of blue. This is also the case in vv. 8, 10, and 14.

13 tn The "pole" or "bar" (בּוּט, mot) is of a different style than the poles used for transporting the ark. It seems to be a flexible bar carried by two men with the implements being transported tied to the bar. The NEB suggests the items were put in a bag and slung over the bar, but there is no indication of the manner.

14 tc The Greek text has "and he must place the cover upon the altar" instead of "and they must take away the ashes from the altar." The verb is the Piel form; its nuance seems to be privative, i.e., stating that the object is deprived of the material – the ashes are removed. This is the main altar in the courtyard.

15 tc For this passage the Greek and Smr have a substantial addition concerning the purple cloth for the laver and its base, and a further covering of skin (see D. W. Gooding, "On the Use of the LXX for Dating Midrashic Elements in the Targums," JTS 25 [1974]: 1-11).

4:15 "When Aaron and his sons have finished[1] covering[2] the sanctuary and all the furnishings of the sanctuary, when the camp is ready to journey, then[3] the Kohathites will come to carry them;[4] but they must not touch[5] any[6] holy thing, or they will die.[7] These are the responsibilities[8] of the Kohathites with the tent of meeting.

4:16 "The appointed responsibility of Eleazar son of Aaron the priest is for the oil for the light, and the spiced incense, and the daily grain offering, and the anointing oil; he also has[9] the appointed responsibility over all the tabernacle with[10] all that is in it, over the sanctuary and over all its furnishings."[11]

4:17 Then the LORD spoke to Moses and Aaron: 4:18 "Do not allow the tribe of the families of the Kohathites to be cut off[12] from among the Levites; 4:19 but in order that they will live[13] and not die when they approach the most holy things, do this for them: Aaron and his sons will go in and appoint[14] each man[15] to his service and his responsibility. 4:20 But the Kohathites[16] are not to go in to watch while the holy things are being covered, or they will die."

The Service of the Gershonites

4:21 Then the LORD spoke to Moses: 4:22 "Also take a census of the Gershonites, by their clans and by their families. 4:23 You must number them from thirty years old and upward to fifty years old, all who enter the company to do the work of the tent of meeting. 4:24 This is the service of the families of Gershonites, as they serve[17] and carry it. 4:25 They must carry the curtains for the tabernacle and the tent of meeting with its covering, the covering of fine leather that is over it, the curtains for the entrance of the tent of meeting, 4:26 the hangings for the courtyard, the curtain for the entrance of the gate of the court,[18] which is around the tabernacle and the altar, and their ropes, along with all the furnishings for their service and everything that is made for them. So they are to serve.[19]

4:27 "All the service of the Gershonites, whether[20] carrying loads[21] or for any of their work, will be at the direction of[22] Aaron and his sons. You will assign them all their tasks[23] as their responsibility. 4:28 This is the service of the families of the Gershonites concerning the tent of meeting. Their responsibilities will be under the authority[24] of Ithamar son of Aaron the priest.[25]

The Service of the Merarites

4:29 "As for the sons of Merari, you are to number them by their families and by their clans. 4:30 You must number them from thirty years old and upward to fifty years old, all who enter the company to do the work of the tent of meeting. 4:31 This is what they are responsible

[1] tn The verb form is the Piel perfect with a vav (ו) consecutive; it continues the future sequence, but in this verse forms a subordinate clause to the parallel sequential verb to follow.

[2] tn The Piel infinitive construct with the preposition serves as the direct object of the preceding verbal form, answering the question of what it was that they finished.

[3] tn Heb "after this."

[4] tn The form is the Qal infinitive construct from נָשָׂא (nasa', "to lift, carry"); here it indicates the purpose clause after the verb "come."

[5] tn The imperfect tense may be given the nuance of negated instruction ("they are not to") or negated obligation ("they must not").

[6] tn Here the article expresses the generic idea of any holy thing (R. J. Williams, Hebrew Syntax, 19, §92).

[7] tn The verb is the perfect tense with a vav (ו) consecutive, following the imperfect tense warning against touching the holy thing. The form shows the consequence of touching the holy thing, and so could be translated "or they will die" or "lest they die." The first is stronger.

[8] tn The word מַשָּׂא (massa') is normally rendered "burden," especially in prophetic literature. It indicates the load that one must carry, whether an oracle, or here the physical responsibility.

[9] tn This is supplied to the line to clarify "appointed."

[11] sn One would assume that he would prepare and wrap these items, but that the Kohathites would carry them to the next place.

[12] sn The verb is simply the Qal, "do not cut off." The context calls for a permissive nuance – "do not let them be cut off." It was a difficult task to be handling the holy things correctly; Moses and Aaron were to see to it that they did it right and did not handle the objects, that is, Moses and Aaron were to safeguard their lives by making certain that proper procedures were followed.

[13] tn The word order is different in the Hebrew text: Do this...and they will live. Consequently, the verb "and they will live" is a perfect tense with a vav (ו) consecutive to express the future consequence of "doing this" for them.

[14] tn The perfect tense with vav (ו) consecutive continues the instruction for Aaron.

[15] tn The distributive sense is obtained by the repetition, "a man" and "a man."

[16] tn In the Hebrew text the verse has as the subject "they," but to avoid confusion the antecedent has been clarified in the translation.

[17] tn The two forms are the infinitive construct and then the noun: "to serve and for the burden." They are to serve and they are to take the responsibility. The infinitive is explaining the verb.

[18] tc This whole clause is not in the Greek text; it is likely missing due to homoioteleuton.

[19] tn The work of these people would have been very demanding, since the size and weight of the various curtains and courtyard hangings would have been great. For a detailed discussion of these, see the notes in the book of Exodus on the construction of the items.

[20] tn The term "whether" is supplied to introduce the enumerated parts of the explanatory phrase.

[21] tn Here again is the use of the noun "burden" in the sense of the loads they were to carry (see the use of carts in Num 7:7).

[22] tn The expression is literally "upon/at the mouth of" (עַל־פִּי, 'al-pi); it means that the work of these men would be under the direct orders of Aaron and his sons.

[23] tn Or "burden."

[24] tn Or "the direction" (NASB, TEV); Heb "under/by the hand of." The word "hand" is often used idiomatically for "power" or "authority." So also in vv. 33, 37, 45, 48.

[25] sn The material here suggests that Eleazar had heavier responsibilities than Ithamar, Aaron's fourth and youngest son. It is the first indication that the Zadokite Levites would take precedence over the Ithamar Levites (see 1 Chr 24:3-6).

to carry as their entire service in the tent of meeting: the frames[1] of the tabernacle, its crossbars, its posts, its sockets, 4:32 and the posts of the surrounding courtyard with their sockets, tent pegs, and ropes, along with all their furnishings and everything for their service. You are to assign by names the items that each man is responsible to carry.[2] 4:33 This is the service of the families of the Merarites, their entire service concerning the tent of meeting, under the authority of Ithamar son of Aaron the priest."

Summary

4:34 So Moses and Aaron and the leaders of the community numbered the Kohathites by their families and by clans, 4:35 from thirty years old and upward to fifty years old, everyone who entered the company for the work in the tent of meeting; 4:36 and those of them numbered by their families were 2,750. 4:37 These were those numbered from the families of the Kohathites, everyone who served in the tent of meeting, whom Moses and Aaron numbered according to the word of the LORD by the authority of Moses.

4:38 Those numbered from the Gershonites, by their families and by their clans, 4:39 from thirty years old and upward to fifty years old, everyone who entered the company for the work in the tent of meeting – 4:40 those of them numbered by their families, by their clans, were 2,630. 4:41 These were those numbered from the families of the Gershonites, everyone who served in the tent of meeting, whom Moses and Aaron numbered according to the word of the LORD.

4:42 Those numbered from the families of the Merarites, by their families, by their clans, 4:43 from thirty years old and upward to fifty years old, everyone who entered the company for the work in the tent of meeting – 4:44 those of them numbered by their families were 3,200. 4:45 These are those numbered from the families of the Merarites, whom Moses and Aaron numbered according to the word of the LORD by the authority of Moses.

4:46 All who were numbered of the Levites, whom Moses, Aaron, and the leaders of Israel numbered by their families and by their clans, 4:47 from thirty years old and upward to fifty years old, everyone who entered to do the work of service and the work of carrying[3] relating to the tent of meeting – 4:48 those of them numbered were 8,580. 4:49 According to the word of the LORD they were numbered,[4] by the authority of Moses, each according to his service and according to what he was to carry.[5] Thus were they numbered by him,[6] as the LORD had commanded Moses.

Separation of the Unclean

5:1[7] Then the LORD spoke to Moses: 5:2 "Command the Israelites to expel[8] from the camp every leper,[9] everyone who has a

[1] sn More recent studies have concluded that these "boards" were made of two long uprights joined by cross-bars (like a ladder). They were frames rather than boards, meaning that the structure under the tent was not a solid building. It also meant that the "boards" would have been lighter to carry.

[2] tn Heb "you shall assign by names the vessels of the responsibility of their burden."

[3] tn The text multiplies the vocabulary of service here in the summary. In the Hebrew text the line reads literally: "everyone who came to serve the service of serving, and the service of burden." The Levites came into service in the shrine, and that involved working in the sanctuary as well as carrying it from one place to the next.

[4] tn The verb is the simple perfect tense – "he numbered them." There is no expressed subject; therefore, the verb can be rendered as a passive.

[5] tn Or "his burden."

[6] tn The passive form simply reads "those numbered by him." Because of the cryptic nature of the word, some suggest reading a preterite, "and they were numbered." This is supported by the Greek, Syriac, Targum, and Vulgate. It would follow in the emendation that the relative pronoun be changed to "just as" (כַּאֲשֶׁר, ka'asher). The MT is impossible the way it stands; it can only be rendered into smooth English by adding something that is missing.

[7] sn The fifth chapter falls into four main parts: separation of the unclean (vv. 1-4), restitution for sin (vv. 5-10), the jealousy ordeal (vv. 11-28), and the summary (vv. 29-31). There is a good deal of literature on the biblical theme of holiness (for which see the notes on Leviticus primarily). But with regard to this chapter, see (with caution), Mary Douglas, Purity and Danger; J. Neusner, The Idea of Purity in Ancient Judaism; and K. Milgrom, "Two Kinds of ḥaṭṭā't," VT 26 (1976): 333-37.

[8] tn The construction uses the Piel imperative followed by this Piel imperfect/jussive form; it is here subordinated to the preceding volitive, providing the content of the command. The verb שָׁלַח (shalakh) in this verbal stem is a strong word, meaning "expel, put out, send away, or release" (as in "let my people go").

[9] sn The word צָרוּעַ (tsarua'), although translated "leper," does not primarily refer to leprosy proper (i.e., Hansen's disease). The RSV and the NASB continued the KJV tradition of using "leper" and "leprosy." More recent studies have concluded that the Hebrew word is a generic term covering all infectious skin diseases (including leprosy when that actually showed up). True leprosy was known and feared certainly by the time of Amos (ca. 760 B.C.). There is evidence that the disease was known in Egypt by 1500 B.C. So this term would include that disease in all probability. But in view of the diagnosis and healing described in Leviticus 13 and 14, the term must be broader. The whole basis for the laws of separation may be found in the book of Leviticus. The holiness of the LORD who dwelt among his people meant that a high standard was imposed on them for their living arrangements as well as access to the sanctuary. Anything that was corrupted, diseased, dying, or contaminated was simply not compatible with the holiness of God and was therefore excluded. This is not to say that it was treated as sin, or the afflicted as sinners. It simply was revealing – and safeguarding – the holiness of the LORD. It thus provided a revelation for all time that in the world to come nothing unclean will enter into the heavenly sanctuary. As the Apostle Paul says, we will all be changed from this corruptible body into one that is incorruptible (1 Cor 15:53). So while the laws of purity and holiness were practical for the immediate audience, they have far-reaching implications for theology. The purity regulations have been done away with in Christ – the problem is dealt with differently in the new covenant. There is no earthly temple, and so the separation laws are not in force. Wisdom would instruct someone with an infectious disease to isolate, however. But just because the procedure is fulfilled in Christ does not mean that believers today are fit for glory just as they are. On the contrary, they must be discharge,[1] and whoever becomes defiled by a corpse.[2] 5:3 You must expel both men and women; you must put them outside the camp, so that[3] they will not defile their camps, among which I live." 5:4 So the Israelites did so, and expelled them outside the camp. As the LORD had spoken[4] to Moses, so the Israelites did.

Restitution for Sin

5:5 Then the LORD spoke to Moses: 5:6 "Tell the Israelites, 'When[5] a man or a woman commits any sin that people commit,[6] thereby breaking faith[7] with the LORD, and that person is found guilty,[8] 5:7 then he must confess[9] his sin that he has committed and must make full reparation,[10] add one fifth to it, and give it to whomever he wronged.[11] 5:8 But if the individual has no close relative[12] to whom reparation can be made for the wrong, the reparation for the wrong must be paid to the LORD[13] for the priest, in addition to the ram of atonement by which atonement is made for him. 5:9 Every offering[14] of all the Israelites' holy things that they bring to the priest will be his. 5:10 Every man's holy things[15] will be his; whatever any man gives the priest will be his.'"

The Jealousy Ordeal

5:11[16] The LORD spoke to Moses: 5:12 "Speak to the Israelites and tell them, 'If any man's wife goes astray and behaves unfaithfully toward him, 5:13 and a man has sexual relations[17] with her[18] without her husband knowing it,[19] and it is hidden that she has defiled herself, since[20] there was no witness against her, nor was she caught – 5:14 and if jealous feelings[21] come changed before going into his presence. In like manner the sacrifices have been done away in Christ – not what they covered. Sin is still sin, even though it is dealt with differently on this side of the cross. But the ritual and the regulations of the old covenant at Sinai have been fulfilled in Christ.

[1] sn The rules of discharge (Lev 12 and 15) include everything from menstruation to chronic diseases (see G. Wyper, ISBE 1:947, as well as R. K. Harrison, Leviticus (TOTC), 158-66, and G. J. Wenham, Leviticus (NICOT), 217-25.

[2] tn The word is נֶפֶשׁ (nefesh), which usually simply means "[whole] life," i.e., the soul in the body, the person. But here it must mean the corpse, the dead person, since that is what will defile (although it was also possible to become unclean by touching certain diseased people, such as a leper).

[3] tn The imperfect tense functions here as a final imperfect, expressing the purpose of putting such folks outside the camp. The two preceding imperfects (repeated for emphasis) are taken here as instruction or legislation.

[4] tn The perfect tense is here given a past perfect nuance to stress that the word of the LORD preceded the obedience.

[5] sn This type of law is known as casuistic. The law is introduced with "when/if" and then the procedure to be adopted follows it. The type of law was common in the Law Code of Hammurabi.

[6] tn The verse simply says "any sin of a man," but the genitive could mean that it is any sin that a man would commit (subjective genitive), or one committed against a man (objective genitive). Because of the similarity with Lev 5:22 HT (6:3 ET), the subjective is better. The sin is essentially "missing the mark" which is the standard of the Law of the LORD. The sin is not in this case accidental or inadvertent. It means here simply failing to live up to the standard of the LORD. Since both men and women are mentioned in the preceding clause, the translation uses "people" here.

[7] tn The verb is מַעַל (ma'al), which means to "defraud, violate, trespass against," or "to deal treacherously, do an act of treachery." In doing any sin that people do, the guilty have been unfaithful to the LORD, and therefore must bring him a sacrifice.

[8] tn The word used here for this violation is אָשָׁם ('asham). It can be translated "guilt, to be guilty"; it can also be used for the reparation offering. The basic assumption here is that the individual is in a state of sin – is guilty. In that state he or she feels remorse for the sin and seeks forgiveness through repentance. See further P. P. Saydon, "Sin Offering and Trespass Offering," CBQ 8 (1946): 393-98; H. C. Thompson, "The Significance of the Term 'Asham in the Old Testament," TGUOS 14 (1953): 20-26.

[9] tn The verb is the Hitpael perfect tense with vav (ו) consecutive from the verb יָדָה (yadah), which in this stem means "acknowledge, confess sin," but in the Hiphil (primarily) it means "praise, give thanks." In both cases one is acknowledging something, either the sin, or the person and work of the LORD. Here the verb comes in the apodosis: "when...then he must confess."

[10] tn The verb is the Hiphil perfect of שׁוּב (shuv, "return"). Here it has the sense of "repay" with the word "reparation" (traditionally rendered "guilt offering," but now is understood to refer to what was defrauded). The Levitical rulings called for the guilty to restore what was taken, if it could be made right, and pay a fifth more as a surcharge.

[11] tn This is now the third use of אָשָׁם ('asham); the first referred to "guilt," the second to "reparation," and now "wronged." The idea of "guilt" lies behind the second two uses as well as the first. In the second "he must repay his guilt" (meaning what he is guilty of); and here it can also mean "the one against whom he is guilty of sinning."

[12] sn For more information on the word, see A. R. Johnson, "The Primary Meaning of גאל," VTSup 1 (1953): 67-77.

[13] tc The editors of BHS prefer to follow the Greek, Syriac, and Latin and not read "for the LORD" here, but read a form of the verb "to be" instead. But the text makes more sense as it stands: The payment is to be made to the LORD for the benefit of the priests.

[14] tn The Hebrew word תְּרוּמָה (t^{e}rumah) seems to be a general word for any offering that goes to the priests (see J. Milgrom, Studies in Cultic Theology and Terminology [SJLA 36], 159-72).

[15] sn The "holy gifts" are described with the root of קֹדֶשׁ (qodesh) to convey that they were separate. Such things had been taken out of the ordinary and normal activities of life.

[16] sn There is a good bit of bibliography here. See, e.g., J. M. Sasson, "Numbers 5 and the Waters of Judgment," BZ 16 (1972): 249-51; and M. Fishbane, "Accusation of Adultery: A Study of Law and Scribal Practice in Numbers 5:11-31," HUCA 45 (1974): 25-46.

[17] tn Heb "and a man lies with her with the emission of semen." This makes it clear that there was adultery involved, so that the going astray is going astray morally. The indication in the text is that if she had never behaved suspiciously the sin might not have been detected.

[18] tc The sign of the accusative אֹתָהּ ('otah) is probably to be repointed to the preposition with the suffix, אִתָּהּ ('ittah).

[19] tn Heb "and it is concealed from the eyes of her husband."

[20] tn The noun clause beginning with the simple conjunction is here a circumstantial clause, explaining that there was no witness to the sin.

over him and he becomes suspicious[1] of his wife, when she is defiled;[2] or if jealous feelings come over him and he becomes suspicious of his wife, when she is not defiled – 5:15 then[3] the man must bring his wife to the priest, and he must bring the offering required for her, one tenth of an ephah of barley meal; he must not pour olive oil on it or put frankincense on it, because it is a grain offering of suspicion,[4] a grain offering for remembering,[5] for bringing[6] iniquity to remembrance.

5:16 "'Then the priest will bring her near and have her stand[7] before the LORD. 5:17 The priest will then take holy water[8] in a pottery jar, and take some[9] of the dust[10] that is on the floor of the tabernacle, and put it into the water. 5:18 Then the priest will have the woman stand before the LORD, uncover the woman's head, and put the grain offering for remembering in her hands, which is the grain offering of suspicion. The priest will hold in his hand the bitter water that brings a curse.[11] 5:19 Then the priest will put the woman under oath and say to her, "If no other[12] man has had sexual relations with you, and if you have not gone astray and become defiled while under your husband's authority, may you be free from this bitter water that brings a curse.[13] 5:20 But if you[14] have gone astray while under your husband's authority, and if you have defiled yourself and some man other than your husband has had sexual relations with you…."[15] 5:21 Then the priest will put the woman under the oath of the curse[16] and will say[17] to her, "The LORD make you an attested curse[18] among your people,[19] if the LORD makes[20] your thigh fall away[21] and your abdo-ship. It can also express strong emotional possessiveness such as envy and coveting. Here there is a feeling of jealousy, but no proof of infidelity.

[1] tn The word is now used in the Piel stem; the connotation is certainly "suspicious," for his jealousy seems now to have some basis, even if it is merely suspicion.

[2] tn The noun clause begins with the conjunction and the pronoun; here it is forming a circumstantial clause, either temporal or causal.

[3] tn All the conditions have been laid down now for the instruction to begin – if all this happened, then this is the procedure to follow.

[4] tn The Hebrew word is "jealousy," which also would be an acceptable translation here. But since the connotation is that suspicion has been raised about the other person, "suspicion" seems to be a better rendering in this context.

[5] tn The word "remembering" is זִכָּרוֹן (zikkaron); the meaning of the word here is not so much "memorial," which would not communicate much, but the idea of bearing witness before God concerning the charges. The truth would come to light through this ritual, and so the attestation would stand. This memorial would bring the truth to light. It was a somber occasion, and so no sweet smelling additives were placed on the altar.

[6] tn The final verbal form, מַזְכֶּרֶת (mazkeret), explains what the memorial was all about – it was causing iniquity to be remembered.

[7] tn The verb is the Hiphil of the word "to stand." It could be rendered "station her," but that sounds too unnatural. This is a meeting between an accused person and the Judge of the whole earth.

[8] tn This is probably water taken from the large bronze basin in the courtyard. It is water set apart for sacred service. "Clean water" (so NEB) does not capture the sense very well, but it does have the support of the Greek that has "pure running water." That pure water would no doubt be from the bronze basin anyway.

[10] sn The dust may have come from the sanctuary floor, but it is still dust, and therefore would have all the pollutants in it.

sn This ancient ritual seems to have functioned like a lie detector test, with all the stress and tension involved. It can be compared to water tests in the pagan world, with the exception that in Israel it was stacked more toward an innocent verdict. It seems to have been a temporary provision, for this is the only place that it appears, and no provision is made for its use later. It may have served as a didactic force, warning more than actually legislating. No provision is made in it for a similar charge to be brought against the man, but in the case of the suspicion of the woman the man would be very hesitant to demand this test given the harshness on false witnessing in Israel. The passage remains a rather strange section of the Law.

[12] tn The word "other" is implied, since the woman would not be guilty of having sexual relations with her own husband.

[13] sn Although there would be stress involved, a woman who was innocent would have nothing to hide, and would be confident. The wording of the priest's oath is actually designed to enable the potion to keep her from harm and not produce the physical effects it was designed to do.

[15] tn This is an example of the rhetorical device known as aposiopesis, or "sudden silence." The sentence is broken off due to the intensity or emphasis of the moment. The reader is left to conclude what the sentence would have said.

[16] sn For information on such curses, see M. R. Lehmann, "Biblical Oaths," ZAW 81 (1969): 74-92; A. C. Thiselton, "The Supposed Power of Words in the Biblical Writings," JTS 25 (1974): 283-99; and F. C. Fensham, "Malediction and Benediction in Ancient Vassal Treaties and the Old Testament," ZAW 74 (1962): 1-9.

[17] tn Heb "the priest will say."

[18] tn This interpretation takes the two nouns as a hendiadys. The literal wording is "the LORD make you a curse and an oath among the people." In what sense would she be an oath? The point of the whole passage is that the priest is making her take an oath to see if she has been sinful and will be cursed.

[19] sn The outcome of this would be that she would be quoted by people in such forms of expression as an oath or a curse (see Jer 29:22).

[20] tn The construction uses the infinitive construct with the preposition to form an adverbial clause: "in the giving of the LORD…," meaning, "if and when the LORD makes such and such to happen."

men swell;[1] 5:22 and this water that causes the curse will go[2] into your stomach, and make your abdomen swell and your thigh rot."[3] Then the woman must say, "Amen, amen."[4]

5:23 "'Then the priest will write these curses on a scroll and then scrape them off into the bitter water.[5] 5:24 He will make the woman drink the bitter water that brings a curse, and the water that brings a curse will enter her to produce bitterness. 5:25 The priest will take the grain offering of suspicion from the woman's hand, wave the grain offering before the LORD, and bring it to the altar. 5:26 Then the priest will take a handful of the grain offering as its memorial portion, burn it on the altar, and afterward make the woman drink the water. 5:27 When he has made her drink the water, then, if she has defiled herself and behaved unfaithfully toward her husband, the water that brings a curse will enter her to produce bitterness – her abdomen will swell, her thigh will fall away, and the woman will become a curse among her people. 5:28 But if the woman has not defiled herself, and is clean, then she will be free of ill effects[6] and will be able to bear children.

5:29 "'This is the law for cases of jealousy,[7] when a wife, while under her husband's authority, goes astray and defiles herself, 5:30 or when jealous feelings come over a man and he becomes suspicious of his wife; then he must have the woman stand before the LORD, and the priest will carry out all this law upon her. 5:31 Then the man will be free from iniquity, but that woman will bear the consequences[8] of her iniquity.'"[9]

The Nazirite Vow

6:1[10] Then the LORD spoke to Moses: 6:2 "Speak to the Israelites, and tell them, 'When either a man or a woman[11] takes a special vow,[12] to take a vow[13] as a Nazirite,[14] to separate[15] himself to the LORD, 6:3 he must separate[16] himself from wine and strong drink, he must drink neither vinegar[17] made from wine nor vinegar made from strong drink, nor may he drink any juice[18] of grapes, nor eat fresh grapes or raisins.[19]

[1] sn Most commentators take the expressions to be euphemisms of miscarriage or stillbirth, meaning that there would be no fruit from an illegitimate union. The idea of the abdomen swelling has been reinterpreted by NEB to mean "fall away." If this interpretation stands, then the idea is that the woman has become pregnant, and that has aroused the suspicion of the husband for some reason. R. K. Harrison (Numbers [WEC], 111-13) discusses a variety of other explanations for diseases and conditions that might be described by these terms. He translates it with "miscarriage," but leaves open what the description might actually be. Cf. NRSV "makes your uterus drop, your womb discharge."

[2] tn The verb is the perfect tense with vav (ו) consecutive. It could be taken as a jussive following the words of the priest in the previous section, but it is more likely to be a simple future.

[3] tn Heb "fall away."

[4] tn The word "amen" carries the idea of "so be it," or "truly." The woman who submits to this test is willing to have the test demonstrate the examination of God.

[5] sn The words written on the scroll were written with a combination of ingredients mixed into an ink. The idea is probably that they would have been washed or flaked off into the water, so that she drank the words of the curse – it became a part of her being.

[6] tn Heb "will be free"; the words "of ill effects" have been supplied as a clarification.

[7] tn Heb "law of jealousies."

[8] sn The text does not say what the consequences are. Presumably the punishment would come from God, and not from those administering the test.

[9] tn The word "iniquity" can also mean the guilt for the iniquity as well as the punishment of consequences for the iniquity. These categories of meanings grew up through figurative usage (metonymies). Here the idea is that if she is guilty then she must "bear the consequences."

[10] sn This chapter can be divided into five sections: The vow is described in vv. 1-8, then the contingencies for defilement are enumerated in vv. 9-12, then there is a discussion of discharging the vows in vv. 13-20, and then a summary in v. 21; after this is the high priestly blessing (vv. 22-27). For information on the vow, see G. B. Gray, "The Nazirite," JTS 1 (1899-1900): 201-11; Z. Weisman, "The Biblical Nazirite, Its Types and Roots," Tarbiz 36 (1967): 207-20; and W. Eichrodt, Theology of the Old Testament (OTL), 1:303-6.

[11] tn The formula is used here again: "a man or a woman – when he takes." The vow is open to both men and women.

[12] tn The vow is considered special in view of the use of the verb יִפְלֶא (yafli'), the Hiphil imperfect of the verb "to be wonderful, extraordinary."

[13] tn The construction uses the infinitive construct followed by the cognate accusative: "to vow a vow." This intensifies the idea that the vow is being taken carefully.

[14] tn The name of the vow is taken from the verb that follows; נָזַר (nazar) means "to consecrate oneself," and so the Nazirite is a consecrated one. These are folks who would make a decision to take an oath for a time or for a lifetime to be committed to the LORD and show signs of separation from the world. Samuel was to be a Nazirite, as the fragment of the text from Qumran confirms – "he will be a נָזִיר (nazir) forever" (1 Sam 1:22).

[15] tn The form of the verb is an Hiphil infinitive construct, forming the wordplay and explanation for the name Nazirite. The Hiphil is here an internal causative, having the meaning of "consecrate oneself" or just "consecrate to the LORD."

[16] tn The operative verb now will be the Hiphil of נָזַר (nazar); the consecration to the LORD meant separation from certain things in the world. The first will be wine and strong drink – barley beer (from Akkadian sikaru, a fermented beer). But the second word may be somewhat wider in its application than beer. The Nazirite, then, was to avoid all intoxicants as a sign of his commitment to the LORD. The restriction may have proved a hardship in the daily diet of the one taking the vow, but it spoke a protest to the corrupt religious and social world that used alcohol to excess.

[17] tn The "vinegar" (חֹמֶץ, homets) is some kind of drink preparation that has been allowed to go sour.

[18] tn This word occurs only here. It may come from the word "to water, to be moist," and so refer to juice.

[19] tn Heb "dried" (so KJV, ASV, NRSV).

6:4 All the days of his separation he must not eat anything that is produced by the grapevine, from seed[1] to skin.[2]

6:5 "'All the days of the vow[3] of his separation no razor may be used on his head[4] until the time[5] is fulfilled for which he separated himself to the LORD. He will be holy,[6] and he must let[7] the locks of hair on his head grow long.

6:6 "'All the days that he separates himself to the LORD he must not contact[8] a dead body.[9] 6:7 He must not defile himself even[10] for his father or his mother or his brother or his sister if they die,[11] because the separation[12] for[13] his God is on his head. 6:8 All the days of his separation he must be holy to the LORD.

Contingencies for Defilement

6:9 "'If anyone dies very suddenly[14] beside him and he defiles[15] his consecrated head,[16] then he must shave his head on the day of his purification – on the seventh day he must shave it. 6:10 On the eighth day he is to bring[17] two turtledoves or two young pigeons to the priest, to the entrance to the tent of meeting. 6:11 Then the priest will offer one for a purification offering[18] and the other[19] as a burnt offering,[20] and make atonement[21] for him, because of his transgression[22] in regard to the corpse. So he must reconsecrate[23] his head on that day. 6:12 He must rededicate[24] to the LORD the days of his separation and bring a male lamb in its first year as a

1 tn This word also is rare, occurring only here.

2 sn Here is another hapax legomenon, a word only found here. The word seems linked to the verb "to be clear," and so may mean the thin skin of the grape. The reason for the strictness with these two words in this verse is uncertain. We know the actual meanings of the words, and the combination must form a merism here, meaning no part of the grape could be eaten. Abstaining from these common elements of food was to be a mark of commitment to the LORD. Hos 3:1 even denounces the raisin cakes as part of a pagan world, and eating them would be a violation of the oath.

3 tc The parallel expression in v. 8 ("all the days of his separation") lacks the word "vow." This word is also absent in v. 5 in a few medieval Hebrew manuscripts. The presence of the word in v. 5 may be due to dittography.

4 sn There is an interesting parallel between this prohibition and the planting of trees. They could not be pruned or trimmed for three years, but allowed to grow free (Lev 20:23). Only then could the tree be cut and the fruit eaten. The natural condition was to be a sign that it was the LORD's. It was to be undisturbed by humans. Since the Nazirite was to be consecrated to the LORD, that meant his whole person, hair included. In the pagan world the trimming of the beard and the cutting of the hair was often a sign of devotion to some deity.

5 tn Heb "days."

6 tn The word "holy" here has the sense of distinct, different, set apart.

7 tn The Piel infinitive absolute functions as a verb in this passage; the Piel carries the sense of "grow lengthy" or "let grow long."

8 tn The Hebrew verb is simply "enter, go," no doubt with the sense of go near.

9 tn The Hebrew has נֶפֶשׁ מֵת (nefesh met), literally a "dead person." But since the word נֶפֶשׁ can also be used for animals, the restriction would be for any kind of corpse. Death was very much a part of the fallen world, and so for one so committed to the LORD, avoiding all such contamination would be a witness to the greatest separation, even in a family.

10 tn The vav (ו) conjunction at the beginning of the clause specifies the cases of corpses that are to be avoided, no matter how painful it might be.

11 tn The construction uses the infinitive construct with the preposition and the suffixed subjective genitive – "in the dying of them" – to form the adverbial clause of time.

sn The Nazirite would defile himself, i.e., ruin his vow, by contacting their corpses. Jesus' hard saying in Matt 8:22, "let the dead bury their own dead," makes sense in the light of this passage – Jesus was calling for commitment to himself.

12 tn The word "separation" here is metonymy of adjunct – what is on his head is long hair that goes with the vow.

13 tn The genitive could perhaps be interpreted as possession, i.e., "the vow of his God," but it seems more likely that an objective genitive would be more to the point.

14 tn The construction uses the imperfect tense followed by the infinitive absolute, יָמוּת מַת (yamut met). Because the verb is in a conditional clause, the emphasis that is to be given through the infinitive must stress the contingency. The point is "if someone dies – unexpectedly." The next words underscore the suddenness of this.

15 tn The verb is the Piel perfect with a vav (ו) consecutive; it continues the idea within the conditional clause.

16 sn The expression is figurative for the vow that he took; the figure is the metonymy because the reference to the head is a reference to the long hair that symbolizes the oath.

17 tn The imperfect tense in this verse is still instructional rather than a simple future. The translations can vary, but the point that it is directive must be caught.

18 tn The traditional translation of חַטָּאת (khatta't) is "sin offering," but it is more precise to render it "purification offering" (as with the other names of sacrifices) to show the outcome, not the cause of the offering (see Lev 4). Besides, this offering was made for ritual defilements (for which no confession was required) as well as certain sins (for which a confession of sin was required). This offering restored the person to the ritual state of purity by purifying the area into which he would be going.

19 tn The repetition of "the one...and the one" forms the distributive sense of "the one...and the other."

20 tn The burnt offering (Lev 1) reflects the essence of atonement: By this sacrifice the worshiper was completely surrendering to God, and God was completely accepting the worshiper.

21 tn The verb וְכִפֶּר (v^{e}khipper) is the Piel perfect with vav (ו) consecutive. The meaning of the verb is "to expiate, pacify, atone." It refers to the complete removal of the barrier of fellowship between the person and God, and the total acceptance of that person into his presence. The idea of "to cover," often linked to this meaning, is derived from a homonym, and not from this word and its usage.

22 tn The verb "to sin" has a wide range of meanings, beginning with the idea of "missing the way or the goal." In view of the nature of this case – the prescribed ritual without confession – the idea is more that he failed to keep the vow's stipulations in this strange circumstance than that he committed intentional sin.

23 tn The verb simply means "to consecrate," but because it refers to a vow that was interrupted, it must here mean to "reconsecrate."

24 tn The same idea is to be found now in the use of the word נָזַר (nazar), which refers to a recommitment after the vow was interrupted.

reparation offering,[1] but the former days will not be counted[2] because his separation[3] was defiled.

Fulfilling the Vows

6:13 "'Now this is the law of the Nazirite: When the days of his separation are fulfilled, he must be brought[4] to the entrance of the tent of meeting, 6:14 and he must present his offering[5] to the LORD: one male lamb in its first year without blemish for a burnt offering, one ewe lamb in its first year without blemish for a purification offering, one ram without blemish for a peace offering,[6] 6:15 and a basket of bread made without yeast, cakes of fine flour mixed with olive oil, wafers made without yeast and smeared with olive oil, and their[7] grain offering and their drink offerings.[8]

6:16 "'Then the priest must present all these[9] before the LORD and offer[10] his purification offering and his burnt offering. 6:17 Then he must offer the ram as a peace offering[11] to the LORD, with the basket of bread made without yeast; the priest must also offer his grain offering and his drink offering.

6:18 "'Then the Nazirite must shave his consecrated head[12] at the entrance to the tent of meeting and must take the hair from his consecrated head and put it on the fire[13] where the peace offering is burning.[14] 6:19 And the priest must take the boiled shoulder of the ram, one cake made without yeast from the basket, and one wafer made without yeast, and put them on the hands of the Nazirite after he has shaved his consecrated head;[15] 6:20 then the priest must wave them as a wave offering[16] before the LORD; it is a holy portion for the priest, together with the breast of the wave offering and the thigh of the raised offering.[17] After this the Nazirite may drink[18] wine.'

6:21 "This is the law[19] of the Nazirite who vows to the LORD his offering according to his separation, as well as whatever else he can provide.[20] Thus he must fulfill[21] his vow that he makes, according to the law of his separation."

[1] tn The necessity of bringing the reparation offering was due to the reinstatement into the vow that had been interrupted.

[2] tn Heb "will fall"; KJV "shall be lost"; ASV, NASB, NRSV "shall be void."

[3] tc The similar expression in v. 9 includes the word "head" (i.e., "his consecrated head"). The LXX includes this word in v. 12 as well.

[4] tn The Hebrew text has "he/one shall bring him"; since there is no expressed subject, this verb should be taken in the passive sense – "he shall be brought." Since the context suggests an obligatory nuance, the translation "he must be brought" has been used. Some scholars solve the problem by emending the Hebrew text here, but there is no manuscript evidence to support the emendation.

[5] tn Heb "he shall offer his offering" – the object is a cognate accusative.

[6] sn The peace offering שְׁלָמִים (shᵉlamim) is instructed in Lev 3 and 7. The form is always in the plural. It was a sacrifice that celebrated the fact that the worshiper was at peace with God, and was not offered in order to make peace with God. The peace offering was essentially a communal meal in the presence of God. Some have tried to equate this offering with similar sounding names in Akkadian and Ugaritic (see B. A. Levine, In the Presence of the LORD [SJLA], 3-52), but the unique features of the Israelite sacrifice make this connection untenable.

[7] tn The suffixes in the MT are plural in this verse, whereas in v. 17 they are singular. This seems to be a matter of stylistic choice, referring to whomever may be taking the vow.

[8] sn The offerings for the termination of the Nazirite vow would not have been inexpensive. This indicates that the person making the short term vow may have had income, or have come from a wealthier section of society. Short term vows had to be considered carefully as this ruling required a good amount of food to be brought.

[9] tn "all these" is supplied as the object.

[11] tn The "peace offering" is usually written as "a sacrifice of peace" (זֶבַח שְׁלָמִים, zevakh shᵉlamim). The word "sacrifice" is related to the word "to slaughter," and so indicates that this is a bloody offering in celebration of peace with God.

[12] tn Some versions simply interpret this to say that he shaves his hair, for it is the hair that is the sign of the consecration to God. But the text says he shaves his consecrated head. The whole person is obviously consecrated to God – not just the head. But the symbolic act of cutting the hair shows that the vow has been completed (see Acts 21:23-24). The understanding of the importance of the hair in the ancient world has been the subject of considerable study over the years (see R. de Vaux, Ancient Israel, 436; and J. A. Thompson, "Numbers," New Bible Commentary: Revised, 177).

[13] sn Some commentators see this burning of the hair as an offering (McNeile, Numbers, 35; G. B. Gray, Numbers [ICC], 68). But others probably with more foundation see it as destroying something that has served a purpose, something that if left alone might be venerated (see R. de Vaux, Israel, 436).

[14] tn Heb "which is under the peace offering." The verse does not mean that the hair had to be put under that sacrifice and directly on the fire.

[15] tn The line does not include the word "head"; it literally has "after the consecrating of himself his consecrated [head]." The infinitive construct is here functioning in the temporal clause with the suffix as the subject and the object following.

[16] sn The ritual of lifting the hands filled with the offering and waving them in the presence of the LORD was designed to symbolize the transfer of the offering to God in the sight of all. This concludes the worshiper's part; the offering now becomes the property of the priest – his priest's due (or "raised/heave offering").

[17] sn The "wave offering" may be interpreted as a "special gift" to be transferred to the LORD, and the "heave offering" as a "special contribution" to God – the priest's due. These two offerings have also inspired a good deal of study.

[18] tn The imperfect tense here would then have the nuance of permission. It is not an instruction at this point; rather, the prohibition has been lifted and the person is free to drink wine.

[19] tn Actually, "law" here means a whole set of laws, the basic rulings on this topic.

[20] tn Heb "whatever else his hand is able to provide." The imperfect tense has the nuance of potential imperfect – "whatever he can provide."

[21] tn Heb "according to the vow that he vows, so he must do."

The Priestly Benediction

6:22[1] The LORD spoke to Moses: 6:23 "Tell Aaron and his sons, 'This is the way[2] you are to bless[3] the Israelites. Say[4] to them:

6:24 "The LORD bless you[5] and protect[6] you;
6:25 The LORD make his face to shine upon you, and be gracious to you;[7] 6:26 The LORD lift up his countenance upon you[8]
and give you peace.'"

6:27 So they will put my name[9] on the Israelites, and I will bless them."

The Leader's Offerings

7:1[10] When Moses had completed setting up the tabernacle,[11] he anointed it and consecrated it and all its furnishings, and he anointed and consecrated the altar and all its utensils. 7:2 Then the leaders of Israel, the heads of their clans,[12] made an offering. They were the leaders of the tribes; they were the ones who had been supervising[13] the numbering. 7:3 They brought[14] their offering before the LORD, six covered carts[15] and twelve oxen – one cart for every two of the leaders, and an ox for each one; and they presented them in front of the tabernacle.

The Distribution of the Gifts

7:4 Then the LORD spoke to Moses: 7:5 "Receive these gifts[16] from them, that they may be[17] used in doing the work[18] of the tent of meeting;

---

[1] sn This brief section records the blessing of the priest, especially the high priest after he emerges from the holy of holies to bless the people (see Lev 9:22). The two main elements in the oracle are "grace and peace." It is probable that the Apostle Paul based his salutations on this oracle. For additional information, see L. J. Liebreich, "The Songs of Ascent and the Priestly Blessing," JBL 74 (1955): 33-36; P. D. Miller, "The Blessing of God: An Interpretation of Num 6:22-27," Int 29 (1975): 240-51; and A. Murtonen, "The Use and Meaning of the Words l^ebarek and b^erakah in the Old Testament," VT 9 (1959): 158-77.

[3] tn The Piel imperfect has the nuance of instruction. The particle "thus" explains that the following oracle is the form to use.

[4] tn Here is the only use of the verb אָמַר ('amar) as an infinitive absolute; it functions as a verb form, an imperative or an imperfect of instruction. Several commentators have attempted to emend the text to get around the difficulty, but such emendations are unnecessary.

[5] tn The short blessing uses the jussive throughout, here the Piel jussive with a pronominal suffix. While the jussive has quite a range of nuances, including wish, desire, prayer, or greeting, the jussives here are stronger. The formal subject of the verb is the LORD, and the speaker pronouncing the blessing is the priest, notably after emerging from the holy of holies where atonement has been made. The LORD says in this passage that when the priest says this, then the LORD will bless them. The jussive then is an oracle, not a wish or a prayer. It is a declaration of what the LORD imparts. It is as binding and sure as a patriarchal blessing which once said officially could not be taken back. The priest here is then pronouncing the word of the LORD, declaring to the congregation the outcome of the atonement.

[6] tn The verb "to keep" concerns the divine protection of the people; its basic meaning is "to exercise great care over," "to guard," or "to give attention to" (see TWOT 2:939). No doubt the priestly blessing informed the prayer and promise that makes up Ps 121, for the verb occurs six times in the eight verses. So in addition to the divine provision ("bless" basically means "enrich" in a number of ways) there is the assurance of divine protection.

[7] tn Whereas the first line of the blessing had three Hebrew words, the second has five, and the third has seven. In this second line and the following third, the blessing takes the form of an emblem followed by the truth. For the LORD to make his face shine on them would mean to be gracious to them. M. Noth rightly calls this image of the shining face "a figure of speech for benevolence and favour" (Numbers [OTL], 59); see, for example, Pss 4:6; 31:16; 44:3; 67:1; 80:3, 7, 19; 119:135; Dan 9:17). The image may have its inspiration in the theophanies. The picture is of divine favor – the beaming face of a parent for his beloved.

[8] tn The last line of the blessing also has first the image and then the parallel interpretation – for God to lift up his face is for God to give peace. The idea of the fallen face is one of anger (see Gen 4:6,7); and the idea of the hidden face is that of withholding support, favor, or peace (see Deut 31:18; Ps 30:8; Ps 44:25). If God lifts his face toward his people, it means he has given them peace – peace, prosperity, completeness, health, safety, general well-being, and the like.

[9] tn The idea of their putting the name of Yahweh on the people is somewhat problematic. The pronouncing of the name of Yahweh in this context over the people was taken to be the effectual means of blessings. "Putting the name on them" is an expression that emphasizes the truth that he is their God and they are his people or that having his name is having his blessing.

[10] sn This long and repetitious chapter has several parts to it: the introduction (vv. 1-3), the assigning of gifts (vv. 4-9), the time of presentation (vv. 10-11), and then the tribes (vv. 12-83), and then a summary (vv. 84-89).

[11] tn The construction of this line begins with the temporal indicator (traditionally translated "and it came to pass") and then after the idiomatic "in the day of" (= "when") uses the Piel infinitive construct from כָּלָה (kalah). The infinitive is governed by the subjective genitive, "Moses," the formal subject of the clause. The object of the infinitive is the second infinitive, "to set up" (לְהָקִים, l^ehaqim). This infinitive, the Hiphil, serves as the direct object, answering the question of what it was that Moses completed. The entire clause is an adverbial clause of time.

sn This chapter belongs chronologically after Lev 8:11, because Aaron and his sons were not yet made the celebrants and officiants of the new shrine (completed in Exodus). Here then chapters 7-9 are actually earlier than chapters 1-6, and form a supplement by adding information not found in Exodus and Leviticus. The first verse here recapitulates the first act of Moses in consecrating the shrine (Exod 30:23-31).

[12] tn Heb "the house of their fathers."

[13] tn The form is the Qal active participle from the verb "to stand" (עָמַד, 'amad). The form describes these leaders as "the ones standing over [the ones numbered]." The expression, along with the clear indication of the first census in chapter 1, shows that this was a supervisory capacity.

[14] tn Heb "and they brought."

[15] sn For a discussion and drawings, see W. S. McCullough, IDB 1:540. But see also D. J. Wiseman, IBD 1:254.

[16] tn The object is not in the Hebrew text, but has been supplied.

[17] tn The verb is the perfect tense with vav (ו) consecutive; following the imperative, this could be given an independent volitive translation ("they shall be"), but more fittingly a subordinated translation expressing the purpose of receiving the gifts.

[18] tn The sentence uses the infinitive construct expressing purpose, followed by its cognate accusative: "[that they may be] for doing the work of" (literally, "serving the service of").

and you must give them to the Levites, to every man[1] as his service requires."[2]

7:6 So Moses accepted the carts and the oxen and gave them to the Levites. 7:7 He gave two carts and four oxen to the Gershonites, as their service required; 7:8 and he gave four carts and eight oxen to the Merarites, as their service required, under the authority[3] of Ithamar son of Aaron the priest. 7:9 But to the Kohathites he gave none, because the service of the holy things, which they carried[4] on their shoulders, was their responsibility.[5]

The Time of Presentation

7:10 The leaders offered[6] gifts[7] for[8] the dedication[9] of the altar when it was anointed.[10] And the leaders presented[11] their offering before the altar. 7:11 For the LORD said to Moses, "They must present their offering, one leader for each day,[12] for the dedication of the altar."

The Tribal Offerings

7:12 The one who presented his offering on the first day was Nahshon son of Amminadab, from the tribe of Judah.[13] 7:13 His offering was one silver platter weighing 130 shekels,[14] and one silver sprinkling bowl weighing 70 shekels, both according to the sanctuary shekel, each of them full of fine flour mixed with olive oil as a grain offering; 7:14 one gold pan weighing 10 shekels, full of incense; 7:15 one young bull, one ram, and one male lamb in its first year, for a burnt offering; 7:16 one male goat for a purification offering; 7:17 and for the sacrifice of peace offerings: two bulls, five rams, five male goats, and five male lambs in their first year. This was the offering of Nahshon son of Amminadab.

7:18 On the second day Nethanel son of Zuar, leader of Issachar, presented an offering. 7:19 He offered for his offering one silver platter weighing 130 shekels and one silver sprinkling bowl weighing 70, both according to the sanctuary shekel, each of them full of fine flour mixed with olive oil as a grain offering; 7:20 one gold pan weighing 10 shekels, full of incense; 7:21 one young bull, one ram, and one male lamb in its first year, for a burnt offering; 7:22 one male goat for a purification offering; 7:23 and for the sacrifice of peace offerings: two bulls, five rams, five male goats, and five male lambs in their first year. This was the offering of Nethanel son of Zuar.

7:24 On the third day Eliab son of Helon, leader of the Zebulunites, presented an offering.[15] 7:25 His offering was one silver platter weighing 130 shekels and one silver sprinkling bowl weighing 70 shekels, both according to the sanctuary shekel, each of them full of fine flour mixed with olive oil as a grain offering; 7:26 one gold pan weighing 10 shekels, full of incense; 7:27 one young bull, one ram, and one male lamb in its first year, for a burnt offering; 7:28 one male goat for a purification offering; 7:29 and for the sacrifice of peace offerings: two bulls, five rams, five male goats, and five male lambs in their first year. This was the offering of Eliab son of Helon.

7:30 On the fourth day Elizur son of Shedeur, leader of the Reubenites, presented an offering. 7:31 His offering was one silver platter weighing 130 shekels and one silver sprinkling bowl weighing 70 shekels, both according to the sanctuary shekel, each of them full of fine flour mixed with olive oil as a grain offering; 7:32 one gold pan weighing 10 shekels, full of incense; 7:33 one young bull, one ram, and one male lamb in its first year, for a burnt offering; 7:34 one male goat for a purification offering; 7:35 and for the sacrifice of peace offerings: two bulls, five rams, five male goats, and five male lambs in their first year. This was the offering of Elizur son of Shedeur.

7:36 On the fifth day Shelumiel son of Zurishaddai, leader of the Simeonites, presented an offering. 7:37 His offering was one silver platter weighing 130 shekels and one silver sprinkling bowl weighing 70 shekels, both according to the sanctuary shekel, each of them

1 tn The noun אִישׁ ('ish) is in apposition to the word "Levites," and is to be taken in a distributive sense: "to the Levites, [to each] man according to his service."

2 tn The expression כְּפִי (kefi) is "according to the mouth of." Here, it would say "according to the mouth of his service," which would mean "what his service calls for."

3 tn Heb "hand."

4 tn The verb is the imperfect tense, but it describes their customary activity – they had to carry, they used to carry.

5 tn Heb "upon them," meaning "their duty."

6 tn The verse begins with the preterite and vav (ו) consecutive: "and they offered."

7 tn The direct object, "gifts," is implied but not actually stated in the Hebrew text. It has been supplied in the translation for stylistic reasons and for clarity.

8 tn The sign of the accusative here must indicate an adverbial accusative and not the direct object; they offered their gifts for the dedication of the altar.

9 sn Some commentators take the word "dedication" in the sense of a dedication gift, and so make it the direct object. Many modern scholars assume that this is a late word, belonging only in P, the Chronicler, and the heading of Ps 30 (a Davidic psalm).

10 tn The adverbial clause uses the Niphal infinitive construct as the main verb. The word is the well-known מָשַׁח (mashakh, "to anoint, smear").

11 tn Heb "offered," but this is redundant and has been translated as "presented" for stylistic reasons. The same phrase occurs in vv. 11 and 12.

12 tn The distributive sense is achieved by repetition: "one leader for the day, one leader for the day."

13 sn The tribe of Judah is listed first. It seems that it had already achieved a place of prominence based on the patriarchal promise of the Messiahship in Judah (Gen 49:10).

14 tn The word "shekels" has been supplied in the translation for clarity. So also in vv. 19, 20, 25, 26, 31, 32, 37, 38, 43, 44, 49, 50, 55, 56, 60, 62, 66, 68, 73, 74, 79, 85, 86.

15 tn The phrase "presented an offering" is not found in the Hebrew text at this point but has been supplied to clarify what action is being done. The same phrase is absent from the Hebrew text in the following verses which tell who makes the offerings (7:30, 36, 42, 48, 54, 60, 66, 72, 78).

full of fine flour mixed with olive oil as a grain offering; 7:38 one gold pan weighing 10 shekels; 7:39 one young bull, one ram, and one male lamb in its first year, for a burnt offering; 7:40 one male goat for a purification offering; 7:41 and for the sacrifice of peace offerings: two bulls, five rams, five male goats, and five lambs in their first year. This was the offering of Sheloumiel son of Zurishaddai.

7:42 On the sixth day Eliasaph son of Deuel, leader of the Gadites, presented an offering. 7:43 His offering was one silver platter weighing 130 shekels and one silver sprinkling bowl weighing 70 shekels, both according to the sanctuary shekel, each of them full of fine flour mixed with olive oil as a grain offering; 7:44 one gold pan weighing 10 shekels; 7:45 one young bull, one ram, and one male lamb in its first year, for a burnt offering; 7:46 one male goat for a purification offering; 7:47 and for the sacrifice of peace offerings: two bulls, five rams, five male goats, and five lambs in their first year. This was the offering of Eliasaph son of Deuel.

7:48 On the seventh day Elishama son of Ammihud, leader of the Ephraimites, presented an offering. 7:49 His offering was one silver platter weighing 130 shekels and one silver sprinkling bowl weighing 70 shekels, both according to the sanctuary shekel, each of them full of fine flour mixed with olive oil as a grain offering; 7:50 one gold pan weighing 10 shekels, full of incense; 7:51 one young bull, one ram, and one male lamb in its first year, for a burnt offering; 7:52 one male goat for a purification offering; 7:53 and for the sacrifice of peace offerings: two bulls, five rams, five male goats, and five lambs in their first year. This was the offering of Elishama son of Ammihud.

7:54 On the eighth day Gamaliel son of Pedahzur, leader of the Manassehites, presented an offering. 7:55 His offering was one silver platter weighing 130 shekels and one silver sprinkling bowl weighing 70 shekels, both according to the sanctuary shekel, each of them full of fine flour mixed with olive oil as a grain offering; 7:56 one gold pan weighing 10 shekels, full of incense; 7:57 one young bull, one ram, and one male lamb in its first year, for a burnt offering; 7:58 one male goat for a purification offering; 7:59 and for the sacrifice of peace offerings: two bulls, five rams, five male goats, and five lambs in their first year. This was the offering of Gamaliel son of Pedahzur.

7:60 On the ninth day Abidan son of Gideoni, leader of the Benjaminites, presented an offering. 7:61 His offering was one silver platter weighing 130 shekels and one silver sprinkling bowl weighing 70 shekels, both according to the sanctuary shekel, each of them full of fine flour mixed with olive oil as a grain offering; 7:62 one gold pan weighing 10 shekels, full of incense; 7:63 one young bull, one ram, and one male lamb in its first year, for a burnt offering; 7:64 one male goat for a purification offering; 7:65 and for the sacrifice of peace offerings: two bulls, five rams, five male goats, and five lambs in their first year. This was the offering of Abidan son of Gideoni.

7:66 On the tenth day Ahiezer son of Ammishaddai, leader of the Danites, presented an offering. 7:67 His offering was one silver platter weighing 130 shekels and one silver sprinkling bowl weighing 70 shekels, both according to the sanctuary shekel, each of them full of fine flour mixed with olive oil as a grain offering; 7:68 one gold pan weighing 10 shekels, full of incense; 7:69 one young bull, one ram, and one male lamb in its first year, for a burnt offering; 7:70 one male goat for a purification offering; 7:71 and for the sacrifice of peace offerings: two bulls, five rams, five male goats, and five lambs in their first year. This was the offering of Ahiezer son of Ammishaddai.

7:72 On the eleventh day Pagiel son of Ocran, leader of the Asherites, presented an offering. 7:73 His offering was one silver platter weighing 130 shekels and one silver sprinkling bowl weighing 70 shekels, both according to the sanctuary shekel, each of them full of fine flour mixed with olive oil as a grain offering; 7:74 one gold pan weighing 10 shekels, full of incense; 7:75 one young bull, one ram, and one male lamb in its first year, for a burnt offering; 7:76 one male goat for a purification offering; 7:77 and for the sacrifice of peace offerings: two bulls, five rams, five male goats, and five lambs in their first year. This was the offering of Pagiel son of Ocran.

7:78 On the twelfth day Ahira son of Enan, leader of the Naphtalites, presented an offering. 7:79 His offering was one silver platter weighing 130 shekels and one silver sprinkling bowl weighing 70 shekels, both according to the sanctuary shekel, each of them full of fine flour mixed with olive oil as a grain offering; 7:80 one gold pan weighing 10 shekels; 7:81 one young bull, one ram, and one male lamb in its first year, for a burnt offering; 7:82 one male goat for a purification offering; 7:83 and for the sacrifice of peace offerings: two bulls, five rams, five male goats, and five lambs in their first year. This was the offering of Ahira son of Enan.

Summary

7:84 This was the dedication for the altar from the leaders of Israel, when it was anointed: twelve silver platters, twelve silver sprinkling bowls, and twelve gold pans. 7:85 Each silver platter weighed 130 shekels, and each silver sprinkling bowl weighed 70 shekels. All the silver of the vessels weighed 2,400 shekels, according to the sanctuary shekel. 7:86 The twelve gold pans full of incense weighed 10 shekels each, according to the sanctuary shekel; all the gold of the pans weighed 120

shekels. 7:87 All the animals for the burnt offering were 12 young bulls, 12 rams, 12 male lambs in their first year, with their grain offering, and 12 male goats for a purification offering. 7:88 All the animals for the sacrifice for the peace offering were 24 young bulls, 60 rams, 60 male goats, and 60 lambs in their first year. These were the dedication offerings for the altar after it was anointed.[1]

7:89 Now when Moses went into[2] the tent of meeting to speak with the LORD,[3] he heard the voice speaking to him from above the atonement lid[4] that was on the ark of the testimony, from between the two cherubim.[5] Thus he spoke to him.

Lighting the Lamps

8:1[6] The LORD spoke to Moses: 8:2 "Speak to Aaron and tell him, 'When you set up[7] the lamps, the seven lamps are to give light[8] in front of the lampstand.'"

8:3 And Aaron did so; he set up the lamps to face toward the front of the lampstand, as the LORD commanded Moses. 8:4 This is how the lampstand was made:[9] It was beaten work in gold;[10] from its shaft to its flowers it was beaten work. According to the pattern which the LORD had shown Moses, so he made the lampstand.

The Separation of the Levites

8:5 Then the LORD spoke to Moses: 8:6 "Take the Levites from among the Israelites and purify[11] them. 8:7 And do this[12] to them to purify them: Sprinkle water of purification[13] on them; then have them shave[14] all their body[15] and wash[16] their clothes, and so purify themselves.[17]

1 sn Even though the chapter seems wearisome and repetitious to the modern reader, it is a significant document. A. Rainey shows how it matches the exact ledgers of ancient sanctuaries (see ZPEB 5:202). The recording would have been done by the priestly scribes. Of the many points that can be observed here, it should not be missed that each tribe, regardless of its size or relative importance, was on equal footing before the LORD. Each tribe shared in the work of the LORD equally. Each tribe approached the sanctuary in precisely the same way on this memorable occasion. All such devotion to the work of the LORD was to receive the blessing of God.

2 tn The adverbial clause of time is constructed with the infinitive construct of the verb "to enter" (בּוֹא, bo') with the preposition and with the subjective genitive that follows serving as the subject of the clause. The verse is strategic in the structure of the book: At the completion of the dedication with the offerings Moses received more revelation from the LORD in the tent. This verse therefore lays the foundation for what follows.

3 tc The MT is obscure here, simply giving the purpose infinitive and the prepositional phrase ("with him"). But the following clause using the Hitpael of the same verb, introducing a reflexive sense: "then he heard the voice speaking with him." The Greek clarified it by inserting "Lord" after the word "voice." The editor of BHS favors emendation of the form to a Piel participle rather than the Hitpael of the MT (reading מְדַבֵּר [m^{e}dabber] instead of מִתְדַּבֵּר [middabber], the Hitpael with assimilation). Most commentators agree with the change, assuming there was a mistaken pointing in the MT.

4 tn The Hebrew word כַּפֹּרֶת (kapporet) has been traditionally rendered "mercy seat," but since the ark is the footstool (see Ps 132), this translation is somewhat misleading. The word is etymologically connected to the verb "to make atonement." A technical translation would be "place of atonement" or "propitiatory"; a more common translation would be "cover, lid" – provided that the definition "to cover" does not get transferred to the verb "to atone," for that idea belongs to a homonym. See also Exod 25:17.

5 tn The cherubim are the carved forms of the angels attached to the ark. They indicate the guarding role of this order of angels in the holy of holies. They were also embroidered on the curtains. For basic material see ZPEB 1:788-90, and R. K. Harrison, ISBE 1:642-43.

6 sn This chapter has three main sections to it: the lighting of the lamps (vv. 1-4), the separation of the Levites (vv. 5-22), and the work of the Levites (vv. 23-26). Many modern scholars assume that the chapter belongs to P and was added late. But the chapter reiterates some of the Mosaic material concerning the work of the Levites in the new sanctuary. For the chapter to make sense the historical setting must be accepted; if the historical setting is accepted, the chapter is necessary as part of that early legislation. For more reading, see M. Haran, "The Nature of the*'ohel mo'edh* in the Pentateuchal Sources," JSS 5 (1960): 50-65, and "The Priestly Image of the Tabernacle," HUCA 36 (1965): 191-226; and C. L. Meyers, The Tabernacle Menorah.

7 tn The verb is עָלָה ('alah). The Hiphil infinitive construct functions in a temporal clause. The idea of arranging the lamps on the lampstand certainly involved raising the lamps and placing them on the tops of each shaft and branch. Some have taken the idea to mean cause the flame to go up, or light the lamps.

8 tn The imperfect tense forms part of the instruction, and so the translation has to indicate that. The instruction would seem obvious, but the light was to shine in the area immediately in front of the lampstand, so that it would illumine the way and illumine the table that was across the room (hence, "in front of").

9 tn The Hebrew text literally has "and this is the work of the lampstand," but that rendering does not convey the sense that it is describing how it was made.

10 sn The idea is that it was all hammered from a single plate of gold.

11 tn The verb טָהֵר (tahar) means that Moses was "to purify" or "to make ceremonially clean" the Levites so that they could enter the sanctuary and do the work prescribed for them. Whatever is "unclean" is not permitted in the sanctuary at all.

12 tn Or, more literally, "and thus you shall do." The verb is the imperfect tense of instruction or legislation. Here it introduces the procedures to be followed.

13 tn The genitive in this expression indicates the purpose of the water – it is for their purification. The expression is literally "the waters of sin." The word "purification" is the same as for the "sin/purification offering" – חַטָּאת (khatta'at). This water seems to have been taken from the main laver and is contrasted with the complete washing of the priests in Lev 8:6.

14 tn The verb is the Hiphil perfect with a vav (ו) of sequence. This verb, and those to follow, has the force of a jussive since it comes after the imperative. Here the instruction is for them to remove the hair from their bodies ("flesh"). There is no indication that this was repeated (as the Egyptian priests did every few days). It seems to have been for this special occasion only. A similar requirement was for the leper (Lev 14:7-9).

15 tn Heb "flesh."

16 tn Or "let/have them wash"; the priests were given new clothes (Lev 8:13), but the Levites simply washed their own.

17 tn The verb is a reflexive (or possibly passive) in this verse, indicating the summary of the process. The ritual steps that have been prescribed will lead to this conclusion. The verb could be treated as a final imperfect (being a perfect with vav [ו] consecutive), and so translated "that they may...." The major difference here is that the ritual made the Levites "clean," whereas the ritual for the priests made them "holy" or "sanctified" (Lev 8:12).

8:8 Then they are to take a young bull with its grain offering of fine flour mixed with olive oil; and you are to take a second young bull for a purification offering.[1] 8:9 You are to bring the Levites before the tent of meeting and assemble the entire community of the Israelites. 8:10 Then you are to bring the Levites before the LORD, and the Israelites are to lay their hands on the Levites;[2] 8:11 and Aaron is to offer[3] the Levites before the LORD as a wave offering from the Israelites, that they may do the work[4] of the LORD. 8:12 When[5] the Levites lay their hands on the heads of the bulls, offer[6] the one for a purification offering and the other for a whole burnt offering to the LORD,[7] to make atonement for the Levites. 8:13 You are to have the Levites stand before Aaron[8] and his sons, and then offer them as a wave offering to the LORD. 8:14 And so[9] you are to separate the Levites from among the Israelites, and the Levites will be mine.

8:15 "After this, the Levites will go in[10] to do the work[11] of the tent of meeting. So you must cleanse them[12] and offer them like a wave offering.[13] 8:16 For they are entirely given[14] to me from among the Israelites. I have taken them for myself instead of[15] all who open the womb, the firstborn sons of all the Israelites. 8:17 For all the firstborn males among the Israelites are mine, both humans and animals; when I destroyed[16] all the firstborn in the land of Egypt I set them apart for myself. 8:18 So I have taken the Levites instead of all the firstborn sons among the Israelites. 8:19 I have given the Levites as a gift to Aaron and his sons from among the Israelites, to do the work for the Israelites in the tent of meeting, and to make atonement for the Israelites, so there will be no plague among the Israelites when the Israelites come near the sanctuary."[17]

8:20 So Moses and Aaron and the entire community of the Israelites did this with the Levites. According to all that the LORD commanded Moses concerning the Levites, this is what the Israelites did with them. 8:21 The Levites purified themselves[18] and washed their clothing; then Aaron presented them like a wave offering before the LORD, and Aaron made atonement for them to purify them. 8:22 After this, the Levites went in to do their work in the tent of meeting before Aaron and before his sons. As the LORD had commanded Moses concerning the Levites, so they did.

1 sn The first sacrifice was for the purification of the Levites. The second animal, which Moses was to take, would be used for the purification of the tabernacle from all pollution.

2 sn The consecration ceremony was to be done in full view of the assembled people. In all probability the laying on of the hands was done through representatives of the tribes, and not all the people. This ritual of the imposition of hands showed that the people were taking part in the consecration, and that the Levites represented them in the service of the LORD.

3 tn The Hebrew text actually has "wave the Levites as a wave offering." The wave offering was part of the ritual of the peace offering and indicated the priest's portion being presented to God in a lifted, waving motion for all to see. The Levites were going to be in the sanctuary to serve the LORD and assist the priests. It is unclear how Moses would have presented them as wave offerings, but the intent is that they would be living sacrifices, as Paul would later say in Rom 12:1 for all Christians.

4 tn The construction emphasizes the spiritual service of the Levites, using the infinitive construct of עָבַד ('avad) followed by its cognate accusative.

5 tn The clause begins with a vav (ו) on the noun "the Levites," indicating a disjunctive clause. Here it is clearly a subordinate clause prior to the instruction for Moses, and so translated as a circumstantial clause of time.

6 tn The imperative is from the verb "to do; to make," but in the sentence it clearly means to sacrifice the animals.

7 sn The "purification offering" cleansed the tabernacle from impurity, and the burnt offering atoned by nullifying and removing the effects of sin in the Levites.

8 tc The Greek text adds the LORD here: "before the LORD, before Aaron."

9 tn The vav (ו) consecutive on the perfect tense not only carries the nuance of instruction forward to this clause, but also marks this clause out as a summary of what has taken place, i.e., by doing all this ritual Moses will have separated the Levites from the people for God's own possession.

10 tn The imperfect tense could also be given the nuance of the imperfect of permission: "the Levites may go in."

11 tn Heb "to serve."

12 tn The two verbs in the rest of this verse are perfect tenses with vav (ו) consecutive constructions, making them equal to the imperfect. Some commentators try to get around the difficulty of repetition by making these future perfects, "and you will have cleansed," as opposed to a summary statement, "for thus you will cleanse...."

13 tc The Greek text adds "before the LORD."

14 tn As before, the emphasis is obtained by repeating the passive participle: "given, given to me."

15 tn Or "as substitutes" for all the firstborn of the Israelites.

16 tn The idiomatic "on the day of" precedes the infinitive construct of נָכָה (nakhah) to form the temporal clause: "in the day of my striking..." becomes "when I struck."

17 sn The firstborn were those that were essentially redeemed from death in Egypt when the blood was put on the doors. So in the very real sense they belonged to God (Exod 13:2,12). The firstborn was one who stood in special relationship to the father, being the successive offspring. Here, the Levites would stand in for the firstborn in that special role and special relationship. God also made it clear that the nation of Israel was his firstborn son (Exod 4:22-23), and so they stood in that relationship before all the nations. The tribe of Reuben was to have been the firstborn tribe, but in view of the presumptuous attempt to take over the leadership through pagan methods (Gen 35:22; 49:3-4), was passed over. The tribes of Levi and Simeon were also put down for their ancestors' activities, but sanctuary service was still given to Levi.

18 tn The verb is the Hitpael of חָטָא (khatta'). In this stem the meaning of the root "to sin" is likely to be connected to the noun "sin/purification" offering in a denominative sense, although some would take it as a privative usage, "to remove sin." The idea is clear enough: They performed all the ritual in order to purify themselves ceremonially.

The Work of the Levites

8:23 Then the LORD spoke to Moses: 8:24 "This is what pertains to the Levites:[1] At the age of twenty-five years[2] and upward one may begin to join the company[3] in the work of the tent of meeting, 8:25 and at the age of fifty years they must retire from performing the work and may no longer work. 8:26 They may assist[4] their colleagues[5] in the tent of meeting, to attend to needs, but they must do no work. This is the way you must establish[6] the Levites regarding their duties."

Passover Regulations

9:1[7] The LORD spoke to Moses in the wilderness of Sinai, in the first month of the second year after they had come out[8] of the land of Egypt:

9:2 "The Israelites are to observe[9] the Passover[10] at its appointed time.[11] 9:3 In the fourteenth day of this month, at twilight,[12] you are to observe it at its appointed time; you must keep[13] it in accordance with all its statutes and all its customs."[14] 9:4 So Moses instructed[15] the Israelites to observe[16] the Passover. 9:5 And they observed the Passover[17] on the fourteenth day of the first month at twilight in the wilderness of Sinai; in accordance with all that the LORD had commanded Moses, so the Israelites did.

9:6 It happened that some men[18] who were ceremonially defiled[19] by the dead body of a man[20] could not keep[21] the Passover on that day, so they came before Moses and before Aaron on that day. 9:7 And those men said to him, "We are ceremonially defiled by the dead body of a man; why are we kept back from offering the LORD's offering at its appointed time among the Israelites?" 9:8 So Moses said to them, "Remain[22] here and I will hear[23] what the LORD will command concerning you."

9:9 The LORD spoke to Moses: 9:10 "Tell the Israelites, 'If any[24] of you or of your posterity become ceremonially defiled by touching a dead body, or are on a journey far away, then he

1 tn The Hebrew text has "this [is that] which [pertains] to the Levites." "This is what concerns the Levites, meaning, the following rulings are for them."

2 tc The age of twenty-five indicated in v. 24 should be compared with the age of thirty indicated in Num 4:3,23,30. In order to harmonize the numbers given in chapter 4 with the number given in Num 8:24 the LXX (and perhaps its Hebrew Vorlage) has thirty in all of these references. See further G. J. Wenham, Numbers (TOTC 4), 97-98.

3 tn The infinitive is לִצְבֹּא (litsvo'), related to the word for "host, army, company," and so "to serve as a company." The meaning is strengthened by the cognate accusative following it.

4 tn The verb is the Piel perfect of שָׁרַת (sharat, "to serve, minister"). Here the form has the vav (ו) consecutive, and so is equal to the imperfect tense stressing permission. After the Levites reached the age of retirement, they were permitted to assist the others, but were not permitted to do the work themselves.

5 tn Heb "brothers," but the meaning in this context is "fellow Levites."

6 tn Heb "you shall do, make."

7 sn The chapter has just the two sections, the observance of the Passover (vv. 1-14) and the cloud that led the Israelites in the wilderness (vv. 15-23). It must be remembered that the material in vv. 7-9 is chronologically earlier than vv. 1-6, as the notices in the text will make clear. The two main discussions here are the last major issues to be reiterated before dealing with the commencement of the journey.

8 tn The temporal clause is formed with the infinitive construct of יָצָא (yatsa', "to go out; to leave"). This verse indicates that a full year had passed since the exodus and the original Passover; now a second ruling on the Passover is included at the beginning of the second year. This would have occurred immediately after the consecration of the tabernacle, in the month before the census at Sinai.

9 tn The verb is simply "to do; to make" (עָשָׂה ['asah] in the jussive). It must have the idea here of "to perform; to keep; to observe" the ritual of the Passover.

10 sn For a detailed study note on the Passover, see the discussion with the original institution in Exod 12. The word פֶּסַח (pesakh) – here in pause and with the article – has become the technical name for the spring festival of Israel. In Exod 12 the name is explained by the use of the verb "to pass over" (עָבַר, 'avar), indicating that the angel of death would pass over the house with the blood applied. Many scholarly attempts have been made to supply the etymology of the word, but none has been compelling enough to be accepted by a large number of biblical scholars. For general literature on the Passover, see J. B. Segal, The Hebrew Passover, as well as the Bible dictionaries and encyclopedias.

11 tc The Greek text uses a plural here but the singular in vv. 7 and 13; the Smr uses the plural in all three places.

12 tn The literal Hebrew expression is "between the evenings" (so also in vv. 5, 11). Sunset is certainly one evening; the other may refer to the change in the middle of the afternoon to the late afternoon, or the beginning of dusk. The idea is probably just at twilight, or dusk (see R. B. Allen, TWOT 2:694).

13 tn The two verbs in this verse are identical; they are imperfects of instruction. The English translation has been modified for stylistic variation.

14 tn The two words in this last section are standard "Torah" words. The word חֹק (khoq) is a binding statute, something engraved and monumental. The word מִשְׁפָּט (mishpat) means "judgment, decision," but with a more general idea of "custom" at its core. The verse is making it very clear that the Passover had to follow the custom and form that was legislated in Egypt.

15 tn Heb "spoke to."

16 tn The infinitive construct functions as the direct object of the preceding verb (a Hebrew complementary usage), answering the question of what he said.

17 tc The LXX omits this first clause; it also omits "at twilight."

18 tn In the Hebrew text the noun has no definite article, and so it signifies "some" or "certain" men.

19 tn The meaning, of course, is to be ceremonially unclean, and therefore disqualified from entering the sanctuary.

20 tn Or "a human corpse" (so NAB, NKJV). So also in v.7; cf. v. 10.

21 tn This clause begins with the vav (ו) conjunction and negative before the perfect tense. Here is the main verb of the sentence: They were not able to observe the Passover. The first part of the verse provides the explanation for their problem.

22 tn The verb is simply "stand," but in the more general sense of waiting to hear the answer.

23 tn The cohortative may be subordinated to the imperative: "stand...[that I] may hear."

24 tn This sense is conveyed by the repetition of "man" – "if a man, a man becomes unclean."

may[1] observe the Passover to the LORD. 9:11 They may observe it on the fourteenth day of the second month[2] at twilight; they are to eat it with bread made without yeast and with bitter herbs. 9:12 They must not leave any of it until morning, nor break any of its bones; they must observe it in accordance with every statute of the Passover.

9:13 But[3] the man who is ceremonially clean, and was not on a journey, and fails[4] to keep the Passover, that person must be cut off from his people.[5] Because he did not bring the LORD's offering at its appointed time, that man must bear his sin.[6] 9:14 If a resident foreigner lives[7] among you and wants to keep[8] the Passover to the LORD, he must do so according to the statute of the Passover, and according to its custom. You must have[9] the same[10] statute for the resident foreigner[11] and for the one who was born in the land.'"

The Leading of the Lord

9:15[12] On[13] the day that the tabernacle was set up,[14] the cloud[15] covered the tabernacle – the tent of the testimony[16] – and from evening until morning there was[17] a fiery appearance[18] over the tabernacle. 9:16 This is the way it used to be continually: The cloud would cover it by day,[19] and there was a fiery appearance by night. 9:17 Whenever the cloud was taken up[20] from the tabernacle, then after that the Israelites would begin their journey; and in whatever place[21] the cloud settled, there the Israelites would make camp. 9:18 At the commandment[22] of the LORD the Israelites would begin their journey, and at the commandment of the LORD they would make camp; as long as[23] the cloud remained settled over the tabernacle they would camp. 9:19 When the cloud remained over the tabernacle many days, then the Israelites obeyed the instructions[24] of the LORD and did not journey.

1 tn The perfect tense with vav (ו) consecutive functions as the equivalent of an imperfect tense. In the apodosis of this conditional sentence, the permission nuance fits well.

2 sn The delay of four weeks for such people would have permitted enough time for them to return from their journey, or to recover from any short termed defilement such as is mentioned here. Apart from this provision, the Passover was to be kept precisely at the proper time.

3 tn The disjunctive vav (ו) signals a contrastive clause here: "but the man" on the other hand....

4 tn The verb חָדַל (khadal) means "to cease; to leave off; to fail." The implication here is that it is a person who simply neglects to do it. It does not indicate that he forgot, but more likely that he made the decision to leave it undone.

5 sn The pronouncement of such a person's penalty is that his life will be cut off from his people. There are at least three possible interpretations for this: physical death at the hand of the community (G. B. Gray, Numbers [ICC], 84-85), physical and/or spiritual death at the hand of God (J. Milgrom, "A Prolegomenon to Lev 17:11," JBL 90 [1971]: 154-55), or excommunication or separation from the community (R. A. Cole, Exodus [TOTC], 109). The direct intervention of God seems to be the most likely in view of the lack of directions for the community to follow. Excommunication from the camp in the wilderness would have been tantamount to a death sentence by the community, and so there really are just two views.

6 tn The word for "sin" here should be interpreted to mean the consequences of his sin (so a metonymy of effect). Whoever willingly violates the Law will have to pay the consequences.

7 tn The words translated "resident foreigner" and "live" are from the same Hebrew root, גּוּר (gur), traditionally translated "to sojourn." The "sojourner" who "sojourns" is a foreigner, a resident alien, who lives in the land as a temporary resident with rights of land ownership.

8 tn The verb is the simple perfect tense with vav (ו) consecutive. It is therefore the equivalent to the imperfect that comes before it. The desiderative imperfect fits this usage well, since the alien is not required to keep the feast, but may indeed desire to do so.

9 tn The Hebrew text has "there will be to you," which is the way of expressing possession in Hebrew. Since this is legal instruction, the imperfect tense must be instruction or legislation.

10 tn Or "you must have one statute."

11 tn The conjunction is used here to specify the application of the law: "and for the resident foreigner, and for the one..." indicates "both for the resident foreigner and the one who...."

12 sn This section (Num 9:15-23) recapitulates the account in Exod 40:34 but also contains some additional detail about the cloud that signaled Israel's journeys. Here again material from the book of Exodus is used to explain more of the laws for the camp in motion.

13 tn Heb "and/now on the day."

14 tn The construction uses the temporal expression with the Hiphil infinitive construct followed by the object, the tabernacle. "On the day of the setting up of the tabernacle" leaves the subject unstated, and so the entire clause may be expressed in the passive voice.

15 sn The explanation and identification of this cloud has been a subject of much debate. Some commentators have concluded that it was identical with the cloud that led the Israelites away from Egypt and through the sea, but others have made a more compelling case that this is a different phenomenon (see ZPEB 4:796). A number of modern scholars see the description as a retrojection from later, perhaps Solomonic times (see G. H. Davies, IDB 3:817). Others have tried to connect it with Ugaritic terminology, but unconvincingly (see T. W. Mann, "The Pillar of Cloud in the Reed Sea Narrative," JBL 90 [1971]: 15-30; G. E. Mendenhall, The Tenth Generation, 32-66, 209-13; and R. Good, "Cloud Messengers?" UF 10 [1978]: 436-37).

16 sn The cloud apparently was centered over the tent, over the spot of the ark of the covenant in the most holy place. It thereafter spread over the whole tabernacle.

17 tn The imperfect tense in this and the next line should be classified as a customary imperfect, stressing incomplete action but in the past time – something that used to happen, or would happen.

18 tn Heb "like the appearance of fire."

19 tc The MT lacks the words "by day," but a number of ancient versions have this reading (e.g., Greek, Syriac, Tg. Ps.-J., Latin Vulgate).

20 tn The verb in this initial temporal clause is the Niphal infinitive construct.

21 tn Heb "in the place where it settled there"; the relative clause modifies the noun "place," and the resumptive adverb completes the related idea – "which it settled there" means "where it settled."

22 tn Heb "at the mouth of" (so also in vv. 20, 23).

23 tn Heb "all the days of – that the cloud settled over the tabernacle." "All" is the adverbial accusative of time telling how long they camped in one spot – all. The word is then qualified by the genitive of the thing measured – "all of the days" – and this in turn is qualified by a noun clause functioning as a genitive after "days of."

24 tn This is the same Hebrew expression that was used earlier for the Levites "keeping their charge" or more clearly, "fulfilling their obligations" to take care of the needs of the 9:20 When[1] the cloud remained over the tabernacle a number of days,[2] they remained camped according to the LORD's commandment,[3] and according to the LORD's commandment they would journey. 9:21 And when[4] the cloud remained only[5] from evening until morning, when the cloud was taken up[6] the following morning, then they traveled on. Whether by day or by night, when the cloud was taken up they traveled. 9:22 Whether it was for two days, or a month, or a year,[7] that the cloud prolonged its stay[8] over the tabernacle, the Israelites remained camped without traveling;[9] but when it was taken up, they traveled on. 9:23 At the commandment of the LORD they camped, and at the commandment of the LORD they traveled on; they kept the instructions of the LORD according to the commandment of the LORD, by the authority[10] of Moses.

The Blowing of Trumpets

10:1[11] The LORD spoke to Moses: 10:2 "Make[12] two trumpets of silver; you are to make[13] them from a single hammered piece.[14] You will use them[15] for assembling the community and for directing the traveling of the camps. 10:3 When[16] they blow[17] them both, all the community must come[18] to you to the entrance of the tent of meeting.

10:4 "But if they blow with one trumpet, then the leaders, the heads of the thousands of Israel, must come to you.[19] 10:5 When you blow an alarm,[20] then the camps that are located[21] on the east side must begin to travel.[22] 10:6 And when you blow an alarm the second time, then the camps that are located on the south side must begin to travel.[23] An alarm must be sounded[24] for their journeys. 10:7 But when you assemble the community,[25] you must blow, but you must not sound an alarm.[26] 10:8 The sons of Aaron, the priests, must blow the trumpets; and they will be to you for an eternal ordinance throughout your generations. 10:9 If you go to war in your land against an adversary who opposes[27] you, then you must sound an alarm with the trumpets, and you will be remembered before people and the sanctuary. It is a general expression using שָׁמַר (shamar) followed by its cognate noun מִשְׁמֶרֶת (mishmeret).

[1] tn The sentence uses וַיְהִי (vayhi) followed by a noun clause introduced with אֲשֶׁר ('asher) to express an existing situation; it is best translated as an adverbial clause of time: "and it was when the cloud was...."

[2] tn The word "number" is in apposition to the word "days" to indicate that their stay was prolonged for quite a few days.

[3] tn Heb "mouth of the LORD."

[4] tn The construction is the same in the preceding verse.

[5] tn "Only" is supplied to reflect the contrast between the two verses.

[6] tn The construction in this half of the verse uses two vav (ו) consecutive clauses. The first is subordinated to the second as a temporal clause: "when...then...."

[7] tn The MT has אוֹ־יָמִים ('o-yamim). Most translators use "or a year" to interpret this expression in view of the sequence of words leading up to it, as well as in comparison with passages like Judg 17:10 and 1 Sam 1:3 and 27:7. See also the uses in Gen 40:4 and 1 Kgs 17:15. For the view that it means four months, see F. S. North, "Four Month Season of the Hebrew Bible," VT 11 (1961): 446-48.

[8] tn In the Hebrew text this sentence has a temporal clause using the preposition with the Hiphil infinitive construct of אָרַךְ ('arakh) followed by the subjective genitive, "the cloud." But this infinitive is followed by the infinitive construct לִשְׁכֹּן (lishkon), the two of them forming a verbal hendiadys: "the cloud made long to stay" becomes "the cloud prolonged its stay."

[9] tn Heb "and they would not journey"; the clause can be taken adverbially, explaining the preceding verbal clause.

[10] tn Heb "hand."

[11] sn Here we have a short section (10:1-10) dealing with the regulations for blowing trumpets in times of war or in times of peace.

[12] tn The Hebrew text uses what is called the "ethical dative" – "make [for] you two trumpets." It need not be translated, but can simply be taken to underscore the direct imperative.

[13] tn The imperfect tense is again instruction or legislation.

[14] sn The instructions are not clearly spelled out here. But the trumpets were to be made of silver ingots beaten out into a sheet of silver and then bent to form a trumpet. There is archaeological evidence of silver smelting as early as 3000 B.C. Making silver trumpets would have been a fairly easy thing for the Israelites to do. The trumpet would have been straight, with a tapered form, very unlike the "ram's horn" (שׁוֹפָר, shofar). The trumpets were used by the priests in Israel from the outset, but later were used more widely. The sound would be sharp and piercing, but limited in scope to a few notes. See further C. Sachs, The History of Musical Instruments.

[15] tn Heb "and they shall be for you for assembling," which is the way of expressing possession. Here the intent concerns how Moses was to use them.

[16] tn The perfect tense with vav (ו) consecutive is here subordinated as a temporal clause to the following similar verbal construction.

[17] tn The verb תָּקַע (taqa') means "to strike, drive, blow a trumpet."

[18] tn Heb "the assembly shall assemble themselves."

[19] tn Heb "they shall assemble themselves."

[20] tn The word for an alarm is תְּרוּעָה (t^{e}ru'ah). The root verb of this word means "to give a blast on the trumpet." It may also on occasion mean "give a shout" in battle (Josh 6:10). In this passage it must refer to the sound of the trumpet.

[21] tn Heb "the camps that are camping."

[22] tn The perfect tense with vav (ו) consecutive functions as the equivalent of the imperfect tense. Here the emphasis is on the start of the journey.

[23] tc The MT does not mention the departures of the northerly and westerly tribes. The Greek text completes the description by adding them, making a full schedule of the departure of the groups of tribes. The Greek is not likely to be original, however, since it carries all the signs of addition to complete the text, making a smooth, full reading. The MT is to be preferred; it apparently used two of the groups to give the idea.

[24] tn The Hebrew text has "they shall blow an alarm"; the sentence without a formal subject should be taken as a passive idea.

[25] tn There is no expressed subject in the initial temporal clause. It simply says, "and in the assembling the assembly." But since the next verb is the second person of the verb, that may be taken as the intended subject here.

[26] sn The signal for moving camp was apparently different in tone and may have been sharper notes or a different sequence. It was in some way distinguishable.

[27] tn Both the "adversary" and "opposes" come from the same root: צָרַר (tsarar), "to hem in, oppress, harass," or basically, "be an adversary."

the LORD your God, and you will be saved[1] from your enemies.

10:10 "Also in the time when you rejoice, such as[2] on your appointed festivals or[3] at the beginnings of your months, you must blow with your trumpets over your burnt offerings and over the sacrifices of your peace offerings, so that they may[4] become[5] a memorial for you before your God: I am the LORD your God."

The Journey From Sinai to Kadesh

10:11[6] On the twentieth day of the second month, in the second year, the cloud was taken up from the tabernacle of the testimony.[7] 10:12 So the Israelites set out[8] on their journeys from the wilderness of Sinai; and the cloud settled in the wilderness of Paran.

Judah Begins the Journey

10:13 This was the first time they set out on their journey according to the commandment[9] of the LORD, by the authority[10] of Moses.

10:14 The standard[11] of the camp of the Judahites set out first according to their companies, and over his company was Nahshon son of Amminadab.

10:15 Over the company of the tribe of Issacharites was Nathanel son of Zuar, 10:16 and over the company of the tribe of the Zebulunites was Elion son of Helon. 10:17 Then the tabernacle was dismantled, and the sons of Gershon and the sons of Merari set out, carrying the tabernacle.

Journey Arrangements for the Tribes

10:18 The standard of the camp of Reuben set out according to their companies; over his company was Elizur son of Shedeur. 10:19 Over the company of the tribe of the Simeonites was Shelumiel son of Zurishaddai, 10:20 and over the company of the tribe of the Gadites was Eliasaph son of Deuel. 10:21 And the Kohathites set out, carrying the articles for the sanctuary;[12] the tabernacle was to be set up[13] before they arrived.[14] 10:22 And the standard of the camp of the Ephraimites set out according to their companies; over his company was Elishama son of Ammihud. 10:23 Over the company of the tribe of the Manassehites was Gamaliel son of Pedahzur, 10:24 and over the company of the tribe of Benjaminites was Abidan son of Gideoni.

10:25 The standard of the camp of the Danites set out, which was the rear guard[15] of all the camps by their companies; over his company was Ahiezer son of Ammishaddai. 10:26 Over the company of the tribe of the Asherites was Pagiel son of Ocran, 10:27 and over the company of the tribe of the Naphtalites was Ahira son of Enan. 10:28 These were the traveling arrangements[16] of the Israelites according to their companies when they traveled.[17]

The Appeal to Hobab

10:29[18] Moses said to Hobab son of Reuel, the Midianite, Moses' father-in-law,[19] "We are

1 tn The Niphal perfect in this passage has the passive nuance and not a reflexive idea – the Israelites would be spared because God remembered them.

2 tn The conjunction may be taken as explicative or epexegetical, and so rendered "namely; even; that is," or it may be taken as emphatic conjunction, and translated "especially."

3 tn The vav (ו) is taken here in its alternative use and translated "or."

4 tn The form is the perfect tense with vav (ו) consecutive. After the instruction imperfects, this form could be given the same nuance, or more likely, subordinated as a purpose or result clause.

5 tn The verb "to be" (הָיָה, hayah) has the meaning "to become" when followed by the preposition lamed (ל).

6 sn This section is somewhat mechanical: It begins with an introduction (vv. 11, 12), and then begins with Judah (vv. 13-17), followed by the rest of the tribes (vv. 18-27), and finally closes with a summary (v. 28). The last few verses (vv. 29-36) treat the departure of Hobab.

7 tc Smr inserts a lengthy portion from Deut 1:6-8, expressing the command for Israel to take the land from the Amorites.

tn The expression is difficult; it is מִשְׁכַּן הָעֵדֻת (mishkan ha'edut). The reference is to the sacred shrine that covered the ark with the commandments inside. NEB renders the expression as "tabernacle of the Token"; NAB has "the dwelling of the commandments."

8 sn The verb is the same as the noun: "they journeyed on their journeyings." This underscores the point of their continual traveling.

9 tn Heb "mouth."

10 tn Heb "hand."

11 sn The "standard" (דֶּגֶל, degel) was apparently some kind of a symbol put up on a pole to signify the tribal hosts. R. de Vaux thought it simply referred to a pole or a mast, but that would not distinguish tribes (Ancient Israel, 226-27).

12 tn Heb "carrying the sanctuary," a metonymy of whole for parts, representing all the holy objects that were located in the sanctuary.

13 tn The verb is the third person plural form; without an expressed subject it is treated as a passive.

14 tn Heb "against their coming."

15 tn The MT uses a word that actually means "assembler," so these three tribes made up a strong rear force recognized as the assembler of all the tribes.

16 tn Or "journeyings of."

17 tn The verb is the preterite with vav (ו) consecutive. But in this sentence it should be subordinated as a temporal clause to the preceding statement, even though it follows it.

18 sn For additional bibliography for this short section, see W. F. Albright, "Jethro, Hobab, and Reuel in Early Hebrew Tradition," CBQ 25 (1963): 1-11; G. W. Coats, "Moses in Midian," JBL 92 (1973): 3-10; B. Mazar, "The Sanctuary of Arad and the Family of Hobab the Kenite," JNES 24 (1965): 297-303; and T. C. Mitchell, "The Meaning of the Noun *ḥ*tn in the Old Testament," VT 19 (1969): 93-112.

19 sn There is a problem with the identity of Hobab. The MT says that he is the son of Reuel, making him the brother-in-law of Moses. But Judg 4:11 says he is the father-in-law. In Judg 1:16; 4:11 Hobab is traced to the Kenites, but in Exod 3:1 and 18:1 Jethro (Reuel) is priest of Midian. Jethro is identified with Reuel on the basis of Exod 2:18 and 3:1, and so Hobab becomes Moses' חֹתֵן (khoten), a relative by marriage and perhaps brother-in-law. There is not enough information to decide on the identity and relationships involved here. Some suggest that there is one person with the three names (G. B. Gray, Numbers [ICC], 93); others suggest Hobab is a family name (R. F. Johnson, IDB 2:615), and some suggest that the expression "the son of Reuel the Midianite" had dropped out of the genealogy of Judges, leading to the journeying to the place about which the LORD said, 'I will give it to you.' Come with us and we will treat you well,[1] for the LORD has promised good things[2] for Israel." 10:30 But Hobab[3] said to him, "I will not go, but I will go instead to my own land and to my kindred." 10:31 Moses[4] said, "Do not leave us,[5] because you know places for us to camp in the wilderness, and you could be our guide.[6] 10:32 And if you come with us, it is certain[7] that whatever good things the LORD will favor us with, we will share with you as well."

10:33 So they traveled from the mountain of the LORD three days' journey;[8] and the ark of the covenant of the LORD was traveling before them during the three days' journey, to find a resting place for them. 10:34[9] And the cloud of the LORD was over them by day, when they traveled[10] from the camp. 10:35 And when the ark traveled, Moses would say, "Rise up, O LORD! May your enemies be scattered, and may those who hate you flee before you!" 10:36 And when it came to rest he would say, "Return, O LORD, to the many thousands of Israel!"[11]

The Israelites Complain

11:1[12] When the people complained,[13] it displeased[14] the LORD. When the LORD heard[15] it, his anger burned,[16] and so[17] the fire of the LORD[18] burned among them and consumed some of the outer parts of the camp. 11:2 When the people cried to Moses, he[19] prayed to the LORD, and the fire died out.[20] 11:3 So he called the name of that place Taberah[21] because there the fire of the LORD burned among them.

conflict (J. Crichton, ISBE 2:1055). If Hobab is the same as Jethro, then Exod 18:27 does not make much sense, for Jethro did go home. On this basis many conclude Hobab is a brother-in-law. This would mean that after Jethro returned home, Moses conversed with Hobab, his brother-in-law. For more discussion, see the articles and the commentaries.

1 tn The verb is the Hiphil of the root "to be good" (יָטַב, yatav); it may be translated "treat well, deal favorably, generously with." Here it is a perfect tense with vav (ו) following the imperative, showing a sequence in the verbal ideas.

2 tn The Hebrew text simply has "has spoken good" for Israel.

3 tn Heb "he"; the referent (Hobab) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

4 tn Heb "he"; the referent (Moses) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

5 tn The form with אַל־נָא ('al-na') is a jussive; negated it stresses a more immediate request, as if Hobab is starting to leave, or at least determined to leave.

6 tn In the Hebrew text the expression is more graphic: "you will be for us for eyes." Hobab was familiar with the entire Sinai region, and he could certainly direct the people where they were to go. The text does not record Hobab's response. But the fact that Kenites were in Canaan as allies of Judah (Judg 1:16) would indicate that he gave in and came with Moses. The first refusal may simply be the polite Semitic practice of declining first so that the appeal might be made more urgently.

7 tn Heb "and it shall be."

8 tn The phrase "a journey of three days" is made up of the adverbial accusative qualified with the genitives.

9 tc The scribes sensed that there was a dislocation with vv. 34-36, and so they used the inverted letters nun (נ) as brackets to indicate this.

10 tn The adverbial clause of time is composed of the infinitive construct with a temporal preposition and a suffixed subjective genitive.

11 sn These two formulaic prayers were offered by Moses at the beginning and at the end of the journeys. They prayed for the LORD to fight ahead of the nation when it was on the move, and to protect them when they camped. The theme of the first is found in Ps 68:1. The prayers reflect the true mentality of holy war, that it was the LORD who fought for Israel and defended her. The prayers have been included in the prayer book for synagogue services.

12 sn The chapter includes the initial general complaints (vv. 1-3), the complaints about food (vv. 4-9), Moses' own complaint to the LORD (vv. 10-15), God's response to Moses (vv. 16-25), Eldad and Medad (vv. 26-29), and the quail (vv. 30-35). The first part records the burning of the camp, named Taberah. Here is one of the several naming narratives in the wilderness experience. The occasion for divine judgment is the complaining of the people. The passages serve to warn believers of all ages not to murmur as the Israelites did, for such complaining reveals a lack of faith in the power and goodness of God. For additional literature, see W. Brueggemann, "From Hurt to Joy, from Death to Life," Int 28 (1974): 3-19; B. S. Childs, "The Etiological Tale Re-examined," VT 24 (1974): 387-97; G. W. Coats, Rebellion in the Wilderness; and A. C. Tunyogi, "The Rebellions of Israel," JBL 81 (1962): 385-90.

13 tn The temporal clause uses the Hitpoel infinitive construct from אָנַן ('anan). It is a rare word, occurring in Lam 3:39. With this blunt introduction the constant emphasis of obedience to the word of the LORD found throughout the first ten chapters suddenly comes to an end. It is probable that the people were tired of moving for several days, the excitement of the new beginning died out quickly in the "great and terrible wilderness." Resentment, frustration, discomfort – whatever it all involved – led to complaining and not gratitude.

14 tn Heb "it was evil in the ears of the LORD." The word רַע (ra') is a much stronger word than "displeased" would suggest. The bold anthropomorphism shows that what the LORD heard was painful to him.

15 tn The preterite with vav (ו) consecutive is here subordinated to the next verb as a temporal clause.

16 tn The common Hebrew expression uses the verb חָרָה (harah, "to be hot, to burn, to be kindled"). The subject is אַפּוֹ ('appo), "his anger" or more literally, his nose, which in this anthropomorphic expression flares in rage. The emphasis is superlative – "his anger raged."

17 tn The vav (ו) consecutive does not simply show sequence in the verbs, but here expresses the result of the anger of the LORD for their complaining. With such a response to the complaining, one must conclude that it was unreasonable. There had been no long deprivation or endured suffering; the complaining was early and showed a rebellious spirit.

18 sn The "fire of the LORD" is supernatural, for it is said to come from the LORD and not from a natural source. God gave them something to complain about – something to fear. The other significant place where this "fire of the LORD" destroyed was in the case of Nadab and Abihu who brought strange fire to the altar (Lev 10:2).

19 tn Heb "Moses."

20 sn Here is the pattern that will become in the wilderness experience so common – the complaining turns to a cry to Moses, which is then interpreted as a prayer to the LORD, and there is healing. The sequence presents a symbolic lesson, an illustration of the intercession of the Holy Spirit. The NT will say that in times of suffering Christians do not know how to pray, but the Spirit intercedes for them, changing their cries into the proper prayers (Rom 8).

21 tn The name תַּבְעֵרָה (tav'erah) is given to the spot as a commemorative of the wilderness experience. It is explained by the formula using the same verbal root, "to burn." Such naming narratives are found dozens of times in the OT, and

Complaints about Food

11:4[1] Now the mixed multitude[2] who were among them craved more desirable foods,[3] and so the Israelites wept again[4] and said, "If only we had meat to eat![5] 11:5 We remember[6] the fish we used to eat[7] freely[8] in Egypt, the cucumbers, the melons, the leeks, the onions, and the garlic. 11:6 But now we[9] are dried up,[10] and there is nothing at all before us[11] except this manna!" 11:7 (Now the manna was like coriander seed, and its color like the color of bdellium. 11:8 And the people went about and gathered it, and ground it with mills or pounded it in mortars; they baked it in pans and made cakes of it. It tasted like fresh olive oil.[12] 11:9 And when the dew came down[13] on the camp in the night, the manna fell[14] with it.)

Moses' Complaint to the Lord

11:10[15] Moses heard the people weeping[16] throughout their families, everyone at the door of his tent; and when the anger of the LORD was kindled greatly, Moses was also displeased.[17] 11:11 And Moses said to the LORD, "Why have you afflicted[18] your servant? Why have I not found favor in your sight, that[19] you lay the burmost frequently in the Pentateuch. The explanation is seldom an exact etymology, and so in the literature is called a popular etymology. It is best to explain the connection as a figure of speech, a paronomasia, which is a phonetic word play that may or may not be etymologically connected. Usually the name is connected to the explanation by a play on the verbal root – here the preterite explaining the noun. The significance of commemorating the place by such a device is to "burn" it into the memory of Israel. The narrative itself would be remembered more easily by the name and its motif. The namings in the wilderness wanderings remind the faithful of unbelief, and warn us all not to murmur as they murmured. See further A. P. Ross, "Paronomasia and Popular Etymologies in the Naming Narrative of the Old Testament," Ph.D. diss., University of Cambridge, 1982.

1 sn The story of the sending of the quail is a good example of poetic justice, or talionic justice. God had provided for the people, but even in that provision they were not satisfied, for they remembered other foods they had in Egypt. No doubt there was not the variety of foods in the Sinai that might have been available in Egypt, but their life had been bitter bondage there as well. They had cried to the LORD for salvation, but now they forget, as they remember things they used to have. God will give them what they crave, but it will not do for them what they desire. For more information on this story, see B. J. Malina, The Palestinian Manna Tradition. For the attempt to explain manna and the other foods by natural phenomena, see F. W. Bodenheimer, "The Manna of Sinai," BA 10 (1947): 1-6.

2 tn The mixed multitude (or "rabble," so NASB, NIV, NRSV; NLT "foreign rabble") is the translation of an unusual word, הָאסַפְסֻף (ha'safsuf). It occurs in the Hebrew Bible only here. It may mean "a gathering of people" from the verb אָסַף ('asaf), yielding the idea of a mixed multitude (in line with Exod 12:38). But the root is different, and so no clear connection can be established. Many commentators therefore think the word is stronger, showing contempt through a word that would be equivalent to "riff-raff."

3 tn The Hebrew simply uses the cognate accusative, saying "they craved a craving" (הִתְאַוּוּ תַּאֲוָה, hit'avvu ta'vah), but the context shows that they had this strong craving for food. The verb describes a strong desire, which is not always negative (Ps 132:13-14). But the word is a significant one in the Torah; it was used in the garden story for Eve's desire for the tree, and it is used in the Decalogue in the warning against coveting (Deut 5:21).

4 tc The Greek and the Latin versions read "and they sat down" for "and they returned," involving just a change in vocalization (which they did not have). This may reflect the same expression in Judg 20:26. But the change does not improve this verse.

tn The Hebrew text uses a verbal hendiadys here, one word serving as an adverb for the other. It literally reads "and they returned and they wept," which means they wept again. Here the weeping is put for the complaint, showing how emotionally stirred up the people had become by the craving. The words throughout here are metonymies. The craving is a metonymy of cause, for it would have then led to expressions (otherwise the desires would not have been known). And the weeping is either a metonymy of effect, or of adjunct, for the actual complaints follow.

5 tn The Hebrew expresses the strong wish or longing idiomatically: "Who will give us flesh to eat?" It is a rhetorical expression not intended to be taken literally, but merely to give expression to the longing they had. See GKC 476 §151.a.1.

6 tn The perfect tense here expresses the experience of a state of mind.

sn As with all who complain in such situations, their memory was selective. It was their bitter cries to the LORD from the suffering in bondage that God heard and answered. And now, shortly after being set free, their memory of Egypt is for things they do not now have. It is also somewhat unlikely that they as slaves had such abundant foods in Egypt.

7 tn The imperfect tense would here be the customary imperfect, showing continual or incomplete action in past tense.

8 tn The adverb "freely" is from the word חִנָּם (khanan, "to be gracious"), from which is derived the noun "grace." The word underscores the idea of "free, without cost, for no reason, gratis." Here the simple sense is "freely," without any cost. But there may be more significance in the choice of the words in this passage, showing the ingratitude of the Israelites to God for His deliverance from bondage. To them now the bondage is preferable to the salvation – this is what angered the LORD.

9 tn Heb "our souls."

10 sn The Hebrews were complaining both about the bland taste of the manna and dehydration – they were parched in the wilderness.

11 tn Heb "before our eyes," meaning that "we see nothing except this manna."

12 tn Heb "And its taste was like the taste of fresh olive oil."

13 tn The temporal clause is constructed of the infinitive construct from יָרַד (yarad) with a temporal preposition, followed by the subjective genitive.

14 tn Heb "came down."

15 sn Moses begins to feel the burden of caring for this people, a stubborn and rebellious people. His complaint shows how contagious their complaining has been. It is one thing to cry out to God about the load of ministry, but it is quite another to do it in such a way as to reflect a lack of faith in God's provision. God has to remind the leader Moses that he, the LORD, can do anything. This is a variation on the theme from Exodus – "who am I that I should lead...."

16 tn The participle "weeping" is functioning here as the noun in the accusative case, an adverbial accusative of state. It is explicative of the object.

17 tn Heb "it was evil in the eyes of Moses."

18 tn The verb is the Hiphil of רָעַע (ra'a', "to be evil"). Moses laments (with the rhetorical question) that God seems to have caused him evil.

19 tn The infinitive construct with the preposition is expressing the result of not finding favor with God (see R. J. Williams, Hebrew Syntax, 12-13, §57). What Moses is claiming is that because he has been given this burden God did not show him favor.

den of this entire people on me? 11:12 Did I conceive this entire people?[1] Did I give birth to[2] them, that you should say to me, 'Carry them in your arms, as a foster father[3] bears a nursing child,' to the land which you swore to their fathers? 11:13 From where shall I get[4] meat to give to this entire people, for they cry to me, 'Give us meat, that we may eat!'[5] 11:14 I am not able to bear this entire people alone,[6] because it[7] is too heavy for me! 11:15 But if you are going to deal[8] with me like this, then kill me immediately.[9] If I have found favor in your sight then do not let me see my trouble."[10] 11:16[11] The LORD said to Moses, "Gather to me seventy men of the elders of Israel, whom you know are elders of the people and officials[12] over them, and bring them to the tent of meeting; let them take their position there with you. 11:17 Then I will come down and speak with you there, and I will take part of the spirit that is on you, and will put it on them, and they will bear some of the burden of the people with you, so that you do not bear it[13] all by yourself.

The Response of God

11:18 "And say to the people, 'Sanctify yourselves[14] for tomorrow, and you will eat meat, for you have wept in the hearing[15] of the LORD, saying, "Who will give us meat to eat,[16] for life[17] was good for us in Egypt?" Therefore the LORD will give you meat, and you will eat. 11:19 You will eat, not just one day, nor two days, nor five days, nor ten days, nor twenty days, 11:20 but a whole month,[18] until it comes out your nostrils and makes you sick,[19] because you have despised[20] the LORD who is among you and have

[1] sn The questions Moses asks are rhetorical. He is actually affirming that they are not his people, that he did not produce them, but now is to support them. His point is that God produced this nation, but has put the burden of caring for their needs on him.

[2] tn The verb means "to beget, give birth to." The figurative image from procreation completes the parallel question, first the conceiving and second the giving birth to the nation.

[3] tn The word אֹמֵן ('omen) is often translated "nurse," but the form is a masculine form and would better be rendered as a "foster parent." This does not work as well, though, with the יָנֵק (yoneq), the "sucking child." The two metaphors are simply designed to portray the duty of a parent to a child as a picture of Moses' duty for the nation. The idea that it portrays God as a mother pushes it too far (see M. Noth, Numbers [OTL], 86-87).

[4] tn The Hebrew text simply has "from where to me flesh?" which means "from where will I have meat?"

[5] tn The cohortative coming after the imperative stresses purpose (it is an indirect volitive).

[6] tn The word order shows the emphasis: "I am not able, I by myself, to bear all this people." The infinitive לָשֵׂאת (lase't) serves as the direct object of the verb. The expression is figurative, for bearing or carrying the people means being responsible for all their needs and cares.

[7] tn The subject of the verb "heavy" is unstated; in the context it probably refers to the people, or the burden of caring for the people. This responsibility was turning out to be a heavier responsibility than Moses anticipated. Alone he was totally inadequate.

[8] tn The participle expresses the future idea of what God is doing, or what he is going to be doing. Moses would rather be killed than be given a totally impossible duty over a people that were not his.

[9] tn The imperative of הָרֵג (harag) is followed by the infinitive absolute for emphasis. The point is more that the infinitive adds to the emphasis of the imperative mood, which would be immediate compliance.

[10] tn Or "my own ruin" (NIV). The word "trouble" here probably refers to the stress and difficulty of caring for a complaining group of people. The suffix on the noun would be objective, perhaps stressing the indirect object of the noun – trouble for me. The expression "on my trouble" (בְּרָעָתִי, b^{e}ra'ati) is one of the so-called tiqqune sopherim, or "emendations of the scribes." According to this tradition the original reading in v. 15 was [to look] "on your evil" (בְּרָעָתֶךָ, b^{e}ra'atekha), meaning "the calamity that you bring about" for Israel. However, since such an expression could be mistakenly thought to attribute evil to the Lord, the ancient scribes changed it to the reading found in the MT.

[11] sn The LORD provides Spirit-empowered assistance for Moses. Here is another variation on the theme of Moses' faith. Just as he refused to lead alone and was given Aaron to share the work, so here he protests the burden and will share it with seventy elders. If God's servant will not trust wholeheartedly, that individual will not be used by God as he or she might have been. Others will share in the power and the work. Probably one could say that it was God's will for others to share this leadership – but not to receive it through these circumstances.

[12] tn The "officials" (שֹׁטְרִים, shott^{e}rim) were a group of the elders who seem to have had some administrative capacities. The LXX used the word "scribes." For further discussion, see R. de Vaux, Ancient Israel, 69-70.

[13] tn The imperfect tense here is to be classified as a final imperfect, showing the result of this action by God. Moses would be relieved of some of the responsibility when these others were given the grace to understand and to resolve cases.

[14] tn The Hitpael is used to stress that they are to prepare for a holy appearance. The day was going to be special and so required their being set apart for it. But it is a holy day in the sense of the judgment that was to follow.

[15] tn Heb "in the ears."

[16] tn Possibly this could be given an optative translation, to reflect the earlier one: "O that someone would give...." But the verb is not the same; here it is the Hiphil of the verb "to eat" – "who will make us eat" (i.e., provide meat for us to eat).

[17] tn The word "life" is not in the text. The expression is simply "it was for us," or "we had good," meaning "we had it good," or "life was good."

[18] tn Heb "a month of days." So also in v. 21.

[19] tn The expression לְזָרָה (l^{e}zarah) has been translated "ill" or "loathsome." It occurs only here in the Hebrew Bible. The Greek text interprets it as "sickness." It could be nausea or vomiting (so G. B. Gray, Numbers [ICC], 112) from overeating.

[20] sn The explanation is the interpretation of their behavior – it is in reality what they have done, even though they would not say they despised the LORD. They had complained and shown a lack of faith and a contempt for the program, which was in essence despising the LORD.

wept before him, saying, "Why[1] did we ever come out of Egypt?"""

11:21 Moses said, "The people around me[2] are 600,000 on foot;[3] but you say, 'I will give them meat,[4] that they may eat[5] for a whole month.' 11:22 Would they have enough if the flocks and herds were slaughtered for them? If all the fish of the sea were caught for them, would they have enough?" 11:23 And the LORD said to Moses, "Is the LORD's hand shortened?[6] Now you will see whether my word to you will come true[7] or not!"

11:24 So Moses went out and told the people the words of the LORD. He then gathered seventy men of the elders of the people and had them stand around the tabernacle. 11:25 And the LORD came down in the cloud and spoke to them, and he took some of the Spirit that was on Moses[8] and put it on the seventy elders. When the Spirit rested on them,[9] they prophesied,[10] but did not do so again.[11]

Eldad and Medad

11:26 But two men remained in the camp; one's name was Eldad, and the other's name was Medad. And the spirit rested on them. (Now they were among those in the registration,[12] but had not gone to the tabernacle.) So they prophesied in the camp. 11:27 And a[13] young man ran and told Moses, "Eldad and Medad are prophesying in the camp!" 11:28 Joshua son of Nun, the servant[14] of Moses, one of his choice young men,[15] said,[16] "My lord Moses, stop them!"[17] 11:29 Moses said to him, "Are you jealous for me?[18] I wish that[19] all the LORD's people were prophets, that the LORD would put his Spirit on them!" 11:30 Then Moses returned to the camp along with the elders of Israel.

Provision of Quail

11:31 Now a wind[20] went out[21] from the LORD and brought quail[22] from the sea, and let

---

1 tn The use of the demonstrative pronoun here ("why is this we went out ...") is enclitic, providing emphasis to the sentence: "Why in the world did we ever leave Egypt?"

2 tn Heb "the people who I am in their midst," i.e., among whom I am.

3 tn The Hebrew sentence stresses the number. The sentence begins "600,000...."

4 tn The word order places the object first here: "Meat I will give them." This adds to the contrast between the number and the statement of the LORD.

5 tn The verb is the perfect tense with a vav (ו) consecutive, carrying the sequence from the preceding imperfect tense. However, this verb may be subordinated to the preceding to express a purpose clause.

6 sn This anthropomorphic expression concerns the power of God. The "hand of the LORD" is idiomatic for his power, what he is able to do. The question is rhetorical; it is affirming that his hand is not shortened, i.e., that his power is not limited. Moses should have known this, and so this is a rebuke for him at this point. God had provided the manna, among all the other powerful acts they had witnessed. Meat would be no problem. But the lack of faith by the people was infectious.

7 tn Or "will happen" (TEV); KJV "shall come to pass unto thee."

8 tn Heb "on him"; the referent (Moses) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

9 tn The temporal clause is introduced by the temporal indicator וַיְהִי (vay^{e}hi), which need not be translated. It introduces the time of the infinitive as past time narrative. The infinitive construct is from נוּחַ (nuakh, "to rest"). The figurative expression of the Spirit resting upon them indicates the temporary indwelling and empowering by the Spirit in their lives.

10 tn The text may mean that these men gave ecstatic utterances, much like Saul did when the Spirit came upon him and he made the same prophetic utterances (see 1 Sam 10:10-13). But there is no strong evidence for this (see K. L. Barker, "Zechariah," EBC 7:605-6). In fact there is no consensus among scholars as to the origin and meaning of the verb "prophesy" or the noun "prophet." It has something to do with speech, being God's spokesman or spokeswoman or making predictions or authoritative utterances or ecstatic utterances. It certainly does mean that the same Holy Spirit, the same divine provision that was for Moses to enable him to do the things that God had commanded him to do, was now given to them. It would have included wisdom and power with what they were saying and doing – in a way that was visible and demonstrable to the people! The people needed to know that the same provision was given to these men, authenticating their leadership among the clans. And so it could not simply be a change in their understanding and wisdom.

11 tn The final verb of the clause stresses that this was not repeated: "they did not add" is the literal rendering of וְלֹא יָסָפוּ (v^{e}lo' yasafu). It was a one-time spiritual experience associated with their installation.

12 tn The form of the word is the passive participle כְּתֻבִים (k^{e}tuvim, "written"). It is normally taken to mean "among those registered," but it is not clear if that means they were to be among the seventy or not. That seems unlikely since there is no mention of the seventy being registered, and vv. 24-25 says all seventy went out and prophesied. The registration may be to eldership, or the role of the officer.

13 tn The article indicates that the "young man" was definite in the mind of the writer, but indefinite in English.

14 tn The form is the Piel participle מְשָׁרֵת (m^{e}sharet), meaning "minister, servant, assistant." The word has a loftier meaning than the ordinary word for slave.

15 tn The verb is בָּחַר (bakhar, "to choose"); here the form is the masculine plural participle with a suffix, serving as the object of the preposition מִן (min). It would therefore mean "[one of] his chosen men," or "[one of] his choice men."

16 tn Heb "answered and said."

17 sn The effort of Joshua is to protect Moses' prerogative as leader by stopping these men in the camp from prophesying. Joshua did not understand the significance in the LORD's plan to let others share the burden of leadership.

18 tn The Piel participle מְקַנֵּא (m^{e}qanne') serves as a verb here in this interrogative sentence. The word means "to be jealous; to be envious." That can be in a good sense, such as with the translation "zeal," or it can be in a negative sense as here. Joshua's apparent "zeal" is questioned by Moses – was he zealous/envious for Moses sake, or for some other reason?

19 tn The optative is expressed by the interrogative clause in Hebrew, "who will give...." Moses expresses here the wish that the whole nation would have that portion of the Spirit. The new covenant, of course, would turn Moses' wish into a certainty.

20 sn The irony in this chapter is expressed in part by the use of the word רוּחַ (ruakh). In the last episode it clearly meant the Spirit of the LORD that empowered the men for their spiritual service. But here the word is "wind." Both the spiritual service and the judgment come from God.

21 tn The verb means "burst forth" or "sprang up." See the ways it is used in Gen 33:12, Judg 16:3, 14; Isa 33:20.

22 sn The "quail" ordinarily cross the Sinai at various times of the year, but what is described here is not the natural phenomenon. Biblical scholars looking for natural explanations usually note that these birds fly at a low height and can be swatted down easily. But the description here is more of a supernatural supply and provision. See J. Gray, "The Desert Sojourn of the Hebrews and the Sinai Horeb Tradition," VT 4 (1954): 148-54.

them fall[1] near the camp, about a day's journey on this side, and about a day's journey on the other side, all around the camp, and about three feet[2] high on the surface of the ground. 11:32 And the people stayed up[3] all that day, all that night, and all the next day, and gathered the quail. The one who gathered the least gathered ten homers,[4] and they spread them out[5] for themselves all around the camp. 11:33 But while the meat was still between their teeth, before they chewed it,[6] the anger of the LORD burned against the people, and the LORD struck the people with a very great plague.

11:34 So the name of that place was called Kibroth Hattaavah,[7] because there they buried the people that craved different food.[8] 11:35 The people traveled from Kibroth Hattaavah to Hazeroth, and they stayed at Hazeroth.

Miriam and Aaron Oppose Moses

12:1[9] Then Miriam and Aaron spoke against[10] Moses because of the Cushite[11] woman he had married[12] (for he had married an Ethiopian woman). 12:2 They[13] said, "Has the LORD only[14] spoken through Moses? Has he not also spoken through us?"[15] And the LORD heard it.[16]

12:3 (Now the man Moses was very humble,[17] more so than any man on the face of the earth.)

1 tn Or "left them fluttering."

2 tn Heb "two cubits." The standard cubit in the OT is assumed by most authorities to be about eighteen inches (45 cm) in length.

3 tn Heb "rose up, stood up."

4 sn This is about two thousand liters.

5 tn The verb (a preterite) is followed by the infinitive absolute of the same root, to emphasize the action of spreading out the quail. Although it is hard to translate the expression, it indicates that they spread these quail out all over the area. The vision of them spread all over was evidence of God's abundant provision for their needs.

6 tn The verb is a prefixed conjugation, normally an imperfect tense. But coming after the adverb טֶרֶם (terem) it is treated as a preterite.

7 sn The name "the graves of the ones who craved" is again explained by a wordplay, a popular etymology. In Hebrew קִבְרוֹת הַתַּאֲוָה (qivrot hatta'avah) is the technical name. It is the place that the people craved the meat, longing for the meat of Egypt, and basically rebelled against God. The naming marks another station in the wilderness where the people failed to accept God's good gifts with grace and to pray for their other needs to be met.

8 tn The words "different food" are implied, and are supplied in the translation for clarity.

9 sn In this short chapter we find a prime example of jealousy among leaders and how God dealt with it. Miriam and Aaron are envious of Moses' leadership, but they use an occasion – his marriage – to criticize him. Often the immediate criticism is simply a surface issue for a deeper matter. God indicates very clearly he will speak through many people, including them, but Moses is different. Moses is the mediator of the covenant. The chapter is a lesson of what not to do. They should have fulfilled their duties before God and not tried to compete or challenge the leader in this way. There is a touch of divine irony here, for Miriam is turned white with leprosy. The chapter falls easily into the sections of the story: the accusation (vv. 1-3), the LORD's response (vv. 4-10), the intercession of Moses (vv. 11-16). For further information, see J. S. Kselman, "A Note on Numbers 12:6-8," VT 26 (1976): 500-504.

10 tn The preposition bet (בְּ) has the adversative sense here, "[speak] against" (see also its use for hostile speech in 21:5, 7). Speaking against is equal to the murmuring throughout the wilderness period. The verb of the sentence is וַתְּדַבֵּר (vatt^{e}dabber), the feminine form of the verb. This indicates that Miriam was the main speaker for the two, the verb agreeing with the first of the compound subject.

sn It may be that Miriam was envious of the Cushite woman Moses married. And, in view of the previous chapter's content about others being given a portion of the Spirit to share in the leadership role, she may have seen this as her chance finally to become just as important in the nation as her younger brother. After all, she safeguarded his birth and early years (Exod 2). But there are two issues here – the reason she gives ("does the LORD only speak through Moses?"), and the reason the text gives (the Cushite woman).

11 tn The Hebrew text has הַכֻּשִׁית (hakkushit, "the Cushite") as the modifier of "woman." The Greek text interpreted this correctly as "Ethiopian." The word Cush in the Bible can describe the Cassites, east of Babylon of the later period (Gen 10:18), or Ethiopia (Isa 20:3; Nah 3:5; et al). Another suggestion is that it would refer to Cushan of Hab 3:7, perhaps close to Midian, and so the area Moses had been. This would suggest it could be Zipporah – but the Bible does not identify the Cushite as Zipporah. The most natural understanding would be that it refers to an Egyptian/Ethiopian woman. The text does not say when Moses married this woman, or what Miriam's problem with her was. It is clear that it was a racial issue, by virtue of the use of "Cushite." Whether she was of darker skin than the Hebrews would be hard to say, since the Bible gives no further detail. Neither does it say if this is a second wife, or a woman Moses married since Zipporah went home (Exod 18:2). These do not seem to be the issues the text wishes to elaborate on; it is simply stating that this woman was the occasion for a deeper challenge.

12 tn Heb "taken."

13 tn Now the text changes to use a plural form of the verb. The indication is that Miriam criticized the marriage, and then the two of them raised questions about his sole leadership of the nation.

14 tn The use of both רַק and אַךְ (raq and 'akh) underscore the point that the issue is Moses' uniqueness.

15 tn There is irony in the construction in the text. The expression "speak through us" also uses בְּ + דבר (dibber + b^{e}). They ask if God has not also spoken through them, after they have spoken against Moses. Shortly God will speak against them – their words are prophetic, but not as they imagined.

sn The questions are rhetorical. They are affirming that God does not only speak through Moses, but also speaks through them. They see themselves as equal with Moses. The question that was asked of the earlier presumptuous Moses – "Who made you a ruler over us?" – could also be asked of them. God had not placed them as equals with Moses. The passage is relevant for today when so many clamor for equal authority and leadership with those whom God has legitimately called.

16 sn The statement is striking. Obviously the LORD knows all things. But the statement of the obvious here is meant to indicate that the LORD was about to do something about this.

17 tc The spelling of the word is a Kethib-Qere reading with only a slight difference between the two.

tn The word עָנָו ('anav) means "humble." The word may reflect a trustful attitude (as in Pss 25:9, 37:11), but perhaps here the idea of "more tolerant" or "long-suffering." The point is that Moses is not self-assertive. God singled out Moses and used him in such a way as to show that he was a unique leader. For a suggestion that the word means "miserable," see C. Rogers, "Moses: Meek or Miserable?" JETS 29 (1986): 257-63.

sn Humility is a quality missing today in many leaders. Far too many are self-promoting, or competitive, or even pompous. The statement in this passage would have been difficult for Moses to write – and indeed, it is not impossible that an editor might have added it. One might think that for someone to claim to be humble is an arrogant act. But the statement is one of fact – he was not self-assertive (until Num 20 when he strikes the rock).

The Response of the Lord

12:4 The LORD spoke immediately to Moses, Aaron, and Miriam: "The three of you come to the tent of meeting." So the three of them went. 12:5 And the LORD came down in a pillar of cloud and stood at the entrance of the tent; he then called Aaron and Miriam, and they both came forward.

12:6 The LORD[1] said, "Hear now my words: If there is a prophet among you,[2] I the LORD[3] will make myself known to him in a vision; I will speak with him in a dream. 12:7 My servant[4] Moses is not like this; he is faithful[5] in all my house. 12:8 With him I will speak face to face,[6] openly,[7] and not in riddles; and he will see the form[8] of the LORD. Why then were you not afraid to speak against my servant Moses?" 12:9 The anger of the LORD burned against them, and he departed. 12:10 When[9] the cloud departed from above the tent, Miriam became[10] leprous[11] as snow. Then Aaron looked at[12] Miriam, and she was leprous!

The Intercession of Moses

12:11 So Aaron said to Moses, "O my lord,[13] please do not hold this sin against us, in which we have acted foolishly and have sinned! 12:12 Do not let her be like a baby born dead, whose flesh is half-consumed when it comes out of its[14] mother's womb!"

12:13 Then Moses cried to the LORD, "Heal her now, O God."[15] 12:14 The LORD said to Moses, "If her father had only spit[16] in her face, would she not have been disgraced for seven days? Shut her out from the camp seven days, and afterward she can be brought back in again."

12:15 So Miriam was shut outside of the camp for seven days, and the people did not journey on until Miriam was brought back in.[17] 12:16 After that the people moved from Hazeroth and camped in the wilderness of Paran.

Spies Sent Out

13:1[18] The LORD spoke[19] to Moses:

---

1 tn Heb "he."

2 tn The form of this construction is rare: נְבִיאֲכֶם (n^{e}vi'akhem) would normally be rendered "your prophet." The singular noun is suffixed with a plural pronominal suffix. Some commentators think the MT has condensed "a prophet" with "to you."

3 tn The Hebrew syntax is difficult here. "The LORD" is separated from the verb by two intervening prepositional phrases. Some scholars conclude that this word belongs with the verb at the beginning of v. 6 ("And the LORD spoke").

4 sn The title "my servant" or "servant of the LORD" is reserved in the Bible for distinguished personages, people who are truly spiritual leaders, like Moses, David, Hezekiah, and also the Messiah. Here it underscores Moses' obedience.

5 tn The word "faithful" is נֶאֱמָן (ne'eman), the Niphal participle of the verb אָמַן ('aman). This basic word has the sense of "support, be firm." In the Niphal it describes something that is firm, reliable, dependable – what can be counted on. It could actually be translated "trustworthy."

6 tn The emphasis of the line is clear enough – it begins literally "mouth to mouth" I will speak with him. In human communication this would mean equality of rank, but Moses is certainly not equal in rank with the LORD. And yet God is here stating that Moses has an immediacy and directness with communication with God. It goes beyond the idea of friendship, almost to that of a king's confidant.

7 tn The word מַרְאֶה (mar'eh) refers to what is seen, a vision, an appearance. Here it would have the idea of that which is clearly visible, open, obvious.

8 tn The word "form" (תְּמוּנָה, t^{e}munah) means "shape, image, form." The Greek text took it metaphorically and rendered it "the glory of the LORD." This line expresses even more the uniqueness of Moses. The elders saw God on one special occasion (Exod 24:10), and the people never (Deut 4:12, 15), but Moses has direct and familiar contact with God.

9 tn The disjunctive vav (ו) is here introducing a circumstantial clause of time.

10 tn There is no verb "became" in this line. The second half of the line is introduced with the particle הִנֵּה (hinneh, "look, behold") in its archaic sense. This deictic use is intended to make the reader focus on Miriam as well.

11 sn The word "leprosy" and "leprous" covers a wide variety of skin diseases, and need not be limited to the actual disease of leprosy known today as Hansen's disease. The description of it here has to do with snow, either the whiteness or the wetness. If that is the case then there would be open wounds and sores – like Job's illness (see M. Noth, Numbers [OTL], 95-96).

12 tn Heb "turned to."

13 tn The expression בִּי אֲדֹנָי (bi 'adoni, "O my lord") shows a good deal of respect for Moses by Aaron. The expression is often used in addressing God.

14 tc The words "its mother" and "its flesh" are among the so-called tiqqune sopherim, or "emendations of the scribes." According to this tradition the text originally had here "our mother" and "our flesh," but the ancient scribes changed these pronouns from the first person to the third person. Apparently they were concerned that the image of Moses' mother giving birth to a baby with physical defects of the sort described here was somehow inappropriate, given the stature and importance of Moses.

15 tc Some scholars emend אֵל ('el, "God") to עַל ('al, "no"). The effect of this change may be seen in the NAB: "'Please, not this! Pray, heal her!'"

16 tn The form is intensified by the infinitive absolute, but here the infinitive strengthens not simply the verbal idea but the conditional cause construction as well.

17 tn The clause has the Niphal infinitive construct after a temporal preposition.

18 sn Chapter 13 provides the names of the spies sent into the land (vv. 1-16), their instructions (vv. 17-20), their activities (vv. 21-25), and their reports (vv. 26-33). It is a chapter that serves as a good lesson on faith, for some of the spies walked by faith, and some by sight.

19 tn The verse starts with the vav (ו) consecutive on the verb: "and...."

13:2 "Send out men to investigate[1] the land of Canaan, which I am giving[2] to the Israelites. You are to send one man from each ancestral tribe,[3] each one a leader among them." 13:3 So Moses sent them from the wilderness of Paran at the command[4] of the LORD. All of them were leaders[5] of the Israelites.

13:4 Now these were their names: from the tribe of Reuben, Shammua son of Zaccur; 13:5 from the tribe of Simeon, Shaphat son of Hori; 13:6 from the tribe of Judah, Caleb son of Jephunneh; 13:7 from the tribe of Issachar, Igal son of Joseph; 13:8 from the tribe of Ephraim, Hoshea son of Nun; 13:9 from the tribe of Benjamin, Palti son of Raphu; 13:10 from the tribe of Zebulun, Gaddiel son of Sodi; 13:11 from the tribe[6] of Joseph, namely, the tribe of Manasseh, Gaddi son of Susi; 13:12 from the tribe of Dan, Ammiel son of Gemalli; 13:13 from the tribe of Asher, Sethur son of Michael; 13:14 from the tribe of Naphtali, Nahbi son of Vopshi; 13:15 from the tribe of Gad, Geuel son of Maki. 13:16 These are the names of the men whom Moses sent to investigate the land. And Moses gave Hoshea son of Nun the name Joshua.[7]

The Spies' Instructions

13:17 When Moses sent[8] them to investigate the land of Canaan, he told them, "Go up through the Negev,[9] and then go up into the hill country 13:18 and see[10] what the land is like,[11] and whether the people who live in it are strong or weak, few or many, 13:19 and whether the land they live in is good or bad, and whether the cities they inhabit are like camps or fortified cities, 13:20 and whether the land is rich or poor, and whether or not there are forests in it. And be brave,[12] and bring back some of the fruit of the land." Now it was the time of year[13] for the first ripe grapes.[14]

The Spies' Activities

13:21 So they went up and investigated the land from the wilderness of Zin to Rehob,[15] at Lebo Hamath. 13:22 When they went up through the Negev, they[16] came[17] to Hebron where Ahiman, Sheshai, and Talmai,[18] descendants of Anak, were living. (Now Hebron had been built seven years before Zoan[19] in Egypt.) 13:23 When they came to the valley of Eshcol, they cut down from there a branch with one cluster of grapes, and they carried it on a staff[20] between two men, as well as some of the pomegranates and the figs. 13:24 That place was called[21] the Eshcol Valley,[22] because of the cluster[23] of grapes that the Israelites cut from there. 13:25 They returned from investigating the land after forty days.

[1] tn The imperfect tense with the conjunction is here subordinated to the preceding imperative to form the purpose clause. It can thus be translated "send...to investigate."

[2] tn The participle here should be given a future interpretation, meaning "which I am about to give" or "which I am going to give."

[3] tn Heb "one man one man of the tribe of his fathers."

[4] tn Heb "mouth."

[5] tn Heb "heads."

[6] tc Some scholars emend "tribe" to "sons." Cf. Num 1:10.

[7] sn The difference in the names is slight, a change from "he saves" to "the LORD saves." The Greek text of the OT used Iesoun for Hebrew Yeshua.

[8] tn The preterite with vav (ו) consecutive is here subordinated to the next verb of the same formation to express a temporal clause.

[9] tn The instructions had them first go up into the southern desert of the land, and after passing through that, into the hill country of the Canaanites. The text could be rendered "into the Negev" as well as "through the Negev."

[10] tn The form is the perfect tense with vav (ו) consecutive; the word therefore carries the volitional mood of the preceding imperatives. It may be either another imperative, or it may be subordinated as a purpose clause.

[11] tn Heb "see the land, what it is."

[12] tn The verb is the Hitpael perfect with vav (ו) consecutive, from the root חָזַק (khazaq, "to be strong"). Here it could mean "strengthen yourselves" or "be courageous" or "determined." See further uses in 2 Sam 10:12; 1 Kgs 20:22; 1 Chr 19:13.

[13] tn Heb "Now the days were the days of."

[14] sn The reference to the first ripe grapes would put the time somewhere at the end of July.

[15] sn Zin is on the southern edge of the land, but Rehob is far north, near Mount Hermon. The spies covered all the land.

[16] tc The MT has the singular, but the ancient versions and Smr have the plural.

[17] tn The preterite with vav (ו) consecutive is here subordinated to the following clause. The first verse gave the account of their journey over the whole land; this section focuses on what happened in the area of Hebron, which would be the basis for the false report.

[18] sn These names are thought to be three clans that were in the Hebron area (see Josh 15:14; Judg 1:20). To call them descendants of Anak is usually taken to mean that they were large or tall people (2 Sam 21:18-22). They were ultimately driven out by Caleb.

[19] sn The text now provides a brief historical aside for the readers. Zoan was probably the city of Tanis, although that is disputed today by some scholars. It was known in Egypt in the New Kingdom as "the fields of Tanis," which corresponded to the "fields of Zoar" in the Hebrew Bible (Ps 78:12, 43).

[20] tn The word is related etymologically to the verb for "slip, slide, bend, totter." This would fit the use very well. A pole that would not bend would be hard to use to carry things, but a pole or stave that was flexible would serve well.

[21] tn The verb is rendered as a passive because there is no expressed subject.

[22] tn Or "Wadi Eshcol." The translation "brook" is too generous; the Hebrew term refers to a river bed, a ravine or valley through which torrents of rain would rush in the rainy season; at other times it might be completely dry.

[23] tn The word "Eshcol" is drawn from the Hebrew expression concerning the "cluster of grapes." The word is probably retained in the name Burj Haskeh, two miles north of Damascus.

The Spies' Reports

13:26 They came back[1] to Moses and Aaron and to the whole community of the Israelites in the wilderness of Paran at Kadesh.[2] They reported[3] to the whole community and showed the fruit of the land. 13:27 They told Moses,[4] "We went to the land where you sent us.[5] It is indeed flowing with milk and honey,[6] and this is its fruit. 13:28 But[7] the inhabitants[8] are strong, and the cities are fortified and very large. Moreover we saw the descendants of Anak there. 13:29 The Amalekites live in the land of the Negev; the Hittites, Jebusites, and Amorites live in the hill country; and the Canaanites live by the sea and along the banks[9] of the Jordan."[10]

13:30 Then Caleb silenced the people before Moses, saying, "Let us go up[11] and occupy it,[12] for we are well able to conquer it."[13] 13:31 But the men[14] who had gone up with him said, "We are not able to go up against these people, because they are stronger than we are!" 13:32 Then they presented the Israelites with a discouraging[15] report of the land they had investigated, saying, "The land that we passed through[16] to investigate is a land that devours[17] its inhabitants.[18] All the people we saw there[19] are of great stature. 13:33 We even saw the Nephilim[20] there (the descendants of Anak came from the Nephilim), and we seemed liked grasshoppers both to ourselves[21] and to them."[22]

The Israelites Respond in Unbelief

14:1[23] Then all the community raised a loud cry,[24] and the people wept[25] that night. 14:2 And all the Israelites murmured[26] against Moses and Aaron, and the whole congregation said to them, "If only we had died[27] in the land of Egypt, or if only we had perished[28] in this wilderness! 14:3 Why has the LORD brought us into this land only to be killed by the sword, that our wives and our children should become plunder? Wouldn't it be

---

1 tn The construction literally has "and they went and they entered," which may be smoothed out as a verbal hendiadys, the one verb modifying the other.

2 sn Kadesh is Ain Qadeis, about 50 miles (83 km) south of Beer Sheba. It is called Kadesh-barnea in Num 32:8.

3 tn Heb "They brought back word"; the verb is the Hiphil preterite of שׁוּב (shuv).

4 tn Heb "told him and said." The referent (Moses) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

5 tn The relative clause modifies "the land." It is constructed with the relative and the verb: "where you sent us."

6 sn This is the common expression for the material abundance of the land (see further, F. C. Fensham, "An Ancient Tradition of the Fertility of Palestine," PEQ 98 [1966]: 166-67).

7 tn The word (אֲפָם, 'efes) forms a very strong adversative. The land was indeed rich and fruitful, but...."

8 tn Heb "the people who are living in the land."

9 tn Heb "by the side [hand] of."

10 sn For more discussion on these people groups, see D. J. Wiseman, ed., Peoples of Old Testament Times.

11 tn The construction is emphatic, using the cohortative with the infinitive absolute to strengthen it: עָלֹה נַעֲלֶה ('aloh na'aleh, "let us go up") with the sense of certainty and immediacy.

12 tn The perfect tense with vav (ו) consecutive brings the cohortative idea forward: "and let us possess it"; it may also be subordinated to form a purpose or result idea.

13 tn Here again the confidence of Caleb is expressed with the infinitive absolute and the imperfect tense: יָכוֹל נוּכַל (yakhol nukhal), "we are fully able" to do this. The verb יָכַל (yakhal) followed by the preposition lamed means "to prevail over, to conquer."

14 tn The vav (ו) disjunctive on the noun at the beginning of the clause forms a strong adversative clause here.

15 tn Or "an evil report," i.e., one that was a defamation of the grace of God.

16 tn Heb "which we passed over in it"; the pronoun on the preposition serves as a resumptive pronoun for the relative, and need not be translated literally.

17 tn The verb is the feminine singular participle from אָכַל ('akhal); it modifies the land as a "devouring land," a bold figure for the difficulty of living in the place.

18 sn The expression has been interpreted in a number of ways by commentators, such as that the land was infertile, that the Canaanites were cannibals, that it was a land filled with warlike dissensions, or that it denotes a land geared for battle. It may be that they intended the land to seem infertile and insecure.

19 tn Heb "in its midst."

20 tc The Greek version uses gigantes ("giants") to translate "the Nephilim," but it does not retain the clause "the sons of Anak are from the Nephilim."

sn The Nephilim are the legendary giants of antiquity. They are first discussed in Gen 6:4. This forms part of the pessimism of the spies' report.

21 tn Heb "in our eyes."

22 tn Heb "in their eyes."

23 sn This chapter forms part of the story already begun. There are three major sections here: dissatisfaction with the reports (vv. 1-10), the threat of divine punishment (vv. 11-38), and the defeat of the Israelites (vv. 39-45). See K. D. Sakenfeld, "The Problem of Divine Forgiveness in Num 14," CBQ 37 (1975): 317-30; also J. R. Bartlett, "The Use of the Word ראשׁ as a Title in the Old Testament," VT 19 (1969): 1-10.

24 tn The two verbs "lifted up their voice and cried" form a hendiadys; the idiom of raising the voice means that they cried aloud.

25 tn There are a number of things that the verb "to weep" or "wail" can connote. It could reflect joy, grief, lamentation, or repentance, but here it reflects fear, hopelessness, or vexation at the thought of coming all this way and being defeated by the Canaanite armies. See Judg 20:23, 26.

26 tn The Hebrew verb "to murmur" is לוּן (lun). It is a strong word, signifying far more than complaining or grumbling, as some of the modern translations have it. The word is most often connected to the wilderness experience. It is paralleled in the literature with the word "to rebel." The murmuring is like a parliamentary vote of no confidence, for they no longer trusted their leaders and wished to choose a new leader and return. This "return to Egypt" becomes a symbol of their lack of faith in the LORD.

27 tn The optative is expressed by לוּ (lu) and then the verb, here the perfect tense מַתְנוּ (matnu) – "O that we had died...." Had they wanted to die in Egypt they should not have cried out to the LORD to deliver them from bondage. Here the people became consumed with the fear and worry of what lay ahead, and in their panic they revealed a lack of trust in God.

28 tn Heb "died."

better for us to return to Egypt?" 14:4 So they said to one another,[1] "Let's appoint[2] a leader[3] and return[4] to Egypt."

14:5 Then Moses and Aaron fell down with their faces to the ground[5] before the whole assembled community[6] of the Israelites. 14:6 And Joshua son of Nun and Caleb son of Jephunneh, two of those who had investigated the land, tore their garments. 14:7 They said to the whole community of the Israelites, "The land we passed through to investigate is an exceedingly[7] good land. 14:8 If the LORD delights in us, then he will bring us into this land and give it to us – a land that is flowing with milk and honey.[8] 14:9 Only do not rebel against the LORD, and do not fear the people of the land, for they are bread for us.[9] Their protection[10] has turned aside from them, but the LORD is with us. Do not fear them!"

14:10 However, the whole community threatened to stone them.[11] But[12] the glory[13] of the LORD appeared to all the Israelites at the tent[14] of meeting.

The Punishment from God

14:11 The LORD said to Moses, "How long will this people despise[15] me, and how long will they not believe[16] in me, in spite of the signs that I have done among them? 14:12 I will strike them with the pestilence,[17] and I will disinherit them; I will make you into a nation that is greater and mightier than they!"

14:13 Moses said to the LORD, "When the Egyptians hear[18] it – for you brought up this people by your power from among them – 14:14 then they will tell it to the inhabitants[19] of this land. They have heard that you, LORD, are among this people, that you, LORD, are seen face to face,[20] that your cloud stands over them, and that you go before them by day in a pillar of cloud and in a pillar of fire by night. 14:15 If you kill[21] this entire people at once,[22] then the nations that have heard of your fame will say, 14:16 'Because the LORD was not able to bring this people into the land that he swore to them, he killed them in the wilderness.' 14:17 So now, let the power of my Lord[23] be great, just as you have said, 14:18 'The LORD is slow to anger and abounding in loyal love,[24] forgiving iniquity and transgression,[25] but by no means clearing[26] the guilty, visiting the iniquity of the fathers on the

1 tn Heb "a man to his brother."

2 tn The verb is נָתַן (natan, "to give"), but this verb has quite a wide range of meanings in the Bible. Here it must mean "to make," "to choose," "to designate" or the like.

3 tn The word "head" (ראש, ro'sh) probably refers to a tribal chief who was capable to judge and to lead to war (see J. R. Bartlett, "The Use of the Word ראש as a Title in the Old Testament," VT 19 [1969]: 1-10).

4 tn The form is a cohortative with a vav (ו) prefixed. After the preceding cohortative this could also be interpreted as a purpose or result clause – in order that we may return.

5 sn This action of Moses and Aaron is typical of them in the wilderness with the Israelites. The act shows self-abasement and deference before the sovereign LORD. They are not bowing before the people here, but in front of the people they bow before God. According to Num 16:41-50 this prostration is for the purpose of intercessory prayer. Here it prevents immediate wrath from God.

6 tn Heb "before all the assembly of the congregation."

7 tn The repetition of the adverb מְאֹד (m'od) is used to express this: "very, very [good]."

8 tn The subjective genitives "milk and honey" are symbols of the wealth of the land, second only to bread. Milk was a sign of such abundance (Gen 49:12; Isa 7:21,22). Because of the climate the milk would thicken quickly and become curds, eaten with bread or turned into butter. The honey mentioned here is the wild honey (see Deut 32:13; Judg 14:8-9). It signified sweetness, or the finer things of life (Ezek 3:3).

9 sn The expression must indicate that they could destroy the enemies as easily as they could eat bread.

10 tn Heb "their shade." The figure compares the shade from the sun with the protection from the enemy. It is also possible that the text is alluding to their deities here.

11 tn Heb "said to stone them with stones." The verb and the object are not from the same root, but the combination nonetheless forms an emphasis equal to the cognate accusative.

12 tn The vav (ו) on the noun "glory" indicates a strong contrast, one that interrupts their threatened attack.

13 sn The glory of the LORD refers to the reality of the LORD's presence in a manifestation of his power and splendor. It showed to all that God was a living God. The appearance of the glory indicated blessing for the obedient, but disaster for the disobedient.

14 tc The Greek, Syriac, and Tg. Ps.-J. have "in the cloud over the tent."

15 tn The verb נָאַץ (na'ats) means "to condemn, spurn" (BDB 610 s.v.). Coats suggests that in some contexts the word means actual rejection or renunciation (Rebellion in the Wilderness, 146, 7). This would include the idea of distaste.

16 tn The verb "to believe" (root אָמַן, 'aman) has the basic idea of support, dependability for the root. The Hiphil has a declarative sense, namely, to consider something reliable or dependable and to act on it. The people did not trust what the LORD said.

17 tc The Greek version has "death."

18 tn The construction is unusual in that we have here a perfect tense with a vav (ו) consecutive with no verb before it to establish the time sequence. The context requires that this be taken as a vav (ו) consecutive. It actually forms the protasis for the next verse, and would best be rendered "when...then they will say."

19 tn The singular participle is to be taken here as a collective, representing all the inhabitants of the land.

20 tn "Face to face" is literally "eye to eye." It only occurs elsewhere in Isa 52:8. This expresses the closest communication possible.

21 tn The verb is the Hiphil perfect of מוּת (mut), וְהִמַּתָּה (v'hemattah). The vav (ו) consecutive makes this also a future time sequence verb, but again in a conditional clause.

22 tn Heb "as one man."

23 tc The form in the text is אֲדֹנָי ('adonay), the word that is usually used in place of the tetragrammaton. It is the plural form with the pronominal suffix, and so must refer to God.

24 tn The expression רַב־חֶסֶד (rav khesed) means "much of loyal love," or "faithful love." Some have it "totally faithful," but that omits the aspect of his love.

25 tn Or "rebellion."

26 tn The infinitive absolute emphasizes the verbal activity of the imperfect tense, which here serves as a habitual imperfect. Negated it states what God does not do; and the infinitive makes that certain.

children until the third and fourth generations.'[1] 14:19 Please forgive[2] the iniquity of this people according to your great loyal love,[3] just as you have forgiven this people from Egypt even until now."

14:20 Then the LORD said, "I have forgiven them as you asked.[4] 14:21 But truly, as I live,[5] all the earth will be filled with the glory of the LORD. 14:22 For all the people have seen my glory and my signs that I did in Egypt and in the wilderness, and yet have tempted[6] me now these ten times,[7] and have not obeyed me,[8] 14:23 they will by no means[9] see the land that I swore to their fathers, nor will any of them who despised me see it. 14:24 Only my servant Caleb, because he had a different spirit and has followed me fully – I will bring him into the land where he had gone, and his descendants[10] will possess it. 14:25 (Now the Amalekites and the Canaanites were living in the valleys.)[11] Tomorrow, turn and journey into the wilderness by the way of the Red Sea."

14:26 The LORD spoke to Moses and Aaron: 14:27 "How long must I bear[12] with this evil congregation[13] that murmurs against me? I have heard the complaints of the Israelites that they murmured against me. 14:28 Say to them, 'As I live,[14] says[15] the LORD, I will surely do to you just what you have spoken in my hearing.[16] 14:29 Your dead bodies[17] will fall in this wilderness – all those of you who were numbered, according to your full number, from twenty years old and upward, who have murmured against me. 14:30 You will by no means enter into the land where[18] I swore[19] to settle[20] you. The only exceptions are Caleb son of Jephunneh and Joshua son of Nun. 14:31 But I will bring in your little ones, whom you said would become victims of war,[21] and they will enjoy[22] the land that you have despised. 14:32 But as for you, your dead bodies will fall in this wilderness, 14:33 and your children will wander[23] in the wilderness forty years and suffer for your unfaithfulness,[24] until your dead bodies lie finished[25] in the wilderness. 14:34 According to the number of the days you have investigated this land, forty days – one day for a year – you will suffer for[26] your iniquities, forty years, and you will know what it means

[1] sn The Decalogue adds "to those who hate me." The point of the line is that the effects of sin, if not the sinful traits themselves, are passed on to the next generation.

[2] tn The verb סְלַח־נָא (selakh-na'), the imperative form, means "forgive" (see Ps 130:4), "pardon," "excuse." The imperative is of course a prayer, a desire, and not a command.

[3] tn The construct unit is "the greatness of your loyal love." This is the genitive of specification, the first word being the modifier.

[4] tn Heb "forgiven according to your word." The direct object, "them," is implied.

[5] sn This is the oath formula, but in the Pentateuch it occurs here and in v. 28.

[6] tn The verb נָסָה (nasah) means "to test, to tempt, to prove." It can be used to indicate things are tried or proven, or for testing in a good sense, or tempting in the bad sense, i.e., putting God to the test. In all uses there is uncertainty or doubt about the outcome. Some uses of the verb are positive: If God tests Abraham in Genesis 22:1, it is because there is uncertainty whether he fears the LORD or not; if people like Gideon put out the fleece and test the LORD, it is done by faith but in order to be certain of the LORD's presence. But here, when these people put God to the test ten times, it was because they doubted the goodness and ability of God, and this was a major weakness. They had proof to the contrary, but chose to challenge God.

[8] tn Heb "listened to my voice."

[9] tn The word אִם ('im) indicates a negative oath formula: "if" means "they will not." It is elliptical. In a human oath one would be saying: "The LORD do to me if they see...," meaning "they will by no means see." Here God is swearing that they will not see the land.

[10] tn Heb "seed."

[11] sn The judgment on Israel is that they turn back to the desert and not attack the tribes in the land. So a parenthetical clause is inserted to state who was living there. They would surely block the entrance to the land from the south – unless God removed them. And he is not going to do that for Israel.

[12] tn The figure is aposiopesis, or sudden silence. The main verb is deleted from the line, "how long...this evil community." The intensity of the emotion is the reason for the ellipsis.

[13] sn It is worth mentioning in passing that this is one of the Rabbinic proof texts for having at least ten men to form a congregation and have prayer. If God called ten men (the bad spies) a "congregation," then a congregation must have ten men. But here the word "community/congregation" refers in this context to the people of Israel as a whole, not just to the ten spies.

[14] sn Here again is the oath that God swore in his wrath, an oath he swore by himself, that they would not enter the land. "As the LORD lives," or "by the life of the LORD," are ways to render it.

[15] tn The word נְאֻם (ne'um) is an "oracle." It is followed by the subjective genitive: "the oracle of the LORD" is equal to saying "the LORD says."

[16] tn Heb "in my ears."

sn They had expressed the longing to have died in the wilderness, and not in war. God will now give them that. They would not say to God "your will be done," so he says to them, "your will be done" (to borrow from C. S. Lewis).

[17] tn Or "your corpses" (also in vv. 32, 33).

[18] tn The relative pronoun "which" is joined with the resumptive pronoun "in it" to form a smoother reading "where."

[19] tn The Hebrew text uses the anthropomorphic expression "I raised my hand" in taking an oath.

[20] tn Heb "to cause you to dwell; to cause you to settle."

[22] tn Heb "know."

[23] tn The word is "shepherds." It means that the people would be wilderness nomads, grazing their flock on available land.

[24] tn Heb "you shall bear your whoredoms." The imagery of prostitution is used throughout the Bible to reflect spiritual unfaithfulness, leaving the covenant relationship and following after false gods. Here it is used generally for their rebellion in the wilderness, but not for following other gods.

[25] tn The infinitive is from תָּמַם (tamam), which means "to be complete." The word is often used to express completeness in a good sense – whole, blameless, or the like. Here and in v. 35 it seems to mean "until your deaths have been completed." See also Gen 47:15; Deut 2:15.

to thwart me.[1] 14:35 I, the LORD, have said, "I will surely do so to all this evil congregation that has gathered together against me. In this wilderness they will be finished, and there they will die!"'"

14:36 The men whom Moses sent to investigate the land, who returned and made the whole community murmur against him by producing[2] an evil report about the land, 14:37 those men who produced the evil report about the land, died by the plague before the LORD. 14:38 But Joshua son of Nun and Caleb son of Jephunneh, who were among[3] the men who went to investigate the land, lived. 14:39 When Moses told[4] these things to all the Israelites, the people mourned[5] greatly.

14:40 And early[6] in the morning they went up to the crest of the hill country,[7] saying, "Here we are, and we will go up to the place that the LORD commanded,[8] for we have sinned."[9] 14:41 But Moses said, "Why[10] are you now transgressing the commandment[11] of the LORD? It will not succeed! 14:42 Do not go up, for the LORD is not among you, and you will be[12] defeated before your enemies. 14:43 For the Amalekites and the Canaanites are there before you, and you will fall by the sword. Because you have turned away from the LORD, the LORD will not be with you."

14:44 But they dared[13] to go up to the crest of the hill, although[14] neither the ark of the covenant of the LORD nor Moses departed from the camp. 14:45 So the Amalekites and the Canaanites who lived in that hill country swooped[15] down and attacked them[16] as far as Hormah.[17]

Sacrificial Rulings

15:1[18] The LORD spoke to Moses: 15:2 "Speak to the Israelites and tell them, 'When you enter the land where you are to live,[19] which I am giving you,[20] 15:3 and you make an offering by fire to the LORD from the herd or from the flock (whether a burnt offering or a sacrifice for discharging a vow or as a freewill offering or in your solemn feasts) to create a pleasing aroma to the LORD, 15:4 then the one who presents his offering to the LORD must bring[21] a grain offering of one-tenth of an ephah of finely ground flour mixed with one fourth of a hin of olive oil.[22] 15:5 You must also prepare one-fourth of a

1 tn The phrase refers to the consequences of open hostility to God, or perhaps abandonment of God. The noun תְּנוּאָה (tenu'ah) occurs in Job 33:10 (perhaps). The related verb occurs in Num 30:6 HT (30:5 ET) and 32:7 with the sense of "disallow, discourage." The sense of the expression adopted in this translation comes from the meticulous study of R. Loewe, "Divine Frustration Exegetically Frustrated," Words and Meanings, 137-58.

2 tn The verb is the Hiphil infinitive construct with a lamed (לְ) preposition from the root יָצָא (yatsa', "to bring out"). The use of the infinitive here is epexegetical, that is, explaining how they caused the people to murmur.

3 tn The Hebrew text uses the preposition "from," "some of" – "from those men." The relative pronoun is added to make a smoother reading.

4 tn The preterite here is subordinated to the next preterite to form a temporal clause.

5 tn The word אָבַל ('aval) is rare, used mostly for mourning over deaths, but it is used here of mourning over bad news (see also Exod 33:4; 1 Sam 15:35; 16:1; etc.).

6 tn The verb וַיַּשְׁכִּמוּ (vayyashkimu) is often found in a verbal hendiadys construction: "They rose early...and they went up" means "they went up early."

7 tn The Hebrew text says literally "the top of the hill," but judging from the location and the terrain it probably means the heights of the hill country.

8 tn The verb is simply "said," but it means the place that the LORD said to go up to in order to fight.

9 sn Their sin was unbelief. They could have gone and conquered the area if they had trusted the LORD for their victory. They did not, and so they were condemned to perish in the wilderness. Now, thinking that by going they can undo all that, they plan to go. But this is also disobedience, for the LORD said they would not now take the land, and yet they think they can. Here is their second sin, presumption.

10 tn The line literally has, "Why is this [that] you are transgressing...." The demonstrative pronoun is enclitic; it brings the force of "why in the world are you doing this now?"

11 tn Heb "mouth."

12 tn This verb could also be subordinated to the preceding: "that you be not smitten."

13 tn N. H. Snaith compares Arabic 'afala ("to swell") and gafala ("reckless, headstrong"; Leviticus and Numbers [NCB], 248). The word עֹפֶל ('ofel) means a "rounded hill" or a "tumor." The idea behind the verb may be that of "swelling," and so "act presumptuously."

14 tn The disjunctive vav (ו) here introduces a circumstantial clause; the most appropriate one here would be the concessive "although."

15 tn Heb "came down."

16 tn The verb used here means "crush by beating," or "pounded" them. The Greek text used "cut them in pieces."

17 tn The name "Hormah" means "destruction"; it is from the word that means "ban, devote" for either destruction or temple use.

18 sn The wilderness wandering officially having begun, these rules were then given for the people to be used when they finally entered the land. That they would be provided here would be of some encouragement to the nation after their great failure. God still spoke of a land that was to be their land, even though they had sinned greatly. This chapter collects a number of religious rules. The first 16 verses deal with rulings for sacrifices. Then, vv. 17-36 concerns sins of omission. Finally, rules concerning tassels are covered (vv. 37-41). For additional reading, see G. B. Gray, Sacrifice in the Old Testament (Oxford: Clarendon, 1925); B. A. Levine, In the Presence of the LORD (SJLA); D. J. McCarthy, "The Symbolism of Blood and Sacrifice," JBL 88 (1969): 166-76; "Further Notes on the Symbolism of Blood and Sacrifice," JBL 92 (1973): 205-10; J. Thompson, Penitence and Sacrifice in Early Israel; R. de Vaux, Studies in Old Testament Sacrifice.

19 tn Heb "the land of your habitations."

20 tn The Hebrew participle here has the futur instans use of the participle, expressing that something is going to take place. It is not imminent, but it is certain that God would give the land to Israel.

21 tn The three words at the beginning of this verse are all etymologically related: "the one who offers his offering shall offer."

22 sn Obviously, as the wording of the text affirms, this kind of offering would be made after they were in the land and able to produce the grain and oil for the sacrifices. The instructions anticipated their ability to do this, and this would give hope to them. The amounts are difficult to determine, but it may be that they were to bring 4.5 liters of flour and 1.8 liters each of oil and wine.

hin of wine for a drink offering[1] with the burnt offering or the sacrifice for each lamb.[2] 15:6 Or for a ram, you must prepare as a grain offering two-tenths of an ephah of finely ground flour mixed with one-third of a hin of olive oil, 15:7 and for a drink offering you must offer one-third of a hin of wine as a pleasing aroma to the LORD. 15:8 And when you prepare a young bull as a burnt offering or a sacrifice for discharging a vow or as a peace offering to the LORD, 15:9 then a grain offering of three-tenths of an ephah of finely ground flour mixed with half a hin of olive oil must be presented[3] with the young bull, 15:10 and you must present as the drink offering half a hin of wine with the fire offering as a pleasing aroma to the LORD. 15:11 This is what is to be done[4] for each ox, or each ram, or each of the male lambs or the goats. 15:12 You must do so for each one according to the number that you prepare.

15:13 "'Every native-born person must do these things in this way to present an offering made by fire as a pleasing aroma to the LORD. 15:14 If a resident foreigner is living[5] with you – or whoever is among you[6] in future generations[7] – and prepares an offering made by fire as a pleasing aroma to the LORD, he must do it the same way you are to do it.[8] 15:15 One statute must apply[9] to you who belong to the congregation and to the resident foreigner who is living among you, as a permanent[10] statute for your future generations. You and the resident foreigner will be alike[11] before the LORD. 15:16 One law and one custom must apply to you and to the resident foreigner who lives alongside you.'"

Rules for First Fruits

15:17 The LORD spoke to Moses: 15:18 "Speak to the Israelites and tell them, 'When you enter the land to which I am bringing you[12] 15:19 and you eat[13] some of the food of the land, you must offer up a raised offering[14] to the LORD. 15:20 You must offer up a cake of the first of your finely ground flour[15] as a raised offering; as you offer the raised offering of the threshing floor, so you must offer it up. 15:21 You must give to the LORD some of the first of your finely ground flour as a raised offering in your future generations.

Rules for Unintentional Offenses

15:22[16] "'If you[17] sin unintentionally and do not observe all these commandments that the LORD has spoken to Moses – 15:23 all that the LORD has commanded you by the authority[18] of Moses, from the day that the LORD commanded Moses and continuing through your future generations – 15:24 then if anything is done unintentionally[19] without the knowledge of[20] the community, the whole community must prepare one young bull for a burnt offering – for a pleasing aroma to the LORD – along with its grain offering and its customary drink offering, and one male goat for a purification offering. 15:25 And the priest is to make atonement[21] for the whole

[1] sn The drink-offering was an ancient custom, mentioned in the Ugaritic tablets of Ras Shamra (14th century B.C.). The drink offering was poured out at the base of the altar (see Sir 50:15 and Josephus, Ant. 3.9.4 [3.234]).

[2] tn Heb "for the one lamb," but it clearly means "for each lamb."

[3] tn The text changes from direct address here to the third person form of the verb. If the MT is correct, then to make a smooth translation it would need to be made a passive (in view of the fact that no subject is expressed).

[4] tn Heb "according to thus shall it be done."

[5] tn The word גּוּר (gur) was traditionally translated "to sojourn," i.e., to live temporarily in a land. Here the two words are from the root: "if a sojourner sojourns."

[6] tn Heb "in your midst."

[7] tn The Hebrew text just has "to your generations," but it means in the future.

[8] tn The imperfect tenses must reflect the responsibility to comply with the law, and so the classifications of instruction or obligation may be applied.

[9] tn The word "apply" is supplied in the translation.

[10] tn Or "a statute forever."

[11] tn Heb "as you, as [so] the alien."

[12] tn The relative clause is literally, "which I am causing you to enter there." The final adverb is resumptive, and must be joined with the relative pronoun.

[13] tn The verse has a temporal clause that actually continues or supplements the temporal clause of the preceding verse. It is made up of the temporal indicator, the infinitive construct with the preposition, and the suffixed subjective genitive: "and it shall be when you eat." Here it is translated simply "and eat" since the temporal element was introduced in the last verse.

[14] tn This is the תְּרוּמָה (t^{e}rumah), the "raised offering" or "heave offering" (cf. KJV, ASV). It may simply be called a "contribution" (so NAB). The verb of the sentence is from the same root: "you shall lift up/raise up." It was to be an offering separated from the rest and raised up to the LORD in the sight of all. It was designed to remind the Israelites that the produce and the land belonged to God.

[15] tn Or "the first of your dough." The phrase is not very clear. N. H. Snaith thinks it means a batch of loaves from the kneading trough – the first batch of the baking (Leviticus and Numbers [NCB], 251).

[16] sn These regulations supplement what was already ruled on in the Levitical code for the purification and reparation offerings. See those rulings in Lev 4-7 for all the details. Some biblical scholars view the rules in Leviticus as more elaborate and therefore later. However, this probably represents a misunderstanding of the purpose of each collection.

[17] tn The verb is the plural imperfect; the sin discussed here is a sin committed by the community, or the larger part of the community.

[18] tn Heb "hand."

[19] tn The idea of לִשְׁגָגָה (lishgagah) seems to be that of "inadvertence" or "without intent." The text gives no indication of how this offense might be committed, or what it might include. It probably describes any transgressions done in ignorance of the Law that involved a violation of tabernacle procedure or priestly protocol or social misdemeanor. Even though it was done unintentionally, it was still a violation and called for ritual purification.

[20] tn Heb "[away] from the eyes of the community."

community of the Israelites, and they will be forgiven,[1] because it was unintentional and they have brought their offering, an offering made by fire to the LORD, and their purification offering before the LORD, for their unintentional offense. 15:26 And the whole community[2] of the Israelites and the resident foreigner who lives among them will be forgiven, since all the people were involved in the unintentional offense.

15:27 "'If any person[3] sins unintentionally, then he must bring a yearling female goat for a purification offering. 15:28 And the priest must make atonement for the person who sins unintentionally – when he sins unintentionally before the LORD – to make atonement for him, and he will be forgiven. 15:29 You must have one law for the person who sins unintentionally, both for the native-born among the Israelites and for the resident foreigner who lives among them.

Deliberate Sin

15:30 "'But the person[4] who acts defiantly,[5] whether native-born or a resident foreigner, insults[6] the LORD.[7] That person[8] must be cut off[9] from among his people. 15:31 Because he has despised[10] the word of the LORD and has broken[11] his commandment, that person[12] must be completely cut off.[13] His iniquity will be on him.'"[14]

15:32 When the Israelites were[15] in the wilderness they found a man gathering wood on the Sabbath day.[16] 15:33 Those who found him gathering wood brought him to Moses and Aaron and to the whole community. 15:34 They put him in custody, because there was no clear instruction about what should be done to him. 15:35 Then the LORD said to Moses, "The man must surely be put to death; the whole community must stone[17] him with stones outside the camp." 15:36 So the whole community took him outside the camp and stoned him to death,[18] just as the LORD commanded Moses.

This verb means "to expiate," "to atone for," "to pacify." It describes the ritual events by which someone who was separated from the holy LORD God could find acceptance into his presence through the sacrificial blood of the substitutionary animal. See Lev 1 and Num 16:41-50.

[1] tn Or "they will be forgiven."

[2] tn Again, rather than translate literally "and it shall be forgiven [to] them" (all the community), one could say, "they (all the community) will be forgiven." The meaning is the same.

[3] tn The Hebrew text has וְאִם־נֶפֶשׁ אַחַת (v^{e}'im-nefesh 'akhat), sometime translated "and if any soul." But the word describes the whole person, the soul in the body; it refers here to the individual who sins.

[4] tn Heb "soul."

[5] tn The sin is described literally as acting "with a high hand" – בְּיָד רָמָה (b^{e}yad ramah). The expression means that someone would do something with deliberate defiance, with an arrogance in spite of what the LORD said. It is as if the sinner was about to attack God, or at least lifting his hand against God. The implication of the expression is that it was done in full knowledge of the Law (especially since this contrasts throughout with the sins of ignorance). Blatant defiance of the word of the LORD is dealt with differently. For similar expressions, see Exod 14:8 and Num 33:3.

[6] tn The verb occurs only in the Piel; it means "to blaspheme," "to revile."

[7] tn The word order in the Hebrew text places "Yahweh" first for emphasis – it is the LORD such a person insults.

[8] tn Heb "soul."

[9] tn The clause begins with "and" because the verb is the perfect tense with vav (ו) consecutive. As discussed with Num 9:13, to be cut off could mean excommunication from the community, death by the community, or death by divine intervention.

[10] tn The verb בָּזָה (bazah, "to despise") means to treat something as worthless, to treat it with contempt, to look down the nose at something as it were.

[11] tn The verb פָּרַר (parar, "to break") can mean to nullify, break, or violate a covenant.

[12] tn Heb "soul."

[13] tn The construction uses the Niphal imperfect with the modifying Niphal infinitive absolute. The infinitive makes the sentence more emphatic. If the imperfect tense is taken as an instruction imperfect, then the infinitive makes the instruction more binding. If it is a simple future, then the future is certain. In either case, there is no exclusion from being cut off.

[14] sn The point is that the person's iniquity remains with him – he must pay for his sin. The judgment of God in such a case is both appropriate and unavoidable.

[15] tn The preterite of the verb "to be" is here subordinated to the next, parallel verb form, to form a temporal clause.

[16] sn For this brief passage, see A. Phillips, "The Case of the Woodgatherer Reconsidered," VT 19 (1969): 125-28; J. Weingreen, "The Case of the Woodgatherer (Numbers XV 32-36)," VT 16 (1966): 361-64; and B. J. Bamberger, "Revelations of Torah after Sinai," HUCA 16 (1941): 97-113. Weingreen argues that there is something of the Rabbinic method of setting a fence around the Law here; in other words, if this sin were not punished, the Law would have been violated in greater ways. Gathering of wood, although seemingly harmless, is done with intent to kindle fire, and so reveals a culpable intent.

[17] tn The sentence begins with the emphatic use of the infinitive absolute with the verb in the Hophal imperfect: "he shall surely be put to death." Then, a second infinitive absolute רָגוֹם (ragom) provides the explanatory activity – all the community is to stone him with stones. The punishment is consistent with other decrees from God (see Exod 31:14,15; 35:2). Moses had either forgotten such, or they had simply neglected to (or were hesitant to) enact them.

Rules for Tassels

15:37 The LORD spoke to Moses: 15:38 "Speak to the Israelites and tell them to make[1] tassels[2] for themselves on the corners of their garments throughout their generations, and put a blue thread[3] on the tassel of the corners. 15:39 You must have this tassel so that you may look at it and remember all the commandments of the LORD and obey them and so that you do not follow[4] after your own heart and your own eyes that lead you to unfaithfulness.[5] 15:40 Thus[6] you will remember and obey all my commandments and be holy to your God. 15:41 I am the LORD your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt to be your God. I am the LORD your God."

The Rebellion of Korah

16:1[7] Now Korah son of Izhar, the son of Kohath, the son of Levi, and Dathan and Abiram, the sons of Eliab, and On son of Peleth, who were Reubenites,[8] took men[9] 16:2 and rebelled against Moses, along with some of the Israelites, 250 leaders[10] of the community, chosen from the assembly,[11] famous men.[12] 16:3 And they assembled against Moses and Aaron, saying to them, "You take too much upon yourselves,[13] seeing that the whole community is holy, every one of them, and the LORD is among them. Why then do you exalt yourselves above the community of the LORD?"

16:4 When Moses heard it he fell down with his face to the ground.[14] 16:5 Then he said to Korah and to all his company, "In the morning the LORD will make known who are his, and who is holy. He will cause that person[15] to approach him; the person he has chosen he will cause to approach him. 16:6 Do this, Korah, you and all your company:[16] Take censers, 16:7 put fire in them, and set incense on them before the LORD tomorrow, and the man whom the LORD chooses will be holy. You take too much upon yourselves, you sons of Levi!" 16:8 Moses said to Korah, "Listen now, you sons of Levi! 16:9 Does it seem too small a thing to you that the God of Israel has separated you from the community of Israel to bring you near to himself, to perform the service of the tabernacle of the LORD, and to stand before the community to minister to them? 16:10 He has brought you near and all your brothers, the sons of Levi, with you. Do you now seek[17] the priesthood also?

1 tn The construction uses the imperative followed by perfect tenses with vav (ו) consecutives. The first perfect tense may be translated as the imperative, but the second, being a third common plural form, has to be subordinated as a purpose clause, or as the object of the preceding verb: "speak... and say...that they make."

2 sn This is a reference to the ציצת (tsitsit), the fringes on the borders of the robes. They were meant to hang from the corners of the upper garment (Deut 22:12), which was worn on top of the clothing. The tassel was probably made by twisting the overhanging threads of the garment into a knot that would hang down. This was a reminder of the covenant. The tassels were retained down through history, and today more elaborate prayer shawls with tassels are worn during prayer. For more information, see F. J. Stephens, "The Ancient Significance of Sisith," JBL 50 (1931): 59-70; and S. Bertman, "Tasselled Garments in the Ancient East Mediterranean," BA 24 (1961): 119-28.

3 sn The blue color may represent the heavenly origin of the Law, or perhaps, since it is a royal color, the majesty of the LORD.

4 tn Heb "seek out, look into."

5 tn This last clause is a relative clause explaining the influence of the human heart and physical sight. It literally says, "which you go whoring after them." The verb for "whoring" may be interpreted to mean "act unfaithfully." So, the idea is these influences lead to unfaithful activity: "after which you act unfaithfully."

6 tn This clause also serves as a purpose/result clause of the preceding – "in order that you may remember...." But because the line is so long, it is simpler to make this a separate sentence in the translation.

7 sn There are three main movements in the story of ch. 16. The first is the rebellion itself (vv. 1-19). The second is the judgment (vv. 20-35). Third is the atonement for the rebels (vv. 36-50). The whole chapter is a marvelous account of a massive rebellion against the leaders that concludes with reconciliation. For further study see G. Hort, "The Death of Qorah," ABR 7 (1959): 2-26; and J. Liver, "Korah, Dathan and Abiram," Studies in the Bible (ScrHier 8), 189-217.

8 tc The MT reading is plural ("the sons of Reuben"); the Smr and LXX have the singular ("the son of Reuben").

9 tn In the Hebrew text there is no object for the verb "took." The translation presented above supplies the word "men." However, it is possible that the MT has suffered damage here. The LXX has "and he spoke." The Syriac and Targum have "and he was divided." The editor of BHS suggests that perhaps the MT should be emended to "and he arose."

10 tn Heb "princes" (so KJV, ASV).

11 tn These men must have been counselors or judges of some kind.

12 tn Heb "men of name," or "men of renown."

13 tn The meaning of רַב־לָכֶם (rab-lakhem) is something like "you have assumed far too much authority." It simply means "much to you," perhaps "you have gone to far," or "you are overreaching yourselves" (M. Noth, Numbers [OTL], 123). He is objecting to the exclusiveness of the system that Moses has been introducing.

14 tn Heb "fell on his face."

15 tn Heb "him."

16 tn Heb "his congregation" or "his community." The expression is unusual, but what it signifies is that Korah had set up a rival "Israel" with himself as leader.

sn Moses discerned correctly the real motivation for the rebellion. Korah wanted to be the high priest because he saw how much power there was in the spiritual leadership in Israel. He wanted something like a general election with himself as the candidate and his supporters promoting him. The great privilege of being a Levite and serving in the sanctuary was not enough for him – the status did not satisfy him. Korah gave no rebuttal. The test would be one of ministering with incense. This would bring them into direct proximity with the LORD. If God honored Korah as a ministering priest, then it would be settled. But Moses accuses them of rebellion against the LORD, because the LORD had chosen Aaron to be the priest.

16:11 Therefore you and all your company have assembled together against the LORD! And Aaron – what is he that you murmur against him?"[1] 16:12 Then Moses summoned[2] Dathan and Abiram, the sons of Eliab, but they said, "We will not come up.[3] 16:13 Is it a small thing[4] that you have brought us up out of the land that flows with milk and honey,[5] to kill us in the wilderness? Now do you want to make yourself a prince[6] over us? 16:14 Moreover,[7] you have not brought us into a land that flows with milk and honey, nor given us an inheritance of fields and vineyards. Do you think you can blind[8] these men? We will not come up."

16:15 Moses was very angry, and he said to the LORD, "Have no respect[9] for their offering! I have not taken so much as one donkey from them, nor have I harmed any one of them!"

16:16 Then Moses said to Korah, "You and all your company present yourselves before the LORD – you and they, and Aaron – tomorrow. 16:17 And each of you[10] take his censer, put[11] incense in it, and then each of you present his censer before the LORD: 250 censers, along with you, and Aaron – each of you with his censer." 16:18 So everyone took his censer, put fire in it, and set incense on it, and stood at the entrance of the tent of meeting, with Moses and Aaron. 16:19 When[12] Korah assembled the whole community against them at the entrance of the tent of meeting, then the glory of the LORD appeared to the whole community.

The Judgment on the Rebels

16:20 The LORD spoke to Moses and Aaron: 16:21 "Separate yourselves[13] from among this community,[14] that I may consume them in an instant." 16:22 Then they threw themselves down with their faces to the ground[15] and said, "O God, the God of the spirits of all people,[16] will you be angry with the whole community when only one man sins?"[17]

16:23 So the LORD spoke to Moses: 16:24 "Tell the community: 'Get away[18] from around the homes of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram.'" 16:25 Then Moses got up[19] and went to Dathan and Abiram; and the elders of Israel went after him. 16:26 And he said to the community, "Move away from the tents of these wicked[20]

[1] sn The question indicates that they had been murmuring against Aaron, that is, expressing disloyalty and challenging his leadership. But it is actually against the LORD that they had been murmuring because the LORD had put Aaron in that position.

[2] tn Heb "Moses sent to summon." The verb קָרָא (qara') followed by the lamed (ל) preposition does not mean "call to" but "summon." This is a command performance; for them to appear would be to submit to Moses' authority. This they will not do.

[3] tn The imperfect tense נַעֲלֶה (na'aleh) expresses their unwillingness to report: "we are not willing," or "we will not." The verb means "to go up." It is used in the sense of appearing before an authority or a superior (see, e.g., Gen 46:31; Deut 25:7; Judg 4:5).

[4] tn The question is rhetorical. It was not a small thing to them – it was a big thing.

[5] tn The modern scholar who merely sees these words as belonging to an earlier tradition about going up to the land of Canaan that flows with milk and honey misses the irony here. What is happening is that the text is showing how twisted the thinking of the rebels is. They have turned things completely around. Egypt was the land flowing with milk and honey, not Canaan where they will die. The words of rebellion are seldom original, and always twisted.

[6] tn The verb הִשְׂתָּרֵר (histarer) is the Hitpael infinitive absolute that emphasizes the preceding תִּשְׂתָּרֵר (tistarer), the Hitpael imperfect tense (both forms having metathesis). The verb means "to rule; to act like a prince; to make oneself a prince." This is the only occurrence of the reflexive for this verb. The exact nuance is difficult to translate into English. But they are accusing Moses of seizing princely power for himself, perhaps making a sarcastic reference to his former status in Egypt. The rebels here are telling Moses that they had discerned his scheme, and so he could not "hoodwink" them (cf. NEB).

[7] tn Here אַף ('af) has the sense of "in addition." It is not a common use.

[8] tn Heb "will you bore out the eyes of these men?" The question is "Will you continue to mislead them?" (or "hoodwink" them). In Deut 16:19 it is used for taking a bribe; something like that kind of deception is intended here. They are simply stating that Moses is a deceiver who is misleading the people with false promises.

[9] tn The verb means "to turn toward"; it is a figurative expression that means "to pay attention to" or "to have regard for." So this is a prayer against Dathan and Abiram.

[10] tn Heb "and take, a man, his censer."

[11] tn This verb and the following one are both perfect tenses with vav (ו) consecutives. Following the imperative they carry the same force, but in sequence.

[12] tn This clause is clearly foundational for the clause that follows, the appearance of the LORD; therefore it should be subordinated to the next as a temporal clause (one preterite followed by another preterite may be so subordinated).

[13] tn The verb is הִבָּדְלוּ (hibbad^{e}lu), the Niphal imperative of בָּדַל (badal). This is the same word that was just used when Moses reminded the Levites that they had been separated from the community to serve the LORD.

[14] sn The group of people siding with Korah is meant, and not the entire community of the people of Israel. They are an assembly of rebels, their "community" consisting in their common plot.

[15] sn It is Moses and Aaron who prostrate themselves; they have the good of the people at heart.

[16] tn The expression "the God of the spirits of all humanity [flesh]" is somewhat difficult. The Hebrew text says אֱלֹהֵי הָרוּחֹת לְכָל־בָּשָׂר ('elohey harukhot l^{e}khol-basar). This expression occurs in Num 27:16 again. It also occurs in some postbiblical texts, a fact which has prompted some scholars to conclude that it is a late addition. The words clearly show that Moses is interceding for the congregation. The appeal in the verse is that it is better for one man to die for the whole nation than the whole nation for one man (see also John 11:50).

[17] tn The verb is the Qal imperfect יֶחֱטָא (yekheta'); it refers to the sinful rebellion of Korah, but Moses is stating something of a principle: "One man sins, and will you be angry...." A past tense translation would assume that this is a preterite use of the imperfect (without vav [ו] consecutive).

[18] tn The motif of "going up" is still present; here the Hebrew text says "go up" (the Niphal imperative – "go up yourselves") from their tents, meaning, move away from them.

[19] tn Heb "rose up."

men, and do not touch anything they have, lest you be destroyed because[1] of all their sins."[2] 16:27 So they got away from the homes of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram on every side, and Dathan and Abiram came out and stationed themselves[3] in the entrances of their tents with their wives, their children, and their toddlers. 16:28 Then Moses said, "This is how[4] you will know that the LORD has sent me to do all these works, for I have not done them of my own will.[5] 16:29 If these men die a natural death,[6] or if they share the fate[7] of all men, then the LORD has not sent me. 16:30 But if the LORD does something entirely new,[8] and the earth opens its mouth and swallows them up[9] along with all that they have, and they[10] go down alive to the grave,[11] then you will know that these men have despised the LORD!"

16:31 When he had finished[12] speaking[13] all these words, the ground that was under them split open, 16:32 and the earth opened its mouth and swallowed them, along with their households, and all Korah's men, and all their goods. 16:33 They and all that they had went down alive into the pit, and the earth closed over them. So they perished from among the community. 16:34 All the Israelites[14] who were around them fled at their cry,[15] for they said, "What if[16] the earth swallows us too?" 16:35 Then a fire[17] went out from the LORD and devoured the 250 men who offered incense.

The Atonement for the Rebellion

16:36 (17:1)[18] The LORD spoke to Moses: 16:37 "Tell[19] Eleazar son of Aaron the priest to pick up[20] the censers out of the flame, for they are holy, and then scatter the coals of fire[21] at a distance. 16:38 As for the censers of these men who sinned at the cost of their lives,[22] they must be made[23] into hammered sheets for covering the altar, because they presented them before the LORD and sanctified them. They will become a sign to the Israelites." 16:39 So Eleazar the priest took the bronze censers presented by those who had been burned up, and they were hammered out as a covering for the altar. 16:40 It was a memorial for the Israelites, that no outsider who is not a descendant of[24] Aaron should approach to burn incense before the LORD, that he might not become like Korah and his company – just

[1] tn The preposition bet (בְּ) in this line is causal – "on account of their sins."

[2] sn The impression is that the people did not hear what the LORD said to Moses, but only what Moses said to the people as a result. They saw the brilliant cloud, and perhaps heard the sound of his voice, but the relaying of the instructions indicates they did not hear the actual instruction from the LORD himself.

[3] tn The verb נִצָּבִים (nitsavim) suggests a defiant stance, for the word is often used in the sense of taking a stand for or against something. It can also be somewhat neutral, having the sense of positioning oneself for a purpose.

[4] tn Heb "in this."

[5] tn The Hebrew text simply has כִּי־לֹא מִלִּבִּי (ki-lo' millibbi, "for not from my heart"). The heart is the center of the will, the place decisions are made (see H. W. Wolff, Anthropology of the Old Testament). Moses is saying that the things he has done have not come "from the will of man" so to speak – and certainly not from some secret desire on his part to seize power.

[6] tn Heb "if like the death of every man they die."

[7] tn The noun is פְּקֻדָּה (pequddah, "appointment, visitation"). The expression refers to a natural death, parallel to the first expression.

[8] tn The verb בָּרָא (bara') is normally translated "create" in the Bible. More specifically it means to fashion or make or do something new and fresh. Here the verb is joined with its cognate accusative to underscore that this will be so different everyone will know it is of God.

[9] tn The figures are personifications. But they vividly describe the catastrophe to follow – which was very much like a mouth swallowing them.

[10] tn The word is "life" or "lifetime"; it certainly means their lives – they themselves. But the presence of this word suggests more. It is an accusative specifying the state of the subject – they will go down alive to Sheol.

[11] tn The word "Sheol" in the Bible can be used four different ways: the grave, the realm of the departed [wicked] spirits or Hell, death in general, or a place of extreme danger (one that will lead to the grave if God does not intervene). The usage here is certainly the first, and very likely the second as well. A translation of "pit" would not be inappropriate. Since they will go down there alive, it is likely that they will sense the deprivation and the separation from the land above. See H. W. Robinson, Inspiration and Revelation in the Old Testament; N. J. Tromp, Primitive Conceptions of Death and the Netherworld in the Old Testament (BibOr 21), 21-23; and A. Heidel, The Gilgamesh Epic, especially ch. 3.

[12] tn The initial temporal clause is standard: It begins with the temporal indicator "and it was," followed here by the Piel infinitive construct with the preposition and the subjective genitive suffix. "And it happened when he finished."

[13] tn The infinitive construct with the preposition lamed (לְ) functions here as the direct object of the preceding infinitive. It tells what he finished.

[14] tn Heb "all Israel."

[15] tn Heb "voice."

[17] tn For a discussion of the fire of the LORD, see J. C. H. Laughlin, "The Strange Fire of Nadab and Abihu," JBL 95 (1976): 559-65.

[18] sn Beginning with 16:36, the verse numbers through 17:13 in the English Bible differ from the verse numbers in the Hebrew text (BHS), with 16:36 ET = 17:1 HT, 16:37 ET = 17:2 HT, 17:1 ET = 17:16 HT, etc., through 17:13 ET = 17:28 HT. With 18:1 the verse numbers in the ET and HT are again the same. But in the English chap. 17 there are two parts: Aaron's rod budding (1-9), and the rod preserved as a memorial (10-13). Both sections begin with the same formula.

[19] tn Heb "say to."

[20] tn The verb is the jussive with a vav (וְ) coming after the imperative; it may be subordinated to form a purpose clause ("that he may pick up") or the object of the imperative.

[21] tn The Hebrew text just has "fire," but it would be hard to conceive of this action apart from the idea of coals of fire.

[22] tn The expression is "in/by/against their life." That they sinned against their life means that they brought ruin to themselves.

[23] tn The form is the perfect tense with vav (וְ) consecutive. But there is no expressed subject for "and they shall make them," and so it may be treated as a passive ("they shall [must] be made").

as the LORD had spoken by the authority[1] of Moses. 16:41 But on the next day the whole community of Israelites murmured against Moses and Aaron, saying, "You have killed the LORD's people!"[2] 16:42 When the community assembled[3] against Moses and Aaron, they turned toward the tent of meeting – and[4] the cloud covered it, and the glory of the LORD appeared. 16:43 Then Moses and Aaron stood before the tent of meeting.

16:44 The LORD spoke to Moses: 16:45 "Get away from this community, so that I can consume them in an instant!" But they threw themselves down with their faces to the ground.[5] 16:46 Then Moses said to Aaron, "Take the censer, put burning coals from the altar in it, place incense on it, and go quickly into the assembly and make atonement for them, for wrath has gone out from the LORD – the plague has begun!" 16:47 So Aaron did[6] as Moses commanded[7] and ran into the middle of the assembly, where the plague was just beginning among the people. So he placed incense on the coals and made atonement for the people. 16:48 He stood between the dead and the living, and the plague was stopped. 16:49 Now 14,700 people died in the plague, in addition to those who died in the event with Korah. 16:50 Then Aaron returned to Moses at the entrance of the tent of meeting, and the plague was stopped.

The Budding of Aaron's Staff

17:1[8] The LORD spoke to Moses: 17:2 "Speak to the Israelites, and receive from them a staff from each tribe,[9] one from every tribal leader,[10] twelve staffs; you must write each man's name on his staff. 17:3 You must write Aaron's name on the staff of Levi; for one staff is for the head of every tribe.[11] 17:4 You must place them[12] in the tent of meeting before the ark of the covenant[13] where I meet with you. 17:5 And the staff of the man whom I choose will blossom; so I will rid myself of the complaints of the Israelites, which they murmur against you."

17:6 So Moses spoke to the Israelites, and each of their leaders gave him a staff, one for each leader,[14] according to their tribes[15] – twelve staffs; the staff of Aaron was among their staffs. 17:7 Then Moses placed the staffs before the LORD in the tent of the testimony.[16]

17:8 On the next day Moses went into the tent of the testimony – and[17] the staff of Aaron for the house of Levi had sprouted, and brought forth buds, and produced blossoms, and yielded almonds![18] 17:9 So Moses brought out all the staffs from before the LORD to all the Israelites. They looked at them,[19] and each man took his staff.

The Memorial

17:10 The LORD said to Moses, "Bring Aaron's staff back before the testimony to be preserved for a sign to the rebels, so that you may bring their murmurings to an end[20] before me, that they will not die."[21] 17:11 So Moses did as the LORD commanded him – this is what he did.

17:12 The Israelites said to Moses, "We are bound to die![22] We perish, we all perish! 17:13 (17:28)[23] Anyone who even comes close to the tabernacle of the LORD will die! Are we all to die?"[24]

[1] tn Heb "hand."

[2] sn The whole congregation here is trying to project its guilt on Moses and Aaron. It was they and their rebellion that brought about the deaths, not Moses and Aaron. The LORD had punished the sinners. The fact that the leaders had organized a rebellion against the LORD was forgotten by these people. The point here is that the Israelites had learned nothing of spiritual value from the event.

[3] tn The temporal clause is constructed with the temporal indicator ("and it was") followed by the Niphal infinitive construct and preposition.

[4] tn The verse uses וְהִנֵּה (vehinneh, "and behold"). This is the deictic particle – it is used to point things out, suddenly calling attention to them, as if the reader were there. The people turned to look toward the tent – and there is the cloud!

[5] tn Heb "they fell on their faces."

[6] tn Heb "took."

[7] tn Or "had spoken" (NASB); NRSV "had ordered."

[8] sn Num 17:1 in the English Bible is 17:16 in the Hebrew text (BHS). See also the note on 16:36.

[9] tn Heb "receive from them a rod, a rod from the house of a father."

[10] tn Heb "from every leader of them according to their fathers' house."

[12] tn The verse is the Hiphil perfect of נוּחַ (nuakh, "to rest"), and so "to set at rest, lay, place, put." The form with the vav (ו) consecutive continues the instruction of the previous verse.

[13] tn The Hebrew text simply reads "the covenant" or "the testimony."

[14] tn Heb "a rod for one leader, a rod for one leader."

[15] tn Heb "the house of their fathers."

[16] tn The name of the tent now attests to the centrality of the ark of the covenant. Instead of the "tent of meeting" (מוֹעֵד, mo'ed) we now find the "the tent of the testimony" (הָעֵדֻת, ha'edut).

[17] tn Here too the deictic particle ("and behold") is added to draw attention to the sight in a vivid way.

[18] sn There is no clear answer why the tribe of Levi had used an almond staff. The almond tree is one of the first to bud in the spring, and its white blossoms are a beautiful sign that winter is over. Its name became a name for "watcher"; Jeremiah plays on this name for God's watching over his people (1:11-12).

[19] tn The words "at them" are not in the Hebrew text, but they have been added in the translation for clarity.

[20] tn The verb means "to finish; to complete" and here "to bring to an end." It is the imperfect following the imperative, and so introduces a purpose clause (as a final imperfect).

[21] tn This is another final imperfect in a purpose clause.

[22] tn The use of הֵן (hen) and the perfect tense in the nuance of a prophetic perfect expresses their conviction that they were bound to die – it was certain (see GKC 312-13 §106.n).

[23] sn Num 17:13 in the English Bible is 17:28 in the Hebrew text (BHS). See also the note on 16:36.

[24] tn The verse stresses the completeness of their death: "will we be consumed by dying" (הַאִם תַּמְנוּ לִגְוֹעַ, ha'im tamnu ligvoa').

Responsibilities of the Priests

18:1[1] The LORD said to Aaron, "You and your sons and your tribe[2] with you must bear the iniquity of the sanctuary,[3] and you and your sons with you must bear the iniquity of your priesthood.

18:2 "Bring with you your brothers, the tribe of Levi, the tribe of your father, so that they may join[4] with you and minister to you while[5] you and your sons with you are before the tent of the testimony. 18:3 They must be responsible to care for you and to care for the entire tabernacle. However, they must not come near the furnishings of the sanctuary and the altar, or both they and you will die. 18:4 They must join[6] with you, and they will be responsible for the care of the tent of meeting, for all the service of the tent, but no unauthorized person[7] may approach you. 18:5 You will be responsible for the care of the sanctuary and the care of the altar, so that there will be[8] no more wrath on the Israelites. 18:6 I myself have chosen[9] your brothers the Levites from among the Israelites. They are given to you as a gift from the LORD, to perform the duties[10] of the tent of meeting. 18:7 But you and your sons with you are responsible for your priestly duties, for everything at the altar and within the curtain. And you must serve. I give you the priesthood as a gift for service, but the unauthorized person who approaches must be put to death."

The Portion of the Priests

18:8 The LORD spoke to Aaron, "See, I have given you the responsibility for my raised offerings; I have given all the holy things of the Israelites to you as your priestly portion[11] and to your sons as a perpetual ordinance. 18:9 Of all the most holy offerings reserved[12] from the fire this will be yours: Every offering of theirs, whether from every grain offering or from every purification offering or from every reparation offering which they bring to me, will be most holy for you and for your sons. 18:10 You are to eat it as a most holy offering; every male may eat it. It will be holy to you.

18:11 "And this is yours: the raised offering of their gift, along with all the wave offerings of the Israelites. I have given them to you and to your sons and daughters with you as a perpetual ordinance. Everyone who is ceremonially clean in your household may eat of it.

18:12 "All the best of the olive oil and all the best of the wine and of the wheat, the first fruits of these things that they give to the LORD, I have given to you.[13] 18:13 And whatever first ripe fruit in their land they bring to the LORD will be yours; everyone who is ceremonially clean in your household may eat of it.

18:14 "Everything devoted[14] in Israel will be yours. 18:15 The firstborn of every womb which they present to the LORD, whether human or animal, will be yours. Nevertheless, the firstborn sons you must redeem,[15] and the firstborn males of unclean animals you must redeem. 18:16 And those that must be redeemed you are to redeem when they are a month old, according to your estimation, for five shekels of silver according to the sanctuary shekel (which is twenty gerahs). 18:17 But you must not redeem the firstborn of a cow or a sheep or a goat; they are holy. You must splash[16] their blood on the altar and burn their fat for an offering made by fire for a pleasing aroma to the LORD. 18:18 And their meat will be yours, just as the breast and the right hip

[1] sn This chapter and the next may have been inserted here to explain how the priests are to function because in the preceding chapter Aaron's position was affirmed. The chapter seems to fall into four units: responsibilities of priests (vv. 1-7), their portions (vv. 8-19), responsibilities of Levites (vv. 20-24), and instructions for Levites (vv. 25-32).

[3] sn The responsibility for the sanctuary included obligations relating to any violation of the sanctuary. This was stated to forestall any further violations of the sanctuary. The priests were to pay for any ritual errors, primarily if any came too near. Since the priests and Levites come near all the time, they risk violating ritual laws more than any. So, with the great privileges come great responsibilities. The bottom line is that they were responsible for the sanctuary.

[4] sn The verb forms a wordplay on the name Levi, and makes an allusion to the naming of the tribe Levi by Leah in the book of Genesis. There Leah hoped that with the birth of Levi her husband would be attached to her. Here, with the selection of the tribe to serve in the sanctuary, there is the wordplay again showing that the Levites will be attached to Aaron and the priests. The verb is יִלָּוּ (yillavu), which forms a nice wordplay with Levi (לֵוִי). The tribe will now be attached to the sanctuary. The verb is the imperfect with a vav (ו) that shows volitive sequence after the imperative, here indicating a purpose clause.

[5] tn The clause is a circumstantial clause because the disjunctive vav (ו) is on a nonverb to start the clause.

[6] tn Now the sentence uses the Niphal perfect with a vav (ו) consecutive from the same root לָוָה (lavah).

[7] tn The word is "stranger, alien," but it can also mean Israelites here.

[8] tn The clause is a purpose clause, and the imperfect tense a final imperfect.

[9] tn Heb "taken."

[10] tn The infinitive construct in this sentence is from עָבַד ('avad), and so is the noun that serves as its object: to serve the service.

[11] tn This is an uncommon root. It may be connected to the word "anoint" as here (see RSV). But it may also be seen as an intended parallel to "perpetual due" (see Gen 47:22; Exod 29:28; Lev 6:11 [HT]).

[12] tn Heb "from the fire." It probably refers to those parts that were not burned.

[13] tn This form may be classified as a perfect of resolve – he has decided to give them to them, even though this is a listing of what they will receive.

[14] tn The "ban" (חֵרֶם, kherem) in Hebrew describes that which is exclusively the LORD's, either for his sanctuary use, or for his destruction. It seems to refer to an individual's devoting something freely to God.

[15] tn The construction uses the infinitive absolute and the imperfect tense of the verb "to redeem" in order to stress the point – they were to be redeemed. N. H. Snaith suggests that the verb means to get by payment what was not originally yours, whereas the other root גָּאַל (ga'al) means to get back what was originally yours (Leviticus and Numbers [NCB], 268).

of the raised offering is yours. 18:19 All the raised offerings of the holy things that the Israelites offer to the LORD, I have given to you, and to your sons and daughters with you, as a perpetual ordinance. It is a covenant of salt[1] forever before the LORD for you and for your descendants with you."

Duties of the Levites

18:20 The LORD spoke to Aaron, "You will have no inheritance in their land, nor will you have any portion of property[2] among them – I am your portion and your inheritance among the Israelites. 18:21 See, I have given the Levites all the tithes in Israel for an inheritance, for their service which they perform – the service of the tent of meeting. 18:22 No longer may the Israelites approach the tent of meeting, or else they will bear their sin[3] and die. 18:23 But the Levites must perform the service[4] of the tent of meeting, and they must bear their iniquity.[5] It will be a perpetual ordinance throughout your generations that among the Israelites the Levites[6] have no inheritance.[7] 18:24 But I have given[8] to the Levites for an inheritance the tithes of the Israelites that are offered[9] to the LORD as a raised offering. That is why I said to them that among the Israelites they are to have no inheritance."

Instructions for the Levites

18:25 The LORD spoke to Moses: 18:26 "You are to speak to the Levites, and you must tell them, 'When you receive from the Israelites the tithe that I have given you from them as your inheritance, then you are to offer up[10] from it as a raised offering to the LORD a tenth of the tithe. 18:27 And your raised offering will be credited[11] to you as though it were grain from the threshing floor or as new wine[12] from the winepress. 18:28 Thus you are to offer up a raised offering to the LORD of all your tithes which you receive from the Israelites; and you must give the LORD's raised offering from it to Aaron the priest. 18:29 From all your gifts you must offer up every raised offering due[13] the LORD, from all the best of it, and the holiest part of it.'[14]

18:30 "Therefore you will say to them,[15] 'When you offer up[16] the best of it, then it will be credited to the Levites as the product of the threshing floor and as the product of the winepress. 18:31 And you may[17] eat it in any place, you and your household, because it is your wages for your service in the tent of meeting. 18:32 And you will bear no sin concerning it when you offer up the best of it. And you must not profane the holy things of the Israelites, or else you will die.'"[18]

The Red Heifer Ritual

19:1[19] The LORD spoke to Moses and Aaron: 19:2 "This is the ordinance of the law which the LORD has commanded: 'Instruct[20] the Israelites

[1] sn Salt was used in all the offerings; its importance as a preservative made it a natural symbol for the covenant which was established by sacrifice. Even general agreements were attested by sacrifice, and the phrase "covenant of salt" speaks of such agreements as binding and irrevocable. Note the expression in Ezra 4:14, "we have been salted with the salt of the palace." See further J. F. Ross, IDB 4:167.

[2] tn The phrase "of property" is supplied as a clarification.

[3] tn The Hebrew text uses the infinitive construct of the verb "to bear" with the lamed (ל) preposition to express the result of such an action. "To bear their sin" would mean that they would have to suffer the consequences of their sin.

[4] tn The verse begins with the perfect tense of עָבַד ('avad) with vav (ו) consecutive, making the form equal to the instructions preceding it. As its object the verb has the cognate accusative "service."

[5] sn The Levites have the care of the tent of meeting, and so they are responsible for any transgressions against it.

[6] tn Heb "they"; the referent (the Levites) has been supplied in the translation for clarity.

[7] tn The Hebrew text uses both the verb and the object from the same root to stress the point: They will not inherit an inheritance. The inheritance refers to land.

[8] tn The classification of the perfect tense here too could be the perfect of resolve, since this law is declaring what will be their portion – "I have decided to give."

[9] tn In the Hebrew text the verb has no expressed subject (although the "Israelites" is certainly intended), and so it can be rendered as a passive.

[10] tn The verb in this clause is the Hiphil perfect with a vav (ו) consecutive; it has the same force as an imperfect of instruction: "when...then you are to offer up."

[11] tn The verb is חָשַׁב (khashav, "to reckon; to count; to think"); it is the same verb used for "crediting" Abram with righteousness. Here the tithe of the priests will be counted as if it were a regular tithe.

[12] tn Heb "fullness," meaning the fullness of the harvest, i.e., a full harvest.

[13] tn The construction is "every raised offering of the LORD"; the genitive here is probably to be taken as a genitive of worth – the offering that is due the LORD.

[14] tn Or "its hallowed thing."

[15] tn The wording of this verse is confusing; it may be that it is addressed to the priests, telling them how to deal with the offerings of the Levites.

[16] tn The clause begins with the infinitive construct with its preposition and suffixed subject serving to indicate the temporal clause.

[17] tn The verb is the perfect tense with vav (ו) consecutive; it functions as the equivalent of the imperfect of permission.

[18] tn The final clause could also be rendered "in order that you do not die." The larger section can also be interpreted differently; rather than take it as a warning, it could be taken as an assurance that when they do all of this they will not be profaning it and so will not die (R. K. Harrison, Numbers [WEC], 253).

[19] sn In the last chapter the needs of the priests and Levites were addressed. Now the concern is for the people. This provision from the sacrifice of the red heifer is a precaution to ensure that the purity of the tabernacle was not violated by pollutions of impurity or death. This chapter has two main parts, both dealing with ceremonial purity: the ritual of the red heifer (vv. 1-10), and the purification from uncleanness (vv. 11-22). For further study see J. Milgrom, "The Paradox of the Red Cow (Num 19)," VT 31 (1981): 62-72.

to bring[1] you a red[2] heifer[3] without blemish, which has no defect[4] and has never carried a yoke. 19:3 You must give it to Eleazar the priest so that he can take it outside the camp, and it must be slaughtered before him.[5] 19:4 Eleazar the priest is to take[6] some of its blood with his finger, and sprinkle some of the blood seven times[7] directly in front of the tent of meeting. 19:5 Then the heifer must be burned[8] in his sight – its skin, its flesh, its blood, and its offal is to be burned.[9] 19:6 And the priest must take cedar wood, hyssop,[10] and scarlet wool and throw them into the midst of the fire where the heifer is burning.[11] 19:7 Then the priest must wash[12] his clothes and bathe himself[13] in water, and afterward he may come[14] into the camp, but the priest will be ceremonially unclean until evening.

19:8 The one who burns it[15] must wash his clothes in water and bathe himself in water. He will be ceremonially unclean until evening.

19:9 "'Then a man who is ceremonially clean must gather up the ashes of the red heifer and put them in a ceremonially clean place outside the camp. They must be kept[16] for the community of the Israelites for use in the water of purification[17] – it is a purification for sin.[18] 19:10 The one who gathers the ashes of the heifer must wash his clothes and be ceremonially unclean until evening. This will be a permanent ordinance both for the Israelites and the resident foreigner who lives among them.

Purification from Uncleanness

19:11 "'Whoever touches[19] the corpse[20] of any person[21] will be ceremonially unclean[22] seven days. 19:12 He must purify himself[23] with water on the third day and on the seventh day, and so will be clean. But if he does not purify himself on the third day and the seventh day, then he will not be clean. 19:13 Anyone who touches the corpse of any dead person and does not purify himself defiles the tabernacle of the LORD. And that person must be cut off from Israel,[24] because the water of purification was not sprinkled on him. He will be unclean; his uncleanness remains on him.

1 tn The line literally reads, "speak to the Israelites that [and] they bring [will bring]." The imperfect [or jussive] is subordinated to the imperative either as a purpose clause, or as the object of the instruction – speak to them that they bring, or tell them to bring.

2 tn The color is designated as red, although the actual color would be a tanned red-brown color for the animal (see the usage in Isa 1:18 and Song 5:10). The reddish color suggested the blood of ritual purification; see J. Milgrom, "The Paradox of the Red Cow (Num 19)," VT 31 (1981): 62-72.

3 sn Some modern commentators prefer "cow" to "heifer," thinking that the latter came from the influence of the Greek. Young animals were usually prescribed for the ritual, especially here, and so "heifer" is the better translation. A bull could not be given for this purification ritual because that is what was given for the high priests or the community according to Lev 4.

4 tn Heb "wherein there is no defect."

5 tc The clause is a little ambiguous. It reads "and he shall slaughter it before him." It sounds as if someone else will kill the heifer in the priest's presence. Since no one is named as the subject, it may be translated as a passive. Some commentators simply interpret that Eleazar was to kill the animal personally, but that is a little forced for "before him." The Greek text gives a third person plural sense to the verb; the Vulgate follows that reading.

6 tn The verb is the perfect tense with vav (ו) consecutive; it functions here as the equivalent of the imperfect of instruction.

7 sn Seven is a number with religious significance; it is often required in sacrificial ritual for atonement or for purification.

8 tn Again, the verb has no expressed subject, and so is given a passive translation.

9 tn The imperfect tense is third masculine singular, and so again the verb is to be made passive.

10 sn In addition to the general references, see R. K. Harrison, "The Biblical Problem of Hyssop," EvQ 26 (1954): 218-24.

11 sn There is no clear explanation available as to why these items were to be burned with the heifer. N. H. Snaith suggests that in accordance with Babylonian sacrifices they would have enhanced the rites with an aroma (Leviticus and Numbers [NCB], 272). In Lev 14 the wood and the hyssop may have been bound together by the scarlet wool to make a sprinkling device. It may be that the symbolism is what is important here. Cedar wood, for example, is durable; it may have symbolized resistance to future corruption and defilement, an early acquired immunity perhaps (R. K. Harrison, Numbers [WEC], 256).

12 tn The sequence continues with the perfect tense and vav (ו) consecutive.

13 tn Heb "his flesh."

14 tn This is the imperfect of permission.

15 sn Here the text makes clear that he had at least one assistant.

16 tn Heb "it will be."

17 tn The expression לְמֵי נִדָּה (l^{e}me niddah) is "for waters of impurity." The genitive must designate the purpose of the waters – they are for cases of impurity, and so serve for cleansing or purifying, thus "water of purification." The word "impurity" can also mean "abhorrent" because it refers to so many kinds of impurities. It is also called a purification offering; Milgrom notes that this is fitting because the sacrificial ritual involved transfers impurity from the purified to the purifier (pp. 62-72).

18 sn The ashes were to be stored somewhere outside the camp to be used in a water portion for cleansing someone who was defiled. This is a ritual that was enacted in the wilderness; it is something of a restoring rite for people alienated from community.

19 tn The form is the participle with the article functioning as a substantive: "the one who touches."

20 tn Heb "the dead."

21 tn The expression is full: לְכָל־נֶפֶשׁ אָדָם (l^{e}khol-nefesh 'adam) – of any life of a man, i.e., of any person.

22 tn The verb is a perfect tense with vav (ו) consecutive; it follows only the participle used as the subject, but since the case is hypothetical and therefore future, this picks up the future time. The adjective "ceremonially" is supplied in the translation as a clarification.

23 tn The verb is the Hitpael of חָטָא (khata'), a verb that normally means "to sin." But the Piel idea in many places is "to cleanse; to purify." This may be explained as a privative use ("to un-sin" someone, meaning cleanse) or denominative ("make a sin offering for someone"). It is surely connected to the purification offering, and so a sense of purify is what is wanted here.

24 sn It is in passages like this that the view that being "cut off" meant the death penalty is the hardest to support. Would the Law prescribe death for someone who touches a corpse and fails to follow the ritual? Besides, the statement in this section that his uncleanness remains with him suggests that he still lives on.

19:14 "'This is the law: When a man dies[1] in a tent, anyone who comes into the tent and all who are in the tent will be ceremonially unclean seven days. 19:15 And every open container that has no covering fastened on it is unclean. 19:16 And whoever touches the body of someone killed with a sword in the open fields,[2] or the body of someone who died of natural causes,[3] or a human bone, or a grave, will be unclean seven days.[4]

19:17 "'For a ceremonially unclean person you must take[5] some of the ashes of the heifer[6] burnt for purification from sin and pour[7] fresh running[8] water over them in a vessel. 19:18 Then a ceremonially clean person must take hyssop, dip it in the water, and sprinkle it on the tent, on all its furnishings, and on the people who were there, or on the one who touched a bone, or one killed, or one who died, or a grave. 19:19 And the clean person must sprinkle the unclean on the third day and on the seventh day; and on the seventh day he must purify him,[9] and then he must wash his clothes, and bathe in water, and he will be clean in the evening. 19:20 But the man who is unclean and does not purify himself, that person must be cut off from among the community, because he has polluted the sanctuary of the LORD; the water of purification was not sprinkled on him, so he is unclean.

19:21 "'So this will be a perpetual ordinance for them: The one who sprinkles[10] the water of purification must wash his clothes, and the one who touches the water of purification will be unclean until evening.[11] 19:22 And whatever the unclean person touches will be unclean, and the person who touches it will be unclean until evening.'"

The Israelites Complain Again

20:1[12] Then the entire community of Israel[13] entered the wilderness of Zin in the first month,[14] and the people stayed in Kadesh.[15] Miriam died and was buried there.[16]

20:2 And there was no water for the community, and so they gathered themselves together against Moses and Aaron. 20:3 The people contended[17] with Moses, saying,[18] "If only[19] we had died when our brothers died before the LORD! 20:4 Why[20] have you brought up the LORD's community into this wilderness? So that[21] we

1 tn The word order gives the classification and then the condition: "a man, when he dies...."

2 tn The expression for "in the open field" is literally "upon the face of the field" (עַל־פְּנֵי הַשָּׂדֶה, 'al p^{e}ne hassadeh). This ruling is in contrast now to what was contacted in the tent.

3 tn Heb "a dead body," but in contrast to the person killed with a sword, this must refer to someone who died of natural causes.

4 sn See Matt 23:27 and Acts 23:3 for application of this by the time of Jesus.

5 tn The verb is the perfect tense, third masculine plural, with a vav (ו) consecutive. The verb may be worded as a passive, "ashes must be taken," but that may be too awkward for this sentence. It may be best to render it with a generic "you" to fit the instruction of the text.

6 tn The word "heifer" is not in the Hebrew text, but it is implied.

7 tn Here too the verb is the perfect tense with vav (ו) consecutive; rather than make this passive, it is here left as a direct instruction to follow the preceding one. For the use of the verb נָתַן (natan) in the sense of "pour," see S. C. Reif, "A Note on a Neglected Connotation of ntn," VT 20 (1970): 114-16.

8 tn The expression is literally "living water." Living water is the fresh, flowing spring water that is clear, life-giving, and not the collected pools of stagnant or dirty water.

9 tn The construction uses a simple Piel of חָטָא (khata', "to purify") with a pronominal suffix – "he shall purify him." Some commentators take this to mean that after he sprinkles the unclean then he must purify himself. But that would not be the most natural way to read this form.

10 tn The form has the conjunction with it: וּמַזֶּה (umazzeh). The conjunction subordinates the following as the special law. It could literally be translated "and this shall be...that the one who sprinkles."

11 sn This gives the indication of the weight of the matter, for "until the evening" is the shortest period of ritual uncleanness in the Law. The problem of contamination had to be taken seriously, but this was a relatively simple matter to deal with – if one were willing to obey the Law.

12 sn This chapter is the account of how Moses struck the rock in disobedience to the LORD, and thereby was prohibited from entering the land. For additional literature on this part, see E. Arden, "How Moses Failed God," JBL 76 (1957): 50-52; J. Gray, "The Desert Sojourn of the Hebrews and the Sinai Horeb Tradition," VT 4 (1954): 148-54; T. W. Mann, "Theological Reflections on the Denial of Moses," JBL 98 (1979): 481-94; and J. R. Porter, "The Role of Kadesh-Barnea in the Narrative of the Exodus," JTS 44 (1943): 130-43.

13 tn The Hebrew text stresses this idea by use of apposition: "the Israelites entered, the entire community, the wilderness."

14 sn The text does not indicate here what year this was, but from comparing the other passages about the itinerary, this is probably the end of the wanderings, the fortieth year, for Aaron died some forty years after the exodus. So in that year the people come through the wilderness of Zin and prepare for a journey through the Moabite plains.

15 sn The Israelites stayed in Kadesh for some time during the wandering; here the stop at Kadesh Barnea may have lasted several months. See the commentaries for the general itinerary.

16 sn The death of Miriam is recorded without any qualifications or epitaph. In her older age she had been self-willed and rebellious, and so no doubt humbled by the vivid rebuke from God. But she had made her contribution from the beginning.

17 tn The verb is רִיב (riv); it is often used in the Bible for a legal complaint, a law suit, at least in form. But it can also describe a quarrel, or strife, like that between Abram's men and Lot's men in Genesis 13. It will be the main verb behind the commemorative name Meribah, the place where the people strove with God. It is a far more serious thing than grumbling – it is directed, intentional, and well-argued. For further discussion, see J. Limburg, "The Root 'rib' and the Prophetic Lawsuit Speeches," JBL 88 (1969): 291-304.

18 tn Heb "and they said, saying."

19 tn The particle לוּ (lu) indicates the optative nuance of the line – the wishing or longing for death. It is certainly an absurdity to want to have died, but God took them at their word and they died in the wilderness.

20 tn Heb "and why...." The conjunction seems to be recording another thing that the people said in their complaint against Moses.

21 tn The clause uses the infinitive construct with the lamed (ל) preposition. The clause would be a result clause in this sentence: "Why have you brought us here...with the result that we will all die?"

and our cattle should die here? 20:5 Why[1] have you brought us up from Egypt only to bring us to[2] this dreadful place? It is no place for grain, or figs, or vines, or pomegranates; nor is there any water to drink!"

Moses Responds

20:6 So Moses and Aaron went from the presence of the assembly to the entrance to the tent of meeting. They then threw themselves down with their faces to the ground, and the glory of the LORD appeared to them. 20:7 Then the LORD spoke to Moses: 20:8 "Take the staff and assemble the community, you and Aaron your brother, and then speak[3] to the rock before their eyes. It will pour forth[4] its water, and you will bring water out of the rock for them, and so you will give the community and their beasts water to drink."

20:9 So Moses took the staff from before the LORD, just as he commanded him. 20:10 Then Moses and Aaron gathered the community together in front of the rock, and he said to them, "Listen, you rebels,[5] must we bring[6] water out of this rock for you?" 20:11 Then Moses raised his hand, and struck the rock twice with his staff. And water came out abundantly. So the community drank, and their beasts drank too.

The Lord's Judgment

20:12 Then the LORD spoke to Moses and Aaron, "Because you did not trust me enough[7] to show me as holy[8] before[9] the Israelites, therefore you will not bring this community into the land I have given them."[10]

20:13 These are the waters of Meribah, because the Israelites contended with the LORD, and his holiness was maintained[11] among them.

Rejection by the Edomites

20:14[12] Moses[13] sent messengers from Kadesh to the king of Edom:[14] "Thus says your brother Israel: 'You know all the hardships we have experienced,[15] 20:15 how our ancestors went down into Egypt, and we lived in Egypt a long time,[16] and the Egyptians treated us and our ancestors badly.[17] 20:16 So when we cried to the LORD, he heard our voice and sent a messenger,[18] and has brought us up out of Egypt. Now[19] we are here in Kadesh, a town on the edge of your country.[20] 20:17 Please let us pass through[21] your country. We will not pass through the

1 tn Heb "and why."

2 tn Here also the infinitive construct (Hiphil) forms the subordinate clause of the preceding interrogative clause.

3 tn The verb is the Piel perfect with vav (ו) consecutive, following the two imperatives in the verse. Here is the focus of the instruction for Moses.

4 tn Heb "give." The verb is the perfect tense with vav (ו) consecutive, as are the next two in the verse. These are not now equal to the imperatives, but imperfects, showing the results of speaking to the rock: "speak...and it will...and so you will...."

5 tn The word is הַמֹּרִים (hammorim, "the rebels"), but here as a vocative: "you rebels." It was a harsh address, although well-earned.

6 tn The word order and the emphasis of the tense are important to this passage. The word order is "from this rock must we bring out to you water?" The emphasis is clearly on "from this rock!" The verb is the imperfect tense; it has one of the modal nuances here, probably obligatory – "must we do this?"

7 tn Or "to sanctify me."

sn The verb is the main word for "believe, trust." It is the verb that describes the faith in the Word of the LORD that leads to an appropriate action. Here God says that Moses did not believe him, meaning that what he did showed more of Moses than of what God said. Moses had taken a hostile stance toward the people, and then hit the rock twice. This showed that Moses was not satisfied with what God said, but made it more forceful and terrifying, thus giving the wrong picture of God to the people. By doing this the full power and might of the LORD was not displayed to the people. It was a momentary lack of faith, but it had to be dealt with.

8 sn Using the basic meaning of the word קָדַשׁ (qadash, "to be separate, distinct, set apart"), we can understand better what Moses failed to do. He was supposed to have acted in a way that would have shown God to be distinct, different, holy. Instead, he gave the impression that God was capricious and hostile – very human. The leader has to be aware of what image he is conveying to the people.

9 tn Heb "in the eyes of."

10 tn There is debate as to exactly what the sin of Moses was. Some interpreters think that the real sin might have been that he refused to do this at first, but that fact has been suppressed from the text. Some think the text was deliberately vague to explain why they could not enter the land without demeaning them. Others simply, and more likely, note that in Moses there was unbelief, pride, anger, impatience – disobedience.

11 tn The form is unusual – it is the Niphal preterite, and not the normal use of the Piel/Pual stem for "sanctify/sanctified." The basic idea of "he was holy" has to be the main idea, but in this context it refers to the fact that through judging Moses God was making sure people ensured his holiness among them. The word also forms a wordplay on the name Kadesh.

12 sn For this particular section, see W. F. Albright, "From the Patriarchs to Moses: 2. Moses out of Egypt," BA 36 (1973): 57-58; J. R. Bartlett, "The Land of Seir and the Brotherhood of Edom," JTS 20 (1969): 1-20, and "The Rise and Fall of the Kingdom of Edom," PEQ 104 (1972): 22-37, and "The Brotherhood of Edom," JSOT 4 (1977): 2-7.

13 tn Heb "And Moses sent."

14 sn Some modern biblical scholars are convinced, largely through arguments from silence, that there were no unified kingdoms in Edom until the 9th century, and no settlements there before the 12th century, and so the story must be late and largely fabricated. The evidence is beginning to point to the contrary. But the cities and residents of the region would largely be Bedouin, and so leave no real remains.

15 tn Heb "found."

16 tn Heb "many days."

17 tn The verb רָעַע (ra'a') means "to act or do evil." Evil here is in the sense of causing pain or trouble. So the causative stem in our passage means "to treat wickedly."

18 tn The word could be rendered "angel" or "messenger." Some ambiguity may be intended in this report.

19 tn The Hebrew text uses הִנֵּה (hinneh) to emphasize the "here and now" aspect of the report to Edom.

20 tn Heb "your border."

21 tn The request is expressed by the use of the cohortative, "let us pass through." It is the proper way to seek permission.

fields or through the vineyards, nor will we drink water from any well. We will go by the King's Highway;[1] we will not turn to the right or the left until we have passed through your region.'"[2]

20:18 But Edom said to him, "You will not pass through me,[3] or I will come out against[4] you with the sword." 20:19 Then the Israelites said to him, "We will go along the highway, and if we[5] or our cattle drink any of your water, we will pay for it. We will only pass through on our feet, without doing anything else."

20:20 But he said, "You may not pass through." Then Edom came out against them[6] with a large and powerful force.[7] 20:21 So Edom refused to give Israel passage through his border; therefore Israel turned away from him.

Aaron's Death

20:22 So the entire company of Israelites[8] traveled from Kadesh and came to Mount Hor.[9] 20:23 And the LORD spoke to Moses and Aaron in Mount Hor, by the border of the land of Edom. He said: 20:24 "Aaron will be gathered to his ancestors,[10] for he will not enter into the land I have given to the Israelites because both of you[11] rebelled against my word[12] at the waters of Meribah. 20:25 Take Aaron and Eleazar his son, and bring them up on Mount Hor. 20:26 Remove Aaron's priestly garments[13] and put them on Eleazar his son, and Aaron will be gathered to his ancestors[14] and will die there."

20:27 So Moses did as the LORD commanded; and they went up Mount Hor in the sight[15] of the whole community. 20:28 And Moses removed Aaron's garments and put them on his son Eleazar. So Aaron died there on the top of the mountain. And Moses and Eleazar came down from the mountain. 20:29 When all the community saw that Aaron was dead, the whole house of Israel mourned for Aaron thirty days.

Victory at Hormah

21:1[16] When the Canaanite king of Arad[17] who lived in the Negev[18] heard that Israel was approaching along the road to Atharim, he fought against Israel and took some of them prisoner.

21:2 So Israel made a vow[19] to the LORD and said, "If you will indeed deliver[20] this people into our[21] hand, then we will utterly destroy[22] their cities." 21:3 The LORD listened to the voice of Israel and delivered up the Canaanites,[23] and

1 sn This a main highway running from Damascus in the north to the Gulf of Aqaba, along the ridge of the land. Some scholars suggest that the name may have been given by the later Assyrians (see B. Obed, "Observations on Methods of Assyrian Rule in Transjordan after the Palestinian Campaign of Tiglathpileser III," JNES 29 [1970]: 177-86). Bronze Age fortresses have been discovered along this highway, attesting to its existence in the time of Moses. The original name came from the king who developed the highway, probably as a trading road (see S. Cohen, IDB 3:35-36).

2 tn Heb "borders."

3 tn The imperfect tense here has the nuance of prohibition.

4 tn Heb "to meet."

5 tn The Hebrew text uses singular pronouns, "I" and "my," but it is the people of Israel that are intended, and so it may be rendered in the plural. Similarly, Edom speaks in the first person, probably from the king. But it too could be rendered "we."

6 tn Heb "to meet him."

7 tn Heb "with many [heavy] people and with a strong hand." The translation presented above is interpretive, but that is what the line means. It was a show of force, numbers and weapons, to intimidate the Israelites.

8 tn Again the passage uses apposition: "the Israelites, the whole community."

9 sn The traditional location for this is near Petra (Josephus, Ant. 4.4.7). There is serious doubt about this location since it is well inside Edomite territory, and since it is very inaccessible for the transfer of the office. Another view places it not too far from Kadesh Barnea, about 15 miles (25 km) northeast at Jebel Madurah, on the northwest edge of Edom and so a suitable point of departure for approaching Canaan from the south (see J. L. Mihelec, IDB 2:644; and J. de Vaulx, Les Nombres [SB], 231). Others suggest it was at the foot of Mount Hor and not actually up in the mountains (see Deut 10:6).

10 sn This is the standard poetic expression for death. The bones would be buried, often with the bones of relatives in the same tomb, giving rise to the expression.

11 tn The verb is in the second person plural form, and so it is Moses and Aaron who rebelled, and so now because of that Aaron first and then Moses would die without going into the land.

12 tn Heb "mouth."

13 tn The word "priestly" is supplied in the translation for clarity.

14 tn Heb "will be gathered"; this is a truncated form of the usual expression "gathered to his ancestors," found in v. 24. The phrase "to his ancestors" is supplied in the translation here.

15 tn Heb "eyes."

16 sn This chapter has several events in it: the victory over Arad (vv. 1-3), the plague of serpents (vv. 4-9), the approach to Moab (vv. 10-20), and the victory over Sihon and Og (vv. 21-35). For information, see D. M. Gunn, "The 'Battle Report': Oral or Scribal Convention." JBL 93 (1974): 513-18; and of the extensive literature on the archaeological site, see EAEHL 1:74-89.

17 sn The name Arad probably refers to a place a number of miles away from Tel Arad in southern Israel. The name could also refer to the whole region (like Edom).

18 tn Or "the south"; "Negev" has become a technical name for the southern desert region and is still in use in modern times.

19 tn The Hebrew text uses a cognate accusative with the verb: They vowed a vow. The Israelites were therefore determined with God's help to defeat Arad.

20 tn The Hebrew text has the infinitive absolute and the imperfect tense of נָתַן (natan) to stress the point – if you will surely/indeed give."

21 tn Heb "my."

22 tn On the surface this does not sound like much of a vow. But the key is in the use of the verb for "utterly destroy" – חָרַם (kharam). Whatever was put to this "ban" or "devotion" belonged to God, either for his use, or for destruction. The oath was in fact saying that they would take nothing from this for themselves. It would simply be the removal of what was alien to the faith, or to God's program.

23 tc Smr, Greek, and Syriac add "into his hand."

they utterly destroyed them and their cities. So the name of the place was called[1] Hormah.

Fiery Serpents

21:4 Then they traveled from Mount Hor by the road to the Red Sea,[2] to go around the land of Edom, but the people[3] became impatient along the way. 21:5 And the people spoke against God and against Moses, "Why have you brought us up out of Egypt to die in the wilderness, for there is no bread or water, and we[4] detest this worthless[5] food."

21:6 So the LORD sent poisonous[6] snakes[7] among the people, and they bit the people; many people of Israel died. 21:7 Then the people came to Moses and said, "We have sinned, for we have spoken against the LORD and against you. Pray to the LORD that he would take away[8] the snakes from us." So Moses prayed for the people.

21:8 The LORD said to Moses, "Make a poisonous snake and set it on a pole. When anyone who is bitten looks[9] at it, he will live." 21:9 So Moses made a bronze snake and put it on a pole, so that if a snake had bitten someone, when he looked at the bronze snake he lived.[10]

The Approach to Moab

21:10[11] The Israelites traveled on and camped in Oboth. 21:11 Then they traveled on from Oboth and camped at Iye Abarim,[12] in the wilderness that is before Moab, on the eastern side.[13] 21:12 From there they moved on and camped in the valley of Zered. 21:13 From there they moved on and camped on the other side of the Arnon, in the wilderness that extends from the regions[14] of the Amorites, for Arnon is the border of Moab, between Moab and the Amorites. 21:14 This is why it is said in the Book of the Wars of the LORD,

"Waheb in Suphah[15] and the wadis, the Arnon 21:15 and the slope of the valleys[16] that extends to the dwelling of Ar,[17] and falls off at the border of Moab."

21:16 And from there they traveled[18] to Beer;[19] that is the well where the LORD spoke to Moses, "Gather the people and I will give them water." 21:17 Then Israel sang[20] this song:

"Spring up, O well, sing to it!

1 tn In the Hebrew text the verb has no expressed subject, and so here too is made passive. The name "Hormah" is etymologically connected to the verb "utterly destroy," forming the popular etymology (or paronomasia, a phonetic wordplay capturing the significance of the event).

2 tn The "Red Sea" is the general designation for the bodies of water on either side of the Sinai peninsula, even though they are technically gulfs from the Red Sea.

3 tn Heb "the soul of the people," expressing the innermost being of the people as they became frustrated.

4 tn Heb "our souls."

5 tn The Israelites' opinion about the manna was clear enough – "worthless." The word used is קָלֹקֵל (qeloqel, "good for nothing, worthless, miserable").

6 tn Heb "fiery."

7 tn The designation of the serpents/ snakes is נְחָשִׁים (nekhashim), which is similar to the word for "bronze" (נְחֹשֶׁת, nekhoshet). This has led some scholars to describe the serpents as bronze in color. The description of them as fiery indicates they were poisonous. Perhaps the snake in question is a species of adder.

8 tn The verb is the Hiphil jussive with a vav (ו) consecutive from the verb סוּר (sur); after the imperative this form may be subordinated to become a purpose clause.

9 tn The word order is slightly different in Hebrew: "and it shall be anyone who is bitten when he looks at it he shall live."

10 sn The image of the snake was to be a symbol of the curse that the Israelites were experiencing; by lifting the snake up on a pole Moses was indicating that the curse would be drawn away from the people – if they looked to it, which was a sign of faith. This symbol was later stored in the temple, until it became an object of worship and had to be removed (2 Kgs 18:4). Jesus, of course, alluded to it and used it as an illustration of his own mission. He would become the curse, and be lifted up, so that people who looked by faith to him would live (John 3:14). For further material, see D. J. Wiseman, "Flying Serpents," TynBul 23 (1972): 108-10; and K. R. Joines, "The Bronze Serpent in the Israelite Cult," JBL 87 (1968): 245-56.

11 sn See further D. L. Christensen, "Numbers 21:14-15 and the Book of the Wars of Yahweh," CBQ 36 (1974): 359-60; G. W. Coats, "The Wilderness Itinerary," CBQ 34 (1972): 135-52; G. I. Davies, "The Wilderness Itinerary," TB 25 (1974): 46-81; idem, The Way of the Wilderness; G. E. Mendenhall, "The Hebrew Conquest of Palestine," BA 25 (1962): 66-87.

12 sn These places are uncertain. Oboth may be some 15 miles (25 km) from the south end of the Dead Sea at a place called 'Ain el-Weiba. Iye Abarim may be the modern Mahay at the southeastern corner of Moab. See J. Simons, The Geographical and Topographical Texts of the Old Testament.

13 tn Heb "the rising of the sun."

14 tn Or "border."

15 tc The ancient versions show a wide variation here: Smr has "Waheb on the Sea of Reeds," the Greek version has "he has set Zoob on fire and the torrents of Arnon." Several modern versions treat the first line literally, taking the two main words as place names: Waheb and Suphah. This seems most likely, but then there would then be no subject or verb. One would need something like "the Israelites marched through." The KJV, following the Vulgate, made the first word a verb and read the second as "Red Sea" – "what he did in the Red Sea." But the subject of the passage is the terrain. D. L. Christensen proposed emending the first part from אֵת וָהֵב ('et vahev) to אַתָּה יְהוָה ('attah yehvah, "the LORD came"). But this is subjective. See his article "Num 21:14-15 and the Book of the Wars of Yahweh," CBQ 36 (1974): 359-60.

16 tc There are many variations in this text, but the MT reading of something like "the descent of the torrents/valleys" is preferable, since it is describing the topography.

17 sn The place is unknown; it is apparently an important city in the region.

18 tn The words "they traveled" are not in the Hebrew text, but are supplied here because of English style. The same phrase is supplied at the end of v. 18.

19 sn Isa 15:8 mentions a Moabite Beerelim, which Simons suggests is Wadi Ettemed.

20 tn After the adverb "then" the prefixed conjugation has the preterite force. For the archaic constructions, see D. N. Freedman, "Archaic Forms in Early Hebrew Poetry," ZAW 72 (1960): 101-7. The poem shows all the marks of being ancient.

21:18 The well which the princes[1] dug, which the leaders of the people opened with their scepters and their staffs."

And from the wilderness they traveled to Mattanah; 21:19 and from Mattanah to Nahaliel; and from Nahaliel to Bamoth; 21:20 and from Bamoth to the valley that is in the country of Moab, near the top of Pisgah, which overlooks the wilderness.[2]

The Victory over Sihon and Og

21:21[3] Then Israel sent messengers to King Sihon of the Amorites, saying,[4]

21:22 "Let us[5] pass through your land;[6] we will not turn aside into the fields or into the vineyards, nor will we drink water from any well, but we will go along the King's Highway until we pass your borders." 21:23 But Sihon did not permit Israel to pass through his border; he[7] gathered all his forces[8] together and went out against Israel into the wilderness. When[9] he came to Jahaz, he fought against Israel. 21:24 But the Israelites[10] defeated him in battle[11] and took possession of his land from the Arnon to the Jabbok, as far as the Ammonites, for the border of the Ammonites was strongly defended. 21:25 So Israel took all these cities; and Israel settled in all the cities of the Amorites, in Heshbon, and in all its villages.[12] 21:26 For Heshbon was the city of King Sihon of the Amorites. Now he had fought against the former king of Moab and had taken all of his land from his control,[13] as far as the Arnon. 21:27 That is why those who speak in proverbs[14] say,

"Come to Heshbon, let it be built.
Let the city of Sihon be established![15]
21:28 For fire went out from Heshbon, a flame from the city of Sihon.
It has consumed Ar of Moab and the lords[16] of the high places of Arnon.
21:29 Woe to you, Moab.
You are ruined, O people of Chemosh![17]
He has made his sons fugitives, and his daughters the prisoners of King Sihon of the Amorites.
21:30 We have overpowered them;[18]
Heshbon has perished as far as Dibon.
We have shattered them as far as Nophah, which[19] reaches to Medeba."

21:31 So the Israelites[20] lived in the land of the Amorites. 21:32 Moses sent spies to reconnoiter[21] Jaazer, and they captured its villages[22] and dispossessed the Amorites who were there.

21:33 Then they turned and went up by the road to Bashan. And King Og of Bashan and all his forces[23] marched out against them to do battle at Edrei. 21:34 And the LORD said to Moses, "Do not fear him, for I have delivered him and all his people and his land into your hand. You will do to him what you did to King Sihon of the Amorites, who lived in Heshbon. 21:35 So they defeated Og,[24] his sons, and all his people, until [1] sn The brief song is supposed to be an old workers' song, and so the mention of leaders and princes is unusual. Some think they are given credit because they directed where the workers were to dig. The scepter and staff might have served some symbolic or divining custom.

[2] tn Or perhaps as a place name, "Jeshimon."

[3] sn For this section, see further J. R. Bartlett, "Sihon and Og of the Amorites," VT 20 (1970): 257-77, and "The Moabites and the Edomites," Peoples of Old Testament Times, 229-58; S. H. Horn, "The Excavations at Tell Hesban, 1973," ADAJ 18 (1973): 87-88.

[4] tc Smr and the LXX have "words of peace."

[5] tn The Hebrew text uses the singular in these verses to match the reference to "Israel."

[6] tc Smr has "by the King's way I will go. I will not turn aside to the right or the left."

[7] tn Heb "Sihon."

[8] tn Heb "people."

[9] tn The clause begins with a preterite with vav (ו) consecutive, but may be subordinated to the next preterite as a temporal clause.

[10] tn The Hebrew text has "Israel," but the verb is plural.

[11] tn Heb "with the edge of the sword."

[12] tn Heb "its daughters."

[13] sn There is a justice, always, in the divine plan for the conquest of the land. Modern students of the Bible often think that the conquest passages are crude and unjust. But an understanding of the ancient Near East is critical here. This Sihon was not a part of the original population of the land. He himself invaded the territory and destroyed the population of Moab that was indigenous there and established his own kingdom. The ancient history is filled with such events; it is the way of life they chose – conquer or be conquered. For Israel to defeat them was in part a turning of their own devices back on their heads – "those that live by the sword will die by the sword." Sihon knew this, and he did not wait, but took the war to Israel. Israel wanted to pass through, not fight. But now they would either fight or be pushed into the gorge. So God used Israel to defeat Sihon, who had no claim to the land, as part of divine judgment.

[14] sn Proverbs of antiquity could include pithy sayings or longer songs, riddles, or poems composed to catch the significance or the irony of an event. This is a brief poem to remember the event, like an Egyptian victory song. It may have originated as an Amorite war taunt song; it was sung to commemorate this victory. It was cited later by Jeremiah (48:45-46). The composer invites his victorious people to rebuild the conquered city as a new capital for Sihon. He then turns to address the other cities which his God(s) has/have given to him. See P. D. Hanson, "The Song of Heshbon and David's Nir," HTR 61 (1968): 301.

[16] tc Some scholars emend to בָּלְעָה (bal'ah), reading "and devoured," instead of בַּעֲלֵי (ba'aley, "its lords"); cf. NAB, NRSV, TEV. This emendation is closer to the Greek and makes a better parallelism, but the MT makes good sense as it stands.

[17] sn The note of holy war emerges here as the victory is a victory over the local gods as well as over the people.

[18] tc The first verb is difficult. MT has "we shot at them." The Greek has "their posterity perished" (see GKC 218 §76.f).

[19] tc The relative pronoun "which" (אֲשֶׁר, 'asher) posed a problem for the ancient scribes here, as indicated by the so-called extraordinary point (punta extraordinaria) over the letter ר (resh) of אֲשֶׁר. Smr and the LXX have "fire" (אֵשׁ, 'esh) here (cf. NAB, NJB, RSV, NRSV). Some modern scholars emend the word to שֹׁאָה (sho'ah, "devastation").

[20] tn Heb "Israel."

[21] tn Heb "Moses sent to spy out."

[22] tn Heb "daughters."

[23] tn Heb "people."

[24] tn Heb "him"; the referent (Og) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

there were no survivors,[1] and they possessed his land.

Balaam Refuses to Curse Israel

22:1[2] The Israelites traveled on[3] and camped in the plains of Moab on the side of the Jordan River[4] across from Jericho.[5] 22:2 Balak son of Zippor saw all that the Israelites had done to the Amorites. 22:3 And the Moabites were greatly afraid of the people, because they were so numerous. The Moabites were sick with fear because of the Israelites.

22:4 So the Moabites said to the elders of Midian, "Now this mass of people[6] will lick up everything around us, as the bull devours the grass of the field. Now Balak son of Zippor was king of the Moabites at this time. 22:5 And he sent messengers to Balaam[7] son of Beor at Pethor, which is by the Euphrates River[8] in the land of Amaw,[9] to summon him, saying, "Look, a nation has come out of Egypt. They cover the face[10] of the earth, and they are settling next to me. 22:6 So[11] now, please come and curse this nation[12] for me, for they are too powerful for me. Perhaps I will prevail so that we may conquer them[13] and drive them out of the land. For I know that whoever you bless is blessed,[14] and whoever you curse is cursed."

22:7 So the elders of Moab and the elders of Midian departed with the fee for divination in their hand. They came to Balaam and reported[15] to him the words of Balak. 22:8 He replied to them, "Stay[16] here tonight, and I will bring back to you whatever word the LORD may speak to me." So the princes of Moab stayed with Balaam. 22:9 And God came to Balaam and said, "Who are these men with you?" 22:10 Balaam said to God, "Balak son of Zippor, king of Moab, has sent a message to me, saying, 22:11 'Look, a nation has come out[17] of Egypt, and it covers the face of the earth. Come now and put a curse on them for me; perhaps I will be able to defeat them[18] and drive them out.'"[19] 22:12 But God said to Balaam, "You must not go with them; you must not curse the people,[20] for they are blessed."[21]

22:13 So Balaam got up in the morning, and said to the princes of Balak, "Go to your land,[22] for the LORD has refused to permit me to go[23] with you." 22:14 So the princes of Moab de-

1 tn Heb "no remnant."

2 sn The fifth section of the book (22:1-33:56) traces the Israelite activities in Transjordan. It is hard to determine how long they were in Transjordan, but a good amount of time must have elapsed for the number of moves they made and the wars they fought. There is a considerable amount of information available on this section of the book. Some of the most helpful works include: H. C. Brichto, The Problem of "Curse" in the Hebrew Bible (JBLMS); E. Burrows, The Oracles of Jacob and Balaam; G. W. Coats, "Balaam, Sinner or Saint?" BR 18 (1973): 21-29; P. C. Craigie, "The Conquest and Early Hebrew Poetry," TynBul 20 (1969): 76-94; I. Parker, "The Way of God and the Way of Balaam," ExpTim 17 (1905): 45; and J. A. Wharton, "The Command to Bless: An Exposition of Numbers 22:41–23:25," Int 13 (1959): 37-48. This first part introduces the characters and sets the stage for the oracles. It can be divided into four sections: the invitation declined (vv. 1-14), the second invitation extended (vv. 15-21), God opposes Balaam (vv. 22-35), and Balaam meets Balak (vv. 36-41).

3 tn The verse begins with the vav (ו) consecutive.

4 tn The word "River" is not in the Hebrew text, but has been supplied in the translation for clarity.

5 map For the location of Jericho see Map5-B2; Map6-E1; Map7-E1; Map8-E3; Map10-A2; Map11-A1.

6 tn The word is simply "company," but in the context he must mean a vast company – a horde of people.

7 sn There is much literature on pagan diviners and especially prophecy in places in the east like Mari (see, for example, H. B. Huffmon, "Prophecy in the Mari Letters," BA 31 [1968]: 101-24). Balaam appears to be a pagan diviner who was of some reputation; he was called to curse the Israelites, but God intervened and gave him blessings only. The passage forms a nice complement to texts that deal with blessings and curses. It shows that no one can curse someone whom God has blessed.

8 tn Heb "by the river"; in most contexts this expression refers to the Euphrates River (cf. NAB, NCV, NRSV, TEV, CEV, NLT).

9 tn Heb "in the land of Amaw" (cf. NAB, NRSV, TEV); traditionally "in the land of the sons of his people." The LXX has "by the river of the land."

10 tn Heb "eye." So also in v. 11.

11 tn The two lines before this verse begin with the particle הִנֵּה (hinneh), and so they lay the foundation for these imperatives. In view of those circumstances, this is what should happen.

12 tn Heb "people." So also in vv. 10, 17, 41.

13 tn The construction uses the imperfect tense אוּכַל ('ukhal, "I will be able") followed by the imperfect tense נַכֶּה (nakkeh, "we will smite/attack/defeat"). The second verb is clearly the purpose or the result of the first, even though there is no conjunction or particle.

14 tn The verb is the Piel imperfect of בָּרַךְ (barakh), with the nuance of possibility: "whomever you may bless." The Pual participle מְבֹרָךְ (m^{e}vorakh) serves as the predicate.

15 tn Heb "spoke."

16 tn The verb לִין (lin) means "to lodge, spend the night." The related noun is "a lodge" – a hotel of sorts. Balaam needed to consider the offer. And after darkness was considered the best time for diviners to consult with their deities. Balaam apparently knows of the LORD; he testifies to this effect in 22:18.

17 tn In this passage the text differs slightly; here it is "the nation that comes out," using the article on the noun, and the active participle in the attributive adjective usage.

18 tn Here the infinitive construct is used to express the object or complement of the verb "to be able" (it answers the question of what he will be able to do).

19 tn The verb is the Piel perfect with vav (ו) consecutive. It either carries the force of an imperfect tense, or it may be subordinated to the preceding verbs.

20 tn The two verbs are negated imperfects; they have the nuance of prohibition: You must not go and you must not curse.

21 tn The word בָּרוּךְ (barukh) is the Qal passive participle, serving here as the predicate adjective after the supplied verb "to be." The verb means "enrich," in any way, materially, spiritually, physically. But the indication here is that the blessing includes the promised blessing of the patriarchs, a blessing that gave Israel the land. See further, C. Westermann, Blessing in the Bible and the Life of the Church (OBT).

22 tc The LXX adds "to your lord."

23 tn The main verb is the Piel perfect, "he has refused." This is followed by two infinitives. The first (לְתִתִּי, l^{e}titti) serves as a complement or direct object of the verb, answering the question of what he refused to do – "to give me." The second infinitive (לָלֶכֶת, lahalokh) provides the object for the preceding infinitive: "to grant me to go."

parted[1] and went back to Balak and said, "Balaam refused to come with us."

Balaam Accompanies the Moabite Princes

22:15 Balak again sent princes,[2] more numerous and more distinguished than the first.[3] 22:16 And they came to Balaam and said to him, "Thus says Balak son of Zippor: 'Please do not let anything hinder you from coming[4] to me. 22:17 For I will honor you greatly,[5] and whatever you tell me I will do. So come, put a curse on this nation for me.'"

22:18 Balaam replied[6] to the servants of Balak, "Even if Balak would give me his palace full of silver and gold, I could not transgress the commandment[7] of the LORD my God[8] to do less or more. 22:19 Now therefore, please stay[9] the night here also, that I may know what more the LORD might say to me."[10] 22:20 God came to Balaam that night, and said to him, "If the men have come to call you, get up and go with them, but the word that I will say to you, that you must do." 22:21 So Balaam got up in the morning, saddled his donkey, and went with the princes of Moab.

God Opposes Balaam

22:22 Then God's anger was kindled[11] because he went, and the angel of the LORD stood in the road to oppose[12] him. Now he was riding on his donkey and his two servants were with him. 22:23 And the donkey saw the angel of the LORD standing in the road with[13] his sword drawn in his hand, so the donkey turned aside from the road and went into the field. But Balaam beat the donkey, to make her turn back to the road.

22:24 Then the angel of the LORD stood in a path[14] among the vineyards, where there was a wall on either side.[15] 22:25 And when the donkey saw the angel of the LORD, she pressed herself into the wall, and crushed Balaam's foot against the wall. So he beat her again.[16]

22:26 Then the angel of the LORD went farther, and stood in a narrow place, where there was no way to turn either to the right or to the left. 22:27 When the donkey saw the angel of the LORD, she crouched down under Balaam. Then Balaam was angry, and he beat his donkey with a staff.

22:28 Then the LORD opened the mouth of the donkey, and she said to Balaam, "What have I done to you that you have beaten me these three times?" 22:29 And Balaam said to the donkey, "You have made me look stupid; I wish[17] there were a sword in my hand, for I would kill you right now." 22:30 The donkey said to Balaam, "Am not I your donkey that you have ridden ever since I was yours until this day? Have I ever attempted[18] to treat you this way?"[19] And he said, "No." 22:31 Then the LORD opened Balaam's eyes, and he saw the angel of the LORD standing in the way with his sword drawn in his hand; so he bowed his head and threw himself down with his face to the ground.[20] 22:32 The angel of the LORD said to him, "Why have you beaten your donkey these three times? Look, I came out to oppose you because what you are doing[21] is perverse before me.[22] 22:33 The donkey saw me and turned from me these three times. If[23] she had not turned from me, I would have killed you but saved her alive." 22:34 Balaam said to the angel of the LORD, "I

1 tn Heb "rose up."

2 tn The construction is a verbal hendiadys. It uses the Hiphil preterite of the verb "to add" followed by the Qal infinitive "to send." The infinitive becomes the main verb, and the preterite an adverb: "he added to send" means "he sent again."

3 tn Heb "than these."

4 tn The infinitive construct is the object of the preposition.

5 tn The construction uses the Piel infinitive כַּבֵּד (kabbed) to intensify the verb, which is the Piel imperfect/cohortative אֲכַבֶּדְךָ ('akhabbedkha). The great honor could have been wealth, prestige, or position.

6 tn Heb "answered and said."

7 tn Heb "mouth."

8 sn In the light of subsequent events one should not take too seriously that Balaam referred to Yahweh as his God. He is referring properly to the deity for which he is acting as the agent.

9 tn In this case "lodge" is not used, but "remain, reside" (שָׁבוּ, sh^{e}vu).

10 tn This clause is also a verbal hendiadys: "what the LORD might add to speak," meaning, "what more the LORD might say."

11 sn God's anger now seems to contradict the permission he gave Balaam just before this. Some commentators argue that God's anger is a response to Balaam's character in setting out – which the Bible does not explain. God saw in him greed and pleasure for the riches, which is why he was so willing to go.

12 tn The word is שָׂטָן (satan, "to be an adversary, to oppose").

13 tn The word has the conjunction "and" on the noun, indicating this is a disjunctive vav (ו), here serving as a circumstantial clause.

14 tn The word means a "narrow place," having the root meaning "to be deep." The Greek thought it was in a field in a narrow furrow.

15 tn Heb "a wall on this side, and a wall on that side."

16 tn Heb "he added to beat her," another verbal hendiadys.

17 tn The optative clause is introduced with the particle לוּ (lu).

18 tn Here the Hiphil perfect is preceded by the Hiphil infinitive absolute for emphasis in the sentence.

19 tn Heb "to do thus to you."

20 tn The Hishtaphel verb הִוָּה (khavah) – שָׁחָה (shakhah) with metathesis – has a basic idea of "bow oneself low to the ground," and perhaps in some cases the idea of "coil up." This is the normal posture of prayer and of deep humility in the ancient religious world.

21 tn Heb "your way."

22 tn The verb יָרַט (yarat) occurs only here and in Job 16:11. Balaam is embarking on a foolish mission with base motives. The old rendering "perverse" is still acceptable.

23 tc Many commentators consider אוּלַי ('ulay, "perhaps") to be a misspelling in the MT in place of לוּלֵי (luley, "if not").

have sinned, for I did not know that you stood against me in the road.[1] So now, if it is evil in your sight,[2] I will go back home."[3] 22:35 But the angel of the LORD said to Balaam, "Go with the men, but you may only speak[4] the word that I will speak to you."[5] So Balaam went with the princes of Balak.

Balaam Meets Balak

22:36 When Balak heard that Balaam was coming, he went out to meet him at a city of Moab which was on the border of the Arnon at the boundary of his territory. 22:37 Balak said to Balaam, "Did I not send again and again[6] to you to summon you? Why did you not come to me? Am I not able to honor you?"[7] 22:38 Balaam said to Balak, "Look, I have come to you. Now, am I able[8] to speak[9] just anything? I must speak[10] only the word that God puts in my mouth." 22:39 So Balaam went with Balak, and they came to Kiriath-huzoth. 22:40 And Balak sacrificed bulls and sheep, and sent some[11] to Balaam, and to the princes who were with him. 22:41 Then on the next morning Balak took Balaam, and brought him up to Bamoth Baal.[12] From there he saw the extent of the nation.

Balaam Blesses Israel

23:1[13] Balaam said to Balak, "Build me seven altars here, and prepare for me here seven bulls and seven rams." 23:2 So Balak did just as Balaam had said. Balak and Balaam then offered on each[14] altar a bull and a ram. 23:3 Balaam said to Balak, "Station yourself[15] by your burnt offering, and I will go off; perhaps the LORD will come to meet me, and whatever he reveals to me[16] I will tell you."[17] Then he went to a deserted height.[18]

23:4 Then God met Balaam, who[19] said to him, "I have prepared seven altars, and I have offered on each altar a bull and a ram." 23:5 Then the LORD put a message[20] in Balaam's mouth and said, "Return to Balak, and speak what I tell you."[21]

23:6 So he returned to him, and he was still[22] standing by his burnt offering, he and all the princes of Moab. 23:7 Then Balaam[23] uttered[24] his oracle, saying,

> "Balak, the king of Moab, brought me[25] from Aram, > out of the mountains of the east, saying,
> 'Come, pronounce a curse on Jacob for me;
> come, denounce Israel.'[26]

[1] sn Balaam is not here making a general confession of sin. What he is admitting to is a procedural mistake. The basic meaning of the word is "to miss the mark." He now knows he took the wrong way, i.e., in coming to curse Israel.

[2] sn The reference is to Balaam's way. He is saying that if what he is doing is so perverse, so evil, he will turn around and go home. Of course, it did not appear that he had much of a chance of going forward.

[3] tn The verb is the cohortative from "return": I will return [me].

[4] tn The imperfect tense here can be given the nuance of permission.

[5] tn The Hebrew word order is a little more emphatic than this: "but only the word which I speak to you, it you shall speak."

[6] tn The emphatic construction is made of the infinitive absolute and the perfect tense from the verb שָׁלַח (shalakh, "to send"). The idea must be more intense than something like, "Did I not certainly send." Balak is showing frustration with Balaam for refusing him.

[7] sn Balak again refers to his ability to "honor" the seer. This certainly meant payment for his service, usually gold ornaments, rings and jewelry, as well as some animals.

[8] tn The verb is אוּכַל ('ukhal) in a question – "am I able?" But emphasizing this is the infinitive absolute before it. So Balaam is saying something like, "Can I really say anything?"

[9] tn The Piel infinitive construct (without the preposition) serves as the object of the verb "to be able." The whole question is rhetorical – he is saying that he will not be able to say anything God does not allow him to say.

[10] tn The imperfect tense is here taken as an obligatory imperfect.

[11] sn The understanding is that Balak was making a sacrifice for a covenant relationship, and so he gave some of the meat to the men and to the seer.

[12] sn The name Bamoth Baal means "the high places of Baal."

[13] sn The first part of Balaam's activity ends in disaster for Balak – he blesses Israel. The chapter falls into four units: the first prophecy (vv. 1-10), the relocation (vv. 11-17), the second prophecy (vv. 18-24), and a further location (vv. 25-30).

[14] tn The Hebrew text has "on the altar," but since there were seven of each animal and seven altars, the implication is that this means on each altar.

[15] tn The verb הִתְיַצַּב (hityatsev) means "to take a stand, station oneself." It is more intentional than simply standing by something. He was to position himself by the sacrifice as Balaam withdrew to seek the oracle.

[16] tn Heb "and the word of what he shows me." The noun is in construct, and so the clause that follows functions as a noun clause in the genitive. The point is that the word will consist of divine revelation.

[17] tn The verb is the perfect tense with vav (ו) consecutive. This clause is dependent on the clause that precedes it.

[18] sn He went up to a bald spot, to a barren height. The statement underscores the general belief that such tops were the closest things to the gods. On such heights people built their shrines and temples.

[19] tn The relative pronoun is added here in place of the conjunction to clarify that Balaam is speaking to God and not vice versa.

[20] tn Heb "word."

[21] tn Heb "and thus you shall speak."

[22] tn The Hebrew text draws the vividness of the scene with the deictic particle הִנֵּה (hinneh) – Balaam returned, and there he was, standing there.

[23] tn Heb "he"; the referent (Balaam) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[24] tn Heb "took up."

[25] tn The passage calls for a past tense translation; since the verb form is a prefixed conjugation, this tense should be classified as a preterite without the vav (ו). Such forms do occur, especially in the ancient poetic passages.

[26] sn The opening lines seem to be a formula for the seer to identify himself and the occasion for the oracle. The tension is laid out early; Balaam knows that God has intended to bless Israel, but he has been paid to curse them.

23:8 How[1] can I curse[2] one whom God has not cursed, or how can I denounce one whom the LORD has not denounced?
23:9 For from the top of the rocks I see them;[3]
from the hills I watch them.[4]
Indeed, a nation that lives alone, and it will not be reckoned[5] among the nations.
23:10 Who[6] can count[7] the dust[8] of Jacob,
Or number[9] the fourth part of Israel?
Let me[10] die the death of the upright,[11] and let the end of my life[12] be like theirs."[13]

Balaam Relocates

23:11 Then Balak said to Balaam, "What have you done to me? I brought you to curse my enemies, but on the contrary[14] you have only blessed them!"[15] 23:12 Balaam replied,[16] "Must I not be careful[17] to speak what the LORD has put in my mouth?"[18] 23:13 Balak said to him, "Please come with me to another place from which you can observe them. You will see only a part of them, but you will not see all of them. Curse them for me from there."

23:14 So Balak brought Balaam[19] to the field of Zophim, to the top of Pisgah,[20] where[21] he built seven altars and offered a bull and a ram on each altar. 23:15 And Balaam[22] said to Balak, "Station yourself here[23] by your burnt offering, while I meet the LORD there. 23:16 Then the LORD met Balaam and put a message[24] in his mouth and said, "Return to Balak, and speak what I tell you." 23:17 When Balaam[25] came to him, he was still standing by his burnt offering, along with the princes of Moab. And Balak said to him, "What has the LORD spoken?"

Balaam Prophesies Again

23:18 Balaam[26] uttered[27] his oracle, and said,
"Rise up,[28] Balak, and hear;
Listen to me, son of Zippor:
23:19 God is not a man, that he should lie, nor a human being,[29] that he should change his mind.
Has he said, and will he not do it?
Or has he spoken, and will he not make it happen?[30]

1 tn The figure is erotesis, a rhetorical question. He is actually saying he cannot curse them because God has not cursed them.

2 tn The imperfect tense should here be classified as a potential imperfect.

3 tn Heb "him," but here it refers to the Israelites (Israel).

4 sn Balaam reports his observation of the nation of Israel spread out below him in the valley. Based on that vision, and the LORD's word, he announces the uniqueness of Israel – they are not just like one of the other nations. He was correct, of course; they were the only people linked with the living God by covenant.

5 tn The verb could also be taken as a reflexive – Israel does not consider itself as among the nations, meaning, they consider themselves to be unique.

6 tn The question is again rhetorical; it means no one can count them – they are innumerable.

7 tn The perfect tense can also be classified as a potential nuance. It does not occur very often, but does occur several times.

8 sn The reference in the oracle is back to Gen 13:16, which would not be clear to Balaam. But God had described their growth like the dust of the earth. Here it is part of the description of the vast numbers.

9 tn Heb "and as a number, the fourth part of Israel." The noun in the MT is not in the construct state, and so it should be taken as an adverbial accusative, forming a parallel with the verb "count." The second object of the verse then follows, "the fourth part of Israel." Smr and the LXX have "and who has numbered" (וּמִסְפָּר, umispar), making this colon more parallel to the preceding one. The editor of BHS prefers this reading.

10 tn The use of נֶפֶשׁ (nefesh) for the subject of the verb stresses the personal nature – me.

11 sn Here the seer's words link with the promise of Gen 12:3, that whoever blesses Israel will be blessed. Since the blessing belongs to them, the upright (and not Balak), Balaam would like his lot to be with them.

12 tn Heb "my latter end."

13 tn Heb "his."

14 tn The Hebrew text uses הִנֵּה (hinneh) here to stress the contrast.

15 tn The construction is emphatic, using the perfect tense and the infinitive absolute to give it the emphasis. It would have the force of "you have done nothing but bless," or "you have indeed blessed." The construction is reminiscent of the call of Abram and the promise of the blessing in such elaborate terms.

16 tn Heb "he answered and said." The referent (Balaam) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

17 tn The verb שָׁמַר (shamar) means "to guard, watch, observe" and so here with a sense of "be careful" or even "take heed" (so KJV, ASV). The nuance of the imperfect tense would be obligatory: "I must be careful" – to do what? to speak what the LORD has put in my mouth. The infinitive construct "to speak" שָׁמַר is therefore serving as the direct object of.

18 tn The clause is a noun clause serving as the direct object of "to speak." It begins with the sign of the accusative, and then the relative pronoun that indicates the whole clause is the accusative.

19 tn Heb "he brought him"; the referents (Balak and Balaam) have been specified in the translation for clarity.

20 tn Some scholars do not translate this word as "Pisgah," but rather as a "lookout post" or an "elevated place."

21 tn Heb "and he built."

22 tn Heb "he"; the referent (Balaam) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

23 tn The verse uses כֹּה (koh) twice: "Station yourself here... I will meet [the LORD] there."

24 tn Heb "word."

25 tn Heb "he"; the referent (Balaam) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

26 tn Heb "he." The antecedent has been supplied in the translation for clarity.

27 tn Heb "took up."

28 tn The verb probably means "pay attention" in this verse.

29 tn Heb "son of man."

30 tn The verb is the Hiphil of קוּם (qum, "to cause to rise; to make stand"). The meaning here is more of the sense of fulfilling the promises made.

23:20 Indeed, I have received a command[1] to bless;
he has blessed,[2] and I cannot reverse it.[3] 23:21 He[4] has not looked on iniquity in Jacob,[5]
nor has he seen trouble[6] in Israel.
The LORD their God is with them;
his acclamation[7] as king is among them.
23:22 God brought them[8] out of Egypt.
They have, as it were, the strength of a wild bull.[9]
23:23 For there is no spell against[10] Jacob, nor is there any divination against Israel.
At this time[11] it must be said[12] of Jacob and of Israel, 'Look at[13] what God has done!'
23:24 Indeed, the people will rise up like a lioness, and like a lion raises himself up;
they will not lie down until they eat their[14] prey, and drink the blood of the slain."[15]

Balaam Relocates Yet Again

23:25 Balak said to Balaam, "Neither curse them at all[16] nor bless them at all!"[17] 23:26 But Balaam replied[18] to Balak, "Did I not tell you, 'All that the LORD speaks,[19] I must do'?"

23:27 Balak said to Balaam, "Come, please; I will take you to another place. Perhaps it will please God[20] to let you curse them for me from there."[21] 23:28 So Balak took Balaam to the top of Peor, that looks toward the wilderness.[22] 23:29 Then Balaam said to Balak, "Build seven altars here for me, and prepare seven bulls and seven rams." 23:30 So Balak did as Balaam had said, and offered a bull and a ram on each altar.

Balaam Prophesies Yet Again

24:1[23] When Balaam saw that it pleased the LORD to bless Israel,[24] he did not go as at the other times[25] to seek for omens,[26] but he set his face[27] toward the wilderness. 24:2 When Balaam lifted up his eyes, he saw Israel camped tribe by

[1] tn The Hebrew text simply has "I have received [to] bless." The infinitive is the object of the verb, telling what he received. Balaam was not actually commanded to bless, but was given the word of blessing so that he was given a divine decree that would bless Israel.

[2] sn The reference is probably to the first speech, where the LORD blessed Israel. Balaam knows that there is nothing he can do to reverse what God has said.

[3] tn The verb is the Hiphil of שׁוּב (shuv), meaning "to cause to return." He cannot return God's word to him, for it has been given, and it will be fulfilled.

[4] tn These could be understood as impersonal and so rendered "no one has discovered."

[5] sn The line could mean that God has regarded Israel as the ideal congregation without any blemish or flaw. But it could also mean that God has not looked on their iniquity, meaning, held it against them.

[6] tn The word means "wrong, misery, trouble." It can mean the idea of "disaster" as well, for that too is trouble. Here it is parallel to "iniquity" and so has the connotation of something that would give God reason to curse them.

[7] tn The people are blessed because God is their king. In fact, the shout of acclamation is among them – they are proclaiming the LORD God as their king. The word is used normally for the sound of the trumpet, but also of battle shouts, and then here acclamation. This would represent their conviction that Yahweh is king. On the usage of this Hebrew word see further BDB 929-30 s.v. תְּרוּעָה; HALOT 1790-91 s.v.

[8] tn The form is the Hiphil participle from יָצָא (yatsa') with the object suffix. He is the one who brought them out.

[9] sn The expression is "the horns of the wild ox" (KJV "unicorn"). The point of the image is strength or power. Horns are also used in the Bible to represent kingship (see Pss 89 and 132).

[10] tn Or "in Jacob." But given the context the meaning "against" is preferable. The words describe two techniques of consulting God; the first has to do with observing omens in general ("enchantments"), and the second with casting lots or arrows of the like ("divinations" [Ezek 21:26]). See N. H. Snaith, Leviticus and Numbers (NCB), 295-96.

[11] tn The form is the preposition "like, as" and the word for "time" – according to the time, about this time, now.

[12] tn The Niphal imperfect here carries the nuance of obligation – one has to say in amazement that God has done something marvelous or "it must be said."

[13] tn The words "look at" are not in the Hebrew text but have been added in the translation for clarity.

[14] tn The pronoun "their" has been supplied for clarity; it is not present in the Hebrew text.

[15] sn The oracle compares Israel first to a lion, or better, lioness, because she does the tracking and hunting of food while the lion moves up and down roaring and distracting the prey. But the lion is also the traditional emblem of Judah, Dan and Gad, as well as the symbol of royalty. So this also supports the motif of royalty as well as power for Israel.

[16] tn The verb is preceded by the infinitive absolute: "you shall by no means curse" or "do not curse them at all." He brought him to curse, and when he tried to curse there was a blessing. Balak can only say it would be better not to bother.

[17] tn The same construction now works with "nor bless them at all." The two together form a merism – "don't say anything." He does not want them blessed, so Balaam is not to do that, but the curse isn't working either.

[18] tn Heb "answered and said."

[19] tn This first clause, "all that the LORD speaks" – is a noun clause functioning as the object of the verb that comes at the end of the verse. It is something of an independent accusative case, since it is picked up with the sign of the accusative: "all that the LORD speaks, it I must do."

[20] tn Heb "be pleasing in the eyes of God."

[21] sn Balak is stubborn, as indeed Balaam is persistent. But Balak still thinks that if another location were used it just might work. Balaam had actually told Balak in the prophecy that other attempts would fail. But Balak refuses to give up so easily. So he insists they perform the ritual and try again. This time, however, Balaam will change his approach, and this will result in a dramatic outpouring of power on him.

[22] tn Or perhaps as a place name, "Jeshimon" (cf. 21:20).

[23] sn For a thorough study of the arrangement of this passage, see E. B. Smick, "A Study of the Structure of the Third Balaam Oracle," The Law and the Prophets, 242-52. He sees the oracle as having an introductory strophe (vv. 3, 4), followed by two stanzas (vv. 5, 6) that introduce the body (vv. 7b-9b) before the final benediction (v. 9b).

[24] tn Heb "it was good in the eyes of the LORD."

[25] tn Heb "as time after time."

[26] tn The word נְחָשִׁים (n^{e}khashim) means "omens," or possibly "auguries." Balaam is not even making a pretense now of looking for such things, because they are not going to work. God has overruled them.

[27] tn The idiom signifies that he had a determination and resolution to look out over where the Israelites were, so that he could appreciate more their presence and use that as the basis for his expressing of the oracle.

tribe;[1] and the Spirit of God came upon him.
24:3 Then he uttered this oracle:[2]

"The oracle[3] of Balaam son of Beor;
the oracle of the man whose eyes are open;[4]
24:4 the oracle of the one who hears the words of God, who sees a vision from the Almighty,
although falling flat on the ground[5] with eyes open:[6] 24:5 'How[7] beautiful are your tents, O Jacob, and your dwelling places, O Israel!
24:6 They are like[8] valleys[9] stretched forth, like gardens by the river's side, like aloes[10] that the LORD has planted, and like cedar trees beside the waters.
24:7 He will pour the water out of his buckets,[11] and their descendants will be like abundant[12] water;[13] their king will be greater than Agag,[14] and their kingdom will be exalted.
24:8 God brought them out of Egypt.
They have, as it were, the strength of a young bull;
they will devour hostile people[15] and will break their bones and will pierce them through with arrows.
24:9 They crouch and lie down like a lion, and as a lioness,[16] who can stir him?
Blessed is the one who blesses you, and cursed is the one who curses you!'"

24:10 Then Balak became very angry at Balaam, and he struck his hands together.[17] Balak said to Balaam, "I called you to curse my enemies, and look, you have done nothing but bless[18] them these three times! 24:11 So now, go back where you came from![19] I said that I would greatly honor you, but now the LORD has stood in the way of your honor."

24:12 Balaam said to Balak, "Did I not also tell your messengers whom you sent to me, 24:13 'If Balak would give me his palace full of silver and gold, I cannot go beyond[20] the commandment[21] of the LORD to do either good or evil of my own will,[22] but whatever the LORD tells me I must speak'? 24:14 And now, I am about to go[23] back to my own people. Come now, and I will advise you as to what this people will do to your people in the future."[24]

Balaam Prophesies a Fourth Time

24:15 Then he uttered this oracle:[25]

"The oracle of Balaam son of Beor;
the oracle of the man whose eyes are open;
24:16 the oracle of the one who hears the words of God, and who knows the knowledge of the Most High,
who sees a vision from the Almighty,
although falling flat on the ground with eyes open:
24:17 'I see him, but not now;
I behold him, but not close at hand.[26]
A star[27] will march forth[28] out of Jacob,

---

[1] tn Heb "living according to their tribes."

[2] tn Heb "and he took up his oracle and said."

[3] tn The word נְאֻם (nᵉ'um) is an "oracle." It is usually followed by a subjective genitive, indicating the doer of the action. The word could be rendered "says," but this translations is more specific.

[4] tn The Greek version reads "the one who sees truly." The word has been interpreted in both ways, "shut" or "open."

[5] tn The phrase "flat on the ground" is supplied in the translation for clarity. The Greek version interprets the line to mean "falling asleep." It may mean falling into a trance.

[6] tn The last colon simply has "falling, but opened eyes." The falling may simply refer to lying prone; and the opened eyes may refer to his receiving a vision. See H. E. Freeman, An Introduction to the Old Testament Prophets, 37-41.

[7] tn Here מָה (mah) has an exclamatory sense: "How!" (see Gen 28:17).

[8] tn Heb "as valleys they spread forth."

[9] tn Or "rows of palms."

[10] sn The language seems to be more poetic than precise. N. H. Snaith notes that cedars do not grow beside water; he also connects "aloes" to the eaglewood that is more exotic, and capable of giving off an aroma (Leviticus and Numbers [NCB], 298).

[11] tc For this colon the LXX has "a man shall come out of his seed." Cf. the Syriac Peshitta and Targum.

[13] sn These two lines are difficult, but the general sense is that of irrigation buckets and a well-watered land. The point is that Israel will be prosperous and fruitful.

[14] sn Many commentators see this as a reference to Agag of 1 Sam 15:32-33, the Amalekite king slain by Samuel, for that is the one we know. But that is by no means clear, for this text does not identify this Agag. If it is that king, then this poem, or this line in this poem, would have to be later, unless one were to try to argue for a specific prophecy. Whoever this Agag is, he is a symbol of power.

[15] tn Heb "they will devour nations," their adversaries.

[17] sn This is apparently a sign of contempt or derision (see Job 27:23; and Lam 2:15).

[18] tn The construction is emphatic, using the infinitive absolute with the perfect tense for "bless."

[19] tn Heb "flee to your place."

[20] tn Heb "I am not able to go beyond."

[21] tn Heb "mouth."

[22] tn Heb "from my heart."

[23] tn The construction is the particle הִנֵּה (hinneh) suffixed followed by the active participle. This is the futur instans use of the participle, to express something that is about to happen: "I am about to go."

[24] tn Heb "in the latter days." For more on this expression, see E. Lipiński, "באחרית הימים dans les textes préexiliques," VT 20 (1970): 445-50.

[25] tn Heb "and he took up his oracle and said."

[26] tn Heb "near."

[27] sn This is a figure for a king (see also Isa 14:12) not only in the Bible but in the ancient Near Eastern literature as a whole. The immediate reference of the prophecy seems to be to David, but the eschatological theme goes beyond him. There is to be a connection made between this passage and the sighting of a star in its ascendancy by the magi, who then traveled to Bethlehem to see the one born King of the Jews (Matt 2:2). The expression "son of a star" (Aram Bar Kochba) became a title for a later claimant to kingship, but he was doomed by the Romans in A.D. 135.

[28] tn The verb is the perfect tense with vav (ו) consecutive; it is equal to the imperfect expressing the future. The verb and a scepter[1] will rise out of Israel.

He will crush the skulls[2] of Moab, and the heads[3] of all the sons of Sheth.[4]
24:18 Edom will be a possession,
Seir,[5] his enemies, will also be a possession;
but Israel will act valiantly.
24:19 A ruler will be established from Jacob;
he will destroy the remains of the city.'"[6]

Balaam's Final Prophecies

24:20 Then Balaam[7] looked on Amalek and delivered this oracle:[8]

"Amalek was the first[9] of the nations, but his end will be that he will perish."

24:21 Then he looked on the Kenites and uttered this oracle:

"Your dwelling place seems strong,
and your nest[10] is set on a rocky cliff.
24:22 Nevertheless the Kenite will be consumed.[11]
How long will Asshur take you away captive?"

24:23 Then he uttered this oracle:

"O, who will survive when God does this![12]
24:24 Ships will come from the coast of Kittim,[13] and will afflict Asshur,[14] and will afflict Eber, and he will also perish forever."[15]

24:25 Balaam got up and departed and returned to his home,[16] and Balak also went his way.

Israel's Sin with the Moabite Women

25:1[17] When[18] Israel lived in Shittim, the people began to commit sexual immorality[19] with the daughters of Moab. 25:2 These women invited[20] the people to the sacrifices of their gods; then the people ate and bowed down to their gods.[21] 25:3 When Israel joined themselves to Baal-peor,[22] the anger of the LORD flared up against Israel.

דָּרַךְ (darakh), related to the noun "way, road," seems to mean something like tread on, walk, march."

1 sn The "scepter" is metonymical for a king who will rise to power. NEB strangely rendered this as "comet" to make a parallel with "star."

2 tn The word is literally "corners," but may refer to the corners of the head, and so "skull."

3 tc The MT reads "shatter, devastate." Smr reads קֹדְקֹד (qodqod, "head; crown; pate"). Smr follows Jer 48:45 which appears to reflect Num 24:17.

4 sn The prophecy begins to be fulfilled when David defeated Moab and Edom and established an empire including them. But the Messianic promise extends far beyond that to the end of the age and the inclusion of these defeated people in the program of the coming King.

5 sn Seir is the chief mountain range of Edom (Deut 33:2), and so the reference here is to the general area of Edom.

6 tn Or, understanding the Hebrew word for "city" as a place name, "of Ir" (cf. NRSV, NLT).

7 tn Heb "he"; the referent (Balaam) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

8 tn Heb "and he lifted up his oracle and said." So also in vv. 21, 23.

9 sn This probably means that it held first place, or it thought that it was "the first of the nations." It was not the first, either in order or greatness.

10 sn A pun is made on the name Kenite by using the word "your nest" (קִנֶּךָ, qinnekha); the location may be the rocky cliffs overlooking Petra.

11 tc Heb "Nevertheless Cain will be wasted; how long will Asshur take you captive?" Cain was believed to be the ancestor of the Kenites. The NAB has "yet destined for burning, even as I watch, are your inhabitants." Asshur may refer to a north Arabian group of people of Abrahamic stock (Gen 25:3), and not the Assyrian empire.

12 tc Because there is no parallel line, some have thought that it dropped out (see de Vaulx, Les Nombres, 296).

13 tc The MT is difficult. The Kittim refers normally to Cyprus, or any maritime people to the west. W. F. Albright proposed emending the line to "islands will gather in the north, ships from the distant sea" ("The Oracles of Balaam," JBL 63 [1944]: 222-23). Some commentators accept that reading as the original state of the text, since the present MT makes little sense.

14 tn Or perhaps "Assyria" (so NCV, TEV, CEV, NLT).

15 tn Or "it will end in utter destruction."

16 tn Heb "place."

17 sn Chapter 25 tells of Israel's sins on the steppes of Moab, and God's punishment. In the overall plan of the book, here we have another possible threat to God's program, although here it comes from within the camp (Balaam was the threat from without). If the Moabites could not defeat them one way, they would try another. The chapter has three parts: fornication (vv. 1-3), God's punishment (vv. 4-9), and aftermath (vv. 10-18). See further G. E. Mendenhall, The Tenth Generation, 105-21; and S. C. Reif, "What Enraged Phinehas? A Study of Numbers 25:8," JBL 90 (1971): 200-206.

18 tn This first preterite is subordinated to the next as a temporal clause; it is not giving a parallel action, but the setting for the event.

19 sn The account apparently means that the men were having sex with the Moabite women. Why the men submitted to such a temptation at this point is hard to say. It may be that as military heroes the men took liberties with the women of occupied territories.

20 tn The verb simply says "they called," but it is a feminine plural. And so the women who engaged in immoral acts with Hebrew men invited them to their temple ritual.

21 sn What Israel experienced here was some of the debased ritual practices of the Canaanite people. The act of prostrating themselves before the pagan deities was probably participation in a fertility ritual, nothing short of cultic prostitution. This was a blatant disregard of the covenant and the Law. If something were not done, the nation would have destroyed itself.

22 tn The verb is "yoked" to Baal-peor. The word is unusual, and may suggest the physical, ritual participation described below. It certainly shows that they acknowledge the reality of the local god.

sn The evidence indicates that Moab was part of the very corrupt Canaanite world, a world that was given over to the fertility ritual of the times.

God's Punishment

25:4 The LORD said to Moses, "Arrest all the leaders[1] of the people, and hang them up[2] before the LORD in broad daylight,[3] so that the fierce anger of the LORD may be turned away from Israel." 25:5 So Moses said to the judges of Israel, "Each of you must execute those of his men[4] who were joined to Baal-peor."

25:6 Just then[5] one of the Israelites came and brought to his brothers[6] a Midianite woman in the plain view of Moses and of[7] the whole community of the Israelites, while they[8] were weeping at the entrance of the tent of meeting. 25:7 When Phinehas son of Eleazar, the son of Aaron the priest, saw it,[9] he got up from among the assembly, took a javelin in his hand, 25:8 and went after the Israelite man into the tent[10] and thrust through the Israelite man and into the woman's abdomen.[11] So the plague was stopped from the Israelites.[12] 25:9 Those that died in the plague were 24,000.

The Aftermath

25:10 The LORD spoke to Moses: 25:11 "Phinehas son of Eleazar, the son of Aaron the priest, has turned my anger away from the Israelites, when he manifested such zeal[13] for my sake among them, so that I did not consume the Israelites in my zeal.[14] 25:12 Therefore, announce:[15] 'I am going to give[16] to him my covenant of peace.[17] 25:13 So it will be to him and his descendants after him a covenant of a permanent priesthood, because he has been zealous for his God,[18] and has made atonement[19] for the Israelites.'"

25:14 Now the name of the Israelite who was stabbed – the one who was stabbed with the Midianite woman – was Zimri son of Salu, a leader of a clan[20] of the Simeonites. 25:15 The name of the Midianite woman who was killed was Cozbi daughter of Zur. He was a leader[21] over the people of a clan of Midian.[22]

25:16 Then the LORD spoke to Moses: 25:17 "Bring trouble[23] to the Midianites, and destroy

1 sn The meaning must be the leaders behind the apostasy, for they would now be arrested. They were responsible for the tribes' conformity to the Law, but here they had not only failed in their duty, but had participated. The leaders were executed; the rest of the guilty died by the plague.

2 sn The leaders who were guilty were commanded by God to be publicly exposed by hanging, probably a reference to impaling, but possibly some other form of harsh punishment. The point was that the swaying of their executed bodies would be a startling warning for any who so blatantly set the Law aside and indulged in apostasy through pagan sexual orgies.

3 tn Heb "in the sun." This means in broad daylight.

4 tn Heb "slay – a man his men." The imperative is plural, and so "man" is to be taken collectively as "each of you men."

5 tn The verse begins with the deictic particle וְהִנֵּה (vehinneh), pointing out the action that was taking place. It stresses the immediacy of the action to the reader.

6 tn Or "to his family"; or "to his clan."

7 tn Heb "before the eyes of Moses and before the eyes of."

8 tn The vav (ו) at the beginning of the clause is a disjunctive because it is prefixed to the nonverbal form. In this context it is best interpreted as a circumstantial clause, stressing that this happened "while" people were weeping over the sin.

9 tn The first clause is subordinated to the second because both begin with the preterite verbal form, and there is clearly a logical and/or chronological sequence involved.

10 tn The word קֻבָּה (qubbah) seems to refer to the innermost part of the family tent. Some suggest it was in the tabernacle area, but that is unlikely. S. C. Reif argues for a private tent shrine ("What Enraged Phinehas? A Study of Numbers 25:8," JBL 90 [1971]: 200-206).

11 tn Heb "and he thrust the two of them the Israelite man and the woman to her belly [lower abdomen]." Reif notes the similarity of the word with the previous "inner tent," and suggests that it means Phinehas stabbed her in her shrine tent, where she was being set up as some sort of priestess or cult leader. Phinehas put a quick end to their sexual immorality while they were in the act.

12 sn Phinehas saw all this as part of the pagan sexual ritual that was defiling the camp. He had seen that the LORD himself had had the guilty put to death. And there was already some plague breaking out in the camp that had to be stopped. And so in his zeal he dramatically put an end to this incident, that served to stop the rest and end the plague.

13 tn Heb "he was zealous with my zeal." The repetition of forms for "zeal" in the line stresses the passion of Phinehas. The word "zeal" means a passionate intensity to protect or preserve divine or social institutions.

14 tn The word for "zeal" now occurs a third time. While some English versions translate this word here as "jealousy" (KJV, ASV, NASB, NRSV), it carries the force of God's passionate determination to defend his rights and what is right about the covenant and the community and parallels the "zeal" that Phinehas had just demonstrated.

15 tn Heb "say."

16 tn Here too the grammar expresses an imminent future by using the particle הִנְנִי (hinni) before the participle נֹתֵן (noten) – "here I am giving," or "I am about to give."

17 tn Or "my pledge of friendship" (NAB), or "my pact of friendship" (NJPS). This is the designation of the leadership of the priestly ministry. The terminology is used again in the rebuke of the priests in Mal 2.

18 tn The motif is reiterated here. Phinehas was passionately determined to maintain the rights of his God by stopping the gross sinful perversions.

19 sn The atonement that he made in this passage refers to the killing of the two obviously blatant sinners. By doing this he dispensed with any animal sacrifice, for the sinners themselves died. In Leviticus it was the life of the substitutionary animal that was taken in place of the sinners that made atonement. The point is that sin was punished by death, and so God was free to end the plague and pardon the people. God's holiness and righteousness have always been every bit as important as God's mercy and compassion, for without righteousness and holiness mercy and compassion mean nothing.

20 tn Heb "a father's house." So also in v. 15.

21 tn Heb "head."

22 sn The passage makes it clear that this individual was a leader, one who was supposed to be preventing this thing from happening. The judgment was swift and severe, because the crime was so great, and the danger of it spreading was certain. Paul refers to this horrible incident when he reminds Christians not to do similar things (1 Cor 10:6-8).

23 tn The form is the infinitive absolute used in place of a verb here; it clearly is meant to be an instruction for Israel. The idea is that of causing trouble, harassing, vexing Midian. The verb is repeated as the active participle in the line, and so the punishment is talionic.

them, 25:18 because they bring trouble to you by their treachery with which they have deceived[1] you in the matter of Peor, and in the matter of Cozbi, the daughter of a prince of Midian,[2] their sister, who was killed on the day of the plague that happened as a result of Peor."

A Second Census Required

26:1[3] After the plague the LORD said to Moses and to Eleazar son of Aaron the priest,[4] 26:2 "Take a census of the whole community of Israelites, from twenty years old and upward, by their clans,[5] everyone who can serve in the army of Israel."[6] 26:3 So Moses and Eleazar the priest spoke with them in the plains of Moab, by the Jordan River[7] across from Jericho.[8] They said, 26:4 "Number the people[9] from twenty years old and upward, just as the LORD commanded Moses and the Israelites who went out from the land of Egypt."

Reuben

26:5 Reuben was the firstborn of Israel. The Reubenites: from[10] Hanoch, the family of the Hanochites; from Pallu, the family of the Palluites; 26:6 from Hezron, the family of the Hezronites; from Carmi, the family of the Carmites. 26:7 These were the families of the Reubenites; and those numbered of them were 43,730.[11] 26:8 Pallu's descendant[12] was Eliab. 26:9 Eliab's descendants were Nemuel, Dathan, and Abiram. It was Dathan and Abiram who as leaders of the community rebelled against Moses and Aaron with the followers[13] of Korah when they rebelled against the LORD. 26:10 The earth opened its mouth and swallowed them and Korah at the time that company died, when the fire consumed 250 men. So they became a warning. 26:11 But the descendants of Korah did not die.

Simeon

26:12 The Simeonites by their families: from Nemuel, the family of the Nemuelites; from Jamin, the family of the Jaminites; from Jakin, the family of the Jakinites; 26:13 from Zerah,[14] the family of the Zerahites; and from Shaul, the family of the Shaulites. 26:14 These were the families of the Simeonites, 22,200.[15]

Gad

26:15 The Gadites by their families: from Zephon, the family of the Zephonites; from Haggi, the family of the Haggites; from Shuni, the family of the Shunites; 26:16 from Ozni,[16] the family of the Oznites; from Eri,[17] the family of the Erites; 26:17 from Arod,[18] the family of the Arodites, and from Areli, the family of the Arelites. 26:18 These were the families of the Gadites according to those numbered of them, 40,500.[19]

Judah

26:19 The descendants of Judah were Er and Onan, but Er and Onan died in the land of Canaan. 26:20 And the Judahites by their families were: from Shelah, the family of the Shelahites; from Perez, the family of the Perezites; and from Zerah, the family of the Zerahites. 26:21 And the Perezites were: from Hezron, the family of the Hezronites; from Hamul,[20] the family of the Hamulites. 26:22 These were the families of Judah according to those numbered of them, 76,500.[21]

Issachar

26:23 The Issacharites by their families: from Tola, the family of the Tolaites; from Puah, the family of the Puites; 26:24 from Jashub, the family of the Jashubites; and from Shimron, the family of the Shimronites. 26:25 These were the families of Issachar, according to those numbered of them, 64,300.[22]

Zebulun

26:26 The Zebulunites by their families: from Sered, the family of the Sardites; from Elon, the family of the Elonites; from Jahleel, the family of the Jahleelites. 26:27 These were the

[1] tn This is the same word as that translated "treachery."

[2] sn Cozbi's father, Zur, was one of five Midianite kings who eventually succumbed to Israel (Num 31:8). When the text gives the name and family of a woman, it is asserting that she is important, at least for social reasons, among her people.

[3] sn The breakdown of ch. 26 for outlining purposes will be essentially according to the tribes of Israel. The format and structure is similar to the first census, and so less comment is necessary here.

[4] tc The MT has also "saying."

[5] tn Heb "house of their fathers."

[6] tn Heb "everyone who goes out in the army in Israel."

[7] tn The word "River" is not in the Hebrew text, but has been supplied in the translation for clarity (also in v. 62).

[8] map For the location of Jericho see Map5-B2; Map6-E1; Map7-E1; Map8-E3; Map10-A2; Map11-A1.

[9] tn "Number the people" is added here to the text for a smooth reading.

[10] tc The Hebrew text has no preposition here, but one has been supplied in the translation for clarity. Cf. vv. 23, 30, 31, 32.

[11] sn The Reubenites had decreased from 46,500 to 43,730.

[12] tc The MT has "and the sons of Pallu."

[13] tn Or "company" (so KJV, NASB, NRSV); Heb "congregation."

[14] tc This is "Zohar" in Exod 6:15 and Gen 46:10.

[15] sn Before entering Sinai the tribe numbered 59,300, the third largest. Now it was about one-third its original size.

[16] tc The MT of Gen 46:16 reads this as "Ezbon."

[17] tc The Greek version and Smr have "Ad[d]i," probably by confusion of letters.

[18] tc Gen 46:16 and the LXX here read "Arodi."

[19] sn The Gadites decreased from 45,650 to 40,500.

[20] tc Smr and the Greek version have "Hamuel."

[21] sn The Judahites increased from 74,600 to 76,500.

[22] sn The Issacharites increased from 54,400 to 64,300.

families of the Zebulunites, according to those numbered of them, 60,500.[1]

Manasseh

26:28 The descendants of Joseph by their families: Manasseh and Ephraim. 26:29 The Manassehites: from Machir, the family of the Machirites (now Machir became the father of Gilead); from Gilead, the family of the Gileadites. 26:30 These were the Gileadites: from Iezer, the family of the Iezerites; from Helek, the family of the Helekites; 26:31 from Asriel, the family of the Asrielites; from Shechem, the family of the Shechemites; 26:32 from Shemida, the family of the Shemidaites; from Hepher, the family of the Hepherites. 26:33 Now Zelophehad son of Hepher had no sons, but only daughters; and the names of the daughters of Zelophehad were Mahlah, Noah, Hoglah, Milcah, and Tirzah. 26:34 These were the families of Manasseh; those numbered of them were 52,700.[2]

Ephraim

26:35 These are the Ephraimites by their families: from Shuthelah, the family of the Shuthelahites; from Beker, the family of the Bekerites; from Tahan, the family of the Tahanites. 26:36 Now these were the Shuthelahites: from Eran, the family of the Eranites. 26:37 These were the families of the Ephraimites, according to those numbered of them, 32,500.[3] These were the descendants of Joseph by their families.

Benjamin

26:38 The Benjaminites by their families: from Bela, the family of the Belaites; from Ashbel, the family of the Ashbelites; from Ahiram, the family of the Ahiramites; 26:39 from Shupham,[4] the family of the Shuphamites; from Hupham, the family of the Huphamites. 26:40 The descendants of Bela were Ard[5] and Naaman. From Ard,[6] the family of the Ardites; from Naaman, the family of the Naamanites. 26:41 These are the Benjaminites, according to their families, and according to those numbered of them, 45,600.[7]

Dan

26:42 These are the Danites by their families: from Shuham, the family of the Shuhamites. These were the families of Dan, according to their families. 26:43 All the families of the Shuhahites according to those numbered of them were 64,400.[8]

Asher

26:44 The Asherites by their families: from Imnah, the family of the Imnahites; from Ishvi, the family of the Ishvites; from Beriah, the family of the Beriahites. 26:45 From the Beriahites: from Heber, the family of the Heberites; from Malkiel, the family of the Malkielites. 26:46 Now the name of the daughter of Asher was Serah.[9] 26:47 These are the families of the Asherites, according to those numbered of them, 53,400.[10]

Naphtali

26:48 The Naphtalites by their families: from Jahzeel, the family of the Jahzeelites; from Guni, the family of the Gunites; 26:49 from Jezer, the family of the Jezerites; from Shillem, the family of the Shillemites. 26:50 These were the families of Naphtali according to their families; and those numbered of them were 45,400.[11]

Total Number and Division of the Land

26:51 These were those numbered of the Israelites, 601,730.[12]

26:52 Then the LORD spoke to Moses: 26:53 "To these the land must be divided as an inheritance according to the number of the names. 26:54 To a larger group you will give a larger inheritance,[13] and to a smaller group you will give a smaller inheritance.[14] To each one its inheritance must be given according to the number of people in it.[15] 26:55 The land must be divided by lot; and they will inherit in accordance with the names of their ancestral tribes. 26:56 Their inheritance must be apportioned[16] by lot among the larger and smaller groups.

26:57 And these are the Levites who were numbered according to their families: from Gershon, the family of the Gershonites; of Kohath, the family of the Kohathites; from Merari, the family of the Merarites. 26:58 These are the

[1] sn The Zebulunites showed an increase from 57,400 to 60,500.

[2] sn The Manassehites increased from 32,200 to 52,700.

[3] sn This is a significant reduction from the first count of 40,500.

[4] tc With the exception of a few manuscripts the MT has Shephupham. The spelling in the translation above is supported by Smr and the ancient versions.

[5] tc The LXX has Adar. Cf. 1 Chr 8:3.

[6] tc "From Ard" is not in the Hebrew text.

[7] sn The Benjaminites increased from 35,400 to 45,600. The Greek version has here 35,500.

[8] sn The Danites increased from 62,700 to 64,400.

[9] tn Also mentioned in 1 Chr 7:30.

[10] sn The Asherites increased from 41,500 to 53,400.

[11] sn The Naphtalites decreased from 53,400 to 45,400.

[12] sn This number shows only a slightly smaller total in the second census; the first was 603,550.

[13] tn Heb "to many you will multiply his inheritance."

[14] tn Heb "to a few you will lessen his inheritance."

[15] tn Heb "according to those that were numbered of him," meaning, in accordance with the number of people in his clan.

families of the Levites: the family of the Libnites, the family of the Hebronites, the family of the Mahlites, the family of the Mushites, the family of the Korahites. Kohath became the father of Amram. 26:59 Now the name of Amram's wife was Jochebed, daughter of Levi, who was born[1] to Levi in Egypt. And to Amram she bore Aaron, Moses, and Miriam their sister. 26:60 And to Aaron were born Nadab and Abihu, Eleazar and Ithamar. 26:61 But Nadab and Abihu died when they offered strange fire[2] before the LORD. 26:62 Those of them who were numbered were 23,000, all males from a month old and upward, for they were not numbered among the Israelites; no inheritance was given to them among the Israelites.

26:63 These are those who were numbered by Moses and Eleazar the priest, who numbered the Israelites in the plains of Moab along the Jordan River opposite Jericho.[3] 26:64 But there was not a man among these who had been[4] among those numbered by Moses and Aaron the priest when they numbered the Israelites in the wilderness of Sinai. 26:65 For the LORD had said of them, "They will surely die in the wilderness." And there was not left a single man of them, except Caleb son of Jephunneh and Joshua son of Nun.

Special Inheritance Laws

27:1[5] Then the daughters of Zelophehad son of Hepher, the son of Gilead, the son of Machir, the son of Manasseh of the families of Manasseh,[6] the son Joseph came forward. Now these are the names of his daughters: Mahlah, Noah, Hoglah, Milcah, and Tirzah. 27:2 And they stood before Moses and Eleazar the priest and the leaders of the whole assembly at the entrance to the tent of meeting and said, 27:3 "Our father died in the wilderness, although[7] he was not part of[8] the company of those that gathered themselves together against the LORD in the company of Korah, but he died for his own sin,[9] and he had no sons. 27:4 Why should the name of our father be lost from among his family because he had no son? Give us a possession[10] among the relatives[11] of our father."

27:5 So Moses brought their case before the LORD. 27:6 The LORD said to Moses: 27:7 "The daughters of Zelophehad have a valid claim.[12] You must indeed[13] give them possession of an inheritance among their father's relatives, and you must transfer[14] the inheritance of their father to them. 27:8 And you must tell the Israelites, 'If a man dies[15] and has no son, then you must transfer his inheritance to his daughter; 27:9 and if he has no daughter, then you are to give his inheritance to his brothers; 27:10 and if he has no brothers, then you are to give his inheritance to his father's brothers; 27:11 and if his father has no brothers, then you are to give his inheritance to his relative nearest to him from his family, and he will possess it. This will be for the Israelites a legal requirement,[16] as the LORD commanded Moses.'"

Leadership Change

27:12[17] Then the LORD said to Moses, "Go up this mountain of the Abarim range,[18] and

[1] tn Heb "who she bore him to Levi." The verb has no expressed subject. Either one could be supplied, such as "her mother," or it could be treated as a passive.

[2] tn The expression אֵשׁ זָרָה ('esh zarah, "strange fire") seems imprecise and has been interpreted numerous ways (see the helpful summary in J. E. Hartley, Leviticus [WBC 4], 132-33). The infraction may have involved any of the following or a combination thereof: (1) using coals from some place other than the burnt offering altar (i.e., "unauthorized coals" according to J. Milgrom, Leviticus [AB], 1:598; cf. Lev 16:12 and cf. "unauthorized person" [אִישׁ זָר, 'ish zar] in Num 16:40 [17:5 HT], NASB "layman"), (2) using the wrong kind of incense (cf. the Exod 30:9 regulation against "strange incense" [קְטֹרֶת זָרָה, qetoret zarah] on the incense altar and the possible connection to Exod 30:34-38), (3) performing an incense offering at an unprescribed time (B. A. Levine, Leviticus [JPSTC], 59), or (4) entering the Holy of Holies at an inappropriate time (Lev 16:1-2).

sn This event is narrated in Lev 10:1-7.

[3] map For the location of Jericho see Map5-B2; Map6-E1; Map7-E1; Map8-E3; Map10-A2; Map11-A1.

[4] tn "who had been" is added to clarify the text.

[5] sn For additional information on this section, see N. H. Snaith, "The Daughters of Zelophehad," VT 16 (1966): 124-27; and J. Weingreen, "The Case of the Daughters of Zelophehad," VT 16 (1966): 518-22.

[6] tc The phrase "of the families of Manasseh" is absent from the Latin Vulgate.

[7] tn This clause begins with a vav (ו) on a pronoun, marking it out as a disjunctive vav. In this context it fits best to take it as a circumstantial clause introducing concession.

[8] tn Heb "in the midst of."

[9] tn The word order is emphatic: "but in/on account of his own sins he died."

[10] tn That is, the possession of land, or property, among the other families of their tribe.

[11] tn The word is "brothers," but this can be interpreted more loosely to relatives. So also in v. 7.

[12] tn Heb "[the daughters of Zelophehad] speak right" (using the participle דֹּבְרֹת [dove rot] with כֵּן [ken]).

[13] tn The Hebrew text uses the infinitive absolute with the imperfect tense. The imperfect is functioning as the imperfect of instruction, and so the infinitive strengthens the force of the instruction.

[14] tn The verb is the Hiphil perfect with a vav (ו) consecutive, from the root עָבַר ('avar, "to pass over"). Here it functions as the equivalent of the imperfect of instruction: "and you shall cause to pass," meaning, "transfer."

[15] tn Heb "a man, if he dies."

[16] tn The expression is חֻקַּת מִשְׁפָּט (khuqqat mishpat, "a statute of judgment"), which means it is a fixed enactment that determines justice. It is one which is established by God.

[17] sn See further J. Lindblom, "Lot Casting in the Old Testament," VT 12 (1962): 164-78; E. Lipiński, "Urim and Thummim," VT 20 (1970): 495-96; and S. E. Loewenstamm, "The Death of Moses," Tarbiz 27 (1957/58): 142-57.

[18] tc The Greek version adds "which is Mount Nebo." This is a typical scribal change to harmonize two passages.

sn The area is in the mountains of Moab; Deut 34:1 more precisely identifies it as Mount Nebo.

see[1] the land I have given[2] to the Israelites. 27:13 When you have seen it, you will be gathered[3] to your ancestors,[4] as Aaron your brother was gathered to his ancestors.[5] 27:14 For[6] in the wilderness of Zin when the community rebelled against me, you[7] rebelled against my command[8] to show me as holy[9] before their eyes over the water – the water of Meribah in Kadesh in the wilderness of Zin."

27:15 Then Moses spoke to the LORD: 27:16 "Let the LORD, the God of the spirits of all humankind,[10] appoint[11] a man over the community, 27:17 who will go out before them, and who will come in before them,[12] and who will lead them out, and who will bring them in, so that[13] the community of the LORD may not be like sheep that have no shepherd."

27:18 The LORD replied[14] to Moses, "Take Joshua son of Nun, a man in whom is such a spirit,[15] and lay your hand on him;[16] 27:19 set him[17] before Eleazar the priest and before the whole community, and commission[18] him publicly.[19] 27:20 Then you must delegate[20] some of your authority[21] to him, so that the whole community of the Israelites will be obedient.[22] 27:21 And he will stand before Eleazar the priest, who[23] will seek counsel[24] for him before the LORD by the decision of the Urim.[25] At his command[26] they will go out, and at his command they will come in, he and all the Israelites with him, the whole community."

27:22 So Moses did as the LORD commanded him; he took Joshua and set[27] him before Eleazar the priest and before the whole community. 27:23 He laid his hands on him and commissioned him, just as the LORD commanded,[28] by the authority[29] of Moses.

Daily Offerings

28:1[30] The LORD spoke to Moses: 28:2 "Command the Israelites:[31] 'With regard to my offering,[32] be sure to offer[33] my food for my

---

1 tn The imperative could be subordinated to the first to provide a purpose clause, although a second instruction fits well enough.

2 tn This perfect tense would best be classified as a perfect of resolve: "which I have decided to give." God had not yet given the land to them, but it was certain he would.

3 tn The first verb is a perfect tense with a vav (ו) consecutive, and the second verb is also. In such parallel clauses, the first may be subordinated, here as a temporal clause.

4 tn Heb "people."

5 tn Heb "was gathered." The phrase "to his ancestors" is elided in the Hebrew text, but is an implied repetition from the beginning of the verse, and has been supplied in the translation for stylistic reasons.

6 tn The preposition on the relative pronoun has the force of "because of the fact that."

7 tn The verb is the second masculine plural form.

8 tn Heb "mouth."

9 sn Using the basic meaning of the word קָדַשׁ (qadash, "to be separate, distinct, set apart"), we can understand better what Moses failed to do. He was supposed to have acted in a way that would have shown God to be distinct, different, holy. Instead, he gave the impression that God was capricious and hostile – very human. The leader has to be aware of what image he is conveying to the people.

10 tn Heb "flesh"; cf. NAB, NIV "all mankind"; NCV "all people"; NLT "all living things."

11 tn This is the same verb פָּקַד (paqad) that is used throughout the book for the aspect of "numbering" the people.

12 sn This is probably technical terminology for a military leader (Josh 14:11; 1 Sam 18:13-16; 1 Kgs 3:7; 2 Kgs 11:9). The image of a shepherd can also be military in nature (1 Kgs 22:17).

13 tn The Hebrew text has the conjunction with the negated imperfect tense, "and it will not be." This clause should be subordinated to the preceding to form a result clause, and the imperfect then function as a final imperfect.

14 tn Or "said."

15 sn The word "spirit" probably refers to the Holy Spirit, in which case it would be rendered "in whom is the Spirit." This would likely be a permanent endowment for Joshua. But it is also possible to take it to refer to a proper spirit to do all the things required of such a leader (which ultimately is a gift from the Spirit of God). The Hebrew text simply says "in whom is a spirit."

16 sn This symbolic act would indicate the transfer of leadership to Joshua.

17 tn This could be translated "position him," or "have him stand," since it is the causative stem of the verb "to stand."

18 tn The verb is the Piel perfect of צִוָּה (tsivvah, literally "to command"). The verb has a wide range of meanings, and so here in this context the idea of instructing gives way to a more general sense of commissioning for duty. The verb in sequence is equal to the imperfect of instruction.

19 tn Heb "in their eyes."

20 tn The verb is simply "give," but in this context giving some of Moses' honor to Joshua in the presence of the people is essentially passing the leadership to him, or delegating the authority to him with the result that people would follow him.

21 tc The Greek, Syriac, and Vulgate read "glory" for this form that occurs only here in the Pentateuch. Elsewhere it is rendered "majesty, splendor" (see Ps 96:6). It could even be "vitality" here. The authority being transferred here is both spiritual and civil.

22 tn Heb "hear."

23 tn The passage simply has "and he will ask," but Eleazar is clearly the subject now.

24 tn Heb "ask."

25 sn The new leader would not have the privilege that Moses had in speaking to God face to face. Rather, he would have to inquire of the LORD through the priest, and the priest would seek a decision by means of the Urim. The Urim and the Thummim were the sacred lots that the priest had in his pouch, the "breastplate" as it has traditionally been called. Since the Law had now been fully established, there would be fewer cases that the leader would need further rulings. Now it would simply be seeking the LORD's word for matters such as whether to advance or not. The size, shape or substance of these objects is uncertain. See further C. Van Dam, The Urim and Thummim.

26 tn Heb "mouth," meaning what he will say.

27 tn Heb "stood."

28 tn Heb "spoke."

29 tn Heb "hand."

30 sn For additional reading on these chapters, see G. B. Gray, Sacrifice in the Old Testament; A. F. Rainey, "The Order of Sacrifices in the Old Testament Ritual Texts," Bib 51 (1970): 485-98; N. H. Snaith, The Jewish New Year Festival.

31 tn Heb "and say to them." These words have not been included in the translation for stylistic reasons.

32 tn The sentence begins with the accusative "my offering." It is suspended at the beginning as an independent accusative to itemize the subject matter. The second accusative is the formal object of the verb. It could also be taken in apposition to the first accusative.

offering made by fire, as a pleasing aroma to me at its appointed time.'[1] 28:3 You will say to them, 'This is the offering made by fire which you must offer to the LORD: two unblemished lambs one year old each day for a continual[2] burnt offering. 28:4 The first lamb you must offer in the morning, and the second lamb you must offer in the late afternoon,[3] 28:5 with one-tenth of an ephah[4] of finely ground flour as a grain offering mixed with one quarter of a hin[5] of pressed olive oil. 28:6 It is a continual burnt offering that was instituted on Mount Sinai as a pleasing aroma, an offering made by fire to the LORD.

28:7 "'And its drink offering must be one quarter of a hin for each lamb.[6] You must pour out the strong drink[7] as a drink offering to the LORD in the holy place. 28:8 And the second lamb you must offer in the late afternoon; just as you offered the grain offering and drink offering in the morning,[8] you must offer it as an offering made by fire, as a pleasing aroma to the LORD.

Weekly Offerings

28:9 "'On the Sabbath day, you must offer[9] two unblemished lambs a year old, and two-tenths of an ephah[10] of finely ground flour as a grain offering, mixed with olive oil, along with its drink offering. 28:10 This is the burnt offering for every Sabbath,[11] besides the continual burnt offering and its drink offering.

Monthly Offerings

28:11 "'On the first day of each month[12] you must offer as a burnt offering to the LORD two young bulls, one ram, and seven unblemished lambs a year old, 28:12 with three-tenths of an ephah of finely ground flour mixed with olive oil as a grain offering for each bull, and two-tenths of an ephah of finely ground flour mixed with olive oil as a grain offering for the ram, 28:13 and one-tenth of an ephah of finely ground flour mixed with olive oil as a grain offering for each lamb, as a burnt offering for a pleasing aroma, an offering made by fire to the LORD. 28:14 For their drink offerings, include[13] half a hin of wine with each bull, one-third of a hin for the ram, and one-fourth of a hin for each lamb. This is the burnt offering for each month[14] throughout the months of the year. 28:15 And one male goat[15] must be offered to the LORD as a purification offering, in addition to the continual burnt offering and its drink offering.

Passover and Unleavened Bread

28:16 "'On the fourteenth day of the first month is the LORD's Passover. 28:17 And on the fifteenth day of this month is the festival. For seven days bread made without yeast must be eaten. 28:18 And on the first day there is to be a holy assembly; you must do no ordinary work[16] on it.

28:19 "'But you must offer to the LORD an offering made by fire, a burnt offering of two young bulls, one ram, and seven lambs one year old; they must all be unblemished.[17] 28:20 And their grain offering is to be of finely ground flour mixed with olive oil. For each bull you must offer three-tenths of an ephah, and two-tenths for the ram. 28:21 For each of the seven lambs you are to offer one-tenth of an ephah, 28:22 as well as one goat for a purification offering, to make atonement for you. 28:23 You must offer these in addition to the burnt offering in the morning which is for a continual burnt offering. 28:24 In this manner you must offer daily throughout the seven days the food of the sacrifice made by fire as a sweet aroma to the LORD. It is to be offered in addition to the continual burnt offering and its drink offering. 28:25 On the seventh day you are to have a holy assembly, you must do no regular work.

[2] sn The sacrifice was to be kept burning, but each morning the priests would have to clean the grill and put a new offering on the altar. So the idea of a continual burnt offering is more that of a regular offering.

[3] tn Heb "between the evenings" meaning between dusk and dark.

[4] sn That is about two quarts.

[5] sn That is about one quart.

[6] tn Heb "the one lamb," but it is meant to indicate for "each lamb."

[7] tn The word שֵׁכָר (shekhar) is often translated "strong drink." It can mean "barley beer" in the Akkadian cognate, and also in the Hebrew Bible when joined with the word for wine. English versions here read "wine" (NAB, TEV, CEV); "strong wine" (KJV); "fermented drink" (NIV, NLT); "strong drink" (ASV, NASB, NRSV).

[8] tn Heb "as the grain offering of the morning and as its drink offering."

[9] tn The words "you must offer" are not in the Hebrew text, but are implied. They have been supplied in the translation to make a complete English sentence.

[10] sn That is, about 4 quarts.

[11] tn Heb "the burnt offering of the Sabbath by its Sabbath."

[12] tn Heb "of your months."

[13] tn The word "include" is not in the Hebrew text but is implied. It is supplied in the translation to make a complete English sentence.

[14] tn Heb "a month in its month."

[15] tn Heb "one kid of the goats."

[16] tn Heb "any work [of] service"; this means any occupational work, that is, the ordinary service.

[17] tn Heb "unblemished they will be to you." So also in v. 31.

Firstfruits

28:26 "'Also, on the day of the first fruits, when you bring a new grain offering to the LORD during your Feast of Weeks, you are to have a holy assembly. You must do no ordinary work. 28:27 But you must offer as the burnt offering, as a sweet aroma to the LORD, two young bulls, one ram, seven lambs one year old, 28:28 with their grain offering of finely ground flour mixed with olive oil: three-tenths of an ephah for each bull, two-tenths for the one ram, 28:29 with one-tenth for each of the seven lambs, 28:30 as well as one male goat to make an atonement for you. 28:31 You are to offer them with their drink offerings in addition to the continual burnt offering and its grain offering – they must be unblemished.

Blowing Trumpets

29:1 "'On the first day of the seventh month, you are to hold a holy assembly. You must not do your ordinary work, for it is a day of blowing trumpets for you. 29:2 You must offer a burnt offering as a sweet aroma to the LORD: one young bull, one ram, and seven lambs one year old without blemish.

29:3 "'Their grain offering is to be of finely ground flour mixed with olive oil, three-tenths of an ephah for the bull, two-tenths of an ephah for the ram, 29:4 and one-tenth for each of the seven lambs, 29:5 with one male goat for a purification offering to make an atonement for you; 29:6 this is in addition to the monthly burnt offering and its grain offering, and the daily burnt offering with its grain offering and their drink offerings as prescribed, as a sweet aroma, a sacrifice made by fire to the LORD.

The Day of Atonement

29:7 "'On the tenth day of this seventh month you are to have a holy assembly. You must humble yourselves;[1] you must not do any work on it. 29:8 But you must offer a burnt offering as a pleasing aroma to the LORD, one young bull, one ram, and seven lambs one year old, all of them without blemish.[2] 29:9 Their grain offering must be of finely ground flour mixed with olive oil, three-tenths of an ephah for the bull, two-tenths for the ram, 29:10 and one-tenth for each of the seven lambs, 29:11 along with one male goat for a purification offering, in addition to the purification offering for atonement and the continual burnt offering with its grain offering and their drink offerings.

The Feast of Temporary Shelters

29:12 "'On the fifteenth day of the seventh month you are to have a holy assembly; you must do no ordinary work, and you must keep a festival to the LORD for seven days. 29:13 You must offer a burnt offering, an offering made by fire as a pleasing aroma to the LORD: thirteen young bulls, two rams, and fourteen lambs each one year old, all of them without blemish. 29:14 Their grain offering must be of finely ground flour mixed with olive oil, three-tenths of an ephah for each of the thirteen bulls, two-tenths of an ephah for each of the two rams, 29:15 and one-tenth for each of the fourteen lambs, 29:16 along with one male goat for a purification offering, in addition to the continual burnt offering with its grain offering and its drink offering.

29:17 "'On the second day you must offer twelve young bulls, two rams, fourteen lambs one year old, all without blemish, 29:18 and their grain offering and their drink offerings for the bulls, for the rams, and for the lambs, according to their number as prescribed, 29:19 along with one male goat for a purification offering, in addition to the continual burnt offering with its grain offering and their drink offerings.

29:20 "'On the third day you must offer[3] eleven bulls, two rams, fourteen lambs one year old, all without blemish, 29:21 and their grain offering and their drink offerings for the bulls, for the rams, and for the lambs, according to their number as prescribed, 29:22 along with one male goat for a purification offering, in addition to the continual burnt offering with its grain offering and its drink offering.

29:23 "'On the fourth day you must offer ten bulls, two rams, and fourteen lambs one year old, all without blemish, 29:24 and their grain offering and their drink offerings for the bulls, for the rams, and for the lambs, according to their number as prescribed, 29:25 along with one male goat for a purification offering, in addition to the continual burnt offering with its grain offering and its drink offering.

29:26 "'On the fifth day you must offer nine bulls, two rams, and fourteen lambs one year old, all without blemish, 29:27 and their grain offering and their drink offerings for the bulls, for the rams, and for the lambs, according to their number as prescribed, 29:28 along with one male goat for a purification offering, in addition to the continual burnt offering with its grain offering and its drink offering.

29:29 "'On the sixth day you must offer eight bulls, two rams, and fourteen lambs one year old, all without blemish, 29:30 and their grain offering and their drink offerings for the bulls, for the rams, and for the lambs, according to their number as prescribed, 29:31 along with one sn The verb seems to mean "humble yourself." There is no explanation given for it. In the days of the prophets fasting seems to be associated with it (see Isa 58:3-5), and possibly the symbolic wearing of ashes.

[2] tn Heb "they shall be to you without blemish."

[3] tn The words "you must offer" are implied.

male goat for a purification offering, in addition to the continual burnt offering with its grain offering and its drink offering.

29:32 "'On the seventh day you must offer seven bulls, two rams, and fourteen lambs one year old, all without blemish, 29:33 and their grain offering and their drink offerings for the bulls, for the rams, and for the lambs, according to their number as prescribed, 29:34 along with one male goat for a purification offering, in addition to the continual burnt offering with its grain offering and its drink offering.

29:35 "'On the eighth day you are to have a holy assembly; you must do no ordinary work on it. 29:36 But you must offer a burnt offering, an offering made by fire, as a pleasing aroma to the LORD, one bull, one ram, seven lambs one year old, all of them without blemish, 29:37 and with their grain offering and their drink offerings for the bull, for the ram, and for the lambs, according to their number as prescribed, 29:38 along with one male goat for a purification offering, in addition to the continual burnt offering with its grain offering and its drink offering.

29:39 "'These things you must present to the LORD at your appointed times, in addition to your vows and your freewill offerings, as your burnt offerings, your grain offerings, your drink offerings, and your peace offerings.'" 29:40 (30:1)[1] So Moses told the Israelites everything, just as the LORD had commanded him.[2]

Vows Made by Men

30:1[3] Moses told the leaders[4] of the tribes concerning the Israelites, "This is what[5] the LORD has commanded: 30:2 If a man[6] makes a vow[7] to the LORD or takes an oath[8] of binding obligation on himself,[9] he must not break his word, but must do whatever he has promised.[10]

Vows Made by Single Women

30:3 "If a young[11] woman who is still living[12] in her father's house makes a vow to the LORD or places herself under an obligation, 30:4 and her father hears of her vow or the obligation to which she has pledged herself, and her father remains silent about her,[13] then all her vows will stand,[14] and every obligation to which she has pledged herself will stand. 30:5 But if her father overrules her when he hears[15] about it, then none[16] of her vows or her obligations which she has pledged for herself will stand. And the LORD will release[17] her from it, because her father overruled her.

Vows Made by Married Women

30:6 "And if she marries a husband while under a vow,[18] or she uttered[19] anything impulsively by which she has pledged herself, 30:7 and her husband hears about it, but remains silent about her when he hears about it, then her vows will stand and her obligations which she has pledged for herself will stand. 30:8 But if when her husband hears it he overrules her, then

[1] sn Beginning with 29:40, the verse numbers through 30:16 in the English Bible differ from the verse numbers in the Hebrew text (BHS), with 29:40 ET = 30:1 HT, 30:1 ET = 30:2 HT, etc., through 30:16 ET = 30:17 HT. With 31:1 the verse numbers in the ET and HT are again the same.

[2] tn Heb "Moses." The proper name has been replaced by the pronoun ("him") in the translation for stylistic reasons.

[3] sn Num 30 deals with vows that are different than the vows discussed in Lev 27 and Num 6. The material is placed here after all the rulings of the offerings, but it could have been revealed to Moses at any time, such as the Nazirite vows, or the question of the daughters' inheritance. The logic of placing it here may be that a festival was the ideal place for discharging a vow. For additional material on vows, see R. de Vaux, Ancient Israel, 465-66.

[4] tn Heb "heads."

[5] tn Heb "This is the word which."

[6] tn The legal construction states the class to which the law applies, and then lays down the condition: "men [man] – if...."

[7] tn The Hebrew text uses a cognate accusative construction to express this: "a man if he vows a vow."

[8] tn The expression is "swear an oath" (הִשָּׁבַע שְׁבֻעָה, hishava' shevu'ah). The vow (נֶדֶר, neder) was a promise to donate something of oneself or one's substance to the LORD. The solemn oath seals the vow before the LORD, perhaps with sacrifice. The vocabulary recalls Abraham's treaty with Abimelech and the naming of Beer Sheba with the word (see Gen 21).

[9] tn The Hebrew text has לְאֹסֵר אִסָּר (le'sor 'issar), meaning "to take a binding obligation." This is usually interpreted to mean a negative vow, i.e., the person attempts to abstain from something that is otherwise permissible. It might involve fasting, or abstaining from marital sex, but it might also involve some goal to be achieved, and the abstaining from distractions until the vow is fulfilled (see Ps 132). The נֶדֶר (neder) may have been more for religious matters, and the אִסָּר more for social concerns, but this cannot be documented with certainty.

[10] tn Heb "according to all that goes out of his mouth."

[11] tn The qualification comes at the end of the verse, and simply says "in her youth."

[12] tn The Hebrew text just has "in her father's house" and not "who is still living," but that is the meaning of the line.

[13] tn The intent of this expression is that he does not object to the vow.

[14] tn The verb קוּם (qum) is best translated "stand" here, but the idea with it is that what she vows is established as a genuine oath with the father's approval (or acquiescence).

[15] tn The idiom is "in the day of," but it is used in place of a preposition before the infinitive construct with its suffixed subjective genitive. The clause is temporal.

[16] tn The Hebrew "all will not stand" is best rendered "none will stand."

[17] tn The verb has often been translated "forgive" (cf. KJV, ASV, NASB, NRSV, NLT), but that would suggest a sin that needed forgiving. The idea of "release from obligation" is better; the idea is like that of having a debt "forgiven" or "retired." In other words, she is free from the vow she had made. The LORD will not hold the woman responsible to do what she vowed.

[18] tn Heb "and her vows are upon her." It may be that the woman gets married while her vows are still unfulfilled.

[19] tn The Hebrew text indicates that this would be some impetuous vow that she uttered with her lips, a vow that her husband, whether new or existing, would not approve of. Several translate it "a binding obligation rashly uttered."

he will nullify[1] the vow she has taken,[2] and whatever she uttered impulsively which she has pledged for herself. And the LORD will release her from it.

Vows Made by Widows

30:9 "But every vow of a widow or of a divorced woman which she has pledged for herself will remain intact.[3] 30:10 If she made the vow in her husband's house or put herself under obligation with an oath, 30:11 and her husband heard about it, but remained silent about her, and did not overrule her, then all her vows will stand, and every obligation which she pledged for herself will stand. 30:12 But if her husband clearly nullifies[4] them when he hears them, then whatever she says[5] by way of vows or obligations will not stand. Her husband has made them void, and the LORD will release her from them.

30:13 "Any vow or sworn obligation that would bring affliction to her,[6] her husband can confirm or nullify.[7] 30:14 But if her husband remains completely silent[8] about her from day to day, he thus confirms all her vows or all her obligations which she is under; he confirms them because he remained silent about when he heard them. 30:15 But if he should nullify them after he has heard them, then he will bear her iniquity."[9]

30:16 These are the statutes that the LORD commanded Moses, relating to[10] a man and his wife, and a father and his young daughter who is still living in her father's house.

The Midianite War

31:1[11] The LORD spoke to Moses: 31:2 "Exact vengeance[12] for the Israelites on the Midianites[13] – after that you will be gathered to your people."[14]

31:3 So Moses spoke to the people: "Arm[15] men from among you for the war, to attack the Midianites and to execute[16] the LORD's vengeance on Midian. 31:4 You must send to the battle a thousand men from every tribe throughout all the tribes of Israel."[17] 31:5 So a thousand from every tribe, twelve thousand armed for battle in all, were provided out of the thousands of Israel.

Campaign Against the Midianites

31:6 So Moses sent them to the war, one thousand from every tribe, with Phinehas son of Eleazar the priest, who was in charge[18] of the holy articles[19] and the signal trumpets. 31:7 They fought against the Midianites, as the LORD commanded Moses, and they killed every male.[20]

---

[1] tn The verb is the Hiphil perfect with a vav (ו) consecutive from the verb פָּרַר (parar, "to annul"). The verb functions here as the equivalent of an imperfect tense; here it is the apodosis following the conditional clause – if this is the case, then this is what will happen.

[2] tn Heb "which [she is] under it."

[3] tn The Hebrew text says her vow "shall stand against her." In other words, she must fulfill, or bear the consequences of, whatever she vowed.

[4] tn The verb is the imperfect tense in the conditional clause. It is intensified with the infinitive absolute, which would have the force of saying that he nullified them unequivocally, or he made them null and void.

[5] tn Heb whatever proceeds from her lips."

[6] tn The sentence uses the infinitive construct לְעַנֹּת (le'annot, "to afflict"), which is the same word used in the instructions for the day of atonement in which people are to afflict themselves (their souls). The case here may be that the woman would take a religious vow on such an occasion to humble herself, to mortify her flesh, to abstain from certain things, perhaps even sexual relations within marriage.

[7] tn Heb "or her husband can nullify."

[8] tn The sentence uses the infinitive absolute to strengthen the idea.

[9] sn In other words, he will pay the penalty for making her break her vows if he makes her stop what she vowed. It will not be her responsibility.

[10] tn Heb "between."

[11] sn This lengthy chapter records the mobilization of the troops (vv. 1-5), the war itself (vv. 6-13), the death of the captive women (vv. 14-18), the purification of the nations (vv. 19-24), and the distribution of the spoils (vv. 25-54). For more detail, see G. W. Coats, "Moses in Midian," JBL 92 (1973): 3-10; and W. J. Dumbrell, "Midian – a Land or a League?" VT 25 (1975): 323-37.

[12] tn The imperative is followed by its cognate accusative to stress this vengeance. The Midianites had attempted to destroy Israel with their corrupt pagan practices, and now will be judged. The accounts indicate that the effort by Midian was calculated and evil.

[13] sn The war was commanded by the LORD and was to be divine vengeance on the Midianites. So it was holy war. No Israelites then could take spoils in this – it was not a time for plunder and aggrandizement. It was part of the judgment of God upon those who would destroy or pervert his plan and his people.

[14] sn This would be the last major enterprise that Moses would have to undertake. He would soon die and "be gathered to his people" as Aaron was.

[15] tn The Niphal imperative, literally "arm yourselves," is the call to mobilize the nation for war. It is followed by the jussive, "and they will be," which would then be subordinated to say "that they may be." The versions changed the verb to a Hiphil, but that is unnecessary: "arm some of yourselves."

[17] sn Some commentators argue that given the size of the nation (which they reject) the small number for the army is a sign of the unrealistic character of the story. The number is a round number, but it is also a holy war, and God would give them the victory. They are beginning to learn here, and at Jericho, and later against these Midianites under Gideon, that God does not want or need a large army in order to obtain victory.

[18] tn The Hebrew text uses the idiom that these "were in his hand," meaning that he had the responsibility over them.

[19] sn It is not clear what articles from the sanctuary were included. Tg. Ps.-J. adds (interpretively) "the Urim and Thummim."

[20] sn Many modern biblical scholars assume that this passage is fictitious. The text says that they killed every male, but Judges accounts for the Midianites. The texts can be harmonized rather simply – they killed every Midianite who was in the battle. Midianite tribes and cities dotted the whole region, but that does not mean Israel went and killed every single one of them. There apparently was a core of Midianites whom Balaam had influenced to pervert Israel.

31:8 They killed the kings of Midian in addition to those slain – Evi, Rekem, Zur, Hur, and Reba – five Midianite kings.[1] They also killed Balaam son of Beor with the sword.[2]

31:9 The Israelites took the women of Midian captives along with their little ones, and took all their herds, all their flocks, and all their goods as plunder. 31:10 They burned[3] all their towns[4] where they lived and all their encampments. 31:11 They took all the plunder and all the spoils, both people and animals. 31:12 They brought the captives and the spoils and the plunder to Moses, to Eleazar the priest, and to the Israelite community, to the camp on the plains[5] of Moab, along the Jordan River[6] across from Jericho.[7] 31:13 Moses, Eleazar the priest, and all the leaders of the community went out to meet them outside the camp.

The Death of the Midianite Women

31:14 But Moses was furious with the officers of the army, the commanders over thousands and commanders over hundreds, who had come from service in the war. 31:15 Moses said to them, "Have you allowed all the women to live?[8] 31:16 Look, these people through the counsel of Balaam caused the Israelites to act treacherously against the LORD in the matter of Peor – which resulted in the plague among the community of the LORD! 31:17 Now therefore kill every boy,[9] and kill every woman who has had sexual intercourse with a man.[10] 31:18 But all the young women[11] who have not had sexual intercourse with a man[12] will be yours.[13]

Purification After Battle

31:19 "Any of you who has killed anyone or touched any of the dead, remain outside the camp for seven days; purify yourselves and your captives on the third day, and on the seventh day. 31:20 You must purify each garment and everything that is made of skin, everything made of goat's hair, and everything made of wood."[14]

31:21 Then Eleazar the priest said to the men of war who had gone into the battle, "This is the ordinance of the law that the LORD commanded Moses: 31:22 'Only the gold, the silver, the bronze, the iron, the tin, and the lead, 31:23 everything that may stand the fire, you are to pass through the fire,[15] and it will be ceremonially clean, but it must still be purified with the water of purification. Anything that cannot withstand the fire you must pass through the water. 31:24 You must wash your clothes on the seventh day, and you will be ceremonially clean, and afterward you may enter the camp.'"

The Distribution of Spoils

31:25 Then the LORD spoke to Moses: 31:26 "You and Eleazar the priest, and all the family leaders of the community, take the sum[16] of the plunder that was captured, both people and animals. 31:27 Divide the plunder into two parts, one for those who took part in the war – who went out to battle – and the other for all the community.

[1] sn Here again we see that there was no unified empire, but Midianite tribal groups.

[2] sn And what was Balaam doing among the Midianites? The implication is strong. This pagan diviner had to submit to the revealed will of God in the oracles, but he nonetheless could be hired. He had been a part of the attempt to destroy Israel that failed; he then apparently became part of the plan, if not the adviser, to destroy them with sexual immorality and pagan ritual.

[3] tn Heb "burned with fire."

[4] tn The ban applied to the encampments and forts of this group of Midianite tribes living in the region of Moab.

[5] tn Or "steppes."

[6] tn The word "River" is not in the Hebrew text, but has been supplied in the translation for clarity.

[7] tn Again this expression, "the Jordan of Jericho," is used. It describes the intended location along the Jordan River, the Jordan next to or across from Jericho.

map For the location of Jericho see Map5-B2; Map6-E1; Map7-E1; Map8-E3; Map10-A2; Map11-A1.

[8] tn The verb is the Piel perfect of the word חָיָה (khayah, "to live"). In the Piel stem it must here mean "preserve alive," or "allow to live," rather than make alive.

[9] tn Heb "every male among the little ones."

sn The command in holy war to kill women and children seems in modern times a terrible thing to do (and it was), and something they ought not to have done. But this criticism fails to understand the situation in the ancient world. The entire life of the ancient world was tribal warfare. God's judgment is poured out on whole groups of people who act with moral abandonment and in sinful pursuits. See E. J. Young, My Servants, the Prophets, 24; and J. W. Wenham, The Enigma of Evil.

[10] tn Heb "every woman who has known [a] man by lying with a man."

[11] tn Or "girls." The Hebrew indicates they would be female children, making the selection easy.

[12] tn Heb "who have not known [a] man by lying with a man."

[13] sn Many contemporary scholars see this story as fictitious, composed by the Jews during the captivity. According to this interpretation, the spoils of war here indicate the wealth of the Jews in captivity, which was to be given to the Levites and priests for the restoration of the sanctuary in Jerusalem. The conclusion drawn from this interpretation is that returning Jews had the same problem as the earlier ones: to gain a foothold in the land. Against this interpretation of the account is a lack of hard evidence, a lack which makes this interpretation appear contrived and subjective. If this was the intent of a later writer, he surely could have stated this more clearly than by making up such a story.

[14] sn These verses are a reminder that taking a life, even if justified through holy war, still separates one from the holiness of God. It is part of the violation of the fallen world, and only through the ritual of purification can one be once again made fit for the presence of the LORD.

[15] sn Purification by fire is unique to this event. Making these metallic objects "pass through the fire" was not only a way of purifying (burning off impurities), but it seems to be a dedicatory rite as well to the LORD and his people. The aspect of passing through the fire is one used by these pagans for child sacrifice.

[16] tn The idiom here is "take up the head," meaning take a census, or count the totals.

31:28 "You must exact[1] a tribute for the LORD from the fighting men who went out to battle: one life out of five hundred, from the people, the cattle, and from the donkeys and the sheep. 31:29 You are to take it from their half-share and give it to Eleazar the priest for a raised offering to the LORD. 31:30 From the Israelites' half-share you are to take one portion out of fifty of the people, the cattle, the donkeys, and the sheep – from every kind of animal – and you are to give them to the Levites, who are responsible for the care of the LORD's tabernacle."

31:31 So Moses and Eleazar the priest did as the LORD commanded Moses. 31:32 The spoil that remained of the plunder which the fighting men[2] had gathered[3] was 675,000 sheep, 31:33 72,000 cattle, 31:34 61,000 donkeys, 31:35 and 32,000 young women who had never had sexual intercourse with a man.[4]

31:36 The half-portion of those who went to war numbered 337,500 sheep; 31:37 the LORD's tribute from the sheep was 675. 31:38 The cattle numbered[5] 36,000; the LORD's tribute was 72. 31:39 The donkeys were 30,500, of which the LORD's tribute was 61. 31:40 The people were 16,000, of which the LORD's tribute was 32 people.[6]

31:41 So Moses gave the tribute, which was the LORD's raised offering, to Eleazar the priest, as the LORD commanded Moses.

31:42 From the Israelites' half-share that Moses had separated from the fighting men,[7] 31:43 there were 337,500 sheep from the portion belonging to the community, 31:44 36,000 cattle, 31:45 30,500 donkeys, 31:46 and 16,000 people.

31:47 From the Israelites' share Moses took one of every fifty people and animals and gave them to the Levites who were responsible for the care of the LORD's tabernacle, just as the LORD commanded Moses.

31:48 Then the officers who were over the thousands of the army, the commanders over thousands and the commanders over hundreds, approached Moses 31:49 and said to him,[8] "Your servants have taken a count[9] of the men who were in the battle, who were under our authority,[10] and not one is missing. 31:50 So we have brought as an offering for the LORD what each man found: gold ornaments, armlets, bracelets, signet rings, earrings, and necklaces, to make atonement for ourselves[11] before the LORD."[12] 31:51 Moses and Eleazar the priest took the gold from them, all of it in the form of ornaments. 31:52 All the gold of the offering they offered up to the LORD from the commanders of thousands and the commanders of hundreds weighed 16,750 shekels.[13] 31:53 Each soldier had taken plunder for himself. 31:54 So Moses and Eleazar the priest received the gold from the commanders of thousands and commanders[14] of hundreds and brought it into the tent of meeting as a memorial[15] for the Israelites before the LORD.

The Petition of the Reubenites and Gadites

32:1[16] Now the Reubenites and the Gadites possessed a very large number of cattle. When they saw that the lands of Jazer and Gilead were ideal for cattle,[17] 32:2 the Gadites and the Reubenites came and addressed Moses, Eleazar the priest, and the leaders of the community. They said, 32:3 "Ataroth, Dibon, Jazer, Nimrah, Heshbon, Elealeh, Sebam,[18] Nebo, and Beon,[19] 32:4 the land that the LORD subdued[20] before the community of Israel, is ideal for cattle, and your servants have cattle." 32:5 So they said, "If we have found favor in your sight,[21] let this land be

[1] tn The verb is the Hiphil, "you shall cause to be taken up." The perfect with vav (ו) continues the sequence of the instructions. This raised offering was to be a tax of one-fifth of one percent for the LORD.

[2] tn Heb "people."

[3] tn Heb "had plundered."

[4] sn Here again we encounter one of the difficulties of the book, the use of the large numbers. Only twelve thousand soldiers fought the Midianites, but they brought back this amount of plunder, including 32,000 girls. Until a solution for numbers in the book can be found, or the current translation confirmed, one must remain cautious in interpretation.

[5] tn The word "numbered" has been supplied in the translation for clarity.

[6] tn Heb "soul."

[7] tn Heb "the men who were fighting."

[8] tn Heb "to Moses"; the proper name has been replaced by the pronoun ("him") in the translation for stylistic reasons.

[9] tn Heb "lifted up the head."

[10] tn Heb "in our hand."

[11] tn Heb "our souls."

[12] sn The expression here may include the idea of finding protection from divine wrath, which is so common to Leviticus, but it may also be a thank offering for the fact that their lives had been spared.

[13] sn Or about 420 imperial pounds.

[14] tn The Hebrew text does not repeat the word "commanders" here, but it is implied.

[15] tn The purpose of the offering was to remind the LORD to remember Israel. But it would also be an encouragement for Israel as they remembered the great victory.

[16] sn While the tribes are on the other side of Jordan, the matter of which tribes would settle there has to be discussed. This chapter begins the settlement of Israel into the tribal territories, something to be continued in Joshua. The chapter has the petitions (vv. 1-5), the response by Moses (vv. 6-15), the proposal (vv. 16-27), and the conclusion of the matter (vv. 28-42). For literature on this subject, both critical and conservative, see S. E. Loewenstein, "The Relation of the Settlement of Gad and Reuben in Numbers 32:1-38, Its Background and Its Composition," Tarbiz 42 (1972): 12-26; J. [17] tn Heb "the place was a place of/for cattle."

[18] tc Smr and the LXX have Sibmah. Cf. v. 38.

[19] tn Cf. Baal-meon in v. 38.

[20] tn The verb is the Hiphil perfect of נָכָה (nakhah), a term that can mean "smite, strike, attack, destroy."

[21] tn Heb "eyes."

given to your servants for our inheritance. Do not have us cross[1] the Jordan River."[2]

Moses' Response

32:6 Moses said to the Gadites and the Reubenites, "Must your brothers go to war while you[3] remain here? 32:7 Why do you frustrate the intent[4] of the Israelites to cross over into the land which the LORD has given them? 32:8 Your fathers did the same thing when I sent them from Kadesh Barnea to see the land. 32:9 When[5] they went up to the Eshcol Valley and saw the land, they frustrated the intent of the Israelites so that they did not enter[6] the land that the LORD had given[7] them. 32:10 So the anger of the LORD was kindled that day, and he swore, 32:11 'Because they have not followed me wholeheartedly,[8] not[9] one of the men twenty years old and upward[10] who came from Egypt will see the land that I swore to give[11] to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, 32:12 except Caleb son of Jephunneh the Kenizzite, and Joshua son of Nun, for they followed the LORD wholeheartedly.' 32:13 So the LORD's anger was kindled against the Israelites, and he made them wander in the wilderness for forty years, until all that generation that had done wickedly before[12] the LORD was finished.[13] 32:14 Now look, you are standing in your fathers' place, a brood of sinners, to increase still further the fierce wrath of the LORD against the Israelites. 32:15 For if you turn away from following him, he will once again abandon[14] them in the wilderness, and you will be the reason for their destruction."[15]

The Offer of the Reubenites and Gadites

32:16 Then they came very close to him and said, "We will build sheep folds here for our flocks and cities for our families,[16] 32:17 but we will maintain ourselves in armed readiness[17] and go before the Israelites until whenever we have brought them to their place. Our descendants will be living in fortified towns as a protection against[18] the inhabitants of the land. 32:18 We will not return to our homes until every Israelite has his inheritance. 32:19 For we will not accept any inheritance on the other side of the Jordan River[19] and beyond, because our inheritance has come to us on this eastern side of the Jordan."

32:20 Then Moses replied,[20] "If you will do this thing, and if you will arm yourselves for battle before the LORD, 32:21 and if all your armed men cross the Jordan before the LORD until he drives out his enemies from his presence 32:22 and the land is subdued before the LORD, then afterward you may return and be free of your obligation to the LORD and to Israel. This land will then be your possession in the LORD's sight.

32:23 "But if you do not do this, then look, you will have sinned[21] against the LORD. And know that your sin will find you out. 32:24 So build cities for your descendants and pens for your sheep, but do what you have said[22] you would do."

32:25 So the Gadites and the Reubenites replied to Moses, "Your servants will do as my lord commands. 32:26 Our children, our wives, our flocks, and all our livestock will be there in the cities of Gilead, 32:27 but your servants will cross over, every man armed for war, to do battle in the LORD's presence, just as my lord says."

32:28 So Moses gave orders about them to Eleazar the priest, to Joshua son of Nun, and to the heads of the families of the Israelite tribes. 32:29 Moses said to them: "If the Gadites and the Reubenites cross the Jordan with you, each one

1 tn The verb is the Hiphil jussive from עָבַר ('avar, "to cross over"). The idea of "cause to cross" or "make us cross" might be too harsh, but "take across" with the rest of the nation is what they are trying to avoid.

2 tn The word "River" is not in the Hebrew text, but has been supplied in the translation for clarity.

3 tn The vav (ו) is a vav disjunctive prefixed to the pronoun; it fits best here as a circumstantial clause, "while you stay here."

4 tn Heb "heart." So also in v. 9.

5 tn The preterite with vav (ו) consecutive is here subordinated to the parallel yet chronologically later verb in the next clause.

6 tn The infinitive construct here with lamed (ל) is functioning as a result clause.

7 tn The LORD had not given it yet, but was going to give it. Hence, the perfect should be classified as a perfect of resolve.

8 tn The clause is difficult; it means essentially that "they have not made full [their coming] after" the LORD.

9 tn The sentence begins with "if they see...." This is the normal way for Hebrew to express a negative oath – "they will by no means see...." The sentence is elliptical; it is saying something like "[May God do so to me] if they see," meaning they won't see. Of course here God is taking the oath, which is an anthropomorphic act. He does not need to take an oath, and certainly could not swear by anyone greater, but it communicates to people his resolve.

10 tc The LXX adds "those knowing bad and good."

11 tn The words "to give" are not in the Hebrew text but have been supplied in the translation for clarity.

12 tn Heb "in the eyes of."

13 tn The verb is difficult to translate, since it has the idea of "complete, finish" (תָּמַם, tamam). It could be translated "consumed" in this passage (so KJV, ASV); NASB "was destroyed."

14 tn The construction uses a verbal hendiadys with the verb "to add" serving to modify the main verb.

15 tn Heb "and you will destroy all this people."

16 tn Heb "our little ones."

17 tn The MT has חֻשִׁים (khushim); the verbal root is חוּשׁ (khush, "to make haste" or "hurry"). But in light of the Greek and Latin Vulgate the Hebrew should probably be emended to חֲמֻשִׁים (hamushim), a qal passive participle meaning "in battle array." See further BDB 301 s.v. I חוּשׁ, BDB 332 s.v. חֲמֻשִׁים; HALOT 300 s.v. I חוּשׁ; HALOT 331 s.v. I חמשׁ.

18 tn Heb "from before."

19 tn The word "River" is not in the Hebrew text, but has been supplied in the translation for clarity.

20 tn Heb "said to them."

21 tn The nuance of the perfect tense here has to be the future perfect.

22 tn Heb "that which goes out/has gone out of your mouth."

equipped for battle in the LORD's presence, and you conquer the land,[1] then you must allot them the territory of Gilead as their possession. 32:30 But if they do not cross over with you armed, they must receive possessions among you in Canaan." 32:31 Then the Gadites and the Reubenites answered, "Your servants will do what the LORD has spoken.[2] 32:32 We will cross armed in the LORD's presence into the land of Canaan, and then the possession of our inheritance that we inherit will be ours on this side of the Jordan River."[3]

Land Assignment

32:33 So Moses gave to the Gadites, the Reubenites, and to half the tribe of Manasseh son of Joseph the realm of King Sihon of the Amorites, and the realm of King Og of Bashan, the entire land with its cities and the territory surrounding them.[4] 32:34 The Gadites rebuilt Dibon, Ataroth, Aroer, 32:35 Atroth Shophan, Jazer, Jogbehah, 32:36 Beth Nimrah, and Beth Haran as fortified cities, and constructed pens for their flocks. 32:37 The Reubenites rebuilt Heshbon, Elealeh, Kiriathaim, 32:38 Nebo, Baal Meon (with a change of name), and Sibmah. They renamed[5] the cities they built.

32:39 The descendants of Machir son of Manasseh went to Gilead, took it, and dispossessed the Amorites who were in it. 32:40 So Moses gave Gilead to Machir, son of Manasseh, and he lived there.[6] 32:41 Now Jair son of Manasseh went and captured their small towns and named them Havvoth Jair.[7] 32:42 Then Nobah went and captured Kenath and its villages and called it Nobah after his own name.

Wanderings from Egypt to Sinai

33:1[8] These are the journeys of the Israelites, who went out of the land of Egypt by their divisions under the authority[9] of Moses and Aaron. 33:2 Moses recorded their departures[10] according to their journeys, by the commandment[11] of the LORD; now these are their journeys according to their departures. 33:3 They departed from Rameses in the first month, on the fifteenth day of the first month; on the day[12] after the Passover the Israelites went out defiantly[13] in plain sight[14] of all the Egyptians. 33:4 Now the Egyptians were burying all their firstborn, whom the LORD had killed among them; the LORD also executed judgments on their gods.

33:5 The Israelites traveled from Rameses and camped in Succoth.

33:6 They traveled from Succoth, and camped in Etham, which is on the edge of the wilderness. 33:7 They traveled from Etham, and turned again to Pi-hahiroth, which is before Baal-Zephon; and they camped before Migdal. 33:8 They traveled from Pi-hahiroth,[15] and passed through the middle of the sea into the wilderness, and went three days' journey in the wilderness of Etham, and camped in Marah. 33:9 They traveled from Marah and came to Elim; in Elim there are twelve fountains of water and seventy palm trees, so they camped there.

33:10 They traveled from Elim, and camped by the Red Sea. 33:11 They traveled from the Red Sea and camped in the wilderness of Zin. 33:12 They traveled from the wilderness of Zin and camped in Dophkah. 33:13 And they traveled from Dophkah, and camped in Alush.

33:14 They traveled from Alush and camped at Rephidim, where there was no water for the people to drink. 33:15 They traveled from Rephidim and camped in the wilderness of Sinai.

Wanderings in the Wilderness

33:16 They traveled from the desert of Sinai and camped at Kibroth Hattaavah. 33:17 They traveled from Kibroth Hattaavah and camped at Hazeroth. 33:18 They traveled from Hazeroth and camped in Rithmah. 33:19 They traveled from Rithmah and camped at Rimmon-perez. 33:20 They traveled from Rimmon-perez and camped in Libnah. 33:21 They traveled from Libnah and camped at Rissah. 33:22 They traveled from Rissah and camped in Kehelathah. 33:23 They traveled from Kehelathah and camped at Mount Shepher. 33:24 They traveled from Mount Shepher and camped in Haradah. 33:25 They traveled from Haradah and camped in Makheloth. 33:26 They traveled from Makheloth and camped at Tahath. 33:27 They traveled from Tahath and camped at Terah. 33:28 They traveled from Terah and camped in Mithcah. 33:29 They traveled from Mithcah and camped in Hashmonah. 33:30 They traveled

[12] tn Heb "morrow."

[13] tn Heb "with a high hand"; the expression means "defiantly; boldly" or "with confidence." The phrase is usually used for arrogant sin and pride, the defiant fist, as it were. The image of the high hand can also mean the hand raised to deliver the blow (Job 38:15).

Wanderings from Kadesh to Moab

33:37 They traveled from Kadesh and camped in Mount Hor at the edge of the land of Edom. 33:38 Aaron the priest ascended Mount Hor at the command[1] of the LORD, and he died there in the fortieth year after the Israelites had come out of the land of Egypt on the first day of the fifth month. 33:39 Now Aaron was 123 years old when he died in Mount Hor. 33:40 The king of Arad, the Canaanite king who lived in the south of the land of Canaan, heard about the approach of the Israelites.

33:41 They traveled from Mount Hor and camped in Zalmonah. 33:42 They traveled from Zalmonah and camped in Punon. 33:43 They traveled from Punon and camped in Oboth. 33:44 They traveled from Oboth and camped in Iye-abarim, on the border of Moab. 33:45 They traveled from Iim[2] and camped in Dibon-gad. 33:46 They traveled from Dibon-gad and camped in Almon-diblathaim. 33:47 They traveled from Almon-diblathaim and camped in the mountains of Abarim before Nebo. 33:48 They traveled from the mountains of Abarim and camped in the plains of Moab by the Jordan River[3] across from Jericho.[4] 33:49 They camped by the Jordan, from Beth Jeshimoth as far as Abel-shittim in the plains of Moab.

At the Border of Canaan

33:50 The LORD spoke to Moses in the plains of Moab by the Jordan, across from Jericho. He said: 33:51 "Speak to the Israelites and tell them, 'When you have crossed the Jordan into the land of Canaan, 33:52 you must drive out all the inhabitants of the land before you. Destroy all their carved images, all their molten images,[5] and demolish their high places. 33:53 You must dispossess the inhabitants of the land and live in it, for I have given you the land to possess it. 33:54 You must divide the land by lot for an inheritance among your families. To a larger group you must give a larger inheritance, and to a smaller group you must give a smaller inheritance. Everyone's inheritance must be in the place where his lot falls. You must inherit according to your ancestral[6] tribes. 33:55 But if you do not drive out the inhabitants of the land before you, then those whom you allow to remain will be irritants in your eyes and thorns in your side, and will cause you trouble in the land where you will be living. 33:56 And what I intended to do to them I will do to you."

The Southern Border of the Land

34:1[7] Then the LORD spoke to Moses: 34:2 "Give these instructions[8] to the Israelites, and tell them: 'When you enter Canaan, the land that has been assigned to you as an inheritance,[9] the land of Canaan with its borders, 34:3 your southern border[10] will extend from the wilderness of Zin along the Edomite border, and your southern border will run eastward to the extremity of the Salt Sea, 34:4 and then the border will turn from the south to the Scorpion Ascent,[11] continue to Zin, and then its direction[12] will be from the south to Kadesh Barnea. Then it will go to Hazar Addar and pass over to Azmon. 34:5 There the border will turn from Azmon to the Stream of Egypt, and then its direction is to the sea.[13]

The Western Border of the Land

34:6 "'And for a western border[14] you will have the Great Sea.[15] This will be your western border.

The Northern Border of the Land

34:7 "'And this will be your northern border: From the Great Sea you will draw a line to Mount Hor; 34:8 from Mount Hor you will draw a line to Lebo Hamath,[16] and the direction of the border will be to Zedad. 34:9 The border will continue to Ziphron, and its direction will be to Hazar Enan. This will be your northern border.

[1] tn Heb "mouth."

[2] tn Iim is a shortened form of the name Iye-abarim mentioned in v. 44.

[3] tn The word "River" is not in the Hebrew text, but is supplied in the translation for clarity.

[4] map For the location of Jericho see Map5-B2; Map6-E1; Map7-E1; Map8-E3; Map10-A2; Map11-A1.

[5] tn The Hebrew text repeats the verb "you will destroy."

[6] tn Heb "of your fathers."

[7] sn This chapter falls into several sections: the south (vv. 1-5), the west (v. 6), the north (vv. 7-9), the east (vv. 10-15), and then a list of appointed officials (vv. 16-29).

[8] tn Or "command."

[9] tn Heb "this is the land that will fall to you as an inheritance."

[10] tn The expression refers to the corner or extremity of the Negev, the South.

[11] tn Or "the Ascent of Scorpions" (עַקְרַבִּים ['aqrabbim] means "scorpions" in Hebrew).

[12] tn Heb "its going forth," or the way it runs.

[13] sn That is, the Mediterranean.

[14] tn The word for west is simply "sea," because the sea is west of Israel.

[15] sn That is, the Mediterranean Sea (also in the following verse).

[16] tn Or "to the entrance to Hamath."

The Eastern Border of the Land

34:10 "'For your eastern border you will draw a line from Hazar Enan to Shepham. 34:11 The border will run down from Shepham to Riblah, on the east side of Ain, and the border will descend and reach the eastern side of the Sea of Kinnereth.[1] 34:12 Then the border will continue down the Jordan River[2] and its direction will be to the Salt Sea. This will be your land by its borders that surround it.'"

34:13 Then Moses commanded the Israelites: "This is the land which you will inherit by lot, which the LORD has commanded to be given[3] to the nine and a half tribes, 34:14 because the tribe of the Reubenites by their families,[4] the tribe of the Gadites by their families, and half of the tribe of Manasseh have received their inheritance. 34:15 The two and a half tribes have received their inheritance on this side of the Jordan, east of Jericho,[5] toward the sunrise."

Appointed Officials

34:16 The LORD said to Moses: 34:17 "These are the names of the men who are to allocate the land to you as an inheritance:[6] Eleazar the priest and Joshua son of Nun. 34:18 You must take one leader from every[7] tribe to assist in allocating the land as an inheritance.[8] 34:19 These are the names of the men: from the tribe of Judah, Caleb son of Jephunneh; 34:20 from the tribe of the Simeonites, Shemuel son of Ammihud; 34:21 from the tribe of Benjamin, Elidad son of Kislon; 34:22 and from the tribe of the Danites, a leader, Bukki son of Jogli. 34:23 From the Josephites, Hanniel son of Ephod, a leader from the tribe of Manasseh; 34:24 from the tribe of the Ephraimites, a leader, Kemuel son of Shiphtan; 34:25 from the tribe of the Zebulunites, a leader, Elizaphan son of Parnach; 34:26 from the tribe of the Issacharites, a leader, Paltiel son of Azzan; 34:27 from the tribe of the Asherites, a leader, Ahihud son of Shelomi; 34:28 and from the tribe of the Naphtalites, a leader, Pedahel son of Ammihud." 34:29 These are the ones whom the LORD commanded to divide up the inheritance among the Israelites in the land of Canaan.

The Levitical Cities

35:1[9] Then the LORD spoke to Moses in the Moabite plains by the Jordan near Jericho.[10] He said: 35:2 "Instruct the Israelites to give[11] the Levites towns to live in from the inheritance the Israelites[12] will possess. You must also give the Levites grazing land around the towns. 35:3 Thus they will have towns in which to live, and their grazing lands will be for their cattle, for their possessions, and for all their animals. 35:4 The grazing lands around the towns that you will give to the Levites must extend to a distance of 500 yards[13] from the town wall.

35:5 "You must measure[14] from outside the wall of the town on the east 1,000 yards,[15] and on the south side 1,000 yards, and on the west side 1,000 yards, and on the north side 1,000 yards, with the town in the middle.[16] This territory must belong to them as grazing land for the towns. 35:6 Now from these towns that you will give to the Levites you must select six towns of refuge to which a person who has killed someone may flee.[17] And you must give them forty-two other towns.

sn The word means "harp." The lake (or sea) of Galilee was so named because it is shaped somewhat like a harp.

[2] tn The word "River" is not in the Hebrew text, but has been supplied in the translation for clarity.

[3] tn The infinitive forms the direct object of what the LORD commanded. It actually means "to give," but without an expressed subject may be made passive.

[4] tn Heb "the house of their fathers." So also a little later in this verse.

[5] map For the location of Jericho see Map5-B2; Map6-E1; Map7-E1; Map8-E3; Map10-A2; Map11-A1.

[6] tn The verb can be translated simply as "divide," but it has more the idea of allocate as an inheritance, the related noun being "inheritance."

[7] tn This sense is created by repetition: "one leader, one leader from the tribe."

[8] tn The sentence simply uses לְנַחֵל (linkhol, "to divide, apportion"). It has been taken already to mean "allocate as an inheritance." Here "assist" may be added since Joshua and Eleazar had the primary work.

[9] sn This section has two main parts, the Levitical cities (vv. 1-8) and the Cities of Refuge (vv. 9-34).

[10] map For location see Map5-B2; Map6-E1; Map7-E1; Map8-E3; Map10-A2; Map11-A1.

[11] tn The verb is the perfect tense with vav (ו) consecutive: "command...and they will give," or "that they give."

[12] tn Heb "they"; the referent (the Israelites) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[13] tn Heb "one thousand cubits." The standard cubit in the OT is assumed by most authorities to be about eighteen inches (45 cm) in length, so this would be a distance of 1,500 feet or 500 yards (675 meters).

[14] tn The verb is the Qal perfect of מָדַד (madad, "to measure"). With its vav (ו) consecutive it carries the same instructional force as the imperfect.

[15] tn Heb "two thousand cubits" (also three more times in this verse). This would be a distance of 3,000 feet or 1,000 yards (1,350 meters).

[16] sn The precise nature of the layout described here is not altogether clear. V. 4 speaks of the distance from the wall as being 500 yards; v. 5, however, describes measurements of 1,000 yards. Various proposals have been made in order to harmonize vv. 4 and 5. P. J. Budd, Numbers (WBC), 376, makes the following suggestion: "It may be best to assume that the cubits of the Levitical pasture lands are cubit frontages of land – in other words on each side of the city there was a block of land with a frontage of two thousand cubits (v 5), and a depth of 1000 cubits (v 4)."

[17] tn The "manslayer" is the verb "to kill" in a participial form, providing the subject of the clause. The verb means "to kill"; it can mean accidental killing, premeditated killing, or capital punishment. The clause uses the infinitive to express purpose or result: "to flee there the manslayer," means "so that the manslayer may flee there."

35:7 "So the total of the towns you will give the Levites is forty-eight. You must give these together with their grazing lands. 35:8 The towns you will give must be from the possession of the Israelites. From the larger tribes you must give more; and from the smaller tribes fewer. Each must contribute some of its own towns to the Levites in proportion to the inheritance allocated to each.

The Cities of Refuge

35:9 Then the LORD spoke to Moses: 35:10 "Speak to the Israelites and tell them, 'When you cross over the Jordan River[1] into the land of Canaan, 35:11 you must then designate some towns as towns of refuge for you, to which a person who has killed someone unintentionally may flee. 35:12 And they must stand as your towns of refuge from the avenger in order that the killer may not die until he has stood trial before the community. 35:13 These towns that you must give shall be your six towns for refuge.

35:14 "You must give three towns on this side of the Jordan, and you must give three towns in the land of Canaan; they must be towns of refuge. 35:15 These six towns will be places of refuge for the Israelites, and for the foreigner, and for the settler among them, so that anyone who kills any person accidentally may flee there.

35:16 "But if he hits someone with an iron tool so that he dies,[2] he is a murderer. The murderer must surely be put to death. 35:17 If he strikes him by throwing a stone large enough that he could die, and he dies, he is a murderer. The murderer must surely be put to death. 35:18 Or if he strikes him with a wooden hand weapon so that he could die, and he dies, he is a murderer. The murderer must surely be put to death. 35:19 The avenger[3] of blood himself must kill the murderer; when he meets him, he must kill him.

35:20 "But if he strikes him out of hatred or throws something at him intentionally[4] so that he dies, 35:21 or with enmity he strikes him with his hand and he dies, the one who struck him must surely be put to death, for he is a murderer. The avenger of blood must kill the murderer when he meets him.

35:22 "But if he strikes him suddenly, without enmity, or throws anything at him unintentionally, 35:23 or with any stone large enough that a man could die, without seeing him, and throws it at him, and he dies, even though he was not his enemy nor sought his harm, 35:24 then the community must judge between the slayer and the avenger of blood according to these decisions. 35:25 The community must deliver the slayer out of the hand of the avenger of blood, and the community must restore him to the town of refuge to which he fled, and he must live there[5] until the death of the high priest, who was anointed with the consecrated oil. 35:26 But if the slayer at any time goes outside the boundary of the town to which he had fled, 35:27 and the avenger of blood finds him outside the borders of the town of refuge, and the avenger of blood kills the slayer, he will not be guilty of blood, 35:28 because the slayer[6] should have stayed in his town of refuge until the death of the high priest. But after the death of the high priest, the slayer may return to the land of his possessions. 35:29 So these things must be a statutory ordinance[7] for you throughout your generations, in all the places where you live.

35:30 "Whoever kills any person, the murderer must be put to death by the testimony[8] of witnesses, but one witness cannot[9] testify against any person to cause him to be put to death. 35:31 Moreover, you must not accept a ransom for the life of a murderer who is guilty of death; he must surely be put to death. 35:32 And you must not accept a ransom for anyone who has fled to a town of refuge, to allow him to return home and live on his own land before the death of the high priest.[10]

35:33 "You must not pollute the land where you live, for blood defiles the land, and the land cannot be cleansed of the blood that is shed there, except by the blood of the person who shed it. 35:34 Therefore do not defile the land that you will inhabit, in which I live, for I the LORD live among the Israelites."

Women and Land Inheritance

36:1 Then the heads of the family groups[11] of the Gileadites, the descendant of Machir, the descendant of Manasseh, who were from the Josephite families, approached and spoke before Moses[12] and the leaders who were the heads of the

[1] tn The word "River" is not in the Hebrew text, but has been supplied in the translation for clarity.

[2] tn the verb is the preterite of "die." The sentence has :"if... he strikes him and he dies." The vav (ו) consecutive is showing the natural result of the blow.

[3] tn The participle גֹּאֵל (go'el) is the one who protects the family by seeking vengeance for a crime. This is the same verb used for levirate marriages and other related customs.

[4] tn The Hebrew text is more vivid: "by lying in wait."

[5] tn Heb "in it."

[6] tn Heb "he."

[7] tn Heb "a statute of judgment" (so KJV).

[8] tn Heb "at the mouth of"; the metonymy stresses it is at their report.

[9] tn The verb should be given the nuance of imperfect of potentiality.

[10] tn Heb "the priest." The Greek and the Syriac have "high priest." The present translation, along with many English versions, uses "high priest" as a clarification.

[11] tn The expression is "the heads of the fathers by the family of the Gileadites."

[12] tn The Greek and the Syriac add "and before Eleazar the priest."

Israelite families.[1] 36:2 They said, "The LORD commanded my lord to give[2] the land as an inheritance by lot to the Israelites; and my lord was commanded by the LORD to give the inheritance of our brother Zelophehad to his daughters. 36:3 Now if they should be married to one of the men[3] from another Israelite tribe, their inheritance would be taken from the inheritance of our fathers and added to the inheritance of the tribe into which they marry.[4] As a result, it will be taken from the lot of our inheritance. 36:4 And when the Jubilee of the Israelites is to take place,[5] their inheritance will be added to the inheritance of the tribe into which they marry. So their inheritance will be taken away from the inheritance of our ancestral tribe."[6]

Moses' Decision

36:5 Then Moses gave a ruling[7] to the Israelites by the word[8] of the LORD: "What the tribe of the Josephites is saying is right. 36:6 This is what[9] the LORD has commanded for Zelophehad's daughters: 'Let them marry[10] whomever they think best,[11] only they must marry within the family of their father's tribe. 36:7 In this way the inheritance of the Israelites will not be transferred[12] from tribe to tribe. But every one of the Israelites must retain the ancestral heritage. 36:8 And every daughter who possesses an inheritance from any of the tribes of the Israelites must become the wife of a man from any family in her father's tribe, so that every Israelite[13] may retain the inheritance of his fathers. 36:9 No inheritance may pass from tribe to tribe. But every one of the tribes of the Israelites must retain its inheritance."

36:10 As the LORD had commanded Moses, so the daughters of Zelophehad did. 36:11 For the daughters of Zelophehad – Mahlah, Tirzah, Hoglah, Milcah, and Noah – were married to the sons of their uncles.[14] 36:12 They were married into the families of the Manassehites, the descendants of Joseph, and their inheritance remained in the tribe of their father's family.

36:13 These are the commandments and the decisions that the LORD commanded the Israelites through the authority[15] of Moses, on the plains of Moab by the Jordan River[16] opposite Jericho.[17]

---

[1] tn Heb "heads of the fathers."

[2] tn The infinitive construct "to give" serves here as the complement or object of the verb, answering what the LORD had commanded Moses.

[3] tn "Men" is understood; it says "to one from the sons of the tribes of the Israelites for a wife," or if he has her for a wife.

[4] tn Heb "which they will be to them," meaning, to those who have them, i.e., the marriages.

[5] tn The verb הָיָה (hayah) is most often translated "to be," but it can also mean "to happen, to take place, to come to pass," etc.

[6] tn Heb "the tribe of our fathers."

[7] tn Heb "commanded."

[8] tn Heb "mouth."

[9] tn Heb "the word that."

[10] tn The idiom again is "let them be for wives for...."

[11] tn Heb "to the one who is good in their eyes."

[12] tn Heb "turned aside."

[13] tn The subject is "Israelites" and the verb is plural to agree with it, but the idea is collective as the word for "man" indicates: "so that the Israelites may possess – [each] man the inheritance of his fathers."

[14] tn They married in the family as they were instructed. But the meaning of דּוֹד (dod) is not necessarily restricted to "uncle."

[15] tn Heb "by the hand."

[16] tn The word "River" is not in the Hebrew text, but has been supplied in the translation for clarity.

Deuteronomy

The Covenant Setting

1:1 This is what[1] Moses said to the assembly of Israel[2] in the Transjordanian[3] wastelands, the arid country opposite[4] Suph,[5] between[6] Paran[7] and Tophel,[8] Laban,[9] Hazeroth,[10] and Di Zahab[11] 1:2 Now it is ordinarily an eleven-day journey[12] from Horeb[13] to Kadesh Barnea[14] by way of Mount Seir.[15] 1:3 However, it was not until[16] the first day of the eleventh month[17] of the fortieth year[18] that Moses addressed the Israelites just as[19] the LORD had instructed him to do. 1:4 This took place after the defeat[20] of King Sihon[21] of the Amorites, whose capital was[22] in Heshbon,[23] and King Og of Bashan, whose capital was[24] in Ashtaroth,[25] specifically in Edrei.[26] 1:5 So it was in the Transjordan, in Moab, that Moses began to deliver these words:[27]

Events at Horeb

1:6 The LORD our God spoke to us at Horeb and said, "You have stayed[28] in the area of this mountain long enough. 1:7 Get up now,[29] resume your journey, heading for[30] the Amorite hill country, to all its areas[31] including the arid country,[32] the highlands, the Shephelah,[33] the Negev,[34] and the coastal plain – all of Canaan and Lebanon as far as the Great River, that is, the Euphrates. 1:8 Look! I have already given the land to you.[35] Go, occupy the territory that I,[36] the LORD, promised[37] to give to your ancestors[38] Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and to their descendants."[39] 1:9 I also said to you at that time, "I am no longer able to sustain you by myself. 1:10 The LORD your God has increased your population[40] to the point that you are now as

---

1 tn Heb "These are the words."

2 tn Heb "to all Israel."

3 tn Heb "on the other side of the Jordan." This would appear to favor authorship by someone living on the west side of the Jordan, that is, in Canaan, whereas the biblical tradition locates Moses on the east side (cf. v. 5). However the Hebrew phrase בְּעֵבֶר הַיַּרְדֵּן (bᵉʿever hayyʳᵉden) is a frozen form meaning "Transjordan," a name appropriate from any geographical vantage point. To this day, one standing east of the Jordan can describe himself as being in Transjordan.

4 tn The Hebrew term מוֹל (mol) may also mean "in front of" or "near" (cf. NCV, TEV, CEV, NLT).

5 sn This place is otherwise unattested and its location is unknown. Perhaps it is Khirbet Sufah, 4 mi (6 km) SSE of Madaba, Jordan.

6 tn The Hebrew term בֵּין (ben) may suggest "in the area of."

7 sn Paran is the well-known desert area between Mount Sinai and Kadesh Barnea (cf. Num 10:12; 12:16).

8 sn Tophel refers possibly to eṭ-Ṭafileh, 15 mi (25 km) SE of the Dead Sea, or to Dâbîlu, another name for Paran. See H. Cazelles, "Tophel (Deut. 1:1)," VT 9 (1959): 412-15.

9 sn Laban. Perhaps this refers to Libnah (Num 33:20).

10 sn Hazeroth. This probably refers to ʿAin Khadra. See Y. Aharoni, The Land of the Bible, 199-200.

11 sn Di Zahab. Perhaps this refers to Mina al-Dhahab on the eastern Sinai coast.

12 sn An eleven-day journey was about 140 mi (233 km).

13 sn Horeb is another name for Sinai. "Horeb" occurs 9 times in the Book of Deuteronomy and "Sinai" only once (33:2). "Sinai" occurs 13 times in the Book of Exodus and "Horeb" only 3 times.

14 sn Kadesh Barnea. Possibly this refers to ʿAin Qudeis, about 50 mi (80 km) southwest of Beer Sheba, but more likely to ʿAin Qudeirat, 5 mi (8 km) NW of ʿAin Qudeis. See R. Cohen, "Did I Excavate Kadesh-Barnea?" BAR 7 (1981): 20-33.

15 sn Mount Seir is synonymous with Edom. "By way of Mount Seir" refers to the route from Horeb that ended up in Edom Cf. CEV "by way of the Mount Seir Road"; TEV "by way of the hill country of Edom."

16 tn Heb "in" or "on." Here there is a contrast between the ordinary time of eleven days (v. 2) and the actual time of forty years, so "not until" brings out that vast disparity.

17 sn The eleventh month is Shebat in the Hebrew calendar, January/February in the modern (Gregorian) calendar.

18 sn The fortieth year would be 1406 B.C. according to the "early" date of the exodus. See E. H. Merrill, Kingdom of Priests, 66-75.

19 tn Heb "according to all which."

20 tn Heb "when he struck [or "smote"]."

21 sn See Deut 2:26–3:22.

22 tn Heb "who lived."

23 sn Heshbon is probably modern Tell Hesban, about 7.5 mi (12 km) south southwest of Amman, Jordan.

24 tn Heb "who lived."

25 sn Ashtaroth is probably Tell ʿAshtarah, about 22 mi (35 km) due east of the Sea of Galilee.

26 sn Edrei is probably modern Derʿa, 60 mi (95 km) south of Damascus (see Num 21:33; Josh 12:4; 13:12, 31).

27 tn Heb "this instruction"; KJV, NIV, NRSV "this law"; TEV "God's laws and teachings." The Hebrew noun תּוֹרָה (torah) is derived from the verb יָרָה (yarah, "to teach") and here it refers to the Book of Deuteronomy, not the Pentateuch as a whole.

28 tn Heb "lived"; "dwelled."

29 tn Heb "turn"; NAB "Leave here"; NIV, TEV "Break camp."

30 tn Heb "go (to)."

31 tn Heb "its dwelling places."

32 tn Heb "the Arabah" (so ASV, NAB, NIV, NRSV).

33 tn Heb "lowlands" (so TEV) or "steppes"; NIV, CEV, NLT "the western foothills."

sn The Shephelah is the geographical region between the Mediterranean coastal plain and the Judean hill country.

34 sn The Hebrew term Negev means literally "desert" or "south" (so KJV, ASV). It refers to the area south of Beer Sheba and generally west of the Arabah Valley between the Dead Sea and the Gulf of Aqaba.

35 tn Heb "I have placed before you the land."

36 tn Heb "the LORD." Since the Lord is speaking, it is preferable for clarity to supply the first person pronoun in the translation.

37 tn Heb "swore" (so NAB, NIV, NRSV, NLT). This refers to God's promise, made by solemn oath, to give the patriarchs the land.

38 tn Heb "fathers" (also in vv. 11, 21, 35).

39 tn Heb "their seed after them."

40 tn Heb "multiplied you."

numerous as the very stars of the sky.[1] 1:11 Indeed, may the LORD, the God of your ancestors, make you a thousand times more numerous than you are now, blessing you[2] just as he said he would! 1:12 But how can I alone bear up under the burden of your hardship and strife? 1:13 Select wise and practical[3] men, those known among your tribes, whom I may appoint as your leaders." 1:14 You replied to me that what I had said to you was good. 1:15 So I chose[4] as your tribal leaders wise and well-known men, placing them over you as administrators of groups of thousands, hundreds, fifties, and tens, and also as other tribal officials. 1:16 I furthermore admonished your judges at that time that they[5] should pay attention to issues among your fellow citizens[6] and judge fairly,[7] whether between one citizen and another[8] or a citizen and a resident foreigner.[9] 1:17 They[10] must not discriminate in judgment, but hear the lowly[11] and the great alike. Nor should they be intimidated by human beings, for judgment belongs to God. If the matter being adjudicated is too difficult for them, they should bring it before me for a hearing.

Instructions at Kadesh Barnea

1:18 So I instructed you at that time regarding everything you should do. 1:19 Then we left Horeb and passed through all that immense, forbidding wilderness that you saw on the way to the Amorite hill country as the LORD our God had commanded us to do, finally arriving at Kadesh Barnea. 1:20 Then I said to you, "You have come to the Amorite hill country which the LORD our God is about to give[12] us. 1:21 Look, he[13] has placed the land in front of you![14] Go up, take possession of it, just as the LORD, the God of your ancestors, said to do. Do not be afraid or discouraged!" 1:22 So all of you approached me and said, "Let's send some men ahead of us to scout out the land and bring us back word as to how we should attack it and what the cities are like there." 1:23 I thought this was a good idea,[15] so I sent[16] twelve men from among you, one from each tribe. 1:24 They left and went up to the hill country, coming to the Eshcol Valley,[17] which they scouted out. 1:25 Then they took[18] some of the produce of the land and carried it back down to us. They also brought a report to us, saying, "The land that the LORD our God is about to give us is good."

Disobedience at Kadesh Barnea

1:26 You were not willing to go up, however, but instead rebelled against the LORD your God.[19] 1:27 You complained among yourselves privately[20] and said, "Because the LORD hates us he brought us from Egypt to deliver us over to the Amorites so they could destroy us! 1:28 What is going to happen to us? Our brothers have drained away our courage[21] by describing people who are more numerous[22] and taller than we are, and great cities whose defenses appear to be as high as heaven[23] itself! Moreover, they said they saw[24] Anakites[25] there." 1:29 So I re-

[1] tn Or "heavens." The Hebrew term שָׁמַיִם (shamayim) may be translated "heaven(s)" or "sky" depending on the context.

[2] tn Heb "may he bless you."

[3] tn The Hebrew verb נְבֹנִים (nevonim, from בִּין [bin]) is a Niphal referring to skill or intelligence (see T. Fretheim, NIDOTTE 1:652-53).

[4] tn Or "selected"; Heb "took."

[5] tn Or "you." A number of English versions treat the remainder of this verse and v. 17 as direct discourse rather than indirect discourse (cf. KJV, NAB, NIV, NRSV, NLT).

[6] tn Heb "brothers." The term "brothers" could, in English, be understood to refer to siblings, so "fellow citizens" has been used in the translation.

[7] tn The Hebrew word צֶדֶק (tsedeq, "fairly") carries the basic idea of conformity to a norm of expected behavior or character, one established by God himself. Fair judgment adheres strictly to that norm or standard (see D. Reimer, NIDOTTE 3:750).

[8] tn Heb "between a man and his brother."

[9] tn Heb "his stranger" or "his sojourner"; NAB, NIV "an alien"; NRSV "resident alien." The Hebrew word גֵּר (ger) commonly means "foreigner."

[10] tn Heb "you," and throughout the verse (cf. NASB, NRSV).

[11] tn Heb "the small," but referring to social status, not physical stature.

[12] tn The Hebrew participle has an imminent future sense here, although many English versions treat it as a present tense ("is giving us," NAB, NIV, NRSV) or a predictive future ("will give us," NCV).

[13] tn Heb "the LORD your God." The pronoun ("he") has been used in the translation for stylistic reasons, to avoid repetition.

[14] tn Or "has given you the land" (cf. NAB, NIV, NRSV).

[15] tn Heb "the thing was good in my eyes."

[16] tn Or "selected" (so NIV, NRSV, TEV); Heb "took."

[17] tn Or "the Wadi Eshcol" (so NAB).

sn The Eshcol Valley is a verdant valley near Hebron, still famous for its viticulture (cf. Num 13:22-23). The Hebrew name "Eshcol" means "trestle," that is, the frame on which grape vines grow.

[18] tn The Hebrew text includes "in their hand," which is unnecessary and somewhat redundant in English style.

[19] tn Heb "the mouth of the LORD your God." To include "the mouth" would make for odd English style. The mouth stands by metonymy for the Lord's command, which in turn represents the Lord himself.

[20] tn Heb "in your tents," that is, privately.

[21] tn Heb "have caused our hearts to melt."

[22] tn Heb "greater." Many English versions understand this to refer to physical size or strength rather than numbers (cf. "stronger," NAB, NIV, NRSV; "bigger," NASB).

[23] tn Or "as the sky." The Hebrew term שָׁמַיִם (shamayim) may be translated "heaven(s)" or "sky" depending on the context.

[24] tn Heb "we have seen."

sn Anakites were giant people (Num 13:33; Deut 2:10, 21; 9:2) descended from a certain Anak whose own forefather Arba founded the city of Kiriath Arba, i.e., Hebron (Josh 21:11).

sponded to you, "Do not be terrified[1] of them! 1:30 The LORD your God is about to go[2] ahead of you; he will fight for you, just as you saw him do in Egypt[3] 1:31 and in the desert, where you saw him[4] carrying you along like a man carries his son. This he did everywhere you went until you came to this very place." 1:32 However, through all this you did not have confidence in the LORD your God, 1:33 the one who was constantly going before you to find places for you to set up camp. He appeared by fire at night and cloud by day, to show you the way you ought to go.

Judgment at Kadesh Barnea

1:34 When the LORD heard you, he became angry and made this vow:[5] 1:35 "Not a single person[6] of this evil generation will see the good land that I promised to give to your ancestors! 1:36 The exception is Caleb son of Jephunneh;[7] he will see it and I will give him and his descendants the territory on which he has walked, because he has wholeheartedly followed me."[8] 1:37 As for me, the LORD was also angry with me on your account. He said, "You also will not be able to go there. 1:38 However, Joshua son of Nun, your assistant,[9] will go. Encourage him, because he will enable Israel to inherit the land.[10] 1:39 Also, your infants, who you thought would die on the way,[11] and your children, who as yet do not know good from bad,[12] will go there; I will give them the land and they will possess it. 1:40 But as for you,[13] turn back and head for the desert by the way to the Red Sea."[14]

Unsuccessful Conquest of Canaan

1:41 Then you responded to me and admitted, "We have sinned against the LORD. We will now go up and fight as the LORD our God has told us to do." So you each put on your battle gear and prepared to go up to the hill country. 1:42 But the LORD told me: "Tell them this: 'Do not go up and fight, because I will not be with you and you will be defeated by your enemies.'" 1:43 I spoke to you, but you did not listen. Instead you rebelled against the LORD[15] and recklessly went up to the hill country. 1:44 The Amorite inhabitants of that area[16] confronted[17] you and chased you like a swarm of bees, striking you down from Seir as far as Hormah.[18] 1:45 Then you came back and wept before the LORD, but he[19] paid no attention to you whatsoever.[20] 1:46 Therefore, you remained at Kadesh for a long time – indeed, for the full time.[21]

The Journey from Kadesh Barnea to Moab

2:1 Then we turned and set out toward the desert land on the way to the Red Sea[22] just as the LORD told me to do, detouring around Mount Seir for a long time. 2:2 At this point the LORD said to me, 2:3 "You have circled around this mountain long enough; now turn north. 2:4 Instruct[23] these people as follows: 'You are about to cross the border of your relatives[24] the descendants of Esau,[25] who inhabit Seir. They will

[1] tn Heb "do not tremble and do not be afraid." Two synonymous commands are combined for emphasis.

[2] tn The Hebrew participle indicates imminent future action here, though some English versions treat it as a predictive future ("will go ahead of you," NCV; cf. also TEV, CEV).

[3] tn Heb "according to all which he did for you in Egypt before your eyes."

[4] tn Heb "the LORD your God." The pronoun ("him") has been employed in the translation for stylistic reasons.

[5] tn Heb "and swore," i.e., made an oath or vow.

[6] tn Heb "Not a man among these men."

[7] sn Caleb had, with Joshua, brought back to Israel a minority report from Canaan urging a conquest of the land, for he was confident of the LORD's power (Num 13:6, 8, 16, 30; 14:30, 38).

[8] tn Heb "the LORD." The pronoun ("me") has been employed in the translation, since it sounds strange to an English reader for the Lord to speak about himself in third person.

[9] tn Heb "the one who stands before you"; NAB "your aide"; TEV "your helper."

[10] tn Heb "it"; the referent (the land) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[11] tn Heb "would be a prey."

[12] sn Do not know good from bad. This is a figure of speech called a merism (suggesting a whole by referring to its extreme opposites). Other examples are the tree of "the knowledge of good and evil" (Gen 2:9), the boy who knows enough "to reject the wrong and choose the right" (Isa 7:16; 8:4), and those who "cannot tell their right hand from their left" (Jonah 4:11). A young child is characterized by lack of knowledge.

[13] tn The Hebrew pronoun is plural, as are the following verbs, indicating that Moses and the people are addressed (note v. 41).

[14] tn Heb "the Reed Sea." "Reed" is a better translation of the Hebrew סוּף (suf), traditionally rendered "red." The name "Red Sea" is based on the LXX which referred to it as ἐρυθρᾶς θαλάσσης (eruthras thalassēs, "red sea"). Nevertheless, because the body of water in question is known in modern times as the Red Sea, this term was used in the translation. The part of the Red Sea in view here is not the one crossed in the exodus but its eastern arm, now known as the Gulf of Eilat or Gulf of Aqaba.

[15] tn Heb "the mouth of the LORD." See note at 1:26.

[16] tn Heb "in that hill country," repeating the end of v. 43.

[17] tn Heb "came out to meet."

[18] sn Hormah is probably Khirbet el-Meshash, 5.5 mi (9 km) west of Arad and 7.5 mi (12 km) SE of Beer Sheba. Its name is a derivative of the verb חָרַם (kharam, "to ban; to exterminate"). See Num 21:3.

[19] tn Heb "the LORD." The pronoun ("he") has been employed in the translation here for stylistic reasons, to avoid redundancy.

[20] tn Heb "did not hear your voice and did not turn an ear to you."

[21] tn Heb "like the days which you lived." This refers to the rest of the forty-year period in the desert before Israel arrived in Moab.

[22] tn Heb "Reed Sea." See note on the term "Red Sea" in Deut 1:40.

[23] tn Heb "command" (so KJV, NASB); NRSV "charge the people as follows."

[24] tn Heb "brothers"; NAB "your kinsmen."

be afraid of you, so watch yourselves carefully. 2:5 Do not be hostile toward them, because I am not giving you any of their land, not even a footprint, for I have given Mount Seir[1] as an inheritance for Esau. 2:6 You may purchase[2] food to eat and water to drink from them. 2:7 All along the way I, the LORD your God,[3] have blessed your every effort.[4] I have[5] been attentive to[6] your travels through this great wasteland. These forty years I have[7] been with you; you have lacked for nothing.'"

2:8 So we turned away from our relatives[8] the descendants of Esau, the inhabitants of Seir, turning from the desert route,[9] from Elat[10] and Ezion Geber,[11] and traveling the way of the Moab wastelands. 2:9 Then the LORD said to me, "Do not harass Moab and provoke them to war, for I will not give you any of their land as your territory. This is because I have given Ar[12] to the descendants of Lot[13] as their possession. 2:10 (The Emites[14] used to live there, a people as powerful, numerous, and tall as the Anakites. 2:11 These people, as well as the Anakites, are also considered Rephaites;[15] the Moabites call them Emites. 2:12 Previously the Horites[16] lived in Seir but the descendants of Esau dispossessed and destroyed them and settled in their place, just as Israel did to the land it came to possess, the land the LORD gave them.)[17] 2:13 Now, get up and cross the Wadi Zered."[18] So we did so.[19] 2:14 Now the length of time it took for us to go from Kadesh Barnea to the crossing of Wadi Zered was thirty-eight years, time for all the military men of that generation to die, just as the LORD had vowed to them. 2:15 Indeed, it was the very hand of the LORD that eliminated them from within[20] the camp until they were all gone.

Instructions Concerning Ammon

2:16 So it was that after all the military men had been eliminated from the community,[21] 2:17 the LORD said to me, 2:18 "Today you are going to cross the border of Moab, that is, of Ar.[22] 2:19 But when you come close to the Ammonites, do not harass or provoke them because I am not giving you any of the Ammonites' land as your possession; I have already given it to Lot's descendants[23] as their possession."

his bitter strife with Jacob (Gen 36:1-8). "Edom" means "reddish," probably because of the red sandstone of the region, but also by popular etymology because Esau, at birth, was reddish (Gen 25:25).

[1] sn Mount Seir is synonymous with Edom.

[2] tn Heb includes "with silver."

[3] tn The Hebrew text does not have the first person pronoun; it has been supplied for purposes of English style (the Lord is speaking here).

[4] tn Heb "all the work of your hands."

[5] tn Heb "he has." This has been converted to first person in the translation in keeping with English style.

[6] tn Heb "known" (so ASV, NASB); NAB "been concerned about."

[7] tn Heb "the LORD your God has." This has been replaced in the translation by the first person pronoun ("I") in keeping with English style.

[8] tn Or "brothers"; NRSV "our kin."

[9] tn Heb "the way of the Arabah" (so ASV); NASB, NIV "the Arabah road."

[10] sn Elat was a port city at the head of the eastern arm of the Red Sea, that is, the Gulf of Aqaba (or Gulf of Eilat). Solomon (1 Kgs 9:28), Uzziah (2 Kgs 14:22), and Ahaz (2 Kgs 16:5-6) used it as a port but eventually it became permanently part of Edom. It may be what is known today as Tell el-Kheleifeh. Modern Eilat is located further west along the northern coast. See G. Pratico, "Nelson Glueck's 1938-1940 Excavations at Tell el-Kheleifeh: A Reappraisal," BASOR 259 (1985): 1-32.

[11] sn Ezion Geber. A place near the Gulf of Aqaba, Ezion-geber must be distinguished from Elat (cf. 1 Kgs 9:26-28; 2 Chr 8:17-18). It was, however, also a port city (1 Kgs 22:48-49). It may be the same as the modern site Gezirat al-Fauran, 15 mi (24 km) south-southwest from Tell el-Kheleifah.

[12] sn Ar was a Moabite city on the Arnon River east of the Dead Sea. It is mentioned elsewhere in the "Book of the Wars of Yahweh" (Num 21:15; cf. 21:28; Isa 15:1). Here it is synonymous with the whole land of Moab.

[13] sn The descendants of Lot. Following the destruction of the cities of the plain, Sodom and Gomorrah, as God's judgment, Lot fathered two sons by his two daughters, namely, Moab and Ammon (Gen 19:30-38). Thus, these descendants of Lot in and around Ar were the Moabites.

[14] sn Emites. These giant people, like the Anakites (Deut 1:28), were also known as Rephaites (v. 11). They appear elsewhere in the narrative of the invasion of the kings of the east where they are said to have lived around Shaveh Kiriathaim, perhaps 9 to 11 mi (15 to 18 km) east of the north end of the Dead Sea (Gen 14:5).

[15] sn Rephaites. The earliest reference to this infamous giant race is, again, in the story of the invasion of the eastern kings (Gen 14:5). They lived around Ashteroth Karnaim, probably modern Tell Ashtarah (cf. Deut 1:4), in the Bashan plateau east of the Sea of Galilee. Og, king of Bashan, was a Rephaite (Deut 3:11; Josh 12:4; 13:12). Other texts speak of them or their kinfolk in both Transjordan (Deut 2:20; 3:13) and Canaan (Josh 11:21-22; 14:12, 15; 15:13-14; Judg 1:20; 1 Sam 17:4; 1 Chr 20:4-8). They also appear in extra-biblical literature, especially in connection with the city state of Ugarit. See C. L'Heureux, "Ugaritic and Biblical Rephaim," HTR 67 (1974): 265-74.

[16] sn Horites. Most likely these are the same as the well-known people of ancient Near Eastern texts described as Hurrians. They were geographically widespread and probably non-Semitic. Genesis speaks of them as the indigenous peoples of Edom that Esau expelled (Gen 36:8-19, 31-43) and also as among those who confronted the kings of the east (Gen 14:6).

[17] tn Most modern English versions, beginning with the ASV (1901), regard vv. 10-12 as parenthetical to the narrative.

[18] sn Wadi Zered. Now known as Wadi el-Ḥesa, this valley marked the boundary between Moab to the north and Edom to the south.

[19] tn Heb "we crossed the Wadi Zered." This has been translated as "we did so" for stylistic reasons, to avoid redundancy.

[20] tn Heb "from the middle of." Although many recent English versions leave this expression untranslated, the point seems to be that these soldiers did not die in battle but "within the camp."

[21] tn Heb "and it was when they were eliminated, all the men of war, to die from the midst of the people."

[22] sn Ar. See note on this word in Deut 2:9.

[23] sn Lot's descendants. See note on this phrase in Deut 2:9.

2:20 (That also is considered to be a land of the Rephaites.[1] The Rephaites lived there originally; the Ammonites call them Zamzummites.[2] 2:21 They are a people as powerful, numerous, and tall as the Anakites. But the LORD destroyed the Rephaites[3] in advance of the Ammonites,[4] so they dispossessed them and settled down in their place. 2:22 This is exactly what he did for the descendants of Esau who lived in Seir when he destroyed the Horites before them so that they could dispossess them and settle in their area to this very day. 2:23 As for the Avvites[5] who lived in settlements as far west as Gaza, Caphtorites[6] who came from Crete[7] destroyed them and settled down in their place.)

2:24 "Get up, make your way across Wadi Arnon. Look! I have already delivered over to you Sihon the Amorite, king of Heshbon,[8] and his land. Go ahead! Take it! Engage him in war! 2:25 This very day I will begin to fill all the people of the earth[9] with dread and to terrify them when they hear about you. They will shiver and shake in anticipation of your approach."[10]

Defeat of Sihon, King of Heshbon

2:26 Then I sent messengers from the Kedemoth[11] Desert to King Sihon of Heshbon with an offer of peace: 2:27 "Let me pass through your land; I will keep strictly to the roadway.[12] I will not turn aside to the right or the left. 2:28 Sell me food for cash[13] so that I can eat and sell me water to drink.[14] Just allow me to go through on foot, 2:29 just as the descendants of Esau who live at Seir and the Moabites who live in Ar did for me, until I cross the Jordan to the land the LORD our God is giving us." 2:30 But King Sihon of Heshbon was unwilling to allow us to pass near him because the LORD our[15] God had made him obstinate[16] and stubborn[17] so that he might deliver him over to you[18] this very day. 2:31 The LORD said to me, "Look! I have already begun to give over Sihon and his land to you. Start right now to take his land as your possession." 2:32 When Sihon and all his troops[19] emerged to encounter us in battle at Jahaz,[20] 2:33 the LORD our God delivered him over to us and we struck him down, along with his sons[21] and everyone else.[22] 2:34 At that time we seized all his cities and put every one of them[23] under divine judgment,[24] including even the women and children; we left no survivors. 2:35 We kept only the livestock and plunder from the cities for ourselves. 2:36 From Aroer,[25] which is at the edge of Wadi Arnon (it is the city in the wadi),[26] all the way to Gilead there was not a town able to resist us – the LORD our God gave them all to us. 2:37 However, you did not approach the land of the Ammonites, the Wadi Jabbok,[27] the cities of the hill country, or any place else forbidden by the LORD our God.

1 sn Rephaites. See note on this word in Deut 2:11.

2 sn Zamzummites. Just as the Moabites called Rephaites by the name Emites, the Ammonites called them Zamzummites (or Zazites; Gen 14:5).

3 tn Heb "them"; the referent (the Rephaites) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

4 tn Heb "them"; the referent (the Ammonites) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

5 sn Avvites. Otherwise unknown, these people were probably also Anakite (or Rephaite) giants who lived in the lower Mediterranean coastal plain until they were expelled by the Caphtorites.

6 sn Caphtorites. These peoples are familiar from both the OT (Gen 10:14; 1 Chr 1:12; Jer 47:4; Amos 9:7) and ancient Near Eastern texts (Miriam Lichtheim, Ancient Egyptian Literature, 2:37-38; ANET 138). They originated in Crete (OT "Caphtor") and are identified as the ancestors of the Philistines (Gen 10:14; Jer 47:4).

7 tn Heb "Caphtor"; the modern name of the island of Crete is used in the translation for clarity (cf. NCV, TEV, NLT).

8 sn Heshbon is the name of a prominent site (now Tell Hesbān, about 7.5 mi [12 km] south southwest of Amman, Jordan). Sihon made it his capital after having driven Moab from the area and forced them south to the Arnon (Num 21:26-30). Heshbon is also mentioned in Deut 1:4.

9 tn Heb "under heaven" (so NIV, NRSV).

10 tn Heb "from before you."

11 sn Kedemoth. This is probably Aleiyan, about 8 mi (13 km) north of the Arnon and between Dibon and Mattanah.

12 tn Heb "in the way in the way" (בַּדֶּרֶךְ בַּדֶּרֶךְ, baderekh baderekh). The repetition lays great stress on the idea of resolute determination to stick to the path. IBHS 116 §7.2.3c.

13 tn Heb "silver."

14 tn Heb "and water for silver give to me so that I may drink."

15 tc The translation follows the LXX in reading the first person pronoun. The MT, followed by many English versions, has a second person masculine singular pronoun, "your."

16 tn Heb "hardened his spirit" (so KJV, NASB, NRSV); NIV "made his spirit stubborn."

17 tn Heb "made his heart obstinate" (so KJV, NASB); NRSV "made his heart defiant."

18 tn Heb "into your hand."

19 tn Heb "people."

20 sn Jahaz. This is probably Khirbet el-Medeiyineh. See J. Dearman, "The Levitical Cities of Reuben and Moabite Toponymy," BASOR 276 (1984): 55-57.

21 tc The translation follows the Qere or marginal reading; the Kethib (consonantal text) has the singular, "his son."

22 tn Heb "all his people."

23 tn Heb "every city of men." This apparently identifies the cities as inhabited.

24 tn Heb "under the ban" (נַחֲרֵם, nakharem). The verb employed is חָרַם (kharam, usually in the Hiphil) and the associated noun is חֵרֶם (kherem). See J. Naudé, NIDOTTE, 2:276-77, and, for a more thorough discussion, Susan Niditch, War in the Hebrew Bible, 28-77.

sn Divine judgment refers to God's designation of certain persons, places, and things as objects of his special wrath and judgment because, in his omniscience, he knows them to be impure and hopelessly unrepentant.

25 sn Aroer. Now known as ʿAraʾir on the northern edge of the Arnon river, Aroer marked the southern limit of Moab and, later, of the allotment of the tribe of Reuben (Josh 13:9, 16).

26 tn Heb "the city in the wadi." This enigmatic reference may refer to Ar or, more likely, to Aroer itself. Epexegetically the text might read, "From Aroer..., that is, the city in the wadi." See D. L. Christensen, Deuteronomy 1–11 (WBC), 49.

27 sn Wadi Jabbok. Now known as the Zerqa River, this is a major tributary of the Jordan that normally served as a boundary between Ammon and Gad (Deut 3:16).

Defeat of King Og of Bashan

3:1 Next we set out on[1] the route to Bashan,[2] but King Og of Bashan and his whole army[3] came out to meet us in battle at Edrei.[4] 3:2 The LORD, however, said to me, "Don't be afraid of him because I have already given him, his whole army,[5] and his land to you. You will do to him exactly what you did to King Sihon of the Amorites who lived in Heshbon." 3:3 So the LORD our God did indeed give over to us King Og of Bashan and his whole army and we struck them down until not a single survivor was left.[6] 3:4 We captured all his cities at that time – there was not a town we did not take from them – sixty cities, all the region of Argob,[7] the dominion of Og in Bashan. 3:5 All of these cities were fortified by high walls, gates, and locking bars;[8] in addition there were a great many open villages.[9] 3:6 We put all of these under divine judgment[10] just as we had done to King Sihon of Heshbon – every occupied city,[11] including women and children. 3:7 But all the livestock and plunder from the cities we kept for ourselves. 3:8 So at that time we took the land of the two Amorite kings in the Transjordan from Wadi Arnon to Mount Hermon[12] 3:9 (the Sidonians[13] call Hermon Sirion[14] and the Amorites call it Senir),[15] 3:10 all the cities of the plateau, all of Gilead and Bashan as far as Salecah[16] and Edrei,[17] cities of the kingdom of Og in Bashan. 3:11 Only King Og of Bashan was left of the remaining Rephaites. (It is noteworthy[18] that his sarcophagus[19] was made of iron.[20] Does it not, indeed, still remain in Rabbath[21] of the Ammonites? It is thirteen and a half feet[22] long and six feet[23] wide according to standard measure.)[24]

Distribution of the Transjordanian Allotments

3:12 This is the land we brought under our control at that time: The territory extending from Aroer[25] by the Wadi Arnon and half the Gilead hill country with its cities I gave to the Reubenites and Gadites.[26] 3:13 The rest of Gilead and all of Bashan, the kingdom of Og, I gave to half the tribe of Manasseh.[27] (All the region of Argob,[28] that is, all Bashan, is called the land of Rephaim. 3:14 Jair, son of Manasseh, took all the Argob region as far as the border with the Geshurites[29] and Maacathites[30] (namely Bashan)

---

[1] tn Heb "turned and went up."

[2] sn Bashan. This plateau country, famous for its oaks (Isa 2:13) and cattle (Deut 32:14; Amos 4:1), was north of Gilead along the Yarmuk River.

[3] tn Heb "people."

[4] sn Edrei is probably modern Der'a, 60 mi (95 km) south of Damascus (see Num 21:33; Josh 12:4; 13:12, 31; also mentioned in Deut 1:4).

[5] tn Heb "people."

[6] tn Heb "was left to him." The final phrase "to him" is redundant in English and has been left untranslated.

[7] sn Argob. This is a subdistrict of Bashan, perhaps north of the Yarmuk River. See Y. Aharoni, Land of the Bible, 314.

[8] tn Or "high walls and barred gates" (NLT); Heb "high walls, gates, and bars." Since "bars" could be understood to mean "saloons," the qualifying adjective "locking" has been supplied in the translation.

[9] tn The Hebrew term פְּרָזִי (p'razi) refers to rural areas, at the most "unwalled villages" (KJV, NASB "unwalled towns").

[10] tn Heb "we put them under the ban" (נַחֲרִם, nakharem). See note at 2:34.

sn The divine curse. See note on this phrase in Deut 2:34.

[11] tn Heb "city of men."

[12] sn Mount Hermon. This is the famous peak at the southern end of the Anti-Lebanon mountain range known today as Jebel es-Sheik.

[13] sn Sidonians were Phoenician inhabitants of the city of Sidon (now in Lebanon), about 47 mi (75 km) north of Mount Carmel.

[14] sn Sirion. This name is attested in the Ugaritic texts as sryn. See UT 495.

[15] sn Senir. Probably this was actually one of the peaks of Hermon and not the main mountain (Song of Songs 4:8; 1 Chr 5:23). It is mentioned in a royal inscription of Shalmaneser III of Assyria (saniru; see ANET 280).

[16] sn Salecah. Today this is known as Salkhad, in Jordan, about 31 mi (50 km) east of the Jordan River in the Hauran Desert.

[17] sn Edrei. See note on this term in 3:1.

[18] tn Heb "Behold" (הִנֵּה, hinneh).

[19] tn The Hebrew term עֶרֶשׂ ('eres), traditionally translated "bed" (cf. NAB, NIV, NRSV, NLT) is likely a basaltic (volcanic) stone sarcophagus of suitable size to contain the coffin of the giant Rephaite king. Its iron-like color and texture caused it to be described as an iron container. See A. Millard, "King Og's Iron Bed: Fact or Fancy?" BR 6 (1990): 16-21, 44; cf. also NEB "his sarcophagus of basalt"; TEV, CEV "his coffin."

[20] tn Or "of iron-colored basalt." See note on the word "sarcophagus" earlier in this verse.

[21] sn Rabbath. This place name (usually occurring as Rabbah; 2 Sam 11:11; 12:27; Jer 49:3) refers to the ancient capital of the Ammonite kingdom, now the modern city of Amman, Jordan. The word means "great [one]," probably because of its political importance. The fact that the sarcophagus "still remain[ed]" there suggests this part of the verse is post-Mosaic, having been added as a matter of explanation for the existence of the artifact and also to verify the claim as to its size.

[22] tn Heb "nine cubits." Assuming a length of 18 in (45 cm) for the standard cubit, this would be 13.5 ft (4.1 m) long.

[23] tn Heb "four cubits." This would be 6 ft (1.8 m) wide.

[24] tn Heb "by the cubit of man." This probably refers to the "short" or "regular" cubit of approximately 18 in (45 cm).

[25] tn The words "the territory extending" are not in the Hebrew text; they are supplied in the translation for stylistic reasons.

sn Aroer. See note on this term in Deut 2:36.

[26] sn Reubenites and Gadites. By the time of Moses' address the tribes of Reuben, Gad, and Manasseh had already been granted permission to settle in the Transjordan, provided they helped the other tribes subdue the occupants of Canaan (cf. Num 32:28-42).

[27] sn Half the tribe of Manasseh. The tribe of Manasseh split into clans, with half opting to settle in Bashan and the other half in Canaan (cf. Num 32:39-42; Josh 17:1-13).

[28] sn Argob. See note on this term in v. 4.

[29] sn Geshurites. Geshur was a city and its surrounding area somewhere northeast of Bashan (cf. Josh 12:5 ; 13:11, 13). One of David's wives was Maacah, the daughter of Talmai king of Geshur and mother of Absalom (cf. 2 Sam 13:37; 15:8; 1 Chr 3:2).

[30] sn Maacathites. These were the people of a territory southwest of Mount Hermon on the Jordan River. The name probably has nothing to do with David's wife from Geshur (see note on "Geshurites" earlier in this verse).

and called it by his name, Havvoth Jair,[1] which it retains to this very day.) 3:15 I gave Gilead to Machir.[2] 3:16 To the Reubenites and Gadites I allocated the territory extending from Gilead as far as Wadi Arnon (the exact middle of the wadi was a boundary) all the way to the Wadi Jabbok, the Ammonite border. 3:17 The Arabah and the Jordan River[3] were also a border, from the sea of Kinnereth[4] to the sea of the Arabah (that is, the Salt Sea),[5] beneath the watershed[6] of Pisgah[7] to the east.

Instructions to the Transjordanian Tribes

3:18 At that time I instructed you as follows: "The LORD your God has given you this land for your possession. You warriors are to cross over before your fellow Israelites[8] equipped for battle. 3:19 But your wives, children, and livestock (of which I know you have many) may remain in the cities I have given you. 3:20 You must fight[9] until the LORD gives your countrymen victory[10] as he did you and they take possession of the land that the LORD your God is giving them on the other side of the Jordan River. Then each of you may return to his own territory that I have given you." 3:21 I also commanded Joshua at the same time, "You have seen everything the LORD your God did to these two kings; he[11] will do the same to all the kingdoms where you are going.[12] 3:22 Do not be afraid of them, for the LORD your God will personally fight for you."

Denial to Moses of the Promised Land

3:23 Moreover, at that time I pleaded with the LORD, 3:24 "O, Lord GOD,[13] you have begun to show me[14] your greatness and strength.[15] (What god in heaven or earth can rival your works and mighty deeds?) 3:25 Let me please cross over to see the good land on the other side of the Jordan River – this good hill country and the Lebanon!"[16] 3:26 But the LORD was angry at me because of you and would not listen to me. Instead, he[17] said to me, "Enough of that![18] Do not speak to me anymore about this matter. 3:27 Go up to the top of Pisgah and take a good look to the west, north, south, and east,[19] for you will not be allowed to cross the Jordan. 3:28 Commission[20] Joshua, and encourage and strengthen him, because he will lead these people over and will enable them to inherit the land you will see." 3:29 So we settled down in the valley opposite Beth Peor.[21]

The Privileges of the Covenant

4:1 Now, Israel, pay attention to the statutes and ordinances[22] I am about to teach you, so that you might live and go on to enter and take possession of the land that the LORD, the God of your ancestors,[23] is giving you. 4:2 Do not add a thing to what I command you nor subtract from it, so that you may keep the commandments of the LORD your God that I am delivering to[24] you. 4:3 You have witnessed what the LORD did at Baal Peor,[25] how he[26] eradicated from your

---

1 sn Havvoth Jair. The Hebrew name means "villages of Jair," the latter being named after a son (i.e., descendant) of Manasseh who took the area by conquest.

2 sn Machir was the name of another descendant of Manasseh (cf. Num 32:41; 1 Chr 7:14-19). Eastern Manasseh was thus divided between the Jairites and the Machirites.

3 tn The word "River" is not in the Hebrew text, but has been supplied in the translation for clarity (also in vv. 20, 25).

4 tn Heb "from Kinnereth." The words "the sea of" have been supplied in the translation as a clarification.

sn Kinnereth. This is another name for the Sea of Galilee, so called because its shape is that of a harp (the Hebrew term for "harp" is כִּנּוֹר, kinnor).

5 sn The Salt Sea is another name for the Dead Sea (cf. Gen 14:3; Josh 3:16).

6 tn The meaning of the Hebrew term אַשְׁדֹת ('ashdot) is unclear. It is usually translated either "slopes" (ASV, NAB, NIV) or "watershed" (NEB).

7 sn Pisgah. This appears to refer to a small range of mountains, the most prominent peak of which is Mount Nebo (Num 21:20; 23:14; Deut 3:27; cf. 34:1).

8 tn Heb "your brothers, the sons of Israel."

9 tn The words "you must fight" are not present in the Hebrew text, but are supplied in the translation for clarity.

10 tn Heb "gives your brothers rest."

11 tn Heb "the LORD." The translation uses the pronoun ("he") for stylistic reasons, to avoid redundancy.

12 tn Heb "which you are crossing over there."

13 tn Heb "Lord LORD." The phrase אֲדֹנָי יְהוִה ('adonay yehvih) is customarily rendered by Jewish tradition as "Lord GOD." Cf. NIV, TEV, NLT "Sovereign Lord."

14 tn Heb "your servant." The pronoun is used in the translation to clarify that Moses is speaking of himself, since in contemporary English one does not usually refer to oneself in third person.

15 tn Heb "your strong hand" (so NIV), a symbol of God's activity.

16 tn The article is retained in the translation ("the Lebanon," cf. also NAB, NRSV) to indicate that a region (rather than the modern country of Lebanon) is referred to here. Other recent English versions accomplish this by supplying "mountains" after "Lebanon" (TEV, CEV, NLT).

17 tn Heb "the LORD." For stylistic reasons the pronoun ("he") has been used in the translation here.

18 tn Heb "much to you" (an idiom).

19 tn Heb "lift your eyes to the west, north, south, and east and see with your eyes." The translation omits the repetition of "your eyes" for stylistic reasons.

20 tn Heb "command"; KJV, NASB, NRSV "charge Joshua."

21 sn Beth Peor. This is probably the spot near Pisgah where Balaam attempted to curse the nation Israel (Num 23:28). The Moabites also worshiped Baal there by the name "Baal [of] Peor" (Num 25:1-5).

22 tn These technical Hebrew terms (חֻקִּים [khuqqim] and מִשְׁפָּטִים [mishpatim]) occur repeatedly throughout the Book of Deuteronomy to describe the covenant stipulations to which Israel had been called to subscribe (see, in this chapter alone, vv. 1, 5, 6, 8). The word חֻקִּים derives from the verb חקק (khoq, "to inscribe; to carve") and מִשְׁפָּטִים (mishpatim) from שָׁפַט (shafat, "to judge"). They are virtually synonymous and are used interchangeably in Deuteronomy.

23 tn Heb "fathers" (also in vv. 31, 37).

24 tn Heb "commanding."

25 tc The LXX and Syriac read "to Baal Peor," that is, the god worshiped at that place; see note on the name "Beth Peor" in Deut 3:29.

26 tn Heb "the LORD your God." The pronoun has been used in the translation for stylistic reasons to avoid redundancy.

midst everyone who followed Baal Peor.[1] 4:4 But you who remained faithful to the LORD your God are still alive to this very day, every one of you. 4:5 Look! I have taught you statutes and ordinances just as the LORD my God told me to do, so that you might carry them out in[2] the land you are about to enter and possess. 4:6 So be sure to do them, because this will testify of your wise understanding[3] to the people who will learn of all these statutes and say, "Indeed, this great nation is a very wise[4] people." 4:7 In fact, what other great nation has a god so near to them like the LORD our God whenever we call on him? 4:8 And what other great nation has statutes and ordinances as just[5] as this whole law[6] that I am about to share with[7] you today?

Reminder of the Horeb Covenant

4:9 Again, however, pay very careful attention,[8] lest you forget the things you have seen and disregard them for the rest of your life; instead teach them to your children and grandchildren. 4:10 You[9] stood before the LORD your God at Horeb and he[10] said to me, "Assemble the people before me so that I can tell them my commands.[11] Then they will learn to revere me all the days they live in the land, and they will instruct their children." 4:11 You approached and stood at the foot of the mountain, a mountain ablaze to the sky above it[12] and yet dark with a thick cloud.[13] 4:12 Then the LORD spoke to you from the middle of the fire; you heard speech but you could not see anything – only a voice was heard.[14] 4:13 And he revealed to you the covenant[15] he has commanded you to keep, the ten commandments,[16] writing them on two stone tablets. 4:14 Moreover, at that same time the LORD commanded me to teach you statutes and ordinances for you to keep in the land which you are about to enter and possess.[17]

The Nature of Israel's God

4:15 Be very careful,[18] then, because you saw no form at the time the LORD spoke to you at Horeb from the middle of the fire. 4:16 I say this[19] so you will not corrupt yourselves by making an image in the form of any kind of figure. This includes the likeness of a human male or female, 4:17 any kind of land animal, any bird that flies in the sky, 4:18 anything that crawls[20] on the ground, or any fish in the deep waters of the earth.[21] 4:19 When you look up[22] to the sky[23] and see the sun, moon, and stars – the whole heavenly creation[24] – you must not be seduced to worship and serve them,[25] for the LORD your God has assigned[26] them to all the people[27] of the world.[28] 4:20 You, however, the LORD has selected and brought from Egypt, that

[1] tn Or "followed the Baal of Peor" (so NAB, NIV, NRSV), referring to the pagan god Baal.

[2] tn Heb "in the midst of" (so ASV).

[3] tn Heb "it is wisdom and understanding."

[4] tn Heb "wise and understanding."

[5] tn Or "pure"; or "fair"; Heb "righteous."

[6] tn The Hebrew phrase הַתּוֹרָה הַזֹּאת (hattorah hazzo't), in this context, refers specifically to the Book of Deuteronomy. That is, it is the collection of all the חֻקִּים (khuqqim, "statutes," 4:1) and מִשְׁפָּטִים (mishpatim, "ordinances," 4:1) to be included in the covenant text. In a full canonical sense, of course, it pertains to the entire Pentateuch or Torah.

[7] tn Heb "place before."

[8] tn Heb "watch yourself and watch your soul carefully."

[9] tn The text begins with "(the) day (in) which." In the Hebrew text v. 10 is subordinate to v. 11, but for stylistic reasons the translation treats v. 10 as an independent clause, necessitating the omission of the subordinating temporal phrase at the beginning of the verse.

[10] tn Heb "the LORD." See note on "he" in 4:3.

[11] tn Heb "my words." See v. 13; in Hebrew the "ten commandments" are the "ten words."

[12] tn Heb "a mountain burning with fire as far as the heart of the heavens." The Hebrew term שָׁמַיִם (shamayim) may be translated "heaven(s)" or "sky" depending on the context.

[13] tn Heb "darkness, cloud, and heavy cloud."

[14] tn The words "was heard" are supplied in the translation to avoid the impression that the voice was seen.

[15] sn This is the first occurrence of the word בְּרִית (b^{e}rit, "covenant") in the Book of Deuteronomy but it appears commonly hereafter (4:23, 31; 5:2, 3; 7:9, 12; 8:18; 9:9, 10, 11, 15; 10:2, 4, 5, 8; 17:2; 29:1, 9, 12, 14, 15, 18, 21, 25; 31:9, 16, 20, 25, 26; 33:9). Etymologically, it derives from the notion of linking or yoking together. See M. Weinfeld, TDOT 2:255.

[16] tn Heb "the ten words."

[17] tn Heb "to which you are crossing over to possess it."

[18] tn Heb "give great care to your souls."

[19] tn The words "I say this" are supplied in the translation for stylistic reasons. In the Hebrew text v. 16 is subordinated to "Be careful" in v. 15, but this makes for an unduly long sentence in English.

[20] tn Heb "creeping thing."

[21] tn Heb "under the earth."

[22] tn Heb "lest you lift up your eyes." In the Hebrew text vv. 16-19 are subordinated to "Be careful" in v. 15, but this makes for an unduly long sentence in English.

[23] tn Or "heavens." The Hebrew term שָׁמַיִם (shamayim) may be translated "heaven(s)" or "sky" depending on the context.

[24] tn Heb "all the host of heaven."

[25] tn In the Hebrew text the verbal sequence in v. 19 is "lest you look up...and see...and be seduced...and worship them...and serve them." However, the first two actions are not prohibited in and of themselves. The prohibition pertains to the final three actions. The first two verbs describe actions that are logically subordinate to the following actions and can be treated as temporal or circumstantial: "lest, looking up...and seeing..., you are seduced." See Joüon 2:635 §168.h.

[26] tn Or "allotted."

[27] tn Or "nations."

[28] tn Heb "under all the heaven."

sn The OT views the heavenly host as God's council, which surrounds his royal throne ready to do his bidding (see 1 Kgs 22:19). God has given this group, sometimes called the "sons of God" (cf. Job 1:6; 38:7; Ps 89:6), jurisdiction over the nations. See Deut 32:8 (LXX). Some also see this assembly as the addressee in Ps 82. While God delegated his council to rule over the nations, he established a theocratic government over Israel and ruled directly over his chosen people via the Mosaic covenant. See v. 20, as well as Deut 32:9.

iron-smelting furnace,[1] to be his special people[2] as you are today. 4:21 But the LORD became angry with me because of you and vowed that I would never cross the Jordan nor enter the good land that he[3] is about to give you.[4] 4:22 So I must die here in this land; I will not cross the Jordan. But you are going over and will possess that[5] good land. 4:23 Be on guard so that you do not forget the covenant of the LORD your God that he has made with you, and that you do not make an image of any kind, just as he[6] has forbidden[7] you. 4:24 For the LORD your God is a consuming fire; he is a jealous God.[8]

Threat and Blessing following Covenant Disobedience

4:25 After you have produced children and grandchildren and have been in the land a long time,[9] if you become corrupt and make an image of any kind[10] and do other evil things before the LORD your God that enrage him,[11] 4:26 I invoke heaven and earth as witnesses against you[12] today that you will surely and swiftly be removed[13] from the very land you are about to cross the Jordan to possess. You will not last long there because you will surely be[14] annihilated. 4:27 Then the LORD will scatter you among the peoples and there will be very few of you[15] among the nations where the LORD will drive you. 4:28 There you will worship gods made by human hands – wood and stone that can neither see, hear, eat, nor smell. 4:29 But if you seek the LORD your God from there, you will find him, if, indeed, you seek him with all your heart and soul.[16] 4:30 In your distress when all these things happen to you in the latter days,[17] if you return to the LORD your God and obey him[18] 4:31 (for he[19] is a merciful God), he will not let you down[20] or destroy you, for he cannot[21] forget the covenant with your ancestors that he confirmed by oath to them.

The Uniqueness of Israel's God

4:32 Indeed, ask about the distant past, starting from the day God created humankind[22] on the earth, and ask[23] from one end of heaven to the other, whether there has ever been such a great thing as this, or even a rumor of it. 4:33 Have a people ever heard the voice of God speaking from the middle of fire, as you yourselves have, and lived to tell about it? 4:34 Or has God[24] ever before tried to deliver[25] a nation from the middle of another nation,

1 tn A כּוּר (kur) was not a source of heat but a crucible ("iron-smelting furnace") in which precious metals were melted down and their impurities burned away (see I. Cornelius, NIDOTTE 2:618-19); cf. NAB "that iron foundry, Egypt." The term is a metaphor for intense heat. Here it refers to the oppression and suffering Israel endured in Egypt. Since a crucible was used to burn away impurities, it is possible that the metaphor views Egypt as a place of refinement to bring Israel to a place of submission to divine sovereignty.

2 tn Heb "to be his people of inheritance." The Lord compares his people to valued property inherited from one's ancestors and passed on to one's descendants.

3 tn Heb "the LORD your God." See note on "he" in 4:3.

4 tn The Hebrew text includes "(as) an inheritance," or "(as) a possession."

5 tn Heb "this." The translation uses "that" to avoid confusion; earlier in the verse Moses refers to Transjordan as "this land."

6 tn Heb "the LORD your God." See note on "he" in 4:3.

7 tn Heb "commanded."

8 tn The juxtaposition of the Hebrew terms אֵשׁ ('esh, "fire") and קַנָּא (qanna', "jealous") is interesting in light of Deut 6:15 where the LORD is seen as a jealous God whose anger bursts into a destructive fire. For God to be "jealous" means that his holiness and uniqueness cannot tolerate pretended or imaginary rivals. It is not petty envy but response to an act of insubordination that must be severely judged (see H. Peels, NIDOTTE 3:937-40).

9 tn Heb "have grown old in the land," i.e., been there for a long time.

10 tn Heb "a form of anything." Cf. NAB, NASB, NRSV, TEV "an idol."

11 tn The infinitive construct is understood here as indicating the result, not the intention, of their actions.

12 sn I invoke heaven and earth as witnesses against you. This stock formula introduces what is known form-critically as a רִיב (riv) or controversy pattern. It is commonly used in the ancient Near Eastern world in legal contexts and in the OT as a forensic or judicial device to draw attention to Israel's violation of the LORD's covenant with them (see Deut 30:19; Isa 1:2; 3:13; Jer 2:9). Since court proceedings required the testimony of witnesses, the LORD here summons heaven and earth (that is, all creation) to testify to his faithfulness, Israel's disobedience, and the threat of judgment.

13 tn Or "be destroyed"; KJV "utterly perish"; NLT "will quickly disappear"; CEV "you won't have long to live."

14 tn Or "be completely" (so NCV, TEV). It is not certain here if the infinitive absolute indicates the certainty of the following action (cf. NIV) or its degree.

15 tn Heb "you will be left men (i.e., few) of number."

16 tn Or "mind and being." See Deut 6:5.

17 sn The phrase is not used here in a technical sense for the eschaton, but rather refers to a future time when Israel will be punished for its sin and experience exile. See Deut 31:29.

18 tn Heb "hear his voice." The expression is an idiom meaning "obey," occurring in Deut 8:20; 9:23; 13:18; 21:18, 20; 26:14, 17; 27:10; 28:1-2, 15, 45, 62; 30:2, 8, 10, 20.

19 tn Heb "the LORD your God." See note on "he" in 4:3.

20 tn Heb "he will not drop you," i.e., "will not abandon you" (cf. NAB, NIV, NRSV, NLT).

21 tn Or "will not." The translation understands the imperfect verbal form to have an added nuance of capability here.

22 tn The Hebrew term אָדָם ('adam) may refer either to Adam or, more likely, to "man" in the sense of the human race ("mankind," "humankind"). The idea here seems more universal in scope than reference to Adam alone would suggest.

23 tn The verb is not present in the Hebrew text but has been supplied in the translation for clarification. The challenge has both temporal and geographical dimensions. The people are challenged to (1) inquire about the entire scope of past history and (2) conduct their investigation on a worldwide scale.

24 tn The translation assumes the reference is to Israel's God in which case the point is this: God's intervention in Israel's experience is unique in the sense that he has never intervened in such power for any other people on earth. The focus is on the uniqueness of Israel's experience. Some understand the divine name here in a generic sense, "a god," or "any god." In this case God's incomparability is the focus (cf. v. 35, where this theme is expressed).

25 tn Heb "tried to go to take for himself."

accompanied by judgments,[1] signs, wonders, war, strength, power,[2] and other very terrifying things like the LORD your God did for you in Egypt before your very eyes? 4:35 You have been taught that the LORD alone is God – there is no other besides him. 4:36 From heaven he spoke to you in order to teach you, and on earth he showed you his great fire from which you also heard his words.[3] 4:37 Moreover, because he loved[4] your ancestors, he chose their[5] descendants who followed them and personally brought you out of Egypt with his great power 4:38 to dispossess nations greater and stronger than you and brought you here this day to give you their land as your property.[6] 4:39 Today realize and carefully consider that the LORD is God in heaven above and on earth below – there is no other! 4:40 Keep his statutes and commandments that I am setting forth[7] today so that it may go well with you and your descendants and that you may enjoy longevity in the land that the LORD your God is about to give you as a permanent possession.

The Narrative Concerning Cities of Refuge

4:41 Then Moses selected three cities in the Transjordan, toward the east. 4:42 Anyone who accidentally killed someone[8] without hating him at the time of the accident[9] could flee to one of those cities and be safe. 4:43 These cities are Bezer, in the desert plateau, for the Reubenites; Ramoth in Gilead for the Gadites; and Golan in Bashan for the Manassehites.

The Setting and Introduction of the Covenant

4:44 This is the law that Moses set before the Israelites.[10] 4:45 These are the stipulations, statutes, and ordinances that Moses spoke to the Israelites after he had brought them out of Egypt, 4:46 in the Transjordan, in the valley opposite Beth Peor, in the land of King Sihon of the Amorites, who lived in Heshbon. (It is he whom Moses and the Israelites attacked after they came out of Egypt. 4:47 They possessed his land and that of King Og of Bashan – both of whom were Amorite kings in the Transjordan, to the east. 4:48 Their territory extended[11] from Aroer at the edge of the Arnon valley as far as Mount Siyon[12] – that is, Hermon – 4:49 including all the Arabah of the Transjordan in the east to the sea of the Arabah,[13] beneath the watershed[14] of Pisgah.)

The Opening Exhortation

5:1 Then Moses called all the people of Israel together and said to them:[15] "Listen, Israel, to the statutes and ordinances that I am about to deliver to you today; learn them and be careful to keep them! 5:2 The LORD our God made a covenant with us at Horeb. 5:3 He[16] did not make this covenant with our ancestors[17] but with us, we who are here today, all of us living now. 5:4 The LORD spoke face to face with you at the mountain, from the middle of the fire. 5:5 (I was standing between the LORD and you at that time to reveal to you the message[18] of the LORD, because you were afraid of the fire and would not go up the mountain.) He said:

The Ten Commandments

5:6 "I am the LORD your God, he who brought you from the land of Egypt, from the place of slavery. 5:7 You must not have any other gods[19] besides me.[20] 5:8 You must not

[1] tn Heb "by testings." The reference here is the judgments upon Pharaoh in the form of plagues. See Deut 7:19 (cf. v. 18) and 29:3 (cf. v. 2).

[2] tn Heb "by strong hand and by outstretched arm."

[3] tn Heb "and his words you heard from the midst of the fire."

[4] tn The concept of love here is not primarily that of emotional affection but of commitment or devotion. This verse suggests that God chose Israel to be his special people because he loved the patriarchs (Abraham, Isaac, Jacob) and had promised to bless their descendants. See as well Deut 7:7-9.

[5] tc The LXX, Smr, Syriac, Targum, and Vulgate read a third person masculine plural suffix for the MT's 3rd person masculine singular, "his descendants." Cf. Deut 10:15. Quite likely the MT should be emended in this instance.

[6] tn Heb "(as) an inheritance," that is, landed property that one can pass on to one's descendants.

[7] tn Heb "commanding" (so NRSV).

[8] tn Heb "the slayer who slew his neighbor without knowledge."

[9] tn Heb "yesterday and a third (day)." The point is that there was no animosity between the two parties at the time of the accident and therefore no motive for the killing.

[10] tn Heb "the sons of Israel" (likewise in the following verse).

[11] tn The words "their territory extended" are supplied in the translation for stylistic reasons. In the Hebrew text vv. 47-49 are all one sentence, but for the sake of English style and readability the translation divides the text into two sentences.

[12] sn Mount Siyon (the Hebrew name is שִׂיאֹן [si'on], not to be confused with Zion [צִיּוֹן, tsiyyon]) is another name for Mount Hermon, also called Sirion and Senir (cf. Deut 3:9).

[13] sn The sea of the Arabah refers to the Dead Sea, also known as the Salt Sea in OT times (cf. Deut 3:17).

[14] tn The meaning of the Hebrew term אַשְׁדֹּת ('ashdot) is unclear. It is usually translated either "slopes" (ASV, NAB, NIV, NRSV, NLT) or "watershed" (NEB).

[15] tn Heb "and Moses called to all Israel and he said to them"; NAB, NASB, NIV "Moses summoned (convened NRSV) all Israel."

[16] tn Heb "the LORD." The pronoun has been used in the translation for stylistic reasons to avoid redundancy.

[17] tn Heb "fathers."

[18] tn Or "word" (so KJV, NASB, NIV); NRSV "words."

[19] tn Heb "there must not be for you other gods." The expression "for you" indicates possession.

[20] tn Heb "upon my face," or "before me" (עַל־פָּנָי, 'al-panaya). Some understand this in a locative sense: "in my sight." The translation assumes that the phrase indicates exclusion. The idea is that of placing any other god before the LORD in the sense of taking his place. Contrary to the view of some, this does not leave the door open for a henotheistic system where the Lord is the primary god among others. In its literary context the statement must be taken in a monotheistic sense. See, e.g., 4:39; 6:13-15.

make for yourself an image[1] of anything in heaven above, on earth below, or in the waters beneath.[2] 5:9 You must not worship or serve them, for I, the LORD your God, am a jealous God. I punish[3] the sons, grandsons, and great-grandsons for the sin of the fathers who reject[4] me,[5] 5:10 but I show covenant faithfulness[6] to the thousands[7] who choose[8] me and keep my commandments. 5:11 You must not make use of the name of the LORD your God for worthless purposes,[9] for the LORD will not exonerate anyone who abuses his name that way.[10] 5:12 Be careful to observe[11] the Sabbath day just as the LORD your God has commanded you. 5:13 You are to work and do all your tasks in six days, 5:14 but the seventh day is the Sabbath[12] of the LORD your God. On that day you must not do any work, you, your son, your daughter, your male slave, your female slave, your ox, your donkey, any other animal, or the foreigner who lives with you,[13] so that your male and female slaves, like yourself, may have rest. 5:15 Recall that you were slaves in the land of Egypt and that the LORD your God brought you out of there by strength and power.[14] That is why the LORD your God has commanded you to observe[15] the Sabbath day. 5:16 Honor[16] your father and your mother just as the LORD your God has commanded you to do, so that your days may be extended and that it may go well with you in the land that he[17] is about to give you. 5:17 You must not murder.[18] 5:18 You must not commit adultery. 5:19 You must not steal. 5:20 You must not offer false testimony against another.[19] 5:21 You must not desire[20] another man's[21] wife, nor should you crave his[22] house, his field, his male and female servants, his ox, his donkey, or anything else he owns."[23]

The Narrative of the Sinai Revelation and Israel's Response

5:22 The LORD said these things to your entire assembly at the mountain from the middle of the fire, the cloud, and the darkness with a loud

---

1 tn Heb "an image, any likeness."

2 tn Heb "under the earth" (so ASV, NASB, NRSV); NCV "below the land."

3 tn In the Hebrew text the form is a participle, which is subordinated to what precedes. For the sake of English style, the translation divides this lengthy verse into two sentences.

4 tn Heb "who hate" (so NAB, NIV, NLT). Just as "to love" (אָהַב, 'ahav) means in a covenant context "to choose, obey," so "to hate" (שָׂנֵא, sane') means "to reject, disobey" (cf. the note on the word "loved" in Deut 4:37; see also 5:10).

5 tn Heb "visiting the sin of fathers upon sons and upon a third (generation) and upon a fourth (generation) of those who hate me." God sometimes punishes children for the sins of a father (cf. Num 16:27, 32; Josh 7:24-25; 2 Sam 21:1-9). On the principle of corporate solidarity and responsibility in OT thought see J. Kaminsky, Corporate Responsibility in the Hebrew Bible (JSOTSup). In the idiom of the text, the father is the first generation and the "sons" the second generation, making grandsons the third and great-grandsons the fourth. The reference to a third and fourth generation is a way of emphasizing that the sinner's punishment would last throughout his lifetime. In this culture, where men married and fathered children at a relatively young age, it would not be unusual for one to see his great-grandsons. In an Aramaic tomb inscription from Nerab dating to the seventh century B.C., Agbar observes that he was surrounded by "children of the fourth generation" as he lay on his death bed (see ANET 661). The language of the text differs from Exod 34:7, the sons are the first generation, the grandsons (literally, "sons of the sons") the second, great-grandsons the third, and great-great-grandsons the fourth. One could argue that formulation in Deut 5:9 (see also Exod 20:5) is elliptical/abbreviated or that it suffers from textual corruption (the repetition of the words "sons" would invite accidental omission).

6 tn This theologically rich term (חֶסֶד, khesed) describes God's loyalty to those who keep covenant with him. Sometimes it is used synonymously with בְּרִית (b^{e}rit, "covenant"; Deut 7:9), and sometimes interchangeably with it (Deut 7:12). See H.-J. Zobel, TDOT 5:44-64.

7 tc By a slight emendation (לְאַלֻּפִים [la'allufim] for לָאֲלָפִים [la'alafim]) "clans" could be read in place of the MT reading "thousands." However, no MS or versional evidence exists to support this emendation.

tn Another option is to understand this as referring to "thousands (of generations) of those who love me" (cf. NAB, NIV, NRSV, NLT). See Deut 7:9.

8 tn Heb "love." See note on the word "reject" in v. 9.

9 tn Heb "take up the name of the LORD your God to emptiness"; KJV "take the name of the LORD thy God in vain." The idea here is not cursing or profanity in the modern sense of these terms but rather the use of the divine Name for unholy, mundane purposes, that is, for meaningless (the Hebrew term is שָׁוְא) and empty ends. In ancient Israel this would include using the Lord's name as a witness in vows one did not intend to keep.

10 tn Heb "who takes up his name to emptiness."

11 tn Heb "to make holy," that is, to put to special use, in this case, to sacred purposes (cf. vv. 13-15).

12 tn There is some degree of paronomasia (wordplay) here: "the seventh (הַשְּׁבִיעִי, hash^{e}vi'i) day is the Sabbath (שַׁבָּת, shabbat)." Otherwise, the words have nothing in common, since "Sabbath" is derived from the verb שָׁבַת (shavat, "to cease").

13 tn Heb "in your gates"; NRSV, CEV "in your towns"; TEV "in your country."

14 tn Heb "by a strong hand and an outstretched arm," the hand and arm symbolizing divine activity and strength. Cf. NLT "with amazing power and mighty deeds."

15 tn Or "keep" (so KJV, NRSV).

16 tn The imperative here means, literally, "regard as heavy" (כַּבֵּד, kabbed). The meaning is that great importance must be ascribed to parents by their children.

17 tn Heb "the LORD your God." See note on "He" in 5:3.

18 tn Traditionally "kill" (so KJV, ASV, RSV, NAB). The verb here (רָצַח, ratsakh) is generic for homicide but in the OT both killing in war and capital punishment were permitted and even commanded (Deut 13:5, 9; 20:13, 16-17), so the technical meaning here is "murder."

19 tn Heb "your neighbor." Clearly this is intended generically, however, and not to be limited only to those persons who live nearby (frequently the way "neighbor" is understood in contemporary contexts). So also in v. 20.

20 tn The Hebrew verb used here (חָמַד, khamad) is different from the one translated "crave" (אָוָה, 'avah) in the next line. The former has sexual overtones ("lust" or the like; cf. Song of Sol 2:3) whereas the latter has more the idea of a desire or craving for material things.

21 tn Heb "your neighbor's." See note on the term "fellow man" in v. 19.

22 tn Heb "your neighbor's." The pronoun is used in the translation for stylistic reasons.

23 tn Heb "or anything that is your neighbor's."

voice, and that was all he said.[1] Then he inscribed the words[2] on two stone tablets and gave them to me. 5:23 Then, when you heard the voice from the midst of the darkness while the mountain was ablaze, all your tribal leaders and elders approached me. 5:24 You said, "The LORD our God has shown us his great glory[3] and we have heard him speak from the middle of the fire. It is now clear to us[4] that God can speak to human beings and they can keep on living. 5:25 But now, why should we die, because this intense fire will consume us! If we keep hearing the voice of the LORD our God we will die! 5:26 Who is there from the entire human race[5] who has heard the voice of the living God speaking from the middle of the fire as we have, and has lived? 5:27 You go near so that you can hear everything the LORD our God is saying and then you can tell us whatever he[6] says to you; then we will pay attention and do it." 5:28 When the LORD heard you speaking to me, he[7] said to me, "I have heard what these people have said to you – they have spoken well. 5:29 If only it would really be their desire to fear me and obey[8] all my commandments in the future, so that it may go well with them and their descendants forever. 5:30 Go and tell them, 'Return to your tents!' 5:31 But as for you, remain here with me so I can declare to you all the commandments,[9] statutes, and ordinances that you are to teach them, so that they can carry them out in the land I am about to give them."[10] 5:32 Be careful, therefore, to do exactly what the LORD your God has commanded you; do not turn right or left! 5:33 Walk just as he[11] has commanded you so that you may live, that it may go well with you, and that you may live long[12] in the land you are going to possess.

Exhortation to Keep the Covenant Principles

6:1 Now these are the commandments,[13] statutes, and ordinances that the LORD your God instructed me to teach you so that you may carry them out in the land where you are headed[14] 6:2 and that you may so revere the LORD your God that you will keep all his statutes and commandments[15] that I am giving[16] you – you, your children, and your grandchildren – all your lives, to prolong your days. 6:3 Pay attention, Israel, and be careful to do this so that it may go well with you and that you may increase greatly in number[17] – as the LORD, God of your ancestors,[18] said to you, you will have a land flowing with milk and honey.

[1] tn Heb "and he added no more" (so KJV, NASB, NRSV); NLT "This was all he said at that time."

[2] tn Heb "them"; the referent (the words spoken by the LORD) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[3] tn Heb "his glory and his greatness."

[4] tn Heb "this day we have seen."

[5] tn Heb "who is there of all flesh."

[6] tn Heb "the LORD our God." See note on "He" in 5:3.

[7] tn Heb "the LORD." See note on "He" in 5:3.

[8] tn Heb "keep" (so KJV, NAB, NIV, NRSV).

[9] tn Heb "commandment." The MT actually has the singular (הַמִּצְוָה, hammitsvah), suggesting perhaps that the following terms (הַחֻקִּים [khuqqim] and מִשְׁפָּטִים [mishpatim]) are in epexegetical apposition to "commandment." That is, the phrase could be translated "the entire command, namely, the statutes and ordinances." This would essentially make מִצְוָה (mitsvah) synonymous with תּוֹרָה (torah), the usual term for the whole collection of law.

[10] tn Heb "to possess it" (so KJV, ASV); NLT "as their inheritance."

[11] tn Heb "the LORD your God." The pronoun has been used in the translation for stylistic reasons to avoid redundancy.

[12] tn Heb "may prolong your days"; NAB "may have long life"; TEV "will continue to live."

[13] tn Heb "commandment." The word מִצְוָה (mitsvah) again is in the singular, serving as a comprehensive term for the whole stipulation section of the book. See note on the word "commandments" in 5:31.

[14] tn Heb "where you are going over to possess it" (so NASB); NRSV "that you are about to cross into and occupy."

[15] tn Here the terms are not the usual חֻקִּים (khuqqim) and מִשְׁפָּטִים (mishpatim; as in v. 1) but חֻקֹּת (khuqqot, "statutes") and מִצְוֹת (mitsot, "commandments"). It is clear that these terms are used interchangeably and that their technical precision ought not be overly stressed.

[16] tn Heb "commanding." For stylistic reasons, to avoid redundancy, "giving" has been used in the translation.

[17] tn Heb "may multiply greatly" (so NASB, NRSV); the words "in number" have been supplied in the translation for clarity.

[18] tn Heb "fathers" (also in vv. 10, 18, 23).

The Essence of the Covenant Principles

6:4 Listen, Israel: The LORD is our God, the LORD is one![1] 6:5 You must love[2] the LORD your God with your whole mind,[3] your whole being,[4] and all your strength.[5]

Exhortation to Teach the Covenant Principles

6:6 These words I am commanding you today must be kept in mind, 6:7 and you must teach[6] them to your children and speak of them as you sit in your house, as you walk along the road,[7] as you lie down, and as you get up. 6:8 You should tie them as a reminder on your forearm[8] and fasten them as symbols[9] on your forehead. 6:9 Inscribe them on the doorframes of your houses and gates.[10]

Exhortation to Worship the LORD Exclusively

6:10 Then when the LORD your God brings you to the land he promised your ancestors Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob to give you – a land with large, fine cities you did not build, 6:11 houses filled with choice things you did not accumulate, hewn out cisterns you did not dig, and vineyards and olive groves you did not plant – and you eat your fill, 6:12 be careful not to forget the LORD who brought you out of Egypt, that place of slavery.[11] 6:13 You must revere the LORD your God, serve him, and take oaths using only his name. 6:14 You must not go after other gods, those[12] of the surrounding peoples, 6:15 for the LORD your God, who is present among you, is a jealous God and his anger will erupt against you and remove you from the land.[13]

Exhortation to Obey the LORD Exclusively

6:16 You must not put the LORD your God to the test as you did at Massah.[14] 6:17 Keep his[15] commandments very carefully,[16] as well as the stipulations and statutes he commanded you to observe. 6:18 Do whatever is proper[17] and good before the LORD so that it may go well with you and that you may enter and occupy the good land that he[18] promised your ancestors, 6:19 and that you may drive out all your enemies just as the LORD said.

[1] tn Heb "the LORD, our God, the LORD, one." (1) One option is to translate: "The LORD is our God, the LORD alone" (cf. NAB, NRSV, NLT). This would be an affirmation that the Lord was the sole object of their devotion. This interpretation finds support from the appeals to loyalty that follow (vv. 5, 14). (2) Another option is to translate: "The LORD is our God, the LORD is unique." In this case the text would be affirming the people's allegiance to the Lord, as well as the Lord's superiority to all other gods. It would also imply that he is the only one worthy of their worship. Support for this view comes from parallel texts such as Deut 7:9 and 10:17, as well as the use of "one" in Song 6:8-9, where the starstruck lover declares that his beloved is unique (literally, "one," that is, "one of a kind") when compared to all other women.

sn Verses 4-5 constitute the so-called Shema (after the first word שְׁמַע, sh^{e}ma', "hear"), widely regarded as the very heart of Jewish confession and faith. When Jesus was asked what was the greatest commandment of all, he quoted this text (Matt 22:37-38).

[2] tn The verb אָהַב ('ahav, "to love") in this setting communicates not so much an emotional idea as one of covenant commitment. To love the LORD is to be absolutely loyal and obedient to him in every respect, a truth Jesus himself taught (cf. John 14:15). See also the note on the word "loved" in Deut 4:37.

[3] tn Heb "heart." In OT physiology the heart (לֵב, לֵבָב; levav, lev) was considered the seat of the mind or intellect, so that one could think with one's heart. See A. Luc, NIDOTTE 2:749-54.

[4] tn Heb "soul"; "being." Contrary to Hellenistic ideas of a soul that is discrete and separate from the body and spirit, OT anthropology equated the "soul" (נֶפֶשׁ, nefesh) with the person himself. It is therefore best in most cases to translate נֶפֶשׁ (nefesh) as "being" or the like. See H. W. Wolff, Anthropology of the Old Testament, 10-25; D. Fredericks, NIDOTTE 3:133-34.

[5] sn For NT variations on the Shema see Matt 22:37-39; Mark 12:29-30; Luke 10:27.

[6] tn Heb "repeat" (so NLT). If from the root I שָׁנַן (shanan), the verb means essentially to "engrave," that is, "to teach incisively" (Piel); note NAB "Drill them into your children." Cf. BDB 1041-42 s.v.

[7] tn Or "as you are away on a journey" (cf. NRSV, TEV, NLT); NAB "at home and abroad."

[8] sn Tie them as a sign on your forearm. Later Jewish tradition referred to the little leather containers tied to the forearms and foreheads as tefillin. They were to contain the following passages from the Torah: Exod 13:1-10, 11-16; Deut 6:5-9; 11:13-21. The purpose was to serve as a "sign" of covenant relationship and obedience.

[9] sn Fasten them as symbols on your forehead. These were also known later as tefillin (see previous note) or phylacteries (from the Greek term). These box-like containers, like those on the forearms, held the same scraps of the Torah. It was the hypocritical practice of wearing these without heartfelt sincerity that caused Jesus to speak scathingly about them (cf. Matt 23:5).

[10] sn The Hebrew term מְזוּזוֹת (m^{e}zuzot) refers both to the door frames and to small cases attached on them containing scripture texts (always Deut 6:4-9 and 11:13-21; and sometimes the decalogue; Exod 13:1-10, 11-16; and Num 10:35-36). See J. H. Tigay, Deuteronomy (JPSTC), 443-44.

[11] tn Heb "out of the house of slavery" (so NASB, NRSV).

[12] tn Heb "from the gods." The demonstrative pronoun has been used in the translation for stylistic reasons to avoid redundancy.

[13] tn Heb "lest the anger of the LORD your God be kindled against you and destroy you from upon the surface of the ground." Cf. KJV, ASV "from off the face of the earth."

[14] sn The place name Massah (מַסָּה, massah) derives from a root (נָסָה, nasah) meaning "to test; to try." The reference here is to the experience in the Sinai desert when Moses struck the rock to obtain water (Exod 17:1-2). The complaining Israelites had, thus, "tested" the LORD, a wickedness that gave rise to the naming of the place (Exod 17:7; cf. Deut 9:22; 33:8).

[15] tn Heb "the commandments of the LORD your God." The pronoun has been used in the translation for stylistic reasons to avoid redundancy.

[16] tn The Hebrew text uses the infinitive absolute before the finite verb to emphasize the statement. The imperfect verbal form is used here with an obligatory nuance that can be captured in English through the imperative. Cf. NASB, NRSV "diligently keep (obey NLT)."

[17] tn Heb "upright."

[18] tn Heb "the LORD." See note on the word "his" in v. 17.

Exhortation to Remember the Past

6:20 When your children[1] ask you later on, "What are the stipulations, statutes, and ordinances that the LORD our God commanded you?" 6:21 you must say to them,[2] "We were Pharaoh's slaves in Egypt, but the LORD brought us out of Egypt in a powerful way.[3] 6:22 And he[4] brought signs and great, devastating wonders on Egypt, on Pharaoh, and on his whole family[5] before our very eyes. 6:23 He delivered us from there so that he could give us the land he had promised our ancestors. 6:24 The LORD commanded us to obey all these statutes and to revere him[6] so that it may always go well for us and he may preserve us, as he has to this day. 6:25 We will be innocent if we carefully keep all these commandments[7] before the LORD our God, just as he demands."[8]

The Dispossession of Nonvassals

7:1 When the LORD your God brings you to the land that you are going to occupy and forces out many nations before you – Hittites,[9] Girgashites,[10] Amorites,[11] Canaanites,[12] Perizzites,[13] Hivites,[14] and Jebusites,[15] seven[16] nations more numerous and powerful than you – 7:2 and he[17] delivers them over to you and you attack them, you must utterly annihilate[18] them. Make no treaty[19] with them and show them no mercy! 7:3 You must not intermarry with them. Do not give your daughters to their sons or take their daughters for your sons, 7:4 for they will turn your sons away from me to worship other gods. Then the anger of the LORD will erupt against you and he will quickly destroy you. 7:5 Instead, this is what you must do to them: You must tear down their altars, shatter their sacred pillars,[20] cut down their sacred Asherah poles,[21] and burn up their idols. 7:6 For you are a people holy[22] to the LORD your God. He[23] has chosen you to be his people, prized[24] above all others on the face of the earth.

The Basis of Israel's Election

7:7 It is not because you were more numerous than all the other peoples that the LORD favored and chose you – for in fact you were the least numerous of all peoples. 7:8 Rather it is because of his[25] love[26] for you and his faithfulness to the promise[27] he solemnly vowed[28] to

[1] tn Heb "your son."

[2] tn Heb "to your son."

[3] tn Heb "by a strong hand." The image is that of a warrior who, with weapon in hand, overcomes his enemies. The LORD is commonly depicted as a divine warrior in the Book of Deuteronomy (cf. 5:15; 7:8; 9:26; 26:8).

[4] tn Heb "the LORD." See note on the word "his" in v. 17.

[5] tn Heb "house," referring to the entire household.

[6] tn Heb "the LORD our God." See note on the word "his" in v. 17.

[7] tn The term "commandment" (מִצְוָה, mitsvah), here in the singular, refers to the entire body of covenant stipulations.

[8] tn Heb "as he has commanded us" (so NIV, NRSV).

[9] sn Hittites. The center of Hittite power was in Anatolia (central modern Turkey). In the Late Bronze Age (1550-1200 B.C.) they were at their zenith, establishing outposts and colonies near and far. Some elements were obviously in Canaan at the time of the Conquest (1400-1350 B.C.).

[10] sn Girgashites. These cannot be ethnically identified and are unknown outside the OT. They usually appear in such lists only when the intention is to have seven groups in all (see also the note on the word "seven" later in this verse).

[11] sn Amorites. Originally from the upper Euphrates region (Amurru), the Amorites appear to have migrated into Canaan beginning in 2200 B.C. or thereabouts.

[12] sn Canaanites. These were the indigenous peoples of the land, going back to the beginning of recorded history (ca. 3000 B.C.). The OT identifies them as descendants of Ham (Gen 10:6), the only Hamites to have settled north and east of Egypt.

[13] sn Perizzites. This is probably a subgroup of Canaanites (Gen 13:7; 34:30).

[14] sn Hivites. These are usually thought to be the same as the Hurrians, a people well-known in ancient Near Eastern texts. They are likely identical to the Horites (see note on the term "Horites" in Deut 2:12).

[15] sn Jebusites. These inhabited the hill country, particularly in and about Jerusalem (cf. Num 13:29; Josh 15:8; 2 Sam 5:6; 24:16).

[16] sn Seven. This is an ideal number in the OT, one symbolizing fullness or completeness. Therefore, the intent of the text here is not to be precise and list all of Israel's enemies but simply to state that Israel will have a full complement of foes to deal with. For other lists of Canaanites, some with fewer than seven peoples, see Exod 3:8; 13:5; 23:23, 28; 33:2; 34:11; Deut 20:17; Josh 3:10; 9:1; 24:11. Moreover, the "Table of Nations" (Gen 10:15-19) suggests that all of these (possibly excepting the Perizzites) were offspring of Canaan and therefore Canaanites.

[17] tn Heb "the LORD your God." The pronoun has been used in the translation for stylistic reasons to avoid redundancy.

[18] tn In the Hebrew text the infinitive absolute before the finite verb emphasizes the statement. The imperfect has an obligatory nuance here. Cf. ASV "shalt (must NRSV) utterly destroy them"; CEV "must destroy them without mercy."

[19] tn Heb "covenant" (so NASB, NRSV); TEV "alliance."

[20] sn Sacred pillars. The Hebrew word (מַצֵּבֹת, matsevot) denotes a standing pillar, usually made of stone. Its purpose was to mark the presence of a shrine or altar thought to have been visited by deity. Though sometimes associated with pure worship of the LORD (Gen 28:18, 22; 31:13; 35:14; Exod 24:4), these pillars were usually associated with pagan cults and rituals (Exod 23:24; 34:13; Deut 12:3; 1 Kgs 14:23; 2 Kgs 17:10; Hos 3:4; 10:1; Jer 43:13).

[21] sn Sacred Asherah poles. A leading deity of the Canaanite pantheon was Asherah, wife/sister of El and goddess of fertility. She was commonly worshiped at shrines in or near groves of evergreen trees, or, failing that, at places marked by wooden poles (Hebrew אֲשֵׁרִים ['asherim], as here). They were to be burned or cut down (Deut 12:3; 16:21; Judg 6:25, 28, 30; 2 Kgs 18:4).

[22] tn That is, "set apart."

[23] tn Heb "the LORD your God." The pronoun has been used in the translation for stylistic reasons to avoid redundancy.

[24] tn Or "treasured" (so NIV, NRSV); NLT "his own special treasure." The Hebrew term סְגֻלָּה (s^{e}gullah) describes Israel as God's choice people, those whom he elected and who are most precious to him (cf. Exod 19:4-6; Deut 14:2; 26:18; 1 Chr 29:3; Ps 135:4; Eccl 2:8 Mal 3:17). See E. Carpenter, NIDOTTE 3:224.

[25] tn Heb "the LORD's." See note on "He" in 7:6.

[26] tn For the verb אָהַב ('ahav, "to love") as a term of choice or election, see note on the word "loved" in Deut 4:37.

[27] tn Heb "oath." This is a reference to the promises of the so-called "Abrahamic Covenant" (cf. Gen 15:13-16).

[28] tn Heb "swore on oath."

your ancestors[1] that the LORD brought you out with great power,[2] redeeming[3] you from the place of slavery, from the power[4] of Pharaoh king of Egypt. 7:9 So realize that the LORD your God is the true God,[5] the faithful God who keeps covenant faithfully[6] with those who love him and keep his commandments, to a thousand generations, 7:10 but who pays back those who hate[7] him as they deserve and destroys them. He will not ignore[8] those who hate him but will repay them as they deserve! 7:11 So keep the commandments, statutes, and ordinances that I today am commanding you to do.

Promises of Good for Covenant Obedience

7:12 If you obey these ordinances and are careful to do them, the LORD your God will faithfully keep covenant with you[9] as he promised[10] your ancestors. 7:13 He will love and bless you, and make you numerous. He will bless you with many children,[11] with the produce of your soil, your grain, your new wine, your oil, the offspring of your oxen, and the young of your flocks in the land which he promised your ancestors to give you. 7:14 You will be blessed beyond all peoples; there will be no barrenness[12] among you or your livestock. 7:15 The LORD will protect you from all sickness, and you will not experience any of the terrible diseases that you knew in Egypt; instead he will inflict them on all those who hate you.

Exhortation to Destroy Canaanite Paganism

7:16 You must destroy[13] all the people whom the LORD your God is about to deliver over to you; you must not pity them or worship[14] their gods, for that will be a snare to you. 7:17 If you think, "These nations are more numerous than I – how can I dispossess them?" 7:18 you must not fear them. You must carefully recall[15] what the LORD your God did to Pharaoh and all Egypt, 7:19 the great judgments[16] you saw, the signs and wonders, the strength and power[17] by which he[18] brought you out – thus the LORD your God will do to all the people you fear. 7:20 Furthermore, the LORD your God will release hornets[19] among them until the very last ones who hide from you[20] perish. 7:21 You must not tremble in their presence, for the LORD your God, who is present among you, is a great and awesome God. 7:22 He,[21] the God who leads you, will expel the nations little by little. You will not be allowed to destroy them all at once lest the wild animals overrun you. 7:23 The LORD your God will give them over to you; he will throw them into a great panic[22] until they are destroyed. 7:24 He will hand over their kings to you and you will erase their very names from memory.[23] Nobody will be able to resist you until you destroy them.

---

1 tn Heb "fathers" (also in vv. 12, 13).

2 tn Heb "by a strong hand" (NAB similar); NLT "with such amazing power."

3 sn Redeeming you from the place of slavery. The Hebrew verb translated "redeeming" (from the root פָּדָה, padah) has the idea of redemption by the payment of a ransom. The initial symbol of this was the Passover lamb, offered by Israel to the LORD as ransom in exchange for deliverance from bondage and death (Exod 12:1-14). Later, the firstborn sons of Israel, represented by the Levites, became the ransom (Num 3:11-13). These were all types of the redemption effected by the death of Christ who described his atoning work as "a ransom for many" (Matt 20:28; cf. 1 Pet 1:18).

4 tn Heb "hand" (so KJV, NRSV), a metaphor for power or domination.

5 tn Heb "the God." The article here expresses uniqueness; cf. TEV "is the only God"; NLT "is indeed God."

6 tn Heb "who keeps covenant and loyalty." The syndetic construction of בְּרִית (bᵉrit) and חֶסֶד (khesed) should be understood not as "covenant" plus "loyalty" but as an adverbial construction in which חֶסֶד ("loyalty") modifies the verb שָׁמַר (shamar, "keeps").

7 tn For the term "hate" as synonymous with rejection or disobedience see note on the word "reject" in Deut 5:9 (cf. NRSV "reject").

8 tn Heb "he will not hesitate concerning."

9 tn Heb "will keep with you the covenant and loyalty." On the construction used here, see v. 9.

10 tn Heb "which he swore on oath." The relative pronoun modifies "covenant," so one could translate "will keep faithfully the covenant (or promise) he made on oath to your ancestors."

11 tn Heb "will bless the fruit of your womb" (so NAB, NIV, NRSV).

12 sn One of the ironies about the promises to the patriarchs concerning offspring was the characteristic barrenness of the wives of the men to whom these pledges were made (cf. Gen 11:30; 25:21; 29:31). Their affliction is in each case described by the very Hebrew word used here (עֲקָרָה, ʿaqarah), an affliction that will no longer prevail in Canaan.

13 tn Heb "devour" (so NRSV); KJV, NAB, NASB "consume." The verbal form (a perfect with vav consecutive) is understood here as having an imperatival or obligatory nuance (cf. the instructions and commands that follow). Another option is to take the statement as a continuation of the preceding conditional promises and translate "and you will destroy."

14 tn Or "serve" (so KJV, NIV, NRSV).

15 tn Heb "recalling, you must recall." The Hebrew text uses the infinitive absolute before the finite verb for emphasis. Cf. KJV, ASV "shalt well remember."

16 tn Heb "testings" (so NAB), a reference to the plagues. See note at 4:34.

17 tn Heb "the strong hand and outstretched arm." See 4:34.

18 tn Heb "the LORD your God." The pronoun has been used in the translation for stylistic reasons to avoid redundancy.

19 tn The meaning of the term translated "hornets" (צִרְעָה, tsirʿah) is debated. Various suggestions are "discouragement" (HALOT 1056-57 s.v.; cf. NEB, TEV, CEV "panic"; NCV "terror") and "leprosy" (J. H. Tigay, Deuteronomy [JPSTC], 360, n. 33; cf. NRSV "the pestilence"), as well as "hornet" (BDB 864 s.v.; cf. NAB, NASB, NIV, NLT). The latter seems most suitable to the verb שָׁלַח (shalakh, "send"; cf. Exod 23:28; Josh 24:12).

20 tn Heb "the remnant and those who hide themselves."

21 tn Heb "the LORD your God." See note on "he" in 7:19.

22 tn Heb "he will confuse them (with) great confusion." The verb used here means "shake, stir up" (see Ruth 1:19; 1 Sam 4:5; 1 Kgs 1:45; Ps 55:2); the accompanying cognate noun refers to confusion, unrest, havoc, or panic (1 Sam 5:9, 11; 14:20; 2 Chr 15:5; Prov 15:16; Isa 22:5; Ezek 7:7; 22:5; Amos 3:9; Zech 14:13).

23 tn Heb "you will destroy their name from under heaven" (cf. KJV); NRSV "blot out their name from under heaven."

7:25 You must burn the images of their gods, but do not covet the silver and gold that covers them so much that you take it for yourself and thus become ensnared by it; for it is abhorrent[1] to the LORD your God. 7:26 You must not bring any abhorrent thing into your house and thereby become an object of divine wrath[2] along with it.[3] You must absolutely detest[4] and abhor it,[5] for it is an object of divine wrath.

The LORD's Provision in the Desert

8:1 You must keep carefully all these commandments[6] I am giving[7] you today so that you may live, increase in number,[8] and go in and occupy the land that the LORD promised to your ancestors.[9] 8:2 Remember the whole way by which he[10] has brought you these forty years through the desert[11] so that he might, by humbling you, test you to see if you have it within you to keep his commandments or not. 8:3 So he humbled you by making you hungry and then feeding you with unfamiliar manna.[12] He did this to teach you[13] that humankind[14] cannot live by bread[15] alone, but also by everything that comes from the LORD's mouth.[16] 8:4 Your clothing did not wear out nor did your feet swell all these forty years. 8:5 Be keenly aware that just as a parent disciplines his child,[17] the LORD your God disciplines you. 8:6 So you must keep his[18] commandments, live according to his standards,[19] and revere him. 8:7 For the LORD your God is bringing you to a good land, a land of brooks,[20] springs, and fountains flowing forth in valleys and hills, 8:8 a land of wheat, barley, vines, fig trees, and pomegranates, of olive trees and honey, 8:9 a land where you may eat food[21] in plenty and find no lack of anything, a land whose stones are iron[22] and from whose hills you can mine copper. 8:10 You will eat your fill and then praise the LORD your God because of the good land he has given you.

Exhortation to Remember That Blessing Comes from God

8:11 Be sure you do not forget the LORD your God by not keeping his commandments, ordinances, and statutes that I am giving you today. 8:12 When you eat your fill, when you build and occupy good houses, 8:13 when your cattle and flocks increase, when you have plenty of silver and gold, and when you have abundance of everything, 8:14 be sure[23] you do not feel self-important and forget the LORD your

1 tn The Hebrew word תּוֹעֵבָה (to'evah, "abhorrent; detestable") describes anything detestable to the LORD because of its innate evil or inconsistency with his own nature and character. Frequently such things (or even persons) must be condemned to annihilation (חֵרֶם, kherem) lest they become a means of polluting or contaminating others (cf. Deut 13:17; 20:17-18). See M. Grisanti, NIDOTTE 4:315.

2 tn Heb "come under the ban" (so NASB); NRSV "be set apart for destruction." The same phrase occurs again at the end of this verse.

sn The Hebrew word translated an object of divine wrath (חֵרֶם, kherem) refers to persons or things placed under God's judgment, usually to the extent of their complete destruction. See note on the phrase "divine judgment" in Deut 2:34.

3 tn Or "like it is."

4 tn This Hebrew verb (שָׁקַץ, shaqats) is essentially synonymous with the next verb (תָּעַב, ta'av; cf. תּוֹעֵבָה, to'evah; see note on the word "abhorrent" in v. 25), though its field of meaning is more limited to cultic abomination (cf. Lev 11:11, 13; Ps 22:25).

5 tn Heb "detesting you must detest and abhorring you must abhor." Both verbs are preceded by a cognate infinitive absolute indicating emphasis.

6 tn The singular term (מִצְוָה, mitsvah) includes the whole corpus of covenant stipulations, certainly the book of Deuteronomy at least (cf. Deut 5:28; 6:1, 25; 7:11; 11:8, 22; 15:5; 17:20; 19:9; 27:1; 30:11; 31:5). The plural (מִצְוֹת, mitsot) refers to individual stipulations (as in vv. 2, 6).

7 tn Heb "commanding" (so NASB). For stylistic reasons, to avoid redundancy, "giving" has been used in the translation (likewise in v. 11).

8 tn Heb "multiply" (so KJV, NASB, NLT); NIV, NRSV "increase."

9 tn Heb "fathers" (also in vv. 16, 18).

10 tn Heb "the LORD your God." The pronoun has been used in the translation for stylistic reasons.

11 tn Or "wilderness" (so KJV, NRSV, NLT); likewise in v. 15.

12 tn Heb "manna which you and your ancestors did not know." By popular etymology the word "manna" comes from the Hebrew phrase מָן הוּא (man hu'), i.e., "What is it?" (Exod 16:15). The question remains unanswered to this very day. Elsewhere the material is said to be "white like coriander seed" with "a taste like honey cakes" (Exod 16:31; cf. Num 11:7). Modern attempts to associate it with various desert plants are unsuccessful for the text says it was a new thing and, furthermore, one that appeared and disappeared miraculously (Exod 16:21-27).

13 tn Heb "in order to make known to you." In the Hebrew text this statement is subordinated to what precedes, resulting in a very long sentence in English. The translation makes this statement a separate sentence for stylistic reasons.

14 tn Heb "the man," but in a generic sense, referring to the whole human race ("mankind" or "humankind").

15 tn The Hebrew term may refer to "food" in a more general sense (cf. CEV).

16 sn Jesus quoted this text to the devil in the midst of his forty-day fast to make the point that spiritual nourishment is incomparably more important than mere physical bread (Matt 4:4; cf. Luke 4:4).

17 tn Heb "just as a man disciplines his son." The Hebrew text reflects the patriarchal idiom of the culture.

18 tn Heb "the commandments of the LORD your God." The pronoun has been used in the translation for stylistic reasons to avoid redundancy.

19 tn Heb "by walking in his ways." The "ways" of the Lord refer here to his moral standards as reflected in his commandments. The verb "walk" is used frequently in the Bible (both OT and NT) for one's moral and ethical behavior.

20 tn Or "wadis."

21 tn The Hebrew term may refer to "food" in a more general sense (cf. NASB, NCV, NLT) or "bread" in particular (cf. NAB, NIV, NRSV).

22 sn A land whose stones are iron. Since iron deposits are few and far between in Palestine, the reference here is probably to iron ore found in mines as opposed to the meteorite iron more commonly known in that area.

23 tn The words "be sure" are not in the Hebrew text; vv. 12-14 are part of the previous sentence. For stylistic reasons a new sentence was started at the beginning of v. 12 in the translation and the words "be sure" repeated from v. 11 to indicate the connection.

God who brought you from the land of Egypt, the place of slavery, 8:15 and who brought you through the great, fearful desert of venomous serpents[1] and scorpions, an arid place with no water. He made water flow[2] from a flint rock and 8:16 fed you in the desert with manna (which your ancestors had never before known) so that he might by humbling you test you[3] and eventually bring good to you. 8:17 Be careful[4] not to say, "My own ability and skill[5] have gotten me this wealth." 8:18 You must remember the LORD your God, for he is the one who gives ability to get wealth; if you do this he will confirm his covenant that he made by oath to your ancestors,[6] even as he has to this day. 8:19 Now if you forget the LORD your God at all[7] and follow other gods, worshiping and prostrating yourselves before them, I testify to you today that you will surely be annihilated. 8:20 Just like the nations the LORD is about to destroy from your sight, so he will do to you[8] because you would not obey him.[9]

Theological Justification of the Conquest

9:1 Listen, Israel: Today you are about to cross the Jordan so you can dispossess the nations there, people greater and stronger than you who live in large cities with extremely high fortifications.[10] 9:2 They include the Anakites,[11] a numerous[12] and tall people whom you know about and of whom it is said, "Who is able to resist the Anakites?" 9:3 Understand today that the LORD your God who goes before you is a devouring fire; he will defeat and subdue them before you. You will dispossess and destroy them quickly just as he[13] has told you. 9:4 Do not think to yourself after the LORD your God has driven them out before you, "Because of my own righteousness the LORD has brought me here to possess this land." It is because of the wickedness of these nations that the LORD is driving them out ahead of you. 9:5 It is not because of your righteousness, or even your inner uprightness,[14] that you have come here to possess their land. Instead, because of the wickedness of these nations the LORD your God is driving them out ahead of you in order to confirm the promise he[15] made on oath to your ancestors,[16] to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. 9:6 Understand, therefore, that it is not because of your righteousness that the LORD your God is about to give you this good land as a possession, for you are a stubborn[17] people!

The History of Israel's Stubbornness

9:7 Remember – don't ever forget[18] – how you provoked the LORD your God in the desert; from the time you left the land of Egypt until you came to this place you were constantly rebelling against him.[19] 9:8 At Horeb you provoked him and he was angry enough with you to destroy you. 9:9 When I went up the mountain to receive the stone tablets, the tablets of the covenant that the LORD made with you, I remained there[20] forty days and nights, eating and drinking nothing. 9:10 The LORD gave me the two stone tablets, written by the very finger[21] of God, and

1 tn Heb "flaming serpents"; KJV, NASB "fiery serpents"; NAB "saraph serpents." This figure of speech (metonymy) probably describes the venomous and painful results of snakebite. The feeling from such an experience would be like a burning fire (שָׂרָף, saraf).

2 tn Heb "the one who brought out for you water." In the Hebrew text this continues the preceding sentence, but the translation begins a new sentence here for stylistic reasons.

3 tn Heb "in order to humble you and in order to test you." See 8:2.

4 tn For stylistic reasons a new sentence was started at the beginning of v. 17 in the translation and the words "be careful" supplied to indicate the connection.

5 tn Heb "my strength and the might of my hand."

6 tc Smr and Lucian add "Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob," the standard way of rendering this almost stereotypical formula (cf. Deut 1:8; 6:10; 9:5, 27; 29:13; 30:20; 34:4). The MT's harder reading presumptively argues for its originality, however.

7 tn Heb "if forgetting, you forget." The infinitive absolute is used for emphasis; the translation indicates this with the words "at all" (cf. KJV).

8 tn Heb "so you will perish."

9 tn Heb "listen to the voice of the LORD your God." The pronoun has been used in the translation for stylistic reasons to avoid redundancy.

10 tn Heb "fortified to the heavens" (so NRSV); NLT "cities with walls that reach to the sky." This is hyperbole.

11 sn Anakites. See note on this term in Deut 1:28.

12 tn Heb "great and tall." Many English versions understand this to refer to physical size or strength rather than numbers (cf. "strong," NIV, NCV, NRSV, NLT).

13 tn Heb "the LORD." The pronoun has been used in the translation in keeping with contemporary English style to avoid redundancy.

14 tn Heb "uprightness of your heart" (so NASB, NRSV). The Hebrew word צְדָקָה (ts^{e}daqah, "righteousness"), though essentially synonymous here with יֹשֶׁר (yosher, "uprightness"), carries the idea of conformity to an objective standard. The term יֹשֶׁר has more to do with an inner, moral quality (cf. NAB, NIV "integrity"). Neither, however, was grounds for the LORD's favor. As he states in both vv. 4-5, the main reason he allowed Israel to take this land was the sinfulness of the Canaanites who lived there (cf. Gen 15:16).

15 tn Heb "the LORD." See note on "he" in 9:3.

16 tn Heb "fathers."

17 tn Heb "stiff-necked" (so KJV, NAB, NIV).

sn The Hebrew word translated stubborn means "stiff-necked." The image is that of a draft animal that is unsubmissive to the rein or yoke and refuses to bend its neck to draw the load. This is an apt description of OT Israel (Exod 32:9; 33:3, 5; 34:9; Deut 9:13).

18 tn By juxtaposing the positive זְכֹר (zekhor, "remember") with the negative אַל־תִּשְׁכַּח ('al-tish^{e}kakh, "do not forget"), Moses makes a most emphatic plea.

19 tn Heb "the LORD" (likewise in the following verse with both "him" and "he"). See note on "he" in 9:3.

20 tn Heb "in the mountain." The demonstrative pronoun has been used in the translation for stylistic reasons.

21 sn The very finger of God. This is a double figure of speech (1) in which God is ascribed human features (anthropomorphism) and (2) in which a part stands for the whole (synecdoche). That is, God, as Spirit, has no literal finger nor, if he had, would he write with his finger. Rather, the sense is that God himself – not Moses in any way – was responsible for the composition of the Ten Commandments (cf. Exod 31:18; 32:16; 34:1).

on them was everything[1] he[2] said to you at the mountain from the midst of the fire at the time of that assembly. 9:11 Now at the end of the forty days and nights the LORD presented me with the two stone tablets, the tablets of the covenant. 9:12 And he said to me, "Get up, go down at once from here because your people whom you brought out of Egypt have sinned! They have quickly turned from the way I commanded them and have made for themselves a cast metal image."[3] 9:13 Moreover, he said to me, "I have taken note of these people; they are a stubborn[4] lot! 9:14 Stand aside[5] and I will destroy them, obliterating their very name from memory,[6] and I will make you into a stronger and more numerous nation than they are."

9:15 So I turned and went down the mountain while it[7] was blazing with fire; the two tablets of the covenant were in my hands. 9:16 When I looked, you had indeed sinned against the LORD your God and had cast for yourselves a metal calf;[8] you had quickly turned aside from the way he[9] had commanded you! 9:17 I grabbed the two tablets, threw them down,[10] and shattered them before your very eyes. 9:18 Then I again fell down before the LORD for forty days and nights; I ate and drank nothing because of all the sin you had committed, doing such evil before the LORD as to enrage him. 9:19 For I was terrified at the LORD's intense anger[11] that threatened to destroy you. But he[12] listened to me this time as well. 9:20 The LORD was also angry enough at Aaron to kill him, but at that time I prayed for him[13] too. 9:21 As for your sinful thing[14] that you had made, the calf, I took it, melted it down,[15] ground it up until it was as fine as dust, and tossed the dust into the stream that flows down the mountain. 9:22 Moreover, you continued to provoke the LORD at Taberah,[16] Massah,[17] and Kibroth-Hattaavah.[18] 9:23 And when he[19] sent you from Kadesh-Barnea and told you, "Go up and possess the land I have given you," you rebelled against the LORD your God[20] and would neither believe nor obey him. 9:24 You have been rebelling against him[21] from the very first day I knew you!

Moses' Plea on Behalf of the LORD's Reputation

9:25 I lay flat on the ground before the LORD for forty days and nights,[22] for he[23] had said he would destroy you. 9:26 I prayed to him:[24] O, Lord GOD,[25] do not destroy your people, your valued property[26] that you have powerfully redeemed,[27] whom you brought out of Egypt by your strength.[28] 9:27 Remember your servants Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob; ignore the stubbornness, wickedness, and sin of these people. 9:28 Otherwise the people of the land[29] from which you brought us will say, "The LORD was unable to bring them to the land he promised them, and because of his hatred for them he has brought them out to kill them in the desert."[30] 9:29 They are your people, your valued property,[31] whom you brought out with great strength and power.[32]

The Opportunity to Begin Again

10:1 At that same time the LORD said to me, "Carve out for yourself two stone tablets like the first ones and come up the mountain to me; also

---

1 tn Heb "according to all the words."

2 tn Heb "the LORD" (likewise at the beginning of vv. 12, 13). See note on "he" in 9:3.

3 tc Heb "a casting." The MT reads מַסֵּכָה (massekhah, "a cast thing") but some MSS and Smr add עֵגֶל ('egel, "calf"), "a molten calf" or the like (Exod 32:8). Perhaps Moses here omits reference to the calf out of contempt for it.

4 tn Heb "stiff-necked." See note on the word "stubborn" in 9:6.

5 tn Heb "leave me alone."

6 tn Heb "from under heaven."

7 tn Heb "the mountain." The translation uses a pronoun for stylistic reasons to avoid redundancy.

8 tn On the phrase "metal calf," see note on the term "metal image" in v. 12.

9 tn Heb "the LORD." See note on "he" in 9:3.

10 tn The Hebrew text includes "from upon my two hands," but as this seems somewhat obvious and redundant, it has been left untranslated for stylistic reasons.

11 tn Heb "the anger and the wrath." Although many English versions translate as two terms, this construction is a hendiadys which serves to intensify the emotion (cf. NAB, TEV "fierce anger").

12 tn Heb "the LORD." See note on "he" in 9:3.

13 tn Heb "Aaron." The pronoun is used in the translation to avoid redundancy.

14 tn Heb "your sin." This is a metonymy in which the effect (sin) stands for the cause (the metal calf).

15 tn Heb "burned it with fire."

16 sn Taberah. By popular etymology this derives from the Hebrew verb בָּעַר (ba'ar, "to burn"), thus, here, "burning." The reference is to the LORD's fiery wrath against Israel because of their constant complaints against him (Num 11:1-3).

17 sn Massah. See note on this term in Deut 6:16.

18 sn Kibroth-Hattaavah. This place name means in Hebrew "burial places of appetite," that is, graves that resulted from overindulgence. The reference is to the Israelites stuffing themselves with the quail God had provided and doing so with thanklessness (Num 11:31-35).

19 tn Heb "the LORD." See note on "he" in 9:3.

20 tn Heb "the mouth of the LORD your God," that is, against the commandment that he had spoken.

21 tn Heb "the LORD." See note on "he" in 9:3.

22 tn The Hebrew text includes "when I prostrated myself." Since this is redundant, it has been left untranslated.

23 tn Heb "the LORD." See note on "he" in 9:3.

24 tn Heb "the LORD." See note on "he" in 9:3.

25 tn Heb "Lord LORD" (אֲדֹנָי יְהוִה, 'adonay yehvih). The phrase is customarily rendered by Jewish tradition as "Lord GOD" (אֲדֹנָי אֱלֹהִים, 'adonay 'elohim). See also the note on the phrase "Lord GOD" in Deut 3:24.

26 tn Heb "your inheritance"; NLT "your special (very own NRSV) possession." Israel is compared to landed property that one would inherit from his ancestors and pass on to his descendants.

27 tn Heb "you have redeemed in your greatness."

28 tn Heb "by your strong hand."

29 tc The MT reads only "the land." Smr supplies עַם ('am, "people") and LXX and its dependents supply "the inhabitants of the land." The truncated form found in the MT is adequate to communicate the intended meaning; the words "the people of" are supplied in the translation for clarity.

30 tn Or "wilderness" (so KJV, NASB, NRSV, NLT).

31 tn Heb "your inheritance." See note at v. 26.

32 tn Heb "an outstretched arm."

make for yourself a wooden ark.[1] 10:2 I will write on the tablets the same words[2] that were on the first tablets you broke, and you must put them into the ark." 10:3 So I made an ark of acacia[3] wood and carved out two stone tablets just like the first ones. Then I went up the mountain with the two tablets in my hands. 10:4 The LORD[4] then wrote on the tablets the same words,[5] the ten commandments,[6] which he[7] had spoken to you at the mountain from the middle of the fire at the time of that assembly, and he[8] gave them to me. 10:5 Then I turned, went down the mountain, and placed the tablets into the ark I had made – they are still there, just as the LORD commanded me.

Conclusion of the Historical Resume

10:6 "During those days the Israelites traveled from Beeroth Bene Jaakan[9] to Moserah.[10] There Aaron died and was buried, and his son Eleazar became priest in his place. 10:7 From there they traveled to Gudgodah,[11] and from Gudgodah to Jotbathah,[12] a place of flowing streams. 10:8 At that time the LORD set apart the tribe of Levi[13] to carry the ark of the LORD's covenant, to stand before the LORD to serve him, and to formulate blessings[14] in his name, as they do to this very day. 10:9 Therefore Levi has no allotment or inheritance[15] among his brothers;[16] the LORD is his inheritance just as the LORD your God told him. 10:10 As for me, I stayed at the mountain as I did the first time, forty days and nights. The LORD listened to me that time as well and decided not to destroy you. 10:11 Then he[17] said to me, "Get up, set out leading[18] the people so they may go and possess[19] the land I promised to give to their ancestors."[20]

An Exhortation to Love Both God and People

10:12 Now, Israel, what does the LORD your God require of you except to revere him,[21] to obey all his commandments,[22] to love him, to serve him[23] with all your mind and being,[24] 10:13 and to keep the LORD's commandments and statutes that I am giving[25] you today for your own good? 10:14 The heavens – indeed the highest heavens – belong to the LORD your God, as does the earth and everything in it. 10:15 However, only to your ancestors did he[26] show his loving favor,[27] and he chose you, their descendants,[28] from all peoples – as is apparent today. 10:16 Therefore, cleanse[29] your heart and stop

[1] tn Or "chest" (so NIV, CEV); NLT "sacred chest"; TEV "wooden box." This chest was made of acacia wood; it is later known as the ark of the covenant.

[2] sn The same words. The care with which the replacement copy must be made underscores the importance of verbal precision in relaying the LORD's commandments.

[3] sn Acacia wood (Heb "shittim wood"). This is wood from the acacia, the most common timber tree of the Sinai region. Most likely it is the species Acacia raddiana because this has the largest trunk. See F. N. Hepper, Illustrated Encyclopedia of Bible Plants, 63.

[4] tn Heb "he"; the referent (the LORD) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[5] tn Heb "according to the former writing." See note on the phrase "the same words" in v. 2.

[6] tn Heb "ten words." The "Ten Commandments" are known in Hebrew as the "Ten Words," which in Greek became the "Decalogue."

[7] tn Heb "the LORD." The pronoun has been used in the translation for stylistic reasons to avoid redundancy.

[8] tn Heb "the LORD." See note on "he" earlier in this verse.

[9] sn Beeroth Bene Jaakan. This Hebrew name could be translated "the wells of Bene Jaakan" or "the wells of the sons of Jaakan," a site whose location cannot be determined (cf. Num 33:31-32; 1 Chr 1:42).

[10] sn Moserah. Since Aaron in other texts (Num 20:28; 33:38) is said to have died on Mount Hor, this must be the Arabah region in which Hor was located.

[11] sn Gudgodah. This is probably the same as Haggidgad, which is also associated with Jotbathah (Num 33:33).

[12] sn Jotbathah. This place, whose Hebrew name can be translated "place of wadis," is possibly modern Ain Tabah, just north of Eilat, or Tabah, 6.5 mi (11 km) south of Eilat on the west shore of the Gulf of Aqaba.

[13] sn The LORD set apart the tribe of Levi. This was not the initial commissioning of the tribe of Levi to this ministry (cf. Num 3:11-13; 8:12-26), but with Aaron's death it seemed appropriate to Moses to reiterate Levi's responsibilities. There is no reference in the Book of Numbers to this having been done, but the account of Eleazar's succession to the priesthood there (Num 20:25-28) would provide a setting for this to have occurred.

[14] sn To formulate blessings. The most famous example of this is the priestly "blessing formula" of Num 6:24-26.

[15] sn Levi has no allotment or inheritance. As the priestly tribe, Levi would have no land allotment except for forty-eight towns set apart for their use (Num 35:1-8; Josh 21:1-42). But theirs was a far greater inheritance, for the LORD himself was their apportionment, that is, service to him would be their full-time and lifelong privilege (Num 18:20-24; Deut 18:2; Josh 13:33).

[16] tn That is, among the other Israelite tribes.

[17] tn Heb "the LORD." See note on "he" in 10:4.

[18] tn Heb "before" (so KJV, ASV); NAB, NRSV "at the head of."

[19] tn After the imperative these subordinated jussive forms (with prefixed vav) indicate purpose or result.

[20] tn Heb "fathers" (also in vv. 15, 22).

[21] tn Heb "the LORD your God." See note on "he" in 10:4.

[22] tn Heb "to walk in all his ways" (so KJV, NIV, NRSV); NAB "follow his ways exactly"; NLT "to live according to his will."

[23] tn Heb "the LORD your God." See note on "he" in 10:4.

[24] tn Heb "heart and soul" or "heart and being"; NCV "with your whole being." See note on the word "being" in Deut 6:5.

[25] tn Heb "commanding" (so NASB, NRSV). For stylistic reasons, to avoid redundancy, "giving" has been used in the translation.

[26] tn Heb "the LORD." See note on "he" in 10:4.

[27] tn Heb "take delight to love." Here again the verb אָהַב ('ahav, "love"), juxtaposed with בָּחַר (bakhar, "choose"), is a term in covenant contexts that describes the LORD's initiative in calling the patriarchal ancestors to be the founders of a people special to him (cf. the note on the word "loved" in Deut 4:37).

[28] tn The Hebrew text includes "after them," but it is redundant in English style and has not been included in the translation.

[29] tn Heb "circumcise the foreskin of" (cf. KJV, ASV, NRSV). Reference to the Abrahamic covenant prompts Moses to recall the sign of that covenant, namely, physical circumcision (Gen 17:9-14). Just as that act signified total covenant obedience, so spiritual circumcision (cleansing of the heart) signifies more internally a commitment to be pliable and obedient to the will of God (cf. Deut 30:6; Jer 4:4; 9:26).

being so stubborn![1] 10:17 For the LORD your God is God of gods and Lord of lords, the great, mighty, and awesome God who is unbiased and takes no bribe, 10:18 who justly treats[2] the orphan and widow, and who loves resident foreigners, giving them food and clothing. 10:19 So you must love the resident foreigner because you were foreigners in the land of Egypt. 10:20 Revere the LORD your God, serve him, be loyal to him and take oaths only in his name. 10:21 He is the one you should praise;[3] he is your God, the one who has done these great and awesome things for you that you have seen. 10:22 When your ancestors went down to Egypt, they numbered only seventy, but now the LORD your God has made you as numerous as the stars of the sky.[4]

Reiteration of the Call to Obedience

11:1 You must love the LORD your God and do what he requires; keep his statutes, ordinances, and commandments[5] at all times. 11:2 Bear in mind today that I am not speaking[6] to your children who have not personally experienced the judgments[7] of the LORD your God, which revealed[8] his greatness, strength, and power.[9] 11:3 They did not see[10] the awesome deeds he performed[11] in the midst of Egypt against Pharaoh king of Egypt and his whole land, 11:4 or what he did to the army of Egypt, including their horses and chariots, when he made the waters of the Red Sea[12] overwhelm them while they were pursuing you and he[13] annihilated them.[14] 11:5 They did not see[15] what he did to you in the desert before you reached this place, 11:6 or what he did to Dathan and Abiram,[16] sons of Eliab the Reubenite,[17] when the earth opened its mouth in the middle of the Israelite camp[18] and swallowed them, their families,[19] their tents, and all the property they brought with them.[20] 11:7 I am speaking to you[21] because you are the ones who saw all the great deeds of the LORD!

The Abundance of the Land of Promise

11:8 Now pay attention to all the commandments[22] I am giving[23] you today, so that you may be strong enough to enter and possess the land where you are headed,[24] 11:9 and that you may enjoy long life in the land the LORD promised to give to your ancestors[25] and their descendants, a land flowing with milk and honey. 11:10 For the land where you are headed[26] is not like the land

[1] tn Heb "your neck do not harden again." See note on the word "stubborn" in Deut 9:6.

[2] tn Or "who executes justice for" (so NAB, NRSV); NLT "gives justice to."

[3] tn Heb "your praise." The pronoun is subjective and the noun "praise" is used here metonymically for the object of their praise (the Lord).

[4] tn Or "heavens." The Hebrew term שָׁמַיִם (shamayim) may be translated "heaven(s)" or "sky" depending on the context.

[5] tn This collocation of technical terms for elements of the covenant text lends support to its importance and also signals a new section of paraenesis in which Moses will exhort Israel to covenant obedience. The Hebrew term מִשְׁמָרוֹת (mishmarot, "obligations") sums up the three terms that follow – חֻקֹּת (khuqot), מִשְׁפָּטִים (mishppatim), and מִצְוֹת (mitsot).

[6] tn Heb "that not." The words "I am speaking" have been supplied in the translation for stylistic reasons.

[7] tn Heb "who have not known and who have not seen the discipline of the LORD." The collocation of the verbs "know" and "see" indicates that personal experience (knowing by seeing) is in view. The term translated "discipline" (KJV, ASV "chastisement") may also be rendered "instruction," but vv. 2b-6 indicate that the referent of the term is the various acts of divine judgment the Israelites had witnessed.

[8] tn The words "which revealed" have been supplied in the translation to show the logical relationship between the terms that follow and the divine judgments. In the Hebrew text the former are in apposition to the latter.

[9] tn Heb "his strong hand and his stretched-out arm."

[10] tn In the Hebrew text vv. 2-7 are one long sentence. For stylistic reasons the English translation divides the passage into three sentences. To facilitate this stylistic decision the words "They did not see" are supplied at the beginning of both v. 3 and v. 5, and "I am speaking" at the beginning of v. 7.

[11] tn Heb "his signs and his deeds which he did" (NRSV similar). The collocation of "signs" and "deeds" indicates that these acts were intended to make an impression on observers and reveal something about God's power (cf. v. 2b). The word "awesome" has been employed to bring out the force of the word "signs" in this context.

[12] tn Heb "Reed Sea." "Reed Sea" (or "Sea of Reeds") is a more accurate rendering of the Hebrew expression יַם סוּף (yam suf), traditionally translated "Red Sea." See note on the term "Red Sea" in Exod 13:18.

[13] tn Heb "the LORD." The pronoun has been used in the translation for stylistic reasons to avoid redundancy.

[14] tn Heb "and the LORD destroyed them to this day" (cf. NRSV); NLT "he has kept them devastated to this very day." The translation uses the verb "annihilated" to indicate the permanency of the action.

[15] tn See note on these same words in v. 3.

[16] sn Dathan and Abiram. These two (along with others) had challenged Moses' leadership in the desert with the result that the earth beneath them opened up and they and their families disappeared (Num 16:1-3, 31-35).

[17] tn Or "the descendant of Reuben"; Heb "son of Reuben."

[18] tn Heb "in the midst of all Israel" (so KJV, ASV, NRSV); NASB "among all Israel." In the Hebrew text these words appear at the end of the verse, but they are logically connected with the verbs. To make this clear the translation places the phrase after the first verb.

[19] tn Heb "their houses," referring to all who lived in their household. Cf. KJV, ASV, NASB, NIV, NRSV, NLT "households."

[20] tn Heb "and all the substance which was at their feet."

[21] tn On the addition of these words in the translation see note on "They did not see" in v. 3.

[22] tn Heb "the commandment." The singular מִצְוָה (mitsvah, "commandment") speaks here as elsewhere of the whole corpus of covenant stipulations in Deuteronomy (cf. 6:1, 25; 7:11; 8:1).

[23] tn Heb "commanding" (so NASB, NRSV). For stylistic reasons, to avoid redundancy, "giving" has been used in the translation (likewise in vv. 13, 27).

[24] tn Heb "which you are crossing over there to possess it."

[25] tn Heb "fathers" (also in v. 21).

[26] tn Heb "you are going there to possess it"; NASB "into which you are about to cross to possess it"; NRSV "that you are crossing over to occupy."

of Egypt from which you came, a land where you planted seed and which you irrigated by hand[1] like a vegetable garden. 11:11 Instead, the land you are crossing the Jordan to occupy[2] is one of hills and valleys, a land that drinks in water from the rains,[3] 11:12 a land the LORD your God looks after.[4] He is constantly attentive to it[5] from the beginning to the end of the year.[6] 11:13 Now, if you pay close attention[7] to my commandments that I am giving you today and love[8] the LORD your God and serve him with all your mind and being,[9] 11:14 then he promises,[10] "I will send rain for your land[11] in its season, the autumn and the spring rains,[12] so that you may gather in your grain, new wine, and olive oil. 11:15 I will provide pasture[13] for your livestock and you will eat your fill."

Exhortation to Instruction and Obedience

11:16 Make sure you do not turn away to serve and worship other gods![14] 11:17 Then the anger of the LORD will erupt[15] against you and he will close up the sky[16] so that it does not rain. The land will not yield its produce, and you will soon be removed[17] from the good land that the LORD[18] IS ABOUT TO GIVE YOU. 11:18 Fix these words of mine into your mind and being,[19] and tie them as a reminder on your hands and let them be symbols[20] on your forehead. 11:19 Teach them to your children and speak of them as you sit in your house, as you walk along the road,[21] as you lie down, and as you get up. 11:20 Inscribe them on the doorframes of your houses and on your gates 11:21 so that your days and those of your descendants may be extended in the land which the LORD promised to give to your ancestors, like the days of heaven itself.[22] 11:22 For if you carefully observe all of these commandments[23] I am giving you[24] and love the LORD your God, live according to his standards,[25] and remain loyal to him, 11:23 then he[26] will drive out all these nations ahead of you, and you will dispossess nations greater and stronger than you. 11:24 Every place you set your foot[27] will be yours; your border will extend from the desert to Lebanon and from the River (that is, the Euphrates) as far as the Mediterranean Sea.[28] 11:25 Nobody will be able to resist you; the LORD your God will spread the fear and terror of you over the whole land on which you walk, just as he promised you.

Anticipation of a Blessing and Cursing Ceremony

11:26 Take note – I am setting before you today a blessing and a curse:[29] 11:27 the blessing if

---

1 tn Heb "with your foot" (so NASB, NLT). There is a two-fold significance to this phrase. First, Egypt had no rain so water supply depended on human efforts at irrigation. Second, the Nile was the source of irrigation waters but those waters sometimes had to be pumped into fields and gardens by foot-power, perhaps the kind of machinery (Arabic shaduf) still used by Egyptian farmers (see C. Aldred, The Egyptians, 181). Nevertheless, the translation uses "by hand," since that expression is the more common English idiom for an activity performed by manual labor.

2 tn Heb "which you are crossing over there to possess it."

3 tn Heb "rain of heaven."

4 tn Heb "seeks." The statement reflects the ancient belief that God (Baal in Canaanite thinking) directly controlled storms and rainfall.

5 tn Heb "the eyes of the LORD your God are continually on it" (so NIV); NASB, NRSV "always on it."

sn Constantly attentive to it. This attention to the land by the LORD is understandable in light of the centrality of the land in the Abrahamic covenant (cf. Gen 12:1, 7; 13:15; 15:7, 16, 18; 17:8; 26:3).

6 sn From the beginning to the end of the year. This refers to the agricultural year that was marked by the onset of the heavy rains, thus the autumn. See note on the phrase "the former and the latter rains" in v. 14.

7 tn Heb "if hearing, you will hear." The Hebrew text uses the infinitive absolute to emphasize the verbal idea. The translation renders this emphasis with the word "close."

8 tn Again, the Hebrew term אָהַב ('ahav) draws attention to the reciprocation of divine love as a condition or sign of covenant loyalty (cf. Deut 6:5).

9 tn Heb "heart and soul" or "heart and being." See note on the word "being" in Deut 6:5.

10 tn The words "he promises" do not appear in the Hebrew text but are needed in the translation to facilitate the transition from the condition (v. 13) to the promise and make it clear that the Lord is speaking the words of vv. 14-15.

11 tn Heb "the rain of your land." In this case the genitive (modifying term) indicates the recipient of the rain.

12 sn The autumn and the spring rains. The "former" (יוֹרֶה, yoreh) and "latter" (מַלְקוֹשׁ, malqosh) rains come in abundance respectively in September/October and March/April. Planting of most crops takes place before the former rains fall and the harvests follow the latter rains.

13 tn Heb "grass in your field."

14 tn Heb "Watch yourselves lest your heart turns and you turn aside and serve other gods and bow down to them."

15 tn Heb "will become hot"; KJV, NASB, NRSV "will be kindled"; NAB "will flare up"; NIV, NLT "will burn."

16 tn Or "heavens." The Hebrew term שָׁמַיִם (shamayim) may be translated "heaven(s)" or "sky" depending on the context.

17 tn Or "be destroyed"; NAB, NIV "will soon perish."

18 tn Heb "the LORD." See note on "he" in 11:4.

19 tn Heb "heart and soul" or "heart and being." See note on the word "being" in Deut 6:5.

20 tn On the Hebrew term טוֹטָפֹת (totafot, "reminders"), cf. Deut 6:4-9.

21 tn Or "as you are away on a journey" (cf. NRSV, TEV, NLT); NAB "at home and abroad."

22 tn Heb "like the days of the heavens upon the earth," that is, forever.

23 tn Heb "this commandment." See note at Deut 5:30.

24 tn Heb "commanding you to do it." For stylistic reasons, to avoid redundancy, "giving" has been used in the translation and "to do it" has been left untranslated.

25 tn Heb "walk in all his ways" (so KJV, NIV); TEV "do everything he commands."

26 tn Heb "the LORD." The pronoun has been used in the translation for stylistic reasons to avoid redundancy.

27 tn Heb "the sole of your foot walks." The placing of the foot symbolizes conquest and dominion, especially on land or on the necks of enemies (cf. Deut 1:36; Ps 7:13; Isa 63:3 Hab 3:19; Zech 9:13). See E. H. Merrill, NIDOTTE 1:992.

28 tn Heb "the after sea," that is, the sea behind one when one is facing east, which is the normal OT orientation. Cf. ASV "the hinder sea."

29 sn A blessing and a curse. Every extant treaty text of the late Bronze Age attests to a section known as the "blessings and curses," the former for covenant loyalty and the latter for covenant breach. Blessings were promised rewards for obedience; curses were threatened judgments for disobedience. In the Book of Deuteronomy these are fully developed you take to heart[1] the commandments of the LORD your God that I am giving you today, 11:28 and the curse if you pay no attention[2] to his[3] commandments and turn from the way I am setting before[4] you today to pursue[5] other gods you have not known. 11:29 When the LORD your God brings you into the land you are to possess, you must pronounce the blessing on Mount Gerizim and the curse on Mount Ebal.[6] 11:30 Are they not across the Jordan River,[7] toward the west, in the land of the Canaanites who live in the Arabah opposite Gilgal[8] near the oak[9] of Moreh? 11:31 For you are about to cross the Jordan to possess the land the LORD your God is giving you, and you will possess and inhabit it. 11:32 Be certain to keep all the statutes and ordinances that I am presenting to you today.

The Central Sanctuary

12:1 These are the statutes and ordinances you must be careful to obey as long as you live in the land the LORD, the God of your ancestors,[10] has given you to possess.[11] 12:2 You must by all means destroy[12] all the places where the nations you are about to dispossess worship their gods – on the high mountains and hills and under every leafy tree.[13] 12:3 You must tear down their altars, shatter their sacred pillars,[14] burn up their sacred Asherah poles,[15] and cut down the images of their gods; you must eliminate their very memory from that place. 12:4 You must not worship the LORD your God the way they worship. 12:5 But you must seek only the place he[16] chooses from all your tribes to establish his name as his place of residence,[17] and you must go there. 12:6 And there you must take your burnt offerings, your sacrifices, your tithes, the personal offerings you have prepared,[18] your votive offerings, your freewill offerings, and the firstborn of your herds and flocks. 12:7 Both you and your families[19] must feast there before the LORD your God and rejoice in all the output of your labor with which he[20] has blessed you. 12:8 You must not do like we are doing here today, with everyone[21] doing what seems best to him, 12:9 for you have not yet come to the final stop[22] and inheritance the LORD your God is giving you. 12:10 When you do go across the Jordan in 27:1–28:68. Here Moses adumbrates the whole by way of anticipation.

[1] tn Heb "listen to," that is, obey.

[2] tn Heb "do not listen to," that is, do not obey.

[3] tn Heb "the commandments of the LORD your God." The pronoun has been used in the translation for stylistic reasons to avoid redundancy.

[4] tn Heb "am commanding" (so NASB, NRSV).

[5] tn Heb "walk after"; NIV "by following"; NLT "by worshiping." This is a violation of the first commandment, the most serious of the covenant violations (Deut 5:6-7).

[6] sn Mount Gerizim...Mount Ebal. These two mountains are near the ancient site of Shechem and the modern city of Nablus. The valley between them is like a great amphitheater with the mountain slopes as seating sections. The place was sacred because it was there that Abraham pitched his camp and built his first altar after coming to Canaan (Gen 12:6). Jacob also settled at Shechem for a time and dug a well from which Jesus once requested a drink of water (Gen 33:18-20; John 4:5-7). When Joshua and the Israelites finally brought Canaan under control they assembled at Shechem as Moses commanded and undertook a ritual of covenant reaffirmation (Josh 8:30-35; 24:1, 25). Half the tribes stood on Mt. Gerizim and half on Mt. Ebal and in antiphonal chorus pledged their loyalty to the LORD before Joshua and the Levites who stood in the valley below (Josh 8:33; cf. Deut 27:11-13).

[7] tn The word "River" is not in the Hebrew text, but has been supplied in the translation for clarity.

[8] sn Gilgal. From a Hebrew verb root גָּלַל (galal, "to roll") this place name means "circle" or "rolling," a name given because God had "rolled away the reproach of Egypt from you" (Josh 5:9). It is perhaps to be identified with Khirbet el-Metjir, 1.2 mi (2 km) northeast of OT Jericho.

[9] tc The MT plural "oaks" (אֵלוֹנֵי, 'eloney) should probably be altered (with many Greek texts) to the singular "oak" (אֵלוֹן, 'elon; cf. NRSV) in line with the only other occurrence of the phrase (Gen 12:6). The Syriac, Tg. Ps.-J. read mmr', confusing this place with the "oaks of Mamre" near Hebron (Gen 13:18). Smr also appears to confuse "Moreh" with "Mamre" (reading mwr', a combined form), adding the clarification mwl shkm ("near Shechem") apparently to distinguish it from Mamre near Hebron.

[10] tn Heb "fathers."

[11] tn Heb "you must be careful to obey in the land the LORD, the God of your fathers, has given you to possess all the days which you live in the land." This adverbial statement modifies "to obey," not "to possess," so the order in the translation has been rearranged to make this clear.

[12] tn Heb "destroying you must destroy"; KJV "Ye shall utterly (surely ASV) destroy"; NRSV "must demolish completely." The Hebrew infinitive absolute precedes the verb for emphasis, which is reflected in the translation by the words "by all means."

[13] sn Every leafy tree. This expression refers to evergreens which, because they keep their foliage throughout the year, provided apt symbolism for nature cults such as those practiced in Canaan. The deity particularly in view is Asherah, wife of the great god El, who was considered the goddess of fertility and whose worship frequently took place at shrines near or among clusters (groves) of such trees (see also Deut 7:5). See J. Hadley, NIDOTTE 1:569-70; J. DeMoor, TDOT 1:438-44.

[14] sn Sacred pillars. These are the stelae (stone pillars; the Hebrew term is מַצֵּבֹת, matsevot) associated with Baal worship, perhaps to mark a spot hallowed by an alleged visitation of the gods. See also Deut 7:5.

[15] sn Sacred Asherah poles. The Hebrew term (plural) is אֲשֵׁרִים ('asherim). See note on the word "(leafy) tree" in v. 2, and also Deut 7:5.

[16] tn Heb "the LORD your God." The pronoun has been used in the translation for stylistic reasons to avoid redundancy.

[17] tc Some scholars, on the basis of v. 11, emend the MT reading שִׁכְנוֹ (shikhno, "his residence") to the infinitive construct לְשָׁכֵן (leshakheno, "to make [his name] to dwell"), perhaps with the 3rd person masculine singular sf לְשַׁכְּנוֹ (leshakeno, "to cause it to dwell"). Though the presupposed noun שֶׁכֶן (shekhen) is nowhere else attested, the parallel here with שָׁמָּה (shammah, "there") favors retaining the MT as it stands.

[18] tn Heb "heave offerings of your hand."

[19] tn Heb "and your houses," referring to entire households. The pronouns "you" and "your" are plural in the Hebrew text.

[20] tn Heb "the LORD your God." See note on "he" in 12:5.

[21] tn Heb "a man."

[22] tn Heb "rest."

River[1] and settle in the land he[2] is granting you as an inheritance and you find relief from all the enemies who surround you, you will live in safety.[3] 12:11 Then you must come to the place the LORD your God chooses for his name to reside, bringing[4] everything I am commanding you – your burnt offerings, sacrifices, tithes, the personal offerings you have prepared,[5] and all your choice votive offerings which you devote to him.[6] 12:12 You shall rejoice in the presence of the LORD your God, along with your sons, daughters, male and female servants, and the Levites in your villages[7] (since they have no allotment or inheritance with you).[8] 12:13 Make sure you do not offer burnt offerings in any place you wish, 12:14 for you may do so[9] only in the place the LORD chooses in one of your tribal areas – there you may do everything I am commanding you.[10]

Regulations for Profane Slaughter

12:15 On the other hand, you may slaughter and eat meat as you please when the LORD your God blesses you[11] in all your villages.[12] Both the ritually pure and impure may eat it, whether it is a gazelle or an ibex. 12:16 However, you must not eat blood – pour it out on the ground like water. 12:17 You will not be allowed to eat in your villages your tithe of grain, new wine, olive oil, the firstborn of your herd and flock, any votive offerings you have vowed, or your freewill and personal offerings. 12:18 Only in the presence of the LORD your God may you eat these, in the place he[13] chooses. This applies to you, your son, your daughter, your male and female servants, and the Levites[14] in your villages. In that place you will rejoice before the LORD your God in all the output of your labor.[15] 12:19 Be careful not to overlook the Levites as long as you live in the land.

The Sanctity of Blood

12:20 When the LORD your God extends your borders as he said he would do and you say, "I want to eat meat just as I please,"[16] you may do so as you wish.[17] 12:21 If the place he[18] chooses to locate his name is too far for you, you may slaughter any of your herd and flock he[19] has given you just as I have stipulated; you may eat them in your villages[20] just as you wish. 12:22 Like you eat the gazelle or ibex, so you may eat these; the ritually impure and pure alike may eat them. 12:23 However, by no means eat the blood, for the blood is life itself[21] – you must not eat the life with the meat! 12:24 You must not eat it! You must pour it out on the ground like water. 12:25 You must not eat it so that it may go well with you and your children after you; you will be doing what is right in the LORD's sight.[22] 12:26 Only the holy things and votive offerings that belong to you, you must pick up and take to the place the LORD will choose.[23] 12:27 You must offer your burnt offerings, both meat and blood, on the altar of the LORD your God; the blood of your other sacrifices[24] you must pour out on his[25] altar while you eat the meat. 12:28 Pay careful attention to all these things I am commanding you so that it may always go well with you and your children

[1] tn The word "River" is not in the Hebrew text, but has been supplied in the translation for clarity.

[2] tn Heb "the LORD your God." See note on "he" in 12:5.

[3] tn In the Hebrew text vv. 10-11 are one long, complex sentence. For stylistic reasons the translation divides this into two sentences.

[4] tn Heb "and it will be (to) the place where the LORD your God chooses to cause his name to dwell you will bring."

[5] tn Heb "heave offerings of your hand."

[6] tn Heb "the LORD." See note on "he" in 12:5.

[7] tn Heb "within your gates" (so KJV, NASB); NAB "who belongs to your community."

[8] sn They have no allotment or inheritance with you. See note on the word "inheritance" in Deut 10:9.

[9] tn Heb "offer burnt offerings." The expression "do so" has been used in the translation for stylistic reasons to avoid redundancy.

[10] sn This injunction to worship in a single and central sanctuary – one limited and appropriate to the thrice-annual festival celebrations (see Exod 23:14-17; 34:22-24; Lev 23:4-36; Deut 16:16-17) – marks a departure from previous times when worship was carried out at local shrines (cf. Gen 8:20; 12:7; 13:18; 22:9; 26:25; 35:1, 3, 7; Exod 17:15). Apart from the corporate worship of the whole theocratic community, however, worship at local altars would still be permitted as in the past (Deut 16:21; Judg 6:24-27; 13:19-20; 1 Sam 7:17; 10:5, 13; 2 Sam 24:18-25; 1 Kgs 18:30).

[11] tn Heb "only in all the desire of your soul you may sacrifice and eat flesh according to the blessing of the LORD your God which he has given to you."

[12] tn Heb "gates" (so KJV, NASB; likewise in vv. 17, 18).

[13] tn Heb "the LORD your God." See note on "he" in 12:5.

[14] tn See note at Deut 12:12.

[15] tn Heb "in all the sending forth of your hands."

[16] tn Heb "for my soul desires to eat meat."

[17] tn Heb "according to all the desire of your soul you may eat meat."

[18] tn Heb "the LORD your God." See note on "he" in 12:5.

[19] tn Heb "the LORD." See note on "he" in 12:5.

[20] tn Heb "gates" (so KJV, NASB); NAB "in your own community."

[21] sn The blood is life itself. This is a figure of speech (metonymy) in which the cause or means (the blood) stands for the result or effect (life). That is, life depends upon the existence and circulation of blood, a truth known empirically but not scientifically tested and proved until the 17th century A.D. (cf. Lev 17:11).

[22] tc Heb "in the eyes of the LORD." The LXX adds "your God" to create the common formula, "the LORD your God." The MT is preferred precisely because it does not include the stereotyped formula; thus it more likely preserves the original text.

[23] tc Again, to complete a commonly attested wording the LXX adds after "choose" the phrase "to place his name there." This shows insensitivity to deliberate departures from literary stereotypes. The MT reading is to be preferred.

[24] sn These other sacrifices would be so-called peace or fellowship offerings whose ritual required a different use of the blood from that of burnt (sin and trespass) offerings (cf. Lev 3; 7:11-14, 19-21).

[25] tn Heb "on the altar of the LORD your God." The pronoun has been used in the translation for stylistic reasons to avoid redundancy.

after you when you do what is good and right in the sight of the LORD your God.

The Abomination of Pagan Gods

12:29 When the LORD your God eliminates the nations from the place where you are headed and you dispossess them, you will settle down in their land.[1] 12:30 After they have been destroyed from your presence, be careful not to be ensnared like they are; do not pursue their gods and say, "How do these nations serve their gods? I will do the same." 12:31 You must not worship the LORD your God the way they do![2] For everything that is abhorrent[3] to him,[4] everything he hates, they have done when worshiping their gods. They even burn up their sons and daughters before their gods!

Idolatry and False Prophets

12:32 (13:1)[5] You[6] must be careful to do everything I am commanding you. Do not add to it or subtract from it![7] 13:1 Suppose a prophet or one who foretells by dreams[8] should appear among you and show you a sign or wonder,[9] 13:2 and the sign or wonder should come to pass concerning what he said to you, namely, "Let us follow other gods" – gods whom you have not previously known – "and let us serve them." 13:3 You must not listen to the words of that prophet or dreamer,[10] for the LORD your God will be testing you to see if you love him[11] with all your mind and being.[12] 13:4 You must follow the LORD your God and revere only him; and you must observe his commandments, obey him, serve him, and remain loyal to him. 13:5 As for that prophet or dreamer,[13] he must be executed because he encouraged rebellion against the LORD your God who brought you from the land of Egypt, redeeming you from that place of slavery, and because he has tried to entice you from the way the LORD your God has commanded you to go. In this way you must purge out evil from within.[14]

False Prophets in the Family

13:6 Suppose your own full brother,[15] your son, your daughter, your beloved wife, or your closest friend should seduce you secretly and encourage you to go and serve other gods[16] that neither you nor your ancestors[17] have previously known,[18] 13:7 the gods of the surrounding people (whether near you or far from you, from one end of the earth[19] to the other). 13:8 You must

[1] tn Heb "dwell in their land" (so NASB). In the Hebrew text vv. 29-30 are one long sentence. For stylistic reasons the translation divides it into two.

[2] tn Heb "you must not do thus to/for the LORD your God."

[3] tn See note on this term at Deut 7:25.

[4] tn Heb "every abomination of the LORD." See note on the word "his" in v. 27.

[5] sn Beginning with 12:32, the verse numbers through 13:18 in the English Bible differ from the verse numbers in the Hebrew text (BHS), with 12:32 ET = 13:1 HT, 13:1 ET = 13:2 HT, 13:2 ET = 13:3 HT, etc., through 13:18 ET = 13:19 HT. With 14:1 the verse numbers in the ET and HT are again the same.

[6] tn This verse highlights a phenomenon found throughout Deuteronomy, but most especially in chap. 12, namely, the alternation of grammatical singular and plural forms of the pronoun (known as Numeruswechsel in German scholarship). Critical scholarship in general resolves the "problem" by suggesting varying literary traditions – one favorable to the singular pronoun and the other to the plural – which appear in the (obviously rough) redacted text at hand. Even the ancient versions were troubled by the lack of harmony of grammatical number and in this verse, for example, offered a number of alternate readings. The MT reads "Everything I am commanding you (plural) you (plural) must be careful to do; you (singular) must not add to it nor should you (singular) subtract form it." Smr, LXX, Syriac, and Vulgate suggest singular for the first two pronouns but a few Smr MSS propose plural for the last two. What both ancient and modern scholars tend to overlook, however, is the covenantal theological tone of the Book of Deuteronomy, one that views Israel as a collective body (singular) made up of many individuals (plural). See M. Weinfeld, Deuteronomy 1–11 (AB), 15-16; J. A. Thompson, Deuteronomy (TOTC), 21-23.

[7] sn Do not add to it or subtract from it. This prohibition makes at least two profound theological points: (1) This work by Moses is of divine origination (i.e., it is inspired) and therefore can tolerate no human alteration; and (2) the work is complete as it stands (i.e., it is canonical).

[8] tn Heb "or a dreamer of dreams" (so KJV, ASV, NASB). The difference between a prophet (נָבִיא, navi') and one who foretells by dreams (חֹלֵם אוֹ, 'o kholem) was not so much one of office – for both received revelation by dreams (cf. Num 12:6) – as it was of function or emphasis. The prophet was more a proclaimer and interpreter of revelation whereas the one who foretold by dreams was a receiver of revelation. In later times the role of the one who foretold by dreams was abused and thus denigrated as compared to that of the prophet (cf. Jer 23:28).

[9] tn The expression אוֹת אוֹ מוֹפֵת ('ot 'o mofet) became a formulaic way of speaking of ways of authenticating prophetic messages or other works of God (cf. Deut 28:46; Isa 20:3). The NT equivalent is the Greek term σημεῖον (sēmeion), a sign performed (used frequently in the Gospel of John, cf. 2:11, 18; 20:30-31). They could, however, be counterfeited or (as here) permitted by the LORD to false prophets as a means of testing his people.

[10] tn Heb "or dreamer of dreams." See note on this expression in v. 1.

[11] tn Heb "the LORD your God." The pronoun has been used in the translation for stylistic reasons to avoid redundancy.

[12] tn Heb "all your heart and soul" (so NRSV, CEV, NLT); or "heart and being" (NCV "your whole being"). See note on the word "being" in Deut 6:5.

[13] tn Heb "or dreamer of dreams." See note on this expression in v. 1.

[14] tn Heb "your midst" (so NAB, NRSV). The severity of the judgment here (i.e., capital punishment) is because of the severity of the sin, namely, high treason against the Great King. Idolatry is a violation of the first two commandments (Deut 5:6-10) as well as the spirit and intent of the Shema (Deut 6:4-5).

[15] tn Heb "your brother, the son of your mother." In a polygamous society it was not rare to have half brothers and sisters by way of a common father and different mothers.

[16] tn In the Hebrew text these words are in the form of a brief quotation: "entice you secretly saying, 'Let us go and serve other gods.'"

[17] tn Heb "fathers" (also in v. 17).

[18] tn Heb "which you have not known, you or your fathers." (cf. KJV, ASV; on "fathers" cf. v. 18).

[19] tn Or "land" (so NIV, NCV); the same Hebrew word can be translated "land" or "earth."

not give in to him or even listen to him; do not feel sympathy for him or spare him or cover up for him. 13:9 Instead, you must kill him without fail![1] Your own hand must be the first to strike him,[2] and then the hands of the whole community. 13:10 You must stone him to death[3] because he tried to entice you away from the LORD your God, who delivered you from the land of Egypt, that place of slavery. 13:11 Thus all Israel will hear and be afraid; no longer will they continue to do evil like this among you.[4]

Punishment of Community Idolatry

13:12 Suppose you should hear in one of your cities, which the LORD your God is giving you as a place to live, that 13:13 some evil people[5] have departed from among you to entice the inhabitants of their cities,[6] saying, "Let's go and serve other gods" (whom you have not known before).[7] 13:14 You must investigate thoroughly and inquire carefully. If it is indeed true that such a disgraceful thing is being done among you,[8] 13:15 you must by all means[9] slaughter the inhabitants of that city with the sword; annihilate[10] with the sword everyone in it, as well as the livestock. 13:16 You must gather all of its plunder into the middle of the plaza[11] and burn the city and all its plunder as a whole burnt offering to the LORD your God. It will be an abandoned ruin[12] forever – it must never be rebuilt again. 13:17 You must not take for yourself anything that has been placed under judgment.[13] Then the LORD will relent from his intense anger, show you compassion, have mercy on you, and multiply you as he promised your ancestors. 13:18 Thus you must obey the LORD your God, keeping all his commandments that I am giving[14] you today and doing what is right[15] before him.[16]

The Holy and the Profane

14:1 You are children[17] of the LORD your God. Do not cut yourselves or shave your forehead bald[18] for the sake of the dead. 14:2 For you are a people holy[19] to the LORD your God. He[20] has chosen you to be his people, prized[21] above all others on the face of the earth. 14:3 You must not eat any forbidden[22] thing. 14:4 These are the animals you may eat: the ox, the sheep, the goat, 14:5 the ibex,[23] the gazelle,[24] the deer,[25] the wild

---

1 tn The Hebrew text uses the infinitive absolute for emphasis, which the translation indicates with the words "without fail" (cf. NIV "you must certainly put him to death").

2 tn Heb "to put him to death," but this is misleading in English for such an action would leave nothing for the others to do.

3 sn Execution by means of pelting the offender with stones afforded a mechanism whereby the whole community could share in it. In a very real sense it could be done not only in the name of the community and on its behalf but by its members (cf. Lev 24:14; Num 15:35; Deut 21:21; Josh 7:25).

4 sn Some see in this statement an argument for the deterrent effect of capital punishment (Deut 17:13; 19:20; 21:21).

5 tn Heb "men, sons of Belial." The Hebrew term בְּלִיַּעַל (bᵉliyya'al) has the idea of worthlessness, without morals or scruples (HALOT 133-34 s.v.). Cf. NAB, NRSV "scoundrels"; TEV, CEV "worthless people"; NLT "worthless rabble."

6 tc The LXX and Tg read "your" for the MT's "their."

7 tn The translation understands the relative clause as a statement by Moses, not as part of the quotation from the evildoers. See also v. 2.

8 tc Theodotian adds "in Israel," perhaps to broaden the matter beyond the local village.

9 tn The Hebrew text uses the infinitive absolute for emphasis, indicated in the translation by the words "by all means." Cf. KJV, NASB "surely"; NIV "certainly."

10 tn Or "put under divine judgment. The Hebrew word (חֵרֶם, kherem) refers to placing persons or things under God's judgment, usually to the extent of their complete destruction. Though primarily applied against the heathen, this severe judgment could also fall upon unrepentant Israelites (cf. the story of Achan in Josh 7). See also the note on the phrase "divine judgment" in Deut 2:34.

11 tn Heb "street."

12 tn Heb "mound"; NAB "a heap of ruins." The Hebrew word תֵּל (tel) refers to this day to a ruin represented especially by a built-up mound of dirt or debris (cf. Tel Aviv, "mound of grain").

13 tn Or "anything that has been put under the divine curse"; Heb "anything of the ban" (cf. NASB). See note on the phrase "divine judgment" in Deut 2:34.

14 tn Heb "commanding" (so NASB, NRSV).

15 tc The LXX and Smr add "and good" to bring the phrase in line with a familiar cliché (cf. Deut 6:18; Josh 9:25; 2 Kgs 10:3; 2 Chr 14:1; etc.). This is an unnecessary and improper attempt to force a text into a preconceived mold.

16 tn Heb "in the eyes of the LORD your God." See note on the word "him" in v. 3.

17 tn Heb "sons" (so NASB); TEV, NLT "people."

18 sn Do not cut yourselves or shave your forehead bald. These were pagan practices associated with mourning the dead; they were not be imitated by God's people (though they frequently were; cf. 1 Kgs 18:28; Jer 16:6; 41:5; 47:5; Hos 7:14 [LXX]; Mic 5:1). For other warnings against such practices see Lev 21:5; Jer 16:5.

19 tn Or "set apart."

20 tn Heb "The LORD." The pronoun has been used in the translation for stylistic reasons to avoid redundancy.

21 tn Or "treasured." The Hebrew term סְגֻלָּה (sᵉgullah) describes Israel as God's choice people, those whom he elected and who are most precious to him (cf. Exod 19:4-6; Deut 14:2; 26:18; 1 Chr 29:3; Ps 135:4; Eccl 2:8 Mal 3:17). See E. Carpenter, NIDOTTE 3:224.

sn The Hebrew term translated "select" (and the whole verse) is reminiscent of the classic covenant text (Exod 19:4-6) which describes Israel's entry into covenant relationship with the LORD. Israel must resist paganism and its trappings precisely because she is a holy people elected by the LORD from among the nations to be his instrument of world redemption (cf. Deut 7:6; 26:18; Ps 135:4; Mal 3:17; Titus 2:14; 1 Pet 2:9).

22 tn The Hebrew word תּוֹעֵבָה (to'evah, "forbidden; abhorrent") describes anything detestable to the LORD because of its innate evil or inconsistency with his own nature and character. See note on the word "abhorrent" in Deut 7:25. Cf. KJV "abominable"; NIV "detestable"; NRSV "abhorrent."

23 tn The Hebrew term אַיָּל ('ayyal) may refer to a type of deer (cf. Arabic 'ayyal). Cf. NAB "the red deer."

24 tn The Hebrew term צְבִי (tsᵉvi) is sometimes rendered "roebuck" (so KJV).

25 tn The Hebrew term יַחְמוּר (yakhmur) may refer to a "fallow deer"; cf. Arabic yahmur ("deer"). Cf. NAB, NIV, NCV "roe deer"; NEB, NRSV, NLT "roebuck."

goat, the antelope,[1] the wild oryx,[2] and the mountain sheep.[3] 14:6 You may eat any animal that has hooves divided into two parts and that chews the cud.[4] 14:7 However, you may not eat the following animals among those that chew the cud or those that have divided hooves: the camel, the hare, and the rock badger.[5] (Although they chew the cud, they do not have divided hooves and are therefore ritually impure to you). 14:8 Also the pig is ritually impure to you; though it has divided hooves,[6] it does not chew the cud. You may not eat their meat or even touch their remains. 14:9 These you may eat from among water creatures: anything with fins and scales you may eat, 14:10 but whatever does not have fins and scales you may not eat; it is ritually impure to you. 14:11 All ritually clean birds you may eat. 14:12 These are the ones you may not eat: the eagle,[7] the vulture,[8] the black vulture,[9] 14:13 the kite, the black kite, the dayyah[10] after its species, 14:14 every raven after its species, 14:15 the ostrich,[11] the owl,[12] the seagull, the falcon[13] after its species, 14:16 the little owl, the long-eared owl, the white owl,[14] 14:17 the jackdaw,[15] the carrion vulture, the cormorant, 14:18 the stork, the heron after its species, the hoopoe, the bat, 14:19 and any winged thing on the ground are impure to you – they may not be eaten.[16] 14:20 You may eat any clean bird. 14:21 You may not eat any corpse, though you may give it to the resident foreigner who is living in your villages[17] and he may eat it, or you may sell it to a foreigner. You are a people holy to the LORD your God. Do not boil a young goat in its mother's milk.[18]

The Offering of Tribute

14:22 You must be certain to tithe[19] all the produce of your seed that comes from the field year after year. 14:23 In the presence of the LORD your God you must eat from the tithe of your grain, your new wine,[20] your olive oil, and the firstborn of your herds and flocks in the place he chooses to locate his name, so that you may learn to revere the LORD your God always. 14:24 When he[21] blesses you, if the[22] place where he chooses to locate his name is distant, 14:25 you may convert the tithe into money, secure the money,[23] and travel to the place the LORD your God chooses for himself. 14:26 Then you may spend the money however you wish for cattle, sheep, wine, beer, or whatever you desire. You and your household may eat there in the

[1] tn The Hebrew term דִּישׁוֹן (dishon) is a hapax legomenon. Its referent is uncertain but the animal is likely a variety of antelope (cf. NEB "white-rumped deer"; NIV, NRSV, NLT "ibex").

[2] tn The Hebrew term תְּאוֹ (t'o; a variant is תוֹא, to') could also refer to another species of antelope. Cf. NEB "long-horned antelope"; NIV, NRSV "antelope."

[3] tn The Hebrew term זְמֶר (zemer) is another hapax legomenon with the possible meaning "wild sheep." Cf. KJV, ASV "chamois"; NEB "rock-goat"; NAB, NIV, NRSV, NLT "mountain sheep."

[4] tn The Hebrew text includes "among the animals." This has not been included in the translation for stylistic reasons.

[5] tn The Hebrew term שָׁפָן (shafan) may refer to the "coney" (cf. KJV, NIV) or hyrax ("rock badger," cf. NAB, NASB, NRSV, NLT).

[6] tc The MT lacks (probably by haplography) the phrase וְשֹׁסַע שֶׁסַע פַּרְסָה (v'shosa' shesa' parsah, "and is clovenfooted," i.e., "has parted hooves"), a phrase found in the otherwise exact parallel in Lev 11:7. The LXX and Smr attest the longer reading here. The meaning is, however, clear without it.

[7] tn NEB "the griffon-vulture."

[8] tn The Hebrew term פֶּרֶס (peres) describes a large vulture otherwise known as the ossifrage (cf. KJV). This largest of the vultures takes its name from its habit of dropping skeletal remains from a great height so as to break the bones apart.

[9] tn The Hebrew term עָזְנִיָּה ('ozniyyah) may describe the black vulture (so NIV) or it may refer to the osprey (so NAB, NRSV, NLT), an eagle-like bird subsisting mainly on fish.

[10] tn The Hebrew term is דַּיָּה (dayyah). This, with the previous two terms (רָאָה [ra'ah] and אַיָּה ['ayyah]), is probably a kite of some species but otherwise impossible to specify.

[11] tn Or "owl." The Hebrew term בַּת הַיַּעֲנָה (bat hayya'anah) is sometimes taken as "ostrich" (so ASV, NAB, NASB, NRSV, NLT), but may refer instead to some species of owl (cf. KJV "owl"; NEB "desert-owl"; NIV "horned owl").

[12] tn The Hebrew term תַּחְמָס (takhmas) is either a type of owl (cf. NEB "short-eared owl"; NIV "screech owl") or possibly the nighthawk (so NRSV, NLT).

[13] tn The Hebrew term נֵץ (nets) may refer to the falcon or perhaps the hawk (so NEB, NIV).

[14] tn The Hebrew term תִּנְשֶׁמֶת (tinshemet) may refer to a species of owl (cf. ASV "horned owl"; NASB, NIV, NLT "white owl") or perhaps even to the swan (so KJV); cf. NRSV "water hen."

[15] tn The Hebrew term קָאַת (qa'at) may also refer to a type of owl (NAB, NIV, NRSV "desert owl") or perhaps the pelican (so KJV, NASB, NLT).

[16] tc The MT reads the Niphal (passive) for expected Qal ("you [plural] must not eat"); cf. Smr, LXX. However, the harder reading should stand.

[17] tn Heb "gates" (also in vv. 27, 28, 29).

[18] sn Do not boil a young goat in its mother's milk. This strange prohibition – one whose rationale is unclear but probably related to pagan ritual – may seem out of place here but actually is not for the following reasons: (1) the passage as a whole opens with a prohibition against heathen mourning rites (i.e., death, vv. 1-2) and closes with what appear to be birth and infancy rites. (2) In the other two places where the stipulation occurs (Exod 23:19 and Exod 34:26) it similarly concludes major sections. (3) Whatever the practice signified it clearly was abhorrent to the LORD and fittingly concludes the topic of various breaches of purity and holiness as represented by the ingestion of unclean animals (vv. 3-21). See C. M. Carmichael, "On Separating Life and Death: An Explanation of Some Biblical Laws," HTR 69 (1976): 1-7; J. Milgrom, "You Shall Not Boil a Kid In Its Mother's Milk," BRev 1 (1985): 48-55; R. J. Ratner and B. Zuckerman, "In Rereading the 'Kid in Milk' Inscriptions," BRev 1 (1985): 56-58; and M. Haran, "Seething a Kid in its Mother's Milk," JJS 30 (1979): 23-35.

[19] tn The Hebrew text uses the infinitive absolute for emphasis, indicated in the translation by the words "be certain."

[20] tn This refers to wine in the early stages of fermentation. In its later stages it becomes wine (יַיִן, yayin) in its mature sense.

[21] tn Heb "the LORD your God." See note on "He" in 14:2.

[22] tn The Hebrew text includes "way is so far from you that you are unable to carry it because the." These words have not been included in the translation for stylistic reasons, because they are redundant.

[23] tn Heb "bind the silver in your hand."

presence of the LORD your God and enjoy it. 14:27 As for the Levites in your villages, you must not ignore them, for they have no allotment or inheritance along with you. 14:28 At the end of every three years you must bring all the tithe of your produce, in that very year, and you must store it up in your villages. 14:29 Then the Levites (because they have no allotment or inheritance with you), the resident foreigners, the orphans, and the widows of your villages may come and eat their fill so that the LORD your God may bless you in all the work you do.

Release for Debt Slaves

15:1 At the end of every seven years you must declare a cancellation[1] of debts. 15:2 This is the nature of the cancellation: Every creditor must remit what he has loaned to another person;[2] he must not force payment from his fellow Israelite,[3] for it is to be recognized as "the LORD's cancellation of debts." 15:3 You may exact payment from a foreigner, but whatever your fellow Israelite[4] owes you, you must remit. 15:4 However, there should not be any poor among you, for the LORD[5] will surely bless[6] you in the land that he[7] is giving you as an inheritance,[8] 15:5 if you carefully obey[9] him[10] by keeping[11] all these commandments that I am giving[12] you today. 15:6 For the LORD your God will bless you just as he has promised; you will lend to many nations but will not borrow from any, and you will rule over many nations but they will not rule over you.

The Spirit of Liberality

15:7 If a fellow Israelite[13] from one of your villages[14] in the land that the LORD your God is giving you should be poor, you must not harden your heart or be insensitive[15] to his impoverished condition.[16] 15:8 Instead, you must be sure to open your hand to him and generously lend[17] him whatever he needs.[18] 15:9 Be careful lest you entertain the wicked thought that the seventh year, the year of cancellation of debts, has almost arrived, and your attitude[19] be wrong toward your impoverished fellow Israelite[20] and you do not lend[21] him anything; he will cry out to the LORD against you and you will be regarded as having sinned.[22] 15:10 You must by all means lend[23] to him and not be upset by doing it,[24] for because of this the LORD your God will bless you in all your work and in everything you attempt. 15:11 There will never cease to be some poor people in the land; therefore, I am commanding you to make sure you open[25] your hand to your fellow Israelites[26] who are needy and poor in your land.

1 tn The Hebrew term שְׁמִטָּה (shᵉmittat), a derivative of the verb שָׁמַט (shamat, "to release; to relinquish"), refers to the cancellation of the debt and even pledges for the debt of a borrower by his creditor. This could be a full and final remission or, more likely, one for the seventh year only. See R. Wakely, NIDOTTE 4:155-60. Here the words "of debts" are not in the Hebrew text, but are implied. Cf. NAB "a relaxation of debts"; NASB, NRSV "a remission of debts."

2 tn Heb "his neighbor," used idiomatically to refer to another person.

3 tn Heb "his neighbor and his brother." The words "his brother" may be a scribal gloss identifying "his neighbor" (on this idiom, see the preceding note) as a fellow Israelite (cf. v. 3). In this case the conjunction before "his brother" does not introduce a second category, but rather has the force of "that is."

4 tn Heb "your brother."

5 tc After the phrase "the LORD" many MSS and versions add "your God" to complete the usual full epithet.

6 tn The Hebrew text uses the infinitive absolute for emphasis, which the translation indicates with "surely." Note however, that the use is rhetorical, for the next verse attaches a condition.

7 tn Heb "the LORD your God." The pronoun has been used in the translation for stylistic reasons to avoid redundancy.

8 tn The Hebrew text includes "to possess."

9 tn Heb "if listening you listen to the voice of." The infinitive absolute is used for emphasis, which the translation indicates with "carefully." The idiom "listen to the voice" means "obey."

10 tn Heb "the LORD your God." See note on "he" in 15:4.

11 tn Heb "by being careful to do."

12 tn Heb "commanding" (so NASB); NAB "which I enjoin you today."

13 tn Heb "one of your brothers" (so NASB); NAB "one of your kinsmen"; NRSV "a member of your community." See the note at v. 2.

14 tn Heb "gates."

15 tn Heb "withdraw your hand." Cf. NIV "hardhearted or tightfisted" (NRSV and NLT similar).

16 tn Heb "from your needy brother."

17 tn The Hebrew text uses the infinitive absolute before both verbs. The translation indicates the emphasis with the words "be sure to" and "generously," respectively.

18 tn Heb "whatever his need that he needs for himself." This redundant expression has been simplified in the translation for stylistic reasons.

19 tn Heb "your eye."

20 tn Heb "your needy brother."

21 tn Heb "give" (likewise in v. 10).

22 tn Heb "it will be a sin to you."

23 tn The Hebrew text uses the infinitive absolute for emphasis, which the translation indicates with "by all means."

24 tc Heb "your heart must not be grieved in giving to him." The LXX and Orig add, "you shall surely lend to him sufficient for his need," a suggestion based on the same basic idea in v. 8. Such slavish adherence to stock phrases is without warrant in most cases, and certainly here.

25 tn The Hebrew text uses the infinitive absolute for emphasis, which the translation indicates with "make sure."

26 tn Heb "your brother."

Release of Debt Slaves

15:12 If your fellow Hebrew[1] – whether male or female[2] – is sold to you and serves you for six years, then in the seventh year you must let that servant[3] go free.[4] 15:13 If you set them free, you must not send them away empty-handed. 15:14 You must supply them generously[5] from your flock, your threshing floor, and your winepress – as the LORD your God has blessed you, you must give to them. 15:15 Remember that you were a slave in the land of Egypt and the LORD your God redeemed you; therefore, I am commanding you to do this thing today. 15:16 However, if the servant[6] says to you, "I do not want to leave[7] you," because he loves you and your household, since he is well off with you, 15:17 you shall take an awl and pierce a hole through his ear to the door.[8] Then he will become your servant permanently (this applies to your female servant as well). 15:18 You should not consider it difficult to let him go free, for he will have served you for six years, twice[9] the time of a hired worker; the LORD your God will bless you in everything you do.

Giving God the Best

15:19 You must set apart[10] for the LORD your God every firstborn male born to your herds and flocks. You must not work the firstborn of your bulls or shear the firstborn of your flocks. 15:20 You and your household must eat them annually before the LORD your God in the place he[11] chooses. 15:21 If they have any kind of blemish – lameness, blindness, or anything else[12] – you may not offer them as a sacrifice to the LORD your God. 15:22 You may eat it in your villages,[13] whether you are ritually impure or clean,[14] just as you would eat a gazelle or an ibex. 15:23 However, you must not eat its blood; you must pour it out on the ground like water.

The Passover-Unleavened Bread Festival

16:1 Observe the month Abib[15] and keep the Passover to the LORD your God, for in that month[16] he[17] brought you out of Egypt by night. 16:2 You must sacrifice the Passover animal[18] (from the flock or the herd) to the LORD your God in the place where he[19] chooses to locate his name. 16:3 You must not eat any yeast with it; for seven days you must eat bread made without yeast, symbolic of affliction, for you came out of Egypt hurriedly. You must do this so you will remember for the rest of your life the day you came out of the land of Egypt. 16:4 There must not be a scrap of yeast within your land[20] for seven days, nor can any of the meat you sacrifice on the evening of the first day remain until the next morning.[21] 16:5 You may not sacrifice the Passover in just any of your villages[22] that the LORD your God is giving you,

[1] sn Elsewhere in the OT, the Israelites are called "Hebrews" (עִבְרִי, 'ivriy) by outsiders, rarely by themselves (cf. Gen 14:13; 39:14, 17; 41:12; Exod 1:15, 16, 19; 2:6, 7, 11, 13; 1 Sam 4:6; Jonah 1:9). Thus, here and in the parallel passage in Exod 21:2-6 the term עִבְרִי may designate non-Israelites, specifically a people well-known throughout the ancient Near East as 'apiru or habiru. They lived a rather vagabond lifestyle, frequently hiring themselves out as laborers or mercenary soldiers. While accounting nicely for the surprising use of the term here in an Israelite law code, the suggestion has against it the unlikelihood that a set of laws would address such a marginal people so specifically (as opposed to simply calling them aliens or the like). More likely עִבְרִי is chosen as a term to remind Israel that when they were "Hebrews," that is, when they were in Egypt, they were slaves. Now that they are free they must not keep their fellow Israelites in economic bondage. See v. 15.

[2] tn Heb "your brother, a Hebrew (male) or Hebrew (female)."

[3] tn Heb "him." The singular pronoun occurs throughout the passage.

[4] tn The Hebrew text includes "from you."

[5] tn The Hebrew text uses the infinitive absolute for emphasis, which the translation indicates with "generously."

[6] tn Heb "he"; the referent (the indentured servant introduced in v. 12) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[7] tn Heb "go out from." The imperfect verbal form indicates the desire of the subject here.

[8] sn When the bondslave's ear was drilled through to the door, the door in question was that of the master's house. In effect, the bondslave is declaring his undying and lifelong loyalty to his creditor. The scar (or even hole) in the earlobe would testify to the community that the slave had surrendered independence and personal rights. This may be what Paul had in mind when he said "I bear on my body the marks of Jesus" (Gal 6:17).

[9] tn The Hebrew term מִשְׁנֶה (mishneh, "twice") could mean "equivalent to" (cf. NRSV) or, more likely, "double" (cf. NAB, NIV, NLT). The idea is that a hired worker would put in only so many hours per day whereas a bondslave was available around the clock.

[10] tn Heb "sanctify" (תַּקְדִּישׁ, taqdish), that is, put to use on behalf of the LORD.

[11] tn Heb "the LORD." The translation uses a pronoun for stylistic reasons. See note on "he" in 15:4.

[12] tn Heb "any evil blemish"; NASB "any (+ other NAB, TEV) serious defect."

[13] tn Heb "in your gates."

[14] tc The LXX adds ἐν σοί (en soi, "among you") to make clear that the antecedent is the people and not the animals. That is, the people, whether ritually purified or not, may eat such defective animals.

[15] sn The month Abib, later called Nisan (Neh 2:1; Esth 3:7), corresponds to March-April in the modern calendar.

[16] tn Heb "in the month Abib." The demonstrative "that" has been used in the translation for stylistic reasons.

[17] tn Heb "the LORD your God." The pronoun has been used in the translation for stylistic reasons to avoid redundancy.

[18] tn Heb "sacrifice the Passover" (so NASB). The word "animal" has been supplied in the translation for clarity.

[19] tn Heb "the LORD." See note on "he" in the previous verse.

[20] tn Heb "leaven must not be seen among you in all your border."

[21] tn Heb "remain all night until the morning" (so KJV, ASV). This has been simplified in the translation for stylistic reasons.

[22] tn Heb "gates."

16:6 but you must sacrifice it[1] in the evening in[2] the place where he[3] chooses to locate his name, at sunset, the time of day you came out of Egypt. 16:7 You must cook[4] and eat it in the place the LORD your God chooses; you may return the next morning to your tents. 16:8 You must eat bread made without yeast for six days. The seventh day you are to hold an assembly for the LORD your God; you must not do any work on that day.[5]

The Festival of Weeks

16:9 You must count seven weeks; you must begin to count them[6] from the time you begin to harvest the standing grain. 16:10 Then you are to celebrate the Festival of Weeks[7] before the LORD your God with the voluntary offering[8] that you will bring, in proportion to how he[9] has blessed you. 16:11 You shall rejoice before him[10] – you, your son, your daughter, your male and female slaves, the Levites in your villages,[11] the resident foreigners, the orphans, and the widows among you – in the place where the LORD chooses to locate his name. 16:12 Furthermore, remember that you were a slave in Egypt, and so be careful to observe these statutes.

The Festival of Temporary Shelters

16:13 You must celebrate the Festival of Temporary Shelters[12] for seven days, at the time of the grain and grape harvest.[13] 16:14 You are to rejoice in your festival, you, your son, your daughter, your male and female slaves, the Levites, the resident foreigners, the orphans, and the widows who are in your villages.[14] 16:15 You are to celebrate the festival seven days before the LORD your God in the place he[15] chooses, for he[16] will bless you in all your productivity and in whatever you do;[17] so you will indeed rejoice! 16:16 Three times a year all your males must appear before the LORD your God in the place he chooses for the Festival of Unleavened Bread, the Festival of Weeks, and the Festival of Temporary Shelters; and they must not appear before him[18] empty-handed. 16:17 Every one of you must give as you are able,[19] according to the blessing of the LORD your God that he has given you.

Provision for Justice

16:18 You must appoint judges and civil servants[20] for each tribe in all your villages[21] that the LORD your God is giving you, and they must judge the people fairly.[22] 16:19 You must not pervert justice or show favor. Do not take a bribe, for bribes blind the eyes of the wise and distort[23] the words of the righteous.[24] 16:20 You must pursue justice alone[25] so that you may live and inherit the land the LORD your God is giving you.

---

1 tn Heb "the Passover." The translation uses a pronoun to avoid redundancy in English.

2 tc The MT reading אֶל ('el, "unto") before "the place" should, following Smr, Syriac, Targums, and Vulgate, be omitted in favor of ב (bet; בַּמָּקוֹם, bammaqom), "in the place."

3 tn Heb "the LORD your God." See note on "he" in 16:1.

4 tn The rules that governed the Passover meal are found in Exod 12:1-51, and Deut 16:1-8. The word translated "cook" (בָּשַׁל, bashal) here is translated "boil" in other places (e.g. Exod 23:19, 1 Sam 2:13-15). This would seem to contradict Exod 12:9 where the Israelites are told not to eat the Passover sacrifice raw or boiled. However, 2 Chr 35:13 recounts the celebration of a Passover feast during the reign of Josiah, and explains that the people "cooked (בָּשַׁל, bashal) the Passover sacrifices over the open fire." The use of בָּשַׁל (bashal) with "fire" (אֵשׁ, 'esh) suggests that the word could be used to speak of boiling or roasting.

5 tn The words "on that day" are not in the Hebrew text; they are supplied in the translation for clarification (cf. TEV, NLT).

6 tn Heb "the seven weeks." The translation uses a pronoun to avoid redundancy in English.

7 tn The Hebrew phrase חַג שָׁבֻעוֹת (khag shavu'ot) is otherwise known in the OT (Exod 23:16) as קָצִיר (qatsir, "harvest") and in the NT as πεντηκοστή (pentēchostē, "Pentecost").

8 tn Heb "the sufficiency of the offering of your hand."

9 tn Heb "the LORD your God." See note on "he" in 16:1.

10 tn Heb "the LORD your God." See note on "he" in 16:1.

11 tn Heb "gates."

12 tn The Hebrew phrase חַג הַסֻּכּוֹת (khag hassukot, "festival of huts" or "festival of shelters") is traditionally known as the Feast of Tabernacles. The rendering "booths" (cf. NAB, NASB, NRSV) is now preferable to the traditional "tabernacles" (KJV, ASV, NIV) in light of the meaning of the term סֻכָּה (sukkah, "hut; booth"), but "booths" are frequently associated with trade shows and craft fairs in contemporary American English. Clearer is the English term "shelters" (so NCV, TEV, CEV, NLT), but this does not reflect the temporary nature of the living arrangement. This feast was a commemoration of the wanderings of the Israelites after they left Egypt, suggesting that a translation like "temporary shelters" is more appropriate.

13 tn Heb "when you gather in your threshing-floor and winepress."

14 tn Heb "in your gates."

15 tn Heb "the LORD." See note on "he" in 16:1.

16 tn Heb "the LORD your God." See note on "he" in 16:1.

17 tn Heb "in all the work of your hands" (so NASB, NIV); NAB, NRSV "in all your undertakings."

18 tn Heb "the LORD." See note on "he" in 16:1.

19 tn Heb "a man must give according to the gift of his hand." This has been translated as second person for stylistic reasons, in keeping with the second half of the verse, which is second person rather than third.

20 tn The Hebrew term וְשֹׁטְרִים (v^eshoterim), usually translated "officers" (KJV, NCV) or "officials" (NAB, NIV, NRSV, NLT), derives from the verb שָׁטַר (shoter, "to write"). The noun became generic for all types of public officials. Here, however, it may be appositionally epexegetical to "judges," thus resulting in the phrase, "judges, that is, civil officers," etc. Whoever the שֹׁטְרִים are, their task here consists of rendering judgments and administering justice.

21 tn Heb "gates."

22 tn Heb "with judgment of righteousness"; ASV, NASB "with righteous judgment."

23 tn Heb "twist, overturn"; NRSV "subverts the cause."

24 tn Or "innocent"; NRSV "those who are in the right"; NLT "the godly."

25 tn Heb "justice, justice." The repetition is emphatic; one might translate as "pure justice" or "unadulterated justice" (cf. NLT "true justice").

Examples of Legal Cases

16:21 You must not plant any kind of tree as a sacred Asherah pole[1] near the altar of the LORD your God which you build for yourself. 16:22 You must not erect a sacred pillar,[2] a thing the LORD your God detests. 17:1 You must not sacrifice to him[3] a bull or sheep that has a blemish or any other defect, because that is considered offensive[4] to the LORD your God. 17:2 Suppose a man or woman is discovered among you – in one of your villages[5] that the LORD your God is giving you – who sins before the LORD your God[6] and breaks his covenant 17:3 by serving other gods and worshiping them – the sun,[7] moon, or any other heavenly bodies which I have not permitted you to worship.[8] 17:4 When it is reported to you and you hear about it, you must investigate carefully. If it is indeed true that such a disgraceful thing[9] is being done in Israel, 17:5 you must bring to your city gates[10] that man or woman who has done this wicked thing – that very man or woman – and you must stone that person to death.[11] 17:6 At the testimony of two or three witnesses they must be executed. They cannot be put to death on the testimony of only one witness. 17:7 The witnesses[12] must be first to begin the execution, and then all the people[13] are to join in afterward. In this way you will purge evil from among you.

Appeal to a Higher Court

17:8 If a matter is too difficult for you to judge – bloodshed,[14] legal claim,[15] or assault[16] – matters of controversy in your villages[17] – you must leave there and go up to the place the LORD your God chooses.[18] 17:9 You will go to the Levitical priests and the judge in office in those days and seek a solution; they will render a verdict. 17:10 You must then do as they have determined at that place the LORD chooses. Be careful to do just as you are taught. 17:11 You must do what you are instructed, and the verdict they pronounce to you, without fail. Do not deviate right or left from what they tell you. 17:12 The person who pays no attention[19] to the priest currently serving the LORD your God there, or to the verdict – that person must die, so that you may purge evil from Israel. 17:13 Then all the people will hear and be afraid, and not be so presumptuous again.

Provision for Kingship

17:14 When you come to the land the LORD your God is giving you and take it over and live in it and then say, "I will select a king like all the nations surrounding me," 17:15 you must select without fail[20] a king whom the LORD your God chooses. From among your fellow citizens[21] you must appoint a king – you may not designate a foreigner who is not one of your fellow Israelites.[22] 17:16 Moreover, he must not accumulate horses for himself or allow the people to return to Egypt to do so,[23] for the LORD has said you must never again return that way. 17:17 Furthermore, he must not marry many[24] wives lest his affections turn aside, and he must not accumulate much silver and gold. 17:18 When he sits on his royal throne he must make a copy of this sn Sacred Asherah pole. This refers to a tree (or wooden pole) dedicated to the worship of Asherah, wife/sister of El and goddess of fertility. See also Deut 7:5.

[2] sn Sacred pillar. This refers to the stelae (stone pillars; the Hebrew term is מַצֵּבָה, matsevot) associated with Baal worship, perhaps to mark a spot hallowed by an alleged visitation of the gods. See also Deut 7:5.

[3] tn Heb "to the LORD your God." See note on "he" in 16:1.

[4] tn The Hebrew word תּוֹעֵבָה (to'evah, "an abomination"; cf. NAB) describes persons, things, or practices offensive to ritual or moral order. See M. Grisanti, NIDOTTE 4:314-18; see also the note on the word "abhorrent" in Deut 7:25.

[5] tn Heb "gates."

[6] tn Heb "does the evil in the eyes of the LORD your God."

[7] tc The MT reads "and to the sun," thus including the sun, the moon, and other heavenly spheres among the gods. However, Theodotion and Lucian read "or to the sun," suggesting perhaps that the sun and the other heavenly bodies are not in the category of actual deities.

[8] tn Heb "which I have not commanded you." The words "to worship" are supplied in the translation for clarification.

[9] tn Heb "an abomination" (תּוֹעֵבָה); see note on the word "offensive" in v. 1.

[10] tn Heb "gates."

[11] tn Heb "stone them with stones so that they die" (KJV similar); NCV "throw stones at that person until he dies."

[12] tn Heb "the hand of the witnesses." This means the two or three witnesses are to throw the first stones (cf. NCV, TEV, CEV, NLT).

[13] tn Heb "the hand of all the people."

[14] tn Heb "between blood and blood."

[15] tn Heb "between claim and claim."

[16] tn Heb "between blow and blow."

[17] tn Heb "gates."

[18] tc Several Greek recensions add "to place his name there," thus completing the usual formula to describe the central sanctuary (cf. Deut 12:5, 11, 14, 18; 16:6). However, the context suggests that the local Levitical towns, and not the central sanctuary, are in mind.

[19] tn Heb "who acts presumptuously not to listen" (cf. NASB).

[20] tn The Hebrew text uses the infinitive absolute for emphasis, indicated in the translation by the words "without fail."

[21] tn Heb "your brothers," but not referring to siblings (cf. NIV "your brother Israelites"; NLT "a fellow Israelite"). The same phrase also occurs in v. 20.

[22] tn Heb "your brothers." See the preceding note on "fellow citizens."

[23] tn Heb "in order to multiply horses." The translation uses "do so" in place of "multiply horses" to avoid redundancy (cf. NAB, NIV).

[24] tn Heb "must not multiply" (cf. KJV, NASB); NLT "must not take many."

law[1] on a scroll[2] given to him by the Levitical priests. 17:19 It must be with him constantly and he must read it as long as he lives, so that he may learn to revere the LORD his God and observe all the words of this law and these statutes and carry them out. 17:20 Then he will not exalt himself above his fellow citizens or turn from the commandments to the right or left, and he and his descendants will enjoy many years ruling over his kingdom[3] in Israel.

Provision for Priests and Levites

18:1 The Levitical priests[4] – indeed, the entire tribe of Levi – will have no allotment or inheritance with Israel; they may eat the burnt offerings of the LORD and of his inheritance.[5] 18:2 They[6] will have no inheritance in the midst of their fellow Israelites;[7] the LORD alone is their inheritance, just as he had told them. 18:3 This shall be the priests' fair allotment[8] from the people who offer sacrifices, whether bull or sheep – they must give to the priest the shoulder, the jowls, and the stomach. 18:4 You must give them the best of your[9] grain, new wine, and olive oil, as well as the best of your wool when you shear your flocks. 18:5 For the LORD your God has chosen them and their sons from all your tribes to stand[10] and serve in his name[11] permanently. 18:6 Suppose a Levite comes by his own free will[12] from one of your villages, from any part of Israel where he is living,[13] to the place the LORD chooses 18:7 and serves in the name of the LORD his God like his fellow Levites who stand there before the LORD. 18:8 He must eat the same share they do, despite any profits he may gain from the sale of his family's inheritance.[14]

Provision for Prophetism

18:9 When you enter the land the LORD your God is giving you, you must not learn the abhorrent practices of those nations. 18:10 There must never be found among you anyone who sacrifices his son or daughter in the fire,[15] anyone who practices divination,[16] an omen reader,[17] a soothsayer,[18] a sorcerer,[19] 18:11 one who casts spells,[20] one who conjures up spirits,[21] a practitioner of the occult,[22] or a necromancer.[23] 18:12 Whoever does these things is abhorrent to the LORD and because of these detestable things[24]

1 tn Or "instruction." The LXX reads here τὸ δευτερονόμιον τοῦτο (to deuteronomion touto, "this second law"). From this Greek phrase the present name of the book, "Deuteronomy" or "second law" (i.e., the second giving of the law), is derived. However, the MT's expression מִשְׁנֵה הַתּוֹרָה הַזֹּאת (mishneh hattorah hazzo't) is better rendered "copy of this law." Here the term תּוֹרָה (torah) probably refers only to the book of Deuteronomy and not to the whole Pentateuch.

2 tn The Hebrew term סֵפֶר (sefer) means a "writing" or "document" and could be translated "book" (so KJV, ASV, TEV). However, since "book" carries the connotation of a modern bound book with pages (an obvious anachronism) it is preferable to render the Hebrew term "scroll" here and elsewhere.

3 tc Heb "upon his kingship." Smr supplies כִּסְא (kise', "throne") so as to read "upon the throne of his kingship." This overliteralizes what is a clearly understood figure of speech.

4 tn The MT places the terms "priests" and "Levites" in apposition, thus creating an epexegetical construction in which the second term qualifies the first, i.e., "Levitical priests." This is a way of asserting their legitimacy as true priests. The Syriac renders "to the priest and to the Levite," making a distinction between the two, but one that is out of place here.

5 sn Of his inheritance. This is a figurative way of speaking of the produce of the land the LORD will give to his people. It is the LORD's inheritance, but the Levites are allowed to eat it since they themselves have no inheritance among the other tribes of Israel.

6 tn Heb "he" (and throughout the verse).

7 tn Heb "brothers," but not referring to actual siblings. Cf. NASB "their countrymen"; NRSV "the other members of the community."

8 tn Heb "judgment"; KJV, NASB, NRSV "the priest's due."

9 tn Heb "the firstfruits of your..." (so NIV).

10 tc Smr and some Greek texts add "before the LORD your God" to bring the language into line with a formula found elsewhere (Deut 10:8; 2 Chr 29:11). This reading is not likely to be original, however.

11 tn Heb "the name of the LORD." The pronoun has been used in the translation for stylistic reasons to avoid redundancy.

12 tn Heb "according to all the desire of his soul."

13 tn Or "sojourning." The verb used here refers to living temporarily in a place, not settling down.

14 tn Presumably this would not refer to a land inheritance, since that was forbidden to the descendants of Levi (v. 1). More likely it referred to some family possessions (cf. NIV, NCV, NRSV, CEV) or other private property (cf. NLT "a private source of income"), or even support sent by relatives (cf. TEV "whatever his family sends him").

15 tn Heb "who passes his son or his daughter through the fire." The expression "pass...through the fire" is probably a euphemism for human sacrifice (cf. NAB, NIV, TEV, NLT). See also Deut 12:31.

16 tn Heb "a diviner of divination" (קֹסֵם קְסָמִים, qosem qesamim). This was a means employed to determine the future or the outcome of events by observation of various omens and signs (cf. Num 22:7; 23:23; Josh 13:22; 1 Sam 6:2; 15:23; 28:8; etc.). See M. Horsnell, NIDOTTE 3:945-51.

17 tn Heb "one who causes to appear" (מְעוֹנֵן, me'onen). Such a practitioner was thought to be able to conjure up spirits or apparitions (cf. Lev 19:26; Judg 9:37; 2 Kgs 21:6; Isa 2:6; 57:3; Jer 27:9; Mic 5:11).

18 tn Heb "a seeker of omens" (מְנַחֵשׁ, menakhesh). This is a subset of divination, one illustrated by the use of a "divining cup" in the story of Joseph (Gen 44:5).

19 tn Heb "a doer of sorcery" (מְכַשֵּׁף, mikhashef). This has to do with magic or the casting of spells in order to manipulate the gods or the powers of nature (cf. Lev 19:26-31; 2 Kgs 17:15b-17; 21:1-7; Isa 57:3, 5; etc.). See M. Horsnell, NIDOTTE 2:735-38.

20 tn Heb "a binder of binding" (חֹבֵר חָבֶר, khover khaver). The connotation is that of immobilizing ("binding") someone or something by the use of magical words (cf. Ps 58:6; Isa 47:9, 12).

21 tn Heb "asker of a [dead] spirit" (שֹׁאֵל אוֹב, sho'el 'ov). This is a form of necromancy (cf. Lev 19:31; 20:6; 1 Sam 28:8, 9; Isa 8:19; 19:3; 29:4).

22 tn Heb "a knowing [or "familiar"] [spirit]" (יִדְּעֹנִי, yidde'oniy), i.e., one who is expert in mantic arts (cf. Lev 19:31; 20:6, 27; 1 Sam 28:3, 9; 2 Kgs 21:6; Isa 8:19; 19:3).

23 tn Heb "a seeker of the dead." This is much the same as "one who conjures up spirits" (cf. 1 Sam 28:6-7).

24 tn Heb "these abhorrent things." The repetition is emphatic. For stylistic reasons, to avoid redundancy, the same term used earlier in the verse has been translated "detestable" here.

the LORD your God is about to drive them out[1] from before you. 18:13 You must be blameless before the LORD your God. 18:14 Those nations that you are about to dispossess listen to omen readers and diviners, but the LORD your God has not given you permission to do such things.

18:15 The LORD your God will raise up for you a prophet like me from among you – from your fellow Israelites;[2] you must listen to him. 18:16 This accords with what happened at Horeb in the day of the assembly. You asked the LORD your God: "Please do not make us hear the voice of the LORD our[3] God any more or see this great fire any more lest we die." 18:17 The LORD then said to me, "What they have said is good. 18:18 I will raise up a prophet like you for them from among their fellow Israelites. I will put my words in his mouth and he will speak to them whatever I command. 18:19 I will personally hold responsible[4] anyone who then pays no attention to the words that prophet[5] speaks in my name.

18:20 "But if any prophet presumes to speak anything in my name that I have not authorized[6] him to speak, or speaks in the name of other gods, that prophet must die. 18:21 Now if you say to yourselves,[7] 'How can we tell that a message is not from the LORD?'[8] – 18:22 whenever a prophet speaks in my[9] name and the prediction[10] is not fulfilled,[11] then I have[12] not spoken it;[13] the prophet has presumed to speak it, so you need not fear him."

Laws Concerning Manslaughter

19:1 When the LORD your God destroys the nations whose land he[14] is about to give you and you dispossess them and settle in their cities and houses, 19:2 you must set apart for yourselves three cities[15] in the middle of your land that the LORD your God is giving you as a possession. 19:3 You shall build a roadway and divide into thirds the whole extent[16] of your land that the LORD your God is providing as your inheritance; anyone who kills another person should flee to the closest of these cities. 19:4 Now this is the law pertaining to one who flees there in order to live,[17] if he has accidentally killed another[18] without hating him at the time of the accident.[19] 19:5 Suppose he goes with someone else[20] to the forest to cut wood and when he raises the ax[21] to cut the tree, the ax head flies loose[22] from the handle and strikes[23] his fellow worker[24] so hard that he dies. The person responsible[25] may then flee to one of these cities to save himself.[26] 19:6 Otherwise the blood avenger will chase after the killer in the heat of his anger, eventually overtake him,[27] and kill him,[28] though this is not a capital case[29] since he did not hate him at the time of the accident. 19:7 Therefore, I am commanding you to set apart for yourselves three cities. 19:8 If the LORD your God enlarges your borders as he promised your ancestors[30] and gives you all the land he pledged to them,[31] 19:9 and then you are careful to observe all these commandments[32] I am giving[33] you today

[1] tn The translation understands the Hebrew participial form as having an imminent future sense here.

[2] tc The MT expands here on the usual formula by adding "from among you" (cf. Deut 17:15; 18:18; Smr; a number of Greek texts). The expansion seems to be for the purpose of emphasis, i.e., the prophet to come must be not just from Israel but an Israelite by blood.

tn "from your brothers," but not referring to actual siblings. Cf. NAB "from among your own kinsmen"; NASB "from your countrymen"; NRSV "from among your own people." A similar phrase occurs in v. 17.

[3] tn The Hebrew text uses the collective singular in this verse: "my God...lest I die."

[4] tn Heb "will seek from him"; NAB "I myself will make him answer for it"; NRSV "will hold accountable."

[5] tn Heb "he"; the referent (the prophet mentioned in v. 18) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[6] tn Or "commanded" (so KJV, NAB, NIV, NRSV).

[7] tn Heb "in your heart."

[8] tn Heb "know the word which the LORD has not spoken." The issue here is not understanding the meaning of the message, but distinguishing a genuine prophetic word from a false one.

[9] tn Heb "the LORD's." See note on the word "his" in v. 5.

[10] tn Heb "the word," but a predictive word is in view here. Cf. NAB "his oracle."

[11] tn Heb "does not happen or come to pass."

[12] tn Heb "the LORD has." See note on the word "his" in v. 5.

[13] tn Heb "that is the word which the LORD has not spoken."

[14] tn Heb "the LORD your God." The pronoun has been used in the translation for stylistic reasons to avoid redundancy.

[15] sn These three cities, later designated by Joshua, were Kedesh of Galilee, Shechem, and Hebron (Josh 20:7-9).

[16] tn Heb "border."

[17] tn Heb "and this is the word pertaining to the one who kills who flees there and lives."

[18] tn Heb "who strikes his neighbor without knowledge."

[19] tn Heb "yesterday and a third (day)" (likewise in v. 6). The point is that there was no animosity between the two parties at the time of the accident and therefore no motive for the killing. Cf. NAB "had previously borne no malice"; NRSV "had not been at enmity before."

[20] tn Heb "his neighbor" (so NAB, NIV); NASB "his friend."

[21] tn Heb "and he raises his hand with the iron."

[22] tn Heb "the iron slips off."

[23] tn Heb "finds."

[24] tn Heb "his neighbor."

[25] tn Heb "he"; the referent (the person responsible for his friend's death) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[26] tn Heb "and live."

[27] tn Heb "and overtake him, for the road is long."

[28] tn Heb "smite with respect to life," that is, fatally.

[29] tn Heb "no judgment of death."

[30] tn Heb "fathers."

[31] tn Heb "he said to give to your ancestors." The pronoun has been used in the translation instead for stylistic reasons.

[32] tn Heb "all this commandment." This refers here to the entire covenant agreement of the Book of Deuteronomy as encapsulated in the Shema (Deut 6:4-5).

[33] tn Heb "commanding"; NAB "which I enjoin on you today."

(namely, to love the LORD your God and to always walk in his ways), then you must add three more cities[1] to these three. 19:10 You must not shed innocent blood[2] in your land that the LORD your God is giving you as an inheritance, for that would make you guilty.[3] 19:11 However, suppose a person hates someone else[4] and stalks him, attacks him, kills him,[5] and then flees to one of these cities. 19:12 The elders of his own city must send for him and remove him from there to deliver him over to the blood avenger[6] to die. 19:13 You must not pity him, but purge out the blood of the innocent[7] from Israel, so that it may go well with you.

Laws Concerning Witnesses

19:14 You must not encroach on your neighbor's property,[8] which will have been defined[9] in the inheritance you will obtain in the land the LORD your God is giving you.[10]

19:15 A single witness may not testify[11] against another person for any trespass or sin that he commits. A matter may be legally established[12] only on the testimony of two or three witnesses. 19:16 If a false[13] witness testifies against another person and accuses him of a crime,[14] 19:17 then both parties to the controversy must stand before the LORD, that is, before the priests and judges[15] who will be in office in those days. 19:18 The judges will thoroughly investigate the matter, and if the witness should prove to be false and to have given false testimony against the accused,[16] 19:19 you must do to him what he had intended to do to the accused. In this way you will purge[17] evil from among you. 19:20 The rest of the people will hear and become afraid to keep doing such evil among you. 19:21 You must not show pity; the principle will be a life for a life, an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth, a hand for a hand, and a foot for a foot.[18]

Laws Concerning War with Distant Enemies

20:1 When you go to war against your enemies and see chariotry[19] and troops[20] who outnumber you, do not be afraid of them, for the LORD your God, who brought you up out of the land of Egypt, is with you. 20:2 As you move forward for battle, the priest[21] will approach and say to the soldiers,[22] 20:3 "Listen, Israel! Today you are moving forward to do battle with your enemies. Do not be faintheartedd. Do not fear and tremble or be terrified because of them, 20:4 for the LORD your God goes with you to fight on your behalf against your enemies to give you victory."[23] 20:5 Moreover, the officers are to say to the troops,[24] "Who among you[25] has built a new house and not dedicated[26] it? He may go

[1] sn You will add three more cities. Since these are alluded to nowhere else and thus were probably never added, this must be a provision for other cities of refuge should they be needed (cf. v. 8). See P. C. Craigie, Deuteronomy (NICOT), 267.

[2] tn Heb "innocent blood must not be shed." The Hebrew phrase דָּם נָקִי (dam naqiy) means the blood of a person to whom no culpability or responsibility adheres because what he did was without malice aforethought (HALOT 224 s.v דָּם 4.b).

[3] tn Heb "and blood will be upon you" (cf. KJV, ASV); NRSV "thereby bringing bloodguilt upon you."

[4] tn Heb "his neighbor."

[5] tn Heb "rises against him and strikes him fatally."

[6] tn The גֹּאֵל הַדָּם (go'el haddam, "avenger of blood") would ordinarily be a member of the victim's family who, after due process of law, was invited to initiate the process of execution (cf. Num 35:16-28). See R. Hubbard, NIDOTTE 1:789-94.

[7] sn Purge out the blood of the innocent. Because of the corporate nature of Israel's community life, the whole community shared in the guilt of unavenged murder unless and until vengeance occurred. Only this would restore spiritual and moral equilibrium (Num 35:33).

[8] tn Heb "border." Cf. NRSV "You must not move your neighbor's boundary marker."

[9] tn Heb "which they set off from the beginning."

[10] tn The Hebrew text includes "to possess it." This phrase has been left untranslated to avoid redundancy.

[11] tn Heb "rise up" (likewise in v. 16).

[12] tn Heb "may stand."

[13] tn Heb "violent" (חָמָס, khamas). This is a witness whose motivation from the beginning is to do harm to the accused and who, therefore, resorts to calumny and deceit. See I. Swart and C. VanDam, NIDOTTE 2:177-80.

[14] tn Or "rebellion." Rebellion against God's law is in view (cf. NAB "of a defection from the law").

[15] tn The appositional construction ("before the LORD, that is, before the priests and judges") indicates that these human agents represented the LORD himself, that is, they stood in his place (cf. Deut 16:18-20; 17:8-9).

[16] tn Heb "his brother" (also in the following verse).

[17] tn Heb "you will burn out" (בְּעַרְתָּ, bi'arta). Like a cancer, unavenged sin would infect the whole community. It must, therefore, be excised by the purging out of its perpetrators who, presumably, remained unrepentant (cf. Deut 13:6; 17:7, 12; 21:21; 22:21-22, 24; 24:7).

[18] sn This kind of justice is commonly called lex talionis or "measure for measure" (cf. Exod 21:23-25; Lev 24:19-20). It is likely that it is the principle that is important and not always a strict application. That is, the punishment should fit the crime and it may do so by the payment of fines or other suitable and equitable compensation (cf. Exod 22:21; Num 35:31). See T. S. Frymer-Kensky, "Tit for Tat: The Principle of Equal Retribution in Near Eastern and Biblical Law," BA 43 (1980): 230-34.

[19] tn Heb "horse and chariot."

[20] tn Heb "people."

[21] sn The reference to the priest suggests also the presence of the ark of the covenant, the visible sign of God's presence. The whole setting is clearly that of "holy war" or "Yahweh war," in which God himself takes initiative as the true commander of the forces of Israel (cf. Exod 14:14-18; 15:3-10; Deut 3:22; 7:18-24; 31:6, 8).

[22] tn Heb "and he will say to the people." Cf. NIV, NCV, CEV "the army"; NRSV, NLT "the troops."

[23] tn Or "to save you" (so KJV, NASB, NCV); or "to deliver you."

[24] tn Heb "people" (also in vv. 8, 9).

[25] tn Heb "Who [is] the man" (also in vv. 6, 7, 8).

[26] tn The Hebrew term חָנַךְ (khanakh) occurs elsewhere only with respect to the dedication of Solomon's temple (1 Kgs 8:63 = 2 Chr 7:5). There it has a religious connotation which, indeed, may be the case here as well. The noun form (חֲנֻכָּה, khanukah) is associated with the consecration of the great temple altar (2 Chr 7:9) and of the postexilic wall of Jerusalem (Neh 12:27). In Maccabean times the festival of Hanukkah was introduced to celebrate the rededication of the temple following its desecration by Antiochus IV Epiphanes (1 Macc 4:36-61).

home, lest he die in battle and someone else[1] dedicate it. 20:6 Or who among you has planted a vineyard and not benefited from it? He may go home, lest he die in battle and someone else benefit from it. 20:7 Or who among you[2] has become engaged to a woman but has not married her? He may go home, lest he die in battle and someone else marry her." 20:8 In addition, the officers are to say to the troops, "Who among you is afraid and fainthearted? He may go home so that he will not make his fellow soldier's[3] heart as fearful[4] as his own." 20:9 Then, when the officers have finished speaking,[5] they must appoint unit commanders[6] to lead the troops.

20:10 When you approach a city to wage war against it, offer it terms of peace. 20:11 If it accepts your terms[7] and submits to you, all the people found in it will become your slaves.[8] 20:12 If it does not accept terms of peace but makes war with you, then you are to lay siege to it. 20:13 The LORD your God will deliver it over to you[9] and you must kill every single male by the sword. 20:14 However, the women, little children, cattle, and anything else in the city – all its plunder – you may take for yourselves as spoil. You may take from your enemies the plunder that the LORD your God has given you. 20:15 This is how you are to deal with all those cities located far from you, those that do not belong to these nearby nations.

Laws Concerning War with Canaanite Nations

20:16 As for the cities of these peoples that[10] the LORD your God is going to give you as an inheritance, you must not allow a single living thing[11] to survive. 20:17 Instead you must utterly annihilate them[12] – the Hittites,[13] Amorites,[14] Canaanites,[15] Perizzites,[16] Hivites,[17] and Jebusites[18] – just as the LORD your God has commanded you, 20:18 so that they cannot teach you all the abhorrent ways they worship[19] their gods, causing you to sin against the LORD your God. 20:19 If you besiege a city for a long time while attempting to capture it,[20] you must not chop down its trees,[21] for you may eat fruit[22] from them and should not cut them down. A tree in the field is not human that you should besiege it![23] 20:20 However, you may chop down any tree you know is not suitable for food,[24] and you may use it to build siege works[25] against the city that is making war with you until that city falls.

Laws Concerning Unsolved Murder

21:1 If a homicide victim[26] should be found lying in a field in the land the LORD your God is giving you,[27] and no one knows who killed[28] him, 21:2 your elders and judges must go out and measure how far it is to the cities in the vicinity of the corpse.[29] 21:3 Then the elders of the city

---

1 tn Heb "another man."

2 tn Heb "Who [is] the man."

3 tn Heb "his brother's."

4 tn Heb "melted."

5 tn The Hebrew text includes "to the people," but this phrase has not been included in the translation for stylistic reasons.

6 tn Heb "princes of hosts."

7 tn Heb "if it answers you peace."

8 tn Heb "become as a vassal and will serve you." The Hebrew term translated slaves (מַס, mas) refers either to Israelites who were pressed into civil service, especially under Solomon (1 Kgs 5:13; 9:15, 21; 12:18), or (as here) to foreigners forced as prisoners of war to become slaves to Israel. The Gibeonites exemplify this type of servitude (Josh 9:3-27; cf. Josh 16:10; 17:13; Judg 1:28, 30-35; Isa 31:8; Lam 1:1).

9 tn Heb "to your hands."

10 tn The antecedent of the relative pronoun is "cities."

11 tn Heb "any breath."

12 tn The Hebrew text uses the infinitive absolute for emphasis, which the translation seeks to reflect with "utterly." Cf. CEV "completely wipe out."

sn The Hebrew verb refers to placing persons or things so evil and/or impure as to be irredeemable under God's judgment, usually to the extent of their complete destruction. See also the note on the phrase "the divine judgment" in Deut 2:34.

13 sn Hittite. The center of Hittite power was in Anatolia (central modern Turkey). In the Late Bronze Age (1550-1200 B.C.) they were at their zenith, establishing outposts and colonies near and far. Some elements were obviously in Canaan at the time of the Conquest (1400-1350 B.C.).

14 sn Amorite. Originally from the upper Euphrates region (Amurru), the Amorites appear to have migrated into Canaan beginning in 2200 B.C. or thereabouts.

15 sn Canaanite. These were the indigenous peoples of the land of Palestine, going back to the beginning of recorded history (ca. 3000 B.C.). The OT identifies them as descendants of Ham (Gen 10:6), the only Hamites to have settled north and east of Egypt.

16 sn Perizzite. This probably refers to a subgroup of Canaanites (Gen 13:7; 34:30).

17 sn Hivite. These are usually thought to be the same as the Hurrians, a people well-known in ancient Near Eastern texts. They are likely identical to the Horites (see note on "Horites" in Deut 2:12).

18 tc The LXX adds "Girgashites" here at the end of the list in order to list the full (and usual) complement of seven (see note on "seven" in Deut 7:1).

sn Jebusite. These people inhabited the hill country, particularly in and about Jerusalem (cf. Num 13:29; Josh 15:8; 2 Sam 5:6; 24:16).

19 tn Heb "to do according to all their abominations which they do for their gods."

20 tn Heb "to fight against it to capture it."

21 tn Heb "you must not destroy its trees by chopping them with an iron" (i.e., an ax).

22 tn Heb "you may eat from them." The direct object is not expressed; the word "fruit" is supplied in the translation for clarity.

23 tn Heb "to go before you in siege."

24 tn Heb "however, a tree which you know is not a tree for food you may destroy and cut down."

25 tn Heb "[an] enclosure." The term מָצוֹר (matsor) may refer to encircling ditches or to surrounding stagings. See R. de Vaux, Ancient Israel, 238.

26 tn Heb "slain [one]." The term חָלָל (khalal) suggests something other than a natural death (cf. Num 19:16; 23:24; Jer 51:52; Ezek 26:15; 30:24; 31:17-18).

27 tn The Hebrew text includes "to possess it," but this has not been included in the translation for stylistic reasons.

28 tn Heb "struck," but in context a fatal blow is meant; cf. NLT "who committed the murder."

29 tn Heb "surrounding the slain [one]."

nearest to the corpse[1] must take from the herd a heifer that has not been worked – that has never pulled with the yoke – 21:4 and bring the heifer down to a wadi with flowing water,[2] to a valley that is neither plowed nor sown.[3] There at the wadi they are to break the heifer's neck. 21:5 Then the Levitical priests[4] will approach (for the LORD your God has chosen them to serve him and to pronounce blessings in his name,[5] and to decide[6] every judicial verdict[7]) 21:6 and all the elders of that city nearest the corpse[8] must wash their hands over the heifer whose neck was broken in the valley.[9] 21:7 Then they must proclaim, "Our hands have not spilled this blood, nor have we[10] witnessed the crime.[11] 21:8 Do not blame[12] your people Israel whom you redeemed, O LORD, and do not hold them accountable for the bloodshed of an innocent person."[13] Then atonement will be made for the bloodshed. 21:9 In this manner you will purge out the guilt of innocent blood from among you, for you must do what is right before[14] the LORD.

Laws Concerning Wives

21:10 When you go out to do battle with your enemies and the LORD your God allows you to prevail[15] and you take prisoners, 21:11 if you should see among them[16] an attractive woman whom you wish to take as a wife, 21:12 you may bring her back to your house. She must shave her head,[17] trim her nails, 21:13 discard the clothing she was wearing when captured,[18] and stay[19] in your house, lamenting for her father and mother for a full month. After that you may have sexual relations[20] with her and become her husband and she your wife. 21:14 If you are not pleased with her, then you must let her go[21] where she pleases. You cannot in any case sell[22] her;[23] you must not take advantage of[24] her, since you have already humiliated[25] her.

Laws Concerning Children

21:15 Suppose a man has two wives, one whom he loves more than the other,[26] and they both[27] bear him sons, with the firstborn being the child of the less loved wife. 21:16 In the day he divides his inheritance[28] he must not appoint as firstborn the son of the favorite wife in place of the other[29] wife's son who is actually the firstborn. 21:17 Rather, he must acknowledge the son of the less loved[30] wife as firstborn and give him the double portion[31] of all he has, for that son is

---

1 tn Heb "slain [one]."

2 tn The combination "a wadi with flowing water" is necessary because a wadi (נַחַל, nakhal) was ordinarily a dry stream or riverbed. For this ritual, however, a perennial stream must be chosen so that there would be fresh, rushing water.

3 sn The unworked heifer, fresh stream, and uncultivated valley speak of ritual purity – of freedom from human contamination.

4 tn Heb "the priests, the sons of Levi."

5 tn Heb "in the name of the LORD." See note on Deut 10:8. The pronoun has been used in the translation for stylistic reasons to avoid redundancy.

6 tn Heb "by their mouth."

7 tn Heb "every controversy and every blow."

8 tn Heb "slain [one]."

9 tn Heb "wadi," a seasonal watercourse through a valley.

10 tn Heb "our eyes." This is a figure of speech known as synecdoche in which the part (the eyes) is put for the whole (the entire person).

11 tn Heb "seen"; the implied object (the crime committed) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

12 tn Heb "Atone for."

13 tn Heb "and do not place innocent blood in the midst of your people Israel."

14 tn Heb "in the eyes of" (so ASV, NASB, NIV).

15 tn Heb "gives him into your hands."

16 tn Heb "the prisoners." The pronoun has been used in the translation for stylistic reasons, to avoid redundancy.

17 sn This requirement for the woman to shave her head may symbolize the putting away of the old life and customs in preparation for being numbered among the people of the LORD. The same is true for the two following requirements.

18 tn Heb "she is to...remove the clothing of her captivity" (cf. NASB); NRSV "discard her captive's garb."

19 tn Heb "sit"; KJV, NASB, NRSV "remain."

20 tn Heb "go unto," a common Hebrew euphemism for sexual relations.

21 sn Heb "send her off." The Hebrew term שִׁלּוּחָה (shillukhtah) is a somewhat euphemistic way of referring to divorce, the matter clearly in view here (cf. Deut 22:19, 29; 24:1, 3; Jer 3:1; Mal 2:16). This passage does not have the matter of divorce as its principal objective, so it should not be understood as endorsing divorce generally. It merely makes the point that if grounds for divorce exist (see Deut 24:1-4), and then divorce ensues, the husband could in no way gain profit from it.

22 tn The Hebrew text uses the infinitive absolute for emphasis, which the translation indicates by the words "in any case."

23 tn The Hebrew text includes "for money." This phrase has not been included in the translation for stylistic reasons.

24 tn Or perhaps "must not enslave her" (cf. ASV, NAB, NIV, NRSV, NLT); Heb "[must not] be tyrannical over."

25 sn You have humiliated her. Since divorce was considered rejection, the wife subjected to it would "lose face" in addition to the already humiliating event of having become a wife by force (21:11-13). Furthermore, the Hebrew verb translated "humiliated" here (עִנִּיתָ, 'anah), commonly used to speak of rape (cf. Gen 34:2; 2 Sam 13:12, 14, 22, 32; Judg 19:24), likely has sexual overtones as well. The woman may not be enslaved or abused after the divorce because it would be double humiliation (see also E. H. Merrill, Deuteronomy [NAC], 291).

26 tn Heb "one whom he loves and one whom he hates." For the idea of שָׂנוּא (sane', "hate") meaning to be rejected or loved less (cf. NRSV "disliked"), see Gen 29:31, 33; Mal 1:2-3. Cf. A. Konkel, NIDOTTE 3:1256-60.

27 tn Heb "both the one whom he loves and the one whom he hates." On the meaning of the phrase "one whom he loves and one whom he hates" see the note on the word "other" earlier in this verse. The translation has been simplified for stylistic reasons, to avoid redundancy.

28 tn Heb "when he causes his sons to inherit what is his."

29 tn Heb "the hated."

30 tn See note on the word "other" in v. 15.

31 tn Heb "measure of two." The Hebrew expression פִּי שְׁנַיִם (piy sh^{e}nayim) suggests a two-thirds split; that is, the elder gets two parts and the younger one part. Cf. 2 Kgs 2:9; Zech 13:8. The practice is implicit in Isaac's blessing of Jacob (Gen 25:31-34) and Jacob's blessing of Ephraim (Gen 48:8-22).

the beginning of his father's procreative power[1] – to him should go the right of the firstborn.

21:18 If a person has a stubborn, rebellious son who pays no attention to his father or mother, and they discipline him to no avail,[2] 21:19 his father and mother must seize him and bring him to the elders at the gate of his city. 21:20 They must declare to the elders[3] of his city, "Our son is stubborn and rebellious and pays no attention to what we say – he is a glutton and drunkard." 21:21 Then all the men of his city must stone him to death. In this way you will purge out[4] wickedness from among you, and all Israel[5] will hear about it and be afraid.

Disposition of a Criminal's Remains

21:22 If a person commits a sin punishable by death and is executed, and you hang the corpse[6] on a tree, 21:23 his body must not remain all night on the tree; instead you must make certain you bury[7] him that same day, for the one who is left exposed[8] on a tree is cursed by God.[9] You must not defile your land which the LORD your God is giving you as an inheritance.

Laws Concerning Preservation of Life

22:1 When you see[10] your neighbor's[11] ox or sheep going astray, do not ignore it;[12] you must return it without fail[13] to your neighbor. 22:2 If the owner[14] does not live[15] near you or you do not know who the owner is,[16] then you must corral the animal[17] at your house and let it stay with you until the owner looks for it; then you must return it to him. 22:3 You shall do the same to his donkey, his clothes, or anything else your neighbor[18] has lost and you have found; you must not refuse to get involved.[19] 22:4 When you see[20] your neighbor's donkey or ox fallen along the road, do not ignore it;[21] instead, you must be sure[22] to help him get the animal on its feet again.[23]

22:5 A woman must not wear men's clothing,[24] nor should a man dress up in women's clothing, for anyone who does this is offensive[25] to the LORD your God.

22:6 If you happen to notice a bird's nest along the road, whether in a tree or on the ground, and there are chicks or eggs with the mother bird sitting on them,[26] you must not take the mother from the young.[27] 22:7 You must be sure[28] to let the mother go, but you may take the young for yourself. Do this so that it may go well with you and you may have a long life.

22:8 If you build a new house, you must construct a guard rail[29] around your roof to avoid being culpable[30] in the event someone should fall from it.

Illustrations of the Principle of Purity

22:9 You must not plant your vineyard with two kinds of seed; otherwise the entire yield, both of the seed you plant and the produce of the

1 tn Heb "his generative power" (אוֹן, 'on; cf. HALOT 22 s.v.). Cf. NAB "the first fruits of his manhood"; NRSV "the first issue of his virility."

2 tn Heb "and he does not listen to them."

3 tc The LXX and Smr read "to the men," probably to conform to this phrase in v. 21. However, since judicial cases were the responsibility of the elders in such instances (cf. Deut 19:12; 21:3, 6; 25:7-8) the reading of the MT is likely original and correct here.

4 tn The Hebrew term בַּעַרְתָּה (bi'artah), here and elsewhere in such contexts (cf. Deut 13:5; 17:7, 12; 19:19; 21:9), suggests God's anger which consumes like fire (thus בָּעַר, ba'ar, "to burn"). See H. Ringgren, TDOT 2:203-4.

5 tc Some LXX traditions read הֶנִּשְׁאָרִים (hannish'arim, "those who remain") for the MT's יִשְׂרָאֵל (yisra'el, "Israel"), understandable in light of Deut 19:20. However, the more difficult reading found in the MT is more likely original.

6 tn Heb "him."

7 tn The Hebrew text uses the infinitive absolute for emphasis, which the translation indicates by "make certain."

8 tn Heb "hung," but this could convey the wrong image in English (hanging with a rope as a means of execution). Cf. NCV "anyone whose body is displayed on a tree."

9 sn The idea behind the phrase cursed by God seems to be not that the person was impaled because he was cursed but that to leave him exposed there was to invite the curse of God upon the whole land. Why this would be so is not clear, though the rabbinic idea that even a criminal is created in the image of God may give some clue (thus J. H. Tigay, Deuteronomy [JPSTC], 198). Paul cites this text (see Gal 3:13) to make the point that Christ, suspended from a cross, thereby took upon himself the curse associated with such a display of divine wrath and judgment (T. George, Galatians [NAC], 238-39).

10 tn Heb "you must not see," but, if translated literally into English, the statement is misleading.

11 tn Heb "brother's" (also later in this verse). In this context it is not limited to one's siblings, however; cf. NAB "your kinsman's."

12 tn Heb "hide yourself."

13 tn The Hebrew text uses the infinitive absolute for emphasis, which the translation indicates with the words "without fail."

14 tn Heb "your brother" (also later in this verse).

15 tn Heb "is not." The idea of "residing" is implied.

16 tn Heb "and you do not know him."

17 tn Heb "it"; the referent (the ox or sheep mentioned in v. 1) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

18 tn Heb "your brother" (also in v. 4).

19 tn Heb "you must not hide yourself."

20 tn Heb "you must not see." See note at 22:1.

21 tn Heb "and (must not) hide yourself from them."

22 tn The Hebrew text uses the infinitive absolute for emphasis, which the translation indicates with "be sure."

23 tn Heb "help him to lift them up." In keeping with English style the singular is used in the translation, and the referent ("the animal") has been specified for clarity.

24 tn Heb "a man's clothing."

25 tn The Hebrew term תּוֹעֲבָה (to'evah, "offense") speaks of anything that runs counter to ritual or moral order, especially (in the OT) to divine standards. Cross-dressing in this covenant context may suggest homosexuality, fertility cult ritual, or some other forbidden practice.

26 tn Heb "and the mother sitting upon the chicks or the eggs."

27 tn Heb "sons," used here in a generic sense for offspring.

28 tn The Hebrew text uses the infinitive absolute for emphasis, which the translation seeks to reflect with "be sure."

29 tn Or "a parapet" (so NAB, NIV, NRSV); KJV "a battlement"; NLT "a barrier."

30 tn Heb "that you not place bloodshed in your house."

vineyard, will be defiled.[1] 22:10 You must not plow with an ox and a donkey harnessed together. 22:11 You must not wear clothing made with wool and linen meshed together.[2] 22:12 You shall make yourselves tassels[3] for the four corners of the clothing you wear.

Purity in the Marriage Relationship

22:13 Suppose a man marries a woman, has sexual relations with her,[4] and then rejects[5] her, 22:14 accusing her of impropriety[6] and defaming her reputation[7] by saying, "I married this woman but when I had sexual relations[8] with her I discovered she was not a virgin!" 22:15 Then the father and mother of the young woman must produce the evidence of virginity[9] for the elders of the city at the gate. 22:16 The young woman's father must say to the elders, "I gave my daughter to this man and he has rejected[10] her. 22:17 Moreover, he has raised accusations of impropriety by saying, 'I discovered your daughter was not a virgin,' but this is the evidence of my daughter's virginity!" The cloth must then be spread out[11] before the city's elders. 22:18 The elders of that city must then seize the man and punish[12] him. 22:19 They will fine him one hundred shekels of silver and give them to the young woman's father, for the man who made the accusation[13] ruined the reputation[14] of an Israelite virgin. She will then become his wife and he may never divorce her as long as he lives.

22:20 But if the accusation is true and the young woman was not a virgin, 22:21 the men of her city must bring the young woman to the door of her father's house and stone her to death, for she has done a disgraceful thing[15] in Israel by behaving like a prostitute while living in her father's house. In this way you will purge[16] evil from among you.

22:22 If a man is caught having sexual relations with[17] a married woman[18] both the man who had relations with the woman and the woman herself must die; in this way you will purge[19] evil from Israel.

22:23 If a virgin is engaged to a man and another man meets[20] her in the city and has sexual relations with[21] her, 22:24 you must bring the two of them to the gate of that city and stone them to death, the young woman because she did not cry out though in the city and the man because he violated[22] his neighbor's fiancée;[23] in this way you will purge[24] evil from among you. 22:25 But if the man came across[25] the engaged woman in the field and overpowered her and raped[26] her, then only the rapist[27] must die. 22:26 You must not do anything to the young woman – she has done nothing deserving of death. This case is the same as when someone attacks another person[28] and murders him, 22:27 for the man[29] met her in the field and the engaged woman cried out, but there was no one to rescue her.

22:28 Suppose a man comes across a virgin who is not engaged and overpowers and rapes[30] her and they are discovered. 22:29 The man who has raped her must pay her father fifty shekels of 1 tn Heb "set apart." The verb קָדַשׁ (qadash) in the Qal verbal stem (as here) has the idea of being holy or being treated with special care. Some take the meaning as "be off-limits, forfeited," i.e., the total produce of the vineyard, both crops and grapes, have to be forfeited to the sanctuary (cf. Exod 29:37; 30:29; Lev 6:18, 27; Num 16:37-38; Hag 2:12).

2 tn The Hebrew term שַׁעַטְנֵז (sha'atnez) occurs only here and in Lev 19:19. HALOT 1610-11 s.v. takes it to be a contraction of words (שַׁשׁ [shash, "headdress"] + עַטְנֵז ['atnaz, "strong"]). BDB 1043 s.v. שַׁעַטְנֵז offers the translation "mixed stuff" (cf. NEB "woven with two kinds of yarn"; NAB, NIV, NRSV, NLT "woven together"). The general meaning is clear even if the etymology is not.

3 tn Heb "twisted threads" (גְּדִלִים, gedilim) appears to be synonymous with ציצת (tsitsit) which, in Num 15:38, occurs in a passage instructing Israel to remember the covenant. Perhaps that is the purpose of the tassels here as well. Cf. KJV, ASV "fringes"; NAB "twisted cords."

4 tn Heb "goes to her," a Hebrew euphemistic idiom for sexual relations.

5 tn Heb "hate." See note on the word "other" in Deut 21:15. Cf. NAB "comes to dislike"; NASB "turns against"; TEV "decides he doesn't want."

6 tn Heb "deeds of things"; NRSV "makes up charges against her"; NIV "slanders her."

7 tn Heb "brings against her a bad name"; NIV "gives her a bad name."

8 tn Heb "drew near to her." This is another Hebrew euphemism for having sexual relations.

9 sn In light of v. 17 this would evidently be blood-stained sheets indicative of the first instance of intercourse. See E. H. Merrill, Deuteronomy (NAC), 302-3.

10 tn Heb "hated." See note on the word "other" in Deut 21:15.

11 tn Heb "they will spread the garment."

12 tn Heb "discipline."

13 tn Heb "for he"; the referent (the man who made the accusation) has been specified in the translation to avoid confusion with the young woman's father, the last-mentioned male.

14 tn Heb "brought forth a bad name."

15 tn The Hebrew term נְבָלָה (nevalah) means more than just something stupid. It refers to a moral lapse so serious as to jeopardize the whole covenant community (cf. Gen 34:7; Judg 19:23; 20:6, 10; Jer 29:23). See C. Pan, NIDOTTE 3:11-13. Cf. NAB "she committed a crime against Israel."

16 tn Heb "burn." See note on Deut 21:21.

17 tn Heb "lying with" (so KJV, NASB), a Hebrew idiom for sexual relations.

18 tn Heb "a woman married to a husband."

19 tn Heb "burn." See note on the phrase "purge out" in Deut 21:21.

20 tn Heb "finds."

21 tn Heb "lies with."

22 tn Heb "humbled."

23 tn Heb "wife."

24 tn Heb "burn." See note on the phrase "purge out" in Deut 21:21.

25 tn Heb "found," also in vv. 27, 28.

26 tn Heb "lay with" here refers to a forced sexual relationship, as the accompanying verb "seized" (חָזַק, khazaq) makes clear.

27 tn Heb "the man who lay with her, only him."

28 tn Heb "his neighbor."

29 tn Heb "he"; the referent (the man who attacked the woman) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

30 tn Heb "lies with."

silver and she must become his wife because he has violated her; he may never divorce her as long as he lives.

22:30 (23:1)[1] A man may not marry[2] his father's former[3] wife and in this way dishonor his father.[4]

Purity in Public Worship

23:1 A man with crushed[5] or severed genitals[6] may not enter the assembly of the LORD.[7] 23:2 A person of illegitimate birth[8] may not enter the assembly of the LORD; to the tenth generation no one related to him may do so.[9]

23:3 An Ammonite or Moabite[10] may not enter the assembly of the LORD; to the tenth generation none of their descendants shall ever[11] do so,[12] 23:4 for they did not meet you with food and water on the way as you came from Egypt, and furthermore, they hired[13] Balaam son of Beor of Pethor in Aram Naharaim to curse you. 23:5 But the LORD your God refused to listen to Balaam and changed[14] the curse to a blessing, for the LORD your God loves[15] you. 23:6 You must not seek peace and prosperity for them through all the ages to come. 23:7 You must not hate an Edomite, for he is your relative;[16] you must not hate an Egyptian, for you lived as a foreigner[17] in his land. 23:8 Children of the third generation born to them[18] may enter the assembly of the LORD.

Purity in Personal Hygiene

23:9 When you go out as an army against your enemies, guard yourselves against anything impure.[19] 23:10 If there is someone among you who is impure because of some nocturnal emission,[20] he must leave the camp; he may not reenter it immediately. 23:11 When evening arrives he must wash himself with water and then at sunset he may reenter the camp.

23:12 You are to have a place outside the camp to serve as a latrine.[21] 23:13 You must have a spade among your other equipment and when you relieve yourself[22] outside you must dig a hole with the spade[23] and then turn and cover your excrement.[24] 23:14 For the LORD your God walks about in the middle of your camp to deliver you and defeat[25] your enemies for you. Therefore your camp should be holy, so that he does not see anything indecent[26] among you and turn away from you.

[1] sn Beginning with 22:30, the verse numbers through 23:25 in the English Bible differ from the verse numbers in the Hebrew text (BHS), with 22:30 ET = 23:1 HT, 23:1 ET = 23:2 HT, 23:2 ET = 23:3 HT, etc., through 23:25 ET = 23:26 HT. With 24:1 the verse numbers in the ET and HT are again the same.

[2] tn Heb "take." In context this refers to marriage, as in the older English expression "take a wife."

[3] sn This presupposes either the death of the father or their divorce since it would be impossible for one to marry his stepmother while his father was still married to her.

[4] tn Heb "uncover his father's skirt" (so ASV, NASB). This appears to be a circumlocution for describing the dishonor that would come to a father by having his own son share his wife's sexuality (cf. NAB, NIV "dishonor his father's bed").

[5] tn Heb "bruised by crushing," which many English versions take to refer to crushed testicles (NAB, NRSV, NLT); TEV "who has been castrated."

[6] tn Heb "cut off with respect to the penis"; KJV, ASV "hath his privy member cut off"; English versions vary in their degree of euphemism here; cf. NAB, NRSV, TEV, NLT "penis"; NASB "male organ"; NCV "sex organ"; CEV "private parts"; NIV "emasculated by crushing or cutting."

[7] sn The Hebrew term translated "assembly" (קָהָל, qahal) does not refer here to the nation as such but to the formal services of the tabernacle or temple. Since emasculated or other sexually abnormal persons were commonly associated with pagan temple personnel, the thrust here may be primarily polemical in intent. One should not read into this anything having to do with the mentally and physically handicapped as fit to participate in the life and ministry of the church.

[8] tn Or "a person born of an illegitimate marriage."

[9] tn Heb "enter the assembly of the LORD." The phrase "do so" has been used in the translation for stylistic reasons to avoid redundancy.

[10] sn An Ammonite or Moabite. These descendants of Lot by his two daughters (cf. Gen 19:30-38) were thereby the products of incest and therefore excluded from the worshiping community. However, these two nations also failed to show proper hospitality to Israel on their way to Canaan (v. 4).

[11] tn The Hebrew term translated "ever" (עַד־עוֹלָם, 'ad-'olam) suggests that "tenth generation" (vv. 2, 3) also means "forever." However, in the OT sense "forever" means not "for eternity" but for an indeterminate future time. See A. Tomasino, NIDOTTE 3:346.

[12] tn Heb "enter the assembly of the LORD." The phrase "do so" has been used in the translation for stylistic reasons to avoid redundancy.

[13] tn Heb "hired against you."

[14] tn Heb "the LORD your God changed." The phrase "the LORD your God" has not been included in the translation here for stylistic reasons to avoid redundancy. Moreover, use of the pronoun "he" could create confusion regarding the referent (the LORD or Balaam).

[15] tn The verb אָהַב ('ahav, "love") here and commonly elsewhere in the Book of Deuteronomy speaks of God's elective grace toward Israel. See note on the word "loved" in Deut 4:37.

[16] tn Heb "brother."

[17] tn Heb "sojourner."

[18] sn Concessions were made to the Edomites and Egyptians (as compared to the others listed in vv. 1-6) because the Edomites (i.e., Esauites) were full "brothers" of Israel and the Egyptians had provided security and sustenance for Israel for more than four centuries.

[19] tn Heb "evil." The context makes clear that this is a matter of ritual impurity, not moral impurity, so it is "evil" in the sense that it disbars one from certain religious activity.

[20] tn Heb "nocturnal happening." The Hebrew term קָרָה (qareh) merely means "to happen" so the phrase here is euphemistic (a "night happening") for some kind of bodily emission such as excrement or semen. Such otherwise normal physical functions rendered one ritually unclean whether accidental or not. See Lev 15:16-18; 22:4.

[21] tn Heb "so that one may go outside there." This expression is euphemistic.

[22] tn Heb "sit." This expression is euphemistic.

[23] tn Heb "with it"; the referent (the spade mentioned at the beginning of the verse) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[24] tn Heb "what comes from you," a euphemism.

[25] tn Heb "give [over] your enemies."

[26] tn Heb "nakedness of a thing"; NLT "any shameful thing." The expression עֶרְוַת דָּבָר ('ervat davar) refers specifically to sexual organs and, by extension, to any function associated with them. There are some aspects of human life that are so personal and private that they ought not be publicly paraded. Cultically speaking, even God is offended by such impropriety

Purity in the Treatment of the Nonprivileged

23:15 You must not return an escaped slave to his master when he has run away to you.[1] 23:16 Indeed, he may live among you in any place he chooses, in whichever of your villages[2] he prefers; you must not oppress him.

Purity in Cultic Personnel

23:17 There must never be a sacred prostitute[3] among the young women[4] of Israel nor a sacred male prostitute[5] among the young men[6] of Israel. 23:18 You must never bring the pay of a female prostitute[7] or the wage of a male prostitute[8] into the temple of the LORD your God in fulfillment of any vow, for both of these are abhorrent to the LORD your God.

Respect for Others' Property

23:19 You must not charge interest on a loan to your fellow Israelite,[9] whether on money, food, or anything else that has been loaned with interest. 23:20 You may lend with interest to a foreigner, but not to your fellow Israelite; if you keep this command the LORD your God will bless you in all you undertake in the land you are about to enter to possess. 23:21 When you make a vow to the LORD your God you must not delay in fulfilling it, for otherwise he[10] will surely[11] hold you accountable as a sinner.[12] 23:22 If you refrain from making a vow, it will not be sinful. 23:23 Whatever you vow, you must be careful to do what you have promised, such as what you have vowed to the LORD your God as a freewill offering. 23:24 When you enter the vineyard of your neighbor you may eat as many grapes as you please,[13] but you must not take away any in a container.[14] 23:25 When you go into the ripe grain fields of your neighbor you may pluck off the kernels with your hand,[15] but you must not use a sickle on your neighbor's ripe grain.

24:1 If a man marries a woman and she does not please him because he has found something offensive[16] in her, then he may draw up a divorce document, give it to her, and evict her from his house. 24:2 When she has left him[17] she may go and become someone else's wife. 24:3 If the second husband rejects[18] her and then divorces her,[19] gives her the papers, and evicts her from his house, or if the second husband who married her dies, 24:4 her first husband who divorced her is not permitted to remarry[20] her after she has become ritually impure, for that is offensive to the LORD.[21] You must not bring guilt on the land[22] which the LORD your God is giving you as an inheritance.

24:5 When a man is newly married, he need not go into[23] the army nor be obligated in any way; he must be free to stay at home for a full year and bring joy to[24] the wife he has married.

24:6 One must not take either lower or upper millstones as security on a loan, for that is like taking a life itself as security.[25]

(cf. Gen 9:22-23; Lev 18:6-12, 16-19; 20:11, 17-21). See B. Seevers, NIDOTTE 3:528-30.

[1] tn The Hebrew text includes "from his master," but this would be redundant in English style.

[2] tn Heb "gates."

[3] tn The Hebrew term translated "sacred prostitute" here (קְדֵשָׁה [q^{e}deshah], from קָדֵשׁ [qadesh, "holy"]; cf. NIV "shrine prostitute"; NASB "cult prostitute"; NRSV, TEV, NLT "temple prostitute") refers to the pagan fertility cults that employed female and male prostitutes in various rituals designed to evoke agricultural and even human fecundity (cf. Gen 38:21-22; 1 Kgs 14:24; 15:12; 22:47; 2 Kgs 23:7; Hos 4:14). The Hebrew term for a regular, noncultic (i.e., "secular") female prostitute is זוֹנָה (zonah).

[4] tn Heb "daughters."

[5] tn The male cultic prostitute was called קָדֵשׁ (qadesh; see note on the phrase "sacred prostitute" earlier in this verse). The colloquial Hebrew term for a "secular" male prostitute (i.e., a sodomite) is the disparaging epithet כֶּלֶב (kelev, "dog") which occurs in the following verse (cf. KJV, ASV, NAB, NASB).

[6] tn Heb "sons."

[7] tn Here the Hebrew term זוֹנָה (zonah) refers to a noncultic (i.e., "secular") female prostitute; see note on the phrase "sacred prostitute" in v. 17.

[8] tn Heb "of a dog." This is the common Hebrew term for a noncultic (i.e., "secular") male prostitute. See note on the phrase "sacred male prostitute" in v. 17.

[9] tn Heb "to your brother" (likewise in the following verse). Since this is not limited to actual siblings, "fellow Israelite" is used in the translation (cf. NAB, NASB "countrymen").

[10] tn Heb "the LORD your God." The pronoun has been used in the translation for stylistic reasons to avoid redundancy.

[11] tn The Hebrew text uses the infinitive absolute for emphasis, which is reflected in the translation by "surely."

[12] tn Heb "and it will be a sin to you"; NIV, NCV, NLT "be guilty of sin."

[13] tn Heb "grapes according to your appetite, your fullness."

[14] tn Heb "in your container"; NAB, NIV "your basket."

[15] sn For the continuation of these practices into NT times see Matt 12:1-8; Mark 2:23-28; Luke 6:1-5.

[16] tn Heb "nakedness of a thing." The Hebrew phrase עֶרְוַת דָּבָר ('ervat davar) refers here to some gross sexual impropriety (see note on "indecent" in Deut 23:14). Though the term usually has to do only with indecent exposure of the genitals, it can also include such behavior as adultery (cf. Lev 18:6-18; 20:11, 17, 20-21; Ezek 22:10; 23:29; Hos 2:10).

[17] tn Heb "his house."

[18] tn Heb "hates." See note on the word "other" in Deut 21:15.

[19] tn Heb "writes her a document of divorce."

[20] tn Heb "to return to take her to be his wife."

[21] sn The issue here is not divorce and its grounds per se but prohibition of remarriage to a mate whom one has previously divorced.

[22] tn Heb "cause the land to sin" (so KJV, ASV).

[23] tn Heb "go out with."

[24] tc For the MT's reading Piel שִׂמַּח (simmakh, "bring joy to"), the Syriac and others read שָׂמַח (samakh, "enjoy").

[25] sn Taking millstones as security on a loan would amount to taking the owner's own life in pledge, since the millstones were the owner's means of earning a living and supporting his family.

24:7 If a man is found kidnapping a person from among his fellow Israelites,[1] and regards him as mere property[2] and sells him, that kidnapper[3] must die. In this way you will purge[4] evil from among you.

Respect for Human Dignity

24:8 Be careful during an outbreak of leprosy to follow precisely[5] all that the Levitical priests instruct you; as I have commanded them, so you should do. 24:9 Remember what the LORD your God did to Miriam[6] along the way after you left Egypt.

24:10 When you make any kind of loan to your neighbor, you may not go into his house to claim what he is offering as security.[7] 24:11 You must stand outside and the person to whom you are making the loan will bring out to you what he is offering as security.[8] 24:12 If the person is poor you may not use what he gives you as security for a covering.[9] 24:13 You must by all means[10] return to him at sunset the item he gave you as security so that he may sleep in his outer garment and bless you for it; it will be considered a just[11] deed by the LORD your God.

24:14 You must not oppress a lowly and poor servant, whether one from among your fellow Israelites[12] or from the resident foreigners who are living in your land and villages.[13] 24:15 You must pay his wage that very day before the sun sets, for he is poor and his life depends on it. Otherwise he will cry out to the LORD against you, and you will be guilty of sin.

24:16 Fathers must not be put to death for what their children[14] do, nor children for what their fathers do; each must be put to death for his own sin.

24:17 You must not pervert justice due a resident foreigner or an orphan, or take a widow's garment as security for a loan. 24:18 Remember that you were slaves in Egypt and that the LORD your God redeemed you from there; therefore I am commanding you to do all this. 24:19 Whenever you reap your harvest in your field and leave some unraked grain there,[15] you must not return to get it; it should go to the resident foreigner, orphan, and widow so that the LORD your God may bless all the work you do.[16] 24:20 When you beat your olive tree you must not repeat the procedure;[17] the remaining olives belong to the resident foreigner, orphan, and widow. 24:21 When you gather the grapes of your vineyard you must not do so a second time;[18] they should go to the resident foreigner, orphan, and widow. 24:22 Remember that you were slaves in the land of Egypt; therefore, I am commanding you to do all this.

25:1 If controversy arises between people,[19] they should go to court for judgment. When the judges[20] hear the case, they shall exonerate[21] the innocent but condemn[22] the guilty. 25:2 Then,[23] if the guilty person is sentenced to a beating,[24] the judge shall force him to lie down and be beaten in his presence with the number of blows his wicked behavior deserves.[25] 25:3 The judge[26] may sentence him to forty blows,[27] but no more. If he is struck with more than these, you might view your fellow Israelite[28] with contempt.

25:4 You must not muzzle your[29] ox when it is treading grain.

[1] tn Heb "from his brothers, from the sons of Israel." The terms "brothers" and "sons of Israel" are in apposition; the second defines the first more specifically.

[2] tn Or "and enslaves him."

[3] tn Heb "that thief."

[4] tn Heb "burn." See note on the word "purge" in Deut 19:19.

[5] tn Heb "to watch carefully and to do."

[6] sn What the LORD your God did to Miriam. The reference is to Miriam's having contracted leprosy because of her intemperate challenge to Moses' leadership (Num 12:1-15). The purpose for the allusion here appears to be the assertion of the theocratic leadership of the priests who, like Moses, should not be despised.

[7] tn Heb "his pledge." This refers to something offered as pledge of repayment, i.e., as security for the debt.

[8] tn Heb "his pledge."

[9] tn Heb "may not lie down in his pledge." What is in view is the use of clothing as guarantee for the repayment of loans, a matter already addressed elsewhere (Deut 23:19-20; 24:6; cf. Exod 22:25-26; Lev 25:35-37). Cf. NAB "you shall not sleep in the mantle he gives as a pledge"; NRSV "in the garment given you as the pledge."

[10] tn The Hebrew text uses the infinitive absolute for emphasis, which the translation seeks to reflect with "by all means."

[11] tn Or "righteous" (so NIV, NLT).

[12] tn Heb "your brothers," but not limited only to actual siblings; cf. NASB "your (+ own NAB) countrymen."

[13] tn Heb "who are in your land in your gates." The word "living" is supplied in the translation for stylistic reasons.

[14] tn Heb "sons" (so NASB; twice in this verse). Many English versions, including the KJV, read "children" here.

[15] tn Heb "in the field."

[16] tn Heb "of your hands." This law was later applied in the story of Ruth who, as a poor widow, was allowed by generous Boaz to glean in his fields (Ruth 2:1-13).

[17] tn Heb "knock down after you."

[18] tn Heb "glean after you."

[19] tn Heb "men."

[20] tn Heb "they"; the referent (the judges) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[21] tn Heb "declare to be just"; KJV, NASB "justify the righteous"; NAB, NIV "acquitting the innocent."

[22] tn Heb "declare to be evil"; NIV "condemning the guilty (+ party NAB)."

[23] tn Heb "and it will be."

[24] tn Heb "if the evil one is a son of smiting."

[25] tn Heb "according to his wickedness, by number."

[26] tn Heb "he"; the referent (the judge) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[27] tn Heb "Forty blows he may strike him"; however, since the judge is to witness the punishment (v. 2) it is unlikely the judge himself administered it.

[28] tn Heb "your brothers" but not limited only to an actual sibling; cf. NAB) "your kinsman"; NRSV, NLT "your neighbor."

[29] tn Heb "an." By implication this is one's own animal.

Respect for the Sanctity of Others

25:5 If brothers live together and one of them dies without having a son, the dead man's wife must not remarry someone outside the family. Instead, her late husband's brother must go to her, marry her,[1] and perform the duty of a brother-in-law.[2] 25:6 Then[3] the first son[4] she bears will continue the name of the dead brother, thus preventing his name from being blotted out of Israel. 25:7 But if the man does not want to marry his brother's widow, then she[5] must go to the elders at the town gate and say, "My husband's brother refuses to preserve his brother's name in Israel; he is unwilling to perform the duty of a brother-in-law to me!" 25:8 Then the elders of his city must summon him and speak to him. If he persists, saying, "I don't want to marry her," 25:9 then his sister-in-law must approach him in view of the elders, remove his sandal from his foot, and spit in his face.[6] She will then respond, "Thus may it be done to any man who does not maintain his brother's family line!"[7] 25:10 His family name will be referred to[8] in Israel as "the family[9] of the one whose sandal was removed."[10]

25:11 If two men[11] get into a hand-to-hand fight, and the wife of one of them gets involved to help her husband against his attacker, and she reaches out her hand and grabs his genitals,[12] 25:12 then you must cut off her hand – do not pity her.

25:13 You must not have in your bag different stone weights,[13] a heavy and a light one.[14] 25:14 You must not have in your house different measuring containers,[15] a large and a small one. 25:15 You must have an accurate and correct[16] stone weight and an accurate and correct measuring container, so that your life may be extended in the land the LORD your God is about to give you. 25:16 For anyone who acts dishonestly in these ways is abhorrent[17] to the LORD your God.

Treatment of the Amalekites

25:17 Remember what the Amalekites[18] did to you on your way from Egypt, 25:18 how they met you along the way and cut off all your stragglers in the rear of the march when you were exhausted and tired; they were unafraid of God.[19] 25:19 So when the LORD your God gives you relief from all the enemies who surround you in the land he[20] is giving you as an inheritance,[21] you must wipe out the memory of the Amalekites from under heaven[22] – do not forget![23]

Presentation of the First Fruits

26:1 When[24] you enter the land that the LORD your God is giving you as an inheritance, and you occupy it and live in it, 26:2 you must take the first of all the ground's produce you harvest from the land the LORD your God is

1 tn Heb "take her as wife"; NRSV "taking her in marriage."

2 sn This is the so-called "levirate" custom (from the Latin term levir, "brother-in-law"), an ancient provision whereby a man who died without male descendants to carry on his name could have a son by proxy, that is, through a surviving brother who would marry his widow and whose first son would then be attributed to the brother who had died. This is the only reference to this practice in an OT legal text but it is illustrated in the story of Judah and his sons (Gen 38) and possibly in the account of Ruth and Boaz (Ruth 2:8; 3:12; 4:6).

3 tn Heb "and it will be that."

4 tn Heb "the firstborn." This refers to the oldest male child.

5 tn Heb "want to take his sister-in-law, then his sister in law." In the second instance the pronoun ("she") has been used in the translation to avoid redundancy.

6 sn The removal of the sandal was likely symbolic of the relinquishment by the man of any claim to his dead brother's estate since the sandal was associated with the soil or land (cf. Ruth 4:7-8). Spitting in the face was a sign of utmost disgust or disdain, an emotion the rejected widow would feel toward her uncooperative brother-in-law (cf. Num 12:14; Lev 15:8). See W. Bailey, NIDOTTE 2:544.

7 tn Heb "build the house of his brother"; TEV "refuses to give his brother a descendant"; NLT "refuses to raise up a son for his brother."

8 tn Heb "called," i.e., "known as."

9 tn Heb "house."

10 tn Cf. NIV, NCV "The Family of the Unsandaled."

11 tn Heb "a man and his brother."

12 tn Heb "shameful parts." Besides the inherent indelicacy of what she has done, the woman has also threatened the progenitive capacity of the injured man. The level of specificity given this term in modern translations varies: "private parts" (NAB, NIV, CEV); "genitals" (NASB, NRSV, TEV); "sex organs" (NCV); "testicles" (NLT).

13 tn Heb "a stone and a stone." The repetition of the singular noun here expresses diversity, as the following phrase indicates. See IBHS 116 §7.2.3c.

14 tn Heb "a large and a small," but since the issue is the weight, "a heavy and a light one" conveys the idea better in English.

15 tn Heb "an ephah and an ephah." An ephah refers to a unit of dry measure roughly equivalent to five U.S. gallons (just under 20 liters). On the repetition of the term to indicate diversity, see IBHS 116 §7.2.3c.

16 tn Or "just"; Heb "righteous."

17 tn The Hebrew term translated here "abhorrent" (תּוֹעֵבָה, to'evah) speaks of attitudes and/or behaviors so vile as to be reprehensible to a holy God. See note on the word "abhorrent" in Deut 7:25.

18 tn Heb "what Amalek" (so NAB, NRSV). Here the individual ancestor, the namesake of the tribe, is cited as representative of the entire tribe at the time Israel was entering Canaan. Consistent with this, singular pronouns are used in v. 18 and the singular name appears again in v. 19. Since readers unfamiliar with the tribe of Amalekites might think this refers to an individual, the term "Amalekites" and the corresponding plural pronouns have been used throughout these verses (cf. NIV, NCV, TEV, CEV, NLT).

19 sn See Exod 17:8-16.

20 tn Heb " the LORD your God." The pronoun has been used in the translation for stylistic reasons to avoid redundancy.

21 tn The Hebrew text includes "to possess it."

22 tn Or "from beneath the sky." The Hebrew term שָׁמַיִם (shamayim) may be translated "heaven(s)" or "sky" depending on the context.

23 sn This command is fulfilled in 1 Sam 15:1-33.

24 tn Heb "and it will come to pass that."

giving you, place it in a basket, and go to the place where he[1] chooses to locate his name.[2] 26:3 You must go to the priest in office at that time and say to him, "I declare today to the LORD your[3] God that I have come into the land that the LORD[4] promised[5] to our ancestors[6] to give us." 26:4 The priest will then take the basket from you[7] and set it before the altar of the LORD your God. 26:5 Then you must affirm before the LORD your God, "A wandering[8] Aramean[9] was my ancestor,[10] and he went down to Egypt and lived there as a foreigner with a household few in number,[11] but there he became a great, powerful, and numerous people. 26:6 But the Egyptians mistreated and oppressed us, forcing us to do burdensome labor. 26:7 So we cried out to the LORD, the God of our ancestors, and he[12] heard us and saw our humiliation, toil, and oppression. 26:8 Therefore the LORD brought us out of Egypt with tremendous strength and power,[13] as well as with great awe-inspiring signs and wonders. 26:9 Then he brought us to this place and gave us this land, a land flowing with milk and honey. 26:10 So now, look! I have brought the first of the ground's produce that you, LORD, have given me." Then you must set it down before the LORD your God and worship before him.[14] 26:11 You will celebrate all the good things that the LORD your God has given you and your family,[15] along with the Levites and the resident foreigners among you.

Presentation of the Third-year Tithe

26:12 When you finish tithing all[16] your income in the third year (the year of tithing), you must give it to the Levites, the resident foreigners, the orphans, and the widows[17] so that they may eat to their satisfaction in your villages.[18] 26:13 Then you shall say before the LORD your God, "I have removed the sacred offering[19] from my house and given it to the Levites, the resident foreigners, the orphans, and the widows just as you have commanded me.[20] I have not violated or forgotten your commandments. 26:14 I have not eaten anything when I was in mourning, or removed any of it while ceremonially unclean, or offered any of it to the dead;[21] I have obeyed you[22] and have done everything you have commanded me. 26:15 Look down from your holy dwelling place in heaven and bless your people Israel and the land you have given us, just as you promised our ancestors – a land flowing with milk and honey."

Narrative Interlude

26:16 Today the LORD your God is commanding you to keep these statutes and ordinances, something you must do with all your heart and soul.[23] 26:17 Today you have declared the LORD to be your God, and that you will walk in his ways, keep his statutes, commandments, and ordinances, and obey him. 26:18 And today the LORD has declared you to be his special people (as he already promised you) so you may keep all his commandments. 26:19 Then[24] he will

---

[1] tn Heb "the LORD your God." The pronoun has been used in the translation for stylistic reasons to avoid redundancy.

[2] sn The place where he chooses to locate his name. This is a circumlocution for the central sanctuary, first the tabernacle and later the Jerusalem temple. See Deut 12:1-14 and especially the note on the word "you" in v. 14.

[3] tc For the MT reading "your God," certain LXX MSS have "my God," a contextually superior rendition followed by some English versions (e.g., NAB, NASB, TEV). Perhaps the text reflects dittography of the kaf (כ) at the end of the word with the following preposition כִּי (ki).

[4] tc The Syriac adds "your God" to complete the usual formula.

[5] tn Heb "swore on oath."

[6] tn Heb "fathers" (also in vv. 7, 15).

[7] tn Heb "your hand."

[8] tn Though the Hebrew term אָבַד ('avad) generally means "to perish" or the like (HALOT 2-3 s.v.; BDB 1-2 s.v.; cf. KJV "a Syrian ready to perish"), a meaning "to go astray" or "to be lost" is also attested. The ambivalence in the Hebrew text is reflected in the versions where LXX Vaticanus reads ἀπέβαλεν (apebalen, "lose") for a possibly metathesized reading found in Alexandrinus, Ambrosianus, ἀπέλαβεν (apelaben, "receive"); others attest κατέλειπεν (kateleipen, "leave, abandon"). "Wandering" seems to suit best the contrast with the sedentary life Israel would enjoy in Canaan (v. 9) and is the meaning followed by many English versions.

[9] sn A wandering Aramean. This is a reference to Jacob whose mother Rebekah was an Aramean (Gen 24:10; 25:20, 26) and who himself lived in Aram for at least twenty years (Gen 31:41-42).

[10] tn Heb "father."

[11] tn Heb "sojourned there few in number." The words "with a household" have been supplied in the translation for stylistic reasons and for clarity.

[12] tn Heb "the LORD." See note on "he" in 26:2.

[13] tn Heb "by a powerful hand and an extended arm." These are anthropomorphisms designed to convey God's tremendously great power in rescuing Israel from their Egyptian bondage. They are preserved literally in many English versions (cf. KJV, NAB, NIV, NRSV).

[14] tn Heb "the LORD your God." See note on "he" in 26:2.

[15] tn Or "household" (so NASB, NIV, NLT); Heb "house" (so KJV, NRSV).

[16] tn Heb includes "the tithes of." This has not been included in the translation to avoid redundancy.

[17] tn The terms "Levite, resident foreigner, orphan, and widow" are collective singulars in the Hebrew text (also in v. 13).

[18] tn Heb "gates."

[19] tn Heb "the sacred thing." The term הַקֹּדֶשׁ (haqqodesh) likely refers to an offering normally set apart for the LORD but, as a third-year tithe, given on this occasion to people in need. Sometimes this is translated as "the sacred portion" (cf. NASB, NIV, NRSV), but that could sound to a modern reader as if a part of the house were being removed and given away.

[20] tn Heb "according to all your commandment that you commanded me." This has been simplified in the translation for stylistic reasons.

[21] sn These practices suggest overtones of pagan ritual, all of which the confessor denies having undertaken. In Canaan they were connected with fertility practices associated with harvest time. See E. H. Merrill, Deuteronomy (NAC), 335-36.

[22] tn Heb "the LORD my God." See note on "he" in 26:2.

[23] tn Or "mind and being"; cf. NCV "with your whole being"; TEV "obey them faithfully with all your heart."

[24] tn Heb "so that." Verses 18-19 are one sentence in the Hebrew text, but the translation divides it into three sentences for stylistic reasons. The first clause in verse 19 gives a result of the preceding clause. When Israel keeps God's law, God will bless them with fame and honor (cf. NAB "he will then raise you high in praise and renown and glory"; NLT "And elevate you above all the nations he has made and you will receive praise, fame, and honor.[1] You will[2] be a people holy to the LORD your God, as he has said.

The Assembly at Shechem

27:1 Then Moses and the elders of Israel commanded the people: "Pay attention to all the commandments[3] I am giving[4] you today. 27:2 When you cross the Jordan River[5] to the land the LORD your God is giving you, you must erect great stones and cover[6] them with plaster. 27:3 Then you must inscribe on them all the words of this law when you cross over, so that you may enter the land the LORD your God is giving you, a land flowing with milk and honey just as the LORD, the God of your ancestors,[7] said to you. 27:4 So when you cross the Jordan you must erect on Mount Ebal[8] these stones about which I am commanding you today, and you must cover them with plaster. 27:5 Then you must build an altar there to the LORD your God, an altar of stones – do not use an iron tool on them. 27:6 You must build the altar of the LORD your God with whole stones and offer burnt offerings on it to the LORD your God. 27:7 Also you must offer fellowship offerings and eat them there, rejoicing before the LORD your God. 27:8 You must inscribe on the stones all the words of this law, making them clear."

27:9 Then Moses and the Levitical priests spoke to all Israel: "Be quiet and pay attention, Israel. Today you have become the people of the LORD your God. 27:10 You must obey him[9] and keep his commandments and statutes that I am giving you today." 27:11 Moreover, Moses commanded the people that day: 27:12 "The following tribes[10] must stand to bless the people on Mount Gerizim when you cross the Jordan: Simeon, Levi, Judah, Issachar, Joseph, and Benjamin. 27:13 And these other tribes must stand for the curse on Mount Ebal: Reuben, Gad, Asher, Zebulun, Dan, and Naphtali.

The Covenant Curses

27:14 "The Levites will call out to every Israelite[11] with a loud voice: 27:15 'Cursed is the one[12] who makes a carved or metal image – something abhorrent[13] to the LORD, the work of the craftsman[14] – and sets it up in a secret place.' Then all the people will say, 'Amen!'[15] 27:16 'Cursed[16] is the one who disrespects[17] his father and mother.' Then all the people will say, 'Amen!' 27:17 'Cursed is the one who moves his neighbor's boundary marker.' Then all the people will say, 'Amen!' 27:18 'Cursed is the one who misleads a blind person on the road.' Then all the people will say, 'Amen!' 27:19 'Cursed is the one who perverts justice for the resident foreigner, the orphan, and the widow.' Then all the people will say, 'Amen!' 27:20 'Cursed is the one who has sexual relations with[18] his father's former wife,[19] for he dishonors his father.'[20] Then all the people will say, 'Amen!' 27:21 'Cursed is the one who commits bestiality.'[21] Then all the people will say, 'Amen!' 27:22 'Cursed is the one who has sexual relations with his sister, the daughter of either his father or mother.' Then all the people will say, 'Amen!' 27:23 'Cursed is the one who has sexual relations with his mother-in-law.' Then all the people will say, 'Amen!' 27:24 'Cursed is the one who if you do, he will make you greater than any other nation").

[1] tn Heb "for praise and for a name and for glory."

[2] tn Heb "and to be." A new sentence was started here for stylistic reasons.

[3] tn Heb "the whole commandment." See note at 5:31.

[4] tn Heb "commanding"; NAB "which I enjoin on you today" (likewise in v. 10).

[5] tn The word "River" is not in the Hebrew text but has been supplied in the translation for clarity.

[6] tn Heb "plaster" (so KJV, ASV; likewise in v. 4). In the translation "cover" has been used for stylistic reasons.

[7] tn Heb "fathers."

[8] tc Smr reads "Mount Gerizim" for the MT reading "Mount Ebal" to justify the location of the Samaritan temple there in the postexilic period. This reading is patently self-serving and does not reflect the original. In the NT when the Samaritan woman of Sychar referred to "this mountain" as the place of worship for her community she obviously had Gerizim in mind (cf. John 4:20).

[9] tn Heb "listen to the voice of the LORD your God." Here "listen" (NAB "hearken") means "obey" (cf. KJV, ASV, NASB). The pronoun has been used in the translation for stylistic reasons to avoid redundancy.

[10] tn The word "tribes" has been supplied here and in the following verse in the translation for clarity.

[11] tn Heb "Israelite man."

[12] tn Heb "man," but in a generic sense here.

[13] tn The Hebrew term translated here "abhorrent" (תּוֹעֲבָה, to'evah) speaks of attitudes and/or behaviors so vile as to be reprehensible to a holy God. See note on the word "abhorrent" in Deut 7:25.

[14] tn Heb "craftsman's hands."

[15] tn Or "So be it!" The term is an affirmation expressing agreement with the words of the Levites.

[16] tn The Levites speak again at this point; throughout this pericope the Levites pronounce the curse and the people respond with "Amen."

[17] tn The Hebrew term קָלָה (qalah) means to treat with disdain or lack of due respect (cf. NAB, NIV, NRSV "dishonors"; NLT "despises"). It is the opposite of כָּבַד (kaved, "to be heavy," that is, to treat with reverence and proper deference). To treat a parent lightly is to dishonor him or her and thus violate the fifth commandment (Deut 5:16; cf. Exod 21:17).

[18] tn Heb "who lies with" (so NASB, NRSV); also in vv. 22, 23. This is a Hebrew idiom for having sexual relations (cf. NIV "who sleeps with"; NLT "who has sexual intercourse with").

[19] tn See note at Deut 22:30.

[20] tn Heb "he uncovers his father's skirt" (NASB similar). See note at Deut 22:30.

[21] tn Heb "lies with any animal" (so NASB, NRSV). "To lie with" is a Hebrew euphemism for having sexual relations with someone (or in this case, some animal).

kills[1] his neighbor in private.' Then all the people will say, 'Amen!' 27:25 'Cursed is the one who takes a bribe to kill an innocent person.' Then all the people will say, 'Amen!' 27:26 'Cursed is the one who refuses to keep the words of this law.' Then all the people will say, 'Amen!'

The Covenant Blessings

28:1 "If you indeed[2] obey the LORD your God and are careful to observe all his commandments I am giving[3] you today, the LORD your God will elevate you above all the nations of the earth. 28:2 All these blessings will come to you in abundance[4] if you obey the LORD your God: 28:3 You will be blessed in the city and blessed in the field.[5] 28:4 Your children[6] will be blessed, as well as the produce of your soil, the offspring of your livestock, the calves of your herds, and the lambs of your flocks. 28:5 Your basket and your mixing bowl will be blessed. 28:6 You will be blessed when you come in and blessed when you go out.[7] 28:7 The LORD will cause your enemies who attack[8] you to be struck down before you; they will attack you from one direction[9] but flee from you in seven different directions. 28:8 The LORD will decree blessing for you with respect to your barns and in everything you do – yes, he will bless you in the land he[10] is giving you. 28:9 The LORD will designate you as his holy people just as he promised you, if you keep his commandments[11] and obey him.[12] 28:10 Then all the peoples of the earth will see that you belong to the LORD,[13] and they will respect you. 28:11 The LORD will greatly multiply your children,[14] the offspring of your livestock, and the produce of your soil in the land which he[15] promised your ancestors[16] he would give you. 28:12 The LORD will open for you his good treasure house, the heavens, to give you rain for the land in its season and to bless all you do;[17] you will lend to many nations but you will not borrow from any. 28:13 The LORD will make you the head and not the tail, and you will always end up at the top and not at the bottom, if you obey his[18] commandments which I am urging[19] you today to be careful to do. 28:14 But you must not turn away from all the commandments I am giving[20] you today, to either the right or left, nor pursue other gods and worship[21] them.

Curses as Reversal of Blessings

28:15 "But if you ignore[22] the LORD your God and are not careful to keep all his commandments and statutes I am giving you today, then all these curses will come upon you in full force:[23] 28:16 You will be cursed in the city and cursed in the field. 28:17 Your basket and your mixing bowl will be cursed. 28:18 Your children[24] will be cursed, as well as the produce of your soil, the calves of your herds, and the lambs of your flocks. 28:19 You will be cursed when you come in and cursed when you go out.[25]

Curses by Disease and Drought

28:20 "The LORD will send on you a curse, confusing you and opposing you[26] in everything you undertake[27] until you are destroyed and quickly perish because of the evil of your deeds, in that you have forsaken me.[28] 28:21 The LORD will plague you with deadly diseases[29] until he has completely removed you from the land you are about to possess. 28:22 He[30] will afflict you with weakness,[31] fever, inflammation, infec-

[1] tn Or "strikes down" (so NRSV).

[2] tn The Hebrew text uses the infinitive absolute for emphasis, which the translation indicates with "indeed."

[3] tn Heb "commanding"; NAB "which I enjoin on you today" (likewise in v. 15).

[4] tn Heb "come upon you and overtake you" (so NASB, NRSV); NIV "come upon you and accompany you."

[5] tn Or "in the country" (so NAB, NIV, NLT). This expression also occurs in v. 15.

[6] tn Heb "the fruit of your womb" (so NAB, NIV, NRSV).

[7] sn Come in...go out. To "come in" and "go out" is a figure of speech (merism) indicating all of life and its activities.

[8] tn Heb "who rise up against" (so NIV).

[9] tn Heb "way" (also later in this verse and in v. 25).

[10] tn Heb "the LORD your God." Because English would not typically reintroduce the proper name following a relative pronoun ("he will bless...the LORD your God is giving"), the pronoun ("he") has been employed here in the translation.

[11] tn Heb "the commandments of the LORD your God." See note on "he" in the previous verse.

[12] tn Heb "and walk in his ways" (so NAB, NASB, NIV, NRSV, NLT).

[13] tn Heb "the name of the Lord is called over you." The Hebrew idiom indicates ownership; see 2 Sam 12:28; Isa 4:1, as well as BDB 896 s.v. קָרָא Niph. 2.d.(4).

[14] tn Heb "the fruit of your womb" (so NAB, NIV, NRSV); CEV "will give you a lot of children."

[15] tn Heb "the LORD." See note on "he" in 28:8.

[16] tn Heb "fathers" (also in vv. 36, 64).

[17] tn Heb "all the work of your hands."

[18] tn Heb "the LORD your God's." See note on "he" in 28:8.

[19] tn Heb "commanding" (so NRSV); NASB "which I charge you today."

[20] tn Heb "from all the words which I am commanding."

[21] tn Heb "in order to serve."

[22] tn Heb "do not hear the voice of."

[23] tn Heb "and overtake you" (so NIV, NRSV); NAB, NLT "and overwhelm you."

[24] tn Heb "the fruit of your womb" (so NAB, NIV, NRSV).

[25] sn See note on the similar expression in v. 6.

[26] tn Heb "the curse, the confusion, and the rebuke" (NASB and NIV similar); NRSV "disaster, panic, and frustration."

[27] tn Heb "in all the stretching out of your hand."

[28] tc For the MT first person common singular suffix ("me"), the LXX reads either "Lord" (Lucian) or third person masculine singular suffix ("him"; various codices). The MT's more difficult reading probably represents the original text.

tn Heb "the evil of your doings wherein you have forsaken me"; CEV "all because you rejected the Lord."

[29] tn Heb "will cause pestilence to cling to you."

[30] tn Heb "The LORD." See note on "he" in 28:8.

[31] tn Or perhaps "consumption" (so KJV, NASB, NRSV). The term is from a verbal root that indicates a weakening of one's physical strength (cf. NAB "wasting"; NIV, NLT "wasting disease").

tion,[1] sword,[2] blight, and mildew; these will attack you until you perish. 28:23 The[3] sky[4] above your heads will be bronze and the earth beneath you iron. 28:24 The LORD will make the rain of your land powder and dust; it will come down on you from the sky until you are destroyed.

Curses by Defeat and Deportation

28:25 "The LORD will allow you to be struck down before your enemies; you will attack them from one direction but flee from them in seven directions and will become an object of terror[5] to all the kingdoms of the earth. 28:26 Your carcasses will be food for every bird of the sky and wild animal of the earth, and there will be no one to chase them off. 28:27 The LORD will afflict you with the boils of Egypt and with tumors, eczema, and scabies, all of which cannot be healed. 28:28 The LORD will also subject you to madness, blindness, and confusion of mind.[6] 28:29 You will feel your way along at noon like the blind person does in darkness and you will not succeed in anything you do;[7] you will be constantly oppressed and continually robbed, with no one to save you. 28:30 You will be engaged to a woman and another man will rape[8] her. You will build a house but not live in it. You will plant a vineyard but not even begin to use it. 28:31 Your ox will be slaughtered before your very eyes but you will not eat of it. Your donkey will be stolen from you as you watch and will not be returned to you. Your flock of sheep will be given to your enemies and there will be no one to save you. 28:32 Your sons and daughters will be given to another people while you look on in vain all day, and you will be powerless to do anything about it.[9] 28:33 As for the produce of your land and all your labor, a people you do not know will consume it, and you will be nothing but oppressed and crushed for the rest of your lives. 28:34 You will go insane from seeing all this. 28:35 The LORD will afflict you in your knees and on your legs with painful, incurable boils – from the soles of your feet to the top of your head. 28:36 The LORD will force you and your king[10] whom you will appoint over you to go away to a people whom you and your ancestors have not known, and you will serve other gods of wood and stone there. 28:37 You will become an occasion of horror, a proverb, and an object of ridicule to all the peoples to whom the LORD will drive you.

The Curse of Reversed Status

28:38 "You will take much seed to the field but gather little harvest, because locusts will consume it. 28:39 You will plant vineyards and cultivate them, but you will not drink wine or gather in grapes, because worms will eat them. 28:40 You will have olive trees throughout your territory but you will not anoint yourself with olive oil, because the olives will drop off the trees while still unripe.[11] 28:41 You will bear sons and daughters but not keep them, because they will be taken into captivity. 28:42 Whirring locusts[12] will take over every tree and all the produce of your soil. 28:43 The foreigners[13] who reside among you will become higher and higher over you and you will become lower and lower. 28:44 They will lend to you but you will not lend to them; they will become the head and you will become the tail!

28:45 All these curses will fall on you, pursuing and overtaking you until you are destroyed, because you would not obey the LORD your God by keeping his commandments and statutes that he has given[14] you. 28:46 These curses[15] will be a perpetual sign and wonder with reference to you and your descendants.[16]

The Curse of Military Siege

28:47 "Because you have not served the LORD your God joyfully and wholeheartedly with the abundance of everything you have, 28:48 instead in hunger, thirst, nakedness, and poverty[17] you will serve your enemies whom the LORD will send against you. They[18] will place an iron yoke on your neck until they have destroyed

[1] tn Heb "hot fever"; NIV "scorching heat."

[2] tn Or "drought" (so NIV, NRSV, NLT).

[3] tc The MT reads "Your." The LXX reads "Heaven will be to you."

[4] tn Or "heavens" (also in the following verse). The Hebrew term שָׁמַיִם (shamayim) may be translated "heaven(s)" or "sky" depending on the context.

[5] tc The meaningless MT reading זַעֲוָה (za'avah) is clearly a transposition of the more commonly attested Hebrew noun זְוָעָה (zᵉva'ah, "terror").

[6] tn Heb "heart" (so KJV, NASB).

[7] tn Heb "you will not cause your ways to prosper."

[8] tc For MT reading שְׁגַל (shagal, "ravish; violate"), the Syriac, Targum, and Vulgate presume the less violent שָׁכַב (shakhav, "lie with"). The unexpected counterpart to betrothal here favors the originality of the MT.

[9] tn Heb "and there will be no power in your hand"; NCV "there will be nothing you can do."

[10] tc The LXX reads the plural "kings."

[11] tn Heb "your olives will drop off" (נָשַׁל, nashal), referring to the olives dropping off before they ripen.

[12] tn The Hebrew term denotes some sort of buzzing or whirring insect; some have understood this to be a type of locust (KJV, NIV, CEV), but other insects have also been suggested: "buzzing insects" (NAB); "the cricket" (NASB); "the cicada" (NRSV).

[13] tn Heb "the foreigner." This is a collective singular and has therefore been translated as plural; this includes the pronouns in the following verse, which are also singular in the Hebrew text.

[14] tn Heb "commanded"; NAB, NIV, TEV "he gave you."

[15] tn Heb "they"; the referent (the curses mentioned previously) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[16] tn Heb "seed" (so KJV, ASV).

[17] tn Heb "lack of everything."

[18] tn Heb "he" (also later in this verse). The pronoun is a collective singular referring to the enemies (cf. CEV, NLT). Many translations understand the singular pronoun to refer to the LORD (cf. NAB, NASB, NIV, NCV, NRSV, TEV).

you. 28:49 The LORD will raise up a distant nation against you, one from the other side of the earth[1] as the eagle flies,[2] a nation whose language you will not understand, 28:50 a nation of stern appearance that will have no regard for the elderly or pity for the young. 28:51 They[3] will devour the offspring of your livestock and the produce of your soil until you are destroyed. They will not leave you with any grain, new wine, olive oil, calves of your herds,[4] or lambs of your flocks[5] until they have destroyed you. 28:52 They will besiege all of your villages[6] until all of your high and fortified walls collapse – those in which you put your confidence throughout the land. They will besiege all your villages throughout the land the LORD your God has given you. 28:53 You will then eat your own offspring,[7] the flesh of the sons and daughters the LORD your God has given you, because of the severity of the siege[8] by which your enemies will constrict you. 28:54 The man among you who is by nature tender and sensitive will turn against his brother, his beloved wife, and his remaining children. 28:55 He will withhold from all of them his children's flesh that he is eating (since there is nothing else left), because of the severity of the siege by which your enemy will constrict[9] you in your villages. 28:56 Likewise, the most[10] tender and delicate of your women, who would never think of putting even the sole of her foot on the ground because of her daintiness,[11] will turn against her beloved husband, her sons and daughters, 28:57 and will secretly eat her afterbirth[12] and her newborn children[13] (since she has nothing else),[14] because of the severity of the siege by which your enemy will constrict you in your villages.

The Curse of Covenant Termination

28:58 "If you refuse to obey[15] all the words of this law, the things written in this scroll, and refuse to fear this glorious and awesome name, the LORD your God, 28:59 then the LORD will increase your punishments and those of your descendants – great and long-lasting afflictions and severe, enduring illnesses. 28:60 He will infect you with all the diseases of Egypt[16] that you dreaded, and they will persistently afflict you.[17] 28:61 Moreover, the LORD will bring upon you every kind of sickness and plague not mentioned in this scroll of commandments,[18] until you have perished. 28:62 There will be very few of you left, though at one time you were as numerous as the stars in the sky,[19] because you will have disobeyed[20] the LORD your God. 28:63 This is what will happen: Just as the LORD delighted to do good for you and make you numerous, he[21] will take delight in destroying and decimating you. You will be uprooted from the land you are about to possess. 28:64 The LORD will scatter you among all nations, from one end of the earth to the other. There you will worship other gods that neither you nor your ancestors have known, gods of wood and stone. 28:65 Among those nations you will have no rest nor will there be a place of peaceful rest for the soles of your feet, for there the LORD will give you an anxious heart, failing eyesight, and a spirit of despair. 28:66 Your life will hang in doubt before you; you will be terrified by night and day and will have no certainty of surviving from one day to the next.[22] 28:67 In the morning you will say, 'If only it were evening!' And in the evening you will say, 'I wish it were morning!' because of the things you will fear and the things you will see. 28:68 Then the LORD will make you return to Egypt by ship, over a route I said to you that you would never see again. There you will sell yourselves to your enemies as male and female slaves, but no one will buy you."

Narrative Interlude

29:1 (28:69)[23] These are the words of the covenant that the LORD commanded Moses to

[1] tn Heb "from the end of the earth."

[2] tn Some translations understand this to mean "like an eagle swoops down" (e.g., NAB, NASB, NIV, NRSV, NLT), comparing the swift attack of an eagle to the attack of the Israelites' enemies.

[3] tn Heb "it" (so NRSV), a collective singular referring to the invading nation (several times in this verse and v. 52).

[4] tn Heb "increase of herds."

[5] tn Heb "growth of flocks."

[6] tn Heb "gates," also in vv. 55, 57.

[7] tn Heb "the fruit of your womb" (so NAB, NRSV); NASB "the offspring of your own body."

[8] tn Heb "siege and stress."

[9] tn Heb "besiege," redundant with the noun "siege."

[10] tc The LXX adds σφόδρα (sphodra, "very") to bring the description into line with v. 54.

[11] tn Heb "delicateness and tenderness."

[12] tn Heb includes "that which comes out from between her feet."

[13] tn Heb "her sons that she will bear."

[14] tn Heb includes "in her need for everything."

[15] tn Heb "If you are not careful to do."

[16] sn These are the plagues the LORD inflicted on the Egyptians prior to the exodus which, though they did not fall upon the Israelites, must have caused great terror (cf. Exod 15:26).

[17] tn Heb "will cling to you" (so NIV); NLT "will claim you."

[18] tn The Hebrew term תּוֹרָה (torah) can refer either (1) to the whole Pentateuch or, more likely, (2) to the book of Deuteronomy or even (3) only to this curse section of the covenant text. "Scroll" better reflects the actual document, since "book" conveys the notion of a bound book with pages to the modern English reader. Cf. KJV, NASB, NRSV "the book of this law"; NIV, NLT "this Book of the Law"; TEV "this book of God's laws and teachings."

[19] tn Or "heavens." The Hebrew term שָׁמַיִם (shamayim) may be translated "heaven(s)" or "sky" depending on the context.

[20] tn Heb "have not listened to the voice of."

[21] tn Heb "the LORD." See note on "he" in 28:8.

[22] tn Heb "you will not be confident in your life." The phrase "from one day to the next" is implied by the following verse.

[23] sn Beginning with 29:1, the verse numbers through 29:29 in the English Bible differ from the verse numbers in the Hebrew text (BHS), with 29:1 ET = 28:69 HT, 29:2 ET = 29:1 HT, 29:3 ET = 29:2 HT, etc., through 29:29 ET = 29:28 HT. With 30:1 the verse numbers in the ET and HT are again the same.

make with the people of Israel in the land of Moab, in addition to the covenant he had made with them at Horeb.[1]

The Exodus, Wandering, and Conquest Reviewed

29:2 Moses proclaimed to all Israel as follows: "You have seen all that the LORD did[2] in the land of Egypt to Pharaoh, all his servants, and his land. 29:3 Your eyes have seen the great judgments,[3] those signs and mighty wonders. 29:4 But to this very day the LORD has not given you an understanding mind, perceptive eyes, or discerning ears![4] 29:5 I have led you through the desert for forty years. Your clothing has not worn out[5] nor have your sandals[6] deteriorated. 29:6 You have eaten no bread and drunk no wine or beer – all so that you might know that I[7] am the LORD your God! 29:7 When you came to this place King Sihon of Heshbon and King Og of Bashan came out to make war and we defeated them. 29:8 Then we took their land and gave it as an inheritance to Reuben, Gad, and half the tribe of Manasseh.

The Present Covenant Setting

29:9 "Therefore, keep the terms[8] of this covenant and obey them so that you may be successful in everything you do. 29:10 You are standing today, all of you, before the LORD your God – the heads of your tribes,[9] your elders, your officials, every Israelite man, 29:11 your infants, your wives, and the[10] foreigners living in your encampment, those who chop wood and those who carry water – 29:12 so that you may enter by oath into the covenant the LORD your God is making with you today.[11] 29:13 Today he will affirm that you are his people and that he is your God,[12] just as he promised you and as he swore by oath to your ancestors[13] Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. 29:14 It is not with you alone that I am making this covenant by oath, 29:15 but with whoever stands with us here today before the LORD our God as well as those not with us here today.[14]

The Results of Disobedience

29:16 "(For you know how we lived in the land of Egypt and how we crossed through the nations as we traveled. 29:17 You have seen their detestable things[15] and idols of wood, stone, silver, and gold.)[16] 29:18 Beware that the heart of no man, woman, clan, or tribe among you turns away from the LORD our God today to pursue and serve the gods of those nations; beware that there is among you no root producing poisonous and bitter fruit.[17] 29:19 When such a person[18] hears the words of this oath he secretly[19] blesses himself[20] and says, "I will have peace though I continue to walk with a stubborn spirit."[21] This will destroy[22] the watered ground with the parched.[23] 29:20 The LORD will be unwilling to forgive him, and his intense anger[24] will rage[25] against that man; all the curses[26] written in this

[1] sn Horeb is another name for Mount Sinai (which some English versions substitute here for clarity, cf. NCV, TEV, CEV, NLT).

[2] tn The Hebrew text includes "to your eyes," but this is redundant in English style (cf. the preceding "you have seen") and is omitted in the translation.

[3] tn Heb "testings." This is a reference to the plagues; see note at 4:34.

[4] tn Heb "a heart to know, eyes to see and ears to hear" (NASB similar); NAB, NRSV "a mind to understand, or eyes to see, or ears to hear."

[5] tn The Hebrew text includes "on you." This has not been included in the translation for stylistic reasons.

[6] tn The Hebrew text includes "from on your feet."

[7] tc The LXX reads "that he is the LORD your God."

[8] tn Heb "words."

[9] tc Heb "your heads, your tribes." The Syriac presupposes either "heads of your tribes" or "your heads, your judges," etc. (reading שֹׁפְטֵכֶם [shofᵉtekhem] for שִׁבְטֵיכֶם [shivtekhem]). Its comparative difficulty favors the originality of the MT reading. Cf. KJV "your captains of your tribes"; NRSV "the leaders of your tribes"; NLT "your tribal leaders."

[10] tn Heb "your."

[11] tn Heb "for you to pass on into the covenant of the LORD your God and into his oath, which the LORD your God is cutting with you today."

[12] tn Heb "in order to establish you today to him for a people and he will be to you for God." Verses 10-13 are one long sentence in Hebrew. The translation divides this into two sentences for stylistic reasons.

[13] tn Heb "fathers" (also in v. 25).

[14] tn This is interpreted by some English versions as a reference to generations not yet born (cf. TEV, CEV, NLT).

[15] tn The Hebrew term שִׁקּוּץ (shiquts) refers to anything out of keeping with the nature and character of Yahweh and therefore to be avoided by his people Israel. It is commonly used with or as a synonym for תּוֹעֵבָה (to'evah, "detestable, abhorrent"; 2 Kgs 23:13; Jer 16:18; Ezek 5:11; 7:20; 11:18, 21; see note on the term "abhorrent" in Deut 7:25). See M. Grisanti, NIDOTTE 4:243-46.

[16] tn The Hebrew text includes "which were with them." Verses 16-17 constitute a parenthetical comment.

[17] tn Heb "yielding fruit poisonous and wormwood." The Hebrew noun לַעֲנָה (la'anah) literally means "wormwood" (so KJV, ASV, NAB, NASB), but is used figuratively for anything extremely bitter, thus here "fruit poisonous and bitter."

[18] tn Heb "he"; the referent (the subject of the warning in v. 18) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[19] tn Heb "in his heart."

[20] tn Or "invokes a blessing on himself." A formalized word of blessing is in view, the content of which appears later in the verse.

[21] tn Heb "heart."

[22] tn Heb "thus destroying." For stylistic reasons the translation begins a new sentence here.

[23] tn Heb "the watered with the parched." The word "ground" is implied. The exact meaning of the phrase is uncertain although it appears to be figurative. This appears to be a proverbial observation employing a figure of speech (a merism) suggesting totality. That is, the Israelite who violates the letter and even spirit of the covenant will harm not only himself but everything he touches – "the watered and the parched." Cf. CEV "you will cause the rest of Israel to be punished along with you."

[24] tn Heb "the wrath of the LORD and his zeal." The expression is a hendiadys, a figure in which the second noun becomes adjectival to the first.

[25] tn Heb "smoke," or "smolder."

[26] tn Heb "the entire oath."

scroll will fall upon him[1] and the LORD will obliterate his name from memory.[2] 29:21 The LORD will single him out[3] for judgment[4] from all the tribes of Israel according to all the curses of the covenant written in this scroll of the law. 29:22 The generation to come – your descendants who will rise up after you, as well as the foreigner who will come from distant places – will see[5] the afflictions of that land and the illnesses that the LORD has brought on it. 29:23 The whole land will be covered with brimstone, salt, and burning debris; it will not be planted nor will it sprout or produce grass. It will resemble the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah, Admah and Zeboiim, which the LORD destroyed in his intense anger.[6] 29:24 Then all the nations will ask, "Why has the LORD done all this to this land? What is this fierce, heated display of anger[7] all about?" 29:25 Then people will say, "Because they abandoned the covenant of the LORD, the God of their ancestors, which he made with them when he brought them out of the land of Egypt. 29:26 They went and served other gods and worshiped them, gods they did not know and that he did not permit them to worship.[8] 29:27 That is why the LORD's anger erupted against this land, bringing on it all the curses[9] written in this scroll. 29:28 So the LORD has uprooted them from their land in anger, wrath, and great rage and has deported them to another land, as is clear today." 29:29 Secret things belong to the LORD our God, but those that are revealed belong to us and our descendants[10] forever, so that we might obey all the words of this law.

The Results of Covenant Reaffirmation

30:1 "When you have experienced all these things, both the blessings and the curses[11] I have set before you, you will reflect upon them[12] in all the nations where the LORD your God has banished you. 30:2 Then if you and your descendants[13] turn to the LORD your God and obey him with your whole mind and being[14] just as[15] I am commanding you today, 30:3 the LORD your God will reverse your captivity and have pity on you. He will turn and gather you from all the peoples among whom he[16] has scattered you. 30:4 Even if your exiles are in the most distant land,[17] from there the LORD your God will gather you and bring you back. 30:5 Then he[18] will bring you to the land your ancestors[19] possessed and you also will possess it; he will do better for you and multiply you more than he did your ancestors. 30:6 The LORD your God will also cleanse[20] your heart and the hearts of your descendants[21] so that you may love him[22] with all your mind and being and so that you may live. 30:7 Then the LORD your God will put all these curses on your enemies, on those who hate you and persecute you. 30:8 You will return and obey the LORD, keeping all his commandments I am giving[23] you today. 30:9 The LORD your God will make the labor of your hands[24] abundantly successful and multiply your children,[25] the offspring of your cattle, and the produce of your soil. For the LORD your God will once more[26] rejoice over you to make you prosperous[27] just as he rejoiced over your ancestors, 30:10 if you obey the LORD your God and keep his commandments and statutes that are written in this scroll of the law. But you must turn to him[28] with your whole mind and being.

Exhortation to Covenant Obedience

30:11 "This commandment I am giving[29] you today is not too difficult for you, nor is it too remote. 30:12 It is not in heaven, as though one must say, "Who will go up to heaven to get it for us and proclaim it to us so we may obey it?"

[1] tn Or "will lie in wait against him."

[2] tn Heb "blot out his name from under the sky."

[3] tn Heb "set him apart."

[4] tn Heb "for evil"; NAB "for doom"; NASB "for adversity"; NIV "for disaster"; NRSV "for calamity."

[5] tn Heb "will say and see." One expects a quotation to appear, but it seems to be omitted. To avoid confusion in the translation, the verb "will say" is omitted.

[6] tn Heb "the anger and the wrath." This construction is a hendiadys intended to intensify the emotion.

[7] tn Heb "this great burning of anger"; KJV "the heat of this great anger."

[8] tn Heb "did not assign to them"; NASB, NRSV "had not allotted to them."

[9] tn Heb "the entire curse."

[10] tn Heb "sons" (so NASB); KJV, ASV, NIV, NRSV "children."

[11] tn Heb "the blessing and the curse."

[12] tn Heb "and you bring (them) back to your heart."

[13] tn Heb "sons" (so NASB); KJV, ASV, NAB, NIV, NRSV, NLT "children."

[14] tn Or "heart and soul" (also in vv. 6, 10).

[15] tn Heb "according to all."

[16] tn Heb "the LORD your God." The pronoun has been used in the translation for stylistic reasons to avoid redundancy.

[17] tn Heb "are at the farthest edge of the heavens." The Hebrew term שָׁמַיִם (shamayim) may be translated "heaven(s)" or "sky" depending on the context.

[18] tn Heb "the LORD your God." See note on the second occurrence of the word "he" in v. 3.

[19] tn Heb "fathers" (also later in this verse and in vv. 9, 20).

[20] tn Heb "circumcise" (so KJV, NAB, NIV, NRSV); TEV "will give you and your descendents obedient hearts." See note on the word "cleanse" in Deut 10:16.

[21] tn Heb "seed" (so KJV, ASV).

[22] tn Heb "the LORD your God." See note on the second occurrence of the word "he" in v. 3.

[23] tn Heb "commanding"; NAB "which I now enjoin on you."

[24] tc The MT reads "hand" (singular). Most versions read the plural.

[25] tn Heb "the fruit of your womb" (so NAB, NIV); NRSV "of your body."

[26] tn Heb "return and." The Hebrew verb is used idiomatically here to indicate the repetition of the following action.

[27] tn The Hebrew text includes "for good."

[28] tn Heb "to the LORD your God." See note on the second occurrence of the word "he" in v. 3.

[29] tn Heb "commanding"; NAB "which I enjoin on you."

30:13 And it is not across the sea, as though one must say, "Who will cross over to the other side of the sea and get it for us and proclaim it to us so we may obey it?" 30:14 For the thing is very near you – it is in your mouth and in your mind[1] so that you can do it.

30:15 "Look! I have set before you today life and prosperity on the one hand, and death and disaster on the other. 30:16 What[2] I am commanding you today is to love the LORD your God, to walk in his ways, and to obey his commandments, his statutes, and his ordinances. Then you will live and become numerous and the LORD your God will bless you in the land which you are about to possess.[3] 30:17 However, if you[4] turn aside and do not obey, but are lured away to worship and serve other gods, 30:18 I declare to you this very day that you will certainly[5] perish! You will not extend your time in the land you are crossing the Jordan to possess.[6] 30:19 Today I invoke heaven and earth as a witness against you that I have set life and death, blessing and curse, before you. Therefore choose life so that you and your descendants may live! 30:20 I also call on you[7] to love the LORD your God, to obey him and be loyal to him, for he gives you life and enables you to live continually[8] in the land the LORD promised to give to your ancestors Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob."

Succession of Moses by Joshua

31:1 Then Moses went[9] and spoke these words[10] to all Israel. 31:2 He said to them, "Today I am a hundred and twenty years old. I am no longer able to get about,[11] and the LORD has said to me, 'You will not cross the Jordan.' 31:3 As for the LORD your God, he is about to cross over before you; he will destroy these nations before you and dispossess them. As for Joshua, he is about to cross before you just as the LORD has said. 31:4 The LORD will do to them just what he did to Sihon and Og, the Amorite kings, and to their land, which he destroyed. 31:5 The LORD will deliver them over to you and you will do to them according to the whole commandment I have given you. 31:6 Be strong and courageous! Do not fear or tremble before them, for the LORD your God is the one who is going with you. He will not fail you or abandon you!" 31:7 Then Moses called out to Joshua[12] in the presence of all Israel, "Be strong and courageous, for you will accompany these people to the land that the LORD promised to give their ancestors,[13] and you will enable them to inherit it. 31:8 The LORD is indeed going before you – he will be with you; he will not fail you or abandon you. Do not be afraid or discouraged!"

The Deposit of the Covenant Text

31:9 Then Moses wrote down this law and gave it to the Levitical priests, who carry the ark of the LORD's covenant, and to all Israel's elders. 31:10 He[14] commanded them: "At the end of seven years, at the appointed time of the cancellation of debts,[15] at the Feast of Temporary Shelters,[16] 31:11 when all Israel comes to appear before the LORD your God in the place he chooses, you must read this law before them[17] within their hearing. 31:12 Gather the people – men, women, and children, as well as the resident foreigners in your villages – so they may hear and thus learn about and fear the LORD your God and carefully obey all the words of this law. 31:13 Then their children, who have not known this law,[18] will also hear about and learn to fear the LORD your God for as long as you live in the land you are crossing the Jordan to possess."

---

1 tn Heb "heart."

2 tc A number of LXX MSS insert before this verse, "if you obey the commandments of the LORD your God," thus translating אֲשֶׁר ('asher) as "which" and the rest as "I am commanding you today, to love," etc., "then you will live," etc.

3 tn Heb "which you are going there to possess it." This has been simplified in the translation for stylistic reasons.

4 tn Heb "your heart," as a metonymy for the person.

5 tn The Hebrew text uses the infinitive absolute for emphasis, which the translation indicates with "certainly."

6 tn Heb "to go there to possess it."

7 tn The words "I also call on you" are supplied in the translation for stylistic reasons. In the Hebrew text vv. 19-20 are one long sentence, which the translation divides into two.

8 tn Heb "he is your life and the length of your days to live."

9 tc For the MT reading וַיֵּלֶךְ (vayyelekh, "he went"), the LXX and Qumran have וַיְכַל (vaykhal, "he finished"): "So Moses finished speaking," etc. The difficult reading of the MT favors its authenticity.

10 tn In the MT this refers to the words that follow (cf. NIV, NCV).

11 tn Or "am no longer able to lead you" (NIV, NLT); Heb "am no longer able to go out and come in."

12 tn The Hebrew text includes "and said to him." This has not been included in the translation for stylistic reasons.

13 tn Heb "fathers" (also in v. 20).

14 tn Heb "Moses." The pronoun has been used in the translation for stylistic reasons.

15 tn The Hebrew term שְׁמִטָּה (sh^{e}mittah), a derivative of the verb שָׁמַט (shamat, "to release; to relinquish"), refers to the procedure whereby debts of all fellow Israelites were to be canceled. Since the Feast of Tabernacles celebrated God's own deliverance of and provision for his people, this was an appropriate time for Israelites to release one another. See note on this word at Deut 15:1.

16 tn The Hebrew phrase חַג [הַסֻּכּוֹת] ([khag] hassukot, "[festival of] huts" [or "shelters"]) is traditionally known as the Feast of Tabernacles. See note on the name of the festival in Deut 16:13.

sn For the regulations on this annual festival see Deut 16:13-15.

17 tn Heb "before all Israel."

18 tn The phrase "this law" is not in the Hebrew text, but English style requires an object for the verb here. Other translations also supply the object which is otherwise implicit (cf. NIV "who do not know this law"; TEV "who have never heard the Law of the Lord your God").

The Commissioning of Joshua

31:14 Then the LORD said to Moses, "The day of your death is near. Summon Joshua and present yourselves in the tent[1] of meeting[2] so that I can commission him."[3] So Moses and Joshua presented themselves in the tent of meeting. 31:15 The LORD appeared in the tent in a pillar of cloud that[4] stood above the door of the tent. 31:16 Then the LORD said to Moses, "You are about to die,[5] and then these people will begin to prostitute themselves with the foreign gods of the land into which they[6] are going. They[7] will reject[8] me and break my covenant that I have made with them.[9] 31:17 At that time[10] my anger will erupt against them[11] and I will abandon them and hide my face from them until they are devoured. Many disasters and distresses will overcome[12] them[13] so that they[14] will say at that time, 'Have not these disasters[15] overcome us[16] because our[17] God is not among us[18]?' 31:18 But I will certainly[19] hide myself at that time because of all the wickedness they[20] will have done by turning to other gods. 31:19 Now write down for yourselves the following song and teach it to the Israelites. Put it into their very mouths so that this song may serve as my witness against the Israelites! 31:20 For after I have brought them[21] to the land I promised to their[22] ancestors – one flowing with milk and honey – and they[23] eat their fill[24] and become fat, then they[25] will turn to other gods and worship them; they will reject me and break my covenant. 31:21 Then when[26] many disasters and distresses overcome them[27] this song will testify against them,[28] for their[29] descendants will not forget it.[30] I know the[31] intentions they have in mind[32] today, even before I bring them[33] to the land I have promised." 31:22 So on that day Moses wrote down this song and taught it to the Israelites, 31:23 and the LORD[34] commissioned Joshua son of Nun, "Be strong and courageous, for you will take the Israelites to the land I have promised them, and I will be with you."[35]

Anticipation of Disobedience

31:24 When Moses finished writing on a scroll the words of this law in their entirety,

[1] tc The LXX reads "by the door of the tent" in line with v. 10 but also, perhaps, as a reflection of its tendency to avoid overfamiliarity with Yahweh and his transcendence.

[2] tn Heb "tent of assembly" (מוֹעֵד אֹהֶל, 'ohel mo'ed); this is not always the same as the tabernacle, which is usually called מִשְׁכָּן (mishkan, "dwelling-place"), a reference to its being invested with God's presence. The "tent of meeting" was erected earlier than the tabernacle and was the place where Yahweh occasionally appeared, especially to Moses (cf. Exod 18:7-16; 33:7-11; Num 11:16, 24, 26; 12:4).

[3] tn Heb "I will command him."

[4] tn Heb "and the pillar of cloud." This phrase was not repeated in the translation; a relative clause was used instead.

[5] tn Heb "lie down with your fathers" (so NASB); NRSV "ancestors."

[6] tn Heb "he." Smr, LXX, and the Targums read the plural "they," which is necessary in any case in the translation because of contemporary English style. The third person singular also occurs in the Hebrew text twice more in this verse, three times in v. 17, once in v. 18, five times in v. 20, and four times in v. 21. Each time it is translated as third person plural for stylistic reasons.

[7] tn Heb "he." Smr, LXX, and the Targums read the plural "they." See note on the first occurrence of "they" in v. 16.

[8] tn Or "abandon" (TEV, NLT).

[9] tn Heb "him." Smr, LXX, and the Targums read the plural "them." See note on the first occurrence of "they" in v. 16.

[10] tn Heb "on that day." This same expression also appears later in the verse and in v. 18.

[11] tn Heb "him." Smr, LXX, and the Targums read the plural "them." See note on the first occurrence of "they" in v. 16.

[12] tn Heb "find," "encounter."

[13] tn Heb "him." Smr, LXX, and the Targums read the plural "them." See note on the first occurrence of "they" in v. 16.

[14] tn Heb "he." Smr, LXX, and the Targums read the plural "they." See note on the first occurrence of "they" in v. 16.

[15] tn Heb "evils."

[16] tn Heb "me." Smr, LXX, and the Targums read the plural "us," which is necessary in any case in the translation because of contemporary English style.

[17] tn Heb "my."

[18] tn Heb "me." Smr, LXX, and the Targums read the plural "us," which is necessary in any case in the translation because of contemporary English style.

[19] tn The Hebrew text uses the infinitive absolute for emphasis, which the translation indicates with "certainly."

[20] tn Heb "he." Smr, LXX, and the Targums read the plural "they." See note on the first occurrence of "they" in v. 16.

[21] tn Heb "him." Smr, LXX, and the Targums read the plural "them." See note on the first occurrence of "they" in v. 16.

[22] tn Heb "his." Smr, LXX, and the Targums read the plural "their." See note on the first occurrence of "they" in v. 16.

[23] tn Heb "he." Smr, LXX, and the Targums read the plural "they." See note on the first occurrence of "they" in v. 16.

[24] tn Heb "and are satisfied."

[25] tn Heb "he." Smr, LXX, and the Targums read the plural "they." See note on the first occurrence of "they" in v. 16.

[26] tn Heb "Then it will come to pass that."

[27] tn Heb "him." Smr, LXX, and the Targums read the plural "them." See note on the first occurrence of "they" in v. 16.

[28] tn Heb "him." Smr, LXX, and the Targums read the plural "them." See note on the first occurrence of "they" in v. 16.

[29] tn Heb "his." Smr, LXX, and the Targums read the plural "their." See note on the first occurrence of "they" in v. 16.

[30] tn Heb "it will not be forgotten from the mouth of his seed."

[31] tn Heb "his." Smr, LXX, and the Targums read the plural "their." See note on the first occurrence of "they" in v. 16.

[32] tn Heb "which he is doing."

[33] tn Heb "him." Smr, LXX, and the Targums read the plural "them." See note on the first occurrence of "they" in v. 16.

[34] tn Heb "he." Since the pronoun could be taken to refer to Moses, the referent has been specified as "the LORD" in the translation for clarity. See also the note on the word "you" later in this verse.

[35] tc The LXX reads, "as the LORD promised them, and he will be with you." This relieves the problem of Moses apparently promising to be with Joshua as the MT reads on the surface ("I will be with you"). However, the reading of the LXX is clearly an attempt to clarify an existing obscurity and therefore is unlikely to reflect the original.

31:25 he[1] commanded the Levites who carried the ark of the LORD's covenant, 31:26 "Take this scroll of the law and place it beside the ark of the covenant of the LORD your God. It will remain there as a witness against you, 31:27 for I know about your rebellion and stubbornness.[2] Indeed, even while I have been living among you to this very day, you have rebelled against the LORD; you will be even more rebellious after my death![3] 31:28 Gather to me all your tribal elders and officials so I can speak to them directly about these things and call the heavens and the earth to witness against them. 31:29 For I know that after I die you will totally[4] corrupt yourselves and turn away from the path I have commanded you to walk. Disaster will confront you in the days to come because you will act wickedly[5] before the LORD, inciting him to anger because of your actions."[6] 31:30 Then Moses recited the words of this song from start to finish in the hearing of the whole assembly of Israel.

Invocation of Witnesses

32:1 Listen, O heavens, and I will speak; hear, O earth, the words of my mouth.
32:2 My teaching will drop like the rain, my sayings will drip like the dew,[7]
as rain drops upon the grass, and showers upon new growth.
32:3 For I will proclaim the name[8] of the LORD;
you must acknowledge the greatness of our God.
32:4 As for the Rock,[9] his work is perfect, for all his ways are just.
He is a reliable God who is never unjust, he is fair[10] and upright.
32:5 His people have been unfaithful[11] to him;
they have not acted like his children[12] – this is their sin.[13]
They are a perverse[14] and deceitful generation.
32:6 Is this how you repay[15] the LORD,
you foolish, unwise people?
Is he not your father, your Creator?
He has made you and established you.
32:7 Remember the ancient days;
bear in mind[16] the years of past generations.[17]
Ask your father and he will inform you, your elders, and they will tell you.
32:8 When the Most High[18] gave the nations their inheritance, when he divided up humankind,[19]
he set the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the heavenly assembly.[20]

---

1 tn Heb "Moses." The pronoun has been used in the translation for stylistic reasons to avoid redundancy.

2 tn Heb "stiffness of neck" (cf. KJV, NAB, NIV). See note on the word "stubborn" in Deut 9:6.

3 tn Heb "How much more after my death?" The Hebrew text has a sarcastic rhetorical question here; the translation seeks to bring out the force of the question.

4 tn The Hebrew text uses the infinitive absolute for emphasis, which the translation indicates with "totally."

5 tn Heb "do the evil."

6 tn Heb "the work of your hands."

7 tn Or "mist," "light drizzle." In some contexts the term appears to refer to light rain, rather than dew.

8 tc Smr and Tg read "in the name."

9 tc The LXX reads Θεός (theos, "God") for the MT's "Rock."

sn The Hebrew term depicts God as a rocky summit where one may find safety and protection. Within a covenantal context it serves as a reminder to the people that their God has committed himself to their protection in return for their allegiance.

10 tn Or "just" (KJV, NAB, NRSV, NLT) or "righteous" (NASB).

11 tc The 3rd person masculine singular שָׁחַת (shakhat) is rendered as 3rd person masculine plural by Smr, a reading supported by the plural suffix on מוּם (mum, "defect") as well as the plural of בֵּן (ben, "sons").

tn Heb "have acted corruptly" (so NASB, NIV, NLT); NRSV "have dealt falsely."

12 tn Heb "(they are) not his sons."

13 tn Heb "defect" (so NASB). This highly elliptical line suggests that Israel's major fault was its failure to act like God's people; in fact, they acted quite the contrary.

14 tn Heb "twisted," "crooked." See Ps 18:26.

15 tn Or "treat" (TEV).

16 tc The Syriac, Targum, and Vulgate read 2nd person masculine singular whereas the MT has 2nd person masculine plural. The former is preferred, the latter perhaps being a misreading (בִּינוּ [binu] for בִּינָה [binah]). Both the preceding ("remember") and following ("ask") imperatives are singular forms in the Hebrew text.

17 tn Heb "generation and generation." The repetition of the singular noun here singles out each of the successive past generations. See IBHS 116 §7.2.3b.

18 tn The Hebrew term עֶלְיוֹן ('elyon) is an abbreviated form of the divine name El Elyon, frequently translated "God Most High" (so here NCV, CEV) or something similar. This full name (or epithet) occurs only in Gen 14, though the two elements are parallel in Ps 73:11; 107:11; etc. Here it is clear that Elyon has to do with the nations in general whereas in v. 9, by contrast, Yahweh relates specifically to Israel. See T. Fretheim, NIDOTTE 1:400-401. The title depicts God as the sovereign ruler of the world, who is enthroned high above his dominion.

19 tn Heb "the sons of man" (so NASB); or "the sons of Adam" (so KJV).

20 tc Heb "the sons of Israel." The idea, perhaps, is that Israel was central to Yahweh's purposes and all other nations were arranged and distributed according to how they related to Israel. See S. R. Driver, Deuteronomy (ICC), 355-56. For the MT יִשְׂרָאֵל בְּנֵי (bᵉney yisra'el, "sons of Israel") a Qumran fragment has "sons of God," while the LXX reads ἀγγέλων θεοῦ (angelōn theou, "angels of God"), presupposing בְּנֵי אֵל (bᵉney 'el) or בְּנֵי אֱלֹהִים (beney 'elim). "Sons of God" is undoubtedly the original reading; the MT and LXX have each interpreted it differently. MT assumes that the expression "sons of God" refers to Israel (cf. Hos. 1:10), while LXX has assumed that the phrase refers to the angelic heavenly assembly (Pss 29:1; 89:6; cf. as well Ps 82). The phrase is also attested in Ugaritic, where it refers to the high god El's divine assembly. According to the latter view, which is reflected in the translation, the Lord delegated jurisdiction over the nations to his angelic host (cf. Dan. 10:13-21), while reserving for himself Israel, over whom he rules directly. For a defense of the view taken here, see M. S. Heiser, "Deuteronomy 32:8 and the Sons of God," BSac 158 (2001): 52-74.

32:9 For the LORD's allotment is his people,
Jacob is his special possession.[1]
32:10 The LORD[2] found him[3] in a desolate land, in an empty wasteland where animals howl.[4]
He continually guarded him[5] and taught him;[6]
he continually protected him[7] like the pupil[8] of his eye.
32:11 Like an eagle that stirs up[9] its nest, that hovers over its young, so the LORD[10] spread out his wings and took him,[11]
he lifted him up on his pinions.
32:12 The LORD alone was guiding him,[12]
no foreign god was with him.

32:13 He enabled him[13] to travel over the high terrain of the land, and he ate of the produce of the fields.
He provided honey for him from the cliffs,[14] and olive oil[15] from the hardest of[16] rocks,[17] 32:14 butter from the herd and milk from the flock, along with the fat of lambs,
rams and goats of Bashan,
along with the best of the kernels of wheat;
and from the juice of grapes you drank wine.

Israel's Rebellion

32:15 But Jeshurun[18] became fat and kicked, you[19] got fat, thick, and stuffed!
Then he deserted the God who made him,
and treated the Rock who saved him with contempt.
32:16 They made him jealous with other gods,[20]
they enraged him with abhorrent idols.[21] 32:17 They sacrificed to demons, not God, to gods they had not known;
to new gods who had recently come along,
gods your ancestors[22] had not known about.
32:18 You have forgotten[23] the Rock who fathered you, and put out of mind the God who gave you birth.

[1] tc Heb "the portion of his inheritance." The LXX and Smr add "Israel" and BHS suggests the reconstruction: "The LORD's allotment is Jacob, the portion of his inheritance is Israel" (cf. NAB). While providing good parallelism, it destroys a fine chiastic structure: "allotment" (a), "his people" (b), "Jacob (b'), and "inheritance" (a').

[2] tn Heb "he." The referent (the LORD) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[3] tn The reference is to "his people/Jacob" (cf. v. 9), that is, Israel (using a collective singular). The singular pronouns are replaced by plural ones throughout vv. 10-14 by some English versions as an aid to the modern reader (cf. NAB, NCV, TEV, NLT).

[4] tn Heb "in an empty, howling wasteland." The word "howling" is derived from a verbal root that typically refers to the wailing of mourners. Here it likely refers to the howling of desert animals, or perhaps to the howling wind, in which case one may translate, "in an empty, windy wasteland."

[5] tn Heb "was surrounding him." The distinctive form of the suffix on this verb form indicates that the verb is an imperfect, not a preterite. As such it draws attention to God's continuing care during the period in view. See A. F. Rainey, "The Ancient Hebrew Prefix Conjugation in the Light of Amarnah Canaanite," Hebrew Studies 27 (1986): 15-16.

[6] tn Heb "he gave him understanding." The form of the suffix on this verb form indicates that the verb is a preterite, not an imperfect. As such it simply states the action factually. See A. F. Rainey, "The Ancient Hebrew Prefix Conjugation in the Light of Amarnah Canaanite," Hebrew Studies 27 (1986): 15-16.

[7] tn The distinctive form of the suffix on this verb form indicates that the verb is an imperfect, not a preterite. As such it draws attention to God's continuing protection during the period in view. See A. F. Rainey, "The Ancient Hebrew Prefix Conjugation in the Light of Amarnah Canaanite," Hebrew Studies 27 (1986): 15-16.

[8] tn Heb "the little man." The term אישון ('ishon) means literally "little man," perhaps because when one looks into another's eyes he sees himself reflected there in miniature. See A. Harman, NIDOTTE 1:391.

[9] tn The prefixed verbal form is an imperfect, indicating habitual or typical behavior. The parallel verb (cf. "hovers" in the next line) is used in the same manner.

[10] tn Heb "he"; the referent (the LORD) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[11] tn The form of the suffix on this and the following verb forms (cf. "lifted him up") indicates that the verbs are preterites, not imperfects. As such they simply state the action factually. The use of the preterite here suggests that the preceding verb (cf. "spread out") is preterite as well.

[12] tn The distinctive form of the suffix on this verb form indicates that the verb is an imperfect, not a preterite. As such it draws attention to God's continuing guidance during the period in view.

[13] tn The form of the suffix on this verbal form indicates that the verb is a preterite, not an imperfect. As such it simply states the action factually. Note as well the preterites with vav (ו) consecutive that follow in the verse.

[14] tn Heb "he made him suck honey from the rock."

[15] tn Heb "oil," but this probably refers to olive oil; see note on the word "rock" at the end of this verse.

[16] tn Heb "flinty."

[17] sn Olive oil from rock probably suggests olive trees growing on rocky ledges and yet doing so productively. See E. H. Merrill, Deuteronomy (NAC), 415; cf. TEV "their olive trees flourished in stony ground."

[18] tn To make the continuity of the referent clear, some English versions substitute "Jacob" here (NAB, NRSV) while others replace "Jeshurun" with "Israel" (NCV, CEV, NLT) or "the Lord's people" (TEV).

sn Jeshurun is a term of affection derived from the Hebrew verb יָשַׁר (yashar, "be upright"). Here it speaks of Israel "in an ideal situation, with its 'uprightness' due more to God's help than his own efforts" (M. Mulder, TDOT 6:475).

[19] tc The LXX reads the third person masculine singular ("he") for the MT second person masculine singular ("you"), but such alterations are unnecessary in Hebrew poetic texts where subjects fluctuate frequently and without warning.

[20] tc Heb "with strange (things)." The Vulgate actually supplies diis ("gods").

[21] tn Heb "abhorrent (things)" (cf. NRSV). A number of English versions understand this as referring to "idols" (NAB, NIV, NCV, CEV), while NLT supplies "acts."

[22] tn Heb "your fathers."

[23] tc The Hebrew text is corrupt here; the translation follows the suggestion offered in HALOT 1477 s.v. שׁיה. Cf. NASB, NLT "You neglected"; NIV "You deserted"; NRSV "You were unmindful of."

A Word of Judgment

32:19 But the Lord took note and despised them because his sons and daughters enraged him.
32:20 He said, "I will reject them,[1]
I will see what will happen to them; for they are a perverse generation, children[2] who show no loyalty.
32:21 They have made me jealous[3] with false gods,[4] enraging me with their worthless gods;[5] so I will make them jealous with a people they do not recognize,[6] with a nation slow to learn[7] I will enrage them.
32:22 For a fire has been kindled by my anger, and it burns to lowest Sheol;[8]
it consumes the earth and its produce, and ignites the foundations of the mountains.
32:23 I will increase their[9] disasters,
I will use up my arrows on them.
32:24 They will be starved by famine, eaten by plague, and bitterly stung;[10]
I will send the teeth of wild animals against them, along with the poison of creatures that crawl in the dust.
32:25 The sword will make people childless outside, and terror will do so inside;
they will destroy[11] both the young man and the virgin, the infant and the gray-haired man.

The Weakness of Other Gods

32:26 "I said, 'I want to cut them in pieces.[12]
I want to make people forget they ever existed.
32:27 But I fear the reaction[13] of their enemies, for[14] their adversaries would misunderstand and say, "Our power is great,[15] and the Lord has not done all this!"' 32:28 They are a nation devoid of wisdom, and there is no understanding among them.
32:29 I wish that they were wise and could understand this, and that they could comprehend what will happen to them."

32:30 How can one man chase a thousand of them,[16] and two pursue ten thousand; unless their Rock had delivered them up,[17]
and the Lord had handed them over?
32:31 For our enemies'[18] rock is not like our Rock, as even our enemies concede.
32:32 For their vine is from the stock[19] of Sodom, and from the fields of Gomorrah.[20]
Their grapes contain venom, their clusters of grapes are bitter.
32:33 Their wine is snakes' poison,
the deadly venom of cobras.
32:34 "Is this not stored up with me?" says the Lord,[21]
"Is it not sealed up in my storehouses?

---

1 tn Heb "I will hide my face from them."

2 tn Heb "sons" (so NAB, NASB); TEV "unfaithful people."

3 sn They have made me jealous. The "jealousy" of God is not a spirit of pettiness prompted by his insecurity, but righteous indignation caused by the disloyalty of his people to his covenant grace (see note on the word "God" in Deut 4:24). The jealousy of Israel, however (see next line), will be envy because of God's lavish attention to another nation. This is an ironic wordplay. See H. Peels, NIDOTTE 3:938-39.

4 tn Heb "what is not a god," or a "nondeity."

5 tn Heb "their empty (things)." The Hebrew term used here to refer pejoratively to the false gods is הֶבֶל (hevel, "futile" or "futility"), used frequently in Ecclesiastes (e.g., Eccl 1:1, "Futile! Futile!" laments the Teacher, "Absolutely futile! Everything is futile!").

6 tn Heb "what is not a people," or a "nonpeople." The "nonpeople" (לֹא־עָם, lo'-'am) referred to here are Gentiles who someday would become God's people in the fullest sense (cf. Hos 1:9; 2:23).

7 tn Heb "a foolish nation" (so KJV, NAB, NRSV); NIV "a nation that has no understanding"; NLT "I will provoke their fury by blessing the foolish Gentiles."

8 tn Or "to the lowest depths of the earth"; cf. NAB "to the depths of the nether world"; NIV "to the realm of death below"; NLT "to the depths of the grave."

sn Sheol refers here not to hell and hell-fire – a much later concept – but to the innermost parts of the earth, as low down as one could get. The parallel with "the foundations of the mountains" makes this clear (cf. Pss 9:17; 16:10; 139:8; Isa 14:9, 15; Amos 9:2).

9 tn Heb "upon them."

10 tn The Hebrew term קֶטֶב (qetev) is probably metaphorical here for the sting of a disease (HALOT 1091-92 s.v.).

11 tn A verb is omitted here in the Hebrew text; for purposes of English style one suitable to the context is supplied.

12 tc The LXX reads "I said I would scatter them." This reading is followed by a number of English versions (e.g., KJV, ASV, NIV, NCV, NRSV, NLT, CEV).

13 tn Heb "anger."

14 tn Heb "lest."

15 tn Heb "Our hand is high." Cf. NAB "Our own hand won the victory."

16 tn The words "man" and "of them" are not in the Hebrew text, but are supplied in the translation for clarity.

17 tn Heb "sold them" (so NAB, NIV, NRSV, NLT).

18 tn Heb "their," but the referent (enemies) is specified in the translation for the sake of clarity.

19 tn Heb "vine."

20 sn Sodom...Gomorrah. The term "vine" is a reference to the pagan deities which, the passage says, find their ultimate source in Sodom and Gomorrah, that is, in the soil of perversion exemplified by these places (cf. Gen 18:20; 19:4-28; Isa 1:10; 3:9; Jer 23:14; Lam 4:6; Ezek 16:44-52; Matt 10:15; 11:23-24).

21 tn Verses 34-35 appear to be a quotation of the Lord and so the introductory phrase "says the Lord" is supplied in the translation.

32:35 I will get revenge and pay them back at the time their foot slips;
for the day of their disaster is near,
and the impending judgment[1] is rushing upon them!"
32:36 The LORD will judge his people, and will change his plans concerning[2] his servants;
when he sees that their power has disappeared, and that no one is left, whether confined or set free.
32:37 He will say, "Where are their gods,
the rock in whom they sought security, 32:38 who ate the best of their sacrifices, and drank the wine of their drink offerings?
Let them rise and help you;
let them be your refuge!

The Vindication of the LORD

32:39 "See now that I, indeed I, am he!" says the LORD,[3]
"and there is no other god besides me.
I kill and give life,
I smash and I heal,
and none can resist[4] my power.
32:40 For I raise up my hand to heaven, and say, 'As surely as I live forever, 32:41 I will sharpen my lightning-like sword, and my hand will grasp hold of the weapon of judgment;[5]
I will execute vengeance on my foes, and repay those who hate me![6] 32:42 I will make my arrows drunk with blood, and my sword will devour flesh –
the blood of the slaughtered and captured, the chief[7] of the enemy's leaders!'"
32:43 Cry out, O nations, with his people, for he will avenge his servants' blood;
he will take vengeance against his enemies, and make atonement for his land and people.

Narrative Interlude

32:44 Then Moses went with Joshua[8] son of Nun and recited all the words of this song to the people. 32:45 When Moses finished reciting all these words to all Israel 32:46 he said to them, "Keep in mind all the words I am solemnly proclaiming to you today; you must command your children to observe carefully all the words of this law. 32:47 For this is no idle word for you – it is your life! By this word you will live a long time in the land you are about to cross the Jordan to possess."

Instructions about Moses' Death

32:48 Then the LORD said to Moses that same day, 32:49 "Go up to this Abarim[9] hill country, to Mount Nebo (which is in the land of Moab opposite Jericho[10]) and look at the land of Canaan that I am giving to the Israelites as a possession. 32:50 You will die[11] on the mountain that you ascend and join your deceased ancestors,[12] just as Aaron your brother died on Mount Hor[13] and joined his deceased ancestors, 32:51 for both of you[14] rebelled against me among the Israelites at the waters of Meribah Kadesh in the desert of Zin when you did not show me proper respect[15] among the Israelites. 32:52 You will see the land before you, but you will not enter the land that I am giving to the Israelites."

Introduction to the Blessing of Moses

33:1 This is the blessing Moses the man of God pronounced upon the Israelites before his death. 33:2 He said:

---

[1] tn Heb "prepared things," "impending things." See BDB 800 s.v. עָתִיד.

[2] tn The translation understands the verb in the sense of "be grieved, relent" (cf. HALOT 689 s.v. נחם hitp 2); cf. KJV, ASV "repent himself"; NLT "will change his mind." Another option is to translate "will show compassion to" (see BDB 637 s.v. נחם); cf. NASB, NIV, NRSV.

[3] tn Verses 39-42 appear to be a quotation of the LORD and so the introductory phrase "says the LORD" is supplied in the translation for clarity.

[4] tn Heb "deliver from" (so NRSV, NLT).

[5] tn Heb "judgment." This is a metonymy, a figure of speech in which the effect (judgment) is employed as an instrument (sword, spear, or the like), the means, by which it is brought about.

[6] tn The Hebrew term שָׂנֵא (sane', "hate") in this covenant context speaks of those who reject Yahweh's covenant overtures, that is, who disobey its stipulations (see note on the word "rejecting" in Deut 5:9; also see Deut 7:10; 2 Chr 19:2; Ps 81:15; 139:20-21).

[7] tn Or "head" (the same Hebrew word can mean "head" in the sense of "leader, chieftain" or "head" in the sense of body part).

[8] tn Heb "Hoshea" (so KJV, ASV), another name for the same individual (cf. Num 13:8, 16).

[9] sn Abarim. This refers to the high plateau region of the Transjordan, the highest elevation of which is Mount Pisgah (or Nebo; cf. Deut 34:1). See also the note on the name "Pisgah" in Deut 3:17.

[10] map For the location of Jericho see Map5-B2; Map6-E1; Map7-E1; Map8-E3; Map10-A2; Map11-A1.

[11] tn In the Hebrew text the forms translated "you will die... and join" are imperatives, but the actions in view cannot really be commanded. The imperative is used here in a rhetorical, emphatic manner to indicate the certainty of Moses' death on the mountain. On the rhetorical use of the imperative see IBHS 572 §34.4c.

[12] tn Heb "be gathered to your people." The same phrase occurs again later in this verse.

[13] sn Mount Hor. See note on the name "Moserah" in Deut 10:6.

[14] tn The use of the plural ("you") in the Hebrew text suggests that Moses and Aaron are both in view here, since both had rebelled at some time or other, if not at Meribah Kadesh then elsewhere (cf. Num 20:24; 27:14).

[15] tn Heb "did not esteem me holy." Cf. NIV "did not uphold my holiness"; NLT "failed to demonstrate my holiness."

A Historical Review

The LORD came from Sinai and revealed himself[1] to Israel[2] from Seir.
He appeared in splendor[3] from Mount Paran, and came forth with ten thousand holy ones.[4]
With his right hand he gave a fiery law[5]
to them.
33:3 Surely he loves the people;[6]
all your holy ones[7] are in your power.[8]
And they sit[9] at your feet, each receiving[10] your words.
33:4 Moses delivered to us a law,[11]
an inheritance for the assembly of Jacob.
33:5 The LORD[12] was king over Jeshurun,[13] when the leaders of the people assembled,
the tribes of Israel together.[14]

Blessing on Reuben

33:6 May Reuben live and not die, and may his people multiply.[15]

Blessing on Judah

33:7 And this is the blessing[16] to Judah. He said,
Listen, O LORD, to Judah's voice, and bring him to his people.
May his power be great,
and may you help him against his foes.

Blessing on Levi

33:8 Of Levi he said:
Your Thummim and Urim[17] belong to your godly one,[18] whose authority you challenged at Massah,[19]
and with whom you argued at the waters of Meribah.[20]
33:9 He said to his father and mother, "I have not seen him,"[21] and he did not acknowledge his own brothers or know his own children, for they kept your word,
and guarded your covenant.
33:10 They will teach Jacob your ordinances
and Israel your law;
they will offer incense as a pleasant odor,
and a whole offering on your altar.
33:11 Bless, O LORD, his goods, and be pleased with his efforts;
undercut the legs[22] of any who attack him, and of those who hate him, so that they cannot stand.

---

1 tn Or "rose like the sun" (NCV, TEV).

2 tc Heb "to him." The LXX reads "to us" (לָנוּ [lanu] for לֹמוֹ [lamo]), the reading of the MT is acceptable since it no doubt has in mind Israel as a collective singular.

tn Heb "him"; the referent (Israel) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

3 tn Or "he shone forth" (NAB, NIV, NRSV, NLT).

4 tc With slight alteration (מִמִּרְבַת קָדֵשׁ [mimrivat qadesh] for the MT's מְרִבְבֹת קֹדֶשׁ [merivvot qodesh]) the translation would be "from Meribah Kadesh" (cf. NAB, NLT; see Deut 32:51). However, the language of holy war in the immediate context favors the reading of the MT, which views the Lord as accompanied by angelic hosts.

5 tc The mispointed Hebrew term אִשְׁדָּת ('eshdat) should perhaps be construed as אִשָּׁתָה ('eshhat) with Smr.

6 tc Heb "peoples." The apparent plural form is probably a misunderstood singular (perhaps with a pronominal suffix) with enclitic mem (ם). See HALOT 838 s.v. עַם B.2.

7 tc Heb "his holy ones." The third person masculine singular suffix of the Hebrew MT is problematic in light of the second person masculine singular suffix on בְּיָדֶךָ (b^{e}yadekha, "your hands"). The LXX versions by Lucian and Origen read, therefore, "the holy ones." The LXX version by Theodotion and the Vulgate, however, presuppose third masculine singular suffix on בְּיָדָיו (b^{e}yadayv, "his hands"), and thus retain "his holy ones." The efforts to bring pronominal harmony into the line is commendable but unnecessary given the Hebrew tendency to be untroubled by such grammatical inconsistencies. However, the translation harmonizes the first pronoun with the second so that the referent (the Lord) is clear.

8 tn Heb "hands." For the problem of the pronoun see note on the term "holy ones" earlier in this verse.

9 tn The Hebrew term תֻּכּוּ (tuku, probably Pual perfect of תָּכָה, takhah) is otherwise unknown. The present translation is based on the reference to feet and, apparently, receiving instruction in God's words (cf. KJV, ASV). Other options are as follows: NIV "At your feet they all bow down" (cf. NCV, CEV); NLT "They follow in your steps" (cf. NAB, NASB); NRSV "they marched at your heels."

10 tn The singular verbal form in the Hebrew text (lit. "he lifts up") is understood in a distributive manner, focusing on the action of each individual within the group.

11 tn The Hebrew term תּוֹרָה (torah) here should be understood more broadly as instruction.

12 tn Heb "he was king." The present translation avoids the sudden shift in person and the mistaken impression that Moses is the referent by specifying the referent as "the LORD."

13 sn Jeshurun is a term of affection referring to Israel, derived from the Hebrew verb יָשַׁר (yashar, "be upright"). See note on the term in Deut 32:15.

14 sn The following blessing is given to the tribes in order, although the tribe of Simeon is curiously missing from the list.

15 tn Heb "and [not] may his men be few" (cf. KJV, NASB, NIV).

16 tn The words "the blessing" are supplied in the translation for clarity and stylistic reasons.

17 sn Thummim and Urim. These terms, whose meaning is uncertain, refer to sacred stones carried in a pouch on the breastplate of the high priest and examined on occasion as a means of ascertaining God's will or direction. See Exod 28:30; Lev 8:8; Num 27:21; 1 Sam 28:6. See also C. Van Dam, NIDOTTE 1:329-31.

18 tn Heb "godly man." The reference is probably to Moses as representative of the whole tribe of Levi.

19 sn Massah means "testing" in Hebrew; the name is a wordplay on what took place there. Cf. Exod 17:7; Deut 6:16; 9:22; Ps 95:8-9.

20 sn Meribah means "contention, argument" in Hebrew; this is another wordplay on the incident that took place there. Cf. Num 20:13, 24; Ps 106:32.

21 sn This statement no doubt alludes to the Levites' destruction of their own fellow tribesmen following the golden calf incident (Exod 32:25-29).

22 tn Heb "smash the sinews [or "loins," so many English versions]." This part of the body was considered to be center of one's strength (cf. Job 40:16; Ps 69:24; Prov 31:17; Nah 2:2, 11). See J. H. Tigay, Deuteronomy (JPSTC), 325.

Blessing on Benjamin

33:12 Of Benjamin he said:
The beloved of the LORD will live safely by him;
he protects him all the time, and the LORD[1] places him on his chest.[2]

Blessing on Joseph

33:13 Of Joseph he said:
May the LORD bless his land with the harvest produced by the sky,[3] by the dew, and by the depths crouching beneath;
33:14 with the harvest produced by the daylight[4] and by[5] the moonlight;[6] 33:15 with the best[7] of the ancient mountains and the harvest produced by the age-old hills; 33:16 with the harvest of the earth and its fullness and the pleasure of him who resided in the burning bush.[8]
May blessing rest on Joseph's head, and on the top of the head of the one set apart[9] from his brothers.
33:17 May the firstborn of his bull bring him honor, and may his horns be those of a wild ox;
with them may he gore all peoples,
all the far reaches of the earth.
They are the ten thousands of Ephraim,[10] and they are the thousands of Manasseh.

Blessing on Zebulun and Issachar

33:18 Of Zebulun he said:
Rejoice, Zebulun, when you go outside,
and Issachar, when you are in your tents.
33:19 They will summon peoples to the mountain, there they will sacrifice proper[11] sacrifices;
for they will enjoy[12] the abundance of the seas, and the hidden treasures of the shores.[13]

Blessing on Gad

33:20 Of Gad he said:
Blessed be the one who enlarges Gad.
Like a lioness he will dwell;
he will tear at an arm – indeed, a scalp.[14]
33:21 He has selected the best part for himself, for the portion of the ruler[15] is set aside[16] there;
he came with the leaders[17] of the people, he obeyed the righteous laws of the LORD and his ordinances with Israel.

Blessing on Dan

33:22 Of Dan he said:
Dan is a lion's cub;
he will leap forth from Bashan.[18]

Blessing on Naphtali

33:23 Of Naphtali he said:
O Naphtali, overflowing with favor, and full of the LORD's blessing, possess the west and south.

Blessing on Asher

33:24 Of Asher he said:
Asher is blessed with children, may he be favored by his brothers and may he dip his foot in olive oil.[19] 33:25 The bars of your gates[20] will be made of iron and bronze, and may you have lifelong strength.

---

[1] tn Heb "he"; the referent (the LORD) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[2] tn Heb "between his shoulders." This suggests the scene in John 13:23 with Jesus and the Beloved Disciple.

[3] tn Heb "from the harvest of the heavens." The referent appears to be good crops produced by the rain that falls from the sky.

[4] tn Heb "goings forth of the sun."

[5] tn Heb "and from the harvest of the yield of." This has been simplified in the translation to avoid redundancy.

[6] tn Heb "the moon." Many English versions regard this as a reference to "months" ("moons") rather than the moon itself (cf. NAB, NASB, NRSV, NLT).

[7] tn Heb "head" or "top."

[8] tn The expression "him who resided in the bush" is frequently understood as a reference to the appearance of the Lord to Moses at Sinai from a burning bush (so NIV, NCV, TEV, CEV, NLT; cf. Exod 2:2-6; 3:2, 4). To make this reference clear the word "burning" is supplied in the translation.

[9] sn This apparently refers to Joseph's special status among his brothers as a result of his being chosen by God to save the family from the famine and to lead Egypt.

[10] sn Ephraim and Manasseh were the sons of Joseph who became founders of the two tribes into which Joseph's descendants were split (Gen 48:19-20). Jacob's blessing granted favored status to Ephraim; this is probably why Ephraim is viewed here as more numerous than Manasseh.

[11] tn Or "acceptable"; Heb "righteous" (so NASB).

[12] tn Heb "suck."

[13] tn Heb "of the sand" (so NRSV, NLT); CEV "the sandy beach."

[14] tn Heb "forehead," picturing Gad attacking prey.

[15] tn The Hebrew term מְחֹקֵק (m^{e}khoqeq; Poel participle of חָקַק, khaqaq, "to inscribe") reflects the idea that the recorder of allotments (the "ruler") is able to set aside for himself the largest and best. See E. H. Merrill, Deuteronomy (NAC), 444-45.

[16] tn Heb "covered in" (if from the root סָפַן, safan; cf. HALOT 764-65 s.v. ספן qal).

[17] tn Heb "heads" (in the sense of chieftains).

[18] sn He will leap forth from Bashan. This may refer to Dan's conquest of Laish, a region just to the west of Bashan (Judg 18:27-28).

[19] sn Dip his foot in olive oil. This is a metaphor for prosperity, one especially apt in light of the abundance of olive groves in the area settled by Asher. The Hebrew term refers to olive oil, which symbolizes blessing in the OT. See R. Way, NIDOTTE 4:171-73.

[20] tn The words "of your gates" have been supplied in the translation to clarify the referent of "bars."

General Praise and Blessing

33:26 There is no one like God, O Jeshurun,[1] who rides through the sky[2] to help you, on the clouds in majesty.
33:27 The everlasting God is a refuge, and underneath you are his eternal arms;[3]
he has driven out enemies before you, and has said, "Destroy!"
33:28 Israel lives in safety, the fountain of Jacob is quite secure,[4] in a land of grain and new wine;
indeed, its heavens[5] rain down dew.[6]
33:29 You have joy, Israel! Who is like you?
You are a people delivered by the LORD, your protective shield
and your exalted sword.
May your enemies cringe before you;
may you trample on their backs.

The Death of Moses

34:1 Then Moses ascended from the deserts of Moab to Mount Nebo, to the summit of Pisgah, which is opposite Jericho.[7] The LORD showed him the whole land – Gilead to Dan, 34:2 and all of Naphtali, the land of Ephraim and Manasseh, all the land of Judah as far as the distant[8] sea, 34:3 the Negev, and the plain of the valley of Jericho, the city of the date palm trees, as far as Zoar. 34:4 Then the LORD said to him, "This is the land I promised to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob when I said, 'I will give it to your descendants.'[9] I have let you see it,[10] but you will not cross over there."

34:5 So Moses, the servant of the LORD, died there in the land of Moab as the LORD had said. 34:6 He[11] buried him in the land of Moab near Beth Peor, but no one knows his exact burial place to this very day. 34:7 Moses was 120 years old when he died, but his eye was not dull[12] nor had his vitality[13] departed. 34:8 The Israelites mourned for Moses in the deserts of Moab for thirty days; then the days of mourning for Moses ended.

The Epitaph of Moses

34:9 Now Joshua son of Nun was full of the spirit of wisdom, for Moses had placed his hands on him;[14] and the Israelites listened to him and did just what the LORD had commanded Moses. 34:10 No prophet ever again arose in Israel like Moses, who knew the LORD face to face.[15] 34:11 He did[16] all the signs and wonders the LORD had sent him to do in the land of Egypt, to Pharaoh, all his servants, and the whole land, 34:12 and he displayed great power[17] and awesome might in view of all Israel.[18]

[1] sn Jeshurun is a term of affection referring to Israel, derived from the Hebrew verb יָשָׁר (yashar, "be upright"). See note on the term in Deut 32:15.

[2] tn Or "(who) rides (on) the heavens" (cf. NIV, NRSV, NLT). This title depicts Israel's God as sovereign over the elements of the storm (cf. Ps 68:33). The use of the phrase here may be polemical; Moses may be asserting that Israel's God, not Baal (called the "rider of the clouds" in the Ugaritic myths), is the true divine king (cf. v. 5) who controls the elements of the storm, grants agricultural prosperity, and delivers his people from their enemies. See R. B. Chisholm, Jr., "The Polemic against Baalism in Israel's Early History and Literature," BSac 151 (1994): 275.

[3] tn Heb "and from under, arms of perpetuity." The words "you" and "his" are supplied in the translation for clarification. Some have perceived this line to be problematic and have offered alternative translations that differ significantly from the present translation: "He spread out the primeval tent; he extended the ancient canopy" (NAB); "He subdues the ancient gods, shatters the forces of old" (NRSV). These are based on alternate meanings or conjectural emendations rather than textual variants in the MSS and versions.

[4] tn Heb "all alone." The idea is that such vital resources as water will some day no longer need protection because God will provide security.

[5] tn Or "skies." The Hebrew term שָׁמַיִם (shamayim) may be translated "heaven(s)" or "sky" depending on the context.

[6] tn Or perhaps "drizzle, showers." See note at Deut 32:2.

[7] sn For the geography involved, see note on the term "Pisgah" in Deut 3:17.
map For the location of Jericho see Map5-B2; Map6-E1; Map7-E1; Map8-E3; Map10-A2; Map11-A1.

[8] tn Or "western" (so NAB, NASB, NIV, NRSV); Heb "latter," a reference to the Mediterranean Sea (cf. NCV, TEV, CEV, NLT).

[9] tn Heb "seed" (so KJV, ASV).

[10] tn The Hebrew text includes "with your eyes," but this is redundant in English and is left untranslated.

[11] tc Smr and some LXX MSS read "they buried him," that is, the Israelites. The MT reads "he buried him," meaning in the context that "the LORD buried him." This understanding, combined with the statement at the end of the verse that Moses' burial place is unknown, gave rise to traditions during the intertestamental period that are reflected in the NT in Jude 9 and in OT pseudepigraphic works like the Assumption of Moses.

[12] tn Or "dimmed." The term could refer to dull appearance or to dimness caused by some loss of visual acuity.

[13] tn Heb "sap." That is, he was still in possession of his faculties or liveliness.

[14] sn See Num 27:18.

[15] sn See Num 12:8; Deut 18:15-18.

[16] tn Heb "to," "with respect to." In the Hebrew text vv. 10-12 are one long sentence. For stylistic reasons the translation divides this into two, using the verb "he did" at the beginning of v. 11 and "he displayed" at the beginning of v. 12.

[17] tn Heb "strong hand."

[18] tn The Hebrew text of v. 12 reads literally, "with respect to all the strong hand and with respect to all the awesome greatness which Moses did before the eyes of all Israel."

Joshua

The Lord Commissions Joshua

1:1 After Moses the Lord's servant died, the Lord said to Joshua son of Nun, Moses' assistant: 1:2 "Moses my servant is dead. Get ready![1] Cross the Jordan River![2] Lead these people into the land which I am ready to hand over to them.[3] 1:3 I am handing over to you every place you set foot, as I promised Moses.[4] 1:4 Your territory will extend from the wilderness in the south to Lebanon in the north. It will extend all the way to the great River Euphrates in the east (including all of Syria)[5] and all the way to the Mediterranean Sea[6] in the west.[7] 1:5 No one will be able to resist you[8] all the days of your life. As I was with Moses, so I will be with you. I will not abandon you or leave you alone. 1:6 Be strong and brave! You must lead these people in the conquest of this land that I solemnly promised their ancestors I would hand over to them.[9] 1:7 Make sure you are[10] very strong and brave! Carefully obey[11] all the law my servant Moses charged you to keep![12] Do not swerve from it to the right or to the left, so that you may be successful[13] in all you do.[14] 1:8 This law scroll must not leave your lips![15] You must memorize it[16] day and night so you can carefully obey[17] all that is written in it. Then you will prosper[18] and be successful.[19] 1:9 I repeat,[20] be strong and brave! Don't be afraid and don't panic,[21] for I, the Lord your God, am with you in all you do."[22]

Joshua Prepares for the Invasion

1:10 Joshua instructed[23] the leaders of the people: 1:11 "Go through the camp and command the people, 'Prepare your supplies, for within three days you will cross the Jordan River and begin the conquest of the land the Lord your God is ready to hand over to you.'"[24]

1:12 Joshua told the Reubenites, Gadites, and the half tribe of Manasseh: 1:13 "Remember what Moses the Lord's servant commanded you.[25] The Lord your God is giving you a place to settle and is handing this land over to you.[26] 1:14 Your wives, children and cattle may stay in the land that Moses assigned to you east of the Jordan River. But all you warriors must cross

[1] tn Heb "Get up!"

[2] tn Heb "this Jordan"; the word "River" has been supplied in the translation for clarity (likewise in v. 11).

[3] tc Heb "Cross over this Jordan, you and all these people, to the land that I am giving to them, to the children of Israel." The final phrase, "to the children of Israel," is probably a later scribal addition specifying the identity of "these people/them."

[4] tn Heb "Every place on which the sole of your foot walks, to you I have given it, as I said to Moses." The second person pronouns in vv. 3-4 are plural, indicating that all the people are addressed here. The verbal form נָתַתִּי (n^{e}tattiv, "I have given it") is probably a perfect of certitude, emphasizing the certainty of the action. Another option is to translate, "I have already assigned it." In this case the verb would probably refer to the Lord's decree to Abraham that he would give this land to his descendants.

[5] tn Heb "all the land of the Hittites." The expression "the land of the Hittites" does not refer to Anatolia (modern Turkey), where the ancient Hittite kingdom of the second millennium B.C. was located, but rather to Syria, the "Hatti land" mentioned in inscriptions of the first millennium B.C. (see HALOT 1:363). The phrase is omitted in the LXX and may be a scribal addition.

[6] tn Heb "the Great Sea," the typical designation for the Mediterranean Sea.

[7] tn Heb "From the wilderness and this Lebanon even to the great river, the River Euphrates, all the land of the Hittites, even to the great sea [at] the place where the sun sets, your territory will be."

[8] tn Heb "A man will not stand before you." The second person pronouns in this verse are singular, indicating Joshua is the addressee.

[9] tn Heb "For you will cause these people to inherit the land that I swore to their fathers to give to them." The pronoun "them" at the end of the verse refers to either the people or to the fathers.

[10] tn Or "Only be."

[11] tn Heb "so you can be careful to do." The use of the infinitive לִשְׁמֹר (lishmor, "to keep") after the imperatives suggests that strength and bravery will be necessary for obedience. Another option is to take the form לִשְׁמוֹר as a vocative lamed (ל) with imperative (see Isa 38:20 for an example of this construction), which could be translated, "Indeed, be careful!"

[12] tn Heb "commanded you."

[13] tn Heb "be wise," but the word can mean "be successful" by metonymy.

[14] tn Heb "in all which you go."

[15] tn Heb "mouth."

sn This law scroll must not leave your lips. The ancient practice of reading aloud to oneself as an aid to memorization is in view here.

[16] tn Heb "read it in undertones," or "recite it quietly" (see HALOT 1:237).

[17] tn Heb "be careful to do."

[18] tn Heb "you will make your way prosperous."

[19] tn Heb "and be wise," but the word can mean "be successful" by metonymy.

[20] tn Heb "Have I not commanded you?" The rhetorical question emphasizes the importance of the following command by reminding the listener that it is being repeated.

[21] tn Or perhaps, "don't get discouraged!"

[22] tn Heb "in all which you go."

[23] tn Or "commanded."

[24] tn Heb "to enter to possess the land which the Lord your God is giving to you to possess it."

[25] tn Heb "remember the word which Moses, the Lord's servant, commanded you."

sn This command can be found in Deut 3:18-20. In vv. 13-15 Joshua paraphrases the command, as the third person reference to Moses in v. 14 indicates.

[26] tn Heb "is providing rest for you and is giving to you this land."

sn "This land" refers to the trans-Jordanian lands allotted to these tribes.

over armed for battle ahead of your brothers.[1] You must help them 1:15 until the LORD gives your brothers a place like yours to settle and they conquer the land the LORD your God is ready to hand over to them. Then you may go back to your allotted land and occupy the land Moses the LORD's servant assigned you east of the Jordan."[2]

1:16 They told Joshua, "We will do everything you say. We will go wherever you send us. 1:17 Just as we obeyed[3] Moses, so we will obey you. But[4] may the LORD your God be with you as he was with Moses! 1:18 Any man who rebels against what you say and does not obey all your commands will be executed.[5] But[6] be strong and brave!"

Joshua Sends Spies into the Land

2:1 Joshua son of Nun sent two spies out from Shittim secretly and instructed them:[7] "Find out what you can about the land, especially Jericho."[8] They stopped at the house of a prostitute named Rahab and spent the night there.[9] 2:2 The king of Jericho received this report: "Note well![10] Israelite men have come here tonight[11] to spy on the land." 2:3 So the king of Jericho sent this order to Rahab:[12] "Turn over[13] the men who came to you[14] – the ones who came to your house[15] – for they have come to spy on the whole land!" 2:4 But the woman hid the two men[16] and replied, "Yes, these men were clients of mine,[17] but I didn't know where they came from. 2:5 When it was time to shut the city gate for the night, the men left.[18] I don't know where they were heading. Chase after them quickly, for you have time to catch them!" 2:6 (Now she had taken them up to the roof and had hidden them in the stalks of flax she had spread out[19] on the roof.) 2:7 Meanwhile[20] the king's men tried to find them on the road to the Jordan River[21] near the fords.[22] The city gate was shut as soon as they set out in pursuit of them.[23]

2:8 Now before the spies[24] went to sleep, Rahab[25] went up[26] to the roof. 2:9 She said to the men, "I know the LORD is handing this land over to you.[27] We are absolutely terrified of you,[28] and all who live in the land are cringing before[29] you.[30] 2:10 For we heard how the LORD dried up the water of the Red Sea before you when you left Egypt and how you annihilated the two Amorite kings, Sihon and Og, on the other side of the Jordan.[31] 2:11 When we heard the news we lost our courage and no one could even breathe for fear of you.[32] For the LORD your God is God in heaven above and on earth below! 2:12 So now, promise me this with an oath sworn in the LORD's name.[33] Because I have shown alle-

[1] tn Heb "But you must cross over armed for battle before your brothers, all [you] mighty men of strength."

[2] tn Heb "Then you may return to the land of your possession and possess it, that which Moses, the LORD's servant, gave to you beyond the Jordan toward the rising of the sun."

[3] tn Heb "listened to."

[4] tn Or "Only." Here and in v. 18 this word qualifies what precedes (see also v. 7).

[5] tn Heb "any man who rebels against your mouth and does not listen to your words, to all which you command us, will be put to death."

[6] tn Or "Only." Here and in v. 17 this word qualifies what precedes (see also v. 7).

[7] tn Heb "Joshua, son of Nun, sent from Shittim two men, spies, secretly, saying."

[8] tn Heb "go, see the land, and Jericho."

map For location see Map5-B2; Map6-E1; Map7-E1; Map8-E3; Map10-A2; Map11-A1.

[9] tn Heb "they went and entered the house of a woman, a prostitute, and her name was Rahab, and they slept there."

[10] tn Or "look."

[11] tn Heb "men have come here tonight from the sons of Israel."

[12] tn Heb "and the king of Jericho sent to Rahab, saying."

[13] tn Heb "bring out."

[14] tn The idiom "come to" (בּוֹא אֶל, bo' 'el) probably has sexual connotations here, as it often does elsewhere when a man "comes to" a woman. If so, the phrase could be translated "your clients." The instructions reflect Rahab's perspective as to the identity of the men.

[15] tn The words "the ones who came to your house" (Heb "who came to your house") may be a euphemistic scribal addition designed to blur the sexual connotation of the preceding words.

[16] tn Heb "The woman took the two men and hid him." The third masculine singular pronominal suffix on "hid" has to be a scribal error (see GKC §135.p).

[17] tn Heb "the men came to me." See the note on this phrase in v. 3.

[18] tn Heb "And the gate was to be shut in the darkness and the men went out."

[19] tn Heb "arranged in rows by her."

[20] tn Another way to translate vv. 6-7 would be, "While she took them up to the roof and hid them..., the king's men tried to find them...." Both of the main clauses have the subject prior to the predicate, perhaps indicating simultaneous action. (On the grammatical point, see R. J. Williams, Hebrew Syntax, 42, §235.) In this case Rahab moves the Israelite spies from the hiding place referred to in v. 4 to a safer and less accessible hiding place.

[21] tn The word "River" is not in the Hebrew text, but is supplied for clarity.

[22] tn Heb "And the men chased after them [on] the road [leading to] the Jordan to the fords." The text is written from the perspective of the king's men. As far as they were concerned, they were chasing the spies.

[23] tn Heb "And they shut the gate after – as soon as the ones chasing after them went out." The expressions "after" and "as soon as" may represent a conflation of alternate readings.

[24] tn Heb "they."

[25] tn Heb "she"; the referent (Rahab) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[26] tn The Hebrew text adds, "to them." This is somewhat redundant in English and has not been translated.

[27] tn Heb "has given the land to you." Rahab's statement uses the Hebrew perfect, suggesting certitude.

[28] tn Heb "terror of you has fallen upon us."

[29] tn Or "melting away because of."

[30] tn Both of these statements are actually subordinated to "I know" in the Hebrew text, which reads, "I know that the LORD...and that terror of you...and that all the inhabitants...."

[31] tn Heb "and what you did to the two Amorite kings who were beyond the Jordan, Sihon and Og, how you annihilated them."

[32] tn Heb "And we heard and our heart[s] melted and there remained no longer breath in a man because of you."

[33] tn Heb "Now, swear to me by the LORD."

sn To swear an oath in the LORD*'s name* would make the LORD the witness and guarantor of the promise attached to the oath. If the person making the oath should go back on the giance to you, show allegiance to my family.[1] Give me a solemn pledge[2] 2:13 that you will spare the lives of my father, mother, brothers, sisters, and all who belong to them, and rescue us[3] from death." 2:14 The men said to her, "If you[4] die, may we die too![5] If you do not report what we've been up to,[6] then, when the LORD hands the land over to us, we will show unswerving allegiance[7] to you."[8]

2:15 Then Rahab[9] let them down by a rope[10] through the window. (Her[11] house was built as part of the city wall; she lived in the wall.)[12] 2:16 She told them, "Head[13] to the hill country, so the ones chasing you don't find you.[14] Hide from them there for three days, long enough for those chasing you[15] to return. Then you can be on your way." 2:17 The men said to her, "We are not bound by this oath you made us swear unless the following conditions are met:[16] 2:18 When we invade the land[17], tie this red rope[18] in the window through which you let us down, and gather together in your house your father, mother, brothers, and all who live in your father's house.[19] 2:19 Anyone who leaves your house will be responsible for his own death – we are innocent in that case![20] But if anyone with you in the house is harmed, we will be responsible.[21] 2:20 If you should report what we've been up to,[22] we are not bound by this oath you made us swear." 2:21 She said, "I agree to these conditions."[23] She sent them on their way[24] and then tied the red rope in the window. 2:22 They went[25] to the hill country and stayed there for three days, long enough for those chasing them[26] to return. Their pursuers[27] looked all along the way but did not find them.[28] 2:23 Then the two men returned – they came down from the hills, crossed the river,[29] came to Joshua son of Nun, and reported to him all they had discovered. 2:24 They told Joshua, "Surely the LORD is handing over all the land to us![30] All who live in the land are cringing before us!"[31]

Israel Crosses the Jordan

3:1 Bright and early the next morning Joshua and the Israelites left Shittim and came to the Jordan.[32] They camped there before crossing the river.[33] 3:2 After three days the leaders went through the camp 3:3 and commanded the people: "When you see the ark of the covenant of the LORD your God[34] being carried by the Levitical priests, you must leave here[35] and walk[36] behind it. 3:4 But stay about three thousand feet behind it.[37] Keep your distance[38] promise, the LORD would judge him for breaking the contract.

[1] tn Heb "with the house of my father."

[2] tn Heb "true sign," that is, "an inviolable token or pledge."

[3] tn Or "our lives."

[4] tn The second person pronoun is masculine plural, indicating that Rahab's entire family is in view.

[5] tn Heb "Our lives in return for you to die." If the lives of Rahab's family are not spared, then the spies will pay for the broken vow with their own lives.

[6] tn Heb "If you do not report this matter of ours."

[7] tn Heb "allegiance and faithfulness." These virtual synonyms are joined in the translation as "unswerving allegiance" to emphasize the degree of promised loyalty.

[8] tn The second person pronoun is feminine singular, referring specifically to Rahab.

[9] tn Heb "she"; the referent (Rahab) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[10] tc The phrase "by a rope" is omitted in the LXX. It may be a later clarifying addition. If original, the omission in the LXX is likely due to an error of homoioarcton. A scribe's or translator's eye could have jumped from the initial בּ (bet) in the phrase בַּחֶבֶל (bakhevel, "with a rope") to the initial בּ on the immediately following בְּעַד (bÿ'ad, "through") and accidentally omitted the intervening letters.

[11] tn Heb "For her house."

[12] tc These explanatory statements are omitted in the LXX and probably represent a later scribal addition.

[13] tn Heb "Go."

[14] tn Heb "so that the pursuers might not meet you."

[15] tn Heb "the pursuers." The object ("you") is not in the Hebrew text but is implied.

[16] tn Heb "We are free from this oath of yours which you made us swear." The words "unless the following conditions are met" are not in the Hebrew text, but are added for clarification.

[17] tn Heb "Look! We are about to enter the land."

[18] tn Heb "the cord of this red thread."

[19] tn Heb "and your father and your mother and your brothers and all the house of your father gather to yourself to the house."

[20] tn Heb "Anyone who goes out from the doors of your house to the outside, his blood is on his head. We are innocent."

[21] tn Heb "But anyone who is with you in the house, his blood is on our head if a hand should be on him."

[22] tn Heb "and if you report this matter of ours."

[23] tn Heb "According to your words, so it [will be]."

[24] tn Heb "she sent them away and they went."

[25] tn Heb "they went and came."

[26] tn Heb "the pursuers." The object ("them") is added for clarification.

[27] tn Heb "the ones chasing them." This has been rendered as "their pursuers" in the translation to avoid redundancy with the preceding clause.

[28] tn Heb "The pursuers looked in all the way and did not find [them]."

[29] tn The words "the river," though not in the Hebrew text, are added for clarification.

[30] tn Heb "Surely the LORD has given into our hand all the land." The report by the spies uses the Hebrew perfect, suggesting certitude.

[31] tn Heb "are melting away because of us."

[32] tn Heb "And Joshua arose early in the morning and he and the Israelites left Shittim and came to the Jordan."

[33] tn The words "the river," though not in the Hebrew text, have been supplied in the translation for clarity.

[34] sn The ark of the covenant refers to the wooden chest that symbolized God's presence among his covenant people.

[35] tn Heb "set out from your place."

[36] tn Or "march."

[37] tn Heb "But there should be a distance between you and it, about two thousand cubits in measurement."

sn The precise distance is uncertain, but the measurement designated אַמָּה ('ammah, "cubit") was probably equivalent to approximately eighteen inches (one and one-half feet, or 45 cm) in length.

[38] tn Heb "do not approach it."

so you can see[1] which way you should go, for you have not traveled this way before."

3:5 Joshua told the people, "Ritually consecrate yourselves, for tomorrow the LORD will perform miraculous deeds among you." 3:6 Joshua told the priests, "Pick up the ark of the covenant and pass on ahead of the people." So they picked up the ark of the covenant and went ahead of the people.

3:7 The LORD told Joshua, "This very day I will begin to honor you before all Israel[2] so they will know that I am with you just as I was with Moses. 3:8 Instruct the priests carrying the ark of the covenant, 'When you reach the bank of the Jordan River,[3] wade into the water.'"[4]

3:9 Joshua told the Israelites, "Come here and listen to the words of the LORD your God!" 3:10 Joshua continued,[5] "This is how you will know the living God is among you and that he will truly drive out before you the Canaanites, Hittites, Hivites, Perizzites, Girgashites, Amorites, and Jebusites. 3:11 Look! The ark of the covenant of the Ruler[6] of the whole earth is ready to enter the Jordan ahead of you. 3:12 Now select for yourselves twelve men from the tribes of Israel, one per tribe. 3:13 When the feet[7] of the priests carrying the ark of the LORD, the Ruler[8] of the whole earth, touch[9] the water of the Jordan, the water coming downstream toward you will stop flowing and pile up."[10]

3:14 So when the people left their tents to cross the Jordan, the priests carrying the ark of the covenant went[11] ahead of them. 3:15 When the ones carrying the ark reached the Jordan and the feet of the priests carrying the ark touched the surface[12] of the water – (the Jordan is at flood stage all during harvest time)[13] – 3:16 the water coming downstream toward them stopped flowing.[14] It piled up far upstream[15] at Adam (the city near Zarethan); there was no water at all flowing to the sea of the Arabah (the Salt Sea).[16] The people crossed the river opposite Jericho.[17] 3:17 The priests carrying the ark of the covenant of the LORD stood firmly on dry ground in the middle of the Jordan. All Israel crossed over on dry ground until the entire nation was on the other side.[18]

Israel Commemorates the Crossing

4:1 When the entire nation was on the other side,[19] the LORD told Joshua, 4:2 "Select for yourselves twelve men from the people, one per tribe. 4:3 Instruct them, 'Pick up twelve stones from the middle of the Jordan, from the very place where the priests[20] stand firmly, and carry them over with you and put them in the place where you camp tonight.'"

4:4 Joshua summoned the twelve men he had appointed from the Israelites, one per tribe. 4:5 Joshua told them, "Go in front of the ark of the LORD your God to the middle of the Jordan. Each of you is to put a stone on his shoulder, according to the number of the Israelite tribes. 4:6 The stones[21] will be a reminder to you.[22] When your children ask someday, 'Why are these stones important to you?' 4:7 tell them how the water of the Jordan stopped flowing[23] before the ark of the covenant of the LORD. When it crossed the Jordan, the water of the Jordan stopped flowing.[24] These stones will be a lasting memorial for the Israelites."

4:8 The Israelites did just as Joshua commanded. They picked up twelve stones, according to the number of the Israelite tribes, from the middle of the Jordan as the LORD had instructed Joshua. They carried them over with them to the camp and put them there. 4:9 Joshua also set up twelve stones[25] in the middle of the Jordan in the very place where the priests carrying the ark of the covenant stood. They remain there to this very day.

4:10 Now the priests carrying the ark of the covenant were standing in the middle of the

1 tn Heb "know."

2 tn Or more literally, "to exalt you in the eyes of all Israel."

3 tn Heb "the edge of the waters of the Jordan." The word "River" is not in the Hebrew text, but has been supplied for clarity.

4 tn Heb "stand in the Jordan." Here the repetition of the word "Jordan" would be redundant according to contemporary English style, so it was not included in the translation.

5 tn Heb "said."

6 tn Or "Lord"; or "Master."

7 tn Heb "the soles of the feet."

8 tn Or "Lord"; or "Master."

9 tn Or "rest in."

10 tn Heb "the waters of the Jordan, the waters descending from above, will be cut off so that they will stand in one pile."

11 tn The verb, though not in the Hebrew, is added for clarification.

12 tn Heb "dipped into the edge."

13 tn Heb "and the Jordan overflows all its banks all the days of harvest."

sn The lengthy description of the priests' arrival at the Jordan and the parenthetical reminder that the Jordan was at flood stage delay the climax of the story and add to its dramatic buildup.

14 tn Heb "the waters descending from above stood still."

15 tn Heb "they stood in one pile very far away."

16 tn Heb "the [waters] descending toward the sea of the Arabah (the Salt Sea) were completely cut off."

sn The Salt Sea is an ancient name for the Dead Sea.

17 map For the location of Jericho see Map5-B2; Map6-E1; Map7-E1; Map8-E3; Map10-A2; Map11-A1.

18 tn Heb "and all Israel was crossing over on dry ground until all the nation had finished crossing the Jordan."

19 tn Heb "And when all the nation had finished crossing the Jordan."

20 tn Heb "the feet of the priests."

21 tn Heb "that this may be"; the referent of "this" (the twelve stones) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

22 tn Heb "in order that this might be a sign among you."

23 tn Heb "were cut off from before."

24 tn Heb "how the waters descending from above stood still."

25 tn Here "also" has been supplied in the translation to make it clear (as indicated by v. 20) that these are not the same stones the men took from the river bed.

Jordan until everything the LORD had commanded Joshua to tell the people was accomplished, in accordance with all that Moses had commanded Joshua. The people went across quickly, 4:11 and when all the people had finished crossing, the ark of the LORD and the priests crossed as the people looked on.[1] 4:12 The Reubenites, Gadites, and the half-tribe of Manasseh crossed over armed for battle ahead of the Israelites, just as Moses had instructed them. 4:13 About forty thousand battle-ready troops[2] marched past the LORD to fight[3] on the plains of Jericho.[4] 4:14 That day the LORD brought honor to Joshua before all Israel. They respected[5] him all his life,[6] just as they had respected[7] Moses.

4:15 The LORD told Joshua, 4:16 "Instruct the priests carrying the ark of the covenantal laws[8] to come up from the Jordan." 4:17 So Joshua instructed the priests, "Come up from the Jordan!" 4:18 The priests carrying the ark of the covenant of the LORD came up from the middle of the Jordan, and as soon as they set foot on dry land,[9] the water of the Jordan flowed again and returned to flood stage.[10]

4:19 The people went up from the Jordan on the tenth day of the first month[11] and camped in Gilgal on the eastern border of Jericho.[12] 4:20 Now Joshua set up in Gilgal the[13] twelve stones they had taken from the Jordan. 4:21 He told the Israelites, "When your children someday ask their fathers, 'What do these stones represent?'[14] 4:22 explain[15] to your children, 'Israel crossed the Jordan River[16] on dry ground.' 4:23 For the LORD your God dried up the water of the Jordan before you while you crossed over. It was just like when the LORD your God dried up the Red Sea before us while we crossed it.[17] 4:24 He has done this so[18] all the nations[19] of the earth might recognize the LORD's power[20] and so you might always obey[21] the LORD your God."

5:1 When all the Amorite kings on the west side of the Jordan and all the Canaanite kings along the seacoast heard how the LORD had dried up the water of the Jordan before the Israelites while they[22] crossed, they lost their courage and could not even breathe for fear of the Israelites.[23]

A New Generation is Circumcised

5:2 At that time the LORD told Joshua, "Make flint knives and circumcise the Israelites once again."[24] 5:3 So Joshua made flint knives and circumcised the Israelites on the Hill of the Foreskins.[25] 5:4 This is why Joshua had to circumcise them: All the men old enough to fight when they left Egypt died on the journey through the desert after they left Egypt.[26] 5:5 Now[27] all the men[28] who left were circumcised, but all the sons[29] born on the journey through the desert after they left Egypt were uncircumcised. 5:6 Indeed, for forty years the Israelites traveled through the desert until all the men old enough to fight when they left Egypt, the ones who had disobeyed the LORD, died off.[30] For the LORD had sworn a solemn oath to them that he would not let them see the land he had sworn on oath to give them,[31] a land rich in[32] milk and honey. 5:7 He replaced them with their sons,[33] whom

2 tn Heb "men equipped for battle."

3 tn Heb "for war."

5 tn Heb "feared."

6 tn Heb "all the days of his life."

7 tn Heb "had feared."

8 tn Traditionally, "the ark of the testimony," another name for the ark of the covenant. The Hebrew term עֵדוּת ('edut, "testimony" or "witness") here refers to the Mosaic covenant and the body of stipulations contained within it (see HALOT 2:791).

9 tn Heb "and the soles of the feet of the priests were brought up to the dry land."

10 tn Heb "and the waters of the Jordan returned to their place and went as formerly over their banks."

sn Verses 15-18 give a more detailed account of the priests' crossing that had been briefly described in v. 11.

11 sn The first month was the month Abib (= late March-early April in the modern calendar). The Passover in Egypt also occurred on the tenth day of the first month (Exod 12:2; 13:4).

12 map For location see Map5-B2; Map6-E1; Map7-E1; Map8-E3; Map10-A2; Map11-A1.

13 tn Heb "these," referring specifically to the twelve stones mentioned in vv. 3-7.

14 tn Heb "What are these stones?"

15 tn Heb "make known."

16 tn Heb "crossed this Jordan"; the word "River" is not in the Hebrew text, but has been supplied to clarify the meaning.

17 tn Heb "just as the LORD your God did to the Red Sea when he dried [it] up before us while we crossed over."

18 tn Heb "in order that."

19 tn Or "peoples."

20 tn Heb "know the hand of the LORD that it is strong."

21 tn Heb "fear."

22 tc Another textual tradition has, "while we crossed."

23 tn Heb "their heart[s] melted and there was no longer in them breathe because of the sons of Israel."

24 tn Heb "return, circumcise the sons of Israel a second time." The Hebrew term שׁוּב (shuv, "return") is used here in an adverbial sense to indicate the repetition of an action.

25 tn Or "Gibeath Haaraloth." This name means "Hill of the Foreskins." Many modern translations simply give the Hebrew name, although an explanatory note giving the meaning of the name is often included.

sn The name given to the place, Hill of the Foreskins was an obvious reminder of this important event.

26 tn Heb "All the people who went out from Egypt, the males, all the men of war, died in the desert in the way when they went out from Egypt."

27 tn Or "indeed."

28 tn Heb "people."

29 tn Heb "all the people."

30 tn Heb "all the nation, the men of war who went out from Egypt, who did not listen to the voice of the LORD, came to an end."

31 tn Some Hebrew MSS, as well as the Syriac version, support this reading. Most ancient witnesses read "us."

32 tn Heb "flowing with."

sn The word picture a land rich in milk and honey depicts the land as containing many grazing areas (which would produce milk) and flowering plants (which would support the bees that produced honey).

33 tn Heb "their sons he raised up in their place."

Joshua circumcised. They were uncircumcised; their fathers had not circumcised them along the way. 5:8 When all the men[1] had been circumcised, they stayed there in the camp until they had healed. 5:9 The LORD said to Joshua, "Today I have taken away[2] the disgrace[3] of Egypt from you." So that place is called Gilgal[4] even to this day.

5:10 So the Israelites camped in Gilgal and celebrated the Passover in the evening of the fourteenth day of the month on the plains of Jericho.[5] 5:11 They ate some of the produce of the land the day after the Passover, including unleavened bread and roasted grain.[6] 5:12 The manna stopped appearing the day they ate[7] some of the produce of the land; the Israelites never ate manna again.[8]

Israel Conquers Jericho

5:13 When Joshua was near[9] Jericho,[10] he looked up and saw a man standing in front of him holding a drawn sword.[11] Joshua approached him and asked him, "Are you on our side or allied with our enemies?"[12] 5:14 He answered,[13] "Truly I am the commander of the LORD's army.[14] Now I have arrived!"[15] Joshua bowed down with his face to the ground[16] and asked, "What does my master want to say to his servant?" 5:15 The commander of the LORD's army answered Joshua, "Remove your sandals from your feet, because the place where you stand is holy." Joshua did so.

6:1 Now Jericho[17] was shut tightly[18] because of the Israelites. No one was allowed to leave or enter.[19] 6:2 The LORD told Joshua, "See, I am about to defeat Jericho for you,[20] along with its king and its warriors. 6:3 Have all the warriors march around the city one time;[21] do this for six days. 6:4 Have seven priests carry seven rams' horns[22] in front of the ark. On the seventh day march around the city seven times, while the priests blow the horns. 6:5 When you hear the signal from the ram's horn,[23] have the whole army give a loud battle cry.[24] Then the city wall will collapse[25] and the warriors should charge straight ahead."[26]

6:6 So Joshua son of Nun summoned the priests and instructed them, "Pick up the ark of

1 tn Heb "nation."

2 tn Heb "rolled away."

3 sn One might take the disgrace of Egypt as a reference to their uncircumcised condition (see Gen 34:14), but the generation that left Egypt was circumcised (see v. 5). It more likely refers to the disgrace they experienced in Egyptian slavery. When this new generation reached the promised land and renewed their covenantal commitment to the Lord by submitting to the rite of circumcision, the LORD's deliverance of his people from slavery, which had begun with the plagues and the crossing of the Red Sea, reached its climax. See T. C. Butler, Joshua (WBC), 59.

4 sn The name Gilgal sounds like the Hebrew verb "roll away" (גָּלַל, galal).

5 map For location see Map5-B2; Map6-E1; Map7-E1; Map8-E3; Map10-A2; Map11-A1.

6 tn The Hebrew text adds, "on this same day." This is somewhat redundant in English and has not been translated.

7 tn Heb "the day after, when they ate." The present translation assumes this means the day after the Passover, though it is possible it refers to the day after they began eating the land's produce.

8 tn Heb "and the sons of Israel had no more manna."

9 tn Heb "in."

10 map For location see Map5-B2; Map6-E1; Map7-E1; Map8-E3; Map10-A2; Map11-A1.

11 tn Heb "he lifted up his eyes and looked. And look, a man was standing in front of him, and his sword was drawn in his hand." The verb הִנֵּה (hinneh, "look") invites the reader to view the scene through Joshua's eyes. By calling the stranger "a man," the author reflects Joshua's perspective. The text shortly reveals his true identity (vv. 14-15).

12 tn Heb "Are you for us or for our enemies?"

13 tc Heb "He said, "Neither." An alternative reading is לוֹ (lo, "[He said] to him"; cf. NEB). This reading is supported by many Hebrew MSS, as well as the LXX and Syriac versions. The traditional reading of the MT (לֹא, lo', "no, neither") is probably the product of aural confusion (the two variant readings sound the same in Hebrew). Although followed by a number of modern translations (cf. NIV, NRSV), this reading is problematic, for the commander of the LORD's army would hardly have declared himself neutral.

14 sn The Lord's heavenly army, like an earthly army, has a commander who leads the troops. For the phrase שַׂר־צָבָא (sar-ts^{e}va', "army commander") in the human sphere, see among many other references Gen 21:22, 32; 26:26; Judg 4:2, 7; 1 Sam 12:9.

15 sn The commander's appearance seems to be for Joshua's encouragement. Joshua could now lead Israel into battle knowing that the LORD's invisible army would ensure victory.

16 tn Heb "Joshua fell on his face to the ground and bowed down."

17 map For location see Map5-B2; Map6-E1; Map7-E1; Map8-E3; Map10-A2; Map11-A1.

18 tn Heb "was shutting and shut up." HALOT 2:743 paraphrases, "blocking [any way of access] and blocked [against any who would leave]."

19 tn Heb "there was no one going out and there was no one coming in."

20 tn Heb "I have given into your hand Jericho." The Hebrew verb נָתַתִּי (natatti, "I have given") is probably best understood as a perfect of certitude, indicating the certainty of the action. The Hebrew pronominal suffix "your" is singular, being addressed to Joshua as the leader and representative of the nation. To convey to the modern reader what is about to happen and who is doing it, the translation "I am about to defeat Jericho for you" has been used.

21 tn Heb "and go around the city, all [you] men of war, encircling the city one time." The Hebrew verb וְסַבֹּתֶם (v^{e}sabbotem, "and go around") is plural, being addressed to the whole army.

22 tn Heb "rams' horns, trumpets."

23 tn Heb "and it will be at the sounding of the horn, the ram's horn, when you hear the sound of the ram's horn." The text of Josh 6:5 seems to be unduly repetitive, so for the sake of English style and readability, it is best to streamline the text here. The reading in the Hebrew looks like a conflation of variant readings, with the second ("when you hear the sound of the ram's horn") being an interpolation that assimilates the text to verse 20 ("when the army heard the sound of the horn"). Note that the words "when you hear the sound of the ram's horn" do not appear in the LXX of verse 5.

24 tn Heb "all the people will shout with a loud shout."

25 tn Heb "fall in its place."

26 tn Heb "and the people will go up, each man straight ahead."

the covenant, and seven priests must carry seven rams' horns in front of the ark of the LORD." 6:7 And he told[1] the army,[2] "Move ahead[3] and march around the city, with armed troops going ahead of the ark of the LORD."

6:8 When Joshua gave the army its orders,[4] the seven priests carrying the seven rams' horns before the LORD moved ahead and blew the horns as the ark of the covenant of the LORD followed behind. 6:9 Armed troops marched ahead of the priests blowing the horns, while the rear guard followed along behind the ark blowing rams' horns. 6:10 Now Joshua had instructed the army,[5] "Do not give a battle cry[6] or raise your voices; say nothing[7] until the day I tell you, 'Give the battle cry.'[8] Then give the battle cry!"[9] 6:11 So Joshua made sure they marched the ark of the LORD around the city one time.[10] Then they went back to the camp and spent the night there.[11]

6:12 Bright and early the next morning Joshua had the priests pick up the ark of the LORD.[12] 6:13 The seven priests carrying the seven rams' horns before the ark of the LORD marched along blowing their horns. Armed troops marched ahead of them, while the rear guard followed along behind the ark of the LORD blowing rams' horns. 6:14 They marched around the city one time on the second day, then returned to the camp. They did this six days in all.

6:15 On the seventh day they were up at the crack of dawn[13] and marched around the city as before – only this time they marched around it seven times.[14] 6:16 The seventh time around, the priests blew the rams' horns and Joshua told the army,[15] "Give the battle cry,[16] for the LORD is handing the city over to you![17] 6:17 The city and all that is in it must be set apart for the LORD,[18] except for Rahab the prostitute and all who are with her in her house, because she hid the spies[19] we sent. 6:18 But be careful when you are setting apart the riches for the LORD. If you take any of it, you will make the Israelite camp subject to annihilation and cause a disaster.[20] 6:19 All the silver and gold, as well as bronze and iron items, belong to the LORD.[21] They must go into the LORD's treasury."

6:20 The rams' horns sounded[22] and when the army[23] heard the signal,[24] they gave a loud battle cry.[25] The wall collapsed[26] and the warriors charged straight ahead into the city and captured it.[27] 6:21 They annihilated with the sword everything that breathed in the city,[28] including men and women, young and old, as well as cattle, sheep, and donkeys. 6:22 Joshua told the two men who had spied on the land, "Enter the prostitute's house[29] and bring out the woman and all who belong to her as you promised her."[30] 6:23 So the young spies went and brought out Rahab, her father, mother, brothers, and all who belonged to her. They brought out her whole family and took them to a place outside[31] the Israelite camp. 6:24 But they burned[32] the city and all that was in it, except for the silver, gold, and bronze and iron items they put in the treasury of the LORD's house.[33] 6:25 Yet Joshua spared[34] Rahab the prostitute, her father's family,[35] and all who belonged to her. She lives in Israel[36] to this very day because she hid the messengers

---

1 tn An alternative reading is "and they said." In this case the subject is indefinite and the verb should be translated as passive, "[the army] was told."

2 tn Heb "the people."

3 tn Heb "pass by."

4 tn Heb "when Joshua spoke to the people."

5 tn Heb "the people."

6 tn Or "the shout."

7 tn Heb "do not let a word come out of your mouths."

8 tn Or "the shout."

9 tn Or "the shout."

10 tn Heb "and he made the ark of the LORD go around the city, encircling one time."

11 tn Heb "and they entered the camp and spent the night in the camp."

12 tn Heb "Joshua rose early in the morning and the priests picked up the ark of the LORD."

13 tn Heb "On the seventh day they rose early, when the dawn ascended."

14 tn Heb "and they went around the city according to this manner seven times, only on that day they went around the city seven times."

15 tn Heb "the people."

16 tn Or "the shout."

17 tn Heb "for the LORD has given to you the city." The verbal form is a perfect, probably indicating certitude here.

18 tn Or "dedicated to the LORD."

sn To make the city set apart for the LORD would involve annihilating all the people and animals and placing its riches in the LORD's treasury (vv. 19, 21, 24).

19 tn Heb "messengers."

20 tn Heb "Only you keep [away] from what is set apart [to the LORD] so that you might not, as you are setting [it] apart, take some of what is set apart [to the LORD] and make the camp of Israel set apart [to destruction by the LORD] and bring trouble on it."

21 tn Heb "it is holy to the LORD."

22 tc Heb "and the people shouted and they blew the rams' horns." The initial statement ("and the people shouted") seems premature, since the verse goes on to explain that the battle cry followed the blowing of the horns. The statement has probably been accidentally duplicated from what follows. It is omitted in the LXX.

23 tn Heb "the people."

24 tn Heb "the sound of the horn."

25 tn Heb "they shouted with a loud shout."

26 tn Heb "fell in its place."

27 tn Heb "and the people went up into the city, each one straight ahead, and they captured the city."

28 tn Heb "all which was in the city."

29 tn Heb "the house of the woman, the prostitute."

30 tn Heb "and bring out from there the woman and all who belong to her as you swore on oath to her."

31 tn Or "placed them outside."

32 tn The Hebrew text adds "with fire."

33 tn Heb "the treasury of the house of the LORD." Technically the LORD did not have a "house" yet, so perhaps this refers to the tabernacle using later terminology.

34 tn Heb "kept alive."

35 tn Heb the house of her father."

36 tn Or "among the Israelites"; Heb "in the midst of Israel."

Joshua sent to spy on Jericho.[1] 6:26 At that time Joshua made this solemn declaration:[2] "The man who attempts to rebuild[3] this city of Jericho[4] will stand condemned before the LORD.[5] He will lose his firstborn son when he lays its foundations and his youngest son when he erects its gates!"[6] 6:27 The LORD was with Joshua and he became famous throughout the land.[7]

Achan Sins and is Punished

7:1 But the Israelites disobeyed the command about the city's riches.[8] Achan son of Carmi, son of Zabdi,[9] son of Zerah, from the tribe of Judah, stole some of the riches.[10] The LORD was furious with the Israelites.[11]

7:2 Joshua sent men from Jericho[12] to Ai (which is located near Beth Aven, east of Bethel[13]) and instructed them, "Go up and spy on the land." So the men went up and spied on Ai. 7:3 They returned and reported to Joshua,[14] "Don't send the whole army.[15] About two or three thousand men are adequate to defeat Ai.[16] Don't tire out the whole army, for Ai is small."[17]

7:4 So about three thousand men went up, but they fled from the men of Ai. 7:5 The men of Ai killed about thirty-six of them and chased them from in front of the city gate all the way to the fissures[18] and defeated them on the steep slope.[19] The people's[20] courage melted away like water.[21]

7:6 Joshua tore his clothes;[22] he and the leaders[23] of Israel lay face down on the ground before the ark of the LORD until evening[24] and threw dirt on their heads.[25] 7:7 Joshua prayed,[26] "O, Master, LORD! Why did you bring these people across the Jordan to hand us over to the Amorites so they could destroy us? 7:8 If only we had been satisfied to live on the other side of the Jordan! O Lord, what can I say now that Israel has retreated[27] before its enemies? 7:9 When the Canaanites and all who live in the land hear about this, they will turn against us and destroy the very memory of us[28] from the earth. What will you do to protect your great reputation?"[29]

7:10 The LORD responded[30] to Joshua, "Get up! Why are you lying there face down?[31] 7:11 Israel has sinned; they have violated my covenantal commandment![32] They have taken some of the riches;[33] they have stolen them and deceitfully put them among their own possessions.[34] 7:12 The Israelites are unable to stand before their enemies; they retreat because they have become subject to annihilation.[35] I will no longer be with you,[36] unless you destroy what has con-

2 tn Normally the Hiphil of שָׁבַע (shava') has a causative sense ("make [someone] take an oath"; see Josh 2:17, 20), but here (see also Josh 23:7) no object is stated or implied. If Joshua is calling divine judgment down upon the one who attempts to rebuild Jericho, then "make a solemn appeal [to God as judge]" or "pronounce a curse" would be an appropriate translation. However, the tone seems stronger. Joshua appears to be announcing the certain punishment of the violator. 1 Kgs 16:34, which records the fulfillment of Joshua's prediction, supports this. Casting Joshua in a prophetic role, it refers to Joshua's statement as the "word of the LORD" spoken through Joshua.

3 tn Heb "rises up and builds."

4 tc The LXX omits "Jericho." It is probably a scribal addition.

5 tn The Hebrew phrase אָרוּר לִפְנֵי יְהוָה ('arur lifney y^{e}hvah, "cursed [i.e., condemned] before the LORD") also occurs in 1 Sam 26:19.

6 tn Heb "With his firstborn he will lay its foundations and with his youngest he will erect its gates." The Hebrew verb יַצִּיב (yatsiv, "he will erect") is imperfect, not jussive, suggesting Joshua's statement is a prediction, not an imprecation.

7 tn Heb "and the report about him was in all the land." The Hebrew term אֶרֶץ ('erets, "land") may also be translated "earth."

8 tn Heb "But the sons of Israel were unfaithful with unfaithfulness concerning what was set apart [to the LORD]."

9 tn 1 Chr 2:6 lists a "Zimri" (but no Zabdi) as one of the five sons of Zerah (cf. also 1 Chr 7:17, 18).

10 tn Heb "took from what was set apart [to the LORD]."

11 tn Heb "the anger of the LORD burned against the sons of Israel."

sn This incident illustrates well the principle of corporate solidarity and corporate guilt. The sin of one man brought the LORD's anger down upon the entire nation.

14 tn Heb "and they returned to Joshua and said to him."

15 tn Heb "Don't let all the people go up."

16 tn Heb "Let about two thousand men or about three thousand men go up to defeat Ai."

17 tn Heb "all the people for they are small."

18 tn The meaning and correct translation of the Hebrew word שְׁבָרִים (sh^{e}varim) is uncertain. The translation "fissures" is based on usage of the plural form of the noun in Ps 60:4 HT (60:2 ET), where it appears to refer to cracks in the earth caused by an earthquake. Perhaps deep ravines or gorges are in view, or the word is a proper noun ("all the way to Shebarim").

19 sn The precise geographical location of the Israelite defeat at this "steep slope" is uncertain.

20 tn Or "army's."

21 tn Heb "and the heart of the people melted and became water."

22 sn Tearing one's clothes was an outward expression of extreme sorrow (see Gen 37:34; 44:13).

23 tn Or "elders."

24 tn Heb "and fell on his face to the ground before the ark of the LORD until evening, he and the elders of Israel."

25 sn Throwing dirt on one's head was an outward expression of extreme sorrow (see Lam 2:10; Ezek 27:30).

26 tn Heb "said."

taminated you.[1] 7:13 Get up! Ritually consecrate the people and tell them this: 'Ritually consecrate yourselves for tomorrow, because the LORD God of Israel says, "You are contaminated,[2] O Israel! You will not be able to stand before your enemies until you remove what is contaminating you."[3] 7:14 In the morning you must approach in tribal order.[4] The tribe the LORD selects[5] must approach by clans. The clan the LORD selects must approach by families.[6] The family the LORD selects must approach man by man.[7] 7:15 The one caught with the riches[8] must be burned up[9] along with all who belong to him, because he violated the LORD's covenant and did such a disgraceful thing in Israel.'"

7:16 Bright and early the next morning Joshua made Israel approach in tribal order[10] and the tribe of Judah was selected. 7:17 He then made the clans of Judah approach and the clan of the Zerahites was selected. He made the clan of the Zerahites approach and Zabdi[11] was selected.[12] 7:18 He then made Zabdi's[13] family approach man by man[14] and Achan son of Carmi, son of Zabdi, son of Zerah, from the tribe of Judah, was selected. 7:19 So Joshua said to Achan, "My son, honor[15] the LORD God of Israel and give him praise! Tell me what you did; don't hide anything from me!" 7:20 Achan told Joshua, "It is true. I have sinned against the LORD God of Israel in this way:[16] 7:21 I saw among the goods we seized a nice robe from Babylon,[17] two hundred silver pieces,[18] and a bar of gold weighing fifty shekels. I wanted them, so I took them. They are hidden in the ground right in the middle of my tent with the silver underneath."

7:22 Joshua sent messengers who ran to the tent. The things were hidden right in his tent, with the silver underneath.[19] 7:23 They took it all from the middle of the tent, brought it to Joshua and all the Israelites, and placed[20] it before the LORD. 7:24 Then Joshua and all Israel took Achan, son of Zerah, along with the silver, the robe, the bar of gold, his sons, daughters, ox, donkey, sheep, tent, and all that belonged to him and brought them up to the Valley of Disaster.[21] 7:25 Joshua said, "Why have you brought disaster[22] on us? The LORD will bring disaster on you today!" All Israel stoned him to death. (They also stoned and burned the others.)[23] 7:26 Then they erected over him a large pile of stones (it remains to this very day[24]) and the LORD's anger subsided. So that place is called the Valley of Disaster to this very day.

Israel Conquers Ai

8:1 The LORD told Joshua, "Don't be afraid and don't panic![25] Take the whole army with you and march against Ai![26] See, I am handing over to you[27] the king of Ai, along with his people, city, and land. 8:2 Do to Ai and its king what you did to Jericho[28] and its king, except you may plunder its goods and cattle. Set an ambush behind the city!"

8:3 Joshua and the whole army marched against Ai.[29] Joshua selected thirty thousand brave warriors and sent them out at night. 8:4 He told[30] them, "Look, set an ambush behind the city. Don't go very far from the city; all of you be ready! 8:5 I and all the troops[31] who are with me will approach the city. When they come out to fight us like before, we will retreat from them. 8:6 They will attack[32] us until we have lured them from the city, for they will say, 'They are retreating from us like before.' We will retreat from them. 8:7 Then you rise up from your hid-

[17] tn Heb "Shinar," a reference to Babylon (cf. Gen 10:10; 11:2; 14:1). Many modern translations retain the Hebrew name "Shinar" (cf. NEB, NRSV) but some use the more familiar "Babylon" (cf. NIV, NLT).

See, I have given you orders."[4] 8:9 Joshua sent them away and they went to their hiding place[5] west of Ai, between Bethel[6] and Ai.[7] Joshua spent that night with the army.[8]

8:10 Bright and early the next morning Joshua gathered[9] the army,[10] and he and the leaders[11] of Israel marched[12] at the head of it[13] to Ai. 8:11 All the troops that were with him marched up and drew near the city.[14] They camped north of Ai on the other side of the valley.[15] 8:12 He took five thousand men and set an ambush west of the city between Bethel[16] and Ai. 8:13 The army was in position – the main army north of the city and the rear guard west of the city. That night Joshua went into[17] the middle of the valley.

8:14 When the king of Ai saw Israel, he and his whole army quickly got up the next day and went out to fight Israel at the meeting place near the Arabah.[18] But he did not realize[19] men were hiding behind the city.[20] 8:15 Joshua and all Israel pretended to be defeated by them and they retreated along the way to the desert. 8:16 All the reinforcements[21] in Ai[22] were ordered[23] to chase them; they chased Joshua and were lured away from the city. 8:17 No men were left in Ai or Bethel;[24] they all went out after Israel.[25] They left the city wide open and chased Israel.

8:18 The LORD told Joshua, "Hold out toward Ai the curved sword in your hand, for I am handing the city[26] over to you." So Joshua held out toward Ai the curved sword in his hand. 8:19 When he held out his hand, the men waiting in ambush rose up quickly from their place and attacked.[27] They entered the city, captured it, and immediately set it on fire. 8:20 When the men of Ai turned around, they saw[28] the smoke from the city ascending into the sky and were so shocked they were unable to flee in any direction.[29] In the meantime the men who were retreating to the desert turned against their pursuers. 8:21 When Joshua and all Israel saw that the men in ambush had captured the city and that the city was going up in smoke,[30] they turned around and struck down the men of Ai. 8:22 At the same time the men who had taken the city came out to fight, and the men of Ai were trapped in the middle.[31] The Israelites struck them down, leaving no survivors or refugees. 8:23 But they captured the king of Ai alive and brought him to Joshua.

8:24 When Israel had finished killing all the men[32] of Ai who had chased them toward the desert[33] (they all fell by the sword),[34] all Israel returned to Ai and put the sword to it. 8:25 Twelve thousand men and women died[35] that day, including all the men of Ai. 8:26 Joshua kept holding out his curved sword until Israel had annihilated all who lived in Ai.[36] 8:27 But Israel did plunder the cattle and the goods of the city, in accordance with the LORD's orders to Joshua.[37] 8:28 Joshua burned Ai and made it a permanently uninhabited mound (it remains that way to this very day).[38] 8:29 He hung the king of Ai on a tree, leaving him exposed until

Covenant Renewal

8:30 Then Joshua built an altar for the LORD God of Israel on Mount Ebal, 8:31 just as Moses the LORD's servant had commanded the Israelites. As described in the law scroll of Moses, it was made with uncut stones untouched by an iron tool.[4] They offered burnt sacrifices on it and sacrificed tokens of peace.[5] 8:32 There, in the presence of the Israelites, Joshua inscribed on the stones a duplicate of the law written by Moses.[6] 8:33 All the people,[7] rulers,[8] leaders, and judges were standing on either side of the ark, in front of the Levitical priests who carried the ark of the covenant of the LORD. Both resident foreigners and native Israelites were there.[9] Half the people stood in front of Mount Gerizim and the other half in front of Mount Ebal, as Moses the LORD's servant had previously instructed to them to do for the formal blessing ceremony.[10] 8:34 Then[11] Joshua read aloud all the words of the law, including the blessings and the curses, just as they are written in the law scroll. 8:35 Joshua read aloud every commandment Moses had given[12] before the whole assembly of Israel, including the women, children, and resident foreigners who lived among them.[13]

The Gibeonites Deceive Israel

9:1 When the news reached all the kings on the west side of the Jordan[14] – in the hill country, the lowlands,[15] and all along the Mediterranean coast[16] as far as[17] Lebanon (including the Hittites, Amorites, Canaanites, Perizzites, Hivites, and Jebusites) – 9:2 they formed an alliance to fight against Joshua and Israel.[18]

9:3 When the residents of Gibeon heard what Joshua did to Jericho[19] and Ai, 9:4 they did something clever. They collected some provisions[20] and put worn-out sacks on their donkeys, along with worn-out wineskins that were ripped and patched. 9:5 They had worn-out, patched sandals on their feet and dressed in worn-out clothes. All their bread[21] was dry and hard.[22] 9:6 They came to Joshua at the camp in Gilgal and said to him and the men of Israel, "We have come from a distant land. Make a treaty with us." 9:7 The men of Israel said to the Hivites, "Perhaps you live near us.[23] So how can we make a treaty with you?" 9:8 But they said to Joshua, "We are willing to be your subjects."[24] So Joshua said to them, "Who are you and where do you come from?" 9:9 They told him, "Your subjects[25] have come from a very distant land because of the reputation[26] of the LORD your God, for we have heard the news about all he did in Egypt[27] 9:10 and all he did to the two Amorite kings on the other side of the Jordan – King Sihon of Heshbon and King Og of Bashan in Ashtaroth. 9:11 Our leaders and all who live in our land told us, 'Take provisions for your journey and go meet them. Tell them, "We are willing to be your subjects.[28] Make a treaty with us."' 9:12 This bread of ours was warm when we packed it in our homes the day we started out to meet you,[29] but now it is dry and hard.[30] 9:13 These wineskins we filled were brand new, but look how they have ripped. LORD's advice.[1] 9:15 Joshua made a peace treaty with them and agreed to let them live. The leaders of the community[2] sealed it with an oath.[3]

9:16 Three days after they made the treaty with them, the Israelites found out they were from the local area and lived nearby.[4] 9:17 So the Israelites set out and on the third day arrived at their cities – Gibeon, Kephirah, Beeroth, and Kiriath Jearim. 9:18 The Israelites did not attack them because the leaders of the community had sworn an oath to them in the name of the LORD God of Israel.[5] The whole community criticized[6] the leaders, 9:19 but all the leaders told the whole community, "We swore an oath to them in the name of[7] the LORD God of Israel. So now we can't hurt[8] them! 9:20 We must let them live so we can escape the curse attached to the oath we swore to them."[9] 9:21 The leaders then added,[10] "Let them live." So they became[11] woodcutters and water carriers for the whole community, as the leaders had decided.[12]

9:22[13] Joshua summoned the Gibeonites[14] and said to them, "Why did you trick[15] us by saying, 'We live far away from you,' when you really live nearby?[16] 9:23 Now you are condemned to perpetual servitude as woodcutters and water carriers for the house of my God."[17] 9:24 They said to Joshua, "It was carefully reported to your subjects[18] how the LORD your God commanded Moses his servant to assign you the whole land and to destroy all who live in the land from before you. Because of you we were terrified[19] we would lose our lives, so we did this thing. 9:25 So now we are in your power.[20] Do to us what you think is good and appropriate.[21] 9:26 Joshua did as they said; he kept the Israelites from killing them[22] 9:27 and that day made them woodcutters and water carriers for the community and for the altar of the LORD at the divinely chosen site. (They continue in that capacity to this very day.)[23]

Israel Defeats an Amorite Coalition

10:1 Adoni-Zedek, king of Jerusalem,[24] heard how Joshua captured Ai and annihilated it and its king as he did Jericho[25] and its king.[26] He also heard how[27] the people of Gibeon made peace with Israel and lived among them. 10:2 All Jerusalem was terrified[28] because Gibeon was a large city, like one of the royal cities. It was larger than Ai and all its men were warriors. 10:3 So King Adoni-Zedek of Jerusalem sent this message to King Hoham of Hebron, King Piram of Jarmuth, King Japhia of Lachish, and King Debir of Eglon: 10:4 "Come to my aid[29] so we can attack Gibeon, for it has made peace with Joshua and the Israelites." 10:5 So the five Amorite kings (the kings of Jerusalem, Hebron, Jarmuth, Lachish, and Eglon) and all their troops gathered together and advanced. They deployed their troops and fought against Gibeon.[30]

10:6 The men of Gibeon sent this message to Joshua at the camp in Gilgal, "Do not abandon[31] your subjects![32] Rescue us! Help us! For all the Amorite kings living in the hill country are attacking us."[33] 10:7 So Joshua and his whole army, including the bravest warriors, marched up from Gilgal.[34] 10:8 The LORD told Joshua, Israel[5] thoroughly defeated them[6] at Gibeon. They chased them up the road to the pass[7] of Beth Horon and struck them down all the way to Azekah and Makkedah. 10:11 As they fled from Israel on the slope leading down from[8] Beth Horon, the LORD threw down on them large hailstones from the sky,[9] all the way to Azekah. They died – in fact, more died from the hailstones than the Israelites killed with the sword.

10:12 The day the LORD delivered the Amorites over to the Israelites, Joshua prayed to the LORD before Israel:[10]

"O sun, stand still over Gibeon!
O moon, over the Valley of Aijalon!"

10:13 The sun stood still and the moon stood motionless while the nation took vengeance on its enemies. The event is recorded in the Scroll of the Upright One.[11] The sun stood motionless in the middle of the sky and did not set for about a full day.[12] 10:14 There has not been a day like it before or since. The LORD obeyed[13] a man, for the LORD fought for Israel! 10:15 Then Joshua and all Israel returned to the camp at Gilgal.

10:16 The five Amorite kings[14] ran away and hid in the cave at Makkedah. 10:17 Joshua was told, "The five kings have been found hiding in the cave at Makkedah." 10:18 Joshua said, "Roll large stones over the mouth of the cave and post guards in front of it.[15] 10:19 But don't you delay! Chase your enemies and catch them![16] Don't allow them to retreat to[17] their cities, for the LORD your God is handing them over to you."[18] 10:20 Joshua and the Israelites almost totally wiped them out, but some survivors did escape to the fortified cities.[19] 10:21 Then the whole army safely returned to Joshua at the camp in Makkedah.[20] No one[21] dared threaten the Israelites.[22] 10:22 Joshua said, "Open the cave's mouth and bring the five kings[23] out of the cave to me." 10:23 They did as ordered;[24] they brought the five kings[25] out of the cave to him – the kings of Jerusalem,[26] Hebron, Jarmuth, Lachish, and Eglon. 10:24 When they brought the kings out to Joshua, he[27] summoned all the men of Israel and said to the commanders of the troops who accompanied him, "Come here[28] and put your feet on the necks of these kings." So they came up[29] and put their feet on their necks. 10:25 Then Joshua said to them, "Don't be afraid and don't panic![30] Be strong and brave, for the LORD will do the same thing to all your enemies you fight. 10:26 Then Joshua executed them[31] and hung them on five trees. They were left hanging on the trees until evening. 10:27 At sunset Joshua ordered his men to take them down from the

1 tn Heb "I have given them into your hand." The verbal form is a perfect of certitude, emphasizing the certainty of the action.

2 tn Heb "and not a man [or "one"] of them will stand before you."

3 tn Heb "Joshua came upon them suddenly, all the night he went up from Gilgal."

4 tn Or "caused to panic."

5 tn Heb "he." The referent is probably Israel (mentioned at the end of the previous sentence in the verse; cf. NIV, NRSV), but it is also possible that the LORD should be understood as the referent (cf. NASB "and He slew them with a great slaughter at Gibeon"), or even Joshua (cf. NEB "and Joshua defeated them utterly in Gibeon").

6 tn Heb "struck them down with a great striking down."

7 tn Or "ascent."

8 tn Heb "on the descent of."

9 tn Or "heaven" (also in v. 13). The Hebrew term שָׁמַיִם (shamayim) may be translated "heaven(s)" or "sky" depending on the context.

10 tn Heb "Then Joshua spoke to the LORD in the day the LORD placed the Amorites before the sons of Israel and he said in the eyes of Israel." It is uncertain whether the phrase "before the sons of Israel" modifies the verb "placed" (as in the present translation, "delivered the Amorites over to the Israelites") or the verb "spoke" ("Joshua spoke to the LORD before the sons of Israel in the day the LORD delivered over the Amorites").

11 tn Heb "Is it not written down in the Scroll of the Upright One?" Many modern translations render this as "the Scroll [or Book] of Jashar," leaving the Hebrew word (which means "Upright One") untranslated.

sn The Scroll of the Upright One was apparently an ancient Israelite collection of songs and prayers (see also 2 Sam 1:18).

12 tn Heb "and did not hurry to set [for] about a full day."

13 tn Heb "listened to the voice of."

14 tn Heb "these five kings."

15 tn Heb "and appoint by it men to guard them."

16 tn Heb "But [as for] you, don't stand still, chase after your enemies and attack them from the rear."

17 tn Or "enter into."

18 tn Heb "has given them into your hand." The verbal form is a perfect of certitude, emphasizing the certainty of the action.

19 tn Heb "When Joshua and the sons of Israel finished defeating them with a very great defeat until they were destroyed (now the survivors escaped to the fortified cities)." In the Hebrew text the initial temporal clause ("when Joshua...finished") is subordinated to v. 21 ("the whole army returned").

20 tn Heb "all the people returned to the camp, to Joshua [at] Makkedah [in] peace."

21 tc Heb "No man." The lamed (ל) prefixed to אִישׁ ('ish, "man") is probably dittographic (note the immediately preceding יִשְׂרָאֵל [isra'el] which ends in lamed, ל); cf. the LXX.

22 tn Heb "no man sharpened [or perhaps, "pointed"] his tongue against the sons of Israel." Cf. NEB "not a man of the Israelites suffered so much as a scratch on his tongue," which understands "sharpened" as "scratched" (referring to a minor wound). Most modern translations understand the Hebrew expression "sharpened his tongue" figuratively for opposition or threats against the Israelites.

23 tn Heb "these five kings."

24 tn Heb "they did so."

25 tn Heb "these five kings."

29 tn Or "drew near."

30 tn Or perhaps "and don't get discouraged!"

Joshua Launches a Southern Campaign

10:28 That day Joshua captured Makkedah and put the sword to it and its king. He annihilated everyone who lived in it; he left no survivors. He did to its king what he had done to the king of Jericho.[3]

10:29 Joshua and all Israel marched from Makkedah to Libnah and fought against it.[4] 10:30 The LORD handed it and its king over to Israel, and Israel[5] put the sword to all who lived there; they[6] left no survivors. They[7] did to its king what they[8] had done to the king of Jericho.[9]

10:31 Joshua and all Israel marched from Libnah to Lachish. He deployed his troops[10] and fought against it. 10:32 The LORD handed Lachish over to Israel and they[11] captured it on the second day. They put the sword to all who lived there, just as they had done to Libnah. 10:33 Then King Horam of Gezer came up to help Lachish, but Joshua struck down him and his army[12] until no survivors remained.

10:34 Joshua and all Israel marched from Lachish to Eglon. They deployed troops[13] and fought against it. 10:35 That day they captured it and put the sword to all who lived there. That day they[14] annihilated it just as they[15] had done to Lachish.

10:36 Joshua and all Israel marched up from Eglon to Hebron and fought against it. 10:37 They captured it and put the sword to its king, all its surrounding cities, and all who lived in it; they[16] left no survivors. As they[17] had done at Eglon, they[18] annihilated it and all who lived there.

10:38 Joshua and all Israel turned to Debir and fought against it. 10:39 They[19] captured it, its king, and all its surrounding cities and put the sword to them. They annihilated everyone who lived there; they[20] left no survivors. They[21] did to Debir and its king what they[22] had done to Libnah and its king and to Hebron.[23]

10:40 Joshua defeated the whole land, including the hill country, the Negev, the lowlands,[24] the slopes, and all their kings. He left no survivors. He annihilated everything that breathed, just as the LORD God of Israel had commanded. 10:41 Joshua conquered the area between Kadesh Barnea and Gaza and the whole region of Goshen, all the way to Gibeon.[25] 10:42 Joshua captured in one campaign[26] all these kings and their lands, for the LORD God of Israel fought for Israel. 10:43 Then Joshua and all Israel returned to the camp at Gilgal.

Israel Defeats a Northern Coalition

11:1 When King Jabin of Hazor[27] heard the news, he organized a coalition, including[28] King Jobab of Madon, the king of Shimron, the king of Acshaph, 11:2 and the northern kings who ruled in[29] the hill country, the Arabah south of Kinnereth,[30] the lowlands, and the heights of Dor to the west. 11:3 Canaanites came[31] from the east and west; Amorites, Hittites, Perizzites, and Jebusites from the hill country; and Hivites from below Hermon in the area[32] of Mizpah. 11:4 These kings came out with their armies; they

11:12 Joshua captured all these royal cities and all their kings and annihilated them with the sword,[12] as Moses the LORD's servant had commanded. 11:13 But Israel did not burn any of the cities located on mounds,[13] except for Hazor;[14] it was the only one Joshua burned. 11:14 The Israelites plundered all the goods of these cities and the cattle, but they totally destroyed all the people[15] and allowed no one who breathed to live. 11:15 Moses the LORD's servant passed on the LORD's commands to Joshua, and Joshua did as he was told. He did not ignore any of the commands the LORD had given Moses.[16]

A Summary of Israel's Victories

11:16 Joshua conquered the whole land,[17] including the hill country, all the Negev, all the land of Goshen, the lowlands,[18] the Arabah, the hill country of Israel and its lowlands, 11:17 from Mount Halak on up to Seir, as far as Baal Gad in the Lebanon Valley below Mount Hermon. He captured all their kings and executed them.[19] 11:18 Joshua campaigned against[20] these kings for quite some time.[21] 11:19 No city made peace with the Israelites (except the Hivites living in Gibeon);[22] they had to conquer all of them,[23] 11:20 for the LORD determined to make them obstinate so they would attack Israel. He wanted Israel to annihilate them without mercy, as he had instructed Moses.[24]

11:21 At that time Joshua attacked and eliminated the Anakites from the hill country[25] – from Hebron, Debir, Anab, and all the hill country of Judah and Israel.[26] Joshua annihilated them and their cities. 11:22 No Anakites were left in Israelite territory, though some remained in Gaza, Gath, and Ashdod. 11:23 Joshua conquered[27] the whole land, just as the LORD had promised Moses,[28] and he assigned Israel their tribal portions.[29] Then the land was free of war.

12:1 Now these are the kings of the land whom the Israelites defeated and drove from their land[30] on the east side of the Jordan,[31] from the Arnon Valley to Mount Hermon, including all the eastern Arabah:

[27] tn Heb "took."

[28] tn Heb "according to all which the LORD said to Moses." The translation assumes this refers to the promise of the land (see 1:3). Another possibility is that it refers to the Lord's instructions, in which case the phrase could be translated, "just as the LORD had instructed Moses" (so NLT; cf. also NIV "had directed Moses").

[29] tn Heb "and Joshua gave it for an inheritance to Israel according to their allotted portions by their tribes."

The Lord Speaks to Joshua

13:1 When Joshua was very old,[17] the LORD told him, "You are very old, and a great deal of land remains to be conquered. 13:2 This is the land that remains: all the territory of the Philistines and all the Geshurites, 13:3 from the Shihor River[18] east of[19] Egypt northward to the territory of Ekron (it is regarded as Canaanite territory),[20] including the area belonging to the five Philistine lords who ruled in Gaza, Ashdod, Ashkelon, Gath, and Ekron, as well as Avvite land[21] 13:4 to the south;[22] all the Canaanite territory,[23] from Arah[24] in the region of Sidon[25] to Aphek, as far as Amorite territory; 13:5 the territory of Byblos[26] and all Lebanon to the east, from Baal Gad below Mount Hermon to Lebo Hamath.[27]

17 tn Heb "was old, coming into the days." This expression, referring to advancing in years, also occurs in the following clause.

18 tn Heb "the Shihor"; the word "River" is not in the Hebrew text, but has been supplied to clarify the meaning.

19 tn Heb "in front of."

21 tn Heb "the five lords of the Philistines, the Gazaite, the Ashdodite, the Ashkelonite, the Gathite, and the Ekronite, and the Avvites."

22 tn Or "from Teman." The phrase is especially problematic if taken with what follows, as the traditional verse division suggests. For further discussion see T. C. Butler, Joshua (WBC), 146.

23 tn Heb "all the land of the Canaanites."

24 tc The reading "Arah" assumes a slight emendation of the Hebrew vowel pointing. The MT reads, "and a cave," or "and Mearah" (if one understands the word as a proper noun).

25 tn Heb "which belongs to the Sidonians."

map For location see Map1-A1; JP3-F3; JP4-F3.

26 tn Heb "and the land of the Gebalites."

Tribal Lands East of the Jordan

13:8 The other half of Manasseh,[4] Reuben, and Gad received their allotted tribal lands beyond the Jordan,[5] just as Moses, the LORD's servant, had assigned them. 13:9 Their territory started[6] from Aroer (on the edge of the Arnon Valley), included the city in the middle of the valley, the whole plain of Medeba as far as Dibon, 13:10 and all the cities of King Sihon of the Amorites who ruled in Heshbon, and ended at the Ammonite border. 13:11 Their territory also included[7] Gilead, Geshurite and Maacathite territory, all Mount Hermon, and all Bashan to Salecah – 13:12 the whole kingdom of Og in Bashan, who ruled in Ashtaroth and Edrei. (He was one of the few remaining Rephaites.)[8] Moses defeated them and took their lands.[9] 13:13 But the Israelites did not conquer[10] the Geshurites and Maacathites; Geshur and Maacah live among Israel to this very day. 13:14 However, Moses[11] did not assign land as an inheritance[12] to the Levites; their inheritance[13] is the sacrificial offerings[14] made to the LORD God of Israel, as he instructed[15] them.

13:15 Moses assigned land to the tribe of Reuben[16] by its clans. 13:16 Their territory started at Aroer[17] (on the edge of the Arnon Valley) and included the city in the middle of the valley, the whole plain of Medeba, 13:17 Heshbon and all its surrounding cities on the plain, including Dibon, Bamoth Baal, Beth Baal Meon, 13:18 Jahaz, Kedemoth, Mephaath, 13:19 Kiriathaim, Sibmah, Zereth Shahar on the hill in the valley, 13:20 Beth Peor, the slopes of Pisgah, and Beth Jeshimoth. 13:21 It encompassed[18] all the cities of the plain and the whole realm of King Sihon of the Amorites who ruled in Heshbon. Moses defeated him and the Midianite leaders Evi, Rekem, Zur, Hur, and Reba (they were subjects of Sihon and lived in his territory).[19] 13:22 The Israelites killed Balaam son of Beor, the omen reader,[20] along with the others.[21] 13:23 The border of the tribe of Reuben was the Jordan. The land allotted to the tribe of Reuben by its clans included these cities and their towns.[22]

13:24 Moses assigned land to the tribe of Gad[23] by its clans. 13:25 Their territory included Jazer, all the cities of Gilead, and half of Ammonite territory[24] as far as Aroer near[25] Rabbah. 13:26 Their territory ran[26] from Heshbon to Ramath Mizpah and Betonim, and from Mahanaim to the territory of Debir. 13:27 It included the valley of Beth Haram,[27] Beth Nimrah, Succoth, and Zaphon, and the rest of the realm of King Sihon of Heshbon, the area east of the Jordan to the end of the Sea of Kinnereth.[28] 13:28 The land allotted to the tribe of Gad by its clans included these cities and their towns.[29]

13:29 Moses assigned land to the half-tribe of Manasseh[30] by its clans. 13:30 Their territory started at[31] Mahanaim and encompassed all Bashan, the whole realm of King Og of Bashan, including all sixty cities in Havvoth Jair[32] in Bashan. 13:31 Half of Gilead, Ashtaroth, and Edrei, cities in the kingdom of Og in Bashan, were assigned to the descendants of Makir son of 13:32 These are the land assignments made by Moses[1] on the plains of Moab east of the Jordan River opposite Jericho.[2] 13:33 However, Moses did not assign land as an inheritance[3] to the Levites; their inheritance[4] is the LORD God of Israel, as he instructed[5] them.

Judah's Tribal Lands

14:1 The following is a record of the territory assigned to the Israelites in the land of Canaan by Eleazar the priest, Joshua son of Nun, and the Israelite tribal leaders.[6] 14:2 The land assignments to the nine-and-a-half tribes were made by drawing lots, as the LORD had instructed Moses.[7] 14:3 Now Moses had assigned land[8] to the two-and-a-half tribes east of the Jordan, but he assigned no land[9] to the Levites.[10] 14:4 The descendants of Joseph were considered as two tribes, Manasseh and Ephraim. The Levites were allotted no territory, though they were assigned cities in which to live, along with the grazing areas for their cattle and possessions.[11] 14:5 The Israelites followed the LORD's instructions to Moses and divided up the land.[12]

14:6 The men of Judah approached Joshua in Gilgal, and Caleb son of Jephunneh the Kenizzite said to him, "You know what the LORD said about you and me to Moses, the man of God, at Kadesh Barnea.[13] 14:7 I was forty years old when Moses, the LORD's servant, sent me from Kadesh Barnea to spy on the land and I brought back to him an honest report.[14] 14:8 My countrymen[15] who accompanied[16] me frightened the people,[17] but I remained loyal to the LORD my God.[18] 14:9 That day Moses made this solemn promise:[19] 'Surely the land on which you walked[20] will belong to you and your descendants permanently,[21] for you remained loyal to the LORD your God.' 14:10 So now, look, the LORD has preserved my life, just as he promised, these past forty-five years since the LORD spoke these words to Moses, during which Israel traveled through the wilderness. Now look, I am today eighty-five years old. 14:11 Today I am still as strong as when Moses sent me out. I can fight and go about my daily activities with the same energy I had then.[22] 14:12 Now, assign me this hill country which the LORD promised me at that time! No doubt you heard at that time that the Anakites live there in large, fortified cities.[23] But, assuming the LORD is with me, I will conquer[24] them, as the LORD promised." 14:13 Joshua asked God to empower Caleb son of Jephunneh and assigned him Hebron.[25] 14:14 So Hebron remains the assigned land of Caleb son of Jephunneh the Kenizzite to this very day[26] because he remained loyal to the LORD God of Israel. 14:15 (Hebron used to be called Kiriath Arba. Arba was a famous Anakite.[27]) Then the land was free of war.

15:1 The land allotted to the tribe of Judah by its clans reached to the border of Edom, to the Wilderness of Zin in the Negev far to the south.[28] 15:2 Their southern border started at the southern tip of the Salt Sea,[29] 15:3 extended[30] south of the Scorpion Ascent,[31] crossed to Zin, went up from the south to Kadesh Barnea, crossed to Hezron, went up to Addar, and turned toward Karka. 15:4 It then crossed to Azmon, extended to the Stream of Egypt,[1] and ended at the sea. This was their[2] southern border.

15:5 The eastern border was the Salt Sea to the mouth[3] of the Jordan River.[4]

The northern border started north of the Salt Sea at the mouth of the Jordan,[5] 15:6 went up to Beth Hoglah, crossed north of Beth Arabah, and went up to the Stone of Bohan son of Reuben. 15:7 It then went up to Debir from the Valley of Achor, turning northward to Gilgal (which is opposite the Pass[6] of Adummim south of the valley), crossed to the waters of En Shemesh and extended to En Rogel. 15:8 It then went up the Valley of Ben Hinnom to the slope of the Jebusites on the south (that is, Jerusalem),[7] going up to the top of the hill opposite the Valley of Ben Hinnom to the west, which is at the end of the Valley of the Rephaites to the north. 15:9 It then went from the top of the hill to the spring of the waters of Nephtoah, extended to the cities of Mount Ephron, and went to Baalah (that is, Kiriath Jearim). 15:10 It then turned from Baalah westward to Mount Seir, crossed to the slope of Mount Jearim on the north (that is Kesalon), descended to Beth Shemesh, and crossed to Timnah. 15:11 It then extended to the slope of Ekron to the north, went toward Shikkeron, crossed to Mount Baalah, extended to Jabneel, and ended at the sea.

15:12 The western border was the Mediterranean Sea.[8] These were the borders of the tribe of Judah and its clans.[9]

15:13 Caleb son of Jephunneh was assigned Kiriath Arba (that is Hebron) within the tribe of Judah, according to the LORD's instructions to Joshua. (Arba was the father of Anak.)[10] 15:14 Caleb drove out[11] from there three Anakites – Sheshai, Ahiman, and Talmai, descendants of Anak. 15:15 From there he attacked the people of Debir.[12] (Debir used to be called Kiriath Sepher.) 15:16 Caleb said, "To the man who attacks and captures Kiriath Sepher I will give my daughter Achsah as a wife." 15:17 When Othniel son of Kenaz, Caleb's brother,[13] captured it, Caleb[14] gave Achsah his daughter to him as a wife.

15:18 One time Achsah[15] came and charmed her father[16] so that she could ask him for some land. When she got down from her donkey, Caleb said to her, "What would you like?" 15:19 She answered, "Please give me a special present.[17] Since you have given me land in the Negev, now give me springs of water. So he gave her both upper and lower springs.

15:20 This is the land assigned to the tribe of Judah by its clans:[18] 15:21 These cities were located at the southern extremity of Judah's tribal land near the border of Edom:[19] Kabzeel, Eder, Jagur, 15:22 Kinah, Dimonah, Adadah, 15:23 Kedesh, Hazor,[20] Ithnan, 15:24 Ziph, Telem, Bealoth, 15:25 Hazor Hadattah, Kerioth Hezron (that is, Hazor), 15:26 Amam, Shema, Moladah, 15:27 Hazar Gaddah, Heshbon, Beth Pelet, 15:28 Hazar Shual, Beer Sheba, Biziothiah, 15:29 Baalah, Iim, Ezem, 15:30 Eltolad, Kesil, Hormah, 15:31 Ziklag, Madmannah, Sansannah, 15:32 Lebaoth, Shilhim, Ain, and Rimmon – a total of twenty-nine cities and their towns.[21]

[12] tn Heb "he went up against the inhabitants of Debir."

[15] tn Heb "she"; the referent (Achsah) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[16] tn Heb "him." The referent of the pronoun could be Othniel, in which case the translation would be, "she incited him [Othniel] to ask her father for a field." This is problematic, however, for Achsah, not Othniel, makes the request in v. 19. The LXX has "he [Othniel] urged her to ask her father for a field." This appears to be an attempt to reconcile the apparent inconsistency and probably does not reflect the original text. If Caleb is understood as the referent of the pronoun, the problem disappears. For a fuller discussion of the issue, see P. G. Mosca, "Who Seduced Whom? A Note on Joshua 15:18//Judges 1:14," CBQ 46 (1984): 18-22. This incident is also recorded in Judg 1:14.

[17] tn Elsewhere this Hebrew word (בְּרָכָה, bᵉrakhah) is often translated "blessing," but here it refers to a gift (as in Gen 33:11; 1 Sam 25:27; 30:26; and 2 Kgs 5:15).

15:60 Kiriath Baal (that is, Kiriath Jearim) and Rabbah – a total of two cities and their towns.

15:61 These cities were[8] in the desert: Beth Arabah, Middin, Secacah, 15:62 Nibshan, the city of Salt, and En Gedi – a total of six cities and their towns.

15:63 The men of Judah were unable to conquer the Jebusites living in Jerusalem.[9] The Jebusites live with the people of Judah in Jerusalem to this very day.[10]

Joseph's Tribal Lands

16:1 The land allotted to Joseph's descendants extended from the Jordan at Jericho[11] to the waters of Jericho to the east, through the desert and on up from Jericho into the hill country of Bethel.[12] 16:2 The southern border[13] extended from Bethel to Luz,[14] and crossed to Arkite territory at Ataroth. 16:3 It then descended westward to Japhletite territory, as far as the territory of lower Beth Horon and Gezer, and ended at the sea.

16:4 Joseph's descendants, Manasseh and Ephraim, were assigned their land.[15] 16:5 The territory of the tribe of Ephraim by its clans included the following:[16] The border of their assigned land to the east was Ataroth Addar as far as upper Beth Horon. 16:6 It then extended on to the sea, with Micmethath on the north. It turned eastward to Taanath Shiloh and crossed it on the east to Janoah. 16:7 It then descended from Janoah to Ataroth and Naarah, touched Jericho,[17] and extended to the Jordan River.[18] 16:8 From Tappuah it went westward to the Valley of Kanah and ended at the sea. This is the land assigned to the tribe of Ephraim[19] by its clans. 16:9 Also included were the cities set apart for the tribe of Ephraim within Manasseh's territory, along with their towns.[20]

16:10 The Ephraimites[21] did not conquer the Canaanites living in Gezer. The Canaanites live

17:1 The tribe of Manasseh, Joseph's firstborn son, was also allotted land.[1] The descendants of Makir, Manasseh's firstborn and the father of Gilead, received land, for they were warriors.[2] They were assigned Gilead and Bashan.[3] 17:2 The rest of Manasseh's descendants were also assigned land[4] by their clans, including the descendants of Abiezer, Helek, Asriel, Shechem, Hepher, and Shemida. These are the male descendants of Manasseh son of Joseph by their clans.

17:3 Now Zelophehad son of Hepher, son of Gilead, son of Makir, son of Manasseh, had no sons, only daughters. These are the names of his daughters: Mahlah, Noah, Hoglah, Milcah, and Tirzah. 17:4 They went before Eleazar the priest, Joshua son of Nun, and the leaders and said, "The LORD told Moses to assign us land among our relatives."[5] So Joshua[6] assigned them land among their uncles, as the LORD had commanded.[7] 17:5 Manasseh was allotted ten shares of land,[8] in addition to the land of Gilead and Bashan east of the Jordan, 17:6 for the daughters of Manasseh were assigned land among his sons. The land of Gilead belonged to the rest of the descendants of Manasseh.

17:7 The border of Manasseh went[9] from Asher to Micmethath which is near[10] Shechem. It then went south toward those who live in Tappuah. 17:8 (The land of Tappuah belonged to Manasseh, but Tappuah, located on the border of Manasseh, belonged to the tribe of Ephraim.) 17:9 The border then descended southward to the Valley of Kanah. Ephraim was assigned cities there among the cities of Manasseh,[11] but the border of Manasseh was north of the valley and ended at the sea. 17:10 Ephraim's territory was to the south, and Manasseh's to the north. The sea was Manasseh's[12] western border and their territory[13] touched Asher on the north and Issachar on the east. 17:11 Within Issachar's and Asher's territory Manasseh was assigned Beth Shean, Ibleam, the residents of Dor, En Dor, the residents of Taanach, the residents of Megiddo,[14] the three of Napheth,[15] and the towns surrounding all these cities.[16] 17:12 But the men[17] of Manasseh were unable to conquer these cities; the Canaanites managed[18] to remain in those areas. 17:13 Whenever the Israelites were strong militarily, they forced the Canaanites to do hard labor, but they never totally conquered them.[19]

17:14 The descendants of Joseph said to Joshua, "Why have you assigned us only one tribal allotment? After all, we have many people, for until now the LORD has enabled us to increase in number."[20] 17:15 Joshua replied to them, "Since you have so many people,[21] go up into the forest and clear out a place to live in the land of the Perizzites and Rephaites, for the hill country of Ephraim is too small for you." 17:16 The descendants of Joseph said, "The whole hill country[22] is inadequate for us, and the Canaanites living down in the valley in Beth Shean and its surrounding towns and in the Valley of Jezreel have chariots with iron-rimmed wheels."[23] 17:17 Joshua said to the family[24] of Joseph – to both Ephraim and Manasseh: "You have many people and great military strength. You will not 20 tn Heb "Why have you given me as an inheritance one lot and one portion, though I am a great people until [the time] which, until now the LORD has blessed me?" The construction עַד אֲשֶׁר־עַד־כֹּה ('ad-'asher-'ad-koh, "until [the time] which, until now") is extremely awkward. An emendation of the first עַד ('ad) to עַל ('al) yields a more likely reading: "for until now" (see HALOT 2:787).

21 tn Heb "If you are a great people."

The Tribes Meet at Shiloh

18:1 The entire Israelite community assembled at Shiloh and there they set up the tent of meeting.[3] Though they had subdued the land,[4] 18:2 seven Israelite tribes had not been assigned their allotted land.[5] 18:3 So Joshua said to the Israelites: "How long do you intend to put off occupying[6] the land the LORD God of your ancestors[7] has given you? 18:4 Pick three men from each tribe. I will send them out to walk through the land and make a map of it for me.[8] 18:5 Divide it into seven regions.[9] Judah will stay[10] in its territory in the south, and the family[11] of Joseph in its territory in the north. 18:6 But as for you, map out the land into seven regions and bring it to me. I will draw lots for you here before the LORD our God. 18:7 But the Levites will not have an allotted portion among you, for their inheritance is to serve the LORD.[12] Gad, Reuben, and the half-tribe of Manasseh have already received their allotted land[13] east of the Jordan which Moses the LORD's servant assigned them."

18:8 When the men started out, Joshua told those going to map out the land, "Go, walk through the land, map it out, and return to me. Then I will draw lots for you before the LORD here in Shiloh." 18:9 The men journeyed[14] through the land and mapped it and its cities out into seven regions on a scroll. Then they came to Joshua at the camp in Shiloh. 18:10 Joshua drew lots for them in Shiloh before the LORD and divided the land among the Israelites according to their allotted portions.

Benjamin's Tribal Lands

18:11 The first lot belonged to the tribe of Benjamin[15] by its clans. Their allotted territory was between Judah and Joseph.[16] 18:12 Their northern border started at the Jordan, went up to the slope of Jericho[17] on the north, ascended westward to the hill country, and extended to the desert of Beth Aven. 18:13 It then crossed from there to Luz, to the slope of Luz to the south (that is, Bethel),[18] and descended to Ataroth Addar located on the hill that is south of lower Beth Horon. 18:14 It then turned on the west side southward from the hill near Beth Horon on the south and extended to Kiriath Baal (that is, Kiriath Jearim), a city belonging to the tribe[19] of Judah. This is the western border.[20] 18:15 The southern side started on the edge of Kiriath Jearim and extended westward to the spring of the waters of Nephtoah. 18:16 The border then descended to the edge of the hill country near the Valley of Ben Hinnom located in the Valley of the Rephaites to the north. It descended through the Valley of Hinnom to the slope of the Jebusites to the south and then down to En Rogel. 18:17 It went northward, extending to En Shemesh and Geliloth opposite the Pass[21] of Adummim, and descended to the Stone of Bohan son of Reuben. 18:18 It crossed to the slope in front of the Arabah to the north and descended into the Arabah. 18:19 It then crossed to the slope of Beth Hoglah to the north and ended at the northern tip of the Salt Sea[22] at the mouth of the Jordan River.[23] This was the southern border. 18:20 The Jordan River borders it on the east. These were the borders of the land assigned to the tribe of Benjamin by its clans.[24]

18:21 These cities belonged to the tribe[25] of Benjamin by its clans: Jericho,[26] Beth Hoglah, Emek Keziz, 18:22 Beth Arabah, Zemaraim, Bethel,[27] 18:23 Avvim, Parah, Ophrah, 18:24 Kephar Ammoni, Ophni, and Geba – a total of twelve cities and their towns.

Simeon's Tribal Lands

19:1 The second lot belonged to the tribe of Simeon by its clans.[5] 19:2 Their assigned land included[6] Beer Sheba,[7] Moladah, 19:3 Hazar Shual, Balah, Ezem, 19:4 Eltolad, Bethul, Hormah, 19:5 Ziklag, Beth Marcaboth, Hazar Susah, 19:6 Beth Lebaoth, and Sharuhen – a total of thirteen cities and their towns, 19:7 Ain, Rimmon, Ether, and Ashan – a total of four cities and their towns, 19:8 as well as all the towns around these cities as far as Baalath Beer (Ramah of the Negev). This was the land assigned to the tribe of Simeon by its clans.[8] 19:9 Simeon's assigned land was taken from Judah's allotted portion, for Judah's territory was too large for them; so Simeon was assigned land within Judah.[9]

Zebulun's Tribal Lands

19:10 The third lot belonged to the tribe of Zebulun[10] by its clans. The border of their territory[11] extended to Sarid. 19:11 Their border went up westward to Maralah and touched Dabbesheth and the valley near[12] Jokneam. 19:12 From Sarid it turned eastward[13] to the territory of Kisloth Tabor, extended to Daberath, and went up to Japhia. 19:13 From there it crossed eastward to Gath Hepher and Eth Kazin and extended to Rimmon, turning toward Neah. 19:14 It then turned on the north to Hannathon and ended at the Valley of Iphtah El. 19:15 Their territory included Kattah, Nahalal, Shimron, Idalah, and Bethlehem;[14] in all they had twelve cities and their towns.[15] 19:16 This was the land assigned to the tribe of Zebulun[16] by its clans, including these cities and their towns.

Issachar's Tribal Lands

19:17 The fourth lot belonged to the tribe of Issachar[17] by its clans. 19:18 Their assigned land[18] included Jezreel, Kesulloth, Shunem, 19:19 Haphraraim, Shion, Anaharath, 19:20 Rabbith, Kishion, Ebez, 19:21 Remeth, En Gannim, En Haddah and Beth Pazzez. 19:22 Their border touched Tabor, Shahazumah, and Beth Shemesh, and ended at the Jordan. They had sixteen cities and their towns. 19:23 This was the land assigned to the tribe of Issachar[19] by its clans, including the cities and their towns.

Asher's Tribal Lands

19:24 The fifth lot belonged to the tribe of Asher[20] by its clans. 19:25 Their territory included Helkath, Hali, Beten, Acshaph, 19:26 Alammelech, Amad, and Mishal. Their border touched Carmel to the west and Shihor Libnath. 19:27 It turned eastward toward Beth Dagon, touched Zebulun and the Valley of Iphtah El to the north, as well as the Valley of Emek and Neiel, and extended to Cabul on the north[21] 19:28 and on to Ebron,[22] Rehob, Hammon, and Kanah, as far as Greater Sidon.[23] 19:29 It then turned toward Ramah as far as the fortified city of Tyre,[24] turned to Hosah, and ended at the sea near Hebel, Achzib, 19:30 Umah, Aphek, and

[3] tn The structure of this list presents problems. In v. 28 no conjunction appears before "Haeleph" or "Kiriath" in the Hebrew text. This suggests they should be compounded with the preceding names, yielding "Zelah Haeleph" and "Gibeah Kiriath" respectively. This results in a list of only twelve cities, however, while the summary statement (v. 28) gives the number fourteen. One should note, however, that the city lists in chap. 15 do not consistently use the conjunction before the name of each city. See also Josh 19:7, where no conjunction appears before "Rimmon," but the summary assumes that Ain and Rimmon are distinct.

If Sheba (or Shema) is retained, the list numbers fourteen, one more than the number given in the concluding summary (v. 6).

Naphtali's Tribal Lands

19:32 The sixth lot belonged to the tribe of Naphtali[3] by its clans. 19:33 Their border started at Heleph and the oak of Zaanannim, went to Adami Nekeb, Jabneel and on to Lakkum,[4] and ended at the Jordan River.[5] 19:34 It turned westward to Aznoth Tabor, extended from there to Hukok, touched Zebulun on the south, Asher on the west, and the Jordan[6] on the east. 19:35 The fortified cities included Ziddim, Zer, Hammath, Rakkath, Kinnereth, 19:36 Adamah, Ramah, Hazor,[7] 19:37 Kedesh, Edrei, En Hazor, 19:38 Yiron,[8] Migdal El, Horem, Beth Anath, and Beth Shemesh. In all they had[9] nineteen cities and their towns. 19:39 This was the land assigned to the tribe of Naphtali[10] by its clans, including the cities and their towns.

Dan's Tribal Lands

19:40 The seventh lot belonged to the tribe of Dan[11] by its clans. 19:41 Their assigned land included Zorah, Eshtaol, Ir Shemesh, 19:42 Shaalabbin, Aijalon, Ithlah, 19:43 Elon, Timnah, Ekron, 19:44 Eltekeh, Gibbethon, Baalath, 19:45 Jehud, Bene Berak, Gath Rimmon,19:46 the waters of Jarkon, and Rakkon, including the territory in front of Joppa. 19:47 (The Danites failed to conquer their territory,[12] so they went up and fought with Leshem and captured it. They put the sword to it, took possession of it, and lived in it. They renamed it[13] Dan after their ancestor.[14]) 19:48 This was the land assigned to the tribe of Dan[15] by its clans, including these cities and their towns.

Joshua Receives Land

19:49 When they finished dividing the land into its regions, the Israelites gave Joshua son of Nun some land.[16] 19:50 As the LORD had instructed, they gave him the city he requested – Timnath Serah in the Ephraimite hill country. He built up the city and lived in it.

19:51 These are the land assignments which Eleazar the priest, Joshua son of Nun, and the Israelite tribal leaders[17] made by drawing lots in Shiloh before the LORD at the entrance of the tent of meeting.[18] So they finished dividing up the land.

Israel Designates Cities of Refuge

20:1 The LORD instructed Joshua: 20:2 "Have the Israelites select[19] the cities of refuge[20] that I told you about through Moses. 20:3 Anyone who accidentally kills someone can escape there;[21] these cities will be a place of asylum from the avenger of blood. 20:4 The one who committed manslaughter[22] should escape to one of these cities, stand at the entrance of the city gate, and present his case to the leaders of that city.[23] They should then bring him into the city, give him a place to stay, and let him live there.[24] 20:5 When the avenger of blood comes after him, they must not hand over to him the one who committed manslaughter, for he accidentally killed his fellow man without premeditation.[25] 20:6 He must remain[26] in that city until his case is decided by the assembly[27] and the high priest dies.[28] Then the one who committed manslaughter may return home to the city from which he escaped."[29]

Anyone who accidentally killed someone could escape there and not be executed by[5] the avenger of blood, at least until his case was reviewed by the assembly.[6]

Levitical Cities

21:1 The tribal leaders of the Levites went before Eleazar the priest and Joshua son of Nun and the Israelite tribal leaders 21:2 in Shiloh in the land of Canaan and said, "The LORD told Moses to assign us cities in which to live along with the grazing areas for our cattle." 21:3 So the Israelites assigned these cities and their grazing areas to the Levites from their own holdings, as the LORD had instructed.

21:4 The first lot belonged to[7] the Kohathite clans. The Levites who were descendants of Aaron the priest were allotted thirteen cities from the tribes of Judah, Simeon, and Benjamin. 21:5 The rest of Kohath's descendants were allotted ten cities from the clans of the tribe of Ephraim, and from the tribe of Dan and the half-tribe of Manasseh. 21:6 Gershon's descendants were allotted thirteen cities from the clans of the tribe of Issachar, and from the tribes of Asher and Naphtali and the half-tribe of Manasseh in Bashan. 21:7 Merari's descendants by their clans were allotted twelve cities from the tribes of Reuben, Gad, and Zebulun. 21:8 So the Israelites assigned to the Levites by lot these cities and their grazing areas, as the LORD had instructed Moses.

21:9 They assigned from the tribes of Judah and Simeon the cities listed below. 21:10 They were assigned to the Kohathite clans of the Levites who were descendants of Aaron,[8] for the first lot belonged to them. 21:11 They assigned them Kiriath Arba (Arba was the father of Anak), that is, Hebron, in the hill country of Judah, along with its surrounding grazing areas. 21:12 (Now the city's fields and surrounding towns they had assigned to Caleb son of Jephunneh as his property.) 21:13 So to the descendants of Aaron the priest they assigned Hebron (a city of refuge for one who committed manslaughter), Libnah, 21:14 Jattir, Eshtemoa, 21:15 Holon, Debir, 21:16 Ain, Juttah, and Beth Shemesh, along with the grazing areas of each – a total of nine cities taken from these two tribes. 21:17 From the tribe of Benjamin they assigned[9] Gibeon, Geba, 21:18 Anathoth, and Almon, along with the grazing areas of each – a total of four cities. 21:19 The priests descended from Aaron received thirteen cities and their grazing areas.

21:20 The rest of the Kohathite clans of the Levites were allotted cities from the tribe of Ephraim. 21:21 They assigned them Shechem (a city of refuge for one who committed manslaughter) in the hill country of Ephraim, Gezer, 21:22 Kibzaim, and Beth Horon, along with the grazing areas of each – a total of four cities. 21:23 From the tribe of Dan they assigned Eltekeh, Gibbethon, 21:24 Aijalon, and Gath Rimmon, along with the grazing areas of each – a total of four cities. 21:25 From the half-tribe of Manasseh they assigned Taanach and Gath Rimmon,[10] along with the grazing areas of each – a total of two cities. 21:26 The rest of the Kohathite clans received ten cities and their grazing areas.

21:27 They assigned to the Gershonite clans of the Levites the following cities:[11] from the half-tribe of Manasseh: Golan in Bashan (a city of refuge for one who committed manslaughter) and Beeshtarah, along with the grazing areas of each – a total of two cities; 21:28 from the tribe of Issachar: Kishon, Daberath, 21:29 Jarmuth, and En Gannim, along with the grazing areas of each – a total of four cities; 21:30 from the tribe of Asher: Mishal, Abdon, 21:31 Helkath, and Rehob, along with the grazing areas of each – a total of four cities; 21:32 from the tribe of Naphtali: Kedesh in Galilee (a city of refuge for one who committed manslaughter), Hammoth Dor, and Kartan, along with the grazing areas of each – a total of three cities. 21:33 The Gershonite clans received thirteen cities and their grazing areas.

21:34 They assigned to the Merarite clans (the remaining Levites) the following cities: from the tribe of Zebulun: Jokneam, Kartah, 21:35 Dimnah, and Nahalal, along with the graz-

21:41 The Levites received within the land owned by the Israelites[2] forty-eight cities in all and their grazing areas. 21:42 Each of these cities had grazing areas around it; they were alike in this regard.[3]

21:43 So the LORD gave Israel all the land he had solemnly promised to their ancestors,[4] and they conquered[5] it and lived in it. 21:44 The LORD made them secure,[6] in fulfillment of all he had solemnly promised their ancestors.[7] None of their enemies could resist them.[8] 21:45 Not one of the LORD's faithful promises to the family of Israel[9] was left unfulfilled; every one was realized.[10]

Joshua Sends Home the Eastern Tribes

22:1 Then Joshua summoned the Reubenites, Gadites, and the half-tribe of Manasseh 22:2 and told them: "You have carried out all the instructions of Moses the LORD's servant, and you have obeyed all I have told you.[11] 22:3 You have not abandoned your fellow Israelites[12] this entire time,[13] right up to this very day. You have completed the task given you by the LORD your God.[14] 22:4 Now the LORD your God has made your fellow Israelites secure,[15] just as he promised them. So now you may turn around and go to your homes[16] in your own land[17] which Moses the LORD's servant assigned to you east of the Jordan. 22:5 But carefully obey the commands and instructions Moses the LORD's servant gave you. Love[18] the LORD your God, follow all his instructions,[19] obey[20] his commands, be loyal to him,[21] and serve him with all your heart and being!"[22]

22:6 Joshua rewarded[23] them and sent them on their way; they returned to their homes.[24] 22:7 (Now to one half-tribe of Manasseh, Moses had assigned land in Bashan; and to the other half Joshua had assigned land on the west side of the Jordan with their fellow Israelites.) When Joshua sent them home,[25] he rewarded[26] them, 22:8 saying, "Take home[27] great wealth, a lot of cattle,[28] silver, gold, bronze, iron, and a lot of[29] clothing. Divide up the goods captured from your enemies with your brothers." 22:9 So the Reubenites, Gadites, and half-tribe of Manasseh left the Israelites in Shiloh in the land of Canaan and headed home to their own land in Gilead,[30] which they acquired by the LORD's command through Moses.

Civil War is Averted

22:10 The Reubenites, Gadites, and half-tribe of Manasseh came to Geliloth near the Jordan in the land of Canaan and built there, near the Jordan, an impressive altar.[31] 22:11 The Israelites received this report:[32] "Look, the Reubenites, Gadites, and half-tribe of Manasseh have built an altar at the entrance to[33] the land of Canaan, at Geliloth near the Jordan on the Israelite side." 22:12 When the Israelites heard this, the entire Israelite community assembled at Shiloh to launch an attack against them.[34]

22:13 The Israelites sent Phinehas, son of Eleazar, the priest, to the land of Gilead to the Reubenites, Gadites, and the half-tribe of Manasseh. 22:14 He was accompanied by ten leaders, one from each of the Israelite tribes, each one a family leader among the Israelite clans.[1] 22:15 They went to the land of Gilead to the Reubenites, Gadites, and the half-tribe of Manasseh, and said to them: 22:16 "The entire community of the LORD says, 'Why have you disobeyed the God of Israel by turning back today from following the LORD? You built an altar for yourselves and have rebelled today against the LORD.[2] 22:17 The sin we committed at Peor was bad enough. To this very day we have not purified ourselves; it even brought a plague on the community of the LORD.[3] 22:18 Now today you dare to turn back[4] from following the LORD! You are rebelling today against the LORD; tomorrow he may break out in anger against[5] the entire community of Israel. 22:19 But if your own land[6] is impure,[7] cross over to the LORD's own land,[8] where the LORD himself lives,[9] and settle down among us.[10] But don't rebel against the LORD or us[11] by building for yourselves an altar aside from the altar of the LORD our God. 22:20 When Achan son of Zerah disobeyed the command about the city's riches, the entire Israelite community was judged,[12] though only one man had sinned. 22:21 The Reubenites, Gadites, and the half-tribe of Manasseh answered the leaders[14] of the Israelite clans: 22:22 "El, God, the LORD![15] El, God, the LORD! [4] tn Heb "you are turning back."

[5] tn Or "he will be angry with."

[6] tn Heb "the land of your possession."

[7] sn The western tribes here imagine a possible motive for the action of the eastern tribes. T. C. Butler explains the significance of the land's "impurity": "East Jordan is impure because it is not Yahweh's possession. Rather it is simply 'your possession.' That means it is land where Yahweh does not live, land which his presence has not sanctified and purified" (Joshua [WBC], 247).

[8] tn Heb "the land of the possession of the LORD."

[9] tn Heb "where the dwelling place of the LORD resides."
sn The phrase where the LORD himself lives refers to the tabernacle.

[10] tn Heb "and take for yourselves in our midst."

[11] tc Heb "and us to you rebel." The reading of the MT, the accusative sign with suffix (וְאֹתָנוּ, v'otanu), is problematic with the verb "rebel" (מָרַד, marad). Many Hebrew MSS correctly read the negative particle אַל ('al) for the preposition אֶל ('el, "to").

[12] tn Heb "Is it not [true that] Achan son of Zerah was unfaithful with unfaithfulness concerning what was set apart [to the LORD] and against all the assembly of Israel there was anger?"

[13] tn The second half of the verse reads literally, "and he [was] one man, he did not die for his sin." There are at least two possible ways to explain this statement: (1) One might interpret the statement to mean that Achan was not the only person who died for his sin. In this case it could be translated, "and he was not the only one to die because of his sin." (2) Another option, the one reflected in the translation, is to take the words וְהוּא אִישׁ אֶחָד (v'hu' 'ish 'ekhad, "and he [was] one man") as a concessive clause and join it with what precedes. The remaining words (לֹא גָוַע בַּעֲוֹנוֹ, lo' gava' ba'avono) must then be taken as a rhetorical question ("Did he not die for his sin?"). Taking the last sentence as interrogative is consistent with the first part of the verse, a rhetorical question introduced with the interrogative particle. The present translation has converted these rhetorical questions into affirmative statements to bring out more clearly the points they are emphasizing. For further discussion, see T. C. Butler, Joshua (WBC), 240.

[14] tn Heb "answered and spoke to the heads of."

[15] sn Israel's God is here identified with three names: (1) אֵל ('el), "El" (or "God"); (2) אֱלֹהִים ('elohim), "Elohim" (or "God"), and (3) יְהוָה (y'hvah), "Yahweh" (or "the LORD"). The name אֵל ('el, "El") is often compounded with titles, for example, El Elyon, "God Most High."

[16] tn Heb "he knows."

[17] tn Heb "if in rebellion or if in unfaithfulness against the LORD."

[18] tn Heb "do not save us." The verb form is singular, being addressed to either collective Israel or the Lord himself. The LXX translates in the third person.

[19] tn Heb "by building." The prepositional phrase may be subordinated to what precedes, "if in unfaithfulness…by building."

[20] tn Heb "or if to offer up."

[21] tn Heb "or if to make."

[22] tn Or "peace offerings."

[23] tn Heb "the LORD, he will seek." Perhaps this is a self-imprecation in an oath, "may the LORD himself punish us."

[24] tn Heb "Surely, from worry concerning a matter we have done this, saying."

[25] tn Heb "What is there to you and to the LORD God of Israel?" The rhetorical question is sarcastic in tone and anticipates a response, "Absolutely none!"

[27] tn Heb "fearing."

[28] tn Heb "but it is a witness between us and you."

22:30 When Phinehas the priest and the community leaders and clan leaders who accompanied him heard the defense of the Reubenites, Gadites, and the Manassehites,[7] they were satisfied.[8] 22:31 Phinehas, son of Eleazar, the priest, said to the Reubenites, Gadites, and the Manassehites,[9] "Today we know that the LORD is among us, because you have not disobeyed the LORD in this.[10] Now[11] you have rescued the Israelites from the LORD's judgment."[12]

22:32 Phinehas, son of Eleazar, the priest, and the leaders left the Reubenites and Gadites in the land of Gilead and reported back to the Israelites in the land of Canaan.[13] 22:33 The Israelites were satisfied with their report and gave thanks to God.[14] They said nothing more about launching an attack to destroy the land in which the Reubenites and Gadites lived.[15] 22:34 The Reubenites and Gadites named the altar, "Surely it is a Reminder to us[16] that the LORD is God."

Joshua Challenges Israel to be Faithful

23:1 A long time[17] passed after the LORD made Israel secure from all their enemies,[18] and Joshua was very old.[19] 23:2 So Joshua summoned all Israel, including the elders, rulers, judges, and leaders, and told them: "I am very old. 23:3 You saw everything the LORD your God did to all these nations on your behalf, for the LORD your God fights for you.[20] 23:4 See, I have parceled out to your tribes these remaining nations,[21] from the Jordan to the Mediterranean Sea[22] in the west, including all the nations I defeated.[23] 23:5 The LORD your God will drive them out from before you and remove them,[24] so you can occupy[25] their land as the LORD your God promised[26] you. 23:6 Be very strong! Carefully obey[27] all that is written in the law scroll of Moses so you won't swerve from it to the right or the left, 23:7 or associate with these nations that remain near[28] you. You must not invoke or make solemn declarations by the names of their gods![29] You must not worship[30] or bow down to them! 23:8 But you must be loyal to[31] the LORD your God, as you have been[32] to this very day.

23:9 "The LORD drove out from before you great and mighty nations; no one has been able to resist you[33] to this very day. 23:10 One of you makes a thousand run away,[34] for the LORD your God fights for you[35] as he promised you he would.[36] 23:11 Watch yourselves carefully! Israel Renews its Commitment to the Lord

24:1 Joshua assembled all the Israelite tribes at Shechem. He summoned Israel's elders, rulers, judges, and leaders, and they appeared before God. 24:2 Joshua told all the people, "Here is what the LORD God of Israel says: 'In the distant past your ancestors[15] lived beyond the Euphrates River,[16] including Terah the father of Abraham and Nahor. They worshiped[17] other gods, 24:3 but I took your father Abraham from beyond the Euphrates[18] and brought him into[19] the entire land of Canaan. I made his descendants numerous; I gave him Isaac, 24:4 and to Isaac I gave Jacob and Esau. To Esau I assigned Mount Seir,[20] while Jacob and his sons went down to Egypt. 24:5 I sent Moses and Aaron, and I struck Egypt down when I intervened in their land.[21] Then I brought you out. 24:6 When I brought your fathers out of Egypt, you arrived at the sea. The Egyptians chased your fathers with chariots and horsemen to the Red Sea. 24:7 Your fathers[22] cried out for help to the LORD; he made the area between you and the Egyptians dark,[23] and then drowned them in the sea.[24] You witnessed with your very own eyes[25] what I did in Egypt. You lived in the wilderness for a long time.[26] 24:8 Then I brought you to the land of the Amorites who lived east of the Jordan. They fought with you, but I handed them over to you; you conquered[27] their land and I destroyed them from before you. 24:9 Balak son of Zippor, king of Moab, launched an attack[28] against Israel. He summoned[29] Balaam son of Beor to call down judgment[30] on you. 24:10 I refused to respond to Balaam; he kept[31] prophesying good things about[32] you, and I rescued you from his power.[33] 24:11 You crossed the Jordan and came to Jericho.[34] The leaders[35] of Jericho, as well as the Amorites, Perizzites, Canaanites, Hittites, Girgashites, Hivites, and Jebusites, fought with you, but I handed them over to you. 24:12 I sent terror[36] ahead of you to drive out before you the two[37] Amorite kings. I gave you the victory; it was not by your swords or bows.[38] 24:13 I gave

[8] tn Or "soul."

[9] tn Heb "one word from all these words which the LORD your God spoke to you has not fallen, the whole has come to pass for you, one word from it has not fallen."

[10] tn Heb "and it will be as every good word which the LORD your God spoke to you has come to pass."

[11] tn Heb "so the LORD will bring every injurious [or "evil"] word [or "thing"] upon you."

[12] tn Heb "when you violate the covenant of the LORD your God which he commanded you."

[13] tn Heb "and you walk and serve other gods and bow down to them."

[14] tn Or "perish."

[15] tn Heb "your fathers."

[16] tn Heb "the river," referring to the Euphrates. This has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[17] tn Or "served."

[18] tn Heb "the river," referring to the Euphrates. This has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[19] tn Or "through."

[20] tn Heb "I gave to Esau Mount Seir to possess it."

[21] tn Heb "by that which I did in its midst."

[22] tn Heb "they"; the referent (the fathers) has been specified in the translation for clarity (see the previous verse).

[23] tn Or "put darkness between you and the Egyptians."

[24] tn Heb "and he brought over them the sea and covered them."

[25] tn Heb "your eyes saw."

[26] tn Heb "many days."

[27] tn Or "took possession of."

[28] tn Heb "arose and fought."

[29] tn Heb "sent and called."

[30] tn Or "to curse."

[31] tn The infinitive absolute follows the finite verb in the Hebrew text and indicates continuation or repetition of the action. Balaam pronounced several oracles of blessing over Israel (see Num 23-24).

[32] tn Heb "blessing." Balaam's "blessings" were actually prophecies of how God would prosper Israel.

[33] tn Heb "hand."

[34] map For location see Map5-B2; Map6-E1; Map7-E1; Map8-E3; Map10-A2; Map11-A1.

[35] tn Or perhaps, "citizens."

[36] tn Traditionally, "the hornet" (so KJV, NKJV, NASB, NIV, NRSV) but the precise meaning of the Hebrew word is uncertain (cf. NEB "panic").

[37] tn The LXX has "twelve," apparently understanding this as a reference to Amorite kings west of the Jordan (see Josh 5:1, rather than the trans-Jordanian Amorite kings Sihon and Og (see Josh 2:10; 9:10).

[38] tn Heb "and it drove them out from before you, the two kings of the Amorites, not by your sword and not by your bow." The words "I gave you the victory" are supplied for clarification.

you a land in[1] which you had not worked hard; you took up residence in cities you did not build and you are eating the produce of[2] vineyards and olive groves you did not plant.'

24:14 Now[3] obey[4] the LORD and worship[5] him with integrity and loyalty. Put aside the gods your ancestors[6] worshiped[7] beyond the Euphrates[8] and in Egypt and worship[9] the LORD. 24:15 If you have no desire[10] to worship[11] the LORD, choose today whom you will worship,[12] whether it be the gods whom your ancestors[13] worshiped[14] beyond the Euphrates,[15] or the gods of the Amorites in whose land you are living. But I and my family[16] will worship[17] the LORD!"

24:16 The people responded, "Far be it from us to abandon the LORD so we can[18] worship[19] other gods! 24:17 For the LORD our God took us and our fathers out of slavery[20] in the land of Egypt[21] and performed these awesome miracles[22] before our very eyes. He continually protected us as we traveled and when we passed through nations.[23] 24:18 The LORD drove out from before us all the nations, including the Amorites who lived in the land. So we too will worship[24] the LORD, for he is our God!"

24:19 Joshua warned[25] the people, "You will not keep worshiping[26] the LORD, for[27] he is a holy God.[28] He is a jealous God who will not forgive[29] your rebellion or your sins. 24:20 If[30] you abandon the LORD and worship[31] foreign gods, he will turn against you;[32] he will bring disaster on you and destroy you,[33] though he once treated you well."[34]

24:21 The people said to Joshua, "No! We really will[35] worship[36] the LORD!" 24:22 Joshua said to the people, "Do you agree to be witnesses against yourselves that you have chosen to worship the LORD?"[37] They replied, "We are witnesses!"[38] 24:23 Joshua said,[39] "Now put aside the foreign gods that are among you and submit to[40] the LORD God of Israel."

24:24 The people said to Joshua, "We will worship[41] the LORD our God and obey him."[42]

24:25 That day Joshua drew up an agreement[43] for the people, and he established rules and regulations[44] for them in Shechem. 24:26 Joshua wrote these words in the Law Scroll of God. He then took a large stone and set it up there under the oak tree near the LORD's shrine. 24:27 Joshua said to all the people, "Look, this stone will be a witness against you, for it has heard everything the LORD said to us.[45] It will be a witness against you if[46] you deny your God." 24:28 When Joshua dismissed the people, they went to their allotted portions of land.[47]

1 tn Or perhaps, "for."

2 tn The words "the produce of" are supplied for clarification.

3 sn Joshua quotes the LORD's words in vv. 2b-13 (note that the LORD speaks in the first person in these verses); in vv. 14-15 Joshua himself exhorts the people (note the third person references to the LORD).

4 tn Heb "fear."

5 tn Or "and serve."

6 tn Heb "your fathers."

7 tn Or "served."

8 tn Heb "the river," referring to the Euphrates. This has been specified in the translation for clarity; see v. 3.

9 tn Or "and serve."

10 tn Heb "if it is bad in your eyes."

11 tn Or "to serve."

12 tn Or "will serve."

13 tn Heb "your fathers."

14 tn Or "served."

15 tn Heb "the river," referring to the Euphrates. This has been specified in the translation for clarity; see v. 3.

16 tn Heb "house."

17 tn Or "will serve."

18 tn Heb "to."

19 tn Or "can serve."

20 tn Heb "of the house of slavery."

21 tn Heb "for the LORD our God, he is the one who brought us and our fathers from the land of Egypt, from the house of slaves."

22 tn Or "great signs."

23 tn Heb "and he guarded us in all the way in which we walked and among all the peoples through whose midst we passed."

24 tn Or "will serve."

25 tn Heb "said to."

26 tn Heb "you are not able to serve."

27 sn For an excellent discussion of Joshua's logical argument here, see T. C. Butler, Joshua (WBC), 274-75.

28 tn In the Hebrew text both the divine name (אֱלֹהִים, 'elohim) and the adjective (קְדֹשִׁים, q^{e}doshim, "holy") are plural. Normally the divine name, when referring to the one true God, takes singular modifiers, but this is a rare exception where the adjective agrees grammatically with the honorific plural noun. See GKC §124.i and IBHS 122.

29 tn Heb "lift up" or "take away."

sn This assertion obviously needs qualification, for the OT elsewhere affirms that God does forgive. Joshua is referring to the persistent national rebellion against the Mosaic covenant that eventually cause God to decree unconditionally the nation's exile.

30 tn Or "when."

31 tn Or "and serve."

32 tn The words "against you" are added for clarification.

33 tn Heb "bring you to an end."

34 tn Heb "after he did good for you."

35 tn The translation assumes that כִּי (ki) is emphatic. Another option is to take it as explanatory, "No, for we will...."

36 tn Or "will serve."

37 tn Heb "You are witnesses against yourselves that you have chosen for yourselves the LORD to serve him."

38 sn Like witnesses in a court of law, Israel's solemn vow to worship the Lord will testify against them in the divine court if the nation ever violates its commitment.

39 tn The words "Joshua said" are supplied for clarification.

40 tn Heb "bend your heart toward." The term לֵבָב (levav, "heart") probably here refers to the people's volition or will.

41 tn Or "will serve."

42 tn Heb "and listen to his voice."

43 tn Heb "cut a covenant."

44 tn Heb "a statute and a judgment."

45 tn Heb "all the words of the LORD which he spoke with us."

46 tn Or "lest," "so that you might not."

47 tn Heb "And Joshua sent the people away, each to his inheritance."

An Era Ends

24:29 After all this[1] Joshua son of Nun, the LORD's servant, died at the age of one hundred ten. 24:30 They buried him in his allotted territory[2] in Timnath Serah in the hill country of Ephraim, north of Mount Gaash. 24:31 Israel worshiped[3] the LORD throughout Joshua's lifetime and as long as the elderly men who outlived him remained alive.[4] These men had experienced firsthand everything the LORD had done for Israel.[5]

24:32 The bones of Joseph, which the Israelites had brought up from Egypt, were buried at Shechem in the part of the field that Jacob bought from the sons of Hamor, the father of Shechem, for one hundred pieces of money.[6] So it became the inheritance of the tribe of Joseph.[7]

24:33 Eleazar son of Aaron died, and they buried him in Gibeah in the hill country of Ephraim, where his son Phinehas had been assigned land.[8]

[1] tn Heb "after these things."

[2] tn Heb "in the territory of his inheritance."

[3] tn Or "served."

[4] tn Heb "all the days of Joshua and all the days of the elders who outlived him."

[5] tn Heb "who knew all the work of the LORD which he had done for Israel."

[6] tn Heb "one hundred qesitahs." The Hebrew word קְשִׂיטָה (qesitah) is generally understood to refer to a unit of money, but the value and/or weight is unknown. The word occurs only here and in Gen 33:19 and Job 42:11.

[7] tn Heb "and they became for the sons of Joseph an inheritance." One might think "bones" is the subject of the verb "they became," but the verb is masculine, while "bones" is feminine. The translation follows the emendation suggested in the BHS note, which appeals to the Syriac and Vulgate for support. The emended reading understands "the part (of the field)" as the subject of the verb "became." The emended verb is feminine singular; this agrees with "the part" (of the field), which is feminine in Hebrew.

[8] tn Heb "in Gibeah of Phinehas, his son, which had been given to him in the hill country of Ephraim."

Judges

Judah Takes the Lead

1:1 After Joshua died, the Israelites asked[1] the LORD, "Who should lead the invasion against the Canaanites and launch the attack?"[2] 1:2 The LORD said, "The men of Judah should take the lead.[3] Be sure of this! I am handing the land over to them."[4] 1:3 The men of Judah said to their relatives, the men of Simeon,[5] "Invade our allotted land with us and help us attack the Canaanites.[6] Then we[7] will go with you into your allotted land." So the men of Simeon went with them.

1:4 The men of Judah attacked,[8] and the LORD handed the Canaanites and Perizzites over to them. They killed ten thousand men at Bezek. 1:5 They met[9] Adoni-Bezek at Bezek and fought him. They defeated the Canaanites and Perizzites. 1:6 When Adoni-Bezek ran away, they chased him and captured him. Then they cut off his thumbs and big toes. 1:7 Adoni-Bezek said, "Seventy kings, with thumbs and big toes cut off, used to lick up[10] food scraps[11] under my table. God has repaid me for what I did to them."[12] They brought him to Jerusalem,[13] where he died. 1:8 The men of Judah attacked Jerusalem and captured it. They put the sword to it and set the city on fire.

1:9 Later the men of Judah went down to attack the Canaanites living in the hill country, the Negev, and the lowlands.[14] 1:10 The men of Judah attacked the Canaanites living in Hebron. (Hebron used to be called Kiriath Arba.) They killed Sheshai, Ahiman, and Talmai. 1:11 From there they attacked the people of Debir.[15] (Debir used to be called Kiriath Sepher.) 1:12 Caleb said, "To the man who attacks and captures Kiriath Sepher I will give my daughter Achsah as a wife." 1:13 When Othniel son of Kenaz, Caleb's younger brother,[16] captured it, Caleb[17] gave him his daughter Achsah as a wife.

1:14 One time Achsah[18] came and charmed her father[19] so she could ask him for some land. When she got down from her donkey, Caleb said to her, "What would you like?" 1:15 She answered, "Please give me a special present.[20] Since you have given me land in the Negev, now give me springs of water." So Caleb gave her both the upper and lower springs.[21]

1:16 Now the descendants of the Kenite, Moses' father-in-law, went up with the people of Judah from the City of Date Palm Trees to Arad

---

[1] tn The Hebrew verb translated "asked" (שָׁאַל, sha'al) refers here to consulting the LORD through a prophetic oracle; cf. NAB "consulted."

[2] tn Heb "Who should first go up for us against the Canaanites to attack them?"

[3] tn Heb "Judah should go up."

[4] tn The Hebrew exclamation הִנֵּה (hinneh, traditionally, "Behold"), translated "Be sure of this," draws attention to the following statement. The verb form in the following statement (a Hebrew perfect, indicating completed action from the standpoint of the speaker) emphasizes the certainty of the event. Though it had not yet taken place, the LORD speaks of it as a "done deal."

[5] tn Heb "Judah said to Simeon, his brother."

[6] tn Heb "Come up with me into our allotted land and let us attack the Canaanites."

[7] tn Heb "I." The Hebrew pronoun is singular, agreeing with the collective singular "Judah" earlier in the verse. English style requires a plural pronoun here, however.

[8] tn Heb "Judah went up."

[9] tn Or "found."

[10] tn Elsewhere this verb usually carries the sense of "to gather; to pick up; to glean," but "lick up" seems best here in light of the peculiar circumstances described by Adoni-Bezek.

[11] tn The words "food scraps" are not in the Hebrew text, but are implied.

[12] tn Heb "Just as I did, so God has repaid me." Note that the phrase "to them" has been supplied in the translation to clarify what is meant.

[13] map For location see Map5-B1; Map6-F3; Map7-E2; Map8-F2; Map10-B3; JP1-F4; JP2-F4; JP3-F4; JP4-F4.

[14] tn Or "foothills"; Heb "the Shephelah."

[15] tn Heb "they went from there against the inhabitants of Debir." The LXX reads the verb as "they went up," which suggests that the Hebrew text translated by the LXX read וַיַּעַל (vayya'al) rather than the MT's וַיֵּלֶךְ (vayyelekh). It is possible that this is the text to be preferred in v. 11. Cf. Josh 15:15.

[16] tn "Caleb's younger brother" may refer to Othniel or to Kenaz (in which case Othniel was Caleb's nephew; so CEV).

[17] tn Heb "he"; the referent (Caleb) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[18] tn Heb "she"; the referent (Achsah) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[19] tn Heb "him." The pronoun could refer to Othniel, in which case one would translate, "she incited him [Othniel] to ask her father for a field." This is problematic, however, for Achsah, not Othniel, makes the request in v. 15. The LXX has "he [Othniel] urged her to ask her father for a field." This appears to be an attempt to reconcile the apparent inconsistency and probably does not reflect the original text. If Caleb is understood as the referent of the pronoun, the problem disappears. For a fuller discussion of the issue, see P. G. Mosca, "Who Seduced Whom? A Note on Joshua 15:18 // Judges 1:14," CBQ 46 (1984): 18-22. The translation takes Caleb to be the referent, specified as "her father."

[20] tn Elsewhere the Hebrew word בְּרָכָה (verakhah) is often translated "blessing," but here it refers to a gift (as in Gen 33:11; 1 Sam 25:27; 30:26; and 2 Kgs 5:15).

[21] tn Some translations regard the expressions "springs of water" (גֻּלֹת מָיִם, gullot mayim) and "springs" (גֻּלֹת) as place names here (cf. NRSV).

in the desert of Judah,[1] located in the Negev.[2] They went and lived with the people of Judah.[3]

1:17 The men of Judah went with their brothers the men of Simeon[4] and defeated the Canaanites living in Zephath. They wiped out Zephath.[5] So people now call the city Hormah.[6] 1:18 The men of Judah captured Gaza, Ashkelon, Ekron, and the territory surrounding each of these cities.[7]

1:19 The LORD was with the men of Judah. They conquered[8] the hill country, but they could not[9] conquer the people living in the coastal plain, because they had chariots with iron-rimmed wheels.[10] 1:20 Caleb received[11] Hebron, just as Moses had promised. He drove out the three Anakites. 1:21 The men of Benjamin, however, did not conquer the Jebusites living in Jerusalem.[12] The Jebusites live with the people of Benjamin in Jerusalem to this very day.[13]

Partial Success

1:22 When the men[14] of Joseph attacked[15] Bethel,[16] the LORD was with them. 1:23 When the men of Joseph spied out Bethel (it used to be called Luz), 1:24 the spies spotted[17] a man leaving the city. They said to him, "If you show us a secret entrance into the city, we will reward you." 1:25 He showed them a secret entrance into the city, and they put the city to the sword. But they let the man and his extended family leave safely. 1:26 He[18] moved to Hittite country and built a city. He named it Luz, and it has kept that name to this very day.

1:27 The men of Manasseh did not conquer Beth Shean, Taanach, or their surrounding towns. Nor did they conquer the people living in Dor, Ibleam, Megiddo[19] or their surrounding towns.[20] The Canaanites managed[21] to remain in those areas.[22] 1:28 Whenever Israel was strong militarily, they forced the Canaanites to do hard labor, but they never totally conquered them.

1:29 The men of Ephraim did not conquer the Canaanites living in Gezer. The Canaanites lived among them in Gezer.

1:30 The men of Zebulun did not conquer the people living in Kitron and Nahalol.[23] The Canaanites lived among them and were forced to do hard labor.

1:31 The men of Asher did not conquer the people living in Acco or Sidon,[24] nor did they conquer Ahlab, Achzib, Helbah, Aphek, or Rehob.[25] 1:32 The people of Asher live among the Canaanites residing in the land because they did not conquer them.

1:33 The men of Naphtali did not conquer the people living in Beth Shemesh or Beth Anath.[26] They live among the Canaanites residing in the land. The Canaanites[27] living in Beth Shemesh and Beth Anath were forced to do hard labor for them.

1:34 The Amorites forced the people of Dan to live in the hill country. They did not allow them to live in[28] the coastal plain. 1:35 The Amorites managed[29] to remain in Har Heres,[30] Aijalon, and Shaalbim. Whenever the tribe of Joseph was strong militarily,[31] the Amorites were forced to do hard labor. 1:36 The border of

[1] tc Part of the Greek MS tradition lacks the words "of Judah."

[2] tn Heb "[to] the Desert of Judah in the Negev, Arad."

[3] tn The phrase "of Judah" is supplied here in the translation. Some ancient textual witnesses read, "They went and lived with the Amalekites." This reading, however, is probably influenced by 1 Sam 15:6 (see also Num 24:20-21).

[4] tn Heb "Judah went with Simeon, his brother."

[5] tn Heb "it"; the referent (the city of Zephath) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[6] sn The name Hormah (חָרְמָה, khormah) sounds like the Hebrew verb translated "wipe out" (חָרַם, kharam).

[7] tn Heb "The men of Judah captured Gaza and its surrounding territory, Ashkelon and its surrounding territory, and Ekron and its surrounding territory."

Amorite territory ran from the Scorpion Ascent[1] to Sela and on up.[2]

Confrontation and Repentance at Bokim

2:1 The LORD's angelic messenger[3] went up from Gilgal to Bokim. He said, "I brought you up from Egypt and led you into the land I had solemnly promised to give to your ancestors.[4] I said, 'I will never break my agreement[5] with you, 2:2 but you must not make an agreement with the people who live in this land. You should tear down the altars where they worship.'[6] But you have disobeyed me.[7] Why would you do such a thing?[8] 2:3 At that time I also warned you,[9] 'If you disobey,[10] I will not drive out the Canaanites[11] before you. They will ensnare you[12] and their gods will lure you away.'"[13]

2:4 When the LORD's messenger finished speaking these words to all the Israelites, the people wept loudly.[14] 2:5 They named that place Bokim[15] and offered sacrifices to the LORD there.

The End of an Era

2:6 When Joshua dismissed[16] the people, the Israelites went to their allotted portions of territory,[17] intending to take possession of the land. 2:7 The people worshiped[18] the LORD throughout Joshua's lifetime and as long as the elderly men[19] who outlived him remained alive. These men had witnessed[20] all the great things the LORD had done for Israel.[21] 2:8 Joshua son of Nun, the LORD's servant, died at the age of one hundred ten. 2:9 The people[22] buried him in his allotted land[23] in Timnath Heres in the hill country of Ephraim, north of Mount Gaash. 2:10 That entire generation passed away;[24] a new generation grew up[25] that had not personally experienced the LORD's presence or seen what he had done for Israel.[26]

A Monotonous Cycle

2:11 The Israelites did evil before[27] the LORD by worshiping[28] the Baals. 2:12 They abandoned the LORD God of their ancestors[29] who brought them out of the land of Egypt. They followed other gods – the gods of the nations who lived around them. They worshiped[30] them and made the LORD angry. 2:13 They abandoned the LORD and worshiped Baal and the Ashtoreths.[31]

2:14 The LORD was furious with Israel[32] and handed them over to robbers who plundered them.[33] He turned them over to[34] their enemies who lived around them. They could not withstand their enemies' attacks.[35] 2:15 Whenever they went out to fight,[36] the LORD did them harm,[37] just as he had warned and solemnly vowed he would do.[38] They suffered greatly.[39]

1 tn Or "the Ascent of Scorpions" (עַקְרַבִּים ['aqrabbim] means "scorpions" in Hebrew).

7 tn Heb "you have not listened to my voice."

8 tn Heb "What is this you have done?"

9 tn Heb "And I also said." The use of the perfect tense here suggests that the messenger is recalling an earlier statement (see Josh 23:12-13). However, some translate, "And I also say," understanding the following words as an announcement of judgment upon those gathered at Bokim.

10 tn The words "If you disobey" are supplied in the translation for clarity. See Josh 23:12-13.

11 tn Heb "them"; the referent (the Canaanites) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

12 tn The meaning of the Hebrew word צִדִּים (tsiddim) is uncertain in this context. It may be related to an Akkadian cognate meaning "snare." If so, a more literal translation would be "they will become snares to you." Normally the term in question means "sides," but this makes no sense here. On the basis of Num 33:55 some suggest the word for "thorns" has been accidentally omitted. If this word is added, the text would read, "they will become [thorns] in your sides" (cf. NASB, NIV, NLT).

13 tn Heb "their gods will become a snare to you."

14 tn Heb "lifted their voices and wept."

15 sn Bokim means "weeping ones" and is derived from the Hebrew verb בָּכָא (bakha', "to weep").

16 tn Or "sent away."

17 tn Heb "the Israelites went each to his inheritance."

18 tn Or "served"; or "followed."

19 tn Or perhaps "elders," which could be interpreted to mean "leaders."

20 tn Heb "all the days of Joshua and all the days of the old men who outlived him, who had seen."

21 tn Heb "the great work of the LORD which he had done for Israel."

22 tn Heb "they"; the referent (the people) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

23 tn Heb "in the territory of his inheritance."

24 tn Heb "All that generation were gathered to their fathers."

25 tn Heb "arose after them."

26 tn Heb "that did not know the LORD or the work which he had done for Israel." The expressions "personally experienced" and "seen" are interpretive.

27 tn Heb "in the eyes of."

28 tn Or "serving"; or "following."

29 tn Or "fathers."

30 tn Or "bowed before" (the same expression occurs in the following verse).

31 sn The Ashtoreths were local manifestations of the goddess Astarte.

32 tn Or "The LORD's anger burned [or "raged"] against Israel."

33 tn Heb "robbers who robbed them." (The verb שָׁסָה [shasah] appears twice in the verse.)

sn The expression robbers who plundered them is a derogatory reference to the enemy nations, as the next line indicates.

34 tn Heb "sold them into the hands of."

35 tn The word "attacks" is supplied in the translation both for clarity and for stylistic reasons.

36 tn The expression "to fight" is interpretive.

37 tn Heb "the LORD's hand was against them for harm."

38 tn Heb "just as he had said and just as he had sworn to them."

39 tn Or "they experienced great distress."

2:16 The LORD raised up leaders[1] who delivered them from these robbers.[2] 2:17 But they did not obey[3] their leaders. Instead they prostituted themselves to other gods and worshiped[4] them. They quickly turned aside from the path[5] their ancestors[6] had walked. Their ancestors had obeyed the LORD's commands, but they did not.[7] 2:18 When the LORD raised up leaders for them, the LORD was with each leader and delivered the people[8] from their enemies while the leader remained alive. The LORD felt sorry for them[9] when they cried out in agony because of what their harsh oppressors did to them.[10] 2:19 When a leader died, the next generation[11] would again[12] act more wickedly than the previous one.[13] They would follow after other gods, worshiping them[14] and bowing down to them. They did not give up[15] their practices or their stubborn ways.

A Divine Decision

2:20 The LORD was furious with Israel.[16] He said, "This nation[17] has violated the terms of the agreement I made with their ancestors[18] by disobeying me.[19] 2:21 So I will no longer remove before them any of the nations that Joshua left unconquered when he died. 2:22 Joshua left those nations[20] to test[21] Israel. I wanted to see[22] whether or not the people[23] would carefully walk in the path[24] marked out by[25] the LORD, as their ancestors[26] were careful to do." 2:23 This is why[27] the LORD permitted these nations to remain and did not conquer them immediately;[28] he did not hand them over to Joshua.

3:1 These were the nations the LORD permitted to remain so he could use them to test Israel – he wanted to test all those who had not experienced battle against the Canaanites.[29] 3:2 He left those nations simply because he wanted to teach the subsequent generations of Israelites, who had not experienced the earlier battles, how to conduct holy war.[30] 3:3 These were the nations:[31] the five lords of the Philistines, all the Canaanites, the Sidonians, and the Hivites living in Mount Lebanon, from Mount Baal Hermon to Lebo Hamath.[32] 3:4 They were left to test Israel, so the LORD would know if his people would obey the

[1] tn Or more traditionally, "judges" (also in vv. 17, 18 [3x], 19). Since these figures carried out more than a judicial function, also serving as rulers and (in several instances) as military commanders, the translation uses the term "leaders."

[2] tn Heb "and they delivered them from the hand of the ones robbing them."

[3] tn Or "did not listen to."

[4] tn Or "bowed before."

[5] tn Or "way [of life]."

[6] tn Or "fathers."

[7] tn Heb "...walked, obeying the LORD's commands. They did not do this."

[8] tn Heb "them"; the referent (the people) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[9] tn The phrase "for them" is supplied in the translation for clarity.

[10] tn Heb "the ones oppressing them and afflicting them." The synonyms "oppressing" and "afflicting" are joined together in the translation as "harsh oppressors" to emphasize the cruel character of their enemies.

[11] tn Heb "they"; the referent (the next generation) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[12] tn The verb שׁוּב (shuv, "to return; to turn") is sometimes translated "turn back" here, but it is probably used in an adverbial sense, indicating that the main action ("act wickedly") is being repeated.

sn The statement the next generation would again act more wickedly than the previous one must refer to the successive sinful generations after Joshua, not Joshua's godly generation (cf. vv. 7, 17).

[14] tn Or "serving [them]"; or "following [them]."

[15] tn Or "drop."

[16] tn Or "The LORD's anger burned [or "raged"] against Israel."

[17] tn Heb "Because this nation."

[18] tn Heb "my covenant which I commanded their fathers."

[19] tn Heb "and has not listened to my voice." The expression "to not listen to [God's] voice" is idiomatic here for disobeying him.

[20] tn The words "Joshua left those nations" are interpretive. The Hebrew text of v. 22 simply begins with "to test." Some subordinate this phrase to "I will no longer remove" (v. 21). In this case the LORD announces that he has now decided to leave these nations as a test for Israel. Another possibility is to subordinate "to test" to "He said" (v. 20; see B. Lindars, Judges 1-5, 111). In this case the statement recorded in vv. 20b-21 is the test in that it forces Israel to respond either positively (through repentance) or negatively to the LORD's declaration. A third possibility (the one reflected in the present translation) is to subordinate "to test" to "left unconquered" (v. 21). In this case the LORD recalls that Joshua left these nations as a test. Israel has failed the test (v. 20), so the LORD announces that the punishment threatened earlier (Josh 23:12-13; see also Judg 2:3) will now be implemented. As B. G. Webb (Judges [JSOTSup], 115) observes, "The nations which were originally left as a test are now left as a punishment." This view best harmonizes v. 23, which explains that the LORD did not give all the nations to Joshua, with v. 22. (For a grammatical parallel, where the infinitive construct of נָסָה [nasah] is subordinated to the perfect of עָזַב ['azav], see 2 Chr 32:31.)

[21] tn The Hebrew text includes the phrase "by them," but this is somewhat redundant in English and has been omitted from the translation for stylistic reasons.

[22] tn The words "I [i.e., the LORD] wanted to see" are supplied in the translation for clarification.

[23] tn Heb "they"; the referent (the people) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[24] tn Or "way [of life]."

[25] tn The words "marked out by" are interpretive.

[26] tn Or "fathers."

[27] tn The words "this is why" are interpretive.

[28] tn Or "quickly."

[29] tn Heb "did not know the wars of Canaan."

[30] tn The Hebrew syntax of v. 2 is difficult. The Hebrew text reads literally, "only in order that the generations of the Israelites might know, to teach them war – only those who formerly did not know them."

sn The stated purpose for leaving the nations (to teach the subsequent generations...how to conduct holy war) seems to contradict 2:22 and 3:4, which indicate the nations were left to test Israel's loyalty to the LORD. However, the two stated purposes can be harmonized. The willingness of later generations to learn and engage in holy war would measure their allegiance to the LORD (see B. G. Webb, Judges [JSOTSup], 114-15).

[31] tn The words "These were the nations," though not present in the Hebrew text, are supplied in the translation for clarity.

[32] tn Or "the entrance to Hamath."

commands he gave their ancestors through Moses.[1]

3:5 The Israelites lived among the Canaanites, Hittites, Amorites, Perizzites, Hivites, and Jebusites. 3:6 They took the Canaanites' daughters as wives and gave their daughters to the Canaanites;[2] they worshiped[3] their gods as well.

Othniel: A Model Leader

3:7 The Israelites did evil in the LORD's sight.[4] They forgot the LORD their God and worshiped the Baals and the Asherahs.[5] 3:8 The LORD was furious with Israel[6] and turned them over to[7] King Cushan-Rishathaim[8] of Aram-Naharaim. They were Cushan-Rishathaim's subjects[9] for eight years. 3:9 When the Israelites cried out for help to the LORD, he[10] raised up a deliverer for the Israelites who rescued[11] them. His name was Othniel son of Kenaz, Caleb's younger brother.[12] 3:10 The LORD's spirit empowered him[13] and he led Israel. When he went to do battle, the LORD handed over to him King Cushan-Rishathaim of Aram and he overpowered him.[14] 3:11 The land had rest for forty years; then Othniel son of Kenaz died.

Deceit, Assassination, and Deliverance

3:12 The Israelites again did evil in the LORD's sight.[15] The LORD gave King Eglon of Moab control over Israel[16] because they had done evil in the LORD's sight. 3:13 Eglon formed alliances with[17] the Ammonites and Amalekites. He came and defeated Israel, and they seized the City of Date Palm Trees. 3:14 The Israelites were subject to[18] King Eglon of Moab for eighteen years.

3:15 When the Israelites cried out for help to the LORD, he[19] raised up a deliverer for them. His name was Ehud son of Gera the Benjaminite, a left-handed man.[20] The Israelites sent him to King Eglon of Moab with their tribute payment.[21] 3:16 Ehud made himself a sword – it had two edges and was eighteen inches long.[22] He strapped it under his coat on his right thigh. 3:17 He brought the tribute payment to King Eglon of Moab. (Now Eglon was a very fat man.)

3:18 After Ehud brought the tribute payment, he dismissed the people who had carried it.[23] 3:19 But he went back[24] once he reached[25] the carved images[26] at Gilgal. He said to Eglon,[27] "I have a secret message for you, O king." Eglon[28] said, "Be quiet!"[29] All his attendants left. 3:20 When Ehud approached him, he was sitting in his well-ventilated[30] upper room all by himself. Ehud said, "I have a message from God[31] for you." When Eglon rose up from his seat,[32] 3:21 Ehud reached with his left hand, pulled the sword from his right thigh, and drove it into Eglon's[33] belly. 3:22 The handle went in after the blade, and the fat closed around the blade, for Ehud[34] did not pull the sword out of his

[2] tn Heb "to their sons."

[3] tn Or "served"; or "followed" (this term occurs in the following verse as well).

[4] tn Heb "in the eyes of the LORD."

[5] sn The Asherahs were local manifestations of the Canaanite goddess Asherah.

[6] tn Or "The LORD's anger burned (or raged) against Israel."

[7] tn Heb "sold them into the hands of."

[8] tn Or "Cushan the Doubly Wicked."

[9] tn Or "they served Cushan-Rishathaim."

[10] tn Heb "the LORD."

[11] tn Or "delivered."

[12] tn "Caleb's younger brother" may refer to Othniel or to Kenaz (in which case Othniel is Caleb's nephew).

[13] tn Heb "was on him."

[14] tn Heb "his hand was strong against Cushan-Rishathaim."

[15] tn Heb "in the eyes of the LORD" (also later in this verse).

[16] tn Heb "strengthened Eglon...against Israel."

[17] tn Heb "and he gathered to him."

[18] tn Or "the Israelites served Eglon."

[19] tn Heb "the LORD." This has been replaced by the pronoun ("he") in the translation for stylistic reasons.

[21] tn Heb "The Israelites sent by his hand an offering to Eglon, king of Moab."

[22] tn The Hebrew term גֹּמֶד (gomed) denotes a unit of linear measure, perhaps a cubit (the distance between the elbow and the tip of the middle finger – approximately 18 inches [45 cm]). Some suggest it is equivalent to the short cubit (the distance between the elbow and the knuckles of the clenched fist – approximately 13 inches [33 cm]) or to the span (the distance between the end of the thumb and the end of the little finger in a spread hand – approximately 9 inches [23 cm]). See BDB 167 s.v.; HALOT 196 s.v.; B. Lindars, Judges 1-5, 142.

[23] tn Heb "the tribute payment."

[24] tn Or "returned" (i.e., to Eglon's palace).

[25] tn The words "when he reached" are supplied in the translation for clarification. The Hebrew text simply reads "from."

[26] tn Or "idols."

[27] tn The words "to Eglon" are supplied in the translation for clarification.

[28] tn Heb "he"; the referent (Eglon) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[29] tn Or "Hush!"

[30] tn Or "cool." This probably refers to a room with latticed windows which allowed the breeze to pass through. See B. Lindars, Judges 1-5, 144.

[31] tn Heb "word of [i.e., from] God."

[32] tn Or "throne."

[33] tn Heb "his"; the referent (Eglon) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[34] tn Heb "he"; the referent (Ehud) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

belly.[1] 3:23 As Ehud went out into the vestibule,[2] he closed the doors of the upper room behind him and locked them.

3:24 When Ehud had left, Eglon's[3] servants came and saw the locked doors of the upper room. They said, "He must be relieving himself[4] in the well-ventilated inner room."[5] 3:25 They waited so long they were embarrassed, but he still did not open the doors of the upper room. Finally they took the key and opened the doors.[6] Right before their eyes was their master, sprawled out dead on the floor![7] 3:26 Now Ehud had escaped while they were delaying. When he passed the carved images, he escaped to Seirah.

3:27 When he reached Seirah,[8] he blew a trumpet[9] in the Ephraimite hill country. The Israelites went down with him from the hill country, with Ehud in the lead.[10] 3:28 He said to them, "Follow me, for the LORD is about to defeat your enemies, the Moabites!"[11] They followed him, captured the fords of the Jordan River[12] opposite Moab,[13] and did not let anyone cross. 3:29 That day they killed about ten thousand Moabites[14] – all strong, capable warriors; not one escaped. 3:30 Israel humiliated Moab that day, and the land had rest for eighty years.

3:31 After Ehud[15] came[16] Shamgar son of Anath; he killed six hundred Philistines with an oxgoad and, like Ehud,[17] delivered Israel.

Deborah Summons Barak

4:1 The Israelites again did evil in the LORD's sight[18] after Ehud's death. 4:2 The LORD turned them over to[19] King Jabin of Canaan, who ruled in Hazor.[20] The general of his army was Sisera, who lived in Harosheth Haggoyim.[21] 4:3 The Israelites cried out for help to the LORD, because Sisera[22] had nine hundred chariots with iron-rimmed wheels,[23] and he cruelly[24] oppressed the Israelites for twenty years.

4:4 Now Deborah, a prophetess,[25] wife of Lappidoth, was[26] leading[27] Israel at that time. 4:5 She would sit[28] under the Date Palm Tree of Deborah between Ramah and Bethel[29] in the Ephraimite hill country. The Israelites would come up to her to have their disputes settled.[30]

4:6 She summoned[31] Barak son of Abinoam from Kedesh in Naphtali. She said to him, "Is it not true that the LORD God of Israel is commanding you? Go, march to Mount Tabor! Take with you ten thousand men from Naphtali and Zebulun! 4:7 I will bring Sisera, the general of Jabin's army, to you at the Kishon River, along with his chariots and huge army.[32] I will hand him over to you." 4:8 Barak said to her, "If you go with me, I

[1] tn The Hebrew text has "and he went out to the [?]." The meaning of the Hebrew word פַּרְשְׁדֹנָה (parshᵉdonah) which occurs only here in the OT, is uncertain. The noun has the article prefixed and directive suffix. The word may be a technical architectural term, indicating the area into which Ehud moved as he left the king and began his escape. In this case Ehud is the subject of the verb "went out." The present translation omits the clause, understanding it as an ancient variant of the first clause in v. 23. Some take the noun as "back," understand "sword" (from the preceding clause) as the subject, and translate "the sword came out his [i.e., Eglon's] back." But this rendering is unlikely since the Hebrew word for "sword" (חֶרֶב, kherev) is feminine and the verb form translated "came out" (וַיֵּצֵא, vayyetse') is masculine. (One expects agreement in gender when the subject is supplied from the preceding clause. See Ezek 33:4, 6.) See B. Lindars, Judges 1-5, 146-48, for discussion of the options.

[2] tn Again the precise meaning of the Hebrew word, used only here in the OT, is uncertain. Since it is preceded by the verb "went out" and the next clause refers to Ehud closing doors, the noun is probably an architectural term referring to the room (perhaps a vestibule; see HALOT 604 s.v. מְסִדְרוֹן) immediately outside the king's upper chamber. As v. 24 indicates, this vestibule separated the upper room from an outer room where the king's servants were waiting.

[3] tn Heb "his."

[4] tn Heb "covering his feet" (i.e., with his outer garments while he relieves himself).

[5] tn The Hebrew expression translated "well-ventilated inner room" may refer to the upper room itself or to a bathroom attached to or within it.

[6] tn The words "the doors" are supplied.

[7] tn Heb "See, their master, fallen to the ground, dead."

[8] tn Heb "When he arrived."

[9] tn That is, "mustered an army."

[10] tn Heb "now he was before them."

[11] tn Heb "for the Lord has given your enemies, Moab, into your hand." The verb form (a Hebrew perfect, indicating completed action from the standpoint of the speaker) emphasizes the certainty of the event. Though it had not yet taken place, the LORD speaks of it as a "done deal."

[12] tn The word "River" is not in the Hebrew text, but is supplied for clarity.

[13] tn Or "against Moab," that is, so as to prevent the Moabites from crossing.

[14] tn Heb "They struck Moab that day – about ten thousand men."

will go. But if you do not go with me, I will not go." 4:9 She said, "I will indeed go with you. But you will not gain fame[1] on the expedition you are undertaking,[2] for the LORD will turn Sisera over to a woman."[3] Deborah got up and went with Barak to Kedesh. 4:10 Barak summoned men from Zebulun and Naphtali to Kedesh. Ten thousand men followed him;[4] Deborah went up with him as well. 4:11 Now Heber the Kenite had moved away[5] from the Kenites, the descendants of Hobab, Moses' father-in-law. He lived[6] near the great tree in Zaanannim near Kedesh.

4:12 When Sisera heard[7] that Barak son of Abinoam had gone up to Mount Tabor, 4:13 he[8] ordered[9] all his chariotry – nine hundred chariots with iron-rimmed wheels – and all the troops he had with him to go from Harosheth-Haggoyim to the River Kishon. 4:14 Deborah said to Barak, "Spring into action,[10] for this is the day the LORD is handing Sisera over to you! Has the LORD not taken the lead?"[11][12] Barak quickly went down from Mount Tabor with ten thousand men following him. 4:15 The LORD routed[13] Sisera, all his chariotry, and all his army with the edge of the sword.[14] Sisera jumped out of[15] his chariot and ran away on foot. 4:16 Now Barak chased the chariots and the army all the way to Harosheth Haggoyim. Sisera's whole army died[16] by the edge of the sword; not even one survived![17]

4:17 Now Sisera ran away on foot to the tent of Jael, wife of Heber the Kenite, for King Jabin of Hazor[18] and the family of Heber the Kenite had made a peace treaty.[19] 4:18 Jael came out to welcome Sisera. She said to him, "Stop and rest,[20] my lord. Stop and rest with me. Don't be afraid." So Sisera[21] stopped to rest in her tent, and she put a blanket over him. 4:19 He said to her, "Give me a little water to drink, because I'm thirsty." She opened a goatskin container of milk and gave him some milk to drink. Then she covered him up again. 4:20 He said to her, "Stand watch at the entrance to the tent. If anyone comes along and asks you, 'Is there a man here?' say 'No.'" 4:21 Then Jael wife of Heber took a tent peg in one hand and a hammer in the other.[22] She crept up on him, drove the tent peg through his temple into the ground[23] while he was asleep from exhaustion,[24] and he died. 4:22 Now Barak was chasing Sisera. Jael went out to welcome him. She said to him, "Come here and I will show you the man you are searching for." He went with her into the tent,[25] and there he saw Sisera sprawled out dead[26] with the tent peg in his temple.

4:23 That day God humiliated King Jabin of Canaan before the Israelites. 4:24 Israel's power continued to overwhelm[27] King Jabin of Canaan until they did away with[28] him.[29]

Celebrating the Victory in Song

5:1 On that day Deborah and Barak son of Abinoam sang this victory song:[30]

5:2 "When the leaders took the lead[31] in Israel,
When the people answered the call to war –
Praise the LORD!
5:3 Hear, O kings!
Pay attention, O rulers!

4 tn Heb "went up at his feet."

5 tn Or "separated."

6 tn Heb "pitched his tent."

22 tn Heb "took a tent peg and put a hammer in her hand."

23 tn Heb "and it went into the ground."

24 tn Heb "and exhausted." Another option is to understand this as a reference to the result of the fatal blow. In this case, the phrase could be translated, "and he breathed his last."

25 tn Heb "he went to her."

26 tn Heb "fallen, dead."

27 tn Heb "The hand of the Israelites became more and more severe against."

28 tn Heb "cut off."

29 tn Heb "Jabin king of Canaan." The proper name and title have been replaced by the pronoun ("he") in the translation for stylistic reasons.

30 tn The words "this victory song" are supplied in the translation for clarification.

31 tn The meaning of the Hebrew expression בְּפָרַ֥ע פֶּרָעוֹת (bi-froa' pe·ra'ot) is uncertain. Numerous proposals are offered by commentators. (For a survey of opinions, see B. Lindars, Judges 1-5, 223-27.) The next line refers to the people who responded to Barak's summons to war, so a reference to the leaders who issued the summons would provide a natural poetic parallel. In v. 9 the leaders (חוֹקְקִ֔י, khoqe·qey) of the people and these same volunteers stand in poetic parallelism, so it is reasonable to assume that the difficult Hebrew term פֶּרָעוֹת (pe·ra'ot, v. 2a) is synonymous with חוֹקְקִ֔י (khoqe·qey) of v. 9 (see Lindars, 227).

I will sing to the LORD![1]
I will sing[2] to the LORD God of Israel!
5:4 O LORD, when you departed[3] from Seir, when you marched from Edom's plains,
the earth shook, the heavens poured down, the clouds poured down rain.[4]
5:5 The mountains trembled[5] before the LORD, the God of Sinai;[6] before the LORD God of Israel.
5:6 In the days of Shamgar son of Anath, in the days of Jael caravans[7] disappeared;[8] travelers[9] had to go on winding side roads.
5:7 Warriors[10] were scarce,[11]
they were scarce in Israel, until you[12] arose, Deborah, until you arose as a motherly protector[13] in Israel.
5:8 God chose new leaders,[14]
then fighters appeared in the city gates;[15] but, I swear, not a shield or spear could be found,[16] among forty military units[17] in Israel.
5:9 My heart went out[18] to Israel's leaders, to the people who answered the call to war.
Praise the LORD!
5:10 You who ride on light-colored female donkeys, who sit on saddle blankets,[19]
you who walk on the road, pay attention!
5:11 Hear[20] the sound of those who divide the sheep[21] among the watering places;
there they tell of[22] the Lord's victorious deeds, the victorious deeds of his warriors[23] in Israel.
Then the LORD's people went down to the city gates –
5:12 Wake up, wake up, Deborah!
Wake up, wake up, sing a song!
Get up, Barak!
Capture your prisoners of war,[24] son of Abinoam!
5:13 Then the survivors[25] came down[26] to the mighty ones;[27] the LORD's people came down to me[28] as[29] warriors.

[1] tn Heb "I, to the LORD, I, I will sing!" The first singular personal pronoun is used twice, even though a first person finite verbal form is employed.

[2] tn Or "make music."

[3] tn Or "went out."

[4] tn Heb "water."

[5] tn Or "quaked." The translation assumes the form נָזֹלוּ (nazollu) from the root זָלַל (zalal, "to quake"; see HALOT 272 s.v. II זלל). The LXX, the Syriac Peshitta, and the Targum also understood the word this way. (See Isa 63:19 and 64:2 for other occurrences of this form.) Some understand here the verb נָזַל (nazul, "to flow [with torrents of rain water]").

[6] tn Heb "this one of Sinai." The phrase is a divine title, perhaps indicating that the LORD rules from Sinai.

[7] tc The translation assumes the form אֳרְחוֹת ('orekhot, "caravans") rather than אֹרְחוֹת ('orakhot, "roadways") because it makes a tighter parallel with "travelers" in the next line.

[8] tn Or "ceased."

[9] tn Heb "Ones walking on paths."

[10] tn The meaning of the Hebrew noun פֶּרֶזוֹן (ferazon) is uncertain. Some understand the meaning as "leaders" or "those living in rural areas." The singular noun appears to be collective (note the accompanying plural verb). For various options see B. Lindars, Judges 1-5, 237-38.

[11] tn Or "ceased."

[12] tn The translation assumes that the verb is an archaic second feminine singular form. Though Deborah is named as one of the composers of the song (v. 1), she is also addressed within it (v. 12). Many take the verb as first person singular, "I arose" (cf. NAB, NASB, NIV).

[13] tn Heb "mother." The translation assumes that the image portrays Deborah as a protector of the people. It is possible that the metaphor points to her prophetic role. Just as a male prophet could be called "father," so Deborah, a prophetess, is called "mother" (B. Lindars, Judges 1-5, 239).

[14] tn Or "warriors." The Hebrew text reads literally, "He chose God/gods new." Some take "Israel" as the subject of the verb, "gods" as object, and "new" as an adjective modifying "gods." This yields the translation, "(Israel) chose new gods." In this case idolatry is the cause of the trouble alluded to in the context. The present translation takes "God" as subject of the verb and "new" as substantival, referring to the new leaders raised up by God (see v. 9a). For a survey of opinions and a defense of the present translation, see B. Lindars, Judges 1-5, 239-40.

[15] tn The translation of this difficult line is speculative because the second word, לָחֶם (lakhem), appears only here. The line in the Hebrew text literally reads, "Then [?] gates." Interpretations and emendations of the Hebrew text abound (see B. Lindars, Judges 1-5, 239-40). The translation assumes a repointing of the form as a Qal participle לֹחֵם (lokhem) from the verbal root לָחַם (lakham, "fight") and understands a substantival use ("fighter"). "Fighter" is a collective reference to the military leaders or warriors mentioned in the preceding line and in v. 9. (For other occurrences of the Qal of לָחַם, see Pss 35:1; 56:2-3.)

[16] tn Heb "A shield, it could not be seen, nor a spear." The translation assumes that the Hebrew particle אִם ('im) introduces an oath of denial (see GKC 472 §149.e).

[17] tn Traditionally "forty thousand," but this may be an instance where Hebrew term אֶלֶף ('elef) refers to a military unit. This is the view assumed by the translation ("forty military units").

[18] tn The words "went out" are supplied in the translation for clarity.

[19] tn The meaning of the Hebrew word מִדִּין (middin, "saddle blankets") in this context is uncertain.

[20] tn The word "Hear" is supplied in the translation for clarification and for stylistic reasons.

[21] tn The meaning of the Hebrew word is uncertain. Some translate "those who distribute the water" (HALOT 344 s.v. חצץ pi). For other options see B. Lindars, Judges 1-5, 246-47.

[22] tn Or perhaps "repeat."

[23] tn See the note on the term "warriors" in v. 7.

[24] tn Heb "take captive your captives." (The Hebrew text uses a cognate accusative here.)

[25] tn This probably refers to those who responded to the call for war. They were "survivors" of the Canaanite oppression (see B. Lindars, Judges 1-5, 250).

[26] tn The translation assumes a repointing of the verb as a perfect or imperfect/preterite form of יָרַד (yarad, "to go down"). The form as pointed in the MT appears to be from רָדָה (radah, "to rule"). See GKC 188 §69.g. The same form, translated "came down," occurs in the next line as well.

[27] sn The expression mighty ones probably refers to the leaders of the army.

[28] sn The speaker may be Deborah here.

[29] tn The translation assumes the preposition בְּ (bet) prefixed to "warriors" has the force of "in the capacity of." For this use of the preposition, see GKC 379 §119.i.

5:14 They came from Ephraim, who uprooted Amalek,[1] they follow[2] after you, Benjamin, with your soldiers.
From Makir leaders came down, from Zebulun came[3] the ones who march carrying[4] an officer's staff.
5:15 Issachar's leaders were with Deborah, the men of Issachar[5] supported[6] Barak;
into the valley they were sent under Barak's command.[7]
Among the clans of Reuben there was intense[8] heart searching.[9] 5:16 Why do you remain among the sheepfolds,[10] listening to the shepherds playing their pipes[11] for their flocks?[12]
As for the clans of Reuben – there was intense searching of heart.
5:17 Gilead stayed put[13] beyond the Jordan River.
As for Dan – why did he seek temporary employment in the shipyards?[14]
Asher remained[15] on the seacoast, he stayed[16] by his harbors.[17]
5:18 The men of Zebulun were not concerned about their lives;[18]
Naphtali charged on to the battlefields.[19]
5:19 Kings came, they fought;
the kings of Canaan fought,
at Taanach by the waters of Megiddo,[20]
but[21] they took no silver as plunder.
5:20 From the sky[22] the stars[23] fought, from their paths in the heavens[24] they fought against Sisera.
5:21 The Kishon River carried them off;
the river confronted them[25] – the Kishon River.
Step on the necks of the strong![26]
5:22 The horses'[27] hooves pounded the ground;[28]
the stallions galloped madly.[29]
5:23 'Call judgment down on[30] Meroz,' says the LORD's angelic[31] messenger;
'Be sure[32] to call judgment down on[33] those who live there, because they did not come to help in the LORD's battle,[34]

[1] tn Heb "From Ephraim their root in Amalek" (the words "they came" are supplied in the translation for stylistic reasons). Because of the difficulty of the MT, many prefer to follow one of the ancient versions or emend the text. For various proposals see B. Lindars, Judges 1-5, 252-53. The present translation repoints שָׁרְשָׁם (shorsham, traditionally translated "their root") as a Piel verb form with enclitic mem (ם). The preposition ב (bet) on עֲמָלֵק ('amaleq) introduces the object (see Job 31:12 for an example of the construction). Ephraim's territory encompassed the hill country of the Amalekites (Judg 12:15).

[2] tn The words "They follow" are supplied in the translation for clarification and for stylistic reasons.

[3] tn The word "came" is supplied in the translation for clarification and for stylistic reasons.

[4] tn Or possibly "who carry."

[5] tn Heb "Issachar." The words "the men of" are supplied in the translation for clarification.

[6] tn Or "were true to."

[7] tn Heb "at his feet."

[8] tn Heb "great was."

[9] tc The great majority of Hebrew MSS have "resolves of heart," but a few MSS read "searchings of heart," which is preferable in light of v. 16.

[10] tn The meaning of the Hebrew word מִשְׁפְּתַיִם (mishp^{e}tayim) is uncertain. Some understand the word to mean "campfires."

[11] tn Or "whistling."

[12] tn Heb "listening to the pipe playing for the flocks."

[13] tn Heb "lived" or "settled down."

sn Apparently the people of Gilead remained on the other side of the river and did not participate in the battle.

[14] tn Heb "Dan, why did he live as a resident alien, ships." The verb גור (gur) usually refers to taking up residence outside one's native land. Perhaps the Danites, rather than rallying to Barak, were content to move to the Mediterranean coast and work in the shipyards. For further discussion, see B. Lindars, Judges 1-5, 262.

[15] tn Heb "lived."

[16] tn Heb "lived" or "settled down."

[17] tn The meaning of the Hebrew word מִפְרָץ (mifrats) is uncertain, but the parallelism (note "seacoast") suggests "harbors."

[18] tn Heb "Zebulun was a people which despised its life even unto death."

[19] tn Heb "Naphtali was on the heights of the field."

[20] map For location see Map1-D4; Map2-C1; Map4-C2; Map5-F2; Map7-B1.

[21] tn The contrastive conjunction "but" is interpretive.

[22] tn Or "from heaven." The Hebrew term שָׁמַיִם (shamayim) may be translated "heaven(s)" or "sky" depending on the context.

[23] tn The MT takes "the stars" with what follows rather than with the first colon of v. 20. But for metrical reasons it seems better to move the atnach and read the colon as indicated in the translation.

[24] tn The words "in the heavens" are not in the Hebrew text, but are supplied for clarity and for stylistic reasons.

[25] tn Possibly "the ancient river," but it seems preferable in light of the parallel line (which has a verb) to emend the word (attested only here) to a verb (קָדַם, qadam) with pronominal object suffix.

[26] tn This line is traditionally taken as the poet-warrior's self-exhortation, "March on, my soul, in strength!" The present translation (a) takes the verb (a second feminine singular form) as addressed to Deborah (cf. v. 12), (b) understands נֶפֶשׁ (nefesh) in its well-attested sense of "throat; neck" (cf. Jonah 2:6), (c) takes the final yod (י) on נַפְשִׁי (nafshiy) as an archaic construct indicator (rather than a suffix), and (d) interprets עֹז ('oz, "strength") as an attributive genitive (literally, "necks of strength," i.e., "strong necks"). For fuller discussion and various proposals, see B. Lindars, Judges 1-5, 270-71.

[27] tc The MT as it stands has a singular noun, but if one moves the prefixed mem (מ) from the beginning of the next word to the end of סוּם (sus), the expected plural form is achieved. Another possibility is to understand an error of scribal haplography here, in which case the letter mem should appear in both places.

[28] tn The words "the ground" are not in the Hebrew text, but are supplied in the translation for clarification.

[29] tn Heb "galloped, galloped." The repetition is for emphasis and is more appropriately indicated in English with an adverb.

[30] tn Heb "Curse Meroz."

[31] tn The adjective "angelic" is interpretive.

[32] tn Heb "Curse, cursing." The Hebrew construction is emphatic.

[33] tn Heb "[to] curse."

[34] tn Heb "to the help of the LORD" (the same Hebrew phrase occurs in the following line). Another option is to read "to aid the LORD's cause."

to help in the LORD's battle against the warriors.'[1] 5:24 The most rewarded[2] of women should be Jael, the wife of Heber the Kenite!
She should be the most rewarded of women who live in tents.
5:25 He asked for water,
and she gave him milk;
in a bowl fit for a king,[3]
she served him curds.
5:26 Her left[4] hand reached for the tent peg, her right hand for the workmen's hammer.
She "hammered"[5] Sisera, she shattered his skull,[6]
she smashed his head,[7]
she drove the tent peg through his temple.[8] 5:27 Between her feet he collapsed, he fell limp[9] and was lifeless;[10] between her feet he collapsed and fell limp, in the spot where he collapsed,
there he fell limp – violently murdered![11]
5:28 Through the window she looked;
Sisera's mother cried out through the lattice:
'Why is his chariot so slow to return?
Why are the hoofbeats of his chariot-horses[12] delayed?'
5:29 The wisest of her ladies[13] answer;
indeed she even thinks to herself,
5:30 'No doubt they are gathering and dividing the plunder[14] –
a girl or two for each man to rape![15]
Sisera is grabbing up colorful cloth,[16]
he is grabbing up colorful embroidered cloth,[17]
two pieces of colorful embroidered cloth, for the neck of the plunderer!'[18]
5:31 May all your enemies perish like this, O LORD!
But may those who love you shine like the rising sun at its brightest!"[19]
And the land had rest for forty years.

Oppression and Confrontation

6:1 The Israelites did evil in the LORD's sight,[20] so the LORD turned them over to[21] Midian for seven years. 6:2 The Midianites[22] overwhelmed Israel.[23] Because of Midian the Israelites made shelters[24] for themselves in the hills, as well as caves and strongholds. 6:3 Whenever the Israelites planted their crops,[25] the Midianites, Amalekites, and the people from the east would attack them.[26] 6:4 They invaded the land[27] and devoured[28] its crops[29] all the way to Gaza. They left nothing for the Israelites to eat,[30] and they took away[31] the sheep, oxen, and donkeys. 6:5 When they invaded[32] with their cattle and tents, they were as thick[33] as locusts. Neither they nor their camels could be counted.[34] They came to devour[35] the land. 6:6 Israel was so severely weakened by Midian that the Israelites cried out to the LORD for help.

6:7 When the Israelites cried out to the LORD for help because of Midian, 6:8 he[36] sent a prophet[37] to the Israelites. He said to them, "This is what the LORD God of Israel says: 'I brought you up from Egypt[38] and took you out of that place of slavery.[39] 6:9 I rescued you from Egypt's power[40] and from the power of all who oppressed you. I drove them out before you and

[1] tn Or "along with the other warriors."

[2] tn Or "blessed."

[3] tn Or "for mighty ones."

[4] tn The adjective "left" is interpretive, based on the context. Note that the next line pictures Jael holding the hammer with her right hand.

[5] tn The verb used here is from the same root as the noun "hammer" in the preceding line.

[6] tn Or "head."

[7] tn The phrase "his head" (an implied direct object) is supplied in the translation for clarification.

[8] tn Heb "she pierced his temple."

[9] tn Heb "he fell." The same Hebrew expression occurs two more times in this verse.

[10] tn Heb "and he lay.

[11] tn Or "dead, murdered."

[12] tn Heb "chariots."

[13] tn Or "princesses."

[14] tn Heb "Are they not finding, dividing the plunder?"

[15] tn Heb "a womb or two for each man." The words "to rape" are interpretive. The Hebrew noun translated "girl" means literally "womb" (BDB 933 s.v. I. רֶחֶם), but in this context may refer by extension to the female genitalia. In this case the obscene language of Sisera's mother alludes to the sexual brutality which typified the aftermath of battle.

[16] tn Heb "the plunder of dyed cloth is for Sisera."

[17] tn Heb "the plunder of embroidered cloth."

[18] tn The translation assumes an emendation of the noun ("plunder") to a participle, "plunderer."

[19] tn Heb "But may those who love him be like the going forth of the sun in its strength."

[20] tn Heb "in the eyes of."

[21] tn Heb "gave them into the hand of."

[22] tn Heb "the hand of Midian."

[23] tn Heb "The hand of Midian was strong against Israel."

[24] tn Or possibly "secret storage places." The Hebrew word occurs only here in the Hebrew Bible.

[25] tn Heb "Whenever Israel sowed seed."

[26] tn Heb "Midian, Amalek, and the sons of the east would go up, they would go up against him." The translation assumes that וְעָלוּ (ve'alu) is dittographic (note the following עָלָיו, 'alayv).

[27] tn Heb "They encamped against them."

[28] tn Heb "destroyed."

[29] tn Heb "the crops of the land."

[30] tn Heb "They left no sustenance in Israel."

[31] tn The words "they took away" are supplied in the translation for clarification.

[32] tn Heb "came up."

[33] tn Heb "numerous."

[34] tn Heb "To them and to their camels there was no number."

[35] tn Heb "destroy." The translation "devour" carries through the imagery of a locust plague earlier in this verse.

[36] tn Heb "the LORD"; the proper name has been replaced by the pronoun ("he") in the translation for stylistic reasons.

[37] tn Heb "a man, a prophet." Hebrew idiom sometimes puts a generic term before a more specific designation.

[38] tc Some ancient witnesses read "from the land of Egypt." מֵאֶרֶץ (me'erets, "from the land [of]") could have been accidentally omitted by homoioarcton (note the following מִמִּצְרַיִם [mimmitsrayim, "from Egypt"]).

[39] tn Heb "of the house of slavery."

[40] tn Heb "hand" (also a second time later in this verse).

gave their land to you. 6:10 I said to you, "I am the LORD your God! Do not worship[1] the gods of the Amorites, in whose land you are now living!" But you have disobeyed me.'"[2]

Gideon Meets Some Visitors

6:11 The LORD's angelic messenger[3] came and sat down under the oak tree in Ophrah owned by Joash the Abiezrite. He arrived while Joash's son Gideon[4] was threshing[5] wheat in a winepress[6] so he could hide it from the Midianites.[7] 6:12 The LORD's messenger appeared and said to him, "The LORD is with you, courageous warrior!" 6:13 Gideon said to him, "Pardon me,[8] but if the LORD is with us, why has such disaster[9] overtaken us? Where are all his miraculous deeds our ancestors told us about? They said,[10] 'Did the LORD not bring us up from Egypt?' But now the LORD has abandoned us and handed us over to Midian." 6:14 Then the LORD himself[11] turned to him and said, "You have the strength.[12] Deliver Israel from the power of the Midianites![13] Have I not sent you?" 6:15 Gideon[14] said to him, "But Lord,[15] how[16] can I deliver Israel? Just look! My clan is the weakest in Manasseh, and I am the youngest in my family."[17] 6:16 The LORD said to him, "Ah, but[18] I will be with you! You will strike down the whole Midianite army."[19] 6:17 Gideon[20] said to him, "If you really are pleased with me,[21] then give me[22] a sign as proof that it is really you speaking with me. 6:18 Do not leave this place until I come back[23] with a gift[24] and present it to you." The LORD said, "I will stay here until you come back."

6:19 Gideon went and prepared a young goat,[25] along with unleavened bread made from an ephah of flour. He put the meat in a basket and the broth in a pot. He brought the food[26] to him under the oak tree and presented it to him. 6:20 God's messenger said to him, "Put the meat and unleavened bread on this rock,[27] and pour out the broth." Gideon did as instructed.[28] 6:21 The LORD's messenger touched the meat and the unleavened bread with the tip of his staff.[29] Fire flared up from the rock and consumed the meat and unleavened bread. The LORD's messenger then disappeared.[30]

6:22 When Gideon realized[31] that it was the LORD's messenger, he[32] said, "Oh no![33] Master, LORD![34] I have seen the LORD's messenger face to face!" 6:23 The LORD said to him, "You are safe![35] Do not be afraid! You are not going to die!" 6:24 Gideon built an altar for the LORD there, and named it "The LORD is on friendly terms with me."[36] To this day it is still there in Ophrah of the Abiezrites.

Gideon Destroys the Altar

6:25 That night the LORD said to him, "Take the bull from your father's herd, as well as a second bull, one that is seven years old.[37] Pull

---

[1] tn Heb "Do not fear."

[2] tn Heb "you have not listened to my voice."

[3] tn The adjective "angelic" is interpretive.

sn The LORD*'s angelic messenger* is also mentioned in Judg 2:1.

[4] tn Heb "Now Gideon his son...." The Hebrew circumstantial clause (note the pattern vav [ו] + subject + predicate) breaks the narrative sequence and indicates that the angel's arrival coincided with Gideon's threshing.

[5] tn Heb "beating out."

[6] sn Threshing wheat in a winepress. One would normally thresh wheat at the threshing floor outside the city. Animals and a threshing sledge would be employed. Because of the Midianite threat, Gideon was forced to thresh with a stick in a winepress inside the city. For further discussion see O. Borowski, Agriculture in Iron Age Israel, 63.

[7] tn Heb "Midian."

[8] tn Heb "But my lord."

[9] tn Heb "all this."

[10] tn Heb "saying."

[11] sn Some interpreters equate the LORD and the messenger in this story, but they are more likely distinct. In vv. 22-23 the LORD and Gideon continue to carry on a conversation after the messenger has vanished (v. 21).

[12] tn Heb "Go in this strength of yours."

[13] tn Heb "the hand of Midian."

[14] tn Heb "he"; the referent (Gideon) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[15] tn Note the switch to אֲדֹנָי ('adonay, "Lord"). Gideon seems aware that he is speaking to someone other than, and superior to, the messenger, whom he addressed as אֲדֹנִי ('adoniy, "my lord") in v. 13.

[16] tn Heb "with what."

[17] tn Heb "in my father's house."

[18] tn Or "certainly."

[19] tn Heb "You will strike down Midian as one man." The idiom "as one man" emphasizes the collective unity of a group (see Judg 20:8, 11). Here it may carry the force, "as if they were just one man."

[20] tn Heb "he"; the referent (Gideon) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[21] tn Heb "If I have found favor in your eyes."

[22] tn Heb "perform for me."

[23] tn The Hebrew text adds "to you," but this has not been included in the translation for stylistic reasons.

[24] tn Heb "and I will bring out my gift." The precise nuance of the Hebrew word מִנְחָה (minkhah, "gift") is uncertain in this context. It may refer to a gift offered as a sign of goodwill or submission. In some cases it is used of a gift offered to appease someone whom the offerer has offended. The word can also carry a sacrificial connotation.

[25] tn Heb "a kid from among the goats."

[26] tn The words "the food" are not in the Hebrew text (an implied direct object). They are supplied in the translation for clarification and for stylistic reasons.

[27] tn Heb "Take the meat...and put [it] on this rock."

[28] tn Heb "and he did so."

[29] tn Heb "extended the tip of the staff which was in his hand and touched the meat and unleavened bread."

[30] tn Heb "went from his eyes."

[31] tn Heb "saw."

[32] tn Heb "Gideon." The proper name has been replaced by the pronoun ("he") in the translation for stylistic reasons.

[33] tn Or "Ah!"

[34] tn The Hebrew text reads אֲדֹנָי יְהוִה ('adonay yehvih, "Lord [the same title used in v. 15], LORD").

[35] tn Heb "Peace to you." For a similar use of this idiom to introduce a reassuring word, see Gen 43:23.

[36] tn Heb "The LORD is peace." Gideon's name for the altar plays on the LORD's reassuring words to him, "Peace to you."

down your father's Baal altar and cut down the nearby Asherah pole. 6:26 Then build an altar for the LORD your God on the top of this stronghold according to the proper pattern.[1] Take the second bull and offer it as a burnt sacrifice on the wood from the Asherah pole that you cut down." 6:27 So Gideon took ten of his servants[2] and did just as the LORD had told him. He was too afraid of his father's family[3] and the men of the city to do it in broad daylight, so he waited until nighttime.[4]

6:28 When the men of the city got up the next morning, they saw[5] the Baal altar pulled down, the nearby Asherah pole cut down, and the second bull sacrificed on the newly built altar. 6:29 They said to one another,[6] "Who did this?"[7] They investigated the matter thoroughly[8] and concluded[9] that Gideon son of Joash had done it. 6:30 The men of the city said to Joash, "Bring out your son, so we can execute him![10] He pulled down the Baal altar and cut down the nearby Asherah pole." 6:31 But Joash said to all those who confronted him,[11] "Must you fight Baal's battles?[12] Must you rescue him? Whoever takes up his cause[13] will die by morning![14] If he really is a god, let him fight his own battles![15] After all, it was his altar that was pulled down."[16] 6:32 That very day Gideon's father named him Jerub-Baal,[17] because he had said, "Let Baal fight with him, for it was his altar that was pulled down."

Gideon Summons an Army and Seeks Confirmation

6:33 All the Midianites, Amalekites, and the people from the east[18] assembled. They crossed the Jordan River[19] and camped in the Jezreel Valley. 6:34 The LORD's spirit took control of[20] Gideon. He blew a trumpet,[21] summoning the Abiezrites to follow him.[22] 6:35 He sent messengers throughout Manasseh and summoned them to follow him as well.[23] He also sent messengers throughout Asher, Zebulun, and Naphtali, and they came up to meet him.

6:36 Gideon said to God, "If you really intend to use me to deliver Israel,[24] as you promised, then give me a sign as proof.[25] 6:37 Look, I am putting a wool fleece on the threshing floor. If there is dew only on the fleece, and the ground around it[26] is dry, then I will be sure[27] that you will use me to deliver Israel,[28] as you promised." 6:38 The LORD did as he asked.[29] When he got up the next morning, he squeezed the fleece, and enough dew dripped from it to fill a bowl.[30] 6:39 Gideon said to God, "Please do not get angry at me, when I ask for just one more sign.[31] Please allow me one more test with the fleece. This time make only the fleece dry, while the ground around it is covered with dew."[32] 6:40 That night God did as he asked.[33] Only the fleece was dry and the ground around it was covered with dew.

Gideon Reduces the Ranks

7:1 Jerub-Baal (that is, Gideon) and his men[34] got up the next morning and camped near the spring of Harod.[35] The Midianites[36] were camped north of them near the hill of Moreh in the valley. 7:2 The LORD said to Gideon, "You have too many men for me to hand Midian over

[1] tn Possibly "in a row" or "in a layer," perhaps referring to the arrangement of the stones used in the altar's construction.

[2] tn Heb "men from among his servants."

[3] tn Heb "house."

[4] tn Heb "so he did it at night."

[5] tn Heb "look!" The narrator uses this word to invite his audience/readers to view the scene through the eyes of the men.

[6] tn Heb "each one to his neighbor."

[7] tn Heb "this thing."

[8] tn Heb "they inquired and searched." The synonyms are joined to emphasize the care with which they conducted their inquiry.

[9] tn Heb "and said." Perhaps the plural subject is indefinite. If so, it could be translated, "they were told."

[10] tn Heb "and let him die." The jussive form with vav after the imperative is best translated as a purpose clause.

[11] tn Heb "to all who stood against him."

[12] tn Heb "Do you fight for Baal?"

[13] tn Heb "fights for him."

[14] sn Whoever takes up his cause will die by morning. This may be a warning to the crowd that Joash intends to defend his son and to kill anyone who tries to execute Gideon. Then again, it may be a sarcastic statement about Baal's apparent inability to defend his own honor. Anyone who takes up Baal's cause may end up dead, perhaps by the same hand that pulled down the pagan god's altar.

[15] tn Heb "fight for himself."

[16] tn Heb "for he pulled down his altar." The subject of the verb, if not Gideon, is indefinite (in which case a passive translation is permissible).

[17] tn Heb "He called him on that day Jerub-Baal." The name means, at least by popular etymology, "Let Baal fight!"

[18] tn Heb "Midian, Amalek, and the sons of the east."

[19] tn The words "the Jordan River" are not in the Hebrew text, but are supplied in the translation for clarification.

[20] tn Heb "clothed."

[21] tn That is, "mustered an army."

[22] tn Heb "Abiezer was summoned after him."

[23] tn Heb "and he also was summoned after him."

[24] tn More literally, "you are about to deliver Israel by my hand."

[25] tn The words "then give me a sign as proof" are supplied in the translation for clarification.

[26] tn Heb "all the ground."

[27] tn Or "know."

[28] tn Heb "you will deliver Israel by my hand."

[29] tn Heb "And it was so."

[30] tn Heb "dew dripped from the fleece – a bowl full of water."

[31] tn Heb "Let your anger not rage at me, so that I might speak only this once."

[32] tn Heb "let the fleece alone be dry, while dew is on all the ground."

[33] tn Heb "God did so that night."

[34] tn Heb "and all the people who were with him."

[35] sn The name Harod means, ironically, "trembling."

[36] tn Heb "Midian." The LXX reads "and Amalek" (cf. v. 12; 6:33).

to you.[1] Israel might brag,[2] 'Our own strength has delivered us.'[3] 7:3 Now, announce to the men,[4] 'Whoever is shaking with fear[5] may turn around and leave Mount Gilead.'"[6] Twenty-two thousand men[7] went home;[8] ten thousand remained. 7:4 The LORD spoke to Gideon again, "There are still too many men.[9] Bring them down to the water and I will thin the ranks some more.[10] When I say, 'This one should go with you,' pick him to go;[11] when I say,[12] 'This one should not go with you,' do not take him."[13] 7:5 So he brought the men[14] down to the water. Then the LORD said to Gideon, "Separate those who lap the water as a dog laps from those who kneel to drink."[15] 7:6 Three hundred men lapped;[16] the rest of the men[17] kneeled to drink water. 7:7 The LORD said to Gideon, "With the three hundred men who lapped I will deliver the whole army[18] and I will hand Midian over to you.[19] The rest of the men should go home."[20] 7:8 The men[21] who were chosen[22] took supplies[23] and their trumpets. Gideon[24] sent all the men of Israel back to their homes;[25] he kept only three hundred men. Now the Midianites[26] were camped down below[27] in the valley.

Gideon Reassured of Victory

7:9 That night the LORD said to Gideon,[28] "Get up! Attack[29] the camp, for I am handing it over to you.[30] 7:10 But if you are afraid to attack, go down to the camp with Purah your servant 7:11 and listen to what they are saying. Then you will be brave[31] and attack the camp." So he went down with Purah his servant to where the sentries were guarding the camp.[32] 7:12 Now the Midianites, Amalekites, and the people from the east covered the valley like a swarm of locusts.[33] Their camels could not be counted; they were as innumerable as the sand on the seashore. 7:13 When Gideon arrived, he heard a man telling another man about a dream he had.[34] The man[35] said, "Look! I had a dream. I saw[36] a stale cake of barley bread rolling into the Midianite camp. It hit a tent so hard it knocked it over and turned it upside down. The tent just collapsed."[37] 7:14 The other man said,[38] "Without a doubt this symbolizes[39] the sword of Gideon son of Joash, the Israelite. God is handing Midian and all the army over to him."

Gideon Routs the Enemy

7:15 When Gideon heard the report of the dream and its interpretation, he praised God.[40] Then he went back to the Israelite camp and said, "Get up, for the LORD is handing the Midianite army over to you!" 7:16 He divided the three hundred men into three units.[41] He gave them all trumpets and empty jars with torches inside them.[42] 7:17 He said to them, "Watch me

---

1 tn Heb "the people who are with you are too numerous for me to give Midian into their hand."

2 tn Heb "might glorify itself against me."

3 tn Heb "my hand has delivered me."

4 tn Heb "call into the ears of the people."

5 tn Heb "afraid and shaking."

6 tc Many interpreters reject the MT reading "and leave Mount Gilead" for geographical reasons. A possible alternative, involving rather radical emendation of the Hebrew text, would be, "So Gideon tested them" (i.e., thinned the ranks in this manner).

7 tn Heb "people." The translation uses "men" because warriors are in view, and in ancient Israelite culture these would be only males. (This is also the case in vv. 4, 5, 6, 7, 8.)

8 tn Or "turned around, back."

9 tn Heb "too many people."

10 tn Heb "test them for you there."

11 tn Heb "he should go with you."

12 tn Heb also has "to you."

13 tn Heb "he should not go."

14 tn Heb "the people."

15 tn Heb "Everyone who laps with his tongue from the water, as a dog laps, put him by himself, as well as the one who gets down on his knees to drink."

16 tc The Hebrew text adds, "with their hands to their mouths." This makes no sense in light of v. 5, which distinguishes between dog-like lappers (who would not use their hands to drink) and those who kneel (who would use their hands). It seems likely that the words "with their hands to their mouths" have been misplaced from v. 6. They fit better at the end of v. 5 or v. 6. Perhaps these words were originally a marginal scribal note which was later accidentally inserted into the text in the wrong place.

17 tn Heb "the people."

18 tn Heb "you." The Hebrew pronoun is masculine plural, probably referring to the entire army.

19 tn The Hebrew pronoun here is singular.

20 tn Heb "All the people should go, each to his place."

21 tn Heb "The people."

22 tn The words "who were chosen" are supplied in the translation for clarification.

23 tn The Hebrew text has "in their hands."

24 tn Heb "he"; the referent (Gideon) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

25 tn Heb "tents."

26 tn Heb "Midian."

27 tn The Hebrew text adds "him" (i.e., Gideon).

28 tn Heb "him"; the referent (Gideon) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

29 tn Heb "Go down against."

30 tn The Hebrew verbal form is a perfect, emphasizing the certainty of the promise.

31 tn Heb "your hands will be strengthened."

32 tn Heb "to the edge of the ones in battle array who were in the camp."

33 tn Heb "Midian, Amalek, and the sons of the east were falling in the valley like locusts in great number."

34 tn Heb "And Gideon came, and, look, a man was relating to his friend a dream."

35 tn Heb "he"; the referent (the man mentioned in the previous clause) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

36 tn Heb "Look!" The repetition of this interjection, while emphatic in Hebrew, would be redundant in the English translation.

37 tn Heb "It came to the tent and struck it and it fell. It turned it upside down and the tent fell."

38 tn Heb "answered and said."

39 tn Heb "This can be nothing but."

40 tn Heb "he bowed down" or "worshiped."

41 tn Heb "heads."

42 tn Heb "the jars." The noun has been replaced by the pronoun ("them") in the translation for stylistic reasons.

sn They hid the torches inside the earthenware jars to disguise their approach and to keep the torches from being extinguished by the breeze.

and do as I do. Watch closely![1] I am going to the edge of the camp. Do as I do! 7:18 When I and all who are with me blow our trumpets, you also blow your trumpets all around the camp. Then say, 'For the LORD and for Gideon!'"

7:19 Gideon took a hundred men to the edge of the camp[2] at the beginning of the middle watch, just after they had changed the guards. They blew their trumpets and broke the jars they were carrying.[3] 7:20 All three units blew their trumpets and broke their jars. They held the torches in their left hand and the trumpets in their right.[4] Then they yelled, "A sword for the LORD and for Gideon!" 7:21 They stood in order[5] all around the camp. The whole army ran away; they shouted as they scrambled away.[6] 7:22 When the three hundred men blew their trumpets, the LORD caused the Midianites to attack one another with their swords[7] throughout[8] the camp. The army fled to Beth Shittah on the way to Zererah. They went[9] to the border of Abel Meholah near Tabbath. 7:23 Israelites from Naphtali, Asher, and Manasseh answered the call and chased the Midianites.[10]

Gideon Appeases the Ephraimites

7:24 Now Gideon sent messengers throughout the Ephraimite hill country who announced, "Go down and head off the Midianites.[11] Take control of the fords of the streams[12] all the way to Beth Barah and the Jordan River."[13] When all the Ephraimites had assembled,[14] they took control of the fords[15] all the way to Beth Barah and the Jordan River. 7:25 They captured the two Midianite generals, Oreb and Zeeb.[16] They executed Oreb on the rock of Oreb and Zeeb[17] in the winepress of Zeeb. They chased the Midianites[18] and brought the heads of Oreb and Zeeb to Gideon, who was now on the other side of the Jordan River.[19]

8:1 The Ephraimites said to him, "Why have you done such a thing to us? You did not summon us[20] when you went to fight the Midianites!" They argued vehemently with him. 8:2 He said to them, "Now what have I accomplished compared to you? Even Ephraim's leftover grapes[21] are better quality than Abiezer's harvest![22] 8:3 It was to you that God handed over the Midianite generals, Oreb and Zeeb! What did I accomplish to rival that?"[23] When he said this, they calmed down.[24]

Gideon Tracks Down the Midianite Kings

8:4 Now Gideon and his three hundred men had crossed over the Jordan River, and even though they were exhausted, they were still chasing the Midianites.[25] 8:5 He said to the men of Succoth, "Give[26] some loaves of bread to the men[27] who are following me,[28] because they are exhausted. I am chasing Zebah and Zalmunna, the kings of Midian." 8:6 The officials of Succoth said, "You have not yet overpowered Zebah and Zalmunna. So why should we give[29] bread to your army?"[30] 8:7 Gideon said, "Since you

[1] tn Or "look."

[2] tn Heb "Gideon went, along with the hundred men who were with him, to the edge of the camp."

[3] tn Heb "that were in their hands."

[4] tn The Hebrew text adds, "in order to blow [them]." This has not been included in the translation for stylistic reasons.

[5] tn Heb "each in his place."

[6] tn Or "fled."

[7] tn Heb "the LORD set the sword of each one against his friend."

[8] tc MT has "and throughout the camp," but the conjunction ("and") is due to dittography and should be dropped. Compare the ancient versions, which lack the conjunction here.

[9] tn The words "they went" are supplied in the translation for clarification.

[10] tn Heb "Midian."

[11] tn Heb "to meet Midian."

[12] tn Heb "capture before them the waters."

[13] tn The word "River" is not in the Hebrew text, but is supplied in the translation for clarification (also later in this verse).

[14] tn Heb "And all the men of Ephraim were summoned."

[15] tn Heb "they captured the waters."

[16] sn The names Oreb and Zeeb, which mean "Raven" and "Wolf" respectively, are appropriate because the Midianites had been like scavengers and predators to Israel.

[17] tn The Hebrew text repeats the verb "executed." This has not been repeated in the translation for stylistic reasons.

[18] tn Heb "Midian."

[19] tn Heb "beyond the Jordan." The word "River" is not in the Hebrew text but has been supplied in the translation for clarity (also in 8:4).

[20] tn Heb "by not summoning us."

[21] tn Heb "gleanings."

[22] sn Ephraim's leftover grapes are better quality than Abiezer's harvest. Gideon employs an agricultural metaphor. He argues that Ephraim's mopping up operations, though seemingly like the inferior grapes which are missed initially by the harvesters or left for the poor, are actually more noteworthy than the military efforts of Gideon's family.

[23] tn Heb "What was I able to do compared to you?"

[24] tn Heb "Then their spirits relaxed from against him, when he spoke this word."

[25] tn Heb "And Gideon arrived at the Jordan, crossing over, he and the three hundred men who were with him, exhausted and chasing." The English past perfect ("had crossed") is used because this verse flashes back chronologically to an event that preceded the hostile encounter described in vv. 1-3. (Note that 7:25 assumes Gideon had already crossed the Jordan.)

[26] tn Or perhaps, "sell."

[27] tn Heb "people." The translation uses "men" because these were warriors and in ancient Israelite culture would have been exclusively males.

[28] tn Heb "who are at my feet."

[29] tn Or perhaps, "sell."

[30] tn Heb "Are the palms of Zebah and Zalmunna now in your hand, that we should give to your army bread?" Perhaps the reference to the kings' "palms" should be taken literally. The officials of Succoth may be alluding to the practice of mutilating prisoners or enemy corpses (see R. G. Boling, Judges [AB], 155).

sn The officials of Succoth are hesitant to give (or sell) food to Gideon's forces because they are not sure of the outcome of the battle. Perhaps they had made an alliance with the Midianites which demanded their loyalty.

will not help,[1] after the LORD hands Zebah and Zalmunna over to me, I will thresh[2] your skin[3] with[4] desert thorns and briers." 8:8 He went up from there to Penuel and made the same request.[5] The men of Penuel responded the same way the men of Succoth had.[6] 8:9 He also threatened[7] the men of Penuel, warning,[8] "When I return victoriously,[9] I will tear down this tower."

8:10 Now Zebah and Zalmunna were in Karkor with their armies. There were about fifteen thousand survivors from the army of the eastern peoples; a hundred and twenty thousand sword-wielding soldiers had been killed.[10] 8:11 Gideon went up the road of the nomads[11] east of Nobah and Jogbehah and ambushed the surprised army.[12] 8:12 When Zebah and Zalmunna ran away, Gideon[13] chased them and captured the two Midianite kings, Zebah and Zalmunna. He had surprised[14] their entire army.

8:13 Gideon son of Joash returned from the battle by the pass[15] of Heres. 8:14 He captured a young man from Succoth[16] and interrogated him. The young man wrote down for him the names of Succoth's officials and city leaders – seventy-seven men in all.[17] 8:15 He approached the men of Succoth and said, "Look what I have![18] Zebah and Zalmunna! You insulted me, saying, 'You have not yet overpowered Zebah and Zalmunna. So why should we give bread to your exhausted men?'"[19] 8:16 He seized the leaders[20] of the city, along with some desert thorns and briers; he then "threshed" the men of Succoth with them.[21] 8:17 He also tore down the tower of Penuel and executed the city's men.

8:18 He said to Zebah and Zalmunna, "Describe for me[22] the men you killed at Tabor." They said, "They were like you. Each one looked like a king's son."[23] 8:19 He said, "They were my brothers, the sons of my mother. I swear,[24] as surely as the LORD is alive, if you had let them live, I would not kill you." 8:20 He ordered Jether his firstborn son, "Come on![25] Kill them!" But Jether was too afraid to draw his sword,[26] because he was still young. 8:21 Zebah and Zalmunna said to Gideon,[27] "Come on,[28] you strike us, for a man is judged by his strength."[29] So Gideon killed[30] Zebah and Zalmunna, and he took the crescent-shaped ornaments which were on the necks of their camels.

Gideon Rejects a Crown but Makes an Ephod

8:22 The men of Israel said to Gideon, "Rule over us – you, your son, and your grandson. For you have delivered us from Midian's power."[31] 8:23 Gideon said to them, "I will not rule over you, nor will my son rule over you. The LORD will rule over you." 8:24 Gideon continued,[32] "I would like to make one request. Each of you give me an earring from the plunder you have taken."[33] (The Midianites[34] had gold earrings because they were Ishmaelites.) 8:25 They said,

---

1 tn Heb "Therefore."

2 sn I will thresh. The metaphor is agricultural. Threshing was usually done on a hard threshing floor. As farm animals walked over the stalks, pulling behind them a board embedded with sharp stones, the stalks and grain would be separated. See O. Borowski, Agriculture in Iron Age Israel, 63-65. Gideon threatens to use thorns and briers on his sledge.

3 tn Or "flesh."

4 tn This is apparently a rare instrumental use of the Hebrew preposition אֵת ('et, note the use of בְּ [bet] in v. 16). Some, however, argue that אֵת more naturally indicates accompaniment ("together with"). In this case Gideon envisions threshing their skin along with thorns and briers, just as the stalks and grain are intermingled on the threshing floor. See C. F. Burney, Judges, 229-30.

5 tn Heb "and spoke to them in the same way."

6 tn Heb "The men of Penuel answered him just as the men of Succoth answered."

7 tn Heb "said to." The translation "threatened" is interpretive, but is clearly indicated by the context.

8 tn Heb "saying."

9 tn Or "safely." Heb "in peace."

10 tn Heb "About fifteen thousand [in number] were all the ones remaining from the army of the sons of the east. The fallen ones were a hundred and twenty thousand [in number], men drawing the sword."

11 tn Heb "the ones living in tents."

12 tn Heb "and attacked the army, while the army was secure." The Hebrew term בֶּטַח (vetakh, "secure") probably means the army was undefended (see R. G. Boling, Judges [AB], 156), not suspecting an attack at that time and place.

13 tn Heb "he"; the referent (Gideon) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

14 tn Or "routed"; Heb "caused to panic."

15 tn Or "ascent."

16 tn Heb "from the men of Succoth."

17 tn Heb "wrote down for him the officials of Succoth and its elders, seventy-seven men."

18 tn Heb "Look!" The words "what I have" are supplied in the translation for clarification.

19 tn Heb "Are the palms of Zebah and Zalmunna now in your hand, that we should give to your exhausted men bread?"

sn Gideon changes their actual statement (see v. 6) by saying exhausted men rather than "army." In this way he emphasizes the crisis his men were facing and highlights the insensitivity of the men of Succoth.

20 tn Heb "elders."

21 tc The translation follows the reading of several ancient versions (LXX, the Syriac Peshitta, and Vulgate) in assuming the form וַיָּדָשׁ (vayyadash) from the verb דּוּשׁ (dosh, "thresh") as in v. 7. The MT reads instead the form וַיֹּדַע (vayyoda', "make known"), a Hiphil form of יָדַע (yadah). In this case one could translate, "he used them [i.e., the thorns and briers] to teach the men of Succoth a lesson."

22 tn Heb "Where are?"

23 tn Heb "each one like the appearance of sons of the king."

24 tn The words "I swear" are supplied in the translation for clarification.

25 tn Or "Arise!"

26 tn Heb "did not draw his sword for he was afraid."

27 tn The words "to Gideon" are supplied in the translation for clarification.

28 tn Or "Arise."

29 tn Heb "for as the man is his strength."

30 tn Heb "arose and killed."

31 tn Heb "hand."

32 tn Heb "said to them."

33 tn Heb "Give to me, each one, an earring from his plunder."

34 tn Heb "they"; the referent (the Midianites) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

"We are happy to give you earrings."[1] So they[2] spread out a garment, and each one threw an earring from his plunder onto it. 8:26 The total weight of the gold earrings he requested came to seventeen hundred gold shekels.[3] This was in addition to the crescent-shaped ornaments, jewelry,[4] purple clothing worn by the Midianite kings, and the necklaces on the camels.[5] 8:27 Gideon used all this to make[6] an ephod,[7] which he put in his hometown of Ophrah. All the Israelites[8] prostituted themselves to it by worshiping it[9] there. It became a snare to Gideon and his family.

Gideon's Story Ends

8:28 The Israelites humiliated Midian; the Midianites' fighting spirit was broken.[10] The land had rest for forty years during Gideon's time.[11] 8:29 Then Jerub-Baal son of Joash went home and settled down.[12] 8:30 Gideon fathered seventy sons through his many wives.[13] 8:31 His concubine,[14] who lived in Shechem, also gave him a son, whom he named Abimelech.[15] 8:32 Gideon son of Joash died at a very[16] old age and was buried in the tomb of his father Joash located in Ophrah of the Abiezrites.

Israel Returns to Baal-Worship

8:33 After Gideon died, the Israelites again prostituted themselves to the Baals. They made Baal-Berith[17] their god. 8:34 The Israelites did not remain true[18] to the LORD their God, who had delivered them from all the enemies who lived around them. 8:35 They did not treat[19] the family of Jerub-Baal (that is, Gideon) fairly in return for all the good he had done for Israel.

Abimelech Murders His Brothers

9:1 Now Abimelech son of Jerub-Baal went to Shechem to see his mother's relatives.[20] He said to them and to his mother's entire extended family,[21] 9:2 "Tell[22] all the leaders of Shechem this: 'Why would you want[23] to have seventy men, all Jerub-Baal's sons, ruling over you, when you can have just one ruler? Recall that I am your own flesh and blood.'"[24] 9:3 His mother's relatives[25] spoke on his behalf to[26] all the leaders of Shechem and reported his proposal.[27] The leaders were drawn to Abimelech;[28] they said, "He is our close relative."[29] 9:4 They paid him seventy silver shekels out of the temple of Baal-Berith. Abimelech then used the silver to hire some lawless, dangerous[30] men as his followers.[31] 9:5 He went to his father's home in Ophrah and murdered his half-brothers,[32] the seventy legitimate[33] sons of Jerub-Baal, on one stone. Only Jotham, Jerub-Baal's youngest son, escaped,[34] because he hid. 9:6 All the leaders of Shechem and Beth Millo assembled and then went and made Abimelech king by the oak near the pillar[35] in Shechem.

[1] tn Heb "We will indeed give."

[2] tc In the LXX the subject of this verb is singular, referring to Gideon rather than to the Israelites.

[3] sn Seventeen hundred gold shekels would be about 42.7 pounds (19.4 kilograms) of gold.

[4] tn Or "pendants."

[5] tn Heb "the ornaments which were on the necks of their camels."

[6] tn Heb "made it into."

[7] sn In Exod 28:4-6 and several other texts an ephod is described as a priestly or cultic garment. In some cases an ephod is used to obtain a divine oracle (1 Sam 23:9; 30:7). Here the ephod is made of gold and is described as being quite heavy (70-75 lbs?). Some identify it as an idol, but it was more likely a cultic object fashioned in the form of a garment which was used for oracular purposes. For discussion of the ephod in the OT, see C. F. Burney, Judges, 236-43, and R. de Vaux, Ancient Israel, 349-52.

[8] tn Heb "Israel" (a collective singular).

[9] tn The words "by worshiping it" are supplied in the translation for clarity.

[10] tn Heb "Midian was humbled before the Israelites, and they no longer lifted their heads."

[11] tn Heb "in the days of Gideon."

[12] tn Heb "went and lived in his house."

[13] tn Heb "Gideon had seventy sons who went out from his thigh, for he had many wives." The Hebrew word יָרֵךְ (yarekh, "thigh") is a euphemism here for the penis.

[14] sn A concubine was a slave woman in ancient Near Eastern societies who was the legal property of her master, but who could have legitimate sexual relations with her master. A concubine's status was more elevated than a mere servant, but she was not free and did not have the legal rights of a free wife. The children of a concubine could, in some instances, become equal heirs with the children of the free wife. After the period of the Judges concubines may have become more of a royal prerogative (2 Sam 21:10-14; 1 Kgs 11:3).

[15] sn The name Abimelech means "my father is king."

[16] tn Heb "good."

[17] sn Baal-Berith was a local manifestation of the Canaanite storm god. The name means, ironically, "Baal of the covenant." Israel's covenant allegiance had indeed shifted.

[18] tn Heb "remember."

[19] tn Heb "did not do loyalty with," or "did not act faithfully toward."

[20] tn Heb "brothers."

[21] tn Heb "to all the extended family of the house of the father of his mother."

[22] tn Heb "Speak into the ears of."

[23] tn Heb "What good is it to you?"

[24] tn Heb "your bone and your flesh."

[25] tn Heb "brothers."

[26] tn Heb "into the ears of."

[27] tn Heb "and all these words."

[28] tn Heb "Their heart was inclined after Abimelech."

[29] tn Heb "our brother."

[30] tn Heb "empty and reckless."

[31] tn Heb "and they followed him."

[32] tn Heb "his brothers."

[33] tn The word "legitimate" is not in the Hebrew text, but is supplied in the translation for clarification.

[34] tn Heb "remained."

[35] tc The translation assumes that the form in the Hebrew text (מַצָּב, mutsav) is a corruption of an original מַצֵּבָה (matsevah, "pillar"). The reference is probably to a pagan object of worship (cf. LXX).

Jotham's Parable

9:7 When Jotham heard the news,[1] he went and stood on the top of Mount Gerizim. He spoke loudly to the people below,[2] "Listen to me, leaders of Shechem, so that God may listen to you!

9:8 "The trees were determined to go out[3] and choose a king for themselves.[4] They said to the olive tree, 'Be our king!'[5] 9:9 But the olive tree said to them, 'I am not going to stop producing my oil, which is used to honor gods and men, just to sway above the other trees!'[6]

9:10 "So the trees said to the fig tree, 'You come and be our king!'[7] 9:11 But the fig tree said to them, 'I am not going to stop producing my sweet figs, my excellent fruit, just to sway above the other trees!'[8]

9:12 "So the trees said to the grapevine, 'You come and be our king!'[9] 9:13 But the grapevine said to them, 'I am not going to stop producing my wine, which makes gods and men so happy, just to sway above the other trees!'[10]

9:14 "So all the trees said to the thornbush, 'You come and be our king!'[11] 9:15 The thornbush said to the trees, 'If you really want to choose[12] me as your king, then come along, find safety under my branches![13] Otherwise[14] may fire blaze from the thornbush and consume the cedars of Lebanon!'

9:16 "Now, if you have shown loyalty and integrity when you made Abimelech king, if you have done right to Jerub-Baal and his family,[15] if you have properly repaid him[16] – 9:17 my father fought for you; he risked his life[17] and delivered you from Midian's power.[18] 9:18 But you have attacked[19] my father's family[20] today. You murdered his seventy legitimate[21] sons on one stone and made Abimelech, the son of his female slave, king over the leaders of Shechem, just because he is your close relative.[22] 9:19 So if you have shown loyalty and integrity to Jerub-Baal and his family[23] today, then may Abimelech bring you happiness and may you bring him happiness![24] 9:20 But if not, may fire blaze from Abimelech and consume the leaders of Shechem and Beth Millo! May fire also blaze from the leaders of Shechem and Beth Millo and consume Abimelech!" 9:21 Then Jotham ran away[25] to Beer and lived there to escape from[26] Abimelech his half-brother.[27]

God Fulfills Jotham's Curse

9:22 Abimelech commanded[28] Israel for three years. 9:23 God sent a spirit to stir up hostility[29] between Abimelech and the leaders of Shechem. He made the leaders of Shechem disloyal[30] to Abimelech. 9:24 He did this so the violent deaths of Jerub-Baal's seventy sons might be avenged and Abimelech, their half-brother[31] who murdered them, might have to pay for their spilled blood, along with the leaders of Shechem who helped him murder them.[32]

---

1 tn Heb "And they reported to Jotham." The subject of the plural verb is indefinite.

2 tn Heb "He lifted his voice and called and said to them."

3 tn Heb "Going they went, the trees." The precise emphatic force of the infinitive absolute ("Going") is not entirely clear. Perhaps here it indicates determination, as in Gen 31:30, where one might translate, "You have insisted on going away."

4 tn Heb "to anoint [with oil] over them a king."

5 tn Or "Rule over us!"

6 tn Heb "Should I stop my abundance, with which they honor gods and men, and go to sway over the trees?" The negative sentence in the translation reflects the force of the rhetorical question.

7 tn Or "and rule over us!"

8 tn Heb "Should I stop my sweetness and my good fruit and go to sway over the trees? The negative sentence in the translation reflects the force of the rhetorical question.

9 tn Or "and rule over us!"

10 tn Heb "Should I stop my wine, which makes happy gods and men, and go to sway over the trees?" The negative sentence in the translation reflects the force of the rhetorical question.

11 tn Or "and rule over us!"

12 tn Heb "are about to anoint [with oil]."

13 tn Heb "in my shade."

14 tn Heb "If not."

15 tn Heb "house."

16 tn Heb "if according to the deeds of his hands you have done to him."

17 tc Heb "threw his life out in front," that is, "exposed himself to danger." The MT form מִנֶּגֶד (minneged, "from before") should probably be read as מִנֶּגְדּוֹ (minnegdo, "from before him"); haplography of vav has likely occurred here in the MT.

18 tn Heb "hand."

19 tn Heb "have risen up against."

20 tn Heb "house."

21 tn The word "legitimate" is not in the Hebrew text, but is supplied in the translation for clarification.

22 tn Heb "your brother."

23 tn Heb "house."

24 tn Heb "then rejoice in Abimelech, and may he also rejoice in you."

25 tn Heb "fled and ran away and went."

26 tn Heb "from before."

27 tn Heb "his brother."

28 tn The Hebrew verb translated "commanded" (שָׂרַר, sarar), which appears only here in Judges, differs from the ones employed earlier in this chapter (מָשַׁל [mashal] and מָלַךְ [malakh]).

sn Abimelech commanded Israel. Perhaps while ruling as king over the city-state of Shechem, Abimelech also became a leader of the Israelite tribal alliance (see R. G. Boling, Judges [AB], 175).

29 tn Heb "an evil spirit." A nonphysical, spirit being is in view, like the one who volunteered to deceive Ahab (1 Kgs 22:21). The traditional translation, "evil spirit," implies the being is inherently wicked, perhaps even demonic, but this is not necessarily the case. The Hebrew adjective רָעָה (ra'ah) can have a nonethical sense, "harmful; dangerous; calamitous." When modifying רוּחַ (ruakh, "spirit") it may simply indicate that the being in view causes harm to the object of God's judgment. G. F. Moore (Judges [ICC], 253) here refers to a "mischief-making spirit."

30 tn Heb "The leaders of Shechem were disloyal." The words "he made" are supplied in the translation for clarification.

31 tn Heb "their brother."

32 tn Heb "so that the violence done to the seventy sons of Jerub-Baal might come, and their blood might be placed on Abimelech, their brother, who murdered them, and upon the leaders of Shechem, who strengthened his hands to murder his brothers."

9:25 The leaders of Shechem rebelled against Abimelech by putting[1] bandits in[2] the hills, who robbed everyone who traveled by on the road. But Abimelech found out about it.[3]

9:26 Gaal son of Ebed[4] came through Shechem with his brothers. The leaders of Shechem transferred their loyalty to him.[5] 9:27 They went out to the field, harvested their grapes,[6] squeezed out the juice,[7] and celebrated. They came to the temple[8] of their god and ate, drank, and cursed Abimelech. 9:28 Gaal son of Ebed said, "Who is Abimelech and who is Shechem, that we should serve him? Is he not the son of Jerub-Baal, and is not Zebul the deputy he appointed?[9] Serve the sons of Hamor, the father of Shechem! But why should we serve Abimelech?[10] 9:29 If only these men[11] were under my command,[12] I would get rid of Abimelech!" He challenged Abimelech,[13] "Muster[14] your army and come out for battle!"[15]

9:30 When Zebul, the city commissioner, heard the words of Gaal son of Ebed, he was furious.[16] 9:31 He sent messengers to Abimelech, who was in Arumah,[17] reporting, "Beware![18] Gaal son of Ebed and his brothers are coming[19] to Shechem and inciting the city to rebel against you.[20] 9:32 Now, come up[21] at night with your men[22] and set an ambush in the field outside the city.[23] 9:33 In the morning at sunrise quickly attack the city. When he and his men come out to fight you, do what you can to him."[24]

9:34 So Abimelech and all his men came up[25] at night and set an ambush outside Shechem – they divided into[26] four units. 9:35 When Gaal son of Ebed came out and stood at the entrance to the city's gate, Abimelech and his men got up from their hiding places. 9:36 Gaal saw the men[27] and said to Zebul, "Look, men are coming down from the tops of the hills." But Zebul said to him, "You are seeing the shadows on the hills – it just looks like men."[28] 9:37 Gaal again said, "Look, men are coming down from the very center[29] of the land. A unit[30] is coming by way of the Oak Tree of the Diviners."[31] 9:38 Zebul said to him, "Where now are your bragging words,[32] 'Who is Abimelech that we should serve him?' Are these not the men[33] you sn Putting bandits in the hills. This piracy certainly interrupted or discouraged trade, and probably deprived Abimelech of tariffs or tribute. See C. F. Burney, Judges, 277; G. F. Moore, Judges (ICC), 253.

1 tn Heb "set against him bandits."

2 tn Heb "on the tops of."

3 tn Heb "It was told to Abimelech."

4 sn The name Gaal derives from, or at least sounds like, a Hebrew verb meaning "to abhor, loathe." His father's name, Ebed, means "servant." Perhaps then this could be translated, "loathsome one, son of a servant." This individual's very name (which may be the narrator's nickname for him, not his actual name) seems to hint at his immoral character and lowly social status.

5 tn Heb "trusted in him." Here the verb probably describes more than a mental attitude. It is likely that the Shechemites made an alliance with Gaal and were now trusting him for protection in return for their loyalty (and probably tribute).

6 tn Heb "vineyards."

7 tn Heb "stomped" or "trampled." This refers to the way in which the juice was squeezed out in the wine vats by stepping on the grapes with one's bare feet. For a discussion of grape harvesting in ancient Israel, see O. Borowski, Agriculture in Iron Age Israel, 110-14.

8 tn Heb "house."

9 tn Heb "and Zebul his appointee."

10 tn Heb "him"; the referent (Abimelech) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

11 tn Heb "people."

12 tn Heb "in my hand."

sn If only these men were under my command. One might assume from v. 26b that the men were already at his disposal, but perhaps that was not one of the terms of the agreement. Another possibility is that v. 26 is a general summary statement, with vv. 27-29 then detailing how the alliance with Gaal came about.

13 tn Heb "said to Abimelech." On the other hand, the preposition לְ (lamed) prefixed to the proper name may be vocative (see R. G. Boling, Judges [AB], 178). If so, one could translate, "He boasted, 'Abimelech....'"

14 tn Heb "Make numerous."

15 tn The words "for battle" are interpretive.

16 tn Heb "his anger burned."

17 tn The form בְּתַרְמָה (bᵉtarmah) in the Hebrew text, which occurs only here, has traditionally been understood to mean "secretly" or "with deception." If this is correct, it is derived from II רָמָה (ramah, "to deceive"). Some interpreters object, pointing out that this would imply Zebul was trying to deceive Abimelech, which is clearly not the case in this context. But this objection is unwarranted. If retained, the phrase would refer instead to deceptive measures used by Zebul to avoid the suspicion of Gaal when he dispatched the messengers from Shechem. The present translation assumes an emendation to "in Arumah" (בָּארוּמָה, ba'rumah), a site mentioned in v. 41 as the headquarters of Abimelech. Confusion of alef and tav in archaic Hebrew script, while uncommon, is certainly not unimaginable.

18 tn Heb "Look!"

19 tn The participle, as used here, suggests Gaal and his brothers are in the process of arriving, but the preceding verses imply they have already settled in. Perhaps Zebul uses understatement to avoid the appearance of negligence on his part. After all, if he made the situation sound too bad, Abimelech, when he was informed, might ask why he had allowed this rebellion to reach such a stage.

20 tn The words "to rebel" are interpretive. The precise meaning of the Hebrew verb צוּר (tsur) is unclear here. It is best to take it in the sense of "to instigate; to incite; to provoke" (see Deut 2:9, 19 and R. G. Boling, Judges [AB], 178).

21 tn Heb "arise."

22 tn Heb "you and the people who are with you."

23 tn The words "outside the city" are supplied in the translation for clarification.

24 tn Heb "Look! He and the people who are with him will come out to you, and you will do to him what your hand finds [to do]."

25 tn Heb "and all the people who were with him arose."

26 tn Heb "four heads." The words "they divided into" are supplied in the translation for clarification.

27 tn Heb "the people" (also in vv. 38, 43, 48). These were warriors, so "men" has been used in the translation, since in ancient Israelite culture soldiers would have been exclusively males.

28 tn Heb "the shadow on the hills you are seeing, like men."

29 tn Heb "navel." On the background of the Hebrew expression "the navel of the land," see R. G. Boling, Judges (AB), 178-79.

30 tn Heb "head."

31 tn Some English translations simply transliterated this as a place name (Heb "Elon-meonenim"); cf. NAB, NRSV.

32 tn Heb "is your mouth that says."

33 tn Heb "the people."

insulted?[1] Go out now and fight them!" 9:39 So Gaal led the leaders of Shechem out[2] and fought Abimelech. 9:40 Abimelech chased him, and Gaal[3] ran from him. Many Shechemites[4] fell wounded at the entrance of the gate. 9:41 Abimelech went back[5] to Arumah; Zebul drove Gaal and his brothers out of Shechem.[6]

9:42 The next day the Shechemites[7] came out to the field. When Abimelech heard about it,[8] 9:43 he took his men[9] and divided them into three units and set an ambush in the field. When he saw the people coming out of the city,[10] he attacked and struck them down.[11] 9:44 Abimelech and his units[12] attacked and blocked[13] the entrance to the city's gate. Two units then attacked all the people in the field and struck them down. 9:45 Abimelech fought against the city all that day. He captured the city and killed all the people in it. Then he leveled[14] the city and spread salt over it.[15]

9:46 When all the leaders of the Tower of Shechem[16] heard the news, they went to the stronghold[17] of the temple of El-Berith.[18] 9:47 Abimelech heard[19] that all the leaders of the Tower of Shechem were in one place.[20] 9:48 He and all his men[21] went up on Mount Zalmon. He[22] took an ax[23] in his hand and cut off a tree branch. He put it[24] on his shoulder and said to his men, "Quickly, do what you have just seen me do!"[25] 9:49 So each of his men also cut off a branch and followed Abimelech. They put the branches[26] against the stronghold and set fire to it.[27] All the people[28] of the Tower of Shechem died – about a thousand men and women.

9:50 Abimelech moved on[29] to Thebez; he besieged and captured it.[30] 9:51 There was a fortified[31] tower[32] in the center of the city, so all the men and women, as well as the city's leaders, ran into it and locked the entrance. Then they went up to the roof of the tower. 9:52 Abimelech came and attacked the tower. When he approached the entrance of the tower to set it on fire, 9:53 a woman threw an upper millstone[33] down on his[34] head and shattered his skull. 9:54 He quickly called to the young man who carried his weapons,[35] "Draw your sword and kill me, so they will not say,[36] 'A woman killed him.'" So the young man stabbed him and he died. 9:55 When the Israelites saw that Abimelech was dead, they went home.[37]

9:56 God repaid Abimelech for the evil he did to his father by murdering his seventy half-brothers.[38] 9:57 God also repaid the men of Shechem for their evil deeds. The curse spoken by Jotham son of Jerub-Baal fell[39] on them.

---

[1] tn Or "despised."

[2] tn Heb "So Gaal went out before the leaders of Shechem."

[3] tn Heb "he"; the referent (Gaal) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[4] tn The word "Shechemites" is not in the Hebrew text, but is supplied for clarification.

[5] tc Heb "stayed." Some scholars revise the vowel pointing on this verb from that of the MT, resulting in the translation "and he returned to." The Lucianic recension of the LXX understands the word in this way.

[6] tn Heb "drove...out from dwelling in Shechem."

[7] tn Heb "the people"; the referent (the Shechemites) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[8] tn Heb "And they told Abimelech."

[9] tn Heb "his people."

[10] tn Heb "And he saw and, look, the people were coming out of the city."

[11] tn Heb "he arose against them and struck them."

[12] tn Or possibly, "the unit that was with him."

[13] tn Heb "stood [at]."

[14] tn Or "destroyed."

[15] tn Heb "sowed it with salt."

sn The spreading of salt over the city was probably a symbolic act designed to place the site under a curse, deprive it of fertility, and prevent any future habitation. The practice is referred to outside the Bible as well. For example, one of the curses in the Aramaic Sefire treaty states concerning Arpad: "May Hadad sow in them salt and weeds, and may it not be mentioned again!" See J. A. Fitzmyer, The Aramaic Inscriptions of Sefire (BibOr), 15, 53. Deut 29:23, Jer 17:6, and Zeph 2:9 associate salt flats or salty regions with infertility and divine judgment.

[16] sn Perhaps the Tower of Shechem was a nearby town, distinct from Shechem proper, or a tower within the city.

[17] tn Apparently this rare word refers here to the most inaccessible area of the temple, perhaps the inner sanctuary or an underground chamber. It appears only here and in 1 Sam 13:6, where it is paired with "cisterns" and refers to subterranean or cave-like hiding places.

[18] sn The name El-Berith means "God of the Covenant." It is probably a reference to the Canaanite high god El.

[19] tn Heb "and it was told to Abimelech."

[20] tn Heb "were assembled."

[21] tn Heb "his people."

[22] tn Heb "Abimelech." The proper name has been replaced with the pronoun ("he") due to considerations of English style.

[23] tn The Hebrew text has the plural here.

[24] tn Heb "he lifted it and put [it]."

[25] tn Heb "What you have seen me do, quickly do like me."

[26] tn The words "the branches" are supplied in the translation for clarification.

[27] tn Heb "they kindled over them the stronghold with fire."

[28] tn Or "men," but the word seems to have a more general sense here, as the conclusion to the sentence suggests.

[29] tn Or "went."

[30] tn Heb "he camped near Thebez and captured it."

[31] tn Or "strong."

[32] tn Or "fortress." The same Hebrew term occurs once more in this verse and twice in v. 52.

[33] sn A hand mill consisted of an upper stone and larger lower stone. One would turn the upper stone with a handle to grind the grain, which was placed between the stones. An upper millstone, which was typically about two inches thick and a foot or so in diameter, probably weighed 25-30 pounds (11.4-13.6 kg). See G. F. Moore, Judges (ICC), 268; C. F. Burney, Judges, 288.

[34] tn Heb "Abimelech's." The proper name has been replaced by the pronoun "his" in the translation in keeping with conventions of English narrative style.

[35] tn The Hebrew text adds, "and said to him." This has not been included in the translation for stylistic reasons.

[36] tn The Hebrew text adds, "concerning me." This has not been included in the translation for stylistic reasons.

[37] tn Heb "each to his own place."

[38] tn Heb "seventy brothers."

[39] tn Heb "came."

Stability Restored

10:1 After Abimelech's death,[1] Tola son of Puah, grandson[2] of Dodo, from the tribe of Issachar,[3] rose up to deliver Israel. He lived in Shamir in the Ephraimite hill country. 10:2 He led[4] Israel for twenty-three years, then died and was buried in Shamir.

10:3 Jair the Gileadite rose up after him; he led Israel for twenty-two years. 10:4 He had thirty sons who rode on thirty donkeys and possessed thirty cities. To this day these towns are called Havvoth Jair[5] – they are in the land of Gilead.[6] 10:5 Jair died and was buried in Kamon.

The Lord's Patience Runs Short

10:6 The Israelites again did evil in the LORD's sight.[7] They worshiped[8] the Baals and the Ashtoreths,[9] as well as the gods of Syria, Sidon,[10] Moab, the Ammonites, and the Philistines.[11] They abandoned the LORD and did not worship[12] him. 10:7 The LORD was furious with Israel[13] and turned them over to[14] the Philistines and Ammonites. 10:8 They ruthlessly oppressed[15] the Israelites that eighteenth year[16] – that is, all the Israelites living east of the Jordan in Amorite country in Gilead. 10:9 The Ammonites crossed the Jordan to fight with Judah, Benjamin, and Ephraim.[17] Israel suffered greatly.[18]

10:10 The Israelites cried out for help to the LORD: "We have sinned against you. We abandoned our God and worshiped[19] the Baals." 10:11 The LORD said to the Israelites, "Did I not deliver you from Egypt, the Amorites, the Ammonites, the Philistines, 10:12 the Sidonians, Amalek, and Midian[20] when they oppressed you?[21] You cried out for help to me, and I delivered you from their power.[22] 10:13 But since you abandoned me and worshiped[23] other gods, I will not deliver you again. 10:14 Go and cry for help to the gods you have chosen! Let them deliver you from trouble!"[24] 10:15 But the Israelites said to the LORD, "We have sinned. You do to us as you see fit,[25] but deliver us today!"[26] 10:16 They threw away the foreign gods they owned[27] and worshiped[28] the LORD. Finally the LORD grew tired of seeing Israel suffer so much.[29]

An Outcast Becomes a General

10:17 The Ammonites assembled[30] and camped in Gilead; the Israelites gathered together and camped in Mizpah. 10:18 The leaders[31] of Gilead said to one another, "Who is willing to lead the charge[32] against the Ammonites? He will become the leader of all who live in Gilead!"

11:1 Now Jephthah the Gileadite was a brave warrior. His mother was a prostitute, but Gilead was his father.[33] 11:2 Gilead's wife also gave[34] him sons. When his wife's sons grew up, they made Jephthah leave and said to him, "You are not going to inherit any of our father's wealth,[35] because you are another woman's

[9] sn The Ashtoreths were local manifestations of the goddess Astarte.

[10] map For location see Map1-A1; JP3-F3; JP4-F3.

[11] tn Heb "the gods of Syria, the gods of Sidon, the gods of Moab, the gods of the Ammonites, and the gods of the Philistines."

[12] tn Or "serve"; or "follow."

[13] tn Or "the LORD's anger burned [or "raged"] against Israel."

[14] tn Heb "sold them into the hands of."

[15] tn Heb "shattered and crushed." The repetition of similar sounding synonyms (רָעַץ [ra'ats] and רָצַץ [ratsats]) is for emphasis; רָצַץ appears in the Polel, adding further emphasis to the affirmation.

[16] tn The phrase שְׁמֹנֶה עֶשְׂרֵה שָׁנָה (shemoneh 'esreh shanah) could be translated "eighteen years," but this would be difficult after the reference to "that year." It is possible that v. 8b is parenthetical, referring to an eighteen year long period of oppression east of the Jordan which culminated in hostilities against all Israel (including Judah, see v. 9) in the eighteenth year. It is simpler to translate the phrase as an ordinal number, though the context does not provide the point of reference. (See Gen 14:4-5 and R. G. Boling, Judges [AB], 191-92.) In this case, the following statement specifies which "Israelites" are in view.

[17] tn Heb "the house of Ephraim."

[18] tn Or "Israel experienced great distress." Perhaps here the verb has the nuance "hemmed in."

[19] tn Or "served"; or "followed."

[20] tc The translation follows the LXX which reads "Midian"; the Hebrew text has "Maon."

[21] tn The words "Did I not deliver you" are interpretive. The Hebrew text simply reads, "Is it not from Egypt...when they oppressed you?" Perhaps the incomplete sentence reflects the LORD's frustration.

[22] tn Heb "hand."

[23] tn Or "served"; or "followed."

[24] tn Heb "in your time of trouble."

[25] tn Heb "according to all whatever is good in your eyes."

[26] sn You do to us as you see fit, but deliver us today. The request seems contradictory, but it can be explained in one of two ways. They may be asking for relief from their enemies and direct discipline from God's hand. Or they may mean, "In the future you can do whatever you like to us, but give us relief from what we're suffering right now."

[27] tn Heb "from their midst."

[28] tn Or "served"; or "followed."

[29] tn Heb "And his spirit grew short [i.e., impatient] with the suffering of Israel." The Hebrew noun נֶפֶשׁ (nefesh) also appears as the subject of the verb קָצַר (qatsar) in Num 21:4 (the Israelites grow impatient wandering in the wilderness), Judg 16:16 (Samson grows impatient with Delilah's constant nagging), and Zech 11:8 (Zechariah grows impatient with the three negligent "shepherds").

[30] tn Or "were summoned;" or "were mustered."

[31] tn Heb "the people, the officers."

[32] tn Heb "Who is the man who will begin fighting."

[33] tn Heb "Now he was the son of a woman, a prostitute, and Gilead fathered Jephthah."

son." 11:3 So Jephthah left[1] his half-brothers[2] and lived in the land of Tob. Lawless men joined Jephthah's gang and traveled with him.[3] 11:4 It was some time after this when the Ammonites fought with Israel. 11:5 When the Ammonites attacked,[4] the leaders[5] of Gilead asked Jephthah to come back[6] from the land of Tob. 11:6 They said,[7] "Come, be our commander, so we can fight with the Ammonites." 11:7 Jephthah said to the leaders of Gilead, "But you hated me and made me leave[8] my father's house. Why do you come to me now, when you are in trouble?" 11:8 The leaders of Gilead said to Jephthah, "That may be true,[9] but now we pledge to you our loyalty.[10] Come with us and fight with the Ammonites. Then you will become the leader[11] of all who live in Gilead."[12] 11:9 Jephthah said to the leaders of Gilead, "All right![13] If you take me back to fight with the Ammonites and the LORD gives them to me,[14] I will be your leader."[15] 11:10 The leaders of Gilead said to Jephthah, "The LORD will judge any grievance you have against us,[16] if we do not do as you say."[17] 11:11 So Jephthah went with the leaders of Gilead. The people made him their leader and commander. Jephthah repeated the terms of the agreement[18] before the LORD in Mizpah.

Jephthah Gives a History Lesson

11:12 Jephthah sent messengers to the Ammonite king, saying, "Why have[19] you come against me to attack my land?" 11:13 The Ammonite king said to Jephthah's messengers, "Because Israel stole[20] my land when they[21] came up from Egypt – from the Arnon River in the south to the Jabbok River in the north, and as far west as the Jordan.[22] Now return it[23] peaceably!"

11:14 Jephthah sent messengers back to the Ammonite king 11:15 and said to him, "This is what Jephthah says, 'Israel did not steal[24] the land of Moab and the land of the Ammonites. 11:16 When they left[25] Egypt, Israel traveled[26] through the desert as far as the Red Sea and then came to Kadesh. 11:17 Israel sent messengers to the king of Edom, saying, "Please allow us[27] to pass through your land." But the king of Edom rejected the request.[28] Israel sent the same request to the king of Moab, but he was unwilling to cooperate.[29] So Israel stayed at Kadesh. 11:18 Then Israel[30] went through the desert and bypassed the land of Edom and the land of Moab. They traveled east of the land of Moab and camped on the other side of the Arnon River;[31] they did not go through Moabite territory (the Arnon was Moab's border). 11:19 Israel sent messengers to King Sihon, the Amorite king who ruled in Heshbon, and said to him, "Please allow us to pass through your land to our land."[32] 11:20 But Sihon did not trust Israel to pass through his territory. He[33] assembled his

2 tn Heb "brothers."

3 tn Heb "Empty men joined themselves to Jephthah and went out with him."

4 tn Heb "When the Ammonites fought with Israel."

5 tn Or "elders."

6 tn Heb "went to take Jephthah."

7 tn Heb "to Jephthah."

8 tn Heb "Did you not hate me and make me leave?"

9 tn Heb "therefore"; "even so." For MT לָכֵן (lakhen, "therefore") the LXX has an opposite reading, "not so," which seems to be based on the Hebrew words לֹא כֵן (lo' khen).

10 tn Heb "we have returned to you." For another example of שׁוּב אֶל (shuv 'el) in the sense of "give allegiance to," see 1 Kgs 12:27b.

11 sn Then you will become the leader. The leaders of Gilead now use the word רֹאשׁ (ro'sh, "head, leader"), the same term that appeared in their original, general offer (see 10:18). In their initial offer to Jephthah they had simply invited him to be their קָצִין (qatsin, "commander"; v. 6). When he resists they must offer him a more attractive reward – rulership over the region. See R. G. Boling, Judges (AB), 198.

12 tn Heb "leader of us and all who live in Gilead."

13 tn "All right" is supplied in the translation for clarification.

14 tn Heb "places them before me."

15 tn Some translate the final statement as a question, "will I really be your leader?" An affirmative sentence is preferable. Jephthah is repeating the terms of the agreement in an official manner. In v. 10 the leaders legally agree to these terms.

16 tn Heb "The LORD will be the one who hears between us." For the idiom שָׁמַע בֵּין (shama' bayin, "to hear between"), see Deut 1:16.

17 sn The LORD will judge...if we do not do as you say. The statement by the leaders of Gilead takes the form of a legally binding oath, which obligates them to the terms of the agreement.

18 tn Heb "spoke all his words." This probably refers to the "words" recorded in v. 9. Jephthah repeats the terms of the agreement at the LORD's sanctuary, perhaps to ratify the contract or to emphasize the Gileadites' obligation to keep their part of the bargain. Another option is to translate, "Jephthah conducted business before the LORD in Mizpah." In this case, the statement is a general reference to the way Jephthah ruled. He recognized the LORD's authority and made his decisions before the LORD.

19 tn Heb "What to me and to you that...?"

20 tn Or "took"; or "seized."

21 tn Heb "he" (a collective singular).

22 tn Heb "from the Arnon to the Jabbok and to the Jordan." The word "River" has been supplied in the translation with "Arnon" and "Jabbok," because these are less familiar to modern readers than the Jordan.

23 tc The translation assumes a singular suffix ("[return] it"); the Hebrew text has a plural suffix ("[return] them"), which, if retained, might refer to the cities of the land.

24 tn Or "take"; or "seize."

25 tn Heb "For when they went up from."

26 tn Or "went."

27 tn Heb "me." (Collective Israel is the speaker.)

28 tn Heb "did not listen."

29 tn Heb "Also to the king of Moab he sent, but he was unwilling."

30 tn Heb "he"; the referent (Israel; the pronoun in the Hebrew text represents a collective singular) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

31 tn The word "River" is not in the Hebrew text, but has been supplied in the translation for clarity.

32 tn Heb "to my place."

33 tn Heb "Sihon." The proper name ("Sihon") has been replaced in the translation by the pronoun ("he") because of English style; a repetition of the proper name here would be redundant in English.

whole army,[1] camped in Jahaz, and fought with Israel. 11:21 The LORD God of Israel handed Sihon and his whole army over to Israel and they defeated them. Israel took[2] all the land of the Amorites who lived in that land. 11:22 They took all the Amorite territory from the Arnon River on the south to the Jabbok River on the north, from the desert in the east to the Jordan in the west.[3] 11:23 Since[4] the LORD God of Israel has driven out[5] the Amorites before his people Israel, do you think you can just take it from them?[6] 11:24 You have the right to take what Chemosh your god gives you, but we will take the land of all whom the LORD our God has driven out before us.[7] 11:25 Are you really better than Balak son of Zippor, king of Moab? Did he dare to quarrel with Israel? Did he dare to fight with them?[8] 11:26 Israel has been living in Heshbon and its nearby towns, in Aroer and its nearby towns, and in all the cities along the Arnon for three hundred years! Why did you not reclaim them during that time? 11:27 I have not done you wrong,[9] but you are doing wrong[10] by attacking me. May the LORD, the Judge, judge this day between the Israelites and the Ammonites!'" 11:28 But the Ammonite king disregarded[11] the message sent by Jephthah.[12]

A Foolish Vow Spells Death for a Daughter

11:29 The LORD's spirit empowered[13] Jephthah. He passed through Gilead and Manasseh and went[14] to Mizpah in Gilead. From there he approached the Ammonites.[15] 11:30 Jephthah made a vow to the LORD, saying, "If you really do hand the Ammonites over to me, 11:31 then whoever is the first to come through[16] the doors of my house to meet me when I return safely from fighting the Ammonites – he[17] will belong to the LORD and[18] I will offer him up as a burnt sacrifice." 11:32 Jephthah approached[19] the Ammonites to fight with them, and the LORD handed them over to him. 11:33 He defeated them from Aroer all the way to Minnith – twenty cities in all, even as far as Abel Keramim! He wiped them out![20] The Israelites humiliated the Ammonites.[21]

11:34 When Jephthah came home to Mizpah, there was his daughter hurrying out[22] to meet him, dancing to the rhythm of tambourines.[23] She was his only child; except for her he had no son or daughter. 11:35 When he saw her, he ripped his clothes and said, "Oh no! My daugh-

1 tn Heb "all his people" (also in the following verse).

2 tn That is, took as its own possession.

3 tn Heb "from the Arnon to the Jabbok, and from the desert to the Jordan." The word "River" has been supplied in the translation with "Arnon" and "Jabbok," because these are less familiar to modern readers than the Jordan.

4 tn Heb "Now."

5 tn Or "dispossessed."

6 tn Heb "will you dispossess him [i.e., Israel; or possibly "it," i.e., the territory]?" There is no interrogative marker in the Hebrew text.

7 tn Heb "Is it not so that what Chemosh your god causes you to possess, you possess, and all whom the LORD our God dispossesses before us we will possess?" Jephthah speaks of Chemosh as if he is on a par with the LORD God of Israel. This does not necessarily mean that Jephthah is polytheistic or that he recognizes the LORD as only a local deity. He may simply be assuming the Ammonite king's perspective for the sake of argument. Other texts, as well as the extrabiblical Mesha inscription, associate Chemosh with Moab, while Milcom is identified as the god of the Ammonites. Why then does Jephthah refer to Chemosh as the Ammonite god? Ammon had likely conquered Moab and the Ammonite king probably regarded himself as heir of all territory formerly held by Moab. Originally Moab had owned the disputed territory (cf. Num 21:26-29), meaning that Chemosh was regarded as the god of the region (see R. G. Boling, Judges [AB], 203-4). Jephthah argues that Chemosh had long ago relinquished claim to the area (by allowing Sihon to conquer it), while the LORD had long ago established jurisdiction over it (by taking it from Sihon and giving it to Israel). Both sides should abide by the decisions of the gods which had stood firm for three hundred years.

8 tn The Hebrew grammatical constructions of all three rhetorical questions indicate emphasis, which "really" and "dare to" are intended to express in the translation.

sn Jephthah argues that the Ammonite king should follow the example of Balak, who, once thwarted in his attempt to bring a curse on Israel, refused to attack Israel and returned home (Num 22-24).

9 tn Or "sinned against you."

10 tn Or "evil."

11 tn Heb "did not listen to."

12 tn Heb "Jephthah's words which he sent to him."

13 tn Heb "was on."

14 tn Heb "passed through."

15 tn Heb "From Mizpah in Gilead he passed through [to] the Ammonites."

16 tn Heb "the one coming out, who comes out from." The text uses a masculine singular participle with prefixed article, followed by a relative pronoun and third masculine singular verb. The substantival masculine singular participle הַיּוֹצֵא (hayyotse', "the one coming out") is used elsewhere of inanimate objects (such as a desert [Num 21:13] or a word [Num 32:24]) or persons (Jer 5:6; 21:9; 38:2). In each case context must determine the referent. Jephthah may have envisioned an animal meeting him, since the construction of Iron Age houses would allow for an animal coming through the doors of a house (see R. G. Boling, Judges [AB], 208). But the fact that he actually does offer up his daughter indicates the language of the vow is fluid enough to encompass human beings, including women. He probably intended such an offering from the very beginning, but he obviously did not expect his daughter to meet him first.

17 tn The language is fluid enough to include women and perhaps even animals, but the translation uses the masculine pronoun because the Hebrew form is grammatically masculine.

18 tn Some translate "or," suggesting that Jephthah makes a distinction between humans and animals. According to this view, if a human comes through the door, then Jephthah will commit him/her to the LORD's service, but if an animal comes through the doors, he will offer it up as a sacrifice. However, it is far more likely that the Hebrew construction (vav [ו] + perfect) specifies how the subject will become the LORD's, that is, by being offered up as a sacrifice. For similar constructions, where the apodosis of a conditional sentence has at least two perfects (each with vav) in sequence, see Gen 34:15-16; Exod 18:16.

19 tn Heb "passed over to."

20 tn Heb "with a very great slaughter."

21 tn Heb "The Ammonites were humbled before the Israelites."

22 tn Heb "Look! His daughter was coming out."

23 tn Heb "with tambourines and dancing."

ter! You have completely ruined me![1] You have brought me disaster![2] I made an oath to the LORD, and I cannot break it."[3] 11:36 She said to him, "My father, since[4] you made an oath to the LORD, do to me as you promised.[5] After all, the LORD vindicated you before[6] your enemies, the Ammonites." 11:37 She then said to her father, "Please grant me this one wish.[7] For two months allow me to walk through the hills with my friends and mourn my virginity."[8] 11:38 He said, "You may go." He permitted her to leave[9] for two months. She went with her friends and mourned her virginity as she walked through the hills.[10] 11:39 After two months she returned to her father, and he did to her as he had vowed. She died a virgin.[11] Her tragic death gave rise to a custom in Israel.[12] 11:40 Every year[13] Israelite women commemorate[14] the daughter of Jephthah the Gileadite for four days.[15]

Civil Strife Mars the Victory

12:1 The Ephraimites assembled[16] and crossed over to Zaphon. They said to Jephthah, "Why did you go and fight[17] with the Ammonites without asking[18] us to go with you? We will burn your house down right over you!"[19] 12:2 Jephthah said to them, "My people and I were entangled in controversy with the Ammonites.[20] I asked for your help, but you did not deliver me from their power.[21] 12:3 When I saw that you were not going to help,[22] I risked my life[23] and advanced against[24] the Ammonites, and the LORD handed them over to me. Why have you come up[25] to fight with me today?" 12:4 Jephthah assembled all the men of Gilead and they fought with Ephraim. The men of Gilead defeated Ephraim, because the Ephraimites insulted them, saying,[26] "You Gileadites are refugees in Ephraim, living within Ephraim's and Manasseh's territory."[27] 12:5 The Gileadites captured the fords of the Jordan River[28] opposite Ephraim.[29] Whenever an Ephraimite fugitive[30] said, "Let me cross over," the men of Gilead asked[31] him, "Are you an Ephraimite?" If he said, "No," 12:6 then they said to him, "Say 'Shibboleth!'"[32] If he said, "Sibboleth" (and could not pronounce the word[33] correctly), they grabbed him and executed him right there at the fords of the Jordan. On that day forty-two thousand Ephraimites fell dead. 12:7 Jephthah

[1] tn Heb "you have brought me very low," or "you have knocked me to my knees." The infinitive absolute precedes the verb for emphasis.

[2] tn Heb "You are among [or "like"] those who trouble me."

[3] tn Heb "I opened my mouth to the LORD and I am not able to return."

[4] tn The conjunction "since" is supplied in the translation for clarification.

[5] tn Heb "you opened your mouth to the LORD, do to me according to [what] went out from your mouth."

[6] tn Or "has given you vengeance against."

[7] tn Heb "Let this thing be done for me."

[8] tn Heb "Leave me alone for two months so I can go and go down on the hills and weep over my virginity – I and my friends."

[9] tn Heb "he sent her."

[10] tn Heb "on the hills." The words "as she walked" are supplied.

[11] tn Heb "She had never known a man." Some understand this to mean that her father committed her to a life of celibacy, but the disjunctive clause (note the vav + subject + verb pattern) more likely describes her condition at the time the vow was fulfilled. (See G. F. Moore, Judges [ICC], 302-3; C. F. Burney, Judges, 324.) She died a virgin and never experienced the joys of marriage and motherhood.

[12] tn Heb "There was a custom in Israel."

[13] tn Heb "From days to days," a Hebrew idiom for "annually."

[14] tn Heb "go to commemorate." The rare Hebrew verb תָּנָה (tanah, "to tell; to repeat; to recount") occurs only here and in 5:11.

[15] tn The Hebrew text adds, "in the year." This is redundant (note "every year" at the beginning of the verse) and has not been included in the translation for stylistic reasons.

[16] tn Heb "the men of Ephraim were summoned [or "were mustered"]."

[17] tn Heb "cross over to fight."

[18] tn Or "calling"; or "summoning."

[19] tn Heb "Your house we will burn over you with fire."

[20] tn Heb A man of great strife I was and my people and the Ammonites."

[21] tn Heb "hand."

[22] tn Heb "you were no deliverer." Codex Alexandrinus (A) of the LXX has "no one was helping."

[23] tn Heb "I put my life in my hand."

[24] tn Heb "crossed over to."

[25] tn The Hebrew adds "against me" here. This is redundant in English and has not been included in the translation for stylistic reasons.

[26] tn Heb "because they said."

[27] tc Heb "Refugees of Ephraim are you, O Gilead, in the midst of Ephraim and in the midst of Manasseh." The LXX omits the entire second half of the verse (beginning with "because"). The words כִּי אָמְרוּ פְלֵיטֵי אֶפְרַיִם (ki 'amru p^{e}litey 'efrayim, "because they said, 'Refugees of Ephraim'") may have been accidentally copied from the next verse (cf. כִּי יֹאמְרוּ פְלֵי־מִי אֶפְרַיִם, ki yo'm^{e}ru pelitey 'efrayim) and the following words ("you, O Gilead...Manasseh") then added in an attempt to make sense of the verse. See G. F. Moore, Judges (ICC), 307-8, and C. F. Burney, Judges, 327. If the Hebrew text is retained, then the Ephraimites appear to be insulting the Gileadites by describing them as refugees who are squatting on Ephraim's and Manasseh's land. The present translation assumes that "Ephraim" is a genitive of location after "refugees."

[28] tn The word "River" is not in the Hebrew text, but is supplied in the translation for clarification.

[29] tn Or "against Ephraim," that is, so as to prevent Ephraim from crossing.

[30] tn The Hebrew text has a plural form here.

[31] tn Heb "say to."

[32] sn The inability of the Ephraimites to pronounce the word shibboleth the way the Gileadites did served as an identifying test. It illustrates that during this period there were differences in pronunciation between the tribes. The Hebrew word shibboleth itself means "stream" or "flood," and was apparently chosen simply as a test case without regard to its meaning.

[33] tn Heb "and could not prepare to speak." The precise meaning of יָכִין (yakhin) is unclear. Some understand it to mean "was not careful [to say it correctly]"; others emend to יָכֹל (yakhol, "was not able [to say it correctly]") or יָבִין (yavin, "did not understand [that he should say it correctly]"), which is read by a few Hebrew MSS.

He arranged for thirty of his daughters to be married outside his extended family,[6] and he arranged for thirty young women to be brought from outside as wives for his sons.[7] Ibzan[8] led[9] Israel for seven years; 12:10 then he[10] died and was buried in Bethlehem.

12:11 After him Elon the Zebulunite led[11] Israel for ten years.[12] 12:12 Then Elon the Zebulunite died and was buried in Aijalon in the land of Zebulun.

12:13 After him Abdon son of Hillel the Pirathonite led[13] Israel. 12:14 He had forty sons and thirty grandsons who rode on seventy donkeys. He led Israel for eight years. 12:15 Then Abdon son of Hillel the Pirathonite died and was buried in Pirathon in the land of Ephraim, in the hill country of the Amalekites.

Samson's Birth

13:1 The Israelites again did evil in the LORD's sight,[14] so the LORD handed them over to the Philistines for forty years.

13:2 There was a man named Manoah from Zorah, from the Danite tribe. His wife was infertile and childless.[15] 13:3 The LORD's angelic[16] messenger appeared to the woman and said to her, "You[17] are infertile and childless,[18] but you will conceive and have a son. 13:4 Now be careful! Do not drink wine or beer, and do not eat any food that will make you ritually unclean.[19] 13:5 Look, you will conceive and have a son.[20] You must never cut his hair,[21] for the child will be dedicated to God[22] from birth. He will begin to deliver Israel from the power[23] of the Philistines."

13:6 The woman went and said to her husband, "A man sent from God[24] came to me! He looked like God's angelic messenger – he was very awesome.[25] I did not ask him where he came from, and he did not tell me his name. 13:7 He said to me, 'Look, you will conceive and have a son.[26] So now, do not drink wine or beer and do not eat any food that will make you ritually unclean.[27] For the child will be dedicated[28] to God from birth till the day he dies.'"

13:8 Manoah prayed to the LORD,[29] "Please, Lord, allow the man sent from God[30] to visit[31] us again, so he can teach[32] us how we should raise[33] the child who will be born." 13:9 God answered Manoah's prayer.[34] God's angelic messenger visited[35] the woman again while she was sitting in the field. But her husband Manoah was not with her. 13:10 The woman ran at once and told her husband,[36] "Come quickly,[37] the man who visit-

[2] tn Heb "Jephthah the Gileadite." The proper name has been replaced by the pronoun ("he") in the translation for stylistic reasons.

[3] tc The Hebrew text has "in the cities of Gilead." The present translation has support from some ancient Greek textual witnesses.

[4] map For location see Map5-B1; Map7-E2; Map8-E2; Map10-B4.

[5] tn Traditionally, "judged."

[6] tn Heb "thirty daughters he sent off outside." Another option is to translate, "He arranged for his thirty daughters...." It is not clear if he had more than the "thirty daughters" mentioned in the text.

[7] tn Heb "and thirty daughters he brought for his sons from the outside."

[8] tn Heb "He"; the referent (Ibzan) has been specified in the translation for clarity and for English stylistic reasons.

[9] tn Traditionally, "judged."

[10] tn Heb "Ibzan." The pronoun "he" is used in the translation in keeping with English style, which tends to use a proper name first in a sentence followed by a pronoun rather than vice versa.

[11] tn Traditionally, "judged."

[12] tn Heb "...led Israel. He led Israel for ten years."

[13] tn Traditionally, "judged."

[14] tn Heb "in the eyes of."

[15] tn Heb "and had not given birth."

[16] tn The adjective "angelic" is interpretive (also in vv. 6, 9).

[17] tn Heb "Look, you."

[18] tn Heb "and have not given birth."

[19] tn Heb "eat anything unclean." Certain foods were regarded as ritually "unclean" (see Lev 11). Eating such food made one ritually "contaminated."

[20] tn Another option is to translate, "you are already pregnant and will have a son." The earlier reference to her being infertile (v. 3) suggests that her conception is still future, but it is possible that the earlier statement only reflects her perspective (as far as she is concerned, she is infertile). According to this interpretation, in v. 5 the angel reveals the truth to her – actually she has recently conceived and is now pregnant (see the translation in R. G. Boling, Judges [AB], 217). Usage favors this interpretation. The predicate adjective הָרָה (harah, "[be/become] pregnant") elsewhere has a past (1 Sam 4:19) or present (Gen 16:11; 38:25; 2 Sam 11:5) translation value. (The usage in Isa 7:14 is debated, but a present translation is definitely possible there.) A final, but less likely possibility, is that she miraculously conceived during the angel's speech, sometime between his statements recorded in vv. 3 and 5.

[21] tn Heb "a razor should not go up on his head."

[22] tn Or "set apart to God." Traditionally the Hebrew term נָזִיר (nazir) has been translated "Nazirite." The word is derived from the verb נָזַר (nazar, "to dedicate; to consecrate; to set apart").

[23] tn Heb "hand."

[24] tn Heb "The man of God."

[25] tn Heb "His appearance was like the appearance of the messenger of God, very awesome."

[26] tn See the note on the word "son" in 13:5, where this same statement occurs.

[27] tn Heb "eat anything unclean." Certain foods were regarded as ritually "unclean" (see Lev 11). Eating such food made one ritually "contaminated."

[28] tn Traditionally "a Nazirite."

[29] tn The Hebrew text adds "and said." This has not been included in the translation for stylistic reasons.

[30] tn Heb "the man of God."

[31] tn Heb "come to."

[32] tc The LXX has "enlighten," understanding the Hebrew to read וְיאִירֵנוּ (vi'irenu, "to give light") rather than the reading of the MT, וְיוֹרֵנוּ (v'yorenu, "to teach").

[33] tn Heb "what we should do for."

[34] tn Heb "God listened to the voice of Manoah."

When he met[2] the man, he said to him, "Are you the man who spoke to my wife?"[3] He said, "Yes."[4] 13:12 Manoah said, "Now, when your announcement comes true,[5] how should the child be raised and what should he do?"[6] 13:13 The LORD's messenger told[7] Manoah, "Your wife should pay attention to everything I told her.[8] 13:14 She should not drink[9] anything that the grapevine produces. She must not drink wine or beer, and she must not eat any food that will make her ritually unclean.[10] She should obey everything I commanded her to do." 13:15 Manoah said to the LORD's messenger, "Please stay here awhile,[11] so we can prepare a young goat for you to eat."[12] 13:16 The LORD's messenger said to Manoah, "If I stay,[13] I will not eat your food. But if you want to make a burnt sacrifice to the LORD, you should offer it." (He said this because Manoah did not know that he was the LORD's messenger.)[14] 13:17 Manoah said to the LORD's messenger, "Tell us your name, so we can honor you when your announcement comes true."[15] 13:18 The LORD's messenger said to him, "You should not ask me my name, because you cannot comprehend it."[16] 13:19 Manoah took a young goat and a grain offering and offered them on a rock to the LORD. The LORD's messenger did an amazing thing as Manoah and his wife watched.[17] 13:20 As the flame went up from the altar toward the sky, the LORD's messenger went up in it[18] while Manoah and his wife watched. They fell facedown[19] to the ground.

13:21 The LORD's messenger did not appear again to Manoah and his wife. After all this happened Manoah realized that the visitor had been the LORD's messenger.[20] 13:22 Manoah said to his wife, "We will certainly die, because we have seen a supernatural being!"[21] 13:23 But his wife said to him, "If the LORD wanted to kill us, he would not have accepted the burnt offering and the grain offering from us.[22] He would not have shown us all these things, or have spoken to us like this just now."

13:24 Manoah's wife[23] gave birth to a son and named him Samson.[24] The child grew and the LORD empowered[25] him. 13:25 The LORD's spirit began to control him[26] in Mahaneh Dan between Zorah and Eshtaol.

Samson's Unconsummated Marriage

14:1 Samson went down to Timnah, where a Philistine girl caught his eye.[27] 14:2 When he got

2 tn Heb "came to."

3 tn Heb "the woman."

4 tn Heb "I [am]."

5 tn Heb "Now, [when] your word comes [to pass]."

6 tn Heb "what will be the child's rule [i.e., way of life] and his work?"

7 tn Or "said to."

8 tn Heb "To everything I said to the woman she should pay attention." The Hebrew word order emphasizes "to everything," probably because Manoah's wife did not tell her husband everything the angel had said to her (cf. vv. 3-5 with v. 7). If she had, Manoah probably would not have been so confused about the child's mission.

9 tn Heb "eat."

10 tn Heb "eat anything unclean." Certain foods were regarded as ritually "unclean" (see Lev 11). Eating such food made one ritually "contaminated."

11 tn Heb "Please allow us to detain you."

12 tn Heb "so we can prepare before you a young goat of the goats."

13 tn Heb "If you detain me."

14 tn The words "he said this" are supplied in the translation for clarification. Manoah should have known from these words that the messenger represented the LORD. In the preceding narrative the narrator has informed the reader that the visitor is the LORD's messenger, but Manoah and his wife did not perceive this. In vv. 5 and 7 the angel refers to "God" (אֱלֹהִים, 'elohim), not the LORD (יְהוָה, yehvah). Manoah's wife calls the visitor "a man sent from God" and "God's messenger" (v. 6), while Manoah prays to the "Lord" (אֲדוֹנָי, 'adonay) and calls the visitor "a man sent from God" (v. 8).

15 tn Heb "Who your name? For [when] your word comes [to pass], we will honor you." Manoah apparently gets tonguetied and uses the wrong pronoun ("who" instead of "what"). He starts to say, "Who are you?" But then he switches to "your name" as if he began the sentence with "what." See R. G. Boling, Judges (AB), 222.

16 tn Heb "Why do you ask for my name, for it is incomprehensible?" The Hebrew adjective פֶּלְאִי (pile'iy, "wonderful, incomprehensible") refers to what is in a category of its own and is beyond full human understanding. Note the use of this word in Ps 139:6, where God's knowledge is described as incomprehensible and unattainable.

17 tc Heb "Doing an extraordinary deed while Manoah and his wife were watching." The subject of the participle is missing. The translation assumes that the phrase "the LORD's messenger" was lost by homoioteleuton. If the text originally read לַיהוָה מַלְאַךְ יְהוָה (layhavah mal'akh yehvah), the scribe's eye could have jumped from the first יְהוָה to the second, accidentally omitting two of the three words. Later the conjunction ו (shureq) would have been added to the following מַפְלֵא (mafli') for syntactical reasons. Another possibility is that a pronominal subject (הוּא, hu') has been lost in the MT due to haplography.

18 tn Heb "in the flame from the altar."

19 tn Heb "on their faces."

20 tn Heb "Then Manoah knew that he was the LORD's messenger."

21 tn Or "seen God." Some take the Hebrew term אֱלֹהִים ('elohim) as the divine name ("God") here, but this seems unlikely since v. 21 informs us that Manoah realized this was the LORD's messenger, not God himself. Of course, he may be exaggerating for the sake of emphasis. Another option, the one followed in the translation, understands Manoah to be referring to a lesser deity. The term אֱלֹהִים ('elohim) is sometimes used of an individual deity other than the LORD (see BDB 43 s.v. 2.a). One cannot assume that Manoah was a theologically sophisticated monotheist.

22 tn Heb "our hand."

23 tn Heb "the woman." For clarity this has been specified in the translation as "Manoah's wife."

24 tn The name appears to mean "sun-like" or "solar."

25 tn Traditionally, "blessed."

26 tn Or "move him to action"; or "stir him."

27 tn Heb "and he saw a woman in Timnah, one of the daughters of the Philistines."

home,[1] he told his father and mother, "A Philistine girl in Timnah has caught my eye.[2] Now get her for my wife." 14:3 But his father and mother said to him, "Certainly you can find a wife among your relatives or among all our[3] people! You should not have to go and get a wife from the uncircumcised Philistines."[4] But Samson said to his father, "Get her for me,[5] because she is the right one for me."[6] 14:4 Now his father and mother did not realize this was the LORD's doing,[7] because he was looking for an opportunity to stir up trouble with the Philistines[8] (for at that time the Philistines were ruling Israel).

14:5 Samson went down to Timnah. When he approached[9] the vineyards of Timnah, he saw a roaring young lion attacking him.[10] 14:6 The LORD's spirit empowered[11] him and he tore the lion[12] in two with his bare hands[13] as easily as one would tear a young goat. But he did not tell his father or mother what he had done.

14:7 Samson continued on down to Timnah[14] and spoke to the girl. In his opinion, she was just the right one.[15] 14:8 Some time later, when he went back to marry[16] her, he turned aside to see the lion's remains. He saw[17] a swarm of bees in the lion's carcass, as well as some honey. 14:9 He scooped it up with his hands and ate it as he walked along. When he returned[18] to his father and mother, he offered them some and they ate it. But he did not tell them he had scooped the honey out of the lion's carcass.[19]

14:10 Then Samson's father accompanied him to Timnah for the marriage.[20] Samson hosted a party[21] there, for this was customary for bridegrooms[22] to do. 14:11 When the Philistines saw he had no attendants, they gave him thirty groomsmen who kept him company.[23] 14:12 Samson said to them, "I will give you a riddle. If you really can solve it during the seven days the party lasts,[24] I will give you thirty linen robes and thirty sets[25] of clothes. 14:13 But if you cannot solve it,[26] you will give me thirty linen robes and thirty sets of clothes." They said to him, "Let us hear your riddle."[27] 14:14 He said to them, > "Out of the one who eats came something to eat; > out of the strong one came something sweet."

They could not solve the riddle for three days.

14:15 On the fourth[28] day they said to Samson's bride, "Trick your husband into giving the solution to the riddle.[29] If you refuse,[30] we will burn up[31] you and your father's family.[32] Did

[1] tn Heb "and he went up."

[2] tn Heb "I have seen a woman in Timnah, one of the daughters of the Philistines."

[3] tn Heb "my." The singular may seem strange, since the introduction to the quotation attributes the words to his father and mother. But Samson's father apparently speaks for both himself and his wife. However, the Lucianic recension of the LXX and the Syriac Peshitta have a second person pronoun here ("you"), and this may represent the original reading.

[4] tn Heb "Is there not among the daughters of your brothers or among all my people a woman that you have to go to get a wife among the uncircumcised Philistines?"

[5] tn "Her" is first in the Hebrew word order for emphasis. Samson wanted this Philistine girl, no one else. See C. F. Burney, Judges, 357.

[6] tn Heb "because she is right in my eyes."

[7] tn Heb "this was from the LORD."

[8] tn Heb "for an opportunity he was seeking from the Philistines."

[9] tc The MT reads, "Samson went down with his father and mother to Timnah. When they approached...." Verse 6b states that Samson did not tell his parents about his encounter with the lion (vv. 5b-6a), but v. 5a gives the impression they would have seen the entire episode. One could assume that Samson separated from his parents prior to the lion's attack, but the Hebrew text does not indicate this. It seems more likely that the words "with his father and his mother" were accidentally copied into the text, perhaps under the influence of v. 4a, where the same phrase appears. An original singular verb ("he approached") may have been changed to the plural form ("they approached") after the words "his father and his mother" were accidentally added to the text.

[10] tn Heb "and look, a young lion of the lions was roaring to meet him."

[11] tn Heb "rushed on."

[12] tn Heb "him" or "it"; the referent (the lion) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[13] tn Heb "and there was nothing in his hand."

[14] tn Heb "He went down."

[15] tn Heb "She was the right one in the eyes of Samson."

[17] tn Heb "and look, a swarm of bees...."

[18] tn Heb "went." Samson apparently went home to his parents before going to Timnah for the marriage. Seeing and tasting the honey appears to encourage Manoah to go with his son to Timnah. Perhaps both Samson and his father viewed the honey as a good omen of future blessing. Possibly Samson considered it a symbol of sexual pleasure or an aphrodisiac. Note the use of honey imagery in Song 4:11 and 5:1.

[19] sn Touching the carcass of a dead animal undoubtedly violated Samson's Nazirite status. See Num 6:6.

[20] tn Heb "And his father went down to the woman."

[21] tn Or "[wedding] feast."

[22] tn Heb "the young men."

[23] tn Heb "When they saw him, they gave him thirty companions and they were with him." Instead of כִּרְאוֹתָם (kir'otam, "when they saw") some ancient witnesses (e.g., some MSS of the LXX) assume the reading בְּיִרְאָתָם (b^{e}yir'atam, "because they feared").

[24] tn Heb "If you really can tell it to me [during] the seven days of the feast and you find [its answer]."

[25] tn Heb "changes."

[26] tn Heb "you are unable to tell me."

[27] tn Heb "Give your riddle so we can hear it."

[28] tc The MT reads "seventh." In Hebrew there is a difference of only one letter between the words רְבִיעִי (r^{e}vi'i, "fourth") and שְׁבִיעִי (sh^{e}vi'i, "seventh"). Some ancient textual witnesses (e.g., LXX and the Syriac Peshitta) read "fourth," here, which certainly harmonizes better with the preceding verse (cf. "for three days") and with v. 17. Another option is to change שְׁלִשִׁי (sh^{e}loshet, "three") at the end of v. 14 to שִׁשִּׁי (sheshet, "six"), but the resulting scenario does not account as well for v. 17, which implies the bride had been hounding Samson for more than one day.

[29] tn Heb "Entice your husband so that he might tell us the riddle."

[30] tn Heb "lest."

[31] tn The Hebrew text expands the statement: "burn up with fire." The words "with fire" are redundant in English and have been omitted from the translation for stylistic reasons.

[32] tn Heb "house."

you invite us here[1] to make us poor?"[2] 14:16 So Samson's bride cried on his shoulder[3] and said, "You must[4] hate me; you do not love me! You told the young men[5] a riddle, but you have not told me the solution." He said to her, "Look, I have not even told my father or mother. Do you really expect me to tell you?"[6] 14:17 She cried on his shoulder[7] until the party was almost over.[8] Finally, on the seventh day, he told her because she had nagged him so much.[9] Then she told the young men the solution to the riddle.[10] 14:18 On the seventh day, before the sun set, the men of the city said to him,

"What is sweeter than honey?
What is stronger than a lion?"

He said to them,

"If you had not plowed with my heifer,[11] you would not have solved my riddle!"

14:19 The LORD's spirit empowered him. He went down to Ashkelon and murdered thirty men. He took their clothes[12] and gave them[13] to the men who had solved the riddle. He was furious as he went back home.[14] 14:20 Samson's bride was then given to his best man.[15]

Samson Versus the Philistines

15:1 Sometime later, during the wheat harvest,[16] Samson took a young goat as a gift and went to visit his bride.[17] He said to her father,[18] "I want to have sex with my bride in her bedroom!"[19] But her father would not let him enter. 15:2 Her father said, "I really thought[20] you absolutely despised[21] her, so I gave her to your best man. Her younger sister is more attractive than she is. Take her instead!"[22] 15:3 Samson said to them,[23] "This time I am justified in doing the Philistines harm!"[24] 15:4 Samson went and captured three hundred jackals[25] and got some torches. He tied the jackals in pairs by their tails and then tied a torch to each pair.[26] 15:5 He lit the torches[27] and set the jackals loose in the Philistines' standing grain. He burned up the grain heaps and the standing grain, as well as the vineyards and olive groves. 15:6 The Philistines asked,[28] "Who did this?" They were told,[29] "Samson, the Timnite's son-in-law, because the Timnite[30] took Samson's[31] bride and gave her to his best man." So the Philistines went up and burned her and her father.[32] 15:7 Samson said to them, "Because you did this,[33] I will get revenge against you before I quit fighting."[34] 15:8 He struck them down and defeated them.[35] Then he went down and lived for a time in the cave in the cliff of Etam.

15:9 The Philistines went up and invaded[36] Judah. They arrayed themselves for battle[37] in Lehi. 15:10 The men of Judah said, "Why are

1 tc The translation assumes the Hebrew form הֲלֹם (halom, "here," attested in five Hebrew MSS and supported by the Targum), instead of the inexplicable הֲלֹא (halo'), a negative particle with interrogative particle prefixed to it.

2 tn For discussion of this difficult form, see C. F. Burney, Judges, 364.

3 tn Heb "on him."

4 tn Heb "only"; or "simply."

5 tn Heb "the sons of my people."

6 tn Heb "Should I tell you?"

7 tn Heb "on him."

8 tn Heb "the seven days [during] which they held the party." This does not mean she cried for the entire seven days; v. 15 indicates otherwise. She cried for the remainder of the seven day period, beginning on the fourth day.

9 tn Heb "because she forced him."

10 tn Heb "she told the riddle to the sons of her people."

11 sn Plowed with my heifer. This statement emphasizes that the Philistines had utilized a source of information which should have been off-limits to them. Heifers were used in plowing (Hos 10:11), but one typically used one's own farm animals, not another man's.

12 tn Heb "equipment"; or "gear."

13 tn Heb "changes [of clothes]."

14 tn Heb "he went up to his father's house."

15 tn Heb "to his companion who had been his attendant."

16 sn The wheat harvest took place during the month of May. See O. Borowski, Agriculture in Iron Age Israel, 37, 88.

17 tn Heb "Samson visited his wife with a young goat."

18 tn The words "to her father" are supplied in the translation (see the end of the verse).

19 tn Heb "I will go to my wife in the bedroom." The Hebrew idiom בּוֹא אֶל (bo' 'el, "to go to") often has sexual connotations. The cohortative form used by Samson can be translated as indicating resolve ("I want to go") or request ("let me go").

20 tn Heb "saying, I said." The first person form of אָמַר ('amar, "to say") sometimes indicates self-reflection. The girl's father uses the infinitive absolute for emphasis.

21 tn Heb "hating, you hated." Once again the girl's father uses the infinitive absolute for emphasis.

22 tn Heb "Is her younger sister not better than her? Let her [i.e., the younger sister] be yours instead of her [i.e., Samson's 'bride'])."

23 tc Codex Alexandrinus (A) of the (original) LXX has the singular "to him."

24 tn Heb "I am innocent this time from the Philistines when I do with them harm."

25 tn Traditionally, "foxes."

26 tn Heb "He turned tail to tail and placed one torch between the two tails in the middle."

27 tn Heb "He set fire to the torches."

28 tn Or "said."

29 tn Heb "and they said." The subject of the plural verb is indefinite.

30 tn Heb "he"; the referent (the Timnite) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

31 tn Heb "his"; the referent (Samson) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

32 tn The Hebrew text expands the statement with the additional phrase "burned with fire." The words "with fire" are redundant in English and have been omitted from the translation for stylistic reasons. Some textual witnesses read "burned...her father's house," perhaps under the influence of 14:15. On the other hand, the shorter text may have lost this phrase due to haplography.

33 tn The Niphal of נָקַם (naqam, "to avenge, to take vengeance") followed by the preposition ב (bet) has the force "to get revenge against." See 1 Sam 18:25; Jer 50:15; Ezek 25:12.

34 tn Heb "and afterward I will stop."

35 tn Heb "He struck them, calf on thigh, [with] a great slaughter." The precise meaning of the phrase "calf on thigh" is uncertain.

36 tn Or "camped in."

37 tn Or "spread out." The Niphal of נָטַשׁ (natash) has this same sense in 2 Sam 5:18, 22.

you attacking[1] us?" The Philistines[2] said, "We have come up to take Samson prisoner so we can do to him what he has done to us." 15:11 Three thousand men of Judah went down to the cave in the cliff of Etam and said to Samson, "Do you not know that the Philistines rule over us? Why have you done this to us?" He said to them, "I have only done to them what they have done to me." 15:12 They said to him, "We have come down to take you prisoner so we can hand you over to the Philistines." Samson said to them, "Promise me[3] you will not kill[4] me." 15:13 They said to him, "We promise![5] We will only take you prisoner and hand you over to them. We promise not to kill you." They tied him up with two brand new ropes and led him up from the cliff. 15:14 When he arrived in Lehi, the Philistines shouted as they approached him. But the LORD's spirit empowered[6] him. The ropes around his arms were like flax dissolving in[7] fire, and they[8] melted away from his hands. 15:15 He happened to see[9] a solid[10] jawbone of a donkey. He grabbed it[11] and struck down[12] a thousand men. 15:16 Samson then said,

"With the jawbone of a donkey
I have left them in heaps;[13]
with the jawbone of a donkey
I have struck down a thousand men!"

15:17 When he finished speaking, he threw the jawbone down[14] and named that place Ramath Lehi.[15]

15:18 He was very thirsty, so he cried out to the LORD and said, "You have given your servant[16] this great victory. But now must I die of thirst and fall into hands of the Philistines?"[17] 15:19 So God split open the basin[18] at Lehi and water flowed out from it. When he took a drink, his strength[19] was restored and he revived. For this reason he named the spring[20] En Hakkore.[21] It remains in Lehi to this very day. 15:20 Samson led[22] Israel for twenty years during the days of Philistine prominence.[23]

Samson's Downfall

16:1 Samson went to Gaza. There he saw a prostitute and went in to have sex with her.[24] 16:2 The Gazites were told,[25] "Samson has come here!" So they surrounded the town[26] and hid all night at the city gate, waiting for him to leave.[27] They relaxed[28] all night, thinking,[29] "He will not leave[30] until morning comes;[31] then we will kill him!" 16:3 Samson spent half the night with the prostitute; then he got up in the middle of the night and left.[32] He grabbed the doors of the city gate, as well as the two posts, and pulled them right off, bar and all.[33] He put them on his shoulders and carried them up to the top of a hill east of Hebron.[34]

16:4 After this Samson fell in love with a woman named Delilah, who lived in the Sorek Valley. 16:5 The rulers of the Philistines went up to visit her and said to her, "Trick him! Find out what makes him so strong and how we can subdue him and humiliate[35] him. Each one of us will give you eleven hundred silver pieces."

16:6 So Delilah said to Samson, "Tell me what makes you so strong and how you can be subdued and humiliated."[36] 16:7 Samson said to

2 tn Heb "they"; the referent (the Philistines) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

3 tn Or "swear to me."

4 tn Heb "meet [with hostility]"; "harm." In light of v. 13, "kill" is an appropriate translation.

5 tn Heb "No," meaning that they will not harm him.

6 tn Heb "rushed on."

7 tn Heb "burned with."

8 tn Heb "his bonds."

9 tn Heb "he found."

10 tn Heb "fresh," i.e., not decayed and brittle.

11 tn Heb "he reached out his hand and took it."

12 tn The Hebrew text adds "with it." This has not been included in the translation for stylistic reasons.

13 tn The precise meaning of the second half of the line (חֲמוֹר חֲמֹרָתָיִם, khamor khamoratayim) is uncertain. The present translation assumes that the phrase means, "a heap, two heaps" and refers to the heaps of corpses littering the battlefield. Other options include: (a) "I have made donkeys of them" (cf. NIV; see C. F. Burney, Judges, 373, for a discussion of this view, which understands a denominative verb from the noun "donkey"); (b) "I have thoroughly skinned them" (see HALOT 330 s.v. IV cj. חמר, which appeals to an Arabic cognate for support); (c) "I have stormed mightily against them," which assumes the verb חָמַר (khamar, "to ferment; to foam; to boil up").

14 tn Heb "from his hand."

15 sn The name Ramath Lehi means "Height of the Jawbone."

16 tn Heb "you have placed into the hand of your servant."

17 tn Heb "the uncircumcised," which in context refers to the Philistines.

18 tn The word translated "basin" refers to a circular-shaped depression in the land's surface.

19 tn Heb "spirit."

20 tn Heb "named it"; the referent (the spring) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

21 sn The name En Hakkore means "Spring of the one who cries out."

22 tn Traditionally, "judged."

23 tn Heb "in the days of the Philistines."

24 tn Heb "and he went in to her." The idiom בּוֹא אֶל (bo' 'el, "to go to") often has sexual connotations.

25 tc Heb "To the Gazites, saying." A verb is missing from the MT; some ancient Greek witnesses add "it was reported."

26 tn Heb "And they surrounded." The rest of the verse suggests that "the town" is the object, not "the house." Though the Gazites knew Samson was in the town, apparently they did not know exactly where he had gone. Otherwise, they would could have just gone into or surrounded the house and would not have needed to post guards at the city gate.

27 tn Heb "and they lay in wait for him all night in the city gate."

28 tn Heb "were silent."

29 tn Heb "saying."

30 tn The words "He will not leave" are supplied in the translation for clarification.

31 tn Heb "until the light of the morning."

32 tn Heb "And Samson lay until the middle of the night and arose in the middle of the night."

33 tn Heb "with the bar."

34 tn Heb "which is upon the face of Hebron."

35 tn Heb "subdue him in order to humiliate him."

36 tn Heb "how you can be subdued in order to be humiliated."

her, "If they tie me up with seven fresh[1] bowstrings[2] that have not been dried, I will become weak and be just like any other man." 16:8 So the rulers of the Philistines brought her seven fresh bowstrings which had not been dried and they tied him up with them. 16:9 They hid[3] in the bedroom and then she said to him, "The Philistines are here,[4] Samson!" He snapped the bowstrings as easily as a thread of yarn snaps when it is put close to fire.[5] The secret of his strength was not discovered.[6]

16:10 Delilah said to Samson, "Look, you deceived[7] me and told me lies! Now tell me how you can be subdued." 16:11 He said to her, "If they tie me tightly with brand new ropes that have never been used,[8] I will become weak and be just like any other man." 16:12 So Delilah took new ropes and tied him with them and said to him, "The Philistines are here,[9] Samson!" (The Philistines were hiding in the bedroom.)[10] But he tore the ropes[11] from his arms as if they were a piece of thread.

16:13 Delilah said to Samson, "Up to now you have deceived me and told me lies. Tell me how you can be subdued." He said to her, "If you weave the seven braids of my hair[12] into the fabric on the loom[13] and secure it with the pin, I will become weak and be like any other man." 16:14 So she made him go to sleep, wove the seven braids of his hair into the fabric on the loom, fastened it with the pin, and said to him, "The Philistines are here,[14] Samson!"[15] He woke up[16] and tore away the pin of the loom and the fabric.

16:15 She said to him, "How can you say, 'I love you,' when you will not share your secret with me?[17] Three times you have deceived me and have not told me what makes you so strong." 16:16 She nagged him[18] every day and pressured him until he was sick to death of it.[19] 16:17 Finally he told her his secret.[20] He said to her, "My hair has never been cut,[21] for I have been dedicated to God[22] from the time I was conceived.[23] If my head[24] were shaved, my strength would leave me; I would become weak, and be just like all other men." 16:18 When Delilah saw that he had told her his secret,[25] she sent for[26] the rulers of the Philistines, saying, "Come up here again, for he has told me[27] his secret."[28] So the rulers of the Philistines went up to visit her, bringing the silver in their hands. 16:19 She made him go to sleep on her lap[29] and then called a man in to shave off[30] the seven braids of his hair.[31] She made him vulnerable[32] and his strength left him. 16:20 She said, "The Philistines are here,[33] Samson!" He woke up[34] and thought,[35] "I will do as I did before[36] and shake myself free." But he did not realize that the

1 tn Or "moist."

2 tn The word refers to a bowstring, probably made from animal tendons. See Ps 11:2; Job 30:11.

3 tn Heb "And the ones lying in wait were sitting for her." The grammatically singular form וְהָאֹרֵב (vehaʾorev) is collective here, referring to the rulers as a group (so also in v. 16).

4 tn Heb "are upon you."

5 tn Heb "when it smells fire."

6 tn Heb "His strength was not known."

7 tn See Gen 31:7; Exod 8:29 [8:25 HT]; Job 13:9; Isa 44:20; Jer 9:4 for other uses of this Hebrew word (II תָּלַל, talal), which also occurs in v. 13.

8 tn Heb "with which no work has been done."

9 tn Heb "are upon you."

10 tn Heb "And the ones lying in wait were sitting in the bedroom."

11 tn Heb "them"; the referent (the ropes) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

12 tn Heb "head" (also in the following verse). By metonymy the head is mentioned in the Hebrew text in place of the hair on it.

13 tn Heb "with the web." For a discussion of how Delilah did this, see C. F. Burney, Judges, 381, and G. F. Moore, Judges (ICC), 353-54.

14 tn Heb "are upon you."

15 tc The MT of vv. 13b-14a reads simply, "He said to her, 'If you weave the seven braids of my head with the web.' And she fastened with the pin and said to him." The additional words in the translation, "and secure it with the pin, I will become weak and be like any other man.' 16:14 So she made him go to sleep, wove the seven braids of his hair into the fabric on the loom," which without doubt represent the original text, are supplied from the ancient Greek version. (In both vv. 13b and 14a the Greek version has "to the wall" after "with the pin," but this is an interpretive addition that reflects a misunderstanding of ancient weaving equipment. See G. F. Moore, Judges [ICC], 353-54.) The Hebrew textual tradition was accidentally shortened during the copying process. A scribe's eye jumped from the first instance of "with the web" to the second, causing him to leave out inadvertently the intervening words.

16 tn The Hebrew adds, "from his sleep." This has not been included in the translation for stylistic reasons.

17 tn Heb "when your heart is not with me."

18 tn Heb "forced him with her words."

19 tn Heb "and his spirit was short [i.e., impatient] to the point of death."

20 tn Heb "all his heart."

21 tn Heb "a razor has not come upon my head."

22 tn Or "set apart to God." Traditionally the Hebrew term נָזִיר (nazir) has been translated "Nazirite." The word is derived from the verb נָזַר (nazar, "to dedicate; to consecrate; to set apart").

23 tn Heb "from the womb of my mother."

24 tn Heb "I." The referent has been made more specific in the translation ("my head").

25 tn Heb "all his heart."

26 tn Heb "she sent and summoned."

27 tc The translation follows the Qere, לִי (li, "to me") rather than the Kethib, לָהּ (lah, "to her").

28 tn Heb "all his heart."

29 tn Heb "on her knees." The expression is probably euphemistic for sexual intercourse. See HALOT 160-61 s.v. בֶּרֶךְ.

30 tn Heb "she called for a man and she shaved off." The point seems to be that Delilah acted through the instrumentality of the man. See J. A. Soggin, Judges (OTL), 254.

31 tn Heb "head." By metonymy the hair of his head is meant.

32 tn Heb "She began to humiliate him." Rather than referring to some specific insulting action on Delilah's part after Samson's hair was shaved off, this statement probably means that she, through the devious actions just described, began the process of Samson's humiliation which culminates in the following verses.

33 tn Heb "are upon you."

34 tn The Hebrew adds, "from his sleep." This has not been included in the translation for stylistic reasons.

35 tn Heb "and said."

36 tn Heb "I will go out as before."

LORD had left him. 16:21 The Philistines captured him and gouged out his eyes. They brought him down to Gaza and bound him in bronze chains. He became a grinder in the prison. 16:22 His hair[1] began to grow back after it had been shaved off.

Samson's Death and Burial

16:23 The rulers of the Philistines gathered to offer a great sacrifice to Dagon their god and to celebrate. They said, "Our god has handed Samson, our enemy, over to us." 16:24 When the people saw him,[2] they praised their god, saying, "Our god has handed our enemy over to us, the one who ruined our land and killed so many of us!"[3]

16:25 When they really started celebrating,[4] they said, "Call for Samson so he can entertain us!" So they summoned Samson from the prison and he entertained them.[5] They made him stand between two pillars. 16:26 Samson said to the young man who held his hand, "Position me so I can touch the pillars that support the temple.[6] Then I can lean on them." 16:27 Now the temple[7] was filled with men and women, and all the rulers of the Philistines were there. There were three thousand men and women on the roof watching Samson entertain. 16:28 Samson called to the LORD, "O Master, LORD,[8] remember me! Strengthen me just one more time, O God, so I can get swift revenge[9] against the Philistines for my two eyes!" 16:29 Samson took hold of the two middle pillars that supported the temple[10] and he leaned against them, with his right hand on one and his left hand on the other. 16:30 Samson said, "Let me die with the Philistines!" He pushed hard[11] and the temple collapsed on the rulers and all the people in it. He killed many more people in his death than he had killed during his life.[12] 16:31 His brothers and all his family[13] went down and brought him back.[14] They buried him between Zorah and Eshtaol in the tomb of Manoah his father. He had led[15] Israel for twenty years.

Micah Makes His Own Religion

17:1 There was a man named Micah from the Ephraimite hill country. 17:2 He said to his mother, "You know[16] the eleven hundred pieces of silver which were stolen[17] from you, about which I heard you pronounce a curse? Look here, I have the silver. I stole[18] it, but now I am giving it back to you."[19] His mother said, "May the LORD reward[20] you, my son!" 17:3 When he gave back to his mother the eleven hundred pieces of silver, his mother said, "I solemnly dedicate[21] this silver to the LORD. It will be for my son's benefit. We will use it to make a carved image and a metal image."[22] 17:4 When he gave the silver back to his mother, she[23] took two hundred pieces of silver[24] to a silversmith, who made them into a carved image and a metal image. She then put them in Micah's house.[25] 17:5 Now this man Micah owned a shrine.[26] He made an ephod[27] and some personal idols and hired one of his sons to serve as a priest.[28] 17:6 In those days Israel had no king. Each man did what he considered to be right.[29]

---

1 tn Heb "the hair of his head."

2 tn Most interpret this as a reference to Samson, but this seems premature, since v. 25 suggests he was not yet standing before them. Consequently some prefer to see this statement as displaced and move it to v. 25 (see C. F. Burney, Judges, 387). It seems more likely that the pronoun refers to an image of Dagon.

3 tn Heb "multiplied our dead."

4 tn Heb "When their heart was good."

5 tn Heb "before them."

6 tn Heb "the pillars upon which the house is founded."

7 tn Heb "house."

8 tn The Hebrew has אֲדֹנָי יֱהוִה ('adonay yehovih, "Lord Yahweh").

9 tn Heb "so I can get revenge with one act of vengeance."

10 tn Heb "the pillars upon which the house was founded."

11 tn Heb "he stretched out with strength."

12 tn Heb "And the ones whom he killed in his death were many more than he killed in his life."

13 tn Heb "and all the house of his father."

14 tn Heb "and lifted him up and brought up."

15 tn Traditionally, "judged."

16 tn The words "You know" are supplied in the translation for clarification.

17 tn Heb "taken."

18 tn Heb "took."

19 tn In the Hebrew text the statement, "but now I am giving it back to you," appears at the end of v. 3 and is spoken by the mother. But v. 4 indicates that she did not give the money back to her son. Unless the statement is spoken by the woman to the LORD, it appears to be misplaced and fits much better in v. 2. It may have been accidentally omitted from a manuscript, written in the margin, and then later inserted in the wrong place in another manuscript.

20 tn Traditionally, "bless."

21 tn Heb "dedicating, I dedicate." In this case the emphatic infinitive absolute lends a mood of solemnity to the statement.

22 tn Heb "to the LORD from my hand for my son to make a carved image and cast metal image." She cannot mean that she is now taking the money from her hand and giving it back to her son so he can make an image. Verses 4-6 indicate she took back the money and used a portion of it to hire a silversmith to make an idol for her son to use. The phrase "a carved image and cast metal image" is best taken as referring to two idols (see 18:17-18), even though the verb at the end of v. 4, וַיְהִי (vay^{e}hi, "and it was [in the house of Micah]"), is singular.

23 tn Heb "his mother." The pronoun ("she") has been substituted for the noun ("mother") in the translation because of English style.

24 tn The Hebrew text has "and gave it." The referent (the pieces of silver) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

25 tn Heb "and it was in Micah's house."

26 tn Heb "house of God."

27 sn Here an ephod probably refers to a priestly garment (cf. Exod 28:4-6).

28 tn Heb "and he filled the hand of one of his sons and he became his priest."

29 tn Heb "Each was doing what was right in his [own] eyes."

Micah Hires a Professional

17:7 There was a young man from Bethlehem[1] in Judah. He was a Levite who had been temporarily residing among the tribe of Judah.[2] 17:8 This man left the town of Bethlehem in Judah to find another place to live. He came to the Ephraimite hill country and made his way to Micah's house.[3] 17:9 Micah said to him, "Where do you come from?" He replied, "I am a Levite from Bethlehem in Judah. I am looking for a new place to live."[4] 17:10 Micah said to him, "Stay with me. Become my adviser[5] and priest. I will give you ten pieces of silver per year, plus clothes and food."[6] 17:11 So the Levite agreed to stay with the man; the young man was like a son to Micah.[7] 17:12 Micah paid[8] the Levite; the young man became his priest and lived in Micah's house. 17:13 Micah said, "Now I know God will make me rich,[9] because I have this Levite as my priest."

The Tribe of Dan Finds an Inheritance

18:1 In those days Israel had no king. And in those days the Danite tribe was looking for a place[10] to settle, because at that time they did not yet have a place to call their own among the tribes of Israel.[11] 18:2 The Danites sent out from their whole tribe five representatives,[12] capable men[13] from Zorah and Eshtaol, to spy out the land and explore it. They said to them, "Go, explore the land." They came to the Ephraimite hill country and spent the night at Micah's house.[14] 18:3 As they approached[15] Micah's house, they recognized the accent[16] of the young Levite. So they stopped[17] there and said to him, "Who brought you here? What are you doing in this place? What is your business here?"[18] 18:4 He told them what Micah had done for him, saying,[19] "He hired me and I became his priest." 18:5 They said to him, "Seek a divine oracle for us,[20] so we can know if we will be successful on our mission."[21] 18:6 The priest said to them, "Go with confidence.[22] The LORD will be with you on your mission."[23]

18:7 So the five men journeyed on[24] and arrived in Laish. They noticed that the people there[25] were living securely, like the Sidonians do,[26] undisturbed and unsuspecting. No conqueror was troubling them in any way.[27] They lived far from the Sidonians and had no dealings with anyone.[28] 18:8 When the Danites returned to their tribe[29] in Zorah and Eshtaol, their kinsmen[30] asked them, "How did it go?"[31] 18:9 They said, "Come on, let's attack them,[32] for[33] we saw their land and it is very good. You seem lethargic,[34] but don't hesitate[35] to invade and conquer[36] the land. 18:10 When you invade,[37] you will encounter[38] unsuspecting people. The land

[2] tn Heb "There was a young man from Bethlehem of Judah, from the tribe of Judah, and he was a Levite, and he was temporarily residing there."

[3] tn Heb "He came to the Ephraimite hill country, to Micah's house, making his way."

[4] tn Heb "And I am going to reside in a place I can find."

[5] tn Heb "father." "Father" is here a title of honor that suggests the priest will give advice and protect the interests of the family, primarily by divining God's will in matters, perhaps through the use of the ephod. (See R. G. Boling, Judges [AB], 257; also Gen 45:8, where Joseph, who was a diviner and interpreter of dreams, is called Pharaoh's "father," and 2 Kgs 6:21; 13:14, where a prophet is referred to as a "father." Note also 2 Kgs 8:9, where a king identifies himself as a prophet's "son." One of a prophet's main functions was to communicate divine oracles. Cf. 2 Kgs 8:9ff.; 13:14-19).

[6] tn The Hebrew text expands with the phrase: "and the Levite went." This only makes sense if taken with "to live" in the next verse. Apparently "the Levite went" and "the Levite agreed" are alternative readings which have been juxtaposed in the text.

[7] tn Heb "the young man became like one of his sons."

[8] tn Heb "filled the hand of."

[9] tn Heb "do good for me."

[10] tn Heb "an inheritance."

[11] tn Heb "because there had not fallen to them by that day in the midst of the tribes of Israel an inheritance."

[12] tn Heb "The Danites sent from their tribe five men, from their borders."

[13] tn Heb "men, sons of strength."

[14] tn Heb "They came to the Ephraimite hill country, to Micah's house, and spent the night there."

[15] tn Or "When they were near."

[16] tn Heb "voice." This probably means that "his speech was Judahite [i.e., southern] like their own, not Israelite [i.e., northern]" (R. G. Boling, Judges [AB], 263).

[17] tn Heb "turned aside."

[18] tn Heb "What [is there] to you here?"

[19] tn Heb "He said to them, 'Such and such Micah has done for me.'" Though the statement is introduced and presented, at least in part, as a direct quotation (note especially "for me"), the phrase "such and such" appears to be the narrator's condensed version of what the Levite really said.

[20] tn Heb "Ask God."

[21] tn Heb "so we can know if our way on which we are going will be successful."

[22] tn Heb "in peace."

[23] tn Heb "In front of the LORD is your way in which you are going."

[24] tn Or "went."

[25] tn Heb "who were in its midst."

[26] tn Heb "according to the custom of the Sidonians."

[27] tn Heb "and there was no one humiliating anything in the land, one taking possession [by] force."

[28] tc Heb "and a thing there was not to them with men." Codex Alexandrinus (A) of the LXX and Symmachus read "Syria" here rather than the MT's "men." This reading presupposes a Hebrew Vorlage אֲרָם ('aram, "Aram," i.e., Arameans) rather than the MT reading אָדָם ('adam). This reading is possibly to be preferred over the MT.

[29] tn Heb "They came to their brothers."

[30] tn Heb "brothers."

[31] tn Heb "What you?"

[32] tn Heb "Arise, and let us go up against them."

[33] tc Codex Alexandrinus (A) of the LXX adds "we entered and walked around in the land as far as Laish and."

[35] tn Or "be lazy."

[36] tn Heb "to go"; "to enter"; "to possess."

[37] tn Heb "When you enter."

is wide![1] God is handing it over to you – a place that lacks nothing on earth!"[2]

18:11 So six hundred Danites, fully armed, set out from Zorah and Eshtaol.[3] 18:12 They went up and camped in Kiriath Jearim in Judah. (To this day that place is called Camp of Dan.[4] It is west[5] of Kiriath Jearim.) 18:13 From there they traveled through the Ephraimite hill country and arrived at Micah's house. 18:14 The five men who had gone to spy out the land of Laish[6] said to their kinsmen,[7] "Do you realize that inside these houses are an ephod, some personal idols, a carved image, and a metal image? Decide now what you want to do." 18:15 They stopped[8] there, went inside the young Levite's house (which belonged to Micah),[9] and asked him how he was doing.[10] 18:16 Meanwhile the six hundred Danites, fully armed, stood at the entrance to the gate.[11] 18:17 The five men who had gone to spy out the land broke in and stole[12] the carved image, the ephod, the personal idols, and the metal image, while the priest was standing at the entrance to the gate with the six hundred fully armed men.[13] 18:18 When these men broke into Micah's house and stole[14] the carved image, the ephod, the personal idols, and the metal image, the priest said to them, "What are you doing?" 18:19 They said to him, "Shut up! Put your hand over your mouth and come with us! You can be our adviser[15] and priest. Wouldn't it be better to be a priest for a whole Israelite tribe than for just one man's family?"[16] 18:20 The priest was happy. He took the ephod, the personal idols, and the carved image and joined the group.[17]

18:21 They turned and went on their way, but they walked behind the children, the cattle, and their possessions.[18] 18:22 After they had gone a good distance from Micah's house, Micah's neighbors[19] gathered together and caught up with the Danites. 18:23 When they called out to the Danites, the Danites[20] turned around and said to Micah, "Why have you gathered together?" 18:24 He said, "You stole my gods that I made, as well as this priest, and then went away. What do I have left? How can you have the audacity to say to me, 'What do you want?'"[21] 18:25 The Danites said to him, "Don't say another word to us, or some very angry men[22] will attack you, and you and your family will die."[23] 18:26 The Danites went on their way; when Micah realized[24] they were too strong to resist,[25] he turned around and went home.

18:27 Now the Danites[26] took what Micah had made, as well as his priest, and came to Laish, where the people were undisturbed and unsuspecting. They struck them down with the sword and burned the city.[27] 18:28 No one came to the rescue because the city[28] was far from Sidon[29] and they had no dealings with anyone.[30] The city[31] was in a valley near Beth Rehob. The Danites[32] rebuilt the city and occupied it. 18:29 They named it Dan after their ancestor, who was one of Israel's sons.[33] But the city's name used to be Laish. 18:30 The Danites worshiped[34] the carved image. Sodom and Gomorrah Revisited

19:1 In those days Israel had no king. There was a Levite[6] living temporarily in the remote region of the Ephraimite hill country. He acquired a concubine[7] from Bethlehem[8] in Judah. 19:2 However, she[9] got angry at him[10] and went home[11] to her father's house in Bethlehem in Judah. When she had been there four months, 19:3 her husband came[12] after her, hoping he could convince her to return.[13] He brought with him his servant[14] and a pair of donkeys. When she brought him into her father's house and the girl's father saw him, he greeted him warmly.[15] 19:4 His father-in-law, the girl's father, persuaded him to stay with him for three days, and they ate and drank together, and spent the night there. 19:5 On the fourth day they woke up early and the Levite got ready to leave.[16] But the girl's father said to his son-in-law, "Have a bite to eat for some energy,[17] then you can go." 19:6 So the two of them sat down and had a meal together.[18] Then the girl's father said to the man, "Why not stay another night and have a good time!"[19] 19:7 When the man got ready to leave,[20] his father-in-law convinced him to stay another night.[21] 19:8 He woke up early in the morning on the fifth day so he could leave, but the girl's father said, "Get some energy.[22] Wait until later in the day to leave!"[23] So they ate a meal together. 19:9 When the man got ready to leave[24] with his concubine and his servant,[25] his father-in-law, the girl's father, said to him, "Look! The day is almost over![26] Stay another night! Since the day is over,[27] stay another night here and have a good time. You can get up early tomorrow and start your trip home."[28] 19:10 But the man did not want to stay another night. He left[29] and traveled as far as[30] Jebus (that is, Jerusalem).[31] He had with him a pair of saddled donkeys and his concubine.[32]

19:11 When they got near Jebus, it was getting quite late[33] and the servant[34] said to his master, "Come on, let's stop at[35] this Jebusite city and spend the night in it." 19:12 But his master said to him, "We should not stop at a foreign city where non-Israelites live.[36] We will travel on to Gibeah." 19:13 He said to his servant,[37] "Come on, we will go into one of the other towns[38] and spend the night in Gibeah or Ramah." 19:14 So they traveled on,[39] and the sun went down when they were near Gibeah in the territory of Benjamin.[40] 19:15 They stopped there and decided to spend the night[41] in Gibeah. They came into the city and sat down in the town square, but no one invited them to spend the night.[42]

19:16 But then an old man passed by, returning at the end of the day from his work in the field.[43] The man was from the Ephraimite hill country; he was living temporarily in Gibeah. (The residents of the town were Benjaminites.)[44] 19:17 When he looked up and saw the traveler[45] in the town square, the old man said, "Where are you heading? Where do you come from?"

1 tc Several ancient textual witnesses, including some LXX MSS and the Vulgate, support the reading "Moses" (מֹשֶׁה, mosheh) here. Many Hebrew MSS have a nun (נ) suspended above the name between the first two letters (מנשה), suggesting the name Manasseh (מְנַשֶּׁה, mᵉnasheh). This is probably a scribal attempt to protect Moses' reputation. For discussion, see G. F. Moore, Judges (ICC), 401-2.

19:18 The Levite[1] said to him, "We are traveling from Bethlehem[2] in Judah to the remote region of the Ephraimite hill country. That's where I'm from. I had business in Bethlehem in Judah, but now I'm heading home.[3] But no one has invited me into their home. 19:19 We have enough straw and grain for our donkeys, and there is enough food and wine for me, your female servant,[4] and the young man who is with your servants.[5] We lack nothing." 19:20 The old man said, "Everything is just fine![6] I will take care of all your needs. But don't spend the night in the town square." 19:21 So he brought him to his house and fed the donkeys. They washed their feet and had a meal.[7]

19:22 They were having a good time,[8] when suddenly[9] some men of the city, some good-for-nothings,[10] surrounded the house and kept beating[11] on the door. They said to the old man who owned the house, "Send out the man who came to visit you so we can have sex with him."[12] 19:23 The man who owned the house went outside and said to them, "No, my brothers! Don't do this wicked thing! After all, this man is a guest in my house. Don't do such a disgraceful thing! 19:24 Here are my virgin daughter and my guest's[13] concubine. I will send them out and you can abuse them and do to them whatever you like.[14] But don't do such a disgraceful thing to this man!" 19:25 The men refused to listen to him, so the Levite[15] grabbed his concubine and made her go outside.[16] They raped[17] her and abused her all night long until morning. They let her go at dawn. 19:26 The woman arrived back at daybreak and was sprawled out on the doorstep of the house where her master[18] was staying until it became light.[19] 19:27 When her master[20] got up in the morning, opened the doors of the house, and went outside to start on his journey, there was the woman, his concubine, sprawled out on the doorstep of the house with her hands on the threshold. 19:28 He said to her, "Get up, let's leave!" But there was no response. He put her on the donkey and went home.[21] 19:29 When he got home, he took a knife, grabbed his concubine, and carved her up into twelve pieces.[22] Then he sent the pieces throughout Israel.[23] 19:30 Everyone who saw the sight[24] said, "Nothing like this has happened or been witnessed during the entire time since[25] the Israelites left the land of Egypt![26] Take careful note of it! Discuss it and speak!"

Civil War Breaks Out

20:1 All the Israelites from Dan to Beer Sheba[27] and from the land of Gilead[28] left their homes[29] and assembled together[30] before the LORD at Mizpah. 20:2 The leaders[31] of all the people from all the tribes of Israel took their places in the assembly of God's people, which

3 tn Heb "I went to Bethlehem in Judah, but [to] the house of the LORD I am going." The Hebrew text has "house of the LORD," which might refer to the shrine at Shiloh. The LXX reads "to my house."

4 tn By calling his concubine the old man's "female servant," the Levite emphasizes their dependence on him for shelter.

5 tc Some Hebrew MSS and ancient witnesses read the singular, "your servant," which would refer to the Levite. If one retains the plural, then both the Levite and his wife are in view. In either case the pronominal suffix emphasizes their dependence on the old man for shelter.

6 tn Heb "Peace to you."

7 tn Heb "ate and drank."

8 tn Heb "they were making their heart good."

9 tn Heb "and look."

10 tn Heb "the men of the city, men, the sons of wickedness." The phrases are in apposition; the last phrase specifies what type of men they were. It is not certain if all the men of the city are in view, or just a group of troublemakers. In 20:5 the town leaders are implicated in the crime, suggesting that all the men of the city were involved. If so, the implication is that the entire male population of the town were good-for-nothings.

11 tn The Hitpael verb form appears to have an iterative force here, indicating repeated action.

12 tn Heb "so we can know him." On the surface one might think they simply wanted to meet the visitor and get to know him, but their hostile actions betray their double-talk. The old man, who has been living with them long enough to know what they are like, seems to have no doubts about the meaning of their words (see v. 23).

27 sn Dan was located in the far north of the country, while Beer Sheba was located in the far south. This encompassed all the territory of the land of Canaan occupied by the Israelites.

28 sn The land of Gilead was on the eastern side of the Jordan River.

29 tn Heb "went out."

30 tn Heb "and the assembly was convened as one man."

numbered[1] four hundred thousand sword-wielding foot soldiers. 20:3 The Benjaminites heard that the Israelites had gone up to Mizpah. Then the Israelites said, "Explain how this wicked thing happened!" 20:4 The Levite,[2] the husband of the murdered woman, spoke up, "I and my concubine stopped in[3] Gibeah in the territory of Benjamin[4] to spend the night. 20:5 The leaders of Gibeah attacked me and at night surrounded the house where I was staying.[5] They wanted to kill me; instead they abused my concubine so badly that she died. 20:6 I grabbed hold of my concubine and carved her up and sent the pieces[6] throughout the territory occupied by Israel,[7] because they committed such an unthinkable atrocity[8] in Israel. 20:7 All you Israelites,[9] make a decision here!"[10]

20:8 All Israel rose up in unison[11] and said, "Not one of us will go home![12] Not one of us will return[13] to his house! 20:9 Now this is what we will do to Gibeah: We will attack the city as the lot dictates.[14] 20:10 We will take ten of every group of a hundred men from all the tribes of Israel (and a hundred of every group of a thousand, and a thousand of every group of ten thousand) to get supplies for the army.[15] When they arrive in Gibeah of Benjamin they will punish them for the atrocity which they committed in Israel."[16] 20:11 So all the men of Israel gathered together at the city as allies.[17]

20:12 The tribes of Israel sent men throughout the tribe[18] of Benjamin, saying, "How could such a wicked thing take place?[19] 20:13 Now, hand over the good-for-nothings[20] in Gibeah so we can execute them and purge Israel of wickedness."[21] But the Benjaminites refused to listen to their Israelite brothers. 20:14 The Benjaminites came from their cities and assembled at Gibeah[22] to make war against the Israelites. 20:15 That day the Benjaminites mustered from their cities twenty-six thousand sword-wielding soldiers, besides seven hundred well-trained soldiers from Gibeah.[23] 20:16 Among this army[24] were seven hundred specially-trained left-handed soldiers.[25] Each one could sling a stone and hit even the smallest target.[26] 20:17 The men of Israel (not counting Benjamin) had mustered four hundred thousand sword-wielding soldiers, every one an experienced warrior.[27]

20:18 The Israelites went up to Bethel[28] and asked God,[29] "Who should lead the charge against the Benjaminites?"[30] The LORD said, "Judah should lead." 20:19 The Israelites got up the next morning and moved[31] against Gibeah. 20:20 The men of Israel marched out to fight Benjamin; they[32] arranged their battle lines against Gibeah. 20:21 The Benjaminites attacked from Gibeah and struck down twenty-two thousand Israelites that day.[33]

20:22 The Israelite army[34] took heart[35] and once more arranged their battle lines, in the same place where they had taken their positions the day before. 20:23 The Israelites went up and wept before the LORD until evening. They asked the LORD, "Should we[36] again march out to fight[37] the Benjaminites, our brothers?"[38] The LORD said, "Attack them!"[39] 20:24 So the Israelites marched toward[40] the Benjaminites the next

20:26 So all the Israelites, the whole army,[2] went up to[3] Bethel.[4] They wept and sat there before the LORD; they did not eat anything[5] that day until evening. The LORD said, "Attack, for tomorrow I will hand them[11] over to you."

20:29 So Israel hid men in ambush outside Gibeah. 20:30 The Israelites attacked the Benjaminites the next day;[12] they took their positions against Gibeah just as they had done before. 20:31 The Benjaminites attacked[13] the army, leaving the city unguarded.[14] They began to strike down their enemy[15] just as they had done before. On the main roads (one leads to Bethel,[16] the other to Gibeah) and in the field, they struck down[17] about thirty Israelites. 20:32 Then the Benjaminites said, "They are defeated just as before." But the Israelites said, "Let's retreat[18] and lure them[19] away from the city into the main roads." 20:33[20] All the men of Israel got up from their places and took their positions at Baal Tamar, while the Israelites hiding in ambush jumped out of their places west of Gibeah. 20:34 Ten thousand men, well-trained soldiers from all Israel, then made a frontal assault against Gibeah – the battle was fierce.[21] But the Benjaminites did not realize that disaster was at their doorstep.[22] 20:35 The LORD annihilated Benjamin before Israel; the Israelites struck down that day 25,100 sword-wielding Benjaminites.[23] 20:36 Then the Benjaminites saw they were defeated.

The Israelites retreated before[24] Benjamin, because they had confidence in the men they had hid in ambush outside Gibeah. 20:37 The men hiding in ambush made a mad dash[25] to Gibeah. They[26] attacked[27] and put the sword to the entire city. 20:38 The Israelites and the men hiding in ambush had arranged a signal. When the men hiding in ambush[28] sent up a smoke signal from the city, 20:39 the Israelites counterattacked.[29] Benjamin had begun to strike down the Israelites;[30] they struck down[31] about thirty men. They said, "There's no doubt about it! They are totally defeated as in the earlier battle." 20:40 But when the signal, a pillar of smoke, began to rise up from the city, the Benjaminites turned around and saw the whole city going up in a cloud of smoke that rose high into the sky.[32] 20:41 When the Israelites turned around, the Benjaminites panicked[33] because they could see that disaster was on their doorstep.[34] 20:42 They retreated before the Israelites, taking the road to the wilderness. But the battle overtook[35] them as men from the surrounding cities struck them down.[36] 20:43 They surrounded the Benjaminites, chased them from Nohah,[37] and annihilated[38] them all the way to a spot east of Geba.[39] 20:44 Eighteen thousand Benjaminites, all of them capable warriors, fell dead. 20:45 The rest[40] turned and ran toward the wilderness, heading toward the cliff of Rimmon. But the Israelites[1] caught[2] five thousand of them on the main roads. They stayed right on their heels[3] all the way to Gidom and struck down two thousand more. 20:46 That day twenty-five thousand[4] sword-wielding Benjaminites fell in battle, all of them capable warriors.[5] 20:47 Six hundred survivors turned and ran away to the wilderness, to the cliff of Rimmon. They stayed there four months. 20:48 The Israelites returned to the Benjaminite towns[6] and put the sword to them. They wiped out the cities,[7] the animals, and everything they could find. They set fire to every city in their path.[8]

600 Brides for 600 Brothers

21:1 The Israelites had taken an oath in Mizpah, saying, "Not one of us will allow his daughter to marry a Benjaminite." 21:2 So the people came to Bethel[9] and sat there before God until evening, weeping loudly and uncontrollably.[10] 21:3 They said, "Why, O LORD God of Israel, has this happened in Israel?" An entire[11] tribe has disappeared from Israel today!"

21:4 The next morning the people got up early and built an altar there. They offered up burnt sacrifices and tokens of peace.[12] 21:5 The Israelites asked, "Who from all the Israelite tribes has not assembled before the LORD?" They had made a solemn oath that whoever did not assemble before the LORD at Mizpah must certainly be executed.[13] 21:6 The Israelites regretted what had happened to[14] their brother Benjamin. They said, "Today we cut off an entire[15] tribe from Israel! 21:7 How can we find wives for those who are left?[16] After all, we took an oath in the LORD's name not to give them our daughters as wives." 21:8 So they asked, "Who from all the Israelite tribes did not assemble before the LORD at Mizpah?" Now it just so happened no one from Jabesh Gilead had come to the gathering.[17] 21:9 When they took roll call,[18] they noticed[19] none of the inhabitants of Jabesh Gilead were there. 21:10 So the assembly sent 12,000 capable warriors[20] against Jabesh Gilead.[21] They commanded them, "Go and kill with your swords[22] the inhabitants of Jabesh Gilead, including the women and little children. 21:11 Do this:[23] exterminate every male, as well as every woman who has had sexual relations with a male.[24] But spare the lives of any virgins." So they did as instructed.[25] 21:12 They found among the inhabitants of Jabesh Gilead four hundred young girls who were virgins – they had never had sexual relations with a male.[26] They brought them back to the camp at Shiloh in the land of Canaan.

21:13 The entire assembly sent messengers to the Benjaminites at the cliff of Rimmon and assured them they would not be harmed.[27] 21:14 The Benjaminites returned at that time, and the

[3] tn Heb "stuck close after them."

[4] sn The number given here (twenty-five thousand sword-wielding Benjaminites) is an approximate figure; v. 35 gives the more exact number (25,100). According to v. 15, the Benjaminite army numbered 26,700 (26,000 + 700). The figures in vv. 35 (rounded in vv. 44-46) and 47 add up to 25,700. What happened to the other 1,000 men? The most reasonable explanation is that they were killed during the first two days of fighting. G. F. Moore (Judges [ICC], 429) and C. F. Burney (Judges, 475) reject this proposal, arguing that the narrator is too precise and concerned about details to omit such a fact. However, the account of the first two days' fighting emphasizes Israel's humiliating defeat. To speak of Benjaminite casualties would diminish the literary effect. In vv. 35, 44-47 the narrator's emphasis is the devastating defeat that Benjamin experienced on this final day of battle. To mention the earlier days' casualties at this point is irrelevant to his literary purpose. He allows readers who happen to be concerned with such details to draw conclusions for themselves.

[5] tn Heb "So all the ones who fell from Benjamin were twenty-five thousand men, wielding the sword, in that day, all of these men of strength.

[7] tc The translation is based on the reading מֵעִיר מְתִים (me'ir m^{e}tim, "from a city of men," i.e., "an inhabited city"), rather than the reading מֵעִיר מְתֹם (me'ir m^{e}tom, "from a city of soundness") found in the Leningrad Codex (L).

[23] tn Heb "And this is the thing that you will do."

[24] tn Heb "every woman who is familiar with the bed of a male."

[25] tc Some Greek witnesses (notably Codex Vaticanus [B]) add the words, "'But the virgins you should keep alive.' And they did so." These additional words, which probably represent the original Hebrew text, can be retroverted: וְאֶת־הַבְּתוּלוֹת תְּחַיּוּ וַיַּעֲשׂוּ כֵן (ve'et-habb^{e}tulot t^{e}khayyu vayya'asu khen). It is likely that a scribe's eye jumped from the vav (ו) on וְאֶת (v^{e}'et) to the initial vav of v. 11, accidentally leaving out the intervening letters. The present translation is based on this reconstruction.

[26] tn Heb "who had not known a man with respect to the bed of a male."

[27] tn Heb "And all the assembly sent and spoke to the sons of Benjamin who were at the cliff of Rimmon and they proclaimed to them peace."

Israelites[1] gave to them the women they had spared from Jabesh Gilead. But there were not enough to go around.[2]

21:15 The people regretted what had happened to[3] Benjamin because the LORD had weakened[4] the Israelite tribes. 21:16 The leaders[5] of the assembly said, "How can we find wives for those who are left?[6] After all, the Benjaminite women have been wiped out. 21:17 The[7] remnant of Benjamin must be preserved. An entire Israelite tribe should not be wiped out.[8] 21:18 But we can't allow our daughters to marry them,[9] for the Israelites took an oath, saying, 'Whoever gives a woman to a Benjaminite will be destroyed!'[10] 21:19 However, there is an annual festival to the LORD in Shiloh, which is north of Bethel[11] (east of the main road that goes up from Bethel to Shechem) and south of Lebonah." 21:20 So they commanded the Benjaminites, "Go hide in the vineyards, 21:21 and keep your eyes open.[12] When you see[13] the daughters of Shiloh coming out to dance in the celebration,[14] jump out from the vineyards. Each one of you, catch yourself a wife from among the daughters of Shiloh and then go home to the land of Benjamin. 21:22 When their fathers or brothers come and protest to us,[15] we'll say to them, "Do us a favor and let them be,[16] for we could not get each one a wife through battle.[17] Don't worry about breaking your oath![18] You would only be guilty if you had voluntarily given them wives.'"[19]

21:23 The Benjaminites did as instructed.[20] They abducted two hundred of the dancing girls to be their wives.[21] They went home[22] to their own territory,[23] rebuilt their cities, and settled down.[24] 21:24 Then the Israelites dispersed from there to their respective tribal and clan territories. Each went from there to his own property.[25] 21:25 In those days Israel had no king. Each man did what he considered to be right.[26]

[2] tn Heb "but they did not find for them enough."

[3] tn Or "felt sorry for."

[4] tn Heb "had made a gaping hole in." The narrator uses imagery that compares Israel to a wall that has been breached.

[5] tn Or "elders."

[6] tn Heb "What should we do for the remaining ones concerning wives?"

[7] tn The Hebrew text has "and they said" at the beginning of the verse. For stylistic reasons the translation treats v. 17 as a continuation of the remarks of the leaders in v. 16.

[8] tn Heb "An inheritance for the remnant belonging to Benjamin, and a tribe from Israel will not be wiped away." The first statement lacks a verb. Some prefer to emend the text to read, "How can an inheritance remain for the remnant of Benjamin?"

[16] tn The words "and let them be" are supplied in the translation for clarification.

[17] tn Heb "for we did not take each his wife in battle."

sn Through battle. This probably refers to the battle against Jabesh Gilead, which only produced four hundred of the six hundred wives needed.

[18] tn This sentence is not in the Hebrew text. It is supplied in the translation to clarify the logic of the statement.

[19] tc Heb "You did not give to them, now you are guilty." The MT as it stands makes little sense. It is preferable to emend לֹא (lo', "not") to לוּא (lu', "if"). This particle introduces a purely hypothetical condition, "If you had given to them [but you didn't]." See G. F. Moore, Judges (ICC), 453-54.

[20] tn Heb "did so."

[21] tn Heb "And they took wives according to their number from the dancing girls whom they abducted."

Ruth

A Family Tragedy: Famine and Death

1:1 During the time of the judges[1] there was a famine in the land of Judah.[2] So a man from Bethlehem[3] in Judah went to live as a resident foreigner[4] in the region of Moab, along with his wife and two sons.[5] 1:2 (Now the man's name was Elimelech,[6] his wife was Naomi,[7] and his two sons were Mahlon and Kilion.[8] They were of the clan of Ephrath[9] from Bethlehem in Judah.) They entered the region of Moab and settled there.[10] 1:3 Sometime later[11] Naomi's husband Elimelech died, so she and her two sons were left alone. 1:4 So her sons[12] married[13] Moabite womene. (One was named Orpah and the other Ruth.)[14] And they continued to live there sn Many interpreters, reading this statement in the light of the Book of Judges which describes a morally corrupt period, assume that the narrator is painting a dark backdrop against which Ruth's exemplary character and actions will shine even more brightly. However, others read this statement in the light of the book's concluding epilogue which traces the full significance of the story to the time of David, the chosen king of Judah (4:18-22).

[1] tn Heb "in the days of the judging of the judges." The LXX simply reads "when the judges judged," and Syriac has "in the days of the judges." Cf. NASB "in the days when the judges governed (ruled NRSV)."

[2] tn Heb "in the land." The phrase "of Judah" is supplied in the translation to clarify the referent.

[3] sn The name Bethlehem (בֵּית לֶחֶם, bet lekhem) is from "house, place" (בית) and "bread, food" (לֶחֶם), so the name literally means "House of Bread" or "Place of Food." Perhaps there is irony here: One would not expect a severe famine in such a location. This would not necessarily indicate that Bethlehem was under divine discipline, but merely that the famine was very severe, explaining the reason for the family's departure.

map For location see Map5-B1; Map7-E2; Map8-E2; Map10-B4.

[4] tn Or "to live temporarily." The verb גור (gur, "sojourn") may refer to (1) temporary dwelling in a location (Deut 18:6; Judg 17:7) or (2) permanent dwelling in a location (Judg 5:17; Ps 33:8). When used of a foreign land, it can refer to (1) temporary dwelling as a visiting foreigner (Gen 12:10; 20:1; 21:34; 2 Kgs 8:1-2; Jer 44:14) or (2) permanent dwelling as a resident foreigner (Gen 47:4; Exod 6:4; Num 15:14; Deut 26:5; 2 Sam 4:3; Jer 49:18,33; 50:40; Ezek 47:22-23). Although Naomi eventually returned to Judah, there is some ambiguity whether or not Elimelech intended the move to make them permanent resident foreigners. Cf. NASB "to sojourn" and NIV "to live for a while," both of which imply the move was temporary, while "to live" (NCV, NRSV, NLT) is more neutral about the permanence of the relocation.

sn Some interpreters view Elimelech's departure from Judah to sojourn in Moab as lack of faith in the covenant God of Israel to provide for his family's needs in the land of promise; therefore his death is consequently viewed as divine judgment. Others note that God never prohibited his people from seeking food in a foreign land during times of famine but actually sent his people to a foreign land during a famine in Canaan on at least one occasion as an act of deliverance (Gen 37-50). In this case, Elimelech's sojourn to Moab was an understandable act by a man concerned for the survival of his family, perhaps even under divine approval, so their death in Moab was simply a tragedy, a bad thing that happened to a godly person.

[5] tn Heb "he and his wife and his two sons." The LXX omits "two."

[6] sn The name "Elimelech" literally means "My God [is] king." The narrator's explicit identification of his name seems to cast him in a positive light.

[7] tn Heb "and the name of his wife [was] Naomi." This has been simplified in the translation for stylistic reasons.

sn The name Naomi (נָעֳמִי, na'omi) is from the adjective נעם (noam, "pleasant, lovely") and literally means "my pleasant one" or "my lovely one." Her name will become the subject of a wordplay in 1:20-21 when she laments that she is no longer "pleasant" but "bitter" because of the loss of her husband and two sons.

[8] tn Heb "and the name[s] of his two sons [were] Mahlon and Kilion."

sn The name Mahlon (מַחְלוֹן, makhlon) is from מָחָלָה (malah, "to be weak, sick") and Kilion (כִּלְיוֹן, khilyon) is from כָּלָה (khalah, "to be frail"). The rate of infant mortality was so high during the Iron Age that parents typically did not name children until they survived infancy and were weaned. Naomi and Elimelech might have named their two sons Mahlon and Kilion to reflect their weak condition in infancy due to famine – which eventually prompted the move to Moab where food was abundant.

[9] tn Heb "[They were] Ephrathites." Ephrathah is a small village (Ps 132:6) in the vicinity of Bethlehem (Gen 35:16), so close in proximity that it is often identified with the larger town of Bethlehem (Gen 35:19; 48:7; Ruth 4:11; Mic 5:2 [MT 5:1]; HALOT 81 s.v. אֶפְרָתָה); see F. W. Bush, Ruth, Esther (WBC), 64. The designation "Ephrathites" might indicate that they were residents of Ephrathah. However, the adjectival form אֶפְרָתִים (ephratim, "Ephrathites") used here elsewhere refers to someone from the clan of Ephrath (cf. 1 Chr 4:4) which lived in the region of Bethlehem: "Now David was the son of an Ephrathite from Bethlehem in Judah whose name was Jesse" (1 Sam 17:12; cf. Mic 5:2 [MT 5:1]). So it is more likely that the virtually identical expression here – "Ephrathites from Bethlehem in Judah" – refers to the clan of Ephrath in Bethlehem (see R. L. Hubbard, Jr., Ruth [NICOT], 91).

[10] tn Heb "and were there"; KJV "continued there"; NRSV "remained there"; TEV "were living there."

[11] tn Heb "And Elimelech, the husband of Naomi, died." The vav (ו) functions in a consecutive sense ("then"), but the time-frame is not explicitly stated.

[12] tn Heb "they." The verb is 3rd person masculine plural referring to Naomi's sons, as the translation indicates.

[13] tn Heb "and they lifted up for themselves Moabite wives." When used with the noun "wife," the verb נָשָׂא (nasa', "to lift up, carry, take") forms the idiom "to take a wife," that is, to marry (BDB 673 s.v. Qal.3.d; 2 Chr 11:21; 13:21; 24:3; Ezra 9:2,12; 10:44; Neh 13:25).

[14] tn Heb "the name of the one [was] Orpah and the name of the second [was] Ruth."

sn The name Orpah (עָרְפָּה, 'orpah) is from the noun עֹרֶף ('oref, "back of the neck") and the related verb ("to turn one's back"). The name Ruth (רוּת, rut) is from the noun רֵעוּת (re'ut, "friendship"), derived from the root רֵעַ (rea', "friend, companion"). Ironically, Orpah will eventually turn her back on Naomi, while Ruth will display extraordinary friendship as her life-long companion (see 1:14). Since they seem to mirror the most definitive action of these women, perhaps they designate character types (as is the case with the name Mara in 1:21 and Peloni Almoni in 4:2) rather than their original birth names.

about ten years. 1:5 Then Naomi's two sons, Mahlon and Kilion, also died.[1] So the woman was left all alone – bereaved of her two children[2] as well as her husband! 1:6 So she decided to return home from the region of Moab, accompanied by her daughters-in-law,[3] because while she was living in Moab[4] she had heard that the LORD had shown concern[5] for his people, reversing the famine by providing abundant crops.[6]

Ruth Returns with Naomi

1:7 Now as she and her two daughters-in-law began to leave the place where she had been living to return to the land of Judah,[7] 1:8 Naomi said to her two daughters-in-law, "Listen to me! Each of you should return to your mother's home![8] May the LORD show[9] you[10] the same kind of devotion that you have shown to your deceased husbands[11] and to me![12] 1:9 May the LORD enable each of you to find[13] security[14] in the home of a new husband!"[15] Then she kissed them goodbye and they wept loudly.[16] 1:10 But they said to her, "No![17] We will[18] return with you to your people."

1:11 But Naomi replied, "Go back home, my daughters! There is no reason for you to return to Judah with me![19] I am no longer capable of giving birth to sons who might become your husbands![20] 1:12 Go back home, my daughters!

1 tn Heb "and the two of them also died, Mahlon and Kilion."

2 tn The term יֶלֶד (yeled, "offspring"), from the verb יָלַד (yalad, "to give birth to"), is used only here of a married man. By shifting to this word from the more common term בֵּן (ben, "son"; see vv. 1-5a) and then using it in an unusual manner, the author draws attention to Naomi's loss and sets up a verbal link with the story's conclusion (cf. 4:16). Although grown men, they were still her "babies" (see E. F. Campbell, Ruth [AB], 56; F. W. Bush, Ruth, Esther [WBC], 66).

3 tn Heb "and she arose, along with her daughters-in-law, and she returned from the region of Moab."

4 tn Heb "in the region of Moab"; KJV, NRSV "in the country of Moab." Since this is a repetition of the phrase found earlier in the verse, it has been shortened to "in Moab" in the present translation for stylistic reasons.

5 tn Heb "had visited" or "taken note of." The basic meaning of פָּקַד (paqad) is "observe, examine, take note of" (T. F. Williams, NIDOTTE 3:658), so it sometimes appears with זָכַר (zakhar, "to remember"; Pss 8:4 [MT 5]; 106:4; Jer 14:10; 15:15; Hos 8:13; 9:9) and רָאָה (ra'ah, "to see"; Exod 4:31; Ps 80:14 [MT 15]; NIDOTTE 3:659). It often emphasizes the cause/effect response to what is seen (NIDOTTE 3:659). When God observes people in need, it is glossed "be concerned about, care for, attend to, help" (Gen 21:1; 50:24, 25; Exod 4:31; Ruth 1:6; 1 Sam 2:21; Jer 15:15; Zeph 2:7; Zech 10:3b; NIDOTTE 3:661). When humans are the subject, it sometimes means "to visit" needy people to bestow a gift (Judg 15:1; 1 Sam 17:18). Because it has such a broad range of meanings, its use here has been translated variously: (1) "had visited" (KJV, ASV, NASV, RSV; so BDB 823-24 s.v. פָּקַד 2)) "had considered" (NRSV) and "had taken note of" (TNK; so HALOT 955-57 s.v. פקד); and (3) "had come to the aid of" (NIV), "had blessed" (TEV), and "had given" (CEV; so NIDOTTE 3:657). When God observed the plight of his people, he demonstrated his concern by benevolently giving them food.

6 tn Heb "by giving to them food." The translation "reversing the famine and providing abundant crops" attempts to clarify the referent of לָחֶם (lekhem, "food") as "crops" and highlights the reversal of the famine that began in v. 1. The infinitive construct לָתֵת לָהֶם לָחֶם (latet lahem lakhem) may denote (1) purpose: "[he visited his people] to give them food" or (2) complementary sense explaining the action of the main verb: "[he visited his people] by giving them food." The term לָחֶם (lakhem) here refers to agricultural fertility, the reversal of the famine in v. 1.

7 tn Heb "and she went out from the place she had been, and her two daughters-in-law with her, and they went on the way to return to the land of Judah."

8 tn Heb "each to the house of her mother." Naomi's words imply that it is more appropriate for the two widows to go home to their mothers, rather than stay with their mother-in-law (see F. W. Bush, Ruth, Esther [WBC], 75).

9 tc The MT (Kethib) has the imperfect יַעֲשֶׂה (ya'aseh, "[the LORD] will do"), but the marginal reading (Qere) has the shortened jussive form יַעַשׂ (ya'as, "may [the LORD] do"), which is more probable in this prayer of blessing. Most English versions adopt the jussive form (KJV, ASV, NAB, NASB, NIV, NRSV, JPS, TEV, CEV, NLT).

10 tn Heb "do with you"; NRSV "deal kindly with you"; NLT "reward you for your kindness." The pronominal suffix "you" appears to be a masculine form, but this is likely a preservation of an archaic dual form (see E. F. Campbell, Ruth [AB], 65; F. W. Bush, Ruth, Esther [WBC], 75-76).

11 tn Heb "the dead" (so KJV, NRSV); NLT "your husbands." This refers to their deceased husbands.

12 tn Heb "devotion as you have done with the dead and with me." The noun חֶסֶד (khesed, "devotion") is a key thematic term in the book of Ruth (see 2:20; 3:10). G. R. Clark suggests that חֶסֶד "is not merely an attitude or an emotion; it is an emotion that leads to an activity beneficial to the recipient"; an act of חֶסֶד is "a beneficent action performed, in the context of a deep and enduring commitment between two persons or parties, by one who is able to render assistance to the needy party who in the circumstances is unable to help him – or herself" (The Word Hesed in the Hebrew Bible [JSOTSup], 267). HALOT 336-37 s.v. II חֶסֶד defines the word as "loyalty" or "faithfulness." Other appropriate glosses might be "commitment" and "devotion."

13 tn Heb "may the LORD give to you, and find rest, each [in] the house of her husband." The syntax is unusual, but following the jussive ("may he give"), the imperative with vav (ו) conjunctive ("and find") probably indicates the purpose or consequence of the preceding action: "May he enable you to find rest."

14 tn Heb "rest." While the basic meaning of מְנוּחָה (m^{e}nukhah) is "rest," it often refers to "security," such as provided in marriage (BDB 629-30 s.v.; HALOT 600 s.v.). Thus English versions render it in three different but related ways: (1) the basic sense: "rest" (KJV, ASV, NASV, NIV); (2) the metonymical cause/effect sense: "security" (NRSV, NJPS, REB, NLT, GW); and (3) the referential sense: "home" (RSV, TEV, CEV, NCV).

15 tn Heb "in the house of her husband" (so KJV, NASB); NRSV "your husband."

16 tn Heb "they lifted their voice[s] and wept" (KJV, ASV, NASB all similar). This refers to loud weeping characteristic of those mourning a tragedy (Judg 21:2; 2 Sam 13:36; Job 2:12).

17 tn The particle כִּי (ki) here has the force of "no, on the contrary" (see Gen 31:26; Ps 44:22; HALOT 470 s.v. II כִּי 3).

18 tn Or perhaps "we want to" (so NCV, CEV, NLT), if the imperfect is understood in a modal sense indicating desire.

19 tn Heb "Why would you want to come with me?" Naomi's rhetorical question expects a negative answer. The phrase "to Judah" is added in the translation for clarification.

20 tn Heb "Do I still have sons in my inner parts that they might become your husbands?" Again Naomi's rhetorical question expects a negative answer.

For I am too old to get married again.[1] Even if I thought that there was hope that I could get married tonight and conceive sons,[2] 1:13 surely you would not want to wait until they were old enough to marry![3] Surely you would not remain unmarried all that time![4] No,[5] my daughters, you must not return with me.[6] For my intense suffering[7] is too much for you to bear.[8] For the LORD is afflicting me!"[9]

1:14 Again they wept loudly.[10] Then Orpah kissed her mother-in-law goodbye,[11] but Ruth[12] clung tightly to her.[13] 1:15 So Naomi[14] said, "Look, your sister-in-law is returning to her

---

[1] sn Too old to get married again. Naomi may be exaggerating for the sake of emphasis. Her point is clear, though: It is too late to roll back the clock.

[2] tn Verse 12b contains the protasis ("if" clause) of a conditional sentence, which is completed by the rhetorical questions in v. 13. For a detailed syntactical analysis, see F. W. Bush, Ruth, Esther (WBC), 78-79.

[3] tn Heb "For them would you wait until they were grown?" Some understand הֲלָהֵן (halahen) as an interrogative he (ה) with an Aramaic particle meaning "therefore" (see GKC 301 §103.b.2 [n. 4]; cf. ASV, NASB), while others understand the form to consist of an interrogative he, the preposition ל (lamed, "for"), and an apparent third person feminine plural pronominal suffix (CEV, NLT "for them"). The feminine suffix is problematic, for its antecedent is the hypothetical "sons" mentioned at the end of v. 12. For this reason some emend the form to הלהם ("for them," a third person masculine plural suffix). R. L. Hubbard raises the possibility that the nunated suffix is an archaic Moabite masculine dual form (Ruth [NICOT], 111, n. 31). In any case, Naomi's rhetorical question expects a negative answer.

[4] tn Heb "For them would you hold yourselves back so as not to be for a man?" Again Naomi's rhetorical question expects a negative answer. The verb עָגַן ('agan, "hold back"; cf. KJV, ASV "stay"; NRSV "refrain") occurs only here in the OT. For discussion of its etymology and meaning, see HALOT 785-86 s.v. ענן, and F. W. Bush, Ruth, Esther (WBC), 79-80.

[5] tn The negative is used here in an elliptical manner for emphasis (see HALOT 48 s.v. I אַל; GKC 479-80 §152.g).

[6] tn Heb "No, my daughters." Naomi is not answering the rhetorical questions she has just asked. In light of the explanatory clause that follows, it seems more likely that she is urging them to give up the idea of returning with her. In other words, the words "no, my daughters" complement the earlier exhortation to "go back." To clarify this, the words "you must not return with me" are added in the translation.

[7] tn Heb "bitterness to me." The term מָרַר (marar) can refer to emotional bitterness: "to feel bitter" (1 Sam 30:6; 2 Kgs 4:27; Lam 1:4) or a grievous situation: "to be in bitter circumstances" (Jer 4:18) (BDB 600 s.v.; HALOT 638 s.v. I מרר). So the expression מַר־לִי (mar-li) can refer to emotional bitterness (KJV, NKJV, ASV, RSV, NASB, NIV, NJPS, CEV, NLT) or a grievous situation (cf. NRSV, NAB, NCV, CEV margin). Although Naomi and her daughters-in-law had reason for emotional grief, the issue at hand was Naomi's lamentable situation, which she did not want them to experience: being a poor widow in a foreign land.

[8] tn Heb "for there is bitterness to me exceedingly from you." The clause כִּי־מַר־לִי מְאֹד מִכֶּם (ki-mar-li me'od mikkem) is notoriously difficult to interpret. It has been taken in three different ways: (1) "For I am very bitter for me because of you," that is, because of your widowed condition (cf. KJV, NKJV, ASV, RSV, NJB, REB, JB, TEV). This does not fit well, however, with the following statement ("for the LORD has attacked me") nor with the preceding statement ("You must not return with me"). (2) "For I am far more bitter than for you" (cf. NASB, NIV, NJPS, NEB, CEV, NLT). This does not provide an adequate basis, however, for the preceding statement ("You must not return with me"). (3) "For my bitterness is too much for you [to bear]" (cf. NAB, NRSV, NCV, CEV margin). This is preferable because it fits well with both the preceding and following statements. These three options reflect the three ways the preposition מִן may be taken here: (1) causal: "because of, on account of" (BDB 580 s.v. מִן 2.f; HALOT 598 s.v. מִן 6), not that Orpah and Ruth were the cause of her calamity, but that Naomi was grieved because they had become widows; (2) comparative: "more [bitter] than you" (BDB 581 s.v. 6.a; HALOT 598 s.v. 5b), meaning that Naomi's situation was more grievous than theirs – while they could remarry, her prospects were much more bleak; and (3) elative, describing a situation that is too much for a person to bear: "too [bitter] for you" (BDB 581 s.v. 6.d; HALOT 598 s.v. 5a; IBHS 267 §14.4f; e.g., Gen 4:13; Exod 18:18; Deut 17:8; 1 Kgs 19:17), meaning that Naomi's plight was too bitter for her daughters-in-law to share. While all three options are viable, the meaning adopted must fit two criteria: (1) The meaning of this clause (1:13b) must provide the grounds for Naomi's emphatic rejection of the young women's refusal to separate themselves from her (1:13a); and (2) it must fit the following clause: "for the hand of the LORD has gone out against me" (1:13c). The first and second options do not provide adequate reasons for sending her daughters-in-law back home, nor do they fit her lament that the LORD had attached her (not them); however, the third option (elative sense) fits both criteria. Naomi did not want her daughters-in-law to share her sad situation, that is, to be poor, childless widows in a foreign land with no prospect for marriage. If they accompanied her back to Judah, they would be in the same kind of situation in which she found herself in Moab. If they were to find the "rest" (security of home and husband) she wished for them, it would be in Moab, not in Judah. The LORD had already deprived her of husband and sons. She could do nothing for them in this regard because she had no more sons to give them as husbands, and she was past the age of child-bearing to raise up new husbands for them in the future – as if they could wait that long anyway (1:13a). For a discussion of these three options and defense of the approach adopted here, see F. W. Bush, Ruth, Esther (WBC), 80-81.

[9] tn Heb "for the hand of the LORD has gone out against me" (KJV, ASV, NASB, NIV all similar). The expression suggests opposition and hostility, perhaps picturing the Lord as the Divine Warrior who is bringing calamity upon Naomi. See R. L. Hubbard, Jr., Ruth (NICOT), 113.

[10] tn Heb "they lifted their voice[s] and wept" (so NASB; see v. 9). The expression refers to loud weeping employed in mourning tragedy (Judg 21:2; 2 Sam 13:36; Job 2:12).

[11] tc The LXX adds, "and she returned to her people" (cf. TEV "and went back home"). Translating the Greek of the LXX back to Hebrew would read a consonantal text of ותשב אל־עמה. Most dismiss this as a clarifying addition added under the influence of v. 15, but this alternative reading should not be rejected too quickly. It is possible that a scribe's eye jumped from the initial vav on ותשב ("and she returned") to the initial vav on the final clause (ורות [v'rut], "and Ruth"), inadvertently leaving out the intervening words, "and she returned to her people." Or a scribe's eye could have jumped from the final he on לַחֲמוֹתָהּ (lakhamotah, "to her mother-in-law") to the final he on עַמָּהּ ('ammah, "her people"), leaving out the intervening words, "and she returned to her people."

[12] tn The clause is disjunctive. The word order is conjunction + subject + verb, highlighting the contrast between the actions of Orpah and Ruth.

sn Orpah is a literary foil for Ruth. Orpah is a commendable and devoted person (see v. 8); after all she is willing to follow Naomi back to Judah. However, when Naomi bombards her with good reasons why she should return, she relents. But Ruth is special. Despite Naomi's bitter tirade, she insists on staying. Orpah is a good person, but Ruth is beyond good – she possesses an extra measure of devotion and sacrificial love that is uncommon.

[13] sn Clung tightly. The expression suggests strong commitment (see R. L. Hubbard, Jr., Ruth [NICOT], 115).

[14] tn Heb "she"; the referent (Naomi) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

people and to her god.[1] Follow your sister-in-law back home!" 1:16 But Ruth replied,

"Stop urging me to abandon you![2]
For wherever you go, I will go.
Wherever you live, I will live.
Your people will become my people, and your God will become my God.
1:17 Wherever you die, I will die – and there I will be buried.
May the LORD punish me severely if I do not keep my promise![3]
Only death will be able to separate me from you!"[4]

1:18 When Naomi[5] realized that Ruth[6] was determined to go with her, she stopped trying to dissuade her.[7] 1:19 So the two of them[8] journeyed together until they arrived in Bethlehem.[9]

Naomi and Ruth Arrive in Bethlehem

When they entered[10] Bethlehem,[11] the whole village was excited about their arrival.[12] The women of the village said,[13] "Can this be Naomi?"[14] 1:20 But she replied[15] to them,[16] "Don't call me 'Naomi'![17] Call me 'Mara'[18] because the Sovereign One[19] has treated me very [1] tn Or "gods" (so KJV, NASB, NIV, NRSV, CEV, NLT), if the plural form is taken as a numerical plural. However, it is likely that Naomi, speaking from Orpah's Moabite perspective, uses the plural of majesty of the Moabite god Chemosh. For examples of the plural of majesty being used of a pagan god, see BDB 43 s.v. אֱלֹהִים 1.d. Note especially 1 Kgs 11:33, where the plural form is used of Chemosh.

[2] tn Heb "do not urge me to abandon you to turn back from after you." Most English versions, following the lead of the KJV, use "leave" here. The use of עזב ("abandon") reflects Ruth's perspective. To return to Moab would be to abandon Naomi and to leave her even more vulnerable than she already is.

[3] tn Heb "Thus may the LORD do to me and thus may he add..." The construction כֹּה יַעֲשֶׂה־לִּי וְכֹה יוֹסִיף...כה (koh ya'aseh... vekhoh yosif, "May he do thus...and may he do even more so...!") is an oath formula of self-imprecation (e.g., 1 Sam 3:17; 14:44; 20:13; 25:22; 2 Sam 3:9,35; 19:14; 1 Kgs 2:23; 2 Kgs 6:31). In this formula the exact curse is understood but not expressed (GKC 472 §149.d; BDB 462 s.v. כה 1.b). In ancient Near Eastern imprecations, when the curse was so extreme, it was not uttered because it was unspeakably awful: "In the twelve uses of this formula, the calamity which the speaker invokes is never named, since OT culture (in keeping with the rest of the ancient Near East) accorded such power to the spoken word" (F. W. Bush, Ruth, Esther [WBC], 82). Ruth here pronounces a curse upon herself, elevating the preceding promise to a formal, unconditional level. If she is not faithful to her promise, she agrees to become an object of divine judgment. As in other occurrences of this oath/curse formula, the specific punishment is not mentioned. As Bush explains, the particle כִּי (ki) here is probably asseverative ("indeed, certainly") and the statement that follows expresses what underscores the seriousness of her promise by invoking divine judgment, as it were, if she does otherwise. Of course, the LORD would not have been obligated to judge her if she had abandoned Naomi – this is simply an ancient idiomatic way of expressing her commitment to her promise.

[4] tn Heb "certainly death will separate me and you." Ruth's vow has been interpreted two ways: (1) Not even death will separate her from Naomi – because they will be buried next to one another (e.g., NRSV, NCV; see E. F. Campbell, Ruth [AB], 74-75). However, for the statement to mean, "Not even death will separate me and you," it would probably need to be introduced by אִם ('im, "if") or negated by לֹא (lo', "not"; see F. W. Bush, Ruth, Esther [WBC], 83). (2) Nothing except death will separate her from Naomi (e.g., KJV, ASV, RSV, NASB, NIV, TEV, NJPS, REB, NLT, GW; see Bush, 83). The particle כִּי introduces the content of the vow, which – if violated – would bring about the curse uttered in the preceding oath (BDB 472 s.v. כִּי 1.c; e.g., Gen 42:16; Num 14:22; 1 Sam 20:3; 26:16; 29:6; 2 Sam 3:35; 1 Kgs 2:23; Isa 49:18). Some suggest that כִּי is functioning as an asseverative ("indeed, certainly") to express what the speaker is determined will happen (Bush, 83; see 1 Sam 14:44; 2 Sam 3:9; 1 Kgs 2:23; 19:2). Here כִּי probably functions in a conditional sense: "if" or "if...except, unless" (BDB 473 s.v. כִּי 2.b). So her vow may essentially mean "if anything except death should separate me from you!" The most likely view is (2): Ruth is swearing that death alone will separate her from Naomi.

sn Ruth's devotion to Naomi is especially apparent here. Instead of receiving a sure blessing and going home (see v. 8), Ruth instead takes on a serious responsibility and subjects herself to potential divine punishment. Death, a power beyond Ruth's control, will separate the two women, but until that time Ruth will stay by Naomi's side and she will even be buried in the same place as Naomi.

[5] tn Heb "she"; the referent (Naomi) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[6] tn Heb "she"; the referent (Ruth) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[7] tn Heb "she ceased speaking to her." This does not imply that Naomi was completely silent toward Ruth. It simply means that Naomi stopped trying to convince her to go back to Moab (see F. W. Bush, Ruth, Esther [WBC], 84-85).

[8] tn The suffix "them" appears to be masculine, but it is probably an archaic dual form (E. F. Campbell, Ruth [AB], 65; F. W. Bush, Ruth, Esther [WBC], 75-76).

[9] map For location see Map5-B1; Map7-E2; Map8-E2; Map10-B4.

[10] tn The temporal indicator וַיְהִי (vayehi, "and it was") here introduces a new scene.

[11] map For location see Map5-B1; Map7-E2; Map8-E2; Map10-B4.

[12] tn Heb "because of them" (so NASB, NIV, NRSV); CEV "excited to see them."

[13] tn Heb "they said," but the verb form is third person feminine plural, indicating that the women of the village are the subject.

[14] tn Heb "Is this Naomi?" (so KJV, NASB, NRSV). The question here expresses surprise and delight because of the way Naomi reacts to it (F. W. Bush, Ruth, Esther [WBC], 92).

[15] tn Heb "said." For stylistic reasons the present translation employs "replied" here.

[16] tn The third person feminine plural form of the pronominal suffix indicates the women of the village (see v. 19) are the addressees.

[17] sn The name Naomi means "pleasant."

[18] sn The name Mara means "bitter."

[19] tn Heb "Shaddai"; traditionally "the Almighty." The etymology and meaning of this divine name is uncertain. It may be derived from: (1) שָׁדַד (shadad, "to be strong"), cognate to Arabic sdd, meaning "The Strong One" or "Almighty"; (2) שָׁדָה (shadah, "mountain"), cognate to Akkadian shadu, meaning "The Mountain Dweller" or "God of the Mountains"; (3) שָׁדַד (shadad, "to devastate") and שַׁד (shad, "destroyer"), Akkadian Shedum, meaning "The Destroyer" or "The Malevolent One"; or (4) שׁ (she, "who") plus דַּי (diy, "sufficient"), meaning "The One Who is Sufficient" or "All-Sufficient One" (HALOT 1420-22 s.v. שַׁדַּי, שְׁדֵי). In terms of use, Shaddai (or El Shaddai) is presented as the sovereign king/judge of the world who grants life/blesses and kills/judges. In Genesis he blesses the patriarchs with fertility and promises numerous descendants. Outside Genesis he blesses/protects and also takes away life/happiness. In light of Naomi's emphasis on God's sovereign, malevolent deprivation of her family, one can understand her use of this name for God. For discussion of this divine name, see T. N. D. Mettinger, In Search of God, 69-72.

harshly.[1] 1:21 I left here full,[2] but the LORD has caused me to return empty-handed.[3] Why do you call me 'Naomi,' seeing that[4] the LORD has opposed me,[5] and the Sovereign One[6] has caused me to suffer?"[7] 1:22 So Naomi returned, accompanied by her Moabite daughter-in-law Ruth, who came back with her from the region of Moab.[8] (Now they[9] arrived in Bethlehem at the beginning of the barley harvest.)[10]

Ruth Works in the Field of Boaz

2:1 Now Naomi[11] had a relative[12] on her husband's side of the family named Boaz. He was a wealthy, prominent man from the clan of Elimelech.[13] 2:2 One day Ruth the Moabite said to Naomi, "Let me go[14] to the fields so I can gather[15] grain behind whoever permits me to do so."[16] Naomi[17] replied, "You may go, my daughter." 2:3 So Ruth[18] went and gathered grain in the fields[19] behind the harvesters. Now she just happened to end up[20] in the portion of the field belonging to Boaz, who was from the clan of Elimelech.

Boaz and Ruth Meet

2:4 Now at that very moment,[21] Boaz arrived from Bethlehem[22] and greeted[23] the harvesters, "May the LORD be with you!" They replied,[24] "May the LORD bless you!" 2:5 Boaz asked[25] his

[1] tn Or "caused me to be very bitter"; NAB "has made it very bitter for me."

[2] sn I left here full. That is, with a husband and two sons.

[3] tn Heb "but empty the LORD has brought me back." The disjunctive clause structure (vav + adverb + verb + subject) highlights the contrast between her former condition and present situation. Cf. TEV "has brought me back without a thing."

sn Empty-handed. This statement is highly ironic, for ever-loyal Ruth stands by her side even as she speaks these words. These words reflect Naomi's perspective, not the narrator's, for Ruth will eventually prove to be the one who reverses Naomi's plight and "fills" her "emptiness." Naomi's perspective will prove to be inaccurate and the women will later correct Naomi's faulty view of Ruth's value (see 4:15).

[4] tn The disjunctive clause structure (vav [ו] + subject + verb) here introduces either an attendant circumstance ("when the LORD has opposed me") or an explanation ("seeing that the LORD has opposed me").

[5] tc The LXX reads "humbled me" here, apparently understanding the verb as a Piel (עָנָּה, 'anah) from a homonymic root meaning "afflict." However, עָנָה ("afflict") never introduces its object with בְּ (bet); when the preposition בְּ is used with this verb, it is always adverbial ("in, with, through"). To defend the LXX reading one would have to eliminate the preposition.

tn Heb "has testified against me" (KJV, ASV both similar); NAB "has pronounced against me." The idiom עָנָה בִי ('anah vi, "testify against") is well attested elsewhere in legal settings (see BDB 773 s.v. עָנָה Qal.3.a; HALOT 852 s.v. I ענה qal.2). Naomi uses a legal metaphor and depicts the LORD as testifying against her in court.

[6] sn The divine name translated Sovereign One is שַׁדַּי (shadday, "Shaddai"). See further the note on this term in Ruth 1:20.

[7] tn Or "brought disaster upon me"; NIV "brought misfortune (calamity NRSV) upon me"; NLT "has sent such tragedy."

[8] tn Heb "and Naomi returned, and Ruth the Moabitess, her daughter-in-law, with her, the one who returned from the region of Moab."

sn This summarizing statement provides closure to the first part of the story. By highlighting Ruth's willingness to return with Naomi, it also contrasts sharply with Naomi's remark about being empty-handed.

[9] tn The pronoun appears to be third person masculine plural in form, but it is probably an archaic third person dual form (see F. W. Bush, Ruth, Esther [WBC], 94).

[10] tn This statement, introduced with a disjunctive structure (vav [ו] + subject + verb) provides closure for the previous scene, while at the same time making a transition to the next scene, which takes place in the barley field. The reference to the harvest also reminds the reader that God has been merciful to his people by replacing the famine with fertility. In the flow of the narrative the question is now, "Will he do the same for Naomi and Ruth?"

sn The barley harvest began in late March. See O. Borowski, Agriculture in Iron Age Israel, 91.

[11] tn The disjunctive clause (note the vav [ו] + prepositional phrase structure) provides background information essential to the following narrative.

[12] tc The marginal reading (Qere) is מוֹדָע (moda', "relative"), while the consonantal text (Kethib) has מְיֻדָּע (miyudda', "friend"). The textual variant was probably caused by orthographic confusion between consonantal מְיֻדָּע and מוֹדָע. Virtually all English versions follow the marginal reading (Qere), e.g., KJV, NAB, NASB, NRSV "kinsman"; NIV, NCV, NLT "relative."

[13] tn Heb "and [there was] to Naomi a relative, to her husband, a man mighty in substance, from the clan of Elimelech, and his name [was] Boaz."

[14] tn The cohortative here ("Let me go") expresses Ruth's request. Note Naomi's response, in which she gives Ruth permission to go to the field.

[15] tn Following the preceding cohortative, the cohortative with vav conjunctive indicates purpose/result.

[16] tn Heb "anyone in whose eyes I may find favor" (ASV, NIV similar). The expression אֶמְצָא־חֵן בְּעֵינָיו ('emtsa'-khen be'enayv, "to find favor in the eyes of [someone]") appears in Ruth 2:2, 10, 13. It is most often used when a subordinate or servant requests permission for something from a superior (BDB 336 s.v. חֵן). Ruth will play the role of the subordinate servant, seeking permission from a landowner, who then could show benevolence by granting her request to glean in his field behind the harvest workers.

[17] tn Heb "she"; the referent (Naomi) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[18] tn Heb "she"; the referent (Ruth) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[19] tn Heb "and she went and entered [a field] and gleaned in the field behind the harvesters." Cf. KJV, NASB, NRSV "the reapers"; TEV "the workers."

[20] sn The text is written from Ruth's limited perspective. As far as she was concerned, she randomly picked a spot in the field. But God was providentially at work and led her to the portion of the field belonging to Boaz, who, as a near relative of Elimelech, was a potential benefactor.

[21] tn Heb "and look"; NIV, NRSV "Just then." The narrator invites the audience into the story, describing Boaz's arrival as if it were witnessed by the audience.

[22] map For location see Map5-B1; Map7-E2; Map8-E2; Map10-B4.

[23] tn Heb "said to." Context indicates that the following expression is a greeting, the first thing Boaz says to his workers.

[24] tn Heb "said to him." For stylistic reasons "replied" is used in the present translation.

[25] tn Heb "said to." Since what follows is a question, "asked" is appropriate in this context.

servant[1] in charge of the harvesters, "To whom does this young woman belong?"[2] 2:6 The servant in charge of the harvesters replied, "She's the young Moabite woman who came back with Naomi from the region of Moab. 2:7 She asked,[3] 'May I follow the harvesters and gather[4] grain among the bundles?'[5] Since she arrived she has been working hard[6] from this morning until now[7] – except for[8] sitting[9] in the resting hut[10] a short time."[11]

2:8 So Boaz said to Ruth, "Listen carefully,[12] my dear![13] Do not leave to gather grain in another field. You need not[14] go beyond the limits of this field. You may go along beside[15] my female workers.[16] 2:9 Take note of[17] the field where the men[18] are harvesting and follow behind with the female workers.[19] I will tell the

[1] tn Heb "young man." Cf. NAB "overseer"; NIV, NLT "foreman."

[2] sn In this patriarchal culture Ruth would "belong" to either her father (if unmarried) or her husband (if married).

[3] tn Heb "said." What follows is a question, so "asked" is used in the translation.

[4] tn On the use of the perfect with vav consecutive after the cohortative, see IBHS 530 §32.2.2b.

[5] tn Heb "May I glean and gather among the bundles behind the harvesters?" Others translate, "May I glean and gather [grain] in bundles behind the harvesters?" (cf. NAB; see F. W. Bush, Ruth, Esther [WBC], 117). For discussion of the terminology and process of harvesting, see O. Borowski, Agriculture in Iron Age Israel, 59-61.

[6] tn Heb "and she came and she has persisted." The construction וַתָּבוֹא וַתַּעֲמוֹד (vattavo' vata'amod) forms a dependent temporal sequence: "since she came, she has persisted." Because עָמַד ('amad, "to stand, remain, persist"; BDB 764 s.v. עָמַד; HALOT 840-42 s.v. עמד) has a broad range of meanings, וַתַּעֲמוֹד has been understood in various ways: (1) Ruth had stood all morning waiting to receive permission from Boaz to glean in his field: "she has stood (here waiting)"; (2) Ruth had remained in the field all morning: "she has remained here" (NAB, NASB, NCV); and (3) Ruth had worked hard all morning: "she has worked steadily" (REB), "she has been working" (TEV, CEV), "she has been on her feet (all morning)" (JPS, NJPS, NRSV). For discussion, see F. W. Bush, Ruth, Esther (WBC), 118-19.

[7] tn Heb "and she came and she stood, from then, the morning, and until now, this, her sitting [in] the house a little." The syntax of the Hebrew text is awkward and the meaning uncertain. For discussion see F. W. Bush, Ruth, Esther (WBC), 118-19.

[8] tn Heb "except this." The function and meaning of the demonstrative adjective זֶה (zeh, "this") is difficult: (1) MT accentuation joins זֶה with שִׁבְתָּהּ (shivtah, "this her sitting"), suggesting that זֶה שִׁבְתָּהּ functions as subject complement (see BDB 261 s.v. זֶה 2.a and Josh 9:12). (2) Others suggest that זֶה functions as an emphasizing adverb of time ("just now"; BDB 261 s.v. 4.h) and connect it with עַתָּה ('attah, "now") to form the idiom עַתָּה זֶה (zeh 'attah, "now, just now"; BDB 261 s.v. 4.h; GKC 442-43 §136.d; see F. W. Bush, Ruth, Esther [WBC], 118-19). The entire line is translated variously: KJV "until now, (+ save ASV) that she tarried a little in the house"; NASB "she has been sitting in the house for a little while"; NIV "except for a short rest in the shelter"; NJPS "she has rested but little in the hut"; "her sitting (= resting) in the house (has only been) for a moment." A paraphrase would be: "She came and has kept at it (= gleaning) from this morning until now, except for this: She has been sitting in the hut only a little while." The clause as a whole is an exceptive clause: "except for this...."

[9] tc The MT vocalizes consonantal שבתה as שִׁבְתָּהּ (shivtah, "her sitting"; Qal infinitive construct from יָשַׁב (yashav), "to sit" + 3rd person feminine singular suffix), apparently taking the 3rd person feminine singular suffix as a subjective genitive: "she sat [in the hut only a little while]" (so KJV, ASV, NASB, NIV, REB, TEV, NCV, NJPS). On the other hand, LXX κατέπαυσεν ("she rested") reflects the vocalization שָׁבְתָּהּ (shavtah, "she rested"; Qal perfect 3rd person feminine singular from שָׁבַת (shavat), "to rest"): "she rested [in the hut only a little while]" (so RSV, NRSV, NAB, CEV, NJB, JPS). The MT reading is more difficult and is therefore probably original.

tn Heb "and she came and she stood, from then, the morning, and until now, this, her sitting [in] the house a little." The syntax of the Hebrew text is awkward here and the meaning uncertain. F. W. Bush (Ruth, Esther [WBC], 118-19) takes עָמַד ('amad, "to stand") in the sense "to stay, remain," connects זֶה (zeh, "this") with the preceding עַתָּה ('attah, "now") as an emphasizing adverb of time ("just now"), and emends שִׁבְתָּהּ הַבַּיִת (shivtah habbayit, "her sitting [in] the house") to שָׁבְתָּה (shavtah, "she rested"), omitting הַבַּיִת (habbayit) as dittographic. Another option is to translate, "She came and has stood here from this morning until now. She's been sitting in the house for a short time." According to this view the servant has made Ruth wait to get permission from Boaz. It is difficult, however, to envision a "house" being in the barley field.

[10] tc Several English versions (NAB, NEB, RSV, NRSV, JB, CEV) suggest deleting MT הַבַּיִת (habbayit, lit. "the house") due to dittography with בתה in שִׁבְתָּהּ (shivtah) which precedes; however, several ancient textual witnesses support the MT (medieval Hebrew manuscripts, Syriac, Targum). The LXX reading ἐν τῷ ἀργῷ (en tō argō, "in the field") probably does not represent an alternate Hebrew textual tradition, but merely the translator's attempt to smooth out a difficult Hebrew text.

tn "[in] the house." The noun הַבַּיִת (lit. "the house") functions as an adverbial accusative of location, and probably refers to a "hut, shelter," providing shade for workers in the field, such as those still used by harvesters in modern Israel (H. A. Hoffner, TDOT 2:111-15). This kind of structure is probably referred to using different terms in Isaiah 1:8, "like a shelter (כְּסֻכָּה, kesukkah) in a vineyard, like a hut (כְּמְלוּנָה, kimlunah) in a field of melons." Some translations render הַבַּיִת (habbayit) literally as "the house" (KJV, NKJV, NASB), while others nuance it as "the shelter" (NIV, NCV, TEV, NLT).

[11] tn Heb "a little while." The adjective מְעַט (me'at) functions in a temporal sense ("a little while"; e.g., Job 24:24) or a comparative sense ("a little bit"); see BDB 589-90 s.v. The foreman's point is that Ruth was a hard worker who only rested a short time.

[12] tn Heb "Have you not heard?" The idiomatic, negated rhetorical question is equivalent to an affirmation (see F. W. Bush, Ruth, Esther [WBC], 119, and GKC 474 §150.e).

[13] tn Heb "my daughter." This form of address is a mild form of endearment, perhaps merely rhetorical. It might suggest that Boaz is older than Ruth, but not necessarily significantly so. A few English versions omit it entirely (e.g., TEV, CEV).

[14] tn The switch from the negative particle אַל ('al, see the preceding statement, "do not leave") to לֹא (lo') may make this statement more emphatic. It may indicate that the statement is a policy applicable for the rest of the harvest (see v. 21).

[15] tn Heb "and thus you may stay close with." The imperfect has a permissive nuance here.

[16] sn The female workers would come along behind those who cut the grain and bundle it up. Staying close to the female workers allowed Ruth to collect more grain than would normally be the case (see O. Borowski, Agriculture in Iron Age Israel, 61, and F. W. Bush, Ruth, Esther [WBC], 121).

[17] tn Heb "let your eyes be upon" (KJV, NASB similar).

[18] tn Heb "they." The verb is masculine plural, indicating that the male workers are the subject here.

[19] tn Heb "and go after them." The pronominal suffix ("them") is feminine plural, indicating that the female workers are referred to here.

men[1] to leave you alone.[2] When you are thirsty, you may go to[3] the water jars[4] and drink some of the water[5] the servants draw."[6]

2:10 Ruth[7] knelt before him with her forehead to the ground[8] and said to him, "Why are you so kind[9] and so attentive to me,[10] even though[11] I am a foreigner?"[12] 2:11 Boaz replied to her,[13] "I have been given a full report of[14] all that you have done for your mother-in-law following the death of your husband – how you left[15] your father and your mother, as well as your homeland, and came to live among people you did not know previously.[16] 2:12 May the LORD reward your efforts![17] May your acts of kindness be repaid fully[18] by the LORD God of Israel, from whom you have sought protection!"[19] 2:13 She said, "You really are being kind to me,[20] sir,[21] for you have reassured[22] and encouraged[23] me, your servant,[24] even though I am[25] not one of your servants!"[26]

2:14 Later during the mealtime Boaz said to her, "Come here and have[27] some food! Dip your bread[28] in the vinegar!" So she sat down beside the harvesters. Then he handed[29] her some roasted grain. She ate until she was full and saved the rest.[30] 2:15 When she got up to gather grain, Boaz told[31] his male servants, "Let

1 tn Male servants are in view here, as the masculine plural form of the noun indicates (cf. KJV, NAB, NRSV "the young men").

2 tn Heb "Have I not commanded the servants not to touch [i.e., "harm"] you?" The idiomatic, negated rhetorical question is equivalent to an affirmation (see v. 8). The perfect is either instantaneous, indicating completion of the action concurrent with the statement (see F. W. Bush, Ruth, Esther [WBC], 107, 121-22, who translates, "I am herewith ordering") or emphatic/rhetorical, indicating the action is as good as done.

3 tn The juxtaposition of two perfects, each with vav consecutive, here indicates a conditional sentence (see GKC 337 §112.kk).

4 tn Heb "vessels (so KJV, NAB, NRSV), receptacles"; NCV "water jugs."

5 tn Heb "drink [some] of that which" (KJV similar); in the context "water" is implied.

6 tn The imperfect here either indicates characteristic or typical activity, or anterior future, referring to a future action (drawing water) which logically precedes another future action (drinking).

7 tn Heb "she"; the referent (Ruth) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

8 tn Heb "she fell upon her face and bowed to the ground" (KJV, NASB similar).

9 tn Heb "Why do I find favor in your eyes...?" The expression מָצָא חֵן בְּעֵינֵי (matsa' khen b'eney, "to find favor in the eyes of [someone]") is often characterized by the following features: (1) A subordinate or servant is requesting permission for something from a superior (master, owner, king). (2) The granting of the request is not a certainty but dependent on whether or not the superior is pleased with the subordinate to do so. (3) The granting of the request by the superior is an act of kindness or benevolence; however, it sometimes reciprocates loyalty previously shown by the subordinate to the superior (e.g., Gen 30:27; 32:6; 33:8, 10, 15; 34:11; 39:4; 47:25, 29; 50:4; Num 32:5; Deut 24:1; 1 Sam 1:18; 16:22; 20:3, 29; 27:3; 2 Sam 14:22; 16:4; 1 Kgs 11:19; Esth 5:8; 7:3; BDB 336 s.v. חֵן). While Boaz had granted her request for permission to glean in his field, she is amazed at the degree of kindness he had shown – especially since she had done nothing, in her own mind, to merit such a display. However, Boaz explains that she had indeed shown kindness to him indirectly through her devotion to Naomi (v. 11).

10 tn Heb "Why do I find favor in your eyes by [you] recognizing me." The infinitive construct with prefixed לְ (lamed) here indicates manner ("by").

11 tn Heb "and I am a foreigner." The disjunctive clause (note the pattern vav + subject + predicate nominative) here has a circumstantial (i.e., concessive) function ("even though").

12 sn The similarly spelled Hebrew terms נָכַר (nakhar, "to notice") and נָכְרִי (nokhriy, "foreigner") in this verse form a homonymic wordplay. This highlights the unexpected nature of the attentiveness and concern Boaz displayed to Ruth.

13 tn Heb "answered and said to her" (so NASB). For stylistic reasons this has been translated as "replied to her."

14 tn Heb "it has been fully reported to me." The infinitive absolute here emphasizes the following finite verb from the same root. Here it emphasizes either the clarity of the report or its completeness. See R. L. Hubbard, Jr., Ruth (NICOT), 153, n. 6. Most English versions tend toward the nuance of completeness (e.g., KJV "fully been shewed"; NAB "a complete account"; NASB, NRSV "All that you have done").

15 tn The vav (וְ) consecutive construction here has a specifying function. This and the following clause elaborate on the preceding general statement and explain more specifically what she did for her mother-in-law.

16 tn Heb "yesterday and the third day." This Hebrew idiom means "previously, in the past" (Exod 5:7,8,14; Exod 21:29,36; Deut 4:42; 19:4,6; Josh 3:4; 1 Sam 21:5; 2 Sam 3:17; 1 Chr 11:2).

17 tn Heb "repay your work"; KJV, ASV "recompense thy work." The prefixed verbal form is understood as a jussive of prayer (note the jussive form in the next clause).

18 tn Heb "may your wages be complete"; NCV "May your wages be paid in full." The prefixed verbal form is a distinct jussive form, indicating that this is a prayer for blessing.

19 tn Heb "under whose wings you have sought shelter"; NIV, NLT "have come to take refuge."

20 tn Heb "I am finding favor in your eyes." In v. 10, where Ruth uses the perfect, she simply states the fact that Boaz is kind. Here the Hebrew text switches to the imperfect, thus emphasizing the ongoing attitude of kindness displayed by Boaz. Many English versions treat this as a request: KJV "Let me find favour in thy sight"; NAB "May I prove worthy of your kindness"; NIV "May I continue to find favor in your eyes."

21 tn Heb "my master"; KJV, NAB, NASB, NIV, NRSV "my lord."

22 tn Or "comforted" (so NAB, NASB, NRSV, NLT).

23 tn Heb "spoken to the heart of." As F. W. Bush points out, the idiom here means "to reassure, encourage" (Ruth, Esther [WBC], 124).

24 tn Ruth here uses a word (שִׁפְחָה, shifkhah) that describes the lowest level of female servant (see 1 Sam 25:41). Note Ruth 3:9 where she uses the word אָמָה ('amah), which refers to a higher class of servant.

25 tn The imperfect verbal form of הָיָה (hayah) is used here. F. W. Bush shows from usage elsewhere that the form should be taken as future (Ruth, Esther [WBC], 124-25).

26 tn The disjunctive clause (note the pattern vav [וְ] + subject + verb) is circumstantial (or concessive) here ("even though").

27 tn Heb "eat" (so KJV, NRSV).

28 tn Heb "your portion"; NRSV "your morsel."

29 tn The Hebrew verb צָבַט (tsavat) occurs only here in the OT. Cf. KJV, ASV "he reached her"; NASB "he served her"; NIV "he offered her"; NRSV "he heaped up for her." For discussion of its meaning, including the etymological evidence, see BDB 840 s.v.; R. L. Hubbard, Jr., Ruth (NICOT), 174; and F. W. Bush, Ruth, Esther (WBC), 125-26.

30 tn Heb "and she ate and she was satisfied and she had some left over" (NASB similar).

31 tn Or "commanded" (so KJV, NASB, NCV).

her gather grain even among[1] the bundles! Don't chase her off![2] 2:16 Make sure you pull out[3] ears of grain for her and drop them so she can gather them up. Don't tell her not to!"[4] 2:17 So she gathered grain in the field until evening. When she threshed[5] what she had gathered, it came to about thirty pounds[6] of barley!

Ruth Returns to Naomi

2:18 She carried it back to town, and her mother-in-law saw[7] how much grain[8] she had gathered. Then Ruth[9] gave her the roasted grain she had saved from mealtime.[10] 2:19 Her mother-in-law asked her,[11] "Where did you gather grain today? Where did you work? May the one who took notice of you be rewarded!"[12] So Ruth[13] told her mother-in-law with whom she had worked. She said, "The name of the man with whom I worked today is Boaz." 2:20 Naomi said to her daughter-in-law, "May he be rewarded by the LORD because he[14] has shown loyalty to the living on behalf of the dead!"[15] Then Naomi said to her, "This man is a close relative of ours; he is our guardian."[16] 2:21 Ruth the Moabite replied, "He even[17] told me, 'You may go along beside my servants[18] until they have finished gathering all my harvest!'"[19] 2:22 Naomi then said to her daughter-in-law Ruth, "It is good, my daughter, that you should go out to work with his female servants.[20] That way you will not be harmed,

---

[1] tn Heb "even between"; NCV "even around."

[2] tn Heb "do not humiliate her"; cf. KJV "reproach her not"; NASB "do not insult her"; NIV "don't embarrass her." This probably refers to a verbal rebuke which would single her out and embarrass her (see v. 16). See R. L. Hubbard, Jr., Ruth (NICOT), 176-77, and F. W. Bush, Ruth, Esther (WBC), 126.

[3] tn The infinitive absolute precedes the finite verb for emphasis. Here שָׁלַל (shalal, "pull out") is a homonym of the more common Hebrew verb meaning "to plunder." An Arabic cognate is used of drawing a sword out of a scabbard (see BDB 1021 s.v.).

[4] tn Heb "do not rebuke her" (so NASB, NRSV); CEV "don't speak harshly to her"; NLT "don't give her a hard time."

[5] tn Heb "she beat out" (so NAB, NASB, NRSV, NLT). Ruth probably used a stick to separate the kernels of grain from the husks. See O. Borowski, Agriculture in Iron Age Israel, 63.

[6] tn Heb "there was an ephah." An ephah was a dry measure, equivalent to one-tenth of a homer (see HALOT 43 s.v. אֵיפָה). An ephah was equivalent to a "bath," a liquid measure. Jars labeled "bath" found at archaeological sites in Israel could contain approximately 5.8 gallons, or one-half to two-thirds of a bushel. Thus an ephah of barley would have weighed about 29 to 30 pounds (just over 13 kg). See R. L. Hubbard, Jr., Ruth (NICOT), 179.

sn This was a huge amount of barley for one woman to gather in a single day. It testifies both to Ruth's industry and to Boaz's generosity.

[7] tc MT vocalizes ותרא as the Qal verb וַתֵּרֶא (vattere', "and she saw"), consequently of "her mother-in-law" as subject and "what she gathered" as the direct object: "her mother-in-law saw what she gathered." A few medieval Hebrew MSS (also reflected in Syriac and Vulgate) have the Hiphil וַתַּרְא (vattar', "and she showed"), consequently taking "her mother-in-law" as the direct object and "what she gathered" as the double direct-object: "she showed her mother-in-law what she had gathered" (cf. NAB, TEV, CEV, NLT). Although the latter has the advantage of making Ruth the subject of all the verbs in this verse, it would be syntactically difficult. For one would expect the accusative sign אֵת ('et) before "her mother-in-law" if it were the direct object of a Hiphil verb in a sentence with a double direct object introduced by the accusative sign אֶת, e.g., "to show (Hiphil of רָאָה, ra'ah) your servant (direct object marked by accusative sign אֶת) your greatness (double direct object marked by accusative sign אֶת) (Deut 3:24). Therefore the MT reading is preferred.

[8] tn Heb "that which"; the referent (how much grain) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[9] tn Heb "she"; the referent (Ruth) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[10] tn Heb "and she brought out and gave to her that which she had left over from her being satisfied."

[11] tn Heb "said to her." Since what follows is a question, the translation uses "asked her" here.

[12] tn Or "blessed" (so NAB, NIV, NRSV). The same expression occurs in the following verse.

[13] tn Heb "she"; the referent (Ruth) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[14] tn Many English versions translate this statement, "May he [Boaz] be blessed by the LORD, who has not abandoned his loyalty to the living and dead." In this case the antecedent of אֲשֶׁר ('asher, "who") would be the immediately preceding "the LORD." However, this understanding of the construction is not accurate. The antecedent of אֲשֶׁר is Boaz, not the LORD. Elsewhere when אֲשֶׁר follows the blessing formula בָּרוּךְ (barukh, Qal passive participle) + proper name/pronoun, it always introduces the reason the recipient of the blessing deserves a reward. (For this reason one could analyze אֲשֶׁר as a causal conjunction in this construction.) If אֲשֶׁר refers to the LORD here, then this verse, unlike others using the construction, gives no such reason for the recipient being blessed. 2 Sam 2:5, which provides the closest structural parallel to Ruth 2:20, supports this interpretation: בְּרֻכִים אַתֶּם לַיהוָה אֲשֶׁר עֲשִׂיתֶם הַחֶסֶד הַזֶּה עִם־אֲדֹנֵיכֶם עִם־שָׁאוּל, "May you [plural] be blessed by the LORD, you who [plural]/because you [plural] have extended such kindness to your master Saul." Here אֲשֶׁר refers back to the second plural pronoun אַתֶּם ('atem, "you") in the formula, as the second plural verb עֲשִׂיתֶם ('asitem) after אֲשֶׁר indicates. Though יְהוָה (yehvah) is in closer proximity to אֲשֶׁר, it is not the antecedent. The evidence suggests that Ruth 2:20 should be translated and interpreted as follows: "May he [Boaz] be blessed by the LORD, he who [i.e., Boaz]/because he [i.e., Boaz] has not abandoned his loyalty to the living and dead." Cf. NIV, NCV, CEV, NLT. See B. A. Rebera, "Yahweh or Boaz? Ruth 2.20 Reconsidered," BT 36 (1985): 317-27, and F. W. Bush, Ruth, Esther (WBC), 134-36. By caring for the impoverished widows' physical needs, Boaz had demonstrated loyalty to both the living (the impoverished widows) and the dead (their late husbands). See R. B. Chisholm, From Exegesis to Exposition, 72.

[15] tn Heb "to the living and the dead" (so KJV, NASB).

[16] tn The Hebrew term גָּאַל (ga'al) is sometimes translated "redeemer" here (NIV "one of our kinsman-redeemers"; NLT "one of our family redeemers"). In this context Boaz, as a "redeemer," functions as a guardian of the family interests who has responsibility for caring for the widows of his deceased kinsmen.

[17] tn On the force of the phrase גַּם כִּי (gam ki) here, see F. W. Bush, Ruth, Esther (WBC), 138-39.

[18] tn Heb "with the servants who are mine you may stay close." The imperfect has a permissive nuance here. The word "servants" is masculine plural.

[19] tn Heb "until they have finished all the harvest which is mine"; NIV "until they finish harvesting all my grain."

[20] tn Naomi uses the feminine form of the word "servant" (as Boaz did earlier, see v. 8), in contrast to Ruth's use of the masculine form in the preceding verse. Since she is concerned for Ruth's safety, she may be subtly reminding Ruth to stay with the female workers and not get too close to the men.

which could happen in another field."[1] 2:23 So Ruth[2] worked beside[3] Boaz's female servants, gathering grain until the end of the barley harvest as well as the wheat harvest.[4] After that she stayed home with her mother-in-law.[5]

Naomi Instructs Ruth

3:1 At that time,[6] Naomi, her mother-in-law, said to her, "My daughter, I must find a home for you so you will be secure.[7] 3:2 Now Boaz, with whose female servants you worked, is our close relative.[8] Look, tonight he is winnowing barley at the threshing floor.[9] 3:3 So bathe yourself,[10] rub on some perfumed oil,[11] and get dressed up.[12] Then go down[13] to the threshing floor. But don't let the man know you're there until he finishes his meal.[14] 3:4 When he gets ready to go to sleep,[15] take careful notice of the place where he lies down. Then go, uncover his legs,[16] and lie down[17] beside him.[18] He will tell[19] you what you should do." 3:5 Ruth replied to Naomi,[20] "I will do everything you have told[21] me[22] to do."[23]

Ruth Visits Boaz

3:6 So she went down to the threshing floor and did everything her mother-in-law had in-

---

1 tn Heb "and they will not harm you in another field"; NRSV "otherwise you might be bothered in another field."

2 tn Heb "she"; the referent (Ruth) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

3 tn Heb "and she stayed close with"; NIV, NRSV, CEV "stayed close to"; NCV "continued working closely with."

4 sn Barley was harvested from late March through late April, wheat from late April to late May (O. Borowski, Agriculture in Ancient Israel, 88, 91).

5 tn Heb "and she lived with her mother-in-law" (so NASB). Some interpret this to mean that she lived with her mother-in-law while working in the harvest. In other words, she worked by day and then came home to Naomi each evening. Others understand this to mean that following the harvest she stayed at home each day with Naomi and no longer went out looking for work (see F. W. Bush, Ruth, Esther [WBC], 140). Others even propose that she lived away from home during this period, but this seems unlikely. A few Hebrew MSS (so also Latin Vulgate) support this view by reading, "and she returned to her mother-in-law."

6 tn The phrase "sometime later" does not appear in Hebrew but is supplied to mark the implicit shift in time from the events in chapter 2.

7 tn Heb "My daughter, should I not seek for you a resting place so that it may go well for you [or which will be good for you]?" The idiomatic, negated rhetorical question is equivalent to an affirmation (see 2:8-9) and has thus been translated in the affirmative (so also NAB, NCV, NRSV, TEV, CEV, NLT).

8 tn Heb "Is not Boaz our close relative, with whose female servants you were?" The idiomatic, negated rhetorical question is equivalent to an affirmation (see Ruth 2:8-9; 3:1) and has thus been translated in the affirmative (so also NCV, NRSV, TEV, CEV, NLT).

9 tn Heb "look, he is winnowing the barley threshing floor tonight."

sn Winnowing the threshed grain involved separating the kernels of grain from the straw and chaff. The grain would be thrown into the air, allowing the wind to separate the kernels (see O. Borowski, Agriculture in Iron Age Israel, 65-66). The threshing floor itself was usually located outside town in a place where the prevailing west wind could be used to advantage (Borowski, 62-63).

10 tn The perfect with prefixed vav (ו) consecutive here introduces a series of instructions. See GKC 335 §112.aa for other examples of this construction.

11 tn For the meaning of the verb סוּךְ (sukh), see HALOT 745-46 s.v. II סוּךְ, and F. W. Bush, Ruth, Esther (WBC), 150. Cf. NAB, NRSV "anoint yourself"; NIV "perfume yourself"; NLT "put on perfume."

12 tc The consonantal text (Kethib) has the singular שִׂמְלָתֵךְ (simlotekh, "your outer garment"), while the marginal reading (Qere) has the plural שִׂמְלֹתַיִךְ (simlotayikh) which might function as a plural of number ("your outer garments") or a plural of composition ("your outer garment [composed of several parts])."

tn Heb "and put your outer garment on yourself"; NAB "put on your best attire." The noun שִׂמְלָה (simlah) may refer to clothes in general (see R. L. Hubbard, Jr., Ruth [NICOT], 197, n. 7) or a long outer garment (see F. W. Bush, Ruth, Esther [WBC], 150-51). Mourners often wore mourning clothes and refrained from washing or using cosmetics (Gen 38:14, 19; 2 Sam 12:20; 14:2), so Ruth's attire and appearance would signal that her period of mourning was over and she was now available for remarriage (see Bush, 152)

13 tc The consonantal text (Kethib) has וְיָרַדְתִּי (v^{e}yaradtiy, "then I will go down"; Qal perfect 1st person common singular), while the marginal reading (Qere) is וְיָרַדְתְּ (v^{e}yaradt, "then you go down"; Qal perfect 2nd person feminine singular) which makes more much sense in context. It is possible that the Kethib preserves an archaic spelling of the 2nd person feminine singular form (see F. W. Bush, Ruth, Esther [WBC], 144-45).

14 tn Heb "until he finishes eating and drinking"; NASB, NIV, NRSV, TEV, CEV "until he has finished."

15 tn Heb "and let it be when he lies down"; NAB "But when he lies down."

16 tn Some define the noun מַרְגְּלוֹת (marg^{e}lot) as "the place for the feet" (see HALOT 631 s.v.; cf. KJV, NASB, NIV, NRSV, NLT), but in Dan 10:6 the word refers to the legs, or "region of the legs." For this reason "legs" or "lower body" is the preferred translation (see F. W. Bush, Ruth, Esther [WBC], 152). Because "foot" is sometimes used euphemistically for the genitals, some feel that Ruth uncovered Boaz's genitals. For a critique of this view see Bush, 153. While Ruth and Boaz did not actually have a sexual encounter at the threshing floor, there is no doubt that Ruth's actions are symbolic and constitute a marriage proposal.

17 tc The consonantal text (Kethib) has וְשָׁכַבְתִּי (v^{e}shakhavtiy, "then I will lie down"; Qal perfect 1st person common singular), while the marginal reading (Qere) is וְשָׁכַבְתְּ (v^{e}shakhavt, "then you lie down"; Qal perfect 2nd person feminine singular) which makes more sense. It is possible that the Kethib preserves an archaic spelling of the 2nd person feminine singular form (see F. W. Bush, Ruth, Esther [WBC], 144-45).

18 tn The words "beside him" are supplied in the translation for stylistic reasons; cf. NLT "lie down there."

19 tn The disjunctive clause structure (vav [ו] + subject + verb) highlights this final word of instruction or signals the conclusion of the instructions.

20 tn Heb "she said to her." The referents (Ruth and Naomi) have been specified in the translation for clarity.

21 tn The Hebrew imperfect is used, even though Naomi's instructions appear to be concluded. The imperfect can sometimes express actions which although (strictly speaking) are already finished, yet are regarded as still lasting into the present, or continuing to operate in it (GKC 316 §107.h).

22 tc The MT (Kethib) lacks the preposition אֵלַי ('elay, "to me") which is attested in the marginal reading (Qere). Many medieval Hebrew MSS agree with the marginal reading (Qere) by including the phrase.

23 tn Heb "everything which you are saying I will do." The Hebrew word order emphasizes Ruth's intention to follow Naomi's instructions to the letter.

structed her to do.[1] 3:7 When Boaz had finished his meal and was feeling satisfied, he lay down to sleep at the far end of the grain heap.[2] Then Ruth[3] crept up quietly,[4] uncovered his legs,[5] and lay down beside him.[6] 3:8 In the middle of the night he was startled[7] and turned over.[8] Now[9] he saw a woman[10] lying beside him![11] 3:9 He said, "Who are you?"[12] She replied, "I am Ruth, your servant.[13] Marry your servant,[14] for you are a guardian of the family interests."[15] 3:10 He said, "May you be rewarded[16] by the LORD, my dear![17] This act of devotion[18] is greater than what you did before.[19] For you have not sought to marry[20] one of the young men, whether rich or poor.[21] 3:11 Now, my dear, don't worry![22] I intend to do for you everything you propose,[23] for everyone in the village[24] knows that you are a worthy woman.[25] 3:12 Now yes, it is true that[26] I

1 tn Heb "and she did according to all which her mother-in-law commanded her" (NASB similar). Verse 6 is a summary statement, while the following verses (vv. 7-15) give the particulars.

2 tn Heb "and Boaz ate and drank and his heart was well and he went to lie down at the end of the heap"; NAB "at the edge of the sheaves."

3 tn Heb "she"; the referent (Ruth) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

4 sn Ruth must have waited until Boaz fell asleep, for he does not notice when she uncovers his legs and lies down beside him.

5 tn See the note on the word "legs" in v. 4.

6 tn The words "beside him" are supplied in the translation for stylistic reasons. Cf. TEV "at his feet"; CEV "near his feet."

7 tn Heb "trembled, shuddered"; CEV, NLT "suddenly woke up." Perhaps he shivered because he was chilled.

8 tn The verb לָפַת (lafat) occurs only here, Job 6:18, and Judg 16:29 (where it seems to mean "grab hold of"). Here the verb seems to carry the meaning "bend, twist, turn," like its Arabic cognate (see HALOT 533 s.v. לפת, and F. W. Bush, Ruth, Esther [WBC], 163).

9 tn Heb "and behold" (so KJV, NASB). The narrator invites the reader to view the situation through Boaz's eyes.

10 sn Now he saw a woman. The narrator writes from Boaz's perspective. Both the narrator and the reader know the night visitor is Ruth, but from Boaz's perspective she is simply "a woman."

11 tn Heb "[at] his legs." See the note on the word "legs" in v. 4.

12 tn When Boaz speaks, he uses the feminine form of the pronoun, indicating that he knows she is a woman.

13 tn Here Ruth uses אָמָה ('amah), a more elevated term for a female servant than שִׁפְחָה (shifkhah), the word used in 2:13. In Ruth 2, where Ruth has just arrived from Moab and is very much aware of her position as a foreigner (v. 10), she acknowledges Boaz's kindness and emphasizes her own humility by using the term שִׁפְחָה, though she admits that she does not even occupy that lowly position on the social scale. However, here in chap. 3, where Naomi sends her to Boaz to seek marriage, she uses the more elevated term אָמָה to describe herself because she is now aware of Boaz's responsibility as a close relative of her deceased husband and she wants to challenge him to fulfill his obligation. In her new social context she is dependent on Boaz (hence the use of אָמָה), but she is no mere שִׁפְחָה.

14 tn Heb "and spread your wing [or skirt] over your servant." Many medieval Hebrew MSS have the plural/dual "your wings" rather than the singular "your wing, skirt." The latter is more likely here in the context of Ruth's marriage proposal. In the metaphorical account in Ezek 16:8, God spreads his skirt over naked Jerusalem as an act of protection and as a precursor to marriage. Thus Ruth's words can be taken, in effect, as a marriage proposal (and are so translated here; cf. TEV "So please marry me"). See F. W. Bush, Ruth, Esther (WBC), 164-65.

15 tn Heb "for you are a גֹאֵל [go'el]," sometimes translated "redeemer" (cf. NIV "a kinsman-redeemer"; NLT "my family redeemer"). In this context Boaz, as a "redeemer," functions as a guardian of the family interests who has responsibility for caring for the widows of his deceased kinsmen. For a discussion of the legal background, see F. W. Bush, Ruth, Esther (WBC), 166-69.

sn By proposing marriage, Ruth goes beyond the letter of Naomi's instructions (see v. 4, where Naomi told Ruth that Boaz would tell her what to do). Though she is more aggressive than Naomi told her to be, she is still carrying out the intent of Naomi's instructions, which were designed to lead to marriage.

16 tn Or "blessed" (so NASB, NRSV).

17 tn Heb "my daughter." This form of address is a mild form of endearment, perhaps merely rhetorical. A few English versions omit it entirely (e.g., TEV, CEV). The same expression occurs in v. 11.

18 tn Heb "latter [act of] devotion"; NRSV "this last instance of your loyalty."

19 tn Heb "you have made the latter act of devotion better than the former"; NIV "than that which you showed earlier."

sn Greater than what you did before. Ruth's former act of devotion was her decision to remain and help Naomi. The latter act of devotion is her decision to marry Boaz to provide a child to carry on her deceased husband's (and Elimelech's) line and to provide for Naomi in her old age (see Ruth 4:5, 10, 15).

20 tn Heb "by not going after the young men" (NASB similar); TEV "You might have gone looking for a young man."

21 tn Heb "whether poor or rich" (so KJV, NAB, NASB, NRSV); the more common English idiom reverses the order ("rich or poor"; cf. NIV, NCV, TEV, CEV, NLT).

sn Whether rich or poor. This statement seems to indicate that Ruth could have married anyone. However, only by marrying a גֹאֵל (go'el, "family guardian"; traditionally "redeemer") could she carry on her dead husband's line and make provision for Naomi.

22 tn Heb "do not fear" (so NASB); NRSV "do not be afraid."

23 tn Heb "everything which you are saying I will do for you." The Hebrew word order emphasizes Boaz's intention to fulfill Ruth's request. As in v. 5, the Hebrew imperfect is used (note "you are saying"), even though Ruth's request appears to be concluded. According to GKC 316 §107.h, the imperfect can sometimes "express actions, etc., which although, strictly speaking, they are already finished, are regarded as still lasting on into the present time, or continuing to operate in it." The imperfect אֶעֱשֶׂה ('e'eseh) could be translated "I will do" (so NAB, NIV, NRSV, NLT), but since there are legal complications which must first be resolved, it is better to take the form as indicating Boaz's desire or intention, if the legal matters can be worked out.

24 tn Heb "all the gate of the town," which by metonymy could refer to everyone in town (NIV "All my fellow townsmen"; NLT "everyone in town"), or only to the leaders and prominent citizens of the community (Boaz's peers) who transacted business and made legal decisions at the town gate (NRSV "all the assembly of my people").

25 tn Or "woman of strong character" (cf. NIV "woman of noble character"). The same phrase is used in Prov 31:10 to describe the ideal wife. Prov 31 emphasizes the ideal wife's industry, her devotion to her family, and her concern for others, characteristics which Ruth had demonstrated.

26 tc The sequence כִּי אָמְנָם כִּי אִם (ki 'omnam ki 'im; Kethib) occurs only here in the OT, as does the sequence כִּי אָמְנָם כִּי (Qere). It is likely that כִּי אִם is dittographic (note the preceding sequence כִּי אָמְנָם). The translation assumes that the original text was simply the otherwise unattested וְעַתָּה כִּי אָמְנָם, with אָמְנָם and כִּי both having an asseverative (or emphatic) function.

am a guardian,[1] but there is another guardian who is a closer relative than I am. 3:13 Remain here tonight. Then in the morning, if he agrees to marry you,[2] fine,[3] let him do so.[4] But if he does not want to do so, I promise, as surely as the LORD lives, to marry you.[5] Sleep here until morning."[6] 3:14 So she slept beside him[7] until morning. She woke up while it was still dark.[8] Boaz thought,[9] "No one must know that a woman visited the threshing floor."[10] 3:15 Then he said, "Hold out the shawl[11] you are wearing[12] and grip it tightly." As she held it tightly, he measured out about sixty pounds[13] of barley into the shawl and put it on her shoulders. Then he[14] went into town, 3:16 and she returned to her mother-in-law.

Ruth Returns to Naomi

When Ruth returned to her mother-in-law, Naomi[15] asked,[16] "How did things turn out for you,[17] my daughter?" Ruth[18] told her about all the man had done for her.[19] 3:17 She said, "He gave me these sixty pounds of barley, for he said to me,[20] 'Do not go to your mother-in-law empty-handed.'"[21] 3:18 Then Naomi[22] said, "Stay put,[23] my daughter, until you know how the matter turns out. For the man will not rest until he has taken care of the matter today."

Boaz Settles the Matter

4:1 Now Boaz went up[24] to the village gate and sat there. Then along came the guardian[25] whom Boaz had mentioned to Ruth![26] Boaz said, "Come[27] here and sit down, 'John Doe'!"[28] So

---

1 tn Sometimes translated "redeemer" (also later in this verse). See the note on the phrase "guardian of the family interests" in v. 9.

2 tn Heb "if he redeems you"; NIV "if he wants to redeem"; NRSV "if he will act as next-of-kin for you." The verb גָּאַל (go'el) here refers generally to fulfilling his responsibilities as a guardian of the family interests. In this case it specifically entails marrying Ruth.

3 tn Or "good" (so NAB, NASB, NIV, NRSV); TEV "well and good."

4 tn Heb "let him redeem" (so NIV); NLT "then let him marry you."

5 tn Heb "but if he does not want to redeem you, then I will redeem you, I, [as] the LORD lives" (NASB similar).

6 sn Sleep here. Perhaps Boaz tells her to remain at the threshing floor because he is afraid she might be hurt wandering back home in the dark. See Song 5:7 and R. L. Hubbard, Jr., Ruth (NICOT), 218.

7 tc The consonantal text (Kethib) has the singular מַרְגְּלָתוֹ (marg^{e}latav, "his leg"), while the marginal reading (Qere) has the plural מַרְגְּלֹתָיו (marg^{e}lotayv, "his legs").

tn Heb "[at] his legs." See the note on the word "legs" in v. 4.

8 tn Heb "and she arose before a man could recognize his companion"; NRSV "before one person could recognize another"; CEV "before daylight."

9 tn Heb "and he said" (so KJV, NASB, NIV). Some translate "he thought [to himself]" (cf. NCV).

10 tn Heb "let it not be known that the woman came [to] the threshing floor" (NASB similar). The article on הָאִשָּׁה (ha'ishah, "the woman") is probably dittographic (note the final he on the preceding verb בָּאָה [va'ah, "she came"]).

11 tn Or "cloak" (so NAB, NRSV, NLT); CEV "cape." The Hebrew noun occurs only here and in Isa 3:22.

12 tn Heb "which [is] upon you"; NIV, NRSV "you are wearing."

13 tn Heb "and she gripped it tightly and he measured out six of barley and placed upon her." The unit of measure is not indicated in the Hebrew text, although it would probably have been clear to the original hearers of the account. Six ephahs, the equivalent of 180-300 pounds, is clearly too heavy, especially if carried in a garment. Six omers (an omer being a tenth of an ephah) seems too little, since this would have amounted to six-tenths of an ephah, less than Ruth had gleaned in a single day (cf. 2:17). Thus a seah (one third of an ephah) may be in view here; six seahs would amount to two ephahs, about 60 pounds (27 kg). See R. L. Hubbard, Jr., Ruth (NICOT), 222, and F. W. Bush, Ruth, Esther (WBC), 178.

14 tc The MT preserves the 3rd person masculine singular form וַיָּבֹא (vayyavo', "then he went"; cf. ASV, NAB, NIV, NCV, NRSV, NLT), while many medieval MSS (supported by the Syriac and Vulgate) have the 3rd person feminine singular form וַתָּבֹא (vattavo', "then she went"; cf. KJV, NASB, TEV).

15 tn Heb "she"; the referent (Naomi) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

16 tn Heb "said." Since what follows is a question, the present translation uses "asked" here.

17 tn Heb "Who are you?" In this context Naomi is clearly not asking for Ruth's identity. Here the question has the semantic force "Are you his wife?" See R. L. Hubbard, Jr., Ruth (NICOT), 223-24, and F. W. Bush, Ruth, Esther (WBC), 184-85.

18 tn Heb "she"; the referent (Ruth) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

19 sn All that the man had done. This would have included his promise to marry her and his gift of barley.

20 tc The MT (Kethib) lacks the preposition אֵלַי ('elay, "to me") which is attested in the marginal reading (Qere).

21 sn 'Do not go to your mother-in-law empty-handed.' In addition to being a further gesture of kindness on Boaz's part, the gift of barley served as a token of his intention to fulfill his responsibility as family guardian. See R. L. Hubbard, Jr., Ruth (NICOT), 225-26, and F. W. Bush, Ruth, Esther (WBC), 187.

22 tn Heb "she"; the referent (Naomi) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

23 tn Heb "sit"; KJV "Sit still"; NAB "Wait here"; NLT "Just be patient."

24 tn The disjunctive clause structure (note the pattern vav [ו] + subject + verb) here signals the beginning of a new scene.

25 tn Sometimes translated "redeemer." See the note on the phrase "guardian of the family interests" in 3:9.

26 tn Heb "look, the guardian was passing by of whom Boaz had spoken."

27 tn Heb "turn aside" (so KJV, NASB); NIV, TEV, NLT "Come over here."

28 tn Heb "a certain one"; KJV, ASV "such a one." The expression פְּלֹנִי אַלְמֹנִי (p^{e}loni 'almoni) is not the name of the nearest relative, but an idiom which literally means "such and such" or "a certain one" (BDB 811-12 s.v. פְּלֹנִי), which is used when one wishes to be ambiguous (1 Sam 21:3; 2 Kgs 6:8). Certainly Boaz would have known his relative's name, especially in such a small village, and would have uttered his actual name. However the narrator refuses to record his name in a form of poetic justice because he refused to preserve Mahlon's "name" (lineage) by marrying his widow (see 4:5, 9-10). This close relative, who is a literary foil for Boaz, refuses to fulfill the role of family guardian. Because he does nothing memorable, he remains anonymous in a chapter otherwise filled with names. His anonymity contrasts sharply with Boaz's prominence in the story and the fame he attains through the child born to Ruth. Because the actual name of this relative is not recorded, the translation of this expression is difficult since contemporary English style expects either a name or title. This is usually supplied in modern translations: "friend" (NASB, NIV, RSV, NRSV, NLT), "so-and-so" (JPS, NJPS). Perhaps "Mr. So-And-So!" or "Mr. No-Name!" makes the point. For discussion see Adele Berlin, Poetics and Interpretation of he came[1] and sat down. 4:2 Boaz chose ten of the village leaders[2] and said, "Sit down here!" So they sat down. 4:3 Then Boaz said to the guardian,[3] "Naomi, who has returned from the region of Moab, is selling[4] the portion of land that belongs to our relative Elimelech. 4:4 So I am legally informing you:[5] Acquire it before those sitting here and before the leaders of my people![6] If you want to exercise your right to redeem it, then do so.[7] But if not, then tell me[8] so I will know.[9] For you possess the first option to redeem it; I am next in line after you."[10] He replied, "I will redeem it." 4:5 Then Boaz said, "When[11] you acquire the field[12] from Naomi,[13] you must also[14] acquire Ruth the Moabite,[15] the wife of our deceased relative,[16] in order to preserve his family name by raising up a descendant who will inherit his property."[17] 4:6 The guardian said, "Then I am unable to redeem it, for I would ruin my own inheritance[18] in that case.

Biblical Narrative, 99-101; R. L. Hubbard, Jr., Ruth (NICOT), 233-35; F. W. Bush, Ruth, Esther (WBC), 196-97. In the present translation "John Doe" is used since it is a standard designation for someone who is a party to legal proceedings whose true name is unknown.

[1] tn Heb "and he turned aside" (so KJV, NASB); NRSV "And he went over."

[2] tn Heb "and he took ten men from the elders of the town."

[3] tn Or "redeemer." See the note on the phrase "guardian of the family interests" in 3:9.

[4] tn The perfect form of the verb here describes as a simple fact an action that is underway (cf. NIV, NRSV, CEV, NLT); NAB "is putting up for sale."

sn Naomi...is selling. The nature of the sale is uncertain. Naomi may have been selling the property rights to the land, but this seems unlikely in light of what is known about ancient Israelite property laws. It is more likely that Naomi, being a woman, held only the right to use the land until the time of her remarriage or death (F. W. Bush, Ruth, Esther [WBC], 202-4). Because she held this right to use of the land, she also had the right to buy it back from the its current owner. (This assumes that Elimelech sold the land prior to going to Moab.) Since she did not possess the means to do so, however, she decided to dispose of her rights in the matter. She was not selling the land per se, but disposing of the right to its redemption and use, probably in exchange for room and board with the purchaser (Bush, 211-15). If this is correct, it might be preferable to translate, "Naomi is disposing of her rights to the portion of land," although such a translation presumes some knowledge of ancient Israelite property laws.

[5] tn Heb "and I said [or perhaps, "thought to myself"], 'I will [or "must"] uncover your ear, saying'"; NAB "So I thought I would inform you"; NIV "I thought I should bring the matter to your attention."

[6] tn The phrase "before those sitting here and before the leaders of my people" appears to refer to the leaders who were specially chosen as witnesses (v. 2) and the larger group of community leaders standing by. It is possible, however, that the phrases "before those sitting here" and "before the leaders of my people" are appositional and that both refer to the ten leaders mentioned in v. 2 (cf. NLT "in the presence of these witnesses").

[7] tn Heb "if you will redeem, redeem" (KJV, NASB, NRSV all similar); NCV "If you want to buy back the land, then buy it."

[8] tn Heb "but if he will not redeem, tell me." Most English versions emend the third person verb form ("he") to the second person form because Boaz is addressing the closer relative. But it is possible that he briefly addresses the witnesses and refers to the closer relative in the third person. See J. M. Sasson, Ruth, 118.

[9] tn Following the imperative, the prefixed verb form with vav indicates purpose or result.

[10] tn Heb "for there is no one besides you to redeem, and I am after you" (NASB similar).

[11] tn Heb "in the day"; NASB, NIV "On the day."

[12] sn Acquire the field. This probably refers to the right to redeem and use the field. See the note on the word "selling" in v. 3.

[13] tn Heb "from the hand of Naomi" (so NASB, NRSV).

[14] tc The MT וּמֵאֵת (ume'et) may be understood in two ways: (1) "and from" (vav conjunction "and," plus preposition מִן [min] "from," plus definite direct object marker אֵת) parallel to the preceding מִיַּד (miyyad, "from [the hand of]"), suggesting the field would be purchased from Naomi and from Ruth; or (2) "and" (vav [וְ] conjunction "and," plus enclitic mem [מ], plus direct object marker [אֵת]) introducing the second part of the acquisition: the nearest kinsman would be acquiring the field and Ruth (for discussion see F. W. Bush, Ruth, Esther [WBC], 202). However, the BHS editors suggest reading גַּם אֵת־ ("as well as..."; emphatic particle גַּם ["also"] and the definite direct object marker אֵת) introducing the second part of the acquisition: He would be acquiring the field and Ruth. This alternate reading is reflected in the Vulgate reading quoque ("and also") and supported by parallel usage in v. 9, "I am acquiring the field from Naomi, and also (גַּם אֵת־, gam 'et) Ruth the Moabitess the wife of the deceased."

[15] tc The MT (Kethib) reads קָנִיתִי (qaniti, "I acquire," Qal perfect 1st person common singular): "When you acquire the field from the hand of Naomi, I acquire Ruth the Moabitess...." However, the marginal reading (Qere) is קָנִיתָה (qanitah, "you acquire," Qal perfect 2nd person masculine singular, reflected in 2nd person masculine singular forms in Greek, Latin, Aramaic, and Syriac): "When you acquire the field from the hand of Naomi, you must also acquire Ruth the Moabitess...." The Qere is probably original because the Kethib is too difficult syntactically and contextually, while the Qere makes perfect sense: (1) Boaz stated in 3:13 that the nearest kinsman had the first right to acquire Ruth if he wanted to do so, and only the Qere reading here presents him with that option; and (2) Boaz announces in 4:9-10 that he was acquiring the field and Ruth as a package deal in 4:9-10, and only the Qere reading here presents the nearest kinsman with the same package deal. The Kethib probably arose by a scribe trying to harmonize 4:5 with the 1st person common singular form in 4:9-10 without fully understanding the ploy of Boaz in 4:5. See F. W. Bush, Ruth, Esther (WBC), 216-17.

[16] tc The presence of two difficult textual problems in this line (see two preceding notes) has produced a combination of four different ways in which this line can be rendered: (1) "When you acquire the field from Naomi, you must acquire [it] from Ruth the Moabitess the wife of the deceased" (KJV, NKJV); (2) "When you acquire the field from Naomi and from Ruth the Moabitess, you must acquire the wife of the deceased" (JPS, NJPS, NIV); (3) "When you acquire the field from Naomi, you must also acquire Ruth the Moabitess the wife of the deceased" (NASB, NCV, TEV, RSV, NRSV, NLT); and (4) "When you acquire the field from Naomi, then I acquire Ruth the Moabitess the wife of the deceased" (REB). The third option is adopted here.

sn Our deceased relative. This refers to Mahlon, viewed as Elimelech's heir.

[17] tn Heb "in order to raise up the name of the deceased over his inheritance" (NASB similar); NRSV "to maintain the dead man's name on his inheritance."

[18] sn I would ruin my own inheritance. It is not entirely clear how acquiring Ruth and raising up an heir for the deceased Elimelech would ruin this individual's inheritance. Perhaps this means that the inheritance of his other children would be diminished. See R. L. Hubbard, Jr., Ruth (NICOT), 245-46.

You may exercise my redemption option, for I am unable to redeem it."[1] 4:7 (Now this used to be the customary way to finalize a transaction involving redemption in Israel:[2] A man would remove his sandal and give it to the other party.[3] This was a legally binding act[4] in Israel.) 4:8 So the guardian said to Boaz, "You may acquire it," and he removed his sandal.[5] 4:9 Then Boaz said to the leaders and all the people, "You are witnesses today that I have acquired from Naomi all that belonged to Elimelech, Kilion, and Mahlon. 4:10 I have also acquired Ruth the Moabite, the wife of Mahlon, as my wife to raise up a descendant who will inherit his property[6] so the name of the deceased might not disappear[7] from among his relatives and from his village.[8] You are witnesses today." 4:11 All the people who were at the gate and the elders replied, "We are witnesses. May the LORD make the woman who is entering your home like Rachel and Leah, both of whom built up the house of Israel! May[9] you prosper[10] in Ephrathah and become famous[11] in Bethlehem.[12] 4:12 May your family[13] become like the family of Perez[14] – whom Tamar bore to Judah – through the descendants[15] the LORD gives you by this young woman."

A Grandson is Born to Naomi

4:13 So Boaz married Ruth and had sexual relations with her.[16] The LORD enabled her to conceive[17] and she gave birth to a son. 4:14 The village women said to Naomi, "May the LORD be praised because he has not left you without a guardian[18] today! May he[19] become famous in Israel![20] 4:15 He will encourage you and provide for you when you are old,[21] for your daughter-in-law, who loves you, has given him birth. She[22] is better to you than seven sons!" 4:16 Naomi took the child and placed him on her lap;[23] she became his caregiver.[24] 4:17 The neighbor women named him, saying, "A son has

1 tn Heb "redeem for yourself, you, my right of redemption for I am unable to redeem."

sn Here it appears that the acquisition of Ruth along with the land was an obligatory package deal ("When you acquire the field from Naomi, you must also acquire Ruth..."). On the other hand, Boaz viewed marriage to Ruth as voluntary in 3:13 ("If he does not want to redeem you, I will redeem you"), and presented the acquisition of the field as voluntary in 4:4 ("If you want to exercise your right...but if not, tell me!"). Initially, Boaz makes the transaction appear to be a mere land deal in 4:4. When the nearest relative jumped at the land offer, Boaz confronted him with the attendant social/family obligation of marrying Ruth to raise up an heir for the deceased to inherit this very land. By conducting the transaction in public where the close relative would need to save face, Boaz forced him either to reject the offer entirely or to include Ruth in the deal – but he could not take the land and reject Ruth. Either way, Ruth would be cared for and Elimelech's line continued. But if he took Ruth, the acquisition of the land would be more economically burdensome than beneficial, so he yielded his purchase option to Boaz. For discussion, see F. W. Bush, Ruth, Esther (WBC), 229-33.

2 tn Heb "and this formerly in Israel concerning redemption and concerning a transfer to ratify every matter."

3 tn Heb "a man removed his sandal and gave [it] to his companion"; NASB "gave it to another"; NIV, NRSV, CEV "to the other."

4 tn Heb "the legal witness"; KJV "a testimony"; ASV, NASB "the manner (form NAB) of attestation."

5 tc The LXX adds "and gave it to him" (cf. TEV, CEV), which presupposes the reading וַיִּתֵּן לוֹ. This seems to be a clarifying addition (see v. 7), but it is possible the scribe's eye jumped from the final vav (ו) on נַעֲלוֹ (na'alo, "his sandal") to the final vav (ו) on לוֹ (lo, "to him"), accidentally omitting the intervening letters.

6 tn Heb "in order to raise up the name of the deceased over his inheritance" (NASB similar).

7 tn Heb "be cut off" (so NASB, NRSV); NAB "may not perish."

8 tn Heb "and from the gate of his place" (so KJV, ASV); NASB "from the court of his birth place"; NIV "from the town records."

9 tn Following the jussive, the imperative with prefixed vav indicates purpose or result.

10 tn The phrase וַעֲשֵׂה־חָיִל (va'aseh-khayil, literally, "do strength") has been variously translated: (1) financial prosperity: "may you become rich" (TEV), "may you be a rich man" (CEV), "may you achieve wealth" (NASB), "may you prosper" (NKJV, NJPS); (2) social prominence: "may you become powerful" (NCV), "may you have standing" (NIV), "may you be great" (NLT), "may you do well" (NAB); (3) reproductive fertility: "may you produce children" (NRSV); and (4) social activity: "may you do a worthy deed" (REB).

11 tc Heb "and call a name." This statement appears to be elliptical. Usually the person named and the name itself follow this expression. Perhaps וּקְרָא־שֵׁם (uqera'-shem) should be emended to וְיִקָּרֵא־שֵׁם (veyiqqare'-shem), "and your name will be called out," that is, "perpetuated" (see Gen 48:16, cf. also Ruth 4:14b). The omission of the suffix with "name" could be explained as virtual haplography (note the letter bet [ב], which is similar to kaf [כ], at the beginning of the next word). The same explanation could account for the omission of the prefixed yod (י) on the verb "call" (yod [י] and vav [ו] are similar in appearance). Whether one reads the imperative (the form in the MT) or the jussive (the emended form), the construction indicates purpose or result following the earlier jussive "may he make."

12 map For location see Map5-B1; Map7-E2; Map8-E2; Map10-B4.

13 tn Heb "your house" (so NAB, NASB, NRSV).

14 tn Heb "and may your house be like the house of Perez, whom Tamar bore to Judah, from the offspring whom the LORD gives to you from this young woman."

sn Perez is an appropriate comparison here, because (1) he was an ancestor of Boaz, (2) he was born to Tamar by a surrogate father (Judah) after the death of her husband, and (3) he had an unbroken line of male descendants extending over several generations (see vv. 18-22).

15 tn Heb "from the seed" (KJV, ASV both similar); NASB, NIV "through the offspring"; NRSV "through the children."

16 tn Heb "and Boaz took Ruth and she became his wife and he went in to her." Here the phrase "went in to her" (so NASB) is a euphemism for having sexual relations (cf. NCV); NLT "When he slept with her."

17 tn Heb "gave her conception" (so KJV); NRSV "made her conceive"; NLT "enabled her to become pregnant."

18 tn Or "redeemer." See the note on the phrase "guardian of the family interests" in 3:9. As the following context indicates, the child is referred to here.

19 tn The "guardian" is the subject of the verb, as the next verse makes clear.

20 tn Heb "may his name be called [i.e., "perpetuated"; see Gen 48:16] in Israel."

21 tn Heb "and he will become for you a restorer of life and a sustainer of your old age" (NASB similar).

22 tn Heb "who, she"; KJV "which is better to thee."

23 tn Or "breast"; KJV, NRSV "in her bosom."

24 tn Heb "his nurse," but this refers to a dry nurse, not a medical attendant. Cf. NIV "and cared for him"; TEV "and took (+ good CEV) care of him."

been born to Naomi." They named him Obed.[1] Now he became the father of Jesse – David's father!

Epilogue: Obed in the Genealogy of David

4:18 These are the descendants[2] of Perez: Perez was the father of Hezron, 4:19 Hezron was the father of Ram, Ram was the father of Amminadab, 4:20 Amminadab was the father of Nachshon, Nachshon was the father of Salmah, 4:21 Salmon[3] was the father of Boaz, Boaz was the father of Obed, 4:22 Obed was the father of Jesse, and Jesse was the father of David.[4]

[1] tn The name "Obed" means "one who serves," perhaps anticipating how he would help Naomi (see v. 15).

[2] tn Or "generations" (so KJV, NASB); NIV, NLT "family line."

sn The concluding genealogy demonstrates that the prayers of blessing made earlier were fulfilled. Boaz's line did become like the line of Perez, and both Boaz and Obed became famous. God's blessing upon Ruth and Boaz extended beyond their lifetime and immediate family, for their great descendant, David, became the greatest of Israel's kings, and his descendant in turn, Jesus the Messiah, became greater still.

[3] sn Salmon appears to be an alternate spelling of Salmah in the preceding line.

[4] sn The theological message of the Book of Ruth may be summarized as follows: God cares for needy people like Naomi and Ruth; he is their ally in this chaotic world. He richly rewards people like Ruth and Boaz who demonstrate sacrificial love and in so doing become his instruments in helping the needy. God's rewards for those who sacrificially love others sometimes exceed their wildest imagination and transcend their lifetime.

1 Samuel

Hannah Gives Birth to Samuel

1:1 There was a man from Ramathaim Zophim,[1] from the hill country of Ephraim, whose name was Elkanah. He was the son of Jeroham, the son of Elihu, the son of Tohu, the son of Zuph, an Ephraimite. 1:2 He had two wives; the name of the first was Hannah and the name of the second was Peninnah. Now Peninnah had children, but Hannah was childless.

1:3 Year after year[2] this man would go up from his city to worship and to sacrifice to the LORD of hosts at Shiloh. It was there that the two sons of Eli, Hophni and Phineas, served as the LORD's priests. 1:4 Whenever the day came for Elkanah to sacrifice, he used to give meat portions to his wife Peninnah and to all her sons and daughters. 1:5 But he would give a double[3] portion to Hannah, because he especially loved her.[4] Now the LORD had not enabled her to have children.[5] 1:6 Her rival wife used to upset her and make her worry,[6] for the LORD had not enabled her to have children. 1:7 Peninnah[7] would behave this way year after year. Whenever Hannah[8] went up to the LORD's house, Peninnah[9] would upset her so that she would weep and refuse to eat. 1:8 Finally her husband Elkanah said to her, "Hannah, why do you weep and not eat? Why are you so sad?[10] Am I not better to you than ten[11] sons?"

1:9 On one occasion in Shiloh, after they had finished eating and drinking, Hannah got up.[12] (Now at the time Eli the priest was sitting in his chair[13] by the doorpost of the LORD's temple.) 1:10 She was very upset[14] as she prayed to the LORD, and she was weeping uncontrollably.[15] 1:11 She made a vow saying, "O LORD of hosts, if you will look with compassion[16] on the suffering of your female servant,[17] remembering me and not forgetting your servant, and give a male child[18] to your servant, then I will dedicate him to the LORD all the days of his life. His hair will never be cut."[19]

---

[1] tc The translation follows the MT. The LXX reads "a man from Ramathaim, a Zuphite"; this is followed by a number of recent English translations. It is possible the MT reading צוֹפִים (tsofim) arose from dittography of the mem (מ) at the beginning of the following word.

[2] tn Heb "from days to days."

[3] tn The exact sense of the Hebrew word אַפַּיִם ('appayim, "two faces") is not certain here. It is most likely used with the preceding expression ("one portion of two faces") to mean a portion double than normally received. Although evidence for this use of the word derives primarily from Aramaic rather than from Hebrew usage, it provides an understanding that fits the context here better than other suggestions for the word do. The meaning "double" is therefore adopted in the present translation. Other possibilities for the meaning of the word include the following: "heavily" (cf. Vulg., tristis) and "worthy" or "choice" (cf. KJV and Targum). Some scholars have followed the LXX here, emending the word to אַפָּם ('efes) and translating it as "but" or "however." This seems unnecessary. The translators of the LXX may simply have been struggling to make sense of the word rather than following a Hebrew text that was different from the MT here.

[4] tn Heb "for Hannah he loved." Repetition of the proper name would seem redundant in contemporary English, so the pronoun ("her") has been used here for clarity. The translation also adds the adverb "especially" to clarify the meaning of the text. Without this addition one might get the impression that only Hannah, not Peninnah, was loved by her husband. But the point of the text is that Hannah was his favorite.

[5] tn Heb "and the LORD had closed her womb." So also in v. 6. The disjunctive clause provides supplemental information that is pertinent to the story.

[6] tn Heb "and her rival wife grieved her, even [with] grief so as to worry her."

[7] tn The MT has a masculine form of the verb here יַעֲשֶׂה (ya'aseh, "he used to do"); the subject in that case would presumably be Elkanah. But this leads to an abrupt change of subject in the following part of the verse, where the subject is the rival wife who caused Hannah anxiety. In light of v. 6 one expects the statement of v. 7 to refer to the ongoing actions of the rival wife: "she used to behave in this way year after year." Some scholars have proposed retaining the masculine form but changing the vocalization of the verb so as to read a Niphal rather than a Qal (i.e., יֵעָשֶׂה, ye'aseh, "so it used to be done"). But the problem here is lack of precedent for such a use of the Niphal of this verb. It seems best in light of the context to understand the reference to be to Hannah's rival Peninnah and to read here, with the Syriac Peshitta, a feminine form of the verb ("she used to do"). In the translation the referent (Peninnah) has been specified for clarity.

[8] tn Heb "she"; the referent (Hannah) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[9] tn Heb "she"; the referent (Peninnah) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[10] tn Heb "why is your heart displeased?"

[11] sn Like the number seven, the number ten is sometimes used in the OT as an ideal number (see, for example, Dan 1:20, Zech 8:23).

[12] tc The LXX adds "and stood before the Lord," but this is probably a textual expansion due to the terseness of the statement in the Hebrew text.

[13] tn Or perhaps, "on his throne." See Joüon 2:506-7 §137.f.

[14] tn Heb "she [was in] bitterness of soul."

[15] tn Heb "and weeping, she was weeping." The infinitive absolute emphasizes the extent of her sorrow. The imperfect verbal form emphasizes the continuation of the action in past time.

[16] tn Heb "if looking you look." The expression can refer, as here, to looking favorably upon another, in this case with compassion.

[17] tn Heb "handmaid." The use of this term (translated two more times in this verse and once each in vv. 16, 17 simply as "servant" for stylistic reasons) is an expression of humility.

[18] tn Heb "seed of men."

[19] tn Heb "a razor will not go up upon his head."

1:12 As she continued praying to[1] the LORD,
Eli was watching her mouth. 1:13 Now Hannah was speaking from her heart. Although her lips were moving, her voice was inaudible. Eli therefore thought she was drunk. 1:14 So he[2] said to her,
"How often do you intend to get drunk? Put away your wine!"

1:15 But Hannah replied, "That's not the way it is,[3] my lord! I am under a great deal of stress.[4]
I have drunk neither wine nor beer. Rather, I have poured out my soul to[5] the LORD. 1:16 Don't consider your servant a wicked woman,[6] for until now
I have spoken from my deep pain and anguish."

1:17 Eli replied, "Go in peace, and may the God of Israel grant the request that you have asked of him." 1:18 She said, "May I, your servant, find favor in your sight." So the woman went her way and got something to eat.[7] Her face no longer looked sad.

1:19 They got up early the next morning and after worshiping the LORD, they returned to their home at Ramah. Elkanah had marital relations with[8] his wife Hannah, and the LORD remembered[9]
her. 1:20 After some time Hannah became pregnant and gave birth to a son. She named him Samuel, thinking, "I asked the LORD for him.[10]

Hannah Dedicates Samuel to the Lord

1:21 This man Elkanah went up with all his family to make the yearly sacrifice to the LORD and to keep his vow, 1:22 but Hannah did not go up with them.[11] Instead she told her husband,
"Once the boy is weaned, I will bring him and appear before the LORD, and he will remain there from then on."

1:23 So her husband Elkanah said to her, "Do what you think best.[12] Stay until you have weaned him. May the LORD fulfill his promise."[13]

So the woman stayed and nursed her son until she had weaned him. 1:24 Once she had weaned him, she took him up with her, along with three bulls, an ephah[14] of flour, and a container[15] of wine. She brought him to the LORD's house at Shiloh, even though he was young.[16] 1:25 Once the bull had been slaughtered, they brought the boy to Eli. 1:26 She said, "Just as surely as you are alive, my lord, I am the woman who previously stood here with you in order to pray to the LORD. 1:27 I prayed for this boy, and the LORD has given me the request that I asked of him. 1:28 Now I dedicate him to the LORD. From this time on he is dedicated to the LORD." Then they[17] worshiped the LORD there.

Hannah Exalts the Lord in Prayer

2:1 Hannah prayed,[18]

"My heart rejoices in the LORD;
my horn[19] is exalted high because of the LORD.
I loudly denounce[20] my enemies, for I am happy that you delivered me.[21]
2:2 No one is holy[22] like the LORD!
There is no one other than you!

1 tc Heb "before." Many medieval Hebrew manuscripts read "to."

2 tn Heb "Eli." The pronoun ("he") has been used in the translation in keeping with contemporary English style.

3 tn Heb "No."

4 tn Heb "I am a woman difficult of spirit." The LXX has "for whom the day is difficult," apparently mistaking the Hebrew word for "spirit" רוּחַ (ruakh) to be the word for "day" יוֹם (yom).

5 tn Heb "before."

6 tn Heb "daughter of worthlessness."

7 tc Several medieval Hebrew MSS and the Syriac Peshitta lack the words "and got something to eat."

8 tn Heb "Elkanah knew his wife." The Hebrew expression is a euphemism for sexual relations.

9 sn The Lord "remembered" her in the sense of granting her earlier request for a child. The Hebrew verb is often used in the OT for considering the needs or desires of people with favor and kindness.

10 tn Heb "because from the LORD I asked him." The name "Samuel" sounds like the Hebrew verb translated "asked." The explanation of the meaning of the name "Samuel" that is provided in v. 20 is not a strict etymology. It seems to suggest that the first part of the name is derived from the Hebrew root שׁאל (sh'l, "to ask"), but the consonants do not support this. Nor is it likely that the name comes from the root שׁמע (shm', "to hear"), for the same reason. It more probably derives from שֵׁם (shem, "name"), so that "Samuel" means "name of God." Verse 20 therefore does not set forth a linguistic explanation of the meaning of the name, but rather draws a parallel between similar sounds. This figure of speech is known as paronomasia.

11 tn The disjunctive clause is contrastive here. The words "with them" have been supplied in the translation for stylistic reasons.

12 tn Heb "what is good in your eyes."

13 tn Heb "establish his word." This apparently refers to the promise inherent in Eli's priestly blessing (see v. 17).

14 sn The ephah was a standard dry measure in OT times; it was the equivalent of one-tenth of the OT measure known as a homer. The ephah was equal to approximately one-half to two-thirds of a bushel.

15 tn The Hebrew term translated "container" may denote either a clay storage jar (cf. CEV "a clay jar full of wine") or a leather container (cf. NAB, NIV, NRSV "a skin of wine"; NCV "a leather bag filled with (full of TEV) wine."

16 tc Heb "and the boy was a boy." If the MT is correct the meaning apparently is that the boy was quite young at the time of these events. On the other hand, some scholars have suspected a textual problem, emending the text to read either "and the boy was with them" (so LXX) or "and the boy was with her" (a conjectural emendation). In spite of the difficulty it seems best to stay with the MT here.

17 tn Heb "he," apparently referring to Samuel (but cf. CEV "Elkanah"). A few medieval manuscripts and some ancient versions take the verb as plural (cf. TEV, NLT).

18 tn Heb "prayed and said." This is somewhat redundant in contemporary English and has been simplified in the translation.

19 sn Horns of animals have always functioned as both offensive and defensive weapons for them. As a figure of speech the horn is therefore often used in the Bible as a symbol of human strength (see also in v. 10). The allusion in v. 1 to the horn being lifted high suggests a picture of an animal elevating its head in a display of strength or virility.

20 tn Heb "my mouth opens wide against."

21 tn Heb "for I rejoice in your deliverance."

22 sn In this context God's holiness refers primarily to his sovereignty and incomparability. He is unique and distinct from all other so-called gods.

There is no rock[1] like our God!
2:3 Don't keep speaking so arrogantly,[2] letting proud talk come out of your mouth!
For the LORD is a God who knows;
he[3] evaluates what people do.
2:4 The bows of warriors are shattered, but those who stumble find their strength reinforced.
2:5 Those who are well-fed hire themselves out to earn food, but the hungry no longer lack.
Even[4] the barren woman gives birth to seven,[5]
but the one with many children withers away.[6] 2:6 The LORD both kills and gives life;
he brings down to the grave[7] and raises up.
2:7 The LORD impoverishes and makes wealthy;
he humbles and he exalts.
2:8 He lifts the weak[8] from the dust;
he raises[9] the poor from the ash heap to seat them with princes and to bestow on them an honored position.[10]
The foundations of the earth belong to the LORD, and he has placed the world on them.
2:9 He watches over[11] his holy ones,[12]
but the wicked are made speechless in the darkness, for it is not by one's own strength that one prevails.
2:10 The LORD shatters[13] his adversaries;[14]
he thunders against them from[15] the heavens.
The LORD executes judgment to the ends of the earth.
He will strengthen[16] his king and exalt the power[17] of his anointed one."[18]

2:11 Then Elkanah went back home to Ramah. But the boy was serving the LORD under the supervision of[19] Eli the priest.

Eli's Sons Misuse Their Sacred Office

2:12 The sons of Eli were wicked men.[20] They did not recognize the LORD's authority.[21] 2:13 Now the priests would always treat the people in the following way:[22] Whenever anyone was making a sacrifice, while the meat was boiling, the priest's attendant would come with a three-pronged fork[23] in his hand. 2:14 He would jab it into the basin, kettle, caldron, or pot, and everything that the fork brought up the priest would take for himself. This is what they used to do to all the Israelites[24] when they came there to Shiloh.

2:15 Even before they burned the fat, the priest's attendant would come and say to the person who was making the sacrifice, "Hand over some meat for the priest to roast! He won't

1 tn The LXX has "and there is none righteous like our God." The Hebrew term translated "rock" refers to a rocky cliff where one can seek refuge from enemies. Here the metaphor depicts God as a protector of his people. Cf. TEV "no protector like our God"; CEV "We're safer with you than on a high mountain."

2 tn Heb "proudly, proudly." If MT is original, the repetition of the word is for emphasis, stressing the arrogance of those addressed. However, a few medieval Hebrew manuscripts and some other textual witnesses do not reflect the repetition, suggesting that the Hebrew text may be dittographic.

3 tc The MT (Qere) reads "and by him actions are weighed." The translation assumes that reading of the Qere וְלוֹ (velo, "and by him"), which is supported by many medieval Hebrew MSS, is correct, rather than the reading of the Kethib וְלֹוא (velo', "and not").

4 tc Against BHS but with the MT, the preposition (עַד, 'ad) should be taken with what follows rather than with what precedes. For this sense of the preposition see Job 25:5.

5 sn The number seven is used here in an ideal sense. Elsewhere in the OT having seven children is evidence of fertility as a result of God's blessing on the family. See, for example, Jer 15:9, Ruth 4:15.

6 tn Or "languishes."

7 tn Heb "Sheol"; NAB "the nether world"; CEV "the world of the dead."

8 tn Or "lowly"; Heb "insignificant."

9 tn The imperfect verbal form, which is parallel to the participle in the preceding line, is best understood here as indicating what typically happens.

10 tn Heb "a seat of honor."

11 tn Heb "guards the feet of." The expression means that God watches over and protects the godly in all of their activities and movements. The imperfect verbal forms in v. 9 are understood as indicating what is typically true. Another option is to translate them with the future tense. See v. 10b.

12 tc The translation follows the Qere and many medieval Hebrew MSS in reading the plural ("his holy ones") rather than the singular ("his holy one") of the Kethib.

13 tn The imperfect verbal forms in this line and in the next two lines are understood as indicating what is typically true. Another option is to translate them with the future tense. See v. 10b.

14 tc The present translation follows the Qere, many medieval Hebrew manuscripts, the Syriac Peshitta, and the Vulgate in reading the plural ("his adversaries," similarly many other English versions) rather than the singular ("his adversary") of the Kethib.

15 tn The Hebrew preposition here has the sense of "from within."

16 tn The imperfect verbal forms in this and the next line are understood as indicating what is anticipated and translated with the future tense, because at the time of Hannah's prayer Israel did not yet have a king.

17 tn Heb "the horn," here a metaphor for power or strength. Cf. NCV "make his appointed king strong"; NLT "increases the might of his anointed one."

18 tc The LXX greatly expands v. 10 with an addition that seems to be taken from Jer 9:23-24.

sn The anointed one is the anticipated king of Israel, as the preceding line makes clear.

19 tn Heb "with [or "before"] the face of."

20 tn Heb "sons of worthlessness."

21 tn Heb "they did not know the LORD." The verb here has the semantic nuance "recognize the authority of." Eli's sons obviously knew who the Lord was; they served in his sanctuary. But they did not recognize his moral authority.

22 tn Heb "the habit of the priests with the people [was this]."

23 sn The Hebrew word occurs only twice in the OT, here and again in v. 14. Its exact meaning is not entirely clear, although from the context it appears to be a sacrificial tool used for retrieving things from boiling water.

24 tn Heb "to all Israel."

take boiled meat from you, but only raw."[1] 2:16 If the individual said to him, "First let the fat be burned away, and then take for yourself whatever you wish," he would say, "No![2] Hand it over right now! If you don't, I will take it forcibly!"

2:17 The sin of these young men was very great in the LORD's sight, for they[3] treated the LORD's offering with contempt.

2:18 Now Samuel was ministering before the LORD. The boy was dressed in a linen ephod. 2:19 His mother used to make him a small robe and bring it up to him at regular intervals when she would go up with her husband to make the annual sacrifice. 2:20 Eli would bless Elkanah and his wife saying, "May the LORD raise up for you descendants[4] from this woman to replace the one that she[5] dedicated to the LORD." Then they would go to their[6] home. 2:21 So the LORD graciously attended to Hannah, and she was able to conceive and gave birth to three sons and two daughters. The boy Samuel grew up at the LORD's sanctuary.[7]

2:22 Now Eli was very old when he heard about everything that his sons used to do to all the people of Israel[8] and how they used to have sex with[9] the women who were stationed at the entrance to the tent of meeting. 2:23 He said to them, "Why do you behave in this way? For I hear about these evil things from all these[10] people. 2:24 This ought not to be,[11] my sons! For the report that I hear circulating among the LORD's people is not good. 2:25 If a man sins against a man, one may appeal to God on his behalf. But if a man sins against the LORD, who then will intercede for him?" But Eli's sons[12] would not listen to their father, for the LORD had decided[13] to kill them.

2:26 Now the boy Samuel was growing up and finding favor both with the LORD and with people.

The Lord Judges the House of Eli

2:27 A man of God came to Eli and said to him, "This is what the LORD says: 'Did I not plainly[14] reveal myself to your ancestor's[15] house when they were in Egypt in the house of Pharaoh? 2:28 I chose your ancestor[16] from all the tribes of Israel to be my priest, to offer sacrifice on my altar, to burn incense, and to bear the ephod before me. I gave to your ancestor's house all the fire offerings made by the Israelites. 2:29 Why are you[17] scorning my sacrifice and my offering that I commanded for my dwelling place?[18] You have honored your sons more than you have me by having made yourselves fat from the best parts of all the offerings of my people Israel.'

2:30 Therefore the LORD, the God of Israel, says, 'I really did say[19] that your house and your ancestor's house would serve[20] me forever.' But now the LORD says, 'May it never be![21] For I will honor those who honor me, but those who despise me will be cursed! 2:31 In fact, days are coming when I will remove your strength[22] and the strength[23] of your father's house. There will not be an old man in your house! 2:32 You will see trouble in my dwelling place![24] Israel will experience blessings,[25] but there will not be an old man in your[26] house for all time.[27] 2:33 Any one of you that I do not cut off from my altar, I

[1] tn Heb "living."

[2] tc The translation follows the Qere and many medieval Hebrew MSS ("no") rather than the Kethib and MT, which read "to him."

[3] tc Heb "the men," which is absent from one medieval Hebrew MS, a Qumran MS, and the LXX.

[4] tn Heb "seed."

[5] tn The MT has a masculine verb here, but in light of the context the reference must be to Hannah. It is possible that the text of the MT is incorrect here (cf. the ancient versions), in which case the text should be changed to read either a passive participle or better, the third feminine singular of the verb. If the MT is correct here, perhaps the masculine is to be understood in a nonspecific and impersonal way, allowing for a feminine antecedent. In any case, the syntax of the MT is unusual here.

[6] tn Heb "his."

[7] tn Heb "with the LORD." Cf. NAB, TEV "in the service of the LORD"; NIV, NRSV, NLT "in the presence of the Lord"; CEV "at the Lord's house in Shiloh."

[8] tn Heb "to all Israel."

[9] tn Heb "lie with."

[10] tc For "these" the LXX has "of the Lord" (κυρίου, kuriou), perhaps through the influence of the final phrase of v. 24 ("the people of the LORD"). Somewhat less likely is the view that the MT reading is due to a distorted dittography of the first word of v. 24. The Vulgate lacks the word.

[11] tn Heb "no."

[12] tn Heb "they"; the referent (Eli's sons) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[13] tn Heb "desired."

[14] tn The infinitive absolute appears before the finite verb for emphasis.

[15] tn Heb "to your father's" (also in vv. 28, 30).

[16] tn Heb "him"; the referent (Eli's ancestor, i.e., Aaron) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[17] tc The MT has a plural "you" here, but the LXX and a Qumran MS have the singular. The singular may be the correct reading; the verb "you have honored" later in the verse is singular even in the MT. However, it is more probable that the Lord here refers to Eli and his sons. Note the plural in the second half of the verse ("you have made yourselves fat").

[18] tn Heb "which I commanded, dwelling place." The noun is functioning as an adverbial accusative in relation to the verb. Since God's dwelling place/sanctuary is in view, the pronoun "my" is supplied in the translation.

[19] tn The infinitive absolute appears before the finite verb for emphasis.

[20] tn Heb "walk about before."

[21] tn Heb "may it be far removed from me."

[22] tn Heb "chop off your arm." The arm here symbolizes strength and activity.

[23] tn Heb "arm."

[24] tn Heb "you will see [the] trouble of [the] dwelling place." Since God's dwelling place/sanctuary is in view, the pronoun is supplied in the translation (see v. 29).

[25] tn Heb "in all which he does good with Israel."

[26] tc The LXX and a Qumran manuscript have the first person pronoun "my" here.

[27] tn Heb "all the days."

will cause your[1] eyes to fail[2] and will cause you grief.[3] All of those born to your family[4] will die in the prime of life.[5] 2:34 This will be a confirming sign for you that will be fulfilled through your two sons,[6] Hophni and Phinehas: in a single day they both will die! 2:35 Then I will raise up for myself a faithful priest. He will do what is in my heart and soul. I will build for him a secure dynasty[7] and he will serve my chosen one for all time.[8] 2:36 Everyone who remains in your house will come to bow before him for a little money[9] and for a scrap of bread. Each will say, 'Assign me to a priestly task so I can eat a scrap of bread.'"

The Call of Samuel

3:1 Now the boy Samuel continued serving the LORD under Eli's supervision.[10] Word from the LORD was rare in those days; revelatory visions were infrequent.

3:2 Eli's eyes had begun to fail, so that he was unable to see well. At that time he was lying down in his place, 3:3 and the lamp of God had not yet been extinguished. Samuel was lying down in the temple of the LORD as well; the ark of God was also there. 3:4 The LORD called to Samuel, and he replied, "Here I am!" 3:5 Then he ran to Eli and said, "Here I am, for you called me." But Eli[11] said, "I didn't call you. Go back and lie down." So he went back and lay down. 3:6 The LORD again called, "Samuel!" So Samuel got up and went to Eli and said, "Here I am, for you called me." But Eli[12] said, "I didn't call you, my son. Go back and lie down."

3:7 Now Samuel did not yet know the LORD; the word of the LORD had not yet been revealed to him. 3:8 Then the LORD called Samuel a third time. So he got up and went to Eli and said, "Here I am, for you called me!" Eli then realized that it was the LORD who was calling the boy. 3:9 So Eli said to Samuel, "Go back and lie down. When he calls you, say, "Speak, LORD, for your servant is listening." So Samuel went back and lay down in his place.

3:10 Then the LORD came and stood nearby, calling as he had previously done, "Samuel! Samuel!" Samuel replied, "Speak, for your servant is listening!" 3:11 The LORD said to Samuel, "Look! I am about to do something in Israel;[13] when anyone hears about it, both of his ears will tingle. 3:12 On that day I will carry out[14] against Eli everything that I spoke about his house – from start to finish! 3:13 You[15] should tell him that I am about to judge his house forever because of[16] the sin that he knew about. For his sons were cursing God,[17] and he did not rebuke them. 3:14 Therefore I swore an oath to the house of Eli, 'The sin of the house of Eli can never be forgiven by sacrifice or by grain offering.'"

3:15 So Samuel lay down until morning. Then he opened the doors of the LORD's house. But Samuel was afraid to tell Eli about the vision. 3:16 However, Eli called Samuel and said, "Samuel, my son!" He replied, "Here I am." 3:17 Eli[18] said, "What message did he speak to you?

---

1 tc The LXX, a Qumran MS, and a few old Latin MSS have the third person pronominal suffix "his" here.

2 tn Heb "to cause your eyes to fail." Elsewhere this verb, when used of eyes, refers to bloodshot eyes resulting from weeping, prolonged staring, or illness (see Lev 26:16; Pss 69:3; 119:82; Lam 2:11; 4:17).

3 tn Heb "and to cause your soul grief."

4 tn Heb "and all the increase of your house."

5 tc The text is difficult. The MT literally says "they will die [as] men." Apparently the meaning is that they will be cut off in the prime of their life without reaching old age. The LXX and a Qumran MS, however, have the additional word "sword" ("they will die by the sword of men"). This is an easier reading (cf. NAB, NRSV, TEV, CEV, NLT), but that fact is not in favor of its originality.

6 tn Heb "and this to you [is] the sign which will come to both of your sons."

7 tn Heb "house."

8 tn Heb "and he will walk about before my anointed one all the days."

9 tn Heb "a piece of silver" (so KJV, NAB, NASB, NIV, NRSV).

10 tn Heb "before Eli."

11 tn Heb "he"; the referent (Eli) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

12 tn Heb "he"; the referent (Eli) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

13 tn The Hebrew text adds "so that" here, formally connecting this clause with the next.

14 tn Or "fulfill."

15 tc The MT has וְהַגַּדְתִּי לוֹ (vᵉhiggadti lo). The verb is Hiphil perfect 1st person common singular, and apparently the conjunction should be understood as vav consecutive ("I will say to him"). But the future reference makes more sense if Samuel is the subject. This would require dropping the final י (yod) and reading the 2nd person masculine singular וְהִגַּדְתָּ (vᵉhiggadta). Although there is no external evidence to support it, this reading has been adopted in the present translation. The alternative is to understand the MT to mean "I said to him," but for this we would expect the preterite with vav consecutive.

16 tn The translation understands the preposition to have a causal sense. However, the preposition could also be understood as the beth pretii, indicating in a broad sense the price attached to this action. So GKC 380 §119.p.

17 tc The translation follows the LXX θεόν (theon, "God") rather than the MT לָהֶם (lahem, "to them"). The MT seems to mean "they were bringing a curse on themselves" (cf. ASV, NASB). But this meaning is problematic in part because the verb qll means "to curse," not "to bring a curse on," and in part because it takes an accusative object rather than the equivalent of a dative. This is one of the so-called tiqqune sopherim, or "emendations of the scribes." Why would the ancient copyists alter the original statement about Eli's sons cursing God to the less objectionable statement that they brought a curse on themselves? Some argue that the scribes were concerned that such a direct and blasphemous affront against God could occur without an immediate response of judgment from God. Therefore they changed the text by deleting two letters א and י (alef and yod) from the word for "God," with the result that the text then read "to them." If this ancient scribal claim is accepted as accurate, it implies that the MT here is secondary. The present translation follows the LXX (κακολογοῦντες θεόν, kakologountes theon) and a few MSS of the Old Latin in reading "God" rather than the MT "to them." Cf. also NAB, NRSV, NLT.

18 tn Heb "he"; the referent (Eli) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

Don't conceal it from me. God will judge you severely[1] if you conceal from me anything that he said to you!"

3:18 So Samuel told him everything. He did not hold back anything from him. Eli[2] said, "The LORD will do what he pleases."[3] 3:19 Samuel continued to grow, and the LORD was with him. None of his prophecies fell to the ground unfulfilled.[4] 3:20 All Israel from Dan to Beer Sheba realized that Samuel was confirmed as a prophet of the LORD. 3:21 Then the LORD again appeared in Shiloh, for it was in Shiloh that the LORD had revealed himself to Samuel[5] through the word of the LORD.[6] 4:1 Samuel revealed the word of the LORD[7] to all Israel.

The Ark of the Covenant is Lost to the Philistines

Then the Israelites went out to fight the Philistines.[8] They camped at Ebenezer,[9] and the Philistines camped at Aphek. 4:2 The Philistines arranged their forces to fight[10] Israel. As the battle spread out,[11] Israel was defeated by[12] the Philistines, who[13] killed about four thousand men in the battle line in the field.

4:3 When the army[14] came back to the camp, the elders of Israel said, "Why did the LORD let us be defeated today by[15] the Philistines? Let's take with us the ark of the covenant of the LORD from Shiloh. When it is with us, it will save us[16] from the hand of our enemies.

4:4 So the army[17] sent to Shiloh, and they took from there the ark of the covenant of the LORD of hosts who sits between the cherubim. Now the two sons of Eli, Hophni and Phineas, were there with the ark of the covenant of God. 4:5 When the ark of the covenant of the LORD arrived at the camp, all Israel shouted so loudly[18] that the ground shook.

4:6 When the Philistines heard the sound of the shout, they said, "What is this loud shout in the camp of the Hebrews?" Then they realized that the ark of the LORD had arrived at the camp. 4:7 The Philistines were scared because they thought that gods had come to the camp.[19] They said, "Too bad for[20] us! We've never seen anything like this! 4:8 Too bad for us! Who can deliver us from the hand of these mighty gods? These are the gods who struck the Egyptians with all sorts of plagues in the desert! 4:9 Be strong and act like men, you Philistines, or else you will wind up serving the Hebrews the way they have served you! Act like men and fight!"

4:10 So the Philistines fought. Israel was defeated; they all ran home.[21] The slaughter was very great; thirty thousand foot soldiers fell in battle. 4:11 The ark of God was taken, and the two sons of Eli, Hophni and Phineas, were killed.

---

1 tn Heb "So God will do to you and thus he will add." The verbal forms in this pronouncement are imperfects, not jussives, but the statement has the force of a curse or warning. One could translate, "May God do to you and thus may he add."

2 tn Heb "he"; the referent (Eli) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

3 tn Heb "what is good in his eyes."

4 tn Heb "and he did not cause to fall from all his words to the ground."

5 tc The LXX has a lengthy addition here: "And Samuel was acknowledged to be a prophet of the LORD in all Israel, from one end to the other. Eli was very old and, as for his sons, their way kept getting worse and worse before the LORD." The Hebraic nature of the Greek syntax used here suggests that the LXX translator was accurately rendering a Hebrew variant and not simply expanding the text on his own initiative.

6 tn The chapter division at this point is inappropriate. 1 Sam 4:1a is best understood as the conclusion to chap. 3 rather than the beginning of chap. 4.

7 tn Heb "and the word of Samuel was." The present translation understands Samuel to be the speaker of the divine word ("Samuel" is a subjective genitive in this case), although the statement could mean that he was the recipient of the divine word ("Samuel" is an objective genitive in this case) who in turn reported it to Israel.

8 tn Heb "and Israel went out to meet the Philistines for battle."

9 tn Heb "the stone, the help." The second noun is in apposition to the first one and apparently is the name by which the stone was known. Contrast the expression used in 5:1 and 7:12, where the first word lacks the definite article, unlike 4:1.

10 tn Heb "to meet."

11 tn The MT has וַתִּטֹּשׁ (vattittosh), from the root נטשׁ (ntsh). This verb normally means "to leave," "to forsake," or "to permit," but such an idea does not fit this context very well. Many scholars have suspected that the text originally read either וַתֵּט (vattet, "and it spread out"), from the root נטה (nth), or וַתִּקָּשׁ (vattiqesh, "and it grew fierce"), from the root קשׁה (qsh). The former suggestion is apparently supported by the LXX ἔκλινεν (eklinen, "it inclined") and is adopted in the translation.

12 tn Heb "before."

13 tn Heb "the Philistines, and they killed." The pronoun "they" has been translated as a relative pronoun ("who") to make it clear to the English reader that the Philistines were the ones who did the killing.

14 tn Or "people."

15 tn Heb "before."

16 tn Heb "and it will come in our midst and it will save." After the cohortative (see "let's take"), the prefixed verbal forms with the prefixed conjunction indicate purpose or result. The translation understands the ark to be the subject of the third masculine singular verbs, although it is possible to understand the Lord as the subject. In the latter case, one should translate, "when he is with us, he will save us."

17 tn Or "people."

18 tn Heb "shouted [with] a great shout."

19 tn The Hebrew text has a direct quote, "because they said, 'Gods have come to the camp.'" Even though the verb translated "have come" is singular, the following subject should be taken as plural ("gods"), as v. 8 indicates. Some emend the verb to a plural form.

20 tn Traditionally "woe to." They thought disaster was imminent.

21 tn Heb "and they fled, each to his tents."

Eli Dies

4:12 On that day[1] a Benjaminite ran from the battle lines and came to Shiloh. His clothes were torn and dirt was on his head. 4:13 When he arrived in Shiloh, Eli was sitting in his chair watching by the side of[2] the road, for he was very worried[3] about the ark of God. As the man entered the city to give his report,[4] the whole city cried out.

4:14 When Eli heard the outcry,[5] he said, "What is this commotion?"[6] The man quickly came and told Eli. 4:15 Now Eli was ninety-eight years old and his eyes looked straight ahead;[7] he was unable to see.

4:16 The man said to Eli, "I am the one who came from the battle lines! Just today I fled from the battle lines!" Eli[8] asked, "How did things go, my son?" 4:17 The messenger replied, "Israel has fled from[9] the Philistines! The army has suffered a great defeat! Your two sons, Hophni and Phineas, are dead! The ark of God has been captured!"

4:18 When he mentioned the ark of God, Eli[10] fell backward from his chair beside the gate. He broke his neck and died, for he[11] was old and heavy. He had judged Israel for forty years.

4:19 His daughter-in-law, the wife of Phineas, was pregnant and close to giving birth. When she heard that the ark of God was captured and that her father-in-law and her husband were dead, she doubled over and gave birth. But her labor pains were too much for her. 4:20 As she was dying, the women who were there with her said, "Don't be afraid! You have given birth to a son!" But she did not reply or pay any attention.[12]

4:21 She named the boy Ichabod,[13] saying,
"The glory has departed from Israel," referring to the capture of the ark of God and the deaths of her father-in-law and her husband. 4:22 She said, "The glory has departed from Israel, because the ark of God has been captured."

The Ark Causes Trouble for the Philistines

5:1 Now the Philistines had captured the ark of God and brought it from Ebenezer to Ashdod.
5:2 The Philistines took the ark of God and brought it into the temple of Dagon, where they positioned it beside Dagon. 5:3 When the residents of Ashdod got up early the next day,[14] Dagon was lying on the ground before the ark of the LORD. So they took Dagon and set him back in his place. 5:4 But when they got up early the following day, Dagon was again lying on the ground before the ark of the LORD. The head of Dagon and his two hands were sheared off and were lying at the threshold.
Only Dagon's body was left intact.[15] 5:5 (For this reason, to this very day, neither Dagon's priests nor anyone else who enters Dagon's temple step on Dagon's threshold in Ashdod.)

5:6 The LORD attacked[16] the residents of Ashdod severely, bringing devastation on them. He struck the people of[17] both Ashdod and the surrounding area with sores.[18] 5:7 When the people[19] of Ashdod saw what was happening, they said,
"The ark of the God of Israel should not remain with us, for he has attacked[20] both us and our god Dagon!"

5:8 So they assembled[21] all the leaders of the Philistines and asked, "What should we do with the ark of the God of Israel?" They replied, "The ark of the God of Israel should be moved to Gath."
So they moved the ark of the God of Israel.

5:9 But after it had been moved the LORD attacked[22] that city as well, causing a great deal of panic. He struck all the people of that city[23] with sores.[24] 5:10 So they sent the ark of God to Ekron.

[1] tn Or perhaps, "the same day." On this use of the demonstrative pronoun see Joüon 2:532 §143.f.

[2] tc Read with many medieval Hebrew MSS, the Qere, and much versional evidence יַד (yad, "hand") rather than MT יָדְ (yakh).

[3] tn Heb "his heart was trembling."

[4] tn Heb "and the man came to report in the city."

[5] tn Heb "the sound of the cry."

[6] tn Heb "the sound of this commotion."

[7] tn Heb "were set" or "were fixed," i.e., without vision.

[8] tn Heb "he"; the referent (Eli) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[9] tn Heb "before."

[10] tn Heb "he"; the referent (Eli) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[11] tn Heb "the man."

[12] tn Heb "and she did not set her heart."

[13] sn The name Ichabod (אִי־כָבוֹד) may mean, "Where is the glory?"

[14] tc The LXX adds "they entered the temple of Dagon and saw."

[15] tc Heb "only Dagon was left." We should probably read the word גַּו (gev, "back") before Dagon, understanding it to have the sense of the similar word גְּוִיָּה (gevíyyah, "body"). This variant is supported by the following evidence: The LXX has ἡ ῥάχις (hē rhachis, "the back" or "trunk"); the Syriac Peshitta has wegusmeh ("and the body of"); the Targum has gupyeh ("the body of"); the Vulgate has truncus ("the trunk of," cf. NAB, NASB, NRSV, NLT). On the strength of this evidence the present translation employs the phrase "Dagon's body."

[16] tn Heb "the hand of the LORD was heavy upon."

[17] tn The words "the people of" are supplied in the translation for clarification.

[18] tc The LXX and Vulgate add the following: "And mice multiplied in their land, and the terror of death was throughout the entire city."

tn Or "tumors" (so ASV, NASB, NIV, NRSV, NLT); NCV "growths on their skin"; KJV "emerods"; NAB "hemorrhoids."

[19] tn Heb "men."

[20] tn Heb "for his hand is severe upon."

[21] tn Heb "and they sent and gathered."

[22] tn Heb "the hand of the LORD was against the city."

[23] tn Heb "and he struck the men of the city from small and to great."

[24] tn See the note on this term in v. 6. Cf. KJV "and they had emerods in their secret parts."

But when the ark of God arrived at Ekron, the residents of Ekron cried out saying, "They have brought the ark of the God of Israel here[1] to kill our[2] people!" 5:11 So they assembled[3] all the leaders of the Philistines and said, "Get the ark of the God of Israel out of here! Let it go back to its own place so that it won't kill us[4] and our[5] people!" The terror[6] of death was throughout the entire city; God was attacking them very severely there.[7] 5:12 The people[8] who did not die were struck with sores; the city's cry for help went all the way up to heaven.

The Philistines Return the Ark

6:1 When the ark of the LORD had been in the land[9] of the Philistines for seven months,[10] 6:2 the Philistines called the priests and the omen readers, saying, "What should we do with the ark of the LORD? Advise us as to how we should send it back to its place."

6:3 They replied, "If you are going to send the ark of[11] the God of Israel back, don't send it away empty. Be sure to return it with a guilt offering. Then you will be healed, and you will understand why his hand is not removed from you." 6:4 They inquired, "What is the guilt offering that we should send to him?"

They replied, "The Philistine leaders number five. So send five gold sores and five gold mice, for it is the same plague that has afflicted both you and your leaders. 6:5 You should make images of the sores and images of the mice[12] that are destroying the land. You should honor the God of Israel. Perhaps he will release his grip on you, your gods, and your land.[13] 6:6 Why harden your hearts like the Egyptians and Pharaoh did?[14] When God[15] treated them harshly, didn't the Egyptians send the Israelites on their way?[16] 6:7 So now go and make a new cart. Get two cows that have calves and that have never had a yoke placed on them. Harness the cows to the cart and take their calves from them back to their stalls. 6:8 Then take the ark of the LORD and place it on the cart, and put in a chest beside it the gold objects you are sending to him as a guilt offering. You should then send it on its way. 6:9 But keep an eye on it. If it should go up by the way of its own border to Beth Shemesh, then he has brought this great calamity on us. But if that is not the case, then we will know that it was not his hand that struck us; rather, it just happened to us by accident."

6:10 So the men did as instructed.[17] They took two cows that had calves and harnessed them to a cart; they also removed their calves to their stalls. 6:11 They put the ark of the LORD on the cart, along with the chest, the gold mice, and the images of the sores. 6:12 Then the cows went directly on the road to Beth Shemesh. They went along, mooing as they went; they turned neither to the right nor to the left. The leaders of the Philistines were walking along behind them all the way to the border of Beth Shemesh.

6:13 Now the residents of Beth Shemesh were harvesting wheat in the valley. When they looked up and saw the ark, they were pleased at the sight. 6:14 The cart was coming to the field of Joshua, who was from Beth Shemesh. It paused there near a big stone. Then they cut up the wood of the cart and offered the cows as a burnt offering to the LORD. 6:15 The Levites took down the ark of the LORD and the chest that was with it, which contained the gold objects. They placed them near the big stone. At that time the people of Beth Shemesh offered burnt offerings and made sacrifices to the LORD. 6:16 The five leaders of the Philistines watched what was happening and then returned to Ekron on the same day.

6:17 These are the gold sores that the Philistines brought as a guilt offering to the LORD – one for each of the following cities: Ashdod, Gaza, Ashkelon, Gath, and Ekron. 6:18 The gold mice corresponded in number to all the Philistine cities of the five leaders, from the fortified cities to hamlet villages, to greater Abel,[18] where they positioned the ark of the LORD until this very day in the field of Joshua who was from Beth Shemesh.

6:19 But the LORD[19] struck down some of the people of Beth Shemesh because they had looked into the ark of the LORD; he struck down 50,070[20] of the men. The people grieved because the LORD had struck the people with a hard

Only a few medieval Hebrew MSS lack "50,000," reading simply "70" instead. However, there does not seem to be sufficient external evidence to warrant reading 70 rather than 50,070, although that is done by a number of recent translations (e.g., NAB, NIV, NRSV, NLT). The present translation (reluctantly) follows the MT and the ancient versions here.

blow. 6:20 The residents of Beth Shemesh asked, "Who is able to stand before the LORD, this holy God? To whom will the ark[1] go up from here?"

6:21 So they sent messengers to the residents of Kiriath Jearim, saying, "The Philistines have returned the ark of the LORD. Come down here and take it back home with you."

7:1 Then the people[2] of Kiriath Jearim came and took the ark of the LORD; they brought it to the house of Abinadab located on the hill. They consecrated Eleazar his son to guard the ark of the LORD.

Further Conflict with the Philistines

7:2 It was quite a long time – some twenty years in all – that the ark stayed at Kiriath Jearim. All the people[3] of Israel longed for[4] the LORD. 7:3 Samuel said to all the people of Israel, "If you are really turning to the LORD with all your hearts, remove from among you the foreign gods and the images of Ashtoreth.[5] Give your hearts to the LORD and serve only him. Then he will deliver you[6] from the hand of the Philistines." 7:4 So the Israelites[7] removed the Baals and images of Ashtoreth. They served only the LORD.

7:5 Then Samuel said, "Gather all Israel to Mizpah, and I will pray to the LORD on your behalf." 7:6 After they had assembled at Mizpah, they drew water and poured it out before the LORD. They fasted on that day, and they confessed[8] there, "We have sinned against the LORD." So Samuel led[9] the people of Israel at Mizpah.

7:7 When the Philistines heard that the Israelites had gathered at Mizpah, the leaders of the Philistines went up against Israel. When the Israelites heard about this, they were afraid of the Philistines. 7:8 The Israelites said to Samuel, "Keep[10] crying out to the LORD our[11] God so that he may save us[12] from the hand of the Philistines!" 7:9 So Samuel took a nursing lamb[13] and offered it as a whole burnt offering to the LORD. Samuel cried out to the LORD on Israel's behalf, and the LORD answered him.

7:10 As Samuel was offering burnt offerings, the Philistines approached to do battle with Israel.[14] But on that day the LORD thundered loudly against the Philistines. He caused them to panic, and they were defeated by[15] Israel. 7:11 Then the men of Israel left Mizpah and chased the Philistines, striking them down all the way to an area below Beth Car.

7:12 Samuel took a stone and placed it between Mizpah and Shen.[16] He named it Ebenezer,[17] saying, "Up to here the LORD has helped us." 7:13 So the Philistines were defeated; they did not invade Israel again. The hand of the LORD was against the Philistines all the days of Samuel.

7:14 The cities that the Philistines had captured from Israel were returned to Israel, from Ekron to Gath. Israel also delivered their territory from the control[18] of the Philistines. There was also peace between Israel and the Amorites. 7:15 So Samuel led[19] Israel all the days of his life. 7:16 Year after year he used to travel the circuit of Bethel,[20] Gilgal, and Mizpah; he used to judge Israel in all of these places. 7:17 Then he would return to Ramah, because his home was there. He also judged[21] Israel there and built an altar to the LORD there.

Israel Seeks a King

8:1 In his old age Samuel appointed his sons as judges over Israel. 8:2 The name of his firstborn son was Joel, and the name of his second son was Abijah. They were judges in Beer Sheba. 8:3 But his sons did not follow[22] his ways. Instead, they made money dishonestly, accepted bribes, and perverted justice.[23]

8:4 So all the elders of Israel gathered together and approached Samuel at Ramah. 8:5 They said to him, "Look, you are old, and your sons don't follow your ways. So now appoint over us a king to lead[1] us, just like all the other nations have."

The presence of Ashtarot in Israel is a sign of pervasive pagan and idolatrous influences; hence Samuel calls for their removal. See 1 Sam 31:10, where the Philistines deposit the armor of the deceased Saul in the temple of the Ashtarot, and 1 Kgs 11:5, 33; 2 Kgs 23:13, where Solomon is faulted for worshiping the Ashtarot.

8:6 But this request displeased Samuel, for[2] they said, "Give us a king to lead us." So Samuel prayed to the LORD. 8:7 The LORD said to Samuel, "Do everything the people request of you.[3] For it is not you that they have rejected, but it is me that they have rejected as their king. 8:8 Just as they have done[4] from the day that I brought them up from Egypt until this very day, they have rejected me and have served other gods. This is what they are also doing to you. 8:9 So now do as they say.[5] But seriously warn[6] them and make them aware of the policies of the king who will rule over them."[7]

8:10 So Samuel spoke all the words of the LORD to the people who were asking him for a king. 8:11 He said, "Here are the policies of the king who will rule over you: He will conscript your sons and put them in his chariot forces and in his cavalry; they will run in front of his chariot. 8:12 He will appoint for himself leaders of thousands and leaders of fifties,[8] as well as those who plow his ground, reap his harvest, and make his weapons of war and his chariot equipment. 8:13 He will take your daughters to be ointment makers, cooks, and bakers. 8:14 He will take your best fields and vineyards and give them to his own servants. 8:15 He will demand a tenth of your seed and of the produce of your vineyards and give it to his administrators[9] and his servants. 8:16 He will take your male and female servants, as well as your best cattle and your donkeys, and assign them for his own use. 8:17 He will demand a tenth of your flocks, and you yourselves will be his servants. 8:18 In that day you will cry out because of your king whom you have chosen for yourselves, but the LORD won't answer you in that day."[10]

8:19 But the people refused to heed Samuel's warning.[11] Instead they said, "No! There will be a king over us! 8:20 We will be like all the other nations. Our king will judge us and lead us[12] and fight our battles."

8:21 So Samuel listened to everything the people said and then reported it to the LORD.[13] 8:22 The LORD said to Samuel, "Do as they say[14] and install a king over them." Then Samuel said to the men of Israel, "Each of you go back to his own city."

Samuel Meets with Saul

9:1 There was a Benjaminite man named Kish son of Abiel, the son of Zeror, the son of Becorath, the son of Aphiah of Benjamin. He was a prominent person. 9:2 He had a son named Saul, a handsome young man. There was no one among the Israelites more handsome than he was; he stood head and shoulders above all the people.

9:3 The donkeys of Saul's father Kish wandered off,[15] so Kish said to his son Saul, "Take one of the servants with you and go[16] look for the donkeys."[17] 9:4 So Saul[18] crossed through the hill country of Ephraim, passing through the land of Shalisha, but they did not find them. So they crossed through the land of Shaalim, but they were not there. Then he crossed through the land of Benjamin, and still they did not find them.

9:5 When they came to the land of Zuph, Saul said to his servant who was with him, "Come on, let's head back before my father quits worrying about the donkeys and becomes anxious about us!" 9:6 But the servant said to him, "Look, there is a man of God in this town. He is highly respected. Everything that he says really happens.[19] Now let's go there. Perhaps he will tell us where we should go from here."[20] 9:7 So Saul said to his servant, "All right,[21] we can go. But what can we bring the man, since the food in our bags is used up? We have no gift to take to the man of God. What do we have?" 9:8 The servant went on to answer Saul, "Look, I happen to have in my hand a quarter shekel[22] of silver. I will give it to the man of God and he will tell us where we should go."[23] 9:9 (Now it used to be in Israel that whenever someone went

[8] tc The numbers of v. 12 are confused in the Greek and Syriac versions. For "fifties" the LXX has "hundreds." The Syriac Peshitta has "heads of thousands and heads of hundreds and heads of fifties and heads of tens," perhaps reflecting influence from Deut 1:15.

[18] tn Heb "he"; the referent (Saul) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[19] tn The infinitive absolute precedes the verb for emphasis.

to inquire of God he would say, "Come on, let's go to the seer." For today's prophet used to be called a seer.) 9:10 So Saul said to his servant, "That's a good idea![1] Come on. Let's go." So they went to the town where the man of God was.

9:11 As they were going up the ascent to the town, they met some girls coming out to draw water. They said to them, "Is this where the seer is?" 9:12 They replied, "Yes, straight ahead! But hurry now, for he came to the town today, and the people are making a sacrifice at the high place. 9:13 When you enter the town, you can find him before he goes up to the high place to eat. The people won't eat until he arrives, for he must bless the sacrifice. Once that happens, those who have been invited will eat. Now go on up, for[2] this is the time when you can find him!"

9:14 So they went up to the town. As they were heading for the middle of the town, Samuel was coming in their direction[3] to go up to the high place. 9:15 Now the day before Saul arrived, the LORD had told[4] Samuel: 9:16 "At this time tomorrow I will send to you a man from the land of Benjamin. You must consecrate[5] him as a leader over my people Israel. He will save my people from the hand of the Philistines. For I have looked with favor on my people. Their cry has reached me!"

9:17 When Samuel saw Saul, the LORD said,[6] "Here is the man that I told you about! He will rule over my people." 9:18 As Saul approached Samuel in the middle of the gate, he said, "Please tell me where the seer's house is."

9:19 Samuel replied to Saul, "I am the seer! Go up in front of me to the high place! Today you will eat with me and in the morning I will send you away. I will tell you everything that you are thinking.[7] 9:20 Don't be concerned[8] about the donkeys that you lost three days ago, for they have been found. Whom does all Israel desire? Is it not you, and all your father's family?"[9]

9:21 Saul replied, "Am I not a Benjaminite, from the smallest of Israel's tribes, and is not my family clan the smallest of all the tribes of Benjamin? Why do you speak to me in this way?"

9:22 Then Samuel brought[10] Saul and his servant into the room and gave them a place at the head of those who had been invited. There were about thirty people present. 9:23 Samuel said to the cook, "Give me the portion of meat that I gave to you – the one I asked you to keep with you."

9:24 So the cook picked up the leg and brought it and set it in front of Saul. Samuel[11] said, "What was kept is now set before you! Eat, for it has been kept for you for this meeting time, from the time I said, 'I have invited the people.'" So Saul ate with Samuel that day.

9:25 When they came down from the high place to the town, Samuel spoke with Saul on the roof. 9:26 They got up at dawn and Samuel called to Saul on the roof, "Get up, so I can send you on your way." So Saul got up and the two of them – he and Samuel – went outside. 9:27 While they were going down to the edge of town, Samuel said to Saul, "Tell the servant to go on ahead of us." So he did.[12] Samuel then said,[13] "You remain here awhile, so I can inform you of God's message."

Samuel Anoints Saul

10:1 Then Samuel took a small container of olive oil and poured it on Saul's[14] head. Samuel[15] kissed him and said, "The LORD has chosen you[16] to lead his people Israel! You will rule over the LORD's people and you will deliver them from the power of the enemies who surround them. This will be your sign that the LORD has chosen[17] you as leader over his inheritance.[18] 10:2 When you leave me today, you will find two men near Rachel's tomb at Zelzah on Ben-

[2] tc The MT has "him" (אֹתוֹ, 'oto) here, in addition to the "him" at the end of the verse. The ancient versions attest to only one occurrence of the pronoun, although it is possible that this is due to translation technique rather than to their having a Hebrew text with the pronoun used only once. The present translation assumes textual duplication in the MT and does not attempt to represent the pronoun twice. However, for a defense of the MT here, with the suggested translation "for him just now – you will find him," see S. R. Driver, Notes on the Hebrew Text and the Topography of the Books of Samuel, 72-73.

[15] tn Heb "he"; the referent (Samuel) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[16] tn Heb "Is it not that the LORD has anointed you?" The question draws attention to the fact and is a rhetorical way of affirming the Lord's choice of Saul. The translation reflects the rhetorical force of the question.

[17] tn That is, "anointed."

[18] tc The MT reads simply "Is it not that the LORD has anointed you over his inheritance for a leader?" The translation follows the LXX. The MT apparently suffers from parablepsis, whereby a scribe's eye jumped from the first occurrence of the expression "the LORD has anointed you" to the second occurrence of this expression at the end of v. 1. This mistake caused the accidental omission of the intervening material in the LXX, which appears to preserve the original Hebrew text here.

jamin's border. They will say to you, 'The donkeys you have gone looking for have been found. Your father is no longer concerned about the donkeys but has become anxious about you two![1] He is asking, "What should I do about my son?"'

10:3 "As you continue on from there, you will come to the tall tree of Tabor. At that point three men who are going up to God at Bethel[2] will meet you. One of them will be carrying three young goats, one of them will be carrying three round loaves of bread, and one of them will be carrying a container of wine. 10:4 They will ask you how you're doing and will give you two loaves of bread. You will accept them. 10:5 Afterward you will go to Gibeah of God, where there are Philistine officials.[3] When you enter the town, you will meet a company of prophets coming down from the high place. They will have harps, tambourines, flutes, and lyres, and they will be prophesying. 10:6 Then the spirit of the LORD will rush upon you and you will prophesy with them. You will be changed into a different person.

10:7 "When these signs have taken place, do whatever your hand finds to do, for God will be with you.[4] 10:8 You will go down to Gilgal before me. I am going to join you there to offer burnt offerings and to make peace offerings. You should wait for seven days, until I arrive and tell you what to do."

Saul Becomes King

10:9 As Saul[5] turned[6] to leave Samuel, God changed his inmost person.[7] All these signs happened on that very day. 10:10 When Saul and his servant[8] arrived at Gibeah, a company of prophets was coming out to meet him. Then the spirit of God rushed upon Saul[9] and he prophesied among them. 10:11 When everyone who had known him previously saw him prophesying with the prophets, the people all asked one another, "What on earth has happened to the son of Kish? Does even Saul belong with the prophets?"

10:12 A man who was from there replied, "And who is their father?" Therefore this became a proverb: "Is even Saul among the prophets?" 10:13 When Saul[10] had finished prophesying, he went to the high place.

10:14 Saul's uncle asked him and his servant, "Where did you go?" Saul[11] replied, "To look for the donkeys. But when we realized they were lost,[12] we went to Samuel." 10:15 Saul's uncle said, "Tell me what Samuel said to you."[13] 10:16 Saul said to his uncle, "He assured us that the donkeys had been found." But Saul[14] did not tell him what Samuel had said about the matter of kingship.

10:17 Then Samuel called the people together before the LORD at Mizpah. 10:18 He said to the Israelites, "This is what the LORD God of Israel says, 'I brought Israel up from Egypt and I delivered you from the power[15] of the Egyptians and from the power of all the kingdoms that oppressed you. 10:19 But today you have rejected your God who saves you from all your trouble and distress. You have said, "No![16] Appoint a king over us." Now take your positions before the LORD by your tribes and by your clans.'"

10:20 Then Samuel brought all the tribes of Israel near, and the tribe of Benjamin was chosen by lot. 10:21 Then he brought the tribe of Benjamin near by its families, and the family of Matri was chosen by lot. At last Saul son of Kish was chosen by lot. But when they looked for him, he was nowhere to be found. 10:22 So they inquired again of the LORD, "Has the man arrived here yet?" The LORD said, "He has hidden himself among the equipment."[17]

10:23 So they ran and brought him from there. When he took his position among the people, he stood head and shoulders above them all. 10:24 Then Samuel said to all the people, "Do you see the one whom the LORD has cho-

[11] tn Heb "he"; the referent (Saul) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[12] tn Heb "And we saw that they were not."

[13] tc In the LXX and Vulgate the pronoun "you" is singular, referring specifically to Saul. In the MT it is plural, including Saul's servant as well.

[14] tn Heb "he"; the referent (Saul) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[15] tn Heb "hand" (also later in this verse).

[16] tc The translation follows many medieval Hebrew MSS, the LXX, the Syriac Peshitta, and Vulgate in reading לֹא (lo', "not") rather than the MT לוֹ (lo; "to him"). Some witnesses combine the variants, resulting in a conflated text. For example, a few medieval Hebrew MSS have לֹא לוֹ (lo lo'; "to him, 'No.'"). A few others have לִי לֹא (li lo'; "to me, 'No.'").

[17] tn Or "baggage" (so many English versions); KJV "stuff"; TEV "supplies."

sen? Indeed, there is no one like him among all the people!" All the people shouted out, "Long live the king!"

10:25 Then Samuel talked to the people about how the kingship would work.[1] He wrote it all down on a scroll and set it before the LORD. Then Samuel sent all the people away to their homes. 10:26 Even Saul went to his home in Gibeah. With him went some brave men whose hearts God had touched. 10:27 But some wicked men[2] said, "How can this man save us?" They despised him and did not even bring him a gift. But Saul said nothing about it.[3]

Saul Comes to the Aid of Jabesh

11:1[4] Nahash[5] the Ammonite marched[6] against Jabesh Gilead. All the men of Jabesh Gilead said to Nahash, "Make a treaty with us and we will serve you."

11:2 But Nahash the Ammonite said to them, "The only way I will make a treaty with you is if you let me gouge out the right eye of every one of you and in so doing humiliate all Israel!"

11:3 The elders of Jabesh said to him, "Leave us alone for seven days so that we can send messengers throughout the territory of Israel. If there is no one who can deliver us, we will come out voluntarily to you."

11:4 When the messengers went to Gibeah (where Saul lived)[7] and informed the people of these matters, all the people wept loudly.[8] 11:5 Now Saul was walking behind the[9] oxen as he came from the field. Saul asked, "What has happened to the people? Why are they weeping?" So they told him about[10] the men of Jabesh.

11:6 The Spirit of God rushed upon Saul when he heard these words, and he became very angry. 11:7 He took a pair[11] of oxen and cut them up. Then he sent the pieces throughout the territory of Israel by the hand of messengers, who said, "Whoever does not go out after Saul and after Samuel should expect this to be done to his oxen!" Then the terror of the LORD fell on the people, and they went out as one army.[12] 11:8 When Saul counted them at Bezek, the Israelites were 300,000[13] strong and the men of Judah numbered 30,000.[14]

11:9 They said to the messengers who had come, "Here's what you should say to the men of Jabesh Gilead: 'Tomorrow deliverance will come to you when the sun is fully up.'" When the messengers went and told the men of Jabesh Gilead, they were happy. 11:10 The men of Jabesh said, "Tomorrow we will come out to you[15] and you can do with us whatever you wish."[16]

11:11 The next day Saul placed the people in three groups. They went to the Ammonite camp during the morning watch and struck them[17] down until the hottest part of the day. The survivors scattered; no two of them remained together.

Saul Is Established as King

11:12 Then the people said to Samuel, "Who were the ones asking, 'Will Saul reign over us?' Hand over those men so we may execute them!" 11:13 But Saul said, "No one will be killed on this day. For today the LORD has given Israel a victory!" 11:14 Samuel said to the people, "Come on! Let's go to Gilgal and renew the kingship there." 11:15 So all the people went to Gilgal, where[18] they established Saul as king in the LORD's presence. They offered up peace offerings there in the LORD's presence. Saul and all the Israelites were very happy.

[1] tn Heb "the regulation of the kingship." This probably refers to the regulations pertaining to kingship given to Moses (see Deut 17:14-20).

[2] tn Heb "sons of worthlessness" (see 2:12).

[3] tc In place of the MT ("and it was like one being silent") the LXX has "after about a month," taking the expression with the first part of the following chapter rather than with 10:27. Some Hebrew support for this reading appears in the corrected hand of a Qumran MS of Samuel, which has here "about a month." However, it seems best to stay with the MT here even though it is difficult.

[4] tc 4QSam[a] and Josephus (Ant. 6.68-71) attest to a longer form of text at this point. The addition explains Nahash's practice of enemy mutilation, and by so doing provides a smoother transition to the following paragraph than is found in the MT. The NRSV adopts this reading, with the following English translation: "Now Nahash, king of the Ammonites, had been grievously oppressing the Gadites and the Reubenites. He would gouge out the right eye of each of them and would not grant Israel a deliverer. No one was left of the Israelites across the Jordan whose right eye Nahash, king of the Ammonites, had not gouged out. But there were seven thousand men who had escaped from the Ammonites and had entered Jabesh-gilead." This reading should not be lightly dismissed; it may in fact provide a text superior to that of the MT and the ancient versions. But the external evidence for it is so limited as to induce caution; the present translation instead follows the MT. However, for a reasonable case for including this reading in the text see the discussions in P. K. McCarter, I Samuel (AB), 199, and R. W. Klein, 1 Samuel (WBC), 103.

As for me, I am old and gray, though my sons are here with you. I have walked before you from the time of my youth till the present day. 12:3 Here I am. Bring a charge against me before the LORD and before his chosen king.[4] Whose ox have I taken? Whose donkey have I taken? Whom have I wronged? Whom have I oppressed? From whose hand have I taken a bribe so that I would overlook something? Tell me,[5] and I will return it to you!"

12:4 They replied, "You have not wronged us or oppressed us. You have not taken anything from the hand of anyone." 12:5 He said to them, "The LORD is witness against you, and his chosen king[6] is witness this day, that you have not found any reason to accuse me."[7] They said, "He is witness!"

12:6 Samuel said to the people, "The LORD is the one who chose Moses and Aaron and who brought your ancestors[8] up from the land of Egypt. 12:7 Now take your positions, so I may confront you[9] before the LORD regarding all the LORD's just actions toward you and your ancestors.[10] 12:8 When Jacob entered Egypt, your ancestors cried out to the LORD. The LORD sent Moses and Aaron, and they led your ancestors out of Egypt and settled them in this place.

12:9 "But they forgot the LORD their God, so he gave[11] them into the hand of Sisera, the general in command of Hazor's[12] army,[13] and into the hand of the Philistines and into the hand of the king of Moab, and they fought against them. 12:10 Then they cried out to the LORD and admitted,[14] 'We have sinned, for we have forsaken the LORD and have served the Baals and the images of Ashtoreth.[15] Now deliver us from the hand of our enemies so that we may serve you.'[16] 12:11 So the LORD sent Jerub-Baal,[17] Barak,[18] Jephthah, and Samuel,[19] and he delivered you from the hand of the enemies all around you, and you were able to live securely.

12:12 "When you saw that King Nahash of the Ammonites was advancing against you, you said to me, 'No! A king will rule over us' – even though the LORD your God is your king! 12:13 Now look! Here is the king you have chosen – the one that you asked for! Look, the LORD has given you a king! 12:14 If you fear the LORD, serving him and obeying him[20] and not rebelling against what he says,[21] and if both you and the king who rules over you follow the LORD your God, all will be well.[22] 12:15 But if you don't obey[23] the LORD and rebel against what the LORD says, the hand of the LORD will be against both you and your king.[24]

12:16 "So now, take your positions and watch this great thing that the LORD is about to do in your sight. 12:17 Is this not the time of the wheat harvest? I will call on the LORD so that he makes it thunder and rain. Realize and see what a great sin you have committed before the LORD by asking for a king for yourselves."

12:18 So Samuel called to the LORD, and the LORD made it thunder and rain that day. All the people were very afraid of both the LORD and Samuel. 12:19 All the people said to Samuel, "Pray to the LORD your God on behalf of us – your servants – so we won't die, for we have added to all our sins by asking for a king."[25]

12:20 Then Samuel said to the people, "Don't be afraid. You have indeed sinned.[26] However, don't turn aside from the LORD. Serve the LORD with all your heart. 12:21 You should not turn aside after empty things that can't profit [17] sn Jerub-Baal (יְרֻבַּעַל) is also known as Gideon (see Judg 6:32). The book of Judges uses both names for him.

[18] tc The MT has "Bedan" (בְּדָן) here (cf. KJV, NASB, CEV). But a deliverer by this name is not elsewhere mentioned in the OT. The translation follows the LXX and the Syriac Peshitta in reading "Barak."

[19] tc In the ancient versions there is some confusion with regard to these names, both with regard to the particular names selected for mention and with regard to the order in which they are listed. For example, the LXX has "Jerub-Baal, Barak, Jephthah, and Samuel." But the Targum has "Gideon, Samson, Jephthah, and Samuel," while the Syriac Peshitta has "Deborah, Barak, Gideon, Jephthah, and Samson."

[23] tn Heb "listen to the voice of."

[24] tc The LXX reads "your king" rather than the MT's "your fathers." The latter makes little sense here. Some follow MT, but translate "as it was against your fathers." See P. K. McCarter, 1 Samuel (AB), 212.

Saul Fails the Lord

13:1 Saul was [thirty][3] years old when he began to reign; he ruled over Israel for [forty][4] years. 13:2 Saul selected for himself three thousand men from Israel. Two thousand of these were with Saul at Micmash and in the hill country of Bethel;[5] the remaining thousand were with Jonathan at Gibeah in the territory of Benjamin.[6] He sent all the rest of the people back home.[7]

13:3 Jonathan attacked the Philistine outpost[8] that was at Geba and the Philistines heard about it. Then Saul alerted[9] all the land saying, "Let the Hebrews pay attention!" 13:4 All Israel heard this message,[10] "Saul has attacked the Philistine outpost, and now Israel is repulsive[11] to the Philistines!" So the people were summoned to join[12] Saul at Gilgal.

13:5 For the battle with Israel the Philistines had amassed 3,000[13] chariots, 6,000 horsemen, and an army as numerous as the sand on the seashore. They went up and camped at Micmash, east of Beth Aven. 13:6 The men of Israel realized they had a problem because their army was hard pressed. So the army hid in caves, thickets, cliffs, strongholds,[14] and cisterns. 13:7 Some of the Hebrews crossed over the Jordan River[15] to the land of Gad and Gilead. But Saul stayed at Gilgal; the entire army that was with him was terrified. 13:8 He waited for seven days, the time period indicated by Samuel.[16] But Samuel did not come to Gilgal, and the army began to abandon Saul.[17]

13:9 So Saul said, "Bring me the burnt offering and the peace offerings." Then he offered a burnt offering. 13:10 Just when he had finished offering the burnt offering, Samuel appeared on the scene. Saul went out to meet him and to greet him.[18]

13:11 But Samuel said, "What have you done?" Saul replied, "When I saw that the army had started to abandon me[19] and that you didn't come at the appointed time and that the Philistines had assembled at Micmash, 13:12 I thought,[20] 'Now the Philistines will come down on me at Gilgal and I have not sought the LORD's favor.' So I felt obligated[21] to offer the burnt offering."

[1] tn Or "useless" (so NIV, NRSV, NLT); NAB "nothing"; NASB "futile"; TEV "are not real."

[2] tn Heb "on account of his great name."

[3] tc The MT does not have "thirty." A number appears to have dropped out of the Hebrew text here, since as it stands the MT (literally, "a son of a year") must mean that Saul was only one year old when he began to reign! The KJV, attempting to resolve this, reads "Saul reigned one year," but that is not the normal meaning of the Hebrew text represented by the MT. Although most LXX MSS lack the entire verse, some Greek MSS have "thirty years" here (while others have "one year" like the MT). The Syriac Peshitta has Saul's age as twenty-one. But this seems impossible to harmonize with the implied age of Saul's son Jonathan in the following verse. Taking into account the fact that in v. 2 Jonathan was old enough to be a military leader, some scholars prefer to supply in v. 1 the number forty (cf. ASV, NASB). The present translation ("thirty") is a possible but admittedly uncertain proposal based on a few Greek MSS and followed by a number of English versions (e.g., NIV, NCV, NLT). Other English versions simply supply ellipsis marks for the missing number (e.g., NAB, NRSV).

[4] tc The MT has "two years" here. If this number is to be accepted as correct, the meaning apparently would be that after a lapse of two years at the beginning of Saul's reign, he then went about the task of consolidating an army as described in what follows (cf. KJV, ASV, CEV). But if the statement in v. 1 is intended to be a comprehensive report on the length of Saul's reign, the number is too small. According to Acts 13:21 Saul reigned for forty years. Some English versions (e.g., NIV, NCV, NLT), taking this forty to be a round number, add it to the "two years" of the MT and translate the number in 2 Sam 13:1 as "forty-two years." While this is an acceptable option, the present translation instead replaces the MT's "two" with the figure "forty." Admittedly the textual evidence for this decision is weak, but the same can be said of any attempt to restore sense to this difficult text (note the ellipsis marks at this point in NAB, NRSV). The Syriac Peshitta lacks this part of v. 1.

[10] tn The words "this message" are supplied in the translation for stylistic reasons.

[11] tn Heb "stinks." The figurative language indicates that Israel had become repulsive to the Philistines.

[12] tn Heb "were summoned after."

[13] tn Many English versions (e.g., KJV, NASB, NRSV, TEV) read "30,000" here.

[14] tn Or perhaps "vaults." This rare term also occurs in Judg 9:46, 49. Cf. KJV "high places"; ASV "coverts"; NAB "caverns"; NASB "cellars"; NIV, NCV, TEV "pits"; NRSV, NLT "tombs."

[15] tn The word "River" is not in the Hebrew text, but has been supplied in the translation for clarity.

[16] tn This apparently refers to the instructions given by Samuel in 1 Sam 10:8. If so, several years had passed. On the relationship between chs. 10 and 13, see V. P. Long, The Art of Biblical History (FCI), 201-23.

[17] tn Heb "dispersed from upon him"; NAB, NRSV "began to slip away."

[18] tn Heb "to bless him."

[19] tn Heb "dispersed from upon me."

[20] tn Heb "said."

[21] tn Or "I forced myself" (so KJV, NASB, NRSV, CEV); NAB "So in my anxiety I offered"; NIV "I felt compelled."

13:13 Then Samuel said to Saul, "You have made a foolish choice! You have not obeyed[1] the commandment that the LORD your God gave[2] you. Had you done that, the LORD would have established your kingdom over Israel forever! 13:14 But now your kingdom will not continue! The LORD has sought out[3] for himself a man who is loyal to him[4] and the LORD has appointed[5] him to be leader over his people, for you have not obeyed what the LORD commanded you."

13:15 Then Samuel set out and went up from Gilgal[6] to Gibeah in the territory of Benjamin.[7] Saul mustered the army that remained with him; there were about six hundred men. 13:16 Saul, his son Jonathan, and the army that remained with them stayed in Gibeah in the territory of Benjamin, while the Philistines camped in Micmash.[8] 13:17 Raiding bands went out from the camp of the Philistines in three groups. One band turned toward the road leading to Ophrah by the land of Shual; 13:18 another band turned toward the road leading to Beth Horon; and yet another band turned toward the road leading to the border that overlooks the valley of Zeboim in the direction of the desert.

13:19 A blacksmith could not be found in all the land of Israel, for the Philistines had said, "This will prevent the Hebrews from making swords and spears." 13:20 So all Israel had to go down to the Philistines in order to get their plowshares, cutting instruments, axes, and sickles[9] sharpened. 13:21 They charged[10] two-thirds of a shekel[11] to sharpen plowshares and cutting instruments, and a third of a shekel[12] to sharpen picks and axes, and to set ox goads. 13:22 So on the day of the battle no sword or spear was to be found in the hand of anyone in the army that was with Saul and Jonathan. No one but Saul and his son Jonathan had them.

Jonathan Ignites a Battle

13:23 A garrison of the Philistines had gone out to the pass at Micmash. 14:1 Then one day Jonathan son of Saul said to his armor bearer,[13] "Come on, let's go over to the Philistine garrison that is opposite us." But he did not let his father know.

14:2 Now Saul was sitting under a pomegranate tree in Migron, on the outskirts of Gibeah. The army that was with him numbered about six hundred men. 14:3 Now Ahijah was carrying[14] an ephod. He was the son of Ahitub, who was the brother of Ichabod and a son of Phineas, son of Eli, the priest of the LORD in Shiloh. The army was unaware that Jonathan had left.

14:4 Now there was a steep cliff on each side of the pass through which Jonathan intended to go to reach the Philistine garrison. One cliff was named Bozez, the other Seneh. 14:5 The cliff to the north was closer to Micmash, the one to the south closer to Geba.

14:6 Jonathan said to his armor bearer, "Come on, let's go over to the garrison of these uncircumcised men. Perhaps the LORD will intervene[15] for us. Nothing can prevent the LORD from delivering, whether by many or by a few." 14:7 His armor bearer said to him, "Do everything that is on your mind.[16] Do as you're inclined. I'm with you all the way!"[17]

14:8 Jonathan replied, "All right![18] We'll go over to these men and fight them. 14:9 If they say to us, 'Stay put until we approach you,' we will stay[19] right there and not go up to them. 14:10 But if they say, 'Come up against us,' we will go up. For in that case the LORD has given them into our hand – it will be a sign to us."

1 tn Or "kept."

2 tn Heb "commanded."

3 tn This verb form, as well as the one that follows ("appointed"), indicates completed action from the standpoint of the speaker. This does not necessarily mean that the Lord had already conducted his search and made his choice, however. The forms may be used for rhetorical effect to emphasize the certainty of the action. The divine search for a new king is as good as done, emphasizing that the days of Saul's dynasty are numbered.

4 tn Heb "according to his heart." The idiomatic expression means to be like-minded with another, as its use in 1 Sam 14:7 indicates.

5 tn Heb "commanded."

6 tc The LXX and two Old Latin MSS include the following words here: "on his way. And the rest of the people went up after Saul to meet the warring army. When they arrived from Gilgal...."

7 tn Heb "at Gibeah of Benjamin." The words "in the territory" are supplied in the translation for clarity (likewise in the following verse).

8 tn The juxtaposition of disjunctive clauses in v.16 indicates synchronic action.

9 tc The translation follows the LXX ("their sickle") here, rather than the MT "plowshares," which is due to dittography from the word earlier in the verse.

10 tn Heb "the price was." The meaning of the Hebrew word פְּצִירָה (p^{e}tsirah) is uncertain. This is the only place it occurs in the OT. Some propose the meaning "sharpening," but "price" is a more likely meaning if the following term refers to a weight (see the following note on the word "shekel"). See P. K. McCarter, I Samuel (AB), 238.

11 tn This word, which appears only here in the OT, probably refers to a stone weight. Stones marked פִּים (pim) have been found in excavations of Palestinian sites. The average weight of such stones is 0.268 ounces, which is equivalent to about two-thirds of a shekel. This probably refers to the price charged by the Philistines for the services listed. See P. K. McCarter, I Samuel (AB), 238; DNWSI 2:910; and G. I. Davies, Ancient Hebrew Inscriptions, 259.

12 tc Heb "and for a third, a pick." The Hebrew text suffers from haplography at this point. The translation follows the textual reconstruction offered by P. K. McCarter, I Samuel (AB), 235.

13 tn Or "the servant who was carrying his military equipment" (likewise in vv. 6, 7, 12, 13, 14).

14 tn Heb "bearing." Many English versions understand this verb to mean "wearing" (cf. KJV, NAB, NASB, NIV, NLT).

15 tn Heb "act."

16 tn Heb "in your heart."

17 tn Heb "Look, I am with you, according to your heart." See the note at 13:14.

18 tn Heb "Look!"

19 tn Heb "stand."

14:11 When they[1] made themselves known to the Philistine garrison, the Philistines said, "Look! The Hebrews are coming out of the holes in which they hid themselves." 14:12 Then the men of the garrison said to Jonathan and his armor bearer, "Come on up to us so we can teach you a thing or two!"[2] Then Jonathan said to his armor bearer, "Come up behind me, for the LORD has given[3] them into the hand of Israel!"

14:13 Jonathan crawled up on his hands and feet, with his armor bearer following behind him. Jonathan struck down the Philistines,[4] while his armor bearer came along behind him and killed them.[5] 14:14 In this initial skirmish Jonathan and his armor bearer struck down about twenty men in an area that measured half an acre.

14:15 Then fear overwhelmed[6] those who were in the camp, those who were in the field, all the army in the garrison, and the raiding bands. They trembled and the ground shook. This fear was caused by God.[7]

14:16 Saul's watchmen at Gibeah in the territory of Benjamin[8] looked on[9] as the crowd of soldiers seemed to melt away first in one direction and then in another.[10] 14:17 So Saul said to the army that was with him, "Muster the troops and see who is no longer with us." When they mustered the troops,[11] Jonathan and his armor bearer were not there. 14:18 So Saul said to Ahijah, "Bring near the ephod,"[12] for he was at that time wearing the ephod.[13] 14:19 While[14] Saul spoke to the priest, the panic in the Philistines' camp was becoming greater and greater. So Saul said to the priest, "Withdraw your hand!"

14:20 Saul and all the army that was with him assembled and marched into battle, where they found[15] the Philistines in total panic killing one another with their swords.[16] 14:21 The Hebrews who had earlier gone over to the Philistine side[17] joined the Israelites who were with Saul and Jonathan. 14:22 When all the Israelites who had hidden themselves in the hill country of Ephraim heard that the Philistines had fled, they too pursued them in battle. 14:23 So the LORD delivered Israel that day, and the battle shifted over to Beth Aven.[18]

Jonathan Violates Saul's Oath

14:24 Now the men of Israel were hard pressed that day, for Saul had made the army agree to this oath: "Cursed be the man who eats food before evening! I will get my vengeance on my enemies!" So no one in the army ate anything.

14:25 Now the whole army[19] entered the forest and there was honey on the ground.[20] 14:26 When the army entered the forest, they saw[21] the honey flowing, but no one ate any of it,[22] for the army was afraid of the oath. 14:27 But Jonathan had not heard about the oath his father had made the army take. He extended the end of his staff that was in his hand and dipped it in the honeycomb. When he ate it,[23] his eyes gleamed.[24] 14:28 Then someone from the army informed him, "Your father put the army under a strict oath[25] saying, 'Cursed be the man who eats food today!' That is why the army is tired." 14:29 Then Jonathan said, "My father has caused trouble for the land. See how my eyes gleamed[26] when I tasted just a little of this honey. 14:30 Certainly if the army had eaten some of the enemies' provisions that they came across today, would not the slaughter of the Philistines have been even greater?"

[1] tn Heb "the two of them."

[2] tn Heb "a thing."

[3] tn The perfect verbal form is used rhetorically here to express Jonathan's certitude. As far as he is concerned, the victory is as good as won and can be described as such.

[4] tn Heb "and they fell before Jonathan."

[5] tn Heb "and the one carrying his equipment was killing after him."

[6] tn Heb "fell upon."

[7] tn Heb "and it was by the fear of God." The translation understands this to mean that God was the source or cause of the fear experienced by the Philistines. This seems to be the most straightforward reading of the sentence. It is possible, however, that the word "God" functions here simply to intensify the accompanying word "fear," in which one might translate "a very great fear" (cf. NAB, NRSV). It is clear that on some occasions that the divine name carries such a superlative nuance. For examples see Joüon 2:525 §141.n.

[8] tn Heb "at Gibeah of Benjamin." The words "in the territory" are supplied in the translation for clarity.

[9] tn Heb "saw, and look!"

[10] tn Heb "the crowd melted and went, even here."

[11] tn Heb "and they mustered the troops, and look!"

[12] tc Heb "the ark of God." It seems unlikely that Saul would call for the ark, which was several miles away in Kiriath-jearim (see 1 Sam 7:2). The LXX and an Old Latin MS have "ephod" here, a reading which harmonizes better with v. 3 and fits better with the verb "bring near" (see 1 Sam 23:9; 30:7) and with the expression "withdraw your hand" in v.19. This reading is followed in the present translation (cf. NAB, TEV, NLT).

[13] tc Heb "for the ark of God was in that day, and the sons of Israel." The translation follows the text of some Greek manuscripts. See the previous note.

[14] tn Or perhaps "until."

[15] tn Heb "and look, there was"

[16] tn Heb "the sword of a man against his companion, a very great panic."

[17] tn Heb "and the Hebrews were to the Philistines formerly, who went up with them in the camp all around."

[18] tc The LXX includes the following words: "And all the people were with Saul, about ten thousand men. And the battle extended to the entire city on mount Ephraim."

[19] tn Heb "all the land."

[20] tn Heb "the surface of the field."

[21] tn Heb "and the army entered the forest, and look!"

[22] tn Heb "and there was no one putting his hand to his mouth."

[23] tn Heb "and he returned his hand to his mouth."

[24] tc The translation follows the Qere and several medieval Hebrew MSS in reading "gleamed," rather than the Kethib, "saw."

[25] tn Heb "your father surely put the army under an oath." The infinitive absolute is used before the finite verb to emphasize the solemn nature of the oath.

[26] tc The LXX reads "saw." See v. 27.

14:31 On that day the army struck down the Philistines from Micmash to Aijalon, and they became very tired. 14:32 So the army rushed greedily on[1] the[2] plunder, confiscating sheep, cattle, and calves. They slaughtered them right on the ground, and the army ate them blood and all.

14:33 Now it was reported to Saul, "Look, the army is sinning against the LORD by eating even the blood." He said, "All of you have broken the covenant![3] Roll a large stone over here to me." 14:34 Then Saul said, "Scatter out among the army and say to them, 'Each of you bring to me your ox and sheep and slaughter them in this spot and eat. But don't sin against the LORD by eating the blood.'" So that night each one brought his ox and slaughtered it there.[4] 14:35 Then Saul built an altar for the LORD; it was the first time he had built an altar for the LORD.

14:36 Saul said, "Let's go down after the Philistines at night; we will rout[5] them until the break of day.[6] We won't leave any of them alive!"[7] They replied, "Do whatever seems best to you."[8] But the priest said, "Let's approach God here." 14:37 So Saul asked God, "Should I go down after the Philistines? Will you deliver them into the hand of Israel?" But he did not answer him that day.

14:38 Then Saul said, "All you leaders of the army come here. Find out[9] how this sin occurred today. 14:39 For as surely as the LORD, the deliverer of Israel, lives, even if it turns out to be my own son Jonathan, he will certainly die!" But no one from the army said anything.[10]

14:40 Then he said to all Israel, "You will be on one side, and I and my son Jonathan will be on the other side." The army replied to Saul, "Do whatever you think is best."

14:41 Then Saul said, "O LORD God of Israel! If this sin has been committed by me or by my son Jonathan, then, O LORD God of Israel, respond with Urim. But if this sin has been committed by your people Israel, respond with Thummim."[11] Then Jonathan and Saul were indicated by lot, while the army was exonerated.[12] 14:42 Then Saul said, "Cast the lot between me and my son Jonathan!"[13] Jonathan was indicated by lot.

14:43 So Saul said to Jonathan, "Tell me what you have done." Jonathan told him, "I used the end of the staff that was in my hand to taste a little honey. I must die!"[14] 14:44 Saul said, "God will punish me severely if Jonathan doesn't die!"[15]

14:45 But the army said to Saul, "Should Jonathan, who won this great victory in Israel, die? May it never be! As surely as the LORD lives, not a single hair of his head will fall to the ground! For it is with the help of God that he has acted today." So the army rescued Jonathan from death.[16]

14:46 Then Saul stopped chasing the Philistines, and the Philistines went back home.[17] 14:47 After Saul had secured his royal position over Israel, he fought against all their[18] enemies on all sides – the Moabites, Ammonites, Edomites, the kings of Zobah, and the Philistines. In every direction that he turned he was victorious.[19] 14:48 He fought bravely, striking down the Amalekites and delivering Israel from the hand of its enemies.[20]

Members of Saul's Family

14:49 The sons of Saul were Jonathan, Ishvi, and Malki-Shua.[21] He had two daughters; the older one was named Merab and the younger Michal. 14:50 The name of Saul's wife was

[1] tc The translation follows the Qere and many medieval Hebrew MSS in reading "and they rushed greedily upon," rather than the Kethib, "and they did."

[2] tc The translation reads with the Qere and many medieval Hebrew MSS הַשָּׁלָל (hashalal, "the spoil") rather than following the Kethib reading, שָׁלָל (shalal, "spoil").

[3] tn Heb "You have acted deceptively." In this context the verb refers to violating an agreement, in this case the dietary and sacrificial regulations of the Mosaic law. The verb form is second masculine plural; apparently Saul here addresses those who are eating the animals.

[4] tn Heb "and all the army brought near, each his ox by his hand, and they slaughtered there."

[5] tn Heb "plunder."

[6] tn Heb "until the light of the morning."

[7] tn Heb "and there will not be left among them a man."

[8] tn Heb "all that is good in your eyes." So also in v. 40.

[9] tn Heb "know and see."

[10] tn Heb "and there was no one answering from all the army."

[11] tc Heb "to the LORD God of Israel: 'Give what is perfect.'" The Hebrew textual tradition has accidentally omitted several words here. The present translation follows the LXX (as do several English versions, cf. NAB, NRSV, TEV). See P. K. McCarter, I Samuel (AB), 247-48, and R. W. Klein, 1 Samuel (WBC), 132.

sn The Urim and Thummim were used for lot casting in ancient Israel. Their exact identity is uncertain; they may have been specially marked stones drawn from a bag. See Exod 28:30; Lev 8:8, and Deut 33:8, as well as the discussion in R. W. Klein, 1 Samuel (WBC), 140.

[12] tn Heb "went out."

[13] tc The LXX includes the following words: "Whomever the Lord will indicate by the lot, let him die! And the people said to Saul, 'It is not this word.' But Saul prevailed over the people, and they cast lots between him and between Jonathan his son."

[14] tn Heb "Look, I, I will die." Apparently Jonathan is acquiescing to his anticipated fate of death. However, the words may be taken as sarcastic ("Here I am about to die!") or as a question, "Must I now die?" (cf. NAB, NIV, NCV, NLT).

[15] tn Heb "So God will do and so he will add, surely you will certainly die, Jonathan."

[16] tn Heb "and he did not die."

[17] tn Heb "to their place."

[18] tn Heb "his," which could refer to Israel or to Saul.

[19] tc The translation follows the LXX ("he was delivered"), rather than the MT, which reads, "he acted wickedly."

[20] tn Heb "plunderers."

[21] sn The list differs from others. In 1 Sam 31:2 (= 1 Chr 10:2), Jonathan, Abinadab, and Malki-Shua are listed as Saul's sons, while 1 Chr 8:33 and 9:39 list Jonathan, Malki-Shua, Abinadab, and Eshbaal.

Ahinoam, the daughter of Ahimaaz. The name of the general in command of his army was Abner son of Ner, Saul's uncle.[1] 14:51 Kish was the father of Saul, and Ner the father of Abner was the son[2] of Abiel.

14:52 There was fierce war with the Philistines all the days of Saul. So whenever Saul saw anyone who was a warrior or a brave individual, he would conscript him.

Saul Is Rejected as King

15:1 Then Samuel said to Saul, "I was the one the LORD sent to anoint you as king over his people Israel. Now listen to what the LORD says.[3] 15:2 Here is what the LORD of hosts says: 'I carefully observed how the Amalekites opposed[4] Israel along the way when Israel[5] came up from Egypt. 15:3 So go now and strike down the Amalekites. Destroy everything that they have. Don't spare[6] them. Put them to death – man, woman, child, infant, ox, sheep, camel, and donkey alike.'"

15:4 So Saul assembled[7] the army[8] and mustered them at Telaim. There were 200,000 foot soldiers and 10,000 men of Judah. 15:5 Saul proceeded to the city[9] of Amalek, where he set an ambush[10] in the wadi.[11] 15:6 Saul said to the Kenites, "Go on and leave! Go down from among the Amalekites! Otherwise I will sweep you away[12] with them! After all, you were kind to all the Israelites when they came up from Egypt." So the Kenites withdrew from among the Amalekites.

15:7 Then Saul struck down the Amalekites all the way from Havilah to[13] Shur, which is next to Egypt. 15:8 He captured King Agag of the Amalekites alive, but he executed all Agag's people[14] with the sword. 15:9 However, Saul and the army spared Agag, along with the best of the flock, the cattle, the fatlings,[15] and the lambs, as well as everything else that was of value.[16] They were not willing to slaughter them. But they did slaughter everything that was despised[17] and worthless.

15:10 Then the word of the LORD came to Samuel: 15:11 "I regret that I have made Saul king, for he has turned away from me and has not done what I told him to do." Samuel became angry and he cried out to the LORD all that night.

15:12 Then Samuel got up early to meet Saul the next morning. But Samuel was informed, "Saul has gone to Carmel where[18] he is setting up a monument for himself. Then Samuel left[19] and went down to Gilgal."[20] 15:13 When Samuel came to him,[21] Saul said to him, "May the LORD bless you! I have done what the LORD said."

15:14 Samuel replied, "If that is the case,[22] then what is this sound of sheep in my ears and the sound of cattle that I hear?" 15:15 Saul said, "They were brought[23] from the Amalekites; the army spared the best of the flocks and cattle to sacrifice to the LORD our God. But everything else we slaughtered."

15:16 Then Samuel said to Saul, "Wait a minute![24] Let me tell you what the LORD said to me last night." Saul[25] said to him, "Tell me." 15:17 Samuel said, "Is it not true that when you

1 sn The word "uncle" can modify either Abner or Ner. See the note on the word "son" in v. 51 for further discussion.

2 tn 1 Chr 9:35-36 indicates that Jeiel (= Abiel?) had two sons (among others) named Ner and Kish (see also 1 Sam 9:1 and 1 Chr 8:30, where some Greek manuscripts include the name Ner, though it is absent in the Hebrew text). If this Kish was the father of Saul and Ner was the father of Abner, then Saul and Abner were cousins. However, according to 1 Chr 8:33 and 9:39, Ner, not Abiel, was the father of Kish. In this case, Kish and Abner were brothers and Abner was Saul's uncle. The simplest solution to the problem is to see two men named Kish in the genealogy: Abiel (Jeiel) was the father of Ner and Kish I. Ner was the father of Abner and Kish II. Kish II was the father of Saul. The Kish mentioned in 1 Sam 9:1 was the father of Saul (v. 2) and must be identified as Kish II. In this case the genealogy is "gapped," with Ner being omitted. Abiel was the grandfather of Kish II.

3 tn Heb "to the voice of the words of the LORD" (so KJV).

4 tn Heb "what Amalek did to Israel, how he placed against him."

5 tn Heb "he"; the referent (Israel) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

6 tn Or perhaps "don't take pity on" (cf. CEV).

7 tn Heb "caused the people to hear."

8 tn Heb "people."

9 tc The LXX has the plural here, "cities."

10 tc The translation follows the LXX and Vulgate which assume a reading וַיֶּאֱרֹב (vayya'arev, "and he set an ambush," from the root ארב ['rv] with quiescence of alef) rather than the MT, which has וַיָּרֶב (vayyareb, "and he contended," from the root ריב [ryv]).

11 tn That is, "the dry stream bed."

12 tc The translation follows the Syriac Peshitta and Vulgate which assume a reading אֶסְפְּךָ ('esfᵉka, "I sweep you away," from the root ספה [sfh]) rather than the MT אֹסִפְךָ ('osifᵉka, "I am gathering you," from the root אסף ['sf]).

13 tn Heb "[as] you enter."

14 tn Heb "all the people." For clarity "Agag's" has been supplied in the translation.

15 tn The Hebrew text is difficult here. We should probably read וְהַמַּשְׁמַנִּים (vᵉhammasmannim, "the fat ones") rather than the MT וְהַמִּשְׁנִים (vᵉhammisnim, "the second ones"). However, if the MT is retained, the sense may be as the Jewish commentator Kimchi supposed: the second-born young, thought to be better than the firstlings. (For discussion see S. R. Driver, Notes on the Hebrew Text and the Topography of the Books of Samuel, 123-24.)

16 tn Heb "good."

17 tc The MT has here the very odd form נְמִבְזָה (nᵉmivzah), but this is apparently due to a scribal error. The translation follows instead the Niphal participle נִבְזֶה (nivzah).

18 tn Heb "and look."

19 tn Heb "and he turned and crossed over."

20 tc At the end of v. 12 the LXX and one Old Latin MS include the following words not found in the MT: "to Saul. And behold, he was offering as a burnt offering to the LORD the best of the spoils that he had brought from the Amalekites."

21 tn Heb "to Saul."

22 tn The words "if that is the case" are supplied in the translation for stylistic reasons.

23 tn Heb "they brought them."

24 tn Or perhaps "be quiet."

25 tc The translation follows the Qere and many medieval Hebrew MSS in reading the singular ("he said") rather than the plural ("they said") of the Kethib.

tn Heb "he"; the referent (Saul) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

were insignificant in your own eyes, you became head of the tribes of Israel? The LORD chose[1] you as king over Israel. 15:18 The LORD sent you on a campaign[2] saying, 'Go and exterminate those sinful Amalekites! Fight against them until you[3] have destroyed them.' 15:19 Why haven't you obeyed[4] the LORD? Instead you have greedily rushed upon the plunder! You have done what is wrong in the LORD's estimation."[5] 15:20 Then Saul said to Samuel, "But I have obeyed[6] the LORD! I went on the campaign[7] the LORD sent me on. I brought back King Agag of the Amalekites after exterminating the Amalekites. 15:21 But the army took from the plunder some of the sheep and cattle – the best of what was to be slaughtered – to sacrifice to the LORD your God in Gilgal."

15:22 Then Samuel said,

"Does the LORD take pleasure in burnt offerings and sacrifices as much as he does in obedience?[8]
Certainly,[9] obedience[10] is better than sacrifice; paying attention is better than[11] the fat of rams.
15:23 For rebellion is like the sin of divination, and presumption is like the evil of idolatry.
Because you have rejected the word of the LORD,
he has rejected you as[12] king."

15:24 Then Saul said to Samuel, "I have sinned, for I have disobeyed what the LORD commanded[13] and what you said as well.[14] For I was afraid of the army, and I followed their wishes.[15] 15:25 Now please forgive my sin! Go back with me so I can worship[16] the LORD."

15:26 Samuel said to Saul, "I will not go back with you, for you have rejected the word of the LORD, and the LORD has rejected you from being king over Israel!"

15:27 When Samuel turned to leave, Saul[17] grabbed the edge of his robe and it tore. 15:28 Samuel said to him, "The LORD has torn the kingdom of Israel from you this day and has given it to one of your colleagues who is better than you! 15:29 The Preeminent One[18] of Israel does not go back on his word[19] or change his mind, for he is not a human being who changes his mind."[20] 15:30 Saul[21] again replied, "I have sinned. But please honor me before the elders of my people and before Israel. Go back with me so I may worship the LORD your God." 15:31 So Samuel followed Saul back, and Saul worshiped the LORD.

Samuel Puts Agag to Death

15:32 Then Samuel said, "Bring me King Agag of the Amalekites." So Agag came to him trembling,[22] thinking to himself,[23] "Surely death is bitter!"[24] 15:33 Samuel said, "Just as your sword left women childless, so your mother will be the most bereaved among women!" Then

3 tc The translation follows the LXX, the Syriac Peshitta, and the Targum in reading the second person singular suffix ("you") rather than the third person plural suffix of the MT ("they").

4 tn Heb "listened to the voice of the LORD."

5 tn Heb "you have done what is evil in the eyes of the LORD."

6 tn Heb "listened to the voice of the LORD."

14 tn Heb "and your words."

15 tn Heb "and I listened to their voice."

16 tn Following the imperative, the cohortative with the prefixed conjunction indicates purpose/result.

17 tn Heb "he," but Saul is clearly the referent. A Qumran MS and the LXX include the name "Saul" here.

18 tn Heb "splendor," used here by metonymy as a title for the LORD.

19 tn Or perhaps "does not lie."

20 sn This observation marks the preceding statement (v. 28) as an unconditional, unalterable decree. When God makes such a decree he will not alter it or change his mind. This does not mean that God never deviates from his stated intentions or changes his mind. On the contrary, several passages describe him as changing his mind. In fact, his willingness to do so is one of his fundamental divine attributes (see Joel 2:13; Jonah 4:2). For a fuller discussion see R. B. Chisholm, Jr., "Does God Change His Mind?" BSac 152 (1995): 387-99.

21 tn Heb "he"; the referent (Saul) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

22 tn The MT reading מַעֲדַנֹּת (ma'adannot, literally, "bonds," used here adverbially, "in bonds") is difficult. The word is found only here and in Job 38:31. Part of the problem lies in determining the root of the word. Some scholars have taken it to be from the root ענד ('nd, "to bind around"), but this assumes a metathesis of two of the letters of the root. Others take it from the root ערן ('dn) with the meaning "voluptuously," but this does not seem to fit the context. It seems better to understand the word to be from the root מעד (m'd, "to totter" or "shake"). In that case it describes the fear that Agag experienced in realizing the mortal danger that he faced as he approached Samuel. This is the way that the LXX translators understood the word, rendering it by the Greek participle τρέμον (tremon, "trembling").

23 tn Heb "and Agag said."

24 tc The text is difficult here. With the LXX, two Old Latin MSS, and the Syriac Peshitta it is probably preferable to delete סָר (sar, "is past") of the MT; it looks suspiciously like a dittograph of the following word מַר (mar, "bitter"). This further affects the interpretation of Agag's comment. In the MT he comes to Samuel confidently assured that the danger is over (cf. KJV, NASB, NIV "Surely the bitterness of death is past," along with NLT, CEV). However, it seems more likely that Agag realized that his fortunes had suddenly taken a turn for the worse and that the clemency he had enjoyed from Saul would not be his lot from Samuel. The present translation thus understands Agag to approach not confidently but in the stark realization that his death is imminent ("Surely death is bitter!"). Cf. NAB "So it is bitter death!"; NRSV "Surely this is the bitterness of death"; TEV "What a bitter thing it is to die!"

Samuel hacked Agag to pieces there in Gilgal before the LORD.

15:34 Then Samuel went to Ramah, while Saul went up to his home in Gibeah of Saul. 15:35 Until the day he[1] died Samuel did not see Saul again. Samuel did, however, mourn for Saul, but the LORD regretted that he had made Saul king over Israel.

Samuel Anoints David as King

16:1 The LORD said to Samuel, "How long do you intend to mourn for Saul? I have rejected him as king over Israel.[2] Fill your horn with olive oil and go! I am sending you to Jesse in Bethlehem,[3] for I have selected a king for myself from among his sons."[4]

16:2 Samuel replied, "How can I go? Saul will hear about it and kill me!" But the LORD said, "Take a heifer with you[5] and say, 'I have come to sacrifice to the LORD.' 16:3 Then invite Jesse to the sacrifice, and I will show you what you should do. You will anoint for me the one I point out[6] to you."

16:4 Samuel did what the LORD told him.[7] When he arrived in Bethlehem,[8] the elders of the city were afraid to meet him. They[9] said, "Do you come in peace?" 16:5 He replied, "Yes, in peace. I have come to sacrifice to the LORD. Consecrate yourselves and come with me to the sacrifice." So he consecrated Jesse and his sons and invited them to the sacrifice.

16:6 When they arrived, Samuel[10] noticed[11] Eliab and said to himself,[12] "Surely, here before the LORD stands his chosen king!"[13] 16:7 But the LORD said to Samuel, "Don't be impressed by[14] his appearance or his height, for I have rejected him. God does not view things the way men do.[15] People look on the outward appearance,[16] but the LORD looks at the heart."

16:8 Then Jesse called Abinadab and presented him to Samuel.[17] But Samuel[18] said, "The LORD has not chosen this one, either." 16:9 Then Jesse presented[19] Shammah. But Samuel said, "The LORD has not chosen this one either." 16:10 Jesse presented seven of his sons to Samuel.[20] But Samuel said to Jesse, "The LORD has not chosen any of these." 16:11 Then Samuel said to Jesse, "Is that all of the young men?" Jesse[21] replied, "There is still the youngest one, but he's taking care of the flock." Samuel said to Jesse, "Send and get him, for we cannot turn our attention to other things until he comes here."

16:12 So Jesse had him brought in.[22] Now he was ruddy, with attractive eyes and a handsome appearance. The LORD said, "Go and anoint him. This is the one!" 16:13 So Samuel took the horn full of olive oil and anointed him in the presence of his brothers. The Spirit of the LORD rushed upon David from that day onward. Then Samuel got up and went to Ramah.

David Appears before Saul

16:14 Now the Spirit of the LORD had turned away from Saul, and an evil spirit[23] from the LORD tormented him. 16:15 Then Saul's servants said to him, "Look, an evil spirit from God is tormenting you!" 16:16 Let our lord instruct his servants who are here before you to look for a man who knows how to play the lyre. Then whenever the evil spirit from God comes upon you, he can play the lyre[24] and you will feel better."[25] 16:17 So Saul said to his servants, "Find[26] me a man who plays well and bring him to me." 16:18 One of his attendants replied,[27] "I have seen a son of Jesse in Bethlehem[28] who knows how to play the lyre. He is a brave warrior[29] and is articulate[30] and handsome,[31] for the LORD is with him."

[2] tc The Lucianic recension of the Old Greek translation includes the following words: "And the Lord said to Samuel."

[3] map For location see Map5-B1; Map7-E2; Map8-E2; Map10-B4.

[4] tn Heb "for I have seen among his sons for me a king."

[5] tn Heb "in your hand."

[6] tn Heb "say"; KJV, NRSV "name"; NIV "indicate."

[8] map For location see Map5-B1; Map7-E2; Map8-E2; Map10-B4.

[9] tc In the MT the verb is singular ("he said"), but the translation follows many medieval Hebrew MSS and ancient versions in reading the plural ("they said").

[10] tn Heb "he"; the referent (Samuel) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[11] tn Heb "saw."

[12] tn Heb "said"; the words "to himself" are implied, given the secrecy surrounding Samuel's mission to Bethlehem (v. 2).

[13] tn Heb "his anointed one."

[14] tn Heb "don't look toward."

[15] tn Heb "for not that which the man sees." The translation follows the LXX, which reads, "for not as man sees does God see." The MT has suffered from homoioteleuton or homoioarcton. See P. K. McCarter, I Samuel (AB), 274.

[16] tn Heb "to the eyes."

[17] tn Heb "and caused him to pass before."

[18] tn Heb "he" (also in v. 9); the referent (Samuel) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[19] tn Heb "caused to pass by."

[20] tn Heb "caused seven of his sons to pass before Samuel." This could be taken as referring to seven sons in addition to the three mentioned before this, but 1 Sam 17:12 says Jesse had eight sons, not eleven. 1 Chr 2:13-15 lists only seven sons, including David. However, 1 Chr 27:18 mentions an additional son, named Elihu.

[21] tn Heb "he"; the referent (Jesse) has been specified in the translation both here and in v. 12 for clarity.

[22] tn Heb "and he sent and brought him."

[23] tn Or "an injurious spirit"; cf. NLT "a tormenting spirit." The phrase need not refer to an evil, demonic spirit. The Hebrew word translated "evil" may refer to the character of the spirit or to its effect upon Saul. If the latter, another translation option might be "a mischief-making spirit."

[24] tn Heb "and he will play with his hand."

[25] tn Heb "and it will be better for you."

[26] tn Heb "see."

[27] tn Heb "answered and said."

[28] map For location see Map5-B1; Map7-E2; Map8-E2; Map10-B4.

[29] tn Heb "mighty man of valor and a man of war."

[30] tn Heb "discerning of word."

[31] tn Heb "a man of form."

16:19 So Saul sent messengers to Jesse and said, "Send me your son David, who is out with the sheep. 16:20 So Jesse took a donkey loaded with bread, a container of wine, and a young goat[1] and sent them to Saul with[2] his son David. 16:21 David came to Saul and stood before him. Saul liked him a great deal,[3] and he became his armor bearer. 16:22 Then Saul sent word to Jesse saying, "Let David be my servant, for I really like him."[4]

16:23 So whenever the spirit from God would come upon Saul, David would take his lyre and play it. This would bring relief to Saul and make him feel better. Then the evil spirit would leave him alone.[5]

David Kills Goliath

17:1[6] The Philistines gathered their troops[7] for battle. They assembled at Socoh in Judah. They camped in Ephes Dammim, between Socoh and Azekah. 17:2 Saul and the Israelite army[8] assembled and camped in the valley of Elah, where they arranged their battle lines to fight against[9] the Philistines. 17:3 The Philistines were standing on one hill, and the Israelites[10] on another hill, with the valley between them.

17:4 Then a champion[11] came out from the camp of the Philistines. His name was Goliath; he was from Gath. He was close to seven feet tall.[12] 17:5 He had a bronze helmet on his head and was wearing scale body armor. The weight of his bronze body armor was five thousand shekels.[13] 17:6 He had bronze shin guards[14] on his legs, and a bronze javelin was slung over his shoulders. 17:7 The shaft[15] of his spear was like a weaver's beam, and the iron point of his spear weighed six hundred shekels.[16] His shield bearer was walking before him.

17:8 Goliath[17] stood and called to Israel's troops,[18] "Why do you come out to prepare for battle? Am I not the Philistine, and are you not the servants of Saul? Choose[19] for yourselves a man so he may come down[20] to me! 17:9 If he is able to fight with me and strike me down, we will become your servants. But if I prevail against him and strike him down, you will become our servants and will serve us." 17:10 Then the Philistine said, "I defy Israel's troops this day! Give me a man so we can fight[21] each other!" 17:11 When Saul and all the Israelites[22]

[6] tc The content of 1 Sam 17–18, which includes the David and Goliath story, differs considerably in the LXX as compared to the MT, suggesting that this story circulated in ancient times in more than one form. The LXX for chs. 17–18 is much shorter than the MT, lacking almost half of the material (39 of a total of 88 verses). Many scholars (e.g., McCarter, Klein) think that the shorter text of the LXX is preferable to the MT, which in their view has been expanded by incorporation of later material. Other scholars (e.g., Wellhausen, Driver) conclude that the shorter Greek text (or the Hebrew text that underlies it) reflects an attempt to harmonize certain alleged inconsistencies that appear in the longer version of the story. Given the translation characteristics of the LXX elsewhere in this section, it does not seem likely that these differences are due to deliberate omission of these verses on the part of the translator. It seems more likely that the Greek translator has faithfully rendered here a Hebrew text that itself was much shorter than the MT in these chapters. Whether or not the shorter text represented by the LXX is to be preferred over the MT in 1 Sam 17–18 is a matter over which textual scholars are divided. For a helpful discussion of the major textual issues in this unit see D. Barthélemy, D. W. Gooding, J. Lust, and E. Tov, The Story of David and Goliath (OBO). Overall it seems preferable to stay with the MT, at least for the most part. However, the major textual differences between the LXX and the MT will be mentioned in the notes that accompany the translation so that the reader may be alert to the major problem passages.

[7] tn Heb "camps."

[8] tn Heb "the men of Israel" (so KJV, NASB); NAB, NIV, NRSV "the Israelites."

[9] tn Heb "to meet."

[10] tn Heb "Israel."

[11] tn Heb "the man of the space between the two [armies]." See v. 23.

[12] tc Heb "his height was six cubits and a span" (cf. KJV, NASB, NRSV). A cubit was approximately eighteen inches, a span nine inches. So, according to the Hebrew tradition, Goliath was about nine feet, nine inches tall (cf. NIV, CEV, NLT "over nine feet"; NCV "nine feet, four inches"; TEV "nearly 3 metres"). However, some Greek witnesses, Josephus, and a manuscript of 1 Samuel from Qumran read "four cubits and a span" here, that is, about six feet, nine inches (cf. NAB "six and a half feet"). This seems more reasonable; it is likely that Goliath's height was exaggerated as the story was retold. See P. K. McCarter, I Samuel (AB), 286, 291.

[13] sn Although the exact weight of Goliath's defensive body armor is difficult to estimate in terms of modern equivalency, it was obviously quite heavy. Driver, following Kennedy, suggests a modern equivalent of about 220 pounds (100 kg); see S. R. Driver, Notes on the Hebrew Text and the Topography of the Books of Samuel, 139. Klein, taking the shekel to be equal to .403 ounces, arrives at a somewhat smaller weight of about 126 pounds (57 kg); see R. W. Klein, 1 Samuel (WBC), 175. But by any estimate it is clear that Goliath presented himself as a formidable foe indeed.

[14] sn Or "greaves." These were coverings (probably lined for comfort) that extended from about the knee to the ankle, affording protection for the shins of a warrior.

[15] tn The translation follows the Qere and many medieval Hebrew MSS in reading "wood," rather than the "arrow" (the reading of the Kethib).

[16] sn That is, about fifteen or sixteen pounds.

[17] tn Heb "he"; the referent (Goliath) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[18] tn The Hebrew text adds "and said to them."

[19] tc The translation follows the ancient versions in reading "choose," (from the root בחר, bkhr), rather than the MT. The verb in MT (ברה, brh) elsewhere means "to eat food"; the sense of "to choose," required here by the context, is not attested for this root. The MT apparently reflects an early scribal error.

[20] tn Following the imperative, the prefixed verbal form (either an imperfect or jussive) with the prefixed conjunction indicates purpose/result here.

[21] tn Following the imperative, the cohortative verbal form indicates purpose/result here.

[22] tn Heb "all Israel."

heard these words of the Philistine, they were upset and very afraid.

17:12[1] Now David was the son of this Ephrathite named Jesse from Bethlehem[2] in Judah. He had eight sons, and in Saul's days he was old and well advanced in years.[3] 17:13 Jesse's three oldest sons had followed Saul to war. The names of the[4] three sons who went to war were Eliab, his firstborn, Abinadab, the second oldest, and Shammah, the third oldest. 17:14 Now David was the youngest. While the three oldest sons followed Saul, 17:15 David was going back and forth[5] from Saul in order to care for his father's sheep in Bethlehem.

17:16 Meanwhile for forty days the Philistine approached every morning and evening and took his position. 17:17 Jesse said to his son David, "Take your brothers this ephah of roasted grain and these ten loaves of bread; go quickly[6] to the camp to your brothers. 17:18 Also take these ten portions of cheese to their commanding officer.[7] Find out how your brothers are doing[8] and bring back their pledge that they received the goods.[9] 17:19 They are with Saul and the whole Israelite army[10] in the valley of Elah, fighting with the Philistines."

17:20 So David got up early in the morning and entrusted the flock to someone else who would watch over it.[11] After loading up, he went just as Jesse had instructed him. He arrived at the camp[12] as the army was going out to the battle lines shouting its battle cry. 17:21 Israel and the Philistines drew up their battle lines opposite one another. 17:22 After David had entrusted his cargo to the care of the supply officer,[13] he ran to the battlefront. When he arrived, he asked his brothers how they were doing. 17:23 As he was speaking with them, the champion named Goliath, the Philistine from Gath, was coming up from the battle lines of the Philistines. He spoke the way he usually did,[14] and David heard it. 17:24 When all the men of Israel saw this man, they retreated[15] from his presence and were very afraid.

17:25 The men of Israel said, "Have you seen this man who is coming up? He does so[16] to defy Israel. But the king will make the man who can strike him down very wealthy! He will give him his daughter in marriage, and he will make his father's house exempt from tax obligations in Israel."

17:26 David asked the men who were standing near him, "What will be done for the man who strikes down this Philistine and frees Israel from this humiliation?[17] For who is this uncircumcised Philistine, that he defies the armies of the living God?" 17:27 The soldiers[18] told him what had been promised, saying,[19] "This is what will be done for the man who can strike him down."

17:28 When David's[20] oldest brother Eliab heard him speaking to the men, he became angry[21] with David and said, "Why have you come down here? To whom did you entrust those few sheep in the desert? I am familiar with your pride and deceit![22] You have come down here to watch the battle!"

17:29 David replied, "What have I done now? Can't I say anything?"[23] 17:30 Then he turned from those who were nearby to someone else and asked the same question,[24] but they[25] gave him the same answer as before. 17:31 When David's words were overheard and reported to Saul, he called for him.[26]

17:32 David said to Saul, "Don't let anyone be discouraged.[27] Your servant will go and fight this Philistine!" 17:33 But Saul replied to David, "You aren't able to go against this Philistine and fight him! You're just a boy! He has been a warrior from his youth!"

17:34 David replied to Saul, "Your servant has been a shepherd for his father's flock. Whenever a lion or bear would come and carry off a sheep from the flock, 17:35 I would go out after it, strike it down, and rescue the sheep from its mouth. If it rose up against me, I would grab it by its jaw, strike it, and kill it. 17:36 Your servant has struck down both the lion and the bear.

[10] tn Heb "all the men of Israel."

[11] tn Heb "to a guard"; KJV, NASB, NRSV "with a keeper"; NIV "with a shepherd." Since in contemporary English "guard" sounds like someone at a military installation or a prison, the present translation uses "to someone else who would watch over it."

[13] tn Heb "the guard of the equipment."

[14] tn Heb "according to these words."

[24] tn Heb "and spoke according to this word."

[25] tn Heb "the people."

[27] tn Heb "Let not the heart of a man fall upon him." The LXX reads "my lord," instead of "a man."

This uncircumcised Philistine will be just like one of them.[1] For he has defied the armies of the living God!" 17:37 David went on to say, "The LORD who delivered me from the lion and the bear will also deliver me from the hand of this Philistine!" Then Saul said to David, "Go! The LORD will be with you."[2] 17:38 Then Saul clothed David with his own fighting attire and put a bronze helmet on his head. He also put body armor on him. 17:39 David strapped on his sword over his fighting attire and tried to walk around, but he was not used to them.[3] David said to Saul, "I can't walk in these things, for I'm not used to them." So David removed them. 17:40 He took his staff in his hand, picked out five smooth stones from the stream, placed them in the pouch[4] of his shepherd's bag, took his sling in hand, and approached the Philistine.

17:41[5] The Philistine kept coming closer to David, with his shield bearer walking in front of him. 17:42 When the Philistine looked carefully at David, he despised him, for he was only a ruddy and handsome boy. 17:43 The Philistine said to David, "Am I a dog, that you are coming after me with sticks?"[6] Then the Philistine cursed David by his gods. 17:44 The Philistine said to David, "Come here to me, so I can give your flesh to the birds of the sky and the wild animals of the field!"[7]

17:45 But David replied to the Philistine, "You are coming against me with sword and spear and javelin. But I am coming against you in the name of the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel's armies, whom you have defied! 17:46 This very day the LORD will deliver you into my hand! I will strike you down and cut off your head. This day I will give the corpses of the Philistine army to the birds of the sky and the wild animals of the land. Then all the land will realize that Israel has a God 17:47 and all this assembly will know that it is not by sword or spear that the LORD saves! For the battle is the LORD's, and he will deliver you into our hand."

17:48 The Philistine drew steadily closer to David to attack him, while David quickly ran toward the battle line to attack the Philistine.[8] 17:49 David reached his hand into the bag and took out a stone. He slung it, striking the Philistine on the forehead. The stone sank deeply into his forehead, and he fell down with his face to the ground.

17:50[9] David prevailed over the Philistine with just the sling and the stone. He struck down the Philistine and killed him. David did not even have a sword in his hand.[10] 17:51 David ran and stood over the Philistine. He grabbed Goliath's[11] sword, drew it from its sheath,[12] killed him, and cut off his head with it. When the Philistines saw their champion was dead, they ran away.

17:52 Then the men of Israel and Judah charged forward, shouting a battle cry.[13] They chased the Philistines to the valley[14] and to the very gates of Ekron. The Philistine corpses lay fallen along the Shaaraim road to Gath and Ekron. 17:53 When the Israelites returned from their hot pursuit of the Philistines, they looted their camp. 17:54 David took the head of the Philistine and brought it to Jerusalem,[15] and he put Goliath's[16] weapons in his tent.

17:55[17] Now as Saul watched David going out to fight the Philistine, he asked Abner, the general in command of the army, "Whose son is this young man, Abner?" Abner replied, "As surely as you live, O king, I don't know." 17:56 The king said, "Find out whose son this boy is!"

17:57 So when David returned from striking down the Philistine, Abner took him and brought him before Saul. He still had the head of the Philistine in his hand. 17:58 Saul said to him, "Whose son are you, young man?" David replied, "I am the son of your servant Jesse in Bethlehem."[18]

Saul Comes to Fear David

18:1 When David[19] had finished talking with Saul, Jonathan and David became bound together in close friendship.[20] Jonathan loved David as much as he did his own life.[21] 18:2 Saul

[1] tc The LXX includes here the following words not found in the MT: "Should I not go and smite him, and remove today reproach from Israel? For who is this uncircumcised one?"

[2] tn Or "Go, and may the LORD be with you" (so NASB, NCV, NRSV).

[3] tn Heb "he had not tested."

sn On the nature of Jonathan's love for David, see J. A. Thompson, "The Significance of the Verb Love in the David-retained David[1] on that day and did not allow him to return to his father's house. 18:3 Jonathan made a covenant with David, for he loved him as much as he did his own life.[2] 18:4 Jonathan took off the robe he was wearing and gave it to David, along with the rest of his gear, including his sword, his bow, and even his belt.

18:5 On every mission on which Saul sent him, David achieved success. So Saul appointed him over the men of war. This pleased not only all the army, but also Saul's servants.[3]

18:6 When the men[4] arrived after David returned from striking down the Philistine, the women from all the cities of Israel came out singing and dancing to meet King Saul. They were happy as they played their tambourines and three-stringed instruments.[5] 18:7 The women who were playing the music sang,

> "Saul has struck down his thousands,
> but David his tens of thousands!"

18:8 This made Saul very angry. The statement displeased him and he thought,[6] "They have attributed to David tens of thousands, but to me they have attributed only thousands. What does he lack, except the kingdom?" 18:9 So Saul was keeping an eye on David from that day onward.

18:10 The next day an evil spirit from God rushed upon Saul and he prophesied within his house. Now David was playing the lyre[7] that day. There was a spear in Saul's hand, 18:11 and Saul threw the spear, thinking, "I'll nail David to the wall!" But David escaped from him on two different occasions.

18:12 So Saul feared David, because the LORD was with him but had departed from Saul. 18:13 Saul removed David[8] from his presence and made him a commanding officer.[9] David led the army out to battle and back.[10] 18:14 Now David achieved success in all he did,[11] for the LORD was with him. 18:15 When Saul saw how very successful he was, he was afraid of him. 18:16 But all Israel and Judah loved David, for he was the one leading them out to battle and back.

18:17[12] Then Saul said to David, "Here's my oldest daughter, Merab. I want to give her to you in marriage. Only be a brave warrior[13] for me and fight the battles of the LORD." For Saul thought, "There's no need for me to raise my hand against him. Let it be the hand of the Philistines!"

18:18 David said to Saul, "Who am I? Who are my relatives or the clan of my father[14] in Israel that I should become the king's son-in-law?" 18:19 When the time came for Merab, Saul's daughter, to be given to David, she instead was given in marriage to Adriel, who was from Meholah.

18:20 Now Michal, Saul's daughter, loved David. When they told Saul about this, it[15] pleased him. 18:21 Saul said, "I will give her to him so that she may become a snare to him and the hand of the Philistines may be against him." So Saul said to David, "Today is the second time for you to become my son-in-law."[16]

18:22 Then Saul instructed his servants, "Tell David secretly, 'The king is pleased with you, and all his servants like you. So now become the king's son-in-law.'" 18:23 So Saul's servants spoke these words privately[17] to David. David replied, "Is becoming the king's son-in-law something insignificant to you? I'm just a poor and lightly-esteemed man!"

18:24 When Saul's servants reported what David had said, 18:25 Saul replied, "Here is what you should say to David: 'There is nothing that the king wants as a price for the bride except a hundred Philistine foreskins, so that he can be avenged of his[18] enemies.'" (Now Saul was thinking that he could kill David by the hand of the Philistines.)

18:26 So his servants told David these things and David agreed[19] to become the king's son-in-law. Now the specified time had not yet expired[20] 18:27 when David, along with his men, went out[21] and struck down two hundred Philistine men. David brought their foreskins and presented all of them to the king so he could become the king's son-in-law. Saul then gave him his daughter Michal in marriage.

[13] tn Heb "son of valor."

[14] tn Heb "Who are my relatives, the clan of my father?" The term חַי (khay), traditionally understood as "my life," is here a rare word meaning "family, kinfolk" (see HALOT 309 s.v. III חַי). The phrase "clan of my father" may be a scribal gloss explaining the referent of this rare word.

[15] tn Heb "the matter."

[16] tc The final sentence of v. 21 is absent in most LXX MSS.

[17] tn Heb "in the ears of."

[18] tn Heb "the king's."

[19] tn Heb "and it was acceptable in the eyes of David."

[20] tn Heb "the days were not fulfilled."

[21] tn Heb "arose and went."

18:28 When Saul realized[1] that the LORD was with David and that his[2] daughter Michal loved David,[3] 18:29 Saul became even more afraid of him.[4] Saul continued to be at odds with David from then on.[5] 18:30[6] Then the leaders of the Philistines would march out, and as often as they did so, David achieved more success than all of Saul's servants. His name was held in high esteem.

Saul Repeatedly Attempts to Take David's Life

19:1 Then Saul told his son Jonathan and all his servants to kill David. But Saul's son Jonathan liked David very much.[7] 19:2 So Jonathan told David, "My father Saul is trying[8] to kill you. So be careful tomorrow morning. Find[9] a hiding place and stay in seclusion.[10] 19:3 I will go out and stand beside my father in the field where you are. I will speak about you to my father. When I find out what the problem is,[11] I will let you know."

19:4 So Jonathan spoke on David's behalf[12] to his father Saul. He said to him, "The king should not sin against his servant David, for he has not sinned against you. On the contrary, his actions have been very beneficial[13] for you. 19:5 He risked his life[14] when he struck down the Philistine and the LORD gave all Israel a great victory. When you saw it, you were happy. So why would you sin against innocent blood by putting David to death for no reason?"

19:6 Saul accepted Jonathan's advice[15] and took an oath, "As surely as the LORD lives, he will not be put to death." 19:7 Then Jonathan called David and told him all these things. Jonathan brought David to Saul, and he served him as he had done formerly.[16]

19:8 Now once again there was war. So David went out to fight the Philistines. He defeated them thoroughly[17] and they ran away from him. 19:9 Then an evil spirit from the LORD came upon[18] Saul. He was sitting in his house with his spear in his hand, while David was playing the lyre.[19] 19:10 Saul tried to nail David to the wall with the spear, but he escaped from Saul's presence and the spear drove into the wall.[20] David escaped quickly[21] that night.

19:11 Saul sent messengers to David's house to guard it and to kill him in the morning. Then David's wife Michal told him, "If you do not save yourself[22] tonight, tomorrow you will be dead!" 19:12 So Michal lowered David through the window, and he ran away and escaped.

19:13 Then Michal took a household idol[23] and put it on the bed. She put a quilt[24] made of goat's hair over its head[25] and then covered the idol with a garment. 19:14 When Saul sent messengers to arrest David, she said, "He's sick."

19:15 Then Saul sent the messengers back to see David, saying, "Bring him up to me on his bed so I can kill him." 19:16 When the messengers came, they found only the idol on the bed and the quilt made of goat's hair at its head.

19:17 Saul said to Michal, "Why have you deceived me this way by sending my enemy away? Now he has escaped!" Michal replied to Saul, "He said to me, 'Help me get away or else I will kill you!'"[26]

19:18 Now David had run away and escaped. He went to Samuel in Ramah and told him everything that Saul had done to him. Then he and Samuel went and stayed at Naioth. 19:19 It was reported to Saul saying, "David is at Naioth in Ramah." 19:20 So Saul sent messengers to capture David. When they saw a company of prophets prophesying with Samuel standing there as their leader, the spirit of God came upon Saul's messengers, and they also prophesied. 19:21 When it was reported to Saul, he sent more messengers, but they prophesied too. So Saul sent messengers a third time, but they also prophesied. 19:22 Finally Saul[27] himself went to Ramah. When he arrived at the large cistern that is in Secu, he asked, "Where are Samuel and David?" They said, "At Naioth in Ramah."

[20] tn Heb "and he drove the spear into the wall."

[21] tn Heb "fled and escaped."

[22] tn Heb "your life."

[23] tn Heb "teraphim" (also a second time in this verse and once in v. 16). These were statues that represented various deities. According to 2 Kgs 23:24 they were prohibited during the time of Josiah's reform movement in the seventh century. The idol Michal placed under the covers was of sufficient size to give the mistaken impression that David lay in the bed, thus facilitating his escape.

[24] tn The exact meaning of the Hebrew word כְּבִיר (kavir) is uncertain; it is found in the Hebrew Bible only here and in v. 16. It probably refers to a quilt made of goat's hair, perhaps used as a fly net while one slept. See HALOT 458 s.v. *כְּבִיר. Cf. KJV, TEV "pillow"; NLT "cushion"; NAB, NRSV "net."

[25] tn Heb "at the place of its head."

[26] tn Heb "Send me away! Why should I kill you?" The question has the force of a threat in this context. See P. K. McCarter, I Samuel (AB), 325-26.

[27] tn Heb "he" (also in v. 23). The referent (Saul) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

19:23 So Saul went to Naioth in Ramah. The Spirit of God came upon him as well, and he walked along prophesying until he came to Naioth in Ramah. 19:24 He even stripped off his clothes and prophesied before Samuel. He lay there[1] naked all that day and night. (For that reason it is asked, "Is Saul also among the prophets?")

Jonathan Seeks to Protect David

20:1 David fled from Naioth in Ramah. He came to Jonathan and asked,[2] "What have I done? What is my offense?[3] How have I sinned before your father? For he is seeking my life!"

20:2 Jonathan[4] said to him, "By no means are you going to die! My father does nothing[5] large or small without making me aware of it.[6] Why would my father hide this matter from me? It just won't happen!"

20:3 Taking an oath, David again[7] said, "Your father is very much aware of the fact[8] that I have found favor with you, and he has thought,[9] 'Don't let Jonathan know about this, or he will be upset.' But as surely as the LORD lives and you live, there is about one step between me and death!" 20:4 Jonathan replied to David, "Tell me what I can do for you."[10]

20:5 David said to Jonathan, "Tomorrow is the new moon, and I am certainly expected to join the king for a meal.[11] You must send me away so I can hide in the field until the third evening from now. 20:6 If your father happens to miss me, you should say, 'David urgently requested me to let him go[12] to his city Bethlehem,[13] for there is an annual sacrifice there for his entire family.' 20:7 If he should then say, 'That's fine,'[14] then your servant is safe. But if he becomes very angry, be assured that he has decided to harm me.[15] 20:8 You must be loyal[16] to your servant, for you have made a covenant with your servant in the LORD's name.[17] If I am guilty,[18] you yourself kill me! Why bother taking me to your father?"

20:9 Jonathan said, "Far be it from you to suggest this! If I were at all aware that my father had decided to harm you, wouldn't I tell you about it?" 20:10 David said to Jonathan, "Who will tell me if your father answers you harshly?" 20:11 Jonathan said to David, "Come on. Let's go out to the field."

When the two of them had gone out into the field, 20:12 Jonathan said to David, "The LORD God of Israel is my witness.[19] I will feel out my father about this time the day after tomorrow. If he is favorably inclined toward David, will I not then send word to you and let you know?[20] 20:13 But if my father intends to do you harm, may the LORD do all this and more to Jonathan, if I don't let you know[21] and send word to you so you can go safely on your way.[22] May the LORD be with you, as he was with my father. 20:14 While I am still alive, extend to me the loyalty of the LORD, or else I will die! 20:15 Don't ever cut off your loyalty to my family, not even when the LORD has cut off every one of David's enemies from the face of the earth 20:16 and called David's enemies to account." So Jonathan made a covenant[23] with the house of David.[24] 20:17 Jonathan once again took an oath with David, because he loved him. In fact Jonathan loved him as much as he did his own life.[25] 20:18 Jonathan said to him, "Tomorrow is the new moon, and you will be missed, for your seat will be empty. 20:19 On the third day[26] you should go down quickly[27] and come to the place where you hid yourself the day this all started.[28] Stay near the stone

1 tn Heb "and he fell down."

2 tn Heb "and he came and said before Jonathan."

3 tn Heb "What is my guilt?"

4 tn Heb "he"; the referent (Jonathan) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

5 tc The translation follows the Qere, many medieval Hebrew MSS, and the ancient versions in reading "he will not do," rather than the Kethib of the MT ("do to him").

6 tn Heb "without uncovering my ear."

7 tc The LXX and the Syriac Peshitta lack the word "again."

8 tn The infinitive absolute appears before the finite verb for emphasis.

9 tn Heb "said," that is, to himself. So also in v. 25.

10 tn Heb "whatever your soul says, I will do for you."

11 tn Heb "and I must surely sit with the king to eat." The infinitive absolute appears before the finite verb for emphasis.

12 tn Heb "to run."

13 map For location see Map5-B1; Map7-E2; Map8-E2; Map10-B4.

14 tn Heb "good."

15 tn Heb "know that the evil is completed from with him."

16 tn Heb "and you must do loyalty."

17 tn Heb "for into a covenant of the LORD you have brought your servant with you."

18 tn Heb "and if there is in me guilt."

19 tc The Hebrew text has simply "the LORD God of Israel." On the basis of the Syriac version, many reconstruct the text to read "[is] my witness," which may have fallen out of the text by homoioarcton (an error which is entirely possible if עֵד, 'ed, "witness," immediately followed דִּוִד, "David," in the original text).

20 tn Heb "and uncover your ear."

21 tn Heb "uncover your ear."

22 tn Heb "in peace."

23 tn Heb "cut." The object of the verb ("covenant") must be supplied.

24 tn The word order is different in the Hebrew text, which reads "and Jonathan cut with the house of David, and the LORD will seek from the hand of the enemies of David." The translation assumes that the main clauses of the verse have been accidentally transposed in the course of transmission. The first part of the verse (as it stands in MT) belongs with v. 17, while the second part of the verse actually continues v. 15.

25 tn Heb "for [with] the love of his [own] life he loved him."

26 tc Heb "you will do [something] a third time." The translation assumes an emendation of the verb from שְׁלַשְׁתָּ (shillashta, "to do a third time") to שִׁלִּישִׁית (shillishit, "[on the] third [day]").

27 tn Heb "you must go down greatly." See Judg 19:11 for the same idiom.

28 tn Heb "on the day of the deed." This probably refers to the incident recorded in 19:2.

Ezel. 20:20 I will shoot three arrows near it, as though I were shooting at a target. 20:21 When I send a boy after them, I will say, "Go and find the arrows." If I say to the boy, 'Look, the arrows are on this side of you;[1] get them,' then come back.
For as surely as the LORD lives, you will be safe and there will no problem. 20:22 But if I say to the boy, "Look, the arrows are on the other side of you,'[2] get away. For in that case the LORD has sent you away. 20:23 With regard to the matter that you and I discussed, the LORD is the witness between us forever!"[3]

20:24 So David hid in the field. When the new moon came, the king sat down to eat his meal.
20:25 The king sat down in his usual place by the wall, with Jonathan opposite him[4] and Abner at his side.[5] But David's place was vacant. 20:26 However, Saul said nothing about it[6] that day, for he thought,[7] "Something has happened to make him ceremonially unclean. Yes, he must be unclean."
20:27 But the next morning, the second day of the new moon, David's place was still vacant. So Saul said to his son Jonathan, "Why has Jesse's son not come to the meal yesterday or today?"

20:28 Jonathan replied to Saul, "David urgently requested that he be allowed to go to Bethlehem.
20:29 He said, 'Permit me to go,[8] for we are having a family sacrifice in the city, and my brother urged[9] me to be there. So now, if I have found favor with you, let me go[10] to see my brothers.' For that reason he has not come to the king's table."

20:30 Saul became angry with Jonathan[11] and said to him, "You stupid traitor![12] Don't I realize that to your own disgrace and to the disgrace of your mother's nakedness you have chosen this son of Jesse? 20:31 For as long as[13] this son of Jesse is alive on the earth, you and your kingdom will not be established. Now, send some men[14] and bring him to me. For he is as good as dead!"[15]

20:32 Jonathan responded to his father Saul,
"Why should he be put to death? What has he done?" 20:33 Then Saul threw his spear at Jonathan[16] in order to strike him down. So Jonathan was convinced[17] that his father had decided to kill David. 20:34 Jonathan got up from the table enraged. He did not eat any food on that second day of the new moon, for he was upset that his father had humiliated David.[18]

20:35 The next morning Jonathan, along with a young servant, went out to the field to meet David. 20:36 He said to his servant, "Run, find the arrows that I am about to shoot." As the servant ran, Jonathan[19] shot the arrow beyond him. 20:37 When the servant came to the place where Jonathan had shot the arrow, Jonathan called out to[20] the servant,
"Isn't the arrow further beyond you?" 20:38 Jonathan called out to the servant, "Hurry! Go faster!
Don't delay!" Jonathan's servant retrieved the arrow and came back to his master. 20:39 (Now the servant did not understand any of this. Only Jonathan and David knew what was going on.)[21] 20:40 Then Jonathan gave his equipment to the servant who was with him. He said to him, "Go, take these things back to the city."

1 tn Heb "from you and here."

2 tn Heb "from you and onward."

3 tc Heb "the LORD [is] between me and between you forever." The translation assumes that the original text read עַד עַד־עוֹלָם ('ed 'ad-'olam), "a witness forever," with the noun "a witness" accidentally falling out of the text by haplography. See P. K. McCarter, I Samuel (AB), 338.

4 tc Heb "and Jonathan arose." Instead of MT's וַיָּקָם (vayyaqam, "and he arose"; from the hollow verbal root קוּם, qum), the translation assumes a reading וַיִּקְדַּם (vayyiqaddem, "and he was in front of"; from the verbal root קדם, qdm). See P. K. McCarter, I Samuel (AB), 338.

5 tn Heb "and Abner sat at the side of Saul."

6 tn The words "about it" are not present in the Hebrew text, although they are implied.

7 tn Heb "said," that is, to himself.

8 tn Heb "send me."

9 tn Heb "commanded."

10 tn Heb "be released [from duty]."

11 tc Many medieval Hebrew MSS include the words "his son" here.

12 tn Heb "son of a perverse woman of rebelliousness." But such an overly literal and domesticated translation of the Hebrew expression fails to capture the force of Saul's unrestrained reaction. Saul, now incensed and enraged over Jonathan's liaison with David, is actually hurling very coarse and emotionally charged words at his son. The translation of this phrase suggested by Koehler and Baumgartner is "bastard of a wayward woman" (HALOT 796 s.v. עוה), but this is not an expression commonly used in English. A better English approximation of the sentiments expressed here by the Hebrew phrase would be "You stupid son of a bitch!" However, sensitivity to the various public formats in which the Bible is read aloud has led to a less startling English rendering which focuses on the semantic value of Saul's utterance (i.e., the behavior of his own son Jonathan, which he viewed as both a personal and a political betrayal [= "traitor"]). But this concession should not obscure the fact that Saul is full of bitterness and frustration. That he would address his son Jonathan with such language, not to mention his apparent readiness even to kill his own son over this friendship with David (v. 33), indicates something of the extreme depth of Saul's jealousy and hatred of David.

13 tn Heb "all the days that."

14 tn The words "some men" are supplied in the translation for stylistic reasons.

15 tn Heb "a son of death."

16 tn Heb "him"; the referent (Jonathan) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

17 tn Heb "knew."

18 tn Heb "for he was upset concerning David for his father had humiliated him." The referent of the pronoun "him" is not entirely clear, but the phrase "concerning David" suggests that it refers to David, rather than Jonathan.

19 tn Heb "he"; the referent (Jonathan) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

20 tn Heb "called after" (also in v. 38).

21 tn Heb "knew the matter."

20:41 When the servant had left, David got up from beside the mound,[1] knelt[2] with his face to the ground, and bowed three times. Then they kissed each other and they both wept, especially David. 20:42 Jonathan said to David, "Go in peace, for the two of us have sworn together in the name of the LORD saying, 'The LORD will be between me and you and between my descendants and your descendants forever.'"

David Goes to Nob

(21:1)[3] Then David[4] got up and left, while Jonathan went back to the city. 21:1 (21:2) David went to Ahimelech the priest in Nob. Ahimelech was shaking with fear when he met[5] David, and said to him, "Why are you by yourself with no one accompanying you?" 21:2 David replied to Ahimelech the priest, "The king instructed me to do something, but he said to me, 'Don't let anyone know the reason I am sending you or the instructions I have given you.'[6] I have told my soldiers[7] to wait at a certain place.[8] 21:3 Now what do you have at your disposal?[9] Give me five loaves of bread, or whatever can be found."

21:4 The priest replied to David, "I don't have any ordinary bread at my disposal. Only holy bread is available, and then only if your soldiers[10] have abstained from sexual relations with women."[11] 21:5 David said to the priest, "Certainly women have been kept away from us, just as on previous occasions when I have set out. The soldiers'[12] equipment is holy, even on an ordinary journey. How much more so will they be holy today, along with their equipment!"

21:6 So the priest gave him holy bread, for there was no bread there other than the bread of the Presence. It had been removed from before the LORD in order to replace it with hot bread on the day it had been taken away. 21:7 (One of Saul's servants was there that day, detained before the LORD. His name was Doeg the Edomite, who was in charge of Saul's shepherds.) 21:8 David said to Ahimelech, "Is there no sword or spear here at your disposal? I don't have my own sword or equipment in hand due to the urgency of the king's instructions."

David Goes to Gath

21:9 The priest replied, "The sword of Goliath the Philistine, whom you struck down in the valley of Elah, is wrapped in a garment behind the ephod. If you wish, take it for yourself. Other than that, there's nothing here." David said, "There's nothing like it! Give it to me!" 21:10 So on that day David arose and fled from Saul. He went to King Achish of Gath. 21:11 The servants of Achish said to him, "Isn't this David, the king of the land? Isn't he the one that they sing about when they dance, saying,

'Saul struck down his thousands,
But David his tens of thousands'?"

21:12 David thought about what they said[13] and was very afraid of King Achish of Gath. 21:13 He altered his behavior in their presence.[14] Since he was in their power,[15] he pretended to be insane, making marks on the doors of the gate and letting his saliva run down his beard.

21:14 Achish said to his servants, "Look at this madman! Why did you bring him to me? 21:15 Do I have a shortage of fools, that you have brought me this man to display his insanity in front of me? Should this man enter my house?"

David Goes to Adullam and Mizpah

22:1 So David left there and escaped to the cave of Adullam. When his brothers and the rest of his father's family[16] learned about it, they went down there to him. 22:2 All those who were in trouble or owed someone money or were discontented[17] gathered around[18] him, and he became their leader. He had about four hundred men with him.

22:3 Then David went from there to Mizpah in Moab, where he said to the king of Moab, "Please let my father and mother stay[19] with you until I know what God is going to do for me." 22:4 So he had them stay with the king of Moab;

[1] tc The translation follows the LXX in reading "the mound," rather than the MT's "the south." It is hard to see what meaning the MT reading "from beside the south" would have as it stands, since such a location lacks specificity. The NIV treats it as an elliptical expression, rendering the phrase as "from the south side of the stone (rock NCV)." This is perhaps possible, but it seems better to follow the LXX rather than the MT here.

[2] tn Heb "fell."

[3] sn Beginning with 20:42b, the verse numbers through 21:15 in the English Bible differ from the verse numbers in the Hebrew text (BHS), with 20:42b ET = 21:1 HT, 21:1 ET = 21:2 HT, 21:2 ET = 21:3 HT, etc., through 21:15 ET = 21:16 HT. With 22:1 the verse numbers in the ET and HT are again the same.

[4] tn Heb "he"; the referent (David) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[5] tn Heb "trembled to meet."

[6] tn Heb "let not a man know anything about the matter [for] which I am sending you and [about] which I commanded you."

[7] tn Heb "servants."

[8] tn The Hebrew expression here refers to a particular, but unnamed, place. It occurs in the OT only here, in 2 Kgs 6:8, and in Ruth 4:1, where Boaz uses it to refer to Naomi's unnamed kinsman-redeemer. A contracted form of the expression appears in Dan 8:13.

[9] tn Heb "under your hand."

[10] tn Heb "servants."

[11] tn Heb "have kept themselves from women" (so NASB, NIV, NRSV); TEV "haven't had sexual relations recently"; NLT "have not slept with any women recently."

they stayed with him the whole time[1] that David was in the stronghold. 22:5 Then Gad the prophet said to David, "Don't stay in the stronghold. Go to the land of Judah." So David left and went to the forest of Hereth.

Saul Executes the Priests

22:6 But Saul found out the whereabouts of David and the men who were with him.[2] Now Saul was sitting at Gibeah under the tamarisk tree at an elevated location with his spear in hand and all his servants stationed around him. 22:7 Saul said to his servants who were stationed around him, "Listen up, you Benjaminites! Is Jesse's son giving fields and vineyards to all of you? Or is he making all of you[3] commanders and officers?[4] 22:8 For all of you have conspired against me! No one informs me[5] when my own son makes an agreement with this son of Jesse! Not one of you feels sorry for me or informs me that my own son has commissioned my own servant to hide in ambush against me, as is the case today!"

22:9 But Doeg the Edomite, who had stationed himself with the servants of Saul, replied, "I saw this son of Jesse come to Ahimelech son of Ahitub at Nob. 22:10 He inquired of the LORD for him and gave him provisions. He also gave him the sword of Goliath the Philistine."

22:11 Then the king arranged for a meeting with the priest Ahimelech son of Ahitub and all the priests of his father's house who were at Nob. They all came to the king. 22:12 Then Saul said, "Listen, son of Ahitub." He replied, "Here I am, my lord." 22:13 Saul said to him, "Why have you conspired against me, you and this son of Jesse? You gave[6] him bread and a sword and inquired of God on his behalf, so that he opposes[7] me and waits in ambush, as is the case today!"

22:14 Ahimelech replied to the king, "Who among all your servants is faithful like David? He is the king's son-in-law, the leader of your bodyguard, and honored in your house! 22:15 Was it just today that I began to inquire of God on his behalf? Far be it from me! The king should not accuse[8] his servant or any of my father's house. For your servant is not aware of all this – not in whole or in part!"[9]

22:16 But the king said, "You will surely die, Ahimelech, you and all your father's house! 22:17 Then the king said to the messengers[10] who were stationed beside him, "Turn and kill the priests of the LORD, for they too have sided[11] with David! They knew he was fleeing, but they did not inform me." But the king's servants refused to harm[12] the priests of the LORD.

22:18 Then the king said to Doeg, "You turn and strike down the priests!" So Doeg the Edomite turned and struck down the priests. He killed on that day eighty-five[13] men who wore the linen ephod. 22:19 As for Nob, the city of the priests, he struck down with the sword men and women, children and infants, oxen, donkeys, and sheep – all with the sword.

22:20 But one of the sons of Ahimelech son of Ahitub escaped and fled to David. His name was Abiathar. 22:21 Abiathar told David that Saul had killed the priests of the LORD. 22:22 Then David said to Abiathar, "I knew that day when Doeg the Edomite was there that he would certainly tell Saul! I am guilty[14] of all the deaths in your father's house! 22:23 Stay with me. Don't be afraid! Whoever[15] seeks my life is seeking your life as well. You are secure with me."

David Delivers the City of Keilah

23:1 They told David, "The Philistines are fighting in Keilah and are looting the threshing floors." 23:2 So David asked the LORD, "Should I go and strike down these Philistines?" The LORD said to David, "Go, strike down the Philistines and deliver Keilah."

23:3 But David's men said to him, "We are afraid while we are still here in Judah! What will it be like if we go to Keilah against the armies of the Philistines?" 23:4 So David asked the LORD once again. But again the LORD replied, "Arise, go down to Keilah, for I will give the Philistines into your hand."

[1] tn Heb "all the days."

[2] tn Heb "and Saul heard that David and the men who were with him were known."

[3] tc The MT has "to all of you." If this reading is correct, we have here an example of a prepositional phrase functioning as the equivalent of a dative of advantage, which is not impossible from a grammatical point of view. However, the LXX, the Syriac Peshitta, and Vulgate all have "and." A conjunction rather than a preposition should probably be read on the front of this phrase.

[4] tn Heb "officers of a thousand and officers of a hundred."

[5] tn Heb "uncovers my ear."

[6] tn Heb "by giving."

[11] tn Heb "their hand is."

[12] tn Heb "to extend their hand to harm."

[13] tc The number is confused in the Greek MS tradition. The LXX, with the exception of the Lucianic recension, has the number 305. The Lucianic recension, along with a couple of Old Latin MSS, has the number 350.

[14] tc The translation follows the LXX, which reads "I am guilty," rather than the MT, which has "I have turned."

[15] tn Or "the one who." This may refer specifically to Saul, in which case David acknowledges that Abiathar's life is endangered because of his allegiance to David. The translation assumes that the statement is more generalized, meaning that any enemy of Abiathar is an enemy of David. In other words, David promises that he will protect Abiathar with his very own life.

23:5 So David and his men went to Keilah and fought the Philistines. He took away their cattle and thoroughly defeated them.[1] David delivered the inhabitants of Keilah.

David Eludes Saul Again

23:6 Now when Abiathar son of Ahimelech had fled to David at Keilah, he had brought with him an ephod.[2] 23:7 When Saul was told that David had come to Keilah, Saul said, "God has delivered[3] him into my hand, for he has boxed himself into a corner by entering a city with two barred gates."[4] 23:8 So Saul mustered all his army to go down to Keilah and besiege David and his men.[5]

23:9 When David realized that Saul was planning to harm him,[6] he told Abiathar the priest, "Bring the ephod!" 23:10 Then David said, "O LORD God of Israel, your servant has clearly heard that Saul is planning[7] to come to Keilah to destroy the city because of me. 23:11 Will the leaders of Keilah deliver me into his hand? Will Saul come down as your servant has heard? O LORD God of Israel, please inform your servant!"

Then the LORD said, "He will come down." 23:12 David asked, "Will the leaders of Keilah deliver me and my men into Saul's hand?" The LORD said, "They will deliver you over."

23:13 So David and his men, who numbered about six hundred, set out and left Keilah; they moved around from one place to another.[8] When told that David had escaped from Keilah, Saul called a halt to his expedition. 23:14 David stayed in the strongholds that were in the desert and in the hill country of the desert of Ziph. Saul looked for him all the time,[9] but God did not deliver David[10] into his hand. 23:15 David realized[11] that Saul had come out to seek his life; at that time David was in Horesh in the desert of Ziph.

23:16 Then Jonathan son of Saul left and went to David at Horesh. He encouraged him[12] through God. 23:17 He said to him, "Don't be afraid! For the hand of my father Saul cannot find you. You will rule over Israel, and I will be your second in command. Even my father Saul realizes this." 23:18 When the two of them had made a covenant before the LORD, David stayed on at Horesh, but Jonathan went to his house.

23:19 Then the Ziphites went up to Saul at Gibeah and said, "Isn't David hiding among us in the strongholds at Horesh on the hill of Hakilah, south of Jeshimon? 23:20 Now at your own discretion,[13] O king, come down. Delivering him into the king's hand will be our responsibility."

23:21 Saul replied, "May you be blessed by the LORD, for you have had compassion on me. 23:22 Go and make further arrangements. Determine precisely[14] where he is[15] and who has seen him there, for I am told that he is extremely cunning. 23:23 Locate precisely all the places where he hides and return to me with dependable information.[16] Then I will go with you. If he is in the land, I will find him[17] among all the thousands of Judah."

23:24 So they left and went to Ziph ahead of Saul. Now David and his men were in the desert of Maon, in the Arabah to the south of Jeshimon. 23:25 Saul and his men went to look for him.[18] But David was informed and went down to the rock and stayed in the desert of Maon. When Saul heard about it, he pursued David in the desert of Maon. 23:26 Saul went on one side of the mountain, while David and his men went on the other side of the mountain. David was hurrying to get away from Saul, but Saul and his men were surrounding David and his men so they could capture them. 23:27 But a messenger came to Saul saying, "Come quickly, for the Philistines have raided the land!"

23:28 So Saul stopped pursuing David and went to confront the Philistines. Therefore that place is called Sela Hammahlekoth.[19]

[3] tn The MT reading ("God has alienated him into my hand") in v. 7 is a difficult and uncommon idiom. The use of this verb in Jer 19:4 is somewhat parallel, but not entirely so. Many scholars have therefore suspected a textual problem here, emending the word נִכַּר (nikkar, "alienated") to סִכַּר (sikkar, "he has shut up [i.e., delivered]"). This is the idea reflected in the translations of the Syriac Peshitta and Vulgate, although it is not entirely clear whether they are reading something different from the MT or are simply paraphrasing what for them too may have been a difficult text. The LXX has "God has sold him into my hands," apparently reading מָכַר (makar, "sold") for MT's נָכַר. The present translation is a rather free interpretation.

[4] tn Heb "with two gates and a bar." Since in English "bar" could be understood as a saloon, it has been translated as an attributive: "two barred gates."

[5] tn Heb "So Saul mustered all his army for battle to go down to Keilah to besiege against David and his men."

[6] tn Heb "Saul was planning the evil against him."

[16] tn Heb "established."

[17] tn Heb "I will search him out."

[18] tn Heb "to search."

[19] sn The name הַמַּחְלְקוֹת סֶלַע (Sela Hammakhleqoth) probably means "Rock of Divisions" in Hebrew, in the sense that Saul and David parted company there (cf. NAB "Gorge of Divisions"; TEV "Separation Hill"). This etymology assumes that the word derives from the Hebrew root II חלק (khlq, "to divide"; HALOT 322 s.v. II חלק). However, there is another root I חלק, which means "to be smooth or slippery" (HALOT 322 s.v. I חלק). If the word is taken from this root, the expression would mean "Slippery Rock."

23:29 (24:1)[1] Then David went up from there and stayed in the strongholds of En Gedi.

David Spares Saul's Life

24:1 (24:2) When Saul returned from pursuing the Philistines, they told him, "Look, David is in the desert of En Gedi." 24:2 So Saul took three thousand select men from all Israel and went to find[2] David and his men in the region of[3] the rocks of the mountain goats.[4] 24:3 He came to the sheepfolds by the road, where there was a cave. Saul went into it to relieve himself.[5]

Now David and his men were sitting in the recesses of the cave. 24:4 David's men said to him, "This is the day about which the LORD said to you, 'I will give your enemy into your hand, and you can do to him whatever seems appropriate to you.'"[6] So David got up and quietly cut off an edge of Saul's robe. 24:5 Afterward David's conscience bothered him[7] because he had cut off an edge of Saul's robe. 24:6 He said to his men, "May the LORD keep me far away from doing such a thing to my lord, who is the LORD's chosen one,[8] by extending my hand against him. After all,[9] he is the LORD's chosen one."[10] 24:7 David restrained his men with these words and did not allow them to rise up against Saul. Then Saul left the cave and started down[11] the road.

24:8 Afterward David got up and went out of the cave. He called out after Saul, "My lord, O king!" When Saul looked behind him, David kneeled down and bowed with his face to the ground. 24:9 David said to Saul, "Why do you pay attention when men say, 'David is seeking to do you harm'? 24:10 Today your own eyes see how the LORD delivered you – this very day – into my hands in the cave. Some told me to kill you, but I had pity[12] on you and said, 'I will not extend my hand against my lord, for he is the LORD's chosen one.'[13] 24:11 Look, my father, and see the edge of your robe in my hand! When I cut off the edge of your robe, I didn't kill you. So realize and understand that I am not planning[14] evil or rebellion. Even though I have not sinned against you, you are waiting in ambush to take my life. 24:12 May the LORD judge between the two of us, and may the LORD vindicate me over you, but my hand will not be against you. 24:13 It's like the old proverb says: 'From evil people evil proceeds.' But my hand will not be against you. 24:14 Who has the king of Israel come out after? Who is it that you are pursuing? A dead dog? A single flea? 24:15 May the LORD be our judge and arbiter. May he see and arbitrate my case and deliver me from your hands!"

24:16 When David finished speaking these words to Saul, Saul said, "Is that your voice, my son David?" Then Saul wept loudly.[15] 24:17 He said to David, "You are more innocent[16] than I, for you have treated me well, even though I have tried to harm you! 24:18 You have explained today how you have treated me well. The LORD delivered me into your hand, but you did not kill me. 24:19 Now if a man finds his enemy, does he send him on his way in good shape? May the LORD repay you with good this day for what you have done to me. 24:20 Now look, I realize that you will in fact be king and that the kingdom of Israel will be established in your hand. 24:21 So now swear to me in the LORD's name[17] that you will not kill[18] my descendants after me or destroy my name from the house of my father."

24:22 David promised Saul this on oath.[19] Then Saul went to his house, and David and his men went up to the stronghold.

The Death of Samuel

25:1 Samuel died, and all Israel assembled and mourned him. They buried him at his home in Ramah. Then David left and went down to the desert of Paran.[20]

David Marries Abigail the Widow of Nabal

[20] tc The LXX reads "Maon" here instead of "Paran," perhaps because the following account of Nabal is said to be in Maon (v. 2). This reading is followed by a number of English versions (e.g., NAB, NIV, NCV, NLT). The MT, however, reads "Paran," a location which would parallel this portion of David's life with that of the nation Israel which also spent time in Paran (Num 10:12). Also, the desert of Paran was on the southern border of Judah's territory and would be the most isolated location for hiding from Saul.

sheep in Carmel. 25:3 The man's name was Nabal,[1] and his wife's name was Abigail. She was both wise[2] and beautiful, but the man was harsh and his deeds were evil. He was a Calebite.

25:4 When David heard in the desert that Nabal was shearing his sheep, 25:5 he[3] sent ten servants,[4] saying to them,[5] "Go up to Carmel to see Nabal and give him greetings in my name.[6] 25:6 Then you will say to my brother,[7] 'Peace to you and your house! Peace to all that is yours! 25:7 Now I hear that they are shearing sheep for you. When your shepherds were with us, we neither insulted them nor harmed them the whole time they were in Carmel. 25:8 Ask your own servants; they can tell you! May my servants find favor in your sight, for we have come[8] at the time of a holiday. Please provide us – your servants[9] and your son David – with whatever you can spare.'"[10]

25:9 So David's servants went and spoke all these words to Nabal in David's name. Then they paused. 25:10 But Nabal responded to David's servants, "Who is David, and who is this son of Jesse? This is a time when many servants are breaking away from their masters! 25:11 Should I take my bread and my water and my meat that I have slaughtered for my shearers and give them to these men? I don't even know where they came from!"

25:12 So David's servants went on their way. When they had returned, they came and told David[11] all these things. 25:13 Then David instructed his men, "Each of you strap on your sword!" So each one strapped on his sword, and David also strapped on his sword. About four hundred men followed David up, while two hundred stayed behind with the equipment.

25:14 But one of the servants told Nabal's wife Abigail, "David sent messengers from the desert to greet[12] our lord, but he screamed at them. 25:15 These men were very good to us. They did not insult us, nor did we sustain any loss during the entire time we were together[13] in the field. 25:16 Both night and day they were a protective wall for us the entire time we were with them, while we were tending our flocks. 25:17 Now be aware of this, and see what you can do. For disaster has been planned for our lord and his entire household.[14] He is such a wicked person[15] that no one tells him anything!"

25:18 So Abigail quickly took two hundred loaves of bread, two containers[16] of wine, five prepared sheep, five seahs[17] of roasted grain, a hundred bunches of raisins, and two hundred lumps of pressed figs. She loaded them on donkeys 25:19 and said to her servants, "Go on ahead of me. I will come after you." But she did not tell her husband Nabal.

25:20 Riding on her donkey, she went down under cover of the mountain. David and his men were coming down to meet her, and she encountered them. 25:21 Now David had been thinking,[18] "In vain I guarded everything that belonged to this man in the desert. I didn't take anything from him. But he has repaid my good with evil. 25:22 God will severely punish David,[19] if I leave alive until morning even one male[20] from all those who belong to him!"

25:23 When Abigail saw David, she got down

1 sn The name נָבָל (Nabal) means "foolish" or "senseless" in Hebrew, and as an adjective the word is used especially of persons who have no perception of ethical or religious claims. It is an apt name for this character, who certainly typifies such behavior.

2 tn Heb "good of insight"; KJV "of good understanding"; NAB, NIV, TEV "intelligent"; NRSV "clever."

3 tn Heb "David"; for stylistic reasons the pronoun has been used in the translation.

4 tn Or "young men."

5 tn Heb "and David said to the young men."

6 tn Heb "and inquire concerning him in my name in regard to peace."

7 tc The text is difficult here. The MT and most of the early versions support the reading לְחָי (lekhai, "to life," or "to the one who lives"). Some of the older English versions (KJV, ASV; cf. NKJV) took the expression to mean "to him who lives (in prosperity)," but this translation requires reading a good deal into the words. While the expression could have the sense of "Long life to you!" (cf. NIV, NJPS) or perhaps "Good luck to you!" this seems somewhat redundant in light of the salutation that follows in the context. The Latin Vulgate has fratribus meis ("to my brothers"), which suggests that Jerome understood the Hebrew word to have an alef that is absent in the MT (i.e., לְאָחַי, le'ekhay). Jerome's plural, however, remains a problem, since in the context David is addressing a single individual, namely Nabal, and not a group. However, it is likely that the Vulgate witnesses to a consonantal Hebrew text that is to be preferred here, especially if the word were to be revocalized as a singular rather than a plural. While it is impossible to be certain about this reading, the present translation essentially follows the Vulgate in reading "my brother" (so also NJB; cf. NAB, RSV, NRSV).

8 tc The translation follows many medieval Hebrew MSS in reading בָּאנוּ (ba'nu, "we have come") rather than the MT's בָּנִינוּ (banu, "we have built").

9 tn This refers to the ten servants sent by David.

10 tn Heb "whatever your hand will find."

11 tn Heb "him"; the referent (David) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

12 tn Heb "bless."

13 tn Heb "all the days we walked about with them when we were."

14 tn Heb "all his house" (so ASV, NRSV); NAB, NLT "his whole family."

15 tn Heb "he is a son of worthlessness."

16 tn Heb "skins."

17 sn The seah was a dry measure equal to one-third of an ephah, or not quite eleven quarts.

18 tn Heb "said."

19 tc Heb "Thus God will do to the enemies of David and thus he will add." Most of the Old Greek MS tradition has simply "David," with no reference to his enemies. In OT imprecations such as the one found in v. 22 it is common for the speaker to direct malediction toward himself as an indication of the seriousness with which he regards the matter at hand. In other words, the speaker invites on himself dire consequences if he fails to fulfill the matter expressed in the oath. However, in the situation alluded to in v. 22 the threat actually does not come to fruition due to the effectiveness of Abigail's appeal to David in behalf of her husband Nabal. Instead, David is placated through Abigail's intervention. It therefore seems likely that the reference to "the enemies of David" in the MT of v. 22 is the result of a scribal attempt to deliver David from the implied consequences of this oath. The present translation follows the LXX rather than the MT here.

20 tn Heb "one who urinates against a wall" (also in v. 34); KJV "any that pisseth against the wall."

quickly from the donkey, threw herself down before David, and bowed to the ground. 25:24 Falling at his feet, she said, "My lord, I accept all the guilt! But please let your female servant speak with my lord! Please listen to the words of your servant! 25:25 My lord should not pay attention to this wicked man Nabal. He simply lives up to his name! His name means 'fool,' and he is indeed foolish![1] But I, your servant, did not see the servants my lord sent.[2]

25:26 "Now, my lord, as surely as the LORD lives and as surely as you live, it is the LORD who has kept you from shedding blood and taking matters into your own hands. Now may your enemies and those who seek to harm my lord be like Nabal. 25:27 Now let this present[3] that your servant has brought to my lord be given to the servants who follow[4] my lord. 25:28 Please forgive the sin of your servant, for the LORD will certainly establish the house of my lord, because my lord fights the battles of the LORD. May no evil be found in you all your days! 25:29 When someone sets out to chase you and to take your life, the life of my lord will be wrapped securely in the bag[5] of the living by the LORD your God. But he will sling away the lives of your enemies from the sling's pocket! 25:30 The LORD will do for my lord everything that he promised you,[6] and he will make[7] you a leader over Israel. 25:31 Your conscience will not be overwhelmed with guilt[8] for having poured out innocent blood and for having taken matters into your own hands. When the LORD has granted my lord success,[9] please remember your servant."

25:32 Then David said to Abigail, "Praised[10] be the LORD, the God of Israel, who has sent you this day to meet me! 25:33 Praised be your good judgment! May you yourself be rewarded[11] for having prevented me this day from shedding blood and taking matters into my own hands! 25:34 Otherwise, as surely as the LORD, the God of Israel, lives – he who has prevented me from harming you – if you had not come so quickly to meet me, by morning's light not even one male belonging to Nabal would have remained alive!" 25:35 Then David took from her hand what she had brought to him. He said to her, "Go back[12] to your home in peace. Be assured that I have listened to you[13] and responded favorably."[14]

25:36 When Abigail went back to Nabal, he was holding a banquet in his house like that of the king. Nabal was having a good time[15] and was very intoxicated. She told him absolutely nothing[16] until morning's light. 25:37 In the morning, when Nabal was sober,[17] his wife told him about these matters. He had a stroke and was paralyzed.[18] 25:38 After about ten days the LORD struck Nabal down and he died.

25:39 When David heard that Nabal had died, he said, "Praised be the LORD who has vindicated me and avenged the insult that I suffered from Nabal![19] The LORD has kept his servant from doing evil, and he has repaid Nabal for his evil deeds."[20] Then David sent word to Abigail and asked her to become his wife.

25:40 So the servants of David went to Abigail at Carmel and said to her, "David has sent us to you to bring you back to be his wife." 25:41 She arose, bowed her face toward the ground, and said, "Your female servant, like a lowly servant, will wash[21] the feet of the servants of my lord." 25:42 Then Abigail quickly went and mounted her donkey, with five of her female servants accompanying her.[22] She followed David's messengers and became his wife.

25:43 David had also married[23] Ahinoam from Jezreel; the two of them became his wives. 25:44 (Now Saul had given his daughter Michal, David's wife, to Paltiel son of Laish, who was from Gallim.)

went down to the desert of Ziph, accompanied by three thousand select men of Israel, to look for David in the desert of Ziph. 26:3 Saul camped by the road on the hill of Hakilah near Jeshimon, but David was staying in the desert. When he realized that Saul had come to the desert to find[1] him, 26:4 David sent scouts and verified that Saul had indeed arrived.[2]

26:5 So David set out and went to the place where Saul was camped. David saw the place where Saul and Abner son of Ner, the general in command of his army, were sleeping. Now Saul was lying in the entrenchment, and the army was camped all around him. 26:6 David said to Ahimelech the Hittite and Abishai son of Zeruiah, Joab's brother, "Who will go down with me to Saul in the camp?" Abishai replied, "I will go down with you."

26:7 So David and Abishai approached the army at night and found Saul lying asleep in the entrenchment with his spear stuck in the ground by his head. Abner and the army were lying all around him. 26:8 Abishai said to David, "Today God has delivered your enemy into your hands. Now let me drive the spear[3] right through him into the ground with one swift jab![4] A second jab won't be necessary!"

26:9 But David said to Abishai, "Don't kill him! Who can extend his hand against the LORD's chosen one[5] and remain guiltless?" 26:10 David went on to say, "As the LORD lives, the LORD himself will strike him down. Either his day will come and he will die, or he will go down into battle and be swept away. 26:11 But may the LORD prevent me from extending my hand against the LORD's chosen one! Now take the spear by Saul's head and the jug of water, and let's get out of here!" 26:12 So David took the spear and the jug of water by Saul's head, and they got out of there. No one saw them or was aware of their presence or woke up. All of them were asleep, for the LORD had caused a deep sleep to fall on them.

26:13 Then David crossed to the other side and stood on the top of the hill some distance away; there was a considerable distance between them. 26:14 David called to the army and to Abner son of Ner, "Won't you answer, Abner?" Abner replied, "Who are you, that you have called to the king?" 26:15 David said to Abner, "Aren't you a man? After all, who is like you in Israel? Why then haven't you protected your lord the king? One of the soldiers came to kill your lord the king. 26:16 This failure on your part isn't good![6] As surely as the LORD lives, you people who have not protected your lord, the LORD's chosen one, are as good as dead![7] Now look where the king's spear and the jug of water that was by his head are!"

26:17 When Saul recognized David's voice, he said, "Is that your voice, my son David?" David replied, "Yes, it's my voice, my lord the king." 26:18 He went on to say, "Why is my lord chasing his servant? What have I done? What wrong have I done?[8] 26:19 So let my lord the king now listen to the words of his servant. If the LORD has incited you against me, may he take delight in[9] an offering. But if men have instigated this,[10] may they be cursed before the LORD! For they have driven me away this day from being united with the LORD's inheritance, saying, 'Go on, serve other gods!' 26:20 Now don't let my blood fall to the ground away from the LORD's presence, for the king of Israel has gone out to look for a flea the way one looks for a partridge[11] in the hill country."

26:21 Saul replied, "I have sinned. Come back, my son David. I won't harm you, for you treated my life with value[12] this day. I have behaved foolishly and have made a very terrible mistake!"[13] 26:22 David replied, "Here is the king's spear! Let one of your servants cross over and get it. 26:23 The LORD rewards each man for his integrity and loyalty.[14] Even though today the LORD delivered you into my hand, I was not willing to extend my hand against the LORD's chosen one. 26:24 In the same way that I valued your life this day,[15] may the LORD value my life[16] and deliver me from all danger." 26:25 Saul replied to David, "May you be rewarded,[17] my son David! You will without question be

[1] tn Heb "after."

[2] tn Heb "and David sent scouts and he knew that Saul had certainly come."

[3] tn Here "the spear" almost certainly refers to Saul's own spear, which according to the previous verse was stuck into the ground beside him as he slept. This is reflected in a number of English versions: TEV, CEV "his own spear"; NLT "that spear." Cf. NIV, NCV "my spear," in which case Abishai refers to his own spear rather than Saul's, but this is unlikely since (1) Abishai would probably not have carried a spear along since such a weapon would be unwieldy when sneaking into the enemy camp; and (2) this would not explain the mention of Saul's own spear stuck in the ground beside him in the previous verse.

[4] tn Heb "let me strike him with the spear and into the ground one time."

[5] tn Heb "anointed" (also in vv. 11, 16, 23).

[6] tn Heb "Not good [is] this thing which you have done."

[7] tn Heb "you are sons of death."

[8] tn Heb "What in my hand [is] evil?"

[9] tn Heb "may he smell." The implication is that Saul should seek to appease God, for such divine instigation to evil would be a sign of God's disfavor. For a fuller discussion of this passage see R. B. Chisholm, Jr., "Does God Deceive?" BSac 155 (1998): 19-21.

[10] tn Heb "but if the sons of men."

[11] tn Heb "the calling [one]," which apparently refers to a partridge.

[12] tn Heb "my life was valuable in your eyes."

successful!"[1] So David went on his way, and Saul returned to his place.

David Aligns Himself with the Philistines

27:1 David thought to himself,[2] "One of these days I'm going to be swept away by the hand of Saul! There is nothing better for me than to escape to the land of the Philistines. Then Saul will despair of searching for me through all the territory of Israel and I will escape from his hand."

27:2 So David left and crossed over to King Achish son of Maoch of Gath accompanied by his six hundred men. 27:3 David settled with Achish in Gath, along with his men and their families.[3] David had with him his two wives, Ahinoam the Jezreelite and Abigail the Carmelite, Nabal's widow. 27:4 When Saul learned that David had fled to Gath, he did not mount a new search for him.

27:5 David said to Achish, "If I have found favor with you, let me be given a place in one of the country towns so that I can live there. Why should your servant settle in the royal city with you?" 27:6 So Achish gave him Ziklag on that day. (For that reason Ziklag has belonged to the kings of Judah until this very day.) 27:7 The length of time[4] that David lived in the Philistine countryside was a year[5] and four months.

27:8 Then David and his men went up and raided the Geshurites, the Girzites, and the Amalekites. (They had been living in that land for a long time, from the approach[6] to Shur as far as the land of Egypt.) 27:9 When David would attack a district,[7] he would leave neither man nor woman alive. He would take sheep, cattle, donkeys, camels, and clothing and would then go back to Achish. 27:10 When Achish would ask, "Where[8] did you raid today?" David would say, "The Negev of Judah" or "The Negev of Jeharmeel" or "The Negev of the Kenites." 27:11 Neither man nor woman would David leave alive so as to bring them back to Gath. He was thinking, "This way they can't tell on us, saying, 'This is what David did.'" Such was his practice the entire time[9] that he lived in the country of the Philistines. 27:12 So Achish trusted David, thinking to himself,[10] "He is really hated[11] among his own people in[12] Israel! From now on[13] he will be my servant."

The Witch of Endor

28:1 In those days the Philistines gathered their troops[14] for war in order to fight Israel. Achish said to David, "You should fully understand that you and your men must go with me into the battle."[15] 28:2 David replied to Achish, "That being the case, you will come to know what your servant can do!" Achish said to David, "Then I will make you my bodyguard[16] from now on."[17]

28:3 Now Samuel had died, and all Israel had lamented over him and had buried him in Ramah, his hometown.[18] In the meantime Saul had removed the mediums[19] and magicians[20] from the land. 28:4 The Philistines assembled; they came and camped at Shunem. Saul mustered all Israel and camped at Gilboa. 28:5 When Saul saw the camp of the Philistines, he was absolutely terrified.[21] 28:6 So Saul inquired of the LORD, but the LORD did not answer him – not by dreams nor by Urim[22] nor by the prophets. 28:7 So Saul instructed his servants, "Find me a woman who is a medium,[23] so that I may go to her and inquire of her." His servants replied to him, "There is a woman who is a medium in Endor."

1 tn Heb "you will certainly do and also you will certainly be able." The infinitive absolutes placed before the finite verbal forms lend emphasis to the statement.

2 tn Heb "said to his heart."

3 tn Heb "a man and his house."

4 tn Heb "the number of the days."

5 tn Heb "days." The plural of the word "day" is sometimes used idiomatically to refer specifically to a year. In addition to this occurrence in v. 7 see also 1 Sam 1:3, 21; 2:19; 20:6; Lev 25:29; Judg 17:10.

6 tn Heb "from where you come."

7 tn Heb "the land."

8 tc The translation follows the LXX (ἐπι τίνα, epi tina) and Vulgate (in quem) which assume אֶל מִי ('el mi, "to whom") rather than the MT אַל ('al, "not"). The MT makes no sense here. Another possibility is that the text originally had אַן ('an, "where"), which has been distorted in the MT to אַל. Cf. the Syriac Peshitta and the Targum, which have "where."

9 tn Heb "all the days."

10 tn Heb "saying."

11 tn Heb "he really stinks." The expression is used figuratively here to describe the rejection and ostracism that David had experienced as a result of Saul's hatred of him.

12 tc Many medieval Hebrew MSS lack the preposition "in."

13 tn Heb "permanently."

14 tn Heb "their camps."

15 tc The translation follows the LXX (εἰς πόλεμον, eis polemon) and a Qumran MS מלחמה במלחמה ([m]lkhmh) bammilkhamah ("in the battle") rather than the MT's בַּמַּחֲנֶה (bammakhaneh, "in the camp"; cf. NASB). While the MT reading is not impossible here, and although admittedly it is the harder reading, the variant fits the context better. The MT can be explained as a scribal error caused in part by the earlier occurrence of "camp" in this verse.

16 tn Heb "the guardian for my head."

17 tn Heb "all the days."

18 tn Heb "in Ramah, even in his city."

19 tn The Hebrew term translated "mediums" actually refers to a pit used by a magician to conjure up underworld spirits (see 2 Kgs 21:6). In v. 7 the witch of Endor is called the owner of a ritual pit. See H. Hoffner, "Second Millennium Antecedents to the Hebrew 'ÔB," JBL 86 (1967): 385-401. Here the term refers by metonymy to the owner of such a pit (see H. A. Hoffner, TDOT 1:133).

20 sn See Isa 8:19 for another reference to magicians who attempted to conjure up underworld spirits.

21 tn Heb "he was afraid, and his heart was very terrified."

22 sn See the note at 1 Sam 14:41.

23 tn Heb "an owner of a ritual pit." See the note at v. 3.

28:8 So Saul disguised himself and put on other clothing and left, accompanied by two of his men. They came to the woman at night and said, "Use your ritual pit to conjure up for me the one I tell you."[1]

28:9 But the woman said to him, "Look, you are aware of what Saul has done; he has removed[2] the mediums and magicians[3] from the land! Why are you trapping me[4] so you can put me to death?" 28:10 But Saul swore an oath to her by the LORD, "As surely as the LORD lives, you will not incur guilt in this matter!" 28:11 The woman replied, "Who is it that I should bring up for you?" He said, "Bring up for me Samuel."

28:12 When the woman saw Samuel, she cried out loudly.[5] The woman said to Saul, "Why have you deceived me? You are Saul!" 28:13 The king said to her, "Don't be afraid! What have you seen?" The woman replied to Saul, "I have seen one like a god[6] coming up from the ground!" 28:14 He said to her, "What about his appearance?" She said, "An old man is coming up! He is wrapped in a robe!"

Then Saul realized it was Samuel, and he bowed his face toward the ground and kneeled down. 28:15 Samuel said to Saul, "Why have you disturbed me by bringing me up?" Saul replied, "I am terribly troubled! The Philistines are fighting against me and God has turned away from me. He does not answer me – not by the prophets nor by dreams. So I have called on you to tell me what I should do."

28:16 Samuel said, "Why are you asking me, now that the LORD has turned away from you and has become your enemy? 28:17 The LORD has done exactly as I prophesied![7] The LORD has torn the kingdom from your hand and has given it to your neighbor David! 28:18 Since you did not obey the LORD[8] and did not carry out his fierce anger against the Amalekites, the LORD has done this thing to you today. 28:19 The LORD will hand you and Israel over to the Philistines![9] Tomorrow both you and your sons will be with me.[10] The LORD will also hand the army[11] of Israel over to the Philistines!"

28:20 Saul quickly fell full length on the ground and was very afraid because of Samuel's words. He was completely drained of energy,[12] not having eaten anything[13] all that day and night. 28:21 When the woman came to Saul and saw how terrified he was, she said to him, "Your servant has done what you asked.[14] I took my life into my own hands and did what you told me.[15] 28:22 Now it's your turn to listen to your servant! Let me set before you a bit of bread so that you can eat. When you regain your strength, you can go on your way."

28:23 But he refused, saying, "I won't eat!" Both his servants and the woman urged[16] him to eat, so he gave in.[17] He got up from the ground and sat down on the bed. 28:24 Now the woman[18] had a well-fed calf[19] at her home that she quickly slaughtered. Taking some flour, she kneaded bread and baked it without leaven. 28:25 She brought it to Saul and his servants, and they ate. Then they arose and left that same night.

David Is Rejected by the Philistine Leaders

29:1 The Philistines assembled all their troops[20] at Aphek, while Israel camped at the spring that is in Jezreel. 29:2 When the leaders of the Philistines were passing in review at the head of their units of hundreds and thousands,[21] David and his men were passing in review in the rear with Achish.

29:3 The leaders of the Philistines asked, "What about these Hebrews?" Achish said to the leaders of the Philistines, "Isn't this David, the servant of King Saul of Israel, who has been with me for quite some time?[22] I have found no fault with him from the day of his defection until the present time!"[23]

29:4 But the leaders of the Philistines became angry with him and said[24] to him, "Send the man back! Let him return to the place that you assigned him! Don't let him go down with us into the battle, for he might become[25] our adversary in the battle. What better way to please his lord than with the heads of these men?[1] 29:5 Isn't this David, of whom they sang as they danced,[2]

> 'Saul has struck down his thousands,
> but David his tens of thousands'?"

29:6 So Achish summoned David and said to him, "As surely as the LORD lives, you are an honest man, and I am glad to have you[3] serving[4] with me in the army.[5] I have found no fault with you from the day that you first came to me until the present time. But in the opinion[6] of the leaders, you are not reliable.[7] 29:7 So turn and leave[8] in peace. You must not do anything that the leaders of the Philistines consider improper!"[9]

29:8 But David said to Achish, "What have I done? What have you found in your servant from the day that I first came into your presence until the present time, that I shouldn't go and fight the enemies of my lord the king?" 29:9 Achish replied to David, "I am convinced that you are as reliable[10] as the angel of God! However, the leaders of the Philistines have said, 'He must not go up with us in the battle.' 29:10 So get up early in the morning along with the servants of your lord who have come with you.[11] When you get up early in the morning, as soon as it is light enough to see, leave."[12]

29:11 So David and his men got up early in the morning to return[13] to the land of the Philistines, but the Philistines went up to Jezreel.

David Defeats the Amalekites

30:1 On the third day David and his men came to Ziklag. Now the Amalekites had raided the Negev and Ziklag. They attacked Ziklag and burned it.[14] 30:2 They took captive the women who were in it, from the youngest to the oldest, but they did not kill anyone. They simply carried them off and went on their way.

30:3 When David and his men came to the city, they found it burned.[15] Their wives, sons, and daughters had been taken captive. 30:4 Then David and the men[16] who were with him wept loudly[17] until they could weep no more.[18] 30:5 David's two wives had been taken captive – Ahinoam the Jezreelite and Abigail the Carmelite, Nabal's widow. 30:6 David was very upset, for the men[19] were thinking of stoning him;[20] each man grieved bitterly[21] over his sons and daughters. But David drew strength from the LORD his God.

30:7 Then David said to the priest Abiathar son of Ahimelech, "Bring me the ephod." So Abiathar brought the ephod to David. 30:8 David inquired of the LORD, saying, "Should I pursue this raiding band? Will I overtake them?" He said to him, "Pursue, for you will certainly overtake them and carry out a rescue!"

30:9 So David went, accompanied by his six hundred men. When he came to the Wadi Besor, those who were in the rear stayed there.[22] 30:10 David and four hundred men continued the pursuit, but two hundred men who were too exhausted to cross the Wadi Besor stayed there.

30:11 Then they found an Egyptian in the field and brought him to David. They gave him bread to eat and water to drink. 30:12 They gave him a slice of pressed figs and two bunches of raisins to eat. This greatly refreshed him,[23] for he had not eaten food or drunk water for three days and three nights. 30:13 David said to him, "To whom do you belong, and where are you from?" The young man said, "I am an Egyptian, the servant of an Amalekite man. My master abandoned me when I was ill for three days. 30:14 We conducted a raid on the Negev of the Kerethites, on the area of Judah, and on the Negev of Caleb. We burned Ziklag."[24] 30:15 David said to him, "Can you take us down to this raiding party?" He said, "Swear to me by God that you will not kill me or hand me over to my master, and I will take you down to this raiding party."

30:16 So he took David[25] down, and they found them spread out over the land. They were eating and drinking and enjoying themselves because of all the loot[26] they had taken from the land of the Philistines and from the land of Judah. 30:17 But David struck them down from twilight until the following evening. None of them escaped, with the exception of four hundred young men who got away on camels.[1] 30:18 David retrieved everything the Amalekites had taken; he[2] also rescued his two wives. 30:19 There was nothing missing, whether small or great. He retrieved sons and daughters, the plunder, and everything else they had taken.[3] David brought everything back. 30:20 David took all the flocks and herds and drove them in front of the rest of the animals. People were saying, "This is David's plunder!"

30:21 Then David approached the two hundred men who had been too exhausted to go with him,[4] those whom they had left at the Wadi Besor. They went out to meet David and the people who were with him. When David approached the people, he asked how they were doing. 30:22 But all the evil and worthless men among those who had gone with David said, "Since they didn't go with us,[5] we won't give them any of the loot we retrieved! They may take only their wives and children. Let them lead them away and be gone!"

30:23 But David said, "No! You shouldn't do this, my brothers. Look at what the LORD has given us![6] He has protected us and has delivered into our hands the raiding party that came against us. 30:24 Who will listen to you in this matter? The portion of the one who went down into the battle will be the same as the portion of the one who remained with the equipment! Let their portions be the same!"

30:25 From that time onward it was a binding ordinance[7] for Israel, right up to the present time.

30:26 When David came to Ziklag, he sent some of the plunder to the elders of Judah who were his friends, saying, "Here's a gift[8] for you from the looting of the LORD's enemies!" 30:27 The gift was for those in the following locations:[9] for those in Bethel,[10] Ramoth Negev, and Jattir; 30:28 for those in Aroer, Siphmoth, Eshtemoa, 30:29 and Racal; for those in the cities of the Jerahmeelites and Kenites; 30:30 for those in Hormah, Bor Ashan, Athach, 30:31 and Hebron; and for those in whatever other places David and his men had traveled.

The Death of Saul

31:1 Now the Philistines were fighting against Israel. The men of Israel fled from the Philistines and many of them fell dead on Mount Gilboa. 31:2 The Philistines stayed right on the heels[11] of Saul and his sons. They[12] struck down Saul's sons Jonathan, Abinadab, and Malki-Shua. 31:3 Saul himself was in the thick of the battle;[13] the archers[14] spotted him and wounded him severely.

31:4 Saul said to his armor bearer, "Draw your sword and stab me with it! Otherwise these uncircumcised people will come, stab me, and torture me." But his armor bearer refused to do it, because he was very afraid. So Saul took his sword and fell on it. 31:5 When his armor bearer saw that Saul was dead, he also fell on his own sword and died with him. 31:6 So Saul, his three sons, his armor bearer, and all his men died together that day.

31:7 When the men of Israel who were in the valley and across the Jordan saw that the men of Israel had fled and that Saul and his sons were dead, they abandoned the cities and fled. The Philistines came and occupied them.

31:8 The next day, when the Philistines came to strip loot from the corpses, they discovered Saul and his three sons lying dead[15] on Mount Gilboa. 31:9 They cut off Saul's[16] head and stripped him of his armor. They sent messengers to announce the news in the temple of their idols and among their people throughout the surrounding land of the Philistines. 31:10 They placed Saul's armor in the temple of the

[1] tn Heb "who rode on camels and fled."

[2] tn Heb "David." The pronoun ("he") has been substituted for the proper name in the translation for stylistic reasons.

[3] tn Heb "there was nothing missing to them, from the small even unto the great, and unto sons and daughters, and from loot even unto all which they had taken for themselves."

[4] tn Heb "David." The pronoun ("him") has been substituted for the proper name in the translation for stylistic reasons.

[5] tc Heb "with me." The singular is used rather than the plural because the group is being treated as a singular entity, in keeping with Hebrew idiom. It is not necessary to read "with us," rather than the MT "with me," although the plural can be found here in a few medieval Hebrew MSS. See also the LXX, Syriac Peshitta, and Vulgate, although these versions may simply reflect an understanding of the idiom as found in the MT rather than a different textual reading.

[6] tc This clause is difficult in the MT. The present translation accepts the text as found in the MT and understands this clause to be elliptical, with an understood verb such as "look" or "consider." On the other hand, the LXX seems to reflect a slightly different Hebrew text, reading "after" where the MT has "my brothers." The Greek translation yields the following translation: "You should not do this after the LORD has delivered us." Although the Greek reading should be taken seriously, it seems better to follow the MT here.

[7] tn Heb "a statute and a judgment." The expression is a hendiadys.

[8] tn Heb "blessing."

[9] tn This sentence is not in the Hebrew text. It is supplied in the translation for the sake of clarity.

[13] tn Heb "and the battle was heavy against Saul."

[14] tn Heb "the shooters, men with the bow."

[15] tn Heb "fallen."

Ashtoreths[1] and hung his corpse on the city wall of Beth Shan.

31:11 When the residents of Jabesh Gilead heard what the Philistines had done to Saul, 31:12 all their warriors set out and traveled throughout the night. They took Saul's corpse and the corpses of his sons from the city wall of Beth Shan and went[2] to Jabesh, where they burned them. 31:13 They took the bones and buried them under the tamarisk tree at Jabesh; then they fasted for seven days.

[1] sn The Semitic goddess Astarte was associated with love and war in the ancient Near East. See the note on the same term in 7:3.

[2] tc The translation follows the MT, which vocalizes the verb as a Qal. The LXX, however, treats the verb as a Hiphil, "they brought."

2 Samuel

David Learns of the Deaths of Saul and Jonathan

1:1 After the death of Saul,[1] when David had returned from defeating the Amalekites,[2] he stayed at Ziklag[3] for two days. 1:2 On the third day a man arrived from the camp of Saul with his clothes torn and dirt on his head.[4] When he approached David, the man[5] threw himself to the ground.[6]

1:3 David asked him, "Where are you coming from?" He replied, "I have escaped from the camp of Israel." 1:4 David inquired, "How were things going?[7] Tell me!" He replied, "The people fled from the battle and many of them[8] fell dead.[9] Even Saul and his son Jonathan are dead!" 1:5 David said to the young man[10] who was telling him this, "How do you know that Saul and his son Jonathan are dead?"[11] 1:6 The young man who was telling him this[12] said, "I just happened to be on Mount Gilboa and came across Saul leaning on his spear for support. The chariots and leaders of the horsemen were in hot pursuit of him. 1:7 When he turned around and saw me, he called out to me. I answered, 'Here I am!' 1:8 He asked me, 'Who are you?' I told him, 'I'm[13] an Amalekite.' 1:9 He said to me, 'Stand over me and finish me off![14] I'm very dizzy,[15] even though I'm still alive.'[16] 1:10 So I stood over him and put him to death, since I knew that he couldn't live in such a condition.[17] Then I took the crown which was on his head and the[18] bracelet which was on his arm. I have brought them here to my lord."[19]

---

1 sn This chapter is closely linked to 1 Sam 31. It should be kept in mind that 1 and 2 Samuel were originally a single book, not separate volumes. Whereas in English Bible tradition the books of Samuel, Kings, Chronicles, and Ezra-Nehemiah are each regarded as two separate books, this was not the practice in ancient Hebrew tradition. Early canonical records, for example, counted them as single books respectively. The division into two books goes back to the Greek translation of the OT and was probably initiated because of the cumbersome length of copies due to the Greek practice (unlike that of Hebrew) of writing vowels. The present division into two books can be a little misleading in terms of perceiving the progression of the argument of the book; in some ways it is preferable to treat the books of 1-2 Samuel in a unified fashion.

2 sn The Amalekites were a nomadic people who inhabited Judah and the Transjordan. They are mentioned in Gen 36:15-16 as descendants of Amalek who in turn descended from Esau. In Exod 17:8-16 they are described as having acted in a hostile fashion toward Israel as the Israelites traveled to Canaan from Egypt. In David's time the Amalekites were viewed as dangerous enemies who raided, looted, and burned Israelite cities (see 1 Sam 30).

3 sn Ziklag was a city in the Negev which had been given to David by Achish king of Gath. For more than a year David used it as a base from which he conducted military expeditions (see 1 Sam 27:5-12). According to 1 Sam 30:1-19, Ziklag was destroyed by the Amalekites while Saul fought the Philistines.

4 sn Tearing one's clothing and throwing dirt on one's head were outward expressions of grief in the ancient Near East, where such demonstrable reactions were a common response to tragic news.

5 tn Heb "he"; the referent (the man mentioned at the beginning of v. 2) has been specified in the translation to avoid confusion as to who fell to the ground.

6 tn Heb "he fell to the ground and did obeisance."

7 tn Heb "What was the word?"

8 tn Heb "from the people."

9 tn Heb "fell and died."

10 tn In v. 2 he is called simply a "man." The word used here in v. 5 (so also in vv. 6, 13, 15), though usually referring to a young man or servant, may in this context designate a "fighting" man, i.e., a soldier.

11 tc Instead of the MT "who was recounting this to him, 'How do you know that Saul and his son Jonathan are dead?'" the Syriac Peshitta reads "declare to me how Saul and his son Jonathan died."

12 tc The Syriac Peshitta and one MS of the LXX lack the words "who was telling him this" of the MT.

13 tc The present translation reads with the Qere and many medieval Hebrew MSS "and I said," rather than the Kethib which has "and he said." See the LXX, Syriac Peshitta, and Vulgate, all of which have the first person.

14 tn As P. K. McCarter (II Samuel [AB], 59) points out, the Polel of the verb מוּת (mut, "to die") "refers to dispatching or 'finishing off' someone already wounded and near death." Cf. NLT "put me out of my misery."

15 tn Heb "the dizziness has seized me." On the meaning of the Hebrew noun translated "dizziness," see P. K. McCarter, II Samuel (AB), 59-60. The point seems to be that he is unable to kill himself because he is weak and disoriented.

16 tn The Hebrew text here is grammatically very awkward (Heb "because all still my life in me"). Whether the broken construct phrase is due to the fact that the alleged speaker is in a confused state of mind as he is on the verge of dying, or whether the MT has sustained corruption in the transmission process, is not entirely clear. The former seems likely, although P. K. McCarter understands the MT to be the result of conflation of two shorter forms of text (P. K. McCarter, II Samuel [AB], 57, n. 9). Early translators also struggled with the verse, apparently choosing to leave part of the Hebrew text untranslated. For example, the Lucianic recension of the LXX lacks "all," while other witnesses (namely, one medieval Hebrew MS, codices A and B of the LXX, and the Syriac Peshitta) lack "still."

17 tn Heb "after his falling"; NAB "could not survive his wound"; CEV "was too badly wounded to live much longer."

18 tc The MT lacks the definite article, but this is likely due to textual corruption. It is preferable to read the alef (א) of אֲצָעָדָה ('ets'adah) as a ה (he) giving הַצָּעָדָה (hats'adah). There is no reason to think that the soldier confiscated from Saul's dead body only one of two or more bracelets that he was wearing (cf. NLT "one of his bracelets").

19 sn The claims that the soldier is making here seem to contradict the story of Saul's death as presented in 1 Sam 31:3-5. In that passage it appears that Saul took his own life, not that he was slain by a passerby who happened on the scene. Some scholars account for the discrepancy by supposing that conflicting accounts have been brought together in the MT. However, it is likely that the young man is here fabricating the account in a self-serving way so as to gain favor with David, or so he supposes. He probably had come across

1:11 David then grabbed his own clothes[1] and tore them, as did all the men who were with him.
1:12 They lamented and wept and fasted until evening because Saul, his son Jonathan, the LORD's people, and the house of Israel had fallen by the sword.

1:13 David said to the young man who told this to him, "Where are you from?" He replied, "I am an Amalekite, the son of a resident foreigner."[2] 1:14 David replied to him, "How is it that you were not afraid to reach out your hand to destroy the LORD's anointed?" 1:15 Then David called one of the soldiers[3] and said, "Come here and strike him down!" So he struck him down, and he died.
1:16 David said to him, "Your blood be on your own head! Your own mouth has testified against you, saying 'I have put the LORD's anointed to death.'"

David's Tribute to Saul and Jonathan

1:17 Then David chanted this lament over Saul and his son Jonathan. 1:18 (He gave instructions that the people of Judah should be taught "The Bow."[4] Indeed, it is written down in the Scroll of the Upright One.)[5]

1:19 The beauty[6] of Israel lies slain on your high places!
How the mighty have fallen!
1:20 Don't report it in Gath, don't spread the news in the streets of Ashkelon,[7] or the daughters of the Philistines will rejoice,
the daughters of the uncircumcised will celebrate!
1:21 O mountains of Gilboa, may there be no dew or rain on you, nor fields of grain offerings![8]
For it was there that the shield of warriors was defiled;[9]
the shield of Saul lies neglected without oil.[10]
1:22 From the blood of the slain, from the fat of warriors,
the bow of Jonathan was not turned away.
The sword of Saul never returned[11] empty.
1:23 Saul and Jonathan were greatly loved[12] during their lives, and not even in their deaths were they separated.
They were swifter than eagles, stronger than lions.
1:24 O daughters of Israel, weep over Saul, who clothed you in scarlet[13] as well as jewelry,
who put gold jewelry on your clothes.
1:25 How the warriors have fallen in the midst of battle!
Jonathan lies slain on your high places!
1:26 I grieve over you, my brother Jonathan!
You were very dear to me.
Your love was more special to me than the love of women.

Saul's corpse, stolen the crown and bracelet from the body, and now hopes to curry favor with David by handing over to him these emblems of Saul's royalty. But in so doing the Amalekite greatly miscalculated David's response to this alleged participation in Saul's death. The consequence of his lies will instead be his own death.

[1] tc The present translation follows the Qere and many medieval Hebrew MSS in reading "his garments," rather than "his garment," the reading of the Kethib.

[2] tn The Hebrew word used here refers to a foreigner whose social standing was something less than that of native residents of the land, but something more than that of a nonresident foreigner who was merely passing through.

[3] tn Heb "young men."

[4] tn Heb "be taught the bow." The reference to "the bow" is very difficult here. Some interpreters (e.g., S. R. Driver, P. K. McCarter, Jr.) suggest deleting the word from the text (cf. NAB, TEV), but there does not seem to be sufficient evidence for doing so. Others (cf. KJV) understand the reference to be elliptical, meaning "the use of the bow." The verse would then imply that with the deaths of Saul and Jonathan having occurred, a period of trying warfare is about to begin, requiring adequate preparation for war on the part of the younger generation. Various other views may also be found in the secondary literature. However, it seems best to understand the word here to be a reference to the name of a song (i.e., "The Bow"), most likely the poem that follows in vv. 19-27 (cf. ASV, NASB, NRSV, CEV, NLT); NIV "this lament of the bow."

[5] sn The Scroll of the Upright One is a noncanonical writing no longer in existence. It is referred to here and in Josh 10:12-13. It apparently was "a collection of ancient national poetry" (so BDB 449 s.v. יָשָׁר).

[6] sn The word beauty is used figuratively here to refer to Saul and Jonathan.

[7] sn The cities of Gath and Ashkelon are mentioned here by synecdoche of part for the whole. As major Philistine cities they in fact represent all of Philistia. The point is that when the sad news of fallen Israelite leadership reaches the Philistines, it will be for these enemies of Israel the occasion of great joy rather than grief.

[8] tc Instead of the MT's "fields of grain offerings" the Lucianic recension of the LXX reads "your high places are mountains of death." Cf. the Old Latin montes mortis ("mountains of death").

[9] tn This is the only biblical occurrence of the Niphal of the verb גָּעַל (ga'al). This verb usually has the sense of "to abhor" or "loathe." But here it seems to refer to the now dirty and unprotected condition of a previously well-maintained instrument of battle.

[10] tc It is preferable to read here Hebrew מָשׁוּחַ (mashuakh) with many Hebrew MSS, rather than מָשִׁיחַ (mashiakh) of the MT. Although the Syriac Peshitta understands the statement to pertain to Saul, the point here is not that Saul is not anointed. Rather, it is the shield of Saul that lies discarded and is no longer anointed. In ancient Near Eastern practice a warrior's shield that was in normal use would have to be anointed regularly in order to ensure that the leather did not become dry and brittle. Like other warriors of his day Saul would have carefully maintained his tools of trade. But now that he is dead, the once-cared-for shield of the mighty warrior lies sadly discarded and woefully neglected, a silent but eloquent commentary on how different things are now compared to the way they were during Saul's lifetime.

[11] tn The Hebrew imperfect verbal form is used here to indicate repeated past action.

[12] tn Heb "beloved and dear."

[13] sn Clothing of scarlet was expensive and beyond the financial reach of most people.

1:27 How the warriors have fallen!
The weapons of war[1] are destroyed!

David is Anointed King

2:1 Afterward David inquired of the LORD, "Should I go up to one of the cities of Judah?" The LORD told him, "Go up." David asked, "Where should I go?" The LORD replied,[2] "To Hebron." 2:2 So David went up, along with his two wives, Ahinoam the Jezreelite and Abigail, formerly the wife of Nabal the Carmelite. 2:3 David also brought along the men who were with him, each with his family. They settled in the cities[3] of Hebron. 2:4 The men of Judah came and there they anointed David as king over the people[4] of Judah.

David was told,[5] "The people[6] of Jabesh Gilead are the ones who buried Saul." 2:5 So David sent messengers to the people of Jabesh Gilead and told them, "May you be blessed by the LORD because you have shown this kindness[7] to your lord Saul by burying him. 2:6 Now may the LORD show you true kindness![8] I also will reward you,[9] because you have done this deed. 2:7 Now be courageous[10] and prove to be valiant warriors, for your lord Saul is dead. The people of Judah have anointed me as king over them."

David's Army Clashes with the Army of Saul

2:8 Now Abner son of Ner, the general in command of Saul's army, had taken Saul's son Ish-bosheth[11] and had brought him to Mahanaim. 2:9 He appointed him king over Gilead, the Geshurites,[12] Jezreel, Ephraim, Benjamin, and all Israel. 2:10 Ish-bosheth son of Saul was forty years old when he began to rule over Israel. He ruled two years. However, the people[13] of Judah followed David. 2:11 David was king in Hebron over the people of Judah for seven and a half years.[14]

2:12 Then Abner son of Ner and the servants of Ish-bosheth son of Saul went out from Mahanaim to Gibeon. 2:13 Joab son of Zeruiah and the servants of David also went out and confronted them at the pool of Gibeon. One group stationed themselves on one side of the pool, and the other group on the other side of the pool. 2:14 Abner said to Joab, "Let the soldiers get up and fight[15] before us." Joab said, "So be it!"[16]

2:15 So they got up and crossed over by number: twelve belonging to Benjamin and to Ish-bosheth son of Saul, and twelve from the servants of David. 2:16 As they grappled with one another, each one stabbed his opponent with his sword and they fell dead together.[17] So that place is called the Field of Flints;[18] it is in Gibeon.

2:17 Now the battle was very severe that day; Abner and the men of Israel were overcome by David's soldiers.[19] 2:18 The three sons of Zeruiah were there – Joab, Abishai, and Asahel. (Now Asahel was as quick on his feet as one of the gazelles in the field.) 2:19 Asahel chased Abner, without turning to the right or to the left as he followed Abner.

2:20 Then Abner turned and asked, "Is that you, Asahel?" He replied, "Yes it is!" 2:21 Abner said to him, "Turn aside to your right or to your left. Capture one of the soldiers[20] and take his equipment for yourself!" But Asahel was not willing to turn aside from following him. 2:22 So Abner spoke again to Asahel, "Turn aside from following me! I do not want to strike you to the ground.[21] How then could I show[22] my face in the presence of Joab your brother?"

---

[1] sn The expression weapons of war may here be a figurative way of referring to Saul and Jonathan.

[2] tn Heb "he said." The referent (the LORD) has been specified in the translation for clarity and for stylistic reasons.

[3] tc The expression "the cities of Hebron" is odd; we would expect the noun to be in the singular, if used at all. Although the Syriac Peshitta has the expected reading "in Hebron," the MT is clearly the more difficult reading and should probably be retained here.

[4] tn Heb "house."

[5] tn Heb "and they told David." The subject appears to be indefinite, allowing one to translate the verb as passive with David as subject.

[6] tn Heb "men."

[7] tn Or "loyalty."

[8] tn Or "loyalty and devotion."

[9] tn Heb "will do with you this good."

[10] tn Heb "let your hands be strong."

[11] sn The name Ish-bosheth means in Hebrew "man of shame." It presupposes an earlier form such as Ish-baal ("man of the Lord"), with the word "baal" being used of Israel's God. But because the Canaanite storm god was named "Baal," that part of the name was later replaced with the word "shame."

[12] tc The MT here reads "the Ashurite," but this is problematic if it is taken to mean "the Assyrian." Ish-bosheth's kingdom obviously was not of such proportions as to extend to Assyria. The Syriac Peshitta and the Vulgate render the word as "the Geshurite," while the Targum has "of the house of Ashur." We should probably emend the Hebrew text to read "the Geshurite." The Geshurites lived in the northeastern part of the land of Palestine.

[13] tn Heb "house."

[14] tn Heb "And the number of the days in which David was king in Hebron over the house of Judah was seven years and six months."

[15] tn Heb "play." What is in view here is a gladiatorial contest in which representative groups of soldiers engage in mortal combat before the watching armies. Cf. NAB "perform for us"; NASB "hold (have NRSV) a contest before us"; NLT "put on an exhibition of hand-to-hand combat."

[16] tn Heb "let them arise."

[17] tn Heb "and they grabbed each one the head of his neighbor with his sword in the side of his neighbor and they fell together."

[18] tn The meaning of the name "Helkath Hazzurim" (so NIV; KJV, NASB, NRSV similar) is not clear. BHK relates the name to the Hebrew term for "side," and this is reflected in NAB "the Field of the Sides"; the Greek OT revocalizes the Hebrew to mean something like "Field of Adversaries." Cf. also TEV, NLT "Field of Swords"; CEV "Field of Daggers."

[19] tn Heb "servants." So also elsewhere.

[20] tn Heb "young men." So also elsewhere.

[21] tn Heb "Why should I strike you to the ground?"

[22] tn Heb "lift."

2:23 But Asahel[1] refused to turn aside. So Abner struck him in the abdomen with the back end of his[2] spear. The spear came out his back; Asahel[3] collapsed on the spot and died there right before Abner.[4] Everyone who now comes to the place where Asahel fell dead pauses in respect.[5]

2:24 So Joab and Abishai chased Abner. At sunset they came to the hill of Ammah near Giah on the way to the wilderness of Gibeon. 2:25 The Benjaminites formed their ranks[6] behind Abner and were like a single army, standing at the top of a certain hill.

2:26 Then Abner called out to Joab, "Must the sword devour forever? Don't you realize that this will turn bitter in the end? When will you tell the people to turn aside from pursuing their brothers?" 2:27 Joab replied, "As surely as God lives, if you had not said this, it would have been morning before the people would have abandoned pursuit[7] of their brothers!" 2:28 Then Joab blew the ram's horn and all the people stopped in their tracks.[8] They stopped chasing Israel and ceased fighting.[9] 2:29 Abner and his men went through the Arabah all that night. They crossed the Jordan River[10] and went through the whole region of Bitron[11] and came to Mahanaim.

2:30 Now Joab returned from chasing Abner and assembled all the people. Nineteen of David's soldiers were missing, in addition to Asahel. 2:31 But David's soldiers had slaughtered the Benjaminites and Abner's men – in all, 360 men had died! 2:32 They took Asahel's body and buried him in his father's tomb at Bethlehem.[12] Joab and his men then traveled all that night and reached Hebron by dawn. 3:1 However, the war was prolonged between the house of Saul and the house of David. David was becoming steadily stronger, while the house of Saul was becoming increasingly weaker.

3:2 Now sons were born to David in Hebron. His firstborn was Amnon, born to Ahinoam the Jezreelite. 3:3 His second son[13] was Kileab, born to Abigail the widow[14] of Nabal the Carmelite. His third son was Absalom, the son of Maacah daughter of King Talmai of Geshur. 3:4 His fourth son was Adonijah, the son of Haggith. His fifth son was Shephatiah, the son of Abital. 3:5 His sixth son was Ithream, born to David's wife Eglah. These sons[15] were all born to David in Hebron.

Abner Defects to David's Camp

3:6 As the war continued between the house of Saul and the house of David, Abner was becoming more influential[16] in the house of Saul. 3:7 Now Saul had a concubine named Rizpah daughter of Aiah. Ish-bosheth[17] said to Abner, "Why did you have sexual relations with[18] my father's concubine?"[19]

3:8 These words of Ish-bosheth really angered Abner and he said, "Am I the head of a dog that belongs to Judah? This very day I am demonstrating[20] loyalty to the house of Saul your father and to his relatives[21] and his friends! I have not betrayed you into the hand of David. Yet you have accused me of sinning with this woman today![22] 3:9 God will severely judge Abner[23] if I do not do for David exactly what the

6 tn Heb "were gathered together."

7 tn The Hebrew verb נָעֲלָה (na'alah) used here is the Niphal perfect 3rd person masculine singular of עָלָה ('alah, "to go up"). In the Niphal this verb "is used idiomatically, of getting away from so as to abandon...especially of an army raising a siege..." (see S. R. Driver, Notes on the Hebrew Text and the Topography of the Books of Samuel, 244).

8 tn Heb "stood."

9 tn Heb "they no longer chased after Israel and they no longer fought."

10 tn The word "River" is not in the Hebrew text, but is supplied in the translation for clarity.

11 tn Heb "and they went, all the Bitron." The meaning of the Hebrew word "Bitron," which is used only here in the OT, is disputed. The translation above follows BDB 144 s.v. בִּתְרוֹן in taking the word to be a proper name of an area east of the Jordan. A different understanding was advocated by W. R. Arnold, who took the word to refer to the forenoon or morning; a number of modern scholars and translations have adopted this view (cf. NAB, NASB, NRSV, CEV, NLT). See W. R. Arnold, "The Meaning of בתרון," AJSL 28 (1911-1912): 274-83. In this case one could translate "and they traveled all morning long."

13 tn The Hebrew text does not have the word "son." So also in vv. 3-5.

14 tn Heb "wife."

15 tn The Hebrew text does not have "sons."

16 tn Heb "was strengthening himself." The statement may have a negative sense here, perhaps suggesting that Abner was overstepping the bounds of political propriety in a self-serving way.

17 tc The Hebrew of the MT reads simply "and he said," with no expressed subject for the verb. It is not likely that the text originally had no expressed subject for this verb, since the antecedent is not immediately clear from the context. We should probably restore to the Hebrew text the name "Ish-bosheth." See a few medieval Hebrew MSS, Aquila, Symmachus, Theodotion, and Vulgate. Perhaps the name was accidentally omitted by homoioarcton. Note that both the name Ishbosheth and the following preposition אֶל ('el) begin with the letter alef.

18 tn Heb "come to"; KJV, NRSV "gone in to"; NAB "been intimate with"; NIV "sleep with."

19 sn This accusation against Abner is a very serious one, since an act of sexual infringement on the king's harem would probably have been understood as a blatant declaration of aspirations to kingship. As such it was not merely a matter of ethical impropriety but an act of grave political significance as well.

20 tn Heb "I do."

21 tn Heb "brothers."

22 tn Heb "and you have laid upon me the guilt of the woman today."

23 tn Heb "So will God do to Abner and so he will add to him."

LORD has promised him,[1] 3:10 namely, to transfer the kingdom from the house of Saul and to establish the throne of David over Israel and over Judah all the way from Dan to Beer Sheba!" 3:11 Ish-bosheth[2] was unable to answer Abner with even a single word because he was afraid of him.

3:12 Then Abner sent messengers[3] to David saying, "To whom does the land belong? Make an agreement[4] with me, and I will do whatever I can[5] to cause all Israel to turn to you." 3:13 So David said, "Good! I will make an agreement with you. I ask only one thing from you. You will not see my face unless you bring Saul's daughter Michal when you come to visit me."[6]

3:14 David sent messengers to Ish-bosheth son of Saul with this demand:[7] "Give me my wife Michal whom I acquired[8] for a hundred Philistine foreskins." 3:15 So Ish-bosheth took her[9] from her husband Paltiel[10] son of Laish. 3:16 Her husband went along behind her, weeping all the way to Bahurim. Finally Abner said to him, "Go back!"[11] So he returned home.

3:17 Abner advised[12] the elders of Israel, "Previously you were wanting David to be your king.[13] 3:18 Act now! For the LORD has said to David, 'By the hand of my servant David I will save[14] my people Israel from[15] the Philistines and from all their enemies.'"

3:19 Then Abner spoke privately[16] with the Benjaminites. Abner also went to Hebron to inform David privately[17] of all that Israel and the entire house of Benjamin had agreed to.[18] 3:20 When Abner, accompanied by twenty men, came to David in Hebron, David prepared a banquet for Abner and the men who were with him. 3:21 Abner said to David, "Let me leave so that I may go and gather all Israel to my lord the king so that they may make an agreement[19] with you. Then you will rule over all that you desire." So David sent Abner away, and he left in peace.

Abner Is Killed

3:22 Now David's soldiers[20] and Joab were coming back from a raid, bringing a great deal of plunder with them. Abner was no longer with David in Hebron, for David[21] had sent him away and he had left in peace. 3:23 When Joab and all the army that was with him arrived, Joab was told: "Abner the son of Ner came to the king; he sent him away, and he left in peace!"

3:24 So Joab went to the king and said, "What have you done? Abner[22] has come to you! Why would you send him away? Now he's gone on his way![23] 3:25 You know Abner the son of Ner! Surely he came here to spy on you and to determine when you leave and when you return[24] and to discover everything that you are doing!"

3:26 Then Joab left David and sent messengers after Abner. They brought him back from the well of Sirah. (But David was not aware of it.) 3:27 When Abner returned to Hebron, Joab took him aside at the gate as if to speak privately with him. Joab then stabbed him[25] in the abdomen and killed him, avenging the shed blood of his brother Asahel.[26]

3:28 When David later heard about this, he said, "I and my kingdom are forever innocent before the LORD of the shed blood of Abner son of Ner! 3:29 May his blood whirl over[27] the head of Joab and the entire house of his father![28] May

[1] tc Heb "has sworn to David." The LXX, with the exception of the recension of Origen, adds "in this day."

[2] tn Heb "he"; the referent (Ish-bosheth) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[3] tn The Hebrew text adds here, "on his behalf."

[4] tn Heb "cut a covenant." So also in vv. 13, 21.

[5] tn Heb "and behold, my hand is with you."

[6] tn The words "when you come to see my face," though found in the Hebrew text, are somewhat redundant given the similar expression in the earlier part of the verse. The words are absent from the Syriac Peshitta.

[7] tn Heb "to Ish-bosheth son of Saul saying." To avoid excessive sibilance (especially when read aloud) the translation renders "saying" as "with this demand."

[8] tn Heb "whom I betrothed to myself."

[9] tn Heb "sent and took her."

[10] tn In 1 Sam 25:44 this name appears as "Palti."

[11] tn Heb "Go, return."

[12] tn Heb "the word of Abner was with."

[13] tn Heb "you were seeking David to be king over you."

[14] tc The present translation follows the LXX, the Syriac Peshitta, and Vulgate in reading "I will save," rather than the MT "he saved." The context calls for the 1st person common singular imperfect of the verb rather than the 3rd person masculine singular perfect.

[15] tn Heb "from the hand of."

[16] tn Heb "into the ears of."

[17] tn Heb "also Abner went to speak into the ears of David in Hebron."

[18] tn Heb "all which was good in the eyes of Israel and in the eyes of all the house of Benjamin."

[19] tn After the cohortatives, the prefixed verbal form with the prefixed conjunction indicates purpose or result.

[20] tn Heb "And look, the servants of David."

[21] tn Heb "he"; the referent (David) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[22] tn Heb "Look, Abner."

[23] tc The LXX adds "in peace."

[24] tn Heb "your going out and your coming in." The expression is a merism. It specifically mentions the polar extremities of the actions but includes all activity in between the extremities as well, thus encompassing the entirety of one's activities.

[25] tn Heb "and he struck him down there [in] the stomach."

[26] tn Heb "and he [i.e., Abner] died on account of the blood of Asahel his [i.e., Joab's] brother."

[27] tn Heb "and may they whirl over." In the Hebrew text the subject of the plural verb is unexpressed. The most likely subject is Abner's "shed blood" (v. 28), which is a masculine plural form in Hebrew. The verb חוּל (khul, "whirl") is used with the preposition עַל ('al) only here and in Jer 23:19; 30:23.

[28] tc 4QSam[a] has "of Joab" rather than "of his father" read by the MT.

the males of Joab's house[1] never cease to have[2] someone with a running sore or a skin disease or one who works at the spindle[3] or one who falls by the sword or one who lacks food!"

3:30 So Joab and his brother Abishai killed Abner, because he had killed their brother Asahel in Gibeon during the battle.

3:31 David instructed Joab and all the people who were with him, "Tear your clothes! Put on sackcloth! Lament before Abner!" Now King David followed[4] behind the funeral bier. 3:32 So they buried Abner in Hebron. The king cried loudly[5] over Abner's grave and all the people wept too. 3:33 The king chanted the following lament for Abner:

> "Should Abner have died like a fool?
> 3:34 Your hands[6] were not bound,
> and your feet were not put into irons.
> You fell the way one falls before criminals."

All the people[7] wept over him again. 3:35 Then all the people came and encouraged David to eat food while it was still day. But David took an oath saying, "God will punish me severely[8] if I taste bread or anything whatsoever before the sun sets!"

3:36 All the people noticed this and it pleased them.[9] In fact, everything the king did pleased all the people. 3:37 All the people and all Israel realized on that day that the killing of Abner son of Ner was not done at the king's instigation.[10]

3:38 Then the king said to his servants, "Do you not realize that a great leader[11] has fallen this day in Israel? 3:39 Today I am weak, even though I am anointed as king. These men, the sons of Zeruiah, are too much for me to bear![12] May the LORD punish appropriately the one who has done this evil thing!"[13]

Ish-bosheth is killed

4:1 When Ish-bosheth[14] the son of Saul heard that Abner had died in Hebron, he was very disheartened,[15] and all Israel was afraid. 4:2 Now Saul's son[16] had two men who were in charge of raiding units; one was named Baanah and the other Recab. They were sons of Rimmon the Beerothite, who was a Benjaminite. (Beeroth is regarded as belonging to Benjamin, 4:3 for the Beerothites fled to Gittaim and have remained there as resident foreigners until the present time.)[17]

4:4 Now Saul's son Jonathan had a son who was crippled in both feet. He was five years old when the news about Saul and Jonathan arrived from Jezreel. His nurse picked him up and fled, but in her haste to get away, he fell and was injured.[18] Mephibosheth was his name.

4:5 Now the sons of Rimmon the Beerothite – Recab and Baanah – went at the hottest part of the day to the home of Ish-bosheth, as he was enjoying his midday rest. 4:6 They[19] entered the house under the pretense of getting wheat and mortally wounded him[20] in the stomach. Then Recab and his brother Baanah escaped.

4:7 They had entered[21] the house while Ish-bosheth[22] was resting on his bed in his bedroom. They mortally wounded him[23] and then cut off

[1] tn Heb "the house of Joab." However, it is necessary to specify that David's curse is aimed at Joab's male descendants; otherwise it would not be clear that "one who works at the spindle" refers to a man doing woman's work rather than a woman.

[2] tn Heb "and may there not be cut off from the house of Joab."

[3] tn The expression used here is difficult. The translation "one who works at the spindle" follows a suggestion of S. R. Driver that the expression pejoratively describes an effeminate man who, rather than being a mighty warrior, is occupied with tasks that are normally fulfilled by women (S. R. Driver, Notes on the Hebrew Text and the Topography of the Books of Samuel, 250-51; cf. NAB "one unmanly"; TEV "fit only to do a woman's work"; CEV "cowards"). But P. K. McCarter, following an alleged Phoenician usage of the noun to refer to "crutches," adopts a different view. He translates the phrase "clings to a crutch," seeing here a further description of physical lameness (II Samuel [AB], 118). Such an idea fits the present context well and is followed by NIV, NCV, and NLT, although the evidence for this meaning is questionable. According to DNWSI 2:915-16, the noun consistently refers to a spindle in Phoenician, as it does in Ugaritic (see UT 468).

[4] tn Heb "was walking."

[5] tn Heb "lifted up his voice and wept." The expression is a verbal hendiadys.

[6] tc The translation follows many medieval Hebrew manuscripts and several ancient versions in reading "your hands," rather than "your hand."

[7] tc 4QSam[a] lacks the words "all the people."

[8] tn Heb "Thus God will do to me and thus he will add."

[9] tn Heb "it was good in their eyes."

[10] tn Heb "from the king."

[11] tn Heb "a leader and a great one." The expression is a hendiadys.

[12] tn Heb "are hard from me."

[13] tn Heb "May the LORD repay the doer of the evil according to his evil" (NASB similar).

[14] tn The MT does not specify the subject of the verb here, but the reference is to Ish-bosheth, so the name has been supplied in the translation for clarity. 4QSam[a] and the LXX mistakenly read "Mephibosheth."

[15] tn Heb "his hands went slack."

[16] tc The present translation, "Saul's son had two men," is based on the reading "to the son of Saul," rather than the MT's "the son of Saul." The context requires the preposition to indicate the family relationship.

[17] tn Heb "until this day."

[18] tn Heb "and was lame."

[19] tc For the MT's וְהֵנָּה (v^ehennah, "and they," feminine) read וְהִנֵּה (v^ehinneh, "and behold"). See the LXX, Syriac Peshitta, and Targum.

[20] tn Heb "and they struck him down."

[21] tn After the concluding disjunctive clause at the end of v. 6, the author now begins a more detailed account of the murder and its aftermath.

[22] tn Heb "he"; the referent (Ish-bosheth) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[23] tn Heb "they struck him down and killed him." The expression is a verbal hendiadys.

his head.[1] Taking his head,[2] they traveled on the way of the Arabah all that night. 4:8 They brought the head of Ish-bosheth to David in Hebron, saying to the king, "Look! The head of Ish-bosheth son of Saul, your enemy who sought your life! The LORD has granted vengeance to my lord the king this day against[3] Saul and his descendants!"

4:9 David replied to Recab and his brother Baanah, the sons of Rimmon the Beerothite, "As surely as the LORD lives, who has delivered my life from all adversity, 4:10 when someone told me that Saul was dead – even though he thought he was bringing good news[4] – I seized him and killed him in Ziklag. That was the good news I gave to him! 4:11 Surely when wicked men have killed an innocent man as he slept[5] in his own house, should I not now require his blood from your hands and remove[6] you from the earth?"

4:12 So David issued orders to the soldiers and they put them to death. Then they cut off their hands and feet and hung them[7] near the pool in Hebron. But they took the head of Ish-bosheth[8] and buried it in the tomb of Abner[9] in Hebron.[10]

David Is Anointed King Over Israel

5:1 All the tribes of Israel came to David at Hebron saying, "Look, we are your very flesh and blood![11] 5:2 In the past, when Saul was our king, you were the real leader in Israel.[12] The LORD said to you, 'You will shepherd my people Israel; you will rule over Israel.'"

5:3 When all the leaders[13] of Israel came to the king at Hebron, King David made an agreement with them[14] in Hebron before the LORD. They designated[15] David as king over Israel. 5:4 David was thirty years old when he began to reign and he reigned for forty years. 5:5 In Hebron he reigned over Judah for seven years and six months, and in Jerusalem[16] he reigned for thirty-three years over all Israel and Judah.

David Occupies Jerusalem

5:6 Then the king and his men advanced to Jerusalem[17] against the Jebusites who lived in the land. The Jebusites[18] said to David, "You cannot invade this place! Even the blind and the lame will turn you back, saying, 'David cannot invade this place!'"

5:7 But David captured the fortress of Zion (that is, the City of David). 5:8 David said on that day, "Whoever attacks the Jebusites must approach the 'lame' and the 'blind' who are David's enemies[19] by going through the water tunnel."[20] For this reason it is said, "The blind and the lame cannot enter the palace."[21]

5:9 So David lived in the fortress and called it the City of David. David built all around it, from the terrace inwards. 5:10 David's power grew steadily, for the LORD God[22] who commands armies[23] was with him.[24]

5:11 King Hiram of Tyre[25] sent messengers to David, along with cedar logs, carpenters, and stonemasons. They built a palace[26] for David. 5:12 David realized that the LORD had established him as king over Israel and that he had elevated his kingdom for the sake of his people

1 tn Heb "and they removed his head." The Syriac Peshitta and Vulgate lack these words.

2 tc The Lucianic Greek recension lacks the words "his head."

3 tn Heb "from."

4 tn Heb "and he was like a bearer of good news in his eyes."

5 tn Heb "on his bed."

6 tn See HALOT 146 s.v. II בער. Some derive the verb from a homonym meaning "to burn; to consume."

7 tn The antecedent of the pronoun "them" (which is not present in the Hebrew text, but implied) is not entirely clear. Presumably it is the corpses that were hung and not merely the detached hands and feet; cf. NIV "hung the (their NRSV, NLT) bodies"; the alternative is represented by TEV "cut off their hands and feet, which they hung up."

8 tc 4QSam[a] mistakenly reads "Mephibosheth" here.

9 tc The LXX adds "the son of Ner" by conformity with common phraseology elsewhere.

10 tc Some MSS of the LXX lack the phrase "in Hebron."

11 tn Heb "look we are your bone and your flesh."

12 tn Heb "you were the one leading out and the one leading in Israel."

13 tn Heb "elders."

14 tn Heb "and the king, David, cut for them a covenant."

15 tn Heb "anointed."

18 tn The Hebrew text has "he" rather than "the Jebusites." The referent has been specified in the translation for clarity. In the Syriac Peshitta and some MSS of the Targum the verb is plural rather than singular.

19 tc There is some confusion among the witnesses concerning this word. The Kethib is the Qal perfect 3cp שָׂנְאוּ (san[e]'u, "they hated"), referring to the Jebusites' attitude toward David. The Qere is the Qal passive participle construct plural שְׂנוּאֵי (s[e]nu'e, "hated"), referring to David's attitude toward the Jebusites. 4QSam[a] has the Qal perfect 3rd person feminine singular שָׂנְאָה (san[e]'ah, "hated"), the subject of which would be "the soul of David." The difference is minor and the translation adopted above works for either the Kethib or the Qere.

20 tn The meaning of the Hebrew term has been debated. For a survey of various views, see P. K. McCarter, II Samuel (AB), 139-40.

sn If a water tunnel is in view here, it is probably the so-called Warren's Shaft that extends up from Hezekiah's tunnel. It would have provided a means for surprise attack against the occupants of the City of David. The LXX seems not to understand the reference here, translating "by the water shaft" as "with a small knife."

21 tn Heb "the house." TEV takes this as a reference to the temple ("the Lord's house").

22 tc 4QSam[a] and the LXX lack the word "God," probably due to harmonization with the more common biblical phrase "the LORD of hosts."

23 tn Traditionally, "the LORD God of hosts" (KJV, NASB); NIV, NLT "the Lord God Almighty"; CEV "the Lord (+ God NCV) All-Powerful."

24 tn The translation assumes that the disjunctive clause is circumstantial-causal, giving the reason for David's success.

26 tn Heb "a house."

Israel. 5:13 David married more concubines and wives from Jerusalem after he arrived from Hebron. Even more sons and daughters were born to David. 5:14 These are the names of children born to him in Jerusalem: Shammua, Shobab, Nathan, Solomon, 5:15 Ibhar, Elishua, Nepheg, Japhia, 5:16 Elishama, Eliada, and Eliphelet.

Conflict with the Philistines

5:17 When the Philistines heard that David had been designated[1] king over Israel, they all[2] went up to search for David. When David heard about it, he went down to the fortress. 5:18 Now the Philistines had arrived and spread out in the valley of Rephaim. 5:19 So David asked the LORD, "Should I march up against the Philistines? Will you hand them over to me?" The LORD said to David, "March up, for I will indeed[3] hand the Philistines over to you."

5:20 So David marched against Baal Perazim and defeated them there. Then he said, "The LORD has burst out against my enemies like water bursts out." So he called the name of that place Baal Perazim.[4] 5:21 The Philistines[5] abandoned their idols[6] there, and David and his men picked them up.

5:22 The Philistines again came up and spread out in the valley of Rephaim. 5:23 So David asked the LORD what he should do.[7] This time[8] the LORD[9] said to him, "Don't march straight up. Instead, circle around behind them and come against them opposite the trees.[10] 5:24 When you hear the sound of marching in the tops of the trees, act decisively. For at that moment the LORD is going before you to strike down the army[11] of the Philistines." 5:25 David did just as the LORD commanded him, and he struck down the Philistines from Gibeon all the way to Gezer.[12]

David Brings the Ark to Jerusalem

6:1 David again assembled[13] all the best[14] men in Israel, thirty thousand in number. 6:2 David and all the men who were with him traveled[15] to[16] Baalah[17] in Judah to bring up from there the ark of God which is called by the name[18] of the LORD of hosts, who sits enthroned between the cherubim that are on it. 6:3 They loaded the ark of God on a new cart and carried it from the house of Abinadab, which was on the hill. Uzzah and Ahio, the sons of Abinadab, were guiding the new cart. 6:4 They brought[19] it with the ark of God up from the house of Abinadab on the hill. Ahio was walking in front of the ark, 6:5 while David and all Israel[20] were energetically celebrating before the LORD, singing[21] and playing various stringed instruments,[22] tambourines, rattles,[23] and cymbals.

6:6 When they arrived at the threshing floor of Nacon,[24] Uzzah reached out and grabbed hold of[25] the ark of God,[26] because the oxen stumbled. 6:7 The LORD was so furious with Uzzah,[27] he[28] killed him on the spot[29] for his negligence.[30] He died right there beside the ark of God.

6:8 David was angry because the LORD attacked[31] Uzzah; so he called that place Perez Uz-

1 tn Heb "anointed."

2 tn Heb "all the Philistines."

3 tn The infinitive absolute lends emphasis to the following verb.

4 tn The name means "Lord of the outbursts."

5 tn Heb "they"; the referent (the Philistines) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

6 tc For "idols" the LXX and Vulgate have "gods."

7 tn The words "what to do" are not in the Hebrew text.

8 tn The words "this time" are not in the Hebrew text.

9 tn Heb "he"; the referent (the LORD) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

10 tn Some translate as "balsam trees" (cf. NASB, NIV, NRSV, NJB, NLT); cf. KJV, NKJV, ASV "mulberry trees"; NAB "mastic trees"; NEB, REB "aspens." The exact identification of the type of tree or plant is uncertain.

11 tn Heb "camp" (so NAB).

12 tn Heb "from Gibeon until you enter Gezer."

13 tn The translation understands the verb to be a defective spelling of וַיֹּאסֶף (vayyo'esof) due to quiescence of the letter א (alef). The root therefore is אסף ('sf, "to gather"). The Masoretes, however, pointed the verb as וַיֹּסֶף (vayyosef), understanding it to be a form of יָסַף (yasaf, "to add"). This does not fit the context, which calls for a verb of gathering.

14 tn Or "chosen."

15 tn Heb "arose and went."

16 tn Heb "from," but the following context indicates they traveled to this location.

17 tn This is another name for Kiriath-jearim (see 1 Chr 13:6).

18 tc The MT has here a double reference to the name (שֵׁם שֵׁם, shem shem). Many medieval Hebrew MSS in the first occurrence point the word differently and read the adverb שָׁם (sham, "there"). This is also the understanding of the Syriac Peshitta (Syr., taman). While this yields an acceptable understanding to the text, it is more likely dittographic here. The present translation therefore reads שֵׁם only once.

19 tn Heb "lifted."

20 tn Heb "all the house of Israel."

21 tc Heb "were celebrating before the LORD with all woods of fir" (cf. KJV, ASV, NASB). If the text is retained, the last expression must be elliptical, referring to musical instruments made from fir wood. But it is preferable to emend the text in light of 1 Chr 13:8, which reads "were celebrating before the LORD with all strength and with songs."

22 tn Heb "with zithers [?] and with harps."

23 tn That is, "sistrums" (so NAB, NIV); ASV, NASB, NRSV, CEV, NLT "castanets."

24 tn 1 Chr 13:9 has "Kidon."

25 tn Or "steadied."

26 tn Heb "and Uzzah reached out toward the ark of God and grabbed it."

27 tn Heb "and the anger of the LORD burned against Uzzah."

28 tn Heb "God."

29 tc Heb "there." Since this same term occurs later in the verse it is translated "on the spot" here for stylistic reasons.

30 tc The phrase "his negligence" is absent from the LXX.

31 tn Heb "because the LORD broke out [with] a breaking out [i.e., an outburst] against Uzzah."

zah,[1] which remains its name to this very day. 6:9 David was afraid of the LORD that day and said, "How will the ark of the LORD ever come to me?" 6:10 So David was no longer willing to bring the ark of the LORD to be with him in the City of David. David left it in the house of Obed-Edom the Gittite. 6:11 The ark of the LORD remained in the house of Obed-Edom the Gittite for three months. The LORD blessed Obed-Edom and all his family.[2] 6:12 David was told,[3] "The LORD has blessed the family of Obed-Edom and everything he owns because of the ark of God." So David went and joyfully brought the ark of God from the house of Obed-Edom to the City of David. 6:13 Those who carried the ark of the LORD took six steps and then David[4] sacrificed an ox and a fatling calf. 6:14 Now David, wearing a linen ephod, was dancing with all his strength before the LORD.[5] 6:15 David and all Israel[6] were bringing up the ark of the LORD, shouting and blowing trumpets.[7]

6:16 As the ark of the LORD entered the City of David, Saul's daughter Michal looked out the window. When she saw King David leaping and dancing before the LORD, she despised him.[8] 6:17 They brought the ark of the LORD and put it in its place[9] in the middle of the tent that David had pitched for it. Then David offered burnt sacrifices and peace offerings before the LORD. 6:18 When David finished offering the burnt sacrifices and peace offerings, he pronounced a blessing over the people in the name of the LORD of hosts. 6:19 He then handed out to each member of the entire assembly of Israel,[10] both men and women, a portion of bread, a date cake,[11] and a raisin cake. Then all the people went home.[12] 6:20 When David went home to pronounce a blessing on his own house,[13] Michal, Saul's daughter, came out to meet him.[14] She said, "How the king of Israel has distinguished[15] himself this day! He has exposed himself today before his servants' slave girls the way a vulgar fool[16] might do!"

6:21 David replied to Michal, "It was before the LORD! I was celebrating before the LORD, who chose me over your father and his entire family[17] and appointed me as leader over the LORD's people Israel. 6:22 I am willing to shame and humiliate myself even more than this![18] But with the slave girls whom you mentioned let me be distinguished!" 6:23 Now Michal, Saul's daughter, had no children to the day of her death.

The Lord Establishes a Covenant with David

7:1 The king settled into his palace,[19] for the LORD gave him relief[20] from all his enemies on all sides.[21] 7:2 The king said to Nathan the prophet, "Look! I am living in a palace made from cedar, while the ark of God sits in the middle of a tent." 7:3 Nathan replied to the king, "You should go[22] and do whatever you have in mind,[23] for the LORD is with you." 7:4 That night the LORD told Nathan,[24] 7:5 "Go, tell my servant David: 'This is what the LORD says: Do you really intend to build a house for me to live in? 7:6 I have not lived in a house from the time I brought the Israelites up from Egypt to the present day. Instead, I was traveling with them and living in a tent.[25] 7:7 Wherever I moved among all the Israelites, I did not say[26] to any of the leaders[27] whom I appointed to care for[28] my people Israel, "Why have you not built me a house made from cedar?"'

7:8 "So now, say this to my servant David: 'This is what the LORD of hosts says: I took you from the pasture and from your work as a shepherd[29] to make you leader of my people Israel.

1 sn The name Perez Uzzah means in Hebrew "the outburst [against] Uzzah."

2 tn Heb "house," both here and in v. 12.

3 tn Heb "and it was told to David, saying."

4 tn Heb "he"; the referent (David) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

5 tn Heb "and David was dancing with all his strength before the LORD, and David was girded with a linen ephod."

6 tc Heb "all the house of Israel." A few medieval Hebrew MSS and the Syriac Peshitta lack the words "the house."

7 tn Heb "the shofar" (the ram's horn trumpet).

8 tn The Hebrew text adds "in her heart." Cf. CEV "she was disgusted (+ with him TEV)"; NLT "was filled with contempt for him"; NCV "she hated him."

9 tc The Syriac Peshitta lacks "in its place."

10 tn Heb "to all the people, to all the throng of Israel."

11 tn The Hebrew word used here אֲשִׁישָׁה ('espar) is found in the OT only here and in the parallel passage found in 1 Chr 16:3. Its exact meaning is uncertain, although the context indicates that it was a food of some sort (cf. KJV "a good piece of flesh"; NRSV "a portion of meat"). The translation adopted here ("date cake") follows the lead of the Greek translations of the LXX, Aquila, and Symmachus (cf. NASB, NIV, NLT).

12 tn Heb "and all the people went, each to his house."

13 tn Heb "and David returned to bless his house."

14 tn Heb "David." The name has been replaced by the pronoun ("him") in the translation for stylistic reasons.

15 tn Heb "honored."

16 tn Heb "one of the foolish ones."

17 tn Heb "all his house"; CEV "anyone else in your family."

18 tn Heb "and I will shame myself still more than this and I will be lowly in my eyes."

19 tn Heb "house" (also in the following verse).

20 tn Or "rest."

21 tn The translation understands the disjunctive clause in v. 1b as circumstantial-causal.

22 tc Several medieval Hebrew MSS and the Syriac Peshitta lack this word.

23 tn Heb "all that is in your heart."

24 tn Heb "the word of the LORD was [i.e., came] to Nathan."

25 tn Heb "in a tent and in a dwelling." The expression is a hendiadys, using two terms to express one idea.

26 tn Heb "Did I speak a word?" In the Hebrew text the statement is phrased as a rhetorical question.

27 tn Heb "tribes" (so KJV, NASB, NCV), but the parallel passage in 1 Chr 17:6 has "judges."

28 tn Heb "whom I commanded to shepherd" (so NIV, NRSV).

29 tn Heb "and from after the sheep."

7:9 I was with you wherever you went, and I defeated[1] all your enemies before you. Now I will make you as famous as the great men of the earth.[2] 7:10 I will establish a place for my people Israel and settle[3] them there; they will live there and not be disturbed[4] any more. Violent men[5] will not oppress them again, as they did in the beginning 7:11 and during the time when I appointed judges to lead my people Israel. Instead, I will give you relief[6] from all your enemies. The LORD declares[7] to you that he himself[8] will build a dynastic house[9] for you. 7:12 When the time comes for you to die,[10] I will raise up your descendant, one of your own sons, to succeed you,[11] and I will establish his kingdom. 7:13 He will build a house for my name, and I will make his dynasty permanent.[12] 7:14 I will become his father and he will become my son. When he sins, I will correct him with the rod of men and with wounds inflicted by human beings. 7:15 But my loyal love will not be removed from him as I removed it from Saul, whom I removed from before you. 7:16 Your house and your kingdom will stand before me[13] permanently; your dynasty[14] will be permanent.'" 7:17 Nathan told David all these words that were revealed to him.[15]

David Offers a Prayer to God

7:18 King David went in, sat before the LORD, and said, "Who am I, O LORD God, and what is my family,[16] that you should have brought me to this point? 7:19 And you didn't stop there, O LORD God! You have also spoken about the future of your servant's family.[17] Is this your usual way of dealing with men,[18] O LORD God? 7:20 What more can David say to you? You have given your servant special recognition,[19] O LORD God! 7:21 For the sake of your promise and according to your purpose[20] you have done this great thing in order to reveal it to your servant.[21] 7:22 Therefore you are great, O LORD God, for there is none like you! There is no God besides you! What we have heard is true![22] 7:23 Who is like your people, Israel, a unique nation[23] on the earth? Their God[24] went[25] to claim[26] a nation for himself and to make a name for himself! You did great and awesome acts for your land,[27] before your people whom you delivered for yourself from the Egyptian empire and its gods.[28] 7:24 You made Israel your very own people for all time.[29] You, O LORD, became their God. 7:25 So now, O LORD God, make this promise you have made about your servant and his family a permanent reality.[30] Do

1 tn Heb "cut off."

2 tn Heb "and I will make for you a great name like the name of the great ones who are in the earth."

3 tn Heb "plant."

4 tn Heb "shaken."

5 tn Heb "the sons of violence."

6 tn Or "rest."

7 tn In the Hebrew text the verb is apparently perfect with vav consecutive, which would normally suggest a future sense ("he will declare"; so the LXX, ἀπαγγελεῖ [apangelei]). But the context seems instead to call for a present or past nuance ("he declares" or "he has declared"). The synoptic passage in 1 Chr 17:10 has וְאַגֵּד (va'aggid, "and I declared"). The construction used in 2 Sam 7:11 highlights this important statement.

8 tn Heb "the LORD."

9 tn Heb "house," but used here in a metaphorical sense, referring to a royal dynasty. Here the LORD's use of the word plays off the literal sense that David had in mind as he contemplated building a temple for the LORD. To reflect this in the English translation the adjective "dynastic" has been supplied.

10 tn Heb, "when your days are full and you lie down with your ancestors."

11 tn Heb "your seed after you who comes out from your insides."

12 tn Heb "and I will establish the throne of his kingdom permanently."

13 tc Heb "before you." A few medieval Hebrew MSS read instead "before me," which makes better sense contextually. (See also the LXX and the Syriac Peshitta.) The MT reading is probably the result of dittography (note the כ [kaf] at the beginning of the next form), with the extra כ then being interpreted as a pronominal suffix.

14 tn Heb "throne."

15 tn Heb "according to all these words and according to all this revelation, so Nathan said to David."

16 tn Heb "house."

17 tn Heb "and this was small in your eyes, O LORD God, so you spoke concerning the house of your servant for a distance."

18 tn Heb "and this [is] the law of man"; KJV "is this the manner of man, O Lord GOD?"; NAB "this too you have shown to man"; NRSV "May this be instruction for the people, O Lord God!" This part of the verse is very enigmatic; no completely satisfying solution has yet been suggested. The present translation tries to make sense of the MT by understanding the phrase as a question that underscores the uniqueness of God's dealings with David as described here. The parallel passage in 1 Chr 17:17 reads differently (see the note there).

19 tn Heb "and you know your servant." The verb here refers to recognizing another in a special way and giving them special treatment (see 1 Chr 17:18). Some English versions take this to refer to the Lord's knowledge of David himself: CEV "you know my thoughts"; NLT "know what I am really like."

20 tn Heb "for the sake of your word and according to your heart."

21 tn Heb "to make known, your servant."

22 tn Heb "in all which we heard with our ears." The phrase translated "in all" בְּכֹל (bekhol) should probably be emended to "according to all" כְּכֹל (kekhol).

23 tn Heb "a nation, one."

24 tn Heb "whose God" or "because God." In the Hebrew text this clause is subordinated to what precedes. The clauses are separated in the translation for stylistic reasons.

25 tn The verb is plural in Hebrew, agreeing grammatically with the divine name, which is a plural of degree.

26 tn Heb "redeem."

27 tn Heb "and to do for you [plural form] the great [thing] and awesome [things] for your land."

28 tn Heb "from Egypt, nations and their gods." The LXX has "nations and tents," which reflects a mistaken metathesis of letters in אֱלֹהָיו (e'lohav, "its gods") and אׇהָלָיו ('ohalav, "its tents").

29 tn Heb "and you established for yourself your people Israel for yourself for a people permanently."

30 tn Heb "and now, O LORD God, the word which you spoke concerning your servant and concerning his house, establish permanently."

as you promised,[1] 7:26 so you may gain lasting fame,[2] as people say,[3] 'The LORD of hosts is God over Israel!' The dynasty[4] of your servant David will be established before you, 7:27 for you, O LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, have told[5] your servant, 'I will build you a dynastic house.'[6] That is why your servant has had the courage[7] to pray this prayer to you. 7:28 Now, O sovereign LORD, you are the true God![8] May your words prove to be true![9] You have made this good promise to your servant![10] 7:29 Now be willing to bless your servant's dynasty[11] so that it may stand permanently before you, for you, O sovereign LORD, have spoken. By your blessing may your servant's dynasty be blessed on into the future!"[12]

David Subjugates Nearby Nations

8:1 Later David defeated the Philistines and subdued them. David took Metheg Ammah[13] from the Philistines.[14] 8:2 He defeated the Moabites. He made them lie on the ground and then used a rope to measure them off. He put two-thirds of them to death and spared the other third.[15] The Moabites became David's subjects and brought tribute.[16] 8:3 David defeated King Hadadezer son of Rehob of Zobah when he came to reestablish[17] his authority[18] over the Euphrates[19] River. 8:4 David seized from him 1,700 charioteers[20] and 20,000 infantrymen. David cut the hamstrings of all but a hundred of the chariot horses.[21] 8:5 The Arameans of Damascus came to help King Hadadezer of Zobah, but David killed 22,000 of the Arameans. 8:6 David placed garrisons in the territory of the Arameans of Damascus; the Arameans became David's subjects and brought tribute. The LORD protected[22] David wherever he campaigned.[23] 8:7 David took the golden shields that belonged to Hadadezer's servants and brought them to Jerusalem.[24] 8:8 From Tebah[25] and Berothai, Hadadezer's cities, King David took a great deal of bronze.

8:9 When King Toi[26] of Hamath heard that David had defeated the entire army of Hadadezer, 8:10 he[27] sent his son Joram[28] to King David to extend his best wishes[29] and to pronounce a blessing on him for his victory over Hadadezer, for Toi had been at war with Hadadezer.[30] He brought with him various items made of silver, gold, and bronze.[31] 8:11 King David dedicated these things to the LORD,[32] along with the dedicated silver and gold that he had taken from[33] all the nations that he had subdued, 8:12 including[34] Aram,[35] Moab, the Am-

[1] tn Heb "as you have spoken."

[2] tn Heb "and your name might be great permanently." Following the imperative in v. 23b, the prefixed verbal form with vav conjunctive indicates purpose/result.

[3] tn Heb "saying." The words "as people" are supplied in the translation for clarification and stylistic reasons.

[4] tn Heb "the house." See the note on "dynastic house" in the following verse.

[5] tn Heb "have uncovered the ear of."

[6] tn Heb "a house." This maintains the wordplay from v. 11 (see the note on the word "house" there) and is continued in v. 29.

[7] tn Heb "has found his heart."

[8] tn Heb "the God." The article indicates uniqueness here.

[9] tn The translation understands the prefixed verb form as a jussive, indicating David's wish/prayer. Another option is to take the form as an imperfect and translate "your words are true."

[10] tn Heb "and you have spoken to your servant this good thing."

[11] tn Heb "house" (again later in this verse). See the note on "dynastic house" in v. 27.

[12] tn Or "permanently"; cf. NLT "it is an eternal blessing."

[13] tn Heb "the bridle of one cubit." Many English versions treat this as a place name because the parallel text in 1 Chr 18:1 reads "Gath" (which is used by NLT here). It is possible that "the bridle of one cubit" is to be understood as "the token of surrender," referring to the Philistine's defeat rather than a specific place (cf. TEV, CEV).

[14] tn Heb "from the hand [i.e., control] of the Philistines."

[15] tn Heb "and he measured [with] two [lengths] of rope to put to death and [with] the fullness of the rope to keep alive."

[16] tn Heb "and the Moabites were servants of David, carriers of tribute."

[17] tc The LXX has ἐπιστῆσαι (epistēsai, "cause to stand"). See the parallel text in 1 Chr 18:3.

[18] tn Heb "hand."

[19] tn The MT does not have the name "Euphrates" in the text. It is supplied in the margin (Qere) as one of ten places where the Masoretes believed that something was "to be read although it was not written" in the text as they had received it. The ancient versions (LXX, Syriac Peshitta, Vulgate) include the word. See also the parallel text in 1 Chr 18:3.

[20] tc The LXX has "one thousand chariots and seven thousand charioteers," a reading adopted in the text of the NIV. See the parallel text in 1 Chr 18:4.

[21] tn Heb "and David cut the hamstrings of all the chariot horses, and he left from them a hundred chariot horses."

[22] tn Or "delivered."

[23] tn Or "wherever he went."

[24] tc The LXX includes seventeen words (in Greek) at the end of v. 7 that are not found in the MT. The LXX addition is as follows: "And Sousakim king of Egypt took them when he came up to Jerusalem in the days of Rehoboam the son of Solomon." This Greek reading now finds Hebrew support in 4QSam[a]. For a reconstruction of this poorly preserved Qumran text see E. C. Ulrich, Jr., The Qumran Text of Samuel and Josephus (HSM), 45-48.

[25] tn Heb "Betah" (so KJV, NASB, NRSV), but the name should probably be corrected to "Tebah." See the parallel text in 1 Chr 18:8.

[26] tn The name is spelled "Tou" in the parallel text in 1 Chr 18:9. NIV adopts the spelling "Tou" here.

[27] tn Heb "Toi." The proper name has been replaced by the pronoun in the translation for stylistic reasons.

[28] tn The name appears as "Hadoram" in the parallel text in 1 Chr 18:10.

[29] tn Heb "to ask concerning him for peace."

[30] tn Heb "and to bless him because he fought with Hadadezer and defeated him, for Hadadezer was a man of battles with Toi."

[31] tn Heb "and in his hand were items of silver and items of gold and items of bronze."

[32] tn Heb "also them King David made holy to the LORD."

[33] tn Heb "with the silver and the gold that he had dedicated from."

[34] tn Heb "from."

[35] tc The present translation follows the MT; a few Hebrew MSS along with the LXX and Syriac read "Edom" (cf. 2 Sam 8:14 and 1 Chr 18:11). Many modern English versions read "Edom" here (e.g., NAB, NIV, NRSV, NLT).

monites, the Philistines, and Amalek. This also included some of the plunder taken from[1] King Hadadezer son of Rehob of Zobah.

8:13 David became famous[2] when he returned from defeating the Arameans[3] in the Valley of Salt, he defeated[4] 18,000 in all. 8:14 He placed garrisons throughout Edom,[5] and all the Edomites became David's subjects. The LORD protected David wherever he campaigned. 8:15 David reigned over all Israel; he guaranteed justice for all his people.[6]

David's Cabinet

8:16 Joab son of Zeruiah was general in command of[7] the army; Jehoshaphat son of Ahilud was secretary; 8:17 Zadok son of Ahitub and Ahimelech son of Abiathar[8] were priests; Seraiah was scribe; 8:18 Benaiah son of Jehoida supervised[9] the Kerithites and Pelethites; and David's sons were priests.[10]

David Finds Mephibosheth

9:1[11] Then David asked, "Is anyone still left from the family[12] of Saul, so that I may extend kindness to him for the sake of Jonathan?"

9:2 Now there was a servant from Saul's house named Ziba, so he was summoned to David. The king asked him, "Are you Ziba?" He replied, "At your service."[13] 9:3 The king asked, "Is there not someone left from Saul's family,[14] that I may extend God's kindness to him?" Ziba said to the king, "One of Jonathan's sons is left; both of his feet are crippled." 9:4 The king asked him, "Where is he?" Ziba told the king, "He is at the house of Makir son of Ammiel in Lo Debar.

9:5 So King David had him brought[15] from the house of Makir son of Ammiel in[16] Lo Debar. 9:6 When Mephibosheth son of Jonathan, the son of Saul, came to David, he bowed low with his face toward the ground.[17] David said, "Mephibosheth?" He replied, "Yes, at your service."[18]

9:7 David said to him, "Don't be afraid, because I will certainly extend kindness to you for the sake of Jonathan your father. I will give back to you all the land that belonged to your grandfather Saul, and you will be a regular guest at my table."[19] 9:8 Then Mephibosheth[20] bowed and said, "Of what importance am I, your servant, that you show regard for a dead dog like me?"[21]

9:9 Then the king summoned Ziba, Saul's attendant, and said to him, "Everything that belonged to Saul and to his entire house I hereby give to your master's grandson. 9:10 You will cultivate[22] the land for him – you and your sons and your servants. You will bring its produce[23] and it will be[24] food for your master's grandson to eat.[25] But Mephibosheth, your master's grandson, will be a regular guest at my table." (Now Ziba had fifteen sons and twenty servants.)

9:11 Ziba said to the king, "Your servant will do everything that my lord the king has instructed his servant to do." So Mephibosheth was a regular guest[26] at David's table,[27] just as though he were one of the king's sons.

4 tn The words "he defeated" are supplied in the translation for stylistic reasons.

5 tc The MT is repetitious here: "He placed in Edom garrisons; in all Edom he placed garrisons." The Vulgate lacks "in all Edom"; most of the Greek tradition (with the exception of the Lucianic recension and the recension of Origen) and the Syriac Peshitta lack "he placed garrisons." The MT reading appears here to be the result of a conflation of variant readings.

6 tn Heb "and David was doing what is just and fair for all his people."

7 tn Heb "was over."

8 tc Here Ahimelech is called "the son of Abiathar," but NCV, CEV, and REB reverse this to conform with 1 Sam 22:20. Most recent English versions (e.g., NAB, NASB, NIV, NRSV, NLT) retain the order found in the MT.

9 tc The translation follows the Syriac Peshitta, Targum, and Vulgate in reading "over," rather than the simple conjunction that appears in MT. See also the parallel passage in 1 Chr 18:17.

10 sn That David's sons could have been priests, in light of the fact that they were not of the priestly lineage, is strange. One must assume either (1) that the word "priest" (כֹּהֵן, kohen) during this period of time could be used in a broader sense of "chief ruler" (KJV); "chief minister" (ASV, NASB), or "royal adviser" (NIV), perhaps based on the parallel passage in 1 Chr 18:17 which has "the king's leading officials", or (2) that in David's day members of the king's family could function as a special category of "priests" (cf. NLT "priestly leaders"). The latter option seems to be the more straightforward way of understanding the word in 2 Sam 8:18.

11 sn 2 Samuel 9–20 is known as the Succession Narrative. It is a literary unit that describes David's efforts at consolidating his own kingdom following the demise of King Saul; it also provides the transition to subsequent leadership on the part of David's successor Solomon.

23 tn The Hebrew text implies, but does not actually contain, the words "its produce" here.

24 tc The words "it will be," though present in the MT, are absent from the LXX, the Syriac Peshitta, and Vulgate.

25 tn Heb "and he will eat it."

26 tn Heb "eating."

27 tc Heb "my table." But the first person reference to David is awkward here since the quotation of David's words has already been concluded in v. 10; nor does the "my" refer to Ziba, since the latter part of v. 11 does not seem to be part of Ziba's response to the king. The ancient versions are not unanimous in the way that they render the phrase. The LXX has "the table of David" (τῆς τραπέζης Δαυιδ, tēs trapezēs Dauid); the Syriac Peshitta has "the table of 9:12 Now Mephibosheth had a young son whose name was Mica. All the members of Ziba's household were Mephibosheth's servants. 9:13 Mephibosheth was living in Jerusalem,[1] for he was a regular guest at the king's table. But both his feet were crippled.

David and the Ammonites

10:1 Later the king of the Ammonites died and his son Hanun succeeded him.[2] 10:2 David said, "I will express my loyalty[3] to Hanun son of Nahash just as his father was loyal[4] to me." So David sent his servants with a message expressing sympathy over his father's death.[5] When David's servants entered the land of the Ammonites, 10:3 the Ammonite officials said to their lord Hanun, "Do you really think David is trying to honor your father by sending these messengers to express his sympathy?[6] No, David has sent his servants to you to get information about the city and spy on it so they can overthrow it!"[7]

10:4 So Hanun seized David's servants and shaved off half of each one's beard. He cut the lower part of their robes off so that their buttocks were exposed,[8] and then sent them away. 10:5 Messengers[9] told David what had happened,[10] so he summoned them, for the men were thoroughly humiliated. The king said, "Stay in Jericho[11] until your beards have grown again; then you may come back."

10:6 When the Ammonites realized that David was disgusted with them,[12] they[13] sent and hired 20,000 foot soldiers from Aram Beth Rehob and Aram Zobah,[14] in addition to 1,000 men from the king of Maacah and 12,000 men from Ish-tob.[15]

10:7 When David heard the news, he sent Joab and the entire army to meet them.[16] 10:8 The Ammonites marched out and were deployed for battle at the entrance of the city gate, while the men from Aram Zobah, Rehob, Ish-tob, and Maacah were by themselves in the field.

10:9 When Joab saw that the battle would be fought on two fronts, he chose some of Israel's best men and deployed them against the Arameans.[17] 10:10 He put his brother Abishai in charge of the rest of the army[18] and they were deployed[19] against the Ammonites. 10:11 Joab[20] said, "If the Arameans start to overpower me,[21] you come to my rescue. If the Ammonites start to overpower you,[22] I will come to your rescue. 10:12 Be strong! Let's fight bravely for the sake of our people and the cities of our God! The LORD will do what he decides is best!"[23]

10:15 When the Arameans realized that they had been defeated by Israel, they consolidated their forces.[27] 10:16 Then Hadadezer sent for Arameans from[28] beyond the Euphrates River,[29] and they came to Helam. Shobach, the general in command of Hadadezer's army, led them.[30]

David Commits Adultery with Bathsheba

11:1 In the spring of the year, at the time when kings[4] normally conduct wars,[5] David sent out Joab with his officers[6] and the entire Israelite army.[7] They defeated the Ammonites and besieged Rabbah. But David stayed behind in Jerusalem.[8] 11:2 One evening David got up from his bed and walked around on the roof of his palace.[9] From the roof he saw a woman bathing. Now this woman was very attractive.[10] 11:3 So David sent someone to inquire about the woman. The messenger[11] said, "Isn't this Bathsheba, the daughter of Eliam, the wife of Uriah the Hittite?"

11:4 David sent some messengers to get her.[12] She came to him and he had sexual relations with her.[13] (Now at that time she was in the process of purifying herself from her menstrual uncleanness.)[14] Then she returned to her home. 11:5 The woman conceived and then sent word to David saying, "I'm pregnant."

11:6 So David sent a message to Joab that said, "Send me Uriah the Hittite." So Joab sent Uriah to David. 11:7 When Uriah came to him, David asked about how Joab and the army were doing and how the campaign was going.[15] 11:8 Then David said to Uriah, "Go down to your home and relax."[16] When Uriah left the palace, the king sent a gift to him.[17] 11:9 But Uriah stayed at the door of the palace with all[18] the servants of his lord. He did not go down to his house.

11:10 So they informed David, "Uriah has not gone down to his house." So David said to Uriah, "Haven't you just arrived from a journey? Why haven't you gone down to your house?" 11:11 Uriah replied to David, "The ark and Israel and Judah reside in temporary shelters, and my lord Joab and my lord's soldiers are camping in the open field. Should I go to my house to eat and drink and have marital relations[19] with my wife? As surely as you are alive,[20] I will not do this thing!" 11:12 So David said to Uriah, "Stay here another day. Tomorrow I will send you back." So Uriah stayed in Jerusalem both that day and the following one.[21] 11:13 Then David summoned him. He ate and drank with him, and got him drunk. But in the evening he went out to sleep on his bed with the servants of his lord; he did not go down to his own house.

11:14 In the morning David wrote a letter to Joab and sent it with Uriah. 11:15 In the letter he wrote: "Station Uriah in the thick of the battle and then withdraw from him so he will be cut down and killed."

11:16 So as Joab kept watch on the city, he stationed Uriah at the place where he knew the best enemy soldiers[22] were. 11:17 When the men of the city came out and fought with Joab, some of David's soldiers[23] fell in battle. Uriah the Hittite also died.

11:18 Then Joab sent a full battle report to David.[24] 11:19 He instructed the messenger as follows: "When you finish giving the battle report to the king, 11:20 if the king becomes angry and asks you, 'Why did you go so close to the city to fight? Didn't you realize they would shoot from the wall? 11:21 Who struck down Abimelech the son of Jerub-Besheth? Didn't a

1 tn Heb "horsemen" (so KJV, NASB, NCV, NRSV, NLT) but the Lucianic recension of the LXX reads "foot soldiers," as does the parallel text in 1 Chr 19:18. Cf. NAB, NIV.

2 tn Heb "the servants of Hadadezer."

3 tn Heb "and they served them."

4 tc Codex Leningrad (B19A), on which BHS is based, has here "messengers" (הַמַּלְאָכִים, hammal'khim), probably as the result of contamination from the occurrence of that word in v. 4. The present translation follows most Hebrew MSS and the ancient versions, which read "kings" (הַמְּלָאכִים, hammela'kim).

5 tn Heb "go out."

6 tn Heb "and his servants with him."

7 tn Heb "all Israel."

9 tn Heb "on the roof of the house of the king." So also in vv. 8, 9.

12 tn Heb "and David sent messengers and he took her."

13 tn Heb "he lay with her" (so NASB, NRSV); TEV "he made love to her"; NIV, CEV, NLT "he slept with her."

14 tn The parenthetical disjunctive clause further heightens the tension by letting the reader know that Bathsheba, having just completed her menstrual cycle, is ripe for conception. See P. K. McCarter, II Samuel (AB), 286. Since she just had her period, it will also be obvious to those close to the scene that Uriah, who has been away fighting, cannot be the father of the child.

15 tn Heb "concerning the peace of Joab and concerning the peace of the people and concerning the peace of the battle."

16 tn Heb "and wash your feet."

17 tn Heb "and there went out after him the gift of the king."

18 tc The Lucianic recension of the Old Greek translation lacks the word "all."

19 tn Heb "and lay."

20 tn Heb "as you live and as your soul lives."

21 tn On the chronology involved here see P. K. McCarter, II Samuel (AB), 287.

22 tn Heb "the valiant men." This refers in context to the strongest or most valiant defenders of the city Joab and the Israelite army were besieging, so the present translation uses "the best enemy soldiers" for clarity.

23 tn Heb "some of the people from the servants of David."

woman throw an upper millstone[1] down on him from the wall so that he died in Thebez? Why did you go so close to the wall?' just say to him, 'Your servant Uriah the Hittite is also dead.'"

11:22 So the messenger departed. When he arrived, he informed David of all the news that Joab had sent with him. 11:23 The messenger said to David, "The men overpowered us and attacked us[2] in the field. But we forced them to retreat all the way[3] to the door of the city gate. 11:24 Then the archers shot at your servants from the wall and some of the king's soldiers[4] died. Your servant Uriah the Hittite is also dead." 11:25 David said to the messenger, "Tell Joab, 'Don't let this thing upset you.[5] There is no way to anticipate whom the sword will cut down.[6] Press the battle against the city and conquer[7] it.' Encourage him with these words."[8]

11:26 When Uriah's wife heard that her husband Uriah was dead, she mourned for him.[9] 11:27 When the time of mourning passed, David had her brought to his palace.[10] She became his wife and she bore him a son. But what David had done upset the LORD.[11]

Nathan the Prophet Confronts David

12:1 So the LORD sent Nathan[12] to David. When he came to David,[13] Nathan[14] said,[15] "There were two men in a certain city, one rich and the other poor. 12:2 The rich man had a great many flocks and herds. 12:3 But the poor man had nothing except for a little lamb he had acquired. He raised it, and it grew up alongside him and his children.[16] It used to[17] eat his food,[18] drink from his cup, and sleep in his arms.[19] It was just like a daughter to him.

12:4 "When a traveler arrived at the rich man's home,[20] he did not want to use one of his own sheep or cattle to feed[21] the traveler who had come to visit him.[22] Instead, he took the poor man's lamb and cooked[23] it for the man who had come to visit him."

12:5 Then David became very angry at this man. He said to Nathan, "As surely as the LORD lives, the man who did this deserves to die![24] 12:6 Because he committed this cold-hearted crime, he must pay for the lamb four times over!"[25]

12:7 Nathan said to David, "You are that man! This is what the LORD God of Israel says: 'I chose[26] you to be king over Israel and I rescued you from the hand of Saul. 12:8 I gave you your master's house, and put your master's wives into your arms.[27] I also gave you the house of Israel and Judah. And if all that somehow seems insignificant, I would have given you so much more as well! 12:9 Why have you shown contempt for the word of the LORD by doing evil in my[28] sight? You have struck down Uriah the Hittite with the sword and you have taken his wife as your own![29] You have killed him with the sword of the Ammonites. 12:10 So now the sword will never depart from your house. For you have despised me by taking the wife of Uriah the Hittite as your own!' 12:11 This is what the LORD says: 'I am about to bring disaster on you[30] from inside your own house-

[1] sn The upper millstone (Heb "millstone of riding") refers to the heavy circular stone that was commonly rolled over a circular base in order to crush and grind such things as olives.

[2] tn Heb "and came out to us."

[3] tn Heb "but we were on them."

[4] tc The translation follows the Qere ("your servants") rather than the Kethib ("your servant").

[5] tn Heb "let not this matter be evil in your eyes."

[6] tn Heb "according to this and according to this the sword devours."

[7] tn Heb "overthrow."

[8] tn The Hebrew text does not have "with these words." They are supplied in the translation for clarity and for stylistic reasons.

[9] tn Heb "for her lord."

[10] tn Heb "David sent and gathered her to his house."

[11] tn Heb "and the thing which David had done was evil in the eyes of the LORD." Note the verbal connection with v. 25. Though David did not regard the matter as evil, the LORD certainly did.

[12] tc A few medieval Hebrew MSS, the LXX, and the Syriac Peshitta add "the prophet." The words are included in a few modern English version (e.g., TEV, CEV, NLT).

[13] tn Heb "him"; the referent (David) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[14] tn Heb "he"; the referent (Nathan) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[15] tn The Hebrew text repeats "to him."

[16] tn Heb "his sons."

[17] tn The three Hebrew imperfect verbal forms in this sentence have a customary nuance; they describe past actions that were repeated or typical.

[18] tn Heb "from his morsel."

[19] tn Heb "and on his chest [or perhaps, "lap"] it would lie."

[20] tn Heb "came to the rich man." In the translation "arrived at the rich man's home" has been used for stylistic reasons.

[21] tn Heb "and he refused to take from his flock and from his herd to prepare [a meal] for."

[22] tn Heb "who had come to him" (also a second time later in this verse). The word "visit" has been supplied in the translation for stylistic reasons and for clarity.

[23] tn Heb "and prepared."

[24] tn Heb "the man doing this [is] a son of death." See 1 Sam 20:31 for another use of this expression, which must mean "he is as good as dead" or "he deserves to die," as 1 Sam 20:32 makes clear.

[25] tc With the exception of the Lucianic recension, the Old Greek translation has here "sevenfold" rather than "fourfold," a reading that S. R. Driver thought probably to be the original reading (S. R. Driver, Notes on the Hebrew Text and the Topography of the Books of Samuel, 291). However, Exod 22:1 [21:37 HT] specifies fourfold repayment for a stolen sheep, which is consistent with 2 Sam 12:6. Some MSS of the Targum and the Syriac Peshitta exaggerate the idea to "fortyfold."

tn Heb "the lamb he must repay fourfold because he did this thing and because he did not have compassion."

[26] tn Heb "anointed."

[27] tn Heb "and the wives of your lord into your chest [or "lap"]." The words "I put" are supplied in the translation for stylistic reasons and for clarification.

[28] tc So the Qere; the Kethib has "his."

[29] tn Heb "to you for a wife." This expression also occurs at the end of v. 10.

[30] tn Heb "raise up against you disaster."

hold![1] Right before your eyes I will take your wives and hand them over to your companion.[2] He will have sexual relations with[3] your wives in broad daylight![4] 12:12 Although you have acted in secret, I will do this thing before all Israel, and in broad daylight.'"[5]

12:13 Then David exclaimed to Nathan, "I have sinned against the LORD!" Nathan replied to David, "Yes, and the LORD has forgiven[6] your sin. You are not going to die. 12:14 Nonetheless, because you have treated the LORD with such contempt[7] in this matter, the son who has been born to you will certainly die."

12:15 Then Nathan went to his home. The LORD struck the child that Uriah's wife had borne to David, and the child became very ill.[8] 12:16 Then David prayed to[9] God for the child and fasted.[10] He would even[11] go and spend the night lying on the ground. 12:17 The elders of his house stood over him and tried to lift him from the ground, but he was unwilling, and refused to eat food with them.

12:18 On the seventh day the child died. But the servants of David were afraid to inform him that the child had died, for they said, "While the child was still alive he would not listen to us[12] when we spoke to him. How can we tell him that the child is dead? He will do himself harm!"[13]

12:19 When David saw that his servants were whispering to one another, he[14] realized that the child was dead. So David asked his servants, "Is the child dead?" They replied, "Yes, he's dead." 12:20 So David got up from the ground, bathed, put on oil, and changed his clothes. He went to the house of the LORD and worshiped. Then, when he entered his palace, he requested that food be brought to him, and he ate.

12:21 His servants said to him, "What is this that you have done? While[15] the child was still alive, you fasted and wept. Once the child was dead you got up and ate food!" 12:22 He replied, "While the child was still alive, I fasted and wept because I thought,[16] 'Perhaps[17] the LORD will show pity and the child will live. 12:23 But now he is dead. Why should I fast? Am I able to bring him back? I will go to him, but he cannot return to me!'"

12:24 So David comforted his wife Bathsheba. He went to her and had marital relations with her.[18] She gave birth to a son, and David[19] named him Solomon. Now the LORD loved the child[20] 12:25 and sent word through Nathan the prophet that he should be named Jedidiah[21] for the LORD's sake.

David's Forces Defeat the Ammonites

12:26[22] So Joab fought against Rabbah of the Ammonites and captured the royal city. 12:27 Joab then sent messengers to David, saying, "I have fought against Rabbah and have captured the water supply of the city.[23] 12:28 So now assemble the rest of the army[24] and besiege the city and capture it. Otherwise I will capture the city and it will be named for me."

12:29 So David assembled all the army and went to Rabbah and fought against it and

[7] tc The MT has here "because you have caused the enemies of the LORD to treat the LORD with such contempt." This is one of the so-called tiqqune sopherim, or "emendations of the scribes." According to this ancient tradition, the scribes changed the text in order to soften somewhat the negative light in which David was presented. If that is the case, the MT reflects the altered text. The present translation departs from the MT here. Elsewhere the Piel stem of this verb means "treat with contempt," but never "cause someone to treat with contempt."

[8] tn Heb "and the LORD struck the child...and he was ill." It is necessary to repeat "the child" in the translation to make clear who became ill, since "the LORD struck the child that Uriah's wife had borne to David, and he became very ill" could be understood to mean that David himself became ill.

[9] tn Heb "sought" or "searched for."

[10] tn Heb "and David fasted."

[11] tn The three Hebrew verbs that follow in this verse are perfects with prefixed vav. They may describe repeated past actions or actions which accompanied David's praying and fasting.

[12] tn Heb "to our voice."

[13] tn Heb "he will do harm." The object is not stated in the Hebrew text. The statement may be intentionally vague, meaning that he might harm himself or them!

[14] tn Heb "David." The name has been replaced in the translation by the pronoun ("he") for stylistic reasons.

[15] tc For the MT בַּעֲבוּר (ba'avur, "for the sake of") we should probably read בְּעוֹד (be'od, "while"). See the Lucianic Greek recension, the Syriac Peshitta, and the Targum.

[16] tn Heb "said."

[17] tn Heb "Who knows?"

[18] tn Heb "and he lay with her."

[19] tn Heb "he"; the referent (David) has been specified in the translation for clarity. While some translations render the pronoun as third person plural ("they"), implying that both David and Bathsheba together named the child, it is likely that the name "Solomon," which is related to the Hebrew word for "peace" (and may be derived from it) had special significance for David, who would have regarded the birth of a second child to Bathsheba as a confirming sign that God had forgiven his sin and was at peace with him.

[20] tn Heb "him," referring to the child.

[21] sn The name Jedidiah means "loved by the LORD."

[22] sn Here the narrative resumes the battle story that began in 11:1 (see 11:25). The author has interrupted that story to give the related account of David's sin with Bathsheba and the murder of Uriah. He now returns to the earlier story and brings it to a conclusion.

[23] sn The expression translated the water supply of the city (Heb "the city of the waters") apparently refers to that part of the fortified city that guarded the water supply of the entire city. Joab had already captured this part of the city, but he now defers to King David for the capture of the rest of the city. In this way the king will receive the credit for this achievement.

[24] tn Heb "people." So also in vv. 29, 31.

captured it. 12:30 He took the crown of their king[1] from his head – it was gold, weighed about seventy-five pounds,[2] and held a precious stone – and it was placed on David's head. He also took from the city a great deal of plunder. 12:31 He removed[3] the people who were in it and made them do hard labor with saws, iron picks, and iron axes, putting them to work at the brick kiln. This was his policy[4] with all the Ammonite cities. Then David and all the army returned to Jerusalem.[5]

The Rape of Tamar

13:1 Now David's son Absalom had a beautiful sister named Tamar. In the course of time David's son Amnon fell madly in love with her.[6] 13:2 But Amnon became frustrated because he was so lovesick[7] over his sister Tamar. For she was a virgin, and to Amnon it seemed out of the question to do anything to her.

13:3 Now Amnon had a friend named Jonadab, the son of David's brother Shimeah. Jonadab was a very crafty man. 13:4 He asked Amnon,[8] "Why are you, the king's son,[9] so depressed every morning? Can't you tell me?" So Amnon said to him, "I'm in love with Tamar the sister of my brother Absalom." 13:5 Jonadab replied to him, "Lie down on your bed and pretend to be sick.[10] When your father comes in to see you, say to him, 'Please let my sister Tamar come in so she can fix some food for me. Let her prepare the food in my sight so I can watch. Then I will eat from her hand.'"

13:6 So Amnon lay down and pretended to be sick. When the king came in to see him, Amnon said to the king, "Please let my sister Tamar come in so she can make a couple of cakes in my sight. Then I will eat from her hand."

13:7 So David sent Tamar to the house saying, "Please go to the house of Amnon your brother and prepare some food for him." 13:8 So Tamar went to the house of Amnon her brother, who was lying down. She took the dough, kneaded it, made some cakes while he watched,[11] and baked them.[12] 13:9 But when she took the pan and set it before him, he refused to eat. Instead Amnon said, "Get everyone out of here!"[13] So everyone left.[14]

13:10 Then Amnon said to Tamar, "Bring the cakes into the bedroom; then I will eat from your hand." So Tamar took the cakes that she had prepared and brought them to her brother Amnon in the bedroom. 13:11 As she brought them to him to eat, he grabbed her and said to her, "Come on! Get in bed with me,[15] my sister!"

13:12 But she said to him, "No, my brother! Don't humiliate me! This just isn't done in Israel! Don't do this foolish thing! 13:13 How could I ever be rid of my humiliation? And you would be considered one of the fools[16] in Israel! Just[17] speak to the king, for he will not withhold me from you." 13:14 But he refused to listen to her.[18] He overpowered her and humiliated her by raping her.[19] 13:15 Then Amnon greatly despised her.[20] His disdain toward her surpassed the love he had previously felt toward her.[21] Amnon said to her, "Get up and leave!"

13:16 But she said to him, "No I won't, for sending me away now would be worse than what you did to me earlier!"[22] But he refused to listen to her. 13:17 He called his personal attendant and said to him, "Take this woman out of my sight[23] and lock the door behind her!" 13:18 (Now she was wearing a long robe,[24] for this is

1 tn Part of the Greek tradition wrongly understands Hebrew מַלְכָּם (malkam, "their king") as a proper name ("Milcom"). Some English versions follow the Greek here, rendering the phrase "the crown of Milcom" (so NRSV; cf. also NAB, CEV). TEV takes this as a reference not to the Ammonite king but to "the idol of the Ammonite god Molech."

6 tn Heb "Amnon the son of David loved her." The following verse indicates the extreme nature of his infatuation, so the translation uses "madly in love" here.

sn Amnon was the half-brother of Tamar; Absalom was her full blood-brother.

7 tn Heb "and there was distress to Amnon so that he made himself sick."

8 tn Heb "and he said to him."

9 tn An more idiomatic translation might be "Why are you of all people...?"

10 tn This verb is used in the Hitpael stem only in this chapter of the Hebrew Bible. With the exception of v. 2 it describes not a real sickness but one pretended in order to entrap Tamar. The Hitpael sometimes, as here, describes the subject making oneself appear to be of a certain character. On this use of the stem, see GKC 149-50 §54.e.

11 tn Heb "in his sight."

12 tn Heb "the cakes."

13 tn Heb "from upon me."

14 tc A few medieval Hebrew MSS have "and they removed everyone" (Hiphil preterite with vav consecutive 3cp, rather than Qal preterite with vav consecutive 3cp).

15 tn Heb "lie with me" (so NAB, NASB, NRSV); NCV "come and have sexual relations with me."

16 tn Heb "and you will be like one of the fools."

17 tn Heb "Now."

18 tn Heb "to her voice."

19 tn Heb "and he humiliated her and lay with her."

20 tn Heb "and Amnon hated her with very great hatred."

21 tn Heb "for greater was the hatred with which he hated her than the love with which he loved her."

22 tn Heb "No, because this great evil is [worse] than the other which you did with me, by sending me away." Perhaps the broken syntax reflects her hysteria and outrage.

23 tn Heb "send this [one] from upon me to the outside."

24 tn The Hebrew expression used here (כְּתֹנֶת פַּסִּים, kᵉtonet passim) is found only here and in Gen 37:3, 23, 32. Hebrew פַּס (pas) can refer to the palm of the hand or the sole of the foot; here the idea is probably that of a long robe reaching to the feet and having sleeves reaching to the wrists. The notion of a "coat of many colors" (KJV, ASV "garment of divers colors"), a familiar translation for the phrase in Genesis, is based primarily on the translation adopted in the LXX χιτῶνα ποικίλον (chitona poikilion) and does not have a great deal of support.

what the king's virgin daughters used to wear.) So Amnon's[1] attendant removed her and bolted the door[2] behind her. 13:19 Then Tamar put ashes on her head and tore the long robe she was wearing. She put her hands on her head and went on her way, wailing as she went.

13:20 Her brother Absalom said to her, "Was Amnon your brother with you? Now be quiet, my sister. He is your brother. Don't take it so seriously!"[3] Tamar, devastated, lived in the house of her brother Absalom.

13:21 Now King David heard about all these things and was very angry.[4] 13:22 But Absalom said nothing to Amnon, either bad or good, yet Absalom hated Amnon because he had humiliated his sister Tamar.

Absalom Has Amnon Put to Death

13:23 Two years later Absalom's sheepshearers were in Baal Hazor,[5] near Ephraim. Absalom invited all the king's sons. 13:24 Then Absalom went to the king and said, "My shearers have begun their work.[6] Let the king and his servants go with me."

13:25 But the king said to Absalom, "No, my son. We shouldn't all go. We shouldn't burden you in that way." Though Absalom[7] pressed[8] him, the king[9] was not willing to go. Instead, David[10] blessed him.

13:26 Then Absalom said, "If you will not go,[11] then let my brother Amnon go with us." The king replied to him, "Why should he go with you?" 13:27 But when Absalom pressed him, he sent Amnon and all the king's sons along with him.

13:28 Absalom instructed his servants, "Look! When Amnon is drunk[12] and I say to you, 'Strike Amnon down,' kill him then and there. Don't fear! Is it not I who have given you these instructions? Be strong and courageous!"[13] 13:29 So Absalom's servants did to Amnon exactly what Absalom had instructed. Then all the king's sons got up; each one rode away on his mule and fled.

13:30 While they were still on their way, the following report reached David: "Absalom has killed all the king's sons; not one of them is left!" 13:31 Then the king stood up and tore his garments and lay down on the ground. All his servants were standing there with torn garments as well.

13:32 Jonadab, the son of David's brother Shimeah, said, "My lord should not say, 'They have killed all the young men who are the king's sons.' For only Amnon is dead. This is what Absalom has talked about[14] from the day that Amnon[15] humiliated his sister Tamar. 13:33 Now don't let my lord the king be concerned about the report that has come saying, 'All the king's sons are dead.' It is only Amnon who is dead."

13:34 In the meantime Absalom fled. When the servant who was the watchman looked up, he saw many people coming from the west[16] on a road beside the hill. 13:35 Jonadab said to the king, "Look! The king's sons have come! It's just as I said!"

13:36 Just as he finished speaking, the king's sons arrived, wailing and weeping.[17] The king and all his servants wept loudly[18] as well. 13:37 But Absalom fled and went to King Talmai son of Ammihud of Geshur. And David[19] grieved over his son every day.

13:38 After Absalom fled and went to Geshur, he remained there for three years. 13:39 The king longed[20] to go to Absalom, for he had since been consoled over the death of Amnon.[21]

[1] tn Heb "his"; the referent (Amnon) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[2] tn The Hebrew verb is a perfect with nonconsecutive vav, probably indicating an action (locking the door) that complements the preceding one (pushing her out the door).

[3] tn Heb "Don't set your heart to this thing!"

[4] tc The LXX and part of the Old Latin tradition include the following addition to v. 21, also included in some English versions (e.g., NAB, NRSV, CEV): "But he did not grieve the spirit of Amnon his son, because he loved him, since he was his firstborn." Note David's attitude toward his son Adonijah in 1 Kgs 1:6.

[6] tn Heb "your servant has sheepshearers." The phrase "your servant" also occurs at the end of the verse.

[7] tn Heb "he"; the referent (Absalom) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[8] tc Here and in v. 27 the translation follows 4QSam[a] ויצפר (vayyitspar, "and he pressed") rather than the MT וַיִּפְרֹץ (vayyiprats, "and he broke through"). This emended reading seems also to underlie the translations of the LXX (καὶ ἐβιάσατο, kai ebiasato), the Syriac Peshitta (we'alseh), and Vulgate (cogeret eum).

[9] tn Heb "he"; the referent (the king) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[15] tn Heb "he"; the referent (Amnon) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[16] tn Heb "behind him."

[17] tn Heb "and they lifted their voice and wept."

[18] tn Heb "with a great weeping."

[19] tc The Hebrew text leaves the word "David" to be inferred. The Syriac Peshitta and Vulgate add the word "David." Most of the Greek tradition includes the words "King David" here.

[20] tc The translation follows 4QSam[a] in reading רוּחַ הַמֶּלֶךְ (ruakh hammelekh, "the spirit of the king") rather than the MT דָּוִד הַמֶּלֶךְ (david hammelekh, "David the king"). The understanding reflected in the translation above is that David, though alienated during this time from his son Absalom, still had an abiding love and concern for him. He longed for reconciliation with him. A rather different interpretation of the verse supposes that David's interest in taking military action against Absalom grew slack with the passing of time, and this in turn enabled David's advisers to encourage him toward reconciliation with Absalom. For the latter view, see P. K. McCarter, II Samuel (AB), 344, and cf. CEV.

[21] tn Heb "was consoled over Amnon, because he was dead."

David Permits Absalom to Return to Jerusalem

14:1 Now Joab son of Zeruiah realized that the king longed to see[1] Absalom. 14:2 So Joab sent to Tekoa and brought from there a wise woman. He told her, "Pretend to be in mourning[2] and put on garments for mourning. Don't anoint yourself with oil. Instead, act like a woman who has been mourning for the dead for some time.[3] 14:3 Go to the king and speak to him in the following fashion." Then Joab told her what to say.[4]

14:4 So the Tekoan woman went[5] to the king. She bowed down with her face to the ground in deference to him and said, "Please help me,[6] O king!" 14:5 The king replied to her, "What do you want?"[7] She answered, "I am a widow; my husband is dead. 14:6 Your servant[8] has two sons. When the two of them got into a fight in the field, there was no one present who could intervene. One of them struck the other and killed him. 14:7 Now the entire family has risen up against your servant, saying, 'Turn over the one who struck down his brother, so that we can execute him and avenge the death[9] of his brother whom he killed. In so doing we will also destroy the heir.' They want to extinguish my remaining coal,[10] leaving no one on the face of the earth to carry on the name of my husband."

14:8 Then the king told the woman, "Go to your home. I will give instructions concerning your situation."[11] 14:9 The Tekoan woman said to the king, "My lord the king, let any blame fall on me and on the house of my father. But let the king and his throne be innocent!"

14:10 The king said, "Bring to me whoever speaks to you, and he won't bother you again!" 14:11 She replied, "In that case,[12] let the king invoke the name of[13] the LORD your God so that the avenger of blood may not kill! Then they will not destroy my son!" He replied, "As surely as the LORD lives, not a single hair of your son's head[14] will fall to the ground."

14:12 Then the woman said, "Please permit your servant to speak to my lord the king about another matter." He replied, "Tell me." 14:13 The woman said, "Why have you devised something like this against God's people? When the king speaks in this fashion, he makes himself guilty, for the king has not brought back the one he has banished. 14:14 Certainly we must die, and are like water spilled on the ground that cannot be gathered up again. But God does not take away life; instead he devises ways for the banished to be restored.[15] 14:15 I have now come to speak with my lord the king about this matter, because the people have made me fearful.[16] But your servant said, 'I will speak to the king! Perhaps the king will do what his female servant[17] asks. 14:16 Yes![18] The king may[19] listen and deliver his female servant[20] from the hand of the man who seeks to remove[21] both me and my son from the inheritance God has given us!'[22] 14:17 So your servant said, 'May the word of my lord the king be my security, for my lord the king is like the angel of God when it comes to deciding between right and wrong! May the LORD your God be with you!'"

14:18 Then the king replied to the woman, "Don't hide any information from me when I question you." The woman said, "Let my lord the king speak!" 14:19 The king said, "Did Joab put you up to all of this?"[23] The woman an-

1 tn Heb "the heart of the king was upon." The Syriac Peshitta adds the verb 'ethre'i ("was reconciled").

2 tn The Hebrew Hitpael verbal form here indicates pretended rather than genuine action.

3 tn Heb "these many days."

4 tn Heb "put the words in her mouth" (so NASB, NIV).

5 tc The translation follows many medieval Hebrew MSS in reading וַתָּבֹא (vattavo', "and she went") rather than the MT וַתֹּאמֶר (vatto'mer, "and she said"). The MT reading shows confusion with וַתֹּאמֶר later in the verse. The emendation suggested here is supported by the LXX, the Syriac Peshitta, some MSS of the Targum, and Vulgate.

6 tn The word "me" is left to be inferred in the Hebrew text; it is present in the Syriac Peshitta and Vulgate.

7 tn Heb "What to you?"

8 tn Here and elsewhere (vv. 7, 12, 15a, 17, 19) the woman uses a term which suggests a lower level female servant. She uses the term to express her humility before the king. However, she uses a different term in vv. 15b-16. See the note at v. 15 for a discussion of the rhetorical purpose of this switch in terminology.

9 tn Heb "in exchange for the life." The Hebrew preposition בְּ (b^{e}, "in") here is the so-called bet pretii, or bet (בְּ) of price, defining the value attached to someone or something.

10 sn My remaining coal is here metaphorical language, describing the one remaining son as her only source of lingering hope for continuing the family line.

11 tn Heb "concerning you."

12 tn The words "in that case" are not in the Hebrew text, but may be inferred from the context. They are supplied in the translation for the sake of clarification.

13 tn Heb "let the king remember."

14 tn Heb "of your son."

15 tn Heb "he devises plans for the one banished from him not to be banished."

16 tc The LXX (ὄψεταί με, opsetai me) has misunderstood the Hebrew יְרָאֻנִי (yer^{e}'uni, Piel perfect, "they have made me fearful"), taking the verb to be a form of the verb רָאָה (ra'ah, "to see") rather than the verb יָרֵא (yare', "to fear"). The fact that the Greek translators were working with an unvocalized Hebrew text (i.e., consonants only) made them very susceptible to this type of error.

17 tn Here and in v. 16 the woman refers to herself as the king's אָמָה ('amah), a term that refers to a higher level female servant toward whom the master might have some obligation. Like the other term, this word expresses her humility, but it also suggests that the king might have some obligation to treat her in accordance with the principles of justice.

18 tn Or "for."

19 tn Or "will." The imperfect verbal form can have either an indicative or modal nuance. The use of "perhaps" in v. 15b suggests the latter here.

20 tn Heb "in order to deliver his maid."

21 tn Heb "destroy."

22 tn Heb "from the inheritance of God." The expression refers to the property that was granted to her family line in the division of the land authorized by God.

23 tn Heb "Is the hand of Joab with you in all this?"

swered, "As surely as you live, my lord the king, there is no deviation to the right or to the left from all that my lord the king has said. For your servant Joab gave me instructions. He has put all these words in your servant's mouth. 14:20 Your servant Joab did this so as to change this situation. But my lord has wisdom like that of the angel of God, and knows everything that is happening in the land."[1]

14:21 Then the king said to Joab, "All right! I[2] will do this thing! Go and bring back the young man Absalom! 14:22 Then Joab bowed down with his face toward the ground and thanked[3] the king. Joab said, "Today your servant knows that I have found favor in your sight, my lord the king, because the king has granted the request of your[4] servant!"

14:23 So Joab got up and went to Geshur and brought Absalom back to Jerusalem.[5] 14:24 But the king said, "Let him go over[6] to his own house. He may not see my face." So Absalom went over[7] to his own house; he did not see the king's face.

14:25 Now in all Israel everyone acknowledged that there was no man as handsome as Absalom.[8] From the sole of his feet to the top of his head he was perfect in appearance.[9] 14:26 When he would shave his head – at the end of every year he used to shave his head, for it grew too long[10] and he would shave it – he used to weigh the hair of his head at three pounds[11] according to the king's weight. 14:27 Absalom had[12] three sons and one daughter, whose name was Tamar. She was a very attractive woman.[13]

14:28 Absalom lived in Jerusalem for two years without seeing the king's face. 14:29 Then Absalom sent a message to Joab asking him to send him to the king, but Joab was not willing to come to him. So he sent a second message to him, but he still was not willing to come. 14:30 So he said to his servants, "Look, Joab has a portion of field adjacent to mine and he has some barley there. Go and set it on fire."[14] So Absalom's servants set Joab's[15] portion of the field on fire.

14:31 Then Joab got up and came to Absalom's house. He said to him, "Why did your servants set my portion of field on fire?" 14:32 Absalom said to Joab, "Look, I sent a message to you saying, 'Come here so that I can send you to the king with this message:[16] "Why have I come from Geshur? It would be better for me if I were still there."' Let me now see the face of the king. If I am at fault, let him put me to death!"

14:33 So Joab went to the king and informed him. The king[17] summoned Absalom, and he came to the king. Absalom[18] bowed down before the king with his face toward the ground and the king kissed him.[19]

Absalom Leads an Insurrection against David

15:1 Some time later Absalom managed to acquire[20] a chariot and horses, as well as fifty men to serve as his royal guard.[21] 15:2 Now Absalom used to get up early and stand beside the road that led to the city gate. Whenever anyone came by who had a complaint to bring to the king for arbitration, Absalom would call out to him, "What city are you from?" The person would answer, "I, your servant,[22] am from one of the tribes of Israel." 15:3 Absalom would then say to him, "Look, your claims are legitimate and appropriate.[23] But there is no representative of the king who will listen to you." 15:4 Absalom would then say, "If only they would make me[24] a judge in the land! Then everyone who had a judicial complaint[25] could come to me and I would make sure he receives a just settlement."

15:5 When someone approached to bow before him, Absalom[26] would extend his hand and embrace him and kiss him. 15:6 Absalom acted this way toward everyone in Israel who came to the king for justice. In this way Absalom won the loyalty[27] of the citizens[28] of Israel.

15:7 After four[1] years Absalom said to the king, "Let me go and repay my vow that I made to the LORD while I was in Hebron. 15:8 For I made this vow[2] when I was living in Geshur in Aram: 'If the LORD really does allow me to return to Jerusalem,[3] I will serve the LORD.'" 15:9 The king replied to him, "Go in peace." So Absalom[4] got up and went to Hebron.

15:10 Then Absalom sent spies through all the tribes of Israel who said, "When you hear the sound of the horn, you may assume[5] that Absalom rules in Hebron." 15:11 Now two hundred men had gone with Absalom from Jerusalem. Since they were invited, they went naively and were unaware of what Absalom was planning.[6] 15:12 While he was offering sacrifices, Absalom sent for Ahithophel the Gilonite, David's adviser,[7] to come from his city, Giloh.[8] The conspiracy was gaining momentum, and the people were starting to side with Absalom.

David Flees from Jerusalem

15:13 Then a messenger came to David and reported, "The men of Israel are loyal to Absalom!"[9] 15:14 So David said to all his servants who were with him in Jerusalem,[10] "Come on![11] Let's escape![12] Otherwise no one will be delivered from Absalom! Go immediately, or else he will quickly overtake us and bring[13] disaster on us and kill the city's residents with the sword."[14] 15:15 The king's servants replied to the king, "We will do whatever our lord the king decides."[15]

15:16 So the king and all the members of his royal court[16] set out on foot, though the king left behind ten concubines[17] to attend to the palace. 15:17 The king and all the people set out on foot, pausing[18] at a spot[19] some distance away. 15:18 All his servants were leaving with him,[20] along with all the Kerethites, all the Pelethites, and all the Gittites – some six hundred men who had come on foot from Gath. They were leaving with[21] the king.

15:19 Then the king said to Ittai the Gittite, "Why should you come with us? Go back and stay with the new[22] king, for you are a foreigner and an exile from your own country.[23] 15:20 It seems like you arrived just yesterday. Today should I make you wander around by going with us? I go where I must go. But as for you, go back and take your men[24] with you. May genuine loyal love[25] protect[26] you!"

15:21 But Ittai replied to the king, "As surely as the LORD lives and as my lord the king lives, wherever my lord the king is, whether dead or alive,[27] there I[28] will be as well!" 15:22 So David said to Ittai, "Come along then."[29] So Ittai the Gittite went along,[30] accompanied by all his men and all the dependents[31] who were with him.

15:23 All the land was weeping loudly[32] as all these people were leaving.[33] As the king was crossing over the Kidron Valley, all the people were leaving[34] on the road that leads to the desert. 15:24 Zadok and all the Levites who were with him were carrying the ark of the covenant of God. When they positioned the ark of God, Abiathar offered sacrifices until all the people had finished leaving[35] the city.

15:25 Then the king said to Zadok, "Take the ark of God back to the city. If I find favor in the LORD's sight he will bring me back and enable me to see both it and his dwelling place again. 15:26 However, if he should say, 'I do not take pleasure in you,' then he will deal with me in a way that he considers appropriate."[36]

15:27 The king said to Zadok the priest, "Are

[1] tc The MT has here "forty," but this is presumably a scribal error for "four." The context will not tolerate a period of forty years prior to the rebellion of Absalom. The Lucianic Greek recension (τέσσαρα ἔτη, tessara ete), the Syriac Peshitta ('arba' sanin), and Vulgate (post quattuor autem annos) in fact have the expected reading "four years." Most English translations follow the versions in reading "four" here, although some (e.g. KJV, ASV, NASB, NKJV), following the MT, read "forty."

[21] tn Heb "crossing over near the face of."

[22] tn The word "new" is not in the Hebrew text, but is supplied in the translation to make it clear that David refers to Absalom, not himself.

[23] tn Heb "place."

[24] tn Heb "brothers," but see v. 22.

[25] tn Heb "loyal love and truth." The expression is a hendiadys.

[26] tn Heb "be with."

[27] tn Heb "whether for death or for life."

[28] tn Heb "your servant."

[29] tn Heb "Come and cross over."

[30] tn Heb "crossed over."

[31] tn Heb "all the little ones."

[32] tn Heb "with a great voice."

[33] tn Heb "crossing over."

[34] tn Heb "crossing near the face of."

[35] tn Heb "crossing from."

[36] tn Heb "as [is] good in his eyes."

you a seer?[1] Go back to the city in peace! Your son Ahimaaz and Abiathar's son Jonathan may go with you and Abiathar.[2] 15:28 Look, I will be waiting at the fords of the desert until word from you[3] reaches me." 15:29 So Zadok and Abiathar took the ark of God back to Jerusalem and remained there.

15:30 As David was going up the Mount of Olives, he was weeping as he went; his head was covered and his feet were bare. All the people who were with him also had their heads covered and were weeping as they went up. 15:31 Now David[4] had been told, "Ahithophel has sided with the conspirators who are with Absalom. So David prayed,[5] "Make the advice of Ahithophel foolish, O LORD!"

15:32 When David reached the summit, where he used to worship God, Hushai the Arkite met him with his clothes torn and dirt on his head. 15:33 David said to him, "If you leave[6] with me you will be a burden to me. 15:34 But you will be able to counter the advice of Ahithophel if you go back to the city and say to Absalom, 'I will be your servant, O king! Previously I was your father's servant, and now I will be your servant.' 15:35 Zadok and Abiathar the priests will be there with you.[7] Everything you hear in the king's palace[8] you must tell Zadok and Abiathar the priests. 15:36 Furthermore, their two sons are there with them, Zadok's son Ahimaaz and Abiathar's son Jonathan. You must send them to me with any information you hear."[9] 15:37 So David's friend Hushai arrived in the city, just as Absalom was entering Jerusalem.

David Receives Gifts from Ziba

16:1 When David had gone a short way beyond the summit, Ziba the servant of Mephibosheth was there to meet him. He had a couple of donkeys that were saddled, and on them were two hundred loaves of bread, a hundred raisin cakes, a hundred baskets of summer fruit,[10] and a container of wine.

16:2 The king asked Ziba, "Why did you bring these things?"[11] Ziba replied, "The donkeys are for the king's family to ride on, the loaves of bread[12] and the summer fruit are for the attendants to eat, and the wine is for those who get exhausted in the desert."[13] 16:3 The king asked, "Where is your master's grandson?"[14] Ziba replied to the king, "He remains in Jerusalem,[15] for he said, 'Today the house of Israel will give back to me my grandfather's[16] kingdom.'" 16:4 The king said to Ziba, "Everything that was Mephibosheth's now belongs to you." Ziba replied, "I bow before you. May I find favor in your sight, my lord the king."

Shimei Curses David and His Men

16:5 Then King David reached[17] Bahurim. There a man from Saul's extended family named Shimei son of Gera came out, yelling curses as he approached.[18] 16:6 He threw stones at David and all of King David's servants, as well as all the people and the soldiers who were on his right and on his left. 16:7 As he yelled curses, Shimei said, "Leave! Leave! You man of bloodshed, you wicked man![19] 16:8 The LORD has punished you for[20] all the spilled blood of the house of Saul, in whose place you rule. Now the LORD has given the kingdom into the hand of your son Absalom. Disaster has overtaken you, for you are a man of bloodshed!"

16:9 Then Abishai son of Zeruiah said to the king, "Why should this dead dog curse my lord the king? Let me go over and cut off his head!"

[1] tn The Greek tradition understands the Hebrew word as an imperative ("see"). Most Greek MSS have ἴδετε (idete); the Lucianic recension has βλέπε (blepe). It could just as well be taken as a question: "Don't you see what is happening?" The present translation takes the word as a question, with the implication that Zadok is a priest and not a prophet (i.e., "seer") and therefore unable to know what the future holds.

[2] tn Heb "And Ahimaaz your son, and Jonathan the son of Abiathar, two of your sons, with you." The pronominal suffix on the last word is plural, referring to Zadok and Abiathar.

[3] tn The pronoun is plural, referring to Zadok and Abiathar.

[4] tc The translation follows 4QSam[a], part of the Greek tradition, the Syriac Peshitta, Targum, and Vulgate uldavid in reading "and to David," rather than MT וְדָוִד (v[e]david, "and David"). As Driver points out, the Hebrew verb הִגִּיד (higgid, "he related") never uses the accusative for the person to whom something is told (S. R. Driver, Notes on the Hebrew Text and the Topography of the Books of Samuel, 316).

[5] tn Heb "said."

[6] tn Heb "cross over."

[7] tn Heb "Will not Zadok and Abiathar the priests be there with you?" The rhetorical question draws attention to the fact that Hushai will not be alone.

[8] tn Heb "from the house of the king."

[9] tn Heb "and you must send by their hand to me every word which you hear." Both of the second person verb forms are plural with Zadok, Abiathar, and Hushai being the understood subjects.

[10] tn Heb "a hundred summer fruit."

[11] tn Heb "What are these to you?"

[12] tc The translation follows the Qere and many medieval Hebrew MSS in reading וְהַלֶּחֶם (v[e]hallekhem, "and the bread") rather than וּלְהַלֶּחֶם (ul[e]hallekhem, "and to the bread") of the Kethib. The syntax of the MT is confused here by the needless repetition of the preposition, probably taken from the preceding word.

[13] tn The Hebrew text adds "to drink."

[14] tn Heb "son."

[15] map For location see Map5-B1; Map6-F3; Map7-E2; Map8-F2; Map10-B3; JP1-F4; JP2-F4; JP3-F4; JP4-F4.

[16] tn Heb "my father's."

[17] tn Heb "came to." The form of the verb in the MT is odd. Some prefer to read וַיָּבֹא (vayyavo', preterite with vav consecutive) rather than וּבָא (uva', apparently perfect with vav), but this is probably an instance where the narrative offline v[e]qatal construction introduces a new scene.

[18] tn Heb "And look, from there a man was coming out from the clan of the house of Saul and his name was Shimei son of Gera, continually going out and cursing."

[19] tn Heb "man of worthlessness."

[20] tn Heb "has brought back upon you."

16:10 But the king said, "What do we have in common,[1] you sons of Zeruiah? If he curses because the LORD has said to him, 'Curse David!', who can say to him, 'Why have you done this?'" 16:11 Then David said to Abishai and to all his servants, "My own son, my very own flesh and blood,[2] is trying to take my life. So also now this Benjaminite! Leave him alone so that he can curse, for the LORD has spoken to him. 16:12 Perhaps the LORD will notice my affliction[3] and this day grant me good in place of his curse."[4] 16:13 So David and his men went on their way. But Shimei kept going along the side of the hill opposite him, yelling curses as he threw stones and dirt at them.[5] 16:14 The king and all the people who were with him arrived exhausted at their destination, where David[6] refreshed himself.

The Advice of Ahithophel

16:15 Now when Absalom and all the men[7] of Israel arrived in Jerusalem,[8] Ahithophel was with him. 16:16 When David's friend Hushai the Arkite came to Absalom, Hushai said to him,[9] "Long live the king! Long live the king!"

16:17 Absalom said to Hushai, "Do you call this loyalty to your friend? Why didn't you go with your friend?" 16:18 Hushai replied to Absalom, "No, I will be loyal to the one whom the LORD, these people, and all the men of Israel have chosen.[10] 16:19 Moreover, whom should I serve? Should it not be his son? Just as I served your father, so I will serve you."[11]

16:20 Then Absalom said to Ahithophel, "Give us your advice. What should we do?" 16:21 Ahithophel replied to Absalom, "Have sex with[12] your father's concubines whom he left to care for the palace. All Israel will hear that you have made yourself repulsive to your father. Then your followers will be motivated to support you."[13] 16:22 So they pitched a tent for Absalom on the roof,[14] and Absalom had sex with[15] his father's concubines in the sight of all Israel.

16:23 In those days Ahithophel's advice was considered as valuable as a prophetic revelation.[16] Both David and Absalom highly regarded the advice of Ahithophel.[17]

The Death of Ahithophel

17:1 Ahithophel said to Absalom, "Let me pick out twelve thousand men. Then I will go and pursue David this very night. 17:2 When I catch up with[18] him he will be exhausted and worn out.[19] I will rout him, and the entire army that is with him will flee. I will kill only the king 17:3 and will bring the entire army back to you. In exchange for the life of the man you are seeking, you will get back everyone.[20] The entire army will return unharmed."[21]

17:4 This seemed like a good idea to Absalom and to all the leaders[22] of Israel. 17:5 But Absalom said, "Call for[23] Hushai the Arkite, and let's hear what he has to say."[24] 17:6 So Hushai came to Absalom. Absalom said to him, "Here is what Ahithophel has advised. Should we follow his advice? If not, what would you recommend?"

---

[1] tn Heb "What to me and to you?"

[2] tn Heb "who came out from my entrails." David's point is that is his own son, his child whom he himself had fathered, was now wanting to kill him.

[3] tc The Hebrew text is difficult here. It is probably preferable to read with the LXX, the Syriac Peshitta, and Vulgate בְּעוֹנִי (bʾonyi, "on my affliction") rather than the Kethib of the MT בַּעֲוֹנִי (baʾavoni, "on my wrongdoing"). While this Kethib reading is understandable as an objective genitive (i.e., "the wrong perpetrated upon me"), it does not conform to normal Hebrew idiom for this idea. The Qere of the MT בְּעֵינַי (bʾeni, "on my eyes"), usually taken as synecdoche to mean "my tears," does not commend itself as a likely meaning. The Hebrew word is one of the so-called tiqqune sopherim, or "emendations of the scribes."

[4] tn Heb "and the LORD will restore to me good in place of his curse this day."

[5] tn Heb "and he cursed and threw stones, opposite him, pelting [them] with dirt." The offline vʾqatal construction in the last clause indicates an action that was complementary to the action described in the preceding clause. He simultaneously threw stones and dirt.

[6] tn Heb "he"; the referent (David) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[7] tn Heb "and all the people, the men of Israel."

[8] map For location see Map5-B1; Map6-F3; Map7-E2; Map8-F2; Map10-B3; JP1-F4; JP2-F4; JP3-F4; JP4-F4.

[9] tn Heb "to Absalom." The proper name has been replaced by the pronoun "him" in the translation for stylistic reasons.

[10] tn Heb "No for with the one whom the LORD has chosen, and this people, and all the men of Israel, I will be and with him I will stay." The translation follows the Qere and several medieval Hebrew MSS in reading לוֹ (lo, "[I will be] to him") rather than the MT לֹא (lo', "[I will] not be"), which makes very little sense here.

[11] tn Heb "Just as I served before your father, so I will be before you."

[12] tn Heb "go to"; NAB "have (+ sexual NCV) relations with"; TEV "have intercourse with"; NLT "Go and sleep with."

[13] tn Heb "and the hands of all who are with you will be strengthened."

[14] sn That is, on top of the flat roof of the palace, so it would be visible to the public.

[15] tn Heb "went to"; NAB "he visited his father's concubines"; NIV "lay with his father's concubines"; TEV "went in and had intercourse with."

[16] tn Heb "And the advice of Ahithophel which he advised in those days was as when one inquires of the word of God."

[17] tn Heb "So was all the advice of Ahithophel, also to David, also to Absalom."

[18] tn Heb "and I will come upon him."

[19] tn Heb "exhausted and slack of hands."

[20] tc Heb "like the returning of all, the man whom you are seeking." The LXX reads differently: "And I will return all the people to you the way a bride returns to her husband, except for the life of the one man whom you are seeking." The other early versions also struggled with this verse. Modern translations are divided as well: the NAB, NRSV, REB, and NLT follow the LXX, while the NASB and NIV follow the Hebrew text.

[21] tn Heb "all of the people will be safe."

[22] tn Heb "elders."

[23] tc In the MT the verb is singular, but in the LXX, the Syriac Peshitta, and Vulgate it is plural.

[24] tn Heb "what is in his mouth."

17:7 Hushai replied to Absalom, "Ahithophel's advice is not sound this time."[1] 17:8 Hushai went on to say, "You know your father and his men – they are soldiers and are as dangerous as a bear out in the wild that has been robbed of her cubs.[2] Your father is an experienced soldier; he will not stay overnight with the army. 17:9 At this very moment he is hiding out in one of the caves or in some other similar place. If it should turn out that he attacks our troops first,[3] whoever hears about it will say, 'Absalom's army has been slaughtered!' 17:10 If that happens even the bravest soldier – one who is lion-hearted – will virtually melt away. For all Israel knows that your father is a warrior and that those who are with him are brave. 17:11 My advice therefore is this: Let all Israel from Dan to Beer Sheba – in number like the sand by the sea! – be mustered to you, and you lead them personally into battle. 17:12 We will come against him wherever he happens to be found. We will descend on him like the dew falls on the ground. Neither he nor any of the men who are with him will be spared alive – not one of them! 17:13 If he regroups in a city, all Israel will take up ropes to that city and drag it down to the valley, so that not a single pebble will be left there!"

17:14 Then Absalom and all the men of Israel said, "The advice of Hushai the Arkite sounds better than the advice of Ahithophel." Now the LORD had decided[4] to frustrate the sound advice of Ahithophel, so that the LORD could bring disaster on Absalom.

17:15 Then Hushai reported to Zadok and Abiathar the priests, "Here is what Ahithophel has advised Absalom and the leaders[5] of Israel to do, and here is what I have advised. 17:16 Now send word quickly to David and warn him,[6] 'Don't spend the night at the fords of the desert[7] tonight. Instead, be sure you cross over,[8] or else the king and everyone who is with him may be overwhelmed.'"[9]

17:17 Now Jonathan and Ahimaaz were staying in En Rogel. A female servant would go and inform them, and they would then go and inform King David. It was not advisable for them to be seen going into the city. 17:18 But a young man saw them on one occasion and informed Absalom. So the two of them quickly departed and went to the house of a man in Bahurim. There was a well in his courtyard, and they got down in it. 17:19 His wife then took the covering and spread it over the top of the well and scattered some grain over it. No one was aware of what she had done.

17:20 When the servants of Absalom approached the woman at her home, they asked, "Where are Ahimaaz and Jonathan?" The woman replied to them, "They crossed over the stream." Absalom's men[10] searched but did not find them, so they returned to Jerusalem.[11]

17:21 After the men had left, Ahimaaz and Jonathan[12] climbed out of the well. Then they left and informed King David. They advised David, "Get up and cross the stream[13] quickly, for Ahithophel has devised a plan to catch you."[14] 17:22 So David and all the people who were with him got up and crossed the Jordan River.[15] By dawn there was not one person left who had not crossed the Jordan.

17:23 When Ahithophel realized that his advice had not been followed, he saddled his donkey and returned to his house in his hometown. After setting his household in order, he hanged himself. So he died and was buried in the grave[16] of his father.

17:24 Meanwhile David had gone to Mahanaim, while Absalom and all the men of Israel had crossed the Jordan River. 17:25 Absalom had made Amasa general in command of the army in place of Joab. (Now Amasa was the son of an Israelite man named Jether, who had married[17] Abigail the daughter of Nahash and sister of Zeruiah, Joab's mother.) 17:26 The army of Israel[18] and Absalom camped in the land of Gilead.

17:27 When David came to Mahanaim, Shobi the son of Nahash from Rabbah of the Ammonites, Makir the son of Ammiel from Lo Debar, and Barzillai the Gileadite from Rogelim 17:28 brought bedding, basins, and pottery utensils. They also brought food for David and all who were with him, including wheat, barley,

---

[1] tn Heb "Not good is the advice which Ahithophel has advised at this time."

[2] tc The LXX (with the exception of the recensions of Origen and Lucian) repeats the description as follows: "Just as a female bear bereft of cubs in a field."

[3] tn Heb "that he falls on them [i.e., Absalom's troops] at the first [encounter]; or "that some of them [i.e., Absalom's troops] fall at the first [encounter]."

[4] tn Heb "commanded."

[5] tn Heb "elders."

[6] tn Heb "send quickly and tell David saying."

[7] tn Or "wilderness" (so KJV, NASB, NRSV, TEV).

[8] tn That is, "cross over the Jordan River."

[9] tn Heb "swallowed up."

[10] tn Heb "they"; the referents (Absalom's men) have been specified in the translation for clarity.

[11] map For location see Map5-B1; Map6-F3; Map7-E2; Map8-F2; Map10-B3; JP1-F4; JP2-F4; JP3-F4; JP4-F4.

[12] tn Heb "they"; the referents (Ahimaaz and Jonathan) have been specified in the translation for clarity.

[13] tn Heb "the water."

[14] tn Heb "for thus Ahithophel has devised against you." The expression "thus" is narrative shorthand, referring to the plan outlined by Ahithophel (see vv. 1-3). The men would surely have outlined the plan in as much detail as they had been given by the messenger.

[15] tn The word "River" is not in the Hebrew text here or in v. 24, but has been supplied in the translation for clarity.

[16] tc The Greek recensions of Origen and Lucian have here "house" for "grave."

[17] tn Heb "come to."

[18] tn Heb "and Israel."

flour, roasted grain, beans, lentils,[1] 17:29 honey, curds, flocks, and cheese.[2] For they said, "The people are no doubt hungry, tired, and thirsty there in the desert."[3]

The Death of Absalom

18:1 David assembled the army that was with him. He appointed leaders of thousands and leaders of hundreds. 18:2 David then sent out the army – a third under the leadership of Joab, a third under the leadership of Joab's brother Abishai son of Zeruiah, and a third under the leadership of Ittai the Gittite. The king said to the troops, "I too will indeed march out with you."

18:3 But the soldiers replied,[4] "You should not do this![5] For if we should have to make a rapid retreat, they won't be too concerned about us.[6] Even if half of us should die, they won't be too concerned about us. But you[7] are like ten thousand of us! So it is better if you remain in the city for support." 18:4 Then the king said to them, "I will do whatever seems best to you."

So the king stayed beside the city gate, while all the army marched out by hundreds and by thousands. 18:5 The king gave this order to Joab, Abishai, and Ittai: "For my sake deal gently with the young man Absalom." Now the entire army was listening when the king gave all the leaders this order concerning Absalom.

18:6 Then the army marched out to the field to fight against Israel. The battle took place in the forest of Ephraim. 18:7 The army of Israel was defeated there by David's men.[8] The slaughter there was great that day – 20,000 soldiers were killed. 18:8 The battle there was spread out over the whole area, and the forest consumed more soldiers than the sword devoured that day.

18:9 Then Absalom happened to come across David's men. Now as Absalom was riding on his[9] mule, it[10] went under the branches of a large oak tree. His head got caught in the oak and he was suspended in midair,[11] while the mule he had been riding kept going.

18:10 When one[12] of the men saw this, he reported it to Joab saying, "I saw Absalom hanging in an oak tree.18:11 Joab replied to the man who was telling him this, "What! You saw this? Why didn't you strike him down right on the spot?[13] I would have given you ten pieces of silver[14] and a commemorative belt!"[15]

18:12 The man replied to Joab, "Even if[16] I were receiving[17] a thousand pieces of silver,[18] I would not strike[19] the king's son! In our very presence[20] the king gave this order to you and Abishai and Ittai, 'Protect the young man Absalom for my sake.'[21] 18:13 If I had acted at risk of my own life[22] – and nothing is hidden from the king! – you would have abandoned me."[23]

18:14 Joab replied, "I will not wait around like this for you!" He took three spears in his hand and thrust them into the middle of Absalom while he was still alive in the middle of the oak tree.[24] 18:15 Then ten soldiers who were Joab's armor bearers struck Absalom and finished him off.

18:16 Then Joab blew the trumpet[25] and the army turned back from chasing Israel, for Joab had called for the army to halt. 18:17 They took Absalom, threw him into a large pit in the forest, and stacked a huge pile of stones over him. In

1 tc The MT adds "roasted grain" וְקָלִי (v^eqali) at the end of v. 28, apparently accidentally repeating the word from its earlier occurrence in this verse. With the LXX, the Syriac Peshitta, and an Old Latin MS the translation deletes this second occurrence of the word.

2 tn Heb "cheese of the herd," probably referring to cheese from cow's milk (rather than goat's milk).

3 tn Or "wilderness" (so KJV, NASB, NRSV, TEV, NLT).

4 tn Heb "the people said."

5 tn Heb "march out."

6 tn Heb "they will not place to us heart."

7 tc The translation follows the LXX (except for the Lucianic recension), Symmachus, and Vulgate in reading אַתָּה ('atta, "you") rather than MT עָתָּה ('atta, "now").

8 tn Heb "servants" (also in v. 9).

9 tn Heb "the."

10 tn Heb "the donkey."

11 tn Heb "between the sky and the ground."

12 tc 4QSam[a] lacks the word "one."

13 tn Heb "Why did you not strike him down there to the ground."

14 tn Heb "ten [shekels] of silver." This would have been about 4 ounces (114 grams) of silver by weight.

15 tn Heb "and a girdle" (so KJV); NIV "a warrior's belt"; CEV "a special belt"; NLT "a hero's belt."

16 tc The translation follows the Qere and many medieval Hebrew MSS in reading וְלוּ (v^elu, "and if") rather than MT וְלֹא (v^elo', "and not").

17 tn Heb "weighing out in my hand."

18 tn Heb "a thousand [shekels] of silver." This would have been about 25 pounds (11.4 kg) of silver by weight.

19 tn Heb "extend my hand against."

20 tn Heb "in our ears."

21 tc The Hebrew text is very difficult here. The MT reads מִי (mi, "who"), apparently yielding the following sense: "Show care, whoever you might be, for the youth Absalom." The Syriac Peshitta reads li ("for me"), the Hebrew counterpart of which may also lie behind the LXX rendering μοι (moi, "for me"). This reading seems preferable here, since it restores sense to the passage and most easily explains the rise of the variant.

22 tc The translation follows the Qere, many medieval Hebrew MSS, and a number of the ancient versions in reading בְּנַפְשִׁי (v^enafshi, "against my life") rather than the MT בְּנַפְשׁוֹ (v^enafsho, "against his life").

23 tn Heb "stood aloof."

24 tn There is a play on the word "heart" here that is difficult to reproduce in English. Literally the Hebrew text says "he took three spears in his hand and thrust them into the heart of Absalom while he was still alive in the heart of the oak tree." This figure of speech involves the use of the same word in different senses and is known as antanaclasis. It is illustrated in the familiar saying from the time of the American Revolution: "If we don't hang together, we will all hang separately." The present translation understands "heart" to be used somewhat figuratively for "chest" (cf. TEV, CEV), which explains why Joab's armor bearers could still "kill" Absalom after he had been stabbed with three spears through the "heart." Since trees do not have "chests" either, the translation uses "middle."

25 tn Heb "the shofar" (the ram's horn trumpet).

the meantime all the Israelite soldiers fled to their homes.[1]

18:18 Prior to this[2] Absalom had set up a monument[3] and dedicated it to himself in the King's Valley, reasoning "I have no son who will carry on my name." He named the monument after himself, and to this day it is known as Absalom's Memorial.

David Learns of Absalom's Death

18:19 Then Ahimaaz the son of Zadok said, "Let me run and give the king the good news that the LORD has vindicated him before his enemies."[4] 18:20 But Joab said to him, "You will not be a bearer of good news today. You will bear good news some other day, but not today,[5] for the king's son is dead."

18:21 Then Joab said to the Cushite, "Go and tell the king what you have seen." After bowing to Joab, the Cushite ran off. 18:22 Ahimaaz the son of Zadok again spoke to Joab, "Whatever happens, let me go after the Cushite." But Joab said, "Why is it that you want to go, my son? You have no good news that will bring you a reward." 18:23 But he said,[6] "Whatever happens, I want to go!" So Joab[7] said to him, "Then go!" So Ahimaaz ran by the way of the Jordan plain, and he passed the Cushite.

18:24 Now David was sitting between the inner and outer gates,[8] and the watchman went up to the roof over the gate at the wall. When he looked, he saw a man running by himself. 18:25 So the watchman called out and informed the king. The king said, "If he is by himself, he brings good news."[9] The runner[10] came ever closer.

18:26 Then the watchman saw another man running. The watchman called out to the gatekeeper, "There is another man running by himself." The king said, "This one also is bringing good news." 18:27 The watchman said, "It appears to me that the first runner is Ahimaaz[11] son of Zadok." The king said, "He is a good man, and he comes with good news."

18:28 Then Ahimaaz called out and said to the king, "Greetings!"[12] He bowed down before the king with his face toward the ground and said, "May the LORD your God be praised because he has defeated[13] the men who opposed[14] my lord the king!"

18:29 The king replied, "How is the young man Absalom?" Ahimaaz replied, "I saw a great deal of confusion when Joab was sending the king's servant and me, your servant, but I don't know what it was all about." 18:30 The king said, "Turn aside and take your place here." So he turned aside and waited.

18:31 Then the Cushite arrived and said,[15] "May my lord the king now receive the good news! The LORD has vindicated you today and delivered you from the hand of all who have rebelled against you!"[16] 18:32 The king asked the Cushite, "How is the young man Absalom?" The Cushite replied, "May the enemies of my lord the king and all who have plotted against you[17] be like that young man!"

18:33 (19:1)[18] The king then became very upset. He went up to the upper room over the gate and wept. As he went he said, "My son, Absalom! My son, my son,[19] Absalom! If only I could have died in your place! Absalom, my son, my son!"[20]

19:1 (19:2) Joab was told, "The king is weeping and mourning over Absalom." 19:2 So the victory of that day was turned to mourning as far as all the people were concerned. For the people heard on that day, "The king is grieved over his son." 19:3 That day the people stole away to go to the city the way people who are embarrassed steal away in fleeing from battle. 19:4 The king covered his face and cried out loudly,[21] "My son, Absalom! Absalom, my son, my son!"

[1] tn Heb "and all Israel fled, each to his tent." In this context this refers to the supporters of Absalom (see vv. 6-7, 16).

[2] tn Heb "and." This disjunctive clause (conjunction + subject + verb) describes an occurrence that preceded the events just narrated.

[3] tn Heb "a pillar."

[4] tn Heb "that the LORD has vindicated him from the hand of his enemies."

[5] tn Heb "but this day you will not bear good news."

[6] tn The words "but he said" are not in the Hebrew text. They are supplied in the translation for clarity.

[7] tn Heb "he"; the referent (Joab) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[8] tn Heb "the two gates."

[9] tn Heb "good news is in his mouth."

[10] tn Heb "he"; the referent (the runner) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[11] tn Heb "I am seeing the running of the first one like the running of Ahimaaz."

[12] tn Heb "Peace."

[13] tn Heb "delivered over."

[14] tn Heb "lifted their hand against."

[15] tn Heb "And look, the Cushite came and the Cushite said."

[16] tn Heb "for the LORD has vindicated you today from the hand of all those rising against you."

[17] tn Heb "and all those rising against you for evil."

[18] sn This marks the beginning of ch. 19 in the Hebrew text. Beginning with 18:33, the verse numbers through 19:43 in the English Bible differ from the verse numbers in the Hebrew text (BHS), with 18:33 ET = 19:1 HT, 19:1 ET = 19:2 HT, 19:2 ET = 19:3 HT, etc., through 19:43 ET = 19:44 HT. From 20:1 the versification in the English Bible and the Hebrew Bible is again the same.

[19] tc One medieval Hebrew MS, some MSS of the LXX, and the Vulgate lack this repeated occurrence of "my son" due to haplography.

[20] tc The Lucianic Greek recension and Syriac Peshitta lack this repeated occurrence of "my son" due to haplography.

[21] tn Heb "with a great voice."

19:5 So Joab visited[1] the king at his home. He said, "Today you have embarrassed all your servants who have saved your life this day, as well as the lives of your sons, your daughters, your wives, and your concubines. 19:6 You seem to love your enemies and hate your friends! For you have as much as declared today that leaders and servants don't matter to you. I realize now[2] that if[3] Absalom were alive and all of us were dead today,[4] it would be all right with you. 19:7 So get up now and go out and give some encouragement to[5] your servants. For I swear by the LORD that if you don't go out there, not a single man will stay here with you tonight! This disaster will be worse for you than any disaster that has overtaken you from your youth right to the present time!"

19:8 So the king got up and sat at the city gate. When all the people were informed that the king was sitting at the city gate, they[6] all came before him.

David Goes Back to Jerusalem

But the Israelite soldiers[7] had all fled to their own homes.[8] 19:9 All the people throughout all the tribes of Israel were arguing among themselves saying, "The king delivered us from the hand of our enemies. He rescued us from the hand of the Philistines, but now he has fled from the land because of Absalom. 19:10 But Absalom, whom we anointed as our king,[9] has died in battle. So now why do you hesitate to bring the king back?"[10]

19:11 Then King David sent a message to Zadok and Abiathar the priests saying, "Tell the elders of Judah, 'Why should you delay any further in bringing the king back to his palace,[11] when everything Israel is saying has come to the king's attention.[12] 19:12 You are my brothers – my very own flesh and blood![13] Why should you delay any further in bringing the king back?' 19:13 Say to Amasa, 'Are you not my flesh and blood?[14] God will punish me severely,[15] if from this time on you are not the commander of my army in place of Joab!'"

19:14 He[16] won over the hearts of all the men of Judah as though they were one man. Then they sent word to the king saying, "Return, you and all your servants as well." 19:15 So the king returned and came to the Jordan River.[17]

Now the people of Judah[18] had come to Gilgal to meet the king and to help him[19] cross the Jordan. 19:16 Shimei son of Gera the Benjaminite from Bahurim came down quickly with the men of Judah to meet King David. 19:17 There were a thousand men from Benjamin with him, along with Ziba the servant[20] of Saul's household, and with him his fifteen sons and twenty servants. They hurriedly crossed[21] the Jordan within sight of the king. 19:18 They crossed at the ford in order to help the king's household cross and to do whatever he thought appropriate.

Now after he had crossed the Jordan, Shimei son of Gera threw himself down before the king. 19:19 He said to the king, "Don't think badly of me, my lord, and don't recall the sin of your servant on the day when you, my lord the king, left[22] Jerusalem![23] Please don't call it to mind! 19:20 For I, your servant,[24] know that I sinned, and I have come today as the first of all the house of Joseph to come down to meet my lord the king."

19:21 Abishai son of Zeruiah replied, "For this should not Shimei be put to death? After all, he cursed the LORD's anointed!" 19:22 But David said, "What do we have in common,[25] you sons of Zeruiah? You are like my enemy today! Should anyone be put to death in Israel today? Don't you realize that today I am king over Israel?" 19:23 The king said to Shimei, "You won't die." The king vowed an oath[26] concerning this.

[1] tn Heb "came to."

[2] tn Heb "today."

[3] tc The translation follows the Qere, 4QSam[a], and many medieval Hebrew MSS in reading לוּ (lu, "if") rather than MT לֹא (lo', "not").

[4] tc The Lucianic Greek recension and Syriac Peshitta lack "today."

[5] tn Heb "and speak to the heart of."

[6] tn Heb "all the people."

[7] tn The Hebrew text has simply "Israel" (see 18:16-17).

[8] tn Heb "had fled, each to his tent."

[9] tn Heb "over us."

[10] tc The LXX includes the following words at the end of v. 11: "And what all Israel was saying came to the king's attention." The words are misplaced in the LXX from v. 12 (although the same statement appears there in the LXX as well).

[11] tn Heb "his house."

[12] tc The Hebrew text adds "to his house" (= palace), but the phrase, which also appears earlier in the verse, is probably accidentally repeated here.

[13] tn Heb "my bone and my flesh."

[14] tn Heb "my bone and my flesh."

[15] tn Heb "Thus God will do to me and thus he will add."

[16] tn The referent of "he" is not entirely clear: cf. NCV "David"; TEV "David's words"; NRSV, NLT "Amasa."

[17] tn The word "River" is not in the Hebrew text, but has been supplied in the translation for clarity.

[18] tn The Hebrew text has simply "Judah."

[19] tn Heb "the king." The pronoun ("him") has been used in the translation to avoid redundancy.

[20] tn Heb "youth."

[21] tn Heb "rushed into."

[22] tn Though this verb in the MT is 3rd person masculine singular, it should probably be read as 2nd person masculine singular. It is one of fifteen places where the Masoretes placed a dot over each of the letters of the word in question in order to call attention to their suspicion of the word. Their concern in this case apparently had to do with the fact that this verb and the two preceding verbs alternate from third person to second and back again to third. Words marked in this way in Hebrew manuscripts or printed editions are said to have puncta extrordinaria, or "extraordinary points."

[23] map For location see Map5-B1; Map6-F3; Map7-E2; Map8-F2; Map10-B3; JP1-F4; JP2-F4; JP3-F4; JP4-F4.

[24] tn The Hebrew text has simply "your servant."

[25] tn Heb "what to me and to you."

[26] tn Heb "swore to him."

19:24 Now Mephibosheth, Saul's grandson,[1] came down to meet the king. From the day the king had left until the day he safely[2] returned, Mephibosheth[3] had not cared for his feet[4] nor trimmed[5] his mustache nor washed his clothes.

19:25 When he came from Jerusalem to meet the king, the king asked him, "Why didn't you go with me, Mephibosheth?" 19:26 He replied, "My lord the king, my servant deceived me! I[6] said, 'Let me get my donkey saddled so that I can ride on it and go with the king,' for I[7] am lame. 19:27 But my servant[8] has slandered me[9] to my lord the king. But my lord the king is like an angel of God. Do whatever seems appropriate to you. 19:28 After all, there was no one in the entire house of my grandfather[10] who did not deserve death from my lord the king. But instead you allowed me to eat at your own table![11] What further claim do I have to ask[12] the king for anything?"

19:29 Then the king replied to him, "Why should you continue speaking like this? You and Ziba will inherit the field together." 19:30 Mephibosheth said to the king, "Let him have[13] the whole thing! My lord the king has returned safely[14] to his house!"

19:31 Now when Barzillai the Gileadite had come down from Rogelim, he crossed the Jordan with the king so he could send him on his way from there.[15] 19:32 But Barzillai was very old – eighty years old, in fact – and he had taken care of the king when he stayed in Mahanaim, for he was a very rich[16] man. 19:33 So the king said to Barzillai, "Cross over with me, and I will take care of you while you are with me in Jerusalem."

19:34 Barzillai replied to the king, "How many days do I have left to my life, that I should go up with the king to Jerusalem? 19:35 I am presently eighty years old. Am I able to discern good and bad? Can I[17] taste what I eat and drink? Am I still able to hear the voices of male and female singers? Why should I[18] continue to be a burden to my lord the king? 19:36 I will cross the Jordan with the king and go a short distance.[19] Why should the king reward me in this way? 19:37 Let me[20] return so that I may die in my own city near the grave of my father and my mother. But look, here is your servant Kimham. Let him cross over with my lord the king. Do for him whatever seems appropriate to you."

19:38 The king replied, "Kimham will cross over with me, and I will do for him whatever I deem appropriate. And whatever you choose, I will do for you."

19:39 So all the people crossed the Jordan, as did the king. After the king had kissed him and blessed him, Barzillai returned to his home.[21] 19:40 When the king crossed over to Gilgal, Kimham[22] crossed over with him. Now all the soldiers[23] of Judah along with half of the soldiers of Israel had helped the king cross over.[24]

19:41 Then all the men of Israel began coming to the king. They asked the king, "Why did our brothers, the men of Judah, sneak the king away and help the king and his household cross the Jordan – and not only him but all of David's men as well?"

19:42 All the men of Judah replied to the men of Israel, "Because the king is our close relative! Why are you so upset about this? Have we eaten at the king's expense?[25] Or have we misappropriated anything for our own use?" 19:43 The men of Israel replied to the men of Judah, "We have ten shares in the king, and we have a greater claim on David than you do! Why do you want[26] to curse us? Weren't we the first to suggest bringing back our king?" But the comments of the men of Judah were more severe than those of the men of Israel.

1 tn Heb "son."

2 tn Heb "in peace." So also in v. 31.

3 tn Heb "he"; the referent (Mephibosheth) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

4 tn Heb "done his feet."

5 tn Heb "done."

6 tn Heb "your servant."

7 tn Heb "your servant."

8 tn Heb "and he"; the referent (the servant) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

9 tn Heb "your servant."

10 tn Heb "father."

11 tn Heb "and you placed your servant among those who eat at your table."

12 tn Heb "to cry out to."

13 tn Heb "take."

14 tn Heb "in peace."

15 tc The MT reading אֶת־בְּיַרְדֵּן ('et-vayyarden, "in the Jordan") is odd syntactically. The use of the preposition after the object marker אֵת ('et) is difficult to explain. Graphic confusion is likely in the MT; the translation assumes the reading מִיַּרְדֵּן (miyyarden, "from the Jordan"). Another possibility is to read the definite article on the front of "Jordan" (הַיַּרְדֵּן, hayyarden; "the Jordan").

16 tn Heb "great."

17 tn Heb "your servant."

18 tn Heb "your servant."

19 tn Heb "Like a little your servant will cross the Jordan with the king."

20 tn Heb "your servant."

21 tn Heb "to his place."

22 tn The MT in this instance alone spells the name with final ן (nun, "Kimhan") rather than as elsewhere with final ם (mem, "Kimham"). As in most other translations, the conventional spelling (with ם) has been used here to avoid confusion.

23 tn Heb "people."

24 tc The translation follows the Qere and many medieval Hebrew MSS in reading the Hiphil verb הֶעֱבִירוּ (he'eviru, "they caused to pass over") rather than the Qal verb וַיַּעַבְרוּ (vay'ᵉviru, "they crossed over") of the MT.

25 tn Heb "from the king."

26 tn The translation understands the verb in a desiderative sense, indicating the desire but not necessarily the completed action of the party in question. It is possible, however, that the verb should be given the more common sense of accomplished action, in which case it means here "Why have you cursed us?"

Sheba's Rebellion

20:1 Now a wicked man[1] named Sheba son of Bicri, a Benjaminite,[2] happened to be there. He blew the trumpet[3] and said,

"We have no share in David;
we have no inheritance in this son of Jesse!
Every man go home,[4] O Israel!"

20:2 So all the men of Israel deserted[5] David and followed Sheba son of Bicri. But the men of Judah stuck by their king all the way from the Jordan River[6] to Jerusalem.[7]

20:3 Then David went to his palace[8] in Jerusalem. The king took the ten concubines he had left to care for the palace and placed them under confinement.[9] Though he provided for their needs, he did not have sexual relations with them.[10] They remained in confinement until the day they died, living out the rest of their lives as widows.

20:4 Then the king said to Amasa, "Call the men of Judah together for me in three days,[11] and you be present here with them too." 20:5 So Amasa went out to call Judah together. But in doing so he took longer than the time that the king had allotted him.

20:6 Then David said to Abishai, "Now Sheba son of Bicri will cause greater disaster for us than Absalom did! Take your lord's servants and pursue him. Otherwise he will secure[12] fortified cities for himself and get away from us." 20:7 So Joab's men, accompanied by the Kerethites, the Pelethites, and all the warriors, left Jerusalem to pursue Sheba son of Bicri.

20:8 When they were near the big rock that is in Gibeon, Amasa came to them. Now Joab was dressed in military attire and had a dagger in its sheath belted to his waist. When he advanced, it fell out.[13]

20:9 Joab said to Amasa, "How are you, my brother?" With his right hand Joab took hold of Amasa's beard as if to greet him with a kiss. 20:10 Amasa did not protect himself from the knife in Joab's other hand, and Joab[14] stabbed him in the abdomen, causing Amasa's[15] intestines to spill out on the ground. There was no need to stab him again; the first blow was fatal.[16] Then Joab and his brother Abishai pursued Sheba son of Bicri.

20:11 One of Joab's soldiers who stood over Amasa said, "Whoever is for[17] Joab and whoever is for David, follow Joab!" 20:12 Amasa was squirming in his own blood in the middle of the path, and this man had noticed that all the soldiers stopped. Having noticed that everyone who came across Amasa[18] stopped, the man[19] pulled him[20] away from the path and into the field and threw a garment over him. 20:13 Once he had removed Amasa[21] from the path, everyone followed Joab to pursue Sheba son of Bicri.

20:14 Sheba[22] traveled through all the tribes of Israel to Abel of[23] Beth Maacah and all the Berite region. When they had assembled,[24] they too

1 tn Heb "a man of worthlessness."

2 tn The expression used here יְמִינִי (y^{e}mini) is a short form of the more common "Benjamin." It appears elsewhere in 1 Sam 9:4 and Esth 2:5. Cf. 1 Sam 9:1.

3 tn Heb "the shofar" (the ram's horn trumpet). So also v. 22.

4 tc The MT reads לְאָהָלָיו (l^{e}'ohalav, "to his tents"). For a similar idiom, see 19:9. An ancient scribal tradition understands the reading to be לֵאלֹהָיו (le'lohav, "to his gods"). The word is a tiqqun sopherim, and the scribes indicate that they changed the word from "gods" to "tents" so as to soften its theological implications. In a consonantal Hebrew text the change involved only the metathesis of two letters.

5 tn Heb "went up from after."

6 tn The word "River" is not in the Hebrew text, but has been supplied in the translation for clarity.

7 map For location see Map5-B1; Map6-F3; Map7-E2; Map8-F2; Map10-B3; JP1-F4; JP2-F4; JP3-F4; JP4-F4.

8 tn Heb "house."

9 tn Heb "and he placed them in a guarded house."

10 tn Heb "he did not come to them"; NAB "has no further relations with them"; NIV "did not lie with them"; TEV "did not have intercourse with them"; NLT "would no longer sleep with them."

11 tn The present translation follows the Masoretic accentuation, with the major mark of disjunction (i.e., the atnach) placed at the word "days." However, some scholars have suggested moving the atnach to "Judah" a couple of words earlier. This would yield the following sense: "Three days, and you be present here with them." The difference in meaning is slight, and the MT is acceptable as it stands.

12 tn Heb "find." The perfect verbal form is unexpected with the preceding word "otherwise." We should probably read instead the imperfect. Although it is possible to understand the perfect here as indicating that the feared result is thought of as already having taken place (cf. BDB 814 s.v. פֶּן 2), it is more likely that the perfect is simply the result of scribal error. In this context the imperfect would be more consistent with the following verb וְהָצִיל (v^{e}hitsil, "and he will get away").

13 sn The significance of the statement it fell out here is unclear. If the dagger fell out of its sheath before Joab got to Amasa, how then did he kill him? Josephus, Ant. 7.11.7 (7.284), suggested that as Joab approached Amasa he deliberately caused the dagger to fall to the ground at an opportune moment as though by accident. When he bent over and picked it up, he then stabbed Amasa with it. Others have tried to make a case for thinking that two swords are referred to – the one that fell out and another that Joab kept concealed until the last moment. But nothing in the text clearly supports this view. Perhaps Josephus' understanding is best, but it is by no means obvious in the text either.

14 tn Heb "he"; the referent (Joab) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

15 tn Heb "his"; the referent (Amasa) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

19 tn Heb "he"; the referent (the man who spoke up in v. 11) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

20 tn Heb "Amasa." For stylistic reasons the name has been replaced by the pronoun ("him") in the translation.

21 tn Heb "him"; the referent (Amasa) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

22 tn Heb "he"; the referent (Sheba) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

23 tc In keeping with the form of the name in v. 15, the translation deletes the "and" found in the MT.

joined him. 20:15 So Joab's men[1] came and laid siege against him in Abel of Beth Maacah. They prepared a siege ramp outside the city which stood against its outer rampart. As all of Joab's soldiers were trying to break through[2] the wall so that it would collapse, 20:16 a wise woman called out from the city, "Listen up! Listen up! Tell Joab, 'Come near so that I may speak to you.'"

20:17 When he approached her, the woman asked, "Are you Joab?" He replied, "I am." She said to him, "Listen to the words of your servant." He said, "Go ahead. I'm listening." 20:18 She said, "In the past they would always say, 'Let them inquire in Abel,' and that is how they settled things. 20:19 I represent the peaceful and the faithful in Israel. You are attempting to destroy an important city[3] in Israel. Why should you swallow up the LORD's inheritance?"

20:20 Joab answered, "Get serious![4] I don't want to swallow up or destroy anything! 20:21 That's not the way things are. There is a man from the hill country of Ephraim named Sheba son of Bicri. He has rebelled[5] against King David. Give me just this one man, and I will leave the city." The woman said to Joab, "This very minute[6] his head will be thrown over the wall to you!"

20:22 Then the woman went to all the people with her wise advice and they cut off Sheba's head and threw it out to Joab. Joab[7] blew the trumpet, and his men[8] dispersed from the city, each going to his own home.[9] Joab returned to the king in Jerusalem.

20:23 Now Joab was the general in command of all the army of Israel. Benaiah the son of Jehoida was over the Kerethites and the Perethites. 20:24 Adoniram[10] was supervisor of the work crews.[11] Jehoshaphat son of Ahilud was the secretary. 20:25 Sheva was the scribe, and Zadok and Abiathar were the priests. 20:26 Ira the Jairite was David's personal priest.[12]

The Gibeonites Demand Revenge

21:1 During David's reign there was a famine for three consecutive years. So David inquired of the LORD.[13] The LORD said, "It is because of Saul and his bloodstained family,[14] because he murdered the Gibeonites."

21:2 So the king summoned the Gibeonites and spoke with them. (Now the Gibeonites were not descendants of Israel; they were a remnant of the Amorites. The Israelites had made a promise to[15] them, but Saul tried to kill them because of his zeal for the people of Israel and Judah.) 21:3 David said to the Gibeonites, "What can I do for you, and how can I make amends so that you will bless[16] the LORD's inheritance?"

21:4 The Gibeonites said to him, "We[17] have no claim to silver or gold from Saul or from his family,[18] nor would we be justified in putting to death anyone in Israel." David asked,[19] "What then are you asking me to do for you?" 21:5 They replied to the king, "As for this man who exterminated us and who schemed against us so that we were destroyed and left without status throughout all the borders of Israel – 21:6 let seven of his male descendants be turned over to us, and we will execute[20] them before the LORD

[1] tn Heb "they." The following context makes it clear that this refers to Joab and his army.

[2] tc The LXX has here ἐνοοῦσαν (enoousan, "were devising"), which apparently presupposes the Hebrew word מַחֲשָׁשִׁים (makhashavim) rather than the MT מַשְׁחִיתִם (mashkhitim, "were destroying"). With a number of other scholars Driver thinks that the Greek variant may preserve the original reading, but this seems to be an unnecessary conclusion (but see S. R. Driver, Notes on the Hebrew Text and the Topography of the Books of Samuel, 346).

[3] tn Heb "a city and a mother." The expression is a hendiadys, meaning that this city was an important one in Israel and had smaller cities dependent on it.

[4] tn Heb "Far be it, far be it from me." The expression is clearly emphatic, as may be seen in part by the repetition. P. K. McCarter, however, understands it to be coarser than the translation adopted here. He renders it as "I'll be damned if..." (II Samuel [AB], 426, 429), which (while it is not a literal translation) may not be too far removed from the way a soldier might have expressed himself.

[5] tn Heb "lifted his hand."

[6] tn Heb "Look!"

[7] tn Heb "he"; the referent (Joab) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[8] tn Heb "they"; the referent (Joab's men) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[9] tn Heb "his tents."

[10] tn Heb "Adoram" (so KJV, NAB, NRSV, CEV), but see 1 Kgs 4:6; 5:14.

[11] tn Heb "was over the forced labor."

[12] tn Heb "priest for David." KJV ("a chief ruler about David") and ASV ("chief minister unto David") regarded this office as political.

[13] tn Heb "sought the face of the LORD."

[14] tn Heb "and the house of bloodshed."

[15] tn Heb "swore an oath to."

[16] tn After the preceding imperfect verbal form, the subordinated imperative indicates purpose/result. S. R. Driver comments, "...the imper. is used instead of the more normal voluntative, for the purpose of expressing with somewhat greater force the intention of the previous verb" (S. R. Driver, Notes on the Hebrew Text and the Topography of the Books of Samuel, 350).

[17] tc The translation follows the Qere and several medieval Hebrew MSS in reading לָנוּ (lanu, "to us") rather than the MT לִי (li, "to me"). But for a contrary opinion see S. R. Driver, Notes on the Hebrew Text and the Topography of the Books of Samuel, 53, 350.

[18] tn Heb "house."

[19] tn Heb "and he said"; the referent (David) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

[20] tn The exact nature of this execution is not altogether clear. The verb יָקַע (yaqa') basically means "to dislocate" or "alienate." In Gen 32:26 it is used of the dislocation of Jacob's thigh. Figuratively it can refer to the removal of an individual from a group (e.g., Jer 6:8; Ezek 23:17) or to a type of punishment the specific identity of which is uncertain (e.g., here and Num 25:4); cf. NAB "dismember them"; NIV "to be killed and exposed."

in Gibeah of Saul, who was the LORD's chosen one."[1] The king replied, "I will turn them over."

21:7 The king had mercy on Mephibosheth son of Jonathan, the son of Saul, in light of the LORD's oath that had been taken between David and Jonathan son of Saul. 21:8 So the king took Armoni and Mephibosheth, the two sons of Aiah's daughter Rizpah whom she had born to Saul, and the five sons of Saul's daughter Merab[2] whom she had born to Adriel the son of Barzillai the Meholathite. 21:9 He turned them over to the Gibeonites, and they executed them on a hill before the LORD. The seven of them[3] died[4] together; they were put to death during harvest time – during the first days of the beginning[5] of the barley harvest.

21:10 Rizpah the daughter of Aiah took sackcloth and spread it out for herself on a rock. From the beginning of the harvest until the rain fell on them,[6] she did not allow the birds of the air to feed[7] on them by day, nor the wild animals[8] by night. 21:11 When David was told what Rizpah daughter of Aiah, Saul's concubine, had done, 21:12 he[9] went and took the bones of Saul and of his son Jonathan[10] from the leaders[11] of Jabesh Gilead. (They had secretly taken[12] them from the plaza at Beth Shan. It was there that Philistines[13] publicly exposed their corpses[14] after[15] they[16] had killed Saul at Gilboa.) 21:13 David[17] brought the bones of Saul and of Jonathan his son from there; they also gathered up the bones of those who had been executed.

21:14 They buried the bones of Saul and his son Jonathan in the land of Benjamin at Zela in the grave of his father Kish. After they had done everything[18] that the king had commanded, God responded to their prayers[19] for the land.

Israel Engages in Various Battles with the Philistines

21:15 Another battle was fought between the Philistines and Israel. So David went down with his soldiers[20] and fought the Philistines. David became exhausted. 21:16 Now Ishbi-Benob, one of the descendants of Rapha,[21] had a spear[22] that weighed three hundred bronze shekels,[23] and he was armed with a new weapon.[24] He had said that he would kill David. 21:17 But Abishai the son of Zeruiah came to David's aid, striking the Philistine down and killing him. Then David's men took an oath saying, "You will not go out to battle with us again! You must not extinguish the lamp of Israel!"

21:18 Later there was another battle with the Philistines, this time in Gob. On that occasion Sibbekai the Hushathite killed Saph, who was one of the descendants of Rapha. 21:19 Yet another battle occurred with the Philistines in Gob. On that occasion Elhanan the son of Jair[25] the Bethlehemite killed the brother of Goliath the Gittite,[26] the shaft

1 tc The LXX reads "at Gibeon on the mountain of the LORD" (cf. 21:9). The present translation follows the MT, although a number of recent English translations follow the LXX reading here (e.g., NAB, NRSV, NLT).

2 tc The MT reads "Michal" here, but two Hebrew manuscripts read "Merab," along with some LXX manuscripts. Cf. 1 Sam 18:19.

3 tc The translation follows the Qere and several medieval Hebrew MSS in reading שִׁבְעָתָם (shÿva'tam, "the seven of them") rather than MT שִׁבְעָתִים (shiva'tim, "seventy").

4 tn Heb "fell."

5 tc The translation follows the Qere and many medieval Hebrew MSS in reading בְּתְחִלַּת (bithkhillat, "in the beginning") rather than MT תְּחִלַּת (tÿkhillat, "beginning of").

6 tn Heb "until water was poured on them from the sky."

7 tn Heb "rest."

8 tn Heb "the beasts of the field."

9 tn Heb "David." For stylistic reasons the name has been replaced by the pronoun ("he") in the translation.

10 tn Heb "the bones of Saul and the bones of Jonathan his son." See also v. 13.

11 tn Heb "lords."

12 tn Heb "stolen."

13 tc Against the MT, this word is better read without the definite article. The MT reading is probably here the result of wrong word division, with the letter ה (he) belonging with the preceding word שָׁם (sham) as the he directive (i.e., שָׁמָּה, samah, "to there").

14 tn Heb "had hung them."

15 tn Heb "in the day."

16 tn Heb "Philistines."

17 tn Heb "he"; the referent (David) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

18 tc Many medieval Hebrew MSS have here כְּכֹל (kÿkhol, "according to all").

19 tn Heb "was entreated." The verb is an example of the so-called niphal tolerativum, with the sense that God allowed himself to be supplicated through prayer (cf. GKC 137 §51.c).

20 tn Heb "his servants."

21 tn This name has the definite article and may be intended to refer to a group of people rather than a single individual with this name.

22 tn This is the only occurrence of this Hebrew word in the OT. Its precise meaning is therefore somewhat uncertain. As early as the LXX the word was understood to refer to a "spear," and this seems to be the most likely possibility. Some scholars have proposed emending the text of 2 Sam 21:16 to כּוֹבָעוֹ (khova'o; "his helmet"), but in spite of the fact that the word "helmet" appears in 1 Sam 17:5, there is not much evidence for reading that word here.

23 tn Either the word "shekels" should be supplied here, or the Hebrew word מִשְׁקָל (mishqal, "weight") right before "bronze" is a corrupted form of the word for shekel. If the latter is the case the problem probably resulted from another occurrence of the word מִשְׁקָל just four words earlier in the verse.

sn Three hundred bronze shekels would have weighed about 7.5 pounds (3.4 kg).

24 tn The Hebrew text reads simply "a new [thing]," prompting one to ask "A new what?" Several possibilities have been proposed to resolve the problem: perhaps a word has dropped out of the Hebrew text here; or perhaps the word "new" is the result of misreading a different, less common, word; or perhaps a word (e.g., "sword," so KJV, NAB, NASB, NIV, CEV, NLT) is simply to be inferred. The translation generally follows the latter possibility, while at the same time being deliberately nonspecific ("weapon").

25 tn Heb "Jaare-Oregim," but the second word, which means "weavers," is probably accidentally included. It appears at the end of the verse. The term is omitted in the parallel account in 1 Chr 20:5, which has simply "Jair."

26 sn The Hebrew text as it stands reads, "Elhanan son of Jaare-Oregim the Bethlehemite killed Goliath the Gittite." Who killed Goliath the Gittite? According to 1 Sam 17:4-58 it was David who killed Goliath, but according to the MT of 2 Sam 21:19 it was Elhanan who killed him. Many scholars believe that the two passages are hopelessly at variance with one an-of whose spear was like a weaver's beam. 21:20 Yet another battle occurred in Gath. On that occasion there was a large man[1] who had six fingers on each hand and six toes on each foot, twenty-four in all! He too was a descendant of Rapha. 21:21 When he taunted Israel, Jonathan, the son of David's brother Shimeah, killed him. 21:22 These four were the descendants of Rapha who lived in Gath; they were killed[2] by David and his soldiers.[3]

David Sings to the Lord

22:1[4] David sang[5] to the LORD the words of this song when[6] the LORD rescued him from the power[7] of all his enemies, including Saul.[8] 22:2 He said:

"The LORD is my high ridge,[9] my stronghold,[10] my deliverer.
22:3 My God[11] is my rocky summit where I take shelter,[12] my shield, the horn that saves me,[13] my stronghold, my refuge, my savior. You save me from violence![14]
22:4 I called[15] to the LORD, who is worthy of praise,[16] and I was delivered from my enemies.
22:5 The waves of death engulfed me;
the currents[17] of chaos[18] overwhelmed me.[19] 22:6 The ropes of Sheol[20] tightened around me;[21]
the snares of death trapped me.[22]

other. Others have proposed various solutions to the difficulty, such as identifying David with Elhanan or positing the existence of two Goliaths. But in all likelihood the problem is the result of difficulties in the textual transmission of the Samuel passage; in fact, from a text-critical point of view the books of Samuel are the most poorly preserved of all the books of the Hebrew Bible. The parallel passage in 1 Chr 20:5 reads, "Elhanan son of Jair killed Lahmi the brother of Goliath." Both versions are textually corrupt. The Chronicles text has misread "Bethlehemite" (בֵּית הַלַּחְמִי, bet hallakhmi) as the accusative sign followed by a proper name אֶת לַחְמִי ('et lakhmi). (See the note at 1 Chr 20:5.) The Samuel text misread the word for "brother" (אַח, 'akh) as the accusative sign (אֶת, 'et), thereby giving the impression that Elhanan, not David, killed Goliath. Thus in all probability the original text read, "Elhanan son of Jair the Bethlehemite killed the brother of Goliath."

1 tn Heb "a man of stature."

2 tn Heb "they fell."

3 tn Heb "his servants."

4 sn In this long song of thanks, David affirms that God is his faithful protector. He recalls in highly poetic fashion how God intervened in awesome power and delivered him from death. His experience demonstrates that God vindicates those who are blameless and remain loyal to him. True to his promises, God gives the king victory on the battlefield and enables him to subdue nations. A parallel version of the song appears in Ps 18.

5 tn Heb "spoke."

6 tn Heb "in the day," or "at the time."

7 tn Heb "hand."

8 tn Heb "and from the hand of Saul."

9 tn Traditionally "is my rock"; CEV "mighty rock"; TEV "is my protector." This metaphor pictures God as a rocky, relatively inaccessible summit, where one would be able to find protection from enemies. See 1 Sam 23:25, 28.

10 tn Traditionally "my fortress"; TEV "my strong fortress"; NCV "my protection."

sn My stronghold. David often found safety in such strongholds. See 1 Sam 22:4-5; 24:22; 2 Sam 5:9, 17; 23:14.

11 tc The translation (along with many English versions, e.g., NAB, NIV, NRSV, NLT) follows the LXX in reading אֱלֹהִי ('elohi, "my God") rather than MT's אֱלוֹהִי ('elohe, "the God of"). See Ps 18:2.

12 tn Or "in whom."

13 tn Heb "the horn of my salvation," or "my saving horn."

sn Though some see "horn" as referring to a horn-shaped peak of a hill, or to the "horns" of an altar where one could find refuge, it is more likely that the horn of an ox underlies the metaphor (see Deut 33:17; 1 Kgs 22:11; Ps 92:10). The horn of the wild ox is frequently a metaphor for military strength; the idiom "exalt the horn" signifies military victory (see 1 Sam 2:10; Pss 89:17, 24; 92:10; Lam 2:17). In the ancient Near East powerful warrior-kings would sometimes compare themselves to a goring bull that uses its horns to kill its enemies. For examples, see P. Miller, "El the Warrior," HTR 60 (1967): 422-25, and R. B. Chisholm, "An Exegetical and Theological Study of Psalm 18/2 Samuel 22" (Th.D. diss., Dallas Theological Seminary, 1983), 135-36. 2 Sam 22:3 uses the metaphor of the horn in a slightly different manner. Here the Lord himself is compared to a horn. He is to the psalmist what the horn is to the ox, a source of defense and victory.

14 tn The parallel version of the song in Ps 18 does not include this last line.

15 tn In this song of thanksgiving, where David recalls how the Lord delivered him, the prefixed verbal form is best understood as a preterite indicating past tense (cf. CEV "I prayed"), not an imperfect (as in many English versions).

16 tn Heb "worthy of praise, I cried out [to] the LORD." Some take מְהֻלָּל (me'hullal, "worthy of praise") with what precedes and translate, "the praiseworthy one," or "praiseworthy." However, the various epithets in vv. 1-2 have the first person pronominal suffix, unlike מְהֻלָּל. If one follows the traditional verse division and takes מְהֻלָּל with what follows, it is best understood as substantival and as appositional to יְהוָה (ye'hvah, "Yahweh"), resulting in "[to the] praiseworthy one I cried out, [to the] LORD."

17 tn The noun נַחַל (nakhal) usually refers to a river or stream, but in this context the plural form likely refers to the currents of the sea (see vv. 15-16).

18 tn The noun בְּלִיַּעַל (be'liyya'al) is used here as an epithet for death. Elsewhere it is a common noun meaning "wickedness, uselessness" (see HALOT 133-34 s.v. בְּלִיַּעַל). It is often associated with rebellion against authority and other crimes that result in societal disorder and anarchy. The phrase "man/son of wickedness" refers to one who opposes God and the order he has established. The term becomes an appropriate title for death, which, through human forces, launches an attack against God's chosen servant.

19 tn In this poetic narrative context the prefixed verbal form is best understood as a preterite indicating past tense, not an imperfect. (Note the perfect verbal form in the parallel/preceding line.) The verb בָּעַת (ba'at) sometimes by metonymy carries the nuance "frighten," but the parallelism (note "engulfed" in the preceding line) favors the meaning "overwhelm" here.

20 tn "Sheol," personified here as David's enemy, is the underworld, place of the dead in primitive Hebrew cosmology.

21 tn Heb "surrounded me."

22 tn Heb "confronted me."

22:7 In my distress I called to the LORD;
I called to my God.[1]
From his heavenly temple[2] he heard my voice;
he listened to my cry for help.[3]
22:8 The earth heaved and shook;[4]
the foundations of the sky[5] trembled.[6]
They heaved because he was angry.
22:9 Smoke ascended from[7] his nose;[8] fire devoured as it came from his mouth;[9] he hurled down fiery coals.[10]
22:10 He made the sky sink[11] as he descended;
a thick cloud was under his feet.
22:11 He mounted[12] a winged angel[13] and flew;
he glided[14] on the wings of the wind.[15]
22:12 He shrouded himself in darkness,[16]
in thick rain clouds.[17]
22:13 From the brightness in front of him came coals of fire.[18]
22:14 The LORD thundered[19] from the sky;

1 tn In this poetic narrative the two prefixed verbal forms in v. 7a are best understood as preterites indicating past tense, not imperfects. Note the use of the vav consecutive with the prefixed verbal form that follows in v. 7b.

2 tn Heb "from his temple." Verse 10, which pictures God descending from the sky, indicates that the heavenly, not earthly, temple is in view.

3 tn Heb "and my cry for help [entered] his ears."

4 tn The earth heaved and shook. The imagery pictures an earthquake, in which the earth's surface rises and falls. The earthquake motif is common in Old Testament theophanies of God as warrior and in ancient Near eastern literary descriptions of warring gods and kings. See R. B. Chisholm, "An Exegetical and Theological Study of Psalm 18/2 Samuel 22" (Th. D. diss., Dallas Theological Seminary, 1983), 160-62.

5 tn Ps 18:7 reads "the roots of the mountains."

6 tn In this poetic narrative context the prefixed verbal form is best understood as a preterite indicating past tense, not an imperfect. Note the three prefixed verbal forms with vav consecutive in the verse.

7 tn Heb "within" or "[from] within." For a discussion of the use of the preposition בְּ (bet) here, see R. B. Chisholm, "An Exegetical and Theological Study of Psalm 18/2 Samuel 22" (Th.D. diss., Dallas Theological Seminary, 1983), 163-64.

8 tn Or "in his anger." The noun אַף ('af) can carry the abstract meaning "anger," but the parallelism (note "from his mouth") suggests the more concrete meaning "nose" here (most English versions, "nostrils"). See also v. 16, "the powerful breath of your nose."

9 tn Heb "fire from his mouth devoured." In this poetic narrative the prefixed verbal form is best understood as a preterite indicating past tense, not an imperfect. Note the two perfect verbal forms in the verse.

sn For other examples of fire as a weapon in Old Testament theophanies and ancient Near Eastern portrayals of warring gods and kings, see R. B. Chisholm, "An Exegetical and Theological Study of Psalm 18/2 Samuel 22" (Th.D. diss., Dallas Theological Seminary, 1983), 165-67.

10 tn Heb "coals burned from him." Perhaps the psalmist pictures God's fiery breath igniting coals (see Job 41:21), which he then hurls as weapons (see Ps 120:4).

11 tn The verb נָטָה (natah) can carry the sense "[to cause to] bend; [to cause to] bow down" (see HALOT 693 s.v. נָטָה). For example, Gen 49:15 pictures Issachar as a donkey that "bends" its shoulder or back under a burden (cf. KJV, NASB, NRSV "He bowed the heavens"; NAB "He inclined the heavens"). Here the LORD causes the sky, pictured as a dome or vault, to bend or sink down as he descends in the storm.

12 tn Or "rode upon."

13 tn Heb "a cherub" (so KJV, NAB, NRSV); NIV "the cherubim" (plural); TEV "his winged creature"; CEV "flying creatures."

sn A winged angel. Cherubs, as depicted in the Old Testament, possess both human and animal (lion, ox, and eagle) characteristics (see Ezek 1:10; 10:14, 21; 41:18). They are pictured as winged creatures (Exod 25:20; 37:9; 1 Kgs 6:24-27; Ezek 10:8, 19) and serve as the very throne of God when the ark of the covenant is in view (Pss 80:1; 99:1; see Num 7:89; 1 Sam 4:4; 2 Sam 6:2; 2 Kgs 19:15). The picture of the LORD seated on the cherubs suggests they might be used by him as a vehicle, a function they carry out in Ezek 1:22-28 (the "living creatures" mentioned here are identified as cherubs in Ezek 10:20). In Ps 18:10 the image of a cherub serves to personify the wind (see the next line).

14 tc The translation follows very many medieval Hebrew MSS in reading וַיֵּדֶא (vayyede', "and he glided"; cf. NIV "soared"; NCV "raced") rather than MT וַיֵּרָא (vayyera', "and he appeared," so NASB, CEV). See as well the Syriac Peshitta, Targum, Vulgate, and the parallel version in Ps 18:10, which preserves the original reading (see the note there).

15 sn The wings of the wind. Verse 10 may depict the LORD mounting a cherub, which is in turn propelled by the wind current. Another option is that two different vehicles (a cherub and the wind) are envisioned. A third option is that the wind is personified as a cherub. For a discussion of ancient Near Eastern parallels to the imagery in v. 10, see M. Weinfeld, "'Rider of the Clouds' and 'Gatherer of the Clouds'," JANESCU 5 (1973): 422-24.

16 tc Heb "he made darkness around him coverings." The parallel text in Ps 18:11 reads "he made darkness his hiding place around him, his covering." 2 Sam 22:12 omits "his hiding place" and pluralizes "covering." Ps 18:11 may include a conflation of synonyms ("his hiding place" and "his covering") or 2 Sam 22:12 may be the result of haplography/homoioarcton. Note that three successive words in Ps 18:11 begin with the letter ס (samek): סִתְרוֹ סְבִיבוֹתָיו סֵכָתוֹ (sitro sevivotav sukkato).

17 tc Heb "a sieve of water, clouds of clouds." The form חַשַׁרַת (khashrat) is a construct of חַשָׁרָה (khashrah, "sieve"), which occurs only here in the OT. A cognate Ugaritic noun means "sieve," and a related verb חשׂר ("to sift") is attested in post-biblical Hebrew and Aramaic (see HALOT 363 s.v. *חשׂר). The phrase חַשַׁרַת־מָיִם (khashrat-mayim) means literally "a sieve of water." It pictures the rain clouds as a sieve through which the rain falls to the ground. (See F. M. Cross and D. N. Freedman, Studies in Ancient Yahwistic Poetry, 146, note 33.)

18 tc The parallel text in Ps 18:12 reads "from the brightness in front of him his clouds came, hail and coals of fire." The Lucianic family of texts within the Greek tradition of 2 Sam 22:13 seems to assume the underlying Hebrew text: מִנֹּגַהּ נֶגְדּוֹ עָבְרוּ בָרָד וְגַחֲלֵי אֵשׁ (minnogah negdo 'avru barad vegakhale 'esh, "from the brightness in front of him came hail and coals of fire") which is the basis for the present translation. The textual situation is perplexing and the identity of the original text uncertain. The verbs עָבְרוּ ('avru; Ps 18:12) and בָּעֲרוּ (ba'aru, 2 Sam 22:13) appear to be variants involving a transposition of the first two letters. The noun עָבְיוּ ('avav, "his clouds"; Ps 18:12) may be virtually dittographic (note the following עָבְרוּ), or it could have accidentally dropped from the text of 2 Sam 22:13 by virtual haplography (note the preceding בָּעֲרוּ [ba'aru], which might have originally read עָבְרוּ). The term בָּרָד (barad, "hail"; Ps 18:12) may be virtually dittographic (note the preceding עָבְרוּ), or it could have dropped from 2 Sam 22:13 by virtual haplography (note the preceding בָּעֲרוּ, which might have originally read עָבְרוּ). For a fuller discussion of the text, see R. B. Chisholm, "An Exegetical and Theological Study of Psalm 18/2 Samuel 22" (Th.D. diss., Dallas Theological Seminary, 1983), 74-76.

19 tn The shortened theme vowel indicates that the prefixed verbal form is a preterite.

the sovereign One[1] shouted loudly.[2] 22:15 He shot[3] arrows and scattered them,[4] lightning and routed them.[5]
22:16 The depths[6] of the sea were exposed;
the inner regions[7] of the world were uncovered by the LORD's battle cry,[8]
by the powerful breath from his nose.[9] 22:17 He reached down from above and grabbed me;[10]
he pulled me from the surging water.[11] 22:18 He rescued me from my strong enemy,[12]
from those who hate me, for they were too strong for me.
22:19 They confronted[13] me in my day of calamity, but the LORD helped me.[14]
22:20 He brought me out into a wide open place;
he delivered me because he was pleased with me.[15]
22:21 The LORD repaid[16] me for my godly deeds;[17]
he rewarded[18] my blameless behavior.[19]
22:22 For I have obeyed the LORD's commands;[20]
I have not rebelled against my God.[21]
22:23 For I am aware of all his regulations,[22] and I do not reject his rules.[23]

1 tn Heb "the Most High." This divine title (עֶלְיוֹן, 'elyon) pictures God as the exalted ruler of the universe who vindicates the innocent and judges the wicked. See especially Ps 47:2.

2 tn Heb "offered his voice." In this poetic narrative context the prefixed verbal form is best understood as a preterite indicating past tense, not an imperfect. Note the preterite form in the preceding line. The text of Ps 18:13 adds at this point, "hail and coals of fire." These words are probably accidentally added from v. 12b; they do not appear in 2 Sam 22:14.

sn Thunder is a common motif in Old Testament theophanies and in ancient Near Eastern portrayals of the storm god and warring kings. See R. B. Chisholm, "An Exegetical and Theological Study of Psalm 18/2 Samuel 22" (Th.D. diss., Dallas Theological Seminary, 1983), 179-83.

3 tn Heb "sent."

4 tn The pronominal suffixes on the verbs "scattered" and "routed" (see the next line) refer to David's enemies. Some argue that the suffixes refer to the arrows, in which case one might translate "shot them far and wide" and "made them move noisily," respectively. They argue that the enemies have not been mentioned since v. 4 and are not again mentioned until v. 17. However, usage of the verbs פּוּץ (puts, "scatter") and הָמַם (hamam, "rout") elsewhere in Holy War accounts suggests the suffixes refer to enemies. Enemies are frequently pictured in such texts as scattered and/or routed (see Exod 14:24; 23:27; Num 10:35; Josh 10:10; Judg 4:15; 1 Sam 7:10; 11:11; Ps 68:1).

5 sn Lightning is a common motif in OT theophanies and in ancient Near Eastern portrayals of the storm god and warring kings. Arrows and lightning bolts are associated in other texts (see Pss 77:17-18; 144:6; Zech 9:14), as well as in ancient Near Eastern art. See R. B. Chisholm, "An Exegetical and Theological Study of Psalm 18/2 Samuel 22" (Th.D. diss., Dallas Theological Seminary, 1983), 187, 190-92.

6 tn Or "channels."

7 tn Or "foundations."

8 tn The noun is derived from the verb נָעַר (nag'ar) which is often understood to mean "rebuke." In some cases it is apparent that scolding or threatening is in view (see Gen 37:10; Ruth 2:16; Zech 3:2). However, in militaristic contexts this translation is inadequate, for the verb refers in this setting to the warrior's battle cry, which terrifies and paralyzes the enemy. See A. Caquot, TDOT 3:53, and note the use of the verb in Pss 68:30; 106:9; and Nah 1:4, as well as the related noun in Job 26:11; Pss 9:5; 76:6; 104:7; Isa 50:2; 51:20; 66:15.

9 tn Heb "blast of the breath" (literally, "breath of breath") employs an appositional genitive. Synonyms are joined in a construct relationship to emphasize the single idea. For a detailed discussion of the grammatical point with numerous examples, see Y. Avishur, "Pairs of Synonymous Words in the Construct State (and in Appositional Hendiadys) in Biblical Hebrew," Semitics 2 (1971): 17-81.

10 tn Heb "stretched." Perhaps "his hand" should be supplied by ellipsis (see Ps 144:7). In this poetic narrative context the three prefixed verbal forms in this verse are best understood as preterites indicating past tense, not imperfects.

11 tn Heb "mighty waters." The waters of the sea symbolize the psalmist's powerful enemies, as well as the realm of death they represent (see v. 5 and Ps 144:7).

12 tn The singular refers either to personified death or collectively to the psalmist's enemies. The following line, which refers to "those [plural] who hate me," favors the latter.

13 tn The same verb is translated "trapped" in v. 6. In this poetic narrative context the prefixed verbal form is best understood as a preterite indicating past tense, not imperfect. Cf. NAB, NCV, TEV, NLT "attacked."

14 tn Heb "became my support."

15 tn Or "delighted in me" (so KJV, NASB, NIV, NRSV).

16 tn In this poetic narrative context the prefixed verbal form is best understood as a preterite indicating past tense, not imperfect.

17 tn Heb "according to my righteousness." As vv. 22-25 make clear, David refers here to his unwavering obedience to God's commands. He explains that the Lord was pleased with him and willing to deliver him because he had been loyal to God and obedient to his commandments. Ancient Near Eastern literature contains numerous parallels. A superior (a god or king) would typically reward a subject (a king or the servant of a king, respectively) for loyalty and obedience. See R. B. Chisholm, "An Exegetical and Theological Study of Psalm 18/2 Samuel 22" (Th.D. diss., Dallas Theological Seminary, 1983), 211-13.

18 tn The unreduced Hiphil prefixed verbal form appears to be an imperfect, in which case the psalmist would be generalizing. However, both the preceding and following contexts (see especially v. 25) suggest he is narrating his experience. Despite its unreduced form, the verb is better taken as a preterite. For other examples of unreduced Hiphil preterites, see Pss 55:14a; 68:9a, 10b; 80:8a; 89:43a; 107:38b; 116:6b.

19 tn Heb "according to the purity of my hands he repaid to me." Hands suggest activity and behavior.

20 tn Heb "for I have kept the ways of the LORD." The phrase "ways of the LORD" refers here to the "conduct required" by the LORD (see HALOT 232 s.v. דֶּרֶךְ). In Ps 25 the LORD's "ways" are associated with his covenantal demands (see vv. 4, 9-10). See also Ps 119:3 (cf. vv. 1, 4), as well as Deut 8:6; 10:12; 11:22; 19:9; 26:17; 28:9; 30:16.

21 tn Heb "I have not acted wickedly from my God." The statement is elliptical, the idea being, "I have not acted wickedly and, in so doing, departed from my God."

22 tn Heb "for all his regulations are before me." The term מִשְׁפָּטָו (mishpatav, "his regulations") refers to God's covenantal requirements, especially those which the king is responsible to follow (cf Deut 17:18-20). See also Pss 19:9 (cf vv. 7-8); 89:30; 147:20 (cf v. 19), as well as the numerous uses of the term in Ps 119.

23 tn Heb "and his rules, I do not turn aside from it." Ps 18:22 reads, "and his rules I do not turn aside from me." The prefixed verbal form is probably an imperfect; David here generalizes about his loyalty to God's commands. The LORD's "rules" are the stipulations of the covenant which the king was responsible to obey (see Ps 89:31; cf v. 30 and Deut

22:24 I was blameless before him;
I kept myself from sinning.[1]
22:25 The LORD rewarded me for my godly deeds;[2]
he took notice of my blameless behavior.[3] 22:26 You prove to be loyal[4] to one who is faithful;[5]
you prove to be trustworthy[6] to one who is innocent.[7]
22:27 You prove to be reliable[8] to one who is blameless, but you prove to be deceptive[9] to one who is perverse.[10]
22:28 You deliver oppressed[11] people, but you watch the proud and bring them down.[12]
22:29 Indeed,[13] you are my lamp,[14] LORD.
The LORD illumines[15] the darkness around me.[16]
22:30 Indeed,[17] with your help[18] I can charge[19] against an army;[20] by my God's power[21] I can jump over a wall.[22]
22:31 The one true God acts in a faithful manner;[23]
the LORD's promise is reliable;[24] he is a shield to all who take shelter in him.

17:18-20).

[1] tn Heb "from my sin," that is, from making it my own in any way. Leading a "blameless" life meant that the king would be loyal to God's covenant, purge the government and society of evil and unjust officials, and reward loyalty to the LORD (see Ps 101).

[2] tn Heb "according to my righteousness." See v. 21.

[3] tn Heb "according to my purity before his eyes."

[4] tn The imperfect verbal forms in vv. 26-30 draw attention to God's characteristic actions. Based on his experience, the psalmist generalizes about God's just dealings with people (vv. 26-28) and about the way in which God typically empowers him on the battlefield (vv. 29-30). The Hitpael stem is used in vv. 26-27 in a reflexive resultative (or causative) sense. God makes himself loyal, etc. in the sense that he conducts or reveals himself as such. On this use of the Hitpael stem, see GKC 149-50 §54.e.

[5] tn Or "to a faithful follower." A חָסִיד (khasid, "faithful follower") is one who does what is right in God's eyes and remains faithful to God (see Pss 4:3; 12:1; 16:10; 31:23; 37:28; 86:2; 97:10).

[6] tn Or "innocent."

[7] tc Heb "a warrior of innocence." The parallel text in Ps 18:25 reads, probably correctly, גֶּבֶר (gever, "man") instead of גִּבּוֹר (gibor, "warrior").

[8] tn Or "blameless."

[9] tc The translation follows two medieval Hebrew MSS in reading תִּתְפַּתָּל (titpattal, from the root פתל, "to twist") rather than the MT תִּתַּפָּל (tittappal, from the root תפל, "to be tasteless," "behave silly"; cf. KJV "unsavoury"). See as well the parallel passage in Ps 18:26. The verb פָּתַל (patal) is used in only three other texts. In Gen 30:8 it means literally "to wrestle," or "to twist." In Job 5:13 it refers to devious individuals, and in Prov 8:8 to deceptive words. Cf. NAB, NASB "astute"; NIV "shrewd"; NRSV "perverse"; TEV, NLT "hostile."

[10] tn The adjective עִקֵּשׁ ('iqqesh) has the basic nuance "twisted; crooked," and by extension refers to someone or something that is morally perverse. It appears frequently in Proverbs, where it is used of evil people (22:5), speech (8:8; 19:1), thoughts (11:20; 17:20) and life styles (2:15; 28:6). A righteous king opposes such people (Ps 101:4). Verses 26-27 affirm God's justice. He responds to people in accordance with their moral character. His response mirrors their actions. The faithful and blameless find God to be loyal and reliable in his dealings with them. But deceivers discover he is able and willing to use deceit to destroy them. For a more extensive discussion of the theme of divine deception in the OT, see R. B. Chisholm, "Does God Deceive?" BSac 155 (1998): 11-28.

[11] tn Or perhaps "humble" (so NIV, NRSV, NLT; note the contrast with those who are proud).

[12] tc Heb "but your eyes are upon the proud, you bring low." Ps 18:27 reads "but proud eyes you bring low."

[13] tn Or "for." The translation assumes that כִּי (ki) is asseverative here.

[14] tc Many medieval Hebrew MSS, some LXX MSS, and the Syriac Peshitta support reading תָּאִיר (ta'ir, "you cause to shine") before the words "my lamp." See Ps 18:28. The metaphor, which likens the LORD to a lamp or light, pictures him as the psalmist's source of life. For other examples of "lamp" used in this way, see Job 18:6; 21:17; Prov 13:9; 20:20; 24:20. For other examples of "light" as a symbol for life, see Job 3:20; 33:30; Ps 56:13.

[15] tc The Lucianic Greek recension and Vulgate understand this verb to be second person rather than third person as in the MT. But this is probably the result of reading the preceding word "LORD" as a vocative under the influence of the vocative in the first part of the verse.

[16] tn Heb "my darkness."

[17] tn Or "for." The translation assumes that כִּי (ki) is asseverative here.

[18] tn Heb "by you."

[19] tn Heb "I will run." The imperfect verbal forms in v. 30 indicate the subject's potential or capacity to perform an action. Though one might expect a preposition to follow the verb here, this need not be the case with the verb רוּץ (ruts; see 1 Sam 17:22). Some emend the Qal to a Hiphil form of the verb and translate, "I put to flight [literally, "cause to run"] an army."

[20] tn More specifically, the noun refers to a raiding party or to a contingent of troops (see HALOT 177 s.v. II גְּדוּד). The picture of a divinely empowered warrior charging against an army in almost superhuman fashion appears elsewhere in ancient Near Eastern literature. See R. B. Chisholm, "An Exegetical and Theological Study of Psalm 18/2 Samuel 22" (Th. D. diss., Dallas Theological Seminary, 1983), 228.

[21] tn Heb "by my God."

[22] tn David uses hyperbole to emphasize his God-given military superiority.

[23] tn Heb "[As for] the God, his way is blameless." The term הָאֵל (ha'el, "the God") stands as a nominative (or genitive) absolute in apposition to the resumptive pronominal suffix on "way." The prefixed article emphasizes his distinctiveness as the one true God (see BDB 42 s.v. II אֵל 6; Deut 33:26). God's "way" in this context refers to his protective and salvific acts in fulfillment of his promise (see also Deut 32:4; Pss 67:2; 77:13 [note vv. 11-12, 14]; 103:7; 138:5; 145:17).

[24] tn Heb "the word of the LORD is purified." The LORD's "word" probably refers here to his oracle(s) of victory delivered to the psalmist before the battle(s) described in the following context. See also Pss 12:5-7 and 138:2-3. David frequently received such oracles before going into battle (see 1 Sam 23:2, 4-5, 10-12; 30:8; 2 Sam 5:19). The LORD's word of promise is absolutely reliable; it is compared to metal that has been refined in fire and cleansed of impurities. See Ps 12:6. In the ancient Near East kings would typically seek and receive oracles from their god(s) prior to battle. For examples, see R. B. Chisholm, "An Exegetical and Theological Study of Psalm 18/2 Samuel 22" (Th.D. diss., Dallas Theological Seminary, 1983), 241-42.

22:32 Indeed,[1] who is God besides the LORD?
Who is a protector[2] besides our God?[3] 22:33 The one true God[4] is my mighty refuge;[5]
he removes[6] the obstacles in my way.[7] 22:34 He gives me the agility of a deer;[8]
he enables me to negotiate the rugged terrain.[9] 22:35 He trains[10] my hands for battle;[11]
my arms can bend even the strongest bow.[12]
22:36 You give me[13] your protective shield;[14] your willingness to help enables me to prevail.[15] 22:37 You widen my path;[16]
my feet[17] do not slip.
22:38 I chase my enemies and destroy them;
I do not turn back until I wipe them out.
22:39 I wipe them out and beat them to death;
they cannot get up;
they fall at my feet.
22:40 You give me strength for battle;[18]
you make my foes kneel before me.[19]
22:41 You make my enemies retreat;[20]
I destroy those who hate me.
22:42 They cry out,[21] but there is no one to help them;[22] they cry out to the LORD,[23] but he does not answer them.
22:43 I grind them as fine as the dust of the ground;
I crush them and stomp on them like clay[24] in the streets.
22:44 You rescue me from a hostile army;[25]
you preserve me as a leader of nations;

---

1 tn Or "for." The translation assumes that כִּי (ki) is asseverative here.

2 tn Heb "rocky cliff," which is a metaphor of protection.

3 tn The rhetorical questions anticipate the answer, "No one." In this way the psalmist indicates that the LORD is the only true God and reliable source of protection. See also Deut 32:39, where the LORD affirms that he is the only true God. Note as well the emphasis on his role as protector (צוּר, tsur, "rocky cliff") in Deut 32:4, 15, 17-18, 30.

4 tn Heb "the God." See the note at v. 31.

5 tc 4QSam[a] has מְאַזְּרֵנִי (m[e]'azz[e]reni, "the one girding me with strength") rather than the MT מָעוּזִּי (ma'uzzi, "my refuge"). See as well Ps 18:32.

6 tn The prefixed verbal form with vav consecutive here carries along the generalizing tone of the preceding line.

7 tn Heb "and he sets free (from the verb נָתַר, natar) [the] blameless, his [Kethib; "my" (Qere)] way." The translation follows Ps 18:32 in reading "he made my path smooth." The term תְּמִים (tamim, "smooth") usually carries a moral or ethical connotation, "blameless, innocent." However, in Ps 18:33 it refers to a pathway free of obstacles. The reality underlying the metaphor is the psalmist's ability to charge into battle without tripping (see vv. 33, 36).

8 tc Heb "[the one who] makes his feet like [those of] a deer." The translation follows the Qere and many medieval Hebrew MSS in reading רַגְלַי (raglai, "my feet") rather than the MT רַגְלָיו (raglav, "his feet"). See as well Ps 18:33.

9 tn Heb "and on my high places he makes me walk." The imperfect verbal form emphasizes God's characteristic provision. The psalmist compares his agility in battle to the ability of a deer to negotiate rugged, high terrain without falling or being injured. Habakkuk uses similar language to describe his faith during difficult times. See Hab 3:19.

10 tn Heb "teaches."

11 tn The psalmist attributes his skill with weapons to divine enabling. Egyptian reliefs picture gods teaching the king how to shoot a bow. See O. Keel, Symbolism of the Biblical World, 265.

12 tn Heb "and a bow of bronze is bent by my arms." The verb נָחַת (nakhet) apparently means "to pull back; to bend" here (see HALOT 692 s.v. נחת). The bronze bow referred to here was probably laminated with bronze strips, or a purely ceremonial or decorative bow made entirely from bronze. In the latter case the language is hyperbolic, for such a weapon would not be functional in battle.

13 tn Another option is to translate the prefixed verb with vav consecutive with a past tense, "you gave me." Several prefixed verbal forms with vav consecutive also appear in vv. 38-44. The present translation understands this section as a description of what generally happened when the author charged into battle, but another option is to understand the section as narrative and translate accordingly.

14 tc Ps 18:35 contains an additional line following this one, which reads "your right hand supports me." It may be omitted here due to homoioarcton. See the note at Ps 18:35.

tn Heb "and you give me the shield of your deliverance"; KJV, ASV "the shield of thy (your NRSV, NLT) salvation"; NIV "your shield of victory." Ancient Near Eastern literature often refers to a god giving a king special weapons. See R. B. Chisholm, "An Exegetical and Theological Study of Psalm 18/2 Samuel 22" (Th.D. diss., Dallas Theological Seminary, 1983), 260-61.

15 tn Heb "your answer makes me great." David refers to God's willingness to answer his prayer.

16 tn Heb "step." "Step" probably refers metonymically to the path upon which the psalmist walks. Another option is to translate, "you widen my stride." This would suggest that God gives him the capacity to run quickly.

17 tn Heb "lower legs." On the meaning of the Hebrew noun, which occurs only here, see H. R. Cohen, Biblical Hapax Legomena (SBLDS), 112. A cognate Akkadian noun means "lower leg."

18 tn Heb "you clothed me with strength for battle."

19 tn Heb "you make those who rise against me kneel beneath me."

20 tn Heb "and [as for] my enemies, you give to me [the] back [or "neck"]." The idiom "give [the] back" means "to cause [one] to turn the back and run away." See Exod 23:27 and HALOT 888 s.v. II ערף.

21 tc The translation follows one medieval Hebrew MS and the ancient versions in reading the Piel יְשַׁוְּעוּ (y[e]shavv[e]u, "they cry for help") rather than the Qal of the MT יִשְׁעוּ (yish'u, "they look about for help"). See Ps 18:41 as well.

22 tn Heb "but there is no deliverer."

23 tn The words "they cry out" are not in the Hebrew text. This reference to the psalmists' enemies crying out for help to the LORD suggests that the psalmist refers here to enemies within the covenant community, rather than foreigners. However, the militaristic context suggests foreign enemies are in view. Ancient Near Eastern literature indicates that defeated enemies would sometimes cry out for mercy to the god(s) of their conqueror. See R. B. Chisholm, "An Exegetical and Theological Study of Psalm 18/2 Samuel 22" (Th.D. diss., Dallas Theological Seminary, 1983), 271.

24 tn Or "mud" (so NAB, NIV, CEV). See HALOT 374 s.v. טִיט.

25 tn Heb "from the strivings of my people." In this context רִיב (riv, "striving") probably has a militaristic sense (as in Judg 12:2; Isa 41:11), and עַם ('am, "people") probably refers more specifically to an army (for other examples, see the verses listed in BDB 766 s.v. עַם 2.d). The suffix "my" suggests David is referring to attacks by his own countrymen, the "people" being Israel. However, the parallel text in Ps 18:43 omits the suffix.

people over whom I had no authority are now my subjects.[1]
22:45 Foreigners are powerless before me;[2] when they hear of my exploits, they submit to me.[3]
22:46 Foreigners lose their courage;[4] they shake with fear[5] as they leave[6] their strongholds.[7]
22:47 The LORD is alive![8]
My protector[9] is praiseworthy![10]
The God who delivers me[11] is exalted as king![12]
22:48 The one true God completely vindicates me;[13]
he makes nations submit to me.[14]
22:49 He delivers me from my enemies;[15] you snatch me away[16] from those who attack me;[17]
you rescue me from violent men.
22:50 So I will give you thanks, O LORD, before the nations![18]
I will sing praises to you.[19]
22:51 He gives his chosen king magnificent victories;[20]
he is faithful to his chosen ruler,[21] to David and to his descendants forever!"

David's Final Words

23:1 These are the final words of David:
"The oracle of David son of Jesse, the oracle of the man raised up as the ruler chosen by the God of Jacob,[22]
Israel's beloved[23] singer of songs:
23:2 The LORD's spirit spoke through me;
his word was on my tongue.
23:3 The God of Israel spoke,
the protector[24] of Israel spoke to me.
The one who rules fairly among men,
the one who rules in the fear of God, 23:4 is like the light of morning when the sun comes up,
a morning in which there are no clouds.
He is like the brightness after rain that produces grass from the earth.
23:5 My dynasty is approved by God,[25] for he has made a perpetual covenant with me,
arranged in all its particulars and secured.
He always delivers me,
and brings all I desire to fruition.[26]
23:6 But evil people are like thorns – all of them are tossed away, for they cannot be held in the hand.

---

1 tn Heb "a people whom I did not know serve me." In this context the verb "know" (יָדַע, yada') probably refers to formal recognition by treaty. People who were once not under the psalmist's authority now willingly submit to his rulership to avoid being conquered militarily (see vv. 45-46). The language may recall the events recorded in 2 Sam 8:9-10 and 10:19.

2 tn For the meaning "to be weak; to be powerless" for the verb כָּחַשׁ (kakhash), see Ps 109:24. Verse 46, which also mentions foreigners, favors this interpretation. Another option is to translate "cower in fear" (see Deut 33:29; Pss 66:3; 81:15).

3 tn Heb "at a report of an ear they submit to me." The report of David's exploits is so impressive that those who hear it submit to his rulership without putting up a fight.

4 tn Heb "wither, wear out."

5 tc The translation assumes a reading וַיֶּחֶרְגוּ (vayekhrgu, "and they quaked") rather than the MT וַיַּחְגְּרוּ (vayakhgru, "and they girded themselves"). See the note at Ps 18:45.

6 tn Heb "from."

7 tn Heb "prisons." Their besieged cities are compared to prisons.

8 tn Elsewhere the construction חַי־יְהוָה (khay-yhvah) is used exclusively as an oath formula, but this is not the case here, for no oath follows. Here the statement is an affirmation of the LORD's active presence and intervention. In contrast to pagan deities, he demonstrates that he is the living God by rescuing and empowering the psalmist.

9 tn Heb "my rocky cliff," which is a metaphor for protection.

10 tn Or "blessed [i.e., praised] be."

11 tn Heb "the God of the rock of my deliverance." The term צוּר (tsur, "rock") is probably accidentally repeated from the previous line. The parallel version in Ps 18:46 has simply "the God of my deliverance."

12 tn The words "as king" are supplied in the translation for clarification. In the Psalms the verb רוּם (rum, "be exalted") when used of God, refers to his exalted position as king (Pss 99:2; 113:4; 138:6) and/or his self-revelation as king through his mighty deeds of deliverance (Pss 21:13; 46:10; 57:5, 11).

13 tn Heb "The God is the one who grants vengeance to me." The plural form of the noun "vengeance" indicates degree here, suggesting complete vengeance or vindication. In the ancient Near East military victory was sometimes viewed as a sign that one's God had judged in favor of the victor, avenging and/or vindicating him. See, for example, Judg 11:27, 32-33, 36.

14 tn Heb "and [is the one who] brings down nations beneath me."

15 tn Heb "and [the one who] brings me out from my enemies."

16 tn Heb "you lift me up." In light of the preceding and following references to deliverance, the verb רוּם (rum) probably here refers to being rescued from danger (see Ps 9:13). However, it could mean "exalt; elevate" here, indicating that the LORD has given him victory over his enemies and forced them to acknowledge the psalmist's superiority.

17 tn Heb "from those who rise against me."

18 sn This probably alludes to the fact that David will praise the LORD in the presence of the defeated nations when they, as his subjects, bring their tribute payments. Ideally God's chosen king was to testify to the nations of God's greatness. See J. Eaton, Kingship and the Psalms (SBT), 182-85.

19 tn Heb "to your name." God's "name" refers metonymically to his divine characteristics as suggested by his name, in this case "LORD," the primary name of Israel's covenant God which suggests his active presence with his people (see Exod 3:12-15).

20 tc The translation follows the Kethib and the ancient versions in reading מַגְדִּיל (magdil, "he magnifies") rather than the Qere and many medieval Hebrew MSS of the MT which read מִגְדּוֹל (migdol, "tower"). See Ps 18:50.

21 tn Heb "[the one who] does loyalty to his anointed one."

22 tn Heb "the anointed one of the God of Jacob."

23 tn Or "pleasant."

24 tn Heb "rock," used as a metaphor of divine protection.

25 tn Heb "For not thus [is] my house with God?"

26 tn Heb "for all my deliverance and every desire, surely does he not make [it] grow?"

David's Warriors

23:8 These are the names of David's warriors:

Josheb-Basshebeth, a Tahkemonite, was head of the officers.[2] He killed eight hundred men with his spear in one battle.[3] 23:9 Next in command[4] was Eleazar son of Dodo,[5] the son of Ahohi. He was one of the three warriors who were with David when they defied the Philistines who were assembled there for battle. When the men of Israel retreated,[6] 23:10 he stood his ground[7] and fought the Philistines until his hand grew so tired that it[8] seemed stuck to his sword. The LORD gave a great victory on that day. When the army returned to him, the only thing left to do was to plunder the corpses.

23:11 Next in command[9] was Shammah son of Agee the Hararite. When the Philistines assembled at Lehi,[10] where there happened to be an area of a field that was full of lentils, the army retreated before the Philistines. 23:12 But he made a stand in the middle of that area. He defended[11] it and defeated the Philistines; the LORD gave them a great victory.

23:13 At the time of[12] the harvest three[13] of the thirty leaders went down to[14] David at the cave of Adullam. A band of Philistines was camped in the valley of Rephaim. 23:14 David was in the stronghold at the time, while a Philistine garrison was in Bethlehem.[15] 23:15 David was thirsty and said, "How I wish someone would give me some water to drink from the cistern in Bethlehem near the gate!" 23:16 So the three elite warriors broke through the Philistine forces and drew some water from the cistern in Bethlehem near the gate. They carried it back to David, but he refused to drink it. He poured it out as a drink offering to the LORD 23:17 and said, "O LORD, I will not do this![16] It is equivalent to the blood of the men who risked their lives by going."[17] So he refused to drink it. Such were the exploits of the three elite warriors.[18]

23:18 Abishai son of Zeruiah, the brother of Joab, was head of the three.[19] He killed three hundred men with his spear and gained fame among the three.[20] 23:19 From[21] the three he was given honor and he became their officer, even though he was not one of the three.

23:20 Benaiah son of Jehoida was a brave warrior[22] from Kabzeel who performed great exploits. He struck down the two sons of Ariel of Moab.[23] He also went down and killed a lion in a cistern on a snowy day. 23:21 He also killed

[1] tn Heb "and with fire they are completely burned up in [the place where they] remain." The infinitive absolute is used before the finite verb to emphasize that they are completely consumed by the fire.

[2] tn The Hebrew word is sometimes rendered as "the three," but BDB is probably correct in taking it to refer to military officers (BDB 1026 s.v. שְׁלִישִׁי). In that case the etymological connection of this word to the Hebrew numerical adjective for "three" can be explained as originating with a designation for the third warrior in a chariot.

[3] tc The translation follows some LXX MSS (see 1 Chr 11:11 as well) in reading הוּא עוֹרֵר אֶת־חֲנִיתוֹ (hu' 'orer 'et khanito, "he raised up his spear") rather than the MT's הוּא עֲדִינוֹ הָעֲצָנִי (hu' 'adino ha'etsni [Kethib = הָעֶצְנִי, ha'etsno]; "Adino the Eznite"). The emended text reads literally "he was wielding his spear against eight hundred, [who were] slain at one time."

[4] tn Heb "after him."

[5] tc This follows the Qere and many medieval Hebrew MSS in reading דֹּדוֹ (dodo) rather than the Kethib of the MT דֹּדַי (dodai; cf. ASV, NIV, NLT). But see 1 Chr 27:4.

[6] tn Heb "went up."

[7] tn Heb "arose."

[8] tn Heb "his hand."

[9] tn Heb "after him."

[10] tn The Hebrew text is difficult here. The MT reads לַחַיָּה (lachayyah), which implies a rare use of the word חַיָּה (chayyah). The word normally refers to an animal, but if the MT is accepted it would here have the sense of a troop or community of people. BDB 312 s.v. II. חַיָּה, for example, understands the similar reference in v. 13 to be to "a group of allied families, making a raid together." But this works better in v. 13 than it does in v. 11, where the context seems to suggest a particular staging location for a military operation. (See 1 Chr 11:15.) It therefore seems best to understand the word in v. 11 as a place name with ה (he) directive. In that case the Masoretes mistook the word for the common term for an animal and then tried to make sense of it in this context.

[11] tn Heb "delivered."

[12] tn The meaning of Hebrew אֶל־קְצִיר ('el qatsir) seems here to be "at the time of harvest," although this is an unusual use of the phrase. As S. R. Driver points out, this preposition does not normally have the temporal sense of "in" or "during" (S. R. Driver, Notes on the Hebrew Text and the Topography of the Books of Samuel, 366).

[13] tc The translation follows the Qere and many medieval Hebrew MSS in reading שְׁלֹשָׁה (sh^{e}loshah, "three") rather than the Kethib of the MT שְׁלִשִׁים (sh^{e}loshim, "thirty"). "Thirty" is due to dittography of the following word and makes no sense in the context.

[14] tn Heb "went down...and approached."

[15] map For location see Map5-B1; Map7-E2; Map8-E2; Map10-B4.

[16] tn Heb "Far be it to me, O LORD, from doing this."

[17] tn Heb "[Is it not] the blood of the men who were going with their lives?"

[18] tn Heb "These things the three warriors did."

[19] tc The translation follows the Qere, many medieval Hebrew MSS, the LXX, and Vulgate in reading הַשְּׁלֹשָׁה (hash^{e}losa, "the three") rather than the Kethib of the MT הַשְּׁלִשִׁי (hashalisi, "the third," or "adjutant"). Two medieval Hebrew MSS and the Syriac Peshitta have "thirty."

[20] tn Heb "and he was wielding his spear against three hundred, [who were] slain, and to him there was a name among the three."

[21] tn Or "more than."

[22] tc The translation follows the Qere and many medieval Hebrew MSS in reading חַיִל (khayil, "valor") rather than the Kethib of the MT, חַי (khay, "life").

[23] tc Heb "the two of Ariel, Moab." The precise meaning of אריאל is uncertain; some read "warrior." The present translation assumes that the word is a proper name and that בני, "sons of," has accidentally dropped from the text by homoioarcton (note the preceding שני).

an impressive-looking Egyptian.[1] The Egyptian wielded a spear, while Benaiah attacked[2] him with a club. He grabbed the spear out of the Egyptian's hand and killed him with his own spear. 23:22 Such were the exploits of Benaiah son of Jehoida, who gained fame among the three elite warriors. 23:23 He received honor from[3] the thirty warriors, though he was not one of the three elite warriors. David put him in charge of his bodyguard.

23:24 Included with the thirty were the following: Asahel the brother of Joab, Elhanan son of Dodo from Bethlehem,[4] 23:25 Shammah the Harodite, Elika the Harodite, 23:26 Helez the Paltite, Ira son of Ikkesh from Tekoa, 23:27 Abiezer the Anathothite, Mebunnai the Hushathite, 23:28 Zalmon the Ahohite, Maharai the Netophathite, 23:29 Heled[5] son of Baanah the Netophathite, Ittai son of Ribai from Gibeah in Benjamin, 23:30 Benaiah the Pirathonite, Hiddai from the wadis of Gaash, 23:31 Abi-Albon the Arbathite, Azmaveth the Barhumite, 23:32 Eliahba the Shaalbonite, the sons of Jashen, Jonathan 23:33 son of[6] Shammah the Hararite, Ahiam son of Sharar the Hararite, 23:34 Eliphelet son of Ahasbai the Maacathite, Eliam son of Ahithophel the Gilonite, 23:35 Hezrai[7] the Carmelite, Paarai the Arbite, 23:36 Igal son of Nathan from Zobah, Bani the Gadite, 23:37 Zelek the Ammonite, Naharai the Beerothite (the armor-bearer[8] of Joab son of Zeruiah), 23:38 Ira the Ithrite, Gareb the Ithrite 23:39 and Uriah the Hittite. Altogether there were thirty-seven.

David Displeases the Lord by Taking a Census

24:1 The LORD's anger again raged against Israel, and he incited David against them, saying, "Go count Israel and Judah."[9] 24:2 The king told Joab, the general in command of his army, "Go through all the tribes of Israel from Dan to Beer Sheba and muster the army, so I may know the size of the army."

24:3 Joab replied to the king, "May the LORD your God make the army a hundred times larger right before the eyes of my lord the king! But why does my master the king want to do this?"
